LORD MORDEN'S DAUGHTER — OR — THE TRAGEDY OF THE CEDARS.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Peters put on his hat, and walked out into the night. He did not even say good-night to the lodge-keeper when he passed him, but he walked with quick steps to the railway station.

There was no train for twenty minutes, and he paced the platform impatiently.

"I shall be late," he thought. "I have to meet Mr. Fairfax and Mr. Rogers. It is eleven now; I cannot get to the Temple until past twelve."

He was right, for the train due at midnight did not get into Lutgate Hill until about half-past twelve.

Peters strode along Fleet street, his head bent in thought. He did not dream that he was being followed by a man in a gray suit. What had he to fear where it was almost as light as day?

He turned into the Temple, and the man hastened his movements, keeping well in the shadow.

He stumbled up the stone steps leading to the barrister's chambers, and the man flashed across the paved court, and into the dark passage after him.

Peters half-turned, when he felt a sharp pain in his side, and saw the flash of steel. Again the weapon pierced him, and he staggered; then gathering himself together, he launched out his heavy right hand and struck blindly at his assailant. It was an expiring effort, but the force of the blow was terrific. His clinched fist crushed into the assassin's face, and buried him over the iron balustrade that guarded the spiral stairway—hurled him as though he had been hit by a feather's weight—into the blackness, thirty feet below. An agonized cry started the echoes of the solemn cloisters, followed by a horrible thud; but Peters heard neither, for he had toppled over, dead to all knowledge of the world, his lifeblood gushing from two ugly wounds.

Then it was that the barrister's door was thrown open, and a flood of light revealed the ghastly scene.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The heavy blow that stunned Edmund Locksley came from a loaded stick, wielded by an expert and sinewy arm.

He was conscious of the shock; the electric lights along the embankment danced in a furious whirl; then there was a rush of air, and a plunge into icy water.

He went down, down with the sound of clashing bells in his ears, mingled with a roar like that of a mighty torrent. He struggled hard for life, and found himself clinging to the anchor-chains of a great, black barge. He never knew how he got there, for he was now a hundred yards from the bridge, and must have been carried along by the force of the rushing, swirling waters.

At last he pulled himself up the chains, and crawled on to the barge. In all his after years he never remembered the action. After lying for a little while on the tarpaulin that covered hundreds of bales of fresh, sweet-smelling hay, the instinct of self-preservation guided him under its shelter, and he crept out of the night wind into the warmth.

He made no further movement or sound, but relapsed into blessed insensibility.

Before daybreak next morning the barge was slipped from her moorings and hitched to a pilot tug, which took her clear of the shippings. From this point she started, with the tide, for Southam, with only two men aboard.

The journey occupied the best part of two days, and it is probable that Locksley would not have been discovered in a week, only he began to toss and groan.

The tarpaulin was removed, and the astonished owner of the barge saw a man raving in the delirium of fever.

His first impulse was to hurry ashore and put the matter in the hands of the police, but he was an avaricious man, and his eyes greedily devoured the beauty of a diamond ring on one of Locksley's fingers. He had no thought of theft or foul play, but the dream of a handsome reward flashed through his mind—a handsome reward from the stranger himself, if he placed him under an obligation.

"How did you come here, sir?" he asked, and the only reply was "Dora! Dora! I know that you will wait and watch at the window!"

"It's no use asking him any questions, guv'nor," his assistant observed. "Now, I'll tell you how he came here. He got a spill out of his boat, like as not, and couldn't swim ashore. He's got the fever, he has. A tip-top swell, too. See here! A gold watch in his pocket, worth fifty quid!"

"Keep your fingers off what doesn't belong to you Will," was the stern reply. "And just bear a hand here. I'll take him to my cot, and send for a doctor. Now, mum's the word about this job."

"Right, guv'nor," replied Will.

The barge-owner's cottage was on the verge of a cornfield, a quarter of a mile away, and occupied an isolated position. He was blessed with a large family of young children, and had to scheme in many ways to make both ends meet. In the season he had a sitting-room and bed-room to let, and the situation was admirably suited to an invalid who liked to be away from the noise of the beach. He was also the owner of three or four bathing machines, and half-a-dozen boats, which he let out by the hour when there was anybody desirous of hiring one.

The longer his eyes rested upon the flashing ring on Locksley's finger, the more certain was he that the stick man was a gentleman, and he blest his lucky star that it was fast growing dark for he wanted none of the rival boat men to have an inkling of what he hoped would be a windfall.

He was a deep-chested, powerful man, and when Edmund had been handily disposed of across his broad shoulders, the weight seemed of little consequence to his quick movements.

With Will's assistance, they got him ashore in a row-boat, and from the rowboat he was carried to the cottage, without another soul being one whit the wiser. Then John Tomkins—for that was the barge-owner's name—then held a brief consultation with his better half, and Locksley was put to bed in the room that they usually let to boarders.

This much accomplished, John Tomkins sent for a doctor, while he examined the contents of the sick man's pockets. There was a purse, with a good sum of money in it, and though it made the barge-owner's eyes glisten, he did not appropriate one penny. He only counted it carefully, and wondered what he would make out of his imitation of the Good Samaritan.

Then he opened Locksley's pocket-book, and took out a small bundle of banknotes.

"Why, he's a millionaire!" thought Tomkins.

His next proceeding was to read a few of Locksley's private letters, and make the discovery that the man who had so strangely been cast upon his care was Edmund Locksley, of the Prince Albert Club, Piccadilly.

He quickly hid the pocket-book from sight, and thought—

"Of course, an outsider would say that it was my duty to communicate with the Prince Albert Club at once, but what would be the result? Why some of his fine friends would come down here by the first express, and whisk him away almost without a chance, and Mr. Locksley would not even know how much he is indebted to John Tomkins. No, that game won't suit me. Let him get well enough to realize what a poor man has done for him!"

The pocket-book, and all else likely to be examined by an officious doctor, were carefully placed under lock and key, and John Tomkins instructed his dutiful wife to know nothing when the physician arrived. She knew quite sufficient to understand this, and having an absolute confidence of her lord and master, assented, with a nod, a slight compression of the lips, and a fluttering of the eyelids.

The doctor came, and, after examining his patient, was the recipient of a wicked but ingenious story from the lips of John Tomkins.

"Is he very ill?" asked the barge-owner.

"Not dangerously. He has had a serious blow over the head, but is suffering principally from cold and exposure. The fever will be gone in a couple of days. Who is he?"

"Well, now, sir," replied John Tomkins, "you're fairly got me. He came to the wharf while me and Will was loading the barge. We've brought twenty tons of hay down from Battersea, you know, sir. Well, the gentleman here was looking on, and said he would like a trip down the river. I said I didn't mind, and never asked him his name or anything else. Well, he boarded her from a rowboat, after the tug had dropped her, and all was right till this morning. Me and Will heard a splash, and we calculated that he had pitched overboard. There he was floating in the water like a log and we fished him out. He must have struck his head hard against something, for he's never spoke sensibly since."

"It was your duty to obtain medical assistance at once," the doctor said, severely.

"Well, how was I going to get it, and leave him when I felt responsible for him?" pleaded Tomkins.

"As it happens, he will soon get well, but you might have been responsible for his death."

"I should have told you a mighty different tale if it had looked like a case of death," thought Tomkins.

"Any papers about the gentleman to indicate who he is?" asked the doctor.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

THE OLD CLOTHES CRY.
I met him in his garden where he tolled with hoe and spade, I stopped with hand on roses and the panny bed he'd made, And I noticed he was wearing evening dress and fancy shoes— Which is not the sort of raiment busy gardeners ought to use. "Why the soup and fish?" I asked him, and I laughed to hear him say: "That wife of mine has given all my other clothes away."

"Listen, neighbor, listen to my little tale of woe, I possess, The wife and I were married nearly twenty years ago, I've told her time and time again to leave my clothes and clay; But I have never had a pair of pants to call my own; I've set aside old suits, old shoes, for gardening in the spring. But when I've gone to get them out she hadn't left a thing. "I've boarded suits for fishing trips and hunting trips to be, Now there's an army wearing clothes that once belonged to me! I've said: "When gardening time returns, these duds I'll want to wear." But when I've gone to get them out I couldn't find them there; That wife of mine will never let a garment rest a day, I think she has a mania for giving duds away.

"So that is why you see me here in evening clothes to-day, And why my patent leather shoes are thick with mud and clay; I'm teaching her a lesson, though these duds will be a mess I'm gardening in the only other suit which I possess. I'm trying to convince her, though I doubt if that can be, That charity begins at home, and ought to start with me."

Who Gets the Millions?
A QUERY CONCERNING LAST YEAR'S BUDGET.

"In last year's Budget Mr. Philip Snowden reduced the tea duty, which then stood nominally at 8d. per lb., by one-half—nominally, but not actually, because the bulk of the tea we drink comes from India and Ceylon and enjoys Imperial Preference. So the actual reduction of the duty was from 8d. to 3 3/4d. per lb.," writes F. B. in the Star.

"Mr. Snowden said at the time that he had received a guarantee that the reduction of the duty would reach the consumer.

"It did, instantly and emphatically. The Budget was introduced on April 29, and although the reduced duty did not come into force until May 5, on April 30 practically every shop in the country announced a reduction in the price of every description of tea by 4d. per lb.

"To the housewife it seemed almost too good to be true.

"It was.

"Before very long the price of tea began to creep up again, and by September an all-round rise of 2d. per lb. had taken place.

"This is the actual record of a well-known variety that has not changed in quality—

	Per lb.	s. d.
April, 1924 (before the Budget)	3 4	0
May 1924	2 3	0
September, 1924	3 2	0
December, 1924	3 4	0

Since then there has been no change in this particular sort, and as far as can be ascertained the prices of all teas are back at the old level of a year ago.

"Mr. Snowden estimated in his Budget speech that the cost of relieving the tea drinker of half the duty would be £5,000,000 in the last financial year and £5,000,400 in a full year. Who is getting these millions?"

Aberdeen Calling

The cult of the wireless is having its troubles and its joys across the Atlantic just now as well as in America. The story is told of a wireless novice in London whose apparatus refused to function, and an expert neighbor was called into diagnosis. "Have you tried putting a sixpence under the transmitter?" inquired the expert. The adjustment was made, and the novice listened again. For a moment there was silence; thence a voice spoke from the outer spaces: "Aberdeen calling."

Better and Better

Dependable ten years ago, and five years ago, and more dependable than ever to-day, Dodge Brothers Motor Car simply represents the latest phase in a process of continual betterment.

The first cars Dodge Brothers built established a world-wide reputation. The cars they are building to-day incorporate the accumulated refinements of those ten intervening years.

That important improvements in the comfort and appearance of the car are made from time to time, implies no basic departure from Dodge Brothers traditional policy of PROGRESSIVE rather than SEASONAL development.

BARRETT'S FAITH IN AMUNDSEN

COPENHAGEN, May 27. The famous explorer, just back from Canada, where he was in connection with the Dominion Government regarding plans now under way of extending the influence of civilization to the Canadian northland, expressed the following opinions today regarding Amundsen's fate. "Nobody is able to say anything positive on the matter. I all hope for the best and even if Amundsen is unable to carry through his plans many possibilities are open. There is a possibility of him going to Cape Ford or Cape Columbia, which case nothing would be heard from him until the first mail from about this time next year. If he is heard by then, he is not necessarily lost. He may have sought shelter in Greenland, North Scandinavia, or other places between the East Greenland Company's depot and in that case we will hear from him until the autumn of next year. I have absolute confidence in Amundsen."

Fouling the Sea

(By SIR WILLIAM BEACH THOMAS.)

English naturalists have been long distressed at the pollution of the waters, especially in the southern harbors and estuaries, by fouling oil. At last, after many bitter protests, the need for reform has been taken seriously by the shippers. Many things combined to show up the scandal. Dover harbor suddenly became an oil bath. The association of an easterly wind with a particular set of currents and, perhaps, an abnormal release of oil refuse filled the harbor with a foul, black substance that resembled tar in appearance, but was oil in nature. Enormous bonfires of it were lit, but to collect the stuff in a close-enough mass to consume it needed a deal of labor, even under the ideal conditions for such treatment provided round and about Dover in the last days of January. It is more than doubtful whether the device of burning oil can be adapted as a general cure, though the worse excesses can be thus checked, and the technique of burning may be improved. It is not at all improbable that a device may be perfected by which the refuse of tankers or naval ships or merchantmen—and they stand in that order as offenders—might be in a large measure consumed at the time when it is ejected.

Naturalists have been protesting, but even their protests have not gone far enough, and the omitted point has been disregarded by the shippers. Indeed, no one has faced one danger that this casting of troubled oil upon peaceful waters may entail. Doubtless the birds come first. It is a sight pitiful beyond description when a gull—let us quote a particular memory—swims by accident into a patch of oily waste. The first and most immediate effect is that of birdlime. The bird is unable to fly, and the more it struggles to clean itself, the more the spreading grease fouls the feathers. Birds so affected go through a long period of suffering and of fear, and, for the most part, die in the end either of starvation, or from the attacks of their enemies. The big black-backed gulls, the cruellest of all the birds, find many easy victims, and, as a rule, manage to escape the pollution themselves. Some sufferers are killed by internal trouble, due to swallowing the oil. In all cases where the oil kills—and the victims are to be reckoned by hundreds in each month of the year—it kills painfully and slowly. Cleanliness of their feathers is one of the passions of sea birds, and therefore, we may presume, fouling of their feathers gives them peculiar pain. On the most obvious humanitarian grounds it is a national obligation to find the remedy for this widespread cruelty, tarnishing one of the fairest coasts in the world. The "silver girdle" is no longer silver, nor our seas inviolate.

The birds are the worst sufferers and stir most pity; but the injury does not stop at the surface, nor only affect surface-swimming birds. The harm done by the oil does not cease when at last it "suffers a sea change," or, perhaps, I should say a sun change; and it is of the secondary wrong that no one has spoken.

What happens is that the oil and refuse—at any rate, the crude petroleum, and what is called Diesel oil—is slowly altered by a chemical process not yet completely investigated, and loses the first quality of oil. The teltic material becomes heavier than water and sinks to the bottom. Any one who wishes to test this, and feels sacrificial, has only to bathe, for example, in some of the once charming bays of the Isle of Wight. Even if he manages to find a place apparently free from oil he will perceive on emerging that the soles of his feet are black. If it is low tide, he will be able to discover rocks of a hue quite unknown to geologists. They are thickly coated with the same black and septic stuff that has fouled the soles of his feet. It has been sufficiently proved that this is waste oil after it has passed through a chemical, perhaps an oxidising, process. Cruelty to birds matters more than comfort to the bathers; but the second effect of this oil may in the sum of things be more disastrous than the first. The sink deposit is probably cumulative. It grows thicker and thicker, and will in all likelihood kill both vegetable and animal life in the sea.

A particular enquiry into this has been pursued by that great lover of the sea and ships, as well as of wild life, Mr. de Vere Stacpole. He has come to the decision that the oil which is supposed to have vanished—be it have suffered a sea change, if not into something rich, at any rate into something harmless—is, in fact, a permanent and an increasing cause of trouble to the inhabitants, both temporary and permanent, to bathers and to fish. The bulk of evidence goes to show that some of the coarser fish can stand it, but the tenderer cannot. Probably they are not killed, except now and then, but they desert the places that they suffered the pollution. And this is what we should expect from experience with river fish. Road tar is, quite certainly, fatal to trout, directly as well as indirectly. It injures them and destroys their food. The dace, on the other hand, that bright, vigorous, but creditably bony fish common to such rivers as the Lea, appears to be quite unaffected. They multiply and grow to rather unusual sizes where every trout has been studied by well-qualified chemists as well as by biologists. How long the oil last in the form of oil in the surface? What change does it undergo by evaporation, oxidation, or what? What happens to the oil when it is on the bed of the sea and dissolves?

But for all this we want immediate action to prevent the obvious effects. The oil kills the fishes and the birds and contaminates the seashore. It is unpleasant to see on some of the estuaries. Dart, for example, is sometimes an archipelago of iridescent colors—lands of foul oil floating down the river and up with the tide—only agreeable to those that boat the thousands of herring gulls frequent that lovely coast. But the order was obeyed, as it was not, it is no defence to complain to get rid of their refuse consisting of twenty-four hours. Even if the winds were not strong, what would this surface stuff quickly and prevailing wind, as well as that of the Channel, steadily blowing from west to east, drives the oil of it on to the south coast.

Some one called the sea "the cement of civilization." It is more than that. It is the cement of civilization. It is the cement of civilization. It is the cement of civilization. It is the cement of civilization.

Gossip From London

THE REASON FOR DEFERRING ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT.

LONDON, Eng., May 15.—(By Canadian Press)—Here is a charming story that has been going around London this week, and it is vouched for by no less a person than Prince Henry himself.

About a month ago he was asking his royal father and mother when his engagement to a certain Lady Mary Scott could be officially announced, and they told him he would have to wait until the season was over. And this was where they showed a delightful piece of royal tact and thoughtfulness.

Because with Wales a thousand miles away, Prince George going to the China Seas, and the Duke of York back in London with his Duchesses, there would be no Prince Charming for debs to dream of.—If Henry had had his way. Official engagements knock the bottom out of dreams like that, so Henry, to all intents and purposes an unattached young man, has got to play the social game just about as hard as he can. And his friends say that he won't find it very difficult.

NOTEBOOK HINT FROM THE QUEEN.

And whilst on the subject of Royalty and their ways, Queen Mary has adopted a new style in her private notepad. When Mrs. Burner-Wheatley, who was formerly a Maid of Honour to the Queen before she married Mr. Burner-Wheatley, of New York, some years ago, sent her some flowers the other day, the Queen replied on some handsome, ragged-edged paper that bore in one corner an etching of the Queen's favorite corner of the Palace Gardens.

MAMAS SHINGLES SO DAUGHTERS HAVE HAIR.

Quite a number of American and English debutantes are beginning to cover up their shingles, not really because they are tired of them, but because it makes a change. The piquant part about it is, however, that in a good many cases their mothers are providing hair for the shingle coverings.

The reason for this is that young "debs" who were shingled twelve months ago and put their hair carefully away in lavender and other things, have found, on taking out the shorn tresses, that it has been considerably lighter in colour and has lost its "life."

ELASTIC NEEDED FOR THIS SEASON.

So, according to the fashionable hobbers, they have brought along their mothers (at least those mothers that have so far escaped the bob, shingle or shingle), and have literally "sized" the locks as they fell. Of course "mother's hair has needed a little attention, but, oh, not so very much (yesterday), and the next night the "debs" can be seen in the ballroom with "shingles carefully camouflaged under mother's hair."

WORKING GIRL'S EXPERIENCE

Read how She Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Amprington, Ontario.—"I must write and tell you my experience with your medicine. I was working at the factory for three years and became so run-down that I used to take weak spells and would be at home at least one day each week. I was treated by the doctors for anemia, but it didn't seem to do me any good. I was told to take a rest, but was unable to, and kept on getting worse. I was troubled mostly with my periods. I would sometimes pass three months, and when it came it would last around two weeks, and I would have such pains twice in my right side that I could hardly walk. I am only 19 years of age and weigh 118 pounds now, and before taking the Vegetable Compound I was only 108 pounds. I was sickly for two years and some of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken a bottle of it I felt a change. My mother has been taking it for a different ailment and has found it very satisfactory. I am willing to tell friends about the medicine and to answer letters asking about it."

A day out each week shows in the envelope. If you are troubled with some weakness, indicated by a run-down condition, tired feelings, pains and irregularity, let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound help you.

brilliant socially as July, and the monarchs for the last several years come back to Buckingham Palace for a spell in August after Cowes Regatta; and hostesses return to town to finish their social obligations.

Here are some dates specially worth remembering:—

June 22—International Horse Show opens, and the U.S. Polo team meets the British team at Huntington. Both the King and Queen are going and this is where debutantes who have been presented at the first Courts have their first chance of enjoying a smile of recognition from the royal box.

July 10—The Eton vs. Harrow match. Probably the most exclusive of all the outdoor social events, equalled only by the Harrow Ball in the evening.

July 15—Goodwood Race Meeting, and the only race meeting, it is said, which Queen Mary really enjoys. Not so formal as Ascot.

August 3—Cowes Regatta. This is the Cornelius Vanderbilt's week. Invitations to their parties on board their "Atlantic" are as difficult to get as entrance to the Royal Yacht Squadron enclosure.

Last year a few young women got so fazed with the rush of the season that they had to cut out the Cowes and Goodwood events. They spent a couple of weeks in a mudbath so as to get their complexion back by the time they went to Scotland for the shooting.

A FOOT OF LIPSTICK EACH YEAR.

Someone has worked out that Miss 1925 eats her own height in lipstick every four years. Each stick lasts about a month and though she does not actually dispose of it like candy there is undoubtedly something in the argument. Anyhow, she has to apply the cherry bloom about half a dozen times a day.

Lady Louis Mountbatten was displaying a new piece of surgical wizardry when she was luncheoning at the Berkeley with the Duke and Duchess of York this week. She, like a good many other young women today, has had the two top layers of skin removed tender, from her lips, leaving them a radiant cherry colour. They sound tender but they are not. The beauty wizards have found a preparation that takes away all tenderness and leaves the under tissue of skin permanently strung and bright.

Wonders of a Raindrop

The humble raindrop, so common a feature of our lives and more often grumbled at than admired, is in reality an Aladdin's cave of wonder," writes Mr. William H. Pick, B.Sc., F.R.S., etc., in the Glasgow Herald.

"In the first place, it is exceedingly curiously fashioned; no raindrop is simply water and nothing else. Right at its heart there lies a tiny speck of foreign matter, very tiny indeed, but a necessity for its very existence. The fact is that the raindrop is formed in the atmosphere by condensation of water vapour; but it is scientifically true that no water vapour under atmospheric conditions will condense unless there is present something around which it can cling.

"Moreover, the water vapour is fastidious in its choice of its nucleus or nucleus. It demands that that nucleus shall be made of a special type of substance, of those substances, in fact, that are termed 'hygroscopic,' meaning that they have a natural affinity for water. The atmosphere is, however, amply provided with particles of that sort."

"A second strange fact about raindrops," Mr. Pick states later, "is that their size is strictly limited. No raindrops having a diameter greater than just one-fifth of an inch can fall to the ground. This results follows directly from the mechanism of its formation in the atmosphere, a mechanism of which the details are too complicated to be given here.

"But perhaps a greater wonder emerges when a raindrop is split into two, for the mere act of splitting causes the resulting droplets to gain a positive charge of electricity and the air in the neighbourhood to gain a negative charge. Under certain tumultuous conditions in the atmosphere raindrops falling or suspended undergo splitting, coagulation with other droplets, re-splitting, and so on over and over again. Each new split is accompanied by the production of the electric charges.

Imagine, then, a multitude of drops undergoing these splittings and re-splittings, and it will be seen that, although the electricity produced by one rupture is small, the total electric charges will soon become very great, great enough to produce the awe-inspiring effects of lightning and thunder, for such, indeed, is the way that it is now generally held these effects are produced. The humble raindrop is, in truth, a magician."

Mr. Pick concludes an interesting article by describing how raindrops are vitally concerned in the making of rainbows. "These bows," he adds, "so serenely charming, are formed as a result of the power that raindrops have of splitting the white light of the sun into its constituent colours."

WAITING.

Beside the city dump I wait, for Charles Adolphus Tyne; he said he'd meet me here at eight, and now it's nearly a fortnight he wished to sell some real estate, and get this wad of mine. Had he been here on time, I wot we'd soon have made a trade, for I desired to buy the lot, and see the money paid, but my great wire fire is hot, and such ambitious fade. This Charles Adolphus ne'er again can sell me lot or part, or acreage in glade or glen, or frontage in the mart; he made a date with me and then he flunked and broke my heart. He named the hour at which we'd meet, he also named the place, and here I came on eager feet to meet him face to face, and buy a jelly.

One Way Traffic in Narrow Streets

Mr. H. V. Simms' letter, dealing with the conditions under which the unfortunate motor accident occurred on Pleasant Street last Friday, will be found in another column, and it deals with one point in particular which we trust will be considered by the authorities. The writer claims that Pleasant Street is too narrow for motor traffic up and down the hill, and that it should be made a one way route.

We believe that most people will agree with Mr. Simms, and further that for safety sake a similar regulation is necessary in connection with several of our narrow thoroughfares. We have in mind such streets as Jobs Street, the lower part of Casey Street, and the part of Circular Road between Rennie's Mill and Monkstown Roads, to mention a few. Several accidents have occurred at the junction of Rennie's Mill and Circular Roads owing to the blind corner which exists, and if traffic was forbidden to travel eastward along the upper part of the latter, the danger of collisions would be averted.

St. John's was not laid out for fast moving traffic, and the process of making the streets of the city conform to the new order of wheeled vehicles must of necessity be slow, but there is no reason why regulations such as suggested should not be made at once. The slight inconvenience which one way traffic along narrow streets might cause is not deserving of consideration, when compared to the necessity of taking precautions to protect the lives of citizens.

By no means of little importance is Mr. Simms' other remark concerning the dust menace, on the regrettable occasion referred to, which, it must be concluded, was a direct factor in causing a young life to be cut short. The Council are at a loss to provide the city with the proper facilities to abate the evil owing to the lack of funds, and their helplessness under the circumstances is generally recognized. But have all the resources of obtaining money been exhausted? Are we doomed for ever to submit to this danger and to others as well through the off repeated cry that funds are not available?

Be this as it may, the same argument does not apply to the carrying out of the other suggestion made, and as one way routes have been found practicable in other cities, there is no reason why the same system should not be adopted in St. John's.

The Amundsen Venture

More than a week has passed since Raoul Amundsen and his companions left King's Bay, Spitzbergen, for a flight to the North Pole in two aeroplanes, although when they started it was believed that with favourable conditions the return might be made in twenty-four hours.

That there is considerable anxiety for the safety of the party is undoubted, in spite of the opinions expressed by several Arctic explorers. The aeroplane is a frail craft in which to face the dangers and difficulties to be encountered, in the unknown regions round the Pole, and the experiences of the aviators who have accompanied our sealing fleet to the icefields have clearly indicated that only on rare occasions can flights be made without risk.

It seems impossible to come to any other conclusion than that the machines have been disabled in some way or another, as there was no intention of attempting anything more than a flight to the Pole and back. If such is the case, and if the explorers have escaped uninjured, Amundsen's knowledge of conditions in the Arctic will stand the party in good stead, and that news of their safety will be heard soon is the devout wish of all.

1,000,000 Pounds a Year

TO HELP TRADE IN EMPIRE FOODSTUFFS.

The British Government has recently set apart one million pounds a year to assist in developing trade in Empire foodstuffs with the British Isles. This is to be expended under the direction of an Imperial Economic Committee on which the Overseas Dominions are to be represented. Our Government recently received an invitation to suggest ways and means by which our fishery products could share in this bounty. The Government referred the matter to the Board of Trade for its views, and it is in reference to this that Sir P. T. McGrath is to address the Board of Trade tomorrow because of his knowledge of the labours of the Economic Conference in October, 1923.

Little Hope Held Out For 71 Entombed Miners

Winner of Calcutta Sweep Sold Half His Interest--Communists in French Chamber Obstruct Plans Against Riffs.

LITTLE HOPE HELD OUT FOR ENTOMBED MINERS.

GLEN, N.C., May 27.

The fate of three score or more miners entombed at 9.30 o'clock this morning by an explosion below the 10,000 foot lateral of the Carolina Coal Company's mine near here was undetermined today, although rescuers had succeeded in bringing to the surface six bodies, and it was feared most if not all of the others had perished. The records of the mine showed that 59 men, 39 white and 20 negroes, had comprised the crew which went in the mine at eight a.m. while more officials reported that 71 miners lamps were missing, and it was believed that that figure might represent the number entombed on a final check. The two explosions which followed at half hour intervals were believed by officials to have occurred between the second shaft and the opening. The mine authorities said that the six men whose bodies were found apparently had died only a short time before they were reached. While the wives, mothers, and children of the trapped miners gathered as close as possible to the mine, some mutely praying, others frantic, awaiting word of their loved ones, little hope was held that many more of the victims could be reached before to-morrow, despite the steady reinforcement of rescue workers from nearby states.

SHIPPING FROM EMPLOYEE WINS CALCUTTA SWEEP.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., May 27.

James Carew, an employee of a shipping firm here, won nearly £75,000 by holding the coveted winning ticket of the Calcutta Sweepstakes on the Derby, the world's greatest racing prize. Carew will have to give one-fourth of the prize money to a London firm that bought a quarter interest in his ticket on Mann's, the winner, for £2,000. Another quarter of Carew's sweepstake coin will have to be given away, for he sold a second fourth interest in his ticket for £3,000. Carew will have to be satisfied with half the prize.

EMBARRASSING FRENCH IN MOROCCO OPERATIONS.

PARIS, May 27.

The French Parliament showed itself nearly solid behind the Government's defensive policy in Morocco to-day in a five hour debate, that the Communists turned into a scene of turmoil for a time, causing the President of the Chamber, M. Herriot, to accuse the Communist Deputy Doriot of treacherable utterances. Socialist interpellations developed the fact that the Left Bloc was in accord with the Government in specifying that there must be no Imperialistic Colonial expansion. There seems little chance that the debate, which will be continued to-morrow, will result otherwise than a good majority for the Government. The Communists attacked the army and the tactics of Marshal Lyauter, Resident General in Morocco, with such violence that Herriot asked the Chamber to censure Doriot depriving him of his vote and pay for a month.

RELIEF EXPEDITION PLANS HALTED.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 27.

Plans for a seaplane expedition to go to the relief of Raoul Amundsen, the Polar explorer, which have been going forward here for several days under the direction of Haakon H. Hammer, who led the relief of Amundsen in 1923, have been halted on advice from Spitzbergen, the headquarters of the American Norwegian expedition that such a programme is premature.

AMENDMENT TO LEMIEUX ACT.

OTTAWA, May 28.

A Bill amending the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act 1907 (The Lemieux Act), to bring it into conformity with the decision of the Privy Council which found it Ultra Vires of the Provincial Government was before the Senate to-day and passed through the Commons which sent it up for third reading without amendment.

NORWEGIAN MINISTER OF DEFENCE SUGGESTS RELIEF EXPEDITION.

OSLO, May 27.

The Norwegian Minister of Defence, Rolf Jacobsen, in an interview published by the Shipping Gazette to-day expressed the opinion that steps ought to be taken soon to organize an expedition for the relief of Capt. Roald Amundsen and his party, he believing that the naval authorities might be asked whether two aeroplanes could be sent to Spitzbergen to begin a search for the explorers. Minister Jacobsen said that while the plans are not fitted for a polar flight they might proceed northward from the edge of the ice swept territory, thus covering wide distances. Weather conditions are reported much more favorable in Northern Spitzbergen where there is sunshine with a gradual rising temperature.

WEEKS MAY PASS BEFORE AMUNDSEN IS HEARD FROM.

NORW, Alesund, May 28.

The ice which has locked Kosmobe might be asked whether two aeroplanes could be sent to Spitzbergen to begin a search for the explorers. Minister Jacobsen said that while the plans are not fitted for a polar flight they might proceed northward from the edge of the ice swept territory, thus covering wide distances. Weather conditions are reported much more favorable in Northern Spitzbergen where there is sunshine with a gradual rising temperature.

HANS JENSEN TO BE BROUGHT TO PORT.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 27.

The Danish steamer Hans Jensen, which grounded near Whitehead, Guysboro County, near the entrance to the Strait of Canso several weeks ago, when proceeding in a dense fog enroute from New York to Montreal in ballast, and which was floated after pounding on the ledges for nearly a week, will be brought to Halifax to-morrow in tow and enter the dry dock for permanent repairs. The ocean going tug Reindeer which floated the Jensen will tow the freighter to Halifax.

RIFLIANS ROUTED.

RABAT, Morocco, May 17.

The Riflians delivered a violent attack last night on the Bibane post which is said to have completely failed. In retaliation, French airplanes to-day vigorously bombed the section for several hours. Colonel Freydenberg also attacked concentrations of tribesmen in the region west of Taouinat to-day and forced them to retire in disorder northward. The enemy's losses in these actions are declared to have been particularly heavy.

The Riflians continue their activity against the French in Morocco particularly in the west, but the situation is unchanged, according to the latest word from French headquarters.

LUCK.

LONDON, May 28.

Manna's easy victory in the Derby was side tracked in the discussions of race followers to-day for some of the caprices of Lady Luck, as exemplified in the outcome of various sweepstakes. James Carew, an employee of a Liverpool shipping firm leaped into sudden wealth by holding the coveted ticket in the great Calcutta Sweepstakes, but still will be able to collect approximately $190,000. H. E. Morris, the owner of Manna, in addition to taking the Derby stakes, is credited with having the good fortune to share in the rich London Stock Exchange sweepstake worth about $242,500.

Last midnight a married woman, with infant in arms, applied at the Police Station for a night's lodgings. The woman told the guard that she had been employed as a domestic servant with a family living in Georgetown, and during the morning she was ordered to leave the house. She searched all day looking for a place of shelter with the child in her arms, but without success, and finally, tired and hungry, she decided that there was no other course open than to go to the Police Station. The woman was released from custody this morning. In the meantime the police are making an effort to find lodgings for her.

A Very Creditable Job

The Furness Withy Co. have been advised that the S.S. Fritz Schoop, Capt. Rohr, has arrived at Rotterdam after a passage of 12 days from this port, and also that the repairs performed at the dock proved highly satisfactory. The Fritz Schoop is a new ship, and arrived here some time ago with her furness crows down. The work of repair was done under the supervision of Messrs. Harvey, D. McFaulx and P. Wilson, and as there was some uncertainty as to the best method of procedure, the job is highly creditable to them and all concerned.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

May 27th—In high ill-humor all this morning, being that the weather is cold and raw, and I greatly troubled about my accounts which I know not how I shall pay if I be not given an extension of time. But Lord, reading in my evening sheet of the Derby, and how Manna wins, I am minded that I did send my cousin Tom, in London, 5 pounds to back this horse, being that his name did appeal to me. So to regain my good humor, but only for a short time, being that I do not receive a message over the telegraph from Tom, and he did put it on Cross-hew, which he thought a better horse. My wife this day tells me how she has bought a gown, price 75 dollars, which would have vexed me at any time, but with the ill-humor that has been dogging me this week, do make me so mad that I would not even speak to the wretch. Talking with Povey this night, he tells me how taking a walk in the east end of the city, he did see a well-known attorney, that did but lately write to the news sheets of scientific road-making, trundling a wheelbarrow towards Rennie's Hill and there fixing a hole in the road. But Lord, things have come to a pretty pass if private citizens must set about repairing the roads themselves, about Povey do wonder in this case if the attorney be not putting his own ideas of road-building into practice.

GET 12 MONTHS IMPRISONMENT. The French Canadian lumberjack, Frank Yuhng, charged with assaulting a young woman of the Topsail Road in Wednesday last was given 12 months imprisonment with hard labor by Judge Morris this morning. The complainant, giving evidence, said she was gathering firewood at the rear of her house when she was made aware of the prisoner's presence by her dog barking. The man grappled and threw her to the ground and when she screamed he threatened her life and attempted to asphyxiate her. An effort to force into her mouth, was exhibited as evidence of the violence of the assault. The witness said that as she broke clear of her assailant,

H. G. COPPIN SIDES

RBONEAR, May 27th—In high ill-humor all this morning, being that the weather is cold and raw, and I greatly troubled about my accounts which I know not how I shall pay if I be not given an extension of time. But Lord, reading in my evening sheet of the Derby, and how Manna wins, I am minded that I did send my cousin Tom, in London, 5 pounds to back this horse, being that his name did appeal to me. So to regain my good humor, but only for a short time, being that I do not receive a message over the telegraph from Tom, and he did put it on Cross-hew, which he thought a better horse. My wife this day tells me how she has bought a gown, price 75 dollars, which would have vexed me at any time, but with the ill-humor that has been dogging me this week, do make me so mad that I would not even speak to the wretch. Talking with Povey this night, he tells me how taking a walk in the east end of the city, he did see a well-known attorney, that did but lately write to the news sheets of scientific road-making, trundling a wheelbarrow towards Rennie's Hill and there fixing a hole in the road. But Lord, things have come to a pretty pass if private citizens must set about repairing the roads themselves, about Povey do wonder in this case if the attorney be not putting his own ideas of road-building into practice.

Methodist Conference

REV. E. G. COPPIN ELECTED PRESIDENT.

CARBONAR, May 27.—There is a deep feeling in the Conference as to the approaching Church year. Men seem to walk quietly, as if drawn near to holy ground. The services of Rev. Dr. Fenwick, A. J. Martin, Rev. Wm. Harris and John Martin, are redolent of the great excitement anticipated. Some remember that Dr. Martin, son of one of the first preachers in this country, is serving with the Presbyterian Church in Korea, and that Dr. Fenwick, who has just died in the East, was our Mission in China was a pioneer.

Dr. Fenwick's letter was read, calling attention not to look forward to a year of joy but to a workshop, and to the self-renaissance. Moral grandeur and Christian heroism were the words used to describe the spirit of the year.

ELECTIONS.
The election of the President put Rev. E. G. Coppin in the chair on the second ballot. Probably the votes for Mr. Coppin, who is delegate to the next General Council, were due to that fact. The Conference ordered that the customary routine be followed, that is, the election of the Secretary. Rev. E. Fenwick went into the chair of Secretary on the second ballot. The runner-up was Rev. C. R. Blount.

EVENING SESSION.
The conference reporter has to note the enthusiasm with which the speakers were Rev. Dr. Fenwick, in honor of Dr. Coppin, and Rev. Charles Lench, in memory of Mr. Atkinson. It is a great consolation service, and this particular service was especially triumphant.

MAORIS' QUIANT MESSAGE TO MRS. MASSEY.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand.—The Maoris of New Zealand have sent a characteristic message to Mrs. Massey, the widow of the late Premier, saying:

Our hearts are sad at King Death having taken his toll. The giant Totara has fallen and the earth has been shaken to its foundations.

Farewell, old man! Go to the home of your ancestors. The generations who follow are aiming to carry on the good works founded by your ancestors.

Take our love to Seddon. Neither of you will ever be forgotten by your Maori people. Leave us here as orphans to mourn our loss.

Empire Preference

on July 1st

On and after July 1 all those commodities of Empire production which have been selected for preferential admission to the United Kingdom will be permitted to enter at the lower rates, writes the Political Correspondent.

The preference is applicable to dried figs, plums, currants and raisins, sugar in various forms, tobacco, and wines.

In addition, Empire silk and artificial silk is to receive a preference of one-sixth, and those articles taxable under the McKenna duties will receive a preference of one-third. The latter preference will also apply to imported Empire hops and preparations made from hops (not beer).

The date, July 1, is laid down as the latest date, but it is open to the Chancellor, in the event of the Finance Bill making a rapid passage through the House, to change it to the date on which the Bill becomes law if this were of substantial advantage to the Empire.

BEWARE THE DISEASE-EXPECTANT ATTITUDE.

A little knowledge bound up with some existence other than his own—and how many does that not include? But the woman who has too vivid, and yet too limited a knowledge of disease and symptoms knows them more often and more painfully.

A doctor with his greater knowledge could check up one symptom with another, but she cannot thus save herself anxiety. There are also times when I almost wish germs had not been discovered and branded as outlaws. True, we may save ourselves much disease by guarding against them, but do we not also invite disease by our worry about them, and our nervous efforts to combat them?

She Saw The Germs Crawling.

A woman told me this about the time when her little daughter had diphtheria. "The nurse used to sometimes pass from the room where the sick child was, to another room to eat her meals; and I would fake the mop and some disinfectant and wash the place where she had walked, and spray the air. And I was so afraid that I wasn't doing it thoroughly enough that it was a perfect obsession with me. I used to wish I could just see those germs so that I would be sure to get them all. It got on my mind so that one night I dreamed that I was mopping up the floor and there were all those thousands of germs like worms crawling along the floor."

It is terrible, this struggle against forces that we cannot see, and this fear that we have not done all we ought to. I can readily imagine a conscientious mother almost driven out of her mind by her fear of not having done the right thing.

But of course we do need to know about the germs and the only thing to do is to try to keep our mental attitude sane and courageous.

Stone-Age Flint Found in Kent

What is claimed to be the largest individual collection of Stone Age worked flints found in England has been discovered near Strood by W. H. Cook, of Shodland, Kent.

It appears to be the remains of a prehistoric "workshop," and is on a chalk cliff close to Frindsbury Church, within sight of Rochester Cathedral.

Mr. Cook found a clue to it when walking with another local geologist. A private fund was raised, and the excavation was watched by well-known scientists.

"After eight days' digging," Mr. Cook told a press representative, "we had unearthed some 4,000 flint weapons and tools."

"All the flints were found in heaps about 3 feet high, and there were 17 separate heaps exactly as they had been piled up when the workmen knocked off work—possibly 50,000 years ago."

"Everybody was greatly disappointed that no human bones were found. "The men who chipped these flints were living in Britain when the woolly rhinoceros and the hairy elephant roamed the Medway Valley."

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

Last Year's Reduced Grain Yield and Business Depression Among the Chief Causes.

N. Y.—Statements by presidents of Canadian Pacific and Canadian National have somewhat dissipated the fog overhanging the Canadian railroad situation. Suggestions in Canadian Parliament and press of a merger are declared to have no basis, and apparently do not reflect the attitude of the presidents. Investigation is under way to eliminate unnecessary competition, but no proposals have been exchanged between government and Canadian Pacific, according to Pres. Beatty, except those which have to do with elimination of duplicate services.

Side-Shows in Parliament

Carl Hertz, the Dutch illusionist, who died recently, once entertained a House of Commons Committee with an exhibition of his powers as a conjurer.
It was during the long inquiry as to the treatment of performing animals, and as Hertz had a thousand times made a canary and the cage which contained it disappear into space in a twinkling, and return to view just as expeditiously, the Committee was naturally anxious to know how the bird fared in the interim. The conjurer satisfied it that no cruelty was involved.

Free Fireworks.

On one occasion there were three side-shows at St. Stephen's at one and the same moment. One of the Committee rooms had the appearance of a butcher's shop, for it was hung with carcasses of calves and lambs, while in another were fixed up all sorts of gas-testing appliances in connection with some gas Bill.
But the best show was the third, where Professor Vivian Lewis was demonstrating the dangers of celluloid. He showed how a celluloid comb gave off poisonous fumes, and produced a piece of blotting paper treated with nitro-cellulose which, being ignited, was instantly destroyed.

A Dishonest Levy, Says Judge

Charging that her husband did not give her a cent for pay rent or provide anything for the support of her three children, a young woman told a pitiful tale in the Magistrate's Court this morning. She said that for the past two months the Government had been providing her with relief, and that money which her husband earned was spent in dives and drinking liquor. He was put on the blacklist and ordered to sign bonds for his future good behaviour. In addition the Probation Officer was instructed to see that a portion of his earnings were handed over every week. Failing to work, the delinquent was to spend his time in jail. His Honor, commenting said many cases had come under his notice of families having to be relieved by the Government whilst the father squandered his earnings by drinking and other means. The practice of giving relief to such, he said, was the most dishonest levy that could be made on the public.

This vessel, one of the most famous derelicts of recent years, sailed from Nova Scotia for Brazil, on Sept. 27, 1923, with a load of lumber. But she soon struck a storm and on October 3rd, after the ship had been badly damaged, the crew was rescued and the ship abandoned. At this time she was south of Newfoundland. Wind and current since then have carried her on an extended cruise of the northern Atlantic.
Her cargo of lumber has kept her afloat, although waterlogged, but she continues to be a menace to shipping. Efforts to destroy her have so far been unsuccessful, even though in December, 1923, the U. S.

THE CANADIAN TUBERCULOSIS ASSOCIATION HOLD A CONVENTION.

The reading of technical papers and discussions upon them, constituted the work of the annual convention of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association held recently at Mount Royal Hotel.

Dr. A. H. Pirie, speaking on "X-Ray in the Selection of Cases for Surgical Procedure," recommended the use of X-ray in routine tubercular work. "We must regard," he said, "the treatment of tuberculosis as a sandwich, with the X-ray between science and medicine on one side and surgery on the other."

Dr. Leo Pariseau, also declared that the X-ray was of paramount importance in the treatment of the disease; that there were no lesions that could not be detected by the X-ray; that occlusion and Percussion were not as adequate as was the X-ray.

Dr. A. D. Lapp read the next paper on "Treating Tuberculosis in the Dry Climate Belt," which aroused considerable discussion. He noted that the death rate had been higher in the spring and the fall arguing that heat was unfavorable to patients. He admitted, however, that climate had little influence on active, pulmonary tuberculosis. The different types of cases should be differentiated according to the stage in which they were in. He claimed that the old idea of seeking dry climate was not specific enough, but that it should be sought with heat and cold according to the condition of the patient.

In the discussion following, Dr. Ferris, of St. John, N.B., contended that he found the foggy, cold and miserable climate of the Maritimes more suited to the treatment of the disease. He based his arguments on facts and figures which he produced. Other speakers claimed that it was not the cold of the winter that contributed to the cure of the case, but the fact that the weather enforced a period of rest, and that rest was essential.

The value of the ultra-violet ray in the treatment of tuberculosis, was discussed by Dr. H. P. Wright. The speaker traced gradual introduction and realization of the value of the ultra-violet ray in the treatment of the disease.

Dr. Wright said that Quebec is drawing the attention of investigators the world over in the supposed virtues of the ray.

Dr. A. Rousseau, Dean of Laval University, Quebec, presided.

After the annual banquet, Dr. Edward Baldwin, head of Saranac Lake Sanitarium, addressed the gathering. He admitted that much progress has been made in the efforts of medical science and public health workers to combat the ravages of tuberculosis, much remains to be done, and a great deal of research work will yet have to be carried out before a specific cure for the disease is found.

The seeking out of all cases of tuberculosis and of all those who were carrying in their bodies conditions of potential tuberculosis, the developing of facilities for treatment of all such cases, and the cultivation of means of caring for the patients after the disease had been arrested or cured, would nevertheless open a new era for Canada in the treatment of the disease, he stated.

He gave credit to Canadian physicians for having been among the first to realize the benefits to be derived from sanitarium treatment, at a time when the Saranac Lake institution was pioneering in this direction.

Saranac Lake Sanitarium was celebrating its fortieth anniversary this year, Dr. Baldwin stated and they appreciated the fact that Canadians were among the first to recognize the value of the work that institution was doing.

It was noteworthy that a very great part of the work done to combat tuberculosis was done by men who had formerly suffered from the disease, and had been cured. Men who found health in mountains, deserts and sea islands, and spread the belief in the effectiveness of climatic influence. The discovery of the tubercular bacillus brought a new factor into people's beliefs regarding the cure of tuberculosis.

The brilliant success of serums in other directions led to some misconceptions. Nevertheless much ground was won by laboratory research. Tuberculin for instance, first thought to be a cure for the disease, was now universally accepted as a valuable aid in diagnosing the trouble.

A noteworthy decrease had been recorded in the deathrate from tuberculosis in the past twenty-five years. There was, however, much yet to be done, both in treating and preventing the disease.

In some countries, the long winters were an encouragement to indoor life, and that in itself created a problem connected directly with the tuberculosis question. Investigation into social conditions frequently brought out important facts affecting the tuberculosis situation.

THE MYSTIC SHRINERS INVADE THE CITY.

The Mystic Shriner, to the number of 2,990, hailing from different parts of the United States and Canada invaded Montreal on Saturday morning, May 16th, and made the city ring with twenty different bands, and the people admired their fine marching and other different evolutions, together with their picturesque, elaborate and flashy costumes of purple, green, gold and white silk and velvet.

They came to attend the opening ceremonies in connection with the Shriner's Hospital for crippled children, situated in Cedar Avenue. Their noble work for the cause of suffering humanity has extended throughout the large cities of the United States and Canada, is principally for the poor, but makes no distinction as to race and creed. The Provincial Government at the dedication services was represented by the Hon. Ahansse David, and the city by His Worship Mayor Charles Duquet.

The parade, after the dedication services, was a very spectacular affair and was witnessed by thousands. One of the bands had 100 musicians and had two of the largest drums ever seen in any musical organization. They were so large that they had to be drawn on wheels. The different visitors were registered at the Windsor Hotel where a banquet was served, and a dinner and a four hours' entertainment given at the new Forum Rink. They added a glorious page to the annals of their Order, and cheered the hearts of the afflicted little ones by their great and charitable work in the Metropolis of Canada. To them may be applied the words of the poet:

"Sell yourselves, but not for gold,
Or treasure that your hands can hold;
Go into the market place, be honest,
Kind and true,
And God will bless you, and men will love you too."

A GOOD HOME FOR CATHOLIC WORKING BOYS.

The Salvé Regina Home for English speaking working boys has got a start at last. A fine house, situated on Dorchester Street West, near the Franciscan church, has been purchased for $35,000. The Brothers of the Christian Schools of the Ontario District will have charge of the Home, and will run it on the lines of the Blantyre Park Home, situated at Toronto, East. The new Home will be opened in a short time and will start with 30 to 40 boys.

A NEW ENGLISH PARISH IN WEST-MOUNT.

A movement, led by Mr. Frank Jackman, formerly of St. John's, and well known in this city for his activities in connection with social and philanthropic movements, is now in progress to establish an English Parish for the Catholics of Westmount. At the Windsor Hotel, Thursday evening, May 14, a dinner was given by Mr. Frank Jackman, and matters pertaining to the movement were fully discussed. If the required number of families are willing to support a new parish, the authorities at the Archbishop's Palace will be consulted, and, if favorable, the decree for the erection will be issued. A new Parish means a new Church, a new Presbytery and a new School, involving an outlay of fully $300,000. To some of the promoters the movement means extra taxation, and they are opposing it, claiming that they helped to build St. Leo's Church, and they are satisfied to remain members of that Parish. Rev. Father Oscar Gauthier, the Pastor of St. Leo's Church, an eminent divine, and one who preaches and speaks in both languages fluently, thinks that an English Parish will come in the near future, but, at the present time he would not like to lose his English parishioners after his twenty years of labors in the Parish. There is also a movement being worked quietly to have an English speaking Bishop in the city, some ten or fifteen years from now, when the English speaking parishes would have doubled their present number.

THE NUMBER OF TRAFFIC POLICEMEN INCREASING.

The city has increased the number of traffic policemen all over the city. At some busy street corners two constables have been placed in charge in order more effectively to handle the crossing. The traffic men do great work at the corners with the crowded autos, trucks and other vehicles, with

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and after using one and a half boxes of Cuticura and one cake of Soap she was healed."

THE COST PER CAPITA IN THE CATHOLIC SCHOOLS.

The cost of educating a child in one of the Catholic schools of Montreal is less than in any city in the United States. In Montreal the cost is $54.98; in the United States the cost ranges from $60.05 to $127.47. This comparison is made in the report of Victor Dore, Comptroller of the Finance of the Catholic Schools Commission, for the financial year ending June 30, 1924.

the large numbers of street cars running north, south, east and west, it is mysterious at times how well they can direct traffic without a single mishap. The traffic "cop" has saved life and limb on many occasions.

THE COST PER CAPITA IN THE CATHOLIC SCHOOLS.

The cost of educating a child in one of the Catholic schools of Montreal is less than in any city in the United States. In Montreal the cost is $54.98; in the United States the cost ranges from $60.05 to $127.47. This comparison is made in the report of Victor Dore, Comptroller of the Finance of the Catholic Schools Commission, for the financial year ending June 30, 1924.

In the year 1923-1924 there were 84,157 pupils enrolled in the Catholic schools, and of this number $1,725 attended. Increase in enrollment over the preceding year is 3,674, with an increase of 3,960 in attendance. These pupils were distributed in 2,470 classes on June 30th, 1924, 1224 classes more than in June 30, 1923. The average number of scholars to a class is 38.

The financial statement of the commission as at June 30, 1924, shows assets of $23,282,194, and liabilities of $20,688,335 the reserve not being counted. The expenditures for the financial year were $4,329,918.71; expenditure exceeding revenue by $179,049.78.

The budget prepared by Mr. Dore shows expected revenue of $4,700,800, and expected expenditure of $4,750,000. It is expected that $4,518,000 will be realized by taxes in 1924-1925, an increase of $285,000.

Lightning

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

The late Dr. Chas. P. Steimetz of the General Electric Company once said before a convention of electrical engineers that the radio antenna attached lightning just about as much as a bath tub in your home would. Despite the small number of actual strikes in which an antenna has been struck by lightning, as compared to the vast number of radio antennas, the underwriters look upon the antenna with much disfavor in many localities. Whether this has been the case in the past or not, it is a condition which exists and to be on the safe side your aerial should be equipped with a lightning arrester which has been installed in an approved manner.

How we show the antenna, arrester and arrester ground wire. The usual form of arrester consists of two very small wires sealed into an expanded glass chamber. The ends of these wires are only a fraction of an inch apart. The antenna is connected to one wire and the ground to the other. The arrester serves the sole purpose of draining off any heavy static charge to prevent such an accumulation of charge that an actual lightning discharge may occur. As the two wires in the arrester are so close together, a very heavy charge of plain old static will spark across these wires, to the ground, and through the coils of the house and through the coils of the arrester. Just as fast as these charges come from above the antenna, the discharge through the arrester to ground. A lightning arrester is of no more protection from an actual lightning stroke than is a feather mattress or a pair of rubber shoes.

Dear me, as I begin this story I suddenly remember that Uncle Lucky Lethindfoot, the old gentleman bunny, had promised to take Little Jack Rabbit to the Tailor Bird for a new suit of clothes. Come to think of it, these two nice little bunnies had started out for his shop in the Shady Forest some three or four stories ago, when a Fairy Bunny had suddenly shouted "STOP!"

Well, as long as I told you that adventure I'll now begin to relate how one morning, oh so early, as Mr. Merry Sun was turning out the twinkling stars, a billion, one by one, he peeped in Uncle Lucky's room and danced upon his nose until the dear old bunny man hopped out upon his toes. Goodness me, there goes my typewriter into poetry! What a wonderful machine I have, I declare, it makes up poetry so easily, but, then, alas! forgets to put it into verse! A strange poetical typewriter. But I don't want to buy another, Little Readers. You see, I'm so used to it; like an old friend; it has been with me so long I call it "Remmy" for short.

Yes, sir, Uncle Lucky hopped out of bed and over to the window on his tippy toes. "What a lovely morning," he exclaimed, "so fresh and sweet. Just a little sunshine, just a little dew, a happy feeling in my heart a kindly deed to do." Gradibus, goodness me, there goes "Remmy" again into poetry! It must be because it's Spring, time and the world is full of music. Dear Boys and Girls, you might copy into verse this poetry that "Remmy," my old typewriter, has just written. I would make him do so, only it would take too long and I know you would become impatient if I didn't relate what dear Uncle Lucky did after he drew back from the open window.

Well, what else could he do but pull on his clothes and hop down to the kitchen where Little Miss Mousie, his tiny housekeeper, had set the breakfast table with nice things to eat; carrot cakes and lettuce leaf marmalade, turnip tea and clover cereal.

"Now, I must call up my bunny nephew," sighed the dear old gentleman bunny after tucking away all he could eat, and with another sigh he undid the lower button on his pink waistcoat and hopped over to the telephone.

"Hello, Central, give me soon. Long before the clock strikes noon. 'One, two, three, four, draw the latch, Rail Fence Corner, Bramble Patch?"

"Who is calling Little Me, Honey Suckle, Bumble Bee?"

"Your loving old Uncle," answered the old gentleman bunny, a smile spreading all over his face. "Want to go for a ride in the Luckymobile? We'll call on the Tailor Bird and order a suit of clothes for Little You."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

"His Hour" Offers Great Love Story

NEW ELINOR GLYN PRODUCTION TELLS ROMANCE OF IMPERIAL RUSSIA.

The rare combination of an Elinor Glyn story brought to the screen with her two favorite screen lovers playing the hero and heroine is the promise of "His Hour," Mrs. Glyn's latest Metro-Goldwyn production, which will come to the Nickel Theatre next week.

In the first place, John Gilbert, a romantic Russian Prince, is said to come up to all expectations as to just what Elinor Glyn's ideal hero should be like, and Aileen Pringle, who demonstrated so definitely her ability and charm in "Three Weeks," is again the beautiful heroine.

"His Hour" tells the story of a fascinating English widow, brought up in a straight laced manner, meeting informally Grizko, the fiery Russian Prince whom all women adore.

She is instantly attracted to him, but knowing him by reputation, she resolves she will not follow the trend of all women and become his slave. Therefore, the wall of aloofness freezes about her and the Prince, who has fallen in love with her, cannot win her. She tantalizes him by her indifference, yet he goes to every means to win her.

Finally, as a last resort, he kidnaps her, and then follows a series of love scenes which are said even to surpass those in "Three Weeks." The climax, when the Prince and Tamara realize they love one another devotedly, is one of the most beautiful and realistic scenes ever brought to the screen.

Crowds at Nickel See "Rapid Fire"

ORIGINALS GREATEST MUSICAL HIT.

"Rapid Fire," which the Originals are offering to packed-out audiences at the Nickel this week, is a production that no lover of clean, wholesome, and clever entertainment can afford to miss. Its music looms large; its shortcomings are nil. The whole revue goes with a wit and a swing, with a military precision and swiftness which simply delights the audience with chuckle after chuckle and laugh after laugh. The audience simply eat it up and cry for more. "Rapid Fire" has not a weak spot in it and it is worthy of all the hyperbolic adjectives which an audience press agent may hurl its way. Everything is clean, clever, stamped with individual artistry, highly diverting and entirely satisfying.

The honors of the performance go to the great favorites, Bob Anderson, Gene Pearson, Alan Murray, Lionel Broadway, Bertram Lansley, Thomas Dunn, Jerry Brayford, Percy Campbell, Leonard Young, Jimmy MacDermott, Gus McKinnon, Norman A. Blume, and last, but not least, Frederick Gordon, the musical director.

The Toilet of Birds

(By T. C. BRIDGES).
"A bird's plumage," says Mr. de Vere Stacpoole in his letter upon "Oil Refuse at Sea," "is part of its dim soul and all of its pride."

He is utterly right. With a bird cleanliness comes first, for dirt means death. Birds, says a well-known naturalist, are the only creatures which bathe for cleanliness sake.

Watch your pigeons and see how greatly they enjoy their bath. It does not matter that the roof of the coo is glazed with hoar frost; as soon as their bath is ruffled with fresh water they are splashing in it. When they have finished the sparrows come down and take a turn.

Robins delight in a bath, and after a heavy shower you will see Master Red-breast ducking and splashing in a chosen puddle. Chaffinches and thrushes are equally fond of water, and appreciate nothing more greatly than a freshly filled bowl laid upon the lawn upon a summer morning.

All the swallow tribes are bathers, and as they skim over river or pond constantly splash down into the water, stirring the mirror-like surface with rings like those made by rising fish. Wild duck, again, although they spend most of their time upon salt water, will fly far inland to find a fresh-water lake or pool where they can cleanse their plumage from the brine.

Ducks and most other water-fowl possess a small gland from which they obtain an oily secretion used by them for anointing and water-proofing their feathers. When you see one of your domestic ducks busily burrowing with her beak among her tall feathers you may take it that she is engaged in tapping her natural supply of vaseline. Among European land birds the only one which is provided with a similar gland is the beautiful hoopoe.

All poultry keepers who know their business keep a dust-bath for their hens, and in summer, when the birds are apt to be troubled with insect parasites, you will see them half buried in dry dust, industriously working it all through their plumage.

Partridges and pheasants resemble the domestic fowl in their love of a dust-bath, and I have seen a whole bevy of quail crowding in dry sand and ruffling it through their feathers.

The sparrow is one of the few birds which, although fond of bathing in water, take an equal delight in a dust-bath.

The Originals Earn New Laurels in "Rapid Fire"

Packed houses continue to attend the Originals sparkling revue "Rapid Fire" at the Nickel, which the talented company have chosen for their final performance in St. John's, and there will be general regret when they take their departure. St. John's has laughed and laughed heartily since their arrival and there has been as well a display of clever acting, high musical talent and splendid scenic effects seldom equalled here. Mr. Gene Pearson as Catherine the Great has added to the reputation which he made as an impersonator in the first week's performance, and the duet "Watchmen What of the Night" by Bertram Langley and Jerry Brayford delighted the audience. Thomas Dunn's recitation "My Dear Old Mother's Song Book," assisted by other members of the company was a great hit and the selections by the quartette met with unstinted applause. Bob Anderson, the immitable comedian, has apparently an inexhaustible repertoire to draw upon, but has never been heard and seen to better effect than in "Six Days Leave." "The fact is—" "Scotty" and in "Billeted in a Barn." In fact, from the opening scene "The God of War," to the end of the Revue the whole performance is one of the best that has ever been seen in St. John's.

His Excellency the Governor and suite were in attendance last night for the second time.

Polished Tables

In these days, when tablecloths are so often dispensed with, it is not always easy to preserve the polish of the dining-table, especially when the family is a large one. Protective mats should be used under those of linen, for cold as well as hot plates, to prevent scratching.

And even with these precautions, a polished table will need to be constantly treated with a very small amount of good furniture cream and then rubbed with a velvet pad, which should be kept especially for the purpose.

After every meal the table should be rubbed over with a soft leather, and with these little attentions the surface of the table should be flawless.

If, by accident, a hot plate is placed on the table without a mat under it and a mark results, it is better to send for a polisher, who will remedy matters at a little cost, rather than try to rectify the damage oneself.

The Mysterious Witness

ANOTHER HIGH CLASS BILL AT THE MAJESTIC TO-NIGHT.

For those people of to-day who look with mournful glance back to the days gone by and say with a shake of the head "things are not as they used to be—children aren't as good to their mothers now as in the olden days—mothers place little stock in their responsibility to their children," there is a great lesson to be learned from "The Mysterious Witness," the film version of Eugene Manlove Rhodes' great Saturday Evening Post story "Steps on a Light."

The story of "The Mysterious Witness" is built around the deep love between a mother and her only son—a love of the kind that knows no generation, no locale, no time, but which is everlasting and all understanding. It is a story of to-day, not of the days gone by—a story of all time.

It is for love of his mother that he silently suffers the hardships of life on a western ranch and bears unflinchingly the animosity of his foreman, all to swell the pathetically small savings he is hoarding to bring that mother comfort. It is in eternal gratefulness to his mother that she taught him the beauty of woman-kind that his heart goes out when he first feels within his arms, the girl he loves, and it is of his mother he thinks first when he is accused of committing murder—fearful not for himself but that she shall hear and be made unhappy. The mother, willing to sacrifice all, willing to give of her last atom of strength and worldly possessions, stands as the symbol of Women that will never grow old or be relegated to the shadows of the past.

In addition to this feature, a 100% comedy is booked. Last, but not least, is the programme of Adams & Cheney, which is as follows:—(1), Grand Opera Medley, (arranged); (2), Chill Bean, Song; (3), Glow Worm, (Lincke); (4), Polonaise, (Chopin), and other requests.

Arab's Claim to 140 Years

Haji Tahir, an Arab who claims to be over 140 years of age and to have seen Napoleon, was mentioned by H. J. Philby in a paper read recently before the Royal Geographical Society.

Born at Mecca, the Arab says he migrated to Palestine at the age of 12 or 13 in 1799, when Napoleon was operating on the Syrian coast.

The oldest inhabitants declare they have never known Haji Tahir except as an old man. He has an enormous appetite and masticates with the aid of a newly sprouting third set of teeth. He declares that he committed matrimony for the first time at 70, and he recently married again. He dates his birth to the year 1115 of the Mohammedan era, which, as Mr. Philby says, is equivalent to A.D. 1801.

Obituary

It is with feelings of deepest regret we chronicle the death of William Connolly at his home on Thursday last, after an illness of only a few days. Deceased was a well known and respectable citizen of Trinity for 50 years, and for the past two years resided in the city. Mr. Connolly was a man of sterling quality and one of the oldtime fish killers, having prosecuted the Labrador fishery from 1870 until 1910, when he was appointed Fish Alarm Keeper on Port Point, Trinity, and filled that position until 1925 when he was pensioned and came to the city to reside. He was the eldest son of the late Daniel Connolly, one time Fish King of Trinity Bay. He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind hearted and loving father a wife, two sons, Arthur of the Govt. Railroad shop, Peter, station agent of Trinity East; two daughters, Mrs. J. Sinnott of this city and Mrs. E. Brake of Staten Island, N.Y.; three sisters and two brothers. The funeral took place at 2 p.m. on Saturday last from his late residence, Merrymount Road. SYMPATHIZERS.

Last Night's Blaze

An alarm of fire from Box 31 was rung in at 8.50 last night, calling the Central and West End fire companies to Philip Escott's job printing office on George Street. Upon the arrival of the firemen the western end of the building was in a blaze, but before it had time to gain much headway two streams of water were applied to keep it in check. The blaze was quenched about fifteen minutes later, but not before much damage was done to the premises by fire and water. The building is owned by J. T. Phillips, tinsmith. Mr. Escott carried $2,000 insurance on his stock. How the fire originated is not known.

Card Party Postponed

Farewell Party

Last night Miss Arlie Marks, L. R. Perrin and the entire Arlie Marks Company were tendered a farewell party in the T. A. Armoury given by Mrs. F. Lukins and daughter. The affair took the form of a supper, musical and dance intermingled with speeches, etc., which concluded at an early hour this morning. An enjoyable evening was spent by all.

General's War Secrets Out

SIR I. HAMILTON "WAVERING"—GALLANT 29TH.

There was a brief period towards the end of March and the beginning of April, 1915, when I wavered in my mind whether a landing (at Gallipoli) was not a sheer impossibility.—Weekly Dispatch, April 28.

This war secret, hitherto carefully guarded by the only man who knew it, was disclosed by General Sir Ian Hamilton in a speech at the annual dinner of the 29th Division in London last night.

"I would like to say one thing which has never in any shape or form been said before," he said. "You will not find it even in the suppressed parts of the evidence of the Dardanelles Commission, or in the secret memoirs, or, indeed, anywhere else, for it has been a one-man secret—I have kept it buried deep"—and here Sir Ian uttered the words quoted above.

"I stole my heart. . . ."
"During this period, the Egyptian Press kept on giving the most clear and specific detail as to arrivals of troops and material, together with specific statements that they were bound for the Dardanelles," he went on. "I was informed by the responsible civil authority that it was beyond our power to restrain the Egyptian Press from publishing anything it liked.

"Secrecy is the essence of military success, and most of all, secrecy in regard to landing.

"There was never, from first to last, the semblance of keeping our destination confidential.

"Well, do you know what finally made me steel my heart to carry on? My inspection of the 29th Division."

Costly Little Bug

Tiny Spruce Bud Worm Destroys Seven Billion Dollars' Worth Of Forests.

OTTAWA, May 20.—The story of a little bug who could park himself quite comfortably on a child's finger nail, but whose appetite had already cost the Dominion of Canada more than seven billions, was told to members of the Royal Society of Canada by Arthur Gibson, F.R.S.C.

This lilliputian with the brooding-nagian appetite is none other than the spruce bud worm and the tale of his depredations to Canada's forests and of the fight being waged to exterminate him gave eloquent testimony of the place that science occupies in the economic field.

On Rearing Ducklings

(By J. N. Leigh, the well-known Utility Poultry Expert.)

Ducks have a distinct advantage over fowls in that as ducklings they are far easier to rear than are chicks. In the matter of artificial incubation, however, it is generally held that the advantage lies with fowls, but it is more than probable this view is due to the fact that the incubator has up to the present not been extensively used or experimented with in this country for hatching duck eggs.

The rearing of ducklings is comparatively an easy matter, for after the first 48 hours, during which time they should be given no food, they require very little warmth beyond what they generate themselves, and when hen-hatched during the months of April and May the broody hen may be taken away after the first week, provided they have a good coop quarters. Earlier in the year and during very cold weather the hen should be left with them a little longer.

The Fireless Brooder.

For artificial rearing the fireless brooder is very suitable, and a cheap and efficient one may be made out of a sugar-box in which a piece of flannel or ordinary sackling is fixed across the inside about a foot above the ducklings' heads. For the first two or three nights, and also during very cold weather, a hot water bottle wrapped in flannel, to conserve the heat should be placed on the sackling, which must be strained tightly enough to carry the weight. A deep bed of soft hay on the floor of the brooder is essential, and this must be changed frequently and kept perfectly dry and sweet. This is very important.

Ducklings to do well should be given free range to forage at will, but until they have learnt the way in and out of the brooder it is advisable to confine them to reasonable limits, with a surround of wire netting. For the first week they should be driven into the brooders after each feed to warm themselves up. There is no better place for rearing ducklings than a garden, to which they will do more good than harm by ridding it of slugs and insect pests. They should not be allowed to remain out in heavy rain, as until they are a month to six weeks old a severe wetting often proves fatal.

As regards the feeding of ducklings, for the first week there is no better food than a good biscuit meal well soaked with boiling water and allowed

MOST IMPORTANT GO OF WILLS' CAREER.

Hype Igoe New York sport writer says.—The dopsters have it this way. Harry Wills stopped Fred Fulton in three rounds. Fred Fulton was a dangerous hitter and made Harry work fast. Charley Weinert is a fast boxer and any man who won't box fast against him is going to get the short end of the honors. They maintain that Harry will be forced to speed up over his usual gate if he hopes to whip the Adonis, a thing he must do if he hopes to keep his place in the sun. The dope is a treacherous thing to count on. Fighters act differently under different circumstances. You can't depend on dope.
George Gardner could always whip

ed to cool. Skim milk may be used to cool. Skim milk may be used with advantage.

Frequent Feeding.
The feeding should be little and often—every two hours for the first 10 days, and no more food given at a time than they will clear up quickly. It should be fed in a shallow dish or on a plate, which must be kept perfectly clean.

After the first 10 days the following ingredients should be added to the biscuit meal: Middlings two parts, Sussex ground oats, one part, and bran one part. Should the biscuit meal contain no meat a little fish meal may be added, though this is not necessary when the supply of insect life is ample.

A regular supply of water is of prime importance. Swimming water, although very advisable after the first week, is not essential, but the drinking water must be deep enough to allow the ducklings to immerse their heads in order thoroughly to cleanse their eyes and nostrils. For the first week it is a good plan to place a stone in the drinking vessel

Kid Carter, Kid Carter could always whip Joe Walcott, and Joe Walcott could always whip Gardner. Three times around they did that. So wink at dope. Wills meets Weinert at the Italian Hospital Fund show and I insist that he must win or be thrown into the Dempsey discard. The champion is going to fight. You bet yourself into a new hat on that, but if Wills can't whip Weinert he can't make even Paddy Mullins believe that he can thrash Dempsey for the title. They talk of a $1,000,000 gate in this fight between Wills and the champion. No $1,000,000 gate unless Wills can convince the innocents that he has a $1,000,000 chance to bump Dempsey off. That's why the fight with Weinert is the most important of his whole career.

NURMI FAILED TO BREAK RECORDS AT CAMBRIDGE MEET

Great Finn Ran Fine Race, Covering Mile Course in 4:15 1-5, Four Seconds Behind Record.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 22.—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's great distance star, running a "good mile," as he had promised to do, failed to-night to lower either the world's or the American one mile record, although it was understood that the would try for a new mark on the fast Harvard Stadium track.
Nurmi's time for the mile was 4:15 1-5, 4 4-5 seconds slower than his own world's record, and 2 3-5 seconds slower than Norman Taber's American record.

Nurmi set a hard pace in the first quarter, covering the distance in 60 1-5 seconds. He finished the half in the fast time of 2 minutes 4 1-5 sec. Nurmi's pace slowed appreciably in the third quarter, which he had covered in 3:08 2-5. His face was strained and tense as he entered the last quarter. He glanced continually over his shoulder at Connolly, whom he had failed to shake off at any time during the race. In his last sprint on the final third of the last lap he succeeded in opening twenty yards. His time for the final quarter was one minute 6 4-5 seconds.
The final lap was slow despite Nurmi's best efforts, and its slowness cost him his chance to better the records.

For the Invalid

TWO STRENGTHENING DRINKS. (By AN OLD MAID.)

Not everyone likes "egg-and-milk," and invalids do not always take kindly to this suggestion. These have my sympathy—and there is some advice to those inclined to rebel at doctor's orders.

Honey and Spice.

Heat a cupful of milk, stir in a desertspoonful of honey, and, without letting them boil, pour on to a beaten new-laid egg. Do not continue the heating process after this. Grate nutmeg on the top if it helps, and take it and get it over without ado.
Prepared in this fashion the drink is far less "eggy" than when made according to other modes.

Fresh, Warm Milk.

Another way, if you live in the country, is to mix the egg with milk warm from the cow, add cherry or brandy and sugar, and leave out cooking altogether. Many a dame will tell you

Why, of Course

If you want GOOD Clothes go to a GOOD Tailor. There is where you get good material, good fit and Clothes that look as if they were made for YOU, and not for the other fellow.

The Ready-to-Wear! Yes, of course. They were made for the one who buys them, very seldom for the one who fits them.

But be careful and go to a good tailor. It's cheaper and better.

SPURRELL'S are good, reliable tailors, and you make no mistake in going there.
