National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shell contains the symbol  $\rightarrow$  (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol  $\nabla$  (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaît sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole  $\rightarrow$  signifie "À SUIVRE", le symbole  $\nabla$  signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

PREFACE

The aim of this book is to present a method by which the student of Latin may be trained from the very beginning to look beyond words to ideas. Constructions and idioms are therefore introduced as rapidly as the average student is capable of mastering them, and grammatical forms are reduced to a minimum. The First and Second Person of the verb, the Vocative and Locative Cases, together with all irregularities in the declension of Nouns, Adjectives and Pronouns, may very well be left till the student comes to read his first author. The verb, as being the part of speech which is most necessary for the expression of ideas, is given the most important place in the grammatical scheme, while the other parts of speech are taken up only as they are required for new constructions or idioms. If the teacher finds that these constructions and idioms are too rapidly introduced for the ability of his class, he should review frequently by giving sentences of his own, and these sentences should always be as idiomatic as his pupils are capable of understanding. Suitable material for such review exercises will be found in the extracts from Mommsen's "History of Rome," at the end of the book.

The characters "j" and "v" for consonantal "i" and "n" seem less distracting to beginners, and have been adopted throughout.

To suit the constructions in Lessons III., IV. and V., the Accusative Case is given before the Genitive, but after Lesson V. it is placed after the Dative in conformity with the usual practice in this country.

No general English-Latin vocabulary is given. To give one would be to defeat the main object of the book. The teacher should supply vocabulary only after the pupil has expressed the English idiom in the form required by the Latin.

I wish to express my warmest thanks to Professor Alex. Souter, of Mansfield College, Oxford, for correcting the proofs of the whole book.

G. W. M.

KINGSTON. August, 1907.

AN INTRODUCTION TO LATIN PROSE.

LESSON I.

Africa	Africa	pugna	a fight
Britannia	Britain	Roma	Rome
copia	plenty	statua	statue
fama <sup>1</sup>	a report	terra	earth
insula	island	est	is
Italia	Italy	erat	was
nauta	sailor (seaman)	non	not
pecunia	money (a sum of money)	in	in

<sup>1</sup>There is no word in Latin for "a" or "the." Fama means report, a report, or the report, whichever suits the sentence best.

The teacher should explain what is meant by long and short syllables in Latin, and the pupil should learn the following rules for accenting Latin words:

1. A word of two syllables has the accent on the first syllable, whether that syllable is long or short: as, fáma.

2. A word of more than two syllables has the accent on the second last syllable, if it be long; but if the second last syllable is short, the accent is on the third last, as, *Románu*s, ínsula.

The pupil should mark the quantities for himself as the teacher pronounces the word. The quantities are indicated in the General Vocabulary at the end of the book.

Translate into English:

1. Pugna est in Africa.<sup>1</sup>
2. Pugna erat in Africa.
3. Pugna erat in Italia.
4. Britannia est insula.
5. Africa non est insula.
6. Nauta non est in Britannia.
7. Nauta est in Africa.
8. Nauta erat in insula.
9. Nauta non erat in Africa.
10. Pugna erat in Britannia.
11. Italia non est insula.
12. Nauta est in insula.

<sup>1</sup>A battle is in Africa, the battle is in Africa, or there is a battle in Africa. The word "there" is not expressed in Latin in sentences of this kind.

LESSON II.

Translate into Latin:

1. Rome is in Italy.
2. There is a battle in Italy.
3. There was a rumour in Britain.
4. The mariner was not in the island.
5. Caesar was in Britain.
6. There is an image in the island.
7. There is money in Africa.
8. There is abundance in the land.
9. Rome is not in Britain.
10. There is a rumour in Africa.
11. There is money to be found in Africa.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup>Never mind the mere wording. Translate the meaning. Compare this sentence with 7.

LESSON III.

1. Latin nouns have five cases: Nominative, Accusative, Genitive, Dative and Ablative.<sup>1</sup>

2. The first three are distinguished from each other thus:

Nominative—nauta, a sailor.

Accusative—nautam.

Genitive—nautae.

3. (a) A noun is in the Nominative when it is the subject of a verb.

(b) A noun is in the Accusative when it is the object of the action described in the sentence.

(c) When in English a phrase composed of a preposition and a noun depends on another noun, the noun in the prepositional phrase stands in the Genitive. The English preposition is not translated.<sup>2</sup>

N.B.—The Possessive Case in English is always equal to such a prepositional phrase, e.g., Minerva's temple is equal to the "the temple of Minerva." Therefore the Genitive in Latin will translate the English Possessive.

VOCABULARY.

industria	diligens	Minerva	Minerva (name of a goddess)
victoria	victory	Caesar	Caesar
praeda	booty	Hannibal	Hannibal
agricola	farmer	laudat	praises
advena	stranger	occupat	seizes
dea	goddess	erat	was
Diana	Diana (name of a goddess)

Translate into English:

1. Caesar erat in Britannia.
2. Hannibal non erat in Britannia.
3. Minerva erat dea.
4. Nauta Dianam laudat.<sup>1</sup>
5. Diana nautam laudat.
6. Minerva industriam nautae laudat.
7. Nauta statuam deae laudat.
8. Hannibal victoriam advenae non laudat.
9. Dea advenam laudat.

<sup>1</sup>Observe the order of the words in a Latin sentence.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar was in Italy.
2. The image of the goddess is in Asia.
3. Diana extols the sailor.
4. Caesar takes possession of<sup>2</sup> the island.
5. The sailor praises the statue.
6. Diana approves of the victory<sup>3</sup> of the foreigner.
7. Caesar extols the industry of the seaman.
8. There was an image of Diana in Asia.
9. There was a report of a victory.
10. Diana is praised<sup>4</sup> by the sailor.

Answer.—“Takes possession of.”

Question.—What is the object of that action?

Answer.—Island.

Question.—What case then is “island” in Latin?

Answer.—Accusative.

LESSON IV.

1. Latin has two numbers, Singular and Plural. If the subject is Plural the verb is Plural.

2. The Plural of the Nominative, Accusative and Genitive is formed thus:

Singular.	Plural.
Nom. incolae, inhabitant	incolae, inhabitants
Acc. incolam	incolas
Gen. incolae	incolarum

VOCABULARY.

indigena	a native
silva	a wood
sunt	are
erant	were
laudant	praise (plural of laudat)
occupant	seize (plural of occupat)
frequentat	frequents
frequentant	frequent (plural of frequentat)
intrat	enters, or is entering
hiemat	winters, or is wintering

Translate into English:

1. Pugnae erant in Africa. 2. Nautae in insula sunt. 3. Statuae erant in insula. 4. Nautae Dianam laudant.<sup>1</sup> 5. Diana nautas laudat. 6. Caesar industriam nautarum laudat. 7. Nautae statuas dearum laudant. 8. Hannibal victoriam advenarum laudat. 9. Nautae silvas occupant. 10. Nautae insulam occupant. 11. Caesar insulas occupat. 12. Nauta silvam intrat. 13. Advenae insulas frequentant. 14. Indigenae in silva hiemant.

<sup>1</sup> Ask for several renderings, such as:

- (a) The sailors praise Diana.
- (b) The seamen extol Diana.

And in sentence 6:

- (a) Caesar extols the diligence of the seamen.
- (b) The activity of the sailors meets with Caesar's approval.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar takes possession of Rome.<sup>2</sup>
2. The sailor is entering the woods.
3. The seamen are entering the woods.
4. There are statues of the goddess to be found on the island.
5. There is plenty of spoil to be found on the island.
6. There were rumours of battles.
7. The goddesses approve of the victory<sup>3</sup> of the new-comers.
8. The victory of the strangers meets with the approval of the goddess.
9. The inhabitants of the island take possession of the woods.
10. The seamen are entering<sup>4</sup> the forest.
11. Mariners often come to the island.
12. Caesar is passing the winter in Britain.
13. The activity of the sailors meets with Caesar's commendation.

<sup>1</sup>What is the action described in this sentence, and what is the object of that action? What, then, is the case of Rome in Latin?

LESSON V.

THE DATIVE CASE.

1. The person to whom anything is given or told is expressed by the Dative.
2. The Dative Singular ends in ae, the Dative Plural in is.

	Singular	Plural
Nom.	silva	silvae
Acc.	silvam	silvas
Gen.	silvae	silvarum
Dat.	silvae	silvis

VOCABULARY.

donat givesnuntiat tells

Translate into English:

1. Dea advenae<sup>1</sup> victoriam donat. 2. Dea advenis victoriam donat. 3. In Africa erant famae pugnae. 4. Hannibal nautis insulas donat. 5. Nautae incolis statuam deae donant.<sup>2</sup> 6. Nautae incolis insularum pecuniam donant. 7. Nautae indigenis insulae victoriam nuntiant. 8. Incolae insularum nautis statuam deae donant. 9. Dea indigenis insulae victoriam donat. 10. Agricolae indigenis insulae victoriam advenarum nuntiant.

<sup>1</sup>What case and why?<sup>2</sup>Give several different translations.

Translate into Latin:

1. The goddess grants the victory to the seamen. 2. The goddess vouchsafes the victory to the islanders.<sup>3</sup> 3. The sailors give the booty to those who dwell on the island.<sup>3</sup> 4. The mariners present the goddess with a statue.<sup>4</sup> 5. The victory of the foreigners is reported<sup>5</sup> to the islanders by the farmers. 6. The inhabitants of the island bestow money upon the sailors. 7. The sailors take possession of the woods. 8. The goddess is presented with a statue by those who dwell in the island. 9. The sailor announces the victory to the inhabitants of the island. 10. The islanders express their approval of the victory of the strangers.

<sup>3</sup>Translate the meaning.<sup>4</sup>The Ablative is not to be used yet.<sup>5</sup>The Passive Voice is not to be used yet.

LESSON VI.

THE ABLATIVE CASE.

1. The Ablative case with the preposition in tells the place where a person or thing is: as,

Nauta est in insula. The sailor is in the island.

2. The Ablative with the preposition cum tells the person along with whom (in company with whom) one does a thing: as,

Nauta cum agricola ambulat. The sailor is walking with the farmer.

3. The Latin preposition in means "into" when it governs the Accusative: as,

Nauta in silvam ambulat. The sailor walks into the forest.

But

Nauta in silva ambulat. The sailor walks in the forest.

Singular	Plural
Nom. silva	silvae
Gen. silvae	silvarum
Dat. silvae	silvis
Acc. silvam	silvas
Abl. silva	silvis

N.B.—Hereafter the Accusative case will always be given after the Dative.

VOCABULARY.

fugat	puts to flight	Juppiter	Jupiter (the greatest
praeclpitat	hurls		of the gods)
aqua	water	et	and
ancora	anchor

Translate into English:

1. Nauta cum dea in insula ambulat.
2. Dea eum advenis in insula ambulat.
3. Nautae cum dea in insulam ambulant.
4. Advenae statuam deae laudant.
5. Nautae indigenis insulae praedam donant.
6. Statuae deae Minervae in insula sunt.
7. Nautae eum agricolis in silva ambulant.
8. Copia praedae est in silvis.
9. Diana eum nauta in silva ambulat.
10. Advenae incolis insularum praedam donant.
11. Nautae in aquam ancoram praecipitant.
12. Advenae nautas fugant.

Translate into Latin:

1. The sailors are walking in the forest accompanied by the goddess.
2. The sailor is walking in the forest with the inhabitants of the island.
3. The foreigners give the seamen an image of the goddess.
4. Diana is walking in the forest in company with the sailors.
5. Jupiter is walking in the forest and the goddess accompanies him.<sup>1</sup>
6. The sailors are walking in the forest accompanied by the inhabitants of the island.
7. The mariners give the plunder to the new-comers.
8. A statue of the goddess is presented to the sailors by the islanders.
9. The sailor throws the anchor overboard.<sup>2</sup>
10. The sailors throw the plunder overboard.
11. The sailors put the islanders to flight and take possession of the woods.
12. There are battles and rumours of battles in Africa.

LESSON VII.

THE ABLATIVE CASE (continued).

1. The Ablative with e or ex indicates the place from which one comes: as,
Nauta ex silva ambulat. The sailor walks out of the forest.
2. The Ablative with a or ab indicates the person by whom a thing is done: as,
Dea a nautis laudatur. The goddess is praised by the mariners.
3. The Passive Voice of the 3rd Singular and Plural Present Indicative is formed by adding ur to the Active: laudatur, laudantur; occupatur, occupantur.

Translate into English:

1. Dea ex silva ambulat. 2. Nautae ex silvis ambulant. 3. Nauta a dea laudatur. 4. Nautae ab indigenis insulae laudantur. 5. Indigenae insulae ex silvis ambulant. 6. Incolae insularum deae statuam donant. 7. Statua deae ab advenis laudatur. 8. Dea in silvis insulae ambulat. 9. In Asia erant statuae deae. 10. Dea cum nautis in silvam ambulat. 11. Victoria advenarum a dea laudatur. 12. Nautae silvas intrant et indignas insulae fugant.

<sup>1</sup>Ex and ab are used before a vowel or h, e or a before most consonants.

Translate into Latin:

1. The victory of the new-comers is praised by the islanders. 2. The sailor is walking from the forest accompanied by the inhabitants of the island. 3. The image of the goddess is praised by the mariners.

4. The islanders take possession of the woods.<sup>2</sup> 5. The victory of the strangers<sup>3</sup> meets with the approval of the goddess. 6. The island contains plenty of booty.<sup>4</sup> 7. Jupiter is walking from the woods and the goddess accompanies him. 8. The island is seized by the sailors. 9. The islanders enter the woods and put the seamen to flight. 10. News of the victory is brought to the islanders by the sailors. 11. The inhabitants of the island present the foreigners with money.<sup>5</sup>

N.B.—The teacher should say nothing about the other construction of donare at this stage.

LESSON VIII.

Copia, abundance (in plural, supplies or troops).

	Singular	Plural
Nom.	copia	copiae
Gen.	copiae	copiarum
Dat.	copiae	copiis
Acc.	copiam	copias
Abl.	copia	copiis

VOCABULARY.

portat	carries	celat	conceals
stat	stands	ara	altar
fuga	flight	renovat	renews
propterea	on account of	unda	a wave
	(prep. gov. acc.)	ad	to (prep. gov. acc.)
transportat	carries across.	post	behind (prep. gov. acc.)

Translate into English:

1. Nauta praedam in silvas portat. 2. Praeda a nautis in silvam portatur. 3. Incolae insularum praedam ad aram portant. 4. Praeda ab incolis insulae ad aram deae portatur. 5. Nauta post statuam deae stat.<sup>1</sup> 6. Nautae ancoram in undas portant. 7. Nautae in undis ambulant. 8. Ancora a nautis in aquam portatur. 9. Propter fugam incolarum Caesar insulas occupat.

<sup>1</sup>Give free translations wherever possible. See English exercise.

Translate into Latin:

1. The seamen carry the plunder into the forest.
2. The plunder is carried out of the woods by the inhabitants of the island. 3. The sailors are carrying the statue of the goddess to the altar. 4. The new-comers enter the woods and renew the battle.
5. The islanders chase the sailors out of the woods.
6. Caesar takes the plunder over to the islands. 7. The inhabitants of the island take up their position behind the altar of the goddess. 8. On account of the victory of the strangers the islanders conceal the plunder in the forest. 9. The islanders conceal the booty behind the altar of the goddess. 10. Because of the victory of the islanders the sailors throw the plunder overboard.

LESSON IX.

1. From the following examples observe how to form the Accusative case of words which do not end in a.

Nominative	Accusative
servus, slave	servum
senatus, senate	senatum
res, thing	rem
bellum, war	bellum

VOCABULARY.

trucidat	slaughters	oppidum	town
necat	kills	nuntius	a messenger
regnum	kingdom	portus	a harbour liberat	liberates	pugnat	fight parat	prepares	oppugnat	attacks
exercitus	army

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Nauta incolis insulae rem nuntiat.
2. Senatus ab insulae incolis necatur.
3. Exercitus pugnam renovat.
4. Nautae cum incolis terrae pugnant.
5. Nautae portum intrant.
6. Incolae insulae bellum renovant.
7. Caesar exercitum ad insulam transportat.
8. Incolae insulae oppidum oppugnant.
9. Caesar incolas insulae fugat.
10. Res incolis insulae a nautis nuntiatur.
11. Nautae cum insulae incolis in silvas praedam portant.
12. Caesar bellum parat.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar makes preparations for<sup>1</sup> war.
2. A slave carries the news<sup>2</sup> to the inhabitants of the island.

3. The inhabitants of the island prepare for war and carry corn into the woods. 4. Caesar enters the harbour with the sailors. 5. Caesar takes up his position behind the woods. 6. The inhabitants of the island attack the town. 7. The army puts the islanders to flight and takes possession of the spoil. 8. Caesar puts the slave to death on account of his<sup>3</sup> treachery. 9. The inhabitants of the island again enter upon hostilities.<sup>4</sup> 10. Caesar defeats<sup>5</sup> the inhabitants of the island and puts the senate to the sword.<sup>6</sup> 11. Dumnorix takes possession of the crown.<sup>6</sup>

LESSON X.

THE IMPERFECT TENSE.

1. The Imperfect tense in Latin has the meaning of the English Past Progressive.

Caesar nautas expectabat. Caesar was waiting for the sailors.

2. Observe how the Imperfect is formed.

Present Tense

laudat

occupat

stat

Imperfect Tense

laudabat

occupabat

stabat

3. The Plural Number is formed as in the Present: laudabant, occupabant, etc.

4. The Passive Voice (3rd Person Singular and Plural) is formed by adding ur, as in the Present: laudabatur, laudabantur, etc.

VOCABULARY.

expectat	awaits	perfidia	treachery
explorat	explores	comparat	procures, collects
locat	places	properat	hastens
copiae	(plural of copia)
	forces (military)

Translate into English:

1. Nautae in silvas praedam portabant.
2. Nautae post statuum deae stabant.
3. Juppiter cum dea in insula ambulabat.
4. Indigenae insulae nautis pecuniam donabant.
5. Praeda ex silvis a nautis portabatur.
6. Nuntius incolis insulae rem nuntiabat.
7. Nautae praedam post aram deae locabant.
8. Caesar insulam explorabat.
9. Res ab indigenis insulae explorabatur.
10. Propter perfidiam incolarum Caesar bellum renovabat.

Translate into Latin:

1. The islanders began to prepare<sup>1</sup> for war.
2. The foreigners were collecting troops.
3. The corn was being carried into the woods by the inhabitants of the island.
4. Caesar investigates the matter.
5. Caesar was entering the harbour with the sailors.
6. A messenger announces the matter to the inhabitants of the island.
7. The islanders place their<sup>2</sup> forces behind the woods and wait for the army.

<sup>2</sup>Omit the possessive adjective. It is not necessary to express it in Latin if the possessor can be readily understood from the context.

8. Caesar hastens to the woods with the sailors. 10. Caesar was taking possession of the roads by the sailors. 11. The islanders were presenting the corn being carried out of the woods by the sailors. 12. Caesar was praising the sailors with money. 13. The senate was being put to the sword by the inhabitants of the island. 14. War was being renewed by the islanders. 15. On account of the victory of the strangers the islanders were carrying the corn into the woods. 16. The inhabitants of the island were being put to death by the sailors. 17. The sailors were being carried over to Britain. 18. The woods were being explored by the sailors. 19. The mariners were concealing the plunder in the forest.

LESSON XI.

THE PRESENT SUBJUNCTIVE.

1. Observe how the Present Subjunctive is formed:

Present Indicative	Present Subjunctive
placat, pacifies	placet
convocat, calls together	convocet

2. The Plural Number and the Passive Voice are formed as before: laudent, laudetur, laudentur.

3. In English the idea of purpose is expressed by the Infinitive, by such phrases as "for the purpose of," "with the intention of," etc., e.g., Caesar put the senate to death to please the people.

Caesar put the senate to death in order to please the people.

Caesar put the senate to death for the purpose of pleasing the people.

Caesar put the senate to death with the intention of pleasing the people.

Caesar put the senate to death that he might please the people.

4. In Latin the idea of purpose is expressed by ut (that, in order that), with the verb always in the Subjunctive: as,

Caesar renews the war that he may get possession of the islands. Caesar bellum renovat ut insulas occupet.

N. B.—The subject of occupet is not expressed. Personal pronouns, when the subject of a verb, are not usually expressed in Latin.

VOCABULARY.

imperator	general
spes	hope
templum	temple
excitat	he arouses, incites

Translate into English:

1. Caesar insulas occupat ut rem exploret.<sup>1</sup>

11. The hope of booty was inciting the sailors to<sup>1</sup> war.
12. The plunder was being concealed by the sailors behind the altar of the goddess.

LESSON XII.

THE IMPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE.

1. Observe how the Imperfect Subjunctive is formed:

Imperfect Indicative	Imperfect Subjunctive
intrabat, was entering	intraret
laudabat, was praising	laudaret

2. The Plural Number and the Passive Voice are formed as in the Present Tense: laudarent, laudarentur, laudarentur, etc.

3. The rule for the tense in a clause of purpose is as follows: When the principal verb is Present, put the Present Subjunctive after ut; and when the principal verb is Imperfect, put the Imperfect Subjunctive after ut.

Translate into English:

1. Caesar nautas convocabat ut exercitum in Britanniam transportaret. 2. Imperator exercitum in insulas transportabat ut portum occuparet. 3. Caesar senatum necabat ut exercitum placaret. 4. Imperator senatum necabat ut ab incolis insulae laudaretur. 5. Nautae in silvas ambulabant ut rem explorarent. 6. Exercitus nautas necabat ut incolas insulae placaret. 7. Caesar bellum renovabat ut exercitum placaret. 8. Caesar in Britanniam exercitum transportabat ut bellum renovaret. 9. Praeda ex silvis in oppidum ab incolis insulae portabatur. 10. Propter nautarum victoriam incolae insulae ex silvis in oppidum praedam portabant.

Translate into Latin:

1. The general was taking possession of the islands for the purpose of investigating the matter. 2. Dumnorix was making preparations for war with a view to seizing the crown. 3. To pacify the islanders the sailors were throwing the plunder overboard. 4. The seamen carry water from the woods into the town. 5. The senate is put to death by those who dwell on the island. 6. The mariners were entering the forest to investigate the matter. 7. Caesar enters the harbour with his forces and puts the islanders to flight. 8. Because of the flight of the sailors Caesar does not take his army over to the island. 9. On account of the scarcity<sup>1</sup> of water Caesar does not spend<sup>2</sup> the winter on the island. 10. Dumnorix incites the islanders to war with the intention of getting possession of the throne. 11. As water was scarce Caesar evacuated the island<sup>3</sup> and carried his troops over to Gaul.

<sup>3</sup>How much of this may be omitted if the context has made it clear that Caesar is on the island? Detached sentences have little meaning.

N.B.—To the teacher.—Give your pupils the context when necessary. For example, in dealing with 2 state a few facts about Dumnorix; in 3 manufacture an intelligible context.

LESSON XIII.

1. Present Indicative	Perfect Indicative locat, he places	locavit, he placed perturbat, he confuses	perturbavit, he confused
aedificat, he builds	aedificavit, he built

2. If the principal verb is in the Present Tense, ut will take the Present Subjunctive; if the principal verb is in the Imperfect or Perfect Tense, ut will take the Imperfect.

VOCABULARY.

Galla	Gaul	superat	he conquers

9. Caesar enters the harbour with the intention of renewing the war against the inhabitants of the island.
10. The islanders seize the roads and conceal the eorn in the woods.
11. Caesar immediately built a wall in the rear of<sup>2</sup> the woods.

LESSON XIV.

1. Cum (when, since, although) is generally followed by the Subjunctive Mood if the tense is Imperfect. In English the meaning is given by the Indicative Mood: as,

Cum Caesar portum intraret, nautae praedam in aquam praecipitaverunt. When Caesar was entering the harbour, the sailors threw the plunder overboard.

8. The matter was being investigated by the villagers.
9. The villagers gave the lieutenant-generals a supply of corn.
10. Caesar hastened from Italy to attack the camp of the Germans.
11. On account of the delay of the sailors Caesar took his army over to Britain without baggage.

LESSON XVII.

1. Nouns of the Second Declension ending in er usually drop e before adding the terminations for the different cases:

Singular		Plural
Nom.	ager, a field	agri
Gen.	agri.	agrorum
Dat.	agro	agris
Acc.	agrum	agros
Abl.	agro	agris

2. The means or instrument, with which a thing is done is expressed by the Ablative without a preposition: as,

Caesar vallo locum firmavit. Caesar strengthened his position with a rampart.

VOCABULARY.

confirmat	he establishes	amicitia	friendship
firmat	he strengthens	faber	workman
evolat	he rushes out	locus	place
vastat	he lays waste	vallum	rampart
ne,	lest, in order that not	populus	people

3. When a clause of purpose is negative, put ne for ut non: as,

Caesar senatum trucidavit ne indigenae insulae bellum renovarent. Caesar put the senate to the sword in order that the islanders might not renew hostilities.

LESSON XVIII.

1. After orat (begs), rogat (asks), invitat (invites), and imperat (orders), put ut (ne, if negative) with the Subjunctive instead of the English Infinitive: as,

The senate begs the lieutenant-general to seize the town. Senatus legatum orat ut oppidum occupet.

(Literally) The senate begs the lieutenant that he may seize the town.

2. The verb imperat governs the Dative Case of the person ordered: as,

The senate ordered the lieutenant-general not to seize the town. Senatus legato imperavit ne oppidum occuparet.

VOCABULARY.

conservat saves    circum around (prep. gov. acc.)
cis on this side of (prep. gov. acc.)

Translate into English:<sup>1</sup>

1. Indigenae insulae legatum oraverunt ne bellum renovaret. 2. Galli Germanos invitaverunt ut trans Rhenum demigrarent. 3. Caesar incolis insulae imperavit ut servos liberarent. 4. Caesar legato imperavit ut insulam exploraret. 5. Indigenae insulae orabant ut oppidum conservaretur. 6. Caesar legatis imperat ut nautas sine mora convocent. 7. Senatus legatum oravit ne bellum renovaret. 8. Britanni Romanos orant ne agros vastent. 9. Caesar Germanis imperavit ut trans Rhenum remigrarent. 10. Labienus fabris imperavit ut murum circum oppidum aedificarent. 11. Caesar nautis imperavit ut portum intrarent. 12. Legatus nautis imperat ut praedam in aquam praecipitent.

<sup>1</sup>After translating each sentence literally, give as free and varied a rendering as you can.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar ordered the Germans to go back to their villages across the Rhine. 2. The senate ordered the lieutenant-general not to destroy the lands of the Gauls. 3. The Gauls beg Labienus not to take the army over to Britain. 4. The Gauls beg the Germans to await the arrival of the Romans on this side of the Rhine. 5. Caesar orders the lieutenant-general to summon the engineers. 6. Caesar ordered Labienus to take possession of the harbour.

7. When Caesar was absent in Britain the Gauls begged Labienus not to attack the towns. 8. The Gauls invited the Germans to move across the Rhine into Gaul. 9. Caesar ordered Labienus to take the army over without baggage. 10. The lieutenant-general asked the villagers to procure a supply of corn. 11. Owing to the fact that the islanders were getting ready for war, Caesar took possession of the harbour. 12. Since there was plenty of booty to be found on the island, the sailors entered the harbour.<sup>2</sup>

LESSON XIX.

THE INFINITIVE MOOD, ACTIVE VOICE.

1. Observe the following Infinitives:

occupare, to seize demigrare, to move, emigrate

remigrare, to move back

appropinquare, to approach (governs Dative)

VOCABULARY.

jubet he orders

jussit he ordered liberat frees

potest he is able poterat he was able causa cause

equitatus cavalry

N. B.—Jubet (orders) has the same meaning as imperat, but it governs the Accusative and takes the Infinitive after it just as in English: thus,
Caesar legatum insulas occupare jubet. Caesar orders the lieutenant to seize the islands.

If we use imperat in this sentence, we must write as before:

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Caesar exercitum vias occupare jubet. 2. Caesar Germanos trans Rhenum remigrare jubet.<sup>1</sup> 3. Nauta Britanniae appropinquare non poterat. 4. Caesar Britannos superare non poterat. 5. Legatus exercitum in Britanniam transportare non poterat. 6. Propter inopiam frumenti Caesar bellum renovare non poterat. 7. Cum Caesar Britanniae appropinquaret, incolae agros vastabant. 8. Caesar Germanos trans Rhenum remigrare jussit ne agros Gallorum vastarent. 9. Labienus equitatum locum sine mora occupare jubet. 10. Labienus servis imperavit ut praedam ex silvis in oppidum portarent.

<sup>1</sup>Substitute imperat for jubet and rewrite the Latin.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar was not able to establish friendly relations with the Germans. 2. The general ordered the army to seize the villages. 3. The senate commanded the army to devastate the lands of the Gauls. 4. When Caesar came near the islands the inhabitants burnt their villages. 5. Caesar orders his chief officers to set the slaves at liberty. 6. The Germans were not able to move back to their villages across the Rhine. 7. Caesar orders his officers to prepare for war immediately. 8. Since the Gauls were again entering upon hostilities without good reason,<sup>2</sup> Caesar orders the army to destroy their lands. 9. Caesar passed the winter in Britain for the purpose of exploring the island. 10. Owing to<sup>3</sup> the scarcity of supplies Caesar was unable to convey his army over to Britain.

LESSON XX.

THE INFINITIVE MOOD, PASSIVE VOICE.

1. Learn the following Passive Infinitives:

occupari, to be seized

aedificari, to be built

comportari, to be carried together, to be collected

firmari, to be strengthened expugnari, to be taken by assault

VOCABULARY.

praesidium garrison
dominus muster

numerus number atque and

Translate into English:

1. Caesar locum praesidio firmari jubet.
2. Imperator incolae insulae necari jubet.
3. Caesar fabros convocavit ut muros firmarent.
4. Muri a fabris firmari non poterant.
5. Legatus frumentum ex agris in oppidum comportari jubet.
6. Dominus servos sine mora liberari jubet.
7. Propter numerum incolarum Caesar locum expugnare non poterat.
8. Caesar oppidum expugnari jubet.
9. Ne locus expugnaretur Caesar muros aedificari jubet.<sup>1</sup> 10. Cum Caesar abesset, Labienus locum expugnare non poterat. 11. Caesar castra vallo atque fossa firmari jubet.

<sup>1</sup>jubet is Present Tense, but in meaning it is past, therefore the Subjunctive expugnaretur is in the Imperfect Tense. This is called the "Historic Present."

It is also correct to put the Present Subjunctive in the subordinate clause when the principal verb is Historic Present.

Translate into Latin:

1. Labienus orders the baggage to be carried over to the island. 2. Caesar orders Volusenus to explore the island. 3. Caesar ordered<sup>2</sup> the sailors to be summoned that he might take his army over to Britain. 4. When Caesar was absent, Labienus ordered the captives to be liberated. 5. Because of the absence of the engineers the walls could not be built. 6. To prevent a renewal of the war Caesar orders the senate to be put to the sword. 7. Lest the war might be renewed, the general ordered the camp to be strengthened with a rampart and a trench. 8. When Caesar was approaching Britain the inhabitants strengthened their villages with walls and trenches. 9. Labienus orders the corn to be carried from the fields into the villages. 10. The Britons beg the Romans not to destroy their lands.

<sup>2</sup>Use the Historic Present.

LESSON XXI.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

1. The Infinitive Active of the First Conjugation ends in are.

2. The Infinitive Active of the Second Conjugation ends in ere (the e before re being a long vowel).

3. The following are Second Conjugation verbs in the Infinitive Active:

jubere, to order

habere, to have tenere, to hold

monere, to advise, warn

4. Learn the Present and Imperfect Indicative of these verbs.

Present Indicative .		Imperfect Indicative
3rd Sing.	3rd Plural	3rd Sing.	3rd Plural
jubet	jubent	jubebat	jubebant
habet	habent	habebat	habebant
tenet	tenent	tenebat	tenebant
monet	monent	monebat	monebant

5. The Passive Voice is formed as in the First Conjugation.

6. Verbs signifying to ask, to warn, to advise and to command (except jubere and vetare) are followed by ut (or ne) with the Subjunctive instead of the Infinitive as in English: as,

Caesar Labienum monebat ne agros vastaret. Caesar was warning Labienus not to destroy the fields.

VOCABULARY.

LESSON XXX.

PERFECT INFINITIVE AND PLUPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE ACTIVE.

1. The Perfect Infinitive Active is formed from the Perfect Indicative Active by changing t into sse: thus, occupavit

Perfect Indicative

jussit

duxit

munivit

Perfect Infinitive

occupavisse, to have seized jussisse, to have ordered duxisse, to have led munivisse, to have fortified

2. The Pluperfect Subjunctive Active is formed by adding t to the Perfect Infinitive Active: thus, occupavisset, had seized jussisset, had ordered duxisset, had led munivisset, had fortified

3. Cum generally takes the Subjunctive Mood with the Pluperfect Tense as well as with the Imperfect.

LESSON XXXIII.

THE ACCUSATIVE AND INFINITIVE CONSTRUCTION.

1. Observe the following:
Legatus dicit (putat) Caesarem adesse. The lieutenant-general says (thinks) that Caesar is present.
2. After a verb of speaking or thinking the English noun clause beginning with the conjunction "that"

(expressed or understood) is translated into Latin as follows:

- (a) The conjunction "that" is always omitted.
 (b) The subject of the noun clause stands in the Accusative.
 (c) The verb in the noun clause is in the Infinitive Mood.

This is called the Accusative and the Infinitive Construction. We sometimes use the same construction in English. We can say: "The lieutenant declares Caesar to be present." The difference is, we do not often use this construction; the Romans always do.

"Say, "it is in the mind to the Helvetii."

LESSON XXXIV.

THE ACCUSATIVE AND INFINITIVE (continued).

1. (a) Use the Present Infinitive when the time is the same as that of the main verb.

(b) Use the Perfect Infinitive when the time is previous to that of the main verb.

2. Examples of (a):

He says (now) that Caesar is present (now).

He said (yesterday) that Caesar was present (yesterday).

The time expressed by "is present" in the first sentence is the same as the time expressed by the main verb (says). And the time expressed by "was present" in the second sentence is the same time as the main verb (said). Therefore use the Present Infinitive in both sentences: thus,

3. Examples of (b):

He says (now) that Caesar was present (yesterday).

He said (yesterday) that Caesar was (or had been) present (the day before yesterday).

The time expressed by "was present" in the first sentence is previous to the time expressed by the main verb (says), and the time expressed by "was" (or "had been") "present" in the second sentence is previous to the time expressed by the main verb (said). Therefore use the Perfect Infinitive in both sentences: thus,

1. Compare:

(a) Balbus dixit se amicis servire. Balbus said that he (Balbus) was devoted to his friends.

(b) Balbus dixit eum amicis servire. Balbus said that he (someone else) was devoted to his friends.

2. Se and eum are both Accusative Case, the construction being, of course, the Accusative and Infinitive construction after the verb of speaking, dixit; but observe that se is used for "he" when Balbus is meant, and eum when somebody not Balbus is referred to.

3. The Plural of se is se, and the Plural of eum is eos.

(a) Romani dixerunt se bello servire. The Romans said that they (themselves) were devoted to war.

(b) Romani dixerunt eos bello servire. The Romans said that they (some other people) were devoted to war.

7. The scout reported that the enemy had concealed themselves in the woods.
8. The Ubii said that they had given hostages to the Suebi.
9. The scouts reported to the Britons that they had seen the ships of the Romans. 10. They say that Caesar on his arrival put the captives to death for fear that<sup>2</sup> his plans should be reported to the enemy. 11. The non-arrival of the supplies excited in the mind of Caesar a suspicion that the Helvetii were playing him false.

<sup>2</sup>Render "for fear that" by one word.

LESSON XXXVI.

DEPONENT VERBS.

1. Many Latin verbs are Passive in form but Active in meaning. Such verbs are called Deponent verbs.
2. The following are a few which belong to the First Conjugation:

hortari, to exhort

conari, to attempt

arbitrari, to think cunetari, to delay (intr.)

susplicari, to suspect

3. The Present Indicative of these verbs is as follows: hortatur, conatur, etc.

4. The Imperfect Indicative is: hortabatur, conabatur, etc.

5. Verbs signifying to ask, to command (except jubere and vetare), to persuade and to exhort take ut (or ne, if a negative is required) with the Subjunctive Mood instead of the Infinitive as in English: as (see Lesson XXI.), exhorts the soldiers to fight bravely (literally, that they should fight bravely).

Cæsar milites hortatur ut fortiter pugnent. Caesar

Caesar milites hortabatur ne castris excederent.
Caesar was exhorting the soldiers not to depart from the camp (literally, that they should not depart).

VOCABULARY.

exire (pl., exiit) to go out

LESSON XXXVIII.

DEPONENT VERBS OF THE SECOND CONJUGATION.

1.	Present Infinitive
	vereri, to fear
	Present Indicative	Imperfect Indicative
	veretur	verebatur
	Present Subjunctive	Imperfect Subjunctive
	vereatür	vereretur

2. After verbs of fearing "that" and "lest" are translated by ne, "that not" by ut: as,
Caesar veretur ne hostes portum occupent. Caesar fears that (or lest) the enemy may seize the harbour.

Caesar veretur ut Labienus portum occupet. Caesar fears that Labienus may not seize the harbour.

N. B.—After a verb of fearing, the English often has “will”: as, Caesar fears that the enemy will seize the harbour. The Latin Present Subjunctive has therefore the force of a Future Tense in this construction.

The scout brought back word to Caesar that Crassus had arrived in Aquitania.

LESSON XL.

GENDER OF LATIN NOUNS.

1. In English, a noun is Masculine when it is the name of a male, Feminine when it is the name of a female, and Neuter when it is the name neither of a male nor of a female.

2. In Latin, names of males are Masculine, and names of females Feminine; but nouns which are Neuter in English may be Masculine, Feminine or Neuter in Latin.

It will therefore be necessary to learn the Latin Gender of nouns which are Neuter in English. The following are some rules:

(a) Nouns of the First Declension ending in a are Feminine, e.g., insula, praeda.

(b) Nouns of the Second Declension ending in us or er are Masculine, e.g., murus, ager.

(e) Nouns of the Second Declension ending in um are Neuter, e.g., bellum, regnum.

3. A Latin adjective agrees in Gender, Number and Case with the noun which it qualifies. In English we say "a great man," "a great goddess," "a great war." The adjective "great" does not change its form, but in Latin a great man is magnus vir, a great goddess is magna dea, and a great war is magnum bellum, magnus being the Masculine form of the adjective, magna the Feminine, and magnum the Neuter.

4. If the noun is Plural, the adjective also takes a Plural termination: thus, magni muri, great walls; magnae insulae, large islands; magna regna, great kingdoms.

5. The adjective must also be in the same case as the noun: thus, ex magnis muris, from the large walls; ex magnis insulis, from the large islands; ex magno regno, from the great kingdom.

6. The cases of the adjective are formed in the same way as the noun. An adjective ending in us is declined like a noun in us, an adjective ending in a like a noun in a, and an adjective in um like a noun in um: thus,

	Singular
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	magnus	magna	magnum
Gen.	magni	magnae	magni
Dat.	magno	magnae	magno
Acc.	magnum	magnam	magnum
Abl.	magno	magnā	magno

Plural
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
magni	magnae	magna
magnorum	magnarum	magnorum
magnis	magnis	magnis
magnos	magnas	magna
magnis	magnis	magnis

7. The following is a list of Adjectives in the Nominative Singular of the three Genders:

multus, multa, multum, much or many maximus, maxima, maximum, greatest bellicosus, -a, -um, warlike longus, -a, -um, long privatus, -a, -um, private frigidus, -a, -um, cold firmus, -a, -um, strong importatus, -a, -um, imported decimus, -a, -um, tenth suus, -a, -um, his, her, its, their incertus, -a, -um, uncertain tertius, -a, -um, third altus, -a, -um, high, deep

VOCABULARY.

multitudo, multitudinis	multitude
latitudo, -inis	width
altitudo, -inis	depth or height magnitudo, -inis	greatness, size fortitudo, -inis	bravery
homo, -inis	man
pro (prep. gov. abl.)	in proportion to

Conjugation of Irregular Verb ire, to go.

Indic.	{	Pres.	it (3rd pl. eunt )	Perf.	ivit
		Imperf.	ibat
Subj.	{	Pres.	eat		Plpf.
		Imperf.	iret
Infinitive Pres.		ire			Perf. ivisse

Compounds of ire are conjugated in the same way, e.g.,

redire, to go back	abire, to go away
transire, to go across	adire, to go to
inire, to go into

The letter "v" is often omitted in the Perfect Tenses of ire, and in the compounds the omission of "v" is the rule, e.g., transiit, transiissem, transiisse.

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Equus est parvus.
2. Insula est parva.
3. Regnum est parvum.
4. Equi sunt parvi.
5. Insulae sunt parvae.
6. Multi Germani in magna insula sunt.
7. Multi incolae in insula sunt.
8. Teneteri ab Suebis multos annos premebantur.
9. Germani magno eum numero hominum flumen Rhenum transierunt.
10. Germani equis non importatis utuntur.
11. Multos annos Teneteri vim Sueborum sustinerunt.
12. Muri erant tanti ut<sup>1</sup> Caesar oppidum

<sup>1</sup>We have seen that ut with the Subjunctive Mood translates the idea of purpose. It also translates a result or consequence. In this sentence the consequence of the walls being so great was "that Caesar was not able to take the town by assault." Observe that the negative is expressed by ut non, instead of ne.

expugnare non posset. 13. Germani trans Rhenum in suos vicos remigraverunt. 14. Romani multa Gallorum aedificia incenderunt. 15. Caesar dicit Gallos incertis rumoribus servire. 16. Pro multitudine hominum et pro gloria belli atque fortitudinis angustos se fines habere arbitrabantur.

Translate into Latin:

1. Britain is a large island. 2. Caesar took possession of many islands. 3. The Romans waged many wars. 4. They return to Caesar after the third day. 5. Caesar fortified his position with a strong garrison. 6. Labienus protected his camp with a deep trench. 7. At the third watch Caesar sets out for Britain. 8. At the third hour Caesar broke up<sup>2</sup> his camp. 9. The Gauls send many ambassadors to Caesar. 10. Caesar ordered the Gauls to return to their own lands. 11. The cavalry fought with great danger. 12. It happened that<sup>3</sup> there was a full moon. 13. The Gauls had large forces of cavalry. 14. In Germany nobody has private property in land. 15. They think they are able to conquer a great number of states. 16. Saying this with a loud voice, he jumped overboard and began to carry the standard against the enemy.

<sup>3</sup>accidit ut, it happened that. If a negative were required here, would it be ut non or ne?

LESSON XLI.

GENDER OF NOUNS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

1. As in the First and Second Declensions, the names of males are Masculine and the names of females are Feminine. Thus, equus, a horseman, is Masculine, and mulier, a woman, is Feminine.

2. The following are some rules for the Latin Gender of Third Declension nouns which are Neuter in English:

(a) Nouns ending in io, do, as and x are Feminine.

(b) Nouns ending in en, and us (with the Genitive in ris) are Neuter: as flumen, corpus (Gen., corporis), opus, (Gen., operis).

3. In the previous exercise, when an adjective agreed with a noun, it had the same termination as the noun; but if the noun belongs to the Third Declension, the adjective will have a different termination; thus,

decima legio, the tenth legion decimae legionis, of the tenth legion

rapidum flumen, swift river

rapidi fluminis, of a swift river in rapidis fluminibus, in the swift rivers

Observe that in the above examples the termination of the adjective is different from that of the noun, but the adjective is nevertheless in the same Gender, Number, and Case as the noun. The reason why the adjectives have a different termination from the nouns given above is that the Feminine of the adjectives belongs to the First Declension, and the Masculine and Neuter to the Second Declension, while the nouns belong to the Third Declension.

<sup>5</sup>What is the Genitive Plural? What nouns have you had with the same Genitive Plural?

<sup>6</sup>importato is in an unusual position. To place a word in an unusual position gives emphasis to that word. In translating express your emphasis by whatever means you can. This sentence might be translated, "The bronze which the Britons use is imported."

<sup>7</sup>What nouns have i in the Ablative Singular?

Translate into Latin:

1. So great was the storm that the war-ships could not reach the island. 2. At the fourth hour Caesar was approaching<sup>8</sup> Britain with his war-ships. 3. The Gauls concealed a great amount of arms in the town. 4. The scout brought back word that the Gauls were concealing arms in the town. 5. The scout brought back word that the Gauls had concealed a great amount of arms in the town. 6. The standard-bearer of the tenth legion jumped down from the ship and began to approach the enemy. 7. When the enemy saw that the Roman soldiers were approaching the shore, they were greatly alarmed (impf.). 8. There the Gauls await the arrival of the Roman soldiers. 9. Caesar orders Labienus to wait for him with the tenth legion in the territory of the Morini. 10. Caesar ordered Labienus to build many war-ships. 11. Meanwhile the Britons ordered their (men) to go back to (their) fields. 12. The storm was dashing<sup>9</sup> the transports and the war-ships to pieces. 13. Owing to the lack of corn the Roman soldiers were unable to pass the winter in Britain. 14. Caesar therefore ordered the legions to be carried over to Gaul without delay. 15. Since a great part of the Britons kept coming into the camp every day, Caesar did not suspect treachery. 16. The Britons fight both with cavalry and with chariots. 17. They so place their chariots that they are able to retreat<sup>10</sup> with great speed. 18. Meanwhile our soldiers fought bravely for four hours. 19. When Caesar had waited four hours in vain for the transports, he ordered the Gauls to send him corn at once.

LESSON XLII.

THE SUPERLATIVE DEGREE.

1. The Superlative Degree of an adjective is formed by cutting off the termination of the Genitive and adding issimus: thus,

Positive	Genitive	Superlative
altus, high	alt-i	altissimus, highest latus, broad	lat-i	latissimus, broadest
bellicosus, warlike	bellicos-i	bellicosissimus, most [ warlike ]

2. The following are a few irregular Superlatives:

Positive	Superlative bonus, good	optimus, best magnus, great	maximus, greatest parvus, small	minimus, least
multus, much or many	plurimus, most

The Superlative is also used to give more emphasis than the Positive. Thus altissimus may mean very high, optimus, very good or excellent, etc., etc.

3. Quam with the Superlative expresses the greatest degree possible: thus, quam plurimae naves, as many ships as possible.

VOCABULARY.

This verb is Third Conjugation, but observe:

(a) The vowel i is omitted in 3rd Singular Present Indicative.

(b) The vowel e is omitted between the two r's of the Present Infinitive.

(c) The Imperfect Subjunctive is obtained as usual by adding t to the Present Infinitive.

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Tencteri maxima cum multitudine hominum flumen Rhenum transierunt.
2. Rhenus est flumen altissimum et latissimum.
3. Sueborum gens est maxima et bellicosissima.
4. Putant magnum numerum civitatum suam vim sustinere non posse.
5. Interea ne propius (nearer) se castra moveret, rogaverunt.

Caesar naves quam plurimas aedificari jubet. 11. Caesar fabros quam plurimos ex continenti convocari jubebat. 12. Caesar verebatur ut equites ad insulam pervenirent. 13. Romani verebantur ne maxima pars Sueborum Rhenum transirent. 14. Tempore opportunissimo Caesar decimam legionem ad Labienum misit. 15. Labienus milites monuit<sup>1</sup> ut se in castris continerent.

<sup>1</sup>What verbs are followed by ut or ne and the Subjunctive instead of the Infinitive, as in English?

Translate into Latin:

1. The Treveri have very large forces of infantry.
2. Caesar orders engineers to be summoned from Spain.
3. Indutianus is afraid that he will be deserted<sup>2</sup> by his friends.
4. Dumnorix was afraid of being deserted by his friends.
5. The Romans fear they will be compelled to pass<sup>3</sup> the summer in the country of the Treveri.
6. The Romans were afraid they should be compelled to winter in Britain.
7. On account of the violence of the storm the smallest ships were not able to hold their course.
8. The Helvetii are hemmed in by the Rhine, a very broad and deep river which<sup>4</sup> divides their territory from the Germans.
9. Having ordered as great a number of ships as possible to be built, Caesar hastened from Italy to the army.
10. By means of very large rewards Labienus induces the slaves to cross over to the camp of the enemy. 11. The scout brought back word that the enemy were holding the position with a very strong garrison. 12. The Sequani beg the Helvetii not to debar them from the journey. 13. Ariovistus was in possession of Vesontio, the largest town of the Sequani.

LESSON XLIII.

THE SUPINE.

1. The Supine is one of the principal parts of the Latin Verb. It can translate the idea of purpose, which the Infinitive cannot do: as,

The boys came to see the sports. Pueri ludos visum venerunt.

2. In Lesson XI. the idea of purpose was translated by ut with the Subjunctive: as,

Caesar renews the war to get possession of the islands. Caesar bellum renovat ut insulas occupet.

N. B.—The Supine is used rather than ut with the Subjunctive when the principal verb is a verb of motion.

3. Learn the following Supines; and give the 3rd Singular and Plural of the Present Indicative of the verb to which each belongs:

questum, to complain	cognitum, to learn frumentatum, to forage	arecessitum, to summon obsessum, to besiege	rogatum, to ask auditum, to hear

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Aedui de finitimorum injuriis questum venerunt.
2. Caesar Volusenum cum navi longa praemittit

Britanniam exploratum. 3. Cum hostes non longe abessent, tertiam partem militum frumentatum emisit. 4. Caesar ad Italiam proficiscitur obsessum Romam. 5. Galli ad castra Romana legatos miserunt imperata Caesaris cognitum. 6. Treveri Germanos sollicitare dicebantur. 7. Caesar secum decimam legionem ducere constituit ut praesidium quam amicissimum haberet. 8. Galli nuntios trans Rhenum miserunt Germanos accessitum. 9. Aedui legatos ad Caesarem mittunt rogatum auxilium. 10. Hannibal equites ad castra Romana misit rem exploratum.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar sent a scout to explore the bank of the river. 2. The enemy approached the camp to examine the rampart and the ditch. 3. Labienus sent the tenth legion out to forage. 4. Caesar sent messengers to Italy to collect engineers. 5. The Britons came to the camp to hear Caesar's demands. 6. The messenger says that a very large army is being led across the Rhine. 7. He ordered the children of the chiefs to be brought to him. 8. The Helvetii send envoys to Caesar to ask him not to look upon them as enemies. 9. The Gauls came to lodge a complaint with Caesar<sup>1</sup> against the Germans for having crossed the Rhine and devastated their lands. 10. On learning that the enemy had not yet crossed the river, Caesar sent out a third<sup>2</sup> of his soldiers on a foraging expedition.

LESSON XLIV.

THE PERFECT PARTICIPLE PASSIVE.

1. The Perfect Participle Passive is formed from the Supine by changing um into us. It agrees, like an adjective, in Gender, Number, and Case with the noun which it qualifies.

2. The following are some Perfect Participles Passive, with their meaning:

comparatus, -a, -um,	having been collected or procured
factus, -a, -um,	“ “ done or made confectus, -a, -um,	“ “ completed interfectus, -a, -um,	“ “ killed vulneratus, -a, -um,	“ “ wounded
cognitus, -a, -um,	“ “ known or learnt missus, -a, -um,	“ “ sent
emissus, -a, -um,	“ “ sent out praemissus, -a, -um,	“ “ sent forward commissus, -a, -um,	“ “ joined or begun (in reference to battle) relictus, -a, -um,	“ “ left
expositus, -a, -um,	“ “ placed outside of pulsus, -a, -um,	“ “ driven repulsus, -a, -um,	“ “ driven back
expulsus, -a, -um,	“ “ driven out reperitus, -a, -um,	“ “ found
acceptus, -a, -um,	“ “ received

N. B.—The Perfect Participle Passive may be rendered “being collected,” “being done,” “being completed,” etc., or more simply still, “collected,”

"done," "completed." The last form is that usually given as the third principal part of the verb in English grammar.

3. If a noun is used along with the Perfect Participle Passive, and if that noun is not the subject or object of a verb, or the objective after a preposition, then both the noun and the participle stand in the Ablative Case: thus,

The plan having been discovered, Caesar hastened into Gaul. Cognito consilio Caesar in Galliam contendit.

Here the noun "plan" is not the subject or object of a verb, nor is it objective after a preposition, and the participle "having been discovered" is used in close connection with it. Both noun and participle are in the Ablative Case in Latin. This construction is called the Ablative Absolute.

e icere	to throw out
per pauci, -ae, -a	very few
con juratio (f.)	league, conspiracy

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Comparato frumento Caesar Rhenum transiit.
2. Facto proelio Germani ad Caesarem legatos de pace miserunt.
3. Germanico bello confecto Caesar Rhenum transire statuit.
4. Germani post tergum clamore audito se ex castris ejecerunt.
5. Magno numero interfecto, reliqui se in flumen praecipitaverunt.
6. Milites nostri, perpaucis vulneratis, se in castra receperunt.
7. Interim consilio Caesaris cognito, legati a multis Britanniae civitatibus ad eum veniunt. 8. Conjuratiōe facta, Britanni paulatim ex castris discedere coeperunt. 9. Commisso proelio nostrorum militum impetum hostes sustinere non potuerunt. 10. Laudatis militibus, legatos ad portum Itium convenire jubet. 11. Navibus ad Britannicum bellum comparatis, Indutiomarum ad se cum ducentis obsidibus venire jussit. 12. Labieno in continenti relicto ut portum tueretur, Caesar ipse ad Britanniam proficiscitur. 13. Caesar expositis militibus de tertia vigilia ad hostes contendit. 14. Hostes ab equitibus repulsi se in silvas<sup>1</sup> abdidērunt. 15. Munito loco, Caesar custodias pro castris ponit. 16. Castris vallo fossaque munitis Caesar custodias in moenibus disponit.

<sup>1</sup>The enemy were not in the woods; they went into the woods to hide, hence silvas is in Acc.

Translate into Latin, using the Ablative Absolute wherever possible:

1. After the battle was begun<sup>2</sup> the enemy beat a retreat. 2. Leaving the tenth legion<sup>3</sup> on the continent, Caesar sets out for Britain. 3. Having found a suitable place for a camp Caesar hastened against the enemy at the third watch. 4. On defeating the enemy Caesar led his army back to the sea without delay. 5. Having summoned the engineers he began to fortify the camp. 6. Having fortified his position Caesar sent out the cavalry. 7. Having explored the woods the cavalry brought back word that the enemy had departed. 8. On learning the plan of the Britons Caesar led his army into the territory of Cassivellaunus. 9. Having sent forward the cavalry Caesar ordered the legions to follow immediately. 10. After his territory had been devastated Cassivellaunus sent ambassadors to Caesar. 11. Caesar orders Cassivellaunus to send him hostages. 12. When he had received the hostages<sup>4</sup> Caesar led his army back to the sea. 13. Seizing the ships of the Menapii the Germans crossed the Rhine. 14. Having taken the town by assault Caesar put the senate to the sword. 15. The Tencteri,<sup>5</sup> being driven out of their territory by the Suebi, crossed the Rhine with a great multitude of men. 16. Exasperated by the obstinate defence the Romans spared neither age<sup>6</sup> nor sex in the conquered town.

LESSON XLV.

THE ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE (continued).

1. In the previous exercise it should be noticed that the participle in the Ablative Absolute was always Passive Voice. When the English was given in the Active, the phrase had always to be turned into the Passive before translating it into Latin. Thus in the third sentence of the last exercise, "having found a suitable place" was turned into "a suitable place having been found." It should now be observed that if the verb is intransitive it will be impossible to turn the participlo into the Passive. Thus in the sentence, "Having come to the territory of the enemy. Caesar pitched his camp," the clause "having come to the territory of the enemy" cannot be turned into the Passive, because there is no Passive for the verb "to come," which is intransitive. It will, therefore, be impossible to translate "having come to the territory of the enemy" by the Ablative Absolute construction. Say, therefore:

When he had come to the territory of the enemy, Caesar pitched his camp. Caesar cum ad hostium fines venisset castra posuit.

REVIEW OF THE FIRST DECLENSION.

Ripa, bank (of river)

Singular	Plural
Nom. ripa	ripae
Gen. ripae	riparum

Acc. ripam	ripas
Abl. ripa	ripis

Nouns of the First Declension are Feminine except names of males, which are, of course, Masculine.

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Caesar, eum suos urgeri vidisset, in primam aeiem processit.
2. Caesar ubi suos urgeri vidit, manipulos laxare iussit.
3. Caesar, ubi suos urgeri vidit, in primam aciem processit, centurionibusque nominatim appellatis, signa inferre et manipulos laxare jussit. 4. Caesar, ubi suos urgeri signisque in unum locum collati: milites esse confertos vidit, in primam aciem processit, centurionibusque nominatim appellatis, signa inferre et manipulos laxare jussit ut gladiis uti possent. 5. Caesar, ubi suos urgeri signisque in unum locum collatis milites duodecimae legionis esse confertos vidit, quartae cohortis centurionibus occisis, signiferoque interfecto, signo amisso, et ubi rem esse in angusto vidit, in primam aciem processit, centurionibusque nominatim appellatis, signa inferre et manipulos laxare jussit ut gladiis uti possent.

Translate into Latin:

1. On coming to the army Caesar heard that the Gauls had formed a league against the Roman people. 2. Having placed a garrison there he hastened into Germany. 3. Having determined to wage war with the Germans, Caesar crossed the Rhine. 4. That year the Teneteri, having been driven out of their lands by the Suebi, crossed the river Rhine with a mighty host of men. 5. When Caesar learned that the Germans had crossed the Rhine, he led his army into Gaul by forced (magnus) marches. 6. On hearing that Caesar was coming, the Germans immediately sent ambassadors to him. 7. On arriving there Caesar discovered that twenty men-of-war had been built and that all preparations had been made for the British war. 8. The Romans attempted to make a road through the forest with the axe.<sup>1</sup>

LESSON XLVI.

THE PERFECT PARTICIPLE OF DEPONENT VERBS.

1. Since Deponent verbs have a Passive form but an Active meaning, observe that the following Perfect Participles, being from Deponent verbs, have an Active meaning:

nactus, having obtained
hortatus, having exhorted cohortatus, having exhorted conatus, having attempted progressus, having advanced secutus, having followed veritus, having feared
arbitratus, having thought

Having exhorted the soldiers, Caesar crossed the river. Cohortatus milites, Caesar flumen transiit.

Here the English is exactly the same as the Latin and need not be turned. It must be remembered, however, that this is the case only with deponent verbs. If the verb to exhort were not deponent, the phrase "having exhorted the soldiers" would have to be changed into "the soldiers having been exhorted."

REVIEW OF THE SECOND DECLENSION.

Dat.	proelio	proeliis
Acc.	proelium	proelia
Abl.	proelio	proeliis

Nouns ending in us and er of the Second Declension are Masculine, those in um are Neuter.

N. B.—Neuter nouns are always the same in the Nominative and Accusative, and in the Plural these Cases end in a.

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Germani dicunt se venisse invites, ejectos domo.
2. Caesar idoneum esse arbitratus<sup>1</sup> Volusenum cum navi longa praemittit.
3. Hostes proelio superati statim ad Caesarem legatos de pace miserunt.

Caesar perfidiam barbarorum suspicatus statim decimam legionem secum proficisci jussit. 5. Caesar idoneam tempestatem nactus ad Britanniam proficiscitur. 6. Veritus<sup>1</sup> ne a principibus civitatis desereretur, Indutiomarus legatos ad Caesarem mittit. 7. Tandem idoneam nactus tempestatem milites equitesque conscendere in naves jubet. 8. Tum venti commutationem secutus ad oram Britanniae prima luce pervenit. 9. Britanni ad flumen progressi proelium committere coeperunt. 10. Commisso proelio hostes impetum nostrorum sustinere non potuerunt. 11. Cohortatus milites ut fortiter pugnarent Caesar in primam aeiem processit. 12. Conati noctu flumen transire et a custodiis Menapiorum repulsi, domum redierunt. 13. Germani ad Rhenum progressi transire noctu conantur.

Translate into Latin:

1. Leaving a strong guard on the banks of the river Caesar hastened into the territory of the Sigambri. 2. Meeting with suitable weather Caesar resolved to cross over to Britain at once. 3. Advancing from the woods the Britons began to attack the Roman camp. 4. Having exhorted the legions to fight bravely the generals gave the signal for battle.<sup>2</sup> 5. Having given the signal for battle Caesar went forward to the van. 6. Fearing lest the Gauls would renew the war Caesar hastened from Italy. 7. Fearing that Labienus was not able to defend the camp Caesar sets out for the army. 8. When he arrived there<sup>3</sup> he summoned the chiefs of Gaul. 9. Having exhorted the chiefs of Gaul to remain in their allegiance<sup>4</sup> he returned to Italy. 10. Having fortified the camp with a rampart and a ditch, Caesar set out against the Morini.

<sup>3</sup>eo = there, when there is motion to; ibi = there, when there is no motion. <sup>4</sup>officium.

LESSON XLVII.

THE FUTURE INFINITIVE ACTIVE.

1. The Future Infinitive Active is formed from the Supine by changing um into urus and adding esse, which is the Present Infinitive of the verb "to be." The following are some examples:

nuntiaturus esse, will or would announce processurus esse, will or would advance reversurus esse, will or would return transiturus esse, will or would cross venturus esse, will or would come permissurus esse, will or would entrust futurus esse, will or would be neglecturus esse, will or would neglect

2. The Future Infinitive is used in the Accusative and the Infinitive construction whenever a future meaning is required. Thus:

Legati dixerunt se Caesari obsides daturus esse.
 The ambassadors said that they would give hostages to Caesar.

Observe that the termination us must be changed to agree with the subject se, which in this case is Accusative Plural.

REVIEW OF THIRD DECLENSION.

Pars, a part

Singular	Plural
Nom. pars	partes
Gen. partis	partium
Dat. parti	partibus
Acc. partem	partes
Abl. parte	partibus

Nouns of one syllable ending in s or x preceded by consonant have ium in the Genitive Plural.

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Legati rem se suis nuntiaturus esse dixerunt.
2. Caesar se longius processurum esse negavit.
3. Legati dixerunt se post diem tertium ad Caesarem reversuros<sup>1</sup>.
4. Mercatores Cassivellauno nuntiaverunt Caesarem in Britanniam esse transiturum.
5. Hostes suspicati nostros huc esse venturos in silvis constiterunt.
6. Indutiomarus dixit se ad eum in castra esse venturum.
7. Indutiomarus dicit se suas fortunas Caesari permissurum.
8. Britanni pollicentur se obsides ad Caesarem missuros.
9. Bello Helvetiorum confecto Galliae principes ad Caesarem gratulatum convenerunt.
10. Caesar sperabat se ad oram Britanniae ante primam lucem perventurum.

<sup>1</sup> Esse is often omitted.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar hopes to reach<sup>2</sup> the river before night.
2. Ariovistus promises to return after the third day.

<sup>2</sup> "To reach," though present tense, has a future meaning, therefore the Future Infinitive must be used in Latin. All such sentences should be turned thus: Caesar hopes that he will reach the river before night. The construction is the Accusative and the Infinitive, and the Accusative of the pronoun must be expressed. Verbs signifying to hope, promise, undertake, swear and threaten are followed by the Accusative and the Future Infinitive when futurity is implied.

3. Hannibal swears to be always an enemy to the Roman people. 4. Hannibal swore to be an enemy to the Roman people as long as he lived. 5. Ariovistus answered that he would come to Caesar with one hundred hostages. 6. Caesar answered that he would not overlook the injuries of the Aedui. 7. The messenger promises to announce the matter to Labienus. 8. The Gauls said that they would entrust their wives and children to Caesar. 9. So great was the number of the enemy that Caesar was not able to storm the town. 10. The enemy sent reinforcements that Caesar might not take the town by storm.

LESSON XLVIII.

THE PRINCIPAL PARTS OF THE LATIN VERB.

The principal parts of the Latin verb are the Present Indicative, the Present Infinitive, the Perfect Indicative and the Supine. They are called the principal parts because all other parts of the verb are formed from them.

Examine the following:

	Pres. Indic.	Pres. Infin.	Pf. Indic.	Supine
1st Conj.	laudo	laudare	laudavi	laudatum
2nd Conj.	moneo	monēre	monui	monitum
3rd Conj.	duco	ducere	duxi	ductum
4th Conj.	munio	munire	munivi	munitum

The Conjugation of the verb is determined by the ending of the Present Infinitive: thus,

First Conjugation ends in are.

Second Conjugation ends ere (the e before re is long).

Third Conjugation ends in ere (the e before re is short).

Fourth Conjugation ends in ire.

The Second Conjugation is also distinguished from the Third by the fact that in the Second Conjugation the o is preceded by e.

In giving the principal parts the Present and Perfect Indicative are always in the First Person. See any verb in your vocabulary.

TABLE OF TENSES AND MOODS.

ACTIVE VOICE.

	laudo, laudare	laudavi	laudatum
Indic.	{ Pres. laudat	Perf. laudavit
	{ Imperf. laudabat
Subj.	{ Pres. laudet
	{ Imperf. laudaret	Plpf. laudavisset
Infin.	Pres. laudare	Pf. laudavisse	Fut. laudaturus esse

The Tenses are arranged underneath the principal part from which they are formed. The student should now make out the table of the other three conjugations, taking moneo, duco and munio as examples.

Translate into Latin:

1. That year the Suebi, the most warlike nation in Germany, drove the Usipetes out of their lands. Fearing that they would cross the Rhine; Cæsar at once led his army from Italy into Gaul. On arriving there<sup>1</sup> he discovered that they had already reached the bank of the river and were attempting to cross. To prevent their accomplishing this<sup>2</sup> he sent forward the cavalry without delay to attack<sup>3</sup> them (as they were<sup>4</sup>) encumbered<sup>5</sup> in the water.

<sup>5</sup>impeditus.

LESSON XLIX.

THE PERFECT INDICATIVE PASSIVE.

The Perfect Indicative Passive is formed by adding est for the Singular and sunt for the Plural to the Perfect Participle Passive.

Learn by heart the following Perfects Indicative Passive:

Singular	Plural
necatus est, he was killed	necati sunt, they were killed occisus est, he was killed	occisi sunt, they were killed missus est, he was sent dimissus est, he was sent away praemissus est, he was sent forward ductus est, he was led traductus est, he was led across expulsus est, he was driven out

The termination of the Perfect Participle must be changed to agree with the subject.

The queen was killed. Regina necata est.
 The queens were killed. Reginae necatae sunt.

Table of the Passive of laudare.

laudor (1st pers.) laudari		laudatus sum ( sum is the 1st pers. of est )
Indic.	{ Pres. laudatur	Perf. laudatus est
	{ Imperf. laudabatur
Subj.	{ Pres. laudetur	Plpf. laudatus esset
	{ Imperf. laudaretur
Infinitive Pres. laudari		Perf. laudatus esse

Translate into English:

1. Hostes, abjectis armis, terga verterunt magnusque eorum numerus est occisus. 2. Itaque dies circiter viginti in eo loco commoratus est,<sup>1</sup> quod Corus ventus navigationem impediēbat. 3. Legati a multis Galliae civitatibus ad Caesarem de pace missi sunt. 4. Opere effecto, exercitus Rhenum traductus est. 5. Decima legio sine mora emissa est. 6. Consilia hostium ab exploratoribus cognita sunt. 7. Teneteri ab Suebis agris expulsi sunt. 8. Ea hieme multae naves longae ab Romanis aedificatae sunt. 9. Commius Atrebas a Caesare in Britanniam praemissus est. 10. Dicunt Commium a Caesare in Britanniam praemissum<sup>2</sup> esse. 11. Tanta tempestas subito coorta est (arose) ut naves cursum tenere non possent. 12. Germani celeritate Caesaris adventus<sup>3</sup> perterriti statim ad eum legatos de pace miserunt. His<sup>4</sup> Caesar imperavit ut statim in Germaniam reverterentur et in Ubiorum finibus con-

siderent. Haec<sup>5</sup> legati suis renuntiaverunt. Interea<sup>6</sup> Caesar, eum vereretur ut Germani imperata sua facerent, bellum parare coepit.

<sup>6</sup>Interea is placed first because it too carries the mind back to the previous sentence. interea = meanwhile, that is, while the ambassadors were away announcing Caesar's orders to their compatriots.

Translate into Latin:

1. The Britons were frightened by the shape of the Roman ships. 2. The tenth legion was sent out to forage (supine). 3. Our cavalry was thrown into confusion by the Gallie horse. 4. The legions were taken across into Britain without their baggage. 5. The scout brought back word that our cavalry had been thrown into confusion by the Gallie horse. 6. The scouts brought back word that our cavalry had been thrown into confusion by the Gallie horse and had fled. 7. Envoys sent by the enemy came to Caesar to treat for peace. 8. Caesar exhorted (pf.) the soldiers to fight bravely. 9. The soldiers were exhorted<sup>1</sup> by Caesar to sustain the attack of the enemy. 10. On the completion of the German war (abl. absol.) Caesar returned to Italy. 11. Having sent the cavalry ahead to prevent<sup>2</sup> the Germans from crossing,<sup>3</sup> Caesar hastened with all his forces to the bank of the river. Alarmed by his sudden arrival, the Germans<sup>4</sup> burnt<sup>5</sup> their ships and fled to their own territory. They then<sup>6</sup> began to devastate their fields, that the Roman army, through lack of corn, might not be able to remain.

<sup>6</sup>Instead of saying "then," be more explicit and say, "when they arrived there." This will give you the word there with which to begin the sentence, and thus show the connection.

LESSON L.

ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

The Third Declension adjective takes the same termination as the noun of the Third Declension except that the Ablative Singular is usually i (instead of e) and the Genitive Plural ium (instead of um).

Omnis (all) is thus declined:

		Singular
		Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	omnis	omnis	omnis	omne
Gen.	omnis	omnis	omnis	omnis
Dat.	omni	omni	omni	omni
Acc.	omnem	omnem	omnem	omne
Abl.	omni	omni	omni	omni
		Plural
		Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	omnes	omnes	omnes	omnia
Gen.	omnium	omnium	omnium	omnium

venio, venire, veni, ventum	to come
pervenio, pervenire, -veni, -ventum	to arrive
convenio, convenire, etc.	to come together
invenio, invenire, etc.	to come upon, find

Translate into English:

1. Caesar in proelium sine scuto venerat. 2. Menapii sine metu trans Rhenum in suos vicos remigraverant. 3. Germani in fines Condrusiorum pervenerant. 4. Hostes castra vallo fossaque munierant. 5. Tencteri post fugam suorum se trans Rhenum in fines Sugambrorum receperant. 6. Caesar milites monuerat ut fortiter pugnarent. 7. Sugambri finibus suis excesserant suaque omnia exportaverant, seque in silvas abdidcrant. 8. Equestribus proeliis saepe ex equis desiliunt ac pedibus proeliantur. 9. Tencteri flumen transierunt atque, omnibus Menapiorum aedificiis occupatis, reliquam partem hiemis se eorum copiis aluerunt. 10. Caesar cum vereretur ne Germani bellum renovarent statim equites praemisit. Hi<sup>1</sup> millia quattuor passuum<sup>2</sup> progressi, cum hostes in collibus instructos conspexissent, statim

Translate into Latin:

1. On account of the departure of the Germans, the Menapii had moved back to their own villages. 2. The Germans had crossed the Rhine not far from the sea. 3. Caesar had warned the Germans not to cross into Gaul. 4. On account of the lack of corn Caesar had ended the war. 5. Because the winter was at hand the Romans had brought the war to a close. 6. Caesar had crossed the Rhine to help the Ubii. 7. Caesar had led his army across the Rhine for the purpose of overawing the Germans. 8. Caesar had waited five hours for the war-ships. 9. So great had been the storm that the ships could not hold their course. 10. Seventy-four<sup>1</sup> of<sup>2</sup> our cavalry are killed in that battle.<sup>3</sup> Piso Aquitanus, a man of aristocratic birth,<sup>4</sup> whose<sup>5</sup> grandfather had held the chief power in his own state, was among the slain.<sup>6</sup>

LESSON LI.

1. All Present Participles are declined like adjectives of the Third Declension.

Pugnans, fighting

Masc.		Singular		Neut.
		Fem.
Nom.	pugnans	pugnans		pugnans
Gen.	pugnantis	pugnantis		pugnantis

Dat.	pugnantibus	pugnantibus		pugnantibus
Acc.	pugnantes	pugnantes		pugnantia
Abl.	pugnantibus	pugnantibus		pugnantibus

2. The endings for the Present Participle of the four Conjugations are shown in the following list:

First Conjugation	pugnans, fighting
Second Conjugation	prohibens, preventing
Third Conjugation	petens, seeking
Fourth Conjugation	veniens, coming

N. B.—The Present Participle expresses the same time as the main verb, e.g., Fortissime pugnans interfectus est. He was killed while fighting very bravely.
 Here the Present Participle refers to the past because the main verb refers to the past.

Translate into English:

1. Caesar hostes flumen transeuntes<sup>1</sup> aggressus est.
2. Piso Aquitanus, vir generosus, pro castris pugnans interfectus est.
3. Nullo<sup>2</sup> hoste prohibente

Caesar flumen transiit. 4. Caesar ab hibernis in Italiam discedens legatis imperavit ut naves aedificarent. 5. Nostri Gallos audacissime flumen transire conantes multitudine telorum reppulerunt. 6. Interea<sup>3</sup> Germani Caesarem nondum perfidiam suam audiisse arbitrati ad eum in castra postridie omnibus cum principibus venerunt. Hos<sup>4</sup> cum sine mora comprehendi jussisset, Caesar omnes copias castris eduxit, equitatumque quod recenti proelio perterritum esse existimabat, agmen subsequi jussit.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar, fearing a rebellion<sup>1</sup> (on the part) of the Gauls, hastened from Italy with all his forces. 2. Standing on the walls, the women and children begged Caesar for peace. 3. Caesar passed through the province without hindrance from the enemy.<sup>2</sup> 4. Caesar attacked the Gauls (as they were) running down from the mountain into the valley. 5. The Gauls attacked Caesar (as he was) leading his men out of the woods. 6. When the German war was ended,<sup>3</sup> the Tencteri fled across the Rhine into the territory of the Sugambri and settled there. On learning this<sup>4</sup> Caesar made up his mind to cross the Rhine.

<sup>4</sup>Say, "when he learned which" (quod), and begin the sentence with quod to show the connection with the previous sentence.

LESSON LII.

THE GERUND

The Gerund is formed from the Present Participle by changing s into di: thus,

	Present Part.	Gerund
1st Conj.	conjurans	conjurandi
2nd Conj.	manens	manendi
3rd Conj.	mittens	mittendi
4th Conj.	muniens	muniendi

The Gerund is a verbal noun equal to the English verbal noun in ing. It has no Nominative and no Plural and is declined according to the Second Declension: thus,

Nom.	(wanting)
Gen.	conjurandi
Dat.	conjurando
Acc.	conjurandum
Abl.	conjurando

The Gerund translates the English verbal noun in ing when the latter is the object of a preposition: thus,

The reason of conspiring was this. Causa conjurandi fuit haec.

VOCABULARY.

duco, ducere, duxi, ductum	to lead
produco, producere, produxi, productum	to lead forth
educō, educere, eduxi, eductum	to lead out traduco, traducere, traduxi, traductum	to lead across reduco, reducere, reduxi, reductum	to lead back induco, inducere, induxi, inductum	to lead on

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Suebi centum milia armatorum bellandi causa<sup>1</sup> ex finibus quotannis educunt.
2. Magna pars equitatus praedandi causa Mosam transierat.
3. Tempestas erat idonea<sup>2</sup> ad navigandum.
4. Classis erat parata<sup>2</sup> ad navigandum.
5. Cum finem oppugnandi nox fecisset, Remi legatos de pace ad Caesarem miserunt.
6. Hostes, ubi nostros in locum iniquum pugnandi causa non progredi viderunt, domum redire constituerunt.
7. Summa erat difficultas navigandi.
8. Spes praedandi studiumque bellandi Gallos ab agricultura revocabant.
9. Quotidie Sabinus, productis copiis, pugnandi potestatem fecit.
10. Ad celeritatem onerandi naves facit humiles.
11. Equites hostium acriter pugnaverunt tamen ut<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup>For the purpose of; used as a preposition and governing the Genitive, and when so used always follows the word which it governs.

<sup>5</sup>Notice that Caesar begins with "in that winter which followed," because the word "followed" carries the mind back to the events previously related, thus indicating the connection as usual.

<sup>6</sup>transeundi is the connecting word here. The connecting word is not always the very first word. As long as it is embodied in the first phrase, the connection is sufficiently clear.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar gave the captives an opportunity of departing. 2. Caesar set out from Italy with all his forces for the purpose of waging war.<sup>1</sup> 3. Caesar said that the Gauls were desirous<sup>2</sup> of making war. 4. Labienus sent word to Caesar that the ships were ready for sailing. 5. The cavalry of the enemy fought so (tam) fiercely that they threw<sup>3</sup> (pf.) our men into confusion. 6. Caesar said that he would take<sup>4</sup> a day for deliberating. 7. When Caesar was setting out for Italy, he sent Servius Galba into the territory of the Veragri with the tenth legion and part of the cavalry. The reason<sup>5</sup> for sending<sup>6</sup> him (eum) was this (haec).

LESSON LIII.

THE GERUNDIVE.

1. The Gerundive is a verbal adjective and is formed from the Gerund by changing the termination into us for the Masculine, a for the Feminine, um for the Neuter. Thus from the Gerund muniendi is formed the Gerundive muniendus, which is declined as follows:

	Singular
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	muniendus	munienda	muniendum
Gen.	muniendi	muniendae	muniendi
Dat.	muniendo	muniendae	muniendo
Acc.	muniendum	muniendam	muniendum
Abl.	muniendo	munienda	muniendo

	Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	muniendi	muniendae	munienda
Gen.	muniendorum	muniendarum	muniendorum
Dat.	muniendis	muniendis	muniendis
Acc.	muniendos	muniendas	munienda
Abl.	muniendis	muniendis	muniendis

2. The Gerundive, like the Gerund, translates the English verbal noun in ing, but the Gerundive is only to be used when the English verbal noun has an object after it: thus:

The reason for sending was this. Causa mittendi erat haec (gerund).

But,

The reason for sending the legion was this. Causa legionis mittendae erat haec (gerundive).

Observe that the Gerundive and the object of the English verbal noun in ing must always be the same Gender, Number and Case, and the Case is always the Case which you would use for the English verbal noun in ing.

Another example:

The enemy crossed the river for the purpose of attacking the city. Hostes urbis oppugnandae causa flumen transierunt.

(a) The verbal noun (namely, "attacking") must be translated by the Gerundive (and not the Gerund), because it is followed by an object (namely, "city").

(b) Both "attacking" and "city" are to be in the same Gender, Number, and Case, when put into Latin.

(c) That Case is the Genitive because the preposition causa (for the purpose of) governs the Genitive, and the Number is Singular because "city" is Singular, and the Gender is Feminine because "city" is Feminine.

Another example:

The soldiers were ready for attacking the villages. Milites erant parati ad vicos oppugnandos.

(a) The English verbal noun (namely, "attacking") is translated by the Gerundive.

(b) Both "attacking" and "villages" are to be in the same Gender, Number, and Case when put into Latin, and

(c) The Case this time is Accusative because the preposition ad governs the Accusative, and the Number is Plural because "villages" is Plural, and the Gender is Masculine because "villages" is Masculine.

Translate into Latin:

1. Labienus sent out the cavalry for the purpose of<sup>1</sup> devastating the fields of the Gauls. 2. Caesar sent out the tenth legion to attack the town.<sup>2</sup> 3. Labienus stays in Gaul for the purpose of (ad) collecting ships. 4. The difficulty of fortifying the place was very great. 5. Caesar advanced into the front rank for the purpose of exhorting the soldiers. 6. Caesar left the camp to exhort the tenth legion.<sup>3</sup> 7. Labienus set out from the camp in pursuit of Dumnorix. 8. Orgetorix<sup>4</sup> was by far the most influential<sup>5</sup> man amongst the Helvetii. Induced by a desire for supreme power he formed a conspiracy with the nobility<sup>6</sup> and persuaded the state to make war<sup>7</sup> on the Romans.

<sup>4</sup>Arrange the sentence so as to have Orgetorix last; then begin the next sentence with "he" (is), and in this way the connection of the two sentences will be brought out.

LESSON LIV.

1. Another use of the Gerundive is to translate the English "must" or "ought."

When thus used, it is joined to the verb "to be," and its meaning is always Passive, even with Deponent verbs: thus,

The soldiers must be recalled from the work. Milites ab opere revocandi sunt.

2. Observe that the English in the above sentence expresses present time. If the time is past, the English uses some such expression as:

The soldiers had to be recalled from the work.

The Latin expresses the past time here by simply changing sunt to erant: thus,

Milites ab opere revocandi erant.

3. If such a sentence as the above has to be put into the Accusative and Infinitive construction, the verb "to be" will, of course, be changed to the Infinitive Mood, milites would be Accusative, and revocandi would become revocandos to agree with it.

4. The person by whom a thing is to be done is expressed by the Dative instead of a with the Ablative.

Conjugation of Esse, to be sum	esse	fui	Supins (wanting)

Indic.	{ Pres. est (pl., sunt )		Pf. fuit
	{ Impf. erat		Plpf. fuerat
Subj.	{ Pres. sit		Pf. fuerit
	{ Impf. esset		Plpf. fuisset
Infin. Pres.	esse		Pf. fuisset	Fut. futurus,
				[-a, -um esse
Part. Pres.	(wanting)		Pf. (wanting)	Fut. futurus,
				[-a, -um

Translate into idiomatic English:

1. Legati ad Caesarem statim mittendi sunt. 2. Castra militibus sine mora munienda sunt. 3. Carthago delenda est. 4. Caesari omnia uno tempore erant agenda. 5. Vexillum proponendum erat. 6. Signum tuba dandum erat. 7. Acies instruenda erat. 8. Milites cohortandi erant. 9. Cato dicebat Carthaginem esse delendam. 10. Labienus dixit legatos ad se Ariovisto mittendos esse. 11. Nuntii dicunt omnem esse in armis Galliam; Germanos Rhenum transiisse; auxilium statim esse mittendum. 12. Germanico bello confecto Caesar in Britanniam transire constituit, quod omnibus fere Gallieis bellis inde subministrata auxilia intellegebat. Itaque<sup>1</sup> ad insulam explorandam Gaium Volusenum cum navi longa praemittit. Ipse<sup>2</sup> cum omnibus copiis in Morinos contendit quod inde erat brevissimus in Britanniam trajectus. Huc<sup>3</sup> naves undique ex finitimis regionibus jubet convenire.

<sup>3</sup>huc (hither) shows the connection because it refers to the territory of the Morini mentioned in the previous sentence.

Translate into Latin:

1. The city must be attacked immediately. 2. The camp of the enemy must be attacked immediately,<sup>1</sup> said Labienus. 3. Caesar made up his mind that he<sup>2</sup> ought to cross<sup>3</sup> the Rhine. 4. Our men did not

<sup>3</sup>If the English verb with "must" or "ought" is in the Active Voice, the sentence must be changed into the Passive before translating it into Latin, thus:

Caesar ought to send out the cavalry.

The cavalry ought to be sent out by Caesar (equitatus Caesari emittendus est).

give the enemy a opportunity of jumping down from their chariots. 5. They said that the time for deliberating<sup>4</sup> was short. 6. The villages of the Gauls must be burned and their fields laid waste. 7. Caesar said that Dumnorix must be coerced. 8. The camp must be moved at daybreak. 9. The Romans crossed the Rhine for the purpose of waging war with<sup>5</sup> the Germans. 10. Then he persuades a Gaul with great rewards to carry a letter to Cicero. He sends it<sup>6</sup> written in Greek characters so that, if the letter should be intercepted,<sup>7</sup> our plans may not be discovered by the enemy.

LESSON LV.

DEPENDENT QUESTIONS.

Learn by heart the following interrogatives:

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	quis	quae	quid	} who, which, or what? (pron.)
Acc.	quem	quam	quid

Nom. quales	quales	qualia
Acc. quales	quales	qualia

“How great is the island?” is a direct question. Caesar was not able to discover how great the island was.

“How great the island was,” is a dependent question, and is translated into Latin thus:

Caesar reperire non poterat quanta esset insula.

A dependent question must begin with an interrogative, and the verb must always be Subjunctive Mood.

Conjugation of Posse, to be able

possum	posse	potui
Indic.	Pres. potest	Pf. potuit
	Impf. poterat	Plpf. potuerat
Subj.	Pres. possit	Pf. potuerit
	Impf. posset	Plpf. potuisset
Infin. Pres.	posse	Pf. potuisse

Translate into English:

1. Itaque vocatis ad se undique mercatoribus, neque quanta esset insulae magnitudo, neque quantae nationes incolerent reperire poterat. 2. Interim legatis tribunisque militum convocatis, quae ex Voluseno cognovisset, ostendit. 3. Caesar intellegebat quae res Indutiomarum ab instituto consilio deterreret. 4. Galli mereatores in oppidis circumstant et quid audierint quaerunt. 5. Cum ab Remis quaereret quae civitates quantaque in armis essent et quid in bello possent sic reperiebat. 6. Caesar Labienum in continente reliquit ut quae in Gallia gererentur cognosceret. 7. Omnibus rebus ad navigandum constitutis tertia fere vigilia naves solvit,<sup>1</sup> et hora circiter quarta cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit. Reliquae<sup>2</sup> naves cum nondum in conspectu essent, ad horam nonam in ancoris expectare constituit. Interim legatis tribunisque militum convocatis, quae facienda essent<sup>3</sup> ostendit, monuitque ut ad nutum et ad tempus omnes res ab iis administrarentur. His dimissis, et ventum et aestum uno tempore nactus secundum, dato signo et sublatis ancoris, circiter milia passuum<sup>4</sup> septem ab eo loco progressus in aperto ac plano litore naves constituit.<sup>5</sup>

<sup>5</sup>Stationed.

Translate into Latin:

1. Labienus was left on the continent to find out what states were conspiring against the Roman people.
2. Caesar learnt from captives where the enemy were.
3. The captives told Caesar how many states were in arms.
4. The ambassadors informed Labienus how many states had crossed the Rhine.
5. Caesar learnt from Volusenus what was being done in Britain.
6. Caesar learned from captives what the character (qualis) of Ambiorix was.
7. Caesar was unable to discover the size of the island.<sup>1</sup>
8. The general discovered the position of the harbours.<sup>1</sup>
9. Merchants told Caesar what the nature (qualis) of the island was.
10. So great was the valour of the soldiers that not even<sup>2</sup> the wounded left the battle.
11. Caesar's unexpected appearance on the banks of the Rhine terrified the Germans.

LESSON LVI.

THE RELATIVE PRONOUN.

qui, quae, quod, who, which, what

		Singular
Masc.		Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	qui	quae	quod
Gen.	eius	eius	eius
Dat.	cui	eui	eui
Acc.	quem	quam	quod
Abl.	quo	qua	quo
		Plural
Masc.		Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	qui	quae	quae
Gen.	quorum	quarum	quorum
Dat.	quibus	quibus	quibus
Acc.	quos	quas	quae
Abl.	quibus	quibus	quibus

1. The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in Gender, Number, and Person, but not in Case. The Case of the relative depends on the construction of its own clause. Sometimes it is the subject of the verb, sometimes the object of the verb, and sometimes the object of a preposition: thus,

(a) Germani Menapios oppresserunt qui trans Rhenum in suos vicos remigraverant. The Germans surprised the Menapii who had moved back to their villages across the Rhine.

(b) Milites quos Caesar in castris reliquerat omnes interfecti sunt. The soldiers whom Caesar had left in the camp were all slain.

(c) Agri, per quos exercitus Romanus iter faciebat, ab hostibus vastati erant. The fields, through which the Roman army was marching, had been devastated by the enemy.

(d) Legati, qui ad Caesarem venerant, ita dixerunt. The ambassadors who had come to Caesar spoke as follows.

2. In (a) the antecedent, Menapios, is Accusative, and the relative is Nominative, being the subject of remigraverant.

In (b) the antecedent, milites, is Nominative, while the relative is Accusative, governed by reliquerat.

In (c) the antecedent, agri, is Nominative, while the relative is Accusative governed by per.

In (d) the relative is Nominative, because it is the subject of venerant, not because the antecedent is Nominative.

Observe, however, that in every example the relative agrees with its antecedent in Gender, Number and Person.

Table of the verb Facere, to do or make.

ACTIVE VOICE

	facio	facere	fecit	factum
Indic.	{ Pres. facit ( pl. , faci-		Pf. fecit

Indic.	{ Pres. fit ( pl. , fiunt)		Pf. factus est

Infin. Pres.	fieri		Pf. factus esse
Part. Pres.	(wanting)		Pf. factus
Gerundive	faciendus, -a, -um

Facera is a verb of the Third Conjugation, but it has several tenses like the Fourth, and in the Passive Voice the tenses in the first column are Active in form.

Translate into English, accounting for the Gender, Number and Case of each relative:

1. Reliqui, qui domi manserunt, agros colunt. 2. Equestribus proeliis saepe ex equis desiliunt ac pedibus proeliantur, equosque eodem remanere vestigio assuefecerunt, ad quos se celeriter, cum usus est, recipiunt. 3. Menapii tantae multitudinis adventu perterriti, ex iis (those) aedificiis, quae trans flumen habuerant, demigraverunt. 4. Germani in fines Condrusiorum, qui sunt Treverorum clientes, pervenerant. 5. Ii (those), qui frumentandi causa ierant trans Mosam, nondum redicrant. 6. Caesar iis (to those), quos in castris retinuerat, discedendi potestatem fecit. 7. Omnes, qui arma ferre poterant, in unum locum convenerunt. 8. In Britanniam mittit Commium qui regnum in his (these) regionibus obtinebat et quem sibi fidelem esse arbitrabatur. 9. Ipse idoneam tempestatem nactus paulo post mediam noctem naves solvit, quae omnes incolumes ad continentem pervenerunt. 10. At Q. Titurius et L. Cotta legati, qui in Menapiorum fines legiones duxerant, omnibus eorum agris vastatis, frumentis succisis, aedificiis incensis, quod Menapii se omnes in densissimas silvas abdiderant, se ad Caesarem receperunt.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar commands (impero) the Senones, who were adjacent<sup>1</sup> to the Belgae, to send hostages to him.
2. Iccius Remus, who was in command of the town at that time, sent a messenger to Caesar.
3. After burning the villages which they were able to approach (adire & acc.) they hastened with all their forces against the camp of Caesar. 4. Leaving in the camp the two legions which he had last enrolled, Caesar led the remaining six against the enemy. 5. All who were able to bear arms were put to death. 6. He himself determined to pass the winter in the village of the Venagri which is called Octodurus. 7. The tenth legion, which Caesar had sent out to forage, returned at daybreak. 8. Brutus, who was in command of the fleet, did not know what to do.<sup>2</sup> 9. The Morini, against whom Caesar had sent out the cavalry, had hidden themselves by night in the woods. 10. On his arrival Caesar found his suspicions verified.<sup>3</sup> 11. In the fall of the year Caesar returned to Italy to keep an eye on events at the Capitol.<sup>4</sup>

LESSON LVII.

THE RELATIVE (continued).

1. After a verb of motion the relative may be used with the Subjunctive instead of ut to express purpose: thus,

Galli ad Caesarem miserunt legatos qui pacem peterent. The Gauls sent ambassadors to Caesar who were to ask for peace.

2. The relative has its verb in the Subjunctive Mood, if it depends on a clause which is in the Accusative and Infinitive construction: thus,

Dumnorix affirmavit Caesarem legatos, qui essent in castris, necaturum. Dumnorix asserted that Caesar intended to kill the ambassadors who were in the camp.

Table of the verb Fero.

fero,	ferre,	tuli,	latum
	ferat	tuleram
	fererat	tulerim
	ferret	tulisset
	ferre	tulisse	laturus esse
	ferens		laturus, -a, -um ferendi

The Imperfect Subjunctive is most easily formed by adding t to the Present Infinitive.

Translate into English:

1. Germani responderunt in terris esse neminem,<sup>1</sup> quem non superare possent. 2. Caesar dixit nullos in Gallia vacare agros, qui dari tantae praesertim<sup>2</sup> multitudini sine injuria possent. 3. Caesar nuntium misit qui consilia Labieno nuntiaret. 4. Ad Germanos Caesar nuntios misit, qui obsides postulerent. 5. Ad quos<sup>3</sup> Caesar nuntios misit, qui obsides postulerent. 6. Ad quos Caesar nuntios misit, qui postulerent ut sibi obsides darent. 7. Ad quos Caesar nuntios misit, qui postulerent ut eos, qui sibi Galliaeque bellum intulissent, sibi dederent. 8. Ad quos cum Caesar nuntios misisset, eos,<sup>4</sup> qui sibi Galliaeque bellum intulissent, sibi dederent, responderunt Populi Romani imperium Rhenum finire.

<sup>4</sup>ut is often omitted.

Translate into Latin:

1. The scout brought back word that all who were able to bear arms had assembled into one place. 2. Caesar sent forward scouts to investigate the matter. 3. Caesar sent forward scouts to choose a place for a camp.<sup>1</sup> 4. The enemy sent ambassadors to Caesar to ask for aid.<sup>1</sup> 5. The messenger said that the Menapii had departed from the villages which they had across the Rhine. 6. The scout reported that the enemy's cavalry which had gone across the Meuse to forage had not yet<sup>2</sup> returned. 7. The ambassadors said that the Roman soldiers had burnt all the villages which they were able to approach (adire). 8. There was a report that all who were able to bear arms had been put to death.

LESSON LVIII.

PRAEFICIO, INFERO, AND IMPERO.

1. Praeficio (I place in command of) takes the Accusative of the person placed in command, and the Dative of the thing over which he is placed in command: thus,

Caesar Labienum oppido praeficit. Caesar places Labienus in command of the town.

2. Infero bellum (I make war upon) takes a Dative of the person upon whom war is made: thus,
Galli Populo Romano bellum intulerunt. The Gauls made war on the Roman people.

3. Impero (in the sense of "I demand") takes an Accusative of the thing demanded and a Dative of the person from whom the thing is demanded: thus,

Caesar obsides civitati imperat. Caesar demands hostages from the state.

Table of the verb Infero.

	infero	inferre		intuli	illatum
Indic.	{ Pres. infert (pl., infer-		Pf. intulit
	{ Impf. inferebat	[ unt )]	Plpf. intuierat
Subj.	{ Pres. inferat		Pf. intulerit
	{ Impf. inferret		Plpf. intulisset		Fut.
Infin. Pres.	inferre		Pf. intulisse		illaturus
Part. Pres.	inferens		Pf. (wanting)		esse
Gerund.	inferendi				illaturus

Translate into English:

1. Legati responderunt Germanos non priores populo Romano bellum inferre. 2. Caesar a Germanis postulavit ut eos, qui Galliae bellum intulissent, sibi dedrent. 3. Quod ubi Caesar comperit, Rhenum exercitum traducere constituit ut Germanis metum injiceret.<sup>1</sup> 4. Caesar obsides, quos Britannis imperaverat, in continentem adduci jussit. 5. Caesar legatis imperat, quos legionibus praefecerat, ut naves quam plurimas hieme aedificarent. 6. Iose in Illyricum proficiscitur, quod a Pirustis finitimam partem provinciae incursionibus vastari audiebat. Eo<sup>2</sup> cum venisset, civitatibus milites imperat certumque in locum convenire jubet. Qua re<sup>3</sup> nuntiata Pirustae legatos ad eum mittunt, qui doceant sese paratos esse omnibus rationibus de injuriis satisfacere.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar determined to make war on the Germans. 2. When he came to the province he demanded hostages from all the states. 3. Caesar placed Labienus in charge of the fortifications which he had made.

4. Having appointed Labienus to the command of the legions, Caesar returned to Italy. 5. When the Gauls had determined to make war on the Roman people they sent messengers to Britain to ask for help. 6. Having overawed<sup>1</sup> the Germans, Caesar led his army back across the Rhine. 7. Placing a lieutenant in charge of the ships, Caesar returned to the camp. On arriving there<sup>2</sup> he found that the Britons had mobilized their forces and were making preparations for war.

LESSON LIX.

THE IMPERSONAL CONSTRUCTION.

1. In English, if a verb is intransitive it cannot be used in the Passive Voice, but in Latin an intransitive verb may be used in the Passive if it is used impersonally. Thus, instead of saying,

Milites acriter pugnaverunt, The soldiers fought fiercely, a common construction is,

A militibus acriter pugnatum est, It was fought fiercely by the soldiers.

2. Only those verbs which govern the Accusative Case are transitive in Latin; therefore, if it is necessary to use the Passive of a verb that governs the Dative, the impersonal construction must be used: thus,

The ambassadors were persuaded to come, must be turned into,

It was persuaded to the ambassadors to come. Per-suasum est legatis ut venirent.

3. The following verbs govern the Dative and therefore must never be used in the Passive Voice except impersonally:

- (a) persuadeo persuadere to persuade
 (b) noceo nocere to injure
 (c) ignosco ignoscere to pardon
 (d) parco parcere to spare
 (e) impero imperare to command (a person)

Instead of saying:
 The ships are injured.
 The Gauls were pardoned.
 The Gauls were persuaded.

Say:
 It is injured to the ships. Navibus nocetur.
 It was pardoned to the Gauls. Gallis ignotum est.
 It was persuaded to the Gauls. Gallis persuasum est.

- Simul atque de Caesaris legionum-que adventu<sup>1</sup> cognitum est, Cingetorix ad eum venit.
- Exploratores, ut<sup>2</sup> erat imperatum, circumstant hominem atque interficiunt.
- Accessum est<sup>4</sup> ad Britanniam omnibus navibus prima luce neque in eo loco hostis est visus.

Translate into Latin:

1. The Gauls begged that they might be pardoned.
2. On account of the indiscretion of the common people the state was pardoned by Caesar.
3. A report was brought<sup>1</sup> to Caesar that the Gauls had again entered upon hostilities.
4. Caesar was told<sup>1</sup> that the cavalry of the enemy had crossed the river.
5. It was evident that our cavalry was not able to sustain the attack of the enemy.
6. There a fierce battle took place.
7. It was not possible<sup>2</sup> to persuade the cavalry to sustain the attack of the enemy.
8. The Nervii persuaded their neighbours to make war

on the Roman people. 9. As<sup>3</sup> our soldiers were wavering,<sup>4</sup> the standard-bearer of the tenth legion threw himself from the ship and began to carry the standard against the enemy. Then our men, exhorting one another<sup>5</sup> to follow without delay, jumped overboard<sup>6</sup> in a body.<sup>7</sup>

LESSON LX.

1. It has been said that an intransitive verb, if used in the Passive Voice, must be used impersonally. It follows that the Gerundive of intransitive verbs must always be used impersonally, because the Gerundive is always Passive Voice.

They had to jump down from the ships, must be changed to,

It had to be jumped from the ships. De navibus desiliendum erat.

jubeor	juberi	jussus sum

Hoc facto proelio Caesar neque jam sibi legatos audiendos neque condiciones accipiendas arbitrabatur ab iis, qui per dolum atque insidias, petita pace, ultro bellum intulissent.<sup>2</sup> 5. <sup>1</sup>In the Gerundive construction the person by whom the thing has to be done is in the Dative.   <sup>2</sup>Why Subjunctive?

<sup>3</sup>The meaning of the sentence as a whole shows that this is not the Dative of the person by whom the thing is to be done.

<sup>2</sup>ille, when used to introduce a period, indicates that the subject is different from the subject of the previous sentence. Menapii is the subject of the previous sentence, illi shows that 'the Germans' is the subject of this clause.

in castris retinuerat, discedendi potestatem fecit. Illi supplicia cruciatusque Gallorum veriti, quorum agros vexaverant, remanere se apud eum velle dixerunt. His<sup>3</sup> Caesar libertatem concessit. 4. Caesar et Hannibal erant duo imperatores magni; hunc<sup>4</sup> Romani oderant, illum<sup>5</sup> admirati sunt.

<sup>4</sup>When a contrast is to be brought out, hic always refers to the nearest, in this case Hannibal; ille to what is more remote, in this case Caesar. Hic is therefore equal to the latter, and ille to the former.

Translate into Latin:

<sup>8</sup>Say, "then the battle being fought, they sent him back." It is not necessary to say they lost the battle. This idea has been clearly brought out in the beginning of the passage.

<sup>9</sup>The him at the head of the sentence will do for all.

LESSON LXII.

CONSTRUCTION OF Cum.

1. Cum, meaning since or although, takes the Subjunctive without exception.

2. Cum, meaning when, generally takes the Subjunctive, if the Tense is Imperfect or Pluperfect, but if the action is described as happening an indefinite number of times in the past, cum is used with the Pluperfect Indicative, and the principal verb will then be Imperfect Indicative: thus,

(a) Cum urbem cepisset, mulieres liberosque trucidavit. When he took the city, he killed the women and children.

(b) Cum urbem ceperat, mulieres liberosque trucidabat. When he took a city, he used to kill the women and children.

In (a) the action of taking the city and killing the women and children happened only once, in (b) it happened an indefinite number of times.

Quod cum animadvertisset<sup>2</sup> Caesar, scaphas longarum navium item speculatoria navigia militibus compleri jussit, et, quos laborantes conspexerant,<sup>3</sup> his subsidia submittebat.

<sup>1</sup>Observe that the action described happened an indefinite number of times, and so we have the subordinate verb conspexerant in the Pluperfect Indicative, while the main verbs are all in the Imperfect Indicative, namely, adoriebantur, circumstebant and conjiciebant.

<sup>3</sup>Here again we have the Pluperfect Indicative in the subordinate clause and the Imperfect Indicative (submittebat) in the main clause, because again the action is represented as happening over and over again. Observe that the relative quos takes the place of cum, because "whomsoever he saw (from time to time) in difficulties, to these he kept sending reinforcements," is the same as "when he saw (from time to time) any in difficulties, to these he kept sending reinforcements."

<sup>8</sup>Use que for "and." When two clauses are joined by que they are of the same nature, and therefore there will be no need to express "because" again.

LESSON LXIII.

CONSTRUCTION OF Dum AND Priusquam.

1. Dum (while) takes the Present Indicative when the meaning is that while one action was going on, another action took place or was taking place.

Dum ea Romani parant, jam Saguntum oppugnabatur. While the Romans were making these preparations, Saguntum was already being besieged.

2. Dum (until) takes the Subjunctive if a purpose is implied.

Dum naves convenirent, expectavit. He waited until the ships should assemble.

Subjunctive with dum because he waited for a certain purpose, namely, in order to give the ships time to assemble.

3. Priusquam (before) takes the Subjunctive if there is an end (purpose) in view or an end prevented.

Priusquam consilium cognoscerent, exercitum traduxit. Before they could learn his intention, he led his army across.

Subjunctive with priusquam because his purpose was to keep them in the dark with regard to his plan until he led his army over.

4. If dum (until) and priusquam (before) do not signify a purpose, they will take the Indicative.

In proelio mansit dum pater interfectus est. He remained in the battle till his father was killed.

This does not mean that he remained in the battle for the purpose of seeing his father killed. If it did, dum would have the Subjunctive.

5. Priusquam pugnaretur, nox intervenit.—Night came on before the battle was fought.

This means that the battle was not fought; i.e., the end (viz., the battle) was prevented.

N. B.—The Past Tense for a Subjunctive of purpose is the Imperfect.

Translate into English:

1. His interfectis navibusque eorum occupatis, priusquam ea pars Menapiorum, quae citra Rhenum erat, quid ageretur,<sup>1</sup> sentiret, flumen transierunt atque omnibus eorum aedificiis occupatis reliquam partem hiemis se eorum copiis aluerunt. 2. Ad haec cognoscenda, priusquam periculum faceret,<sup>2</sup> idoneum esse arbitratus C. Volusenum eum navi longa praemittit. 3. Dum in his locis Caesar navium parandarum causa moratur, ex magna parte Morinorum ad eum legati venerunt. 4. Dum Romani tempus terunt legationibus mittendis, Hannibal paucorum militibus dierum<sup>3</sup> quietem dedit. 5. Caesar non expectandum<sup>4</sup> sibi statuit, dum omnibus fortunis sociorum consumptis in Santones Helvetii pervenirent.

<sup>4</sup>What is the subject of this verb?

Translate into Latin:

1. Making a hasty march of eight miles he arrived at the camp of the Germans before they could receive intelligence of his movements. 2. Caesar de-terminated to wait till the soldiers, whom he had demanded from the province, got time to assemble. 3. Caesar resolved to lead his army into Gaul before any more states should enter into the conspiracy. 4. The enemy beat a retreat and did not cease their flight till they reached the Rhine. 5. Whilst he was making these preparations he sent Fabius into Spain. 6. There is a river called<sup>1</sup> the Arar which flows through the territory of the Aedui and the Sequani, and empties<sup>2</sup> itself into the Rhine. Its<sup>3</sup> current is so smooth that the eye cannot tell<sup>4</sup> in which<sup>5</sup> direction it flows.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>3</sup>No need for a new sentence. Continue the previous sentence thus: "With extraordinary smoothness (incredibili lenitate), so that (ita ut)," etc. Latin, as a rule, prefers one continuous sentence, rather than a number of short sentences.

LESSON LXIV.

THE CONDITIONAL SENTENCE.

1. Examine the following conditional sentences:
  - (a) If he comes (to-morrow), he will be put to death (to-morrow).
  - (b) If he should come (to-morrow), he would be put to death (to-morrow).
  - (c) If he were present (now), he would be put to death (now).
  - (d) If he had been present (yesterday), he would have been put to death (yesterday).

In (a) both clauses are future in meaning, therefore translate both clauses by the Future Indicative in Latin: thus, Si veniet, interficietur.

In (b) both clauses are again future in meaning, but the future is not so vividly expressed. Translate into Latin by the Present Subjunctive. Si veniat, interficiatur.

N. B.—We have already had the Present Subjunctive translating futurity after verbs of fearing and in clauses of purpose with ut. See Lessons XI. and XXXVIII.

In (c) we are expressing something which is contrary to fact in present time. Translate by Imperfect Subjunctive in both clauses.

If he were present (but he is not), he would be put to death. Si adesset, interficeretur.

In (d) we are expressing something which is contrary to fact in past time. Translate by the Pluperfect Subjunctive.

If he had been present (but he was not), he would have been put to death. Si adfuisset, interfectus esset.

2. If both clauses of the conditional sentence are neither future as in (a) and (b), nor contrary to fact as in (c) and (d), translate the English into Latin literally.

Examine the following conditional sentences, and observe that none of them can be referred to (a), (b), (c), or (d).

(e) Si tot exempla virtutis eum non movent, nihil umquam movebit. If so many examples of virtue do not influence him, nothing will ever influence him.

Observe that only one of the clauses is future, and that the Latin is literal.

(f) If he comes he ought to be put to death. Si veniet, interfici debet.

Again the translation is literal, when it is observed that "comes" means "shall come."

Translate into English:

1. Si hostes se dedant, Caesar oppidum conservet.
2. Si hostes se dedidissent, Caesar oppidum conservavisset.
3. Si Cacsar adesset, hostes non tam fortes essent.
4. Si oppidani arma tradidissent, non interfecti essent.

Translate into Latin:

1. If Caesar had permitted him, Dumnorix would have remained in Gaul.
2. If Caesar should cross the Rhine, the Germans would take to flight.
3. If Cacsar had crossed the Rhine, the Germans would have taken to flight.
4. If Caesar were present, the enemy would not await our attack.
5. If Caesar had been present in Gaul, the Germans would not have crossed the Rhine.
6. If Caesar has been created consul, I do not think that Crassus will remain in the city.
7. If the townsmen take up arms, they ought all to be put to death.
8. If Lycurgus should rise from the grave,<sup>1</sup> he would say this.
9. If Lycurgus were living he would say this.
10. The battle, had the Romans lost it, would have occasioned the annihilation of the Roman army.

LESSON LXV.

INDIRECT NARRATION.

(Oratio Obliqua.)

1. It has already been said that the Accusative and Infinitive construction is used after verbs of speaking: thus,

The Germans replied that they had come unwillingly. Germani responderunt se invitos venisse.

This is called indirect narration. In direct narration the exact words of the speaker are quoted.

"We have come unwillingly," replied the Germans, is direct narration. Before translating into Latin we must turn this into,

The Germans replied that they had come unwillingly, always using the Accusative and Infinitive construction to translate the noun clause introduced by the conjunction "that."

2. It has also been said that if a relative clause depends on the Accusative and Infinitive construction it will have its verb in the Subjunctive: thus,

Dumnorix affirmavit Caesarem legatos, qui essent in castris, necaturum. Dumnorix asserted that Caesar would kill the ambassadors who were in the camp.

3. (a) Besides the relative clause, all other clauses which are subordinate to the clause in the Accusative and Infinitive construction will have their verb in the Subjunctive.

Dumnorix replied that he would not cross over to Britain because he feared the sea. Dumnorix respondit se non in Britanniam transiturum quod mare timeret.

(b) Caesar said that Dumnorix would pay the penalty if he came. Caesar dixit Dumnorigem, si veniret, poenam daturum.

N. B.—The only Moods regularly used in indirect narration are the Infinitive and the Subjunctive.

Translate into English:

<sup>1</sup>Give the English both in the direct form and in the indirect. Begin the direct form thus: "In accordance with my usual clemency, rather than because of any merit of yours, I will spare your town, if, before the battering-ram shall have touched the wall, you (shall) have surrendered," etc., etc.

<sup>3</sup>Direct = "I shall do that which I have done in the case of the Nervii and shall order your neighbours," etc., etc.

Translate into Latin:

1. Dumnorix replied that if Caesar permitted him he would come to him. 2. Caesar learnt from the Ubii that the Suebi, after they had heard that a bridge was being built, had called a council,<sup>1</sup> and had dispatched messengers in all directions, to order all who were able to bear arms to assemble in one place. 3. When Caesar was in Italy he received news<sup>2</sup> to the effect<sup>3</sup> that all the Belgae were forming a league against the Roman people and were giving hostages to one another<sup>4</sup> because they feared that, as all Gaul was brought to subjection,<sup>5</sup> the Roman army would be led against them.

LESSON LXVI.

1. Two Moods only, as a rule, are found in the indirect narration, the Infinitive and the Subjunctive. All those sentences which were principal statements in the direct narration have their verbs in the Infinitive Mood, while questions, exhortations, commands, and subordinate clauses of all kinds have their verbs in the Subjunctive. Rhetorical questions (being questions in form only, and statements in reality) have the Infinitive in indirect narration, unless the question of the direct narration were Second Person, in which case the verb is in the Subjunctive. Of course, any question, no matter what the person was in the direct narration, will have the Subjunctive in indirect narration if it depends directly upon a verb of asking, because in that case it is an ordinary dependent question. See Lesson LV.

Translate into English:

1. Cicero ad haec unum modo respondit: non esse<sup>1</sup> consuetudinem populi Romani accipere ab hoste armato conditionem; si ab armis discedere velint,<sup>2</sup> se adiutore utantur,<sup>3</sup> legatosque ad Caesarem mittant;<sup>3</sup>

<sup>6</sup>Supply esse, making the Future Infinitive. The construction is then the Accusative and Infinitive, the Accusative eos (they) not being expressed. This Accusative and Infinitive depends on the verb sperare. "Cicero answered that he hoped that they would obtain what they asked." It is possible to have any number of sentences in the Accusative and Infinitive construction, provided that each clause has a verb of speaking followed by a statement. Thus, "The messenger said that Cicero said that he hoped that they," etc., etc.

Translate into Latin (indirect narration):

1. Cicero gave the following answer to the barbarians: It is not the custom<sup>1</sup> of the Roman people to make terms with an enemy in arms: lay down your arms<sup>2</sup> and send ambassadors to Caesar. If you do this at once,<sup>3</sup> I know that Caesar will pardon you.<sup>4</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Before attempting to translate, imagine "he said" to be placed before every sentence thus:

He said that it was not the custom, etc.

He said that they were to lay down their arms, etc.

He said that, if they did this, he knew that, etc.

Observe the change that takes place in the Tenses.

<sup>3</sup>Begin as usual with the word which will best show the connection.

<sup>4</sup>(He said) that "he knew that Caesar would pardon them." "That he knew" is the statement and therefore is Accusative and Infinitive, but the verb "know" is itself a verb which takes Accusative and Infinitive after it; therefore the clause beginning "that Caesar," etc., will also be in the Accusative and Infinitive construction. See last note of previous exercise.

LESSON LXVII.

1. The Tense of the Infinitive Mood in indirect narration is the Tense which the speaker himself used. In other words, it is the Tense used in the direct narration. In the sentence, Cicero said that it was not the custom of the Roman people, etc. Cicero's own words were, "It is not the custom," etc., therefore the verb "was" must be expressed by the Present Tense.

2. To get the proper Tense for the Subjunctive Mood in indirect narration, use the Tense, not of the direct narration, but the Tense as it is in the indirect form: thus,

Titurius dixit: Quod Gallia omnis cum Germanis consentiret, unam esse in celeritate positam salutem.
Titurius said that because all Gaul was conspiring with the Germans, their only safety was in dispatch.

Here the Imperfect consentiret is the natural tense for "was conspiring." The direct narration would be: Titurius said: "Because all Gaul is conspiring with the Germans our only safety is in dispatch." Now while the subordinate clause, "because all Gaul is conspiring," is to have its verb in the Past Tense (Impf.) of the Subjunctive Mood, the main statement, "our only safety is in dispatch" is to have its verb in the Present Infinitive according to the first rule of this lesson.

Translate into English:

1. Titurius dixit: suam sententiam in utramque partem esse tutam: si nihil esset durius,<sup>1</sup> nullo cum periculo ad proximam legionem perventuros: si Gallia omnis cum Germanis consentiret, unam esse in ce-

<sup>1</sup>The literal translation of this in the direct narration would be: "What result has the plan of Cotta and of those who differ from me?" Notice that the speaker himself says "has" (Present Tense) and remember that in getting the Tense of the Infinitive, the same Tense as the speaker himself used is to be retained in the indirect narration.

<sup>2</sup>Infinitive, because it is a question in the Third Person, if turned into direct narration. See Exercise LXVI.

Translate into Latin:

1. Titurius spoke thus: My plan is the safest. Fortify<sup>1</sup> the camp with a rampart and a ditch and wait for the reinforcements which Caesar is sending to us. The Gauls will not attack us to-day, because the Germans have not yet arrived.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup>The Imperfect Subjunctive is the usual Past Tense for the Subjunctive in the indirect narration. The Present may always be used for vividness, as in Exercise LXVI., but do not make a practice of using it.

<sup>2</sup>In order to get the right tense in the subordinate clause put the sentence indirectly thus: "(He said) that the Gauls would not attack them on that day, because the Germans had not yet arrived."

LESSON LXVIII.

Pronouns and Adverbs.

1. In indirect narration all pronouns are Third Person, and adverbs and adverbial phrases are changed in the manner indicated in the following exercise.

Translate into English:

1. Haec cum animadvertisset, convocato consilio, omniumque ordinum ad id consilium adhibitis cen-

<sup>1</sup>The indirect narration begins here and continues to the end of the extract. The verb of speaking is often omitted. Understand "he said that he blamed them" because, etc. In what kind of clause do you expect to find the Subjunctive?

(I blame you) because you think, etc.

The indirect =

(He said that he blamed them) because they thought, etc.
Notice the change from 2nd to 3rd Person.

<sup>3</sup>Always imagine "he said" before each new sentence: "(He said) that Ariovistus, when he (Caesar) was consul, had eagerly sought the friendship of the Roman people." The direct narration would be: "Ariovistus, when I was consul, eagerly sought the friendship of the Roman people." Notice the change from the 1st Person of the direct to the 3rd of the indirect narration.

<sup>4</sup>Although this question is Third Person in the direct narration, observe that it is here Subjunctive, not Infinitive, as might be expected. The reason is that this question had the Subjunctive in the direct narration. The question originally was: "Why should anybody suppose?" not "Does anybody suppose?" Such questions are called deliberative questions, and they take the Subjunctive whether they are in direct or indirect narration.

<sup>5</sup>Why have these questions the Subjunctive?

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar gave the following answer to the ambassadors: "I do not promise<sup>1</sup> to wait for the hostages, which you have promised<sup>2</sup> to send to me here. Tomorrow<sup>3</sup> I shall march into your territory and pitch my camp in the vicinity of your town. Return,<sup>4</sup> therefore, at once to your people and tell them what I say."

<sup>1</sup>(He said) that he did not promise, etc.

<sup>2</sup>Remember your construction after "promise," which is a verb of speaking—promised that they would send to him there.

<sup>3</sup>(He said) that he would march into their territory on the next day, etc.

<sup>4</sup>(He said) that they were to return, etc. Remember that "return" is a command, not a statement.

LESSON LXIX.

INDIRECT NARRATION (continued).

1. It has been said in the previous exercise that pronouns in indirect narration are in the Third Person. One person is distinguished from another by using the reflexive pronoun sui and the reflexive adjective suus to refer to the person who is represented as speaking in the narrative. Other persons are represented by one of the demonstratives is, ille, or hic. If no ambiguity is possible, sui and suus may be used (are used by Caesar) to refer to the subject of their own clause. If ambiguity would arise from the use of sui, substitute the other reflexive ipse. N. B.—As a means of avoiding ambiguity a proper name is also used instead of any of the pronouns mentioned above.

Translate into English:

Ei legationi Ariovistus respondit: Si<sup>1</sup> quid ipsi<sup>2</sup> a Caesare opus esset, sese<sup>2</sup> ad eum<sup>2</sup> venturum fuisse: si quid ille<sup>2</sup> se velit, illum<sup>2</sup> ad se<sup>2</sup> venire oportere.

<sup>1</sup>After translating literally turn the passage into the direct form and observe all the changes in Persons, Tenses and Moods. Begin thus: "If there was anything necessary to me from you, Caesar (or if I wanted anything from you, Caesar), I would have come to you: if you wish anything from me it behoves you to come to me."

Translate into Latin:

1. Ariovistus<sup>1</sup> answered Caesar thus: "If I<sup>2</sup> do not dictate to you what you should do, it is not right that you<sup>3</sup> should dictate to me.<sup>4</sup> The Aedui are subject to me, since they have tried the fortune of war and have been defeated. You are doing me a great injury, because by your<sup>5</sup> arrival you are reducing my revenues."

<sup>1</sup>Rewrite the whole passage in indirect narration in English before attempting to translate. Begin thus: "Ariovistus answered that if he did not dictate to him what he should do, it was not right," etc.

LESSON LXX.

Conditional Sentences.

1. The "si clause" of a conditional sentence is called the protasis, and the main clause is called the apodosis. In indirect narration the apodosis, being a main statement, will always have the Infinitive Mood, and the protasis, being a subordinate clause, will always have the Subjunctive Mood.

2. The Tense of the Infinitive is determined, as has already been said, by using the Tense which the speaker himself used, but the following points must be observed:

(a) There is only one Future Infinitive, namely the participle in -rus + esse (or fuisse), and therefore this Infinitive has to stand for both the regular Future and the less vivid Future of the direct narration.

(b) In a contrary-to-fact clause (present or past) the Infinitive is the Participle in -rus + fuisse.

3. The following changes take place in the Tense and Mood of the protasis:

(a) The Mood is always Subjunctive.

(b) A good working rule for getting the Tense, not only for the protasis of a conditional clause but for all subordinate clauses in indirect narration, is to put the Tense of the direct narration one point back into the past. Thus:

A Present Indicative would become Imperfect Subjunctive.

A Perfect Indicative would become Pluperfect Subjunctive.

A Future Indicative would become Imperfect Subjunctive (because the Present Subjunctive ordinarily expresses futurity). Therefore, a Future-perfect Indicative would become Pluperfect Subjunctive.

N. B.—If the writer wishes to use vivid narration he will bring the Tenses back one point nearer the present, so that you will find the Present used for the Imperfect, and the Perfect used for the Pluperfect Subjunctive.

Translate into English:

1. Barbaris Caesar ita respondit: Se<sup>1</sup> magis consuetudine sua,<sup>1</sup> quam merito eorum,<sup>1</sup> civitatem con-

<sup>5</sup>Observe that the Tense "I did" goes back one point in the indirect: "(He said) that he would do that which he had done (Plpf.)." Observe also that "I shall do," the Tense of the main statement, remains in the Future Tense.

<sup>6</sup>What case and why? See Exercise LVIII.

Translate into Latin:

To these demands<sup>1</sup> Caesar gave the following answer: "I<sup>2</sup> shall not attack your city to-day if you send me the hostages which I have demanded. If I had done what I did in the case of your neighbours, I<sup>3</sup> should have taken your city by storm as soon as I arrived.<sup>4</sup> Send, therefore, the hostages at once, and do not<sup>5</sup> expose your women and children to the dangers of a siege.

<sup>1</sup>The Neuter Gender of the demonstrative will express this, when it is known that the barbarians had been making certain demands in the previous sentence. Use ad for "to."

<sup>2</sup>Turn into the indirect before translating. (He said) that he would not attack their city on that day, if they sent him the hostages which he had demanded.

<sup>3</sup>In the main clause of the contrary-to-fact conditional sentence, remember that the Infinitive is the Participle in -rus and fuisse.

<sup>4</sup>Remember that the verbs of all subordinate clauses go one point back into the past.

<sup>5</sup>The negative in a command is always ne, and the conjunction "and" with ne is neve, not et ne.

LESSON LXXI.

VIRTUAL ORATIO OBLIQUA.

1. Sometimes the form of a sentence is direct, although it is in reality indirect:

(a) Dumnorix a Caesare petivit ut in Gallia relinqueretur quod mare timeret. Dumnorix begged Caesar that he should be left in Gaul because (as he said) he was afraid of the sea.

Observe that quod (because) usually takes the Indicative Mood, but here the meaning is that Dumnorix said he feared the sea. The verb "feared" is therefore in the Subjunctive, because it is in a subordinate clause in what is really indirect narration.

(b) Magna proponit iis, qui occidissent, praemia. He offered great rewards to those who should kill him.

This is really indirect also, for it is equal to: He said that he would give great rewards to those who should kill him. Observe that the verb "should kill" is in a relative clause in what is really indirect narration, and therefore it is in the Subjunctive Mood. The Tense is Pluperfect because in the direct narration it would be Future-perfect: thus,

I shall give great rewards to those who kill (shall have killed) him.

N. B.—If the more vivid construction is desired, bring the Tenses one point nearer the present: thus,

Magna proponit iis, qui occide. int. praemia.

Here the ordinary Past Tense of the Indicative (Perfect) is brought to the Present, while the Pluperfect Subjunctive is brought to the Perfect.

Translate into English:

1. Ille omnibus primo precibus petere contendit ut in Gallia relinqueretur, quod religionibus impediretur.<sup>1</sup> Posteaquam id obstinate sibi negari vidit, principes Galliae sevocare hortarique coepit uti in continenti remanerent: id<sup>2</sup> esse consilium Caesaris ut, quos in conspectu Galliae interficere vereretur, hos omnes in Britanniam traductos necaret: fidem reliquis interponere, jusjurandum poscere, ut, quod esse ex usu Galliae intellexissent,<sup>3</sup> communi consilio administrarent.

<sup>1</sup>Virtual indirect narration. "Because (as he said) he was deterred by religious scruples."

<sup>3</sup>What would be the English of this verb in Oratio Recta?

Translate into Latin:

These two great nations renewed the war with the greatest bitterness, the Romans<sup>1</sup> being indignant because a conquered nation<sup>2</sup> had attacked them without provocation,<sup>3</sup> and the Carthaginians<sup>4</sup> because their conquerors had ruled<sup>5</sup> over them in too insolent a manner. The latter felt, too, that, if their great Hamilcar<sup>6</sup> had not been killed at the beginning of the first Punic war, they would have swept the Roman race from the face of the earth.<sup>7</sup>

LESSON LXXII.

THE TENSES OF THE INDICATIVE.

1. The Present Indicative is used as in English, but it is also used :

(a) To express an action which has been begun in the past and is still going on in the present, as,
Jamdiu urbs obsidetur. The city has now been besieged for a long time.

(b) With dum (while) instead of a Past Tense in such sentences as :

Dum Romani ea parant, Saguntum captum est.
Whilst the Romans were making these preparations, Saguntum was taken.

N. B.—The teacher may, if he thinks fit, make comparisons with such Present Tenses as, Caesar is coming, Caesar comes, Men desire liberty, The sun rises every day, etc.

2. The Imperfect Indicative is a past tense, and is used :

(a) To describe any action in past time which is regarded as not completed or not perfect. Thus, discebat = he was learning, he used to learn, he began to learn. In short, discebat has any meaning at all which describes the action of learning as past but not completed.

(b) To describe an action which had been begun in the past and was still going on at a certain point in the past.

Jamdiu urbs obsidebatur. The city had now been besieged for a long time.

Observe that this is but the past of 1 (a), with which compare.

3. The Perfect Indicative has two meanings:

(a) Explorator rem nuntiavit means either, The scout has announced the matter (present perfect), or, The scout announced the matter (historic perfect). The latter meaning is the ordinary meaning in narrating past events.

(b) The Perfect Indicative is also used in a subordinate clause with the Present Indicative in the main clause to describe an action which is happening an indefinite number of times.

Ubi (or cum) suos laborantes vidit, auxilia submittit. Whenever he sees his men in difficulties, he sends reinforcements.

4. The Pluperfect Indicative is used as in English, but it is also used idiomatically in a subordinate clause, with the Imperfect Indicative in the main clause, to describe an action which happened an indefinite number of times.

Ubi (or cum) suos laborantes viderat, auxilia submittebat. As often as he saw his men in difficulties, he sent reinforcements.

N. B.—This is simply the past of 3 (b).

5. The Future Indicative is used as in English, and it must always be used in those subordinate clauses where the English uses the present with a future meaning.

Si Dumnorix veniet, interficietur. If Dumnorix comes (shall come), he will be killed.

6. The Future-perfect Indicative describes an action which is not only future but also completed before another action begins. English is generally satisfied with the Present.

Dumnorix cum pervenerit, interficietur. When Dumnorix arrives (shall have arrived), he will be killed.

The action of arriving is future, but it is also to be completed before the act of killing is performed.

Galba had been king of that country for ten years.

<sup>4</sup>Use que. Here the act may have been cruel, but it was no doubt necessary. Better not emphasize the cruelty. que brings two nouns closely together under one head. mulieres liberique = the non-combatants.

LESSON LXXIII.

SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

1. (a) When the principal verb refers to present or future time, the Dependent Subjunctive should be in the Present or Perfect Tense.

This is called Primary Sequence.

(b) When the principal verb refers to past time, the Dependent Subjunctive should be in the Imperfect or Pluperfect Tense.

This is called Historic Sequence.

Examples of Primary Sequence

2. Principal verb followed by Present or Perfect Tense.

(a) Rogo, rogabo, rogavero (I ask, shall ask, shall have asked), quid scribat (what he writes, is writing).

(b) Rogo, rogabo, rogavero (I ask, shall ask, shall have asked), quid scripserit (what he has written, wrote, was writing).

(c) Rogo, rogabo, rogavero (I ask, shall ask, shall have asked), quid scripturus sit (what he will write, is about to write).

Examples of Historic Sequence

3. Principal verb followed by Imperfect or Pluperfect Tense.

(a) Rogabam, rogavi, rogaveram (I was asking, asked, had asked), quid scriberet (what he was writing, wrote).

(b) Rogabam, rogavi, rogaveram (I was asking, asked, had asked), quid scripsisset (what he had written).

(c) Rogabam, rogavi, rogaveram (I was asking, asked, had asked), quid scripturus esset (what he would write, was about to write).

4. The Tense "I have asked" is followed by either Primary or Historic Sequence. If the act is regarded as completed in past time, the Historic Sequence is natural, but if the act be regarded as just completed in the present, the Primary Sequence may be used.

5. Note that in 2 (c) sit is Present Tense, and in 3 (c) esset is Imperfect Tense, according to the rule laid down in 1, the Future Participle, scripturus, being used to bring out the future meaning.

6. After ut in clauses of result the rule for sequence of Tenses does not hold good in the following cases:

(a) When the principal verb refers to past time and the subordinate verb to present time: as,

Heri ita perterritus est ut hodie domi maneat. He got such a fright yesterday that he is staying at home to-day.

(b) When the principal verb refers to past time and the subordinate verb describes an act which has begun in the past and has continued to the present (English Present-Perfect or Perfect with "have").

Tam multa mentitus est ut nemo ei tum crederet nec quisquam postea unquam crediderit. He told so many lies that nobody believed him at the time and nobody has ever put faith in him since.

Here crederet is the regular sequence, but in the last clause the sense requires crediderit in the Perfect Tense regardless of the regular sequence.

(c) The Perfect Subjunctive is also used after a past tense instead of the Imperfect when the writer wishes to emphasize an historical fact and one not closely dependent on the main verb: thus,

Hostes acriter cum equitatu nostro confixerunt tamen ut nostri eos in silvas collesque compulerint. The enemy fought fiercely with our cavalry, nevertheless the result was that our men drove them into the woods and hills.

Here the result depends not so much on the action of the enemy, but rather on the usual superiority of the Roman soldier.

<sup>6</sup>This sounds like the Imperfect, and it would be Imperfect if it were Indicative, but being Subjunctive of a dependent question you must use the Perfect. Why? See consecution of Tenses. The statement in Latin would be: Magno in honore apud Graecos musica erat (Imperf.).

LESSON LXXIV.

THE TENSES OF THE INFINITIVE.

1. The Tenses of the Infinitive are:

	Active	Passive
(a) The Present	oppugnare	oppugnari
(b) The Perfect	oppugnasse	oppugnatus esse
(c) The Future	oppugnaturus esse	oppugnatum iri

N. B.—Oppugnatum is the Supine and is indeclinable.
Iri is the Present Infinitive Passive of ire (to go).

Besides the above, oppugnaturum fuisse is used in Oratio Obliqua in the apodosis of the contrary-to-fact construction. See Lesson LXX. for all Tenses of Infinitive in the Accusative and Infinitive construction.

2. (a) Some verbs have no Future Infinitive. With such verbs use fore or futurum esse and ut + the Subjunctive: as,

Dicit fore ut puer Latine loqui discat. He says that it will be (it will come to pass) that the boy may learn to speak Latin. (Latine is an adverb.)

If dicit be changed to dixit, discat will, of course, become disceret, thus:

Dixit futurum esse ut puer Latine loqui disceret. He said that it would be that the boy would learn to speak Latin.

(b) The fore ut construction is more usual when the voice is Passive.

"Dixit fore ut urbs oppugnaretur" is more usual than "Dixit urbem oppugnatum iri." He said that the city would be attacked.

3. The following verbs take the Present Infinitive where the English has the Perfect:

(a) Ire debet, he ought to go
Ire debuit, he ought to have gone

- (b) Eum ire oportet (lit., it behoves him to go),
he ought to go
Eum ire oportuit, he ought to have gone
- (c) Ire potest, he can go
Ire potuit, he could have gone (or, he was able to go)
- (d) Ei ire licet, he may go (lit., it is permitted to him to go)
Ei ire licuit, he might have gone (it was permitted to him to go)

The past time in Latin is brought out by the main verb, not by the dependent Infinitive. Wherever the English is capable of bringing out the past meaning in the main verb, it takes the same construction as the Latin and keeps the Infinitive in the Present Tense: thus,

He can go (now).

He was able to go (yesterday).

But if we say "could" for "was able," we must say "he could have gone (yesterday), because "could" is not necessarily past time in English, so that to bring out the past time it is necessary to put the Perfect Infinitive "have gone." Latin, however, always expresses the past time by the main verb: thus,
Ire potuit. He was able to go, or, he could have gone (yesterday.)

4. Write out the table of 3rd and 4th Conjugation Active and Passive, using the verbs, mitto, mittere, missi, missum (to send), and audio, audire, audiri, auditum (to hear). See Lessons LXI. and LXII.

Translate into English:

1. Magnam in spem Caesar veniebat fore ut Ariovistus pertinacia desisteret.
2. Cum Caesar in Italia abesset, Sabinus castris exiit non debuit.
3. Barbaris Caesar ita respondit: Sibi nullam eum his amicitiam esse posse, si in Gallia remanerent; neque verum esse, qui suos fines tueri non potuerint,<sup>1</sup> alienos occupare; neque ullos in Gallia vacare agros, qui dari tantae praesertim multitudini sine injuria possint; sed licere in Ubiarum finibus considerare: hoc se Ubiis imperaturum.

<sup>1</sup>Perfect Subjunctive. This is used for vividness instead of the regular Pluperfect. Caesar begins this passage with the regular construction, as is seen by the verb remanerent, but he here drops into the vivid construction (the Perfect Subjunctive being as a rule a Primary Tense). The literal translation is: "(He says) that it is not reasonable that those who have not been able to defend their own territory should get possession of," etc.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar hopes that Ariovistus will desist from his obstinacy.
2. Brutus should not have engaged such a large number of the enemy in the absence of his commander-in-chief.
3. Dumnorix, fearing lest he should be deserted by all, sent ambassadors to Caesar.
4. If Caesar should come, the city would easily be captured.
5. Caesar said that he would return on the next day, unless he were prevented by the enemy.
6. (After translating sentence 3 of the Latin exercise into English, retranslate into Latin without using the vivid narration.)

LESSON LXXV.

THE NOMINATIVE CASE.

1. A noun, a pronoun (or an adjective or a participle used as a noun) stands in the Nominative Case if it is the subject of a verb in the Indicative or Subjunctive Mood: as,

Cum Caesar abesset, Labienus motum timebat. As Caesar was away, Labienus feared a disturbance.

N. B.—The subject of a verb in the Infinitive Mood is in the Accusative.

Caesar dixit Labienum motum timere. Caesar said that Labienus feared a rebellion.

2. The verb to be, to become, and verbs of being named, being made, being elected, being created, and all equivalent expressions, take the same Case after them as before them, no matter what that Case may be.

- (a) Caesar fuit magnus imperator.
- (b) Dico Caesarem esse magnum imperatorem.
- (c) Numa creatus est rex.
- (d) Dico Numam creatum esse regem.
- (e) Licet omnibus esse bonis.

(a) After a verb of doubting or hesitating with a negative, as here.

(b) After a verb of hindering, with a negative, Catilina non deterreri potuit quin conjunctionem faceret. Catiline could not be hindered from forming a conspiracy.

Ariovistus had been called a friend by the senate of Rome. 5. Caesar said that Ariovistus had been called a friend by the senate. 6. It is not permitted to Roman soldiers to be cowards. 7. It is unlawful for any man<sup>3</sup> to lead an army against his country. 8. Finding both wind and tide favourable, he weighed anchor and sailed forward<sup>4</sup> ten miles from that place.

<sup>5</sup>Any verb of "going forward" will do, because we know he went in a ship.

LESSON LXXVI.

THE ACCUSATIVE CASE.

1. The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the Accusative Case: as,
Caesar Gallos vicit. Caesar conquered the Gauls.
2. A verb which is intransitive may take an Accusative, if the substantive have a kindred meaning with the verb: as,
Hannibal mirum somnium somniavit. Hannibal dreamed a wonderful dream.
3. The following impersonal verbs of emotion, piget, pudet, paenitet, taedet, miseret, take an Accusative of the person who feels the emotion, and a Genitive of the thing which causes the emotion: as,

Eum sceleris paenitet. He repents of his crime (lit., It repents him of his crime).

4. (a) Verbs of making, choosing, electing, etc., govern two Accusatives.

Cicronem populus Romanus consulem creavit. The Roman people created Cicero consul.

(b) In the Passive both Accusatives become Nominatives.

Cicero a populo Romano consul creatus est. Cicero was created consul by the Roman people.

N. B.—Cicero and consul refer to one and the same person and are therefore in the same case whether the verb is active or passive, but compare with

5. (a) Verbs signifying to ask, teach, and conceal take two Accusatives: as,

Populus Romanus Cicronem sententiam rogavit. The Roman people asked Cicero his opinion.

N. B.—But this construction of rogo is only found (a) with Neuters of adjectives, pronouns, etc., e.g., hoc te rogo, and (b) with sententiam.

(b) In the Passive the person becomes the subject and the thing remains in the Accusative (called the Retained Accusative).

Cicero sententiam rogatus est. Cicero was asked his opinion.

N. B.—With quaero (I question), peto, postulo (and sometimes with posco and flagito), the person from whom you ask the thing is expressed by the preposition from (ab or ex) with the Ablative: as, Galli pacem ab Romanis petierunt. The Gauls begged peace from the Romans.

6. Duration of time and distance in space are expressed by the Accusative without a preposition: as,

s cogi, exerci-

(a) Caesar decem milia passuum processit. Caesar advanced ten miles.

(b) Decem annos Graeci Trojam obsederunt. For ten years the Greeks besieged Troy.

7. The names of towns, small islands and the words domus and rus stand in the Accusative without a preposition with the idea of "motion to": as,

(a) Caesar Romam proficiscitur. Caesar sets out for Rome.

(b) Nervii domum revertuntur. The Nervii return home.

N. B.—But if the motion does not continue right up to the place named, the preposition is expressed: as,

Cicero ad Capuam profectus est. Cicero set out for Capua.

As a matter of fact Cicero was not going to Capua, but to an encampment in front of Capua.

8. Prepositions as a rule govern the Accusative. Exceptions will be given later.

Dat.	passui (u)		passibus
Acc.	passum		passus
Abl.	passu		passibus

Most nouns in the 4th Declension end in us and are Masculine, but manus (a hand, a handful of men, a band) and domus (a house) are Feminine. There are a few nouns in u, and they are Neuter.

Translate into English:

1. Eum stultitiae pudet.
2. Hae pugna pugnata Romam profectus est nullo resistente.
3. Tantum

terrorem iniecit exercitui<sup>1</sup> Romanorum, ut egredi extra vallum nemo sit ausus.<sup>2</sup> 4. Aristides cognomine Justus appellatus est. 5. Caesare consule, senatus Ariovistum amicum populi Romani appellavit. 6. Cato sententiam rogatus dixit delendam esse Carthaginem. 7. Labienus castra vallo decem pedes<sup>3</sup> alto munivit. 8. Caesari cum id nuntiatum esset, eos per provinciam nostram iter facere conari, maturat ab urbe proficisci, et quam maximis potest itineribus in Galliam ulteriorem contendit, et ad<sup>4</sup> Genuam pervenit. Provinciae toti quam maximum potest militum numerum imperat (erat omnino in Gallia ulteriore legio una): pontem, qui erat ad<sup>5</sup> Genuam, jubet rescindi. Ubi de ejus adventu Helvetii certiores facti sunt,<sup>6</sup> legatos ad eum mittunt.

<sup>2</sup>auden, audere, ausus sum, is called a Semi-Deponent verb. It is partly Active and partly Passive in form and the meaning is to dare. What is the Conj.? Make out the whole table.

<sup>5</sup>ad = at, close to. There is no "motion to" in this case.

<sup>6</sup>certiores facti sunt certus = certain. certior is the Comparative Degree, more certain. The phrase = "they were made more certain," a common Latin expression for "they were informed." The active is certiorem facere, "to make (any one) more certain."

Translate into Latin:

1. They did not dare to remain, and the majority advised that they should return to their homes. 2. Themistocles informed Xerxes that the bridge which he had made over the Hellespont, would be broken down, and he would be prevented from returning into Asia. 3. Themistocles repented of his folly. 4. When asked his opinion, Themistocles advised the citizens to build a hundred ships. 5. They sent to Delphi to ask what they should do. 6. When Hannibal was in exile in Bithynia, ambassadors from Prusias happened to be at Rome.<sup>1</sup> One evening,<sup>2</sup>

when they were dining with (apud) Flaminius, the consul, Hannibal's name came up<sup>3</sup> in the course of the conversation,<sup>4</sup> and one of the legates remarked that he was at the court (in regno) of Prusias. Next day Flaminius tells this piece of news<sup>5</sup> to the senate. The senators<sup>6</sup> thinking<sup>7</sup> that so long as Hannibal was alive,<sup>8</sup> they would always be exposed to his machinations,<sup>9</sup> sent ambassadors to Bithynia, of whom Flaminius was one,<sup>10</sup> to ask the king not to harbour<sup>11</sup> (a man who was)<sup>12</sup> their worst enemy.<sup>13</sup>

<sup>4</sup>Continue the same construction with which you began, "and there (it happened that), mention of Hannibal having been made, one of them said," etc. There is, of course, no need to express "it happened that," a second time. Make one continuous sentence from "when Hannibal" to "the court of Prusias."

LESSON LXXVII.

THE GENITIVE CASE.

1. Verbs signifying to remember, remind, forget and pity govern the Genitive: as,

Reminisceretur veteris incommodi populi Romani.

Let him remember the old disaster to the Roman people.

2. The following adjectives govern the Genitive: cupidus (desirous of), avidus (greedy of), ignarus (ignorant of), peritus (skilled in), imperitus (unskilled in), insuetus (unaccustomed to), similis (like to, generally of likeness in character): as,

Insuetus navigandi mare timebat. Being unaccustomed to sailing, he was afraid of the sea.

3. By far the most common use of the Genitive is when one substantive is used immediately after another for the purpose of defining it in some way. The two nouns are connected in English by some preposition, such as of, for, with, etc. Examples are:

(a) Patria Ciceronis, the native town of Cicero. Ciceronis indicates the possessor. Ciceronis is therefore called the Possessive Genitive.

(b) Bellum Germanorum, the war with the Germans. The Germans are the object of the action of making war. Germanorum is therefore called the Objective Genitive.

(c) The Genitive also denotes the whole of which a part is taken. Magna pars militum, a great part of the soldiers. Sapientissimi Graccorum, the wisest of the Greeks.

N. B.—In phrases like all of the soldiers, we must say omnes milites (all the soldiers), because no part is taken.

(d) The Genitive is also used with an adjective to describe a substantive in some way: as, Vir magnae virtutis, a man of great valour.

This is called the Descriptive Genitive, or Genitive of Quality.

N. B.—The Descriptive Genitive must be qualified by an adjective. You must never say, vir virtutis, for, a man of valour. If a less emphatic expression than vir magnae virtutis is desired, say, vir fortis, a brave man.

(e) The Genitive is also added to a substantive to define its meaning more exactly: as, Arbor abietis, the fir tree.

N. B.—This Genitive of Definition, as it is called, is very common with Gerunds: as, Ars dicendi, the art of speaking.

(f) The Genitives tanti, quanti, magni, parvi, plu-

ris, minoris, and nihili are used to express the price or value at which a thing is estimated: as,

Quanti docet? For how much does he teach?

If the thing is actually bought or sold, tanti, quanti, pluris, minoris, and maximi are still used, but otherwise price or value is to be expressed by the Ablative.

Quanti frumentum vendit? At what price is he selling corn?

Magno frumentum vendit. He is selling corn at a great price.

Auro corpus vendit. He is selling the body for gold.

(So, too, plurimo, parvo, minimo.)

(g) The names of towns and small islands of the 1st and 2nd Declensions stand in the Genitive (if Singular) to express the place where: as,

Romae vivit. He lives at Rome.

If Plural, or if 3rd Declension, use the Ablative without a preposition.

Athenis vivit. He lives at Athens.

Babylone vivit. He lives at Babylon.

In the same way are used domi (at home), humi (on the ground). Belli (in war), militiae (on military service), are also used in this way, usually when combined with domi; if not so combined, in bello, in militia are used.

Caesaris virtus et domi et militiae cognita est. Caesar's excellence was recognized both at home and in the field.

Hi fratres in bello occiderunt. These brothers fell in the war.

(h) The verb sum with a Genitive expresses mark, duty, custom, characteristic, etc.: as,

Stulti est in errore perseverare. It is the mark of a fool to persevere in error.

The Neuter of the adjective may be used to express the same idea: as, Stultum est, etc. It is foolish, etc.

If the adjective has only one termination, the Genitive must be used: as, Sapientis est, etc. It is the mark of a wise man, etc.

Table of Domus, a house

Nom.	domus	domus
Gen.	domus	domuum
Dat.	domui	domibus
Acc.	domum	domos
Abl.	domo	domibus

N. B.—The Ablative Singular and Accusative Plural of domus usually have the terminations of the 2nd Declension. Domi (also domui) means at home.

Translate into English:

Ille<sup>8</sup> omnibus primo precibus petere contendit, ut in Gallia relinqueretur; partim quod insuetus navigandi mare timeret: partim quod religionibus<sup>9</sup> impediretur.

<sup>6</sup>rerum is Genitive Plural of res. res novae (new things) is an idiomatic expression for "change of government, or revolution."

<sup>7</sup>Observe that imperii and animi are in the Genitive for quite different reasons.

<sup>8</sup>ille at the beginning of a new sentence indicates a change of subject. The unexpressed subject of the last verb (cognoverat) is Caesar. ille = Dumnorix. <sup>9</sup>Religious scruples.

Translate into Latin:

1. The Belgae, observing<sup>1</sup> the manner of our army's march during those days,<sup>2</sup> came to the Nervii by night. 2. The Germans had no time<sup>3</sup> for concerting measures or seizing their arms. 3. Any man may err;<sup>4</sup> nobody but a fool will persist in error. 4. Nothing is so<sup>5</sup> characteristic of a narrow mind as to love riches. 5. With<sup>6</sup> the light armed of the infantry and cavalry they joined battle with<sup>6</sup> the enemy. 6. There is a fountain of sweet water, and<sup>7</sup> its name is Arethusa. 7. When the war with the Helvetii was ended,<sup>8</sup> ambassadors from almost all Gaul came to, Caesar to congratulate<sup>9</sup> him. 8. This state has a very great reputation<sup>10</sup> for valour. 9. Caesar, having delayed for a few days in Asia, heard that Pompey had been seen in Cyprus.<sup>11</sup> 10. Vercingetorix, on receiving news of Caesar's arrival,

<sup>2</sup>Express simply by the Genitive of dies. You will have three different Genitives. Arrange them with an eye to clearness. Observe that the phrase, "during those days," depends on "the manner," and should, therefore, be in the Genitive. If the idea of duration depended on a verb, the Accusative of duration of time would be used. See "for a few days" in sentence 9. A good working rule is: When one noun depends on another it is put in the Genitive, or one noun governs another in the Genitive.

N.B.—The English preposition connecting these nouns may be of, for, with, during, etc.

<sup>3</sup>Say, "Time was given to the Germans neither of concerting," etc., and observe that "of concerting" depends on the noun "time." To concert measures = consilium habere.

<sup>4</sup>Observe that "may" and "will" are used in an idiomatic sense. Say, "It is (the lot) of any (quivis) man to err; it is the mark of nobody but (nisi) of a fool (insipiens) to," etc.

<sup>6</sup>Do not be afraid to use cum in both senses. Cum, like the English with, means both along with and against when used with a verb of fighting.

raised the siege<sup>12</sup> of Gergovia and set out to meet<sup>13</sup> him.<sup>14</sup> The latter<sup>15</sup> had commenced to besiege Noviodunum, a town of the Bituriges situated on his route. When<sup>16</sup> ambassadors came to him to ask that he would pardon them and spare their lives, he orders them<sup>17</sup> to give up their arms, to bring out their horses, and give him hostages.

<sup>14</sup>It would be clearer to express the proper name again, especially as the next sentence is to begin with a pronoun.

LESSON LXXVIII.

THE DATIVE CASE.

1. Verbs signifying to command, obey, serve, and resist, verbs and expressions of advantage and disadvantage, and compounds of sum govern the Dative Case; as,

Caesar Labieno scribit ut decimae legioni praesit. Caesar writes (commands by letter) Labienus that he is to take command of the tenth legion.

2. Some adjectives govern the Dative, e.g., utilis, gratus, amicus, inimicus, proximus, idoneus, aptus, accommodatus, paratus, similis (of external resemblance), but many of these also take ad with the Accusative, especially in the sense of having an aptitude for: as,

(a) Locus castris idoneus erat. The place was suitable for a camp.

(b) Intellectum est nostros minus aptos esse ad hujus generis hostem. It was seen that our men were little suited for an enemy of this kind (had no aptitude for coping with an enemy of this kind).

3. The agent after the Gerundive is expressed by the Dative instead of a with the Ablative: as,

Caesari omnia uno tempore erant agenda. Everything had to be done by Caesar at one time.

(b) If the verb from which the Gerundive comes governs the Dative, there will be two Datives: as,

Senatui populo parendum est. The senate must be obeyed by the people.

(c) To avoid the use of two Datives where ambiguity would arise, use a with the Ablative for the agent, or let the agent be understood from the context, or use a different construction.

4. The Dative Case with the verb sum is used to indicate possession: as,

Puero liber est. There is a book to the boy.

Or

Puer librum habet. The boy has a book.

Caesar dixit sibi nullam cum his amicitiam esse posse. Caesar said that there was able to be no friendship to him with them (i.e., that he could have no friendship with them).

5. Verbs compounded with ad, ante, circum, de, in, inter, ob, post, prae, and sub take a Dative of the remoter object: as,

Germanis metum injicere, to inspire the Germans with fear (lit., to throw in fear to the Germans).

But if the literal, physical meaning of the verb is meant, the preposition may be repeated before the noun: as,

Se in ignem injicere, to throw oneself into the fire.

6. The following idiomatic Datives (to which the same Predicative Dative is sometimes given) should be learned by heart:

auxilio esse, to be an assistance curae esse, to be a subject for care

dolori esse, to be a cause of grief odio esse, to be hateful to, or to be hated by (used as the Passive of odi) ornamento esse, to be a distinction subsidio esse, to be a reinforcement cordi esse, to be dear (lit., to the heart) detrimento esse, to be a source of loss impedimento esse, to be a hindrance praesidio esse, to be a protection usui esse, to be of use, or useful.

This Predicative Dative (or Dative of Purpose, as it is often called) is mostly used with the verb esse, but it is also common with habere, dare, mittere, proficisci, venire, relinquere, and such like: as,

Aduatuci auxilio Nervii veniebant. The Aduatuci were coming to the assistance of the Nervii.

N. B.—Observe that the person to whom the thing is an assistance, a hindrance, a protection, etc., is also in the Dative case.

LESSON LXXIX.

THE ABLATIVE CASE.

1. Review the following Ablatives which have already been treated:

(a) The Ablative with a or ab to express the agent.

(b) The Ablative with a or ab, e or ex, to indicate the person from whom a thing is asked.

(c) The Ablative with cum to express accompaniment.

(d) The Ablative without a preposition to express cause, manner, means, and instrument.

(e) The Ablative of price.

(f) The Ablative Absolute.

(g) The Ablative without a preposition to express a point of time.

(h) The Ablative without a preposition to express place where, with certain names of towns, etc.

2. The verbs utor, fruor, fungor, potior, and vescor govern the Ablative Case; but in the Gerundive construction they are treated as though they were transitive: as,

In spem potiundorum castrorum venerant. They had been entertaining hopes of taking possession of the camp (lit., they had come into the hope of, etc.).

(b) Verbs (e.g., egeo and careo) and adjectives expressing the idea of "lacking" govern the Ablative. Egeo also takes the Genitive.

3. The following adjectives are followed by the Ablative without a preposition: praeditus, contentus, dignus, indignus, fretus, and liber: as,

Dignus honore, worthy of honour.

Fretus virtute militum, relying on the valour of the soldiers.

Liber metu, free from fear.

4. The Ablative, like the Genitive, is used with an adjective to describe a noun: as,

Vir summa virtute, a man of the greatest valour.

There is little difference between the Genitive and the Ablative of description, but the Ablative and not the Genitive should be used when speaking of an external part of the body: as,

Viri capillo promisso, men with flowing hair.

But

Viri tantulae staturae (or tantula statura), men of such very small stature.

Here the reference is to the whole body, not to a part of it.

N. B.—An adjective always accompanies the Genitive or Ablative of description. Of course, a Genitive which takes the place of an adjective will do well: as, Clavi digiti pollicis crassitudine, nails of the thickness of a thumb.

5. The Ablative without a preposition is used to express the parentage from which one is descended: as, Aeneas dea natus est. Aeneas was born of a goddess. If the ancestry is remote, the preposition is expressed: as,

Belgae orti sunt a Germanis. The Belgae were descended from the Germans.

6. The Ablative without a preposition expresses time within which: as,

Pons decem diebus aedificatus est. A bridge was built within ten days.

Inter (or intra) decem dies is also used.

7. The Ablative expresses by how much one thing exceeds another: as,

Hibernia est dimidio minor quam Britannia. Ireland is less by a half than Britain.

So also multis annis post (many years after), multis annis ante (many years before). Literally translated, these phrases are "afterwards by many years," etc.

N.B.—Post and ante are adverbs here. If post and ante are used as prepositions, they are placed first and govern their own case: as, post multos annos, etc.

8. The Comparative Degree governs the Ablative: as,

(a) Puer est grandior patre. The boy is taller than his father.

(b) Novi neminem fortiolem Cuesare. I know no one braver than Caesar.

Latin has also the word quam (than). If quam is used the two nouns compared are in the same Case: as,

(a) Puer est grandior quam pater.

(b) Novi neminem fortiolem quam Cacsarem.

N. B.—The Ablative may be substituted for quam and the Nominative, or quam and the Accusative, but not for quam and any other Case: as,

Locus erat magis idoneus castris quam urbi. The place was more suitable for a camp than for a city.

In this sentence urbe for quam urbi is not allowable.

9. The Ablative without a preposition is used with names of towns, small islands, and the words domus and rus to express the place from which one goes or comes.

Roma venit. He comes from Rome.

10. The Ablative without a preposition specifies in what respect a statement is true: as, claudus altero pede (lame in one foot), nulla re inferior (inferior in nothing). This Ablative is called the Ablative of Specification, or Ablative of Respect.

11. The Ablative is used with totus without a preposition in the sense of "throughout": as,

Caesar nuntios tota civitate Aeduum dimittit. Caesar dispatches messengers throughout the whole Aeduan state.

12. The Ablative without a preposition expresses the route by which: as,

Porta Collina urbem intrat. He enters the city by the Colline gate.

13. The following are the common prepositions which govern the Ablative: a or ab, coram, cum, de, ex or e, prae, pro, sine, in, sub. In and sub take the Accusative when there is motion to or towards.

14. With regard to the expression or omission of the preposition, a good working rule is: Express the preposition in Latin wherever you have it in English, unless you have a definite rule for omitting it.

(a) Caesar cum Gallis pugnavit. Caesar fought with the Gauls.

(b) Legiones circum Aquileiam hiemabant. The legions were wintering around Aquileia.

Comparison of Adjectives

The Comparative Degree of an adjective is obtained by adding ior, and the Superlative by adding issimus to the Genitive of the Positive, minus the termination: as,

altus	altior	altissimus
audax	audacior	audacissimus

The Comparative Degree is thus declined:

Singular
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	altior	altior	altius
Gen.	altioris	altioris	altioris
Dat.	altiori	altiori	altiori
Acc.	altiorem	altiore	altius
Abl.	altiore	altiore	altiore

Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	altiores	altiores	altiora
Gen.	altiorum	altiorum	altiorum
Dat.	altioribus	altioribus	altioribus
Acc.	altiores	altiores	altiora
Abl.	altioribus	altioribus	altioribus

LESSON LXXX.

THE POSITION OF WORDS, PHRASES, AND CLAUSES.

1. Attributes, whether adjectives, substantives in apposition, or oblique cases taking the place of adjectives, usually follow their substantives, but
2. Demonstratives, and adjectives of number and quantity (e.g., magnus), usually precede their substantives.
3. Rules 1 and 2 are often reversed for clearness, emphasis, or rhythm.
4. The preposition precedes its case.
5. Adverbs and adverbial phrases precede the verb or adjective which they modify.
6. Negatives precede what they negative, whether it be a word or a whole sentence. Do not say, non ferri potest, but ferri non potest.
7. Relative pronouns, interrogative pronouns, and adverbial conjunctions regularly stand at the head of their clauses.
8. In English the tendency is to bring together words which are closely connected in sense, but in Latin the tendency is to separate two words which are obviously in agreement, and to place between them all words, phrases and clauses which relate to them. In illustration, observe the following Latin sentence as it grows.
 Caesar advanced. Caesar processit.
 Here is our main subject in agreement with the main verb.
 Caesar advanced into the front rank. Caesar in primam aciem processit.
Caesar and processit are the two words in agreement. They are separated, and in primam aciem is placed between.
 Caesar, having set out from the exhortation of the tenth legion to the right wing, advanced into the front rank. Caesar ab decimae legionis cohortatione ad dextrum cornu profectus, in primam aciem processit.

Caesar and profectus are in agreement. They, too, are separated, and ab decimae legionis cohortatione ad dextrum cornu is placed between. Note also the phrase ab decimae legionis cohortatione. The preposition ab and its Case cohortatione are separated, and decimae legionis is inserted between.

Caesar, having set out from the exhortation of the tenth legion to the right wing, advanced into the front rank when he saw his men hard pressed. Caesar ab decimae legionis cohortatione ad dextrum cornu profectus, ubi suos urgeri vidit, in primam aciem processit.

The phrase "when he saw his men hard pressed" tells the time when Caesar advanced, and so it, too, is placed between Caesar and processit.

The following clause also tells what he saw before he advanced, so it, too, will be placed between Caesar and processit:

and when he saw that, the standards being collected into one place, the soldiers of the twelfth legion being all huddled together were a hindrance to themselves in the battle,

Inserting this new clause, we have:

Now, after all these things, Caesar saw

(a) that all the centurions of the fourth cohort had been killed;

(b) that the standard-bearer had been slain;

(c) that the standard had been lost;

(d) that almost all the centurions of the other cohorts had been either wounded or killed;

(e) that among them P. Sextius Baeculus, a very brave man, had been overcome with many severe wounds, so that he was not able to keep his feet.

It was because of all these things that Caesar advanced into the front rank himself. All these clauses are therefore placed between Caesar and processit. Expressing them by the Ablative Absolute, we now have:

Further, before advancing into the front rank, Caesar saw

- (a) that the rest were more inactive,
- (b) and that some in the rear were deserting the battle and going off,
- (c) that the enemy never stopped coming up from the lower ground in front,
- (d) and that they were pressing on from both sides,
- (e) and that matters were at a crisis,
- (f) and that there were no reinforcements which could be sent up.

Inserting all these clauses as before, we now have:

(verb repeated for clearness) neque ullum esse subsidium quod submitti posset, . . . in primam aciem processit.

Finally, before Caesar advanced into the front rank

(a) he snatched a shield from a soldier in the rear,

(b) because he himself had come there without shield.

Inserting these clauses as before, and adding the clauses which tell what Caesar did after he advanced into the front rank, we have the following

MODEL SENTENCE:

Caesar ab decimae legionis cohortatione ad dextrum cornu profectus, ubi suos urgeri signisque in unum locum collatis duodecimae legionis confertos milites sibi ipsos ad pugnam esse impedimento vidit, quartae cohortis omnibus centurionibus occisis signiferoque interfecto, signo amisso, reliquarum cohortium omnibus ferociter centurionibus aut vulneratis aut occisis, in his primipilo Publio Sextio Baculo, fortissimo viro, multis gravibusque vulneribus confecto ut jam se sustinere non posset reliquos esse tardiores, et nonnullos ab novissimis deserto proelio excedere ac tela vitare, hostes neque a fronte ex inferiore loco subeuntes intermittere et ab utroque latere instare, et rem esse in angusto vidit, neque ullum esse subsidium quod submitti posset, scuto ab uno novissimis uni militi detracto, quod ipse eo sine scuto venerat, in primam aciem processit centurionibusque nominatim appellatis reliquos cohortatus milites signa inferre et manipulos laxare iussit, quo facilius gladii uti possent.

Now take one of the subordinate clauses: hostes neque a fronte ex inferiore loco subeuntes intermittere.

Hostes is the subject of intermittere, and they are separated by the words referring to them.

Examine all the subordinate clauses in this way. Notice where the order above referred to is not carried out, and find the reasons. For example, in the clause, "quartae cohortis omnibus centurionibus occisis," quartae cohortis should be between the two Ablatives, centurionibus and occisis, but quartae cohortis is designedly placed first in order to mark the contrast with reli-quarum cohortium, which is also placed first in the next clause.

<sup>2</sup>In this sentence we have several subordinate clauses of time before the subject, Baeculus, is named. The reason is that Baeculus is not intimately connected with any of them, and so they are all placed outside of, not between, Baeculus and his verb accurrunt. Notice, on the other hand, that in the first three sentences, the subject Caesar is closely connected with the intervening clauses. In the first sentence it was Caesar that received the hostages, in the second it was Caesar who, etc.

<sup>7</sup>The phrase, alia ex parte oppidi, is also introduced before the subject. If you did not place this phrase where it is, where would you place it? Besides, observe that the phrase is intimately connected in meaning with the previous clause. It was when the minds of our men were occupied with that matter (i. e., with receiving the arms) in one part of the town, that Adcantuannus attempted to make a sally from another part.

<sup>8</sup>The verb for Adcantuannus is impetravit, but the sentence is so long that Caesar introduces the subject again towards the end—et hunc Adcantuannus. cum hi—cum sexcentis devotis, already mentioned. The gist of the whole sentence is as follows: Adcantuannus cum sexcentis devotis eruptionem facere conatus... repulsus in oppidum, tamen uti eadem deditionis conditione veretur, ab Crasso impetravit. Adcantuannus, though he attempted to make a sally with six hundred devoted followers, and was driven back into the town, nevertheless obtained this indulgence from Crassus that he should have the advantage of the same terms of surrender (as to the other inhabitants of the town).

vita commodis una cum his fruantur, quorum se amicitiae dederint; si quid iis per vim accidat, aut eundem casum una ferant, aut sibi mortem consciscant; neque adhuc hominum memoria repertus est quisquam,<sup>10</sup> qui, eo interfecto, cuius se amicitiae devovisset, mortem recusaret cum iis Adcantuannus eruptionem facere conatus, clamore ab ea parte munitiois sublato, cum ad arma milites concurrissent vehementerque ibi pugnatum esset, repulsus in oppidum tamen, uti eadem deditionis conditione uteretur, ab Crasso impetravit.

<sup>10</sup> Account for the unusual position of quisquam, and point out all the pairs of words as in Note 4. Observe that in clauses like ut omnibus... fruantur, where no subject is expressed, the pair is ut... fruantur, because we at once associate a Subjunctive with the conjunction which requires the Subjunctive.

Translate into Latin:

<sup>5</sup>Begin with "these things" in order to mark the connection with what went before. Notice that you have two co-ordinate verbs, "held" and "resolved." Say, inter se collocuti = having talked among themselves. Your pairs will now be: The chiefs... resolved (last word in the whole sentence); the chiefs... having talked; who... had come.

cavalry, ships and corn were wanting to the Romans and discovering the small number<sup>7</sup> of our soldiers from the smallness of the camp,<sup>8</sup> resolved to renew the war. 4. On discovering these things, the chiefs of Britain, who had come to Caesar after the battle, held a conference with one another, and, perceiving that cavalry, ships and corn were wanting to the Romans, and discovering the small number of our soldiers from the small extent of the camp (which was even more contracted than usual,<sup>10</sup> because Caesar had taken over<sup>11</sup> the legions without baggage), resolved to renew the war.

<sup>8</sup>Smallness = exiguitas. The new pairs will be: when (they) . . . perceived; and (when they) . . . discovered. The English "they" is expressed in the verb as usual, but you can imagine "when" to be after "when," where the subject would be if expressed. There is no need to repeat "when," because "discovered," being in the Imperfect Subjunctive like "perceived," it will be at once evident that "when" is understood.

<sup>12</sup>Emphasize the phrase, "without baggage," by placing it in the position of its usual position.

LESSON LXXXI.

THE POSITION OF WORDS (continued).

1. Most subordinate clauses come before the principal verb. See the model sentence in the previous exercise.
2. Final clauses frequently come after the principal verb. See last clause of the model sentence.
3. Indirect questions often come after the principal verb.
4. Clauses of result come after the principal verb.

5. The position of the following conjunctions should be noticed:

- (a) nam (for) always the first word.
- (b) namque (for) always the first word.
- (c) enim (for) after one, rarely after two words.
- (d) itaque (therefore) almost always first.
- (e) igitur (therefore) usually after one or two words.
- (f) etiam (even) immediately before the word it emphasizes; quoque and quidem immediately after.
- (g) tamen (nevertheless) first except for emphasis.
- (h) autem and vero (now, moreover, but) after one word or two, if the two are closely connected.

6. Except when there is a complete change in the subject matter, every Latin sentence should have at the beginning or near the beginning a word which will carry the mind back to the preceding sentence. This is done by such words as are detailed in 5 above, or by such words as:

- (a) interim, interea, meanwhile (i.e., while the events related in the previous sentence or sentences were going on).
- (b) hic, is, or ille, this or that (person or thing mentioned in the previous sentence).
- (c) qui, who or which (referring to somebody or something immediately preceding).
- (d) a noun or pronoun (if it is a noun or pronoun repeated from the preceding sentence).
- (e) a noun or pronoun in contrast with one in the preceding sentence.
- (f) a verb (if the subject of the verb is the same as the subject of the verb in the sentence immediately preceding).
- (g) an appropriate conjunction.
- (h) adverbs and adverbial phrases of time and place, e.g., tum, postero die, eo, ibi, huc, etc.

LESSON LXXXII.

1. Review the rules for the position of words, and the connection of clauses and periods.
2. It has been said that words in agreement are generally separated, but the relative should be placed as near as possible to the antecedent. Bring the antecedent, if necessary, towards the end of its own clause: as, Ex magna parte Morinorum ad eum legati venerunt qui se excusarent. Legati would naturally stand at the beginning.
3. Indirect narration comes after the principal verb, because the verb of speaking is quite unimportant, and in fact is often omitted.

ABSTRACT TERMS.

1. In English abstract terms are common. In I they are to be avoided except when the abstract qu itself is under discussion: as,

(a) Caesar takes possession of Rome. Caesar nam occupat.

But

(b) Cicero wrote a treatise on friendship. Cicer amicitia scripsit.

2. Abstract terms may often be avoided by expres the meaning by a verb.

(a) He made these preparations—he prepared t things.

(b) He took his departure—he went away.

(c) The enemy beat a retreat—the enemy took th selves back, or turned their backs.

3. The dependent question gets rid of an abstract noun.

(a) He did not perceive the nature and extent of the danger—he did not perceive of what kind (qualis) and how great the danger was.

(b) His destination was a general secret=nobody knew where he was going.

<sup>10</sup>consilio = the plan of Indutiomarus, which was to hold out against the invasion of Caesar with a view to obtaining the chief power in his own state for himself. After some time, however, Indutiomarus found that all the chief men were deserting him, and so he thought it wise to send ambassadors to Caesar with many plausible excuses. ea = these plausible excuses (which have been mentioned in a previous chapter).

Translate into Latin, avoiding abstract terms wherever you can:

The enemy immediately made a hasty march to the river Axona, which,<sup>1</sup> as has already been said, flowed past the rear of our camp. Finding a ford,<sup>2</sup> they made an attempt to effect a crossing with part of their forces for the purpose of storming the fort of which Q. Titurinus was in command.

LESSON LXXXIV.

THE IMPERATIVE MOOD. THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.
THE PRINCIPAL SENTENCE.

1. The Imperative Mood is used only when a command is 2nd person and affirmative: as, Desilite, inquit. "Jump down," said he. (Direct narration is used with inquit.)
2. If the command is 2nd person and negative, noli (be unwilling) and the Infinitive: as, Noli putare do not suppose; or ne and Present or Perfect Subjunctive, as Ne putes, or Ne putaveris.
3. All other commands and exhortations are to be expressed by the Present Subjunctive, whether they be negative or affirmative: as,
  - (a) Pro patria pugnemus. Let us fight for our native land.
  - (b) Aut bibat aut abeat. Let him drink or depart.
  - (c) Ne desperemus. Let us not despair.

The following table may be useful:

Commands and Exhortations.

1st and 3rd Persons	2nd Person
(a) Affirmative = Pres. Subj.	(a) Affirmative = Imper. Mood.
(b) Negative = ne and Pres. Subj.	(b) Negative = noli + Infinitive (or ne and Perf. Pres. Subj.)

4. Wishes are expressed by utinam and the
  - (a) Present Subjunctive for a wish which may be realized: as, Utinam id sit, quod spero. May my hope be realized.
  - (b) Imperfect Subjunctive for a vain wish in present time; as Utinam Caesar adesset. Would that Caesar were present (now).
Utinam Caesar adfuisset. Would that Caesar had been present (then).

The negative is ne or non.

5. The Subjunctive is used in questions of perplexity, where no answer is really expected:
- (a) Quid faciam? What am I to do?
 (b) Quid facerem? What was I to do? What should I have done?

LESSON LXXXV.

TRANSITIVE VERBS USED INTRANSITIVELY.

1. In English many verbs are used both transitively and intransitively: as,

(a) The enemy is increasing (intransitive).

(b) Caesar increases his army (transitive).

2. In Latin the same verb must not be used transitively and intransitively as in English. Latin for (a) and (b) is: (a) Hostes crescunt. (b) Caesar exercitum auget. Cresco is intransitive, augeo is transitive.

3. But there are not always two verbs in Latin for the same meaning, the one transitive and the other intransitive. When it is necessary to get the intransitive meaning from a transitive verb, turn the verb into the Passive Voice, or add the Accusative of the reflexive pronoun: thus,

(a) Caesar castra movet. Caesar moves his camp.

(b) Tellus movetur (or movet se). The earth moves (lit., the earth is moved, or moves itself).

Translate into English:

1. Ad hanc Caesar respondit: sc, magis consuetudinem suam, quam merito eorum, civitatem conservaturum priusquam murum aries attigisset, se dedidissent.

2. Romani ponte Ticinum jungunt,<sup>2</sup> tutandique propter causam castellum insuper imponunt. 3. Caesar cohortes cum exercitu suo conjunxit.<sup>3</sup> 4. P. Cra-

<sup>1</sup> se dedidissent. dedo is transitive and means I give up. deditissent therefore = if they gave themselves up. This meaning is rendered in English by "if they surrendered," because "surrender" in English is used both transitively and intransitively. In Latin, however, you must say, "if they surrendered themselves," because dedo is transitive in Latin and must have an object.

cum cohortibus legionariis duodecim et magno numero equitatus in Aquitaniam proficisci iubet ne ex his nationibus auxilia in Galliam mittantur, ac tantae nationes conjungantur.<sup>4</sup> 5. Caesar cum septimam legionem, quae juxta constiterat, item urgeri ab hoste vidisset, tribunos militum monuit ut paulatim sese legiones conjungerent.<sup>5</sup> 6. Interim Trinobantes, prope firmissima earum regionum civitas, legatos ad Caesarem mittunt pollicenturque sese<sup>6</sup> ei dedituros atque imperata facturos.

<sup>4</sup>Here the intransitive meaning is wanted, and so conjungantur is Passive Voice. In English we could say simply, "lest so great tribes should unite," but in Latin you must say either, (a) lest so great tribes be united, or (b) lest so great tribes unite themselves (se conjungant).

<sup>5</sup>"That the legions should gradually unite themselves." Instead of sese conjungerent, we might say conjungerentur.

<sup>6</sup>Notice that sese might be expected twice, once for the Accusative, subject of the Infinitive dedituros and again for the Accusative object of the Infinitive, thus: pollicenturque sese ei sese dedituros; and they promise that they (sese) will surrender themselves (sese again) to him. In all such sentences the reflexive is expressed once only. Which one do you think is omitted, subject or object?

Translate into Latin:

1. Next day they move their camp from that place.
2. Lictors, clear away<sup>1</sup> the crowd. 3. Before the enemy could move from the spot, Caesar crossed the river. 4. When the lictors approached, the rabble moved off.<sup>1</sup> 5. Caesar ordered the inhabitants of the town to surrender their persons and their arms. 6. The Gauls immediately sent ambassadors to Caesar to say that they had not entered into a league against Rome,<sup>2</sup> and that they had not<sup>3</sup> united<sup>4</sup> with the Germans. 7. Caesar sent word<sup>5</sup> to the cohorts who had

crossed the river to effect a junction<sup>6</sup> with the main body. 8. Caesar forbade the Gauls to join the Germans. 9. The mules,<sup>7</sup> baggage and all,<sup>8</sup> rolled<sup>9</sup> down into the valley.

- *Avoid the abstract noun by using a verb.     †jumentum.
 *Say, "along with their loads" (onus, -eris).
 **devolve* is transitive.

LESSON LXXXVI.

SOME IDIOMS.

1. Curo with the Accusative and the Gerundive expresses the idea that somebody is superintending the doing of something: as,

Labienus naves aedificandas esse curat. Labienus sees to (superintends, or urges on) the construction of the ships (lit., takes care that the ships should be built).

2. The Gerundive is often added in a sort of explanatory way: as,

Omnis cetera praeda diripienda data est. All the rest of the booty was given to be plundered.

3. (a) A contrary-to-fact condition in past time is expressed by the Pluperfect Subjunctive followed by the Pluperfect Subjunctive: as,

Nisi nox proelio intervenisset, nemo superfuisset. If night had not put a stop to the battle no one would have survived.

(b) If the above sentence comes under the influence of a verb of speaking, the main clause nemo superfuisset becomes, of course, Accusative and Infinitive (superfuisset taking the form superfuturum fuisse). See Lesson LXX.

Dixit, nisi nox proelio intervenisset, neminem superfuturum fuisse. He said that unless night had put a stop to the battle, no one would have survived.

(c) If instead of a verb requiring the Accusative and Infinitive, a verb requiring the Subjunctive is prefixed, superfuisset becomes superfuturus fuerit: as,

Tanta erat caedes ut, nisi nox proelio intervenisset, nemo superfuturus fuerit. So great was the slaughter that, unless night had put a stop to the battle, no one would have survived.

N. B.—When the Passive is required, the Gerundive is used: as,

Tanta erat caedes ut, nisi nox proelio intervenisset, nemo conservandus fuerit. So great was the slaughter that, unless night had put a stop to the battle, no one would have been saved.

4. The idea that something was very near happening is expressed thus:

Minimum (or haud multum) aberat quin consul interficeretur. The consul came within an ace of being killed, narrowly escaped death, was very nearly killed (lit., there was very little wanting but that the consul, etc.).

N. B.—In this construction abesse is always impersonal; it has the force of deesse, and it is followed by quin + Subjunctive.

5. Notice also the impersonal tantum abest, followed by two ut clauses.

Tantum abest ab eo ut malum mors sit, ut verear ne longius vivam. So far is death from being an evil that I fear lest I may live too long (lit., it is so far from this that death is an evil that I, etc.).

Translate into English:

1. Hoc proelio facto, reliquas copias Helvetiorum ut consequi posset, nontem in Arare faciendum curat atque ita exercitum traducit. 2. Reliquum exercitum Sabino et Cottae legatis in Menapios atque in eos pagos Morinorum, ab quibus ad eum legati non venerant, ducendum dedit. 3. Non dubium fuit quin, nisi firmata extrema agminis fuissent, ingens in eo saltu accipiēda clades fuerit. 4. Eo eum venisset, naves longas invenit instructas, neque multum abesse ab eo quin paucis diebus deduci possent.

Translate into Latin:

1. Caesar ordered the lieutenants whom he had placed in charge of the legions to see to the building of as many ships as possible in the winter, and to look after the repairing of the old ones. 2. Caesar gave three legions to Fabius to take into the territory of the Morini. 3. If the rear had not been strengthened the Romans would have sustained a great disaster. 4. He said that, if the rear had not been strengthened, the Romans would have sustained a great disaster<sup>1</sup>. 5. There was no doubt but that, if the rear had not been strengthened, the Romans would have sustained a great disaster. 6. There was no doubt but that, if the rear had not been strengthened, the Romans would have been defeated.<sup>2</sup> 7. So far am I from doing him an injury<sup>3</sup> that I intend<sup>4</sup> to confer a favour upon him.

LESSON LXXXVII.

THE FIRST AND SECOND PERSON.

1. A verb agrees with the First Person rather than with the Second or Third, and with the Second rather than with the Third: as,

(a) Ego et tu ire debemus. You and I ought to go.

(b) Ego et Caesar ire debemus. Caesar and I ought to go.

(c) Tu et Caesar ire debetis. You and Caesar ought to go.

The order is first, second, third. Do not put the First Person last, as in English.

2. Where there are several subjects the verb may be Plural as above. But the verb may agree with the subject nearest to it: as.

Neither you nor I was present. Neque ego neque tu aderamus, or Neque ego aderam neque tu.

3. Table of Ego (I) and Tu (thou).

Dat.	mihi	tibi	nobis	vobis
Acc.	me	te	nos	vos
Abl.	me	te	nobis	vobis

4. There is no third personal pronoun. Its place is supplied by the demonstratives, hic, ille, or is.

5. There is, however, a reflexive pronoun of the third person, viz.,

Singular and Plural, all genders

Nom.	wanting
Gen.	sui, of himself, (herself, itself, themselves)
Dat.	sibi
Acc.	se

6. Populo persuasisti ut classis centum navium aedificaretur.
7. Terra marique bellum geremus.
8. Cum hostes

<sup>1</sup>Personal pronouns must, of course, be expressed when there are more than one subject to the same verb. They are also expressed for contrast or emphasis.

fugaverimus, in castra nos recipiemus. 9. Cum tu et Caesar in Germania abessetis, nos castra muniebamus. 10. Longe a domo bellare non possumus. 11. Erant in ea legione fortissimi viri, centuriones, qui jam primis ordinibus appropinquarent, Titus Pulio et Lucius Varenus. Hi perpetuas inter se controversias habebant, quinam anteferretur, omnibusque annis de loco summis simultatibus contendebant. Almighty Jove, if thou art moved by any prayers, grant us thine aid. 24. Thou hast freed the city from danger and the state from fear.

SUPPLEMENTARY EXERCISES.

I.

Use Indirect Narration:

I dare not go without an army into that part of Gaul which is in your hands, and I cannot mobilize my troops without a great deal of trouble. Besides<sup>1</sup>, it is a matter of wonder<sup>2</sup> to me what business<sup>3</sup> you have in my part of Gaul<sup>4</sup> which I have conquered in war.

<sup>2</sup>Say, "it seems wonderful."

Use Indirect Narration:

And one of the captives said: "What makes you run after this worthless<sup>1</sup> and scanty<sup>1</sup> booty, when you have now a chance<sup>2</sup> of getting rich?<sup>3</sup> In three hours you can reach Aduatuca; there the Roman army has amassed all its treasure;<sup>4</sup> the garrison is so small that even<sup>5</sup> the wall cannot be manned,<sup>6</sup> and no one dares venture outside the fortifications."

the Germans, your only safety lies<sup>3</sup> in speed. As for<sup>4</sup> the plan of Cotta and those who differ from me, what is likely to be the outcome of it? <sup>4</sup>Say, "What result (exitus) has the plan of Cotta," etc.

IV.

Use Indirect Narration :

You have to-day, soldiers, the opportunity<sup>1</sup> which you have been seeking; you hold the enemy on difficult and unfavourable ground;<sup>2</sup> show<sup>3</sup> to me, your leader, the same valour which you have often shown to Caesar, your commander-in-chief, and consider that he is present and is watching<sup>4</sup> everything with his own eyes.<sup>5</sup>

V.

When Litaviceus<sup>1</sup> was about thirty miles distant from Gergovia, he suddenly called the soldiers together and<sup>2</sup> with tears in his eyes addressed them as follows: "Where are we going, soldiers? All our cavalry, all our nobility has perished; the chief men of the state, Eporedorix and Viridomarus, have been falsely accused of treason by the Romans and<sup>3</sup> put to death without trial.<sup>4</sup> Learn these facts from the men them-

XI.

(Extracts from Mommsen's History of Rome.)

To be translated into Latin after the student has read appropriate extracts from Caesar in the original.

1. That year the Helvetic invasion, which had been in preparation for many years, began. That they might not make a grant of their abandoned huts to the Germans, and might render their own return impossible, the Helvetii had burnt their towns and villages; and their long trains of waggons, laden with women, children, and the best part of their movables arrived from all sides at the Lemman Lake near Geneva, where they and their comrades had fixed their rendezvous for the 28th of March of this year. According to their own reckoning the whole body consisted of 368,000 persons of whom about a fourth part were able to bear arms. As the mountain-chain of the Jura, stretching from the Rhine to the Rhone, almost completely closed in the Helvetic country on the west, and its narrow defiles were as ill adapted for the passage of such a caravan as they were well adapted for defence, the leaders had resolved to go round in a southerly direction, and to open up for themselves a way to the west at a point where the Rhone has broken through the mountain-chain between the south-western and highest part of the Jura and the Savoy mountains. But on the right bank here the rocks and precipices came so close to the river that there remained only a narrow path which could easily be blocked up, and the Sequani, to whom this bank belonged, could with ease intercept the route of the Helvetii. They preferred, therefore, to pass over above the point, where the Rhine breaks through, to the left Allobrogian bank, with a view of regaining the right bank farther down the stream where the Rhine enters the plain, and then marching on towards the level west of Gaul where the fertile cantons of the Santones on the Atlantic Ocean were selected by the wanderers for their new abode. This march led, where it touched the left bank of the Rhone, through Roman territory; and Caesar, otherwise not disposed to acquiesce in the establishment of the Helvetii in western Gaul, was firmly resolved not to permit their passage. But of his four legions, three were stationed far off at Aquileia; although he called out in haste the militia of the Transalpine province, it seemed scarcely possible with so small a force to hinder the innumerable Celtic host from crossing the Rhone, between its exit from the Lemane lake at Geneva and the point of its breaking through the mountains, a distance of more than fourteen miles. Caesar, however, by negotiations with the Helvetii, who would gladly have effected by peaceable means the crossing of the river and the march through the Allobrogian territory, gained a respite of fifteen days, which was employed in breaking down the bridge over the Rhone at Geneva, and barring the southern bank of the Rhone against the enemy by an entrenchment nearly nineteen miles long; it was the first application of the system, afterwards carried out on so immense a scale by the Romans, of guarding the frontier of the empire in a military point of view by a chain of forts connected with each other by ramparts and ditches. The attempts of the Helvetii to gain the other bank at different places in boats or by means of fords were successfully frustrated by the Romans in these lines, and the Helvetii were compelled to desist from the passage of the Rhone.

On the other hand, the party in Gaul hostile to the Romans, which hoped to obtain a powerful reinforcement in the Helvetii, more especially the Haeduan Dumnorix, brother of Divitiaeus, and at the head of the national party in his canton as the latter was at the head of the Romans, procured for them a passage through the passes of the Jura and the territory of the Sequani. The Romans had no legal title to forbid this; but other and higher interests were at stake for them in the Helvetic expedition than the question of the formal integrity of the Roman territory—interests which could only be defended, if Caesar, instead of confining himself, as all the governors of the senate, and even Marius, had done, to the modest task of watching the frontier, should cross what had hitherto been the frontier at the head of a considerable army. Caesar was general, not of the senate, but of the state; he showed no hesitation. He had immediately proceeded from Geneva in person to Italy, and with characteristic speed brought up the three legions cantoned there, as well as two newly-formed legions of recruits.

These troops he united with the corps stationed at Geneva, and crossed the Rhone with his whole force. His unexpected appearance in the territory of the Haedui naturally at once restored the Roman party to power, which was not unimportant as regarded supplies. He found the Helvetii employed in crossing the Saone, and moving from the territory of the Sequani into that of the Haedui; those of them that were still on the left bank of the Saone, especially the corps of the Tigorini, were caught and destroyed by the Romans rapidly advancing. The bulk of the expedition, however, had already passed to the right bank of the river; Caesar followed them, and effected the passage, which the unwieldy host of the Helvetii had not been able to accomplish in twenty days, in twenty-four hours. The Helvetii, prevented by this passage of the river on the part of the Roman army from continuing their march westward, turned in a northerly direction, doubtless under the supposition that Caesar would not venture to follow them far into the interior of Gaul, and with the intention, if he should desist from following them, of turning again toward their proper destination. For fifteen days the Roman army marched behind that of the enemy at a distance of about four miles, clinging to its rear, and hoping for an advantageous opportunity of assailing the Helvetian host under conditions favourable to victory, and destroying it. But this moment came not; unwieldy as was the march of the Helvetic caravan, the leaders knew how to guard against a surprise, and appeared to be copiously provided with supplies, as well as most accurately informed through their spies of every event in the Roman camp. On the other hand, the Romans began to suffer from want of necessities, especially when the Helvetii removed from the Saone and the means of river-transport ceased. The non-arrival of the supplies promised by the Haedui, from which this embarrassment primarily arose, excited the more suspicion, as both armies were still moving about in their territory. Moreover, the considerable Roman cavalry, numbering 4,000 horse, proved utterly untrustworthy—which doubtless admitted of explanation, for they consisted almost wholly of Celtic horsemen, especially of the mounted retainers of the Haedui, under the command of Dumnorix, the well-known enemy of the Romans, and Caesar had taken them more as hostages than as soldiers. There was good reason to believe that a defeat which they suffered at the hands of the far weaker Helvetian cavalry was occasioned by themselves, and that the enemy was informed by them of all occurrences in the Roman camp. The position of Caesar grew critical; it was becoming disagreeably evident how much the Celtic patriotic party could effect even with the Haedui in spite of their official alliance with Rome, and of the distinctive interests of this canton inclining it towards the Romans; what was to be the issue if they ventured deeper and deeper into a country full of excitement, and removed daily farther from their means of communication? The armies were just marching past Bibraete, the capital of the Haedui, at a moderate distance; Caesar resolved to seize this important place by force before he continued his march into the interior, and it is very possible that he intended to desist altogether from further pursuit and to establish himself in Bibraete. But when he ceased from the pursuit and turned against Bibraete, the Helvetii thought that the Romans were making preparations for flight, and now attacked in their turn. Caesar desired nothing better. The two armies posted themselves on two parallel chains of hills; the Celts began the engagement, broke the Roman cavalry which advanced into the plain, and ran onward against the Roman legions posted on the slope of the hill, but were there obliged to give way before Caesar's veterans. When the Romans thereupon, following up their advantage, descended in their turn to the plain, the Celts again advanced against them, and a reserved Celtic corps took them at the same time in flank. The reserve of the Roman attacking column was pushed forward against the latter; it forced it away from the main body upon the baggage and the barricade of waggons, where it was destroyed. The bulk of the Helvetic host was at length brought to give way, and compelled to beat a retreat in an easterly direction—the opposite of that towards which their expedition led them. This day had frustrated the scheme of the Helvetii to establish for themselves new settlements on the Atlantic Ocean, and handed them over to the pleasure of the victor; but it had been a hot day also for the conquerors. Caesar, who had reason for not altogether trusting his staff of officers, had at the very outset sent away all the officers' horses, so as to make the necessity of holding their ground thoroughly clear to his troops: in fact the battle, had the Romans lost it, would have probably occasioned the annihilation of the Roman army. The Roman troops were too much exhausted to pursue the conquered with vigour; but in consequence of the proclamation of Caesar that he would treat all who should support the Helvetii as, like the Helvetii themselves, enemies of the Romans, all support was refused to the beaten army whithersoever it went, and, deprived of their baggage and burdened by a mass of camp-followers incapable of fighting, they were under the necessity of submitting to the Roman general.

The lot of the vanquished was a comparatively mild one. The Haedui were directed to concede settlements in their territory to the homeless Boii; and this settlement of the conquered foe in the midst of the most powerful Celtic cantons rendered almost the services of a Roman colony. The survivors of the Helvetii and Rauraci, something more than a third of the men that had marched forth, were naturally sent back to their former territory, to defend, under Roman supremacy, the frontier along the upper Rhine against the Germans.

2. Thus the threatening invasion of the Germans on the upper Rhine was obviated, and, at the same time, the party hostile to the Romans among the Celts was humbled. On the middle Rhine also, where the Germans had already crossed years ago, and where the power of Ariovistus, which vied with that of Rome in Gaul, was daily spreading, there was need of similar action, and the occasion for a rupture was easily found. In comparison with the yoke threatened or already imposed on them by Ariovistus, the Roman supremacy probably now appeared to the greater part of the Celts in this quarter the lesser evil; the minority, who retained their hatred of the Romans, had at least to keep silence. A diet of the Celtic tribes of central Gaul, held under Roman influence, requested the Roman general in the name of the Celtic nation for aid against the Germans. Caesar consented. At his suggestion the Haedui stopped the payment of the tribute stipulated to be paid to Ariovistus, and demanded back the hostages furnished; and when Ariovistus on account of this breach of treaty attacked the clients of Rome, Caesar took occasion thereby to enter into direct negotiation with him, and specially to demand, in addition to the return of the hostages and a promise to keep peace with the Haedui, that Ariovistus should bind himself to allure no more Germans over the Rhine. The German general replied to the Roman in the full consciousness of equal power and equal right, that northern Gaul had become subject to him by right of war as fairly as southern Gaul to the Romans; and that as he did not hinder the Romans from taking tribute from the Allobroges, so they should not prevent him from taxing his subjects. In later secret overtures it appeared that the prince was well aware of the circumstances of the Romans; he mentioned the invitations which had been addressed to him from Rome to put Caesar out of the way, and offered, if Caesar would leave to him northern Gaul, to assist him in turn to obtain the sovereignty of Italy.

3. Caesar sent Labienus with all the cavalry to the Rhine, with a view to hold in check the agitation in the Belgic province, and in case of need to prevent the Germans from crossing the river; another of the lieutenants, Quintus Titurius Sabinus, went with three legions to Normandy, where the main body of the insurgents assembled. But the powerful and intelligent Veneti were the true centre of the insurrection; the chief attack by land and sea was directed against them. Caesar's lieutenant, Decimus Brutus, brought up the fleet formed partly of the ships of the subject Celtic cantons, partly of a number of Roman galleys hastily built on the Loire and manned with rowers from the Narbonese province; Caesar himself advanced with the flower of his infantry into the territory of the Veneti.

But these were prepared beforehand, and had with equal skill and resolution availed themselves of the favourable circumstances which the nature of the ground in Brittany and the possession of a considerable naval power presented. The country was much intersected and poorly furnished with grain, the towns were situated for the most part on cliffs and tongues of land, and were accessible from the mainland only by shoals which it was difficult to cross; the provision of supplies and the conducting of sieges were equally difficult for the army attacking by land, while the Celts by means of their vessels could furnish the towns easily with everything needful, and in the event of the worst could accomplish their evacuation. The legions expended their time and strength in the sieges of the Venetian towns, only to see the substantial fruits of victory ultimately carried off in the vessels of the enemy.

Accordingly, when the Roman fleet, long detained by storms at the mouth of the Loire, arrived at length on the coast of Brittany, it was left to decide the struggle by a naval battle. The Celts, conscious of their superiority on the sea, brought forth their fleet against that of the Romans commanded by Brutus. Not only did it number 220 sail, far more than the Romans had been able to bring up, but their high-built, strong sailing-vessels with flat bottoms were also far better adapted for the high-running waves of the Atlantic Ocean than the low, lightly-built oared galleys of the Romans with their sharp keels. Neither the missiles nor the boarding-bridges of the Romans could reach the high deck of the enemy's vessels, and the iron beaks recoiled powerless from the strong oaken planks. But the Roman mariners cut the ropes by which the yards were fastened to the masts; the yards and sails fell down, and as the ships were thus rendered incapable of motion, the Roman boats easily succeeded by a joint attack in mastering the mained vessels of the enemy one at a time. When the Gauls perceived this manœuvre, they attempted to move from the coast on which they had taken up the combat with the Romans, and to gain the high seas, whither the Roman galleys could not follow them; but unhappily for them there suddenly set in a dead calm, and the immense fleet, toward the equipment of which the maritime cantons had applied all their energies, was almost wholly destroyed by the Romans.

4. To gain communication with Spain, moreover, Publius Crassus was sent in the following year to Aquitania with instructions to compel the Iberian tribes dwelling there to acknowledge the Roman rule. The task was not without difficulty; the Iberians were united more compactly than the Celts and knew better how to learn from their enemies. The tribes beyond the Pyrenees, especially the valiant Cantrabi, sent a contingent to their threatened countrymen. With this there came experienced officers trained under the leadership of Sertorius in the Roman fashion, who introduced as far as possible the principles of the Roman art of war, and especially of encampment, among the Aquitanian levy, already respectable from its numbers and its valour. But the excellent officer who led the Romans knew how to surmount all difficulties, and after some hardly contested but successful battles he induced the peoples from the Garonne to the vicinity of the Pyrenees to submit to the new master.

5. Now that all Gaul had been reduced to peace, there still remained the insular Celts. From the close connection between them and the Celts of the continent, especially the maritime cantons, it may readily be conceived that they had at least sympathized with the national resistance; and if they did not grant armed assistance to the patriots, they gave at any rate an honourable asylum in their sea-protected isle to every one who was no longer safe in his native land. This certainly involved a danger, if not for the present, at any rate for the future; it seemed judicious—if not to undertake the conquest of the island itself—at any rate to conduct there also defensive operations by offensive means, and to show the islanders by a landing on the coast that the arm of the Romans reached even across the channel. Accordingly Caesar set out for Britain in person with two legions. He found the coast covered with masses of the enemy's troops and sailed onward with his vessels; but the British war-chariots moved on quite as fast by land as the Roman galleys by sea, and it was only with the utmost difficulty that the Roman soldiers succeeded in gaining the shore in the face of the enemy, partly by wading, partly in boats, under the protection of the ships of war, which swept the beach with missiles thrown from machines and by the hand. In the first alarm the nearest villages submitted, but the islanders soon perceived how weak the enemy was, and how he did not venture to move far from the shore. The natives disappeared into the interior and returned only to threaten the camp; and the fleet, which had been left in the open roads, suffered very considerable damage from the first tempest that burst upon it. The Romans had to reckon themselves fortunate in repelling the attacks of the barbarians till they had bestowed the necessary repairs on the ships, and in regaining with these the Gallic coast before the bad season of the year came on.

6. Caesar himself was so dissatisfied with the results of this expedition undertaken inconsiderately and with inadequate means, that he immediately ordered a transport fleet of 800 sail to be fitted out, and sailed a second time for the Kentish coast, on this occasion with five legions and 2,000 cavalry. The forces of the Britons, assembled this time also on the shore, retired before the mighty armada without risking a battle; Caesar immediately set out on his march into the interior, and after some successful conflicts crossed the river Stour; but he was obliged to halt, very much against his will, because the fleet in the open roads had been again half destroyed by the storms of the Channel. Before they got the ships drawn up upon the beach and the extensive arrangements made for their repair, precious time was lost, which the Celts wisely turned to account.

The brave and cautious prince, Cassivellaunus, who ruled in what is now Middlesex and the surrounding district—formerly the terror of the Celts to the south of the Thames, but now the protector and champion of the whole nation—had headed the defence of the land. He soon saw that nothing at all could be done with the Celtic infantry against the Roman, and that the mass of the general levy—which it was difficult to feed and difficult to control—was only a hindrance to the defence; he therefore dismissed it and retained only the war-chariots, in which the warriors, accustomed to leap down from their chariots and fight on foot, could be employed either as cavalry or infantry. When Caesar was once more able to continue his march, he met with no more interruption to it; but the British war-chariots moved always in front and alongside of the Roman army, induced the evacuation of the country, prevented the sending out of detachments, and threatened the communications. The danger to the Romans increased with every onward step, and the attack, which the princes of Kent by the orders of Cassivellaunus made on the Roman naval camp, although it was repulsed, was an urgent warning to turn back.

7. The winter was drawing to a close when Caesar set out with his army, which meanwhile had been considerably reinforced, against the insurgents. The attempts of the Treveri to concentrate the revolt had not succeeded; the agitated districts were kept in check by the marching in of the Roman troops, and those in open rebellion were attacked in detail. First the Nervii were routed by Caesar in person. The Carnutes and the Senones met the same fate. The Menapii, the only canton which had never submitted to the Romans, were compelled by a grand attack simultaneously directed against them from three sides to renounce their long-preserved freedom. Labienus meanwhile was preparing the same fate for the Treveri. Their first attack had been paralysed, partly by the refusal of the adjoining German tribes to furnish them with mercenaries, partly by the fact that Indutiomarus, the soul of the whole movement, had fallen in a skirmish with the cavalry of Labienus. But they did not on this account abandon their projects. With their whole force they appeared in front of Labienus and waited for the German bands that were to follow, for their recruiting agents found a better reception than they had met with from the dwellers on the Rhine, among the warlike tribes of the interior of Germany. But when Labienus seemed as if he wished to avoid these and to march off in all haste, the Treveri attacked the Romans even before the Germans arrived and in a most unfavourable spot, and were completely defeated.

8. Labienus moved from Agendium up the left bank of the Seine with a view to possess himself of Lutetia, a town of the Parisii situated on an island in the Seine, and from this well-secured position in the heart of the insurgent country to reduce it again to subjection. But behind Melodunum he found his route barred by the whole army of the insurgents, which had here taken up a position between unassailable morasses, under the leadership of the aged Camulogenus. Labienus retreated a certain distance, crossed the Seine at Melodunum, and moved up its right bank unhindered towards Lutetia; Camulogenus caused this town to be burnt and the bridges leading to the left bank to be broken down, and took up a position over against Labienus in which the latter could neither bring him to battle nor effect a passage under the eyes of the hostile army.

APPENDIX.

THE VERB.

ACTIVE VOICE.

1. Learn by heart the Future Indicative and Present Subjunctive of the four Conjugations:

	Future Indicative.	Present Subjunctive.
1st Conj.	amabo	amem
2nd Conj.	monebo	moneam
3rd Conj.	rogam	rogam
4th Conj.	audiam	audiam

2. Set down the principal parts of the verb to be conjugated :
 laudo            laudare            laudavi            laudatum

3. Next make out the skeleton of the table for all Moods and Tenses thus :

	laudo	laudare		laudavi	laudatum
Indic.	Pres.			Pf.
	Impf.			Pf.
Subj.	Pres.			Pf.

Imper. Pres.
Infjn. Pres.		laudare
Part. Pres.				Pf.	Fut.
Gerund				Pf.	Fut.

5. Cut off re from the Present Infinitive and write down the remainder in every blank space of the first column. Cut off i from the Perfect and write down the remainder in every blank space in the second column, except where the Tense is wanting :

laudo		lauda   re	laudav   i	laudatum
Indic.	{ Pres.	laudo	Pf.	laudavi

8. In the fourth Conjugation the spelling of the Imperfect Indicative, the Present Participle, and the Gerund has to be particularly observed—audiebam, audiens, audiendi.

9. Irregular verbs will be learned by simply noticing the parts which do not follow the above scheme. There are never any irregularities in the second column.

RULES FOR CONJUGATING THE TENSES.

1. The Perfect is unlike the other Tenses. Learn it by heart :

Sing.	{	1. rex	i	tul	i ( perf. of fero )
		2. rex	isti	tul	isti
		3. rex	it	tul	it
Pl.	{	1. rex	imus	tul	imus
		2. rex	istis	tul	istis
		3. rex	erunt ( or ere )	tul	erunt ( or ere )

2. Learn the endings for the other Tenses :

Sing.	{	1.	—mus	Pl.	{	1.	—mus
		2.	—tis			2.	—tis
		3.	—nt			3.	—nt

3. The next question is, what vowel precedes these endings ?

(a) When a Tense ends in m, use the vowel before the m, except in the Future Indicative 3rd and 4th Conjugations where a changes to e :

Pres. Subj.	Impf. Indic.	Pf. Subj.	Pres. Subj.	Fut. Indic.
amem	audiebam	rexerim	regam	regam
es	as	is	as	es
et	at	it	at	et
emus	amus	imus	amus	emus
etis	atis	itis	atis	etis
ent	ant	int	ant	ent

(b) When a Tense ends in o, it must be Future Perfect Indicative, Future Indicative of the 1st or 2nd Conjugations, or Present Indicative. For the Future Perfect the vowel is always i : rexero, -is, -it, -imus, -itis, -int.

For the Future of the 1st or 2nd Conjugation the vowel is i with u in the 3rd Plural : laudabo, -is, -it, -imus, -itis, -unt.

In the Present Indicative the vowel for the 1st Conjugation is a, for the 2nd Conjugation e, for the 3rd Conjugation i with u in the 3rd Plural, and for the 4th Conjugation i with u in the 3rd Plural :

Pres. Indic. 1st Conj.	2nd	3rd	4th
laudo	moneo	rego	audio
as	es	is	is at	et	it	it
amus	emus	imus	imus
atis	etis	itis	itis
ant	ent	unt	iunt

Passive Voice.

1. The table of the Passive Voice is as follows, and it may be learnt in the same way:

	amo	amare	amavi	amatum
Indic.	Pres.	amor	Pf.	amatus sum
	Impf.	amabar	Plpf.	amatus eram
	Fut.	amabor	FtPf.	amatus ero
Subj.	Pres.	amer	Pf.	amatus sim

Imper. Pres.	amare
Infīn. Pres.	amari		Pf.	amatus esse
Part. Pres.	(wanting)		Pf.	amatus
Gerundive	amandu			Fut. amatum iri

2. To obtain the different persons of the Tenses in the second column, conjugate the word sum, and change the Participle amatus to agree with the subject—amata, amati, amatae, etc.

3. To obtain the different persons of the Tenses in the first column, substitute the Passive endings for the Active endings. They are as follows:

Sing.	{ 1. ---	Pl.	{ 1. ---mur
	{ 2. ---ris		{ 2. ---mini
	{ 3. ---tur		{ 3. ---ntur

The vowel is the same in the Passive as in the Active, except in the 2nd Singular Present Indicative of the 3rd Conjugation, and in the 2nd Singular Future Indicative of the 1st and 2nd Conjugations.

Nom. bellum (n.)		bella
Gen. belli		bellorum
Dat. bello		bellis
Acc. bellum		bella
Abl. bello		bellis
Nom. vir (m.)		viri
Gen. viri		virorum (virum)
Dat. viro		viris
Acc. virum		viros
Abl. viro		viris

THIRD DECLENSION.

Singular		Plural
Nom. miles (m.)		milites
Gen. militis		militum
Dat. militi		militibus
Acc. militem		milites
Abl. milite		militibus
Nom. lex (f.)		leges
Gen. legis		legum
Dat. legi		legibus
Acc. legem		leges
Abl. lege		legibus
Nom. opus (n.)		opera
Gen. operis		operum
Dat. operi		operibus
Acc. opus		opera
Abl. opere		operibus

Most nouns ending in -es or -is, not increasing a syllable in the Genitive Singular, have -ium in the Genitive Plural:

Singular		Plural
Nom.	nubes (f.)	nubes
Gen.	nubis	nubium
Dat.	nubi	nubibus
Acc.	nubem	nubes
Abl.	nube	nubibus
Nom.	hostis (m.)	hostes (is)
Gen.	hostis	hostium
Dat.	hosti	hostibus
Acc.	hostem	hostes (is)
Abl.	hoste	hostibus

Most nouns in -s or -x, preceded by a consonant, have -ium in the Genitive Plural:

Singular		Plural
Nom.	mons (m.)	montes
Gen.	montis	montium
Dat.	monti	montibus
Acc.	montem	montes
Abl.	monte	montibus

Singular		Plural
Nom.	vis (f.) (force, violence, might)	vires (strength)
Gen.	—	virium
Dat.	—	viribus
Acc.	vim	vires
Abl.	vi	viribus

N.B.—Mare (n.), the sea, has -i in the Ablative Singular, and -ia in the Nominative and Accusative Plural. The Genitive Plural is -um, but it is seldom found. Ignis, fire, and navis, a ship, have -i in the Ablative Singular.

FOURTH DECLENSION.

Singular		Plural
Nom.	passus (m.)	passus
Gen.	passus	passuum
Dat.	passui (u)	passibus
Acc.	passum	passus
Abl.	passu	passibus

N.B.—Domus (f.), a house, has the Ablative Singular and the Accusative Plural like the 2nd Declension—domo, domos. Domus (also domus) is used as an adverb, meaning "at home." A few words have -ubus instead of -ibus in the Dative and Ablative Plural.

FIFTH DECLENSION.

Singular		Plural
Nom.	res (f.)	res
Gen.	rei	rerum
Dat.	rei	rebus
Acc.	rem	res
Abl.	re	rebus
Nom.	dies (m.)	dies
Gen.	diei	dierum
Dat.	diei	diebus
Acc.	diem	dies
Abl.	die	diebus

N.B.—In Genitive and Dative Singular ē is found for ei, in the Genitive also i.

Vocative and Locative Cases.

A case called the Vocative is used like the Nominative of Address in English. Its termination is the same as that of the Nominative, except with nouns of the 2nd Declension ending in -us, which have -e. Proper names and some common nouns in -ius contract ie of the Vocative into i: as, Horatius, Horati; filius, fili. Deus has deus in the Vocative.

Still another case is the Locative, which gives the idea of place when. Some examples are: domi (at home), ruri (in the country), Romae (at Rome), Corinthi (at Corinth).

DECLENSION OF THE ADJECTIVE.

Adjectives take the terminations of the Declension to which they belong, but adjectives of the 3rd Declension have -i in the Ablative Singular instead of -e, -ium in the Genitive Plural instead of -um, and -ia in the Nominative and Accusative Neuter instead of -a.

N.B.—Adjectives in the comparative degree and vetus (old) have -e in the Ablative Singular, -um in the Genitive Plural, and -a in the Nominative and Accusative Plural Neuter. Present Participles, used as Adjectives, generally take -e in the Ablative Singular; but they prefer -i when used as epithets.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.
