after exhausting every other form of punishment, from the dunce cap to writing lengthy compositions (the bit) rence of every feminine heart), and all to no purpose, I have in this in-stance resorted to the old-fashioned one, the ferrule. And so help me fate, I will carry it out to the bitter end, and make every little hand smart whose owner every little hand smart whose owner have sins enough of your rount to andisobeys, or my name is not Paul

The school-house where our hero presided was situated some distance from the village where he boarded, and the walk, though pleasant, was lonely and passing a graveyard. And of late weird tales had been told of ghosts who walk there by moonlight, and in one or two instances, when the schoolmaster had been be ated, he had observed an object clothed in white flit at a distance before him and in his very path. Though a crifle startled, he had no doubt that it was a riddle that time would unravel. compan Therefore, upon the night when he had desire." mained writing to the city friend, as he urried homeward to be in time for super, he gave the matter no thought, and ad reached the boundary of the graveper, he gave the matter no bloggardenist reached the boundary of the grave-yard when he was confronted by the white-robed apparition, approaching him with extended arms.

home, but kept his own countel.

The next morning he proceeded to school more early than usual and spent some time in reconnoitering the walk of the ghost, and evidently to his satisfaction, for the broad smile that illuminated his face as he entered the sche room appeared to assure the pupils that their teacher was in the best humor, and they would accordingly receive nany indulgences.

At recess a number of pretty heads were in close consultation, and Sue Salmon, a black-eyed beauty, said, with a

"I will pay tor any girl who will go with me to-day to have her fortune told," laughed Sue Salmon, merrily.

"Will you? Then we will all go, even if we have to submit to the punishment," answered May.

It was decided to run the risk, and ac ordingly when school closed at 1.00n they marched off bodily to learn the inystery of the future

"It must be half-past one o'clock a east," exc.aimed one of the number, as they were hastening back from their visit to the gypsy camp, half repentant and anxious to know what would be the result of their breaking the law.

"I wish he hadn't gone," sighed Kitty, nefully. "It was all your fault, Sue." "I know it," returned the young lady, with a merry laugh; "and I am ready not only to take my share of punishent, but your's as well." 'It is all very well to talk," said

They marched in and took their seats and lifted their guilty eyes to encounter the indignantly flashing ones of their much-abused teacher. Of all the scholr's Sue was the prettiest, most lovable and most trying. She laughed his most serious and just reproof to scern, and when she found he was really wounded, her great black eyes would flash up to him through tears and appeal to be forturned itself lower when he addressed her, and in spite of himself she managed schoolroom of a rural district, where he | pleading pout, with "My head aches had been teaching (to use a well-worn adage) the young idea how to shoot. algebra unassisted; or "Might I not be task was that of writing a excused from writing that dreadful hum in his city home. excused from writing that dreadful composition for just this once, please?" So, when the master, in a hard, cold voice commanded the young ladies who were late to school to leave their seats and take places before his desk, to his surprise Sue said something in a whisper to her compapions, and came grace-fully and quickly forward alone, and eaning her white arms upon his deck as for support to her trembling limbs,

"Mr. Cheney, we have been to see the one but she could interpret.

The next instant the face of Sue buried in her handkerchief, and her cheeks crimsoned as with shame. Then cheeks crimsoned as with shame. "Don't be fools!" interrupted Sue, with a flash of anger. "I think he was very kind and generous to let us off as easy as he did, for we were wrong and he right."

"I thought it belonged to a gentle man's code of honor never to strike a woman?" answered May, with a sneer. "The truth is," replied Sue, "he ixed the penalty so severe and unreenting that he supposed no one would lisobey, and when he was forced to ful-till the law he punished one girl in place

REPORT.

In submitting their Annual Report, the Trustees beg leave to state, that in their monthly visits to the Schools during the past year, they had found them conducted strictly in accordance with the Act, and in conformity to the Regulations of the Board of Education.

The progress made in all of the branches taught, has been most satisfactory, indicating once than ordinary tact and ability on the part of the teachers. Complete discipline in all departments has been maintained without resorting to corporal punishment except in a few instances of the mildest form.

> It is reported, that some new factories are to be started in this section of the Province, which is good news, if true. But before positively stating that such is the fact, people would like to know where the money is to commence operations, what lescription of factories are to be erected, and whether their promoters are men of means. An impetus to building of vessels, the prosecution of the fisheries, and more extensive farming; will pave the way for the factories.

The welcome and reception given to the REV. MR. MOWATT, the new minister of St. Paul's Church, Fredericton, by the ongregation of that Church, was most enthuiastic. The ministers of the various lenominations were present by invitation, as well as other friends. After religious services, all partook of a sumptuous tea n the School room, and returned to the Church. Mayor Gregory, chairman of the Trustees, gave a brief address. Rev. Mr. Mowatt and other c.ergymen also addressed the congregation, after which a psalm was sung, and the benediction pronounced by the new pastor. The reception was one of the most hearty and pleasant we ever read; and the Presbyterians of Fredriction are to be congratulated. Among he clergymen present were Revds. "The Seven Bibles of the World." Rev. J. P. Newman, D.D., lectured in New York on "The Seven Bibles of the World. Dr. Newman said:

It is the bold assumption of modern liberalism that there are sacred books in the world, older than our Bible whose truths are of equal importance, and Face to face with this bold assumptions 1 propose to discuss the comparative antiquity of these books under two leading heads-priority of time and exclusiveness of possession.

The seven Bibles of the world are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, the Try-Pitikas of All littleness of life I cast the Buddhists, the Vedas of the Hindoos, the Five-King of the Chinese, the Zenda-Vesta of the Persians and the Scripture of the Christians.

The Koran is the most modern of the seven Bibles, yet it is not older than the eventh century of our era, and is co posed of quotations from the Zenda Vesta, the Old Testament, the Talmud, New Testament, and the Apocryphal Gospei of St. Barnabas. Mohamed is the most stupendous literary thief known in the annals of time, not excepting some of the present day. The Eddas of the Scandinavians consist of songs con-cerning God and creation, and legends of heroes who have been deified.

thread in their places. They are a collection of the best sayings of the sages on the ethico-political duties of life, and some of them are worthy of any age, but they do not ante-date the Christian era re than 1,100 years. Confucius died There are no authenthic historic Chinese records older than 1100 B. C. The Chinese had no written language prior to 1600 B. C., and had no national existence 2,000 years before our own era." Here Dr. Newman quoted from Sir John Davies, Medhaurst, Legge and other distinguished Chinese scholof the Hindoos. They have been extrava-gantly lauded as older and purer than manufactures nearly all that is needed our Bible, but Max Muller, Wilson, at home, but ships large quantities to son and our own Whitney agree that these Brahminical Scriptures are ot older than 1100 B. C. Their lyric hymns, mystic prayers and sacred cerenies were handed down from generation to generation from memory, an l each Brahmin was required to commit to memory the 1.010 Vedaic hymns during his fourteen years of student life. Next to our own Bible the Zenda-Vesta of the Persians is the grandest of all. It contains in part the sayings of Zoroaster, who was one of the greatest of characters. Zoroaster was born in Baetria, now a part of Persia. Well, take this and buy some bread." and lived in the twelfth century before Christ. These dates, therefore, prove that Moses and his Pentateuch have a iear margin of 300 years over the oldest of the other Bibles of the world.

A Man Killed by a Meteor.

The report from Nemeha county, Kansas, of the death of David Melsentlater, a stockman, by being struck by a falling meteor, first came through the Tribune, published at Seneca, the county gentleman from that place with whom a correspondent had an interview. The latter says that there was no doubt about the meteor. Meisentlater was well known, and his death is acknowledged to have been caused as stated. It took place in the worning about eight took place in the morning about eight o'clock, and the sky at that time was and while standing about twenty feet from the trunk of a maple tree was Quincy Modern Argo. The aerolite which caused his death came from an easterly direction. and first struck the tree trunk, which caused it to glance slightly, and in it flight it cut the upper branches of the maple and entered Meisentlater's body from below the right shoulder, coming out at the left hip and then partially burying itself in the frozen ground. course was undoubtedly changed by contact with the tree, as could be see by the manner in which the latter w splintered. A pretty American girl in Rome went frequently into the streets unattended, contrary to the custom there. The young Romans followed and annoyed her, until she invented a novel method of re-buffing them. She provided herself with a pocketful of centesimi, each the value of a fifth of a cent, and whenever a man spoke to her, pretending to utterly mis-take his words, she gracefully extended her hand and dropped this fitth of a cent in his hand, saying, in her broken Italian, "Hungry, are you, poor man?
