POWER AGREEMENT

Disarmament Treaty Expected
This Week Between
Five Great Naval Powers—
The Chinese Tangle.

Washington, Jan. 9.—(By Canadian Press)—If the armament conference brings about a treaty among the five great naval powers for the limitation of armaments—and such a treaty will undoubtedly be forthcoming this week—there will be a quick winding up and an adjournment. The questions of the Far East cannot be detailed or specified at this time. General statements like the Root resolutions, which were made at the Root conference in London, and the resolutions of the powers toward China but the various abuses of which the Chinese complain can only be remedied by the peace conference represent the Peking government which is the de facto government recognized by the powers, but there are other governments just as powerful and a condition of civil war rages. Some of the provincial governments are only nominally subject to the government at Peking.

KINNAIRD CASTLE
Kinnaird Castle, the Earl of Southesk's beautiful chateau like Scottish seat, which has been destroyed by fire, has had a chequered career. The castle was burned down by the Lindays in 1462, against the Earl of Crawford ("Beardie, the Tiger Earl") in the Battle of Brechin. It was rebuilt in 1547, and in 1567, strange hands when James, the fifth Earl (the title was created in 1683), forfeited his estates for his share in the rebellion of 1715. The York Building Company bought the whole estate for £21,000, but the property was bought back for £36,000 by Sir James Carnegie, of Pittarow, T. here Sir James Carnegie was restored to the Earldom by reversal of the Act of Attainder.

Letter Received by City Council, Asking Terms of Amalgamation.

Tenders Opened for Lumber and for a Steam Drill—Schedule of Wages Received from Public Service Employees' Union—No Increases Asked.

Tenders for lumber for West Side and for a steam drill for the public works department were opened at the committee meeting of the common council this morning. The schedule of wages for the coming year was presented by the Public Service Employees' Union and received consideration by the council. A letter was received from ratepayers of East St. John asking on what terms that village would be admitted to the city. Mayor Schofield presided and all the commissioners were present.

In the schedule of wages received from the Public Service Employees' Union there was practically no change in the rates asked from those of last year. The price of general labor remains at $3.50 a day of nine hours. The higher wages asked for asphalt construction workers of $3.75 to $3 a day of nine hours and $4.83 a day of eight hours for carpenters, a list showing increases made in 1919.

It was moved and carried that the departments affected make a list of wages now paid.

It asked that for five years from date of amalgamation, if amalgamation is effected, it would be installed at once, also lights and other services. The letter was signed by W. P. B. Dunlop, J. E. Quinn, Alexander Magee and J. W. Flewelling, and was ordered laid on the table.

Jacobson, who led the league in batting in the 1920 season with an average of .468, dropped last season to .340, being tied for eleventh place with Fred Meikel, the former first baseman of the New York Giants, now with the Rochester Club. In 1921 games he was at bat 622 times and scored 117 runs, made 218 hits for a total of 317 bases. He smashed out twelve homers and made 19 sacrifice hits. His stolen bases numbered 6 to 9.

JOSEPHINE MARTINO AND ASSISTING ARTISTS
The glorious voice of Josephine Martino is rapidly bringing to fulfillment the promise of a brilliant career before her. It is early attracted attention from no less a personage than Enrico Caruso. Mrs. Martino sang before Caruso, Gatti-Casazza, and Alex Lambert, in three of New York's most prominent musical figures. All predicted a wonderful career for this young singer, and the great tenor did more than praise her. He coached her on several of the operatic numbers she is using on her present tour. While President Mr. Willson complimented her, the Edison people arranged for her to be one of their advertised re-creation artists. Mrs. Martino's voice is one of intrinsic sweetness and beauty, a voice of remarkable range and power—truly a voice that lingers in the memory of her hearers. She has a remarkable technique and sings at all times with delightful ease and confidence.

Armando Lenz, an violinist, will be an accompanying artist for Miss Martino. A young man, Italian, with musical training first under Di Natali, then under Fumara, and of recent years under Carmine Rabbiosi, all well known masters.

Miss Florence Jane Strat, accompanist and piano soloist, has attracted splendid comment in the musical field, typical of which is the following from a review of a recital at Columbus, Ohio: "The work of Miss Strat, the assisting artist, was of a high order. She has an artistic understanding of her music which, combined with a lightness of touch and excellent phrasing, charmed her audience."

In recital on Jan. 29th at Pithburgh, Canada, Union street. Seats now on sale. Photograph Salon, Ltd., 19 King St., Price $1. 1—10

TORONTO HAS A WOMEN'S COURT

Dr. Margaret Patterson Well Qualified to Deal With Problems. (Toronto Globe.) When girls and women who from one unfortunate circumstance or another find themselves under the hand of the law and are brought up before Toronto magistrates, they will find not only a wife, a mother, a doctor and a trained nurse, but a woman whose chief desire will be to settle their troubles without bringing them to the bench at all. Dr. Patterson first heard of her appointment, which was announced yesterday afternoon by the Hon. W. E. Roney, the attorney-general, when the Press called her up to have a talk with her about her new office, and her first words proved that she belonged to the new school of moral medicine, which, like the new school of medicine for the body, believes in prevention, rather than cure, and in thorough diagnosis if disease is evident or suspected. Must Know All Conditions. "If possible," said Dr. Patterson, who, by the way, was endorsed for her present position by the Local Council of Women, "I want to have a quiet room where I can take every case, and, before forming any opinion, inquire into all the circumstances that led to the misdemeanor, the home life, the status of the physician, health, for without thorough investigation we can never do our best for our patients. One will have to go slowly in the beginning, and one can lay no definite plans, for each case will be just like a medical — symptoms will have to be created as they arise, and what is needed is concerted commonsense. Dr. Patterson modestly refused to talk of her work during the bubonic plague in India, for which she wears the Katers-Hind Medal, given her at the Durbar in 1900. "Yes, I did do a little work for Kitchener when he was devising means for ridding the army of camp followers," she admitted, but those who have followed her career know that she was of great assistance to the commander-in-chief in this matter, while she was also the medical expert called into consultation over women's cases in the high court of Allahabad. Born in South Perth, Dr. Patterson was born in South Perth, graduated in medicine in the Northwestern University, Chicago, took post-graduate work in Europe and later went to India, where she was superintendent of the Allahabad Women's Hospital and lectured in the Lucknow Women's Hospital. She is the mother of two sons, the eldest of whom fell a victim to the Indian climate; the other is one of the boys at U. S. Dr. Patterson's work as organizer and lecturer to the volunteer nurses during the recent influenza epidemic and her splendid personal service, given freely, were bright spots in that time of distress. She has acted through the National Council of Women as adviser to the dominion government regarding the revision of the criminal code in the matter of offences against women, and has done a great deal toward the establishment of the court over which she will now rule.

Experimenting With Poison Gas.
Amid the present talk of disarmament the Army Council seems to be engaged upon a peculiarly horrible scheme of preparation for war. I am credibly informed that it is in contemplation to establish somewhere near Salisbury Plain a research station where the various properties of poison gas will be studied by experiments on living animals, conducted on a grand scale. According to my information, the staff is already being called into existence; the monkeys, goats, guinea pigs and the rest of the menagerie will follow their thousands in due course. It must be admitted that poison gas has come to stay as a lethal weapon, and, if so, we must march in the van of scientific progress. But I doubt if the people of this or any civilized country will consent in time of peace to the wholesale torturing and destruction of animals in order that the process may be applied with the best results to human beings.—London Truth.

CHILDREN SAVED FROM FIERY DEATH IN NICK OF TIME

A thrilling escape from being burned to death was the experience of three children of Edward Prime, Fairville Plateau, when fire broke out early on Sunday morning in the room where the children were sleeping.

One short hour later, so fiercely did the flames burn, his self-contained wood house, that represented several years of saving, was in ashes and a large part of his furniture lay smoldering in the desolate ruins.

STUDY CHILDREN OF TWO TO FOUR YEARS

New York Laboratory Provides Opportunity to Observe Reactions of Early Childhood—Model Building Provided.

(New York Times.)
A laboratory in child psychology for experimental work with children from two to four years of age has been opened by the Child Welfare Research Station at the State University of Iowa. The object from the educational point of view is to provide an opportunity for these children to become adjusted to a normal group environment while still enjoying the characteristic individual activities of early childhood.
From a scientific standpoint the laboratory provides material for observing the reactions of children of an age that has never before been intensively studied because of the difficulty of providing controlled experimental conditions in the home environment. Twenty-four children are in daily attendance in two sections from nine to twelve o'clock.
The laboratory is under the direction of Dr. Bird T. Baldwin, research professor in psychology, who tells in School Life how children are occupied with a very simple and flexible schedule of singing games, stories and rhythmic exercises and simple occupational projects. A graduate assistant keeps a detailed log book of observations made on the children and notes interesting reactions and the conditions under which new abilities develop.
A variety of mental tests have already been made on each child, and several studies of different phases of the development of motor co-ordination are in progress. Physical measurements of each child are made once a month and investigations are made as to heredity, home conditions and special characteristics of the families of children as a background for the psychological findings.
The laboratory consists of a new six-room building, especially designed and furnished for the work. In addition to the usual radiators set high above the reach of the children, heat pipes are distributed between the two floors so the children will be protected when they are sitting on the floor in the coldest weather.
The main room is twenty-four feet square and has twelve large windows admitting light from three sides. The woodwork is stained moss green and the walls of cream beaver board are paneled with green wood stripes. Chintz curtains in nursery rhyme pattern hang at the sides of the windows, which have broad sills covered with potted plants. There are small, low tables and chairs, and large hand-colored illustrations of fairy tales add to the charm of the room. Hinged to the wainscoting on three sides of the room are a dozen little lattice gates which when swung out into the room form partial enclosures in which the children play individual games and sleep during the mid-morning rest periods. There is a sand table, a slide, a set of large building blocks, a phonograph with special records for young children, and a great variety of material for occupational projects besides the outdoor play equipment of swings and teeter boards.

Opening out from the group room is a small pantry with sink and gas stove.

CATHOLIC VIEW OF WORLD SITUATION

INTER-SOCIETY DEBATE.
The second of the debates in the Inter-society League held in the Assumption Hall, West St. John, yesterday afternoon, was won by the team representing the Assumption Society from the team representing the Knights of Columbus. C. O. Morris and James Russell were on the winning team and Paul Quinn and J. U. Hagerly on the losing side. The judges were J. Frank Owens, W. J. Shea and W. M. Ryan.

IMMIGRATION NEEDED.

Halifax Chronicle: We are fortunate indeed at this fresh crisis in our history to have the Liberal party again in power to solve our difficulties and ward off our dangers as they did once before after 1898. It is still well remembered how our population increased by leaps and bounds under their management. They may be able to duplicate their record in the present vastly more difficult conditions. In any event the key for upon which united action for the common good of the world could be based. No system had ever achieved that unity but Catholicism, he said. "The internationalism that prevailed today was of a very imperfect sort, but Catholics should make the most of it and give their fullest support to movements like the League of Nations and other forms of international action. There was a realization among thoughtful men of the church of the need for Catholicity to supply that needed unity and internationalism."

Mr. Somerville's lecture was given under the auspices of the educational committee of the Y. M. C. I., and W. R. Walsh, chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting. At the conclusion of the address H. O. McInerney

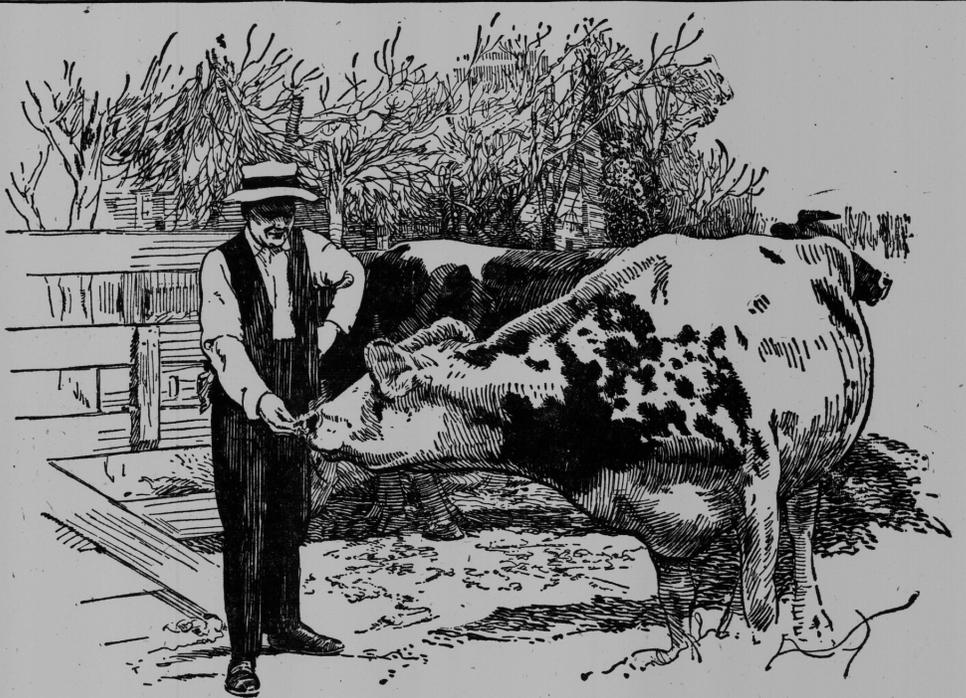

THE PROMISE OF CHIPPAWA.

Stratford Beacon: The canal has been a costly enterprise, but it is expected that the success of the undertaking will eventually justify the colossal expenditure. The work has already cost some $65,000,000 or $70,000,000, considerably exceeding the original estimates. By virtue of the construction of the Chippawa-Queenston canal, Hydro consumers throughout Ontario are apparently assured of plenty of power for a good many years to come, and extensions of the electric supply are amply provided to the solution is easily recognizable as immigration and still more immigration. Whether that key can be readily fitted to the present lock remains to be seen.

Pure Rich Milk—with Part of the Water Removed

THAT'S Carnation Milk. Simply pure, fresh milk evaporated to the consistency of cream, sealed in cans, and STERILIZED. Nothing is added. No preservatives are used. Only part of the water is removed.
For creaming tea, coffee or cereals—or for whipping, Carnation Milk is delicious as it comes from the container. For whole milk uses an equal portion of water added brings it to natural consistency. And for cooking more water may be added.
Carnation Milk is the convenient milk supply. You can buy a week's or a month's supply ahead and put it on your pantry shelves. It keeps—for several months in the can and for several days when opened. Order Carnation Milk from your grocer—the Carnation milkman. Let him send several tall (16 oz.) cans, or a case of 48 cans.
Carnation tested recipes are famous for their goodness. The new, beautifully illustrated Carnation Milk Book is ready, and a copy will be sent to you free if you write. Try this recipe.

COMMUNITY SINGING
(Montreal Gazette.)
A tidal wave of song is sweeping America. Community singing resounds in every State of the Union, in every province of Canada. Passions of patriotism, grief for our victorious dead, and yearnings for a peace which shall endure, are added to themes of hope and faith, of love and exuberant joy which we have sung from childhood. This new birth of music creates a new need, a golden opportunity.
Now, more insistently than ever before, arises the question, What shall the people sing? The churches, in their great fields, have garnered through the centuries a rich harvest of noble hymns, voicing the highest aspirations of the human soul. But even in temples of worship, charlatans have forced an entrance. During the past fifty years, many "gospel songs" have written compositions in many Christian folk songs, and commonplace as music. These folk songs, however, have written compositions in many Christian folk songs, and commonplace as music. These folk songs, however, have written compositions in many Christian folk songs, and commonplace as music.

MODEL OF EGYPTIAN BREWERY
3,700 YEARS OLD IS FOUND
A model of an Egyptian brewery approximately 3,700 years old, was among several hundred objects excavated in the tombs at Luxor and Gurnah, in Upper Egypt, the last two seasons, and recently representative for the University of Pennsylvania museum, from Dr. Flinders Petrie. The model, made about 3600 B.C., shows a dozen employees making beer from barley. A handful of barley also was preserved, but little except the outside hulls was left.
Among the other interesting objects in the collection were two models of small boats fitted with rudders and fitted with masts and sails, supposed to have carried the souls of the dead across the Nile. There were also some excellent statues carved of wood representing servants carrying grain, vases and wine-ware, and a Hittite portrait statue, in wood, painted red, of a dead man. The man carried a rod and staff, indicating it was said at the university, that ancient method of punishing offenders.

"VANITY UNFAIR"
(Newport Times)
During a recent parliamentary election in England the following story concerning Thackeray was related: Thackeray was standing as candidate for parliament as representative for the city of Oxford, and at the end of his first day's canvassing was dining with one of the dons who said: "You are in a different position to most men who canvass a strange constituency, as you will be known to fame by most of those whom you visit." Thackeray replied: "Amongst all whom I see today there was one man who had heard my name before. He was a circulating librarian."
During the Christmas season, our advertisements for Boudoir Door Mirrors met with a ready and gratifying response. These handsome mirrors are of heavy, bevelled plate glass, and made to fit either closet or entrance door to the boudoir where they are really indispensable.

WAIFS OF WISDOM LEFT ON GREAT MEN'S DOORSTEPS

(By Dorothea Cahlen in New York Evening Post)
Where do the anonymous familiar quotations come from? We all know some of them. They appear on Christmas gift cards and calendars, usually unsigned, or with Anon appended. We seldom question their origin; we assume that they were written by Emerson or Shakespeare or Elbert Hubbard or somebody, and let the matter drop. It is well that we do not worry about the authorship, for in most cases it is, to say the least, elusive.

Take Dulcy's remark about charitable judgments. She twisted the lines somewhat, but we easily recognise an old familiar: There's so much bad in the best of us And so much good in the worst of us That it ill behooves any of us To find fault with the rest of us. Some say Stevenson wrote it. But it is not to be found in Stevenson's published works. Others say Gov. Hoch of Kansas was the author. But Gov. Hoch protests. In reply to a publisher who wrote to verify the authorship, he says:

I regret to say that I am not the author of the lines of which you refer, though I have been widely given credit for them. HOCH. So that clears Gov. Hoch, but sheds no light on the source. None of those public-spirited people who contribute to question-and-answer columns has yet been able to trace it, or to explain why this Kansas Governor should be credited with it.

The "Better Mouse Trap." The "Mouse Trap" quotation is another wait. In the last ten years its parentage has been debated with spirit by several claimants, and as yet no

-they sure did!

They didn't take the flavor out when they cured it—nor cook it—or bake it—or burn it.

They let the sunlight of old Virginia cure the sap right into the golden leaf, and kept the flavor natural.

They made a smoke worth smoking.

Solomon has arisen. The quotation in its commonest form runs thus: "If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or take a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door." It has been frequently credited to Emerson. Yet his publishers and his son testify that it does not occur in his works. His editors, however, put in a vigorous claim for his authorship, basing it on the fact that the idea is expressed, in other words, in several essays. In writing of Thoreau, they point out, he said: "If the single man plant himself indomitably on his instincts and there abide, the huge world will come 'round to him.' They quote, further, the paragraph which expresses the exact idea in different symbols: "If a man has good corn, or wood, or boards, or pigs to sell, or can make better chairs or knives, crucibles or church organs than anybody else, you will find a broad, hard-beaten road to his house, though it be in the woods."

A striking resemblance—but whence the mouse trap? The lethal implement evades also those who would prove that Dr. John R. Paxton of the West Presbyterian Church, New York City, was the man who gave the idea its present form. That he preached a sermon with the text "It could not be hid" is certain, and that the main idea of the sermon was identical with the "Mouse trap" quotation is proved by printed extracts of his sermon published in a religious magazine of the time. But an proof exists that he mentioned mouse traps. Claimed for Fra Elbertus.

East Aurora, home of Roycrofters and their late chief Elbert Hubbard, came into the controversy, which flourished in the newspapers a few years ago. The East Auroran contribution is the simple statement: "Elbert Hubbard is the author."

Hubbard did write a brief essay proving the fallacy of the mouse trap doctrine. A friend of his has explained the apparent contradiction between his essay and the Roycrofters' statement thus: "You see, he borrowed so much that he forgot which ideas he borrowed and which he originated. He no doubt forgot he had written this, just as he forgot that he had borrowed others. The facts are that he printed it, and no proof exists that it was ever printed before." The Literary Digest's lexicographer invited the Roycrofters to state whether and where Elbert Hubbard printed it. Records show no response to the invitation. It seems unlikely that after years of anonymity this stray child will find its parent.

Another bit of unknown parentage is this: "I shall pass through this world but once. If there is any kindness or any good thing I can do for my fellow beings let me do it now, for I shall not come this way again."

This, too, has been credited to Emerson. Others credited with it are Carlyle, Addison, and Marcus Aurelius. Frequently it has been printed with the name of Stephen Grellet, an American Quaker. In none of the works of any of these men has the passage ever been found.

"Who Knows Not, Etc." Some of the fatherless aphorisms are reclothed when they appear in the new environment. Most high school monthlies publish, some time in the life of a school generation, the epigram about the relative knowledge of the four classes: The Freshman knows not and knows not that he knows not; Sophomore knows not and knows not that he knows not; etc.

The attribution of authorship of this piece of wisdom scatters among the writers of antiquity. Livy, Hesiod, Cicero and the Arabs have all been given credit at different times for the original which begins: He who knows not and knows not that he knows not can only be answered with questions. Are they "wisdom words," arrows shot from the bow of an eloquent speaker and straightway forgotten by the archer, but lodged in the retentive mind of some hearer, to be carried far away, repeated, and finally printed? Are they true quotations which have strayed so far away from their original text that they just got lost? Or are they, perhaps, the unsigned work of clever advertising copy writers and publishers of gift cards—or the prototypes of such?

Before we can answer any of these questions, the holiday crop of cards and calendars will be harvested. I wonder who will be the author of the mouse trap quotation this year.

YOUNG KOREA.

Any time after a Korean boy is seven he may be married, and he is seldom still unmarried at twelve or fourteen. At that time he winds his pigtail—if he still wears one in these crop-headed days—into a top-knot and swaggers a bit in the presence of the unbetrothed. Formerly, if a Korean boy had any schooling at all, he squatted all day on the school-room floor, learning to read and write, but not to speak, Chinese, and he would have thought of himself well educated if he acquired a vague knowledge of the maxims of Confucius. He often felt content to carry a "biggy" or to drive a pack-pony or even to act as nurse to the baby while his older brother wrestled with the Chinese classics. Under the new regime the school hours are long and strenuous, but the boys pursue a Japanese course of study in Japanese. "His Brother's Keeper" is as perfect a picture as modern art can produce.

ONE OF THOSE CUB REPORTER STORIES

The recent death of Samuel J. Bennett, a well known newspaper man, recalls an adventure tradition says he had years ago, when Li Hung Chang, Chinese statesman, visited the city.

At the time Sam Bennett, as he was known among his associates here and abroad, was a new cub reporter on the Evening Sun. He was long on ideas but short on experience, when his city editor assigned him to interview Li Hung Chang at the Waldorf, it looked to him like a tough proposition.

It looked even more so upon his arrival at the hotel. He found reporters from other papers gathered in the grill room, awaiting some reply from Li Hung Chang's secretary to their requests for an interview. Among them were a number of old timers with big reputations. They grinned at the cub when he timidly asked one of them if he thought it would do any good to send up his card.

"Say, kid, forget it, kid," said the old hand, "hang around a while, the bunch is going up to his room later, and when we come down I'll see that you get the stuff."

Sam hung around, but in another part of the hotel. He meandered out into the corridor and halted a bell-hop.

"Take this up to Li Hung Chang's room. There's a five-spot in it for you if you get in—and another five if the old bird will see me."

Then Sam settled down to wait. He didn't think he had one chance in a thousand. But presently the bellhop appeared with word that the noted visitor was ready to receive Mr. Bennett. Sam broke all records getting upstairs. Meanwhile the star reporters downstairs in the grill were holding down the brass rail.

Sam was most cordially and elaborately welcomed. Li Hung Chang's secretary acted as interpreter.

"What will the gentleman have me ask his excellency. He esteems it a great honor to be interviewed by Mr. Bennett."

Mr. Bennett felt his chest measure increasing.

What didn't Mr. Bennett want to ask Li Hung Chang? When the interview ended he had enough material for six columns, and he knew he had a wonderful story. The secretary led him into another room and gave him a number of presents—with the compliments of Li Hung Chang. His arms were so filled with boxes of tea and such things that he was barely able to get through the door.

Sam hurried to telephone the story to his office. He was in the telephone booth about an hour and when he came out he felt that he owned the earth. But there was one thing he meant to do before going back to the office—let wait for the afternoon edition of his paper to come up to the hotel. He wanted to see how "the boys" would take it.

He went back to the grill room. They triumphed over Canadiens in their game at the Mount Royal arena here Saturday night, winning by a score of 4 to 2. Ottawa players played the more finished hockey, are stronger than Canadiens on the offensive while the latter have not a reliable scorer on the team. Except for a few moments in the opening period, and in the final session, Ottawa held the edge on the play and out-generated their opponents.

Edmond Bouchard, for Canadiens, made good in his opening game of the season, both offensively and defensively and engineered the play from which Lalonde scored Canadiens first goal.

CURLING.

Play commenced at 9 o'clock and continued until 10.30, with intermission from six to seven when the ladies served a bountiful supper. The Good Old Times.
 The vanity of age is a curious thing. As we approach fifty most of us who have survived plagues, pestilence, and famine, wars, panics, and the other perils that flesh is heir to begin to hark back to the good old times when everything was different. Because things were different we foster the delusion that everything was better. We expect youngsters to listen with rapt attention to our reminiscences. I confess that I myself find it necessary to fight constantly a tendency to corner some hapless youngster and describe to him the old State House, or the union station as it used to be in the good old times before the tracks were elevated and the mortality list lowered. Or, in a mood of condensation, I speak of that glorious year when our town figured in the schedules of the National League.

Baseball, I intimate, reached perdition in that year of wonder. When I speak of Kelly and Clarkson and other giants of those days and their visit to our capital, or recall Jack Glasco's as the most efficient and captivating shortstop the diamond has ever known, he merely smiles sadly, and if you continue he may be driven to ask you what you out he felt that he owned the earth. But there was one thing he meant to do before going back to the office—let wait for the afternoon edition of his paper to come up to the hotel. He wanted to see how "the boys" would take it.

He went back to the grill room. They

DARING BREAK IN NORTH END
Warehouse Entered and Nineteen Cases Liquor Stolen.
A daring burglary was perpetrated last Saturday night when a warehouse of W. George, Ltd., on the pier, was broken into and nineteen cases of liquor stolen. The burglars forced a cellar door and then, after boring a number of holes in the floor above, broke out a section of the floor large enough to permit one of their number to crawl through. The liquor was stored in a room adjoining where the entry had been made and before reaching it another lock was forced. The burglars removed the entire contents of the room, which were valued at nearly $600. It is said they had an automobile outside, and after forcing an entry placed the stolen goods in it and drove off.

The tax collector, Joseph Poole, who has just completed his first year on the job, has been congratulated on the fine showing made.

There had been a previous conviction against the house according to what was said by one of the inspectors. W. M. Ryan appeared for the prosecution.
A fine of $200 or six months in jail was imposed. His Honor gave a warning that all criminal cases which he dealt with would get the limit.

TELLS OF SALE OF REVOLVER

Further Evidence in Alleged Attempted Murder Case—Over Until Friday.

The preliminary hearing of the case against William Parry, charged with attempting to murder Nathan I. Jacobson, was resumed this morning. Policeman McElhinney told of the accused giving himself up at the central station saying that he was the man they were looking for. The police had been down to the house so he had come to give himself up and to get it over with. He was searched by the witness and night detective Thomas but nothing of importance found on him. On the way down stairs to the lockup, witness said, he asked the prisoner what the warrant was on which he had been charged. He replied that he had gone into Jacobson's other night and held up the man as he had questioned the man. On cross-examination he repeated that the accused told him he had held up Mr. Jacobson and not that he was charged with holding up Mr. Jacobson. The prisoner had not told him what house "they" had been down to.

Joseph Gilbert testified that he worked in the store of his father, J. Harris Gilbert, on Mill street. He read from an entry in a book that he had bought a .32 calibre revolver on January 8 for $3. The man gave his name as William Parry and his address as 150 Duke street, W. B. It was similar to the one in court, he said. The magistrate asked the witness if he had questioned the man as to where he got the revolver and on receiving the answer, "no," he warned the witness that this business with revolvers would have to be looked into. Continuing, Mr. Gilbert told of giving the revolver to Detective Dunlop. He identified the prisoner as the man who had sold him the revolver. The case was postponed until Friday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

DONATES SET OF SKATING MEDALS

The interest that is being manifested in other parts of Canada in the Canadian championships, which are to be held on Lily Lake on January 18 and 19, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. I. was evinced in a tangible way this morning when Thomas McCaffrey of Montreal, informed the committee in charge that he would donate a set of medals for the speed events. Mr. McCaffrey read about the sports while he was in Western Canada. Mr. McCaffrey is superintendent of the Canada Steamship Ocean Service and is at present in the city on business in connection with his line.

NOTABLE DAY FOR HOLY NAME SOCIETY

Annual Meeting on Sunday—Cathedral to Have Confraternity of Blessed Sacrament.

Sunday was a notable day for the Holy Name Society of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception. First, there was an exceptionally large attendance of the members at Holy Communion in the morning. Then in the afternoon the annual meeting was held in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. I. in the chair. Reports on membership and on other phases of the life of the society were received. It was shown that there were 893 members on the roll. The election of officers resulted in the return of Mr. McDonald as president; Mrs. Emery as secretary, and William C. Walsh as treasurer. Short addresses were given by each, as well as by John J. Coughlan, who has been the treasurer for some years. It was decided to hold general meetings on the second Sunday of January, April and October in each year, in addition to the monthly meetings of the executive.
A pleasing feature yesterday was the presentation of a substantial purse to Rev. W. M. Duke, chairman of the society. Mr. McDonald did this nicely, and Father Duke responded in a deeply interesting address in which were mingled congratulations to the society on its work and on the growth of numbers at the monthly Holy Communion; words of encouragement for the future and announcement of further plans for enlargement of the scope of the organization, together with relation of striking incidents of the benefits accruing to the membership and of the influence of the society for good.
Among other things, Father Duke said he had ordered a banner for the society and had hoped to have it for yesterday, but it would be here for the next Communion Sunday. He also announced plans, in which the Holy Name men would be a factor, for establishing the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament in the Cathedral parish. This has been in existence in the Church for some centuries. It is already established in Holy Trinity parish here. Many graces, he said, came to its members, and the obligations were simple. It is planned to have the confraternity established on next Sunday in the Cathedral.

GEN. MACDONNELL LEAVES THIS WEEK

Brigadier-General A. H. MacDonnell, C. M. G., D. S. O., commanding military district, No. 7, who was recently appointed a senator from Ontario, will sever his connection with military headquarters this week, and will leave on Friday afternoon, January 13, for Toronto, his old home, where he will reside in the future. General MacDonnell will retire on pension on January 15 and will be given the honorary rank of Major General of the Canadian army, an honor well earned through long and brilliant military service. General MacDonnell is now on two months' leave of absence and Colonel A. H. H. Powell is acting commandant. No word has yet been received concerning the new appointment, and it is presumed that Colonel Powell will carry on the work for the time being.
