METHOD OF DESCRIPTION.

MILK AND BEEF FORM: This is the prevailing or average form of cows of this breed. It describes a cow of the wedge form, with shoulders moderately thick, moderately deep and broad, crops moderately well filled, barrel well rounded, loin and hips broad and full, and quarters straight, wide and full.

MILK FORM: This describes a cow of the wedge form, comparatively light in the shoulders and chest, and comparatively light in the quarters. It is generally accompanied (though not always) with angularity of appearance.

BEEF AND MILK FORM: This describes a cow, the body of which, from a side view, assumes the outline of a parallelogram. Viewed from the front, the lateral wedge form is moderately retained.

BEEF FORM: This describes a cow that gives no appearance of the wedge form viewed from side or front.

HEAD, SIZE OF: As compared with body. The term proportionate indicates size in proportion to the body, the average size in the breed taken as a standard. The terms small, very small, large, and very large, naturally follow, denoting different degrees above and below this standard.

HEAD, SYMMETRY OF: Symmetrical when of the average or general form. Very symmetrical when closely approaching the ideal type described in the Scale of Points. Unsymmetrical when departing to a marked degree from the average form. Special defects are noted.

NECK, SIZE AND LENGTH OF: Medium when averaging with the breed The term fine, very fine, heavy and very heavy, refer to size of neck. The terms above medium length, below medium length, long, short, etc., refer to length of neck.

NECK, FORM AND BEARING: Level when the neck is carried forward on a level, or nearly on a level with top of shoulder. The term drooping describes the form popularly called "ewe neck." Slightly drooping describes the form betweed these two extremes

CHINE, FORM OF: Straightness or levelness of the top line. The term straight is used when there is no elevation or depression in the chine. Slightly uneven and uneven denote degrees of elevation at or near the middle of the The terms slightly swayed and swayed are used when the general line is curved downward; the terms slightly roached and roached when the general line is curved upward.

CHINE, BREADTH OF: This refers to the width of chine recognized by passing the hand over it. The terms broad, very broad, and fairly broad, are obvious in meaning. The term single denotes a narrow or sharp chine.

CHINE, SPACE BETWEEN VERTEBRAE: By placing the hand upon the middle of the chine, depressions between the vertebrae are easily felt. The size of these depressions is described by the terms close, fairly open, open, very open.

LOIN AND HIPS, STRENGTH OF: As indicated by the levelness, width and fulness of the loin, immediately forward of a line drawn between the hook bones. The terms strong, very strong, fairly strong, moderately strong, and weak are used.

LOIN AND HIPS, LEVELNESS OF: As shown by placing a straigh-edge from one hook-bone to the other. Level when the centre of the back is perfectly level, or so nearly so that the top of each hook-bone is not more than half an inch below a perfect level. The terms slightly rounded, and rounded, indicate degrees of departure from this level.

RUMP, HEIGHT OF: As compared with the chine and hook-bones. The term high describes the rump carried out on the same level, or nearly the same, with the hook-bones. The terms fairly high, moderately high, low, and very low, indicate degrees below such level.

RUMP CONTOUR OF TOP LINE: The term level is used when there is no unevenness or very little unevenness in such top line. Slightly uneven, and uneven indicates degrees of departure from such levelness. The terms slightly sloping, and sloping are also used, indicating degrees of steepness of the rump when such steepness is shown in a marked degree.

ESCUTCHEON, SIZE OF: The term largest, indicates an extent of surface equal to that covered by a Flanders escutcheon of the first order. The terms very large, large, good or medium size, small or very small, indicate degrees of extent of surface below this.

ESCUTCHEON, QUALITY OF: The term finest, indicates the quality found in the best class of escutcheons. Below this the terms very fine, fine, good or medium, fair, coarse, and very coarse, indicate degrees of quality below this.

UDDER, CAPACITY OF: The term very capacious, describes the highest capacity, referring to a class within which there are limited variations. Below this the term capacious, fairly capacious, moderately capacious, describe different degrees of capacity.

UDDER, FLEXIBILITY OF: The terms very flexible, describes the highest flexibility, referring to a class within which there are limited variations. Below this the terms flexible, fairly flexible, moderately flexible, etc., denote different degrees of flexibility.

UDDER, QUARTERS OF: The term even describes an udder in which the quarters appear to be of equal capacity. (It is a difficult matter to be determined when a cow is dry or nearly so, and the Inspectors are obliged to depend somewhat on the statements of owners and milkers.) Below this the terms slightly uneven and uneven, indicate degrees of departure from such equal capacity.

TEATS, SIZE AND FORM OF: The term perfect is used when teats appear as described in Scale of Points. Departures from this are indicated by the terms too large, too small, bell shaped, come shaped, etc. (Inspectors must make allowance in case of young heifers, and not require the same showing of capacity of udder, or size of teats, as with older cows.)

HANDLING: This includes the thickness and quality of the skin, with the under-lying tissues, and the denseness and quality of the overlaying coat of hair. The average handling of the breed is described as medium or good. Above this three degrees are noted by the use of the terms superior, very superior, best. Below this the degrees in the opposite direction are noted by the terms fair, inferior, and very inferior. Special defects are sometimes mentioned.

SECRETIONS OF THE SKIN: These are more especially found on the escutcheon and the ears. The terms abundant, very abundant, fairly abundant, and moderately abundant are used to denote quantity; and the terms oily, very oily, and moderately oily, to denote quality. In some instances the color is also given.

GENERAL APPEARANCE: In noting this three things are to be taken into consideration. First, the vigor of the animal: This is described by the use of the terms vigorous, very vigorous, and fairly or moderately vigorous. Second, the general fineness and symmetry: This is described by the terms fine, very fine, good, fair, etc. Third, the general style and bearing: This is described by the use of the terms, stylish, very stylish, good style, fair style, etc.

MAMMARY VEINS, LENGTH OF: The length of these veins is described by the use of the terms medium, long, very long, short, very short, etc.

MAMMARY BONES, SIZE OF: The size is described by the use of the terms medium, large, very large, fair size or fairly large, moderate size or moderately large, etc.

MAMMARY VEINS, CONTOUR OF: The contour is described by the use of the terms crooked or winding, very crooked, fairly crooked, nearly straight and straight.

MAMMARY VEINS, FURTHER TERMS: These veins are usually, (not always) forked at the udder. As they pass on their way to the heart they enter the abdomen and chest by various orifices that can be easily discovered. On, some cows but two such veins and two such orifices are found, one on the right and the other on the left of the abdomen. In descriptions no mention is made of these, as all have these two veins and two orifices. On other cows and bulls there are two or more such orifices on each side showing the entrance of branch veins, and of extension of the main veins.

SINGLE EXTENSION: The more frequent of these is given the name abdominal extension. When this appears only on one side of the abdomen, attached to one vein, it is described as single extension.

DOUBLE EXTENSION: When such an extension appears on each side of the abdomen, that is, attached to both main veins, it is described as double extension.

- SINGLE CHEST EXTENSION: In some cases, at the point where an abdominal extension enters the body, another extension, as it were, starts out, extending still further forward and disappearing without any apparent orifice under the muscles that cover the chest near the forward legs. This is described as single chest extension.
- DOUBLE CHEST EXTENSION: If such an extension is found on each of the main veins, that is, on both sides of the chest, it is described as a double chest extension.
- SINGLE BRANCHED: Sometimes a branch starts from the main vein and enters a separate orifice. If such a branch appears only on one side of the abdomen, the veins are described as single branched.
- Double Branched: If a branch appears attached to each main vein, that is, on both sides of the abdomen, they are described as double branched.
- UMBILICAL DEVELOPMENT: In rare cases the veins branch to the umbilicus and return again to the main vein. This is described as an umbilical development.
- INDEPENDENT UMBILICAL VEIN: In still rarer cases a third vein apparently independent of the two main veins, extends along near the umbilicus, and enters the body by a separate orifice. This is called an independent umbilical vein. A connection between the two main veins is also a rare occurrence.
- UDDER DEVELOPMENT: If the udder appears with prominent veins on its surface it is described as an udder development.
