THE ST. JOHN CARNIVAL

Entries for all Events Pouring In.
Some New Features for the Horse Show.

St. John, Sept. 24.—Everything is booming in connection with the carnival and St. John people can expect the finest week of sport ever enjoyed. Secretary Gleason is at present in Fredericton furthering matters in connection with boat racing.

Entries for the horse show are piling in and the list is swelling to such an extent as to already make the horse and equine department an assured success. The committee feel confident that with Van Horne's prize horses in the lists, such an attraction will be presented that the exhibition will be a source of delight and pleasure to all who take even the slightest interest in seeing noble horses. Not only will there be an exhibition of beautiful animals, but the exercises will show what noble animals can do. Among other attractions will be ladies' jumping and saddle horses, Ontario saddle-back horses, the finest in Canada. It is very likely that the services of two bare-back rough riders will be secured to give an exhibition of their daring performances.

Already all the boxes have been secured in advance and new seats are placed in such a position that they will command a good view as the boxes. They will be sold at the same rate—30c. for each admission.
By this means plenty of good seats will be provided.

It is hoped to make this show an annual affair. In all the larger cities in the States they occur annually and St. John people will not be behind in their support of so worthy a project.

CONVENIENCE OF THE TELEPHONE.

(Chatham Advance.)

The Miramichi Telephone service appears to have been improved in the direction of intelligibility of late.

If a person in Chatham wishes to communicate with a person in Newcastle he will get a response from central after ringing the call. One call may suffice, but two or more are often required.

If you are told that "that wire is engaged," or that "somebody is talking to Newcastle" you ask that your number and that of the person you wish to communicate with be connected when the others have ceased talking.

This of course, is responded to with an "all right" but it is not always remembered and you ring up central again and are told that you are now connected with your Newcastle friend.

When you call and put your receiver to your ear, you at once realize that you are connected with a lot of people.

You hear "hello," mixed with "yes, we had a very nice time" and "We stuck in the mud" and
"Send up another line and the chain," and you say

"Is that—", and you have it fired back at you:

"No it isn't—, what's the reason I can't get central," etc.

Then, you call central and inform it that everybody's talking over the line, and that you can't communicate with your friend.

Then a voice as of one accustomed to giving such explanations—but whose owner would doubtless like to speak right out about it, tells you in effect that the vibrations of the diaphragm of the transmitters of other persons on the line, in the processes of electrical conductivity, are being conveyed by induction to the wire you are talking over and, hence, the wrongful mixing of the primary and induced currents resulting in jargon through the agency of the carbon etc., etc.

Then you hang up the receiver, ring off, take the steamer "Miramichi" for Newcastle and have your talk out with the man you tried to reach through your telephone.

Editor's Mail.

THE G. T. P. RAILWAY.

To the Editor.

Sir:—

The readers of the St. John Telegraph of last Thursday must have had this conclusion forced upon them after reading the editorial—"The Country Aroused"—that the writer was a fool, or that he had a poor estimate of the intelligence of his readers.

He says that after the Moncton Winnipeg Pacific Railway is built, the government is to present it to the G. T. P. Ry.
How the Ry., when built, is to be leased to the G. T. P. for a term of 50 years, at a rental of three per cent is a present the "wisacre" of the Telegraph and not stop to expatiate. Whether we agree or not with this railway policy of the government there is neither sense, reason nor honesty in resorting to such fragrant misstatements and misrepresentations, as the writer of the editorial is guilty of.
Such probable falsehoods may react on those who stoop to their use.

Why did the writer ignore the three per cent rental? Clearly, with the deliberate intention to deceive.

Yours,

Z.

BIG GAME.

The Season Has Been Very Successful.

PLENTY GAME

And all the Sportsmen are Having Very Good Luck
So Far.

A number of parties have returned from their hunting trip during the past week and nearly all of them were very successful in securing the much coveted moose head and other big game.

Only one party has gone in during the week, the Messrs. Theodore Hoagne and W. A. Sanborn of Boston, who are hunting on Main's lakes under the guidance of Jas. Manderville Jr. This party expects to spend two weeks in the woods and will then go to Tabusiat after wild fowl.

Dr. B. L. Longnecker of Brooklyn N. Y. who has been hunting at Big Hole brook with guide Chas. Beck of Doaktown has returned with a very nice moose head, having a spread of fifty four inches and has twenty-nine points.

F. H. Westmore of New York secured a fine head, with a spread of 53½ inches and having 25 points. He was guided by Jas.
McDonald of Doaktown and their hunting ground was Cain's river.

E. Johnson of Norway, Conn. with guide Edward Way has returned from the Little River and Mountain Brook lakes regions with a good moose head. Mr.
Johnson is very much pleased with his trip and has made arrangements with the same guide for next season.

Dr. J. W. Walter Park, H. E. Hushey and W. J. Ray of Harrisburg Pa., who composed one of Edward Menzies parties and were guided by John Keston and Jas.
Brander with Neville Whitney cook, returned the first of the week. They got a moose head with a spread of 53 inches and one deer.

Mr. R. T. Armstrong returned last week from a hunt in the vicinity of Catamaran lakes. "Sandy" Johnson was with him as guide. Mr. Armstrong had quite an exciting time with a bull moose, the animal charging him and getting to within eight feet before according to the shots that were placed in his body. The head is a very fine one.

Messrs H. S. and F. H. Cockendall of New York who were also one of the Menzies parties and guided by himself had great success. They went into the woods on the first of September and hunted bear until the big game season opened.

Five large bears were brought down and two others were wounded but escaped.
After the season opened they shot two moose within the first two days. One head had a spread of fifty five inches the other was considerably smaller. One week later they shot a caribou with a very pretty head still in the velvet and without a patch of the fur taken off. While away the party counted eighteen bear, thirty moose of which most were cows, and four caribou.

There seems to be a feeling among the guides that it would be preferable to have a section of the country allotted to each guide who would pay a license of say fifty dollars for the privilege. As it is our guides do not encroach on the territories of the others, but parties from the North come into their territory and we know of at least two parties who are doubtful about coming again unless some provision can be made so that the risk of being shot by other parties by mistake is done away with.

If the parties that are in the habit of coming to Newcastle are driven away by this, it means a large loss to our town and is something that is worth while looking after to see if some solution cannot be made of the trouble.

SHOT FOR A BEAR

Harry Livingston of P. E. I.
Wounded.

Harry Livingston, a worthless chap, who says he lived a long time ago at Tignish,
P. E. I., and is now in the Hotel Dieu hospital, with a bullet in his arm and the other arm in a plaster of Paris mould, had the following explanations to give the authorities of the cause of his wound: He was walking along the road in the neighborhood of the Grand Downs, some fifteen miles from Chatham, on Monday, 21st inst., 9:15 p. m. He was in the act of lighting a match when a man, whom he had seen coming from the opposite direction, fired at him, shooting him in the arm. He uttered a hurried exclamation, whereupon the man with the gun came up to him and explained that he thought he was a bear. Livingston explained that he was not a bear, and asked to be taken to a house, as his arm was bleeding and sore.
The reply was that the first house in the direction in which Livingston was going was 15 miles away, but one in the other direction was only one mile distant.
Livingston asked for assistance to reach the house, but was refused, neither was an apology offered for the injury or the refusal to help. The wounded man got to Loggieville some way or another which is ten miles distant and on the opposite side of the river. Messrs. Loggie's team brought him here to the hospital. The man, we are told, is quite sane. The man that used the gun, according to Livingston, is described as five feet six inches in height, dark complexion, and small mustache; wore a gumsey and long legged boots.—World

Bowser's Bald Head.

He discovers a new way to make hair grow and gives it a trial--Bares his scalp to the dew until disturbed by wild animals.

Mr. Bowser had been reading and smoking for half an hour when he laid the paper down and remarked in what he thought was a careless way:

"I'm thinking some of trying a little experiment tonight."

"Don't do it," promptly replied Mrs. Bowser. "The water pipes, electric gas meter and gas fixtures are all right, and I hope you won't disturb things."

No one thought of disturbing things. When I disturb things it's to better them. My handy way of fixing things saved us $500 last year.

But there's nothing to fix now. Well, that's all right. I was thinking of the Persian who was in this afternoon. He happened to notice my bald head and suggested a remedy.

And of course you bought it and have been done for again. He probably heard what an easy mark you are before he left home.

Woman, stop right where you are, said Mr. Bowser as he pointed a finger at her across the table. In the first place, I have never been done for, as you call it. In the second, the Persian had nothing for sale. As I told you, he simply made a suggestion.

Did he suggest sandpaper to scratch the roots into life? asked Mrs. Bowser.

You either drop that sarcastic tone or we don't talk any more. By thunder, but it seems to me that you grow meaner as you grow older. If you had some husbands to deal with you'd find out what was what pretty quick. What in blazes is that blamed old cat looking at me in that way for? If I had a crowbar I'd—

The cat uttered a mew and disappeared, and Mrs. Bowser begged pardon and expressed her sorrow. Five minutes later Mr. Bowser had choked back his emotion and was saying:

It's no crime to be baldheaded, but if I can grow new hair I ought to do it. This Persian remedy is a very simple thing. In Persia a bald-headed man sits out at night and lets the dew fall on his bald pate. It acts as a fertilizer, and after a few nights the hair begins to grow.

Are you sure he wasn't joking? asked Mrs. Bowser.

How joking? What was there to joke about? I'd like to see a stranger, and a Persian at that, joke about my bald head! There was no joking about it. He simply noticed my bald head and suggested a hair restorative.

And you propose to sit out in the back yard tonight and let the dew fall upon your head?

Yes, I thought I'd try it. I don't see any harm in trying it, do you?

Not a bit, except that you'll blame me and talk about a divorce as you always do.

What will there be to blame you about? asked Mr. Bowser as he felt that he had got over the worst of it. You have nothing to do with the dews of heaven, or my baldness. It's nonsense to talk that way. There'll be nothing to blame anybody about. If I have talked about a divorce now and then it has all been in fun. When you get ready to go to bed I'll slip out for an hour or two to give the restorative a chance to get in its work.

An hour later he took a seat in the back yard with his back to the fence. It was a quiet, dewy night, and the neighbors seemed to have gone to bed. The family cat sat beside Mr. Bowser in the moonlight and he had pencil and paper to make a few notes. The memorandum, as Mrs. Bowser found them on the grass next day, read:

10.15. I begin to feel the falling dew. Everything is as quiet as if death had laid its hand on the city.

10.30. The dew seems to be striking in. Cat is somewhat agitated but I am passive. I'd like to see any one try to joke me about my baldness.

10.45. The dew seems to produce an itching of the scalp. I take that as a good sign. The dews of Persia may be different from those of America, but that's to be seen. Of course, I'm not ashamed of my bald head, but I know my hat would sit better if I had hair.

11 o'clock. There is a sort of grateful glow all over my scalp. The dew is acting on the roots like water on an old sunflower. I believe the Persian knew what he was talking about. The cat evinces a disposition to retire from the scene, and I shall not detain her. The idea of Mrs. Bowser asking me if I was going to sandpaper my poll!

11.15. The dew continues. So does the glow. I don't expect a new crop of hair tonight, but I feel sure that two more nights will do the trick for me. How solemn the night! It seems as if I heard soft footsteps about me, and were I a sentimentalist I should say that angels were hovering near. Mrs. Bowser would as soon I should be an old foolhead as not, but if this Persian trick works I'll have the call on her.

11.30. Dew still doing business. I have sneezed about fifty times in the last ten minutes, but the Persian probably figured on that. Sneezing must have an effect on the roots of the hair—a lifting effect. I can't understand Mrs. Bowser. I never come home with a new remedy that she isn't ready to talk about my being a soft mark. The patter of footsteps continues, and the cat has struck a fighting attitude.

11.42. It is what might be termed a heavenly shampoo. For the first time in fifteen years I am feeling a crawling movement under the scalp. I don't go much on Persians as a race, but this fellow is apparently all right. It may or may not be the movements of angels I hear on the fence, but—

Mrs. Bowser, who had gone to a back window to see how the dew was no joking about it. He simply noticed my bald head and suggested a hair restorative.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of St. Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering is permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made so much to my health and happiness that I feel compelled to say a word for it. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day while visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had used it with the best result, and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me. I now experience no pain, and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change."—Miss Alice M. Smith, 304 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn.—$3.00 per bottle if sent by mail.

Many women suffer severely from the monthly pain and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes the entire female system healthy.

cure got along, was just in time to see a bunch of cats numbering about a hundred thousand drop from the fence. They dropped on the Bowser cat and on Mr. Bowser himself, and for a moment the air was rent with yells and caterwauling and caw words. Then Mr. Bowser separated himself from the cats and made for the back door on the jump, and a minute later he stood before her with the dew glistening on his bald pate.

Well, is it a success? she asked. Woman, how dare you address me? he thundered. Can't I see? I know it was a put up job to assassinate me—your fifteenth in two years—and to-morrow we will call in our lawyers and put an end to this thing—put a legal end to it.

MASSACRES IN PERSIA.

People who follow affairs in the East are shocked nowadays by the reports of massacres in Persia arising out of religious bigotry. These massacres, however, will soon pass into history and be forgotten. But those who look a little further East will not forget that in India and Ceylon is the source of the beautifully flavored teas which, blended in the famous Moore's Teas, delight the palates of so many consumers in the Maritime Provinces.

Mail Carrier's Electric Whip

Georgia Paper Suggests Extending Its Use to Farm Hands.

A Georgia mail carrier has invented an electric whip which, according to Machinery, presents considerable novelty.

The mail carrier drives a wagon with doors that could be closed to rain. In stormy weather he naturally disliked to open one of the doors in order to reach out and apply the lash to his horse, which, being an intelligent animal, naturally took advantage of this situation and always lagged in rainy weather.

To overcome this propensity the Georgia Edison attached a pair of copper plates under the harness saddle and connected them by a wire to a hand-operated dynamo in the wagon.

When the steel began to jog up and down, without making much advance, it was time to turn the dynamo crank, which gave the horse a very evident wish to get over the ground more rapidly, and almost any desired speed could be obtained according to the number of rotations per minute given the dynamo armature.

An apparatus is now contemplated, says the Atlanta Constitution, which paper has the distinction of first telling about this invention, for use on ploughs, whereby both the mule and plough hand shall be automatically shocked every few minutes.

It is believed that such an attachment would find a tremendous sale all over the south, as by its use farmers could be very sure that no darkey would go to sleep between the plough handles.

The Country. An Epitome of Events Gathered by ADVOCATE Reporters

JANEVILLE.

We are having fine harvest weather at present and the farmers are taking advantage of it, to have their grain cut and housed. The oats are a very fine crop all through the country and there will be double the amount of straw this year than last.

The new Methodist church is being erected rapidly and several carpenters are employed steadily. The frame is all up now. The building is to be forty seven feet long and twenty four wide, it will be quite an enlargement on the old one.

We are having beautiful weather for cod-fishing, but the fish are very scarce this fall, very few have been caught along here.

A fine new bridge has been erected over Sullivan's brook, this summer, it is quite an improvement on the old one. It is about four feet higher and the hill has been cut down several feet, which will do a lot of good especially in the winter time where the snow banks up so high.

The Carquet Railway Co. have purchased a new engine of the I. C. R., it is a great deal heavier than the old one and will draw a bigger load. It will doubtless be quite a help in ploughing through the snow-banks in the winter time.

A. J. McKenzie paid Carquet a visit this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Donnald spent last Tuesday in Bathurst.

The Diphtheria is very bad in Clifton many cases are reported but no deaths have resulted from it yet.

The young men are beginning to go away to the woods now. Messrs. Wm. and Charlie Scott left for Campbellton a week ago where they will go in the woods. Mr. W. J. Scott and Jim Morrison left with a team of horses on Monday to go to Campbellton also.

Mr. Arthur Caie spent a day of last week in Bathurst.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ellis spent a few days of last week in Bathurst with friends and relatives.

Miss Maggie Morrison spent a few days this week visiting relatives in Bathurst.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Ephraim Scott who has been very ill with typhoid fever is somewhat improved.

Mr. Frank Robinson has erected a fine new shed this summer, in the rear of his barn.

Messrs. Fred DeRush and Aubrey Brown, who have been in the employ of Wm. O'Brien here for several years left recently for Madawaska where they have accepted a more lucrative position.

Mr. Lester Ellis has left here for the Restigouche woods.

Mr. Ed. Dempsey has greatly improved the appearance of his house by a new coat of paint.

A. E. Chapman is erecting a large kitchen and wood shed, he has built a fine wire-fence across his farm on both sides of the road. Mr. Waldron Caie spent a day in Bathurst recently.

We hear that Mr. Wm. O'Brien has finished his contract in Inker-man. He now intends going in the woods near Carquet. He appears to find it difficult to get men, as all his old crowd have left. Miss Fanny Smith is spending a few weeks of her vacation at her home in Janeville.

A Neat Swindle.

How a Stranger Obtained $9.75 from Errand Boy

Mr. Chas. McGregor, the Charlotte street druggist, was the victim of a neatly planned and well executed swindle about 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. About 5.30 o'clock Mr. McGregor was called to the telephone and a male voice inquired of him the price of a bottle of Pabst's Malt Extract.

Mr. McGregor said that a bottle would cost 25 cents and the voice replied, telling him to send a bottle around to Mr. Goodhere, 121 Union street, and also to send with the bottle the necessary change for a $10 bill, as it was very hard to get that money changed at his house. Mr. McGregor suspecting nothing, as the stuff was to be sent to a house, gave his boy a small lad who works as messenger after school hours, the bottle of extract and $9.75, in return for which he was to receive from this Mr. Goodhere a $10 bill. The lad left on his errand and returned shortly saying that no such person lived at 121 Union street. At this moment Mr. McGregor was again called to the phone, and the same voice wanted to know why he had not sent the stuff around. Mr. McGregor replied that his boy had been around to 121 Union street and found that no such person lived there. The stranger replied that he had given the address 131 Union street and for him to send the boy around to that address and he would meet him.

Mr. McGregor accordingly again despatched his boy to 131 Union street with the $9.75 and the bottle of medicine. The young fellow accordingly handed over the bottle and money and the stranger took a note out of his pocket and gave it to the lad, telling him to take it around to the address which was written on it, on Brussels street, and he would wait at Dorchester street for his return when he would give him 25 cents in addition to the $10 bill.

The young lad did as he was requested, but when he returned it was to find that the stranger had gone, and he accordingly went back and told Mr. McGregor, who immediately notified the police, who are now working on the case.

The house No. 131 Union street is unoccupied and the bottle of medicine was subsequently recovered in the vestibule.

Detective Killen went to the house on Brussels street where the lad had taken the note and found that no person of that name lived there. On the note was written, Pay bearer $10.

Why do you watch the thermometer on the wall so closely? queried the invalid.

Because replied the untrained nurse, the doctor said if the temperature got any higher I was to give you another dose of quinine.

For Pains and Lameness use KEN-DRICK'S LINIMENT.

Pains in the Back and Headache

Were entirely cured and health greatly improved by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. LARSEN, 123 Cross St., Charlotte, N.B., and whose husband is a contractor, writes: "I suffered a great deal with pains in the back, my digestion was bad, and I was frequently troubled with dizziness and headache. I have been entirely cured of these distressing symptoms by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and find that my general health is greatly improved since I have been using this preparation. I can also testify to the merit of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as I was cured of a severe attack of bronchitis by the use of this remedy."

Pains in the small of the back are an unmistakable symptom of kidney disease, and should be sufficient warning of the approach of this dreadfully painful and fatal ailment. There is no treatment so prompt to bring relief and cure so fast as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one will a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

Maud and Her John.

Maud Miller's hubby, whose name was John,

Got out the mower to mow the lawn.

He didn't fancy the job a bit,

But Maud commanded, and she was fit.

The sun beat down on his suffering head

As hot as a shower of molten lead.

The words that fell from his wobbly jaw

We dare not publish through fear of law.

The mower sang an unearthly song

As the back-bowed martyr chased a'long.

The sweat purred down o'er his heated breast

Till he suffered from water on the chest.

Maud sat in the shade of a tree and read

That naughty novel, "The Quick and Dead."

She chewed her pepsin and glanced anon

At her suffering mate on the sunbaked lawn.

He'd glance at her when he'd lead her way

And think some things that he dares not say.

His toilsome work he anon would cease

To mop the sweat from his forehead piece.

And he'd glance at his love, who looked as cool

As a frog on the bank of a shaded pool—

At her light shirt waist, with the net-work crust.

That checked a scope of pale, cool bust.

And he vowed he would jump the contract were

It not for his breathless love for her.

For her he would bear the heaviest cross

For he worshipped his little tyrant boss.

But in thoughtless manner she made a crack.

That caused a break in the camel's back.

With a smile that extended from ear to ear.

She asked "Is it hot enough for you dear?"

Then he slammed the mower against the fence,

And chased himse'lf from her presence hence,

And the words he uttered as he sped

Burned holes in the atmosphere 'round his head.

When next she saw him he had assumed

A jag, and his troubles were all entombed.

WHITE KING OF YELLOW MEN.

In 1835 a young Englishman named James Brooke inherited a fortune. He had been in the service of the East India Company, and he determined to devote his life to the Malays.

For helping subdue a rebellion in Borneo, Brooke was made Raja, or King of Sarawak, which he ruled with signal success. The independence of the country was recognized in 1863 by Great Britain.

At the death of Brooke, his nephew, Charles Brooke, succeeded. Of his curious position as monarch of a country larger than Scotland, Mr. Alleyne Ireland, of the Chicago University, writes in the Outlook:

The Raja is, he says, a monarch more completely autocratic than any other in the world, since for him the great restraining forces of absolute monarchy—the existence of tribal and anti-tribal factions and the very strong influence which is always exerted by a powerful hereditary nobility—do not exist. Everything the Raja says goes; he is backed but not interfered with by the British government.

Mr. Ireland describes a meeting of the Sarawak "Supreme Council" composed of the Raja, an English resident or two and a few native "Rajatos". His highness proposes, for instance, that certain timber be preserved for the use of the inhabitants and its export forbidden. It is carried unanimously. No appeal to a supreme court—the supreme court is the Raja. No delays. No debate.

There is not a lawyer in Sarawak. Its higher officials are all English, except one Frenchman and one Scot. Its growth in trade for thirty years, less some reduction for the fall in the silver standard, has been:

1870.	1891.
Value of imports $1,325,063	$4,001,000
Value of exports 1,391,241	3,900,000

Pensions and Enlistments

The whole number of enlistments in the United States service during the war was 2,772,408. It is impossible to determine how many men went into the army. Many enlisted three times or oftener. Perhaps a round million might cover the number of individuals who took the oath of a soldier in the great struggle for the Union. It may have been a million and a quarter. But it is certain that the Federal government has paid in pensions, not quite all for the Civil War, more than $1,000 for every enlistment in that period and at least $2,500 for every person who enlisted.

Sometimes old soldiers who are the victims of real or supposed injustice in their dealings with the pension bureau say that republics are ungrateful as they were accused of being long ago, but in the light of statistical records made to stand forever it will be hard to convince coming generations or foreign nations that any such charge can be proved against the United States.

What Canada Can Offer.

The view that Canada has nothing to offer us in exchange for a freer entrance to her markets is widely inaccurate. She has much that we can use to great advantage, and much that we really need now barred out quite as much to our loss as to hers. We even have a market for a portion of her farm products, even for beans and peas, onions and potatoes. We imported last year nearly $5,000,000 worth of these articles, some portion of them coming from Canada. She has much in lumber, in metals and in minerals which we can use to great and profitable advantage in our mills and factories. She has beef that we want and wool that we can use. It is even doubtful whether Massachusetts would be hurt by a freer entrance of fish and lobsters, while the country at large would not be a little benefited. The idea that Canada has nothing to offer that we want in exchange for that which we can give dates back to the conditions of twenty years ago, but does not apply to the conditions of today.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Union Advocate,

ESTABLISHED 1867.

NEWCASTLE, SEPTEMBER 23 1903.

RAILWAY BONUSES

The new transcontinental road will cost much money directly and much indirectly. At the close of last session it was announced that no railway bonuses would be given, but that assistance would be rendered to a new railway to the West. This session bonuses are to be given freely in addition to assistance to this new transcontinental road. This is a reversion to the old order of things which most people believed had gone forever.

The Canadian Northern Railway has received a bond guarantee of some eight or nine millions. That was the first breach of promise. If that were the last, most people would overlook it. Now comes the announcement that the country is prosperous and can easily grant more bonuses. There are to be other breaches of the promise, breaches which will be condoned by both sides of the House.

The country is prosperous. There is no doubt of that, but the reasonable conclusion would be that this prosperity would remove the necessity of bonuses. If bonuses are to be granted because the country is prosperous, then they may be expected to increase in size and number as the years go by. Surely the absurdity of this would have revealed itself to such shrewd and able men as Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Hon. Mr. Fielding.

The real reason for this revival of subsidies is due, no doubt, to compromises which were rendered necessary by the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. The Canadian Northern people have considerable influence in both parties and they demand subsidies as the price of their acquiescence in the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. The same may be said of the Canadian Pacific people, the Trans-Canada crowd, and the Quebec Bridge promoters. In order to smooth down the opposition to the Government's bargain with one set of financiers, all the other sets must get a share of the plunder.

The weakness of the politicians on both sides of the House, and the selfishness of our financiers was never more strikingly exhibited. The country is prosperous, the revenue is increasing, trade is doubling, profits are growing, therefore increase the bounties on steel production, on silver lead refining, on binder twine manufacturing, on bridge construction, and on railway building. Truly, prosperity hath its dangers as well as stagnation. In Great Britain prosperity and an expanding revenue means a reduction of taxation; in Canada they mean an increase in the levies and a more generous giving to him that hath.—October Canadian Magazine.

WASTE OF WATER.

The man in charge of the pump at the power house, not taking into account the small consumption of water on Sunday, and having no device to warn him when the reservoir was full, pumped the usual quantity on Sundays with the result that the reservoir overflowed and on one occasion did considerable damage to the roadbed as no provision had been made to carry off the surplus water.

If some members of the council who are ever ready to talk of the waste of water would make an effort to have the electric device for warning the pump tender when reservoir was full it would probably be the means of saving a large quantity of water, and also a considerable sum which will have to be spent in repairing the road every time such an overflow occurs.

WOMEN IN FACTORIES.

A Digest of the Report of Miss Carlyle, Inspector of Factories and Shops for Ontario, and the Inspector of the Piecework System and Its Serious Evils.

According to the report of Miss Carlyle, Inspector of factories and shops for Ontario, there are about 20,000 female employees in the factories of the Province. Although the collection of accurate statistics is a comparatively recent departure, it is evident that this record shows a marked increase during the last few years. That the future will bring equally rapid increases may fairly be predicted, for the growth of manufacturing industries is assured, and women's increasing employment shows a preference for the factories. The conditions in the factories of the Province, on the whole, are quite satisfactory, and the inspector finds very little cause for adverse criticism. Factories are generally clean, and there is but very little overcrowding, the only complaint that is at all urgent being in regard to ventilation. One of the changes that has greatly improved industrial conditions is the substitution of electric lighting for gas. The gas flame has been a source of danger in many factories, and at the same time tends to increase the temperature. The change has made working conditions more comfortable in many factories, although that result was not directly contemplated. Employers, however, are generally willing to do everything necessary to insure the safety and comfort of employees. In dealing with the movement for a Saturday half-holiday, Miss Carlyle gives it a strong endorsement, and takes a decided attitude against overtime for women workers. It is a matter involving the health of a large number of employees, and the views of the inspector are entitled to the fullest consideration.

The effect of introducing the piecework system is discussed at considerable length. The rapid pace and severe nervous strain which have resulted from it are made the basis of an argument in favor of restricting the hours of work. Time is really the essence of all contracts between employers and employees. Where piecework is introduced, the rate for each stint of work is determined, not by its ultimate price, but by the time it will take to do it. By experience in day work employees learn to estimate the time required for the various operations in which the piecework system is introduced, and thus have a basis for estimating the rates of payment. Employees are stimulated by the piecework system to greater effort, every increase in their output meaning a corresponding increase in their returns. Working under pressure means comparatively large weekly wages. This is noted by managers and directors, and generally leads to a reduction in the piece rates. The result is a speed and pressure which led Miss Carlyle to question how long the nerves of the workers could withstand the strain. The wide variation in wage rates shows that factory employment for women is still in an unsettled condition. Employees in boot and shoe, tobacco and cigar, woollen and knitting factories receive better pay than those working in other industries. In the many branches of wearing apparel manufacture the rate of wages varies so materially that it would be impossible to venture on the average wage which would not be liable to contradiction. The entrance of women into light manual occupations is among the accomplished changes of modern industrial conditions. It would be futile to discuss the advisability of the inevitable, and it only remains to minimize any resultant evils that may develop.

BATHURST.

The nights during the past week have been pretty cold but we hear of no degree of frost that has been noticed and as the days have been fairly sunny and warm the grain and root crops should have had a better chance to ripen than during the previous weeks, when considerable wet weather prevailed. To these fortunate enough to have farms like most of these in Youghall, lying where the sun in the early part of the day has a chance to ripen the grain the past spell of fine weather has been a great boon and we hear that these farmers have about finished their harvesting of hay and grain. Many others, however, have had to cut their oats before they ripened and will be forced to feed green oats to their stock.

The orchards in the vicinity of Bathurst and in fact all along the North Shore as far as we can learn look, very well, and the crops of apples and plums will be much larger than last year. We are glad to see that many of our farmers are giving considerable attention to fruit raising, and that accordingly there is no reason why many of the finest kinds of apples cannot be grown to advantage on the North Shore.

Reverting to what we said in last week's notes about the cod fishery. We are sorry to say that there has been no improvement in this important industry and the loss to fishermen, merchants and in fact the whole community in this regard will be very serious. Fortunately, however, as it is counterbalanced by the loss of the cod fishery, the catch of all herring has been a splendid one and the fish are larger and fatter than any taken for many years. The fishermen of Carquet and Shippegan, who were about discouraged on account of the cod fishery, have renewed their courage, and are now paying particular attention to the herring. As these fish, particularly when large and good, find a ready money market and bring good prices, it is possible the loss may be partly made up by their abundance.

Smelts are only fairly plentiful as far, but as the reason for these fish is only about commencing it is to be hoped the catch may prove at least an average one for we understand the prices in American markets are very good at present.

The roads throughout the county are in fine condition at present but some of the bridges, particularly the one over Bathurst Basin, need repairs very much. We are informed that it is the intention of the Government to take the entire top of the bridge between the station and town, re-ballast the structure, straighten the foundations and practically build a new bridge. This work should have been done before, as the present bridge is almost a disgrace to the department and Locality. Whether it has been decided to commence the work before the ice forms or not, we cannot say, but we are assured it will be done this fall.

What is supposed to have been an incendiary fire occurred at Blue Cove in this county last week and the loss of the building and contents to the owner, Mr. William F. Sullivan, was quite serious. It appears that Mr. Sullivan missed some harness from his barn—not the one that was destroyed, but another one—and having some suspicion of who had stolen the harness, he went to a local magistrate for a search warrant. There being some delay, necessarily no doubt on the part of the magistrate in issuing the papers, the fact that Mr. Sullivan had applied for them had become known in the locality, and the thieves, in order to cover up their tracks, brought the harness back to this barn and set fire to it. Mr. Sullivan had been at the barn only a short time before the fire, having gone there to put a new lock or staple on the door, and it is thought the party or parties who set the fire must have been concealed nearby and when he went away got in their nefarious work. The loss, besides the building, consisted of a considerable quantity of grain and hay lately stored in the barn, a new buggy and an almost new reaper, in all about $500 besides the value of the building. Mr. J. J. Harrington, clerk of the peace, accompanied by a constable from Bathurst visited the locality a day or two after the fire, and there seems to be considerable suspicion against certain parties who may presently lead to arrests. Everything possible should be done by the authorities and in fact by the respectable people of the locality to uncover this matter and have the guilty parties severely punished.

As we write a message has been received that a rotary mill together with a large quantity of sawn lumber belonging to the Sumner Co., at Millstream, parish of Beresford, has been burned. It is said that nearly two million feet of lumber piled near the mill and that the fire is sweeping the piles under a strong wind. As no further particulars are at hand, we cannot give them, but it is to be hoped the loss is not so serious as reported. The mill was under the management of Mr. John Byrne of Sussex, who has been sawing for Messrs. Sumner this season, and being a rotary it is not likely that the sawn lumber is covered by insurance or not. In any case the loss at this time of year, when such a quantity of lumber is on hand at the mill, is likely to be a serious one to all concerned.

At present there are no vessels loading at Bathurst, the last steamer, Progress, having sailed on Thursday and a German barque a few days before, both of which were loaded for Mr. F. E. Neale. Several vessels are expected soon.

Messrs. Amos Gallant and William O'Brien have gone over to Gaspe to look over some logging sites on the tract of land recently acquired by Messrs. Desbriay and Gilbert mentioned in recent notes.

If the conditions for lumbering are suitable it is probable that Mr. O'Brien and possibly Mr. Gallant may take contracts from the above named gentlemen for this winter's operations.

Mr. Freeman Goodwin who has been away on a visit to friends and relatives in Westmorland county returned last week and it is fitting up his mill and getting ready for his winter's operations on the old Miramichi road. Mr. Goodwin has purchased the standing lumber on several lots in that locality and hopes, with luck, to put in a profitable winter's work. He will haul his logs to his mill which is placed on the lots mentioned and after sawing his lumber, transport it on sleds to Messrs. Adams, Burns & Co.'s wharf for shipment during next season.

PERSONALS.

Hon. Samuel Adams of the large dry goods firm of Adams & Co., New York, has been visiting relatives and friends in Bathurst and Miramichi. Mr. Adams is always a very welcome visitor and his many friends do not envy him his splendid success in the metropolis of America. May he live long to enjoy his good luck.

Mrs. Campbell of St. John is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Blair at Bathurst.

Mr. Thomas Adams, Jr., of New York, who has been hunting near the Grand Falls on the Nepisiguit brought out a fine moose head on Saturday. Nearly every day one or more parties arrive in town from the woods with a full quota of moose, deer and caribou heads, several bring bear skins as trophies of their trip to our magnificent hunting grounds. A nephew of Mr. Carnegie, "the great Carnegie" was among our visitors and has returned with his friend each having a full quota of heads. Four heads to one party from the Tetagouche Lakes this week also is good proof that the woods abound with game.

Mr. George Robertson of the Robertson House has been quite ill for nearly a week, but is recovering.

Mrs. Helen Bishop is visiting friends in Sussex.

Mr. Fraser of the Halifax Echo, is spending a few holiday days in Bathurst.

Mr. Wm. Foley, the popular hotel man of Carquet, spent a few days in Bathurst last week.

Messrs. Joseph Blanchard of the Blanchard Hotel, and Joseph Cormier, Carquet, have taken advantage of the cheap trip to Montreal, leaving on Saturday.

Mr. Hugh Cowan, the License Inspector is at present in Bathurst.

Messrs. Simon Holmstrom and John Rosenberg have gone to Montreal to attend the usual Jewish Religion services which take place at this time of year.

Letters from several young men who went West with the harvest workers say that they are all at work and quite well. It is likely a great many of them will return when the work is over. Several having gone merely for the trip and experience.

Mr. Edward Rhodes of Manchester, England, a son of the celebrated Cecil Rhodes, paid Bathurst a flying visit last week.

The Masons are having their hall and lodge room thoroughly overhauled, newly painted, papered and put in first class shape. It needed the repairs very much.

LATER

The fire at the Millstream mill was not as serious as at first reported. That the mill was badly damaged is a fact, but no lumber of any value was destroyed, owing to the wind blowing off the piles. The mill was owned by Mr. John Byrne and the lumber by Messrs. Sumner Co.

Mrs. Leland Howe and children of Chicago, who have been visiting her father, Mr. Thos. Suter for the last three months, has returned to New York where she will stop off to visit her father-in-law, and proceed to her home in Chicago. Her friends of Bathurst much regret her departure and hope to see her return next year.

GRAND ANSE.

Mrs. Wm. Theault, widow of the late William Theault of the Grand Anse hotel, died on Monday, Sept. 21st. The funeral on Wednesday was largely attended.

Marin Therault also died at Grand Anse on Monday, Sept. 21st. Deceased had been ill for some time of consumption.

The Gloucester County Teachers' Institute met here last week and was fairly well attended.

A barn owned by Wm. Sullivan, at the head of the Grand Anse portage was broken into recently and a quantity of harness removed. A few nights later the barn was a library as on fire and destroyed, together with contents. The loss is about $500 with no insurance. Among the contents were harness, wheat, rye, and in all a sum of money belonging to A. J. W. McKee, Bathurst.

The parties suspected of stealing harness were arrested and appeared before a magistrate on Tuesday and remanded until Monday. These are only boys and a severe example should be made of them.

The potato crop in this section is good, and good prices are being realized. Mr. James Theault is building a new residence.

CAVE OF THE WINDS

Niagara From a New Point of View—The Scenic Tunnel of the Canadian Northern Is Beautifully Completed

The world has its waterfalls, but Canada has the world's waterfalls in kindly Niagara. Its flood of great waters has held spellbound millions of sightseers who have come to its shores to gaze and to be amazed. To a shrine, where man's wealth in Toronto Gables.

But a new wonder has been made available at the king of cataracts: a vast, new, stupendous wall of white and green, the wall of the Maid of the Mist is thrust into the very base of the thundering waters from the lower river level, so that the visitor can penetrate the age-long secret chamber back of the Canadian Horseshoe Falls, and gaze at the wonder from behind! It is a journey into the very heart of the mystery. It is a disclosure of the might and mystery of the wonderful creation such as man has never before been able to enjoy.

The Scenic Tunnel.
All this has been made possible by the scenic tunnel on the Canadian bank, excavated during recent months, and now partially completed. The present approach is under Table Rock. Entering the new tunnel (an under-world average 120 feet deep, cut through the slate that underlies the Niagara limestone), the journey is continued to a point where daylight suddenly appears. This is a lateral section of the tunnel coming out to the face of the cliff, within a few feet of the actual Horseshoe Fall.

The rock is further penetrated until a deep base roar thrills one, while the very rocks vibrate with the Titanic poundings of the ever-tumbling flood. The nerves tingle with the sensation, and the blood courses faster, as, rounding a curve of the grey-walled cavern, one actually sees Niagara from behind. There pours the cataract! There it sings its anthem of inconceivable power! There its white sheet acts as a pane of glass through which a strange, ghostly half-light percolates.

Spectacle in Perfect Safety.
An enlarged area at the mouth of the tunnel—sixteen feet wide—permits the visitors to gaze on the unwonted spectacle in perfect safety, and yet so near as to be in the very heart of the scene, and, as it were, feel the pulse of the cataract. Peering sheer upward, over a shrouded height higher, the eye can trace the next plunge of the great water over the rocky, craggy, smooth by the attrition of the centuries. One can follow the graceful curves of the fall as, by the impact of its leap, it makes the circle of an arch on its mighty plunge. One, too, may gaze sheer downwards, forty, fifty, feet, over a mass of jagged boulders to the point where the waters strike the rocks, producing that deep, dirge-like note that sings its own song beneath all other sounds. Here, as nowhere else, one may hear the overlasting music of Niagara, one may see the Wonder

The sight fascinates while it thrills. In the space formed by the arched foot—possibly twenty or thirty feet from rocky wall to the falling water—is a gigantic cave of the winds, where roars a mighty maelstrom of air. The roar of the water roared and rushed in all their invisible fury through the countless aeons since God made Niagara.

The effect as seen from the tunnel aperture is indescribable. Through the shining sheets of spray appear the swirling eddies of white water in the main fall, but in the intervening spaces chaos reigns supreme. Great gusts of wind sweep hither and thither in a vain attempt to find a vent, carrying within their grasp wrath-like currents of mist.

It is such a scene as Dante would have feasted his soul upon. He would have made a pilgrimage from his beloved Florantine city had such a spectacle been open to him in the middle ages. From below, the vapors belched upwards as if they were being propelled from the mouth of a seething volcano—at times opening in regular succession, at times in a series of simultaneous blasts and hurled against the cliff walls or across the face of the tunnel.

To the abrupt left-hand an occasional gleam may be had of the cave-like space, over a hundred feet distant, where the Horseshoe Fall has its western boundary; but an attempt to pierce the cave on the right-hand side, would lead one to the great V-shaped vortex of the Horseshoe, reveals a dense whirling mass of waters, blown every which way by the wind, so that no human being could stand by. No two combinations of mist and water, like this, are known in the world. The scene takes on as many phases as a procession of clouds undulating against a summer sky.

At the sight that the traveler's restless ingenuity may have now made possible on the Canadian bank of old Niagara.

When the whole scheme is completed, the tunnel will consist of a tunnel of 700 feet, reaching from a shaft, yet to be sunk, near the Table Rock House to a point where it will cross over the two branch tunnels. The tunnel will be electrically operated, and the electric elevator will lower visitors to a depth of 120 feet, after which an electric-lighted tubular street will be opened up to the surface. It is estimated that the cost of the project is much as is not duplicated anywhere in the world.

The seed will be distributed as fair, as an object lesson in its use, and the following are the fields in which the seed will be shown as follows: Bramford, Owen Sound, Walkerton, Simcoe, Whitby, Renfrew, Perth and

The yarn spun by the first man, a round-faced good-humored little porter, had to do with the error made only a few weeks ago by a member of Parliament from Western Ontario, who was traveling down to Ottawa, and taking with him his eight-year-old son. They had "lower 5," and soon after the east-bound express left the Union Station they went to bed, the lad making from time to time, audible comments on the novelty of the situation, which afforded considerable amusement to the other pas-

In order to quiet the little chap he got up, got the water, and when he arrived at the door he saw the politician pull apart the curtains, which were not fastened, and was about to lift up the little fellow's head when his wife supposed on screamed. Naturally the politician was in a bad way, and he doused the sleeping woman, who screamed again and unloaded a line of "How dare you?" and "What do you mean?" which put the politician in a worse bad. He dressed immediately, woke the boy, dressed him, and then the politician, dressed him in the smoking-

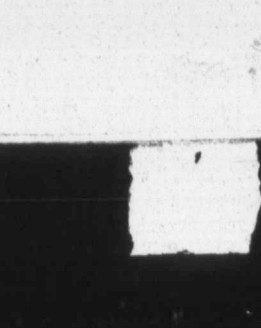

Strenuous Language. "Speaking of strong language," said the stout porter with the well-trained moustache, "reminds me of a man I used to have on the car pretty often who swore in his sleep. And it was a funny thing, either, but strong loud coming out of him was the first couple of times made all kinds of trouble for me with the other passengers. He was on railroad construction work, probably had to 'talk up' quite a bit to his men; and he was a little used to that day and night. I told him one morning that a row he had been making, and he wasn't offended, on the contrary, he said, 'Porter, if you ever hear me swear again, come to my berth and

She got up, and I went to make up the berth. On opening the curtain I saw a rough-haired pup, about as big as a pint of cider, mixed with white, which he was sniffing at, having a lovely time, and was growling in a fierce undertone. About half of the hair was torn out of the switch, and was scattered all over the place, while the dog looked like a 30 cents. While I was laughing, the woman returned, evidently for the false hair. She was worried all right, that she said, and I told her that the switch, and begged me to let her keep the dog until we got to Montreal. She said she would reward me, and so as we were only a few minutes late, she gave me a 50 cents. "How did she reward you?" The state of the roads in Canada preclude the chance of the motor car disturbing the tranquility of the inhabitants, and endangering the lives of the live stock of rural Canada. There will be hot days in July and August when, for some hours at least, a "shady nook and well-bound book" will be the only possible solution of existence. Laupman has drawn a picture of an ideal Canadian summer's day in his poem

The quality of brain power during the mid-summer heat is exactly that which is conducive to the absorption of all that is best in literature. It is a gift for the average Canadian as fairly at a standstill. Households are not run at concert pitch. The intellectual rate, that the intellectualism is in the ascendant. Out of door lounging is conducive to reverie, and the absorption of abstract ideas. "It is in the summer months of life we learn and grow, and during the hours of rest and lassitude that we gain understanding, that we make the fullness of life." It is a big advantage if your house is not a mistake, one or two good books, a magazine or two, and the daily paper, will suffice. But a summer devoid of books, even for those who are intelligent readers during the rest of the year, is a mistake, for the very quality of intellectual power which comes with what Lampanian calls the "full furnace of the year" is one for which the summer is well as the most devout book-lover may be thankful, as all Canadians may be thankful for a climate which leads into their enjoying sylvan as well as intellectual pleasures at the same period.

This is fairly seconded by a young man, giving his distant sweetheart, said: "Delectable dear, so sweet that honey would blush in her presence and treacle stand appalled."

Stoves, etc.

My stock of stoves is now complete, the variety is very large and consists of: Ranges, Heating stoves, Stove Pipes and all sizes and everything that is required to make you comfortable during the long cold winter.

J. H. PHIPNEY,
Newcastle.

My tooth aches awful, said Willie. Don't you think I'd better not go to school today?

No, you needn't go to school, I'll take you to the dentist instead, said his mother.

I think—I guess I— I'd rather go to school, after all, rejoined Willie. The tooth aches, but it don't hurt any.

One time when Miss Hall was a guest at an elaborate banquet she was served an ice in the very daintiest of fine cut glass, the ice dish holding just about two teaspoonfuls of the frozen delicacy. As she ate she overheard two women talking. Do you know, said one. I have seen American women—good, refined women too, who would eat a whole saviour of ice cream.

Prisoner, have you anything to say in your own behalf?

Only this judge. It comforts me to know that one wise man on the bench can undo much of the mischief wrought by 12 idiots in the jury box.

Whereupon the judge gave him the minimum sentence.

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

THE PRACTICE OF UNDER-DRAINING.

In a previous article some of the advantages of underdraining were pointed out; in this case an outline of the method of draining practised by our best farmers will be given. To secure satisfactory results careful study should first of all be given to the best manner of laying out a system of drains; the aim being to secure the greatest fall, the least outlay for tile, the least amount of digging, and the most perfect drainage.

For an underdrain there is nothing better than the ordinary round drain tile. The size to be used can only be decided by a study of conditions under which the drain is to work. They should be large enough to carry off in twenty-four to forty-eight hours the surplus water from the heaviest rains, but it is important that they should not be too large, as the cost of underdraining is governed largely by the size of the tile used. It may be mentioned that the capacity of round water pipes is in proportion to the squares of their diameters. That is, under the same conditions, a two-inch pipe will carry four times as much water, and a three-inch pipe, nine times as much water as a one-inch pipe. In fact, the larger pipe will carry even more than this proportion, because of the greater friction in the small pipe. In ordinary cases, five or six inch tiles are recommended for the lower part of a main drain and four inch for the upper portion; for the branches two and a half to three inch are preferable.

It is seldom necessary to lay drains more than four feet below the surface, and in most cases two and a half feet will be found sufficient. The proper distance between branch drains depends on the quantity of water to be carried and the nature of the subsoil. In general practice the lines of tile are usually placed from fifty to one hundred feet apart. In a tenacious clay soil, however, thirty feet would not be too close.

The drain may be opened up in the first place by passing three or four times along the same track with an ordinary plow. Then the subsoil may be broken up with a good strong subsoil plow. In this way the earth may be loosened to a depth of two feet or more and thrown out with narrow shovels. The bottom of the drain should be dug with narrow draining spades, made for the purpose. The ditch should be kept straight by means of a line stretched tightly near the ground and about four inches back from the edge. In ordinary cases, the ditch may not be more than a foot wide at the top and four to six inches at the bottom, the width of course increasing in proportion to the depth of the drain and the size of the tile.

As a rule drains should be given as much fall as possible, and the gradient should not be less than two inches in one hundred feet, if this can be secured. Careful leveling is necessary to ensure a uniform fall throughout the course of a drain. As a simple method for this purpose, one of our leading authorities recommends the ditcher to use several cross-heads made from strips of inch boards, three or four inches wide. The length of the standard varies according to the depth of the drain. A cross piece at one end is fastened to the top of the standard. These cross-heads are then placed along the line of the drain, so that the cross pieces are in line. The proper grade is ascertained by the use of the ordinary spirit level. When ready to lay the tile a standard should be set at the bottom of the drain and marked in line with the top of the cross-heads; this will, by testing every few feet, give a true grade for the tiles.

When the bottom of the drain has been brought to the proper grade and shape, the tile should be laid very carefully to secure perfectly close joints. With the aid of a tile hook they may be placed rapidly and accurately without getting into the ditch. Some prefer to place the tile with the hand, standing in the ditch, and stepping carefully on each tile as laid. In either case it is preferable to put the surface soil over the tiles, for if properly packed it will prevent the water from getting in at the joints. The laying should begin at the outlet of the main drain and where connection is made with branch lines, enough of the branch should be laid to permit the main one to be partly filled in.

All junctions of branches with the main line should be made at an acute angle, or where the fall is sufficient, from above the axis of the main. This is necessary in order to prevent the deposit of silt and the consequent blocking of the tile at the junction. Specially made joint tile may be used, or the connection may be made by cutting a hole in the main tile with a tile pick. The outlet of the drain should be so placed that there will be a free flow of water. If protected with masonry and a grating to keep out animals, so much the better. In this country glazed sewer pipe or glazed drain tile may be used to advantage for the last ten or fifteen feet to prevent injury by frost. In closing it may be well to recall the fact that trees should not be allowed to grow near a line of tile, through which water flows during the greater part of the year, as the roots are apt to enter at the joints in search of water, and in course of time close the drain. Willows, poplars and elms are particularly objectionable in this respect.

FOOL JOKES.

They are Responsible for a Young Wife's Death.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 10.—Mrs. O. Mott committed suicide to-day at her home as the result of a practical joke played upon her by friends. Mrs. Mott was only eighteen years of age, and had been married but a short time. She and her husband had lived happily within the last few days when some mischievous friends intimated slyly that her husband had another wife living. She did not speak of the matter to her husband, but became moody. To her husband's anxious questions she made evasive answers. In the meantime her "friends" continued in their persecution. This afternoon she was found dead in her room, with an empty carbolic acid vial lying near by. Mr. Mott is distracted with grief.

SLIDE AT TURTLE MOUNTAIN.

People of Frank Again Leave Town.

NELSON, B. C. Sept. 24.—Passengers arriving over the Crow's Nest reported that another immense slide has occurred at Turtle Mountain, near Frank, Alberta. So far as known, no lives were lost, but all the people of Frank have deserted the town again, having gone to Blairmore and other towns. The slide occurred just as the train was nearing Frank and as quickly as possible the brakes were applied and the train backed for several miles. After waiting over an hour the train was run to Frank and the people, who were all waiting in the station, were taken on board.

When the Judge Awoke From Sleep

There was no mistake about it, the judge was asleep. The embarrassed young lawyer, who had reached the telling point of his argument, spoke in a higher key, and then raised his voice until the walls of the room reverberated. But the judge slept on.

The court officers were kind to the young lawyer's hints. At last, in desperation, he turned to his opponent.

Now, Mr. Grubber, you see the delicate situation I am in, and there's only one way out. Unless I can get your opponent to agree to my proposition, I am going to knock over that pile of yours.

With a well directed gesture the young lawyer struck the books, and then, as well as the chair on which they had been standing, went down with a terrific crash just as his astounded opponent leaped to his feet and exclaimed:

But I do not emphatically object!

And the judge, without raising his head from the position he had been occupying for the last fifteen minutes, looked at him with an amazed dignity.

Objection overruled.

Get the rabbits, KENDRICK'S.

Time has come for Educated Farmer.

WHITBY, Sept. 19.—Hon. Sydney Fisher and Hon. John Dryden were the principal speakers at the Model Fair, which opened here on Wednesday.

Mr. Fisher who declared the fair open, was cordially welcomed and in his address referred to school exhibits and was surprised that competitors were not more numerous. He urged dairy men to take more active part in the fair. This study of nature in schools would be of the very greatest benefit to the country if carried out with care and thoroughness.

The training of school children in these studies would have wide and varied good results. In the case of those who intended to follow farming or gardening as a profession nature study was one of the best educational works which could be undertaken.

He believed the time had arrived when a man who desired to be a successful farmer must have a highly trained and evenly balanced mind.

The Agricultural College at Guelph, was established by the Ontario Government for the express purpose of educating farmers, a work it was doing with a very great success. He had carefully examined similar institutions in various parts of the world and he had no hesitation in saying the Ontario agricultural college was the very best of its kind in operation to-day.

An exchange gives this story of Uncle Tom, who was a pious old negro. One day some young men were unusually hard in their strictures on professing Christians, and brought forward the case of one who had just been detected in a fraud.

Old Tom was grieved, and said:—Young masters, you make me think of a flock of buzzards.

How so asked the young men. Well, said Tom solemnly, when there is a big pasture of fat cattle the buzzards fly away high, but let a lean sickly calf fall into the ditch and the buzzards are ready to pick out his eyes before he's dead.

What we asked originally of the Sultan are you going to do with Monastir.

May it please thee, O son of My Friend, replied the Sultan, with true Oriental politeness, I should make a monastery of it, but I have not seen the city yet, and—

Receiving that he was about to continue we suggested that we be thrown into the Bosphorus as soon as he was convenient.

I have often said the observer of a crowd of people is often a very interesting character.

That's because they're so susceptible to their own feelings, replied the deep thinker.

I don't quite see your point. Well, if they had a little more and got caught at it, they might have to wear convict suits with the stripes running in the most unbecoming way.

It's gittin' so, gentleman Goodman Gomong, depositing his last 5 cent piece on the bar, that a poor man just can't support a family these days.

The saloonkeeper dropped the coin in the till and drew a glass of beer for his thirsty customer.

You haven't any kick coming that I know, of he said. What family have you got to support?

Yours, said Goodman Gomong.

The other day, a small boy, aged four was alternately beating a rug with all his might and looking up at the sky with rapt attention. What are you doing, Charles? his mother said. Oh, I'm just sending up some dust to God so he can make some new people! was the reply.

New Bookkeeper—What is the rule here when some of the items in a bill are somewhat in doubt?

Proprietor—In case of doubt add to the bill. You can make a friend of some customers by having something to knock off, while you can make an enemy of almost any customers by adding to it after the bill is presented.

Josherly—hat Teat's a sprinter. He can do 100 laps in 20 seconds.

Josherly—On a race track?

Josherly—No, on a milk saucer.

Harold, what made you first think of marrying me?

Well, it will do no harm to tell you now. I saw you watching me when I sharpened that pencil. I said to myself, Maybe that's his test of a girl. So I took unusual pains with the job.

Little Elmer—Papa, what is a trust?

Professor Broadhead—A trust, my son, is a large body of wealth entirely surrounded by envy.
