Mrs. Mary C. Gardiner died at Ridgeway on Thursday in her 98th year. She was born in Scotland.

Out of 5,000 teachers in the Province of Saskatchewan three years ago, only 1,000 are still in the old profession.

Ernest Smith, son of Harvey Smith, west of Harrow, was gored to death by a bull when he was leading it to water.

Grace, the little daughter of James Walker of West Lorne, died last week after a few days illness with infantile paralysis.

Henry Jacobs, an Indian lay preacher of the Muncey reserve, died last week. He was born on the reserve 72 years ago.

Many mysterious fires in the Sarnia district, and throughout Lambton county are believed to have been the work of alien enemies.

James Welch, 84 line, Petrolia, recently celebrated his 62nd birthday. About sixty guests were present, including relatives from this vicinity.

Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed the barn of Thomas Pressey, one mile south of Arkona. The total loss is about $4,000.

The marriage of Minerva, daughter of Alex. S. McDougall of Melbourne, to Frank McLean of Melbourne took place quietly on Wednesday, Sept. 20.

Joseph Blaine, a farmer living two miles east of Walkers, lost his barn by fire Wednesday night. All his season's hay and grain were destroyed.

Mrs. Jane Stalker of Dunwich announces the engagement of her daughter, Florence Irene, to John J. McGill of Aldborough, the marriage to take place early in October.

Jean Brodie, infant daughter of J. N. Brodie, Muncey, had one finger and thumb cut off when she and her elder sister, Mildred, aged 4, were playing with a knife.

Judging from the thousands, rich and poor alike, who have filled their cellars with booze instead of coal, the coming price of the latter has no terror on the eve of winter for the people of Ontario.

Next year no minister of the London Methodist district will receive less than the minimum salary of $800, provided measures adopted at the financial district meeting held in Lambeth Methodist church work successfully.

The Mount Forest papers have been reduced to half their former size, and the price is commensurate. They now appear as four page, seven column papers. The increased cost of material and labor necessitates the change.

A quiet but pretty home wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Duncanson, north of Dutton, when their daughter, Miss Maggie, became the bride of John McWilliam of North Danforth.

A big Liberal banquet will be held in London on Wednesday, October 11. The chief speakers are to be the Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. T. Norris, Prime Minister of Manitoba, and N. W. Howl, K.C., M.P. Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature.

Clarence Hastings, steam-fitter for Hamilton & Stott, St. Thomas, was stricken with infantile paralysis Sunday morning. The young man is in a precarious condition, both arms and both legs being powerless. This makes some ten cases of the disease in St. Thomas.

Orville Ellis, regarded by the police as an incorrigible youth, was sentenced to serve two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph for robberies at Chatham, Dresden, Glencoe and Thamesville. His accomplice, John Smith, was committed to the same institution for six months. Both pleaded guilty at Chatham.

The stock judging competition for young men at the Strathroy Fair was held on Sept. 20th. Prizes were donated by the Strathroy Agricultural Society, being $1, $3, $5, $10. There were eight contestants, namely: Walter Phillips, D. A. McNeil, Earl Robinson, A. D. Limon, W. E. Pincombe, H. Fletcher, J. A. Cochran, B. Bell. The first four were in the prize money, winning in the order named.

The county magistrate has decided that J. Vogen of Rodney was within the law in putting fifty-seven bottles of whiskey in his home for his own use. Rodney was under local option, but at 4 o'clock September 18 he stocked up. The claim was made that he had violated the local option by law, but the defendant asserted he was justified under the new temperance measure, and the magistrate upheld him in this view.

Conditions in the north part of Aldborough township are said to be anything but satisfactory to the farmers. On account of the lack of grain there will be several auction sales in the district during the next two months.

The lack of water and pasture during the summer has caused considerable loss to cattle owners and several have been unable to sell their cattle, and these men are making ready to unload their surplus stock by auction sales.

Oats shipped from the Northwest will cost about 55 cents per bushel and the cost of keeping the stock through the winter will make it unprofitable. The bean crop in West Aldborough and Eastern Kent has suffered badly, and corn, which was not ripe, was frozen and can only be used for fodder, and will not be good for that.

TRENCH LIFE IN FRANCE

With, Incidentally, a Little Experience in Harvesting.

Extract from a letter from Sergt. R. M. P. Bult to Rev. Mr. Owen:

We are right down to the real business now. We are in the trenches at present, looking forward to the time when we shall go back to the rest camp for a change and a bath. I have had a great piece of luck, which you will be glad to hear. Major Wilson has come back to us; it seems like old times, and he seems quite contented to be back. We have seen so many strange sights since coming here that I do not know which I am allowed to tell you of. We go so used to the sound of shot and shell that some of us are tempted to get careless. My duty has been principally in the dressing station, though I go up to the firing line every day to help supervise the sanitation of our surroundings and to take complaints which may be made. It generally takes me half a day to make a tour of duty and when I get back I am generally tired out, to say nothing of wet feet and being plastered in mud up to the neck. Heigh ho! It is a great life, and it has its funny and humorous side. It is rather funny at first to crawl into a dugout and see the occupants sitting tailor fashion on the floor with the upper parts of their bodies bare, and busily engaged in scraping their shirts to expel the vermin from their coats who are very undesirable. We call them spies. The vermin are certainly a terror. You see dugouts labeled "Chamber of Horrors," "Louise Rest," "Pleasant Paradise" or other such fancy names.

The men eagerly look for their mail every day. Those who get parcels of food look very sick if they find that some kind friend has been including insect powder and that the package has spilled all over the cake. We generally have a very lively time every day when a parcel of us goes down to the transport dump to draw our rations for the day. We have then to run the gauntlet of rifle and machine gun fire nearly all the way.

About the first job our stretcher bearers had was to render first aid to a man who had been shot in the head. The laugh of the rest, but the old horse showed his thanks.

We get very fond of our steel helmets, although they give us fearful headaches in the hot sun. Just now they are shelling aeroplanes over our heads. Fritz is very fond of having his little jokes. The other day the M. D. and I were going the rounds. We must have been a little careless and have exposed ourselves for Fritz fired a sausage at us. It was a good shot and burst right over us. Fortunately I heard it coming and we ducked and were saved by a friendly sandbag. The worst of the beastly thing is that the pieces continue to fall for about 10 seconds after the explosion, which feels at the time like an age. I wanted to signal Fritz an answer but the M. D. did not see the point. Some time ago I was caught in the trenches by a fearful bombardment. I never thought that I would come out alive. Everyone who could had crawled into dugouts. I certainly learned the art of doubling myself up, until I think I could have put myself into a sarong in the width of the trench. The men in the trenches are very cheerful in spite of all they have to put up with. Excuse this scrawl as I am writing in a cellar with the light of one candle.

The earliest example extant of a certain make of car appearing in history is where the Israelites went down and took the Fords of Jordan (Judges 11:24) and another reason why the Ford habit may be regarded as a religious exercise, is because it shakes the devil out of you.

Glencoe Fair Good.

The annual fall exhibition of the Mosa and Ekfrid Agricultural Society at Glencoe is well under way when the Transcript goes to press, and prospects are good that the attendance will be exceptionally large.

Judging of the indoor exhibits was made on Tuesday. The classes were nearly all well filled, and notwithstanding the unfavorable season for the farmer there is a good show of field and garden products. There is a good show of potatoes, but other root crops are hardly up to the average.

In the ladies' department and home manufactures and dairy classes the exhibition is particularly good.

Entries for the horse show and other live stock departments are said to be unusually large.

Weather conditions are threatening, but a good all round time for Wednesday afternoon is hopefully looked forward to.

On Wednesday, Sept. 20, the students of the G.H.S. held a meeting for organizing an athletic society and the following officers were elected:

The officers of the boys' association were as follows:—President, Harry Moss; secretary, George Grant; treasurer, James Eddie.

Mrs. Charles Tucker Dead.

The death occurred at her home in Newbury on Tuesday morning of Mrs. Tucker, wife of Charles Tucker, municipal clerk, and mother of Miss Annie L. Tucker.

The funeral will take place from the family residence to Oakland cemetery on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock.

Declines Call to Boston.

Rev. Dr. John F. Johnstone, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Hartford, Conn., has just declined an attractive offer to become pastor of the South Presbyterian Church of Boston, Mass. Dr. Johnstone is a former Aldborough township boy and attended the Vardulville and Glencoe high schools, graduating from Knox College, Toronto, in 1900. He was ordained and installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Tibury, Canada, September 4, 1901. In September, 1903, he received the Townsend scholarship at Yale University in Biblical literature and philosophy. He spent four and one-half years at Yale, during which time he had charge of the Congregational Church at Seymour. He went to Hartford May 1, 1908, and the church there has since added to its membership from 400 to 500 names and has branched out into new lines of activity.

Crosby-McAlpine.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan R. McAlpine, Kilmartin, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening of last week when their daughter, Violet, was united in marriage to Raymond Emerick Crosby of Highgate. Rev. Dr. Smith, pastor of Burns church, officiated. Only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a beautiful dress of white liberty satin, carrying a bouquet of pink rose buds.

The groom was supported by his brother Hugh.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Elizabeth Crosby, the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, and the wedding ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens and asters. J. D. McAlpine contributed the solo, "All Mine Alone."

A sumptuous wedding dinner was then served, and at 10 o'clock the happy couple left on their honeymoon trip to Detroit and Chicago, the bride wearing a travelling suit of navy blue serge trimmed with white broadcloth, with hat and veil to match.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Crosby will reside in Highgate, Ontario.

There is a certain dear old lady who owns a little farm and takes a few boarders in summer. Recently an anxious young mother, who has been industriously delving into medical literature of late, inquired of the old lady whether or not the milk served at her table was pasteurized. "Of course!" was the old lady's indignant reply, "Don't we keep all the cows we've got in pasture all summer long?"

ENJOYED OCEAN VOYAGE

Tells of Trip of Middlesex Battalion Across the Water.

A member of the 135th Middlesex Battalion writes home on arrival in England as follows:—

Wednesday, Aug. 24, 1916.—Just pulled out of the port now (about one hour ago, 1:35 p.m.). We embarked on the Olympic on Monday, and on Tuesday morning pulled out into the harbor where we took on coal and water. We are on the biggest and fastest boat on the seas now, and the second biggest boat in the world. The Olympic, which is German, is the only boat that is larger, and it is tied up in New York. The first night I slept below in a hammock, but we got a stateroom the next day, and four of us are in it. It cost little extra, but not much, $2.50, and there is water in it to wash with, clothes closets, etc. We have one torpedo boat destroyer for an escort with us now. It is about a quarter of a mile to the right of us. It does not go all the way across with us, as this boat trusts entirely to her speed until the war zone is reached, where an escort meets her. She has made every trip in five days. There are five battalions, some A. M. C. fellows and 200 extra officers on board. The motion of the boat is funny, so I will go on deck to watch for whales.

August 25.—We have been on the water nearly two days and one night. There were a few sick, but I am fine, although I was pretty dizzy for a while. No doubt you will be interested in our meals on board. For breakfast we get porridge, bread, butter, bacon and liver, or beef or fish, and coffee. For dinner we have some kind of good meat, soup, potatoes, corn, apple sauce, prunes, and water or oranges for fruit. For supper, tea, bread, butter, jam, cold meat or sausages. So you see we are very well fed.

August 27.—I have not written for the last couple of days, as we were out on the Atlantic and have not much to write about. When we sailed out of Halifax we ran into a heavy fog and did not see much of the

About the House

Useful Hints and General Information for the Busy Housewife

Dainty Dishes.

Rhubarb Jam.—Five pounds of rhubarb, cut as for stewing. Five pounds of granulated sugar. One pound of finely cut figs. One-half pound of almond meats, blanched and cut fine. Mix these ingredients and let stand over night. In the morning boil the mixture for forty-five minutes. Put in glasses when cold and cover with paraffin.

Onion and Potato Purée.—Two cups diced potatoes, one cup minced onion, three cups water, one teaspoon salt (or half-teaspoon each salt and celery salt), one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons butter and milk or cream as needed. Boil potatoes and onions until well done. Rub through fruit press, season and reheat, adding a much milk or cream as needed to thin to right consistency. Serve with minced parsley and croutons.

Baked Onions.—Four cups peeled onions, one cup milk, two tablespoons each of flour, butter and breadcrumbs, one and one-half teaspoons salt, dash of pepper. Put onions on to cook with enough boiling water to cover; add one teaspoon salt and boil until tender, without covering. Brush baking dish with a little butter, put in onions, and pour over cream sauce. Sprinkle with breadcrumbs and bake until light brown. Cream sauce: Melt butter in sauce pan, add flour, mix well; add cold milk slowly, stir until smooth and creamy. Add pepper and one-half teaspoon salt and boil three minutes.

Combination Conserve.—Twelve peaches, twelve pears, one pineapple, six oranges, six lemons, two quarters of crabapples. Peel and quarter the crabapples and measure after quartering. Peel the peaches, pears and oranges and divide into eighths. Peel the pineapple and cut in dice; slice the lemons very thin without peeling them. Weigh all the fruit; add three-fourths pound of sugar for each pound of fruit; mix gently in preserving kettle and simmer for two hours, stirring as little as possible. Pour in glasses.

New Way With Sandwiches.—Rolled sandwiches look pretty, and they are just as easy to make as the other kind. Any housekeeper who makes sandwiches often appreciates something different in this line, for the same old kind is very likely to become decidedly unwelcome with a critical family acting as judges. The next time you prepare sandwiches cut the bread real thin, then put your minced meat, olives or jelly on the buttered bread as usual. When you are quite satisfied with the result, and all the edges have been trimmed off the bread, roll the bread firmly as you would do with a bandage. Secure with a toothpick, then tie with a bow of colored ribbon. Remove the toothpick and your sandwich is complete.

Mustard Pickles.—Two quarts green tomatoes; cook overnight in weak brine and drain. Two quarts small cucumbers. One medium head cabbage. One quart small onions. Six large red peppers. Chop all fine and boil all together, except cucumbers, in clear water until tender, drain well and add: Two quarts cider vinegar. One-half cup ground mustard. Three cups sugar. One cup flour mixed with vinegar. Two teaspoons red pepper. Two teaspoons black pepper. Bring to a boil, add the chopped cucumbers; bottle and seal while hot.

Plum Conserve.—Though we give plums as the fruit to use in the following recipe, any fruit in season may be used in the same manner. Stew two and one-half quarts of plums with one and one-half cups of water until they are very soft. Strain through a colander, then add as much granulated sugar as you have pulp. Put through a food chopper two oranges, one small lemon, one pound of seeded raisins, one-half pound of walnut meats and one-half pound of sun dried figs. Use the rind of the oranges and lemon as well as the pulp, but remove the white skin and seeds. Cook all together fifteen minutes, being careful not to burn. This is delicious for sandwiches or to serve with chicken or turkey.

Chili Sauce.—Twelve large, ripe, solid tomatoes, four cups of vinegar, two teaspoons of ground cloves, two teaspoons of ground cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of ground ginger, one tablespoon of mustard, one red pepper pod, four large onions, two tablespoons of salt (more if desired). Wash the onions and tomatoes. Remove the outer skin of the onions and chop them fine. Put the tomatoes in boiling water for a few minutes and then remove the skin. Put in all the other ingredients and boil on a slow fire for about two hours. Put this in sterilized glass bottles which have been standing in hot water, while hot, and seal. Keep in a cool, dry place.

Egg Recipes.

Nest Eggs.—Prepare bread dressing as for chicken or turkey, omitting the sage and using only onion and red pepper for seasoning. Form it into nests twice the size of an egg, and place them into a bread pan well greased and set into the oven. When partly baked break an egg into each hollowed center and return to the oven until the eggs are set. These are good served with a drawn butter sauce, tomatoes, mushroom sauce or a dash of chili sauce.

Egg Gems.—Line the bottom and sides of each cup in a gem pan with the usual sour milk biscuit dough. Prick the dough with a fork so that it won't puff up, and set in the oven to bake. When done grate cheese and break an egg into each cup; cover with cheese, salt and pepper and let the eggs set. Rice or macaroni to which a well-beaten egg and a tablespoonful of flour have been added may be used in place of the biscuit dough.

Creamed Eggs.—Chop whites of eight or ten hard boiled eggs and grate and mash the yolks with a silver fork. Make a sauce of two tablespoons each of butter and flour to which two cupfuls of sweet milk have been added slowly. Let boil up once or twice, season with salt, pepper, mustard or red pepper and add the chopped whites. Place pieces of hot toast on a hot platter and cover each piece with the mixture. Season the yolks with salt, pepper, mustard and a little vinegar, add sweet or sour cream and smooth to the consistency of creamy paste; place a heaping tablespoonful on the center of each piece of the covered toast. Serve with crisp strips of bacon and garnish with lettuce leaves.

Useful Hints.

Hard sauce is delicious on apple pie. Half-ripe grapes always make the best jelly.

Soup should never be made in a metallic kettle.

All greens should be blanched before canning.

Milk and custards should not stand in any but enamel vessels.

Any fruit or vegetable to be eaten raw should be carefully washed.

Small bits left from meat or fish should be saved and used in potato puffs.

Sliced pineapple is more delicious if sliced and sugared about 12 hours before serving.

It should never be forgotten that unclean milk is as great a menace as unclean water.

A rice cream may be made like a thin rice pudding, only it should be cooked longer, poured into a mold and chilled.

The bones left from roast beef or lamb can be put into a pot with potatoes and boiled. They will give the potatoes a rich flavor.

If a mother can invent little games to play while the children are being washed and dressed those processes may go on more easily.

When you think the vaseline bottle is empty, heat it and lay it on its side to cool—you will be surprised at the amount of vaseline you will save.

A convenient way to boil macaroni is to put it in a wire basket. Immerse this in a kettle of boiling water. When the macaroni is done, lift it out.

To make cottage cheese of fine texture have the water which you scald the curd merely hot. If it is boiling the curd will be very hard and lumpy.

If there is a stubborn spot on white paint that can not be removed with soap and water, dip a wet cloth in whitening and rub the spot. It will come off with ease.

There comes a time when any hardwood floor should be thoroughly cleaned. Wipe it over with a pure white soap and water, changing the water often. Then go over it with a cloth saturated with a good floor oil.

Fried cabbage is delicious. Cut the cabbage up as for stew, put it into a pan with enough water to cover and let simmer until almost tender, then put it in the fat and brown it as you would potatoes. It takes little time to cook it in this way.

To the old-fashioned housekeeper and cook the methods of accurate measurement do not seem important. When our cooks begin, to learn that cooking is an exact science, there will be less said about "luck" in cooking. The "hit or miss" methods of measurements are the cause of poor results.

A Deserted Village.

The first time you see a deserted and deserted village you have strange feeling, especially when you know that the smashing process may be resumed any minute, says a writer in Cartoons Magazine. Can you imagine a village which has no inhabitants—houses with only parts of walls standing, perambulators, chairs, beds and pictures heaped up in confusion, churches destroyed as if stepped on by a giant, tombs a tumbled-up heap in the churchyards, no children—no play, no shops, no sounds except the echo of your footsteps and the roar of distant guns? You'll find them in the war zone.

The marriage ceremony in France, in very remote times, consisted of the man poring his nails and sending the pieces to the girl of his choice. Then they were man and wife.

UNSEEN HAND THAT FEEDS THE ALLIES

THE COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT IN LONDON.

Buys Munitions and Supplies For the Varied Needs of Eight Nations.

At the corner of Kingsway, London, where that royally wide and straight street merges into the semicircle of Aldwych, there rises the great triple building which contains Empire House, India House and Canada House. It is in aspect half noble and half commonplace, the front having both strength and dignity, white stone columns and wide and high window spaces, the sides being merely a raw and aching wilderness of red brick. But within its immense walls revolves one of the least-known and most important of all the many wheels of war. It is the headquarters of the Commission Internationale de Ravitaillement, the Commissariat Department of the Allies.

The Universal Buyer.

The Commission de Ravitaillement is the unseen hand that feeds the many great fires of war. In all the markets of all the world—that is to say, all the world outside the countries of the enemy—it buys the guns, the shells, the rifles, the ammunition, the saddles, the boots and the uniforms, and all the rest of the multifarious equipment required by the fighting ships of England's Allies. The commission buys in tons by the million, and pays in pounds by the hundred million. In short, a myriad quartermaster sergeants in one.

But it rose from very small beginnings. In August, 1914, a few days after war broke out, several French officers came to London to buy boots and similar articles for the French army. These were the first of a long series of war purchases, whose extent, beginning in thousands of pounds, rose rapidly to millions. They resulted in the formation by agreement between the French and British Governments of a Commission de Ravitaillement (a revictualing commission, in the old blunt naval phrase), with the following objects:

1. To co-ordinate the purchase of food supplies, munitions of war and military and naval equipment by the two Governments.

2. To prevent harmful competition in the same markets and a consequent inflation of prices.

3. To place the French Government in communication with firms capable of carrying out orders satisfactorily at a reasonable price; and

4. To spread the orders in such a way as to distribute employment, and thus accelerate delivery.

How the Commission Began.

The commission began with a British staff of a dozen, established in a small office in Queen Anne's chambers. Since its inception its scope has been gradually extended to cover purchases made on behalf of all the Allied Governments, and it now includes military, naval and civilian delegates from each of England's Allies (including even Portugal), together with representatives of the War Office, Ministry of Munitions and other British Government Departments, under the general direction of Sir Edmund Wylborne Smith, of the Board of Trade.

Its personnel is now numbered at nearly 500; its huge office has miles of corridors, containing about 300 rooms. Harbored happily on its many floors are no fewer than eight separate national colonies—French, Russian, Italian, Belgian, Serbian, Portuguese, Japanese and English.

Multiplicity of Arteries.

The commission, whose purchases

outlive in extent the most sensational of transatlantic deals, has been at work now for 22 months—almost without the general public becoming even aware of its existence! During this period the orders it has officially placed on behalf of the Allied Governments amount to no less a total than $220,000,000, and this stupendous figure, if we add the purchases made by Allied Government contractors, which are submitted for the examination of the commission, is increased roughly to $300,000,000.

Here is an approximate record of the quantities of some of the more common articles of war bought for the Allied armies:

Ten million pairs of boots.
Thirty million yards of cloth.
One hundred thousand miles of telephone wire.
One hundred million sandbags.

The figures in respect of the more destructive munitions of war cannot, for obvious reasons, be cited here, but they are no less impressive.

It is hardly necessary to remark—that is, in fact, the whole raison d'être of the commission—that the sums expended, vast as they are, would have been much greater if there had been no official organization to regulate prices, to control the world's markets and to appportion the available supplies of food and war material to the needs of each Government concerned. And always this main object has been kept rigorously in view, that none of the munitions required for the adequate pursuit of the war should be withheld or delayed in transit by reason of any overlapping of orders or confusion of interest.

Regulating the Supply.

The services of the War Office in this connection in regard both to the purchase of personal equipment in the quantities referred to and the supply of munitions cannot be overestimated, and the completeness of a system of organization which is able to provide for the supplies both of the British fighting forces and of their Allies, not only in Europe but in Canada and America, is too little realized by the public. The revictualing commission also enjoys the full advantage of the experience of the agents of the Ministry of Munitions in America and elsewhere, and enormous quantities of metals and machinery have been purchased all over the world by this means for the benefit of the Allied Governments.

All orders are placed in such a manner as to avoid competition between the various purchasing Governments, to exclude the irresponsible speculator and to insure that the articles bought are obtained from reliable sources and are of the best quality.

Co-operative Purchasing.

This principle of co-operative purchase has been followed very close in connection with supplies of cereals, which are purchased on behalf of the Allies by a single committee consisting of members of the Commission Internationale de Ravitaillement and the Board of Agriculture.

Then there is the whole tremendous question of the provision of tonnage for the transport of these immense supplies and of the regulation of freights—a question which demands the closest application on the part of the shipping advisers attached to the commission. When all the ships requisitioned from the British Merchant service for war purposes are reckoned, there remains only a limited proportion of tonnage available for the carriage of coal, wheat and other commodities.

This tonnage is of necessity most rigidly regulated and apportioned, and the existence of the commission, which can centralize all information as to the requirements of the different Allied Governments and the possibilities of meeting them, is of invaluable assistance to those in whose hands rests the final decision as to the distribution of the available British mercantile marine.

HUNS PETITION FOR END OF WAR

THE GERMAN SOCIALISTS ARE ACTIVE.

Captured Soldiers Don't Claim Victory, But Say They Can't Be Beaten.

It is extraordinary difficult to know whether all the British shell fire and all the dead have yet begun to shake the confidence of the Germans in the strength of their war machine. Some of the officers who have come in as prisoners still keep their pride, writes a correspondent with the British Armies in the field. They have seen the losses inflicted on them and behind their lines, but say: "You can't beat us. We can't be beaten."

That is different from the old phrase: "We're winning. Victory is certain for Germany," and it is a long way from the acknowledgment of defeat or possible defeat. There are times when the pessimists among us are tempted to think that the Germans have mysterious reserves of strength from which they can heal their wounds, and that the success gained is only local, and has not yet injured the German war machine in any vital part or struck a blow which has reached to the heart of the German people.

Letters Reveal Truth.

The cure for such pessimism is found in letters captured in the German dugouts and on the German prisoners. They draw the veil aside and tell the naked truth. Through all these letters, written by men whose sons are fighting or dead, and by comrades in arms, not hiding their thoughts from each other, there is a cry against the bloodshed and misery of this war, and for peace at all costs.

"By now the town of Offenbach has five thousand widows, and besides that there are the unmarried men who have fallen." "Our company lost all its officers and ten men, but that is the same with every company and every regiment on the Somme. I, alas, could not get the much-desired wound to send me home."

Riots Are Told Of.

There have been riots in Hamburg and other places, according to letters found in the trenches, and in the spirit of civilian Germany there is rising anger against those who made the war and caused all this misery, and who keep it lasting for political and dynastic reasons. The German Socialists, it seems, are at last beginning to find their voices again, if one may judge from such letters as the following written by an educated hand:

Memorial for Peace.

"You ask how far the peace movement has advanced. It is impossible to say anything definite, but we Socialists are now going to present to the Imperial Chancellor a great peace memorial, containing the signatures of those citizens who want a speedy peace without annexations and without violence to other nations. These will put their names on the lists, and those lists will be collected from the whole empire and handed to the Chancellor. God grant that their names may be put down in millions, that the Government may see that the great mass of the people want an early peace."

Distress is Acute.

"One may hope this accursed murdering of peoples may come to an end soon, but, unfortunately, the obstinate ones have no wish for peace. They are working in all countries against it, working with all their power, for the international capitalists can do no better business than they are doing now, and their purses appear not full yet." "With us the distress gets greater from day to day, and already many poor-people are suffering from under-feeding. We will, however, hope and act, for surely the good sense of the peoples may conquer in the end."

A WOMAN'S SECRET.

Wife Masqueraded as a Husband for Many Years.

An amazing story of a woman who masqueraded as a man and was found out by the Mill Hill Medical Board was told at a North London tribunal.

Her employer appealed for the worker as his "foreman." The chairman, holding up a letter, expressed surprise that the employer urged that this "man" was indispensable to him in his work. Did he know that "he" was a woman?

The employer smiled incredulously, and suggested that the chairman had made a mistake, for his foreman was married, with two children.

The chairman read a certificate from the Mill Hill Medical Board, which stated that the person named upon it was unfit for the army "by reason of the fact that the doctors' examination disclosed that the person was a woman."

It transpired that the "man" had been before the Advisory Committee, and on a certificate then produced was sent to the Medical Board. On the deception being discovered there was something like consternation in the barracks. It is understood that the woman was passing as a man to hide from her husband.

SEA BUTTERFLIES.

Beautiful Creatures That Live Below the Surface of the Sea.

"Just as there are sea flowers," said a naturalist, "so there are sea butterflies. They are beautiful transparent creatures, found in the Mediterranean. They are caught in nets much as you would catch land butterflies, but, of course, it is necessary to collect them in jars of sea water." "There are a number of varieties, the most beautiful being known as the 'needle butterfly.' Its body consists of a shelly substance clear as glass, to which are fastened the wings, composed of a gauze-like material and as full of color as an opal. "Sea butterflies are without eyes, like some species of fish, and, unlike the butterflies of the land, they are rarer in sunny than cloudy weather. In midsummer, indeed, they leave the surface and descend into the deep, many fathoms down."

A Real Jail Bird.

"If you don't mind, sir," said the new convict, addressing the warden, "I should like to be put at my own trade." "That might be a good idea," said the warden. "What is your trade?" "I'm an aviator," said the new arrival.

Formerly the bridegroom endowed his bride not, as to-day, "with all his worldly goods," but with his "cattle."

The more a man brags about himself the less use he is to his boss.

NURSES WANTED.

A number of applicants are desired for the Training School for Nurses, Hospital for Insane, Toronto. Three years course. Lectures start October 1, 1916. Profront at $12.00 a month, with board, uniform and laundry. Apply Miss E. West, Head Nurse, 935 Queen St. W., Toronto.

NOTES OF INTEREST FROM HER BANKS AND BRAES.

What is Going On in the Highlands and Lowlands of Auld Scotia.

A company of Serbian boys have arrived in Edinburgh.

King George has accepted offers of service from two more Scottish battalions of the volunteers.

For attempting to smuggle opium on board a ship, a Chinaman was fined $250 or three months, at Glasgow.

Recently a seal measuring six feet in length and about four feet in girth was caught in the salmon nets at the Girvan north shore.

The Duchess of Sutherland is expected at Dunrobin Castle in a few weeks' time. Since the war began Dunrobin has become a military hospital.

The annual accounts of Glasgow Corporation departments show that the expenditure last year on war allowances and bonuses amounted to $822,990.

There is a plentiful stock of grouse in Scotland this year, but a shortage of guns, and the moors have had to accept lettings at far below their usual price.

The Admiralty has decided to proceed with the housing scheme at Gourock. The scheme, which will comprise 48 cottages, will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Sir Robert R. Inches, Lord Provost of Edinburgh, on behalf of subscribers, presented a combination motor car and stretcher bearer to the Edinburgh War Hospital, Bangour.

Mr. Walter Gilbert, manager of the Tivoli Theatre, Aberdeen, has won the first prize in the Panama Lottery promoted by the French Government, amounting to $50,000.

Aberdeen Chamber of Commerce will send a special representative to Petrograd to enquire as to the best markets of Russia for such goods as can be manufactured and supplied from the Aberdeen district.

Maintaining that there is plenty of labor, if properly organized, the Scottish Council of the National Union of Dock Laborers protests against the formation of mobile transport battalions under military control.

Miss Lintorn-Oldman, granddaughter of the late Field-Marshal Sir Lintorn Summers, is on her way to Serbia as an ambulance driver for the Scottish Women's Hospital Unit, which is to be attached to the Serbian army.

Fifty-nine additional refugees arrived recently in Glasgow, making the number on the Scottish Register now 15,473. The fund being raised by the Glasgow Corporation Belgian Committee for their maintenance now amounts to over $575,450.

A splendid gift by the Duke of Sutherland has been announced in the House of Commons. His Grace has offered a stretch of land amounting to 12,000 acres to be used for the settlement of soldiers and sailors who have a good record.

FACTS FROM MANY LANDS.

A Few Interesting Items From Foreign Parts.

New piers begun by the City of New York during the last two years will furnish 36,550 feet, or almost seven miles, of wharfage space, and approximately forty-five and one-half acres of dock space.

It is anticipated that large quantities of oranges and other citrus fruits will be available for shipment from South Africa to England during the coming season. In another four years the South African shipments of such fruits will, according to the estimate of C. du P. Chappin, British government trades commissioner to South Africa, amount to 400,000 boxes, and in ten years to 4,000,000 boxes annually.

The Territory of Hawaii now has in hand reclamation works that will cost about $300,000, with several other projects in contemplation. At Honolulu a strip of land half a mile wide, starting near the wharves and extending for about three miles along the shore, is being put in sanitary condition. Another project well under way, known as the Waiolama reclamation project, will improve the water front of Hilo, on the island of Hawaii.

Women train conductors have now appeared upon the electric cars of the Leeds (England) Corporation Tramways. The first corps, composed of twenty young women dressed in blue serge tunics and skirts with red facings and wearing uniform caps, proved satisfactory, and it is stated that the number to be employed may reach 200. The rate of pay proposed is the same as that of the men, 54d (11 cents) per hour, which for full time means 27s 6d ($6.68) per week.

Irish agriculturists are interested in the alleged discovery of a method of converting ordinary peat into a highly concentrated fertilizer by a simple and inexpensive bacterial treatment. The discoverer is Professor W. B. Bottomley of the Royal Botanic Society. Professor Bottomley's principle is that bacteria facilitate the chemical processes connected with plant growth, and the peat bacterial culture immensely facilitates food absorption by vegetables and other farm crops. He has exhibited specimens of mature potatoes grown in seven weeks by the use of the peat fertilizer.

Lucky.

"Jimmy Green's a lucky kid." "Why?" "He's got parents that don't care how often he goes swimmin'."

Rally Day, last Sunday, was observed by the Glencoe Presbyterian Sunday School with a special service in the church in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Wray, led in the exercises and gave an address on the subject designated for the day, "Doing my bit." The superintendent, John Strachan, gave a report on the financial standing and work of the school, and W. R. S. McCracken, leader of the Bible Class, reported for that branch of the work. Special music was rendered by the choir, and four little girls sang a duet, "Jesus bids us shine."

Wm. Thomson is recovering from a prolonged illness. Mr. Thomson's experience is peculiar. For several years he has been a sufferer from what appears to be rheumatism or neuritis. Finally, being almost helpless and his weight reduced by some sixty pounds, it was suggested that diseased tonsils might be the foundation of his ailment and he was advised to have them removed. This was done at Victoria Hospital, London, about four weeks ago, and since then Mr. Thomson has been steadily recovering his strength and weight, gaining about twenty pounds in four weeks. As suspected, his tonsils were found to be much decayed. He has had no rheumatic pains since the operation.

Wardsville School Fair was held last Friday and attracted a large attendance of people from the surrounding district. Splendid exhibits in all departments were made by the young folks and brought on much favorable comment. A paternalistic school pupils, a baby show and a program of sports were interesting features of the afternoon. Music was furnished by the Wardsville brass band, and a dining and refreshment booth operated by the Women's Institute was liberally patronized. A concert in the evening for Red Cross purposes was well attended and greatly enjoyed. The entertainment was given by the Wardsville orchestra, and J. C. Elliott, M. P. P., Glencoe, chairman.

Wm. Weaver underwent a second operation at the hospital in London last week and is reported to be doing well, though not yet out of danger.

Now, just as we are about to dispatch the kaiser on his journey thither a Toronto preacher gets into his head to declare there is no such place as hell.

Advices The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.

MR. ROSENBERG
589 Casgrain St., Montreal.

April 20th, 1915.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as 'Fruit-a-tives'. I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and pain in the back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try 'Fruit-a-tives', and now for six months I have been entirely well. I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try 'Fruit-a-tives', and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". FLOW POINTS

MACHINE REPAIRS

The foundation is not the most important thing

True, you can't have a good barn without a good foundation, but don't forget either that the roof has to stand most of the punishment. Upon it falls the burden of resisting the destructive influences of weather and changing seasons.

Now, the question is "Where am I going to find a roof which will meet these conditions?" Certainly not in wooden shingles which have rapidly deteriorated during the past few years. Not in anything so perishable as wood, nor yet iron, which lets in driving rain, but rather in a permanent mineral composition such as Brantford Roofing.

Now, let us look at a section of Brantford Roofing. First, you notice it has a pure, long-fibred felt base. This is thoroughly saturated with a filler coat of asphalt or mineral pitch. Then it is given another coat. Finally, the surface is thickly covered with crushed slate. You can imagine what a job rain, snow, fire or heat would have penetrating a roof like that. As for comparing with shingles on the score of permanency, or protection, or appearance, or even economy, there is no comparison. You put a Brantford Roof on once, and it will last as long as the building; it will always look well and it will never need repairing.

Brantford Roofing

Nature's Water-proofing

When you get to need you samples, also a copy of our booklet which explains how Brantford Roofing is "always on the job." Or, if you will give us the dimensions of your barn or house roof we will gladly submit estimates without charge or obligation.

THROUGH THE DARK SHADOWS

Or The Sunlight of Love

"My niece, Jess, d'ye mean?" replied Wilfer, eyeing him suspiciously. "Ain't seen 'er for months; run away last June, after 'elping 'erself to some of my cash, an' ain't been back since. 'Sides, what's it got to do with you. Guv'nor, I'd like to know? You mind yer own business."

He leered drunkenly at Leroy, who turned away with a look of disgust. He knew how useless it was to expect truth from such a quarter.

As the gentleman stepped out into the dirty court and returned to his car Johann Wilfer blinked his eyes in relief; then with an oath he stumbled up the rickety stairs into the living room, and confronted Jessica, who was standing near the window.

"So that's yer little game, is it?" he said with a sneer; "you're goin' in for swells right away, are yer, my gal? Got your name as pat as a poll-parrot. Knows all my private business. I desay; I'll break every bone in yer body!"

He stumbled towards her where she stood—her face still transfigured with joy at the sound of her benefactor's voice—and made a sudden grab at her hair. But, alert and lithe as a leopardess, she bounded over the table, and slipped past him down the staircase, from the top of which he launched forth a long volley of curses.

Quivering and shaking, both with fear of Wilfer's violence and her sense of injury at his denial of her presence to Leroy, Jessica ran, as fast as her frail body would permit her, through the intricate smaller streets and passages which abound in the Soho district. Having gone far enough, in her opinion, to be fairly safe from any danger of Wilfer's pursuit, she stopped.

Here, seated by the remains of a small fire in a narrow grate, she watched with awkward interest, that was much like indifference, the efforts of her rescuer to revive the dying embers. Soup was warmed for her, but for a time she refused to take it.

"I am not hungry," she said. "Only tired—so tired! Why did you wake me, lady?"

"I awoke you because you were unhappy, and it was dangerous for one so young as you to lie asleep in the streets," replied the meek-eyed woman. "But you must not call me 'lady'; I am not a lady. Call me 'sister'."

"But you are not my sister," said Jessica petulantly, "I haven't any sister or brother, or father or mother."

"Poor thing!" said the woman, who by this time had made up a bed, plain enough it is true, but luxurious after the cold doorsteps, and she now helped Jessica to undress. "Poor thing, you are quite cold; and what are all these bruises? Ah! why will men be so cruel, when Heaven is so kind?"

"I don't know," said Jessica, who took the question as directed to herself. "I don't know anything. Besides, all men ain't cruel. He wasn't; he was kind—oh, so kind!"

"He—whom?" asked the Sister. Then, as the girl did not reply, she looked hard at her and sighed again.

"Now you will sleep," she said. "Will you kiss me?"

With the impulsiveness of girlhood Jessica threw her arms round the linen-banded neck and kissed the Sister's pale face.

"Good night," she said.

The Sister smoothed the coarse pillow, covered her up, and went softly from the room.

When Jessica awoke the woman was again beside her with a cup of tea and some bread-and-butter. But the girl refused to eat.

"I am not hungry. I am not tired now, either, and I will go."

The Sister put her hand on the girl's arm. "Not yet," she said. "Where have you to go?"

"Nowhere," Jessica answered listlessly.

"Then stay with me," said the woman kindly. "See"—she brought a basket to the bedside—"here's some work. I will teach you to do this, and we will live together. Will you not stay?"

Jessica looked at the work, and silently nodded acquiescence. But nevertheless she sighed. To a nature such as hers freedom was life itself, and she was bawling it away for more food. Besides, how could she now follow the one who had been so kind to her?

But she stayed, and patiently worked all day, striving earnestly to catch the knack of the needle, and emulating the tireless industry of the Sister, who worked thus during daylight that she might pursue her mission of mercy and succour at night. Thus passed some days, and then Jessica's blood grew restless; the narrow room seemed to her stifling and unendurable, and she pined for the open air, as a caged blackbird longs for its native woods.

The longing grew so irresistible that at last she succumbed to it; and one day, finding herself alone, she threw down the piece of work on which she was employed, and rising, snatched up her weather-stained hat.

"I can't stay," she sobbed; "I can't breathe here! I must go, or I shall die. I'll leave before she comes back. Oh! I wish she had not been so kind to me. I feel a worthless, miserable, ungrateful creature!"

Then she stole down the stairs, very much as she had slipped away from Adrien's residence, and gained the streets anew.

It was the night of the great ball at Lady Merivale's town house. A Blue Hungarian Band was playing dreamily the waltz of the season, to the accompaniment of light laughter and gaily tripping feet. The scent of roses filled the air. Masses of their great pink blooms lurked in every small nook and corner; while in the centre of the room, half-hidden by a tent, a fountain sent its silver spray into the heated air.

"Mother Says We Couldn't Run The Farm Without CROWN BRAND CORN SYRUP"

It's downright scandalous, the number of 20 pound tins I buy. But, as Mother says, we use it for 'most everything.' 'Nothing else tastes quite so good on all kinds of Hot Bread, Johnny Cake and Griddle Cakes. 'Mother uses it for all her cooking—for Cookies, Cakes, 'Fingerbread and Pies. 'And I am almost ashamed to mention the quantity of 'Crown Brand' and bread that my youngsters consume. This syrup certainly is a favorite in my home!'

The 20 pound tin is convenient and economical for home use, although you can get 'Crown Brand' in 2, 5 and 10 pound tins and 3 pound glass jars. Ask your dealer. THE CANADA STARCH CO. If wealth and luxury alone could bring happiness, then surely Eveline Merivale should have been the most envied woman in the world. A renowned beauty, a leader of fashion, with every wish and ambition gratified—such the one which, at present, was the chief object of her life—to ensnare and retain, as her exclusive property, Adrien Leroy.

Her husband, the Earl of Merivale, she regarded as a necessary encumbrance, inevitable to the possession of the famous Merivale diamonds. His hobby was farming, and he detested Society; though quite content that his wife should be made its queen so long as he was left in peace with his short-horns.

Certainly Eveline Merivale was not in love with her husband; but, on the other hand, neither was she in love with Adrien Leroy. It simply added a zest to her otherwise monotonous round of amusements to imagine that she was; and it pleased her vanity to correspond in cypher, through the medium of the Morning Post, though every member of her set might have read the flippant messages if put in an open letter.

There was a spice of intrigue, too, in the way in which she planned meetings at their mutual friends' houses, or beneath the trees of Briery Park, or at Richmond.

Not for worlds would her ladyship have risked a scandal. She prized her position, and loved her diamonds far better than she was ever likely to love any human being under the sun. Still, it was the fashion to have one special favorite; and it was a great thing to have conquered the handsome and popular Adrien Leroy. It was little wonder, therefore, that, when midnight had struck and still Leroy was absent from her side, Eveline Merivale, beneath the calm conventional smile, was secretly anxious and inclined to be angry.

She was looking her best to-night; and although she had already been surfeited with compliments from Duke to subaltern, she yet longed to hear one other voice praise her appearance.

There was, indeed, every reason why Lady Merivale should be lauded as the greatest beauty of her time, for she carried all before her by the sheer force of her personality. Dazzlingly fair, with hair of a bronze Titian hue, which clustered in great waves about her forehead; her eyes of a deep, lustrous blue, shading almost to violet. To-night she would have borne off the palm of beauty from any Court in the world, for her dress was a creation of Paquin, and enhanced to perfection her delicate coloring, which needed no artificial aids.

thus partially shutting off or throttling the mixture as it enters the engine.

In either type of governor, if the weights, sleeve and arm are not working properly, irregularity, in the action of the engine will result. Sometimes we find a spring has been lost and the weight is wired in place. This partially or completely destroys the action of the governor. The fly wheel may have slipped on the shaft, causing the arm to cease to act on the detent. Then the engine will run away. The same effect may be produced by accidental bending of the arm. Of course, the opposite effect may be produced by either of these troubles, causing the engine to run too slow, or to refuse to run. An engine is balanced to run at a certain speed, hence should not be made to run much above or much below this speed.—E. R. Gross in Farm and Dairy.

Soft Rot of Vegetables.

This is a disease attacking several of our common vegetables, and while the same organism does not necessarily cause the disease with each kind of vegetable, the disease in each case is a soft rot and all behave the same and can be treated in the same manner. The cause of the disease is bacterial. The generally accepted name for the organism is bacillus carotovorus. It attacks cauliflower, carrots, turnips, celery, tomatoes, and several other vegetables which are fleshy are more readily attacked by this disease, and the organism gains entrance through wounds made in the plant. The bacteria feed on the juice, which emerges from the wounded surface, and rapidly multiply. As they multiply, they produce different kinds of enzymes. These enzymes have a digestive action, and are spread through the healthy part of the plant, breaking down the tissue upon which the bacteria then feed. Finally the cells of the plant collapse and the tissue becomes rotten.

Sometimes the rotted parts of the plant have a very offensive odor, and at other times this odor is not so noticeable.

Spraying is of no benefit in the control of bacterial diseases so far as we know now, since the bacteria act on the interior of the tissue and consequently spray materials cannot gain access to them. Since these diseases are usually contracted from wounds made very often by insects, the danger is greatly lessened if these insects are carefully sprayed for and kept under control, but the best method of control is to remove and burn all plants which are affected. This soft rot will live in the soil for two or three years at any rate, and hence it is readily seen that plants attacked by this disease should not be planted in soil for three years after a diseased crop has been grown. It is also important to notice that since these organisms can live over two or three winters, it would be foolish to pull up manure pile, since they might thus be spread to ground which was formerly unaffected.—Canadian Countryman.

Get After the Weeds.

Owing to the extremely late and wet seeding season this spring, many fall-plowed fields were never sown. This, of course, rendered conditions ideal for the growth of weeds, as they had no opposition for moisture and plant food, and without doubt they made the most of their opportunity. Haying and harvesting came to near together this year, many of these fields may have missed their regular cultivation, which would give the weeds a chance to seed. If the fields are harrowed thoroughly now, it will destroy the present growth, and will also cause the seeds already fallen, to germinate after the first rain, these will not have sufficient time to mature before being plowed down this fall. To stop in the midst of a rush to cultivate a cropless field may at first glance seem like time wasted, but it will save three times the cultivation next year, and should this particular field be sown to oats, barley or wheat, it will mean almost a total loss, as the weeds will have such a start that they will take all the moisture and plant food.

CITY OF BORDEAUX.

Her Ancient and Modern Architecture Are Both Famous.

The name of Bordeaux has gone abroad over the earth, borne on the labels of wine bottles, on the succulent Southern olive and in unrecognizable derivatives on the seductive French sardine. Hence it is something of a surprise when you first visit Bordeaux to find that none of these industries is particularly in evidence.

The best way to arrive at Bordeaux is by sea. The city is the second port of France, though it is sixty miles from the ocean. The trip up the broad Garonne is in itself a memory of travel that you will treasure. The quiet stream making its unhurried way through pleasant, long-tended land, is like some slow symphony, in a minor key. Like all travel by water, it puts you in the proper mood to see and appreciate new things, unlike the railroad journey which deposits you at your destination dusty and cramped, with a cinder in your left eye.

In our great ports we number the wharves and treat them accordingly. It is too much to expect a municipality to respect and decorate a pier that goes by no other title than 17 or 79. In Bordeaux each wharf has a name, and it is the starting point of the confidence and self-assurance born of an exalted origin into the heart of the city. The water front of Bordeaux is a pleasant sight. The wharves are well kept and well designed; the great bridge of Bordeaux, with its seventeen arches, stretches from bank to bank like a mighty arm.

The city itself is lively, bustling, busy and cheerful. It is not oppressed by the past nor worried about the future; the present is somewhat strenuous, cloudy, perhaps, but it will all come right in the end. There is a great deal of noble architecture to be found in Bordeaux; the towering buildings are given due space to display their magnificent proportions, but the city does not rest on the fame it might draw from the building craft of its ancestors. The modern structures are just as well planned and as adequate to express the spirit of their builders as those of centuries past. Bordeaux is full of that French spirit which ever confounds those who would accuse it of decadence by bursting forth again and again a little ahead of the times.

CORPSES PILED IN MOUNDS: ROAD SOAKED WITH BLOOD

Foe's Losses in Futile Counter-attacks on Somme Are the Heaviest Since Early Days of Verdun.

A despatch from London says: Behind the French Army on the Somme: The worst sacrifice of life since the early days of the Verdun battle marked the main German counter-attack Thursday against the new French positions north of the Somme. According to an artillery officer who took part in the battle, corpses are piled on each side on the road from Comblies to Rancourt, in mounds, sometimes three feet high.

The German effort to stem the French advance was the strongest made since the beginning of the Somme battle. It lasted over ten hours and was made by six divisions, which suffered terrific losses under the French barrage fire. Following the heaviest preparation by artillery known in that sector, from great guns brought from other fronts, 20 German battalions began the assault with the triple objective of freeing Comblies from the danger of investment, stopping the French wedge between Peronne and Comblies, and driving the allies from the possession of Hill No. 76, which dominates Mont St. Quentin.

Two Prussian battalions, who led the attack on the Prieze farm, were hardly out of their trenches when they literally melted away before the terrible fire of the "75's." Further south four successive waves of infantry attacking in close formation were smashed by the French "120's." The village of Bouchavesnes was the scene of the most stubborn combat of the day, when by a dreadful sacrifice the Germans succeeded in entering the north-east corner of the village, only to be driven out an hour later and routed further back than they had stood before the attack.

The last attack, delivered at dusk, was terminated by a series of checks costing the Germans three whole regiments. A Bavarian company belonging to the 11th Regiment lost 100 out of 200 men. Two battalions of the 123rd Prussian Regiment were totally destroyed. Not a regiment escaped a loss of less than 60 per cent. of its effectives.

Hindenburg Directed Battle.

Ninety thousand men directed personally by Field Marshal von Hindenburg took part in attacks on the new French positions in the region of Bouchavesnes, on the Somme, according to the special correspondent in the field of Paris La Liberté. The fighting was extraordinary fierce in the centre of the region attacked, around Bouchavesnes and Bois L'Abbe, and at Comblies, about the Prieze farm, as well as at Rancourt. The French were nearly destroyed, adds the correspondent, and a similar fate was suffered at Rancourt by three German regiments, which, advancing in four waves, made the last desperate attack of the day.

Malcolm Ross, correspondent with the New Zealand forces on the Somme, states that the Allies fired twenty million shells in a preliminary bombardment on the front. "The Germans," he said, "are hid in a fog caused by the smoke of the shells."

FOCH'S TROOPS ARE IN COMBLES

Fortified Structure on the Outskirts of German Base Captured.

A despatch from London says: The French troops have reached Comblies. One building in the town is in their possession. In what is described by the Paris midday communiqué as "a brilliant surprise attack," an isolated structure at the extreme outskirts of the important German base on the Somme was captured by the French. The building had been strongly fortified as a defence work. Three officers and 97 men were taken prisoners.

Simultaneously Gen. Foch's troops pushed forward to the south-east of Comblies, tightening the ring around that town. In this section 400 prisoners were made.

A semi-official estimate says the German losses suffered in the vain counter-attack around Bouchavesnes on Wednesday were 30,000.

The German commander tried vainly to stem the French advance against Comblies by a sortie from the trenches south of Rancourt. It was nipped in the bud by the French barrier fire.

The British, operating north-west of Comblies, with the dual aim of breaking through to Bapaume and closing in on Comblies in conjunction with the French, registered a further advance on a front of a mile, taking two lines of German trenches and straightened out their front between the villages of Fiers and Martinpuich. On the northern stretch of the Anglo-German front below Arras the British carried out a successful

GREAT ROUMANIAN VICTORY GERMANS AND BULGARS CRUSHED

Mackensen's Armies in Full Retreat, Burning Villages to Retard Pursuers.

A despatch from London says: The six-day battle in the Dobruja has ended in a Russo-Romanian victory. Field Marshal von Mackensen's right wing in Rumania, consisting of Germans, Bulgars and Turks, is retreating to the south in the direction of the fortress of Dobruja.

News of the result of the great battle was received in a brief summary of a Rumanian War Office statement which said:

"The battle between the German, Bulgarian and Turkish troops under Gen. von Mackensen, in the Dobruja, which has been in progress since the 15th, ended on Wednesday in a complete victory for Rumania.

"The enemy is retiring southwards, burning villages."

The official communication from Bucharest confirms the Entente reports that the great battle in Dobruja, has ended in the defeat of the Central Powers after six days' fighting. The battle began Friday and gradually increased in scope and intensity until Tuesday evening, when the result that on Wednesday the Germans, Bulgars, and Turks, crushed, were forced to withdraw, burning villages in their line of retreat in an effort to retard their pursuers.

The Bucharest War Office announced in an earlier report that the Russo-Romanians have repulsed the invaders "in a sanguinary manner," on the whole front, and launched several counter-attacks. The report reads: "In Dobruja the struggle continues with obstinacy. Russo-Romanian troops repulsed in a sanguinary manner on the whole front all attacks of the enemy, and made several counter-attacks. Enemy aeroplanes dropped bombs on Constanza, where no one was injured, and on Piatra Neamt, where a child was injured. Sofia officially admits that the Russo-Romanian troops 'maintained themselves in their strongly-fortified positions.'

Rumanians, Russians and Serbians were pitted against the invaders, strong reinforcements having been hurried to Dobruja, when the operations under the noted German field marshal threatened to overwhelm a section of Rumania. A strong line to the north was hastily fortified and powerful forces were thrown out to oppose the onslaughts of the central powers. That the six days' battle has been a sanguinary one is indicated by the various official statements, which told of the intensity of the fighting.

London, Sept. 24.—Of twelve big Zeppelins which invaded the British Isles last night to deal death and destruction from the skies two lay stark and black masses of steel and aluminum in the little village of Mangold, Essex County. They fell victims of the anti-aircraft defences of London and outlying districts.

One came down a flaming torch, as did the Zeppelin L-21, destroyed three weeks ago; while the second, disabled by gunfire, effected a landing which saved the lives of the crew, who are now prisoners in England. The crew of the first raider died in the consuming flames of their own ship, but they were not so terribly charred as their predecessors.

This latest raider to light her own funeral way on English soil collapsed and was consumed more quickly than the L-21. It is possible, though, that some of the men were still living when the great vessel struck the ground. The captain's body was found some distance from the wreck.

Many aeroplanes were aloft and attacked the Zeppelins from all sides. The raiders took a heavy toll of lives before their destruction, 28 persons being killed and 99 wounded in the metropolitan district of London. Two persons were killed, probably four, and 17 were wounded in the provinces. The property damage, while widely distributed, is confined for the most part to small suburban dwellings and shops, although one railway station was damaged, some empty cars being destroyed and part of the tracks torn up.

The commander and twenty members of the crew of the Zeppelin which was forced to land near an Essex coast town were arrested by the village constable as they were marching along the road in the blackness of the night, according to the latest "eye-witness" account.

"I am the commander of a German airship that has just come down, and these are my crew," said the leader of the men when accosted by the constable. Then the officer added: "Please allow me to go to the nearest post-office so that I may telephone someone in London who will let my wife know I am safe."

Special constables came up and the prisoners were marched to the nearest detention camp, where it was found several of them were wounded. Allies Also Busy.

London, Sept. 24.—The past two days has witnessed scores of battles in the air, in which the allies were overwhelmingly successful, and the bombing of numerous enemy aerodromes and factories.

A French aviator flew 100 miles beyond the German frontier and threw bombs on Ludwigschaven, where Count Zeppelin has his principal base for testing his airships, and on the city of Mannheim.

Saturday night seven French aeroplanes threw 46 shells of 120 calibre and four 150 calibre on the bombing furnace of Rombach and Thionville. Captain Beauchamp and Lieut. Nicourt, piloting two aeroplanes, Sunday morning threw 12 bombs on the blasting furnaces at Essen. The aviators returned to their base safely after having traveled about 500 miles.

Three Canadians escape from prison in Germany. Were Registered as Dead in Record Office and Their Effects About to be Distributed.

A despatch from London says: Registered as dead by the Canadian Pay and Record Office, which was about to authorize distribution of their effects, Lance-Corporal Edward Edwards, of the Princess Patricia's, Pte. James Jerry Burke (1216), of the 8th Battalion, Winnipeg, and Pte. M. C. Simonds (23445), of the Seventh Battalion, Port Arthur, have arrived in London, after having escaped from a German prison camp. They experienced some strenuous adventures. For three weeks they were at large slowly and cautiously wending their way to the Holland frontier, they covered a distance of about 150 miles. In Holland the fugitives, to their surprise, found a warm welcome. In fact, a local and headed them in procession to the Mayor, who in turn communicated with the British Consul, with the result that they were shipped to England.

Corporal Edwards is a Scotchman, who had been living in Toronto. His number, 39, shows he was an early enlistment. Ptes. Burke and Simonds were Canadian born. The first two were taken prisoners at Ypres last year.

GREAT MEDICINE.—Tont, one of the pioneers of French Canada, lost a hand and wore an iron hook as a substitute. He was in the habit of boxing the ears of refractory Indians with this iron hand, and they remarked that it was "great medicine." Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is great medicine; it takes hold of pain with an iron hand and knocks it out of the system.

Both are of our own young people and we certainly wish them only every thing good.

Miller's Worm Powders will not only expel worms from the system, but will induce healthful conditions of the system under which worms can no longer thrive. Worms keep a child in a continual state of restlessness and pain, and there can be no comfort for the little one until the cause of suffering is removed, which can be easily done by the use of these powders, than which there is nothing more effective.

NOT A NAUSEATING PILL.—The exponent of a pill is the substance which enfolds the ingredients and makes up the pill mass. That of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is so compounded as to preserve their moisture, and they can be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills, in order to keep them from adhering, are rolled in powders, which prove nauseating to the taste. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so prepared that they are agreeable to the most delicate.

The new Book of Praise for the Presbyterian Church, which will be issued after the war, will contain about eighty more selections than the present book it will supersede. The Psalter, which comprises the first part of the book, has been revised and strengthened. Special hymn selections have been made for the young and the children, and social service will have hymns devoted to it. Rev. Alexander MacMillan, the Convenor of the Revision Committee, which has just been in session at Knox College, states that no one need fear that the old favorite tunes or hymns will be discarded. Minor changes are made in old hymns, but only to make the phraseology modern.

Don't submit to asthma. If you suffer without hope of breaking the chains which bind you do not put off another day the purchase of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Remedy. This matchless remedy is sold by dealers everywhere.
