TIMBER INQUIRY WAS COSTLY BUSINESS, SAYS R. T. HARDING

Crown Counsel Tells How He Financed Investigation Himself.

WHERE MONEY WENT

Former Crown Counsel R. T. Harding appeared before the public accounts committee of the legislature yesterday to give evidence in connection with a payment made to him of $50,000 during the progress of the timber inquiry. He explained that he had spent $25,000 of his own money without any arrangement with the government; said his disbursements for the timber inquiry were about $70,000; that his own bill for services will be about $12,000; admitted having paid one Rochester $30,000 or more, but would not say that Rochester's services had served the ends of the Callahan, nor would he admit knowledge that Callahan was an employee of Backus. Mr. Harding told of having introduced Backus to Premier Drury.

Friend of Treasurer. Mr. Harding further testified he dissolved partnership with H. H. Dewart in 1919. Prior to coming to Toronto he practiced in Stratford and knew Hon. Peter Smith, the provincial treasurer. He was surprised when asked to act on the timber probe.

It was in December, 1919, said witness, that he had a retainer from Callahan. It was not in writing. Callahan was his private client and he did not think it was fair for the public accounts committee to discuss Callahan's affairs. Mr. Harding said he had appeared before the cabinet to make representations regarding complaints concerning the department of lands, forests and mines. "In substance, what I said before the cabinet," began Mr. Harding, "I cannot permit you to say what happened before the council," said Chairman Curry.

"Is the chairman directing this inquiry or assisting the witness?" asked Mr. Ferguson. "The chairman is not directing this inquiry," said Mr. Harding. "You are not permitted to say what I have met for a long time," said Mr. Ferguson.

"Do you shake hands with you?" said Mr. Harding, who then admitted that he had derived most of his information from political friends. Government Paid Him. Explaining the item of $50,000 in the accounts, Mr. Harding said he had to engage accountants. He spent $25,000 of his own money, gave the government a receipt, spent another $25,000 and then got another cheque for $25,000.

"I made no arrangements with anybody, except that I said to Peter, 'I admit some money,'" said Mr. Harding. "Who is Peter?" asked Mr. Curry. "The provincial treasurer." "Do you mean to say you went ahead and spent $25,000 of your own money without any arrangement?"

"Yes," said Mr. Harding. "I presented all he had received to me, cost of employing experts, accountants and traveling expenses. It did not include anything for entertainment. He had paid $2,000 each to the two judges conducting the inquiry. Witness said he paid all the disbursements, including J. M. McBrody. As near as he could tell the actual disbursements paid out by him total $71,000, not including his own fees, with the exception of $2,000 on account. Four or five accounts are still outstanding.

"What is your own account?" "My account will be taxed." "What is your estimate?" "I have no estimate."

Charge by Day. "Don't trifle with us, please," said Mr. Ferguson. "Here you have been engaged on the biggest job you ever had in your life, surely you know what you're going to charge." "I am going to charge on a per diem basis." "At what rate?" "At what rate?" "I am thinking of charging $50 per day for preparation and $100 per day in court." "Approximately there will be $6,000 coming to you for preparation and $600 for your work in court." "About that?" "And these must be added to the disbursements amounting to $71,000." "Yes."

"And there are more accounts to come in?" "Yes." "How much have you paid Rochester (the man who made the resale of the Shevlin-Clarke berth)?" "Over $20,000."

"It will amount to more than that?" "Possibly $33,000 to $35,000." "How did you get hold of Mr. Rochester?" "I think Mr. Hurdman recommended him to me."

"He operated in the Fort Frances district?" "Yes." "So that Callahan would get all the benefit?" "Oh, no; I would not say that."

"Who is Callahan?" "The $25,000 of provincial money was spent while you had a retainer from Callahan, investigate the Shevlin-Clarke Co.?" "Oh, no."

"Do you mean to say that Callahan has not succeeded and not achieved his purpose thru you?" "Oh, no."

"Who is Callahan? Is he not an employee of Backus?" "I don't know that he is."

"Is he not in close communication with Backus?" "He knew that Backus was then at Queen's Park to secure a timber limit, but he did not know it was the English River limit he was after."

Witness swore that he had never either directly or indirectly had any communication with A. D. George concerning any deal which E. W. Backus was interested in.

"Very well. We will see about it," said Mr. Ferguson. The committee adjourned until Friday morning. Mr. Harding being instructed to bring along all papers he has under his control.

CHALLENGE LEADER TO NAIL THE HIDES

(Continued From Page 1). tained, he said him, and if he did not do what the attorney-general or prime minister wanted him to do he would be dismissed. This is what had taken place. Mr. White's pay had been cut because he would not do what the government wanted him to do, and very properly, too.

Mr. Ferguson spoke strongly against the government for its failure to instruct its counsel to inquire into crown lands affairs prior to the Conservative regime.

The premier interjected to ask Mr. Ferguson if it would not have been possible for the Conservative party to have conducted an investigation into the crown lands department after they had been in office for 15 years, to look into transactions which they now hint at.

Was Beside Question. Mr. Ferguson answered that this was beside the question now raised, namely, that the present inquiry should not have confined its investigation into things which had happened during the Conservative regime, but should have gone back to the days of the old Liberal government as well.

It was a public scandal, Mr. Ferguson insisted, that the attorney-general should have asked a member of former Liberal government to inquire into the administration of a succeeding government. As recently as the last sitting of the commission Judge Latchford had said he had looked into this under the old Liberal regime and had found everything in order. He had prejudged things and practically said, "Come on Ferguson, make your charges. I have looked into things and find nothing wrong."

Paid Over Five Thousand. In reply, the attorney-general said Peter White had acted before the commission from May to September, and had been paid $4248, on the basis of $125 a day, plus $500 for disbursements. The commission of inquiry, Mr. Raney maintained, had every possible scope; their activities were not restricted; it was, in short, a wide open inquiry.

Mr. White's tone towards the government in his letter referring to the case, was resented by the attorney-general as being insolent and truculent, when there was nothing to justify the adoption of such a tone. Mr. White had at any time within his power to inquire into the affairs of the crown lands department under the Liberal regime. He had not done so, altho he could have, had he so desired.

Mr. Ferguson: Why did you not instruct Counsel Harding to make that inquiry also? Mr. Raney: Listen to the hon. gentleman. First he says Mr. Harding is prejudging, and he does not approve of his action, and he did not approve of Mr. Harding had not inquired into affairs during the old Liberal regime. Proceeding, Mr. Raney declared that, in appointing a judicial commission, the government was acting simply as a desire to improve a great public department, and now an effort was being made to make it appear as if the government were actuated by partisanship. The government had no object in endeavoring to fix the blame for fraudulent transactions on the Conservative, and not the Liberal administration. The present government had as many Conservative as Liberal followers, and he, himself, had never voted Liberal in Ontario during the last thirty years. The charge of partisanship did not hold.

The Nailing of Hides. They had all heard about Mr. Ferguson's famous remark about nailing hides of certain people on the fence. This was made some months ago, at the Conservative convention in Massey Hall. Perhaps Mr. Ferguson was holding his fire. But, then, only last week, he had repeated the remark at a banquet in his honor, and said he would later make good his remark.

Let not him who puts his armor on boast at him who puts his armor off," said the attorney-general, pointing his finger straight at Mr. Ferguson. The Conservative leader, Mr. Raney went on, had much better bring forward facts than make threats.

"I suggest to the hon. member that he come forward and tell the public all about what he knows," said Mr. Raney. The house had been told by Mr. Ferguson that the timber probe had accomplished nothing, when, as everybody knew, frauds of a colossal nature had been disclosed. It was now common knowledge that public opinion had been demoralized in the north country, and that the Ten Commandments had been forgotten by certain men guilty of perpetrating frauds in the expectation of making millions by a noble thing for the judges to go into the country and get information from employees who did not want to give evidence.

May Be More to Come. The attorney-general also observed that the work of the timber probe was not over, by any means, yet. The attorney-general had received a letter from Peter White, who had been appointed to assist in getting at the truth before the timber inquiry, in which he had said that the failure of the investigation to rest on those who initiated this. Such an observation was deserving coming from a man who had been appointed to aid the inquiry, and the government did not propose to be talked to that way by a man whom it was paying to aid in making the inquiry into the affairs of a government department.

Authorities on Procedure. During the debate, Mr. Ferguson, who frequently interjected with questions, spoke at too great a length to suit the prime minister. When that gentleman objected Mr. Ferguson insisted he was not violating any rules of the house, and was perfectly in order.

We marvel returned the prime minister, "at the ability to conduct the affairs of the house." Z. Magee (Liberal, Sturgeon Falls) defied Hon. Mr. Ferguson to go after the hides he threatened to nail on the fence. When the member did that would find Mr. Magee waiting to question him.

Hon. Mr. Ferguson was also criticized for discriminating against the small lumber dealers of the province. Mr. Magee said the former minister, in compelling one lumber man to sign a bond for $90,000, while in another, exactly the same, he only required a bond for $9,000, was dishonouring the industry.

Mr. Ferguson denied knowledge of the incident, and secured a retraction of the statement. The debate for the time being, and the house rose at 6 o'clock.

(Continued From Page 1). "sudden" government and he said he knew nothing of this except from hearsay. The cross-examination, he was asked what he knew about the whiskey ring mentioned by the attorney-general to the deputation which waited on him asking for the reinstatement of Magistrate Hastings. Addie said some residents had evidently stocked their cellars, some in whose names had been connected in town gossip with the whiskey ring.

Starts to Give Names. Attorney McPherson asked the witness to look over exhibit nine, and give the names of those he had seen with the sell, or Mr. Hastings, protested vigorously against this, but the witness sang out the names of several. One of the names given was G. C. Biddle, M. Edgcomb, J. A. Burns, and every one who gave the quantities received by each. Counsel, again protested at the attempt to hold residents up to the community, and threw a bomb into the court by stating that a prominent citizen of Toronto, a member of the demonstration which is pushing the Dunville inquiry, had received twenty tons of liquor into his home.

"This man" (giving his name) "now has over $5000 in his residence at home, and he hasn't been accused of being in a whiskey ring."

When he received an answer, he shook the commissioner rebuked counsel for introducing matters irrelevant to the case and ordered the witness to be sworn. He also suggested that the witness mark the names mentioned with an "X" on the list of names, and amounts of shipments later. One of the names mentioned was J. M. McBrody, and he had received twenty barrels. In one shipment he received one hundred cases.

Mr. White said that he had seen his report to the department was that conditions in Dunville improved toward the fall of 1919. In his opinion, the administration picture was almost like a force in a smoking in the court room. He saw no evidence of influence of whiskey or political ring on the magistrate, he admitted.

Says Hastings Too Kind. Captain G. B. Hunter, colonial officer, said he lived in Dunville from last September 1 to January, and found Mr. Hastings a most gentlemanly official. He went into Hastings' printing office on business, and heard the crown attorney talk to the magistrate in regard to an adjournment in one case, and in regard to a fine in the other. He formed the opinion from Mr. Hastings' replies and actions that the attorney was trying to get the magistrate to do something against him legally or morally. He had too kind a man to administer O.T.A., and that was his opinion. In cross-examination, he stated he believed that Mr. Hastings had weakened under the influence of the lawyers, and expressed surprise when told it was common practice for crown attorneys to consult with the magistrate regarding punishment to be inflicted. He admitted that Dunville was a great town for whispering and gossiping.

Minister Testifies. Rev. Mr. West, Presbyterian minister at Dunville, admitted that members of the Ministerial Association had complained about law enforcement in the town and stated he signed the petition for an inquiry. He considered David Hastings as an honest and upright private citizen, but would not express any opinion of him as a magistrate. He had heard the case, O.T.A., and he did not approve of the case, and he did not approve of the witness, however, did not think Mr. Hastings had done anything wrong, as some alleged, but he did not think there was as much respect for the Dunville police as there was for those who favored liquor and those opposed, the absence of a community spirit. He said the presence of many factory workers, who liked excitement, was probably the reason that made Dunville appear to be less orderly than some residential towns. The inquiry will likely last all week.

MORRISON CALLS C.M.A. CANADA'S "ONE BIG UNION"

Peterboro, Ont., March 2.—(By Canadian Press).—Declaring that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is the most powerful organization in the Dominion, and referring to it as "The Big Union of Canada," J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, last night, at Keene, Ont., made a strong appeal to his hearers for a class consciousness among farmers.

Mr. Morrison condemned the "old-line" parties and advised United Farmers to have nothing to do with them. He reviewed the development of the F. movement in Ontario and its extension to all parts of the Dominion.

THREE IN SAME FAMILY BENEFIT

Saranac Farmer Says Tanlac Has Restored His Wife, Daughter and Himself.

"This is the medicine that restored my wife, my daughter and myself, all to good health, and I don't intend to be without it," said N. M. Bartlett, a well-known farmer residing at Saranac, Mich.

"I am glad of the chance to say something good for Tanlac. We have had different kinds of sickness in my family for a number of years and we tried a lot of different medicines, but Tanlac is ahead of them all. My wife suffered for many months in her arms, legs and shoulders for several years. Her household was more than a burden upon her, and when she underwent the treatment she was cured in a few days afterwards. Her joints would swell up almost twice their normal size, and she could hardly get around. Her appetite was poor, and what she ate didn't seem to give her any strength."

"I read so much about Tanlac I decided she ought to try it, so I got her two bottles and it certainly proved to be a fine thing for her. She is in now never has a headache or pain of any kind, has a fine appetite, sleeps well and is doing all her household work without the least trouble. After seeing how it helped her, I decided to try it myself. I suffered an attack of 'flu' last fall which left me in a general run-down condition, and nothing I could get hold of in the way of medicine seemed to help me. But it didn't take very many bottles of Tanlac to get me up on my feet. I was like a horse, and a hard day's work with the plow doesn't bother me at all. Then my daughter got wonderfully well, and she is now a fine young woman. It is sure is remarkable how Tanlac built me up, and since then we wouldn't think of being in any way sick."

Tanlac is sold in Toronto by Tamhlyn Drug Stores, and by an established agency in every town.

VOTES EXPECTED IN COMMONS TODAY

(Continued From Page 1). of representation in the house of commons. Leads was unrepresented because the speaker said he had accepted an office of emolument under the crown. St. Antoine division of Montreal was unrepresented because the member for that riding had been suppressed. He quoted from an interview given by Sir Herbert Ames last July, in which he said that his resignation of that time was in the hands of Mr. Speaker.

Of Hon. Mr. Guthrie, Mr. Lapointe said that he had been over every side in a public question during the past five years. Quoting from Mr. Calder's speech in Regina, in which the minister said that he had not intended to hold the post of premier until 1917, and while he had talked before as a matter of politics, he had done so like a parrot. "The honorable gentleman continued Mr. Lapointe, amid uproarious laughter, "is still a parrot, but he has found a new master."

Mr. Pardee of West Lambton moved the adjournment of the debate. Mr. Lapointe, in reply, moved a motion for a resolution.

Argues for Dissolution. Ottawa, March 2.—(By Canadian Press).—"Those who would rule this country," dramatically exclaimed Mr. Lapointe at the hour of this afternoon, "have no right to represent it at the coming imperial conference, and we shall not consider ourselves bound by any decision arrived at there."

Mr. Lapointe is the leader of French-speaking Liberals from Quebec and now represents the division of Quebec East, which Sir Wilfrid Laurier represented for so long. He was speaking at the time of the conference of the British Empire in London next June, and his declaration followed an arraignment of the government's right to remain in office. He declared that a "tyro" would not be represented at the conference.

Cheered by Liberals again and again, Mr. Lapointe quoted a formidable array of British constitutional authorities to support the opposition demand for a dissolution of parliament. The authority of a government to remain in office was the nation, and when had the present administration received the approval of the electors? "I have not a drop of Anglo-Saxon blood in my veins," he declared, "but I want to see British principles of government prevail in Canada. The majority of the government had fallen from 70 to 20 and perhaps 15, and yet the minister of militia had the 'gall' to call Liberal a renegade. He would the mean of the nation, and he would the mean of the nation, and he would the mean of the nation."

Mr. Lapointe withdrew the "man," apologizing that he was still a "tyro" in English—at which the whole house laughed.

EXPERT CONFUSED IN HYDRO PROBE

Dr. Herdt Refuses Answers Unless Specific Figure Given Him.

Robert McKay, K.C., counsel for pro-Hydro municipalities, managed to score yesterday afternoon at the resumed session of the Hydro radial probe. Dr. L. A. Herdt, professor of engineering at McGill University, was cross-examined by counsel, who succeeded in getting the expert slightly confused, also to qualify some of his statements made at Tuesday's session. The estimates compiled by the Hydro commission showed that $6.8 cents was considered to be sufficient to cover the cost of operation of one car over a distance of one mile. The professor stated, in his opinion, that the cost of operation per car mile would be nearer 35 cents.

Mr. McKay: "Didn't you admit that it was slightly cheaper to operate electric lines than steam lines?" Witness admitted this.

Mr. McKay: "Well, your figures must be slightly off, for estimates compiled show that the cost of operation through Canada of the steam lines is 16.7 cents per car mile. How do you reconcile the two statements?" Witness: "That was on passenger traffic only."

"No, it wasn't," was the reply. "It was for all kinds of operation." On being further questioned regarding operation costs, Dr. Herdt stated that he had nothing to say unless specific figures were given him.

Of the five Hydro radial lines, the Toronto-St. Catharines, Toronto and Eastern, Hamilton-Elmira-Guelph, Toronto-Surburban and Niagara Central, the doctor said that a sinking fund of one per cent should be provided, or an extra charge of $45.50 per annum, making a total expected deficit of 71.291 per annum. SIX-YEAR-OLD GIRL HAS LEG FRACTURED

Jumps From Rear of Lumber Wagon and Is Struck by Auto.

Struck by an auto driven by Norman Winters, Lambton Mills, opposite her home late yesterday afternoon, six-year-old Blanche Ball, 22 Symington avenue, received a fracture of the leg. She was removed to her home by Winters, who reported the accident to the police. He was not held.

The little girl, the police say, was stealing a ride on a lumber wagon and jumped from the rear of the wagon directly in the path of Winters' auto. So sudden was her appearance that Winters was unable to avoid the accident.

Work at Abattoir Goes On Without Federal Inspectors

Acting Mayor Maguire is taking up with the federal minister of agriculture the action of the eight government inspectors at the civic abattoir in withdrawing from the plant as a protest against what they termed inferior dining room accommodation. They left their work on Monday and have not yet returned.

W. R. Corneil, the manager of the abattoir, says the city is not obliged to provide dining room accommodation for the inspectors and in any case did not have space at the abattoir for that purpose. He announces that killing will go on without government inspectors, and suggests that it might be well to appoint competent city inspectors to do the work permanently.

PLEA FOR COMPLETE GOOD ROADS SYSTEM

Urge Necessity for Reaching Every Settled Portion of the Province.

TORONTO CONVENTION

No Better Expenditure Can Be Made, Lieutenant-Governor Declares.

That Ontario should make every effort to construct a good roads system reaching every settled portion of the province at the present time, when it was proved that up to 100 miles motor transportation was found to be the cheapest, was the statement made by L. E. Allen in his presidential address before a combined annual convention yesterday of the Ontario Good Roads Association and road construction conference at the Ontario Veterinary College.

His honor the lieutenant-governor, Lionel Clarke, delivered a brief address in which he stated the government felt that no better expenditure could be made than in the construction and maintenance of good roads. Controller Maguire welcomed the convention to Toronto and said that the city was heartily in accord with the progressive movement regarding a good roads system, which would benefit both the city and the municipality. Service and co-operation was the ideal to strive for.

Matter of Evolution. The development of a well-balanced highway system serving an area so vast as Ontario could not be accomplished in a decade, said Mr. Allen in his address. It was a matter of evolution, education and gradual growth. He spoke of the great success Canada had spent on her railway systems in opening up the country in comparison with the service that could be rendered the municipalities by the service of other means of transportation. In the opinion of the speaker, the motor license revenue was producing a growing fund for the building and maintenance of highways, and he was glad to see in that connection that the tendency was to adopt more careful methods in road construction, followed up by a thorough system of maintenance. The permanent road, said he, did not exist, altho, as in the case of the Roman road, the foundation was still intact. A proper foundation was necessary if a highway was to reach maximum efficiency but the patrol system, which was recommended by the department, was also necessary.

Held Many Meetings. Many meetings, said Mr. Allen, had been held all over Canada during the last year, conspicuous among which had been the 85 held in Ontario under the auspices of the Michigan Truck Association. The efforts had been made to secure the cooperation of various boards of trade, etc., also. Time was valuable, he concluded, and the ability to move from place to place quickly and with the greatest ease had become a predominant feature of our common life. The association had to go forward to a broad highway of good intention and high endeavor, with the watchword "progress" ever before them. An address on "Concrete Road Construction" was given by John F. Millen of Essex county, which was fully discussed. He proved the benefit of a five-foot road, the degree of permanency was expected, to keep the water from cracking the concrete. Uniform sub-grade, well drained, he felt to be most important.

Question of Expense. S. A. Cumford, chief engineer of the Toronto-Hamilton highway commission, said that erroneous reports had appeared recently in newspapers to the effect that the highway was three times as expensive to maintain as a macadam road. The maintenance statement of the commission showed that in the last five years the average cost per mile of concrete road had been $37, whereas for the same amount of traffic a macadamized road had cost $2,898.27. In answer to the question that concrete was not suitable to this climate, Mr. Cumford said that some 3,000,000 square yards of concrete had been laid and that it was being laid at present.

Mr. Van Seters, engineer-in-chief of the commission, said that what was desired was a concrete that resisted wear. He felt that the type of machinery most used in surveying would be different to former types. Professor Lang of the University of Toronto, pointed out the increasing danger to pedestrians on the highways and emphasized the importance of an examination by the engineering society of an examination of the focus of the reflecting lens defeated the object of its construction. Geo. S. Henry, M.L.A., also spoke.

DEATH ACCIDENTAL IS STORY'S VERDICT

Bedroom Was Full of Gas When William Crawford Was Found Dead.

The words "Margaret Crawford, 324 Manitoba avenue, written on a piece of paper, and "Margaret, Xmas, 1897," in a book, constitute the only clues so far obtained by the police with regard to relatives of Wm. Crawford, aged 77, 17 Echo street, who, after being discovered dead in bed in his room on the morning of Feb. 23, was found to have over $3000 in three or four banks.

Coroner Pickering's jury at the inquest last night found that the death was accidental. Evidence given by the landlady, Mrs. Jessie McEwen, that he had lit both the gas jet and the gas plate a previous occasion before retiring, and had left them burning all night, as she could hear the meter going, and that on Tuesday she had cleaned his room, and she found nothing in the way of gas in the room, was sufficient to find on the evening of Feb. 23, and the next morning she could not get any response on trying to light the gas jet. He became alarmed and called the police. The gas jet and plate were burning, while one burner, not lighted, was turned on, and the rubber connection was broken. The fact that no explosion occurred was remarked upon by the coroner, as both the window and the door were open.

Crawford had some $27 in cash in his clothes, also he had not paid his rent for two weeks. He had promised to pay his rent when he had recovered from a cold from which he was suffering. A. J. Lester appeared for the crown.

E. L. Cousins Urges Them to Get Behind Harbor Commission Scheme.

In an address on the industrial possibilities in Toronto, E. L. Cousins, industrial commissioner, pointed out the real estate board last night in their regular monthly dinner, that the real estate men had to get behind some such harbor commission as that proposed by the harbor commission if they (or the city) were to reap any benefit resulting from the construction of a harbor.

The harbor commission, said he, were trustees for real estate in Toronto, and he invited the board to draw up the real estate board last night in which they could obtain only thru it. #### Spring Hats for the Younger Generation

Mothers are sure to appreciate the smart simplicity and fine quality of the new Spring Hats, and especially the moderate prices quoted for them. In such well-known and much-liked straws as Tagel, Lisere, and Milan are some lovely hats, tailored or trimmed, and there are any number of fancy straws, made up in combination with Georgette or satin.

One special line of hats, priced as low as $3.95, are in ready-to-wear poke shapes in a fine straw, resembling Milan. Others have roll or drooping brims, and can be had in navy and white, black and white, brown and sand, or in solid colors. Bands and bows or bands and streamers of corded ribbon trim the most of these hats; a few have a touch of wool ornamentation.

A particularly pretty that is of novelty straw braid in shimmering browns and blues with sectional crown of French blue silk; a soft roll of the silk, run through loops of the straw braid, forms the roll brim with streamer ends of the silk. A navy blue straw poke, faced with French blue Georgette and sporting a lovely wreath of foliage in the same shade of French blue, has a loose knot of narrow silk ribbon as a streamer.

Equally attractive is a brow hat with shaded brown foliage and realistic fruit and flowers across the front, while glittering golden brown straw braid is used as a facing with binding of novelty ribbon in brown and gold thread edge.

Bring the girls in while the assortment is at its best and get their new Spring Hats.

We are justly proud of the fine selection from which you may make a choice.

News of Interest to Home Furnishers About Wilton Rugs

While you can't fail to notice the firm, heavy weave of a Wilton Rug at the time of purchasing it is not until at least twelve months later, when you find the rug shows no signs of wear, that its full value begins to be appreciated. Wilton Rugs claim no superiority over other machine-made rugs in coloring and design, though every bit as good. They do, however, claim first place in durability. And it is because of their durability that Wiltons have come to be recognized as the most economical household rug.

Consider the foregoing together with the fact that we are now disposing of a collection of some hundreds of Wilton Rugs—all sizes—at today's mill prices—averaging one-third under retail regular prices.

These are some of the representative sale values.

CHAMP CLARK DEAD, NOTED POLITICIAN

Former Speaker of U.S. House and Had Good Chance for Presidency.

Washington, March 2.—Champ Clark died here today at 2:10 p.m. in his seventy-first year, and within two days of his retirement from the house of representatives, after a service of 28 years.

Death was due to an attack of pleurisy and a complication of diseases incident to his advanced age. Up to ten days ago, however, when he developed a severe cold, Mr. Clark had shared actively in proceedings of the house as Democratic leader.

The late Champ Clark was best known in Canada thru his famous speech advocating annexation of Canada by the United States, delivered during the discussion of reciprocity proposals in 1911. He declared that nine-tenths of the people of the United States favored the annexation of Canada. His declaration that the reciprocity treaty would make Canada a part of the United States, helped to defeat the proposal, sponsored by the Laurier government in the Dominion election of 1911.

The late Mr. Clark was born in Anderson, Ky., on March 7, 1850. After working as farm hand, clerk, and country editor, he took up the study of law and in 1875 he moved to Missouri and began practicing there. After holding several state offices, he was sent to the United States congress in 1892 and after serving one term he was defeated for re-election. Two years later, however, he was again returned and had served continuously ever since. He was chosen Speaker when the Democrats gained control of the house during the last year of President Taft's administration.

In 1912 he led on 27 ballots for the Democratic nomination for president. A sensational attack made upon him by William Jennings Bryan on the floor of the convention hall, charging him with being affiliated with leaders representing "the interests," eventually led to the nomination of Wilson. The failure of his candidacy never ceased to be the disappointment of Mr. Clark's life, and he never forgave Bryan.

The day's turnover was much smaller than that of yesterday, but encompassed a greater variety of issues, including obscure specialties many of which were held at the hands of the shorts. Sales amounted to 475,000 shares.

Developments of the session were hardly of a character to rouse public interest from its protracted torpor and indifference, and the market was usually quiet, with the exception of a dearth of business in the afternoon.
