The Dresses at Ascot. DON, June 20.—The chief attraction to is, of course, not the racing, but the dressing. Looked at in a broad way, the dreasing. Looked at in a broad way, there were many toulards worn and a great many deep pink gowns, but as a rule the thinner silks were all shot-green and red, worn with a deep frill of lace around the

and black ribbon seemed to find their Jet and black ribbon seemed to find their way on to pretty nearly every third gown. Silue and pink often blended weil together in the same dress. Striking solored bodices having blue silk sleeves and skirts with much blue silk in them were worn with white hats trimmed with huge bows of pink sik.

Parasols were nearly all large and trimmed either with continuous flounces overlapping each other or ruches and chifton. Some were made of rainbowtinged chifton or silt; and some with a dearker tone of shaded silk, while many had embrodered frillings at the odge.

The dressing this year, like the attendance, was more magnificent than ever before known in the history of Ascob.

A Pernost rouse Order.

A Prepost rous Order.

London, June 20.—It is no mere coin cidence that on the same day that Gladcidence that on the same day that clade tone announced the Ministry's decision not to proclaim a meneral holiday on the date of the royal mardage the Queen should issue a mandate that everybody at the wedding must wear drawing-room dress, which will compel all the vedding procession to go in indeased carriags. This preposterous order will not only estail hours of physical dissements in the brilling weather on the titled participants of the eremony, but will knock endwise all the public plans for withessing a gorgeous street pageant, which the London populaces of dearly prizes. This exhibition of royal temper is quite in keeping with what has been said lately about the Queen's mental state, and other and more obvious samples of it will probably follow. If she is sortly obstinate some of her subjects can make her as her own game. In a half dozen towns, headed, of course, by Radieal shoemaking North-ampton, meetings convened by the mayors to decide upon a municipal present to Princess May have have been captured by the malcontents and resolutions denouncing these cadging practices have been passed with enthurisatic upcar. Even the orthodox Tory papers have felt obliged to deplore the menstrous lengths to which this present-begging epidemic has been carried.

Labouchere and the Lords. stone announced the Ministry's decision

Labouchere and the Lords. London, June 19 .- Mr. Labouchere peech to the Northampton Radical Assoiation was one of the bitterest and spiciest he ever delivered. He began by alluding to he were delivered, He began by alluding to his bilts abolishing the House of Lords, which the Radicals of the country indorsed. Within the last few days, he said, certain birthday honors had been distributed. He himself had not been offered even a knighthood. (Laughter.) He found that Sir Hussey Vivian had been made a geer. He was a decent, respectable gantleman, but was he endowed with such sucremon windom that for generation gentleman, but was he endowed with such subminious wisdom that for generation they were to have his progeny to legislate for them? (Hear, hear.) it seemed to the speaker that after the Liberal party had passed his resolution they ought not to make any persons peers. There was only one scheme of making peers that he could assent to, and that was to make at one 600 peers piedged to vote the abolition of the House of Lords immediately upon going there. (Laughter and cheers.) Is was useless to sow wheat and reap it and stack it in the barn if they had a lot of herediary incendiaries who had the right to step into the barn and burn the wheat. That was what the House of Lords was. (Cheers.) One of his (Larbandar Was.) had the right to step into the barn and burn the wheat. That was what the House of Lords was. (Cheers.) One of his (Laboucherés) bills would prevent a peer holding any important department of Government, because all important Ministers should hold seats in the House of Commons. When the Liberals came into power they found a large namber of Tory peers getting big salaries. Talk about bribery and cerruption; he knew no assembly in the world more corrupt, more dependent on bribes, than the House of Lords. Referring next to the position of the Liberal party in the House of Commons, he said that at the present moment they were doing absolutely nothing. They had got the Home Rule Bill before them, but Mr. Ballour had declared that he was in favor of every single amendment that would destroy it; Mr. Plunket said he would vote for every amendment that rendered the bill detestable; and their friend Joe Chamberlain—(laughter and hisses)—was prancing all round the place, talking thirteen to the dozen upon every amendment the treatied too seriously. He would not realize the highity of their opponents, and he threw his pearls before these swine. (Laughter, Labouchere had not the slightest objection to the Dike of York marrying the Princess May, but they were not geing to provide for them. (Cheers.) En shought that a

London, June 20 .- The interest of the ourt circle is completely absorbed at presoutr circle is complecely absorbed as present in the quarrel between the Queen and Princess of Wales over the marriage of the Duke of York. When the match was first mooted the Princess stipulated that nothing should be decided without her assent. The Princess now upbraids the Queen and the Prince of Wales for definitely arranging the match without her knowledge while she was absent on the continent. In an interview with the Queen at Balmoral the Princess, while persisting in her aversion to the match, was persuaded to withdraw her active opposition, though she declined to promise to attend the wedding. An English Hay Famine. London, June 20.—In London the omnious companies are wondering what the shall do for fodder. The price of hay is rising by leaps and bounds. It is already 50 per cent. higher than last year or the year before. One 'bus company has sent an agent to Australia with power to purchase up to £25,000. Speculations have been opened on a big scale in foreign hay, and large purchases have been made in the United States, Canada, and even Russia. Nor is agriculture the only thing affected. The Lancet points out the danger of this drought, saying that it will probably lead to an unusual amount of sickness. But this is only the gloomy side of the picture. The bright side has to do with the approaching royal wedding. "Gentlemen, as you look upon her you will pass your judgment that she is not insane. During all these days have you seen anything that shows the lack of womanly feeling or womanly bearing? If you make a mistake in this case against the commonwealth, that is something you can correct; if you make a mistake beyond all remedy—a mistake so deplorable that tongue can never tell its wickedness. # The Great Convention

Intense Enthusiasm Permeating the Atmosphere at Ottawa.

Mr. Laurier Opens the New Liberal Club Rooms.

Sir Oliver Mowat Warmly Received eches by Preminent Liberals— Delegates Arriving.

(Special to the ADVERTISER.)

OTTAWA, June 19.—Intense enthusiasm in the Liberal cause, unwavering confidence in and loyalty to the great Liberal leader, and a sure conviction of a great triumph at the next general election permeate the very atmosphere of all the hotels and halls at which the Liberal delegates are to be found. Only a small portion of the hosts expected have yet arrived, but the streets seem to be filled with them and they swarm in the corridors of the hotels and lodging houses, and everywhere are to be met the cheerful look and the abiding hope of coming victory. All the leading men are here or are on the way. The Premiers of tour Provinces are already on hand, while men whose names are household words all over the Dominion are present in almost bewildering numbers. (Special to the ADVERTISER.)

words all over the Dominion are present in almost bewildering numbers.

SIR OLIVER MOWAT, the veteran Premier of Ontario, arrived this evening and met with a reception second in enthusiasm only to that tendered Mr. Laurier. The enthusiastic welcome tendered the talented leader of the Liberals in the Dominion Parliament to-day fitly opened the proceedings of this greatest week in the history of the Reform party in Canada for the past decade. The opening of the Ottawa club rooms to-night with equal appropriateness gave evidence of the new spirit of aggressive determination that animates the party. Ottawa has long been regarded as a city wedded to its idols, hopelessly given up to the ways of Toryism, but recent events prove the faisity of these ideas. A Liberal association was formed here a few months ago, composed of several hundred staunch adherents of the party, and a couple of weeks ago a Reform club was organized, which, has already obtained a most gratifying membership. This club has rented and furnished a suit of rooms in the heart of the city that are a credit to Ottawa and to the Liberal party, and they to-day received the warmest encomiums of scores of visitors from other places.

OPENING OF THE OTTAWA LIBERAL CLUB

Opportunity was taken of the presence here of Hon. Wilfild Laurier to ask him to ormally open the rooms, which he did in the presence of several hundred local Lib formally open the rooms, which he did in the presence of several hundred local Liberals and delegates from all parts of the Dominion. His address, though brief, struck an accordant note in every breast, and as he spoke of the awakening of the country from its long nightmare of corruption and misrule, and of the sure and glorious victory that awaited the Liberal party at the next elections, mighty cheers burst forth—cheers that formed the ample justification of his glowing predictions. Sir Oliver Mowat was also present and made a speech of rare felicity. "Venerable" one feels like calling him when his age is spoken of, but, as Mr. Laurier said, he is still young in heart and full of life and enthusiaem. His short address was cheered to the echo. Ho, too, spoke of the SIONS OF THE TIMES that could not be misread, and added his

He referred in a humorous manner to the political faith of Ottawa, saying that he had good reason to believe this city was sound to the core, as it returned him a supporter by a majority of 1,500.

From away down by the sea and from the far distant west came also the measure of

The rink is handsomely decorated with a protusion of flags and bunting, and all around the sides are banners and streamers with mottoes in English and in French, together with shields bearing the arms of the Provinces and the chief cities, and hangers bearing the names of Papineau, Baldwin, Lafontaine, Dorion, Brown, Mackenzie and other tribunes of the people whose names are famous in Canada's history. The following are some of the mottoes: "McKinley Bowellism won't do." "The tariff is a tax," "Abolish all restraints upon trade," "Foster's tariff must go," "The Tory tariff oppresses the farmer," "We are loyal to Canada's Queen, but we owe no allegiance to monopolists," "God bless our Dominion." b "Protection is a national folly and a national crime," "Repeal the franchise iniquity," "The Conadian edition of the McKinley tariff must be abolished." On the right hand are the following: "Canada's resources are illimitable, an unwise administration alone retards her progress," "Canada before all," "We are loyal to Canada and the Queen, but not to monopolists," "Protection is legalized robbery," "Canada and the Pocple," "Laurier our leader," "One man one vote," "God bless our country," "Reform the Senate," "Liberty for commerce," "Above all I am a Canadian," "Let us get as close to free trade as the necessities of revenue will permit."

Delegates Peuring In.

Ottawa, June 20.—That the delegates have received a warm welcome to Ottawa is a fact, the literal truth of which can be borne testimony to by every Liberal in the city, for a hotter, more sultry day could scarcely be imagined, and the Maritime delegates especially are longing for a relief to the cool sea breezes to temper the sweltering heat of this place.

All night and all dey delegates have been pouring into the city, until the side-walks are almost impassable with pedestrians, and they swarm as thick as flies in the Parliament buildings, in the museum, and wherever there is anything worth seeing. Mr. Gladstone has made a present to the new Hawarden Institute of fifty volumes of new Hawarden Institute of fitty volumes of books, including a complete edition of Sir. Walter Scott's works. On the first pages of one volume the donor has written: "No local library should be without a set of Scott's novels in full, accordingly I present this set to the Hawarden Institute.—W. E. G. May 26, 1893." In Barnett Smith's life of the Prime Minister, Mr. Gladstone has written: "This work was not written by life of the Prime Minister, Mr. Gladstone has written: "This work was not written by authority, but I believe it has a fair reputation. I present it to the institute because it may be convenient to the members of that body to have at hand easy means of reference on points of detail concerning an old and attached neighbor.—W. E. G. May 26, 1893."

London West Presents Its Claim for Breakwater Building and Maintonance—The Electric Street Railway Matter Discussed and the Car Shops Question.

Among the communications read at last night's meeting of the City Council was one from Alexander S. Abbott, the venerable assistant city olerk, resigning his position, and asking to be relieved of the duties before July I.

Ald. Moule, seconded by Ald. J. W. Jones, moved: "That whereas, inconsequence of advancing years, Mr. Alexander S. Abbott has tendered his resignation as an official of the corporation, Be it resolved that in accepting the resignation the council desires to place on record its high appreciation of the valuable services rendered the city by Mr. Abbott during well night half a century of official life, and also to express the sarnest wish that his decided clining years may be surrounded by comfort and happiness, both temporal and spiritual."

Ald, J. W. Jones said he would have no objection to referring it to No. 1 to complete the company shall pay an annual milea of the company is the proposition of the company shall pay an annual milea of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continuity of the company shall pay an annual milea continu fort and happiness, both temporal and spiritual."

Ald. J. W. Jones said he would have no objection to referring it to No. 1 to consider the giving of some testimonial to Mr. Abbott. Mr. Adam Murray, on resigning his position, was given a testimonial of $300 a mile, single track, and $500 a mile single tr pany before them—the first offer whice been made during the year. The conhad now a franchise, the conof whileh they will never again. The company was backed by capitalists, and these gentlemen should be treated decently. The city, however, was not going to give away a valuable franchise. The proposition presented was the basis of an agreement, with the emphasis on the 'Dasis,' and the railway company would have to come 'up' considerably before the council let the 'down' into the streets of London for 35 years.

After some further discussion, the company's proposition, together with Ald Parnell's resolution, was referred to No. committee for further consideration to report back.
Ald. Moule then read the next clause of the committee's report, which suggeste the opening up of negotiations again with the Grand Trank Railway for the retaining of the oar shops in London.
Ald. J. W. Jones maintained that the was an exceedingly important matter. The Ald. J. W. Jones maintained that thi was an exceedingly important matter. The offer of Sarnia was being seriously considered, and the sity of London could no afford to dilly-dally. The $100,000 bonu should be offered the Grand Trunk.

Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald did not think the East End wanted the shops, anyway. Lass season too much fuss was made over this matter.

The council adjourned at 12 6 clock.

Don't leave poisonous medicines, or other kind for that matter, within the of small children. A New Jersey my was recently called upon to mourn the of two little ones who managed, in parent's absence, to get hold of a cup taining morphine in solution. They of the deadly stuff and in spite of all could be done for them died. Poison be place in any well-regulated household has to be used in one of its many occasionally, of course, but immediately such that which remains a not be immediately thrown away. Eccatended with such terrible risk is est dearly bought. Better by far pud dangerous compounds where they can no one and buy more when necessary any rate, it is little less than or neglect to leave poison where chigmorant of its deadly nature can rate.

were first class. The man, of course, who purchased £100 worth of commodities secured twice as much benefit from dividends as the one who only dealt to the extent of £50. A number of the merchants in the mother land told the speaker that had they not adopted the co-operative plan they would have been in the poor house.

"We have often been told," said Mr. Gifford, "that farmers will make mistakes if they go into business. Are farmers the only people who make mistakes in business." This was a puerile objection to co-operation, assetted the speaker, and not worth considering. All farmers had to do was to make people see that they could stand together. If they did this, and were content with fairly good returns, the plan being discussed would assuredly work admirably. He was sorry that he had no figures to show how the system prospered in the old country. Co-operation would doubtless be the means of excluding many who were already in business—living leech-like—from a profitable pursuance of the avocation undertaken. But would this be a serious barrier? Were there not too many in mercantile pursuits as things were constituted?

"This subject is worthy," asserted Mr. Gifford in conclusion, "as Sir Oliver Mowat would sey, "of your most serious consideration.' Farmers, I am sorry to say, are not prospering as well as could be wished in this country. Something has to be done. What remedy do you propose?"

London, Tuesday, June 20.

IF RICHARD III. had lived to-day he would have yelled, "A wheel, a wheel, my kingdom for a wheel."

PORT HURON, Mich., is a town with about 15,000 inhabitants, yet nine of its dectors are natives of Canada.

THE Brantford Expositor is an enterprising daily paper, and it has given special evidence of the fact in its reports of the Presbyterian Assembly. It prints a supplement containing excellent portraits, in photo-reviere, of prominent delegates. The work is admirable.

A "GOLD CURE" for drunkenness of a peculiar kind has been inaugurated among the Russian moujiks. The principles of this movement are as strange as they are unique. Those joining the temperance circles sign a contract agreeing not to drink any spirituous liquors during the ensuing year. This contract, as well as all its provisions, is recognized by the Government.

In case anyone breaks the contract he pays a certain fine, and, in addition, submits to a whipping. On subsequent offenses the penalty keeps on doubling. At the end of the year all the money thus collected is equally distributed among those who have not once broken their promise. The Government is doing all it can to further this

WEATHER ECCENTRICITIES.

While, in India, the town of Sutchana, on the Gulf of Cutch, and a number of neighboring villages have been completely destroyed by heavy rains, five persons being killed by lightning and three drowned, from every part of Great Britain there has gone up a wail for rain. The long drought of the early spring has been followed by phenomenally hot and dry weather, and alarm for the future is general. Hay and clover of last year's growth are selling at the highest figures known at this season, and the prospect for market gardeners is very bad indeed. In several counties seed crops have been plowed up because they would not pay for the labor of harvesting. Hay and clover grass are so dried up that they will hardly pay to cut. The drought is affecting towns also. In Glasgow the town council announces that there is danger of a water famine and a proposal has been made to shut off the supply at night from 11 until 5 o'clock. At Plymouth there is only one day's supply in the reservoir, while the amount flowing in is constantly diminishing and is not equal to the demand. The Clitheroe authorities have prohibited unnecessary washing of windows and all waste of this kind. In parts of the continent much the same condition of affairs prevails. A letter from France says that if America could can be sayd force a residue. send forage rapidly over to that country she would find a splendid market for it. The pastoral districts of France are threatened with the extinction of their flocks and herds. Farmers are selling their cattle for anything they will bring, simply because fedder cannot be bought to keep them alive. The result is a glut in the market. The price of beeves has gone down and the Paris householder is fighting with the re-tail butcher because the butcher will not reduce his prices according to the plethoric Nevertheless the butchers consupply. Nevertheless the butchers con-trive to keep up the price of meat. We in Canada are far more fortunate. While the weather here has been very hot, it has not been abnormally so, and there has been enough of rain to bring the crops to a conenough of rain to bring the crops to a condition that is really satisfactory. We have our drawbacks, but they are mainly in un necessary Dominion taxation. We have still much to be thankful for.

A MANLY REPLY.

The Quebec Trades and Labor Council having received a second-hand invitation to appoint delegates to meet Mr. Foster and Mr. Bowell on their peregrinating trip, sent the annexed straightforward reply: ent the annexed straightforward reply:

"That the Central Council of Trades and Labor, of Quebec, have repeatedly noted

Foster and Bowell form part has always turned a deaf ear to the prayers and petitions of organized labor; it consequently only sees in said invitation an intentional

We have need of as few repetitions as possible of the farce of a royal commission on labor, and of the Parliamentary committee. Consequently we refuse to sacrifice either time or money in presenting our views to these honorable gentleman."

THIS "EARTHLY TABERNACLE." A cablegram from London recites some new facts and theories of universal interest about our poor tenements of clay, which were presented in an address given by Prof. Foster at Cambridge University on Thursday last. His subject was "Weariness," not that tired feeling of the patent medicine advertisements, but the penalty which the physical or mental laborer always pays for over-exertion. Prof. Foster described some simple experiments. If they counted the number of times a weight was lifted, and measured the height to which raised each time in succession before the movement was stopped by weariness, they could ascertain how much work had been done before the machine was so stopped. Proceeding in this way, some interesting results as to what hastened or retarded fatigue had been obtained. Practice and habit, it was need-less to say, were of prime influence. The depressing effects of a damp and muggy day or the exhibarating effects of a bright, clear one might be measured in footpounds of power lost or gained, as might also the owering influence of a cigar and the temporarily heightening effects of a glass of beer. Another point was the influence of that part of the brain which was more immediately concerned with what was spoken of as mental work. An Italian professo determined by an apparatus the amount of work which he could do before he was stopped by weariness. He then set himself to two hours' hard mental work. Then he went back to the apparatus and found that the power of bending his finger was normously cut down.

Prof. Foster affirmed that the real cause of weariness was the inability of the organs to keep the blood sufficiently pure. Some thing depended on the vigor of the muscles themselves, something on the breathing power, and something also on the readiness with which the heart responded to the greater strain upon it; but beyond and above all these was the readiness with which the internal scavengers freed the blood from the poison which the muscles were pouring into it.

Undue exertion, the professor holds, is exertion in which the muscles work to fast for the rest of the body. The hunted hare died, not because it was choked for want of breath, not the heart stood because its store of energy having given out, but because poisoned blood poisoned the brain and body. All our knowledge goes to show that work of the brain, like work of the muscles, is accompanied by chemical change, and that chemical changes are of the same order in the brain as in the muscles. If any adequate stream of pure blood is necessary for the life of the muscles, perhaps even more true is this of

Moreover, the struggle for existence has brought to the front a drain ever ready to outrun its more humble helpmates; and even in the best regulated economy, the period of the most effective work between the moment when all the complex machinery has been got into working order and the moment when weariness began to tell is bounded by all too narrow limits. If there is any truth in what he said, the sound way to extend those limits is not so much to render the brain more agile as to encourage the humbler helpmates, so that their more efficient co-operation may defer the onset of weariness. The conclusions reached by this savant are of general application. But they specially enforce a lesson to those of us who, possessing ample natural resources of health and strength, are tempted to indulge in over-exertion. There is an especial caution given to those fond of athletic sports. It is often asked why the robust athlete, the fleet runner, the swift oarsman, the man of phenomenal strength, so frequently succumbs at an early age. To unsteadiness in exercising his bodily functions, to herculean efforts to train himself into "condition," may the planting of the seeds of an early collapse be traced. And so in the case of the brain worker. Be he ever so strong in mental powers, if he draws too Canadian statesman who, a few years ago, consulted an eminent physician as to his mental condition. He was a splendidlybuilt man physically, and was known to possess vast brain power. But he could not sleep soundly, and he feared that he was 'breaking up." The medical expert examined him closely and replied: "You are all right; what you need is a little less brain work, plenty of horseback exercise, and a quarter of an hour daily at wood-splitting." So simple, and yet so effective! It is hard to make men believe that the only way to keep a sound mind in a sound body is to exercise both moderately every day, cat simple food at regular hours, and in fact be temperate in all things. Unless this course is followed, a man is bound to pay for his shortcomings sooner or later. Neglect to-day will mean rheumatics, gout or paresis a few years hence. The Good Book has no truer declaration than that as we sow so shall we

THE FIRST REQUISITE. Rev. W. S. Rainsford, of New York, formerly of this city, in delivering the baccalaureate sermon at Harvard University on Sunday, caused a sensation by some remarks which be made regarding the rela itions of the human family. He said:

"Man is no longer cut off from man as he used to be. I tell you the time will come —I believe it is near at hand—when it will be impossible for men and women to live as at present they are living, in the broad and beautiful houses of our great cities, surrounding themselves there by all the rich cits and bounty of life, while close to them

The Ottawa bosses seem to have few friends outside of the men who have been granted special privileges by them, or of the office-holding crowd.

AN APOSTLE OF ISLAM. Muhammed Webb, an American gentle man who was converted to Islamsim while iving in India, is fulfilling the mission on which he was sent to the United States by wealthy Hindoos. He has established a newspaper in New York, and is vigorously arguing that the Moslem faith is the super-ior religion. "By its fruits ye shall know them!" Muhammed Webb could be better employed aiding in establishing the virtue of cleanliness, which is next to godliness, we are told, among his brethren in the far east than in trying to combat Christianity in the west. One essential of the religion of the Prophet is that which calls for pilgrimages to the holy places, and which yearly results in the circulation of the most loathesome of diseases, and the death of thousands of victims. At this moment, great swarms of ignorant and utterly dirty pilgrims are at Mecca, or are making their way through Asia Minor and Persia. They are dying off from cholera, and the combined sanitary forces of Christian nations are required to check the western progress of this pilgrim fostered plague. It seems to us that Muhammed Webb would make more impression on his fellow countrymen if he were first to conduct a health mission among his co-religionists, and make evident among them the virtue of cleanliness. If the apostle to America has become a fullledged follower of Mahomet, he should lose no time in packing up the four wiver permitted him by the prophet and should hie him to those fields of effort in which he should make some impression before he sommends the faith to others.

THE Toronto News comments on the trend of events as shown by the desertion of a whole Conservative Association in a Quebec hamlet, where the local leader and 40 men went over to the Liberals in a body at a recent meeting. Then there is Col. Domville, who until a short time since was Conservative M. P. for King's County, He was one of the leading speakers at a Liberal gathering in that riding last

WHERE THE GOLD GOES.

WHERE THE GOLD GOLD.

[From the London Spectator.]

Between 1859 and 1889, thirty years, or less than half one lifetime, India has absorbed £117,000,000 in gold and £227,000,000 in silver, or £344,000,000 in all. What has become of the silver we do not exactly know, though it is certain that a great proportion of it is hoarded as fixed and visable wealth; but shout the destination of the gold there is no doubt whatever. The people have got the whole of it in their own hands, for it is not in circulation, and are using it either in ornaments, kept, be it observed, to pawn in extremity, or as hoarded treasure in coin, such as lies under almost every peasant's floor in the Punjaband Eastern Bengal, India is a treasure-house of gold; yet a man may live 50 years in the British provinces and never see an ounce.

The Camp for No. 1 District

Carling's Reights Once More Present & Busy Scene — The Indian Troops— Wellington Rifles the Strongest in the Field-Some No. 1 Company Veterans -Orders of the Day-The Troops Will Breakfast Before Morning Drill-Camp

The camp of 1893 for No. 1 District is now in full operation on the hill to the east of the barracks. "A" Troop of the First Hussars were the first to arrive about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and they were shortly afterwards followed by the Battery. The other three troops of cavalry followed, and the Twenty-eighth Perth Battalion of Infantry came next. The Twenty-sixth Middlesse Battalion arrived a company at a time, and the time was spread all over the aiternoon and well on into the evening. The Thirty-third Huron Infantry got in just before supper, and last but not least, in numbers, at least, came the Thirtieth Wellington Rifles. There are ten companies, and they are probably the most soldierly-looking battalion on the hill and numerically the strongest.

The camp is laid out in the following order, commencing at the west end:
No. 1 Company, R. C. R. I., Col. Smith, D. A. G., in command.
The Twenty-sixth Battalion, eight companies, 340 strong, Col. Irwin in command.
The Twenty-sixth Battalion, six companies, 350 strong, Col. McKnight in command.
The Trenty-orighth Battelion, six companies, 250 strong, Col. McKnight in command.
The Thirtieth Wellington Rifles, ten

The daily routine is somewhat changed this year. The most notable alteration is the absence of the early morning drill before breakfast. The men will appreciate their rations before going onto the field. The order is as follows:

Describe at 5:30 a.m.

Reveille at 5:30 a.m.
Roll call and delivery of rations at 6 a.m.
Breakfast at 6:45 a.m.
Early morning parade from 7:45 till

Afternoon parade from 2:30 till 5 p.m.

Afternoon parade from 2:30 till 5 p.m.
Tea at 5:30 p.m.
Estreat and picket parade at 7:30 p.m.
First post at 9:30 p.m.
Last post at 10 p.m.
Lights out at 10:15 p.m.
The field officer for to-day is Major White, of the Twenty-eighth. Next for duty, Major Hamilton, of the Twentyeighth. The Twenty-eighth Battalion Band will do band duty. The different battalions will start off with the first day's drill as laid down in the instructions.

A Tongue Causes Trouble.

An unneighborly brawl, in which two residents of Briscoe street took an active part, was aired in the Police Court this morning. The participants—Mrs. Elizabeth Hunter and Mrs. Catharine Monk—are highly respectable people, but on this occasion the former lost control of her vocal occasion that is add to have harded some organs, and is said to have hurled some very uncomplimentary epithets at Mrs. Monk. Consequently Mrs. Hunter was before Magistrate Parke on a charge of using abusive language. Witnesses say she called her neighbor "a dirty, filthy, low-lived, degraded creature." Mrs. Hunter was finally bound over on a surety of $200 to keep the peace for one year. The case against John W. Humpidge for an alleged breach of the liquor license by law was adjourned for a week, owing to the tilness of the defendant. Martin Doxtater's assault accusation against Hiram Shane was similarly treated. Some more witnesses have to be subpeneed. Charles Walsh was given $5 or twenty Gays for drunkenness. rgans, and is said to have hurled New Patents.

Re Sarnia Oil Company.—G. W. Marsh (London), for the liquidator, moved for leave to appeal from an order of Fergusen, J., in court, having already applied for the leave now sought to Ferguson, J., who refused it. Reserved.

Re Richardson.—Talbot Macbeth (London), for the widow and administratrix of W. H. Richardson, moved for leave to purchase the real estate of the intestate; J. Hoskin, Q.C., for the infants. Order made sanctioning the purchase under the Devolution of Estates Act.

McLean vs. Denham.—E. Cronyn, for the defendant, moved to reseind an order of one of the local judges at London allowing service of the writ of summons out of the jurisdiction, and to set aside the writ and statement of claim, on the ground that no cause for which an action will lie under rule 271 is disclosed. Hoyles, Q.C., for the plaintiff, opposed the motion, and moved for summary judgment under rule 1739. These motions were referred to a judge in chambers by one of the local judges at London. It appeared that defendant had entered an appearance. The defendant now asked leave to amend the motice of motion by seeking to withdraw the appearance. The learned chancellor gave effect to this, and made an order allowing the defendant to withdraw the appearance. He expressed the opinion that it was not intended that the court here should exercise jurisdiction in causes of action arising outside, and that, as the defendant to deliberately entered the appearance, he could not be said to have attorned to the jurisdiction. It being conceded that there was no jurisdiction, unless by virtue of the appearance, an order was made setting aside the writ of summons, the service, and the order allowing to. No costs to either party.

Coldly courteous still! Dr. Davenal, who sould not wait, as Mark was out, again piered his hand at parting.

"Some estrangement has come between us which I do not understand, Mr. Oswald Dray. Remember what I say, should this to the last time we speak together, that it is ou who have to answer for it, not I."

"One word, Dr. Davenal," for the doctor was turning away to regain his carriage. Believe at least this much, that none can regret the estrangement more than I repret the extrangement more than I repret the strangement more than I repret."

"Oh, of course," cried Dick, his eyes sparkling. "It always does come in the Christmas holidays, you know."

The dector rose slightly from his chair, leaning with both hands on the table. His manner was subdued, his voice inex-pressibly gentle and leving.

"My dear friends, I thank you for your kindness; I thank you from my very heart. I am not well, and you must accept these few words in answer to Mark's more elaborate speech. It may be the last time I shall be here to receive your good wishes or to thank you for them. May God bless you!"

Miss Davenal was frightened and somewhat indignant. "What on earth's the matter with Sara?" "Hugh, Aunt Battina," called out Mrs. Cray. "Don't soold her. Uncle Richard has been talking gloonally. He says he is il!"

Cray. "Don't sooid her. Uncle Richard has been talking gloomly. He says he is ill."

"Ill of course he is ill," retorted Miss. Bettina, who had contrived to hear. "He won't cat. He is out and about his patients from horizing until night, and then comes in too birsed to eat anything. He has not awaltowed a couple of ounces of meat for all the last week. What can he expect to be but ill? But there's no cause for Sara to barst into a violent fit of crying over it. Will you be so kind as to excuse it, sir?" she added, in stately courtesy, to the clergyman who was sitting at her right hand.

He bowed. A man who had known adversity as he had can feel for sorrow, and his heart was aching for the grief of the child, and for the serious change he saw in the father, his benefactor. Mark turned to Miss Davenal.

"It is just what I say, Miss Bettina, that the doctor is overworked. He wants a week or two's rest."

the doctor is overworked. He wans a week or two's rest."

"And what are you good for if you can't contrive that he should have it?" was her answer. "I think you might see his patients for him."

"So I could," answered Mark. "Only he won't let me."

"So I could," answered Mark. "Only he wen't let me."

Sara's emotion was subsiding; she sat very now, her head a little bent, as if ashamed of having betrayed it; the tears dried upon her cheeks, but an uncontrollable sob broke from her now and then. Dr. Davenal had taken her hand under the table, for she sat next to him, and was holding it in his.

"You foolish child," he fondly whispered.
"Papa, if—if anything were to happen to you—if you were to go and leave me here alone, I should die," was the answer, uttered passionately.

"Hush, Hush! My darling, you and I are alike in the hands of a loving God."

She laid her fingers again upon her bosom. How violently it was beating, how difficult it was to still the throbs of pain, she alone

"I met him, too," said the doctor. "It was at you house, Mark. I asked him to come here to-day, but he declined."
"He has gone back to town, I think," said

"He asid he was going."
"Uncle Richard, how is it Oswald never comes here now?" asked Mrs. Cray "Is he offended at anything?"
"He appears to have taken umbrage at something or other, Carine," was the doctor's answer.

"I should judge him to be a very estimable sort of a man," observed Mr. Stephenson. "Straightforward and honorable."
"Estimable men take crotchets into their heads sometimes," remarked the doctor, who would not say that Oswald Cray" 'crotchet' was connected with the will. "There's no doubt that he is an honorable man."

Stephenson."

Sara looked up hastily, impulsive words ricing to her lips; but she recollected herself, and bent her head again in silence. Not even to her father dared she to say that his conclusion was a mistaken one."

"Uncle Richard, now that I look at you, it does appear to me that you have changed for the worse," remarked Mrs. Cray. "Os wald said so this afternoon, after you wend out—and, by the way, you might have stopped to see me; I was down a minute after you went away. What is it that all you?"

stopped to see his, I what is it that alls after you went away. What is it that alls you?"

"I think I have a cold hanging about me, Carine," was the doctor's slighting answer, for he did not chose again to enter upon the subject of his aliments. "I must nurse myself, as Mark says."

"Of course you must. Hallingham would not understand you being ill, you know."

"True," laughed the doctor.

Caroline Cray, seeing the doctor every day, or nearly se, had not perceived the great change that had been going on in him. But to Mr. Stephenson, who had not met him since the time of Lady Oswald's death, it was all too palpable. And so it had been that day with Oswald Cray, who had ont met and the control of the Cray of the Cray

An Unfortunate Accident.

This morning Mr. Thomas Drewer started from where he was working in Southwold to walk to the city to take a trip to London to get his wife out of the asylum. In getting over a fence he fell, striking his shoulder on a stone and breaking his collar bone. Dr. Day set it temporarily and sent him to the hospital at London. He is a laboring man and has a family at Essex.—[St. Saving Farewell.

Saying Farewell.

The congregation of Askin Street Metnodist Church are being deprived of their much esteemed pastor, Rev. C. E. McIntyre. Last evening he and his family were tendered a farewell reception. Rev. Dr. Antliff occupied the chair, and Rev. Walter Rigsby delivered a stirring address. An interesting part of the proceedings was the presentation by Miss Floy Samaon to Miss Maggie McIntyre, on behalf of the Mission Circle, of a beautiful quilt. Mrs. Fred. Smith then read an address and presented Mrs. McIntyre with a life membership in the Women's Missionary Auxlliary. Mr. McIntyre's reply was very touching. Music and refreshments were provided and a pleasant evening enjoyed. No Blame. Saying Farewell.

No Blame.

Conductor Turnbull's Funeral.

One of the dargest funerals seen in Windsor for some time was that of the late Conductor John Turnbull Sunday afternoon. From points on the Grand Trunk about 200 friends came, and at 3 o'clock, the time set for the funeral, Bruce avenue was crowded with people. The Fuelliers' Band headed the cortege, followed by the Knights Templar and nearly 200 Massolio brethren. Five hundred Grand Trunk employes followed on foot, after whom came the hearse and a long line of carriages. St. Andrew's Church, where the services were beld, could not contain the people. The interment was at Windsor Grove Cemetery, with Masson's honors. A large number of handsome floral tributes were laid on the casket. casket.
