CHAPTER XLIII.

"That I certainly didn't," says Bob, cheerfully but respectfully; "quite the contrary."

"Don't argue with me, sir!" shouts Mr. Palmer. "Let that young lady go, sir, and leave my premises!"

"I don't want to argue, sir. I wish you'd have a little patience," says Bob.

"Haden't you better come inside and plead your cause?" says Sir Herrick, calmly, and his voice seems to have some little effect upon the infuriated parent.

"It's no use, Sir Herrick. I won't hear of it. If he comes in it can't make any difference." And he stamps up the steps.

"That will do for an invitation, my dear Bob," says Herrick. "Come on!" And he links his arm in Bob's while Paula goes to May.

They follow Mr. Palmer into the dinner-room, and he reopens the battle at once.

"Look here!" he says, thumping the table, "one word is as good as a hundred. I don't want no had blood and no hard words. As I said to Sir Herrick, I'm a reasonable man, but I ain't going to have this match, and that's settled. And I think it would have been far better if Master Bob had remained where he was, wherever that may be, instead of upsetting my gal."

"What have you to say to that, Bob?" says Sir Herrick to Bob, who stands with folded arms and a serene countenance.

"Well, I suppose I must take Mr. Palmer's word," says Bob, but with a quiet smile. "Anything for peace."

"Bob!" exclaims Paula, indignantly; but May, whose eyes have never left Bob's face, smiles curiously.

Mr. Palmer grunts.

"Well, if that's the way you take it, I'll go further, and say that I'm glad to see you back, and—ah—as a friend—only a friend, mind, not a son-in-law—you're welcome. What will you have to drink?"

"Thanks," says Bob, calmly, "I'll take a little whiskey-and-water."

May files to the sideboard; but Mr. Palmer shrieks out:

"You sit down! There's servants in the house, I suppose?" and he rings the bell.

Paula creeps close to Sir Herrick.

"What does it mean?" she whispers, and he shrugs his shoulders.

"I don't know. Quite a little comedy; but Bob and May understand it, I suppose."

The servant puts the whiskey-and-water on the table, and Bob looks round with upraised glass.

"Here's health and happiness to all!" he says in his blunt, outspoken fashion, his eyes lingering on May, who watches him as if her life depended upon it.

"Hem!" says Mr. Palmer. "Sit down. Hope you're well. What have you been a-doing?"

"Sheep-farming," says Bob, not overcheerfully.

"Ah!" exclaims Mr. Palmer, prophetically. "And ain't done much good at it?"

Bob shakes his head.

"I thought not," says Mr. Palmer, with a grunt.

"No," says Bob, "tuck was against me. I think you said that it would be before I started."

Mr. Palmer nods.

"My first lot of sheep got the disease, and my next got astray. I was brought down to a— Don't cry, my dear Miss May."

"Never mind Miss May," says Mr. Palmer, sharply. "She's no business of yours. Well!"

"Well, then I had a chance. A man offered me his stock and run—that's his land—for a thousand pounds, and, thanks to Paula, I bought it; but the man had taken me in. The land was poor, and the sheep had got the disease, and there I was again."

"Ah!" says Mr. Palmer, in the tone of "I told you so."

"But I stuck to the land, and I've got most of it now—as much as I could hold. It wasn't good for sheep. The only thing that flourished there was stones. I brought some of them home to show you, thinking you would be interested, sir."

And he takes a canvas bag from his pocket and hands it to Mr. Palmer.

The sugar-baker eyes it with superior contempt, and unties the string.

"Stones," he says—"sto—" Then he springs to his feet. "Why, powers above, it's gold!"

Bob sits quite quietly, looking up at the old man's changed face with a curious air. Paula is for rushing forward; but Sir Herrick, who is enjoying the comedy too much to permit it to be interrupted, holds her back.

"Gold!" echoes Mr. Palmer, sinking into his chair, and pouring the rough and ugly-looking lumps out of the bag on to the table.

"Yes," says Bob. "So my hired man said. I didn't know; but he had seen it before."

"And—and," stammers Mr. Palmer, sheepishly, "did you—that is—bless my soul—was there much of it? Did you get—"

"We got as much as we could quietly, before the crowd came, and I've got a big claim there now. My men are working it."

"Then—then," gasps the astonished sugar-baker, "you are—"

Bob nods, not proudly, but with his old, quiet, unassuming way.

"Yes, sir, I'm pretty rich, I suppose."

"This isn't all!" demands Mr. Palmer, suspiciously.

Bob shakes his head.

"I deposited it at the bank as I came through. Nine months' hard work, sir."

"How much—how much?" demands Mr. Palmer, feverishly.

Bob smiles this time.

"Somewhere about fifty thousand pounds, sir," he says, quietly.

"Bless my soul!" gasps Mr. Palmer. (To be continued.)

CHAPTER I.

THE CASE FOR THE DEFENSE.

A hush, not merely of ordinary interest, but of an interest mingled with something like respect, fell upon the crowded court when the counsel for the defense arose to begin his address to the jury. It was by no means an ordinary case, for more reasons than one, and therefore it had attracted not only a large but a brilliant and representative audience.

The accused was not called the "prisoner," because, for certain technical reasons, the case was being heard, not at the Old Bailey, but in the lord chief justice's court, in the royal courts of justice. He was a man very well known in society, a man of stainless honor and distinguished position. He had made the mistake which too many such men make, and had permitted himself to become chairman of a group of companies which had not only appeared to be perfectly sound, but had for some few years paid large dividends.

The managing director had died somewhat suddenly, if not suspiciously, and within a few months had come revelation and ruin.

Only a few months before this a notorious company case had roused the public into unwonted indignation, and now that the scandal had been repeated, the public demanded another victim, and this victim had been found in the chairman.

The facts, as they were brought out at the police-court proceedings, certainly looked very black against the accused. His name, his position, and his stainless public and private life, all went for nothing. On the contrary, they seemed rather to inflame the popular thirst for vengeance, for here indeed was an important victim, one whose sacrifice on the altar of commercial morality should be a fitting warning to others tempted to delude innocent investors by the glamour of their wealth and position.

But when it became known that the case for the defense had been undertaken by Kenneth Markham, a very decided change came over the public mind, for this was not an ordinary knight of the long robe, no advocate who simply took any brief that was offered to him provided the figures on the front of it were satisfactory, and without thought or care as to the moral rights and wrongs of the case. He was rather a knight-errant of justice, as distinguished from mere law. He was, in short, a lawyer practically unique among his class, for no matter what the figures on a brief were, he invariably declined to undertake the case until he had satisfied himself as to its merits.

Markham had been tempted many a time, for he was admitted to be the most brilliant junior lawyer of the day. Indeed, it was only a question of the ordinary lapse of time as to when he should have a judgeship for the

THE BUSINESS OF HOME MAKING

RUTH CAMERON

There is a good deal said nowadays about running a home being a woman's business. The woman who is doing that is presumed to be contributing her fair share to the work of the world and to have earned a proportion of the surplus left over (in the rare case that there is any) when her husband's earnings have paid the running expenses of the home.

Could Her Husband Do Business That Way?

Now I don't know much about her husband's business, but I do know this, that he wouldn't be kept in the important position that he holds six months if he conducted it in the way she runs her home.

LITTLE FELLOW.

You're just a little fellow with a lot of funny ways.

Just three-foot-six of mischief set with eyes that fairly blaze;

You're always up to something with those busy hands of yours,

And you leave a trail o' ruin on the walls an' on the doors;

An' I wonder, as I watch you, an' your curious tricks I see,

Whatever is the reason that you mean so much to me.

You're just a chubby rascal with a grin upon your face,

Just seven years o' gladness, an' a hard and trying case;

You think the world's your playground, an' in all you say an' do

You fancy everybody ought to bow an' scrape to you;

Dull care's a thing you laugh at just as though 'twill never be,

An' it's really most alarming how you tear your little shirt;

But I have to smile upon you, an' with your willful ways,

I'm certain that I need you round about me all my days;

Yes, I've got to have you with me, for somehow it's come to be

That I couldn't live without you, for you're all the world to me.

St. John's Resident Describes His Daughter's Cure from Eczema.

"I am more than grateful since using your wonderful D.D.D. for eczema. My little girl was troubled with weeping eczema. I used everything but to no use and thought D.D.D. would be of no use either. My girl's head became so bad I had to clip her hair off and keep her from school. She got sores all over her body. I used six bottles and am proud to say she is cured. Last London "Heretic" Execution.

On March 18, 1612, during the reign of James the First, Bartholomew Legate was burned to death at West Smithfield for heresy, in the presence of a vast concourse of people. That was nearly the last execution for such an offence in England, the final one being that of Edward Wightman, at Litchfield, on Saturday, April 10 of that year. But in Scotland capital punishment for heretics continued till Jan. 8, 1697, when Thomas Aikenhead was hanged during the reign of William and Mary. A native of Essex, and a cloth merchant, Legate went to Zealand, in Holland, and was there the preacher of a new sect, who believed that Christ was born free from sin and died as a propitiatory sacrifice for that of others, but rejected prayer to Him. He seemed to have forgotten, for example, that the last saying but one of Stephen, the first martyr, was the prayer "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit" (Acts vii. 59). On returning to London Legate was committed to Newgate prison with his brother Thomas, who died there, so Legate was released. James the First was personally interested in the case, and often had Legate with him; but at last often had Legate at him with his foot, and said "Away, base fellow, it shall never be said that one stayth in my presence that hath never prayed to our Saviour for seven years together." Legate was therefore tried before the Consistory Court of Canterbury, now called the Court of Arches, and sentence having been pronounced on March 5, 1612, by John King, Bishop of London, the accused was executed, refusing all attempts to persuade him to recant. He was in his distinguishing religious opinion what is now called an Unitarian.

THE FLU.

Last year I had the well known flu, and now I have the flu once more; I lie in bed and say "Kerchoo," and other words I have in store. My dome of thought is full of ache, and pain through all my system wends, and busy drug-gists strive to make the pills the sawbones recommend. 'Twas war that brought this punk disease, that threatens now my useful life; and Wilhelm, with his war lord wheeze, was at the bottom of the strife. I cannot think of any ill in all this sorry world so wide, that can't be charged to old Ex-Bill—and now they say he won't be tried. Ah, woe is me! This tin horn sport won't reap the punishment that's due; he'll not appear in any court, for having usenerd in the flu. If I should spring some punk disease that made your pills of no avail, how long before the cops would seize my frame and put the same in jail? This lack of justice makes me blue, my anguished breast with wrath is filled, and so I cry, "Ker-swoosh! Kerchoo!" and take another mess of pills.

Moderate Prohibitionists Hold Enthusiastic Meeting Record Audience in Casino Theatre--Resolutions for Amendment of Present Act Unanimously Adopted -- Rationing System Proposed.

The meeting of citizens called last night for the purpose of considering certain amendments to the Prohibition Act, was attended by one of the largest gatherings ever seen in the Casino Theatre. Every available seat was occupied long before the meeting opened, and hundreds were obliged to stand. In order to get the sentiment of the meeting, it was decided that anyone desiring to speak could do so from the audience, fifteen minutes being allotted to each speaker. A Chairman, Mr. Warwick Smith, and a Secretary, Mr. J. J. St. John, were appointed by unanimous consent. Mr. Smith, in thanking the audience, said that he did not expect to be made Chairman of the meeting, as he had intended to discuss the matter which was before the body. Asking the audience if they were satisfied with the present system, he received an unmistakable reply of NO! The question did they want a return to the open saloon, was also put and answered in the negative. Reviewing the working of the present Act, the Chairman said that in some of the outports brewing day was as regular as washing day, and that "moonshine" making was openly practiced. The aims and objects of the Moderates were outlined, and the resolutions submitted, were read. Letters of endorsement of the movement were read from Rev. Canon Smith, a strong prohibitionist worker—and Rev. A. G. Barry, whose letter said that something has to be done to alter the present conditions, and he gave the resolutions his support. Mr. Thomas Peel, speaking next, cited the Turks and Arabs as people who are strictly against alcohol, and he asked, are these an example for British people? In cold climates like ours, alcohol was needed. Mr. J. Davey spoke, favoring the present movement. Mr. F. Gough condemned the present system, and spoke of the open manufacture of "moonshine" going on in the outports, and complained that while the workingman was deprived of a without proper forethought, and it is only now its defects are being found out. The city to-day is threatened by more evils than ever known under the old law. Thousands of dollars are being spent on drinks that are ruinous to the human constitution. The dope evil was prevalent amongst youth particularly. Prohibition has failed, and he favored the modifications recommended. Asked if he favored the "script" system, he replied, NO! Prohibition goes beyond reason, and though alcohol is scientifically known as a narcotic, he would not say that it was not useful.

The resolutions were read, and a standing vote taken. It was carried amid thunderous applause, only two persons dissenting. The original committee of thirty were again nominated as a working body with power to add to their numbers, which will be increased to fifty. Any who wish to work on the committee may send in their names to the Secretary.

In closing, Mr. St. John stated that a lot of work had to be done and done quickly, if the people did not wish to have two years more of the present farce. A petition for a plebiscite would be gotten up and presented to the Legislature which meets during the middle of April. The following is the resolutions adopted by the meeting:

WHEREAS the Prohibition Act and amendments thereto have proved unworkable, and ill-adapted to the needs of this country;

AND WHEREAS many evils have sprung from the enforcement of this Act, due to the lack of public sympathy and support;

AND WHEREAS it is a necessary sanction of every law that it should have behind it the support and co-operation of the people;

AND WHEREAS, while considerable benefit has accrued from prohibition, the following evils have also resulted, namely: (1) The open and illicit distilling of so-called "moonshine"; (2) The flagrant abuse by influential persons of the "script" privilege; and (3) the drinking (especially by minors) of various essences and "dope."

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that this meeting, representing all classes and creeds of the citizens of St. John's, places on record its opinion that, in the interests of the public welfare, such amendments should be made to the Prohibition Act, as would enable reputable citizens to obtain periodically, by a rationing system, limited quantities of alcoholic beverages for their personal consumption.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the necessary steps be taken to bring these matters before the Government, and the country generally, in order that immediate action in the premises be taken.

Essex Motors.

You hear much these days about the car of the future.

But who describes it other than that it must be light in weight, fine in quality, enduring, reliable and of superior performance.

The ESSEX has more than one economy appeal. In gasoline, oil, tires and repair cost it is distinctly attractive. And, of course, its performance is now recognized by all motorists. Not many question ESSEX ability to out-perform other cars that it meets.

The Advent of the Man. The Goods and the Guarantee.

I AM KEARNEY—THE MAN, the projector of My Store's New Policy. The creator of the iron-bound GUARANTEE that protects every purchaser of my Quality Goods.

FIVE YEARS OF INCREASING SUCCESS IN SELLING QUALITY GOODS!

This is my record. Under my management the old firm of Smyth's earned the reputation of the "QUALITY STORE", a favorite resort for young men. It pleased me to know that I was giving Better Service, Better Value—it pleased me to hear the young men say among themselves, "If it doesn't wear well; if it doesn't bring you back in Quality as much as you paid, bring it back—KEARNEY WILL MAKE IT RIGHT." Yes, I would rather lose than have my customers dissatisfied. And the Young Men who frequent my Store are quick to recognize square dealing. My trade is not the trade of the passing customer. My customers "stick."

BEGINNING MY GREATEST YEAR

I want to make this my First Year of ownership a year filled with great endeavor. I want my young men customers to say of me: "He will make Right; HIS WORD IS HIS BOND." I want the support of every young man who looks for Quality and Style in his Furnishings; and for this I will give Greater Value than any other man in my line—for this I have THE GOODS.

Customers of mine who come often to my Store know how complete my stock is; how critically it is kept.

PONDER OVER THIS! I bought One Year ahead! I bought so heavily, so keenly alive to the probabilities of the future that I have no need to fear that the Spring and Summer Seasons will catch me unprepared; that my customers will have to bear the brunt of any shortsightedness. It is the KEARNEY FIRST spirit again!

AND I HAVE THE WORLD'S BEST GOODS!

Famous Lines of Proven Quality; Latest Styles exploited by manufacturers that Paris Modistes are glad to copy. I have agencies for three Famous Continental Hats. Skeptics who doubt my word—what do you say to this:

BORSALINO'S from Italy, the land of Art and Song.
STETSON'S from America. Stetson Style is Broadway Style.
CHRISTY'S from England. Bond Street welcomes every New Style created by Christy artistes.

Each season the same styles that are new in Sicily, on Broadway, on Bond Street, will be shown in my Store; an item of service that enables my customers to wear the world's newest creations.

THE GUARANTEE.

Let me ask you this: Did you ever bring back to any store an article that was defective, when you believed you had reason for being dissatisfied, and had the article taken back without argument and the matter made "right"? This is the KEARNEY FIRST way. When I guarantee anything I sell; when I give you my word, it is a guarantee that will protect you till the article has given full value for the price paid. Know then that MY WORD IS MY BOND.

Illinois Man Feels Many Years Younger Since Taking Tanlac

CHARLES STENSTROM, Well-Known Peoria, Ill., Contractor.

"I feel thirty years younger since I got hold of Tanlac, and if it was necessary could handle a shovel and turn as much dirt as any of my men," said Charles Stenstrom, the well-known concrete and excavating contractor, living at 607 Fishgate Street, Peoria, Ill.

"For thirty years I have suffered all the misery that goes with stomach trouble, rheumatism, and disordered kidneys, and when I began taking Tanlac I was so bad off I was about to retire from business.

"My stomach was so badly upset that it nearly laid me up altogether and after every meal I took cramping spells that sometimes were so bad I couldn't leave the house for I was afraid I could not get back. I bloated up so with gas that I could not get a long breath. My legs pained me almost every minute of the day and when the weather was damp my arms hurt me so much it was agony for me to bend them. My kidneys were so badly out of order that I had pains all through my back and at night I was in such misery I could hardly sleep at all. Every morning my back was so stiff it was hard for me to get out of bed and during the day I couldn't think of doing my work.

"Things are different now as Tanlac has made a wonderful change in my condition. Everything I eat agrees with me perfectly. The rheumatism has almost disappeared and the pains and stiffness in my back have all gone. I sleep sound every night and I get up in the mornings feeling fine and ready for breakfast. I have given up all idea of retiring from business, as Tanlac has given me new life and strength and I am now enjoying better health than I have for many years.

"Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

Wedding Bells.

At 7.30 last evening a very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Gower Street Methodist Parsonage by the Rev. E. W. Forbes, when Mary Cloutier of Catalina, became the wife of Robert Burton of this city. The bride was attended by Miss E. Saunders, while Mr. Louis White ably supported the groom. After the ceremony was performed the bridal party drove to the residence of the groom, 29 Freshwater Road, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of by the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The groom's present to the bride was a piece of gold, and to the bridesmaid a necklace. After spending a few days in town they leave for their future home Catalina.

Obituary.

It is with mixed emotions of grief that we chronicle to-day the passing of Mrs. Edward Kelly, Torbay, (nee Miss Mary Butler). The deceased was in her twenty-eight year and had only been ill but a short time. She was always of a bright and cheerful disposition, and all who were privileged to enjoy her friendship or experience her kindness, will learn of her death with profound sorrow. The deceased leaves to mourn her a kind and loving husband and one child. Besides a sorrowing mother and father, also three sisters, two at home, Elizabeth and Angela, and Mrs. Wm. Loombe, residing at Hartford, Conn., also two brothers, John and William.

He leaves next week to take up his survey work for the Canadian Government in British Columbia, and all ranks hope to see him back at Headquarters next winter. In the meantime we wish him good luck and a safe return.

Our Church in Canada, Newfoundland, and Bermuda set out to raise Four Millions of Dollars in a great Forward Movement Campaign in the month of February. Canadian Methodists alone have raised the Four Millions of Dollars and more than half another million, and they are going on now to make it Five Millions of Dollars. That is splendid giving. In many cases it is sacrificial giving. But it is giving great joy to the generous givers and providing great possibilities for advancing the Kingdom of God at home and abroad.

Now it is up to Newfoundland Methodists to emulate the generosity and self-sacrifice of their brethren in Canada, and to make the month of April in Newfoundland as triumphant and joyous an occasion of generous giving as February was in Canada. Newfoundland has a name for liberal things. She has a reputation to keep up. The people who have given so large-heartedly in our sister Dominion are looking to her to bear her part with proportional liberality. "From past experience," says the "Christian Guardian" of Toronto, "we know that our Newfoundland brethren will in nothing come short of their full share." That is a high compliment but it is also a challenge. We must not come short of our full share. For our own sake, for our country's sake, for the sake of Christ's Kingdom, we in this Dominion must in nothing come short of our full share.

I appeal to our people in town and country; I appeal to the members and officials of our church; I appeal to our ministers, to put every atom of their zeal and interest and self-denying effort into the Campaign during the month of April, so that when it closes we may be able to stand up proudly with our Canadian brethren, having in nothing come short of our full share, but even gone beyond it.

Produce and Provisions.

Market Report in Trade Review.)
CODFISH.—Trade is very dull in St. John's here this week, owing to the conditions reported from the markets of Southern Europe. Mr. W. A. Munnah from Genoa, Thursday as follows: "Conditions bad. Very doubtful whether the Consorzio will be dissolved this year. It is now a political question involving the food supply. Government enforcing rations in Italy." Oporto market is congested. Prices have fallen as low as 45s.

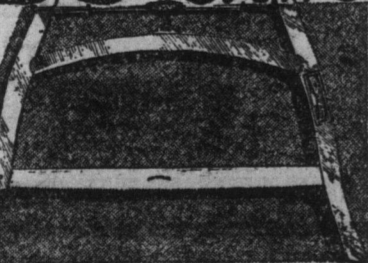

It is estimated that there are 230,000 quintals of dry codfish in Newfoundland. Nearly half of this is in the Northern Outports. The total export from St. John's this week was 23,905 quintals.
CODDLE.—The coddle market is very quiet. Common oil is firm at $3.05 in the local market, with small stocks on hand and very few transactions. The export of common oil this week was 53,243 gallons. Cod liver oil demand is dull, but is expected to improve as the season advances, and the new oil is available. The export of cod-liver oil this week was 8,545 gallons. The few consignments of new oil that has so far come here from the West Coast sold at $2.25 per gallon. Manufacturers are getting ready for the season's work on the East Coast, and it is likely there will be as many into business as last year.

HERRING.—During this week St. John's trade shipped 2,279 barrels of herring to New York and West Indies. These are chiefly split herring. Very little Scotch pack have so far reached the St. John's market. Next month it is likely the fall and winter catch will be coming in over the road wherever the railway touches, and in May the catch at Springdale and vicinity will be coming forward by steamer and schooners. Some 10,000 barrels Scotch pack are quoted at $10 to $12.00 and splits at $5 to $6.00.
BEEF.—What holds good of the pork situation applies equally to beef. Latest advices from the United States show that stocks are accumulating at the packing centres and there is very little buying going on. Brokers report that the packers are all anxious to unload, and are inviting bids for their beef products, and are anxious over the inactivity of the market. Large European demand is over, and the stocks are becoming so heavy at the packing houses that a decline is inevitable. Meantime, stocks are short here and some popular brands badly needed are unobtainable. Prices as last week range from $30 to $40.00.

PORK.—Not much doing owing to the expectation of lower prices, and the timidity on the part of the trade to make purchases when the outlook is so uncertain. The stocks on hand here are running low. Brokers complain of the unwillingness of pork dealers to contract for future purchases. It is thought that the unrest in regard to fishery supplying and curtailment in this regard by the merchants will considerably lessen the pork importation. The prices are the same here as quoted last week, but some dealers look for a decline next month.

Notes From Brigus.

Mrs. S. E. Chate arrived home by Saturday's train, accompanied by her son, George, who had been at the General Hospital for the past two months having a broken leg set.
The amateur hockey match, Brigus vs. Bay Roberts, was run off at the latter place on Monday the 8th inst. The Brigus team was a hastily formed one, the notice from Bay Roberts being so short that some of our senior lads could not proceed. The game, which, according to report, was played in a decidedly rough manner by the "Cable City" lads, ended in a win for the latter by a score of 8 goals to 4. The winners were invited up for a return match. They arrived on Friday the 12th inst., but owing to the mildness of the weather the game had to be postponed.

The following were here to spend St. Patrick's Day with friends:—Mr. and Mrs. William French, Messrs. Louis Bartlett, Gus Stapleton, P. J. Kept from St. John's; Mr. H. M. Hearn from Heart's Content, and Mrs. P. Delaney and children from Bay Roberts.

"Robert Emmet," that great historical Irish Drama, was successfully staged in St. Patrick's Hall on the 17th inst., in the afternoon for the children and at night for the grown-ups. Many were prevented from attending through the inclemency of the weather. However, the performance at night was well attended, and we have no hesitation in saying that those who did attend were amply rewarded for their patronage. Patrons were given an unusual treat in the dancing of a Scotch lasso, in the person of Mrs. Peter Power of Cupids, whose actions—in which were combined with delicacy and skill—won the favour and hearty applause of those present. Between the acts songs were sung by Misses Breahan and Delaney and Messrs. Hall, Aspell, and French, who were each heartily applauded by an appreciative audience. Herewith will be seen the cast of characters, which includes the names of some, who made their debut in "Robert Emmet," but whom we hope to have the pleasure of seeing often in the future on our local stage. After the performance dancing was kept up till the "wee sma' hours."

Advance Spring Styles

ENGLISH MILLINERY

Every Hat we are showing carries a message of the nearness of Spring. The new styles are not so much the change-of-the-season which always comes with the passing of the Winter as they are a complete change in every feature of model and material. With the war only a far-off echo, and the surety of peace and prosperity growing greater every day, the fashions of the coming season show a re-awakening of the desire for the beautiful, the youthful, and the gaily expressed creations of joyful design to which the makers of this Spring's millinery have responded with lavish use of dainty decorative handwork, and the delightful beauty in colourings and rich materials.
