His Lordship expresses gratitude and felositations to all, not only the members of his own flock, but to all his feliow-cit.sons of whatever cread or nationality, from whom he received kindness and good will, and he prays God to bless them and ever have them in His ho'y keeping. Concluding this part of his letter the Bishop says: "I wish especially to express humble thanks to our Holy Father Pope Leo XIII, and to all the venerable person: co-operating with him in the government of the church. I wish allo to express congratulations for the devoted Pastor, now happily succeeding may in the government of the flock from which I are perige for the Diocese, he was a model and itsel Fried, always engages fil in every position in which he exercised his ministry, and beloved alike by both the god Acadian French people, as by the othere whose tongue is English. May this holy noice and love always endore ! His Lordship proceeds to briefly refer to former conditions and diocesan boundaries, the creation of the diocese of Chatham, his appointment thereto as Bishop and his justallation on 22od Angust, 1860, after a memorable trip in a fishing skiff from Trinsh, P. E. I, accompanied by the late Arabishop Concolly and Bishop Sweeney, of St. John. Concluding, he notes a coincidence, which was that the text of his first sermon in the diocese was from the goopl of the good Samaritan; and the Sunday following the day when Bishop Berry received his tologram informing him of his being now Bishop by virtue of his (Bishop Rogers') resignation being accepted, was the XII after Pesteo st. the same as that on which be first preached 	her old home in Ohatham on Sunday last. Miss Mumie Kethro was called to her home in Newcastle by the dangerous inlass of her mother, of whom a more favorable report was received here yesterday. Hon. Samuel Adams, the great dry goods man of New York, is a quest at Kunnedy's hotel, having come to St. Andrews to senape his old enemy, hay fever. He is a New Branswicker by birth, and a brother of the last Hon. Michgel Adams, of Northumber- land.—St Andrews Beacon. Mrs. E. Carried unanimous y. It may be mentioned incidentally that Mr. Stewart placed the years 1891 and 1892, in his statement of the time Mr. Tweedie had certain, funds in hands and has not yet ourrected his error. He marepresented to the statement that the commodore had "instructed the Sectoresure to pay the prize due, as far as the funds in hands in and would permit." The Commodore did not give such instructions until more than a week after the time stated, which was five or six days after the paper making the statement was published. We observe that in reply to an imaginary correspondent, "Douglastown," Mr. Stewart intimates that a certain prom nent member of the Yacht Club did not make the "tea lead and mangle" reference attributed to him in our last week's report of his remarks at the meeting of 4th instant. Mr. Stewart to say the least—of the menter of the Anvance staff who was present at and reported the meeting when he initiates that he would part wiew of into a man's mouth which he did not atter. Mr. Stewart the staff who was present at and reported the meeting when he initiates that he would pat words into a man's mouth which he did not atter. Mr. Stewart the words reported, and had he possesed the moral courage to attend the meeting of 11th be would have heard even more point of references to his peculiar conduct in that yacht-club matter. For instance, he was referred to as a "skuck" by one member, and when another said the gestleman had a state of the settement was provided the meter set of the member, and when another said the gestleman had a state of the settement was provided the meter set of the member.		<section-header><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></section-header>	<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text></text>
