at the religious condition at the religious condition of -bia diocese, proves asumed the part of a theo, on this oceasion, dxvii.; Migne, liv, 1415). Thy edviser (Epist. applies to another instance, the remonstration Martin J. (A.D. 649-55) with Amandus, bishop of Maestricht, under similar circumstances (ib.
lurvii. 155). turvii. 155).
Examples cited by Phillips, belonging to the oth ceatury, that of one Vilicarius applying for the papal license to resign his charge, when permission had been withheld by the provincial yyod, and that of Weuilo, archbishop of Sens, soliciting the intervention of Nicholas I. to procure the deposition of Herimana, bishop of Nepers, whe was incapacitated for the discharge of his duties by imbecility, undoubtedly carry more weight. But the evidence collected by Thomassin (ed. Bourassé, ii. 919-22) is far more canineing, as tending to establish the conclusion the pope was app 9th century, the authority of the pope was appealed to only as a last resource, and generally with the view of conser decision of a proviacial of confirming the Thomasolin, Vetus ot Nova Eccles, Discipl. Il, ib $53,\{1,2,3$, snd 11), but that visually I. ii. questions were held to be rightly within the cogaizance and authority of the diocesan bishops.

POPE

1675

lii. . Claim to present to all benefices

which Milm on the $\boldsymbol{h}^{\text {rart }}$ of the Roman pontiff, until thman uffirms to have been "unknown xiii, c. 10), is century" (Lat. Christianity, bs. within our peri certainly not to be recognized canonists are, for the precelents citel by the stances of the, for the most part, taken from inwithin the exertion of metropolitan authority looked upon as cases wherein or are ouly the be pope was sought and given, witheut aice of the on either side that it partook of the nay notion eommand. We find, for exnmple, Innocent I. instructing Marcianus, bishop of Naissus, in Illyricum, to appoint to offices in the church the presbyters to his sentence nnd predecessor, Bonosus, prior to such officen and degradation, hal consecrated (Coustant, ens recipiendos esse censemus" be observed, however mana, p. 573). It is to exercised relates to mut the authority here of Illyricum, over which, Damasus, Rome her which, ever since the time of dietion [Merropad nsserted metrópolitao jurisconsequently fails as proof of the.]; the instanee application (see Le Quien, of the more general 7-9).
A more relevant instance is that of Celestine $I$. who, when writing in the year 430 to the clergy and laity of Conatantinople, enjoins that all or ops or priests whom Neatorius had deposed or excommunicated shall be regarded as still possegsing their benefices and privileges"aperte sedis nostrae sanxit auctoritus, nullum aliqua Chiscopum, sive elericum, seu professione similibus Christianum, qui a Nestorio vel ejus dejecti sunt, vel vel loco suo vel communione videri" (Cougel ejectum vel excommunicatum ever, it is toustaut, pp. 816-829). Here, howof Rome had beenembered that the interference parties, and been invoked by the contending capital represented its assertion in the Eastern dition of affairs. When anether abuormal conyears later, appears as interveuing breat, some Anatolius, bishop of Constaptining between archdeacon Acitius, prived of his office, wism the former had depietati vostrae commis language-" quem tamen Patrol. liv. 1156), is and the argument of very different character; 490 ) that, to Salisbury, "the quote the lagguage of John of dntes," involves requests of the pope are manthe atatue of the papacy in thism of confusing centuries.

Other inatances, auch as when Simplicius in flictar a penalty on Geudent whea simplicius infor ordalning priegts, "centra bishop of Aufinum, ac nostra praecepta," and diruta canonum bishops to deprive him of the future exe other such power, "totam penitus puture exercise of potestatem " (Thiel, Epist, Hom. Pont. p. 178); or when Gelasius issues stringent regulntions to the blshops of Lucania, Bruttii, and Sicily, with respect to the ordination of the clergy and their ${ }^{2}$ ppoiutment to cures (ib. pp. 360-379), are invalid as a general argument, from the fact that they oceur within the Roman diocese, where, at this perlod, such authority was unquestionably wielded by the loman pontiff.

In all but the last of ihe foregoing instances, it will be seen that the occasion for the papal interference arose out of an excep. tional position of affairs, and thus turns very much upon the fundamental question of appellate jurisdictiou [APPEAL, p. 130]. Other instances, cited by Phillipe and Thomassin, belonging to the pontificate of Gregory the Great, exhibit agnin the following jmportant qualifying conditions: (a) that they occar within the diocese over which the lioman pontiff claimed metropolitan rights; ( $\beta$ ) that Gregory himself appears, where practicable, to have first consulted the bishop of the district; $(\gamma)$ that they occur at a period when political circumstances might warrant an occasional extraordibary exertion of the papal influence. For example, when Gregory bestows the monastery of St. Theodorus at Messana on l'nulinus, bishop of Taurinae. he first consulted with the metropolitan of the district, Felix, bishop of Messana, to whom he writes: "quod etirm te voluisse, jam ejus [sc. Paulini] relatione didicimus" (Epist. bk. i. 41; Migne, lxxvii. 528); while, when writing to Felix, a subdeacon, with reference to the sume, transaction, he says:-" quam rem venerabili Felici ejusdem civitatis episcopo nos significasse cognosce, in praeter suam notitiam in dioecesi sibi commisaa, ordinatum quippiam contristetur" (E) ist. i. 42; ib. Ixxvii. 529 ). With reference to the ordination of Paulinua bimselt to the bishopruc of Lipara, Gregory writea to Paulinus, to say that he has already expressed his wish in the matter to Maximianus, the metropolitan: "Maximiano fratri et coepiscopo scripaimus ut fraternitatem tuam ecclesiae Liparitanae ex noatra auctoritate praeease constituat" (Epist. ii. 17; ib. 1xxvii. 580). Similarly, when recommending a deacon as a proper recipient of a atipeud, he writes to the same Maximianus: " sive nt officium diaconatus expleat, sen certe ut sola ejusdem officii prosusteatanda paupertate sua commoda consequatur, in tuae fraternitatis volumus hoc pendere judicio" (Epist. iv. 14; 1b. Ixxvii. 695).

But to whetever point we may assume the papal authority to have advanced in this reapect, with the age of Gregory, it may be regarded as certain that it was not only held in check, but almost entirely set aside, by political eventa after his time. Neither in England, nor in Frankland under the Merovingian and Carolingian dynasties (save for a brief period following the arrival of Boniface), was there any disposition to admit the assertion of these claims; and it is not until nearly the close of the 12 th century that the appearance of "epistolae monitoriae," "pracceptoriae," and "executoriae" indicate that such powers were asaerted and entorced.
(iv.) Clitim to temporal power.
(1) Patrimonium.-The foundation of the church oi St. John Lateran by Constantine the Great, is probably the only foundation of the kind in Kume which can ba attributed with much probability to that monarch. At the same time he bestowed upon the bishop of Rome for $a$ residence, that portion of the Lateran palace [LATERAN] which wns known as the "domus Fuustae" (Gregorovius, Gesoh. d. Stadt Rom, I. 87), and here the first Lateran synod was held, in the year 313. It was in the same reign that the chorch acquired the right of possessing estates, and receiving bequests of landed property from individuala. The revenues thas obtained were always supposed to be devoted to charitable purposes, a law of Constantinc of the year 326 pronouncing it fit that "the noor should be sustained by the riches of the churches" (Cod. Theod. xii. i. 6). Under this plea the church at Rome soon acquired widespread possessions; and in the year 432 we find Celestine, the bishop, writing to Theodosius II., and eatreatiag his protection for certain estates of the see in Asia, which a lady named Proba, the representative of an ancient house, had bequeathed tor the majntenance of "the clergr, the poor, and certain monasteries " (Coustant, ell. Schoen. p. ع79). Long before the time of Gregory the Great, the "patrimonium Petri," as it was termed, was represented by large eatates ln Southern litaly, Sicily, Corsica, Africn, ats! Dalmatia. "Erer since the extinction of the Westenn empire had emancipated the ecclesiastical potentate from secular control, the first and most aviding object of his schemes and prayers had heen the acquisition of territorial wealth in the neighbourhoud of his capital. He had, indeed, a sort of justification-for Rome, a.city witi neither trade nor industry, was crowded with poor, for whom it devolved on the bishop ta provide" (Bryce, Holy Roman Empire, p. 42). In parsuauce of this theory, we find eiregory himself speaking of such property as "res pauperum" (Migne, lxxvii. 8:34); his allusions to it are frequent. He refers, for instance, to lauds in Gaul, "pratrimoniolum ecclesiae nostrae quae illic constitutum est" (Letter to Bruaichild, Migne, Ixxvii. 836) ; in Sicily near Cataua (ib, Ixivii. 593), but these latter appear to have been wrested from the church by Leo the Isnurian, a.d. 730 (Le Quien, i. 97) ; in Sardaia (Migne, Ixxvij. 926), In the Cottinn Alps, in Illyricum, and In the cities " of Otranto, Gailipoli, jerhapa Norcia, Nepl, Cuma, Cupua, Corsealano, Naples, Palermo, and Syracuse" (Milman, Lht. Christanity, ii. 115).

The "donatio patrimonii Alpium Cottine," presented to the Roman see in 703, by Aripert, king of the Lombards, was wrested trom its pascession by Lultprand, who, however, moved by the remonstrances of Gregory Il., again restored the territory (Annst. Gireg. Il. ; Mura* tori, Script. 1II. i. 154). After this time no further reference to this patrimony is disceverible, and It appears to have been finally last to Roms in the troubles that marked the second quarter of the 8th century.
(2) Political sovereignty. The commancement of the political authority of the Roman pontiff is perhaps to be discerned in the discharge of certain civic duties, with which, like the bishops of other important cities, he was entrusted on behalf of the imperial power (Hhillips, Kirclerr. recht, Iii. 37). These functions daite back as far as the 4th century. The supreme civil authority of the city appears, however, to hare been wiclded by the profect, and at a latet period by the "dux" or duke of Rome. The beginuing of a really independent anthority has been referred (Sugenheim, Entste ung und thubildung des Kirohenstaates, p. 9) to the occasion when Peter the "dux" haring been driven from the city, in the pontificate cf Gregory Il., it in supposed that a with the jope conjecture, howe historical basia commencemeut o is more correct when, according he had taken and the possession of request of Gregor Peter and Paul (
The real "dom when Pepin le Bre bestowed upon St he had wrested $f$ ot Ravenna and $t 1$ try to the east northwards from clam. Aecording vanquished Lomb vowed to present pontiff (ib. III. j. 193-4).
The munificence of his son. Whe (who was then litt age) visited Rome was made the grou grant. It is diffict occasion of deliber conveying Pepin's pontiff to the mon tenitories bcfore orijinal jift." Se wood, "had never : Ravenna, as it exist oor had ever been time since the Lon this deed, as read kimself was entirel conceded by Charle finium," was mark by a line commenci taking in Corsica, tl Mons Bardonus, anc Parma, Reggio, Man whole exarchate of erat), together witl and Histria, and Benerentum (Murat should be observe "that Spoleto and B all along integral kingdom; moreover did not dismember the pope, and that $t$ prised in the surrenc from Aistulph in pu Pontyon and Quie erecuted by Charles Hadrian, was, in far comprising in leed mi ertending it to at le Inted for in the prio il. 414 ; Hefele, Cone Out of these suce story of the "Donat aileged as a fact in a stantine and Irens, 2 1056 ; xiil. 527). Ac Constantine the Grea leprosy by the inter supposed that a kind of repeilic was formed, with the pupe as chief administrator. This conjecture, however, is wanting in any real historical basis (Gregorovius, il. 258), and the commencement of the "States of the Church" is more correctly referred to the year 727, when, according to Anastasius, Luitprand, atter ha hal taken and plundered the town of Sutri, the possession of the emperor, offered it, at tha request of Gregory II., as a gift to the apostlea Peter and Paul (Muratori, Script. III. i. 157).
The real "donatio" dates from the year 754, when Pepin le Bref, at a council held at Quiercy, bestowed upon Stephen III. the territory which ae had wrested from the Lombards, consisting of Ravenna and the Peatapolis, a tract of country to the east of tha Apenaiaes, stretching northwards from Ancona and the city of Comalnorthwards from Ancona and the city of Comarclum. According to Anastasius, Desiderius, the vanquisbed Lonibard mouarch, had already vowed to present this territory to the Roman poatiff (ib. IIl. i. 171 ; Jaffé, Reyest. R. Pont. 193-4).
The munificence of Pepia was rivalled by that of his son. When, in the year 774, Charles (who was then little mor? thri thirty years of age) visited Rome, the T of his father was made the ground $f$. It ing a yet larger grant. It is difficult $t$ Hadrian on this occasion of deliberate falsitication of the deed conveying Pepin's grant, for when read by that pontiff to the monarch it was found to include territories before unheard of as part of the orisiand yift. "Some of these," says Greenwood, "had never belonged to the exarchate of Ravenaa, as it existed under tha Greek dynasty, nor had ever been comprised within it at any time since the Lombard invasion of 568 . Of this deed, as read by the pope, Charlemagne himself was entirely igaorant." The territory conceded by Charles, "per designationem conhaium," was marked, according to Anastasius, by a line commeacing at the port of Luna and tiking in Corsica, then pasaing on to Surianum, tiking in Corsica, then passing on to Surianum, Mons Bardonus, and Vercetum, from thence to Pons Bardonus, and Vercetum, from thence to Paggio, Mantua, Monseliee, takiag in the whola exarchate of Ravenna (aicut antiquitua erat), tegether with tha proviaces of Venetia aud Histria, and the duchiea of Spolato and Beneventum (Muraturi, Scri,t. III. 1. 186). "It should ba observed," continues Greenwood, "that Spoleto and Benaventum had been in fact all aloag integral portions of tha Lombard kingdom; moreover, it, is known that Pippin did not dismember that kingdom in favour of the pope, and that those duchiea were not comprised in the surrenders which Pippln axtorted from Aistulph in pursuance of the treatiea of Pontyon and Quiercy. . . . The donation crecuted by Charlemagne, at the raquest of Halrian, was, in fact, an entirely new grant, comprising indeed much of the older claim, but ertending it to at lenat double the area stipulated for in tha prior donation " (Cath. Petri, ii. 414 ; Hefele, Concilienyesch. iil. 541 ).

Out of these auceesalve donntiona arose the story of the "Donation of Constantine," first slleged as a fact in a latter of Hadrian to Constantine and Irene, 26 th Oct. 785 (Mansi, xii. 1051; ; xiii. 527). Aceording to this fabrication, Conatnatina tha Great, on being cured of the laprosy by the Intercession of pope Sylventer, determined, on the fourth day from his baptism to quit Rome and found a new capital on the Bosporus, in order that the supreme ecclesiastical puwer of the West might have free scope, and no longer be overahadowed by the presence of the imperial authority. He accordingly not only made over 10 Sylvester the Lateria palaca, but also invested him with the diadem, tha phrygium, the collinr, and the purple cioak, "et omaia imperinlia indutamenta." The clergy of Rome were to be attired in similar fashion. Finally, Rome itself, together with sll the proviaces of Italy and the West, were presented to Sylvester as "universal pope"-"ubi enim priacipatus sacerdotum et Christianae i. ligionis caput ab imperatore coelesti coastitutum est, justum non est ut illic imperator terrenus habeat potestatem" (Gratian, Corp. Juris Can. Dist. xevi. ec. 13, 14).
This forgery (first challenged by Cusanus and Valla in the 15 th century) having long been abaudoned as spurious by the chief authorities in the Romish church itself (Döllinger, Papatfabeln, pp. 52-62), it will be unneeessary here to adduce the data for such a conclusion.
Auth,ritics.-Histories: Gibbon, Baur, Neander, Gieseler, Milman, Robertson, Binghani ; Thomasain, Vetus et Nova E.cl. Discij lina, ed. 1773; Phillips (G.), Kiruhenrecht, vol. v. ; Greenwood, Cathedra Petri, vols. i. and ii.; von Schulta (J. F.), Concilien, Päpste und Bischöfe, 1871 ; Richter (A. L.), Lehrbuch d. kath. u. prot. Kirchenrechts, 1874; Du Pin de Antiq. Ecclesias Disciplina; Baxmann (R.), Die Politik der Päpste, vol. i. 1868; Lipsius (R. A.), Petrus-Saye and Chronoloyie der Römischen Bischoffe; Coustant (Petrus), Pontificorum Rumanorum Epmstolae, 1796 ; Thiel, Epistolae Romanorum Pontificorum, 1867; Wiltsch, Kirchliche Geographie und Statistik, 1846 ; for councila, Manai, Sirmond, and Hefele.
[J. B. M.]
[J. B. M.]

PORCE. [NARTHEX.]

PORCH [compare Narthex]. Dr. Neale (Eastern Ch. Introd, p. 215) says of Eastern churches that "the mpoaúniov, or porch, is usually, where it exista at all, at the west end, and reachas from the north to the south of the narthex : it is sometimea a leaa-to against the west end of the narthex, but ofteaer it forrs with the narthex one lean-to against the west end of tha nave ... Occaaionally .. the $\pi$ pooúAuv, though at the west end, is simply like an Eaglish porch; and aometimes there are north and south porches. . . Tha north, south, and west sides are open batween the piers on which the tooavidiov ia supported; the east side . . is usually adorned with mosaics or frescoes, usually of infernal punishmenta. Cominonly the rpoav$\lambda_{10}$ opens with three doors into the narthex... Against the enat sida there ia a seat of marble or stone, or-in poor churches-of wood." [C.]
PORPHYRIUS (1), reader, martyr at Magnesia with Charalampua; commamorated Feb. 10 (Basil. Mfnol.).
(2) Slave of the martyr Pamphius, martyr with Julianus and Theodulua; commemorated Feb. 16 (Basil. Menol. ; Mart. Rom.).
(3) Biahop of Gaza; commemoratad Feb. 28

PORRECTIO VASORUM

and coniesaor (Cal. Byzant.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. Iv. 254 ; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Leta SS. Feb. iii. 643).
(4) Slave of 'nnesiphorus (2 Tim. iv. 19) and mertyr with hi i.; commemorated July 16 (Basil. Menol.) ; Nov. 4 (Cal. Byzant.).
(5) Man of God, instructor of the martyr Agspitus; commemorated Aug. 20 (Vet. Rom. Mart. ; Uauard. Mart., Porpitirius ; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Aug. iv. 26).
(6) Martyr under Julian; commemorated Sept. 15 (Basil. Menol. ; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Sept. v. 37).
(7) Of Ephcsus, martyr under Aurelian ; commemorated Nov. 4 ; Basil. Menol.; Mart. Rom.); a Porphyrius occusa with others in Africa in Hisron. Mart.
[C. H.]

PORRECTIO VASORUM. [Instrumenta, p. 862 ; Urdination, p. 1508].

PORTER. [Ostiarius.]

PORTICUS. [NartaEx.]

PORTRAITS. It is probable that very many of the Oranti, or praying figures in the catacombs, both male and female, mny be portraits or memorial figures of the dead. Such representations were quite in accordance with Roman family habits of sepulchral observance, and respect for ancestors passed away; and would be, in fact, a kind of Christian "Imngines." Those of Probus and Proba (see woodeut) are benutiful and pathetic in a high degree. Two medallion portraits, one of which, to juidge by the engraving, must have been a marked likeness of considerable merit, occur in the cemstery of St. Priscilla (see Bottari, tavv. clx. elxi.). Both the medallions appear to be of military men, and Bottari mentions a conjecture that seventy-two soldiers martyred under Numerianus, with Claudius their tribune, may have been buried in that spot. They aeem to be of the same rather early date, as their proportions are relatively good, and amall loculi have been cut through the pictures into the wall.

Many figures in the mobaics are undouhtedly portraits, as thosa of Justinian and Theodora in the courch of St. Vitale at Ravenna. (See Crowe and Cavalcaselle, Hist. of Puintiny in Italy, 1. 27, and Gally Knight's Italjan Arclitecture, where the colours of the mosaic are besutifully given; also Ricci's series of photographs, and the copies at South Kensington.) The marked countenancea of many saints of the Eastern churcit in all mosaics, and, indeed, on mauy eaps and glasses, can hardly be ideals. (See Buonarroti, Osservazione, &c., x.-xiii.)

POTTERY

[R. St. J. T.]

POSSESSED. [Demonracs; Exonclsm.]

POSTURES OF DFVOTION. [Genv. flexion ; Prayer.]

FOTAMIA, martyr with Julius at the city of Thagora; commenic"ated Dec. 5 (Usuard. Mart. ; Mart. R.m.).
[C. H.]
POTAMIAENA, martyr at Alexandria with Plutarchus and others; commemorated June 28. (Usuard Mart.; Vet. Lom. Mart., Poramoens; Mart. Rom.; Hieron. Mart., Potamina; Boll. Acta SS. Jun. ii. 6, diatinguishee her from s virgin of Alexandria of the same name commemorated on June 7.)
[C. H.]
POTAMIUS, martyr with Nemesius io Cyprus ; commemorated Feb. 20 (Ususrd. Mart. ; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Feb. iii. 173).
[C. H.]
POTENTIANA, virgin martyr at Rume; cor.mmemorated May 19 (Usuard. Mart.; let. Rom. Mart. ; Bed. Mart. ; Boll. Acta S'S. Mai, iv. 296).
[C. H.]
POTENTIANUS, martyr with bishop Ss binisnus at Sens; commemorated Dec. 31 (Usuard., Wand. Mart.).
[C. H.]
POTITUS, martyr onder one of the Antonines ; commemorated Jan. 3 (Florus, sp. Bed. Mart.) ; Jan. 13 (Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jau. i. 754).
[C. H.]
POTTERY. The greater part of the objects made of clay, which bear Christian devices, symbols, or inacriptions, will be found under Lamps; but there are also some others, for the description of which a few words may suffice, There is a class of small flat, circular, terts. cotta bottles, with two handles attached to the body a little below the neck, the short neck riuing a little above them, which appear to have teen designed for holding holy oil. On sll of them, elcher on one side or on both, a stauding figure is represented between two animals, somatimees very rudely modelled, but which appear in every case to have been intended for camels. Some of these, probably the greater number, are uninscribed; but a few bear the name of Menas, who died a martyr for the fith in the persecution under Galerins Maximious or Maximianus at Alexandria (see Garruce's remarks in Archacoloyia, vol. xliv. p. 323, on the confuslon of the two saints of the same name). To this saint, as it seems most probable, this whole class of ampullae or chrismario belongs, which were in all likelitood made exclusively in Egypt as memorials of pilgrimage to his tomb (which was nine miles diatant from Alexadria) and to hold oil brought from it. They are sop. posed by M. de Rossi to have been manufactured in the 6th a arranged chror
(1) On one TOY ॥ Ario body of the cru of four nearly three pellets, agsin in a wre figure with ex drapery, &c., o rudely designe $a$ cross as befo rounded by a inclosed in a about 4 inche Pigured and de Arles, in De R L869, pp. 20, 3 other specimen privste) in Paris aubsn (found a Ai: and Turin in the Halles M clay, has TO would seem, b (De Rossi, Bull. - (2) On both with distinct c the neck), dres closk (paiudame shoulder, and t] the knees. A

Clay Oll-an
elther side his $b$ cruse, near the [^115]

POTTERY

in the 6th and 7th centuries. They may be srranged chronologically as follows :-
(1) On one side the inscription EVヘO $\|$ ГIA TOY \| AClo $M \| H N A \cdot$ in four lines on the body of the cruse, followed by a amall rude cross of four nesrly equal limbs: below in another line three pelleta, all enclosed in a circle, and this agsin in a wrenth. On the other side a draped figure with extended arme, an orante (details of drapery, \&c., obscure); below ench arm a very rudely designed animal, on aanh side of the head a crose as before, all inclosed in a circle, surrounded by a circle of beads, and that again inclosed in a circle. Height (when perfect) about 4 inches; diameter of hody, $2 \frac{1}{4}$ inches. Figured and described from an example found at Arres, in De Rossi's Bullett. di Arch. Crist. for 1869, pp. 20, 31,32. De Rosi ( $u$. s.) notes that other specimens occur in museums (public or privste) in Paris, Rome, London, and also in Moutaubsn (found at Memphis) as well as Marseilles, Air and Turin (also found in Egypt). Another in the Halles Museum at Brussels, of rale yellow cley, has TOY AFIOY MHNA only, as it mould seem, but the description is defeciive (De Rossi, Bull. 1872, pp. 25-30).
(2) $O \mathrm{n}$ both sides an oranto as before, but with distinct circular nimbue (no erosses near the neck), dressed in military costume; the closk (paludamentur) is buckled round the right shoulder, and the cuirass ccomes down nearly to the kneas. A rude animal (a camel) is on alther side his body. Across the body of the cruse, near the reck of the figure, OAFIOC

[^116]
POTTERY

1679
MHNAC (MHN ligated) In one line. Diameter of body of cruse, nearly $4 \frac{1}{2}$ inches; the heigh.t must have been fully 6 inclies. Figured and described by De Rossi, Bull. 1869, pp. 44, 46. Found at Alexandria. (In the Forence Museum.)
(3) A nimbed orante, nearly as in No. 2 (without crosses); very rude camels on either side, hat in place of Greek inscription s. s. (i.e. S. Menas) on either side of the neck (the $s$ is clear, the $m$ ia much blurrel). The reverse has a Maltese crose inclosed in a circle or wreath of palm branches; this again is included in a circle in which three pellets alternate with one barleycorn, there being twelve pelleta and four barleycorns. of hard red clay; part of one liandle missing. Height, $3 \frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of bidy, 8.4 inches. Found in Lower Egypt; formerly in the Allemant collection. (See below, under No. 4.)
(4) Uninscribed. On hoth sides an orante, as No. 1, with the same adjuncts. Three specimens from Alexandria in the Florence Museum (De Rossi, Bull. 1869, p. 46). Two others of Boft pale yellowish clay, diameter of body about 3 inches, height nearly 4 inches; both from Lower Egypt (Allemant, Collect. d'Antiquites egypt. part of Nos. $5200-531$, p. 85, Lend. 1878 ; now in the collection of the writer, as well as the foregoing, forming part of the sama lot). One said to hnve been found in the cemetery of St. Cyriaca in 1830, now in the le Noirs rollection, is figured in Perret, Catacombes, vol. iv. pl. xx. n. 6 . The ampullae with full inacriptions would (as De Rossi observes) natnrally be the must ancient, those with shorter inscriptions wuuld come next, and those with no inscription would be latest of all, the type having then become known (Bull. 1872, p. 30).
(5) There remains another examp ${ }^{\circ}$, of this class, which entirely. resembles no. 3 on the side bearing the figure of Menas, except that it has two crosses in place of s. si.; kut the reverse has a monogram plainly reading METPOY inclosed within a circle, and this again within a circle of scroll-work, Clay of a yellowish colonr. Height, $3 \frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of body, $2 \frac{2}{2}$ inches. Preserved in the College of the Barnabite Fathers in Moncalieri, vear Turin (De Rosei, Bull. 1872, p. 26. tav. ii. nos. 4 and 5).
De Rossi, while fully admitt:ng that this figure between cainels must be Mlenas, thinks with great probability that the Peter of the reverse is St. Peter, bishop of Alexandria, also a martyr, who dicd in the persecutions of Diocletian. His cemetery near Alexandria is mentioned by the monk Epiphanius, a writer of the 11th century in of the 11th century, in close connexicn with the sepulchre of St. Menas (pp. 5, 6, ed. Dressel. Lips. 1843). It is just possible, however, that Peter may ta the potter'e name. ${ }^{\text {b }}$

[^117]The camels, which are the invariable concomitants of Menas, were suggested by M. de Rossi to be reminiscences of the desert of Libya, of which Menes was governor during his life, and regarded as the protector after his death. But the Acta of St. Menas eay thnt he, before undergoing martyrdom, ordered that his body should be placed after his death on camels, and that the beasts should be left free, and "that they would see the glory of God manifest," i.e. by their bearing it to the spot where God willed that his sanctuary should be erected (Garrucci, u. s.).

There are in the British M"seum a few other fasks bearing different types and of different forms, which were probably used for the same purpose.
(1) Ampulla without handles. On one side three arc.es with coronae hanging from them: cross and two branches above them; below (retrograde) $K \bar{r} \in \Lambda \in H$ CON; below the inbeription a rude bird. On the other side the same types with a contiuuation of the inscription (also retrograde) TH CIONKET (i.e. Kúple, żeท̂aov $\tau\rangle$ Eiovkdr, a woman's name). Height between 3 and 4 inchea. From Egypt.
The following small ampullse have two amall perforated handles:
(2) Greek cross on both sides impressed with concentric circles; similar markings in the two upper compartinents on both sides of the body ; circles round the neck.
(3) Greek cross on both sides; rays between the limbs; extrenities of limbs forked. Recently brought from Egypt by the Rev. G. J. Chester.
(4) Figure (of a saint) at full length, holding long croas in left haod, and grasping snake by the head with the other; the same types on both sides. This and the preceding are narrower in form than no. (2).
Other kinds of fictile vessels, bearing marks of Christianity, occur but rarely. There is an amphora, found in the cemetery of St. Cyriaca, now in the Lateran Museum, which is stamped is intaglio upon the neck with SPEST1 (De Rossi, Bull. Arch. Crist. 1872, p. 12).c

A few Chriatian stamps on brick and tile are now to be meutioned. A fragment of brick found in Rome has XMF KACCIOY stamped apon it in a circular form, and in the centre the usual chriama ( $\mathbb{R}^{( }$) rudely drawn within a Menas (?) with curly halr. The other varistions need Manas ( ) with curly hair. The other varistions need hardly be mentioned here. In the sarue paper (pp. 322, 823) are remarks relating to these flasks by Padre Garrucci la a letter to Mr. Nesbltt. One is figured In the Revue Archeologique, vol. L. (1844), p. 405, and othere in a recent volume of the same work, not seen by the writer. The Museum has acquired other flasks of St. Benas slace $1876 ;$ among them is a large example (from Egypt) which may possibly be intended for some other salnt. It shewa a naked Bigure with nimbus between two bulls and two other anlmals, perhape meant for bears.

- A plece of a hande of a wine amphers foond st Binchester, now preserved in the ainucum at Neweastic. has the potter's name VRFI enclosed in an oblong label, a Greek crose (approaching the Maltese) beling Inserted between R and F. Dr. Bruce (Rowan Wall, p. 411, 3rd ed.) Is unwilling to recognise it as a Christian aymbol, probably rightly.
circle. Cassius is doubtluss the master of the brick-kiln. X.M.Г, as De Rossi gives reasons for thinking, may stand for Xpiotbs, MixailA, raßpı门ì (bull. 1870, \%p. 7-31, tav. iii. घ. 2), A fragment of tile, found at Piacenza, has the same chrisina, also very rude, accompanied by some scarcely legible marks, whleh may perhepis form the word NikA (De Roasi, n. s. p. 32, tav. ii. n. 2). A brick found in the Roman catacombs in 1849 has a atamp bearing two concentric clrcles. Within the outer circle is the word CLAVDIANA (the rame of the owner of the manufactory) ; acco panied by an ivyleaf: within the inner circle is the chrisms of the ordinary forrm (Perret, Catacombes, t. iv. pl. xx. n. 13, and t. vi. p. 119). But it is in Spain perhaps more especially that tilea and bricks stamped with Christian inscriptions have been found; they have been collected by Hübner ( Inscr, Hisp. Christ. pp. 65, 66). Some are not stogether inteligible; the more remarkable of the others are as follows: (1) Bracara vi! vas cum tvis (in two lines); between them A $\boldsymbol{R}^{2}$ (Hübner, n. 193, who mentions that many examples of this tile have been found in various parts of Hispanin Baetica). (2) Chrisms with loop to left; followed by chioni vivas (retrograde) (n, 196). (3) Aipha and Omega $(\Omega)$, chrisma between them in one line in a lise below Felix Asella. Thia form of the Omega, if correctly given, is perhaps unique in this connexion (n. 197). Others have spes in deo and the chrisma (n. 203, 6). Tiles of the same genersl character, some of early date, some of Ostrogothic times have been met wath ia ltaly (De Kossi, Bull. Arch. Crist. 1872, p. 12). Fragmenty of tiles found in Strasbr'urg in s tomb were atamped with a label inclosing the inscription arhoastis bips ficet (fecit). Ile died about 679 A.D., and was evidently in possession of thr manufacture of these tiles (Le Blant, Inser. chrét. de la Gauls, n. 350, pl. 39, n. 233).

On a vase, probably a cup, of red clay, found between Saint-Léger-sur-Dheune and Chagny are scratched thren Latin crosses, two of herv with a rude heart-shaped figure at the bast, and the third surrounded by a like tigure; on the upper rini is inscribed in retrograde and inverted letters the potter's name PisTricives, which ocenrs oo other examples of Gaulish pottery; alse, both near it and near the crosses, the letters $z r y$ (in yarious combinatiens), which have not been erplained. Supposed to belong "aux premiers temps du chriatianisme." Shape nearly cylindrical, slightly Increasing sbove; no handles. Height said to be 0.138 ; breadth, 0.009 [ 0.039 ?]. (Le Blant, u. 2. n. 6, pl. 1, n. 2.) Remains of tile and also of pottery have been found in Christian tombs in Gaul,d belonging in some cases to vases too large to have been placed there whe shole,

- Perret (Catacombea de Rome, vol. Iv. pl. ili. and pl. vi.) Gigures many pleces of pottery, which (as be justif remarks) would be of little interest, were they not fuund In the catacombe (the exact localities are not given): among them are jugs (two forms), upen cups withoon handles (elther plain or with protuberances), and abers with loops for suspension! also long pointed ampboric, others with swelling bodles and flat bottoms. Deecribed in vol. vi. pp. 109, 110 . As they sre the ordloary Romas pottery of the period no more need be maid shout thene See also Guenebault, Dict. Icomogr. s. v. "Vasea," on which are acr persons buried, cress or chrisina, Le Blant, u. s. p M. Le Blant supl (n. 155) has viva scratched on a p classic times (Sain similar fragments tions drawn wit weight ( n .160 ) ha engraved on its sic

POV

It may be added pottery a few ur written in ink, Gaspels and from were periapa used bably of the 7 th or Nos. 9060-9063).
POVERTY, V at a correct and $p$, subject, it must Imposition of pove, (it might be asid)
As an exanple, of be eneugh to cite $t$ Theban, casting ai went to live the lif In the ancient re anderstood that vol to remeve all vagi subject, one or til veniently presented In the code of supreme obligation, down for the man religien :-"From receive aims to乡сии, ch. vi. 27, © period we meet wi mere precise form where one of the fi called Jowg Sumper holding any worldly them as the cause of (lastitutes of Akber, by F. Gladwio. Caler Aod finally, in our Hindu who professes M Mill:-" Repairi leariag all property behinif him, he is the iond, on certain herbs may cellect in the fo lope's hide, or a ves beirs of his hend, his continually " (Histury 6). It will be obser which might be exac many a Christian herı In the history of porerty is one factor c constituted professior obedience, poverty, n castitas). The vow is two clasaes: (1) tim wiemn vow ia that nas [^118]master of the gives reasons $\sigma \tau \partial s, M 1 \chi a \eta \lambda$, tatv. iii. $\mathrm{n}, 2$ ), cenza, has the ecompanied by I2 moy perhaps i, u. s. p. 32, in the Rumsn aring two conor circle is the of the owner ed by an isg$s$ the chrisms tacomhes, $t$. ir.

But it is in that tiles and seriptions have locted by Hub36). Some are ore remarkable Bracari vi between them mentions that been found in
(2) Chrisms Cliloni vivas ha snif Uniega ne line in a line of the Omega, unique in this ve sies in de0 les of the same y date, some of with in ltaly 1872 , p. 12) br 1 rg in a tomb sing the inscripo - ile died sbout ossession of the e Blant, Inecr. n. 233). red clay, found and Chagny are vo of the "1 with he base, and the e; on the upper inverted letters which occurs on fery ; also, both letters ZYY (im tre not been ey. $x$ premiers temp arly cylindrical, laudles. Height 9 [0.039?]. (Le Remains of tile nond in Christian are cases to vasea lere whi ahole,
i. iv. pl. ifi. and pl. which (as he justly vere they not fusund les ara not given) open cups withoost grances), and obbers ; pointed amphortu, pottoma. Deacribed the ordinary Roman be auid uhout the , v. "Vases."
on whlcin are ocratclied the proper names of the persons buried, accompanied solnetimes by the cross or chrisima, or the symbols occur slone. (Sce Le Blont, u. s. pl. 17, 18, 19, 20.) One which M. Le Blant supposes to be of the 4th century (n. 155) has vivas in deo, followed by a palm serstched on a piece of glazed red pottery of classic times (Saminn ware); and the Louvre has similar fragments with Greek Chriatian inscriptions drawn with the point. A terracotts weight ( n .160 ) has visve, with palm and chrisms ongraved on its sides.
It may be added that on fragments of Egyptian pottery a few Greek Christian inseriptions are written in ink, containing verses from tle Gospels and from the Bymn trisagion, which were perhaps used as charms. They are probably of the 7 th or 8 th eentury. (löckh, C. Pro- $G$. Nos. 9060-9063).
[C. B.]
POVERTY, VOWS OF. In order to arrive st a correct and philosophical view of this wide ubject, it muat be remembered that the selfimposition of poverty is not exclusively, is not (it might be aaid) even principally Christian
As an example of it in Greek paganism it will be enough to cite the case of Crates, the wealthy Theban, caating awny a masa of gold when he went to live the life of philosophy at Athens.
In the ancient religion of Indis it is genersally understood that volintary poverty occurs; buit to remore all vagneness and doubl apon the subject, one or two anthorities may be conveniently presented here.

In the code of Menn, then, which is of sopreme obligntion, we find this direction laid down for the man who would make progress in religion:-"From devout Brahmins let him receive aims to support life" (Institutes of Y"uи, ch. vi. 27, Conlcutta, 1794). At a Inter period we meet with the sume idens in a atill more precise form in the Inatitutes of Akbar, where one of the five subdivisions of the state called Jowg Sumpergeyat is Appergerreh, "not halding any worldly possessions, but considering them as the cause of every kind of unhappiness." (lostitutes of Akber, translnted from the Peraian by F. Gladwin. Calcutta, 1786, vol. iii. p. 140.) Add finally, in our own century, the devout of Mill:-"Repairiog to a forest . . and learing all property and all worldly duties behind him, he is there directed to live on pure iood, on certain herbs, roots, and fruit, which he may collect in the forest, to wear a black antelope's hide, or a vesture of bark, to suffer the hsirs of his heni, his beard, and his nails to grow contiauslly " (History of British India, bk. 2, ch. 6), It will be observed that these are phrases which might be exactly applied to the life of many a Christian hermit.
Hindu who profesaes pennnce is thus described Hindu who profesaes pennnce is thus described
In the history of inonasticism the vow of porerty is one factor of the fhmous triplet which constituted profession (religionis professio)obedience, poverty, and chaatity, (continentia, catitiss). The vow is divided by canonists into two classes: (l) simplex, (2) solenne. The nicma row is that made with certain spproved

[^119]POVERTY, VOWS OF
formalitles in a religious body; when these formalitios are absent the vow is termed simple. It was probably under a vow of this latter kind (if under any at all) that the early ascetae practised poverty. It is mostly under a vow of the solemn kind that the religious Orders have in subsequent times undertaken that life. (See Aquinas, Summa. Secundu Sccundue, q. 88, and Cnjetan's Comment.) Aquinns argues that even if a monk becomes a bishop he is not absolved from his vow of poverty. He ought to have nothing of his own, but onght to be, as it were, the diapenser of common property (ib. q. 88 xi.)

We can, however, trace the fact of a self-inflisted poverty, long before we have any satis. fartory evidence of $n$ bow to undergo it. There lo no occaaion to seek the prototype of such a life in that disdain of material things which is in one degree or another $n$ characteristic of most forms of religious thought, sod which, as we have seen shove, fuund expression in the Brahmanism of sncient India, and the polytheism of ancient Greece, as well as in modern Christianity. The ultimate motire of the syatem is to be found, no doubt, in the infirmities of man himself; but when we are considering it as a fenture in the asceticiam which is specifically Chriatian, it is enough to notice that the germ of it was ready from the first, both in the life our lord Himself and in certain texts of the New Testament. Juat as there were words in Scripture which asemed to demand, and in some cases actunlly produced, the sacrifice of self-mutilation, su there were words which seemed to imply that possession was, if not a sin, at least a hindrance to Christian life. It was ineritable that "Go snd scll all that thou hast " should be taken in the full zeverity of the letter.

Whatever be the solution of the rexed question as to the origin and name of the early Ebionites, it seems certain that they made a proo fession of poverty, esteeming the world, and all its allurements, as the property of Satan (see Mr. Soames' learned ncte on Mosheini, Hist. bk. j. cent. 2, part ii. ch. v. e. 2)
In the middle of the first century of the Christian ers we learn from Philo (quoted by Eusebius, Hist. Eccl. ii. 17) that the Therapentae divested themselves of their property before withdrawing into the wilderness. The Greek hiatorian suggests that this was probably intended as an imitation of the practice of the first Chriatians in the Acta, who sold their lands and laid the price at the Apostles' feet. The apirit of voluntary poverty in early days is well illustrated in the life of St. Spyridion, biahop of Irimython in Cyprus, in the 4th century, who was so far a derotee of poverty that he lent his money without interest (Sozom. Eccl. Hist. 1. xi.). But the life of poverty, says the Greek historian just now quoted, was carried to "the nummit of exactness and perfection" by Antony, the great monk ( $\delta \mu$ fyar $\mu n v a x \delta^{\prime}$ ). Many other instances of the same form of asceticism in the 4th century are recorded in the first book of Sozomen's Ecc:lesiastical History.
In the following century we reach the time of St. Benedict of Nursia, the founder of the celebrated monastic rule that besrs his name. The formal vow of poverty was one of the three vowa that were exacted of all postulants for the order, the other two vows being thosa of chastity and obedience.

It is important to notice that we can find no trace of the formal vow of poverty earlier a than the Benelictine rule. It appears from the Novelline of Justinian that in hin times the profession of religious life was not accompanied by any particular solemnity. Even in the monasterjes of earlier days, such as St. Antony's for example, there was no formula of profession. It is obvious, however, that poverty is an essential feature of the monastic life. And this perinsps may be some explanation of a fact whleh might otherwise ocension some surprise-that in the formuln of profession St. Benedict makes no express mention of the poverty. The novice is indeed asked three questions, which no doubt, are meant severally to correspond with the poverty, the chastity, and the obedience; but the stern demand of absolute poverty is at least very mildly phrased; it is in fact simply the question that is put throughout Christendom to every candidate for baptism, "Vultis abrentuntiare sseculo huic, et pompis ejus ?" (Martene de Monach. Rit. v. 4, vol. iv. p. 223, fol. 1764). The rule, however (cap. 33), describes the condition with great minuteness of detail-no property, not even book, nor pnper, nor pen, nothing at all, was the professed to have.

Precautions were always taken against inconsiderate entrance into the monastic life. And it was the concern of princes as well as of pastora to secure the existence of proper safeguarda agninst hasty renunciation of all title to posseasion. We are not therefore surprised to find that simultaneoualy with the very rise of formal profession the emperor Justinian regulates admission by a deeree (Nov. 5). Laymen were to make a novitiate of three years. [Novicr.]

We find St. Gregory distinctly enjoining poverty on Augustine of Canterbury: "But because you, my brother, having been instructed in the rules of the monastery, ought not to live apart from your clergy in the ehurch of the English, which by the aid of God was but lately brought to the faith, you ought to institute that conversation which was our tathers' in the beginning of the early clutrch; among whom none of them said that anything was his own of those things which they posaessed, but all things were common to them " (Bede's Eccl. Kist. i. 27 ; Gidley's transl. p. 65).

Amongst the examples of the life of poverty We may cite some tinmous names. St. Anthony, whose life was written by St. Athanasius, haa perhaps the right to stand first. St. Olympia had the distinction of being under the guidance of St. Chrysostom (see Sozomen, Hist. Eccl. viii. 9). There are the pupils and friends of St. JeromeFabiola, Paula, Eustochium, and others. A little later we have John the patriarch of Alexandria (A.d. 6i6), surnamed Eleemosynarius. Other examples collected by Zoeckler (Kritische Geschichto der Askese, 1863) are more or less grotesque: Bisarion the abbot, who covered a corpse with his cloak, gave his coat to a beggar and went atark nsked himself; Eleenon, who sold every one of

- The so-called rule of Caesarius of Arles, who is silghtly eariler than St. Benediet, is ascribed by Cave to Tetradius, whom he makes exactiy contenipurary with 8t. Benedict (Hist. Lit. 1. p. 513).
his books, and himself performed the office of a inidwife to a poor woman in the vistihule of a church; Maenrius, who wss so indillerent to worldly jossessions that he helped the thief in complete the plunder of lis divelling; Pambo, who at once distributed naongst the poor the three hundred pounds of silver with which a laly presented him; and Agatho, who so areaded possession that he would not even receive the solitary piece of gold that was offered him ior distribution to the poor.
[H. T, A.]
PRAEBENDA. A word probably derived from the daily rations issued to soldiers (Thomassin, Vel. et Jov. Eccl. Discip, iii, 2 c. $1, \S 1$ ), and signifylng the portions of iood, raiment, or money, nllowed to a monk or cleric. Gregory the Great, writing to Poschasjus, bishop of Naples (Ep. ix. 9), speaks of a hundred solidl which were to be paid to the clergy. These nllowances were dlstinct from the benefice [Property of tie Cilurcif]. A Capitulary of Charles the Great (Addit. iii. c. 112 ) providea that canons who have benefices shoull not clsim a share in the allowances allotted to their poorer brethren, "stipendis fratrum unde panperiores vitam sustinent nequaquam assumant." Those who offended against this statute were to be deprived of both prebend and benefice, "utrisque caresnt et beneficio et praebenda," and to forfeit any ecclesiastical preferment they might happen to hold. The same monarch (Sirmondi, Conc. Gall. ili. p. 637) complains that certnin of the clergy neglected their parishes in order to hold a prebend in the monastery of Monte Falco. The development of the prebendal system belongs to a period beyond our present limits.
[P. O.]

PRAECENTOR. [PRecentor.]

PRAECO. As it was the duty of the descon at certain points of the liturgy to proclaim to the people the subjects to be prayed for, and generally to direct them by his vorce in the performsnce of their acts of worship, he sometimes received the name of $\kappa \not \subset \rho \cup \xi$, or praeco, the herald or proclnimer [DtiAcon, p. 529 f.] Synesius (Epist. 67, p. 209, Migue) calls the deacons ieportpukir; and the word knpúrteiv is used of the deacon's pro-
 (Constt. Apost. viili. 5). [l'rosphonesis.] (Bing. ham's Antiq. II. xx. 10.)
[P. 0.]

PRAEFATIO. [Preface.]

PRAEFICAE. [Mourning.]

PRAEJECTUS, bishop and martyr at Auvergne with Amarinus; commemornted Jan. 25 (Usuard. Mart. ; Bed. Mart., Pnosectes; Boll. Acta SS, Jan. ii, B28).
[C. H.]
PRAEPEDIGNA, martyr with her husband Claudius and Maximus at Ostin under Diocletisn; commenzorated Feb. 18 (Usuard. Mart.; Yet. Kom. Mart. at Rome ; Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
PRAEPOSITUS (Eng. Prorost, Fr. Pritót, Germ. Probst). The word yratpositus is applied (1) like the kladred Greek words, пpoeotes, bishops and to presbyters [Bisıor, 1. 209]; (2) to the person who presides over a body of canons [Canonici]; (3) to the second in come mand nader the al daustralis, and to house or prlory [I to that member of of the administrat (5) to the bulliff estate, and (6) to (Ducange's Glossal

PRAESANCTI

PRAESIDIUS.
PRAETEXTA? at Rome nader Max 11 (Usuard. Mart. Rom.).
PRAGMATIUS, moratel Nov. 22 Lart. ; Mart. Rom.).
PRAXEDIS, vir July 21 (Bed. Mfart. Mart. ; Hieron. JIart crixviii. 1190 ; Mart v. 130). One of the was dedicated to her 2); her figure ador represented with a la PRAYER. It is importsace of prayer growth is everywher teachers, especislly in Prayer by Tertullian the Lord's Prayer by ticular (De Orat. Don should eadesvour not either in our postures that God will heve u as well as in the ss Origen, too (De Orat outward accompanime different, fer the gestu as the voice. And agg 44 ; De Orat. c. 20) Christian is his prayer the svenues of sense, ar earthly things. He pr earthly things. He pr heart sad not the lung (Tertullian de Orat. Praver as an ascetic exe Priykr. On forms of Books.

Christisn teachers, fro insist constsatly on th prayer. When ye ase power of Sstan ja brol 13). If the prayer of power, auch more has the whele church ( 10 . peace and unity did not $p$. but commen, prayer. I Fither," bat ourr Fath bread, but our dally by Dom, 8). When the fe prarer was so strong, it attendance on divine se "Before sll things," so Clemeatine Honilies (Hon yourvelves together mor it were heurly, at any ry CuBist. ANT.-VOL. it

PRAYER
1683
mand under the abbat in a monastery, the prior daustralis, and to the head of a subordiunte house or prlory [PRIOR]. It is also applied (4) house or priory [PRiOR]. It is also applied (4) to that member of a ehapter who takes charge of the administration of the capltular estates, (5) to the bailiff or teward who manges an estate, and ( 6 ) to the Advocatus ECclifisiak. (Ducange's Glossary, 8. v.) Compare Princets.

PRAESANCTIFIED. [PRisanctified.] [C.]

PRAESIDIUS. [Presidius.]

PRAETEXTATUS, martyr with Poutianue at Rome under Maximinus ; commemorated Dec. 11 (Usuard. Mart. ; Vet. Rom. Mart. ; Mart. Domi.).
[C. H.]
PRAGMATIUS, biehop of Autun ; commemaratel Nov. 22 (Usuard. Mart.; Hieron. Kart. ; Mart. Nom.). [C. H.] PRAXEDIS, virgin; commemorated at Rome July 21 (Bed. Mfart. ; Usuard. Mart. ; Vet. Rom. Mart.; Hieron. Mart. ; Nul. Antiquiss. Patr. Lat. cxuviii. 1190 ; Murt. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. r. 130). One of the earliest churches of Rome 2); her figure adorned (Ciamp. Vet.-Mon. Ji. 143, 2); her figure adorned church doors and was represented with a lampas ardens. (Ib. i. 27. 2.)
[C. H.]
PRAYER. It is unnecessary to say that the Importance of prayer as a means of spirltual growth is everywhere insisted on by Chrstian teachers, especially in the well-known tracts on teachers, eapecially in the well-known tracts on Praver by Tertullian and Origen, and in that on Prayer by Tertullian and Origen, and in that on the Lord ${ }^{\text {Pr }}$ Prayer by Cyprian. Cyprian in parthe Lord's Prayyer boyprian. ©yprian in par-- ticular (De Orat. Dom. c. 4) warns us that we thould eadeavour not to offend the eye of God tither in our post tures or the tones of our voice; that God will have us worship Hind in secret, ${ }^{25}$ well as in the assembly of the bretbren. Origen, too (De Orat. c. 31), insists that the cutward sccompaniments of prayer are not indifferent, ior the gestures are expressive as well ${ }^{3}$ sthe roice. And again (c. Celsum, vii. 39 and ${ }^{4}$; De Orat. c. 20), he describes how the Chinstina in his prayer closes, so far as may be, the ovenues of sense, and abstracts himself from earthly thiags. He prays in a low voice, for the heart and not the luags is powerful with God (Tetullilin de Orat. c 13) (Tetullin do Orat. c. 13). See further on Prayer sa an ascetic exercise, Rosarf, Hours or Booss.
Christisa tenchers, from the apostles onward, insist constantly on the necessity of common praye. When ye assemble frequently, the power of Satan is broken (Ignat. ad Ephes. e. i3). If the prayer of 13.) If the prayer of one or $t$ two has so much power, nuch more hay that of the bishop and power, much more hay that of the bithop and the whole church (lb. c. 5). The Teop and peace sad unity did not prescribe mere individual, but common, prayer. I am not to pray to " $m y$, Psther," bat our Fathet; not for my daily bread, but our daily bread (Cyprian do Orat. Dom. 8). When the feeling of community in parier was so strong, it follows that frequent ditendance on lltendace on divine service was inisisted on.
"Sefore asll thinge," says the writer of the Clementine Homilies (Hom. iji. o. 69), "assemble Foorrelven together more constantly. I would it rere hoarly, at any rate on the accustomed CBiast. ANT.-voL in dnys of nasembling; for while ye do this ye are within the wills of invislability (agundas)." It wis from the conception of prayer ne a duty that public prayer liself came to be called officium (Tert. do Orat. c. 14). Eapecindly was attendance required ${ }^{\text {attendance required }}$ (Apoost the Sulday services church, morning and eventan dinly atiendance at clergy, morning and eveniag, was eajolued on Gines, Hom 10 nity (10. ii. 59). Origen (in to the house of the reproves those who came ns if all days were not holy to the ford The Arabic canons which bear the name of Hipdiplytus (c. 21, p. 79, quoted by Probst, Kirchl. Discoppin, p. 362) desire the pricste, sub-dencuns, and renders, and the whole people to assemble together in the church nt cock-crow, nad give themselves to prayer, the saying of psnling, and the reading of Sisripturs. Even for the sick the true medicine is to attend at church and enjoy the prayere, except indeed those who are dangerously ill. The Greek $\Delta$ iard $\xi$ eis $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ anooct $\dot{\lambda} \omega \omega \nu$ (c. 22, in Hippolyti $O_{p e r a, ~ e d . ~ L a g a r d e, ~ p . ~}^{2} 3=$ Apot. Constt. viii. 34) desire prayer to be made ${ }^{\text {nt dawn, at the third, sixth, and ninth hour, at }}$ eveniag, and at cock-crow. And if it be implopsible by reason of unbelievers to approach the church church, the bishop is desired to hold meetings for worship (ruvdkets) in his owa house; for it is not tie place that sunctifies the man, but the man the place. But if even thie be impossible, every man ia enjoined to say pealms, read Scripture, and pray by himself; or by two or thriptogether. The injunction is added, thnt one of the faithful is not to pray with a catechumen even in private. When such provision was made even for a time of persecution, it is easy to sec how strong was felt to be the obligation to prayer, and eapecially to publio prayer. And the acts of martyrs frequently shew the snme thing. The martyrs Santurninus and Felix, tor instunce, avowed in the midst of torturee that they had held aesemblies for worship (collectas), and gloried in their sbedience to the ${ }_{386-7 \text { ). }}^{1 \text { law of (c. } 10 \text { and 12, in Ruinart, pp. }}$
And as attendance at Catholic worship was earnestly enjoined, so was rttendance on nonCatholic worship earneetly forbidden. One who joined in the worship of Jews or heretics was excommunicated (Can. Apri. 64). If any one despises despises the church of God, and turne aside to the abominations of the of abominations of the henthen, or to a meeting of Jews or heretics, how shall he give account to 61, § 2 ).
For the general arrangement of the place of worship see Church, p. 378. To this may be added that the apace nearest to the presbytery was occupied by the virgins, widows, and presbyteressea (xpeaßítioes) of the church, standing or sitting (Apost. Constt. 3i. 57, §8; cf. Tertallian do Exhort. Cast. c. 11). With these were probably the ascetics. The sexes were separated [SExexes, Separation of] probably from abont the 3rd century (Ap, Consti. ii. 57, that the younger part of the inform us if the seats were part of the congregation, if the seats were not sufficient for all, had to stand; children stoe wom; Chilaren stood beside their parents; women not yet purified after childbirth took their place their place among the catecinumens.

Men and women were desired to go to church in seemly drese, with simple and uoaffected mien, pure in body and in heart, fit to pray to God (Clem. Alex. Paedag. iii. 1t, p. 300, Potter). The wamen covered their heads in ohurch, ace oording to the apostollic precept ( 1 Cor. xi. 5) ; the men bared their heads, as hoodsmen of Clorist, while in Judaism and heathendom allike men prayed with covered head, as a sign of treetom. [Head, Covering of.] Devotional quiet was maintained during the service; the deacon was to prevent whispering, or sleoping, or laughing, or beckoniog (Apost. Constt. ii. 57, &8). And thia direction was not, it eppears, superfluous ; for Origen (1n Exod', hom. 12, § 2) complains that there were some whe, while scripture was read, withdiew into cornera and amnaed themealves with worldly conversation, oven turning their hacks upon the reador. Straogers who broaght comnenilatory letters from another diocese were conducted by the deacon to their proper place ; a foreign presbyter sat among the presbyters, a foreign descon ainong the deacons; a bishop was received with honour by the bishop of the place (Ap. Constt. ii. 58).

The hours of prayer, afterward dbserved only by the elergy, were originally intended to be observed su tar as practicable by the laity also. There is nuthing in the passage above quoted from the Apostolical Constitutions (viii, 34) to limit the observance of the hours to the elergy; and even at a later periud efforts were made to induce the laity to attend st the hours of prayer, as well as at the Eucharistic eervice, at least on feativals. Thus a capitulare of the year 801 (quoted by Van Espen de Horis Can. pt. i. c. iii. § 2) says: " lt was ordered not merely that cleries should perform the offices at meet times, but also that they should ring bella to rouse the people to pray." And Theodulph of Orleans (Capit. ad Presb. 23, 24) begs those who can do no more we least to pray twice a dsy, moraing and evening, in the chureh, if a church is near, if not, wherever they may chance to be when the time comer. On the sabbath (Ssturday) he enjoins all Christians to come to church with lights [for the service of the eve], to come to the vigils or matin olfice, and again with their oblations to the mass [on Sunday]. See Hours of Prayer; Liturgical BOOKS ; Lituhgy ; Offioe, the Divine.
[C.]
Postures of Prayer.-It was the custom in the earliest times of Christianity to pray standing, with the hands extended and slightly raised towarda heaven, and with the face turued towards the east. Exceptions may no doubt be cited even from the New Testament, but that this was the most cominon attitude js evident from the testimony of primitive monuments. Erescoes, sarcophagi, sepulchral monuments, anoient glass, mossics in the earliest basilicas, above all the Roman catscombs, sxhibit the faithful, more especially women, praying in this attitude [Oranti]. Many of these fomale figures are richly dressed, and, as though wearied with the length of their prayers, have their arms supported ot either side by men, whe to judge from their dress were eervants; a probable sllusion to the support which Moses received from Aaron and Hur, and a possible hint not of their weariness, but of their lengthened devotions. The presence of serving men may, like the rich dress, also indi'ste the pusition in life of the deceased, though the rich dress may aiso have had a religlous signiticance [Paradige], 'Tertullian (Apoloyet. $\times x \times$.) esplicitly declares this to have been the Christian attitade of prayer-"Illue suapicientes (in coelum) Christiani mauibna expansis quia ipnocuis, eapite nudu quia nonerubescimus"-though this deserip tion does not exclude kneeling nor involve turn. ing to the east, while It addes the bare head to the previous descriptlon.

There la abundant evidence from ancient art and ancient literat ure to shew that the raising the hands toward heaven was an ordinary attitude of prayer among the Egyptians, Etruscans, od Romans; but Tertullian (de Orat. xi.) attaches a different motive to the Chriatian elevation of the hands to my that could have entered into the mind of a pagan. Contrasting the mere elevation with the expansion of the hasils he saya: " pos vero non attollimus tantum sed er. pandimus, c dominica passione modulanten." The same desire to limitate the pisitiod of oor Lord upon the oross is related iu Ruinsrt (Acta Martyr. Sinc. p. 235) of Montanua, and in Usuard (Martyrol, xii. Kal. Fob.) of Fructuosus, Augurius, and Eulogiua. Pagan may readily be distinguished from Christian orante on ancient monumente, the pagan figures raiaing the hands vertically with the elbow forming a right angle, the Christiso extending the arme horizontally, expressing, according to Tertullisn (do Orat. xiii.) more humility and self-control; "ne ipsis quidem manibus sublimiue elatis, sed temperate sc probe elatis." In the early church the catechumens as well as the faithful prayed standing, but wherean the latter raised the eyes to heaven, the former bent them towards the earth, to inlicate that they had not yet acquired by baptism the right of sons to raise thsir eyes to the Father in heaven.

For the prevalence of the sttitude of kneeling in the early church, see Grinuflexion. (Mattigny, Dict. des Antiq. chret. s. v. Priëre, Attitudes de.)
[E. C. H.]

PP IYER, THE LORD'S.  [LORD's

 Prayer.]PREACHING. кири $\gamma \mu a$, pracdicatio; 80 סaбка入la, doctrina, instructio, institutio. Sermons were known as $\delta \mu$ inla, tractatus, homilies; $\lambda$ byou sormiones, sermons. Preachers were סisdoxadou tractatores, doctors, or expositors. [HomiLy and Homiliarium.]
I. In the first place we find our Lord spplring to Himself the prophecy of Is. lxi. 1, "He hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poot" (Luke iv. 18) ; and giving an express commission to preach to the Twelve (St. Luke ix. 2), and it would seem to the Seventy (St. Luke x. 9). To the former it was repeated with great oolemnity immediately before the Ascension (St. Mark sri. 15) ; sud we find St. Paul (1 Cor. i. 17) elsime ing with considerable emphssis this fuaction

 ing to him. Very naturally, therefore, and for an obvious reason, the preaching of tho Apostlee is deacribed by the term, evaryeni!ccour; and evary(Aton (in the singular) means not onf the record of the life and teaching of Christ, bat slao the communication by preaching of the knowleige of the 18, iv. 18 ; Acts $v$. is generaliy confin Lord sud His apos of thear ; but ther at least in Acts period of the aprea
II. At a somewh church, when cong ratious places, we Paul that those to gifts had been com preaching and exper of Chriatians. See over, it is to be not is not employed). there for these " pr aver, appoear under tiuns this custom permitted; and aa menta died out in o sze, this " ministr placed by one devo taries, the clergy. Epistles (in the w this definitely, but sny kiad of author eresceret plebs et inter initia concessu zare, et Scripturas auten omina loca ei venticula eonstituta otficin in ecciesiis s ciero anderet, qui or otficium, quod sciret sessum" " (Com. in E III. Women, how is the church to assu presehers; neither eara from 1 Cor. xiv. afterwards was this The fourth council of declires this: "Muli viros in conventu doc ame effect the $A_{p}$ pos cap. 9). The allowit however, a mark of 1 Tertullian: "Jpsae m caces, quas sudeant d 41). And the Montan principle of their sect Priscills and Maximil in the teaching of $t$ himself.
1V. Among the Ca was in the earliest the bishop. Justin describes the presidi eshorting the assemb menting on the pi "A bishop must be a refers to this as es bishop (Hom. x. in in suother place tha the power of prea, from the throne of Alesandria spesiks ol
 Epies.). The same sixth general council bishop of Antioch, fo knowlesge of the Incarnation. See St. Luke lii. 18, 1v. 18; Acts v. 42; Gai. 1. 11. This uange io generally confined to the preaching of our Lord and His npostles, and it is generally true of thens; but tiere is apjarently one exception at least in Acta viii. 4, even in the very first period of the spread of the gospel.

Preaching

II. At a aomewhat later stage of the primitive church, when congregations had been formed in rarious places, we learn from the epistles of St. Paul that those to whom extraordinary gpinitual gifts had been committed, were in the habit of preaching andexpounding in the public assemblies of Christians. See 1 Cor, xiv, 31 (where, howover, it is to be noticed that the word ciaryed/ ${ }^{\mathrm{w}} \mathrm{\omega}$ is not employet). Certain rules are Inid down there for these "preachings." It does not, howarer, appear under what further limits or reatrictions this custom of general ministration was permitted; and as these extraordinary endowments died out in or shortly after the apostolic age, this "ministry of gifts" was speedily replaced by one devolving on the natural deponituriee, the clergy. Ililary's comınent on the Epiatles (in the works of St. Ambrose) states thia definitely, but it ia not clear whether ujon any kind of authority, or as a mere theory: Ut cresceret plebs et multiplicaretur, omnlbus Inter initia concessum et evangelizare et baptizare, et Scripturas in ecclesiâ explanare. At ubi autem ombia loca circumplexa est ecclesia, conventicula constitutn sunt, et rectores et caetera officia in ecclesiis sunt ordinnta, ut nullus de clero auderet, qui ordinatus non easet, pracsumere officium, quoll sciret non sibi creditum vel concessum " (Com. in Ephes. iv.).
liil. Woman, however, were naver permitted in the church to assume the character of public preschers; neither in the apostollic age, as we learn from 1 Cor. xiv. 34, 35; 1 Tim . ii. 11, 12 ; nor afterwards was this ever permitted in any case. The fourth council of Carthage (can. 99) expresely declires this: "Mulier quamvis docta et aancta, viros in conrentu docere non praesumat." To the sume effect the Apostolical Cunstitutions (lib. iii. cap. 9). The allowing of women to preach was, hovever, a mark of many heretical accts. Thus Terullian: "] psse mulieres haereticne quam proraces, quse audeant docere " (De Prunscript. cap. 41). And the Montasists even made this a leading principle of their sect, and ita two prophetesses, Priscilla and Maximilla, were quite as prominent in the tesching of their followera as Montanua himself.
IV. Among the Catholics, however, pruaching Was in the earliest age especially the duty of the bishop. Justin Murtyr (Apol. i. e. 67) describes the previding brother ( $\pi$ 保的orás) as eshorting the eshorting the assembly. St. Chrysoetom, commenting on the phrase used by St. menting on the phrase used by St. Paul, "A bishop must be apt to teach" (סisactucov), refers to this as especially required of the bistop (Hom. x. in 1 Tim. iii.), and declares in another place that "he who was without the power of preaching ought to be far from the throne of teaching" ( $\pi \delta \delta \rho \rho \omega$ far Pphyoy Bisarkaniko $)$. Similarly Cyril of Alesgndria Alessudria apeaiks of the episcopal office as allapa dioaakaikishy (Ep. ad Monach. in Conc.
Eptes.). The Epies.). The aame phraae was used by the sinth general council in degrading Macariue, Wishop of Autioch, for heresy. It was understood that a bishop undertook to preach as one of the distinctive duties of his office ; and St. Ambrose complains that he, although unlearned in theology and unprepared, was obliged to undertake it: "Cum jam elfugero non possimus oflicium docendi, quoil mabis refugientibus imposuit snecrdotii necessitudo.... Eko raytue de tribunalibus atque administratlonis infulis ad ancerdotium, ducra ros coepi quod ipse non didici. Itaque factum est, it priua docere ln ciperem, quam discere, Discendum est igitur milhi sinul et docendum, quoniam non varavi ante discere" (De Offic. Minit. I 1). And St. Chrysostom developes the aame idea at length, and with great beauty, in the fourth book of his treatise De Sacerdotio. St. Augustine, when he writes to blume the custom of the auditors standing throughout the surmon, which he says, by fatiguo of the body, takes away the attention of the mind, so that they should rather sit, says, ", Antietites sedentes loquuntur ad populum" (De Mud. Catech. o. 19). The pasange is interesting on another ground, since wa learn from it that in the province of Africa the custom was for the preacher to sit and the people to stand: whilst in some other churches both preachers and people used to sit.

PREACHING
1685
In the African churches it would aeem, from this and other passages, that the duty of prenching was reserved wholly to the bishop; and to this fact we must refer the frequent use of such phrases as me tractante and tractante Episcopo in the Epistles of St. Cyprian (Epp. 52, 56, 83). It was for centuries altogether unknown in these churches that any but bishopss should preach ; and Poesidius, in his Life of St. Augustine, relates that when Valerius, the bishop of the diocese, was induced by Auguatino's remarkable powers to allow him to presch frequently bafora him, he introduced a marked departure from the cuatoms of the province: (Vit. Aug. cap. 5). But the example once given was afterwards followed, and it became more uaual for presbyters to preach by licence from the bishop, "postea bono praecedente exemplo, accepta ab episcopia potestate, presbyteri nonnulli coram episcopis populo tractare coeperunt verbum Dei" (ibivl.). But in the Eastern Churches presbyters were more generally permitted to preach; for the anme author intimates that it was from their example Valeriua derived the idea, and diaregarded accordingly the outcry made againat hlm. St. Jerome was so jealous of the righta of presbytera, that we need not be aurprised to find him stigmatizing the refusing to them the privilege to preach in the presence of bishops as "a very bad cuatom in cartain churches." The ecclesiastical historiana have some scattered notices upon the subject. Socwites (lib. v. c. 22) asserta that at Alexandria presbyters were not permitted to preach; and that this restriction began from the time when (the preabyter) Arius troubled the church by his novel apreculationa respecting the Incarnation; which has aomewhat the air of a theory invented ex post facto to account for the cuatom. But he records in another place (vii. 2) in his notices of Atticna, bishon of Constantinople, that the latter eonstantly preached while yet a presbyter. And almoat the entire career as a prescher of St. John Chrysostom is comprised In the sixteen yeary whleh Intervened between his orillation as dencon and hia elevation to the equacopal throne of Constantinople. To this period, amongst many other of hile works, must be referred the oratious on tho mortyr lahylam. The sermon that he preached before the thishop and a large congregation on the occasion of his ordination as presbyter is still extant; and it needs only to mention the celebrated orations On the Statu's, as falling likewise within the time of his jresbyternte.

Similar instances from other churehen might easily be adduced; and there is nothing to shew that they were in any respect exceptions. The power and the duty of preaching were primarily In the bishop; but he might and usually did authorize prenbyters who were capable of discharging it to do so.

A case is recorded by Paulinus in hia Carmen de l'itâ Felcicis of this Felix being mpointed by Quintus, as the newly-elected bishop of Noln, to preach there: "Eirgo sub hoe cornm Felice antistite vixit Presbytero, et crevit meritis, qui crescere eede noluit [he had refused to be himaelf chosen bishop]. Ipse illum tauquam minor omnia Quintus observabat, et os linguain Felicis habebat. Ille gregen officlo, Felix sermone regebat."
V. The case was somewhat different with regard to deacons. The power of preaching was not, in the earliest times, committed to them; apilied to them, and the dencon is called $\kappa$ hpos (or l'us:CO), it is to be understood of his ealling the congregation to prayer, giving notice of the various atages of the service and such like. It was noted as a thing unusual even among the Arinns that Leontius, the (Arian) blshop of Antioch, permitted Aetite, a deacon, to preach publicly in the church (Philostorg. Hist. lib. iij. c. 17). Yet great numbers of eermons and aimilar discourses are extant from the pen of Ephrem Syrus of Edessa (d. A.D. 399), who was never more than a deacon ; and we must apparently conclude that these were preached, and that we have here another exception to the ordinary rule. The Com. in Ephes, already quoted, asserts poaitively " nune neque diacont in populo praedicant." At a later period in the West, the council of Vaison (A.d. 529) gave permission in a canon to deacons to read "the homilies of the holy fathers," when the priest was prevented by sickness from presching (can. 2). And it is said of Caesarius of Arles in his Lifo that when himself unable to preach through sicknese and age, he appointed not only presbyters but also deacons to do so. But the context shews (cap. 28) that they were merely to read discourses or homilies "Ambrosii, Augustini, seu parvitatis meas vel quorumeunque Doctorum Catholicorum."

It may, however, safely be said that deacone were as a rule confined to reading, and were not suffered to preach; and that this rule was not broken through except in rare and unfreguent Instances.
VI. It would seem that monks or other laymen were nometimes permitted to preach. Eusebius (Hist. lib. vi. c. 19) relates the well-known case of Origen, who, while a layman, was requeated by Aleasander, biahop of Jerusnlem, to preach before him ; anl Alesaniler defended thin, when chailenged, as a well-known practice whea a layman was well gualifiei to prench. In doing so, he quotes the instances, otherwise unknown 'o un, of Finelpis at laranilap, biditen topreach by tha bishop Nenn; of l'anlinusat lconian, and of 'theo dorus at symuadia. This freedom does not ajpest, however, to have existed in the West. We fin! pope Leo, in an epistle to Mnsimun, bishop of Antioch, telling him that monks or other laymen, however learned, shoull not be allowed to unarp the right of teaching or jreaching, but only the priesta of the lord (E'p. 60 or 62). But the very cantion would secin to shew the existence of auch a practice ; and doubtlens monks at sll event ${ }^{2}$, who were empable of preaching and pipounding Scrlptare, would habitually do so in their own communities. With respect to this practice, nevertheless, St. Jerome writes: "Munschus non docentis, sed piangentis, habiet officium" (Ep. 35 ad Ripar.), and in the eplstle to lielio. dorus, "Alia monachorun est eausa, alia clericoruin: clerici pascunt ovel, ege pascor."
VII. It was not at all uncominon in large churches having many elergy, or at tinues when bishops were assembled, to have several sermons preached one after another, in the same assembiy; the bishop, If thrre were one present, or the person of greatest dignity, coming last. We find in the so-calied Apostolical Constitutions tha following rule, which no doubt represents the practice of the period when it was written: "When the gospel is read, let the preshyters one by one, but not all, speak the word of exhoftation to the people, and last of all the bishop, who is the governor or pillot of the shlp" ( $\mathrm{jib}, \mathrm{ii}, \mathrm{c}, \mathrm{si}_{\mathrm{i}}$ ). And it is clear from rarious allusions in the dis. courses of St. John Chryaostom, preached by him at Antioch while still a presbyter, that the bishop was to preach after him, as when he saja: "It is now time for me to keep silence, that eur master may have time to epeak" ( $/ / 6 \mathrm{~m} .2$, do Yerbis Esai. tom. iij). St. Jerome, writing :o Pammachins, mentions an instance when tre bishops, Epiphanius and John, bishop of Jerasalem, had prenched one after the other in the church at Jerusalem (Ep. G1, eap. 4).
There are many decrees of ancient councils enforcing the duty of frequent presching, ard directing when and how often sermons should be preached. The eleventh council at Toledo recemmended to biahops diligently to fit themselves by reading and study for the discharge of this dutr: "ut qui ollicium praedicationis suscepimus, nullis curis a divina lectione privemur. lisidere, bishop of Seville (d. 636 A.D.), in his work on "Ecclesiastical Offi, es," Inye down that te a bishop the knowledge of Seripture is necessary because he has to labour in preaching. The Trullan eynod enjoined upon bishops "to preach in their churches every day, or st least on Sundnys, tesching all the clergy and people with pious and orthodox disconrse, collecting out of the divine Seriptures knowledgs and right judgments. And if controversy shond arise about the Scripture, they ahould interpret it no otherwise than aa the lights and doctors of the churen have expounded it in their writimgs ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ (can. 19). A letter from St. Boniface, archbishop of Mentz. (d. 754 A.D.), not long after explaing sufficiently his idea of the importance of preschlng as a duty of the clergy: "Lullum censtituere faclatls Praedient crum et l'upulorn Presbyteri Magir dectorem, et pop catorem et Pasto the aecond cannu (a.b, 81:i): let and the canons, conalat in preach build up others as as in the practlce Menta in the same fail to preach in days and festiva Rheims repeats $t$ direction, that th the vernacuiar to be understood (ca: Tours in a very sim quire that he sha discourse "in rust Theotisenm" for As in other parts with this, the em from time to thme reclesisstical regul thelr own secular lswa in the Theodo enperors, Gratian, is de munere seu apfi verdo Dei. The sar code of Justinian Sucrilgyii, Leg. 1). ether provisions to this list with the naturally not ove legisintion of Chnr sors. These capit sions very similar A collection of " emeliss diversorum the various Sundaye atill extsnt, whicl Diaconus at the c [Homily, p. 782.] VIII. Aa to the sermens should be Sunday wan the pri it is thought that peintec day. For seems to exclude any he gives of the Chr which is called Sun to the emperor Traj being accustomed "stato die ante lue 97. This would be perhaps then conclu the Eucharist and the sermon were in not thst they were And, in fact, we lear years Ister, that $W$ "stationary days" Ware observed in a ai tion of the Holy $\mathbf{C}$ therefora with sermo Fias a usual part (De Orat. cap. 14). or anniversaries of $t$ of abundant preachir homily on the marty faciatis Praedicntorem et dinctorem Preahyterorum et Pupuloruni, Spere yumd hillo habeant Presbyteri Magistrum, et Monashi regularem ductorem, et populi Christiani fidelem l'raedlcatarem ot Pastorem." Still more empliatie is the necond canon of the nisth council of Arles (A.D. 813): let priesta learn the holy Scriptures and the canons, and let their whule husineas consint in preaching and teaching, and let them build up others as well in the knowledge of faith, as in the practice of grod works." A council of llentz in the same year exhorts "bishops not to Sail to preach in persen or by a dejuty, on Sundayn and festivals" (ean. 25). The srecond at Rheima repents thls order with the additional direction, that the bishop's sermon alall be in the vernacular tongue, in order that he may be underateod (can. 14, 15). And the third of Tourn in a very bimilar canon goes so far as to reo quire that he shall be careful to translate his disceurse "In rusticam Romanam linguam aut Thisceurse "n rusticam Romanam linguam aut Theetiscam" for the sume reason (can. 19). As in other parts of the duty of the clergy, se with this, the emperors thonght it their duty from time to thme to supplement and support reclesiastical regulations by the enactments of thelr own secular law. The title of one of the lawa in the Theodosian code issued by the three enplerors, Gratian, Valeutininn, and Theodoslus, is de munere seu officio episcoporum in pracdiond,' reero Dei. The game law was inserted iato the rode of Justioian (lib. ix. tit. 29, de Crimine Sucriespii, Leg. 1). It would be long to quote other proviaions to the snme effect, and we clese this list with the remark that this subject was nstursily not overlooked in the multifarlens legislation of Chnrlemagne, and of his successors. These capitularies centain many provisions very similar to those already quoted. A cellection of "tractatus atque sermenes et omelias diverserum Catholicorum patrum," for the rarieus Sundays of the ecclesiastical year is till extant, which was compiled by Paulua Diacenus at the command of that sovereign. [НоміLу, p. 782.]
VIII. As to the days when it was nsual that sermons should be preached, the Lord's day or Suaday was the principal occasion for this, and it is thnight that it was at first the only appointec day. For Justin Martyr (Apol. c. 87) reems to cxclude any other days by the deacription he gives of the Christian worship "On the day which is called Sunday." The report of Pliny to the enperor Trajan spenks of the Chriatians being accustomed to meet on a stated day, "stato die ante lucem convenire" (lib. x. ; Ep, 97. This weuld be about A.D. 105). We may perhaps then conclude that the celebration of the Lucharist and with it the preaching of the sermon were Invariably held on Sundays; not that they were never held at other times. And, in fact, we learn from Tertullian not many years later, that Wednesday and Friday, the "ststionary daya" or days of apecial meeting, were ebserved in a similar manner with celebration of the Holy Commumion, and no doubt therefore with sermon, which, as we have seen,
His a osual part of the Eucharistic service His a osual part of the Eucharistic service (De Orat. cap. 14). [Stations.] The natalitia or anniversaries of the mirtyrs were also times or anniversaries of the mirtyrs were also times of abundant preaching. St. Chrysustom, in his of abundant preaching. St. Chryoustom, in his homily on the martyrs (Hom. 65) remarks upon thila, and mentions that the wholo sity went furth to celebrate their memory at their temba.
likewise the great festivals and fauts of the Christian year were naturally the occasion for the delivery of sermons. In lent it was cuso tomary to have sermons every day. The homilies of St. Chryanstom ujwil the hook of Genesis coniprose a lesiten course of this kind; and the homilles "On the Statues" were similinrly preache! upon every day in Lent. J'anphillus says of Origen that ho was accustomen to address the people almost every Jny (Apel. pro Uriy. tom. I.). The Apostolical Cometitutums also have an order directing public prayern and preaching to be held on every Saturday also, excepting that preceding Easter day or on the Lord's thy in. II. o. 59). [SAminti.] It wouh heem $t$ t $&$ It was the practice in the Eyyr inn monastere.s, where there were constant serv: es apery day; fir a sermon to be preached dail, at. this was, naually in the alternoen, "post heran homas", according to St. Jerome

It was it act a general custom to have evenlng prenching as well as moruing upen nccasions of partieular devotion [comphre Vight]. In several of Chrysestom's discourses he plainly alludes to their being preached in the ufternuon: e. g. Hom. 10, ad Pop"l. Anticeh. St. Augustine makes it clear that he preached sometimes In the afternoon as well as in the murning, by expreseions which he uses: e.y. in his second sermon on Psalm lxxxriil., where he says, "Ad religua Palmi, de que in matutine locuti numus, animum inteadite et pium debitum exigite." And Gnudentius, bishop of Brescia (1. A.D. 427), refers in his Tractutus to his having preached twice on the vigil of Easter (Truct. 4). Some of the discourses of st. Hasil on the Hexoemeron, or six days of creation, were likewise preached in the evening (Hom. 2, 7, 9). It is, perhap, needless to multiply instances of a practice widely epread in all the churches, and naturally to be expected.
A remarkable statement is made by Sozemen (Hist. lib. vii. c. 19), that at Rome nother the bishop nor any other were known to preach publicly to the people up to his time (a.D. 44()). This declaration is repeated by Cassiodorus in his Historia Tripurtita, and without hinting that it is incorrect. Valesius, In his note on this passage, observes, in carroberation of Sozomen, that no sermons by any bishop of Rome are extant before those of Leo the Great. His pontificate commenced only in A.D. $4+0-$ i. $e$. in the same year in which Sozomen's History brenks off. There is indeed an oration delivered by pepre Liberius in St. Peter's church on the Frast of the Nativity, upon the occasion of a profession of virginity by Marcellina, sister of St. Ambrose, and othcr ladies. But be argues (1) that this oration was not properly an $\delta \mu i \lambda i a$, or eermon, but an address and exhortation to Marcellina; and (2) that it was an exception to ordinary rule, probably to do honour to a person of high rank. Bingham's suggestion is that the homilies of famous writers might be read in place of a sermon. Perhaps, however, all that Sozomen'z statement need be taken to mean is that it was not the habit to preach constantly, aa in other churches; or that instead of formal sermens there were merely familiar and unstudied addresses for which the title of Sermon was not arrogated; and that the Roman church had produced no great preachers, such as Origen, Athanasius, or Chrysostom, in the East. And when we remember how few of the clergy were in the habit of preaching during the Middle Ages, and in the centuries preceding the Reformation, the statement is credible enongh. Bingham's argument, from the expreasions of Justin Martyr in his Apolugy, doea not seem to be of much weight, since Justin was essentially Greek by birth, long residence, culture, and experience; and it is by no mellns certain that in the passage in question he is describing the services of the Roman church.

Preaching

1X. Scrmons were commonly written, but occasionally preached ex tempore. Origen was a distinguished iostance of the latter practice. Eusebius (Hist. lib. vi. c. 36) relates, however, that it was not until he was sixty years of age that he ventured to preach unwritten sermous in the churches; and these were taken down by raxuypdqob, or shrrthand writers. It is related by Sozomen concerning St. Chrysostom upon his return from banishment, that he was obliged by the jeople to go into the great church, and deliver to them an extemabrov" (Hist. lib. viii. 18). And in many of his sermons still extant, we have allusions to incidents taking place during the delivery of them, sutficient to prove that the prepared sermon had been embroidered by the preacher's ready eloquence with these spontaneous additions. The historiau Socrates (H.E. vii. 2) relates of Atticus, afterwards bishop of Constantinople, that though, whilst he was in the order of presbyters, he used to preach from memory discourses which he had previously prepared, yet afterwards, having acquired confidence by industry and practice, he began a popular preaching. Ruffinus says in his History (lib. ii. cap. 9) of Gregory Nazianzen and St. Basil, that there were noble monuments of their ability extant in the sermons which they spoke ex tempore in the churches; but it is doubtful whether he means anything more than memoriter. This remark cannot, however, apply to that paseage in a letter of Sidonius Apollinaris (died A.D. 482) to Faustus, bishop of Reggio, in which he refers to "praedics ionee tuas, nunc repentinas, nunc cum ratio poposcerit elucubratas," where the distinction between the two classés of sermons is clearly expressed. It is evident that to preach in this unpremeditated manner was a matter of frequent occurrence with St. Augnstine. In one of his sermons on the Psalms (Hom. Ps. Ixsxvi.) he intimates that it had been prescrihed to him by the bishop then present in church. In his book De Doctrina Chistiana he gives such detailed directions for the practice of sacred oratory as to make it abundantly clear that he contemplated a habit of preachlng simiar to that common in modern times, viz. the careful preparation beforehand of a discourse, followed by oral and unaseisted dellvery of it. In his treation $n_{e}$ Catechizandis Rumibus he gives two sermons of different lengths as models for the inexperienced prescher. Yet, however careful had been the preparation, they were wont to capend somewhat on the inspiration of the moment, and in this they considered they were depending upon the help of the Hoiy spirit, promised by our Lord in the Gospel (St. Matt. $x$. 19, 20. There is an exquisite prayer for "a humble wisdom which may build up, and a most gentle and wise eloquence, which knows not how to be puffed up," preserved in the works of St. Ambrose (Orat. apul Ferrar. de Conc. lih, i, cap. 8), which he is ssid to have hahitually used before preaching; but it does not appear whether privately or not. But these quatationa might he increased to any number, for the habit of commencing the sermon with a prayer was a constant one among the later fathers.
Another preface to the sermon which wss commonly used was known as the Pax, "Peace be unto you," to which the congregation would reply, "And with thy spirit." This was called In Greek $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \rho \eta \sigma i s$, the address or salutation: but St. Chrysostom speaks of it as the l'esce, Coloss.).

It was not uncommon to use a short prayer before the sermon, but there does not appear to have been any prescribed form for this. It was a matter of individual choice; snd from the various specimens of such prayers which are now extant, they would seem to be very similar to those which are frequently embodied by modern preachers in the exordium of the sermon. Thus in the commencemeut of one of St. Augustine's homilies upon the P'salms, we find "attendite ad Psalmum; det nobis Domi${ }^{n \prime \prime}$ aperire mysteria quae hic contimentur" (in Psal. xci.). A similar but longer one occurs in Psalm exxxix. "Adjuvet [Doninus] orationibus veatris, ut ea dicam quae oportet me dicere et vos audire (Comp. also De Cater hizandis Rudhus, cap. 4 and Hoin. in Psal. cxlvii.). St. Chry: sostom also says, "First prayers and thea the but is here probably reterring to the genersi prayers, perhaps of the Ante-Communion office, which, at all events, usually and preferably preceded the sermon (Cinstit. lib, viii. cap. 5).
X. The text was always tsken out of some part of the Scriptures; but it appesrs from some homilies of St. Chryzostom that preachere would sometimes di-pense altogether with a text. The subjects, however, were always of a serious end religious nature. St. Gregory Nazianzen, in his first Orat. Apol. de Fuyâ, gives a list of these, which includes the chief doctrines of the Christian faith; and St. Chrysostom gives a not disaimilar one (Hom. 24, de Bapt. Christ. tom. i.).
XI. From the facts here presented it will be tolerably evident what was the method of preaching generally adopted in the earliest ages of the church. There was little seope for the rhetorical arts of the orator in the earliest Christian assemblies; and probably Thomassin is very right when he concludes : "et Apostolos, et Episcopes, et Presbyteros qui prioribus his saeculis conciona bantur, sermones effudisse extemporancos, inornatos, ex abundantiâ cordia, et plenitudine Intima charitatis" (Vet. et Nora Descrip. Eecles. part ii. book iii, c. 83). At a later period, when a great brorden of doctrinal teaching and polemical discussion was thrown upon a far more cultured and leisurely class of clergy, the typicel discourses of the age became much nore elaborate and literary ln thelr character, even while, no doubt, the grea remained comp period Origen, Jeronc, may be the end of the $4 t$ of the schools h the puipit ; and $i$ orstors who flot Chrysoston, the of Sysss, and st amples of a gre preaching. Abo presch sitting in distant cithectri, The custom of a ping the hands oxtended itself b shewed the great the habits of Chri have inveighed as in an eloquent ser Rhetoric, in fact, real and factitiou and the sermon sunk to be little creise. According great cities, pojul rewards, with fal rccompense of a m torian Socrates ( $H$ of a certain bishop name, who was ver. having cone to Coi great many church large sum of money sibly this prevalen the practice of pre unconnected with th charch, and it woul of Western Europe greater simplicity o prevsiled. Here, ho (d. A.D. 449), was which seems to ha return to o highes address. It is, nev inflsted complimen when we are told gustinus post Hilar ferior." The writer account of his pre ejua praedicatio, q habuerit, quas sente suruia supernorum qplendentis eloquii rarias picturas, et $r$ l ferrum spiritalis gl haereticorvon reneua dicam dicere, sed ne sedilibus praeparatis tima usque in ejus de talibus saginalnit, pay entes nequayuan past turba defuisset, sim corda nutriebat, at u vidisset, sermene, vult Insolita excitabatur, s ejosslem praeclari d scriptis meriti summi Donnulas, adniratione raperint, Non doctrir Descio quid super hom

PREACHING

precariak

1689
doubt, the great bulk of the popular preaching remained comparatively unchanged. Of this period Origen, Tertullian, Athanasius, and Jerome, may be taken as representativea. By the end of the 4 th century, however, the rhetoric of the schools has completely made its way into the pulpit; and in the brilliant group of Christian orators who tlourished at that period, St. John Chrysoatom, the two Gregories, of Nazianzus and of Nysss, and St. Basil, we have the typical examples of a greatly altered style of Christian preaching. About this time it became usual to preach sitting in the ambo instead of in the more distant cathec(ri, in ordar to be better heard. The custom of applauding the prencher by clapping the hands and stamping the feet (крóros) ostended itself' by degrees into the chnreh, and shewed the great change which had passed over the hahits of Christians. St. Chrysostom is said to have inveighed agaiust this objectionable custom in an eloquent sermon, which woas loully applltuded. Phetoric, in fact, speedily passed into mere unreal and factitious artifice in that luxurious age, and the sermon seems to have in some places creise. Accordingly, in Constan intellectual exercise. Accordingly, in Constantinople gnd uther great cities, popular preachers were Joaded with rewards, with faine, and it would seem with recompense of a more substantial kind. The historian Socrates (Hist. lib. vi. cap. 11) tells a story of s certain bishop from Ptolemais, Antiochos by name, who was very lamous for his eloquence, and having come to Constantinople and preached in a great many churches there, obtained by so doing a large sum ot money, and then returned home. Possibly this prevalent secultrity of tone into which the practice of preaching had fallen, may not be unconnected with the disuse of it in the Roman church, and it wonld seem thronghout great part of Western Europe, where at this time a much greater simplicity of manners and even ignorance prevsiled. Here, however, Hilary, bishop of Arles (d. A.D. 449), was renowned for his preaching, which seems to have been in some resjects a return to a higher and purer type of pastoral ndiress. It is, nevertheless, too much like the inflated compliment of the previous century, when we are told by a contemporary: "Si Augustinus post Hilarium fuisset, judicaretur inferior." The writer of his life gives the following account of his preaching:-"Temporalia vero ejus praedicatic, quantum flumen eloquentiae hahuerit, quss sententiarnm gemmas sculpserit, surum supernorum seusuum repererit, argentum splendentis eloquii abundaverit, descriptionum vsrias picturas, et rhetoricoa colores expresserit, ferrum spiritalis gladii acumen in trnncandis hsereticorom renenatis erroribus exercuerit, non dicam dicere, sed ue cogitare me posse protestor ; sedilibus praeparatis in jejunio ab hora diei septinus uşue in ejus decimam epulis plebem apiritslibus saginabat, pascendo esurire cogebat, esurientes nequa, uaam pascere desistebat. Si peritorum turbs defuisset, simplici sermone rusticorvm corda nutriebat, at ubi instructos super venisse Pidisset, sermone, vnltu pariter in quadam gratia Insolita excitahatur, seipso celaior apppareiat ; ut ejasdem praeclani docteres tenpurria, qui suis scriptis meriti summi claruere, Silvina Eusebins, Donnolas, adniratione succeusi in hac verha proruperint, Non doctrinam, nou eloquentiam, sed nescio quid super homines consecutung."
XII. When we come to the 8th century, and the beginning of the 9 th century, we must conclude, if we may judge from the few specimens that remain, that there was but little preaching, and that what existed shews a singular nixture of piety and dense ignorance. It would probably be correct to say that there was little or no popular or public preaching at all; the written compositions that remain to ns from that age emanated almost in every case from the monastic institutions, and were intended for use within their own walls and fur their own members. On the one hand, they display considerable knowledge of the letter of Scripture, care and acuteneas in reasoning upon it, and ardent, if aimple, piety. On the other, the temper of the age was ntterly uncritical, and accepted indiscriminately historical truth, and the noast crude and incredible legends. The Homilies which are extant under the name of Aelfric (whether written by him or not, they are apparently a work at that age) afford numerous examples of this characteristic. And on the fother hand, they hnve many passages of considerable spiritual insight aud remarkable earnestness and beauty.
[S. J. L.] XIII. Literature. F. B. Ferrarins, De Feterum Christt. Concionihus, lib. iii. (Medio, 1621, often reprinted); J. Hildebrnad, Exercitationes de Veterum Concionibus (Helinstadt, 1661); E. Leopold, Das Predijtamt in Urchaistentium (L.äneburg, 1840); Monle, Christian Oratory of The First Four. Centuries (Cambridge, 1864); Paniel, Geschichte der c/iristl. Beredsamheit (Leijzig, 1839 ff ); Tzschirner de Claris Eccl. $V^{\prime}$. Oratoribus (Lejpzig, 1817-1821); Th. Harnack, Geschichte und Theorie der Pro digt Krlangen, 1878). Collections of sermons of the father's are found in Combefis, Bibliothee, Patrum Concionatoria (Paris, 1662); Pelt et Rheinwald, Bibliotheca Concionatoriu (Berlin, 1829 f.). [C.]

PREBEND. [Praebenda.]

PRECARIAE, PRECARIUM, an agreement, lease, or charter (Ducange, Gloss.), by which a life interest in church property was created, 1 , in raturn for the conveyance of an estate to the church in fee simple; 2, at a fixed quit-rent, in return for feudat servicas.
I. In the first case the property appeares sometimes to have been given over with a bare reserration of the lite interest. Thus Augustine (Sermo 356, Migue, l'atrol. t. v. page 1572), speaking of one Aurelins, bishop of Carthage, tells a story of a man who, not expecting to have children, conveyed his whnle property to the church, retaining merely a life interest (retento sibi usuffuctu); when children were born to him, t' e bishop, contrary to his expectation, restored the property to him. In most casea, however, the arrangement evidently par. took largely of the nature of $n$ bargain. Thus the third council of Tours, A.D. 813 (c.51), replies to the complaints made by certnin heirs, who alleged that they had been unfairly disinherited, because the property to which they had a rightiul daim had heen conveyed to the charch auder the title of "precariae," that no one ever conveyed property to the church wilthout receiving either as nuch ns he had given, or twice or thrice as much in the shape of life interest (usu fructuario), and that, if the donor made it a condltion, his children or relations were allowed to hold the property on the same terma that had been agreed on with himself. It ia added that even relations who had no legal claim were habitually permitted, as a matter of grace, to hold the property which had been conveyed away from them (de quà illi jam erant per legem exclusi) if they were willing to hold it na a fief (in beneficium) from the chureh. This they allege to be the invariable custom and method of the church. It is probable, however, thet complaints continued to be made by heirs who conaidered themselves unjustly deprivel of their inheritance, and that such assertions were not altogether without reason may be gathered from the fact that the council of Meanx, A.D. 845 (c. 21), found it necessary to declare in the most positive terms that no one should dare to necept "precariae," except on condition that the owner should retain a life interest in the property, and receive an annuity of twice the amount from the property of the church (si rea proprias et ecelesiasticas usufructuario tenere voluerit). In case, however, the owner preferred to coavey the property at once (ad praesens demiserit) he was to receive a life interest to the amount of three times the value from church property, but only for his own life.

PRECENTOR

11. The second class of "precariae" consisted of land held from the church by military tenure, on condition of rendering certain feudal servicea, and paying a certain fixed quit-reat. The occasion of the foundation of these precariae is found in the proceedings of the council of Leptina, A.D. 743 (c. 2), where an edict ia recited of Carloman the Elder, providing that, on account of the cruel wars then prevailing, and the necessities of the state from the invasions of surrounding nations, the church ahould allot some estates for the aasistance of the army, to be held on lease and at nn annual reat (precario et censu), on condition that the teaants should pay a rent of twelve denarii for every farm building (casati) to the church to which the property belonged. It was enrefully provided that the estate should revert to the church at the death of the original holder, but if the necessity of the caae required, or the sovereign willed it, the lease should be renewed or regranted. These leaaca might also be revoked even before the death of the holler, in case the chureh or monastery to which they belonged was in actual need.

A capitulary of Charles the Great (A.D. 779, c. 13) provides for the renewal of "precariae" slready subsisting, and the granting of them in cases where they did not exiat. From the wording of the capitulary it appears that there were two classes of these leases, some dependent directly on the church. and others in which the sovereign was concerned, for it directs that a distinction ahould be made (sit diacretio) between the precariae founded by the will of the sovereign (de verko nostro factas) and those granted by the frea will of the church from ita own property. Another edict (Addit. iv. § 32) further provides that those who refusc to pay their quit-rent, their tenths, and nones, or defer to seek yenewal of their leases, shall forfeit their fiefs, which ahall return in absolute and perpetual poasesaion to the church to which they belong. See also Cayit. v. c. 198.

As might have been expected, the holders of these leases were engaged in a contianal effort to assert hereditury righta over the estates so held, and indeed to claim them as their absoluta property, on payment of the fixel quitrent. Such clalms were absolutely negatived br imperial decrees. A capitulary of Charles the Great (Capit, vii. c. 104), after reciting the evils that had fallen upen states in consequence of seizing the property of the church, expressly provides that no one ahall hold ehurch lands except as "precariae"; that, on the death of" the holder, they shall be delivered up to the church, and that the bishops shall elect either to receire them or to regrant them on the same conlitions. It is emphatically added that the property shal! be delivered to the bishops of the particnlar church to which it belonged, and dealt with them according to the law (canonice).

The mistrust of the bighops indicated in the careful wording of the latter provisioa does not aeem to have been altogether unfounded. There are traces, even in the slender notices of precariae which are found in the recoris of couacils, not ooly that the sovereign occasionally fousd them a convenient method of appropriating, with a colour of legality, the estates of the church, but that bishops sometimes used them, as leases of church property have been used in later days, to further their individual interests. Thus the council of Meaux, A.d. 845 (c. 22), apparently referring to the precariae mentioned in the capitulary of Charles the Great, above quoted, protests that the aovereign has no power to issue precepta concerning precariae created by the church (praecepta regalia auper precariis cecleaiasticis fieri), and also (c. 21) decrees that certain "precariae" which had been granted by bishops who were in illegal occupation of sees which were really vacant, should be resumed, and graated, if desirable, by proper ecclesiastical or civil authority (cum authoritate ecclesiavtica rel civili). The latter expression seeming to indicate that the state had some power of granting "precariae " out of the estates of the church. The aame council decrees (c. 22) that "precariae," according to ancient rule and custom, should be renewed every five yeara.

It was evident trom theae decrees that the aystem ef " jurecariae" was never altogether fiee from unfairness and dishonesty, though there is no express mention of the abuses which it fostered io times later than our preseat limits. That donors of property regarded the system with at least auspicion may he inferred from the fact that gifts were sometimes made suhject to the apecial provislon that they should not be granted as precariae. Thus the second council of Vermez, A.D. 853 (c. 2), revoked the concesaion as a "precariae" of a certain monastery beloaging to the abbey of St. Dionysius, because the donor of the property in question had made it a condition that it never should be granted as a fief or "preenriae" (nac beaeficiario nec precario jure distraheadum).
[P. 0.]
PRECEN'TOR, the leader of the singers in the chanting of the psalma aod the other musical portions of the clurrh service, "qul vocem pruemittit in cantu" (Ialdor, Orig! lib. vli. c. 11) ; "qui rantando voce et manu ino citat, ut servus qual boves atimulo minans duld voce bobus jubil Animae, i. 17). (s prompter); $\phi \omega$ pronuntiator or find no diatinet 1 4th eentury. of the cuatom of between one lead the verse, and tl sang the latter populus vero au Apostol. note 3 learn from Baail (Epist. 207 [63], times antiphonal strain, and the 1 रồos). We sec adopted at Alexa tive of his eacap aeat to apprehend beset with the mili to commence the to respond at the mercy eadureth disperse (Athaans. castom at Antioc from Chrysostom aloae, and, thoug voice is wafted a mxxvi. in 1 Cor. xi given in the $A$ postc person sing the $h$ peaple join at th (rd àkpoorľıu í Sidonius Apollina custom in the Gal tury-" Pssilmorun (lib. iv. Ep. 11). furmed a distinct H.E. v. 22), origin "lectores " (Marter §89), of whom, in as many as twenty Constantinople (Jı were forbidulen to 23; Labbe, i. 1500 derical symbol, an prohibited from (Canoa 11, Bracar: process of time, th restricted in the $V$ person, or sometime Animue, speaks of $t$ regunt "(i. 74)-wh of the musical porti dacted it himself, with a baton, and pro title of the psalm (C The narrative of Bed several persons beari Jsmes, the clanter, siasticae cantionia ju nobly remained in fled after Penda's Ecch Hist, ii. 20). biegrapher of Wilfr cantandi magister No (ibid. iv. \&). Putta, afte Whose special akill in from the disciples Msbaa, the chanter of above sll, John, the I

PRECENTOR

, the holders of contintal effort $r$ the etates so $n$ as their abso. the fixed quit. sely negatived br of Charles the reciting the evils consequance of nureh, expressly chureh lands exhe death of the p to the church, either to receive same conditions. e property shall the particular and dealt with nice) indicater in the ovision does not founded. There - notices of precords of councils, casionally found ropriating, with of the church, I them, as leazes sed in later days, :ests. Thus the 22), apparently oned in the capiove quoted, pro. 1 power to issue createl by the precariis ecclemees that certain auted by bishops esees which were ed, and granted, iastical or ciril ecclesiastica rel ming to inlicate f granting "preae church. The ont "precariae," istom, should be decrees that the $\mathbf{r}$ altogether free though there is ies which it fospresent limits. ded the system nferred from the made subject to should not be e second council ked the concesrtain monastery conysius, because estion had made ld be granted as ticiario nee pre-
[P.0.]
$f$ the singera in and the other h service, "qui sidor. Origy. lib. ce et manu ino do minasns dulci

PRECES
1691

voce bobus jubilet " (Honorius Augusted. Gemma

 Animae, i. 17). Other names were ímoßo入tís, pronuntiator or praenuntiator, archicantor. We find no distinct mention of this office before the 4th century. We then have abundant evidence of the custom of dividing the psalms and canticles between one leader, who recited the first half of the verse, and the people who took it up and sang the latter half, "pritecinebant cantorea, populas vero succinebat ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ (Coteler. in Conatit. Apostol. note 34, p. 260). At Caesarea, we learn from Basil's letter to the Neocacsareans (Epist. 207 [63], §3), the paalmody was sometimes antiphonal; sometimea one began the strain, and the rest responded (ol $\lambda o$ onol in $\boldsymbol{\eta} \boldsymbol{\eta}$ Xovat). We see that the same custom was adopted at Alexsadria from Athanasius's narra. tive of his escape from the aoldiers who were sent to spprehend him. When the church was beset with themilitary force, he directed the deacon to commence the 137 th Psalm, and the people to respond at the close of ench verse "For His mercy endureth for ever," and then quictly to disperse (Athanas. de Fug. § 34, p. 717). The custom at Antioch was the sime, as we learn from Chrysostom, "He who chants, chants from Chrysostom, "He who chants, chants roice is wafted as from one mouth" (Homil. sxxvi. in 1 Cor. xiv. § 9). A aimilar direction ia given in the Apostolical Constitutions-" Let some pernon sing the hymna of David, nad let the people juin at the concluaion of the verses" Sidonius Apollinaris is evidence of the sanie custom in the Gallican church in the 5th cen-tury-" Psslmorum hic modulstor et phonascus" ( $\mathrm{ih}, \mathrm{iv}, E p .11$ ). These leadera of the chant furmed a distiact claso, ealled v́moßo入єis (Socr. H.E. v. 22), originally belonging to the order of § 89) of (Martone de Ant. Eccl. Discipl. c. iii. §89), of whom, in Justinian's time, there were as many as twenty-six attached to the church of Constantinople (Justin. Novell. iii. c. 1). They were forbidden to wear an orarium (Can. Luodic, clerical symbol, and, on the other hand, were prohibited from ainging in a secular dress (Canon 11, Bracar. II.; Lahbe, v. 84.1). In process of time, the name praecentor became restricted in the Western church to a single person, or sometimes two persons-the Gernm, Animue, speaks of those " qui chorum utrimque reguat " (i, 74)-who had the chief regulation ol the musical portion of the service, and conwith s baton, and proclaimed from the anko the title of the pssim (Casajodor. Praef. in Ps. c. 2). The narrative of Beda makes us acquainted with seversl persons bearing this title of office, such as James, the chanter, who - "magister ecelenobly reme cantionis juxta morem Romanum "nobly remained in Northumbria when Paulinus fied after Penda's victory at Hatfield (Beds, Ecrl Hist. ii. 20). Stephen Eddi (Haedde), the liographer of Wilfrid, after James, "primus cantandi magister Nordanhymbrorum ecclesiis" (bid, iv. C). Putta, afterwards !ishopo!'Rochester, whese special skill in chanting had been derived Whose special akill in chanting had been derived from the disclples of pope Gregory (ibid.).
Jaban, the chanter of Hexham (ibid. v. 20), and, above sll, John, the praecentor, archicantator of St. Peter's at Rome, sent by pope Agatho, at Benedict Biacop'a request, A.D. 680 , to teach the monka of Wearmouth the Roman style of singing and reading, and to arrange the yearly" cycle (ibid, iv. 18), "which, in its results, sffected English Church History Eugland " (Bright, Early English Church History, p. 314).

[E. V.]
PRECES. I. While always capable of a more general meaning, this word was largely cially denote a series of short petitions, espeministera ministera of common prajer. In this uasge preces, was a distinction between orationes and preces, orationes being longer forms of prayer, complete in the "elves, as collects. We observe the restricted use of "preces" in St. Cyprinn, 253: "Fratres nostras . . . . in mentem habe operis in sacrifies reatris, et eia vicem lioni (Epist in asacrificiis et precibus reprasentetis" (Epist. 62 ad Januar.). Here preces $=$ the eucharistic litany, in connexion with which the names of beuefactors were given out [Litany, Names, Oblation of]. St. Auguitine, after speaking of the several petitions of the Lard's Prayer, says, "Preces istas Jurisperitus coeli dictavit" (Serm. 114, § 5).
The preces of the West were at first always bidden or dictated by the deacon, like those of the East (thence called "diaconica"), from which they were derived. Thus, Germanus of Paris, 555, speaks of the "Levites ainging the preces for the people" (Expos. Brev. Lit. Gall. c. De Prece). So laidore of Seville, about 610: "Ad ipsum (diaconum) quoque pertinet officium precum" (Epist. ad Levdefr. 8). But at Rome, as we infer from the language of Pseudo-Innocent, the litany was already aaid by the priest before the beginning of the 6th century: "De nominibus vero recitandia, antequam preces aacerdos faciat," &c. (Epist. ad Decent. c. 2.)
II. The preces were peculiarly the prayer of the people, and even of their children, as St. Chrysoston expressly tella them (Hom. 71 or 72 in S. Matt. Ev. § 4), and naturally dropped out of common use in the liturgy when the people wo longer understood the language in which they were required to respond. Vestigea of them, however, remain in the ancient sacramentaries There are two metrical litanies given for use on Easter eve in the Besançon sacramentary, found by Mabillon at Bobio, and assigned by him to the 7th century. They are preceded by the rubric. i. Incipit Precis (si.) de eodem Dic" (Mus. Ital. i. 319). See Notitia Eucharistica, p. 304, ed. 2. These "preces" contain seven rerses ench. The same sacramentary gives, in a part for general use, three collects headed Oratio post Precem (282), one of which refers very distinctly Two the litnny which originally preceded it. Two similar prayers in the Gothico-Gallican Missal retain the old headings, "Collectio post Precem" (Liturg. Gall. 190), and "Post Prec." (251). Both pray that the people may be heard, thus implying that they had been praying. There are two similar prayers, with the heading "Post Preeem" in the Frankish Missal of the 7th century (ibid. 324-5). In two Gallican liturgies (Misa. Goth. in Lit. Gall. 243 ; Afiss. Gall. Vet. 359) we find for use on Easter eve sets of twelve or thirteen short intercessory prayers, each Introduced by a request

1692

PREOES
[Preface (IL.)] from the priest to the pople that they would pray for some object. or class of persous, as for those then and th . . keeping Lister, those in exile and unable to seep it; for the clergy; for devoted virgins; givers of alms, &c. In a third we find only the requests - "bedes ' lu the stricter sense-the prayer being left to the silent devotion of the people, excepit that the priest says a general "Collectio" at the end (Sicram. Gallic. (the Besancon) in Mus. Ital. i. 32(1). In the last these bedes fnllew inmediately the metrical litany cited above. It is obvious that the form of this office is derived from 2 litany as bidden piece-mea: by the deacon according to the pracice of the East, and of the churches of Gaul and Spain. They were probably also a substitute for such a litany. That which had been the common eucharistic litany was retained on Easter eve, after its disuse at other times (Sacram. Gelas. u. 8. i. 564 ; Urd. Rom. i. Mus. Ital. ii. 26, 35); but it had become little more tr an the repetition of Kyries, and the recitals of a long string of asints' names (see examples, Miss. Moz. Leslie, 187 ; Martene de Ant. Ecol. Rit. lib. i. c. i. 18, Ordd. 6, 21). At this stage, I would suggest, the want of the intercessions in the old litanies was felt; and the churches in Ganl sought to rentore them in another form by iutroducing the frefacea and collects acuve described.
The Hispano-Gothic preces came between the propiliey and the epistle; and those for the first five Sundays in Lent were retained in that place to the last, and are still on used in the liturgy as celebrated in the parish churches of St. Justa and St. Mark at Toledo (Miss. Mozar. Leslie, 94, 105, 117, 128, 139). The Ambroaian Missal still retains two sets of preces for alternate use on the aocond and three following Sundnys in Lent. They are said by the deacon niter the introit. Traces of the euchai ic preces are nlso found in the carlier Roman an $\cdots$.mentary. The heading to Missae, "Orationes it Preces," is of frequent occurrence, though the latter had disappeared (Lit, Rom. Vet. Murat. i. 349, Leon.; 493, 504, \&e., Gelas.). The later Gregorian corrects this by the omission of et Preces. See the various codices: Mur. ii. 7, 10, \&ic. ; Pamel. ibid. ii. 187, 196, \&ce; Menard, Opp. S. Greg. ed. Ben. iii. 82, 36, \&c.; Rocca, Opp. S. Greg. ed. Autv. 1615, v. 68, 73, \&c. Allusions to the preces of the people, aimilar to those of the Gallican collects cited above, are frequent in the Reman. Thus: "Exaudi, Domine, supplicuin preces" (Sacr. Leon. ib. i. 517); "Suscipe, Domine, preces populi Tui ${ }^{2}$ (Gelas. 572); "Prcces populi Tui . . . . exaudi" (686), \&c. Nor were these expressions rejected by the Gregorian reviser, as they were ensily underatood of the whole office when the projer "preces populi " had fallen eut. They eccur, of course, here in the collect for the day, which in the Roman rite followed the litany. See examples, Sucr. Grey. Mur. ii. 19, 26, 27, 31, 34, \&c. Several of our own cellects preserve thie allusion to the preces. The following are among the more obvious exnmples: Coh. for Septuagesima (eomp. Suar. Greg. 26, s, 26), tenth Sunday after Trinity (S. Gr. 169), and twenty-third after Trinity (ibid. 175).
III. The petitions dictated by the dencons for the catechumens and penitents before their dis-

PREFACE

mlssal were also called "preces." Germana (u.s.) tells us, in the dindect of his day, that after the lessons "deprecarent pro illus Levitse, diceret sacerdos collecta; post prece exireat posteà foris qui digni non eraut stare dun in. ferclatur eblatio." The Hispano-Guthic precos for penitents in Lent are extant (Miss, Mozar, Leslic, 99-147).
IV. At Reme the canon in the liturgy was sometimes called Prex. Thus Vigilins, 538, after speaking of the getsial "Ordo precuun in solemnitate missarum," says to a cerrespondent, Profuturus of Braga, "Ipsius canonicae precis textum direximus subter adjectum, ynem Deo propitio ex Apostolica traditione susceppimus" (Nova Collect. Conc. 1470, Pnr. 1683, §5; in Labb. and Hard. "ad Eutherium"). Gregory 1 . in 598: "Orationem vere Dominicam idecre" post. precern dicimus, quia mos Apostolum fuit ut ad ipsam solummode orationem oblationem hostiae consecrarent " (Epist. ad Joan. Syrac, vii. 64). He had been blamed, "quia orationem Dominicam mox post cdnonem dici statuistis" (ibid.)
[W. E. S.]
P1 iaxACE (I.). A form in every liturg7 serving as an introduction to the anaphora or missa fidelium.

The Bencdiction,-In most offices the preface began, after the first liturgic period, with a benediction by the priest, derived from 2 Cor, xiii. 14, to which the people respended, or with the ordinary mutual salutation of the priest and people. This part of the preface cannot claim an apostolic origin, for it is not mentioned by Cyril of Jerusalem in his close account of the liturgy of his church, A.D. 350 (Cutec'. Myst. r . 2, 3), nor in the West do we find it in the Gelasino aacramentary (Murat. Lit. Lhm. Vet. i. 693), nor attached to the canon as berrowed from Rome by the Franks in the 8th century (Lit. Gall. Mabill. 326), nor bave I met with ung senson for supposing that it had a phace in ang purely Gallican liturgy. Yet the beneliction is very ancient in the East. St. Chrysestom, 398, alludes to it ; the priest "does not touch the offering without first praying that the grice from the Lord may be on you" (IIom. i. is Pertec. 4). Theodoret, A.D. 423, theught it uaiversal, for he calls it "the commencement of the mystical liturgy in all the churches" (Epist. 146, ad Joan. Oecon.). In the liturgy ef St. James, used at Jerusalem, it appears in this form: "The love of the Lord and Father, the grace of the Son and God, and the fellowhip and gift of the Hely Ghost be with you all" (Codex Liturg. Asscm. v. 32). Similar expab. sions or varintions of the apostolic benediction are found in all the Syrian liturgies (lenaudot, Collect. Lit. Orient. ii. 21, 30, 126, 134, ke.), in the Egyptian rites of St. Gregory, Coptic and Greek (ibid. i. 27, 98), in the Armenian (Neale, Hist. East. Ch. Intro -30), and the Clemeative (Constit. Apost. viti. : ... ihe Nestrrian liturgis, which in thair those of Constantiuc it at parts repreesent schism, nre more faich '. is. punestia befire the but they "an ". ". .e text of Scripture, but they read "us" ior "you" at the end, and ald "Now and for ever, world without end" (Ren. u. s. ii. 589, 617, 626 ; Missa Mataker, Rnulin, 312). St. Basil and St. Chrysostori differ from St. Paul only by giving in the speent clause " t ) (Ewhtulojion, Gua liturgies do not us and the Greek A instead, "The Lo 14t, 64), the Cop Lord be with you The Mozarabic ls Sollows here (with commen oriental f Ysther Almighty, Jesus Christ, and Ghost be with u Leslie, 4). The Mil you" (Ritual. SS. (probably borrowed the extant copies (Pamel. ii. 178; R 1615; Murat ii. 1 ; jii. 1 ; Gerbert, Mon
The commen res "And with thy spi St. Chrysostom (u. him, 'And with thy as the Nestorian (u. Jacelite of Eustathi Jacobus Baradatus Amen. The Mezara men ef gend will." uposses with the kis, Sursum Corda is sa 227).

Theodoret evident as the epening of $t$ ] should infer from St. part of it, nad nea liturgy ef Milan ( $u$ rubric, Praefatio in Oriental rites (the C Ren. i. 13, 40) by $t 1$ the rubric, "The pri Nestor, ibid. ii. 589, 6 imprebable that orig the former and less sa suggested by Mr. 'Troll This opinion derives c that in the Mozarabic 4); in the Armenian, $t$ "The deers, the doo Nesterisn, the gifts ar 626 ); between the as Conda; sud also from former in the very (626).

Surstum Corda.-The face is Sursum Corda, as it is commonly give this is feund in every $p$ reasonsbly inferred to Greek writer who que salem, 350, bas "Avw r v. 3), whleh evinces it by its simplicity and it the cemmen and earl Corda. To the latter, earliest witnsss : "Sace fatione praemissa, parat $S_{\text {Bristr }}$ Cordd " (de Ora St. Auguatine: "Si in erubesce; quia mentiris audis, Slursum Cor." vingular cor for the cor 3n." Germann dny, that after illos Levitae, prece exire0 -stare dum in-o-Guthic jreess (Miss, Muzar.

PREFACE

he liturgy was Vigilin;, 538 Ordo precun in correspondent, anoniche precis um, प $u$ 'm Deo e suscrpimus" 1683,85 ; ia "). Gregury 1. am ideireo post tolum fuit ut oh ohationem /oan. Syrac. vii quia orationem lici statuistis"
[W. E. S.]
every liturgy te anaphera or ces the preface $x$, with a bene. om 2 Cor, xiii. ed, or with the the $j^{\text {riest }}$ and : cannot claim mentioned by account of the Zatech. Myst. in the Grlasian - let. i. 695), borrowed from h century (lit. met with any a place in any benediction is irysostom, 398, not touch the that the grace IIom. i. is Pchhought it uaiancement of the urches " (Epist. liturgy of St ppears in this nd Father, the the feilowship with you all" Similiar expanlic benediction gies (!cmaudot, (i, 134, \&e.), in 'y, Coptic and 'menian ( Neale, the Clemeatine sorian liturgis, barts represent lestia before the xt of Scripture it the entl, and without exll' Missa Mahara. t. Chrysostem giving in the spend clause "the love of the Gol nnd Father" (Eucholoyion, Goar, 165, 75). A few Enstern liturgies do not use this benediction. St. Mark and the Greek Alexandrine of St. Basii have instend, "The Lard be with you all" (Ren. I. 144, 64), the Coptic SS. Basil and Cyril, "The Lord be with you" (ibill. 13, 40).
The Mozarabicis the only Western liturgy which follows here (with its own variations) the nore common oriental form: "The grace of God the Fsther Almighty, the peace and love of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the fellowshlp, of the Holy Ghost be with us all evermoro" (Mfiss, Moz. Leslie, 4). 'Thia Milanese has, "The Lord be with you" (Ritual. SS. PP. Painel. i. 300); sad this (probably borrowed from Milan) is found in all the extant copies of the Roman Gregorian Pamel. 11. 178 ; Rocea, Opp. Greg. v. 63, ed. 1615 ; Murat ii. 1 ; Ménard. Opp. Greg. ed. Ben. iii. 1 ; Gerbert, Monum. Eccl Aleman. 232 ; &c.). The common response to onth benedictions is, "And with thy spirit." This is recognised by St. Chrysostom (u. s.): "And ye rexpond to him, 'And with thy spirit.'" In a few liturgies, as the Nestorian (u. s. 589,626 ), and the SyroJacobite of Eustathius of Antioch (ihit. 235) and Jacobus Baradatus (347), the people noswer, Amen. The Mozarabic is peculiar: "And with men of good will." Several versicles nnd responses with the kisa of peace fullow before the Sursum Corda is said (Mfiss. Mozar. Lealie, 4, 227).

Theodoret evidently regarded thls benediction as the opeuing of the Missa Fidelium, and we should jnfer from St. Chrysostom that it was a prit of it, and near the beginoing, In the liturgy of Milan (u, s.) it is preceded by the rubric, Praefatio in Canoncm, and in some Oriental rites (the Coptic St. Basil and St. Cyril, Ren. i. 13,40 ) by the title Anaphora, or by the rubric, "The prieat says the canod" (Lit. Nestur. Did. ii. 589, 617). It Is nevertheless not improbable that originally it was the close of the former and less sacred part of the liturgy, as suggested by Mr. Trollope (Lit. of St. James, 67). This opinion derives countenance from the facts, that in the Mozarabic the peace is given (Leslie, 4); in the Armenian, the deacon utters his cry of "The doors, the doors" (Neale, u. s.); in the Nestorian, the gifts are signed (Ren. Ji. 589, 617, Conda; and also the aslutation and the Sursum Conda; and also from the response, Amen, to the former in the very ancient rite of Nestorjus (626).

Sursum Corda.-The next member of the preface is Sursum Corda, "Lift up your henrts," as it is commonly given. In one form or another this is found in every perfect liturgy, whence it is reasoaably inferred to be spostolic. The earliest Greek writer who quotes it, Cyril of Jerusalem, 350, has "Avw rds кapoías (Catech. Myst.
v. 3), which evinces its superior antiqulty v. 3), which evinces its superior antiquity beth by its simplicity and its exact correspondence to the common and earlier Latin form, Sursum Corda. To the latter, St. Cyprian, 252, is the earliest witness: "Sacerdos, ante orationem pracfstions praemissa, parat fratrum mentes dicendo, St, Augustine: "Si in Corda " Domin. 152, ed. 1690). St, Augustine: "Si in terra obruis cor tuum, erubesce; quia mentiris cum reapondes quando sudis, Sursum Cor." (Serm. 346, § 4). The singular cor for the corda of St. Cyprian le so frequent in St. Angustine (see niso Serm. 25, 87 ; i3, § $14 ; 86, \S 1$; Enurr. il. in Psaln. 31, 521 ; \&c.) as to Indicate a difference betw.en the itmrgies of Cart hage and $\mathrm{Hi}_{j}$ jpo. A Inter writer, compiling a sermon from St. Angustioe (Sirm. § 2 , in A), changes his cor into corda (Sirm. 177, A 2 , in App, iv, nd "pp. Aug.). Caesnrins of Sursum Cords" the plural: "j)icente Saterdote Paris, 555: "Surd" (Serm. 40, §4). Germanus of ndmonet, nt aulla cocorda iseostacerdos habere pectoribus nostris" grio terreaa maneat in Migne, Ixxii. 94). The litu Corde (u gies of Rome and Milan have Sursum corda (u. s.). So, as we have learnt from Caesarius had Germanus above, had the Gallican ; se ceded by thozrabic ( $u$. s.), but in that it is preceded by the versicle and response: "Aures ad Dominnm. R. Chorus. Hibemus ad Dominum." the exset the exact words cited by St. Cyril. St. Clement (u. s.) has, "A $\nu \omega$ т $\boldsymbol{\tau} \nu \nu \nu \hat{\nu} \nu$; St. James (u. s.), "Av $\sigma \chi \omega \mu \in \nu \tau \delta \nu \nu 0 \bar{\nu} \nu$ каl $\tau$ ths карঠias, which latter is the form cited by St. Chrysostom (Hom. ix. de de Sacra su9), and by Adnstasius Sinaita (Urat. Greek St. Synaxi, Gretseri, Opp. xi. 454). The $\sigma \chi \omega \bar{\omega} \in \nu$ тds кapঠias; as do alsostom give, $A \nu \omega$ gies of Als кapoias; as do also the Greek liturisea of Alexandrin (Ren. i. 64, 99). And this also if cited in the same passnge by Annstasius, as Mark were familiar with both forma. St. The Nestorian), gives, "A $\nu \omega \dot{\nu} \mu \omega \bar{\nu} \nu$ тds кapoías. preserves the simple of the Blessed Apostles miads" the simple form, "Lift ap your mads " (Ren. ii. 589); but it is greatly enlarged and paraphrased in those ascribed to Nestoriua and Theodore: "Above in the height of the highest, and in the awful place of praise, where the fluttering of the wings of the cherubims ceases not, Deither is there any intermisaion to their hallelujahs, or to the song of Holy, Holys Holy, of the seraphim, thither lift up your hearts" (Badger's Nest,ruins, 223 ; Ren. ii 617, 626). One Ordo Communis of the Syrian Melchites and Jacobites is also marked by the verbosity of the nation: "Above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God the Finther, be of ned the minds and understandings and hearts of na all" (Ren. ij. 21); but with one exception whitus, 135) all the other Syrian forms in Which it is expressed, including the common St. James, give, "Lift ap your henrts" (ibid. 32, 127, $146,155, \& c$. .). In two only the snlutation and ita sequel is represented by the beginning, "The love," \&c. (ii. 256,513 ), whet the rest, including the Sursuin, is doubtless to be taken from the Ordo Communis, The Coptic Jiturgies as tranalated give, "Lift up your hearts" (Bur" Rell. i. 13; Nesle, 532), and "Sursum Corua" (Greg. Cyr. Ren. 28, 40), but the original Greek which here is still employed in the service ("ex artiquitatia reverentia," Ren. i. 226, 227; ii. 641) Is, "A $\nu \omega \dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ tàs кapঠlas (i. 13). The clatuse before ns his dropped ont of the very corrupt Liturgia Communis or Canon Universalis of the Abyssiniar church (Ren.j. 513), but, from the statement of ikanaudot, appears to be in all their other liturg:es (226). In the Armeninn it is high with deacon: "Lift up your minds on high with the fear of God" (Neale, 530). Lerd," la noticed among lift them up unto the Jerusal. (u. s.): "Then ye answer, ${ }^{\text {" }}$ Exouev mpds rur kípoov." Yet it does not appear in the liturgy of Jerasalem, though found in seme form or other in every other. St. Chrysostom (Hom. ix. de Poen.) cites it in the save words as does also Anastasius Sinnita ( $u, s, 4: 5,456$ ), and this is the common reading in the Cruek litur-gies-in St. Clement, St. Mark, and the Greek Alexandrines, in St. Basil and St. Chrysostom. Renaudot renders the Syrian Ordo Communis (ii. 21), "Sunt ad Dominum ;" and so Masius, the Syrian St. Basil (586); but the former gives the "Habemus ad Dominum" in every other Syrimn liturgy, except that of Xystus, where we read, "Habemus ad Te, Domine" (135). The Nestorina liturgies: "Sunt ad [apud Malab. u. s. 312] Te, Deus Abraham, Isaac, et lsrael, rex glorise (Bert. Apost. gloriose, Nest. pergloriose, Mal.) ; but Theodore ( $u$. s.) simply, "Sunt apud Te , Dews." The Armenian (u. s.) has, "We have lifted them up to Thee, Father Almighty."

PREFACE
1693

Among the Jastins, St. Cyprian (de Or. Dom. n. 8.), st. Auguatine (Scrm. 227, 345, § 4, &c.), Caesarius (Sir $m, 40,54$ ), and others, quote from their liturgies " F bemes at Lominum." According to St. Angustiro, "quotidie per uni ersum orbem humanum ge vas was parne voce respondet, Sursum corda en t, "ree no Jominum" (De Ver, Reliy. 3, § 5). Twe Ruman abs Ambrosian liturgies give this formuid, which the testimony of Caesarius profes to have been used in Gaul, The Mozarabic only has, "Levenus ad Dominum" (Leslie, 4, 247).

Eucharistia.-Another versicle is then said, properly, as in most liturgies, by the priest, but in the Armenian hy the deacon. St. Cyril of Jerusalem gives it thus, Ejuapioтhowuev $\tau \hat{\varphi}$ кupit (Catech. Myst. v. 4); but it is not found in the liturgy of his church (St. James). It occurs in the same words in St. Clement (Const. Ap. viii. 12), in St. Basil, in St. Chrysostw (Goar, 75, 165), and in the Greek Alexandrir of St. Basil and of St. Gregory (Kenaud. i. 64, 99), but Armenian adds, "With all our hearts" (Neale, 530). The Coptic rites have the same as the Greek, "Let us give thanks unto the Lord" (єن̀xapıaт $\dot{\mu} \mu \nu, 13,28,40$ ). There are frequent variations in the Syrian. The Ordo Communis adds, "with fear" (Ren. ii. 21), to which Xystus adds, "and worship Him with trembling" (135). St. Basil: "Let us reverently," \&c. (586; corr. 550); others : "Let us give thanks" (126, 170); but most resemble the Greek, "Let us give thanks unto the Lord " (146, 177, 187, 203, \&c.) ; while St. James, which is used both by orthodox and heretics, agrees with the more common Western form, "I.et ns give thanks unte our Lord God" (31, 163). Tha Nestorian liturgies are peculiar. The Blessed Apostles (ibid. 589) and the Malabar (Ranlin, 312): "An oblntion is offered unto God, the Lord of all," which Theodore (Ren. il. 617) and Nestorins (626) expand by long interpolations.

St. Angustine, in the Latin church, quotes the clause thus: "Gratias agam"s Domino Deo nostro" (Serm. 68, § 5 ; aimilns). Serm. 227; Fpist. 187 ad Dard. § 21). "it grees with the Roman sacramentaries (Mas. Pamel. &e. u, s.). The Milanese (Pamel. i. 300 ) omits "Domiao." The Mozarable: "Deo, ac Domino nostro Jesu Christo, filio Dei, qui est in coelis, dignas laudes dignasque gratias referamus" (Leslie, 4). When the Gallican churches adopted the Romnn canon, they took its preface with its several parts (see Miss. Franc. in Liturg. Gall. 327). Letine that. the Sursun Corda, Sc. were not writuen in that liturgies, nor do they even oplyar hative the contestatio in the oldest sacramentary 1 , which the Roman chavon was inserted, viz. timit of Besançon (Mus. Ital. i. 279), thuugh we leurn fromi Germanus ( $u$. s.) that they were not mitted. They were probably still said fymm mem,ry until the auppression of the Gallican rites in the sia century.
The response io which St. Clirysostom refers is foumi in nearly every liturgy. st. Cyril (Cat. a, \%.) gives "A same in the Greels St. James, St. C.ament, the Alexandrine Basil and Cyril (all as above), Ahd in the Coptic: (Ren. i. 1:, maig.). The comman Greek St. Cirirysostom and St. Bhisil euhare at (u. s.) hy a reference to the creed wheh in turg precedes the Sursuv, Corme: "It is meet and risht to worship the Father, son, and illiy Ghast, the consubstantial and undirided Tritioty"; but copies are extant of the 9th and 10 th century that retain the brief original (Goar, 99 ; Bunsen, Analecta Ante-Niauena, iii. 215). The Syriana have not changed it; but the Ordo Cymnunis (u. s.) adds a distinct clause: "0 God, hare mercy on us." It is preserved in all the des. torian liturgies (u. s.); but in that of Nestoriva it is followed by an exhortation from the deacon to remember the mercy of God in the redenption of man, and by the words (also said by him), "Peace be with us all." In the rest he ouly says after it, "Pence be with us."

St. Augustine bears witnese to the practice of Latin Africa: "Et vos attestamini 'Dignam et justum est" dicentes, ut ei grutias agamus qui nos fecit sursum ad nostrum caput habere cor" (Serm. 227; comp. de lon. Persev. 13, §33; de Bono Viduit. 16, § 20). This is to a letter the response of the people in the Roman, Milanese, and Hispano-Gothic liturgies (a. s.). In the Gallican it is written at the begianing of many of the contestations, withont any rubrics to distinguish the parts of the priest and people, viz. "Immolatio Missal. Dignum et justum est. Verè dignum et justum est nos Tibi gratiss agcre," &c. (Lit. Gall. 188, 197, &c. ; 330, 371)
The Contestation.-The next part of the preface is strictly and properly, according to St. Chrysostom as quoted above, the commencement of the Eucharist. It is often itself called the Preface, partly perhaps for that rcason, but more certainly because, being variable, it is the only part which appears under that title in the collections of proper prayers. The Goths of Spain called it the Illatio, either becsuse thit word, used by them in the sense of oblatio, was like the Greek anaphora, the name of the office that followed, or because it originally denoted the "illation of the gifts" (Conc. Valent. 524, can. 1) $=$ the great erist of the Greeks, which took place at thiof the service. "Quinta" [oratio], says fertar lllatio ir , cetif etiam et ad Dei la virtutumque coeis ueit
 si ne of Seville, "ino - Ac oblationis, in qua strium creaturarom (De Off. i. 15, § i) The word is once used as equivalent to prefiue st: collection of Romsa prefaces at the erd if the Vatican MS. from which Muratori pri rubric, "In Exalt dicenda, quae et in The Gallican chur inmslutio, because rant of the liturgy the rubrics, 'A $\rho$ Xi द́ler Men. i. 64; fixatar Ins àva $0_{0}$ Fowtern liturgies. buseyon sauramen Giutrice-Gallican ( 202, \&c.), and in th of Thomasius, \&c. the Gallican liturgi testat: " "for an ob celebran ${ }^{\circ}$ in its firs wilth that of the per of giving thanks un The Roman word dignum et justum tibi remper et ubi Sancte, Pater Omr (hristum Dominum n.s.); the Milanese, ent," \&c. (Pam. u. "!hgnum et justum \&c. (Ieslie, $5,17, \& c$. sulutare est, Domini t in mirabilibus praed "D. et j., verè dignu (12) ; and so on, the rarying. The Gallicar at justum est [aequur nos tibi semper, hic e [et gloriari in operit (188); "Vers aequa gratias agere, vota pe Franks early adopted mulee with the cano sume symbol ${ }^{2}$ (Lit. Sucram. Gelas. Mur. i There is the same : the Greek and Orien drine St. Basil the prie thrice, and then make which begins like the The more ancieat Sy St. Basil, \&c., u. s.) a arigioals; but many of ontestation. In the 627), aad in the $N_{8}$ ( 5599 , the priest prays repponse and the cont The celebrant next, the reason why God io some, as in the Clei Theodore and Nestori Basil, Greek and Syria firins, st great length. Armenian are here sho looger than St. James, The fullowing is one ferms: 0 Thou who at of Truth, existing from steraity, who dwellest and lookest dowa on made the heaven and th all things that are ther Lord and Saviour Jesu hast made all things vi sittest on the throne o

PREFACE

Leslie, 4). When he Roman smen, everal parts (seo 7). Jentre that writies in thetr arindure the conary 1 ? which the iz, tant if be. gh we terna froma ere nut mutsed. ram melmery until rites in the rin hrysostom refers urgy. st. Cyril xaıov. it is the St. Cepment, the 1 as above), sid ). The commen basil enlurge en ed wheh in then is mereet qud rizht nnd in.ly Ghust, d Tribity"; but and 10th century toar, 99 ; Bunsen,

The Syrians Ordo Communis " 0 God, hare d in all the Nes. that of Nestorius from the deacon d in the redenp. also said by him), the rest he only 8."
to the practice of mini ' Dignum et ntias agsmus qui aput habere cor" ersev. 13, §33; his is to a letter in the Roman, liturgies (u. s.), : the beginning of out any rubrics to oriest snd people, m et jnstum est. nos Tibi gratiss 7, &c. ; 330, 371) part of the pre. accerding to St. he commencement itself cailed the t reason, but more ble, it is the only that title in the The Goths of ther because this ase of oblatio, was rame of the office riginsliy dented onc. Valent. 54, of the Greeks,
of the service. e of Seville, "inoblationis, in qua rium creaturarum "sitas provoratur" d is once used $u$ lleetion of Romad Vatican 15 , from which Muraterl prints the Sncr. Gregor, viz. in the rubric, "In Exultatione S. Crucia eadem inlatio diceada, quae et in inventione S. Crucis" (ii. 394). The Gallican churchea often called this prayer incolatio, becanse it began the more sacriticial att of the liturgy. This may be illustrated by Alse. Ken. i. 64; S. Grey. A. 99), and 'O lepeis (x.ras this arvaфopas (S. Murci. 144), in some fisturn liturgies. "Immolatie" occurs in the ination sacramentary (Hfus. Ital. i. 345), in the Giemice Gallican (Lit. Gall. Mabill. 188, 191, 202 , ke.), and la the Missale Gallicanum Vetus of Thomasius, &c. (ibid. 334, 368, 370, &c.). In the Gailican liturgies it is also called the "contestati 3 " for an obvioua reason, viz. because the ceithran " lo its first words joins his testimony with that of the people to the fitness and justice of giving thanks uato God.
The Romana words of contestation are, "Vere d.gnum et justum est, aequum et alatare, nos tibi emper et ubique gratias egere, Domine Soncte, Pater Omaipotens, Reterne Deus, per (hristum Domiaum nostrum" (Murat. Pamel. ¿c. u.s.); the Milaneae, "Vere quia dignum et justum est," kc. (Pam. u, s.). The Mozarabic varies: "ingnum et juatum est, noa tibi gratias agere," &e. (Leslie, $5,17, & c$. ); "D. et j., vere aequam et alutare est, Domini noatri Jesu Christi adventum in mirabilibus praedicare," &c. (for Advent, 9); "D. et j., verè dignum et honorificum est," &:, (i2); and so on, the clause which follows also raryiag. The Gallican varied also: "Vere dignums it justum est [aequum et sslutare, Lit. Gull. 191] nos tibi semper, hic et ubique (269) gratias agere [et gloriari in operibus tuis, 269] Domine," &ce. (188); "Vere aequum et justum est nos tibi gratias agere, vota persolvere," &c. (197). The Franks early adopted the constant Ropaan formulse with the canon, and indicated it by the ame symbol 户े (Lit. Gall. 317-319, &cc. ; comp. Slcram. Gelas. Mnr. i. 494-496, &c.).
There is the same similarity amid variety in the Greek and Oriental rites. In the Alexandrice St. Basil the priest repeats the words 'A.c.ס. thrice, and then makes a direct address to God, Which begina like that of the Greek St. Basil. The mora ancieat Syrian rites (as St. James, St. Basil, &c. u. s.) are faithful to their Greek origisals; but many of the later have no express ontestation. In the liturgy of Nestorius (ib, 627), aai in the Nestorian Blessed Apostles (5s9), the priest prays for himself between the repponse sud the contestation.
The celebrant next, in every liturgy, declarea the reason why God should be thus glorified; in some, as in the Clementine, in the Nestorian Theodore and Neatorius, in St. Mark and St. Basil, Greek and Syrian, and some other Syrian forms, at great length. St. Chrysostom nnd the Armenisn are here shorter than St. Besil, but loger than St. James, the original of all three. The fullowing is one of the shorter Oriental forms: 0 Thou who art, Master, Lord, the God of Troth, existing from eternity, and reigning to thernity, who dwellest in the highest for ever, and lookest dowa on lowly things, who hast made the heaven and the earth and the sea, and all things that are therein; the Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, by whom Thou hast made all thinga visible and invisible, who iitest on the throne of the holy glory of Thy kingdom, who art adored by every henvenly power" (Lit. Bas. Gr. Alex. in lenand. i. 64). st. Cyril (Catech. Myst. v. 6) refers to this part of the liturgy of Jerusalem at sufficient length to show that it resembled very closely, and may even have been identical with, the preface as it now stands in St. Jsmes. The Eastern rites have no changing or "proper" prefaces.

PREFACE
1695
The common Western prefaces are here much shorter than any of the original Eastern, the reason of the eucharistia being expressed in a few epithets only: "Domine, sancte, Pater Omnipotens, aeterne Dens" (Rom. Ambr.). But all the Weatern missala admitted many proper prefaces; and in the Mozarabic and Galican liturgies the whole ground of the dexelogy is stated in the addition proper to the day, which sometimes begins with the foregoing Koman justum but very often not. Ex. "Dignum et conland est te auctorem et sanctificatorem jejunil debitis per quad nos liberas a nostrorum jejunantinm pecatorum. Ergo suscipe clemens Goth. No. 24 preces," &c. (Missa Jojunii in Miss.

Proper Prefaces.-Though proper prefaces cannot be traced to the East, they were nevertheless very early in the West. In one for Cnristmas Day io the Mozarabio rite we read: "Post multa tempora in hae die, ante non multa tempora . . . nobi3 natus est Christus" (Leslie, 39). A " contestatio" is the Gallican fragment discovered by Mone is thought both by him and the English editors to have been writtea during the persecntion at Vienne and Lyons in 177 . This is suggested by the apparent age and the matter of the prayer, and by a comparison of it with the epistle from the Christians of those eities to their brethrea in Asia and Phrygia (Luseb, Hist. I:cel. v. 1). See Gallican Lituryies, Neale and Forbea, Miss. 5, p. 12.
Tha Milanese miasal has above 120 proper prefaces, one far every missa. They are yet more numerous in the Mozarabic, and they appear to have varied in the several Gallican ritea, whenever the other prayers varied. Hence, in the Besaucon and Gothico-Gallican sacramentaries, we find above seventy. They were equally numerous at Ronse in the 6th century, for Vigilins, 538 , tells us that on saints ${ }^{2}$ days, as well as at Easter, the Asceasion, and Epiphany, "they added proper chapters adapted to the days" (Nova Collect. Cuncit. 1470); that ia, they had a proper missa for every anch day, and a missa was not complete without its preface. The so-called Leonian sacramentary, or Veronese Gelasian, must have cuntained more than 300 ; but the rule for their use is not very certnin. The later Gelasian limited this profusion to Easter, Ascension-tide, and Pentecost (Murat. u. s. i. 57:-606), while the Gregorian reduced the number to eight, of which two were said on Christmas Day, that at the econd celehration being for St. Anastasia, and the others severally at the Epiphany, Easter, on Ascension Day, at Whitsuntide, and on the feasts of St. Peter and St. Andrew (inid. ii. 8, 9, 16, $66,85,101,131$ ).
There were also in some rites proper prefaces oir special services; as for the benediction of oil and chrism [aee-Missa, x. (2)] (Nair. Gelas. Mur. u. s. i. 5555, 556, 557; Sacr. Greg. ii. 55); of the paschal light (Missalg Goth. Mab. u. s. 241 ;

1696

PREFACE
PRESANCTIFIED

Miss. Gall. Vet, 357 ; Miss. Moz. Leslie, 177 ; Miss. Ambros. Pamel. I. 345 ; Sacr, Grey. Mur. ii. 14i) ; at baptism (Miss, Goth. u. s. 247; Miss. Gall. Vet. "Contestatio Fontis," 36,3 ; not in the Ruman, Milanese, or Mozarabic); at marringe (Sucr. Gel. u. s. i. 721 ; Greg. ii. 245 ); ut urdination (Sacr. Grej. 244, 427, 439).
The variable part of the canon "Communicantes," &e. is headed by the title Praefutio in the mass for Maundy Thursday (Sucr. Gireg. u. s. 54 ), but this is by error.

The Reference to the Anyelic Hosts.-II every liturgy the encharistic prefnce leads up to the angelic hymn, after a reference, which is nearly univerasal, to the henvenly spirits by whon it was first sung. They are claimed ss fellowworshippers. "This divine saying handed down to us, which proceeded from the seraphim we repent, that we may have communion in our hymnody with the supramundane hosts " (Cyr. Fier. Cat. 3yst. v. 5). Most of the Greek liturgies here enumerate the orders of the angels. Thus St. James (who associntes with them "the spirits of the just and of the prophets, the souls of the martyrs and the apostles "): "Angels, archangels, thrones, dominions, principulities, and authorities, and awful powers (see Col. i. 16), and the cherubim with many eyes, nnd the seraphim with six wings, who with two wings cover their faces, and with two their fret, and flying with $t$ wo, shout one to another with mouths never resting, with doxologies never silent (ecphoncsis), chanting with clear voice the triumphnl hymn of Thy exalted glory, crying aloud, giving glory, sheuting, and saying, Hols, Holy," \&c. (Assem. v. 33). Compare the Clementine (Const. Apost. viii. 12), St. Mark (Renaud. i. 134), St. Basil (Goar, 165), St. Chrysostom (ib. 75), the Greek Alexandrine Basil and Gregory (Ren. i. 65, 99). See also the Coptic Basil, Gregory, Cyril (ib. 13, 28, 46). Similnrly, the enrly Syrian liturgies, St. James (Ren. ii. 31 ), St. Basil (586), \&c. St. Chrysostom, however (Goar, 76), only names the angels, archangels, cherubim and seraphim, while the Armenian is yet more simple: " $\mathrm{He} .$. hath granted us to form part, with the heavenly host, of a spiritual company, and with cherubim and seraphim boldly to sing sacred songs, to cry, to coll, and say, Holy," \&c. (Neale, Introd. 534). Nor are the several orders, as in Col. i. 16, mentioned in the Nestorian liturgies (Ren. ii. 589, 617, 628 ; Malab. Raul. 312); though this part of the preface is long in them; but we cannot infer from these fnets that they were not numed in the npostolic originals; for the passage ubove cited from St. James is fully recognised in St. Cyril's quotations from the liturgy of Jerusalen ( $1 .$, s.).
The prefaces of St. Mark and the Ceptic St. Cyril, which is derived from it, are strangely interrupted by very long forms of intercession and by the rending of the diptychs, which are introduced immediately before the reference to the angelic hosts now under consideration (Ren. i. 41, 146).

In the West this part of the prefnce is variable. There were four forms of it in the Roman liturgy, of which the most common is as follows: "Et ileo cum angelis et archangelis, cum thronis ef dominationibus, cumque emni militia ( relestis exercitus hymnum tuae gloriae camimus, sine fine dicentes, Sanctus," \&e. (Murat. Sacr. Lcon. i. 312, 314, Rce. ; Gielas. 501, 503, Rc.; Gre., ii. 8 , $9,10,8 \mathrm{cc}$.). For the others, see Ster. Tiel. $i$. 494, 575 , \&e., Greg. ii. 322 ( (trum lutumf): Leon. 1. 315, Gel. 517, 554, \&e.; Gies/. 1. 2, 192, \&c. (Per quem Te, or Per quem mujestatem); Ucel. i. 572 ; Grej. ii. $9 n$ (Sed et supernad virtutes). These forms are found in the Gnllican and Ambrosian liturgies, but often varied, and with severnl others; e.g.--"Ante cujus sacratissimam sedem stant angeli atgne archnngeli, et sine cessatione proclumant, dicente, 'Sanctus," \&e. (Miss. Goth. in Lit. liall. 198): "Congratuletur innumerabilis muititulo angelerum exercitus, cum quibus iunumerabilem gloriam tuam canimus, sine fine dicentes, Sinctus," \&c. (Miss. Ambr. Pamel. 1. 300). in the Mozarabic rite no preface seems in this part to follow any other. Some are very ambitious, while others are ns simple. Ex. "Cum nagrlis atque archangelis landantibue atque ita dicentibua, Sanctus," \&c. (I.eslie, 15).

The Hosinna.-Even the hosanna which followed the sanctus is included by lididore (de of i. 15, § 3) in the illation (" in qua etinm et ad Dei lnudem terrestrium creaturarum virtutumque coelestium universitas provecatur et asanna in excelsis cantntur"); but this will be more properly noticed in aseparnte article on the Sascrus itself.
(II.) A short address in which the people are taught the intention of the prayer or office which follows. The word is chiefly so used in the liturgies of Gnul. In a complieto Gallican missa a preface follows the "Cullatio post Precem." "The collect which it precedes and explnins is usually hesded Culle tio sequitur, but often merely Collectio [Missa, X. (3) (c)]. It begins the Missa Fidelium, nad corre sponds exactly to the "Missa" of the Goths in Spain [Mıssa, V.]

In certain intercessions said on Faster Eve in the churohes of Gnul [Preces, § ii.] the severa! prayers are preceded by short addresses which are called profaces in the Missale (inthicum. E.g. "Oratio pro Infirmis. Pruefatio. Let us beseech the God of all health, and I.ord ef all power for our brethren and sisters, who are sfflicted in the flesh by various kinds of sickness, that the Lord will grant unto them the heavenly gift of His medicine; througl.," &c. "Oratio sequitur. 0 Lord, to whom it is an easy thing to raise the dead to life, restore to the sick their former health," &c. (Lit. Gall. 245). The Missole Gothicum has twelve such prefices, the Galli: canum Vetus (ib. 359) thirteen, ench followed by the prnyer for the object announced in it.
The Ambrosinm missnl has a Praefatio chrismatis, in which the bishop on Mnundy Thursidy invites the people to pray for the benediction of the chrism (Kituale SS. PI. P'amel. i. 341). In the Gelasinn ascramentary (Murat. Lit. Roma Vet. i, 621) the bishop begs the pruyers of the congregation for those whom he is nbout to bless or ordnin in forms entitled "Prnefatic Ostinrii, Leetoris, Exorcistae," &c., and the phrnse is retnined in the Gregorimn pontifical (is ${ }^{415}$, 406, &c.).

PRESANOTIFIED, MASS or LITURGY OF. Any communion of the reserved elements might be so called; but in practico these phrnses wer communions in Le been expressly cu In the Eiast, co .sec arly period thren days nind Sundays vere equally forbic Ere ; in Italy, i.e. arery friday in Le to communicats on smetijied, i.e. of th
The East.-The bald early in the E probably nbout 36 gter bread in Len the Lonl's Dny nlor rather to state and to establish a new nions were valued, ever renson practi won develop itsel respecting it carlies in 691 : "Let the annctified [gifts] be the fast of the $h$ Ssbbath and the Lo the Annuncintion" of the presnnctified Goar, 190) was prot of Constantinople so the date of the coun Only the Greeks the presinctified. reserve on the litur Ecchellensis, Epist. a de Eccl. Occid, et Or They celebrated eve Saturday; but the of rheir Jewish obser The West.-Probn testriction on celebs in the epistle of Pse "It is an establish were in grief durit Pridsy and Easter E themselves from fear is it doubtful that they fasted to such a of the church holds $t$ church should not be those two dnys" (§ 4 writer is stating, of It is probable that Ea: s dies clausus; but t very obscure. The prescribees reservation the communion on $\mathbf{G}$ introdaced in the 7th of thst age, which ap $a$ translation from $t$ sscraments of the alt Thursday] in a large the Jews shall seei: the sixth day [of holy day be hid in our mine the sacrament; Regule Cd. Reg. ii. 406). Th the MS. of which le of that, efter certaln p: Fridsy, "the deacons and come forth with the Lord, left from th
t. Sucr, Leon. l. c. ; Grey, ii. 8, e Stor. (iel, luem laudant!. ec. ; Gre\%. or quem mujes. - (Sed et sujer. found in the es, but often 1 ; e.g. --" Ante $t$ angeli stique roclamart, dih. in Lit. fioll. bilis multitulo innumerabilem dicentes, sinc300 ). In the in this juart to ery ambitious, "Cum nugrlis Iue itn dicentinna which folIsidure (do Off. etiam et ad bei a virtutumque ir et osinna in ll be more proon the Sanctus ich the people the prayer or d is chietly s In a complete the "Cullectio which it preheaded Cullectio - Missa, X. (3) um, and corre. f the Goths in 1 Faster Eve in ii.] the several Wresses which (iotlicun. E.g. Let us beseech fall power for afflicted in the , that the Lord nly gift of His tio sequitor, 0 $g$ to raise the their formes The Nissale ces, the Gallich followed by ed in it. Praefatio chrisundy Thursda? benediction of el. i. 341 ). In rat. Lit. Ront yers of the connbout to bless efntic Ostiaril, the phrnse is cal ( $i^{3}$ 405,
[W. E. S.]
S OR LI of the reserved ut in practice

Presanctified

PRESANCTIFIED
1697
these phrnses were applied only to those public coumunions in Lent fior which the elements had been expressly consecrated on a previous day. In the East, co secrations were forbidden from an marly period throughout Lent, except on Saturdays and Sundays ; in the church of Rome they vere edually forbidden on Good Friday and Easter drey friduitst ont those dnys received of the prewo connumuicnt on those days recived of the pree-auctiject, i.e. of the previously consecrated gits.
The East.-The ioundntion of the rite was bid early in the East. The council of Laodicen, probably nbout 365 , anys, "It ia not lawful to offer lirend in Lent, except on the Sabbath and the Lorl's Day nlone " (can. 49); which appenrs rather to state end confirm an old chastom than to establish a new. In an age when cemmunions were valued, and Reservation for whaterer renson practised, the final result would roon develop itself; but we have do decree respecting it enrlier than that of Conatantinople in 691 : "Let the sacred liturgy of the preanctified [gitss] be performed on all the daye of the fast of the holy Forty Days, except the Sablsth and the Lord's Day, and the boly dsy of the Amuncintion " (can. 52). The Greek liturgy of the presanctified (which eee in the Euchologion, Gasr, 190) was probably compiled by Germanus of Constnntinople some twenty-four years after the date of the council there (Goar, 210).
Only the Greeks ealebrate a proper liturgy of the presanctified. The Marenites do oct even reserve on the liturgic days of Lent (Abraham Ecchellensis, Epist. ad B. Nihusium in Leon. Allnt. de Ecel. Occid, ct Orient. Consens, ad calc. 1663). They celebrated every day in Lent, except on Sturrday; but the exception was only a part of their Jewish observance of that day.
The West.-Probally the earliest notice of a testriction on celebrationa in the West occura in the epistle of Pseudo-Innocent to Decentius: "It is an established fact that the spostles wre in grief during these two days (Good Pridsy and Enster Ere), and also that they hid Findsy and Enster Eve), and also that they hid themselves from fear of the Jews they fasted to such a degree that the tradition of the church holds that the seerameots of the church should $"$ not be celebrated at all during those tivo dyys " (§ 4 ; Hard. Conc. i. 997). The writer is stating, of course, the rule of Rome. 4 is probabls that Easter Eve was not long thus a dies clansus; but the history of the rite is sery obscure. The present rule, which only prescribes reservation on Mnuady Thursday for the conmunion on Good Friday; was probably iatrodsced in the 7th century. A monastie rule of thast nge, which appears to be in great part 8 translation from the Greek, says, "Let the sacraments of the altar be consecrated [on the Thursdyy] in a large glass paten, that when the Jews shall sees Christ for the passion on the eixth day [of huly week], He may on that day be hid in our minds " thruagh recerpion of the sacrament Re the sacrament ; Regula Magistri, 53 ; fits sten.
C.d. Reg. ii. 406 . Cud. Reg. ii. 406). The Gclasian sacr meatery, the MS. of which is of the sth century dircets thist, after certain prayers proper to Gond finst, after certain prayers proper to Gond Pidsy, "the deacens go joto the sacrarlum, nnd come forth with the body and blood of und come forth with the body and blood of the Lord, left from the precediag dsy, and set them on the altar." The Lord's Prayer with its preface and embolls having been then said, as before other communione, "all adore the boly cross and communionte" (Litury. Rlum. Vet. Murst. I. 562). This procedure is recognized by the Reman Order of a Puntifioal Mass, cormpiled (it is thought) nbout 730. The bishop, "when they have said Amen (after the 'Libers nos '), takes of the SANcta, and puts it into the cup, snying nothing; and thay all communiente in silence" (Ordo R. i. 35, in Mus, Itul. ii. 23). Similarly, in a monastic ordo, seemingly of about the same sge : "Let the deacon take the body and blood of the Lord, which was left previously on the dny of Coena Domini, and was consecrated, and put it on the altnr, and let all partake of the body and blooi of the Lord in silence " (Breviar. Ecel. Ord in Thesaur. Nioo. Anecd. Mart. et Dur. v. 108). The Gelasian rubric is found copied into the rites of Noyons, Rheims, Riès, and Gellone, all preserved in MSS. of the 9th century (Martene de Ant. Eccl. Rit. iv. $23, \S 27$ ).

1t was from Rome that the Gallican charch thus received the rite ; for it is not found in her enrlier books. The remsins of the GothicoGallican missnl (Liturg. Gall. Mnbill. 23i-239), the Gallicanum Vetus (itid. 349-354), the Besancon sacrumentary (Mus. Ital. i. 315-318), and the Gallican lectionary (Lit. Gall. 128-133), give proper prayers and lesseos for Maundy Thursday and Gnod Friday, but there is no allusiod in them to the mass of the presanctified. Nor do we find any in the writings of Germanus, or in any other Gellican authority.
Nor do we discover any trace of it in the original office of Gothic Spain. It is not mentioned by St. Isidore ( $d_{0}$ Offcc.), nor by any of the Spenish councils. On the other hand, the ceuncil of Toledo, 633 , complains that "throughout some churohes the doors of the basilicas were closed on the 6th foria of our Lord's passion (i.e. on Good Friday), and neither was office celebrated nor the passion of the Lord preached." The council therefore ordered-not that a mass of the presanct:fifed should be celebrated-but that the mystery of the cross should be preached ou that day, "and that all the people should in a loud voice implore the pardon of their sins"; that by this means they might be prepared for their communion on Easter Day (cen. 7). The service for Good Friday, now found in the Mozarabic missal, ia of a late date: "missa prassanctificatorum adjecta videtur" (Mabillon, Comm. in Ord. Rom 11; Mus. Ital. ii. 1xxr.).
We have no evidence of the practice of Roman Africa later than that of St. Augustine, who refere more than once to the service for Good Friday ("sclemniter legitur passio, sclemniter celebrstur," Sorm. 218; so again 232), bot gives no hint of the peculiar rite in question.

The Communion.- The mass of the presanctified originated in the desire to commonicate on Good Friday, or on other days when consecrntion was prohibited. On Good Friday (Parnscere), saya Amalarius, "the body of the Lord is not consecrated. it is necessery that they who have the wish to communicate havo the sacrifice from the preceding dey" (de Ecol. Off. i. 12). This was at first a general cum-

1698

PRESBYTER

haberet in fundamentum Corpus Dominl" (ibid. iv. 20). So accordilig to the Gelasian rubric, the Ordo Romanus, and the Rpi vimitum, quoted above, "all commanis Amalarlus (about 820) went tu f.
1简 4 ) thia cuatom already nlmobute them - in station in which the apositolical wislutes the eross, no one there communicates " ( $6,3,1,15$ ).
The reader may refor to Leo Allatins de Missi Proesinctificalorum apud Graecos Dissert. ad cale. Op. do Ecct. Occ, et Or. Comsens. Col, Agr. 1648, pp. 1530-1607; Io. Bona, Rerum Liturij. 1. 15, § 5, with Sala's notes; Notitia Eucharintion, pp. 897-903, 2nd ed. ; and to more brief notices In Martene de Ant. Ecrt. Mit. 1. iil. 1. § 18; Merstl, Norae Observ. in Gavanti, Comm. in Rubr. 1. 79; Z. 1. van Espen, Comment. in Jur. Vet. Canones, can. Trull. 52, Opp. vii. 147, Ven. 1781 ; Cave, Diss. ii. ad calc. Hist. Liter. v. Aetтoupyado.
[W. E. S.]

PRESBYTER. [PRIEsT.]

ITHESIYTERESS. 1. Presbytera (rarely, an. a 1 murently Inter, presbyterisso) is somptimes found in ecclesiastical Latin from the 6th century and onwards for the wife of a presbyter, esp-cially for a wife who had come under the rule which, In somie parts of the Westarn church, made married continenco compulsory. Conc. Turon. A.d. 567, c. 19, and Canc. Autissindor. A.d. 578 ? c. 20 , forbid a presbyter from asoocinting with his presbytera; S. Greg. M. Epist. 9, 7, implies that in such cases the wife went to a monastery, where, however, she did not become a monacha or adopt the monastic dress. Rather lnter the word is found for the widow of a presbyter ( $=$ the enrlier "vidua," or "relictn, presbyteri." 1 Conc. Tulet. c. 18, Cunc. Fpaon. e. 33, 1 Conc. Aurel. c. 13), viz. in Roman councils under Gregory 11. in A.D. 721, c. l. and under Zachary in 743, c. 5, both of which anathemntize any one who marries either a presbytera or a diacona.
2. For the ase of $\pi \rho \in \sigma \beta \hat{v} r i s$, presbytemu, and presbyterissa in the sense of a church officer, see Widows and Virgins.
[E. H.]
PRESBYTERY (1). The part of the church
 aßata, пребßuтepeíay) (Sic in Suldas) Presbyterium, Sacrarium, Sadetuarium, Altarinm. (Secretariun in second counell of' dised, cinn. 15, ace, to Martene).

According to the most ancient arrangement of churches, the presbytery was the part behidd the altar which contsined seats for the blwhop and priests. It was early described in the West as foiluws: ". . . loce, ubl sacerdates, reliquive clerici consistunt, quod presbyterium nu! patur . . ." (Synodus Romana sub Eugenic (824), ap. Dueange. Quoted as Clemens Paps in labbe, vol. i. 116).
The presbytery was divided from the reat of the building by rails ( $\kappa$ (\%кגides, cancelli), which were meant to render it inaccessible to all but clergy (Euseb. Rist. Fecl. Lib. x. 4). "That it wus separated by rails "a relinua aede "appeurs in the Roman syned under leo IV. The first council of Bracara (can, 31) preserihes that it is "not lawful for laymen to enter the sacrarium to communicate, but only for the clerice." A Roman synod, under Leo IV., in the 9th (qu.)
century, forbida those who are not in oriers to enter It. [C'ancelhi Chancel; Chome]

In later times come ambiguity has erept in as to the une of the term presbytery, the doubt being whether it applies to a space loffore tha altar or beinind It, und whether the presingtery forma, strictly speaking, any part of the choir of a great chureh, or la to be carefully distin. guished and architecturally suparated from it. These luter uses it does not belong tos then prevent volume to discuse at length; but with regarl to the precise latitude of the term in ear!y ceno turies this much may be saict, that no ancient nessige 1 - $n$ found whers presbytery doen nut uean the jart of the cliturch which contained the altar. In later times the usagg of the word is certainly twofold, it being sometimea identical with choir," and sometimes pointedly distinguished from it.
[11. IT. A.]
(2) Presbyterium, пресßutipiad ( $\pi р є п \beta u \tau \in-$ peîov), are sometimes used to denote the body of presbyters taken collectively that is, as equivalent to to tûy $\pi_{\mu}=\sigma \beta u \tau<\rho \omega \nu$ auvéspay. This use is found in the New .estament in reference to buth Jewish (St. Luke $\times x i i .611$; Acta xxii. 5) and Christlan ( Tim. iv. 14) presbyters. Other early instances are, In Jreek, S. !guit. ad Epheq. c. 2,4 ; Clem. Alex. Strom. 6, 13, j. 793 , ed. Pott. ; Origen, Hom. xi. in Hicren. c. 3, val. iii. p. 189, ed. Delarue; S. Basil. Epist. 81 (319) ad Innocent. vol. iv. p. 174 ; and, in lat io, S. Ce prian. Epist. 48 (45, ed. Hartel, p. 610); Collist. Carting. c. 130, Migne, P. L. vol. $\times 1.1499$, For the functions of the preabyters actiug col. lectively aee Prisst.
(3) The same words are also used to denota the office of a presbyter. Early instances of thin are, in Greek, Origen. Hom. in Jatt. XI. e. 25, vol. iii, p. 690, ed. Delarue ; S. Athnnas. Apv. © Arian. c. 47, vol. i. p. 131 ; S. Epiphan. c. Ilure, 68, 2, p. 717 ; and in Latin, S. Cyprian. Epit. 49 (52, ed. Hartel, p. 619), 34 (39, ed. Hartel, p. 584) ; Pont. Diacon. ;'it. S. Cyprún, c. 3 ; S. Siric. Epist. 1. c. 13 ; S. Innecent. I. Epitt 38 ud Maxim. et Sever.; 2 Conc. Hispal. c. 5
[E. H. $]_{1}$

pRESENTATION. [Patron.]

PRESENTATION IN THE TEMPLE. [Mary, Festivals ofi § $1, \mathrm{p} .1140 ; \S \xi_{1}$ p. 1144.]

TRESIDIUS, confessor in Aftice ; comanemorated Sept. 6 (Usuard. Mart.).
[C. H.]
PRIA MUS, martyr in Sardinin, with Aemlliua, 1 , lix, and Lacianus; commemorated M3y 28 (Usuard. Mart. $;$ Mart. Mon.).
[ᄂ. il.]
$I^{\text {n }}$ TEST or PRESBYTER. I. Numes for: (1) p\|oßúv:pos, presbyter (in inscription somm wes жpeakoírepos, e.fy. on a tomb at Melos of the 3 rd or 4 th century, Cor/nise Inser. Gr. vol. iv. No. 9288; praeshiter, Inser Hisp. Christ. ed. Huebner, No. 67 ; presiter, iund. No. 174, 189; praesbyter, De Ressi, Inscr. Christ. Mom. Ne. 303, Corpus Inscr. Lat. ed. Mommsen, vol. iii. No. 755 ; prnesviter, ibud. No. 975); in use in Egypt of the officers of a temple, o. g. at Diospulas in the time

- Just as In modern Kugilsh the term choir ta otived applted to that eastern Ilmb of a cathedral whitch strictly comprises presbytery as well as chalr.
ofClenpatra, Corp add of the "hoadm Lettre à M. Letro dised de leide, p . of ita use among to of the lueal court Jerasalenn tile ma scount will be fol novestanentlichen thast it had becoune to persons of a lvan Pbils, rol. ii. p. 481 tinea, S. Cyriil. Alex Aubert ; Isidore of : hence P'seullo-Anac that Christian pren account of their ag though he adds, "'I insiplentes constitu for a professur in achools; cf. Schwe Dises. i. 9,10 . Its the N. T. e.g. Tit. i. wob-apostulic to mo references, Clem. R. 2,4 (where Origend preserves the Greek Lstin version remder by turiores"), Papi (where, as is well kat oi tha term in both th discossel: a convenie of the subjeet will b fragments of P : ins Pitres Ap ston , fas Clem. Ai. Strom. 6, use amoag non-Cat the tnost interestion, probsbiy the ear ${ }^{3}$ Christian buil/ling) tion on a Marcionite Ali) neâr Damaseus, et Waddington, Inscr val. iii. No. 2558; tha Arisms sppears from ( $e$, Vandul. 5, 13. (2) 'I instances of the use of to the efficers whe we byters are open to wometimes heen questio aot reserve them exciu but Epist. 35, vol. ii. p p. 334, clearly refer to 44, 3, vel. ii. p. 263, w p. 14), even deacons al el disconibus non defuit the 5th century onwar their caminon epplica Soerat. II. E. i. 27; C (where presbyters are it 1 Conc. Turon. A.D. 461 c. $3,4,10 ;$ S. Greg. M epitsph on pope Dai marked "lector, levita 1164, 11, from a Palatin bat impartant teet:monit deiphia, de $B_{y}$ antinis vol i. p. $5 \bar{z}$, ed. Venet. $\tau \hat{\omega}$ on ol Xosrтiapol na入aîo coarse of time, huwever, bishops and preshyters an ChBIST. ANT.-VOL. 1

PRIEST

of In orders to ; Chosh. has erepit in an ery, the doubt sace before the the presiliytery t of the choir arefully distin. raterl from it. ; to the jresent with regard to lil ear!y ven. hat no anclent areatiytery doen ch which eon. he uasige of the eing bometimes inues printedly [II, 'T, A.] ov ( $\pi p \in \pi \beta u t e-$ enote the body Iy that is, ament in referxxil .64 ; Acta 14) jresbyters. k, S. !gnat, ad . $6,13,1$, 793 , crem. c, 3 , vol. Epist. 81 (319) d , in la in, S . p. 610) ; Collst. vol. A. 1498. crs auting col-used to denote nstances of this cult. XI. с. 28 , thanas. Apol. c jhan. c. Hures, 'yprian. Epits. 39, ed. Hartel, Cyjrím. с. 3 ; cent. J. Efpist, Hispal. c. 5 .
[E. H. ]

E TEMPLE . $1140 ; \S 5$ ica; cemmemo
[C. H.]
iia, wit: Aeminorated Msv 28
[l. Il.]

1. Names for: in inscriptiona tombe at Melon Inscr, Gr. vel. Tisp. Christ. ed. No. 174, $189 ;$ Roms. No. 303, ol. iii. No. 755 ; in Egypt of the olis in the time rm choir is ofen tral which strictly

PRIEST

ofClenpatra, Corpus Inser. Ar. vol, III. No, 4717, and of the "harimen" of a village, Renvens 3 me lettre is If. Latronur sur les P'ipyrus grees du Nusée de Leith, p, 32, cf. C. 1. A. vol. iii. p. 204 ; of its use annong the Jewn for the members both of the local courts and of the chief court st Jernalem the most tritatworthy and concise scoosnt will be found in Schilrer, Lothroweh der noutestimentlichon Zuitipesohishte, DJ. 402 n 74. that it had become a title, anl was not conllineid to persona of a lvanced years is clear from (e, \%.) Philo, vol. i1. p. 481, ed. Mangey (so in Christian times, S. Cyrill. Alex. in 1sai. III, vol. Jil. p. 55, ed. Aubert; Jailoro of Seville do E'coles. Ojf. 2, 7, and hence l'seudo-Angcletun, Ejvisf, Ii. c. 22, explains that Christian presbyters are so called, not on sccount of their age, but "jropter sipientiam," though lue adfs, "quod si itia elt mirnm est eur insipientes constituantur ") it wis alio in use for $s$ professor in some of the philosophlal mbools ; ef. Schweighiaser's note to Epictet. Dios. I. 9, 10. Its Christinn use begins with the N. T. e.g. Tit. I. 5, and la continued through tub-apostolle to modern timen; e.g. for early references, Clem. R. 44, 5, 47, 6, Hermas, Vis 2,4(where Origsn de Princip. 4, 11, vol. I. p. 168, preserves the Grek form, which the common Latin version renters by "senlores," the Pslatine br "t priores"), Papins np. Euseb, $/$ I. A, 3, 39 (where, as is well known, the precise application of the term in bath the expresslens of rjearBérepos and d taerßírepos 'lwduvys has been frequently discrssel: a "onvenient index to the literature of the subject. will be fonnd in the note to the frabments of $1^{2}$...ias in Gebhnolt and Haranck's Pifres Apisto. fasc. 1. 2, p. 90, ed. 1878), Clem. Al. Strom. 6, p. 793, ed. Putt. ; of its use among non-Cst lic Christian churches, the most interestin reample (which is also probably the ear at existing inserijution on a Christian builling) is that of the inscription ea s Marcionite church Thababa (DevlAli) neår Damascus, dnted A. $\mathrm{D}_{\text {, }} \quad$ 3, ap, Le Bas at Waddington, Inscriptions greoples el listines, vol. iii. No. 2558 ; that it wrs in use among the Arisns appears from (e.g.) Victor Vitens, de Persec. fandul. 5, 13. (2) 'lepeús, awcribos: the early imstances of the nse of these terms in reference to the offieers who were commonly called presto the officers who were commonly called presbytery are open to much dispute; it has sometimes been questioned whether Cyprian does not reserve them exciusively for the ejisconate, but Epist. 35, vol. ii. p. 325, Epist. 40.3 , vol. ii. p. 334, clearly refer to preshyters, cf. id. Epist. 14, 3, vol. ii. p. 263, where (as in Optatus, i. 13, p. 14), even deacons are inclnded, "preshyteris et diaconibus non defuit sacerdotii vigor; "from the 5th century onwards, there is no doubt of their cemmon application to presbyters, e.g. Socrat. II. E. i. 27 ; Const. Apost. 2, 25; 8, 46 (where presbyters are if $\rho \in i \mathrm{~s}$, bishops $k \rho \chi$ iepeis); 1 Come. Turon. A.D. 461, c. 1, 4 Tolet. A.D. 633, c. $3,4,10 ; S$. Greg. M. Dial. 1,11 ; so in the epitsph on pope Damasus the grades sre marked "lector, levitn, sacerdos," Gruter, p. I164, 11 , from a Palstine MS. ; cf. the confused bot important testimany of Malchus of Philsdelphis, de B. 5 , ed. Vatinis Penet. Corpus Hist. Byzant. course of time, however, the inclurive repov. In course of time, however, the inclurion of both for bishops and preshytere under a siugle term was OHRIST. ANT.-VOL. 11.
found Inconvenient, and preabyters were sometimes - precinlly designated as secundi sucerdites (law of Theolosius an! Valeotiniar, probably a.d. 430 ap. Huenel, Corpus Legurn ante Justinanam Letturum, No. 118 si, 1. 2.11, who quates as his authority a Curbey DS. given by Sirmond in lide Appenit. Coud. Theordos. c. 20 , and his own puper or secundi ondinis sucerdntes (S. Leom. M, Serm. $48[47]$, c. 1, vol. 3.1 . 181, Silon. Ajwllin. Lipiss. 5, 25, p. 126), or minuris ondiais enveridotes (S. Gireg. M. Ifom. in Eizech. lit. ii. Ilom, 10, c. 13, where, however, deacons may be Included, as they jrobably are, in Stath. Eweles, Autiq. c. 27, "inferioria (Findur sacerdotes")-or simply orib secundes (F'redegoli, Vit. S. Wiffrid, e. B, Migne. P. L., vol. exxxiii. 9s7), or of dк тồ ठeurépsu өpdvou (Épise. Constant. M. ap. Euseh. II. E. 10, 5); so "pres. byteros in seeundo saterdotio constitutos," Optat. de Sohism. Donut. 1, 13, p. 14; 80 in the l'seulo-faidorian decratala $L_{\text {tpist. }}$ A ; inaclet. 3 , c. 28. Innocent 1, erisistum ordo bipertitus ent, S . Innocent 1. E'pist. ud Decent. c. 3, "presbyterl non habent."

The linglish word "priest" Is the later form of the Anglo-Snxon "prlost" (Cotton MS. Augustus, ii. 79, A.D. 805-831, a Kentish charter, printed in Ancient Churlers in the British Museum, vol. i.) or "preust" (frequently found, cog. Conc. Hergh. e. 7 ap . Wilkins, Councils, vol. i. p. 60 ; Leg. Aelfr. ibid. 1', 193), the derivation of which from "presbyter" is probathle, but by no means certaln: in the A.-S. Churniche, an, 661, id. Thorpe, p. 54 , the MS. of Corpus Christi Collega, Cambridge, has "mnesse preost," the Boilleian MS, "preost," but Cotton Bls $工$. Tiberius A. 6 and B. 1, have the nbbrevintion "prb." The A. S. "sncerd " $=$ "sscerdoa " has nut survired in modern English.
II. Niture of tho Priesthood, and its Relutions to in ishops and Dawcomi - In one of the twe passages in which the word dккл pola is placed by the Evangelists on the lips of our Lord, it is mentioned not merely ns an assembly, but as one to which disputes could be referred, and whose decision in relation to such disputes ought to be respected. The eкклŋjola was conceived, in short, as a court of disciplino. As such it continued among Christians the functions which had con to be fulfilled by the synagogue among Jews; nor was it separated from the synagogue even in name, Eкrג nola and ouvarwh being convertible terms not only in the LXXX, but also in most enrly Christinn writers. (See Jarnack's elaborato note in Hilgenfeld's Zeitschrift für vissenschaftriche Theotojic for 1876, p. 104; and also Bickell, Geschichte des K̈rchenrechty, BI. ii. p. 1..) But the Jewish synagogus only possessel disciplinary powers by virtue of its prsctical amalgamation with the auvésptov, that is, by virtue of the presence in it, though properly distinct from it, of a body of $\pi \rho \in \pi B \hat{u}^{\prime} \in \rho 01-a$ corjoration or college of eldors, who formed the local court for administrative as well as judicial purposes. It is therefore natural t.j suppose that when the Jews who became Christians met in assemblies and formed communities which bore the accustomed names, they continued in these assemblies and communities the main features of the accustomed organizstion. And this is in fact the case. Presbyters are found from the first in the Judseo-Christian commnnity at Jerualem (Act xi, $30 ; \times 7,2,4,6,22$, 23 ; xvi. 4; xx. 17), at Ephenus (Acts 8x. 17), In the chupchea of Ania Minor which were organized by Barnabam and Saul (Acta xiv, 23), and in the churches which are addreaned by those of the apoatien who were mont conservative of Jewish usagen, St. I'eter and St. Jamen (James v. 1t; 1 Pet. v. 1). (lt usust be noted as a aignificant fact that they are not once mentioned by St. Paul, except in the I'astoral Epistles.) It in a fair inference that officera who bore the same name in analogoua communities hat analogous functiona, and that the Christian, like the Jewish, presbyters were officera primarily not of worship but of discipline. This inference in corroborated by the fact that all the refarences to them which exiat in both the canonical and the extra-canonical writinge of the apostolic and suh-ajostolic age refer to disclipline. (1) In the canonical writings, excluding of course those passages in which the reference is not to organization but to the possession of xapl $\sigma \mu a r a$ every passage in which church officert sre mentioned apenks of either the exercise of authority or of the practice of its corrolative, obedience. in 1 Thess. v. 12, roìs nooloraúivour are spoken of as pouferoûrcas ; in IIeb. xlii. 17, obedience is onjoined to the leadera of the community as being those who "watch for your soula;" in 1 Peter $\vee .1$, the presbyters are regarded as shepherds, and are exhorted to exercise control, over slaves (кaranupiedovrer), but as being themselves examples of the qualities which they require in others; in the Acts of the Apostles it is on queations of chureh discipline that the spestles and elders meet in the council of Jeruanlem (c. sv.), and afterwards st the end of St. Paul's second missionary journey (axi. 18,25 ); in the Pustoral Episties, among the qualitien which are enumerated an deairable in bishopa and presbytera fitness for teaching ( $\delta, 8$ aктiк $\delta \mathbf{5}$ ) and -soundness in the faith (avrex ${ }^{\text {duevov roú кard rinv }}$ anted to the possession of the morsl qualities which are necessary in a moral governor, and which in the Apostolical Constitutions are exprossly takea as correlative to the exercise of diacipline. (2) In the extra-canonical writinge of the Apoatolic and sub-Apostolic age the same position is held by the presbyters, and obedience to them is similarly eajoined-rg. Clem. R. $\mathbf{i}$. 57; Ignat. out Trall. 3, ad Mayres. 2; Polyearp, ad Philipp. 5; and the Ebionites appear to have kept up the original distinction, which had opparentijy become in most casea obliterated among the Jews themselves between the dipXiouvdyayou, or proper officers of the synagogue, and the (S. Epiphan. ado. Haeres, $x \times x$. 18).

Whethar the institution of presbyters existed in the first inatance outside the limits of the Judaeo-Christian communities is doubtful. There is no evidence that it did so; the presumption is that it did not, for when St. Paul, writing to charches which were presumably non-Jewiah in their character, recognizes the existence of churoh .officers, he designates them by other names-
 i. 1).

(1.)

Relations of Presbyters to Bishops.-What were the primitive relations of prembyters to biahope is a yuention which cannot be overloeked, and yet to which, with the evidenee ut premat Evaifable, only a tentative nawer cron be gives. Bont probsbly, as the former were of Jewiah, a the latter were of Gentile origin, and as the furmer prealied over Jewish, an the latter, in the first inatanoe, presiled over Gentile communities. Hence, when the distinction batween Jushah and Gentile communities began to timle away, the two sets of offleera, fultilling, as they insi, mallow goua functionm, were regarded aa baving muivao lent rank. This point must be takell as having been conceded by almost all important writers upon the sulject in both ancient anll indern times-e.f. In sucient times, $$$. Hibrun. Comm. in Ep. ad Tit. e. i. Id. ; I'p. 146 (85) al Eiouny.; Theoloret, Interp. Ep. ad Philipp. c. i. v. I; Ep. I. ad Timoth. c, iii. v. ]; Ejp, wit Tit. c. i. v. 7 ; S. Isidor. Hiapal. de Eiccles. Uff. lil, ii. c 7 ; Iltabanua Maurus de Chericorum Instit. lib, j. c. 6; and in inodera times, to take only writers whone tendencies are strongly hlerarchical, Prubst (Sacramente, p. 215) ; Döllinger (Firat Aye of the Church (E.T.), vol. Ii. p. 111). (The erjo dence upen which this opinion is hasel will be found in a convenient form in $$_{1}$ p. Lightiont' edition of The Epistle t, the Philipyins, pp. 189 aqg., and in Gebhardt and Harnack's edition of C'ement of Rume, ed. altera, p. 5, sad of the Shepherd of Hermas, p. 25; see also Bant, Kirch. Gesch. 3te Auff. 1. p. 270. It mut, however, be noted that there is a tendency in many writers to presa the evidence tou far, sod to infer an original identity of bishops aul presby. tera, whereas all that can be legitimately infercel is, as stated shove, an equivalence of rank.) As inter-communion increased between JudseoChristian and Gentile communities, those who passed from one to the other tended to use the names bishop and presbyter as interchangeable; but how the two offices came to cu-cxist a distinct offices in the same community is the most difficult point in the whole eoroples quertion; nor does it seem possible upon existing evidence to give any other than the geacral answer that there was a fusion of the JudacoChristian and the Geutile organizutions, and that this fusion was a gradual one. But whether this or some other be the true explanation of the con existence of the two offices, the fact of ouch co-existence must be admitted, slthough it universality may be denied. Out of that fat two other queations apring: (1) How was it that the relative rank of the two oflices changed from one of equivalence to one of subordination; (2) and how was jt that the title enfoкаäat rather than any other attached itself permanently th the head of the eccleaiastical organization.
(1) To the firat questiun many answers bare been given in both ancient and modern times; when, as early as the end of the 4th centurp Aerius appealed to St. Paul's language as evideoce that the difference butween the two orders lay only in the power of ordination (this is expremad by the contrast between $\pi$ ar'́pas yervay $\dot{y}$ $=$ to baptize), propounded the theory tbat in some cases bishops had been appwinted sad ad presbyters, and in others preabyters, but ad bahopa, In eith necesary, and he of deaceus and and prenbyters. (1) a bishop, (2) ragurda the comin ( 1 Tim. v. 1), as diority of the one ade. Wiveres. 1 xxv tamporary with $t$ that the episcopat a a siteguard a Were sevaral prest wadio une was ele "quod joatea unu poneretur in achis pousquisique ad rumperet" (lilere So slao in his $C$ "liem eat ergo antejusing diubodi plerent et diceratui ego Apollo, ego au terarutil consilio Later theories on as to miske the d andless task ; and refer to the more $\mathrm{i}_{1}$ bees advanced dur those of Rothe, 1 Kinche u ihrer adopted in effect bs Church (E. T.), vol. Urspruny des Épisco criticism of Roth Geschichte, 3te Au Ritschl, Dio Entstoh pp. 399 sqq; ; Her der Pastoralloriefe, Anfänje des katholis Without bere ald to those whioh hav treadiog unnecessar it may be useful to bility the queation asswer, and that th bishops varied widel which the churohes may be arranged. stands en a peculiar Apostles preserve th firmed by later sutl kind of presideney community which ex that presidency is u speak of bim as "epi "srchiepiscopus" (i) times, o.g. Conc. Eph contempersry evidenc the designation, nor, 2ad century be admit the designation, is ti shew how far the rele the other apostles, analogous to that w bishops and presbyters probable conjecture is ception of a viaible from the belief in th Advent (Gfrörer, Allge James, as the Lord's occupying Hia place $u$ biahopa. In elther case, however, deacons were nncesary, and hance St. Paul apeaka sometimen of descons and biahopa, sometines of deacona and prenbyters. Assuming that Tinuthy was (1) \& bishop, (2) a bishop in the later sense, he regardo the command, "Reluke not an elider" ( 1 Tim. v. 1), as concluaive proof of the aupere riurity of the one order to tho other (S. Eiplphan. ado. Ulueres. Isxv. 3-6, p. gut). Almust contenporary whith this was the cheory of Jerome, thast the episcopste rone out of the preabyterate as a safeguard againat achism. At tirst there were several presbyters in one church, but afterwaria one was elected to preside over the reat "quod pustes nilua electue est quil caeteris praeponeretur in achismatis remedium factum est, ne nauspuisque ad se trahens Christi ecceainm rumperet " (Illeron. E'p. 146 [ 85 ] ad Evanyed.). So also in his Comment. in Epp, ad Tit, e. i. "ldem eat ergo preabyter qui et episcopus et antejurim, diubodi instinctu, studia in religione firent et diceretur in populia, Ego aum J'auli, ego Apollo, ego autemi Cephae, communi presbyterorute consilio ecclesiae guberpabantur "). Later theoriea on the subject are so numerous as to make the diacuasion of them an almost nadless task; and it must be sutlicient here to refer to the mere important of those whieh have been edranced durlog the present century, viz. been edvanced during the present century, viz.

PRIEST

PRIEST
these of Rothe, Dic Anfönge der christichen these of Rothe, Die Anfange der christichen Lirche u. ihrer Verfassumy, 1837 (which is adopted in elliect by Dollinger, First Ayo of the Church (E. T.), vol, ii. p. 112); Baur (1) üher der Ursprumy des Episcopats, 1838 (which is mainly a criticiam of Rothe's theory), and (2) Kirch. Geschichte, 3te Auflage, Bd. i. pp. 272 nqq.; Ritschl, Die Entstehuny der althatholischen Kirche, pp. 399 sqq. ; Herzog uber die Abfassungszeit dir Pustoralbriefe, 1872 ; Hackenschmidt, Die dnjüpe des katholischen Kirchenbegriffs, 1874.
Without here adding another complete theory to those which have been advauced already, or treading unnecessarily upon debatable ground, It may be useful to point out that in all probability the queation does not sdmit of a single answer, and that the relatione of presbyters to bishops varied widely in the several groups into which the churches of the first two centuries may be arranged. (a) The case of Jeruasalem atands on a peculiar footing. The Acts of the Aposties preserve the tradition, which is confirmed by later authorities, that James had a kind of presidency over the Judaee-Christian cominunity which existed there. The nature of that presideney is uncertain. The Clementines apeak of him as "episcopus" (hecogn. i. 66), or "srchiepiscopus" (ibid. i. 73: so also in later times, e.g. Cono. Ephes. c. 30); but there is no contemporary evidence of his having possessed the designation, nor, even if the tradition of the 2ad century be admitted as to the possession of the designation, is there any such evidence to shew how far the relation in which he stood to the other apostles, or to the "elders," was analogous to that which existed between the bishops sad presbyters of later times. The most probable conjecture is that in this case the conception of a visible head of the church arose from the belief in the nearness of the Second Advent (Gfrïrer, Allgem. kirch. Gesch. i. p. 271 );
James, ss the Lord's brither, James, 88 the Lord's brother, was regarded as occupying His place until He came. It is aleo probable that, as. Gfriber thiukn, aftor the fall of Jeruaslem, men's thuughte turned to Rome as the centre of the Christian organiation, and that the Peeulo-jetrine literature of the 2ad century, which originated at Rome, had for its chief object to bmpress the hierarchical ideas, of which it is full, upon the Ruman mind. Even in the earlier books of the Apoatolical Conotitutions, which probably refiect the ideas of the 3rd century, the biahop is nut only apxcov wal Apout. 1i. 26i). (b) In the larger communities, such an Rume or Ephenua, ia which the influence If a aingle apustle had for oume years dominated, It was natural that the monarchical ides should tend to prevail stiter the upoatle himaelf had passed away. The existence of such a dominance is here assumed. The clearest and most recent summary of the controverey will be found in A. Hilgenfeld's article, Noch cinmal Petrus in Roun und Johumnes in Kleinasien, in the Zeitschrift f. Wissenach. Theologie, 1877). In nuch communities, therefore, there is atrong historical evidence to shew that from early times there was a recegnized and permanent president. But here also there is no evidence to shew the precise relation in which such a president stood to the preabyterate. It is, however, a significant fact that Ireuseus speaks of the early heads of the Roman chureh as presbyters (in the letter to Victor of Rome in Euseb. II. E. v. 24; sо of Polycarp, in the letter to Florinus, in Euseb. H. E. v. 20). (c) In the case of the ohurches of other elties, in which, it must be borne in miad, there is no evidence of the existeuce of a president or bishop until the middle of the 2nd century, it appeare to be sufficient to point to the general analogy of the contemporary communities, after which in oo msny raspeots the early churches were modelled. Democratical as those communities were in the main, they still had a president. We find such a president (a) in the Greek assuciations, under several titles 2525 . d $\rho \times$ X $\rho a \nu / a t h s$, at Rhodes, C. I. Gr. No. Ino b. Foucart, No. 46, and at Syros, Rose, Insor. Gr. Ined. No. 107, Foucart, No. 44;
 Amorgos, Foucart, No. 45 ; dexitiaaitys, at Delos, C. I. Gr. No. 2271, Foucart, No. 43 ; apxifuvdraryos (of a college of priesta), C. I. Gr.
 C. I. Gr. Nos. 274, 2885, cf. Le Bas et Wadd. No. 223; (b) in the Roman Collegia, very frequently, and under various titlea, e.g. "Magister," at Rome, Orelli-Heazen, Inscr. Lat. Nos. 6010, 6011, Mommaen, C. I. Lat. vol. iii. Ne. 1339, id. de Coll. et Sodal. Rom. p. 106; "praefeetua," at Perusis, C. I. Iat. iii. No. 3432, at Salona, i. Vid.
 Plut. i. 25, which may be compared with the Christian $\pi \rho 0$ oí $\tau d \mu e v o l)$, o.g. C. I. Lat. iii. Nos. 975, 984, 1209.
These special circumstances of particular churches, and the general snalogy of contemporary communities, seem adequate to account for the fact that towards the middle of the 2nd century, il nut earlier, there was a tendency to place a single officer at the head of the eccleaiaatical organization. But the question still remains, nor has it hitherto been answered, except upon purely speculative gronnds, why, assuming the exiatence of this tendency, should this aingle 5 R 2

PRIEST

PRIEST

officer have been cnlled $2 \pi$ lurgotos．The key to tiue problem，which ia attorded by inscriptions which have ouly come to light in recent times，is one of the most important contributima of epi－ graphical science to esrly Christian antiquitics． （1）At Salkhad，in the Haurin arc aeveral inscriptions which contain the word $2 \pi$ iokonou （Le Bas et Waddington，No．1990，cf．No．1990， 2298，2412e；Wetzstein，Aur，ecuahlte Gr．u．Lat． Inschriften，No．47，in Abhandl．der Berl．Akud． 1863；Transactions of the Royal society of Literature， 2 zeriea，vol．v．part 2，p．259）．It appears from thase that the officers so designated bad the charge of the funds of the temple（ $\tau$ à $\tau o \ddot{v}$ $\Theta \in a \hat{v}$ ），and that out of thesc they had erected the building of which the most impertant inscription formed $\Gamma^{2}{ }^{\prime \prime} t$ ．（2） 10 eutire harmony with this is an jusaiption which was found at Thera． （Ross．Inscr．Gr．Ined．fasc．No．2，198；Rhangabé， Antiquites helleniques，vol．ii．No． 764 ；but in a mare exact form Wescher，Revue archéologique， vol．xili．（for 18G6），pp． 245 sqq ．）：－

 Аíwla каі Мелеїттоу

＂It has been decreed（sc．by the community that the $\quad$ miokomos（Ino and Neleippus）shall accept the money and place it at interest This scema to shew that the $\quad 2$ nifkoser of the Greek aasociations were their officers of finance． Such also were in all probability the $\begin{aligned} & \text { тiбкото }\end{aligned}$ of the eurly Christian churchea．One of the most important festures of those churches was thst they were charitable socictica．In an age which， like our own，was marked by great extremes of wealth and poverty，and under circumatances which cut off many of their members from the ordiaary purauita of life，they tended to gnther round them more and more every year the poor and the dependent．They dispensed hospitality to travelling brethren，they tended the sick，and， what was probably the weightiest burden，they supported the widowa and orphana of those who bad died in poverty，or by martyrdem．All thia required not only funds，but a dipp er of funda． It was not possible to distribute a common fund satisfactorily by mesna of a number of officers with equal powers，not necessarily acting in concert．A presiding officer became indispenaable， and the officer so appointed was known by the title which was in current use to designate the financial oficer of a community．This function of the Chriatian biahop continued to be a primary oue，even after many other functiona had clastered round his office．It is not zound to reason from the functiona of bishops in the 3 rd and 4th centuriea to their functions in the first； but at the same time，the fact that the bishops were the cuatodiana and dispensers of church funds in the latar period corroborates the infer－ ence which is drawn from other data that they were so also in the earlier．（Aa the point ia only incidental to the subject of the present article， the evidence in favour of the vlew which is here stated cannot be fu＇ly given；it must he sufficient to refer to che streas which is laid in tha Pastoral Epipt es upon the neces－ sity of a biahop being d．qiAdpy coss and $\phi$ i $\wedge$ \＆． छ⿴\zh11⿰一一⿲⿺𠄌⺀⿺𠄌⺀㇂ 27）the biphops，who are diatinguished from the chielly as ministers of hospinality；to the fact mentioned in Justin（Apol．i．67）that the colle－ tiona of the faithful were deposited in tha president（ $\pi \rho \sigma \in \sigma \tau \omega \dot{s}$ ，the title $\langle\pi i \sigma \kappa o \pi o s$ is not given），and that he ha：the care of widows and orphans and prisonera and strangera；and to the long aeries of ecclesiastical cinons and imprial edicts which regard the bishop specially in the light of trastee of church property．The union of financial sad disciplinary character in tha snme person has a close paralle！in the curutores $=$ лoyıoral of the Rommn monicipalities undes the later empire．For the authorities as to the fuactions of these important officers see Mar－ quardt，Röm．Stwatsverwaltung，pp．487－490．It is a coincidence which is worth mentioning that the curator had the title of pator civitutis．
It is not difficult to see that anch an oilicer in such communities must，from the mere unture of his position，have had considerable power．But several collateral as well a a several derivatiza causes were at work to increase that power，snd to account for the altered status of the pres－ byterate at the end of the 2 nd century as com－ pared with the end of the firat．

1．The custodian of the church funds was also the custodian of the list of peraons among whom those funda were to be divided．He kept the кàむ́l or кatdлoүos．［MATRicula．］Likg the cornesponding liats of contenporary com－ munities（which，however，were rather lists of contributories than of recipients），this list was probably arranged in clnsies，tha presbyters，the deacons，the＂widows，＂snd the＂virgins，＂being severally ranked to－ gether．Heace，like the Roman censors，the custodians of this list seemed to have assumed the function of determining upon the right of particular persons to be admitted to or excluded from the several clasaes．Hence also the bishor， as custodian of the list，was the proper office？ for giving certificates of meinbership．When a Cbristian claimed the hoapitality of a foreign church in his travela，or when he passed per． manently fom ons church to another，snd claimed a placs on the roll of a new com． munity，such a certificats was indispensable． The jealous care with which the right of giriog it waa guarded（Conc．Antioch．c．7）shews the importance which waa attached to it，and sup－ porta the inference that it played no inconsider－ able part in the exaltation of the epriscopate in relation to the presbyterate．

2．The presbyterate also lost ground in the 2nd century through the large development within the churches of opiniona which were at rarimce with the general currenta of apostolic doctrine． The anthority of apostolic doctrine was geneally admitted，and the appeal to it whs not made only on the Catholic aide．Gnnstics，kibiouites， and Ophites，the followers of Carpocrates，of Basilides，and of Valentinus，all trnced bnek their opininna to an apostolic anurce，and maintsined that they were the inheritors of $\mathrm{n} n$ unwritten apostolic tradition（cf．Iren．i． 25,$5 ; 30,14 ;$ Clem．Al．Strom．7，13，p． $882 ; 7,17$, p．900， ed．Pott．）．It became necessary to distinguisi the true from the falae tradition，and the firmet was found not merely in the tradition of apostolic as distlaguished from non－apestolic char ${ }^{\text {tes }}$ （Tertall．Ade．Marc．1，21，＂non alia agnoscenda exit traditio ipserum eccle tradition whi hesds of those successiones ditur ；＂cf． same general cessiune char Tertull．de Pr in other charc depositary and eafer in tise h wers shared by bishop，who hi minent above sort of incarns rupted spring Revoph．3，65̄， ouscipite ductr 60，66；I！ 1 nat． ing century，C ＂inde enim se et orjantur d ecclesiae praees berence of this that which me paragraph is st Prascr：．Hueret． eppellatio frater tatis，quae jura sacramenti una Thess causes force in different means certaia crdo of presbyte general．The $\rho \mathbf{v i}$ of bishops or for be pressed farthe may be admitted is a trust worthy officer existed fro also s．minitting stributea which salves to the epis tha acauming t genuinesess，of the Romans（cf．R of Zahe nad l＇tcid 1874，p．45），hish artain churches i century，without existel in Eyypt admitted thit bis without also adn relation to the p rhich they occup ersmple，was cogi （a）in using＂auec 2，sud＂succession convertible terms； ＂preshyteri＂ns applying the ravis ¥pнтButípaus，4， there was no ease between them． aroided by the makes thst Ireazeu in on unusual sen E．T．p．313．）
But by the begi the orgavization o begun to conform $t$

PRIEST

25 , are regarded ality; to the fac 7) that the collecdeposited in the e en! $\sigma$ кotos is not are of widows and agers ; and to the mons and impurial op specialy in the perty. The union character in the el in the curatores anicipulitics under athorities as to the officers see Mar, pp. 487-490. It th mentioning that ter civitutis.
$t$ such an olicer in the mere mature of rable power. But several derivative se that power, and tatus of the presde century as com.
urch funds was also reons among whom led. He kept the itricula.] Like ontemporary tom. were rather lists recipients), this in clnsies, the " "widows," and rally ranked to. man censers, the I to have nssumed upon the right of tted to or excluded ice also the bishop the proper officer bership. When a tality of a foreign en he psssed perto another, and I of a new com. was indisj be right of giviag h. c. 7) shewa the ed to it, nad supyed no inconsiderf the episcopate in erit traditio apostolorum quam quae hodie ap,ud Ipsorum ecclesine editur'", but specially in the beads of those churches (Iren ${ }^{2}$, 2 " $q$ by the naccessiones presbyterorum in ecclesiia custoditur;" cf. id. 4, 26, 2 (and 4, 33, 8), with tue same general reference, "cum episcopatus successione charisma veritatis acceperunt;" ef. Tertull. de Pracscript. Haeret. c. 32, 26). Hence, la sther churches also the chief officer was the depositary and conservator of the faith. It was safer in the hauds of a single person than if it were shared by a number of persons. Thus the bishop, who had by this time begun to be prominent above the preshyters, was regarded as $n$ sort of incarnate tradition, the pure and uncorrupted spring of apostolic truth (cf. Clem. Recoyn. 3, 65 , ah $\mathrm{i}_{1}$ so" [sc. from the hishop] suscipite ductrinam fidei, cf. ib. 3, 61, Hom. 3, 60,$60 ;$ Ifmat. ad $E_{f} / h e s .3$; so also in the followiag century, Cyprian, Enist. 69, 5, vol. ii. 402, uade enim schismata et hacreses obortac aunt et oriantur dum episcopus qui unus est et eclesiat prasest. ...contemnitur"). The coberence of this function of the episcopate with that which was mentioned in the preceding paragraph is surongly marked by 'lertullian (de Presescr. Hereret. c. 20), "Communicatio pacis et sppellatio frnternitatis et contesseratio hospitalitatis, quac jura non alia ratio regit quam ejusdem sacramenti una traditio."
$t$ ground in the 2nd evelopment within b were at rariance apostolic doctrine trine was generally , it wns not made Inostics, E'bionites, of Carpocrates, of Il traced bnck theit e, and maintsined 's of an unwritten i. 25,$5 ; 30,14 ;$ $82 ; 7,17$, p. 900 sary to distinguish ion, and the former -adition of apostolic apestolic char ${ }^{\text {hes }}$ ou nlia agnoscends
These causes operated with different degrees of force in different communities; snd it is by no meaas certaia when the subordination of the ordo of presbyters to a single officer first became genera. The evidence, whether for the existence of bishops or for their auperior authocity, cannot be pressed farther than the facts warrant. (a) It may be adnitted, for example, that Hegesippus is a trastwortliy witness, and that a presiding officer existed from tbe firsh at Jorusalema without also sdmitting that such an othicer had the stuributss which in later times attached themsolves to the episcopate. (2) It may be admitted tha assuming the genuineness, or approximate genuinenes? of the shorter detter of ignatius to the Roman: (cf. Renan, Ignace d'Antioch, a review of Zahn and lifeiderer in the Journal des Savants, 1874, p. 45), bishops existed as chief officers of artain churches in Asia Minor early in the 2nd century, without also admitting that they existel in Egypt or in Gaul existed in Egypt or in Gaul. (3) It may be admitted that hishops existed ns church officers without also admitting thet they occupied in relstion to the presbyterate the same position whieh they occupied afterward Whieh they occupied afterwards. Jrenaeus, for example, was cognizant of the distinction, but (a) in using "successiones presbyterormn," 3,2 , 2, and "successiones episcoporum," 3, 3, 2, as convertible terms; (b) in speaking of the oflice of tpegAutépous, $4,26,5$, he clenrly implies thet there was no easential difference of function between them. (This conclusion cannot be aroided by the nesumption which Dölinger makes that Irenaeus uses the word " presibyteri" in an unusual sense, Hippolytus and Cullistus, E. T. p. 313.) 1. p. 313.)

But by the beginning of the 3rd century the orgaization of aimeg the orgaeization of almost all churches had begun to conform to a single type, biahop, pres-

PRIEST
1703
byters, and deacons. In some places the older organization lingered on, aud here are many privilegions that the presbyters did not allow their Thivileges to be curtailed without a struggle. the triunuph cane to a hend in Moutanism, and terate was by bo ne cpiscopate over the presbywas crushed monans secure until Montanism 519 squq). (cf. Ritschl, Altheth. Rirche, pp. Cyprian tound some retela against his rule as e.g. Epist. 9, 11); and his quarrel with rie (ef. was based to a grent extent upoo the fact that the latter, though only a presbyter, had ignored Cyprian's chaims as bishop, hy ordaining Felicissimus as deacon, Ep. 49 (52) ; Felicissimum satelsciente sum diaconum nee permittente me nec
When this type was once cone constituit.
circumstances combined to restablished, several nation of the presijyterate more cor the subordioriginal causes of both the more complete. The dizement of the cpiscopare still the aggrannew causes becume mepare still rennined, but causes the most impore active. Ot these new tion of symods, (2) the assimilation the instituzation of the empire, (3) the rise of the organichial system" [tor which see Orders, paroIII.; Pamsi].

But even nitter these influences had begun to operate, the ditference between the two orders was rather $n$ dillerence of rank than of function.
The bishop was "primus inter pares" (cf. Ambrosiast. Comm. in Epist. Y. ad. Tömoth. c. 3, 7, ap. S. Ambros. Up. vol. ii. p. 295, "episcopi et salcerdis una ordinatio est; uterque enim was mos est, sed episcopus primus est "); there was no tunction which he discharged which be disot also, save only as a question of order, proper diarged by a presbyter; even in his proper field of titance he was not an absolute monarch, but the executive officer, at first of the community, and afterwards of the preshyteral college; (of this there are indications eren so lace as Siatt. Lecles. Antiq. c. 23, ut episcopus nulian cansam audiat absque praeseatia clericorum suorum; alioquin irrita erit sententin episcopi nisi clericorum praesentia confimetur ; id. c. 32, irrita erit donatio episcoporam vel couniventia omutatio rei esclesiasticae absque one fuatia et subscriptione clericorum). The one function which Epiphauius and Chrysostum chaim as peculiar to bishops is that of ordination (S. Epiphan. adv. Huer. lib. 3, tom. i., Haer. 74, 3, p. 906 ; S. Chrysost. Hom. 2 in Ep. I. cd. Timoth. c. 3, Migne, ii. p. 553); but we have elsewhero stated the grounds which exist for believing that this was an acquired and not a primary function of bishops, auld it' so, it could not have been part of the original differeace between them and presbyters [sec Orinnation]. In the course of the 6 th and 6 th centuries the subordination became more complete; but as the decrees of councils enable us to trace it step by step, its progress will be sufficiently clear from the fullowing section on the functions of presbyters. It will, however, be convenient to give, by way of coutrast to the statementa of Epiphanius ant Chrysostom, the elnborate canon in which the second council of Seville summed up the differences of function which had come to bo recugnized at the beginning of the 7th century; the canou is more important than most lecal canons,

1704

PRIEST
PRIEST
because the president of the council was the learned antiquarisn Isidere, who is not likely to have expressed merely lucal customs as general rules; it may be added as an indication, that the tendencies of the council were not ultraeplscopal; that the preceding canon had restored to his office a presbyter whe had been deprived by the sole authority of his bishop "sine concllii examine

solui h

 Épiscopus enim sacerdotibus ac ministris solu i honorem dare potest, auferre solus nen petest." The canon in question begins by disallowing the action of Agapius, bishop of Cordova, who had frequently commissioned presbyters in his absence to erect altars and consecrate churches: it then proceeds to state in detail (1) what presbyters could not do under any circumstances, (2) what they could not de either in the presence of a bishop or without his commission ; " nam quamvis cum episcopis plurima illis [sc. presbyteris] ministeriorum communis sit dispensatio quaedam nevellis et ecclesiasticis regulis sibi prohibita noverint ; sicut presbyterorum et diaconorum ac virginum consecratio; sicut consecratio altaris, benedictio vel unctio; siquidem nec licere eis ecclesiam vel altarium consecrare nee per impositionem manus fidelibus baptizatis vel contreversis ex haeresi paracletum Spiritun tradere; nec chrisms conficere nec chrismate baptizatorum frontem signare; sed nec publice quidem in missa quenquam peenitentium reconciliare nec formatas cuilibet epistolas mittere. Haec enim omnia illicita esse presbyteris quia pontificatus apicem non habent qnem selis deberi episcopis suctoritate canonum praecipitur; ut per hoc et discretio graduum et dignitatis fastiginm summi pentificis demonstrctur; sed neque cornm episcopo licere presbyteris in baptisterium introire nee praesente antistite indantem tingere aut signare, nec poenitentes sine praccepto episcopi reconciliare, nec eo pracsente sacramentum corporis et sanguinis Christi cenficere, nec eo coram posito pepulum docere vel benedicere aut salutare nec plebem utique exhortari " (2 Conc. Hispsl. A.d. 619, c. 7).(ii.) Relations of Presbyters to Deacons.-The primitive relations of presbyters to deacons are hardly less obscure than their relations te bishops; but one point at least is clear, that it was a relation of superiors to inferiors in rank. Deacons appear to have been mainly out-door relieving officers, whese function was to find out and to report the circumstances of worthy recipients of church funds. They were thus brought into intimate connexion with the bishops, who wers the custodians and dispensers of ehurch funds. With the growth of the supremacy of the bishops, and also with the extension of the elecmosynary system, there was a corresponding increase in the importance of deacons. Of this there is abundant evidence in the Apostolical Constitutions, which perhaps from this point of view may be treated as a "Tendenz-schrift." For example, Const. Apost. 2, 26, the bishop sits as it were in the place of God, the deacons stand by him as the heavenly powers stand by the side of Ged; ibid. 2,28 ; the laity are to make their requests known to the bishop through the deacons, even as we approsch God through the Lord; ibid. 2, 30, as the Son is the messenger and prophet of the Father, so the deacons are the messengers and prophets of the bishop. So also in the place which descons and presbyters respectively occupied in the ritual, the pres byters, whe were only coadjutors of and cencelebrant with (oúpuvatai, $\Delta_{1 a r}$ K $\lambda \not h_{\mu} 17$ [20]) the bishop, tended to be crushed out. In the " 1 whtificial High Mass " of those days the bishup and the deacons seemed to share the sorvice betweea them. The presbyters might take the bishlyp's place, but when he was present they appreared to have little share in the liturgy. Even down to modern times the gospeller and the epistuler are regarded as deacen and sub-deacen resplectively. It is therefore natural to find in early councils traces of a struggle for supremacy between Hesbyters and deacons. It is clear fron 1 conc. Arelat. c. 15, and 1 Conc. Nicaen. c. 18, that ths deacons had begun to assume to themselves the place in the liturgy which was atterwards reserved exclusively for priests, i.e. bishops and presbyters (the obvious meaning of these two canons has been obscured by the interpretatione of those whe have viewed them orly by the light of later usage, e.g. Binterim, Denkecirdightiten, Bd. i. p. 360 ; Hefele, Cotncils, E. T. vol. i. p. 429). But npon these assumptions thess councils put an effectual check, and a few years afterwards the council of Laodicaea (c. 20) made the further regulation in suppert of the preshy. terate that a deacon must not sit in the presence of a presbyter except with the presbyter's permission (cf. SS. Apostolorum Epitimia, ii. 7, ap. Pitra, Jur. Eccl. Gr. vol. i. p. 105, which, although Pitra speaks of the canons in general as an instance of "protervam illam byzantinurum mentiendi pruriginem," is supported by Statt. Eceles. Antii, c. 39). The rise of the sacerdotsl theory, which made the same distinction betweea prashyters and deacons which had existed in the Mosaic legislation between priesta and Levites, settled the question in the Enst, nor are any other conciliar regulations respecting it foum until Conc. Trull. c. 7, which so far modifies the earlier rule as to allow a deacon to take precedence of presbyters when he is acting ss the deputy of a metropolitan or pstriarch. Io the West it is clear from Jerome that the struggle was even strenger and more lasting since he is at the trouble formally to refute those whe thought that a deacon was superier to a presbyter (S. Hieron. Epist. 146 [85] ad Evanyel.) ; and althongh the canon of the council of Arles, and the grewth of the sacerdotsl theory, which have been mentioned above, prevented any reviral of the clain to what wers considered to be sscerdetal functions (unless account be taken of 2 Conc. Arelat. c. 15), the claim for precedenee was continued, ss is seen from Conc. Andegav. A.D. 453 , c. $2 ; 1$ Barcinon, A.D. 578 (?), c. 4 ; 4 Toleth A.D. 633, c. 39 ; Stutt. Eccles. Antiq. c. 37. 1 it may be added that in the strenuous effort which was made by Novatian to uphold the authority of the presbyterate against the episconate, he seems also to have endeaveured to dispenss with the diaconste (cf. Coust.mut's interpretation of his letter, ap. Routh, Reliquiae Swerae, vol. iil pp. 21, 78).
(iii.) Functions of Presbyters.-The sketch which has been given of the origin of the presbyterate, and of its early relations to the episcopate, has to some extent covered tho ground of the present section; it has at the ssme time shewn, frem the great variations whilh took place in those relations, the dilficulty of ## frsming any

 will hold goor or a particulaThe funct msinly group discipline, (2) (4) to benedic ia regard to o special article Minister of Or
(1) Discipli that the origit as gsthered b responding offi words of early the general con sad constitutec fuaction contit ance decreased attained its fine of the chareh $h$ ship than of ga iadications of $t$ ] Western church to the people a beea the leadin presbyter's fun Ordinsls were ff sppointed to hel the people as th Moses. The pr their own lives others. In the (Missale Francer Vet. vol. iii. p reference to any Ordinals have a the presbyter ma the sins and of Pseudo-Isidorian c. 17; Hinschius prominent functi besrings of this Christian morals discussed here ; sent purpose to quasi-judicial ex important distine fuctions oĩ the acting in concert ridual presbyter necessary to hear ignoring of it un which exists in m the subject of the There are good the earliest perio byters were little executive oflicers overruled by its vo deccisions. The account of the ju community in Ter magne cum ponder spectu, summunqqu eat si quis delique tionis et conventu relegetur, Praes hancrem: istum nom But there can be though there may 1 time, the ordo of rltunl, the prosrs of sild concele. ( $\lambda 4 \mu .17$ [20]) the t. In the "Puntiys the bishop and e service betweea take the bishop's they sppeared to 7. Even down to the epistoler are acon respectively. in early conncils acy between pres. ear from 1 cinc. en. c. 18, that the to themselves the was afterwards s, i.e. bisheps and ing of these two ae interpretatione only by the light Denkcuirdigheiten, cils, E. T. vol. i. ssumptions thess ;, and a few years icaea (c. 20) made ort of the presty. sit in the presence e presbyter's perEppitinia, ii. 7, ap. p. 105, which, nons in general as am byzantinoram pported by statt. of the sacerdital istinstion betrreen had existed in the ciesta and Levites, Cast, nor are eny specting it fousd no far modifies the acon to take pre$e$ is acting ss the pstriarch. In the that the struggle lasting since he is refute those who erior to a presbyter ad Everayel.); and uncil of Arles, and heory, which hare ted any revival of dered to be sscernt be taken of 2 for precedence was Andegav. A.D. 453, ?), c. $4 ; 4$ Tolet Antiq. c. 37. It nuous effort which oold the authority the episcopate, he d to dispense with interpretation of xe Swrae, vol. iti ters.-The sketch origin of the pres. relntions to the itent covered the ; it has st the same variations which $s_{1}$ the dilliculty of

PRIEST

PRIEST 1705
frsming any statements on the snbject which will hold good for more than a particular period, or sparticular group of churches.
The functions of the presbyterate may be mainly groupred according as they relate (1) to discipline, (2) to the sacrsmenta, (3) to tenching, (4) to benediction. The functions of presbyters in regard to ordination will be gathered from the specisl article on that subject.
M/inister of Ordination, $V$. Minister of Ordination.]
(1) Discipline.-lt has been mentioned above that the original conception of the presbyterate, as gsthered both from the analogy of the corresponding office among the Jews, and lirom the words of early Christian writers, was that it had the general control of the morals of the churches, sod constituted a court of discipline. The ssme function contiuued, though its relative importance decreased, even after the episcopate had attained its final supremscy, nid after the officers of the church had become officers rather of worship than of government. The most significant indications of this are found in the Ordinals of the Western church; the tenor of both the addresses Western church; the tenor of both the addresses to the people and the prayers shews this to have been the leading element in the conception of a presbyter's functions st the time when those Ordinsls were framel. Presbyters are said to be spppinted to help bishops in the government of the people as the seventy were appointed to help the people as the seventy were appointed to help Moses. The prayer is that they may exhibit in their own lives the virtues which they require in others. In the earliest ordinal of the later type (Missale Francorum, ap. Muratori, Litury. Llom.
let. vol. iii. p. 450) there is only $n$ slight' let. vol. iii. p. 450) there is only $n$ slight' reference to any other functions, but all the later Ordinals have alded a prayer, or proyers, that the presbyter may "offer acceptnble victims for the sins and offences of the people,", and the Pseudo-Isidorisn decretnls (Epist. Fubrian. 2, c. 17; Hinschius, p. 163, make sacrificing the prominent function. The question of the general besrings of this function of discipline upon Christian morals is too intricnte to be properly discassed here ; it will be sulficient for the present purpose to treat brielly of its judicial or puasi-judicial exercise. In that respect an quasi-judicial exercise. In thnt respect an important distinction must be drawn between the important distinction must be drawn between the fanctions oî the Ordo Prcsbyterorum in a church acting in concert and the functions of an indiridusi presbyter acting slone; it is the more necessary to bear this distinction in mind, as the ignoring of it underlies much of the confusion which exists in many of the discussions to which the subject of the presbyterate has given rise.
There are good grounds for thinking that in the earliest period of church history the presbyters were little more than the presidents and crecative oflicers of the community, liable to be orerruled by its roice, and bound to carry out its orerruled by its roice, and bound to carry out its detisions. The most pertinent proof is the account of the judicial process in a Christian community in Tertull. Apolog. c. 39 (judicatur magno cum pondere et apad certos de Dei conspectu, summumque futuri judicii praejudicium est si quis deliquerit ut a communicatione oratiosiz et conventus et omnis saluti commercii relegetur. P'racsident probati quipue seniores, Bonarem intum non pratio sed testimonic adepti"). Bot there can be no question that in time, though there may be a donbt as to the particular dime, the ordo of a church (1) assumed an authority spart from the community, (2) came to consist of two elements, the presbyters and the bishop [the discussinn as to the place ot deacons in relation to the ordo must, for brevity's sake, be here omitted].
(i) The presbyters and bishop, acting together, formed the court to which oflences against morals or church order were referred, and by which the sffairs of the church generally were ndministered. In this capacity they formed a ouvípion (Ignat. Epist. ad Tratl. c. 3), and are designated as auch even so late as the 4 th and 5 th centuries, e.f. by $E_{\text {pist }}$. Nazinnz. Orat. 42, 11, p. 756 ; S. Basil. Epist. 8! [319], p. 174 ; S. Sixti 111. Epist. 2 ad Cyrill. Alcx. ; Synesins, Epist. 67, p. 208. Hence, in terms which are borrowed from similar courts under the empirc, they sre also spoken of as cúu-(Stant. Apost. 2, 28, and in Latin as a " consilium" (Statt. Eccles. Ant. c. 22). And since the smallest number of persons who could forin a $\sigma u{ }^{2}$ épion among the Jews was three, one of the earliest documents which refers to ecelesiastical organization requires each bishop to appoint two presbyters, presumably to form such a court, $\Delta$ aar. K $\lambda \hbar \mu$. c. 20, Pitra, Jur. Eccl. Gr. vol. i. p. 83 ; Bickell, Gcsch. des Kirchenrechts, vol. ii. p. 122.
(b) The bishop, as head of this body, was an integral and essential part of it. His consent was ordinarily necessary to the validity of its acts. He was the officer by who. $)$ sentences were pronounced, and by whom the restoration of penitents to charch privileges was effected. It is probable also that in emergencies in whinh immmediate action was necessary he had a discretionary and quasi-independent power. But without such an emergency even Cyprisn declined to sct alone. Ite will not judge the casa of the sub-deacons Philomenua and Fortunatus, and the acolyte Favorinus, since many of the clergy are absent, though in the meantime, in his capaeity of finauce-othicer, he orders that the accused persons shall not receive their monthly allowance (Epist. 28 [34], c. 3).
(c) Individual presioyters sometimes claimed "or themselves a similar discretionsry power: "audio tamen quosdsm de presbyteris nec evangelii memores, nec quid ad nos martyres scripserint cogitantes, nec episcopo honorem sacerdotii sui et cathedrae reservantes, jam cum lapsis communicare coepisse et offerre pro illis et eucharistiam dsre, quando oportet ad hace per ordinem perveniri (St. Cyprian. Epist. 11 [17], c. 2). But the claim was disallowed. In the East the general rule was East the general rule was laid down that individual presbyters must not act without the тov entaromov; so Can. Apost. c. 39, where Balsamon limits the rule to the administration of church funds, but Zonarss understands it of excommunication); but the penitentisries who were appointod at Constantinople after the Novatian schism were presbyters (Socrat. IH. E: 5,19 ), and much later archbishop Theodore, who must be taken as an authority for at any rate "ontemporary usnge, expressly stntes that " annong the Greeks a rresbyter may, if there is 2, 3, 8, ed. Haddan and Stubbe Ponsit. iheodor.

In the West thelr powers in this respect, were imited by many conciliar enactment the ser limited by many conciliar enactments, the repe-

PRIEST

quidem hnbet jus aummus sacerdes qui east episcopus. Dehinc presbyteri et diaconil, non tamen aine episcopi nuctoritate propter ecclesine honorem;" the latter maya, Diul. c. Lucifif. c. 9 , Op. ed. Migne, vol. ii. 164, "inde [gc, from the neessity for unity in the church] venit ut aine chrismate et eyiscopi jussione neque presbyter neque diaconus jus habeant baptizandi." both East and West when the full ceremonial took place, there was a division of labour; the best necount of the part of each order ot clergy in the Fast is to be found in the treatise of St. Dionysius Areopagite quoted abore: the earliest complete accuunt of Western usage is to be fouad in Mabillon's Ordo Romanus, i. c. 43, id. vii. c. 11. In both of these a distinction is drawn between the immersion in water, which might be performed by dencons and even by collytes, and the other ceremonies, of which the chief were the nnointing with the chrism and the imposition of hands, which were shiured between the presbyters and the hishops. If the bishops were absent, the Eastern church allowed a presbyter to do nll thnt, if present, the bishop would have done; but although there was fur come time a rariety of usige in the West (ass is shewn, c.f., by the fact that Gregory the Great [Epist. 4, 9 , vol. ii. p . 689 ] reserves the faal ancinting on the forehead for bishopa, wherens in E.pist. 4,26 , vol. ii. $p$. 705 , he allows It to presbyters), it ultimately come to be the Western rule that a presbyter might nuoint with the chrimm, provided that he which hat chimm, provided that he used chrism which had previously been consecrated by $n$ bishop, and also that he did not anoint on th. furchead (S. lanocent, Epist. ad Decent. c. 3, ap. Hiaschius, p. 528), but that he must not in auy Ordine Buptismi, c. 17, Migne, 1. L. . cv. 23.i). In bihhop must confirm; (it is important to note that when Photius objected to this Western nasge, and asked "Whence came the law that presyyters should not confirm ? " Epist. i. 13 (2), ap. Migne, P. G. rol. cii. 726 , the Latins were not abe to give any better authority thia the dhe erguments of Aeneas of Pontificalis, ap. D'Achery, Spiciles, vol. i. p. 141). When the later system ad dioceses sud parishes began to previnil, there ras some rariety of usage. (a) Sometimes there wis only one baptistery in a dioceae, and to it all candidates for baptism had to come. (b) But more fiequently the paroelial presbyter had the right right of baptizing in his own parish, and wuch hapti-m by a paroehial presbyter did not onfer the full status of char:h membership until it had been follewell by "confirmation." Jerome thought that the baptism was spiritually valid withont such confirmation (S. Hieron. Diel. c. aq. Peenit. but the later view doubted this ssee Stubbs ; Joann. Diace. Epist. ad Senar Haddan and Migne, P. L. vol. Lix. 406; Isanc Lingon., cun. 11, 8, ap. Migne, P. L. vol. cxxiv.), and out of this doubt probably sprang the revival of the chorepiscopnte in France in the 8th and 9th canturies (Hralna, Maur, de Instit. Cler. i. 5, coram qui in agris et rillis conser phuplorum molatium confirmationis deessect:" buad, in the vigorous polemic against the cher-

PRIEST

epiacopate which is made by the author of the false decretals, false decretals, this privilege is denied to them, e.g. Leonis Papao de Privilefio Chorepiscoporum, ibid. pe 51. p. 628, Damasi Papae de Chorepiscopis, the delegated righ parochial presbiter had of consecrating the baptismal but not the right the African the baptismal chrism. This was Eccles Arican rule, 2 Conc. Carth. c. $3=$ Cod. Eccles. A/ric. e. 6 (but it applears from John century century, African presbyters hal the right of consecrating the chrism, Epist., ald Senar. c. 8, 2,74), and 1 Col. lix. 404 ; Mabillon, Mus. Ital. i, 2,74 ), and 1 Conc. Tolet, c. 20 , enacted that it should henceforth be the Spanish rule; as such it was conformed by 2 Conc. Brac. A.D. 563 , c. 19 2 Conc. Hisp. A.D. 619, c. 7; but it is rather implied than directly stated by the Gailican conncils, c.g. conc. Vas. a.d. 442, c. 3 , and probably did not exist in the East (ef. Poenit. Theod. $2,3,8$, ed. Haddan and Stubbs). Where the rule existed, the parochial presbyters were bound to obtain the chrism from the bishop once Eccles. Antiq. c. 36 ; befure Easter; so Statt. Conc. Vas. . c. 36 ; 1 Conc. Tolet. e. 20; further ennets that be Eanerit. A.D. 666, c. 9, biahop to convey that he who is charged by the to exact par for it, chrism to presbyters is not except in emergencies the right of baptizing personal to the pacies was apparently not be exerciaed ia an nuthorized place; but had to conncil (c. 31) will authorized place; the Trullan in concil (c. 31) will not allow it to be exercised in private chapels without the bishop's authority, appear Frankish and Carolingian capitularies to be to deny the title of evea parish churches to be baptisteries, noless they are expressiy constituted auch by the bishop; "ut publicum balitisterium in ulla parocinia [i.e. diocese] csse non debeat nisi ibi ubi episcopus constitucrit cujus parrochia est" (Pippini Capit. Vernense, A.D. 75s, c. 7, Pertz, Lesum 1, p. $24=$ Conc A.D. 801 Mansi, xii. 577 ; so alse Capit. Ticinease, A.D. 801, n. 16, Pertz, i. p. 85).
(3) Preaching and
(3) Preaching and Taching. - The Jewish (1 Tim. $v$. Were not, ns such, teachers ; and siuce those who labour in the $W$ g sperial mention of plies that some presbyt word and doct riae " immay be inferred that teaching was not an inherent function of the Christian presty an inThe $\Delta$ ıatayal kגhufvros (c. 16) contemplate the cas: of au unlettered presbyter, and the earlieat ist of preshyteral functions (Polye, Epist. ad Fhilinp. c. 6) treats a presbyter, wholly as a disciplinary officer; nor is there any neention of prosbyters in connexion with teachiag in either Clement or Ignatius. The Clementines also indicate that, wherena the bishops hatd to do with the ductrine, the presbyters had to do with the morals of the members of the church (Recogn 3,65 ). But the fuaction of tenchiag, althuugh not inherent in the preabyterate, was not in"ompatible with it. There were "presbyteri doctores" (S. Cyprian, Epist. 24, rol. i. p. 287 ; Acta Perpetuce: et Felicitatis, ap. Ruinart, c. 13); preaehing ( $j_{\mu} \lambda \in i v$ ) was a function from which a lapaed nestyter was dejoged (Conc. Ancyr. A.D. 313, c. 1) ; and it is clear that the Alexandrian was either telading prosbyters from preaching was either temporary or local (Nonrat. II. E.

It was committed to the "wiser" presbyters (S. Chrys. Hom. 3 in Epiat. i. ad Corinth. (ip. ed. Dligne, vol. x. p. 26 ; and therefore, in some churches, could not be exercised in the presence of a hishop (S. Hieron. Epist. 52 [2] ad .vepot. c. 7, who objects to this excluaion; 2 Conc. Hisp. A.D. 619, c. 7). But after the establishmeat of the parochial system, the privileges of presbyters in parishes became extended in this and in other respects ; and the Western church aeems to have thenceforth cousted preaching as an ordinary function of a parish presbyter (3 Cone. Vas. a.b. 529, c. 2 ; Conc. Cloves. A.d. 747, e. 9); so the ninth-century writers on church institutions, e, g. Hraban. Maur. de Instit. Cleric. i. 6 ; ci. Quesnel, Dissert. xi. in S. Leon. M. Op. c. 12).
(4) Benediction.-The Chriatian churches continued the Jewish practice of blessing both persons and things, and since the blessing of persuns assumed a superiority in the person who gave the benediction over the person who receivel it (cf. Heb. vii. 7), in the Christian, as in the Jewish, assemblies, it was a function of the president. Ordinarily it was thris a function of the bishop; but, in the absence of the bishop, a presbyter might bless, whether publiciy in chureh or privately elsewhere (Const. Apost. 3, $20 ; 8,27$; S. Basil. Epist. 2 ad Amphiloch. c. 27, where suspension from this function is the punishment of a presbyter who has contracted an uniawful marriage). Ent in the West the rights of presbyters in this respect became much restricted. In the 5 th century, Conc. Regiens, c. 5 , allows presbyters to give the benediction in private houses and in the country, but not in church; and early in the following century Conc. Agath. c. 44 expressly forbids a presbyter to give it in church; but 2 Cone. Hispal. (A.D. 619, e. 7 ) narrows the prohibition to eases in which the bishop is present, and this has continued to be the Western rule.
[For the conditions of admission to the priesthood, see Onders, holy; for the mude of appointment and admisaion, see OrDination; for the relations of priests to aynods and councils, see Council, $p$. 473.]
[E. H.]
PRILIDANUS, martyr with Urbanna and Epolonns, three youths, who suffered with bishop Babylas at Antioch; commemorated Jan. 24. (Usuard. Mart. ; Bed. Mart. Prilidanius; Florus ap. Bed. Mart. Parilidanus, under Numerian; Mart. Rom. Prilidianus.)
[C. H.]
PRIMATE. The word primate ("primas") seems to have come, like some other ecclesinstical terms, from the civil law. From its first use, in which it was applied generally to the chief men of a community, it came to be used in an otlicial sense ( $a$ ) of the presidents of the Jewish communities, after the title "patriareh" had ceased, Cod. Theodos. 16, 8, 8, 29; (b) of the "decuriones" of a minicipality, Cod. Theodos. $7,18,13: 12,1,4$; (c) of the heads of the bureau of a provincial governor, Cod. Theodos. 9, 40, $16 ; 10,6,3$, cf. Bethmann-llollweg, Der Jumiscle Creit-prosess, PA. ill. P, 140, It is a probable inference from the Pseudo-Iaidorina Epist. Anacleti, ii. c. 26, that it was Also applied In the post-Imperial organization of the West to officers who had judicial functions correeponding to those of ecclesinstical primates; out of the existence of such otficers no dircet trace can be found. (For the Carolingian "primates palatii," see Waitz, Deutsche Verfassungsjeschichte, Bd. Iv. 277.)

In its ecclesiestical use it la found in three senses. (The use of its Greek equivalent $\delta$ $\pi \rho \omega \tau \varepsilon \dot{d} \omega v$, which is found in several Syrian inscriptions, one of which bears the date A.D. 514, Corpus Inscriptionum Graecarum, os. 8627, $8: 330,8!31$, is hare omitted, hecause there is no clue to its precise signification.)
(1) Its carliest sense seems to be that of seniority, whether in respect of age or of office. Leo the Great uses "primatus" of seniority among presbyters (Epist. 19 (18) ad /horuin Benevent. vol. i. p. 735). Pope Hilary (Epist. 8, ap. Migue, Patr. Lat. vol. Vviii. 25) transfers the power of ordaining bishops from Hermes, metropolitan of Narboune, to Constantius, hishop of Usez, as being "aevo honoris primas;" just as in a similar enae Leo the Great (Epist. 10, vol. i. p. 641) transfers the functions of metropolitan from Hilary of Arles to Lecntius, eqpressly on the ground of his seniority. The word was consequently used in Africa to deunte the senior bishop of the province, who there held the place which in most other psits of the Christian world was held by the bishop of the civil metropolis. The exact title of this bishop was "primae sedis episcopus," and 3 Cone, Carth. c. $25=$ Cod. Eceles. Afric, c, 39 enacts that he is not to take the appellations "summus sacerdos," or "princeps sacerdotum;" but the word "primss" is used, apparently with the same meaning, in 2 Conc. Carth, c. $12 ; 3$ Conc. Carth. 28 (in 3 Cone. Carth. c. $7=$ Cod. Lecles. Afric, c. 19 , there is an important variety of reading between "primstem" sod "primates"); to thin African usage Gregory the Grest, Epist. j. 74, vol. ii. p. 559, expresses atrong objections.
(2) The word is oceasionally used in reference to the office or statua of a metropolitan: $e_{. g}$, in the dispute betwuen the bishops of Vienne and Arlea, which was settied by Conc. Taurin. a.d. 401 , e. 2 ; in 1 Conc. Brac. A.D. 56\%, c. 6: 6 also aometimes in the Latin translations of the Greek canona, e.q. in Dionysius Exiguus Can. Apost. 35 ap. Sirmond; Codex Can. Iet. Eucks Roman., In Ferrandus, Breviatio Canonum, c. 4, ap. Migue, Patr. Lat. vol. Ixvii. 950, "metropolitani vel primatis;" in Martiu of Braga, Capit. c. 4, np. Mansi, ix. 849 ; and in S. l.eon. M. Epist. 108 (83) ad Theodor. Forojuliens, rol is p. 1173 (in the plural).
(3) The title was not in ordinary use untii the 9 th century, nad it was then applied to a new dlatinction which was created among bishops, chiefly by the influence of the PseudoIsidorina decretals. In the Eastern divisions of the empire the church had elosely followel tho gradations of civil rank. The provinces (erap$\chi(a)$, each of which had its civil praesis or consularis, and its ecelesiastical metropolitan, were gromped into dioeceses, each of which had its civil ricarius, comes, or praefectus, and its ecelesinstical exarch or patriarch [PaTRARCH (2)]. But in the West each province was in almost all respects a separate eeclessastucal unit ; there was no officer corresponding to the eivil vicarius: there was no appeal from the provincial synod and the provincial netropol.tan, except $t$ claimed than ali The earlier poli sapport the autl Leo M. Epist. 10 i. p. 1173, oijject: to Rome. But of this: and frol the influence of so that lippin co best meuas of rev ad Pippin, ap. accordingly revi (Pippin, Capit. I Caroli Maga. Cal revired office ple political as well Waitz, Ieutsche p. 351 sqq.). B and the Komsn se conrenient: the f near superior, the ecclesiastical digei parted, as they influence of the $t$ its direct control In addition to this the troubled times Charles the Great, had met with seve the hands of metr Pseudo-Isidorian duced into the $V$ between metropolit of whom he contis had hitherto been metropolitan, and earlier Eastern eq areh, Epist. Annic primates voceatur civitates quarum e regulariter patriar stituerunt, nisi ali convertstur, cui neo episcoporum prima qui alias metropoli primates sed met Anaciet. Epist. ii. Felic. i. Epist. c. Julii Decret. c. 1 Capit. iv, 439, ap. p. 130 ; Cajit. Angi Decret. Pseudo- Isido Hormisdas which H his coliizversy witl a primacy to ine se tion of the rign:s the false decretais genuine (linemar Hincmar. Laudun. c rol. crxri, 333). A In frequent use, es metrojolitans to w antrusted in their re of the Roman see.
The fuuctions of $p$ the term, so far as tl functlens of metrop jodicial. In the which are the fou canos law on the sub suspects the impart
; Dut of the t trace can be nates palatii," hichte, Bd. iv.
gund in three equivalent $\delta$ everal Syriun the date A.D. lecarum, Nos. hecause there n.) be that of ge or of office. ? of senincity 8) ad Itorun Hilary (Epist. .25) trausters from llermes, tantius, hishop priman;" just at (Epist. 10, inis of metroLeontius, exniority. The frica to denote ce, who there er parts of the bishop of the of this bishop 3 Ccnc. Carth. enacts that he summus sacerbut the word vith the same 3 Conc. Carth 1. Leceles. Afric. cty of reading ates ") ; to this at, Epist. i. 74, jections. ied in reference oolitan: e.g. in of Vienue and c. Taurin. A.D. 563 , c. 6: 60 islations of the Exiguus Can. an. Tet. Eccles Canonum, c. 4, 950, "metrortiu of Braga, nd in S. leon rojuliens, vol is nary use untii on applied to a reated among of the Pseudoern divisions of ly followed the roviaces (izapivil proeses or I metropolitan, of which had foctus, and its iarch [Patal h jurnvince was te ecelessastical sponling to the ppeal from tho vincial metropol,tan, except the appeal, which was oftener clalmed than allowed, to the bishop of Kome. The earlier policy of the Roman aee was to support the authority of metropolitans; e.g. S. Leo M. Epist. 108 (83) ad Theodor. Forojul. vol. i. p. 1173, oljects to direct appeal from a bishop to Rome. But its later policy was the reverse of this: and from the 6 th to the 8 th centuries the influence of metropolitans visibly declined, so that Pippin consulted pope Zachary na to the best meuns of revivigg it. (S. Zachar, pnp. Epist. ad Pippin, ap. Mansi, vol. xii. 326). It was accordingly revived under the Carolinglans (Pippin, Cupit. Term. Duplex, A.D. 755, c. 2; Carvi Mago. Capit. A.d. 779, c. 1), and the revived oflice played an important part in political as well is in ecelesiastical affiairs (see Wsitz, Ieutsche Verfussungsgeschichte, vol. iii. p. 351 sqq.). But both the suffragan bishops and the Koman see found the metropolitans inconvenient: the former preferred a remote to a near superior, the latter disliked the exercise of ecclesiastical discipline by judges who, if supported, as they accmed likely to be, oy the influence of the temporal power, might weaken its direct control over the Western churches. In addition to this there appear to have been, in the troubled times which followed the death of Charles the Great, several casea in which bishops had met with sevare, if not unjuat, treatment at the hands of metropolitans. The author of the Pseudo-lsidorian decretals consequantly introduced into the West the Eaatern distinction between metropolitans and exarchs, to the latter of whom he confined the word primate, which had hitherto been occasionally used for any metropolitan, and which he identified with the earlier Eastern equivaleut of exarch, viz. patriarch, Epist. Annic. c. 3, "nulli archiepiscopi primstes vocentur nisi illi qui primaa tenent eivitutes quarum episcopos et successores eorum regulariter patriarchae vel primatea esse constituerunt, uisi aliqua gens deincepa ad fidem convertatur, cui necesse ait propter multitudinem episcoporum primatem constitui. Reliqui vero qui alias metropolitanas sedes adepti sunì non primates sed metropolitani nominentur:" so Anaclet. Elpist. ii. c. 26 ; Zepherin. Epist. c. 2 ; Felic. i. E'pist, c. 4 ; Steph. Epist. ii. c. 10; Julii Decret. c. 12 : so also Benedict. Levit. Capit. iv, 439, ap. Pertz, Leuum, vol. ii. pars 2, p. 130 ; Capit. Angilramni, c. 22, ap. Hinschius, Decret. Pseudo-Isidor. p. 762. The letter of pope Hormishas which Hincmar of Reima quotes in his conieversy with Hincmar of Jaon as giving a primacy to $i_{1}$ e see of Reims, with a reaervation of the rignts of metropolitans, resembles the false decretals too closely to be treated as genuine (Hinemar Remens, Opusc, in Causa Hincmar. Loudun. c. 16, ap. Migne, Patr. Lat. rol. exxri. 333). After this date the tltle was In frequent use, especially in reference to the metropolitans to whom the bishopa of Rome ontrusted in their respective districta the powers of the Roman see.
The functions of primstes in the later sense of the term, so far as they differ from the ordinary funetions of motropolitans, are ulanost wholly judicial. In the Pseudo-Isidorian decretala, which are the foundation of all subsequent anion law on the subject, an accused bishop who suspects the impartiality of his metropolitan and comprovinclala, may clalm to be tried by the primate, Clement. Epist. i. c. 29 ; Anarlet. i1. c. $26 ;$ Felic. l. c. 4 ; Zepherin. c. 2; Jul. c. 12 : so also Capit. Angilram. c. 5; a prlmate has malso an immediate jurisdiction in the casa of a metropolitan who oppresses his sulliragans or otherwise exceeds the limits of his authority, Annic. 3, 4; Vict. 6; and also in ail "majores ocelesiarum negotia," Clement. 1. c. 29 ; Adaclet. il, c. 26 ; Steph. ii. c. 10 . But while in some passages the decretals make this jurisdiction of the metropolitan alternative with an appeal to Rome, Vict. 6, Jul. 12, in other passages they make the validity of the sentence of the primate contingent ou its contirmation by the Roman see, Zeph. 2, Damas. 8, elsewhere they uppear to give a final authority to the primate and his aynod, Pelag. 1L. ed universos cpiscopos, and elsewhere on the contrary they ignore primates, and give an immediate appenl from the metropolitan to Rome, Felic. Ii, c. 20 .
(The hest account of primaten in the later aense of the word will be found in P. de Marea, Dissertatio de Primalu Luydunensi et ceteris Primatibus, first published In 1644, and edited by Baluze in 1659.)
[E. H.]

PRIMICERIUS. The name of these officials

 ["primus in ceram relatus" (Ducange Gloss.), the first entered on the wax tablet, or roll, of the clergy] sufficiently indicates their office as the head or leader of an ecelesiastical corporation. The word appears to be identical with the "primiclerus," or hend of the inferior clergy, of the Spanish church. (Cunc. Emerit. cc. 10, 14.)1. The office is frequently mentioned in connexion with the ecelesiastical notaries. In the conncil of Chalcedon frequent mention is made of Aetius, the primicerius of the notaries. In the council of Ephesus (act. 1) the tnsk of reciting the edict of the emperor Theodosius wns allotted to Peter, a presbyter of Alexandria and primicerins of the notaries. Anastasius the librarian, in hiz life of pope Julius, anys that he caused all the records (monumenta) belonging ts the church to be placed in the care of the primicerius of the notaries. In the pastscript to the works of Aratus (Bibl. Patrum, t. vi. p. 700 ) it is said that Vigilius geve the poems in charge to the "primicerius" of the school of notaries. Gregory the Great, writing to Antoninus, a sub-deacon of Salonica, during the vacancy of the see (E'pist. iil. 22), directs him to take an inventory of the property belnnging to the see, and hand it over toc aafe keeping to Respectue the dencon, and Stephen the primicerius of the notaries.
2. A letter from Remigius of Rheims (Sirmondi Conc. Gall. i. p. 205) mentions a primicerius of the lectors, "primicerium scholae clariasimae militiaeque lectorum."
3. Chrodegang, in his rules for the chapter of Metz (last chapter), speaks of a primicerius of the matricularit, who was to exercise a general supervision over them, and to whon, with the archideacon, was entrusted the distribution of their allowances,
4. They were also mombers of the cuthedral body, with authority, apparently as the deputy of the archdeacon, over the inferior clergy. The council of Merida, A.D. 666 (c. 10), orders that every cathedral should have an archpresbyter an archdeacon, and n primlcerius; and (c. 14) divides the offerings into three parta-one belonging to the bishop, another to the presbyters and deacons to be diviled among themselves, and the third to be hanied over to the primicerius, and by him allotted at his discretion to the subdeacons and inferior clergy, accoriling as he knewa them zealous and diftgent in their duties. Jaidore of Seville, in his eplatle to luditred, bishop of Cordova (Isidori Op. p. 413), states that the primicerius has charge of the acolytes, the exorcists, the psalmistae, and the lectors. In the Ordo Romanus (tit. 25) the primicerins is said to occupy a position like that of the archpresbyter under the archdeucon, and to havespecial charge of the teuching and discipline of the deacons and the other inferior clergy. [Chafter, p. 349.$]$

PRINCES

It is certain that this effice, though subordinate to that of the archdeacon, was reckoned one of trist and honour. In a letter of Pope Martin (E'p, 15) the duty of presiding over the see of Rome, in the absence of the pope, is allotted to the archdeacon, the archpreshyter, and the primicerius. A letter of John IV. to the church of Engladi (Baronius A.D. 639, 6,7 ) is signed by John himself, the archpresbyter, the primicerius, and the consiliarius, the primicerius taking precedence of the consiliarius.
[P. O.]

PRIMITLAE. [First Fruits.]

PRIMITTVUS (1), one of the eighteen martyrs of Saragosaa; commemorated Ap. 16 (Usuard. Mart.).
(2) Martyr with others at Rome under Hndrian ; commemorated June 10 (Usuard. Mart.; Mart. Rom.).
(3) One of the seven sons of Symphorosa, martyred with her at Tibur nnder Hadrian; commemorated June 27 (Usuard. Mart.). Iv Hieron. Mart. a Primitivus occurs for this day in Spain. [Svmpionosa.]
(4) Martyr with Bonus and others, clerics of bishop Stephanus at Rome, under Valerian and Gallienus; commemorated Aug. 1 (Florus ap. Bed. Mart.).
[C. H.]
PRIMUS (1), martyr with Cyricus and Theagenes at Peparethus in the Hellespont; commemorated Jan. 3 (Usuard. Mart.; Hieron. Mart.; Mart. Rom.)
(2) Martyr, commemorated Jan. 22 at Nicomedia (Wright, Auct. Syr. Mart. in Journ. Sac. Lit. 1866, 424).
(3) Martyr with Felicianus under Diocletian; commemorated at Rome on Mons Coelius, June $\theta$ (Usuard., Wand., Vet. Rom. Mart.; Bed. Mart. ; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jun. ii. 149 ; Hieron. Mart. at Nomentum.) Fer the inscription and mosaic in memory of these two saints in the church of St. Stephen, the protomartyr on the Coelian hill at Rume, whither their bodies were removed cir. 773 by pope Hadrinn I., see Ciampini Vet. Mon. ii. 111-11.3 and plate 32.
[ $\Theta .4$
PRINCEPS. The biahops, as the chief officern in the Christian church, were hoooured at an early period with this and synonymous desiguations, [Bisttop.] But according to the dillerent idea which moulded the development of the Celtic ecclesiastical polity in the British Isles, and framed it after a monastic rather than a dioceaan or purcly eplscopal inodel, these terms received a corresponding destination. The ecelesiaatical noit in the early lriah church was the monastery, whose head was the abbat, tha praesul, primarlus, or princeps of the nunastic family. Hence in the Annals of Ulster (O'Conor, Rer, IFib. Scrip. iv.) the albat is called athas of princeps concurrently from A.D. 681, until in the 10th century the princeps has all but superseded the abbas in the list of obita. During the 9th and 10 th centuries the princeps is found ocea. siobally as a secular prince (A.d. 808, 809, 835), but very much more frequently he is evidently the monastic head, and appeara at times also os bishop (A.d. 825, 857, 873, &c.), Ferleighinn (A.D. 878 ) and tanist abbat at one monastery and princeps or abbat of another (A.D. $890_{0}=6$, "proximus abbati Cluanse mac nois et princeps l)amhinisensia "). Desgabiar is "dominatrix Princeps Troeit meir," i.e. at Drogheda (A.D. 792 ). But the princepa aeems also at other times to have been subject, though only second to the abbat, and as exercising a certain authority in the monastery as either successor or Erenach (Reeves, $S$. Ademnan, 364). In the continental monasteries the princeps was usually a sub. ordinate, as is probably intended in the Rule of S. Puchomius, "Vestimenta . . . accipient, qui huic rei praepositi sunt, et inferentur in repositorio, et erunt in potestate l'rincipis monasterii " (Du Cange, Gloss. t. v. 447 a ). In Wales Gwengad, prince of Penaly, aod Salwrn, prince of the city of Taff, sign charters as clerical witnesses in the 6th century (Lib, Landav. by Rees, 141, 292-293), whils Gwonocadwy, prince of Penaly, and Sadoc, preabyter, aign after king Morgan among the laity, though both probably clerics ( $16.143,395$ ).

The monastic praepraitus was of a lower rank as "habena poteatatem ordinandi, abbate abseote, omnia, quae abbas praesens facit" (Du Cauge, Gloss, t. v. 405 a ), as head of an affiliated house, under the direction of the parent house and its abbat (Reeres, S. Adumnan, 59, 60, 65, 78, 86, 127, 339); or oeconomus to the monastery (Ib. 339, 365) having charge of its secular affairs ("praepositus domua"), as the episcopsi oeconomus was "praepositus ecelesiac." l'hey thos as oeconomi or erenachs might come by violent deatha probably in the discharge of their beculas duties to the monastery (Ann. Ult. A.D. 604, $731,813,817$, &c.). Their effice was praepositatus or praepositura, and the prioress was Praeposita, aometimes Praepositissa. (1)a Cange, Gloss. t. v. 404 sq.)
[J, G.]
PRINCES, ALLEGIANCE TO (Hominium, Homagium, Hominatus, Sacranentum fidelitutis). It is almost superiluous to say that the geaeral duty of ohedicace to the temporal sovereign was recognized by the primitive C'hriso tians as resting upon the precepta of the New Testament itsolf. The very remonstrances indead which are there addressed to Christians-"Whe aoever therefore resisteth the power, reaisteth the ordinance of God "-may be thuught to be indientive of a syirit of resistance amongst certain iadtriduals es the body; but the geaeral mud sod prastice of correctly sketch (Ad Scapulam, enemy of no ma But besidea Christians were from them to submission of character, which tion of ecclesia ever, until bisho ance as to be relvee possible formal profession significance. He such professions arrliest anmals time a recogultion the inscription of patriarch of Al trull. act. 13) a mercy of God and may, however, be ever rested upon specially enacted 1 lib. 1 , de Ep.) made to stwear, th violable as the mo
It is indeed $n$ West, and apecific begianings of t] be sought. Thomassin, was el sometimes tempte aspirant the nl promised to the the solema oath of ecclesiastics alike The seventh counci of the oath as an a vilation as " perju of Toledo in the sat decreed to be depo storation, except by self. The penalty effect in the cuas Toledo at the clea Tod. xvi. caa. 6).
The onth of allegi reign was not confir office. The second Toledo (cent. vii.) ecclesiastic (religios clerk of the very 10 with profane intent joramenta in aalut patrias data." By menta " it is not to justly remarks, that took an oath of alle but that at the coror the councils the bish oath in their own na feriors. In England to forget that an oath individually administ prelimioaries of admi The form of the o conncil of Toledo (A. or of the peoples of $t$ anc cosspiracy or pu addility which he proo

PRINCES

PRINCES

1711
and practice of tho early church are no doubt correctly sketched in the bonst of Tertullina (Ad Scapulam, cat. Iv.), "The Christlinn is the semy of no man, much less of the emperor."
But besides this general allegiance which Christinns were so rendy to acknowledge as due from them to the geculnr power, there was a submission of a more special nad technical character, which was professed on the assump. tion of ecclesisastical office. It was not, however, until bishops so grew in tenporal importance as to be turmldable opponents or themvelves possible rivals of a sovereign, that a formal profession of feulty could have had much significunce. Hence we mast not expect to find such professiuns recorded nmongst quite the enfliest anmals of Christinnity. In process ot time a recognition of general alleginnce occurs in the lascription of episcopal acts, as wheu Cyrus, patrinch of Alexanirin, is spoken of (Conc.
Trull. nct. 13) as holding his position by the Trull. act. 13) as holding his position by the mercy of God and the will of the empleror. It ever rested upon an onth in the Enst; for in ince ever rested upon an onth in the Enst; for it was specislly enacted by tho emperor Justinian (Cod. lib. 1, de Ep.) that bishops should aever be made to swear, their simple promise being as laviolable as the most solemn ouths.
It is indeed not in the East, but in the West, and specifically in Spaln, that the first beginnings of the onth of fidelity are to be sought. The Spandsh monarchy, says Thomassin, was electlve, aad ecclesiastics were sometimes tempted to transfer to a fresh sspirant the allegiance which they had promised to the cxistlug ruler. Hence arose the solemn onth of fidelity by which laies and ecclesiastics alike were bound to their priaces. The seventh council of Toledo (cent. vii.) spenks of the oath as an accepted usage, and brands its volation as "perjurium." By the tenth council of Toledo in the same century the penalty was decreed to be deposition, without power of restoration, except hy the will of the prince himself. The penalty was actually carried into effect in the case of Sisbert, metropolitan of Toledo at the close of the 7th century (Conc.
To. xvi. can. 6).
The oath of allegiance to the temporal sovereige was not confined to bishops on their taking office. The second canon of the tenth council of Toledo (cent. vii.) enacts penalties against any ecclesiastic (religiosus), from a bishop down to a clerk of the very lowest order or a monk, who with profsne intention violntes his "generalia joramenta in salutem Regiam gentisque aut patriae data." By this terra " generalia juramenta" it is not to be understood, ns Thomassin jostly remarks, that every humble clerk or monk took an outh of allegiance before the sovereign, bot that at the coronation or in the senate or at the councils the bishops and superiors took the oath in their own name and In that of their inferiors. In England, howerer, it is imporsible to forget that no oath of alleginace personally and individually administered may form one of the prelimionries of admission into holy onders.
The form of the oath is given in the fourth conacil of Tolado (A.D. 833 ), "Whosoever of us, conacil of Tolado (A.D. 633), "Whosoever of us, or of the peoples of the whole of Spain, shall, by sar comppiracy or purpose, violate his oath of obr conspiracy or purpose, violate his oath of fidelity which he promised for the condition of his conatry and the race of the Goths, or for the preveration of the king's health," &c. This by wha was reiterated, and response was made by the whole clergy or people. "(Qni coutra hane vestram defintionem praesumpserit, Anathema, Maranatha," &c. (cna. 75). The tifth council of Toledo determinel (can. 7) that this general decree for the preservation of the kings and the kingdom should be reaewed in all the councils of Spain. In some subsequent councils the renewal actually took place. On the other hand, the relation thus sketched has been sometimes reversed. It is laid down by Bellarmine (do Offic. Princ. Christ. cap. 5) that "the hishop is the thther and pastor and doctor as well of the prince as of the rest of the people; and in accordance with these names the prince ought to be subject to the bishop, not the bishop to the prine."
The form of the onth of allegiance under Charlemagne was this: "Promitto partibus Dominl mej Catoli Regis et filiorum ejus quia fidelis sum et ero diehus vitne mene sine fraude et malo ingenlo." It mny be added on the authority of Hofman (I.er. s. e. Fideles) that laymen only took the oath, bishops being bound laymen only took the oath, bishops being bound to a simple promise.
In early times.
promise, rather than an oath, traces only of a Leger, bishop of than an oath, of fidelity. St. recognize Clovis III. as king, replied that he would sacrifice life rather than the fidelity which he promised before the Lord to Theodorie (Thomassin, pt. ii. Liv. ii. c. 38). About the same period St. Eloi, bishop of Noyon, on being pressed to sweur fidelity to the king over the relics of the sainte, excused himself till the king at length desisted, at the same time assuring him that he should heaceforth have more confidence in him for having avoided the oath thas he ahould have had if he had sworn.
In the African church we do not find any objection to an onth of fidelity in general, but only to an oath with whose terms the bishops were imperfectly acquaioted. Huneric, king of the Vandala, required that the Catholie bishops should swear to the contents of a paper unknown to them. They suspected treachery, and refused. They were bot "irrational animals," they pleaded that they should swear lightly and inconsiderately vithout knowing what the paper contained. We may infer from these expressions that they did not object to an oath altogether, but only to an oath blindly and thoughtlessly taken. It was afterwards declared to them that it was a kind of oath of fidelity, expressing their desire that Huneric should be succeeded by his son Hilderic. Some at length took the oath, while the rest persistently refused. Bnt one and all the bishops were in eril case. For those who took it were banished for haring transgreased the prohibition of the Gospel, "Swear not at all;" while the non-jurors were equally banished, as being unwilling that the son of the king should reign after him.
In the East the early hishops resented the attempt to impose upn $t$ tim an oath of any kind. The attemp of Thoodosius the younger to exact an oath of the bithous drew from Baxil of Seleucia the vigorous rotest, "Hitherto we

PRIOR

(Cunc. Chalc. Act. 1). In the anme council we find a similar objection to oaths of any kind felt by a preslyter: "Five and twenty years," cries Cassian, "I have been in communion, in business (as a barrister) at Constantinople, and God knows 1 never swore to any man; and now whes 1 am a presbyter, will you force me to awear ?" The solemn affirmation upon the Gospels was in those days felt to coustitute the atrongest posslble obligation upon a Christian in matters of overy kind.

A gradual relaxation, however, took place in the stilliness of their ideas; so that by the time of the Trullan council (A.D. 680) we find George the deacon, who was what we whould call chancellor and librarina of the church of Constantinople, taking an oath on the book of the Gospels, "By those holy Scriptures and by Him who spake in them."

The ceremonjes practlaed at the profession of fidelity have been different in differeat countriea. The subject was required to extend his hands between those of his lord. A remnant of this may perhaps be seen when a degree is conferred in Cambridge. This was known ns Homaginm Mnnuale. In Spain the subject kissed the hand of his lord. Compare the practice when a modern English bishop "does homange." The subject knelt on both kneee before a prince, while the prince himself was seated.

Besides the authorities already quoted, the reader may consul4 Thelner, Codex Diplonaticus. Rom. 1861, vol.
[H. T. A.]
PRINCES
 Privileges ay cale [leergy] appear to have had the effect oi thatucing men of wealth to accept ecclesiastical offices in order to eacape from their duties and obligations as citizens. This disposition was kept in check by a long series of imperial decrees, all enancisting the same principle, that the liability of all proparty to render certain serrices to tha state, must not, under any circumstances, be evaded. A law of Constantine (Cod. Theedlos. lib. xvi. tit. 2, leg. 3) provides that no decurion, or son of a decurion, or anyone liable to public duties by possession of property, should eacape his obligation by enrolling himself among the clergy (ad clericorum nomen et obsequium confugist), and that in future no one should be permitted to be ordained but those who were of small fortune, and nut liable to civic dutiea. The clergy who had been ordained after the issue of this decree, and in defiance of ita provisions, were to be again enrolled in their curiae, nind made to diacharge their public duties, but those who had been ordained before the passing of the law were not to be molested. Another edict of the same emperoi' (ibii. leg. 6) provides that the clergy ahould be chosen from those who were liable to no civic duties, nor of sufficient fortune to diacharge public offices, for, it is added, it is reasonable thast the rich should provide for the necersity of the state, and the poor be provided for from the wealth of the church.
The principle of these lawa wha somewhat modified in later edicts, which more distinctly laid the obligation to render public aervices on the estate itself rather than on the donor, and in casea of disobedience an bstituted a forfeiture of property for a recalling pot penal servise. [Onw,us, hoLr, p. 1484.]
[P. 0.]
PRINCIPPUS, martyr with Agrthonicus and uthers under Maximinue; commemerated Aug. 2j (Basil. Menol.).
[C. I:.]
PRIOR, MONASTIC. 1. Title, 2. Prior Clunstralis: (a) His statun; ( $\beta$ ) mole of election ; $(\gamma)$ dutles ; ( $(8)$ priora difle reat trom deans, 3. Prior Conecntualia. 4. Simall priories. 5. [riuresses. The title "Prior" fir a munastic official is much later in dute than the office itself. According to Du Cange the word was not so used beture the time of pope Cinlesting V., towards the end of the li3th century ( Da Cange, Clossar. Lat. s. v.). But the office so denignated is as old probnbly as the beginoing of mounstlcism, certaloly as the first nttempts to organize the coenobitic life; "praepositus" and "pratatus" being the words useel in the early days (Martene, Commentar. in Reg. \& Benedicti, c. 65 ; cf. Greg. Magn. Dideng. cc. 2, 7). In ona pasnage where benedict of Casino enjoins on the younger monks the duty of being reverent to their "priors" ("priores suos nonnos appellent juniores "), it is supposed with reasoo that he means their elders of superiora in the monastery (Bened. Reg. e. 63), Menard contends that wherever in the rule of Benedict the term "prior" is used in the siagulat number nad absolutely, not relatively, it sigoifiss tho ablat himself, and quotes, in suly:ort of his argument, a pasange from Caesinins of Arles (Ménard, Comment. in Bened. Aniaa. Concorvia Regularum, c. 47 ; cf. Caesarii, Reyula ad Firyines, c. 3). Where Benedict iu his rule ordess that If any monk has an urgent question to ask during the hours of silence, he must ask it of the "prior," Ménard, with other commentators, explaina the word to mean the abbat or some monk seniur in standing, or higher in otficial position than the others present (Bened. Rey. c. 6. Comment.). Similarly in the chapter of the rule about the reader for the week, the "prior" only is allowed to interrupt the render, if veces. sary, and to interpose a remark; here Menard understande the abbat to be intended, Boherios, the monk, at the head of the table ( 5 b. e. 38). Again, on the quantity of liquor permissible, the "prior" to whose discretion it is left to ordes in extrnordinary casea a larger quantity than the hemina or pint, is supposed by Boherius to be the father-nbbat himbelf. Martene cites Hasten to shew that the denns (decani) in a monastery were sometimes called priurs, the first dead being the prior, the aecond the sub-prior, and so forth (Martene, u.s. c. 21). But this was vot usual.

There is a diatinction to be observed between the prior of the cloister (" prior char stralis"), a subordinate officer of the abbat, snd the prior of the convent ("prior conventualis") who exercised supreme nuthority within a mopastery of his own (Alteserrae Asceticon, ii. 8), In the latter sense the Greek equivalent of privr is Hegumenos, according to Altesertia, who quotes a crnon of the second conncil of Xizese which speaks of the abbat or the Heguneross but parthaps this in a mere tnutelogy (ib, cf. ii. Conc. Nicien. A.d. 787, c. 14). Alteserra quoter also a passage from Evagrius, equally prearious

Io its npulica menes of the 'Акıги Lutia writers aferetution of pries Heguma front Jaulus Eastel'L. empir The prior o monastery to abhat's veth, $e$.
 He was the abl actiag in the na Comnumtur. in c. 27 , doing responsibility, proval of the al tive, but in th c. 20). Pract apt to usurp th bid abbat were decording to th $t$ Pachomius, t sbbat of the 127-8). The p of the denns (lb. trokk precedence prior (Cuno. Aq By primitive was sppointed $\}$ c. 65). A rule, East ("Regula piled by vigilius 5th caatury (Mé diti Anianensis), appointed by the the brethren (cur Gregory the Gr priors and abbats (e.g. Gregor. M. rale for the prios lomstes of the n eleetion was to mentar. Bened. $R$ A.D. 817, c. 31). expected, were sel deans in the sam to be priors.
The teaure of conditionally alwa prior rendered hin after four ndmoni miaistered to him, abbst in private. monk the warning case of a dean thric The several degrees cording to Hildema poblic rebuke, exc fisgellation if nec from the monaste Bened. Rey. cc. 21, oceasionally even to (e.g, Ardo, Vita S Gregory the Great pecifying profigac filleess as valid re (Mistene, u. s.).
The prior's first a cloerly after the disc to report any breac personal rervioe [P, O.]
ith Agathouicus ; combemorated [C. 1!.]

Title. 2. Prior ( $\beta$ ) moile of elece lerent from leans. nall priories, 5 " for a mobastic than the office ge the word wat of pope Celestine 3th century (Do But the ollice so ns the brgisning he first attempts ; " praepositus" vords used in the ntar. in Req. S Magn. Diulog. I. here Benedict of - monks the duty priors" (" jriores "), it is supposed their elders or 3ened. Rey. c. 63). er in the rule of ased in the singulat atively, it signifies in sujport of hia aesintins of drles Anian. Concordia Regula ad Viryines, rule orders that question to ast he must ask it of her cemmentators, he abbat or some higher in ofticial sent (Bened. Rey. the chapter of the week, the "prior" e render, if pecesark; here Mensrd nteoded, Boherios, e table (15. с. 38). or permissible, the it is left to ordet ger quantity than 1 by Boherius to be rtene cites Haeften i) in a menastery is, the first dean the sub-prior, and But this was not to be obserred ister (" prior clan=of the abbat, and jor conventualis") rity within a mone Asceticon, ii. 8). equivalent ot priot - Alteserra, who council of Nicaes $r$ the llegumenos; utology (ib. cf. it

Alteserra quotea equally precarious

PRIOR

In Its npplication, where Cyril is cnlled Hegumenos of the "sleepless monky" (hraínevos tüv Latiun writers, accordingt. Lo Alcl. Jit. 19), Later affectation of , according to Alteserra, in their prlers ligumenl; but the instances which he cites fron. Paulus Diaconus relate to monks in the Eaxteris ornpire (Alteserin, u.s.).
The prior of the cloister ranked noxt in the moastery to the abbat, and, subject to the abbat's veto, exercised similar authority (Bened. He was the cf. Concil. Aquisyran. A.D. 817, c. 55). He was the abbut's lieutenant (secundus domus), Comnentur: In Bened. Aniunens officer (Menard, Commentur. in Bened. Aniumens. Comord. Rejul. c. 27), doing nothing on his own intependent reaponsibility, but ulways sa subject to the approvsl of the abbat -head of the abbat's executive, but in theory nothing more (Fruct. Rey. c. 20). Practically an ambitious prior was apt to usurp the abbat's functions, esjecially if ais abbat were of leas energetic teluperament. to Pachomius, the monks might complain to the abbat of the prior's behaviour (Pachom. Rey. 127-8). The prior was inspector and controller of the deana (Ib. c. 12), the first in order of whem took preeedence in the monatery next after the prior (Conc. Aquisyr. u. s.).
By primitive custom in the Weat the prier was appointed by the abbat alone (Bened. Reg. c. 65). A rule, calling itself the Rule of the East ("Regula Orientnlis"), but probably compiled by Vigilius Diaconus in France during the 5 th century (Ménard, ad Codex Regularum Benedicti Anianensis), says that the prior is to be appointed by the atbat, with the concurrence of the brethren (cum consilio et voluntate fratrum). Gregory the Great seems to have appointed priers and abbata on his owa authority by letter (e.g. Gregor. M. Ep. vii. 42 ; $\mathbf{i x} .42$. It was the role for the prior to be elected from among the inmstes of the monnstery; in other words, the election was to be "gremial" (Martene, Commentur. Bened. Rcyula, c. 65 ; cf. Conc. Aquisgr. A.D. 817, c. 31). Priora often, as was to be expected, were selected for the office of abbat; deass in the same way were often prometed to be priers.
The tenure of the office of prior was for life, conditionally always on geod conduct. A faulty prior rendered himself liable to public correction sfter four admonitiona, which were to be administered to him, according to Martene, by the ebbat in private. In the case of an ordinary monk the warning was to be given twice, in the case of a dean thriee, before proceeding to punish. The several degrees or stages of punishment, according to Hildemarus, quoted by Martene, were poblie rebuke, excommunication, extra fasting, flagellation if necessary, deposition, expulaion from the monsstery (Martene, Commentar. ad Bened. Rey. cc. 21, 45). Ilecourse was requisite occasionally even to the last and aeverest penalty (e.g., Ardo, Vita S. Benedicti Anianens. n. 24). Gregory the Great is quoted by Martene as apecifying profligacy, insubordination, or wastefulness as valid reasons for deposing a prior (Martene, u. s.).
The prior's first and especial duty was to look closely after the discipline of the monastery, and to report any breach of discipline to the albat (Pachom. Reg. 152, 154 ; Bened. Reg, ce, 63, 65 ; Reg. Tarnatensis, c. 23 ; Fruct. Rej. c. 11 ; ('oncil. Moyunt. I. A.d. 813, c. 11). He was to watch over the conduct of his brethren day and night, in the refectory, in the domitory, and elsewhere (llieron. E:p. ad Eustochium; Augustine, De MLoribus Eccleswee, c. 31). In the sleeping-chamber the prior was to he the first to rise in the morning, the last to go to his bed; he was to remuln standing in the middle of the rocin, till all the rest were asluep, to guard against any hregularity; at midnight, niter the appointed lection, the prior wr. to expound (Fruct. Reg. c. 5 ; Concil. $1 n$. c. 31). He was to lend the breth th to their labours in the field, and to suprintend their noonday repose afield in the heat of summer (Pachom. Rey. c. 58; Stephani Rey. c. 55). He was empowered to enforce discijline by the lesser oxcommunicution (Fruct. Rej. c. 11; Reg. Tarmat. c. 6). It ia related by Bede how St. Cuthbert was transferred by his ablat from Melrose to Lindisfarne, as prior, to keep order among the monks on the ialand (Bed. Hist. Eicles. iv. 27). It was another part of the prior's oflice, in order that the abbat might have more lelsure for spiritual conceras, to loek after the temporal possessions of the monastery, a respensibility which increased with the increasing wealth of monnsterien, but which he shared with ateward or oeconomus. On him also devolved, togethet with the care of the monastic property, the charge of the Jitigations in which the brotherhoed might be engaged (Isidori Hispal. Reg. c. 20). He was also to auperintend the food and clothing provided for the monks severally, not excluding the abbat'a portion, rendering his account duly from the to time to his superior (Fruet. Reg. c. 11). To diacharge rightly these various and important dutiea the prior was required to be diligent, obedient, trustworthy; grave and sedate in character, but not too advanced in yeara to be still active (lachom. Reg. 128; Ferreol. Reg. c. 17 ; Reg. Cujusdam).

PRIOR
1713
It is easy to see that the prior, holding so important a pesition in the monastery, might become a rival to the abbat rather than an assistant. He presidra in the abbat's absence (Basilii Regula, c. 45), and it was hardly to be expected that an ambitious man, nfter once tasting the sweetness of authority, should abdicate cheerfully. In case of any slackness or delinquency on the part of the abbat, the prior was to set mattera right (Gregor. M. Epist, iv. 4); sfter once reproving his superior, he was acarcely likely to receive orders from him submissively; in short, though intended to be a comfort and auppert to hia commanding officer (Ferreol. Reg. c. 17 ; Fruct. Reg. c. 11), he proved too often a thorn in his side. All this Benedict anticipated with hia shrewd, states manlike instinct. He was jealous of anything like a divided allegiance; he was afruid of inaubordination and diasension from what might practically come to be two abbata in the same monastery. The prior would fancy himself a second abbat; he would make a party among the brethren; he would play the part of Absalom to David, seducing the anbjecta from their loyalty to their ruler. Benedict much preferred deana to a prior as the abbat's executive; they would be more amenable to executive; they would

IMAGE EVALUATION

TEST TARGET (MT-3)

1714

PRIOR PRIVATUS
aelf-asserting. Thus the reins of government would be in the abbat's own hands. If, however, for some special reason, a prior ahould be indisjensable to a monastery, he was to be chosen by the abbat, with the advica of the brethren in chapter, that is of all the brethren, according to some commentatora, and according to others of the elders only (Benedicti Regula Commentatc, c .65 ). The wisdom of tha great rafurnser'a policy has been demonatrated again and again by experience. His canon on this point was reatirmed by Charlemagne in the council of Maintz (Conc. Mogunt. I. c. 11). Lay abbata subsequently found it far more convenient for their purposes to ba represented by deans than by a prior (Altes. Ascet. ii. 9). Lay priors, suother innovation on the primitive strictness of the Benedictine rule, wera prohibited by Charlemagne (Capitul. A.D. 805, c. 15).

The forms of institution are of comparatively recent origin (Bened. Reg. Comment. u. s.).

The conventual prior was a later development of monasticism, and was, of course, easentinlly more independent thau his claustral brotbar. Next in rank to him in larger monasterics was the anb-prior (Anaelmi Epist. iii. 29. Ad monachos Cantuar). Among the "canonici regulares" the bishop was supreme generally, but the prior in questiona relating to the rule, or while the sea waa vacant (Altes. Ascet. v. s). The conventual priors were summoned to proviacial synods, asd in aome casea to the election of bishopa. They were aometimes styled "aummi priors," or "majorea"; they were to be over tweaty-five years of age, and in priest's ordera. They exercised the same powera of diacipine in their priories as the abbat in his abbey-they were elected as he was; but their inveatiture belonged to the abbat, under whose juriadiction they nominally were. The order of Premonstratensinns was at first under priors, afterwards under abbats (Altes. Ascet. v. a.). Very small priories were invariably diacouraged by those who desired to preserve the true monastic spirit. Priories of thia kind were the result of aeveral different causes. Sometimea they were simply an overflow from a monastery more than uaually popular for the abbat'a aaka, or for aome othar reason; sometimes they were the consequence of a monastery, which had known better days, being annexed in its decrepitude as an appendage to another more flourialing; sometimea the priory was merely an outpost of tha monastery which gave it birth, on some detached grange or farm. Whatever might be its origin, a priory on a very amall scale was only too apt to degenerate into laxity and aecularity. Benedict, in the very commencement of hia rule, reprobatea strongly the vicious cuatom of two or threa monks lierding together promiscuoualy, being really ncither hermits nor monks (Bened. Rog. c. 1). Monks of this deacription were termed "Sarabaitas," or "Remoboth." Bernard calla auch priories "aynagogues of Satan" (Bernard. Epist. 254 ad Guarinum abbatem). It was ordered by a councii at Aachen that no priory should consist of fewer than sir members (Conc. Aquisgr. 1.D. 817, c. 44). Peter the Venerable, of Clugny, required at least twelve, and this became the rule of the Cistercians and Carthusians (Bened. Reg. Communf :. !). It is matter of notorlety in the Misory of the English raformation in the 15th century that the most flagrset immoralities were generally found in the smallest monasteries. [Cellitae, p. 328.]

The offioe of prioress, under an abbess, was very aimilar to that of the claustral prior. She was to be firm and discreet; old in charactar though not in yeara; she was to superintend the behaviour of the nuns, chiding and, if necessary, whipping tham for their faults; she was held responsible in particular for their clothea and dormitories (Regula Cujusdam, c. 2). The nuns, by thia rule, which is one of more than ordinary atrictnass, were only allowed to make any communication to their abbess through their prioress (Ibid. c. 22). [See also Abbat, Abbess; Beyser dictine Rule; Discipline, &c.] [l. G. S.]

PRISCA, virgin martyr, commemorated at Rome Jan. 18 (Usuard., Notker., Bed. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Mart. ; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jan, ii. 18:3); ber natale commemornted in the sacramentary of Gregory Jan. 18, her name being mentioned in the collect (Greg. Sacram. in Murat. Lit. Rom. Vet. ii. 19).
[C. H.]
PRISCILLA, martyr with her husbsed Aquila; commemorated Fel. 13 (Basil. Menol.); July 8 in Asia Minor (Usuard. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Mart. ; Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
PRISCILLIANUS, martyr with Priscus and Benedicta; commemorated at Rome Jas. 4 (Usuard., Notker., Vet. Rom. Mart. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. i. 165').
[C. H.]
PRISCUS (1), presbyter, martyr with Prisci.lianus and Benedicta; commemorated at Rome, Jan. 4 (Usuard., Notker., Vct. Rom. Mart.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. i. 165).
(2) Martyr with Ma chus and Alexauder undeí Valerian at Cnesarea in Palestinc ; commemorated Mar. 28 (Usuard., 'Nand., Vet. Rom. Mart.; Boll. Acta SS. Mart. iii. 711).
(3) Martyr with a great multituda in the district of Auxerre; cimmemorated Msy 26 (Usuard. Mart.; Hieron. Mart.; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Mai. vi. 365).
(4) Disciple of Chriat, martyr at Capua; commemorated Sept. 1 (Uauard. Mart. ; Vet. Rom. Mavt. ; Mieron. Mart. ; Kal. Antiquiss. Patr. Lat. cxxxviii. 1191 ; Boll. Acta SS. Sept. i. 213); his natale observed in the aacramentary of Gelnsius, Sept. 1. his nama being meutioued in the collect, in the post-communion, but not in the "secrets" (Galas. Sacram. in Murat. Lit. Rom. Vct. i. 666).
(5) Martyr at Tomi with Crescentius and Esagrius ; commemorated Oct. 1 (Usuard. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Mart.; Boll. Acta SS. Oct, i. 30; Hieron. Mart. has a Priscus for thia dny, but not the place nor the companions).
[C. H.]

PRISON. [Decanicula.]

PRIVATUS (1), biahop, martyr in the diocese of Gabala (Mende); commemorated Aug. 21 (Florus ep. Bed. Mart. ; Hicron. Mart.; Usuard. Mart. ; Boll. Acta SS. Aug. iv. 432).
(8) Martyr ; natalis commemorated in Phrygh with Dionyaius, Sept. 20 (Usuard. Mart; Ificron. Mart. at Synnada in Phrygia with Dormidonus and others ; Mart. Rom.).
(3) A aoldier listus at Rome,

PRIVILEG trary.]

PROAULI

PROBORT
rated Jan. 2, 3, PROBUS ( 1 dronleus; comm Cal. Byzant.; Usurrd. Nfart. 13; Hieron. Mar 87, ibid. ; Wand. Tarsua, Oct. 11)
(2) Martyr wi the Vandsls in (Vet. Roin. Mart

PROCESSIO used by the early of leaving the stated and grav chiefly for going lias, A.D. 192, ad "With you ever' dendi) is of a sole brother is to bey or the word of Foem. 11). Disa heathen, he says, (si procedendum basiness be more other examples in 3; Ep. 107 ad $I$ St. Augustine ( $D$ ning (De Obitu Epiphutria Ticin. Ambrose (Serm. vi the fame of a saio in which his reli pro meritis ejus f S. Qairiui, 4 ; in 1731).

Henca proceasio sense of going to c the far of God attendance, and a cessio) and an unite Haer. 43). This u the word to the. itseif. Thus Leo the bishop of Ale presbyter, who ha Rome: "Nostris tiosibus frequente 81, ad Diosc. 2). processionibus we are for the celebration of Rome, 484, advis services (procession because the lord of istions (Victori Epi versioa of the aeve probably about 365 , Fo find the word $\sigma$ [Svisxis]) rendered Concil. i. 783). The Pontificum, compiled
cerist. ant.-vo

PRIVILEGE OF CHURCHES
(3) A soldier; commemorated wlth pope Cal $\dot{L}_{i s t u s}$ at Rome, Oct. 14 (Vet. Rom. Mart.). $\underset{\text { ruary.] }}{\text { PRIVILEGE OF CHURCHES. }}$ [C. H.]

PROAULION. [PORCH.]

PROBORTIA "Of the Llghts"; commemorated Jan. 2, 3, 4, 5 (Cal. Byzant.).' [C. H.]
PROBUS (1), martyr with Tarachus and Andronicus; commemorated Oct. 12 (Basil Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Daniel, Cod. Litury. iv. 271; Usuard. Jfart. Oct. 11, Nov. 13; Florus, May 13; Heron. Mart. in Cilicia, Oct. 9; natalis, Sept. 27, ibid. ; Wand., Vet. Rom. Mart., Mart. Rom. at Tarsus, Oct. 11).
(2) Martyr with Archadiue and Paschasiua by the Vaudals in Africa; commemorated Nov. 12 (Vet. Rom. Mart.); Nov. 13 (Mart. Rom.).
PROCESSION. I. Tha word procedere was ased by the early Christians in the especial sense of leaving the house and going forth for some stated and grave purpose ; in particular and chiefly for going to a religious scrvice. Tertullian, A.D. 192, addressing Christian women saya, "With you every reason for going forth (procedendi) is of a solemn character: either some sick brother is to be visited, or the sncrifice is offered, or the word of God is ministered" (De Cult, Focm. 11). Dissuading from marriage with a heathen, he says, "If you have to go to a service (si procedendum erit), never will household basiaess be more urgent" (Ad Uxor, ii. 4). See other examples in St. Jerome ( $E_{p} 128$ ad Gaual. 3; Ep. 107 ad Laet. 9 ; Ep. 22 ad Eustoch. 17), St. Augustine (De Civ. Dci, xxii. 8, § 22), Urnnius (De Obitu Paulini, 11), Ennodius (Fita Epiphanii Ticin. Migne, Ixiii. 214), and PspuduAmbrose (Serm. vii. 3, inter Opp. Ambr.). When the fame of a snint attracts many to on church in which his relica lie, "mnjor est (it is asid) pro meritis ejus frequentia procedendi" (Passio S. Quiriui, 4 ; in Ruinart, Acta Mart. 439, ed. 1731).

Hence processio acquired the conventionnl sense of going to church. Tertullian: "Where tbs fcar of God is, there is . . . . devout attendance, and a modest going to church (processio) and an united congregation " (De Praescr. Haer. 43). This usage led to the application of tha word to tha, assembly or to the service itself. Thus Leo of Rome, A.D. 445, writing to tha bishop of Alexandria of an Alexandrian preshyter, who had sojourned some time. at Rome: "Nostris processionibus atque ordinstiooibus frequenter adfuit" (Epist. 11, al. 81, ad Diosc. 2). The context shews that by processionibus we are to understand congregations for the celebration of the Eucharist. Gelnaius of Rome, 484, adrised a blshop to suspead the tervices (processionem) of a certain church, because the lord of the place seized all the oblations (Victori Episc. Hard. ii. 827). In the rersion of the seveateenth canon of Laodicea, probably about 365, by Dionysius Exiguns, 533, Tr find the word $\sigma u v d \xi \in \sigma_{1}$ (raligious assemblies [Srmaxis]) readered by processiunibus (Hard. Concil. i. 783). The Liber Diturnus Romanorum Pontificum, compiled in the 9th century, glres Christ. ant.-VOL, in.

PROCESSION

1715
the form of letter by which tha blahop of Rome annctioned the consecration of monastic orntories. This was pernitted, "sic tamen ut non illud tur" tur" (v. 13). So of a baptistery added to an old church: "Nihil illic juris fundatori ulterius jam debere, nisi processionis gratinm, quae 20).
II. Processions in the ordinnry sense (Processus, Processio, Litania, Letania, Laetania, Rogationes, Supplicationes, Pomps, Aıтavela, Aıтй, Heplтatos) were common in the esrly church. Having regnrd to auch passnges as Num. x. 33; Josh. vi. 13; a Snm. vi. 4, 5; 1 Chron. xiii. 7, 8; 2 Chron. xx. 27, 28; Ps. 1xviii. 25, \&c. the first Christiana probably believed that they had the sanction of Scriptura. They certainly inherited a taste for them from their Greek and Roman forcfathers, and appear to have taken the mors sncient processions in some respects as their model. [See, for instance, $\Delta a \phi \nu \eta \phi o p i a$ and Triumphes ir Smith'e Dict. of Greck and Roman Antiq.] In the triumphal processions from the Campus Martius to the Capitol (to omit what is less to our purpose) flowers were atrewn, images were carried, incense burnt, and aongs of praise sung (Livy, iii. 29, xxxix. 7; Pliny, v. 5; Ovia, Tristia, iv. 2, 3-6; De Arte Am. i. 213-220; Pontica, ii. 1, 35-40, iii. 4, 23-40). Many features of these ancient rites reappear onder Christian snnction after tha conversion of the empire. The people naturally clung to every custom of their fathers not condemnel by tha goapel, and their rulers indulged them in it.
A. Processions in the Churches,-These were probably in use in larger churches with many clerks before the toleration of Christianity.
(1) Processions before the Service.-The enrliest Ordo homanus about 730 describes an elaborate rite. All met and rested in the Secreta. RuGM, or by the door of it, the bishop was led out by the archdeacon and the second dencon, ench taking a hand. "The sub-dencon, following with a censer, goes (procedit) before him ... and the seven acolytes of the region, whose turn comes on that day, precede the pontiff up to the altnr, carrying seven stnads of lighted wax candles. But before they come to the ultar, the deacons take off their planetae in the presbytery, and the sub-deacon of the region takes them, and hands them to the scolytes of the region to which they belong" (Ordo Rom. i. 8, in Mus. Ital. ii. 8 ; Comp. Ord. ii. 4, p. 43 ; iii. 8, p. 55 ; ${ }^{\text {v. }} 5$, p. 65 ; vi. 2, p. 70). (Compare Capit. Reg. Franc. v. 372.) The Greeks have for many ages had a procession in monasteries on the vigils of the greater feasts (Diataxis Philothei, in Eucholofion, Goar, 8; comp. Lucernarii Orationes, 40-43).
(2) For the Procession before the Reading of the Gospel, see Entrancer; Gospel. For that on Pat,m Sundhy, eea p. 1549
(3) After the Gospel.-This eastern rite is thus described Ly John Maro: "After the reading of the gospel tha ancients used to go out (of the bema) and make a procesaion or circuit throngh the church. And first in the procession were carried lights that myatically denoted the prophete and John the Baptist, who glow snd shine aa stara before the Sun of Righteousness. Bat the deacons and preshyters who went in procession with songs of praise represent symbolically the evangelists and twelve spostles who went forth and preached befure Christ" (Expos. Minist. u. s. 9 ).

1716

PROCESSION
(4) After the Liturgy,--"Then the seven candlestands and the subdeacon of the region piecede the pontiff to the secretarium. But as he descends into the presbytery, let the bishops first say, 'Jube, domne, benedicere.' Resp. 'Benedicat nos Dominus.' Besp. 'Amen.' After the bishope, the presbyters, then the monks, then the school (choir), then the milites draconarii, i.e. those who besr the standard (see the notes of Lindenbrogius and the Valesii to Ammianus, xx. 4), after them the bearers of the wax candlestands, after whom the acolytes who keep the sacred gate [RUGA], after them, without the preshytory, those who carry the crosses, then the junior churchwardens;-snd he enters the secretarium." This is the description of the procession to the vestry after s pontifical mssa nt Rome in the 8 th century (Urdo Rom. i. 21 ; comp. Ord. ii. 15 ; iii. 18).
B. Pullic Processions.-The earliest allusion to them sppears to be in the writinga of St. Basil. When, in the year 375, the clergy of Neocsessrea objected that the method of psalmody in use in his churoh, as elsewhere in the East, was unknown in the days of Gregory Thaumsturgus, who died about 270, Bnsil repliad, "So wers the litanies which ye now practise"' Epist. 207 ad Neoc.). These were evidently of a penitentisl charncter, for he adds, "I do not say this as accusing you, for I would thst ye sll lived in tears and constant penitence." But we find that in the West processions were at the same period used on festive occasions also, at lesst by the monks; for St. Ambrose, in 388, speaks of monks "singing psalms after the custom and ancient nse, as they went to the calebration of the feast of the Maccabean martyrs" (Epist. 40, $$ 16$, ad Theodos.). About the same time the Arians at Constantinople sang hymns antiphonally as they went through the city to their church; whereupon St. Chrysostom, to counteract the effect of such public demonstrations, organized processions of the orthodox, in which silver crosses, given by the empress, and lighted tapers, were borns, and psalms sung (Sozom. Eccl. Hist. viii. 8; Pallad. Dial. de Vita Chrys. 15).
(1) The Procession on St. Mark's Day.-On the 25th April (VII, Kal. Maii) a procession ("obatitit in mediâ candids pomps via," Ovid, Fast. iv. 906) was held by the Romsns in honour of the goddess Robigo, and prayers offered to her for the preservstion of ths fruits of the earth from mildew (Ovid, u.s. 905-942; Pliny, xviii. 69 ; Varro, De Re Rust. i. 1 ; De Ling. Lat. vi. 3).

A document issued by Gregory of Rome in 591 speaks of a "laetanis quae major sb omnibus appellatur," which was held on a Friday in that year, with a procession from the church of St. Lawrence, "qui nppallatur Lucinae," to that of St. Peter, ss if it wers alresdy an old custom, "solemnitas snnuse devotionls" (Charta Epist. lib. ii. praef.) Raferring to some of the most ancient MSS. of the Gregorian sseramentary, we find set down for the 25th of April, "Lotania majore ad S. Laurentiom in Lucinne" (Litturg. Rom. Vet. Murat. ii. 80 ; Rituale PP. Pamel. ii. 285). This procesaion also ends at St. Peter's, as the last prayer ("in atrio ") proves by its reference to the intercession of that saint. The in ference is that this procession is the snme as that of which St. Gregory rpesks. His processiod, therefore, took place on the 25 th of April, sod, from its antiquity, may be supposed with prebsbility to have been a Christian substitute for the heathen Robigalia, formerly held on the sama day. In France the procession of St. Mark's day was trsditionally held to be celebrated "pour les fruits de ls terre" (De Moleon, Voyages litur. giques, 307).

Other churches took this rite avowedly from Rome. The council of Cloveshoo, 747, orders litanies " on the seventh dsy before the calends of May after the custom of the church of Rome" (csm. 16). The second council of Aachen, 836 , recognizes the "Roman" observance of the 25 th of April ss the custom of the empire, snd decrees its continunnce (can. 10 ; see also Capit. Rog. Franc. vi. 74). Similarly Hersrd of Tours, 858, "De Letania Romana vii. Kalendas Maii romemoretur" (Capit. 94). This procession was observed in France during the last century et Nantes, Orleans, Rouen, &c. (De Moleon, 79, 180, 306, &c.).
(2) The Procession of the Litania Septiformis.On the 29th of August, 602, Gregory I. of Rome ordered s sevenfold procession of clerks, laymen, monks, nuns, mstrons, widows, poor persons and children (: probsbly those supported by the alms of the church) to depart in separate bsads from seven several churches, and all to meet in the church of St. Mary (Sermo Inter Epist. Greg. xi. 2, given also at length by Amalarius, De Eod. Off. iv. 25). [Litany, p. 1003.]
(3) On Rogation Days, see that hending.
(3) Occasional Public Processions. (1) At times of Public Calamity.-These were very common, especially in th, ${ }^{7}$ - $t$. Thus Gregory of Tours tells ns that a jes, about 580, when very violent raine $\boldsymbol{r}^{-}$ ing, near the harvest, aftcr a night spent in watching and prsyer, "the dencons took the relics of the saints, suitably and reverently covered with a silken pall, and went forth in white dresses to s procession" (Vita S. Aridii, 8). A similar rite wss observed at Rome under Adeodatus, A.D. 671, when the letanise took place daily during the rains (Liber Pontif. n. 78). In a plague at Rheims, 546, "having taken a pall from the tomb of the blessed (Remigius), and srranged it like a bier, and hariog lighted wax candles on crosses and stands, they raised their voices in canticles, and so went the circuit of the city; nor did they pass any hospice withont including It in their perambulation" (Greg. Tur. de Glor. Conf. 79; see also Hist. Franc. iv. 5; Vitae PP. vi. 6). Gregory I. in 600 advised a procession twice a week to stay the threatened invasion of Sicily (Epist. ix. 45), P'nblic processions with similar objects wert slso trequent in the Esst; e.g. during an earthquake at Constantinople in the time of Theode sius II. (Cedrenus, i. 600). A similar procession was celebrated every yesr in memory of the great earthquake in the twenty-seventh year of Justinisn (Id. ii. 674).
None of the processional prayers now in ase proper to a special object, as relief in a तronght, deliverance from storins, &c. (Goar, Euchol. 766 769), appesr to be of primitive sntiquity. Some of them are nscribed to one of the patrisrchs named Callistus, who sat about 1400 (ibid. 785),

It is probal special purpos is not slwsys
(4) The $P_{r}$ ss many were Pentecost, it to leave the sgnin to repsi in procession, the holy com Gregery Nazia Easter Day, sa wearing of wl which we obse public, men of magistracy, lig blaze" (Orat. moay in the processions du) Thus Amalariu: done away, are lighted pillar xiii. 21) " goin iv. 33 ; Pseudo.
(5) Before $B$ bisptized, A.D. 4 all the usual ac (Flodoard, Hist. probably comme ages, but of whi to me.
(6) Before lay \&c.-A law of J that, before all ${ }^{\circ}$ mence the build before the mos city, coming tl the spot, snd, s iostituted, set u manifost to all" (7) At the Det sions on such or within our perioc but they seem to managed. When at Constantinople was a procession the holy Anastas seated in the impe joined in the proc ths people" (Th 338, ed. Nieb.). church having be 8 si earthquake), as of St. Plato, s pro the emperor him patriarch Eutychi dressed in his ap holy gospels in his ing, "Lift up your Western rite is be pentificals. [Conser pontifical, formerly the public library procession to go rou it enters (Martene Archaeologia for Mn (8) Al Stationes.from the 7 th cent processions on man one charch, st whi appointment, to anc

PROCESSION

It is probable that all litanics ordered for a special parpose were sung in procession, though it not aways so expressed. [Litany.]
(4) The Processions after Baptism.-So lony as many were baptized on the eves of Easter and Pentecost, it was the custom for the neophytes to leave the church after their baptism, and again to repair to it on the seven following days In procession, clothed in albis, there to receive the holy communion. The earliest witness is Gregory Nazisnzen, A.D. 370, who, preaching on Easter Day, says: "Beautiful yesterdny was the wearing of white and the carrying of lights, which we oberved together both in private and public, men of almost every rank, and the whole magistracy, lighting up the night with a fiery Haze" (Orat. 45, & 2). There is direct baze" (Orat. 4r, § 2). There is direct testimany in the West to the repetition of these processions during the week after baptism. Thus Amalarius: "Our baptized, their past sins done sway, are conducted daily to the church, a lighted pillar of wax" (an allusion to Exod. xiii. 21) "going before them" (De Eccl. OJF. iv. 33; Psendo-Alcuin. de Div. Off. 21).
(5) Before Baptism. - When Clovis was to be haptized, A.D. 496, there was a procession, with all the usual accompnniments, to the baptistery (Flodoard, Hist. Eccl. Rem. i. 13), a ceremony probsbly common in the case of grent personsges, but of which other examples do not oceur to me. to me.
(6) Before laying of the first stone of a Church, for-A law of Justinian, 527, anya: "We decree that, before all things, no one be free to commeace the building of a monastery or uratory before the most God-loving bishop of the city, coming thither, pour out prayers on the spot, and, a public procession having been the spot, and, a public procession having been instituted, set up a cross, and make the fact instituted, set up a cross, and make the fact manifest to all " (Novella, 67 ). (7) At the Dedication of Clu).
(7) At the Dedication of Churches. - Proces. within our period, both in the East nnd West within our period, both in the East nnd West; but they seem to have been somewhat differently managed. When the first encaenia of St. Sophia st Constantinople were celebrated in 530, there was a procession (lite), which "stnrted from the holy Anastasia, Menas the putriarch being sested in the imperial chariot, while the emperor joined in the procession (ou入入ıravev́outos) with ths people" (Theophanes, Clronogr. ad an. i. 338, ed. Nieb.). At the вecond encnenia (the church having been restored after injury from so earthquake), after vigils kept in the chureh of St. Plsto, a procession was formed, in which of St. Plato, a procession was formed, in which the emperor himself agnin took part, "the the emperor himself ngnin took part, "the pstriarch Eutychius riding in a chariot, and prstriarch Eutychius riding in a chariot, and dressed in his apostolical hnhit, holding the holy gospels in his hands, the people nll chanting, "Lift up your hends," &c. (ibid. 360). The Western rite is best seen in the early English pontificals. [Consecration, p. 431.] The English pantifical, formerly at Junieges, now No. 362 in the public library nt Roueu, directs the first procession to go round the charch thrice before it enters (Martene de Ant. Riccl. Rit. ii. 250; or Archueologia for March, 1833, p. 259).
(8) Ald Stationes.-In the cities of the West, from the 7th century downwseds, there were processions on many of the greater daya from one church, st which the people collected by appointment, to another, at which the service took place. Heuce the phrases "collecta nd Sanctum M." (used first for the gathering, then "statio ad S. N." the church of St. M.), and "statio ad S. N." (the church at which the procession stopped and entered on the chief service of the dny. Sce Ménard'a notes to the sacramentary of St. Gregory, Opp. Greg. iii. (9) Other proces.ions art. Station).

PROCESSUS
1717
tioned are, throcessions which myy be menciation (Goar, Eucholog 34) Eve, on the Annunof Relics or, Eucholog. 34), at the translation funerais [OBsequith relics nt other times, and nt C. Procession held it the ]

From a spurious nddition to cll of the Bishop.Illust. 99), we infer that to Geanadius (De lir. processions were celebrated the 5th century bishop thought them required for the as the his flock. For it tells required for the good of of Marscilles, 490. "1t us of Honorntus, bishop Dei clementiam cum plebe sibi ad supplicandam agit." A law of Justinian, 527 medita pro viribus currence of the Justinian, 527, made the conautem lsicis interdicinop necessary: "Omnibua auten licicis interdicinus ne supplicationes pubqui sub eis aunt reverendissimis clericis." is, et context shows that these "supplicaticis.", The made in processions: "Sed supplicstiones" were cum quibus sacerdote in supplicationibes cruces, untur non alihj reponuntor" ( quam in locis venerabilibus On the foregoing a, 123).
gult Jac. Gretser lib. ii. Ingoldst. 1604 ; Nic. Serrnriug dsionibus, Pro ess. Col. 1607 ; Nic. Serrarius de Sue is Eracess. Col. 1607; Juc. Evaillon de Process. Ecelcs. Pur. 1641 ; Christinnus Lupus de Sur. Process. Bruxell. 1690 ; D. Vatar, Des Processions de 'PEglise, Par. 1705; or the shorter notices of S. J. Durandus de Rit. Eçेl. ii. 10; Al. Aur, Pellicia do Christ. Ecel. Politia, I. v. 11; Ménarl, Sacramentorum Liber Gregor. n. 471; J. B. Casalius de Vet. Sacr. Christ. Ritib. c. 30 .

[W. E. S.]

PROCESSUS, martyr with Martinianus, anid to have been baptized by the apostles Peter and Paul; commemorated at Rome in the cemetery of Damasus July 2 (Bed., Wnnd., Usiund. Mart.; Vet, Rom. Mart.; Hierom. Mart.; Mart. Rom.). Hieron. Mart. has also May 31 for his natale. In Gregory's sacramentary the natale of these saints is observed on July 2, and both are mentioned in the collect (Greg. Sacram. Murat. Lit. Rom. Vet. ii. 105). Pope Paschal I. erected au oratory to them, in which their bodies are believed to lie (Ciamp. de Sac. Acdif. 57,1).
[C. H.]
PROCESSUS. In the liturgy of Gothic Spain, a part of the church which might be either a chamber in the sacrarium, a part of it, or a place close to it, was so callell, obviously becanse the clergy formed in it before they entered the church in procession. Thus, on Esstereve, the deacon and clerks, after vesting, "enter the processus." in which is " $n$ geat set for the pontiff necording to custom." There he gives taper's to all present. which he afterwards lights with the "new fire" (See Ligars, § v.). This is followed by a procession "f the clergy through per bubuta ad chornm" (Mfissale Mozar. Vadunt 174, 175, 521).
[W. E. S.]

PROCURATIONS

PROCHORUS, one of the sevsn dencons; commomorated Ap. 9 (Usuard. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Mart. at Autiveh; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Ap. i. 828); by the Greeks July 28 (Basil. Menol.; Cal. By:ant.; Dnniel, Cod. Litury. iv. 264 ; Boll. l. c.).
[C. H.]
PROCLUS (1), martyr with Hilarins, both natives of Ancyra, under Trajan ; commemorated July 12 (Basil. Mfcnol. ; Cal. Byzant.; Daniel, Cud. Liturg. iv. 263 ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. iii. 279, or Proculua 'with hilarion or llilamus; Mart. Rom.).
(2) Deacon, Sept. 19. [Proculus (2).]
(3) "Our father," patriarch of Constantlnople; commemorated Oct. 24 (Basil. Menol.; Mirt. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Oct. x. 637); Nov. 20 (Cal. Byzant.).
[C. H.]
PROCOPIUS (1), confessor with Basilins, under Leo lconomachus; commemorated Feb. 27 (Basil. Menol. ; Col. Byzant., bishop of Decapolis; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 254, Decapolita).
(2) Martyr, commemorated July 8 (Wand.; Basil. Menol. Dnx Alexandriae, magnans martyr in city of Aelia); in Palestine (Usuard. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Mart.; Bed. Mart. ; Mart. Rom.); Cal. Byzant. "glorions and holy martyr;" Daniel (Coud. Litury. iv. 262), "great martyr" at Caesarea ; Hieron. Mart. Procobus, which Boll. Actu SS. Jul. ii. 577 from the same passage read Proconles, with ?uartus and Felix at Cacsares Capp.
[C. H.]
PROCULUS (1), martyr at Interamna with Efybus and Apollonius, all disciples of Valentinus presbyter of Interamna; commemorated Feb. 14 (Bed. Mart. ; Mart. Kom.; Boll. Acta SS. Fcb. ii. 756, cf. p. 8i2) ; Ap. 14 (Usuard. Mart. at Interampr ; Mart. Rom.; ILíron. Mart. at Interamna with Vsientinus and others).
(2) Deacon, martyr with Januarins; commemorated Scpt. 19 (Basil. Menol. Procius at memorated Vet. Rom. Mart., at Niples ; Usuard. Mart. ; Bed. Mart.; Mart. Rom.).
(3) Bishop, martyr at Antun ; commemorated Nov. 4 (Usuard. Mart.; Hieron. Mart.; Mart. Rom.).
(4) Presbyter, martyr at Naraia; commemorated Dec. 1 (Usuard. Mart.).

PROCURATIONS. The fees dne at visitations to bishops and archdencons from the parishes within their respective juris dictions, intemuled to cover the expenses of their journeys. A series of canons and decrees of councils were found necessnry to keep these fees within their lavful linits, mil to prevent extortion under various plens. The second counci) of Braga A.D. 570 (c. 2) prohibits a bishop when he visits his diocese, "per dioceses suns ambnlat," from taking any fee beyond two solidi, the honorary payment due to the office, "homorem catherlrne sune," especially forbiddiag him to claim the third part of the ottertories made in parish churches, which ia allotted to the lighting nod repairs of the churches themselves. The seventh council of Toledo A.D. 046 (c. 4), after reprehending the extortionate practices of the bishopa of Gallicin, rs-enacts the canon already quoted of the counçil of Braga, fixing two "solidi" as the legal fee, but exempts from payment the churches belonging to monnsteries. It also provides that when a bishop visits his diocese he is not to be unfairly burdensome to any particular parish, nor to demand an unrensonable number of horses for conveyance (see Bruns, Cutucils, i. p. 264, note) nor to remaiu more than one day in nny parish. The council of Dlerida, A.D. 666 (c. 11 ), provides that all clerics, whether presbyters, abbats, or deacons, shoull receive a bishop nt his visitation with all due honour, and provile him with all things reasonably necessary nccording to their means, "pront habuerint nut ratio periniserit." The second council of Chillons a.D. 812 (c. 14) rebukes ths oppressions and exnetions sometimes practisel by bishops at their visitations, nad (c.16) forbids them to exnct anything for the lnmps and oil of their chnrehes, and (c. 17) speaks of an annual tax (censnm) of 12 or 14 deuarii, which some bishops wero in the hnbit of exncting, and emphatically prohibits it, "quod penitus abolendum est." In the same conncil (c. 15) the archideacons ure rebuked for cerisin exactions from. their presbyters and parochial clergy, and exhorted to be content with their legal dnes. It was probably to excessive demands made under the name of procurations tbnt the council of Paris a.d. 8:9 (cc. 25,31 ) referred when they denonaced the extortions practised in some places by the bishops (episcoporuin ministros), not only on the presbyters but on the laity rgents. The fourth council of Valentin A.D. 855 (c. 22) orters that no visitntion fee shall be claimed if the parish has not been risited that year, and the second council of Ticine in the sume yenr limits the quantity of bread and wine and meat which a bishop may demnnd at his visitation.

The same principle that procurntions were only intended to cover the legitimate expenses of s visitation pervades all legislation on the subject. A Capitulary of Ludwig the Pious (l. i. c. 100 , Sirmondi Conc. Gill. ii. 432) expressly prohibits bishops from becoming a burden to their flocks when they visit their parishes for the purpose of prenching or contirming, and orders them so to arrange their visitations that they may not be bnrdensome or unwelcome (inportuna vel onerosa). Hincmar of liheims nppears to have been most anxious to check all extortionate practica under the name of procurations, and his writings clearly indicate the rbuses which had crept into this part of the system of the church. Thus, in his epistle to the clergy of Lann (Sirmondi Conc. Gall. ii. 660) he warns the bishops net to oppress the parishes which they visit, nor to exsct more than the contribution (collatio) which had satisfied their prodecessors, nor to require a seps. rate contribution from ench church and its dependent chrpelries, but only one paid in due proportion hy the whole parish; nor were they to claim or exact, under pretence of receiving a voluntary contribution (accipint, id est rapist), any snbsidies (adjutorin) in money or provisions under the plen of meeting expenses incurred in the reception of the king or his ambassaders, or for the alornment of the cathedral church. Again in his precepts to hls archdeacons (id. ii. 378) he forbids them (c. 1) during their visitations of their country parishes, either when accompsnying him or by thems demanding thing them a supertu to be quartere risited; or (c. frequently, so savs their own as otlerings (ell in money or in $n$ when they came the chrism, or beyont such as willingly.
A Capitulary enacts (c. 1) thn a definite quan "solidi" rllotte Braga nad Toled chouse the riche and that four pa expenses of a visi might risit pari procurations, but parishes not visi more than once pay their own ex
PROCURAT ing ${ }^{a}$ person in noother as rgent but more usuall rense to lavyers ecclesinstical, cou
These employm to the clergy, ns consistent with Angustine (do OT tinction between on by manual labo is to distract the about seculnr bu pare curis colli. pecuniae), and e, tores," probnbly u meaning, among (ad Sicpot. c. 16) are bitden to ren temporal possession be manngers (proc the houses and es of the church spee refusnl to almit in nay who 'were nct the affairs of other thage, held in th decreed (cc. 8,9) thr in any wasy cagnged nlienis negotiis), sho the clergy, till they obligations, lest di apon the church. thage, A.D. 397 bishops and priests, being procurntores, by any ignoble or A9 a renson that $t$ l rice of God must nflairs. The counc (c. 3), forbids any b monastic orders to aeculhr business (id dionktovoiv) ruaking, him or by themsel ves, to be guilty of oppression by demanding things not necessary, or by taking with them a supertluous retinue, or their own rellations, to be quartered upon the parishes which they risited; or (c. 2) by visiting their parishes too. frequently, so ns to live at their expense and aspe their own income ; or ( $(0.5$ ) by demanding as oflerings (eulogiae) any contrilution either in money or in any other way from the presbyters when they eame to attend a synod, or to obtain the chrism, or for enquiry into their ministry, beeont such as they might be disposed to manake willingly.
A Capitulary of Charles the Bald (id. iii. 2,3) enacts (c. 1) that bishops were to receive either ${ }^{5}$ definite quantity of provision or the two "solidi" "nlloted to them by the councils of Braga and Toledo (c. 4); that the bishopls should choose the richer parishes for their visitations, and that four parishes might unite to share the expenses of a visitation ; num (ce. 5, 6) that they might visit parishes once a year nnd reeciive procurations, but could require nothing from procurations, but could require nothing from parihhes not visited. If they visited any parish parishes not visited. It they visited any parish more than once in the sme yenr, they were to par thein own espuses pay their own expenses.
[P. 0.]
PROCURATOR. In its general meaniag a person in charge of the interests of pnother as agent or fretor (see Ducange, Gloss.), but mure usually applied in a more limited sense to lawers in the civil, or proctors in the seose to lawyers in the civil, or proctors in the ecedesinstical, courts.
These employments were in general forbidden to the clergy, as involving secular lowsiness inconsistent with their office nnd position.
Augnstine ( $d e$ ( $p$. Monach, e. 15 ) Augustine (do (pp. Monach. e. 15) Iraws a distinction between occupations which nre carried on by manual Inbour, and those whose nature it is to distract the mind with eares and naxieties sbout seeular business (ipsum nimum occupare curis collitendae sine cormoris labore pare curris collitendae sine coryoris labore pecunise), and expressly num pecuniac) and expressly numbers "procura-tores," probably using the word in its general meaning, among the lnterer class. So Jerome (ad Sizpot. c. 16) asks how the elergy, who are bidden to renounce all care for their own temporal possessions, can possibly undertake to be managers (procuratores et dispensantores) of the houses and estates of others. The decrees of the church spenk with united voice in the reflusal to almit into the number of the elergy any who were actually engnged in managing the nflairs of others. The first council of Carthage, held in the yenr A.D. 3.48, expressly decreed (ec. 8, 9 ) that no "procurntores,", or those in nany way engagel in the athirs of others (otnoxii in any way engaged in the afthirs of others (otnoxii alienis negutitis), should be admitted to number of alienis nggutiiis), should be admitted to number of the clergs, till they were free from their scular obligations, lest disgrace should be brought npon the church. The third comeneil of Cinrthaye, A.D. 397 (c. 15), prohibits not only bishops and priests, but nay of the clergy from being procuratores, or seeking their livelihood b7 any ignoble or dishouest oceuntion giving by any ignoble or dishonest oceupation, giving as a reason that those entrusted with as a renson that those entrusted with the serriee of God must not bre entangled in secular aftairs. The council of Chalcelon, A.D. 451 (c. 3), forbids any belonging to the clerical or monastic orders to charge himseif with nny diontroscoiv) making, hovever, exceptions in case of any business imposed upon then by Inw, or committed to them by the bishop of the diacese, or madertaken on behalf of widows nad orphans. The council of Tarrayona, A.D. 516 (c. 11), forbils any monk to take any part in nay legal busilless (forensis negotii suscepytor nut executor existat) except on behalf of the monnstery, nand under order of the abbat. This exception, however, wis not nllowed by Justinina, who in one of his laws (Norell. exxiii. c. 6) positively prohibits nay bishop or oeconomus, or clergy of any grade or nay mark, from acting as manager (procuratnrenn litis), either ou their own behalf, or of any church or monastery. later retanu, however, nypur to linve insisted on retaining the principle that the clergy might act act ns alvocates in certnint cases. The council of erno, A.D. 755 ( $e, 16$ ), forbids any of the clergy to comluct nny legal business, except on behaiff of widows nad orphnnc, or in censes where the property of the church wns concerned, and then acting under orders for their bishop or A.1. 813 In like mananer, the council of Mayence, A.c. 813 (c. 14), forbilits any of the clergy $t$. nct ns agents or curatores) in any secular nuttuctorns aut procurntores in any secular natters, except in detene of widows and orphnns. See also p. 977.
$\left[\begin{array}{ll}1 & 0 . \\ 0\end{array}\right]$
PROEORTIA. The $\pi$ pofoptia of the Greek church eurresponds in the main to the Eve or foeisi of the Latins. But some of the greatest festivals have a $\pi$ poooopfla of more than one day. Thus the apocoprta of the Eppiphnan begius on Jauanry 2, of Christmas on Dec. 20 (Neale, Lastern Ch. Introd. p. 764).
[C.]

Profanation. [Sacrileger.]

PROFESSION. For the profession of fnith in Baplism, see Baitiss, $\$$ § 43,46 ; Creed, $\S 4$, p. 489; intenrogatio, p. 8ifi. To these it may be nulded thiat the form of protession given by the conacil of Lestines (Consiliun Liptinense, A.D. 743) is one of the oldest specimens of a liturgical formula in a Teutonic langunge, it is given ns follows by Professor Swsinson (The Niccno and Apostles Creeds, \&e., 1. ${ }^{22}$ ): -""Gelobistu in got nlamehtignn fillare. Ec gelobo in got al"mehtigna fadaer. Gelobistu in crist goles suno. Ee gelobo in critt godes ${ }^{\text {sunno. Gelabistu }}$ in halogna gast. Fe gelolo in halognn gisto." That is: "(2. Believest thou in Gull the Fathor Almighty? A. 1 beliere in God the Futher Almighty. 2. Believest thou in Christ Goul's Son? A. I believe in Christ God's Son. Q. Believest thou in the Holy Ghost? A. I believe in the Holy Glost."
[c.]

PROFESSIONS. [TRADEs.]

PROHIBITED BOOKS. I. Hecthen Pro-

 colent.-The suppression by public authority of books adverse to the prevailing zeligion was common long befire the Christinn ern; c.g. the Atheninns scandalized by a declaration of Protngoras, B.c. 411, that lie was uncertain of the existence of gods, "enlled in his books from their puosessors by the vinice of a public crier, and burned them in the market-pinaee" (Diogen. Laert. Vitite Philos. ix. 8, § 3; sim. Laetant. de Irâ Dci, 9). Another instance, in which theactors were Greeks, is recorded in the First Book of Macenbees (i. 50): the efticere of Antiochus Epiphanes, b.c. ( 68 , "rent in pieces the books of the law which thoy found, and burnt them with fre." Examples are frequent among the Rumans. During the second Punic war, b.c. 213, when foreigu superstitions were gaining a fuoting in Rome, a senntus consultum was passel, and published by the practor urbis, to the effect that sny one possessed of "books of soothanying, or prayers or written treatises on the art of sacriticing," should give them up to the prator by a certaiil day (Livy, Hist. xxvi.). On a discovery of the nature of the Bacchanalian rites, n.c. 186, the consul Posthumius, when explaining the cnuse of their suppression to the people, declared that the magistrates had often been charged with the duty of "forbidding the perfurnance of foreigu rites . . collecting and burning books of soothsaying, and abolishing every mode of sacrifice not after the Roman custom" (ibid. xxxix. 16). Five years later the Greek books found near the tomb of Numa were immediately burnt "per victimarios. ... in conspectu pepuli, quia aliquâ ex parte ad solvenlam religionem pertinere existimabantur" (Vilerius Max. Menorab. 1. i. 14. Compare Plutareh in Numa, Reiske, i. 298; Lactant. Instit. i. 22). When Augustus became Pontifex Maximus, he collected and burnt above two thousand "libri fatidici" (Suetonius, Uctav. 31). The works of political oppenents were exposed to the same fate. Thus the writings of Labienus, about 12 b.c. (Seneca, Controvers. vl. Praef.), these of Cremutius, A.D. 25 (Tacitus, Annal. iv. 35), these of Fabricius Veiento, A.d. 63, of Arulenus Rusticus and Herennius Senecio (" monumenta clarissimorum ingeniorum," Tacit. Ajfricola, 2) were in the same manner publicly destroyed. The books of the Manicbaeans were also under the ban of heathen princes. Thus Diocletian and Maximian, A.D. 289, ordered the teachers of the "Persian doctrine to be burnt with their abominable books" (Baron. ad ann. 288 ; iii. 252, ed. 1738), and Cabades, king of Persia, A.d. 516, after a great slaughter of the sect, caused their books to be hurned throughout his dominions (Theophanes, Chronogr. ad ann. i. 263, ed. Bomn).
11. Christion Books suppressed.by Jews and Heathens.-When Christianity began to acquire strength, this familiar mode of suppression was applied both by Jews aud Gentiles to all writings that were supposed to teach or favour it. Addressing the Jews of his day, Anastasius-Sinaita, A.D. 561 , says: "Your fathers, who were then completely worsted, . . . commanded that none of the Jews should possess in writing an account of the things done by Christ, or seek after them at all, or read them" (Disput. adv. Juducos; Migne, Ser. Gr. Ixxxix. 1246). The existence of such a law explains, as nothing else can, the total silence of Philo and the probable sileace of Josephus on that subject; or if the passage in his antiquities (xvii. 4, §3) be not an interpelation, it accounts for the very brief notice which the facts on that supposition extorted from the latter. The Jews hoped that the new religion would die out if left to oral tradition. The heathens were influenced by the same policy. "Through the agency of wicked demons," says Justin Martyr, "death was decreed against these who rend the books of Hyataspes, or tha Sibyl, or the pruphets " (Apui. 1. 44; cemp. Clem. Alex. Stromuta, VI. v. 43). Dincletias orderel "the destruction of the Scriptures by fire," in edicts published throughout the cmpire (Euseb. Hist. Lectes. viil. 2). In every persecu. tion, in fact, they were demnndel of the Christians for this purpose, and many were recquired to atteat their abjuration of the gorpel by burning its sacred records themselves. Thuse who gave them up were conventionally termed "trs. ditores" [Tuabros], a name which, accorling to St. Augustine, came into use some forty yesrs after the death of St. Cyprian (d. 258), when a great "burning of the divine books" teuk place in Africa under Maxentius (De Baptisno, v. 1; vii. 2; Optat. de Schism. Donat. i. 13).
III. Christian Prohibition of Heathen Books.The works of the heathen were, on the other hand, proscribed by the Christinns, but hit without discrimiation. Sume writers were more severe and strict than others, but we ore evidently to understnad their denuncintions for the most part of those books only which had s bearing on religion, or encouraged a loese morality. The Apostolical Constitutions (i. 6) in both recensions say: "Refrain from all the books of the Gentiles; for what hast thu to do with strange discourses or laws, or with false prophets, which even turn the light-minded from the fanth ?" Gregory Nazianzen, A.D. 363, hearing that his namesske of Nysss, instead of reading to the people as before the "sacred and refreshing beoks" of holy Scripture, hal turned to the "brackish and undriakable" foonts of heathen knowledge, nccused him at ence of "desiring rather to be called a rhetor than a Christian" (tipist. 12, al. 43). St. Basil, the brother of the Intter, has left a discourse addressed "to the Young on the Way to profit by the Hellenic Literature." His opinion is that much good may be obtained from it by thase who resolutely put aside the evil part, and stndy to bring the innocent into the service of religies. Then, "if the two literatures are at all in hare mony with each other, the knowledge of theut both will be of great service to us; but if not, to have compared them, and ascertoined the difference will tend not a little to the confirmstion of the better" ( $$ 2 ;$ ii. 175). St. Jerome, 378, referring to Eph. vi. 4, says: "Let those bishops and presbyters read it who train their zons in secular literature, and make them read comedies, and sing the shamcful writings of the actors," &c. (Comm. iii. in Ep. ad Eph. u. s. See also Epist. 22 ad Eustoch. § 30 ; comp. Aug. in Ps. 103, Enarr. S. ii. § 4 ; in Ps. 31, Enarr. S. ii. § 8 ; De Anina et ejus Orig. ii. 17, §23). One ground of abstinence from even the mere innocent productions of heathen writers is mentioned by Germanus, the monk, in Cassias (Collat. xiv. 12), viz. the distractions that stise at prajer from images suggested by a study of poetry and history. Paulinus of Nola (Poema, 10 ) tells us that hearts devoted te Christ are closed to Apollo and the Muses. The ceuncil of Carthage, 398, decrees: "Ut episcopus Gentiliunय libros non legat, haereticorum autem pro accese sitate temporis" (can. 16). Much later Gregory I. strongly denounces a French bishep who was said to teach belles-lettres, "quia in uno se ore said to teach berber-etrist laudes non copiunt" cum Jovis laudibus Christ
( $E_{p}$ ist. ix. 48). Gregury " forb to all poutiths iii. 3:3). Isidor the Christian is of the poets," corrupt the mi books in genere libri, et propter vitandi " (ibid.).
Munks were e werks of henthe A.D. 412, writin amang them to there that is $n$ for laughter in Are not their passions? Are ouke of passions passious? Shun thsmeful stuft; reopen wounls th i. 63). St. Nilus books: "The rul books of the Gen diligence rake tog sfter renouncing ii. 73). To a di books of the ho tropologicnl, nor but read the Ne of the martyrs, at the sayings of Seville, in his $R$ menk be careful Gentiles, or the $v$ is better to be ign than by experime ertor" (viii. 3). tary to Charlemas to his son, a mon rheterica, caetera vans sunt, et val gratian Divinnm cantur, quia scient Melius mihi quide contingat quam is (Epist. 30, ad Vuss It is probable t] we te understand a the sbsolute suppre exception, of the literature. This w the meaning of St . the appeal of Christ of the heathen, and Aristiles, Justin M: and many others, as use of secular leart Orat.). Long before Gregery Thaumatur of the Greeks as $\pi f$ and "geometry and aseful in the inter tures" (Epist. ad Gi It is clear that these to a dangerous exces as the 5th century. to the spplause whi mont ( 472 ), bestows sentius (Epist. viil. 4 ba compares the wo staspes, or the i. 44 ; eunip. 3). Diveletian Seriptures by out the eupire every persect. of the Chrise were reguired ospel by burn. G. Thuse who termed "trajch, accorlieg me furty years . 258), when a ss" teok pliace Buptismo, v. 1 ; 13). uthen Books. on the other inns, but net writers were re, but we are nunciations for $y$ which had a aged a loosa itutions (i. 6) frone all the inst thou to do or with false light-miniuled uzen, A.D. 363.3, rssa, instend of te" sncred and ure, hal turneed ble" founts of n nt once of rheter than a St. Basil, the diseourse ad. ay to profit by pinion is that m it by thuse part, and study ice of religion. at all in bas. jledge of them us ; but if net, seertained the the contirms. ). St. Jerome, s: "Let tharo rho trsin their make them read writings of the ad Eph. n. s. 0; cemp. Aug. Ps. 31, Enarr. g. ii. 17, $\S 23$ ). even the more writers is men• k , in Cassias tions that arise by a study of : Nolla (Poema, to Christ se The council of :opus Gentilium tem pro ncects. $h$ later Gregory ishep whe was a in uno se ere a non copiunt"

PROIILITED BOOKS
(Epist. ix. 48). John the Deacon says that Gregary "forbude the reading of Gentile books to all puntiths without exception" " (iita Grey. iii. 33). Isidure of Seville, about 630, says that the Christian is "forbidden to read the fictions of the poets," in account of their tendency to corrupt the mind (Sentent. iiii: 13). Oo Geatile books in general he says: "Conventio sunt tales libri, et propter aniorem sanctarum scripturarum vitandi " (ilid.).
Munks were especially bound to renounce the works of henthen writers. lididora of Pelu iume A.D. 412 , writing to one, anys: "What is there ampung then to be preferred to ours? among then to be preferred to ours? What is there that is not full of falsehuod and mutter for laughter in the subjects which they study? Are nut their divine principles framed out of passing? Are not their nianly artion fort of the sake of passions? Are not their confficts for sake of passions? Are not their cocinticts for passiona?
sluna, therefore, tha passions? shun, therefore, the reading of the shameful stull; for it hath a terrible juwer to reopen wounds that are akianed over,", &ce (lipist. i. 633 . St. Nilus, $4+0$, to a monastic collector of books: "The rubbish and ashes and mud of the boeks of the Geutiles why doat thou with such diligence rake toget her, to no profit, but to hurt, after renouncing them in a monastery " ( $E$ uist. after renouncing them in a monastery"" ( $E$ 'ipst, ii. 73 ). To a disciple he aays: "Read rot the ii. 73). To a disciple he gays: "Read rot the books of the heathen, neither histurienl nor tropological, nor touch the old literature nt all; but rend the New Testament, and the accounts of the martyra, and the lives of the fathers, and the anyings of the agell" (iv. 1). lxidore of Serille, in his Regula Monachorum: "Let the menk be careful not to read the books of the Gentiles, or the volumes of the heretics; for it is better to be ignorant of their pernicious teneta than by expleriment to run into any sance or error" (viii. 3). Eyinhard, who had been secretary to Charlemagne, but afterwards an abbat, to his sun, a monk at Fulda : "Grammatica et et rhetorica, caeternque liberalium artium atudia, vana suut, et valde 'nociva servis Dei nisi per gratiam Divinnm bonis moribus subesse noscantur, quia scientia infat, caritaa vero aedificat. Melius mihi quiden eat ut te mortuum videre centingat quanm inftntum et acatentem vitiis" (Epist. 30, ad Vussin. Migne, 104, col. 519).
It is probable that in no single instance are Fe to uuderstand a Christian writer as desiring the ahsolute suppression, without qualification or exception, of the entire body of the ancient literature. This was, for exnmple, very far from the meaning of St. Jerome, who elaewhere defenda the appenl of Christian writera to the testimony of the heathen, and instances Cyprinn, Quadratue, Aristiles, Justin Martyr, Clemens of Alexnndria, and many others, as men who had made a good une of secular learning (Epist. 70 ad Magnuin Orat.). Long before this Orat.). Long before this wa find Origen exhorting Gregery 'Thaumaturgus to etudy the philosophies of the Greeks as rpooraíéu $\mu$ ara to Christianity, and "geemetry and aatronomy as likely to be aseful it the interpretation of the holy Scriptures " (Epist. ad Greg. § 1 , ed. Lomm. xvii. 49).
It tis elear that these purauits were to a danverot these pursuita were even carried to a dengerous excess by some, and that so early to the applause which Sidoniua, bishop of Clermont (472), bestows on the necular poems of Coroentius (Epist. viii. 4), and to the spiat in which be compares the worls of Mamuertus ( $d o$ Statu Animae) with the prodnctions of varioun hrathen, as whll as Christinn, writers (iv. 3). The poela "benmertus himiself (Contra Poethe linus) "benrs evidence of its writer haviag earctully studied sonie of the Roman poets " (Sminh's Dict. Uf Greek und Lomunh Biayr, n. Mamerths); nor doex he in the course of it condemn the study of fit for sinful, but rather as unsatisfactory, and nit for children only, desiring to direct his friend friend to the higher thenes which the gosprel can supply (Bibliuth. 1et. PP. ․ . It. I. 979).

iny to sp Corions and sup,pusititious Writ.nys chainat an echristian. - These were very numerous al an early period, and as their object wns in almost every case to recummend some heresy, cautions against them nbound from the 3rd century downwards. Thuy one of the apmastolic canous (n. 60): "If nayone shall publicly set forth as holy In the church the books of the impious with fulse titlea ( $\psi$ coderi ypaqa) to the dexiruclion of the pernle and the clergy, let himin be deposed." We may remark that the canon is evidently denling with a well-known class of writits writings: The Apastulical Cunstitutions, in the longer Greel reeenion: "You must not regard the names of the appostles, . - for we kaww that the the disciples of Simun and Cleobius have compiled poisonoua books in the name of Chriss and His disciples . . Also anoung the ancients some have couluosed apoeryphal books of Moses and Enoch, and Adnm and Esaias, nnd Datid and Elias, and the three patriarels, thint are pernicious, and olpposed to the truth'" (vi. 16).
For details of this literature see DICT. Cur. Bioft a. vv. Acts, Alocryphal; Arocalyyses, Arocryphal ; Ephiriles, Arocryphal; Goshrils, dfecyphal; Clementine Literatcre; Pseuofpranamic Lithiature; the several namea of the supposed authors of nipocryphal works, and the titles of anonymous works.
V. Fictitious Murtyroiogics.-Storries of wasecutions and martyrdom were naturally popti ar, and were easily made the vehicle of hieresy. A decree ngainst such false or tainted narratives by the council in Trullo (A.D. 690) shews that the danger fronl this source was still recognized, and that the church in the East was still rigilant agninat it, at the end of the 7th century: "We command that the martyrologies falsely compiled by the enemies of truth to do dishonour to the martyrs of Christ, and lead those who hear them to unbelief, be not read publicly in the chureh, but that they be delivered to the fire" (can. 63). An illustration occurs in the document transcribed in the next seetion, viz. in $P_{\text {assio }}$ Quirici, \$c., Passio Geurgii:
VI. The Ronan Index Lilrorum Proaititorum. -The earliest example of a list of proscribed books proceeding from Rome is a document variously ascribed to pope Gelasius (A.D. 494), or to Hormisdas (514), but more probably of the $8 t t_{1}$ century. It will be well to give this in extenso with auch notes as may appear useful. We priat it from Hard, Cono. il. 940 , where it oecurs among the deerees of a Roman conneil, said to have been held in the time of Gelasius :-

"Notitia Librorum Apocryphorum rui non recipi untur (al. qui recipi non debent).

"In primia Ariminensem synodum a Conatantio Caesare Conetantini Augusti filio congregatam (A.D. 359, Arian against its better mind), medi-

prohibited books

ante Tauro prafeeto, ex tunc et nunc, et uaque in neternum, confitemur esse damnatam.
"Item itinerarlum ( $=$ пeploõos) Y'atri apostoll, quod appellatur Sancti Clementia, libri octo ( $a l$. novem, il. decem), spocryphum. (The Recotnitions of Clement ('Avarvwpionds), so called by Rutinus, who translatel it (De Admet. Libror. Orijenis ad cale. Opp. Orlg. xxv. 3 A 6 , ell. Lomm.); otherwise "Clementls Itinerariun, Gesta, Hlstoria, Ilistoriae, Chronlea, and Clemens; and from l'eter, Petri Periodi and ltinerarium, Petri Actus, i. e. by Clement [aee i'hotius, Dibliath. 113], wher than those Acts of l'eter, of which Peter is the alleged author; and the Disputatio Petri cum Apione;" (Cotel. PP. Apost. i. 484.)
"Actus nomine Andreae Apostoll, apocryphi. (See Euseb. Hist. Sect. lii. 25 ; Philastr. de Mluer. 88 ; Ejpiphan. Ituer. xlvii. 1, Ixi. 1, 1xiii. 2; lunoc. Ejpist. ad Exuper. 7; Turribius, Epist. § 5 inter Epp, Leon. M.)
"Actus nomine Thomae apostoli libri decem, apocryphi. (Twofold, one Manichaean mentioned by Turribius (u.s), and Augustine ( De Serm. loom. 1. 20, § 65), and another put forth by the Encratites and Apustolice ; Epiph. Hacr. xÍvii. 1, 1xi. 1).
"Actus nomine Petri apostoli, apocryphi (Eusebius, u. s. lii. 3; Philastrius, Huer. 88; Hieron. Iîri Itustr. 1 ; lisidorus Pelus. Epist. ii. 99).
"Aetus nomine Philippi apoatoll, apocryphi.
"Evangelium nomine Thaddaei, apocryphum.
"Evangelium nomine Matthine, apocryphum (Origen in S. Luc. Ev. Hom. 1, in init. ; Euseb. H. E.: iii. 25 ; Ambr. Expos. Et. Luw. i. 2 ; Jerome Pruff. in Comm. super Matth. Eiv. ; Innoc. u. s. ; Bele, Comm. in S. Lic. Ev. i. 1).
"Evangelium nomine Petri apostoli, apocryphum (Origen, Comm. in Matth. Ev. x. § 17 ; Eusehius, u. s. iii. 3, 25, vi. 12 ; Jerome de Vir. Illust. 1 ; Theodoret, Hacr. Fab. ii. 2).
"Evangelium nomine Jacobi minoris, apocryphum. (The Protevangelinm, because treating brietly of the infancy of Christ. Mentioned by Origen, Comm. in S. Mutth. x. § 17 ; Epiph. Haer. xxx. 23 ; Innue. u.s. Probably quoted by Justin Martyr, Midl. c. Tryph. 78 (see the Protev. c. 18), Clemens Alex. Strom. vii. 16, § 93 (comp. Protev. 19), and Epiph. lxxix. 5 (comp. Protev. 1, 2).)
"Evangelium nomine Barnabne, apocryphum.
"Evangelium (al. evangelia) nomine Thomse, quo (a/. quibus) utuntur Manichaei, apocryphum (al. apocrypha). (Written by Thomas, a Manichaean; see Origen in Luc. Hom. 1; Hippel. Rejut. Omn. Haer. v. 7; Euseb. H. E. iii. 25 ; Cyril. Hier. Catech. iv. 21, vi. 18; Amb. u. s.; Jerome, Praef. in Comin. super Matth.; Innoc. u. s.; Lèntius Byz. de Sectis, iii. 2; Petrus Siculus, Hist. Manich. 16 ; Bede, u. s. ; PseudoAthan. tu. s.)
"Evangelium (al. evangelia) nomine Bartholomaci apostoli, apocryphum (al. apocrypha). (Jerome, u. s.; Bede, u.s. Possibly under this name is condemned by mistake the Hebrew copy of St. Matthew, taken by St. Bartholomew into India; Euseb. v. 10.)
" Evangelium nomine Andreae apostoli, apocry= phum (Innoc. u. s., who ascribes it to Xenocharides (or Nexocharides) and Leontius; August. c. Advers. Leg. et Proph. i. 20, §39).
"Evangelia quae falsavit Lucinnus, apocrypha.
(The forger more commenly known as Leuciua Charinue ${ }^{\text {s see below.) }}$
" lilber de Infuntia Salvatoris, npoeryphus. (Irenaeus, c. Hucr. i. 20, § 1, ascribee a stury found in this to the Marcosinas. Anastasiils Siualta perhape refers to it, Hodeyus 13. l'sendoo Jerome seesna to ajeak of thla, or a jart of it ( $L_{p i s i s t, ~ a d ~ C h r o m a t . ~ e t ~ H e l i o d . ~ i n t e r ~ O p p, ~ I l i e r u n .) ~}^{\text {I }}$ under the title of Liber do Nativitate S. Marriue. He ascribes it to Seleucus ( $=$ Leucius). Its full title is Libethus do Miraculis Infuntiae D.I. C., but the first twenty-four chapiters have been known as Liber de Nativitate Mariae, ct de Infontia Sulvatoris.)
"Evangella quae falsavit Esitius ( $a$. Inivius), apocrypha. (St. Jerome (Lipist. ad Dtmusum) couples Hesychius with Lucianus as giving name to bowks held genulae by a few.)
"Liber de Natlvitate (al. Infantia) Salvatoris, et de Maria et obstetrice (al. ejus), apoeryphus, (l'robubly, from the matter, the Proteranjtian Jacobi before mentioned under another titie.)
"Liber qui appellatur l'astoris, apocryphus. (The Shepherd of Hermas. No book is mure frequently cited by early writers, as lremeus, Ter tullian, Clemens Al., Origen, Athanasius, &c. It proceeded from home, and the ground of its condemnation here is only matter of conjecture.)
"Libri onnes ques fecit Leucius discipulus diaboli, apoeryphus. (This arch-forger is so called by Evodius (de Fide o. Manichaeos, 4, inter Opp. Aug. App. vi. ed. Ben.; but the older editions give Leontitus and one Vatican MS. Locytius), by Innocent (u. s.) as author of a 'book under the name of Peter and John,' by Turribius (u, s.), Photius (Biblioth. 114), sccording to whom all the 'Apostulorum Periodi,' containing 'Acts of Peter, John, Andrew, Thomas, and l'sul,' wers written by 'Leucius Charinus,' St. Augustine writes the name Leutius (Acts cum Fetice, ii. 6; but a me MSS. give Leritico or Lentitio). His full name, Leucius Charinus, is also thought to be disguised under 'Xenocharides and Leonilas ' in Innocent (u. s.). Atto Vercell. callshim Seleucius (Hard. in loc.); l'sendoJerome ( $u$. s.), Seleucus, and in the present document he has appeared as Lucianus; and so Jerome; Ep. ad Damas., as nbeve.)
"Liber qui appellatur Fundamentum, apocryphus. (Ascribed to the founder of the Manjchseans, Aug. do Nat. Boni, 42, 46; comp. Acta cum Felice, ii. 1: It was in the form of an epistle.)
"Liber qui appellatur Thesaurus, apocryphus. (Cyrill. Hier. Catech. vi. 13, It. is ascribed by him to Manes, but by Archelaus, A.D. 278 , Disp. cutm Manich. (Galland. Biblioth. iii. 569), to Terbinthus or Turbo (572). See Photius, 85.)
"Liber de Hiliabus Alae Leptogeneseos, apocryphus. (Mentioned by Epiphanius, Har. xxxix. 6; Jerome, Ep. 78 ad Fabiol. 18; Cedrenus, Compend. Hist. e, ed. Nieb.)
"Centones de Christo, Virgilianis compagiosti versibus, apocryphi. ('Proba, uxor Adelphi, centonem ex Virgilio de Fabrica Mundi et Evangeliis plenissime expressit . . Et quidam Pom. ponius ex eodem poeta . . . Tityrum in Christi honorem composuit: similiter et de Aenide'; Isid. Hispal. Etymol. i. 39, $$ 26$.)
"Liber qui appellatur Actus Theclae et Poull apostoli, apocryphus (Tertullian de Bapt. 17; Greg. Naz. Orat. iv. 69, $\times x$ i. 22 , xxiv. 10 ; Greg.

Nysa. Hom. xis. Ep. 21 ad E'nst ginitute, $44, \S+5$
"Liber qui a (The work of a J name, ELuseb. $I$. Cupit. 60.)
"Liber Prover acriptua, et suncti apocryphus. (Th goreua mistaken unfuithful translo Xystus of lione; ado. Jovin. i. 49, in Jeren. xxii. 24 de Vat. et Girut. nadius, de Vir. Ill!
"Rerelatio qua apocrypha. (Prob of 2 Cur. xii. 2), a Praescript. 24 ; $E_{]}$ Thuct. 98 in S. Joa $19, & c$.
"Revelatio quae upocrypha.
"Revelatio quae apocrypha. (Epist, poris Stephani, P1 the writer was mist Sirm. $318, \S 1,319$, 46. There is a Lati Opp. Aug. App. vi. "Liber qui ap Assumptio sanctae Jerome, ad Puul. et Bede, in Acta Apo Alcuin, $O_{p p \text {. Alc. P. }}$
"Liber qui npI apocryphus. (Gnost as the Apocalypsis $A$ Cedreaus, u. s. 17.)
"Liber Ogiae (Thi Hormisdus reads Eug 396; others various dracose post diluviun phus. (Probably the Giants ; Timoth. C. Meursii Varia Divina 85.)
"Liber qui appel apocryphus,
"Liber qui appella apocryphus.
"Liber qui appel Cypriani, apocryphus. aspurious tract, in whi binself as having prac conversion ; printed by 53, 2nd pagination. S "Liber qui appellatu Mambrae, apoeryphus.
"Liber qui appellatu atolorum, apocryphus.
"Liber qui appellatur 466, lusa, 937, Jus) A (Ths trug realiag is n Which we are to under This is confirmed by th the canons in some MSS "Liber qui appellatu apocryphue.
"Liber Physiologns npoery]hus. ribes a ntury Aunstasiua 13. J'sendo. - a part of it Opp. Ilieran.) te S. Miriske. fus). Its full atiac D. I. C., ra linve been et de Infintia (al. Inlrius), ıd Damısmi) s giving mane

(a) Salvatoris,

 , apoeryphus. Troterange lium her title.), apocryphns. $k$ is more freo Irenneus, Terinsius, &c. It round of its of enajecture.) us discipulas -forger is so hateos, 4, iater out the older an MS. Locya'book under by Turribiss ding to whom taining 'Acts , and P'sul,' arimus.' St. us (Acto cum Levitico or Chariaus, is nder 'Xeno(u. s.). Atto loc.); Pseudothe present anas; and so itum, npocryof the Msni, 46; comp. re furm of 39

, apocryphus.

 a ascribed by s, A.D. 278 , 1. iii. 569 ), to otius, 85.) eptogeneseos, anius, Maer. iol. 18; Cedandi et Evanquidnm Pome im in Christi le Acruide';
clae et Psull

 te Bapt. 17 ; iv. 10; Greg.
liboillbrTi:I BOOKS

Nyss. Ilom, xir. in Cunt. Cant. i. 670; Jerome, Ep. 21 ad Liustwh. & 40 ; Aug. do Sunc. Virpimitute, $44,8+5$; and many others.)
"Liber quil appellatur Nepotis, apocryphus. (Tbe work of a Judaizing Egyptian bishop of that name, Euseb. II. E. vii. 2 t ; Vigilius, $d_{0}$ Trib.
Cupit. 60. .
"Liber Proverbiorum, qui ab haereticis conscrijtus, et sancti Xystl nomine praenotatus est, apocryphus, (The Sententice of Sextus Pythagorena mistaken for a Christian book in the unfaithful translation of Rutinus, and aseribed to dystus of llone ; Orig. c. Cels. viii. 30 ; Jerome, ado. Jovin. i. 49, Ep. 133 ad Ctesiph. 3, Comm. in Jerem. xxii. 24, (omm. in Ezee. sviii. 5 ; Aug. de Nat. et Grat. 64, §77, Nictract. ii. 42; Gen-
"Perelatio quas. 17.)
"Rearelatio quase appeliatur Pauli npostoli, apocrypha. (Probably the 'Avaßarinov (founded ${ }^{0} 2$ Cor. xii. 2), a Cainite forgery. See Tertuil. Praescript. 24 ; Epiphan. Hucer. xxxviii. 2; Aug.
Tract. 98 in S. Tract. 98 in S. Joan. Ev. §8; Sozom. II. E. vii.
19, &c.) "
"Revciatio quae appellatur Tbomas apostoli, upocrypha.
"Revelatio quae appellatur sancti Stephani, spocrypha. (Epistola Luciani de Revehtione corporis Stephani. Probably condemned, because the writer was mistaken for Leucius. Seecause Serm. :118, §1, 319, § 6; Gennad. de Vir. Fllustr. 46. There is a Latiu translation by Avitus inter Opp. Aug. App. vi. ed. Ben.)
"Liber qui appeilatur Transitus, id est, Assumptio sanactse Marise, apocryphus. (I'seudoJerome, ad Puul. et Eustoch. de Assumpt. B. F.; Alcuin, Opp. Alc. P. ix. Retract. 8, 13; PseudoAlcuin, Opp. Alc. P. ix. Hom. 3, de Nat. MK.)
"Liber qui nppeilatur Pocuitentia Adse spocryphus. (Gnostic ; and probably the ssme sa the Apocaly ${ }^{\text {asis }}$ Adse; Epiph. Hokr. xxvi. 8 ; Cedrenus, u. s. 17.)
"Liber Ogiae (Thiel's second copy ascribed to Hormisdss reads Eugenio, Epist. Llom. Pontif. i. 396; others variousiy), qui ab haereticis cum dracose post diluvium pugnasse fingitur, apocryphus. (Probably the Manichaean Book of the Heursii Varia Divina, de Haeret. Recept. in 8j.) "Liber qui appellatur Teatamentum Job, apocryphus. apocryphus.
"Liber qui sppellatur Poenitentia Origenis, pocrsphus. " "Libecyph.
"Liber qul appellatur Poenitentis sancti Cypriani, apocryphus. (The Confessio S. Cypriani, 8 s.spurious tract, in which he is made to represent bimself as having practised magic, &c., before his conversion; printed by Feli, ad Calc. Opp. Cypr. 33, 2nd pagination. See below.)
"Liber qui appellatur Poenitentia Jamrae et Mambrae, apooryphus. (2 Tim. iii. 8.)
"Liber qui sppellatur Sortes ssnctorum Apoitolorum, npocryphus, [Sortilegy.]
"Liber qui appeliatur Laus (al. Jusus ; Thiel, 460, Lusa, 937, Jus) Aporen 466, Luss, 937, Jus) Apostolorum, apocryphus. (The true reading is most probably Jussa, by This is coafirmed br the immediatc constitutions. This is coafirmed br the immediate meation of the canous in some MSS.) the canons in some MSS.)
"Liber qui appellstur Canones Apostolorum, apocry apocryphue.
"Liber Physiologus qui ab haereticis con-

PROIHDITED BOOKS

1723
scriptus eat et benti nemino Ambrosll signatua (al. praenotatus), apocryphua.
eee beiow, "Opu, sect. VIII.)
(Not a theologian andi (al. Firminnl), apecrypha. some minor error, and therefore fallag inte intention.)
"Opuscula (Julii) Africnal, apocrypha. (Con. demned for no better reason, we presume, (Chanthat the Chronicon of Eusehius was founded od "Opura).
"Opuscula Postumiani et Galii, apocryphs.
"Opuscula Montani Prigcili, apocrypha, (See Apollon. in Euseb Maximiliae, Petrus Siculus Lisee Apollon. in Luseb. II. E. v. 18; "Opuacuis omnia Runich. 23.)
(The writer confia Fausti Manichael, apnerypha. "Opuscuin Commodiani, Augustine.)
count of some errors in hisperypha. ( $\mathrm{O}_{\mathrm{n}}$ acto those of Lactantius in peems, partiy akin leanium, the Resurrectio reference to the Mil"Opuscuia Resurrection, \&c.)
apocrypha, altertus Clementis Alexandrini beea understood in author conld bardly have and we may conjet the West in the 8th century, ignorantly confouaded with this 'gnostic' was "Opuscula Tascii Cypriani, heretic so called) saint's full name wapriani, ajocrypha. (The anus. As the 'Opuscula beas Caecilius CypriMartyris et Capuscula beati Caecilii Cypriani approved is the finaiensia episcopi' are fully decree of Gelasius, Hord part of the alieged decree of Gelasius, Hard. ibid. 939, the referronance, with be to the msgician Cyprian of Naz. Orat. 18; Prum ha was confounded, Greg.
"Opuscula Arnobii, spocrypha. See before.) Adv. Nationes was a very abye (His work Gospel and exposuce of paganism, but of the before he was fully instructed, but written doctrine.) was fully instructed in Christian "Opuscuia Tychonii, apocrypha. (A Donntist, Wio yet wrote against his own party, A.D. 390 . cat Aug. de Doctr. Christ. iii. 30-37, where hia Dooh of Rules is dissected.)
"Opuscuia Cassinni (al. Cassionis) presbyterl Gallagrum, apocrypha. (John Cassian, the Semichurch.)
"Opuscula Victorini Pictaviensis (al. Petabionensis), apocrypha. (Bishop of Pettaw on the Drave, a Millenarian.)
"Opusculs Fausti Regensia Galliarum, apocrypha. (The Semipelagian, A.D. 472.)
"Opuscula Frumentii Cseci, apocrspha.
(Received by Eusabius Agarum regem, apocrypha. epistle to Dy Lusebius, II. E. i. 13, Darius, whose LPp. Aug. §5), Procopius extsint (Ep. 230 inter sud others.) ${ }^{\text {s }}$ ), Procopiua (de Bello Persico, ii. 12)
"Passio Quirici (al. Cyrici) et Julittne, apoTrypha. (By Manichaesns or other heretics. So Theodorus Icon. whe wrote the more trustworthy Martyrium printed by Ruiarrt, Acta Afartyrium, 419, ed. 2. Condemned also by Nicephorus, the Confessor, A.D. 806, Const. Eccl. 13, al. 46, Spicil. Solcsm, iv. 390. .) Const. Eccl. "Passio Georgii, spocryph Acts of St. George which we ('Of all the and they are sutficiently num possess nownons that are sutficiently numerous-thore are nons that can claim any credence, or that do not carry on their face visible marks of falso

1724  PGOHILITED HOOKS

PHOHHHTED BOOKS

hood' (Tillemont, Mom. Ecel. v. 81). Two Hurtyrduns of st, Georyo are condemned by Nicephorus, u. s.)
" Seriptura quae appellatur Contradictlo Solonsont, ajocrypha.
"l'hylacteria omnla, quae non angelorum (ut illl oontingunt), aed daemonum magio arte (al, nomialbus) conacrijta aunt, apocrypha. [See Phylactiary.]
"Haee et otonia his almilla quae Slimon Magua (A treatise called the Greut Demonstration or Revelation, 'Atóфaбıs Maydл $\eta$, was ascribed to him, Hipplytua, Refut. Oma. Hier. vi. 9-14, 17, 18), Nicoluua ( $\mathrm{Kev} . \mathrm{ii} .6$ ), Cerinthus (His Hevelutions are condemned by Caius in Euseb. I. E. iii. gб), Marcion, Lasilides, Ebion, Paulua etiam Samusatenus, Photinus et Bonosus et qui simili errore defeceruat (For the proserlption of a book by Marcellus de Subjectione Christi, aupposed to favour the heresy of Paul, see Socr. Hist. Eixl. i. 36 ; li. 20), Montanus quoque cuin suls obscaenissimis sequacibus (The inw of Arcadius, 398, ordered their books to be burnt, Cut. Therkhs, XVI. v. 34. See also Euseb. II. $E^{\prime}$. v. 18; Petrus Siealua, Ifist. Mfenich. 23), Apolliarris [lita E'phrem Syri luter Opp. Greg. Nyss. ii. 1041.], Valentinus (A Gnostic hymn and psalın; lifppol. u. s. v. 6 ; vi. 37), sive Manlchaeus (For mames of Manichaean books, see Timotheus C. P. de Hewr. Recept., Petr. Sie. u. s. 16, and the formulary of renanciation required of converts to the church in Cotel. P.P. Apost. note to Clem. Recorm. iv. 27. Gelasius, A.d. 482, and Hormisdas, 574, collected and burnt the books of the Manichneans [Vitue Pontif. Ansat. Bibl. nn. 50, 52, 53], a fate to which a law of Justinian also condenmed them, 527, L. I. tit. 5, De Iluer. xvii. 2. See Fumhmentum, Thesaurus, above), Faustus Africanus (The Manlcbaean mentioned before), Sabellius, Arrius (see the Epistle of Constantine, 325, to the 'bishepa and peouples' after the council of Nicsea, condemning Arian hooks to the flames [Socr. I. E. i. 9]. When the Goths of Spain became Catholic, the king cotlected and burnt the Arinn books [Firedegar. Chron. 8], Macedonlus, Eunomius (Pubiic edicta agninst them in 397 ; Philostorg. Hist. Lect. xi. 5 ; and 398 Codex Theolos. XVI. v. 34. See Phutius, Biblioth. 45, 46, 137, 138), Novatus, Subbatius, Callistus (The 15th bishop of Rowe, who having 'mixed up the heresy of Cleomenes, the disciple of Noetus, with that of Theodotus, framed another stranger heresy,' and left a short-lived party in the church of Rome called from him Callistians; Hippol. I.efut. Omn. Hucr. ix. 1, \&s. Iu one MS. [Codex Justelli] the name is emitted from this list; in another it is disguised under Culipsus.), Donatus, Eustathins, Joviaianus, Pelagius, Julianus Eelamensis, CaeJestius, Maximinus, Priscillianus ab Hispania (Leo M. Ep. 15 ad Turrib. 15, 16 ; Turrib. u. s. ; Conc. Brag. 561, c. Prisc. Haer. 17), Nestorius Constantinopolitnnus (Nestorian books ordered to be burnt ; Conc. Eph. 431, Acta i. Relut. ad Imp. Hard. Conc. i. 1444 ; a law of Valentinian, 435, Cod. Theodos. XVI. v. 66, Hard. i. 1715; Liberatus Diac. Breviarium, 10 ; Justin. Novell. 42), Maximus, Lampetius, Dioscorus, Eutyehes (To be hurnt, and the readers fined, by a decree of Valentinian and Marcian ; Conc. Chaje. 451, P. iii. c. 10, Hard. ii. 680; see also Justin. Nov. 42; Socr. H. E. iii. 31), Petrus et aliua Petrus, e quibus unus Alexandrian (Mongus, a Monophysite, died 190), ailur Anthechiam (Futio, aldo a Minophysite, died nbout 490) maculavit, Acaclaa Constantinupolo tanua (The sumporter of Mugua against livue) cum coudortibus suis ; necnod et onaes haferviarchae eorumque diseipuli, qui achinmatica divenpe runt, vel couserijuserunt, quorum nowina minime rethentur; nou aulum repudiatn, verum etiam ab omil Romana Catholica et Apostolica ectlesia eliminata, ntque cum suis auctoribus aucturumis. que aequacibun, hudissolublil vineulo lin actertum confitemur esse damata." Seo the abore names in Dicrionary of Curiztian Brograthy.

VII. Other Books proseribed for alle eged Hercsy,The Notitia of Pseudo-Gelasius does not proo feas to be comptete. The tructs of detion (Conc. C. P. 359, Theodoret, M. E. II. 28), of Monothelite anthora (Conc. C. P. A.D. 690, detio 13, Hard. in. 1853), of the lecranclants (Cure. Nic. il., A.d. 787, can. 9), of the Saraceus (Nichoo las I. Resp. ad Bulg. 103), \&c. were eypally ordered to be deatroyed. On the Hurmuay of Tatian or Gospel of the Four, see Epiph. Iner. x|vi. 1 ; Euseb. H. E. iv. 29; Theoduret, Aluer. Fub. 1. 20. The extant harmony ascribed to him Is now restored to Amnouius of Alesaultria A.D. 228 (Gailand, Biblioth. ii. Proteg. c. 11, , $\mu$ L). For the Helchesaites and their book, see lippoul.
 H. E. vi. 38 ; Timoth. Presb. di Recept.' Hueret. In Cotel. ; Monum. Graec. iii. 390; Ejiph. Huct. 19, c. Ossen. ; 53, c. Sumps.
VIII. Modified Judyments.-In the earlier part of the l'seudo-Gelasian decree it is said of certain "new narratives of the invention of the cross, and the Invention of the head of John the Baptist," "When they come lato the hands of Catholics, let the sayings of the blessed l'aul the npoatle go before, prove all things: betd fast that which is good." On the works of Rufinus, the reader is referred to the judgment of St. Jerome. Some of the works of Urigen which Jerome does not reject inny be tead. "Reliqua autem omnia cum auctore su. dicimas esse reuuenda" (Hard. ibid. 940). On the woth of Origen see especially Jerome, Epp. 860100 , 124 ; Epist. Synod. Theophili, inter $L_{y} p$. Ilieron. 92, $§ 1$; Socr. H. E. vi. 7,10 ; Suz. $l$. $\varepsilon_{i}$ viii. 11, 14 ; Sulp. Severus, Disl. .. 3; 1ita Pachomii, 17. The Chronica and Exchsiustial History of Euscbius, though the latter is condemued in the Notitia Apocryphomam, are for their utility not "altogether to be rejected, but the lukewarmness of the First Book, nud his defeate of Origen are noted "(Hard. tu.s.).
IX. Suppression affectucl.-When the bistops could appeal to no express law of the cupire, they could at least excommunicate for the offence of reading books condemaed by the church : and they did so. E. \%. the patriarch of Constantinople, 595, punished a priest of ly. caonia for possessing and reating a book "in which many heretical things were centained." He fled to Rome, but was not received te communion there, until he made a declaration of having done it "in slmplicity," profesed the orthodox faith, condemned eve:ything heretical in the book, manifeat or latent, and pledged him. self never to read it again (Epist. Greg. H. จ. 64).
X. Much information on the foregoing snbjecth and brought down to a later periud, may be found In Jac. Gr expu ypundi, ct ubr ingulut. 100: ${ }_{1}$ to the same wor Spinetruin site A In the 13th volu On the suipres Matic, p. 1076.

PROHIDITE prevent incest, m all civilized nation one another by bla fur the prohibition different nations of ferent times.
The words "pro frum nmbigulty. forlbidilen between with each other wi of neurness. Thus, daughter are relat cume nuia and his the seconil degree ; granddaughter are and 80 on, whether line. The principle step between father grandfather and gr grent-grandfather consequently they a the first, second, an But when we pass $f$ collhteral line, a con fereat manner of cald and civi! ins. Aece bruthers and sister: degree, because there to the father, in whu cousins are said to be becsuse from each t gradffather in whon aimilarly the childres called second cousins, the third degree, bee three steps from the c one of the parties is d the complon stirps, al they are said to be rel tle second but in the
But the civil law. Acoording to them, the lated in the second brother to his father is fither to his daughte dister) is a second step. en uncle and niece are $r$ because frou the uacle step, from that father and from that sen to $h$ niece) s third step. Fi this calculation, are rela degree, because from ol fither there are two ate father to the other cou more.

Consequently, when w degrees " of propinquit Whether we are speakin cavon or of the civil Ja | 21ssiii, tit. x. (Corpus |
| :--- |
| 1423, Paris | 1423, Paris, 1627), an en

I'ROHHHTE:N DEGREES

Gound in Jae, Gretsar de Jure et Jore prohlewdi, Ingulat. 160: ; in the Supplementum Iluphese to the satue work, ingolst. 160t; and the later Epimetrum sive Auctorium; all printed together On the supuremsiun of his works, Hatiats. 1739 Maic, p. luth.
[W. E. S.]

FROIIDITED DEGREFS. In order to prevent inceat, marriage hat been forbiditer in sil civilized nations between persons related to one asother hy blood or through marriage. How far the prohibition ahould estond has dittered in different nations or in the aame nationa at different thines.The word "prohlbited degrees "are not free fron ambiguity. They man that marriage is forbiden between persuns related or connected with ench other within certain degrees or steps of aearness. Thus, In the direct line father aud daughter are related in the first degree ; the sume aman and his grandedaughter are related in the second degree; the same man and his greatgraddaughter are related in the third degree, liae. The principle the desceniling or asceuding step between filtber and daugnter, twere is ons grandfather and granddaughter, three between great-grandfather and great-grauddaughter; consequently they are related to one another in But first, second, and third degrees respectively. But when we pass from the direct line to the ferent manner, a confusion arises, owing to a difand civllinge. According to the by canonists brothers and aisters are to the canon law, degree, because there is but one atep from first to the father, in whom their blood unites. Firat cousins sre eaid to be related in the second degree, graodiather in whom their bloud stepe to the similarly the childres fir blood unites; and called second cousing, are anid to be commanly the third degree, becnuse each is separated by three steps from the common grandfather. When ooe of the parties is distant only two steps from they are suid to bes, and the other three steps, they are suid to be related to each other not in But the clvil the third degree. but the civil lawyers calculate otherwise. According to them, the brother and sister are rebrother in second degree, because from the brother to his father is one step, and from the tather to his daughter (that is, the brother's as uncle and niece are. On the anme principle buncle and niece are related in the third degree, step, from that farcle to his father there is one and from that son to to hia son a second step, niene) a third step. First cousins, eccording to this calculation, are related only in the fourth degree, beceuse from one cousin to the grandfather there are two ateps, and from the grandfather to the other cousin there are two steps

more. C
degrees " of propinquity speak of "prohibited degrees " of propinquity, we must noderwtand canon or of the civil lag the language of the urviii, tit. x. (Corpus Juris Civilis Digest, lib. 1423, Paris, 1627), an enumeration is made of all degree.

PROHILHTLED DEGILEES
1725
relnthouships in the flrut, second, third, fourth fifth, sixth, whil aeveuth legrees, but it will be seen at once how intsch thase must differ trom the reluthosalipa endeulated on the priseiples of Ine enana law (ane Vinuilus, In ymatnor fibros Institutionum Commentariur, De Auptiis, 8 4, 1672 seldan de 1. p. 558 , len de Jure Gentium, v. il. Op. vol. nubiorum, lib. ii. 9 ; Brouwar de Jure ConDegrees of athuity 9, p. $42, Delphin, 171+). way as these of consanguinity; a man is therefore in the first degree ut atfinity (according to the method of calculation adopted by the canon law) with his brother's wife, in the mecond dogree with his cousin's wife, lo the thind degree with the wife of his second cousin.
It la beceseary to have a clear apprehension of what is mennt by consauguinity or alliuity in the different degrees, in order to follow the ohanges of the canuu law as it varjed its prohibitiune from time to time,
The early Christians found two tables of prohibitions ailready framed, one contained in the Thouk of Moses, the other in the Rommn law. They eupplemented these lists by two other tables, which they created for themselves by Imperial legisiation and by the decrees of councils. lage is forbidde.-In the law of Moses, mar-tions:- Muther with the followlag blood relaxviil. 17 ) Mother (Lev. xyii. 7), daughter (Lev. xx. 17. Deuter nud half-8ister (Lev. xvili. 9 ; xviii. ; Deut, xxvii. 2\%), granddaughter (Lev. xviii, 10), auat (Lev. 1vill, 12, 13; xx, 19). Iu this list the mother, daughter, and sister ale related in the first degree of eonsauguinity, the granddaughter and aunt in the second dugree. The granimother and the alece are omitted. By the same law, marriage is forbidden to the following relations by affinity:- Muther-in-law cad grandmother-in-law (Lev. xvili. 17; xx. 14 ; Deut. $x \times v i l, 23$ ), daughter-in-law (Lev. xviii. $15 ; x x$. 12), brother's wife (Lev. xviij. 16; xx, 21), except in one case where it is sanctioned by a positive enactment for a epecial political purpose (Deut. xxv. 5), step-mother (Lev. xviii. 8; $8 x .11$; Deut. xxii. 30), atep-daughter (i.ev. xviii. 17), step-granddaughter (ibid.), aunt by marringe, or macle's wife (Lev. xviii. 14; xx. 20), "a wife to her sister" (Lev, xvili. 18). In this list the wife's mother, the wito's daughter, the wife's "sister (if such be the meaning of the expression "a wite to her sister"), the step-mother, the daughter-in-law, the brother's wite would be related in the first degree of affinity, the wife's granddaughter and the uncle's wife in the second Whether marriage with two sisters successively is either allowed or forbidden, or not touched by Lev. xviii. 18, is a question which has been hotly contested. The verse, sa trause Inted in our version, reada thus: "Neither ahalt thou take a wife to her sister, to rex her, to uncover her nakedness, beside the other in her, lifetime." These words cannot be construed to condemn successive marringe with two sisters. If they refer to such marriage at all, they must be regarded as permitting it; for the words win her lifetlme" cannot be understood other. wise; but the Hebrew words may be translated in such a way as to give a very different gense to the verse. Accordiugly the marginal reading runa, "Neither shalt thou take one wife to auother," in plsee of the words, "Neither shalt thou take a wife to her sister." Thus rendered, the verse forbild not merely the simultaneous marriage of two sisters, but of any two women ; in other words, it Is a prohibitiou of pulygamy. Though the marginal reading was lirst suggested only in the 16ta century, there is no doubt that grammstically the Hebrew phrise may be so rendered msticaily the Hebrew phrise may (see Exod. xxi. 3,
50
6,17 , and Ezek. i. 11, 23), and it is rendered in some such manner in every other place in the Bible where it oceurs. The objections taken to such rendering are minute and arbitrary. But though grammatically unassailable, it lands us in this dilificulty, that the verse, if so interpreted, appears to be a distinct prohibition of polygamy, and yet there are other prossages which seen equally clearly to permit it (Ex. xxi. $7-11$; Deut. $x \times x i .15-17$; xvii. 17 ). And it cannot be denied that, if polygany was to be torbidden, we should expect it to be forbidlen io a more unmisturkable manner. To this objection it may be replied that the verse dnes not contain a general prohilition of polygamy, bnt that it commands a man not to gsmy, but that ane isk one to another "to vex" the latter. According to this interpretation, the verse would neither be a prohibition to marry two sisters during the lifetime of both of them, nor consequently ${ }^{\text {a }}$ permission to marry a wife's sister after the decease of one of them, nor agaio would it be a prohibition of polygamy in general, but it would be an injunction addressed to a polyganist forbiddiog him to marry a ,woman who would be likely "to rex" a wife whon he hidalalready married, from being known to have a spite agninst her, or any other reason. If this is the true interpretation of the verse, as seems probable, it has no bearing upon our subject. Marriage with a wite's sister is not forbidden by the Mosnic tanbles unless it come under the general prohilition, "None of you shall spproach to any that is, near of kin to him to uncover their nakedness" (Lev, xviii. 6), where there is no doubt that the expression "near of kin" denotes those related not only by consanguinity but by affinity. The faet of a wife's sister being in the first degree of affinity and the argument from analogy make it likely that ahe is included under the generic term, " near of kin," but she is not specifically named.

The Roman Code.-By the Roman code marriage was forbidden with the following blood-relations (natural or adopted) :-Mother, daughter, grandmother, granddaughter, sister, half-sister,' and nunt. Marriage with a niees was likewise regarded as incestuous, but when Clandius deeired to marry Agrippina, he obtained from the senate a decres, "quo justne inter patruos fratrunque filins nuptiae etiam in posterum statuerentur" (Tac. Annal. xij. 7), thus causing marriage with a brother's daughter to be legalized, thongh marriage with a sister's daughter = The consanguinity snd affinity resulting from adopttun was cailed legal relationship. It ceased to be an impediment to marriage in the case of babhers and alaters by adoption as soon as the adoption itseif had ceased by the dratb of the adopting parrit or the emancipstion of etther the adupted or the real child. Lagal relationship was acknowlinlged by the church as an impediment (Nichotas, I. Resp. ad /IuIgur. c. II.).
still continued illegal. The innovation intro. duced in Claudius' favour, though afterwaris acted upon by Domitinn, was never sanctioned by public feeling.

The marriage of first cousins wns also originally disallowed, but by the 2nd century s.c. it had come to be regarded ns unobjectionable. ${ }^{\text {b }}$

Aecording to homan law, therefure, mmriage with blood relations was forbidden to these related in the first and aecond degrees of proximity, except so far as the ancient severity was relnxed by custom in respect to cousins, and in respect to brothers' daughters, for the sake oi indulging the desires of Clnndius.

By the snme law, marriage was forbildien with mother-in-law and daughter-in-law, step-mother and step-daughter (natural or adopted), that is, with those relnted in the first degree of allinity, omitting the brother's wife and the wife's sister.

It will be seen that the Nosaie and the Roman tables almost coincide. The chief difference is that the Roman table named the niece, until altered at the instance of Clandius, while the Hebrew table omits to name her, though she at least is undoubtedly covered by the expression, "near of kin." The Koran, basing its regulatiens on the Mossic code, specifies the niece, and adds foster-mother and foster-sisters (Sur. iv. 20).

We may note in passing that the Greek tables of prohibition werg less nustere than those of the Romans, as would be expected from the character of the two peoples. In Athens and Sparta marriage with half-sisters and nieces was permissible. But Greece was chnste in compurison with Persia and Egypt, in the first of which marringe with mothers was the custom, and in the last marriage with sisters (see Selden, who enters at length into the question of gentile licence ( le Jure Gentium, v. 11; Op. vol. . . p. 553).

The Imperial Code.-The Christian Imperina code was not a separate whole in itself. It thok np the old Roman law where it found it, and enlarged, ourtailed, or otherwise modified it, according to the altered needs of the times (see Cod. Justin. lib. v. tit. iv. leg. 17, de Coynutis ot Affinibus). In respect to marriage threre were three questions on which opinion was divided: 1. Marriage with a nicec; 2. Marriage with o deceased wife's sister; 3. Mnrriage with a tirst cousin.

The shock given to public opinion and religions feeling by the legislation which sanctioned the marriage of the emperor Claudius with his brother's daughter Agrippina wns nut got ows. Domitian indeed followed the example of claudius, and married the daughter of his brother Titus; but such marriages were forbidden by Nerra, who prohibited all marriages with a niece, whether she were the daughter of the brother or of the slster. By the time, however, of Catacalla we learn from Ulpian that marriage with a hrother's daughter was again permissible, and this continued to be the law down to the time of Constantine. Sozomen rejorts (IIst. Eccles. lib, it

- Spurius IIguatinua, A.c. Itr, says, whille recounting the grod thlugs that he hail done or whtreh hat befliten him, "fiater milhi uxorern fratria sui filtam dedit" (liv. xili. 34). Vitellios, in arguing for Claudlus's marriase with his niece, A.c. 50, says: "Conjugla sobitinarum dit tgnorata tempore addito percrebuisee" (Tac, Annalt xil. 6).

PHOHI
cap. viii. p. 21, passed some laws but no such laws stantius, in the $y$ of marriage with forbade it, whethe hrother or of a sis of capital punish offence, thus restor regards the penalty hefure the Innovn same time bringin tlon) into accorda (Cod. Theod. lib. iii.
In the year 355 , tion of marriage $w$ and with a deceased risges he forbade as the niece; bat allow in old times as al wuch extreme pens the name of marri dren born of them Theod. lib. iif. tit. This legislation wa the Great, Arcadju: Aosstasius. The fre thews that it was f hare a remarkable e in the marriage of $t$ the two danghters o law, marriages with and 8 deceased wife the same froting, an hetween cases in wh had been dissolved $b$ it had been dissolved the second marriage continued to be the la Theodosius the Grea of msrringe between reen that the earliest these marriages (Tac. year 171 A.c. they had without any disspprobs dosius condemned the in the year 384 or 385 ertnnt, but it is refe of St. Ambrose ${ }^{c}$ and Arestits and Honori laws of A.D. 396 and 40 doubt as to its beari "Theodosius the empe reverest penalties the whether born of the fat (Apist. Ix. (Al. Jxvi.) ac p. 1018 ; I'aris, 1690). within his own mem. been sllowed by the ci time that he was writ (about A.b. 428) they $w$ tate Dei, xy, 16, Op, tom Arcadius states that the the Theodosian law (for ciearly refers, Cod. Theo tom. i. p. 297) consisted Praccripti, explaining th Ambrose when he speaks

[^120] Omment, in tit. 10, lib. ttI.
novation jotro. ugh afterwards er anactioned by was also origin. century a.c. it jectionable. ${ }^{\text {b }}$ refore, marriage idden to those degrees of prox. nt severity was , cousins, and in for the some oi s forbiliten with nw, step-mother dopted), that is, egree of alinity, the wife's sister. c and the Roman ijef difference is the niece, until adius, while the $r$, though she at the expression, ig its regulations niece, and adds (Sur. iv. 20). the Greck tables than those of the om the character and Sparta marces was permis. comprarison with which marriage and in the last n, who enters at entile lieence (be , p. 553 ). hristinn Imperial n itself. It twok it found it, and ise modified it, of the times (see 17, do Coymutis el ringe there were ion was divided: Marringe with a inge with a tirst nion and yeligions h sanctioned the ulius with his wns not got oret mple of Clawdins, is brother Titus; bidden by Nerva, 8 with a niece, of the brother or ever, of C'aracalla marringe with a permissible, and wn to the time of Hist. Ecoles. lib. i. ys, whille recounting $r$ which had befallen fitam dedit" (tiv. Claudius's marrigge agla kolrimarun dio dose" (Tac, Amal cap. viii. p. 21, Cantab. 1720) that Uonstantine passed some laws to restrain unlaw ful marriages, but no auch laws have come down to us. Constantius, in the year 3339 , took op the question of marriage with a niece, and not only utterly forbade it, whether she were the daughter of a hrother or of a sister, but imposed the penalty of capital punishment on any guilty of the offence, thus restoring the Roman law (except as regards the penalty) to the state itt which it was before the fonovation of Claudius, and at the same time bringing it (with the same exception) into accordance with Christian fecling (Cod, Theod. lib. iii. tit. xii. leg. I. tom. i. p. 294). In the year 355 , Constantius took up the question of marriage with a deceased wife's sister and with a deceased brother's wife. These marriages he forbade as peremptorily as those with the niece; but allowing that they were regnrded in old times as admissible, he did not impose nuch extreme penalties; but he denied them the name of marriage, and declared the chil dren born of them to be illegitimate (Cod Theod. lib. iii. tit. xii. leg. 2, tom. i. p. 246). This legisintion was confirmed by Theodosius the Great, Arcalius, Theodosius junior, and Anastasius. The frequent repetition of this law dhews that it was frequently infringed, and we have a remarkable example' of its infringement in the marriage of the emperor Honorius with the two daughters of Stiliche. In Constantius' taw, marriages with a deceased brother's wife and a deceased wife's sister are placed upon the same footing, and no distinction is drawn between cases in which the previons marriage had been dissolved by death and those in which it had been dissolved by divorce-in both alike the second marriage is made unlawful. This contioued to be the law of the empire.

PROHIBITED DEGREES

Theodosius the Great took in hand the question of marringe between first cousins. We have seen that the earliest Roman law did not permit these marriages (Tac. Anval. xii. 6), but by the year 171 a.c. they had come to be looked upon without any disapprobation (Liv. xlii. 34). Theodosius condemned them utterly in a law made in the year 384 or 385 . This law is no longer extant, but it is referred to in the writings of St. Ambrose ${ }^{c}$ and St. Augustine, and by Arcsius and Henerius, in their subsequent daws of A.D. 396 and 409 , in a way to dispel all "Theodosius the emperor St. Ambrose says: sererest penalties emperor forbade under the bererest penalties the union of first cousins, Whether born of the father's brother or sister'" (Epist, Ix. (al. Ixvi.) ad Paternum, Op. tom. ii. p. 1018; Paris, 1690). St. Augustine says, that within his own memory such marriages had been allowed by the civil law, but that at the time that he was writing the De Civitate Dei (about A.D. 428) they were prohibited (De Ciritate Dei, xv. 16. Op. tom. vii. p. 459, ed. Migne). Arcadius states that the punishment inflicted by the Theodosian law (for it is to that to which he ciesrly refers, Cod. Theod. lib. iii. tit. xii. leg. 3 , tom. i. p. 297) consisted of Iynes and bonornm Amboscriptio, explaining thus the meaning of $\mathrm{St}_{\text {t. }}$. Ambroas when he speaks of its ponalty as being his issima. Honorius refers to it as a law of his father's (Cord. Theod. lib. iii. tit. 10 , tom. 1. p. 287). In the year 396 Arcadius repcated the prohibition of marriage between first cousins, removing only the terrible penalties which his father had imposed; eight years later, A.d. 404 he changed his mind, and made the marriage of first cousins lawful for the Enstern empire. (See twe very valuable notes of Gothofredus on Cod. i. pp. 288, 298). Fiv. and tit. xii. leg. 3, tom. Honorius publish Five years later (A.D. 409) marringes were ded a law by which the same marringes were declared to be only legitior dispensation Western empire by the rescript a differensation of the emperor, causing thus a difference of sentiment and of law in East Justin. lib. Cor. Theod. lib, iit. tit. 10; Cod. law of A.D. 404 tit. iv. leg. 19). Arcadius' and its provisior was adopted by Justinian, rule of the Eastern became acknowledged as the mar : wistern empire. In the West also, miss. , but weolsins became frecly permuch favour were never looked upon with 80 for the most as in the Last. The barbaric codea Canon in so far as they canons of the early church, marriages, are cases thit we eoncerned with the same three the civil we have seen engage the attention of marriages between, and also with attempted Thus the council step-parents and step-children. penalty of a fip of eira, A.D. 305 , imposes the one who marries his excommunication on any lxi., and tharies his deceased wife's sister, can. any one who perpetual excommunication on lxvi. (Hefelc, History his stepuaughter, can transl. i. pp. 16t, 165). The council of Ng. Cresarea, A.D. 314, imposes perpetual munication on a woman who marries two brothers, can. ii. (ibid. p. 224). The Apostolical Canons declare that a man who has married two sisters or his niece may not be a clergyman can. ix. (ibid. p. 465). ${ }^{\text {d }}$ a Roman synod under Innocent I. A.D. 402, forbids marriage with a deceased wife's sister, can. ix. and with a deceased uncle's wife, or the son of an uncle, i.e. a first cousin, can. xi. (ibid, ii. p. 429). The council of Agde, A.D. 506, defines as incestuous those who marry their brother's widow, wife's sister, stepmother, cousin, uncle's widow, uncle's daughter, stepdaughter, or any kioswoman, can. lxi. (Labbe, Concil. tom. iv. p. 1393). The first council of Orleans, A.D. 511 , forbjds marriage with a brother's widow or a decensed wife's sister, can, xviii. (ibid. p. 1407). The council of Epaone, A.D. 517 , forbids marringe council of brother's widow, wife's sistor, stepmother, cousin, uncle's wife, or daughter, atepdaughter, or any kinswoman, can. xxx. (ibid. p. 1580). The council of Auvergne, A.D. 533, repents the legislation of the conncils of Epnone and Agde, can. xii. (ind. p. 1805). The second council of Orleans, A.D. 533, forbids morriage with a stepmother, can. x. (itid. p. 1718). The third council of Orlenns, A.D. 538, prohibits marringe with atepmothes, stepdaughter, brother's widow, wite'a sister, cousin, and uncle's widow, can. $x$. (ibid. tom. v. p. 297). Thia canon was renewed d The wort consobrinam, fonnd in Haioander's version the canon, bas no place in the orlctival

[^121]
PROHIBITED DEGREES  1727

1729

PROHIBITED DEGREES

PROHIBITED DEGREES

PROHI

by the fourth conncil of Orleans, A.D. 541 , can. xxvii. (ibid. p. 32i). The third council of Paris, A.5. 5.5 , prohibits marriage with brother's widow, stepmother, uncle's widow, wife's sister, daughter-in-law, aunt, stepdaughter, stepdaughter's daughter, can. iv. (ibid. p. 816). The second council of Tours, A.D. 567, recites the marringes forbidden in Levitieus xviii. and addls to them those with niece, cousin, wife's sister, and confirms the canon of 1 Orleans, Epmone, and Auvergne, can. xxi. (ibid. p. 872). The Capitulary of Martin of Bracnrn, A.D. 573, forbids marriage with two sisters, enp. lxxix. (ibit. p. 914). The council of Auxerre, A.D. 578, forbids murriage with stepmother, stepdaughter, brother's widow, wife's sister, enusin, uncle's widow, can. xxvii. 33 (ibid. p. 957). The third council of Lyons, A.D. 583, renews the ancient canons against incest, eall. iv. (ibid. p. 974). So, ton, the second council of Mácon, A.D. 585, can. xviii. (ibid. p. 987). The fifth council of Paris, A.D. 615, renews the legislation of Orleans, Epmone, Anvergne, Auxerre, can. xiy. (ibid. p. 1652). The council in Trullo, A.d. 691, forbids marriage with cousin (uncle's daughter), and prohibits a father and a son marrying a mother and a daughter, or two sisters, and two brothers marrying a mother and a duughter, or two sisters, can. liv. (ibid. tom. vi. p. 1167). The first Roman council umder Gregory II., A.D. 721, forbids marriage with brother's wife, niece or grandchild, stepmother and stepdanghter, enusin, all kinsmen, anil any one married to a kinsman, can. v.-ix. (ibid. p. 1456). See also the Judicia of Gregory III. Jud. xi. (Hard. Cuseil. tom, iii. p. 1873). Pope Zachary, A.D. 743, forbids marringe with two sisters, K.p. vii. c. xxii. (Labbe, Concil. tom. vi. p. 1512). The first Roman council under pope Zachnry, A.D. 743, forbids marringe with cousin, niece, mother-in-law, brother's wife, and all relatives, cap. vi. (ibid. p. 1547). The sume council states, that pope Gregory had allowed marringe after the fourth degree, on account of the rudeness of the persons with respect to whom he was writing, but as a ge.seral rule it lays down the prineiple that there should be no marriage where any relationship is known, cnp. xv. The conncil of Vermerie, A.D. 752 , pronounces that those married in the third degree of relntionship are to be separnted, while those in the fourth degree are only to do penance, can. i. (ibid. p. 1657). The council of Metz, A.D. 753, prohibits marriage with stepmuther, stepdaughter, wife's sister, niece, granddaughter, cousin, nunt ; any offender to be fined, and if unable to pay the fine to be sent to prison in case he is a freeman, and if not, to be bevien with many stripes, cap. i. (ibid. p. 1660). The conncil of Compiègne, A.d. 757, orders separntion of those who are (even one of them) in the third degree of propinquity, can. i. (ibid. p. 1695). The sixth council of Arles, A.D. 813, makes the same prohibitions ns previous councils, can, xi. (ibid. tom. vii. p. 1236). The council of Mayence, A.D. 813, forbits marriage in the fourth degree, can. liv. (ibid. p. 1252).

The imprediment of affinity was considered to be crented by illicit connexion, as well as by marringe (Council of Agde, can, lxi. Hard. Concil. tom. ii. p. 1004).

Prohibitions on the ground of splritual relationship belong both to the ciril and to the canon law. They were first introduced by the emperor Justinian, who passed a lnw, A.1. 5:27, forbidding any one to marry a woman fir whom he had stool ns godfather in baptism, the tie of the godfather and godehilil being so malugurs to that of the fnther and child as to make such a marriage appear improper (Cod. Juvin. lib. . . tit. 4, leg. 26). The council in Trullo, A.10. 691 , prohibited marringe between the goliather and the child's mother, ordering thnt nl! who shund herenfter enter upon such marringes shumbld le separatell, and do penance, ean. liii. (Lishe, Concil. tom. vi. p. 1167). The first limana council under Gregory 11., A.D. 721, nnathematices all who marry their commatrem, can. is. (i)d. p. 1256). Pope Zachary, A.D. 741, forbids the marriage of the godfather with mother or chill, Ep. vii. e. xxii. (ibid. p. 1512). The first human council under pope Zachary, a.D. 743, firbith marringe with "preshyteram, diaconam, noman, monacham, vel etiam spiritualem comunatrem," eap. 5 (ibid. p. 1547). The council of Met 2 , A.n. 753 , forbids marriage with "commatre suas aut cum matrinà spiritali de fonte et coutirun. tione episespi," cap. i.; that is, it prohilits the marriage of the father with the godmuther of his child, and the marringe of the child with his godmother, and the marriage of the cuntimel person with the person who presented him fir contirmation (ibid. p. 1660). The comn il of Compiegne, A.D. 757, lays stress on the stivitual relationshipereatel by contirmation. If a hushand offered for confirmation the son of his wife hy a previous husband he thereby became so uearly connected by spiritual kinsmanship with his own wife as to have to put her awny, and he was mit allowed to marry agnin, can. sii. (Hari. Cimed tom. iii. p. 2005). The council of Mnyence, A.1. 813, forbids marringe with the godshidd or the godehild's mother, or the mother of the chill offered for confirmation, can. Iv. (Table, Cumcil) tom. vii. p. 1252). This kind of relationship is recognized nlso by pope Nicholas I., A.D. Sbio, in his reply to the Bulgarims (Hard. Concil tonl. v. p. 343). For a list of spiritial relatives between whom marringe was prohibited in later timus, reference may be made to the council of Saltsburg, A.D. 1420, can. xv. (indid. tom. viii. p. 980). The council of Trent found it necessary to restrain these extravagances by confining spiritial relationship to sponsors and the child nad the parents of the child, to the baptizer and the baptized and the parents of the baptized, to the contirmer and the contirmed and the parents of the confirmed, and to the presenter for contimas. tion and the confirmed and the prreuts of the confirmed (Conc. Trilent. Sess. xxiv.; I) Refoum. Matrinon. cap. 2 ; Hard. Concil. tom. s. p. (j1).
It will be seen from the above review that during the whole of the eight first centuries marriages were never allowed, either by civilor camon law, in the first degree, whether of coinsnnguinity or affinity, nor, with one excepticur -that of cousins - in the second degree. The first degree of consanguinity comprises the mother, the danghter, and the sister. With regard to these no question has ever heen rised among Christians. The first degree of alliaity comprises the stepmother, the wife's mather, the wife's dnughter, the son's wife, the wife's sister, the brother's wife. The repetition of proaisitity canons shews that it was neessary to gand against the force again re-affirming respect to these c or hesitntion as $\mathbf{t}$ apon Christians. with the stepmotl tsw, daughter-in-1 sister are as decid the mother, daugh
The second degr the grandmother, t t bister, the son's daughter, the bro daaghter, the first of these was unan one exception of $t$ hare seen, great dil The second degree lowing: Grandfathe father's brother's wife's father's siste; son's wife, daught daughter, wife's da bua's wife, sister's daughter, wife's sis to these there has ment. The church kiadred and alfini related are forbidd to arrry together,' tionships of the first what the early chur for within these $t$ comprised all the r would marry; but d we have to do mar fourth degree were and, indeed, the prol end of the 6th cent ond so it continued it was once more re by the Lateran cou the yesr 1215." T arising from the see lsw, sind of that sist were also abolished couacil; and the afl nexion was deelared to exteal beyond tw It is not necessary

- The growth of ths en bitions rasy be studiet in In the time of Augustin riages tritbe first and see forbiddun, those in the doubiful legulity. (See G maver v.; Johuson's Ar 1*50.) Seventy years fa Guuterbury, A.D. 673, me third degrees were forbidd osly not to be dissoived p. t2). By the time of I tion, in Eugland as eIsew serenth digree. (See la don, can, vi.; Johason's If was owing oniy to the matriages so far as the sev $t$ early as even the thate piains thal elsewhere hs (fee his Rescript to Felix, cil. tom. III. p. 518. ) Oa adeg" marrlages after th (Epinh. ad Bonif.; ibid. p troduced by the a law, A.s. 527, rman for whom mptism, the tie ing so malognis as to make such d. Juvtin. lib. v. l'rullo, A. 1.691 , ie godiather ond t all who should ringes should be n. liii. (Lablue, he first liuman 1, unathenatizes m, cmin. is. (ibid. 741, forbils the mother or chill, The first kuman ..D. 743, furbils топам, nom: m commatrou," aeil of Metz, A.n. "commatre sиa nte et comimanit prohibits the ic golm ther of ic chill with his of the coutirmed esented him fir The counsil of on the spiritual ion. Ifa huskimal of his wife liy a ,eeame so nearly hip with his own , and he was mel ii. (Ilard. Cinctl. of Mavence, A..l. godechild or the her of the chill -. (Lathe, Cancil. If relntionship is is 1., A.D. sibu, in laril. Concil. Lunn relatives between 1 in Inter times, council of Saltsom. viii. p. $98(0)$. necessary to reontining spiritital echild nul the anptizer and the : baptizel, to the ad the parents of iter far contirmale pareuts of the xiv. ; Ie Reform. tom. x. p. íst). rove review that $t$ first centuries either by civil or whether of conth one exceptien nd degree. The - comprises the he sister. With ever been rised legree of alfinity ife's mother, the the wife's sister, ion of pronibititry cessary to guard against the force of temptation by again and ugain re-nffirming the law of the church with respect to these cases, but there is no wavering or hesitntion as to what was the law binding apon Christians. The prohibitions of marriage with the stepmother, stepdaughter, mother-inlaw, daughter-in-law, sister-in-law, and wife's sister are as decided as those of marriage with the mother, daughter, and sister.
The second degree of consanguinity comprises the grandmother, the father's sister, the mother's sister, the son's daughter, the daughter's daughter, the brother's daughter, the sister's daughter, the first cousin. Marriage with all of these was unanimously prohibited, with the one exception of the cousin, on which, as we hare seen, great differences of sentiment existed, The second degree of affinity comprises the folJowing: Granilfather's wife, wife's grandmother, father's brother's wife, mother's brother's wife, wife's fnt her's sister, wife's mother's sister, son's ron's wife, daughter's son's wife, wife's son's daughter, wife's daughter's daughter, brother's qun's wife, sister's son's wife, wife's brother's dsughter, wife's sister's daughter. With regard to these there has been no difference of sentiment. The church of England in its "table of kiadred and alfinity, wherein whosoever are related are forbidden in scripture and our laws to aarry together," confines itself to the relatioaships of the first and second degree (omitting, what the early church omitted, that of cousins), for within these two degrees are practically comprised all the relatives that a man could or would marry; but during the period with which would marry; but during the period with which we have to do marriages within the third and fourth degree were also pronounced unlawful, and, indeed, the prohibition was extended by the end of the 6th century to the seventh degree; and so it continued until in the Western church it was once more reduced to the fourth degree by the Lateran council under Innocent III. in the year 1915.0 Two inferior kinds of affinity, arising from the second marringe of a sister-inlaw, and of that sister-in-law's second husbund, were also abolished by the fourth Lateran council; and the affinity caused by illicit connexion was declared by the council of Trent not to extend beyond two degrees (Scss. xxiv. c. 4). It is not necessary to quote the judgments of
- The growth of the enlargement of the area of prohsbitiuns nisy be etadied in the bistory of our own coutatry. In the time of Augustine of Csiterbury, A.b. 601, msrrlages in the flrst and second degrees of relationalitp were borbiddnn, those in the third degree being counted of donliful legalily. (See Gregory's Answers to Auguatine, mnwer v.; Juhnson's English Canons, voi, i, p. 69, Oxf, tx50.) Seventy years ister, In the timn of Theodore of Gatterhary, A.D. 673, marriages in the tirat, second, and third degrees were forlidden, and those in the fourth were only not to be dissolved (Theod. Paenit. ed. Petlt, c, xi. p. t2). By the time of Lanfrane, A.h, 1075, the prohibitios, in England as erse tios, in Enilund as elsewhere, had been exiended to the erenth drgree. (See Laurranc's Canons, made in serenth drgree. (See Laulranc's Canons, made In London, can. vi. ; Johnson's English Canons, vol. II. p. 14.) It was owing oniy to the "rudeness" of the English that marlages so far as the seventh degree were not forbilden tumerly as even the time of St . Auguatiue. Grerory ex. pianing thal eisewhere he prohibited them to that extent, (fee bis Rescript to Falix, bishop uf Hessana; Hurd. Concil. tom. ili, p. 518.) On like grounds Gregory II. "conades" marriagea after the fuurth degree to the Germane (Epith. ad Bonif.; ibid. p. 1858).
the great church teachers with respect to any prohibition, except that which related to the marriage of cousins. For on all other casce there is an universal agreement; and we have only to sny that every writer who deals with the subject at all, witnesses to the prohibitions of the canon and civil law, and endorses sometimes one and sometimes another of them. Thus St. Ambrose insiats upon the prohibition of marriage with a niece in writing to Paternus, who had proposed a marringe between his son and grandduughter (Epist. 1x. al 66 ; Op. tom, ii. p. 1018) St. Basil argues with great force and ingenuity, in his letter to Diodorus, against marrlage with a wife's sister ${ }^{\text {r }}$ (Epist. 197; Op. tom. iii. p. 213, Paris, 1638 ). But on the subject of the marriage of cousins there is no such consensus, St. Augustine gives it as, his opinion that such marriages are not contrary to the divinc law, as they were not contrary to Roman law until the legislation of Theodosius the Great. Until that time, that is, the end of the 4 th century, no objection appears to have been taken to these marriages by the church; but when the state changed its mind, and after haring vehemently condemned them for twenty years, once mors declared them permissible, the church, which had followed the imperial lead in the first instance, did not change back again so readily. From the 5th century onwards ecclesiastical anthority first frowned upon the marriage of first cousins, and then condemned them, pratly as being in the second degree of propiaquity, and partly for physiological reasons, as stated by jope Gregory in his fifth answer to St. Augustine of Canterbury. "Sed experimento didicimus, ex tali" conjugio sobolem non posse succrescere. Et snera lex prohibet cognntionis turpitudinem revelare. Unde necesse est ut jam tertia vel quarta generntio fidelium licenter sibi jungi debeat; nam secunda quam prae diximus, a se omni modo debet abstinere" (Beda Hist. Eecles. i. 27, p. 49, Oxoa. 1846). We have already noted that they were condemned by the councils of Agde, A.D. 506, of Epaone, A.D. 517, of Auvergne, A.D. 533, by the third council of Orleans, A.D. 538, by the fourth council of Orleans, A.D. 541, by the second council of Tours, A.D. 567, by the council of Auxerre, A.D. 578, and by others, including even the great Eastern conncil in Trullo, A.D. 691. But these prohibl tions did not begia till after the legislation of Theodosins, out of which they sprang at the ead of the 4 th century. It is noticesble that [^122]prohibitions of marringe on the ground both of cousinhoed and of apiritual relationship originated not with the church, but with imperial legislation.

For Literature, sea Marriage, p. 1113.
[F. M.]
PROJECTUS, martyr, commemorated Jan. 25 (Bed. Mart., Praejectus; Florus ap. Bed. Murt. ; Notker. ; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. 2, 636, deacon, mart. at Cesals, 8th ceut. [C. H.]

PROKIMENON (проке $/ \mu є \nu \alpha \nu$ ). A short

 anthem consisting of a verse and response, generally, but not always, taken from the psalms, aud often chosen so as to point the lesson contaiaed in the Epistle for the day. It answers on the whole ta the Greek liturgy to the Western Gradual, notwithstanding that it is sung before the Epistle, while the plare of the Gradual is bet ween the Epistle and Gospel. The custom in both cases doubtless arose from the earlier custom of singing a psalm between every two lections. [Granual.] In the liturgy of St. Chrysostom the prokimeson is preceded by a preclamation of the deacon, viz. $\psi a \lambda \mu \partial s \tau \hat{\psi} \Delta a u t s$, ミoфía, though no psalm is sung there. The words $\psi a \lambda \mu$ os $\tau \hat{\psi} \Delta$ avto are reparted after the Epistle, where agaia no psalm, but only "Alleluia," is sung. This probably represents a remsant of the ancizat custom, and supports the interauce that, as the Gradual of the West staads for the ysalm between the Epistle and Gespel, so the Prokimenon represents that which used to divide the Old Testament lection (now disused in that liturgy) from the Epistle.A Prokimenon is also sung in the Vesper office of the Greek clureh, and on Sundsys and festivals in that of Lands also. The ordibary Vespers prokimenon is invariable for the day, but on the other eccasions it refers to the Epistle, as in the liturgy.
[C. E. H.]
PROMUS, msrtyr with Areus and Eliss; commemorated Dec. 19 (Basil. Menol.).

PRONAOS. [Narthex.]

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH. [Compare Unders, noly, p. 1490.]

A. Sources of Cilurci Property.

1. Lands.-In the earlicst days of the church those who had lands and houses sold them and gave the price to the church tund (Acts iv. 34). This continued to be the custom of the church of Lome ('l'heod. Lector. Coll. ii. p. 367), which, ss Valesius thinks had no immovable property until the time of Gregory the Great, excepting of course church buildings and cemeteries. So Augustine would never purchase land or houses, but if such wera given or bequeathed to the church he aceepted them (Posid. Vitu Aug. c. 24).

We find the church in possession of land before it was a body recognized by the state. Alexander Severus ndjudged to the church a piece of common land to which the vintners alsolaid claim (Lamprid. 49). In A.D. 261 Gallienus restored the cemeteries. The edict of Constantine A.D. 313 declares that the Christians are known to possess places belonging not to any individual but to the whole body, and he commands Anulinus to restore the houses, gardens, and other property to the several churches (Euseb. Hist. x. 5). From this time immovable property was given to the church is abundnnce. Sometimes the donor reserred the usufruct to himself or some neat relative, as Ambrose (Surins, Apr. 4), but many bestouel all their farms and property absolutely. Augustine (EPp, 109) rebukes Eudocia tor impuezishing her houschold in this way.

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH

(For the alienation of church property, see Alienation.) The statute of limitations did not apply to chureh property; recovery was aot barred for a hunilred years (Cod. Just. 1, 2, 23), which was afterwards reduced to forty (Nor. exxxi. 6), the regular limit being thirty, An annual charge upen land by gift or legacy could not be redeemed (C. J. 1, 3, 46), A.D. 530, or in any way cease to be paid in perpetuity ; if alienated it could be recovered with interest (ihid. 57), but it might be exchanged with another church.

Leases,-The usufruct of church property could be enjoyed by a layman for his lifetime of a term of years, in return for an equivalent paid at death or the end of the contract (Nor. vii. 4). Justinian forbade church estates to be let according to the ins colonarium (a kind of beneficial lease (Nov. vii. praef.). Emplytecsis was permitted only for the life of one tenant and two specified heirs (Nov. vii. 3); it was forbidden in perpetuity (ibid. 7) unless the estate was profitless and could not be improvel (Stut. cxx. 1). An ordinary lease was limited to twenty years (C. J. 1, 2, 24), which was afterwards extended to thirty ( $\Lambda \circ v, ~ c x x .3$ ).

Another method of granting ehurch money or farms was per precariam, oo called either "quis illud precario possidet" or "quin precibus obtinetur" (Ducnige). This is sometimes regarded ss & kind of benefice. One form was a lease for one or a few, generally five, years, and rent was paid; sometimes the terms were the same as the emphyteusis of Justinian (Nov. vii.), of which kind forms are found in Mareuljhus, ii. form. 39, 40.

The enrliest notice of precariae is in a enon sscribed by Gratian to some African council (labbe, Conc. i1. p. 1178), which permits a rector to pevoke any precarine made by his predecessor to the injury of the chureh. [Pricariat.]
2. Legacics.-A.D. 321. Constantine decreed that any one might bequeath to the ehureh any property he pleased (Cod. Just. i. 2, 1). Full liberty was taken of this privilege, and it was soon abused. Many bequeathed all their property to the church, leaving in poverty those dependent upon them. Augustine refused to 0 ceive legacies if they were needed by poor relativ s (Potidonius, Vita Aug. 24). He was obliged to defend himself against the charge of discouragiag legaciee. Aureliue, bishop of Carthage, restored his property to a man who, having given all to the church, afterwards had a son ; so when an angry father disinherited his son, Augustine would not accept the legacy for the church (cf, Sermo de diversis, 49). Ambrese (in Lucam. 18) forbids to pinch relntives in order to loave money to the church. Jerome (Epit. Mar.) upplauds Marcella for surrendering her own wishes to her mether's, and bequeathing her property to relatives rather than the church. On the other hand he sdrise the widow Furia, in spite of the opposition of her father, to leave her money to the church. Gregory the Great restored an estate rather than imporerish the children.
A.D. 455. The law of Valentinian (Cod. Juwh

PROPER
siv. 2,20 ), whle from virgins ad trusts, did not church, for Jer (ep. 50) do not greediness of law necessary. forbada deacon church ; they pleased in their was restored to 2,13).
Augustine ad Christ as one m equal share with children were to go to the church on accepting a le amount and the (Cod. i. 3, 28 ). a legacy be left t charch of the p when a saint or then if there as legacy is to go to which the testat $2,26)$; if there $a$ in the province, a the testator. If n for charitable ase within a year ( $C$. thage (Con. iv. c. bishop to enforce commands the $b$ daly carried out cies might not in to remain snnual firmed ivid. J. 57,
The minute re were ametimes re $\rightarrow$ r.g. bequests to for the redemptio valid, although $t$ ) certain, and the barred for a hundr Fresch kinge coofi that wills in favo ralid, slthough Lagdan. ii. 2; Pay The Lex Falcidis mers than three legacies, was repan (Noo. cxixi. 12). (c. li.) arranged lesving property t 3. Grants.-Gras formed snather sou gare a large sum t bishop of Cartlage Namidia, snd Mau defray expeases-a queatly fallowed b granted sn annual vidows, virgins, at (Theod, Iv. 4). Thi one-third was restor by Marcian (Cod. conacil of Chalcedo andria, was accused Gregory the Great proconsul of ltaly from the church of Chilst. ANT.-VO

CIIURCH

to the church is nor reserved the $t$ relative, as Amany bestowed all itely. Angustine mpoverishing het tch property, see $f$ limitations did recovery was not d. Just. 1, 2, 23), $d$ to forty (Nor. eing thirty. An ft or legacy could 3), A.D. 5:30, or in epetuity ; if nlien. interest ( $i$ i, ${ }^{2} .57$ ), honother ehurch. chnreh property for his lifetime or in equivalent paid ract (Non. vii. 4). to be let accord. kind of benefirial mpirticesis was $f$ one tenant and 3) ; it was forunless the estate re improved (Nos. limited to twenty h was afterwards 3). chmreh money or lled either "quis in precihus obtisetimes regarded as a as a lease for one and rent was paid; 10 same as the em. ii.), of which kind ts, ii. form. 39, 40. nriae is in a cmon can council(Labbe, its a rector to jehis predecessor to RECARIAE.] onstantine decreed to the church sny ust. i. 2, 1). Full ivilege, and it was hed all their pro3 in poverty those stine refused to po led by poor relatic He was obliged to urge of diacouraging Carthage, restored ving given all to the ; so when an angry ugustine would not nrch (cf. Sermo de liucam. 18) forbids leave money to the ) applauds Marcells hes to her mether's, to relatives rather eer hand he adrises he opposition of bet the church. Gregory ather than imporetentinian (Cod. Justh

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH

mi. 2,20 ), which forbade clerics to recoive legacies from virgins and other religious persons even as church, for Jerome (ad prevent legacies to the church, for Jeroma (ad Nepotian.) and Ambrose ( 6 , 50 ) do not complain of the law, but of the rreediness of those will-hunters who made the law necessary. Theodosius (xvi. 2, 27, A.D. 390) forbade daaconesses to make bequests to the church; thay might however give what they pleased in their lifetime (ibid. 28). Full liberty was restored to them by Marcian (Cud. Just. i. 2, 13).
Augustine advised those who had sona to add Christ as one more heir and give the church an equal share with the rest (De Div. Serm. 49); dead children wera to be counted in and their portion go to the church (inid. 44). Justinian ordered that on accepting a legacy, the bishop ahould enrol the amount and the date before the civil magistrate (Cod. i. 3, 28). Also (Yov. 131, 9, A.D. 541 ), if a legacy be left to God or Christ, it is to go to the charch of the place where the testator lived; whea a saint or angel is named, but not the place, then if there are many chapels so named, the legacy is to go to the poorest (unless chere be one which the testator was known to favour, C. J. i. $2,26)$; if there are no chapels in the city, to one in the province, and failing that, to the church of the testator. lf money were left to build a house for charitable uses, the work must be completed within a year (C.J. i. 3, 46). The canona of Carthage (Con. iv. c. xviii. xix., A.D. 398) forbid the bishop to enforce a bequest by law, but Justinian commands the bishop to see that a bequest is duly carried out (Nov. cxxxi. 11.). Annual legacies might not in any way he changed, but were to remain annual (C. J. . 3, 46, A.D. 530 ; conto remain annual (C. J. 1. 3, 46, A.D. 530 ; confirmed itid. 1.57 , A.D. 534 ). The minuts 57, A.D. 534).
The minuta requirements of the Roman law were sometimes relaxed in favour of the church $\rightarrow$ were bometimes relaxed in favour of the church -org. bequests to the poor (C. J. i. 3, 24), or for the redemption of csptives (ibid. 28), weere valid, although the persoas benefited were uncertain, and the claim-to auch money was not barred for a huadred years (C. J. i. 2, 23). The Freach kings coafirmed the canons which ordered that wills in favour of the church ohould be ralid, although in aome polate informal (C) ralid, although in aome polate informal (C.
Lagdun. ii. 2 ; Paris, iii. 1) Logdun. ii. 2; Paris, iii. 1). [Mlortmain.]
The Lex Falcidia, which forbade a man to leave more than three-fourtlis of his property in legacies, was repenled in the case of the church
(Nov. cxxxi. 12). A.D. 772 a Bavnrian council (c. li.) arranged for the alteration of a will (c. li.) arranged for the alter leaving property to the church.
3. Grants.-Grants from the imperinl fund formed snother source of revenue. Conatantine gave a large sum to be diatributed by Caecilian, bishop of Carthage, among the olergy of Africa, Nomidia, snd Mauretania (Euseb. Mist. x. 6), to defray expeases-a precedent which was frequently followed by later emperurs. He also granted an aanual allowance of corn to the (Thidows, virgins, and clergy in each province (Theod. iv. 4). This was revoked by Julian, but one-third was restored by Jovian and confirmed by Marcian (Cod. Justin. I. 2, 12). At the andria, was accused of approprlating it (act. 3). Gregery the Great (viii. ep. 20) writes to the proconsul of Italy not to withhold this grant from the church of Naplea. In iv. 42 he blames CHalst. ANT.-VOL. 11.

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH 1731

Leontins for appropriating the corn at Ariminum. The civilia anaona, or grant of brend to the poor, is oftener meationed nlong with the immovible property of the church, and could not be alieaated (Cod. Just. 1. 2, 14; Nov. vil. pracf. and cxx. 1). There is a decree of Marcian, A.D. 454, which is thought to refer to this corn (C.J. i. 2, 12): "Et quia nostrao humanitatis est egenis prospiccre et dare opernm ut pnuperibus alimenta bon desint, salaria etiam quas sacrosanctis ecclesils in diversis speciebus de publico hactenus ministrata sunt, jubemus nunc quoque inconcusa et a nulle prorsus imminuta prac-stari". stari."

Anastnaius granted seventy pounds of gold to the church of Constantiaojle for the proper conduct of funerals (C. J. i. 2, 18; cf. Nov. lix.).

When the barbarisns divided the lauds of the emplre, the church estates remained sacred ; genernlly they were increased. Clovis and his hrst succeasors awarded large tracts. St. hemigius received a great aumber of landa to be distributed among the destitute churches. The roynl exchequer was grently impoverished (Greg Turon. vi. 46). Ludwig made grants to the church of Orleans (Con. Aurel. i. c. 5, A.d. 511) Dagobert I. gave the royal revenue from Tuurs to the church of St. Martin (Eligii Vita, 1, 32). So rapidly and alarmingly was the church of Frnace becomiag rich, that king Chilperic nnnulled all testaments in which the church was mode heir, but this was repealed by Gunthram soon after. Charles Martel seized a quantity of church land to reward his soldiers, A.D. 740, but part was restored by Pippin (Gesta Francorum, Planck). Frequeatly the gifta made by kings were confirmed in synods, as those ol Gunthram at Valeace, and of Dagobert (Planck, ii. 203), and of Pippin at Ratisbon, A.D. 742.
4. Slaves, - A.D. 590 the firat council of Seville (c. 1) was requested by the deacons to anaul some manumissions of the late bishop Gaudentius. They found that the existing cunons forbade the alienation of church property nand rendered all such transactions void. It was decreed that if Gaudentiua had left property to the church the slaves might remain frec, otherwise he ought not to injure the church. Still to judge more according to the precepta of humaaity than by strict law, such freed men were to remain in lua ecclesine, ut idonei: their property they might leave to their sons, but to no others. See Slavery.
5. Occasional sources of revenue wera the estates of clerica and religious persons who died intestate and without relatives (Cod. Just. i. 3, 20). Theodosius extended to the church this privilege which all other collegia possessed. Clerics withc.: relntives were expected to lenve their property to the church (Salvian. ad Salonic.), and were allowed no heirs but their aephews by C. Agath. c. 24, A.D. 501;. Also all the property of a bishop, except whit he possessed before his appointment or inherited from relatives (avo. cxxxi. 13 ; cf. C. Rhem. c. 10, 20) : the estates of freed men of the church who died childless (Greg. M. v. 12): the marriage fees of slaves on church land (ibid. i. 42) : preperty stolen from a church tenant, if recovered (this was forbldden by Gregory, l. c.): fines for eccleslatical offences ; the estates of clerks whe became aeculara again (C. J. i. 3, 55). The goods of heretics were sometlmes bestowed on the church, as were those of Nestorius when he was sent into exile by Theodosiua. So also were the houses whers Montrnists assembled (Cod. Theod xvl. 5, 57), and Donatists (ibid. 54). Hoborius gave several heathon temples (Cod. Theod. xvi. 10, 20). Constantius gave a temple of the sun at Alexandrin (Sozomeu, v. 7), and some bnailicas, as the Sessorian and the Laterna. The statue of Serapia and other idola at Alexandria were melted down for the use of the church, the emperor glving orders that the gode ahould help to maintain the poor (Socrates, vil. 7).

1732 PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH

Fees for baptlsm were at one time paid. Greg. Naz. (de Bapt. Fr. 6.55) writes agninst it. The Cob. Eliberls, c. xlvili. forbids this practice, so does Gelasius (Ep, ix, c. 5); nad for confirmation also. Con. Braccura, il. c. 7, forbids the exaction of a pledge at baptism from those who were too poor to make nn offering ; nnd $\mathrm{c} . \mathrm{v}$. forbids the bishop to extort a fee trom the founder at the consecration of a church. Jerome (Quaest, Hebruic. Gen, xxiii.) censures the practice of exacting money for a burial-place.
6. Beneficcs.-Ducange defines a benefice to be "praedium fiscale quod a rege vel principe vel ab alio quolibet, ad vitam viro nobili utendum conceditur. Ita autem appellatum est, quod ia ex mero dantis beneficio ac liberalitate illud possideat." The word had a wider sense in ecclesiastical usage, "beneficia eccleaiastica dicebantur universin res ecclesiae in beneficium datae, sive a principibus aive ab ipsis ecclesiia et earum praelatis in beneficium datae essent." It has apparently the sense of oblations in the first canon of the council of Anxerre, A.D. 578. In the laws of the Visigoths (ix. 5, 5), it ia equivnlent to merces, and is used in thia widest signification by Thomassin in his work, Vetus et Nova Eectesiae Disciplina circa Beneficia et Beneficarios, which treata of every kind of payment to the clergy.
Originally a benefice was not separate from ordinntion. By the fact of ordination a clergyman was attached to a church and could clnim maintenance. All the funds throughout the diocese were handed over to the bishop, who gave the clergy their portions. Gradunlly the custom grew up of making special reservations to particular places; the right to maintenance was no longer personal but local ; the principle prevailed, "ut qui titulum haberct ius queque fructus percipiendi ex bonis titule amnexis consequeretar." Ultimately the canoniats defined a benefice as "ius perpetuum percipiendorum fructuum quorumcumque ex bonis ecclesiasticis seu Deo dicatia" (Van Espen. vol. i. part 2, tit. xviii.). For other eources from which the clergy were maintained, aee alao Tithes, ObLAtions, Finst-Fruits.
Thomassin considere the history of the word to be as follows (ii. lib. iii, c. xiii.). Beneficea were originally lands granted by the emperor: when laymen seized charch lands, theae were held also of the prince or the church by military tenure, and called benefices: the name remained after they had been reatored to the church. The other explanation ia that they were granted to the soldiers of Christ on condition of serving faithfully in the ermy of the church.

Biaus, followed by Baronius (anno 502),

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH

fixes the orlgin of benefices at the beginniug of the 6th century. That benefices were enly juat coming inte use in the church at this time is supported by the fact that some clergy, after enjoying the usufruct ior thirty years or forty (Juat. Nov. exxxi. 6), claimed the lands as their own by preacription. The first council of Orlenna (c. xxiii.), A.D. 511, decreed that if the kindnesa of the bishop had allowed clerica or monka to till or bold lands or vineysid, even though many years could be proved to have passed, the church was to suffer no harm, and the secular law of prescription (thisty yeara) was not to be put forward to the prejudice of the church. It was also found necessary to forbid all clerles to go to the prince to seek for benefices without letters commendatory frem the bishop (can. vii.). In A.D. 517 it was decreed (Conc. Epaonense, c. xir.) that if a beneficed priest be elected bishop of another chureh, he is to return all gits previously made to him by his church. Canon $x$ viii. enacts that the secular law of prescription is not to apply to the church.
Although a benefice was sltogether the free gift of the bishop, yet his right to revoke his gift was questioned. In A.D. 538 the thind council of Orleans (c. xvii.) forbnde a bishop to revoke the benefices (munificentins) granted by a deceased predecessor, except fur improper cosduct, but he could force an exchange; his own gifts he might revake if the recipients proved contumacious.
Benefices were granted by word of mouth or by writing (C. Aurel. iv. c. xviii. A.D. 541), as the bishop thought fit ; in neither case could the benefice be alienated. If a benefice were granted to a cleric of another church, at his death the benefice returned (ibid. c. $x \times x$ vi.). Improvementa went to the church at the death of the beneficiary (ibid. c. xxxiv.). If a bishop, by will, left a farm to a cleric, who entered upon it during the vacancy, the new bishop might confirm or annal the legacy (ibid. c. xxxv.). A.D. 554 the fifth trouncil of Arles (c. v.) forbids cierics to deteriorate the property of which they have the use; the younger are to be punished; the older to be regarded as marderers of the poor. A.D 567 the second council of Lyons (c. v.) forbids bishope to withdrew the gifte of their predecessors; if the beneficiaries need punishment, it should be on the persons rather than their property. Such canons were renilered necessary by the frequent quarrels of the bishop and his clergr, (Gregery of Tours, Hist. iv. 7; v. 49; ri. 36). The will of Hadoind, a Gallican bishop (apud Baronium, A.d. 652), mentions a villa "quam Lupus quondam per beneficium nostrum, tenere visus fuit, similiter villa quam ex munif. centia nostra concesaimus." Lupus is to enjoy the usufruct, and on hie death they sre to be restored to the charch.

In the Church of Italy the epistle of Symmachus to Caesnrius of Arles probably described the custom of that time, to give a benefice only to deserving clergy, or monks or strangers, when there is some strong necessity (Epist, r .). This was confirmed by a council held at Rome (cap. ir. A.D. 502). Gregory the Great granted a benefiee to a preabyter at the request of his bishop; but ordered the nnnual value of the benefice to be deducted from the preabyter's shere at tho ordinary divisi cap. v .).

PROPER

In Spain, the A.D. 531) enacts tineolas seu alis fecisse probatur usque ad obitus som, ius suum e tario aut succes aut prohaeredum pro servitiis aut voluerit." A.d. c. iii., enacts that property of the to the churches o does not serious church, "firmum clerics, and the ne stare permittantu plies that the lan mother church; phrase "salvo iu allows a grant to benefice was gran incentive to fur hopes were disappo (Con. Emerit. c. xi The laws of the usual law of prescrip order the bishops $t$ with a list of the $p$ widow and childre were net to be turne A.D. 779. Charles nona cum ipso censu , church estates, and s (Tithes, chap. vi.) th which all land was s Wis to be paid as re the conncil of Frank f et nonas sive census, er beneficiis et rebu orders churches to be ficis exinde habent." lo the East there is graatitug benefices. themins (A.D. 470, C Thomassin quotes, has a benefice, but to ma way; for the usufruct for usufruct of equal dov. vii. 4.

B. Administration

The edminiatration the duty and privileg clared by the council o ${ }^{3+1}$; cf. Cl. Rome, vi Gregory the Great, ii officials were bound to bishop and to act acco whether they were oecnn or managed the guest-h or poorhouses (Chalced (iidi, c. xrii.), or char (Joutin, Aur. cxxiii. 23) bishop was far from absol by (1) the rights of the of the empire, and (3) by politan and of the provin conacile. [Bishop.]

1. The rights of the cl

GURCH

e beginning of es were ouly nurch at this t some clergy, thirty years med the landa first council ecreed that if dlowed clerics or vineyards, be proved to Iffer no harm, iption (thirty rward to the as also found to go to the it letters comvii.), In A.D. rense, c. xir.) lected bishop tura all gifts turch. Canon of prescription

ther the free

 to revoke his i38 the thind de a bishop to s) granted by improper conange; his own ipienta provedof mouth or . A.D. 541 ), as case could the were granted his death the Improvements of the benefiby will, left a it during the firm or annul 554 the fint ierics to detehey have the ted ; the older e poor. A.D (c. v.) forbids $f$ their predeunishment, it han their pro1 necessary by and his clerg?, ; v. 49 ; ri. llicsn bishop ations a villa cium nostrum, am ex munifius is to enjoy hey are to be

istle of Sym-

 ably describes benefice only rangers, when ist. v.). This Rome (cap. ir. nted a beneffe is bishop; but benefice to be share st the ordinary division (Thomassin, pars 3, lib. 2, cap. v.).
PROPERTY OF THE Church

In Spain, the second council of Toledo (can. ir. A.D. 531 ) enacts: " si quis clericorum agellos vel fineolas eeu alia sedificia in terris ecelesiae sibi usquas ad obitur, austeutandas vitae suae causa, usqua ad obitus anj diem poasidest. Post decestario aut ecclesiae restituat, nec testamenaut prohaeredum relio iure, cuiquam haeredum pro servitios aut paquat nisi corsitan episcopus roluerit." A.D. 589 the third ecclesiae largiri c. iii., enacts that bishopa are not to alienate the property of the church. However, if they give to the churches of their diocese anything which does not seriously hamper the nitity does not seriously hamper the utility of the clerics, and the needy, "salvo and to atrangers, atare permittantur." "Firmum maneat "inaeplies that the lend would never return to the mother church; it is the contrary to the phrase "salvo iure ecclesiae." So canon iv. allowa a grant to a monastery. Sometimes a benefice was granted by way of reward and incentive to further effort: if the bishop's hopes were disappointed he might recall his gift (Con. Emerit. c. xiii. A.D. 666).
The lawa of the Visigotha (iv. 5, 6) forbid the usual law of prescription to apply to benefices, and order the bishops to supply rectors of churches widow a list of the property of the benefice: the widow and children of a deceased beneficiary A.D. 779. Charles the Great benefice (i. 1, 4). ans cum ipse Charles the Great ordered " decima et church estates, and Selden explains those who held (Iithes, chap). vi.) that, in addition to the tithe which all land was supposed to pay, a ninth part Wis to be paid as reat to the church. A.D. 794 the council of Frank fort, c. xxv., orders "decimas et nonas aive census, donent qui debitores sunt ex beneficiis et rebus ècclesiarum." Can. xxvi. orders ciurches to be restored by those "qui beneficia exinde habent."
In the East there is no trace of the custom of granting benefices. The decree of Leo and AnThemius (A.D. 470, Cod. Just. 1, 2, 14), which Thomassin quotes, has reference, not to granting सay; for the to makiag a lease in the usual Hay; for the usufruct is granted only in exchange for usufruct of equal value (sec. 5 ) Joo. vii. 4 .

B. Administration of Ciutrer Property.

 The adminiatration of church property was the duty and privilege of the bishop, as is de${ }^{341}$; ce. Cl. Rome, vi. c. 7; Gelasius, ep. A.D. Gregory the Great, ii. ${ }^{\text {in }}$. 7 ; Gelasius, ep. $x^{\text {. ; }}$ officials wers bound to give an accubordinate bishop and to act according to his judgme the whether they were oeconomi (Chalcedon judgment, of managed the guest-houses (Greg. Mag. iii. 24.), ${ }^{\text {or }}$ poorhouses (Chalcedon, c. viij.), or parishes. (iid. c. xrii.), or charitable trusts in general (Justin. Nur. cxxiii. 23). Yet the power of thebishop was frr bishop was far from absolute. He was controlled by (1) the rights of the clergy, of the empire, and (3) by the de, (2) hy the laws politan sud of the provincial decreea of his metrocouncils. [Bishop.] concilis. [Bishop.]
l. The rights of the clergy cannot be defined

PROPERTY OF THE CIIURCH 1733

 With exactueas, but they possessed the followingprivileges. A.D. 341 . The council of A c. xaip., decrees that The council of Antioch ister, but the presbyters bishop is to admin. made acquainted with, and clergy are to be church, that it may not be property of the private property of the bishop coned with the same purpose Apostolic Canop. (Cp. to the Canon $x x v$. reserves to the dispensing to the poor, bat if the p the right of deacons disapprove they may summon theters and before the provincial synod. So the the bishop cara, iil. c. 16, A.D. 572 synod. So the Cl. of Brac: c. 32, A.D. 398, declared he Cl. of Carthnge, iv. if made by the bishop without or gift to be void aubacription of the clergy wit the consent and A.D. 470 (Cod. Just. 1, 2, 14) edict of Leo, clergy of Conatantinople as 14), recognizes the alienation of churchople as having a voice in the A.D. 535 (Nov. xlvi. 1, 2) So also Justinian, prohibition of Niv. vii. 1 , , relaxing the strict a church the right of judgiws to the clergy of expedient to alight of judging whether it were the consent of five property; and by Non. vii. 3 required to make palicests and two deacons is emphyteusis. [Alienation] the lease called of the clergy were limited to control, the rights administration being the privilege of the netive In acme cases presbyters aeizege of the bishop. but it was held to be an act of insubordinege, (Greg. Turon. ii. 23). The of insubordination c. vii. viii., A.D. $324-371$ The council of Gangra, ful), anathematizes any (the date is doubtgifts for the church, save the give or receive appointed officer. This the bishop and his probably to heretics who perauaded ace most truat the dispensing of alma persuaded people to than to the orthodox biahop (Binij Annot.) rather
2. The imperial laws limitinii Annot.).
the bishop as to alienation and the power. of found in the article Alienation, and abor will be the heading leases. 3. A council had ovarrule a bishop. Chat atimes the right to are frequent in the chises of maladministration Athanasius was chare history of the church. Tyre; Dioscorus also before the council of before the council also, bishop of Alexandria, before the council of Chalcedon, where lba of Edessa was also tried. See Couvcrand Patrons were not allowed touncil.
the endowments which they to interfere with churches (Cl. Toledo iii. c. they had made to

The increase of wealth, and in ram.] the negligence or dishonesty in some cases required that he should have of the bishop, otficial. The Arabic can have the aid of an Nicaea (c. Iviii. ivab canons of the council of of each city are to chonse that the citizens ecclesiastic to manage chonse some monk or lxxxvi. orders an the hospitals. Canon appointed in each oeconomus, or steward, to be to manage in each church, and with him others, (Cf. manage the estates, farms, fruits, and vessels. Labte, Conc., ii.) Gre other Arabic version ia Lade, Cishonc. ii.) Gregory of Nazianzum, when of the property of his pee, found no account occupancy he kept no his see, and during his Sua). Chrye kept no accounts (Carmen de Vita revenues without waid accused of managing his clergs (Photius, Bibl, Cod. 59). Soon after he time the church of Constantineple per his more than one steward, as we poseased more than one steward, as we find from the letter of the council of Ephesus addressed "presbyteria et oeconomis," though perhape these were essistants to the stewarl, of whom there is mention in the Life of Chrysostom by Palladius (c. 20). [Oeconomes.]

1734 PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH

In the Western church the assistant of the bishop was generally a deacon, or srchdeacon, or subdeacon, sometimes a presbyter, occasionally a layman. Cyprian brings chargea of fraud and embezzlement against the deacon Felicissimus and anuther (Cipp. 49, 55), but similar charges againat Novatos, who was a presbyter. Augustine committed the property of his see to certain of the clergy, from whom he required a strict account every year (Possid. Vita, 24). When on a journey he had to make a payment from the church funds, he wrote to the presbyters (ep. 219), and st his death left the charge of all the property to the presbyter Fidelis, who had previously had care of the fabric of the chureh. Ambrose left the finances of his see of Milan to be sdministered by his brother Satyrus, who was a layman. Prudentius ( $\pi \in \rho l$ oreф.) celebrates the archdeacon, St. Laurence, who had charge of the buildinga and dispensed the alms. St. Martin orders his descon to clothe a poor man (ap. Sulpitium). At Ticino, Epiphsnius, before he was made bishop, managed the property as deacon (Eunodius, Jita Epijh.). l'ope Agspetus transferred to an archdeacon the government of the church of Rogium in Gisul (Conc. Gall. i. 239, a.d. 535 ). The council of Paria V. c. 8 , joins the archdeacon with the bishop in a decree against the unlawful asaumption of monastic lands. In the letters of Gregory the Great we find that it fell chiefly to the archdeacon to have charge of the property, and he would have to make good any loss (i. 10,14 ; ii. 14,15 ; vii. 130 ). He was assisted by a deacon or aubdeacon (i. 70), and in some cases was released from his onerous duties after five years (vii. 130). The Cl. of Braccara [Brags]. Ii. c. 7, A.D. 563, orders the archdeacon to manage the fund for repsirs and account to the bishop. Deacons managed the Sicilian estates of the church of Ravenna (Greg. M. ix. 4), and so such duties formed their main employment, diaconis came to express the duties of a ateward. The Cl . of Seville 11. c. 9, A.D. 619 , forbide the appointment of a layman to the office of oeconomus as contrary to canon xxvi. of Cl . Chalcedon, and regards every bishop guilty of contempt and punishable who shall administer without an oeconomus. The fourth council of Toledo, canon xlviii. A.D. 6:33, confirms this. Gregory (Epp. vii. 6) had already forbidden the appointment of a layman. An oeconomus is ordered by Gregory to manage the funds of the see of Dalmatia, which were under the care of the subdeacon during a racancy (Epp. ii. 22). This othicer was also sent by him to look after the guest-houses of Sardinia (ii. 59).

If a bishop neglected his duties, the metropolitan had the right of compelling him (Justin. Nov. cxixi, c. 11). In later times the popes assumed a general aupervision, and often appointed a deputy. Simplicius transfers to Onagrius, a presbyter of the church of Ausona, the administration of the fund for the poor and for repairs (epp. 3). Gregory ( $e_{l}$, ix. 28) orders the bishop of Ravenna to appoint a deputy, and senis tho presbyter Candidus to see after the estates of the Roman eee in Gaul (v. $5 ; \mathbf{x} .55$ ).

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH

The letters of Gregory the Grest shew how large an amount of work fell upon an activa administrator. The church of Rome possessed eatates in Sicily, Sardinia and Corsica, in A pulia Campania liguris, in Dalmatia, illyricuin, Gaul, Africa, and even in the East. There are letters sildressed to the administrators of papal estates in all these territories, and in many cities, Gregory prescribes the most minute regulations for these lanla, shields the peasant from the exactions of the farmer or papal oflicer, fixes the amount of small vexatious payments, destreys false weights and measures, and, lest sbuses should be revived, provides legal forms of security (see espy, i, 42). He lowered the charge for marriage of slaves, secured succossion to the relatives of the deceased, and repressed the unscrupulous zeal of the clergy. Besides descons and subdeacons, he appointed eminent bishops as his vicars (Milman, Latin Christianity).

C. The Distribution of Funds.

1. This was the duty of the bishop. Originally all revenues, from whatever source through. out the diocese, were paid into his hands. Afterwards regervations were made to persom and places. The Apostolic Canons and Constitutions may be taken to represent the customs of the third and fourth centuries. Canon axxvii. (or Ixxix.) recognizes the bishop as the distributor of all goods of the church, and warna him not to appropriste them to himself or his parenta, unless they are poor. Canon yl. (or xli.) commits all to the care of the bishop, who is to dispense to the poor through the presbyters and deacons. The Apostolic Constitutions (ii. 28) order that at the agape a partion is to be set spart for the bishop as first-fruits, even though he may not be present. A descon is to have twice as much as a deaconess; s priest who has laboured assiluously is to hare a double portion, a reader or singer, or door keeper, has one share. The priests are to hare the first-fruits of new bread, of wine from the cask, of oil, honey, spples, grapes, and other frnit; first-fruits of money or clothing wert for the orphan and wilow. Every tithe was to be given to the orphan and widow, the poor and the proselyte (vii. 30). It is ordsined (viii, 30) that all first-fruits are to support the bishop, priesta, and descons ; the tithes sre to maintain the other clerics, virgins, widows, and poor. In Book viii. c. 31, it is ordered that what remains over after the euchariat is to be divided by the deacons among the clergy: to the bishop four parta, to a priest three, to a descon two, to 1 subdeacon, reader, singer, or desconess, one parh In Book ii. c. 25 , tithes and first-fruits are to be taken by the bishop and distributed to orpham and widows, the aflicted and diatressed.

Cyprian (Epist. vii. ed. Goldhorn) leaves the care of the widows and poor to the presbyter, but if any needy foreigners arrive they are to be anpplied from his special share. In his time division was regulated by dignity. Cyprian write (Epist. xxxix.) that for certain confer sors who were only readere he has designed the honour of the priesthood, that they at to bave an equal share with the presbites (sportulis idad in equal share bably these mo which we rea paid into the pleased; cf. C was made a bis was promised Hist, v. 28). T orders the bishe may take what self and the br clergy made no common (Scrm obliged to give to Baedn, this w the arrival of 27). Ambrose lorn the templ suggests upon st with his clergy
In all this division which nized custom of this custoin does sny time. In th trsces of it for half: "non enim ecclesine tacultat Contempl. ii. 9). proclained that $t$ the patrimony of most part claimed poor; those who to the cburch; or upon it and had n
2. But the negl requirell some sett 475. Simplicius tius and Severu cburch of Osnne, fraud. Of the re oblation of the fait to the suspended for the fabric of $t$ strangers, the last Golasius (Eipist. Ix of Lucania, decre the blshop, the cler epistles of Gregory fold division was $t$ law. He hids Fellx the customary pay the bishop of Panor fourth part (ii, 51) cuse because, althon had tocreased, he all part of the uninc ${ }^{6}$ quartae secunduir dispensentur" (iii. I bishop of Agrigentu to receive, and gives the church was Augustine had mad asked how he should replies (xii. 31) the apesiolie see to ord portions, one for the fir hospitality and n fur the poor, for $r$ Aggustine and hls o had better live is

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH

(sportalis ilsdem) of the food distributed, and an equal share in the monthly divisions. Probably these monthly divisions were of the monsy which we read in Tertullian (Apol. 39) was paid into the cheat monthly, or when any pleased; ef. Cypr. ep. xxxiv. When Natalius was made a bishop of the sect of Theodotus, he was promised 150 denarii per month (Euseb. Hist, v. 28). The Cl. of Antioch, A.D. 341, c. xxv. orders the blishop to dispense to the poor, but he may take what is required of necessity for himself snd the brethren. St. Augustine and his clergy made no division, but had all things in commen (Scrmo 50), but he was afterwards obliged to give this up (Sermo 46). According to Baeda, this was the custom in Britain until the arrival of Augustine (Hist. Gent. Anyl. iv. 27). Ambrose says the bishop should decently alorn the temple of God, bestow what humanity suggests upoa strangers, be neither too niggardly with his clergy nor too indulgent ( Off. ii. 21).
In all this we see no trice of the fourfold division which afterwards became the rocognized custom of the West. In the Einstern church this custoin does not seem to have obtained at say time. In the Western church there are no traces of it for the first four centurles and a haif: "non eaim propriae sunt sed mmmunes ecclesiae tacultates" (Julisnus Pumedius de Vita Contempl. ii. 9). In early times it was openly proclained that the property of the church was the pstrimeny of the poor. The elergy for the most part claimed a maintenance as amongst the poor; those who had property generally gave it to the church; or if they retained it, they lived apen it and had no stipend (ibid. c. li. 12).
2. But the neglect or the svarice of the bishop required some settled plan of distribution. A.D. 475. Simplicius (Epist. iii.) writes to Florentius and Severus to take charge of the cburch of Osane, as its bishop was guilty of froud. Of the revenues of the church and the oblation of the faithtul, one-fourth is to be given to the suspeuded bishop, two parts are to be for the fabric of the cliurch and the poor and strangers, the last part to the elergy. A.D. 494. Gelasius (E'pist. ix. 27), writing to the bishops of Lucania, decrees the focrfold division to the bishop, the elergy, the poor, the fabric. The epistles of Gregory the Great shew that the fourfold divlsion was then thoroughly recogaized us law. He hids Felix of' Messana give to his clergy the customsry payments (lib. i. ep. 64): order's the bishop of Panormus to allow his clergy their fourth part (ii. 51); blames the bishop of Syracuse because, although the revenues of his church had increased, he allotted to repnirs only a fourth part of the unincreased revenue, and adds : quartae secundun distributionem canonicam dispensentur" (iii. 11); he takes away from the biahop of Agrigentum the fourth which he ought to receive, end gives it to the visitor to whom the church was entrusted (iv. 12). When Augustine had made couverts in England, he asked how be should divide the funds. Gregory replies (xii. 31) that it is the custom of the apposiolie see to order bishops to make four partions, one for the bishop and his householl tor hospitajity aud majuievance, for the clergy, for the poor, for repairing churches; but as Angustlne and his company were monks, they had better live in common. The fourth part, which was assigned to the clergy, was not divided equally, but necording to the order and the merits of each, of which the bishop was juige. Simpliclus (1. c.) says, "clericls pro aingulorum meritis dividatur." Gregory (ii. 5) orders a sick man to receive his usual pay, "secundum loci elus ordinem," and Gaudentius of Nols Is to distribute the fourth part to the clergy of Capua, "iuxta antiquam taousuetudinem secuadum persobarum qualltatem " (iv. 26). So also the bishop of Panormus is to give to the clergy of his church a full fourth part, "secundum meritum vel officium, sive laborem suum ut ipss unicuique daudum prospexeris" (xi. 51). The chureh of Catana supplies more minute details of division (vii. 8). The elergy complaiued to Gregory of their bishop's metnol. Cyprisa, a deacon who was despatched by Gregory, decided that of the clergy's fourth a third part shouid go to the presbyters and deacons, the remuining two thirds to the interior clergy. The former mppealed to the pope, asserting that it had always been the custom to give two-thirds to the priests and deacons, and only one-third to the inferior clergy. Gregory left the division to the judgment of the bishop, to divide accordiuy to merit: "Ut tibl visum fuerit diserete dividere; ita saze ut unicuique slcut meritum laboris exegerit, libera tibj sit juxta quod provideris largieuli licentia." In an epistle of Gregory (ix. 29) to Paschasius, bishop of Naples, we have un instance of the proportion it was thought fit to preserve in distributing to the several orders a sum of whici the church had been defrauded: to the clerics of the church, a hundred solidi; to ope huadred and twenty-six needy persous on the church books (praciacentibus quos centum viginti sex ews cogoovimus) half a solidus each; to the priests and deacons and toreign clerics tifty solidi; to poor men ashamed to beg, one hundred and lifty solidi; to public beggars, thirty-six solidj. In the abseace of the bishop of Ariminum Gregory appointed a visitor and ordered him to set apart the two fourths for the clergy and the poor; the remainder was to be divided into three parts: for the fibric, the titular bishop, the visitor (iv. 42). Gregory used to make distribution four times a year, as is stated by Johannes Diaconus.

Such was the custom of the church of Rome. It was extended to Bavaria and uitimateiy to the German church by a capitulary of Gregury 11 . tributed "pro fourth for the cletgy is to be distributed "pro suorum officiorum sedulitate."
In the Gallican charch, the council of Agde, c. 36, A.D. 506, orders that all clerics who faithfully serve the church are to receive the stipeads due to their labours: "secuudum servitio sui meritum vel ordinationem canonum." Csoon il. enacts that the negligent or contumacious should be reduced to "foreign communion," that is, the condition of clerics of another church who were without cumnigndatory letters frem their bishop. In A.D. 511 the first council of Orlearer c. v., enacted that the produce of the este' bich the king had give, to the church show. used for repairs of wurches, maintenance of clergy and poor, or the redemption of captives. Canon xir. reuews the ancient statutes, and orders that of the oblations offered upon the altar the bishop is to claim halt, the clergy are to recelve the other half to be divided according to their dagrees; the farma are to remain under the bishop's power. Canon $x v$, ordera that lands, vineyarls, slavea, and cattle given to the parishes are to be in the bishop'a power. Of the offerings upon the altar only one third in to be paid to the bishop. But as some of the parishes were very poor the ceuncil of Carpentras, A.D. 527, ordered the gifte to the parishes to go to the clergy and to reprairs of tho church, if the hishop's see was aderjuately rich; if not, the parishes are to keep only so uncis as is absolutaly needed for the clergy and repairs ; the surplus to go to the bishop. A.D. $5: 38$. The third council of Orleans, c. v., doereed that oblations made in city churehes were to be in the power of the bishop, who might set apart what he thought fit for repairs. The jarishes and country churches are to keep their own customs. Canon xi. withholds the stipends of the contumaclous; so does the ceuncil of Narbonne, c. x. A.D. 589 , aad also frem priests or deacons who could not read (c. xi.). Gregory of Tours (Spioil. tom. v.p. 107) allows some who were suspended to reccive their shere (spertulam).

1736 PROPFRTY OF TIIE CHUROII

In Spain the division was Into three parts, the daty of repairing the churches being thrown upon the bishop. A.D. 5l6. The council of Jurraco, c. viii., complains of the state of tite churches, and orders the bishop to go round annuaily and see that they are repaired, nccording to old custom; for by an ancieat tradition the bishop reccives a third of all. A.D. 563. The council of Braccara, c. vii., orders three equai portions to be made: for the bishop, the clergy, and for repairs and lights, of which last fund the arch-presbyter or archdeacon who administers it is to account to the bishop. By canon $x x i$. the oblations of the faithful and gifts in memory of the dead are to be divided once or twice a year among all the clergy equally. $A$, the bishops unjustly seized the revenues of the smaller ehurehes in their dioceses, the fourth cenncii of Toledo, c. xxxiii. A.D. 633, ordered them to take no more than a third, and to go round annually and repair the churches (c. xxxvi.). A.D. 655. The ninth council of 'foledo, c. vi., allows the bishop to hestow his thild of the oblations on any church he pleases. A.D, 66世I. The council of Emerita, c. xiv. divities the money offered in divine service into three parts: one for the bishop, one for the priests nad deacons, who are to apportion their share necording to order and dignity, end one share to the subdeacens and clerics. Canon yvi. forinits the bishop to take a third of the oblations from a parish, and threws the duty of repaiting their church on the priests. A.D. 693. The sixtcenth council of Toiedo, canon $v$. , decress that as the ancient canons allowed the bishop a third, he may exact it if he thinks he ought, but must then take the duty of repairing the churches; if he waive his claim, the worshippers must keep their church in repair under the supervision of the bishop; but when all the churches are in good repeir the bishop is to have his third. Many of these canons regard the praperty of a diocese as ne longer a fund contrelled by onc head, but as more or less separated and attached to particulur places. At what time this practice begin cannot be exactly fixed. Theodorus

PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH
Lector (1. p. 553) says that about A.D. 460 Mave clon, oenalomus of Constantinople, was the first to arder the elergy of ench church to recelve the olerings of their church. Uuder Justiuing fonuders of charches gave endowments (Nov. |vil. 2 ; cxxiii. 18), which womid naturaliy be reserved to their churches, though the Novela do not state this; on the other hand, the law prohibitiog the clergy or any manager of a charitable house to allenate, speaks onily of ecalesia or sacra domes.
3. Churches.-It was found desirable to regulate church building by law. The council of Chatcedon, c. iv., forbids the erection of a domans oratoria [OHATORIUA] without ounsent of the bishop. Juse tinimu decreed ( Xov. Ixvil. 2, A.D. 538), that any one who denired to build a church must get leave from the bishop, and must also give first an endownent for lights, repairs, and the support of the elergy ; it he canuot ufford so much, hs may restore an old church. The bishop is to conseerate the ground and fix a cross there, and whea the buildiag is oace begun the eivil judge is to enforce its completion by the donor or his heirs (Nov. cxxxl. 7, ©A, D. 5+1). If fubus are bequeathed for bnilding a church, the bishop and civil judge are to see it completed within three years (Cod. Just. 1, 3, 46, A.D. 530), which was afterwards extended to five years (lion. exai. 10). Consecration is forbidelen before endowment by $0 . v$. of the third council of Braccura a.d. 572. See Churdies, Maintenance of, p. 388.
4. The Poor.-In the enrliest account of church praperty (Acts 31.45 ) we real "that distributiou was made to every man aecording as he had need." The first council of the church ordered that the poor should be remembered (Gai. ii. 10). Duriog the first eight ceaturies of the church, nlmsgiving was carried to a peraicious excess. The enriiest notices of chureh seyvice (Jnstin M. Apol. 2 ; Tertull. Apol. 39) tell us that the coilections ware made for the orphans, widows, the sick and shipwrecked, all who suffered for the faith in mines, in prison, or in exile. Also as in apostolic times the weathier churehes made grants to the poorer ; the church of Rome was especially noted for its liberality (Dionysius, Bp. Cor. Epist.).

First in the ranks of the poor were found the clergy. Some clergy, it is true, were notoriously weaithy; but a nutural renction against such unbecoming luxury, sided by the influence of the monks, led many to abandon ali their property to relatives, or bestow it upon the church. Augustine was especially anxious to promote community of goods among the ciergy. He refused to accept for the church a legacy fromis presbyter who had been apparentiy supported from the common fuad (wermo 49). He declared he would ordain none bat those who would profess peverty, and would deprive sil who broke this rule. But he was uaable to carry this out, and made peverty epticanal (Sermo 46). Many of the most eminent fathers of the church gave up all their property upon being ordained, as Cyprian and Ambrose, Gregory of Nazianzam and Basil (Thomassin, iii. 3, 3). There are many reforences in the fathers and a few in the couscils to the duty of the church to support the poor. [POOR, Care of.]
5. Pensions. - The council of Chalcedon, A.D. 451, assigned pensions to four persons: to Domnus, ex-1 mintenance bishoprio of allowanes of : disippujuted Has to ise kept permit (Act x bishops of Atri who returned them all wer Gregory turnis the chureh of (Labbe, Conc Exclesiae divit ficistios; Corp sunиs ; Sarpi a PROPILECY from any part divine serrice.

(1) Inoidental was reall, it is b brition of the period. Thus J ing that service apustles and the read as time pe Constitations, Gre minie to speak of prophets, and of t (riii. 5 ; sim, mor St. Chrysostom, prophets and the a iii. de David et s refers to first les real in it, as from lectio Issiane "), M praphetica "), and audivimus "). In Testament was not was sometimes, al elsewhere he says, Apostoli " (Serm. Frence, 554, Childe pression of idolatro priest giving out fro "the gospel, the p. (Baiuz, Capit. Reg. Paris, his contempor Gallican, or more coa says, "The propheti reproving evil thing that we may know who has thundered the apostie, and shon the gospel " (Epist. col, 90). Gregory of "three bociss " read a phecy, the apostle, and iv. 16). Elsewhere $h$ which "the prophetic the reader was already to read the lesson o Jiruc. S. Mart. i. 5). East, probably about (ie, stter the Psalms) sored volumes by the Ead. Hier. iii. 2). Th to Jharimus, his comn Neq Testament (Schol canon of the 6th centur
t A.D. 460 Marle, was the illyst $h$ to recelve the nider Justininn nents ( Nov, Wyli. ully be reserved rela do aot atate prohibitlag the ituble house to - saora dinnus. able to regulate uacil of Chalcedonıus erateris he bishop. Jus. 538), that aay urch inust get mlso give tirst and the support d so much, he e blshop is to ross there, and the elvil judge - donur or his If funus are the bishop and within three i0), whith was rs ( Woon, exxi. ere endowment of Braceala, ntionance of, st aecount of ve renl "that in according as of the ehurch 3 remembered ht ceaturies of ad to a peraiof church serpol. 39) tell us $r$ the orphans, , all who sufprison, or in the wealthiet r; the church its liberality ere found the re aotoriously agalast such induence of all their proin the church. s to promote elergy. He legacy from s tly supported 49). H8 deit thoss who eprive all who sble to carry 1 (Sermo 46). of ths ehureh ing ordained, of Nazianzum ere sre msny 1 the coonacils nt the poor.
islcedon, A.D. persans: to

PROPHECY

Domnus, ex-blshop of Antloch, was grnnted

Mashoprio of (Aet x.) ; two rival clamants to the bishopio of tiphesus were to have an numal Nlowace of 200 yold sulidi (Act xil.) ; nnuther dispppuiutel candijate for the oflice of bishop Wes to be kept as the funds of the church might permit (Act xiv.). Agapetus ( $E \cdot p, 2$ ) onders the blahops of Atrica to support the heretienl clergy whe returned to the thisth, although furbidding Gregory iurnish many instances of petters of the church of Rome. [PFinsions.] pensions in (Labbe, Concilia; Thomassin.
Ecclesiae diviplina cirord Beneficius et Nora ficiriws; Corpus Juris Civilis ; Cutex et lhenco

PROPHECY, LITURGICAL (1). A lessen

 from sny part of the Old Testament real indivine serrice. (1) Incilintital Notices.-The OHT Testament was read, it is belicevel, universally at the celebration of the eucharist in the first liturgie ing that service: "Theryr, A.D. 140, deseribapostles and the writings of thentaries of the spostles and the writings of the prophete are real as time pernits" Constitutions, Greek nnd (Apol. 1. 67). In the male to speak of "the rending of the law are prophets, nud of their epistles, and of the gospel (riii. $5 ;$ sim. more fully, ii. 57 ). According to St. Chrysostom, 398, Christians "henrd the prophets and the apostles " in that service (Hom. iii. de David et Saul, 2). St. Augustine, 396, real in it, as frem Isainh (Some the Old Testament lectio Isnine"), Mienh ( 48 § prophetica"), Merah (48, § 2, "Lectio prima audivimus"). In his church (82, & 8, " l'rimitus Testsment was not alwaysch, hewever, the Ohd was sometimes, already, net frst, or perhaps elsewhere he says, "Primam net read at nll; for Apostoli" (Serm. 176; see also $S$. 165 ) In France, 554, Childebert, In a decree for the In pression of ldolntrous practices, spenks of the priest giving out from the altar the teachings of "the gospel, the prophets, and the apostles " (Baluz, Capit. Reg. Pranc. i. 7). Germanue of Paris, his contemporary, in his description of the says, " The propherrectly the Frankish liturgy, says, "The prophetie lesson keeps its own place, that we may know Him declaring the future, who has thundered in the to be the same God the apostle, and shone forth propheey, taught in the gospel " (Epist. col. 90). Gregory of Tours 573 , Pat rol. Lat. 72, "three bocks" read at Tours, 573, speaks of the phecy, the apostle, and thasses, "viz. of the proiv. (6). Elsewhere he gospels" (llist. Franc. which "the prophetic mentions an occasion on the reader wss nlready lesson having been read, to read the lesson of the blesefore the altar Jiruc, S. Afart. i. 5). Pseudo-Dionysius in ('ee East, probsbly about 520 , tells us that in the (ie, sfter the Pssims) follows the us that "then surred volumes by the ministers in course " the Ewl. Hier, iii. 2). These volumes are arse " (De to Msximus, his comneatatur, 645 , the old and New Testsment (Schol. in loc.). An Armenian canon of the 6 th century : "Let. them duly celebrate the litargy, aiaging psalms, prophecies, eplstles, and gospels, in their order "(Scrint. let Luv: Collect, Mai, x. 278).

PROPIECY

The Lidelesiustiverl liouks. - The liturgy of St. Jamea : "Then (after the prayer of the and of the sacred orncles of the Old Testannent Son of the prophete, and the incarnation of the ( hit, of sit, lils sutierings, &c., are set tireth" evident that when this rubric Trope, 41). It in prophecias were no: short extracts comprised the the lay, but were left to the disuppuinted fur oflicinut. We should naturally fufetion of the the New Testnment was not pally infer alsor that the chnreh at Jeruasamot yet in the humia of "estament is " read," the snbjer while the oth are "set forth." The Oll Testan from the Greek litut lesson has long divnpienred and St. Chryoustom ; ing of St. Mark, St. linsil, traces of it in the nor are there now any from them in the Eastern liturgies derived and Syrinns, wheitery the Abyssininns, Cipts, The Nentorian" wheiher Melchites or Jncolites, Karyinn, or "realine" It under the name of two lessons from the oul Tometimes they have rally the eeconl befure thestament; but genethe Acts of the dpost the epistle is taken from ii. 19, 217; Reunulyt, (Bniger's Aestoriuns, 599, "nd l.ectiones"). Titury. (Irient. ii. 589, served in the Armenian The prophecy is prepreceded by a psalum (Le Brun, lisere it still Neale, Introd. Hist. Nust. Chun, Dissert. x. 14; we may mention, is also left in the A ps.lm, Communis, but it is there now the Syrinn Ordo epistle (Renaudot, ii. 7). now follow.d by the In the West. the Gotl vides less ns from tothien-Spnnish Missnl precelebration (Missule Mo:ar Testament for every They are callod lectiones. Leslie, 1, 7,10 , &e.). Esnye prophete" (12); "Thus: "Lectio Lithri astici Salnmonis " (29); "Lectio Lihri Ecelesitionary found at Luxeuil, which is assigne lecthe 7th century, gives onil, which is assigned to under similar headings for most, prophecies days (Litury. Gall. (10. 173 ) ) not for all, serve some left in the (100-173)). We also obthe same date ( $D / u s$, Besancion sheramentary of though that rite is in Ial. I. 278, 283, 289, se.), to the practice of several respects conformed "Lectio Proph of Rome. In the Ambrosinn, a except the rophetica is reail in every mass, $l$ issert. iii. art. 2). It Christmas day (l.e Brua, Borromeo, after a perid was revisel by Charles lasted in eonie of pariod of neglect; but had the 14th century, ehurches of Lombnrdy till then "content with a sinenter number being gospel] after the custem of lesson "before the Tungr. de Canunum custem of Rome" (Radulph. single lesson wns, we furth, prep. 23). This that period sometimes from ther lea, taken at from the other, Testam the one, sometimes Roman lentionary, Thertament (ibid.). The old that "custom of Rume "" Comitis, testifies to one lesson before thome;" for there also the from either book gospel is tnkea indifferently ed. Vallars. ; Cap, (inter opp. Hieronym. x. 523, SS. PP. Pamel. ii. 1, &e.). We tate Rituale an indication inat 1 , &e.). We take this as period, the churat, during the first liturgic other churehws in of Rome agreed with all ment at every celebration. from the Old Testarita is atill found in the subatitulicin of leasons from that book for the epistles on the week-daya of Lant, and in the use of such lessons, even with epistles, on the ember daya. Another witdess to the primitive sule at Rome is the third ambo for the prophecy still to be aeen in tha church of San Clemente in that city. It atanda with that for the epistle on the right of the altar; while that for the gospel, which is higher and more ornate, it on the left (Martene do Ant. Eioul. Rit. I. Iv. Iv. 3).

Liter Test/miny.-From Rupert of Deuta, 1111 ( $d_{d}$ Off. Div. iii. 15), we learn that "two lessona,' i, e. a prophecy and an opiatle, were real at mass "tams die quam nocte" at Christmas. Thurandus, whose experience lay in France, A.D. 128 ;, says that some churches read "prophecies" hefore the eppiatiea on christman eve ani Chriatmas day (Rationile, vi. 12, n. 3 ; 13, n. 20). Such lessone are found in many of the niedineval missale of France (Mart. do Ant. Ecol. Rit. (v. xii. 21).

Pustire of the Hearers. - Aceording to the Aprstulical Constitutions (ii. 37) the people aat while the Old Testament, the Acta, and Epistlus were read, rising tor the gospel. in the Weat. the eariest custom was to stand during all; for we tind Caesarius, A.D. 502, giving permission to the wapen to sit when the "Jessons," $i$ i. the prophecy and epistle, were longer than usual (Serm. 95, § 1). But from the language of Amalarius, who wrote about 827, we gather that the practice had become obsoiete long before his time: "Quamdiu haeo duo celebrantur, id eat, lectio et prophetia, solemus sedere, inore antiquoram " (do Eccl. Off. 3ii. 11).

The Old Testament lessons in the daily service of the Mozarabes are also called "prophetine" (Breviarium Gothicum, Lorenzana, 7, 9 , 12, 17, 19, &0.).

For notices of this subject see Sala's note (4) on Bona 'Rer. Litury. ii. 6, § 2 ; Mabillon de 1 turyia Gallic. I. 5, §4; Martene de Ant. Ercl. Rit. i. iv. 4, § 1 ; Neale, Hist. of the Nastern Church, Gen. introd. p. 369 ; Nutitia Eucharistica, 238-243, ed. 2.
(2) The hymn of Zacharias, "Benedictue Dominus," \&c. (St. Luke i. 68-79), was always sung, except in Lent. before the eucharistic lessons in the old Gallican liturgy suppressed by Pepin and Charlemagne in the 8th century; and as so used, was conventionaily known as "the prophecy." It connexion with the lessone is thus explained by Germanus of 1’aris, 555: "Canticum autem Zachariae pontifot, ? n hunorem sancti Johannis Baptistae can..LE: pro wiod primordium oalutio in s.otis'ni uspramenta (sio) conaistit $\therefore$ a $: 1$ mediue est, prophetarnm novissimus - evsegelistarum priftin" (Epist. l. or Expos. inc coprophetia).
"hy prophecy was on some daya, in moat of the Gnllican liturgies, followed by un "Gratio" or "Collectio post Prophetiam." In the Frankish Missal this seems to have been esid in every ordinary mase (Lit. Gall. 322-325). In the Besunçon sacramentary collects "post proPhetian" are provided for Advent (Mhas Ital. i. 285, 287 ), St. John the Baptist's day (340), and most Sundays (365, 370, 373). The GothicoGallican gives two only, one for Christmas day, and the uther for the first Easte rmass (Lit. Gall.

100,251 ). There is but one left lis the Relchenas fragment (Forlies and Neale, Gullieun Liturries, 8). A aeconl, the title of which, "pout l'roo retin" (sic) remaing, has been supplanted ty an Apoloyins sacerdustis (28). There are none in the Missile a llicanum lietus of the oollectiona.
The Frankiah Miasal has aubstituted Rorran collects which have no raference to "the proo phecy" for ita original prayers "post proo phetiam." All the other exampies extant shew that these were properly founded on the panticle itnolf. Some of them preserve much of its lato guage: e.g. "Bleased holy God of Ismel, risit Thy people, bleas Thy people, and deliver it from all its aina $;$ and grant, 0 Lord of Hoata, that we may be delivered out of the hands of our enemiea, and may attain to aerve Thee alons with righteouaness and holineas all our daya; and direct our feet la the way of peace, that we may be able to fulfil Thy will in all things" (Sucr. Gill. (Veaont) in Míus. Ital. i. 37\%).
[W. E. S.]
 memorials erected in honour of a prophet, or is his name, were in ancient times called $P$ 'ropheten. In the council of Constantinople noder Meanss (Act. Hil. A.d. 539, Labbe's Concil. v. 5, 6i) mention was made of the Propheteun of issiah, and Theolore the Reader (lib. 1i. p. 568) apeaks of the remains of the prophet Samuel being deposited in a separate ahrine of his own (Martigny, Dict. des Antif. ohret. a. v.)
[E. C. II.]
PROSA. In singing the Alloluin [Allelcia] a custom grew up of prolonglag the last sylisble upou a series of notes. This was cailed the jubilatio, and sometimes sequentia. A further development followed, of setting words to these, not in strict metre, but in rhythrsical prose, hence called Proses: then metrical hymns (Seyumence) were introduced. Notker, abloot of St. Ginl in the 9th century, is commonly anid to have beea the first write: of thom. The Syrinn liturgies have a hyms callad Sedra, which is atrictly a prose.
[C. E. i..]
 tioch with Veroniva rud Lomanus; commemorated Ap. 20. (Wright, Syr. Mart.) [C. H.]

PROSMANARIUS. The word xpoguavd pioy seems to designate the verger or watchnsa whose office it was to trim and extinguish the church-iamps, and to remain permanentif in the building to guard it from poltution or robbery.
 are mentioned by Theodorus Hermopolites as the persona who were bound not to leave the church. It seems- to be equiralent to the Latin Mas. sionarius (Suicer, Thesuurus, s. v.). Compirs paramonarius.
[C.]
PROSPHONESIS, the act or office of calliag on the congregation to pray, and suggesting the eeveral subjects of their prayer.

The council of Laodicea, ebout 365. directs that in the liturgy, after the dismissal of the catechumens and penitente, "the three prayen of the faithful be said as follows: one, ri2. the first, in silence; but the sceond and third by the method of prosphonesis" ( $\delta \mathrm{id}$ кpooquartorem ann. 19).
Aputtolical C meaning of ora to be "b who reapond.
Kıрйтии paviiv. Thue departure of proclulan (knp perance; ;" an tated to the non-communic certain occast descon" $\kappa \eta \rho u ́ \xi$ By a canon of who had aacri tions of that p proclamationa dings of pray кприуната dкк $^{\prime}$ Ben.), where I suggeated; as lands, of thoee Examples of vere in actual Jumea, after the us all say, Lord, the God of our For the peace fi our soula, let us of the whole wor (Lit, IIieros. Tro tory and creed, yynajpte," or col and conditione of reech the Lord it marcy. The deo fruit and perform of God, for then widowe and orph and for those wh then in the praye them that are in nad afficted, by ase or land, for let us heseeeh,"\&c In which, after a bids the pecple pr and for those whe and the fear of Chor: : Lord, have archbishop N., fo for the minisery ( ciergy and this pe The choir : Lord, h our most religious (Ewholo, Gosr, 64 amilar ecteno is Armenisn liturgy Chureh, 420), in sev the choir responde; bilden by the wh cons chanting (398 church are the two liturgy alternately lowing Sundays in the prices bidden oy ing. Imploring th pordon, from our miad, we pray The For Thy holy catholi out the world, we

PROSPIIONESIS

0an. 19). By reference to the liturgy in the Apuatolical Cunstitutions (vill. 6), we learn the meaning of this to be, that those prayara are to be "bldden," or dictated to the people, who respond.

Kypititeiv in used in the same aense as mpoge paviiv. Thus the Conatitutions: "After this [the departure of the compatentes], let the deacon procluin (кचpurtítw), Pray ye that are under petinnce $f^{\prime \prime}$ and petition for them are then dictatod to the faithful, as before, for the other non-communlcating clasaes (viil. 8). So on a cartain occanion, St. Athanasiu, "ordered the deacon" knpuśsar sủxhy (Socr. Hist. Bocl. 1. 13). By a canon of conncil of Ancyra, 315, deacona Whe had sacrificed to ldola daring the peraecutivas of that period were no longer to " laake the prociamationa" (кпpúareiv, can. 2). Such bildinge of prayer are called by St. Basii, 373, Ben.), where he mentions some of the subjecta auggestad; as the welfare of brethren in forelga lade, of theas in military service, \&c.
Examples of proajihonesia from liturgies that Ware in actual uae will be interesting. In St. James, after the sermon, "the descon says, Let un all vay, Lord, have maroy. O Lord Almighty, the God of our fathera, we beaeech Thee, hear us, For the pesce from shove, and the alvation of our toula, let us beseech the Lord. For the peace of the whole world, lat ua beseech the Lord," &c (Lit. Ifieros. Trollope, 42). Agsin, after the offertory snd creed, "the deacon makes the universal uynapte," or collection of petitions for all zorta end conditiona of men. "The deacon: Let ua beneech the Lord in peace. The people: Lord, have mercy. Tho deacon : . . For them that bear fruit and perform good work in the holy churchee of Goi, for them that remember the poor, the widows sud orphana, strangera and them in naed, and for thoae who hava deaired ua to remember them in the prayere, lat ua beseech the Lord. For them that are in age and Infirnilty, for the eick and afllicted,. . . let ua beseech, &c. For travallers by sea or Isnd, for Christians in foreign lsuds, .. let un beseech,"&c. (55). Cumpara St. Chryanatom, in which, after a similar beginning, the deacon bids the pecple pray thus: "For thia holy house, and for thoas who enter it with faith, devotion and the fesr of Cod, let us beseech tha Lord. Chow: Lord, hsva mercy. The deacon: For our archbisiop N., for the honourable presbytery, for the miniatry (deacons) in Christ, fur all the clergy and this peopie, let us beseech the Lord. The choir: Lord, have mercy. The deucon: For our most religious God-protected emperors," &c. (biwhol, Gosr, 64 ; similarly, 70, 71, 74, 80). A nimilar ectene is bidien by the deacon in the Armenisn liturgy (Neale'a Introd. Hist. Eust. Church, 420), in aeveral clauses, to each of which the choir responds; as it does to those of another bidden by the whola body of priests and deacons chsnting (398). Inatances in the Lstin church are the two litaniea used in the Milanese liturgy alternately on the second and three foilowing Sundays in Lent: "The ingressa ended, the prices bidden by the deaorn, the choir responding. Imploring the gifta of divine peace and pardon, from our whole heart and oux whole mind, we pray Thee. $R$.: Lord, have mercy. For Thy holy catholio church, here and throughout the world, we pray Thee, R.: Lord," Sic.

PROTHESIS
1739
(Pamal. Rituale SN. PP, 1. 328). In the second firm, the deacon bida thus: "Let us ali say. R.: Kyrie eleyson. The dewcon: Alwighty Gud of our fathera. R.t Kyrie, &o, The dercon Look down, O God, from heaveu, and from Thy holy seat. R.! Kyrie, &o. The deacon: Yor Thy holy catholie churoh," &c. (331).

It will be observed that, in the foregolag examplea, the proaphonesis in, except in one caep, asaignad to the deacon alone. It was at tiret hia olilice in every church, and the fact la recognized by many early writera. E.g.St. Chryaoatom: "Ye ail in common hear the voice of the deacon commanding and onylng, Let us pray for the bishop," \&c. (do Prophet. Obscur. ii. 5). In another homily (il. in 2 Cor. 85), this fivther, commenting clausa by clause on the prayer for the catechumena, mentiona it as bidden by tha deacon. (See Socrates, a. 8.) It was owling to thie that the eirenica of the Greek liturgy were also esiled dicconica. Latin witnease are 8 b. Augustiae in Africa: "communia oratho voc: diaconi indicitur" (ELp. 55 ad Januar. 18, § 34) Caesarius (502) and Germanus (355) in France: "O5, 81) " Dranto diacono indlcitur " (C'aes. Serm. $85, \S 1$ ), "Precee vero paallere levitas pro popuio (Qerigne hibria Moysacis ducit exordium" (Qerm. Epist. i. "De Prece," Migne, Ixsid. 92); and Iaidore in Spain, 810: "Ad ipaum quoque [sc. diaconum'] pertinet ollicium procum " (Eyist. ad Leudefr. 8).
The proaphoneais of the deacon la loat in most of those Oriental liturgies in which the petitions of the diaconica are now gathered or expanded aeverally into long prayere and asaigned to the priest; as in the Coptio St. Basil (Renaulut, Liturg. Orient. i. 5, 7; but ace a trace in ine previous "Deacon: Pray ye for the Holy Gospel," p. 7), in St. Mark (ibid. 138, 150-153); in the Ethiopic (505-507) ; in the Syrian anaphorae of Cfement of Rome (ibid. ij. 192), of Severus of Antioch (325), St. Jamea of Edeaaa (375), St. Basil (555), &c.; and in the Neatorian of Theodore (ibid. 819) and Neatoriua (830). It is preaerved in the Syrian Ordo Communis, the firat part common to all the liturgiee (5), and in the snaphora of St. James (34-98), which is used by Melchltca and Jacobites alike.

PROSTRATION. [Genvflexion.] E. S.]

PROSTRATORES. [Penitence, p. 1593.]

PROTASIUS, martyr at Milan with hie brother Qervssiua; commemorated June 19 (Bed., Wand., Usuard. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Mart.; Hieron. Mart.; Kal. Antiquiss. Pst. Lat. cxixviii. 1190; in tha sacramentsry of Gelasius their vigil observed on June 18 and their natale on June 19; on both which dsys their names occur in the collect "aerrera," and poat-communion ; on July 28 (Hu. Mart.) ; Oct. 14 (Cal. Byzant.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 271); Oct. 30, Antioch (Hieron. Щart.).
[C. H.]
PROTERIUS, confessor at Antioch; commemorated May 21 (Wright, Syr. Mart.)
PROTHESIS (npdeerıs ; Credentia; [Copt. Tahaddemet). The term wss cleariy adopted into Christian ritual from the Mosaic, where it is part of the Alexandrine equivalent for shew-

1740

PROTHESIS

In the Greek ritunl, the term is applisd beth to the recess upon the left of the holy talle and to the lense: altar which the recess contnins. Bingham ohserves that in many churehes "there was a place where the otlerings of the people were received, out of which the bread and wine was taken that was consecrated at the altar . This is called $\pi \rho \delta \theta_{\epsilon} \sigma_{i s} "$ (Antuq. viii. vi. 22). Similarly, with a slight enlargement, Renaudot describes it ss "that part to the right of the bema in which the priest, about to celebrate Mass, arranges and prepares what is necessary, and from which he proceeds to the altar with a certain solemn ritusi" (Liturgiue Orient.). Du Cange. (Gloss. Grucc. s. v.) confines his account to this sense of the word, and does not even hint that any other is possible. Suicer, however, says that Prothesis was alture minus, to the left of the principal nltar, and that it had its name from the fact that the bread which was to be consecrated by the priest was first placed upon it (Thesaurus, p. 842). In this sense the term prothesis corresponds to the modern Credence. It is remarked by Renaudot that the term "altare miuus" is improperly applied to the table ot the prothesis "becauss the sacrifice is not offered upon it" (Lit. Orient. l. 188 , ed. Paris, 1716 ).

Most of the writers npon the aubject appesr to be agreed that the prothesis atood to the left of the holy table as you face it. So it is placed by Leo Allatius, by Gonr, and by Beveridge (in the plan given by Bingham, though Beveridge's own words, subsequently quoted, seem to place it otherwise). The points on which they differ are two: (1) whether the Prothesis was a part of the bema or distinct from it ; snd (2) whether there was a direct approseh to the prothesis from the bema or not. Beveridge (Annot. in Can. Conc. Nic. Primi in can. xi. 14) considers that the prothesis was a distinct place from the bemn, and that there was an immedinte communication from one to the other, basing his conclusion upon these words from the liturgy of St. Chrysontom: "Kal $\epsilon \dot{\lambda} \lambda 0 \gamma \omega \nu \nu{ }^{2} \delta \nu \lambda a d \nu, \epsilon i \sigma \in \rho \chi \in \tau a 1 \cdot$ ( sc . into the bema)

 رapyapitns. He afterwards quotes a passege of Narcus Hieromonachus to ahew that the censing minister sometimes had to make his entrance into the sanctuary through the prothesis nad not through the holy doors. That the prothesis was, in some sense, a distinct apartment from the sanctuary, and that sundry liturgieal actions had to be performed in it and not in the, sanctunry seems clear; but it may fairly be doubted whether ancient churches were always built in the same way. In a modern church, a vestry is sometimes a distinct construction and sometimes an apartment merely curtained off from the church. And it seems quite conceivable that when Leo Allatius places the prothesis in the bema, while Goar separstes it from it, both maty be correct. In a handsome church the prothesis may very well have been the apse of an aisle, whilst in a church of humbler pretensions the liturgical requirement of the prothesis may have been met by separating off a part of the bema itself. This appears actually to be the case at the present diay according to the description given by Dr . Neale: "The chapel is usually divided by a watl from the bema, a passage being pierced through it; sometimes it is separated by a screen, and in poor country churches has occasignally no division at all" (Holy Eastern Church, lutrod. p. 190).

The view of Mr. Freshfield is that the construction of the prothesis in an apse is a question of date; that Byzantine churches had nut at first an apse for the prothesis, but that it was introducel to meet the requirements of the ritual when developed beyond its pristinc simplicity. He says that " where an ancient Greek ehureh is found with three apses it is subsequent in date to the emperor Justin Il. (i.e. the middle of the 6th itury), or has had a new east eod npplied: where it has only one apse it is prior to that dnte" (Archacoloyia, vol. 44, xxir.).

It ahould be noticed that in Beveridge's plan of an ancient church as given by Bingham, the prothesis is placed on the left of the spectntor looking towards the nltar, whereas Beveridge's words seem to insist upen the contrary. Ile seems, indeed, to take some pains upon the point, as if be were writing against the coaclnsions of previous authors. He says, "Et $\delta$ anovikov quidem ad dexteram Pontificis ia throno aedentis et Occidentem respicientis collocatur, $\pi p \delta \theta \in \sigma=s$ ad sinistram," and much more to the same purport (Annot. in Can. Conc. Nic. Primi, in Can. xi. 15). In point of fact, amongst the geveral writerg there seems to be nome confusion in the use of the terms "right" and "lelt."

In the Eastern ritunl the procession from the prothesis to the altar with the sacred elements is called the Great Entrance (p. 612) $\mu \in \gamma d \lambda \eta$ ciodoos, while that with the Book of the Guspels is called the Little Entrance ( $\mu \wedge \kappa \rho d$ cicódos). The complete rite is described by Goar ( itwhol. p. 131). The office of the prothesiv is the preparation of the oblation for the eucharistic service. It opens with the rite of washing ths hands on the part of the priest and deacon, saying the Psalm, "I will wash my hands in innocency, O Lord, and so will I go to thine altar." Dr. Neale infers the extreme uatiquity of this rite from the words of' St. ('yril of Jerusalem, "Ye have seen the deacon giving water to the priest to wash his hands, and to the presbyters who surround the altar of God" (Catech. Mystag. 5). The whole office is giveo in English by Dr. Neale (Eusteru Church, Introd. p. 341).
[II. T, A.]

PROTOAPOSTOLARIUS, the first episto*

 ler. The liturgical epistle is called the apostle, because taken from the writinga of the apostles, in the Greek and Oriental churwhes (Litury. $S$. Chrys. in Goar, Euchol. 68 ; S. Murc, in Rensud. Collectio Lit. Uriont. i. 137; the Coptic rite, ibid. 6 ; the Ethiopir, 508 ; the Syrium [Melchite sad Jacobite], ii. 19, but "epistle" slso 8, 19 ; the Nestorian, 585), as formerly among the Latins (Childeherti Constit. A.D. 554, Capit Rey. Fr. Baluze, i. 7; Germanns Paris. 555, Expos. Hissu* in Martens de Ant. Ecel. Rit. i. iv. 12 ; Conc. Tolet. A.d. 633, can. 12 ; and some copies of the Gregorian sncramentary, Murat. Lit. Fom. Vet. ii. 1, Ménard. Opp. S. Greg. iii. 1, ed. Ben.Recea, Opp. epistoler was larius. Veses st Constantin protoapostolar apostle" (dc 0

PROTOLI

Antonius at $A$ (Usunrd. Mart PRO'TONO the Greeks del Constantinople Rome in the $p$ [of the protone for he is the (Codinus, de In a very anci logue raisonné" by Goar, we r the church for is his business forit. He also es the lawyers, an and precepts ane logion, 276). kind tells us th thst st the tim basin to the bi hands, and that 269). He read t similarly 270 ). T after the Exoca Jus Graeco-Rom. Gosr to Codinus, Georgius Xipheli was charged with their offices being aame (Joan. Cit In what century first used by the peris] officer, so A.D. 439, $\pi \rho \omega$ roored (Hist. Eccl. vii. employed us a no council, writing ir tary of the patr Hard. Conc. iii. 183 example. The teri not much later. othicer merely " p (Res Gestae, xxv. 8 still uses the phras (Epist. ii. 22) wl siastic. Similarly, (Julius, No. 36 ): .... omnium mo primicerium notal tur." Hadrian of hut applies it onl empire (Epist. ad C inter Epp. Hadr. 8 erer, it becsme the offieers. Thus e.g. J tonatry of the spor coucucil of Constane of Lee X. speaks o cium" and "proton
ix. 1776).

[^123]bema itself. This we at the present ton given by Dr. divided by a wall g pierced through by a screen. and in oceasionally no n Chureh, lutrod.

I is that the con1 apse is a question rehes had not at s, but that it wss direments of the its pristine sim: an ancient Greek es it is subsequeat 11. (i.c. the middle ad a new east end apse it is prior ol. 44, xxiv.). - Beveridge's plaa by Bingham, the ; of the spectator zerens Beveridge's he contrary. Ile pains upen the gainst the conclule says, " lit diaontificis in throno cientis collocatur, nuch more to the Conc. Nic. Primi, fact, amongst the be some confusion " and "left." ocession from the sacred elemeuts (p. 612) $\mu \in \gamma \alpha^{\prime} \lambda \eta$ ook of the Guspels by Goar (Eizhol. prothesis is the or the eucharistic te of washing the $t$ aud deacen, sayish my hads in ill 1 go to thine extreme notiquity of St. Cyril of the deacon giving $s$ hands, and to the : altar of God" le oflice is given min Church, Introd.
[II. T. A.]
S, the first epistocalled the apostle, ga of the apostles, urches (Litury. S. Murc, in Reasud. a Coptic rite, ibid. $\dot{u}$ [Melehite sad " also 8, 19; the among the Latins t, Capit Req. Fr. 555, Expos. Jissat i. iv. 12 ; Conc. some copies of the at. Lit. Nom. Vet, iii. 1, ed. Ben.

rROTOLICUS

Recea, Opp. Greg. V. 63, ed. 1615). Hence the epistoler was ealled by the later Greeks apostolariua. Describing the ceremonies of Easter Eive at Constantiauple, Colinus tells us that "the apostle" (de odic. vi. p. 46 , ed propheey and the as. Niebuhr).
[W. E. S.]
Mrotolicus, martyr with Eassus sad Antonius at Alexandria; commemorated Feb. 14 (Vsuard. Mart.; Hart. Rom.). [C. H.] PROTONOTARIUS. By this hybrid word the Greeks denoted the ecclesiastical ofticer st Conatantinople, who had his counterpart at Rome in the primiccrius notariorum. "Thert at [of the protonotary] is evident from the name; for he is the first of the notaries or seribes," (Codinus, de (offic. Palat. C. P. r. 41, el. Bekk.). la a very ancient Notitia Officialium, or "eatsby Gosr, we read: " The picials at C. P., printed the chureh for the service of the bishop, and it is his business to write, if there be any occasion forit. He also examines (or makes a visitation of) the lawyers, and writes wills and manumissions, and precepts and the like." (MS. Allat. in Eucholhyin, 276 ). Another document of the same kind tells thast at the time of thetion was in the bema, basin to the bishop, that he might wash his hands, snd that ha sloo held the Dicerrum (ibid 269). He read the gospel on Isalm Sunday ( 277 ; , imilsrly 270). The protonotarius took precedence after the Exocatacorli (Joan. Citrii Resp. 8, Jus Graeco-Rom. v. in the notes of Gretser and Gosit to Codinus, 132). lu the 12th century, under Georgius Xiphelinus, the proteedicus [Ecdicus] wasc charged with the duties of the protonotary, their offices being amal gamated under the former name (Joan. Citr. u. s. in Goar, Euchol. 283). ln what century the title of protonotary was first used by the Greeks, I cannot say. The imperial officer, so called, is termed by Socrates, (Hist. Eccl. vii. 23). Agatho, who had been emplofed ss a notary at the sixth oecumenical council, writing in 712, calls himself "protonotary of the patriarchic secretum" (Epilogus, Hasd. Conc. iii. 1833). This is, I think, the earliest cample. The term was adopted by the Romans not mueb later. Ammianus, 389, calls the civil olicer merely "primus inter notarios omnes" (Res Gestae, xxv. 8). Gregory of Rome, in 592, rtill nses the phrase "primicerius notariorum" (Epist. ii. 22) when speaking of the ecelesistic Similarly, in the Litcr Pontificalis (Julius, No. 36): "Hle constitutum feeit, ut primiceriium nom monamentorum in acclesis per primicerium notariorum confectio celebraretur." Hadrian of Rome, 772, uses the word, bot applies it only to a chancellor of the empire (Epist. ad Car. M. Hard. Conc, iii. 2017 ; inter Epp. Hadr. 85). After our period, howeref, th becsme the common title of the papal oficers, Thus oficers. Thus e.g. John de Trembley was "procuncil of Constanse" of Leo X. poneaks of the "protonotaristus Aull cium" and "protonothe "protonotaristus offis 1776). "protonotatiatus habitus" (Hard.
[W. E. S.]

PROTUS
byters in an epiacopal church was so called. Hence he may be compared to the dean of a western cathedral. At Constantinople, "when the ifishop celebrates the liturgy, the protopapas stands above all the rulers of the ehurch, and in the divine liturgy gives the holy conmunion to the bishop. The bishop likewise gives it to the $\pi \rho \omega$ rotepeús. He is also the cliief in the higher ranks of the chureh; thus occupying the place of the bishop in the chureh "( Official. Goar, Euchol. p. 277; ciquissino MS. printed by p. 271). He is "t compalre the sinilar ciatal. Colinus, "and hise first of the bema," says bishop" (De Offic. Palat. i. $i$ ond place after the brief form of ic. Palat. i. p. 6, ed. Bekk.). A fro:n an ancient Euchologion given by Goar special duties of Euchologion (287). Some special duties of the protopapas of Coastanprobably did not differ by Codinus, which by the same officer in from those discharged (xiv. 79).
11. The chief of the clergy in attendance on The emperor was also csiled the protopapas. Thus Codinus: "The emperor has a protopapas, (De Off clergy, the church has the same" ( $\mathrm{D}_{e}$ Off. xvii. 94). Under Constantine VIII. to the protopapas of the palace was commanded the precede the army with the precious wood of Nieb cross" (Cedreaus, Hist, Comp. ii. 285, ed. topapas of the Stylianus is mentioned as the pro(ibid. 252).
III. Parish priests who had others under them were also called protopapas. The eighth canom of Antioch, A.D. 341, torbids "presbyters in the country districts to give canonical epistle.," but permits the chorepiscopi to do so. Balsamon, commenting on this, says, "some maintain that protesbyters in the country districts, i.e. the protopapades, can give letters of peace" (Pandect. Bever. i. 437). Again, he says that "because the canons forbade bishops in small cities and villages, therefore they ordained for them presbyters ; that is, protopapades and chorepiscopi" (Comm. in Cem. x. p. 439). They probably had some power over their brethren, as well as precedence, from the first, but its extedt does not appear. In the modern Greek ehurch the protopapas "in vieis episcopo absente, reliquis sacerdotibus semper praeeminet, et in eos jus
[W. E. S.]
PROTOPRESBYTER. The protopapas was anciently so called. In the nets of the syood at the Onk, A.D. 403, we read of "Arsacius (of Constantinople), the protopresbyter, who succeeded Chrysostom " (Hard, Concil. i. 1041). A protopresbyter of Alexandria is spoken of at sbout the same time (Socr. Hist. Eiccl. vi. 9). In the Monumenta Syn. Nic. ii. A.D. 787, one of the Roman legates is called $\pi \rho$ óros $\pi \rho \in \sigma \beta$ útepos of the church at Rome (Hard. iv. 28). See Proto. papas, Arclupresbyter, Decanus. [W. E. S.]

PROTUS (1), pedagegus, martyr with his pupils Cantianus and Cantianilla; commemorated Aquileis; (Usuard. Nart.; Hieron. Mart., at and Clemens (Hierom. ) June 15, with Cantiadus and Clemens (Hieron. Mart.).(2) Martyr with Jacinctus, both eunucha, the old Via Salaria (Ususrd. Mart. ; Bed. Mart., with Hyacinthus, both eunuchs of St. Eugenia ; Hieron. Mart., with Jacinctua, at the cemetery of Basillae on the old Via Salaria; Vet. Rom. Mart., Kul. Antiquiss. Patr. Lat. cxxxviii. 1191, with Hyacinthus ; Mart. Rom., with the same). The natale of Protus and Hyacinthus on Sept. 11 is observed in the aacramentary of Gregory, their names mentioned in the collect, the, "super oblata," and the "ad complendum" (Greg. Mag. Sacr.).

[C. H.]
PROVINCE. [ORDERs, hoLy, p. 1478.]
PROVINCLAL SYNOD. [COUNCIL p. 473.]

PROVOST. [Praepositus.]

PRUDENS (Vet. Rom. Mart. May 19), disciple of St. Paul. [Pudens.]
[C. H.]
PSACHNION. This word, whoae meaning is quite uncertain, occura in the account of the aufferings of pope Martin I. (ob. A.D. 655). After very cruel treatment had been inflicted on him at Constantinople, the sacellarius (see Ducange, s.v.) ordered one of the guards atending by, a barber, to remove at once the pope'a psachinion (Patrol. 1xxxvii. 115). This done, he was delivered to the prefect of the city with $s$ view to his being put to death, which he but narrowly eacaped.
Ducange (Glossarium, a. v.) considers that the text is corrupt, and that saccion should be read, the saccus beiag an article of dress wosn by patriarcha, &c. This doea not aeem very probable, because the pallium would be above all the other vestmenta, and the removal of that is subsequently mentioned. In the text as given by Baroniua (Annales, A.D. 651, cc. 10, 11), the reading psachion is found, which, however, leaves the matter quite as doubtful. Baroniua gives the rather far-fetched theory that the meaning ia that of a aatchel or purse (pera). Macer (His olexicon, a. v.) coasidera the word to refer to the tonsure, laying stresa un the fact that it is a barber who is bidden to act on this occasion. This would be tantamount to a degrading from the clerical office, so that the secular power could be then called upon to act.
[1. S.]
PSALLENDA, the proper antiphon on a eaint'e day in the Ambrosian offices of lauda and vespers. Ex. On St. Andrew's day at vespers. "Psall. Inveui David aervum meum : Oleo sancto meo unxi eum. Gloria Patri, &c. Inveni," &c. [W. E. S.]
PSALLENDUM, the anthem between the prophecy and epistle In the liturgy of Gothic Spain: "Postea, iterato Dominus sit semper cobiscum, canitur aut profertur pallendum, quod idem paens est atque responsum, non dispar graduali officii Latini " (Ordo Div. Off. Guth. from Robleaiua, Vita Ximenii, 27, in Conc. Hisp. Aguirre, iii. 264). Lealia (in Psallendo, Miss. Mozar.) denies its close resemblance to the gradual. In the Missal this authem ia always headed by the word "psallendo," which ia, I conceive, not the oblique case, but the lower Latin form. Compare sone for sonum in the Breviar. Goth. Lorenzana, 1, 6, 8, &c. [W. E. S.]
PSALLENTLA, a method of singing the psalms, hymns, &c. "Graecorum pallentiam ad noa dirigere tua fraternitas dignetur." This occura in a letter to Jerome, which has been ascribed to Damnsus of Rome, the ground of the request being the rudeness of the Romsa psalmody at that time: "Nec psallentium nos tenetur, nec hymni decus in ore nostro cognescitur." The authentivity of the epistle snd of Jerome's reply is denied by Hardouin, &c. (Manai, Concil. iii. 428).
[W. E. S.]
PSALLENTIUM (or Psallentius), a serrice of paalms and hymus; a word in very common use in France in the 6th century and lnter; but less frequent elsewhere. "Cum psallentio sacordotum crucem Domini vel pignora sanctorum commendavit" (Baudonivia in Vita Radeyundis, 19): "Dum sub muro cum psallentio anactum ejua corpus portaretur" (Ib. 28). "Prostrati selo Dominum diebua singulis cum psallentii modulamine deprecantur" (Greg. "Turon. de lit. PP. i. 1; aee Hist. Franc. i. 43: "Psallentium a udierunt in caelo; ii. 21, in a procession; 37, of an antiphon, \&c.). In 653 Clovis II. male : grant to the church of St. Denys, "ut sicu" tempore domini genetoris nostri ibidem psallencius per turmas fuit institutus; vel sicut ad monasthirium St. Mauricii Agaunia die noctuque tenetur, ita in loco ipso celebretur" ( $D e \operatorname{Re}$ Diplom. Mabill. 466). "That on the Lord's Day every pricat go round hia church, together with the people cum psallentio" (Capit. Reg. Fr. v. 372).
[W. E. S.]
PSALMELLUS, an anthem from the Palms sung after the prophecy in the Ambresian liturgy (Rituale SS. PP. Pamel. i. 295), and therefore correaponding to the Psallesides of the Mozarabic. Ita analogy to the Gradual is observed by Ralph of Tongrea, who speaking of the responsories of the masa, says, "In the Roman office they are called graduals, and in the Ambrosian, paalmeli" (sic.; De Cun. Obserr. 12). The following rule for its use is given in the Missal of 1609; "Poat lectionem [prephetise], responso per miniatrum Deo gratias, dicitur psalmellus, quando aequitur epistola; alioquin post lectionem dicitur alleluia cum suo verss, vel cantua" (Lebrun, Dissert. iii. art. 2).
[W. E. S.]
PSALMISTA. The Stututa Antiqua of the African Church (c. 10) declare thnt a "psalmista, i.e. canter," may undertake the ottice of a church singer at the mere bidding of the presbyter, without consulting the bishop. The presbytir is to say to him, "tu vide ut qued ore cantas corde credns, et quod corde credis operibus com. probes." Compare Ordination, p. 1509. [c.]

PSALMODY. The object of this article if to give some account of tha rise, method, and peculiaritiea of Psalmody in early Christisnity and to trace the progreas of ideas that weat associsted with it.
It las been already stated in this work [set Office, THE DIVINE] that paalmody forned so prominent a constituent of ancient chuir serrica as actualiy to have given ita name to some of the earliest service books that are known to is Indeed, the psalmody of any given eervice mafy be considered as the thrcad upoa whieh tha pearla of lesson, versicle and collect are strung.

Germs of Choir Serrices.-We cas trace the rise of the elaborate servicea that hare beat woed in the has como dow ancienta ln ps
The carlies tradition of C performance of Christian Christian lite to the subject the epistle of uses expression on the hypothe He does not in the Pbsime of the practice of ond that of $t h$ be no reasonab formed at least tians sang.
Justin Marty to ths empero Christians sing Benedictine edi plsin enough th both to the Psa posed by Christ be sang in ch mentions the ain the Holy Scriptu be doabted (thou that the Psalms too (contra Celsı sione which ma same direction; affirm that the ps Indeed the earlies writer of the use is contsined in a pe Artemon, the he abel $\phi \hat{\omega} \nu \quad a \pi^{\prime}$ a $\rho \lambda$ (Hist. Eccl. v. 28 which may contes tion of Eusebius. Hippelytus in th Ford : $\tau \delta \sigma \tau \delta \mu$ aivon кal 廿a入 $\mu$ òs miga dateì. But yet it is of donbtf cannot be advance ment. After this properly se-called to dispense with sI Atbanasius (de as many pralma as let thera be joined knees with tears, . finished, say Allelu
This practice se that which was lon and Gallican rule, directed that after the psalm there ah Fere for tha most guage of the psalm probahly the Colle conucil of Agde in which were to be aal If nelther bishop nor were preeent, then $t$ There is differens the practice originat which has been he ground of the of the Romsn psallentium mos re nostro cognoshe epistle sud of Hardouin, &c.
[W. E. S.].
entius), a servics I in very common ry and later; but a psallentio sacerignora sanctorum Vita Rade'gundis, sallentio sanctum 28). "Prostrati is cum prallentil eg. T'uron. de Vit. 3: " Psallentium procession ; 37, of lovis II. made Denys, "ut sicu" ri ibidem jisollenus; vel sicut nd sunis die noctuqua ebretur " ( $D c$ Ro on the Lord's Dsy rch, together with Capit. Req. Fr. v.
[W. E. S.]
n from the $\mathrm{P}_{\mathrm{ss}} \mathrm{lms}_{\mathrm{s}}$ a the Ambrosiso mel. i. 295), sul e Psallendua of - the Gradual ia s, who spesking of s, ssys," "In the graduale, sind in $\therefore$ De Can. Obsert. its use is giveo in ionem [prephetise], o gratics, dicitur epistols; slioquin is cum sue versa, iii. art. 2).
[W. E. S.] futa Antiquus of the that s "pssimista, te otfice of a charch of the presbyter, op. The presbyter ut quod ore cantas redis operibus comON, p. 1509. [C of of this article is e rise, method, sul esily Christianity of ideas that were in this work [si psalmody formed wo acient choir service s name to some of at ars known to us y given service nasy id upon which tha collect are strung. -We can trace th! ces that have beea

PSALMODY

PSALMODY
1743 used in the Christian church in the little that has come down to us about the practice of the ancients in psalmody. ancients in psalmody.
The earliest writers as well as the uniform tradition of Christendom imply that the musical performance of psalms has nlways formed a purt of Christian worship. The first passage in Christian literature which makes any reference to the subject is the well-kaown passige from the eplistle of St. Ignatius to the Ephesians. He noes expressions there which can only he explained on the hypothesis that the early Christians sang. He dees not indeed say that what they sang was the Psnlms of David. But if we bear in mind the practice of the age immediately subsequent and thst of the Jewish church before, there can be ne ressonable doubt that the Psalms of David formed at least a part of what the early Chriss8ng.
Justin Martyr, again, in his Apology addressed to the emperor Antoninus Pius, speaks of the Christisns singing "hymns." But the learned Benedictine editor observes there that "it is plsin enough that the name of hymns was given both to the Psalms of David and to lyrics composed by Christians themsel ves, which used to be song in church." Tertullian (Apol. 39), mentions the singing of compositions taken from the Holy Scriptures, amongst which it can hardly be doabted (though he does not distinetly say so) that the Psslms of Divid were included. Origen too (contra Cclsum, viii. 37) makes use of expresaions which may fairly be interpreted in the asme direction; yet he does not explicitly sans direction; yet he does not explicitly sffirm thst the psslms were sung in public worshlp. Indeed the esrliest mention known to the present Friter ef the use of $\psi$ qaiuol in Christian worship is contained in a passagequoted by Eusebiusagainst

 (Hist. Eccl. v. 28). There is indeed one passage which msy contest the priority with this quotatimn of Eusebius. It is a passage attributed to Hippolytus in the orstion on the end of the Forld: $\tau \delta \sigma \tau \delta \mu a \quad i \mu \omega \hat{\nu} \pi \rho \delta_{s} \delta_{0 \xi 0 \lambda o \gamma i a \nu}$ кal maa raגeiv. But though the passsge is sucient, yet it is of doubtful authenticity, and therefore cannot be adranced with confidence in the argument. After this period the mention of psalmody properly so-called is so frequent as to enable us to dispense with specific citation.
Atbsnssius (de Virginitate) tells a lady, "Say as masy pssilms as you can, and to every psalm let there be joined prayers and bending of the let there bo joined prayers and bending of the kaees with tesrs, fished, say Alleitua." and after thrce psalms are This practice seem that which was long afterwards the prototype of and Gsilican was rule, according to which it wast directed that after esch antiphon which followed the psalm there should be said collects, which Wers for the most part compiled from the lau-gasge of the psalm itself. gasga of the psalm itself. These prayers are probsbly ths Collectiones probsbly ths Collectiones spoken of in the conacil of Agde in the yesr 506 (can which were to be said the yesr 506 (can. 30), If neither bishop nor presbyter but only a deacon. If aeither biahop nor presbyter but only a deacon Thers is s difference of opinion as to where the practice originated of interspersing psalms with collects. Tomasi attributes it to the Spanish and Gallican churches. Gerbert thinks it was brought by Cnssian from the East into there is a canoa which forlidea (4th century) without a lection between them psalms to be said can. 17). The use forbidden by any human compositlon is expressly ultra psalmos vel first council of Braga: "Ut et veteris Testamenticarum Scripturarum novi in ecclesia psallatur, sicut peetice compositum canones" (Con:, Brac. L e et sancti praccipiunt this prohibition, Brac. l. c. 12). The stitthess of Tolet. iv.). It seems however moditied (Conc. meant to exclude what we but only the so-called we should call hymns, other compositions which migh of Solomon and rank as canonical scripture might seem to claim Conc. Laod. esn. 59.) By a canon (See Bals amongst the capitula of Martin of Bran (67) was forbidden to use palms in of Braga it were not in Scripture (compositos church that The same thing is repeated in the et vulgares) shewing that former prohibitions had been ineffectual (Conc, Aquisgr. can. 86). In con. nexion with this branch of the subject it will be remembered that there was often s disposition to propagate false tesching throngh the medium of psalms composed by such teschers themselves; as in the case of Psul of Samosata, mentioned by Eusebius (Hist. Eccl. vii. 30); Christi, Christi, 17) ; Apollinarists in Sozomen (Hist. Ell-the 25); and the most famous example of ( $E p .55$, sl. 34). The use of St. Augustine however, does not seem use of such psalms, the schismatic party; for St. Augustine himself composed a long psalm against the Donatist party. He says Retract. lib. i. 20) that he meant it to be sung by the multitude, in order that the unlearned might become acquainted with the errors of the Donatists. The psalm is peculiar in its structure. It is an alphabetic psalm (Abecedarius) with an intercalated antiphon. It consists of strophes of twelve lines each. The strophes begin with the letters of the alphabet down as far as $V$, the antiphon being said at the beginning of the psalm, antiphon each strophe. The sntiphon in question is the line :

"Omnes qui gandetis de pace, modo verum jadicate."

This antiphon the writer himself calls Hypopsalma. The whole is followed by an epilogue, which is an address from the Catholic church exhorting the paople to a logal adherence to her. Such pssilms of human composition were sometimes called Psalni plebeis or rulyares; and is Greek iסiatinol.
The commanding position which psalmody occupied in the early monastic life cannot be better depicted than in the striking phrase of St. Jerome's about the convent at /Bethlehem, "extra psalmos silentium est." St. Ambrose oven proposes the example of birds, as a consideration which should lesd people to begin and end the day with psalmody: "Quis enim sensum hominis gerens non orubescat sine psalmorum celebritate diem vel inchoare vel claudere; cum etiam 'minutissmas aves alemni deyotione et

1744

PSALMODY
dulcj carmine ortus diernm et noctium persequautur ?" (S. Ambr. in Ps. 118.)

In later times we meet with a curious term, which appears to have arisen frum this universal obligation to paalmody-Psalmi superpositi. In the Benedictine Rule it denotes certain paslms enjoiued for meditation upon itinerant monka, who were too illiterate to read the psalter at large. (Sea Du Cange, Gloss. s. v. "Superpoaiti.")
It is sometimes inferred from a passage in St. Augustine, that paalmody was not introduced into the church of Milan until the Arian peraccutions in the time of St. Ambrose, "tum hymni et paalmi ut canerentur secundum morem orientalium partium, ne populua maeroris taedio contabesceret, institutum eat." (St. Aug. Couf. lib. ix. cap. 7). His meaning, however, probnbly is not that the use of palmas was hitherto unknown in the Milanese church, but that until this emergency the congregation had not perfurmed them "secundum morem orientalium," i.e. had not sung them antiphonally, and with the peupla joining in. (See Mabillon de Cursu Gallicano Disquisitio.) Indeed, it will be sufficient to quote the phrase of Augustine himself to shew that the practice of ainging the psalma was not confined to any particular church, but was universal, "toto orbe cantantur" (St. Aug. Conf. ix. 4).

Amongst special uses the psalmody of the ancient Gallican church occupies a prominent position. Cardinal Tomasi observes that in more modern times it is represented, subject to certain alterations of detail, by the Mozarabic (or ancient Spaniah) rite (Opp. Omnia, tom. iii. praef., Romae, 1748). The rise and progress of psalmedy in the Gallican church are described at length by Mabillon (de Cursu Gallicano Disquisitio). It will be seen later in this article that one of the specialitiea of Gallican psalmody was the uae of Gloria Patri at the end of every psalm, as is done at present in the English church. As to the Roman mode of psalmody in early days Mabillon ( $u$. s.) says that it is not easy to define it; but he gives his opinion that it differed in some reapects from that laid down in the Benedictine rule. The phrase which Mabillon uses is modus psallendi. By this he probably does not mean the features of execution, that is, whether it was done by a aingle voice or by many, whether it was responsory or otherwise, but he probably means the choice and asaignment of psalm and canticle in the several offices.

Of the condition of paalmody in this courtry before the arrival of Augustinc (A.D. 596) very little is known. Of the British chant we know nothing but from a passage in Gildas, who praises its aweetneas (i)ei laudes canora Christi tyronum voce suaviter modulantca). Some writera bave aupposed that the Gallican psalmody was used here by Augustine; but Johnson (Carons, preface, xiii.) refusce to allow this. There are indications, indeed, that considerable pains were bestowed upon tha subject in the ancient English churcli. Bede (Hist, iv. 18) gives an account of the work that was done here in the improvemert of psalmody by John, the precentor (archicantor) of St. Peter's at Rome, who came here by command of pope Agatho. So great was the influence of his work that by the council of Clloveshoe (A.D. 747) the Roman psalmody was made of obligation in thoae parts of the British Islauds which were under the jurisdiction of arulbishon Cuthbert (can, 13, 15). With respect to the language in which the ancient English church performed their paalmody, authorities aee.n scarcely to be agreed. Johoson, indeed, admita that for the firat 250 years after the arrival of Augustiue it was done in Latin tor the public service (Camuns, preface, xiii.). An ancient MS. in the Cotton library is quoted by Collier (Eccl. Hist. book $i$. p. 48, vol. i. fol. ed.) to the effect that Germanus and Lupus brought the Callican Cursus (ordinem cursus Gallorum) to this country in the 5th century. If that be ao, the question is settled; for there can be no reasomable dovbt either (1) that the term Cursus includes psalmody; or (2) that the psalmody of the Gallican rite was in Latin. On the relation between' the Gallican Cursus and ancient English psalmody the reader may consult with adrautaige bishop Stillingfleet's Oriyines Britumicue, chap. iv. From that work, which takes in the period beforc the arrival of Augustine, it may be gathered how little is really known of the practices of Christianity in theae islands during the first aix centuries.

PSALMODY

Upon the ancient distribution of the paslms for the service of the church Gavanti (Thesuurus Sacrorum Rituum, tom. ii. 2. ii. cap. i. 3) writes to this effect: Walafrid Strabo reports that, to aroid confusion arising from variety of uses, pope Damasua, at the instauce of Theodosius, ordered St. Jerome to arringe the psalms for the several aerviccs of day and night; that the distribution was male, was approved by Damasus; and received ly the whole church. It is not unreasonable to ussums that in the 9 th century (Strabo's period) there were extant documents from which it could be inferred that St. Jerome really did make some auch distribution as that which is alleged.
Attempts were made to introduce unifornity of uae into the paalmody. Thus in the councl of Vannes (A.D. 465), "Rectum quaque duximus, ut vel intra provinciam nostram zacrorum erdo et psallendi una ait consuetude" (Can. 15). The same thing occurs again in the second council of Bracara, which guards against the iutreduction of private uses from the monasteries. (Conc. Brac. ii. cap. 1.)

The regular psalma that would have eccurred in the office of the day were at times set asideis favour of proper psalms. A capitulum of the synod of Aix in the year 817 , runs thus: "Ct practermiasis partitionibus psalterii, psalmi speciales pro eleemosynariis et defunctis cantentur" (cap. 50).

It ought to be noticed that in the performance of psalmody the headings or titles of the psalms seem always to have been recited. It is well known that in his popular sermons on the I'salma, St. Augustine often makes a great deal out of the strange words which the Englith reader commonly passes quitc uunoticed. Indeed, he speaks of the title as the herald of the psalm (praceo Paalmi). In this reapect Christianity probably followed what had always been (and still is) the usage of the aynagogue, where the title is alwaya recited as an integral part of the paalm, when the psalm is used for devotional purposes, eith assembled mu Mode. -The in the ancient 1. The psalr whilst all the 2. Sometime gregation singi 3. The congi or choira, whic 4. One voice we say, incepte gation all toget cloae of it.
To these me other; e.g. Ma describes a metl This very comm meaning, which In this method, or lector recite theo the whole done. He quotes lisin this ; but it caunot one and a
(a) The methe sod the rest 1 Tractus. It is dietum vero duod ita dividunt, ut ai lsat; .si tres, $q$ Quo dumero aud lecaotant; ac $p$ convenerit, nunqu quam quatuor fra lib. ii. cap. 11, ad was executed som sometimes by th br St. Augustine plures cantant, ut fit unua; aliquanc gioid fat de plurib ( $\beta$ ) Cardinal Th Whole choir aings "ately, the ancie "direct" (directu: this is made in the practiaed in the matins one psalm a this manner. In $t$ before and after $m$ manner, without a with antiphon or al ( $\gamma$ ) The antiph Eastern in its origir It is often in the the psalms ought half Peraes or by w releraut to releraut to obserre (8th century) a dil sbonld be aung acco verses (ut psalni rersuum modulentur not to hurry one ver: Hers ao division (Con is, of far as the pres in early Christian haring been sung choirs. (8)

Respone this part Responss rium demand umbiguity about it.

PSALMODY

purposes, either by a siagle individual or by the asembled multitude.
Mrodc.-The meth. da of performing psalmody in the ancient church are reciucible to these :-

1. The psalm was executed by a single voice, whilst all the rest of the congregation listened.
2. Sometines it was done by the whole congregstion singing together.
3. The congregation was divided into $t$ wo parta or choirs, which sang alternate versea.
4. One voice sang the first part of a verse (as we ssy, incepted it), and the rest of the congregstion all together auccented it, that ia, sang the close of it. lose of it.
To these methoda some writers add yet another; c.l. Martene (de Eccl. Rit. IV. iii. 7) describes a method which he calla Responsorius. This very common term, however, has another measing, which we shall consider aubsequently. in this method, according to Martene, the cantor or lector recited each verse of the paalm, and then the whole chorua repeated it after he had done. He quotes indeed aeveral passagea to eatablish this; but it may be doubted whether they cannot one and all be otherwise explained.
(a) The method in which a single voice sang sad the reat listened was afterwards called Tructus. It is described by Cassian: "Praedictum vero duodenarium psalmorum numerum its divilunt, ut si duo fuerint fratrea, senos psullsat; si tres, quaternos; ai quatuor, ternos. decantsnt; ac proinde minus in congregatione lecantsnt; ac proinde quaritalibet multitudo convenerit, sunquam smplius psallunt in aynaxi, quas qustuor fratres" (De Coenobioruin Instit. lib. ii. cap. 11, ad fin. The reason why a pailm sometines by the assembly at lingle voice and bometines by the assembly at large ia given plures cantant, ut ostendatur quia de plaribu fit unus; aliquando uaua cantat quia de pluribua qrid fiat de pluribus." (In Jo. Tract. xii.) ( $\beta$ ) Cardinal Thomasius says that when whole choir sings a psalm together, not alternately, the ancients called this method the "direct" (directus, directaneua). Dention of this is msde in the Rule of St . Benedict. It was prsctised in the Milanese rite, in which at matins one psalm after the chapter was aung in this manner. In the monastic rite the psalma before and sfter meals were te be said in thia manner, without antiphon on ferial days, but with sutiphon or alleluia on feasts.
( $\gamma$ ) The antiphonsl method seems to be Eastern in its origia. [ANTIPhon, p. 94.]
It is often in the present day debsted whether the palms ought to be sung antiphonally by half verses or by half verses or by whole verses. It is therefore (8th century) a directio in the council of Aix (8thogld bentury) a direction is given that they verses (ut psalmi digus to the division of the rersaum (ut psaimi digue secundum divisiouea sot to hurry one verse into is, the clergy were were no division (Conc. Anto the next as if there is, so fsr ss the preaent writer knows, no there in esrly Christian antiquity knows, no trace ia esrly Christian antiquity of the pralmas hariug been sung by half verses by equal choirs.
${ }^{(8)}$ In this part of the subject the word Respons rium demands some notice. There ia as umbiguity about it. First, cartain palma were

PSALMODY
1745
so called from the liturgical position assigned to them. In very early times it appears that epistle and gospel were divided by that the [Gitadual.] gosalmal were divided by a psalm. were called Respona appointed for this function use of the term in the fourth which complains of theorth council of Toledo, at the end of such the omission of Gloria Patri in fine responsoriorum -"Sunt quidam quí But, aecondly, any psalm Gloria non dicunt." reaponsory psalm, not from might be called a it, but simply from the mod the liturgical use of St. Isidore of Srom the mode of its performance. Responsorium to seville, for instance, spplies voice and takeu up by the chas begun by one nomine quod, up by the chorus, " Vocata hoc respondeat ( $D$ D Off. i. 8).
The people aeem at tin part most lustily. "The to have done their pared to the sea," The church is well com"Reaponsoriia sealmorum, st. Ambrose, for mulicrum, virginum, parvulorum consonanam, darum fragor resultat" (Herem iii 5) The mode of performing pain. in. 5). is described hy St. Basil the palmody in the East he anys, having divid the Great. The people, parties, perform divided themselves iato two to one another (a $\quad$ Ti4d $\lambda \lambda$ ouviv) antiphonally to one person the duty, again, having entrusted the rest succent (ís $\eta$ of incepting the tune, 207, Ad clericos Neoccosarien (S. Bas. Mag. Ep. p. 94.] This seems to have bs). [Antipuon, method of parforming pase been the ordinary sostom's part of the paalmody in St. Chryatantimople or Antioch), for he (whether Conaa soon aa they had succented (írmomplains that or three psalms, they hurried of from chureh and thought it was enough for their aalvation (Hom. xi. in Mfatt.).

It may be gathered that in very early times there were ieaders of the pasimody who became afterwards called kavovdpuat, and iu Litin, praecentores. [Precentor.] One of the most famous examplea of this mode of performance is was escape of St. Athanasius when the church "Saa aurrounded by Arian soldiers, and he aays, "Sitting on my throne, I ordered the deacon to read a psalm and the people to reapond (ध́aNovely al. in $\eta \eta \chi \in \hat{1})$, for His mercy endureth for ever" (Ath. Apol. de Fugâ, p. 717, tom. i. ed.
Colon. 1686).
In the rule of St. Benedict and elaewhere in connexion with psalmody there is a phrase of very freq ent occurrence, psalmum imponere. It meana to lead the choir in performing the pailm ; ${ }^{\text {as }}$ we ahould say, to aet the paalm. By the Capitula of Martin of Bracara (cent. 6) Do one waa to lead the paalmody (psallere) in the deak unleas he had heen ordained lector by the bishop (Cap. Mart. Bruc. can. 45).
The ritual of the psalmody as it was practiaed anongst the monka of Egypt is thus described iu Cassian, a writer of the 4th century : "Unua iumedium pealmos Domino cantaturus exsurgit. usque in Aen,tibus cunctis (ut est moris nune omni cordisypti partibna) et in psallentis verba orationum interjectione distinct undecim psalmos sibus parili prerjectione distinctoa contiguia versub Alleluia renuntiatione cantasset, dnodecimum sorum aculis pariter oculis repente subtractus, quaeation Coenobiortm Instit. lib. ii. cap. 5). From this pasage it will be gathered that while the singer of the psalm stood, the others sat down.

From some of the expressions already used it will be gathered that the recital of the paalms was commonly-it would obviously be too much to aay always-musical. In thia respect ther shared the privilege that belonged to other passages of Scripture. So far as we kuow, it appears that in the Jewish church the Scriptures were never read in the colloquial inflexions of ordinary speech, but were recited with fixed solemn musical intonation. Every word in the Hebrew Bible ia accompanied by a mark or accent, which indicates not only the logical position of the word in the sentence, but also the particular musical inflection with which the word is to be recited. That distinction applies to the worda of the Book of Psalms as to every other book of Scripture. In such a matter, what every Israelite was familiar with, the Christian Church would be likely to continue. Basil the Great (and sfter him other writers) explains two of the names that occur in the titlea of the psalms aa having reference to the mode of their execution. A psalm, he aays, is a composition which is instrumentally aecompauied (8zav spyavol kpoúntal): a song on the contrary is a melodious utterance without the accompaniment of au instrument ( $\phi \omega \nu \eta_{\lambda} t \mu \mu e \lambda$ ins $\alpha \times 08, \delta 0-$ dpydvou. Hom in Ps. 29). We may gather from a phrase of St . Basil'a that the music with which the psalms were performed was at times as elaborate as the condition of musical art permitted. He sayg that "harmonious tunea of paalms were devised by us" in order that those who were young in yesrs or character might be attracted aud instructed thereby. (S. Bas. Mag. Sermo ii. de Doctrina).
Protesta against irreverent methods of psalmody occur from time to time. "Psalmi in ecclasia non cursim et excelsis atque inordinatis seu intemperatis vocibus, sed plane ac dilncide et cum compunctione cordis recitentur" (Conc. Aquisgr. c. 137). At one time it seems that the psalmody was even accompanied by geaticnlations of the hands ( $\dot{\rho} \rho \chi \nmid \boldsymbol{\sigma} \epsilon 15 \tau \omega \bar{\nu} \chi \in!\rho \hat{\omega} \nu$ ). (See Balaamon on Conc. Trull. can. 75.) The conditions of good paalmody are vell described in a regulation of Louia the Pioua: "Psalmi namque in ecclasia non carsim et excelsis atque inordinatis intemperatisque vocibus, sed plane ac dilucide et cum compunctione cordia recitentur, ut et recitantium mens illorum dulcedine pascatur et audicutium anres illorum pronunciatione demulceantur, quoniam quamvis cantilenae sonua in aliis officiis excelaà solet edi voce, in recitandis tamem psalmis hujuscemodi vitanda est vox" (Ludovici Pii Reform. Eccl. de Rej. Cleric. cap. xxiv. ap. Melchior Goldastus, ed. Frankf. 1673, tom. iii. p. 217).

Gloria Patri in Psalmody.
(1) For the rarious forms in which the Doxology has appeared, see Doxosour.
(2) The use of it appeara to have differed in the East and West. It is implicd by Cassian (Instit. ii. 5) that the use of Gloria Patri as a response at the end of every pisalm is a Western practice, whilst in the East, or at least amongat the monks of Egypt, it was only after the antiphon which followed the last pealm that it wis said. St. Benedict enjoins that at the end of a palm Gloria Patri be said "in the Western manner." Some of the longer psalms he divides into two Glorias. This practice of dividing psalms (as we still do the 119th psalm in the English psalter) is referred to in the third conncil of Narbonne (A.D. 589). "Ut in psallendis ordinibus per quemque psalmum Gloria dicatur omnipotenti Deo, per majores vero psalmos, prout fuerint prolixius, pausationes fiant et per quamque pansationem Cloria Irinitatis Domino decantetur."

The reader will apecially observe that the use of Gloria Patri was one of the points which distinguished the Gallican from the Roman rite. The Gallicans said it at the end of every psalm, thus fornishing an early precedent for the ruls of the English Prayer Book that "at the end of every psalm . . . shall be repeated this hymn;" but the Romans did not. The authorities may be seed in Collier, Eccl. Hist. book 1, cent. 5.

Versions Uscd.-It ia not within the scope of this work in any way to diacuss the character, origin, or authorship of the several versions of the psalms ; but one or two points about the use of them may be advanced here.

A long discuasion of them is given by Lorinos (Praef. in Pss. cap. xiii.), from whom these facts may be gathered.
At the request of St. Jerome, pope Damasos caused one of hia versions of the psalms to be aung in the churches of rirance-a versiou which from that use of it has been since known as the Gallican psalter. It ahould be atated, however, that there ia aome reason for thinking that it did not generally prevail in the French Church till after thia date.
The churches of Rome, including the church of St.Peter's, until long after the period embraced in thia work used the old veraion of tha psalms whinh St. Augustine calls Itala, St. Gregory the Grent Vetus, and St. Jerome Vulgata. The psaltel used in the church of Milan, and known as the Ambrosian psalter, does not differ materially from this.

On a point about which it is easy to mabs mistakes it may be well to aet before the reader the vary words of some accepted authority. Zaccaria, then, aays this:-"Duplicis porto Latinae versionis, psalterium habemus, Vetris, quam Italam vocant, a S. Hieronymo, sive Damasi juasu, aive amicornm precibus Romae, sed $u t$ ipse sit cursim emendatae, et Herony: mianae quam scilicet Paullae atque Eustochii votis satiafacturus S. Doctor postea suscepit. Illam Rumanam vocant, quod Romae praesertim in usu fuerit; hanc Gallicanain quod hujua versionia palterium in Gallias finitimasqua Germanise ecclesias inductum fuerit, atque hinc ad alias etiam Italiae eeclesias propagatum. Primae tamen seu Romanae versionis pssiterium ad S. Pii V. tempora in omnibus urbis sc suburbicariis intra xl, ab urbe lapidem constitutis ecelesiis retentum est ; ab eo autem Poatifice Vulgatae editionis, quae ad Hieronymianam seu Gallicanam interpretationem maxime accedith psalterium praescriptum, Romae in sola Yaticanâ S. Petri ecelesia, in reliqua Italia apud Mediolanenses, atque in Veneta S. Marci Basilich in Hispaniia apud Mozarabea veteris Romuil pasltorii osu so alis, lib: i. enp. i Mabillon, obsc tisna had their their psalnody. the Koman ps upos the point dum LXX inter Galli et German tionem quam Hie coapposuit, psalte Tarosensis episco tam in Galliarum (Wal. Strab. de This latter min haviug been iutr of Tours seems ol This feature of had their own ve to us in England, influeaced our It will be obse rersion containa "0 give thanks His mercy endur in the Bible vers in the Hebrew ori which now judeed Valgate, is the o tains it.
Posture,-All branch of the sub from a few incident From the phrasea alresdy quoted, Donino eantaturua cuactis," \&o., we b tanding, while th the terms $\sigma$ radors al the lesser and gre pasiter, contaia, the posture mainta of the psalm, thou Igreed as to the p tion. Durandus sjue stand for psalmody for it, "ad ostende operibus vincimus That this posture iuferred from the addressed to the $r$ "Tu stabas in choro Sabin.). So, again, a is a recumbeut poat stom's time were to which closed the rep 41). That the cle etalls during psalmo of the bishop of $R$ Touts, "Cumque $\mathbf{i}$ decumberet " (Hist. the custom amoag monks to stand dt stretched hauds point แe Antiquis Monachon greatest care seems guard sgainst sleep mere so loug in some of course, conld not b and so they were ever keep swake, and one abont the choir with chaisf. ant.-VOL after the antlIm that it was $t$ the end of a n the Western almo he divides e of dividing 3 psalm in tha , in the third "Ut in pssl. salmum Gloria majores vere us, pausationes m Gloria I rivirve that the ase oints which disthe Roman rite. of every psalm, lent for the rule $t$ "at the end of ted this hymn;" autherities may ok 1, cent. 5. ithin the scope sa the character, veral versions of pointa about the ere.
given by Lorinus whem these fucts
e, pope Daimasus be psalms to be - a version which oce known as the - stated, however, thinking that it e Franch Church ing the church of reried embraced io the psalms which iregory the Great ata. The psaltel nd known ss the differ materislly ia easy to make before the resder cepted autherity. -"Duplicis perro habemus, Veteris, Hieronymo, sire - precibus Romse, datae, et Hicrony: atque Eustocbii r postea suscepit. Romae praesertim anan qued hujus ulias finitimssque fuerit, atque hisc eaina propagstum. ersionis psalteriam omnibus urbis ac be lapidem censtiab eo autem Pootiad Hieronymiansm em maxime accedith, mae in solâ Tatieliguà Italia apud tâ S. Marci Basilich ea veteria Remai paltorii asu aorvato" (Zacc. Bibliotheca Ritualis, lib: 1. cap. iv. art. 3).
Mabillon, observing that the Gallican Christians had their own version of the fisalma for thair psalmody-a veraion which differs frem the Roman psalter-quetes Walafrid Strabo upon the point:-" Psalmes autem cum secuadum LXX interpretes Romani adhuc habeant, Galli et Germanorum aliqui secundum emeadntionem quam Hieronymus pater de LXX editione composuit, psnlterium cantant, quam Gregoriua faronensis episcopus a partibus Lomauis mutuatam in Galliarum dicitur ecclesins traustulisge" (Wsl. Strab. de Rebus Ecclesiasticis, cap. 23). This latter point as to the Gallican veraion having been iatroduced into France by Gregory of Tours seems open to seme doubt. T Teurs scems oplen to some doubt.
This feature of Gallicaa psalmody-that they had their own version for it-is of some intercest to us in England, as the varsion in question has influenced our psalmody at the preaent day. inflaenced our psalinody at the preaent day.
It will be observed that the Praver Book version containa a verse at the end of Ps. 136, "0 give thanks unto the Lord of lords; for His mercy eadureth for ever," which is not in the Bible version, and which is not found in the Hebrew origiual. The Gallican Psalter, ia the Hebrew origiual. The Gallican Psalter, mhich now indeed has taken its place in the Volgate, is the only ancient psalter which contsins it.
Posture.-All that we can gather on this branch of the subject is what may be inferred from a few incidental expressions of early writers.
Frem the phrasea of Frem the phrasea of Cassian in the pnssnge already quoted, "Unus in mediam psnlmos Domino cantaturus exsurgit cumque aedentibus cuoctis," \&o., we have a trace of the exccutzut cuoctis," \&o., we have a trace of the exccutaut stadiag, while the listeners sat. The use of the terms $\sigma \tau \alpha \sigma \iota s$ and $\boldsymbol{\kappa d} \theta / \sigma \mu a$, too, as applied to the lesser and greater divisions of the Greck palter, contain, no doubt, some reference to the posture maintained during nind at the close of the psalm, though learned writers are not ugreed $s$ to the precise reason for their adop-tion. Durandus speaks of its being customary to stand for pisnlmody, asaigning a mystical reason for it, "ad ostendendum quod atantes in bonis eperibus vincimus" (Rationale, lib. iv. rubr. 2). That this posture was an ancient one may be ivferred from the bitter words of St. Jerome, addressed to the recreant deacen Sabinianus: "Tu stabas in choro psalleutium " (Ep. xlviii. in Sabin.). So, again, after the meal had been takeu 10 a recumbeat poature, thie guests in St. Chrysorom's time were to stand up for the psalmorly, which closed the repast ( S . Chrya. Hom. in Ps, 41). Thst the clergy sometimes sat in their stalle during psalmody appeara from the account of the bishop of Rouen given by Gregery of Tours, "Cumque inter panllendum formulae decumberet" (Hist, Franc. viii. 31). It was the custom amongst. some of the ancient monks to stand during menks to stand during psalimedy with outstretched hands poiating to heaven (see Martene, de Antiquis Monachorum Ritibus, I. ii. 56). The greatest care seema to have been necessary to guard guard sgainst sleep duriag the serviccs, which ef erorse, layg in some monasteries. All moaks, of course, could not have a book in those days, aod so they were even to plait straw in order to keep awake, and one of the brethren walked ahout the choir with a lantera and thrust it CHRISr, ANT,-VOL. 'II.

Into the face of nny one who might be overcome with slecp (Martene, ib.).
One other pesture remnins to be notlced here which of leauing upen the atnff (reclinatorium), the dayas common support in church betore complays of seats. The monka of Fulda even of theinined to Charlemagne nbont the tyranny of their nbbat, that evea in the ease of the infirm he would allow them the use of ocither statf nor atall. The rule of Chrodognag, bishop) of Metz (9th century), in prescribing the disciplina pardicndi, directs that the clergy should not keep their stnves in their hauds during psnlinedy, save on Lorint of botily iufirnity (Rey. Chrod. cap. vii.). Lorinus, while contending for the antiguity of the sitting posture during psalmody (sc. amongst the Egyptian monks, as recorded by Cassian), remarks that in the opinion of some writers the pasalns which are called "penitential" were recited kneeling, and the rest of the psalins standing (Pracfatio in Pss. cnp. xiv.).
Psalmody without Book.-Oue remarkable offect of the prevalence of psalmody and the ocarcity of books was that the psalter was frequently learnt by heart. In the 6th century this is reported by Cyril of Scythopolis to have bren done by St. Theodosius. St. Jereme desired thnt it should be done even by very young people. Sketching the perfect monk, he requires that by such a character it should be learnt word for word (ad Rusticam.) The damsel Pacatula was to commit the psalms to memery nt aeven years old (ad Gaulentium). No one of the sisters in the Jerusilem convent might be iguorant of the pander (ad Eustochinm). Even the Huns, he snys, are learning the psalter (au? Lactain.). Cyril of Scythopolis, in the Life of St. Sabas, says that monks were unt admitted till they had learat the 1 salter and the rule of psalmoly. Heuce it was ruled by the second council of Nicaea (can. 2), that no one should be advanced to be a bishop unless he knew the psalter by heart, nind that he was to be examined by the metropolitan. Gregory the Great says that he would not ordain John the l'resbyter becanse he did not know the psalims (S. Greg. M. lib. 4, Ep. 45). The same pope wonld not Allow Rusticus the deacon to be male bishop of Aucena for a similar reasou. He was a vigilant man, indeed, he said, but according to report, he did net know the psalms.
A curious story of an ineffectual attempt to learn the psalter by heart is told of the archimandrite Theodore, a portion of whose lite is given in the Acts of the second council of Nicaca. He hal been miraculously cured of an epidemic sickness which had threateucd to prove mortal ; and on his recovery, apparently by way of thank-offering, he resolved to lcarn the psalter. He learned the first sovontecn psalms; but the eighteenth baffled him, presumnbly hy its length. He was in despnir about hris task, But prostrating himself on the parement of an oratory, he prayed for success. At Jength on rising, he gazed upon the image of the Sariour ; he felt in his mouth a tastesweeter than honey; his prayer was granted, and from that moment his task proceciled snooothly till he had lenraed the entire psalter.

So grent was the zenl of holy men for panlmody thnt wonderful nehievements are rccorled as to the number of psalms which they recited. St.

PSALMODY

Gregory Thaumaturgus passed entire nights in church with prayers and pasalmody．St．lisidore had no fixed number of paalms which he said in the aervice of God，for the night and the day used to be spent upon it．St．Germanus，who was bishop of Paris in the lntter half of the 6 th century，would say fifty panlma or more before he rose from his bed and enlled his companions （Vits，ad fin．）．Of St．Maur，the diaciple of St．Benedict，it ia related that he would repeat cominonly fifty pealina，often a hundred，and sometimes even the entire psalter before the night office．St．Gregory of Tourn（de Glor．Con－ fess．47）has even a wonderful story of two dead priests miraculously taking part in the paslmody of the choir with the reat of the clergy．

Palsemon，the abbat，would say the whole paalter aud the canticles by night without any sound．By the rule of St．Benedict（Reg．c．18） the whole psalter was to be gone through in the week－a light rule，he urgea，seeing that the holy lathera did as much in single day． In England，also，similar devotion to the paalter appeara to have prevailed．King Egbert even made a vow that besides the parlmody in the canonical offices he would daily chant the whole pasiter（Bede，Eccl．Hiat，iii．27）．

Laymen seem at one time to have equalled，if not surpassed，the clergy in their zeal for paalmody．A constitution of the emperor Jus－ tinian drawa from this fact a consideration as to why the elergy should not neglect to any the daily service：＂Si enim multi laicorum，ut anae animae conaulant，ad eccleaias confluenten studiosi circa panlmodiam ostenduntur，quomodo non fuerit indecens，clericos ad id ordinatos non im－ plere suum munas＂（Cod，lib．i．41）．

As a apecimen of $n$ very ancient allotment of pa ${ }^{1}{ }^{1 \mathrm{~ms}}$ we subjoin the day and night canons of paalms of Euaebius，which shew what psalms were to be said at the aeveral hours ：－

［H．T．A．］
（2）Arrangement of Psalms in the Offices．－Thls portion of tie article confines itaelf to reoiting the contenta of the principal arrangements of the Paslter，after it had been definitely dit－

PSALMODY

tribnted for the＂Divine Office＂the＂Opus Dei．＂It may，however，be persitted in yoint out the coincidence（surely more than necl－ dental）by which certain jiselme have become attached to and associated with certain hours， e．g．（the Weatern church）， $94[95],{ }^{2}$ as an intro－ ductory palm to the pailmody of the day ；and both in East and West， 62 ［63］， 66 ［67］，to the early morning； 50 ［51］，to the enrly m－ming and to terce； 56 ［57］，to sext ； 85 ［86］，to none； 90 ［91］，to sext or compline ； 4 and 133 ［134］， to nocturns or compline ； 19 ［20］and 20 ［21］， to Sunday morning．
We will take the Eastern church first，to follow the order of the siticle，Office，the Divine．

The Paalter，according to the Greek church， is divided into twenty sections called cathismata ［кaOl $\sigma \mu a \tau a$ ］，beach of which is subdivided into three staseis［ $\sigma$ Td $\sigma e{ }^{\circ}{ }^{\circ}$ ］， and at the end of each stasis，Gloria ia said－
Stasis

| I．contains Pss．1－8． |  |  |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| II． | 9－16 | ［17］． |  |
| III． | 17 | ［18］－23 | ［24］． |
| IV． | 24 | ［25］－31 | ［32］． |
| V． | 82 | ［33］－36 | ［37］， |
| VI． | 37 | ［38］－45 | ［46］． |
| VII． | 46 | ［47］－54 | ［55］． |
| V11I． | 55 | ［56］－63 | ［64］． |
| IX． | 64 | ［65］－69 | ［70］， |
| X． | 70 | ［71］－76 | ［77］ |
| XI． | 77 | ［78］－84 | ［85． |
| XII． | 85 | ［86］－90 | ［91）． |
| XIII． | 91 | ［92］－100 | ［101］． |
| XIV． |  | ［102］－104 | ［105］． |
| XV． | 105 | ［106］－108 | ［109］． |
| XVI． | 109 | ［110］－117 | ［118］． |
| XVII． | 118 | ［119］． |  |
| XVIII． | 119 | ［120］－131 | ［132］ |
| XIX． | 132 |  | ［143］， |
| XX． | 143 | ［144］－150 |  |

These cathismats are said in the following order：－

From the octave of Eaater（ $\alpha \nu \tau / \pi a \sigma \chi a$ ）till the Sunday after the octave of the exaltation of the croas［September 14］，the Paalter is said once a week，thue：－

| On Saturday，at vespers，ca | 2， 3 |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| On Sunday，at ma | 4， 5 | At tespers， |
| On Tuesday，at matins， | 7， 8 | At respers， |
| On Wednesday，at matins， | 10， 114 | At respers， |
| On Thursday，at matina | 13,14 19 | At vespert， |
| On Friday，at matins， | 16， 17 | At vespers， | On Saturday，st matines， a before．

Thence onwards to the vigil of Christmas， the aame arrangement is followed，except that at vespers on Monday，Tuesday，Wednesday，aad Thursdsy，cathisma 18 （containiog the gredual psalms）is always asid，and the cathisma assigneed to veapera and those daya is added to those for －In this surticle the Psalms are nombered as in the Vaigate．The numbers of the Eaghiah version are added in［ ］． －Cardinal Bonn says the sections are called by theie names because at each pause to the jaalmody（orainsh the monks rose two and two by turne to recite，and thes while they tood，the rest sat．
－Cardinal Bona saya up to Tyrophagus，＂usque al Domintcam in QuinquagesimA．＂ matins，so that th During the same those of Sunday． Tyrophagus，which Sunday，the arrang giren sbovo．Fr to Wednesday befo twice in the week，

On Saturdny，at
On Sunday，at $m$
On Monday，at $n$
7 ；at sext， 8 ；at
On Tuesday，at prime，12；at terc 15 ；at vespers， 18.
On Wednesday，a prime， 1 ；at terce， vespers，${ }^{\circ}$ ．
On Thursday，at $n$ 8 ；at terce， 10 ；a ocspers， 18.

On Friday，at $m$ terce， 19 ；at sext， 2
On Saturday，at From Thuraday bef Easter（exclusive）tl

The fixed psalms to the cathismata al
At nocturns（ $\mu \in \sigma$ ［51］；on week day 118 ［119］，（i．e．c o 九цриаг）， 120 ［12 64 ［65］to 69 ［70］ ［134］．

At lauds，Pss． 19
［03］， 87 ［88］， 102
koown as the Hexa 149 （ol alyou）．
At prime，5， 89 mesurion of the first $h$
At terce， 16 ［17］ mesorion of the thir ［61］．
At sext， 53 ［54］， mesorion of the six ［70］．

At none， 83 ［84］ mesorion of the nint ［86］．At the typics ［146］； 33 ［34］．
At vespers， 103
廿．трооィцако́s）， 140 psaims are known $[130], 116$［117］， 12 At great compline ［31］． 90 ［91］； 50 142 ［143］．

At little compline，
The Armenian ch eight sections，called

1．containe Pas 11． 111. IV．

VI．
VII．
VIII．
${ }^{6}$ These have been Diving Office，but fo inserted．

PSALMODY
matina, so that three cathlsmata are then anald. During the same period cathisma 17 is added to those of Sunday. Theace to the Sunday of Tyrophagus, which corresponds to Quinquagesima Sunday, the arrangement according to the table given above. From Suadny of Tyrophayus up to Wedneaday before Easter, the Psalter is said twice in the week, thus:-

On Saturday, at vespers, enthisma 1.
On Sundny, at matins, cnth. 2, 3, 17.
On Monday, at mutins, cath. 4, 5,6 ; at terce, 7 ; at sext, 8 ; at vespers, 18.
On Tuesday, at matins, cath. $9,10,11$; at prime, 12; at terce, 13; at sext, 14; at none, 15 ; at vespers, 18.
On Wednesday, at matins, cath. 16, 19, 20 ; at prime, 1 ; at tercs, 2 ; at scxt, 3 ; at none, 4 ; at pespers, 10 .
$\mathrm{OB}_{\mathrm{a}}$ Thursday, at matins, cath. 5, 6, 7; at prime, 8 ; st terce, 10 ; at sext, 11 , at none, 12 ; at ecspers, 18.
On Friday, at matins, cath. 13, 14, 15 ; at terce, 19 ; at sext, 20 ; at vespers, 18 .
On Saturday, at matins, cath. 9 , as usual. From Thursday before Easter to the Octave of Easter (exclusive) the Psalter is not said.
The fixed psalms snid at the hours in addition to the cathismata are as follows:- d

At nocturns ( $\mu$ ecovóктiov), on Sundny, Ps. 50 [51]; on week days, except Satnrday, 50 [51], 118 [119], (i.e. cathisma 17, and known as ( a $_{\text {ншио }}$ ), 120 [121], 133 [134]; on Satu•day, $64[65]$ to 69 [70] (i,e, cath. 9$), 120$ [121], 133 [134].
At lauds, Pss. 19 [20], 20 [21]-3, 37 [38], 62 [63], 87 [88], 102 [103], 142 [143] (these six koown ss the Hexspsalmus), 50 [51], 148,148 , 149 (ol alvou).
At prime, 5, 89 [90], 100 [101]. At ths mesorion of the first hour, 45 [46], 91 [92], 92 [93].
At terce, 16 [17], 24 [25], 50 [51]. At the mesorion of the third hour, 29 [30], 31 [32], 60 [61].
At sext, 53 [54], 54 [55], 90 [91]. At the mesorion of the sixth hour, 55 [56], 56 [57], 69 [70].
At none, 83 [84], 84 [85], 85 [86]. At the mesorion of the ninth hour, 83 [84], 84 [85], 85 - [80]. At the typics ( $\tau \dot{\alpha}$ rumixd), 102 [103], 145 [146]; 33 [34].
At vespers, 103 [104] (the proaemiac psalm, स. троонакокs), 140 [141], 141 [142] (these two psalms are known as the Kúpue écéxpaga), 129 [130], 116 [117], 122 [123].
At great compline, 4, 6, 12 [13], 24 [25], 30 [31], 90 [91]; 50 [51], 101 [102], 109 [110], 142 [143].
At little compline, 50 [51], 69 [70], 142 [143].
The Armenian church divides the Psalter into sight sections, called cunons, as follows:-

[^124]PSALMODY
1749
These canons are divided among the dally services, so that the Paiter is gone through oace $n$ week, and in mouasterles every day in the following order:-During nocturas, sections or canone, 1,2 ; nfter nocturns and before lauds, $3,4,5$; at terce, 6 ; at sext, 7 ; and at none, 8 .

The following posalms are also appointed for the hours:-

At nocturns (called midaight), Pas. 3, 87 [88], 102 [103], 142 [143].

At ludy (called daybreak), 89 [90] (v. 14, "O astisfy us with Thy mercy," to end), 50 [51], $148[149], 150,112[113]-5,114[116, \mathrm{vv} .1-9]$, 129 [130], 53 [54], 85 [86] (last twe verses).

At prime (cnlled sunrise), 71 [72] (v. 19 to end), 91 [92], 62 [63], 64 [65], 21 [22], 142 [143] (v. 8 to end), 44 [45], 69 [70], 85 [86] (last two verses).

At terce, 50 [51], 21 [22], 142 [143] (v. 8 to end).

At saxt, $40[41]$ (first four verses), 90 [91].
At none, 50 [51]. 114 [116, vv. 1-9], 115 [116,
v. 9 to end], 116 [117].

At uespers, certnin verses from the Psnlma: Pss, 85 [86], $139[140], 140[141], 141$ [142], 120 [121], 90 [91], 122 [123], 53 [54].

Compling (called peace or rest) is double. The former is said in church immediately after vespers ; the latter is said by each individual in private at the end of $t$ wilight.
At the former compline are said Pss. 87 [88] (rv. 1, 2, 4, 6), 12 [13], 15 [16], 16 [17], 41 [42], 69 [70], 85 [86] (Inst two verses), 26 [27].

At the latter, 42 [43] (3 to end); the following four sections from P's. 118 [119]: "Et veniat super me"; "Memor esto servi tui"; "Iniquos odio habni"; "Appropinquet deprecatio "; 35 [36] (9 to end), 90 [91], 122 [123], 53 [54], 150, 137 [138] (last two verses), 141 [14i2] ( 6 to end), 85 [86] (last two verses), 4.
In the Western church the three most important distributions of the Psalter are, (1) the Gregorim, (2) the Benedictine, (3) the Ambrosian, called respectively after the names of their reputed authors, and all, with change of detail only, in use at the present time. Of these, the Gregorinn is the Psalter of the secular breviary of the Roman obedience, the Benedictine that of the monastic, and the Ambrosian that of the diocese of Milan. Hence the two former, from their wide-spread adoption, are practically of most importance.
Taking them in order:-
(1) The Gregorian or Roman Psalter.

The following is the distribution "justa antiquiorem psallendi modum Ecclesiae Romanne, ex antiquis muaumentis excerpta," as given by Thomasius, and with the exceptios of two points, which will be noticed in their place, is still that of the present Roman breviary.
On Sunday, at matins, Ad vigilias in primo galli cantu, 94 [95] (said daily); in nocturn 1 , Pss. 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9 [ 9 and 10], 10 [11], 12 [13], 14 [15]; in nocturn 2, 15 [16], 16 [17], 17 [18]; in nocturn 3, 18 [19], 19 (20], 20 [21]. At lauds ("Ad matutinos diluculo"), 92 [93], 99 [100], 62 [63], and 66 [67], said as one psalm under one Gibria, Benedicite " ("Benedictiones sive canticum trium puerorum "), $148,149,150$, said

- Thoogh not strictly psalms, these canticles form an integral part of the office, and require notice.
uniler one Glorin, and called Lardes, Bencdictus ("Canticum evangalicum Zachariae").

At prime, 21 [22], 22 [23], 2:3 [24]. 24 [25], $25[26], 53$ [54], 117 [118], $118[118]$. (1) "Beat 1 imtinenlati"; ( (2) "Inyuocurriget" (said underone Gloria) ; (3) "Retribue "; (4) "Adhaesit," under one gloria," Athanasian Creed ("Fldes Cintholica S. Athamasii E piseopi").
[In the later revisions of the Roman breviary, Pss, 21 [2:2]-25 [2-i] nre not said on Sunday at prime, but are thus said on the several week days:-On Mondiy, Ps. 23 [24]; on Truesdiy, $24[25]$; in 11 ednesday, $25[26]$; on Thursday, 20 [-33]; on Fridh! 21 [22]. This is the first change abore alluded to. In the Sarum and other English breviaries the oll nrrangement by which these psulms were all said on Suadaj was alhered to.]

On Sundays from Septuagesima to Palm Sunday inclusive, the following changes aro made :-

At lauls, insteal of the two Psalms, 92 [93], and $99[100]$. 50 [51] and 117 [118] are said. At $p_{\text {ilne, }}$ instenil of 117 [118], 92 [93] is said.

At terce, 118 [119] ( (5) "Legem pone", and (6) "Et veniat"; (7) "Memor esto," and (8) "Portio mea"; (9) "Bonitatem," and (10) "Manus tuae," under three glorias).

At sext, 118 [119] ( (11) "Defecit," nnil (12) "In neternum "; (1i3) "Quomodo" and (14) "Lucerna"; (15) "Iniquos," and (16) "Feei," under three , (forias).
At nome, 118 [119] ( (17) "Mirabilia," and (18) "Justus es"; (19) "Clamnvi," and (20) "Vide"; (21) "Principes," and (22) "Appropiaquet," under three glorias).

These panlms are said daily at terce, sext, nad none, whateter be the office.
At vespers, 109 [110], 110 [111], 111 [112], $112[113], 113$ [114 and 115]. Mymificat.
At compline, 4, oo [31], vr. 1-6, 90 [91], 133 $[134]$, Nune dimittis. These prsilms are said daily at compline, whatever be the effice.

On Monday, nt matins (in the noeturn), 26 [27]. 27 [28], 28 [29], 29 [30], 30 [31], 31 [32]. $32[33], 33[34], 34[35], 35$ [36], 36 [37], 37 [38].

At luuds, 50 [51], 5, 62 [6.3] and 66 [67] (said under one gleria), Somg of Isainh ("Contitebor," Js. xii.), 148, 149, 150 (snid uniler one glorits), Benedictus.

At prime, 53 [54], 118 [119] (the first four aections, said under two glorias ns on Sunday).
[These psalms are snid on every weak day, whether a testival or not, except where specially directed.]

At vespers, 114 [116, vv. 1-9], 115 [116, ver. 10 to end], 116 [117], $119[120], 120$ [121], Maqnificat.
[On owliaary week days throughout the year, except in Eastertide, at all the hours except nocturas, Ps. 50 [51] is said with intercessury priyers (in precibus).]
$\dot{N} .13$. -In the later revisions of the breviary this is no longer the case. l'reces (curtailed) are only said in Advent, Jent, and on a few other days of fasting, in which P's. 129 [130] is said at lauds, nad 50 [51] at vespers. At the little hours no psalm is said at preces. Here also the Eaglish, which were not subject to this revision, retained the old nirangenient. This is the second of the two points changed, which were mentloned at the outset as alone of any impurtance.

On T'uesday, at matins, in the nocturn, 38 [19], $39[40], 40[41], 41[42], 43[44], .44[4 i], 45$ $[46], 46[47], 47[48], 48[49], 40[50], 51$ [52].

At luuds. 50 [51], 42 [43], 62 [63], nad 66 [67] (said ns one, as heforr), sony of Ilczrkioh ("Lgo dixi,"'ls, xxxviii. 10), 148, 149, 150 (as bisto. '), Menedict"s.

At vespers, 121 [12?], 122 [123], 123 [124], 124 [12:], 125 [126], Mugnificat.

On Wednexday, nt mutins, 52 [53], 54 [55], "5 [56], 56 [57], 57 [58], 58 [59], 59 [ 60$], 60[61]$, 61 [62], $6: 3$ [64], 65 [61], 67 [68].

At luuds, 50 [51], $6 .+[65]$, 62 [63], and 69 [67]. The Sung of Minnnth ("Exsultavit," 1 Sam. 1i.), $148,149,150$, lien.diutus.
At respers, 12t; [127]. 127 [128], 128 [129], 129 [131] 130 [131], Alagnificat.

On Thursday, at matins, i8 [697, 69 [70], 70 [71]. 71 [72], $72[73], 73[74], 74$ 17i], 75 [76], 76 [77], 77 [78], 78 [79], 79 [80].

At lauds, 50 [51], 89 [90]. 62 [63]. nad 65 [67], The Sony of Mloses ("Cantemus," Ex. xr.), $148,149,150$, Denclictus.
At vespers, 131 [132], 132 [133], 134 [135], $135[136], 136[137]$, Dhitnificat.

On Fridny, nt matius, 80 [81], 81 [82], 82 [83], 83 [8t], 84 [85], 85 [86], $86^{\circ}[87], 87$ [88], 88 [89]. 93 [94], 95 [96], 96 [97].

At lutuls, $59[51], 142[143], 62$ [63], and 66 [67], The $S_{n}{ }^{\prime ;}$ nt Habukhuk ("Dunine nudivi," Hab. iii.), 148, 149,151, Benedictus.

At respery, 137 [138], 138 [139], 139 [140], $140[141], 141$ [142], Mignificat.

On Saturday, at matins, 97 [98], 98 [99], 99 $[100], 100$ [i01], 101 [102], 102 [103], 103 $[104], 104[105], 105[106], 106$ [107], 107 [108], 108 [109].

At lunds, 50 [51], 91 [92], 62 [63], nad 66 [67], The Song of Moses ("Attenile noelam," Deut. xxxii.), 148, 149, 150, Renedïtus.

At respers, $143,\left[14+7,144\left[145^{2}\right], 145\left[146^{\circ}\right.\right.$, $146[1+7$, v. $1-11], 147$ [147, ver. 12 to end] Magnificat.
The outline of the seheme is thus oicis to he very simple. The $p$ salms from 1 to $108[109]$ are anid in order at matins, and the remain ler, trom $109[110]$ to the end, nt vespers, throughout the week, omitting those palins which are said at other hours, and are thus distributel :-

On Sundny, at matins, in the first nocturn, twelve psalins; in the second and third, three psalms in ench.

On week days, twelve psalms said in one nocturn.

At tespers, five psalms are said daily.
For the other hours, at luuds, five psalms [i.e. what reekons as five] are said daily.

At frime, three daily, with additioal palms oo Sunday.

At terce, sext, and none, three daily.
At comp'ine, four daily.
In addition, Benedictur is said daily at lauds, as are Maynificat at vesuers and Nune dimittis st compline.

Inte the festal arrangements of the Psalter it is not necessnry to enter. The chief variations are the following :-

In festicals of nine lessons, nine psalms taken from the matin psalms are said at matins ir three necturns of the prainas In oour. At lauds and ve for the most part course. At vespurs often substituted fo [114 nad 115]. pailms for fruids as than was nfterward
(2) The Benediet

The germ of th to have beea derive St. Benedlet framed approved by Grego adopted for the use It is uned, with slig the Cisterciuns, Car orders. The so-cis the secular breviary
The main idea, so ef the Psalter is th gorian ollice, that once a week, but th differs in many impe with the pisalins only outllue of this otlice

At mutins on Sund In ench of the tirst and in the third, th have twelve psalms,
It luuds, five (i.e. are said.
At each of the le. four, und at compline
The following is $t \boldsymbol{t}$
On Sunday, at ma two psalms are said [21], 21 [22], 22 [23 in nocturn $2:-26[27$ 30 [31], 31 [32] ; in
At lurds, 66 [67], sre said daily), 117 counting as one), Ber one), Bencdictus.
In Eaxtertide, and wheo they fall on Su [51] nad 117 [118], [100], sre said.
At prime, 118 [1 eorriget"-" Retribue four).
At terce, 118 [11 Veaiat "-" Memor est
At sext, 118 [119] taten "-Manus tuate.'
At none, 118 [119 num"-"Quomodo "-
At respers, 109 [11 112 [113], Magnificat.
At compline, 4, 90 psalms are said daily $t$ the three days before and diunc dimittis are a
On Moaday, at matin. 33 [34], 34 [ 35$], 36$ wr. 1-26, and ver. 27 In nocturn $2:-38$ [ [42], 43 [44], $44[45]$. At lauds, 66 [6. $], 50$ Isaiuh (Is. xii.), 148, 14 at prime, 1, 2, 6 .

PSALMUDY

three noeturna of three pmalins each, Instead of the psalins in course.
At lunds and evespers, the Sunilay psalms are for the mest part said, lustead of the psalms in course. At vesperen on fextivals, $\mathrm{P}^{2}$. 116 [117] is oftan sabustituted for the last Sumbiy praim, 113 [114 and 115]. Eitricer usage nasigued spectial psalms for lands and vengers much more rarely than was afterwards the case.
(2) The Benedietine or Monastio Psalter.

The germ of the monastic rite is supposed to have been derived from the sulitaries of Egyp. St. Benedict framed a rite fur monks, which vas approved by Gregory the Great, and hencetorth adopted for the use of manastic eongregrations. It is ased, with slight modifications of 're' nil, by the Cistercians, Carthusians, and other monastic orders, The so-enlied mendicant orders use the secular breviary.
The main idea, se to speak, of the distributien of the Psilter is the same as that of the Gregorina etice, that the P'salter should be saill onse " week, but the urder in which it is sald difters in many impurtant peints. Dealing here with the psalims ouly, the following is the general outine of this ollice:-
At matins on Sundays there are three nocturns; in esch of the first twe, six praims are sald; and in the third, three canticles. Week days have twelve psulms, said in two noct urns.
at hudds, tive (i.e. what count as five) psalms are said.
At each of the lesser hours, three, at vespers four, and at compline three pusulms are said.
The fellowing is the distributien :-
On Sunday, at matins, Pss. 3, 94 [95] (these two psulms are sald daily) ; in nocturn 1:-20 $[21], 21[22], 22[2 ; 3], 23[2+], 2+[45], 25[26]$; in nocturn $2:-26[27], 27$ [28], 28 [29], 29 [30], $30[31], 31$ [32]; in no turn 3, three canticles.
At lurds, 66 [67], 50 [51'] (these two jisalms sre said daily), 117 [118], 62 [63] (these two counting ns one), Benedicite, $148,149,150$ (as one), Benedictus.
In Eastertide, and on certain other festivals when they fall on Sundnys, instead of Pss. 50 [51] and 117 [118], these two, 92 [93] and 99 [100], sre said.
At prince, 118 [119] ("Beati"-"In quo corriget"-" Retrfbue "-"Adhaesit "-said as four).
At terce, 118 [119]," Legem pone"-"Et reniat "-" Memor esto," At sext, 118 [119], "Portio mea"-"Boni-tutem"-Slanus tuate."
At none, 118 [119] "Defecit"-"In aeter-num"-"Quomodo"-ssid as three.
At respers, 109 [110], 110 [111]. 111 [112], 112 [113], Magnificat.
At compline, 4, 90 [91], 133 [134]. These psalms are said daily throughout the yenr. On the three days before Easter 30 [31] vv. 1-6, and diunc dimittis are added.
Oa Monday, at matins, in norturn $1:-32$ [33], 33 [34], 34 [35], 36 [ 87$]$ (suid in two parts, Vr. 1-26, and ver. 27 to en!). 37 [:34].
In nocturn $2:-38[39], 39$ [40], 40 [41], 41 [42], 43 [44]. 44 [45].
At lauds, 66 [6i], 50 [51], 5, 35 [36], Song of Isaith (1.s. xil.), 148, 140, 150, Benedictus.
ily at lanis, o dimittis st

At terce, 118 [119] "Laterna "-" $\ln 1$ guos" "Fec."
At sext, 118 [119] "Mirnbilia"_-" Justus es" "Clantav."
At none, 118 [119] "Vide "._" Priacipes ""Appryiniturt:"
At vespers, $11: 3$ [114 and 115], 114 [116, wv. 1-8] 115 [1113, ver. 9 to end], whd 116 [117] (as nne), 128 [1:9], Naynificat.
On Tueshis, at matins, iu necturn 1:-45 [40], $46[47], 47[4 x], 48[49], 44[50], 51[52]$. $\ln$ noturn $2:-54[53], 33[51], 54[55], 55$ $[56], 57[58] .58[59]$.

At latids, 66 [ 67$], 50[51], 42$ [43], 56 [57],
Sony of Hezekiah (1s. axxviii.), 1+8, 144, 150, Bencluitus.
At prinie, 7, 8, 9 (to "non peribit in finem"), [ $9, v \times 1-1+$ ].
At terre, 119 [12 11 ], 120 [121], 121 [122].
At sext, $122[12], 12.4[134], 124[125]$.
At none, $125[126]$. $126[127], 127$ [120] $]$
These $\mathrm{m}^{\text {walms }}$ mre said at turce, sext, and none, on Wednesilay, Thursday, Friday, und Siturday, At respers, 129 [130]. 130 [131], 131. [132], 132 [133], Magnijicut.
On Wednesday, at nutins, in nocturn 1:-59 [60], 60 [61], 61 [62], $6=$ [66], 67 (pt.) [68, vv. 1-18], 67 (pt.) [68, ver. 19 to enil].
In noturn 2:-6s (pt.) [69, v. 1-16], 68 (pt.) [699, ver. 17 to ead], 69 [70], $70[71], 71[72]$, 72 [73].
At lauds, 66 [67], 50 [51], 63 [64], 64 [65], Suny of Hannah (li Sam. ii.), $1+8,149,150$, Benedictus, Benedictus.
At prime, 9 (pt.) [9, ver. 19 to end, and 10], 10 [11], 11 [19].
At vespers, 134 [135], 135 [136], 136 [137], 137 [138], Maynificut.
On Thursday, at $m$ itins, in nuctırn 1:-73 [74], 74 [75], 76 [777], 77 [78] (in two), 78 [79].
 [83], 83 [84], 84 [85].
At luuds, 66 [67], 50 [51], 87 [88], 89 [90], Song of Muses (Ex. xv.), 148, 149, 150, Benedictur.
At prime, 12 [13], 13 [14], 14 [15].
At vespers, 138 [139] (in two), 139 [140], 140 [141], Maynificat.
On Friday, at matins, in nocturn 1:-85 [86], 86 [87], 88 [89] (in two), 92 [93], 93 [94].
In nocturn 2 : - 95 [96], 90 [97], 97 [98], 98
[99], 99 [100], 100 [101].
At lauts, 66 [67], 50 [51], 75 [76], 91 [92],
Song of Hubakkuk (Hab, iii.) (in three divisions), 148, 149, 150, Benedictus.

At prime, 15 [16], 16 [17], 17 [18] (1-24).
At vespers, 141 [142], 143 [144] (in two), 144 [145] (1-9), Maynificat.
On Saturday, in nocturn 1:-101 [102], 102 [103], 103 [104] (in two), 104 [105] (in two).
In nocturn 2:-105 [106] (in two), 106 [107] (in twe), 207 [108], 108 [109].
At lauds, 66 [67], 50 [51], 142 [143], Song of 3 Ioses (Dent. xxxii.) (in two divisious), $1+8$, 149, 150, Bcnedictus.
At prime, 17 [18] (25, "Cum sancto," to end), 18 [19], 10 [20].
At vespers, 144 [145] (10, "Confitesntur." to end), 145 [146] 146 [147, vv. 1-11], 147 [147, ver. 12 to end], Magnificat.

1752

PAAIMODY

The general plan then if thia :- I'as, 1-19 [20] are and at prime on week daya, beginuing on Monday, three each day, ins. 20 [21]-108 [109], are naid at nocturns throughout the week, beginning on Sunday, twelve each day, andil in two notiorns of six pailims each.
l'as 108 [109] to enil are anid at vespera throughout the week, four each day.

Pralma which are mad in other jurta of the oflice are umitteil when they occur in courne.
P. 118 [110] is sald at prine un subday, and at terce, acat, and none on Sunday and Moniay.

Certain of the gradual pualms are naid at terce, sext, and nowe daily on each of the other weok days.

Pss. 3 and 94 [95] are said daily before nocturns.
Pss, 66 [67], 50 [51], 148, 149, 150, are said daily at lauds.

Dicnedictua is aaid dniily at louds, and Mfrynificut daily at vespers.

In compruring these two great psaiters of the Western chureh, the Benedictine arrangement ajpiears somewhat inferior in siuplicity to the Oregurian. The reason for beginning the panims on Mouday at prime ls nut obvieus, and the divislon of the longer psalms into parte, so as to equalize in some degree the iength of the psalinody on differeat days, while tho number of panlas is the saine, is not withuut awk wardness when tho divisions of a psaim fall into differeat. days (see prine and vespers for Friday und Saturday). The diatribution of the psalms for the littie hour is aiso less natural. On the ather hani, there is a greater varicty in the psaims it lauds, though one misses tho daily, use of $P^{\prime}$. 62 [63], aud the psalms at nocturns are more ueariy of the same length than in the Gregorian Psalter.
(3) We come now to the Ambrosian Psaiter, equaliy venerable and interesting with the two preceding and more curlous, and atill a living rite, though of much leas practical importance, owing to the small area over which it is used. In its main features, it is doubtless the work of St. Ambruae, and ahows Eastern iafluences.

The chief peculiarity in this rite is the arrangement of the matin praims ( $1-108$ [109]), which are divided into ten decuriae, and are gone through in the course of a fortnight. Each dicuria is divided into three nocturns, end is said under throe antiphons, one to each nocturn; and yloria is said only at the endof each nocturn. The decurine are as follows:-

| Decuria I. Pss. | $1-16[17]$. |
| :---: | :---: |
| II. | $17[18]-30[31]$. |
| III. | $31[82]-40[41]$. |
| IV. | $41[42]-50[51]$. |
| V. | $51[52]-60[61]$. |
| VI. | $61[62]-70[71]$. |
| VII. | $71[72]-80[81]$. |
| V1I. | $81[82]-90[91]$. |
| IX. | $91[92]-100[101]$. |
| X. | $10][102]-108[109]$. |

The name decuria is plainly derived from the fact that they all, with the exception of the first, cecond, and tenth, contain ten psaimes. Psalins which are said in other parts of the office are also anid in course.

PSAIMODY

The palms at matins are thus arranged :-
There in no invitutory patim, but in lim placa the firat purt of the Suny of the three Chuldren (cailed lienerlictus, an dintinguishod from tha aecond part, known am Benedieto). This is maid duily.

On sunday no palins are alil; but three cunticles, ane in ench nueturn.

Mutins, nin Sunday, in nortwrn 1, seny of Iatiah ("Ile nucte rigilat," is. $x \times v i$ ) ; in nocturn 2, Somy of Ilawnth ( 1 Sam. ii.); In noetura 8 , in winter, Surby of II lethowh (ilab. iii.); in summer, Song of Jumah (Jun. ii.).
On Mondoy in the first reek Decuria i, (Feria $2^{n}$ in Helulomudu $1^{\text {mea }}$.)
Tuesday
Wednewlay
Thursding
Friday.
Suturday, in nocturn 1, Song of Moses (Ex. xv.) ; in nocturna 2 and 3, I $\mathrm{N}_{0}$ 118 [119], 1-88, said consecutively, but divided into parta, one in each nocturn.
On Munday in the second week. Decuris VI. Turadiy Wednesday Viii.

Thursdey
Friday
Sutuidey in ${ }^{\circ}$ X. (as in first week); in weturns 2 and 3, Ps. 118 [110], 89 ("In aeternum") to end, said as in the firat week.
The first decuria in said on Dlonday after Septuagesima Sunday, The regular course is interrupted by huly week (cailed outhentic week) and-Eanter week. Dec. $i_{\text {. }}$ is said on Munilay after Low Sunday (Fer. $2^{\wedge}$ pust albas). The eoures is again interrupted by Whitsunday and Corpus Chriati, with their octaves, und on the Friday after the octave of Corjus Christi, Dec. $x$, is said ; and so ou.

Lauls. On Sundays, Benedictus,(Song of Zachariah), Song of Moses ("Cuntemus," Ex. sv.), Benedicite, Pas. 148, 149, 150, 116 [117], a direct psahn ("Psalmus directus"), ac calied beenusp said straight through and not antiphonally, and sometimes a $p$ salin of four verscs, so called becnuse four verses only, aimost always the first four, are said.

On week days (exeept Saturdays), Benedictus, Pss. 50 [51], 148, 149, 150, 116 [117], a direct psalm, and a psalm of four veracs.

On Saturdays, Benedictus, Pas. 117 [118], $148,149,150,116$ [117], a direct psahm, and a psalm of four verses.
The direct paclins are these. They are the same fur both weeks,

Sunday, 92 [ 93$]$ (said also on festirals), Monday, 53 [54]. Tuesday, 66 [67]. Wednesday, $69[70]$. Thursday, 112 [113]. Friday, 142 [143]. Saturday, 89 [90].

The psalms of four verses are:-
Monday, in the first week, 5, vr. 1-4; in the second week, 83 [8+], vv. 1-4. Tueslay (in both weaks), 87 [88], vv. 1-4. Wednesdny, 66 [67], vv. 1-4. Thursday, 62 [63], vv. 1-4. Eriday, 107 [108], vv. 1-4. Saturday, 88 [89], vv. $1-4$.

On ordinary Sundays there is no psalm of four verses. The psalms at the other hours as geariy the anm beurs, and we paiter.
Irime, 53 [ 5 sald on $t$ wo), and heaied sym

These praitus week dayn. in feriali") 50 [ $$ 1$

Torce, 118 [ three, as in the werk lay ofilice, Sist, 118 [1 throe), in the precil.1rs."

Jone, 118 (1 said as throes).
"in precibus."
Feapers. The cat, are the amme tien of a paidm is apecial selano Mnuday, $8, ~ v v .1$ Weidnesslay, 30 [il], vv. 1-4. Snturday, 91 [ 0 Compline. The $1-6,90[91], 1$ Nunc dimittis, as "in presibus."
There is no di any of the hours The testal ar the foilowing po unchanged exce! measonk, when a extracts of psain arranged accordi is said.

On respers, at in course, two 133 [134] and '1 one gloriu, are sai
The direct psn vary. The psaim to the old Italian versionem"), ns the Vatican Basil
It wili not hav the connexion of Ehst, that the dec a close family jik Eavtern church, precibus "at the are among those in the Eastern Pt the office for Sat of the week is str
The Jozurabio that the psaims a first three week, days psaims are instead of the fix and a pasam is sai which they are tal many jasalms are like the whoie ps: so mulike what is thai soue have co of the pisalms a: dropped ont of ti and that in its

TSALMONY

PNALTER
rangerl: $=$
t In fen plaen three Chuldrea itd from the Thin is mand
d; but threa
$n 1$, Evan of in. xivi.) ; in (1 Sann. li.); If of $/ 1$ ibokkuh ony of Juwh

Decurla 1.
$\left.{ }^{m \mathrm{~m}}.\right)$ and $3, \mathrm{P}_{\mathrm{A}}$ recutively, e in aach
mearly the name as the Oregerinn for the mame heura, and were doubtlen tatea from that paalter.
frime, 53 [54], 118 [119] (tirst four seetions, sull an two ), Athmanias Creed (sald duly, and headed Symbotum).
These pxalnoy are maid daily on Sundiys and week dayk. In the reek diny office ("in olticlo ferlati") 50 [ $$ 1]$ in stid also "in precibus."

Terce, 118 [119] (next six sectiona, salit at three, as in the Gregorinn Panter). Also in the week day utice, 50 [51], "In precibuy," Sext, 118 [11:4] (next six sections, anid as three). in the week day otlice, 56 [57], "in precibiss."
None, 118 [119] (next, and lant, nix sections. asid as three), In the week day ofice, 85 [84], "in precibus."
lespers. The daily panima, including Mrynificat, are the same as the Gregorinn, with the addition uf a pactm of four verses on week days, and in spectal seisens on Sundays. These are-on Nomalay, 8, vv. 1-4. Tuenday, 14 [15], wv. 1-4. Welloesilay, 30 [31], vv. 1-4. Thurwiny, 36 [37], vv. 1-4. Friday, 74 [75], vv. 1-4. Saturday, 01 [i2], ve. i-4.
Compline. The daily paima are 4, 30 [31]. vr. $1-6,90$ [91], 132 [133], 133 [134], 116 [117], Nunc dimittis, , and in the week day ollice 12 [13], "In precibus."
There is no distinetion between the weeks in any of the heurs but matins and lauds.
The festal arrangement of psalms differs in the following points. The peulms at mutins are unchanged excent on a few specinl days and sensons, when a complicated series of psalins and estracts of psalms, of varylag numier, and not srranged aecording to their order in the Psalter, is ssid.

On respera, at festivals, instead of the paalms In course, two pasims, the latter followed by 133 [134] and "116 [117], the three suid under one gloric, are said at different parts of the otfice.
The direct psolms, and psaims of four verses, vary. The psalms throughout are said according to the old Italinn version (" Veterem septuagintn rersionem"), as in the breviary of the canens of the Yutican Basilica at Rome.
It will not have escaped notice, as hearing upon the connexion of the chureh of Milan with the East, that the denuria of the Ambrowinn rite have belose fumily likeness to the cuthismata of the Eastern church, and that the psalmes said "in precibus" nt the third, sixth, anil niath heurs ate mong these said at the corresponiting hours in the Eistern Pssilter. The ditlerence bet ween the office for Saturday and that for other days of the week is strong evidence of such connexion.
The Mozarabic rite has the strange peculiarity, that the psalns are never aaid in course. In the first three weeks of Lent, and on a few other days psalma are said at terce, sext, and none lastead of the fixed pssims, three at each hour ; and a psailm is sald at vespers, but the order in which they are taken is very irregular, and white may pralms are frequently rejperat"d, nothing like the whole paiter is snid. This peculiarity is so antike what is found in any other knowu rite thit some have conjectured that the distributiun of the psalms as said in regular course has dropped out of the breviary as we possess it; and that in its present shape it only contning the fixed pmalins at the daily heurn and thom for sperial days. This, however, as far as we are aware, is pure conjecture.

The following are the praimn assigned to the shyernl hones, The psalims are sili after the old vermion, and not aiter the l'ulgate.

At matins, l'ar, 3,30 [51], 56 [57], or one of them.

At limply, a canticle (varying), Benotictus (i.e. an abridgment of hoth prorts of the Somy of the Three Chdidren) not muid "in feriis ", 148 , 149,150 .

At ampora (anill before prime on week laya, throughout the year, "in diphous ferilis per tutum mnnum "), 69 [70], 118 [119] (" Leati immaculat1 "-"In quo corriget"-" ketribue ").
At prime, 88 [67], $1+4$ [145] (iin two), 112 $[113], 119$ [118] ("Adhaesit pavimento" "Levem pone"- "E.t veniat"), and on Sunday and festivals, To Derum.

At terce, 94 [9i], 118 [119] ("Memer esto""Portio mea"-" Bunitatem").
At sext, $52[33], 118[119]$ ("Feci julicium "" Mirabitin "-"Justus es bumine ").
At nom, $145[146], 121$ [122], 122 [123], 12:3 [124].

At eespers (no psalms on ordinary Sunilays and week drys).

At comptine, 4 (two Inst verses), 133 [134], 90 [91].

The later Weatern arrangements of the Paniter, such as those of Caridinal Quignon, or of the reformell french breviaries, besidles bring of lesa interest, are not within our limits of time.
[II. J. II.]
PSALITER. When we call tomind the una which has been made of the l'salms in both Jowish and (ihristian churches, we must expect to find distinct volumes containing th $\cdots \mathrm{m}$. Thus there are in the lodleinn Library alene eleven Hehrew MSS, coataining the Psalus without any other book, and in the main without note or commentary. It would seem evident that these MSS. were prepared for devotional use.
2. And so we find, even in the west of Europe, a few enrly MSS. containing the Psa'ms in Greek. The most fameus and the most beautiful of these is the Greek Psalter, in the Stalt-Bibliothek at Zirich, which Tischendorf roproduced in his Anecdut, Stera. In his, as in all other Greek Pralters, accorling to Zaccaria (Bistietheca litualis, p. 80), ell 1776), the l'sulms are followed by the ten canticles of the Greek church, as they are alse in the Alexamirina MS. Tischenderf mentions six sach psaltere. Of these the Veronese contains the Magnificat but not the song of Zachariah or of Simeon.
 the Alexandrine MS. and the three canticles from St. Luke. The others contain (apparently) the three canticles. Sonstimes, as in the Veronese Psalter. Isaiah xxvi. 9-20 is displaced for the hymn in Isaiah v. 1-9. (See CAsticres.)
3. The Greek Pailms were used in some of the monastic churches of Italy, and possibly of Trance, even as late as the 8th century, after these ehurches had become otherwise thoroughly Latinized. For this purpose copies of the Greek Paalms were made in which were reproduesd the Greek words in Latin letters; thus"Meta su e arche en imera tes dynameos su en te lamprotete ton agion." The oldest MS. of this character extant is the famons Veronese I'salter to which we have already referred, It is supposed to be of the 6th century. Its contents are printed by Bianchini in his Findicite, with a facsimile of two pages. The Septuagint. in Latin letters, is on the left page, the old "Itala" on the right. It contains the apoeryphal Psaln Pusillus eram in Greek and Latin, but this (in Bianchini's opinion) was ndded by a writer of the 7th century, Another famous psalter forms part of the Codex Seguerianus, the Paris mnnuscript of Cyprian (St. Germain des Près, 186, now Paris, $10,592)$. The Psalter was considered by the Benedictines to be of the 7 th century. ${ }^{\text {a }}$ It contains the Greek, and a Latin version "very different from ours" (Nouveau Traite, tom. iii. p. 55, note), in two columns. There is the latter portion of another psalter, Greek and Latin, at St. Gnll. (No. 17); this is of the 10th centary, It contains the Canticles, and also the Lord's Prayer and Apostles' Creed, nad also a Litany in Greek and Latin.

4. The Library of St. Germain des Près contained a benutiful MS., which, according to tradition, belonged to St. Germanus himself; the vellum is coloured purple. The letters are silver, except that the names of God are in gold ; it is now in the National Library in France, No. 11,947. A facsimile is giren by Silvestre, vol. ii. plate 113 . It is considered possibly to be of the 6 th century (see Bibliothèque de l'Eiole des Chartes, series vi. vol. iii. p. 3+3). It is represented as having the famous words"Dominus regnavit a ligno" (P6Rlm xcv.), whence it would appear that it contains either the old tranalation, or what is ealled the Roman version of Jerome. This Roman version was the result of Jerome's first attempt to correct the translation current in his day, which he did, according to his own account, after the Septungint "licet cursim" (Digne, xxix. 121). This was done at the request of pope Damasus; and it was in use at Rome for some centuries, and is still used at the Vatican Basilica. Indeed, the Canticles of the modern Breviary follow this version. It seems to have been brought into England with St. Augustine, and so was used at Canterbury. Copies are found in the British Museum, Vespasian A. 1 (to be described just now); Regius II. B. 5 ; and also in the Cambridge 1'salter, Ff. i. 23.
5. The Psalter, Vespasian A. 1, has peculiar interest. By comparing it, page by page, with the account of a volume described by Thomas of Elmham, as having been placed "super tabulam magni nltaris," at the church of the great monastery of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, there can be no doubt that it is the one that is so described; the contents correspond exactly in the two, although unfortunately the modern paging, which differs from the original reckoning of the folin, produces some confusion. It begins a Aater writers eay of the 8th century.

- The position of the volumes menttoned hy Fimhasm may be seen in the MS. in the ltbrary of Trintty Hall, Cambridge ; a copy of the drawing is given in Dugdate's Monasticon, under St. Auguatine's monsstery, Canterlury. The werk of Thomas of Etmham has been published th the erries of the Master of the Rolls, but unfortunately the drawligg was onitted.
with the tact "Omnis scriptura divinitus ine spirata," which is followed by the letter of Damasus to Jerome, and Jerome's reply. Then it contains an account of the varions books int 0 which the Psalms are divided: this nud ather similar matters fill up the first ten leaves. According to the aecount of Thomas, the eleveath leaf began with the text of the Psalter, having on it a picture of "Samuel the Priest." This leaf has been torn out, and so the first l'salm is missing, the next leaf beginning with I'sam ii. v. 4, "Qui habitat." The picture of Christ, which is now placed at the beginning of the volume, was clearly inserted at the biadiag, when the old silver figure of our Lord was removed, There are $n$ few curious drawings in the volume, and at the end of Psalm cl. there comes, apparently on an inserted leaf, the apocryphal P'salm "Pusillus erain." The canticles for the various days of the week follow, and the hymn "Benedicite," After that we have the song of Znchariah, the "Magnificat," and three old hymns: "Splendor paternae" for the matins, "Crentor omnium" for vespers, and the "Rex eterne" for Sundays. Here the original volume ended, but appended to it, at a confessedly later date, we find the "Te Denm," the "Fides Catholicn," and a few prayers. This volume has of course attracted great attention. Some account of it will be found in Professor Westwood's Palaeographia Sacra, No. 40, and in the same writer's Miniatures, p. 10, plate 3 . The early part of this MS. is supposed to be of the 8 th century, and so falls within our date. (It is sometimes spoken of as St. Augustine's Psalter.) The others which we have mentioned are assigned to the 10 th and 11 th respectively.

6. In the public library at Rouen there is 8 psalter which belonged originally to the abbey of St. Evioult in Normandy, and from that passed to the church of St. Ouen. An acconat of this is given in Silvestre, vol. iv., and in l'rof. Westwood's Miniatures, p. 81. The Benedictiees (Nouveau Traite, ii. 226) considered it to be of the 7th or 8th century ; Prof. Westwood of the 10th. It contains the two more recent traashations of Jeroms in parallel columns, the one which he corrected from the Septuagint version of Origen's Hexapla, and which, from its obtaining use north of the Alps, is ealled the Gallican Psalter and has subsequently been adopted in the Vulgate; the other, which he took direct from the Hebrew, and is therefore called the Hebraic. A marginal note, considered to be of the 11th century, has been found in the volume: "Hoc psalterium anglieum est, ut ipsa littera mnnifestat" (Notveau Traite, p. 383).

Of the Gallican Psalter we have numerous copies, because this version was adopted in the writiugschools of Charlemagne, after orders were given that every priest should possess his own psalter, There are several volumes containiag this version, of remarkable beauty and interest. One is in the libsary nt Vienan (No. 1861), nad is supposed to have been prepared by the order of Charlemagne for presentation to the pope Jadrian J. Ot this there is a long nccount in Kolzar's Cataligue, vol. 1. jp. $3+7-415$, and a facsimile in Silvestre, ii. 126 ; see, teo, Depis, 1. xxviii. Of mother beautiful copy notice has been given by the Palaeographieal Society (ses Plates lxix. lxx. xciil.); this scems to have beo.
longed to the emp third is in the great retains still the be: formed its origiaal Charles the Bald Another of almost ec collection at Oxfurd the library of Corpu (No. 272, 0. 5, It dehadeus). The san la the celebrated psai belonged to the Cott the library at Utrec much prefatory mat degree to tinat in $V$ however, the creeds Gregory of Neocacsa) Ambrose, together creed. They all, or a series of Canticles, "Quicunque vult," th Apocryphal psalm, ${ }^{\circ}$ Lothair and Charles C. C. C. library, con deed, their original There is another MS. 13,159, which contains together with prayers and copies of two litar "Litabia calula," and lica." If this MS. is litauies it contains, we between A.D. 795 nad It contains the Athuna
8. At a period somen fittention was paid to $S$ and several psalters are hare two or three in $p$ one, indced, in the Vat which was given to it b assigeed by some nuthori eres the 5th century. and Hebrew in parallel of Trin. Coll. Cumbrilg able size and beauty, three rexsions, with no sppeces nud margies. A it in most respects (bein in the library at Paris tre gives a notice in furmer of these has repr of the Utreeht Psalter, of the drawings.
Further information be found in Prof. Westw An ofecount of an hinport given by Dr. Schönteld Nov. 1865, This has, Gallican, Romana, and H, Greek in. Latin letter: Thoansius' Psalter, publi 1697, and in his colle terium Vuincuplex of J. I by Herry Stephens, 150 the three versions of $\mathrm{J}_{\mathrm{e}}$ appendix the Vetus and terium Conciliatum," an resion from the Gallican the truth and the Hebre Britlsh Museum promises longed to the emperor Lothair, A.D. 825. A third is in the great library nt Paris (1152), and retains still the beautiful ivory plaques which formed its original binding. This belooged to Charles the Bald (see Silvestre, ii. 129, 131) Another of almost equal beauty is in the Duuce collection at Oxford (No. 59), and a fitth is in the lihrary of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (No. 272, 0.5. It belonged to a certain count Achadeus). The same Gallicau versiou is found In the celebrated psalter Claudius C. vii., which belonged to the Cotton collection, but is now in the library at Utrecht. The Vieuna copy has much prefatory matter, corresponding in some degree to that in Vespasian A. 1, including, however, the creeds of St. Gregory of Rome, St. Gregory of Neocaesarca, of "Jerome" and St. Ambrose, together with the genuiue Nicene creed. They all, or almost all, contain the full series of Cauticles, the "Te Deum," the "Quicunque vult," the "Lord's Prayer," and the Apocryphal issalm. ${ }^{\circ}$ The MSS. assigned to Lothair and Charles the Bald, and that in the C. C. C. library, contain litanies by which, indeed, their origizal ownership is established. There is auother MS. in the library at Paris, No. 13,159, which contains the same Gallican version, together with prayers belonging to each psalim, and copies of two litanies, of which one is called "Litauia calula," and the other "Litnuia Galice." If this MS. is contemporary with the litanies it eontains, we must assign it to soure date between A.D. 795 and 800. It is probably later. It contains the Athannsian creed.

[^125]
PSALTER

8. At a period somewhat below our date, great attention was paid to St. Jerome's three versions, and several psalters are in existecee in which we hare two or three in parallel columns. There is one, indeed, in the Vatican library (Regin. xi.) which was given to it by queen Christina, nud is assigned by some nuthorities to the 7 th, the 6th, or eren the 5th eentury. This contains the Gallicau and Hebrew in parallel columns. In the library of Trin. Coll. Cambridge is a volume of remarkable size and beauty, in which are found the three versions, with notes in the intermediate spaces and margins. A volume corresponding to it in most respects (being almost a faesimile) is in the librar'y at Paris, No. 8846; of this Siltre gives a notice in vol. iii. no. 188. The former of these has reproductions of the drawings of the Utrecht Psalter, and the latter has rome of the drawingg.
Further ioformation as to later psalters will be found in Prof. Westwood'e works, nbove cited. An arcount of an important Bamberg psalter is given by Dr. Scliontelder in the Serapeum of Nor. 1865. This has, in four columns, the Gallican, Roman, and Hebraic versions, and the Greek in' Latin letters. See, too, Cardinal Thonasius' Psaltor, published separately at Rome, 1697, and in his colleeted works. The l'sciterium Quincuplex of J. Le Fevre, published first by Henry Stephens, 1509, contains in the text the three rersions of Jerome, and in a kind of appendix the Vetus and what he ealla "Psalterium Conciliatum," nn attempt to produce a the truth from the Gallican agreeling " more with British Museum promises a work on this subject,

[^126]Some notes on more recent valumas will be found in the writer's volume on the creeds, Murray, 1872, chaps. xxiii, and xxiv. Copies of Jerome's Roman and Gallican translations, with the "obeli" and asterisks, will be faund in Migne, vol. xxix. pp. 110-420; of the Hebraic in vol. xxyiii. pp. 1183-1306. The last is also given from the Codex Amiatinus, in the notes of the edition of the Vulgate by Tischendorf, Leipsic, 1873. An interesting account of the Psalterium Aureum of St. Gall (no. 26) has been recently published by the Historienl Society of St. Gall, but it is mainly oceupied with its palneographical and artistic characteristica.
[C. A. S.]
PTOLEMAIS (in Cyrenaica) or Tolometta, Diocesan Synod of, a.d. 411, under Synesius, at which Andronicus, prefeet of the Libyan Pentapolis, was excommunieated for his cruelty. The letter of Synesius, announcing this to the other bishops, is extant (Mansi, iv.
$1-8$ ).
[E. S. Ff.]
PTOLOMAEUS (1), martyr with Lucius and Tertius, buried at Alexandria; commemorated Oct. 19 (Vet. Rom. Mart.; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Oct. 8, $399 . \quad$ Prolemaecs). Aug. 23
(Wand.).
(2) Martyr with Ammon and others at Alex nudrin; commemorated Dec. 20 (Usuard. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Jart. ; Blart. Rom.). (Buard. Mart.;
[C. H.]
PUBLIA, deaconess, confessor under the emperor Julian ; commemorated Oct. 9 (Basil.
[C. H.]
PUBLIUS (1), bishop of Athens; commemorated Jan. 21 (Usuard. Mart.; Vet. Rom. Mart.; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. 2, 338).
(2) Commemorated Jan. 25 (Cal. Byzant.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan, 2, 622).

(3) Commemornted with Julianus in Africa, Feb. 19 (Ueuard., Wand., Hicron. Mart.).
(4) One of the martyrs of Saragosea; commemorated Ap. 16 (Usuard. Mart.).
(5) Soldier, martyr under Licinius; commemorated Ap. 26 (Basil. Menol.); Ap. 25 (Boll. Acta SS. Ap. 3, 361).
[C. H]
PUDENS, disciple of St. Paul ; cemmemorated Ap. 14 (Cal. Byzant.) ; Ap. 15 (Daniel, Cod. Liturg. ir. 257, with Aristarchua and Trophimus; Basil. Menol.); May 19 (Vct. Rom. Mart., Prudens; Usuard. Mart.; Mart. Rom., a Roman senator). His figure, holding a roll, orvameuts a church gate in Ciampini (Vet. Mfon. i. 28, 2).
[C. H.]

PUGILLARIS. Ono of the names of the Fisfula or tube through which tho wine in Holy Communion was imbihed. Thus the Ordo Romunus i. (p. 5), describiug the papal Mhas on Easter Day, mentlons "ecyphos et pugillares" among the vessels to be carried to the church in which the Mass is to he said.
[..]
PULCHERIA, empress, commemorated with Ireue, Ang. 7 (Basil. Menol.) ; Sept. 10 (Mart. Nom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Scpt. 3, 503). [C. H.]

PULPITUM, [Амво.]

PUNISHMENTS. [Corporal Punishment; Dischiline; Fine; Penitence.]

PURIFICATION OF THE ALTAR. VESSELS. 1 know of no reference to the subject in any document within our period. It is noticed, however, in the general instructions given to parish priests in the West at the visitation of the bishop in the 9th or 10th ceuturies, and we may presume thst the practice which they prescribe had been in some degree observed previously. In the Sermo Synodulis, ascribed to Leo IV. 847, but perhaps later, we read, "Wash and wipe the holy vessels with your own hands . . . Let' a place be prepared in the sacrarium (secretarium, Rather.; Admon. Synod. below) or near the altar, where the water may be poured out when the sacrel vessels are washed, and there let a clean vessel with water be hung, and there let the priest wash his hands atter' the communion" (Hard. Concilia, vi. 785). The same directions appear also in a very early recension of this document priated by Baluze (Admonitio Synodatis, ad calc. Reginon. de Discipl. Eicel. 502 ), and in the Synodica of Ratherius, A.b. 928 (Hard. u.s. 790). They have also been preserved in the later pontificals of Rome (Regin. u.s. 505, 508). Yet the order that the celebrant should himself cleanse the vessels could hardly have been general, for in the 11th century we find John of Avranches, about 1060, assigniog this office to the deacon (Epist. ad Maurilium, in App. ad Opp. Greg. M. li. 256, ed. Ben.).

> [W. E. S.]

PURIFICATION, FESTIVAL OF THE. [Mary, Festivals of, § 1, p. 1140.]
PURPURA. The baod or stripe of purple used as an ornament in the dreases of the anciente. [Claveus.] Caesarius of Arles, in his rules for nuns, forbids them to use "vestimenta lucida vel nigra vel cum purpurs," &c. (Rey. ad Virg. Recip. 7 ; Patrol. Ixvii. 1118). A canon of the second council of Nicaes ( 787 A.D.), in ordaining that clerics should dress plainly, adds that anciently they did not wear variegated Labbe, vii. 609). Another illustrstion of the practice is furnished us by Gregory of Tours, who dwells on an incident where a mafors - holoserica is turned into an altar-cloth, a strip torn off being used for the above-mentioned decoration (Hist, Franc. x. 16; Patrol. Ixxi. 548).

[R. S.]
PUSICIUS, martyr in Persia; commemorated Ap. 21 (Vet. Rom. Mart. ; Mart. Rom.; Usuard. Mart. Pusities).
[C. H.]

PUZA, COUNCIL OF. [PEruza.]

PYLORI. [Doorkeeper ; Ostiarius.]

PYNITUS inter episcopos nobilissimus; commemorated at Crete Oct. 10 (Vet. Rom. Mart.).
[C. H.]
PYTHON. The word is connected with the Hebrew $\ \cap \mathrm{~V}$, pethen, a venomous serpent, whioh is rendered in the Septuagint by 'Aoris, Deut. ixxii. 33; Job xx. 14; Ys. Iviii. 4; Isainh xi. 8 ; by $\Delta p d \kappa \omega \nu$, in Job xx. 16 ; and by Baбı入loкos.
in Pa. xcl. 13, b. v. Throughout the East evil spirits received names from this reptile, sn usage originating, we cannot doubt, in traditions of the event recorded in Gen. iii.. In Scripturs itself" we have "the great dragon . . . that old serpent called the devil" (Rev, xii. 9; xx. 2). One result was that the attributes of the demon and the serpent were interchanged. Hencs the python slain by Apollo at Delos was thought to have inspired the oracle before the giul took his place: "Pythone serpente interfecto totius vaticinationis suctore et priucipe" (Orusius, adv. Pagın. Hist. -vi. 15); "Ante Apollinem responsa dare solitus" (Hyginus, Fubul. 140). Heace, also, it was that both in Jewish and Christian antiquity the name of python was given to prophesying spirits. Hesychius says, пú $\theta \omega \nu \cdot \Delta a \neq \delta \nu 10 \nu \mu a \nu \tau \iota \kappa \delta \nu$. In Acts xvi. 16, we read of "a certain damsel, who had a spirit of python" (in Eustathius, de Engastrim. 11, tiv have, "Vir aut mulier in quibus pythonicus rel divinationis fucrit spiritus." Compare Deut. xviii. 11; 1 Sam. xviii. 7, 8 (Eustath. u. s. 20 , $\pi v \theta \delta \mu a \nu \tau(s) ; 2$ Kings xxiii. 24; 1 Chron. $x$. 13, "pythonissam"; Isaiah vii. 19 ; xix. 3.

The lower animals were supposed to be subject to this possession. In the time of Justinian there was a dog at Constantinople that would scratch op and retura to their several owners rings of iron and gold that had been buried together; and indicate correctly the characters of men and women in a erowd,-" on which sccount they said that the dog had a spirit of python" (Cedrenus, Hist. Compend. i. 657, ed. Nieb.).

Among modern writers consult especia'ly J. B. Deane, The Worship of the Serpent traced throughout the World, Lond. 18.30; L.co Allatius, de Engastrimutho Syntayma, sppendel to Eustathius, u. s.; J. H. Heidegger, Dissertatio de Pseudo-samuele, Tigur. 1675.
[W.E. S.]
 pyxida, a box). In ecclesiastical asage the box in which the host is reserved after cunsecration. The word is used in this sense in a decree of pope Leo IV.,. A.D. 847-855 (Labbe and Mansi, Concil. ed. Venet. t. lxiv. 1. 891), "Super altare nihil pouetur nisi capsae cum reliquiis sanctorum aut pyxis cumCorpore Domiai ad viaticum pro infirmis." In the first Ordo Romanus (Migne, vol, lxxviii.), in the part which contains the detail of the order of the procession before the celebration of the Eucharist by the pope, the passage occurs, "duo acolythi tenentes capsas cum sanctis apertas." This is geneally interpreted to meas vessels in which the Eucharist was placed; but a comparison with the decree of pope Leo IV, seems to make it doubt tul whether such is the true meaning. [Eeseavatiox.]

It is the opinion of many writers that the earliest receptacles for the reserved purtion of the Eucharist were vessels in the form of a dove [Dover, Eucuaristic], but such was prohably not invariably the case; and the round buxes formed from a section of an elephant's tooth, dating from various periods, from the 4th to the ith century, nearly all of which bear sculptured on them subjects which may be held to have some reference to the eucharistic sacrifice, have heen ( 0 , ubserfotions by Padre Garrucci, Archeolojia, vol. aliv
p. 322) confident this purpose. Su the case in some in that the subjects would be well su for a brandeum from St. Gregory' ep. 30) to the emp bis period, the cu sod was habitually are as follows : "C Domas quia Roma Sanctorum reliqui praesumant de cor brsadeum mittitur Sanctorum ponitus quae est dedicanda ditur."
One which we ca made for the purpo (or possibly a vessel engraved and com (rol, xliv, p. 321). martyrdom of St. a glorified condit examples of such b one in the museum and Adonis; on ano treasury of the cat and a like subject is Of those which bea liest and finest is the one side of which is Isac, on the other ou This is probably as e
In this instance appropristeness of amployed in connex in the former it is (Fictile Ivories, p. 2 to be Christ sented of the figures would pressing in through so elderly baldheade gesture of surprise, point to our Lord's Several examples pr the raising of Lazaru the three Hebrew y various miracles of o msy be thought to $r$ the Euchurist, but n pyxides containing br places in Palestine.
These boxes appear 4th to the 7th centu 34 inches to 5 inche several have had I of St. Menas. A lock the use of a pyx as a receptacle for the $h$ have stolen a ralic ateal a hast.
It is difficult to fine restricted sense) car either by inscriptions clearly their destinatio numbers of pyxes mad. In the 11th) and 13 moges, of copper enam usmally circular, with 8 inches in diameter.
the East evil reptile, sn in tralitions In Seripture that old i. 9 ; xx. 2). utes of the nged. Hence was thought the goif took rfecto totius e" (Orasius, e Ajollinem Fabul. 140), Jewish and python was syclius says, ts xui. 16 , we Id a spirit of trim. 11, тijv v. xx. 27, we ythunicus rel mpare Deut. tath. u. s. 20 1 Chron. x. ; xix. 3. I to be subject of Justinian e that would everal owners been buried he charactets -" on which ad n spirit of u. i. 657, ed. uder to EostaDissertatio de latin, pyxis, usage the bor 1 ritter consehis sense in a 47-855 (Labbe lxiv. 1. 891) ii capsae cum Corpore Domini the first Ordo the part which ' the pracession tharist by the olythi tenentes is is genersily $h$ the Eucharist h the decree of ulbtful whether arvation.] rs that the enrportion of the orm of a dere as prohably not whoxes formed th, dating from he ith century, ed on themsubsome reference eea (v. obserris rojia, vol. xliv
[W.E. S.]
p. 322) confidently supposed to have served for this purpose. Such may very possibly have been the crse in some instances; but it must be observed that the subjects carved upon many of them would be well suited to appenr on a receptacle for a BRANDEUM or cloth, which, as we learn from St. Gregory's (the pope) letter (Eip. lib. iv. ep. 3n) to the empress Constantina, was, down to bis period, the customary substitute for a relic, and was habitually enclosed in a pyxis. His words are as follows: "Cognoseat autem tranquilissima Domna quia Romanis constretudo non est quando Sanctorum reliquias dant ut quidquanm tangere prsesumant de corpore'sed tantummodo in pyxide brandeum mittitur atque ad sacratissima corpora Sanctorum ponitur. Quod levatum in ccclesia quae est dedicanda debita cum veneratione reconditur."
One which we can acurcely doubt to have been made for the porpose of containling a brandeum (or possibly a vessel of oil) is that which has been engraved and commented on in the Archeologia (vol. xliv. p. 321). On it are two subjects, one the martyrdom of St. Menas, the other the saint in a glorificd condition [Reliquary]. Several examples of auch boxes bear secular subjects, as one in the moseum at Zairich, on which are Venus and Adonis ; on another is Bacchus; on one, in the treasury of the cathedral of Sens, a lion hunt; nad a like subject ia on one in the British Museum. Of those which bear Christian aubjects, the earliest and finest is that in the maseum at Berlin, on one side of which is Abraham about to sacrifice Isaac, on the other our Lord teaching in the Temple. This is probnbly as early as the 4 th century.
In this instance it is difficult to see the appropriateness of the latter subject to $n$ vessel employed in connexion with the Eucharist, though in the former it is obvious. By Mr. Westwood (Fictilc Ivories, p. 272) the second subject is said to be Christ seated among His apostles; but one of the figures would seem to be that of a woman pressing in through a crowd, and the next figure sn elderly baldheaded man raising a hand with a gesture of surprise, figures which would seem to point to our Lord's teaching in the Temple. Several examples present the history of Jonah the raising of Lazarus is found upon at least five ; the three Hebrew youths in the furnace on one, various miracles of our Lord on others. All these may be thought to refer in some way or other to the Eucharist, but most would be applicable to pyxides containing brandea or oils from the holy places in Palcatine.
These boxes appear to vary in date from the 4th to the 7 th century, and in size from about $3 \frac{1}{2}$ inches to 5 inches in dlameter and height; several have had locks; among them that of St. Menas. A lock is perhaps an indication of the use of a pyx as a reliquary rather than as a receptacle for the host, for while many would have stolen a relic few would have dared to steal a host.
It is difficult to find examples of pyxes (in the restricted sense) carlier than A.D. 800 which, either by inacriptions or ornamentation, indicate clearly their destination. We find, however, great numiners of pyxes made in the 12 th (some possibly In the 11 th ) and 13 th centuries, chiefly at Li moges, of copper enamelled and gilt. These are osanlly circular, with a conical cover, and abont 8 inches in diameter.
[A. N.]

QUADRAGESIMA. [Lent.]

QUADRAPOLA. This wori, whose meaning is quite uncertain, often occurs in Anatasius bibliot hecrrius. He tells us (e, g.) that Adrian I. made tor the charch of St. Peter "cortinas . . . de palliia stauracinio seu quadrapolis" (p. 320 ). It has been suggested that by the name is to be understood pieces of cloth, in whose four corners gold or ailken threads are interwoven. This, however, seems nothing more than a guess. Reference may be mado to Ducange's Clossary, 8. $\mathbf{v}$.
[R. S.]
QUADRATUS (1), martyr under Valeriun at Corinth, commemorated Mar. 10 ( Cab Byzant. ; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 255).
(2) Disciple of the apostles, bishop of Athens, May 26 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Ronn., Notker. ; Acta SS. Boll. Mal. v. 357).
(3) Martyr in Africa, May 26 (Mart. Usuard., Hieron., Vet. Rom., Notker.).
[C. H.]
QUARTA, martyr, June 2 (Mart. Hicron., Wet. Rom. Murt., Notker.), one of the martyrs of Lyons.
[C. H.]
QUARTILLA, commemorsted at Surrentum Mar. 19, with Quintus, Quintilla, and others (Mart. Adon., Hieron., Vet. Rom. ; Bas. Men.).

QUARTUS (1), martyr at Rome with Quintus and others; commemorated May 10 in the cemetery of Praetextatus (Jart. Úsuard., Hieron., Vet. Rom.; Bas. Men.).
(2) Martyr under Decius wlth Feliciasimus and others; commemorated Aug. 6 in the cemetery of Praetextatus (Mart. Usuard.).
(3) Disciple of the apostles; commemorated Nov. 3 (Murt. Adon., Vet. Rum. ; Bas. Men.).
(4) "Apostle," one of the Seventy ; cominemorated Nov. 10 with Olympas and others (Bas. Men.; Cal. Byzant.).
[C. H.]
QUERCUS (or the OAK), Symod of, A.d. 403. [Chalcedon, Councils of (1), p. 333.]

QUINIDIUS, bishop of Vaison'; commemorated Keb. 15 (Usuard. Mart., Vet. Rom. M irt., Boll. Acta SS., Feb. ii. 827).
[C. H.]

QUINISEXTUM CONCILIUMI. [CONstantinople (34), p. 444.]

QUINQUAGESIMA. [Pentecost.]

QUINTIANUS (1), martyr with Purthenius and others in Armenia; commemorated Ap. 1 (Mart. Hieron., Notker.).
(2) Presbyter and Confessor, June 14 (Usuard. Mart. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jud. ii. 960). [C. H.]

QUINTILIANUS (1), martyr with Paulus, Matutious, and others; commemorated Ap. & (Mart. Notker. ; Mart. Hieron.).
(2) Martyr, Ap. 16. [Saragossa, Martyrs OF. 3
[C. H.]
QUINTILLLA, martyr, commemorated Mar,

RAGAE

19 at Surrentum (Vet. Rom. Mart.; Adon. Mtart.) ; Qunvtillus (Mart. Hicron., Mart. Usuard. ; Boll. Actit SS. Murt. iii. 27). [C. 11.]

QUINTINUS (1), martyr ; inventio commemorated Jun. 24 (Flor. Mart.).
(2) Martyr in Gaul under Maximi.n ; commemorated Oct. 31 (Mart. Bed., Usuard.).
[C. H.]
QUINTUS (1), martyr in Africa with Aquilinus and Geminus; commemorated Jau. 4 (Jfart. Hieron., l'et. Hom., Notker.).
(2) Martyr; commemorated at Surrentum M:r. 19 (Mart., Usuard, Adon., Hicron.; Vct. Rom. Murt.; Notker.; Boll. Actu SS. Mar. iii., 27.).
(3) Martyr, May 10 (Mart. Usuard., Hicron.).
(4) Martyr, Sept. 5 ; commemorated at Capua with Areontius mad Donatus (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Hieron., Boll. Sep. ii. 526).
[C. H.]
QUilliacus (1) (Judas), bishop of Jerusalem; commemorated May 1 (Mart. Bed., Hieron.) May 1 and 4 (Notker.).
(2) Martyr, June 21 (Mart. Usuard., Hieron.).
(3) Murtyr, Ang. 12 (Jfart. Usuard.; Boll. Acta SS. Aug. ii. 702).
(4) Martyr, Aug. 23, at Rome, with Hippolytus and Arehilaus (Mart., Adon., Usuard., Vet. Liom.; Boll. Actu SS., Aug. iv. 565). [C. H.]

QUIRILLUS, martyr, Mar. 11. [Sebaste, Fonty Martyrs of.]

QUIRINUS (1), tribune and martyr, father of Ballina; commemorated at Rome Mar. 30 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS.; Mart. iii. 811).
(2) Martyr at Rome; commemorated at Rome Ap. 30 with Clemens, Lucianus, and others (Mart., Adon., Hieron., Waad.; Boll. Acta SS. Ap. iii. 750).
(3) Bishop and martyr; commemorated at Siscia Jun. 4 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Mieron., Vet. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jun. i. 381).
(4) Martyr with Nicasius and Pientis in the Vexin; Oct. 11 (Sfart. Usuard.).
[C. H.]
QUIRIO, maityr, Mar. 11. [Sedaste, Forty Martyrs or.]

R

RACANA, a word whose spelling is ns varied as its meaning is disputed. Thus Gregory the Great, in the two passages we have cited below, spells it on one occasion racana, on another rachana. The former spelling is that found in Ennodius, the latter that in Anastasius Bibliothecarius. In the Regula Magistri, and the remalning passages referred to bliow, it is spelt rachina.

It seems to us most likely that the racana was some kind of ring or blanket, not, apparently, of the thicker or coarser kind. The following order from the Regula Magistri tells pretty strongly for both polnts, " in lectis habeant . . . . et ladas, in aestate vero pro lanis vachiais propter aestus utantur" (c. 81, P'atrol. Ixxxviii. 1631: eited in the Concordia Refularum, I'utrol. ciii. 1205, where sec Menaril's note). On one veciand we tind Gregory the Great sealing a present of thirty racume with lueme and lecti ; on anather he receives a present of two (Greg. Mag. Eipist. xi. 1, 78 ; Patrol. Ixxvii. 1119, 1210, where the notes may be referred to).
It was made of hair cloth (r. cilieino), sometimes at any rate (lita S. Radejundis, c. 4 ; Putrol. Isxii. 666). It was a thing wurth stealiog (Audoenus, Vita S. Etifiii, ii. 38 ; I'atrol. Ixxxvii. 570). This last was a r. caprint valle optimu, nad perhaps therefore better than the ordinary run, for in Anastasius we read of fiver rachuncllae being sold numismute uno. $\ln$ s later passage the association cuin storeis et rachauis is importint for the view which we havealopted as to the meaning of the word. It ought to be added, as seemingly contlicting with the liegula Mayistri, that the words following the abovecited clause are per totam hiemem (Iita Johanis Elcemos. 9, 52 ; Patrol. 1xxiii. 356, 363). The word is also used by Enoodius (Epist, ix, 17 ; Patrol. 1xiii. 156), who asks that a lucm and racana, which are to be presented to him, shall be "coloris rubei aut lusci." On a survey of the foregoing passages it will be seen that somuthing of the nature of blanket makes very good sense throughout. The same can hardly be saill of some other views. Thus Sirmond (Enoolius, not. in loc.) thinks it must be some kiad of boot, by assuming that ricanae are the same as ruyue [Ragae], and that these latter are boots, becaure the Theodosian Code prohibits them in compayy with Tsangae, which certainly are boots! Ducange's theory is equally unsatisfactory, which explains it of a patched and worn dress, such as monks would wear, thus deriving it from $\rho$ doos. It is hard on this theory to understand such an allusion as that we have citel, where a ratham is called valde optima, and is thought quite worth stealing, or to explain several passages distinctly connecting it with bed furniture. Other views which explain the word as a kind of breeches, or as something worn round the neck, need not be discussed, in the absence of anything like eridence in support of them.

Besides the notes we have already mentioned, reference may be made to Rosweyd, Onomastion in Vitas Putrum, s. v. (Putrol. lxxxiv. 489), aud Ducange's Glossainum, s. y.
[P. S.]
RADEGUNDIS, ST., queen, Ang. 13, conmemorated at Poitiers (Mart. Usuard., Hieroh, Flor., Wandalb. ; Boll. Acta SS. Aug. iii. 46).
[C. H.]
RAGAE. The Theodosian Code (lib. xir., tit. $10,1.3$ ), in a law put forth by Ilonorius in A.D. 399 , forbids the weariog within the eity of rupae and tsangae. [Tsangae.] The meauing of the former word is very doubtful. The preceling law, issued two jears earlier, had prohibited the wealing of brachae and tsangue; and thus one theory has been to real brachace in buth passsges. This view, not very probable in itselif, is rendered still less so by the existerice of a diminative ragella (Ducange, Ghossarium, s. v.). Others connect it with $\dot{\beta} \alpha \kappa \eta$, $\beta d \kappa ı a$, and illustrite it by such words as pakoঠuteiv, pakevoutciv. Thil would give us the so-ealled trom its This view also se seeing that the ohj be to put down the Rome, under a pe property and per' a monkish dress i harmonize with the the penalty in th proportion. Other deriving it from $\rho$ Giloss:rium Graceum erer, that the prohil thing too special general word. (Se Ducange, Glossarith RAGNULFUS, morated in Artois S. Mni. vi. 717).

RaILS. [Canct
RAM. The Ram a spmbol on Christ secms to be gromal ployed to symbolize fied by the Lamb. taya that it is used even by those who d aml finds in the tleec the "clothing-upon" in his defence of the symbol of Clurist's lealing the flock, a s. aulee ; in his substitu the one sacrifice; in ehearers (ls. liii. 7), a Christ. And anothe (I'rosper de Promiss. ) the "thicket" a type Whers found on fion having any refarence t ased as a symbol of fo meant to "fight manf de Rome, v. iii. pl. 8); of eacorraging themse reliant animal in times seen to have worn rings the stone. It may b fice to face, with a cro an uncommon symhol, capitals of collumns iu brase and St. Celsus Scr. Mon. di Milano, te (Msrtigny; Dict. des
RAPHAEL, archan
RATISBON, COUS Mrs Mansi (xii. 699), b which Pepin died, it co held for another year or ander his son Charles, in a Inter capitulary as subiject of country bisl another source that it di ing any episeropal functio ordined by three bishop,
(2) A.D. 792, attenle
nat . . . . et tinis propter xxviii. 16131: l'atrot, ciii. one oce:sum a jresent uf ; on ancther Mac. E'pist. 0 , whers the 'icinc), someundis, e. 4 ; thing werth i. 38 ; Putrol. xprint etter that the read of thur tho. In eis et rachanis have alopted - ought to be $h$ the liegula g the :iloreveVita Johumuis ; 363). Thie Cpist. 1x. 17 ; a lacmat and him, shall he urvey of the iat something ry good sease ly be sain of d (Ennolins, kind of boot, same us ragne boots, becaure a in company boots! Duactory, which dress, sach as it from pakos. tand such au ere a rashuna it quite worth Iges distinetly Other views of breeches, or , need not be ling like evi-dy meutioned, , onomastion xiv. 489), and
[R. S.]
Ang. 13 , eomtard., Hieron, g. iii. 46).
[C. H.] (lib. xir., tit. norius in A.D. eity of rupae eaning of the The preceding prohibited the and thus one buth |rsseges. elf, is readered a diminutive v.). Others llostante it by סuteîl. Thit would give us the menning of a monkish clonk socalled trom its apparently ordinary condition This view also seems komewhat unsatisfictory recing that the object of the two laws appears to be to put down the wearing of forcign dresses in Rome, unifer a pepalty of total coafiscation of preperty and perpetual exile. The theory that a menkinh dress is intended does not seem to hurmonize with the direct object of the law, and the penaity in this case would be out of all proportion. Others, again, would read ruchac, deriving it from foûov, in garment (1)ucange, Giosseriuin Graccum, s. v.). It seems to us, however, that the prohibition appears nimed at something tho special to be satisfied by a quite general word. (See Gothotirelus, not. in loc.; Ducange, Glossarium, s. v.)
[R. S.]
RAGNULFUS, martyr, May 27, commemorntell in Artois (Mart. Usunrd.; Boll. Acta S., Mni. vi. 717).
[C. H.]

RAILS. [Canceleti]

RAM. The Rnm is not unfrequentl 5 used as a armbol on Christian monuments, and there becms to be ground for thinking that it was emplaped to symbolize other ideas than those signitied by the Lamb. St. Ambrose (ED. INiii.) tays that it is used as a symbol of the Word, even ly those whon deny the coming of Christ, muld finds in the Heece of the rain a symbol of the "clothing-upon" of Christinus (2 Cor. v. 2); in his defence of the Hock agninst the wolf, a synibol of Christ's victory nver Satna; in his lealing the floek, n symbol of the Divine guidalce; in his sulstitution for Isanc, a symbol of the ne saerifice; in his dumbness before his shearers (ls. liii. 7), a symiol of the meekness of Christ. And nunther linther of the Chureh (Irosper de Promiss. Dei, pars 1, c. x rii.) sees in the "thicket" a type of the crown of thorns. Where found on funts nul other monuments hasing any referenee to bnytism, it was prebably used as s symbel of force, and ns an ens:ourage de Rome, viii. pl. 8); and under the snme idea of encoraraging themselves with the device of a raliant nuimal in times of persecution, Christians seem to hnve worn rings with a ram engraved upon the stone. It may be nided that two rams fice to face, with a cross between them, are not an uncommon symhol, and may be seen on t!ee eapitals of celumns in the churches of St. Ambrise and St. Celsus at Milan (Allegranza, Sucr. Mon. di Milano, tar. vii. ete.).
(Martigny, Dict. des Antiq, chret., s. v. Belier.)
RAPHAEL [E.C. H.]
, Dec. 9 (Cal. Ethiop.).
[C. H.]
RATISBON, COUNCILS OF. (1) A.D. 768 , ury Minasi (xii. 699), but this being the year in which Which Pepin diel, it could not well have been held for another year or more, to have been held under his son Chniles, who seems to refer to it ina inter capitulary as having legislated on the enbject of country bishops. We learn from another source that it disallowed their performing nny episcopal functions, unless they had been ordained by thres bishops, ordained by thres bishops.
(2) A.D. 792, attended by king Chnrles; at which Felix bishop of Urgel in Spain, was first condemned, for prepagating the heresy called Adoptionisin (Mansi, xiii. 855). Adoptionism (Mansi, xiii. 855).
(3) a.m, 798, when a bull of Leo III., corffirm (3) A.D. 798, when a bull of Leo III., confirmeity to the church of St. Stephen, if genuine, was received (Mansi, ijul. 993 and Hartzeim, i. 335).
[1., S. Ff.]
RAVENNA, SYNOD OF. moned by the emperor Honerius fury settling the contention between Boniface and Eulalius for the see of liome, vacated by the death of pope Znsimus; which it failed to do (Mansi, iv. 399-402).
[E. S. Ff.]
READER. [inagnostes, p. 79; Ordinaion, pp. 1506, 1509.] TLON, pp. 1506, 1509.]
REBAPTIZATION. [Baptism, Iterationt of, p. 172.]

REBRACHIATORIUM. We once meet with this word in Casslan's description of the monastic dress (De Coenob. Inst. i. 6; Patrol. xlix. 71), where, from the number of synonyms neel to describe the article (avaßoinal, succiur toria, redimicula), It may fairly be said with Gazaeqs (in inc.) to be "obscuratus potius quam illustrotus." It would seem to ment some sort of cords or bands (resticulare duplicre) passiag over the neek and down the two sides, being then so fastened ns to hold the garments together, while leaving the artns free. See Isidore (Etym. xix. loc, 5 , where Cassian is cited), Gazzaeus (not. in loc.), ond Ducange's Glossary, s. v. [R. S.]

RECEPTORIUM. [Salutatoritm.]

RECLINATORIUM. [STAFF.]

RECLUSE. [HERMT, p. 771.]

RECONCILIATION OF PENITENTS

This was the last stage in the discipline of Pbsi TENCE. By it the penitent was fully restored to all the saered privileges which he had forfeited This restoration was expressed by diflerent terms. Tertullinn uses the phrases, "veniam, abolitionem delictorum, indulgentiam, remissionem, concessimem, \&c., sacranentum benedictionis, paeis redlitionem, conmunicationem." Virth Cyprian the ordinary expressions are, "pacem dare, nccipere, ad pacem admitti, communicationis jus necipere, dare, se, un, peccatorum remissionem, indulgentiam." The council of filvira has "commumionem dars, necipere, praestare, Dominicae comannioni socinri, reconeiliari"," Many canons express reconciliation simply by the Hord "cmmmunio," and Greek conneils speatk of those unreconciled as akozúvضтou. In the council of Nice (c. 1.3), alsolutic. is called a viaticum, same word was adopted by 1 Conc. Arausie, c. 3 ; 1 Cone. Vasens. c. 2; Conc. Gerund. c. $9 ; 3$ Conc. Aurelina, c. 25, \&c. A general term in eccle. siastical documents of a later age wns "abselutio" ( $\lambda$ íors). The act expressed by these several phrises whs the solemn absolving of public prenitents, and restoring them to full communion. The ant of reconciliation was outward and visible, bat a spiritual remission of sins was held to accompany 1 t . Althengh in the theologienl doctrine of absolution regard must be paid both to the forum internum-the conscience of the sinner, and the forum externum-the diseipline of the church, there is no trace of any sueh formal distinction haviag been drawn through the period embraced by this work. It was consldered that when a penitent was reconeiled, his sin was pardoned. His whole cource of penance had been a petition for the divine forgiveness, and when the term of the sentence expised, the offence was judged to be fully expiated; the offender was then restored to commuaion, and that restorntion presupposed the forgiveness of God. The office of the priest in the forun inte"num was ministerial, and the form through which he exercised his ministry was an intercessory prayer. A judicial absolution of $\sin$ was reserved for the Almighty. "Christ alone," says Clemens Alexand. (Poedagog. i. 18, vol. i. p. 138), "is able to forgive our sins, He alone heing able to discern the sincerity or insinecrity of our obedipnce." The early doctrine on absolution is well expressed by Pacian (Ep. i. 15): "Not indiscriminately to all is this very pardon through penance granted, nor until there shall have beea either some indication of the divine will, or perchance some visitation, may men be loosed; that with careful pondering and much balancing, after many groana and much shedding of tears, after the prayers of the whole chureh, pardon is in such wise not refused to true penitence, so that no one thereby prejudgeth the future judgment of Christ." The language of Ambrose (de Spirit, Sanct. iii, 18) is equally clear: "By the Holy Spirit sins are pardoned; men do but apply their ministry towards the remission of sina; they do not exerclse any power of anthority. Nor do they remit sins in their own names, but in that of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. They ask, God gives." Compare at a lnter date the statement of Gregory (in Evangel. Hom. 26, vol, i. p. 1555): "Theu ouly is the absolution of the bishop valid, when it follows the decision of the judge within." In the forum externum, the court of the church, the biahop's office was more directly judicial. By his own suthorlty, through imposition of hands, he restored the penitent to the peace and commusion of the chureh, and this restoration so far partook of a sacramental character that an African synod under Cyprian (Ep. Ixiv. 1) ruled that pence, however irregularly given by a priest of God, was not to be taken away.

The complete ritual of reconcllintion in the early ages is nowhere preserved, but there can be little doubt that it comprised one or more of these ceremonies: public prayer was offered in behalf of the returuing penitent; hands were solemnly laid upon his head; the Eucharist was administered to him as a token of his return to communion, and a declaration was made that he wns again in the society and peace of the church. In the most primitive times, perhaps, even these rites were wanting. It seems probable that then the delinquent, who had been sabjected to a cortain penance, during which the hands of the bishop were frequently lald upon him, was ipso facto reconciled at the conclucion of his sentence, aud with the last imposition of hands. Morinus (de Poe.xit. vi. 21) raisea the questlon whether, at a later date, when the station of the consistentes was in use, the penitent was absolved as he entered upen the station, or at the clase of it He srgues that the "viaticum" of Conc, Nicaun. c. 13 , is aot participation in the sacrament, but a saceridotal sbsolution, and that theretire absiolution is dlstinet from communion, and from this he infers that absolution was given as the penitent was ndvanced to the stage of consistentia, and full communion only as he left it. But the whole tenor of the canons which mentuon a viaticum is opposed to this view, and a statement of 1 Conc. Arausic. c. 3, seems to put the matter beyond doubt, for after declaring that a dying penitent might communicate without imposition of hands, it adds that the fathers titly named a communion of this sort a viaticum.

1. Petitions for Absolution.- In the simple mode of diseipline administered in the earliest times, it rested entirely with the diseretion of the bishop to determine what length and severity of penance entitled, the penitent to absolation. It seems to have been the custom for members of a congregation to petition the bishop to take back again any one of their number who hat been ejected, us soon as they were persualed of his repentance, and for the penitent nt the same time to join with the clergy and bishop in earncst prayer that he might be worthy of restoratiou. The entire congregation thus participated io their erring brother's return. In the Apost. Const. (ii. 16) this duty of intercession is committed to the deacons. But more usually the peniteat himself, by the depth and sarnestaess of his selfabasement, was his own best intercessor. As instance of n auccessful petition to be absolved is that of the confessor Natalis (Euseb. II. E. v. 27); an unsuccessful one, though supported hy the supplication of the people, is related by Syneslus ( $E p, 67$ ) of a certain Lamponianus, In no case does it appear that reconciliation was granted as a matter of course ; the penitent must ask for it, and beseech the cor.gregation to unite with him in his request. Tertullian (de Pocnit. c. 9) says that he "ought to enjoin all the brethren to bear the measage of his prayer for mercy;" nad in the following section (c. 10), "When thou throwest thyself before the knees of the brethren, thon entreatest Christ." Similar langunge was held by Pacian (Ep. i. 15, Paroen. ad Poenit. c. 24). In the letters of Cyprian and the Roman clergy, there are frequent references to the part borne, in the reconciliation of the lapsed, by the prayers and intercessious of thase who had stood firm, "stantis plebis" (Cyp. Epp. xix., $x \times x .9$, xxxpl. 6, xliii. 5). Ambrose likewise speaks (de Poenit. i. 16, ii. 9,10 ) of the pardon of an offeuder being sought by the tears and lamentations of the whole congregation. This supplication of the people censed after the 4th century to be part of the ritual of reconcilis. tion in the Enst ; but in the West the pentificals and rituals of a date as late as the 13 th century exhibit the practice of the whole body of the clergy and all the people on the Thursilay of holy week offering public prayers for the penitents about to be absolved, and the bishop pronouncing the prayer of absolution in the name of the whole church; and as Morinus (viii. 13), writing at the close of the 17 th century, adds, "idem adhuc ritus in hunc usque diem perdurat, sed verbe tenus tantum."
2. Absolution withhcld till the Completion of Penance.-The original idea of absolution was that of a correla tion to communi withhehl, and th to be loosed $w$ Accordingly it flexible rule of th not be grinted ti proof of contritio outward acts of practice is spre literature. See e passin ; also th of which attac poenitentia " as the iadignation e epistles against trausgressed the reconciling the la equally corrected tury by 3 .Conc. decisions see Syri Leo, Ep. х.ci. T good only in res called; in the ca communion (à $\boldsymbol{\alpha}_{\boldsymbol{\rho}}$ where no penalty sxacted. 'The ru time of persecutio ous zeal and resoli Epp, xxiv., $\times \times v$. ); of the martyrs [L the sick; or in cas pended or depesed, There are also tra comparatively ear granted immodiate to penance. Morit of this eustom to $t$ the penitentiary. dence is to be foun the Faster, the dat mined. In that tI begios with a min diately upon which solution ( $\lambda \dot{v} \sigma \in t s$ ), bu is still held to be ak plete restoration be withheld, till after ance, which in some long years after he Poenit, appendix, p. Greek practice of collected by Morinn quence of the durati froin communion wa tent was allowed durifopan [Eulogia the influence of his Theodore to introdu tenticl, I. xii. 4) a pe be given "pro misari or six montha, altho naninished, The bis in the Western chure place to the mediaeve and reconciling, and longs to a date which
3. Form of Absolu Carolingian era, sbs supplicatory, not in penitent was reconci hands, and imposition he close of it f Conc. Nicaun. sacrament, hut theretiore absoo t, and from this a as the prniof consistentia, it it. But the ich mention a $\checkmark$, and a statems to jut the declaring that nicate without he fithers fitly viaticum.
In the simple in the earliest e discretion of th and severity to absohutioc. for members of bishop to take amber who hat -e perstatel of ent at the same ishop is earnest - of resteratiou icipated ia their e Apost. Const. s committed to y the penitent tness of his self ntercessor, An o be absolyed is (Euseb. II. E. nugh supported $e$, is related br umponianus, In conciliation was e penitent must egation to unite llian (de Poenit. enjoin all the - his prayer for section (c. 10), efore the kaees Christ." Similat p. i. 15, Paroen. ; of Cyprian and |uent references aciliation of the cessions of those bis " (Cyp. Epp. Ambrose like i. 9,10 ) of the hht by the tear e congregation ceased after the ual of reconcilia st the pontificals he 13 th ceatury ole bouly of the he Thursiay of rs for the penithe bishop pro $n$ in the anme of rinus (viii. 13), h century, 时存 e diem perdurat he Completion of abselatioa wa that of a correlative to public discipline ; restoratioa to commualen implied its having been before withheld, and those ouly could properly be said to be loosed who had previously been hound. accordingly it was for many centuries an infexible rule of the church that absolution should not be granted till the offender had shewn some proof of coutrition by the performance of certain outward acts of penaace. The evidence of this practice is spread over the whole penitential literatare. See s.specially Tertullisn, de Iocenit. passim; alse the canens of Elvira, so many of which sttach the words "acta legitimà poenitentiâ "as a cundition of resteratien; slso the laligaation expressed througheut Cyprian's epistles against these of his preshyters whe trausgressed the settled laws of the church by transisessed the settled laws of the church by recoaciling the lapsed without penance, an abuse equally corrected and condemned in the 6th centary by 3 .Coac. Tolet. c. 11; and for pontifical decisioas see Syric. Ep, i. 3; Innocent. Epp, i. 7; Leo, Ep . xci. The principle, of course, helds geod only in respect to penitents strintly so called; in the case of simple separation from where ao penalty was attached, none could be axacted. The rule was sometimes relaxed in time of persecution, ss in Africa, after conspicuEpp. xxiv., xxv.); or in deference to the request of the martyrs [Libellatici]; or in favour of the sick; or is case of the clergy whe were auspended or depesed, but not subjeoted to penance. There are alse traces in the Eastern ritual, of s compsratively early date, of absolution being grated immediately after confession, and prior te penance. Merinus (vi. 24) nssigns the origin of this castem to the sbrogation of the office of the peoitentiary. The earliest documentary evidence is to be found in the peuitential of John the Faster, the date of which is yet to be determined. In that treatise the penitential course begins with n minute confession of sin, immediately upon which follow several prsyers of absolution ( $\lambda \tilde{u}^{\sigma} \boldsymbol{\sigma}, \mathbf{s}$ ), but evenafter these the penitent is still held to be akoivavضros, his final and complete restoration being delayed, sad cemmunionwithheld, till after the completion of his penance, which in seme cases did not take place for long years after he had been absolved (Merin. de Poenit. appendix, p. 628). On the oontempersry Greek practice of sbsolution, see the evidence collected by Morinus (ibid. p. 660). If, in consequence of the durstion of the seatence, abstinence tent was allowed at intervals to receive sn auriowoon [Eulogise, p. 629]. It was probably the iutluence of his Greek trsining which led Theodore to introduce among his canons (Poenitentiul, I. xii. 4) s permission for communion to be given "pro misericordia," at the end of a year er six months, although the penance was still unfioished, The bistory of the stepa by which in the Western church the primitive custem gave place to the mediaeval practice of first sbsolving and reconciling, and then inflictiag penance, bebogss to s date which lies outside this work.
4. Form of Absolution.-Till long after the Carolingisa era, absolution was given in the supplicatery, not in the indicative, form. No peeitent was recenciled without imposition of lands, sad imposition was never unaccompanied

RECONCILIATION
1761
wlth prayer. "Nihil est aliud," says August.
(de Bapt. iii . 16) " (de Bapt. iii. 16), "manas impositio nisi oratio evidence hinem." And this in itself is stroug evidence that the form was precatory. The union of prayer with lasyiog on of hands had strong scriptural authority (S. Matt. xix. 13; Acts vl. 6 ; xlii. 3 ; xxviii. 8), snd was supperted by the practice of the church fer many centaries. The precatory form was used both in public and private recenciliation sad in sbsolving equally the seund, or the sick, or the dying. And for 1200 years ne other ferm, as an appointel ordinance of the church, usurped its place. Morinus sums up (viii. 11) his investigation into the practice of the Latin church with the bread statement, " Demonstratam videtur continua antiquae ecclesise traditione peccatoram remissienem publice privatimque deprecative cencessam esse." An 1300 indicative abselution first appenrs about the year 1300. Its use occurs in an ancient MS. of that date, in Gothic charncters, of the abbey of St. Remigius. The MS. contains varieus episcopal benedictions, sfter which, in addition to a form of reconcilistioc, similar to that contained in the Ordo Romanus, there is given, "Item sbselutio," in these terms, "Auctoritste, et vice B. Petri principis apostelorum, cui traditae sunt claves regni caelorum, cui dedit Deus potestatem animas ligandi stque solvendi, dicens ei famiVicius prse' ceeteris. Quodcunque ligaveris, &c. Vice inquam ejusdem B. Petri, cui licet merito longe sumus dissimiles, queniam potestate a Deo concessâ existimamus consimiles, ego divinitus vos abselves viaculis peccatorum vestrorum." Merinus considers the term "absolution" in this MS. to be of the nature of a blessing, partly confirmatery, partly dimissory, sfter the final reconciliation, rather than signifying a remission of sins; and that this was the ordinary signitication of the word at that period. A copy of the Gregorian sacramentary of about the aante date, contained in the library of the cathedral of Tours, has a form which combines the two medes, After a long discourse on the scriptursl suthority fer declaring the remission of sins, the ritual continues, "Cujus nos virtute freti, et clementia confisi, humillime imprecantes pietatem suam, sbsolvimus te s vinculo tuorum omaium delisa terum, et quidquid pro eis mersris, oramus ut svertat propitius, et merearis cernentem omnia cernere, suâ frui visione et uti consolatione, ad gloriam resurgere, et interim sine lsesiene manore aggregatua sanctorum omnium consortio, tribuente Deo Pstre." Then follows saether form, but entirely precatory. It does not sppear that these forms superseded the solemn supplicatory recenciliation, they were rather supplementary benedictions. Speaking generslly, the history of the change from one form to anether is this, the aupplicatery was the almost universal use of the church up to the 13th century; in the ceurse of that century the indicative gradually crept in, and before its close had altogother taken the place of the earlier sud more ${ }^{9}$ acriptural precstory sbsolution (Murinus do Puenit. viii. 8-12; Bingham, Antit. XIX. ii. 5). The following is a very old form of supplicatory reconcilistion from a Latin missal, cited by Bingham from cardinal Bona (Ror. Liturg. appendix, p. 763): "Qui mulieri peccatrici omnia peccata dimisit lacrymanti, et latreni ad unam confeasionem clanastra ayeruit paradisi, ipse voe

1762  RECONCILIATION

RECONCIIIATION

redemptionls sure putlcipes ab omol vineulo pecentorum nhsolvat," &e. For other forms in the Latin rhurch, see Sucramentar. Grojor, eal. Memard, p. 246.

In the Greek church the supplientory form has never bees abandoned. Both in the earliest and more recent Euchologles, the ubsolution is distinctly a proyer to God for parilon, cux $\boldsymbol{j}_{1}$ inl т $\hat{\nu}$ ¿ $\leqslant$ \& comprentious form was reprosented to Morinus (viii. i2) us in general use through the Greek church in the midile ages, having come down from an earlier date: Aürds $\Delta$ éctora haes, Kopes, крdгos, \&c.
4. Rites.-The most consplenous aet in the eeremonial of recoaciliation was thn imposition of hatuls. There is no oceasion to cite nuthorities for a practice which was as essential to the rite of reconciliation as to that of contirmation or ordination. Indeed in mnny passages the erpression " imposition of hamds" is identical with alsolution; see, fur Instance, Apost. Const. 1i. 18; I'neinn, Ep. iil. ; Statut. Lecl. Antiq. ce. 76, 78; August. te llapt. iii. 16 ; v. 20 ; Len, Ep, xeii. 17 . With the exceptlon of this act, ao other purt of the early cercmonial is koown. It is probable that for many conturles the whole form of recouriliation consisted in the bishop lnying his hatds on tho hend of the penitent nnid saying certain prayers, nod perhnps making $n$ public amnouncement of his return to the peaco of the chureh. Alterwards, no doubt a more elnborate ritual was introduced, but there are no materials from which to ascertain even npproximately the date of its introduction. The Gelasian sacramentary is adduced by Morinus as the earliest anthority on the subject. After the prayers of the Mass, on "Feria 5 in Coen. Dom." it publishes an "ordo ngentibus poenit. public.," to thls effect: "On the morning of Holy Thursdny the penitent is to come forth from the place where he has done pennace, and to present himeelf in the body of the church prostrate on the ground." 'red dencon (in the Ordo Rom. the archdeacon) is then to ncoost the bishop in an address which begins thus: "Adest, $O$ venembilis Poutifex, tempus ncceptum, dies propitiatiouis divinae et salutis humnane," &c, at the end of which the bishop, with the whole congregation, is to say certain verses of Psalm 1 i . The archdeacon is then to nsk the bishop to pray that the penitent may be brought near to God by the divine grace of reconciliation. After which the penitents, laving been solemnly warned ngainst $n$ relnjse by no attendaut priest, nre to be formally nbsolved by the bishop. Similar directions, unler the hendiag "de Reconcilintione Poen. Cip,itnl. Criminis," are given in the Kulo of Chroblugang, of Metz (e. 28). 'This ritual is also found, with some additional proyers, in the most nucieut ISS , of the Orito Romumus; in the Gregorian sneramentary, "in Feria 5 de Coen. Pon.; nul with some further additions, which indicate a later compilation, in the sparious de Dirinis Opficios, cap. de Coen. Dom., which bears the name of Aleuiu, and there ean he litale doubt that it represents in general outline the use ot the latin chuseh on both sides of the Alpis from a very early age (Norin. de locnit. viii. 11 ; ix. 3()). In the English church. publie reconcilintion was never nppointed, as there was uo public penance (Theodor. Poonitentiol, 1, xiil. 4). In the (Gallienn church thero are tracen of 4 mote abmo rate cercmonlal. Murinus prints (Appundix, lp. 5018-6(18) ant ollice book from the ratherlmin of Toulouse, apjorently of the late of the 9 th inntury, contalning very foll and intrpesting direc. tions for the reconcillation of peuitunts. Palin Sunday it ealls the Sunday of indulganes, and njpolats that at 8 o'elock in the morning of the following 'lhorsilay the arehetencon is to aproach the bishop, seated on his throne, surronmidel by his elergy, and to bow and klas hls knew, abd announce to him that a erowd of pernitents is standing outslde wniting to bo recondiles by his mindstrat lon. Upon hearing whish, the bishop will arlse nul walk in procession with his clorgy to the door of the clareh, and, seating himaelf there, will investigate the case of each, nald set npart thase who nre to be roconciled, Je will then re-enter the chureh and ancend the sterpo of the ultar, with his face turned towards the penjtents ut the door, while four singing men, placed at the door, chant an antiphon, "If 'Jhou, lond, wilt be extreme," &e., and four others from behimd the altur respond, "As a shepheril gat hareth his floek that is lost, so havo 1 gathered thee." The dencon is then to bill the penitents enter the church, where they prostrate themselves, while an othice with special lectlons is sung on their hehali, after which n special Mass, with nppropriato proyers nad readings, is ofleved for them; and immedintely nfter the gospel, the priest is to preach to them, and when he has tinished, the deacon is to read $n$ long exhortation, the prient explaining particular points in it. Whell the missn poenitentium is over, then are to fullow the missa pro bnjtizandis nnd the missa chrismalis, and then comes the final oilice of reconciliation. The bishop nseenis the pulpit, the jwiteots prostrating themselves round it, and the dencon addresses him with the sume farmula contained in the earlier rituals: "Adest, 0 venerabilis b'ontifex, tempus neceptum," &c., at the conchasion of which he leaves the pulpit and kneels before the altar, while a long penitential litany is sung; he then ngain mounts the pulpit, the priests stamling in front of it, and on the deacon saying "Orate poenitentes," they prostrate themselves; and while the bishop prononnecs the pinyer of absolution, seven forms of which are given, two or four or more of the ntteadaut priests ley their hunds on the peoitents' heads. The deneon then accosts them, "surgite de terra reconciliati Deo," nud they are admitted to communion, receiving before the rest of the congregation, and, after one more admonition, finally cease to be penitents.
Private reconciliation wonld differ from the pullie form only in the absence of ecremonisl, the two essentinl points of prayer nod laying oo of hands being maintained. For a specimes of this nulmi:aist ration of the prirate rite, see what is published tiom a Ronea MS. of the 10 th cestury by Morinas (ix. 31).
E. Ifinister.-.'The univereal practice of the church committed the power of absolution to the hinds of the lijshop absolitely. The decrees of Nice (cc. 12, 13) and Ancyra (ce. 2, 5), leavirg to lim the determination of the length and severity of penance, nsbume the preralence of this power. At $n$ lnter date it was the subject of apecial enactments. Thus the secosd councll of Cnrthage preslyter to alnir adecinion rejeated 2 Conc. Ilispal. © c. 32 ; IU Cone. Chrth c. I; Conc. Ejaon, e. the penitentind The office to the bishop, to long as puhbice dles the sole minister of the ollice was delegnt of whose functions (II. E, vil, 16) was But although the bi vestel with the powe times delegated to t logg mray of casons a preabytion in conse of with the sanctlon and bishop, as fo the ubse Carthag. e. 4, 3 Cone the penitent was in dn Alex. aj, Euseb. H. b', ('yp. Elpp, xviii., xix.; Eapon. e. 16). And n danger was urgent a d if the priest had ordere or if a priest could no imminent (Cyp. Ép. х spparent from c. 2 of a.b. 398 , whieh prohit tents, and deerees tha deacon, he shall be plat and denied the privil lmpasition of hands wi coofirmation, and reen part in the two forme bave been customary $f$ minister the lnst. The the 9th eentury, in a by Martene (de Rit. i. the introduction to $t$ (Wasscrschleben, Buss soch privilege appear: deecons in the Greek las absolution, and on cacosists on its validi XIX. iii. 4 ; Morinue, Africa, under the admin clergy joined with the 1 Reference is made to th ivi. 2 , xvii.). The cust an isolated one, and n Carthage, A.D. 390, forh take the rite of publi prubably fallen into disu Toulouse Pontifical, to already made, the atte hasds on the penitents, the prayere of alsolution 6. Time--Reconciliati s public admission to cor hare taken place in publis bration of the ascred $m$ quemquam in publicâ m of compeils both in the (2 Cobe, Carthag. c, 8 4ll estant ritual booke s reconciliation with the ae thare is some varlety of the particular period in ministered. Some place 4). In the whe elabese nendix, lis. thedral of 10 0th ctor ing lirace 14.4. Palan youce, and ing of the 0 Approm ounded by knem, nal cuitents is iled hy his the bishop his clerey ny himaclf h, and set He will he silepow of $s$ the jransnen, phaced hon, lord, 4 from beI gathereth med thee," s enter the Ives, while othis he!proprinte them; and priest is to nishel, the the priest When the folluw the chrismalis, nuciliation, - juenitents the dencon I cootained venerabilis the conetuand koeela tial litany pulpit, the the deacon trate themannces the which are attendaut ents' heads. ite de terra ted to conhe congretion, timally ceremonial, 1 laying ob pecimen of e, see what a 10th cenution to the 3 decrees of 5), leaving length and presalence ns the subthe second councll of Carthage (e, 3) altogether forbade a presbyter to idminister public reconciliation, a decision repeated by Conce, Agath. c, 44, nadd 2 Couc. tlispal. e. 7. See also Cono, Eliber. c. 32 ; 3 Cone. (arthig. c. $32 ; 1$ Cone. A rawale. c. 1 ; Cone. Epath. e. il; Lec, E'p. 88 . Sianiarly the penitentla! f'lheodoro (1. xili, 2) e:ontines the office to the bishops. And in the Weatern church, so long as public discipline was in force, he was the sole ninister of reconciliation. In the East the ollice was dulegated to the penitentiary, one of whase functiona Sozomen expreasly shatea (II. E. vii. 10) was that of abalving penitents. But nlthough the bishop was alone tirmally havestel with the power, in practice it was sometimes delogated to tho presloyters. There is a long array of canons authorizing the ininistry of a prenberter in ease of emergency, only, however, with the sanction und as the repreaentative of the bishop, as in tho absence of the bishop, (ca Conc. Corthag, e. 4, 3 Conc, Carthag. e. 32 ), or when the penitent was in danger of death (Ep. Dionys. Alex. ॥!, Eusel. $I I, E$, vi, 44 ; Conc. Eitiber. c. 32 ; Cyp. Ejp ${ }^{\prime}$ x viii., xix. $; 1$ Conc. Arausic. c. 1 ; Cone, Eapon, c. 16). And not only a priest, but If the danger was urgent a deacon might take hls place; if the priest had ordered hinn (Conc. Eliber, e. 3:), or if a priest could not be found, and death was imminent (Cyp. Ejp, xviii.). The sume usage is服parent from $c$. 2 of the lirst council of loledo, a.b, 398 , which prohilits the ordination of penileats, and decrees that if one has been ordained deacon, he shall be placed among the sub-deacons, and denied the privilego of laying on hands, Imposition of hunds was used only lin ordiuation, confirmation, and yeconciliation; dencons took no part in the two former rites, it must therefore have been customary for them aometimes to administer the last. The anme custom reappears in the $\theta$ th century, in a ritual of Noyon, printed by Martene (de Rit. i. 6), nad at a later date in the introduction to the ps. Romun Penitential (Wasscrechleben, Bussordnungen, p. 360). No such privilege appears to have been given to deacons in the Greek charch. On tho force of lay absolution, and on the opinions of the Koman Casoniste on its validity, see Biaghan, Antiq. XIX. iii. 4; Morinus, de l'oonit. viii. 24). In Africa, under the adminatration of Cyprian, the clergy joined with the bishol, in layiog on hands.
Refereace is made to this on two occasions (Epp. Refereace is made to this on two occasions (Epp. ivi. 2, xvii.). The custom appears to have been an isolated soe, nad as the second council of Carthage, A.D. 390, forbade presbyters to undertake the rite ot public reconciliation, it had probsbly fallen into diasue by that date. In the probsbly fallen into disuse by that date. In the Toulouse Pontifical, to which reference has been slready made, the attendant priesta lnid their hands on the penitents, while the bishop read the prayers of alsolution.
6. Time.-Reconciliation being consumnated by a public admission to communion, it must always havetaken place in public service during the celebratlon of the sscred mysteries. "Reconciliare quemquanm in publica missa " was the language of ceancils both in the 4 th and 7 th centuries (2 Conc. Carthag. c. $3 ; 2$ Conc. Hispal. e. 7 ), 4ll extant ritual books aimilarly connect public reconciliation with the acrvice of the Mass, But there is some variety of custom with regard to the particulsr period in which the rite was adthe particulsr period in which the rite wos administered. Some place it at the beginning of ministered. Some place it at the beginning of the office, and this appears to be the lintention of the (Hodo liomanus; but the nore usmal interval was immerintely after the realing of the Goajel. In the Gelasian ancramentary the peultential otlice ia succeeded by the direction, "I'ontea ofiert plebs," that is to eny, it immedintely preceeded the offratory. In the 'Poulorme I'ontifien (Morin. Allu, 所, 598-60x) the riturl of reconcillation is intermingled with threo masmea, but the fimal absolution tukes plare after the kospel of the last abel the most sellemin of them. la the Greek enchologies the prayers of absolution for one under excemmunkicatlon are to be saidy just before the priest places the elements on the altar.

With regard to the time of year, reconcilintion appears from an early uge to hive heen restricted to the prachal season, although there is noevidence by which to aseertain when the restriction begna. In the time of Intocent l., A, D, 402-417, both the season and the lay had become fixed. "De Penitentibus.... quinta feria unte Jinseha eis remittendum Romanac ecelesine consuetulo demonstrat" (E'p, 1, 7). The Thursiday in Holy Week, from a period at least as early as the beginning of the 5th century, was therefore the day in general use in the Western charch. So the lenstential of Theolore (1. xiii. 2), and the subsequent penitentials, to which an "ordo" is nttaehed. A passage in Ambrose (Ep.
33 ad Mitrcell.) points to Good Fri 33 ad Marcell.) points to Good Fri lay us the usual day for relaxing penance in the north of Italy, " supposition which is perhaps supported by the prayers appointed for "Feria sexta in Parasceue," in the Ordo Ambrosianus, all of which relate more directly to pardon and remission of sins than those of the Thursday previons. Morinus relying on a passage in 4 Conc. Toiet. c. 7, would extend the same custom to the Spanish chareh, but the words of the canon elearly refer, not to penitence, but to repentance gencrally. There wis ne reason why ons day in the Holy Week should not be held aa suitable as another, and it is highly probable that in different parts of the church different days wera selected; but after the 7th century all trace of variety 0 time censes. No nurviving situal or pontifical alludes to any other day than the Coena Dominl, and all Ronum canonical writers cite the assertion of Inngeent as conclusive with resject to the western enstom. In the east publie reconcilia tion was granted apparently on any day at th close of the Iloly Weak, or even on Easter Day. This appears incidentally from a letter nddressed by certain monks under excommitinication to the council of Chalcedon; they complain that the times of Christ's passion and the holy ere, and day of Resurrection, on which featival penance was wont to be remitted by the Fathers, had passed by and they had not yet been absolved (Bingham, Antiq. XIX, ii. 10). Gregory of Nyssa, at the opening of his canonical epistle, similarly spenks of Easter as a time suitable for the sinner's restoration. In the case of the sick or dying, reconciliation was given of course at any season; and so with respect to private peonace, absolution could not have been confuned to a particular season although, to a grent extent, the private ministration kept to the time of the public and more solemn rite.
7. Place.-When the system of the stations [Penitence, p. 1591] was righdly enforced, the penitent was moved station by atation towards the mantuary, till he arrived umong the consla. tentes, nad stood with them near the altar when the sacred mysteries were lueing celebrated. So when his own time of reconciliation rame, the blshop's hands were laid upon him, kneeling in front of the altar: "divino altario reconcilintus" ( 1 Conc. Tolet. c. 2). The tuirid council of Carthage has a canon (4, 32), which, nfter stating the conditions on which a prlest may recoucile, alds, that where the crlme has been scabdaluas the reconciliatlon shall take place, "ante apsidein ;" on the prinelple, no doubt, that when the offence hal been open and notorious, the absulution should be open and public also. In the elatorate Gothic vitual cited nbove from the Corlex Tologanas of Morinus, the yenitents are gathered round the pulpit to receive Imposition of hands, and their remoncilintion is afterwards completed by recefition with the faithful, of course at the altar. In the Ordo Romanus, Feria 5 , in Coen. Dom., in the Gelasian sacramentary, and in the later piseudo-Alcuin, De Jivinis Officis, the penitents are directed to present themselves for reconciliation, "in gremio ecclesiae." And in a MS. of Evreux appended to the Pontifical of Figbert (Martene, de Rit, i, 6) directions are given that the bishop is not to mount bis throne on the day of recobciliation, but is to remain either near or in front of the altar.

17:4 RECONCILIATION

8. Absolution of the Sick.-. There are two leadIng decisions on the treatment of the slek in the early centuices, which at first sight are at variance. The first council of Arles (A.D. 314) (c. 2:) had decreed that upostates and others who sought communion on a siek bed ware to be retused it until they recovered, and had had an op,portunity of performing penance. And this is in accordance with what Innocent (Ep. iii. ad Exsuper.) states to have been the early custom, that at first penance was granted to such delinquents, but not communion; and that afterwards, on the conversion of the empire, $n$ more ienient rule prevailed, and communion was refused ander no circumstances to a dying man. On the other hand, the council of Nice (c. 13) orders the ma入aids кal кavovikds vóuos to be maintained of giving an $\$ \phi \delta \delta_{10 \nu}$ to a dying man. The explanation of the apparent diacrepancy is that the canon of Arles ajpplied to delinquents generally, while the Nicene canon, as is evident from the decisions immediately before and after it, had refereace to those who were already penitents. The primitive church order therefore was that notorious offenders, whose repentance began only on their denth-bed, were to be granted penitence, but not communion, while those who were nlready penitents were always to be allowed plenary reconciliation when in danger of death. Afterwards, from the beginning of the 4th century, the former reatriction was removed, and all sick men who desired it were to be allowed the benefit of absolution. "They," said Leo (Ep. xci.), "who in time of urgent danger seek the safeguard of penance and subsequent reconciliation must not be refised, becnuse we cannot restrict the time to God's compassion nor jut any limit upon it. Therefore we ought not to be hard in dispensing the gifts of God, nor ought we to ignore the tears and the contrition of the penitent, because we believe that that very emotion of repentance springs from the inspiration of God." He therefore rules in the aame epistle that tha grace of commanion is to be glven it the sick penitent has lost his volce, and can only make a aign. it the same time there was but the same assurance felt of the final parlon of the simber." " $i$ can gire him jenitence nod absoiution," said Amheose (in Exhort. ad P'oenit.), "I ennuot give him certainty." The fourth council of Carthage ( 2,76 ) had decreed that if the jatient hat become wenseless before his request tor absnlution could lem complled with, he ahould witil be absolvei, and the sacred elements be pat into his mouth, to whinh the eleventh council of Toledo, A.D. $\mathbf{6 i n}^{-5}(1,1 i)$, added that the communion would be complate though the sick man could drink the cup enls, and was too weak to swallow the breat (see i2 Cone, Tolet. e. 2, 13 Conc. Tolet. e. 9 ). Aad further, if any penitent was suatchal away by sudran death, in the fields or on a journey, without communalon, the first council of Vainin, A.D. 442 (c. 2), decided that his memorial and fuseral ritcs should be the sams as if he had died in the jeance of the church. I'he 4 Conc. Carthag, c. 79, and 11 Corc. Tolet. e. 12, eame to the same decision. In the Roman church, however, a severer practice prevailed. "We combat," saya Leo (Ep. xcil. 6), "communicate with these when dead with whom we did not communicite when living." This striclness was maintainel by the subsequent popes Gelasius and Vigilius, but afterwards abandoned in the fifth homan council, A.D. 553, and the whole western practice was then uniform. From the eeclesiantical rule that a penitent did not die out of commanion with the church, who, from the accident of his death, was unable to obtain the eucharist, arose the custom of absolving the dead. Gregury the Great ordered a prayer of absolution to be read over the body of a certain monk who th..! died suddenly under excommunication, with mirachlous results, according to John the deacon (iits Greg. i. 45), For' similar instances of ubsolution of the dead see Gregor. Dialog. i1. 23, iv, 55. At first the absolution want no further than the offering of prayera and masses for the souls of the dead, but in the time of Innocent III. it was decreed that the whole ceremonial of abolation, with penitential psalms, \&c., was to be ebserved, Early Greek euchologies contain mauy special prayers for absolving the dead (Jioria. \& l'oerit. x. 9).

RECONCLLIATION

There is bo record of ady early rites peculiar to the reconciliation of the sick. The ceremony would probably be confined, with more or less formality, to prayer and impusition of hauds, and administration of the eucharist. The third council of Toledo (c. 12 ), followed by 12 Conc. Tolet. c. 2, 13 Conc. Tolet. c. 9 , ordains that the sick penitent, no less than the sound, sheuld be shnved, and if a woman, be veiled, and be "prinkled with ashes, and elothed in sackeloth. And this practice, with some variety, long continued, for some ancient MSS., quoted by Méaand in his notes to the Gregorian sacranteatary, refet to snekeloth being laid about the head of the dying, and a cross made of ashes and water being placed in some instances on his breast, and in othery on his forehead. It was the custom of the Benedictines to wrap a brother in extremity altugether is haircloth. For further particulari see Viaticum, and for clinical penaace gebersilf, Penitence, p. 1605.
9. For recou consummated a sometimes by u of faith on the Heresy.

RECONCII

Pohateto. ( $R$ under a hans wis pissages of the doubtess serve instinct of the $e$ arose, to the pr something to f the pollution ed lnstance) relnte Hezekinh " opene Lerd," ffter they Ahrz, and with " made reconcilia The chief insta (second) temple t it by Antiochus which are given that which gives snd influence is Wa soon after obs tion, but that 1 Himself (St. Joh twice drove the temple, using the My Father's house
The early part o an active time fo marked by the $\mathbf{r}$ beresy, which, ns empleyment of lit for the heretics the ascred buildings.
by the Catholies doubtless led them kind of rite suitab recovered their ow instance or form hi phorns refers to th the churches of $\mathrm{G}_{0}$ the sacramentary if an office for da, ilicati as a synagogue," latibulum, et quia conveniebat adversn Fould scarcely vent villaeus, the annotat that the churches of tion by Arians and o to the Catholics, w fresh rite. But wha times, Gregory cert Ritualist, consecrated heretics."
And sceardingly w Gregory's writings. subdeacon of Campar oxpresses his great a reverent worship of $t$ once given up to execr: the third region in saperstition had for new desired to conse Sererinus, end in ordes he asked for some rel Again, in Diulog. iii.

Reconciliation

9. For reconciliation of hereties, which was

 consummatel sometimes by impoition of hamds, sometimes by unction, sometimes by a jursession of faith on the part of the returuing heretic. see Heresy.of the Arians, in that region of the elty callell Sohurra, as having been shut up (ef. 2 Chron. abuve) for two years, was to he dediented afresh in the Catholic falth." And this was done, "We entered the church, with a great raultitula of people, siuging praises to Almighty Gol, and whilst the sulemuities of the Mass were goligg on, ond the crowd stond without the snerurium, some of them telt a pig pressing in here and there, and it made its wny to the gates -a a proof (says Gregory) that from the same place was goling out the unclean inhabltant of the place." He records sundry other "wonders" of the rame kin!
The story receives Illustration from Victor of Utiea in his account of the persecution of the Vandals (lih. ii. 2, no. 6). "A presbyter saw the baniliea of fatastus filled with crowds of people, and after a little while emptied and fille 1 with a multitude of swine, a parable of its being given up to the Arians."
A very old MS. of the sacrmmentary of Gregory contains an othice entitled "Reconciliatio Eecelesiae violatae " (p. 490 ; ed. Muratori).

Agapetus, bishop of Kome, is said to hare purged by his catholis prayers the veils of the altar and of the sec poiluted by the sacrilegious fables of the (Eutychian) Anthimus, putriarch of Constantinople (Goar, p. 618). Gratian (de Consecrat. Dist. I. c. 20 et seqq.) records the direction of pope John I., in the same century to the bishops of Italy, saying it was what he had done himself at Constantinople for the sake of the Catholic religion and king Theodoric, the pioua orthodox emperor Justin extirpating the Arians. Whatever churches we found in their parts, we consecrated, &c. (See Milman's Latin Christínity, bk. iii. cl. 3.)

Tarasius, patriarch of Constantinople, who died A.D. 80b, had like work to do. Amengst the forms collected by Goar (Euchol. Graec.) is found "a prayer of Tarasius on the opening or reconciliation of a church profaned by the heretics" (p. 618). Other forms are given; e.g. "a priayer on the release, i.e. the reconclliation of a temple polluted by a heretic or by heathen, to be said before the vestibulc of the church." "A prayer to be said by the bishop over the holy table where the heretics have celebrated." "A prayer to be aaid, before the cratomary one nt the beginning of the Mass, on the reconciliation of a church in which it has happened that a man has met with a violent death."

Martene (tom. ii. lib. il. cap. xv.) supplies several offices with special prayers from the puntifical of Egbert, from the book of Jumieges, &c.

Hospinian (de Orig. Templorum, lib. iv. p. 379, ed. Tiguri), according to his custom of disparagement, ridicules all ritual of this kind. And he refers with more approval to the case of a deacon of Nestorius, who had polluted a church at Constantinople, when Nestorius "did not use holy water or the like, but simply removed the deacon from his place and office." To Inflict panishment on the offender is, he says, the right course. Of old, however, a different view was taken of such calamitiea. Socrates (Eccl. Hist. vii. #3) relates: "The slaves of a rich barbarian master, to escape his cruelty, fled to the church, and with drawn awords leaped 2 the altar. of course the divine office could not go on. They threatened every one that cane near, kifled one, wounded snother, and then killed themselvea. One of those who were there anid thit the profanation of the temple foreborded no good. Nor wos that saying false, for it portendud thu rupture of the people, and the deposition of him who caused it (i.e. Nestorius)."
$5 \times 2$

RECTOR

[II. B.]
RliCTOR. (1) The word rector is used hy Gregory tho Great in the Reyula Pastorulis as equivalent to pastor; and a priest is anid to rule (regere) hin jeople (Conc. Llib. 0. 77). See PaR18t1, 3, iv. p. 1560.
(2) The lead $r$ of each sile of an antiphonal choir is calied rector chori, an in an nnejent Sarum missal quoted by Martene, De Rit. Ant. i. 240 .
(3) The pope la sometimes styled rector sanctae sedis (Maeri Hierolex.).
[C.]
REDEMPTION (Redomptio). - Commutation of eccleaiatical penance. The origin of the system is doubtless to be traced in the dispenslong power vested in the hands of the linhop. This power existed from the very first. Indeed the Later custom of assignlag fixed sentences to particaiar sins was a development of a fiur enrlier pructice, which left the determination of the leagth of penance entirely in the hands of the bishop. But even after a code of penitentlal laws was established all authorlties agreed In leaving to the bishop the power of relaxing or remitting a sentence. The bishop, deciared the council of Ancyra (c, 5), shall be the judge of the sincerity of a peuitent's contrition, and may either increase or diminish his period of exclusion. If the deliaquent manifested his earnestness by fear and tears and patience, nnd good works, then, said the council of Nice (c.12), the bishop may relieve him from passing step by step through his allotted stations. For further illustrations of the exercise of Indulaence see Basil, Ep. ad Amphil. cc. 2, 7, 54, 84 ; Greg. Nyss. Ep. ad Letoi., passim ; 4 Conc. Carthing. c. 75 ; Conc. Andegav. c. 12 ; Innocent, Ep. i. 7; Leo, Ep. cxxix. 5. The object of this power of dispensation was not to exempt men from jenance, but to excite them to perform it. It was natural and equitable that one who shewed earnestness in his repentance should not be debarred from the privileges of the church for so long a time as one who paid only a formal and perfinctory obedience to the letter of the law which had condemned him. And probably for the first five centuries the oaly means of redeeming peaance were zeal and sincerity in the pertormance of $\mathbf{i t}$. After the bith century there begin to be traces of a more corrupt dealing with the censures of the church. As the life of the peoiteutial system died out penance came to consint more and more in outward acts alone; it lost its original notion of a censure and means of improvement, and came to be regarded solely as a punishment i sin was to be expiated by submission to certain peantice, regardless of the state of mind of the oft der. To redeem penauce was therefore to sui titute one outward form for another. The delinquent was allowed to purchase a remission of leagthy acts of seif-denin! by undertaking others which were shorter and more iaborious, or by voluntarily depriving himeelf of something valanble to him. The princlple belng onee cone ceded, redemptions of penance wonli becoma general, and woulil he tolerated anore leniontly from the circumstnace that they lrought mas. terinl protit to the church $\sin$ her ralova, Moreover, in thase parts of the ehnreti where the system prevaled, penance masinted almost exciusively of long fiats and ahstinences, and it must frejuently have hajpenal that oning to sleknews, of other circumstancen, it woull be Impracticnbie to observe them, or from an accumuhation of crimes their duration might be a extended that life would not he long elough for their conupletion. Some dispensing fower woult then be necessary to assigu moro expeditiona modes of carrying out the sentence. The jractice also among the Teutonic tribes of compounding for personal Injuries by money payments would readily lend to a similar composition for infriagements of the linw of the church. Thus the syatem of the commutation of peanace, which is alcogether ailen from the meaning ani object of a spiritual censmre, but which has the sanetion of hoooured names in early English church history, grew up. The power of granting or refusing such redemptions at first no doubt rested entlrely with the bishop or priest ; afterwards the penitent was allowed to choose for himself, and systematic scales of penitential values were drawn up. It has beed customary to assume that the aystem origiuated in our own lad with archbishop Theodore. Moriaus (de Poenit. x. 17), however, had the sagacity to reject as sjurious the chapter in his so-called penitential oa which the assumption is based. Since the diseovery of the true penitential It is clear that redemptions were permitted a century before Theolore's time. Wasserschieben (Die Bussord. Pp, 130-140) his fublished fragmentary collections of irish canobs, nll of very early date, and some containing decisions 0 : $\theta$ y nods over which St. P'ntriek presided. [Penitenttal Books, p. 1609.]. Among these "Canones Hibernenses" is one series which treati enturely "De arreis" (arrhis, pledges). it con. tains nine different redemptions of the pename of a year. In the prefnce to the prositential of Theodere is an ncknowlerigment by the uninowa editor of the use in Its compilation of a "iibelius acotornm," i.e. an Irish book, and it is highly probable that from these early lrish canons 'Theodore drew his reference to the practice of commutations. He did not himself orisinate the system; he found it existing, and gave it his sanction. "Item xii. triduana pro aneo pensande Teodorus laudavit. De aegris vere pretium viri vel ancillat pro anno" (Penitent. 1. vil, 5). See ibid. 1. iil. 3;i. iv. 1. Such a system as that by which s sinner was allowed to purchase himself free trom the spiritual penalties attached to his sin was likely to be popular; and in the interval betwern the publicatiou of the penso tential of Theodore and that of Bele it grew with amazing rapidity. The latter treatise cone cluded with a chapter on commutations uader twelve headings, out of which apparentiy the penitent was at liberty to select the easiest and monst eajeditions mode of performing his pensece He might choose almsgiving, or at ripess, or psilmsinging, with genuflexions, and it is further provided (Baed, Poenitent. x, 8) that if he canoot learn posalms he may pick out some holy mato undertake for a consideration the penalty interad of him. The sair archbishop Eiguert ailium misericoril siv.-xvi.) lays bef valimited choice o enrription ronfin Frankish penitenti p. $40: i$ ) is equatily penance, and give metiouls by which ; date liegino of l'rii tions of penance, in an unpubilished MS. c. 86 , Conc. 'i'ribur. toas cited by Duca the clese of the $9+1$ equaily in Italy, Ga 17) and the councit to have made any se England the synod o arehbishop Cuthbert ineffectual protests. were to bo given, no ing caaonical penano wrath ; similarly (e suag, in onder that a be omitted; still la their wealth to relie of their sina. A ce council of Tribur. (ec late iadiscriminate r the first year of peaa cause, shoulid be 1 secand and third, jo muted ; on the treat there was no restricti
The methords of Twenty-four "bidua fauting, were equive (Baed. Pen, x. 2). Ins 300 pesalmas satil koe bending the knee, 3 Poeaiteatiae.") Fift ar seventy without, day'sabstinence on bre nii, 11). Fifty psalm value as the whole ("ad. xv.). The peni pailms inust prostrate the Miserere (ibich. xvi sioa by getting a prie The "Canenes Hibern ditions to the saying of said (e.3) at the tomb stauding for three davs or drink, or sleep. A sition was scourging. 1 fourth year of a penait lashes on the bare assesses a day's penan, the Citpitula Herardi (a was to be applied durin the psalm-singing was may "palmatae," wh jectures to mean not str tions, and with the pal an the ground. More thail any of the above r mosey payment. Theod a thief to escape part o restitutioa, or (ibid. 1. blood-feud by compositi liecome lenimitly ughtt mao er rulpra, reh where ted ulmost neen, "nd it $t$ "wits to wulld he in nu acеи• ight he so ranough for wer wauld experitionts The juractica mpatululing rents would for infringeThux the ance, which ; and object the salaction Ish church granting or doubt rested afterwards for himself, valuee were nssume that , land with 'oenit. x. 17), ; n* apurious ial on which he discovery redemptions :olore's time. $(36-140)$ has irish canons, e coutaining rifck presided. Among there which treats (es). it conthe pename renitential of the uunnoorn of a " lifellus it is highly canous Theo ectice of comoriginute the 1 gave it his oo anno pen, vero pretium nt. I. vii. 5), ystem as that purchave himes attachel to ; and in the of the peniBetle it grew $r$ treatiss conitations under pparently the he eaviest and his pensate. -ppes, or pasim. it is further at if he cannot ie holy man to jenalty instesdof him. The same syntem was toterated by archbishop Eigbert. Under the plea of a "conallum misericoriline" his Penitentill (xili. 11, xlv.-xvi.) hays before the delinguent un almost ualinalted choice of relemptiona. Nor was the corruytion contined to these bulanils, The Fruakish penitentiala of Cummean (Wassersch. p. 46:3) is egually leaient in the renission of penance, and gives a long eatalogue of the methods by which It ean be redeemed. At a later date liegino of Prim fisaled a tuble of commotathens of penance, iplinted by Morinus (x. 16) trom an unpuhbshed MS. See also Cupitala Mlerurd. c. 26, Cone. 'Tribur. a.d. 895 , e. 50 ; and Illuntrations elted by Dueango, s. v. "Poenitentia." At the elase of the 9th centuly the abuse prevailed equilly in Italy, Gail], and Germany (Morin, x. 17), und the councils of the period do not appear to have malle any serloss efforts to cheek it. In Englind the syined of Cloveshoe (A.1, 747), under arehbishop Cuthbert, publinhed some strong burt ineffectual

REDEMPTION

protests. Alms, it seoiared (c. 26 ), joeffectual protests. Alms, it deoiared (c. 26), were to be given, not for the purpose of diminishiing caumical prenance, but to aprease the Divine wruth; similarly (e. 27), psalms were not to be wrath; similarly (c. 27), psalms were not to be suag, in order that abstinence nuld fiasting might be omitted; still less might the rich employ be omitted; still less might the rich employ their wealth to relleve then from the penalties their wealth to relleve them from the penalters of thelr sins. A century and a half later the council of 'lribur. (ec. 56-58) attempted to regalate Indscriminate redemption by decreeing that the first year of penanee, except tor some urgent cause, should be rigilly performed ; of the second und third, portions only might be commuted; on the trentinent of the remaining ventrs muted; on the trentinent there was no restriction.
The methods of redemption were vamous. Twenty-four "biduana," periods of two daya; fasting, were equivalent to a ye.r's pennace (Baed. Pen. x. 2). Instend of one week of penance, 3.10 psamas said kneeling, "r, if saif without beading the knee, 324 (Cumnean "do Modis Poeniteatiae.") Pifty psalms with cenutlexions, Poenitenthe.") Fifty psalms with genutlexions, or seventy without, might compound for one day'sabstinence on brend and water' (Egbert, Poen.
zil. 11). Fifty pusims in winter had the sampe xil. II). Fifty psalms in winter had the same value as the whole praiter at another season ( (id. xv.). The penitent wishing to say fewer (ild. xv.). The penitent wishing to say fewer posins must prostrate himself oftener and say dod by getting a priest to say masses for him. The "Conones Hiberneuses" attach other conditions te the saying of pualms; they shonld be asid (c. 3) at the tomb of a saiut, or (c. 4) while stauling for three days in a church without food, or drink, or sleep. Anuther method of composition was scourging. Bede (Pen. x. 6) sufters the fourth year of a jeenaity to be redeemed by 300 lashes on the bare body. Egbert (Pen. xv.) assesses a day's penance at twelve strokes. in the Cupitula Herardi (apud Morin. x. 16) the rod Fas to be applied during vigils. In Bede (x. 1-5) the psslm-singing was to be aceomptnied by so many "palmatee," which Dueange (s.v.) conjectores to mean not strokes of a rod, but prostrations, and with the paims of the hand extended on the ground. More general and more corrupt on the ground. Nore general and more corrupt thaia say of the above redemptions was that of a money payment. Theodore (Pen. I. iii, 3) allowed a thief to escape part of his penance on making restitution, or (ibid. I. iv. 1) a murderer in a Hood-iend by composition with the relatives of his vietim. He also (iniul. I. vil. 5) gave the satection of his authority to the manumisxion of slaven in Hell of penance. But he nowhere counternaced the bare and direct purehase of remissinn. In Iterle's compilation the door was thrown open a little wider. In piace of the lifth yenr of a long nentence large alinagiving would suffice, or it' a penitent is ignorant of his pailins, he must give a denariun daily to the poor. in adilition to fisatimg (Pen. x. 6). With Egbert redenption by moneyl sopenty recognized. It who canoot perform thls pemauce fur the first yenr mant distribute in alms twenty-six solidi, for the apeot twenty, &e. (lem. xill. It) | if he is a prowertul man ho must release so many slaves and eaptivex. The Capituh of liegino Iraw up a regular acale. For seven weeks' penance a rich man must pay twenty solilil, or, if he cannot athord so much, ten, and a pool man three. The money was t1) be used either for the relense of eaptives, or $t_{0}$ be placed on the altar, or for the servanta of God, or in alme to the pioor. By Cune. Tribur, o. 56, the Wednesday, Frilay, and Saturiny farts might be redeomed by a denarins, or by the support of three poor pieajle. At a later periond the laws of Elgar (a.d. 967) (Hlowel, lec. Ricol. Bitt. p. 533) mention the bullding and endowing of churches, making bridges, nad rejalring the highways, as modes of commuting ecclesiastical ceasures. To these may be added, of a still later date, pilgrimages and war against the infidel.

REGIO
[G. M.]

REFECTORY. [Monastery, p. 1240.]

KEGAALE. By the right of rejale we are to understnand the claim on the part of the sovereign of a country to enjoy the incomes of vacaut bishoprics, and to present pleno jure to all eceleniastieal places or benefices, exeppt the ordinary parochini cures. And the right of the king to the ejpiscopal ineome-accorifing to the French lawyers-was not oxtinguished by the mere appointment of a new bishop, but continued until the newly-appointed bishop had taken the outh of allegiance in due form (Diblinge in Kirehen-Lexicun, e. v.). The full develupment of this claim belongs to mediaeval and modero times; but so much as belongs to our period may be seen under Vacanov; Bishor, p. 216 f; Princee, Allegiance to.
[C.]

REGENSE CONCILIUM. [RIEz.]

REGIAE, another form of "rugae." Mabillon (Mus. Itul. 3i. p. exxxrii.) draws a distinction between the two which is probably without tuundation.
[E. V.]
REGINA, S'T., virgin and martyr, Sept. 7; commemorated at Autun (Mart. Usuard., Hieron., Wandaib. ; Boll. Acta SS. Sep. iii. 24).

REGGIO. In the pagan hiatory of Rome th word means a quarter, district, or ward of the city. In the time of Auguatus, ward of the was divided into fourteen auch wards eity itself
The terns was adopted by Chrintianit

The tern was adopted by Christianity, and was made to serve the purposes of the church. The Ordo Romanus (ap. Ducange) observes that there were seven Regiones in the ecclesiastical division of Rome. But in the time of Gregory the Great there were fourteen Regionee (Morinus do Sacr.

Ord. iii. 8). Each had lis regionary deacons, subdeacons, and acolytes. The regions took their turn by a regulated cycle in the pontifical ministration of Easter week, each region being respoasible for a day, and each region had its assigned precedence both in church and in procession.
In the collection of rubrics, taken from the Salzburg Pontiticnl, and headed de Gradibus Ecclesiae Romance (Martene, 1. viii. xi. Ordo 9), we find that at ordination there was a gathering of the regions-"fit enim conventua populi et congregatio regionum primum ad S. Adrianum."
The regions had officers, who were called patroni regionum (Martene, ibid.) The term existed as early as the time of Clement 1. ; for Publius Tarquinius, atirred with envy at the increase of the Christians, tried the influence of money with these officers to check ita progress. "Vocavit ad ae putronos regionum et data eis pecunia monuit ut seditionem excitarent nomini Christiano." (Hist. Clem. I.) The patroni however, in this case, may perhaps have been civil officers.
[H. T. A.]
REGIONARIUS. The term is sometimes used absolutely and by itself as the unme of an office (Greg. Mag. vii. i. Ep. 5), and aometimes as un epithet with other official titlea, notariua, diaconus, subdiaconus, defensores. An example of this may be taken from the second council at Rome (A.D. 745), where the word occura in this connexion: "Accipiena Theophanius notarius regionarius et sacellarius relegit. . . ." (Actio $1 ;$ Labbe, vi. 1557.)

Bona observes that the term is applied to the ostiarii and other ministers who served the pontiff when he was officiating in the several regiona. (Rer. Liturg. I. xxv. 18.) He however gives no example of the term Redionarits being applied to bishops. [See Bisior.] Nor has the present writer been able to find such an application in Martene, Thomassin, Morinus, Hofmann, Du Cange, or other authority on the aubject.
The term Regionarius was looked upon as a title of honour. Gregory the Great decreed that as some of the notarii and subdeacons were appointed regionarii, ao seven of the most eminent of the defensores ahould be decorated with the asme diatinction (honore regionario decorentur, lib. vii. Ep. 17). One of the aeven defensores regionarii was assigned to every two of the fourteen regiones of the city.
The follewing passage is of intereat, as shewing the application of the term to the order of subdeacons: "Subdiaconi aunt omnes numero viginti et unus, septem regiomarï qui epistolas et lectiones cantant in stationibus: septem Palatini qui idem munus praestant in ecclesia Lateranensi: septem alii qui dicuntur schola cantorum, qui caritant tantummodo quando summue pontifex celobrare consuevit" (Martene de Ant. Ecol. Rit. i. iii. 8).

The regionary deacona of St. Maria and St. Sylvester were put in charge of the hospitals of pope Stephen III., A.1. 752-757 (Anast. Vit. Pont. p. 165).

A classification of the inferior ministers (acolytes, exorcists, lectors, oatiarii) is made by cardinal Bona into (1) regionarii, who were distributed throughout the regions, and in them severally ministered to the pontiff; (2) atdtionarii, who performed the same office for him when celebrating in the atationa; (3) basilicarii, who served by turns in the Lateran Church; (4) oblationarii, whose duty it was to receive the oblations and bring them to the archdencon, (Rer. Lit. I. xxv. 18).
When the pope distributed the eucharist, he communicated the regionarii last of all, except his immediate ministers (acolyte, &c.). Tha order was first those who were in orders ; then the aristocracy (magnates); then the lalies (matronae) ; then the regiouarii ; and lastly, his acolyte and servers (Martene de Eccl. Rit. i. iv. x. 4). From this passage it seems as if regionarii was applied to persons not in nny orders at all; as if it meant, in fact, people of the regiones, or, as we should say, the parishioners.
[H. '1. A.]
REGULARES. Herizontal rods of wood or metal for the suspension of veils or curtaiss. They are usually mentioned in cennexion with the "rugae," which appear to have been tha lattice-work screens and doors separating the presbytery, the confessio, or the sacrarium from the other parts of the church. The "regulares" were often of precious metal, and were decorated with a row of images on the upper part, Stephen IV. (Anastas. § 284) made silver "regularis" above the "rugae," by which accoss was given to the altar, "ubi imagines in frontlspicio constitutae sunt," at St. Peter's, St. Paul's, and St. Andrew's. Hadrian I. (ib.d. § 330) set up a "regularis" cased with silver at St. Peter's. and placed upon it portrait-busts (" vultus ") of our Lord between the archangels Michael and Gabricl. He also erected above the upper "ruga" in the midde of the presbytery another silver-cased "regularis," supporting similar portrait-busts of the blessed Virgin between St. Andrew and St. Joha Baptist, all six "rultus" being made of platen of silver-gilt (Mabillod, Mus. Ital. tom. ii. pp. viii. cxxx.).
[E. V.]

REGULARS. [MONASTERY.]

REGULUS. bishop and confessor, Mar. 30; depositio commemorated at Senlis (Jfart Usuard. ; Boll. Acta SS. Mart. iii. 816). [U. H.]

REILIG, RELEC, RELIC, REIIG, Irish name for a cemetery. It is probalily derived from the Latin reliquiae (e.g. Rellc Odhrain, the monastic burying-place in lona), yet is also a aplied to the pagan cemeteriea like the Relig ua Righ at Cruachan (Reeves, St. Adamnin, 203, 20t, 283, 417, 452; Petrie, Round Tovers, 103-7, 155-6). Todd (St. Patrick, 476) takes the word as equivalent to Recles, which he defites "s sepulchral church," and Reeves (St., Addaman, 276, cf. 283) "an abbey-church," as distioguished from the secular cathedral.
[J. G.]
RELICS.^ I. Heathen Precedent.-The law of uncleanness (Num. x|x, 11-22) proserved the Jews from any undue veneration of the relics of the dead; and their freedom from this superstition was lnherited by the church, founded as it was by men of that nation, nul at first largely composed of them. But the semi-converts of the 4th century and dowawards brought with them a strong tendency to the wership of human relics and to a behel' in their tutelary power.

This had been geac fsthers, whether G a few examples, th for himself in wh of Christians sprat beatheu precedent. reace paid by Athe Oedipus (Vuleriua ext. 3), and of The compare Cimin, 8), (Pausanias, Boeotic, those of Alexander sli. 64; Suetonius, of Zoroaster were (Chron. I'aschale, 6 the first I'erdiccas descendants, so long them (Justin, Hist. clsred that if the bo dust were scattered the city would neve (Justin, iii. 4). See li. 280.

The pomp that att relics of a martyr n trated by the honou Demetrius (Plut. De Phoc. 37).
The heathen practi the graves of heroe Alexsudria as a juatif orer the remains Julian. x. 336, ed. $\mathrm{S}_{\mathrm{p}}$ II. The earliest I Churof, -The firat Ch of their brethren us care, because they 1 which God had wro organis et vasis ad o Spiritus" (Aug. De C destined to share in th the reicemed soul. more congenial to Chr remsins of a friead wit and leave them to the than to dissipate then tha birds and bensta. greatly intensified, w faith is the resurrectio Great efforts were ther the body of a martyr $f$ first, ss we shall sce, t but as tinfe advance began to be set on th other eminent Christiz no trace of the error to version of the emperors of proselytes enterad $t$ partially renounced hea The best illustration is found in the earliest and especially In those Passions which were pr the great clurches for 1 their nuniveraarles, A kuch documents, as col Murtyruin, ed. Veron. 1 ramplete freedom of th the uadue veneration of Por our purpose these themselves into three ffty-vir documenta that asilicarii, Church; o receiva chdencon, harist, he 11, except i.). The ers ; thea te ladies astly, his \%. Rit. i as if reny orders le of the hioners. I. T. A.] $f$ wood or curtnins. xiou with beee the ating the rium from egulares" decornted Stephen egularis" ss given to :onstitutae Andrew's. regularis" laced upon rd between
He also the middla ed "reguasts of the d St. Joho : of plates tom. ii.
[E. V.]

This had been general among their henthen foretathers, whether Greek or Roman. If we refer to a few examples, the reader will be able to judge for himself in what degree the later practice of Christians sprang from, or was moulded hy, bentheu precedent. We may instance the reverebce puid by Athens to the supposed relica of Oedipus (Valerius Maxiuuus, Exempl. Mem. v. 3, ext. 3), nad of Theseus (Plutarch, Thescus, 36 ; compare Cim,n, 8), by Thebes to those of Linus (Psusanias, Boeotic. 29), nnd by Alexindria to those of Alexader the Great (Aeli:an, V'ar. Hist.
xii. 64; Suetonius, Auyustus, 18). The bones of Zoroaster were the safegusrd of Persia (Chron. I'aschate, 67, ed. Dind.), while those of the first Perdiccas secured the kingdom to his desceadants, so long as they should be buried by clsred that if the bones of Phalantus reduced to clsred that if the bones of Phalantus reduced te dust were scattered over the forum of Tarentum, the city would never be lost by the lartheniae (Justiv, iii. 4). See the Aglaophamus of Lobeck, ii. 280.

The pomp that attended the translation of the relics of a martyr may in like manner be illustrated by the honours shewn to the remains of Demetrius (Plut. Demetr: 5$), and Phocion (ld.
Phoc. 37).
The heathen practice of delivering orations at the graves of heroes is mentioned by Cyril of Alexsodria as a justification of the Christian rites over the remains of the over the remains of the martyrs (Contru Julian. x. 336, ed. Spanh.) Julian. x. 336, ed. Spanh.).
II. The earliest Treutment of Relics in the Church.-The firat Christians regarded the bodies of their hrethren as worthy of very reverent care, because they had been instruments by mbich God bad wreught ("quibus tunquatm organis et vasia ad onnnia bona opera usus est Spiritus" (Aug. De Cura pro Mort. 5), and were destined to ahare in the future bliss snd glory of the redeemed soul. It was for thla reuson far more congenial to Christian feeling to cover the remains of a friend with earth (Onsequctes, $\S \times x$.), and leave them to the natural process of decay, than to dissipate them by fire, or give them to the birds sad bensta. The feeling was of course greatly intensified, when oue had proved his faith in the resurrection by $n$ death of aufferiug. Great efforts were therefore often made to oltnin the body of a martyr for honourable burial. At first, as we shall see, this was the only metive; but as timfe advanced, a superstitious value; began to be set on the relies of martyrs and other emioent Christians. There is, however, no trace of the error to be found before the conversion of the emperora, under whom multitudes of proselytes entered the church, who had only partinlly reaounced henthenism.
The lest illustration of the purer sentiment is found in the earliest records of the martyrs, aod especially in those contemporary Acts and Passions whieh were prepared by the notaries of the great churches for reading in the services on their auniversaries. A careful examination of kuch documents, as collected by Ruianrt (Acta Martyrun, ed. Veron. 1731), clearly proves the complete freelom of the first Christinns froon the uadue veneration of relics of wiatever kind.
For our purpose these Acta naturally divide For our purpose these Acta naturally divide themselves into three classes, themselves into three classes. (1) Thare nre iffy-vir documents that maike no mention of the burial of the martyr or of any subseqnent disposal of his relics. (2) There are thirty-two that there are senctude to the burial only; and (3) there are seventeen which speak of the relics as or both. Tor veaeration or uss menas of henling, from A.D. 61 first two elasses range in subject Hieros. Episc. Rui (Martyrium S. Jacobi primi In Persia, R. 5uiu. 5) to 365 (Passio S. Bademi Hegesippus A.D. 170 (R. 5,6 ) to SS Chip from nad Augustine nad The 5, 6) to SS. Chrysostom In the Acta of Theodoret (R. 446,496,524). class), who died nt Fructuosi, $¢ \mathrm{c}$. (of the 2ad friends are furbidlen Tarragoun, A.D. 259, the martys are furbidden to keep any relics. The Christin bad been burnt, und at night the wine wherent to the amphitheatre, "with which donewith to quench the halt-burnt budies, ashes of the said nppopiated, ns each could, the lected." But Fructuosus "apphad been colbrethren and warned the "nppeared to the restore with warned them that they ahould restore, without delay, what each had taken of gether" (K. 193).

RELICS
1769
The earlicat martyrdom in the third clasa la the of St. Symphorian at Autun (cir. 180), but the mention of Euphronius the bishop of Autun about 470 (see document canant be carlier than The 470 (see Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. ii. 15). the next is that of st. Lawrence, A.d. 258; but is thronicler, or tather rhapsolist in this cave, is the poet Prudentius (Hymn de Mart. S. L. See line 133 et seq.), who lived a century and a half later (R. 169). St. Eulalia, A.D. 304, is celebrated by the same writer (Hymn de Mart. S. Eul. See line 43 ; R. 399). Ot St. Ferreolus, who died at Vienue 304, the later compiler of his Pasion, snys, "Sepulcrum sancti corporis ejus veneramur, . .cujus beneficia per civitates sicut expetuntur votis, ita beneficiis lrequeatibus approbantur"(R. 408). The graves of st. Vitalia and St. Agricola (d. 304) were opened in the preseuce of St. Ambruse, 393, who fally believed in the wonder-working power of relica. He calls those gathered by him "erucis tropaea, cujus gratiam in operibus agaoscitis" (Ex/urt. Viryin. 2; R. 410). The fervid panegyries of Prudentius (Hymn. de SJ, xviii., Min. Caesarau\%.) are again our authority for the honour paid to the relics of the msrtyrs of Saragossan, 304, aud St. Cassian of Imola, date uncertain (R. 411, 469). Of St. Domnian etc. of about the same date, St. Chrysoatom soine eighty years after, shys, "Let us full dowu before their remains; let us embrace their cotfins; fur the coffins of the martyrs can aequire great virtue " (De Bornice, &c., 7 ; R. 419). The martyrdom of Cyricus and Julitta (at Taraus, 305) was written by Theodotus of Iconium more than 250 jears later. Of another Julitta, who suffered at Caessrea in Cappadocia seme time in the 4th century, St. Basil, about 370, says that the ear'th where she was buried sent forth a spring of water - " both a anfeguard to those in health, and source of pleasure to those who enjoy it aobarly, and a comfort to the sick" (llom. in Mart. Jul. 2; R, 424). The same futher says that the ashes of the Forty Martyrs of Sebaste in Armenia, A.D. 320, being thrown iato a river, carried a blessing to all the neighbouring consta, "Like towers closely set, they nifford pro tection egainst the incursions of our exemien " Nyss. Hom. i. in xl. Mm. ii. 935). St. Chrysostom again in his Laul. S. Drosidis (at Antioch, date unc.) asverts that the bones of the martyrs both drive isway disease and put death to flight. They have "done the latter," he says, "in the time of our torefathers; the former in ours" (§ 4). "Where the bones of the martyrs are buried, the devils fly as from fire and intolerable punishment" (2). Pussis S. Genesii (at Arles, date unc.): "The faithful servants of God nt that time took care that the guardian power of this one martyr should be a defeace to either bank of the river crowned with a double city (the Rhône Howing through It); for leaving the traces of his consecrated bluod in the place itself of his blessed passion, they transferred his honoured renains to the other side of the river, that the holy Genesius might be present in both, places, there by his blood, here by his body" (R. 474 ; writtea by Yaulinus, A.D. 393, ad. calc. E'pp. Opp. 316). Martyrium S. Julumi (a Cilician, date unc.): "Take one aftlicted by a devil and mad, and lead him to the holy tomb, in which are the remains of the martyr, and you will see him quite starting and fleeing away . . . . Now, after so long a time, when the body has become dust and ashes, they do not dare to look towards the tomb" (Chrys. Lauaut. S. M. Juliani, §2; R. 476). Encomirim in S. M. Phocam (at Sinope, date unc.): "The relics divided among many places keep whole for the thrice blessed martyr the love of his osme . . . . The Romans worship Phocas no lesa than Peter and Paul. Whence, as they relate, they have with great pains procured the head of the martyr . . . . to hooour him, and for their own advantage" (Asterius Amas. A.D. 401, in Combefis. Auct. Gr. i. 493). E'pistola Ecclesiae Gotthicae dc Martyrio S. Sabae (ia Gotthin, 372): the remains were left unburied by the murderers, "sed a piis fratribus servatae sunt, easque clarissimus dux Scythiae Julias Soranus, Deum colens, missis viris fide dignis, e loco barbaro in Romaniam traustulit, et gratificari volens patriae snae pretiosum munus, fructum fidei gloriosum, misit in Cappadociam ad vestram religionem. ex voluntate presbyterorum" (R. 529). S. Vifilii Trilentini Epistula ad S. Joan. Chrys. de Martyrio SS. Sisinnii, &e. (at Anagnia or Anaunla near Treat, 397) tells us that a nobleman "sanctorum recentiom et vapore fumantium reliquins postalavit," which he took or sent to Constantiaople (R. 535).

RELICS

The necessary inference from the foregoing anslysis is that the worship of relics, and the belief in them as remedies and a protection againat evil, originated in the 4th century. They first appear in writings, none of which are earlier than the year 370; but they prevailed rapidls when they had oace taken root. This was perhaps largely owing to the encouragement which they received, as we have seen, from some truly great mea, as Ambrose and Augostine among the Latias, and Basil and Chrysostom in the East, who were evidently deceived by certain physical phenomean, the nature of which is IIl understood even at the present day.
III. Multifarivus Relics of Putriarchs, Prophets, Christ, the Aposties, and other Suints.-The bones of the saiats of the Old Testament, long held unclean, became in the 4th century objecta of great veneration. E.y. Paula and Eustochium, writiag to Marcella in 386, suggest that when she visits the Holy Land they will "pray together in the mausoleun of David, . . . hasten to the tabernacles or memoriae of Abraham, Isatc, and Jacob, . . go to Samaria, aad together alore tho ashes of John the Baptist, Elisha alvo, and Obadiah " (l:pist. Hieron. xlvi. 12). St. Jerome, in 406, tells us that Arcadius translated "the bones of the blessed Samuel from Judiea into Thrace" (C. Vigilunt. 5). Among the numberless relics collected with the aid of Charlemagne from all parts by Angillert of Ceatule, A.D. 814, were the blood, hairs (also at Corbie, Acta Bened. iv. i. 376), and garments of John the Baptist, bones of his father Zacharias, memorials of Symeon, &c. (Scriptum S. Angilb. 14, 15; Bolland. Feb. iil. 103 ; or Actu Bened. IV. i. 114), Hair from the beard of Nosh was shewa st Corbie in the same centary (ibid. 377).
Alleged relies of vur Lord were very numerous, and, it is to be feared, all, without exception, spurious. For the history of the cross see Vol. 1. pp. 503-506. To the discovery of the cross by Helena, St. Ambrose in 395 adds that of the title written by Pilate, and of the nails, one or more of whicls she cansed to be wrought into a bit for her son's horse (de Obit. Theocles. 46, 47), a tradition known to St. Jerome (Cumm. in Zach. xiv. 20), Cyril Alex. (Comm. in loce eund.), Theodoret (Hist. Eccl. i. 18), Sozomen (II. 1.: ii. 1), Rufinus ( $H_{\text {E. i. }}$ ), Gregory of Tours Mirac. i. 6), nnd Cassiodorius (Hist. Trip. ii. 18). By the time of Gregory of Tours, 573, the holy spear (rediscovered in 1098, Guibert. Abb. Hist. Hieros. v. 19, vi. 7), the reed, the sponge, the crown of thorns, the seamless coat, and the pillar of scourging had all been supplied to the igaorant credulity of the age (Mrruc. i. $6-8$ ), The thorns were still green, or if they withered were daily restored to freshness "by divine power." Twists of bread made with water from the tomb were sent over the world, and healed many. The same virtue was ascribed to plaited thongs that had been wrapped round the pillar (ibid. 7, 8). The holy coat was kept in a chest in a very secret crypt in a basilica at Galathea, a place mentioned by Gregory only, "quae area a devotis atque fidelibus cum sunuma diligeatia adoratur" (8). Twenty-one "holy coats" were afterwards shewn, as at Trèves, Argeateuil, Rome, Bremen, \&c. (See Gildemeister und voa Sybel, Der heilige Rock au Trie, und die zwanzig andern heiligen ungerähten lidstie, Düsseld. 1845). Angilbert ( $u$.s.) believed that he had acquired parts of the cross, bonds, asils, and sponge, of our Lord's garments and sandals, of the table snd bread of the Last Supper. He also possessed water taken from the place of His baptism. At Corbie, in a reliquary cslld the Prima St. Petri, snid to have been given to the monastery by Charlemagne, were His blood sad hairs, part of the umbilical cord, of the manger, cross, napkia, table, tomb, cluthing, \&c. (Acta Bened, iv, i. 375).

The chair of St. James, the first bishop of Jerusalem, was in all probability the ooly true relic of the apostolic nge that was preserved to the 4th century. It is mentioned by Eascbias as treasured at Jorusalem in his timé, "a clear proof of the veneration in which hoty mea wero and are held" (II. E. vii. 19).
In the collection of Angilbert (u.s.) wereman-alleged relics of mllk, sonie ha garment (these also at Corbie, part of the ma was in the same Eccles. Urb. Ro Abuadnace of $h$ lorum) was saic Jerusalem to S Astorga and Ov Mabill. Vet. Anc hsirs and some o leae (Acta Bened Part of the rer are now "in the tion in the basilif hends are in the Greg. Tur. Mira Andrew, Luke, at nople (Hieron, C. were also preserv Mir. i. 31). The naid to be at Rom ad Eph. 2; Greg. of a table belongi of Angilbert ( $u . s$. by pope John, E: Comc. iii. 342). at Rome much iai in ract till very Rome on his accoun is the first to we debert, ia 595 , " $k$ i. 29 ; see § vi. suhis chains (Epist. So in 741 Charle the "keys of the chaias of St. Peter The importance of thst age may be ea

"His solidata flde

A nail from the Gregory of Rome to Conc. iii. 503). A Bened. u.s.) were Peter, parts of his (Script. Angilb, u.s. of his cross, and dus u,s.). The relics o similsr request, and charscter.
The relics of St. deserve especial me his boly and of thos Was, according to on named Lucian. Th Caphargamala (i.e. salem (Lucian de $R_{e}$ Ang. App. vi. ed. Ber Stephen was removec and the earth into w (ibid. 8). Neverthel from the Greek by In the 9 th ceatury, a (died 337) and Cyri erer, were not conten joint action removed
S. Steph, ibid.). A t

RELICS

RELICS
alleged relics of the bleased Virgin-drops of her milk, some hairs, shreds of her eloak and garment (these all with parts of her veil, \&c. also at Corbis, Acta Mened. iv. i. 375), and a part of the manger (praesepe Mariae), whlch was in the same age said to be at Rome (Notitia Eicles. Urb. Rom. Aleuini, Opp. App. iii. 598). Abundance of her hair (reliquias tantae capillorum) was said to have been brought from Jerusalem to $\mathrm{S}_{\mathrm{p}}$ ain, and to be preserved at Astorgn and Oriedo (Osmundi Epist. ad Idam, Mabill. Vet. Anal. 433, ed. 2). At Corbie were hairs and some of the olntment of Mary Magdalene (Acta Bened. iv. 1. 376).
Purt of the remains of St. Peter and St. Paul ars now "in the Vatican choreh, another portion in the basilica of St. Paul; bot their sacred hends are in the Lateran basilica" (Ruisart ad Greg. Tur. Mirac. i. 28). The bodies of SS. Andrew, Lake, and Timothy were at Constantinople (Hieron, C. Vigil. 5). Relies of St. Andrew were also preserved at Neuvy, Denr Tuurs (G. T. Mir. i. 31). The chains of St. Panl were early aaid to be at Rome (Chrysost. Hom. viii. in Ep. ad Eph. 2 ; Greg. M. Ep. iii. 30, xi. 49). Part of a table belonging to him was in the collection of Angilbert (u,s.: $\therefore, x$, of St. Pani were sent by pope John, E. $\mathrm{E}_{1}$, vishop of Vienne (Hard. Conc. iii. 342). $\qquad$ ios of St. Peter appeared at Rome much ister than those of St. Paul, not in ract till very special claims were made for Rome on his account. If I mistake not, Gregory I. is the first to uention them. He sent to Childebert, in 595, " keys of Peter" (Greg. Tur. Mir. 1. 29 ; see § vi. sub fin.) and some filings from his chaing (Epist. v. 6; comp. ii. 33; iii. 3). So in 741 Charles received from Gregory III. the "keys of the venerable sepolehre, with the chains of St. Peter" (Fredegar. Chron. nd an.). The importance of this possession to Roms in thst age may be ensily underatood:
"His solfdata fldes, hls est tibt, Roma, catenis" Atcuin. Carm. 169.
1 nsil from the cross of St. Peter was sent by Gregory of Rome to Secundinus, a recluse (Hard. Conc. iii. 503). At Ceutule (and Corbie, Acta ${ }^{\text {Bened. u.s.) }}$ were hairs from the beard of St. Peter, parts of his casola, his sandals and table (Script. Angilb. u.s.); at Corbie parta of his ribs, of his cross, and dust from his tomb (Acta Bened. *.s.). The relics of the other apostles were in similar request, and were generally of the bame charscter.
.Tha relies of St. Stephen the proto-martyr deserve especial mention. In 415 the site of his body and of those of Nicodemua and Gamaliel was, sccording to one legend, revcaled to a priest named Lucian. They were at a place called Caphargamala (i.e. Villa Gamalielis), near Jerusalem (Lucinn de Rev. Corp. Steph. 2-3, in Opp. Aug. App. vi. ed. Ben.), to which eity that of St. Stephen was removed, except some small joints and the earth into which the flesh was resolved (ibid. 8). Nevertheless another story, translated from the Greek by Anastasiun Bibliothecnrius in the 9th century, affirma that it was at Jeru. melem in the tinis of the emperor Conatantine (died 337) and Cyril of Jorusalem (who, howerer, were nut contemporaries), and was by their jeint action removed to byzantlum (de Transl.
S. Sleph, ibid.). A third document tella us of st that when pray together hasten to the gether adure ha also, and St. Jerome, nslated "the Judata into the numberCharlemngne ule, A.D. 814 , Corbie, Acta of John the as, memorials yill. 14, 15; d. IV. i. 114). 7). e very nameithout excep. the cross see covery of the 95 adds that of the nails, o be wrought Obit. Thexdes. :rome (Cuman. in lec. cund.), nen ( $H . E:$ ii, ary of Tours Trip. ii. 18). 573, the holy rt. Abl. Hist. e sponge, the oat, and the upplied to the tivuc. i. 6-8). they withered "by divine th wster from Id, and healed bed to plaited vand the pillar ept in a chest a at Galathea, ;, "quae arca ima diligentis "holy coats" es, Argenteail, :ister und yon rie und die .alten liocic, believed thst g , bonds, nails, s and sandsls, $t$ Sapper. He te place of His ary calld the 1 given to the His blood sad of the msnger, ing, &c. (Acta first bishop of the only true 3 preserved to a by Easebias time, " a clear holy mea wero
i.8.) were mar
IV. Spurious Relics.-St. Angustine, denouncing certain wanderiag impustors in the habit of monks, says: "Some of them lave for, sale the menhers of martyrs, if they were martyra" (de Op. Monach. xxviii. 36 ; comp. Isidore de Div. (fff. ii. 1.7). Fraud was, therefore, already practised by he beginaing of the 5th century. Gregory I. uear the end of the 6th, writing to the Augnsta Coustantinn, declares that some Greek monks hald beea detected exhuming bones near the church of St. l'aul in Rome, who, teing closely questiuned, "confessed that they had intended to carry those bones to Greece as the relics of saints" (E'pist, iii. 30). About 587 nn impostor appeared at Tours and Paris, professiag to come from Spaio with relics of st. Vincent and St. Felix. Having told the story, the historian adds: "Multi nain sunt qui has seductiones exercentes popurs in rusticum in errorem ponere non desistunt" (Greg. Tur. Ihist. Franc. ix. 6); and this netwithstanding the stories of divine chastisemeat which were circulated. For example, one who exhibited for guin a pretended beae of St. Gudehurd, was seized with delirium and died (Tr.nsl. S. God. 46, Acta Bened. VI. ii. 390).

Such frands were less frequeatly exposed io the ages that fullowed, many bishops unhappily tiniakiag that it would be inexpedient to uadeceive the people; e.g. a maa, who had under various naines sold false relics in France, went into Switzerland, nnd there having, " nore solito, collected by aight from some vile place the bones of an uuknown persoa, aad placed them in a box on a bier, declared that he had been revealed to him by angelic information, and pretended that he was a martyr named Justus." The igoorant were deceived, miracles were snid to follow, sud at length the body was brought to be placed in a newly-erected chnrch at Sus in the Engadine. Our informant was preseat at the consecration, and by questioniag the man easily detected the inposture. Nevertheless the service proceeded, and the fulse relics had their part in it (see after, $\S$ xiii.). $A s$ in later times with the impostures of La Salette, Lourdes, \&e. the educated and thoughtful were shocked and scandalized, but the multitnde "remained in its error injusti nomen pro Justo venerans " (Glaber Rodolph. Hist, iv. 3).
We must not, however, attribute all false relics to the nction of deliberate fraud. The ignorant were always disposed to regard any human remains accidentally discovered as those of a martyr, especially if fuund in or near a church. An altar had been reared in a certain place in the diocese of Tours on the strength of a popnlar tradition that a martyr had been buried there. St. Martin, A.D. 375 , doubting the fact, "rtanding on the tomb itself, prayed to God that he would shew who, and of what merit, the person there buried was. Then, turning to the left, he saw standing near him an ill-conditioned, fierce-looking shade. He orders It to declare its name and character. It tells its name, and, touching its crime, confesses that it was a robber," &c. (Sulpic. Sever. Vita B. Mart. 8). A wgustine of Cnnterbury fonad some persons, probably in France, "worshipping" a body which they supposed to be that of St. Sixtus. He wrote to Rome, asking Gregory for same genuine relics of the martyr, who, graat-

Ing his request, gave him this directioa: "The relics which you have asked for are to be buried by themselves, that the place in which the aforesaid body liea may be altogether closed up, and the people not suffered to desert the certain and worship the uncertain" (Greg. M. Epist. xii. 31).

The 7'rial of Relics.-Donbtful relica were often put to a deliberate test. We first henr of this in Spain, the ecuacil of Saragossa in 592 making a decree that the relica in use where the Arian heresy had prevailed ahonld be "brought by the prleats in whose chnrches they were found, and, being presented to the bishops, should be tried by fire " (can. 2). Actual instances of such ordeal at that period are not, so far as I am aware, on extant record; but we meet with several later on. E.g. Egbert of Trier finding what was supposed to be the body of St. Celsus, ". lest any suapicior of the sanctity of the holy relics should urise, during Mass, after the offertory had been sung, threw a joint of the tinger of St. Celans, wrapped in a cloth, into a thurible foll of burning conls, which remained unhurt and untonched by the fire through the whols time of the canon" (Annal. Bened. iii. 658, ad an. 979, n. 91). Similar'y when a mouk brought from Jerusnlem to Monte Cassino a piece of linea (more probnbly, cloth of asbestos), nlleged to be part of the clotin with which our lord wiped the feet of the discipleant the Last Surper, it was also put into a censer containing fire. " Mox quidem in ignis colorem conversa post paululnm vero amotia carbonibns ad pristitam speciem mirabiliter est reversa" (Leo Marsic. Chron. Cass ii. 33 ; Acta Bened. s. vi. i. 101). The relics of St. Rotrudis stood the same test (Chron. Andriensis Monast. in Spicil. Dncher. ii 78, ed. 2), which was applied also to the bones of king Wistan (Vita Wist. 5, in Boll. June 1 ; i. 87); and other instances might be given.

Ruinart has printed, from a MS. preserved in Rheims, a form of prayer to be used at the trial of relics (App. ad Opp. Greg. Tur. 1366), which Mabillon has reprinted in App. 2 to the Epist. de Cultu SS. Ignoturum, written by him under the name of Eusebius Romanus. It is also given from two Rheims MSS. by Martene, Ant. Ecel. Rit. iii. 8. 'We ubserve, however, that the relics referred to in the prayer are only portions of the saint's dress, "pannns iste, vel bilum istud," a circnmatance that suggesta anspicion. It would require no great adroitness to appear to reprodnce a burnt shred of cloth.
VI. Tranalation of Reicics.-For some centuries there was an unwilingness to meddle with the bodies of the saints when once buried, alising at first from a proper feeling, but later on frum a superstitious fear. A disciple of Simeon Stylites, desiring a relic of bis master, thought he sam the body stir, and desisted in alaras (Antanius in Vita S. Sim. 16). This whilesome shriuking was first forgotten in the East (see the pext jaragraph of this section), but it remained so loug a tradition of the western ohurch that Gregory of Rome could say in 593, "De Graccorum consuetndine, qui ossa levare sanctorum se asserunt, vehementer miramur, et vix credimus" (Epist. iii. 30). He declixed, thongh nut quite truly, ns we shall see: "In Romanis vel totius Occidentis partibus omnino intolerabile eat atque sacrilegum, si iancterum cerpera tangere quisquam fortas otozies are relat curred. Even do 6th century (hodi fear" of meddling that " no one nt a belonging to him. either seized by a d death" (Greg. Tu the tomb of Agric oile who "desired aucred ashes," the atone falling on his (ib. 44) A soldie ot. Andrew from n at the door of the casket round the one of his prisoners owin country" (I Manichaenns destr healing power fron St. Narses had suf punished by n plag 101). When Const some relics of St. J's bodies of St. Peter churches with mira it was not possible for prayer without when his predecesso covering over the bo aon parvi terroris ha himself wished ahout the tomb of ordered the removal near it, "apparea dignis, subita morte that when the tomb deatally opened, all dsys (Epist. iii. 30) msdness because he bone of St. Denya Duchesne, Hist. Fra Gesta Reg. Fr. 44, it Guduali, vii. 72, in de Cer.tio ED. 5 , ib. ib, June 6, j. 678; &c Constantine was 11 nove the bodies of move the bodies of an of the aate-Nicene chi
"Constantino primu Te gaia for his new thst coaferred on old I Peter and St. Paul, he holy relics of andre (Hieron, c. Vigil. 5 ; Theodorus Lector, Hist lsw of Theodosius exp lationa to the subject: ad alterum locum tra distrahat" (C'ndex, ix. (as we have seen) denie to disturb them. In had lag been relaxed. in 517 , contented itse relics of saints to be pla to fills, anless it so ha soma parish were near tha sacred ashes with (an. 25). Under Char quisquam fortasae voluerit" (ind.). Nany atozies are related of the danger thus in curred. Evell down to the latter part of the 6th century (hodieque) there was "so great a fear" of meddling with the tomb of St, Cassian that " no one at all had dared to touch anything belonging to him. If any one did so, he was either seized by a demon or destroyed by a audden death" (Greg. Tur. do Glor. Mart. 43). When the tomb of Agricola or Vitalis was opened by one who "desired to take therefrom some of the bucred ashes," the oflender was cnught by the stone fulling on him, and with dilliculty released (ib.44). A soldier whe rescued sonse relics of ot. Andrew from $n$ fire was aeized with cramp at the door of the church, whereupen he put the casket round the neck of an unpolluted child, one of his prisoners, and ao "arrived anfely in his own country" (Id. Mir. i. 30). When the Blanichaenns destroyed a fig-tree which had a bealing power from growing on the spot where St. Narses had anfiered (A.D. 341), they were punished by a plague (Assem. Acta SS. MMS. iv. 101). When Constantina begged of Gregory I. aome relics of St. Paul, he assured her that "the hodies of St. Peter and St. Paut blazed in their churches with miraculous terrora, so greas that it was not possible to draw nigh thither even for prayer without great fear." He aflirms that when his predecessor wished to change the ailver covering over the body of St. Peter, "signum ei non parvi terroris apparuit;" and that when be himself wished to make aome improvement sbout the tomb of St. Paul, the person who ardered the removal of some other bones found oear it, "qpparcatibus quibusdam tristibus signis, subitn morte defunctus eat ;" and again, that when the tomb of St. Lawrence was accidentally opened, all present died within ten daya (Epist. iii. 30). Clovi3 was struek with madness because he attempted to carry off a bone of St. Denys (Gesta Dugoberti, i. 2 ; in Duchesne, Hist. Franc. Script. i. 589 , comp. Gesta Reg. Fr. 44, ihid. 717). See also Vita S. Guducali, vii. 72, in Bolland. Juae 6; i. 747 ; de Certio Ep. 5 ; de Cerstio E'p. 5, ib. 709 ; Illustr. Claud. iv. 44, ib, June 6, i. 678 ; &c.
Constantine was the first who ventured to move the bodies of aaints, contrary to the spinit of the ante-Nicene church:
"Constantino prinum sub Cuesare factum est." Paulin. Poem. xix. 32t.
To gain for his new city a prestige similar to that conferred on old Rome by the remains of St. Peter and St. Paul, he transferred thither "the holy relica of Andrew, Luke, and Timothy" (Hieron, c. Vigil. 5; Procop. de Aedificiis, i. 4; Theodorns Lector, Hist. Eccles, ii. 61). A later law of Theodosina expressly forbade auch tradslations $t c$ the subject:" ad alterum locum : "Humatum corpus nemo distrahat" locum transferat, nemo martyrem (as we have seen) denied that it was ever lawful to disturb them. In France, however, the rule had long been relaxed. The council of Epaone, in 517 , contented itself with forbidding "the relics of saints to be placed in oratoriea attached tome pills, anless it so happened that the clergy of some parish were near to aerve (quil famulentur) the sacred ashea with frequent psalin-singing"
(can, 25), Under Charlemagoe the old Gallican

RELICS
$17: 3$
liberty was reatrained, through Roman influence' as we cannot donbt, by the councii of Metz, A.D. 813, which decreed that so one should preplace to place without bodies of the saints from or of the bishops, and the sanction of the princo synod (can, 51). Hewe hicence of the holy mRaNDEA, &c. were taken generally only keys, martyr, even when a relic was required for the consecration of a church. If bodiequired for the at all, it was only that they might be buried agary in more fitting place. This is shewn at length by Mabillon in I'raef, Act. Bewed. saec. &i. n. 42. The instances of Stephen, Gervasins, Glor. Conf. 72 Greg. Tur. Mir. i. 51, 56, 63; do as exception 2,10 must therefore be regarded Intions of SS. Mee other exceptions in the transLeodegarius, Earculfus, Quintirus, Audoeuus, Bened. from ever, the tide had turner). At length, how credulity was had turned so completely that struck with not overtaxed by the otory of men to hinder cven a claess because they attempted Gratiniano en a clandestioe translation (Dc SS, VIJ. Acuuisition of Roii. June 1, i. 24).

tion to the pram of Relics,-One great temptaeagerness with which everything was the arme of a relic was purchased. The snle of them was forbidden by Theodosius ("Hima. tum corpus . . . nemo mercetur, (odex, ix. 17, § 7); but npparently with little effect in the more distant provinces. A story tolle of an abbat of lourges in the 6th century implies that it was common in France at that period (Greg. Tur. Mirac. i. 90). Q. Rndegund procured a multitude of relics from ull parts of the world " tam muneribus quam precibus" (Baudooivia, Vita S. Rud. 14). It was even considered n good deed to sten relles, becnuse a proof of devotion : e. g. a German bishe , , named Othwin, carrled off hy aight from Pavin the relies of St. Epiphanius and Si. Speciosa. He had suruples at first, "presumptionis ducebat," but $n$ German presbyter "divinitus" overruled his objectiong (Vita Epiph. 3; Pertz, Mon. Alem. vi. 229) A French priest stole some relics of St. Helen from a church nt Rome. They performed meny miracles on the road to France, and were received with great honour (Flodoard, Hist. Lecl. Rem. ii. 8). The tomb of St. Beuedict had been neglected, and its very site furgotten, but when the passion for relics became trong, a "lenrned presbyter" went from Frarce to Italy to search for the body. Having witia some difficulty found it, he cirrried it off suareptitiously, together with that of Scholastica, his sister, who had been buried in the same tomb. Niracles occurred at once. The fine linen in which the remaias were wurnpeu became red with blood, and every baturul obstacle to the priest s return yielded at once to supernatural power, nntil they were safely deposited at 'leury (ae Transl. Corp. Ss Bened, in Fall in Mabill Anal. Vet. 211 , ed. 2 ) There are aome iustances, however, in which the theft is disullowed; but these belong to an earlier period, or the circumstances were diffcrent. E. $g$. Gregory of Tours in the 6th century hrs a story of relics stolen, with a view to their being sold; but the result marked the disapprobation of Heaven ( $D_{0}$ Clor. Mart. 90). A bishop of Verdun, present et the opening of the shrine

RELICS

contlnued ; e. g. tha leader of a party of Indian monks (perhaps ahout A.D. 380) wore a "scrip of hair-cloth, filled with the relics of certain holy fathers" (Jean. Dumasc. Vita Brataam, co 22). Germanus of̂ Auxerre, A.D. 420, when a blind child was brought to him, "tonk in his hands the little case (capsulam) with the relico of saints hanging by his side, and, tearing it of his neck, applied it to the syes of the girl in the sight of all" (Constant. Vita S. Gcrm. i. 24). Aridius, about 580 , wore relies about his own neek (Vita, 29), and hung dust from the tomb of St. Nartin in a little case on that of Gregory of Tours (G. T. Hist. Pr. viii. 15; see also ds Glor. Mart. i. 84). St. Willehad of Bremen "had a case with holy relics about hls nerk" (Anschar. in Vita Will. in Acta Benet, s, iii. P. 2, p. 406). St. Gall wore one with relics of the blessed Virgin (Walafr. Strabo iu Vita S. Gall. 11). This was, however, probably always so f.r uncommon that the wearer of relics was :upposed thereby to profess peculiar sanctity. Thus, in a particular case, "Capsulari honore, quo reliquias inclusas collo gestabat, cognoverunt Dei esse famulum et cultorem" (Vita S. Amutoris, c. iv. § 25 ; Boll. May 1, i. 57). [Relletary.]
X. Uaths taken over Relics.-This was common at one tima both in the East and West. Cyril of Scythopolita relates the story of ove who, having denied a trust, was required to take an onth over the relics of Euthymius. His perjury was punished by a scourging in a vision and death (I'ita S. Euth. 155). In the West we read of oaths oyer the tombs or relics of $s s$. Denys (Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. v. 33), Martin (ib. v. 49), Genesins (de Glor. Mart. 74). Maxi$\min$ (de Glor. Conf. 93), Julinn (de Mir. ii. 19, 39), \&c. See Car. M. Capit. i. na. 7, 89 口. 62 . A law of Childeric, 744 (Capit. Reg. Fr. i. 15t), renewed by Charlemague (Capit. iv. an. 803, c. 10; Cayit. R. F. vi. 214), decreed that "every oath be sworn in a church or over relics."

But the laws of the Franks took cegnisance of such oaths more than a century before Chilheric. Dagobert in 639 prescribes the ceremouisl. When the oath is taken, the ?ccused and his compurgators shall "put the " ands on the capsa, and he only whose case is beiag examined shall say the words, putting his hand on the hands of all the rest, that so may Gorl help him and these relics under the hands which he holls, that he may not incur guilt in the matter for which he is questioned" (Lex Alam. vi. 7, Cap. Reg. Fr. i. 60). Hence, in the laws the accused, is said to touch the relics "manu quinta,", "sextâ," &c. according to the number of his compurgators (Baluze, Notae in Marculf $m$ in Capit. Reg. Franc. ii. 924); e. g. among the Formulae collected by Marculfus is an order that one accused of receiving a fugitive slave shall repair on a given day to the ro-al pulace and clenr himself," sua manu septir capelln ( $=$ capsella) Domni Martini"" (is Formularies used on these occasions were: "B5 this holy place and all the divine relics (patrocinia) of the saints who rest here" (Vet. Furm. Andegav. 49, in Mabill. Anal. Vet. 396, ed. 2); "By this holy place and the relics of the blessed martyrs" (Greg. T. Hist. Franc, iv. 47).

Egbert of York, A.D. 732, imposed a penaace of seven years on these who took a false ath of the salnts " Msurus, Ep. ad as in another code four winters." $B$ osth over relics w of a hand, or hear Gregery III., A.d. for perjury "in a was, according to a The penalty was $t$ to commit such vil. ; Hard. Conc. vengeance were als Dess or palsy int Meinverci, ix. 63 ;
XI. Relics under custom at a very over the body of n of their passion. The Council of Car altars raised "pei memoriae martyru unless relics of mart (can, 7). lt was me the remains ot a sair they should be put ths earliest transla "Andrew, Timothy, rest [at C. P.] un Willibuldi, Basnage, Jerome, addressing bishop of Rome "offe the remains of the and considers Christ (C. Vig. 9). super altare, qui pr sub sltare, quí illius (Epist. 22, ad Sor. 1 other martyrs the , "Quae nunc sub (Exhort. Virgin. ii. 1 sxvi, 411). The bor moved not long after "little basilica" in add laid "sub sacre al church (Passio S. Y. Prod. de Cor. v. 131). altar st Meridn, "quo tegulutur" (Greg. Tu comp. Prud. u.s. iii. 2 lonica explains at lee the martyrs are put ui Templo, 116).
XII. Relics in the body or other relic of a in the altar, i,.e. unden aot in the ground beloy 64, 65). Thus, of cert andrew we read: "Co censis ecclesias" (Greg "in sliis basilicarum al 8). Ses also de Mir. Tia S. Wilfridi (Eadme XIII. Relics in the Con Altar.-Relics were so dedication of a church so of the 4 th century. W atell the Church of tha Romana at Alilan, he trat of St. Nazarius, certai apostles having been pre with the greatest devoti of certain 3rlaam, c. 0 , when a ook in his the relics ariug it off girl in the rm. i. 24). at his own the tomb of Gregory see also do of Bremen his neek" ell. s. iii. P. celics of the tita S Gall. always so relics was or saactity. houore, quo cognoverunt S. Amutoris, [LIQU'ARY.] nas common Vest. Cyril of one whe, to take an His perjury vision and he West we elics of SS. 3:3), Martio . 74), MaxiMir. ii. 19 89 п. 62. A Fr. i. 154), iv. an. 803, that "every lics." coguisatace of ore Chideric. ceremorial. ased and his ands on the ing examined hamel on the God help him tich he holds, he matter for n. vi. 7, Cap. $s$ the accused anu quintâ," umber of his Marculf ${ }^{\prime} m$ in 9. annong the an order that re slave shall al paiace and tini" (i. 38). as were: "By relics ( ${ }^{\text {atro }}$ " (Vet. Form 396, ed. 2); of the blessed v. 4i). sed a penanca d a false osth on the relicsof the saints " (de Remed. Pecc. 9 ; see Rabnaus Msurus, Ep. ad Meriban. 18); or bound them, as in another code (Poenitentiale, 1. 34), " to fast four winters." By a law of Charlemagne a false osth over relics was to be punished by the loss of a hand, or heavy fine (Cupit. 3, aht. 813, n. 30). Gregory III., A.D. 731, deciares that the penance for perjury " in altare ubi reliquias habentur" was, accorting to nncient law, to last seven years. The penalty was the same when one led a person to commit such perjury in ignorance (Judicia, vi.; Hard, Conc. ili. 1872). Stories of divine vengeance were niso current, as of sudden blindness or palsy inflicted on the perjurer (Vita Meinverei, ix. 63 ; in Boll. June 5, i. 5\%3).

RELICS

XI. Lielics under the Altar.-It breame the custom at a very early period to build altars over the body of martyrs, or close to the siace of their possion. [Iemoria, Martyrium, The Council of Carthage, 401, ordered that all altars raised "per ngros aut vias, tanquam memeriae martyrum" should be destroyed, ualess relics of martyrs were really buried there the remnins of as natural, therefore, that when they remnins of a saint were removed to a church the earliest be put uuder the sltur. Thus, of "Andrew, Timothy and on record we read: rest [at C. P.] under one sltar" (Hodoeport Williboldi, Basnage, Thes, Mon (Ifodoepor. Jerome, addressing Vigilantius, says that the bishop of Rome "offers sncrifice to the Lord over the remains of the dead mei. Peter and Paul $\ldots$ and considers their tombs the altars of Christ (C. Vig. 9). St. Ambrose, 386: "Jlle super aitare, uui pro omoibus passus est ; isti oub sltare, qui illius redempti sunt passione" (Epist. 22, ad Sor, 13). Of the relics of some other martyra the same father says in 393 : "Quae bunc sub sltaribus reconduntur" (Exthort. Viryin. ii. 10); comp. Paulinus, Poëm. axiii. 411). The borly of St. Vincent wss removed not long after his martyrdom from the "little basilicn" in which it was firat buried and laid "sub sacro altari" "in a more important church (Passio S. V. 12, Ruinart, 329 ; comp. Prud. $d e$ Cor. v. I31). Similarly we read of an altar st Merida, "quo sancta membrs (Eulaliae) teguntur" (Greg. Tur. de Glor. Mart. j. 91; comp. Prad. u.s, iii. 211), Symeon of Thessalonica explains at length "why the relics of Themplo, Ii6). Lemplo, 116).
XII. Relics in the Altar.-Sometimes the body or other relic of a saint is said to be placed in the altar, i.e. under the slab or mensa, but 6t, 65) The ground below the base (see Vol. I. pp. dodrew we read : "Cortain alleged relics of St. dodrew we read: "Collocatia in altari Noviviceusis ecclesiag" (Greg. Tur. Mir. i. 31). So 8) St Sliis basilicarum altaribus" (Vitae PP. viii. 8). See also de Mir. S, Jul. 40; Mir. i. 52; ha S. Wilfridi (Eadmer), viii. 66, XIII. Relics in the Consecration of a Chureh or dedict-Relics were sometimes buried at the dedication of a church so early as the latter part of the 4th century. When St. Ambroso iedicatel the Church of the Apostles near the Porta Romana at Milan, he translated thither the body of St. Nnzarius, certain "relics of the holy wpostles having been previoualy deposited there with the greatest devotion on the part of sll"

RELICS

1775
(Vita Ambr. Paul. suct. 33). When, some time after, he hal dedicated the Ambrosian basilica without relics, the people begged him to do as he had done before. Hoving found relics, he complled with their wislı (Ep. 22 ad Marcell. 13). In this and a third instance (Exhort. Virg. ii. 10) the relics ars said to have bsen placed under the ultar. Paulinus, A.D. 393, frequently recognizes the rite. His church at Nola, "reliquilis Apostolorum intra apsidem trichoram subaltaria sitcratis, non solo beatj Felicis honore venerabilis est " (Ep. 32, ad Sev, 12). Of the little church bosiliculam at Fundi he says: "Hanc quoque tyrum reliquiis benedictis apostolorum et marconsecrabunt" ($ 17). He recommendi Severus to obtain relics for the He recommende church, and sends him verses redication of his rite:
"Dlylaum veneranda tegunt altaria fordus, Compositla sacra cum cruce martyribus."
(Ibid. § 7.)
Gaudentius of Brescia, A.D. 387, having, when on a pilgrimnge to Jerusslem, reccived from Casares some relics of the Forty Martyrs poss the nieces of St. Basil, their original possessor, enjployed them many years ufter In th other relics in the dedication of his church. In his sermon on the occasion, which is extant, reliquias populis percolendss" Brix. 1738). "Habemus ergisc. Opusc. p. 341, dictos x. sancto congregatos, unde hanc ipsam barum partibus meritis dedicstam corum cupari oportere decernimas" Sunctorum nuninstance in Gregory of Tours, Mir, it. 50 Seo an In the 6th century relica wir, ii. 50.
thought so necessary to were in France already to the consecration of a the omission was often supplied not so dedicated at Neuvy, "ubi nulla supplied, as in the chureh habebantur" (Greg. Tunc sancterum pignora another at Précigni till Mr. Mir. i. 31), nud of pignoribus" (recigni till then "absque sanctorum practice previal PP. viii. 11). The same 6th century, in the East ; e.f. When, in the tomb of Eur, a church was dedicated over the under Euthymius, the archbishop " leposited mart the altar certain portions of the relics of martyrs" (Euthymii Vita, 122, in Cotel. Monum. Gr. ii. 305). The council of Nicaes, 787, ordered relics to be put in every church that had been consecrated vithout them, and deposed bishops who should in future so consecrate them (can. 7), The Liber Diurnus of the bishops of Rome in the 8th century provides a form of licence for the removal of relics from a church in ruins to a new one (v. 18). Among the Greeks Symeon of Thessalonica writes a whole chapter to explain " why the relics are carried from an old church to a new " (De S. Templo, 1I7).

Any relic, however trifling, might be used at conserrations. The moat common were Brandea whic like. In one case a vessel is mentioned in Tur water had been turued into balsam (Greg. dress were comm. Sirreds of a pill or described at common (ibid. 34). The ceremony is (De Dedic. Eccl. 9), and Remigius of Auxerre extant; as in the Pontifical of Egbert (ed Surtees Society, 46), the Jumièges Portifical, also English (Martene, 1i. 254), and that of Dunstan (257). See also the Ordo Romanus in Binnchini's collection of documents (Vitae Pontif. Rom. auct. Anastas. Bibl. Proleg. iii. xlviji.), and later books in Martene, u. s. pp. 267, 270, 274, 290.

1776

RELICS

At a later period relics were niso used at the reconcilintion of $n$ church. See the Orders, Martenc, u. s. iii. 286 ; iv. ib. ; v. 287. Ilenthen temples, again, were purified for Christian worship by means of relies. Thus nt Antioch one was delicnted by the bones of St. Ignatius (Evngrius, Hist. Eccl. i. 16). Gregory l. ordered them to be converted into churehes by aspersion with holy water, the erection of nn altar, and the deposition of relics (Ep. ad Mellitum in Bede, Hist. i. 30).
The part of the altar, &c., in which they were placed was called the Sepulcrum, Confrasio, or loculus (Greg. Tur. Mira. i. 34). It had an opening for the introdaction of braden, &c., opposite to which was a similnr opening in the box inclusiug the relics. See Sozom. in Hist. Eccl. ix. 2, and the notea of Vales. in loc.; or Mabillon, Praef. in S. ii. Ord. Ben. obs. 44. These holes are called by the suthor of the Miracles of St. Stephen "fenestellas" (De Mir. S. St. i. 12).

Sometimes the entrance of a church was hallowed by tha burial in it of relics. A crime committed in the court of the church was aggravated, because "the doorway of it had been consecrated with tha relics of sainta" (Capit. Lud. Pii, 819, c. 1 ; Capit. Reg. Franc. iv. 13 ; Ley. Longob. 1. ix. $36 ;$ Canones Isaaci Ling. ii. 2). As there is no earlier evidence of this practice, we cannot accept the suggestion of Baronlus (Notae ad Martyrol. Rom. Nev. 18), and Martene (u. s. ii. 13, § 12), that the reverence shewa to the threshold of a church, espeoisily as indicated by the much earlier ure of the conventional phrases, limina sanctorum, apostolorum, is to be ascribed to the fnct that relics wers buried under them.

Relics were also placed in other parts of cnurches, or their adjuncta, as in the capitals of piers, in tha corner-stones of bell-towers (Leo Mars. Chom. Cassin. iii. 30); but especially in baptisterles (Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. x. 31, § 19 ; Vitae PP. vii. 2). A form of petition for the dedication of a baptistery, "ita ut reliquias in eodem loce sanctorum martyrum 111. et III. desiderem introduci," may be seen with two forms of reply in the Liber Diurnus, v. 19-21.

Forms of public notice announcing the inteaded deposition of relics on such ocensioas ("Denuntintio cnm Reliquiae Scerum Martyrum poneadae sunt)" are extant. See the Ord, Romanus in the Prolegomens to the Vitae Pont. Rom. of Anastasius Bibliuthecarius, ed. Blanch. iii. xlvii.; Ordo R. Bernoldi, Hittorp. De Cath. Eccl. Off. 119, ed. 1610; Ordd. i. ii. in Martene, De Ant. Eccl. Rit. ii. 13 (Missal. Gellon. and Pontif. Egberti).
XIV. Relics on the Altar.-Fiom the 6th century downwards relies before their deposition were commonly set on the altar, ss the place of highest honour. Thus, a bishop hearing that cons were breught to his church, says, "Let the blessed relics rest on the altar, until in the morning wo go forth to meet them " (Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. ix. 6). Some sbreds from the cloak of St. Julian realy to be placed in a church, as yet without relies, ware set for the night on the nitiar (Mirac, ii, 34). It appears also that when pilgrims bearing relles haltel at a enurch, they wire so placed till their departure (De Glor. Conf. 39). Compare Baulonivin, Sita S. hadeyundis, 14. Relies were not, however, allowed to reminin's any time on the alkir until the 9 th century. It wns believed that the miracles of St. Walpurgis censed, "becaluso ber relics were on the altur of the Lorl, where ouly the majesty of the divine mystery ought to be celebrated " (Olo, Cullat. ii. 28). St. Berchsr appeared to a moak and seriously rebukel him, for having placed his remaios on the altar which was "Christi mensa Corporis" (Dirte. S. Berch. v, § 36 in Boll. Oct. 16, vii. 1028). Tha remnins of St. Servatius of Tongres, when cxhumed in the time, of Charlemagne, wera "placed before the altar, because it was not yet held lawful for anything except the sacrifice to be set upon the sltar, that being the table of the Lord of hosts " (De Servat. Iv. 30 ; Lull. May 13, ii. 218). The relics of St. Celsus wers placed on the nltar at Trier, 979 (Annol. Bened iii. 658) ; and other examples eccur in that age. The practice in fact had been fully established by the end of tha preceding century, as appears from a canon of that date: "Nothiug is to be set on the altar, except capsse with the relics of the saints, sad the four Gospels " (Conc. Rem. c. 5, in Regine, de Discipl. Eccl. i. 60. Comp. the Admonitiones Symudales, ibid. 503, 505, 508).
XV. Watching before Relics.--'This begaa early, and was commen to East and West. Thut St. Ambrose says of the remains of Gervasius and Protasius, "The evening coming on wh removed them to the basilica of Fatusta. Thers watch was kept the whole night." The next day they were placed in the new chureh ( $E p, 22,13$ ), When Gragory of Tours, 573, dedicated his own oratory, he watched the night before in the church in which the relics designed for it lay (Da Glor. Conf. 20), and he iucidentally mentions the practice (vigilata noote) elsewhere (ib 59 ). A similar vigil was kept betore the relies of Tarachus, und when others were placed in the chureh of the laura of Euthymius (Cyrill. Seyth. Vita Euthym. 122). The rite is recognized in the early pontiticals: "Deinde vaduat al eum lecum in quo religuine per totam noctem practeritam cum vigiliis fucrint" (Pout. Egberti, 44 ; in Mnrtene, ii. 249 ; see other orders, ibid $254,257,259$, -&c.). Vigils before relics were, however, enjoined at other times on priests who had charge of them, "Reliquias snnctorum cum summo atudlo vigilinrum noctis et diurain officiis conservet " (Capit. Episcoporvm, an, 801, c. 3, in Cap. Reg. Franc. 1. 359).
XVI. Relics brought to Councils.-We have many examples of this, beginning near the cluse of eur period. The ebject was to insure the assistance of the saint thus honoured. In 758 Tassito, duke of Baycux, swore fenlty to Pepin at the council of Compiegne, over the bodies of sereral saints (Adonis Chron. ad no. Migne, exxiii. 124), The body of St. Remigius wns exposed od an altar in a council of Rheims held in the time of Leo IV. (Martene de Ant. Eiccl. Rit. iii i. 10) At Charroux, 989, a council was held betore the relics of St. Junian (Letaldus, Hist. 2, seta Bened. iv. p. ii. 434). At a council in Aquitaipe

In the next cent manetorum atqu phoretne reliqui iv. 5, in Du Che See other examp XVII. Burial a strong feeling near the borly o but la the cours "denire to be place of the satints by Gregory of Nyssi near some smanl! in the resurrectio company of tho (Orat. 3 in $x t$, ) Turio, 442: "It that we shouhl m of the maiats, that from us, while Chr theretore [in the wartyrs we esen their merits ind sanctity" (Serm. 607), saya that ny

"Ut do viclno sane

 Quo nustras thoSt. Augustine thin to be, "at dum ree quos diligunt corp quam patroais suse vandos orando com 4). James the S " collectell from all opostles, ss many $m$ relies), and stered for himself), desirir and to rise and to their comprany" (' When the grave of $s$ was toumd in it "a sad crammed" wit Cdal. § 3, Acta Ben legendary Scriptura Opp. Aug. App. vi.
XVIII. Mirucles a already coma before 1 gire examples of diff there was no evil supp by their means. Com (1) The Blind rece the remains of Gerva found at Milan, A.D. "touched the clothing stely received sight " 14; comp. Ambr. Epi De Cio. Dei, xxii. $8, \$ 2$ Whea the relics of Siair hrooght to Milan, a hlind touched the chest deelared himself henled womaa touched her eyt been in contnet with add "forth with aaw" man was directed by $\mathrm{G}_{\mathrm{t}}$ between the altar and and was heuled (Fortun the shrive of St. Denys, F that there, "recipit gressum, et obstrictae a anditnm" (Passio Dion.
a a church, ne night on is nlso that at a cherch, parture ( $D_{e}$ uivia, lita it, however, n the astar ved that the because her whese only ought to be St. Berchar ehukel him, altar which (Miruc. S. (102б). The igres, when nagne, were was nut yet e sacrifice te the table of o lloll. May Celsus wera Innal. Bened in that nge. established $y$, as appears ing is to be th the relics (Cone. Rem. 60. Comp. $3,505,508)$. -'ihis began West. Thus of Gervasins ming on wa usta. There The next day ( $E_{p}, 22,13$ ), ated his own vefore in the ed for it lay nlly mentions here (ib 59 ). relic's of Turain the church l. Scyth. Vita gnized in the iat al eum noctem prasont. Egberti, r arders, ibid e relies were, es on prieats ias sanctorem tis et diurnis orum, an. 801, ils.-We have near the closa sure the assistIn 758 Tassito, Pejinin it the rlies of several e, cxxiii. 124). expesed on an in the time of Rit. iii i. 10) seld before the Hist. 2, Acta il in Aquitaine

In the next century, " multa delata sunt corpora cancterem atque innumerabllea sanctorum apophoretne reliquiarum" (Glaber Rudupphna, Mhist. See otlier exmmples Lu Nipripenanc. Mist. Iv. 45). See othier exnmples lu Martene.
a strong feeling and even a lat fret there was near the bely of a martyr a law again.t burial but in the course of time this denire to be phaced in death under the pay to the of the suints by nuch proximity to their remains. Gregory of Nyssn buried his fither and mother near seme sunnill relics of the Forty Martyrx, that in the resurrection they might be " raised in the (Orat. 3 in xl. Mart. Alies full of eunfidence" Turat, 4 in : "l. Mart. App. 2t4). Maximus of that we should mingle provided by our ancestors of the ainuts. thant the gloom of darkness may thy frem us, while Christ gives then darkuess may Hy theretiore [in the cemeterles] with the holy, martyra we escape the darkneas of hell, by thsir merits indeed, yet purtners in their 6anctity" (Serm. 61). Paulinus (Puëma. $\times \times \times \mathrm{xv}$. 607), says that a youth was buried near martyrs :

"Ut de vicino sunctorum sangeine ducat,  Quo nestras illo purget in Igre antimas."

St. Augustine thinks the only advautage of it to be, "ut dum recolunt ubi sint reposita eerum ques diligunt corporu, issdem sanctis illos tanquam patronis susceptos apud Dominum adjurandos orando commendent " (Dic Cur: pro ATort. 4). Jamea the Syrian, in the 5th century, "collected from all parts many prephets, many appestes, as many martyrs ns possible (i.e. their relies), and stored them in one coifin (designed for himelf), desiring to dwell with the saiuta and to rise and to enjoy the visien of God in When cempany" "(Theodoret, Helig. Hist. 21). When the g'ave of St. Udalric was opened, there wss found in it "a very Inrge locked chest, fu!! and crammed" with relics (Inventio Cosp. $s$. Cdul. § 3, Acta Bened. v. 470). See also the legendary Scriptura de Transl. S. Stephani; 1 , Opp. Aug. App. vi.
XVIII. Miriscles aseribed to Relics.--Some have dready come before ua; but it may be well to gire exumpliles of different kinds, to shew that there was no evil supposed tou powerful for relief by their menns. Compsare Wonders.
(1) The Blind reesive their Sihht, &e.-When the emsins of Gervusius and Protasius were found at Milan, A.D. 386, a blind man having utocehed the ately reeeived sight" "rauline martyrs, immedi14; comp. Ambr. E:pist, 22 add Soror. 17; Aug, $D_{e} C_{i o .} D_{e i}$, xxii. 8 , § 2 ). Some years after this. mhen the relics of Sisiinnius and Alexander were brooght to Milan, a stranger professing to be bind biod touched the chest in which they were, and declsed himself declsred himself healed (Paul. u. s. 52). A blind woman touched her eyes with flowerst that had been in contnet with the relics of St. Stephen and "furthwith saw" (Aug. us. s. 10). At blind man was directed by Germhnus, A.D. 5.55 , to lie between the altar and some relics of Gervasius, Ind was healed (Fortunatus, Vita Germ. : it $)$ ). Oit the strive of the strine of SS. Denys, Fortunatus says generally tatit there "r that there, "recipit caecitias visum, debilitis gressum, et obstrietae aurium gressum, et obstrictae aurium januane recipiunt vaditum" (Passio Dion. 3).

RELICS

1777
(2) The Dead ruised.-St. Chrysostem has told us that the benes of the martyrs "put death to flight" (laud. Dros. 4). Several instnnces Cure alleged by St. Augustine. A presbyter at Calauna, in Africa, Inid out as dend, revived when n tunic, which had been taken to a memoria centaining relics of St. Stephen, was placed on waggon-wheel went Civ. Dei, xxii. 8, § 12). A his mother took him a child and killed him, memoria, "nad he not at once to the same but even appeared unhuly camo to life agala, women also were restored to " (ibicl. 15). Two with dresses that had derived on being covered same memoria ( 16,17 ) Acrived virtue trom the with the oil of the, 17). A dead boy "anointed luid on the memorin also mittyr," nai an infint
(3) Devils tormented returned to life $(18,18)$. asserted. E. g. Pauln at the tonab universally Obaliah and John the Baptist "cernebat Elisha, daemones rugire che baptist "cernebat variis sanctorum ululare criatibua, et ante sepulera vecibus lature con homises mere luporum, serpentum, mugire thurerum" lloonum, sibininre 108, ad Eiust. 13). When (Ilicron. Epist. brought to the When a demuriae was the demen "with a spared, and confessed when wail entreated to ba had entered the youth;" whom there, and how he (Aug. de Civ. Dei, xxii, 8, § 7). "Persens lett by the attacks of nn unclean spirit, whens rexed the tomb of St. Denys, " to be tried by then ledi to power, Were compelled by the command bivine asints themselves to de the command of the of the martyrs had deelare ly name where ench S. Dion. &e. 3). A demen Inid" (Fortun. Passio of a ship containing of St. Julian. Ag some dust from the tomb towards it, and aft came to land, he rushed free (Greg. Tur. do a brief ntruggle, was set Gregery of Tours took some. ii. 33). When saint to the churs took some relics of the same an energumen, with of St. Martin in that city, "Why, Martia, hast thon emotion, exclaimed, Julian. Why dost thou thou joined thyself to presence was punishment call him hither? Thy hast called one like the enough for us. Theu ments" (Id. itud. 34 ; see also increase our tor11. Compare Aimbr, Exhort Vo Vitae P. P. viii. c. Vigil. 5; Hilary, Exhorl. Viry. 2; Jerome de Pontif. Ebor. Upp. ii. 246, &e.). 8; Aleuin
(4) General Succour and &e.). stantine ordered th relies Protection.-Con. other sainta to be taiden to of St. Andrew and " Ut sus apostoticts muntrel mo Corporibes,") (Psulinus, Poem antis (Psulinus, Poem. xix. 335.)
Later writera affirm that be inserted a piece of the true cross in a statue of himself erected in the same city, in the assurance that it weuld by that means be "kept in safety" (Soer. Hist. .Eel. 1. 17; Cassied. H. E. ii. 18). "The charch," says Asterius, apeaking of relics, "is walled about with the martyrs as a city with brnve soldiers. They who are oppressed by the contingencies of human life hasten to the resting(Ilom. in $S S$, thrice blessed as to an asylum It was helieved thet. in Auctar. Combef. i. 185), martyrs in a fort named to the burial of threo could never from thamed Malcan, the Sabaleana make their way up to it plunder it or even make their way up to it (Aseemani, Acta SS.

Mart．Or．et Occ．1．79）．The nelghbeurs of Simeon Stylites lamented the renoval of his body to Antioch，becuuse they would thereliy lese the protection of hla relins（Anton．In Vita S．Sim．19）．The sume feeling prevailed in the West．Thus，Wilfrid leaving liome on two several oeeswions，supplied hinself with relies； nad so＂cum ieneelictlone sanatorum＂（Fidiliun． Steph．Vita Hitif：53），＂cum rellguiarum sanc－ torum quas illio invenit ausillin＂（ + ），reached home in sifiety．Siunilarly，the father ef Gregery of Tours believed hlinself te have escapied in many dangers by aea and lund threugh the relics of some unknown sulats which he carried with him（G．T．de Glor．Mart．I．84）．Hiacmar lonclesed in a large shriue＂the pledges of many sointsas a pritectien to the whule cily of Rheimas＂ （Flodoard，Mist．Eter．Ren．iil．5）．The Inhabi－ tanats of Cusun in Catalonia sought to kill st． Rumuald，＂ut haberent pro patrocinie terrae vel cadnver exanime＂（Petrua Dam．in Vitu S． Rom．13）．
XIX．Evils urising fron Relic－Worship．－The crowds which they attructed to a church or menastery were a serleus interruption to the duties ef the piace，and a source of great dis－ qulet and misgiving to the more spiritual and aarnest miudel．The evil was felt so strengly at the Abbey of Meyeu－Mentier In the Vosges 707，that the abbnt Hidulius appenied to the departed menk by whese bedj the miracles wers wrought：＂Brother Spinulus，on acceunt of the perils incurrell by seuls，step the crowds of these who fleck hither．Thea the miracles censing，the cuncourse alse ceased＂（lita Hid．i．in Boll． July 11，iil．228；at greater length in Vita，iii． c．xv．234）．The menke of Rheima equally deprecated the miracles of St．Gibrian，nor was St．Beranard himself allowed mere liberty at Clairvaux（Acta Bened．Praef．L．saec．iii．cx．${ }^{36}$ ）． At Sarlati the menka removed the bedy of St． Pardulf to a neighbeuring church，that thay might regain their fermar peace（ $i$ idid．）．Stephen of Lutttich adjured St．Wolbodo to＂absta．from mulracles，through which such trouble came on the brethrea by night and day through the sick＂ （Acta Ben．S．vi．i．165）．At St．Trone，when tha relics of the patron began to work miracales， the abbat Guntram endearoured to conceal them， remarkiag that＂algas were given to the unbe－ lleving，not to the belleving＂（Rudelph．in Chren． Trudon．i．Spicil．Dach．ii．662）．They continued under hia successer to the grief and annoyanas of the elder and mere religioua monks；fort，saya the historian，＂the further the glerious fame of St．＇Trudo whs carried by the report of pilgrims， the more alse did the werldiness of our monks， aa diaplayed in levity of mannars and the abuse of a atate without discipline，become a subject of re－ preheasien＂（Spicit．u．s．664）．＂Because many，＂ remniks Ambrosius Autpertue，＂seem to have thair thare of miracles，but in uowise have their names written in heaven，we do not in this age by aay menas demand miraclea in the church， but a perfect life＂（Vita SS．Paldonis，\＆e．14）．

Literature．－The fellowing are anong writers on this subjent．J．Calvin，Iraicte des Reliques， Genève， 16 ul ，\＆c．；J．Luunoy de Cura Exclesiaa pro Sanctis ct Sanctorum Reliquiis，Par．1660； Rud．Hespinial de Timptia，11．7，Genev．1672； J．Mabillon，Lettre d＇un Bénedietin tonchant le Discornement des anciennes dieliques，Par．1700；

Idem，Praefatio in Sace，Il．Ord．S．Rem．iv．42， obs． 7 ；J．H．Junglus，Disquis．Ant．the lirtipuia et Profanis et Sucris，Haeev．1783：J．A．S．©． de Planey，Dictionnaire critique des Reliquent，so． Par． 182 L ．
［W．E．S．］
RELIGIOUS．The word may designate （1）erdinary Christlans；（2）ecelesiasties：（3） monks．In modern usage the term is mylied to those whe have given themselves tn the menastic life，whether they be in holy oriers or net．That，however，was not the early uss of the woril．It appesrs frem the second camon of the tenth council of Teledo（cent．7）that the word included all ecclesinsties，＂from a bishop dewn to a clerk of the lowest order，or a munk．＂ Akin to this is the fact，that in n canon of s subsequent council of Toiede（A．11．693）the term secul．，r is applied te such as are not 1 riesto ＂Sacerdutes＂（Cone，Til，xvi，can．6）．But that the term reigious，which is the negation of secu＇ar，was not anciently restricted to ecelesias－ tics，may be inferred from the first comncil of Orleans（cent．6），where we have the term ＂prefession of religion＂applied to ether than these in orders．

The earliest writer in which the use of reli： gios\％s is clearly fixed in its techuical sense of ＂professed，＂is Salvisn，a French writer of the 5th century．In the passages of earlier writers which we have exnmined，it is ausceptible of the meaning conveyed by the medern English phrase a religious pergon．In Salvian，hewever，the technical meaning appears to be undeniable． ＂Some of your sons under pretext of religion diasent from religion，and leave the werld（secu－ lum）more in garb than in mind＂（ad Cothen Eccl．Iib．3）．And again，＂Multi enim Religiosi， imò aub apecie religienia，vitils secularibus man－ cipati．．．．＂（id．de Gubern．Dei，lib．5）．The fourth council of Toledo apeaks of Religiesi，who are counted neither amengst clerks nor monks． They ara＂per diversa leca vagi＂and are to be reatrained by the biahops（can．53）．

It ia affirmed by Severinus Binius，in a note upen canon 17 of the council of Gangra，that ＂the Greeks used to call the life of these whom we call Rcliniusi by the name of $\alpha \sigma \kappa \eta \sigma c s$ ．＂Thst pointa to a field of Greek phrnseelogy upan the ai．jject much earlier than the corresponding Latin phrases can be traced．Thus we have रuцдa⿱ia $\mu$ avadis力 in lsidore of Pelusium； мavaxıк力 apud Theophanem an． 3 Constantii； and other similar expressiena．It should，how－ evar，be noticed on the autherity of Du Fresne （Gloss．Gr．8．v．）who quutes several Grefk authorities in support of his position，that the di $\sigma$ nntal were＂not so much menks，especially in the first ages of Chriatianity，as any Christians devoting themselves to a stricter life and to holy fuactions of piety．＂

It is extremely ditficult to say when from meaning devout Chriatian life，the word religio faded into the sense of monastic profession．Thus the word seems to be hevering between the two aenaes in the fifth council of Paris：＂Quase sibi vestes in habitu religionis in demibus propriis tam a parentibua quam per seipas mutarerint＂ （can．13）．Iu auch a passage as the following， which is drawn frem St．Gregory the Great，the word aeems to have no tinge of the monastio meaning．Speskin exercised upon Rem says，＂Cueprere tu nobiles et religiosi omnipotenti Dee nu may have been br parents could hnrdl
In the ninth coun plainly means the $n$ tibus sane filios si mimplius quam usin＂ annum licentia pete date the sense see have agrain＂relijuiun debitam vestem，＂ orders，＂because the sexes（＂in utroque s
Yet long after the had male geed its f exiated along with it is difficult to say is intended．Thus，$t$ of Martia of Bracara tibus vel clericis，aed facere de cenfertis，＂ be got either from ＂professed laymen．＂
Thera is a trace of so early as the tima e goung men whe hav dilficult for them to Hs replies to their obj ing se much for a cha of character．Vestin little use without geod （S．Aug．Sermo，lxvii． simi ${ }^{"}$ ）．In this and a restriction of dresa me guished Christinna fre which marked out Christians from the ge believera．

RELIQUARY（G reliquiarium，capsa，lip rium ；if of such size a： morn round the neck， as to bs borne $\frac{2}{} v \times \delta \quad \lambda$ lacterium，snd many ot processienally feretrun 4 repository fer relics．
Reliquaries may be classea－these which carried on the person，
The first class cont namber ef forma and ai in sccordance with the object to be included．
Relics may be divide Ist，Entire bodiea of ms persons，or purtiona of other objects which ha other ways come into 8 ons ；and 3rdly，oil fr before their tombs，clet？ been placed upon them， iwept frem the floors of Fiteminently hely．
We accordingly find， or in record，reliquaries forms and sizes：boxes，$r$ gonal，\＆c．；chests wit aribus manlib, 5). Tbe eligiosi, who nor monks. ad are to be us, in a note Gangrs, that those whom к $\eta \sigma$ os." That agy ujon the :orresponding aus we have $f$ Pelusium; 3 Constantii; should, how. of Du Fresne everai Greek tion, that the ;, esjecialiy in my Christians $r$ life and to ofession. Thus tween the tro 1: "Quase sibi aibus propris mutarerint' the follewing, the Great, the the menastio meaning. Speaking of the nttraction that was exercised upon Roman society by St. Benediet, he saya, "Cupiere tunc all eum Romanne urbje nebilea et religiosi concurrere, suoaque ei fillos omnipotenti Deo nutriondos dare." The children may have been brought up as monks, but the parenta could hardiy have luen so.
In the ninth council of Toledo (cent. 7) religio plainly means the monastic profession: "Prentibus sane filios suos veligjoni contradere, non mphilus quam usque ad decimum aetatis corum sonum licentin poterit esse" (can. 6). By that date the sense seems quite establiahed, as we have agnin "religionis tonauram" and "religioni debitrm vestem," where it ennnot menu "holy ordere," becnuse the elnuse ia applied to buth seres (" in utreque sexu").
Yet long after the technical sense of religiosus hal made good its footing, the enrlier meaning exiated along with it, so that in aome prassages it is dificult to say which of the two meanings is intended. Thus, the sixty-first of the Capitulu of Martin of Bracara reads, "Non liceat sacerdotibus vel clericis, sed nec reiigiosis Injcis conrivia tibus vel clericis, sed nee reiigiosis Injcis conrivia facere de confertis." Here a good sense wouid be got either from "devout laymen," or from "professed laymen."
There is a trace of a certnin restriction of dress so early as the time of Augustine. He speaks of young men who have wives nileging it to be difficult for them to nssume habitun relijionis. He replies to their objection, that he is not pleading so much for a change of dress, as for a change of character. Vestimenta relijiosa would be of little use without good works and change of heart (S. Aug. Sormo. Ixvii. "Rogo vos, fratres charissimi "). In this and similar phsanges, however, s restriction of dress may be meant which distinguished Christians from Pagnns, rather than one wbich marked out one particular circle of Christians from the genernl mass of their fellowbelievers.
[H. T. A.]
RELIQUARY (Gr $\theta \nmid \kappa \eta$, i $\in \rho \theta \theta \phi \kappa \eta$; Lat. reliquiarium, capsa, lipsanotheca, locellus, cinerarium; if of such size as to be attached to a chain worn round the neek, encolpium, or $\& \gamma \kappa \delta \lambda \pi t o \nu$, as te be borne $E \nu \kappa \delta \lambda \pi \varphi$, in the bosom; phy; lacterium, and many other words; if to be carried processionaily feretrum; Fr. reliqusire, chassc) - repositery for relics. Compare Relics.

Reliquaries may be divided into two principal classes-those which were not intended to be carried en the person, and those which were.

The first class contains by far the greater number of forms and sizes, both of which varied in sccordance with the size and form of the object to be included.
Relics may be divided into three classes :ist, Entire bodies of martyrs or other venerated persons, or portiona of such; 2nd, clothes or other objects which had been used, or had in other ways come Into contact with such persons; and 3rdly, oil from lamps which burnt before their tombs, cloths (brandea), which had before their tombs, cloths (brandea), which had been placed npon them, and dust which had been iwept from the floors of sanctusries held to be iwept from the floors of sanctnaries held to be iferminently holy. We reconinent holy.
We accordingly find, either now in existence or in recerd, rejiquaries of the most diverse forma sund sizes: boxes, round, rectangular, octagonal, &c.; chests with gable-ended covers CHRISt. ant.-VOL. FI.

RELIQUARY

1779
(models, in fact, of tombs), models of churches, casea in the forms of heals, arms, or lega, innges, tuties of metal, and where' a liquid, as or or bleod, was that to be preserved, bottlea or flasks of varicus forms and substances. The materiais of which reliquaries were mate are not leas varied. We find them of gold, silver, bronze, crystai, ivery, denyx.

It will, however, be suffieient here to describe few of the more remarkable a few of the more remarknble examples which conee within our period.
The desire to preserve tangible memorials of those who have been dear to us is one ao minversaliy felt, that we many well believe that religuriese preserved, nud, in consequence, reliquaries made, in the earliest ages of Christimity. Perhaps the earliest testimony to the fact that relica were culiented the Acts relics were coliected is to be found in the Acts of Fructuosus, bishop of Tarragna, 219), whieh A.D. 259 (liuinart, Act. Sincerv, p. known which are generaily classed annong thone known as genuine and nuthentic. In these we are bishop nppenred to that after his martyrilom the those who had to his brethren, and a imonished thosen remalned after the remained after the burning of his body to restore them, so that all that remsined of him nnd his buried in one commons and Augurius, might be buried in one common grave. The earlier ensea relied on by Martigny (Dict. des Antiy. chretiennes) and other Roman Catholic writers to prove the high antiquity of a cultus of relics, ns those of St. Polycarp and St. Iguatius, are rather those where a pious and affectionate desire was felt by the surviving disciples to give heneurnale burial to the remnins of those whom they had venerated while living than those in which a desire was felt to obtain a fragment of a holy body, to be made the object of veneration. [Relics.] Ignorant zeal and affectionate feel. ing, however, concurred in desiring some visible object which should be a memorial of, or at least be in some way connected with, the departed saint; and as in the earlier syes the rulers both of church and of state atrenuously opposed the exhumation and dismembering of departed saints, eubstitutes were found in the clethe (brandea) which were placed on the tombs of auch personages, or in portions of oil taken from the lamps which burnt before them. The well-known letter from St. Gregury the Great to the empress Constantina (Epist. lib. iv. ep. 30), in which, replying to her requisition for the head or some other part ("alind quid de corpore ") of St. Paul, he expresses his horror of such an act as exhuming and mutianting such sacred remains, and suggests the sending instead brundea in a "pyxis" ("tantummodo in pyxide hrandeum "), marks a peint of time when the more modern system of dividing the remains of saints was coming into practice, but not as yet fully established. This practice would seem to hnve been introduced earlier in the East than in the West, for Gregory the Great complains (Epist. lib. iv. ep. 30) that certain Greek monks wre caught in the act of diggiog up bones near the church of St. Paul, which they confessed they purposed to convey to Greece as refics of asints.
These details as to the character of what were deemed relics in the earlier agen are need-

reliquary

box no doulit once contained some rello of the salnt from whone shrine, ns will be mentionel hereafter, earthen buttles containhing vil were sent la largo quantities. The box may be cono tidently ascribed to tho earlier part of the bith century. The circular part, which is nil that remains, wenaures four inches mul a half in width and three aud a quarter in helght.
No tiner example of a relhuary datiug from befure A.D. 800 has been preservel than the canket of carved ivory lis the publte librury at Brescla. It has been taken to pieven, hut eridently once formed a box nbout nine inches in height and breadth, and thicteen in length, the pleces having been united by a mounting, of it least by hinges, and bunds of gold or wilver. It is covered with carvings representing ubut thirty-five suljecta; the larger and more im. portant, both as regnria size and number, being taken from the Gosjels, and representing sume of the more important mirncles and seenes in the history of our Lard. Thua, on the fromt, the central group represents our Lord tenching in the temple, while on the right, He in shewn as the shepherd guarling the fill frum the wolf, and on the left, with Mary Magdalene in the garden. On one side the principnal nubject Is Christ raising the daughter of dairus: on the other, reatoring sight to tho hliul man, and raising Lazarus; on the back are the trunsfiguration, and the story of Ananias aul Saythira; on the lid are Christ in the garilen of ofives, Christ taken in the gardea, and the denial of St. Peter; while above are two subjects-Christ brought before Herod (two persuns are, how. ever, shewn, each sented in a curule chnir), and Christ brought before Pilate, who is in the act of washing his hands. The lesser suth,jocts, two ranges of which surround the hox, are taken partly from the Old Testament, partly from the New : the history of Jonnh, acenes from that of Moses, of Susannah, of Jncob, and athers, occur. Besides these are two scenes of agapes, or pro. sibly heaveniy bauqueta, and seme symbuls, as s tower, a lamp, an olive tree, a balance, sc. Above all these is a bnand of husts in $1^{\text {nateras, }}$ fifteen in number; the majority are beardel, but some are youthful. In tha central point of the front is a youthful head, with hnir cut short over the forehend, but falling in hang ringlets to the shoulders, which is ittended to represent our Lord, the same type of heal and hair being preserved through the whale stries of subjects in which He nppears. None of the figures have a nimbus: the style and execution are throughout goed, quite equal to those of the best examples of sarcophngi with Christian sub. jects; and there can be little doubt but that this most important monument of Christian art ought to be assigned to a poriod not later than the 4th century. Casts are in the Suuth Ken. sington Museum, and it has been describcd at some length in the Cataloyue of Fictile Irorias in that collection, p. 34.

Very good examples of reliquaries of the nets succeeding centuries are supplied by those disenvered in 1871 near or under the high altar of the church of Grado, and figured and described by De Rossi (Boll. di Arch. Crist. 1872, p. 155), Both are boxes of silver, the one circular, the other elliptical. The circular box is four inches in diameter and three : : height; it is dirided into alx compart partithone, all fo 4) a figure of throne, and ho Virgin holls crucinger itl her rounts her hend. engraved on the of taints at follo danc, marla, bas pascilative. Allet, sand, m Within were gohl, beariug nam box of golld, whi phial ; a small go a Greek cross ena stucee impreased

The elliptio box quarters in length width and height. gemned cross, stan sheep on either side circled by two banc as follows ; the upp ennctvscantivesa: santrygvirinves The lower:-
slavrentivgvitoa: DIDID BOTVM
The first $s$ of $t$ ba added to the forn "Laurentius vs (i.e. Niceforus vs, Santi diderunt votum)."
Between these ina circles (clypei or pat anch end a palm in central on one slde Lord; the hair is 1 Those to the right St. Peter and St. Pau the centre, the bust richly dressed; the beariless, and with casket contained ano without ornament.
Both caskets were nothing remained of $t$ less once contained, $b$ mitd.
Herr Kandler, Cons at Trieste, is stated to that the circular bo a.D. 452 , and the ellip

RELIQUARY

into six compartmenta by a central tuhe and fire partition, all formed of thin silver $;$ on the cover If a figure of the Virgin Mary, sented on a throne, and holding the Infant Christ. The Virgin holiss a eruciform sceptre (scettr, crucientro) in her right hand, and a nimbus surrounts her hend. An Inseription, in two linea, is angraved on the box, and consista of the names of asints aa followa t-anc. Marta, sang. Vitve, band. Cabsanvs, banc. PANCHATIVG, BANC, YPULITVE, BANO, ATULLINabcts. sand, martinve.
Within were found eleven amall plates of goll, bearing nnmes of sainta i $a$ small pylindrical bex of gold, which enclosed a very sminll glass phial; a amall golden box, of cubicel form, with a (ireek cross enamelled on Its lid; and a diac of atuce impressed with a cross.

The elliptio box measures five inches and three quarters in length by three and $n$ quarter in width and height. On the cover is, in relief, a gemmed croas, atanding on n mouticule, with a sheep on either sida. The side of the box is encircled by two bands of inscriptions, which run as follows ; the uppar:-
anctvecantivssantianvisanctacantianilla santidgVIRINVBSANTVSLATINV

The lower:-

SLAVRENTIVSVSIOANNISVSNLCEFORVSSANTISRED-

DIDID BOTVM

The first s of the latter inscription ehould be added to the former, and the lower one read: "Laurentius va (i.e. vir spectabilis), Joannis vs, Nieforus vs, Ssntis reddidid botum (i.e. reddiderunt votum)."
Between these inscriptions is a bnnd of eight circles (clypei or pateres) enclosing busts, and at esch end a palm tree. One of the busts, the central on one side, appears to represent our lord; the hair is long, and the face benrdless. Those to the right and left probably represent St. Peter and St. Paul. On the opposite side, in the centre, the bust is that of a young woman richly dressed; the others all represent men, beardless, and with rather shor't hair. This casket centained another amaller box, of silver, without ornament.
Both caskets were found full of water; and nothing remained of the relics which they doubtless once coutained, but some black matter like mud.
Herr Kandler, Conservator of the Monuments at Trieste, is atated to have expressed an opinion that the circular box might date from about A.D. 452, and the elliptical from about A.D. 568 ;

RESIQUARY

1781
but thene ascriptlons of date are perhapa open to doubt.
To the 7th oentury may be nasigned the very remarkable coffer of lvory which formeil part of the Meyrick collection. It is eighteen inches in length, eight in bredilth, and five and a quarter in height. It is entirely covered with omament, consisting of bands of folliage enclosing halflength figures of (on the lid in the middle) onr Lerd; on Hila right, the Virgin Mary, St. I mria, and St. Julia; on His left, St. John the Baptist, St. Aloxander, and St. Crisantus) on the front, SS. Phillp, Thomne, Jehn, Peter, Pnul, Andrew, Bartholomew, and Jumes; on the hark, SS. Stephen the proto-martyr. Mark, Thmilete, Matthew, Jamea (the Leas?), Simon, Jatthias, and Lake; on one end, SS. Nereus, Gregory (the pin). and Achilleus; on the other, SS. Justus factyr, mod Pancratius. The names are, in all casea, givat in inseriptiona.
The fighse are executed in a very poor nad 2..the reyle ; the bands of folinge are rather ef sint. it reatly resembles, both as regaris 1. lie nad e... ution, the diptyeh sent by Gregory e, diva to queen Theodelinda, which bears cover of a responsord king Davil, and was the cover of a responsoriam graduale.
It is noteworthy that, while we find in the Liber Pontif, almost innumernble gifts of chalices, patens, and other vessels and articles made by various popes for use in, or decoration of, churches, very few notices occur of relinturies, and these only commence in the 7th century. The exjlanation probably is, that at the time when the cultus of relics became more fully established, every Koman church possessed entire bodies of sainta, transported thither, in most cases, from their originni places of deposit in the catacombs, and the popes naturally took comparatively little account of such lesser relics as were then procurable. The Greeks, as has been shewn abore, seem to have been the first to dismember bodies; and it is therefore not surprising that one of the first mentions which we find in the Liber Pontificalis of a portion of a holy body enclosed in a reliquary, is that where we are told that pope Gregory III. (73I-752) found in the Lateran the head of St. George in a "cnpsa," with a label on which was a Greek inscription, testifying to its identity.
Many reliquasies were made at this period, both in the East and in the West, and mention of them frequently occurs in chronicles and other documenta, but examples are rare. The art of the period was extremely bad; and when a precious metal was the material, they have probably been broken up. Soma may, however, still exist witbout having been noticed by any one possessed of antiquarian knowledge ; for it is not always casy to obtnin a sight of all the coutents of a church treasury. One fine example, which mny very possibly date from the 8th centary, though some are disposed to give it an earlier date, is preserved in the treasury of the abbey of St. Maurice, in the Valais; it is about seven inches and a quarter long, two and a half deep, and five and a quarter high; the lower part is rectangular ; the upper, or lid, sloped in front and at the back, and gabled at the ends. On the front is a large antique cameo and several precious stones, pearls, sardonyxes, and other stunes with antique intaglios, are placed at regular intervals ;

RELIQUARY

the Merovingian period; and he supposes that it may have been fribricated by a Frank or Burg nndian artist, about A.D. 600.

Two rem:rkable examples should now be mentioned, though their real date has not beea very clearly ascertsined. One is preserved nt Monza, the other in the treasury of the Burg at Viema, the former being snid to contnin hair and a tooth of St. John the Baptist; the latter, some carth mixed with the blood of St. Stephen.
The first of these is a box about ten inches high, and eight wide, but of little depth; it is rectangular below, but the upper part is diminished in curved lines, so that only a narrow ridge is left on the top. It is covered with gold, on which are set precious stones, so disposed as to radiate from a centre. The bnck is covered with a plate of gold, on which are delinented, by the use of a very small punch, our Saviour on the cross, with the Virgin on one side, St. John on the other, and two figures, one piercing his side, and the other offering the sponge of vinegar. Above the arms of the cross are mednlions, enclosing busts which represent the sun and moon. The drawing is tolerably correct and good, though the execution, by reason of the process employed, is rather rough.

The reliquary at Vienna is of almost exactly the same form as that just described, but smaller, being only about eight inches high. The front is covered with precious stones; some of the larger ones are disposed in a sort of cruciform arrangement, the others rather irregularly ${ }_{i}$ all are very simply set. The back hns lost its primitive covering, but the sides nre covered with thin gold plate, divided by circles of pearls into com. partments, in which are figures in reliff; among these can be distinguished a man fishing with a hook, one mounted on horseback, and an avenging angel armed with a bow and dart, with a legend, "Malis Vidicta." The style of these figures, according to Dr. Bock (Kicinodien ds Heil. Rönischen Reiches, &c., p. 53, app.), shews a reminiscence of the classical period.

These two reliquaries correspond so nenrly in character that they can hardly be far distant in point of date ; that of Vienna is probably rstaer the older of the two. Dr. Bock is disposed to think that this last perhaps dates from a period earlier than the Carolingian; but the style and character of the representation of the Crucifixion on the back of the Monza reliquary seem to approach very closely to those of ivory enrvings, and other works of art, which have been clently proved to date from periods subsequent to 800 .

Two similar reliquaries are said to exist, one in the church of St. Willibrord, at Emmerich, the other in that of St. Servatius, at Maestricht.

A very remarkable reliquary of kindrel form has been preserved at Sion, in the Valois, the dste of which can be accurately fixed, as it bears the name of the donor, Altheus, bishop of Sion about A.D. 780 . It is six inches high, six and a half wide, and two inches and two-eightlis deep at the base; at three inches from the base it begine te diminish on all four sides, and no doubt WM finished at the top by a crest, now lost. It is covered with thin silver; on the front, in the upper part, are the stalk, leares, sod large flower of a plant in relief; in the centre of the flower a medallion, with a half-length figure , of a female saint in cloisonné ennmel ; below aro two compartmen half-length figur anamel; on the two figures in re below are two 1 lilies; on the side upper part, and below. On the "Hanc capsam d Altheus Eps, fieri the enamels and in fact, barbarou engraved by Blav sacree, Pl. XI. and
The last four ex tioned hnve a cer that they have a r a sloping upper po became that adopt snd, indeed, in mar variously supposed a tomb, a house, or ceem to be, that tor form of churches 0 tombs again served the tomb-like form whea the intention other portions of th The change to thia pys-like form, app coiocided with the diriding the morta A further developm reliquaries in imite found in that given sbbey of St. Denis, belonged to his gran represented the faça stories with arcades precious tones and a magnificent antiqu to, contsin nineteen marks weight of ston name of the "Ecrin graving of it has bee Histojre de' l'Abbaye d Reliquaries in the or other parts of the the middle zges, are the treasuries of chu date as early as 800 noticed. Perhaps the that in the treasury of containing the head probably of the 11 Liibks sttributes it erronenusly the head eagraved by Blavigna sacree, &c., and by Matrice.
A few words must b to contrin liquids whic for these are virtually haps it may be held thi be with propriety appli these cousists of the $s$ been frequently foun sgainst the tiles or "loculi" of the cata closed. There has been as to whether the conte really blood, or whethes two compartments, in each of which are two half-length figures of saints, nlso in cloisomé enamel; on the back, on the upper part, are two figures in relief, St. Mary and St. John; below are two plant-like ornaments, perhaps lilies; on the sides are lily-like ornaments on the upper part, and halt-length figures of saints below. On the under side is the inscription, "Hane capsam dicata in honore see Marine Altheus Eps, fieri rogarit." The style both of the enamels and the reliefs is extremely bad in fact, brebarous. This reliquary hns been engraved by Blavignac, Mist. de l'Architecture sacree, Pl. XI. add Atlas PI. XXIII.*

RELIQUARY

RELIQUARY

The last four examples which have been mentioned have a certain similarity in form, viz. that they have a reetangular lower portion, and $s$ sloping upper portion. This form afterwards became that adopted in all the larger reliqunries, and, indeed, in many of the smaller. It has been variously supposed to have been borrowed from s tomb, a house, or a chapel. The truth would seem to be, that tombs were often made in the form of churches or chapels [see Basilica], and tombs again served as models for reliquaries, the tomb-like form being a very naturnl one when the intention was to enshrine bones, or other portions of the bodies of deceased saints. The change to this form from the earlier box or pyr-like form, appears to bave in some degree coincided with the increase of the practice of dividing the mortal remains of the departed. A further development of the iden of forming reliquaries in imitation of buildings is to be fonnd in that given by Charles the Bald to the abbey of St. Denis, and which was said to have belonged to his grandfather. It is said to have represented the façade of a building of three stories with arcades in each, embellished with precious tones and fine pearls, and crowned by a magnificent antique cameo, and was estimated to. contain nineteen marks of gold, and seven marks weight of stones. It was known by the name of the "Eerin de Charlemagne." An engraring of it has been given by Felibien, in his Histore dc' PAbbaye do St. Denis.
Reliquaries in the form of heads, arms, lega, or other parts of the human frame, made during the middle ages, are frequeutly to be found in the treasuries of churches, but no example of a date as early as 800 would appear to have been Doticed. Perhaps the earliest now existing is that iu the treasury of St. Maurice in the Vnlais contsining the head of St. Candidus. This is probably of the Ilth century, though Dr. Lübke attributes it to the 9th, and calls it errmenusly the head of St. Maurice. It is eagraved by Blavignac, Mist. de l'Architecture sacree, &c., and by Aubert, Tresor de St.
Hatrice. Haturice.
A few words must be said on the vessels used to contain liquids which were held in veneration, for these are virtually reliquaries, though perhaps it may be held that the word can senrcely be with propriety applied to them. One class of thess consists of the small bottles which have been frequently found imbedded in cement "loculi" of thes or slabs with which the closed. There thas cntacombs near Rome were as to whether the been some difference of opinion really blond, or whether it wns not wine which had been, If not actually consecrated, blessed st the time of the celebration of the eucharist, or at least presented at an agape. Martigny (Dict. des Antiq. chreit.. art. Sang des Martyrs) states that in several instances particularized by him analysis has shewn that the contents had netunlly been blood, and that fragments of sponge and of linen have been found within them The bottles are usually of glass, somptimes of terra cotta, and are generally globular, with short necks.

Another class is that of the flasks used to contain oil, which contained some almixture of that which burnt in the lnmps lit before celebrated shrines. Among the most notable examples remaining are those preserved at Monza, which some suppose to have been sent ts Queen Theodelinda by pope Gregory the Grent. These Ampulla] are made of lend or pewter, and benr various subjects in low relief: on one is our Lord in glory, enclosed by an oval aureole, which is supported by angels; while below He is shewn standing in the attitude of prajer, with the apostles grouped, six on either side. On nnother a cross between two candlesticks (\%) is surrounded by heads of the npostles enclosed in circles. On another, an edifice surmounted by a cross occupies the centre, while around are heads of Christ and the apostles. Another has almost the smme subjects ns that first mentioned, surrounded by the inscription:-

EMMANOYHA MET HMCJN OEWC.  On others is the inacription-

EAAION 三YNOY ZWHC TWN AFIWN

These may very probably be of the time of Queen Theodelindn, but they are not those mentioned in the contemporary list on papyrus still preserved at Monza, which refers exelusively to oils froin shrines in Rome. These last are, it would seem, those in glass vessels ( $v$. Frisi. Mon. dell. 4 Chiesa Monzese, p. 66), some of which still preserve labels correspunding with the list. The leaden am, ullue probnbly contained oil from various holy places in Palestine. [OiL, Holy,
p. 1453.]
Other examples worth notice are the earthen flasks which contained oil from the shrine of St Menns. [Pottery, p. 1679.] Many of these have been found-nineteen are in the British Museum ; and they have occurred in almost every country which borders on the Mediterranenn. They are usually about four inches high, and from two and three-quarters to four inches wide. They usually bear effigies of St. Menas, with his attribute of two camels, and inseriptions, containing either the name of the saint only, or coupling with it the word "eulogia," i.e., blessings. The style of the figures is bad and rude, and they may perhaps be attributed to the 6 th and early part of the 7th centuries.
The last-mentioned objects were evidently mide for the purposes to which they have been applied ; those which remain to be mentioned, on the contrary, are vessels originally intended fur other uses. It will suffice to mention two very remarkuble examples, which have been preserred in the trensury of the abbey of St. Maurice, in the Valnis, from a period prohably as early as that embraced In this work. One of these is known as the Vase of St. Martin, the tradition being that St. Martin of Tours, visiting Agaunum, filled this ressel with earth from the place of the massacre of the Theban legion, mixed with the blood of the sufferera, which miraculously jasued from the ground. It is an antique vase of sardonyx, menauring about four and a half inchea in diameter, and about six in height, on which is sculptured in excullent style a aubject believed to represent Achilles betraying his aex at the sight of weapons ( $v$. Aubert, Irésor de l'Abbaye de St. Maurice, p. 181, pl. xvi.). This vase has a foot and neck of gold set with precious stones, and plates of garnet in fillets of gold, precisely in the anme manner иs the reliquary belonging to the same treasury which has been mentioned above.
The other vessel is a ewer of massive gold, neerly a foot in height, adorned with uncut sapphires nad large plates of cloisonne enamel, the colours of which are extreordinarily rich and fine, According to tradition, this whs sent by Haroun el Rashid to Charlea the Great, and by him presented to the abbey. Whatever the value of the tradition may be, the vase may well date from a period sufficiently early to allow of its truth; it is more probably of Byzantine, than of oriental origin. It has, like the last-ar ntioned vase, been engraved and described by Aubert. This ewer is said to contain biood of the Theban martyra. Both ressels have their mouths enveloped in some kind of string, and masses of wax, on which are impressions of episcopal seals, the legends of which are undecipherable.

As great an antiquity may no doubt be claimed for the second class of reliquariea, viz., that of those which were intended to be worn on the person, as for the first. Prudentius alludes to the practice of wearing relics, which of course implies cases to contain them, in the hymn celebrating Fructuosus and his fellow martyrs, Eulogius and Augurius (Peristeph. vi. v. 131):
> "Tum de zorporibus sacrae favilim Et perfusa mero leguntur ossa Quae raptimi sibl quisque vindicabat Fratrum tantus smor domum referre Sanctorum cinerum dicata dona Ant gestare sinu fidele plgnus."

Many instances of the practice of wearing a "capsella," or "capsula," with relica, are to be found in succeeding centuries ( $v$. De Rossi, Bull. di Arch. Crist. 1872, p. 17), and several examples have been found which may be confidently referred to the earlier centuries of Christianity. Two of these are given by Do Roesi (Bull. 1872, Tav. 11,

Reliquary. (From De Roenis 'Ball. di Areh. Crint.)
fig. 1, 3). The one hearing the labarum (see woodeut, p. 611) is of gold, and was found in 1571 in a tomb of the Vatican cemetery. It is not now known to exist, but the design has been preserved by a drawing by Alfarano, and it has been published by Bosio. On the reverae was a figure of a dove. De Rossi is of opinion that it contained either a relic or some portion of the Gospel (v. Rull. 1872, p. 12, 1869, p. 63, as regards the practice; Bingham, Orig. Eecles, c. xi. chap. v. seet. 8, nnd b. xvi. chap. v. sect. 6), "parvuln Evangelia," ns they were termed: Martigny confidently asserts that this is of the 4 th century. It may indeed be so, but nll that ean bo said with certainty ns to ita date is, that it is not older.
The other example (sce woodcut) is no donbt more recent. De Rossi gives it to the sth century. It wns purchased in Rome in 18i2, and is made of thin plates of bronze, the spaca between them being not more than snflicient to contain a piece of parchment or of cloth. The subject on one side is clearly our Lord changing the water into wine, that on the other would seem to represent the martyrdom of St. Vitalis, who was placed in a pit or hole, nt a place called ad Palmam, near Ravema, and then crushed under a heap of stones (v. Bull. 1872, p. 10). The ohject contained in this encolpium was probably a fragment of cloth, perhaps dipped ia the blood of the martyr; or perhaps a morsel of a brandeum which had been placed on his tunb.

Another and frequent form for a pendnut reliquary was a cross. The oldest of these (it we can believe the tradition concerning it to be wellfounded) now existing, is probably that praserved in the treasury of St. Peter's at Rome, under the name of "Encolpium Constantini Magni" (v. Bock, Kleinodien des Heil. Römischen Reiches, pl. xx. Gg. 28, p. 115). Of this, only the cross which occupies the centre can hare any pretensions to belong to the period of Constantine, the tablet in which it is enclosed being obviously Byzantine work of the 11th or some later century.

The cross itself has arms of equal length, and measures about one and $n$ half inches in height and width. It contains a crose reputed to be of the real cross of our Lord, the receptacle containing which is surrounded by a border of blue and white enamel. Two very remarkable examples of such pectoral crosses exist in the treasury of the church of Monza. The earlier is that which has always been regarded as that which St. Gregory the Great sent to Queen Theodelinda, is A.d. 603 , with a letter ( $E p p$. lib. xiv. ep. 12), in which this passage occurs, "Excellentissimo autem filio nostro Adulouvaldo Regi trumsmitters phylacteria curavimus, id est crucem cum ligno sanctae crucie Domini et lectionen snncti crangelii theca persica inclusam." An engraving of this will be found under Crucifix, p. 512 ; and it is only necessary here to say, that it is formed of gold, the figures and inscriytions heing in niello, and covered by a piece of rock crystal; it measures three inches in height, by two and a half in breadth. lu the interior is snid to be a piece or pieces of the true cross. The best representation of this object which has been given, is that in Bock's Klcinodien, &c., app. p. 25. As the inscriptions on this cross are in Greek, it has generally been assumed that it was of Byzonting origin. But this is hardly probable: Byzantine werk of that period would have had a better and rather more classicnl character. On theother hand, it correaponta very closely in many points with the drawing of the Crucifixion in the fanou mavuscript Sjyriac Gospels, in the Mediceaa library at Florence, date Crucifis], nand it or some edjoining to Recared, king probntly of like of his Epistles (Ep "Crucem inest et capilli bea
The other cros: is that called the " Berengarins, king beyond the period may be ndmitted, crosees of like char and indeed may re its possessor. It is precious stones, sap en cab,chon, and mi inchss in height at little greater than a repository for a given an engraving that although it $h$ cross at coromation to a votive crown, and of Reccesvinthu
At Aix la Chap crucifix of the 12 th suring two inches by one and a-hnlf in of this is fastened cording to a respect of the pectoral cross the Great, when his It is engraved in Dr. des Liebjirauen-Müne
The cross engra this work, and by latter to hape heen $t$ the oldest monume exist. De Rossi has 1863) a long and question of its age, as that it probably bel century. His reason but on one considerat that it was found in of S. Lorenzo-fuor-leof the mertyr. Pele stated in the Liber 1 portion of the chur This is, perhaps, too doblt he executed con as the first pope who was Leo I. in 462, and of the sacristy of St suppose that any one $v$ such proxinity to a m Laurence until long aft may, therefore, seem the cross may be of ea did not toke place muci is no iadication that bishop, as Martigny ass grams are engraved, an suggestions as to the declines to give a positi REMFDIUS, bishop memorated at Gap (Mur
REMIGIUS, bishol
nion that sortion of p. 63, ns Eccles, c. . sect. 6), ned: Mnrof the 4 th hat can ba .t it is not no doubt the 5th is $18: 2$, the space sufficieat of cloth. our Lord , the other dom of St. hole, it a , sud then ll. 1872, p. lpium was a dipped in a morsel of his tomb, pendant rehese (if we to be wellthat pro$s$ at Rome, Coustantini Römischen this, oaly e can hars iod of Conclosed being th or some length, and n height aod to be of the 8 contrining of blue and le examplea treasury of that which which St. codelinda, in v. ep. 12), in atissime autrunsmittere n cum ligno sancti crasagraving of IX, p. 512; $y$, that it is ijtions beiag rock crystal; by two sid a ; said to be e he best represeen given, is 2. 25. As the Ireek, it has of Byzantine c: Byzantioe I a better and heother hand, y points with $i$ the famous diceaa library at Florence, dated A.D. 586 [ $v$. woodeut under Crucifix], and it most protably came from Syria, or some edjoiniag cuuntry. Pope Gregory sent to Recared, king of the Visigoths, a cross, very probably of like fashion. It is mentioned in one of his Epistles (Ep. cxxii, dib. ix.) in these terms: "Crucem . . in qua lignum Dominicae crucis inest et capilli beati Johanuis Baptistae."

The other cross nt Monza containing relics is that called the "Crux Regni," which belouged to Berengurius, king of Itnly (ob.924). It is perhnps beyond the period of this work, hut a few words may be adinitted, as it serves as an exnmple of crosses of like character which come within it, snd indeed may really be earlier in dste than its possessor. It is of gold, thickly covered with precions stones, sapphires and others, chiefly cut en cabochon, and measures nearly nine and a half inches in height and breadth; the beight is a little greater than the breadth. In the centre is a repository for a zelic. Dr. Bock, who has given an engrnving of it (pl. xxxiii.) is of opinion that although it has been used as a pectoral ross at coronations, it was originally attached to a votive crown, as were those of Agilulfus and of Reccesvinthus.
At Aix la Chapelle is preserved, within a crucifix of the 12 th century, a small cross menauring two inches and three-eighths in height by one and a-half in width. On the upper limh of this is fastened a piece of wood, which, according to a respectable tradition, is a portion of the pectoral cross found on the body of Charles the Great, when his tomb was opened A.D. 1000. It is engraved in Dr. Bock's Der heliquienschatz des Liebfrauen-Münsters zu Aachen, p. 36.
The cross engraved under Encolpion in this work, and by Martigny, is asserted by the Istter to have been that of a bishop, and to be the oldest monument of the kind known to exist. De Rossi hus given in his Bulletino (May, 1863) a long and careful dissertation on the question of its age, and arrives at the conclusion thst it probably belongs to the 5 th or 6 th century. His reasonings appear well founded, but on one consideration he does not dwell, viz.
that it was found in a tomb within the church that it was found in a tomb within the church of the martyr. Pelagius II. (A.D. 572-590) is stated in the Liber I'ontif. to have built that portion of the church from its foundations. This is, perhaps, too strongly expressed, but no doubt he exccuted considerable works there; and as the first pope who was buried in a church was leo 1 . in 462 , and he only in the vestibule of the sacristy of St. Peter's, we can hardly suppose that any one would have been placed in such proximity to a martyr 80 venerated as St. Laurence until long after the time of Leo I. It may, therefore, seem probable, that although the cross may be of earlier date, the interment did not take place much before A.D. 600 . There bisho indication that the wearer had been a bishop, as Martigny asserts. On the sides naonograins are engraved, and De Rossi makes several suggestions ns to the name they contain, but declines to give a positive of'vion.
[A. N.] PEMICDIUS, bishop, Feb. 3 ; depositio commamorated at Gap (Murt. Usuard.). [C. H.] REMIGIUS, bishop, Jan. 13; depositio commemorated at Reims (Dfart. Usuard.); trassl. Oct. 1 (Mart. Uinard., Flor.; Vet. Rom.
Mart. ; Boll. Acta SS. Oct. i. 59). RENUNCIATION [BAPTIGM, [C. H.]

RENUNCIATION. [BAPTISM, p. 159.]

Repairs. [Cuurches, Maintenance of,

REPasts. [Meals.]

REQUIEM. The Roman service for the cead hns acquired this name from its proper ant hem beginuing with the words, "Requiem seternam dona eis, Dumine " (see 2 Esdr. V'ulg. 4 E. ii, 34). The versicle was not put to quite the same use within our period, bite it appears as one of several little chapters ("capitula," Murat. Lit.
liom Rom. 1 1. ii. 2I3; "rersuum capitella," $O_{\mu} p$ p. Greg. M. v. 23, ed. 1615) said after the prayers and psalnss, "in Agendu Miortuorum, quando Anima egreditur de corpore " Mur. u. s.). In this use it is probably ante-Gregorian. Ja the Gelasian sacramentary only one capitulum is indicated, thus: "Dic CÖp. In memoria aeterna" (Mur. u. s. i. 749); but as tre othices were then committed to incmory, serersl well-known versicles may be understood undex this brief referes " " P eneuce, In the later Gregorian antiphonary, of the of the Mass for the departed (Antiph. Greg. in Pamel. Liturgica, ii. 175). Pamel. Liturgica, ii. 175). [W. E. '. .]
REREDOS (Fr. retable; Span. retablo). It is shewn by viollet-le-Duc that the altars of the primitive church had no reredos (Dictionnaire raisonne de l'Architccture, vol. ii. p. 34). So long in fact as the bishop's seat was at the back of the altar, it was unlikely that he and the people should have been separated by such a screen. The rise of the reedos dates only from the period when the episcopal scats, and with them the choirs, were established in front of the altars. Towards the end of the 11th century, says the sams writer, they had not in the West yet begur to push the altar bnck against a wall, but they erected upon it a reredos, which was most irequently a movable crection, and was made in metal or in wood. In France none is known earlier than the beginning of the 12th century. France, indeed, was slower to introduce these "parasite ornaments" than other pirts of Europe. And Thiers (Dissert. sur les principaux Autels des Eglisss) eulogizes the devotion of antiquity, which was content to do without "ces nouvel les invertions." It appears from the pages of Viollet-le-Dnc (Dict, rais, art. Autel) that in France the cathedrals were the last to admit the reredos, and the longest preserved the ancient traditions of the altar.
In Spanish it appenrs that the term retablo Was applied to the altar itself. The council of Elvira (A.D. 305) by its thirty-sixth canoo enacted that pictures onght not to be in a church. Ferdinand de Mendoza writes a treatise on the canons of this council to Clement VIII. In the third book of it (upon the canon in ques. tion) he hns the following: "Hinc fit probabile antiquitatem et originem eornm altarium (quas Ifispani Fictatlos vocant) Hispaniae deberi, cum tabulis potius quam parietilus episcepl nostri sacrus imagines religionis ergo piagi voluisse hoc ipso decreto vldeantur" (ap. Labbe, i. 1239c, ed. Par. 167I).
[H. T. A.]

RESERVATION OFTHE EUCHARIST. Our carliest extra-scriptural account of the celebration of the l.ord's Supper says: "The daacons communicate each of those present. and carry away to the absent of the blest br 1 and wine and watar" (Justin Martyr, A.D. I40, Apol. i. 65). This liberty was necessary during the persecutions of that age. From other writers v 3 iafer that those to whom the Eucharist was taken at home were not bound to consume it immediately, or all at ouce, but might reserve a part, or all, for future occasions. In the course of time this liberty was ext:nded, and we find persons present at the celehration themselves taking away and reserving of the sacred elements. Tertullian, at Carthage, 192, adviscs some who fenred to break theer fast by communicating, to "take the Lord's body and reserve it," until the fast was o"er (De Orat. 19). The same writer speaks of a Christian woman as partakiug of the sacrament at home, "secretly before all food" (al CXx. ii. 5). This seems to imply a frequent, perhan" daily, reception of the reserved Eucharist. St. Cyprian, bishop of the sume city, A.E. 251 , tells the story of a woman who, "attempting to open with unworthy hands her casket in which the holy of the Lord was stored, was deterred by a fire rising out of it " (De Lapsis, 132, ed. Brem.). The murderers of Tharsicius, a deacon of Rome, 257, found him "sarryjug about him the eacraments of the Lord's body "(Damasuss, Carm. 35; Surius, Aug. 2, Acta Stephani, p. 13). So some Christians in darger at aea have with them "the divine sacrament of the faithful " (Ambr. de Excess. Fratr. i. 43). The sister of Gregory of Nazianzum, praying for restoration to health, mingled with her tears "whatever her haud hal treasured of the antitypes of the precious body and blood" (Greg. Naz. Or, viii. 18). St. Jerome, A.D. 398, speaks of a poor bishop as "carrying the Lord's body in a wicker basket, His blood in a ressel of glass" (Epist. 125 ad Rust. § 20); and of some who, deem $^{2} \mathfrak{l}_{l}$ hemselves for a special reason unfit to go the "arch, inconsistently communicated in private ol: $\cdot$ same day, obviously of reserved elements (Eip. 48 ad Pammach. § 15). St. Basil tells us that "at Alexandria and in Egypt the laity for the most part had every one the communion in their own houses" (Ep, 93 ad Cacs. Patric.). It was thus that provision was made for the communions of moaks, nuns, and hermits: "All those who dwell alone in the desert, where there is no priest, keep the communion at home, and receive it at their owu hands" (ibid.). We might gather as much from an instance in Palladius, 401 (Hist. Laus. 61). In 527, a law of Justinian orders the appointment of an approved presbyter or deacon to "carry the holy communion" to monks and nuns (Novell. cxxiii. 36).

Abuse,-Reservation in private houses naturally led to abuse, especially when persecution had ceased. St. Augustine, in 430, mentions a case in which "a poultice was made of the Eucharist" (Cont. Julim. iii. 162). Some heretics pretended to communicate publicly, hut took all away with them from one wrong motive or another (Cono. Caeseraus. A.d. 380, can. 3; Conc. Tolet. 400, ean. 14). Later, the Eucharist was abused to witcheraft (Caesar. Heisterb. Dial. Mirac. ix. 6, 9; Conc. Later. iv. can. 20, &c.).
Prohibilion.-Abuse led to suppression. Prohibition.-Abuse led to suppression. The earliest prohibition, if it be assigned to the right age, is that of an Armenian canon of the 4th century, which generally forbids presbyters to "take the Eucharist from the church to the houses of laymen, and there impart to them the sacred bread" (Canones Isanci, in Mai, Script. Vet. Nov. Coll. x. 280). The council of Saragossa, 380: "If any one is proved nut to have taken the grace of the Eucharist in church after receiving it, let him be anathema for ever" (can. 3). By the council of Toledo (above) it was decreed that for thiz offence a person should be "expelled as one guilty rf sacrilege."

The only certain instance of reservation by a lay person with which 1 meet after the 5 th ceatury, occurs in the Pratum Spiritude (79) of John Muschus, 630. He mentions, howe ver, that the sacrament had been laid up in the house "according to the custom of the country" (Seleucia); from which we should infer that it was at least alnost extinct elsewhere. But bishops, priests, and monks continued to reserve. Thus we rend of a bishop, Birinus, of Dorchester, who carried the Eucharist wrapped in his pall ( 1 itn, Surius, Dec. 3), and of pricsts who, as was "then the custom of many, carried it as a safeguard by the n: " 1 ta Laurcntï, 7, Sur. Nov. 14), and of a $1 . . .$. : who was able to send it to another at a dist._- (Joan. Mesch. Pr. Spir. 29). Greek monks (Arcudius de Concord. Eccl. Uc. et Or. iii. 59), and the bishops of Rome (Lorinus, Comm. in Ps. lvii. 2), have retained to modern times the custom of carrying it on a journey.

Various Uses.-The reserved sacrament was used in communions of the Prisanctified (p. 1696), as a token of inter-commuion [EULMata, Vol. I. p. 628], as Fermentum for other celebrations (I. 668), for the communioa of newly ordained priests (669), for deposition in tombs [Onsegures, § six., p. 1434], for the consecration of churches and altars, and for the cummunion of the cick. The two last-named uses we propose to consider here.

Deposition in Altars.-It was probably in the 7th century that the chureh of Rome introduced the practice of depositing, at the dedication of $s$ church, portions of the consecrated bread under or in a cavity made in the mensa of the sltar. Owing to the lateness of the extant MSS. culy one Roman pontifical now known, viz. the Colex Ratoldi, prescribes this rite: "Ponat tres portiones corporis Domini intus et tres incens"" (Sacram. Gregor. Menard, n. $580 ; O_{p}$. Greg. M. iii. 436, ed. Ben.). In the Roman books this practice was payt of the order of consecration; but when the English borrowed it, they treated it as a separate rite, to be observed after the consecration. Thus the council of Ccalchythe, 816, having directed that "all be performed in order as in the service book," adds, "Aftervards, let the Eucharist which has been cousecrated by the bishop at the same service be inclosed with other relics in a casket, and kept in the same basilica" (can. 2). On this principle we fiud the order for the inc ${ }^{\prime}$ rure of the sacrament an addition or append:: early Euglisl ${ }^{\circ}$ $\because e$ forms of dedication in the York, 73:-76 fornerly prese:, s1. Sce that of Eighert of Comerly prese:, unièges, now No. $\begin{gathered}\text { tha } 2 \text { la }\end{gathered}$ the public library .t Ruuen (Mart. u. s. ii. 254), which is assigned to the latter part of the reigo of Charlemagne, and the pontitical of St. Dun-atan, 961 (ib. 2057 expressly ascribe "Here begins the Relics in the holy of Cealchy the ( $u$. s an opinion that th tant than the rel The former says: other relics, yet m because it is the

Not one of the F this rite is earlier tury, to which per Rheims, Noyons. a 272). It is tomal id century (ib. 243). mayy, as we learn of the 11th centur later history and su ristica, 917-918, ed For the Sich.-A Jnstin Martyr tells in the 2nd ceatury sickness, but we ean reserved by the ce aike. As the primi private celebration bably done at a re near the begianing of a dying man who municate him, and have becu reserved, (Hist. Eocl. vi. 44). same century permit hibition already quut ness." When St. A priest, warned of his to him (Paulinus, in picus, A.D. 597, ant "sought to receive $t$ h in the night, aud th roservation is aecessar Hist, Eecl. 83). Aften the practice are very ordered by a coun il that "the sacred obl risticum of persons Diseipl. Eccl, i, 70).
Reservation in both a tumult at Constant entered the place " wl stored up, and the mon spilt on the garment (Chrysost. l'pist. ad sea had "the body an with them " (Greg. M. Mary of Egypt, when "in a small cup a port and preeious blood" ( Apr. 2). The same thit (Slabill. praef. i. in Sace ii. 9 , Boll. Mar. 2), and Outh. x. 6) in the san orders the sick to be " and blood" (Regino de words of delivery in eve nion of the sick during $t$ cootaries recognize the the reserration, of both blood of tho Lard be a like (Capit. 2, Theodulfi, od. 2; Book of Deer, 90 ; the 4th byters to $h$ to the them the i, Scrip. of Narao to have rech after rer" (can. e) it was should be tioo by a 5th cene (79) of ever, that monse "acSeleucia); as at leart s, priests, s we resd ho earried t: , Surius, "thell the ard by the 4), and of ather at a ). Greek Uc. et Ur. (Larinus, to modern ourney. ument was Tified (p. [kiviohia, other cele1 of newly $n$ in tombs onsecrationa commanion we prepese ably in the intreduced ication of a nead ander the altar MSS. coly . the Cudex $t$ tres per es incensi" $\%$ Greg. M. books this onsecration; they treated ed after the Cealchythe, erfurmed in : Aiterverds asecrated by nclosed with in the same : we fiud the rent an addication in the of E.ghert of ; Soc.), that $\pi \mathrm{N} 0.3 \mathrm{~A} \mathrm{Z}$ In u. s. ii. 254), of the reign of St. Dab stan, 961 (ib. 257). The two latter pentifienla expressly aseribe this rite to Rome in the heading, "Here begins the Order of the Deposition of the Relics in the holy homau Church." The counell of Cealchythe ( $u$. s.) and SI. Dunstan (u, s.) imply an opinion that the Encharist was more important than the relics generally inclosed with it, The former says: "If he is not able to inclose ether relies, yet may this profit more than all, because it in the body of Oar Lord Jesus Chrlst.'
Not one of the French orders which prescribe this rite is earlier than the end of the 9 th centary, to which period belong the pontificals of Rheims, Noynns, and Seus (Mart. ii. 260, 261 , 272). It is tonud in many later down to the 15 th century (ib. 243). It was practised also in (iermany, as we learn from a Salzburg pontifieal of the 11 th centory (Mart. u. s. 243). For its Ister history and suppression, see Notitia Eucharistica, 917-918, ed. 2.
For the Sich-Ameng the absent to $n$ hom, as Justin Martyr telly as, the Eucharist was seat in the 2nd ceatury w uld be some absent from sickness, bat we cannot aay when it began to be reserved by the celebrant expressly for their sake. As the primitive chureh had no othice of private celebration for the sick, this was probably done at a very carly period. Eusebius, near the beginning of the 4 th century, tells us of a dying mas who eent for a priest to commuaicate bim, and the Eucharist, whiei mant have beea reserved, was taken to him by another (Hist. Eocl. vi, 44). The Armeninn canon of the same century permits one exception to the prohibition already quoted, viz. "on aceount of siekness." When St. Ambrose was dying, 420, a priest, warned of his state, oarried the Eucharist to him (Paulinus, in Vit. S. Ambr. 47). Philippieus, AD. 597, anticipating a violent death, "sought to reeejve the body of the Lord." It was in the night, and the danger audden, so that roservation is necessarily implied (Anast. Biblioth. Hist. Eccl. 83). After this period testimonies to the practice are very frequent. It is expreasly ordered by a coun il of Tours, cited by Regino, that "the sacred oblation be laid up for the viaticum of persons departing this life" ( $D_{e}$ Disciph, Eecl. i. 70).
Reservation in both Kinds.-We read that in a tumult at Constantinople, A.D. 403, soldiers eatered the place " where the holy things were stored up, and the most holy blood of Christ wa spilt on the garments of the said soldiers" (Chrysest. EPist. ad Innoc. 3). Travellers by sea had "the body and blood of the Redeemer with them" (Greg. M. A.D. 590, Dial. iii. 36). St. Mary of Egypt, when dying, A.D. 629, received "in a small cup a portion of the undefiled body and precious blood" (l'itta, iv. 34, in Bolland. Apr. 2). The same thing is related of SS. Odilia (Mabill. praef. i. in Suec. Bencd. iii.), Chad (Vita, ii. 9, Boll. Mar. 2), and Cuthiert (Bede, Vita $S$, Cuth. $x .6$ ) in the same century. Bede, 701, arders the sick to be "refreshed with the body and blood" (Regino de Disc. Eccl. i. 119). The words of delivery in every order for the commuwion of the siek during the 8th and twe following ceataries recognize the reception, and thorefore the reservation, of both kinds: "The body and blood of the Lord be unto thee," &e., nnd the like (Capit. 2, Theodulfi, Baluze, Miscell. ii. I04, od $2 ;$ Book of Deer, $90 ;$ Liler de Arbutínott, pr.

RESERVATION

1787
Evix., xxii.; Martene, u. s. i. vil. 6, n. 3; Not. Euch. 1022). Even in the IIth century we find the priest blood," &c commuaicate him with the body and seem that in the 9th 8. ord. 15). Yet it woold leeted to resere 9 th century some already negTours already cite the wine, for the caanon of for the sick to be " orders the oblation reserved [Spoon, Eucharistic] be able trathfully to say to the sick, "The body and blood,' "&c.
The reserved Eucharist is sometimes spoken of simply as "bread" (Tert. ad Ux. ii. 5), or "the body," &c. (Jerome, E:p. 48, ad Pammach. § 15), but we eanot infer from this that the bolly only was ever reserved at the time, for we find this langange used of pablic as well as private communions, and all acknowledge that the firmer were invariably in both kinds, With Tertullian (de Orat. 14) and Jerome ( $\%$. s.) " reception of the body" is the public reception in church, the equivalent of which, in the Armenian canon before cited, is "drawing near to the brend." Ia the Greck eliurch the practiec of intinetion has kept up the reacruation of the blood to this diay. The consecrated bread being "broken into sulficiently tes [culled Margurituc, or pearls], and crated crated wine, they take them out of the chalice, and dry them in a small dish set under a pan of coals, and thea put them into n pyx or box to be reserved " (Smith, Grech Church, 162; Leo Allat. de Recent. (ir. Templ. 145). This is done on Maundy Tharsday, and the particles so treated arrve for the aliturgie days of Lent, and for the siek.

The Renewal of the reserved Eucharist.-Few netices of this occur within our period. The earliest ia in a canon of Isaae III., an Armenion eatholicus of the 7th century, by which the Eucharist is to be reserved "only from Lord's day to Lord's day, or from saerifice to saerifice" (can, 9, Mai, Script. V. N. Cull. x. 301). In the West the canon of Tours, preserved by Regine, 906, aays: "Let it always be changed from one third day to another" (u.s.). Later rules vary from a week to a month (Not. Euch. 915).
The Vessel containing the reserved Sterament. When this was taken home, during the age of persccution, it was placed in a casket, which St. Cyprian (de Lapsis, 132) calls Arca. Turris was the common name for the vessel in which the Fermentum was kept in ehurches from the 6th century downwards, at least in France, beeanse "the Lord's sepulchre was eut in the rock into the likeaess of a tower" (German. Paris. a. o 555, Expos. Mf:ss. Brev.). See enlleged will of Remigiua, 533, in App. ad Litury. Gall. 466 ; Greg. Tur. de Glor. Mart. i. 85. Wemantius Fortunatus hata a poem on such a turpis (iii. I3) A Benedictio Calicis et Patente et Turris oceurs in the Besançon sacramentary ( $\mathrm{M}_{\mathrm{us}}$. Ital; i. 389). In the 8 th century we find this vessisel called capsa at Rome (Ord. Rom. i. 8, 10). See Capsa. Pyxis, afterwards univertal, scems to have come inte use in the 9th tentury. "Every presbyter shall have a pyx or vessel worthy of so $\varepsilon^{\text {rent }}$ a sacrament, in which the Lord's hody is to be carefully kept" (Cone. Turon, in Regine, De Discipl. Ecd. 1. 70; aee also the Artieles of Visitation. p. 6 , ed. Baluze; Admon. Synod. Leon.

RESIDENOE

RESIDENCE
iv. ; Lutt. Conc. vlii. 34). Columba whs another name. Perpetuus of Tours (471) in his will spenks of a peristerium (the canopy over the columba), and a zilver dove for a repository" (App. Opp. Greg. Tur. 1319). See Dove. Yet another was Chrismale (Missale I'rancorum in Lit. Gall. 316). See Chbismal. A later name, which we find in England, Ireland, and France, wus cuppa (Hist. Episc. Autiss. 57, in Mrrtene do Ant. Lecl. Rit. i. v. 3 n. 8; Instructio Decanorum, Synodi Meldensis, in Mart. et Dur. Thesanr. Anecd. iv. 930 , &c. See Ducinge in v.). Cisurinm, originally the name of the raulted canopy over the altar (see Vol. I. p. 66), was also used in this sense (Chron. Centul. ii. 10, iii. 3, in Dach. Spicil. iv. 467, 480, 487). The Oreeks keep the ennecrated brend reserved for the sick lo a bex which they call the dpToфopiov, or breadho!der. "This bex, whether of silver or woed, is put up into a silken case, the better to defend what is inclosed from cobwebs, or anything that may defile it, aut is hung up usuatly behind the altar against the "all, with "lanp or two, for the most part, lauing hiforn it" (Sinith, Greck Church, 162).
[W. E. S.]
RESIDENCE (Th smanta Parochorem). There are many (rofs. both its the decrees of conncils and in ingiral edicts, that the evil of non-resilence on the part of the parechial clergy had made itself felt from the earliest times as an evil which required to be strictly guarded against. At the council of Sardica, A.D. $3+7$ (c. 16), complaint was mads that the presbyters and deacons of the regien round Thessalonica were habitually attracted by the seductions of the capital city, and induced to take up their abode there for an unreasenable length of tim The council therefore extended to the parochial clergy the decree that had been sumide about bishops (c. 12), that they should no ${ }^{3}$ nbsent from their parishes more than three Sundays. The council held in Constantinople, A.D. 692 (Conc. Quinisex. c. 80), prohibited any of the clergy or laity from being absent from their parish church for more than three Sundays, except under plea of necessity. In case of disobedience, the clergy were to be deprived of their prefernent, and the laity excommonicated. Justinian (Sovell. exxiii. 9) includes all the clergy in the law which forbade bishops to be absent from their see for more than a year except on imperial business. Gregory the Great (lib. iv., Indict. 12, Ep. 13) commends a sentence of deposition which had been passed upon a presbyter who had been absent from his parish, but adds, that the presbyter asserts that he had duly obtained leave of absence from the bishop, and been unavoidnbly detained by illness. He therefore directs that a fresh examination should be made into the circumstances of the case. A capitulary of Charles the Great (V. c. 329).complains that bishops, priesta, and deacons, from motives of gain or pleasure, were in the habit of travelling to distant parts of the country, lenving their parisluer 'estitute of the means of grace, and neglectin 'L suties of hospitality, and strictly forbida the , tive except in eases of inevitable necessity: The fourth council of Paris, A.d. 829 (c. 29), recites in strong terms the evils caused to country parishes by their clergy being sent from them to transact legal business for their bishops. At a council held at Rome, A.D. 853, Lee 1V. complained that a certain Austasius, a cardinal priest ("p "eslyter cardiais nostri") had been absent from his church for tives years, although repentedly cited to reside. The sentence of the ceuncil was that Arastasius should be deposed.

Ihuring Pestilence.-It mpears ro lave bees reckoned ns shameful for the clergy to lesert their posts in time of pestrlouce, ns in time of persecution, such seasons beturg always regapded ins especial calls to more earaest work, and farourable opporturities for waking impres. sion on the people. A few examples will auffive.

Cylrisu, in his treatise Dc Mortelitate, written on the occasion of a terrible pastilence, recounts the rensons by $s$ hich the faithful were to lo persuade! to remain in the aftlicted ritues, adding, that this aftiond a 4 them a sindad opportunity of returning geol for evil, by suce" whe their persecntore in the hour of their neessity. Gregory Nyssen, in his Life of Greiery Thumaturyus (p. 958 B. Migne, Patrol.) sqeaks of his conduct during a pestilence in the city of Neoenesaren, of the confidence which the sick reposed in his power to drive away the disease by his prayers, and the influence which he gained over the profligate and unbelievers. Eusebius (H.E. vii. 22) gives some fragments of the epistles of Dionssius of Alexandria, in which he speaks of the noble conduct of the Christians of that city during a plague, narrating how they helped in every way, not enly their fellow-citizens, but even the heathen, tending the sick, burying the dead, and in many instances, especially in the case of presbyters and dencons, themselves catching the pestilence and dying. This he contrasts with the conduct of the heathen, whe aveided all communication with the aick, and cast on: their dead inte the roads. Gregory the Great (Epist. viii. 41) urges Dominicus, bishop of Carthage, to remsin at his post during a pestilence, and net only do all he could to nasuage the sufferings it caused, but to make it a time for earnest exhortation while the hearts of men, made tender by fear, were open to receive his exhortations to repentance. That Gregery inculented such conduct, not only by precept but by example, appears in his Life by Jehn the Dencon. It is there stated (i. 39-43) that he took possession of his see while a fierce pestilence wns raging, and ebrountered the evil with processions mil publio meetinga for prayer ; that during one of these meetings eighty people died, but that Gregory never ceased from prayer and supplication till the plague wha stayed. Gregory of Tours (Hist. Franc, viii. 2) relates that Snlvius, bistop of Alby, in Narbonne, remained at his post when the city was devastated by lestilence, urging the people to repentanc nand prayer; and again (id. ix. 22) tbat The like occasion, remair Victor with the fer. the pestiler in ear tion. The sis in tho recits? their decrees the bishops of attending by ths country.

RESPONSOI psalmi), a techn portiens of psali between the lect the church. Sjue arranged accordin Radulfus snid: brevia responsori parvas horas, ut nomam, et complet sumuntur excepta Liber, Prep. xii.) their order and to ontury are laid Antiphon. lib. ce. 7 frequently used to Interposed bet ween and which are Tract, &e. in the "responsorium" is throughout the priutel in Pamelins Litury. Aleman. Erudit. Theol. i. 18 passage from Scri psalin er canticle, f verses was substit The use of a wh Armenian and Coptt Anc. Lit. pp. 145, 1 the old Gallican r hymn of Zecharias song of the three lection.

1. The title "resp to the antiphounl assamed in the mode of versicle and resp quod uoo canente che (Isid. Hisp. de Eco. desiuente id alter re de Institut. Cleric. I. natim cantatur, un sorium " (Hugo a S 18). Accerding to derived from the res preceding lesson, " (Alcoin de Div. Ofi. e tur enim a respondend et laeta laetis deben (Rupert de Div. Offic. interpreted to repres alleluia which follow tenplative life (Ama Other mystical mean great length (ibid. ii between antiphens on mode of singing. "Inte hoc differt quod in versum, in antiphonis chori " (Raban. Maur. 2. The date of the Boria" into the litur, sccaracy. They were sufficient evidence, said the Italians, as antiph Greeks (Raban. Maur. supposition which is p Latinity of the term by known. Allusions to suthors and document prove their use at vario unbelievers. 3 fragmenta exandria, in fuct of the gue, narrat.5, not only ne heathen, and in many f presbyters e pestilencs the conduct mmuaication lead into the st. viii. 41) je, to remain not only do ga it caused, exhortation ider by fear, ns to depentach conduct, le, appears in there stated n of his see , and earounand pablio one of these that Gregery plicatioa till f Tours (Hist. us, bishop of is post when lence, urging $r$; and again irseilles, on a hurch of St. anteuched by tor its ressaedo, A.D. ti93, gs, alfixed to 79) notes that ovented from aging in their
[P. 0.]

RESPONSORIA (or psalmi responsorii, or psalmi), a technical name for the psalms or portions of psalms which were said or sung between the lections in the various athees of the church. Speaking of the divine othice as arranged according to the Hours ln the Breviary, Radulfus said: "Sunt etiam in otheio divino brevia responsoria, quae in officio Romano ad parras horas, ut ad primam, tertiam, sextam, nonam, it completorium dieuntur, et de psalmis sumuatur excepta prima," &c. (De Can. Observ. Liber, l'rop. xii.). Minute regulations as to their order and form in the Hours in the 8th onatury are laid down by Amalarius (do Orrl. Antizhon. lib. cc. $71-80$ ). But the term is more frequently used to denote those pisalms which are interposed bet tween the lections in the Ordo Miss ve, and which are represented by the Grimanl, Tract, &e. in the modern mlssal. The title "responsorium" is employed instead of gradual throughout the antiphonary of Gregory, as printed in l’amelius (Liturg. ii. 62-176; Gerbert. Litury. Aleman. i. 308 ; Hugo a S. Victore, Erudit. Theol. i. 18). It was originally a loag passage from Scripture, consisting of a whole psalin or canticle, for which an extract of a few verses was substituted at a very early date. The use of a whole psalm survives in the Armenian and Coptic liturgies (Hammond, C.E. Anc. Lit. pp. 145, 199), and was exemplified in the old Galliean rite by the position of the hyma of Zecharias before the first, and of the song of the three children before the third lection.

1. The title "responsorium" is said to be due to the antiphoaal form which these psalms assumed in the mode of singing, and to the form of versicle and response, "vocata hoc nomine quod uno canente chorus consonando respondeat" (ssid. Hisp. de Ecc. Offic. j. 8), "quod elio (lsid. Hisp. de Ecc. Offic. i. 8), "quod alio desinente id alter respondeat" (Rabanus Maur. de Institut. Cleric. i. 3i3), "quod quoniam alteraatim cantatur, unde et nominatur responsorium " (Hugo a S. Victore, Erudit. Theol. i. 18). According to other rituals the term is derived from the responsory answering to the preceding lesson, "quod a cepite repetatur" (Alcuin de Div. Offi. ed. Hittorp. p. 69). "Dicuntur enim a respondendo ; tristia namque tristibus et laeta laetis debemus succibere lectionibus" (Rupert de Div. Offic. 1. 15). It was mysticnlly iaterpreted to represent the actiye life, as the slleluia which followed it represented the contemplative life (Amalar, de Ecc. Offic. i. 35), Other mystical meanings ere worked out at Other mystical meanings are worked out at great length (ibid. iii. 11-14). The difference great iength (ibid. ini. 11-14). The difference between antiphons and responsories lay in the mode of singing. "Inter responsoria et antiphonas hoc differt quod in responsoriis unus dicat versim, in antiphonis nutem alternent versibus chori " (Raban. Maur, de Instit. Cleric. j. 33).
2. The date of the introduction of "responsoria" into the liturgy cannot be fixed with accuracy. They were popularly, but without sufficient evidence, said to have been invented by the ltalians, as antiphons were invented by the Greeks (Raban. Maur. de Instit. Cler. lib. 1), a supposition which is perhaps based on the late atinity of the term by which they are technically known. Allusions to them in the following authors and documents, Easterir and Western, provs their use at various early datea, and justify the placing of their introduction by Amalarius " longo ante tempore," or by Martene, " ab ipso evangelii exordio" (Euseb. Hist. Eices. ii. 17, interpretante Rufino; Ambros. al Murce'linam; Angustin. in Pruefat. ud Psalnos 46, 99; Chrysost. Hom. 36, in 1 Cor. ad finem. ; Sozomen Hist. Ecc. v. 19 ; St. Benedicti legula, c. ix.).
3. The normal portion of the "psalmus responsorius" was between the lections in the breviary affices, and between the kpistle and Gospel in the Liturgy. This was the case in the Roman liturgy pussion, in the African (Augustid. Serm. x. di lerb. Apost. tom. v. p. 839 ; IIom. $x$ xiii, de lerb. Dum.), in the Gallican (Gerinani. l'aris. Expos. Breris. § 7); but in the Nozarabio liturgy, where, as in the Gallican, three leetions oceurred in each misss, the full responsoi'y intervened between the first (lectio prophetica) and the second (apostolus).
4. The psalmus was originally aung by a single cantor, afterwards by several cantors, the response being taken up by the whole choir (Urdo Kom. i. § 10 ; ii. §ु 7 ; Maban. Maur. de Insitit. Cler. ii. 51); but there was son e variety of custom ou this point. According to the ordinary rule a lector was chosen for this otfice. "Praccentor psalmi responsorii usitatius ex ordine erat lectorum " (Thomasius, in Praif. ad Rom. Antiphon.). In the Anglo-Saxon churech it was suag by a priest (Theodore, I'enitent. ii. 11) or a layman (ibid. i. 10). In the Gallican church by a deacon (Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. viii. 3) or by children, "nisj tantummodo responsorium quod a paryulis canetur" (German. Paris. Expos. Biev. § 7).
5. It was sung on the step from which the epistle had been read (Ordo Rom. ii. 7), whence its more modern and familiar title of Gradunl. It was said or sung originally by heart, but at a later period the responsories were collected together in a book called the Respunsuriule. The arrangement of its parts differed slightly in Rome and Gaul (Amalar. Prologus de Ordine Antiphon). It was sometimes prefaced by an announcement of the passage of Scripture from which it was taken (Cassiodorus, cap. ii. I'refat in Psainn.), and was usually followed by the Gloria Patri, according to the direction of the rule of St. Benedict (for Nocturns) and of the fourth council of Toledo (can. 15), which also alludes to its permitted omission in the case of the penitential psalms (can. 16). The cautor was vested in an alb, as we may gather from the twenty-third cnnon of the council of Laodicea, which forbids his wearing a stole, and from the eleventh canon of the aecond council of Bracara, which forbids his wearing ordinary dress. For further information the reader is referred to Gradual, Tract, &c.
[F. E. W.]
RESTITUTUS (1), May 20; natale commemorated at Rome on the Vis furelia (Nart. Usard.; Hieron., Notiker., Vet. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Mai. vii. 10).
(2) Aug. 23; commemorated at Antioch (Mart. Usuard.).
[C. H.]

RESURRECTION AND LAST JUDG-

 MENT. It is difficult to say with certainty how far representations of this tremendous subject really belong to early Christian art, that isto say to that period of it which ends with the death of Charles the Great. Though many of the grent mosaics after the 6th century repreent the Lord in glory, attended by saints, they do not, as at periods nearer the midlle ages, set forth His sentence on the wicked or the righteous. That of the Duomo of Torcello is probably the earliest remaining instance on a mural scale. The various sketches of the condemnntion of the wicked, and the very numerous hells of the Utrecht Pbalter, are no doubt prior to them. The Psalter of Athelstan (late 9 th century) has its concourse of saints and glorification of our Lord, which quite anticipntes the crowded madiaeval-Gothic Paralises.

1790

RESURRECTION

Lord Lindsny refers the great judgment mosaic of Torcello to the 12 th century, when a renction or rcuascence of Byzantine art took place under the Comneni. Its Inferno has much ghastly imagination in the representation of the Gea, Amphitrite in person, giving up her dead, the worms writhing from fleshless okulls, &c. This, with the varieties of torture represented in the smaller compartments, would be almost decisive as to its late date; but Prof. Ruskin and the Marchese Selvatico appear to think it probable that this mosaic, or parts of it, may have been among the decorations of the original island-church of Torcello, built in A.D. 641. (See Appendix to Stomes of Venice, vol, ii.) If the mosnics are really 7th century, they are, as far as the present writer knows, unique as to aubject and treatment for that time; and their ghastly imagery would aeem to indicate a later date. They certainly anticipate the imaginations of Giotto and Orgagna, as the lattor influenced the works of Michel Angelo in the Sistine, by his frescoes in the Cnmpo Santo of Pisa. There is a peculinrity noticed by Prof. Ruskin in the Torcellese artist's conception of the everlasting fire, not as a conflagration or fiery prison-house, or personified monster, as in later days, bnt as a red stream issuing from beneath the throne of God. It is suggested under Torment, Place of, that the representation of an actual mouth of hell, so common in the middle ages, may be derived from the tion of the Last Judgment nt Mount Sinni ; and tha oue or two at the convent of Mar Snba seem of late date. There are many at Mount Athoe, bnt Mr. H. F. Tozer consilers them entirely or of our period. In Messrs. Texler and Pullan's Fiyzantive Architecture, p. 41, menti.n is mple of severul last judgments, none at all etuly. The subject is said in this work to be entirely Byanatine, and derived from Egypt, to be in frat a repetition of the psychostasis of antiquity. The sculptures in tympana of church porches in the Went during the 13th and 14th centuries are very frequently of Byzantine dorivation.

RESURRECTION

A henthen painting of judgment, or presentation of the soul after death to the lower jowers, has been found in the catacomb of St. Iruetestatus. (See Perret, i. 73.) "Diespiter" and "Mercurius Nuntius" are named in it, as nlso Alcestis. See also the "Inductio Vibies" in the Gnostic catncomb (Parker, Appondix to Catacomsh, p. 174 ; Perret, vol. i. No. 73), which certainly represents the presentation of the doad Vivia to some assembled divlaities.
[R. J. T.]

RESURRECTION OF OUR LORD. See

 Crucifix. This subject forms part of severul of the early crucifixions. There seems to have beea a feeling on the part of scribes or their putrous that the true impression of the event of the Lord's death could only be given in one view with His victory over death. The unnexed woodcut (No. 1) is a striking ropresentation of the Resurrection from the Rabula MS. in the Laureatine Library at Florence. As suhjects drawn from the pnssion of our Lord are very rare in early Christian art, it is not very surprising that His resurrection does not occur often. The following examples, given by Rohuult de Fleury, L'Évangile, vol. ii. ppl. 92, 93, 94, will amount to a tolerable list.In sculpture, a well-known Lateran sarcophagus of the 4th century gives the monogram, inscribed in the circle of a victor's wreath of bay or clive, and elevated on a large cross, whicb forms its upright $P$. Two sidiers resting on their ahields are placed beneath its arms.

No. 1. Resurrection, MS, of Rabnl. (From Aasemanl's Catalogua Bibliothecre Lanrentlanaa.)
roaring mouth or passage from the infernal regions described in the rision in Plato's Repullic, bk. x. ; but ite not being found in this mossic may render the connexion less plausible.
The present writer remembers no representa-

Tartigny mentions a lamp figured by Giorgi, de Monogrammate Ciristi, p. 10, of nearly the same devics, with the addition of a tablet with the motto of the Labarum, EN TOVIITONIKA; also a marble tomb at Nîmee, and a sarcophagus at Solasons (Le I Rohault de Flee similar sarcopha the upight mon the cross. See a from a Vatican s. private palace in

No. 2. Bymbolio Rear
Tha 6th century de Fleury, ii. pl. resting on their shie of the Maries abor squere building, surm ond supported by doors (the other is broken), there scem Rasing of Laznrus, la pl. 94 he gives $t$ st Munich ; one of of St. Mary Magdal cases by the angel of attnehed to an 11th thiaks they may pr Cherles the Great.
In mossic, the ch Città st Ravenna, is of ( R . de Fleury, pl. example the sepulchr temple, a poristyle, dome reof. The brol eatrance. An angel aimbus and wings, aldresses two women, violet tunic and brown Besides these, Marti containing this subject; of St. Maximin (Monum is from the sarcophagu (Buggti, Mem. di S. Ce gires a woodeut of it. napkin or grave-cloth served by St. Peter and the other sees the ang tepalchre-which is cir doorwar, and obtusely appears to St, Thomas a Fiaolly, there is a resu quaries scat by St. Greg linda of Lormbardy (Mozz 97). St. Mary Magdclene
;inai ; and Saba seem Athos, bnt ely or of 1 Pullan's an is mate eturly. The e entitely , be in fact antiquity. porches in aturies are en. r presenta. er pisens, t. Fraetexiter" and it, us also ises " in the , Catacom? th certainly ad Vivia to [R.J. T.]

ORD. See f screral of o have been air pattens rent of the n one view he annesed presentation MS. in the As subjects rd are very t very sur( not occar a by Rohault $92,93,94$, in sareephs. menogram, a wresth of cross, whicb 5 resting on its arms. of nearly the I tablet with VIITO NIKA; I sarcephagus at Soissons (Le Blant, Inscr, de la Gaule, p. 304).
Rohault de Fleury Rohault de Fleary speaks of a fragment of a amilar sarcophagus in the Vatican, which bears the oplight monogram, ornamented, and without the cross. See also Aringhi, 1. 311, a drawing from a Vatican sarcophagus which belonged to a private palace in his day. private palace in his day.

$0. 2. Bymbolic Reeurrection, Barcophagas in the Lataran.
The 6th century ivory of the Vatican, Rohault de Fleury, ii. pl. 92, represents the aoldiers resting on their shields as supporters, with two of the Maries above them. The sepulchre is a squsre building, surmounted by a Lombard cupola and supported by two pillars. On one of its doors (the other is omitted in the carving-as Rraising of Lazarus, treate be bas-relief of the ln pl. 94 he gives two 8th century ivories, st Munich; one of the three Maries, the other of St. Mary Magdalene alone, greeted in both cases by the angel of the resurrection. They ara sttached to an 11th century evangeliary, but he thinks they may probably be of the time of Charles the Great.
In mosaic, the church of S. Apollinare nella Cittd at Ravenna, is the only example we know of (R. de Fleury, pl. 93, 6th century). In this exsmple the sepulchre is a regular Greek circular dome re, a peristyle, with architrave and flat dome roof. The broken door leans across the entrance. An angel sita on the lcft, with nimbus and winga, white robe and wand. He aldresses two women, the first of them clad in a violet tunie and brown robe. Besides these, Martigny mentions two tombs of St. Maximin (Monum. de Ste. Madeleine) the crypt is from the sarcophagus of St. Celeuse ane , another (Bugati, Mem. di S. Ce'so, St. Celsus at Milan, gives a woodeut of it. One is pointing to the napkin or grave-clothes, in the cointing to the serred by St. Peter and St. John (1) the other $\mathbf{x x} .5,5$ ) ; the other sees the angel. On the wight of the doorway, and obtusely gabled a round arehed dorway, and obtusely gabled roof-the Lord Finally, there is a resurrectioner eaint. quaries sent by St. Gregory the Great to The relilinds ef Lombardy (Mozzoni, Tav, di Stor to Theode07. St. Mary Magdalene prost atrs herself before the Lord; two trees and a fountain represent the garden ; and on one of St. Gregory's phials or oil vessels, sent at the same time, and how at Monza, fix, p. 516, vol. i.; and a Maries. See CauclMinter, Symolism, part a medallion published by the word ANACTACIC. tab. 1, No. 4; with the word ANACTACIC. The chief Christian symbolisms of the Resurrection sally-oecurring figures of Jonah, the univerfrequent one of Samson with the and the less (Buonarroti, Vetri, tave 1, fig the gates of Gaza of Lazarus will be found s. $v$. 1). The Raising and the ark of Noah can hardly be the peacock by Ile Fleury) as symbolisms be considered (as to this subject.

REVERSION
1791
[B. J. T.]

REVENUES. [PRoperty.]

REVERIANUS, June 1, bishop; commemorated at Autun (Mart. Usuard.; Boll. Acta SS. Jun. i. 40).
[C. H.]
REVERSION (Regressus). Instances of securing the right of reversion to a bishoprio are not untrequent in the history of the early church, sometimes by desire of the other times apparently by the will of people, at bishop, but always under peculiar circume ruling

Eusebius (H.E. vi. 11) speaks of Alexander being appointed coadjutor to the aged Narcissas, biahop of Jorusalem, evidently with the right of succession, and II. E. vii. 32 says that Theotecnus, bishop of Caesarea in Palestine, ordained a certain, making him the episcopate with the intention of Socrates ( $H$ assistant and successor. heal a schism th. v. 5) shys that in order to Antioch (A.D. 379) in existed in the church of two bishops, Meletius and quence of there being their functlons at the and Paulinus, exercising people assembled the same tima in the see, the sidered worthy to be entrue clergy who were conand bound them by entrusted with the bishopric, of the two bishops an oath that whenever either be pernitted to retain de, the survivor should the see (compare Theodoret note by Vales.) ; and $H . E$. vii. $40 . v .3$, with Paul, the Novatian bishop of 46 relatea how when on his death-bed but requested by his presbysters only permitted, successor.
Sozomen (H. E. ii. 20) says that Maximus, who had been ordnine bibop of Maximus, Macarius, bishop of Jerusalem, was appointed by the people coadjutor and successor to Macarius himself, and in due time succeeded to thacarius
But these instances run contrary to the geeneral intention of the church as expressed in geral decrees of councils. Thus as expressed in the (c. 75) forbid a bishop to ordur Apostolic Canous tions, giving as a reason that any of hia relahereditary succession reason that the principle of into the churession onght not to be introduced Antioch, A.D. 341 (ceinet Ti日tval. The council of bishop to consti (c. 23), expressly forbids any successer, and provides (kastây) any one as his if male, shall be void that such appointment, Toledo, A.D. 633 (c. 19), numbers council of clergy disqualified for bishopricsers among the been appoiuted by their predecesthose who have and the fifth council of Paris (c. 2 ) in the see:
bishop durlng hila lifetlme to appoint a successar unless under certain conditiona B184501, p. 998.

REVOCATUS, N1 เrch $?$, com in monated at Tuburbum (Mart. Usumed.) ; rpparentiy the one mentioned in Mart. Sierun. Feh. 5. [C. H.]

RHFIMS, alleged Council of (Remense Conciliuun). A. 1,625 . First mentioned in the history of the ehureh of Rheims by Flolonrd, one of its canons, in the luth century. Aecording to hlm, It was summoned by Sonnatius, biahop of Rheims, attended by forty or more bishops, and passe ${ }^{1}$ twentiotive canens, in which allusion is mude more than once to the synod of l'aris, A.D. 6I5. Nor is their general tone dissimilar. But, according to liurchard and others, it passed twenty-two morn, which he omits, all confessedly the work of the 8 th and 9 th centuries. And these (coupled with the tiventy-one statutes of Sonnatius, ns they are called, which are no less apocryphal), must discredit everything else reported of his episcopate, for which no earlier authentic proof can be had (Mansi, x. 593-604).
liHENO. We learn from Isidore Etym. xix. 23. 4) that rheno is the name of $n$ garment covering the shoulders and chest, and reaching down to the waist, specially inteniled for protection againat the rain. According to Sallust (Isidore, l. c.) it was worn by the Germans. Th derivation is uncertain. We can hardly agree with lsidore, that it is to be found in Rheaus, the river Rhide, because of the use of the garment in the adjaceut country. Another theory connects it with the naine of the reindeer, from whose akin it may have been made. It is perhaps more likely that it is to be connected with $\beta$ 方 $\nu$, so that it would merely mean a sheepskin. See Ducange's Glossurium, 8. v, [H. S.]
RICHARIUS, Ap. 26, presbyter anl confessor ; commemoreted at Centuln (St. Riquier) (Mart. Usuard., Notker.; Boll. Acta SS. Ap. iii. 441); Oct. 9 (Mart. Mieron.).
[C. H]
RIEZ (in Provence). COUNCIL OF (liegense, or Reginanse Concilium), A D. 439. Caused by the uncanonical act of two bishops in consecrating to the see of Embrun without any reference to their metropolitan or thoir colleagues. It was attended by twelve bisnons, of whom Hilary, bishop of Arles, in whose jurisdiction Embrun then lay, subscribed first. Its eight canons are partly directed against the offenders, and partly to prevent any similar offences in future (Mansi, จ. 1189-1200).
$[i ; E f$,

RIGAE. [RUGAE.]

RIMAS or RIMNAS, Jnn. 20, ma. reitu Innas and Pibnas, disciples of St. Andrew the apestle (Bas. Menol. ii. 124 ; Cal. Byzant.).
[C. H.]
RIMINI, COUNCIL OF, A.D. 359 (ARIMINENSE CONCILIUM). Two councils, of which the first, that it Pimini, was entirely composed of Western prelates, and an Eastern assembling at Seleucia, the capital of Isauria, were convoked about the same time. There were more than four hundred present, of whom but eighty were Arinns. The Nicene faith was accordingly racalved, all later formulas rojected, and four or tiva Atian bl. ops condemned. Ten deputies were seut with these derinions to Coustantius, But moanwhile the Acacians proceeding to Conatantinople gained over the emperur, and sent the lnst creed of Sirnium to Limini to joe receired there. At firat the council steadily refused cunpliance, whereupon Ursacius and Valens, two of the condemned bishops, hurried aff to Nicaea, overtook and duperl the deputies that hal beea sent trom Riminh, and then returuing thither theinselves with count Tairus, who hal arilers cuuncia, wored it at a subsequent meating to subscribe to this creed, nnt alopt Arinuism. "Ingemnit totus orbis, et Arianum be esse miratus est," says St. Jerome, who summarizes its proceedings (Adv, Lucif. c. 17-19. Compare the locumenta in Mansi, iii. 293-316, and the rliscussion on them in Hefele, ih. 251-361, Eag, Tr.).
[E.S. Yf.]
IINGG. The finger-ring ubed as a aignet gom as far back as very earay Egyptian times. It has continued to be used for the same purpast in all ages down to the oresent day, but: process of time has come tu be employed for other purpeses also. Rings mny indicate ollicial rabk or the espoused or marrieil state, or may be ased as ornaments, or pressed into the service of devotion. Wealthy Christians in $\mathfrak{i}$ : $e \mathrm{e}$ times of the apestles wore gold r'ings (James ii, 2). The Ante-nicens and Post-nicene fathers alike find it necessary to declare against the prodigality of Christians in wearing ringa and gems. (Sen Tertull. de Hab. Muliebr. c. 5 ; Apol. с. 6 Clem. Alex. Paol. lib. iii. c. 11; Cyprian do llib Virg. c. 14; Basil, IIomil. ad Divit. c. 4 ; llievon. Epist. aul I.aet. c. 5). One of the earliest notices of a finger-ring in Church history occurs in the Acta of the Martyrs Perpetua and Felicitas (circa 202 A.D.), where we read that the martyt Saturus drew a ring from off the finger (ansur lam de diyito petiit) of Pudens, a soldier, who witnessed his sulferings, and returned it to him cevered with his own blood (c. 6).

Christian Rings of Metal set with Gems.

A large number of Christian rings were made to be worn on the finger, more rarely on the thumb, and of these many bore engraved stones, which have conio down to us in greater numbers than the rings themselves. The devices on such otones are described under Gens. The fem ownples which have survived having lut very rurely any peculiarly Christian features, aeed not be dwelt upon at length; three very fiae ones have been just alluded to under (Gams (pp. 713 b , and 722 b , note); one now in thie liritish Sluseum, of massive gold of hexagonal form, is suppased to be of the early part of the thim century, diameter abont 1.5 inches (figured in Perret, Catacombes, vol iv. pl. xvi. n. 4): the second (p. 722, a). perhups:a little later, is ia the possession of Mlonseigneur de Bonald, Carlinal Archbishop of Lyons, also of massive gold, circular, incrensing in thickness towards the bezel, where it is foliated; the rest is irregulat? bu', elegantly corded at intervals, so that it bears some resemblance to a succession of pearis (dinmeter 1.4 inches): the bezel, from which the gem has fallen out, of an oblong qasdran gular form (lon larger sldea Viv by a palm brane Blant, Inser. ch Martigny, Dút.
whlch is likewise embossed on the al on which a femal is engravel; it is p. 716 b. .)

The following $g$ tioned, with the $t$ when present. A uniform hoop of bezel, raised and sc is surreunded by blas niccelo (a t rej if sented a dol ${ }_{\mathrm{j}}$ ) taker as a symbol 187. ( ) , 49-73): Noct tys (the diameter of ring 11 face of gem : 3. T be of the $p$ dont cent fully figu ed (natt. s Juseo di Palermo, M. de Ressi, Bull. Probably found in S
A beautiful gold flat and widening to ib 1837 among the $\mathbf{r}$ Tusculum, and came Priscess Aldobrandi lazuli bearing an an ayybols of hope an symbels occur separ GEas, pp. 714 and 71 found in conjunction rery fine work, but De Rossi is persuade tions that it is earlie (Bull. di Arch. Crist n. 3).

A massive plain Museum has an on chrisma, the $P$ bein atonke $(P)$. Fort (1860), p. 142

Another very mas: ordinsry subcircular initation of niccolu, the irismn, t'... $P$ sad also with a horizont rection (条) : diamet that of the suborbi nd four or n deputies custintinas. ng tac Con, and sent be received fused euncus, twe of to Nicaea, thad been ing tnither hat arders timized the merting to t Ariauism. e esse miramarizes its Compare 16, and the 1-391, Eng. [E.. S. Ff.] a signet gens n tirres. (t athe purpost but :. proo ed for other officinal rank may be ased e service of i: :e times of sii. 2). The : alike find it nodigality of gemis. (Seo Apol. e. 6 prian do Itch e. 4 : Hewnd. arliest notices oncurs in the and Felicitiss at the martyr finger (unss - soldier, who roed it to him ith Gems.
igs were made rarely en the igraved stopes, eater numbers levices on such ess. The few a ring lout very fentures need hree very fise inder Gessi (pp. - in the Britiah ugonal form, is $t$ of the thind hes (ligured in (vi. II. 4): the the later, is in Bonald, Cardi. f massire goilh ss towards the st is irregulart? ralk, so that it :essien of pearis el, from which blong qeadrangular form (longer she 0.9), has on its two larger aldes vivas in deo as hold, follownd by a palm branch (Gkass, p. 722, figured in Le Blant, Inser. ehret. do la Gause, pl. 2, n. b Msrtigny, Dict. s. r. Anneau, ed. 2). The third, which is likewise of gold, bearing figures of doves embossed on the shoulders, is set with a garnet on which a female sitting between two crosses is engraved; it is of Inter Roman work. (Gzas, p. 716 b.)

The following gold ringa remain to be mentioned, with the types of their gems or pastes, when present. A gold ring with slender flat nniform hoop of circular form with circular bezel, raised and scalloped at the margin, which is surrounded by a beaded line, holds a pale blue niccolo (a trencated cone) on which is re, rented a dolphin (regarded as a fish and so taken as a symbel of Christ, see De Rossi, Duull. 187, ( ) 49-73): the stone is inserihed vivas soctu tys (the nominative for the yoeative); diameter of ring 1 inch; of chaton 0.8 ; of surface of gema 3. This curious ring, supposed to be of the + d century, is deseribed and beauti.. fully figured (mat, size) by Prof. A, Salinaa, Real Museo di Palermo, n. 99, tav. A, n. 7, and by M. de Rossi, Bull. $v \quad$ r. iv. n. 13 (ealarged). Probably found in Sic
A beautiful gold finger-ring, with the hoop flat sad widening towards the bezel, was found in 1857 among the ruins of the Roman houses in Tuscnlum, and came into the possession of the Princess Aldobrandioi. It is set with a lapis lazuli bearing an nnchor and a palm-tree; the symbols of hope and of final vietory. These symbols occur separately on several gema (see Geas, pp. 714 and 716) ; but have, hitherto, been found in conjunction only on this one gem. Not very fine work, but neither again at all rude : De Rossi is persunded from various conajderations that it is earlier than the fourth century (Bull. di Arch. Crist. 1872, p. 119, tav. vií.
i. I
A massive plain gold ring in the British Museam has an onyx intaglio bearing the chrisma, the $P$ being crossed with the third streke (f). Fortnum, Arch. Journ. exvi. (1860), p. 142.

Another very massive plain gold ring of ordibsry subcircular form, bears a paste in imitation of niceolu, upon which is angres. wie crisma, $t$ '.. $P$ being crossed with the $X$ end also with a horizontal line through the intersection (界) : dianeter of ring 0.9 by 0.8 inch : that of the suborbienlar chaton 0.7 inch :

mivis

1703
helght of soncet of bezel 0.2 inoh; snld to have been found in England (British Mluseam).
In the Cartellanl collection (now in the British Museum), No. 5 of Mr. Fortuum's entalogue, is a very fine example of a goll ring bearing the ehrisma; it is an octagonal hoop awelling to the shoulders and surnounted by the monogram of the ordinary form compmel of cloisons of gold, from which the stones or pastes nr enamels which they onee held have new fallen out.

The three preceding ringa are probably of the 4th in 5 th century.
For the ring of Blahop Arnulphus, sce helow under $E_{/ 2}^{\prime}$ iscopal Ring.

Other nettings of early Christian gems are in bronze; one enelosiug the Good Shepherid on a jasper (Gems, p. 712 ) in the possession of Mr. Fortnum, and figured by him, of octagonal form, is by bis kind permisaion here reproducel is by bis kind permision here reproducel. No.

is this the only bronze example. See Catalogue of the Uzielli Coll. p. 66, n. 277, L.ond. 1861. (Christie and Manson.) To these, others doubtless might be added.
Rings were also oceasionally get in ancient times, as now, with gems on which no subjeet is engraved. Some of these were, in the milidle nges, the badges of bisiops (see nuler $E_{p}$ : scopal Ring below), but whether we have any of them now remnining belonging to earlier times appears to be uncertain. In all likelihood Christians in every age may have worn such, but independently of any religious significance.

There is an othice for the conseeration of eardinals which mentions the delivery of the ring, Martene de Ant. Eccl. R.t. lib. i. c. 8, §xi. Ord. xiv. It is probable that their rings also bore a stone without any device. In 1875, when Pope Pius IX. installed several cardinals, he presented each of them with a gold ring set with a 8apphire (Jones, Finger-ring Lore, p. 21'). Whls stone appears to have been generally $u$, lor the purpose, as in the case of hishops (Jones, u so).
The Ordo Romanus ( $p$. 14.3, Hitt. ; see Cu, rims, Synt. p. 411) and various melliaeval velices (Maskell, Mun, Rit. vol. ii. p. 319) mention the delivery of rings to nuas at their consecration, What these were we know not, but it may be surmised that they bore plain stones.
Forms of Christian Rings mado wholly of Metal, and bearing Devices.
The various forms of these rings (ns Mr. Fortaum observes) dn not appear to diller from the general fashion of the rings of their day," in the world Christian and Pagan, and, so tar as the fignres in his and in the present paper are eoncernet, may be classified heariy in his [^127]own words as followa (Areh. Journ. vol, xxvi. $\mathrm{pp}, 1: 18,1.39$. The numbers attnehed refer to the rings in his own collection, nad deseribed by himaeli:

A large purt of the others which are not figured, would probably till under the same heads.
A. The eireular hoop of C nvex metal a welling to the shoulders and flattenel lato an oval or angular chuton. Such are Noso 8,84 and 25, in Dr. Furtaun's collecthon figurel below.
B. Kings furmed of two, three, or more hopps aprloging from one, whlening to the bezel, band generally having beadel whe or chalnwork hetiveen earch boulp. This form, as the last, occurs also at an earlier perlod, Noa, 1, 27,28 (Fortanm) are examples of this form.
C. Oetagonal. A flat hoop of metal formed into an octagon; sometimes oval and swelling to tho bezel, which has a ralsed table of metal; a form, us Mr. Fortnum thinks, peculiar to the 3rd aml tih centuries. Nu. 6 (tigured above) is of the same form, but bears a gem.
11. A peculiar form, greatly varying, aud, again, in the opluion of the same gentleman, only oecurving during the Lower Empire ; sometimes of the largest slee, and of great welght of metal. The bezel is more or less raised, and the shoulders diverge in struight lines at a greater or lexs angle from the bezel to the side, from whence the hoop is completed by a semicircle or semi-hexagon. These riags are sometimes of extrome width. No. 11 und 12 (Fortaum) are of this class.
E. A simplo hoop, generally of convex metal, mure or less swelling to the shoulders, and having a circular (but little raised) bezel with flat table, on which the device is engraved; Nos. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 10, and 33 (Fortnum) nre of this abundant form. Nos, 26 aad 30 (Fortnum) are varicties with a square bezel.
F. The simple hoop has a high, trumpet-shaped bezel, formed as an inverted cone of greatel or less height, and sometimes octagonal laterally. Such are Nos, 20 nnd 22 (Fortnum). Cardinal de Benuld's ring (figured above) with raised quadrangular bezel nad No. 29 (Fortnum) are variations from this type.
This form, he snys, and also D, are peculinr to the period of decadenee, and occasionally occur of grotesque proportions and development, the tower-like bead rising sometimes to more than half sn ineh in height.
To the above classes of Mr. Fortnum the following must be added for the French rings of the Merovingian period, figured below after Le Blant.
G. A simple hoop, slightly swelling towards the shoulders, where it is sometimes corded; benring a large oval or aubeireular tabular chaton (not raised): the extremities of the hoop next the chaton ench bear bosses varying in number, resembling pearla; and the chaton aometimes bears $n$ border in imitation of smaller pearls. See under Cross below for two examples.

[^128]
RINGS

The preceding remarks on the forma of Chrlotian rings retier only to such as bear devicen, kings to which keys are attached, or whigh have the bezel in the form of a shoe (bath tharenl helow from Mr. Fortumm) are likewlae not ino cluled In the above clasmer.

Christion Rinys of rarious Muturints, not bearing Devices, nor set with Gim,

Plain rings in nbundance, with or withent a bezel, tooth in various metala and in ivary, huve been fomen in the lioman eatacoman and in Frankish, German, and Saxen grayea, and niove all in the tomb of Nluria, wifa of the emperor Howorlua, where 150 rings of dillerent kinds were found in $154+$, now dispersed and loat to knowletge (Tomas); and likewise in many other loculitirn, whero thristians have been buriet, and sometinues evera upa the tinger of the akeleton. Some lvory ringa, toe small or too large to bo worn on the fingers, have been found attached to the outside of sepulchral niches in the catacombe, even four or five on the same tomb, probably for the purposec of Hentification. One with pinin cylindrical hoop, noother ribhors-shapel in tho oblique markings outside are figured by lorret ( 16.8 , pll, viil. Nos. 5 and 8). Rings of ostrlch bone (io struthionum ossibus ansnlae in digitis) were sometimen wora ne superstitious churme, and are condeminel by St. Augustine secordingly (De Doctr. Christ. lib. ii. c. 20). On these various rings see Martigny, Anneaux des prem. Chrét. pp. 13-15, nud his references: also Fortnum la Arch. Journ. vol. ${ }^{2} \times v i i 1$. pp. 267, 268, 284.

- Materials of Chriatian Rings.

On the eubject of materinl Mr. Fortnum observes that, "as a rule, early Christinn rings of gold are rare. This might be expected, as tho use of rich and numerous ornaments was not in accordaneo with the teaching of the early chareb." Notwithatanding this, huwever, a fair number of gold rings do oceur. "The rule also of wenring one ring only, as a signet, instead of one on nearly every joint, ne was mostly the fashion among the Pagans, would account fer the comparative rarity of rings with early christian aymbols." (Arch. Journ. yol. xxvi. 1. 139.)

Authontic early Christian ringe in silver are perhaps even atill more rare, A few are mer. tioned below. The mest commen material is, without doubt, bronze. A few of iron still aurvive, but, as might be expected, in n more or less damaged condition: twe from Mr. Fortnum's collection are figured (Nos. 22 and 25). The writer has seen but one in lead, and that s miserable production in all respects, whose Christianity also is not entirely nbove suspicion (Waterton collection: aee under Cruss below).

It is but very rarely that the entire rigg lo made of a gem. A green jasper with uniform

Alatened hoop and ove a hiril (cock ?), and corhelinn of similar branch, have been Gexs, p. 715 . Mr. of the former in now
A few rings in bo to these montioned abo

Authorities for the f

Christ

The general enume which follows has been writers on the Cataeom Perret, also from the $n$ Mrriguy, Hibher, Le and above all from the $n$ these which are contain lections, and in his ow Hiseum of Christian An It Naples, in the Cast the British Museum, an lection which is now for to the South Kensington uvili. 1871, pp. 278-28 1 described partly in vol 147, and partly in vol. inc later additions to it, frences to the numbers a the descriptions of the a are seariy in hie own wor meationed by hins, whet other collections, are also either no Christian charao fil ones. The same ren wme of those figured by 1

Principal Types of

Clement of Alexandria the anchor, the ship, the d Ahherman as fitting objoc Christias seals. Al thes putes (see Gems, Glass) putes (see Gems, GLASS), and the fisherman and the fisherman nre als metal or of bone. These meal or of bone. These tioned first; some remarks the armbols mary be seen Mr. Forinuin's two pape The arrangement of the ot tially that which has been

1. Ordinary Fis

(1.) Fish.-This type, so gems, is found also on vario of the earlier and more imy bea receatly described and bear receatly described and

- Thoese oaty are here given wl ostiand align of thetr Christianit) In Reme reading XPCMATI 1 Cortalian whose name was toman to be a Christian fnmily $n$ uoxting Christlan be Fornam, $\Delta r c h$. Journ. vol, F Thmam, In the Britush. Museun ind Intlon in the simth hensiggton lotronem's culiectlon, have been it bryte riter, and he hus occeasional dy hat writer, and he hus occasional dum. He destres to express his
Th. R. Soden Smilth, and to Mr. thdoly given to inspect them.
ciriars, ANT.-vol. 11.

MNOS

of Chrin rr derices, thich have th thsured ne not in-qut bearing withenit a vory, inve his and in aven, nud Iria, wif 15i) ring 154, Mlis) ; nnd lere 'hrisеуаииюа pory ringa, die fingers, tside of sefour or five urjenes of rical hoop, markings I. viii. Sus. ruthionum times worn demnes by Christ. lib. Martigny, 5, and his lown. vol.

Fortnum stian rings xpected, as uments was of the early ever, & fair te rule also et, instead mostiy the account for arly chirisivi. ji. 139.) 1 silver sre w are menmaterial is, on stil! sura mere or Mr. Fort22 and 25). , and that s ects, whese ve suspicion ss below).
fasteaed hoop noil oval fint bizel, bearing a boat, a birid (wow ?), and palm-tiranch, us well as a corbelian of similnr form hearing a llova and branch, have been already meotioned iniler Geys, p. 715 . Mr. Fortnum's tigure (No. 2) of the former in now nubjuineil.
A rew ringy la bone or ivory, In addition to those mentioned above, are described below.

Authorities for the folloring Enumeration of Christiun lings.

The general enumeration of Christian rings which tollows has been derived partly from the writers on the Cataeombs, Aringhil, Boldetti, nnd Parret, alao from the more critical Parret, also from the more critical works of AIM.
Martigny, Hijhner, La Blant S Martigny, Hilihner, La Blant, Salinas, Le liossi, and above all from the notices hy Mr, Fortnum of thooe which are contained in various public collections, and in his own; ${ }^{\circ}$ viz. in the Vatienn Diwerns of Christian Antlynities, in the Museum a Niaples, in the Castellanl coliection now in the British Museum, and in the Waterton collection which ia now for the most jart contalned in the South Kensington Mussum (Aroh, Journ. sviii. 1871, pp. $278-283$ ). His uwn collection. adeeribed partly in vol. xxvi. (1869), pp. 137 147 , and partly in vol. $x \times v i f i$. pil. 268-277, and the ister additions to $\mathrm{it}, \mathrm{pp} .284-291$. The references to the numbers are as ha gives them, and the descriptions of the gems in these collections ue beariy in his own words. ${ }^{4}$ Several other rings meotioned by him, whether in his own or ill ther coliections, are also onitted, as possessing either no Christian oharacteristics of very doubtinl ones. The same remark must ba mada of wme of those figured by Perret and others.

Principal Types of Christien Rings.

Clement of Alexandria enumerntes tha fish, the aachor, the ship, the dove, the lyre, and the ahhermsn as fitting objacts to be employed on Chrisias sealls. All thess occur on Chrisias sealls. All thess occur on gems and paleg (sae Gems, Glass), and all except the lyre and the fisherman are also found upon rings of metal or of bone. These shall now be meng of lioned firat; some remarks on the significance of the usmbols may be seen under Geas, and in Mr. Fortnum's two papers mentioned above.
The artangement of tha other types is substan. tially that which has been followed in Gems.

1. Ordinary Finger-rings,

(1.) Fish.-This type, so frequently found in fems, is found also on various metal rings. One dithe eerlier and mora important examples has ben receatiy described and figured by De Rossi.

[^129]RINGS
1795
It in a plain uniform hoop of gold, the breadth Inther more than I Inch, liameter aliout 1 inch, In which $n$ rude slender tish is lepicted In white lettera of perd between the necond and thirid Found near llome; (fin the covc retrograde). Stroganotf: Referreal to the thirdion rather count the fourth century by M, te Rowhl rather thnn that the sublinear form of the fish itself stmuls for the missing 1 (Ihe liossi, Mull. Arch, Crist. 187.1, pp. 76, 77, tav, iv. n. 6).

In tbe Naples Musam is centained a gnld ring of sinple form engrnved with a tish. (No. which seens to be more corestine a told ring M . de linssi to the more enrrectly referred by 1870, p, 63), than to century ( Bull. Arch. Crist. which it has been assigned Mingian previoul to ( Fuser. chret been assigned by M. l.e blant with figure), was ande, tom. I. p. 427, n. 608, lommn road nt Montband in 1851 heside the preserved In tha Museam of the Arpellior, now Society of that place, has a small Archaoological very forked thil, engraved a small fish, with a elevated chnton; the hoop is upon the square avelling towards the hoop is aightly angular, each terminating in a snake's wodth two cords, nppeary to be Roman, nnd ne's hend. The fabrle the Castellanl collection not Meroringian. In of coarse work, the (No. 9) is a bronze ring large fish between three engraved with one Fortnum has a bronzaree smaller ones. Mr. circular heop of whas ring of coarse work, the circular bezel, on which is surmaunted by a flat rectly) an ear of corn is engraved (rery incorbetween two fishes, Which he regards as an "emblem of the bread of life, and of those Who live in faith upon it "(No. 17).
(2.) Anchor, - The following are consid

Fortnum : a gold ring to be Christian by Mr. towards the bezel, on graved with a simo which is a raised oval encollection, No 1 inply formed anchor, Castellinni (The genuineness of the in the British Museum. doubtiul: the work is rude.) seems somewhat form, also of gold, encrerred with ring of duplex a palm (Naples Museum, No. 1) an anchor and with circular bezel, on which 1). Bronze ring a ship ara engraved (Vatican an anchor and Boldetti (Cimit. p. 502, No. 26) figures No. 2). with two bezels, on one of which figures a ring on another a ship. one of which is an anchor, Dict. s, v. Anneaux.) The following in Martigny, hare two anchors in conjunc. tion: two ave in Mr rincnum's collestion. One (No, 13) is "formed ns a circle (No. hnif-ronnil metal, awelling on the shoulders, and having a (Fortnam, No. 18,) circular raised chaton, on by one of a singed a double fluked anchor, crossed pearled border. From that surrounded by a Another with the game the catacombs at Rome." obtained in London from types, lese well preserved, session of the writer. Mr dealer, is in the posthis emblem writer. Mr. Fortnum notes that Another (No. 21) has the face of the 312 .

similarly engraved, but the socket is inversely truncato-conical (nearly as No. 20), the cone being encircled by three projecting mouldings. Yrobably of the 4th century. Obtained in London; place of findiag unknewn.
(3.) Ship.-Mr. Fortnum has a bronze ring with plain wire hcop (No. 14), on the eircular chaten of which is rudely engraved a ship without sails; $X$ and $P$ (for XPICTOC) are engraved on either side of the mast. Obtained in Rome. The following in the Castellani Collection are alse of bronce. One with corded hoop and circular bezel, engraved with a ship propelled with oars, the ma,st and yard of which form a eross (No. 6). Another of similar form, and of similar deviee; but the mast supports the reversed ehrisma enelosed in a cicice. (No. 7.) In the Waterton collection was formerly "a massive bronze signet ring, with ship in full sail, having the sacred monogram on the sail, while round it are the raines stepenve helenae." Fortnum in Arci. Journ. vol. $x$ xviii. (1871), pp. 274, 282.)
[See also Anchor and Cross.]
(4.) Dove.-This type occurs by itself, and alse in various combinations. A massive bronze ring found in Roine, with scalloped bezel, bears on its face simply a dove (Boldetti, Cimit. $p$. $502, \mathrm{n}, 27$ ). "A henvy bronze signet ring with massive hoop and projecting bezel, upon which is the figure of a dove; the hoop is modelled as a wreath, having the bezel as a central ornament," is in the Waterton collection, No. 3. (No. 605 in S. Kens, Mus. Inv.) In the Vatican Museum (No. 15) is a " bronze ring with large oblong square bezel," engraved with the chrisma and the dove standing on an olive-bravch; beneath, a star or perhaps double cross. See Cross. A nearly sinilar ring is engraved and described by Aringhi, Ruma Subt. t. ii. p. 708, reproduced

(Fortmam, Na. 11.)
by De Corte, Synt. p. 121. In Mr. Fortnum's collect:on (No. 11) is a bronze ring of coarse work add hexagonal frrm evternally, cireular internally; the shoulders ara "splayed from the chaton to the centre of either side." Oa the raised circular chaton "two doves nad a insh" (rather three doves) are engraved. A gold ring found at Telavera de la Reina in Spain has a hexagonal bezel, bearring two birds, probably doves, on its face. "Intrin hexagonum ab utraque parte avis eot ; in crrcuitu anticne inscriptio EMANVEL, postic e RECCAREAO (sic)," the word Reccared eine followed by a cross of four dots, evidentiy of "e Visigothic period, possibly belonging t kiug Recaredo (585-601 A.D.). A ring (metal not named) found at Cordova in 1768, now in the public library of Malrid, bears a bird (dove?) on the chaton around which is inseribed A (Aurelii) Visicenti (Hübuer, Inscr. Hisp. Christ. Nos. 200, 207).

The above-named ring in the Vatican Museum is the most important, but not the only bronze esample therein contained which is eugraved with $n$ dove. See under No. 18 of that collection. (Fortnum.)

See also below under Human Figures.
(5.) Palm.-The palm-branch oceurs withont doubt on Christian rings, but when alone it is nt ensy to be sure that the work is Christian. There are several gold rings in the Naples Museum, one of duplex form (No. 4), with a palm on each bezel, also a heavy plain gold ring, in the Caso tellani collection, round, with flattened bezel, conrsely engraved with the palm (No. 4), which is counted by Mr. Fortaum to be Christan, though with expression of doubt. A gold ring, half an inch in dianeter, with thin flat hoop, and the bezel no wider, in which a palm-branch of poor Roman work in the Waterton collection (No. 467 Inv. S. Kensington Mus.) may probably be Christian. (See Geas, Vol. 1. p. 7i6.). There are other rings in Mr. Fortnum's collection (Nos. 8, 9 (both gold) nad 12 (bronze), all from Rome), nbout which he now feels less cosfidence as respects their Christianity than formerly (Arch. Journ. vol. xxrili, p. 276). The former, found in a child's tomb, seems of the 3rd or 4th century ; it is small, of a common form, viz., a simple hoop flattened out on the bezel. In the writer's opinlen it is probably Christinn ; the palm, the symbol of vietory, is less iikely to be given to a pagan than to a Christion child by its parents. So very positly is also No. 12, with bezel raised on four stages, and palm-branches on the sheulders, which seems rather later, perhaps about the beginning of the 5th century, when paganism was dying out and monograms were coming inte fashion on ring and scals. (This monogram may be eve and stand for Evenus or some other proper name doubtless thst of the owner.) But a less doviv ful example is a bronze ring, also in Mr. Fort num's collection (No. 16), on the bp onl of whid is engraved a paim-branch and a monogran having also palms iu panels wo the hoop. So

(Fortnam, No, 12.)

Acclamation

Vatican Mu are engrave that a silv, may be Ch1 (Fortaum, $u$ rial is but $r$ There is how in Mr. Fortn tion (No. $2 \varepsilon$ form with un bezels, on one engraved the possessor fa on the othe branch. Wei 4 gr. Disco Tiber's mouth to lie that Jerome, amor part of whic symbels. Th Torlooia, whe found there Vatican.
But $\mathbf{j}$ is 0 with Christian securely atfirm
There is a collection (Nu, palm, in cross vivas. It oc chrisma, or mu Chrisma and $A$ (6.) Cross.二 different forms nexion with ot as the fourth Maerina, which cross ; see belor A'ronze ring trorcste bezel is in the Vatic with a Maltese Lamb.) A crose formed as a T) been mentioned Saints.)
(4.) Not ac

The Greek cres (B) : also by itse in the Waterton il Inv. S. Kens. Roman period.
A Greek cross, St. Andrew's eros remble n star of e circular bezel of Castelloni collect Dtre.) A similar ring mentioned be The Latin cro longest, oceurs on riage ring, mentiô (B.) Accompanic Of this class of Gaulish examples.

RINGS

Acclamations below. Other bronze rings in the arican Maseum, of less importance (Nos. 18-25), that as silver ring with it should be added that a siver ring with a palm-bratich, which may be Christian, exists in the British Museum (Fortaum, u. s. vol. xxviii. p. 276). This material is bat rarely employed for Christian riags. There is however another ring of the same metal in Mr. Fortnum's collection (No. 28) of duplex form with united pointed bezeld, on one of which is engraved the name of the possessor FAVstve, and on the other a palm-(Forinum, No. 28.) brameh. Weight, 4 dwt 4 gr. Discovered in 1865 at Porto, near the Tiber's mouth, in the ruins of a bouse believed to le that of Pammachins, the friend of St. Jerome, among many other objects the greater psrt of which wele adorned with Christian symbols. The excavations were male by Prince Torlonia, who presented most of the objects fouad there to the Christian musenm of the Vatican.

But it is only when the palm is combined with Christian adjuncts upon rings that we can securely affirm them to be Christian.
There is a bronze hoop-ring in the Vatican collection (Nu. 14) engraved with a branch of psim, a cross potent $\left(\curvearrowleft F^{\prime}\right)$, and the word vivas. It occurs also in connexion with the chrismn, or more rarely with Chrisma and Anchor.
(6.) Cross.-This subject oceurs under several different forms, und is either alone or in connexion with others. It was engraved as early ${ }_{38}$ the fourth century on the iron ring of St. Mserias, which contained a piece of the true (?) cross; sec below at the end of § 18 .
(4.) Nut accompanied by Inseriptions or Jonoyrams.
A lronze ring gilt with high inversely conienltrurscte bezel (cf. No. 20 and 21 of Fortnum) is in the Vatican Museum (No. 17) engraved with s Maltese cross. (See also below, under Lumb, A cross potent (i.e. having each limb formed ss a $T$ ) in connexion with a palm, has beea mentioned under Pulm. (See also under Suints.)
The Greek cross is found on many rings under (B): slso by itself on a very rude ring of lead is the Waterton collection (No. 1 being No. 607, $71 \mathrm{lnv} . \mathrm{S}$. Keas. Mus.), sul posed to be of the Romsn period. Romsn period.
A Greek cross, croseed by another in form of St. Andrew's eross or the letter X, so as to resemble a star of eiglit points, is found upon the circalar bezel of a coarse bronze ring in the Castellsni collection (No. 11). (See also under Drte.) A sibailar figure occurs on a foot-shaped Thentioned below.
The Latia cross, having the lowest limb longest, accurs on a ring supposed to be a marriage ring, mentioned below.

(B.) Accompanied by Names or Monograms.

Of this class of rings we have the following Gaulish examples. A gold ring of the Mero-

Nus

1797
vingian type; on the bozel is a Greek cross at the head of the owner's name, bertealdis retrograde (so that it would read naturally in a wax impression) and in the centre a monogram similar to oue on a coin of Childeric II. (670-691) struck at Marseilles, and perhaps reading mar for Marsilia (the low Latin form for Massifia). Pro91, n. 547.) Aton. (Le Blant, u. s. n. 678 A. pl. cross pretixed to dilar gold ring with similar centre of the bezel is a rude (retrograde); in the diameter of the suberende heal to the left. The foregoing is about half an inch. Found in Deuxième Aquitsine. (Le Blant, u. s. n. 575 A. pl. 79, n. 476.) A similar gold ring, with corded hoop, and somewhat larger pearled bezel, has a similar erosy pretixed to racnetilabanus (retrograde): in the centre a rude Merovingian head as before, but accompanied by six peliets. Found at Blois in the sands of the Loire; now in the Bibliothèque Imperingle (Nationale). (Le Blant, u. s. n. 164, pl. 22, n. 137.) A silver ring also of the Merovinginn type, is supposed ly M. Le Blant to be of the 7th century, having st. Andrew's cross ( $X$ ) prefixed to wanvervsvs, the last letter last letter oecupying the centre of the cireular chaton. Found in the ancient cemetery of Haulchin (Hainaut), in Deaxième Belgigue. Preserved in the Museum at Brussels. (Le Blant, u. s. n. 321, D. pl. 35, n. 216.) A bronze Alloones (in tro, found in a sarcophagus at approsebing in foisieme Lyonnaise), has a cross lavnobersa (not zetrograde); within the centre of the circular minutely beaded chaton is a monogram enclosed in a circle; it is like the head of a trident, with two pellets ahove the eross-bar and two others below, possibly reading ET or TE: (Le Blant, u.s. n. 6v9 A. pl. 90, n. 535.) But the most interesting, beeause the most perplexing riag of this class, is a fine onld ring of Merovingian type with corded hoop, found buried at a slight depth near Airvault, of M. Benjnumin Fillon. $\mathrm{On}_{\mathrm{n}}$ the chaton is small Greek cross, and above it an almost inextricable monogram which has been read radegondis, but which may equally well be read mito Andregother names as Andregondis, Gondegardis, \&c. The Abbé Auber regards it as the ring of the famous Rhadegonde, Queen of France, and afterwards fouadress of the monastery of the Holy Cross at Poitiers, about the midule of the 6th century. But this is at any rate very uncertain, nat to say improbable. Hier body, resting at Poitiers, is said to have been taken up hy the Huguenots in 1562, and her ring to have fallen int: the possession of a soldier, on whose finger it was found seven years afterwards upon the ficld of battle. Unless this be the ring, it aeems to be unknown where it ia now. (Le Blant, u. s. n. 575 B , who has many observations worthy to be read, pl. 75, n. 452; Butler, Lives of the Saints, Aug. 13.) A silver ring found at Hohberg, near Soleure in Switzerland, with bread nagular hoop, has on the rectangular chatons (forming one of its sides), a menogram which apparently reals verani aceompanied by a Latin cross. (1d. n. 362 A. pl. 42, n. 247.) Other rings, alse found in switzerland, bear monograms on the chaton, and may probably be Christian, but they bear no Christian symbols. (ld. Nos. $364,365, \mathrm{pl} .42,249,250$.)

(Le Mlant.)

Examples occur also in Italy ard elsewhere. In the Castellani collection (No. 2) is a heary duplex ring of gold, found at Orvieto; on the oval bezel of one of the united hoops is incised the name bitifia, and on the other a cross potent above $\frac{L-B}{A}$, which is apparently an abbreviation of a preper name, prebably of the same name, as Mr. Fortnum is incliaed to suppose. In the Vatican Museam (No. 7-10) are three bronze hoop-rings, each engraved with a cross potent and with nn inscription which Mr. Fortaum, could not decipher; probably they were owners' names, and possibly expressed in monograms. In the British Museum is a silver ring on whose oval chatou (half an inch by about a quarter of an inch) is a cross prommé (i.e. having a globule at the extremity of each of the limbs, which are united in a Latin cross), follewed by EVCE, below which is a B and an I above, probably for EVCEBIOY. The shoulders of the heop are slightly foliated, as Romaa rings often are.
Mr. Fortnum purchased in Constantiaeple a gold ring of excellent Byzantine work (No. 24), probnbly of the 5 th or 6 th ceutury. It is a circular convex hoop widening to the shoulders, and Hattened to form an oval bezel, on which is engraved a monogram between two Greek crosses. The Waterton collection (S. Kiens. Mus. Inv, No. 621) has a somewhat later example of Byzuntine work. A gold ring the hoop of which is nielloed on the outside with a Latin cross, nad the proper name (Fortnum, No. 24.) of its possessor, barinota (i.e. probably lari notarii); the bezel is formed of a gold solidus of Constantine Pogouatus (668-688), and the ring also may very well be of the 7th century.

In the Royal Maseum of Palermo (Salinas, Real. Mus. di Pul. p. 57, tav. A. n. [2) is a phain oval massive gold ring with small Hat bezel, on which is engraved a Latin eross nad below it, in feu: lines, EYФYMHOY YПT, apparently observes, of a base epoch, but may well be within our limits. The Hypati (viri consulares) and Notarli (secretaries) were high otlicers of the Byzantine court.
(7.) Chrisma or Monogram of Christ or Initial Letters of Christ.-The common form of this $(\mathbb{R})$, and also the form having the $P$ reversed (\%), sometimes ocnurs by itself, is on bronze rings feund in Rome. See Vatican collection (Nos. 15-25); Fortnum collection (Nos. 18, 19).e. Ses nlso Boldettl, Cimit. p. 50\&, tav. 3, Nos. 29 and 31 . It oecurs likewise in other metals. For the Castellani ring with eloisons of (Fortnum, No. 19.4 gold, see above. A ring of massive silver, or rather mixed metal, in the collection of Lady Londesborough (No. 183 of Mr. Crofton Croker's catalogue) bears on its ovato-acuminate hezel the ordinary form of the ehrisma. (Fortnum, u. s. p. 283 ; figured in Jozes's Finger-ring Lore, p. 47.)

The separate letters $P$ and $X$ occur on a bronze ring in the Vatican collection (No. 5). The chrisma is also frequently found along with the Alpha and Onega. In Mr. Fortnum's collection (No. 10) the chrisma occurs between those letters on a bromze ring, which is a "circular hoop of convex metal, swelling to the scudo, which is of lozenge shape," upon which the letters are engraved; "the shoullers are ornamented with lozenge-shaped panelliag." From Rome, of the 4th or 5th century. (Arch. Journ. vol, xxri. p. 143 ; vol. xxviii. p. 273.) Also on another bronze ring from Rome, in the Vatican collection (No. 16), as well as on a bone or ivory ring, having an oval bezel, in the same collection (No. 26).

The snme combination is found on a bronze ring, whose figure is given, brought to Mr. Fort-num from Rome (No. 30 ); the loop of the $P$ is reversed, and a shce: is standiag on either side of the base of the monogram, the limbs ot which are slightly welge - shaped. The hoop, swelling to the shoulders, ornamented with palm-branches, is incised, traces of niello apparently remaining in the incisions, as well as in the incised types of the square chaton; these indieate that the ring was not intended for sealing.
The palm branch is placed oa either side of the chrisma on move than one massive bronze ring found in the Catacimbs of Rome (Boldetti, Cimit. p. 502 , Nos. 30 and 33). The chrisma is also found, though very rarely, with a dete expressed by the name of the reigning emperor. There is an ivory ring, recently found at Lyons, of large size, on the circular bezel of which s chrisma with long stem and open loop is surr anded by vicrore avg. (he was nssociated as emperor in Gaul with Maximus, his tather, A.D. 383-388). In the possession of Canon Martigny, who figures it (Dict. des Ant. chret. ed. 2, s. v. Anneaux).

The ehrisma whose stem ends in a ster is found on a bronze ring in the Vatican Maseum (No. 11), placed between two stars, a word of six letters (illegible) being underneath. The chrisma is also found in combination with Alpis

- Lord Braybrooke's coltection contsinet "a slight have some form of the chrihma (" upparently a Ciristhan monogram"); tit faid to have bren found in the Thamea. Mr. Fortnum reawnably considers that tit probably early Chrititian (tn Arch. Journ. vol. xxriili p. 283).
and Omega, ar Fgures, and wi hea: lings). M , symbol alone o frequently on but it capnot be symbols.
The initials a first two letters combination wit num has a gold probably of the century (No. 1). boops spring fro widen towards between which wire nearly fills splsce, and is for the bezel into by the I. The s aceurs on Geas very early date, 312. (Fortnum, The $P \times$ or $X$ of XPICTOC lik bronze ring in the X 9 in conjunctio Mr. Fortnam ring (No. 23, re Lore, Y. 47) on XIIXX preeeded rently; also the 1 from these, which i.e. ss the initials to be suspected, ho indicaticuil of some connexion with the ria cohors, or be sol is not very easy to of other legionary $r$ pretstion.
(8.) Alpha and $O$ janction of Christiar ring, the hoop wid which the margin is (Boldetti, Cimit. p. by Msrtigny, Dict. s are more frequently (see Chrisma).
(9.) Abraxas. Thi Abrasax, is said to 1 Basilides, a Christian found ou any monum is certsia. We have, large ivory ring, foun "hears the monogran $\omega$, ss it appears on th of the 4th century, 1 bat sccompanied by tl ficient proof of the sonages in the estima tipue Gems, p. 358.) that it was formerl hausen colleetion.
(10.) The Lamb,-TT the Saviour and of th ios manifestly Christ mare doubtfully өo. gonal bezel, diameter i Annus $D_{\text {ei. }}$. The lamb which the apper pari 0 of late work, but prob

RINGS

and Omega, nnd with a Ship, with Human Fgures, and with Acchnuatious ( ieith heatings). Mr. Fortnum wions (see under those symbel ilone or in combinationks that this frequently on Christian ringo is found more but it enanot be cousidered ns one of the oarlier, symbols.
The initials also of Jesus Christ ( $X$ ), or the first two letters of Christ ( $\mathbf{X} P$ ), occur alone or in combination with some other symbol. Mr. Fortnum has a gold triples ring, found in Rome, and probably of the 3 rd or 4 th probably of the 3rd or 4th reatury (No. 1). The thte reatury (No. 1). The three boops spring from one widen towards the bezel, between which a beaded wire nearly fills the open sirgce, and is formed uynn the beeel into $X$ crossed the bezel into $\mathbf{X}$ crossed by the 1 . The same form

hings

work (Waterton's collection, No. 602, Inv.
Kens. Mus., where it Kens. Mus., where it is called ' Roman earrly Christian, mot mentioned br Fortnum) also above under mentioned by Fortnum). See No. 30), where the atha and Omeyn (Fortnum, the chrismasignify the chureh shepl at the foot of signet ring in the Wuterton. There is a bronze being No. 604 lnv. Kens formed as a wreath of palns.), having the hoop for the central oruament, bearing a oval bezel thereon. Above and int, bearing a lamb incised two rude Araneles ; Roman work the lamb are sidered both in the inventory aud by poor, connum to be Christian. (11.) Lion, us the Jark.-On a small iron ring Symbol of st. hoop, swelling to the chaton ing, with eircular collection (No. 25) is engraved a lion to them's in a erouching position. This a lion to the left ring, which he considers to be probably of the 6th century, was found in a Coptic village (Fortnum, Ni, 25.) aear the temple of Medinet Aboo, Thebes, whence the Ch pelled by the Arabs in the ristians were explausibly reg srds the lion ith century. He Mark's church at Alexsadria referring to St. 717, b).

(See Gems, 1.
(12.) Saints and Human Figures (busts or full lenyth) vith Christiun Embtems. - Under fuis section those section those rings which have heads only are not included. Most of the following seeny to be lection (No. 6, Inv. No. 606) is Waterton colring, $1 \cdot 2$ inches in. No. 606) is a massive bronze haps Byzantine : the hoop, is rude work, perflat cireular bezel, on which surnounted by a orante with subeireular which is engraved an on either side ; on the ninabus, a palm branch is a smaller "t on the opposite side of the hoop Greek cross. "In the same "engraved with a 619) is a sronze the same collection (lnr. No. towards thonze ring, whose hoop does nut swell towards the curved circular bezel : apon this is engraved in very poor style a rude tuast of a maint, with an oval nimbus round the head. The labels announce it to be Byzantine work of about the 6 th century. Diameter 0.9 inch. Another and rather smaller ring in the same collection (Inv. 608) of gold, with slender hoop not swelling at the shonders, has the circular bezel engraved with the bust of a saint, with oval nimbus. On either side the head are the letters M A (for Maria?). The style resembles the last; but the ring is probably at least as for the present century; perhaps even too late for the present wotk. Mr. Fortnum has a bronze ring (No. 26), "n simple hoop, holding a square tabular chaton," on which bular chaton," on which is engraved a draped male tigure with subeirculne nimbus standing before a cross potent, which springs from what seems to be a cup with bosses, such as occur of glass in the cataconbs.

"Possibly Pyzantina
r Mr. Fortimm mentions to the same place that the Britlsh Museuni has a remsrkable gold ring of anatogous form, on one face of whth are three interiseed triangies, and on the other Intertwhed circular flines leaving the form of a cross in the centre. These fincs und uthers on work of the 6th or 7 th eentury; obtained in Athens." In the same collection is an iron ring (No. 22), of which metal very few rings have survived in tolerable condition; on the flat raised octagonal bezel are engraved two figures, very probably intended, as Mr. Fortnum suggests, for SS. Peter and Paul (Peiter and paul, and Medals), the chrima between their heals, while on the eight sides of the inversely truneato-conical socket or stem of bezel are engraved eight figures imperfectly preserved, proiably saints. Perhaps of the 4 th or 5th century (Mr. Fortnum assigns no date). Obtained in London, but prebably of Italian work. The same collection in tine contains a bronze ring (No. 15), with rounded hoop slightly swelling to the shoulders, bearing a plain eircular bezel, on which is engraved a temale draped quite to the feet, having the chrima (with loop reversed) on ench (Fornum, No. 15.) side of the head, and a bird, jrobably a dove, on either side ot her feet. Possilly an emblem of the chureh feeding her Jew and Gentile children. Found in the catacombs, probably that of St. Calistus, and presented by l'alre Garrueci to Mr. Fortnum: they assign it to the 4th century.

There are a few others of this class whieh seem rather too late for the present work. One in the Waterton collection (luv. No. 629), gold with full-faced bust on the circular bezel, with a Greek cross and legend AVFRET, seemingly Anglo-Sason work : it bears some resemblance tn the unique aureus of Bishop Wulfred in the British Mureum.
(13.) Imperial Personales in connexion vith Christianity. - As in the nnalogons case of gems, these occur but rarely on ringe. There is, however, a most important example in the Museum at lalerme, which has been well, though not fully, lescribed and illustrated by Salinas and Ugdulena; an. 1 reproduced liy a beantiful figure in gold and colours. It is, us the former observes, a veritable proligy for the minuteness of the work in niello with which it is ormamented. The date und principal suhject appear to be satisfnetorily unde ont: viz., the espousals and coronation of the emperor Heraclius anl his wife tudocia (A.D. 610). It was found at Syrncuse, nlong with coins of Constans II., tho grandson of Eudocia, the hoop are th mitlo. It in te be feazed thet this curious ring fall brlow our pertoxt; the stinple triangle, Liowever, uccurs on varions parly nomumenta ns an eniblem of the Trinity. Ste Talamfir: Thiniry. Prebendary Wsicot, hawever, oharrees that three interiacing triangles do occur tu the 9 th century (Sacred drch. p. 241).
who transported the seat of empire thither, and died there in 668 . The gold hoop is slender and octagonal, and bears upon seven of its fat sides as many scriptural subject.s. Snlinas interprets only the first and last. They nppear to be as follows :-(1.) The Anmunciution. The Virgin in dark dress bolds a cintion. (culathus) and . . . . ? ; the angel on the basket right in white (silver). (2.) The Salutation. Mary, as before, and Vilizabeth, in a paler dress, kiss each other; they atnad between two Greek crosses supported by a white (silver) pedental. (3.) The Infint Suvicur at Bethlchem. A vave? (darkish): the Infant stretched out above: the Virgin on the left; heads of two oxen (?) in the distaace. (4.) Adoration of the Mayi. Virgin, with circular nimbua, seated, bearing the lufant on her lap, on the left: the three Magi in truncated cap1s (like modern cylindrienl hats, not Phrygian caps as on Medals), advance towards her. (5.) The Baptism. The Baptist, with nimbir, places his hands over the head of Jesus, with nimbus (?), who atands in the Jordnu up to the middle ; on the opposite bank two figures, opynrently angels (mostly in silver). (6.) Cherertsin, perhaps Jesus brought before pilate. A figure with helmet and cuirass (?), is on the leit ; s figure with nimbus in the centre; nnother figure, not fully draped, on the left. (7.) The lisit to the Scpulche. A subrylindrical structure with dome, on the sumnit of which is a cross; twe female figures on the left, one in dark, onc in pale dress: opposite on the other side of the tomb an angel in white silver). The length ociupied by these seven subjects is about three and a half inches; the breadth rather more than a quarter of an inch. The bezel is elersted about a quarter of an inch above the hoop; the socket is keeled, bearing on the upper part the following barbarously spelt legend, to which a Greek cross is prefixed: OC WMNON EYAOKIAC ECTEФANOCAC HMAC, nearly as Ps. v. 12 (LXX) where we have $\dot{\text { as }}$ every likelihood that the Empress Eudocia is here enigmatieally described; who, together with her husband Heraclius, are represented in white (ailver) on the subcircular chaton. whose diameter is nearly half an inch; a dark figure with subcircular nimbus etanding between then, which is doubtless intended for the Saviour, who occupies n similar position on coins of Romanus IV, and his wife tudociak (1067-1070), deseribed and figured by Sabntier, Mon. Biz. rol. ii. p. 169, pl. 1. n. 11. The espousal and coronation of Heraclius took place on the same day, so that this ring nay be considered to commemorate both events (Salinas, u. s. pp. 57-59, tsr, \& No. 1).
(14.) Accl mations sometimes accompunied by Names and Portraits of the Owners.-Several riogs of bronze are engrnvel with the inscriptina virss or in deo vivas, either ne length (with slight varintions) or in munogram, the chrisinn being

B The writer muth eumfan to having had 8 migtring that this is the Bisilucla of the ring: the nimbus of the Saviour, however, is different in the two cascs on the rligg it seemes to be sinuly aubetrcular; on the evin It is cruciturm. The citcumstancis of the finting poith strongy to Eudocta, wife of lifructua.
cometimes alded lectiod, finely served, found in the catacombs Via Appia at bears the chrism cosme vivas o circular face of rersely conical (No. 20). Anotl the Vaticnu has a bezel inscribed (No. 6). A simili in the Waterton ticn (No. 31). A1 with ribbon hoop, retrograde legeni belonging to Sig.
Arch. Crist. 1874 two following wi inseriptien, but fond at Chiusi: Rossi to stand fo Modena has the it words in different
A more interest in the Museum of reads round the rig \& | $\mathrm{sp}|\mathrm{er}|$ Spes, in Dco vious, proper name, he it inseriptions. Mr. octagonal fat-band ing donate bima V.L. . . I. N. D. E. O, of the 4th century hrouze ring with fla hoop, which is decor lozenge-shaped pan cut on the bezel, is Rossi, Dous-Dona vir Deusdedit, \&c., being owner). and still gur donné, as Mr. Fortnu the 4th century, fou this ring (No. 16) fis in the sume collection reversed, as the ring
There are also a te scclamation, the mo: foand in 1860 near deaconry of Fermo minde of large slabs bones of the deceass This splendid ring is gold of duplex for the united bezels be scutely ovate. On is engraved the na pllisaxda (the $t$ lart letters each in ling hy itevif), and the other are two lit ty a star. Six beads
b it is called 'elgitio upire thither, gold hoop is upon seven ciptural sullfirst and last. ) The Annurdresa holds a e augel on the Hhe Salututition. a paler cress, een two Greel ver) pedental. hem. A carc? ut above: the oxen (?) in the Muyi. Yirgin, ing the liffut Magi in tumricill hats, not dvance tovarls t , with nimlu, of Jesus, with rdan up to the figures, appros(6.) Limertain, late. A figure on the leit ; s anuther igure, 7.) The hisit to structure with ch is a cross; me in wark, one ther side of the r). The length is about three ather more than ezel is elersted e the hoop; the upper part the gend, to which ZAC HMAC 1ere we hase , $\bar{\mu} \bar{s}$. There is oress Euldecia is who, together e represented in or chaton. whise 1 ; a dark figure ag between then, the Saviour, who oins of Romanas -1070 ). destribul 3;z. vol. ii. p. 169 nil coronation of ame day; so that to conmemerrate ,. $57-59$, tas. A. s accompunied by s:-Several riog inseription viris ngth (with slight the chrisma being llas bad a megtrine s; the nimbur of to te two casts ; en the irculur; on the cin a of tie findiug p porat une.
wometimes added. One, in Mr. Fortnum's collection, finely preserred, found in one of the catacombs in the Vin Appla at Rome, besra the chrismn and cosme vivas on the circular face of an inrersely conical bezel (No. 20). Another in the Vatican has a square bezel lascribed

| VIVAs |
| :---: |
| INDE: |

(No. 6). A similar one in the Waterton collectima ( No .31 ). Another with ribbon hoop, with sessile square bezel and 'retrograte legend, mentioned by De Rossi as belonging to Sig. Castellani, bas | VIVAI |

| :---: | :---: |
| IN DEO | (Bull. Arch. Crist. 1874, pp. 76-79, tav. ii., where the two following will also be found). The same inscription, but with doo, on a similar ring, found at Chiusi: vivar ia considered by De Rissi to stand for vivat. A iabel found near Hodena baa the tace ${ }^{4}$ inerribed with the same words in different order $\square$ in bee

Vivas
A more interesting ring of octangular form in the Muscum of the University of Perugia, redds round the right sides as follows :
 sps, in Deo vious, where Spes appears to be a proper name, as it certainly is in same other inscriptions. Mr. Fortnum has other bronze extagonal flat-banded rings (Nos. 3, 4) reading donate bleas (i.e. vivas) in deo, and V.i.V.I. .. D. e. o, both from Rome ; probably of the th centary. Mr. Fortnum lige also of the th centary. Mr. Fortnum has also a bronze ring with tlat eircular bezel and circular hoop, which is decorated with palm branches in hoop, which is decorated with palm branches in lozenge-shaped panels; the monogram, deeply lozenge-shayed panels; the nonogram, deeply cut on the bezel, is readered by the Cher de Rossi, Dcus-Duna vivas in Deo; Deus-dona, like Deusdelit, &c., being a proper name (that of the ewner). and still aurviving in the French Diendonede, as Mr. Fortnum observes. Good work of the tth century, found in Rome. The device on this ring (No. 16) figured above, and on another tis ring (No. 16) figured above, and on another in the same collection (No. 20) deseribed above, is rereved, as the rings are intended for signets.
There are also a few of gold bearing the same scelanation, the most important of these boing found in 1860 near Masignano, in the archdesonary of Fermo iu central Italy in a tornb made of large slabs of stone, containing some hones of the deceased and 'rayments of gold. bones of the deceased and Sragments of gold. This gplendid ring is of gold of duplex form, the urited bezels being seutely watate. On one is engrated the name phisaxda (the two list letters each in a ling by iteelo, and oul the other are two lives vivas in peo followed by a siar. Siz beads meet the juncture of the bezels on each side; the hoop (roonded extarnally, plane interaally)diminishes in width from the bezel. Weight, five and a-half penny weights. Probably of the latter part of the 3rd or of the beginning of the 4th century. Formerly in the posession of Don Antonio Donati, late librarian of the college of the Sapienza at liane, now in the collection of now in the collection of Mr. Fortnum (No. 27). See alao Palm, where the inscription is simply VIVAs. A gold ring found at Caetobriga (Troye ?) in Lusitania, in the cathinet of the (Troye ?) in Lusitania, in the cabinet of the king of Portugal, of octagonal form, has on seren of the sides AL | or os |AE| VI |VA|sint, the oighth side being a moaogram probably intended for kvpiw (hardly for Christo) Huibuer, Insc. Inis, Christ. n. 20t. A gold ring found at Silchester about 1780 has the hoop formed into ten squares, in one of which is a rude head inscribed vexvs, and in the other sexeciane vivas, followed by unde for In Deo; a pagan ring Christianized, see Gems, p. 714, b. (Archacologla, vol. viii. (1787), p. 449; Hübner, Inscr. Brit. p. 234, n. 1350.)' ${ }^{\text {a }}$ Other acclamations are more rarely met with. On the circular-oval bezel of a bronze ring in the Vatican (No. 12) are inscribed two wards separated by a transverse line, which Mr. Soden smith suggests may be read Kupie $\sum \omega \tau$ tep. The Abbe cuchet las published a bronze ring, reading is DI | Nvm | NE A, seemingly for In Dci numine. Amen (Le Blant, Lincr. chrét. de la Gaule, tom. ii. p. 73). On an angular (semi-hcxngonal) ailver ring, with broad ribbon-boop, we have on one side the name of the owner Leubaciun in two linea opposite a monagram with an I on each side of it, which has been supposed to read In nomine Dei (Le Blant, u. s. p. 561, n. 672 s, pl. 90 , n. 538). A brass ring, found in Egypt, now preserved ia the nuseum at Leydeu, bears an inscription in two lines, EICO $\underset{f}{f}$ EOC (efs $\theta$ efs). The chrisma certifies the Cliristianity of the ring, which is doubtless of tuleratily early date ( (biekh, Corp. Inacr. Grace, n. 9059).
(15.) With Levends contuining Profession of Faith by the Owners.-A Roman gold thumb ring supposed by Hübner to be of the christian period, found in 1823 near Cistor in Norfolk, bears the legend cosstani (sic) fides, apparently for Constanti fides (Archacol. vol. xxiii. (1831) p . 366, and vol. xxi. p. 547, with figure; Hubber, Inscr. Brit. n. |301, who observes, "Similia etiam alibi reperta sunt"). The legend seema clearly intended to shew that its poseessor was a Christian. This fact which is more fully expressed on the expressed on the guld saxon ring, now to be 3 incluss long, seems to have been toteaded for the bezei of a ring. bezet of a ring.
${ }^{1}$ Two goll rtugg have been found ta Eingland, which ullbner and others regard as Christian or as "aeev Christanit ;" one in Suffick, resiling OAVMCEI ZHCAIC (figured le Junce's Finger-ring Lore, p. 256), another found at Corbitdge of beantiful plireed work, the letters bring cut $\dot{\alpha}$ 人 jurr, reading AEMILIA ZESES (demithet ath figure fi Alch. Juurn, vil. p. 132; but tre Me. Fortuus'b remarks on its age in vol. xxvi. p. 148). Far these and other rings found in England willch masy protubliy be Curtathan, but which do net glve elear signs of thelr Cbrystinuty, see Hthocer, described, whose workmanship, to judge from the figure, bears considerable resemblance to the coins of Offa, and may therefore probatly be of or about the 8 th century. The ring is of considerable thickness, the hoop being composed of beautiful chain or rather plait-work which encloses an oval-headed bezel nearly 1 inch by three-quarters, in the centre of which is a small bust with jewelled head-band or diadem, the collar being similarly ornamented; around it in letters evidently of early date, nomen enlla FID in xho (Files in Christo). Found in a meadow at Bosington, Hants. Now in the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford. (Journ. Archaeol. Assoc. vol. i. (1846) p. 341 (with fig.); Jones's Finger-rin/ Lorc', p. 63 (same fig.).

1802

RINGS

To the above distinctly Christian subjects is to be added one taken from the Old Testament, which, however, was regarded as a typical represeatation of the great sacrifice of the death of Jesus Christ and of bis resurrection following thereon.
(16.) Sacrifice of Abraham.-This subject; though found on sarions other works of Christian antiquity, is so rare upon metal rings that only a single example seems hitherto to have occurred. In Mr. Fortnum's collection (No. 29) is a hronze ring with highly projecting bezel of square form ; the hoop is a simple cirele of angular projection externally. On the square face the subject is deeply engraved. In the centre is Abraham, holling a knife with point upwards in his right hand, and the head of Isaac, who kneels before the altar of piled wood, with his left. He seems suddenly to have caught sight of the rum, which stands below a tree. Between Abraham's head and the knife sppears an uncertain object, which Mr. Fortnum with great probability explains to be the angel, but which Palre Garrucci suggests may be rays of light, symbol of the Divine voice restraining Abraham, and which the Chev. de Rossi thinks may be the volnme of the prophetic Suriptures tied with a ribbon proclaining to all generations that Abrai im shonld be blessed in his posterity; but these explanations seem less probable.

(Fortnam, No. 29.)

Apart from these had better be described two other forms of rings : one in the shape of a foot the other of the common cirenlar form, but in combination with a key.
(17.) Fuot-shapcd Rings.-The bezel sometinues assumes the form of the sole of the foot, or rather of the shoe; and tho rings of this form appear to have been in most cases, if not all, used as signet-rings to indicate the possession of the thing so sealet. Bronza whage af this form have lieen found in the Roman catacombs, either learing the name of the owner. e.y. a massive ring, labelled ivsrvs accompanied by a star or double cross (Curt. Synt. de Aist. p. 398, from Aringhi, R.S.ii. 698), or having the chrisma with horizontal stroke at the top, and two pellets ahove and below, as one in the liircherian Duseum (Perret, u.s. pl. xi. a. 6), or as a larger one in the same lluselum which reads spis is DEO (retrograde). (J'erret, u.s. H. si. n. 5.) J See also De Rossi (Bull. di Arch. Crist. 157t, p. 77, tav. ii. n. 5) tor a tine similar example from Capeda; and one in Mommsen, Inser. Rev. Neq. a. 6310 , § 290 , now at Naples (appinrently bot retrograde). There is a foot-shaped riug in the Vatican Museum (No. 25); also another in the sume Museum (No. 13), engraved with saviv, i.e. viras (reversed), evidently intended for stamping. Mr. Fortnum has one "the bezel of which surmounts the swelling shoulders of a hoop of balf-round wire, and is shaped as the sole of a shoe upon which is coarsely incised in DEO with a continuous border-line of punctustions" (No. 31). He thinks that "this ring could hardly have been

(Eortuum, No. 31.) used for stamping or staling, as the lettering reads right!y on the ring and would of course be inverted in the impression."

Mr. Fortnam observes that this is a form of ring previously and contemporancously used by pagans, and that similar rings bearing names and words that cannot be assumed is Christiank are preserved in the Castellnni, the Waterton, British Museum, and other collections.

The form of the foot is in allusion to the ancient adage of the jurists, "Quicquid pes tuus calcaverit tuum erit," on which Panl de Castro (lib. i. De acq. vcl. amitt. ross.) writes: "Nola quod pedes sunt instrumentum aptum ad ac* quirendam possessionem naturalem:" see Yellicia, de Eccl. Polit. tom. iii. p. 227, quoted by Martigny, Annetux des prem. Chret. p. 3*, also Dict. s. v. Auncaux. It is, however, just possible that such rings of this form as were not intended for sealing or stamping may have been sy mbolical of walking with God (IN veo), and having attained the end of the pilgrimage in safety, as among the pagans votive inagos of feet expressed a saiq return from a ouruev. Sce Martigny, Iict. s. v. Plantes do Pied.
(18.) Rings with Kcy attached.-This ciass of rings is by no means exclusively Chritian: several without any emblems. and one having rudder between two cars of corn on the onys chaton (see pp. 34, 35), are figured by Licetus (de Anulis Ant.) in the plate at the begimning

1 In the Vatican Museum there is a stamp, formed as the sole of a shive, of Inrger alze than the rings of that form, which has the same legend, with letters rewred and Incisad. Fortnum in Arch. Journ. $x \times v i i t$. (1071) p. $2 \times 0$. It may have been made for a ring.
$$$ The large bronze ring engraved wostrinvs accom.
 1. 38), and by Perret and Martigny atter blin, is in all likellhood Christian, having heen found in the cataconbl, but, like several others of the same cliss, has beta omitted bere.
of his wnek. been called (u. s. c. $x$ xix. iu any ancie Some of these serves, are of worn by slave Tac. Аіn. ii.) in the catacon (Cimit. p. 506, no Christian ${ }^{2}$ a bronze finger key attached, figure is given simple hoop, th which is sligh snd flattened, the side of whic s amall neek, a circular table towards the ri is pierced with a circular depr opened the lock regards as a 0 hardly be looke Rome, and regar of the 4 th centu Museum is a sim found in the Cat this kind of rin fine operum ejus) wore them hins onnenque substa et credebat. Nun in manu habens, cunctar ot accept signet ring (wit below, he most the Great (see the p. 507) gave g which had tonche which a tiling of as a species of re diction. A beauti Bolegna, may vei these. (Fortnum pp. 110-11: with slrealr used as rel Before this tim Gregory of Nyssa, true cross, lately d it inclosed beneath which a cross was next tue. heart. (C Migne, $P$ ar arol. Gr.
Another five gold of uine Greek crob on the chatnin, a hoop, may have be gift. (Arch. Journ.

2. $R$

It is certain the ase from an early $p$ *orereigns of France entrusted to the kee in Merovingiaiz time sometimes an eccles Second, king of Ans St. Bonitus, bishop of "anulo ex manu reg g the chrisma top, and two the kircherian , or as a larger reads spis in if. xi. n. 5.) j Crist. 187 t, 1. : example trom wer. Req. Nep. apprently not haped ring in ; also anuther engraved with writes: "Nuta aptum ad aco lem:" see Pel227 , quoted by 2. Chret. p. 38 , , however, just orm ss were att ; may have been d (1.: DEO), and e pilgrimage in rotive innawos nf froms a surnev. s de Pied. d.-This elass of ively Christian. and one haing inn on the onys ;ured by Licetus at the begimang a stamp, formed is on the riogs of that ith letters reversed urn. xxviii. ( 1871 ) a ring.
I Fobtivis: accomhfottl (rimat. p. 6 ES atter him, is in all nd in the calucombes me cliss, bas buta of his wark. (Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.) They have benn called by hinn and others anuli ad olaves in any ancient authors the writer cannot say. some of these found in Holland as Lipsius ob-servea, are of iron, and mnst and worn by slaves or common soldiers. (Fxars, been Tac. An.n. ii.) Others, however, have beea fuund in the catacombs, some of which Boldetti tigures. (Cimit. p. 506, , ios. 36, 37.). Mlost of these have no Cliristian symbols ; but Mr. Fortnum possesses $n$ bronze finger-ring with key attnched, of which a figure is given. "It is a simple boop, the bezcl of which is slightly rained and flattened, and from the side of which projects a snall neck, attaching a circular table flattened towards the ring. This is pierced with a cross which is surrounded with a circular depression or borderiug." The key opened the lock by lifting a latch. The cross he regards as a Christian emblem : but this can Reme, and regarded by its possesesor "O "as pert in home, and regarded by its possessor "as perbaps of the 4th century." (No. 32.) In the Vatican Museum is a siniuilar ring, believed to have been found in the Catacombs. (No. 1.) Speaking of this kind of ring, Possilius ( Vit. Auj. c. 24, in wore them limimelf:." Domus ecclesiase curam omnenque substantiam ad vices clericis delegabat et credebat. Nunquam claven, nupquam anulonı in manu habens, sed ab eisdem domus praepositis cuncta et accepta et erogata notabantur." His signet ring (with protile portrait) mentioned below, he most probably the Great (see the referencoes in Eoaldetti, Cring p. 507) gave golden key-rings of this kind. which had toncherl the body of St. Peter, or in which s aling of a species of his chain was inlaid, to princes of as a species of relic, nccompanied by his benediction. A beautiful gold key-ring, found near Bologna, may very possibly have been one of these. (fortnum in Arobh. Journ. vol. xxxiii glreall wsed as religuaries.
Before this time Macrina, the sister of St. Gregory of Nyssa, bad obtsined a picce of the true cross, lately diseovered by Helena, ar.d had it inclosed beneath the beael of an irou ring, on which a cross was nlso engraved : she wore it Mext hen heart. (Greg. Nyss. in Vita Macr. in Mavol. Gr. vol. xlvi. p. 990 ) Avother fiuc goid key-ring, with.) of uine Greek crosses, rending of the choton, and MyuTig Accipe dvtcis hoop, may have been meant for a new year's gitt. (Alch. Journ. vol. xxix. p. 305.)

2. Royal Rinus.

It is certain that official vings were in ose from an early period among the Christinn in corereigas of France. Thera were signet rings eatruted to the kseping of a entruted to the kseping of a high ofticial, who in Merovingian times was ealled Refereadurius sometimes an eeclesiastic. Thus Referendarius, Seconi, king of Anstasian ( $638-670$ ). $\mathrm{n}^{2}$,popointed St. Bonitus, bishop of Clermont, his referendarius, "anulo ex manu regis acceppto" (Vitu S. Boniti,

RINGS

1803
15 J an.). Audoenus or Dade was the referendarius of Dagobert the Great, father of the above-named Sigebert, so called, as Aimo tells (Eccl. Mist. iv. 14), "quod ad eum omnes annulo regis sive sigillo ab eo sibi muniret sen formaret, ${ }^{\text {sing }}$ ab eo sibi commisso muniret sell formaret.' Audoeuus was at this time probnbly a layman, but he becume archbishop of honen in 640. [See Seals.] ${ }^{2}$

3. Episoopal Rings in General; also Ringas of investiture and the Ring of the Fisherman.

 That bishops, possessed rings in common with other Christians, prove; but when the ring early times, is ensy to a badge of their the ring was first employed as The earliest example it is more diflicult to say. sion of a ring by a bishop is probably possesCsius, bishop of Kome, 28:3-296. When his tomb was opened in the year 1622 there were found therein three coins of Diocletian, in whose ("sign he suffered martyrdom, and also his ring ("sanctissimi puntificis anulus adinventus est "), sae Aringhi, liom. Subt. lib. iv. c. 48, vol. ii. p. 426 ; Boldetti, Cimit. pp. 102, 103. It does not appear what has become of it. Eusebins, bishop of Rome, A.D. 310, is suid to have borne the monogram of Christ on one side of the seal of his (Dog and that of his own name on the other. (Du Saussany, Pampl. Epise. p. 215.) In the KenWatert huseum a ring (No. 7412 amongst the Wilver gilt. An collection) is thus described:--"ling, from which an episcopal ring, fluted shank, an antique rises a long stens and collet, set with Found in Ioombardy. Dismeter 1 pourth century. Given by Sir James Hudson, K.C.B." ${ }^{1}$, inch by 3 . not appear why the ring is even regarded as Christian, mach less as episcopal. Possibly the circumstances of the discovery might throw light on this matter. The pale ground of paste is inlaid with eight red and blus triangular tessellae, also ajparently of paste: they are not[^130] is said of till after the time of Charlemagne. Nuthtigg known, that of Egg in the earliest coronation servics Sea Martene Egbert, arehbishop of York (732-767). But in Orde fo Ant. Eccl. Rit. lib. Ii. e. 10, Ordo i. form is given for the denedicendum regem Francorum, a as Ex J/S. codice Ratvery of the ring. This is described perbaps be the same as ablatis Corbeiensis,' wito may by Fabrtcius, supposed to be of the loth me mentioned Med. et Inf. latin) to be of the 10th century (Bibl. signaculum videlin.). It runs thus: "Aceipe anulum augbentum potentiae per que fidet, sollditatem regnt, hostes repellere, haereser quae scias triumphali potertia et cathulicas fide, haereses dest ruere, anbdttos coadunare, The earlicas fidei perseverabilitate connecti. Jer $c." The earlicst Freneh king who received episcopal corobation at all was Pepto, according to Martene; but we do not find that efther be or Charlemagno received a ring thereat. The earlicst (real or pretended) example of an English king receiving a ring at his Passio s. Edmown to the writer is given in a vita et Battrley's Antiq. S. Ednu printed in the Appendix to the East Saxora), that he designated in Bgies (rather of his suecessor, "Jussitque ut auulum in 855 Edmund as yuem acceperit ab at audum anum sit i deferrent, promotione." But episeopo ia regnt Estanglorum phal. See Butler, Lives of the Saints, Nov. 20 ,

rings

quite cuited, but resemble a star of cight rays.

St. Augustine had a signet-ring (anulus), "qui exprimit fuciem hominis attendentis in latus," menning apparently a head men in profile. [Gesis, p. 719.] A letter of clovis is addressed to the Gilliean bishops, ciren A.D. 511, in which he fromises to recognise their letters as authentic, provided they were signed with their ring ("vestro anulo signatas"). (Greg. 'Iuron, Op. Append. p. 1327, ell. Bened.; col. I158, ed. Migne, Patrol. t. lxxi). The seals probably bore their names or monograms.

About the sume time Avitus bishop of Vienne writes to his brother, Apollianris bishop of Valentin, how he would wish his signet-ring to be mide. The ring was to be of iron, not massive, formed of two dolphins, with their heads on the sile opiosite to the lezel, and their forked tails mecting ench other around a double seal turning on two pivots; on one face, which was to be electrum (pale goid), his own mane whs to be engraved in monogram ("latitabunda"); on the other side, a bright green stone ("vernans lapillus"), his mame was to be written in full (" pubiica"). Such at least appears to be the meuning of his directions, which are given as he anys "pauilo hilarius," but which might bave busen better described as "paullo obscurius."m Such monograms hul become fashionable nbout this time, both in metal and in stone, on seals or on coins; anil the passuge of Symmnehus, relating to the intricacy of his own monogram on his seal is sulloiently well known (lib. ii., epist. 12). Arnulphus, bishop of Metz, in A.D. 614, took for his seal a milk-white cornelian, bearing a fish with its hend above the basket in which it is coutained, ou either side of which is a smaller m The text of this most difficult passsge is:-"Signatorium fig ur, quod pietsa vestra non tam promitere quam offerre dignata eat, in hunc modmo flerl volu. Anulo ferren et admodun tenul, velat concurrentibus in se delphtmulis conciudend", sigilii duplicis forma geminis cardinulls inseralur. Quate ut libuerit vicissim, secu latitabunda, eu pubiica, ubtutibus intnentium alterma vernantis lapili vel eicetr! pallentis frome mutetur. Nec tamen talis chectri, quale nupr, ut eg met hasi, in - ancto ur ainecrissima impoliutae manus nitore sordebat cui corruptam potiua quam cunfectam, auri nondum fornace decoeli crediderim hesse mixturam; vel ilianai certi, quarn nuperrime rex Getaruin (he is explalsed to be Alari us, à Clodoveo prost'atus), s'culurae pracsagam ruinar, manetis publicis adnibrium firmantem mandaverat. Sed sit ejnamodl color, quem auqualiter ae modeste, ruburen ab aurn, ab argento candurem, pretiositatem ab urruque, s ca toris rapientrm fuigoren, arifficissa siquidem meduxima viruris commendat amoenitas. Si quatas quid insentpendum sighlio; signum monogranmulus weip pr gyrutu scripti nominis ligatur indicio. Mcdium perro anmili, ab ea parte quat volat clausae vicinabitur, delihhorum quoram superius capla descrip. simus, caudae tenebunt. Quibus lapisculus ub hec ípsum qu.eritus, bliongus scilicet et achus capitibus formitas, intetar. Eece bubes quoddam tantummodo spreulann dusmatis easequend. Nec timen smplitudhem etegantine thae sic ad menoratum exemplar conetn (leg. cogreto?), quasi liberum non sit adider quod videtur." Aviti Vi-muensis Kphat. Ixxvili. Apotlinani episeupo (Insir. chrét, ide la ciaule, tom. Ii. p. 50) has ventured upon 3 transiaion or paraphrase, adidigg reference, th Sirmond and Canciani, snd mentioning a Aerovingian ring on which the name Aster is engraved in monogram and slso in full.
fish, which was set in his (gold ?) ring, a plain hoop widening towards the bezel, first figured in Martigny, Dict. s.v. Anneau episcopul' ('Ind ed.). It is now preserved in the cathedral at Metz. [Gems, p. 714.] Ebrengilaus, bishop of Menux in 6 b0, wore in his ring an intriglo representing st. Pnul the hermit (ibitl. p. 719, b). Agilbert, hishop of Paris (666-680), wis burieil with a very large ring (thumb-ring?) set with an opaque tigure, on which was represented St. Jerome benting hls breast before a crucifix (ibid. p. 718)." The ring of L.odegar, bishop ot Autun about A.D. 685, is mentimed by Du Saussay as existing in 1636 in the hoyal Monastery of St. Victor in Paris. Uufortmately the Martyrologium Gallicanum which meations it under his day (Oct. 2), as being in the monastery aforessid, says nothing of its material or style, but only of its miraculous qualities: "cujus in aquan immersinue miracula fere perennia eduntur; nam oculorum infirmitate laborantes consecratne aquae ipsius perfusiune recuperant passim savitatem."。 In our own country also rings have been found in the tomb of Birinus, bishop of Worchester, who died 640 ("inventus quoque [in s"pulchro] est anulus," Vit. S. Birini, incerto nantore in Surius de Vitis Sanctorum, Dec. 3, vol. vi. p. 2 20 , Venet. 1681), and in that of St. John of heverley who died in 721, when he was translatel into a new shrine, cirea A.d. 1037 (Dugdale, Mlist. of Coll. Ch. of Beverley, p. 55 in Appendix to list. of St. Paul's Cathedral; R. C. Neville, Iecture on Antiq. of Finger-rings, p. 15, Sullf. Whiten, 1856; Waterton in Arch. Journ. vol. xx. (1803), p. 225.p

- Du Saussay (Panopl, Episc. p. 183v) dexcribes the settiog thus:-"Lncausto anuius lis supeliuri parts circull decuratur, eminetque a medlo esua vasculun falcatis quasi unguicuis evectam, quibus jpan gemona stringitur ; adeoque exquisito artificio fabrifistum opas est, ut vix elegantion forma codietum aliud proferi pusalt."
- De Corte, Syntagm. de Anulis, [p. 164-is has various notices of miruculons rings, Many wiil agree with bim when he writes: " Eit quis singulas silutarium annulorum virtutes catilus adeptas in numerum cages ni iectori suo taedium parera gestrat? Absilheu igitur si unicum insuper . . . recensurro."
p There is a very early saxon ring which may perhaps be the ring of Alhatan, bishup of Sherburn: A.D. $24-~67, If so it la just too late for this wark, but the altribution is uncertain, the name being a common one. It reals alastan having a cross prefised, on four womed sides of a ring alternating with four iozernge-siafid bles on which fabulons anmals are depleted. It iv of guid and niefloed. It is now in the S. Nensingtora Huseum, formerly in the Waterton ceriecton. Fignred in dreh. Journ. vul. xx. p, '26, the sume tigure bulug usal for Junco's Finger-ring Lore, p. 62. It tud been provionsly drecribed and tigured by the Kev. Dr. I'ege: in Archetenkyid, woh iv. p. 47 Perlisps it should be added that when the tomb of binhop Cathlert (did os6) was upend is 1537, a " mas-ive gold ring, sel with a sapphere en culochun, "as found on one of his fingers." But al'bough the duibenticanon of its dtewery is undoubtel, it is ronsid red to be certain that of conid niver have lienn worn by St Cublumert, being ajparently not older thit the lith cerne tary. Mr, Waternn uinks that it had foululy beleng d to one of the Dishops of Durhum, and low ine.ll pisciud where in was fimad on sume occavion when the shrine was opened. He ubsirves ciat it liss bevin figued in the Anckarol, Aelima, vul. ii, (N. S.), p, 66, and is now prearved in St. Cuthbelt's Cullege, Ushaw, near Durlum,

It cannot notices that e astical charac in any way fr used by person does there app rings existed ht century.' Fro at their conse anl also a ri brilegrooms of mirk of ho all cases capabl not, it is diflicu the imperfect times they cert eariliest ecclesia of such a ring s who was bisbop In his second b

Arch. Journ. xx, muy be seen; вes Murch 20. The with the injuncti "A nulu* (eplacop palam habeat cun debet" (Meratl, ed a similar remark (d muny episcopal ring rude fambion mer:ly having the s bezel was ulapted t qMr. O. Alurgan argnes from the alle which giva minute wishons, that the rio epis opal offle) at This time, variouely the tha chitury.-A r The Abbé (now neand chez les prem both the eulfions of neau ipiscopal) has an African futher of ditinctiy mentions the Bithop's office. first book, c. 10 (p. beretics have not the nior the ring whereby sealed (nec anulum q passage has much pe be seen in the varioux nacus p. 118, and of there is little doubt Judged that there is at garden enclosed is $\mathbf{m}$ op, a fountuin sealed mali rlal ring than the und r.tond nystically dotibus ecclesiae) of Others, su Sarnelli Opratua to alfude to ispial funts with the "Mais de telien difticult textedu mếme docteur Tatineau, afin qu'il co egilse, et que pour elle, so vie, s'il le faut" (bic Caristian ringe he quot standing the last wordy anita! "fontlex ergo ecterise agnoscat, et pr ponat; blysteria Script eccrosite r-signet." But In Opltatus, nor any pase veriatim It Hunorius A

RINGS

It cannot be concluded from these litern $y$ notices that episcopal rings were of an ec l. astical character properly so called, or dillencut in any way from those which inight have been usel by persons whe were net ecelesiastics. Nior does there appear to be any clear proof that such riugs existed at all until the latter half of the 6th century.' From about that time forwards bishep, at their consecration receivel a staff (baculus) and also a ring, symbolical of their office as brilegrooms of the church (anulua), end also as a mark of honour; but whether thess were in sll cases capable of being used as signet rings or nut, it is dificult if not impossible to decide, from the imperfect nature of the evidence. In later times they certainly could not be so used. The earliest ecelesiastical writer who makes mention of such a ring seems to be St. Isidore of Seville, who wss bishop of that see from A.D. 595-6.33. In his secend book of Etclesiastical Offices, sup.
Arch. Journ. xx. 237, where much nore information muy be aeen; sees stso A. Butier, Lires of the Suints, March 20. The stine bears no device, It conformity, "Anulu (episcopi) ex anro puro solido in 1194: "Anulu (eplseopi) ex auro puro solido confectus palsm habest cum gemma in qua nithii scuipti exse a similar remark (de Rit. Forl, if, 8, 837). Accordingis many optscopsi ringe of tine 131h century w wore of viry muny oplscopsi rings of tine 131 h cenrury "wore of very mude fishun . . .; the stone set just as it was foumd, merify having the surface polished, and the shape of ths, beztl Wus ulapted to the gem." Waterton, u. s. p. 227. s'Mr. U. Morgan (Archaeologia, voi. xxxvi. p. 393) argues from the silence of the Apostoilcal Constitutions which give minute directions for the consecration of hishops, that the ring was unknown (as a symbel of the epis upal offle) at the time when they were written. This time, variouely estimated, is nost probably sbout the the entury.-Arosrolical. Constitutions. neanx ches les premiers Chretiens (pp, 44-46) hts Anbuth the editions of hils Dict. des Antiq. chrét. ( $\mathrm{s}, \mathrm{v}$, An neaa ipiscopal) has laboured to prove that St. Optatus, an African father of the iatter part of the 4 th century, dietinctiy mentions the eplscopai ring, us beionging to the bishop's offlee. He so interprets the words of his first bouk, c. 10 (p. 37, ed. Abbasp.) where be says that heretics have aot the keys, whicist. Peter aione recelved, ner the ring wherehy it is written that the fountain is sealed (nec anulum quo legitur tons esse signatus). This passuge has much perplexed the commentators, as may be seen in the various notes in the editions of Albaspinacus p. 11s, and of Migne (Patrol. t. xl. p. 902). But there is little doubt that Meric Casaubon has rightly garden enclosed is my sister, my spouse int. iv. 12, "A up, a fountain sealed." If so the ring a spring shut up, a fountain sealed." If so the ring ts no more a undi ratord myystically keys; the passage is rather to be und ratond mystically of the gifty of the chureh (de dotibus ecclesiae) of which the episcopate ls the custodisn. Others, as Sarnelli (quwted by Martigny), underitand Oplatus to allude to the custon of kealing up the baptismal fonts with the hisbop's seal in Lent (see below). "Mais de tellea diticultés a'êvanoulssent devant cet cutro f'anteun, ialineau, afin qu'il connalsso qu'ii est l'époux de son eglise, et que pour sa vie, s'il le faut " ( Christlan ringe hu quictes the ortuingl spiciai work on Itanding the last words to the orikiosi at length, undersariting : "Punctize erge to refer to the discipline of the Reciter: "flae agnoscuter ergo auntum portat ut se sponsum ponat; mysteria Scripturae à perfidia stgitlet, fuerit, ecel-wher reignet." But no such passage occurs any where in Optatus, nor any passuge at all like it. It is forma veroatim iu Honorius augustodunensis, a writer of the posed to have been written abont a.D. 610, he says: "Datur (eplseopo dnm consecratur) et anulus propiter signum pontificalis honoris vel signaculum secretorum" (c.5). The last words might appear to imply that this was a signetring. David, bishop of Benevento in the time of Charlemagne, concludes a mandate as follows : "anule sanctae nostrae ecelesiae firmavimus roborandum" (quoted from Ughelli in Mab. de re lipl. ii. xv.), from which it would appear probable that the bishop's official ring went with the see. And ujen the whole it seens most natural to conclude with Mr. Waterton that most if not all the episcojal rings earlier than the llth century were also used as signets (Arch. Joum. vol. xx. p. 225). They would not only be employed for sealing a letter or an etlicial document, of which instances have been given: buining relics, when an to seal up a box conand the box placed thereon. altar was consecrated 627 for the placed thereon. (See Baronius s. a. supposed, the wool the box containing, as it was founl unbroken, when Syroes, son of Chosroes, king of Persia, restored this relic to the Christians.) In some churches of Gaul and Spain the not uncominon but fir from universal prohibicen to bnptise in Lent was enforced in the 7th (anury by the application of the bishop's seal (anulus, signaculum) to the gates of the baptistery, from the beginning of Lent till Eastet, when bers ( $C$ were often celebrated in great numbers (Concil. Tolet. xvii. (694), De reg fid. e. ii.; iii. p. 84, referred to di Anelli, Lett. Eecles. t. Anneare, referred to in Martigny, Dict. s. F. Anneaux; Binghem, Ant. xi. 6, § 7, xxi, i. § 12).: episcopal ring in the allusions to the official century, which seem to earry it somewhat further back than themselves, probably into the preceding century. A letter of jope Boniface IV. read in the conneil of Rome (A.D. 610) ssys that "monachus nequaquam anulo pentificali subarrharentur," i.e. be elevated (as Augnstine and Martin had been) to the episcopal rank, if the monastic life was an utter disqualification for the office (Coleti, Concil. t. ri. p. 1356). In the twenty-eighth canon of the fourth council of Toledo, held under the presidency of Isillore of Seville, A.D. 633) we read that "if a bishop, presbyter, or deateon be unjustly deposel, and in a subsequent synod be found innocent, he cannut be what he had previously been, unless he receive sgain the rank which he had lost from the hand of a bishop before the altar. If he have been a bishop, he must receise the stole (orarumn), ring, and staff . . . and so the other minor 12th century, in his Gemma animae, Ilb. i. c. 216 (Nigne, Patrol. t. cixxil. p. 6u9; Marriott, Vest. Chrit.t. pp. 139-140).

RINGS

1805

- This inference howrver is made tess certnin by the allegurical expressions which folluw. "Nam milta suit quas carnalium minusque intelifgentium sensibus oceulInders sacerlutes quasi sub signacuio abscondunt, ne indignle quibusquo sacramenta bi, a sueriantur."
: Ehe practice is earii $\cdot$ than the dite of the council:
 dautur." Mr. Watertonl ( $x$, s.) ana anulo uasignat: claudantur." Mr. Watert'n ( $x$. s.) appears to be in err $r$ in thinking that oll this was in conformity with a decrec of his t'ontificute (687-701).

1966

RINGS
IINGS
orders are to receive, with a view to their restoration, what at the thme of ordination they origlaally raceived. (liruns, Canon. Apost, et Cuncil. 'et, vol, I. p. 2:1t. Marriatt'a readering is here followed, Vest. Chist. p. 75.) From thess passages it is pinin that before they were written bishops recelved a riag at their ordination. We have several aaclent ordination gervlees in which the delivery of the ring to the bishop is mentioned; and of these one, if not nore, is probably some what earlier than the 7 th century. The sacramentary of Gregory the Great, circa A.D. 590 , as it stinds la Muratori's edition, gives the following formula: $A d$ anulum digito imponendun. Accipe annlum fidei, sellicet signaculum, quatenus sponsam Del, videlicet sanctam occlesiam, Intemerata file ornatus illibate custodias. (Sacromentarium iregoriunum do Officio Episcogi, in Muratorl, Liturg. Nom. Vet. t. ii. p. 442 , Venet. 1748.) But in the edition of Angelo Rocca (yuoted by Du Saussaye, Panopl. Episcop. p. 181) we read: " memer sponsionis et desponsationis ecclesiasticae, ut dilectionis Domini Dei tui, in die gua assecutus es hunc honoram cava ne obliviscaris illius. Accipe erge anulum discretionis et honoris, fidei signum, ut quae signanda sint signea, et quae aperienda sunt predas, quas liganda suut liges, quae solvenda sunt solvas: utque credentibus per fidem baptismatis, lapsis antem sed poenitentibus per mysterium reconciliationis januas regni caelestis nuerias; cunctis vero de thesauro Derinico, nova et vetera proferas, ut ad aetomber alutem omnibus consulas gratia Doms: somers Jesu Christi, cui cum Patre et Spiritu Sanctor est honor et gleria in saecula saceulatas: Ascen." This last appears to be a laters wisa ur daptation of the sacramentary which $y^{2}$ arı the te the Ordo Romanus, ${ }^{\text {a }}$ where a portion the same words occurs (Martigny, Anncaux chez les prem. Chret. p. 41). From these Howed a variety of formulae, one of the earliest being fonnd in the pontifical of Eegbert, Archbishep of York (732-766), where we vead, "Cum anulus dutur haec oratio dicitur: Accipe anulum pontificalis henoris, ut sis fidei integritate munitus. Ponlif. Eyberti Eboraeensis Episcopi in Mart. de Ant. Eccl. Rit. lib. i. c. viii. art. xi. Orde ii. We have also repetitions or variations thereof in several early mediaeval services for ordination, which in all cases appear, and in some instances are declared, to be derived from the Ordo Roinanus. (See Martene de Ant. Rit. Eccl. lib. i. c. viii. art. xi.; Ordo iii., Ordo v., Ordo viii., Ordo ix., \&c., Bassan. 1788.) Of the age of these rituals it is not easy to opeak; but inasmuch as the manuscript of more than one of them is as early as the 10th or 11th century, it is net improbable that some of them may be as early as the time of Charlemagne. (See Waterton in Arch. Journ. xx. 1863 , Pp. 229, 230.) In the Nissa Puntificnlis (Ordo xviii.) of lilyricus, which he thought to have been in use in the West about the time of Gregery the Great, eccurs this prayer: "Ad anulum; circumda Domine digitos meos virtute et decora bacrificatione." (Gerbert, Vet. Liturg. Alaman.
u Probably a compilation of the sth century. See Ondo. A critical edition of these early liturgical compoaitions, which differ much in different MSS., would be a great boon. See Palmer, Orig. Liturg. & vl. (Liturgy of Rome).
tom. 1. pp. 76, 255, 256, , 1. 1776. Sre also Martede, u. s. lib. I. c. iv. Av. xil. Ordo Iv.) It la ingossible to conjecture from these liturgleal torms the material of the ring, und whether the ring had a gens or not, and It it hall, whether the stoten bore any device or not. These matters may tor some time have been left indefinitro afterwards, ns is well known, they were ali detisiltely tixed. Tha Ordo Romanus and gemeral usage in the Roman church alterwards phacos the rlog on the fourth finger of the bishmin's right hand. "Anulon ipsos non in sinistra juai oportet," says pope Gregory IV. (elected to the pajal throne in 827), "nullius veme cordialls habita ratione, quae gentilitatem cappre videretur ; sed onnaino in dextra tanquam dipniere, qua sacrae benedletiones impunduntur; maxime quia ipsi poatifices, dum sacrificunt, non nimium exercitas manus habeat; et vic ipsorum tam summorum quam ceterorum prntifieum consecrationibus dexterne signanter anulus imponitur" (De Cultu Pontificum, quoted in Martlgny, Anneaux, &c. p. 40).

The earlier stages (if any) through which the episeopal ring; with its concomitant statl; passed before it was placed on the hands of the binhopelect by the consecrating prelate, appear to be unknown before the time of Chariemagne. Perhaj,s it was not ruceived at all before coasecration.

A few words must now be said upon the hive tery of episecpal investiture by the ring, the source of such deadly feuds between the popes and emperore in the 11 th and 12 th cent ries.

The Ring of Investiture.-In the reign of Charlemagne commenced, according to the common story, the investiture by the ring anl atatf, an act of the civil power which entitled the bishop-elect to the possession of the temporalities of his see." This privilege (among others with which we are not now concerned) was granted to him by pope Hadrian I. in gratitule for the services which Charlas has rendered to the Holy See by expelling the Lombards from Italy. This fact is distinctly asserted not ouly by two ol the best historians of the 12 th century, Sigebert (Chron. s. a. nucxi. ; see alse Grat. list. Ixxiii. e. 22, quoted in Investiturs), and by William of Malmeshury (Gest. Req. Anyl. lib, ii. § 202, p. 348, ed. Hardy), whe puts the declaration to that effect, with express mention of the anulus et baculus, inte the mouth of pepe Gregery VI., but alse by a bull of pope Leo Vlif.

- Such is the conclusion of Kirchmann (de Anulis, c. 20, p. 211, Slesv. 1657), who has carefully investigsted the subject. "Verum age, dicanus etiam," are his words, "de usu anulorum in eptscoporum investituris; cujuş moris ante Caroll M. tempora nuliun reperlenpud seriptores vestigium." De Corte aecerpts his conclusiun, and indeed his very words. (Curtios, Syntagma de Anuliz, pp. 372,373 , Antv. 1706.) So does siso Mr. 0 . Morgan in Archaeologia, vol, xxxvi. p. 3u5. Kirchmann quotes several writers iater thao those mentinued in the text, who agree in the view that inventitutes origlnated in the time of Chariemagne. Moshetm, ch. Hist. cent. xi. part Ii. c. 2, 815 (note), ssys, "Whast king or emperor firot introduced this custom of appointing prelates by dellvery of etaff and ring is very uncertala.' Adam of Bremen sscribes it to Louls lo loébonnaire, the son of Charlemagne (814-840); liumbert to Otho the Great (936-973), to which Jatter vlew Mo-helm is much inclined. Both writers are of the 11th century.
(96:3-065 half atter the Great exemplum titin, qui Francorum nitatem a Investiturn Leo episeo cedin. י's a Teutoulcor Synordo Dis Anulis, pp. different in p. 166 q . attempts $h$ donbts on Pertz think betray a lat at the time scr bed " (R $\nabla$. ch. v.). the ultra-Ro no very tem laterest of th

Nostwithsta authorities, lately called iz been fribricate being unknow The reader mt slon on this properly have stticle.
It must be of the subject, to the Greek a
The Fisherme man, now made tation of St. I name of the $r$ (arys Mr. Wate ring of investit elected pepe's fil immedistely aft, has been arrived it would seem, $t$ It has been state Longi de Anulis, by Heineccius ( $d$ himself mada tase this, ssks Heineed of him? Mabill §11) did not ki ring was employ Mr. Waterton. in Ring of the Fish p. 138, 18:56), beli it oceurs in a lett nephew Peter Gro "Siluta matrem neque familiarilus

[^131]
ringas

(963-985), wrilten ouly athout a century and a the Girent, hhe patthon, wharleming ou the, when Otho exemplum 13. Ilatricul was on the throne. "Ad thik, पuid domho Caroolo nloateliarae seflis antis. Franeorum et Longobardorampariesissimo retriciun nitntem ac ordinationem aram patriciutun dIg. investiturum episcoporunn concentonicite vedia et ceilus."s atque larglinur Othont Dei Teutnicornus," &e. (Grat, Deer. Pr, i, e, regi Synotlo Distinct. 1xiil,, whence Kirehm. e. In Anuli, pp. 212, 213, ; but the test diflerent in Pertz, Mon. Germ text ls a little p. 166 q. v.) it is only fair to tom, ii. 13. attempts have been made recently may that doubts on the genuinenaie reerently to throw Pertz thiuks that the documants bull. Dr. betray $n$ Inter origin," luut that the "seems to at the time "really' hat the power emperora ser'bed " (Robertson, Hist. Cherist, Cher here de-『. ch. v.). But the bull of a pope, reekoneel by the ultrr-Ruman party as an anti-pope, offers no very tempting sabject for a forger in the Noterest of the see of Rome.
Not withotandiag thene and other respeetable nuthorities, some distinguished writers lately culled have lately yallided in questlin the whole story as having been fabriented in the been fabriented in the iaterest of rome, add as having being unkown in the The reader must of eonrse fige of Churlemsgne." sion on this obseare matter, whis own eencluproperly have been passeded over in theould not article.
It must be added, in conelaring this division of the subject, that the episeop pal ring is unknown to the Greek and Oriental ehurches.
The Fishernun's Rimg.- -'the ring of the fisher mann, now mnde of gold, and having a representation of St. Peter in name of the reigning pope fishing, with the (sags Mr. Waterton) " pope meronnd be called the which xing of investiture, being placed on the pewal elected pepe's finger by the Cardinal Camerlengo immedistely after a successiul connting of votes has been arrived at by the egnelave," belonga, us it would seem, to rat her a Inte medineval period, It has been stated, indeed, hy Rebuthis, quoted hy by Heineccius (de Se Sigilisis, p. 28) gratia, quoted himself made nse of this, p. -8), that St. Peter this, asks Heineceius, but Bongrati who believes of him? Mabillon (de Re Dipt, lib. ii. e. 14, $11) did not koow of any evidence that this ring was employed before the 1.th eentury.
Mr. Waterton, in his vuluable Mir Witerton. in his valuable memoir "Ontury.
Ring of the Fisher p. $138,18,16$ ), believes that thelae logia, vol. xi. it oceurs in a lettor of Pope Clement mention of to nephew Peter Grossi, in 100 Clement 1 V . to his "Sluta matrem et fratres ; non seribimus tith neque familiaribus nostris sub bulla, sed sod

[^132]
ringes

1807
Piscatoria algillo, quo Romani pentificea in suis necretin he savy, "it wur" (Masson, in Vita) $x^{8}$ Hence," alrendy, and fuy be inferred that the popes hat an a seal, but only time phist, u el thíw device Mintin $V$, elected only for their private letters. all suh anulo $P_{\text {iscaternic in }}$ in, Issied three briefs, further information on this the year 1+26. For own times, aee Waterton and 0 . Morgan ( 4, s. p. 398 ). s. Pp. 138-4 42 );

4. Espolsal and Marriate Rings,

The early Christlins amplayenel the ring eqpoonanls, but seemingly as now, in the solemnity

 Selien, lxor Heir. .lib. ii. $c$. it nnd e. 25, " "used by the Romuns belore the time nnd in some mensure admitted christianity, whenee it was adeopted ammitted by the Jewa, of espousal without any oppooition oristian rittes tion" (Antia. of Christian Cosition or contridico. 3, § 5). Tertulli Chistian Church, book xxii. the heathen as harmless, at ith use among conld take no offence present at the offence, and might therefore be prosent at the ceremonial of esponsills as well na his langungo that it had not rather seem from by the Christians of Carthot yet been adopted tates) mundss esse opinorthare: "eas (solemnineque vestitus virilis sc.; see the wordspreceeding) aut conj (sponsnalium talis de alieujus idoli honore denjunetio, ,uariIdolol. e. 16). He commends the ancient Ron (De for teaching women modesty ancient Romans whom no other wearing of modesty and sobriety, to anve on the finger wearing of gold was permitted nubus" had been placed (Apol "anulus proeapousal ring, howerer, wa ( $A$ pol. e. 6). The nor did it always bear a device, always of gold, sponane annulusferrensmitituce. "Etinm nune (Plin. N. II. .xxxiii. 2). Yet , 1quas ine gemma" times bore joined hands ne plagan rings someEpist. 19); \&uch hands as "deviee (Pignor. in the 16 th century were aiso common in Italy becaine obsolete cury; nad ealled una fecle, but anulorum valgo nunenpatum est "Il, genns Lieetus de $A$ nulis, p. 48 : but ext fides,") ${ }^{\text {says }}$ such Christisn rings before the meutions no Nieolas I. It is evident, howe time of pope words of Clement of Alent, however, from the women, while they were bound that Cluristian wearing of gold within were bound to keep the permitted, or rather enjoined, to wear ring, as a seal upen their to wear one gold seeing that upon them the husband's goods, ing of the house devolved care and snfe keepthat the wife's ring bored. This ulso proves of a ring as a ring bore a device. The use one of which a signet for safety is the only rings, he says, are to be approves; all other c. xi. p. 243 and pe esohewed ( $P_{\text {uccl. }}$ lib. iii. this ring had been given her as a ${ }^{2+1}$. Whather nubus " does not clearly appear. But $\mathrm{i}^{i}$, would seen seem probable that the ring of espousils was employed in Christian rites in the time of St . Agnes, whe suffered nartyrdom soon after the beginning of beginning of the perseeution of Diocletian,

[^133]

Photographic Sciences
Corporation

A.D. 303. When solicited in marriage by a noble youth, she replied that she was already pre-oceupied by another lover (i.e. Jesus Christ), "qui . . . annle tidei suae subarrharit me, lenge te nobilior et genere et dignitate" (PseudoAinbros. Epist. 1). The same thing is rendered more evident still from the expressions of St. Peter Chrysologus (made bishop of Ravenna in 433), who, alluding to the father's putting a ring oa the finger of the returning prodigal, net only calls it "anuluin houeris . . . insigne Spiritus jignus, signaculum fidei" (these and like expressions occur also in other writers, see De Corte, Synt. p. 79), but " srrham coelestium nuptiarum" (Serm. v.) Asterius, bishop of Amasia in Pontus, who flourished about the year 400 , makes direct sllusions to the pre-nuptial ceremonies among Christians, and althongh he dees not directly mention the riag, there is little doubt that it was employed, in accordance with Roman ussge, when the dowry was agreed npon. "Wilt thou make void (he asks) the agreements ( $(\pi \pi l \tau \hat{\varphi} \gamma \alpha \mu \varphi)$ which theu settedst down with a view to marriage . . . . I mesn the dowry which was there covenanted (Aster. Homil. in Matth. xix. 3, ed. Combef. p. 81 D, Paris, 1648). We have an actual example of the giving of the espousal ring recorded by Gregory of Tours, in a work written between 590 and 595, referring to somewhat earlier times than his own. Speaking of St. Leebardus (who afterwards retired to a menastery) he says: "Denique dato sponsae anulo, porrigit esculum, prsebet calceamentum, celebrst spensalium diem fastum" (Vit. Patr, c. 20). Yet it is not easy to name any nuthor earlier than lsidere of Seville, whe succeeded to the archbishopric of that place in 595, from whom we can obtain s distinct attestation that the ring was regularly used in Christian espousals. "The ring (says he) is given by the espenser to the espoused (a spenso sponsae) either for a sign of mutual ndelity or still mere to join their hearts by this pledge; and therefore the ring is placed on the fourth finger becsuse a certsin vein, it is said (sea Anl. Gell. Noct. Att. x. 10), flows thence to the heart" (Isid. Hisp. de Eccles. Off. ii. 20). During the whele period with which we are concerned the ring seems to have been used in esponsals only, and never in the actual marriage ceremony itself. For pope Nicolas 1., writing so late as 860 in reply to the Bulgarinns, says: "We will try to shew you the usage, which the holy Roman church received anciently, and which the church holds up to this time in unions of this kind.
After the espousals, which are the promised covenants of future marringe, made by mutual consent . . . and after the espouser has engaged to himself by s pledge (arrhis) his espoused by decorating her finger with a ring of fidelity . both are led shortly afterwards or at some convenient time to the performance of the marriage ceveannt. And first they are placed in the church, bringing offeringa which they ought to offer to God by the hands of his priest, and then they receive the beaediction and the heavenly veil" (Nicel. 1. R'espons. ad Consult. Buly. c. 3; is Coleti, Concil. t. Ix. pp. 1535, 6).'
y Riddle (Christ, Ant. p. 714 note) saya that Calvoer (Rituale Eccl.) traces the origia of the marriage riag to

Examples of Espous.l or Marriage Rings. The following rings bear every appearance of having served matrimonial purposes. In Spon's Rechcrches curieuses d'Antijute, Lyon, 16×3, the Dixieme Dissertation is a letter from de Peiresc to Holstenins in 1619 . De Peiresc bought af Arles a gold ring, weighing abont sn ounce, recently disinterred, on which was engraved a face of rather rude execution with the inscription around: " + TECLA seaELLA, le tuat dans une plaque dor environnée de quelques enrichissements de feuillages et godrons; dans le yuide desquels est écrit + techa vivat deo cVm marito seo (sic) ; à l'epiesite du cercle de cette bsgue, on $y$ voit 1 n petit ovale svec les lettres dedans $\mathrm{RA} \mathrm{r}_{\mathrm{E}}{ }^{\prime}$ " (p. 169).

Peiresc observes that the cross and the diction shew the ring to be Christian : sso for swo he notes as a not uncommon form in the 4 th and 5 th centuries; and more common still in later ones. He regards it as an anulus pronubus. He dnes not explsin segella : and proposes very doubtfully arra genialis as the explanation of RA'r $\bar{E}$. The former may possibly be for Teclte (i.e. Theclse ?) sigillum. Other rings have been fiuad in France which sppear to be Christian and to have been used in espousals; e.g. a gold ring, duplex, hoop-wire of light fabric swelling towards the united oval bezels, which have a line of beads from them on either side ; one of them bears the name BAVBVLFVs, the last three letters written in a line above; the other has haricviba, the last letter written above. It is regarded ss a Christian marriage ring by M. Le Blant who figures it (Inscr, chrêt. de la Guale, n. 337, pl. 36, n. 221), and by Canon Martigny (Anneaix chez les prem. Chret. p. 12). There is, however, the 10th century. He supposes it to have been intro duced to imitation of the ring worn by bishopi. Martene de Ant. Eccl. Rit. (lib. L. C. Ix. art. b) gties severs. ordines for marriage. The ring is not mentioned in the earllest (Ordo i.) the Miseale Gelasianum, p inted in m a MS. of the end of the 8th or beginning of the 916 century; it occurs, however, in a missale Redonenia (Ordo It.), printed from a MS. about 200 gars later whers we have Benedictio super anulum in thes? words: Creator et conservator bumanl generis, dstor a atemae galutis, omniputena Deus, in permite Spiritum Sana tum Paraciltum super hunc anulum. Per, \&c. Also in sur the form (idem ()rdo) thus: Benedic, Domine, arinluns stum, ut ín ejus figura pudiciliam custodisnt. Per, de. We likewise find the ring, which is sometimes said to be a silver and conetimes a gold ring, fo almost all the marrloge services taken from still later MSS. (Ordu lii iv. vi. vil. vifi. ix, x. xi. xil. \&c.). There re tho rings mentioned in the Euchologia of the Greeks; the priest gives a gold ring to the bridegroom and a silver ring to the bride with variuns ceremonies and a long prayer afterwards (Ordo xul.) See also Peillia, be Eccl. Pol. vi. 1, 3. It is needless to do more tham allinde to the assertion or tradition that Josplph gave the Virgtin Mary first an espousal ring and afterwards a marringe ring (Martene, l. c.). J. B. Lauit published tul 1622 s work entitted De Anulo pronubo Deiparae lirginia and from thio work is derived the account given it in John Patrick's Fefections upon the bevotions of the Roman Church, pp. 45 60, Lond. 1686 (ed. 2 without his name); see also G. Longi de anulis, p. 7, Lugd. Bat. 1672. This ring, o a well-known tyje of later Roman timea, is preserved at Perugia. There is, hon ever, another which passes under the same name in the church of St. Ann : it Rome (D I Saussay, Ponoph, epich. p. 192). See Martigny, Dict. s. v. Anneaua, and Fortnum in Academy, vol. X. p. 505 (1876).
nc extern very simil which is of the 4th to which been foune Cabinet de considered scribed by 534, 536). of late wo chston are vs betra graved a ma standing ; wire-like ho intervals, late to be Pa Fortnum $p 0$ ring (No. 33 Christian, w as matrimon tine charac coins of the The hoop, tla lar externall cular button the face of $w h$ female bust above them Latin cress, being slightl Obtained fro finer example Is given in $A r$ Arch. Journ. ring found in without any fine certain ge from whuse 714, b; see Gronov.) ; and ceived and fig Alexandria ( $D$ gards these "a "bagues nupti 4th and 5th uncertain, is at (The followi rings in general mentioned inci triplici, Frsac. de Anulis antiq Anulis, Slesv. 1 Bit. 1672; Ge Grouev. Lugd. Syntagma de An rings in parti Anncaux chez les épiscopal en par his Diet. des Ant. the Archaeologia by Messis. Wat Fortnum, referre
The last nimed placed at the di gravings ussd it paperss on Early 0

[^134]riage Rings.appliarance of zes. In Spon's Lyon, 1683, etter from de De Peiresc ;hing about an which was enution with the caellis, le tout le quelques enIrons; dans le la vivat deo ite du cercle de ovale avec les

and the diction eo for svo he the 4th and 5 th . 1 in later ones. ubus. He does kes very doubtation of $\mathrm{RA} \mathrm{l}^{\prime} \overrightarrow{\mathrm{E}}$. for Teche (i.e. lave been foond Christian and :g. a gold ring, welling towards e a line of beads them bears the letters written haricvia, the - regarded ss a Ie Blant who :cte, n. 337 , pl. tigny (Annearx ere is, however,

have been intro-

 bishops, Martene i. 5) gi ies several o mentioned in the num, p ' inted frm sinning of the 91b Aissale Redonenie at 2005 aara later, $u m$ in thes ${ }^{2}$ words : ris, dator arternae Spiritum Sam tum c. Also in an thet ine, amhmm tatum, int. Per, ic. We netimes said to be to almost all the ter MSS. (Ordy ili. ). There re two of the Greeks; the groom and a sitver ntobles and a long : slso Penlicia, be to more than allude ph gave the Vligin rwards a marriage published in 1623 Deiparae lírginis, count given in Dr. e Devotions of the 688 (ed. 2 without anulis, p. 7, Lugd, lown type of later la. There t , hone salue nams in the ssay, Panoph. episc. reaus, and Fortnum
RINGS

nc external sign of its Christianity, but it is very similar in structure to Fortnum, No. 27, which is certainly Christian. Probably rather of the 4th centary than of the Merovingian age, to which M. Le Blant refers it : said to have been found at Vitry-le-François, now in the Cabinet des Médailles. Another gold ring, alao considered to be Chriatian, is figured and deacribed by Le Blaat (u. a. n. 669 B, pl. 90, Nos. 534, 536). It was found near Mulsane, and is of late work; two sides of ita raised oblong chaton are inscribed with the names dromaci | vs betta in niello, while graved a man and a woman standing ; the fattened wire-like hoop, is corded at intervals. Probably too late to be Pagan. ${ }^{\text {a }}$ But Mr. Fortnum possesses a gold ring (No. 33), undonbtedly Christian, which he regards as matrimonial, of Byzantine character, like the coins of the 5th century The hoop, Hat ingide, angular externally, bears a circular button-like bezel, on the face of which a male and female bust are opposed, above them there ia a Latin croas, the limbs (Fortaum, Na. 3s.) eing slightly wedge-shaped. Weight 38 dwts. finer example, Athens. Another similar, but finer example, octagoaal, with decorated panels, is given in Areh. Journ. (vol. xxi. p. 311). See Arch. Journ. (vol. vii. p. 191), for a Roman ring found in Durham with aimilar types, but without any Christian emblem. There are in fine certain gema, set in ringa, bearing an anchor from whose arnis hang two fishea (Gems, $p$. 714, b; see also Gorl. Ductyl. ii. n. 564, ed. Gronov.) ; and Canon Martigny, who has received and figured an example bought from Alexandria (Dict. s. v. Anneaux, 2nd ed.) regards these "anneaux et pierres andulaires" as "bagues nuptiales." They appear to be of the 4th and 5th centuries. Hia speculation, if nncertain, is at least ingenions.
(The following are the principal works on rings in general, in all which Christian rings are mentioned incidentally. Kornmann de Anulo tripliri, Franc. 1610 (often reprinted); Licetua de Anulis anti,uis, Utin. 1645; Kirchmann de Anulis, Slesv. 1657 ; G. Longua de Anulis, Lugd. Bat. 1672; Gorlaens, Dactyliotheca, cum expl. Grouov. Lagd. Bat. 1695; Curtius (De Corte), Syntagma de Anulis, Antr. 1706. For Christian rings in particular we have Martigay, Des Anneaux chez les premiers Chritiens, et de l'Annesu épiseopal en particuicr, Mîcon, 1858; see also his Dict. des Ant. chret. (ed. 2). Various papera in the Archacologia asd in the Archaeological Journal by Messrs. Waterton, Octavius Morgan and Fortnum, referred to above.)
The last aimed gentieman has most liberally placed at the disposal of the writer the engravings used in illustration of bis valuable papers on Early Christian Finger-rings, published

[^135]
ROGATION DAYS

1809
In the Archaeological Journal for 1869 and 1871. Some of them are also reproduced in Jones's Finjer-ring Lore, pp. 47-49, 268-273 (L.oad.
1877).
[C. B.]
RIPSIMIA, Sept. 30, virgln martyr In Armenia, under Tiridates (Menol. Graec.

RITUALE. This word is commonly applied to the collection of ritual directions for the various offices drawn $u p$, in accordance with the directions of the council of Trent, by pope Paul $V$ in Paul V. in 1614. It has sometimes been suppoped that the "Libellua officialis" of iv. Tolet.
c. 26 , was a ritual c. 26 , was a ritual hook, but this does not seem probable. [Officlalis Liber; Ordo.] [C.]

RIVERS, THE FOUR. [Four Pivers.]

ROBBER-SYNOD. [Epuesus (6), p. 615.]

ROGATIANUS (1), May 24, martyr; commemorated at Natea (Mart. Uauard., Mieron., Wandalb.).
(2) Oct. 26, presbyter and martyr; commemorated in Africa (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rone-, Notker.).
[C. H.]
ROGATION DAYS. The procession on the three days before Ascension Day was instituted by Mamertus, biahop of Vienne in Dauphiné, A.D. 452, when that city was greatly injurcd by earthquakea, and the royal palace destroyed by lightning. It became an annusl observance, and other bishops, moved by the visible blessing Which attended it, followed the example of Vienne (Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. ii. 34 ; Avit. Hom. de Rogat.; Migne, Patr. Lat. lix. 201; Sidonius, Epist. v. 14). Whether his procesaion was really earlier than the Roman rite of April 25 [Processions], it is impossible to decide. Mamertua, at all events, instituted "orandi modum, edendi seriem, erogandi hilarem dispensationem" (Greg. Tar.), which auited the temper of his countrymen, and became a widely spread and enduring observance. In 511 it was enforced by the council of Orleana: "Ab omnibua ecclesiis placuit celebrari" (can. 27). In England the council of Cloveshoo, 747, orders the observance of these rogation daya, "secundem morem Mriorum noatrorum" (can. 16). The council of Mayence in 813 made the following decree, which can bardly refer to any other rogations than those before Holy Thursday: "It hath seemed good to us that the greater litany be observed by all Christians on three days, as we find in our reading to have been done, and as our holy fathers instituted, not on horaeback, nor in costly garments, but with bare feet, and in sackcloth and aahes, uoless aicknesa ahall hinder" (can. 33 ; comp. Sidonius, Ep. v. 7, "Incedunt "De castorinati ad laetanias"). Herard, 858 : absque turpibua jocia et verbis celebrentur" (Capit. 94). These rogations were not received at Rome until the time of Leo III. (a.d. 795), who ordered that on the Monday "the pontiff, with all the elergy and all the people, should go forth from the church of the Mother of God, and proceed to the manger at the Charch of the Saviour, which is called the Constantinian, with hymas and spiritunl songs ; hymns and spiritunl songs;" on Tuesday from

1810

 ROGATUSROME, COUNCILS OF

St. Sabina to St. Paul, and Wedneaday from the Church of Jerusnlem to St. Lawreace without the walls (Liber Pontif. n. 98).

Gregory of Tours, as above cited, does not tell us that the "orandi modus" instituted by Mamertus included a procession, but we learn that it did from an incidental notice of the rogation days by the ssme anthor in Hist. Franc. ix. 6: "In these days the public rogations were celebrated, which are wont to be performed before the holy day of the Lord's Ascension. But it came to pass that while Raguemodus, the bishop (of Paris) was in procession with his people, and perambulating the holy places," \&sc. So Fortunatus in his Life of Germanus, who dled $\ln 576$, some thirty years before his biographer, telling the story of a blind woman, "not able to go with the people at the time of the Litanies," says that "hearing the choir of the psalm-singers she implores the help of the lord Germanus with tesrs." After a vision she recovers ber sight; and when the day dawns zhe "goes forth to masa with the people in the procession " (c. 33).

The Luxenil lactionary gíves proper lessong for these days at matins, terce, sext, and none (Lit. Gall. 149). One prophecy and three gospels are also appointed, "in letanias legenda," in the sacramentary of Besançon (Mus. Ital. i. 334). "Colitcitunes in rogationibus per diveraa loca asnctorum," i.e. to be ssid st the several churchas or shrioes at which the procession stopped, occur in the Gothico-Gallican Missal (Lit. Gall. 266), and the Misanle Gallicanum Vetus (376). The former alao gives proper missae for each day ( $263-266$ ); the latter part of a misaa, headed "Incipit missa in Rogationibus" (377), which breaks off in the middle of the contestation. The heading implies that there was only one. There is only one in the Besançon rite (Mus. Ital. i. 335). Several early sermons preached on these occasions are extant, viz. two by Caesarins of Arles, A.D. 502 (De Letania, I. ii. in Append. ad Opp. Augustin. SS. 173, 174, ed. Ben.), one by an unknown bishop (ibid. Serm. 135), two entire by Avitus of Vienne, A.D. 490 (Opp. Av. 291, 296, Migne, lix.), and several fragments by the same author (303, 306, 310, $319,322,8 . c^{2}$.)
[W. E. S.]
ROGATUS, Aug. 17, monk ànd martyr ; commemorated in Africa (Mart. Usuard., Notker.).
[C. H.]
ROMANUS (1), Feb. 28, abbat; commemorated in Mount Jura (Mart. Usuard. ; Boll. Acta $S$ : Feb. iii. 737).
(2) Aug. 9, soldier and martyr; commemorated at Rome (Mart. Usnard., Bed., Vet. Rom.; Boll. Ac/a SS. Ang. ii. 408).
(3) Nov. 18, monk and martyr; commemorated at Antioch (Mart. Usuard., Mioron., Vet. R,m., Syruiu, zilor. ; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet. ; Basil. Menol. i. 196); n church called after him was erected by Helena at Constantinople (Codinus de Aedif. C.P. p. 98, ed. Bonn, $18+3$; Du C'ange, C Colis. Christ. 92).
(4) Nov, 24 . presbyter and confessor ; commemorate I at Blaye (Mart. Usuard., Wanlalh.).
[C. H.]
ROME, COUNCIIS OF. Sone preliminary remariss on these councils are necessary, from the prominent, yet constantly chauging, positier occupied by the see of Rome, from early times downwards, in the nffairs of the church. First, whether from design or accident, their records hnve been sbout the worst jreserved of any, the only voucher for the earliest being the Lib. Synodicus or Synodicon, by a Greek writer with Latin sympathies, in the 9th century, which, cven if it can be trusted, is full of mistrikes; and but incidental references in St. Cyprinn, Eusebias, Rufinus, St. Jerome, or St. Angustine for the next early. Was it that their proccedings were so trivisl, or of so little interest to the world in general, as to be not worth recording? or was it that they witnessed to a state of things which a later age may have wished forgotten? Secondly -whether from design or accident-there hare been more aynods alleged to havo been held at Rome confesedly or probably spurious, tnan in all the rest of the world put together, their charncteristic being that they have been forged in the papal inferest directly, which is also the characteristic of a good many more fabled to have been held elsewhere. It may suflice to inatance the three Roman synods under jope Silvester, as they are called (Mansi, ii. 551-4, 615-34, and 1081-4) of the first kind; the alleged cunona and synodical letter of the genuine (ibid. 469-77), with the canons of the spurious (called 1 and 2 in the Pseudo-Isid. collection, where they may all be read and compared; Migr 's Patrol. exxs. 375-382) councils of Arles, all uree betraying thsir late origin, of the second. How so pntent a forgery can have deceived the learned so long is a marvel. The acts of the pretended council of Sinuessa (Mansi, i. 1249-60), damaging as they may seem to pope Marcellinus personnlly, were conceived in the interests of his see. Centuries upon centuries have to elapse before we come upon a really genuine Roman synod, with talerably full details from Roman arc One thing they all testify to beyond de .ether true or false, viz. that according tradition of those days the bishop of 1 , , as could decide nothing of importance without a synod, any more than his brother bishops. Let us now inquire into their composition. This we shall find varied with the actual extent of jurisdiction of their presiding bishop. It was at one time commensurate with that of the city praefect, and was limited to the suburban churches; at nnother, it extendel over the tea provinces of central and oouth Italy governed by the city vicar, but went no further, which was its position about the time of the Nicene council and for some time later [see that Art.]. Every now and then, indeed, it had a wider appearance; but this is at once seen to have been exceptional. All the earliest Koman synods are stated, in the $L i b$. Symodicus before-named, to have been aynods of from 10 to 15 bishopa, to which the "Concilium quindecim finitimoruni episcoporum," in a rescript of Gratian and Valentinian to the then city vicar, may point (Mansi, iii. 629; comp. the letter of the Roman council immedintely preceding, p. 624). Then, for a considerable period, their numbers increased, but seldom exceciled 70 , which is about the number of sees stated in the old Vaticsn MS. printed by Baronius (A.d. 1057, n. 19-23; comp. De Marca, Concord. Suc. et Inp. i. 3, 12) to be dependent on Rome ns their metropole; and also the number uaually fixed apon for myt higher numbe and bishops have been pr There were $t$ France, nsmed synod which Alerocles (not i. 23), bishop (Mansi, ii, 433under pope Dal bishop of Mila letter, according and 'aierien; (ib.d. iii, 455). this requested decisions to " t Sardinia" (ibid. Orientals that Italian, and all the Latin has it) his own (ibid. ii. of course, possib) provinces of nor if so, this was Aquileia, Milan, dent centres in their independen time not only t Britain, and Ge sfter another int power, or else hn boandaries, by patriarchal, and Italian, European c. vii. 3-8, but wit now pass to the sy Passing over th reported in a work tr.), we may atart from the Libellus

1. A.D. 140 , des under pope Teles tanner was conde misstatement, for pope Victor, A.D. (i. 662).
2. A.D. 165, of tel and St. Polycarp, a with the Jews (i,ini). 3. A.D. 197, unde tion of keeping En: is a passing referen E. H. v. 23 ; nind pe 4. Another, of $f$ same ; condemning mot (ibid. 728).
3. Another under errors of Sabellius a had not then arisen to the pontificate , 1002).
4. A.D. 237, under Origen. For this, Rui Eusebias (H. E. . Vi. : expressions are vague 7. A.D. 250 , during from St. Cyprian, Ep, 8. A.D. 251 , under the lapsed; inferred (3id. 866), and nt whicl Some make two counci Chistr. ANT-TOL

ROME, COUNCILS OF

opon for mythic synods. Every now and then higher mumbers are reported, as has been said; and bishopss outside those limits are found to have been present, but present exceptionally France, named three bishops, for instance, from synod which pope Merocles (not Mark, see $S$ or Melehiades, and i. 23), bishop of Milan bit. at chisin. Don. (Mnnsi, ii, 433-40). There was a laris instance under jope Dnmnsus, A.D. 372, when Ausentius bishop of Milan, was deposed. Its synodical letter, accordingly, runs in the names of Damnsus and Sa'eritn; the latter being bishop of Aquilein (ib.d. iii. 455). The Sardican futhers had before this requested pope Julius to transmit their decisions to "the bishops of Italy, Sieily, and Sardinia" (ibid. 40). Aud he himself tells the Orientals that he apeaks in the name of the the Latinn has it) in bishops of the "regions" (ns his own (ibid. ii. 1219). In aee lay, ns well as of course, possible that the bish passagea it is, provinees of north Italy may bops of the seven if so, this was exceptional, as the bishopa of Aquileia, Milnn, and Ravenna were still independent centres in those provinces, and proud of their independence. Nevertheless, in process of time not only they, but France, Spain, Great sfter another into the threw themselves one nower, or else the arms of the encronehing boundaries, by widening their metropolitan patriarehal, and synois from being became Italian, European (De Marca, ibül. c. vi. 4, and c. vii. 3-8, but with aome corrections). We may now pass to the synods themselves.
Passing over three synods of the 2nd century reported in a work of no eredit (Hefele, j. 83, Eng. tr.), we may start with the first given in Mansi from the Libellus Synodices :-

1. A.D. 140 , deseribed as of twelve biahops tanner wase Telesphorus, when Theodotus the misstatement, for he was This is, however, a pope Victor, a.d. 194-8, as Mansi point by (i. 662).
2. A.D. 165 , of ten bishops under pope Anicetus and St. Polycarp, against those who kept Easter with the Jews ( $i^{\prime} i, 1,686$ ).
ion of keeping ander pope Vistor; on the ques. is a passing reference to so (ibid. 725). There E. H. v. 23 ; and perhaps this, indeed, in Easeb. 4. Another and perhaps 24 too.
3. Another, of fourteen bishops, under the same; condemning Theodotus, Ebion, and Artemon (ibid. 728). 5. Another).
4. Another under the same, condemning the errors of Sabellius aul Noetus (ib d.), but which had not then arisen. Hence to the pontificate urisen. Hence Mansi transfers it 1002).
5. A.D. 237, uoder pope Fahinn, condemniog Origen. For this, Rufinus and St. Jondemning Eusebius (H. E. vj. 36), are quoted; but their expressions are vague (ibid. 787). 7. A.D. 250 , during (iord. 787). from St. Cyprian, Ep, 31 (ibity ; being inferred 8. A.b. 251 , under 31 (2bid. 805).
the lapsed; inferred from Sornelius, respecting (Bid. 866), and at which Noratinn was eondemperin. Some make two councile of this, but eondemned. CHRIST. ANT.—VOL II.

ROME, COUNCII.S OF

1811
rlght (ibid. note) In considering it one and the sume. True, the J.b. Synorlicus says that it was attended by eighteen bishops (i/id. 871); on the other havd, Eusebius (E. $I I$. vi. 43) expressly states there wore sixty bishops present, and preshyters and deacons in still greater abindance. He states further, that at the end of the letter of Cornelius to Fabius of Antioch, now unfortunumber lost, from which he was then quoting, the number of bishops nttenling it, with their names with what St. Cy down. This agrees perfectly for St. Jerome calling it an of it, and necoutits then St. Jerome speaks of a Ruman council. But (Mnnsi, ibid. 867-8) of a Roman synod as well Ronran synod, composed robably, thereiore, the joined by forty-two med of eighteen bishops, was betore it separated more from other parts of ltaly Lit. i. 157) withed. Cave begins his list (//ist. the most aumerous and synod, and it Is eertainly yet, of any synod of Rome.
9. A.D. 257, under pope

Africans, who had decided Stephen; when the ties, were excommuniented (ibid. 931 ) 10. A.D. 260 , vuder (ibid. 931).
from what St. Athanasius Dionysius; inferred § 13) snys about his nam ( $d o$ Sent. Dionys. being aceused to him of Sabellinniamilria 1015).
11. A.D. 313, by order of the emperor Constantine, whose letter to Niltiades (or Melchiades), bishop of Rome, and Merocles, as we shall see jresently, giving his reasons for it, is extnnt in Greek and Latin. Its Latin heading, according to one version, is "Constant. Ang. Melehiadi "piscono Romano hierarchae; " in noother, for "hierarehae," we read "et Mareo sanetissimo," taken evidently from the Lib. Synodicus. In Papaicu кal Mdркч, where the true reading is by Optatus. Hepoклєi, for the reason supplied number-that He tells them-using the plural with ten bishops from is to set sail for Rome; from among his friendsong his foes, and ten bishops of France Pus. Further, that three rinus-have erders to them in hearing their there likewise, to nssist The Donatists, we leare, as the law directs. petitioned that we learn from St. Optatus, had bishops selceted from Frase might be tried by tinues, "So therem France. St. Optatus eonperaons of Mare were judges given them in the Autun, and Marinus of Cologne, Reticius of bishops came from France, with These three from Italy. They met ince, with fifteen more the Lateran, in the fourth house of Fausta, at tine, and the third of Licth consolship of Constanwhen there word of Licinius, on Friday, Oct. 2; Rome, Reticius and Minternus andes bishop of Fiance, and Merocles from Miad Mirinus from Cesena, Zoticus from Hin Man, Florian from Rimini, Felix from Flom hintzen, Stennius from Constantius from Forence, Gaudentlus from Pisa, Theophilus from Benere, Proterius from Capua, cina, Seeundus Benevento, Sabinus trom Terraterna, Naxim from Prneneste, Felix from U.iso Urbino, Donatian from Ostla, Evandrus from uineteen blshops, when they Cales, Before these wsa the cauas of Donatus and Cnecilinn their sents; sentences were given asainst Caecilinn laid. These 'That he had confessed to having re-haptized, to having imposed hands on lapsed bishops, whish is not the wont of the church.' Witnesses produced by Donatus having confessed that they hall nothing to say ngainst Caecilian, he was pronounced innocent by the sentences of all the above-named, not excepting even Miltiades, whose sentence, delivered in these words, closed the trial. 'Whereas it has appuared that Caecilian is not sccused, on thelr own shewing, by those who came with Donatus, nor has been convicted on any count by Donatus himself, I am of opinion he fully deserves to be retnined in the communion of his church, and la his own proper graile.' Yet, notwithstanding his own condemnation by so many voices, and the acquittal of his rival by a trihunal ao grave," continues the bishop of Nilevis, "Dodatus appenled from these bishops" (De Schisin. D. i. 2:3). Finally, that this led to the summoning of the council of Arles by Constnatine two years later, we learn from himself (Euseb. ivid. Ep. ud Chrest.; comp. St. Aug. Ep. 43 and 88, ed. Ben.).

These details deserve to be recorded at length for their decisive character, and the unimpeachable testimony on which they rest. We learn from them (I) that it was Merocles, bishop of Milan, to whom Constantine wrute jointly with Miltindes; (2) that this synod was due to their joint netion, under orders from him, which accounts for bishops from north as well as central Italy being there; (3) that if bishops from Africa and France were present, it was because they had been sent thither by him ; (4) that each of the bishops present delivered his sentence; and if proceedings are said to have been closed on the bishop of Rome delivering his last of all, like St. James at Jerusalem-the council being held in his see-it. is also true that Donatus alpealed, and was allowed to appenl, from his sentence, Vales, (de Schism. Don. c. 7) confirms this, instead of disproving it by his quotations; but the authorities arc best seen in Galland. (Bibl. Vet. Pat. v. 461-675) ; and in nope of them is there the least countenance for the atatement in Mansi (ii. 434), that Constantive appointed judges, " eâ lege, ut citra acitum, conseusum, et auctoritatem Romani Pontificia constituti judices uihil definiant;" or for Hefole'a (i. 179) that "the decision of this synod was proclained by its president the bishop of Rome, and cominunicated to the emperor."

The three spurious synods under pope Silvester are omitted here; but the acts attributed to them may be studied, as curiosities, in Mnnsi (ii. 551-4, 600-618, and 1081-4). The earliest rcferences to them being in the reign of Charlemagne, they could not have been forged much, if at all, enrlier.

I2. A.D. 342 , commonly called the third under Julus. But the first and second, given by Mansi (ii. 1269 and 1351), are fictitious. At this, St. Athanasius, having been heard in his defence by fifty or more bishops with pope Julius at their head, was, with Darcellus and other exiled bishops, almitted $t_{1}$ communion. The letter of Julius, written at the request of the conncil to announce this to the Easterns, is extant in Greek and Latin (Mansi, ibid. 1359; comp. St. Athan. Apol. c. Arian. 85 20-36, and Sozom. iii. 8 ; and Vales. Observ. in Stc. et Soz, i. 4, 5).
13. A.d. 349, when Ursacius and Valens embraced the communion of St. Athanasius, and were themselves admitted to communion by Julins, having antlsfied the council of Milan, two years before, of their faith sad sincerity (Mnnsi, iii. $163-70)$.
14. A.D. 352, under Liberius, on becomiag pope; when he declared for or agninste St. Athilnasius. The common nccount that he dechared for him is mainly based on his letter to the emperor Constantius, extant in the Sth firigment of St. Hilary, and admitted on all hands to have been written A.D. 354. Bur if the letter ascribed to him in the proceding fragment is genuiue and rightly placed, he renounced his comonuion some time before. Then, in that ease, the reference contained in it to a letter written by these he was then addressing to his predecessor, Julius, and not to himself, would point manifestly to its having been written soon alter his necession; and this, again, would explain its apparent inconsistency with the other. For lf there was a difference of two years between them in thase exciting days, there was abundance of time for all the further correspondence mentioned in his letter to the emperor to have taken place, and also for Liberius to have changed his mind again and agaus in the interval. Lastly, from the character of the comments appended to this letter of the 4th fragment, we can hardly doubt its haring been placed there by St. Hilary; and if so, cathit quacstio, Liberius must have signalised his acerssion, as well as his restoration, by condmmiag St. Athanasius. Mansi (iii. 208 and $2: 29$ ) shrioks from committing himself on either side.
15. A.D. 358, on the restoration of Liberius, if at all, the accuunt given of it by Baluze being inconsistent with all we know of Felix and his retirement from other sources. (1) St. Athaonsius, it is well known, likens his ordination to the deeds of Antichrist (Hist. ad Monach. 775). (2) It is admitted on all hands that, at the time of his appointment, Acacius of Caesarea wns his friend; nnd that, whether orthodex or not, himself, he held communion with those who were not (Soc. ii. 37 ; Soz. iv. 11; Theodor. ii. 17). (3) It is nowhere atated that be was ejected by Constantius. He remained there by all accounts, on the contrary, till the return of Liberius, when, Socrates says, he was turned out of the church, in spite of the emperor, hy the people (ii.); Theoderet and Philostorgius, that he remored elsewhere (ib. and iv. 3); Sozomen, that he shortly died (iv. 15). In short, the story reported by Baluze (Mansi, iii, 290 ) tinds its best pendant in the story reported by Mansi farther on (ibid. 339-44).
16. A.D. 364, occasioned by the arrimal of deputies from various Macedonian syuods, professing the Nicene faith; when the synodical letter of Liberius and the Western bishops, extolling the Nicene faith and their adherence to it, preserved by Socrates (iv. 12), was penned io reply. There is no mention, however, in either document of St. Athannsius (Mansi, iii. 377-80). The letter addressed by Liberius to the bishops of Italy, with theirs to the llyyrians, wrongly supposed by Pagi to have emanated from a Roman synod under Damasus (ad Baron. A. $\mathrm{D} .369, \mathrm{D} .5$ ), would seem from expressions in this synodical to have been sent earlier (St. Hilar. Fruym. sii. et. Ben., with the note).
17. A.D. 366, called the first under Damasus, who was elected this year; and in it with 28
bushops is Ursacius, an preshyter believed, Lit

> 18, A.D. Damasus; " acquittel in adultery bro Concordins a demned.
19. A.D, 3 Damnsus; in was depused. of Antioch an confused abou thinks with attended by 9 as Theodoret natious, as Soz to the letter of to be mentione on this oecasi France. Thus the bishops pr from their of letter, adlresse in the name, no rian as well; th Further, the pe to the Easteros of Rome, but of in the copy whi aynodi habitae scripto imperiali p. 165), suggest the emperor, lik every way, there a Roman counci gravity of the being no less a Milina. The subj letter is devoted Father, Son, nad Nicene fathers. directed to this su of the Alexandria ten years before; Sozoinen says, witl Ghost (vi. 22). I dressed, in the fir Illyria, was conve elicited an energet Eastern bishops, to perors, lent additio Mansi, iii. 385-92) also carried into th the Mianese deaco And there, Mansi noder Meletius repli was tight in the gra: and for the next si: elsewhere (Constan aod Meletius is exil Meletius wha then po mission of Sabinus mission of Sabinus wo lost upon Antioes ; b to have just helped which resulted in th, cepted at Constantin (ibil). (ibill).
20. 4.D. 374, or th
nmunion by if Milan, two erity (Mansi, in becoming nste St. Aıhil: he decinred etter to the ith fragment ands to have tter nscribed genkiue and eommunion se, the referten by those essor, Julias, ifestly to its is accession: pareat inconthere was 8 em in thnse of time for tioned in his lace, and nlso ad again and he character etter of the t its having d if so, cadit ed his aeceseondromning 2:49) shruks ide.
f liberius, if Baluze being elix and his St. Athanaridination to 'onach. 775). , at the time area wns his or not, hime who were der. ii. 17). Is ejected by all aceounts, verius, when, the church, people (ib.): he remored en, that he , the story 0) finds its d by Mnasi arrival of ian synods, he synadical bishops, exadherence to as penned in er, in either iii. 377-80) the bishops ns, wrongly om a Roman . 369 , п. $\mathbf{j}$ ), synodical to uym, sili, et. er Damasus, it with 28 bishops is said to have condemned Vslens and Ursseius, und If the biographer of Eusebius, the presbyter who withstood liblerius, is to be 18. A.D. 367 (al al 369) (Manni, iii. 447).

ROME, COUNCILS OF

Damasus; who was, acquitted in it by $4+$ billg to his biographer, adultery brought against himp of a eharge of Concordius und Callistus, him by two deacons, demued.
19. A.D. 372 (al. 369), or the third under Damasus; in which Auxentius, bishop of Milan, was deposed. As Mansi points out, the synods of Antioch and Rome, with their dates, are inueh confused about this time (iii. 463-8). Thus, he attendel by gagi, took place A.D. 372. It was as Theodoret 90 bishops from Italy and France, natious, as Soz (ii. 22), or by bishops of many to the letter of Valentinian, Via). But aceording to be mentioned presently, two synols really on this occasion, one in Rome and theally met France. Thus, the probability would he that the bishops preseut from Frauce were deputies from their own syund. Again, its synodieal letter, ndilressed to the bishops of Illyria, runs in the name, not of Damasiss alone, but of Vale Further well; the latter being bishons of Aquileia. Further, the person sent with this same letter of Rome busterns was a deacon, not of the ehureh in the copy which is thus and the title given to it syooli habitae Romae ndtressed, "Esemplum scripto imperiali" (a), episcoporum xeiii. ex rep. 165), suggests its haring Holsten. Coll. Rom. the emperor, like that having been convened by every way, therefore, more of 3n. It was in a Romnn council; yet not more so than the gravity of the case would explnin, the aceused being no less a personage than the bishop of Milan. The subject nlso to which its synodieal letter is devoted is the consubstantiality of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as affirmed by the directed to this. Attention had been foreibly of the Alexnas subject, in the well-known letter ten rears before : bynod under St. Atbanasius, Sozomen anys, with spit was revived now, as Ghost (vi. 22). Tha letter ferenee to the Holy dressed, in the first intter of this council, idMlyria, was conveyed to elieited an energetic app them by Elpidius, and Eastern bishops, to appeal on their part to the noticed, running to which the rescript already perors, lent additinnal farce of the three emMansi, iii. 385-92). Buree (both misplaced in also carried into the But the same letter was the Mijanese deaco East direet from Rome by And there, Mansi Sabinus, as has been said. ander Meletius replied to it a synod at Antioch was tight in the grasp to it at once; but Antioch and for the next sixp of Valens at that moment, elcewhere (Constax years, as has been shewn and Meletius in exilnople, Cocncils of, 4), Meletius was then exite, so that no synad under mission of Sabinus possible. Yet for all that, the last upon Antion whs even then, probably, not to hare just helped to deeide coutrary, seems whieh resulted in the decide the movement, cepted at Constantinople, to aditherwards ac(ibil)
20. 4.D. 374, or the fourth under Damaana;

ROME, COUNCLLS OF

of Peter, says Mansi (iii. 467), Lucius, the rival whs cond bishop of Alexandria (Soe. iv. 21-2), ondemned 21. A.d. 378-9 (al. 373-5), or the fifth under Damasus; attented also by Peter of Alexandria, iii. 477) polhnarianism was condemned (Mausi, this i ) given eircular of Damasus monouneing Fi. 25). There weodoret (v. 10 ; enmp. Sozom. dogmatie as well as another, and vastly more by him to paulinu important, letter aldressed a eouncil distinet from antiveh (Pagi thinks at nbout the same from thin-Minsi, ibid. 501-4) continued banishme; perhaps owing to the are told particularly of Meletius, in which we 3) Paulinus warly by Sozomen (vi. 7 anal vii doret, in in was not invelved; theugh Theothen at Thessalonit, anys Paulinus was himself was or Thessalonica (v. 11). But whether he was or was not there, this letter found its wny council by at last, where it was accepted in full 80 on by Meletius and 146 bishops, A.D. 379bability, "t tharn from exile; and is, in all prorulings of that estern tome" elassed with the politau ennon (misplnced by fifth Constantinobut restored (misplaced by Mansi, iii. 461-2 his collengues inwards, 511-12). Meletins and refer to the mission of Sanswer to it, evidently ment of his exile, of sabinus at the commencecurious letter puryorting to (ibid.). Lastly, the by a Roman epuncil to the have been addressed Valentinian, with to the emperors Gratian and the subject of thout any mention of Valens, on and his party, may continued intrigues of Ursinus council (ibid. 624, with emanated also from this 627).
22. A.D. 381, the sixth und aubsequently to the $A$ der Damasus, and year, as Mansi says (ibidelan council of that tation to the Fays (ib.d.633); when the inviin their sye Eastern bishops, mentioned by them despatehed [Coval of the year following, was p. 436].

Damasus ; at wh the seventh and last under Easterns just which the synodical letter of the faith of the contioned was received, and the and at which deputies constautinople confirmed, (Mansi, whid. 639-12).
24. A.D. 386 , under of Telepte); when ni pope Siricius (comp. Synod Pagi (i) ${ }^{\prime}$. 678 ), mine ennons were paased, says extant, as from there being a synodical letter Afric, controm that pope, to the bishops of in a containing nine canons, and dated "Rome Idus Januap 80 lishops, Jan. 6 (sub die oetavâ, Areadius and, post), after the consulship of this, and several it, and in more thiner expressions contained in establish its ficthan one of its canons, go far to canon (on clerical character; so that its ninth dictated the second (inence), instead of having thage, A.D. 390 (ih. 692 ) of the conncil of Car687), may rather (ib. 692), as Mansi thinka (ib. made to suit it. have been borrowed from it or and Council of Telepte] Council of Sardica 25. A.D. 390 TherTE. condemned Jovinian and his fith his clergy himself (Mansi, ibid. 563 his followers, as he saya 26. A.D. 400 , when p- ; comp. 687).
the letter to the Africone Anastasius addressed canon 65 of the African bishopa, mentioned in

1814

ROME, COUNCILS OF
ROME, COUNCILS OF
27. A.d. 417, uader pope Zosimus, on his accession, in the church of St. Clement, as he tells us himself in his letter to the African bishops, recommending to thenr favimiable consideration the profession which Celustios the Pelagian had then submitted to his (Mansi, iv. 359 and 371).
28. A.D. 418, if at all; at which, according to Mansi, pope Zosimus issued his encyclic, calied "Trnetatoria" by Mercator, condemning Celestius and Pelagius (ibid. p. 375).
29. A.D. 430 , under pope Celeatine; on receipt of letters from Nestorius respecting some Pelagian biahops who had come to Constantinopla, complaining that they had been deprived of their sees. But his own ortbodosy being impeached it communientions nrriving about the same time from St. Cyril, his opinions were acrutinised and condemned; and he himself was threatened with excommunicntion by the pope, unless he retracted his errors within ten days of receiving this sentence, which was to be communicated simultaneously to St. Cyril (Mansi, ibid. pp. 545-52 and 1021-36).
30. A.D. 431, under the same; on receipt of the snmmons of the emperors Theodosius Junior and Valentiniau III. to the council of Ephesus convened by them, when bishops Arcadius and Projectus and a presbyter named Philip were sent thither to represent the pope. In the paper of instructions they received from him, they are told to look to St. Cyril for guidance, and to follow his lead. But of his representing the pope conjointiy with them there is not a word (Mansi, ibid. pp. 555-6). In the communications that pnssed between themselres on the subject the pope certainly delegated his own full powers to St. Cyril (i'rid. p. 1301); but this was exceptional, no such delegation ever occurring before or since, and it is explained, probably, by the accused having been bishop of new Rome (comp. Epilesus, Council of).
31. a.D. 433, under pope Sixtus III., "le 31 juillet, pour l'anniversaire de son ordination," say the anthors of L'Art de veriof. les Date's: " 11 y reçut la nouveile de la paix entre St. Cyrille et les Orientaux." Thus much, indeed, we lenrn from his own letters to John of Antioch and St. Cyril (ap. Baron. A.d. 433, n. 13 and 18). But how comes it that nothing further is added of a aynod of this same year? whose acts, said to have been collected by Sixtus himself, fill seventeen columns in Mansi (v. 1161-78), but whose true character Pagi describea as follows:-"Acta eynodi Romanne de causâ Sixti III. Pontificis Romani atupro accusati . . . . falsâ consulum notâ consignantur, et anachronismis sestent . . . ejusdem farinae sunt acth de aynodali nccusatione et expurgatione Polychroais episcopi Hierooolymitani, quae aub pontificatu Sixti 11I. Romae dicuntur habita. ... Refertur quidem accusatio et purgatio Sixti IlI. in libro Anastnsii, sed cum in eo allae fabulne recitentur, utraque historia suspectae fidei haberi debet" (ad Baron. ibid. n. 31).
32. A.D. 444, under pope Leo I., who gives more than one account of it himself, sgainst the Mandchees. (Mansi, vi. 459.)
33. A.D. 445, under the same, at which Celidonive, biahop of Besancon, was restored, and St. Hilary, metropolitan of Arles, who had deposed him, deprived of all juriadiction over the province of Vienne for the future. A special edict was obtained subsequently by the pope from Valentinian III., confirming this sentence. (Mansi, ib. p. 463; comp. v. 1243-54.)
34. A.s, 447 , under the same, at which it was ordained, with reference to some complaints which had reached him from sicily, that no bishop should alienste the goods of his church in future without the full consent of his clergy. (Mansi, ib, p. 493; comp. v. 1313-16.)
35. A.D. 449 , under the same, nt which the acts of the robber-council of Ephesus, as it was called (Latrocinium), were rejected. (Jansi, ib. p. 509.)
36. A.D. 450, when the same pope bestught Valentinian Ill., then present in Rome, to write to Theodosius Junior, and get $n$ general council convened, at which the late proceedings of the robber-council might be reversed. (Mansi, ib. p. 511.) This, in all probability, was the council to which the Liber Synodicus refers, though Mansi thinka otherwiae (ib.).
37. A.D. 451 , at which, probably, the synodical letter of the Chalcedon was received, informing the pope of all that had been done there (the date assigned to it is Nov. 1; see Mnnsi, vi 145). That he confirmed or accepted it all is a pure fiction of the Liber Synodicus (Mansi, vi. 869-72), flatly contradicted by his persistent opposition to the 28th canon; and it is even doubtful whether the aecond form of the creed (thnt of Constantinople), authorised there, was ever regarded by him with the same favour sa the first (that of Nicaea). Manzi considers twe canons were passed here to which the pope refers, as having been discussed at a Inte synod, in one of his many letters; but it is by ne means elear when that letter was written, or to whom (ib. comp. vi. 385-92). The authors of L'Art de verif. les Dates make the year of the aynod to which he refers A.D. 458.
38. A.d. 465 , under pope Hilary, to consider a dutiful address from the metropolitan and bishops of Tarragona, relative to two bishops of that province; one whom they wnited to ordnin, and the other to depose. No doubt the thing most intended to be gathered from their proceedings was the giorification of their metropolitan and of the pope. But neither the submisiive tone of their letters, nor the shouts of applnuse that interrupted them, as they were read out; nor yet the shouts of applanse with which the five canons proposed by the pope for regulnting their case were received; nor, again, the character of the five canons which he grounded on them in hia reply,-make for anything half so much, as ag in the genuineness of this synod, which was evidently concocted to aerve a purpose; nor can its standing first of the papal decrees, added to the collection of Dionysius Exiguus by a later hand, be considered much of a presumption in its farour. (Nigne, Patrol. lxvii. 315-20, where all the documents are given in succession, which they are not ia Mansi, vii. 959-68; and then 924-29.)
39. A.D. 478 , under pope Simplicius, when Timothy (the Weasel) of Alexandrin. Peter (the Fuller) of Antioch, and others were conilemned. Inferred by Pagi from the words of Felix III. his aucceasor. (Mansi, vii. 1017-22.)
40. A.D. 483, under Felix III., at which a letter of remonstrance was sent to the emperor

Zono for tak and ill-trenti Acncius, bish conduet to ap 41. A.D. 48 Vitalis and stantinople w synod, and in there, were Acacius himse giving an aco addressed, in orthodox pres stantinople ; b the pope hin stated at the e if se , wind:e $w$ seven, $y$-seven met on this oc bably, the lette lated nnd inter with l'agi to th 42. A.D. 485 Fuller having Calendio driven instigation of A demned $n$ gecon Fuller also, and foreed upon Ale 43. A.D. 487, the same, to cor whe had lapsed tions were pass oncyelic of Feli 1056-59) of that 44. A.D. $49+$ and attended by weil-known decre recipinadis, as it buting it to him 831, for the abb Spicel. ii. 31, ed. I being in others predecessor, or Hor But by Pearson (Hit.t. Lit, c. v. Gel epurions, and doub Ecol. prim. c. 9). agninst ita genuin developed as they upholders nre not a What pope it was Baron. A.D. 494, n. among the decree Exiguus, who only expresses great per his preface (ap. Mlig Neither is it inclod bis collection, whieh A.D. 731, and supple popes, anterior to $G$ in Dionysius. (4) MSS. anomg the deer oither last of all, or $i$ (3) Neither is it qu writer before Charle salnetion given in it t with the pope of hi: Gyoot. ii. 13; ap. Mi comp. art. Second Nic dirided on some points

HOME, COUNCILS OF

Zono for taking heretles under his protection and ill-treating the orthodox; and a citation to conduct to appear of Constantiaujle, for similar Vitalis and Miscnus, whe had, at which bishops stantinople with the desint been sent to Consyod, and inveigled by inatiches of the previous there, were exgled by acacius on their arrival Acacius himsolf mmunicated and deposed, and giving an account of what. A symontical letter, addressed, in the of what had beell done, was orthodox presionters nad archimandrites, to the stantinople; but it must have been writte Conthe pope himself Forty-three bishops are stated at the end to have subscree bishops to are if so, wenee were the rest of the sixty-seven or seven $y$-seven bishops who are stated to have met on this oeension? ( $I b, \mathrm{pp} .1137-42$.) Frobably, the letter, as it stands now, is both mutilated and interpolnted, and should be assigned with Pagi to the next synod.
42. A.D. 485, under the same: Peter the Fuller having been restored at Antioch, and instigation of Aut by the emperor Zene at the demned a second time, and with thereupon conFuller also, and Peter Mongus, who Peter the forced upon Alexaadria. (Ib. pp. 1165-70.) been 43. a.D. 487, or, as Mansi thip. 1165-70.) the same, to consider the case of, 488 ; under who had lapsed under persecution. Sir resolus tions were passed, and are contained in the eneyelic of Felix III. ( $B$. Pp. 1171-74. and 1056-59) of that date.
44. A.D. 494 (al. 496), under pope Gelasius, and attended by seventy bishops, whence the well-known decree, de libris recipiendis et non recipicndis, as it is called in some MSS., attributing it to him (c.g. the catalogue made, A.D. Spicel. ii, 31 abbey of St. Requier, in Dach. spice. ii. 31, ed. Baluze), is said to have issued; being in others attributed to pope Damasus, a Bretecessor, or Hormisdis, a successor of Gelasius. But by Pearson (lind. Ityn. c. 4), and Care spurious, and doubtful byे have been pronounced Eocl. prim, c. 9). Yet the strongest argumeuts. agninst its genuineness have not berguments developed as they might upholiers are not agreed in what bear or (1) Its What pope it was held, as Pagi confesses (ad Bsron. A.D. 494, n. 19). (2) lt is not included smong the decrees of Gelasius by Dionysius Exiguus, who only just missed seeing him, and expresses great personal veneration for him in his preface (ap. Migne, Patrol. Ixvii. 231). (3) Neither is it included in the later uppendix to bis collection, which ends with Gregory II., or A.D. 731, and supplements the decrees of three popes, nnterior to Gelasius, that are not found in Dionysius. (4) Neither is it placed in any MISS. anong the decrees of Gelasius, but always either last of all, or in a distant corner by itself. (j) Neither is it quoted or mentioned by any sriter before Charlemagne, whe disputes the sauction given in it to the acta of pope Silvester with the pope of his own day, Adrian 1. (Lite Gqool, ii. 13; ap. Migne, Patiol. xeriii. 1078 ; comp. art. Second Nicene Creeid). (6) MisS. are dirided on some points of importance, as to what it eontains, e.g. Whether its list of apocryphal pated.)

ROME, COUNCILS OF

1815
works included the Apostolical Canons, or not. As far back as the 9th ceatury, there were men who his collecti, maysius having included them in before and since. popes cited them approviagly in some MSS. on that sertheless, they ure found above.) Another that list still. (Beveridge, as general councils, that of constether among its cluded or not to most constantioople was init is included in sumost MSS. it is left out, but Mansi considered at first he theed matict of MSS ence; but in his Surst he need make no referrenders to full vis supplement he almits his omissions and conw (Viii. 151-72). (7) The contents aloue should har of its neknowledged since. It classes writings under thred it long i. Biblical; ii. Pritings ander three heads Under the first head, as Citic. Apocryphal decreti se S. Hieronymum in ame sass: "Autoz fitetur. . . Jamynam in omnibus sequi proS. Scripturae librorom Hieronymo in definiendo pugnat." The seroad ranone e diametro reration (taken in substanend opens with a declaof Anacletus, ind the from the third decretal Council, in the Jse preface to the Nicene the prerogatives of the selsidorian collection) on and Antioch, and the sees of Rome, Alexandria, eneh, mach, and the precedence belonging to among sees, no mo mention of Constantinople council of cors, according to most MSS., of the on which it descauts of the fathers folls next. After them, a list received: and frollows, whose works are to be subsequent from this, to say nething of other one and all, are lions, the apostolical fathers, we read: "Item left out, though midway in it sedis praesulis; licet beati Silvestri, apostolicae igaoretur;" ; lieet ejus qui conseripsit nomen by other docunoen this is preceded and followed the third hend of apoere same stnmp. Finally, includes the Ecclesiasphal and rejected works the works of Tertullian, Lactantius, Africaous, St. Clement of Alexandria, Vietorinus, and others-names which speak for themselves. Tc give pope Gelasius his due, we may fairly say that if only the letters assigned to him in the Dionysian collection are genuine, this decree or teennot have been, by any possibility, dictated or penned by him. All the evidence of his connexion with it is comprised in the twofold circumstance, that most MSS. containing it hare his name prefixed to it ; and ail the last name figuring in it, that of Acacius of Constantinople. But Acacius died three years before Gelasius became pope, and was only condemned by him as having been condemned, and never absolved, by his predceessors. Perhaps those turgid expressions of pope Hormisdas on which Pagi relies, may have suggested its composition, to somebody who could find no work of that kind extant, but thought there shoull be. (Mansı. viii. 145-76, part of which has been antica
45. A.D. 495, under the same, when Misenus, one of the two bishops who had been sent to Constantinople by Felix JII., and been excomrmunicated for misconduct there, is said to have been sbsolved (Mansi, viii. 177-86). This, again, has no place given to it among the genuine decrees or letters of Gelssius, eren in Mansi; neither is it found in the Pseudo Isidorian collection. As far as form is con. cerned, it is an exact counterpart of the reputed synod under pope Hilary, A.D. 465, deseribed above.

46-51, A.D. 499-505, under pope Symmachus. There are no less than six synouls attributed in Mansl to this pope; but their dates, number, and acts are both hopelessly confused and varlously assigned. Not one of them ls glven by Dienywius Exiguus, who mlght have witnessed them all; only the first three are given in the ajpeadix to his collection; for the remaibider our sole vaucher is the l'vento-lsillore. Theodore, the reader, a Greek and contemporary, mentions but oue, viz. the second; the author of the lives of the l'opes but two, vla, the seennl and the fourth. To understand them properly, we must recall the lacts. lamrence, one deacen, was consecrated pope on the same day by his party, that Symmachus, another deacon, was by his; and Theodoric the Arian as well as Guthle kiag, resident at Kaveuna, was invoked by each more than once to declde between them, so that of turbalent gatherings on both sides there was probably no lack; nnd Symmachus gaining the day, embellished accounts would be written of his subsequently, to enhance their importance and to swell their number. There is a strong family likeness between them all and the last under Gelasius, in peint of form. In Mansl they atand as follows :-
(I) A.D. 499, when five canons respecting papal elections are said to havo been deeroed, anild repented plaudits (viii, 229-38).
(2) A.D. :01, at which Theodore, says Theodoric, Anastasius says Symmachus, constituted his rival Laurence bishop of Nuceria (ib. 245-9).
(3) A.D. 502, at which a late elict of king Oloacer, approved by pope Simplicius, ordaining that ne episcopal elections should be held in future withent concurrence of the eivil magistrate, and that all alienations of chureh property by the bishop of the diocese should be void, was annulled (ib. 261-72).
(4) A.D. 503, ealled, from a door in the chureh of St. 'eter of that name, palmaris; and ocessioned by a reaction in fnveur of Laurence; whea 1 I5 bishops declared Symmachus innoeent of the erimes laid to his charge, and condemned Peter, bishop of Altino, whom Theodorie had appointed arbitrator in the ${ }^{*}$ repewed schism, together with Laurence himself. Ennodius, bishop of Ticino, drew up a lengthened apology for the acts of this synorl, which is still extant (ib. 271,-94; and ior the rest, 247-62).
(5) A.D. 504 , confirming the acts of the previous synod, and conmmending the ajology for it by Ennodius in high terms (ib. 295-303).
(6) A.D. 505, at which all who had possessed themselves of any goods belongiag to the chureh, were to be annthematised unless they restored them (ib. 309-16).
52. A.D. 518, under prope Hormisdas; for ending the schism between the churches of Rome and Constantiaeple, whieh began with Felix Ill, and Acaeius, and had lasted thirtyfive years (Nansi, ib. p. 579). The negotintions and terms at last ngreed upon may be read among the letters of pope Hormisdas (ib. pp. 434-52).

53-55. All said to have been held A.D. 531, under pope Ibniface II., yet there is $n$ sumpicions eharacter about them all. (1) No deerews of this pope are given in the apgemilis to Dinnysius Exiguus; und but one by the l'seudis-lsidore, which jroves its uwn spuriousness (Mansí, ib. $1 \mathrm{i}^{\text {, }} \mathbf{7 : 3 1} \mathrm{I}-\mathrm{i} 35$ ). (2) The sole authority for the lifst and seconil of these sypods is Anastaslas, or whoever wrote the Life of this pope; and the reason given for them lo, that at the first he constituted a dearea named Vigilius his successor; at the second he annulled his own act, as contrary to the canons (comp. the alleged letter of jope Silvorius on the subject; Mithisi, 1x. 6. and another allogen synod under Boniface 111. below). (3) Fur the third, which was cnly brought to light in modern times, there is an authority whatever, aphrt from the MS, wintaining it, any more than there is for a symul of Coastantinople, which is there said to have led to it. The heading given It In Nnesi, which was made for it by the discoverer of the Mis, as he owas himself-lacas Holstenius, prefect of the Vatie:a-and explains fully the interest attnched by him to its discovery, runs as follows: -"Coneilium Romanum III, que leeti sunt libelll a Stejhano Larissae metropwlitano trangmissi, atque prolatae o serinio sedis ajostolicae complures epistolae, quibus eunstat, quanvis in toto mundo sedes apostolien eeclesiarum sibi jure vindicet principatum, specialem tamen in eceleslas Illyriel gubernationem sibi viadicasse" (ib, pp. 739-84). Nut one of the papal epistles given in it oceurs in Dionysins Exiguns; nad the first lo his collection to bear them ont is one addressed to Aoastasius, bishop of Thessilonlea, by Leo 1. (Dligne, Patrol. Ixvii. M91-6), whose letters come last here.
56. A.D. 534, under pope John Il., where the proposition-"Unus e Trinitate passus est in earne"-was approved, notwithstanding its previous rejection by pope llormisdos, and the opposition male to it by the monks called acometi by the Greeks. (Mansi, ib. 1. 815.)
57. A.D. 589, under pepe Pelagius 11., unless the genuineness of his letter, in which he speaks of it, is to be given up. But the only rision for questioning it is the interesting information it contains, about the prefaces then ased in his chureh. Particulars of them having been asked of him by the German and French bishops, ho says, after consultation with his syned, in relly: "Invenimus has nevem praefationes In sacro cataloge tantummodo recipiendas, quas longs retro veritas in Romanâ ecelesiâ hactenus servavit:" viz. one for the first Sunday after Easter-no doubt, that of Easter repeated; one for the Ascension; one for Pentecest ; one for Christmas; one for the Transfiguration ; one for festivals of the Apostles; one for huly Triaity; one for holy Cross; and one for lent. Ths grounds on which Pagi and Bona would discredit this statement are far from cenclusive. (Maesi, is. 1021.)

58-61. Four sydods appear to have met under pope Gregory 1.; at least Mansi gives four.
(1) A.D. 590 , at the request of the emperor Mauriee, to end the schism that had ensued on the condemation of the three cbapters at the fifth council. (Mansi, x. 453.)
(2) A.D. 595, to hear a eomplaint made by John, presbyter of Chalcedon, against John, hishop of Constantinople, who had condemaed

120

hlm for heress (lb, PI, 475 &
(3) A.t. 601 diethg rpiseop It is signed by byters, and fint
(t) A.b. 601 was comelemned tery bulit und reigning jojw, will, ( $I 6, \mathrm{j}, 4$
62. A.t. tion, sereaty-two bis the dencons at Beniface HI., wh steps for the aly see of liome shon the previous pro There is only the that there was Bonitime II., whis
63. A.1. 610, which Mellitus, dentally present, with its decrees, Ethelbert and are from Berle. 13nt extaat, purporting tioned on solid gro Sjelman and Wilk iii. 62-9; ; comp. I) 64. A.D. 640, un Ecthesis of the demned, as appear Liber Duurnus of $t$ mentionel by name
65. A.5. 6+1, un. the Monothelite $h$ pp. 697-700.)
66. A.D. 648, ur Pyrrhus, patrinreh demned as a relaps 783-4.) 67. A.D. 6b7, unde bishop of Lalipa in by Paul, his metrop xi. 10 I ; comp. p. 16 68-70. A.D. 679 Three such are dis and Professor Stubbs iii. 131-41), the ti seventeen bishops a and discussed questio chureh, but without the second, which cor presbyters, the reste see was decreed, subj bishops of his own ch consisted of 125 bis preparation for the sixt the Monothelites, Wi of York, nad signed Scottish, and Irish ch these councils in Ma 179-88).
71. A.D. 685, unde Ansitasius nlone record tion of a bushop in Sa hâping tithen place with (Msesi, xi. 1092.)
Wilfrid was ace under $p$

ROME, COINNCLIS OF

him for heresy; he was pronounced Innocent.
(3). 4 . 8. )
dleting ppiswoural whter a decree was passed interIt in signed by twitericrence with momanteries. byters, and fiur wentyone bishops, fimiteen pres.
 was condembed'; and l'roinse a a tireek monk, tery bult and dodlented to abbat of a munasreigning jown, received permission tow by the wili. (Ib. 1., 489.) permission to make a 62. s.1. biot, said sereaty-two hishonlis, thirty befoen attendel by the deacous and minur ofour preshyters, all Boulface III., when minur oriers, noder pelpe steps for the ajpolntment of n successor in mo see of liome should ever in of naturessor in the the previons perpe hal been burted three daya. There is ouly the same authority for this synod thant there was for two similar synools ander Bonitice II., which see (Mansi, x. 501).
63. A.D. 610 , under pope Boniface IV., at which Mellitus, bixhop of London, was accideutally present, and from which ho returned with its decrees, as well as lettern to king Ethelbert and archbishop Laureace, aa we learn from Bede. But the genuineness, of all now extant, purporting to be such, has been questioned on solid grounda by the learned editors of iii. (i,2-9; comp. Mansi (Councils and Documents, iii. (i2-9; ; comp. Mansi, x. 503-8).

Ecthesis of the emperor Severinus, when the demaned, as the emperors from neraelins was conLiber Duiurnus of the popes $n$ profession in the mentioned by name. (Nansi, where this pope is 65. A.r. 6jt1, under pope Jo. 679.) the Monothelite hereay was condemped which 19.697-700.) hereay was condemned. ( $n$. 6ib. A.D. 648 Pyrrhus, patriarch of conse Theodore, when demned as a relapsed Monotheliteple, was con-78:3-4.)
67. A.d. 667, under pope Vitalian, when bishup of Lapra in Crete, who had been deposed by Paul, his metropolitan, was restored. (Ib. xi. 101; comp. p. 16.)

68-70, A.D. 679-80, under pope Agatho. Three such are distinguished by Mr. Haddan and Professor Stula and Professor Stubbs (Councils and Documents, ili. 131-41), the tirst of which conaisted of seventeen bishops and thirty-five and diseussed queations relating to prisbyters, church, bnt without reference to the Einglish the second, which consistelence to Wiltrid; at presbyters, the restorstition of filt Wisfrid to and see whs decreed, subject to its division to his bishops of his own choice; at the third, which consisted of 125 bishops, and was held, in preparation for the aixth general council, against the Monothelites, Wilfrid took part as bishop Scottish, and lrish churches. The the British, these councils in Mansi needs revising (xi 179-88).
71. A.D. 685, under pope John V., but Abastasins alone records it; when the consecrat tion of a bushop in Sardinia was annalley, as haping taken phace without leave from the pope.
(Msnsi, xi. 1092.)
Wilfrid was accused and acquitted a second time 82).

home, COUNCILS OF

1817
The pieces relating to it are bust seen in the new edition of Spelman and Wilking (Councils and lth5-8).
73. A.D. 706, under pope John VII.-at least tion frona the emporor receift of a commonicaa decialon on the quindastinian II., refluesting which this pope was too according to his biographer, died to give, and, clining. Mansi makes an, died soon atter deo this aynod and the previous one; lin bet ween Year Justinian had not beus one; but in that VII. become pape. ( 16 .) been restorel, nor Joho 74. A.D. 710 , if at all, the only document on record Mansi donbts it being a speech of Benedict record netributed to it complaining of na uncanonichl ashep ot Milan, metropolitan rights by popenical Invanion of hla xil. 219-2t.) 75-77. Three synods, according to Mansi, met under pulpe Gregory ll. (1) A.D, 721, when illicit marring"s mai seventeen canons ngainst were passed under am consulting of wizards twenty-three bishopes, inemid, and subacribed by teen presbyters, and four deang the pope, four-261-8.) (16. pp .

Freling. A. 724, when Corbinianus, bishop of Frelingen, who hal petitioned the prope to be allowed to resign his see, was or to it. (I6. 1p. 267-8.) was ordered to return 3. A.D. 725 , ordered by the emperor Leo $I I I$, IsRurinn, was resisted and condemmed ( $\%$, sumed the 70). The two letters of Gregemnel (i). p1. 268best explain his own attitude this monarch are given in syonods under pope Gregory HI . Anastasins nlone, hans, and this time not from by two marble tablets in tht being confirined luscribed with their acts, thongh in an crypts state. The first of acts, thongh in a defaced 731, on a presbyter named is judgment, A.D. been sent to Constantinople Gregory, who had latory letter froin the pople with ma expostuWhich he haid fid the pope to the emperor, of the synoll 1 e was pardoned At the rejuest with it. At the second pardoned, and seat back bishopa and a large seond attended by ninet $y$-three a constitution was publicourse, lay and clerical, hal bern the inmeniorined, setting torth what hitherto respectiongorial costom of the charch cating all who contravenged and excommunistrance was despatehed tit. A fresh remonwith no better suceess, to the emperor, but

78, 79.

80, 81. Two syouds. (Mnader pi, xil. 297-300.)
likewise given by Mansi. The first is dated are third year of the usurper The first is dated the thirty-second of Lnitprer Artabasdus, and the (A.D. 743), both inditprand the Lombard king style. It passed fitcating the uawn of a new discipline, but the ifteen creditable canons on trustworthy (ib. 38 subscriptions to it are not here through the paginntion). At misfe runs A.D. 745, two priests named At ing second, Clement, having been condemned Adnitivert and St. Boniface in France, were deposed and annthematised. The proceedings against and are spread over the proceedings against them scriptions to it include seven blahops, betide the prive, anl surmiteon proni,yters. (Ib, Pp. 373-N1; it shoul. bu, 20:5-402.)

ROOD

 is markeil turubtil liy Munal, and deals ondy with granta to monavteriex ( Masai, xil, 367-70). Another, which he gees lesa remson to doubt, rolating to a quarrel betwen solghis, archbishop of Rarenna, anh, necorling to Mansi, this poje, is placed by him four years later (ib. p. 655).
83. A.10, itil, under foje l'aul l., granting priviliges and exchuthons to certain muthaterios and churrhes built by him, as njpears by hia letter. ( $/ b, 1,660 ;$ comp. $1,0+6$.)

8t. A.b. 716, wall to have been hell at the Laterin, unifr pepe stephen IIl., when julement was givell againat the late oecupant of his see, Constantibe, nut the old traditions of the church respecting inanges upheht. Mansi makes much of what he consiliors the recovered nets of this coumeil. The nuthors of L'Art de verif. les Dater inteserve pithilly: "las itate en eat singulière," It rins as follows: "In nomlue Patris et Filli et Spiritûs Sancti; regnante unâ pt eadem suncta Trinitate . . . mense Aprili, die $12^{\mathrm{ma}}$, indictione $7^{\mathrm{man}} ;{ }^{\prime \prime}$ and the acts which follow are commensurate (ib. Pll. 703-22). Another, also said to have been held at the tateran untor jope Alrian l., A.t. $77+$ (whleh Mansi feels he has no uption but to pronounce spurlous, yet, "ne quil demit al plenan de re conciliari notillam," brhats at full length), has thle hending -pitomised from Sigubert-" in quâ Cmolo Magno jus dntum fertur a pontifice, ut pontificem jisum Romanum et eplscopros eligeret et investituram concederet." This and the "Sicilian monarchy" of a later pope may deserve comparison (ib. pp. 88: -8 ). Another, A.1n, 792, under the smo, is reproted by Mansi, when Felix, bishop "t Urgel, the Adoptionixt, atjured his heresy; hut it is nuwheresuli! thit he did this in a signod, as Frobenius poilits out (Diss. de Haer, Elip, et Frh. § $2 \underline{2}$; ap, Migne, Putrol. c. 1,312 ; comp. Mansi, xili. 857).
85. A.5. 794, under the sume, confirming the comdemnation of Elipunitus and Fellx at the council of Franklort. (Mansi, ib. p. 859 ; Froben. ib. § 39.)
86. A.D, 790, naler pope Leo III., when a tract of Fellx ngainst Alenin was rondemned. (Munsi, ib. 1p. 1029-il2 ; Froben. ib. § 43.)

A new era was openel in church and state, ns well for tho West as for Rome, , by the next synod, A.D. 800 , when Charlemagne whs solemnly crowned emperor on Christinas Day, in the chureh of St. l'eterr, hy the reigning pope; but our limits forbid any further details of this synod. (Mansi, ib. pp. 1041-8.) [E. S. Ff.]

ROMULUS (1), Feb. 17; commemorated at Concordia (Mart, Unarri.) ; at Aquileia (Mart. Hieron.).
(2) Mar. 24; commemorated In Manretanis (Mart. Usuard. $;$ Mieron., Notker.).
[C. H.]
RON WUS, June 1, 6th century; commemoraterlite Armorica (Boll, Acta SS. Jun. i. 83).
[C. H.]
ROOD. Thero seems nu satisfactory evidence that what is commonly underatood by a rood, that is, a crnss fixel aloft upon a beam or gallery in the middle of a church, is to be found within the period embraced In this work. it is, iwleed, allirmed by l'ugin (Glosactry of Eicclewiosticad Uraunents) that these crossea between the mavo and choir of large churches, or the mave And chancel of smail ones, are of great qutiquity. The same in affirmed by the abbe Migne. bit it will be found uron comparison that he has simply tranalated l'ugin's remarks, and the refore cannot be accepited as independent authority,

The currout statements on the subject roay he conventently taken from Migne (Encyel. Theitoy.). It is atlirmed by him that Geurgins (indinns, whe of the Byzantine historiama of the listh century, leseribes an nacient cross over a sureph is the church of St. Sophia nt Constantinopie. He says that it was of gold, onriched with jurecions stenes, and furnished with chandeliera. Digne quites this writer in proof of the assertion that such croasea are "d'une haute nutijuite," and assigas him, probably by a tyjographical errur, to the Sth century, whereas he was really of the 15th century. I Lut what is more veriaus, he gives no reference, and the present writer has been unable to verify the quotation. Yet it may be saill with confidence that in his wark Mepl certninly describes no such cross. The uly cross which he there describes is the eross of the ciborium-a cross, it may be added, which corresponds with the one described above, buth in its being of gold and in its nolornment with jewela.

Ihut all theae quotations, whether in fuglish or French works, are ultimately tracenble to the grent work of Gonr (In Ord. Siteri Ilinisterit Nutue, p. 19), who says, "Illum [sc, ambenem] qui in magná fuit ecclesiâ describit MS. Regium Codini verbis vulgaribus, т $\delta \nu$ ó $\alpha \mu \beta \omega \nu a \mu \dot{e}$ [sue] pirapiov [sic, without accent] кal $\lambda v \chi \nu i \pi a p / \omega \nu$.

 ठoтa' d $\nu \tau i$ ठो $\sigma \tau \eta \theta^{\prime} \omega \nu$ ठ $\alpha \mu \beta \omega \nu$ el $\chi \in \nu$ ब $\nu \alpha \theta \in \nu$ $\delta \lambda \delta \chi p \cup \sigma a \pi$ ттdбиa." If this passage is correct, and if the information of Codinus, a comparstively late suthor, is to be relied upon, this citation obviously concludes the whole question.

But one or two observations must be advanced upon it. Goar quotes from a MS. copy of Codinus, without anying from which of his works the quotation is taken ; but the passnge is not to be found in the printed edition of Codiuus, $d e \delta$. Sophia, which is where it would naturally be expected (Corpus Scriptorum Histuriae Byzantinae, Bonnae, 1849). There is, indeed (p. 142), a deseription of the ambo, which in some degree resembles the citation of Gonr, but there is nn account of a cross upon it (the cross described in that pago is the cross of the ciborium), nor is there any notice of a variant in the reading amongst the critical notes of Meursius and Lambecius.

It may of course be some other work of Codinus, which Goar quotes; but the present writer has attempted in vain to find anything like it in any of the works of Codinus in the priated collection ahovo referred to.

It may be adiled that there is no mention of the cross in the metrical description of the ambo of St. Sophia, which is given by Paul the Silentiary, though Ducange, in his commentary upon it, says that Codinusadds a mention of the crous

The clasale la sotnewhat sisstijues, I'ari this writer 'f securlingly it the aubserjuen
The earliest midile of nch secount of the (A.1). 795) set Rome. The atavilla: " I 1 ne it simifiens jo Apostoli nutrit. fixunexaryent, giota et duas." p. 1222, ed. Jij in the aeconut to the conclosjo in the sense that or gailery.
These two exn of Coulinus and the only two fact the "great antig appears that neit from taint ; and t ceeded in finding prove imilisjutably our period hal e aloft ujon a beam
Migne states th and choid was and cross, hut without such screens exist churches ; that dow epoch churches wer them, either in Fr and that every chu sureen down to the these crosses were ment. In all this, and, in some ress spoiling, the previnu Pugin (and after the cross over the from the upper are chains, which were tion. But neither in is there anything w perind traversed in ti There is abuninnt respoming to the roo esrly church. (See 1 Hippolytus;" Gregor the jube of the ehu pope Martin I., who Latersn council read charch.) Viollet-le-D certsin that the ambon chnreh up to the I4th like what we understal (Dictionnaire raisonné "Jube"). But whate precise form of the stru seems to be no satisfact early ceaturies they we Indeed, the earliest ext Due is able to arduce placed above a trahes is Wony, which datea from
: in, introct, Ecterenintrene in thn nave , mave ${ }^{\text {n. }}$ untit nuity. ligne. But liat he has uf therefore thurity, jett may he 1. Theidok.). sulinus, wne thentury, rean iu the le. lie saya th prectuus "rs. Higne vertion that iquiti'," and hical error, really ot the serjous, he writer haw Yet it mny s work Itepl das, Codinus The ouly cross of the , which cerove, buth in with jewela. or in Fuglish reable to the ri Ministerií : amisnems IS. Reginm $3 \omega v a \mu \mathrm{E}$ [scc] w et infra, $\mu е \tau \dot{\alpha} \mu a \rho \gamma \alpha=$ $\lambda u \chi \nu i \pi a p l \omega \nu$. xs $\rho^{\prime}$, fix $\quad$ ot xpitápıa dri* $l_{\chi<\nu} \alpha_{\nu a} \theta_{e \nu}$ e is correct, a compars. 1 upon, this de question. be advauced opy of Codiis workg the is not to be odinos, de $S$. uaturally be riae Byzanced ( $\mathrm{p}, 1+2$ ), some degree there is no 3 described in rium), nor is the reading ins and Lamer work of the present iud anything dinus in the o mention of of the ambo ul the Silennentary upon 1 of the crose

The classlent work on the antbect of roond-loft thla writer yutces is the The only pasage wheh acerringly it seems that nill the gar, to which the allibee nient writera whe the statements of The enrliest nutive of a to be tracel. middle of a church if acmetimea set ap in the acemunt of the silver figure mes anid to be the (A.B. 793) set up in the midite tripe Lete ill. He of St. I'eter's at staxius:" Ifse nutem a beo thus given by Anaet almifichs pantifex fecit protectus venerabilis Apwostcli mutrituris sui, in medniflea beatil Petri fixun ex aryentop purissimo medio basilicae crucigiotu et duns." (iritue Pontifi Len. libras spitutup. [tez, ed. Migne.) Thertif, Leo III. §:84, in the accomut given by Anest however, nothing to the conclusion that this cruafif which lealy la the sense that it wa mise crucifix was a ruod or gullery.
These t
of Culinus and the remark alteged description the only two ficte themark of Anastasius-are the "grent antipluity" of the read to suppert appears that neither of them is altuguther thus from taint ; and the present writer hat her free ceeded in firsting any eviderter has not sucprove indisynutaly that ancience which would our perimithal either crosa or cructifix within aloft upen a beam or gallery. or crucifix raired Migne states that every s. and chuid was naciontly surmounted seen nuve cress, but without imaze of ourted by a rich such screens existed both in our Saviour ; that churches; that duwn to a compreek and Latin epoch charches were never compatratively modern them, either in France, Germseructed without and that every church in Ermany, or Flanders ; ocreen down to the reign ef glaud hal a roodthese crosses were destroyed by Act of p intion ment. In all this, hourever hy Act of Parlinasd, in eome respects, misunder standing anid spoiling, the previuns remarks of P uqian. Pugin (and after him Migue) observ. the cross over the gecreen wis ofteu euspended from the upper areade of the church bysended chains, wlich were often of the church by thre constructioa. But neither in this branch of the eubject is there anything which bring it within the perind traterseed in this werk.
There is abundant evidence that a gallery corearly church. (See Prodtlor or jube existed in the Hippolytus;" Gregory of Tiua, "Hyma of St. the jubee of the church Tours, whe describes pope Martin I., whe had the carlous of nud Lateran ceuncil', whead from the the canous of the chureh.) Viollet-le-Duc, however, loft of that cortaia that the ambons of both Greakee it for church up to the 14th century Greek and Latin lise what we uaderstand by a roede not at aill (Ditionmaire raisomné de by la reod-loft or jube "Jubé"). But whatever mar haye ture, s. v. precise form of the atructures in quasestion, there wems to he ne satisfactory evidence that in the arly centuries they were aurmounted by a roed.
Indeed, the earliest Inded, the earliest example which Viollet-Ite Duc is able to placed above a trates ie one in the museum of or Cluag, which datee from the in the mugeum of Con
[H. T. A.]

rosaliy

1810 IROAARY (copellin, paternostor, proculue, The therium), a luvico for numbering proculice, The early Eavtern, and probabiy jume Chrintian, hurin enjolun wagzent $n$ graat antiquity. "The Muvlims are vayers hre times a day, and gooct certain preseribed parficular in gring through evoning. It caumut, inorruis, moan, and wonder that the use therafire, be matter of is commun anmong ind with tasvels ealleif $s h$ imma) probability they were conmummediass, In all nid buthists long herfure the ameng lininlus (I'rof. Monier Willans in the Chritian era" 9. 1878). A rusary is caited in Sthentrm, Feb.
 smarcua, "remeung chaptet,", apy sumetimes the rosary of the echurch of (ibiti). Nevertheless, mandern. Pius V., in a buill is comparatively St. Dominic the inventill (1596), aseribes to pwalter of the blessed invention of "the resary or understoaf of the st Hergin," and this has been he scems rather to be ting of bends so called; but of the methol of devotiveaking, under that natue, ( $1: 50$ Ave Marias otion inventel by St. Deninic beald are, howerer, dend 15 Paternusters). The 1499; but we should describer by Polydore Vercil they were not yot unil infer from his silence that orandi postremo invent a "rosiny." "Est modua precatoritos,' Transen sus per cilculos ('giobulos land, June, i. 911 ). Nurberti, xvii. $1+9$, in Bulvulgus modo preculas , dicam, lignees, quisa pelliat." These he descrite paternostros npthrented, ten smallar calculi ion ns pierced and being throughout for calculi tor the Ave Marins puteruoster, to the owed by one larger for the gether ( $D_{e}$ lhocut. number of fifty-five altothis instrument he ier. v. 9). The iuvention of who tourished he nssigns to Peter the lleminit, may be due to Peter. The number of beidr century we meet Godivn, whe, with her a similar contrivance. the monastery of Coreatry ind Leofric, foundeal "circulum gemmarereatry in 10t0, possessed singularum contactu singulas filo insuernt, nt numerum non practermitulas orationes iscipiens mesb, Script. post leedm, 165 " (Gulielm. Malcouncil of Cenlchythe 1 , 165, ed. 1596). The the death of a bishop ": A.D. sle, "irects that on noster pro co cantetur ", septem beltidum paterunderstood of a rosiry for counting This has been Car. Macri (Hierolexicon, in $v$ ) prayers ; but "boltides = (Merotexicon, in v.) suggests that and the Bollandists nccept h. rounds, or returns), Dominieo, Aug. i. 432, 433 ) explanation ( De $_{\text {S }}$ S. ascribes the invention of 433 ). Another error died in 735; but antion of rosaries to Bede, who jecture inuilt a pop apparently this is only a conour period, indeed, I meet with li. u. s.). Within of a contrivance at al eet with but one instance an Egyptian ascetic of the 4t. Paul of Pherma, proserited him by rule 300 prup century, "haring many pebbles, which he keyt pryers, collected as threw out one by bone at eepery his bosom. and Laus. Pallid. 23; Sozom. Ilist. Eccl. ver " (llist. sied. Hist. Tripart., viii. 1). The origin and history both senses of the word of the "rosary" in in Acta Eanctorw, Bord are discussed at length 19-21, Aug. 4, i. $422-437$. Se S. Domin. Conf. Praef. in V. Stec. Bened. in5 See also Mabiil. Schuiltingius, Bibliotheca Ecclesiastion and Conr.

1820

 ROSULAColon. Agripp. 1599. The latter (I. II. 205) gives a hist of earlier writers on the subject.
[W. E. S.]
ROSULAA, Sept. 14; commemorated in Africa (Mart. Usuard., Nutker.).
[C. H.]

ROTA. [Comons, p. 461.]

ROUEN, COUNCIL OF (Rotomagense Conctlium), a.d. 682, al. 688-9, al. 692, at which St. Ausbert presided, fifteen bishops were present, and a gratht of privilege to the abbey of Fontanelle-that of choosing its abbat from its own body-was confirmed (Mansi, xi. 1043-6; comp. Cave, Hist. Lit. i. 610).
[E. S. Ff.]
ROUND TOWERS. The round towers of Ireland have a character and literature of their own, and the many questions regarding them are still unsettled, though the ascription of the towers to Christian times and purpases now appears to he the more generally acceןted. There are upwards of a hundred known to antiquaries, and of these about twenty are perfect. Two in Scotland, of which one (Brechin) is perfect and the other (Abernethy) a ruin, together with that attached to the gable of the old church at Egilshay in Orkney, are the only examples outsile the ancient Scotia. All are built upon the same general plan, with little variety of detail: the complete tower at Devenish, in Lough Erue, may be accepted as the type. (See woodeut.)

(i.) The tower is a hollow circular column, from fifty to ooe hundred and fifty fect high, usually eapped by a short pointed roof of stone. From the base, which is frequently of cyclopenn masonry, and measures from forty to sixty feet in circumference, the tower is exiernally of nshlar or spawled rubble work, and tnpers upwarls towards the summit. Occasionaily, as at Ardmore, it is belted with stringeourses, which are, however, entirely ornameutal, and not connected with the internal floors. The wall is pierced for a single door, which is never constructed on the level of the ground, but from eight to tifteen feet above, and for windows, which are unfixed in position and number; the jambs of buth the door and the windows always incline inwards towards the top. At a very short distance from the conical roof there are usually four, but sometimes more or fewer, windows, and all the windows in tne towel have round, pointed, or square heads, but never a built areh.

Internally the tower is divided into stories, in number according to the height. The lowest is usually filled up with mould or masonry to or near the door-sill; the rest, usually on joisted floors and about twelve feet high, ocenply the whole interior to the top. The rooms or sturies could have been but dimly lighted, there being but oue small window to each.
(ii.) For what purpose could towers of this kind have been built, and that in such numbers? This has been answered by many suggestions; e.g. that they were the temples of a primeval religiou among the Cuthites (Keave, $O^{\prime}$ 'Briea), the pyreia of Phoenician, Persian, or other Eastera nations (Vallancey), bell-towers (Lyach), seyulchral monuments (Windele), Danish forts (Walsh, Molyneux, Ledwich), eremitic pillars (Harris), anchoret or penitential cells (Smyth), belltowers, secondarily monastic strongholds (Petrie), There can be no doubt but that in the lrish Annals (as in the present day) the conmmon name of the tower is Cloictheach, literally bell-house, and in some of them up to the present time the bells are hung. Yet the whole structure denotes a place of temporary refuge aud defence in cases of sudden attack. In this view there is a propriety in both the general outline and the several details: the tall, eompact, round pillar, with strong, often enlarged, base of solid building, or of great thickness in the wall, aud with the door small and several yards above the founds. tion; the smooth external facing of stone, and the storied accommodation within; the smsll windows for ventilation and, at the top, also for observation, and the strongly-defended doorway. lato such a house of defence, which is always found among or near eeclesiastical buildiags, or thelr known site, the mouks could eaxily retreat for snfety to themselves and the valuable goods of the church till the enemy had left, or other suceour had come to the inmates' relief. The whole building is such as bespenks a steru but passive resistance, and when the cloietheach was burned it was or destroyed. Its us seconilary, though been specially bu may also have bee (iii.) As to the we may lay aside Cothite civilisation phallic symbolism, observitions : so wholly untitted for to the Chrintian per or less traceable fir $n a n, 215,216 \mathrm{n}$.) to from the 10 th to ti no reason for our $t$ design to the Danes having prossessed e Eurype, although $t$ sccosat for such $n$ ior defeoce and sate lost to the origin of that they are the teeture which was the eatrance of the Tocers, 367) totices most ancient milit Roman times found i (Stme Jonuments, types still met with Earope. As originall renewed, they unifo general features, and oldest round tower St. Apollimare ad Cle to the 6th century. counted tor as at first suitel the monastic turbulent tribes and $p$ persecerel in, after th as sacred aud time-ho tical architecture, p precedence. The exau doubt owiug to the the Christrauity of new strange to say, the tow couatry of the scots Piets. Compare 'lowe (ir.) For the literatur Petrie, The Round Tut Dunraven, Nintes on Iris Stokes ; heane, Towers Irelund; O'Brien, Rou Archateologia, i. ii. ix. ; An hitecture; Lavigan, Hist. Irr; Killeu, Eccl. Coll de lieb. Ht'.; l.yue yeux, Sitt. llist. $\operatorname{lr} r$; Irdand; Ledwich, Antiq. vii.; Cumb. (uu. May. iv.

RUCBRIC. Literally, mritten in red letters. from the $i^{\text {hrasenlogy }}$ of in which the titles, rer leading decisions were wr Majuram leges."-Juv.

"Dicant cur co
Bis seax in tabullis, et cor

RUBRIC

burned it was only the inuer flooring that was destroyed. Its use as a bell-tower apprears to be secundary, though some in later times may have beed syecially built for a Campanile, as they may also hitre beed tor other purposes.
(iii.) As to the age to which they belong, we may lay aside the ante-Christian views of Cuthite civilisistion, of Eastern fire-worship and phamies symbolism, of Druidical rites, and celestial observitions: so far ns we wholly unfitted for thess we cin see, they were to the Chrintian preriod the purposes. They belong or less traceable trom the bith ereection is mare nan, 215, 216 д.) to the 13 th (Reeves, st. Adunfrom the 10 th to the 12 th. There applpears to be no reasion for vur tracing either the work'or the design to the Danes, who have given no proof of baving peossessed either elsewhere in northern Eurupe, although their ruvages in Ireland may accuant tor such means being so lung retained for defeoce and sat or defeoce and sntety. The clue seems all but that they are the remains of at surit may be tecture which was banished fron british arehithe eatraace of the Saxons, from Britain by Toneres, 367) wotices their rescinblance to "the most ancient military towers subsequent to Roman times fuund in the British isles." Waring (Stune Honuments, &c.) would trace them to types still met with in Sardinia and Southern Europe. As orig Europe. As orisinally built, or as subsequently renew, renewed, they uniformly preserve the same general feitures, and are singularly unlike the oldest round tuwer on the Continent-that at St. Apollinare nd Classem, Ravenna, belonging oune bith century. They are suticiently ue-- conted for as at find connted for as at first an Irish development which surbulent monartic position in the midst of turblent tribes and piratical invaders, and were verserered in ssated ia, after their special need was past, disalred nud time-honoured furms of ecelesinstial architectore, possibly also of monastic precedecte. The examples in Scotland are no dobt unwing to the cluse condexion between strange to sal, Deer and ancient Scotia, yet, country of the she towers there are not in the Piets, Compare Towerrs.
(iv.) For the literaturce of Petrie, The Round Turef the Round Towers see Dunraven, Lintes on Lrish of lrelund; Earl of Stokes; Keane, Towerrs and Temples of by M. Irelaul; ; 'Bricn, Round Yowers of Irecoent Archuedogia, i. ii. ix. ; Fergusson, Handbowh of Arditecture; Lanigna, Eecl. Hist. Ir. ; Moore, Hist. $f$.

 uenx, Mat. Mist. Ir; ; Willsh, Prosp. State of Ireand; Ledwich, Autiq.; Proc. Moy. Ir. Fii.; Ginh. (vn. Maj. iv.) Proc. Roy. Yr. Acad.
RUBRIC. Literally, a direction or renark mitten in ved letters. The word is borruwed foon the phraseellogy of old Ronan law-books, in which the titles, hedich the titles, remarks, and sometimes leaing decisions were written in red ink.

> Maderum leges,"- ". Perlego nibras
> " Drcaat cur condita sit lex > Bis eax in tabulls, et cur rubrica mininetur."
> Prud. contra Sym. It. 460.

RUFUS

1821
In the same way the regulations for the manner of perforuming the sacred olfices of the church were called rubrics, and were conmmonly distinguin red characters to make then easily Anciently the from the text of the oflice itself. nud ooly writteu ius were collected together, purpose, and known wous compiled for that Directory, Cerenonial uder various titles(q. v.). The oldest (q. v.), Ritual, Ordo scrvice-books are either. missals und early destitute of rabrics. The either entirely or almost (483) contains no rubrics Sacrumentary of Leo Gclasian Sncramentary (t94) firet beve of tha seven, some of thenry (494) contains sixtybook has oone; the thivery shurt; the second Gregurian Sicranent third book has dine. The which are coutesentilny, omitting those portions twent-six. Of the thy a much later date, has sceond volume of incient officest prioted in the rubrics; a Fraukish he gth centary hats seven hiss eight, the Callun bissal of the bith ceatury an uncial Gallician having no rubrics ant all; quity, has six; a G cal, of uneertain anti7th century has eles en. The Sacramentary of the (Irish, 9th cent.) has two the Stowe Mis ral nncular.
Burciard, Master of the Ceremonics under Intocent VIII. and Alexander V1., at the close of the 15 th contury, was the first person wro pablice published together the order and the ceremonial directions of the Mass, in a Puatificil printed at Rome, 1485, and in a Sacerdotale published at few years later under Leo X. The obrious convenience of such a course outweighed the scruples which Which were felt in certain quarters albout pulblishing before the liaity, directions which it was ouly uecessary for the clergy to know. Such beoks therefore multiplied rapidy; but it is various edition scope of this work to trace their various editions, together with the changes and modif modifications which the Rubrics have from tima to tine
[F. E. W.]
RUFINA (1), July 10 ; commemorated at Acta SS Vet. Rum. Mart, Mart. Hieron. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. iii. 28).
(2) July 19, martyr at Seville (Mart. Usuard. Vet. Rom., Notker.)
[C. H.]
Rsuard.).
(2) June 14, martyr; commemorated at Soissons (JIart. Usnard.; Hieron., Wandalb, ; Boll. Acta SS. Boll. Acta SS. Jud. ii. 795).
(3) Jupe
(3) Jude 21 , martyr; commemorated at Ilieran., Wandalb., Notkre, Adon.; Vet. Ron., Jun. iv. 73).
(4) Sept. 4, youth and martyr; commemorated at Ancyra (let. Rom. Murt.; Murt. Hierron.; Mart. Notler.; Boll. Acta SS. Sep, ii. 204).
[. C H.]
RUFUS (1), April 19, martyr; conmemorated at Melitene in Armenia (Mart. Usuard.; Hieron., Syr., Vet. Rom., Wandalb., Notker.).
(2) Aug. 1, nartyr delphia in Arabia (llart martyr; conmenorated nt Philadelphia in Arabia (Hart. Usuard. ; Hieron., Notker.).
(3) Aug. 27, patrician and martyr; comme-

1822

RUGAE

SABDATH

morated at Capua (Mart. Usuard.; Heron., Vet. Rom., Wundalb.; Bell. A.ta SS. Aug. vi. 16); commemorated in the Gelnsian Sacramentary on this day, named in the collect, secreta, and post-coamunion.
(4) Nov. 21, martyr ; mentioned by St. Paul, Ron. xvi. 13 (Mart. Usuard.).
(5) Nov. 28, martyr; commemorated at Rome (Murt. Usuard., Ict. Rom.).
(6) Dec. 18, martyr; commemeratel at Philipli (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom.); Dec. 17 (Mart. Wandalb.).
RUGAE, a word of frequent occurrence in the Urdo Romanns, as well as in the Lives of the Popes under the name of Anastasins, as to the meaning of which there has been some cossiderabte dilierence of opinien. Caesar Bullinger, looking at the supposed etymology of the word and not at the passages in which it is found, letined "rugae" to be streaks in marble or metil, or pipes or furrows (" canaliculns et suleos ") like wriakles, or wriakled and streaked plates of precions metals. Dueange, with an equal neglect of the actual use of the word, strangely conneets it with the French rue, and explains it as the sacred path betire the presbytery, "via in aede snera ante presbyterium," by which the pope enters when about to eelebrate Mass (Descr. Aed. Sophian. no. 73; Gloss. sub vee.). Mabillon, by a comparison of the places where the word occurs ( 1 /us. Ital. tom. ii. ; Comment. in Ord. Rom. pl', xxi. exxxv.), has clearly demonstrated that by "rugae" are meant the metal "enncelli" or screens of the more sacred parts of a chureh, with their deors and gratiogs, and sometimes the lattire-work doors alune. In the larger and more samptuous churehes they were often made of silver or even of gold. The preshytery at St. Peter's was fenced in with silver "rugac," and the "confessio" with "rugne" of gold (Anastas. Steph. IV. § 284 ; Leo III. § 363). Sergius II. set up six pairs of aurichalchum (ibull. 8 492). There were greater and lesser "rugae." Leo Ill. erected twelve "rugae majores" befere the "secretarium" at St. Peter's (ibid. § 382). The larger were of very considerable weight. Those of silver placed by Paschal I. Wefore the vestibule of the altar weighed 78 lbs. (ibiul. § 447); those ereeted by the same pope at St. Maris in Domnica 60 lbs ; and by Leo III. at St. Andrew's 80 lbs. (ibid. $$ 368$ ). The smaller on"? were called "rugulae." The "rugulae," the "confessio" at St. Mary Majer's set up by litsehal 1 ., were of pure gold (ibid. § 447); those of Leo N. at the entrance of the presbytery and "celufessio" at St. Peter's, with the "cancelli," of silver: "rugulas de argento fusiles cum carcellis" (ibid. § 546). Accerding to Mabillon, "rugulae" also signified the grated or latticed window-openings of the "contessio,""fenestellae," or " cataractite,"-by which the sacred tomb might be seen, and handkerchiefs or napkins [BRANDEA] pushed through to touch it [Transenva].
The entrance of the "rugae" was kept by acoiytes ("acolythi qui rugam conservant," Ord. Roman.). At ordinutions the persen to be ordainel deacon stood "ante rugas altaxis " (ib'd: viii. 3), and when ordained priest was taken outside the "rugne," "foras ruga saltarls" (ibid. 4).
(Mabillon, u. s. p. cxxxvii. p. 85.) On Ash. Wednesday the pope's chambertain left the chaneel and passed through the "rugate" to distribute the ashes, nad on Candlemass bay the rope weat to them to distribute the thapers. On l'alm Suaday the branches and lenves were throwa to the people through the apertures, "per formanian rugarum" (Mabillon, k. s. P. exxxvii. ; Ciamplini, c. xiv. de Azymo). [E. V."

RURAL DEAN. [Dbeanus 1I. p. 537.]

RUSTICUS (1), Aug. 9, martyr ; commemurated in the kast (Mart. Flor.; Wierol., Notker.).
(2) Aug. 17, subleacen and martyr; com. memorated in Africa (Mart. Usuard.; Vet. Rom. Notker.).
(3) Oct. 9, presbyter and martyr; commemorated at Paris (Mart. Usuard., Med.; Micrun.)
(4) Oct. 26, bishop and confessor ; comme. morated at Narbonae (Mart. Usuard.).
[C. H.]

SABALLUM,SABHALL,SAUL,SAVAL (Zabutcum), lrish name for a chureh of peculiar orientation, usually north and senth. It eriginated in the tradition (as presented in an andient Lifc of SI. Patrick quoted by Ussher, Brit. Ewh. Ant. c. 17, Works vi. 406, and in the Lives of the same prelate published by Colgan, Tr. Thunan pp. 23, 72, 124), that the barn of Dichu, his first disciple in Down, was the model of his first church, built in the field with which Dichu presented him, or perhaps was the church iteelf. It gave its name to the parish of Saul, co. Down, aml, standing north and south, was adopted as the epynonus of all churches which deviatel to a marked exteat from the usinal Eastrm orieatation. (Reeves, Ecel. Ant. 40, $220 \mathrm{sq} . ;$ Todd, St. Patrick, 344, 409 sq. ; Petrie, Ronnd Towers, 148 sq ; L Lanigna, Eccl. Hist. Ir. i. $212 \mathrm{sq}$. )
[J. G.]
SABAS (1), Apr. 15, Gothic martyr naler Athanaric in the reign of Valentiniam (basil. Menol.); Apr. 18 (Menol. Gruec. Sirlet.).
(2) Apr. 25, martyr, officer of Gothio race at Rome in the reign of Aurelian (Basil. Mend); Apr. 24 (Menol. Grace. Sirlet.; Mart. Rom; Boll. Acta SS. Apr. iii. 261).
(3) ing, 27 , presbyter, martyr with aler* ander (Syr. Mart.).
(4) Dec. 5 , Cappadocian monk, $\delta$ nivaratives, "our father," In the reign of Thoodos. II. founder Sirlet.).
[C. H.]
SABBATH. It will be the object of this article to give a brief sketch of the views takea in the enrlier nges of Christianity of the Saltath of the Jewish law, and of the degree and cha. racter of observance which has been attached to it in different ages and different bramehes of the Christian church-in tact, to take up the subject very much wh batu in the $I)$ In relation t tical character sary to reter $h$ more fally she a formal substi the Lord's bay transfereace to form, of the sat the promulgatic has ao thasis wh or in Christian
The Silluath sentative of th away; the Lor Gospel, which symbolized by distinguished, It is true that great weekly fe something like t Jewish system, purposes of worsl measure of that characteristic of afterwards embor tian Sabbath," an Judaie rigour, wa nokoown in the e
For the proofs Day. In the pr throughout to th as distinguished the extent of its the Christian chur (l.) It is of cou ment that-as fro might have expect the Ssbbath accor aeper in nay sen: Christians. St. 1 decisire (Col. ii. 16 , is meat or in dri dsy, or of the new which are a shadot Body is of Christ." Colossiaus, in refe Goostic (nad perhap: was the last form of $a$ clearer and more rebuke of the obser sad times and yeal Pharissic Judaism o How they were ut (in oppasition to suc thus, who is express the observation of $t$ celebrated antithesis, Sabbath, but living Day "), in lgnatius was no transference to the Lord's Daybeea not unnatural, teaching as to its nat mach less could the considerel as having observance of Christia on this matter may be general teaching of $t$ pressly distinguishes 35.) Ou Ash. rlain left the e "ragate" to Hemas bay the ite the tapers. mil leaves were the ajurtures, diltow, us. s. p. ymo). [L. V.

s II. p. 537.]

artyr; comme. Flos:; Ilieron., martyr; comard.; Vet. Rum. tartgr; comme., Med. ; Hieron.) tiessor; comme1ard.).

SAUL,SAYAL hurch of peculiat south. It origiated in :un ancient ssher, Brit. Eal. in the Lives of Igan, Tr. Thuma. urn of Dichu, his model of his first which Dichu prechareh itselt. It Saul, co. Down, 1, was adopted as which deviated to 1 Eastrra orieata. $20 \mathrm{sq} \cdot$; Todel, St. c, Rownd Tovers, $[r$, i. 212 sq.$)$
[J. G.]
hic martyr under ralentini:un (Basil. ec. Sirlet.)
of Gothic race at en (Busil. Menhl); et.; Juart. Rom.; nartyr with .les.
onk, $\delta$ invarááas, heodas. 11. founlet ol.; Menol. Griki
[C. H.]
the object of this of the views takee minty of the Sitbath ha degree and chso ans been attached to ent branches of the take up the subjet

SABBATH

very much where it is loft by the article SAB-BATII in the Dictionaty of the batu in the Dictiomary of the Lible.
In relation to modern ideas, ascribing a sabbatleal character to the Lorl's Iay, it is only necessary to refer here very briefly to what has been more fally shewn diewhere, that the uotion of a formal substitution by apostelic authority of the Lard's Iny for the Jewish Sabbath, and the transference to it, perhaps in a spiritualized lorm, of the sabbatical ohligation established by the promulgation ot the Fourth Conmandment, has no basis whatever, either in Holy Scriptare or in Christian antiguity. or in Christian anticuity.
The sablath is invariably regarded as represeatative of the rigid Law, which has pepreaway; the Lord's Lay of the freedom of the Gospel, which remains for ever. The ideas symbolized by the two days are constantly distinguished, not unfrequently contrasted. It is true that the Loril's Day, becoming the great weekly testival of Christinnity, assumed something like the place of the Sabbath in the Jewish system, and demanded for its higher purposes of worship, joy, and thanksgiving, some measure of that rest from work so emphatically charracteristic of the Sahbath. But the iles afterwards embalied in the title of the "Chrisstian Sabbath," and carried out in ordinances of anknown in the eally centuries of Christianity. Fer the proofs of this assertion see Lond's throughant to the trae Silbbath (oreference is as distiagnished from the Lord's Day; and to the extent of its survival in the observance of tbe Christian church.
(l.) It is of course clenr from the New Testament that-as from the nature of the case we might have expected-the olligation to observe the Sabbath aceording to the Jewish law was never in any sease binding on Christians as Christians. St. Paul's werds are absolutely in meat orl. ii. 16, 17), "Let no man judge you in meat or in drink; or in respect of an holy which are a shadow of things to come; but the bxdy is of Christ." These words, written to the Colosviaus, is reference to the strange halfGnestic (and perhaps Essenic) development which Was the last form of Judaism, are, iadeed, simply a clesser sad more definite eaforcement of the rehuke of the observation of "days and months and times and years," addressed to the earlier Pharissic Judilism of Galatia (Gal. iv. I0).
How they were understood in the enrly church (ia opposition to such (ia oppesition to such Judaism as that of Cerinthus, who is expressly declared to have enforced the observation of the $S$. the observation of the Sibbith) is shewn hy the karà кupıaкìv sèv Sabbath, but ("ne longer keeping the Day"), in Ignatius in the spirit of the. Lord's Day"), in Ignatius (ad Maun. ix.). If there was no transfereace of the sahbstical obligation was no transfereace of the sahbstical obligation to the Lord's Day-which, perhaps, might have been not unatinral, previded that Our Lord's tenching as to its nature was taken as a guidemach less conld the Jewish Sabbath, as such, be ohsiderel as having any claim on the unirersal observance of Christinns. St. Augustine's remarks on this matter may be taken ns a fair type of the genersl teaching of the early church. He expressly distiaguishes the Fourth Commsndment

SABDATH
1823 from the rest, as being observed figuratively or Christ ian he recognises twa find dule. for the Chest : first, he recognises two kinds of sabhatimeal lite; next, an eturom the "old works" in this Bara $\sigma \mu$ ós whith, atecordiat in heaven-the $\sigma a \beta$ Baraguós which, accoring to the Epintle to the Ilebrews (IJeb, iv. G), " remuinath tor the Hebrews (IJel, iv. G), "remaineth tor the peopla of God." a See Augustine, de (icmesi ad Litter un book iv. (vol. iji. 208), and Lijust. red Later,un, (vol. ii So3) , 208 ), and bipist. red hunuarium decidel on the cont Soversy, whatever may be of a patriarchal Sabluath, hal become existence parcel of the Jewish law hal become part and and distioctions of ments, it had served its purpose as typical and preparatory. how it had pissed away. 1ilssed away.
(II.) But while the Jewish Sablath could form no part of Christinuity as such, yet, like other parts of the Mosiais law, it would endure itz accordance with the the Jewish Christians; anay man called with the apostolic principle, "Is atay man called being circameised ? let him not apostolic uncirancised" ( 1 Cor. vii. 18), and the apostolic practice of St. Paul iu his own ease (Acts xix. 18, xxi. 24) and in the case of Timethy earliest duys. We can hardly doubt that in the as thest days of the church the Christians, just the Sabbath with in the Temple," so also kept at the sam with their Jewish brethren; while at the same time "they broke the bread at kept the Lord's this most solemn way as in others, tians. Sord's Day smong their fellow-Chrisa distinct long as Jewish Christianity lasted as deat with phase, co-existing rather than coinciwould indeed Christianity of the Gentiles, it the light of Onr Lord's Sabbath obligation under distinguished from the teaching, in the spinit as tations and mitigations which He assigued to it But still it would preserve substantially the old sabbatical observance; while, at the same time, the new and greater sucreduess of the peculiarly Christian orliaance of the Lord's Day would, in the first instance, coexist with it, and afterwards in all probability throw it into the shode. Now nfter no loag period of existence Jewish Chris iffter the fall ach, gnodually died out, especially Temple the of Jerusalen, destroying with the even the churem of Judaic observance; when even the church of the holy city itself became in great degree a Geatile church, nnd n growing and Christinnity established itself between Julaism and Christianity. Henceforward, so far as sabbatical obsarvance retained its strict Judaic torm, and imposed itself as of universal obligation, it would be looked upon with suspicion. The Ebionites are spoken of by Eusebius (Eccl. Hist. iji. 97) as heing half Jewish ia the Chservance of the Sabbath, while thay were half Christian in the ebsorvance of the Lord's Day. The conncil of Laodicea A.D. 363) anathematises as Judaizers "those whe abstain from labour on Lord's Day, liddding them "hovour rather the Lord's Day, and, if possible, abstain from labour

- It is hartly nceessary to refer to the extrsordinary interpretation, noticed in tha article Sammatir in ths Dictionary of the Bible, whtch, agalnst the whola context (as, indred, against the while tone of New Teso tament teschingh, uciualiy transforms this paseage into an authority for quasi-sabbatical observance, as a law of the Christian chen, ris.

1824

SABBATH
SABBATH
on it as Christians" (où $\delta \in \hat{i}$ XpıơTıavous 'lou $\delta a-$

 as Xetariavol). The ennctment is iuportant, not only in its attachment of the obligation of rest to the Lord's Day, but as shewing a formal antagonism to strict observance of the Sabbath as a day of rest, on the ground of its essentially Judaistic siguifieance. Whatever the Sabbath was in the churen, it was to be something wholly unlike this. Much in the same spirit the l'seudoIgnatius (ad Mugn. 9) distinguishes between the Jewish and Christion idea of sabbatical observance. "Let us not keep the Sabbath day after the Jewish mapner, rejoicing in idleness, but spiritually, rejoicing in the meditation of the law, not in the rest of the body, admiring the workmanship of God;" and moreover infers that the keeping of the Sabbrth was a preparation for the greater sacredness of "the Lord's Diy, the day of the Resurrection, the royal festival, the highest of all days" ( $\mu \in \tau d$ $\left.\tau \dot{\eta}_{\nu} \dot{\operatorname{s}} \pi \dot{\alpha} \tau \eta \nu \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \pi \alpha \sigma \hat{\omega} \nu \dot{\eta} \mu \in \rho \hat{\omega} \nu\right)$. But while the formal sabbatical obligation was thus repudiated, as purely Judaistic, we find that in the Eastern church a distinct observance of the Sabbath remained, and remained so far in accordance with the old Jewish ider that (with one natable exception) it was always a festal observance.

This is brought out most strikingly in the Apostolical Constitutions, in which the Sabbath and the Lord's Day are treated almost as coordinate. Thus (in ii. 59, 1) Christians are exhorted "on the Sabbath Day, and the day of the Lord's Resurrection, the Lord's Dry, to gather together with special earnestness, sending up praise to God, Who made all things by Jesus Christ, and Who sent Him to us, and delivered Him to suffer, and raised Him from the dead." The different consecrations of the two days are still more clearly marked in vii. 23, 2 : "Kép the Sabbath and the Lord's Day as feasts ; for the one is the memorial of the Creation, the

 1,2 , there is an elaborate and beautiful prayer, bringing out the sacreduess of the Sabbath: " O Almighty Lord, who dilst create the world through Christ, and didst ordain the Sabbath as a memarial of creation, because in it Thou didst rest from Thy work . . . . Thou, $\mathbf{O}$ Lord, didst bring our fathers ont of Egypt . . . . nnd didst give them the Law or Decalogue, spoken with Thy voice and written with Thy hand. . . Thou didst command them to keep the Sabbath, not giving in this an excuse for idleness, but an occasion for godliness" (où $\pi \rho \delta \dot{\phi}$ aбu daprias the Sabbath is the reat from creation, the completion of the world, the seeking out of Law, the praise of thanksgiving to God for all that He gave to men." The snme passage goes on to speak also of the peculinr and yet higher consecration of the Lord's Day. In viii. 33, 1, we have a command (in the names of St. Peter and St. Paul): "Let the servants work five days; on the Sabbath and the Lord'a Day let them be free from labour in the cinarch, with a view to the teaching of godlinesa." Whatever opinion we may form as to the genuineness and anthorlty of these Constlutions (on which see Aposto bical Constitutions), it is at lenst clear that they represent to a very considerable extent the traditions of the Eastern chur, $h$ in the 3rd and 4th centurles. Thus the very Council of Laodicen, so sternly condemnatory of Julaizing sabbatarianlsm, yet in its forty-ninth and fiftyfirst canons marks out "the Sabbath and the Lord's Day" ns days to be observed fostally even during the fast of Lent. Everywhere the festal observance is rery strikingly markm, and we note that the consecration of the Sablath by the rest of the Creator is brought home to Christians by a constant reference to the creation as having been wrought "through Jesus Christ." From a canon (No. 16) of the Council of Landicea, and from a passage in Socrates' Enclesiistual History (vi. 8), it appears that on the Sabbath as well as the Lord's Day there were solemn assemblies for worship; and Gregory of Niyss, upbraiding those who neglected the Sabbath assembly, asks, "With what face wilt thou dare to behold the Lord's Day, if thou hast lespised the Sabbath ?" "for" (he adds) "they are sister days." Accordingly in the Apostolical Canons (Cannu 66) it is laid down, that "if any cleric be found fasting on the Lord's Day or the Sabbath, except the one (Easter Eve) alode, let him be deposed; if any laic, let him be excommuniented." The prohilition of this cann is illustrated by the extravagant declaration of the Pscudo-lgnatlus, that "if any one fants on the Lord's Day or the Sabbath, he is 3 murderer that this cranon is appenled to in the "lrullan" (or "Quinisextine") Council, held at Constan. tinople in A.D. 685, in opposition to a custom at Rome of fasting on the Sabbaths in Lent, and it is deereed that over the Roman church also it should " most firmly prevail" (amaparancícus кратєiv). From a well-knowu passage io Epiphanius (adv. Haer. Book I. Tom. Ill. vol. i. F. 304), we may conjecture that a suecial emphasis was given to the festal observance of the Sabbath by opposition to the heresy of Marcion, who is said to have bidden his followers tist on the Sabbath to signify their "repudiation of the God of the Jews" (ivà $\mu \hat{\eta} \tau \delta \kappa \alpha \theta \hat{\eta} \kappa о \nu \tau 0 \hat{\nu} \Theta_{\epsilon \in \hat{v}}$ $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ 'Ioữalw ${ }^{\epsilon} \rho \gamma a \delta \omega \mu \epsilon \theta a$ ). But, howevel' this may be, it is clear that a reverence was paid in the Eastern church to the Sabbath festival, onls second, though of course markedly second, to the higher sacredness of the Lord's Day.

Nor wat this festal observance confined to the Eastern church. The practice of fastiug on the Sabbath in the Roman church is noticed by Tertullian, and condemned on the ground that only on the Great Sabbath should men fist ( $D e$ Jejunits, c. xir.); but he seems to indicate that the practice was not invariable, and that it arose from a continuation of the Friday's fast ("car jejuniis. parasceven dicamus? quanquam ros etian Sibbatum, si quando continuatis-nar* quam nisi in pascha jejunandum, secundum rationem alibi redditam"). The Montanists (he says) excepted both the Sabbath and the Lord's Day frons their solemn fist weeks (c. xr.), in thas respect distinctiy following the anrient Eastern usige. In another place, speaking of our Lord's defeace of His disciples for placking and eating the ears of corn on the Sabbath, he declares that "He remembered the privilege of exemption Sabthath from double gift of the Sabibuth f finally declares that "it would even the Creat His disciples t Scripture and Marc. Book iv throughout spe 8uch language without qualifi opinions as to character of the continued long from the well-k to Casulanus, w was observed in Rome, and a fe majority of Wes agreeing with th days of St. Ainl vailed; and whe1 of his mother M method of obser conscience to St. as a matter of that church, and fasted on the Sab if he wita at Rom ciple carried out, Augustine's time, Sabbath while ot Casulanus, vol. ii. 1836: and for a si of practice and of the question at i Jerome, sect. 14, vo (III.) The origin probably to be trac continuation of the $f$ (A.D. 270-303) con on this point with n ing of the Saturday, "Hoc die solemus domiaico cum grati eamus. ... ne qui As this festal obser natural in the Ch Jewish influence ha snrvival of the old Je hand, where no such where the siturday purely Christian peint to Jewish practice, it as a fast might ve Lord's Day Lord's Day was the the Siturday would with the Friday, as a to sach vigils fastin there was a far more fasting usage in the sp Whs called the "Great Ere. Even in the Eas Sabbath was observed garded as a strict fast solemn farst of the year. Constitutions we are Sabbaths were festal, so Creation, this is to be a see Aposto east clear that ble extent the n the 3rd nad uncil of Laoof Judaziag inth and fitty,bath and the erved festally verywhere the y anark od, and he Sablath by ght hotne to to the creation Jesus Christ." cil of Lamlicea, ;'Erclesirstural o the Sabbath 3 were solema gory of Nyss?, the Sabbath wilt thou dare 1 hast despised s) "they are he Apostolical , that "if any ed's Day or the Eve) nlone, let him be exconthis canon is declatation of y one fants on e is 3 murlerer We may notice the "Trullan" ld at Constanto a custom at in Lent, and it church also it àmарабалєíтш! assage in Epi1. III. wol. i. p. a special emservance of the esy of Marcion, ollowers fist on udiation of the भ̄̈коע $\tau o u ̂$ Өєồ t , however this oce was paid in th festival, ooly y secoud, to the .

SABPATH

confined to the lasting ou the noticed by Terronod that only men fast ( $\bar{D}$ to indicate that al that it arese lay's fist ("cur quanquam ros ntiauatis--anolum, secundum The Mnatanisto tbbath and the $t$ weeks (c. x. .), ing the sanient ce, speaking of es for plucking the Sabbath, be the privilego of exemption from fasting-assigned to the Sablath trom the begianing; " niludes to the the sabibuth from the the friday to preserve finally deelares, with chassity of fasting; and that "it would have charncteristic vehemence, even the Creator Hinself, if He the Sabbsth, nad His disciples to fast, against the declarationded Scripture and the will of the Creator" (Adv. Marc. Book ir, c. 12). It is true that he is throughout speaking of Jewish observance; but without guage would hardly have been used without qualification, had he not held strong character of the Sabbath. The of this festal continued long in the Western conflict of usage from the well-known Enistle of church: for to Casulanus, we find thate of St. Augustine was observed in his time only in the church of Rome, and a few other Western churches, the majority of Western churches in this point still agreeing with the East. Even at Milan, in the days of St. Anbrose, the Eastern usage previiled; and when St. Augustine, at the request of his mother Monica, put the question of the method of observance of the day as a case of conscience to St. Ambrose, he treated it simply as a matter of the ordinance of this or that church, and added, that while he never fasted on the Sabbath day in Milan, he did fast if he wasa at Rome. So entircly was this principle carried ont, that, even in Africa in St. Sabbath while others churches fisted on the Casulanus, vol. ii. pp. 101-121, Ben. ed. Paris 1836 : and for a similar statement of the variety of prnetice and of the intrinsic indifference of the question at issue, compare Epist. to St. Jerome, sect. 14, vol. ii. p. 291.)
(III.) The origin of the fasting observance was probibly to be traced (as Turtullian hints) to a continuation of the fast of the Friday., Victorinus (A.D. $270-303$ ) confirms Tertullian's statement on this point with a sigaificant addition. Speakigg of the Saturday, he aays (De Fabricâ Mundi), "Hoc die solemul "Hoc die solemus superponcre: idcirco ot die dominico cum esmus. . . . ne quididum actione ad panem exservare videamur" (see Probst, sect, 5 tatum obAs this festal observance of the Sabbath patural in the Christian church, wherevas Jewish influence had at any time wherever sarrival of the old Jewish feast, so, on the other hand, where no such associations had power, and where the aturduy was regarded either from a parely Christian peint of view, or in antagouism to Jewish practice, the contrary observance of it as a fast might very naturally arise. 'The Lord's Day was the great Christian festival; the Siturday would be treated, in continuity with the Friday, as a rigil of preparation, and to such vigils fasting was appropriate. But there was a far more powerful reavon for this fasting usage in the special hallowing of what Fas called the "Great Sabbath"-i.e. the Easter Ere. Eveu in the Eastern church, where tne Sabbath was observed festally, this was regarded as a strict fast, in some sense the most onlemn fast of the year. Thus in the A/ostolica Constitutions Constitutions we are told, that whereas other Creation, this is to be a fast, because on it "them

SABBATH

1825
Crentor was still beaenth the eartl " $(v .35,1)$; nand that as n fast it is to stricter obligatist it is to be regarded as of "The Fridsy and than Gived Frilay itseit. lute fast, so far as the Sabbath keep as an absoanyone is unable to sength allows; . . . lut if ntously, let him to keep the two days antiFor in a certai at any rate keep the Sabbath. Himself ${ }^{n}$ certain place the Lord, speaking of been tols says, When the bridegroom shall have those days," $(v .18,2)$, Them shall they ta.t in observition of this 2). The nature of the cally described : " romed fast day is emphatigather together in the cherening till cock-crow ing with all supplication to God wateh, praylong vigil, reading the law, the in your nightthe psalms, till the crowing the prophets, and then, having baptized your the gospel in fear and your catechumens, and read the people the thin and trenbling, and synken to from your mourning concerning salvation, cense may be convouraing and pray God that Israel ance and converted, and find a place for repentthe Eastern chureh, indeed ungodliness." In fined to Easter church, indeed, this usage was conand somester Eve; but in the church of lome, just as all Fridays churches of the East and West, their observance in the year took the colour of Sabbaths of the yrom Good Friday, so all the as fasts, in imitation of the reasonably be krpt Sabbath of Easter Eve.
To thia natural infere
the effect of antagonism to would be added also as such. We find that to Jewish observance West, the Jewish Salbath was, the East and the to be, kept ns a day of violent was thought which wha dorived day of violent excess; from luxus Sabbutarius, and common phrase of the use of the word "Sabbat" think) even the revelry of witchea and evil for the unhily (Book xx. c. ii. 4) quotes passprits. Bingham from St. Chrysostometes passages to this etleet St. Chrysostom (Hom St. Augustine, and others. that the Jews used th. i. he Lazaro) declares work not "for apiritur release from secular modesty, and the apiritual things, sob:iety and in serving their hearing the word of God," but had revelry ( $\gamma a \sigma \tau \rho 1$ and drunkenness, gorging, $x$ xi. sect. 2, vol iv, St. Augustine ( $P_{s}$. the Jews of "keeping p. 1403) similarly accuses bodily rest, lazy, dissolute, lusnrious" a mere rest" (he adds)" is for evil worts." "Our good works. It is better to plough than to dauce. . .. Many rest in body, and are turbuPsalm is the condition which is hymined in the Psalm ia the condition of the Christian in the Sabbath of the the serenity of conot, in the rest, the tranquillity, (as Theodoret and cience." Such Sabbaths were commenting upon Amas alexandria insist in $\psi \in u \delta \hat{j}$ of the proph Amos vi. 3) the $\sigma \alpha \alpha^{\prime} \beta$ ara tinn man should protagainst which every Chrianatural than that protest. What would be more by the sobriet that such a protest ahould be made We gather from the Epistless of a fast?
to Casulanus, quoted above, that in his Augustine Romnn church, with bove, that in his days the ness and intolerance, characteristic imperiousin marked antagonism urged the Silbbath fast as a matter of abm to all Jewish observance, as a matter of absolute obligation; insisting that they who neglect it "are still in the flesh, sad cannot please God; . . . lovers of their helly, preferring Judaism to the ehureh, and becoining children of the bendwoman." "If" (says the champion of their cause) "the Jew by keejing the Sibluath desies the lord's Day, how shall a Christian keep the Sabbath? Fither let us be Christians and keep the Lord'a Day, or let us be Jews and keep the Salibnth." St. Augustine, indignantly rejecting this imperious intelerame, and laying down the priaciple of simple accordauce on this matter to the custom of each church, has a curious passage on "the Great Sabbath" and its effeet on the general ohservance of the sabbaths of the year. "On that day " (he says) "the fiesh of Christ rested in the grave, as Gud rested oo that day from all the works of His creation. Hence arose that variety . . . that some, as especially the peoples of the East, on account of Ilis rest prefer to relax the fast; others, like the Roman chureh and some other churches of the West, on account of the humiliation of the death of the Lord," and (as he adds below) "the grief of the disciples," "prefer to fast" (sect. 31). But looking at the question in the abstract, without recognising any survival of the old Jewish feast, it would certaialy seem that the Roman practice might be better supperted in argunient; nnil when to its reasonableness was added the effect of a strong anti-Judaic feeling, and the iufluence of the Roman church, which was soon to become far greaterand more imperiousthan in St. Augustiae's time, it is not surprising that it should have prevailed over the more ancient practice.
At a later peried we fiod Gregory the Great lnying it down with nuthority, thit to "cause the Sabbath to be kept from work" is a mark of Judaizing and a " sign of Antichrist;" and we note that in his whole treatment of a tendency to salhatize the Lord's Day (see Lord's Day, p. 10i1), he seems to ignore altogether noy special celebration of the Saturday as a Snbbath, whether ss fast or festival. This silence is probably significant of a change passing over Western usage altogether: for, so far as we can judge, the special observance of the Sabbath there gradually died out. The fasting observance having prevailed ngainst the festal, was itself naturally overshadowed by the Friday fast. At present, while all Fridays in the year (except Christmas Day) are fasts, there is no trace of the Saturday fast, except in the vigils of Easter Day and Whitsun Day, and the Saturdays of the Ember weeks.

In the Eastern church the featal observance remained far longer, ant, indecd, is distinctly traceable at the present day. The canonists Zonaras, Balsamen, and Aristenus, representing the tradition of the 12th century, sll speak of the Apostelic Canon as still observed and binding. We have a consuitation of Nicolaus of Constantinople. about the same time, as to the question of standing in prayer on the Sabbath, as well as the Lord's Day; and his answer is that " to bend the knee on the Sabbath is not forbidden by the cason; but that men generally (ot modतol), because they do not follow the practice of fasting on the Sabbath, refrain also from bending the knee." Of this significant Eastern usage we have again a slight trace in the West in the Montanist body. Tertullina (de Oratione, c. 18) syeaks of a variety of usage

Introduced by a very few whe on the Sabbath abstain from kneeliog (" per pauculos questan, qui Sabbato abatiuent genubus"). The practice, however, he disapproves; he woull have it given up, or se retained as to avoid offence; for the abatinence from kneeling (he thinks) pro perly belongs only to the Lord's Day. It never seenis to have taken uny hold in the West ; but in the East ft. is still jreserved in the present practice of the Greek, though not of the Russian chureh. It is also held that Siturday is se eatirely a day of joy that it is unfit for fasting (excejting always the Greut Salbath), and necordingly, if a vigil chance to fall upea it, it is transposed to the Friday. Even on Easter Eve, though it is a strict fast, yet the black of Leat is changed to the white of Easter in all church vestments and fursiture. It is curions ulse that in later times a new and specially festsl consecration was given to the Sabbath in the Enatera church, ly considering the Great Sabbath of Easter Eve as the day of our Lorl's triumph in Hades, giving rest to the spirits in prison, and accordingly looking on all Sablhaths in the jear as especially days of commemoration of those whe rest in the Lord. Still here also the greater festal sacredness of the Lord's Dsy has rightly overahadowed it; and in present thought and usage there is nothing like the quasi co-ordination of the dnys, which we have seen in the Apostolical Constitutions. ${ }^{\text {b }}$
Thus the Sabbath, placed between the two great days of distinctively Christian observance, may be considered as parting with its obserrance as fast nad festival to the one and the other.
In the later ages of the Western church, as we have seen (see Lord's Day), a distinctly sabbatical observance gathered round the Lord's Day itself,-partly by natural attraction to the great day of worship and rest, partly by enact. ments civil and ecclesiastical, ultimately by a formal transference to it of the obligation of the Fourth Commandment. But it is notable that when the Lord's Day wns thus considered to be "the Christian Sabbath," it began to be observed with a certain austerity and rigour, diferiog entirely from the festal character of the Sabbnth of the Jews. We are almost tempted to trace in this chnage a survival of the ancient Western usage, which observed the true Sabbath as a fast.
For the chief autherities on this subject see LORD's DAY.
[A. B.]
Special Ritual of the Sabuath. (1) Lessons.During the first ritual peried proper euchnristic lessons were procided for Sundays, and a few feasts and fasts ouly, as in the body of the old Gallican Lectionary. At the end of this, however, are two sets of prophecies, epistles, and gospels for choice on the week days; or there may have been three or four, for the MS. breaks off here (Liturg. Gall. Mabill. 172). The nett step, in the Roman books at least, was to appoiot proper leasens for the Wednesdays, Fridays, and Satordnys in Lent and the Ember weeks. Se the Capitula Lectionum Evingelii, net later thas the beginning of the 5 th century, in the b For informstion on this subject I have to thank the Rev. Archlmanitrice Myriantheus, the chief priest of the Greek church in London.

Thesaurus Aneco (v. 66). There an cbb as well Hironymi in its gica, ii. 1-61) lessons only for 58), and that be provides for Wed out the yenr, and on lessens were a the Epiphany an Romanum, el. J E ist. ct Diss. 1 Saturday lessons cent I., apparentl the Sibbuth fast Vitue Pont. Labb Pseudo-Innocent, Epistle to Decenti serrance of the lessons were associ
(2) Ordinations. ordinations shoul Sabbati ejusque n lucescit," that all above), "qued ej mane ijsso domini jejunio, celebretur 1). Gelasius, 494, jejunio, septimi, et ragesimalis initii, ac Sabhati iejunie ci Luc. ct Brut. Episc 4 ad Thurigg.; Con It was owing to ceremony, so that place on Sunday mor that ne proper off panday after an Em p. 1517.]

For certain special
SABBATIUS (1),
(2) Sept. 19, mart phimus and Derymed (Basil. Menol. ; Menol, SABBATUM. (1 Satarday in Easter neophytes laid nside mentarium Gregorianu 278; Mfiss. Ambros. ibi de Div. Off. 18 ; &sc.).

(2) Subbatum Duode Lectiones, in XII. Le of the ember weeks twelre lessons read in $t$ days ("haud enim du Fronto, note in Kalend. Veron. 1733). That $t$ can hardly be doubted, bility for the sake of th so twelve were read "s the sake of the catec (Honorius Augusted. Gc ir. 117; Comes Ilierunyn Pranc. ii. 1324 (the cop 23, and the Sucram. Gel Fet. i. 43, gire only eley ii. 147, &c.), but it wa Chaist. ANT.-Yol

sabbatius

Thesaurus Anecdotorum of Martene and Durand (v. $6 i$ ). There an ebb ns well ns flow, fer, it would seem, Hieronymi in its earlier form forme later Comes gica, ii. 1-61) gives (out of Lent) Saturday lessons only for the Ember weeks ( $13,34,49$, 4 , 58), and that betire Pentecost (:31), though it provides for Wednesdays out the year, and for every dhy in lent throughon lessonis were nssigneil to thi Sin Lent. Later Romanum, ell. J. Fronto, Paris, 1652, nnd in $E$ ist. et Diss. 139-14, Viron. 1733). The Saturday lessons hate been aseribell to Innocent I ., apparently on no better the Subbath fant at an no better ground than is Pseudo-Innocent, as we must call him, that Epistle to Decontius (§ m) insists on one the observanee of the latter rite, with which the lessons were associated.

(2) Ordinations.-Leo I. in 459 desired that all

 ordinations should take place "post diemssbbati ejusque noetis quan in prinna Sabbati Sabbati ejuquee noetis quae in prinna Sabbati luceseit,' that all might be fasting (sen above), "، quod al mughem be fasting (see (1) mane ipso dominiico die, continuato erit, si jejanio, eelebretur"" (Epist. 81 ad Di,sc. Alex.
I). Gelasins, 494, 1). Gelasins, 494, fixed them "quarti mensis jejunio, sept tini, et decimi, sed et ettiam quadrazesimalis initii, ae medinana qua ragesimalis initii, ae medinna quadragesimne die, Sabbati jejunio circa resperam " ( $E / .9$ ald Lur. et Brut. Enis. 11 , comp. Gregor. II. Epp. 4 ad Thuring.; Cone. Rom. A.D. 743, can. 11). It was owing to the prolongation of the ceremony place ons Sunday so the aet nal ordiuntion took place on Sunday morning, aceording to Leo's hint, that no proper office was provided for the Suadar nfter an Ember week. [Ordincor the p. 1517.]

For certain apecial Sabbaths, see Sabaatum.
[W. E. S.]

sabbatius (1), July 4. [Sebastaa.]  (2) Sept. 19, martyr at Antioch with Tro-phimns and Dorymedon in the reing of Probus(Basil. Menol.; Menol. Grace. Sirlet.). (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Gracc. sirlet.). [C. H.] SABBATUM. (1) Sabbatum in Allis, the Sstarday in Easter week, on which day the neeophtes laid neophytes laid aside their white dress (Sxcramentarium Grecoric meitatrum Gregorianum in Pnmel. LLiturysica, ii.

278; Misis, Ambros, ibid. i. 363 ; Pseudo-Alevin, 278, Hisis. Ambros. ibid. i. 363; Psendo-Alevin, de Di. Off. 18 ; &c.).
(2) Sabatum Duodccim Lectiomum, in XII Lectiones, in XII. Lectioniouss.-The Saturdays of the ember weeks were so called from the twelre lessond twelve lessons read in the offiee or mass of those days ("haud enim duo haee divilebont Veron. 11333). That twelve were aet innlly read, can hardly be doubted, and it was in all proun-bility for the sake bility for the sake of the candidates for orders.
as twelve were read "secundum Romanos" the sake of the entechumens on Easter eve thecter
 iv. $117 \%$ Comcs Hictunymi in Baluz. Cipit. Reg.
Franc, ii. 1324 , the Franc. ii. 1324 (the copy in Pamel. Liturge ii.
23, and the Scoram. Gelis. Murat. Lit Cati. 43, give only eleven); Sucer. Greg. Mur.
Tit

SAbina
(Sier. Gel. I. nn. 19, 6; Gro 1827 136), or to five (Cuncs Fifire s. . 3. $3,94,122$, 179, 222; cotap. the number . Baluz. ce. 111, Gelis, i. nn. $8,3,85$ ). The retention of the old name nfter this che retention of the old ritunlists, some of whone sind that ent the early six lassons, which they folnall in their buoks heyd been read the been read twie, onee in frreek their buoks hald Amularius, $d e$ Eccl. Off. ii. $1 ;$ Pseulto-Ale, $d e$ Die. $0 f=26$ and Dib. Off. 26 ; Gemme, u. s. iii, 15t, (se.), othere that the psalms said with thens were counted as lesson lessons (Raban. Maur. de Instit, Clecri, ii. 24 ).
An $_{n}$ (Irdo An (rdo Romanus for the use of Salzinury, he-longing to lessongs to be said the century, orders Cwelve [Collect, i. p. 403], in which diys in a chureh to assemble pefore they which the people were appears to Martene (leye went to Mass. This §9) to account for the Ant. Necl. Rit. I. vill. 5, sible that so many the name; but it is imposmissel this explanation of rituanlists should have had existed in their day, and we mults for it regard the Salzburg ray, and we must rather olderd
 Were only three ember seasous. At fitirst there Evany. in shartene, Mresurur. Anced. v. 78,79 , 81,82 . 81, 82; Sucram. Gelas, i. 82; Conc. Clovesh, A7, 747, ean. 18), but when the Jcjuniunn Primi Mensis was added, the new ember Saturlay receis received the name common to the rest saturlay Gelus Gellus. i. 19; Greg. Murat. ii. 33), though probably tweive baly tweive lessons had ceased to be read on nuy of them The nuy of them. There is no trace of such a riste in the Galliean Sacramentaries, nbie Missal.
(3) Salbutum Sanctum.-The common name for Easter eve in the Latin church (Sucram.
Greg. in Nurat. Greg. in Murat. Littr'g. Rom. İet. ii. 65 ; in.
Cod. Easter Eve, p. 595 . (4) Sabhatur 595.

Gaticican name for Requiei Dominici Corporis.-A Vetus, is Murater (Misale Gallicanum Gallican name for Easter ere (Missale Gallicanum Vetus, in Murat. Liturg. Rom. Vet. ii. (5) Sabatum in Traditione Symboli-T before Palm Sunday. It wis so called at Milay bee because the solemu delivery of the ereed to the eatechumens took plaee on it (Ambr. $M$ is the in Pnmelii Lituryicu, i. 326 ). Some ritunlists have supposed that this was not the original custom of Milan, beeause St. Ambrose (lipist. 20, ad Marcellinam, §4), speaks of a " traditio symboli" on Palm Sundny. His words, howerer, do not afford snys, "Sequenti ground for the infierence. He snys, "Sequenti die, erat autem Dominicn, post leetiones menis, sumbolum tractatum, dimissis eatechubaptisteriis trade nliquibus competentibns in not have said "to some basilicae." He, would referred to the great some competentes," if he the ereed nt thint mass of those who received some who from one eason. They were probably been present on the ense or another had not SABEL, June 17 , with Manuel and Istrael, Persian martyrs at Constantiooplo under Juntian (Basil. Menoi.; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Grace.
Sirlet.).
[C. H.]
SABINA (1), Jab. 24, virgin martyr, sister (Mart. Sabinianus, commemorated at Troyes (Mart. Bed., Flor.); Jan. 29 (Boll. Acta SS.

1828

SABINIANU8
Jan. il. 94t, from an anclent MS. of Travas) ; Aug. 29 (Mart. Usuard.; Mart. Roman.).
(2) Jan. 30, also called Savina, widow of Lodl In the 4th century, commemorated at Milan (Boll. Acta SS. Inn, il. 1029, from the office of the charch at Milan).
(3) Aug. 29, virgin martyr at Rome under Halrian (Mart. bed., Usaard., Adon., T/icron., Vet. Kom., Rom., Notkor., Wand.): mentioned In the Super Oblata and the Ad Complendum for this day in the Gregorian Sacramentary The Liher Antiphonarius of Gregory has an othice for tel natale. There was a church named from her on the Aventine in the time of Symmachus (Mansi, viii. 236 B) and Eugenius II. (Anaat. Lib. Pontif. num. ci.).
(4) Oct. 27, martyr at Avila in Spain under Dacianus, with Vincentius and Christeta (Mırt. Usunrd., Vet. Rom., Wand.).
[C. H.]
SABINIANUS (1), Jan. 29, martyr with hia sister Sabina at Troyes in the reign of Aurelinn (Mart. Usuard.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. ii. 937 from ancient MSS.).
(2) Dec. 31, bishop, martyr with Potentianua, commemorated at Sens (Mart. Usuard.). [C. H.]
SABINUS (1), Mar. 16, martyr ln Eggpt with Papas in the Diocletian persecution (Cit). Byzant.).
(2) July 11, confessor, commamorated in Poitou (Mart. Usuard.).
(8) July 20 , martyr, commemorated with Maximua sad othera at Damascus (Mart. Usuard., Hieron., Notker.).
(4) Aug. 23, martyr with Silvanus and Pantherius, Thraciana, in the Diocletian persecution (Basil. Menol.).
(5) Sept. 29, martyr, commemorated at Perinthua (Syr. Mart.)
(6) Dec. 30, bishop, martyr under Maximian, commemorated at Spoleto (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom.).
[C. H.]
SACCUS ( $\sigma$ dкккоs). (1) The $S$ ıcus, which may be considered as the Eastern representative of the Weatern Dalmatic, is a tight-fitting vestment worn by metropolitans (except those of the Armenian church), and In the Russian church at the present day by all bishops, Instead of the phenolion. See Goar'a Euchologion, p. 113. (2) [SACKCLOTt1.]
[R. S.]
SACELLARIUS. The word sacellum designates a casket or shrine for receiving relics; hence the sacellarius is the person who has the custody of such a caskat or shrine. It more commonly however designatea the keeper of a money-chest, or treasurer (Ducange's Glossary, s.v.)
[C.]
SACERDOS. [Bishor, p. 210; Priest, p. 1699.]

SACERDOTALIS LIBER. A name sometimes given to a book containing the offices to be said by prieats, ar Pontificalis Liber is given to that contnining the offices to be recited by blshops (Macri, Hierolexicon, s. v.).
[C.]

BACRAMENTARY

SACKCLOTH (scccus, cilicium). 1. W8 find the rough Ilaracloril [p. 756]-generally of camel's hair-which was used in the East for sacks and tents, worn as a sign of mourning, humiliation, and peniteace by Syrians ( 1 Kings xx. 32) and Ninevites (Jonah iii. 5), as well as by liraelites. Among the latter, snckeloth was an almost invariable accompaniment of nourning (2 Sum. ili. 31 ; 1 Kings $x \times i .27 ; 2$ Kings xix. 1 , \&c.). It was of a dark colour, as we see in A pocal. vi, 12: "The sun became black as sack. cloth of hair (is $\sigma$ dкккos tpixivos)." nnil was probnbly associated with mourniug from its sad appearance, as well as ita roughness anl inconvenlence, for it does not appear to have been by any means invariably, or even commonly, worn next the skin.
2. Tritullian (de Poenit. c. 9), trenting of penitence, does not speak of wearing sackcloth, but of lying on sackcloth (sneco) sad ashes; nad similarly Cyprian (de Lapsis, c. 35, p. 262, Hartel) speaks of the lnpsed proving their penitence by grovelling on sackeloth (ciliclum), dust, and ashes. "Sackcloth anil ashes" became the signs of a penitent. Ambrose (ad Virg. Larsam, c. 8) would have the peniteat's whole body emaciated with fasting, sprinkled with ashes, and covered with sackeloth; and Pachomius (Reg. art. 121) desires one who has been convicted of theft to appear in sackeluth and ashes at ever; assembly for prayer.
3. In the couras of time, probably from the 3rd century, it became usual with ascetics of remarkable rigour to wear a hair-shirt next the akiu for the purpose of producing discomfort. Such men as Anthoay the hermit, Hilarion, and other patriarcha of monasticistn are said to have worn the hair-shirt constantly (Athanasius, lïa S. Ant. c. 59 ; Hieron. Vita S. Hilarii, c. 38).
4. The eighty originn monks of St. Martin are said (Sulpicius Severus, Vita S. Mart. c. 7) to have worn, for the most part, clothes of camel's hair. It cloes not appesr, however, that the rough vestment of the moaks was wors next tha skin. Aacetics in the East very com* monly wore cloth of camel's hair-after the exnmple of some of the prophets, and perhaps of John the Baptist-as their ordinary clothing. Compare Mafors, Melotes.
5. When Martin of Tours was on his desth bed he would not permit his disciples to put unything between his body and the sackeloth on which he lay; on sackcloth and ashes he held that a Chriatian should die (Sulp. Sever. Eist. 3, de obitu S. Martini). So Anthony and Hilarioo died wrapped in their haircloth, and Psula, according to Jerome, died on the slip of sackcloth (cilicioln) on the hard ground, which iad served for har bed during life (Hieron. Episi, 108, ad Eustoch. p. 706, ed. Vallarai). In th. Middle Ages the practice became common. Peter the Venerable (de Miruc. i. 4) speaks of dyiug on sackcloth and ashes as a custom of Christisos, and eapecially of monks (O. Zöckler, Geschichth der Askese, p. 82 ff.).

SACRAMENTARY. The Westara boota ol offices were first called Libri Sacramentorum: but after the 8th century Sacramentarium is more frequent ; though at Milan, so late $y$ 1024, we tind the treasurer of the chspter pers plexed when a mentary " (Emi Slus. Ititl. i. 96) because the bonl prayers only, bu aill prefaces une sacramental rite nation, the bles water, the dedic
We do not $k$ volumo was firat certain duration the public pray committed to me this practice is s mentaries, which coasecration by quam pat." or th 195, 198, 202, (ibid. 227, 230). made to enforce "Orationes quoqu canonem bene int saltem distincte e This occurs in on which were read ceatury downwar Reginonis Libr. $d$ Comp. Inquisitio inquired if the p the exorcisms and (In puis. 90, u. s. Paalms from men Athnnasian Creed Synod. 504 ; Nova, Capit. 4 ; Hincm Walter of Orleana It is evident the force, a complete needed for public required assistance taining the prayers stion, would be mot nsed. See Gregor Vitae Putrum, x ri. note is that, aven a collected into one $\mathbf{v}$ sist of prayers only It, or procured ita $\mathbf{c}$ required no directi Hence the older MS The so-called Leonia assigoed by Morinu directions whatever, to the missae, the sre (except in one Rom. Fet. i. 410), ut titles, Super Oblata, passign in the Gela growth of a aacran servee further illustr has a prayer to be st on Ascension Day ( hint of its purpose e prayer itself. In the "Inde vero modicur benedicis fruges nova masius, Libri IIT., Leoaiso (318) supp Eve, but givea no dir Gelasinn the officiant of some length (Murs n). 1. We -generally the biast for f mourning, ns (1 Kings ), as well as ackeloth was of mourning Kiags xix. 1 , s we see in lack as saek. )," aad was from its sad and incos. have been by moaly, worn , treating of esring sack 1 (saeco) and Lapsis, c. 35 , psell proving wkeloth (cilith and ashes " Ambruse (ad the penient'b ing, sprinkled ackeloth; and ; aue who has r in sackeluth rayer.
ably from the ith avecties of -shirt next the ng discomfort. t, Hilarion, sod re said to have thanasius, lita ilarii, e. 38).
of St. Martin I S. Jf(avt. c. 7 ) art, clothes of , however, that onks was wort East very com-hair--after the and perhaps of linary clothing.
on his degthlisciples to put the sackcloth 00 $d$ ashes he held Ip. Sever. Efish ony and Hilarioo th, and Psula he slip of sack ound, which ind (Hieron. Episi llarsi). In t.s common. Peter reaks of dying on m of Christians jckler, Geschicht

Westera beoksol Sacrameatorun scramentariun the chspter per plexed when asked for an "Ambrosian sacramentary" (Epist. Martini al Puenl. ct Gcbert. in Mus. linl, 1, 96). Either name was uppropriate because the book contained, not the Eucharistic prayers only, but also the prayers. benedictions, and prefaces used at the performance of every sacramental rite, as baptism, coatirmation, ordi, blessing of nuns, widows, oil, sait, water, the dedication of churches, &e.

SACRAMENTARY

We do not know when or by whom such a volume was first compiled. For a period of uncertain duration and varying in lillerent churches the public prayers and other formularies were conimitted to menory. [Omo, \& 1.] A trace of this practice is still found in the Gallican bacramentaries, which merely indicate the words of consecration by the firat words, as "Qui pridie quan pat." or the like (Litury. Gull. Mabill. 192, 193, 198, 202, \&c.), or omit them altogether (ibid. 227, 230). In the West attempts were made to enforce the rule, even below our period. "Orationes quoque missarum et jraefationes et canonem bene intelligant preshyteri ; et si non, saltem distincte et memoriter proferre raleant." This occurs in one of those episerpal addresses which were read at visitations from the $\theta$ th century downwards (Admon. Synod. in App. ad Reginonis Libr. de Disc, Eecl. 504, ed. Baluz. Comp. Inquisitio 82, ibid. p. 15). Bishops even inquired if the parish priest "had by heart" the exorcisms and benedietions of salt and water (In 7 uis. 90, u. s. 17), if he could repent the Psalms from memory (1b. 84, p. 16), and the Athadaslan Creed (10. 85 ; see also Admon. Synod. 504 ; Nova, 506 ; Voviss. 509 ; Ahyto Basil. Capit. 4 ; Hincmar, Cupit. an. 852, ce. 3, 4; Walter of Orleans, Capit. 21).
It is evident that when this rule was in full force, a complete ancramentary would not be needed for public use in chureh. If the memory required nssistance, a small book (libellus) containing the prayers for the aeason, or the occasion, would be more convenient, and such were nsed. Soe Gregor. Turon. Hist. Franc. ii. 22 ; litae Potrum, xvi. 2. Another thing worthy of note is that, even when ail the offices were thus collected into one volume, it would at first conaist of prayers only, because those who compiled it, or procured its compilation, for their own use, required no directiona for familiar practices. Hence the older MSS. contain the fewer rubrics. The so-called Leonian or Veronese Sacramentary, assigned by Morinus to about 488 , containa no directions whatever, only a few brief headings to the missae, the several members of which are (except in one single instance, Murat. Lit. Rom. 'et. l. 410), undistinguished by the proper titles, Super Oblata, Praefatio, &c. Which occur passim in the Gelasian and Gregorian. The growth of a sacramentary in this respect deserves further illustration. E. $g$. the "Leonian" has a prayer to be said at the blessing of fruita on Ascension Dsy (ind. 313); but there ia no hint of its purpose except in the words of the prayer itself. In the Gelasian we find the rubric, "Jude vero modicum ante expletum canonem benedicis fruges novas" (Marat. u. s. 508 ; Thom masius, Libri /II. Sucram. 100). Agaio, the masius, Libri /II. Sucrarr. 100). Agaio, the Leodian (318) supposes baptisms on Whitsun Eve, but gives no directions about them; in the Gelasian the officiant is guided by sereral rubrics of some length (Murat. u. s. 592-596; Thomas.

SACRAMENTARY

1829
102-108). ('ompsre with the same riew the enrlier coples of the Gregorian Sacramentary, as that of Pamelius (Lidur,ica, li, 296, 7), the Patican or Othoboninn (Durnt. ii.) with the Codex Eligianus from which Menard (Suran. Liher a Grey. Al. cominss. Paris, 1642), and the Benedietiues after him (Opp). S. Grey. iii.) have printed; or the anelent Gallican beoks (Murat u. s. ii. ; Mabill, Liturg. Gisll.: Themasius, w. s. inc.), with the kindred Nozarabie, which Wess in common use three or four centurles later. Two obvious sources of these aceretions nay be indicated. In the 8th century every jriest was required to draw up and present to the bishop for approbition his own code of vitual (Cepit. Knrlom. A.d. 7+2). Such notes when approved, would naturally be entered in his book of prayers, and become a rule to his suecessors also. About the same time was compiled the Ordo Romunus for the guidance of the bishops of home, and of the suburbicarian dioceses. This soon became, as we infer from the commentaries on it by the German Amalarias, an authority with other bishops and priests, and many of its ceremonial directions were copied into the sacramentaries with more or less literal exactness. To give an example. In a direction of the Coulex Elis). resprecting the baptisms of Easter Eve we have (Greg, (pp. iii. 73, ell. Ben.), "Sunt (Ord. Rom. I. 44, Mus. Ital. il. 27 ; Ordo Scrut'rí, ib. 83; Or. Riom. Bernoldi in Hittorp. de Uff. Cath. Ecel. 75, ed. 1568 ; sint) parati qui eos suscepturi suat cum linteis in manibus eorum et accipiunt (Ordd. u.s.: accipiant) ipsos a presbyteris ( $O$ rdo $R$. I.; a presbyteris, vel diaconibus; Ordo Scr.: a pontifice vel diaconibus; Bern.: a pontifice, presbyteris, vel diaconibus), qui eos baptizant." The Ordo frequently refers to the Sacramentary for the prayers to which its directions apply. E. g. "Dicit orationes solemnes aicut in Sacramentorum (Libro, supplied by Bernold, u.s. 49, 66) continetur " ( $0 . R$. in Mus. Ital. ii. 19, 32 bis; see also Pp. 21, 25, 31). When this order is copied in the Efigian codex, the mention of the sacramentary itself ia properly omitted (Greg. Opp. iii. 62) ; but iu one passage (69) at sinnilar reference is inadvortently retained - "ordine quo in Sacramentarie." We find again that the episcopal addresses and inquiries already mentioned contain many directions which at a later period appear in the sacramenturies, as $e . g$. with reference to the mixed cup (Inquis. 64, Regin. 13), the disposal of the remainder of the elements (65), the eucharistic restments (Leo IV. de Cura Past. Labbe, Conc. viii. 36 ; Adinon. Syn. u. s. 503), &c.

The Roman Sacramentaries, -See Liturgy, p. 1032 ff . We may mention here that some critics, judging from internal evidence, thiak many of the prayers in the "Leonisn" or Veronese Sacmamentary not later than Sylvester and Julius I. (Murinus de Sacram. Poenit. ix. 30, R. 2 ; Gerbert. Vet. Lit. Alem. Praef. xv,-xviii.), or than Sixtus III. and Felix II. (Murat. Eiss, iv.; i. 41); while otherr, also judging from style and matter, see much in all the Roman books that belongs to Leo I. (Thomas, Praef. in Libr. iii. Sacram. p. 3; Quesnel, $-\wedge t$. in Leonis Serm. xcri.; Murat. Diss, i. 20). zcient author ascribea to Leo the compilat.. - A sacramentary, bnt there are traditions preserved by latep writers, which shew that he was belleved to have enlarged at lenst the missal part of the Roman liber Sacramentoram. Thus Auaatusius libibl. Jitue Pontif, in some coples (Lablie, Cons', ilh. 1291; Bolland, Apr. 11, II, 21); (iemma Aninetr, i. 90 ; Ropert. de live Off. il. 21, \&c. Assemand inclines to the opinit an of Ursi, "qui purum putumyue Gelasianum Sacramentarium in Vernbusl coilice contineri censuit" (Corl. Aiturg, vh. P. 3, $1 . \mathrm{IX}_{\mathrm{x}}$ ) ; though he almita that "multae orutionea Leonis appluat stylutn et forte netatem," anl "In hoe sacramentario, velut in aernrium quodinm illatns, contineri preces liturgieas Romanne ecclesine quno prioribua sneculla fuere praescrlptae " (viii.).
Our earliest uthority for nssigning such a work to Gelasins is Gemandius of Narseilles. "Scripsit et tractatus diversarum Scrifturarum et ancramentorum" (l) I'ir. Illustr. 94). Wulafrid who ls later: "Thm a se quam ab aliis conspositas preces dicitur orillansse" (Itc Reb. Ecel. 22). The sacrmmentary ascribed to him ls, unlike any other, io three bookn; (1) Ordo Anni Circuli; (2) Natnlitia Sanctorum ; (3) Orntiones et Preces cum Canone. It was this receusion which Gregory I, undertook to simplify; "Ges lesianum Codicen de Mssarum solemnitatibus multa subtrahens, pauca convertens, nonuulla adjiciens, pro exponendis evangelicis lectionibas in unius libri volumine coarctavit" (Joan. Diac. Vita Greg. il. 17. Comp. Wal. Strab, u. 8.) All the sxtaut copies, however different in other respects, consist of a slugle book.

The Gelnsinn and Gregorian books were for some centuries in use nt the same time; and were even combiaed. In the library of Ceatale in 831, beside three Gregorian nad nlacteen Gelasian missals, thwre was "Missalis Gregorinuus et Gelasianus modernis temporibus ab Albino (Alcuino) ordinatus" (Chron. Centul. 8. in Dacher. Spicil. ii. 311, ed. 2). Another collection ascribed to Alcuin (to which Micrologus [c. 60 ] probably reters) is printed by Panelins (Rituale SS. Patrom II.) with a second by Grimoldus. On these, nad on a third by Rodradus, see Gerbert. Vet. Lit. Alem. Disq. II. i. 21. Yet more remarkalle than the twofold sacrumeutary ascribed to Alewin is a volume "olim S. Gallense, nunc Turiceuse, snec. circ. X. ad trıplicem ritum Gelssianum, Gregorinaum, et Ambrosinnum concinnatum," which has been printed by Gerbert (Montm. Lit. Alem. P. I.).

The Alilancse Suramentary.-The predominance of Rome did not sulfice to commend her offices even to the rest of ltaly itself. Panlinus of Noln, for example, "fecit et sacramentnrium et hrmonrium " (Geonad. Fir. MI. 48); but that of Milnu. from its real or supposed conaexion with St. Ambrose, acquired an authority which has given an enduring vitulity to the proper use of thet church. In $102+$ two cnnons of Ratiabon ask the treasurer of Milna for the "sacramentarium Ambrosil," "cum solis orationibus et praefationibus Ambrosianis" (Pun] et Geb, ad Mart. Epp. i. iii. Mus. Ital. i. 95, 97). Two centuries earller Walafrid Strabo snys, "Ambrosius . . . tam missae quam cneterorum dispositionem officiorum suae eccleaise et aliis Liguribus ordinavit " (De Reb. Eccl, 22). It is not improbsble that St. Ambrose dil re-srrange the materials left by his predecessors, nmong whom tradition placed St. Barnabas, not only as the founder of his chureh, but as the author of a "Missan Orilo" alan (V'icecomes, de Rit. Niss, 1i. 12). At the instature of a Koman council, liy which the peple Indrian alao deelared himedf tonstrainet, Charlemagne attompted to dentray all the dinirosian rites which Gregory hud rappected, "Atnbrosianum myaterium vilens ense fictum divino magisterio" (Lanlulphus sen. Meclieken. Mist, il. 4, 10, in Murat. Siript. Kir. Itsh. (fr. 7e); but the popennovel by the remonst rances of a Freuch blthof', Fiugenius, reassembled the council, which was indueed by the Intter to reconsiler its dweree, and the Minnese Sucramentury was restored (ib, 12). The Ambrosian rite in the threefold use published by Geriert (see ahowe) gives the benciliction of aahes ( $\mathrm{j}, 48$ ), of ulifa branches on l'alm Sumlny (at Milan, "ihim, iu Ramia Olivarum" (64), of the oils (75), the oriler of bnptism (88), \&e.; finl the two lastnamed rites, with the benediction of the new fire, hive a place In the "Missas Ambrosianae," nlmost a new miasal, of Pameliua (litury. I, 340 , $344,348-351)$.

The Gallican Sacramentarics. - These were varions, and it would seem that aeveral nuthora contributed in one way or naother to their formation. "Liber hymnorum et nlius myste. riorum " ( $=$ aacramentorum) are nacriliod by Jerome (do Script. Eccl. 100) to Hilary of 'uitiers, A.D. 354. Sulvian of Marseilles, 440, compreed many "homilias aacramentorum," i.c. pref cets in the Gallican sense [i'refack] (Gennarl. $u, s, 67$ ), Musacus also of Marseilles, 460 , nt the requist of his bishop" composuit sneramentorum "gregium et non parvum volumen jer membra quilem pro opportunitate officiorum et temporum, pro lectionum textu, psalmorumque aerie et cautatione discretum, sed suyplicandi Deo et contestnali beneficiorum ejus soliditste sul consentrneum" (the Gallican preface or contestation, Genand. 79). Again, Sidonius, bishop of Auvergoe, 472, composed n book of masses (Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. ii. 22). Chilperic I., A.D. 561, wrete masses, but was unable to impose them on the church (ibid. vi. in fine). The Gnllican sarmmenturies were suppressed by Pepin and Charlemagne [Liturgy, 51]. The Roman sncramentaty which the Intter obtniaed from Halrian (Epist. Adr. ad Car. M. in Opp. Greg. M. iii. 6I8, ed. Ben.), as a standard for his empire is identitied by Lambecius with a codex at Vienna entitled, "Lj. ber Sacramentorum de circulo noni expositus a Sto. Gregorio Papa Romano," \&c. (Biblith. Caesar. ii. 5, p. 14). The Gnllican " Missals" mentioned in hiturgy, $\S 54$, wera true sneramentaries; e.g. even in thelr present state ther con* tain the order for bsptism (Miss. Goth. in Marst. u.s. ii. 589 ; Mliss. Gall. Jet. 708-720, 736-742), ordination (Miss. Franc. 661-671), benedictiod of persons (Miss. Fr, 673, 5; Miss, Gall. V. 70i), of things (M. Goth. $582 ; M$. Fr. 675, 7, \&c.; M.G. 1.732). The Sacrumentarium Gallianam [Liturgy, § 54 (f)], besides the rites of haptism (Mur. 828-835, 847-852) and benediction 845, 953-961), gives the lessons for evert Mass.

The Mozarabic.-See Lituray, §§ 46-49. The Council of Toledo, 633, ordered that throughout Spuin and Gallia Narbonensis (also uader the Goths) the same mode of celebrating masses and other offices should be observed (can. 2), ds Isidore of Seville was then living, aud the his pano-(luthic mi ("a anncto Ish bably that the by the conncil Among the mat somy suplitied whan he silys, nou parvo elab ficiir quoque, dulcisone compo later contributo author "missaru So Julian of 'lol Exch. in libluse Juliat himself de toto cisurulo a quibus nliquas ve pleats emenilavi toto composait " which was In us few truces of th sacrampaturum. of the thowers 0 (heslie, 148), of a brief notice 189).

The African R Tradition has pro composer of com tellanuin in Man ascribed "Saeram (Gennail. u. s. 78)

SACRAMEN' period no teudency the worl sacrane less to nay fixed usal of il religious some sherell meata "Sacramentum e: ree gestit ita fit, gatur quod sincte (riyines, vl. 19).
Being s purel oonld have no ecel and sub-Apostolic guage of the chut (Miiman, Latin Ch After that period it the current Latin ment, in which it w equivalent to the Thas, in the versio Vulgate, which we Bibl. Sacr. Lat. Ver rici. 25 , we have Quoting 1 Cor. il. 1076) reads "in 58 amples see 1 Cor. $x i$ as cited by St. Aug Ev. §21, vii. § 3; ix 4.9 in S. and the $\mathrm{V}_{1}$ Col. i. 26 in St. Hilar Coll. i. 27 in V.; 1 ' kev. i. 20 in S. V.; S.Y.

Hence, whatever c a mystery, was wit "sacramentum." Re pious upinions, are " (lsid. Hisp. de Serip. the Goulhead is of " Missat 2s. 11. 12). At hy which the f tonstrained, $y$ all the denpected, "Am. tietum divino lioden, llist. ii. ( (x. 72); but ces of a F'reuh muncil, which recensiler its mentiay w in rite in the art (see nlose) 48), of ulive ilan, " Then, ia (75), the urder le two laston of the new Ambrosianne," (Litury. i. 340 , geveral nuthors er to their furt alimes niyste re necribed by lary of l'uitiers, 440, complesen i.c. jref ces is enand, $n, s, 67$ ). at the request of orum pryegium bra quideol pro porum, pro leerie et cautatione et contestandi enasentaneum" stution, (Gennad. 'Auvergae, 472, lreg. Tur. Hist. A.D. 561 , wrote use them on the Gallienn sacta. epia nnd Charlelan sacramentaty Hadrian (Epist, M. iii. 618, ed, re is inlentified b? tua entitled. "L. nuni expositas a &e. (Biblioth llican " Missals" re true sneramen. state ther con 8. Goth. in Murat. 18-720, 736-742) 671), benediction liss. Gall. V. 701), Fr. 675, 7, &c.; mritem Gallicanam the rites of bap) nad benediction essons for every GY, §§ 46-49. The d that throuzhout s (alse under the rating masses sod ved (can. 2). iving, and the His pano-fothic misal la by its tille aserlbel to him ("a minto Ishliro ordinatum "), we infer proo by the connell (Burm was committeal to him Among the materials before him were donbtless somes supilied by his own brother lamater, of whon he says," "In ecclesiastlois officils lilem non parvo elaboravit studio.

SACRAMENTS

In macrifieiis ju"pue, laulibun at gue psalims multa duleinoue composult " (De Sirrijt. Liceler, 98). A ister contributor was Ilihlefouse of 'loledn, the author "minsarum, hymmornm aty fe sermonum." So Julian of Toledes, 680 ( $\left.A_{1}\right)^{3}$, ad Ihdef. the S'rijet. Eark. in liblioth. Vicel. J. A. Falricil, bis). Uf Jelian himself we also read, "Lolbrum missiurum de toto circulo anai in quatuor partes divisum, in quibus allifuns vetuntatis ineuria vitiat as ne semiplebas emendavit we eomplevit, aliguas vero, ex toto composuit" (ibib.) The Nozarabie missul, which was in use till the The Mozarabie missal, Which was in use tlll the 12 th century, retains few traces of the special charucter of a Liber Sacrmmentorum. But such are the "blessing of the flowers or branches" on P'alm Sunday (Leslie, $1+8$ ), ot the new tire, \&e, (174), and a briuf nutice of brptisn on Liaster Eve (189).

The Afriean hites.-See Litutioy, $$ \S 38-42$. Traition has preserved the namo of ouly one composer or compiler, Voeonius, Dishop of Castellanum iu Maritanin, in A.J. 460 , to whom is ascribed "Siacramentorum egregium volumen"" (Gennal. u. s. 78). [W. E. S.]

SACRAMENTS. There was within our period nu tendency to restrict the upplication of the word sucramintum to Christlin rites, much less to nay tixell number ot rites, Only, when used of a religious observince at all, it meant that some snered meaning lay under a vaible sign : Sancramentum est in nliqua celebratione, eum res gesta ita fit, ut aliquid significaro iutelligatur quor sancte aceipiendinn est " (Isid. Hisp.
Uriping, vi, 19). Urijines, vi. 19).
Beipg a purely Latin word, sacramentum coulid have no ecelesinatical use in the Apostolic and sub-Apostolic ages, during which the language of the church was exclusively Greek (Milmata, Latin C/uristianity, I. 1, vol. i. 1. 27). After that period it eane into common use from the current Latin versiobs of the New Testament. in which it was frequently employed as an equivalent to the Greek $\mu \nu \sigma \tau$ inpiov, in instery. Thus, in the varsion most cemmon before the Vulgate, which we shall denote by S. (Sibatier, Bibl. Sacr. Lat. Vors. Ant. Rem. 1743 ), in Rom Bibl. Sacr. Lat. Fors. Ant. Rem, 1743), in Rom, xri. 25, we have " rever xri. 25, we have "revelatione siteramenti." Quoting 1 Cor. il. 7, St. Hilary (De Trin. x. 1076) reads "in sacramento." For other exsmples see 1 Cor. xiii. 2 ("omnin sucramenta"), as cited by St. Augustine (Truct. vi. in S. Joh., Er. §21, vii. § 3 ; ix. §8, \&e.); Eph. i. 9 , iii. 3 , .4. 9 in S. and the Vulgate; Eph. vi. 19 in S.; Col. i. 26 in St. Hilary (Comm. in Ps. 138, 518 ); Col. i. 27 in V.; 1 lim. iii. 9,16 in S. und V.; hev. i. 20 in S. V. $\times 7.7, ~$ Kev. i. 20 in S. V.; x. 7, xvii. 5 in S.; xrii. 7 in S.I.
Hence, whatever could in any sease be called " mystery, was with the Latio Christians a "sacrnmentum." Revealed trutins, and even pious apinions, are "mysteriorum sacramenta" (sid. Hisp. de Scrip. Eccl. 27), the nature of the Godhend is "eacramentum Trinitatis" bacraments
1831
(Item, C. Jutuens, 1. 4, 8i), We have alas "saeramentum Incurnationis" (Leen M. Serm. comiv. 4 ; Enseb, Menlial. / pist. Inari. Cunc, I. 1781 ; compl. Alissede Giailic. Iet. In Nab. Lit. Gillic. MSS.), "\%, Domiule /ut riarch. xt, 48, in some thonls" (Leo, serm. Ixi. pissionis et resurrec"s, salut is nostrae" ( 4 , ; comp. liil. 4, liv. 3), rum" (lsil. 1 ; the ( I , Ivil, 5), "a, Scuiptura21), "s, I'nachate" (liii. bent. [auct. Inc.] of the Nutivity is (liii. ठ); and so the terst (Cassian, (ollit. $x$ ) mermanomi ablemaltas" eatechumen with spittle the tonching of the Cheri, 1. 27). So was the silt Milurus, de lastit, mens : eg. the Council uf cent given bo catechu.
 76) ordered that at Eastertile uo "that. iv. 63, shomild be ministered to the entrchomens "nisi
 "Salen lu Sincramentu recipiunt." [S.MiT, §S.] Agnin, the creed tnaght to caterimunens is "encraCrall. (of Bestncari), llus, statmboti in Sacrum. Missade (aitll. Iepu), Alus. Itat. i. 312); comp. 347), "in quo quidem Eiturg. Gith. Mathill. 339, omnia continentur sacmanenta"" (Rabon. II. de Instit. Cleri, ii, 5ib). When one is bapticed, "s sub lriuitatis tingitur sacramento" (lsid. Ilisjal. de Offit: Eicct. 11. 25); while of the lloney and Mile given atter baptism, John the Deacon says, "baptizatis . . . hoc genus sacramenti ollertur" (Epist. ad Sentr. 12). Buptism itself is "sacramentum nquae" (Ilildefonsus de Copnit. Bupt. ii. 28 ; Ambros. Expos. Ev. Luc. ג. 48, \&e.), and "s. regenerationis" (Willibald, rument Bonif, vii. 19) ; confirmation was "sill. ramentum ole!" (iל, 26; comp. Aug. Serm, 227; "oleum est Spiritus Suncti sacramentum), or "ehrismatis" (lsid. Orij. vi. 19 ; Rabanus $d_{i} C_{n i-}$ ver:o,v. 16 ; Cone. Arel. vi. ean. 18), or"unetionis" (Origenis llom, v. in Levit. Vers. Lat. Vet. §9; Aug. in lip. S. Joan. e. 2, Tract. iii. 12). St. Augustine thus speaks of all the rites of the catechumenate: "Onaia nacramenta quae acta subt et aguntur in vobis per ministerium servorum Dei, exorcinmis, orntionibus, eanticis spiritualibus, insutllationibus, cilicio, inclinatione cervieum, lıumilitute pedum," \&c. (Le S'ymbolo, Serm. ii. $1, \S 1)$; while Hildefonse incluiles all these, the baptism itself, the ceafirmation and first communion unler tho same term: "Praemissis Magnucramentis expletis" (u. s. I. 139 ; comp. Magnus Senoneasis, de Myst. Bayt. in Martene, Se Antiq. Eucl. Rit. I. i. 18 ; Caesarius Arel. Serm. de Dedic. Escl. 4; Miss. Gall. Vet. in Mabill. Lit. Gall. 362). So Walter of Orleans speaks of the "saeraments" of eatechumens, of the sick, and of the dead (Capitul/ 20). The Eucharist was called "sacramentum altaris" (Aug. Serm. 59, § 6, De Civ, Dei, x. 6), or "steramentn altaris" (Id. serm. 226), "mensne Dominicae s." (Id. Serm. 127), "s. panis" Hildef. u. s. 27), "eucharistiae s." (Tertull. de Cor. Nit. 3), "s. Dominici corporis et sanguinis" (Gaudent. Serm. 2 ; c̈omp. Aug. Fp. 98. § 9), "s. carnis At sangunais" (Hilar. de Trin. viii. 17), \&e. St. Augustine has "sacramentum exorcismi" (Scrm. 227; comp, the Gylasiun exorcism of oil, "Fiat haec unctio . . . sacramentis purificata; "Murat. 4. s. i. 559), and terms the sign of the cross a 6acrament also (Enarr. in Ps. cxli. 4, §9; cemp.

gACLBARICM

Lef M. Surus, liii. 31 Ambros. Eixploe, Ps. 118, 6).

SHany, ether "sacraments" mignt be enllmerated, if it we pecessary; but ancient uage wlit be suthicieut f) illumated, if we mention one other application of the word. By "ancramentum" was commonly ourierstoml an onth, especiaily a military outh (e.g. Corlex Theores, vi. 108). Ilence there was naturally sometimes an alluxjon noler thin wowd to the obligat!on which a Christian takes on himaclif an a soldier of Christ. Thus Len (Serm, xsh.5) " Si coelentia militine sacramenta servaveria, non dubites te in castris triumphalibus legia aeturni pro vieturia corouamilum." Compare Tertullian, Ad Mirtyres, 3 ; A/s, Ginfer, 2, jrope init.

SACRARIUM. (I) A Chriatian church, or consecratoil building generally $\mid$ e.g. "confugit ad ritua Christinni ancrurium " (Ammian. Marcellin. lib, xxyi.). Cf, Shloniua Aprollinariz, lib. viii. ep. 4 ; Salvian, lib. II.
(2) Mure properly the mont sacred part of the church, the place of the altar and "confesaio "; in the Grenk church ro diov, ro lepatuiov, from which the laity were exeluled. The thirty-firat canon of the Srat council of Braga ordains "ingredi sacrarium all communienndum non liceat lajcis nisi tantum clericia;" and the third canon of tho council of Vaison speaks of the minster, "eujus officium est sacrarium disponere et bacramenta suseljere." Here the utferings of the people were received. The ninety-thlol camon of the fourth council of Carthage forblds the reception of the oblations of brothera at variance elther in the sacrarium ut treasury, "oblationes dissidentium fratrum neque in sacrario neque in gazophylacio reeipiantur."
(3) The sacrinty, or vestry. "Sacrarium diciIur quin ibi sarra reponuntur et servantur" (Walafrid Strabo, do Reb. Eccl. c. 6). This use of the word was inherited from yagan terminology. Ulplan (Dig. lib. S. tit. 8, leg. 9) deliues "sberyrium" as "proprie locus lo quo sacrae res ponwatur et servantur quod otiam in aede prirata esse potest." Survius (ad Aen. xii. 199) similarly says, "sacrarium proprie locus est in templo in quo sacra reponuntur, We learn eat in quo ponuntur oblata." We learn from Festus (in Secespitima) that the holy things were work, as afterwaris through the "transennae" of the "confessio:" "ancraria in templis repagulo seu retleulo neneo olim xepichantur; in quo tubs relinquesbaniur per yuos sacra manibus tangere licebat." "Ya find it used repentedly in this seuse in . Orve Rominus, e.g. "processionem coram Gp $^{2}{ }^{2}$ :o ruturis a custoie ecelesiae in sacraric ores. . *s. ; raeberds suai;" and in Anastasine si. in stion the true crose is sacrario leasi $f_{1}+$ emisil," $$ 162$.

SACRIFCDAT'. The name applien to those Christiaus orbo in times of pessecution took part in a heathen sacrifice. They were not strictly apostates, bitt to escape confiscution of goode, or torture or donth, they performed a distinct act of idolatry. I'he act was generally made to consist in sharing either in the actual sacrifice or in the sacrificial feast, that is, they opealy

SACHIFICE

"eat things, offered to Wola," and so In the language of C'prran (Eip. xs. I) they defiled both their hanis and life with sacrilegious contact. C'yprian regarded surh connivance with bolat ry as a lim there grierous lapse than that of which the Linillattes wore guily ; at the name time he drew a broad distinction belween the degraes of guilt among the suritieats themselven. "We should not," he says ( $f_{i}^{\prime \prime}$, , Iv. 10), "prot on n par one who firthwati and willingly sjrung furward to the dreadful sacrifice, and one who, having atruggled and long resiated, came by compohivis to this fatal work; one who betrayed both hitrself and all his, and ous who of himself appronching to the danger, irotected wife and chidren and hix whole house by exposing himself to peril; one who compelfed inmates or frionds to the deen, and one who sheltered under his own rouf very many brethreu who withdrew to banish. ment. The testimony which he gires in ther epistles of the conduct of multitulea of Clirise far to justify thea in the Decian persecution goes those who sacrificed. Men did not wait (Cyp, do l.ipsis, c. 6) tu be summoned to the trul, iney went spontaneounly, they mutually encouraged oas another to submit, they took their children with them, they even entreated, when the magistrate pestponed the ordeal on the approach of night, that their downfall might not be delayed. "Why bring an offering, wretched man," he coutinues, "why present a victim for slaughter? You ure yourscif an oflering for the altar, you are yourseif conte as a victim; you have slaughtered there your own galvation, your hope; your faith wa burnt in those fuseral flames."

The penalties of sacrifieing varied with the circumstancee of the guilt. If the lapser was compelled to make an otfering, yet did it in a festive robe and with a glad countenance, then the council of Ancyra (c. 4) decrees that he was to do penance six years, if in a mouraing robe and with a sad heart, then the penauce was reduced ( $c, 5$ ) to four years; if he did not actually partake of the sacrificial victim, it was further reduced to three. Should the sacrifice be repeated a second or third time, the penalty (c. 8) was geven years' exclusion, and should a Christian compel or entice others to suceumb, he was to be excommunicated for ten years ( $c$, , $)$. Thec ciund! of Nice turther decreed (c. 11) that if a Curisti: a sacrificed when there wns $n$ darse from compulsion, he was to bo wules ersowe by twelve years; a seateace cited and male more severe by 1 Conc. Valentint. c 3, but meditied by 2 Conc. Arelat. c. 10. The Conc. Eliber. (c, I) decided that one who after baptism and of full age participated in the worship of an idol temple, was guilty of a crime for which recon-" ciliation was to be given "nee (aisi ?) in fine." With the close of the persecutions the crime to a great extent passed away.
[G. M.].
SACRIFICE. This term was applied by early Christinn writers to any act or ottering of devotion. St. Jerome calls private prayers at night "an evening sacrifice" (Ep. vii. ad Lutam). St. Hilary uses "sacrificium " of the performand of the corporal works of merey (in Ps, csl.). St. Augustine saye that the whole congregatiou of eaiuts form the Christian sacrifice ( $d_{c} \mathrm{Cr}$. Dei $x .6$ ) in words which are auggeative of the oblation in the first $\mathbf{P}$ Liturgy. The Cerei ou Fiaste sacriticium " ( $\mathcal{S}$ bread and wine the Gelasian Sa A apotiess victim ficium immaculn Strabo to have (do heb, lectes. explain, but all their finvour is p cation, se., himn Eyithesis, 1. 119) But by far the "sacrificium," partiaily equival araquopu, hustin, kucharist. The has been baseil o inatitution of th. but it does nut article to enter versy which has recent ruther that esact significance
The reader is the 10 ht for the ascrifices, They al Christ on Calvary, says that "in lieu Jations Christ's bo the partakers " (de mysteries of the sacrifice which He brated in the chu because by all of th Bapt. cont. Don. iii. xx. 13, 21; Enar. Demonstr. Evany. Lee I. Serm. Ivii. Heb. xiii. 10 ; Cyri sad other writera ing of Melchizedek surifice (Aug. de sviii. 35 ; c. Adv. $L$ 63, § 4 ; Clement Euseb. Dcm. Liv. v ham, &e.). Other sostom, dwell on th sscrivice with that in ? at Tim. Hom. Hel. 1x. 38 , in e 0 . 8c.).
We append a lis titles applied to th meats Eastern and $V$
The sacritice, sacr Sacram, Leon and $f$ Hsmmond, edit. pp. ii. 57). The holy sa pensatur victima sal lepd $\begin{aligned} & \text { outa, Chrys. } \\ & \text { ( }\end{aligned}$ p. 375). The new (Bede, in Hom. S. P 1563). The Lord's nium (Cyprian, Ep.
 Philipu, ; De S. Pente The pure sacrifice, es 17,$5 ;$ v. 25, 4). Th duànuror $\theta$ oofa (Chry

AACPIFICE

*ACRIFICD

in the firat Pusteom. Collect in the Anglican isturgy. The incease oftered at the Bunedictio nacriticlum" " bread and wine by Meletertek the onleriug of the Gelasian Sacramentary as "1 Dencribed in a photleas victim." These woria " sanitunn anarificium limmaculatann hostian " are auld by Wal. strabo to have been ulided to the camur by Leool.
(do (do Reb, hectes. es a2.). They are dillicult to oxplain, but all that iugemity can adrance in

But by far the
"sarrificium," togoent common use of the term partially equivalent terwi h such wholly or arapopad, iusustin, oblutio, is to denote the lioly Euchariat. The sacrificial character of that rite has been bnsed on the use by our Lord at ita institution of the wurds mudicu and dvd $\mu \nu \eta \sigma a s$; but it does nut fall within the seope of this article to enter into the merits of the controversy which has been raised in melinuval and reent rather than in prinitive times over the exact aignificance of thuse terms.
The realer is referred to Smith's Dict. of the lithe for the theory and history of Jewish sacrifices. They all forcsivalowed the sacrifice of Chrrot on Calvary, since which time St. Augustiue says that "in licu of all these ancritices and oblations Christ's boly is stlised and ministerell to the partukers" (do. Civ. 1nci, xriil. 20), that "the mysteries of the Jews were succeeded by the sacrifice which He afterwards willed to be celebrated in the church in the atead of them all, ${ }_{B a p t}$ conte $D_{0}$ them He was prefigured." ( $D_{\theta}$ Bapt. Gunt. Don. 131.17 ; ado. Lej. i. 37 ; c. Frust. 2x. 13,$21 ;$ Enar. in $P^{\prime}$ satm. xxxix. $12 ;$ Euseb. Demonstr. Evank. ii. 10; Apost. Const. vi. 23; Le I. Strm. Vil. de Puss. A 7; Theodoret in
Heb. siii. 10; Cyril, aud. Nest, iv, 5.) The same sad other writers frequently dwell on the otfer$\log$ of Melchizedeld as pirefiguring the eucharistic sucrifice (Aug. de Civ. Dei, xvi. 22, xvii. 17, 63, 84 ; Clement of Alex. Strom. iv. ${ }^{8} 25$; Euseb. Dic. Liv. v. 3; Jerome, Ep. ad Marcel-han, \&c.). Other writers, eapecially St, (haryrostom, dwell on the identity of the eucharistic sacrice with that which Christ offered (Houn. 2, in 2 al Ti.a. Hom, 50 in Matt. vii.; Hom. 17 in Hel. 1x. 38, in eos qui Pacha jejunant iii. $\S 4$, 4 , \&c.).
We append a list of the various sacrificisl titles applied to the ELuecherist in early documentionstern and Western.
The aserifice, sacrificiunn (Ambros. in Pa. 38, Socram. Leon and freyuent.), voala (Lit. S. Jaa. Hammoad, edit. pp. 25,39 , \&ec.; Apost. Const. pi. 58). The holy's sacrifice, sacrificium unde dispensatur vietima sancta (Aug. Conf. ix. 21), ifoo A p. ${ }^{\text {3755). The }}$. The new aacrifice, novum sacrificium (Bede, in Hom. S. Pentecost. bls. vii. p. 59, edit. ${ }^{\text {15b33 }}$ ). The Lord'd aacritice, ascrificium Doninium (Cyprian, $E_{p}$. Ixiiii 9). The awful aacri-Philipp; De D. Pentecost. Hom. i. p. 493, \&c.).
The pure eacrifice, anerificium purum (Iren. iv.

3). The dnally nactiliee, snerificisum quatillannm (Sacr. L.eun, Mens. Jul. atlv, Iv, Cone, Tolete, can.
 (Chrya, ili. Itom, in $E_{i}$ h. ili. 4). The dnily ancritice of the church (Aug. de cie, Dei, x, 2(1). The timn, ancrificium, snlutia (Wal. straboo, bie. $s$. Guthi, i. 19). The ascrifiee of (hriutiana, masri-fleis ticium Christianurum (Aug. c. Faust, 2x, 18). The ancritice of Christ, ancrificium Chrixti (Cyprian, de Linit. Ecceles. c. 17). The sacritile of Christ'm Bodg, nacriticlum corporis Christi (Fulgentiuas, E:pist. siv. ; Liesp. ad Luaest. 5, Ferrand. Aug, $f$ 'p, ut Honornt $t$.) The Ancritice of bread and wine, aacriticium jrauls et vinl (Fulgentiua de Fide de Fide ad l'etr. § 60 ). 'The sacrifice of praise, anerificium liudia (Sacr. Gisl. Miss. Gupth. edit. Mab. p. 191; Aug. c. didv. Log. it. 19, &c.), өufla aivigews (L.tt. of S. Jns. Gk. In Orat. Vell). The oncrifice of thanksgiviag, sacrificium gratiarum actionis (Ethiop, Lift.). The uubluody wnerifiee, avaluaxtos Bugla (Euseb, de tit. Const. IV, 45; Athenag. Ley. pro Christo, & 13, &e. freyuent.). The most fure and unbluody nacrifice; кäapow.

 c. Jul. xxix.). The reasonabie and unbloody and mystical вacrifice, Bugla $\lambda \iota \gamma$ ıкो кal dvaluakтor kal $\mu \mathrm{varakh}$ ( Apooht. Constitt. vi. 23). Tha tredavaцakтds өugia (Lit. S. Jas. in Orat. Veli). The spiritual snecifice, sacrificium spirituale Ougla (Apost. Coustitt. viii. 48; Cyril. Jer. Orat. xxiii. Mystag. v. 8). The intellectial sacrifice, Aoriut Aorinht өugra (Euseb, Derm. Evamg, 1. 10). So Christ is sald to be intellectually ascrificed (vōrūr), Cyril, Alex, in Zeplh. bii. 8,10 . The true and full sacrifice, sacrificlum verum et plenum (Cyprian, E.p. Ixili.). The holy and nost (Cyril. Jer, v. Myst. Cat. 9). The honouring nnd saying sacritice, hunorificentise et macrificii salutaris obsequium (Fulgentius, ad Monim. ii. 2-5). The most true and single sacrifice of the new lnw, verissimum et singulare ancrificium novae legis (Allg. Lib. de Spirith, xi.). The oblation of the chureh, ecclesiae sacrificium (Fulgent. ad Monim. lib. ii. c. wi.); Ecelesiae ohlatio (Iren. iv. 18, 1). The ohlatiou of the liody and Blood of ( of Christ, oblatio curporis et sanguinia Christi (Fulgent. Respons. ad Uurest. 5, terrand. Epist. xir.). The reasonable oflering, $\dot{\eta} \lambda$ orikж $\lambda$ arpetla (Anaph. of St. Bnsil), oblatio rationalis (Ethiop. Lit.). The tremeudous and life-giving oflering, Pasch. jejut, iii. § 4).
It would be inpleasible to present the reader With a complete cutena of the passages in early liturgies, councils, and writiugs in which the euchariatic sacrifice is mentioned. The following list list of aseriticial phrases from the earliest Western sacrumientary will afford an idea of the extent to which the thought and haguage of the early church were anturated with the conc of sucrifice. The game phrases, with valus. variations and allitions, abound ia all eariy service beoks, R R mana, Gallicnn, and Mozarabic. The writings of Eistern aninta and the Eastern liturgies abound equally in the use of $\theta$ outa and reogqopd, with many cognate and compound phraseg.

1834

SACRIFICE

SACRILEGE

In the sacramentary of Leo-" Divinum sacrificium (Alense Aprili, xii.) ; sacrificium placationais et landis (ib. xiii.); laudis ture domiue hostias immolanus (Ifens. April, xiv. Jul. xli.); hostia placatiouis et landis; spiritualis hostin quae miro ineffabilique mysterio et immolatur semper et endem semper oftertur (Muratori, do Reb. Lit. 198) ; sacrificium singulare quoll majestati tuae et semper relditur et debetur (. Wens. Jul.), Prec. Diurn. xxxy. xxxviii. ; hostias tibi domine deferimus immolandas (ib.); hostias tibi, domine, suppliciter immolamus (ib.) ; sterificiun nostrum (in Natal. Dom. iii. ; see the whole of this collect.); suscipe domine sacrificium eujus te voluisti, diguanter immelatione placari (al Jejun. xmi. Mensis); oblatiouis obsequium quod offerimus (Menss Apr. xvii.); sacrificium celebramms quod aoblis debet esse perpluam (ib. xxii.); hanc oblationem quam tibi offerimus placatus accipras (in /'entecost.); hostias altaribus tuis placationis imponimus (in Nutal. SS. Johan. et Pauli, v.) ; oblatio nostrac servitutis (in Natal. SS. Juh.et $P^{\prime}(t t h i$, vii., iv. Id. Aug. v.); sacrificium (in Natul. Pet. et P Puli, xvi. frequent.); hostias nostrne devotionis (Mense Jui. iii.) ; sacrificium gloriosum (Mease Jul. iii.) ; oblatio sacranda (Mense Jul. xv.); sacrificium tibi domine celcbrandum placntus intende (Mense Jul. xix.); tuae plebis oblatio (Mense Jull. xxiii.), or populi tuac, or familiae tuac (ib. xxxiii.); sacrificium quotidianum (Mens. Jul. xlir.); sacratne plebis oblatio (viii. Id. Aug. vii.); sacrificium laulis (iv. Id. Aug. v. canon Gelas. frequent.); sacrificium salutare (Id. Aug. iv.; Natal. Epis. xix.) ; sacriticium nostrae servitutis (xri. Kicl. Oct. iii.); hostias laudis ( ${ }^{\prime}$ rid. K.t. Oct. i.; Mcns. Sep. xii. \&c. frequent.); sacrificium nomini tuo dicatum (Nfensis Sep. i.); sacrificii praeseutis oblatio (Sujer Dejunctos, ii.); sacrificium cujus te roluisti dignauter immolatione placari (in Jejun. Mens, xmi. ii.)."

Thic following are among the various titles applied to the Eucharist in the ancient Celtic church of Great Britain and Ireland:

Hostia ; (Syn. Ifibernens. ii. 21) oblatio; (Reg. Columbani, c. jv.) olfflenn ; (Senchus Mor. i. 126, ii. 344) racopralc ; (Book of Deer) sacrificium; (Gildas, Praefat. de Poeniten. §§ 6, 7, 8 ; Hibernens. xli. 4; lieg. S. Colum. cxii.) sacrificale mysterium; (Cuminius, Vit. S. Culum. p. 29)." To celebrate the Holy Eucharist was expressed by-"Offerre (Gildas, I'racf. de Poenit. xxiv.; Hi'ernens. xviii. 6); sacra offerre (Gillas, ib. xxiii.) ; offerre sacrificium (Liber Davidis, can. xii. ; Patricii, Confessio, xir.) ; sacra oblationis mysteria ministrare (Adamnan, Vit. S. Colum. i. 40 ); sacram oblationem consecrare (ib. iii. 17); immolare hostiam (Secuadiai Humnus, Irish Hymnary, p. 17)."
The word "sacrificium" was usel equally for that which was offerel to Gold, aad for that which was given to and receiral by the communicant. St. Gall told his scholar Magnoaldus, "My master Columbanus is accustomed to offer uato the Lord the sacrifice of salvation in brazen vessels" (Wal. Strabo, L'it. S. Galli, i. 1U). The twelfth canon of the synol of St. Patriek runs thus; "He who descrveth not to receive the sacrifice in his life, how can it benefit him after hls death ?" (Haddan and Stubbs, Councils, ii. 2, 335). St. Patrick said to the newly-baptized virgin daughters of Lnoghaire, "Ye canuot see the face of Christ except ye taste of death, and except ye receive the sacrifice." And they answerel, "Give us the sacrifice that we may beholl the Son onr Spouse," and they received the Eucharist of God, and they slept in death (Book of Armagh, fol. 12n). The two worls communion and sncrifice are trefuently used tugether in one phrase in the Lerblar Rreac. "Thereafter Patrick sent forth his spirit, aul he received communiou und sacrifice from binhy Tassach's haud" (fol. 29 b ; sce also fols. 65 s, 66 a).

The use of the worl "saerificium" for Eucharist is frequent in the service books aad ecelesiastical documents of the Auglo-saxin E.turch. This is natural in a church which accepted through its founder the loman liturg in the shape of the Gregorian Sacramentary, modified by the introduction of several Gallican and perhaps of a few Celtic $i$ enres. Illustrations might be drawn from almost any page of the Auglo-Saxon missals or other service boeks (Surtees, Soc. rol. lxi. p. ix.), and from the regulations conceraing the Eucharist lad Jown in the penitentinls of Theodore, cap. xii. (7th century) ; of Bede, cap. viii. (8th century); of Egbert, cap. xii. (8th centory), \&c. (ling at ${ }^{\text {J J }}$. Anglo-Saxon Church, edit. 1858, vol. i. 1. 265).
[F.E.W. W.]
SACRIFICIUM. The anthem commenly called the offertory (" quad in honore sacrijicion win canitur ;" see lailore, de Eccl. Off. i. 14) was so called anong the Goths of Spain, as by lisidere of Seville, A.D. 595 (Epist. ad Lecul. $f$ r. § 5).

Sucrificium is the invariable heading of the offertories in the Mozarabic Missal. Ex. (the offertory for Eastor): "Sucrificium. Eece Agaus (John i. 29). V. Dicunt qui (Ps. cvi. 1-3). P. Qui tollit. 1: Gloria et honor Patri. P. Qui tollit peccatum."
[W. E. S.]
SACRILEGE. Amongst the acts which are specifically classed as sacrilege, we may enume-rate-
(a) The act of one whe "acceptnm a sacerdote Eucharistiam non sumpserit" (Conc. Tulet. i. cap. 14).
( $\beta$ ) The seizure of sacred or ecclesinastical property (Conc. 「as. ii. c. 4, A.D. 529 , citing St. Jerome's letter to Nepotianus). In this category we find the seizure of the yoods of s bishop at his denth by the clergy (Cona. Chat. cmi. 22), especially the plunder of the palace and the licence that prevailed through the whole of Rome und its suburbs on the death of the supreme pontiffs (Ravenuat. sub Joan. iv. c. 11, ob. A.D. 685). Akin to this is the removal of anything from the episcopal residence during the racancy of the sce (Conc. Herd. can. 16, A.D. 524). [Vacancy.]

At a later period we find traces of the seizure of the goods of deceased preshyters or clerics.
( $\gamma$ ) A bishop,'s delivering over a monastery to spolintion (Conc. Hispal. ii. c. 10, A.D. 619).
( $\delta$ ) The sale of any of the vessels of the church on 'he part of a presbyter or deacon (Capitula Martini Bruc. c. 17, cent. 6).

St. Ambrose meited the sacrnmental plate at Milan to redeem some captives, and the atians branded that as sacrilegc. But St. Ambnse justified himself, arguing that it is better to have preserv lifeless vesse St. Augustin St. Cyril at Carthage. 1 Justinian a s ing the churo A similar pro by the counci
(є) Offence the sovereign Princes, Alf
(S) Plunde Theod. ix. 17 osteemed "pro ( $\eta$ ) Impedin ef his oflice by (Cod. Theod. i ( $\theta$ ) Allied service and Theot. 16, 2). (i) Bingham sius in proof of from the cup i ". . . quidam sacri portione . . divisio u grandi sacrilegi
(к) The name neglect of ign preaching the w divina legis s: fundunt aut $n$ sactilegium con Biagham, xvi. 6
There are ma sacrilege by the called by that example:-
(1) Wrapping altaris). (Clem.
(2) A deacon $u$ his shoulders (ibid (3) The act of of adjangit corpora
(4) Not consun (Cassar. c. 3).
(5) Giving the
(b) Ottering any with mingled wine
(7) A layman u the worl of God (T (8) Destroying o tare, or delivering famers (unyuentar. c. 68).
(9) Profanation e. 76 ); or introduc imprepriety (Trull.
(10) Giving or (comurunionem) in ar (11) Drawing fig groand, thus causing to be troddea upon (' (12) Offering imp in the Eucharist (Co (13) Misuse of the or other purposes A.D. 813).
(14) The act of the the Scriptures aad authorities for destru

Ye canuot see of death, and And they that we may they receired slept in death he two words equently used Letbhur" Brewe. $s$ spirit, aud he from binhol also fols. 65 a , rificium" fur wice books and e Anglo-Saxin church which Roman liturgy Sacrumentary several Gadlican s. Mllustrations. ay page of the service books and from the arist laid down , cap. sii. (7th ;h century); of $& c$. (linga. J J. vol. i. 1. 265 ).
[F. E. W.] zem cimmonly ore sacrificion um Off. i. 14) was in, as ly lsidore whefr. §5). heading of the issal. Ex. (the um. Eece Agnus (Ps. cvi. 1-3). or Patri. P. Qui e acts which are we may enume. ptam a sacerdote (Conc. Tolet. i. or ecclesiastical A.D, 529, citing inus). In this - the goods of a gy (Conc. Chatc. of the palace and gh the whole of ih of the supreme © c. 11, ob. A.D. aval of anything ring the vacancy 16, A.D. 524). zes of the seizure iers or clerics. r a mothastery to (0, A.D. 619). sels of the chureh deacon (Capitula amentall plate at $: 8$, nul the arians But St. Ambrnese $t$ it is better to have preserved the vessels of living men than lifeless vessels. A similar thing was done by St. Augustine, by Acaeius, bishop of Amida, by St. Cyril nt Jerisalem, and by Deogratias of Carthage. Bingham shews thnt in the Code of Justimian a specinl provision was made for selling the ehurch plate in these exceptional cases. A similnt provision in the canon law was made by the council of Rheims (Can. 22).
[W. E. S.]

SACRILEGE

(e) Orfences aguinst the person and rights of the sovereign (Cod. Theod. lib. 6, tit. 5). See princes, Alhegiance to.
( () Plmalering the graves of the dend. (Ced. Theou. ix. 17 says that this act was always stcemed "proximnm sacrilegio.")
( $\eta$ ) Impeding a clergyman in the performance of his office by imposing upen him other daties (Cod. Theod. 16,2).
( $\theta$ ) Allied to this is the disturbance of divine service nud affronting its ministers (Cod.
Theal, 16,2 ).
(1) Bingham quotes the words of pope Gelasius in proof of the pesition that the abstaining from the eup in Holy Conumnion is sactilege: sseri portioue sumpta tnntummodo corporis divisio minaliee sacri cruoris abstinent randi sacrilegio non potest pue mysterii sine grandi sacrilegio non potest provenire."
( $\kappa$ ) The name of sacrilege is $g i v e n$ even to a neglect of ignorant or careless teachers in praching the word of God to the people: "qui fundunt nut negligendo violnnt hesciende consaccilegium num negligendo violnnt et otlendunt sacilegium committuat " (Cod. Theod. ap.
Biagham, xvi. 6,27 ). There nre many
There are many aets which are classed as sacrilege by the canonists whithout being actunlly called by that name in conciliar decrees; for example:-example:-
(1) Wrapping n corpse in the altar-pall (palla altaris). (Clem, $E_{1}$, ii.)
(2) A deacon using the snme as a covering for is shoulders (ibid.). bis shoulders (ibid,).
(3) The act of one whe "ad sepulcra martyrum
(3) The ate of one whe "ad sepulcra martyrun
(4) Not consuming the Euchnrist in chureh (Csesar. c. 3).
(5) Giving the Eacharist to the dead.
(6) Ottering anything but bread and the eup with mingled wine and water.
(7) A layman undertaking publicly to teneh the word of God (Trull, e. 64).
(8) Destroying
(8) Destroying or mutilating books of Seripture, or delivering them to booksellers or perfumers (unjucntarii) fumers (unjucntarii) to be destroyed (Trull.
c. 68).
(9) Profanation of churches by traffie (Trull. 0. 76); or introdncing eattle (Trall. c. 88); or impropriety (Trull, c. 97).
(10) Giring or receiving the Communien (communionem) in any vessel (Trull. e. 101).
(11) Drawing figures of the
(II) Dranding figures of the cross upoo the groand, thus causing the emblem of our salvation to be tradden upos (Trull. $\mathrm{c}, 73$ ) (12) Offering imprall. e. 73).
in the Euchnrist (Couc. impr bread for consecration (13) Misure of the sacred chrism A.D. 693). or other purposes (Conc, Arelut. iv. cap. 18, a.D. 813). (14) The act of the traditores in delivering up the Scriptures nad sacred vessels to heathen the Scriptures nad sacred vessels to heathen sutharities for destrnction.

SAGUM

1835
(15) A eleric of any rank consulting augurs, soethsnyers, fortune-tellers, or magiciaus (Conc.
Tul. iv. e. 28 ). With c. 28).
against regnrd to the punishment eaacted against sacrilege, it appears from the 16 th ennon of the council of Lerida (Herd.) alrealy quoted that conviction was foilowed by "proofixlus anatherma." The guilty were disqualified for accusation ("Aullateuus ad accusationem The mode of Eutyehinn Ejit. 2).
The mode of inflicting the punishment is second conncil ongth in the 24th canon of the sion was the seizure of chureh 567 ). The oceaoffender was to le ade of chureh property. The of the church be ndmonished by the presbyter not make restitnation hal suffered. If he would a son in letters by all the brethrea. But if ha was finally recaleitrant after a third. But if he abbits aoll presbyters assembled admonition, the solemn anathters assembled to pronouace in choir, Christ being their helpergy were shat Psalm (Vuls being their helper. The 109th the poonr, that "upon his said to the murderer of that came upon Judas," The effeet of the denuaciation is declared to the effect of the die eot only exe declared to be that he should and should ie smilteu with nuathematized, hearen. [Malediction] with the sword of The fourth coction.] sacrilege of grave-robbio Toledo speaks of the able by death uuder thag as having been puaishaccordiagly, that the public laws, and enacts, crime be deposed a cleric who is guilty of the years' pe deposed from his ordcrs, and do three years' peaance (c. 45). In the excerpts of archsons are ranked (quoting Jerome) snerilegious perof nure ranked with murderers, The intliction of punishment (presumably enpital punishment) is there pronounced to be not "eflusion san"huinis." Elsewhere they are catalagued with thieves, resorters susped, excommuniented, felons, (Entych resorters to fortune-tellers and wizards" Pontifch. Eipist. 2, ap. Antonii Angustini Juris Legead, as nsual, 34, tit. ix. pars ii. cap. 8). the horrors of sual, is not back ward in depieting Gregory of Tours $d c$ Gloria See, for instance, de Siraculis S. Murtini, lib. I.
[H. T. A.]

SACRIS'TA,SACRISTANUS. The minister to whom the care of the sacred vessels, vestrum rum custos; filem qni Thesaurarius" (Durand. Rational. lib. ii. e. 1, n. 14). [Sceuornylax.]sadiristy. [Diaconicum; Scecophyla-

[E. V.]
SADOC, Feb. 20, bishep, martyr in Persia under Sapor (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Graec. Sir-let.).
[C. H.]
SADOTH, Oct. 19, martyr in Persin under Sapor (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Gracc. Sirlet.),

[C, h.]  SAGAR, Oct. 6, bishop of Laodicen, reputed

 Notker.). St. Paul (Hfant. Usuard., let. Rom.,[C. H.] EAGUM. This werd is preperly applied to a elonk wern by the inferlor prankerly applied to soldiery. We gather from Isidere that it was of

1836 SAINTES, COUNCIL OF

SAINTS

Gallican origin and rectangular in form (Etymol. xix. 24.13). With its military use we have no concern here, but it is necessary to remark that In the 8th century we find several prohibitions against the use of the sagum by clerics. Thus a council held in A.D. 742 under the presidency of Boniface, either at Ratisbon or Augsburg, orders that "priests and deacons shall not wear suga like laymen, but casulae" (can. 7 ; Lable, vi. 1535). The rules of this council were confirmed by a capitulary put forth by Carloman at Liptinae in the following year (Baluzius, Cajit. Reg. Franc. i. 149). Again, in a letter of Bonitace to Cuthhert (A.D. 745), we find a refereace to his prohibition to the "servants of God" of the ose of saya or weapons. In the Theodosian Code, sagum is the name applied to the cloak or outer covering used by those who looked after the horses used for public conveyance. These are not to be taken away or torn by those employing the horses (lib. viii. tit. 5, Il. 37, 48, 50 ; and see Gothofredus's note). For further references see Ducange's Glossarium, s. v.
[R. S.]
SAINTES, COUNCIL OF (Santonense Conciliun), A.d. 562, when Heraclius, a presbyter, was nominated to that see in lieu of Emerius, appointed to it uncanonically by king, Clotaire I. But the bishops were fined for this act by Cherebert, the son of Clotaire, and Emerius was maintained in his office. (Banai, ix. 783-786.)
[E. S. Ff.]
SAINTS (Sancti, \&yiou). (1) The people of God, as holy by election and profession, have been so called under both dispensations (beut. xxx. 3; Ps. 1. 5; cxlix. 1, 5, 9; \&c., and N. T. Rom. i. 7; 1 Cor. i. 2; Eph. i. 1, iv. 12 ; Col. i. 2 ; Jude 3 ; \&c.). This scriptural use of the word Christ. With Constantine the risible church is $\delta$ ajiw $\sigma u{ }^{\prime} \lambda \lambda o \gamma o s$, the assembly of the snints (Tit. Orat. ad SS. Coetum). In several passnges in which St. Chrysostom speaks of the intercesaion of "the stiots," the context shews that he means our living brethren (Hom. 44 in Gen. 82 ; H.m. 5 in Matth. Ev. § 4 ; Hom .5 in Ep. 2, ad Eph. § 1). "Grex snnctorum" is the church in the language of Victor Vitensis (de Persec. Afric. 5). Caesarius of Arles, referring to the precept (St. James v. 16), "Confess your faults one to another," snys that "Scripture advises us to confess our sins, not only to God, but also to the saints and those who fear God" (Scrm. Ivi. § 7).
But several conventional restrictions of the meaning of this term were at the same time growing up. Thus it was sometimes limited to those who lived up to their holy profession, the true saints in the visibla kingdom of saints; as when some persons, condemned by the council of Milevi, A.d. 416 (cans. 7, 8), attempted to explain away the use of the petition, "Forgive us our trespasses," by "the saints." Again it sometimes meant those who were especially devoted to holy offices or to a holy life, as the clergy and monks and nuns. Thus Cyril of Jerasalem calls a certain rite in baptism "the insuffintions of the saints" (Catech. Myst. ii. 3). Salvian, complaining of the oppressions of his day ; "Viduarum et pupillorum viscera devorantur, et cum his ferme sanctorum omnium " (do Gubern. Dei, 5). In the East again the writers of holy Scripture were especially so called. See examples in the Festal Epistles of St. Athanasius, Pp. 14, 20, 25, 39 (Enyl. Tr. Oxf.). St. Basil ot Caesarea asks, "Which of the anints has left in writing the words of invocation at the consecration of the bread of Eucharist and the wine of blessing? For we are not content with those things which the apostle or the gospel has mentioned, but we say other things" (de sipir. Sanct. 27, § 66).

(2) Saints in the Calendar.-The use of ths title "saint" to denote a "martyr designatus" (Tertull. Ad Mart. 1) or "vindicntus" (Optatus, de Schism. Donat. i. 16), or a confessor raised to the same rank, is not carlier than the 5th contury. [Compare Calendar; Martyhology.] We find it, however, in a Roman table of gospels, "Capitula Lectionum Evangelii nnn. circ. ad missam," which Martene thinks not later than the begioning of that period, almost every name being preceded by the title "aanctus" (Nartene and Durand, Thesuur. v. 66). Another calendar of the 5th century is headed, "Hic continentur dies nataliciorum martyrum et depositiones episcoporum, quos ecclesia Carthagenis anniversaria celeRrant" (sic) (Aualecta Vet. Mab. 163, ed. 2, livinart, u. s. 693). Here the title of saint is geem to nearly all; but the custom does not piler; for the first quite familiar to the comthough four of them are described as The rest, above 80 in number, with three aplarently accidental exceptions, are all called saints. The Calendar of Polemeus Silvius, or rather P. Annaeus Silvius, was written for the year 448. Beaide beathen festivals, hirthdays of emperora, &c., prognostications of weather, and some of the greater Christian festivals, it notes "Natalis S. Vincentii Martyris, Depositio eancti Petri et Pauli, Natalis S. Laurentii Martiria, Natalis S. Hippoliti Mart., Natalis S. Stephani Mart." (Boll. u. s. 176 ; Mai, Script. "et. Nov. Cull. v. i. 54). Certain Fasti Consulares, which end at the year 493, contain memuranda of nine martyrdoms, and of the translation of SS. Andrew and Luke to C. P.; but in only two inatances (St. Laurence, St. Euphemia) is the title of aaint employed (Boll. u.s. 186). A frag. ment of a Gothic cnleadar found in the library at Milan namea aix martyra, but atyles none of them saints. It was compiled before 553 , but when does not appear. It is thercfore uncertaia whether the omiasion is a mark of great antiquity or a peculiarity of the Gothic church (Mai, 1, s. 66). In the Calendiriuin Romantan of the 8th century, printed by J. Fronto (Epist. et Dissert. 133, Veron. 1733), the title is scrupulously prefixed to every name; ns it is also to those found on a marble calendar of the ninth given by Mai (u.s.58).
(3) Commemoration in the Lituray.-The one privilege accorded at the earliest period to the recognised ainats of any church, was annual ing of in its liturgy. Thus St. Cyprian, speaking of two martyrs, aaya, "As ye remember, re celebrate the passion and days of wartyrs by a yearly commemoration" (Epist. 34, ad Cler, ed Ben.). [Natale.] He ordered the deaths of persons under persecution to be notified to him, that they mi
37). It was to control the well as other when martyr the bishop w or exclusion : tis, nisi episc (Capit. Car. Francof. 794 257 ; vi. 283 but sufferers ness (see th Pastor, i. vis ia Cyprian $E$ bonour ander viz. Sylveste Roman calend tury, printed 66). At leng annual or by ohject of amb or hequests. iv the 6th ce i) izide a do (Lebb. Bibliot Mans (Mab, u. on condition scribed in the recited on eve
The names chief saints we the rest, in 8th century Magdeb. 1731 ) desirable even West the more occupied a per Hence within the blessed Vir in most of, $P$ gies, except th on the eallier dore and Nesto primitive litnr tinople. At fir the priest at tion (Notitia Ev while, obvious! tion, they wer part of the ser earlier arrange liturgy: "The of God, the hol the first confess all saints, be co Choir. Remen mercy upon th East. Church, the original tex tion God is ain! orthodex "from but the later and peace with our most holy dex Liturg. iv. P not only comme engels, the bap martyre in gen James by name but also prays repose" of all tl in the writers o called. See f St. Athana? Oxf.). St. the saints has cation at the larist and the $t$ content with the gospel has igs" (de stir.

The use of the r designatus" tus" (Optatus, fessor raised to in the 5 th con[ARTYROROGY.] omao table of Evangelii ana. ne thinks not t period, almost by the title rand, Thesaur. - the 5th ceaar dies natalicioерівсороrum, aiversaria cele ah. 163, ed. 2, title of saint is ustom does not iar to the com$t$ are without it; bed as martyrs. with three appaall called saints. lvius, or rather for the year birthdays of em . of weather, and ian festivals, it artyris, Depositio 3. Laurentii MarHart., Natalis S . ; Mai, Script. l'et. Fasti Con-ulares, ntain memorands the translation of ; but in oaly two Euphemia) is the 4. s. 186). A frag. nd in the library but styles none of $d$ before 553 , but herefore uncertain tark of great antihe Guthic church miun Romanum of I. Fronto (Epist. et he title is scrupue; as it is also to cudar of the ninth the Litur:7.1.-The earliest period to church, was annual St. Cyprian, sjeakts ye remember, me hem, whenever ya of martyrs by 8 pist. 34, ad Cler. Ad. ered the deaths of 0 be notified to bim, that they might be thus commemorated (Epist. 37). It was in fact a part of the bishop's duty to control the services of the church in this as well ns other respects. Even at the later period, when martyrs became objects of worship, it was the bishop who exercised the right of admiasion or exclusion: "De . . . . sanctis noviter inventis, nisi episcopo probante, minime venerentur" (Capit. Car. Mlag. a.d. 805, c. 17 ; comp. Conc. Francof. 794, can. 42 ; Capit. Reg. Franc. v. 257 ; vi. 283). Before long persons not martyrs, but sufferers for the truth and eminent for holiness (see the earlier limitations in Hermas Pastor, i. vis. 3 , $\S 1$; iii. Simil. § 28 ; relased in Cyprian Epist. 37 al Cler.), received the same hononr under the title of confessors. One such, viz. Sylvester, but only one, appears in the Roman calendar of the beginning of the 5 th century, printed by Martene (Thesaurus Anecd. v. 66). At length such commemoration, whether annual or by request more frequent, became an object of ambition, and was purchased by gifts or bequests. E.g., a matron named Theodilana iv the 6th censury (Mabill. Anal. Vet. 160, ed. D) irt tde a donation, and Remigius of Rheims (Labb. Biblioth. MSS. i. 806), and Bertram of Mans (Mab. u.s. 257) made bequesta to churches on condition that their names should be "inscribed in the book of life (the diptychs) and recited on every festival."
The names of the Virgin, apostles, and other chief saints were recited from the diptychs with the rest, in some churches even down to the 8 th century (Salig, de Dipt. Vet. iii. 34, Halae Magdeb. 1731) ; but a distinction was felt to be desirable even before that period, and in the West the nore eminent names had for some time occupied a permanent place in the liturgy itself. Hence within our period there were prayers for the blessed Virgin and others by name, certainly in most of, presumptively in all the liturgies, except the Clementine, which was modelled on the easlier rite, and the Nestorinn of Theodore and Nestorius which were derived from the primitive liturgies of Mopsuestia nnd Constnntinople. At first these intercessions were said by the priest at the altar. and after the consecration (Notitia Eucharistica, 421, ed. 2); but after a while, obviously tor the sake of greater diatiuction, they were generally removed to an earlier part of the service. A surviving witness to the earlier arrangement is found in the Armenian liturgy: "The Priest: We pray that the mother of God, the holy Virgin Mary, John the Baptist, the first confessor and archdeacon St. Stephen, aud all saints, be commemorated in this holy liturgy. Choir. Jemember them, $O$ Lord, and have mercy upon them" (Neale's Introd. to Mist. of East. Church, 594 ). Other names follow. In East. Church, 594). Other names follow. In the original text of St. James after the consecration God is sinuply besought to remember all the tion God is simply besought to remember all the orthodos "from righteous Abel unto this day," orthodox "from righteous Abel unto this day," but the later adds, "that we may find mercy and peace with all the snints, . . .. esprecially our most holy..+ lady "' \&c. (Assemani Co- $^{\text {Con }}$ dex Liturg. iv. P. 2, 45). The Sicilian St. James, not only commernorates tho Blessed Virgin, archsugels, the baplists, the upostles, prophets and martyrs in general terms, and St. Stephen and James by name (ihid. 68) before the consecration, but also prays for " the memory, pardon, and but also prays for "the memory, pardon, and repose" of all the archbiahops of Jeruealem after

James, naming sonre of them (76). After the cousecration (p.86) it commenorates a great number of the saints of Scripture, nad many martyrs and others by name, "not that we are worthy to commemorate their blessedness, but that they, standing before Thy dread and awful throne, O Lord, may remember our piteous state."

In the West the Roman use commemorates by name (in the Comwunicant's) the Blessed Virgin, eleven of the twelve apostles, St. Panl (associated with St. Peter), Jinus, Cletus, Clement, Xystus, Cornelins, Cyprian, Lawrence, Chrysogonus, John and Peul, Cosmas and Damian; to which the local churches added names at will (Martene, de Ant. Rit. Eccl. I. iv. 8, n. 16). This was before the consecration. After, it praya for part and lut with "tbe holy A postles and martyrs John, Stephen, Matthias (omitted before), Barnabas, Ignatius," and ten others. In both formularies it avoids prnyer for them. The Mozarabic now merely comnemorates (before the consecration) the B. V. the apostles, &c.; but still "offers on behalf of the spirits of those at rest, of Hilary, Athausius, Martin, Ambrose, Augustine, Fulgentins," &c.-In all sixty-five names are mentioned (Leslie, Missale Mozar. 4, 225).

When the asstem of Misaac was formed in the Weat the several collects composed for a saint's day mentioned him by name. The reference to him was rarious; but in one of them at least a prayer was offered for his repose. Such prayers, however, were 80 contrary to the feeling of the early mediaeval church that only two examples have come down to us in the sacramentariog of Rome; viz. the secretae in the Missae for St. Leo and St. Gregory. Until altered, not long before the time of Innocent III., A.D. 1198 (Decr. Cunst. iii. 130, in Opl. ii. 764, Colon. 1575), they began thus, "Grant unto us, 0 Lord, that thia oblation may profit the soul of Thy servant" (Suram. Gregor, in Murat. Lit. Rom. Iet. ii. 25, 102 ). 102).

It was an early rule that no saint's day should be kept in Lent (Conc. Laodic. can. 51 ; Conc. Tolet. A.d. 656, cap. 1), and none are set down for that season in the earlicst Roman table of gospels (Martene, Thesaur. v. 66), nor could there have been any in the old Gallican lectionary found at Luxeuil (Lit. Gall. 124).

Litanies of the Saints.-Originally the ectenes of the Greeis and Oriental churches seem to have contained no reference to the departed (Notitia Eucharisticu, 422). Now they have a commemoration of the Virgin and other sainta introdnced somewhat awkwardly (Goar, Euchol. Gracc. 66, 74; Renaudot, Lit. Oricnt. i. 9, 139, 149, 506, 514 ; Raulin, Liturg. Malab. 298).

Nor were they commemorated, except very generally, in any of the corresponding W'cstern forms, the Missal litanies, as said in the Missa Catechumenorum (in the Ambrosian rite immediately after the ingressa [lnTROIT]) from a very early period. In the Missal litany preserved at Fulde (Bona, Ker. Liturg. i. 4, n. 3), the only allusion to the saints is in the clanse "Sanctoruin A postolorum et Martyrum memores sumus, ut orantibus eis pro nobis veniam mereamur." There is no reference to them whaterer in the two litnnies retained in the Amhroaian Dissal (1'ameliua, Liturgica, i. 32\%, 931), or in the Mozarr.bic and Gallican Precess, the last form of the eucharistic litany in Spain and France. But when litanies disappeared from the liturgy, they were still used in Prccissioss, and in the visitation of the sick. As so usel, however, we tind them enlarged by direct invocations to saints; as "Sancta Maria, ora pro nobis," &c.-Above 150 are thus addressel by name in an old litany of English use ascribed to the 8th century, printed by Mabillon (Anal. Vet. 168). Awother of the same character, and also kinglish of the 9tin century, is given by Mr. l'roctor (Hist. of B. C. P. 230) from a MS. (II. i. 2:3) in the Combridge University Library. An Anglo-Saxun litany printed by Mai (Soript. Vet. Nooed Coll. v. i. 66) from a MS. of Bury St. Edmund's, now in the Vatienn, contaius thirty names, all purely national ; except that of St. Helena. One of Gallican use, and of the age of Charlemagne (Mabill. Anal. 171), gives about 200 names, among which we find those of Oriel, Raguel, 'Tobiel, which Zachary, in a council held at Rome in 745 (act. 3), declared to be "the names not of angels, but of devils" (Labb. Conc. vi. 1561). Later litunies of this kind may be seen in Bona u. s. App. (Codc: Chisitn.), and Martene, de Ant. Eccl. Rit. I. vij. 4, (ordo 6 (above 280 names), ordd. 11, 13, 15, 17, 25).See litanies as used at the dedication of a chureh [Proctission, ii. B. 15] in the Ordo Romanus, Bernoldi (in Hittorp. Ecol. Off. 108, el. 1); and Murtene (de Aat. Eccl. Rit. ii. 13, ord. 4). They coutain eath about fifty names. For similar litanies sung at the coronation of an emperor, see Mart. ut. s. ii. 9, ord. 5 (at Milan), and ii. 23, ord. 9 (at Rome) in ed. 2 ; at that of a king of France, ii. 10, ord. 7 ( 58 names).
[W. E. S.]
saints' DAYs. [Festivals; Martyr, p. 1127; Natalis.]

SALAMA (Frumbntius), July 10, Sept. 20, Dee. 14, apostle of Ethiopia (Cal. Ethiop.).
[C. H.]
SALARIA or SALARIUM. A anlteellar, generally of some precieus metal, for holding the aalt nsell in consecrating holy water, or in the sacrament of baptism, was a uxual piece of church furmture towards the end of our period. Flodoardus (Hist. S. Remig. lib. ii. c. 5) mentions "cochlearia duodeeim et salarium argenteum." Bernard. Mou. (in Ord. Clunide. part i. c. 27) speaks of the "salaria" of the refectory, into which what remained over of the salt, when the holy water was consecrated, was put. At a later period, among the ehurch furniture of York Minster (Mon. Anyl. iii. 171), was a ailver salteellar, gilt inside, "pro sale in dominieis diebus benedicendo."
[E. V.]
SALCHU (Solochôon), Sep. 17, an Egyptian martyr, commemorated at Chalcedon (Syr. Mart.).
[C. H.]
SALOME, Oct. 22, disciple of Christ (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Fet. Rom.); Oct. 21 (Notker.).
[C. H.]
SALOMON, Fel. 8, mart 1 , commemorated at Curdura (hart. Usuarid.).
[C. II.]
SALOMONIS, Aug. 1, Naceabaean martyr with her seven aons under Seleucus at Jerusalem (Basil. Mcnol.).
[C. H.]

SALON, Sept. 28, bishop and confessur, commemorated at Genoa (Murt. Usuard.). [C. H.]

SALT, THE RITUAL USE OF I. Pu

 into Holy Wator.-See Holy Wathe, &iv. Prayers for the exorcism and benediction of the salt before it was mixed with the water may be seen in the Sacramentary of Gelasins (Murat. Litury. Rom. Jet. i. 739-i41) in that of Grearny (Murat. u. s. ii. 225; Of ${ }^{2}$. S. Gref. iii. 233, wi. Ben.), ia the Romanizing rite of liesturon found by Mabillon at Bobio (Mus. Itcl. i. 38tb), Ac. IIoly water was often mate expressly to be sprinkled in the house of the sick, and then, ats at other times, was " aspersa sale." See Ordines vi. 16, in Martene, de Ant. Ecel. Rit. i. vii. 4. The origin of the custom is nut known, but it is possibly conmected with a henthen practice, described by Balsnmon as having been observed annually at Constantinople even in Chrintian times, of aprinkliug every house with water from the sea (Comment. in Conc. Trull. can. 65).II. At the Dedicition of a Church.-(On such occasions blessed water mixed with anhes was used, and salt was alded here also. It was supposed to represent divine truth; while the witer was a symbol oi the people; the ashes, of' the sacrifice of the Lamb of God. With this misture the bishop signed the comers of the altar, and sprinklel various parts of the church. What remained was poured out at the foot of the altar (Remigius Autiss. ilc Dedic. Ecel. 4-6). There are no examples earlier than the 8 th century. See Martene, u.s. ii. 13; viz. the Gellone ،/issuld Ord. 1; Egbert's P'ontifical, Ord. 2; or Surtees Society, vol. xxvii. p. 34 ; the Anglienn Pontifical found at Jumiéges, 3 ; Ordo Romanes Baruol li in Hittorp. de Off. Cath. Eocles. 11:, Col. 1:188; & © The same rite appears in the Gregorian Sacramentary (Nurat. u. s. ii. 474; Opp. S. Greg. iii. 147, ed. Ben.), but not in the earlier Gelisia (Murat. u. s. i. 609).
III. Salt yiven to Cutechumens.-This was a purely Latin rite, though some have suppred Origen to refer to it when commentiug on kizebiel xvi. 4 (IIom. in Ez. vi.). As no other Greek or Oriental writer even appears to allude to it, and the ritual books of their charches do not preseribe it, we must suppose that Origen is speaking figuratively, like the prophet whom he paraphrases. See a similar passage in Ambrose, Lryp $s$. in Luc. Ev. x. 48; comp. Mark ix. S0, Luke xir. 3t, Col. iv. 6 It was, however, general. it' not aniversal, among the Latins after the 3rd century. Thus we find the council of Carthage in 397, decreeing that "throughont the most solema days of Easter no sacrament should be given to the eatechumens, except the accustomed salt" (can. 5). St. Augustine also, in homan Atrica, says of himself: "Adhue puer . . . . signabur jam signo crucis, et condiebnr cjus sale " (Confess. i. 11, § 17). The Gelasian Sacramentary has a "- Benedictio Salis dandi catechumenis," in which, after exorcising the salt, the bishop proceeds: "Proinde rogamus Te . . . ut halee ereatura salis in nomine Trinitatis efliciatur salutare sacramentum." This is followed by a "Beaedietio post Salem datum" (Marat, is, s, i, 534; Cotices Sacranent. Tinmas. 49; Romne, lis9). All this is preserved in the Gregorian hooks. See Murat. u. s. li. 60, and ether examples ia Martene, de Ant. Eucl. Rit. I. i. 6, Ord. 3. The ## rite is not

 (Thomasius, Gall. Vet. in is recognised empire, whon subject of ha tismo. 1), Ma 17), Theodult &s. In Spmin only heard of in nonaullis ] UsqCognit. Bapt.
ledged by Isid "Exorcisantar 9th century it not apostolic: sacramento exo slii sulis, rel Strabo, de Relu
The salt w (Ordo Scrut. 1, was regarded a with which th imbued during 1 Smaragdus (Epi Offic. ii. 20), Maurus (De Jns This signifieatio furmula used at sapientiac, propit Scrutinii, 1; com Greg. ibid. ii. 60) IV. Given to we find in Fran Carthage respect salt to be given t etiam a nublicis est " (Additio, 4, Cap. R. Fr. vii. 2
V. In the Eu firm an early per preseace of salt in they said, as the oblate, and an a (Pseudo-Damisac. Damase. i. 649 ; Humbert, Adv. Gr Gracc. 426). T Intect. Sec. adv. Armen. in notis C the Nestorians ( $M$ Dissert. xi, 9), a Biblioth. Orient. ii the custom). [EL

SALUSTIA, S baad Cerealis, un Usuard., Adon., No SALUSTIANU memorated in Sur Notker.); May 27

SALU'TARIS, commenorated in ker.). sALVIUS (1), rated in Atrica ( $M$ u
(2) July I, confess Yalenciaaas" (Mur liction of the ater may be sius (Murat. It of Gregory 1. iii. 9:33. wi. sumena foum i. $386^{\circ}$ ), 太e. ressly to be ad then, as st See Ordines lit. i. vii. 4. nown, but it en juactiee, reen observed iu Cluriotian h water from .1.6.5). ch.-On such th ashes was It was sup. ile the water ashes, of the I this mixture the alt:ar, nad urch. What tof the altar 4-6). There 8th eentury. iellone $\mathrm{M}_{\text {issild }}$ 2 ; or Surtees can Pontifical is Brachlif in Nol. 1,088 ; sc. goriaa Sacra, S. Greg. iii. rlier Gclusian -This was a ave suppoed ing on lizekicl ther Greek or ute to it, and sto nint premis speaking lom he jars bluse, $E x p$ s. 50, Luke xiv. eneral, it' nut e3rd ceatury. hage in 397, most soleme 1 be given to stomed salt" tomm Atrica, . . . signabir ale" (Conifess. entary has s is," is whieh, anp proceeds: haec creatora itur salutare by a "Bene. u, s. i, 534 ; (omate, 1tis9). gorian books. - examples io Ord. 3. The

SALUSTIA

rlte 18 not found in the old Gallican books (Thomasius, u.s.; Liturg. Gatl. Mabill.; Sacram. Gall. Jet. in Mus. It tel. i. ; Murat. ". s. ii.), but crucognised by the Romanizing hishopls of the empire, whom Charlemagne convulted on the subject of haptism, as heidrad. Ligd. (De Buptismo. 1), Maghus Senon. (in Martene, i. s. art, 17), Theotulf of Orleans (Lipist. ad. Jomn. 5), &c. In Spain Hildefrase of Toledo (A.D. 6.77) had only heard of the rite as local: "Catechumanis Usquequaquam notur, sules occipiuat. Cognit. Bapt. i. 26). It is, however, neknowledged by lsidore of Seville (De (uffic; ii. 20): "Exorcisantur, deiale salem necipiunt." In the 9 th century it was still kuown that this rite was not apostolic: "Alii aldiderunt in bap,tismatis sacramento exorcismos, alii conse ratiouem fontis, slii salis, vel salivae infusionem" (Walafr. Strabo, de Rehus Eecl. 26).

The salt was given at every Scrutiniom (Ordo Scrut. 1, 8, in Mus. Ital. ii. 77, 81), and was regarded as a symbol of that divine wisdom with which the eatechumen was gradually imbued during his preparation for baptism. So Smaragdus (Luist. UC Sabb. Pontec.), Isidore (Ite Offic. ii. 20), Magnus Senon. (u. s.), Rabanus Maurus (De Instit. Cleri, i. 27), and many others. This signifieation was also recognised in the formula used at the ministration, "Aceipe, ill., sal sapientiac, propitiatus ia vitam acternam " (Ordo Scrutinï, 1 ; eomp. Sacram. Gelas. Murat. i. 534 ; Greg. ibid. ii. 60).
IV. Ginen to Penitents. - In the 8th century we find in France canons, founded on that of Csrthage respecting catechumens, which order salt to be given 'to penitents also: "Quae forma etism a publicis poenitentibus omnino sequenda est" (Additio, 4, ad Cayit. Reg. Fr. c. 63; comp. Cap. R. Fr. vii. 263).
V. In the Eucharistic Bread.-The Greeks from an early period attached importance to the preseace of salt in the bread. It was the mind, they snid, as the leaven was the soul of the oblite, and an azyme without them was dead (Pseudo-Damasc. De Azymis, § 1, Opp. Joann. Dsmasc. i. 649 ; comp. Mich. Cerularius ap. Humbert, Adv. Grace. Calumn. 2, and Nomocanon Gracc, 426). The Armenians (Isatae Cathol. Inrect. Sec. adv. Armen. xii. 8 ; Renuntiutio Armen. in notis Cotel. ad Constit. Apost. v. 12), the Nestorians (Martene, u. s. I. iii. 8; Le Brun, Dissert. xi, 9), and Syro-Jacobites (Assemani, Dissert. xi, 9), and Syro-Jacobites (Assemani, Biblioth. Orient, ii. 183), are equally zealions for the custom). [Eleaments, p. 602.] [W. E. S.]
SALUSTIA, Sept. 14, martyr with her husbsad Cerealis, under Decius, at Rome (M.rrt. Ususrd., Adon., Notker.). [C. H.]
SALUSTIANUS, June 8, martyr, commemorated in Sardinia (Mart. Usuard., Hicron., Notker.); May 27 (Notker.).
[C. H.]
SALUTARIS, July 13, archdeacon, martyr, commemorated in Africa (Mart. Usuard., Not-ker.).
[C. H.]
[C. H.]
SALVIUS (1), Jan. 11, martyr, commemorated in Atrica (Mart. Bed., Notker.).
(2) July 1 , confessor, commemorated "in ;oriu Valencianas" (Mart. Usuard., Wand.). [C.' H.]

samaritan woman

 Martigny mentions four examples from the catacombs; $t$ wo bas-reliefs and two frescoes. In all of them our Lord is represented stanling, and not sitting, as might have bren expeeted from Iohn iv. 5 , In the first of two sculptures, from Maffei's lcrona illustr. part iii. p. 54 (sea pit, with the well is represented as a narrow pit, with a stone curb or margin like the mouth and juller: which supplied with a wheel, rope, ally used ; which appears to have been oceasion$D_{i c t}$ at all times in the East ( 11 ena., Smith's OUte of the Bible), though the woman's words, would seem to imply that there was no such of Rabula, wut it is representel in the MS. of Rabula, where the woman is somewhat ecclesiastically vested. The figures of our Lord and the woman stand on each side of the oplening, as if the words "Gire me to drink" hal just been Tertullian She wears a tunic and pallium, which Tor ment attributed to Jerome ( $1 ; \mathrm{p}$, vi. ad Demetrium) displayed, to women of low rank. Her hair is of these examply hound with a riband, in ona eharacter (Tertuly, which may indicate indifferent eharacter (Tertull. de Virgimibus velandis, vii.); a broader kinil of fillet.

Wumsa of Earmarla (from Martiguy).
One of the frescoes of this subject is in the Callistine cemetery (Bottari, tav. Isvi.). Here the woman is alone, and the well open and without windlass. She wears a short wide-sleeved tunie; but in M. Perret's Cutacombes, vol. i. pl. 71, the iden and treatment of her figure are different. She is represented as tall and noblelooking, in a long Howing tunic; not as questioning our Lord, but presenting Him with a cup of water, as He raises His hand to her, apparently speaking to her of God's gift of living water. water.
No less than eight examples of this subject are ${ }^{-}$ figured by Rehault de Fieury up to the 9th century, and he gives others of the 11 th (see L'Eranyile, vol. i. pl. xlviil. xlix.). Ilis fig. 5, pll x/viii. (6th century), from the tomh of St.
Jude at Verona, is identical with the first described and figured by Martigny. His first and second figures are early work from St. Praetextatus and St. Callixtus; ${ }^{\circ}$ he also gives a 5 thcentury ivory from the Musee de Cluny, and another carving from that of Arles. His next plate contains an outline from St. Apollinare nella Citta in Ravenna (3th century), the woman wearing a long robe with two stripes, and a disciple standing behind our Lorl; and another from a 9 th-century MS. of St. Gregory Nazian zen. Uur Lord wears a violet robe, the woman a red gown fronted with yellow; the bucket and rope are in gold. The latter winds around a regular drum; and all the four last examples contain the pulley fised in uprights.
[R. J. St. T.]
SANIONAS, Nov. 15, martyr with Gurias at Edessa (l3sil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.); Nov. it (Cal. Armen.). [C. H.]
S.AMPSON (1), June 27, "our father," xenodochus at Constantinople in the reign of Justinian (Bnsil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.).
(2) July 28 , bishcp, confessor, commemorated at Dol (Mİart. Usunrd.).
[C. H.]
SAMUEL (1), Aug. 20, Hebrew prophet (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom. ; Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.); Ang. 21 (Cal. Byzant.); June 3 (Cal. Ethiop.).
(2) Feb. 16, martyr with Elias, Jeremias, Isaias, Daniel (Basil. Menol.).
[c. H.]
SANCTA. The Fermentux, or reserved Lucharist, is so called, which, having been consecrated by the bishop of Rome, was sent to the churches in the city. The word is used as a neuter plural in the most ancient recensions of the Ordo Remanus ( $0.1 \mathrm{R} . \mathrm{i} .8,17,18$; ii. 12); but in the gloss (mentioned p. 668) on the eristle of Pseudo-Ionocent to Decentius we have, "de ipsa sancta" (Mabill. Iter German. 65, Hambr. 1717).
[W. E. S.]
SANCTA SANCTIS. Cyril of Jerusalem in his description of the liturgy, after commenting on the Lord's Prayer which follows Consecration, proceeds (catech. Mystag. V. 19): Then the priest says, "Holy things to holy men' ( $\tau$ à dyia qois árius). Holy are the gifts on the altar, after receiving the influx of the Holy Spirit; holy also are we, to whom the Holy, Spirit has been vouchsafed; the two 'holies' correspond one to the other. Then we respond, "One is holy, One is the Lord, Jesns Christ.'" The Sancta Sanctis, which Cyril here describes, is in nearly all Eastern liturgies the prelnde to Communion. See (c.!.) the Greek St. James (Hammond's Liturgies, p. 49).
[C.] SANCTIMONIALIS. The word sanctimonialis, designating a woman of distinguished piety, is applied espectally to such ns were members of a religious society, or Nuss. It is not, however, linited to that use (Ducange, s. v.). Compare Virgins; Widows.
[C.]
SANCTUARY (Sanctuarium, Sacraricm, Secretahiom). As the part of the church con-

[^136]taining the altar, the word sanctnarium first occurs in c. 13 of the first council of Bracara (563); the corresponding word, sacrarium, in the same sense is found a little earlier in c. 3 of the council of Vaison (442). Nany of the Rhenish churches had two sanctuaries, one at the enst and the other at the west, and the plan of the sbbey of St. Gall, attributed to the abbnt Eginhard, who lived in the time of Charlemague, presents the snme arrangement. [Cucrcs, p. 383.] (Viollet-le-Dnc, Dict. ras. de l'Architecture, w.t. Sanctivalre). See Prebbytery; Sacraricic.
[11. T, A.]
SANCTUARY, RIGHT OF (Jus asylorum). The right to take refuge in a chnrch. Similar rights existed buth in Mosaic and in pagan times, and they in some cases extended not only to altars and churches but to persons and things such as statues and standards. (Suetonius, Jita Tiberii, c. 37; Tacitus, Annal. iij. 60). The privilege of affording refuge was coaceded to the chnrch from the first ages of ths emperors becoming Christian. The codes both of Theodosius and of Justinian contain imperial constitutions for the control of this privilege, In lnter times the right has been abolished as having led to great abuses. The chureh was the seat of the bishop, and though the idea of sanctuary was not new, yet Christianity very early felt that the bishop was the natural refuge of those who were in trouble. [lntercession, p. 864.] It was in fact part of the bishop's duty to intercede for those in trouble; and for this reason those who (whether justly or unjustly) hsd occasion to fear the civil law took refuge in the church. A decree that follows the fifty-sixth canon of the fourth synod of Carthage in 399 eaacts that the bishops Epigonius and Vincent should be sent to the emperor to beg for the churches the right of asylum. This seens to shew that the right of sanctuary did not inherently reside in a church, but that it was a specific concession on the part of the civil power. Legal refage was in point of fact nothing but the intercession of the clergy for men in distress, and, pending the issue of their efforts, the right to protect them from violence. It was in no way intended to obstruct justice, although in course of time it became so abused. A law of Justinian's distinctly affirms this position: "Templornm cantela non nocentibus, sed laesis datur a lege." Sanctuary was intended to be a shelter for the innocent, the weak, nad the misunderstood, sad not a refuge for systematic or determined criminals.

The right of aanctuary at first attached only to the altar and nave of the church; but in 431 it was decreed by Theodosins II. that the right should be extended also to the court, the gardeas, and in fact to the entire precinct of the church.

There is a lengthy edict " concerning those who take refuge in the church" issued by the emperors Theodosius and Valentinian, from which the following passage may be quoted as shewing the boundaries to which the right of sanctuary extended in early times. "Let the temples [vaol] of the great God be open for thosc who are in fear, and let the common altar [ $\beta \omega \mu \rho_{s}$ ] receive the suppliants who fly to it; and let no menace presume to remove the divine aid, which is offered to all alike from its abodes. .

In our timos, sufety of fug tuaries [日var people [єікти́ nare] which is gular walls; to be beyond of the church, enter-we det to the fugiti next to the pul of the holy chu in gardens, or porches, shelte as the inmos (Labbe, Con $\cdot i l$.
The privile suthority; but obvious alvanta wards confirme In Archiceologia who became por Pontificum) that should not be one expression, appears that no 2 fugitive from (Archaeologia, vo was afterwards Churlemayno, ton " $41 l$ charches $b$ were asyla and he, by a capitula of Carloman and that churches sh who bad commi punished with de far as to make from his asylum thing, he prohib any nourishment.
As to the priv the following par t. s. p. 16 ff.). trees were held 614). Suspicion have been repeate Christian king Lu privilege of sanct chester, and that S of Essex (A.D. 604 of Westminster. A.D. 690 , enacts the mitted a capital oil ahsll preserve his right requires. If ahsll fly to a chur forgiven him."
The obligation o make composition was decreed by the "Keum confugiente here sudeat quod inique fecit.;
The early centur many interesting inc right of sanctuary. shews that the altar which the right of He uses the expres It was one of the co Eutyohian party th I of Bracara acrariun, in ier in c. 3 of lany of the arics, one nt est, and the buted to the ha time of arrangement. c, Dict. rass. Sce Preb[II. T. A.] (Jus asyloin a church. lossic and in ases extended ut to persons dards. (Suets, Annal. iij. fuge was cent nges of the he codes both itain imperial this privilege. $n$ abolished as e church was h the idea of istianity very natural refinge Intercession, bishop's duty ; and for this runjustly) had & refuge is the the fifty-sixth rthage in 399 19 and Vinceat to beg for the o seems to shem not inherently a a specific corr. Legal refage the intercession s, and, pendiag ght to protect o way intended course of time Justinian's diso " Templorum © datur a lege." shelter for the understood, sod determined cri-

attached oul

 rch; but in 431 that the right urt, the gardens, of the church. oncerning those " issued by the lian, from which toted as shewing ht of sanctuary .et the templee in for those who n altar [ $\beta \omega \mu \mu_{6}$ ] - it ; and let no livine aid, which rodes. . . . . .
BANCTUARY, RIGHT OF

In our times, then, we decree to grant for the snfety of fugitives not only the divine sanctunciea [日uataotipla] and the oratory of the people [eìkrípıov taù daov̂, al. vauv̂, i.e. the nave] which is fenced with a girdle of quadrangular walls; but whatever spot there happens to be beyond thesc, us far no the extreme doors of the church, where those who intend to pray first enter-We determine that it be na altar of mercy to the fugitive . . . and that the precincts next to the public property nbout the first doors of the holy church, whether they be in houses or In gardens, or in courts or in baths, or even in porches, shelter fugitives whe enter them, just as the inmost part of the church would." (Lnbbe, Con ili. iii. 1235, ed. Paris, 1671.)
The privilege nt first rested on imperinl authority; but it contributed so much to the obrieus ndvantnge of the church that it was afterwarda confirmed by the pope (Pegge on Asylum in Archueologia, vol. viii. p. 13). Beniface V., who becnme pope in 609, enncted (Platina, Vitae Pontificun) that "criminnls who fled to churches should not be taken thence by force." From one expression, "quovis crimine patrato," it appenrs that ne crime wns bad enough to exclude a fugitive from the protection of the church (Archacologia, vol. viii. p. 10). This, however, was afterwards modified. Gnillard (Hist. de Churlcmayne, tom. iii. p. 80, np. Pegge), writes: " $11 l$ churches before the time of Churlemagne were asyla nnd for nll sorta of criminals; but he, by n capitular, A.D. 779, conformable to one of Carloman and Pepin passed about 744, decreed that churches sheuld not be asyla for criminala who had committed such crimes ns the law punished with death; and if he did not go so far as to make it lawful to force a criminal from bia asylum, yet, what came to the snme thing, he prohibited people from giving them any nourishment." any nourishment."
As to the privilege of annctuary in Britain, the following particulars are collected by Pegge, a. s. p. 16 ff.). In Druidism certain sacred trees were held to be asyln (Evelgn, Sylua, p. 614). Suspicion nttaches to the steries which have been repeated by some historians that the Christian king Lucius (A.D. 180) conferved the privilege of sanctuary upon the church of Winchester, and that Sebert, the first Christian king of Essex (A.D. 604) did the aame for the church of Westminster. Ina, king of Wessex, about A.D. 690, enacts that, "if a person who has committed a capital oifence ohall fy to a church, he shall preserve his life and make satisfaction as right requires. If nny one deserving of atripes shall fly to a charch, the punishment shall be forgiven him."
The obligation on the part of the fugitive to make compesition for his crime [REDEMPTION] Was decreed by the council of Mentz in 813: "Keum confugientem ad ecclesiam neme abstrahere audeat i. . .; tamen legitime compenat quod inique fecit."
The early centuries of Christianity furnioh many interestiag incidents in connexion with the right of sanctuary. A phrase of St. Ambrose's shews that the altar was the particular spot to which the right of asylum eapecially belonged, He uses the expression " nec altaria tenebo." It was one of the complaints against the riolent Butyohisn party that they had violated thia

SAPIENTIA

1841
right of snnetuary, and dragged their orthedox oplionents from their refuge to massacre them. St. Chrysostom, in the troubles which he incurred by his chnmpionship of orthodexy, avniled himself of refuge at the altar.
In the time of Justinian a period of thirty days was allowed for sanctunry. In Inter times it becnme much less. The Cole of Theodesius denies the right of snnctuary to public debtors, that is, those who defrauded the state. P'rivate debtors were allowed the privilege. Converted Jews who pretended to be Christiana in order to escape their debta or due puaishment were excepted. Apostates and heretics were denied the privilege, and the same prohibition was imposed on runaway slaves and men who had been guilty of heinons crimes. King Childebert Il., when inviting two men to quit their refuge in the church of Soissens, professes that " it is wicked to punish men that hnve been dragged from the church, eren though they be grity ') S. Greg. Turon. Hist. Franc. lih. ix. cap. 38). Miracle is nlleged in vindication of an outrage upon the right of sanctuary. A runaway slave takes refuge in the church of St. Lupus. His mnster, with much profaue lnnguage, would drag him out; when his tengue is rendered powerless, and he can only produce a sound like the lowing of cattle (S. Grez. Turon. Lib. de theria Confessorum, cap. 67). The shelter of the church male a king feel quite secure against the poninrd of the assassin. Guntramn, who became one of the four kings of the Franks in 561, with his throne at Arles, theught his usual gunrd unnecessary in the church; and though the annctuary of the church did not save him from nttack, yet it sared his would-be assassin, for it was thought to be a vielation of the right of nsylum to put to death one who Turen dragged from the church (S. Greg. Turon. Hist. Francorum, lib. ix. cap. 3).
The text-book on the aubject is a omall book by Rittershusius, 'A $\sigma v \lambda_{1} 1 a_{\text {, }}$ hoc est, De jure Anylorum, Argentorati, 1624. The treatise will be found in Critici Sacri, vol. viii. See the excellent tract by Rev. Sam. Pegge in Archaeolo, ia, tol. viii., giving a biatory of aaylum down to its abolition under James I. [H. T. A.] SANCTUS, July 26, martyr, nntive of Ravenna in the reign of Marcus Anteainus (Bnsil.
Menol.) Menol.).
[C. H.]

SANCTUS. [Preface.]

SANDAPILARII. [OBSEQUIES, ix. p. 1431.]

SANGARA, or ANGARA, NOVATIAN COUNCIL OF, in Bithynia (Sangarense Concilum ), a.d. 391, at which the then Novatinn bishop, Marcian, called upon one of his presbyters, a converted Jew, named Sabbatiua, to defend his views about keeping Easter. After hearing him, it was voted an open question, so that each might keep Easter as he would. Thia decision suggested to Socrates, the historian who reports it, his well-known chapter on things indifferent. . (E. H. v. 21, 22 ; comp. Mnnsi, iii. 699 ; Cave, Hist. Lit. i. 367.) [E. S. Ff.] SANTONENSE CONCILIUM. [SAINTEs].
her children Files, Sples, Caritas (Mart. Usuard. ; (chl. Armen.) ; Sept. 17 (Cal. Byzunt.) ; Sepit. 10 (Bnail. Alenol.); commemorated June es3 at Nicomelia (Notker.); July 1 at Rome (Flor.).
[C. II.]
SARABAITAE were such monks as lived under no settled manastic rule, but collectell in little groups of two or three, generally in sume populous place, where they found purchasers for their wares, which they seld at more than the market value in consequence of their supposed sanctity. They seem, according to Jerome (L.pist. 22 ad Eustoch. e. 15), to have practised all the arts wherely a reputation for sanctity with the vulgar may be won, in dress, appearance, and gesture, while they disparaged those who led more regalar lives. The Egyptinns called them (says Jerome, u. s.) Remboth or Remobnth. Cassian alse (Collat. 18, c. 7) draws an unfavourable picture of them. (Binghan, Antiq. VII. ii. 4.)
[C.] SARABALLA, SARABARA. This word, which represents some article of Persian dress, is merely the trabsliteration of the Chaldee סטרבּלִין, occurring Dan. iii. 21, 27 [ 94 Vulg.]. The esaet meaning is doubtful, bat it is most probably to be explaised of some kind of hose or other covering of the leg. Thus the Vulgate, in the former of the two passages, readers the word by briseste, and Symmachus by àvá̧úpıíss. A full discession of the meaning of the Biblical word dees not fall within oar province-reference may be made to Gesenius, Thesaurus, s. v. The occuireaces of the word in the fithers do not help, us much, for eather they are references to the above passinges of Daniel, with the word merely repreduced, or we are distiactly told that the meaning of the word is uacertain. We find the word in Tirtullina, with the spelling sarabara (de Orat. 15, de Res. Carnis 58 [of the Three Children]; de Pallio 4 [of Alexander the Great after his castern cenquests]); Jerome adopts the spelling saraballa, or sartbala, and speaks of that with an $r$ as corrupt (Comm. in Dan., in loc.; Patrol. $\times \times \mathrm{x}$. 508 : see also Epist. d . ad Innoc., ib. xxii. 329). Jerome explains the word as meaniag ceverings for the legs, but we find a curious difference in the explaation of Isidore (Etym. xix. 23. 2), that they are "fluxa ne sinuosa vestimenta," and that in the opiaion of some they are coverings of the head, "qualia videmus in enpite magorum picta." (Cf. also Aug. de Mayistro, e. 10; Patrol. xxxii. 1214. Reference may also be made to Ducange's Glossary, s. v.)
[R. S.]
SARAGOSSA, EIGHTEEN MARTYRS OF, Apr. 16 (Mart. Usinard. ; Boll. Acta SS. Apr. ii. 40 (i) ; Apr. 15 (Mart. Adon., the names being somewhat different: Mart. Hieron., the names much different ; Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
saragossa, COUNCILS OF (CaEbaraugustana Concilia). Three are reported.
(1) A.D. 380 , or a year earlier or later, accordIng to some: for which Sulpitius Neverus (Hist. ii. 47) vouches as having been held ngainst the Priscillianists, and resulted in the condemnation of two bishops, Instantius and Salvianus, and two laymen, Elpidins and Priscillian bimself.

sARDICA, COUNCIL OF

"Additam etiam, at si quis damatos in com. munlonem recejlisset, seiret in se eandem gententiam promendam." This is the only part of his statement which commeets it whth the eight canons that have been assignel it , as they arw, virtually, the words of the fifth caaon. Tho rest are by ae meaus as "plaiuly directed agaiast the Priscillinnists" as Hefele requires his readers to believe. The preface to them nakes only twelve bishopa present at their passing. Sulpitius makes his synod attended also by the bishops of Aquitaiae ( Mansi, iii. 63:3-40; Ilefule, ii. 292, Eug. tr.).
(2) A.D. 592, when three eanons were passed, all suggested by the conversions from Arianism that were taking place, and passed in general by those whe had subseribed by themselves or their representatives to the third conacil of 'Toledo, three years before. Artemius, metropolitan of Tarragoon, who had been represented there by his presbyter Stephen, presided now ; asil most of the eleven bishops who subscribel now subseribed then. Two more who subscribed then sent their representatives (Mansi, x. 4il4).
(3) A.D. 691, by order of king Egiea, as we learn from the preface. Fire caaens or chapters were passed, the fifth of which, referring to the fifth caoon of the thirteenth council of Tolelo, and confirming it, decrees farther that the widews of kings shall take the veil and eoter the cloister without delay. But who presiled or who subscribed on this occasion, is uot stated. It may be observed also that neither of these two last conocils appear in the pseudo-Isidorian collection (Mansi, xii. 41-46).
[E. S. Ff.]
SARAH, the wife of Abraham, Ang. 19 (Cal. Ethiop.).
[C. H.]

SARAPION. [SERAPION.]

SARBELUS, Jan. 29, martyr under Trajga (Basil. Menol.).
[C. H.]
SARCILIS. A kind of woollen garment, mentioned together with cappuc and camisiles in the Rule of Chrodegang, bishop of Metz, according to the text as given by Labbe (c. 29, vol. vii. 1458). Here it is ruled that elerics of higher standing have either sarciles or wool sulficient to make them a couple for the year's use, and clerics of lower standing are to have one each. It must be stated that the text given by D'Achéry (Spicilegium, i. 235 [here the chapter on Vestments is 41]; reprinted, Patrol. 1xxxix. 1075) omits the mention of the sarciles. In a capitulary of Charlemague of A.D. 813 (c. 19, vol. i. 510 , ed. Baluzius), it is orlered that female servants of the Imperial household are to receive wool and flas to make "sarciles (al. sarcillos) et camisiles."
[1. S. $]$

SARCOPHAGUS. [Sculpture.]

SARDICA, COUNCIL OF. (1) Socrstes (H. E. ii. 20) and Sozomen (II. E. iii. 11.) statie expressly that the council of Sardiea (the modern Sophia, in Bulgarian, Triaditza) was held in the eleventh year after the death of Constantine, i.. A.D. 347. But the fragments discerered by Sciplo Maffei p asius to Alexa know from At was two year Mansl therefur the year 344. Letters of Atl 347, was cert the whele, it se 344 or the end council. [See p. 190.]

(2) That the by the empero clear fromits ow c. Arian. c. 44) the desire of P both by Socrate bishop of Rome, Hesias of Cordov outset, however, on giving Atha Easteros separat Philippopolis, wl sition of Athana accordance with [p. 93]. It is ev the ceuncil had $n$ ical. The Trul caaons of Sardic and others whic eecumenical), as well as the Wet never been forma Nay, the Roman c Alexander Natalis 460, ed. Venet. 17 stated the counc question has beed canons 3, 4, 7 [Gre the privilege of Rome. It scems d council intended to a personal privileg trouble and divisi p. 1658]. The ca MSS. are commonl (Manssen, Geschichi Rechts, i. 50 ff.)
SARDINIA, C Coxcilium), a.d. bisheps then in $e$ letter, in reply $t$ Scythian mooks, on freewill, is said to Fulgentius (Mansi, SATAN. (See D PEnT.) The evil spiri character, as tempte Book of Kells, in (Westwood, Angho-S is there a black s. almost according $t$ Psalter of Utrecht "standing at the $r$ man, apparently in t him. Satan is seizi behind, and kicking vielence and demonit the back. (See Mr.

Itos In com. wein senten-- part in his the eight as they arw, caoom. Th ected against equires his them nukes leir jrssing, (also) by the - +U; llefvle, were phased, on Arianism t general by lves or their il of 'Toledo, cropolitan of led there by $v$; and most scribed now , subscribed mosi, x. 471-

Egica, as we $s$ or ehapters erring to the il of Toledo, er that the i] and enter who presided is not stated. her of these udo-lsidorian [E.S. Ff.]
m, Ang. 19
[C. H.]
ander Trajaa
[C. H.]
len garment, and camisiles of Metz, aeLabbe (c. 29 , hat elerics of ziles or wool or the year's are to have he text giren 5 [here the inted, Patrol. the sarciles. A.D. 813 (c. ordered that asehold are to reiles (ad. ssr-
[R. S.]
(1) Socrates iii. 11.) state a (the modern as held in the nstratine, i.c. liscozered by

Sclplo Maffel place the second return of Athanasius to Alexaniria in the year 346 , and we know from Athanasins hinnself that this return was two years after the council of Sarlica. IInnsi therefure (iii. 87 ft ) places the council in the yenr 344. The vineteenth of the Festal Letters of Athanasins, that for the Einster of 347 , was certainly written in Alexandria. On the whole, it seems necessary to accept the year 344 or the end of 343, as the true date of the ceuncil. [See Athanasius in Dict. Cibr. Biog. . 90.
(2) That the council of Sardica was snmmoned by the emperors Constans and Constantius is clear from its own encyclical (in Athanasius, Apol. c. Arian. c. 44); and that it was summoned at the desire of Paulus and Athanasius is stated both by Socrates and Sozomen (u, s.). Jnlius, bishop of Rome, wrs represented by two legates, Hosins of Cordova was president. At the very outset, however, as the Western bishops inslsted on giving Athanasins a seat and a voice, tho Easterns sepsrated and held a rival council at Plilippopolis, where they confirmed the deposition of Athanasius, und drew up a creed in sccordance with tha fourth aymbol of Antioch [p. 93]. It is evident that aftel this acparation the council had no elaim to be called oecumenical. The Trullan council (c. 2) adopted the canons of Sardica (as it did these of Carthage and others which have no pretensions to be cecumenical), as of authority in the Eastern as well as the Western church: but they have never been formally recognised as oecumenical. Nay, the Romsu cenaors obelised the passige of Alexander Natalis (H. E. saec. iv., tom. jv. p. 460, ed. Venet. 1778) in which he had expressly atated the conncil to be oecumenical. This question has been the more hotly debated, as canons 3,4, 7 [Greek 5] gave to deposed hishops the privilege of appealing to Julius, bishop of Rome. It scems doubtful, however, whether the council intended to do more then confer on Julins a personal privilege, as an expedient for a time of tronble and division [Appeal, p. 197 ; Pope, p. 1658]. The canons of Sardica in Western (Manssen, Geschichte der Quellen des con Nieaea Rechts, i. 50 ff.)
[C.] SARDINIA, COUNCIL OF (Sardiniense Concilium), 4.D. 521, composed of African bishops then in exile there. Their synodical letter, in reply to John Maxentius and his Scythian monks, on the grace of God and humnn freewill, is ssid to have been written by St. Fulgentius (Mansi, viii, 591-600). [E. S. Ff.]

Satan. (See Devil, Demon, Dragon, Ser-

 PENT.) The evil spirit is represented in his apecial character, as tempter and enemy of man, in the Book of Kells, in a temptation of our Lord. (Westwood, Angly-Saxon and Irish MSS.) He is there a black skeleton-goblin with a tail, almost according to modern fancy. In the "Psalter of Utrecht (Ps. cix. 6) he is drawn, "standing at the right hand" of the wicked man, spparently in the sense of prevailing over him. Satan is seizing him by the hair from behind, and kicking him with supernatural the back the bsck. (See Mr. Birch'a account of theCHRIBT. ANT.—VOL. II.

HAUOHES

1848
Utrecht Palter, p. 264.) Compare Demon, p. 543, abd Devil, p. 547.
[K. St. J. T.]

SATURDAY. [Sabbata; Sahbatum;

SATURNINUS (1), Jnn. 31, martyr with Thyrsus and Victor; commemorated at Alexaudria (Murt. Usuard., Hieron., Notker., Wasd.).
(2) Feb, 2, martyr with Perpetua, Felicitas, and others; commemurated at Tuburbums ln Africa (Banil. Mewel.) ; Mar. 14 (Basil. Menol, hore Satubniles); Mas. 7 (Hart. Usuard., Hicron.).
(3) Feb. 12, presbyter, martyr with Dativus and Felix, in Africa (Murt. Usuard.).'
(4) Ap. 27, onte of seven bandit chiefs, snid to have been voluverted by Jason aud Sosipater, disciples of St. Prul (Basil. Menol.).
(5) May 2, martyr with Neopolis; comNomorated at Alexandiln (Mart. Usuard, /hieron., (6) July 7, martyr in tha reign of Trajna (Basil. Menol., SATURNilus; Dfenol. Graec.
Sirlet.).
(7) Aug. 22, martyr; commemorated with Martialls, Epletetus, and others, st Portns Romanus (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Hieron.).
(8) C t. 6, martyr ; commemorated at Capun with Marcellus, Castus, and Enilius (Murt. Usuard., Hieron., Notker.).
(8) Nov. 29, martyr, under Maximian; commemorated at Rome on the Via Salaria with Sisionins deacon (Mart. Bed., Usnard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Wand.). The Mart. Hieron. adds ns his companions Chrysanthus, Daria, Manrus, Who are nimed with Saturninus in the Gelssian Sacramentary in all the special prayers for his commemoration. In the Gregorisn Sacramentary the name of Snturninus occurs without the others io the Secreta and Super Oblata.
(10) Nov. 29, martyr at Toulouse in the reign of Deciuc (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Flor., Hieron.).
(11) Dec. 23, martyr in Crete with Theodulus and othera in tha reign of Decius (Basil.
Menol.). senol.).
[C.H.]
SATYRIANUS (Satiriance), Oct. 16, martyr with Martisaus in the Vandal persecution in Africa (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Not-ker.).
[C. H.]
SATYRUS (1), Jan. 12, (Saturus) Arabian martyr; commemorated in Achuia (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron.); in Arabia
(Notker.).
(2) Feb. 2, martyr with Saturninns, Perpetna, and others [Saturinincts (2)].
(3) Mar. 29, martyr in Africa under Genseric (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker.). [C. H.]
SAUCHES. A name applied (says Jercme's : Epist. 22 ad Eustoch. c. 15), by the Egyptians to those monka who lived a common life to those monka who live [Coenobicm; Monastery].

SAULA, Oet. 20, virgin, martyr; commemerated al C ' ogue with Marthe and others (Mart. Usuırd.).
[C. II.]
SAURCI, COUNCIL OF (Sauriciacum Concubum), A.b. 589, allowing Droctégisile, bishop of Soissons, to retarn to his dlocese, from which he had been drisen by the bishops of his province for drunkenness four years before (Mnnsi, ix. 1009).
[E. S. Ff.]

SAVINA, ST. [Sabina (2).]

SCAPULARE. A garment to cover the sheulders (scapulae), specially in use among monks. The kule of St. Benedict provided that his monks were to have a scapulare propter opera (c. 5 , Phtrol. 1xvi 771). This regulation is cited in the letter written to Charlemagne by Paul the deacon, acting on behalf of Theode ar, nbbot of Monte Cassino (Patrol. xcv. 1588). The writer adds tiat the dress in question is worn by almust all ruatics in that country. It appoars therefore during the hours of work to have replacel the hood or cowl, as being shorter and more convenient.

We may compare, as more or less equivalent to it in Greek, $\dot{2} \nu d \lambda a \beta o s, ~ 2 \pi \omega \mu i o \nu, ~ d \pi \omega \mu d \delta i \theta \nu$, кaravntiov. See especially Ménard's notes to the Concordia Reyularum (c. 62, Patrol. clii. 1231).
[R. S.]

SCEPTRE. [CORONATION.]

SCEUOPIIYLACIUM. Aoother name for the Diaconicum, or asacristy, ne beling the repository of the utensils for divine service, $\tau$ à $Y_{f} \rho a$ $\sigma \kappa \in \dot{O} \eta$, and the vestments of the priests, from which they were brought by the deacons before the commencement of the rites, and to which they were carried back again by the same minister after their conclusion, or during the singing of the post-communion hymn (Chron. Alexaudr. p. 892 ; Cotel. in Const. Apost. Jib. viii. c. 12 ; Goar, Eucholog. p. 16 ; Pallad. Vit. S. Chrysost. 92). The ancient liturgies contain special prayers to be said by the ministors in this pince. That of St. James glves, eix $\begin{aligned} \lambda \in \gamma o \mu d & \eta\end{aligned}$ sceuephylacia of the chief churches were deposited copies of the imperial edicts nod laws (Novell. Justin. 8, Edict. 1, in Praefat.). (See Ducange, Cunstantinop. Christian. lib. iii. § 87.) [Diaconicum.]
[E. V.]
SCEUOPHYLAX. An ecclesiasticnl officer in the Eastern church correspending to the sacrista in the Western, to whom was committed the charge of the vessels, utensils, and vestments belonging to divine service. Such an officer is spoken of as $\kappa \in \mu \eta \lambda \lambda d \rho \chi \eta s, \phi b \lambda \alpha \xi \xi T \bar{\omega} \nu \kappa \in \mu \eta \lambda\{\omega \nu$
 (Eustath. Vit. S. Eutych. § 8), or крaт $\hat{\nu}$ và Ducange (sub voc.) shew that though the care of the sacred furaiture was more commonly entrusted to a deacen, it was not unusual for a presbyter to hold the office. The church of St. Sophia at Constantioople had a large number of sceuophylaces attached to it, some of whom were presbyters, some deaoons, others readers, of whom the chief was cslled $\delta \mu\langle\gamma \alpha s$ пкevoфঠ́八ak. These were reduced by Heraclins (610-641) to ten, four presbyters, und six dencons (Codin. de Offic, p. 112, ed. Bonn). The "great scellyhylax" was always a leading ecclextastic. Codinus places him (bitl. c. 1) in the first rank of the oflicers of the church, having a seat in the holysynod with the patriarch himself. Macedouius was suenophylax when he was elected to the ane of Cunstaatinople (Theod. Lect. II. E. Hi.). When the putrlarch celebrated, the great scenophylax stomed before the sceuophylacium, and supplied him with all that , as needful for the servicevessels, beoks, cuncies, \&c. It was also his duty to take care of the eccleviastical utensils of charches deprived of their bishop by death. and to see that all the churches of the city had what was needful for divine aervice (Gretser, Anuotat. ad Cudin. p. 112 ; Suicer, sub voc.).
[E. V. V.$]$
SCIIOLA CANTORUM. At Rome, in early days, there was established a school for the education of youths in ecclesiastical chant and sncred learning, whe should be able to sing the solemn oflices at the several churches of the city on grent occasions. It was governed by a officer of great dignity and consideration in the city, whe was varieusly called primicerius, prior scholae cantorum, or simply cantor. The erigin of this achoel has been sometimes thought to be due to Hilarus (ob, A,D, 467), the successur of Leo the Grent in the see of Rome. Sometimes it is traced to pope Sylvester (Bena, Ror. Lit. 1, $\mathbf{x x v . 2 0 ) . ~ I n ~ t h e ~ L i f e ~ o f ~ S t . ~ G r e g o r y ~ t h e ~ G r e s t , ~}$ however, written by John the Deacon, the crestien of the school is express!y attributed to this great reformer of the chrch's song hinself. In any case, St. Gregory endowed the schoolwhich, if it existed before, depended on a common fund-and constructed a residence for it. His aim appears to have been to abrogate the practice which hitherto had, in some degree at least, prevailed, of the ministers and deacoss themselves executing, (often inefficiently, as it appears) the singers' part. (See Conc. Rom. A.D. 595 ; Decret. Greg. cap. i.) From Rome the institution spread to other churches, so that by the time of Charlemagne we find mention of a schola cantorum at Lyons (Ledrad. Arehiepisc. Lutjd. in Ep. ad Car. Mag.). In this school of Lyons several became so learned, says their archbishop, that they could even instruct others. It was Pipin, the father aad predecessor of Charlemagne, who first took measures for the introduction of Roman chanters inte France to lastruct the Gallicans, who appear to have beed far less skilled in the execution of their charch music. In a letter of Paul I. to Pipin, the writer bas handed to posterity even the name of the master of one singing-school thus established, as Simeon, who is described as scholae can!orum Priori, Amongst the several schools which thus came into being, that of Metz seems speedily to have acquired distiactien. For in the time of Charlemagne, we find thls boast of a Frank modk, that, "in proportion as the Roman chant surpassed that of Metz, so that of Metz surpassed that of the other schools of the French." Charlemagne himelf ordered the establishment of such schools in suitable places throughout his empire, with ths object of setting bishops and presbyters free from the necessity of attending to the music, and so enabling them to execute their offices with the greater Roman morlel (" A school of a sum to have exlsted ln Gregory the Gre twelve of the ch tortured to mak faith, and were $m$ the sirenueus resi Rer. Lit. I. xxv ,
The course of is phrase, "puerl in ascris Instituebant by "in communi Schod. ad litu. Lee Charlemagne adds, (capit. i. 72), Persons who at were members of coming to Reme Schela Cantorum capax in otficie ca The same writer Serglus II., Greg Paul I.
In the time of the house of the $s$ merly to be calie term may perhaps served as a receptac whe fell to the care of pope Sergius Ii. the house of the S iato a state of dila age ("prie nimla posita atque contrac it to a better condit ap. Labbe, vil. 1796
The intention was should abserb all g schola reperti fuer tolluntur iode et mit (rubric in Silaburg riii. xi. ordo 9). Mi of Gregory the Grea suhbleacoas and other Ecol. Rit. IV. v. 15 not explicitly say so
An imperial consti is indirectly a witness by the Schola Caator for the reverent exe divias service; and $i$ seoior brethren of une appointed "to be in $t$ torum at the prescr $R$ form. Eecl. de Reg ap. Melchier Goldastu iii. p. 217).

The Schola Cantorun have firnished the cho for example, not at regionarii did it) nor at only when the pepe offi qui dicuntur Schola taotummedo quande st ennsaerit " (Martene, 8). At ordination in t repeated the litany an barg pontifical, np. M

The praecentors of 3113 places officers of ynod with vass welloe of ConWhen the $y$ lax stomal plied him servictto his duty atensils of death, and ; had what r, Anuotat. $\left[\begin{array}{cc}E_{n} & V_{0}\end{array}\right]$ ne, in early ol for the chant and 0 sing the of the cit aed by in ion is the erius, prior The origin ught to be uccessor of Sometimes Rer, Lit. I. the Great, 1, the creaited to this g himself. e schoolod a comence for it. brogate the : degree at ad deacoas nely, as it Conc. Rom. irom Rome es, so that mention of Arehiepisc. s school of says their instruct predecessor ares for the France to a have been veir church Pipin, the the asme thus estabns scholae ral achoold t. of Metz distiaction. e find this proportion of Metz, so the other goe himself scheols ia re, with the byters free the music, their offices

sCHOLA CANTORUM

with the greater acemliness and dignity after the Roman motel (" sicut paallit Romnna ecclesin "). A school of asomewhat almilar character ajpenre to have exlsted In Africa $t$ wo hundred years before Gregory the Great. In the Arian jersecutions, twelve of the children of such $n$ sehool were tortured to make them renounce the ortherlox faith, and were much thought of at Carthage fir, Rer. Lit. J. xxv. 210 ). The course of phrase, "puerl in cruction is deseribed in the asacris instituebnutur" ty "in cominuni viv, nand the life of the house Sehol. ad litt. Eeonis $/ V$.). To the lastructlon Charlemagne adds, "compu'am, grammaticam" (capit. i. 72), Persons who afterwards rose to distlnction were members of the school. Sergius I., on coming to Rome as a youth, was put into the Schola Cantorum - "quia studiosus erat et eapax In officio cantilenae" (Anastasius, Vit.). The same writer records a similar history of Sergius II., Gregory 1L., Stephen III., and Paul I.
In the time of Stephen VI. we find that the house of the Schola Cantorum "used formerly to be called Orphanotrophlum." This term may perhaps indicate that the house also served as a receptacle for the destitute children who fell to the care of the chureh. By the time of pope Sergins II. (A.D. 844) it nppenrs that the house of the Schola Cantorum had fallen into a sate of dilapl/ation from its excessive age ("prate nimla vetustate prene in ruinam posita atque contracta"). Pope Sergius restored it to a better condition than ever. (Sergii Vita, ap, Labbe, vii. 1796 d, ed. Par. 1671 .)
The intention was that the Schola Cnntorum should absorb all gifted boys-"In quacumque schola reperti fuerint bene psallentes puerl, tolluntur lade et mittuntur in Scholn Canterum" (rubric in Salzburg pontifical. ap. Narteae I. viii. xi. ordo 9). Nartene infers from a decree of Gregory the Great that the school included sublencoas and other inferior ministers (De Ant. Ecel. Rit. IV. v. I5). Gregory, however, does not explicitly say so (lib. ir. ep. 44).
An imperinl constitutior. of Lonis the Plous is iadirectly a witness to the influence exercised by the Schola Cantorum. It is giving directions for the revereat excention of the Psnlms in diviae service; and in order to secure this ead, seaior brethren of unexceptionable life nre to be appointed "to be in turos with the Schola Cantorum nt the prescribed time" (Ludovici Pii R form. Eccl. de Regula Clericorum, cap, xxiv. ap. Melphior Goldastus, ed. Frankf. I673, tom. iii. p. 217).

The Schola Cantorum at Rome appears not to have furnished the choir on nll great ocensions; for example, not at the Stations (when the regionarii did it) nor at the Laternn Church, but only when the pope officinted-"alii (suludinconi) qui dicuatur Schola Cantornm, qui cabtant tantummodo quando suminus Pontifex celehrare 80nsaevit" (Martene, de Antiq. Eccl. Rit. I. iii. 8). At ordination in the city of Rome, the schod. repeated the litnny and sang the Introit (Ssizbarg pentifical, np. Martene, J. viii. xi. ordo
The pracentors of the respenseries were in

sCHOOLMASTER

1845
the Romarf church taken from the Scholn Cantorum. Thomasius quotes from n MS, untibhonary of the Vatican Library a atatement that the usige wis for the mister of the before, 0 point out to each individuad, the day aight oflice," responsory he was to sing in thie
[H. T. A.]
SCHIOLASTICA, Feb. 10 , virgin, sister of $S t$, Benedict ; commumornted at Construm Cassinum (Murt. Visuaril., Notker., V:ind.).
[C. H.]
RCHCLASTICUS.
(n) The title of a class of Romin lawers or alvoentes in the th and 5th ceaturies, nganst whose exactions nad estorthons from their clients provisloos nre enacted in the ."rlex Theodes. (Lib, viil. tit. 10; tom. II. p.
598, edit. 1665).
(b) There is a passnge in the writings of Gregory the Great in which the composition of the Roman ennon of the mass is attributed to ${ }_{5}^{n}$ certnin seholasticus (Epist. ad Johun. Episc. Syracusanum, lib. ix. ep. xil. Iadict. 2). It is disputed whether the word as here used is the proper name of an otherwise unknown indivilunl, or whether it refers to a member of the body of professional men called "Scholasticl" (Bona, de Rebus Liturg. lib. il. cap. xi.).
(c) The Instructor of the younger members "f a monastery wns called "Scholasticus," or "Caput scholae." The position and duties of this otfice are described by Thomassimus ( Vetus ct Nova Eccles. Disciplina, edit. 1706, vol. i. p. 865).
[F. E. W.]

SCHOOLMASTER (Magister Scholac, Schol-

 asticus, Caput Scholae, Capischolus (In France sometimes Capiscolus). Very few Christinns during the first four centuries, appenred to have belonged to the profession of the "grammatici" or the "rhetores," as tenchers of the traditional pagan learning. of this, the comparative rarity of Christinn monumental inscidptions which distinguish the name recorded as that of a "graminnticus" is significant evidence. Psssionel [Inscrizioni antiche (Lucen, 1763), p. 115] gives ons of these rare excepthons; and Martianns, a preshyter of the sect of the Novatians, is mentioned by Socrates (II. E. daughters of the emperor Valens. But, in general, the necessity under which those who adopted this profession found themselves of expounding the pngin mythology and observing the pagan festivals, seems to have deterred the Christinn tencher from entering upon such a career [see Sсноогs, II.].
The appointed tencher of a school, from the 5th century onwards, whether monastic or episcopal, was genernlly known as the "schelasticus," or, in France, as the "capischolus," or "capiscolus." In the cathedral schools he way nlwnys selected from the body of the canons, (among whom he was known as "Cnput Scholae"; or "Magister Scholne"), and was generally one of the senior members, and one whose chaticter sod life were especially approved (Keuffel, Hist. Scholurum, pp. 248-249). The "Magister Scholae" is mentioned among seven officials at the chnrch of St. Martin of Tours, known as the "hebdomadarii," who, in turn, once a week, were culled unen to celehtite "majorem miasan" (Bartene, de dnt, biec. Nitdut, 1. 1:0)).

6 C 2

SCHOOLS

[J. D. M.]
RCHOOLA, F,incation among Christian comimunities during the first elght centuries anccesaively нммumea funr very distinct plaseat. First, an limited tuinstructinn in the apudal teneta of the Chriatian fiath, and allugether dlasominted from vecular eduration ; weobdly, as combinud with pagan culture, and siming at a partial reconciliation of the trailtions of that cuiture with its own ; thirdly, as altugether abnudoning any such attempt, and restricting itself to religinns doctrhe, mul to the aepuirementa directly subenvient to the jurposan of the elerical or the nobastie life; forrtaly, as resuming in some mensure the carlier and more bheral conception, and mmildsting an activity productive of important alter-results.

I Oi the Christlau bluhop of the primitive Church it was recpuinul, nut only that he should himself be "apit to teneh," but also that he should proxile for thu ajiritual instruction of his flock. Fior this purpoose he was wont to oulect, alter the cuntuin of jagan philosophere, those among lus distiples whe by sujerior ace quircmunts and the punsension of the faculty of teaching neemed specinlly quallifed for the work. The method of instruction was entechetical, sud a goud spuchmen of its character and range will be found lin the Karnxharis \$wrisopévov, or lectures to catechumuns, delivered in A.D. $3+8$ by Cyril, afturwards blshop of Jerusslem, when still obily a prosblster (Migne, l'atr. Series irneca, xxxiii. 3iis). The subjects of his discourses, such as the Satond Cuming of Christ, the Holy Sphit, the linwrnution, Divine Providence, \&e., shew that they were dasigned for those who hal passed beyond the elementary stage of dactrinal knowludge. Augustiue, in like manmer, at a ennawhat later perion, was accustomed to draw around him in his episcopal house tho most promining of the younger clorgy, nul inatruct thum in the Scriptures, thone who had been thus privileged being sjecially sought after to till the different ollices of the Church la Africa (Posuidius, Vita Aus. c. $\mathbf{x i}$.).

From this method of aystematic instruction by the bishop, the school as a distinct institution was a nitural development. Of their organisation and method of lustruction an acconnt will be found umber Catichumbis; and a full description of the most celebrated of their number in Alsexanoria, ('atrechemical School of. Urigen, when driven from Alexandria, foumled sush a school at Cnesarea in l'alestine ; it fell into decay, hut was restored by his friend Pamphilus, who bestowed on it a valuable litrary (Eiseabius, II. EA, vii. 27 and 30). Other examples are jerhais to be recognised in a school establiahed at Jerualem by Clemens Alexnndrinus, about the year 209, over which Cyril, above mentioned, subsequently presided; in that which Hhomion (the last teacher of the achool at Alexandrin ${ }^{\text {a }}$ ) founded in the reign of

- That the catechetical whool of Alexandria had ceased to extat whth the close of the fifih century appears, as Gueriks pointa out, to be a necessary infereace from Cansodorus, Praef. ad de Ithal. Din, Lill, Migne, Patr. 1xx. 687.

Theodoniua the Great at Sida la lamphylia (Guerike, Schol. Alex. 1. 118); in that which it has hean auphoaed Irenaeus founded at lagilunum (Langemark, //ist. Cutech. 1. 108) | ami in that which Tertullian (de litptiamo, c. 15) appeara to imply existed at Carthago in the ild century.

Of wueh iustitution the one at Alexandra may bat accepteri as the type, anil from that lime tinguishe ceutre Christinn education mainly derived ita insjiration during the first threm centuries. In Alexandria itnelf, however, the Instruction som ailvanced beyond the purely dogmatie charneter; the daugern with which the faith was menaced by Jewish and jasaa opponents, and by the heresica of the Gunstise almont necessarily impoaing on the Cibristian teacher the obligation of assuming a wider range both of culture and teaching.

With respect to the foregoing kind of justruc. tion, it is important to observe genurally that it forms a characteristio feature of early chris. tianity, the education of youth being confided to the ministers of religion. Among pagan consmunitien, whether Greek or Roman, the functions of the priestly otlice were limited to the aupurintendence of religious ceremonial or the interpretation of aigns aud oracles; of any instruction of the people in the traditious of their faith we find no trace.

1i. The views expressed by the earlier teachers of the Church with reapect to the abstract valte of pagan learning are somewhat vague and uitea coullicting in character. It is obvious, however, that the general conditions under which Chris* tianity existed at this period were such as to reuder any attempt at founding separate scheols of genernl iustruction unadrisable if nut impoasible. Those parents, therefore, among the Christiau community, who could alford the expeuse, eent their suns to the gymnavium, under the care of a predagogus, to share with jagan youth the erdinary instruction of the time. This fact is one which must not be lost sight of in any eudeavour to estimate the intiueuces under which the teaching of the earlier Fathers was conceived.

In the first century, inturconrse with Greece had already somewhat extended the narrow limits of tioman education both in ltaly and ia Gaul (Horace, Sit . I. vi. 71 ; Epp. 11. ii. 41), and the elementary acquirements of reading, writing, and arithmetic, were followed by a certain ninount of iustruction in the Greek fanguage and literature. Quintilian (1. i. 12), indeed, advises that such instruction should procele the stuly of the Latin tongue, juasmuch as a command of the latter could be acguired without any formal taching whatever; and we learn from Thitus (de Claris Orat. c. 29) that, probably with the same view, it was eustomary for the children of the wealthy to have a Greek nurse.

In the days of the empire sehools were of two kinds-an elementary and a higher grade. At the elementary school (that of the "gramana* tista," "magister," or " litterntor," styled by Tertullian (de Pallio, c. 5) "litterarun: primus informator") the scholars were tangit to read intelligently, and with correct acceutination the poete and orators (Quint. I. i. 24 ; 1. viii. I), and also nequired a certain knowledge of grammar (ib, hatruction wa "grammaticum plained difficult and prensi, $n$ ("quacationes ata elarret," transiated pinss then back syain of the rhetur th tions (chletly li of standari ant) whools being al reference to the (Tactum, dec Clor Rhet. e. 1 ; Pliny and 24). The Homer and Ver Horace, Menand of Publius Syr Cicero, amd Ca Thucydides, Cate scheme of study probable that th his own discretio Such was the prevailed throug the empire dur Liberally aided a cessive enactment Yespanian, Valet dosins, it was far essential a conil public life to adm tians of those da tianity by the s produced any suld The actiools of the not enly continue traditions of edue where the two s other for philosop lins represented gathered many of the time. Diodor zen, ${ }^{\text {e St. Basil, }}$ an the same school, s same bench (Baro The suthor of the that he and Basil while avoiling th Seriea Graeca, xxu their studies inet music, geometry, II
The system of in seems to have form instruction throug thongh less fnmous the emperor Hadria naeam. Here, in Marcus Aurelius, with great success b it is important to period the term "gra much more than a te seuse, being really eq ketres See Gräfenhan im Alterthum. Iv. 52, 6 the lireat, p. 72.
c See his proem de $\bar{T}$ college career at Athene

Pamphylia nat which it d at Lugdu• 108); and in is:no, c. $3 x)$ go in the 3rd t Alexamiria rom that lis. ation mainly e first thry however, the 1 the purely with whim $h$ and pagan of the Gurntica de Cluristian a wider rauge nd of instrucserally that it early Chris. y confided to magan conthe fuactions to the super1 or the intere my hinstruction their faith we arlier teachera abstract value ague and eftea ions, however, which Chris. re such ss to eparate schoels e if not impus. , among the Id allord the naasium, under re with pagau the time. This ost sight ef ia aluences uader Fathers was se with Greece d the narrow in Jtaly and in 1pp. 11. ii. 41), its of rendiag, followed by a the Greek lallinn (I. i. 12) ruction should ugue, inasmuch ald be actuired atever ; and we cut. c. 29) that, was customary io have a Grek ols were of tro ther grade. At the "gramina tor," styled by terarum: primus taught to redd eceutuation the 24 ; 1. viii. I) knowledge of grammar (ib, 1. IV. 22). A higher ingree of inatruction was henpmitems at the achuminn of the "gramuantienn" "o mid "rhetur." The firmer ene plained dilficultica, expunniled the plutn of playn anil poema, and gave outhes of histuries (" $q$ uneationea explicet, histuriua expmanat, premnata einarret," is. I. ii. 14), whille the suhtara translated passogrea froun Greek into lattin nond then back again into Greenk. Unuler the guliance of the hetur they composeel thenwe nol declamations (ehiefly lifeleas and inechnuical imitentlona of tandird authore), the whole training of these shaula being nimnat excfusively concecived with ref rence to the refulirements of the forensic wrat or (Tacitua, de Charis Irrut, c. 35 ; Snetminan, te Chrris of Publius Nyruas the oratura, Dernothenees, Cleero, and Calua Gracehus; the historiana, Thurylides, Cato, nnd Sallust. Heyond this no weheme of study has come lown to un, nuid it is ucheme of study has come lown to us, nuid it is probatabe that the teacher selected his authors at hris own discretion.

Such was the character of the education that prevailed throughunt the more civilised parts of thas enllire during the first threes conturies. Liberally nided and endowed by the state in succesisve enactments of ITadrinn, Marcuas Aurelius, Vespauian, Valentinian I., Giratian, anil Theodosils, it was far too geenerally difinsed and theo- too esesential a conditton of success in sucinal and public life toalmit of its rejection by the Cliristians of those daya. The recognition of Chriatianity by the state does not appear to have produred any surdiden change in these condtions. The sefools of the empire, as they were termed, not enly continuel to exist, but mantanined their not only continued to exist, but mnintained their tralititinas of education unmoditied. At Athens, where the two achools (one fir rhetoric, the other for philosophy) fuunded by Marcus Aurelius represented a kind of university, were gathered many of the most aspiring intellects of the times. Diodorus of Tarsus, Gregrory Nazinuzen, St. Basil, and the empererrer Julian at endled the sume school, and perhaps sat together on the the sume achoon, and perhaps sat together on the tame bench (Baronius, iii. 687 . Jasil, Ep. 146). same bench (Baronius, iii. 687 ; 1hasil, Ep. 146 ).
The author of the Greek Life of Grecory tells The author of the Greek Life of Gregory tells us that hs and Basil culled the flower of rhetoric that hs and Basill culled the flower of rhetoric while avididing the falsity of the art (Migue, Series Graeca, $\times \times x$ r. $250^{\circ}$ ). He also states that their studies ineluded grammar, philosophy, music, geometry, and astronomy.
The system of instruction pursued at Athens seems to have formed the model for the higher iastruction throughout the empire. A sinilar thangh less famous school at Rome, founded by the emperor Hadrian, was knowa ns the athe the emperor Hadrian, was known ns the Athenaeum. Here, in the time of the emperor Marcuis Aurelius, Hadrian the sophist taught with great succeas, and after him, Agpasius.

[^137]SCHOOL.s
1847 (PHIllont. Tith we Sophist, 589,027 ) Milan, on aceount of a like cilture, aceount of a like cilture, claimed the appellation of "Norrae Athynae," nul in the tlme of Theo doric the Great (A.1), 4.it-fi2, ) would appear to ganno enjoyed a like thong Iremuna and BerThe whonoyed a like though hefierior reputation. The whole of anuthern Gial was equally famena, celebrated. Those of arbome bing eapocclally of must atudents who aapired to diatincion either as grammarians or rheturiedinas. On the denth of the embent grammarian Eianathiua of Constmuthophe, in 362, one Clireatus whe sent for from Arrica to fill the vacant chair (Eusebina, Chron, al ann.).

The ollive of inat ructor in pagan achowls would oppear to have been proscribed by the fathers of the church on account of its intimate connexiun with the religiona belief an! practice of paganism: "(quacrendum autem ent," oays Tercullian, "etian de lull magistris et do caeteris professoribus littorarm, imo non dubitanlum alfines illus eane multimedne idnlolatrias " (de Itol. c. 10; Migue, Patool. b. 673-675). The pagan schowlmaster, he goes on tos say, was constantly umler the necessity of referring to the gols of the pagin mythology, if explaining their genealngies and prorugatives, and observing their festivals. At the frass of Filora, it was customary to alorn the sichoolroom with garlands ; the first payment of n new scholar was devoted to Minerva; the new year, the feasts of the Seven Hills and the summer selstice were all made occasions for the presentation of gifts from the acholar to the "ludi magister."
Whan, however, it came to a question of the lawfulness of attendace at these schoola on the part of the learner, even Tertullinn shrank from interdicting the advantages of ordinary education to Christian youth: "Quomodo repudiamuasnecularia studia, sine quibus divina esse aon possunt ? " (ib.). Ile necorilingly decides that the Christian scholar may frequent these schools unler the plea of necessity, and he enjoins him to take the gool and to reject the bad, "even ns one who knowingly receives poison from another who knowa it not, but refrains from drinking it." "Hence it was," observes Dr. Newman, "that in the early ages the church allowed her chilltren to attend the heathen schools for the aequisition of secular accomplishments, where, as no oue can doubt, evils existed, at least as great evils as can attend on mixed education now. The gravest fathars recommended for Christian youth the use of pagan masters; the most saiotly bishops and most authoritntive doctors hal been sent in their adolescence by Christian parents to pagan lecture halls " (Idea of a University, p. 9). ${ }^{\text {d }}$
Christian the first three centuries, therefore, the Christian pareot justified himself in sending his sons to pagan schools on the grouad of simple necessity ; and while Christion necessity ; and while Christisn doctrine was ${ }^{d}$ Of the different channels through which the Chriatian teacher of his day acquired Instruction, Chrysostom is a good illustratien, having been educated in religlous philusophy by Andraguthis, in rhetoric by Libsinius, in Chriasophy by Andragathias, and finally inalructed in Christian doctrine by Mlietios, Modorus, and Kartering (see Kihn, Aell. chriall. Schulen, p. 60).

1348

SCHOOLS
taught by Christian teachers, secular knowledge was aought in the ordiuary channels (Assemann, Biblioth. Orient. III, ii. 923). But in the meantime, the far more dithicult question of the desirability of studying, at any period of life, the productions of pagan geains and learuing, was debated with considerable ardour, and at the time that Christanity received the recognition of the state, remained still undecided. While a Cypriau insisted on the wide distinction bet ween Christian doctrine and pagan philosophy (ad Anton. Migne, iii. 782), a Celsus reproached his Christian antagonists with their hostility alike to learuing, wisdom, and thought (Origen, ado. Cels. bk. vi.). At Alexandria, on the other hand, the study of pagan authors was warmly defended. Clemems cites in its defence the words of Christ (Johu xv. 1-10), which imply that the vine must be trained and proned, aud the soil cultivated, aud argues, that as the physician who studies other arts is thereby better qualified for the profession of his own, so the Christian who familiarises himself with other modes of thought will be all the better able to distinguish the alloy of error from the fiue gold of truth (Strom. i. 9 ; Migne, Series Graeca, viii. 739). Theae views, says Dr. Newman, were ailvocated iu the enrly clurch, "not with the notiou that the cultivation which literature gives was any substantial improvement of our moral nature, lat as thereby openiny the mind and renderiny it susceptible of an appeal; not as if the heathen literature itself had any direct convexion with the matter of Christianity, but because it eoutained in it the scattered frngments of those original traditions which might be made the means of introducing a student to the Christian system, being the ore in which the true metal was found " (Ariuns, p. 88).

It appears to be beyond doubt that, notwithatanding isolated protests, the edveation of the clergy throughout the fourth century, and eveu after that time, continued to be of this more likeral character. Besides the conspicuous instances already noted, we find Jerome, iu a remarkable letter to the monk Rusticus, speaking of the education of the latter as having been commeuced in Gaul and completed at Rome, "so that the diguity of the Roman discourse might attemper the copiousness aud elegance of the Gallic" (Migne, xxii. 935). Of Jerome himelf it is to be noied that he received instruction at Rome from Douatus the grammarian (ib. xxiii. 472). Lactantius ( $\dagger$ aft. 317), Arnobius ( $\dagger$ circ. 300), Ambrose ( $\dagger$ 397), Augustiue ( $\dagger$ 430), Hilary of Poitiers ( $\dagger 367$ ), educated at his native city, Hilary of Arles ( $\dagger$ 449), Sidouius Apollinuris ( $\dagger 489$ ), Salvian ( $\dagger 495$ ), are all examples of nucient writers and ecclesiastica who, while atrenuous defeadera of Christian doctrine, had received their intellectual traiuing in sehocls which followed the tratitions of pagan culture.
In the meantime the growing importance attached by the enurch to the whole question of education, is attested by the language of its most eminent teachers. "Parents," aays Chryaostom, "will lnquire carefully when they hire a herdsman, as to his fitness for the work, but will take little trouble when engaging a tutor for their childres, although there is no function of yreater importance than this" (Hom. in Malt. ed. BB. vii. 605). Elsewhere (ib. xi. 159), he says that a good education is the best legacy that a parent can bequeath to a son.

This increased interest in the subject wns the natural result of the fact that the task of educating the young now began to be more and more coufided to the elergy. We find that Julian, when at Macellum, was iustructed in $\Gamma^{\rho} \alpha \phi \hat{\omega} \nu$ (Sozomen, v. 2); aud acerrding to Soerates (II.E. iv. 9) the two daughters of the emperor Valeus were iustructed by Martianus, a presbyter of the seet of the Novatians, in

The policy of Julian (A.D. 361-36') undoubtedly tended to precipitate the derisive struggle as well as to embitter all suhsequent diseussion of the question. He appears to have noted with displeasure the growing influence of the Chris. tian teacher, nad to have sought to convert the scruples of the church with respect to [rgan literature into a pretext for excluding her ministera from all share in secular education. The Christian, be asserted, if really couvinced that the deities whom the great writers of antiquity worshipped were unworthy of such adoration, could hardly be a fit expounder of the pagan literature. To expound Homer aud at the same time denounce what Homer held to be most sacred aud venerable, was malevolent and hase. He accordingly advised the Christian teachers to restrict themselves to the work of the catechists, or, as he expressed it, "to expounding Matthew and Luke in the churches of the Gatileans" (Ep. 42; ed. Heyler, p. 81). According to Socrates (II. E. iii. 12 ; Migne, Series Graeca, Ixvii. 412), he also euacted a lav excludiug Christians from the work of pullic instruction, and the motive he himself assigued for this enactment is especially deserving of note, namely, that by being thus preventel from acquiring diadectical skill they might be rendered incompetent to contend in argument with their pagan antagouists.
The short reiga of Julian was succeeded by that of Valentinian I. (A.D. 364-367), who proclaimed general religious toleration, tud that of Gratiau (A.D. 367-383), whe was the avowed defender of Christianity. The furmer, in ths year 364, rescinded the prohibitory law of Julian (Cod. Theod. ed. Haenel, p. 1322); while the latter, aided hy Ausonius, whe was of Christian faith, and had taught both as a grammarias and a rhetorician at Bordeaux, reurganisell the schools of the empire, and, as far as it lay in his power, suatained and invigorated the traditions of pagan education (ib, vi. tit. 13; llaenel, p. 545 ; see also pp. 1321, 1322).

A certain dislike and suspicion of the dialectic art is discernible from a very early periol in the church. Irenaeus, alluding probnhly to the Basilidians, complaius of those who oppese the faith with an Aristotelian word-chepling (minutiloruium), nnd excess of refinenent ia argument (adv. Haer. ii. , xviii. 5). Tertulliaa styles Aristotle "miser" on account of his invention of the traditional logic (de Praserip. c. 7). Athauasius, in his treatise on the Nicene

- "Inter quae prst tliud triclemens quod docere vetuit magiatros, rhetoricos, et grammaticos Christianes, at transis-ent ad numinum cultum' (Ammlan. Marcellinus XXIV. Iv. 20).
decrees, spe certain opit nature, not way of exe ekeráras, an wrote with (Migne, Ser Ensebius spe Christ and a figure of the their heresy the "campun dialectorum,' with the plai (ado. Helvid. seats Aetius, on the cnteg Migne, Series v. 10, and So Gregories," sa "Basil, Amb voice against and the sum expressel by (Epiphanius, 'the bishop o the seventh ce tuensis deelari Aatioch estim knowledge of refinements of Migue, S. G. x
In the East Greek and the disquisition, th have held its the Latin race practised as a reeommends th means of defeati their own weal Seriptures them iii. 16). Euseb year 441, had, rhetoric in the self of his know of Entyches.
Among the e marking the tra Christian theory Basil, who, in (c. 2), distinetly all uni actions ${ }^{8 s}$ preparatory t iaculeates a cert best writers of an preeepts of excell citing as a precerl was learned in all (ce. 3 and 4 ; Act
The language o on the other hand iastruction of against the rendi eajoin the Christ

[^138]
SCHOOLS

 30n.subject was the t the tnsk of to be more and We find that 3 instructed ia ais $\tau \dot{\omega} \nu \dot{a} \gamma i \omega \nu$ 1 necording to lughters of the oy Martinnes, a Novatiaus, iu
i') undoubtedly ve struggle as at discussion of we noted witb e of the Chris. to convert the spect to phgan excluding her alar education. ally convinced eat writers of prthy of such t expounder of nd Homer aud Homer held to vas malevoleut d the Christian to the wort of ressed it, "to n the churches Heyler, p. 81). ii. 12 ; Migne, enacted a law rk of public inimself assigned $y$ deserving of preventel from ;ht be rendered lent with their s succeeded by -367), who protion, and that was the avowed former, in ths ibitory law of p. 1322); while o was of Chriss a grammarian reorganised the as it lay in his I the traditions Hacuel, p. $\overline{5}+\bar{j}$; of the dialectic early period is probably to the the oppose the word-chepping refinement in 5). Tertulliau secount of his c (de Praescrip. on the Nicens

nod docere vetuit

 4 Christianw, of mian. Marcellinusdecrees, spenks of Theognostus as advancing nature, not as his deliberate conviction, bat by way of exerciae in argument-ws iv qupvacla dfecdaras, and implies that Origen sometimes wrote with a like design, $\dot{\Delta} \boldsymbol{s} \boldsymbol{\delta} \eta \tau \bar{\omega} \nu \kappa a l \gamma \nu \mu \nu \alpha ́ \zeta \omega \nu$ (Nigae, Scries Graoca, xxv. 181 and 183). Eusebius speaks of those who "are ignornnt of Christ and adulterate the faith, seeking for that figure of the syllogism which will best support the "campum rhetorici eloquii " the " contrasts dialectorum"" "thetorici eloquis, the "tendiculae with the plain and simple language of Scriptare (adv. Ifelvid. Migne, xxiii. 185). Socrates represents Actius, the Arinn, as relying iv argument on the categories of Ariatotle (II, E. ii. 25 ; Migne, Series Graeca, Ix vii. 297 ; see also $H$. $E$.' v. 10, and Sozomen, H. E. vii. 12). "The two Gregories," saya Dr. Newman (Arians, "Bregories," says Dr. Newman (Arians, p. 30), voice against the dialectics of their oppodents : and the sum of their declarations is briefly expressed by a writer of the 4 th century (Epiphanius, Haer. Ixix. 69), who calls A ristotle 'the bishop of the Arians.'" Even so late as the serenth century we fild Theodorus Rhaituensis declaring that his opponent Severus of Antioch estimated a theologian necording to his knowledge of the catcgories, nod "of the other refinements of pagan philosophy" (de Incurn. Migne, S. G. xci. 1504).

Ia the East, owing to the tendency of the Greek aud the Oriental mind towards subtle disquisition, this dialectical culture nppears to have held its ground much longer than anmong the Latio races. Socratea the historian, who practised as an advocate in Constantinople, recommends the cultivation of the art as a their own weapons, especially, he adds, as the Scrjptures themselves do not teach logic (II. E. iii. 16). Eusebias, bishop of Doryleum in the year 441 , had, according to Evagrius. taught rhetorie in the public schools, and availed himself of his knowledge of the art in the refutationof Eatyches. of Eatyches.
Among the earlicat nuthoritative atterances marking the tranaition from the pagan to the Christian theory of education is that of St. Basil, who, in his trentise $\pi \rho \delta \delta_{s}$ roìs Néous (c. 2), distinctly adopts the monnstic axiom that all on: netions in this life are to be conceived as preparatory to the next. He nevertheleas inculentes a certain degree of attention to the best writers of antiquity as sources from whence precepts of excelleat morality may be gathered ; eiting as a precerlent the example of Moses, who Wss learned in all the learning of the Egyptians (cc. 3 and 4 ; Acts vii. 22).

The langunge of the Apostolical Constitutions, os the other hand, which were designed for the instrnction of catechumens, is anthoritative against the reading of pagan authors? They eajoin the Christian disciple to "refrain from

[^139]
SUHOOLS

1849 all the rritings of the heathen" (Apost. Const. i. 6 ; Coteleriug, Pat. Apost. i. 2U6). [l'Roinuted Books.] MuTED Воокs.]

The influence of Ambrose (bishop of Milan, A.D. $374-397$ ) on the literary spirit of his age was comparatively slight, but his writinga Lufficiently attest his familiarity with the beat Latin writers of antiquity.
With Jeroms the case is altogether different, nnd the eflect of his views on the subsequent history of Chriatian culture probably exceeds that of any other father, Augustive not excepted. At Rome the pupil of Donntus the grammarian and of Victorinus the African rhetorician, a scholar at the imperial school at Treves, an attendant on the lectures of Apollinaris (the eminent bishop of Lnodicea) at Antioch-his early training and associatious must have strongly inclined him to regard with favour the literature of payan autiquity. His original sentiments are, indeed, clearly attested by his own writings; and during his ascetic retirement in Syria he was often wont to relieve the tediam of his vigils by the perugal of Plautus and Cicero But the divine waruing, communicated as he believed, in a dream, recalled him to a sense of his error, and determined him to abaudon such studies and to restrict himself to the ancred authors (Ep. ad Eustoch. Nigne, xxii, 416). So far, however, as we are able to gather his more mature sentiments on this queation, Jerome would appear to have held that of education pagan literature wns a necessury part purauit by those who its continued and ardent or clerical those who had embraced the mennstic or clerical life was inconsistent with their severity. He coudemns, for example, with neglecting those ecclesiastics of his day, who, while neglecting the Prophets and the Guspels, indulged in comedies and amatory poetry, "et il quod in pueris necessitatis est, crimen in se facere voluptatis" (ad Damasum, ib. xxii. 76). It is obvious from this passage that Jerome held that in youth the reading of authors like Terence und Vergil was a necessity, a concession which may fairly be interpreted as implying that it was atill the practice of Christians to send their sons to schools of the kind alrendy deseribed. Even after his adoption of the monastic life at Bethlehem (A.D. 386), we find him inatituting, in connexion with the monastery, a school for boys, whom he himself inatructed in grammar, in the classical authors (eapecially Vergil), and even in the Latin poets (Ebert, Gesch. d. christlichlat. Lit. p. 182). As regardy his own early education, he himself tells us (ad Domnionem, Migne, xxii. 237) that he had stalied the Commentaries of Alexander of Aphrodisias on Aristotle and the Introduction of Porphyry; while in his Apologia adversus Rufinum (i. 16; ib. $x \times 1 i i .472$ ) he assumes that his former friend had read, when a boy, the Commentaries of Asper on Vergil and Sallust, those of Valcatius on the dialions of Cicero, those of Victorinus on the dialogues of the same writer and on Teranes, those of Donitus on Vergil, and those of other Pommentators on Plautus, Lucretius, Horace, Persius, and Lucan. As this obviousily implies [^140]the study of the authors themselves, it is evident that at the close of the 4 th ceutury a great proportiou of the classical writers were still read with considerable care.

In his letter (eirc. A.D. 397) to Magnas (a Roman rhetorician who, at the instigation of Ruflinus, had ventured to ask Jerome why he so often iutroluced allusions to profime literature in his writings), we are presented with what may be termed the stock arguments whereby such culture on the part of the Christian clergy has been defended ever since his time. He alleges that even Moses and the prophets borrow somewhat from the "books of the Gentiles." He quotes the opening verses of the first chapter of Proverbs, Titus, i. 12, and the other Pauline quotatious from Aratus and Menander as further examples. Then he brings forward the jastification atlorded by Cyprian, Origen, Eusebius, Apolliuaris-" lege eos, et invenies nos comparatione eorum imperitissimes;" he refers to Josephus and Philo, and, finally, cites the precedents set by Quadratus, Justin Martyr, Dionysius, Tatian, Irenaeus, Clemens, Origen, ${ }^{\text {, }}$ Basil, Gregory Naziazzen, Amphilochius, \&e. "qui ommes in tantum philosophorum doctrinis atque sententiis suos resarciunt libros, ut nescias quid in illis primum admirari debeas, eruditionem saeculi, an scientiam Seripturarum." la the Latin Church he brings forward the examples of Tertullian Minucius Felix, Arnobius, Hilary, and Juvencus, and finally forestalls the possible objection that such learning was only reserted to in eontroversies with pagan antagonists, by observing that it is apparent in aearly all the writinys of those whom he has vamed (ad Mrequain, Migne, xxii. 426-430).

It is questiouable, however, whether, with advancing age, Jerome's views dill not assume a third and yet more austere phase. We find him, for example, recording with manifest exultatios the neglect into which the philosophy of paganism, Plato and Aristotle, was alrealy falling (Migne, xxyi. 487), while in his Commentary ou the Epistle to the Ephesinns (vi. 4) he unsparingly rebukes those bishops and presbyters who, instead of instructing their sons in the faith, make them study pagan anthors, read comedies, and sing coarse songs, and this, too, at the cost of the Christian Church, the offerings of the devout poor thus finding their way into the hanls of the grammarian or rhetoriciau to be lavished on profane and even immoral indulgences (Migne, xxvi. 666).

The views of Augustine much resembled those of Jerome, but his literary sympathies were less ardent. He altogether condemned the lighter literaturo of antiquity, and in his Confessions (i. 17) he refers with penitential contrition to the pleasure which, in his youthful days, he had taken in the study of the Latin poets. The slight evilence of a certain care for letters, such as his anxiety for the formation of a library (Ep. 231, Migne, xxxiii. 1026), aud the solieitude which he is said by Possilius (lita, c. 31) to have shewn for its preservation after his death a If the date assigned to this letter by the Benedictine editors be correct, this mention of Origen, after the dispute with Ruffinus with rearect to the orthodany of the Alexandrine teacher, is somewhat remarkable. (See do not certainly prove anything with respect te classical authors. On the other hand, it is undeuiable that the sanction of Augustine wss given in very explicit terms to the sturly of rhetoric and to that of the graver writers of antiquity; and two passages in his "roctrina Christiamb became " leci classici" in later ages whenever it was sought to defend the study of [ragan literature in the Cburch. ${ }^{4}$ Of these, the first enforces the precept that the writings of the philosop,iers of paganism, wherever they are found enforcing what is in agreement with the faith, may safely and advantageously be adap,ted to the Christian use, just as the lsraclites, when they went forth from Egypt, thuagh they left behind them the idols and superstitions of their masters, took with them the gold ant the raiment (ii. 40; Migne, xxxiv. 63). The second passage (iv. 2) points out the value of a knowledge of rhetoric to the Christian preacher.

III. The course of events after the denth of Augustine, when Gaul, Italy and Africa alike became the prey of the barbarian, involved the overthrow of the imperial schools. From this time, at least in the two first-named countries, the profession of the grammarian and the rhetorician, as that of a distinct class, appears to have gradually died out, while the culture which they represented survived only in a fow rare and isolated instauces among Christian writers and scholars, who, like Claudius Marius Vietor, Sedulius, Pomerius of Lyons, Prosper, Claudins Mamertus, and Avitus of Vienne, sought to give to their discourses a certain rhetorical embellishment, or still cultivated the art of origisal composition. Whatever of education contimued to exist among the laity rarely comprised anything more than reading, writing, and ordiary computation. The work of imparting this elemeutary instruction was carried on chicfly in the episcopal or cathedral schools which bishopls, by virtue of their office, were required to iastitute in the chief city of their respective dioceses, in order that youths might be educated for the priestly otlice and the laity receive a reitain grounding in the knowledge of the frith. The considerable political power which, at the commencement of the 6th ceutury, the episerpal order still retained in Southern Gaul enabled them effectually to protect these institutions. In the year 529 , at the coumil of Vuson, we have evideace that it was sought to raise the standard of education among the clergy by requiring that priests in charge of parishes, according to the eustom of ltaly, should receive "readers" into their houses nud elucite them there (Sirmond, i. 226). It uppears to be s legitimate inference from the furegoing cano that, prior to the Lombaril invasion, the elucation of the clergy in ltaly was carried on in a regular and systematic manner, and that an endeavour was made to introduce a corresponding system into Gaul.

The conquest of Africa by the Vandals (a.D. 429) does not appear to have been atteuded by [^141]results equall Catholie jarty their Arian all to learning, a reputation as o pire. Salvian for philosophy liberal arts ( $d$ 161). It is u Martianus Cap de Nuptiis Phil Artibus Liberal before or after t the author's til tensive popalar This fact is alon manence of a tion; for the $t$ character, was Chureh as a d (J. B.) Hist. of 23-26). Felici teacher of gra quented both by those of Roman e Hylan.). Draco mena ability in 48t-496); and th is said by his $b$ cansed her son te of Homer, toget Monander. Attel Fulgentius was i sud pursued th advnatages of hol at one of the gra "imn:o edoctus, a ditur auditorio"

With the alva study of pagan li pagan education he seribed in Latin Cl lament of Gregory litterarum ") may vativa as regards $h$ traditions of educat at the same time, sustained with som youth (probably of Arles had iustitute Were in existeuce (A.D. 613-628), and which excited the e learn, for instance, that Sigebert, kiag being anxious on initate the good ins in Frauce," "set u instructed in literat by bishop Felix, wh proviled him with the nanaer of that 18; Heary of Huut Sovile, Script. 332). to be uoted, is also to of s ligher culture is
After the time of there is to be discer & growing dispesitio distrust on all secul encourage speculatio in heterodoxy, but
h respect to I, it is unqustine was he study of $r$ writers of ~.octrina 1 later ages he study of of these, the writings of ver they ars ent with the y be adapted relites, when gh they leit uns of their Id and the The second of a knuweacher. the doath of Africa alike nvolved the From this ad countries, (1) and the ss, appears to ulture which few rare and writers and rius Victor, ser, Claudius ught to give al embellishof original on continued mprised anyand ordinary parting this on chiefly in hices bishol's, red to institive diuceses, cated for the we a certaia e faith. The , at the comthe episecpal Taul enabled institutions. of Vaison, we to raise the clergy by reishes, aceordcould receive educate them vears to be s egoing camon m, the educacarried on is , and that 8 a correspouding

Yandals (A.D. attended. by innorina, de Inet 1), and Rulanus era, ell. Colvener ae. wibhout any in the middle results equally unfavourable to letters. The Catholic party sullered cruel persocutions, but their Arian antagonists were avowedly friondly to learning, aud Carthage still preserved her reputation as one of the ehiof sebools of the empire. Salvian speaks of the eity as famed both for philosophy and the cultivation of all the liberal arts (de Gub, Dei, bk. vii., Migne, liii. 161). It is uneertain whether the treatise of Martiaaus Capella, a rhetorician of Carthage, de Nuptiis Philologite et DIfrourii, et de Soptem Artious Liberalibus, Libri Novem, was composed before or after the Vaudal iavasion, but loag sfter the author's time it coutinued to enjoy an exteosive popularity as a manual of instruction. This faet is alone siguificant evidence of the permauence of a certain pagan element in educatha for the treatise, owing to its speculative character, was always regarded by the Latin Church as a daogerous book (sce Mullinger (J. B.) Hist. of the Unieersity of Cam'iniduger 23-26). Felicianus appears as an eminent teacher of grammar, whose school was frequented both by the sons of the Vandals and those of Roman extraction (Dracontius, Pruef. ad Hyhan.). Dracoutius himself was a poet of no mean ability in the reign of Gundamumil (A.D. 484-496); and the Christian mother of Fulgentiua is said by his biographer, Ferreolus, to hare caused her son to commit to memory the whole of Homer, together with large portions of Menander. After this early training in Greek, Fulgeutius was initiated iuto Latin literature, sad pursuad the study with the combined advantages of home instruction and attendance at one of the grammar schools of Carthage"domo edoctus, artis etiam grammaticae traditur auditorio" (Migue, lxv. 119).

SGHOOLS

With the advance of the 6th century, the study of pagan literatura and the traditious of pagau education had beeome yet further circumlament of Gregory of Tours (" periit studium litterarum ") may be accepted with little reservation as regards his own cequatry. The monastic triditions of education alone survived, although, st the same time, it is evident that they were sustained with some vigour, and that schools for youth (probably of the kiud that Caesarius of Arles had instituted and promoted in Aquitaine) were iu cxistence in the time of Clotaire II. (4.D. 613-628), and of Dagubert (A.D. 628-638), which excited tho emulation of other lands. We learn, for iustance, on the authority of Bede, that Sigebert, kiug of the East Angles (4.D. 635 ), initate theious on his return from exile "to is Fravee," "get up a sehool which he had eeen instracted in liter up a school for youth to he by bishop Felix, who came from Kent, and who provited him with masters and teachers after the mimaer of that country " (Baeda, E. HI. iii. 18; Ilenry of Huntingdon, Hist. Anjl. bk. iii. ; Savile, Script. 332). Evidence again, hereafter to be ootel, is also to be met with of the survival of s higher culture in Italy, Africa, and Spain. After the time of the Origenistic controversy, there is to be discerned in the Western Chureh distrust growing disposition not only to look with distrust on all secular learning as tendiag to incourage speceulations which too often ended in heterodoxy, but also to adopt a theory of Scriptural interpretation which involved a disparaging estimate of the collateral sid which tiun learuing might supply. In the Institnthe cones and Collationes of the celebrated Cassian, the combiation of these vicus is clearly to be theory, and Cassisn adoyted the Alexandrine tical meaning taught that beyond the grammaa succession of the Scripturos there lay hidden gical, allegorical, der meanings, the tropolom vealed themselves only to the sanctified repurified intellect (Inst. v. 24 ; Cull ind and The importance of his adoption of these views lay in the fact that he was also the anthor of a new rule of moastic life and education in the West, and that consequently those communities which sccepted this rule (and they mponas to have included the majority of the monasteries in Ganl in the 5th and 6th centuries) nannot but be looked upon as dominated by a narrow and illiberal conception of learning. For a time, indeed, under the influence of a gentine enthusiasm, they rose superior to their traditions. The monastery of St. Victor at Marseilles, founded by Cassian himself, enjoved a high reputation as a school of elucation. That of St. Honorat, on one of the Lerius group of islands, was yet more celebrated, and the "Studium Insulanum," under Vincentius, was famous as a centre of semi-l'elagian doctrine in the 5th century. Eucherius, Salop of Lyons about A.D. 449, when writing to Salonius, speaks of the latter ns having received Salvietion in this school from Hilary of Arlea, gions know Vincentius, in all branches of reli1. 773).

SCHOOLS
1851

But the severe manual labour imposed by the rule of Cassian (de Cocmob. Inst. ii. 3) alone almost precluded any sustajued attention to letters; and tha study of the saered text, the acquirement of the arts of writing and singing, together with such a knowledge of the Computus (see Calendar) as would enable the leariner to calculate the return of the festivals and fasts, were probably the limits, but rarely exceeded, of monastie education under this rule. At the same time, however, it is to be noted that the importance attached by Cassian to the conatant study of the Scriptures, rendered a certain amount of education obligatory, where it had before been discretionary (Coll. xiv. 10; Migne, xlix. 972), and it may probably be safely assumed that wherever after Cassian's time mention oceurs of any considerable monastery in the West, there existed in connexion with such monastery a school which imparted at least such an amount of elementary lustruction as above described.
The provisions thus liad down were yet more distinctly enforced in the rule of Cacssrius of Arles, who, in addition to his efforts above noted, for the spread of education among the clergy, required that both in the monasteries and in the convents of his diocese, certain hours of study should be strietly observed. In the monasteries this time was from the hour of rising until nine o'clock (Regula ad Monethos, reg. 14; Migae, Patr. Ixvii. 1100). In the conveuts for women it was for two hours, from six to eight o'clock in the morning (Regula ad Virgines, reg. 14 ; ib. Ixvii. 1110).
But while such were the tendencies of education in the West, we find a far more liberal conception maintaining its ground in many of the churches in the East. In marked contrast to the sehool of Alexandria, that of Antiuch acquired, in the 4th century, scarcely less distinction as a centre of widely litferent teaching. The teachers of the sehool of Antioch were distinguished by the hinh ralue which they set upon pelpen literature, and had their views with respect to Christian education gainel the ascendaney, it is no exaggeration to say that the history of the Church, and consequently of Europe at large, thronghuut the milldle ages would have been materially modified. That the profession of instructar in pagan learning did not necessarily involve a departure from orthodox belief is attested by the example of Malehion, a preshyter of the Chureh, and according to Eusebius (II. E. vii. 29), "head of the profession of the soptists in the schools of pagan learning at Autioch," but whe was also distinguished as a refuter of the heresies of Yaul of Samosata.

1852

SCHOOLS

It is, however, with Lucian, presbyter and martyr ( $\dagger 311$ ), that the historical exegesis of Autioch, in conjuuction with a recognised school of instruction, is first to be traced with certainty. (Neander, Kirr/uenfesch. 1. iii. 8:25). Lueian, like Origen, was famed as a teacher, and alung with Dorotheus, educated a large circle of illustrious disciples (Niuephorus, viii. 31 ; Theoloret, II. $E$. i. 5 ). He was alse connected with the schouls at Caesprea and Edessa. When Meletius was driven int - evite by the Ariaus, his see was ably guided by "lavian ( $\dagger 40.3$ ), and buth of these bishops, according to Theodoret (E.II. iv. 29), were the lnot;uctors or advisers of Dioderus, from whom the high celebrity of the schwol of Antiod, which lasted from about A.D. 370-428, may be held to date. Diodorus, although described by Jerome as ignorant of secular learning (de liris llust. c. 119), was really a man of wide anl varied culture, and the instructor of botlo Chrysustom and Theortore of Mopsuestia. While distinguished as an opjonent of the Apollinarian heresy, he was also an able defender of the historical school of Scriptural interpretation, a feature which sufficiently accounts for the hostility of Jerome. With the deposition and condemnation of Nestorius (431) the reputation of the school at Antioch appears to have come to an end.

The doctrines taught at Antioch re-appeared, however, iu Mesopotamia, and especially at those celebrated centres of theolugical teaching, Edessa and Nisibis. The history of these twe schools is singularly intertwined and somewhat obscure. It has been supposed that Edessa was the original seat whence Antioch first derived its characteristic tradition, and it is beyond donbt that it was here that Lucian received instruction from Macarius (Socrates, H. E. ii. 9). Eusebius of Emesa was also iostructed here, not only in religious knowledge but also in pagan learning (ib.). It is uot unti! the 4 th century that Nisibis appears to have acquired distiuction by the teaching of Jacoh, its bishop, who was the instructor of Ephraem the Syrian. Ephraem was subsequently driven from Nisibis and touk refuge in Edessa, where the school which he founded "r re-established became distinguished for its judicions and scholarly principles of interpretation (Assemann, i. 38 ; Sucrates, 1I. E. iii. 6). After the year 431, Edessa became a centre of Nestorian doctrine, and the survival of these teneta is attiibuted by Theodorus Lector to the activity of this school. Its suppression in the year 489 by the emperor Zeno, on this very account (Theoht. Lector, E. II. ii. 49 ; Assemaifn, i. +06i) failed to bring about the extinetion of the sect, for its teachers, removing to Nisibis, maintained the ame traditions; and a schont, in which the Commentaries of Theodore of Mopsucstia were prescribed as sources of doctrine and all livergence from his teaching was forbilion onder the pain of anathema (ib. iii. 84), continuel to exist until the middle ages. Junilius Africanas, writing about the year 540 , speaks of it as a centre of systematic religious instruction, "ubi divina lex per magistros publicos, sicut "poud nos in mundanis studis granmatica ct rhetorica, ordine et regulariter traditur" (Protf, ad de Purt. Div, le!f.; Migne, lxviii. 15). The furegoing passage trom Junilius, who was an Africaa bishop, is of twofold interest, inasmuch as it attests the continued existence and activity vot only of the schond at Nisibis but also of schools of grammar and rhetoric in Africa in the tirst half of the 6 th century.

Among others whose attention was attracked to the tenching of these remote schotls in the East, was Cassiodorus, the eniuent minister of Theodoric the Great. It was his endeavour to give to monastic elucation a more liberal cast than it had received from Cassinn, or than it was then receiving from his contemporary, Caesarius a: Arles -the latter of whom, notwithstanding his efforts to promote the education of the clergy, was altogether adverse to the study of pagan literature. Cassiodorus apyears to have succeeded in carrying his designs into effect in connexion with the monastery which he founded at Viviers in Bruttium ; and we learu from the preface to his treatise, du matitutione Divinumm Littrarum, that he had sought, in conjunction with pupe Agapetus, to funit certain chairs of Christian instruction at Rome, after the fashion, he says, "that long existed at Alexandria, and that now prevails in full foree at Nisilis, so that the sonls of the fathful might gain eternal salvation and thoir speech be adorned with chaste eloquence" (Migne, lax. 537). The schoma, "lectionis ordo," given by Cassiodorus himself, is also in evident agrement with the method and range of instruction which provailed at Nisilis; and it is worthy of uotice that among those to whom he refers as emineat promoters of Seriptural instruction ("intro* ductores Scripturae divinae") is Junilius Africanus. Cassiodorus, however, goes on to state that the outbreak of war had compulled him to abandon the above design, and that he hss accorlingly put forth his treatise, which he describes as "a compend of Scriptural knew. ledge and profane learning." The Catholir spirit in which his precepts are conceived is evident in many points; in his advice to the monks to study geography, and in the fact that he had caused Latin translations to be male of Jusephus' Thistory of the Jeurs and or' the writings of Theodoret (c. 8). These were plared in the library which ho rollected, and of which his treatise gives an account. We lean that it included, besides the canunical Scriptures and the Fathers, the eucyclic of the comeil of Chalcedon in the version of Epiphanins, Eusetias Ecelesiastical History, that of Sozomen together with the wor linus, & © (M also takes nee of pagan lites imprertanat aid selves, and th of the fathers 50ّ4). He quo lect. Christion laden with gol that most sw weut forth fro like manner, and llilarius his own langus mus, legere hsiere dubium praecedit exem

In the perio invasion of the ltaly ebbed to it time the founda Cassine (A.d. 52 tine order had rule of St. Bene that of Cassian neither exjoined literature, but Csesarius of Arl hours for readin were still mainl but the grey da aleridian heat of and in the scason this purpose was tion of Cassiau, but only the bool ments, together u "the most illust faitls aud the Ca (Reg. S. Benedicti,
The interpreta Great (A.1. 544 grspher of St. Be was probably suffi attention to seco teaching under an of the approaching mation which he 1 the troubles of th studies which did parposes of the re less. We fiud, it Pau] and John, sper flourishing state of But agaiast these of a later age, we $m$ (1) that according Gregory expressly pagan literatura; Didier, the emineat iag some of his cler employment of tim bevoning even in a (3) that by his ow ignorant of Greek, a years at Constantit according to Paulns "secoad to none in I a striking illastrat barrow conception Majna Jioralia, or E. the year 489 vory acrount maim, i, 40fi) of of the sect, is, maintained in which the psuestia were ! nul all dirbidden under continuel to lius Afrieamus, aks of it as a ruction, "ubi os, sicut "pud a ct rheterica, (Pruct. ud dt 5). The firewas an Africaa basmuch as it ad nctivity aot also of schools ca in the first ## was attracted

 schools in the ent minister of $s$ enleavour ta re liberal cast inn, or than it contemporary, of whom, notrote the educaadverse to the iodorus appears is designs into astery which he ; and we leara de Institutione had sought, in , to founl cer. ction at Rome, at long existed prevails in full s of the fathful ud their spreech " (Migne, lax. ordo," given by ident agreemeat astruction which worthy of notice :efers as emineat Iuction ("intro* is Junilius Atrirues on to state compelled him to ch that he has atise, which he criptural knowne Catholir spinit ired is evilentia o the monks to act that he has nate of II 'sephas' the writings of p placed in the Id of which his re leam that it criptures unl the council of Chalhanius, Euselius' ozomen togetherwith the works of Orosius, Ammianus Marcelalso takes (Migne, J'utr. 1xx. 1J10-1147). He of pagno literature, urmly to defend the study inpurtant aid to that of the Scripitures themselves, and that it had never been the design of the fathers wholly to prohilit it (ib. Ixas. 554). He quotes the laugunge of Augustine (de Dut't. Christiona, ii. 40) "So Duct. Christiona, ii. 40), "See we not how richly laden with gold, aud silver, and rainent laten with gold, aud silver, and rainment, Cyprian that most aweet teacher and blessed martyr, weut forth from Egypt? How also, ladeu in like manner, Lactantius, Victorinus, Optatus, and Ililarius weut forth ? "-and concludes, in his own language, "utrasque ductrinas, si possunus, legere festinemus, Quis enim audeat habere duhium, ubi virorum talium multiplex praecedit exemplum?"
In tha period directly following upon the invasion of the Lombards (A.D. 568), lenrning in Italy ebbed to ita lowest poiut ; but in the meantime the foundation of the monastery on Monte Csssino (a.d. 529) and the rise of the Benedictiae order had inaugurated a new epoch. The rule of St. Benedict was a kiud of mean between that of Cassian and that of Cassiodorus. It neither enjoiued nor forbade the study of secular neither enjoiued nor forbade the study of secular literature, but it prescribed, like the rule of Caesarius of Arles, the setting apart of regular hours for reading. The euergics of the monk were atill mainly to be given to active labour, but the grey dawn of the winter day aud the meridiau heat of summer were allutted to study; aad in the season of Lent the time assigned for this purpose was extended. With the one exception of Cassian, Benedict specified no authors, but ouly the books of the Old aud New 'Jestabut ouly the books of the Old aud New 'lesta-ments, together with such expositions thereon as "the most illuatrious doctors of the orthodox faith and the Catholic fathers had compiled" (heg. S. Benedicti, c. 8 ; ed. Waitzmann, p. 32). The interpretation given by Gregory the grapher of St. Benedict, to the monastic theory was probably sufficient to exclude, for a time, all attention to secular learaing. Writing and teaching under an exceptionally vivid conviction of the approaching ead of the world-a conaummatien which he held to be plainly foretold by the troubles of the times-he looked upon all. stucies which did not directly conduce to the purposes of the religious life as worse than use$P_{\text {aul }}$ and John, apeaking in glowing biographers, flourishing atate of learuing it lome in his day. But agaiast these doubtful and rague assertions of a later age, we nust place the following facts : (l) that according to Joha (Vita, iii. 33), Gregory expressly forbade bishopla to study pagaa literature; (2) that he strongly censured pagau literature; (2) that he strongly censured ing some of his clergy in classical literature, an employment of time which he declarea to be un(3) that by hie a pious layman (Ep. xi. 54); (3) that by hie own admission he was himself years at Constantinople (Ep. vii. 30), and, accurdiag to Paulus Diaconus (Vita, c. 2) was "secoad to none iu Rome in polite learuing." As a striking illustration of the results of this Marrow Nouception of intellectual culture, his Mayna Miorulia, or Exposition of the Book of Job, claims a pnssiag notice, as a work conceived in the most laring spirit of allegorical interpretation, to the entire exclusion of the aids that oriental or elnssical learning might have aupplied and which could harlly have failed to restraill the unbounded extravagance which characterises these pages. "lt mny safely be said," chserves Dilman, "that accoriling to Gregory's might of interpretation, there is nothiny which might not be found in any book ever written" (Latin Christiunity, bk, iii. 九. 7).

The uarivalled influence exerted by Gregory over his age is thus to be traced in a two-fild form in relation to learning: (1) as distinctly unfavourable to accular stulies; (2) as favouring the allegorical method of interpreting Scripture, and thereby aetting an example which operated powerfully on the whole course of medlaeval theology ; for while the monastic schools which nrose in Eagland were modelled maioly on his instructions, it was from England, in turn, that the schools restored or founded by Charles the Great in the latter part of the 8th century derived their method and their traditions.
It is mainly to the efforts of Theolore and Hadrian, in the 7th century, that we mast attribute that somewhat more liberal conception of Christian studies which oltained io Eingland at this period. Both theae ecelesiasties, of whom the oue was from Taraus, the other from Africa, were Greek as well as Latin schelars (Bright, Early Church History, p. 219). Of the system of education introduced by Theodore it has been said, " that it was in primeiple substantially the same as that which now prevails" (Hook, Lires of the Archbishops, i. 196). Theodore also auginented the library at Canterbury (Edwarda, IIist. of Libraries, i. 101). Of the higher learning which characterised this movement, Aldhelm $(\dagger$ 709) and Bede ( $\dagger$ 735) are the two most conspicuous examples. The former was educated by Hadrian at the monastery schiol of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, and subsequently, in order to obtain a lirelihood, instituted a achool at Malmesbury (William of Malmesbury, Gest. Pont. lib. v.). Aldhelm was also the founder of numerous other monastic sehools in Wessex, ond we still possess an account of his system of instruction (Wright, Iatrod. to Bioy. Brit. Zitt. i. 74). According to his biegrapher, Faricing, he was a competent Greek acholar (c. 1). He, however, so far reflected the influence of Gregory's teaching, that he discouraged the study both of the poets and philosophers of ant: $\cdots \because$; in the inflated Latiulty whleh passed for senolarship of this period, he intimatea that the rade simuplicity of the gospel appears to hlm frs preferable to the slippery byways of pastoral poetry or the thorny winding pathe of philosophy. (Malinesbury, Gest. Pont. ed. Hamilton, p. 342). At nearly the same time that Aldhelm was founding schools in Weasex, Felix, the first bishop of the East Angles (a.D. 680), was carrying ont a similar work in hls diocese, where, says the histerian, "barbariem gentis sensim er mitate Latiua informabat " (ib, I47).
The tradition from Aldhelm was handed dowh by Albinus ( $\dagger 752$ ), abbat of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, and the literary allviser of Hede, Albinus was instructed in Greek by Theodore, and, according to Bede, "knew the Greek tongue to no small perfection, and the Latin as thoroughly as the English, which waa his native tongue " (E. H. v. 20).

The extensive learning of Bede, which was of a yet higher order, was acquired partly mader the tuition of Benedict Biscop, at the monasterics at Wearmouth and Jarrow, and partly at St. Anguatine's at Canterbnry. Bede himselt was subsequently an active founder of the famous school at York, the most distinguished centre of learning in England in the 8th aul 9th ceuturies. It was successively presided over by Egecrt, Ethelbert, and Eanbald, each of whom succeeded to the archbishopric of York ; but ita most distinguished teacher waa Alenin. The achool appeara to have been open to the secular clergy as well as to those designed to the monnstic life, a fact which may to some extent account for the liberal character of the studies pursued by the scholars (Migne, Patr. c. 146 ; ci. 845 ; Stubbs, Pref. to de Intentione, p. vi.). Alcuin, who was not a monk, was for aome time librarian of the cathedral library, and in his Poëma de Pontificibus Eoclesiae Ehoracensis (Migne, ci. 845) has According to his account it was a complete repository not only of patristic, but also of Greek and Latin, literature.

Such was the institution from whence the light of learning was transmitted to Frankland, and there hauded down to the middle ages; but before proceeding to follow this main path, as it may be termed, of our aubject, it will be neceasary to devote a brief attention to the condition of letters and cducation in other parts of Europe during the 7 th and 8 th centuries.

The tradition of important Christian schools in Spain at a very early period in Church hiatory, muat atand or fall with that of the early evangelisation of the country [Paganisal, Survival of, sec. iii.]. It appears to have suggested to the anthor of the sputious Chronicon of Dexter (ann. 185 and 370),-a Jeanit forgery of the 17 th century, -the statement that such achools existed in the 2 nd and were restored in the 4th century; nor is it easy to believe that, under ecclesiastics like Hosius, the work of education could have failed to be carried on with vigour. Lannyy (de Scholis, \&c. c. ivi.) observes, however, that the school of Bracara (now Braga in Portugal) is the only one of which we have This school, where were pursued "optimarnm artium atudia," attained to yet greater celcbrity under its abbat Fructuosus, the contemporary of Isidorus. In the time of lsidorus (A.D. 570-636) a general revival of learuing thronghout Spain appeara to have taken place. The great school of Seville, which had been founded by his brother and predeceasor in that see, Leander, excrcised considerable influence over edncation throughout Andalusia. Iaidorus himself was undonbtedly the most learned ecclesiastic of the 7th century and an active promoter of learning. He was also the fonader of another school in connexion with a large monaatery which he built withont the walls of Seville. The diacipline of this school was remarkable for its severity. The scholars were not pormitted to go beyond the walls of the monastery until four years had elapsed from their firat admission ; and those who evlnced a their firat admission ; and those who evlaced a disposition to anunter abont and neglect their disposition to anunter about and neglect their studies, were compelled to wear iron fetters on their feet (Rod. Cerrat. Vita Isidori, c. xiv.; Migne, $1 \times x \times i .78$ ), liscipline of this kind, however, was confined to the monastic sehools, which appear to linve sometimes served the purpose of the modern reformatory. We find, for exnmiph, that a decree of the fourth council of thledo (A.D. 633), over which lsidorus presided, while enjohuing the institution of schools for the clersy, directs also that refractory scholars shall he sent to the monasteries (Mnnsi, x. 626). The first canon of the second council of Tololo, A.d. 615 , maisen, likewise, express provision fur schools for the clergy under the direction of the bishop.
laidorus aays (Sent. iii. 8) that both prayer and realing are dutits of the religions life, though preference is to be given to the former. He discourages the perusal of pagan literature (ib. iii. 13), and affirns that the meretricious art of the grammarian must not be preferred to more simple knowledge (ib.). It is, however, a legitimats inference from hia Etymologite (or Origincs, as the treatise is aometimes termel), that lsidorus did not consider these injunctums to be equally binding on the clergy. This latter treatise, along with those of Boethius, the de Artibus ac Disciplinis of Cassiodorus, und the de Septcm Artinus of Martianns, may be looked upon as completing the list of the ordinary textbooks of instruction up to the 13 th century.

On the whole, it may be said that Christian education as conceived by Isidorus rested on a far more liberal basis than that laid down by Gregory,-a fact in aome measure attributable to the immnuity from war and invasion which Spain, when compared with ltely, at this time enjoyed. Aa regards the interpretation of Scripture, however, laidorus followed in the steps of Gregory, a fact of which hia Allegoriac athords decisive evidence, and he this lent the weight of his high authority to the perpctuntion of the Alexandrine tradition in the Western Church.

The extant writings of Braulio clearly prove that he had profited largely by the iustruction of Isidorns, and the quotations from Tereuce, Horace, Vergil, and Juvenal, which they contain, shew a fair knowledge of Latin literature. Among Iajdorna' other pujils were Sisebut, king of the Visigoths, and the archdeacon Redemptus, anthor of the Life of St. Didier. Braulin, io his turn, becane the founder of an important sehoel in northern Syain, at the city of Saragassa, and among his scholars were Eugenins, third bishop of that name of Toledo (a writer whose metrical compositiona are among the most favourable specimens of the literature of the period), and Tainon, Braulio's successor in the sce of Sara. gosss (Bourret, L'École chrét. de Sérille, 119-133).

The conquest of the conntry by the Saracens under Musa, in the year 711, probably iuvelved the extiuction of these achools, though traces of learning and culture are discernible even after this time; but throughont the 7th century, Spain may fairly be regarded as an exception to the intellectual darkness that prevniled in Western Europs and slmoat juatifies the observation of the abbe Bourret,-"On dirait qua toutes les minass se sont enfuies vers les bords

[^142]hospitaliers du arrivent les echi signes de la vis (ib, p, 203).

In the East, ar the study of gran countenance of $t \mid$ achools of the We year 425, in the was jromulgated, the function of pu been formally npl at Constantinople. to assemble their tiouibus cellulisqu banishument from teach in private d domesticos." This by Pinlay as a tyr he omits to refer mensure makes pr public instructors, "oratores" and te five "sophistae" a teacher of philosop of these inatructor "locus," probably sssembla his class Hacnel, p. 1389). of philosophy at At bably a blow nime learning, and the $\varepsilon$ still tanght, as in some justances with names of Stobaeu Agathias, and Evag the continuance of letters. The achool as the oecumenical, though the circur college of the Octage are lest in obscurit century, along wit library, is sufficiently writers ( $\left\langle\gamma \kappa\right.$ úk $\lambda_{t 01}$ ) tsught with a atrang and later rhatoricians placed on the same Plutarch and Dion Herodotus and Thuey Hermogenea and Apl for the rhetorje of Aristotle being aeen ths clouded glasses and Joannes Philopo iii. 373-374).

The accession of $t$ ? 72b) aod the contr worship were eminent and the emperor Leo is the college of the 0 Towards the close of considerable revival to that no amall amount railed. At the comme tury the celeorated The round him at the inon of disciples, some of descrites as devoted to to Seriptural studies, a (Migne, Series Graeca, asy Finlay, "that leari
c．$x i v . ;{ }^{*}$ ind，how－ elly，which ourpose of －example， of＇Tusedo led，while die clers． shall he i26）．The of Thledo， ovision for tion of the th prayer ife，though irmer．He literature tricions art referred to however，a wologiac（ar les termet）， injunctuns This latter nius，the de us，and the y be louked dinary teat－ ：entury． at Christian rested ou a tid down by attributable rasion which at this time pretation of $d$ in the steps goriae affords the weight of ation of the m Church． clearly prove e instruction rom Tereuce， they contaio， in literature． Sisebut，king n Redemptus， 3raulio，io his rtant school in aragossa，and 3，third bishop vhose metrical as favourable e pariod），and sce of Sara de Sérille the Saraceas bably invelred ough traces of ble eved after 7th century， an exception to vailed in West－ s the absetT－ On diralt que vers les bords duction．
hospitaliers du Betis，car de la seulement arrivent les echus de ia parioe antipue et les signes de la vie intellectuelle de l＇humanité＂
$(b)$ ． $20: 3$ ）．

In the East，and especially at Constantinople the study of grammar and shetoric received the countenance of the state long after the imperina year 425 ，ine west had ceased to exist．lis the was promulgated，designed apparently to restrict the function of public teaching to thnse who had been formally appointed to teach in the Capitol at Constantinople．Other tenchers are foroidten to assemble their pupils＂in publicis magistra－ tiouibus cellulisque＂under pain of infiny and banishment from the city，but are allowed to teach in private dwelling houses，＂intra parjetes domesticos．＂This edict has been characterised by Pinlay as a tyranical exercise of power，but he omits te refer to the fact that the same mensure makes provision for a fixed number of public instructora，as follows：in Latin，three five＂orres＂and ten＂grammatici＂；in Greek， five＂sophistae＂and one＂grammaticus＂；one tencher of philosophy ；two of civil law．Each of these inatruetors was to have his appointed ＂locus，＂probably a fixed place，in which to assemble his class（Cod．Theod．xiv．tit． 9 ；ed． Haesel，p．1389）．The sappression of the schools of philosophy at Athens，by Justinian，was pro－ bably a blow nimed rather at heresy than at learning，and the gracomarian and rhetorician still tanght，as ia Africa，anmolested，and in some iustances with distingaished suceess．The names of Stobsens，Theodorus Anagnostes， Agathias，and Evagrius，are sufficient proof of the continuance of a certain cultivation of letters．The scheols at Constantineple，known as the oecumenical，were also celebrated，and though the circumstances under which the college of the Octagon in that eity was founded are lost in obsearity，its existence in the 8th century，along with that of an extensive library，is sufficiently established．＂The classical writers（ ใ $\gamma к ⿺ 𠃊 ⿻ 丷 木 大 к^{\prime} \lambda_{101}$ ）＂says Donaldson，＂were taught with a strange mixtore of Church fathers and later rhatoricians，－Libanins and Basil being placed on the same footing as Demosthenes， Plutarch and Dion Cassius being preferred to Herodutus and Thucydides，the commentators of Hermogenes and Aphthonius being anbstituted for the rhetoric of Aristotle，and Plato and Aristotle being seen darkly，if at all，through the cleuded glasses of Proelas，Olympiodorus， sod Jaannes Philoponus＂（Hist．of Gireek Lit．
iii． $373-374$ ） iii．373－374）．
The accession of the Isaurian dynasty（A．D． ${ }^{726}$ ）and the controversy reapecting image worship were eminently unfavourable to letters， and the emperor Leo is acensed of burning hoth the college of the Octagon and its library． Towards the close of the century，however，a cossiderable revival took place，unt it is evident thit no small amount of literary culture pre－ railed．At the commencement of the 9 th cen－ tary the celeoेrated Theodorus Studites assembled round hin at the indnastery of Studion a badad of disciples，some of whom his biographer deacrites as devoted to geueral learoing，others to Scriptural studies，and some to manual arts （Migne，Seriea Graeen，xeix．168）．＂A proff，＂ mys Finlay，＂that learning was atill cultivated

SCHOOLS
that bechoolunt parts of the Byzantine empire，and is to bchonls of some eminence existed in Greece， is to be found in the fict that leo the inathe－ matician．when a layman，retired to a cellege in the island of Animos to pursue his studles，aind there litid the foundation of the scientific know－ ledge by which he established his reputation． After he was conpelfed to resign his archbithop－ hic of Thessulunica，the general respect felt for his learning obtained fur him from Barias Cae－ at Constantidency ot the uew university founled （A．D． 842 andingle in the reign of Michatel III． and astronomy had which chails of geometry the usual Instruction in Greek literature．＂（Ilist of the Byzantine E＇mp．ed．Tozer，ii．25；fur Leo＇s attainments see Migne，Series Graeca，cix．199．） In northern and central Italy，where the role of the Lombard supplanted that of the eastern emperor，the course of events could not frill to be anfavourable to learuing；but it is evident that traditions of Greek calture lingered in the south long after the time of Gregory the Great． In the Lite of John of Damascus there is a re－ markable representation given by the monk Cos－ had been attainments and course of study．He Calabria to the by pirates when sailing from sale in the market－place of atood expesed for formed the father place of Damasens，he in－ subsequently ransomed）（by whom he was been aulorued by thomed）that his speech had been alorned by the study of rhetoric，his reason trained in dinlectical methods and proofs；that he had studied ethics as taught by Aristotle and Plato；had acquired a knowledge of physical philosophy，arithmetic，geometry，music，and astronomy（ $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \dot{\alpha} \sigma \tau \epsilon \dot{\rho} \omega \nu \quad \pi \epsilon \rho 1 \phi o \rho d \nu$ ）；and，tinally， had been initiated into the mysteries of theo－ ireeks and as the teachers of the Latin church had most elearly set them forth＂（Migne，Series Graeca，xciv．430）．

In Frankland a continuous state of warfare sufliced to preclude much atteution to the edu－ cation of the people during the rule of Charles Martel and that of Pepin le Bref（A．D．75＂－768）． Gaizot，however，contends that in the preceding century and a half（A．D．600－750）there is good reason for inferring the continned existence of episcopal schools at Poitiers，Paris，Le Mans， Bourges，Clermont，Vienue，Châlons－sur－Saône， Aries，and Gap；while，besides the monistic schools of St．Medard at Soissuns，and that at Lerins，he considers that others are to be traced in connexion with the foutadations at Poitiers， Liguge，Ansion，Luxeuil，Fontentlle，and Sithin （Ilist．de la Civiliat．ii．3－4）．It was reserved， however，for Charlea the Great to initiate a series of eftorta for the revival of learning，which were destined to be attended by marked success and long－enduring results．
Charles＇s regard for letters may have been derived，in the tirst instance，from Peter of Pisa，who appears to have taaght graminar of the court I levin（Alcuin，Ep．75）；while Paulas Dinconus，the historian Leidrados，a Bavarian，and Theodulfus，a Spanish Goth，were scholars with whom he became acquainted during his campaign in ltaly（A．D．774）．But in none of these were，there combined tha attainments and the energy requisite for carry－ ing out the great work of restoration which instituendis, Baluze, i. 201-20t; Pertz, Lergg. i. 523 ). luoth the clerical profession and the monasteries at this period were lurgely recruited from the servile class; and it marks the rising eatimation in which education now began t" be held, thit nnother of Charleg's Capitularies, of the year 789 , enjoins the clergy to soek fir scholars nut onl! amon, the sons of slutes but almost anong the sons of freemen; it also directs that in connexion with every episcopal see and monastery there shall be a school where boys shall be taught the psalma, notation (" notas"), ainging, the nss of the Computus, ind the Latin toague, and that they shall be supplied with uecurately transeribed text-bewks, "libroa bene emeadatos" (Capitula duta missis dominicis, Balnze, i. 360).

SCHOOLS

In the year 796, Alcuin's work of reform in Fraakland entered upon ita third phase, couaequent npon his appointment to the nbbacy of St. Martin of Tomrs. Here he forthwith proceeded to put in practice his more nustere conceptions of monastic diacipline and education, while his reputation attracted scholars not only from all parts of the empire, but also from England and Ireland. The influence he thus exerted over hia disciples during the eight years preceding his death conatitutes probably the most enduring impress that he left upon his age; but his mistrust of pagan literature and too deferential adherence to the Gregowian tratitions largely tended to cramp and tetter the intellectnal energies of subsequent generations.

The movement thus initiated continued te develop itself long after Alcuin's denth. In the year in which he died (A.D. 804) fresh injunctions were issued with a view to the mare systematic education of the clergy (Baluze, $i$. 417).! In 813 a decree of the council of Chàlons enjoined the creation of additionnl scheols for the cultivation of learning and the stuly of the Scripturea (Labbé, Concilia, vii. 1272). The angmentation in the numbers of the scholars is probably indicated by a canon of the council of Anchen, in 817, requiring that only those who had already embraced the monastic life (the "oblati") shonld in future be admitted to the schools within the monastery walls (Pertz, Le:g. i. 202). From this time the monastic schools appear to have been of two kinds: the "schulse claustrales" for the "oblati," and the " schulae canonicae" for the becular clergy. In the year 822 Lewis the Pions issued new instructions, affirming that education since his accession had not received due attention, and enjoining that every candidate for holy orders, whether young or old, should have a settled residence and a competent inatructor; the parenta or masters of scholars were to provide for their maintenance, and if the extent of a bishopric rendered it difficult to assemble the scholars at one centre, additional schools were to be opened (Pertz, Leges, i. 231). Among the episcopal achools in Frankland those of Or!eans and Rheims were especially distinguished. The first, under the

1 The charter repreaenting Charles as endowing schools at Osnabrick for the pnrpose of maintaining knowledge of both Greek and Latin among the canont of the cathedral (see Bainze, 1. 419) is not accepted by Pertz, and is probably spurlens. See Diploma Caroli «agni Imperatoris (1717), a treatise attributed to Eccarb direction of The perhaps the chie op to the universi cially active In hi pestore manuscrip noted for their be slas the author o tha guilance of $t$ circulated throug Théolulfe, c. 2; The school at Re tha celebrated Hi and under the auc archbishop, Fulk, R enjoyed the proud served throughont of learning which with the ualveraity
The monastic ach sltogether surpasse in learuing andl in category stands the under the rule of $R$ of Alcuin at Toura. by his attaiumeuts sud hia trentise on $t$ de Kistitutiome Clcric dications of his desir liheral standard of which he had receiv numbered many of racters of the 9 th Strale, Otfried of W pertus, Hartmuat, Me vener, 6 vola. 1626; Rhabanus Maurus, 18 gise, an offishoot fro guished as a learned tha abbat (Chron. $P$ 338). That at Selig historian, was noted ${ }^{\circ}$ able productions of it rières, in the Gatiasis Lupus Servatus, the I guished classical sche Etude sur les Lettres of his disciplea, Eric, a main at Anxerre; was the sen of Charles th sbbey of St. Alban nu Rupertus, known for Probus, a devoted stuc (Chron. Hirsauyiae, an Epp. 20 and 34 ; Mignt of St. Germain dea Prt alresdy enjoyed, in tl derable celebrity as ac Amiens, under Adelhar sius Radbertus, was ga for ita learning and fondation. It fell bef but its nameaake, Now taiaed the asme traditic tinction (Walae Vita, P grest sbbey of St. Riq Aggilbert, another of Al for its devotion to lett posseassinng, made in the tion of Lewia the Plous, less thisn two hundred (LLon Maître, Les Écoles of St. Martin at Metz, 0 direction of Theorlulfus, the archbishop, was perhnps the clief centre of clorical education up to the university era. Theodulfus wns espueislly active in his endenvoura t? preserve and restore manuseripts, and those of Orleans wers noted for their beauty aud nccuracy. He was also the nuthor of a compendium of rules for the guldance of the clergy. which was widely circulated throughout the realo (Buanari, Théolulfe, e. 2; Migne, Patr. ev. 191-207), The school at Reims, under the patronage of the celebrated Hincmar, was not less famed, and under the successive teaching of Sigloard, anjoyed the proud distinction of havlng prond served throughout the 9 th century that tradition of learning which links the episeopal schools with the university of l'aris.
The mounstic schools of this period, however, altogether surpassed the episcopal schools both In lenroing and in celebrity. Foremost in this category stamds the school of the abbey at Fulda, under the rule of Rabanus Maurus, the disciple of Alcuin at Tours. He was equally distinguished by his attainmeuta nud his ability as a tencher, and his treatise on the education of the clergy, de Institutume Clericorum, contnins not a few iudicutious of his desire to set up a somewhat more liberal stsndard of such education than that which he had received. Among his scholars he numbered many of the most prominent characters of the 9 th century, such as Walafrid Strabo, Otfried of Weissenberg, Rudolfus, Luitpertus, Hartmuat, Megiahard, &c. (Opera, ed. Colvener, 6 vols. 1626 ; Spengler, Lelon des heiligen Rhabanus SAaurus, 1856). The abbey of Hirsaugise, an offichoot from Fulda, was also distinguished as a learned community unde guished as a learned community under William, the sbbat (Chron. Petershusanum, Migne, cxliii. 338). Thst at Seligenstadt, uader Einhard the historian, was noted for the scholarly and admirable productions of its scriptorium; that at Ferrières, in the Gatinais, could boast of its abbat, Lupus Servatus, the presence of the most distinguished elsssical scholar of the time (Nicolas, Etude sur les Lettres de Scrvat-Loup, 1861). One of his disciples, Eric, afterwarda abbat of St. Germain at Auxerre, was the instructor of Lothair, the son of Charlea the Bald. At Mayeace, the abbey of St. Alban numbered among its seholars Rupertus, known for his Greek learning, and Probus, a devoted student of Cicero and Vergil (Chron. Hirsauyjae, ann. 892; Lupus Servatus, Epp. 20 and 34 ; Migne, cxix.). The monasteries ef St. Germain des Prés and St. Denis at Paris already enjoyed, in the 9th century, a considerable celebrity as schools. At Corbey, near Amieus, under Adelhard and Wala, and Paschasius Radbertus, was gathered a aociety eminent for its laaraing and illustrious as a parent fondation. It fell before the Norman invasion; but its namesake, New Corbey, in Saxony, suatisned the same traditions with scarcely less distisction (Walae Vita, Pertz, ii. 578-581). The great abbey of St. Riquier, under the rule of Angilbert, another of Alcuin's acholars, was noted for its devotion to letters; an inventory of its possessinons, made in the year 831 by the direction of Lewis the Plous, ineluded a library of no less than two hundred and thirty-one volumes (Lhon Maître, Les Écoles, &c. p. 67). The abbey of St. Martin at Metz, under tha, rule of Aldri-cus, was scnrcely has celebrated (Baluze, Mfiscell. Char); a bible presented by the commuity to Charles the linh, and the missal of bishop Drugo, are stil] preserved, and rank among the most valued apecimens of bth-century art. The soclety of St. Mihiel-sur-Meuse enjoyed the instruction of Smaragdus, whase compend of Donatus frequeutly nypenrs in the catalugues of the libraries of the period. St. Bertin, in the dloceso of Cambrai, claimed the distinguished honour of leaving educated Grimbnla, whom king Alfred invited to nid him In his ellorts towards a restorntion of learniug in England (Bollandus, Juillet, ii. 651).
A remarkable eftiort on the part of the episcopal order still further to extend the influencea of education was male in the year 829 , when at an aasembly at Paris it was resolved to petition tha emperor to found three large schools at three dillerent centres, to be open to the clergy and the monnstic orders alike (Mansi, xiv. 599). The acheme nppears to hava been frustrated by the outbreak of war. The prin the sons of the of the gratuitous instruction of distinctly on its poin appears to have heen very tion over the portals of the monastery at Sinfburg contained the verse- monastery at Sulz-
"Discere sil cuplas, gratis quod quaeris habebis;"
on the other hand, the monastery at Tours, under the rule of Fredegis, Alcuin'a anccessor, was unenviably distinguished by ita exaction of fees from the scholars. This practice was atrongly denounced by Amalaric, who had formerly acted as librarian at the monastery, and had been promoted to the archbishopric of the diocese. In the year 843, he founded a fund for ths purpose of providing gratuitous instruction in Tours, and the measure was subsequently sanctioned in a formal enactment by Charles the Bald (Martene, Thes. Anecd. i. ann. 843). At vearly the same time, Theodulfus issued instructiona to the clergy of his diocese that they should in no case demand fees for the instruction of children, but only accept them when voluntarily offered by the parents (Mansi, xiii. 388). The Capitulary in which he embodied thia proviso was subaequently widely adopted by other diocesea (Baunard, Theudulfe, p. 61).
It atill remains briefly to ndvert to another parhool of thought, that of the Celtic church, and particularly the Irish monasteries, in order to complete the foregoing outline. With the name of St. Comgall there is associated the great achool of Banchor ${ }^{\text {ta }}$ or Beachor in the Ards of Ulster, founded in the year 558 (Life of Columba, ed. Reevea, p. 306), and famous as a seat of learning. The yet more celebrated achool at Hy or Iona is as80cinted with the name of St. Columba; that of Lindisfarne, or Holy Island, with the labours of St. Aidau; those of Luxeuil, on the confinea of Burgundy and Austrasia, and Bolbio in the north of ltaly, with the missionary career of Columbad. St. Gall in Switzerland, wi This must be carefuliy distinguished from the monastery at Bangor (the modern Bangor-lscoed in Fintahire) mentioned by Bede as numbering upwards of $2 . e 00$ monks (E. H. It. 2); a fonndation which posas a mosed not all corresponding to its importance as a menastery (Biogham, $\Delta n t$. II, 347) which in the 9 th century poseessed a library of four hundred volumes (Weidmann, Hist. do la Biblioth. de S. Gull, p. 16), still preserves the nsme of lts founder. St. Kilinn in Thuringia, and Virgilius in Carinthin, were representativen of the same great movement.

The question of the common origin of thls teaching, characterised by a distinctive scholarship nud a distinctive theology, in Irish fonndations, would lnvolve a more lengthened loquiry than is here adnisaible, but it may be ohserved that such evidence as we possess remarkibly confirms the traditions which associate the early Irish civilisation with the East, either directly or indirectly through Massilis.

As early as the time of Jerome, there is evidence of an Irish Christian civjlisation anterior to St. latrick, and la the 6th century the "Scotti" as they were termed (Ireland being the original Scotland) were already eminent for their love of learning. An lish scholar, Maildulf, instructed Aldhelm st Malmesbury in the 7th century; und Theodor, the archbishop, on his arrival, found himself, according to Aldhelm, surrounded by a throng of eager Irish disciples, "Hibernensium globo discipulorum stipatur" (Ussher, Sylloy. Ep. p. 38).

The distinguishing features of this Celtic Christinoity, so far as related to education and learniug, were as follows: (1) the adoption of a text book of secular education which was condemned by the majority of the Lstin clergy ; (2) a superior knowledge of Greek and also of the latiu classics and of astronomy ; (3) a disposition to employ dialectics in theological controversy.
(1) 'l'he treatise of Martibous Capella, to which refereuce has above been made (p. 185l), was a favourite text-book with those who leaned towards the cultivation of pagan learning. We find, for example, one Securus Melior Felix, a rhetorician at Clermont, editing the treatise in the year 534, and distributing copies throughout Frankland (Hist. litt. de la France, iii. 21, 173); so that in the time of Gregory of Tours, it would appear to have become the ordinary mannal of all those who among his countrymen atill made any profession of learding (Hist. Franc. x. 31). St. Pstrick, it has been conjectured, first brought the book to lreland, where its speculative chsracter recommended $i t$ to the native genius. Varions festures, however, combined to render the volume peculiarly obnoxious to the orthodox party ; it contained, for exsmple, a remarkable anticipation of the Copernican theory in a atatement that Mercury and Venus revolved round the sun; it asserted the existence of an antipodes, and fioslly it referred to the Trinne God of Chriatianity in the anme category with the gods of pagnism (Mart. Cap. ed. Kopp, p. 856). It wis from these pages that Virgilius, the Irish bishop of Salzburg, derived his theory of an antipodes, by the maintenance of which he drew down upon himelf the enmity of St. Bonifsce and the annthema of pope Zscharias (Jafié, Mon. Dforunt. p. 1Y1; see also Gorini, Defense de C'Églisc, ii. 375-383). Prudentius of Troyes, in bis controversy with John Scotus Erigena, broadly accused the latter of having "imbibed the deally poison" of heresy from the same work (Migne, Putr. exv. 1294).
(2) The superior scholarship and clasaical attainments of the lrish gchelars are nttested by frequent evidence. Columban begniled his leisure with the composition of Lath rerse. The allectation of Greek modes of expression is, however a serions defect ln their Latisity, sus adds much to the obsenrity of their diction. "lt is palpal e," aays Mr. Huddan, "in British writers, as well as in Irish and Suxud, from Gildas duwn to Ricemarch" (liemuins, p. 280). They were often well read in the Greek fathers, and Clement the Scot, when at the court of Carloman in 712, shewed hinself familiar with the writings of Origen, and declused to be bound by the dicta of Jerome, Augustiue, and Gregory (ib. Pl. 274 , 286 ; Jafle, Mon. Mojunt. p. 140). The translation of the treatises of the pseuilo-Dionysius by John Scotus Erigena in the 9th century (a task to which none of tho Frankish clergy hal been found equal) proves his superior acquaintsuce with the Greek Inugnage, while we may infer from the questions which, at the suggestinn of Clement of Irelnad, Charles the Great propumed to Alcuin at Tours, in more than ordinary acquaintance with aatronomy (Nigne, Putrol, a 266 ; Jalle, Alcuiniana, p. 420).
(3) The proneness of the Jrish theologime to the use of the syllogiam aroused the autipathy which, as we have already seen, was tralitional in the Latin church to such modes of discussing theological questions; Benedict of Aniane noter this feature to their discredit: "Apud mmbernus scholasticos, maxime upnd Scotos, iste syllogismus delusionis" (Baluze, Disc. v. 54). The practice, probsbly carried to its abuse, is diaceruible from Pelagius down to John Scotus, the latter of whom Prudentius found it necesssry to remiod that the fathers of the church had eujoined that the faith should be defended, not by suphistic trickeries, but by the plain statements of the Scriptures: "Ne ${ }_{i}$ uaquam sophisticis illusionibus, sed Scripturarum sanctarnm evidentissimis allegationibus" (Migoe, cxv. 1013).

But although, in the 8th sod 9th centuries, the treatise of Martisnus Capelln sod the employment of dislectics were discournged by the church, there is sulticient evidence that neither the one nor the other fell iuto disuse; so that when, at the cominencement of the 12th century, William of Champeaux opened his school of logic ot Paris, and found both a pupil and a rival in Abelard, the ancient art wss revived with ael vigour, and the history of Christian edacstion itself entered upon a new phase.

Authorit:cs, $\dot{\text { c.-Thomassin. Cave, Historia }}$ Listeraria. Keuffel (G. G.), Historia Oriyinis et Progressus Scholarum inter Christianos, 1743. Ampere, Histoire litteraire de la France, 3 r. 1867. Gorini, Defense de l'Eylise, 4 r. 1884., Kihn (H.), Die ältesten christlichen Schulen, 1865. Léon Maitre, Les Écoles épiscopales dt monastiques de l'Occident, 1866. Kanfmann (Georg), Rhetorenschulen und Klosterschulem article in von Rammer's Historischcs Taschensuli for 1869. Prantl, Geschichte der Logik im Abimb. lando, vols. i : and ii. 1855-60. Mullinger(J. B.), Schools of Charles the Great and Restoration of Education in the Ninth Century, 1877.
[J. B. M.]
SCILLITANI, TWELVE MARTYRS, July 17; commemcrated at Carthage ( Morh Bed., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., , Н. ker., Wand.).

ELTEFN.

SCRIBIINEO Irlish seribe, was monastery, and pr more anciout Sean times. He wha and In the end merged in the Fer the school (Colg thus assochated became abbat and Four Masters we fi during the 8th, 9 t is often (A.D. 803 "bishop, scribe, an "scribe, bishop, an Ecct. Ant. 149 sq . an Rer. llib. Scrip, is mulct for the blot that for the bloold o Irish canon of the D'Achery and Mart and Reeves, Recl. A scripts which atill libraries and In th skill, taste, and nssid the priaciples of the tions of the colours used. Chisef of the Book of Kiells, the $B_{0}$ of Lecan, with the knots and animals wi extremities ( $0^{\circ} \mathrm{Curr}$ Anc. Ir. Hist. pass. e
SCRIPTURE, proposed in this arti upon the habitual ue aripture during the as the subject of the guide and director of $t$
I. As to the numer tlmes littls needs $t$ which hove already tionary of the Bible. portance was attacb of versions into th those who received Cl (De Doctr. Christ. c translations of the into Greek can be co lators are out of all days of the fsith eve lay hands upon a Gr thought he had any $k$ litile, of the two lan werk of translation."• ame Work St. Augus early diffusion of the tongues. Eusebius al Evangel. xii. 1) that tl lated Jato all langua barbarians, throughou satom (Hom. i. in Joa, the Egyptians, the In [^143]re attested eguiled his verse. The bon is, hew: y, run! adds on. "It is ish writers, Gildax duwa They wers and Clement man in 7t?, writings of the diuta of ib. 11. 274, The translaDionysius by cury (a task gy had been cquaintance ve may infer aggestion of t prounumed ordinary sePutrol. a

neologinus to he antipathy 1s tralitional of discussing Aniane notea pud minderoos es syllogismus The practice, ceraible frem the latter of ory to remind eujowned that : by sophistic ments of the is illusiunibus atissimis alle-

9th centuries and the emuraged by the that neither isuse ; so thst 12th ceatury school of logi and a rival it ived with nem tian education

Cave, Historia ria Originis istianos, 1743. 1 France, 3 r. ise, 4 г. 1864. ichen Schulen, s épiscopales d Kaufmana Fhosterschuwen hes Taschenbuch Logit im Abnd. ullinger (J. B) Restoration of 1877.
[J. B. M.]
MARTYRG, arthage (Harh Hieron. Not-
[C. . . .]

BUREEN. [Cancellit I Iconostasis.] GCRIBHNEOIR, SCIIBILNIGH, Irlsh serike, was an lmpertaut offere, the monastery, and prohably took the place of the more anclent Seanchailhe or historlita of pagan times. He was copyist, illuminator, annallist, and in the end of the loth century becane nerged in the Ferleighinn or public lecturer in the school (Colgun, Tr. Thumm. 631-2). As thas associated with leorning, he trequently became abbat and blshop. In the Annals of the Fur Masters we find frequent obits of the seribe during the 8 th, 9 th, and 10 th centaries, and he is often (A.D. 803, 820, 828, 871, \&c.) ealled "hishop, seribe, and uhbat," or even (A.b, 819) "serihe, bishop, nuchurite, and abbat " (Reeves, Ect. Ant. 149 sq. and St. ddumnan, 365 ; O'Conor, Rer. Hib. Serip, iv. 129 aq.). By canom the mulct for the blool of a seribe was equal to that for the blood of a bishop or abbat (see the Irish canon of the 8th centary, quoted from D'Achery and Martene by O'Conor, Ib. iv. 130, and Recves, Eccl. Ant. 150 n.), and the mannscripts which stil! remaln, hoth in our owa libraries and in the continental, attest their skill, taste, and assiduity, and their knowledge of the principles of thelr art, and of the combinations of the colours aud colouring ma: er they ased. Chief of these may bo euumerdied the Book of Kells, the Book of Armagh, and the Book of Lecan, with their ornamentution of Runic knets and animals with elungated and interlacing extremities ( $0^{\prime}$ Curry, Leet. MS. Materials of Anc. Ir. Hist. pasa. ed. 1873). [J. G.]
SCRIPTURE, STUDY OF. The object proposed in this article is to throw sone light upoo the habitual use which was made of Holy arripture during the early ages of the church, as the subject of the constant study, and as the guide and director of the daily lite of its members.
I. As to the aumerous versions made in ancient tlanes littly needs to be added to the articles which hive already appeared in the Dictionary of the Bible, [VERsions.] Great importance was attached to the multiplication of versions into the vermacular twagues of thess who received Christianity. St. Alngustine (De Doctr. Christ. as xi.) writes: "For the trasslations of the Scriptures from Hebrew iate Greek can be counted, but the Latin trinslators are out of all number. For in the early dsys of the faith every man who happened to lay hands upon a Greek manuscript, and who thought he had any knowledge, were it ever so intile, of the two languages, ventured upon the work of translation." " In the fifth chapter of the same work St. Augustine bears witness to the earl $\overline{\text { diffusion of the Holy Scriptures in various }}$ tengues. Eusebius also snys (De Pracparut. Eranjel, xii. 1) that the Scriptures were transIsted into all languages, both of Greeks and sostom (Home throughout the world ; and Chrysostom (Hom, i. in Joan.) says that the Syrians, the Egyptians, the Indians, the Persians, the

[^144]SCRIPTURE, STUDY OF
1859 Ethloplans, and a multitude of other nations tranalated thom into "their own tougues."
Mal. Augustine, in hls letter to the people of Malaura (Letter cexxxii, vol. ii. p. 446, Clark's ell.), says that the Divine Scriptures hal "come into the hady of all."
11. Our next evidence of the actual use made of Holy Scripture ia the early Church is derived from the citations both from the Old and New Testament, with which the works of carly writera abound. It does not fall within our present province to discuss the import of the references mads to apweryphal writingy under designations the same as, or slmilar to, these given to the Canonical Buoks of Scripture. (See Canunical books, p. 278, and Dict. of the Bible, s. v. Canon.)
The following extract from the Bampton Lectures of Mr. Cony beare bears directly ajnn the knowledge of Ifoly Suripture possesved by the members of the Corinthian Church in sulj-apustolle days: "It is quitz evident (Mr. Conybware writes) that it (i.e. the first E.pistle of Clement) must have been written to a Church, of which n considerable and influential portion of the membera had been Jews, or proselytes to that faith, since it throaghout supposes the moat Old Testenanan andance with the Scriptures of the of thestament ; for these, and not the Scriptures of the New, are universally quoted as the written authority for the doctrines it contains. The author indeed very properly refers to the discourses of our blessed Lord as to an authority of equal, and indeed more especial, waight; but he never expressly quotes these from uny particular written gospel ; and although he ulways exactly agrees with thesa evangelical narrative in substance and in sense, yet the verhal diacrepancies will shew that he does not transcrite from them; but, as bishop Pearson has well observed, seems to bave relied on a memory previously familiar with our Lord's worda from the oral communications of the apostles or their disciples " (pp. 55, 56).
The same remarks apply to a considerable extent to other writings of the sub-npostolic age, and of the first three centuries of the Cbristian era, throughout which we observe that a uniform appeal is made to the Scripturea as the unerring rule of faith, and as the foundatlon of the various creeds which were composed within that period.
1II. The next eridence which will be adduced of the actual use of Holy Scripture in the early Church, is derived from the numerous and earnest exhortations which are found in the homilies and other works of tha most celebrated writers to the diligent study of Scripture, from the invitations addressed to the beretics and the heathen to examine the sacred writings for themselvea, and from the incidental notices which their writings afford of the extent to which the Scriptures were read and studied in private, and of the effiects thus produced.

Clement in his epistle, c. 45, exhorts the Corinchians to "look into the Holy Seriptures, which are the true words of tha Holy Ghost." Agnin in the fifty-third chapter he says, "Ye know fuil well the Holy Scriptures, and have thoroughly searched into the oracles of God." Polycarp, in his eplstle to the Philippians, c. 12,

1800 SCRIPTULEE, STUDY OF

writen thua: "I trust ye are well exerciand In the Holy Neriptures, ainl thint nothing is hil from youn." Tatian in his Adlress to $t^{\prime 2}$ (brectis (e, 20) bears witnem to the practiend effect produced nion his own heart and life ly the writings with which he liapienei to meet, "too ohl to be cumpured with the opithions of the Greeks, and too divine to he compared with their errurs." Theophilus (uif Autuly rem, 1. 14) hears similar tenthony to that of 'Jathan to the eflect pronlued in his own mind hy the stuly of the Scriptures, and he urges him friend "to study parefully the proplietical writingo," aswaring him that they will leai him "more eertainly to a way of exchie fromeverinsting punixhments, and to the attainment of the everbsting heosings of Gul." Justin Martyr (Cohort, ud Graceos, c. 35 ) earnently exhorts those to whom he writes "as the one thlug which remained for then to do," that "renouncing the error of their fithers they would read the prophecies of the sacred writers . . . and learn from them that which will give them everlnsting life." Athennguras in his Pletifor the Christians writes thum: "I think that you also cunnot be ignorant of the writing elther of Moses, or of Isiniah nal Jeremiah, nul the other prophets," and mides, " Hut I leave it to you, when you ineet with the bouks themelves, to examine carefully the prophecies contnined in them, that you may, on fitting grounds, defond us from the abuse cast upon us" (c, ix.). In like manner Tertullian (Apol. c. 31) Invites the Roman presidents or mingistrates at Carthage to " look into the words of Coal," and adis that the Chriatians did not conceal their seripitures, and that many accidents brought them kefore those who wers not of their religion. Clement of Alexandria in his Exhortution to the Ileuthen (c. ix.) not only quetes many of those "ten thousand seriptures," which, he snys, he could miluce, hut he midresses them in the following words: "No one will be so impreased by the exhortations of any of the saints as he is by the words of the Loril Ilimself, the lover of man. $\qquad$ Falth will lead you in; experience will tench you; Seripture will train you, for It may, "Come hither, O children; listen to me, and I will teach you the fear of the Lard." And, again, In the Stromateis (i. 7), (lyement writes as follows: "Wherefore alse the Script ures were trannlated Into the language of the Greeks in order that they might never be able to allege the excuse of ignorance, inasmuch as they are able to hear also what we lase in our hands if they only wish." Soalso Tertullian (ad Uxorem, il. 6 ), when setting forth the dangers arising from marriagen between Christinns nadi ilolaters, asks, " Whi fomenta filei de Scripturarum interlectione?" where he seams to assume na a matter of course that such realing would he cominon with those of the sume fnith. Other passages might be addueal from the anme writer in proof of the jurevalent use of 1 loly Scripture amongst Christinns, and of the appenls made to it in their apologetienl and controversinl works in terms which imply its acceswibility to all. In like us real the Seripetures of the Ohl Testament. ... Let us also real the scriptures of the New Testament, the words the apostles; and having rend them, let it be ous are that they be written in the table of our liearts." And ngain (in lib. Jerem. Hom, xx.) he anys that "though at the very time of reming them (the Soripuren) there be no seasitle alvantage, yet in the end they wil) be found pratitabio for strongtheolng virtuous diaponithons and wenkening the hatit. of rice." Aus, once more, he exhorts his hearers to " come inily to the wells of the Striptures, the waters of the Hnly spirit, nal there draw, and carry hume a full vessel " (in Gen. llom, x.). In the letter adidrensed by Thmonas, bishup of Alexandrin, about the close of the Srd century, to Luchanns, the chief ehamberbain of the omperar (probiatily DionJetian), we tial tome interesting lifections given concerning the duties of the person who may he entrustell by the emperor with the custaily uf his lifraty, Amongst thene we find a direction to "hand the livine scriptures which I'foleniy Ihiladelphus enused to be tramslated into our langrage: and wonetimes, too, the gonjel and the apostle will be landed for their lisine oracles" (c, 7). The fullowing advice is mao gives to Lucinnus himalf: "l.et mo day pass by without rading some portion of the narred Scriptures" (c. 9 ; in Dacheril Spirile gium, iii, 12. 297-299). Cyprian (de S'p ctaculis, e. 10) says: " let the faithiul Christian devote himself to the sacred Seripturos, and there he shail find worthy exhibitious for his faith." Origen urges his hearers not only to henr the surijinues read in the church, but also to exercise themselves in the realing of the same in their houses, and to meditate thereon day and night (ct. Hom. in Levit. ix. tom. vi. pp. 164, 165, ed. Wirce. burgi, 1783 ; cf. Hom, la Gen. x. tom. v. h, 229 ; Hom, in Ex. xii. tom. v. P1. 465, 466). St. Augustine, writing to l'robn ( $E_{j}$, c, xxxil. it. p. 300. Ant. 1700 ), exhorts her specially to read the writings of the apostles, assuring her that by then she will be facited to acquaint herself with the jrophets, whose testimonies the ninstles used.

The earnest exhertations of St. Chrysostom, addressed to uld chasses of his hearers, to devote themselves to the diligent study of holy Scripture, are familiar to all who are acquainted with his writings. Such exhortations are found, e.f. in his twenty-first homily on Genesis, and in his thirty-second and forty-first hemilies on St. John, and also in the homilies of St. Basil, as e.g. id those on Pss, xxviii. and lix. A more pa marknble jassage occurs in the third of Chryч(1st)m's sermoas on Lazarus, a phesnge which $^{2}$ leserves special conslderation in condexion with the preseat subject, not only by reasoo of the enrnest exhortations of the preacher to the private study of holy Scripture, but slso ${ }^{\text {os }}$ benring directly on the interesting and impoostant inquiry respecting the extent to which copies of the Bible were multiplied and oircatated in the th century. In the beginning of that aermon, Chrysostom assigns as one reason why he did net complete his examination of the parable of Lazarus in one day, his desire that the subject of his discourse might take deejer ront in the minds of his hearers by centinuous meditation on what he had said. He then goes on to assign as the reason why he frequentis anomoter the subject of his discourse several days before its delivery, his desire that during the inter vening days his hearers should take the book into their hands, and by a careful exaruination of the whol might beeol afterwaris 18.19).
hearers, and censo to exh of the $1 H_{0}$ Invaliality of that the stue only upon the worlif, an were engrows Ho procereds Seriptures for then the silve sion, amongst sight of the $b$ into sin. It exhortations 0 Old Tentamen earriently exho the stripture understand m recuurse, when inatructed th asmures them gence to whic played, if man the troths w would Itimself first three sect attention.
Another pass of copies of the in Chrysostem' elitions the el dealy with the of the Bible gre procuring copie: that this excus dees not attach poes, lut obsesv they enonot jur themselves, they et the continual acquainted wit Once more, in 1 John, Chrysoston for the fineness 0 of the Suriptures of the characters, And, as illustrati may be made to e Genesis, in whic ssered books ( $\tau$ à to the entire coll by Chrysostom) siter menls, we derive profit, and seul.
More eapeciall early church urge atudy of Holy Scri Gregory Nazianz before they well tures, had the vai qualified for the (Orut, i, dic Fupu). tise de Sacerdotio, stuly of $\mathrm{H}_{0} \mathrm{l} y \mathrm{Se}$ observes that, as gh men, the word of of the whole of the perieron; or nection, they might beeonie lietter irepred fir what was afterwarity to bee sild (I. Ih. eion, ell. I'arls, $1 \times 19$ 14:19). Chrysustum priceeiv to exhurt his, henrers, and to ansure them that he will never cenase to exhort them, to the renstant reaning of the lloly seripturev, anif to exprowe the tuvalidity of the excures of thoue whin alloged only aphn persums who hat retlred from the work, and dill not appertuin to those whe were engrossell by lts dally cares naml nuxietiex. Ile proceeds to exhort his hearers to proueure the them the alvantages accruing tron, their proses.
sion, ammongest which he alle sight of the books, makes nallugers lese prot even the the into sin. It is important to theserve that the exhortations of Clitysunstimm lanve referenence to the Old Testament ns well ns to the Xew ; that he eerruestly exhorty his hearrers to continue to rend the scriptures, even thaugh they might not mersmank much which they remilf to have recourse, when needfinl, to thewe who were better lnatructed than Inatructed than themselves; nui, finally, he annures them that when the zual unil the dilligillee to which he encournges them are displayed, if man should be unabide to teach them the truths which they desired to learu, God would llimself revent then. The whole of the first three sections of this sermun deserve special sttention. Anut her passage bening upun the multiphicity of eqpies of the Bihle in the the century is frumid in Chry sostom's tenth honily (recerling to some elitions the eleventh) on st. John, where he deall with the excuse for neglecting the study of the Bible grounded on the allegeld difficulty of procuring coples. As regaris the rich, he says that this excuse is altogether rilliculons, Io does not attach much weight to it ay regards the fonr, but observes that if any are so poor that they cannot purchase copies of the Scriptures for thenselves, they might neverthelesss, by renson of the continual public reading of theny, beome ol the continual public reading of then, beome Once more, in his thlity whesecond homity on St. John, Clirysostem reproves these whe cared only for the fineness of the parchument on which copies of the Seriptures were written, or tir the beanty of the chnracters, and who neglected the contents. And, as illuxtrating his own practice, reference may be made to a passage in his tenth homily on Generis, in which he says that by taking the to the entire collection of the berks of Scripture by Chrysostom) into our hanild, both before and atter mealls, we shall be able, when nt heme, to derive profit, and to afford epiritual food to the soul.
More especially the great writers of the ently chureh urged the necessity of the diligeot ${ }^{n}$ nudy of Holy Scripture on the part of the clergy. Gregny Nazianzen complains of thnse who, before they well knew how to rend the Scripqualified for the governntent of the church tise de Stacerdotio, earnestly entoreces the diligent atuly of Holy Scripture upon the clergy. He observes that, as epiritual physic for the souls of men, the word of God was instead of ererything that wae usel in the cure of hollly distempers (iib. it. c, 3), and therefore that it wiss necessary that the ministern of (iond should be very diligryut In mulying the Scripturen, that the woril of Christ might dwall in them rilchly (i), $e_{0}+t$ ). sit. Jerome in like manner mays that a aermon shmald. be seisanell well with Seripture: " "Sermen presily. teri Serijpurarum lectione conditus sit " $E$ ph, il. sarplus lege ; Imme nunquan de manilimes tuis sncra lectio depmanatur" (ul Aipot. de lita Cleri"ounc, 1. 1. 16). si, at a later promion, the its twenty-fith eamon, that the clergy shmull be Gegury the Grant, writing to Augnstine nfter he hat been mall "archbibhop of the E.nglish "wall" as Berele sily, assumes that he is Paul's episth in hely writ, and particularly St. vours to epistis to Timothy, wherein he enileavolurs to instruct him how he shouly behave himeelf in p. 4t, edt, Gileen). house of Giod" (Belte, Levt. Ihist.

At the designation of Eraclius by St. Augnstine, as his cullengue of that disecharge of sonne of his responsibibilities, aud his successor in the epliseopate, he reminded the clergy and laity of Hiplo that it hall been ngreel between them than that no one should int rude ulou hime during five days of the week, in order that he might discharge that duty in the study if Ioly Seripture which hat been assignel to him in two councils of Numidia und C'arthage; and he exjresses his resolution for the remuinder of his days, so far as Eraclins wonld "kindly give him leave," to ierote himsonl) the stuly of the sacred Scrip. turos if tur oxiii. vol. 11. pp. 408, 409, Clan i.).
The fiollowing references throw some light upnn the males and observances of thase who adopted the monastic life. In St. Augustine's rules for the ohservance of the nuns helonging to a monastery in which his sister hal been prineress, he says that from the time of their coming to tille until that of their rising from it, they should listen to whatever was read to them in comre, and that, whilst their mouths were exercised in recelving food, their ears should be occupied in receiving the word of God (Letter ecxi. vol. ii. 1,396 , Clark's ed.). Cassian suys, respecting the munks of Egypt, that their manual labour in their respective cells wha eo conducted that thair neditation on the Psalms and other portions of Seriptare was never intermitted (de Instit. Coenob. lib. ilii. c. 2). St. Jerome nlso says of the Egyptian monks: "Post horam t:onam in cemmune concurritur; Psalmi resonant, Scripturae resonant ex more "; (Ep. xxii. ad Eustoch.). The same writer says also that they daily learned some portion of holy Scripture (ib). Belle says, concerning his own manner of life in the monastery of Weremouth, "I wholly, applied myself to the study of Scripture."
IV. The next evidence which shall be adduced of the actual use which was made of Holy Scripture in the early Church ls derived from the oxtent to which it was either conmitted to memory as a distinct exercise, or, as a result of continunus reading and meditation, became faniliar to the mind both of public teachers and also of private indiriduals.
Eusebius says that Origen's father trained him from his ehildhood in the Scriptures, appointing him to repeat some passages every day (Hist. Eucles, vi. 2). Sonerates also says that Eusebius of Emesa had studied the Holy Scrij,lures from his infaney and was then taught humau learning (Hist. Eecles. ii. 8) ${ }^{\text {b }}$, and Sozomen, who bears the same testimony, says that this was done "accurding to the custom of his country" (Hist. Eccles. iii. 6). The same writer shys that Mareus the heretic was expert in the Scriptures (ri. 29), and Palladius says that he could repeat all the Old and New Testament without book (Histor. Latusiac. c. xxi. quoted by Biogham, Antiq. iv. p. 176). Gregory Nyssen remarks, in his life of his sister Macrina, that in her infancy she was taught the easy portions of Scrijuture that were most suitable to her age. Sozemen says of Julian the Apostate (Hist. Eccles. v. 2) that " he had been brought up in the knowledge of the Holy Seriptures under the guidance of priests and bishops." The same writer says of Mark, one of the monks of Scetis, that " he committed the sacred Scriptures to memory" (ib. vi. 29). St. Jerome says that the young virgins whom Paula had collected out of diflerent provinces were obliged to learn the Psalms and some portion of Scripture every day. ${ }^{\circ}$ Augustine ( $d e$ Doct. Christ. ii ix.) suys that the first rule in the study of Holy Seripture is "to read them so as to commit them to inemory," though be qualifies this direction by the words which follow, "or at least so as not to remain wholly ignorant of them." He adds: "In this matter memory counts for a great deal; but if the memory be defective, no rules can supply the want."
He refers moreover to the case of those with whom the Holy Suriptures had been so exclusively their text-book that when they met with other and more commonly used forms of speech than those to which they had been accustomed in their Latin Bibles, they were "surprised at them, and thought them less pure Latin than those which they had learnt from Scripture" (De Doct. Christ. ii. 15).

Thus, e.g. in his preface to his work on Christinn Doctrine, St. Augustine refers to the case of the Egyptian monk Antony, who, though unable to read himself, "is snid to bave committed the Scriptures to menory through hearing them read by others, and by dint of wise meditation to have arrived at a thorough understanding of them" (Works, vol. ix. p. 2. Edinburgh, 1873). Gregory the Giest, when chiding the abbat Theodore for neglecting to read some of the words of his Saviour daily, mentious the case of Servulus, a palsied man at Rome, whe purchased a copy of the Scriptures, and, though nable to read, learned the Holy Seripture through hearing it constantly read to him by the religlous men whom he entertained (Hom. xv. in Evangel. Quoted by Bingham, iv. p. 179). Eusebius of Caesnrea mentions the ense of a blind man who could repeat any part of the Bible, and some-b Valealus, in his notes on the second book of Socrates Ecclesiastical Ifistory, says that "it is well known that the boys of Edeasa got by beart the books of Sucred Scripture, according to the uage of their ancestors."
c" Nec ilcebat culquam sororum tgnorere psaimos, et uon de Scripturis quotidie allquid diecers." (Epitaph. Panlue Opp. tom. 1. p. 84. 1513.)
times supplied the place of a reader in the chureh ( De Martyr. Paluestin. c. xiil. ib.). Socrates makes incidental mention of one Pambos, an illiterate man, who went to some one who conld read for the purpose of being taught a l'sahn (Ilist. Eccl. iv. 23). The same writer says of Didymus, who lost his sight at a rery early age, that his acquaintance with the divine oracles, as contained both in the Old and New Testameat, was so perfect that be composed several treatises in exposition of them (ib. iv. 25), and of the Emperor Theedosius Junior, A.v. 422, that by his early training "he learnt the Holy Script"res by heart," and that he was "a more indefntigable collector of the sacred books thau even l'tolemy Philadelphus had formerly been" (ib. vii. 22).

Jerome (Ad Gaudentitm de Pacatulae Infantulae Educatione, i. pp. 45, 1515) advises that when seven years old Pacatula should learn by heart the Psalms, aud should then proceed to mnke the books of Solomon, the gospels, the Apostles, and the Prophets the treasure of her heart. Again, when writing to Laeta coneerning the education of her daughter (i. p. 26), he alvises that at a tender age she should be imbued with the sweet Psalms. He prescribes in the following words the order in which he recommends that the Scriptures should be studied and committed to memory: "Diseat primo Psalte rium: hic se canticis avocet : et in Proverbiis Solomonis erudiatur ad vitam. In Eeclesinste consuescat quae mundi sunt calcare. In Job virtutis et patientiae exsmpla sectetur. Ad Evangelia transeat, nunquam ea positura de manibus. Apostolorum Acta et Epistolas, tota cordis imbibat voluntate. Cumque peetoris sui cellarium his opibus locupletaverit, mandet memoriae Prophetns, Pentateuehum, et Regum et Paraliponsuon libros, Esdrae quoque et Hester volumina. Ad ultimum, sine pericule discat Canticum Canticorum, ne si in exurdie legerit, sub carnalibus verbis spiritualium nnptiarum epithalamium non intelligens, rulneretur. Cavent omuia Apocrypha (ib. p. 27). So ngain (Ad Demetriadem de Virginitate serrandê, i. p. 31) Jerome advises Demetriades thus: "Statue quot horis sanctam Scripturam ediscere debeas; quanto tempore legere, uon ad laborem, sed ad delectationem et instructionem animae."
Again (Vita Hilar. c. 7) St. Jerome says of Hilarion, a monk of Palestine, "Scripturas sanetas memoriter tenens, post orationem et psalnos, quasi Deo praesente, recitabat."
V. The importance which was attached to the public reading of Holy Scripture in the religious assemblies of the early Christians is abundantly estnblished. [Epistle ; Gospel ; Laction ; Pbo. PIIECY.]

But besides the public reading of the Seriptures in their assemblies and the earnest exhertations with which the writings of the early Christians sbound to the diligent study of the same in private, it appenrs to have been a custom adopted in some parts at least, to have copies of the Seriptures in the vernncular tongue placed in convenient parts of the churches so that there who frequented them might have opportunity of resdiog them for themselves either before or after the public services. The folluwing linel written by Paulinus upon the wall of the chureh of Nola be cnstom:
"Si quem a Hic poter VI. The of the use Church is de the heathen the Scriptur attnched to which wns surrentered Amougst citel in proo ture in the e to the letter gostom when Theodoret to In the forme Chiysustom tried, but can and guncled The Holy B expound to examples of have beell in they did not r passed with trials" (Soz. I of Theodoret 444, he speaks examples cont who are calum when cast in when perseeut the Saviour enemies of dece vi. pp. 25, 26 ;

As a furthe mside of Holy ference may be the 'Lives of Jarrow' nppen effect that on t Jad. 12, A.D. 6 together in the withont slecp ethers remained his depart ure ; Scripiture from every evening, the whole night Works, iv. 385 ;

SCHOLL.

SCRUTINIU

SCULPTURI
rence of' car'ved r worship inherite Jewish chureh w entirely to forbid sculpture to the se tiau statues, eithe the very rarest of half a dozen exam to shew that the [^145]the church ). Socratea Pambos, an e who conld ;ht a Prsim iter says of ry early age, e oracles, as $\checkmark$ Testament, eral trentsises and of the +22, that by Hely Scripa more indeks thau even ly been" (ib.

atulae Infan-

 advises that uld learn by n proceed to gespels, the easure of her ta concerning p. 26), he adld be imlued scribes in the ich he recomse studied and primo Psaltein Proverbiis In Eeclesiaste are. In Jeb, lectetur. Ad pesitura da Epistolas, tota le pectoris sui $t$, mandet men , et Regum te quoque et sine periculo si in esurdio spiritualium telligens, rulbha (ib. p. 27). Virginitate ser: Demetriades ma Scripturam legere, non ad : instructionem seripturas sancnem et psalmos,attached to the in the religious $s$ is aboudantly Lection ; Pro-og of the Scrip. earnest exhorss of the early nt study of the re been a custom, to have copies of ar tengue placed des so that these re opportunity of either before or following linea all of the church of Nola bear witness to the existence of this custom :

Si quem sancta tenet meditanid in lege voluntas;  Hic potertt residens sacris intend(re libris." d

VI. The last evidence which will be alduced ef the use of Holy Scriptare made in the early Church is derived from the eagerness with which the heathen persecutora searched tor copies of the Scriptures, the importauce which the owners attached to their possession, uud the infamy which was incurred by those who voluntarily surreudered them. [Traditor.]

Amongst the many passages which might be cited in proof of the practical use of Holy scripture in the early Church reference may be made to the letter of Innocent bishop of Rome to Chrysostom when expelled from his bishopric, and of Theodoret to Lioscorus bishop of Alexnudria. In the formacr of these letters Innocent reminds Chrysostom that "a good man may be sorely tried, but eanoot be overcome, for he is preserved and ganided by the truths of Holy scripture.
The Holy Bible," he continues, "which we The Holy Bible," he continues, "which we expound to fhe people, allirds abundant examples of the affictions to which the saints have beeu invariably subjected, and shews that they did net receive their crowns till they had passed with patience through the severest trials" (Soz. IIst. Eccles. viil. 26). In the letter of Theodoret to Dioscerus, written about A.D 444, he speaks of the great comfort which the examples contained in Scripture afford to those whe are calumiated, and cites the case of Joseph whea cast into prison by Potiphar, of David when persecuted by Saul, and lastly of our Lord the Saviour llimself when accused by His eaemies of deceiving the people (Baronii Annales, vi. pp. 25,$26 ; 1685$ ).

As a further illustratien of the practical uge made of Holy Scriptare in times of sorrew, reference may be made to an incilent recorded in the 'Lives of the Abbats of Weremouth and Jarrow' appended to the works of Bede, to the effect that on the night on which Benedict ded, Jan. 12, A.D. 689, some of the brethren met together in the church and passed the night without slecp in praying and singing, whilst ethers remained in the side ehambera awaiting his departure; and it is alded, "a portion of Scripture from the Gospels, appointed to be read every evening, was recited by a priest daring the whole night to relieve their sorrew" (Bede, Works, iv. 385 ; ed. Giles).
[C. J. E.]

SCROLL. [VoLume.]

SCRUTINIUM. [Missa, p. 1203.]

SCULPTURE, OHRISTIAN. The abherrence of carved representations of the objects of Worship inherited by the Christian from the Jewish church was at first so grent as almost entirely to forbid the application entirely to forbid the application of the art of tian statues, either in of religion. Early Christhe very rarest eccurren marble or bronze, are of the very rarest occurrence. Hardly more than to shew that the dozen can be reckoned-enough to shew that the use of the plastic art was not

[^146]whelly interdicted, but, at the same time, that Its use was regarded with grave suspicion and dislike. If we could accept the authenticity of the stery relnted by Eusebios that a statue of our Lord was erected at Paneas by the woman diseased with the issue of blood [Jescs Curist, Reprisentations, p. 877], we should have the earliest possible example of sculpture devoted to Christinnity. The tale, howerer, is totally unworthy of credence. The statuesof Christ and other scriptaral personages with which Alexander Severus furnishe i his "lazarium" have no claim to belogg to the demaia of Christian art. The very few early Christim statues that are known to exist exhibit in their form and technical trentinent the genius of late Roman art, and prosisess no individual characteristics. As Lible remarks (Ilist. of Scul, $t$. i. 335), " the novelty of the subject was nut yet powerful enough to evake new forms or new expressions."
The only early Christian statues we can enumerate are those of the Good shepherd, of St. Peter, nad that of St. Hippolytus. D'Agincourt's researches in Italy during fifty years discovered no other well-authenticated example. For seven or eight conturies the art of sculpture was extinct, except in works in relief on sarcophagi and ivories.

I. Statues.

(1) Among the enrliest and best of these is $n$ small marble statnette of the Good Shepherd, formerly in the Vatienn Library, now in the Lateran Museum. "It is a pleasing illyllic figure, with artistic qualities that remind one of the works of a better peried "(Appell, Mon. of is fastened rion Art, p. 4). The tunic drawn up is fastened round the waist, and the shepherd's the recovered sheep he fondly holds the legs of by both hands. The antique grace it breathes, and the absence of any distinctive marks, have caased its Christian origin to be somewhat needlessly questioned. The lega have been partly restored (Appell; $u$.s.; West wood, Eiriy Christian Sulpture, p. 50, apud Parker, Archuce'eys of Lieme, "Tombs"' Perkins, Tuscan Sculi, ture, i. p. xiiii.). '[SHEPILERD, THE Good,
p. 1893.$]$ Sul

The Lateran Museum coitains another marble statuette of the Geod Shepherl, much inferior in execution, which is stiff and rude. The shepwerd is young and beardless; he holds the lanib with his right hand on his shoulder, and the "pedum" with his left (Westwood, u. s.; Perret, Catacombes, iv. 4). There is also one of inferior workmanship in the Kircherian Muscum (Perkins, u. s. I. xxxix.); and one is mentioned nt the end of the th century in the collection of the Duke of Medina Coeli at Seville.
(2) St. Pcter.-By far the mest important early Christian statue as a work of art is the famous bronze figure of St. Peter in the Vatican basiliea. It may probably be placed, as it is by Dr. Appell, Perkins, and Liibke, in the 5th century. Mr. J. H. Parker, however, who always regants early dates with suspicion, regards it as "a fine werk of the 13th century." It is a close imitation of the ancient Roman portrait statues, and, according to Lubke (u. s. i. 337), "disphays a care and accuraey of technical akill nstouishing in the 5th century," but a cemplete nbsence of originality "we have in every line of the laberious imitation of antique senatorial figures." The figure is in Roman costume, with the right foot extended to receive the kisses of the faithful; the right hand is extenled in blessing, and he holds the keys in the left. The marble chair in which it is seated is of the 15 th century. Aecording to one tralition, leo I. melted down the ancient statue of Jupiter Capitolinus and recast it in this form ; others hold, with less probability, that it is the old statue with a new heal and hands. The celebrated statue of St. Peter which Leo the Ismurian threatened to destroy in the time of Gregory II. (726-730), was probably that preserved in the crypt of St. Peter's, the body of wheh is antique, the head being an addition of the 13 th century.

1864 SCULPTURE, CHRISTIAN

The royal cabinet at Berlin once contained a small standing bronze statuette of St Peter, said to have been found in the eatacombs. It seems to have been taken by Napoleon I. to Paris, and to have never returned. It is described as being of good style, with drapery of artistic merit. The apostle was clad in the tunic and toga, holding the labarum in the left hand, and giving the benedietion with the right. The bead displayed the broal fentures, the short, thick beard and curling hair characteristic of St. Peter (Bartoli. Antiche Lucerne, part iii. pl. 27 ; Munter, Sinnbilder, ii. '21).
(3) St. Hippolyins.-This is a marble sitting statue, much restored, especially in the upper portions of the figure. It was formerly in the Vatican I.ibrary, but is now in the Lateran Nuseum. I he tigure is seated in a dignified attitude in a marbie eathedra, on which is inscribed the canon Paschulis; and on the other sile a list of Hippolytus's writings. It is vested in the philosophie pallium. The right elbow rests on a book held in the left hand, and the right hand is raised to the breast. The date is uncertain, but it is probably not later than the 6th century. Mr . Perkins regards it as devoid of character, while it is prunounced by Winckelmann and other nuthorities to be "the best known, example of early Christian sculpture" (Westwood, u. s. p. 37 ; Perret, v. pl. i. ; Bunsen, Hippolytus, i. frontispiece; Münter, Sinnbilder, ii. 13; D'Agincourt, Sculpt. pl. iii. No. 1).

II. Sarcophagi.

The chief field for the exercise of the art of sculpture in the early Christian church was furnished by the arrophagi, in which the remains of its nore wealthy members were deposited. The number of these is very large, especially in Rome, where very many have been discovered in the catacombs and other places of early Christian burial. Examples are also to be found at Ravenna, Milan, and other cities of Italy, as well as in the south of Frince, where a native sehool of Christian sculpture, derived from Italy, evidently flourished. There are also a few in Spain. The chief examples in Rome are now collceted in the Lateran Misseum, where a very interesting series of examples of Christian aculpture are brought under the eye at onct, and may be studied and compared at leisure. The most important of these, as well as the other principal sareophagl now existing in Rome, have been photegraphed at the cust of Mr. J. H. Parker, and their designs have been thus made accessible to the student at home.

The word "sarcophagus," as well as the mode of burial, was burrowed by the early Christians from henthenism, anl passed into the , nomenclature of the church. Augustine writes: "Arca in qua mortuus ponitur, quol omnes jam баркофd́yov vocant" (De Civit. Dei, xviii. 5). The word is al*o found in an early epitaph given by De Rossi, "in hoc sarcefago conditur" (Inser. Christ. Rom. ii. 530).

Nowhere is the rapid decline of art more recognisable than in the sarcophagi. The bssreliefs, which so larishly adorn their sides, manifest a lamentable deterioration of style. The compesitions are erowded and ill-balanced; the figures are usually ill-drawn, with, short, thick bodies and large heads, and stiff draperies, and a general absence of dignity or grace. The compositions are rather architectural and pictorial than sculptural or statuesque. The figures oceupy one plane, unralieved by any depth of backgrounds. The majority of them are seen in front view, instead of the profile, which eharaeterises the Grecian friezes. But with this decided deterioration $\mathrm{ci}^{i}$ style, it is evident that the mole of decoration and its general spirit are directly derived from pagan art, and are in ${ }^{*}$ sense the natural development of the Christian mind. The pose of the figures, their attitudes, the drapery, the types of the heals are inherited fron ancient plastic works. The inferiority is due to the want of skill in the sculptors empioyed, not to the introduction of new forms. As a rule the earliest works are tha best, and conform most elosely to the jagan type. The later we descend, anl the mars unmistakable the Christian character of the seulpture, the greater is its inferiority as a work of art. Sarcophagi bearing a distidetlv Christian eharacter seareely appear before the 4 th century. Le Blant (Surcoph. Chrétiens d'Arles, pp. iii. iv.) speaks of the exceeding rarity of earlier examples. He refers to one bearing the date A.D. 273, and regarls as belonging to the same primitive type, that of Livia Primitiva, transported from Rome to the Louvre, and one at La Gayole (pl. xxxiv.), but is able to mertion no others; and though an earlier clate has been confidently aftirined for some others, the most trustworthy authorities agree that there are no well-authenticaied examples of Christian sarcophagi which can be assigued to the 2 nil century and hardly any to the 3 rd .
'fhere is abundant evidence that pagan sarcophagi were used with little seruple fur the burial of Christians-" Profanis tunulis Christinni non rare quasi propriis usi sunt " (Mabilloa, Iter Ital. § $10, \mathrm{p} .81)$. The use of the sarcophagus was a mark of wealth, and the desire not to shew any inferiority to their neighboars, which is nowhere more poweriul than in funeral rites, wonld lead Christians of means and position to adopt the mode of the disposal of their dead which was appropriate to their rank, without much regard to the character of the sculptures which decorated their last restiag. place. If there hal been Christian sarcophagus* makers they would doubtless have employed them by preference; but in the absence of artists of their own faith, they would have recourse to sculptors of the old religion, owly has written a 1824) to establis sarcophagus, bu it was originally at Aix la Chapel magne was tirs Proserpine is car the employment burial. The bea work overrode al sarcophagus bea subject is one $f_{1}$ and Marcellinus, the $0 x$ and ass st consular date A.I nificeut sareophas of ti, e Emperor C Vatican, probably with the exception Constaatia, is ent bols. It is forme porphyry, highly corered with group back striking down csptives before the the air, without On the front and b: busts of Constantir repose lions, wreat pronounces it to be mation in a geod Dr. Braan justly execution of indivi waut of meaning as there being a want ception " (Aringhi, Ciampiai, iii. 28; P
The sister sarco 324), sculptured lili a solid bloek of pe in any defiaite Chri earliest example of $t$ Christian sarcophag rated. It is a taste groups of clamsy-wi or treading them out moch iaferior in styl vault of the sepulel was found), with ar The tigures y depth of are seen in ieh charaewith this is evident its general ,an art, and nent of the gures, their $f$ the heals vorks. The kill in the roduction of orks are the the pngaa the more cter of the ty as a work tlv Christian 4th century. , pp. iii. iv.) of earlier ng the date to the snme ditiva, trasad one nt la mextion no te has been rs, the most there are no Thristian sate 2 nd century

it pagan sst-

 cuple for the munulis Christ" (Mabillon, 8 of the sarand the desire ir neighbours, han in tuneral means and 1e disposal of to their rank, aracter of the - last restiag1 sareophngus* ave employed he absence of $y$ wonld have religion, oulytaking eare to avoid those seenes which had an immoral tendency, and by preference selectiag pastoral or vintage scenes, or other subjects into which a symbilical meaning could be sasily read. A sarcophagus, diseovered in the cemetery of St. Agries, once eontaiaing the body of a Christian virgin, and bearing the inscription "Aurelia Agapetilla, sneilla Dei," is ornamented with figures of Bacehus and aaked Amorini, side by side with "orantes" (Boldetti, Osservaz. 466). Another in the Vatican, figured by Cancellieri, exhibits Bacehamalian scenes, and a Christian inseription. One in the grounds of the Villa Medici on the Pincian is mentioned by Martigny, on which both Cupid and Psyche and Jonah appear. There is a very vemarkable example of the 4 th century at Tortona figured by Mabillon (It. Ital. Mus.. It. i. 223), bearing the thoroughly pagan subjeets of Leda and the Swan, Phaeton, Castor and Pollux, and boys looking on at a cockfight, together with the neutral subjects of the Vintage, and the Good Shepherd. Bottazzi, a canon of Tortona, hss written a lengthy disquisition (Tortoma, 1824) to establish the Christian character of this sareophagus, but it hardly admits a donbt that it was originally a pagan work. The surophagus at Aix la Chapelle, in which the bory of Charlemagne was tirst laid, on whi : hi: Rape of Proserpine is earved, is a well. A xample of the employment of a pagan tra. if Christinn burial. The beauty and suniptuousness of the work overrode all scruples. The earliest dated sareophagus bearing an undoubted Christian subject is one from the cemetery of SS. Peter and Mareellinns, presentiag the Nativity, with the $o x$ and ass stnadiag by the cratch, with the consular date A.D. 343 (Nativiry). The magnificent sarcophagus of St. Helena, the mother of the Emperor Coastantine (d. 328), now in the Vatican, probably the largest ever fashioned with the exception of that of her graaldanghter Constantia, is entirely devoid of Christian symbols. It is formed of one enormous block of red porphyry, highly polished, the face of which is corered with groups of armed warriors on horseback strikiag down their enemies, or driving their csptives before them, all, as it were, tloating in the air, without any indication of the ground. 0 a the front and back int the upper angles are the busts of Constantine and Helena, and on the lid repose lions, wrenths, and winged gemi. repose hions, wrenths, and winged gemi. Lïbke prououaees it to be "full of expression and animation in a good antique style" (i. 338); but Dr. Brnun justly remarks that "the tolerable execution of individual parts only renders its want of meaning as a whole still more striking, thers being a want of unity of design and eoneqption" (Aringhi, ii. 41 ; Bottari, iii. pl. 196 ; Ciampini, iii. 28 ; Parker, $T o m / s$, pl. xii.).
The sister sarcophagus of St. Constantia (d. 324), senlptured like the last-mentioned out of a solid bloek of porphyry, is equally wanting in any definite Christian symbolism. It is the earliest example of the vintage scenes with which Christ:an sarcophagi were so frequently decorated. It is a tasteless work, exhibiting heavy groups of clumsy-winged genii gathering grapes or treading them out (of the same character, but much inferior in style to the seenes on the mosaic vault of the sepulchral chapel where the tomb was found), with arabesque festoons, peacocks, and rams at the angles, all laboriously chiselled ont of the unaccommodating matorial (Aringhi, ii. 157; Bottari, iii. 132 ; Ciampini, iii. 31). A sarcophagus of much less sumptuous character but of fin more graceful design, in the portico of St. Lorenzo, shews similar scenes depieted with considerable life. Small winged genii gather the grapes from the vines in baskets; a goat laden with panniers earries them ; one of the genii rides an ass; a coek pecks at a lizard, &e (Bottari, iii. 19 ; Agincourt, Seulpt. vi. 1). A very fine example from St. Sebastiano, eonsidered to be of the 4th century, stands in th hall of the Lateran Museum. Here, also, , enii are gatheriag and pressing grapes; one rides a goat; another carries a kid. In the centre and either end of the fice stands the Good Shephe: 1 (Garrueci, Monura. del Mus. Lat. tav. xlix. fig. 1-4). Corresponling scenes from the olive harvest are with local propriety carved on a sarcophagus in the museum nt Arles. Genii unwinged, naked or lightly elad, some on ladders, piek or carry the fruit to the oil-press (Millin, Vuyage, &e, pl. 61, ao. 3 ; Appell, p. 37).
Pastoral scenes are equally abundant, and the with Shepherd oeeurs constantly, sometimes With, sometimes without subjeets from Iloly tograph 2924) por the Lateran Museum (phoof of our Lord and Ilis apostles with unusnal distinctness. The Good Shepherd with His "pedum," His right hand on the heal of a sheep, st inds in the centre, and is repeated with a group of two or three sheep at either end of the face. Between stand the apostles, six on either side, each with a sheep at his feet. Professor Westwood, in the above-quoted essay, supplies a large number of references to pastoral scenes represented on Christian sareophagi (p. 43).
Many sarcophagi bear in the ceutre of their face, and sometimes also at the end.. what are known as imagines. Clipeatar, i. e. the busts of the departed, or in some eases standiag figures (e, g. that of Probins and Faltonia, Bottari, 17), contained in a disk or shell, or surrounded with a wreath, sometimes borne by winged genii. In some cases these busts are unfinished, proving that the sareophagi were ordinarily sold in an incomplete state, le.vag the busts to be carred into the likenesses of the defuact (Le Blant, p. 1t, pi. riii.; Fabretti, Inscr. p. 124; De Rossi, Bulltht. 1865, p. 69; Parker's Photographs, No. 2902). Sometimes the disk bears only the sacred monogram (Bottari, 37). Not a few of the less costly are digtiuguished only by an "imago clipeata," the remaining surface being incised with curve. channels, known as strigils, from their resemblance to the bath instrument of that name. Hardly nay of the sarcophagi have inseriptions. The magnificent tomb of Juaius Bassus is an exception, as is that alr c'y mentioned of Aurelia Agajetilla. 'l'he cust', a of uecoratiag sarcophagi with colours, proved to exist in Syria by Reaan (Descr. de I'/cénici', pp. 415,416), has been shewn by Le Blant to have been sometimes adopted, not only in Jewish catacombs (Garrucei, Cimet. d'Antichi Ebreri, p. 21), but also in those of the Christians (Le Blant, p. 37).

1866 SCULPTURE, CHRISTIAN

One class of sareophagi have as their only on principal subject figures of our Lord and 11 is apostles. Reference has already been made to that in the Lateran Museum, in whieh the whole series appear in the character of shepherds. One of the most remarkable of tias elasi, perhaps the very finest of the loman sarcophagi, is that of sentation is found in sarcophagi out of Rome. The sureophagus of Titus Gorgonius in the erypt of the cathedral of Ancona represents Christ standiag on a mount, with a male and female figure embracing His feet. Near Him stand St. Paul and a diseiple with a jewelled cross. Four disciples stand under arches on either side. At linveana, where the sarcophagi are of later dste, we tiad our Lord no longer seated but enthroned, and sometimes nimbed ; on one at St. Aןoliinare in Classe, thought by Professor Wentwood to be perhaps not earlier than the 7th century, our Lord, represented as a nimbed youth, is seated between St. I'aul, who with veiled hand receives a roll, and St. Peter, who hears a key and s cross. Both the ajostles approach our Lurd with hasty striles, their garments earried by the wind. On either side two figures offer crowns (Appell, 1, 28). At "St. Maria in porto fuori" our Lord appears also as a b ardless figure enthrened

SCULPTURE, CHRISTLAN

Sarcophagus of Petronins Probns.

Sarcophagns. Church of St. Apollinare in Clwse (Aypell).

Petronius Probus, praetorian praefect, d. 395, in the subterranean church of St. Peter's. The face is divided into compartments by spirally fluted columns supperting arches, in the spandrils of which are birds pecking at baskets of grapes. In the centre compartment our Lord, holding a jewelled cross, stands on a mound from whieh issue the four rivers of Paradise; en either side of Him stand St. Peter and St. Paul in attitudes of reverential attention. Beyond, to the right and left, are two arcies, tach enshrining two apostles. Each end has three arches, with two figures. On the back stand Probus himself and his wife Faltonin hand in hand, with a diseiple at either ed (Bosie, 49, 51, 53; Ariaghi, pp. 281, 283, 285; Dottari, tav. 16-18; 1) Agiocourt, pl. vi. figs. $12-15$; Appell, p. 12). A sarrophagus in the Lateran Museum (photegraph 2909) bears on its face Christ and the apostles, each hearing a roll, under arches alternately round and angular. The same system of reprebetween four apostles, one of whom approaches Him bearing a crown. The diflerence in ehs. racter between these sareophagi and those of earlier date is very marked. Fine examples of this mode of treatment are offered ty the sareophigi of Arles. On one we see Christ sested, His feet on a footsteol, with the apostles sod evangeists seated on either side. Chri.t holls a boek inseribed Dominus Leqgen dat, the other figures held rolls, some opea, some elnsed, those of the evangelists inscribed with their names (Le Blant, p. 7, pl. iv.). On another of remark. able beauty of execution, the central jace bs occupied by a eress surneunted by a chaplet with soldiers below, symboliziag the resurret tion. Sir apostles stand on either side, raising their right hands in token of adoratina. Stars rye seen in the background (ibid. p. 27, pli, xir.) One, divided into six areherl panels, contains tro npostles on either side of Christ, oue preseating a basket of bread, auother fish, beth with velleo nands. The ot able, If not unir psrtments are iadiented respe serpent or drag

The large ma are seulptured sometimes uceu face and ends, sll four sides ar times in two more usually t sometines form one running int sometimes, and rated into eom are tare instan sbove the reli dimiantive prop

We camuet fai frescoe., the lim was confined well as the sma granted him in Each as a rule oae hieratie typ almost equally ments, and are defiaite system seeure symmetry tion. Le Blant number of examp rock with the driak, at one ent Lazarus with the well as thrse from the elonds cubject, in one cas ia the other to gir
The subjoined psrative frequene rarious scriptural the Lateran Mus Bosio ehiefly from based the ene draw examination of th frum liome, Tetter cote, by whom th added. ${ }^{\circ}$

Jonah ..
Moses smitting the
The Appreheusiod or,
The Assautt on Mo The Miracle of the The Ie, llag of the The Miracle at Car The Raising of Laz Peter's Dealal Prei Danel and the Lhen The Paralytic ear Bed ..
The Creation of Eve

- The correspondeace on the sarcophagt aud those in the Ordo Con Roman Breviary, to whi (sircophages di Arlus), Looked. The list tactud Hoers, and Pharaoh, Job dren, Davilt and Goltah of Peter from prison.

SCULPTURE, CHPISTIAN

mands. The otiner two hold rolls. By a remarkable, if not unicuc, arrangement the extreme compartments are ocelpied by Abraham and Dandel, iadicated respectively by the sword nad by the serpent or dragon (isid. pp. 19-21, pl. x.).
The Iarge majority of the Christian sareophagi sre senlptured with scriptural subjects. These sometimes occupy the fate alone, sometimes the all four sides, and there are instances in which sll four sides are carved. The reliefs are sometimes in two tiers, onc above the other, but more usually there is oaly one. The subjects sometimes form a continuous frieze-like series, one ruming into the other without any division; sometimes, and more commonly, they are separated iuto compartments by an arcade. There are rare instanees in which a secondary frieze sbore the reliets bears senlptures in more diminutive propurtions,

We camot fail to remark, as in the cataeomb frescoes, the limited cyele to which the sculptor was confined by ecclesiastical tradition, as well as the small amonnt of liberty that was granted him in depicting the selected subjants. Each as a rule conforms more or less elosely to one hieratic type. The subjects are derived almost equally from the Ohd and New Testaments, and are inixed together without any defiaite system of arrangement, so as best to jecure symmetry and balance in the composition. Le Blant has called attention to the large number of examples in which Moses striking the rock with the Israelites eagerly stooping to driak, at one enl, is balanced by the raising of Lazarus with the adoring sisters at the ot frem the clonds on either side of the issues zubject, in one case to arrest Ahraham's saerifice, ia the otber to give the Law to Moses.
The subjoined tabular list shews the comparative frequency of the oecurrence of the ratious scriptur:l subjects on the sarcophagi of the Lateran Musenm and of those given by Bosis chicfly from the Vatican. The list is based un one drawn up, by Dean Burgon from an exsmination of the Lateran examples (Le'ters from Rome, Letter XX.), corrected by Dr. Northcote, by whom the list from Bosio has been added. ${ }^{*}$ hom approaches therence in chs. gi and those of ine examples of ered by the sar. e Christ beated, the apostles and le. Cbri.t holds $n$ dat, the ather me closed, these ith their names other of remarkcentral place is ad by a chaplet ig the resurfec her sille, raising doration. Stars - p. 27, pl. xir.) els, contains two ,one presenting both with reileo

SCULPTURE, CHRISTLAN
1867

One of the most remarkable of this class is fect of elaborate tomb of Junlus Bassus, praeand execution A.D. 359, whieh "for its style best works of may le regarded as one of the "it sumbiciently espiecially in the treatinent of decline of art, (Appell, p. 10). Its face is decorated with two tiets of seriptural subjents, in divided by columns, the lonts, in compartmeate centre of the upper tier ourer arched. In the betwen two apestior our Lord sits enthroned represented as a borne up by Uranus, canopy of heaven eardend old man with the subjects senlptured extended above him. The of the upper tier-(1) The sacrifieo the left (2) the apprehension of The saerifice of Isaac; Pilate ; (4) Pilate washigg ; (3) Christ before lower tier-(1) washiag his hands. In the friends [OLD T (1) Job visited by his wife and of man ; (3) Christ's triumphal ; (2) the Fall salem; (4) Danjel in thiumphal entry into Jeruand Christ led to prions' den ; (5) l'eter carved genii representing the the tivo ends $\varepsilon$ gaged in operstionsting the Four Seasons, enspandrils of the suitable to each. The on a dimitutive scile tier of pancls contain series of series of carvings in the whole range of'Christian art, and probably maique, indieating in the most anmistakable way the dense entertained by the early church of the unity of the two Testaments and the symbolical meaning of the aets of Moses as a type of our Lord, represented under the figure of the Lamb, In these very intersting and instructive reliefs a lemb holding the rod strikes water from the rock, multipliem the loaves, raises Lazarus, receives the law o. Mount Sinai, and baptizes another lomb. As alrauly stated, the sarcophagus is also remarkable from having on it the epitaph of the person found in it, with the interesting fact that he was praefect of the city at the ting of his death, and that he had only recently been admitted to the clatureh by haptism. "Jun. Bassus, V. C. qui rixit annis xlii men. if in ipsa praefectura nert.., neofitas iit ad [leum VIII. kal. Sept. Eusebio et Ypatio. coss" (Bosio, 45 ; Aringhi, i. 277; Bottari, i. 1 s ; D'Agincourt, v:. 5, 11; Lübke, Hist. of $S u l_{p t}$. i. 310 ; Parker, Tombs, pl. xiii.).
A very fine sarcophagus, supposed to be that of Petronins Probus, consul A.D. 341, formerly the altar of the chapel of St. Lucy at St. Mary Major, vow in the Lateran Musenm, offers one of the rery best examples of this mole $c$ t treatment. The upper row exhibits the raising of

1868 SCULPTURE, CHRISTIAN

Lazarus, Danicl in the lions' den, the law received from the hand of God, the sacrifice of Isaac, and l'ilate washing his hands. A scallopshell in the centre contains two excellent portrait busts. The Divine Hand issuing from the clouds on either sile of the riell shews the usual attention to badance of conupsition (Le Blant, Surcoph. f. xv. ef. pl. vi.). In the lower tier we have the combinel subject of Dloses striking the rack and the apprehension of l'eter (see OLD Testament in Art, p. 14is8), Daniel and the lions, Moses realing the bonk of the covenant, the healing of the blind man, and the miracle of the loaves and fisbes. This last subject is repreaented in a somewhat unusual manaer. Uur Lord stands, and puts His right hand on a loaf and His leit on a basket of fish (Arioghi, i. 423; Bettari, ii. 49 ; Lübke, fir 200 , p. 843 ). The

SCULPTURE, CHRISTIAN

sarcophagus are very differently treated. Each ia carved in low reliet, with a background fill of buildings, including a basilica and a detarhed baptistery, clumsily executed, but of high interest as contemporary representations of architecture. The one represents our Lord predicting 'e'ter's denial; the cock standing on the top of an lonic columu; the other the woman with the issue of blood, and Moses striking the rock. These re!jets are separated by come centuries from the sclmirable sculptures on the front. They are placed by Mr. l'arker in the 8 th century ('osio, 85,87 ; Aringhi, i. 317, 319 ; Appell. p. 20). Another sarcophagus, ot somewhat similar desion, deserves especial notice not only for the eanty of its execution, but as exhibiting seenes arom the Passion which occur very rarely. The front is divided into tive compartments by columns with largest sarcephagus in the Lateran Museum, discovered at St. Yaul's outside the walls, also with tro tiers of subjects, displays in the centre of the upper tier unlinished buats of a husband and wife in a " clypeus" supported by genii. The sulpjects belong to the usual cycle, with the addition of the creation of woman (Old Testament in Art), and the adoration of the Magi (Appell, 16, 17; Northcote, p. 200 , pl. xix. ; Westwood, p. 50).

From Aringhl, 1. 423

A sonewhat diflerent mole of treatment is shewn in a sarcophagus of the 4 th century, discovered at St. Peter's, now in the Lateran Muscum, one of the most simple and excellent of the early Christian tombs. The front is divided by eight columns exquisitely carved with foliage and flowers. In the centre the youthful Christ, supported by Uranus bearing the vault of heaven, stands between two apostles. Others stand on either side, one of whom receives n scroll from the hand of Christ. To the left is the sacrifice of lsaac; to the right Christ before Pilate, who washes his handa. The whole are most beautifully designed and sculptured in high relief. The two ends of this very remarkable spiral flutes. In the centre stands the labarum with the crown of immortality. Doves perch on the arms of the cross, and a waking and slejping soldier sit below. To the right Christ, represented as a youthful figure with Ilis fingers raised in benediction, stands before lilate, who is preparing to wash his hands; a crowa of glory hangs above. To the left we see Christ Leing crowned with thorns, which is transfornted into a victar's chaplet; and Christ bearing Ilis cross, a mere trunk, under a.guard of soldiers, a crown hanging above. Few early Christian works of art exhibit a greater union of calm dignity and grace (Appell, 20, 21; Northei te, 307).

One of the most frequently recurring suljects is the history of Jonah, n type of ieath and resurrection. As an example we may 1 rounce one of singular grotesqueness from the lateran Museum, the face of which is literally trowided with fignres of different sizes, of which the Jonah series is the most conspicuous. The spa monstet with long sinuous tail and vast yawning mouth, well furnished with teeth, appears twice in the ecutre, tirst swallowing the prophet as he is cast out of the ship, allegurical repre.e sad then vomiting tranquilly sleeping the gourd. At ei plying their craft, crawl on the shore comaon liblical so raising of Lazarus, apprehension of $p$ two sheep in a lit and the doro flont 335 ; Bottari, i. 42

SCULP'

When we tuit? is eridenced by the aad the appearance phagus in the crypt exhibits the raising meat and release Johtin. di Fermo, Yerona we find in in Falle the very ra the Samabitan Wo: bucket, which is al (Maftei, Mus. Veron iii. pl. 2, nus. 1, 2). the very remarkable that of Stilicho and tioa. The chief sul Christ teacluigg the of the magi on one s. refusiag to worshjp other. The ends exhil Elijah's ascension, an subjects. In a predin relief of the Nativity The sareophagiat able poverty of in executiou, together sbseace of decoration sists chiefly of the coaventionsl symbol The limited powers is strikiagly exhibit tombs-five in numl Galla I'lacilia, d. 45 of purest Greek marb of oruament, but on metals. That of E front divided by flute compartment the Hc swiwsrdly turned ba on whose arms doves simple cicoses. That has carred on its fac trees; the central lan whence the four rive marble snrcophagi of b 8th century, at St. characterised by the ioreation and feeblen slready described, exhi but aearly all are cont grim repeated over at encircled with wreaths lambs uader palm tr frigid coaventionalisms. learnt from Cassiodor 10) that a certain scu summoned to Raveana for his skill "in excava moribus," and received out of the ship, above the snils of which are allegurical repreaentations of the sun and wind, and then vomiting him forth: Above, Junah lies tranguilly bleejuing, maked, under the shalow of the gourd. At either extremity fishermen are plying their craft, and snails, crnbs, and lizarls crawl on the shore. Above and nround are the common Diblical seents on $n$ smuller seale; the rusing of Lazarus, Moses smiting the rock, the mprelumsion of l'eter, the Good Shepherd and two sheep in a little box-like shrine, and Noah sud the dove flonting in the wnter (Aringhi, 1 . 335; Bottari, i. 4: ; Appell. p. 19).
When we ghit Rome a different schod of art Is evidenced by the ehange in the workmanship nal the appearance of new subjects. A sareophagns in the crypt of the enthedral of Fermo axhibits the raising of Dorens and the iuprisonment and relense of St. Jeter (De Ninicis, Jonum, wi Fermo, p. 83; Appell, p, 24). At Veronn we find in the erypt of st. Giovanni in Valle the very rare subject of Judas' kiss null the Samandran Woman with the well-pulley nnd bucket, which is nlso seen nt Clermont Fermad bucket, which is nlso seen nt Clermont Fermand Matfei, Mus. Ieron. p. 484 ; Ier. Illustr. purt (ii. pl. Q, nos. 1, 2). At St. Ambrogio, nt Milan, the very remarkahle sareophagus called by some thst of Sitilicho and Serean, deserves mnch atten. tion. The chief subject is a youthful bearded Christ teachiug the aprostles, with the adoration of the magi on one side, and the three children refusing to worship the golden image on the other. The ends exhibit the Fall, Isanc's sacritice, Elijah's ascension, and other usuni Old 'festament subjects. In a jediment to the left is a cmmous relief of the Nativity (Nativity) (Appell, j, 33).
The sareophagi at Ravenna displiy a remnrkshle pererty of inveution and feebleness of execution, together with an nlmost emmplete sbsence of decoration. The ornamentation consists chiefly of the menuingless rejetition of conventional aymbols, erosses and nonograms. The limited powers of the Ravenas scalptors is strikingly exhibited in the colossnl marble tombs-five in number-ia the mansolenm of Gslla l'laeidia, d. 450. Her own sarcophagus, of purest Greek narble, is now perfeetly devoid of ornament, but once bore plates of precions metals. That of Honorius, d. 423, has its froat divided by fluted columas; in the central fromt divided by fluted eolumas; in the central compsrtment the Holy Lamb, with its head compsrtment the Holy Lamb, with its head awkwardly turued back, stands before a eross, on whuse arms doves rest. On either side are simple eacoses. That of Constantine IIf., d. 421, has carred on its face three lambs with palm trees; the central lamb standing on a mount, whence the four rivers issue. The ten large marble sareophagi of bishops from the 6th to the 8th century, at St. Apollinare in Classe, are characterised by the aame extreme poverty of inrention and feebleness of treatment. One, slready described, exhibits our Lord enthroned; bat nearly all are content with the same monogrim repeated over and over again, sometimes eacircled with wreaths, crosses, doves, and voses, eucircled with wreaths, crosses, doves, and vases, lambs under palin trees, peacoeks, and othep frigid conventionalisms. It is an interesting faret frigid conventionalisms. It is sn interesting fact learnt from Cassiodorus (Varior. lib. iii. ep. 19) thst a certnin seulptor named Daniel was summoned to Ravenna from Rome by Theedoric for his skill "in excavandis atque orbandis marmoribus," and received from him the privilege of supplying the inhnoitants of Rsvenna with snreoplagi, which are desigusted in 'Theodurie's reseript as "orteat quarum beneticio eadavern in superais humata sunt ; lugentilum nou parva consolatio." The tomb from St, Aphllinare in Classe, already deseribed, displaying our Lord enthroned with a erueiform uimbus, is considered by Martigny to be undoubtedly the work of Daniel the Seulptor. These sarcophagi have urually semieylimlrical Idis with imbricated scales. The tomb of the exarch lsane at St. Vitalis, d. 64t, rapresents the adoration of the mang. The child is nimbed, and the star stands above the Virgin's hend. It is a poor scattered work, weak in design and rude in execation (Appell, 1,1. 27).
The south of France, as has been already remarked, is peculiarly rich in early Christian sareuplangi of the 4th and sth century, particularised by Millia and Le Blant, who give engravings of many of the most remarkable. Gregory of Tours mentions such sarcophagi as existing in France in his day. One he speaiks of furmed of white marble, seulptured with the minneles of Clarist and the apostles at St. Verona, hear St. Allire (de Glor. Chmfess. e. 35, ef. e. 42), and in the next chapter records "sepulchrum senlptum meritis gloriosum sanctile memorine Gallie." The sarcomagi at Arles conform both in styla nad subjects with those of liome, in other places they are marked by local peeuliarities. That of SS. Chrysanthus and Daria at Darseilles has its face divided into seven compartments by trees, on which are to be seen birds witi their aests and young. Up the stems of the two end trees serpents are wriggling towards the young birds. A snail crawls up another. In the centre two harts are drinking trom two brooks issuing from a rock; on either side the apostles stand in rarions attitudes (Appell, 39 ; Millin, tom. iv. p. 136, pl. xxxviii. no. 4). The same drision by trees with birds on their brnnches and a snake elimbing tbe trunk of one of them tewards a bird's nest is found on one of the Arles anreophagi (Le Blant, p. 9, pl. v.), hul on one at Carpentras. The evcle of Biblical subjects is somewhat enlarged. One of the most favourite subjects on thece Gaulish sarcophagi is the Destraction of Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea. Le Blant mentions three or four examples at Arles itself, and others at Metz and Avignon (pp. 50, 54-57). It is not, however, limited to Gaul. It is found at Rome (Buttari, tav. 40, 94, 199) and Pisn (Lasioio, tav. 128), and appears depicted with much stir and netion on a snreophagus at Spalato. In this last exnmple, as at Arles and often elsewhere, the Red Sea is symbolized by s. couchant humnn figure, as the Jordan frequently is in the subject of the bsptisin of Christ and the ascension of Elijah (Le Blant, pp. 51, 54). A sarcophagus formerly nt Arles, now in the museum at Aix, in addition to the passage of the Red Sen, which ocenpies the whole face, has on one end Moses before Pharaoh, and on the other the gift of quails and the striking the rock. The pillar of fire is depicted in the most naturalistie manner as an actual column of stone with $n$ blaziag light on its summit (Le Blunt, pp. 50-5:2, pl. xxxi., xxxii.; Millin, tom. ii. p. 353 , pl. 2, no. 1, 2, 3). The grapes of Esheol is found on one in the Marseilles Museum, Among the scenes from our Lord's history less frequently found elsewhere we may mention the raislog of the widow's son (Le Blant, pp. 1, 9, pl. 1, 1. v. p. 57), the raising of Jairus's daughter (ibid. p. 29, jl, xvii. ; Millin, t. iii. 1, 537, pl. Ixvi. 1), Christ and the woman of Samaria (ibid. p. 30, pl. xviii. 2 ; p. 63), and the wa-hing of l'eter's fuet (ibid. p: 18, pl. lx). The raising of Dorcas is scen on the tomb assigned to Sidoulus Apollinaris in the crypt of St. Maximin (Rostan. Monum. Iconof. pl. xit.), and on one in the Arles Museum (Le Blant, p. 4, pl. ii. 1), as well as at Fermo. On another at Aix there is the massacre of the innecents (Failloos, Monuments ine(lits de S. M. Maj.), and the giving of the keys to St. Peter at Avignon and at Arles (Le Blant, p. 4, pl. ii. 1). One of the most exquisite of extant sarcophagi is in the museum at Bordeanx. It has no figures, but the face is covered by graceful vine branches berwing grapes, issuing from two vases surrouading the crowned monogram, which also appears on the sloptag lid (De Caumont, Cours d'Antiquité, vi. 220 ; Appell, p. 43).

1870 SCULPTURE, CHRISTLAN

Barcophagas Bordeany. Appell, p. 43.

Spain also cnn shew some early Christian sarcephagi at Toledo, Astorga, Zaragoza, and

SCULPTURE, CHRISTIAN

Marcollus. There has been some difference of oplnion as to its date, but it may probably be assigned to the 4 th century.

The mode of fabricating Christion sareephage is shewn in a very loteresting inmmer on the tonb of a sarcophagus maker named Eutropus, given by Fabrettl (Inscr. Ant. c. viii. p. i $\times 7$, cii.), erected by his son, beuriag the inserijtion ATIOC OEOCEBEC EVTFBITOC EN IPHNH VIOC EMOIHCEN. It repre. sents the sculptor seated or a stool with strpes of different heights working out a strigillated sirmphagus ornamented with nask, with a roung apprentice turning by a cord and pulley the pointed iron drill he is usigg. The mallet ani other tools lie below. A tinished sarcophangus bearing dulphins and the name EVTPOПOC stand to th: right. Behind the sculptor atards a tall male figure with outstretched arms, holding a small vase (Kom. Sotter, iii. p. 44:3), III. Tymiana of Dooricays, etc.-The intriduction of the Lombard style of architecture offered a new field for the Christian senlptur's art in the decoration of the portals, especially the tympana, of the newly-erected churches. The larger part of the existing specimens of this mode of architectural decoration ure sutsequent to A.D. 800 . Some, however, come withid our period, and demand a passing reference. One of the most remarkable is the basrelief which occupies the tympanum of the chief doerway at the cathedral of Mouza, to which a date between 591 nad 615 may be assigned. This is curious, not obly as an es. ample of the rude awkward seulpture of the age, but also as representing in stone the conseernted gifts with which queen Theodolinds enriched the church, some of which may still be

Tomb of Eutropoes Fabretti, Inertp. Antig, c. III. p. 687, cll.

Barcelonn, but they are described as presenting ne remarkable peculiarities, In England a tomb aupposed to be Romano-Christian has been discovered at Earming in Kent (Ronch Smith, Collect. Ant. i. 184), and a stone cist with a slightly gabled lid, bearing a long cross with a foriated foot, was found at Westminster Abbey (where it is still preserved) in Nov. 1869. The iuscription states that it was erected to Valerius Amandinus by his sons Valerius Praeventor and seen in its treasury. The church being dedicated to St. John the Baptist, the principal scene represented is the Baptism of Christ. Our Lod stands in the water, which, in defiance of the laws of gravity, rises in a cone about lim. The Holy Spirit, depicted as a dove, descends onlli head, holding a vase in its mouth, from which the sacred effuence descends upon Him. on either hand stand the Virgin Mary, St. John, St. Peter, and St. Paul. Above, Theodolind herself appears wit and her son and crown to St. John the pensile crowns, curious chioccia, or by her. Another in nation, of the san transept (Perkins, Sculpture, pl. xxvi. examples of early eight in all, are col plate just referred rudeness of the art Other examples tistery of Cividale i patriarch of Aquile find the evangelistic cundelabra, &c., anr sculptured in a barb by lovering the surf which rather sugge the details being 1 atone.

Mr. Perkins cites bard aculpture the Friuli, at St. Mark cantury; the sculp Milan, St. Tommaso Well in the Lateran
SEAL. (1) The used in Greek liture of the eross, and the is said $\sigma \phi \rho a \gamma / \zeta_{\epsilon} \in \nu$.
(2) The stamp ma Holy Eucharist is ale the bread is divided portion bears a star oфpayijes. [LАмів, ] SEALS. (1) Ma whole of the Christiz work the most comm rings, whether set $w$ pression being made is

- Wax impressions, made from gems or rir formed by a simple $n$ resls in medineval a few such, beiog Chs kind, appear to have c the age of Charlema the brass matrix of patrisrch of Antioch on which St. Peter is a cock near him ; it Syris by a rustic. (Ch p. vii., with a figure.) litteris ligatis, is round in commen minuscul xatpıáp $\chi \eta s, \tau \hat{\eta} s \mu \in \gamma d \lambda$ kal $\pi \alpha \sigma \eta s$ געaтoえท̄s (] Mscarius was condem nieal council (4.1). 681) tioch was termed in $t\}$ built very largely the polis), as being the see the church of God; this

[^147]
TLAN

 ay probably betian sarcephage namuer on the med Eutropus, iil. jo. $5 \wedge 7$, cii, ) be inswiption - HOC N. It repreo ol with stepsol rigiliated sirme with a young and pralley the The mallet and ed sarecphagus EVTPORIOC sculptor stards hed arms, hold-- p. ${ }^{+23}$ ). te. -The intrio of architecture stian seul|tur's rtals, csjucially ected churches. g specimens of ration are sub. however, come a passing refernble is the bas apanum of the 1 of Monza, to id 615 may be only as an exculptrure of the n stone the con. een Theodolinda nich may still be herself appenrs with her second husband Agllulf and her son nad daughtera, oflering a jewelled crown to St. John the Baptist. Behiud are seen the pensile crowns, crossee, vases, as well as the curlous chiocoin, or hen and chickens, preseated by her. Anuther interesting bass-relief of a coronatlon, of the same date, exists in the south transept (Perkins, u. s. i. xlv.; D'Agincourt, Sulpture, pl. xxvi. fig. 8). A large number of examples of carly Lombard scalpture, thirts-eight in all, ere collected by D D Apincourt eight in all, ere collected by D'Agincourt in the plate just referred to, which shew the extreme rudeness of the art at the period.
Other exnmples are to be found at the baptistery of Civitile in Friuli, erected by Callixtus, patriarch of Aynileia, A.D. 712-744, Dere we find the evangelistic symbols, crosses with palms, candelabra, kc., snirrounded with circles radely kulptured in a bnitbarous kind of relief, formed by lo vering the surface round the clunsy figures which rather suggest than imitate rall objects, the details being marked by furrows on the stobe.
Jr. Perkins eltes as other apecimens of Lombard sculpture the tomb of Pemmone, duke of Friuli, at St. Mrark's in Cividale, of the 8th century; the sculptures at St. Ambrogio at Blilan, St. Tommaso in limine near Bergamo, the Well in the Lateran cloisters, &&.
[E. v.]
SEAL. (1) The word oøpayis is frequently used in Greek liturgical language for the sign of the cross, and the person who makes the sign is said $\sigma$ Tparilsen. [Sign of the Cross.]
(2) The stamp made on the bread used in the Holy Eucharist is alse called $\sigma \phi \rho a y$ is, and when the bread is divided in such a way that each portion bears a stamp, the portions are called o申parises. [Lasis, THE HoNY, p. 916.] [C.]
SEALS. (1) Material Seals. During the zhole of the Christian period comprised in this work the most common mode of sealing was by ning, whether set with stones or not, the impression being mide in wax. - [Gems; Rinos.] Tsx impressions, hewever, were not slways msde from gems or ringa. They wers occasioually formed by a simple metallic matrix, like official mals in mediaeval and modern times. Very fars such, being Christisn, or indeed of any find, appear to have com down to us until after kind, appear to have come down to us until after the gge of Charlemagne. We have, however, the brass matrix of the seal of Macarius, ihe brass matrix of the seal of Macarius, pstriarch of Antioch in the seventh century, psliarch of Antioch in the seventh century, on which St. Peter is represented seated having 8 cock near him ; it was found near Aintab in Syris by a rustic. (Chandler, Marm. Oxon, praef. p-rii, with a figure.). The following inscription, fitteris ligatis, is round the margin: it runs thus ysarius was condemned in the sixth oecume-aical council (A.II. 681) as a Monothelite. Anaical council (A.1). 681) as a Monothelite. Antioch was termed in the age of Justinian, who bailt very largely there, Theupolis (i.e. Theoplis), as being the see where St. Peter governed the church of God ; this explains the device on the seal. M. D'Arc (vee below states that the matrls of Dagobert I. (A.D. 628-638) was discovered in the department of Doubs, but he does not mentien the metal. It gives his face, seen in front, with long lair, accompraled by two crosses and the legend Dagobertyz (sic) rex Franconcm.

[^148]SEALS
1871
Licetus mentions, on the authority of letraSancta (De Sym. lib. lii. c. 9), that Charlemagaa "non in anuli gemma, sed in gladi capulo sigillum habuisse, nt edicta et leges obsignaret: putabat enim, ejusdem gladii debere esse leges tueri ac eas promulgare" ( $D_{0}$ Auulis, p. 144).

A. Wax Impressions of Seals.

Of the wax impressions themselves a grenter number has been preserved than might jerhaps hnve been expected: they are tnostly in very indifferent condition, and they rary much in quality. The oldest extant are white or pale yellow and pale red or reddish-brown; both culours are found in Merevingino and also in Carlovingian times. There are only two essential forms of these impressions, reund and oval : the former is Merovingian, the latter Carlovingian (Heineccius, de Siyillis, Pp. 51-56; Sceaux das Rois de France, P. 2, sse below; 5'Arcq, see helow).

The most ancient mode of fixing the senl to the deed was to make a cruciform incision in the deed itself, nsually on the right haud, through which the wax was introduced, and flattered on both sides. The seal was impressed on the written side. Before the 11 th century all wax senls were thus "plaqués;" the date of ferhaps the earliest pendent wax seal being no older than A.D. 1067 (D. D'Areq, Elén. de Sigillographie, pp. xvii. to xxiii., pretixed to Collection do Scaux des Archives de l'Empire, Paris, 1863 1868). M. Dout D'Areq enumerates the seals of the Merovingian and Carlovingian sovereigas existing in the archives of Frnace; they comprise (besides the seal of Dagohert I., mentioned above, or rather apparently an impression mada from it), ${ }^{\circ}$ the folloving, all of wax and plaques: Thierry HII, Clovis III., Childebert III., Chilperic il., Pepin le Bref, Carloman and Charlemagne. Their names and portraits (more or less obliterated) occur upon nearly all of these, and a cross is still sometimes and whs perhaps originally always prefixed. One of the seals of Pepin lo Bref has on one side Christ crowned with thorns, seen in front, a person to the right of him is in profile; no legend; it is attached to a deed dated June 20, $750^{\circ}$ (Nos. 1-16). W Niy ${ }^{\circ}$ (Elem.

[^149]- There fs alsoan impression made from a scal secribed to Sigebert II., reading S. R., preserved in the Bill. Imp. Cab. des Ant. it fs nut mentioned by Chabonillet.
d Another of his seals has a head of Baccebus or Silenns one of Charlemagne figured by Walily, pl. A, No. 9 bears a head of Serapla. These were probsbly imprese sions from ancient pugsn gems. It is diffizult to say how extant wax impressions generally were formed. The seal of Dagobert (figured by Wailiy, pl. A, fig. 1) is of considerable size, aboat $3 f$ inches in diameter; ft was nrohably made from a matrix; hut its genulnevess is very doubtful. See the remsiks in the Sceaux des hoie de France, p.2. All the other ancient tmpressions which he figures may have been executed etther from gems or from rings.
e This plate ts reproduced in the "Trésor de Numism.

SEALS

de Pulégraphie, tom. II. p. 338, pl. A, No. 8, Paris, 18:38), figures a wax seal (plaqué) of Charlemagne, which reads xpe prorfae cabol bea francr. It is attached to the charter of a gift to the abbey of St. Denys, dated September 14, A.D. 774, it is about $1 \frac{1}{2}$ inches by 1 ; oval, not neuminatel. There is an lmpression of this acal in the British Museum. ${ }^{\text {r }}$
The only English king within our period of whom any wax seal remitins appears to be Offa, king of Mercia; it is describel by D'Arei in vol. hii. of the above-named work, n. 999.5 ; head to $r$. aurronuded by a dialem "à epi," the wax he describes as "rougeatre, très-consistante, plaqué" on a charter of that king, dated 790, in havour of the abbey of St. Denya.

B. Bullae of Eartis and Metal.

In very early times nome kind of earth was empluyed for the purpose of receliving the impression of the seal; this method, which seems to lave originated in Egypt, wss ocensionally employed in the Greek empire, at least as late as the 8th century. The lump of earih so sealed was attached by a string or strip of cloth or leather to the diploma or other document. Such earth must have been employed in sealing by the Byzautine emperors, for we are told that at the second council of Nice (A.d. 787) Leontius, bishop of Cyprus, defended the worship of innges by saying that no one believed that those who received written orders from the emperor and venernted the seal worshipped on that necount the sealing-earth, the paper, or the leal. (Sce Beckmann, u. s., pp. 137, 138. For the original Greek see below.) "Actual examples of such seals belonging to Egyptian and Assyrian times are still in existence, as well as remains of the cloth or atrap by which they were appended" (Birch's Ancient Pottery, p. 83, 2nd ed.). No Christian seals of this character belonging to the period with which we are concerned appear to have been preserved. We have, however, a considerahle number of such seals in lead, the earlier ones being principaily pspal bulls beginning by about the 7th century.g

The earliest lesden bull of certain date known to be now extant, ${ }^{\text {b }}$ whose authenticity is generally acknowledged, is that of pope Deus-dedit (A.D. 614-617); it is figured by Ficoroni (Piombi Antichi, tsb, xxiii. fig. 3). It beara on one et de Glypt." in the volume Sceaux des Rois et Reines de Fronce, pl. 1.

More than a dozen seals of Chatlemagne are knowd in wax or mietal according to the authors of the Nouveau Traite de Diplomatique. Pleresc took imprebsions of ancient seals (vetera sigilla) which he found in various anclent abbeys; they bore the true likenesses (verae effigies) of Charlemagne and other kings of the second race (Cuiflet, Anastasis, p. 112).
E Rainalius maintalns that papal halls go still farther back, and affirms that leaden buils of Sylvester, Leo I., and Gregory $\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{L}}$, are kept in "archivo Aretino" and in the Castle of St. Angelo; but Heineccius does not belleve in their genuineness (lie Sigill. p. 48).
b Hefnecclus thinks that the Byzantine emperors made the earliest bulls (u.s. p. 42); that the patriarchs of Constantinople followed them, and that the popes of Rome were deternined not to be behind these (p. 40). This may possibly be so, but the existing examples and wotices suggeat a different chronological order.
shide the Gook Shepherd hetween two sheep, and on the other side in three lines devs | Wentr | parala leaden bulla of the following loles alvo ure still preserved: fionorlus (A.d. b:38). Theodure I. (A.D. 649), Agat ho (A.b. 678 ). Johan V. (A.D.
 Zacharias (A.D. 741), l'mil 1. (A.D. 7.in), Stephen ill. (A.D. 764), as well at of many later poutitis. On all these, however, the types are very simple, auch as a cross, a chrisma, of a star. On one side the name of the polpe wocurs in the genitive (wometimea in more than one line), on the other the word papas: (chmomoly in two lines). Thus: one of John, supposesal to be Juhn V., has on obe, a star of eight rayas, in the centre, rending rolannis around; the rev, has p+a paeia two lines (British Mlseun), Another of Sergius I. reads on obv. + sfinith on a circle, having for type chrisma and another munogran united with it ; ree, papas above a chrisma of the ordinary form (Brit. Nus, Figured in Eiuglish Cyclop. Div. iv., Arts and Sciences, suppl, 1873, s. v, nella). Anuther of Zacharins has on obv. a cross, below which zac| char ane in three lines; on rev. a cross, below which t'A PAE in two lines (Brit. Mus. Figured also in Martigny, Dict. s. v. Numism. ed. 2). A fourth of Paul I. has on oln. a cross, bolew which Pav, ut in two lines and beneath another cross. Rev. a cross; pa | pae in two lines, bal snother cross below, (Brit. Mus.) Other esamples are figured by Ficoroni, u.s. t. xxi.-xsr., and by Martigny, u, s., and sre mentiones by Mabillon (de Re Dipl. lib. ii. c. 14). Several may also be seen in the British Museum ; their dimensions vary from 1 to $1 \frac{1}{2}$ inches across; the form is subeircular.

The leaden bullae of popes, so common in later times, bearing the heals of SS. Peter and Piul are not earlier than the time of Paschal II. A.D. 1009 (Martigny, u.s.). Mabillon (u. s. lib, li. r. 14) mentions bulls bearing the numes of ihose apost - as issued in the time of Urban $1 l$., his immediate predecessor.
The patriarchs of Constantinople were little, if at all, behind the popes in employing leaden bullae. Germanus I. who sat there A.D, 715 to 730, indited an epistle decorated with a bull of lead ( $\mu 0 \lambda_{1} \beta \delta i \nu \eta$ Bod $\lambda \lambda \eta$ ) which is described in the Jus Graeco-Ron. (tom. i. lib. iii. p. ${ }^{236}$ ) as having on one side the Virgin and (hild, add on the other (in Greek) "Germanus, by the mercy of God, Archbishop of Constantioople, New Rome, anil ecumenical patriareh."
Somewhat later we find other bishops making use of leaden bulls both in the east and in the west. The aecond council of Cabillon, i.e. Chatlon-sur-Saône (A.D. 813), c. 41, directs that a presbyter moring to another place should carry letters fortified by the names of the hishop and the city in lead (in quibus sint nomina episcopil et civitatis plumbo munita). See Mabillon, ths. lib. ii. c. xv. Other lster suthorities makie

The Lex Alamannorum bas a chapter: De servis a clesiasticis, si ad Epiacopum aut Judicem suam enir despexerint, in which occurs this clause: " 89 agititum episcopi neglexerit ant sd venienilum aut ad ambolan. dum ubl jusuert, duokecim solldis sit culfabilis" (ap. Goldast. Rer. Aleman. tom. i. c. 22, p. 13). Theen may be su-pected to be of lead, 1 lv s those mentioned to council of Châlons.
mention of ai p. 49). The been far from esrilier than Heineccius ( possesses a bul in Epirus, in is given in L 138. It reals + I ITAA which EMIC cally, ОП (re Lovati collect bulls exist abo apenk, as that naple, of whom the 9 th to the n. 1, Bijekh, n. menium (Ficor of Sergins, bish Antonius, metr svi. n. 4, Böck bishop of Thes: Buckh, n. 90:37 Leaden bulls than bishops ha however, one it face, supposed t (died A.D. 709). FATII $\|$; on Inscr. Brit. Chri

Lenden bylls secular persons. ln the 8th centu Leontius, bishop secoud Nifene cou to the leaden bul the veneration of $i$ Baginécos $\delta \in \xi \not \subset \mu \in \nu C$ yīaa oí $\tau \delta \nu \pi \eta \lambda \delta \nu$
${ }^{1}$ There are aiso lea various saints. A cui Latin, ts given in Fico represented a man 0 NIKOAAOC b on the other is a cross, | BCI | xicolat (Büch madn consider that the dedicated to St . Nicolat examples bearing the Blessed Virgin, St. $C$ Theodore, which proba The dates of all such b have ailuded to them ti mention of similar episropal bulls (Heinece, u.s. p. 49). The practice appears, however, to havs been far from nniversal, and no actual examplea earlier than the 12th century were known to Ileinecelils ( $\%$. s. f. 151). The writer, however, possesses a mulla of liyputius, bishop of Nieqpolis, in Epirus, In A.f. 626, of whom eome account le given In Le Qulen, Oriens Christ. vol. ii. p. 138. It reads in barbarous Greek on the obverse: $\pm$ IППA which ETICK $\|$ NIKOY below whlch wertically, Oח (retragrade) and another cross (for Lovnti collection nt Rimeme.) Other episcopnal bulls cxist about whose age it is less ensy to spenk, as that of Nicolnus, patriarch of Constinstinople, of whon there were several so named from the 9 th to the 12 th century (Ficeoronil, tab, xvii. n. 1, Buekh, n. 9036), of Leo, bishop of Tauromenium (Ficoroni, tab. xx. n. 7, B Bekh, n. 9029 ), of Sergius, blahop of Therme (Id. n. 9045 ), of Antomius, metrojelitan of Catman (Ficoroni, tab. vi. n. 4, B3ickh, n. 9001 ), and of Taul, arehbishop of Thessalonica (Ficoroni, tnb. ix. n. 1, Beckh, n. $90: 37$ ).
Leaden bulls of eeclesinatics of lower rank than bishops have rur-ly been found. We have, however, one in England of archdeacoa Boniface, supposed to be contemporary with Wilfrid (died A.D. 709). It reands on obv. $+\|$ novi $\|$

 Learten bulls of Charlemagne are mentlonell by authors (see Helnecelus, s. s. p. 4), nni sonie are utill in existence ; one is rulely figured in the Noureath Trute do Dijlomatique ( t . iv. 11, 112) published in the last ceatury; nuother impresslon from the same inmali is here figured trom a lrawing kindly sent hy M. Sambon, who poasenses the original.4 Neit her sprecimen iv complete, but from n compurlson of the two with each at her and with a bulla of Charles the Bald, the ty pes and legenily oa both sides can be satisfinctorily made out. On the obverse we have bust of U'harlemagne to $r$., with broad dladem, wearlug the puludamentum, with legead: $+J_{t}$ sun (1117) nuto Di, Curlam defende potenter; on the reverse a cross with open diamond la the centre, ench arm terminuting ta a letter, the four letera beiag $\mathrm{KHLs}_{\text {( }}$ (Karlus); the legend is + Gloric sit Christo ( x P ) , regi victoria Curlo. It is not improbable that bullae of lead were employed by other emperors belore Charlemagne; but it seema deubt ful whether we hare any genuine examplea new existiog in that or any other metal before his tinue. The silver bulla of Dagobert, detaehed from Its diploman, which is mentloned as being in "gazophylacle ducali Gothnno" by Mabillon enid others is regardel br Heineccius with suspicion ("is. p. 41). Polydore Vergil De Inv. Rerum, lih. viii. p. 605) says, that Chsrlemage introduced seals (bulls) of gold,

Lenden bylls were likewise employed by seculnr persons. Those of the Greek emperors in the 8th century are the earliest recorded. Leoatius, bishop of Cyprus, argued before the second Nieene council from the reneratlon paid to the leaden bullae of the Greek emperors to

I There are also leaden bullae whteh bear the names of varlous ralots. A curtous example, both in Greek and Latin, is given in Ficoront, tab. xiv. n. 7. On one stde is represented s man in the attitude of benedtetton, O NIKOAAOC being wrtttell кcoundov in two lines; on the other is a cross, below whtch in three lines siante | sel | Nicolat (Bückh, n. 9035). Ficorond and Kirchmann consider that the buil is a seal of some monastery dedicated to St, Ntcolas. The R-thlih Musellu hus other examples bearing the figures, names, and titles of the Blessed Vtrgin, St. Chrysostom, St. George, and St. Theodore, whteh probahly belong to the same category. The dates if sll such belog onceriatn, it must snffice to have slluded to them thus briefly.
but neither Hsineccius (u.s. p. 33) nor any later writer appareatly have ever seen such. In later times both emperors and popes certninly employed them (Heineccius, u. s.) In a suit between bishop Wolfleoz and abbat Cotzpert held before Lonis le Débonnaire, a document was produced benring the seal of Charlemagne. "Quam (chartam) quum piissimus reperator suscepisset, sigillumque sui patris recognoscendo rotuitus esset, venerando deosenlatus est, circumque astantibus similiter honoris causn deosculadum contradidit" (Ratpert. da Cusib. Monust. S. Galli, c. 6, p. 5 ; quoted by Heineccins, u. s. p. 11). If in not clear whether the diploma had a wrx ora leaden seal nttnched; more probably perhaps the latter. (Cf. Leontius, quoted nbove.)

The number of leaden bullae belonging to eecular persoas of inferior rank is rery considerable. All or almost all of them were struck in [^150]

BEALS

varloun purts of the Hyenntine empire, more eupectally in Stcify, Many of them lear upwn the wheren th cruciform mongram, requematiag fer which cov̂ aov̂ bsunou ls sumetimes nolistltuted (t) lond, helj thy servant) ; the reverae benrs in "rmek the mane (atten in monogram) of then uis...s and ble willice (often in an abifrevinted form) in the dintive, more rarely in the genlifu rase: " crass often precedes, and somethmes fillown. ${ }^{1}$ But fow of them comparatively can he datmi. Of these we inontion the follow. ing: A bulln, preserved in the museum of the menustery of St. Nicolal at Catania, bears on the obverse the monogram and legend abuve-mentioner, and on the other aide the name of Serglus. patriclan anis strategus-Obv. K. (i.e. Kípus) supposed to be the praetor of Sicily mentioned by Amastumbs muder the year 733 (Bibekh, n, 8988). Another hemrs the wnine obverse, and on the reverne "Gregorius, patrician, strategun in Sicily." Ife is Nujposed by Castelli and by Kirchmann to the the (iregory who governed Sicily in the beginaing of the 9 th century (B8ckh, n. 8991 ). Another example (in Mua. Patern. lBörkh, n . 8989) has the same obverne, but berrs on the reverse the name of dolin, "patrician and royal epnatharius," probably the same as John the protoajatharins, who waa aent to Sidily in the reign of Constant ino l'arplayrogenit us (A.D. 780-797). A fourth, preservad in the Recupero Museum at Catania, is desmibed by Prot. Sulinas from a drawing by Recnpero himself. The obverse is as before; the raverse bears the name and titlee of Buphemius," royal sjatharocandidat us and strategus of Sicily." The titie of royal candldatins occurs on ether bullne, mentioned by Sulluas, who considers that this Eiuphemius lived in the reiga of Constantine P'orphyrogenitus, to whom he also now attribntes tho gold ring which be figures, mentioned above under Rinas, & 6 jz . (Tre anclli; &sc, v. s. 1. . 4-8.) A fifth bulla in fine, found at I'hilipperille in Algerim, bears on each side $n$ cross und two pellets ; below is written on the obverse the name of I'hotinus (in the genitive), and on the uther his title "stratelates." He

Iemien Sani of Boritiga, alons Imo-thimis of the dae of the orialnal. theokh.)

[^151]
 as governor of the provinwe uf sidily in the reign of Michnel II, (116ekh, $\mathrm{n}_{1} 8990$ ).

In much the greater number of eases, bowever, there is no indication of date $l^{\circ}$ ab for example in one preserved at Syracuse, which has the obverse se often mentinued, abil on the reytree "Andreas, hypatus" (combib), "mili strategun. Amen" (14uckh, n. 8998). Anuther eximille, in the possersion of the writer, forn the lovati collection, has tha obverse rus before, while the reverse has "l,eo notisius" (in genitive), Another from the same collectiun has the sume obverse in the dative, and oo the reverse "Antonlus notarius "also in the dative. Many other mames of otficers of the 1 Hyanntine comrt ecaur on the bulf which nre figured and deseriled in tains " large number of such.m Hut it is unaecessary to multijly examplem hero, not only because their date is doubtful, but alto because their Interest is sather scolar than ecclesiastical.
(2) A sicured Sijn, especially the Sijn of the Cross. - The word senl is used for the sign of the cross with which the breal in the embarist is signed. In the Siturgy of St. Chrysostom the priest takes the ohiation ( $\pi$ poogфopar ) with his left hand und the holy lance (LANCE) with his right, noul with it sealing ( $\sigma$ ppar( $(\omega \nu)$ ) over the seal (oфpayls) of the oblation, he says thrice : "is memory of our Lord anid God and of our Sisviuur Jesas Christ." Heinecefus (u. s. p. 18) notes from Gonr that this seal le the sign of the cross impressed on the liost or obhation, as is seen in Arcudius, and in the figures annexed. Ho likewise observes that the sign of the cruss is frequeatly termed $\sigma \phi \rho a \gamma l s$ in early and medinevai Greek writers, whether used in bijptism, or ordination or in the eucharist, or elsewhere. The tonsure of eceleaiartice is also so called. (Ste Goar, Euchot. Graec. Ip. 117,321; Suicer, Thes. 8. v. $\sigma$ фpayis ; Ducange, Gless. Med. et Inf. Graec. 8. v. $\sigma$ ррад(s.)
(3) Solom n's Seal used as a Charm.-On na amulet of red copper, pierced for auspeasion, found at Ketf in Tuais, described at length undes Medais, part of the legead of the obverse rans thus:- Inbidia (invidia) indichosa (invidiosa) nicil (aifil) tibi ad. (adimat ?),' anima pura et mumd Quirusce; sata malina (maligan) non tibi pracerlea[n]t. Lijabit te Dci brachiun, Dei et Christi, et Siynum et Sijillum Solomo[niv] PAXCASA. (=Abraxas?) Perhaps we shuuld read lei et Christi signum (i.e. the cross). Considered by M. Reuvede to be "assez recent." It may possibly be as late as the conquest of Africa in the 8th century by the Arsbe, in whose view Solomon was a great magician, and from whom the Christians there may have derived it ; this however is not certnia, as there are gems (haematite) very similar to some coins of the 4 th century; they bear a herseman spearing a fallen enemy, with legead COAOMmN (Solomon), and on the other side cゅpariz OEOT (the Seal of God), with mystic characters. (Writer's collection ; others acaris similar in in The writer's thanks are due to Mr. W. de G. Birch for giving bim every facility to Inspect these, and for other valuable help.

Brit. Mus. ; one in King'u Ginos Solomou is sala of tive rays to (Kirch. Ueitip. p. 477). Hene the Convalharin plant the Eagion the merial and Sodomin, and th constitute the ci make the owner aubject in King 8. v. Solomos; Epiat. to Colosa.

SEASONS, T the adopited sub seasons had long Roman decoration ter, and connect imagery, so that with associations they forniaher! ma ohange, growth an the hope of the pictures of sowe would have their knew the Lord's are so frequently associated with thi thes it is impossi import, at an early single emblems, lis which have ne of connect them eith with Christian imi from Jloly Scriptur The customary have died away, pe to that of the Goor Seasone in the cat Nereus and St. Achil frescoes of which Fresco); also Park $618,619$, and text, $]$ ings are evidently kind. Anether fine catacomb (Bosio, p. 2 the figures are in pa Shepherd. "Winter fire ; "Autuma," a "Sammer," a wellyoung man, only clac roses. The cemetery another set, perhaps of St. Domitilla, and 2nd century work at in beautiful decorative and on the walls belo tery. Laurels, vines roses, represent the sea foar cerresponding ag walle, of realistic tres grranged with great donbtedly types in use Whee all Chriatian sy ongrammatic fish, ap or less employed thus and in variously secula Martigny gives wood here reproduced, from CHRIET, $\triangle$ NT, - VOL

SEASONS, THE FOUR

Brit. Mus ; one mide of a bad apecimen figureil in King's Grostics, pl, vi, a. 7). The amal of Solumus in wald to be the prentalpha, or atar of five rays turmel by intersecting trianglea (Kireh. Ucdip, Aegy.pt. ci. 1J. e, vil. t. ii. para 2, p. 477). Hence the acars on the rhisoma of plant the Eugiash matifiora have given to the the meidai and an the of Solomon's seal. On Shomem, and the words sem, however, the name constitute the cherds Senl of God, appear to make the owner vietorions sigil's power being to subject la King, u. s. pe more on this . v. Nolomon; Lightioot's ed. of St. Paul's Epist. to Colosa. Introd. pp. 91, 92, aote.
SEASONS, THE FOUR. This [C. B.] the adopted anhjects of Christian art. The seasona had long been a farourite subject of Roman decoration, of the most pleasing charnc. ter, and connected with rumn and pastoral with masociations of her own. invested them they furviahed matter for contemplation on life ohange, growth and decay ; in Christian thonght the hope of the reaurrection was ailded ; and pictures of sowers, reapers, and vinedressers weuld have their definite meaning for all who knew the Lord'a parables. And these pictures are so frequently (almont invariably in fact) associated with the form of the Good Shepherd, that it is impossible to doubt their Christian import, at an early date. It is not here as with aingle emblems, like the peacock, lion or eagle, which have no apecial thread of meaning to coanect them either with the Seripturea, or with Christian imag
The customary use of this aubject seema to have died away, perhaps with a parallel decline to that of the Good Shepherd (see s. v.). The Seasons in the catacomb of Domitilla, or St. Sereus and St. Achilles, were perhaps the earliest freacoes of which any remains are left (aee Frisco); also Parker's Photographs, No. 1820, 618, 619, and text, p. 123). The present paintings are evidently restorations of the rougheat kiad. Another fine example is in the Callixtine catacomb (Bosio, p. 223; Bottari, tav. Iv.), where the figures are in pairs on each side of the Good Shepherd. "Winter" is a woodman by his fire; "Autumn," a vintager, almost nude; "Summer," a well-clad reaper; "Spring," a young man, only clad in a scarf, and gathering roses. The cemetery of St. Praetextatua containa another set, perhaps equal in antiquity to those of St. Domitilla, and of the character of early 2nd century work at lateat. They are arranged ia benutiful decorative forma round the vaulting, and on the walle below the arches of the cemeterg. Laurels, vines and grapea, corn-eare and roses, represent the aesoons above; and there are four corresponding agricultural acenes on the walh, of realistic treatment, but ornamentally arranged with great skill. These were undonbtedly types in uas among the heathen; but thea all Chriatian symbols alike, except the anagrammatic fish, appear to have been more or less employed thua at earlier or later dates, and in variously secular senses, Martigny gives woodents of the Four Seasons, bere reproduced, from the cemetery of St.

SEASONS, THE FOUR

Puntianua, They form fiur compartminte of a cupola-vault, grouned round the Good Shepherit in the centre, "spiring" In a hoy, bearing a lily a vind hare; "Smminer," a reaper; "Autumn," a vintager applying a Insder to a tree (nhewing tralning to tak culture rather than the Greek tralning to atakes and frames); "Whe Greek

4atama. From the Cemotury of Pantiannus (Martigaj)

[^152]
SECRETA

young man by a fire, holding a torch in his left hand, and in his right (perhaps) a billet of wood. Martigny refers to a sculpture from the cemetery of St. Agnes (Boldetti, Cimit. 1, 466; Maffei, Gemm. Aut. part. jv. No. 58, 59), where "Winter" bears a leafy bough and a bird. This subject exists in sculpture, on the ends of the sarcophagus of Junius Bassus. Bottari, tom. i. capo della prefaz., aud Buonarotti (Vetri, p. i.) has published a sepulchral urd which bears it also.
[R. St. J. T.]
SEBASTE, FORTY MARTYRS OF, in the reign of Liciuius: Mar. 9 (Mart. Bed., Wand.; Liom. of Greg. XIII, 158i; ; Cal. Byzant.; Basil, Menol. ; Menol. Graec.) ; Mar. 10 (Boll. Aeta SS. Mart. iii. 12 ; Mart. Rom. of Bened. XIV. 1749, and as repriated in 1873; cf. Neale's note at Mar. 9 in (al. Byzant.); Mar. 11 (Usuard., Adon.; Vet. Rem., Notker.) ; Mar. 16 (Cal. Armen.).
[C. H.]
SEBAS'IIA, July 4, martyr with Jnaocentius and thirty others, cummemorated at Sirmium (Mart. Usuard.); also called Sabbatius (Yet. Rum. Murt.) and Sabatia (Marı, Hieron.).
[C. H.]
SEBASTIANUS (1), Jaa. 20, commander of the first cohort, martyr under Diocletian, buried "in vestigiis apostolorum" (Metr. Mart., Bed. ; Mart. Usuard., Tet. Rem., Hieron., Wand.); commemorated on this day in the Sacramentary of Gelasius, his name being mentioned in the collect, the secreta, and the post-communion; also in the Sacrsmentary of Gregory, his name occurring in the collect and ad complendum; Dec. 18 (Menol. Gir. Sirlet.)
(2) Feb. 8 , martyr in Armenia Minor, commemorated with Dionysius and Aemilianus (Mart. Usuard. ; Vet. Rom., Notker.). [C. H.]

SEBOAS, Nov. 13, dencon, martyr in Yersia in the 4th centary (Basil. Menol. i. 185). [C. H.]

SECLUSION. One of the penalties imposed upon penitents in the seventh and twe following centuries was incarceration. It was a penal seateace, and distinct from the voluntary protession of monasticism uadertaken to expinte a great crinse. The practice arose on the decay of public peaance. One of the earliest instances of the imposition of the penalty is in Spain. The Cone. Narbonens. A.D. 589 (c. 6) decreed that any clergyman or citizen of position convicted of crime was to be sent to a monastery for correction. In the 11th Council of 'Teledo, A.D. 675, c. 7, " retrusio" is coupled with exile as among the recognised puuishmeats inflicted by the church. Nor was this node of penance confined to the Peainsula; it became common throughout the West. Thas pope Gregory II. 71b-731, in a letter (Ep. ii.) to the emperor Lee the Isaurian, contrasts the spiritual with the clvil penalties: the state, he says, executes or fortures a criminal, but the church shuts him up in the "secretarium," the vestry or the chapter-houre, that he may purge his soul by fasts and vigils. The senteace of incarceration occure also among the decrees of a aynoed held under Boniface, A.D. 742, the decisions of which were confirmed in the following year by Conc. Liptin.: any Christian guilry of fornlcation was to do penance in prison on bread and water; an ordained priest guilty of the same sin was to be flagged and remain two years in prison ; a modk or cleric was to be beaten thunce and shut up; and a nun who had falleg was to be confined and have her hend shaved. The same discipline is apparent in the rituals of that peried. The Gelasian Sacramentary, under the title "Ordo agentibus publicam penitentiam," directs a penitent to be taken in the morniag of the first Wednesday in Lent, and to be shut up till Hely Thursday, when he was to be brought into the church; and among the rubrical directions 反or the Mass on "Feria 5, in Coen. Dom.," the penitents sre instructed to come out from the retreat where they have performed their penance. Similar rubrics are contained in the Ordo Romanus, and in pseudo-Alcuin do Divinis Officis, cap. de Coen. Dem., and in aa sacient Toulouse Pentifical of the 9 th century (Morin. de Puenitent., appendix, p. 599), where the penitent is ortered to be shut up" in loco secreto" throughout Lent. In the Penitential of Theodore (I. vii. 1) lifelong confinement in a monastery is ruled to be the appropriate penalty for an accumulation of mortal sins. Compare Poenitentiale Cummeani, xiv. 1, and the early British penitential frugment "Sinodus Aquilonalis Britt." cc. 1, 2 (Wasserschleben, Die Bussord. p. 103). The discipline ot' imprisonment was enforced also agninst the Canonici. Thus the rule of Chrodegang of Metz (c. 28) orders the seclusion of the collegiate clergy when under penance in terms identical with the directions of the Rituals. In the cave of the secular clergy, after monastic houses had become general, it was a common punishment to confine an offendiog clerk in a mouastery, either for a term of years or for the remainder of his life. This mode of seclusion was appointed both by civil and ecclesiastical law. Justiniaa's Nurell. cxxili. 20 direct that a preshyter or deacon giving false evideuce, shall, in place of being scourged, be deposed and shut up for three years in a monastery. The Council of Agde, A.D. 506 (c. 50 ), ordere the seclusion to be litelong when either tergery or perjury has been committed by a clergyman: a similas penalty was attached by 3 Cone. Anrelian. c. 7 , to adultery; and by 4 Conc. Tulct. c. 29, to magic and soothsaying. See Conc. Epain. c $22 ; 7$ Cone. Wolet. c. 3; 8 Conc. Tulet. c. 5. By the secend Council of Scrille, A.D. 618 (c. 3), ac clergyman deserting his beacfice was to he confined temporarily in a moanstery. Mouks who subjected themselves to peanance were still further seciuded by confinement in the cells or "ergsstula " of their monastery. Syricius ( $\mathrm{E}_{\mathrm{p}}^{\mathrm{s}, ~ i . ~ 6) ~ i n e ~}$ poses this peasl confinement upen menks or anvs who, in spite of their monastic profession, hare contracted what were held to be incestuous natriages. See Conc. Tarracon. c. 1; Conc. Autissid. c. 23; Conc. in Trull. c.41. The sererity of the austerities to which delinquent monks were exposed when under confinement may ${ }^{2}$ e gathered from the account given in the Scalue of Johsunes Climacus, grad. 5.
[G. M.]
SECRETA, SECRETAE (suthooratio, omb

 oblati, $\mu v \sigma \tau i k \omega \bar{s})$. In the course of the Ifisa Fidelinum, the celebrating priest was wout tu ast the pragers of the byatanders, "Pray for me, brethren," an "that it migh was already w turned to the a so as ouly hims oblations. To given the nam Clementine lit pray sileatly, as he commenced $t$ ( $\epsilon \dot{i} \xi \dot{d} \mu \in \nu 0 s$ oỉv Const. viii. 12) besrsing the o "After the cat prayers of the parts, the first aud the second $\pi \rho \circ \sigma \phi \omega \nu \eta=\sigma \omega \bar{\prime})$ given," \&c. Ma prayer, and the liturgy of St. Ch Some (e.g. Be the word secret (secerno), i.e. afte of the offerings eucharistic eacri the catechumens gromad, for the ss the Greek, agr which is further where we find the hut) arcanae. T, sijective, as in "collectio secreta times called secret Amalarius and ot question by the $\mathbf{r}$ supply. Thus Rup "The priest there sileutly (tacile) ss lstions, prepares tl Lord slso, when H saring mystery of 1 of the priest desi Christ. The pries hecsise, about the ciples did not confes s) Amalarius (de prayer is called sec this the priest prays time. It belongs sarrifice to God alo we speak out of ol voice is necessary, aluae, that the pries ought to think." by Hildebert, archbis de Rit. Ece, ii. 29).
At the end of this raising his voice (k $k \phi$ said the collect, "su ceeded sloud.
"The Leonian Sce down to us, provides over the gifts at the They have no rubric Gelasian are called super oblatia, Thic privately by the $p$ reference in them to soints, shew that thicy
Yet the position of a

SECRETA

"brethren," snd a mutual intercession followed, was already with sursum corda with them, ss it turaed to so as only himself, and prayed with a low voice, oblations. To this could hear the words, over the given the anme of prayer, or these prayers, was Clementine litur of secreta or secretac. In the pray silently argy, the bishop was eajoined to he commenced the moresole priests preseat, before Cunst. viii. 12) Thavà o a apxteptús, Apost. hesrsing the order of Conneil of Ladicea, re"After the entechur service (can. 19), says. prayers of the faith fal have retired, then the parts, the first with are to be made in three sud the second and silence ( $\epsilon \dot{\partial} \chi \eta$ 文ià $\sigma_{t} \omega \pi \hat{\tau}_{s}$ ), $\pi \rho o \sigma \phi \omega \nu \dot{\eta} \sigma \epsilon \omega s)$; then the kith acclamation ( $\delta$ id given," \&e. Many of the fnthers peate is to be prayer, and the titles of it as mention this liturgy of St. Chrysostom are given abd in the Some (e.g. Bossuet) have given nbove. the word secreta it have conjectured that (secerno), i.e. after the separation from thecretio of the offerings of what was resem the rest eucharistic sacrifice, or after reserved for the the catechumens from the faithful; but withont grenad, for the ancient sacramentaries, as well ss the Greek, agree in the other interpretation, which is furtlier proved by the Book of Tours, where we find these prayers called (not secretae, but) arcanae. The word is alse used as an "collectio secreta." Jacrumentary of Bobio, times called secret $\hat{\text { i }}$, The prayers were someAmalarins and other writerssa (roce). Indeed question by the rationale of put it beyond all supply. Thus Rupertus (de Divin. Offic. c. 4) says "The priest therefore standing in sileare, and silently (tacite) saying the praver over the oblations, prepares the holy sacrifice, becsuso our Lord slso, when He hid Himself, meditated the saring mystery of His own Passion. The sileace of the priest designates the liding-place of Christ. The priest says some things secretly, beesnse, about the Passion of Chrick, His disciples did not confess Christ but secretly." And ${ }^{83}$ Anmalarins (de Ecc. Uffic. iii. 32): "The prayer is called secret, as being said secretly. Ir this the priest prays to be purged at the present time. It belongs to the priest alone, to offer sarrifice te God alone. Aad, therefore, becanse we spenk out of our thoughts, no resounding roice is necessary, but words for this purpose alone, thas the priest may he reminded what he ought to thiak." The same was put into verse by Hildebert, archbishop of Tours (see Durantns, de Rit. Ecc. ii. 29). See Amen, 2. p. 75 .
At the end of this "secret" prayer the priest, said the collect, "super oblata," and then preceeded sloud.
"The Leoaian Scerameatary, as it has come down to us, provides proper prayers to be said orer the gifts at the dillerent days and seasons, They have no rubric or title, but in the later Gelasinn ara called secretac, in the Gregorinn sures oldata, The fact of their being said privstely by the priest, and the frequent reference in them to the intercession of the Yet the phew that they were not truly primitive. Yet the position of some may be justified by regarding them as a secret prajer of entrance God the whole sacriticial action of the litargy. the holy use tonght to accept the elements for (Scudamore Nowh mas is devoting them." treats of this part of the ritual (vol Martene cap. 2, § 29).

SECRETARIUM
[H. B.]
SECRETARIUM. Another nome for the sueristy or diaconicum in the Latin charch, "The Conacil of Agie (can. 66) forbids lay officials called by thinintri" to enter the secretarium, sacred vessels. Thacomicum, and touch the word in the pesge Saxou tranglation of the records the passage of Bedn (H. L. ii. 1) which records the burial of pope Gregory" is "husel the enchacharistiac porticus, i.e. the place where Pandect. vol it vessels were kept (Bevereg. Exiguus, in his Latin 76, annotat.). Dionysius of Laodicen, writes, "quod subition of the canons i.e. secretario sint quod subdiacoai a diaconico, secretria were fremoti." in the West the sufficient were frequently large apartments number of people. reception of $a$ consilerable monly held in paple. Conncils were not anconsfifth, and sixth held "in secretnrionacils of Carthage were that of Aachen setnrio basilicae restitutae," nad S. Marise quod in 836 "in secretario basilicae xiv. $6 \%$; cf. Greg. Turon. Lamis dicitur" (Cossart, Council of Arle Mron. lib, v. c. 19). The second that "in secretnrio D. 452 (can. 15), orlaised sedere non liceat" diacono inter presbyteros The word is som (Labbe, Concil. iv. 1013). itself, e.g. "venturoes used for the council secretario." "Venturo secretario," "praeterito Pesbyters also sat in them to and settla disputes of the laity, or to hear "secretariam" while "t. Martia sat in one "secretarinm" while "in alio secretario presaudiendis negotiis salntationibns vacantes, vel lib. iii. Dia!. ni. netis occupati" (Sulp. Sever. sometimes served c. 1). The "secretarium"also slept there served as a lodging room. St. Martin the church and on his departure the virgins of he had sat, rushed in and lieked the place where among them, and parted the straw of his bed of Nola describes thed trensure (ibid.). Panlinus taria" of his basilice purpese of the two "secrethe other as a following lines. To the right of the apse,
"Iric locus est venersuda penus qua conditur, et qua and to the left,

-Si quem sancta tenet meditandi in lege voluntas  Hic poterit residens sacris intendere libris." Epist. XII. ad Séverum.

Mnrateri snys (Mrus. Ital. tom. ii. p. xxii.) that in the older Roman bnsilieas the "secretarium" was usually placed towards the lower end of the nave to the south, i.e. on the man's side. An oratory was sometimes attached to it, as that at the Vntie:n dedicated to St. Gregory, nad at the Lateran to St. Thomss. Here the popes rohed themselves before the high festivals, and went thence to the altar. This agrees with the Ordo Romanus, which states that when the pope is about to celebrate to cate not ge at once to she altai，but proceeds firat to the＂secretarium，＂ supported by his deacons．
Notices of＂secretaris＂are frequent in Ann－ stasius．The first place of interment ol I ato I． was＂in abdito inferioris secretarii＂at St． Peter＇s（Anast．§ 16：3）．Gregory 1V．rehuilt at St．George＇s＂secretarium diaconiae＂（ibid．§ 464）；Benedict III．rebuilt the baptistery＂ cmm secretario＂at St．Mary＇s Trastevere（8 572）； and Nicholas I．that at St．Mary Cosmedin，and constructed in it a＂triclinium chm caminatis＂ （ $$ 600$ ）．

SECULAR．The question about the word is whether in early Christianity it designated those who were not in holy orders，or those who were not living under monastic rule．

No very early passage is forthcoming in which the secular is contrasted with the monastic life． Eren after the rise of the Benedictine system we find the term secular contrssted not with regular ns applied to those living under monastic rule， but rather to ecclesisstic；for in the sixteenth Council of Toledo（A．D．693）secular is applied to such as are not priests or bishops（sacerdotes， can．6）．So，again，in the fourth Council of Toledo（A．D．633）the term secular seems alnesist equivalent to layman：＂Quicunque ex secu－ laribus accipientes poenitentiam totonderunt se， et rursus praevaricantes laici effecti sunt ．．．．＂ （can．55）．Yet at this period the word seema to he hovering about its later sense as describing those who are unprofessed，for in the same counci we have the following language：＂Duo sunt genera viduarum，saeculares et sanctimoniales． Sueculares viduae sunt，quae adhuc disponentes， laicalem habitum non deposuerunt＂（Conc．Tol． iv．can．56）．In the 8 th century we find the term secular in the modern sense，as distinguished from ranular：＂Ut si quis secularium sanctae professionis famulatum subire desiderat，non antea tonsurae hahitum suscipiat，quam illius conversatio ac morum yualitas secundum monas－ ticae regulae definitionem mnuifestius probetur＂ （Concil．Cluveshov．ii．c．24）．

The word secular as applied to those who do not live in the monastery is found in those sermons，ad Frutres in Eremo，which pass under the nams of Augustine．It is now，however， generally understood that these sermons are the production of an author long subsequent to the grest Latin father， 80 that we cannot affirm that secular was used in its techpical sense 80 enrly as St．Augustine＇s day．
［H．T．A．］

SECULARIZATION．［ALIENATION．］

SECUNDA（1），July 10 ，virgin，martyr at Rome with Rufina，under Valerian（Mart． Usuard．；Vet．Rom．，Hieron．）．
（2）July 17，one of the Scillimant．
（3）July 30，virgin，martyr at Tuberbo－ lucernaria in Africa，with Maxima and others， under Gallienus（Mart．Usuard．；Vet．Rom．， Hieron．，Notker．）．
［C．H．］
SFCUNDIANUS（1），Feb．17，martyr with Donatus，Romulus，and eighty $=$ six others ；com－ memorated at Concordia in Africa（Nart． Csuard．；Hieron．，Notker．）．
（2）Aug．9，martyr with Marcellianue and Verianus，under Decius；commemorated at

Colonia in Etruria（Mart．Uauard．；Hieren．， Notker．）．

SECUNDINA，July I7，one of the Scillie TANI．

SECUNDINUS，Feb．21，martyr ；cominemc－ rated at Adrumentum with Verolus and others （Mart．Usuard．；Hieron．，Notker．）．
［C．H．］
SECUNDOLUS，Mar．7，called also Secun－ dulus and Secundus［Felicitas（1）］．

SECUNDULUS，Mar．24，commemorated in Mauretania with his brother Romulus（Mort． Usuarl．，Notker．，Wand．）．
［C．11．］
SECUNDUS（1），Mar．7，martyr．［Sects－ Dolus．］
（2）Mny［5，martyr in Spain，bishop of Avila， reputed to have been ordsined by the apostles at Rome（Mart．Usuard．；Vet．Rom．，Adou．）
（3）June 20，martyr；commemorated at Sir－ mium（Syr．Murt．）．
（4）June 30，martyr；commemorated at Syn－ nada in Yhrygia with Democritus and Dionysius．
（5）Ang．26，martyr，leador of the Thelseso Legion ；commemorated at Victimilium ia italy （Mart．Usuard．；let．Rom．，Adon．）．
（6）Nov，15，martyr ；commemorated at An－ tioch with Orentius（Syr：Mart．）．
［C．H．］
SECURUS，Lec．2，martyr in Africa with his brother Verus（Mart．Usuard．；Mieron．， Wand．）
［C．H．］
SEE（Lat．sedes；Fr．siege）．The history of the word sedes，in ecclesiastical usage，is exactly parallel to that of the word Catheirra（ $q . v$. ．）． Designating first simply a seat，sapecially a seat of dignity，it came to be especially applied to the sent of a bishop，and thence to the city ia which he hid his throne．Thus St．Augustine speaks of the cities，the churches of which had apostles for founders，as＂sedes apostolicse，＂ and in later times＂sedes＂came to desigate what we call a＂cathedral church．＂［Diocesk．］
［C．］
SELEUCIA，COUNCILS OF（Seledcies－ sia Concilia）；four in all．（1）A．D． 359 ，st which the Actcians or pure Arisns were cea－ demned by the aemi－Arians．The formuls com－ posed by the latter is given in Latin by Mansi （iii．315－326．）
（2）A．D． 410 ；but this was at the Persisa Seleucia，where forty bishops and metropelitans are said to have met on Christmas Day，and passed twenty－two disciplinnry cnnons，or，according to the Latin version of them puhlished hy Muratori， twenty－seven．But unless this Latin version mis－ represents them seriously，its bare perusal more than confirms the doulits of their gemuineness which he throws ont（Mansi，ib．1165－1174）．
（8）In Persin likewise，but of the Nestorian body，when Acacius，their patriarch，whom Barsumas，the metropolitan of Nisibis，had accused of incontinence，proved his innecence． （Manai，viii．1173－1176．）The authers of $L$＇dit de verif．les Dutes（i．148）make two synods of this，and assign different work to both．
（4）A．D． 57 torians once politans，it is Ezekiel＂ut tramque occide firmare dignar ejus catholici like the grou formed the fir： the effect of canons attribut the headings of ix．873．）

SELEUCU phius and othes persecution（ Ba
（2）Mar．24， Hieron．）．
（3）Sept． 15 Gialatia（Syr．M

SEMANTR

$\mu a \nu т \rho \nu \nu, \sigma \eta \mu a \nu \tau$ substitutes for b of wood，somet （Euchol．560）spe oblongae．＂The ritual of the Gre of the＂semantra monssteries，unde call the monks originally adopte trun＂as＂a lons usually heart of i in length，by $1 \frac{1}{2} f t$ In the centre of $t$ scoeped out to sll the left hinnd，wl right，with which and at various ant gether ammusical suspended by chai （Senle，Hist．of The word for stri tpor was the ki alone or with そú入o was used as the so the joy felt at Con of the relics of $S$ iepa そín $\alpha \quad \sigma \eta \mu \alpha ́ \nu a \nu$ Labbe et Cossart， Theodosius the are （Prat．Spirit．），we of the party of Sev at his devotions，＂ln heur，and of Theod iag，with a star ove To §úhov（ibid．§§ 73 devotions before the крои́гuatos \＆pas（C $43,59)$ ．The officer the semantron was AdnTクs． Though usnally were sometimes of is

[^153]
SELEUCUS

(4) A.D. 576, in Persia, and comprosed of Nestorians once more, whose bishops and metropulitinus, it is suid, requested their catholicos Ezekiel "ut fidem legesque Apostolorum patrumque occidentataitom ipsis rursuls pronere et confimmre dignaretur, quemadmodum predeceskores ejus catholici fivere consueviasent." This is too like the ground alleged by the bishops whe formed the first of these Persian synoods to be the efficet of chance; but of the thirty-nine canons attributed to this synod, we have barely the headings of one-third to judge froune (Mrunsi,
ix. 873. .
[E. S. Ff.]
SELEUCUS (1), Feb. 16, martyr with Pumphins and others at Caesarea, in the Diecletian persecution (Basil. Menol.).
(2) Mar. 24, martyr in Syria (Mart. Usuard., Hieron.).
(3) Sent. 15 martyr ; commemorated in Galatial (Syr.; Mart.).
[C. H.] [C. H.] SEMANTRON ${ }^{*}$, or SEMANTERION ( $\sigma$ 斤-of wood, sometimes of iron or brass usually oblongre." There is so little change in the ritual of the Greek church that the present form of the "semnntra" which are in daily use in the monasteries, under the nume of "simandro," b to call the monka to service, is probably that ariginally adopted. Nenle describes a "semmntrin" " "on tron" as "" long, well-planed piece of timber, unally heart of rianple, from 12 ft and upwards in length, by $1 \frac{\mathrm{f}}{\mathrm{f} .}$. lioad, and 9 in. in thickuess." In the centre of the length, each edge is slightly scooped out to allow the pricst to grasp it by the left hand, while he holds a mallet in tha right, with which "he atrikes it in various parts and at varions angles, eliciting sounds nut altogether unmusical." The semnatra are usually suspended by chains from a peg in the pronulion (Neale, $H$ ist. of Holy tiast (Neale, Hist, of Holy Nast. Ch. Introd, p. 2177 .
The word for striking or sounding the $\sigma \eta \mu \mathrm{av}-$ Tpov was the kindred verb onnaduciv, either was used as the sound itself. Thus we find that the joy felt at Constantinople on the trauslation of the relics of St. Ana tasius was shewn $\tau \mathbf{d}$ Labbe et Cossart, xiii, 22). in the Life of St. Theodosius the archimandrite, given by Moschus (Prat. Spurit.), we read of some Lut ychian monks of the party of Severus, who, to disturb the saint at his devotions, "beat the wood" at an unwonted hour, and of Theodosiua beholding Nonnus praying, with a star over hia head, $\pi \rho \delta$ rồ к $\rho$ oū̃as ro $\ddagger \dot{1} \dot{10 \nu}$ (ibid. §\$ 73, 74). St. Sabas rose tor his derotions before the hour of striking, $r \rho \delta \tau \hat{\eta} s \tau a \hat{v}$ кроíruaros ápas (Cyril. Scythop. Vit. S. Sab. §§ 43,59). The officer whose duty it was to oound the semantron was the candle-lighter, kouvo $\eta-$ גdmys.
Though uanally of wood, the "semant- ${ }^{4}$ " wers sometines of iron, áyucoitinpa, or of brasa.

[^154]
SENCHUS MOR

These were formed of alightly curved inetal plates, und gave out a sound not unlike that of a gong.
Semantra were of different sizes, lnrger nnd amaller ; $\sigma . \mu \dot{\epsilon} \gamma \alpha, \sigma . \mu$ ukpóv. Thus we rend in кal $\sigma \eta \mu a i v e 1$ tò $\mu$ ' $\gamma$ a (ijid. c. 1). The smaller were sounded first, thrn the larger (Goar, Euchol. p. 473), which were followed by those of iron. Theudore Balsamon, in a trentise devoted to the subject, compares the sounding of the little, great, and iron" "semantrn" to the preaching of the law a. of the gospel, nod the last trump. He says alsul that the cengregations were summonell by three "semantra" in nocuasteries, and only by one large onc in parish churches.

The slow deep notes, at long intervals, produced from the "semantra" nt funcrals, were called ai $\beta$ apeiat, and the striker wass sinid kpaú ly Tàs Aupéas (Gonr, Euchol. p. 560).
"Semantra," from their sizc aul shape, furnished formidnble weapons, and were sonnetimea so used with fatal effeet in a church brawl (Nich (Mick. alyc. Annul. p. s02; Scylitzes, $p$. 637 ).
[E. V.]
SENA TOR, Sept. 26, martyr ; commemorated at Albanum (MArt. Usuard., Heron.). [C. H.]
SENATORIUM. A term used in the nacient Roman urdines to desiguate the part of the church which was rescrved for nobles. It was on the south side of the church opposite tho part assigned to women. When the oblations were made by nobles, the pore or priest descended into the senatorium to receive them. The enperors, however, took thcir oblations to the nltur itself. From the use of the ternm by Martene (de Eccl. Rit. I. iv. x. 4, vol. i. p. 155, fol.), it appenrs that at Rome the scnatoriun was that part of the church which was occupied by (what we should call) the nristocrney. When the pope was going to distribute the nacrument, ntter communicating these who were in orders, "descendit in senstorium, ubi magnates Eucharistia reficiebnt." [H. T.'A.] SENCHUS MOR, a collection of ancient Irish laws, moditied from the pagan code to meet the Christian requirements. It is the embodinent of ante-Christian Brehon law, and, with its additions, interpretations, and glosses, has formed the authoritative Brehon code fiom a very early date down even to the 16th ceutury. But the time and circunstances of its cempilintion tion are matters of dispute. Ancient tradition and its present Introduction attribute it primarily to St. Patrick, who had acquired suticient influence to procure a purgation of the pagan lawz, and the infusion into them of a milder tone and purer Christian principles. Thls was between the sixth and the ninth years after St. Patrick'a arrivnl, and in the reign of Laeghalre, minnarch of Jreland (A.D. 428-463). The Irish Athals of Ulster and Annals of Thyernach give the exact year, A.D. 438 ( 0 'Conor, Rer. Ilib. Script. ii. 101,' iv. . 1), a date which may. point to the theory of the compilation as presented below. Nine are sidd to have been engaged together in the work, viz. three kings, Laeghalre, with Core kiug of Munster, and Daire, a chief io Ulster; three bishops, St. Patrick, Benignus his suecessor at. Armagh, and Cairnech of Tuilen; and three puets or judges, Rossa, son of Trichem, Dubhthach mac Us Lugair, and Ferghus (Senchus Mor, i. p . 5). This would assign the origimal draft of the Suchus Mor to about the middle of the oth century, nud the memory of St. Patrick's condexion with it was perpetuated by the deep everence ever pid to its constitutions, nn' the name given to it of "Cain Patraie" or Patrick's law. It was alio called Nuifir or Nopir, the knowledge of the Nine (Scrichus Mor, i. 17).

But this Patrician origin has been keenly disputed ' (Lanigan, Ecel. Mist. Ir: i. c. 7, § 15), and had objections raised to it on the score of history and chronology (l'etrie, Mist. and Antiq. Tara Hill, pass. ; Truns. Roy. Ir. Acad. xviii. 52 sq. ; Todi, St. I'atrich, 88 . sq., following Petrie). Its critics and opponents would graut it Christian authority, but of a date later than St. Patrics's time. But in the edition of the Sinchus Mor (published under direction of the Commissioners for publishing the Ancient Laws nod Institutes of heland, 3 vols. Lond. 1865 sqq.) the editar, Mr., W. Neilson Hancock, has met these objec tions and upholls the cotrician origin, while he shews that much has since been added, and allusious are made in it to interpretations and Brthon judgments of a mueh later date. The era of St. Patrick was peculiarly appropriate for the codification of the Brehon laws in Irelaud, es ${ }_{r} e$ cially at the instance of a lamnu citizen who hai newly arrived from the Continent, where a similar proecss upon the Roman eivil fnw was being carried out with all the weight of the imperial authority. The Theodosian Code received th: imperial sanctien in A.D. 4:38. (O'Curry, $i$ t. Mlun. and Cust. Anc. I $I$. ii. 24 sqq ., nud Lect. MS. Materiuls of Anc. Irish Hist. 16. 91, ed. 1873; Futr Mast. by O'Donovan, i. 132-34 n. ; Keatiug, Gen. Mist. If. B. ii.)

The Senchus Mor (derived from the Celtic root sen, old, and mor, in recognition of its nuthority) is in so sense an historical treatise, but is a body is laws, criminal, commercial, social, military and agramian, contuiuing the origiant text with a large collection of glosses, interpretations, and Brehon retinements. It is interesting as a record of ancient law, and doubly valuable as shewiug the mellowing intluences of Christianity upon heatheuism.
[J. G.]
SENIOR, n presbyter or priest, one belonging to the second order of the Christian ministry. The usige arose from the more common rendering of $\pi \rho \in \sigma \beta u{ }^{2} \tau \rho 0$ in Seripture. Thus in Aets xv. 6 the enrly version gives "Apostoli et seniorcs" (Sabatier, Bibl. Ster. Vers. Ant. iii. 549), and this is preserved by St. Jerome; similarly ib. 22 (Sah. 552 ; Hierou.) or 23 (ib.), xvi. 4 (Sab., Hier.). In Acts xiv. 2, xy. 23, St. Jerome gives presbytaros. The word is used in this sense by Tertullian ( $A /$,ol. 39), Firmilian ( $E p$ ad Cypr. n. 75 inter Lup. cypr. ed. Ben, "seniorea et praepositi" $=$ priests and bishops), and Paulinus ( 1 p, 4 ad Amand.. "nomine officioque seniores)." It vecurs also in the Missale Fhimourum, "Probet ne csse seniorem" (Litury. Gall. Mabill. 307), and the Missale Galliamun Vetus of Thomasius and ochers, "Aedificet ancerdotes (the bishops) "xaltet seniores, illustret Levitas" (the dercous) bid. 337). The prayers in which these uccur are probahly enrlier than the codices in which we find them. We may mention, howeyer, that so Jate as the beginuing of the 7th century Gregory I., writing to a bishop in whose diocene Greek was spoken, uses the direct equivalent to the Greek term, "consensus seaiorum et eleri" (Epist, ad Joun. Panorm. xi. 51). Compara Pathon, p. 1577.

SENNES (1), July 30, martyr at Rome, with Abdon, Persian subreguli, under Decius (Mart. Bed., Metr. Bed., Flor., Usunrd.; Ict. Rom., Adon.; Hieron., Notker., Wand.). The Liber Antiphonarius of Gregory has an ollice for their natale.
(2) Nov. 29, deacon, martyr ; commemornted at Rome with the deacons Snturninus and sisinlius [SATrraninus (9)].
[C. H.]
SENS, COUNCIL OF (Stinonense Conclliun), A.d. '0l. but t'e only thing, not purely conjectural, repn .. ' 0 it seems to be that St. Bethar, bishop wi Chartres, was favourably received there. (Mnnsi, x. 485.)
[E. S. Yf.]
SEPTEM DORMIENTES (Sevien Sleepers or Ephesus), martyrs, Jiad. 8, Mar. 4, Aug. 13 (Cul. Ethiop.); Jan. 19 (Cal. Armun.) ; Aug. 4, Oct. 22 (Cul. Byzant.) ; commemornted st Ephesus, Ang. 10 (Hart. Hieron.), June 27 (Notker.).
[C. H.]
SEPTEM FRATRES, July 10 (Vet. Fom. Mart.). Their intereessions are prayed for in the Gregoriau Sacrimentary on July 10. They must be the seven sous of Felicitas (cf. J/int. Bedp July 10).
[C. H.]
SLi TFY VIRGINES, April 9 ; commemorated at : rmium (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Alton, Vet. Rom., Hieron. giving four ouly, Wand. giving five).
[C. H.]
SEPCIMIUS, April 18, martyr ; commemorated at Salonie with Hermogenes (Syr. Morf.).
[C. H.]
SEPTIMUNTIA, COUNCIL OF (SEMTLmuncense Concilium), a.d. 418 (?), one of the many councils of this period in Afriea whose caneas-in this case six-are known to us only through Ferrandus. (Mansi, iv. 439.)
[E. S. Fif]
SEPTIMUS (1), Aug. 17, monk, narter, with Liberatus an abbat, and others; commemo. rated in Africa (Mart. Usuard., Adon.).
(2) Oct. 24, martyr, with Fortuatus, readers, under Diocletian; commemornted at Venusia (Mart. Usuard., Adon. ; Vet. Lion.).

SEPTUAGINTA DISC; :
[c.

commemorated on Jan. 4 (is commenorated on Jan. 4 (

$\therefore$ DOMNL
$m^{2}$ ).
SEPULCHRE, EAST:
nongst the many elahorate rites with wath the abcion! church solemnised the week before Easter was the ceremony of the Sepulchre. It is thus described in the anclent ordinariun of Bareus: "On Good Friday a 'sepulchre' is prepariol

SEPU

towards the lef and costly linen the cross, the ro mental phinte ; a asid; the sepuls all depart (nceo of Poictiers), le the sepulchre, w Martene (de only gives exn England (Sarum from which the can be interret renson to suppo: rise of transubst: practice ot" "ress that existed cen formulated.

SEPULCHR more than thisty the site of the commencerl,-the the traditional si German hooksell newed the attack second wall must church - a thive Rev. George Will taining that not ons chain of hist but that the see have run east of t 1847, advanced t forgery of the 10 that now occupie ayd Mr. Finlay i new and ingeniou site, to which we then, many book: sile or the other. of Professor Willis, sud Lewin. Colon erdennce surrey o of the eity have b mivel by him, co M. Clermont Gand Professor E.. H. Paln of sn Aruhic histo of the Rock to have
The question dir the prevent site the of Constantine? anc or even probably, tl was buried?
A. The evidence torical and architec as briefly as the su torical eridence w Sepulchre from the I. [A.D. 326.] Th the year 326 . An detail by an eye-wit Fistorian Eusebius. ever heen thrown He says (Life of sxvi. et seq.) :
"It hat been in $t$ impious men to col oblivion that divine $\therefore$ This sacred ca thought to remore , these occur s in which weyer, that th century hose diucene nivalent to im et cieri" Соmpare [ ${ }^{\circ}$. E. S. S ] - at Rome, ader Iecins mard.; lict. rand.). The an otlice for nmemorated 13 and sisiu-
[C. II.]
nense Con, not purely be that St. favourably [E. S. Ff.]
[E. S. Ff.] nook, martyr, rs; commemo deu.).

Fortunitus, amemorated at Vet. Ron.).
[C. H.]

I DOMLNI,

 (n').-nongst the oh the arcion! tore Easter wis re. It is thuls ininn of Bareus: $e^{\prime}$ is prepariol towards the left horn of the altar, with eushien nud costly linen. Inside this the hishop buries the eross, the reserved sacrnment and the sacra. mental plate; an appropriate form of service is said; the sepulehre is censed, and closed; when all depart (according to a most ancient Rituals of Poictiers), leaving ouly two persons to guavd the sepulehre, which remiuns till Easter."
Martene (de Ant. Ecel. Rit. IV. xxill. 27) only gives exnmples of this in France and England (Sarum), and he furnishes no partic ulars from which the date of this singular performance can be inierred. There seems, however, no reason to suppose that it was coeral with the rise of transulstantiation, as it is phain that the practice of "reserving" the sacrament was one that existed centuries before that dogma wis fermulated.
[H. T. A.]

SEPULCHRE, THE HOLY. It Is now

 mure than thirty years since the e atroversy on the site of the Holy Sepulchre was first finirly cominenced,-though doults were throwa upinn the traditienal site a huadred years ago by the German bookseller Korte. Dr. Robinson renewed the nttack in 1842 by arguing that the second wall must have run outside the present chureh - a thing fatal to its traditions. The Rev. George Williams defended the site, maintaining that not only was there a continuens chain of historical evidence in its favour, but that the second wall could be proved to have run east of the church. Mr. Fergusson, in 1847, advanced the theory that the site wns a forgery of the 10th century, the real site being that now occupied by the Dome of the Rock; sad Mr. Finlay in the same year attempted a new und ingenious defence of the traditional site, to which we shall presently allude. Since then, many books have been written on one side or the other. Among them are the worksof Professor Willis, De Vogié, De Sauley, Tobler, sud Lewin. Colonel Wilson has proviced the ordance survey of Jerusnlem; the roek levels of the eity have been almost completely determined by him, Colenel Wareen, Lieut. Conder, M. Clermont Ganneau, and Herr Schick ; and Professor E. H. Palmer has published a translation of an Arabic historian, which makes the Dome The question divides itself in to two :-Melek. The question divides itself into two: (A) Is the present site that fixed upon by the efficers of Constantine? and (B) Was that site certainly, or even probably, the true spot where our Lord was buried?
A. The evidence for the first question is historical and arehitectural. We propose to cite, us briefly ns the subject permits, the chief historical evidence which bears upen the Holy Sepulchre from the Constantinian period.
I. [A.D. 324.]' The sepulchre was recovered in the year 326. An account is given in some detail by an eye-witness of the whole event, the Historian Eusebius. No doubt whatever has erer heen thrown erer heen thrown upon his trustworthiness. He says (Lifo of Constantine, Book iii. chap.
zuvi, et seq.): zxvi, et seq.):
"It had been in time past the endeaveur of Impious men to consign to the darkness of oblivion thet divine mouument of immortnlity. . This sacred cave certnin godless persons thought to remove entirely thought to remove entirely from the $\begin{gathered}\text { "es of } \\ \text { of }\end{gathered}$ men, supposing in their felly thnt thus they should be able effectunlly to conceal the truth. Accordingly, they brought a quantity of earth from a dintusee with much latour and covered the entire spot; theu, having raised this to a molerate height, they paved it with stone, concealing the hely enve beacath this massive mound. Then, as though their purpose had been effectually accomplished, they prepare on this foundation $n$ truly dreadful sepulchre of sonts, by building n gioomy shris? of hifeless ithols to the impure spirit whom they call Venus." These devices of impious and wickedi men against the truth had prevailed for a long time; nor had any one of the governors, or military cemmanders, or even of the emperors themselves, as yet appenred with ability to abolish these daring impieties sare daring impieties, save only our prince. . . . He gnve orders that the plate should be thoroughly purified. ... As soen as his commands wers ssued, these engines of deceit ware enst down, overthrowa, and ntterly destroyed. Fired with holy ardour, the emperor directed thac the ground itself should le dug up wa considerable depth, nad the soil . . . transported to a distant place. . .. But ns soon as the original surface of the ground under the covering of earth nppeared, immediately, nad contrary to all expectation, the venerable and hallowed moDument of our Saviour's z esurrection was diseovered. . . .
"Inmediately afterwards, the emperor sent forth injunctions granting ample supplies of money, and commanding that a house of praye: worthy of the worship of God should be erected near the Saviour's tomb, on a seale of rich and royal greatness
Here follows the letter of Constantine, in which occurs a remarkable passage, the follow-ing:-"'That the monument of His most holy Passion, so leng buried beneath the ground, should hnve remained unknown for so long a aries of years until its renppearance, ..; is a fiet which truly surpasses nll admiration."
"usebius resumes the anrrative:-
"Accordingly, on the very spot which witnessed the Saviour's sufferings, n new Jerusalem was constructed over against the one so celebrated of eld, which, siace the toul stsin of guilt brought en it by the murder of the Lord, had expericoced the last extremity of desolation. It was opposite this city that the emperor began to rear a monument to the Saviour's victory over death.
"First, he adorned the sacred cave itself . . This monument, as the ehief' part of the w. "e, the emperor's zealous magnificence beautined with rare columns, nud profusely euriched with the most splendid decorations of every kind. The next object of his attention was a spnce of ground of great extent open to the pure air of heaven. This he adorned with a pavement of finely-polished stone, and enclosed it on three sides with porticees of great length; for at the side opposite to the sepulchre, which was the enstern side, the church itself was erected-a noble work risin; t. a rast height, and of great extent both in length and breadth."
${ }^{4}$ A coin of Jerusalem, of the reign of Antoninus Plus, bears upon the obverse a temple of Venus. Thts coln is engraved in Wiltams's Holy City.

1882 SEPULC SE, THE HOLY

The description of this church follows:-

"In the aext place he enclosed the atrium which occupied the space lealing to the entrance In froit of the church. This comprehended first the court, then the porticoces on ench slde, and lavtly the gates of the court. This, then, in the midst of the open market-plate, the entrance-gates of the whole work, which were of $\operatorname{sxquisite}$ workmanship, afforded to passers-by on the outaide a view of the interim, which could not farl to inspire astonishment."
II. The date of the "recovery" or "discovery" of the tomb, A.D. 326, was seven years before the anonymous Bordeaux Pilgrim visited Jerunaltin. The bulldings were then in progress, two years before the Dedication. The following is his evideuce. Becnuse, in his case, as well as in several others quoted, his words have been translated so as to mean quite different things, the Latin anly is given.

He describes the Terajes in ita ruiued condition, where there was shition an "eurgulas turris excelsissimae," the pinnacl of tompt tion-"ad caput anguli et sub pinua turbis ipains, suut cubicola pharima ubi Salomon palatima habebat;" no doubt the substruciret stitl koown as Solomon's stables. Colona 'sarrea has revived the tradition of the pigrim by placing Solonion's palace on the ajot. A remarkable pasbige follows: "In aede ipsi ubi Templum thit quod Salomon aedificavit, iu marmore ante aram sang nivem Zachariae." What was the acties ipsa? And did the pilgrinn confuse Hadrian's with Solemon's temple? If the memory of Herod as a builder had so completely perished, why not that of Hadrian? A line or two lower down he says, however, "sunt ibi et statuae duae Hadriani."
From the Temple he takes us to the Holy Sepulchre in the following words:-
" 1 tem , exeunti in Hierus:lem, ut ascendas Sieo, in parte sinistra, et deorsum in valle juxta murum, est piscina, quae dicitur Siloa, habet quadriporticum. . . lade eâdem viầ ascenditur Siou et paret ubi fuit domus Cainphae sacerdotis, et columaa adhue ibi est, ia quê Christum flagellis ceciderunt. Jutus autem, intra murum Sion, paret locus ubi palatium habuit David. . . Inde ut eas furis murum de siou (eunti ad portam Neapolitanam) ad partem dexteram, deorsum in valle suat parretes ubi domus tuit sive prnetorium Pontii Pilati: ubi Dominus auditus est antiquum patrretur. A siaistrâ auten parte est meuticulus Golgotha, ubi Dominua crucifixus est. Inde quasi nd lapidem missum est crypta ubi corpus ejus positum fuit et tertiâ die resurrexit. Ibidem modo jussu Constantini imperntoris Lasilica facts est, id est Dowinicum mirae pulchritudinis, habens ad latus exceptoria node aqua levatur et balneum à tergo ubi infantes lavantur:"
III. [A.D. 337.] The Onomasticen places Golgotha on the north of Mount Zion.

1V. [A,D. 350.] While the templ's of Vcaus with its foundations was being cleare! away, thers might have been, and most ir hay y was present, a Christian lad, native of cuf, lsalem, eleven years of age, watching the discovery, which did as much as the grent luminous crose which appeared in the sky four years later to confirm the duabtful and streagtheu the faithful, that of the reck contaning the sacred

SEPULCHRE, TIIE HOLY

tomb. It was Cyril, afterwurds bishop of Jeru* snlem. One must not forget. that he is the third eje-witness who speaks of these things; that, theugh he was a boy at the time of the discovery, he lived in Jerusalem, nnd mut hava watehed, step by step, the progress of the great basilica; that be wan ordained before the cons pletion and dedication of the buildings, nat that many, if not all, of his lectures were delinead in the ehurch of the Anastasis itelf. "The lingg of this day," he says, "have in their r.ty built this holy tharch of the Resorrectien . . In which we are nssenilled."

Tho statements of tsut which have been gis thered from Cyril wust therefore be ndmitted, unless there can be shewn any temptation to exnggerate, as exactly true. Four are inprortant. They are as fullowa :-
(a) "The cleft which was at the tor of the aalutary sepulehre . . . was hewit aut of the roek itself, as is customary here in the front of sepulchres. For now it appenes not, the vuter cave having been hewn away for the sake of the present adormsent; for, before the sepulchre was decorated ly roynal zeal, there was a cave in the face of the reek."
(b) "Though the place"-outside the sepulchre -"is now alorned, and that most excellently, with royal gifts, yet it was before a garden, and the tokens nad traces thereof remain."
(f) "The sepulchre consisted origitally of a double eave, of which the exterior wis cut away for the sake of the present adornment."
(d) "The entrance . . . was hewn out of the reck itself, as is customary here in the front of aepulchres. Now it appears not : the outur cave or vestibule having been hewn away for the salke of the present adormment; but before the i wulchre was decorated by royal zeal there was ave in the face of the rock" (Lect. xiv.).
V. Sanctae Paulae Peregrinatio (cirea A.D. 380). After praying at the Holy Sepulchre, she ascends Sion :-
"Inde egrediens abcendit Sion quae in areem vel apeculam vertitur. Hane urliem quondara expugnavit et reaedificavit David."
V1. P. Eucherii epitume de aliquibus locis Sanctis (A.D. 427):-
"Situs ipse urbis pene in orbem circumactus, non parvo murorum ambitu, que etian muntea Sion, quondam vicinum, jam intra se reeipit, que, a meridie positus, pro aree urli supereminet. Major civitatis pars infra moutem jacet in planitie humilioris collis posita.
" Mons Sion latere uno, qued squilonem respicit, clericorum religiosorumque halitationibus frequeatatur: eujus in vertice planitiem monachorum cellulae obtinent ecclesiam circumdantes, quae illie, ut fertur, ab apostolis fundata pra loci resurrectionis dominicae reverentin.
"Primum de lecis sanctis. Prn conditione platearum divertendum est ad be martyrium appellatur a Constal. cultu extructa. Dehinc cohaerer:
iguo insunt Golgotha atque $8 \%$ :asis: $\quad$ anastasis in loco est resurrectionis, $G$. 1 c, medjus inter anastasim ac martyrit; ;eche cut lomivicae passionis; in quo etiam apparet quap quondam ipsam, affixe Dom: wi con jore, crucen pertulit. Atqua haec tum est in montem Sion pesita cernuntur; quo se ad kiqul'men' "ficieos. laci tumor parigit. Templan varo aterivi parte urbis magnificequ fuit.
"Al ca rupe crient thyue e rad V!1. This (sixth (enter "In med eceldentis in est sepalcru est ibi mon gradus callis ibi est altar Sepmlere Do pascis nume wis 1 uc in Golg De Gulgotha aunnero CL, arua.
quae est mod minus passus prsetorium $\mathbf{P}$ lbl est ecclesin
Let us paus Zion. It seen clusion that al the western h thas the Bord at all. Paula Sepulchre to a mesaing at all the Chureh of it. Eucherius Kion, which car that on the w basiliea in the which would ne of the Rock. Conder hns ren spond to the Go resched by step:
VIII. Antoni jouraey at a da however, some Persian conquest placed on the 3 this triveller. statement thist t rock:-
"Ingressi aun guâ adoravimus Ipsum mouumen positum fuit, in Lucernae hydria posita fuerat ibide Lapis vero unde ipsum est aote ill
IS. On the con II. in 614, the entirely destroyed The nuthorities temporary with Pascha'e, Modestu Antiochus the m untharities - dese rehuilding of the writes : "Modest nostri quae quidem ia sublime erigit tione, puta aedes Resurrectionis: d parte urbis in vicinin muri ab oriente locatum magnificeque constructum quondam miraculum
" AL ell fronte montis Sion, quae praerupt rupe crientalem phagam spectat, infra muros atqua " ratheibus collis fons Siloa prorumpit."
ixth. Thaderi Liber de situ Terrae Sanctae (oixth century):-
"In medio civitatls est basilica. A parte oceldentis intras in sanctann resurrectionenn ubi est sepalerom Dominl nostri lesu Christi. Et est ibi mons Calvarine ad quem montem per gradus call:s est. Ibi Dominus crucifixus est et ibi est altare grande; sub unu tecto est. De Sepulern Dortine msque in Calvariae locam sunt pase:ts numero XV. . . . Ds Calvarian loco usilw in Golgotham passus sunt numero XV.... Do Golg itha usque in Sanctum Sion passus numero CC, quae est mater omaiun ecelesiarum, . . . De Sancta Sion ad domum Caiaphae quae est modo ecclesia Sancta Petri sunt plus minus passus numero L. De dome Cainphiee ad praetorium Pilati plus minus passus numero $\mathbf{C}$. Ibi est ecelesia sanctae Sophiae,"
Let us pause here to consider the position of Zion. It seems impossible to avoid the conclusion that all are agreed in describing as Zion the western hill. It is only on that supposition that the Bordeaux Pilgrim can be understood st all. Paula goes from the Chureh of the Sepulehre to ascend Zion, a phrase which has no meaning at all if Zion were the eastern hill and the Church of the Sepulchre built on the top of it. Eucherius speaks of the city lying below Zion, which cun only be said of the higher hill, thst on the west; and Theodorus places the basilica in the middle of the city, a statement which would never have been made of the Dome of the Rock. Aguin, there is nothing, as Lieut. conder has remarked, in the Haram to correspond to the Golgoths of Theodorus, which was reached by steps.
VIII. Antoniaus Placentinus undertook his journcy at a date which is uncertain. It was, however, some time between Justininn and the Persian conquest. Very little reliance is to be placed on the statements or measurements of this traveller. Hs corroborates, however, the statement that the sepulchre was cut out of the rock:-
"Ingressj sumus in sanctrm civitatem, in quâ adoravimus Domini monumentum ... Ipsum mouumentum in quo corpus Domini positum fuit, in uaturalem excisum est petram. Lucernae hylria quae illo tempore ad caput ejus posita fuerat ibidem ardet diu noctuque: . . . Lapis vere unde clausum fuit monumentum psum est sate illud monumentum."
IX. On the conquest of Jerusalem by Chosroes Il. in 614, the whole of the buildings were entirely destroyed, but rebuilt in 6:30.
The authorities for this statement are contemporary with the event. The Curonicon Aastiochus the monk-all ( ${ }^{\text {Prsica }}$ Captivitate), and Antherities - describe the three contemperary -ebuilding of the church. Thestruction and the writes: "Modestus church. The lant-named nostri quae quidem barbarice templa Salyatoris ia sublime crigit omni prorsus conflagrarunt tione, puta aedes sanctse Calvarigna veneraResurrectionis: domum insuper dignam omni bonore venerandae Crucls, quae mater ecelesiarum est."

SEPULCLIRE, THE HOLY 1883

There seems to be littlo reason for doubting that this account is true. A statement supported by three contemporary independent authorities, and followed by all subsequent historians, has a strong groundwork of probability. Add to this the undoubtedly sarage character of the Persian conquest, and the general consent that his camp followers wero guilty of horrible strocities. Add, too, the difference between the buildings described by Eusebius und the Bordeaux Pilgrim, and the churches described by Arculf, and there The building no room whatever for any doubt. and artitigs of Constantine form a symmetrical the sepolchre $y$-constructed whole. There was less. There warrounded with pillars, and roufand the market-place open sprace, the atrium, next period, as des. in the buldings of the Eatychius, and cscribed by Arculf, Willibald, churches (not other writers, there are three St. Mary), sep counting the small church of nexion. separate, without architectural con-

X. [cirea A.D. 680.] We proceed to the account of Arculf. It was taken down from hls own lips ly Adamnanus, abbot of Columba in Iona. The date of the journey of Arculf cannot be determined; no one knows where he lived, or of what sce he was bistop. He is made by Adamnanus to speak of "Majuvias, Saracenorum rex, qui nostrâ aetate fuit." Now Moawiyah, the first khalif of the Ommiades, reigned from $661-$ 679. Mr. Wright thinks that the visit of Arculf to Jerusalem took place not long after that sovereign's death. If the conjecture be correct, he visited the town ten years before the reputed building by Abd-el-Melek of the Dome of the Roek. "On the spot where the Temple onee stood, near the eastgrn wall, the Saracens have erected a square house of prayer, in a rough manner, by raising beams and plauks upon some remains of old ruins; this is their place of worship, and it will hold about 3000 men. . . . The church of the Holy Sepulchre is very large and round, encompassed with three walls, with a broad space between each, and coniaining three walt of wouderfinl workminship, in the middle wall at three separate points: on the south, the north, and the west. It is supported by twelve stone columas of extraordinary workmanship; and it has eight doors or entrances through the opposite walls, four fronting the north-east, four the south-east. In the miodle space of the inner circle of the house is a ronad chamber, cut out of a single piece of rock, within which nine men can pray standing, and the roof of which is about a loot and a half higher than a man of ordinary stature. . . . Within, on the north side, is the tomb of our Lord, hewn out of the sar rock, 7 fect in length, and rising three palnis abore the floor." These measurements were tnken by Arculf with his own hand. "The tomb is broad enough to hold one man lying on his back, and has a waised division in the stone to separite tha legs. The entrance" (i.e. of the loculus) "is In the south side, and there are twelve lamps burning day and night, according to the niluber of the twelve apostles. . . . . Internally, the stone of the rock remains in its original state, and still exhibits the marks of the workmen's tools: its colour is not uniform, but appears to be a mixture of white and red." JIo goes on to deseribe the other churehes which then formed the groul- the square church of the Virgiu Mary, and to the east the large church buit on the site of Golgotha. "Uniler the place of the cross n cave is hewn in the rock, in whleh sacrifice is olfered on on altar." If that is true, what has become of the eave, aud how couli a care be cut in the rock enst of the plathorm in the Jlaram esh-shereef, where the ground has a slope of one in six? Aljoining the church of Golgotha to the east again was the basilica of Constantine-the Martyrion. Between the Anastasis nad the Nartyrion Areulf speaks of an open space, doubthess that descrided by Eusebius.

1884 SEPULCHRE, THE HOLY

'Ihis description, with the rude plan which accompaules it, is evidently onc extructed, so to apeak, by numberless enger questions. Adamnanus wished above all things to form a clear ilea in his own mind of the most holy of holy plnces.
XI. [A.D. 690.] The Dome of the Ronk, which Is according to Mr. Fergusson's theory Constantine's er. ction, over the Iloly Sepulenre was built, according to Arabic historinns, on this yenr by Abd-cl-Melek. Three Arnbic writers--Jelal-edDîa, Kemel-ed-Dîn, and Mejr-ed-J)în-agree in descitining the erection by the Khalif. Prof. E. H. Pilmer hats givea a full necount from these sources in his History of lerusalem (p. 79 et seq.). Eutychius, himself of Arnis extractiun, also ascribes the Dome to Abd-el-Melek.
XII. [A.D. 800.] The church of the IVoly Sepulchre was given by Haroun-al-Raschid to Charlemagne.
XIII. [A.D. 765.] After the denth of St. Willibald, who visited Jerusalem tour times, the last about the year 765, a description of the sacred places was written by his biographer, apparently from his own narrative. It is found in the Acta Sancto von, and is quoted by Mr. Fergusson, Canos Williams, and Professor Willis. As in the case of the Bordeaux Pilgrim, the words have been used by controversialists to support opposite views: "Et inde venit ad Hacrustlem ia illam locum ubi inventa fucrat sancta crux Dumini. Ibi aunc est eqcelesia in illo loco qui dicitur Calvariae locus : et haec fuit prios extra Hierusalem; sed Helcar quande invenit crucem, collocavit ilinm locum intus intra Hierusalem.
"Et ibi stant nuac tres cruces lignene foris in orientali plaga ecclesiae, secus parietem, al memoriam saactae crucis dominicae et aliorum qui cum eo crucifixi eraut. Has non sunt aunc in ecclesia sed foris stast sub tecto extra ecclesiam: et ibi secus est ille hortus in quo tuit sepulcrum Salvatoris. Illul sepulerum fuerat in petra excisum, et illa petra stnt super terram et est quadrans in uno et in summo subtilis.
"Et stat nunc in summitate illius sepulchri crux et ibi supra nunc aedificata est mirabilis domus et in oriestali plaga in illa petra sepulchri est ostium factum per quod intrunt homines in sejulchrum orare. Et ibi est iatus lectus, ubi corpus Domini jacebat $\qquad$ . Hle lectus in quo corpus Domini jacebat stat in Iatere aquilonis iutus in petra sepulchri et hominl est in dextria maun quando intat in sepulchrum orare. Et ibi ante jnnuans sepulchri jacet ille lapis magnus quadrans iu similitudino prioris lapidis quem angelus revolvit ab ostiu monumenti."

sepulchre, the holy

XIV. About the year 870 the monk Beruhard visited Jerusalem. The followlng is his account of the second group of bulldings:-
"Recepti sumus in hospitale gloriosisslml imperntoris Caroll, in quo suncipiunt or omues qui causà devotionis illum adeunt locum lingua Joquentes Romana; cui moljncet ecelesia in honore sanctae Marlae, aobilissimam hubens bibliothecam studio praedicti imperatoris, cum xii. masionibus, agris vineis, et horto ln valle Josaphat. Intra hane civitatem, exeeptis aliis ecelesiis, quatnor eminent ecrlesine mutuis sibjmet parietibus cohnerestes, una videlicet ad orientem, quae habet montem Caivariae et locum ia quo reperta fuit crux Domiai et rocntur basllien Coastontinl; nlin ad meridiem: tertia ad occidentem, iu eujus medio est sepulcrum Dominl, habens ix. columnas in circuitu sui inter quas cousistunt prletes ex optimis lapidibus; es quibus ix. colunnis iv. sunt ante faciem ipsius monumenti quae cum suis parictibus clandust lapidem coram sepulchro pasitun, quem angelus revolvit et super quem sedit post peractam Domini resurrectionem. De hoe sepulchro no est necesse fulara scribere cum dicat Beda in historia anglorum sua sullicientia . . Inter praedictas igitur iv. ecclesias est paradisus sise tecto, cujus pnrictes aure radinat; pavimentum vero lapide struitur pretiosissimo halens in medio sul continium iv. eatenarum quac veaiuat a praedictis quatuor ecclesiis in quo dicitur medius esse mundus."
XV. In the year 1010 the group of churches were all destroyed by order of the lihalif Hakeem. Of this fact there seems to he no doubt possible. It is attested by the following writers:-Rnoul the Baid, Lib. III. chnp. rii,; Ademar; Guide; William of Tyre; Abulfats. gius; Makrixi; and it is neknowledged by Renaudot, Hist. Putriarchawum Alexanelrinoruh, and by De Sacy in his Life of the Caliph Ihatem Biamr Allah. Tine churches, it is stated, were destroyed ns completely as by Chosroes. it is related that the sepulchre itself was nut spa ed -perhaps they broke the upper portion of the reck.

Scarcely had the buildings been destroyed than the capricious despot gave orders for them to be reconstructed. "Tunc," says haual, "de universo torrarum orbe increditilis hominum multitudo exultauter Hierosolymam pergentes, domui Dei restnurandar plurima detulerunt munera." By the help of the emperor Romanns Argyros and his suecessor nnd the offerings of pilgrims, the churches were rebuilt is 1048.
XVI. [A.D. 1102.] It is hardly necessary to quote the long necount given by Satewulf of the bulldings as they were before the magaificent alterations made by the Crusaiers. It is, however, most valuable in shewing what the buildings of the third period were-a circalar church, with a group of churches and chapels round it. The description maty be reat in Prof. Willis's paper on the church (Williams's Ildy City, vol. ii. p. 270).

No one has doubted, or ever will doubt, that the group of buildings described by shewulf occupicd the same site ns that now coveled ly the modern church of the Holy Sepulchre. What follows, thercfore, has no topographisal importance, but affects the question whether the present sepulc np.
XVII. [A.D. writes that th between thirty tion by the C three circular the stone migh

XV1]]. [A,D. pulchre was div was a polished $s$ laid the Giver of before Jerusilen says that withir the sepulchre. 1336 contirm t three small hole: the faith ful cou the year 1480 F monument enreft ef rock remaine the little door be a nalad rock shewing the mar. petracam pariet sitam, sed integ ferreorum signa cluiles from this Holy Sepulchre altogether; that paired and cove pilgrims from kne
XIX. [A.D. 155 the council of St. tended extensive which he remove with whicin the H axposed the very $t$ be discovered near cut tombs, one exi Holy Sepujchre.
XX. Among the the church and $t$ been carefully col Williams for his $H_{0}$ tions of impertance. men were driven "globes of fire," refuge tis to iepe Wss it the aedes desux Pilgrim ubi aedificavit $\%$ Pasch from information $g$ that the monument that it was all one a man could hardly Eutychius (Saïd ibr damage dene to the by the Moslems: " sistrales incendunt anno trecentesimo vi Cranii locum cum (te verunt." This is th annals, sud one can been entirely witho the Russisn abbot D seen, states that the but had three circul through which it mi Willinun of Baldensel to express a doubt w been built up. "Ill, his aceount glorlosissimi intor omues ocum liagua ecelesia in aam hubens ratoris, cum rto in valle exeeptis aliis mutuis sibividelieet ad tiae et lucum voentur basi1: tertiar ad pulerum $\mathrm{D}_{0}-$ itu sui inter lapidibus; ex faciem ijsius ous clauduat juem ungelus ist peractam epulchiro non icat Bedu in Inter aradisus sine parimeatum habens in quae veu'uat quo dicitur

of churches

 - the Khalit ms to he no the fullowiag 1. chap. vii, re; Abulars. edged by Readrinorna, asd caliph Inlem 3 stated, were rosrues. It is vas not $\mathrm{s} 1^{\text {a }}$ portion of theeea destroyed e orlems fo ;" says Ranul, increlibilis Hierosolymam plurima detu. if the emperor essor and the :s were rebuilt y necessary to aewulf of the e magnificeth tilers. It is, iug what the re-a circular is and chapels eread in Prof. Villiams's Ild ill doubt, that 4 by Siewulf ow covered oly Sepulchre. topographical on whether the present sepulchre is cut in the rock or built ap.

SEPULCIIRE, THE HOLY

XVII. [A, d. 1125.] The Rusblan abbet Danlel

 writes that the rock was, when be visited It, between thirty nad forty years after the occupation by the Crusaders, cased in marble, with three circular openings in the froat by which the stome might be couched and kissed.XV111. [A.D. 1185.] Phocas says that the sepulehre was divided into two parts, in one of which was n polished stone raised a cubit, on which wns laid the Giver of Life; and a writer of 1187, just befose Jerusilem was recovered by the Saracens, says that within the monument was the rock of the sepulchre. Travellers in 1211, 1322, and 1336 coutirm the casiug with marble and the three small holes in the southern side, by which the finthful could kiss and touch the rock. In the year 1480 Fabri resolved on examining the mouument earcfully to see whether any portion of rock remained: he found the wall in which be a nalad door to the sepulchre is formed, $t_{\text {th }}$ showing the martis onc piece, withont joints, still petraeam parietem vidi, bon quadris compositam, sed integram, in quà instrumentorum ferreorum sigun manifeste apparent." He cenelules from this and other indications that the Holy Sepulchre had been destroyed, but net nltogether; that it had been subsequently repaired and covered with marble, to prevent pilgrims from kuecking off little bits us relics.
AIX. [A.D. 1555.] Bonifacius, then prefect of the council of St. Francis in Jerusalem, superinwhich extensive repairs in the chureh, during which he removed one of the alabnster slabs with whicn the Holy Sepulehre was covered and arosed the very tomb itself; and shortly nfter he discovered near Jerusalem, ameng the reckcut tombs, one exactly resembling that of the Holy Sepulelire. XX. Among.
XX. Among the many acatieved notices of the church and the temple aren which have been carefully collected by the Rev. George Williams for his Holy City, we find a few indications of importance. Thus, when Julian's workmen were driven from their work by the "globes of fire," Sozomen says they toek Whs it the aedes ipsat mentioned by the Bordesux Pilgrim ubi lemplum fuit quod Sulomor desux Pilgrim ubi Timplum fuit quod Sulomon acdicavit $\%$ Paschnsius Rolbertus, speaking from information given him by pilgrims, sarys that the monument (A.D. 848) was cut in rock; that it was all one stene, not minny ; and that a man could hardly reach to teuch the roof. Eutychius (Saild ibn Batrik) spenks of great damage done to the churches in the yenr 936 by the Moslems: "ectlesine Constantini portas australes incendunt nec non dimidium porticua Cmino trecentesimo vicesimo quinto (A. H.) . . . verunt." This is (templu) Resurrectionis vest.rsunals, and one can hardly suppose it to in been entirely without foundation. In 130 the Russian abbot Daniel, wi we have already scen, states that the rock was cased in marble, bat hud three circular openings in the front, through which it might be touched and kissed. to express Baldensel (A.D. 1336) was the first been built a up. "Whud ver the tomb hnid not been built up. "Illud vero advertendure sist quod menumentum . . . non est illud in quo corpus Christi sacratisshnum examine primitus est immissum: quia sacro attestante eloquio monumentum Christi erat excisum in petra viva. Illud vero, ex petria pluribus est cempositum de nevo conglutimato cremente minus artificinliter et, mhus quam deceat, ordinate."

SEPULCHRE THE HOLY 1885
XXI. In the above catenn of evidence we have included everything that seems of reil importnace. There are many other and later nccounts of the Holy Sepulchre-that in the Normnn French, "La Citez de Jherusnlem," which may be found in Williams's Moly City; those of the Innominati and others in 'lobler's volume, Palaestinae Descriptioncs. But they appear to add no new facts to help in the solution of the question.
Let us sum up the evideace.
It would appear, therefore, that Constantine (see his letter) thought the site had been Eusebius unknewn, but that, necording to Eusebius, the memory had been preserved, in spite of the "attempts of impious men;" pill the emperor adorned the tomb with pillara, and built a basilica at seme little distance from it, leaving the space between open and decorated with columns; that, necording to the Onomasticon, Golgotha is north of Zion; that according to the Bordeaux Pilgrim, he who would go to Zion from the Temple must ascend in order to get there,-in which statement he is supperted by Paula-alav that if he Would ge outside the lown from Zion to the Neapolitan gate, i.e, the gate which leads to Nenpolis (Nablus), the Practorium of Pilate ia on the right, deorsum in valle; that all writers alike, from Cyril, an eye-witness in 326, to Father Fabri, an eye-witness in 1480, declare that the tomb is cut in the rock; that there is reom in the sepulchre for nine men atanding-not kneeling-the area of the present sepulchre availnble for standing is from 20 to 26 square feet, just enough for that number; that the height is such 13 n man can hardly rench with his fingers-it is from 7 to 8 feet; that the ehurchea were destroyed in 614 and rehuilt, probably much after the same plan in 630 ; that accerding to $n$ doubtful ruthority (Cedrenus, who has not been quoted above) the churches were burned at the time when the emperor Nicephorus 11. took Damascus and recovered Northern Syria; that in 1010 not only were the churches overthrown but also the sepulchre was partially destroyed, by order of the Khalif Hakeem; that considerable alterations from male by the Latin conquerors; nad that from the cenquest of Saladin, despite the destruction of the aculptured columna before the sepulchre by the Chnrezminns in 1244, no great change was made in the church till the fire of 1808 necessitated a yebuilding from the old foundations. Professor Willis has pointed out that these accounts of repented demolitions, burninga, nad reconstructions, should be received with certnin deductions. When an inmense building or group of buildings is destroyed, it is done generally by the hands of hurriell conquerors. The foundntions remain, with some of the walls, ns may be witnessed to this day on the enstern side of the Tyropneon valley, where stand the stones of Herod's 'Temple, known as the Jews' Wailing Place. It woule' be 'interesting

1886 SEPULCHRE, THE HOLY

SEPULCHME, THE HOLY

indeed to know what jortions, If any, of the prasent church belong to the first, second, group; to trace, as far as possible, the wow of the buildings described by Saewu't ; wo awor tain what are left of the recoustructions (1) Modestus ; to establish how much is luft of the Crusalers' church ; and, If possible, to find what belongs to the churches destroyud by Hakeem. This has been attempted by the count de Voguí In the Eylisee de la Terre Sainte.

XX1I. So far then, from Constantize downwards, the histery of the Holy Sepulchre bas appeared to most students a clear und continuous record of events which, exaggerated perhaps hy the imaginary terrors of eye - witnesses and the zeal of historians, were really enacted around the site where sow stands the trsditional Holy Sepulchre. But in 1847 ubjections of an eatlrely novel klad were raised Ly Mr. James Fergusson, whose ruputation as a studeat of architecture at once commauded a respect ful hearing. He deelared, on an examiation (1) of the drawings, sectinos, and plans prepared by Messry. Benomi and Catherweod, and (2) after a persoani visit to Jerusalem, that the Dome of the Jock, which he called the Masjid or Mosque of Omar, could not have been built by Abd-el-Melek in the 7 th century; that not only the Arabs could not have crected such a building, but that no Christian architects of the period could have designed it; that, finally, it belongs, and csn oniy belong, to the time of Constantive,

If of that time, then why have we to account of it? And what else can this spleadid and richly ornamented erection be, but the structure placed up by the emperer's command around and over our Lord's place of sepulture?

This revolutionary theory necessitated many others: that the cave under the dome is our Lord's sepulchre; that Zion was also the Temple mount ; that the Temple was in the S.W. angle of the Haram; that the eastern wall was built by Agripps after the Crucifixion; that the secend wall might run wlthout the present church; that the yorthern part of the Harsm area was a place of tombs, with otber consequences

Many solutions have been proposed to meet the difficulties of this theory, first started by Mr. Fergusson, but they have never yet been answered with such fulness as to convince hia or his followers. Mr. Lewin (Siego of Jurusalem, 2. 145) suggested that, when they wanted to suild the Dome, the Arabs brought over as many pillars and other ornaments as they required from the church of Constantine over the Holy Sepulchre, on the opposite hill.

The count de Voguié pronounced the building to be Byzantine in character, the work of Christian artists (Temple de Jérusalem, p. 82): "La disposition de l'édifice, prise dans sen ensemble, est toute byzantine: un siecle avant l'hégire, les architecues byzantins bâtissaient des églises polygouales ou rondes, telles que celles de Bostra et d'Ezra, édifices datés du sixième siècle, qui se rattachent eux-mêmes par les églises Constantiniennes d'Anticehe, de Saint-Constance de Rome, aux temples circulaires de l'antiquites. Sous Abd-el-Melek, les Arabes n'avaicat pas d'art qui leur fut propre: ou du moins, s'ils avaient des tendances spéciales, un gout particulier pour telle forme ou tel motif de décoration, ils n'avaient ni scoles ni artistes de profession, et surtout ils

- 'nvaipgt pas d'ourriers en ét. . de moner à bonoe

 i. 4 srande construction: II yeralt Injuale de uft fos a's avalent aucune notion de l'art de thasl, pulsque les villes du centre die l'Arainiu sunt coastruites en miçonnerie de plerre et de bois, et fertainement ces constructions, sur les. quelles nous manquons absolument de renselgnements predis, devaient par queique côté avoir leur origianlité: mals à Jérusalem, en Syrle, en Egypte, dans les pays récemment soumls a leur domination, ils navaient que des suldats at des fonctionnaires: ju1"* 1: ' les nouveaux nonumenta de twr euta, ide durent s'odresser aus vaiocus, a la population indigène yu'ils avanent convertie en force, mais noa changúe nl déphacée. Souvent même ils firent venir du dehors les artistes que le pays ne peuvait pas leur fournir: la grande mosqueve de Damas fut décorée par les mosalstes que le Ǩhnlife Al-Wnlid demanda dlrectament a l'empereur d'Orient. . . . . Les renseignements historiques manquent sur la nationalité dee architectes du Qoubbet es Sakhrah, mais le style du monument est un guide au moins nussl sur que les chroniques arabes et na lnisse nucun doute sur le caractère byz'ntin de l'édifice. Mals quolque byzantin par le style, il n's rien de chrétien: le trait principal qui le distingue des églises que lui ont servi de modèle est l'absence d'abside. . . . . L'abside est le signe distinctit' des églises primitives, et son absence ici prouve que les architectes du Qoubbet es Sakhrah, dont en bâtissant suivant les habitudes byzantins, surent donner au monument le caractère musulman."XXIII. But if the architectural argument of Mr. Fergusson, to shew that the Done of the Rock is the work of Constantine, has never been disproved to the satisfaction of his followers, it must be also acknowledged that the objections to the corollary to the theory, that it is the monnment raised by the emperor over the Huly Sepulchre, have also never been saisfocturily answered.

Tbey are, as may be gathered from the foregoing histor ${ }^{\text {a }}$ al evidedce, briefly as follows:-

1. Constanune built no dome or ehurch at sll over the sepulchre, He simply ornamented it with columas.
2. It appears certain from the Bordeaux Pilgrim and others that the Zion of the, 4 th century was on that yart of the city where it is nor placed.
3. From the Onomasticon it is nlso cartain that Golgotha was on the north of Zion.
4. Cyril sajs : hat the tomb had a vestibule, " as is č stomary here ln the front of sepulchres." What 1 of a veatibule can be found to the care of the $a$ ?
5. se we oom for only nine mes to pray, standi Thas asctly fits the present tomb.
6. L'aula, after leaving the church, had to ascend in order to get to Zion. How , one nseend from the Dome of the Rock, which is on the top of the hill?
7. How far is the thoory that the church is that built by Censtantine-even making all silowances for damages at varieus times, repairs, and additions-comp, tible with the two complete destructions by Chosroes and Hakem?
8. The time assigned to the proposed transo ference of the old to the present site, that of the wars between Nicephorus 11. and the Khalif Mlueh, is that when the strongest, a contlnuolis. eonsplracy-inel pilgrims, and t week-should at one cousp the legendnry, from that the conspi comers while th erection; and tha engaged in this bome and told $t$ write it? Nor would be pressed There were the m tember to the gr traders, who came city, from Byzan Marseilles, to bu stuffs. These wou an.' might perhaps and brother Chr thirty years of the asituted for Mecca Moslem pilgrims po Was it likely that admitting iheir ce the tale? that not salem was full of $J$ in dyeing stuffs-sh a scoff'at the Christ. medna writer shoul the Cross had combi Such a conspiracy carried through, but Such complicity and fanstics seems impos

SEPUI
9. If the Dome o Church of the Sept We must suppose the entering the same sa as friends, for pray has ever been found i in any book, to warrs separation between th dome.
10. The history of $t$ Abd-el-Melek is as cl the building of St. Pau historisns relate it wi tend to shew their gen urged that these wrote after the events. That however, sn older re itself & long Cufie lat round the colonnade.
"the the servant of $G$ "the commander of the in the year 72 " (A.D. 6
11. Futychius (Annu Christians had huilt no of the Temple," on acco of the Lord, and had left of the Temple " in the the present IIaram area. 12. Our Lord's tomb 53). and after the co in Jerusilem. What res found between the cave 1 Jewish tomb?
13. Lastly, though mor

ner | boune |
| :--- | 1 In liwe de do de l'art de de j'A rabice pletre et de ons, sur leso e renselgnecòté avoir en Syrie, ea unis aleur ddate at des eaus zonuIressu!: aus dils avaitent ni déphacie. dehirs les our fournir: orée par des id demanda l.es it sur la na. es Sskhruh, a guide 4 arahes et na byzutin de $r$ le st $y \mathrm{le}$, il cipal qui le vi de modèle esat le signe son absence Qoubbet es es habitudes ent le carac.

argument of Dome of the $s$ never been followers, is e objectivar at it is the er the Holy aitefestorily om the fure-follows:thurch at all nameated it ordeaux Pil. ,4th century ce it is nov also rort in Sion.
a vestibule, sepulchres." d to the care men to pras, sent tomb. ureh, had to How (4.) one , which is on he church is king ull simes, repsirs, two complete 1? posed trans , that of the Khalif Muen

SEPULCHIEE, THE HOLY

Is that when the passion for pilgrimagen was controngest, and the tide of pilgrims the most continuous, Can we believe, then, that a vast emnspiracy-locluding bishops, priesta, monks, week - shoul those who came aiml weut each week-shouli! have succeeded in transforring legendary, from whole of the sites, real and that the conspira part of the city to another : comere while the chur joined in by all now erection; and that of all thes were lit process of engaged in this forgary hunireds necessarily home and told the tale, not a single one went wite it? Nor was it only the pas fuand to would be pressed into complicity pilgrims who There were the merchanpicity with the plot. tember to the great fair of Jeruaded every Sepptraders, who came year after senulem-regular city, from Byzantium, Ger year and know the Marseilles, to buy splces, sugar, enile, London, atutfs. These would havs sugar, silks, and rich and might perhaps have to join in the plot, and brother Christians, done so, being friends thirty years of the century, Jut for the last situted for Mecca, and an immensen was subMoslem pilgrims poured yearls into number of Was it likely that not one of the thelyCity. admitting iheir complicity, these merchants, the tale? that not a sicity, should carry home salem was full of Jews, in dyeing stuffs-should seirying on a rich trade a scoffist the Christ:an? and the opportunity of medan writer should tell how the worshippers of the Cross had combin Sach a conspiracy $m_{n}$, save been succesafilly carried through, but it seems most impresobable. Such complicity and agreemest betweon hostile fanstics seems impossible.
9. If the Dome of the Jock again was the Church of the Sepulchre, then, for years, we must suppose the Chriatians and $f$, yeslems entering the same sacred enclosure sile $y$ side, as friends, for prayer and worship. Nothing has ever been found in the Haram area itself, or ia say book, to warrant the belief of a wall of separation between the Moaque el Alka sand the dome.
10. The history of the building of the clome by Abd-el-Melek is as clear and precise an that of the building of St. Paul's by Wren. Three Arab teud to shew theire with such small difference as urged thet theeir general fidelity. It may be after the events. wrote some hundreds of yeara however, an older record itself s long Cufic record. In the bailding found the colonnade, "In the mamaic runs $\therefore$. the servant of God " (read name of God "the commander of God " (read Abd-el-Melek), "the commander of the faithful, built this dome in the year 7.2 " (A.D. 691 ). in the year 72 " (A.D. 691).
Christians had huilt (Anmales, ii. 289) says that the of the Temple," on no church "within the ares of the Iord, and had locount of the denunciations of the Temple" had left it in ruins. The "area the present IIsram aren. 12. Our Lord's area.
33), surd Lorder themb was rock cut (Lake xxiii. in), sud after the craerai fishion of tombs found between that resemblance has ther. been 1 Jewish tomb?
13. Lastly, though more objections might be

SEPULOHRE, The holy 1887 advanced, consider the express statement of the eye-witneas Cyril, that the tomb was rock-cut after the fashion of tombs in Jerusalem, and that it had a restibule. Couple with this the fact that thero roon for only mine men stonding, and that there was in it, along the worth sile, a anough for the south, three jalnis high, large unler for the body of a mani. Now the cave under the dome contains more than 500 square tainly has no posemity be rock-cut, but It certhere is no vestibule ance to a Jewish tumb; ever having been any; theplearance of there and no place appsarent to the is no loculus, ever could hare been one the eyu where ther These objectious and minor importance may many others of equal and of, but at present they remainfactorily disposed there are a large bonly of those interested in thd question, who are ingt tose interested in the proposed solutjos of the archicejt Do Vugüe's who can refer all the a architectural dilliculty; out difficulty to the accounta of pilgrims withthe modern site is present site; who hold that Cyrif, and the is that spoken of by Euseblus, the three contempown pilgrim from Burdeaux, B. The next queustion witnesses.
genuine? Wrequention is, whether the site is place now shewn to wisitorally entombed in tha I. Historically the evidenand pilgrims?

The place was "nigh to the very scanty.
20) ; there was a garden the city" (John xix. was crucified (John xix. 41) ; place where Ile in the garilen (John xix. 41) ; the sepulchre was tomb (Juke xxiii 53, 4. 4); it whs a rock-cut (60) ; lt was "xili. 53 ; Mark xyl. 46 ; Matt. xavii. that is, without the second wall. (Heb, xiii. 12), There is no wther second wall of the tomb, tnough tect evidence on the site by the light of which indirations may be found, Thus, it will beh theories may be examined, frequented spe conceded that the place was a it was easily nccessibl least so near the city that out to see the Cruide by crowids who went near as to be visible from that it was perhaps so xix. 20, 21); that it was the Temple wall (John leading from one of was probably near a road and, though this is less probable, (Mark xp, 21); near the Gennath is less probahle, that it was
II. For 300 years there is aile of Gardens. sepulchre. Early in the 3 rdence as regards the Alexander goes to the 3rd century, in 212, places" generally erusalem to see "the holy at Bethlehem Surcly, it is argued if of our Lord's birth. sepulchre, he would her he had known of the proof still of the Reave seen in that stronger hand, it is assumed thatrection. On the other reason of the mound of he knew of it, but, by to hide it, he could not see lt erected purposely JII. In the absence of evid. theory. There are two evidence we fall back on 1. Those who do not bes of argument : city of the aite contrad that the in the authentitook no care to preserve the early Chriatinns sacred place; that after their memory of any they fund jerusaiem a their return frem Pelia tenth legion encamped either ruins, with the the modern site (if that either upon or close th which by itself would have preverne one), a fact visiting it ; that, after the preverted them from the Christiane were confounded by the Romans
v-lth the drws, chased from the prot, nnd only tulerated whan they ahewed their fistinction by electiog a cientile hiohup) that the tradition of the past vaninhed with the Judalzinin or Jewish Chrintiana; that the njort chosen for the church was erlected from mome vague tradition of quita recent growth, from anne fincied resemblinge of ground, from aome remalun of gardeng, or even by conncioun and dealgned ingrosture.
2. On the other hand, the supporterm of the trailition polat ont the inprobability that auch a pluce ins the ncene of the llesurrection, the stupendous importnuce of which has ever been present to all Chriatian teachers, should be forgutten by thane on the spoot. They argue that the Christiass must have returned to Jerusalem very shortly after the siege, because they were able to clect for their bishop, in the place of the martyred Jamea, Simeon, son of Clopas, brother of our loril; that slthough houses and walls may be destruyed, street and the site of gates remain to mark the placen where olil assocla tlons cling ; that the trailtionis unbroken ; that the wurds of Eusebinu clearly convey the fact that the alte was known to all Chrlatiana In Jerualem; and that when the historian speaks of old records from which he complled his list of the oarly bluhoph, he suggentes the very recorda which preserve the umemory of the site.
IV. We may here briatly natice the theory, alrealy referred to, of Mr. Finlay. It is this: The whole of the vast lloman empire, he says, had been exnctly mapped and planned by the Imperial ayrimensores, under Augustus. On thesse maps everything - a group of trees, a garilen, a vincyard, or a field-was accurately fald down. Of course, therefore, Mr. Finlay argues, the name of Golgetha or that of the tomb of Joseph would be found, and all Conatautine had to do was to order a search in the survey map and send to Jerusalem word where to look for the aepulchre.

This is Ingenious, but it hardly satisfies opponents of trudltion, who soy that it would be absurd to expect in any map the name of one tomb among insny, or even the name of a certain obscure place outside the city ; that it is not clear that Paluatine was regularly re-examined; and that it la perfectly clear from the historian that Constantine pursued no such line at all, being, under the impression that the tomb, if not the site, was unknown. On the other hand, the uphollers of the site do not want the aid of an argument which requires the concession of 80 many improbable things.
V. We have, Jastly, to notice the topographical argument.

The eepulchre was without the wall: i.e. the second wall, which, starting from Gate Gennath (Gate of Gardens), near the town of Hippius, ran to the fortress of Antonia, in eome sort of curve - кuк course of thin second wall has yet to he traced. If It is proved to run outside the sepulehre, then the site must be at once abandoned. In 1862 a portlon of a massive wall was found, about 12 feet deap, just south of the church. (Lewin, Sicige of Jcrusalem, p. 215.) Its stones were about 7 feet long by 5 feet wide, and shewed the well-known marglnal draft. In 1874 M . Clermont Ganneax (Quarterly Statement, Palestine Exploration Fund, 1874, p. 14.5) found and partly traced a senrp whleh he Ingenlounly con neets with the seconil wall. At present, howe ever, we may aimit that the course of the secoud wall has never yet been made out to the satisface tion of all. Until It has heen followed from enl to end, or at loant mutil its fumodations and general course hare been eatablinhed heyomil $n$ doubt, we cannot say with certainty wheiher or no the prenent site is within or "without the gate."

We may add that the latent writer on the anbject, Limat. Conder, R.E. (Tont W'onk in Palestine), argues from the rock leveln, that the wall must have passed outside the church. Ile han diseovered a place north of the city called the Place of Stoning, which, from the conforma. tion of the ground as well as the name, he suggeste as the real site of Ginlgotha.

There is one fact which makes in favour of the present site. It is that the church standa over at leant one tombof undoubted antiguity, and perhnps stands over many. It han long been suspeeted that the an-called tomb of Jaseph of Arimatheea which is uhewn within the chorch was a genuine rock-cut Jewish tomb. - l'ruferser Willis states the fact as already proved. Ir. Rubinson, however, denied its antiquity. Colon+1 Wileon (Q. S. notes, p. 53) apeaks of the place as an undoubted tumb with rock-cut loculi, M. Clermont Ganneau hes proved bejond a ifoutit (Quarterly Statement, Pinl. Explor, Fund, 1877, p.81) that it was a tomh of the well-known type with three loculi on each side, in which he has been corroborated by Colonel Wilson (Quarterly Statement, 1877, p. 128), and has tried to shew that it is connected with another sepulchre cut In the rock beside it at a lower level. One may fisirly argue, therefore, that by whatever menis this site was chosen for that of our Lord's sepulchre, whether by transference, or by tradition, or by improsture, it was chosen with the knowledge that here had been a place of tombe. Now the only known tombs within the second wall were those of the kings and the prophetess luildah.

It will be seen that, while no amount of argu* ment will ever reconcile those who hold opposite views as to the continuity of tradition from the earliest times, the continnity of history from the time of Eusebius appears fairly demonstrable. On the other hend, if it cannot be dis* proved by architects that the Dome of the look is of the age of Constantine, what way out of the difficulty remains but one, that pointed out by Mr. Fergusson, itself bristling with other difficulties? A careful and exhanstive examination of this building on the spot by s thoroughly competent architecturel scholar is greatly to be desired. That, indeed, seens the chief thing necessary. The next step, if it shoold not be the first, is the recovery beyend any doubt of the second wall. These two desiderata accomplished, and the rock-levels of the citralready far advanced-completed, the questios of the site of the Holy Sepulchre will be natrowed to one or two issues.
[W. B.]

SEQUENCE. [PROA $A_{0}$ ]

SEQUESTRATION: [ALIENATION.]

SERAPHIA, Sept. 3, virgin, martyr andef Hadrian; commemorated at Rome (Mart. Uguard.; Vet. Rom., Adon., Notker.). [C. H.]

SEIMAPION to Corluth, wit] relgn of Derin named Sarapion) Feb. 25 in Egy (Cal. Byz+nt.).
(2) Mar. 10, п
(3) Mar, 21, rated at Alexau Ailon. $;$ Ilieron., (4) Mar, 26 , at l'eutapolis in Ireoanon a deace Ubuard., Adou. ;
(5) May 14, bis with Aphrodiaius
(6) May 21, Alexandria (Syr.
(7) May 24, under the empe Sarapion ; Heno
(8) July 13, Mart.).
(9) Aug. 18, m and Polyaenus ( Ba
(10) Aug. 27, m nea, aud others; e Usuard. ; Hieron., (11) Sept. 14, pr (12) Nov. 14, r Decius (I/art. Usue SERENA, Aug. of Diocletian (Mari Notker.). Noticer.).

SERENUS, Ju rited at-Alexandria (Mart. Usuard., Notker.).
SERGIUS (1), J
(2) Feb. 2, discipl
(8) Feb. 24, Csesarea in Cappad Rom., Alou. ; Hiero
(4) Oct, 7, martyr Euphratesia, uader Adon. ; Vet. Rom., N Menol; ; Menol. G'raed SERMON (Serme sidered as part of $t$ l immediately after th ceded the diemissal Eastern church (Con $4 ;$ Onto Rom. vi. 7). its liturgical position times. Justin Mart Firship in the 2nd reader (of the lection (rpoeqotés) admonishe mouth (z, id $\lambda$ iórou) $t$ noble deeds" (Apol. i first council of Orang to the place of the rum sollemaia habitus

serapion

SERAPION (1), Jan, 31, martyr, belonging to Corinth, with Victorinus and others, in tho relgn of Dectus (Busil. Memod, where he is bamed Sarapion); Jan, 30 (Mened. Orued. Sirlet.) ; Feb. 25 in E.gypt (Vet. Nom, Mart.); Aprer. 5
(Cal. By itent.).
(2) Mar. 10, martyr with Bassus (Syr, Moart.).
(3) Mar. 21, anchorite, martyr; commemoratell at Alexaudria (Mhart. Usuard.; Vet. Rom., Alun. ; Jliemn., Notker)
(4) Mar. 2b, reader, matyr; commemorated at Centapolis in Libyn, with Thendorus a bishap, Irennelss a dencon, Ammonlus a reader (Mirt. Uauard., Adon.; llieron., l'et. Rom., Notker.).
(6) Mny 14, bishop of Antioch; comnemorated with Aphrodisius (Syr. Mart.),
(6) May 21 , martyr with twolve others at Alexandrla (Syr. Mart.).
(7) May 24, Egyptian bishop and martyr ander the emperor Antoniaus (Bacil. Wenel. Sabapion ; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.).
(8) July 13, martyr under Severua (Syr. Mart.).
(9) Aug. 18, martyr at Rome with Hermas and Polyacaus (Basil. Menol.).
(10) Aug. 27, martyr with Marcellinus, Mannea, sud others; connmemorated at Tumi (Mart.
Usuard, ; Hieron., Adon.). usinard ; Ilieron., Adon.).
(11) Sept. 14, presbyter, martyr (Syr, Mort.).
(12) Nov, 14, martyr at Alexandris onder Decius (Mart. Ubuard.; Vet. Rom., Adon.).
[C. II.]
SERENA, Aug. 26, martyr, once the wife of Diocletian (Mart. Usuard., Adon.; Vet. Wime., Notker.).
[C. H.],
[C. H.]
SERENUS, June 28, martyr; commemorated at Alexandria with Plutarchus and others (Jort. Usuard., Adon. Netker.).
[C. H.].
[Clieron., SERGIUS (1), Jsa. 2, martgr (Cal. Byzant.).
(2) Feb. 2, disciple of St. Paul (Cal. Armen.)
(8) Feb. 24, martyr ; commemorated at Chesarea in Cappadocin (Mart. Usuard. I Vet.
Rem., Alom. ; Hieron., Notker.). Rom., Alon. ; Hieron., Notker.).
(4) Oct. 7, martyr with Julia and Bacchua in Euphratesia, under Maximinn (Mart. Usuard., Adou.; Vet. Rom., Notker.; Cal. Byzant. ; Basil., Menol.; Menol. Graec. Siriet.).
[C. H.]
SERMON (Sermc, \&c.). The sermon, considered as part of the liturgy, slways followed immediately after the Goapel, sand thus preceded the dismissal of the catechumens in the Eastern church (Constitt. Apost. lib. 1i. 57, viii. 4; Ordo Rom. vi. 7). This appears to have been times. Justin Martyr, dean the very earliest times. Justin Martyr, describing Christian reader (of the lecti century, ssys, "When the feader (of the lections) has finished, the priest (xpoecrós) admonishes and exhorts by word of month (z.ad $\lambda \hat{c}^{\prime}$ yous) to the imitation by word of aoble deeds " (Apol. i. 65-67). Later on the first council of Orange is quoted as all uding to the piace of the sermon as "intra missarum anllemnia habitum." Caesarius of Arles ased sometimes to oriler the doors to be shut after the Gospel, to prevent people guing out befure the serman (Cyprian felunens. I it, $s$, Cuematr. lit, l. \& 19). St. (iull (7th century) io recorded to have preached the consecration oermon after the Gospred had been read, on the occasion of the elevation of Jonnnes Diaconus to the episcopate (Wal. Strabo, Vit. S. Oulli, i. 25 ; eee Au loenus, lit. S. Eiligii, ii. 22). In st. Chrysostom's time tho sermon was prefaced, in commum with other distinct portions of the lituryy, with the veraicle and response, "The Lord be with you," $N$. "And with thy spirit," and was cloeed with a doxclogy to the Hioly Trinity ( $E_{p}$, ad Cul. Hom. Ill. p. 348). Further information on this and aimilar points is given under Preacuing, p. 1684, and llomily, p. 781. [F. E. W.]

SERPENT
1880

SERPENT, (See Drabon and Deviln)

 There is this distinction between representations of the serpent and the dragon in Christian ovil power in that the former representa the ovil power in lts tempting oflice, as inviting to ein (Buttarl, ii. 60, &c.), aud the latter generatructive foints to evil or the evil one in his destructivo function, ns the permitted ngent of punishment. A gem given by Gori (Thes, Dipt /ch. vol. iii. p. 160) represents the serpent twined about the cross and apparently tempting two dores [Cuoss, p. 495]. Whether the serpent of the cross may not in this instance have reference to the hrazen serpent (Numb. xxi. 9 ; John iii. 14) seems doubeful.The early church siniply followed Holy Primarily it its use of the serpentine symbol. Primarily it meant the power of evil; second. arily, it referred to the brazen serpent, as a the first the sacrifice of our Lord for man. In will date or direct form of symbolism, its use will date from the time of Constantine. He in Vit. Constantin be represented (see Lusebins, or lit. Constantin. iil, 3) as pirreing the dragon or serpent with the Labarum; and the anane idea is repeated on one of his medals (woodeut is repeated on one of his medals (woodeut No. 1),

No. 1. Berpent ant Laburum (trum Martigny, p. 日l才).
and afterwards on Constantius's (Aringhi, ii. p. 705 ; see Baronius, ad ann. 325 ; Gretzer, de Onter, t. iii. 1. i. c. 5). The ancient dragon form on the vexilium was continued by Constantine, with the monogram placed above it [Dracona-RIUS, p. 579]. RIUS, p. 579].
Continual use is made of the serpentine or lacertine form in Jrish and Anglo-Sason ornament from the earliest date (see Westwood's Palucographia Sacra, on the book of Kells and other ancieat MSS.). This is of coarse in great part a result of the northern taste for plaited and interlaced ornament ; and the forms to which suake heads are attached are geuerally mere ribands. Still Professor Westwood appears inclined to connect their continual recurreace with a symbolism of temptation, of the fall of man, and his spiritual enemies; perhaps, behind this, to fainter traditions of ancient Ophidian worship of the principle of evil or destruction.

1890

SERPENT
The earliest representation of this kind in Christian Art is the grent book-cover of the Vatican, representin $z$ the youthful Christ treading on the lion and adder (tigured by Gori, Thes. Dipt. vol. iii. p. 32, tab. iv.; Westwood, Fictile Ivories, pp. 51, 55).

The appended woodcut of St. Michael trampling on the serpent or dragon, ia his character alike of tempter of man and cremy of God, is certainly well within our period, and of some beauty and importance, as fllustrating a transition (perhaps by the hands of som skilled northern work man) from elnsaic Roman to high Gothle art. Some of the perpendicularity of the harsher Byzantine is there, but, on the whole, the older classic style has not yielded to it. The drapery is too complicated, and, with the uval cetri, may remind us of Saxon work; nevertheless the figure is worthy of the best Gethic of later times, which it strongly resembles.

SERPENT

The various Ophits or Ensilidean-Christian heratics made much ose of the serpent on smulets, &c. (see Gems, p. 721, Nos. 3, 4), and it appears from Augustine (ale Macres. cap. xvii. and xlvi.) that the Manichenns userl it as a direct type of our Lord. See King (Antique Gems and lings, vol. il. p. 20, note), where the dove, with an olive leaf and perched on a whentshenf, represents the church, and is supported by a lion and a serpent, evidently with reference to Matt. x. 16.

Our Lord's reference to the serpent of the wilderness as a type of Himsalf would give the early church the same natural reason for using it as a graphic symbol, as for the use of the Good Shepherd. Nevertheless, it seldont occurs, although it is the first "image" which occurs to Tertullian as permissible in his protest against nll such things in De Idololatriâ, iii. St. Am brose dwalls on it thus (De Spiritu Sancto, lib. iii. c. 9): " Imago enim crucis nerens serpens est: qui proprios (De Salomon. cap. xii. et Serm. Ir. De Cruce Christi) erat typus corporis Christi: ut quicanque in eum aspiceret, non periret."

No. 3. Serpeni (from Martigny, p, a12).
Martigay also gives a woodcut, which we here repeat (No. 3), from a gilt glass, without reference, which, as he says, may represent Moses with his red, and the brazen serpent, with a person who represents the Jewish people contemplating the latter. But from the large size of the serpent, and the calm attitude of the spectator, the subject may possibly be the 10 d . serpent as he appeared before l'haraoh, stet swallowing all the others.

There still exists in the nave of St. Ambrogio at Milan a brazen serpent on a granite columin, to which a number of stories are attached. It appears from Aringhl (Kuma Subterranea, vol. ii. p. 453, bk. iv. 4) that it was given to Amuli, bishop of Milan, at Constantinople in 1101; he having gone there as ambassador from Otholll. (see Ferrari, Monum. di S. Ambrogio, p. 20). It is not likely $t_{0}$ be any remnant of a heathen. temple of Acscalapius on the spot, and is probsbly an Alexandrian talisman of the 3rd or 4 th cen* tary. (Murray's Handbook of Northern Ituly, p. 158.) This reminds us of the singular wreathed or triple serpent=pillar still in the hipmedrome of Constantinople, said to be the same as that

- Its identity with the Delphte offering ci Perdm spofls after Pistaea ts now established (Rawillsonis Derodotus, vol. Iv. p. 391).
partly shat II. in 1453 The story and the pill Miscellunies, At Milan it ceived by $A_{1}$ of the wande lous, till Car bered or red dastroyed by being paid it servan manus in S Adon.).
SERVATI confessor ( $M$ Notker.).
SERVICE.
SERVILIA
memorated $w$ Usuard., Adon.
SERVILIU Zoellus or Joe Adon., Hieron.)

SERVIUS,

 rated in Africa Notker.).SERVULUS with Verolus an Ususrd., Hieron., (2) Dec. 23, in the church o Vet. Rom.).
severrant his wife $A_{q}$ uilu; in Msuritania ( $M$ Heron., Not'scr.).
(2) Jan. 25 , Gavala (Mart. Usi
(3) Sept. 9, me under Licinius Senol. Graec. Sirl
(4) Oct. 9 ; con (Cuh. Armen.).
(5) Nov. 8. [CO

8EVERINUS

fessor, bruther of $V$ Naples (Mart. Usu ker.).
(2) Feb. 11, abl Usuard.).
(8) Nov. 1, mon (Hart. Bed., Adon., SEVERUS (1), menorated with Pe dis (Mart. Usuard., Sotker.),
(2) Aug. 8, presb Memorated at Vieni Notker.).
GilRigr, ANT,-VOL

The drapery is too uval cetri, may ; nevertheless the st Gothic of later mbles. Easilidean-Christian $f$ the serpent on '21, Nos. 3, 4), and (de Hacres. cap. vicheans used it as See King (Antique 0 , note), where the rerched on a wheatand is supported by y with reterenee in the serpent of the welf would give the al reason for using for the use of the is, it seldonn occurs, e" which occurs to his protest agxiast 'atriâ, iii. St. Am Spiritu Sancto, lib. aereus sorpens est: ap. xii. et Serm. Iv. corporis Christi : ut ion periret."

tgny, p. 612 .
oodcut, which we gilt glass, without ys, may represent razen serpent, with Jewish peeple con. from the large size $m$ attitude of the ossibly be the 1 dal . ore Phnraoh, atter ve of St. Ambrogio a granite coluria, 8 are attached. It Subterranea, vel. ii. s given to Arnulf, inople in 1101; he ador from Othe ill. mbrogio, p. 2(). It iant of a heathenpot, and is probably the 3 nd or 4 th cen-- Northern It thy. Pi a singular wrenthed in the hippodrene t the same as that to offering of Perchan ablished (Rawlinsoa!

SELVANDUS

partly shattered but not destroyed by Mohammed The story at the Turkinh storm of the eity. The story may be an inveation of Thevenot's, Miscelhinies, chicty mere wreck (soe De Quincey, At Milan it wnsty nurraties, p. 345, ed. 1854). ce:ved by Aruult of the wanderings, and accordingly hald serpont lous, till Carlo Borromeo secing to have narnenbered or rediscovered that that to have rememdestroyed by Hezekial. He fortade any honours being prid it accordingly.
[R. St. J. T.]
SERVANDUS, Ont. 23, martyr with Germanus in Spain (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Aden.).
[C. H.]
SERVATIUS, May 13, bishop of Tongres, Netker.). (Mart., Usuard., Vet. Rom., Adon.,

SERVICE. [Office, The Divine.]

SERVILIANUS, Apr. 20, martyr; commemersted with Sulpicius st Rartyr; com-Usuard., Adon., Vet. SERVILIUS Vet. Rom., Notker.). [C. H.] Zoellus or Joellus in 24 ; commemorated with Adea., Hieron.).
[C. H.]
SERVIUS, Aug. 17, subdeacon; commemoNotker.).
[C. H.]
SERVULUS (I), Feb. 21; commemorated Usuard,, Hieron., Notker.). Ad Adrumetum (Mart.
(2) Dee. 23, commemornted at Rome. H.] in the chureh of St. Clement (Myrut. Usuried Yet. Rom.).
[C. H.]
SEVERIANUS (i), Jna. 23, martyr with his wife Aquiin ; commemorated martyr weoenesarean io Manuritania (Mart. Usnard., Adou., Vet. Rom. Hiken., Not'scr.). (2) Jnn. 25, blshop; commemorated at Gsala (Mart. Usunrd., Notker.). Gsrala (Mart. Usunrd., Notker.).
(3) Sept. 9, martyr at Sebasto in Armenia udder Liciaius (Basil. Menot, usder Licinius (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Henol. Graec. Sirlet). (4) Oct. 9 ; cornmemorsted with Sparechius
(Cal. Armen.). (Cul. Armen.).
(J) Nev. 8. [Coronati QDatuor.] [C. H.] SEVERINUS (1) [C. H.] SEVEERINUS (1), Jan. 8, bishop and confesor, brother of Victurinur; commemerated Saples (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Not-ker.).
(2) Feb. 11, abbat of St. Maurice (Mart.
(2).
((8) Nov. 1, monk; commemorated at Tibur (Kart. Bed., Adon., Vet. Rom.).
[C. H.]
SEVVERUS (1), Jan. I1, confessar ; com. menarsted with Peter snd Lucius at Alexan-dris (Mart. Usuard., Adon Xotker.). Usuard., Adon., Hieronis Vet. Rem., me) Aug. 8, presbyter and confessor ; com-Remorted at Vienne (Afurt. Usuard. memorated at Vienne (Mfurt. Usuard., Adon., Sotker.).
GilRIIT. ANT.-VOL. In. Matt.).

SEXES, SEPARATION OF 1891

(3) Nov. 8. [Coronati Quatuor.] [C. H.]

SEVILLE, COUN(IILS OF (HIgpalensia Concilia). There were two councils held at Seville : oue under Leand bit brother Si. Isidore.
(1) A.b. 590 , which pablished three caneas, the two first relating to the emancipation of the 3rit conncil of Tolcdonews the 5th canon of nought. But several more having heen set at nougat. But several more are given to it by Burehard and others (Mansi, x. 449 si)
(2) A.D. 619 , which (Mansi, x. 449 syf.).
of which the twelith relates to thirteen eanons: bishop, a Syaiza by birth wholes a Monophysite them iod at length abiured wis come among is refuted and condemped in heresy: which The rest are disciplinary (Mansi, $x$. 555 s sq.).
[E. s. Ff.]
SEXES, SEPARATION OF. In the early ehureh the women were always. In the early the men in public worship from of the in public worship. What the origin of of the usage was, it is by no meaus easy to say. T
Christian charch with probably have come into the Christian church without any fornal enactment worien were (nand Jewish worship, in which the from the men. Or, to this day) separnted a feature or Oriental life it may be simply which femalee were always kept in grenter seclusion than they are with kis under greater isaticn of the West. In the Apostolicil cive civitutions it becomes the subject of a $a$ special direction that the women be seated special ( $\kappa \in \chi \omega \rho \circ \sigma \mu(\nu \omega s)$ (Apost. Constit. ii. 57 , ed npart sen; Analectas Antenicaena, vol. ii. 57. 12I. Bun(ibid. p. 122) if any man was found sitt ; and of his place, he was to be waittea by the deacon, end transferred to end transferrad to the place appropriate for him. At one time, noreover, it it nppeariate for the sexes entered the chnich (Apost. Constit ed the charch by diflerent doors. to stand at the entrances). The ostiariia were deaconesses at these of the of the men and the Discourse of Churches, the women (see Meds's. Chrysestom seems to speak of eful, ed.). St. tion between the men and the an actual partiought to have been withia you women. "There. which parted you frem the women. but] a wall would not, the fathers the women; but sinee ye. wall you off ever, from my elderes thith these boards: for I hiear these walls" (St. Chrys. Hhom. 73 were not

In some places it woold seem that the part of the church allotted to the women was, in some sense, upstairs. They were placed probably in some kind of a gallery (úrepqov) [Gablertes, p. 706]. It is said by Mayri (Jieirolexicon, s. v. were placed in in uon-monastic churehes women were plaeed in the narthex, which was fenced off by grilles and rails. The anchorit rails.
this usage of sepriating atriet mantenance of centuries of separating the sexes in the early Cyril of Jerusalem compures nunerous. St. Noah's Ark, "in which mpares the ehurch to and his wife and their were Nonh and his sons Ark was one, and the door was and though the Ark was one, and the door was shut, yet had all thinge been arranged suitably.. And though the church be ahut, and all of you within it, yet let there be $n$ distinction of men with men and women with women." (Catech. Prefat. Oxf. transl. p. 7.) There are several canons which expressly forbid women to enter the sanctuary of the church. We may cite as a specimen the 44th canon of the conneil of Laodicea-" that no woman enter into the apartment where the altar stauds." The rubric of a pontifical of the church of Poictiers (execnted in MS. not later than the 10 th century) directs that the males be arranged in dexteram partem, and the females in sinstrum (Martene, de Eccl. Niti'us, lib. i. cap. i, art. 12).
[H. T. A.]
SHAVING. [Beards; Hair; Orders, noLy, p. 1491 ; ToNsure.]

SheEP. [Lamb; Shepherd, the Good.]

SHELLS. Both marme and fresh water shells, either whole or broken, are often found on the tombs of martyrs and other Christians (Boldetti, Osscrazioni, p. 512, tig. 65). They are sometimes found fixed to the ontaide of the locnli ; sometimes merely drawn or engraved upon them (ib. Pp. 351, 435); often in the form of a bnccinum or whelk. Various forms of this symbol inay be observed on a curious sarcophagus in the Vatican, representing different kinds of fishing (Bottari, Sculture e Pitture, tav. xlii.). Gems are found engraved with this device, and sepulchral lamps, either in the form of shells, or having shells carved upon them (Bartoli, Antiq. Luccrn. part iii. fig. 23). Ancient Gallic tombs exhibit precisely snalogous featnres. Snail-shells were fonnd in the sarcophagus of St. Entropius discovered in 1843, and M. Letroane (Recutil de Pieces, &c. p. 81) shewa that the use - of them in Gaul cannot have been a matter of chance. Instances of the same symbolism have been met with in a Merovingian tomb in the cemetery of Vicq, and the abbe Cochet, in the conrse of his excarstions, met with a good many, especially in a tomb of the time of Charlemagne, bear Dieppe (Normandie souterraine, passim).

The most prohable explanation of this custom is that the ahell was used as a type of the Resurrection. The shell represents the tomb, which the occupant must leave empty on the last day. One sarcophagus, at Marscilles, shews the shell with the snail still in it. (Dillia, Midi de la France, pl. lviii. 4).

The significance attached to this symbol in the Mildle Ages is shewn by a miniatare of the 13 th centnry, given by Count Ang, de Bastard (Bullet. des Coinit. Hist. Archéol. &c. 1850, p. 173), represeuting a suail coming ont of its shell by the side of a drawing of the resurrection of Lazarus; and the same combination may be seen in a MS. of the 15 th century in a collection of ancient liturgical MSS. male by order of Leuis XIV. The aptness of the symbolism is increased by the fact that the snail is said at the approsch of winter to block up the mouth of his ahell with a cslcareons substance, which he bursts through on the return of spring (Martigny, Dict. des Antiq, chret. s. v. 'Coquillages'). [E. C. 1I.]
SHEPHERD, THE GOOD. The imaga conveyed by this, perhaps the earliest and most important of all Christian symbols, occurs frequently in the Old Testament, and is common to all countries in which the pastoral life has ever prevailed. "The Homeric epithet, "Shelherd of People," conveys much the same idea as Ps. xxii. Ixxx. though with far less force and tenderness. (See Ezek. xxxiv. ; Jer. xxxiii. 12, &c.) Our Lord's own use of the similitude concerning Himself, and His personal relation to all mankind (Luke xv.; John x.), gave it precedence of all others, excepting periaps that of the vine, which stands on exactly the same ground. That of Jonah, which relates rather to the Lord's resurrection than to his relation to His human family, occurs more frequently in bas-relief, and almost as often in painting. But as is observed under Fresco, the Good Shepherd is most frequently the central painting of a roof or wall; and perhaps the earliest type of the complete decoration of a Christian vaulting is the vine, with more or less conventionalised branches and clusters surrounding the Form, bearing on His shoulders the shecp which was lost. (See Vine; Bottari, ii. tav. 93.) Before going farther, we may notice that thare are three types of the Good Shepherd: one connected with the analogical image of Orpheus, and frequently used in half-raults and semicircular spaces; another certuinly adopted from the Hermes Criop horus of Calamis, at Tanagra, and representing the Shepherd with His charge fond and rescued. This is universal; occurring in fresco and on sarcophagi, on the gilt-glass cups; on lamps, in ivory, and more rarely in mosaic. The third, with staff and dog, is less frequent.

SHEPHERD, THE GOOD

For reasons which can hardly be assigned with certainty, the Good Shepherd died awny in the 5th, perhaps the 4th century. Constantine, it is true, placed "symbols of the Good Shepherd" in public places in Constantinople; but as Lord Lindssy says (vol. i. ch. on Roman Art), the Eastern church gave the snbject up. And thengh it was unquestionably an image of Hellenic origin, technically speaking, it was never adopted by the Eastern or Byzantine side of the Christian Fiermes Cslophorns. wind Hervert.

The paintings in the tomb of St. Domitilla are almost certainly the earliest Christian frescoes, ${ }^{\circ}$ and the Good Shepherd was as certainly chief among them. There is one in the catacomb of St. Praetextatns [Fresco], and the Callistine contains, or did contain, many very nncient ones. The derivation of the form bcaring the sheep will be fonnd in Raul! Rochette, Discours sur l'O Oigine des Types initatios qui constituent l'Art du Christianisme; slso in Seemann's Gitter u. Heroen, p. 80, where the atatue by Calanis is figured in a woodcut, which we here repeat. See also Pausarion,

- For proper ase of the words "fresco" and "diatemper" see Fizesco.
lib. ix. cap be comparo of the Vat of which re Mr. Parke For the rel

Satre of the Good S
also No. 2928, the stuccoes of for the thre century, on a Parker, No. 29 The chief ex of Galla Placid

Enstlake's translati Crowe and Cavale it is well descrihed masitin. thig mese the toph the Oppheus of Arit For other example in fresco, see Aring is prohably a painti is defacel by a tome

GOOD

and is common pnstoral life has epithet," Shepa the same idea ur less force and $\nabla \cdot$; Jer. xxxiii. f the similitude sonal relation to an $x$.), gave it repting perhaps 8 on exaetly the , which relates jon than to His occurs more frelost as often in nder Fresco, the antly the central ind perhaps the decoration of a with more or and elusters surn His shoulders Vine; Bottari, ii, ?, we may notice the Good Shep analogical image ad in half-vaults wother certainly norus of Calamis,

Hernes Crioplionis. Frum Reeman's Gsila nud Hervent of St. Domitilla arliest Christiaa herd was as cerere is one in the is [Fresco], and id contain, many ation of the form found in Ramal des Types imitatifs tianisme; also in p, 80 , where the i in a woodent, also Pauzanifo,

[^155]
SHEPHERD, THE GOOD

lib. ix. cap. 22, p. 752, ed. Kuhnii. This may be compared with the two 4th century statues of which see Mructigny term Museums. for one Mr. Parker's Artigny, p. 515. Both are among For the repetition of this, Nos. 2901, 2903.

Statue of the Good Shaplierd (Irum the Lateran Musetum, Martigny).
also No. 2928, and Ariaghi, i. p. 531, 2. For the stuceoes of the Latin Way, Aringhi, ii. 28. For the three-fold Shepherd and vine, 3rd century, on a sareophagus of the Lateran, see Parker, No. 2917, also 2438 , The ehief example in 238. of Galla Placidia's Chapel. This is tigured in probably during the fervour for burial with the martyrs, which prevniled about the time of Damasis. There is a shepherd with syrinx (Aringhi, i. 577), with a dog at his feet, and bearing the sheep, on a slab, it p. 594. See also Parker, No. 2052, in Lateran Museum, taken of a thin Callixtus. These two last give traces of a third or Riman ideal of the Shepherd doubt of their sueaning there can be but little l'etri, iv. 1).

SIIIP

This subject oecurs in the S. of France (Millin, Mili de la Gaule, pl. 65); in Africa (Annales archeulogiqucs, am. Fi. p. 196), nlso in a Cyre-naean hypogee (Pach. naean hypogee (Pacho, loyayo de ka Cyrenaliku, pl. li. p. 376 ).
D'Agineourt refers three examples of ranltings painted with the shepherd in their centres to text ii. p. 20. Une is then lemturt, $v$. pl. vi. p. $690^{\circ}$; in the others orpheus under Fresco, sheep. These designs the shep herd bears the date. See Gems, p. 713 ; Grass, p. 732 ; any late p. 920 . Gems, p. 713; Grass, p. 732; Lasm's, Rohault de Fleury, as usual, gives several intewhere; astingles, sume of them not figured elsewhere; as the Criophorns-Shepherd w.th the sheep looking up to Him; , hot that with the two The picture from the same both from St. Agues. $t$ ween trees, and a man miace, of an orante beside, another bearing milking an ewe on one muletra or milkpails, as also the ether, with (fig. 5 , ib.), seempails, as also the pastoral seene He also gives a cut of the Pisangled character. the Campo Santo (pl. Ixii.).

[R. St. J. T.]

The Good Shephend. Fresco from Chapel of Galla Plachila.
Eastlake's translntion of Kugler, vol. i. ; also by Crowe and Cnvalcaselle, rol. i. ch. i., where it is well described. See woodeut. As, where pasitina, thig masate $=\frac{7}{\text { mimath }}$ be compareil with the urpheus of Aringhi. [Frraco, p. 696.] For nther examples if the Orphens-Shepherd in fresen, aee Aringhi, vol. i. That on p. 563 is prohably a printing of great antiquity, ns it is defaced by a tomb being eut right through it,

sIIEPHERDS, ADORATION OF THE [Nativity.?

NHIP. The emmprison between hunian life and its troubles and a voyage with its dancers Whs fnmiliar enough to the classicnl mind (Hor. Carm. I. xiv. xxxiv.), and easily alopited by the Christian, especially from its near associations with the fisher-life of St. Peter aml other apostles. The ship in full snil (Boldetti, p. 360), or with sails furled (ib. 366) are alike used in the cemeteries, as prosecuting the voynge of Christian life, or the having happily coneluded it. (See Boldetti, pp. 360, 372-3; Perret, vol. v. pl. xaxii. xxxri. 397 of bivivs restrives.) The Lifintiouse or pharos is sometimes alded, as a sign of the accomplishment of the voyage of the soul (see Mamachi, Oriyin. iii. tav. xvii.; Perret, v. pl. xli. 10 ; and Boldetti, 372-3). And in some instnuces the name of the dead appears to be inscribed on the ship, as in the ense of the Ensebia, whose titulus is found in Passionei's Inscrizione antiche, p. 125 (fol. Luces, 1763). The latter example is s marlle in the Kircherian Musenm, where two large urns or vases are represented in the ship; which may seem rnther to point to a quasi Egyptian symholisin of the voyage after death than to the Christian voynge of life. Sometimes (Perret, v. pl. liii. 6) the menogram takes the place of the pharos on the sepulchral slab. ${ }^{\circ}$
For the ship as representing the church of Christ, see Cuurch, p. 389. For the Cardinal Borgin's jasper with our Lord as pilot and six rowers on a side (of course implying six others on the other side) see woodcut.

Ship of the Lord and Aposties (from Borgis, De Crwes Viliterna).
The dove, with olive-branch, in token of peace, sometimes sits on the prow of the ship, often with the words in Pace. (See the inscription afnialis $\|$ in pace, with ship and dove, Perret, v. pl. $x \times x i i$.) Sometimes (as Boldetti, p. 373) there is apparent play of words on the name of the buried person, ss a ship is added to the epitaph of navira. For a large lamp in the form of a ship (sea Mamachi, Urij. iii. pl. x ..)
[R. St. J. T.]
EHOES. (1) The Lord's ús $\delta \delta \eta \mu c$, the strap of which St. John Baptist declares himself

- The monogram ts not $\omega$ be found on thte siab, but oocurs on one in Purret's next paze.
unworthy to unleose (Jehn i. 27), was probsbly a saminl; i.e. a leather sole fastened to the font by straps; and He Himself bade His disciples "be shod with sandals" (Mark vi. 9), an injunction with which they ne doubt complied (Acts xii. 8). It seems from the centext thst the intent of the Loril's command was, that the disciples shuald conhne themselves to the simplest-even coarsent-necessnries in their journeys. And according to Martigny (Ihictionnaire, p. 786, 2nd ed.) all senjptures on sarcophagi, sll mosaics and seme gilt glasses do exhibit the Lord and His apostles shod with sandals; but most of the frescoes in the catacombs (e.g. Bottari, Sculture e Pitture, liv 1vii. 1xxii. cxx.) and gilt glasses (Buenarroti, Vetri, viii. $\mathrm{xv} .1, \mathrm{xx} .2$, ete.) represent them with bare feet. A few frescees give them complete shoes (Bottari, xix. xlvi. Ixxii.). Female figures in art are generally shod with complete shoes. See, for instance, in frescoes, the Virgin in the Adoration of the Magi (Bettari, xxxsiii.), the sisters of Laznrus (xlix.), the woman of Samaria (xxiii), and some of the Oranti (xxxyi. 1x.). Many of the Oranti, whese attire is also in ether respects different from that of every-day life [Paradise], have bare feet (exv. cxxiii. ete.); shoes were probably not theught necessary for those who tread the paths of bliss, Clement of Alexsndria (Pacday. II. xi. § 117) has a curions passage on the shoes of Christians. He deplores the prevalent fashion of wearing sindals embroidered with golden flowers er studed with ornamental nails and even with erotic devices. All such decorations as these he would have the Christian reject, considering that th. proper use of shoes is simply to protect the feet. Women may be pernitted to use white shoes, except when they are on a journey, when they should use s blacked shoe ( $\tau \hat{\varphi} \hat{\ell} \lambda \in i \pi \tau \hat{\varphi}$ ). On a journey they may slso use nailed soles. They sheuld at sll cvents use shoes of some kind, out of consideration for modesty. For men however, uuless it be on the march, it is better to be unshod; or, if they eannet bear naked feet, to wear light slippers, such ns gymnasts use

By the beginning of the sixth century it was found necessary in Gaul to prohibit the clergy from wearing shoes unbecuming their conditios. Thus the council of Agde (C. Agathense, c. 20) A.D. 506, forbils clerks to wear, or to hare clethes or shoes not suitable to their oflice; and s cenneil at Mâcon (C. Matisc. i. c. 5) A.D. 591, slse forbids the elergy to wear clothes or shoes after the fashion of the world (enlceaments saecularia). Probably these canons were intended to prevent clerks from wearing shoes of as extravagant fashion, sucth as the peaked shoes of the middle ages.
(2) Monast.c Shoes.-In the esriest days of monasticiem monks went barefoot, in strict sco cordsnce with the austerity of their profession; like the Steic philosophers and Hebrew prophets in whose steps they trod (Cassian, Collat. siiv. ar; Gregor. Nnzinn. Oratio vili, de I'ace, i. Carm. ascutie seffese necur continully of this kind of and hermits" (I)iscalceatio $;$ nudis pedibs
- Rusweyd, Fitace Patrum, passim.
incedere ; nudip related of Silvani early in the fifth dence at Constan crowded thoroug Ronsn empire (Socrates, H. E. v

Some heretics a tians the obligation condemned; but for thase who we ticularly menks Hueres. 68; Hieron Relig. 4 ; Greger. Augustine praises ling barefoot thre Confess. ix. 6). It cited almost endle "Barefooted" was to the medineval ceased to merit it
The great monas with his accustome the question as to feet to be settled discretion in each ing to the requiren As a rule Bened caligas " as suffice. wisely prohibiting materinl, colour, whatever in each sad least eccentric articles of necessit these "pedules et 55).

As to the exact n is much uncertain mentary on the r almost endless var easily to be recon Ménard sjeaks of Smaragdus, accord "pedules" as shi Hildemarus takes $t$ and sandals; Bern whether of wool o gaiters respectively Boterius Nicelaus boots; Haeften as other commentator boots, or as socks Conncret. in e. 55 pinions on a peint ence of modera time to deeide.
Nor do other monas Cassian allows "cal 3ad mid winter as a heat or cold (Cass. riSerille allows " pe a journey; at oth (Isid, Reg. c. 14). (Fructues. Reg. e. 4) "Magister" orders t with iron and studd daratae" (Rey. Mag tion occurs in the Grent (Gregor. M. in his Asceticon def lent to sandal, "e (Altes, Asect. V. c. 1 incedere; nodipedalia exercere, ete.). It is related of Sil vanus, bishop of l'hilippopolis, very enrly in the fifth century, that during his residence at Constantinople he walked about the crowded thoroughfares of the eapital of the Roman empire in sandals of twisted hay (Socrates, H. E. vii. 37).

SHOES

Some heretics strove to enforce on all Christisns the obligation of going barefoot ; these were condemned; but the practice was commended for those who were exceptionally devout, particularly menks and penitents (Augustin, de Heercs. 68 ; Hieron. Ep. xxii. 28 ; Theodoret, Mist. Relig. 4; Gregor. Turon. de Vit. Patr. 15). Thus Augustine praises his friend Alypius for travelling barefoot through ltaly in winter (August. Confcss. ix. 6). Instnnces of this kind miglit be cited almost endlessly during the middle ages. "Barefooted" was an epithet commonly applied to the mediaeval friars, evea when they had cessed to merit it literally.
The great monastic legislator of Monte Casino, with his nceustomed sagacity and tolerance, left the question as to the proper covering of the feet to be settled for his monks by the abbat's discretion in each particular monastery, necordisg to the requirements or climate and locality As a rule Benedict prescribed "pedules et caligas " as sufficient in ordinary circumstnuces, wisely prohibiting all controversies about size, msterinl, colour, shape; only recommending Whatever in each instance might be cheapest and least eccentric in those prits. In the list of articles of necessity for a monk are mentioned these "pedules et caligae" (Bened. Rey. c. 53).

As to the exact maning of these terms there is much uncertninty. Martene, in his commentary on the linle of Benedict, enumerates almost cndless varieties of interpretation, not easily to he reconciled with one another, aud leinard speaks of the words ns obscure. smaragdus, according to the former, takes "pedules" as shoes, "cnligae" as socks; lildemsrus takes the words severnlly ns slippers and sandals; Bernardus Casibensis ns shoes, whether of wool or leather, and buskins or gaiters respectively made of leather and wool ; Boberius Nicolaus de Fracturâ as shoes nod boots; Haeften as woollen socks and slippers; other commentstors as slipuers and halfboots, or as socks and stockings (Bencd. Rey. Comment. in c. 55). In such a conflict of pinions on a point so remote from the experience of modern times it is hopeless to attempt to decide.
Nor do other monastic rules solve the difficulty. Cassian allows "caligne" at midsummer only asd nidwinter as a protection against excessive hest or cold (Cass, Institut. I. cc. 8, 10). Isidore of Serille allows "pedules" in winter, or durinis" a journey; st other times "caligae" only (lsid, Reg. c. 14). So Fructuosus of Braga (Fructues, Rieg. c. 4). The snonynious Rule of "Magister " orders the "caligae" to be tipped mith iron and studded with nails, "ferratae ac clarstae" (Heg: Mag. c. 81). A similar expression occurs in the writings of Gregory the Great (Gregor, M. Dialog. 1. c, 4. Alteserra in his Lsceticon detines "caliga" as equivaleyt to sundal, "calceus" to shoe or boot (Altes. Ascet. V.c. 18). Hrobably the meaning places places.
As usual, the rule and practice of the female devotecs correspond with those of the monks. Egyptian nuns, for instance, are spoken of by Isidore of Jelusium, as "sandalled recluses" (Isidor. E'pp. 1. 87).
(Alteserrn (A.D.), Asceticon, v. 18; Halne, 1782. Helyot, Histoire des Ordres monerstiyucs, I'nils, 1714. Toekler (O.) Kritische Geschichte der Ashese, 11. 2, Frunk furt a. M. 1863.) [1. G. S.]

SHROUD. [Onsequies, § v. p. 1428.]

SLAGRIUS (Syagries), Aug. 27, bishop and confessor ; commemorated at Autun (Mrrt. Usuard., Adon.). [C. H.]

SICK, VISITATION OF THE. [Unction ; Viaticum.]

SIDA, COUNCIL OF (Sidense Congllium), A.D. 483, al. 391, against the Mnssalians or Euchites, uttended by twenty-five bishops, with Amphilochius of conium at their head. A letter was addressed by them to Flavinn, bishop of Antioch, informing him what they had done. (Mansi, iii. 651.)
[E. S. Ff.]
SIDON, COUNCIL OF (Sibonense ConCILIUM), A.D. 511, nttended by eighty Monophysite bishops, who met to condemn the council of Chalcedon, and Flavian, the second of that name, bishop of Antioch, and Elias, bishop of Jerusalenn, for upholding it. (Mansi, viii. 371 -374.)
[E. S. Ff.]
GIDRONIUS, July 11, martyr ; commernorated in the territory of Sens (Mart. Usuard.).
[C. H.]
SIGISMUND, Nay 1, king, martyr; commemorated at Sedunim (Sitten, Sion) (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Notker., Wand.). He has a mass in the Aucient Gallican Sacramentary.
[C. II.]
SIGN OF THE CROSS. The use of the sign of the cross is of great autiquity, and was very frequent in the carlier centurges of the Christian Church. It was eennected with such passages of Scripture as Ezek. ix. 4, Rev. vii. 3, ix. 4, xiv. I, or more fancifully with such passages as P's. cxliv. 1. It was by Moses' hands being held up in the form of a cross that Joshua was believed to have conquered Amalek (Ex. vii. 9-14), and the cross was identified with the sign of the Son of Mau foretold to appear hereafter in the heavens (St. Matt. xxiv. 30). (Chrysost. and Jerome, in loco; Cyril, Gat. Leci. siii. 41, xv. 22 ; Cypriau, ad Quirin, sects. 21, 22 ; Ephrem Syrus, de Panoplia.)
II. The originai mode of making the sign of the cross was with the thumb of the right hand, geserally on the forehend only, or on other objects. once or thrice (Chrysest. Hora, ad pop. Antioch. xl.; "Thrice he made the sign of the cross on the chalice with his finger " (Sophron. in Prat. Spirit.). So Ewzomen of Donatus (iib. vii. cap. 27); and Epiphatius of Josephus (llaer. xxx.). Justin M. Var. Quacst. 118. "The sign of the cross is ou our brow aud on our heart. It is on nur brow that we may always confess Christ, on our heart that we may always love.

SIGN OF THE CROSS

him, on our arm that we may always work for him" (Ambruse, Lib. de Isaac et Aninu, viii.). "Be nut ashamed of the cross of Christ. For this reason hast thou receired it on thy furehead, as it were ou the seat of sname" (Aug. in fray. Scrm. 27 ; see Scrm. 2 in Parusceve; Com. in 1'ss. 30, 141 ; Cypr. de Unit. Eceles. cap. 16). The act of crossing wae generally periormed in the uame of the Trinity, expressed or implied. "The faith is sealed iu the asme of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost " ('Tertull. de Bap. esp. 6), or iu the name of Christ. "Being a Christian she cressed herself in the name of Clirist" (Epiphan. Haer. 30, cap. 7), or with some formvla of renunciation of evil. "I renounce thee, 0 Satan, and thy poinp aud thy service, and 1 eurul myself as thine, 0 Christ. As thou sayest this, make the sign of the cross upon thy foreliead " (Chrysust. Or. 21, ad Pop. Antiong). It is impossible to fix the exact date at which this $\mu$ rimitive method of making the sign of the cross became obsolete. In the 6th ceutury a second and more elaborate methed had airealy supplanted it. The hand who raised to the foreheal, theu drawn down to the heart, then to the left shoulder aud then to the right, but in the Eastern Church first to the right and theu to the left shoulder. Sometimes the thumb was laid cross-wise over the index finger and kissel (Gretser, de Cruce, bk. iv. c. 2). A third method, usual in benedictluns and consecrations, was to mabe the sign of the cross in the air over persons or objects. A fourth methou was to raise the hand to the forehead in the name of God, as the head of all, then to lower it to the mouth in the name of the Son, who is the Word of the Father, then to the heart in the vame of the spirit, who is the bond of love. In all these cases some or all of the fingers might be employed with varyiug symbolical aignifications. Five fingers would represent the five wounds of Christ; three tingers the Blessel Trisity; one finger the unity of the Godihesd. Thus pope Leo IV. ordered, "Sigu the chalice and the oblation with the right cross; that is to say, not in a circle aul with various fingers, as many do, but with two tingers extended, and the thumb bent up underneath, by which the Trinity is siguified. Study to make that sigu of the cross rightly, for otherwise ye are unable to bless nnything" (Supplem. Mansi Concil, tem. i. p. 911). The phrases, "Portare erucem in fronte," erroncously to auppose that the cross was indelibly impressed ou that part of the body; and a custom does scem actually to have existed at one time in the East of branding Christian children on the forehead in order that they might be recognised again if earried into captivity by Mahomedans (Renaudut, Perpét. de la Fui, tons. v. 1, 2, e. 4, p. 106).

1II. The following passages will prove how widespread the use of the sigu of the cross became from A.D. 150 onwards. They form merely a handful, selected from out of the multitude of allusious to it which occur in the pages of the chief Christian wrisers of the first five centuries.
"In all our travels and mevements, in all ur coming in and goiug out, iu putting on our ahoes, at the bath, at the table, in lighting our candles, in lying down, in sitting down, whatever employment eccupieth us, we mark our foreheads with the sign of the cross " (Tertulliau, de Cor. Mii. е. iii.). "We see the sign of the cross naturally in a ship burne along with bellying sails; we see it when the ship glides furwaril with outstretched oars, and when the yard is hoisted; we see it when a pure-liearted man worshps Goud with extended liands" (Minuciua Felix, edit. 1672, p. 287, compare Justin. M. Apol. 2; Ambrose. Strm. 56 ; Jerome, $E_{D}, 29$, &e.). "And when ye do this, we shall hiy our hauth upon your heads, and make the sign of the cross upoa your loreheals" (Julius Africanus, Hist. lib. vi.). "We ought, therefore, on rising to give thanks to Christ, and to perfinm all our daily work with the sign of the crias (Ambrose. Serm. 43). "Whatever thou diest, wherever thou goest, let thy haml make the sign of the cross " (lerome, ud E'istoch. Ep. 2!). "Let the word of God and the sigu of Christ be in thy leart, in thy mouth, on thy foreleml, when thou sittest at meals, when thel goesc!n the baths, when thou retirest to thy bed, it going out aud in coming in, iu time of joy and in time of surrow " (Gaudentius Brixianus, tract. i. do Leet. Erang.; see Migne, Patr. Cursus, tom. xx. p. 890). Compare Prulentius, Cisth. IIymn. vi. 129, seq. ; adv. s'ymm. ii. 712. " "or this rensou the Lord himself has fixed his cruss on the foreheals of thase whe believe or hith, which is as it were the seat of shame, where proud and impious madmen mocked him in orler that the faititul may not blush at his name, and nay rather seek the glory of God than of meu" (Augustinus, Ifon. liii. int Exang. S. Joun, sect. 13 ; Hom. viii. sect. 2 ; Hom. xi. sect. 3 , et perssin). "A third commentator, oue of those who believe in Christ, suid that the rudimentary eleneats presented in the letter Tau a resemblance to the figure of the eross, and that therein was eutained a propheey of the sign which is made by Christians unto their foreheads; for all the faithful make the sign iu commencing any undertakiog, and especially at the commencement of prayer or of readiug Holy Scripture" (Origen, Select. in Ezech. cap. 9). "Let us not theu be aslianatl to confess the Crucilied. Be the cross ous seal made with bolduess by our fingers on our brow, and on everything; over the breal we eat, and the cups we drink; in our comings in aud guings out ; before our sleep, when we lie down, and when we awake, wheu we are ia the way, and when we are stil! (St. Cyril oi Jer. Cutech. Lect. xiii. 36).
"That aign of the cross which furmerly all persons ahuddered at, is now so emulously sought by every one, that it is to be found everywhere, among rulers and subjects, among men and wemen, amoug married and unmarried, ameng bend aud free. All are continually making it upon the nobleat portion of the human frame, and daily bear it about engraved on their foreheads as cs a pillar. Behold it at the holy table; at the ordiuation of priests; refulgent aloug with the body of Christ at the mystic meal. Everywhere one may see it celebrated, in houses, in marketplaces, iu deserts, in high-roals, on metutais, in groves, on hills, on the sea, in ships, in islauda, in eouches, in dresses, in arms. in porches, in convivial assemblies, on gold aud nilver vessels, in pearls, iu mural paintings, on the bodies of the aullering bruse creatis, wo the budies of persons possessed by de, ils, in war, in pesce, by day, b companies of as each other in se unspeakable grac et fontiles quad 571 ; Hora. lv. in Antioch; Ifom. complains of its habitual mechau 26, and in 1 Cor.
IV. The above of the eross acco saered or profane in the morning It may, however, objects for which ful, and some p believed to be con were secured by i
(a) It was emp Church to denote to distiuguish the heathen. "We re if they are the berring the aign 53, de Verlun Det this, and urged th times as a groun altogether (Hooker
(b) To put th believed to be ver the assaults and spirits. "Theu so who knew the Y.or priest, made the in their foreheads; demuns were put $t$ thrown into conf Mort. Persec. edit these words make. forehead; for thus but also rot even t in any way to hur everywhere protect ad Illum. Catech. Mctth. ; Adv. Judau em, Cat. Lect. iv Lib. de Symh. rap. wishes to obtain a before come, and a or in the case of the of the marvels of m the ceoss which is r namiug the naine $n$ the demous are put crackes rease, and a brught to rought Dei, cap. 43 ).
(c) For ruminding sad ntiners unler their faith. "The cross, that the mind de Res. Carnis, c. 8 mertyrs thus: "Le the mark of God (Epp. 56 et 58 , c. whe had not lapsed i Fution with the sig the crown of Satan, erown of the Iord 21).
(d) As a re:uedy a peace, by day, by night, in revellers' dances, in companies of ascetics. Thus do all vie with each other in seeking this marvellous gift, this unspeakable grace." (Chrysost. contra Judueas et ficntiles quad Christus sit Dous, edit. 1718, p. 571 ; Hom. lv. in S. Matth. ; Ilom. xxi. ad Pop. Antioch; Hom. x. in Acta iv. 1-2', where he complains of its haviog dropped into a merely habitual mechauical action ; Hom. in 2 Tim. ii. 26, and in 1 Cor. iv. 6, &c.)
IV. The above quotations prove that the sign of the cross accompanied almost every action, sacred or profane, in a Christinn life, from rising iu the morning antil retiring to rest at vight. It may, however, be convenient to specify some objects for which it was deemed especially useful, and some particular virtues which were believed to be contained in it, or reaults which were secured by its use.
(a) It was employed hy members of the early Church to denote that they were Christians; and to diatinguish themselves from the surrounding heathen. "We recognise the members of Christ, if they are the members of Christ, by their buring the sign of Christ" (Augustine, Scrm. 53, de Virlo Dei). The Puritans understood this, and urged the altered circumstances of the times as a gronnd for abandoning the ccistom altogether (llwoker, Eccles. Pol. Ixv. 6).
(b) I'o put the devil to flight. It was believed to be very efficacions towards repelling the assanlts and nentralising the power of evil spirits. "Then some of the assistant ministers, who knew the Jord, standing by the sacriticing priest, made the immurtal sign of the cross upon their foreheads; and when it was made, the demuns were put to Hight, and the sacred rites thrown into confusion" (Lactantius, Lit. de Mort. Persec. edit. 1692, p. 8\%). "Along with these words makethe sign of the cross upion thy forchead; for thus not only no human adversary, but also cot even the devil himself, will be able in any way to hurt thee, seeing thee appearing everywhere protected by these arms" (Chrysost.
ad Illum. Catech. ii. ad finem; Kom. Iv. in $S$. ad Illum. Catech. ii, ad finem; Kom. Ir in $S$, Mctth. ; Adv. Judaeos, viii. 8; Cyril of Jerusalem, Cat. Lect. iv. 13, xiii. 3, 36 ; Augustin. Lib. de Symh. cap. i. et passim). "Let him who wishes to obtain a proof of what has been said before come, and at the appearance of demons, or in the case of the deceitfulacss of oracles and of the marvels of magic, let him use the sign of the cuoss wilich is ridicule: sinong them, mercly nsining the nawe of Christ, and he will see how the demous are put to flight by it, and how the cracks cense, snil all magic and witcheraft are brught to 7ought" (Athan. de Incarn. Verbi Dei, cap. 45).
(c) Fo' raminding and encuaraging themselves and ntaers under difficulties and trials to their faith. "The flesh is signed with the cross, that the mind mas be fortified " (Tertull. de Res. Carnis, c. 8.) St. Cyprian encouraged martyrs thus: " Let thy brow be fortified, that the mark of God may be preserved intact" (Ebp. 56 et 58, c. 6 ). and congratulated those whe had not lapsed in these words ; "The brow Fintied with the sign of God could not endure the crown of Satan, but reserved itgelf for the crown of the J.ord" (De Leips. ch. 2, tom, i.
121).
(d) As a retaedy againat temptation to special sins ; as anger (Chrysost. in S. Matt. xxvii. 44 ; in Act. vii. 36-53), or lust (Ambrose, Lixhort. ad Virg.).
(e) As a charm against disease or mishnp, St. Chrysoatom enumerates this smong its chicf virtues. "This sign, both in the days of our forefathers and now, hath opened doors that Were shut up, hath nentralised peiaonons drugs, hath takea away the power of hemluck, hath healed bites of venomous beasts." (Hom. liv. in S. Matt. xvi. 2.3; Hom. vili. in Col. iii., Aug. in Ps. xciii. ; Sophron. in Prat. Spirit. c. 56.) Many of the fahalous stories contained in the pages of later historians and martyrologists ara connected with this supposed efficsey of the sign of the cross. (Sulp. Severus, de Vita Martini, cap. iii. ix, xxiv. et ul.).
( $f$ ) For purifying places, churches, vessels, cups, foot, drink, and other objects which were considered unclean, or had been abused to idolatrous purposes. "Is not then swine's flesh unclean? By no menns, when it is received with thanksgiving, when it is marked with the sign of the cross; no more is any other thing unrlean." (Chrysust. Hom. xii. in 1 Thn. iv.; for fobulous storics of later writers vide Bede, tom. iii. in Vita S. l'edasti; Fortunatus, in Vitu,
S. Germani, c. 34.)
V. It remains to give some account of the ceremonial use of the sign of the cross in the liturgy and sacramental othices of the primitive Church. As most of the ritual writers and most missals and manuals, st all events in their present form, are of a later date than the 9 th ceutury, this account must be necessarily of a somewhat fragmentary character, A ninute and systematic sccount or a comparative table of its use in the Eastern sad Western otlicebooks could only be drawn from materials of mediaeval and modern times.

The Sacramentary of Leo contains no rubrical directions at all. The few rubrics enjoining the aign of the cross in the Gelasian and Gregorian Sacramentaries in the earliest ordines Romani, and in the fragments of certain Easteru and Western pontificals and rituals not later than the 9 th century will be uoted under different headingg. Of early rituslists, Amalarius explains the meaning of crossing with oil and balsam in baptism (lib. i. c. 27), and its frequent ritual use in Holy Communion, at the gospel, at the consecration of the chalice by touching it crosswise with a particle of the consecrated host, and who suggesta greater simplicity in its use: "It scems to me that if the sign ot the cross was made once over the breni and wine it would be enongh, becanse the Lord was crucified once " (lib, iii. 18, 24, 31).

There are many passages scattered up and down the pages of the Christian apolegists and the early fathera which bear out what the above facts seem to imply, that the use of tho हiga of the cross became, at a very early date, a marked featura of Cluistisn worship, buth in their general dovotions, and more especially in the administration of the sserameots. The joined or crossed hands in any prayer reprenanatat the cross-"Crucis signum ent cum home purrectis manibus Deum pura mente veneratur " (Minucius к.т. ג. (Chrysost. Demonst. quod Christns sit Deus, cap. 8). In speaking of the sacraments, language was aometimea employed which would seom to assort their lavalidity, or at least their irregularity, if the aigu of the cross was not a enstituent portion of their ceremonial. "Whoever may be the ministers of the sacraments, of what sort soever may be the hands which either immerse the candidates (audientes) for baptism, or auoint tham; by whatever lips the sacred words are uttered, it is the authoritative uss of the sign of the eross which works the eflect in all the sacraments" (Cyprian, de Pass, Christi). St. Augustiue said that "Unless the aign of the cross is made either on the foreheads of the faithful, or on the water itself wherewith they are regenerated, or on the oil with which they are anoiuted with chrism, or on the sacrifice with which they are nourished, nene of these things is duly performed " (Ilum. exviii. in $S$. Joan. xix. 24). St. Chryonstom used these words: "As a crown so let us bear about the cross of Christ. For by it all things are wrought that are dene among us. If one is to be regencrated, the cross is there, or to be nourished with that mystical food, or to be ordained, or to do auything elsc, everywhere that symbel of victery is present with us" (Hom. liv. [al. lv.] in S. Matt. vii. ; Op. tom. vii. p. 551).

In these and other passages we find that the sign of the cross was part of the ceremonial attending certain religious services, nad was especially employed on the following occasions:-
(a) It the reception of a Catechumen.-St. Augustine, in an address to catechumens, told them, "Ye are not yet regenerate by huly baptism, hat ye bave been conceived in the woinb of holy mother Charch by the sign of the cross." (Lt), de Symb. ad Catech.; Hom. I. in S. Juan. sect. 12 ; Hon. in 1 S. Joan. c. 2 ; de Peccator. Her. c. 26 , et passin). In the old Ambrosian rite the sign was ordered to be made once on the catechumen's forehead; in an old Gallican rite, $t$ wice on the forehead and breast; in an old Gothic missal four times, on the eyes, ears, nose, and heart; in a Gallican sacramentary (7th ceutury), once on the face.
The above and the fellowing details are culled from the Gelsian and Gregorian Sacramentaries, and the fragments of early Weatern missals or rituals preserved in Mabillen's Musacum Ithlieun, and Martene, de Antiq. Eccles. Rit. Their statements, or conjectures, as to the dates of documeuts have been accepted.
(b) At luytism.-In the preliminary consecration of the water:-"Baptism, that is to say the water of salvation, is not the water of salvation, unless having been consecrated by the name of Christ, who shed His blood for us, it is marked with the sign of the cross" (Aug. Ilom. xxvii.; liל. 6, c. Julian. cap. 8; Cypr. Ep. Iviii. sect. 10 ); in the exoreism and impositiou of hands (Aug. Conf. i. cap. 11); st the unctiou (Constit. Apost. lib. iii. cap. 17; Tertul. de Resur. cap. 8 ; Ambros. de iis qui initiontur, c. 4, et passim).
(c) At Cunfirmation. - This rite, in early times, immediately following baptism, consisted of the imposition of hands aud the mating the sign of the cross on the candidate's forehend with chrism and is the name of the Triuity. "Baptized persous receivg the gifts of grace by the sign of the same eross, aud by imposition of hands." (Aug. Serm. 19, do Sinctis ; Gelas. Sacram.; York l'outitieal of Egbert; Cahors, Beauvais, Poictiers rituals of 9 th century.)

SILVANUS

(d) In extreme unction.-Ths short oflice for this rite in the Gregorian Sacramentary contains no rubric enjoining the aign of the cross, It dues not appear in connexion with unction of the sick till early in the 9 th century, when a Troyes pentifical directs the sick man's breast to be anointed thrice with cinders, while a Toara poutitical of about the same date presents this elaborate rubric (Martene, lib. i. Ordo, iii. cap. vii. art. iv). [Unction.]
(e) In lloly Communion.-This rite is generally mentioned in passages proviously quated as one in the ceremonial of which the sigu of the cross formed a part. The oross was symholised by the elevated hands of the consecrating priest, whi, "representing the mystery of the cross by the elevation of his hands, praye confidently on behalf of his own and the people's ignorance." (Cyprian, de Coeut Dom.; Aug. Serm. claxxi. de temp. ; Ordo Rom. i. 8, 11, &c., ii. 2, 5; Greguriau Sacramentary; Mozarabic and Spauish liturgies of 9 th ceat. Martene, i. 382 ; Mabillen, Lit. Gall. p. 449.)
(f) In Ordination, whether of hishops, priests, deacous, sublescons, readers, or other miuor church olficers (vide supra); but the carliest extant Western ordinals explicitly ordering the sign of the cross seem hardly to fall within the limits of this dictionary. There nre directions for its frequent and elaborate use in the old Syro-Jacobite and Coptic ordinals printed is siartene, vol. ii. [Ombination.]
(g) In the Consecration of Churches and Altars. -" With the mark of the same cross charches are dedicated, altars are consecrated" (Aag. Hom. 1xxv. de Divers.); of fonts, of pateus (Gelas. bad Gregor. Sacram.); in blessing and lighting the Easter candle on Easter eve ( $i, b$ ); nnd, thercfore, probably in other minor arts of dedication or consecration which have escapel specific mention. (For further details, in aldition to authorities previously queted, cunsalt Lipsius, de Cruce, and Binterim's Denkwürdijkeiter, vol. iv. pt. 1.) [Consecration.]
[F. E. W.]

SIGNA. [BELLs.]

SILANUS, July 10 (Bsd. Mart.). [Silvanus (5).]

SILAS, apostle; commemorated July 13 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., in Macedonia) ; July 30 , with Silvanas, Crescens, Epaenetus, Andrenicas (Cal. byzant., Basil. Denol.; Menol. Gruec. Sirlet.).
[C. H.]
SILVANUS (Sylvanus) (1), Jan. 29, martyr under Diocletian (Cal. Byzant.).
(2) Feb. 6, bishop of Emesa, martyr under Numerian, with Lucas deacon, and Mocias realer (Basil. Merol.; Menol. Grace. Sirlet.).
(3) May 4, bishop of Gaza, martyr under Diocletian (Mart, Usuard., Adon., Vet. Fivm., Notker., Wand. ; Basil. Mlenul.).
(4) May 24, martyr ; commemorated in Ilistris with Servilius and ethers (Mart. Usuard., Adon liet. Riom., INieron., Notker.).
(5) July 10 Silanus), one o [Septem Fratri
(6) July 30 , ap
(7) Aug. 23.
(8) Sept. 4, bo Rufinus and Vital (Mart. Usuard., Notker.) ; Aug. 3
(9) Scpt. 9 (S a martyr under ti ciuthus and other
(10) Sept. 22,

Bourges (Dlart. U,
(11) Oct. 26 ; c Marcianus (Syr. A (12) Nov. 5, m

Domninus and oth
SILVESTER (Cal. Byzant.; B Sirlet.) ; Dec. 31 Bed. ; Marl. Usuar for by name in the ber; his natale o Gregorian Sacrame in the collect ; his Lib. Antiph. of Gre
(2) Nov. 20, bish
at Châlons-sur-Saôr SILVINUS, Feb in the territory of '

SILVIUS, Apr. at Alexamiria with (Mart. Usuard., Not SIMEON (Syme cemmenorated at A1 Adon., Vct. Rom., (Basil. Menol.; Ca Sirlet.).

(2) Senex, Jan. 5, Who took the infant Flor., Ilicron., Notike Sirlet.); Feb. 2 (Ca Menwl. ; Cal. By zant. Adon., Rom.).
(3) Feb. 18, bish (Mart. Usuarl., Ad Apr. 27 (Cal. Byzant (Basil. Mcnol. ; Meno
(4) Apr. 14, bishop martyr in l'ersia un Apr. 17 (Cal. Byzant. (Alart. Usuard., Ad Notker.).
(5) Stylites the $\mathbf{Y}_{0}$ rite, May 24 (Cal. 1 Senol.).
(6) July 18, patri Ethiop.).
(7) July 21, monk
"enr fathers," in the ef Emesa (Basil. Menos
(8) July 27, monk

SILVESTER

(5) July 10 (Mart. Usuard., Notker.; Bed. Sllanus), one of the seven auns of Felicitas. [Seitem Fratres.]
(6) July 30 , apoatle. [Silas.]
(7) Ang. 23. [Sabinus (4).]
(8) Sept. 4, boy martyr with two other boya, Rafinns and Vitalicns ; commembrated at Ancyra (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Notker.) ; Aug. 31 (Ilieron.).
(9) Sept. 9 (Syr. Mart.) ; Mart. IFicron. has a martyr under this day in Sabinum, with. Ilyaciuthus and others.
(10) Sept. 22, confessor, in the territory of Bourges (Mart. Usuard.).
(11) Oct. 26 ; commemorated at Antioch with Marcisaus (Syr, Murt.).
(12) Nov, 5, martyr under Diocletisn with Domoinua and others. (Busil. Menol.) [C. H.]
SILVESTER (Sylvegter) (1), Jan. 2, pпje (Cal. Byzant.; basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.); Dec. 31 (Mart. Bed.; Mart. Metr. Bed. ; Mart. Usuard., Jet. Rom., Wand.); prayed for by name in the Leonian Sacramentary, Oetober; his nutale obscrved on Dec. 31 in the Gregorian Sucramentary, which gives his name in the collect ; his natala also observed in the Lit. Antiph. of Gregory.
(2) Nov. 20, bishop, confessor ; commemorated at Châlons-sur-Sâone (Mart. Usuard., Adon.).
[C. H.]
SILVINUS, Feb. 17, blahop; commemorated in the territory of Terouanne (Mart. Usuard.).
[C. H.]
SILVIUS, Apr. 21, martyr; commemorated at Alexandris with Arator, Fortunns aud others (Murt. Usuard., Notker.).
[C. H.]
SIMEON (Sympon) (1), Stylites, Jan. 5 ; commemorated at Antioch (Mart. Usnard., Flor., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notiker., Wand.); Sept. I (Basil. Menol. ; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Gept. Graec.
Sirlet.).
(2) Senex, Jan, 5, aged prophet of Jerasalem who took the infant Jesus iò his arms (Mart. Flor., Hieron., Notker.); Feb. 1 (Menol. Graec. Sirlet.); Feb. 2 (Cal. Ethiop.); Feb. 3 (Basil. Menol. ; Cul. By Bant.) ; Oot. 8 (Mart. Usnard., Adon., Rom.).
(3) Feb. 18, bishop of Jerasalem, martyr (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vot. Rom., Notker.); Apr. 27 (Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec.); Sept, 18 (Basil, Mcnol. ; Menol, Graec.).
(4) Apr. 14, bishop of Selencia and Ctesiphon, martyr in Persia uader Sapor (Basil, Menol.); Apr. 17 (Cal. Byzant.; Menol.: Graec.); Apr. 21 (Mart. Usnard., Adon., let. Rome, Wand., Notker.). Notker.).
(5) Stylites the Younger, or the Thaumastorite, May 24 (Cal. Byzant.); May 23 (Basil.
Menol.).
Ethiop.).
(6) July 18, patriarch of Alexandria (Cal.
"(7) July 21 , monk with John at Jerusalem "oor fathers," in the time of Justinian, natives of Limesa (Basil. Menor. ; Cal. Byzant.).
(8) July 27, monk (also called Simen) ; commemorated In Sicily (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vot. Rom., Ilieron., Nutker.). [C.H.]

SIMEO: SONG OF. [CANTICle.]

SIMILLA A US, June 16, biahop, confessor; commemarated at Nantea (Mart. Usinard., Adon., [Cieron.).
[C. II.]

SIMON ZEL,OTES, Apostlef, Festival of,

1. Legend. - Although this apostle is designated by two apprarently distinct surnames in the New Testament, Zelotes and Cabanaeus," these are, as Is well knowa, identical in inerning. The latter merely representa the Hebrew, of which the former is the Greek equivalent, the refereace doubtless being to the sect of the so-called Zealuts. Beyond the fact of his apostleship, the New Testament tella us nothiag of St. Simon; and, as in the case of so many other apostles, there is next te aothing of triat there is next te aothing of trinst worthy tradition.
It is not onr province to disenss either of the improbable theories which identify him either with Simon the Lord's brother, or Symeon who succeeded James as bishop of Jerusalem. The Greck Appendix of Sophronius to the Liber de J'iris Illustribus, does indeed jdentify him with the latter (Jerome, vol. ii. 958), and speaks of the crucitixion which he underwent at the age of 120 years in the reign of Trajan. This, however, is too utterly nalikely to need further nutice. A notc in one of the Vienaa MSS. of the Apostolic Constitutions states (viii. 27) that Simun was martyred in Judaea in the reign of Domitian.
The prevailing tenor, perhaps, of the traditions as to Simon's labour's, associates him with the region east of Palestine. Thus, the prologue to the Mart. Mieronymi makes Simon suffer with Jude "in Snsia, civitate magna apud Persidem" (Patrol. xxx. 437). In the Armenian chronicler Moses of Chorene (5th century) are given letters of Abgarns, king of Edessa, to Artasis, king of the Persians, and Nerses his mon, which mention Simon, one of the chief apostles of Jesns, as labonring in Persia (ii. 29, 18 ; p. 140, ed. Whiston). Moses subsequently adds, "as regards Simon, the spher'e of whose werk was Persia, I can give no certain information, either as to what he did, or where he was martyred. Soma declare that an apostle named Simon died near the lberian Bosporns" (ii. 31, 6, p. 143). On this last point, however, Moses decliues to give any opinion, and evidently views the whole thing as quite donltful. It will be noticed hera that there is in the above passage nothing to shew which of the two Simons among the apostles is referred to, and the Whistons (not. in loc.) remark that most commentators suppose the reference is to Simon Peter. In the Apostolic Ilistory of the Psendo-Abdias (lib. 6, in Fahricius, Codex Pseudepig. Nowi Test. i. 609), the scene of Simon's martyrdom is given as Suanir in Persia, and the name of the Persian king as Xerxes. The Christian poet Venantins Fortunatus (ob. A.D. 609), following the lead of Abdias, declares (Carm. viii. 6; Patrol. Ixxxviii. 270)-
"Hinc StmoLem et Jodam iomen Persida gemelium Lata relaxato mittit ad astra slnu." [^156]
1900  SLMON 2 ELOTES

SIMONY

Another story snys that he labourel In North Afriva, Egyit, Cyrene, and Maurstania, but the evilance on which this rexth is of no weight (Niceph. Call. INist. Eccles, if. 40 ; Pseudo-1)orotheus, in Ajy. in (hronicon Pischirle, II. 138, ed, bindurf). The latter states that after labouring in Africa, he carried the news of the gespel to the British Isles. Such also is the story told in the Mensea.
ii. Festival.-As in the case of nearly all the npostles, there seems no trace of nuy enrly commemorative festival of St. Simon. In the West, he has been generally associated with st. Jude, and commemorated on October 28 ; in the East they are commemorated on diffirent days.

As regards the festlval In the Wentern ehureh, it is not necessary to repeat what we have already said In the article on St. Jule, and we shall accordingly merely refer the reader there. It may, however, be well ngain to remark that, though in some Western recorls St. Simon is cominemorated on other days than October 28 , yet in all these cases, so far as we are aware, he is associated with St. Jude.

In the Greek church, St. Simon is commemorated en May 10. The Menueon jilentities him $\mu \in \nu o s$ ), althongh there can be little doubt that Nathmal is the personal name of larthelomew. The entry for Nay 10 in the Greek metrienl Ephemerudes, prefixed by l'apebroch to the Acta Sunctorum for May is (p. xxvii.) $\tau \hat{p}$ סekdrp

In the caleadars of the Ethiopic r", Alexandrian churebes published by Lut 偾 there is no meation of St. Simon, but, frow l's tatry on July 10 "Nathanael the Caramporse" "nI Hist.
 churehes, like the preceding, thenelsy winom and Nathanael.

In the Armenian church St. Simon is perhaps commenorated on September 28 , en which day we find in the first of the two Armeaian calendars given by Assemanal (bibl. Gr. iii. 1. $6+5$ sqq.) "Simeon, Apostle;" though in the accond the entry runs, "Simeon, the kinsman of Christ."

The name of Simon has net apparently been made much use of by the authors of apocryphal writings. We are not nware of the existence of any except the Acta Simonis et Judae given by the Pseudo-Abdias (supra). The Apostolic Constitutions, however (viii. 27, 28), assign to this apestle the regulations as to the consecration of bishops, beaedictioas, &c.

For an elaborate account of the legends in conaexion with St. Simon and his cultus, reference may be made to Van Hecke in Acta Sunctorum (Oct. vol. xii. pp. 421 sqq.).

SIMONY. Bingham (Antiq. XVI, vi. 28) distinguishes between three degrees of simony; (i) buying and selling spiritual gifts; (ii) buying and selling spiritunl preferments; (iii) usurpation of ecelesiastical functions without electioa or ordination. Against tratficking in spiritual gifts the laws of the early church were very severe. 'Thus the apostolical canons (c. 28) appointed that if bishop, priest, or deacen obtained his sacred character by means of money, both the ordained and the ordainer were to be subject to total excision from the chureh, sentence whleh it was in the pewer of the clurch to lottict. The second canen of Chalcedon 1!in. whe excommunl-ated those whe obtained iy a price the priceless grace of holy orders. Shmilarly the second council of Braga, A.5, 572, c. 3 , recapitulating the decision of the fothers against bribe pronounces "Anathema danti et acelplentl." Aad in lict denunclutiens against simony ure freduent througheut the whole of our period after the 4 th century ; see 9 Conc. Aurel, ce. $3,4,+$ Cone. Tolet. e. 19,8 Conc, "Tolet. o. 3,11 Conc. Tolet. ce, 8, 9, Cone, In Trult. c. 22, 2 Cone. Nicaen. c. 5, Cone. Mogunt. e, 30, Conc. liemens. c. 21, Bassl. Ep. I xavi, ul Lipisc, Gelas, Ep. . ad Spisc. Lu:an., Symmach. Decret. c. 1, nail very frequently in the writings of Gregory, $E p p$, v, 53, 55, 57 ; vi. 8 ; ix, 49, 106 ; xi. 46 ; xii. 28 ; siii. 41 ; Ilom. in E'rumgel. I. iv. 4. Against simonfacal transactlons the chvil law upheld the diseipline of the church. Thus Justin. Novell. exxiil. 1, exxxvil. 2, requirel in the censecration of bishops that both the electurs and the blshoj, elect should take an eath un the Gespels that nething had been given either by wey of donation or promise, or through friendship, to obtain the election and the consecration. Clesely allied to the chief sin of corrupt ordinations was that of withholding the sacraments unless payment was mnde. The varinus canons directed againat this abuse lndiente that on pretence of asking an ollering the clergy were in the habit of setting a price en the spiritual gifts which they administered. At bipitioms, fur instance, it suems to have been custmary to make a voluntary oblation. This easily leil to the notion that the eblation was cempulsory, sad was calculated te deter the poor trom the sacrament. The council of Elvira accordingly (c. 48) prohibited the practice of easting money into a bowl at bnptism, for the clergy were nut to make gain on the sacred gift which they had received without cost. On the same greund Gelasins (Ep i. ad Epise. Luce,n.) furbade the ltalian clergy from exacting ${ }^{\text {a }}$ fee for bnptism or confirmation. And in the Greek chureh Gregory Niazianzea (Orat. 40 de Bupt.) remenstrates with those who kept away from baptism, alleging that they could net nfford the usual offering or the entertainment for the officlating elergyman; he tells them that the only offering demanded is that of themselves to Christ, and that their own holy life was the only entertainment expected. In the Spaaish church apparently in suite of the decree of Elvira, the cevetousness of the elergy still debarred the poor from baptism. In the second council of Braga, A.D. 572 , there is a caann (c. 7) denounciag the compulsery denand of a pledge frem these whe had not wherewithal to ofler voluntarily. The same conncil (c. 5) prohibited the exaction of a fee for the consectation service of a church. The eleventh conacil of Tolede A.D. 675 (c. 8) pronounced it contrary to ecclesiastical law to take money not only for promotion, to holy orders, but alse for bipitism, contimmation, or unction; the demand of a fee for the administration of the eucharist fell under the same coudemnation from ('one. in 'rinll. c. 2H, A voluntary offering, which was of the nature of a thank-offering, frem one who partnok of s spiritual ordinsnce, was law'ul and praiseworthy but a compulsory fee was tainted with simong, inasmueh as of the spiri
'I'ratlickit sinuony of the same ot means to ob chireh. In emoluments of holding occasion to tions, for w the ehurch bishoprice be and importa arise unseru bishop who aby dependm bailitt" (Coa position wall man promot Compare the the electors $t$ from favour (Justia. Nove known to hol min of geod sion inte sces rather than bishops to get whenever it corrupt mean "That pernie root 1 out th move from on tor which he heard of any from a Inrger appenrs that plead that he since many are to sead the let trauslation of was a commo suspicion of col

BIMPLICI

 memorated at(2) July 29 Via l'ortuensis martyrs under Adon., Vet. $a$ There is an of Antiph. of Greg
(3) Nov. 8, w pronianus, and martyrs under Rome on the Aden., Vet. Rom SINERUS, eceurring in Ad martyr under Di minm (Mart. Aden.).

SINGER. Cantorizu.]
SINGLLION1 the emperor $\mathbf{G a}$ Trebellius Pellio be recounts a nun

SMPLICLUS

SIRMIUM

Inammet as it wan setting a price on the work of the Syimit.
'1rallicking in the gift:s of the Holy Ghest was sinuny of the darkest dye; nather iegree of the asme oflence was the employment of corrupt means to obtain promotion or preferment In the church. In the firat three centuries, when the emsluments of office were small and the danger of holding theia great, there was not much ocension to pass laws against slmoniacal prome. tions, fir whell a $f^{\circ}$ rrsecution arose, the rulers of the church were struck at tirst. But when a bishopric became not only a position of dignity sul imporiance, but also a secure one, there would arise unscrupulous cand arise unscrupulous camplidetes for the uffice. A any dependant, "a houseonteward, ndrounte, bailift" (Cone. Chalcel. c. 2), to an eeelesiastical position was guilty of simony, no less than the man promoted, and was subject to deposition. Compare the onth already quoted to be taken by the electors that the bishop elect was not chosen (Justin. Novell. exxuruii. the influence of monay (Justin. Norell. cxxxyii, 2), hut because he was known to holl! to the Catholic faith, and to be a man of good lifo and sound lenrning. The intrusion into sees already occupied was schisinatical rather than simoniacal. ifut the ambition of bishops to get themselves removed to hirger sees, wbencerer it was done for the sake of guln or by corrupt means, was of the nature of simony. "That pernicious custom ought to be utterly root 1 out that it be lawful for any hishop to move from one city to another; for the reason for which he does this is plain, siare we never heard of any bishop who laboured to he removed from a larger city to a smaller. Whenever it appears that avarice is his motive, it is ldle to flead that he has received letters of invitation, since many are corrupted by bribes and rewards to scud the letter" (Conc. Sardic. ce. 1, 2). The trauslation of bishops whose motives were pure Whs a common practice, and was under no
[G. M.]
[G.ion of corruption.
SIMPLICIUS (1), 'June 24, bishop; commemorated at Autun (Mart. Usuard., Notker.). (2) July 29; commemorated at Rome on the Yia Portuensis with Faustinus sad Beatrix, martyrs under Diocletinn (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom, Hieron., Notker., Wand.). There is an office on their natale in the Liber Antiph. of Gregory.
(3) Nov. 8, with Claudius, Nicostratus, Sympronianus, aud Castorius, eminent artificers and martyrs under Diocletian, commemorated at Rome on the Vin Lavicana (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Wand.). [C. H.] SINERUS, Feb. 23 (other forms of the name occurring in Ado and Mart. Hieronym.), monk, martyr under Diocletian; commemorated at Sirminn (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Hieron.
Adon.).

SINGER. [Cantor; Pbalmista; Schola dantorum.

SINGILIONES ( $\sigma_{i \gamma}(\lambda \lambda l \omega)$. In a letter of the emperor Gallienus (ob. A.D. 268), cited by he recounts a number of presents he was seuding $\omega$, the severest -of the churet halcedon lia . ohtained holy ordera. raga, A.D. 572, of the Fachers sema danti et intions agaiast ie whole of our 2 Cone. Aure. 8 Cone. Tolet. conc. in Trull. Mayunt. c. 30, xxi. od bipisc, nmach. Deceret. he writings of 8 ; ix. 49, 1116 ; anges. l. is. 4. church. Thus 2, required in oth the electors ke an oath un en given either se, or through and the consef sin of corrupt ding the sacra-- The varimas se indicate that chergy were At baptioms, fur a customary to is easily led to compulsory, and from the sacraordingly (c. 48) ag money into a vere not to make rey had received od Gelasin: (Ep. e Italian clergy or confirmation, gory Nazianzen with those who ging that they ug or the entergyman; he tells auded is that of their own holy it expected. In in spite of the ss of the clergy mptism. In the 372 , there is a apulsory de:asad not wherewithal e council (c. 5) for the ronsecraeleventh council nced it contrary ney not ouly for also for bapitism, demand of a fee charist fell under nc. in "Trull. e. ${ }^{23}$ ", of the nature of ho partook of a ind praiseworthy, ted with simong, to Clauillus, who afterwards succeele! him an emperur, he mentions, among several other articles of dresw, Simuiliones Dulmatomes derem. The meanlag of the word la very doutititl, from lis extreme rarity. It seems only to necur agaia In the will of tiregory of Nazlanzuen, where he bequeaths to tho "notarius" Elaphlna, with Gr. xxxvii. 303). We may at once, with the Greek apelling before us, roject Cwaubon's propesal to read Cinjiliones (not, in toc,). It sepma bext to suppose that the Greek word is but a repreduction of the lation, and to cumpare it la idea with such Greek words as $\dot{\alpha} \pi \lambda o t s$, oindots (cf. the English singtit, dinthef). Thus we havo $\theta$ Øival. Another view ansociates the w. Sigillum, and thus we should have a referem. is marks worked into a dress (such an e, I. ciammudin [see the article] and the like), but this vlew seems much less probable than the furegoing. The epithet Dalmutenses may pot improbably imply aome connaxion with the Dalmutic [Dalisatic] See on the whole question Salmnsius's note, Trebell. Poll. f. c.). [R. S.]

SIRENS. [Paganism in Art, p. 1535.]

SIRIACUS, June 18 ; commemorated at Mnlaca in Spaiu with Paula (Mart. Usuard.).
[C. II.]
Concilas) COUNCILS OF (Sitsitensis councils have been hotly disputed. Cave (IIst. Lit. i. 37:-379) mnkes five ; Valesius in one place (ad.Soz. iv. 15), four, but in another (ad Soc, ij. 30) a fifth ; Mansi (iii. 179-289), three, but is favourable to a fourth. The Jesuits Detavins (Diss, de Phot.) and Sirmondus (Diat. Sirm.) took opposite sides on the subject; and de Marca (Opusc. v.) intervened between them without settling it. There were three creeds likewise published at Sirmium, but it is not agreed by which councils. Taking Cave for our guide, whose statement is the least confused, we may arrange them as follows:-
(1) A.D. 349, when Photinus, bishop of that see, was condemned. "veram, reclamante plebe, sede suâ jam deturhari non potuit," as C'nve Petays. This synod was first brought to light by Petavius, nnd has been accepted by most.
(2) A.D. 351, when Constantius was there, treating with Vetranio ( $S o c$. ii. 28) and Photinus, having disputed with Basilius of Ancyra nad been worsted by him, was deposed; nnd Marcus composed the first of the three creeds in Greek, to which twenty-five anathemas are appended. Such at least is the conclusion of Petnvius and Mansi. Valesius and Cave differ only from them in asserting that Marcus was not the suthor of this creed.
(3) A.D. 357, when Osius and Potamins both signed and lapsed. The creed signed by than was the second creed, published in Latin, but, according to Mansi, translated into Greek by the samc. Marcus who composed the first. It was much more heterodox than the first, however, so much so, that it is pronounced "blasphenry" by St. Hilary. Germinius, the successor of Photinus, was preserit at this council.

IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic Sciences

Corporation
(4) A.D. 358 , when a composite creed was put forth, to which pope Liberius subscribed, and on gubscribing was restored to his sce. (Comp. S. Hil. Fragm. vi. 6, and the notea in Migne, Patrol. x. 689.)
(5) A.d. 359, when, according to Valesius and Cave, "conscripta est fides illa, quam Marcus Arethusius composuit," with the names of the consula prefixed to it. This was afterwards rehearsed at Rimini; but as it was probsbly this also to which Liberius aubscribed, it must have been promulgated the year before, for he was restored that year, and if he subscribed to a different one, there must have been four, not three, creeds published here, which nobody maintains. Let us suppose, therefore, that the names of the consuls were prefixed to it at Riminj, and this council may be merged in the preceding one.
[E.S. Ff.]
SISINNIUS (1), May 29, deacon, martyr ; commemorated with Martyrius reader, and Alexander doorkeeper at Anaunia or Anagnia (Mart. Usuard., Adou., Notker., Hieron.).
(2) Nov. 29, deacon; commenorated at Rome on the Via Salaris with Saturninus martyr, and Sennes deacon (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Adon.).
(8) Nov. 24, bishop of Cyzicus, martyr under Diocletian (Baail. Menol.).
[C. H.]
SISOES THE GREAT, July 6. monk of the 4th century, "our father" (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Dtenol. Graec. Sirlet).
[C. H.]
SIXTUS (1) (Xystus), Apr. 6, pope; commemorated at Rome (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Adon., Notker., Wand.); Apr. 3 (Flor.); Aug. 6 (Bed. Mctr.), in the cemetery of Calixtus on the Via Appia (Mart. Hieron.). In the Gelasian and Gregorian Sscramentaries his natale is on Aug. 6 ; in the former his name occurs in the collect, secreta, and post-communion; in the latter he is mentioned in the collect. The Liber Antiph. of Gregory has an office for his natale.
(2) Sept. 1, bishop of Reims (Mart. Usuard., Wand.).
[C. H.]
SLAVERY. The aubject of the relation of the Church to alavery may convaniently be considered under the following divisions:-
(i) During the first three centuries, when Christianity was itself subject to oppression and whatever amelioration is to be discerned in the condtion of the slave is to be traced rather (a) to the teaching of the Stoics, $(\beta)$ to the stute legislation, $(\gamma)$ to the secret societies, the.
(il) From the commencement of Christian legisiation under Constantine (A.D. 313), to the acceasion of Justinian (A.D. 625).
(iii) From the accession of Justinian to the death of Gregory the Great.
(Iv) From the death of Gregory the Great to the commencemeut of the ninth century: (a) in the Eastern empire, ( $\beta$ ) in Latin Christondom, ( $\gamma$ ) am ong Teutonic nations, prior to the intruduction of Latin institutions.
(i) During the first three Centuries.-The more genersl conditions of pagan lifc, wheh fostered the continuance and aystematization of such an iastitution in the midst of highly civilized commanities, are described uader Bogiety; it will be sufficient here to note a few of the principal ficts which illustrate the indifference of suciety, as it existed at the commencement of the Christian era, to the moral wrong and physical suffering involved. Looking upon the slave ns nothing more than an animal of superior intelligence, the statesman and the legislator had, up to this period, altogether discouraged the notion that he possessed any rights, or was entitled to any consideration, beyond what the interest of the master might dictate. Even Aristotle had asserted slavery to be an institution of divine origin, whereby inferior races were designedly subjected to the superior * (Politics, iii. 4), a view adopted by Cicero (de Repub. bk. iii., quoted by Nonius). Pliny compares the relation of slaves to the state to that of drones in the hive (Nat. Hist. Xl. xi. 1). Cato advised that, like beasts of burden, they should be worked to death rather than be allowed to become old and unprofitable; and in order to divert them from forming conspiracies, he advised masters to incite them to quarrel with each other (Plutarch, Cuto, c. 21). It was a proverbial saying that every slave was an enemy-"Quot aervi, tot hostes" (Festus, ed. Mueller, p. 261), Columella (de Re Rust. i. 8) observes that the more intelligent they are the more frequeatly it becomes necessary to put them in chains. In the year A.D. 63, four hundred of the slaves of Pedanius Secundus, notwithstanding a strong display of popular feeling in their favour, were put to death in order to avenge his assassination by one of their number (Tac. Ann. xiv. 45); and in the time of Ulpian, who wrote in the 3rd century, this cruel practice was still authorised by law (Digest. XXiX. v. $1, $ \S 32$ and 39). The chief repregentative of the artisan class, the slave, inherited the contempt with which mechanical labour was regarded by antiquity. Plato (Repub. bk. iv.) affirms that it ia of small matter whether the mechanic lives a virtuous or an immoral life; and slaves uader the empire were uanble to obtain redress for the violation of their own wives (Cod. Just. IX. ix. 23 ; Kriegel, Corp. Juris Civ. ii. 587). As he was held to be a noa-religious intelligence, or of a faith differing from that of his master, he was supposed to be incapable of being bound by oath, and controllable oaly by fear-" quibus diversl ritus, externs sacra aut nulls sunt, colluviem istam nonnisi metu coërcueris" (Tac. Ann. xiv. 44). Even when on the eve of receiving his freedom, it whs customary to biad him by a promise, subject to certain penalties, that on becomiag a freedmad he would ratify his promise by an oath (Dijest. XI. xii. 44).

The severity with which the whole class was generally trested appears to have been owing rather to an instinct of self-preservation than to wanton oruelty. From the time of the Servile Wars of the 2ad ceutury, the Roman, though master of the world, lived in constant dread of conspiraoy and iasurrection among those whom he had thus deprived of their antural rights, and

- See on this polnt Krug, de Aristotele Servitutis defer sore, 1015. Overbeck, however, quotes Pol. 1. Ii. 3 proof that Aristotle recognised the radicnl injualice of the institution. Mitman (Lat. Christianity, ti. 13, ed 1867) appears to have overlooked thls passsge.

the slaves of st ever ready all kiadle the tham The proportina the communit variously estin 179) as high as This estimate 1 but the extent was intertwine hardly be exagg farm, in trade, doued almost es consequently wi Calabria and S quently endeavo a life of briga mides were worl trireme manaed ducts male an department of a (the military F burden was mair higher departm artistic accompli element, and in his raried labour of the honsehold. cuted its decorati paintings; he pr it with music ; he surgeoa. The atte on the magistra slaves or freedm 13). The whole $w$ estimated by the the question, " Qu that might oftea (Nat. Hist. xxxiii. lius Isidorns, in th owaer at his death although a large been lost in the ci the 4th century, nate luxury of his unusual thing for from a thousaad t रiNi $\omega \nu$, \# $\delta 1 \mathrm{ls}$ тобо ligne, Series Grae
A consideration suggests the risk atteaded any attem tion teacher in $t$ deuonace and over Such sd attempt we resson, have been in advocating a revolu charge of being re regarded pagan in Christianity already It accordingly sou to obliterate the cl society, and, in this claim the sanction spiritenl hastruction ciples, if a mastes Fritiags only injun reet towards his alav Christian intercours threaten" him (Eph him what was "just If a slave, he was enj he slave as rier intellitor had, up the notion entitled to interest of istotle had $n$ of divine desiguedly 9, iii. 4), a iii., quoted relation of in the hive 1 that, like ced to death old and unthem from ters te incite atarch, Cato, - that every tet hostes" melln (de Re e intelligent nes necessary A.D. 63 , four is Secuodus, of pepular to death in one of their a the time of ry, this cruel Inw (Digest. chief vepreuve, inherited al labeur was cpub. bk. iv.) whether the mmeral life; are unable to of their ewn el, Corp. Juris be a uon-relidiffering from sed to be ind controllable ritus, exteras istam nonnisi v. 44). Even reedem, it was ise, subject to ig a freedman oath (Digest.
hole clnss was ve been owing rvation than to of the Servile Roman, theugh istant dread of ug those whom ural rights, and $e$ Servitutis defentes Pol. I. ii. 3 - inevelepav, 申vizes v. Bialav yap ), as salical injuetice of tianity, 11, 13, ed passage.
the alaves of southern Italy were looked upon as kindle the flames for those who might seek to The proportiun of civil wir (Tac. Ann. xii, 65). the commanity under slave class to the rest of varieusly estimateder the empire has been 179) as high as and (ed. Smith, ii. This estimate is genernlly regarded populatien. but the extent to which was intertwined with the wholem of slavery hardly be exaggerated. Labour, whether on the farm, in trade, or in domestic service, was abandoued almost entirely to the slare, and was itself consequently without henour. The shepherds of Calabria and Sicily were all slaves, and frequently endeaveured to assert their freedom by a life of brigandage. By the same class the mines were worked, the merchant ship and the trireme manned, the aqueducta, roads, and viaducts made and repaired. In fact, in every department of ardueus teil or productive labour (the military profession alone excepted), the burden was mainly berne by the slave. In the higher departments of mechanical skill and elemeot, and in the mansions slave was the chief his raried Inbour, oftensions of the wealthy, by of the heuseheld cuted its decorations, designed the palace, exepaintings; he prons, and aderned its Walls with t with music ; hepared the feast and enlivened surgeon. The attendants on public functionaries, on the magistrate or the priest, were either, slaves or freedmen (Varro, ap. A. Gellius, xiii. 13). The whole wealth of a citizen was shrewdly estimated by the answer that could be given to the question, "Quet pascit servos?"-an answer that misht often be stated in theusands. Pling (Nat. Hist. xxxiii. 47) tells us that one C. Cnecilius Isidorus, in the reign of Augustus, was the owner at his death of upwards of 4000 slaves, although a large portion of his patrimony had been lost in the civil wars; and Chrysostom, In the 4th century, when condemning the inordinate luxury of his time, implies that it was no unusual thing for the wealthy owner to possess from a theusand to two thousand-a $2 \nu \rho a \pi \delta \delta \delta^{2}$ $\chi 1 \lambda i \omega \nu, \# \delta 1 s$ ragoútwv (in Matt. Hom. Ixiii. 4 ; Dligne, Series Gracca, Iviii. 608).
A consideration of these broad facts at once suggests the risk nad danger that would have tian teacher in attempt on the part of the Chrisdenounce and overthrew slavery centuries to Such an attempt would at once, nnd not without reasen, have been interpreted as tantamount to advocating a revolution in the state; and' the charge of being revolutienary in character, as regarded pagan institutions, was one which It accordingly songhand found itticult to repel. It accordingly songht to ignore rather than societ $y$, and in this distinctions of ordinary society, and, in this policy, it could undonbtedly claim the sauct spiritual ingtruction. The convert to its priuciples, If a master, found in the apostelic Writiags only injunctlons to consider his conChristion towards his slave as subject to the rules of Christi.n interconrse. He was ferbidden "to threaten" him (Ephes. vi. 9); he was to give if what was "just and equal" (Coless, iv. 1).

BLAVERY

1903
ditlon "to bs a care" to him (1 Cor. vli. 21), iujusage which Chryaostom interprets as an iujunction to remain contented with a slava't (Migne, Serics Graeca, lxii. 704); he was to be ohedient to his master, and to serve him "with singleness of heart and good will" (Ephes. vi. 5-9), "fearing God " (Coloss. iii. 22) ; whatever his master's moral character; he was te serve him "with all fear" (1 Pet. ii. 18) ; b of the unlaw fulness of such relations the New Testament contains ne intimation, and St. Paul himself, when at Kome, was the owner of a slave (Philemen, 10-17).
The language of the early Fathers was mainly of the same tener. They inculcated humanity much prat of the master by arguments which much resemble these with which the modern philanthrepist urges the exercise of the same virtue towards the brute creation. On the slave himself they enjoined humility and resignation; but while the pagan philosepher recommended suicide to the most miserable of this unfortnnate race (Seneca, Consol. ad Mirc. c. 20), the Christian teacher pointed to the perfect freedom and happiness of a future state. Ignatius warns the slave not to be arrogant on account of his him with equality with his master, but to serve him with greater zeal; he advises the whole of the com seek enfranchisement at the expense become community, lest they should themselves become the slaves of desire ( $\delta 0 \hat{1} \lambda_{0}$ Eni $\left.\theta \nu \mu l a s\right)$; whe enjoina Polycarp not to deapise slaves, whether male or female (Epist. ad Polycarp. c. 4 ; Cureton, Corp. Ignat. p. 7). Thtian appears the regard the tribute paid by the subject, and une service rendered by the aliave, as coming under much the same categery (adv. Graecos, c. $4 ;$ Migne, Series Graeca, vi. 246). Tertulthe part ef the exercise of patience, both on as the most sntisfactory relations (do Pationtictablishing Clement of Alexandria, in whom then, c. 15). slavery are frequent, urges that "slaves are men like ourselves" (Faed. iii. 12; Mligne $S$ are men 672), and that Christians are bound to aot towards them as they weuld themselves be acted He but nowhere condemns the institution itself. He urges, indeed, that the unduly large numbers about a household, the $\delta \chi \chi$ дos oinerov $\nu$ maintained by the wealthy, should be reduced, as censtitnting an unjustifiable luxury (ibid. iii. 7 ; Migne, viii. 610); and he holds that the moral condition and education of his slaves are a matter to which no master can rightly be indifferent. $H_{\theta}$ even appears to place respect to parents and regard for ene's slaves on an equal feoting as secial obligations, Origen (Cont. Cels. ili, 44, 54) tells us that it was made a repreach to Christians by their enemies that they addressed their appeals to women, children, the uneducated, and to slaves. He implies that Christian slaves often proved inatrumental in bringing about the conversion of households to which they belonged (Migne, S. G. xi. 476, 483). Callistus, slave, and Rome (A.D. 218-223), had been a slave, and it is deserving of note that Hippelytas

[^157]
SLAVERY

in the Philusophumena, whlle bitterly assailing his character and motives, does not refer to the fact as involving any stigma. ${ }^{\text {c }}$ Of the uniform disregard in the church itself of any distinction between the slave and the free man, the catacombs afford silent but significant evidence; for "while it is lmpossible," says De Rossi, "to examine the pagan sepulchral inscriptions of the same period without finding mention of a blave or a freedman, I have not met with one well-ascertained instance among the inscriptions of the Christian tombs" (Boll. di Arch. Crist. 1866, p. 24 ; see also Le Blaot, Inscrip. chret. de la Gaule, i. 119).

In the meantime other influences were in operatica, which, although there is sufficient reason for concluding that they could never have brought about the abolition of slavery, undoubtedly led to the amelioration of the condition of the slave, and to a more humane view of his position in relatlon to the body politic. These were (a) the doctrines of the Stoic philosophy ; $(\beta)$ the imperial legislation; $(\gamma)$ the private elubs or societies.

That the humaner tendencies in the imperial legialation were owing to the spresd of Christian doctrine, has beeo maintained both by the jurist and the historian, but is not supperted by the most authoritative and recent research. M. Wallon (Hist. de l'Esslavage, iii. 91) distinctly admits that they are mainly to be referred to the teaching of the philosophy of the age. "When we add to these laws," says another writer, "the broad maxims of equity, asserting the essential equality of the human race, which the jurists had borrowed from the Stuics, and which supplied the priaciples to guide the judges in their decisions, it must be admitted that the slave-code of imperial Rome compares not unfavourably with those of some Christian nations" (Lecky, Hist. of Morals, ii. 327). "As regards certain improvements said to have been introduced by Christianity into the imperial law of slavery," says Sir Henry Maine, "they were probably quickened by its influence, but they began in principles which were of stoical ruther than of Cbristian influence " (Early Hist. of Institutions, p. 63). The language of the Christiao apologists above cited, in unison with that of the most enlightened stoiclsm, but - scarcely transcending it, must be regarded as corroborative of these views. The stories told in Bollandus (i. Mai, p. 371 ; Januarii, p. 275), on the other hand, of eminent Romans in the reigns of Trajin and Diocletian, immediately after their baptism liberating large numbers of their slaves, are at variacee with nearly all the evidence for this period.
(ii) From the commencement of Christian legislation under Constantine (A.D. 313) to the accession of Justinian (A.D. 525).-The period upun which we are now entering presents us with evidence of a desire on the part of the legislator not only to ameliorate the con-

[^158]dition but to fncilitate the liberation of the slave, while, in either case, the laws relating to the subject clearly bear the impress of a mure humane spirit. For example, within two years from the tine that Christiadity received staterecognition, a law passed in A.D. 315 enjoins that fugitive slaves shall be branded only on their hands or their ears, and not on the ficte"quo facies, quae ad similitudiuem pulchritudinis est coelestis figurata, minime maculctur" (Cod. Just. IX. xvii. 17 ; Kriegel, Curpus Jur. Cir. ii. 27 1)-a seutiment manifestly of Christian origin.

The laws relating to manumission nfford nore decisive evidence. The customary form of nanumission during the master's lifetime hatl hitherto been by a well-known ceremony performed in the presence of the praefect and his lictor; but, by a decree of the year $3 I 6$, it was declared that a slave might be set at liberty by a simple declaration made in a Christian church in the presence of the priest and the congregation, while, instead of the ancient ceremony, a written document sigaed by the master was to suffice as evidence (ibid. I. xiii. 1; Kriegel, ii. 89-90).

In the year 321, a further concessinn was made in a decree of Constantine addressed to Hosius, the eminent bishop of Cordowa, and not improbably reflecting his personal influence over that monarch (see Milman, Mist. of Christiunity, bk. iii. c. 4). Here, after recapitalating the above law, the enactment goes on to declare that the clergy are permitted to bestow complite civil rights on their slaves, not only by 'simple declaration of their purpose before "the church and godly folk," but also by instructions in their wills or any formal document, the freedom thus conferred to acquire validity from the day on which their inteot has been made known (Cud. Just. I. xiii. 2).

Biot (de I Abolition do TEsclav. p. 147) interprets this latter law as proof of a design on the part of Constaotive to attract converts to Christianity, inasmuch as those whose enfrar. ment whs proclaimed in a Christian would necessarily be Christians, and th. here admitted to "plenum fructum libertais," i.e. to rauk not simply as "Latini" but as "cives." It was not until the year 401, nearly a century later, that this mode of entranchisement was extended to Africa (Biot, p. 148) ; but, wherever valid, it appears to have been recognised as a triumph of Cliristianity. Augustine, in one of his sermons (Scrm. ccelvi. sec. 3), announces that several of his clergy are desiguing to emancipate the few slaves they possess,the result appnrently of the introduction of the new law into his diocese. Gregory oi' Nyssa, in contrasting the features whlch distinguished the Christian celebration of Easter from pagan festivals, mentions, among others, "the slave enfranchised by the good and humane proclama. tiou of the church, and not smitten in unseemly fashion on the cheek" (de Resur. Dom. Orut. 3; Migne, S. G. xlvi. 657).

A law bearing on the same subject, but of yet enrlier date than either of the foregoing, is lost; but we learn from Sozomen (H, E, i. 9) that a hundred years Inter these three laws were placed at the head of all formal documents of eofrachise-
 è $\lambda \in \cup \theta \in \rho \cdot \omega \hat{\nu}$ (Migne, S. $G$. |xvii. 21); and it is easy to recognise in $t$ of 316 the " tal "chartularii" (see infra, Pt. in If we add to $t$ year 334, forbjd the father of a dreo upon the (Digest. XXXIII sad another, pas forbidding any empire to have a v.), we have bef presents itself, p of a desire on the the yoke of slave On the other that the actual much the same. law of the year fugitive slaves w (Cod. Just. VI, i. declares that on a to the lash, or put sequent result, his to trial, the latter homicide only whe diate result of his I, ed. Haenel, p. 8 332 enacts that fr to slavery if they or have injured Haenel, p. 306). directs that slave their masters are whatever documer have put in, the the accusation whic that of treason sgai (ibìl. IX. vil. 2; Hae It is undeniable language of the Fat Chrysostom (ad $E_{p}$ Naxianzen (Poem. T) Inst. v. 15) alike inq institution, and cor principles, to avarice is openly atigmatise law (Arnobius, add. expressly states that difference between ric (Div. Inst. v. 16). C with the appareut Psul's nou-condemna

[^159]
SLAVERY

ien of the relatiog to - of a more 1 two years sived state315 enjoins ed oaly on 1 the facepulchritu naeuletur' s Jur. Civ. ii. tian origin. afford more in of manuad hitherte ertormed in licter ; but eelareif that y a simple urch in the ingregation, eremuny, a ster was to Kriegel, ii.

cessinn was ddressed te va, ad not fluence ever Christianity ulating the declare that w complete by 'simple the church ens in theit cedom thus the day on known (Cud.147) interesign on the its te Chris enfrar :ian ad th. liberthis: ni" but as 401, nearly enfranchise . 148); but, been recog. Augustine, vi. sec. B) , are desigay possess, ctien ef the of Nyssa, in aguished the from pagan "the shave re proclamain unseemly om. Orat. 3 ; to recognise in the class enfranehlsed by the lew of 316 the "tabularii," and in that of 321 the (chartularii" of barburic codes of a later period (see infra, Pt. iv.).

SLAVERY
1905
If we add to the foregoing laws anether of the year 334, forbidding the arbitrary separation of the father of a family from his wife and chil(Digest. XXXIIL, vii. 12 their common owner and another, passed under 7 , Kriegel, i. 553); ; ferbidding any citizen in any province of the empire to have a private prison (Cod. Just. IX. v.), we have before us the main evidence that presents itself, prior to the time of Justionan, of a desire on the part of the legislator to render On the ors intolerable.
that the aetual condition of thot to be diaguised much the same. We find, for example, fromed law of the ycar 317, that the examination of fugitive slaves was still carried on by torture (Cod. Just. VI. i. 4). A law of the year 319 derlares that on a slave whe has been subjected te the lash, or put in chains, dying, as the subto trial, the latter master is net to be brought homicide only whening liable to the charge of diate result of his violence has been the imnec1, ed. Haenel, p. 859). Another law of the year 332 enacts that freedmen may again be reduced to slavery if they have exhibited "superbiam," or have injured their patren (ib. IV. x. 1; Haenel, p. 386). Another, of the year 376, directs that slaves turning informers against their masters are to be burnt, along with Whatever documentary evidence they may have put in, the sole exception being where the aecusation which they have alleged has been that of treason against the state-" majestatis" (ibid. IX. vi. 2; Hsenel, pp. 836-837).
It is undeniable that in the 4 th century the ladguage of the Fathers assumes a bolder tone. Chrysestom (ad Ephes. Hem. xxii. 2), Gregery Inst. r. 15) (Poem. Theol. ii. 26), Lactantiua (liv. Inst. v. 15) alike inquire into the origin of the principles, to avariee, tyranny, and injuatice; it is epenly stigmatised as a reversal of natural lsw (Arnohius, adv. Gentes, bk, ii.). Lactantius erpressly states that Christianity recognises no difference between rich und poer, bond and free (Div. Inst. v. 16). Chrysostom boldly grapples with the appareut difficulty presented by St. Psul's non-condemnation of the aystem, d and [^160]gives it as his explanation that the erhibition of a state of slavery, in conjunction with that of apiritual liberty, was it greater moral triumph for Christianity than its abolition, even, he says, as the speetacle of the three Hebrew youths walking in the furnace was a greater marvel than the extinction of the flames would have been (in $G_{\text {encsim, serm, v. 1). The manner, again, }}$ in which the church nsserted the slave's religious equality with the free man eannet but have phved the way for the recognition of his civil and social equility. While pagnaism had looked upon him as a non-religious member of the state, the church admitted him to the rite of baptism; and Gregory Naziauzen insists, with emphasis, on the absolute equality of all ndmitted to thls sacrament: "Think not, ye rich, that it is beueath your dignity to be baptized with the poor, or, ye masters, with yeur slaves. For even in so doing ye humble not yourselves as did Clirist, in whom ye are this day baptized, and who, for your sakes, teok upon Him the form of a slave. For, from the duy that ye are changed is impressed all ancient marks disappear; Christ Sanct impessed as a common form on all" (Orat. in manner, Bapt., Migne, S. G. xxxvi. 712). In like iii. 4) Chrysostom (in Sanct. Pascha, Hom. iii. 4) maintains the theory of a perfect equality Lord's sur partnkers of the saerament of the Apost's Supper. According ta the 73rd of the Apestolical Canens, no slave was to be admitted this ordiontion without his master's saaction; for of a the canon says, would be the subversion of a household; his master's consent and his ourn frecdom are declared to be essential. It would appear, however, that in Jerome's time slaves were sonsetimes ordained witheut having obtained enfranchisement. John, bishop of Jerution in having complained of auch an ordinato Theophilus, birch at Rome, Jerome, writing John himself has some Alexandria, retorts that same condition, and umeng his clergy of the Paul converted, and urges that Onesimus, whom deacen while still a in prison, was ordained a xxil. 516). In the slave (Epist. 82; Migne, Nazianzon, we find correspondence of Gregory where a slave had him referring to $n$ case amall com slave had been made bishop over a amall community in the desert. The Christian her right of ownenged endeavoured to assert severely rebuked by death she again claimed the slave, St. Basil's Gregery addressed to phe slave, whereupon remenstrance at her un-Chria letter of grave his brother bishop ( $\sigma$ - Christian desire to recall duty (Epist 70 ( $\sigma \nu \mu \pi o / \mu \eta \nu$ ) from his sphere ot Jt is, ( "though he had be noted that Gregory himself, his lifetime, had liberated some of his slaves in death" (Babington, Influence of free till his \&c., p. 29).

In the fth century, and subsequently to that period, both the priestly office and the monastio prefession were largely recruited from the servilo class; but while the church compassionately connived at this means of escape from slavery, the exigencies of the state (as will shertly be shewn) arpear to have been held incompatible with such lieence. Leo the Great, indeed, in his lofty conception of the sacerdotal office, deoounced a practice uhereby he affirms" "the sacred ministry is dishonoured, and the rights of masters are aet at naught" ( $E_{l}$ ist. 4 ; Migne, liv. 612). A decree of the first council of Orleans (A.D. 511) requires that whenever a bishop slall have admitted a slave to the olfice of deacon or presbyter unknown to his owner, the ransom paid shall be double the slave's value (Sirmond, i, 180). A council held in the same city, in 538 , decrees that the bishop who has thus infriaged upon the master's rights shall himself be suspended for a year from the function of celebrutiog mass (ib. 1. 255); it further requires that neither "colon!" (see infra, sec. iii.) nor slaves "shall be admitted to ecelesiastical honours untll either by testament or charter they have been made free,"-" Ut nullus servilibus colonariisque conditionibus obligatus, juxta statuts sedis Apostolicae, ad honores ecelesiasticos admittatar; nisi prius aut testnmento ant per tabulas legitime constiterit sbsolutum" (ib.). The prevailing tone with respect to slavery is atill such as indicates that, like poverty and other ills, it was regarded rather as a misfortune to be eadured than an injustice to be done away with, -a form of sufferiug, consequent upon the Fall, of which the chief compensation was to be looked for in a future life (Eusebius, Theophan. v. 21 ; Gregory of Nyssa, Orat. 9 ; Chrysostom, Hom. 29, in Gen.; Cyril of Alexandria, de Adorand. in Spiritu et in Verit. bk. viii.). The fear that Christianity might appear to. be aiming at revolutionising the state still operated with considerable force. Chryaostom says that "it is fitting that the Gentiles should perceive that a slave may please God ; otherwise they will assuredly blaspheme and say that, if masters are to be deprived of their slaves, Christianity has been brought in to upset the existing order of things, and is a work of violence." In the same treatise he says that if a alave is distinguished by his excellent qualities, thia is all the more reason that he should continue in servitude, so that by his presence he may exert a beneticial influeace over the whole household (Arg. in Epist. ad Philem., Migne, S. G. Ixij. 704). He holds, however, on another occasion, somewhat different langunge, adrising masters to give those slaves whom they do not really require, instruction in some useful art, and then, when they are able to earn their own livelihood, to set them free. But he admits that this advice is unpalatable to his hearers,-фортıós ei $\mu$ тоís aкoúovoıv (ad Epist. J. ad Car., Hom. 40 ; Migne, S. G. Ixi. 354). Isidore, the learned abbat of Pelusiam, puts forward the singular theory that the servile condition may even be preferable to that of the freeman, because in the day of judgment the slave might plead in his defence that he had been compelled to obey the mandates of his earthly master (Epist. bk. iv. 12 and 169). Here, however, suys Prof. Babington, "he is not giving his own counsel, but paraphrasing St. Paul" (Influence of Christicinity, p. 29). It is a somewhat ton sweeping assertion made by the last-named writer, that the writings of St. Basil, Ephralm the Syrian, Pseudo-Ambrose, Chrysostom, Jecome, Salvian, and Leo the Great do not contain a hint that slavery is unlawful or improper; bat it is certain that none of them adrocate its abolition. Theodorus Gyrensis, in his seventh oration, do Providentio, puts forward the view that slavery is a punishment intlicted on the human race which, while it conviets man of sin, bears witness wo the justice of the Creator (Migne, $S_{0}$ G. 1xxxiii. 676). So completely, indeed, did the church at this perlod dissociate the theory of the elave's spiritual equality with the freeman from that of his civil rights, that at the Cowneil of Gangra (circ. 379) an annthema wns pronounced against unyone who should make the tormer theory a ground for instigating a slave to repudiate hls master's authority (Hardonin, Conc. i . 530). Hefele, who cannot bs supposed to understate the argument in defence of the church, admits that fither'a and councils alike systematically discorraged the self-assertion of freedom (Beitribye, i. 216). Eniranchisement was generally regarded as the reward of exceptional merit, and was often associnted with some religious festivals; according to Gregory of Nyssa, especially with the celribration of Easter (Migno, S. $U$. xlvi. 657): How far the chureh was from proclaiming a general deaunciation of slavery is to be liferred from the fact that in the year 503 the houseliold of pope Symmachus was largely composed of slaves, and that, in the course of this pontifl's atruggle with lanrentius, the royal commisaioner gent ly Theodoric guhjected them to torture in order to extract evidence bearing upon the matter in dispute (Milman, Lat. Christianity, bk. iii. c. 3). Christianity, to quote the language of Milman (Lat. Christianity, bk, iil, c. 5), had taken slaves " out of the class of brute beasts or inanimate thinga, to be transferred like cattle or other goods from one master to another, which the owner might damage or destroy with us much impunity as auy other property; and placed them in that of human beings, equslly under the care of Divine Providence and gifted with the same immortality. $\qquad$ But the abrogation of slavery was not contemplated even ss a remote possibility. A general enfranchisement scems never to have dawned on the wisest and best of the Christian writers."
(iii) From the accession of Justinian to the death of Gregory the Great.-Although the efforts both of the legislator and of the ehurch up to the commencement of this period must be lonked upon as tending rather to the amelioration of the condition of the slave than to the abolition of slavery, eventa, in the mean time, were conspiring to bring ahout a more important change,-that whercby slavery, as a polltical institution, was gralually supplanted by serfdom. From the earlicst days of the empire, the cultivation of the soil (the vital question with the civil administrator) appears as carried on mainly by two distinet classes,-the slave and the "colonus"; the first cultivating the land solely for his master's profit, the second receiving payment for his labour or renting the land of the proprietor. Owing to a conjunction of conses, luto which it is here impossible to enter, the owners of the large estates faund, with the advance of the 3rd century, the supply of

- A passage in St. Ambrose's celebrated repiy to Sym. machus, implying that the freetng of captives ts, along with feeding the poor anit aupporting thise in exile, one of the works of charity to which the revenues of the church of his day were isrgely devited (Migne, xvi. a37). wituot be classed with the numerous passages referred to abore (note ${ }^{\mathrm{d}}$ ), ind cannot be looked opon as baving any red bearing upon the question of alavery.
labour altoget the reign of F had grown to the most ferti 528,042 juger owing to the fit the eultivator ( p. 1120).

Against thes clearly to be s long been conte condition of th steady and cont 88 a freeman $h$ his property he his family red vailer what has "imperious nece iag instruments [Jaine (Sir H.), 150]. To quote the "colonus" without being 1 the condition wi freeman. From anomalous condi referred to in leg the reign of Jus enactments took snces under whiel defined his status Jegislation, accord 3 kind of amalgam " aervi," whereby essociated with the a recognised theo Berlin, 1822-1823 have been the desi rste, as far as pos the two clases. we find the questio what real differen between slaves an says, " both are in Is equally able to with his private ho orerlordship the ', tract which he cult 22; Kriegel, ii. 702 cultivated the sam now declared to be a forbidder to transfer (Cod. Just. XI. xly escape, he might be his employer. He w and military functio Yriegel, ii. 700-701) action against his em raising of his rent sustained by himself xlix. 1-2; Kriegel, other hand, was gra disabilities which had from the "colonus." away from the land w own person, in his children, and in the bequesthing property, labour niltogether inadequate to the demand. In the reign of Honorius (A.D. 395-423) this evil had grown to such an extent that in Campania, the most fertiile region of Italy, no lesa than 528,042 jugera were exempted from taxation owing to the fact that they had been deserted by the cultivator (Cod. Theod. XI. xxviii. 2 ; Haenel, p. 1120).

[^161]
SLAVERy

Agninst these difficulties legislation (ns is clearly to be seen in the Theodosian Code) had long been contending, but in the meantime the condition of the "colonus" had been one of steady and coutinuous degeneration.t His rights ns a freenan had been repentediy disregarded; his property had been contiscated, and he and his family reduced to the position of serff, under what has been decaribal ns the "imperilous necessity of procuring and preserves ing instruments for the cultivation of land ", [3aine (Sir H.), Early Hist. of Institutuins, p. 150]. To quote the description of M. Wallon, the "colonus" shared the condition of a slave without being legnlly auch, and partnok of freeman. From the reign of Che rights of a reeman. From the reign of Constantius, this aboma
condition of things $i s$ $i s$ referred to in legislation; but it wna not untly the reign of Justinian that a series of fresh enactments took formal cognisance of the gries. ances under which the "colonus" laboured nad defined his status and rights. The reailt of this a kind of umalgamation of the i"colo was to produce "servi," whereby the heredity of labour, when $z$ zociated with the cultivntion of the soil, becime ${ }^{\text {a }}$ recognised theory in law (Merm. Acad. de Berlin, 1822-1823), and it would even appear to have been the design of the legislator to obliterate, as far as possible, all distipetions bet ween we find the quesstion distinctly propounded andeed, we hand real question distinctly propounded as to difierence caa be supposed to exist between Elnves and "ascriptitii," "wheu," it sayg, " both are in the power of their lord,' who is equally able to enfranchiae the slave (along with his private hoard), and to exclude from his orerlordship the 'ascriptititus' along with the tract which he cultivates" (Cod. Just. Xl. xlvii.
$22 ;$ Kriegel, ii. 702). Ever cultivated the same land for freeman who had now declnred to be a "colonus," thirty years, was forliddes to transfer his labour to other territory (Cod. Just. XI, xlvii. 23); if he attempted to escape, he might be recaptured and chastised by hisemployer. H9 was disqualified both tor civil and dilitary functions (ib. XI. xlvii. 11 and 18;
Yriegel, $i \mathrm{ii}$ 700-701) action against his emplote could bring no legal mising of his rent or some personal arbitraing sustained by himself or one of his family injury (iby XI xlix. I-2 ; Kriegel, ii. 704). The slave, on the other hand, was gradually relieved from those disabilitiee which had hitherto distioguished him from the "colonus" Hen from the "colonus." He could no longer be sold away from the land which he cultivated. In his own person, in hla rights over his wife and children, and in the right of acquiring and bequeathing property, he ranked as a freenand

[^162]slavery
As was the case with the "nscriptitius," election to the episcopal digulty rendered him, ipso facto. free,-" "Post creationem autem a servili et adneriptitii conditione epliscopos liberos esse jubemus" mus" (Norell, cxxiii. 4; Kriegel, iii. 544).
It will be seen, from the toregolng evidence, that ns regards that large portion of the scrvile class whose labour was bestowed on the land, sidernbly from in the 6ith century differed conin the early dayn of the agricultural labourer inferior to that of of the empire. It was much was a great tit of the aucient "colonus," but it -a circamimprovement upon that of the slave, mind when we obserch requires to be borne in century we observe that it was in the same Gregary especinlly duriog the pontifieate of of the churoh eat, that the territorial possessions element in its first beguo to form an important tions of the history and policy. Of the relaletters of Gryurch to the labour question the letters of Gregory afford valuable illustration. of Luna' (the thers is one to Vemantius, bishop Liguria), from great seaport on the confines of mavity of Jom which it appears that a comwere also proprietors of Chrints in the dioeese, gory, having bretors of Christina slaves, Gredistinctly lays been consulted by Venantius, be allowed to down as a rula that no Jew can but he goes on told Christian men in bondage, althougit those over whom the present instance, claim may be free men in point of law, yet theif withstanding inumech as they of law, yot notened period continued to as they have for a lengththey are bound by the circumstances of the lands, and must accordingly concumstances of the case, landa nad to paygly continue to cultivate these ands and to pay their rents to the proprietors, binding uppong "coloni" the obligations legally that no further burd" or "originarii," " but them ( $C_{p i s t}$. ir. 21 ; Migne, loxvii ioposed upon This important letter, which M. 700 ), de l'Escluvage, iii. 312) regards Wallon (Hist. the imperial legislation regards as embodying ceived under the con nf the period, as con-would appear to afford unquestione described, the position of the "conquestionable proof that one which secured to hims nt this time was of freedom. The antipathy of the chare degree enslaving of Christian men by Jews or pagans begins now to be very strongly marked b ans decree of the Couveil of Màcon, A.D. 581, directs. that Jewish or pagan proprietors shall be bound to surrender christinn slaves for a ransom of 12 solidi; and that noy Christinn shall be om-. powered to raasom a slave nt such a price, whether it be his design to retain him in his possession or to set him at liberty (Sirmond, i.
373). The criticism of Orerbeck (Studien, &ic.

[^163]
SLAVERY

p 211) that this nererion took its rise in mere religlous bigotry, and was contrary to the theory of the primitive chureh, breathiog rather of the ancient pagan prejudlce ngainst the barbsrlan (I'ato, liepub. v. 15), appears harsh and overstrained. It is also to be remembered that the exaggerated importance now discervible as attached by the church to a formal observance of feligious duties, e.g. fasting, keeping of salats' days, &c., must have operated very strongly in the same direction. The Christion in slavery to a pagas master could hardly have avoided llving in the habitual commission of mortal sin; and to no object were Gregory's efforts more ardently devoted than to the suppression of the slave-trade ns carried on by the Jews in his day (Epist. iv, 9; Migne, Ixxvii. 689 ; see niso pp. 498, 652, 868, 95: 1954,1016 ). Writing to Theoderic und Theodebert, kings of Franklnad, he expresses hia surprise that they should permit any Jews in their dominions to possess slaves (Epist.ix. 110 ; Migne, Ixxvii. 1018). It seems accordingly that the condition of these "coloni" at Luna was auch as he would never have sanoctionel, had it not lett them tree to observe Christian worship and perform the chiet duties of the Christinn life unmolested.

On the other hand, he appears to have held the theory already referred to, which looked upon one Christian in bondage to another as simply the result of the divine decree finding expression in human institutions (Epist. iii. 18; x. 66; xii. 4 ; Migne, lxxvii. 637, 1089, 1210); nor can it be denied that this theory appears gometimes to have been construed by him in a sense repuganant to more eulightened views, Thus, when directing Januarius, bishop of Cagliari, to take vigorous measures against pagans, aruspices, nad sorcerers, he says that if slaves they are to be beaten and subjected to torture, hut if free men, are to be subjected sitmply to inprisunmeat (Epist. ix. 65; Migae, Ixxvii. 982). But, notwithstanding, it is in the letters of this pontiff that M. Biot considers we have the earliest example of the Christian sentiment of liberty as the nutural right of man, finding expression in a definite act of manumission ; this is on the occasion of bestowing their freedom on two slaves, Montinus and Thomas, when Gregory compares their entranchisement from the yoke which the law has placed upon them to the liberty which Christ came to win for all mankind-"quos ab initio uatura liberos protulit, et jus gentium jugo substituit servitutis" (Epist. vi. 12; Migne, Ixxvii. 804).

The decisiona of Gregory having formed, in almost every important question, the rule of the Latin church during centuries after his time, the theory to which he here gives expression, may be rugarded as that which continued to prevail to the conclusion of our period, whereby slavery was looked upon as an admitted antagonism between "natura" and the " jus gentiun." (iv) From the deuth of Gregory the Great to the commencement of the 9 th century: (a) in the Eastorn Empire; ( $\beta$ ) in Latin Christendonn; ( $\gamma$ ) annong Teutonic nations, prior to the introduction of Lutin institutions.
(a) The iufluences of legislation and religion, in the easturn provinces of the empire, combined steadily to diminish the number of slaves (Gibbon, ch. xliv. ; Wallon, Hist. de l'Esclavage, iii. 452), and, accordlag to Finlay (Hist. of Greece, ed. Tozer, ii. 220), were aided by conditions more favourable to iree lnbour, operating more immediately "in extinguishing predial slavery, and repressing the most important branch of the alave-trade, by supplying the cities with free emigrants." The evidence afforded by legislation is to be atudied, after the 6th century, chielly in the enactments of Basil the Macedonian femp. 867-888) and of his son Leo the Philosopher, and ls deseribed in its main fentures by M. Wallon (iii. 452, 453). It is to be noted that the later emperor revoked the law of Justinian which conferred freedom on slaves who had taken refuge in churches of monasteries, in the event of their giving satisfactory evidence of having been subjected to 11 -usage.

The moansteries of the East appear to have been distinguished by thelr repudiation of the employment of slave labour, a priacipie empha. tienlly laid down by St. Platon and Theodore Studites. The latter, writing to his disciple Nicholas (receatly created an abbat), instructs him that he is not to have a single slave, whether for his own service, or that of the monastery, or for the culture of the land; "for this," he says, "is permissible, like marriage, onty to those who lead a secular life" (Sirmond, Opera, Paria, 1696, v. 84).
( $\beta$ ) In those countries where Latin influences continued to predominate, the close connexion of the question of slavery with that of the cultivation of the land appears to have hindered the progress of emnacipatlon. Among the Western Franks, the condition of the slave differed, according to Guizot, from the ancient scrvitude of paganism, in that it was not "uniforme, constante et séparée de celle des hommes libres par un protond nbîme" (Essais, p. 214); and owiog to the fact, that it was thus vaguely defioed, it afforded conditions which uitimately resulted in the establishment of freedom. He coacurs, however, in the opinlon expressed by Gibbon (ch. xxxviii.), that from the 5 th to the 10 th century "the laws and manners of Gaul uniformly tended to promote the increase, and to confirm the durstion, of personal servitude;" but, at the same time, considers (Essais, p. 208) that in the many cases of enfranchisement that come under our notice during this period, religious ideas sargested the preponderating motive. The Formulae of Marculfus (a monk of the 7th century) systematically represent the beatowing of freedom on the slave as a meritorlous action that will be rewarded in a future state (Migne, lxaxvii. 747). It would appear that it was customary for the king, on the birth of $n$ son, to bestow freedom on three slaves on each of his farms (villae), and the formula used on these occasions is preserved in the game writer (bk. ii. 52). The Ripuarian Code (which exhibits an admixture of Latin and barharic elements) defines three distinct modes of enfranebisement, accordiog to which the slare was known as a "denariug," a "tabularius," or a "chartularius." On the first of these, freedom was conferred necording to Salic law,the slave holding a coin (denarius) in his hand, and the king thereupon striking his hand, so ss to cause the coin to fly into his face, and pronouncing him a free man (Marculfus, Form. i. 22). The second mode (" secundum legem Romanam") corresponded exactly to that prescribed by the law of Const (whereby the tularius") rej the law of 3 sec. ii.). It p. 213) that $n$ plete freedom $t$ in each case, vecessity of nt who, in the $f$ second, the chi elected to whic
A decree of $t$ prohibits the se of king Clovis I of the year 743 sold to Jews (M ragdus, in the horted that mor war to slavery, (Biot, u. s. p. 3 Council of Aache be regarded as $t$ of slavery at the to be looked up sod that, althous comparative int duals, yet He ha others to freedon of the slave to de power of the mas
The chronicle the duchy of Spe slaves and depen towards the close these slaves resid were permitted to a condition closely with, that of the ' II. ii. 428). In th in a charter confirs of the same monast "anciltae" as well larii") and "chart chis, duke of Bener year 774, defines their masters ns o "ita tamen ut ejus, et imperio, sicut ser? In $S_{j a i a}$, where represeuted a kind o code with that of relating to the con points of material di the Roman law, -th slsves weve permitt service (Biot, p. 402 ( $\gamma$ ) Under the infl nic conquest, the gl again received a chec personal slarery," 3i4), "which hid be peacefur sovereignty and multiplied by $t$ the independent barba tained by one write slavery, strictly so.cn the German races, and

[^164]- Grece, ed. litiens mere nore immeslavery, and anch of the with free y legislation ry, chiefly in lenian femp. Phllesopher, y M. Wullon at the latter on which centaken refuge vent of their ng been sub-pear to have iution of the ciple emphaand Theodore his disciple at), instructs lave, whether manastery, or his," he says, te these who 1, Paris, 1696, tin influences 1 coanexies ef f the cultivahindered the the Western differed, ac$t$ servitude of iniforme, connes libres par ); and owing tely defined, it dy resulted in ceneurs, howy Gibben (ch. - 10th eeatury iformly tended thirn the dura, it the same at in the many me under our ideas suggested Fermulae of tury) systemaof freedem on that will he , $1 \times x \times x i i, 7+7$. tomary fer the cstew freedom ns (villae), and as is preserved The Ripuarisn e of Latin sad distinet modes which the slare tabularius," or of these, free-- Salic law,us) in his hand, his hand, so a 3 face, and pro us, Form. i. 22). em Rerasanm") escribed by the

SLAVERY

Jaw of Constantine of the year 316; the third (whereby the freedman was knewn ns a "chartularius") reproduces the method preseribed in sec. ii.). It is (for leth ef these aee supra, p. 213) that none oppion of Guizot (Essais, plete freedom to the modes secured cema each cise, he enfrachised slave, but that, necessity of attaching hisequently under the who, in the first case himself to a "patrenus," sceand, the churche, was the king; in the elected to which of whie the "chartularius"

A decree of the Ceuncil of he would be bound. prohiblts the selliog of sl of Chalens (A.D. 650) of king Clovis II, (Sirmond, of the year 743 prehibits 4 , i. 491 ); and nother seld to Jews (Mansi, xii. 384) being, in any case, ragdus, in the reign of Charles the Great, exhorted that menarich net to reduce captives of war to slavery, and also to set free his own slaves (Biot, u. s. p. 311). The 10 th canon of the Ceuacil of Aachen (A.D. 816) exhibits what may be regarded as the prevailing ecclesiastical riew of elavery at the clese ef our perion, -t hat it is to be looked apen as a consequence of the Fall, and that, altheugh the Creator regards net the comparative intelligence (ratieneni) of individuats, yet He has destined some to slavery and others to freedom, in order that the "tendeney of the slave to de ill may be restrained by the power of the master" (Mansl, xiv. 211).
The chronicle of the monastery of Farfi in the duchy of Spolete, in an enumaration ef the tewards and dependants of the monastery mide thewards the clese of the 7th century, shews that were permittesided in separate cottnges, and a cendition ced to bold property of their own, with, that of thely resembliag, if not identical II. ii. 428). In the yeur " (Muratori, Scriptt. in a charter cenfirming the rights the Plous, of the same monasitery, refers te its "servi" and "ancillae" "as well as its " libellarii" ( $=$ "tabularii ") and "chartulati" (ib. II. ij. 365). Arichis, duke of Beneventum, in a capitulary of the year 774, defines the relntions of servants te their masters ns one of complete subjection,ita tamen ut ejus, qui eos acceperit, liseiplinis "t imperio, sicut scrvi subjaceant". (ib. II. ii. 336). represented a Whiare of the laws of the Visigoths represented a kiad of nmalgamatien of their own relating to the canditiodosias, the enactments points ef material ditlion of the slave offer tew the Roman low, - the chec when compared with slaves were perne the chief distinction being that servize (Biot, p. 402). to engage in militnry ( $\gamma$ ) Under the influe nie ceaquest, the grewth of persenal of Teutoggaid received a clieck. "The fruitul freedom persenal slarery," says "Gibbon (ed. Smith, iv. 3i4), "which had been almost suppressed by the peacefnl severeignty of Rome, was agnin revived and multiplied by the perpetual hostilities of the independent barbarians." The theory mainslavery, strictly writer on our subject,-that the German races, and that, never existed nmeng the German races, and that contact with the Latin race and with Kammn institutions tended rather to aggravate the condition of serflom as existing aneng them,-ls at vardance with the best extablished conelusions. Tacitus (Gcrm. e. 25) clearly implies that the slave's life could be be denil" master with impunity. "It caunot be denled," says Prafensor Stubbs, "that slavery in the strictest sense was an early, if not a primitive, institution of the race" (Const. Hist. i, 78). In direct contravention of the law of Valerian nad Gallienas [supra, sec. i. ( $\beta$ )], the laws of the Merovingind dynasty in Franklund permitted a freeman to sell himself lute slavery, and even prencribed the fermula (Marcultiss, Lorm. ii. 28). The researches of Jastrow clearly prore that the earliest codes of the Frivians, Sarons, Thuringians, Franks and Alemanai, all involve that fondamental violation of natural law which represented the slave na a Thing rather than n Person. He hal indeed a recognised legal value, which was determined like that of other "things," codes this assent. In the Saxen and Thuriagian eodes this value is fixed by law, but solely as a question ef his worth to his owner. In the older. salic Code and in that of the Alemanni, it is estimated with reference to the "wergild" of the freeman and of the "lite." The Kentish Laws of Ethelbert are the first which denl with the question of his "Manwerth,"-equivalent, says Jastrow, to his "wergild," only under nnother name. "In some respects," says Professor Stubbs, "the practice of the law is better than a day, and : the slave is entitled to his twe leaves a day, and his hely days nre secured te him. He can purchnse hls freedom with snvings which in seme nnexplained way the law has allowed him penance on the spiritual lnw can enforce a his atatus the master fer illtreating him. But terity, unless the chnin is children; all his pestion, are born slives" (Const. also Kemble, Saxons in Eintland, $i$. 79 ; see In the lnws of Ine, king of wha, i. 185-225). this "Mannwert "", king of Wessex (circ. 690), gild" (see Jastro " becemes technically a "werder Sclaren bei D, Zur strafrechtlichen Stelluny 41). One of bei Deltschen unt Anyelsachsen, p. made at a 690, requires thgemot held at Berghamstede in gives them ment the head of a family who devoting his "hals-faug" (ast, shall do penance by for punishment in the " price of commutation "bond or free" (Hed pillory) te redeeming iii. 235-6). Te Theoddas and Stnbbs, Conncils, the merit of obtheodare of Tarsus is attributed of the axion obtaining in the West the adoption monastery ceuld have moonsticism, -that "the $\operatorname{trä̈} \jmath e, ~ i . ~ 217) . ~ T h e ~ s a m e ~ s i a r e s " ~(H e f e l e, ~ B e i-~$ allews men to sell thme ecclesiastic, hewever, meat," i.e. in sell themselves into slavery "for and Stubbs, is, iii. 202) aroid starvation (Haddan Mr. Green, "became (Manumissien," says clergy taught that surequent in wills, as the soul of the dead. such $n$ gift was a boon to the bishops bennd the At the synod ef Calnith the nll serfs on themselves to tree at their decease to serfdom by wir estntes who had heen reduced was set free before or crime. Usually the slave porch, and the Gre the altar or in the charehmargins the record The slave-trade from English ports was. hibited by law, but the English ports was prehibited by law, but the prohibition long remained

[^165]SLAVERY

social life

ineffective. A hundred years later than Dunstan the weilth of Euglish uubles was snid sumetimes to spring from breeling slaves for the market. It was not till the reign of the first Norman kiag that the preaching of Wulstan and the infueuce of Lanfranc suppressed thu traile in its last stronghold, the port of Bristel " (Short Histury, pp. 54,55 ).
The conciusions to which the foregoing outline of facts nplears to point, as to the extent to which the Christianity of the tirst eight centuries thodified the conditioas of the slawe, admit of being very concisely summarized. During the first three centuries Christlanity could scarcely hope materiaily to infuence that legislation by which it was itself perseeuted, but, in coojunction with the phiossuphic tenching of the Stoles, it brought about a chnage of seatiment which led to the consideration of the whole question of slavery from a different standpont. It spoke of him as a man in this life, and as destined to immortaity hereafter. Of the general aboiltion of a syatem which unleriay the entire fabric of the state and of society, it had little or no conception; but wlth the fall of the Western empire the whole question of labour, as associated with the cuitivation of the iani, assumed a phase which ultimately lovelved the suppression of the harshest features of the anciest slavery. Concurrently with this change, Christlanity was gradually raising the coadition of the slave by admittiag him to the sacranents of the church and to the ranks of the clergy, as well as by the mauner in which it encouraged his complete enfraschisement as a Christian act, and associnted it with Christian observances. Even the intolerant spirit which, at this period, began to be displayed towards the Jew and the pagan, is to some extent redeemed by the fact that it led to the essential injustice of sinvery being more fully recogaised. With these considerntions before us, it seems difficult not to assent to the view of M. Wallon, that when, at a later time, with the commencement of feudndism, the question of the cuitivation of the soil entered upon another phase, there was no security in existing institutions that the serf might not relapse inte the coadition of the slave, Christianity interposel, and not merely averte $l$ any such retrograde movement, but paved the way for the cemplite emancipation of the serf; while, by the admission of Gibbon, "the custem of enslaving priseners of war was tetally extinguished in the 13 th century by the influence of Christianity" (Decline and Fall, c. xxxviii. note 96 ).

Authorities and works referred to: Muratort, Dissert. xiv. and xv. in Antiq. Ital. Med. Aevi, vol. i. 1738; Venedey (J.), Romerthum, Christenthum und Germanenthum, und deren wechselseitiger Einfluss bei der Unyjestultung der Sclaverei des Alterthums in die Leikeigenschaft des Mittclalters, Frankfurt, 1840; Biot (Edouard), De l'Abolition de l'Eschovege ancien en Orient, Paris, $18+0$; Wallon (Heari), Histuire de l'Esclavaye, 3 v., Paris, 1847; Babington (Churchill), Influence of Christianity in promoting the Abolition of Slavery in Europe, 18 16 ; Rivière (A.), L'Église et $l^{\prime}$ Eschwage, Pasis, 1864; Heflele (C.' J.), Shlarevei und Christenthum (in Beiträge zur Kirchengeschiohte, i. 212-226); Overbeck (Franz), Ueber das Jerhältniss der alten Kirche zur Sclaverie im römisclien Reiche (pt. iii. of Studien zur Geschichte der alten Kirche, Basel, 1875); Allard (Paul), Le's Fischaes Chretiens depuis les premiers temp/s de l'Église jusqu'á la fin de la Dumination Romuine en Oovident, Pars, 1876, nad review of the wame by Ad. Harnack in Theolyyische Literuturzeitum, 1877, No. 6; Jastrow (J.), Zur strufrechtichen stellung der S.laven bei Deutschen uind Anychochsen, Breslau, 1878.
[J. B. M.]
SMAliagdus (1), March 12, commemorated at Nicomedia with Mardonlus presbyter, and others (Syr. Hurt., Hieron. Mart.).
(2) March Ib, martyr at Rome uader Maximin with Largue and others ; passio (Mart. U'suaril., Vet. Rom., Adon.); Aug. 8, depositio (1furt. Usuard., Vet. Iom., Adun., on the Via Ostiens; Mart. lieron. on the Via Salarin).
SOCIAL LIFE. The design of this article In to point out and illustrate what nppear to have been the distinguishing characteristice of Christian society during the first eight centuries. As, hewever, these characteristica are found to ditter considerably according to the varying contditions of the age, any attempt to bring tie phenomena of diflerent periods within a siagle outline could harily but prove faliacious; it is accordingiy propesed to consider them as they present themselves to our notice at thrce different eras: (l.) During the first three centuries. (II.) In the empire, subsequent to the recognition of Christianity by the state. (III.) Anseng Teutodic communities, subsequent to their nominal conversion to Christianity.
(I.) The Christian life, as concelved in the primitive church, may be asid to have been dominated by two distinct, and, at first sight, semewhat antagonistic conceptioas. The a 100 stelic injunction to be "not conformed to this world," but "transformed in the renewing of the mind," and the teaching which led the early Christians to regard themselves as "an elect people, a royal priesthood, a holy race," were cembined with a theery of the relations of the Christian citizen to mankind et large, which completely broke down the barriers of the old Roman exclusiveness and led him to look upor mankind as, to use the expression of Tertullina (Apol. c. 38), one great republic. It is certain, however, that, partly from a sincere desire to inculcate principies which involved the recegaition of a universal brotherhood, partly from anxiety to discourage notiona which cansel them to be regarded with suspicion nad dislike, the earlier Christians emphntically disclaimed the ndoption of distinctive institutions or peculiar inabits. Thus the author of the Epistle to Diognetus (c. 5) says that Christinns "are in a0 way distingulshed by their country, speech, or custons from other men;" that "they neither dwell in separate cities, nor use any pecular dialect, nor do they lead an unusuel ( $\pi$ apáa $\eta \mu \nu$ ) mode of life" (Bunsen, Anal. Ante-Nic. i. 111).
It is in perfect harmony with historical erperience at iarge that, though the centres in which Christiaeity first assumed a distiactra social character were noted for their luxury, dissipation, and imnorality, the life of the Chrim tians themselves in this uncongenial atmosphrte appenrs (bo far as we are able to arrive at the evidence) to have been feithful to an unusual extent to the Christian ideal. The corruptions that surround Antioch, Alexa thage were, In minds not total which material from yielding $t$ example set by (ront. Ce/s. iii. the Christians hesitate to affirn annong then gre pagan communit Graec. x1. 466). isolation we add the state, by wh the earlier Chr ujen with mistr period aimest n exclusiveness an course with the Wh:le, agnin, eivil lite the Chr elaim eccentricit vailing practice, derived from th neither the one observed. At he which always affo right and virtuous citizen) offered a s of the pagan in th was reguliar nuds fered from it in so looked upon as a in the other as a sanenical hours of 6 th, and the 9th marked out as time circle, at the third $h$ the common praye lujah Psaim sung. of the day, preceded speciai prayer fur servance which, to u of Alexandria, con sacrament (Paed. c. 20). When the mother and her cha pence and then sepa their daily tasks ( Bunsen, Anal. Anto the hours above spe prayer was strictly Doin. c. 4) at sunris before retiring to re Scriptures were daily comprehension, it was only when this exerc prayer (Origen, de O wife were eajoined bo atudy the Scriptores volving a view of the atrikingly contrasts w to Socrates (Xenophon spoke with no one le Even in the exercise of llard (Paul), eniers temp/s Nion Komuline view of the he literutur), Zur stnef. Jentschen und [J. B. M.]

[^166]
SOCIAL LIFE

2, commeme us presbyter, crt.). ader Maximin turt. ©isunrd., ositio (Murt. Via Ostiensi ; of this article at appear to racteristics of ght centuries. are found to varying conto bring the ithin a single llacious; it is them as they three differeat 'ee centaries, the recogni(IIl.) Among to their nomiceived to the to have been it first sight, s. The ajpformed to this renewing of a led the earty as "an elect ty race," were lations of the large, which ers ef the old I to leok apera a of Tertullian It is certnin, cere desire to ed the recegni, partly from which causel on and dislike, disclasimed the ns or peculisr he Epistle to ans "are in no try, speech, or "they neither 3 aay peculiar $e$-Nie. i. 111). historical ertha centres in 1 a distinctive their luxary, fe of the Chri. ial atmosphere 0 arrive st the to an uuusual he corruptions that surrounded the convert $\ln$ eitles such as thage , Alexanilrin, Corinth, Rome, and Carminge were, In fact, calculated to produce in which materially depraved a reaction of feeling from ylelding to contributed to preserve them example set by thelpebaying influences of the (ront. Ce/s. iij . 30), when ruw eitizens.* Orlgen tha Christlans in these great cities the life of hesitate to affirm thase great cities, does not anoug them greatly an erpen the least exemplary Gruec, xi. 466). If to this condition of 'utrol, isolation we ald the sense of entration of moral the state, by which, if not netually persecuted the earller Christians were gencraily luoked, mpen with mistrust, the Christiam life at this perioul almost necessarily invulved a at this exelusivenes.s and habitual cantion in latercourse with the world without.

While, again, in all the ordinary relations of civil bife the Christian could conscientionsly dis-clam eccentricity or vailing pranctice, his religion and his condn prederived from that religion, were such that and neither the one nor the other could pass unobserved. At home, hls domestle life (the life which nlways affords the best guirantees for tie right and virtuous discharge of the duties of the citizen) offered a superficial resemblanee to that of the pagan in that the observance of worship was regular and systematic, but essentially diflooked upon as a mere cer what in the one was in the other as a spirituell excrocise. The thred canonical hours of the enrly church, the 3rd, the 6 th, and the 9 th (Hours of l'rayer), were marked out as times of devotion. In the family the common prayer the Scriptures were rend, lojah Psalm sung. Then foflowed, and the Halleof the day, preceded, like every other menl, by a specisl prayer for the diviue blessing, an observance which, to use the expression of Clemens ot Alexandria, converted every meal into a sacrament (Paed. is sacrament (Paed. ii. 1; Tertullian, de Oraf.
c. 20). When the first c. 20 ). When the first moal was over, the peace and then separated exchanged the kiss of their duily tasks (Const, where necessary, for Bunsen, Anal. Antc-Aic. ii. 472-3) 47 ) 10 , 62; the hours above sprecified, the duty Besides prager was strictly enjoined (Cypy of private Doin. c. 4) at sunrise and at sunset (ibc Orat. before retiring to rest, and at midnight. The Scriptures were daily to be read, but their right comprehension, it was held, could be looked for only when this exercise had been preceded by prayer (Origen, de Orat. c. 31). Husband and wife were enjoined buth to pray together and to study the Scriptures together, a precept involving velving a view of the conjugal relations which strikingly cont to Socrstes contrasts with the reply of Critobuios to Socrates (Xenophon, Oecon, iii. 12) that "he spoke with no one less than with his wife." even in the exercise of hospitality prayer found

[^167]
SOCLAL LIFE

1911
a place, and the houscholler was enjolned not to let his guest depart without a joint observance of this rite (Tert. de Orat, c. 21).
Dominated by this concepition, ench home becnme a sunctuary, eneh day a holyodny, and the life of the perfected Christian expression of Clemens, one Christian, to quote the tion, änar $8 \dot{\delta}$ o $\beta^{\prime}$ mens, one long service of adoraLik. vii.; Migne, Patrol, Gruac ;ix trypis $\mu$ la (Strom. nbservances, however, one f. ix. 309). In all these which offers the gratest cure is to be noted pagan domestic rite gratest enimerast to the loniked upen as a mystely, that they were not the serutiny of other mind to be guarded from readily shared with froniles or races, but were they represented will ours and the doetrines propagandisn the wilhngly explained, a spirit of ness characteristic of the panisme of the exclusiveAnother Impertaut fenturn.
home life was the altered position the Christlan of the family, a change position of the mother bring about a completely so considerable ns to the relations of wemanhood to seciety obedience to or wemanhood to seciety. While upon the wife, that hand was enjelued as a duty collision with one of a yet higher order came in A pol. ii. 2). She was louked aporder (Just n, of attaining to was looked apou ns capablo (Clemeas, Strom. iv. 19; Mignee of perfectien his equal in all relations (Clemens viii. 223), as Migne, it. viii. 37), and endowed with $P_{\text {aed. }}$ i. 4 ; the same nature (Clemens, stred with precisely ib. viii. 213). She was to aspire to wisdom in a

 to be a stayer at hone (i. iv. 8 ; ib. viii. 2tt), the sphere of her activity in the domestic circle household one extended and ennobled. To thic aousehold industry of the Rumun matron she children (Polycarp, ad philion of inatructing her this relation (Polyrp, ad Philippenses, c. 5), and in this relation her influence was often of ineal. Basil, Gregory doret, were mainly inatrumental ine, and Theosion of their sous, instrumental in the converthe Cluristians sous. Clement of home com:nends their children moderation because they tnught кal $\sigma e \mu \nu \dot{a}$ vociv (Epist. $\vdots$. 1: Cotelerity, $\mu e ́ r p ı a$ Apost. i. 147). "Let out Cotelerius, P'utres namesake of Alexandris "anildren," says his tion which is of Chria," share in the instrucviii. 222). An Christ" (Strom. iv. 17; Migne, be found admitting that on the other hund, is to different to Christignty his father, who was into see hine accomplished was far more anxious virtuons and modest (Cunf ii eloquent than Epistle of Barnabas (c. 19) the writer Io the every Christiau to instruct his the writar enjoins in the fear of the Lord his sons and daughters wards. Leonids the from their youth uphis son commit daily to fother of Origen, made portion of Scripture diatrust with which (Euseb. M. E. vi. 2). The pearance of their ch parents regarded the ap(Clemens, Dtrom. iii. 11) was a reflex of their own sense of danger when mingling in pagan society, and their watchful and pious care in this respect atands in remarkable centrast to the declaration of Quintilian (1. ii. 8) that the rising generation of his day were corrupted before they could well understrund the distinction between good an 1 ovll, and, so far from helng demorallwed ly their schoul-fullows, often brunght the contaglen with them from their own humes.

The disclpline of the Clirlation houseliohl was distinguished, again, by a gyrit of greater gentleness, the sternuens ut the pagan fither towarda hia son belog exchanged for a tome of lowing admonition (Cyprian, Test, udv. Judueos, iii. 71 ).

While such were the Indurnces that prevallod In his domestic life, the C'irlatian citizen left his home to jursue his daily avecationn in the world hapired by a teachlug which led him to recogulse in every other ninn a brother, and armed with a moral code which wan equal to evory questlon of conslinuce that might arise, a conlo which was, in the langunge of Rousseau, "nlways cortain, alwags true, always single, and always in harmony with itaelf." In sine gular contrast to that feeling of hatred for fureigners on which I'lato (Mencxeuus, p. 245) congrat ulates his fellaw-citizens, Justin ( $\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{pol}}^{\mathrm{ol}} \mathrm{l}$ i. 14, ii. 13) expressly notes that, whereas nympathy and intercourse had before exlsted only between those who belonged to the snme nationality, Christianity sdmitted no such limitntions. "We," he says, "who hated aml destroyed one another, and on aceount of their different munners would not use n commen heurth und fire ${ }^{\text {b }}$ with men of a ditferent tribe, now, wiwee the coming of Christ, live famillarly with them, and pray for our enpmies." Even towards those who ware not of the same fain the church recognised the obligatlon of shewing friend.hip and of exchangiug friendly ollires, "necessitas nmicitiarum othciorumque gentillum " (Ter't. de Cultu Fem. Ii. 11; Migne, 1. 1:329); while all alike, young aud old, bonil nud free, Greek and harharim, were cqually nimissiblo ns members of the Christian polity (Clemens, Strom. iv. 8 ; Migar, Patrol. Gruce. vili. 213). The exigencies of the state at this period forbade, indeed, any to eatertain the notion of $n$ general abolition of slavery [Slavery], but the Christian could look upon the slave as one born by misfortune in a condition which. howev r pitiable, involved no religious lnequality, nad which he was bound to ameliorate by acts of kiadness.

Underlying this new nnd greatly enhanced estimate of man as an individual, there was the Christian theory of the sanctity of human life, which rested, in turn, on the bellef in the immortality of the soul. The procuring of abortion, regarded among pagan communities as scarcely deserving of censure, wha from the first systematically denonnced by the chureh. The mother guilty of this crime was excluded by a decree of the council of Ancyra (A.D. 314) from the sacrament until the hour of death [CulldREN]. Infanticide, and the exposure of newly-born infants, a common practice under the empire, and, according to St Ambrose (IIexacm. v. 18), especially prevalent among the poor, as abortion was more the practice of the wealthy, was shunned by the Christian community with horror. "Christians," says the writer of the Epistle to Diognetus (c. 5), "marry and begat children, like the rest of mankind, but they do not enat away their oflspring." (Vee tan Lat tantius, lice. Inst. vl. 201 cind. Theoul, Xl.
b The slluston in this oxpression to a communtty of religious rites is espectally deserviag of nutice. See Fustel de Coulanges, La Cite Antique, c. t.
 Chret, ete. 1 ,3iv.)

But while the concequition of social obligations and sympathow became thus greatly eatended, In one jartichlar relation, that of the liblivilual citizen to the eivil puwer, it involved a dilliment standaril from that of pagnnism, and one which was also sumew hat lower. The Christlan plated dumanity abuse the city, and repulinted a theory which jurolved the ebliterntion of individunl rights whenever they came In conflict witl, the suppuned neceavities of the state. The dutirs uf pirivate life, thase of the man to himarlf, to hils family, nad to God, were nuw regariled as pasamount, and patriotisin was no longer the supremo luty of the eltizen. The putrhotism of the pagan, indeed, it has heen trnly said, was hut a species of retinel egoism hy which he demaniked back with interest all that be gave to the cominonwenl. On the Chriatian the lave of hia neighbour was enjoined as a principle, n prito ciple which rendered the interpretation of all social duties ensy und intelligible (Clem, Rom. ad Curinth. i. 49). The emperor Julian (Lipist, 49) could not but contrnst the kinlness if Christians to strangera with the ordinary fagan Inditlerence, and indleatee this fenture, togather with the care shewn by them for the tumbs of the dead and their external decorum of demennour, as threa points well deserving the imitation of jugans.

On the uther hand, the early Chrintiana were ready cheerfully to recognise all the customary obligations of the eitizen to the commonwealth. Justin, in nddressing the emperor Antonim:s liun, mys,"We everywhere before nll things endenvour to pay tribute and taxes to those whom you appoint" (Apol. i. 17; see also Tatian, cont. (iruecos, c. 4 ; Apest. Corst. iv. 13). The grandchildren of Jude, Eusebius tells us ( $E . J I$. iii. 20), when summoned before Domitian, pleaded in proof of their lognity to the civil power the taxes which they paid from their manual labour, exhibiting their hands enllors with toil. Tertullian (Apol, c. 33) declares that the Christlans are actuatel by a more reasonable sentiment of loynity townrds the emperor than that of the pagan community. Origen ailims that by their praycrs they render effective support to the imperial cause, "composing a sacred army by their intercessions with the Deity" (cont. Cels. bk. viil.; Digne, Patrol. Graec. xi. 797). His language to Celsus appears to imply that they oftea declined civic oflices, but he justifies such conduct on the grouad that in so doing ther are able to glve theinselves " to the more holy and pressing service of the church in saving the souls of men" (ib.).

In the choice of a profegsion or a craft, the Christian was necessarily under a certain disadvantage when compared with his pagan fellow-citizen, from the disfavour with which his creed was regarded by the state on the one hand, and from the limitations im* posed by the church on the other. By the church he was forbidden to engage in any art or occupation which either directly e: indirectly subserved the rites of idolatr! (Trades). The profession of the astrologer if the conjurer (the latter at this period a frequent and frultful fol (Nemuler, might assuma been impused voluntary ad fur Christian The cailing of altogether tirl saloption of this of pagan lenr account of the he would be on, partly from feasion with th and ceremonles necessury restr scribell oaly $b$ creed: "It lo Ill. 11; Migne, part ln publie a in the lusiness be done honest that one has but Itleness was in centrast to labour was uphe Constitutions (iv to find employn especially for o to whom his epil their hands tha giveness for auaptiùv бov (C It was, howerer church, at lenst the clurgy were manual liabour ( $M$
The acquiremer have been pronou but the teachers that when acquire purposes; money ditees sulvetur, c. 338), being an in. If lawfully obtai enterprise, or inh wrongful in its me devoted to charita spirit of avarice. the new spirit of $p$. tisnity, that altho still continued to dimisished extent times nppealed mai grstematic benevole are to be found be The church at Ron ported no less than 43). Nor wns this had embiraced the tsneity of this bene to the observation o so deeply as to brin recent writer has that the care shew fertunate and the offiers the strongest 。

[^168]$\because$ (Sien $1, n a$ 1. Theout. XI. Les liselure al obligations diy extemind, he individial eid a ditilerent nil ené which ristian jhacel inted a theury of holividuad tife with the The dutios of imself, to his rided as pura$r$ the auproms utism of the ii, was hut a he demanted gave tu the re love of his ciple, a pinsetation of nll (Ciellu, Rum. Julian (E.jnist. kindrops of adinary jongan ture, tugrtinar - the tombe of corman of deleserving the hristiana were he customary mmon wealth, or Autonimis bre all things axe日 to thuse 17; see $n$ |sa Const. iv. 13), ebius tellis us fore Domitian, ; to the civil id from their hands callurs )declares that ore rea-omable emperor than en athirms that tive suppert to acred army by y" (cont. Cels. xi. ${ }^{797}$ ), His pily that the? justifies sach doing they are more holy and in saving the or a craft, the er a certain ith his pagan or with which the state on imitations im. ther. By the ngnge in an? directle es of idelatry e estrologet it ried a frequeat and fruitful source of gain) was equally unlaw. ful (Neander, Ienkwiurdigheiten, \&e. i. 120). He might assume the profesaion of arma when it had breen imposed upon him by the state, bat ita voluntary adojition whe held to disurualify him The Cliristian cummuniun (Const. Aey!up, il, 4t). The calling of an actor or pubilic dancer was altogether firididen him (Acton, Theathe). Hia alopition of that of a "grammaticus" or teneher of pagan learning was disemuraged, partiy on account of the character of the literature which he would be required to explain and comment on, partly froun the close comexion of the prow fession with the observance of pagan liativala and eeremonies (Schoolansten). leyond these necesnary reserictions, his choice was circumacribed only ly pragan prejudieen agninst his creed: "It in lawful," saya Clemens (Puert. iii. 11; Migue, Putrol.' Gracc. vili. 10), "to take in the busilless of the worli, proviled that this be time himestly, and to buy and aell, providel that "ne has but one price."

SOCLAL LIFE

ldleness was aystematically diacouraged, and, in contrast to pagan netions, the dignity of labour was upheld and enforeed. The dpentolic Constitutions (iv. 2) direct bishops to endeavour to find employment for artisans out of wort, und especinlly for orphans, Barnabas enjoins those to whom his epistle is addressed to labour with their hauds that they may thereby guin for-
 It was, hou (Cotelerius, Putres Apost. i. 52). It was, howerer, the prevalent theory of the the clercy were from the 4th century, that the clergy were entitled to be exempted from manual habour (Mancal Labour).
The aequirement of wealth does not appear to have been pronounced unlawful by the church, but the teachers of this period insist strongly that when acquired it should be deroted to right purposes; money, according to Clemens (ulis 338 ), being an instruncen, Putrol. Grace. Ix. If law fully obtalued, whether by frugnlity, enterjrise, or inheritnuce, there was nothing wrongtial in its mere posecssion, but it was to be deroted to charitathe purposes, not hoarded in a spirit of avarice. It indieates very significantly the new spirit of philanthropy fosterad by ('hristisnity, that although slavery as nu institution stilf coutinued to absorb to but a slightly diminished extent the classes which at later times appeated mninly to poblic charity, acts of sratematic lenevolence on the part of the chureh ars to be found becoming much more common. The church at Rome, in the 3rd century, bupported no less than 1500 poor (Euseb. II. E. vi. 43). Nor was this charity limited to those who had embraced the Christian faith. The spontaseity of this benevoleace, as it presented itself to the observation of Pachomius, impressed him so deeply as to bring about his conversion. A recent writer has said, probably with justice, that the care ehewn by Christians for the unfortunate and the poor is the fenture which effers the strongest o poizt of contrast to pagan

C It has been the eadeavonr of some writers to prove that the difference in this relation observable between pagaz and Christlau societies is to be referred to other than religious upinions. The main facts and arguments

SOCLAL IIIFE
anelety in these times (Schunidt, J.a Socirter Cielle, P. , Mit). "Almagiving," says Chryanstom (in Mitt. Ifom. xlix. 3), "hi the first of trades for the rich $;$ " and Fleury (Ocuerea, el. Martio, f. 22:3) trares the principhe of charity as one of the nust prominelit and wellosustnined traditions of the church from apostolic times until the rise of munastieism.
This active principle of charity found a corresjominag expression in the Christian's intercenres with those who were his equals or superiors in Praef. As, arcording to Origen (contr. Celo, which. c. 2), he preferred to vindicate the tenet which he bad embracel rather by rectitudo of life than akill in argument, so ho hell that his sentiments towaris hia fellow-men were hest shewn by his unwillingnesa not merely to do them ill, hut even to wish it, or even to speak or tilink evil concerning thein (Tert. Apol, c, 36). Pruline injura expectanly avoile if, and the jingun injunction to avoid all recourse to the jngun tribumals (! Conr. vi. 6-8) became a permanent tradition in the chureh (Cyprian, West. cont. Juluros, iii. 44). "Accustomed," sny's Halliun (Jidille Alyes, c. whi, jt. 1), "to feel a strong aversion to the imperial tribunais, nand even to consider a recurrence to them am hardly consistent with their profession, the early Christimns retained somowhat of a simplar prejudice The after the establishment of their religion. The arbitration of their bishops atill scemed a And objectionable mode of aettling tlitlerences. And this arbitrative juristiction was powerfully supported by a law of Constantine, which directed the civif magistrate to enforce the execution of episcupnl $n$ wards." The church itself ineulented 246 ), andice (Apost. Const. ii. 45 ; Cotelerius, i. to stran no ciremmstance tended more ellectuaily this hubthen the Influenco of the clergy than among the Christencs of all matters in dispute ment of their pastors.
In his personal taught to practise modita, the Christian was being systematicaliy aroided. Dis ostentation simple, and temperance both in eating and drinklog were strictly enjoined upon him. Boys and girls, says Clemens, should net tonch wiuc, but 2; Migne, Patrul. Graec. viii. 65). Minuclus Felix (Uctav. c. 31 ; Migne, iii. 46) contrants the moderation and modesty of the Christians at their banquets with the licence and excess customary among the henthen. The author of the Epistle to Diognetus speaks of the Christians as "living in the flesh and not after the flesh" (c. 5), and even the feasts held in hooour of the emperur appear to have been shunned by them (Tert. Apol. c. 35). The usual accompaniment of the ianchuet-the revel (or $\kappa \hat{\omega} \mu \mathrm{os}$ ) with its lascivious dances and waneon songs-was, of course, equally to be avoided (Clemens, lued, ii. 4 ; Migne, is, viii. 70). In the matter of dress it. Is evident that the earlier Christians affected no peculiarity, the Innguage of the writers of the period (see Dness) appearing rather to imply that they followed too closely the fashion of the bearing on the question are to be found in lecky, Ifist. of Morals, it. 28-84; Wailon, Hist. de $\mathrm{l}^{\prime}$ Exclatage, Iv. 17 ; I. $24-28$.
ii. 38 ; Huvet, Les Crigites da Christianisme, times. Eren Clemens (Paed, iiit. 11), whils condemning a:due luxury and efleminacy, says that "the wearing of gold ornaments and soft raiment is not altogether to be condemned, but only an undus fondness for such attire," and he quotes St. Panl ( 1 Cor. vii. 31). Tertullisn, however (de Cult. Fem. ii. 11), seems to imply that anong females the convert to the faitl was distinguished by greater sobriety of apparel.

In the furniture of his house the Christian was to aim at simplicity. "The use of gold and silver vessels," says Clemens (Paed. ii. 8), "is rain and idle, a mere illusion of the eye. The supertuous posseasion of snch wealth evokes envy, it is hard to acquire, hard to keep, and ill-adapted for use." Silver plates and goblets, tripods of cedar, ebony, or ivory, beristeads with gold and silver feet, purple curtnins, &c., are enumerated by him aa tokena of undue luxury, which the Christian should not possess.

Works of art adorned with representations of the deities of the pagan mythology would of course be banished from the Christian household, but there can be little doubt that during the first two centuries the tendency to asceticism among Christian communities led to an undue depreciation of art, eapecially in sculpture and ornament. Buonarotti (de Vitris Coemeterinlibus ; Mamachi, i. 249) attributes to this fact the comparative rudeness of the devices on the Christian tombs (Hefele, Beitraige, i. 26).

In the question of lawfut recreation and amusements, the broad principle laid down by Cyprian, that the scriptural code forbade the Christian to witness what it was unlawful for him to $d_{0}$-"Prohibuit enim spectari quod prohibuit geri" (de Spectac. c. 4 ; Mignu, iv. 340)attiorded safe and intelligible guidnnce. The sanguinary gladiatorial contlicts which so delighted every class in those times were a spectacle altogether unlawfnl. "If," says Tertullian, " we can maintain that cruelty, impiety, and barbarity are lawful, let us to the amphitheatre" (de Spectre. c. 19). "What vileness," says Clemens, "is there which is not exhibited in the theatre? . . . They who, from the uncleanness of their own hearts, take pleasure therein, transfer the representations they have witnessed to their own homes " (Paed. iii. 11; Migne, Serics Gracc. viii. 109).

Of the isolation in which, according to aome writers, the primitive Christians passed their lives (Renan, St. Paul, p. 562), few signs are observable in the 3rd century. "The Apostolical Constitutions," says Blunt (First Threc Christian Centurics, p. 311), "abound in provisions for a mixed population of Christimn and heathen thrown into the most intimate civic and social relations." Christians are not unfrequently to be found holding high public office and even important positions at court. The Christian father of St. Basil was one of the most influential citizens in Pontus. Ensebius (E. H. vi. 28) states that in the hansehold of Alexander Seve $u$ us, whoso mother, Julia Mammea, befricuiced Christianity, they were numerously represented. Theonas, bishop of Alexandria (A.D. 282-300), writing to Lucian, who held high office in the court of Consintine Chlorus, gives him detailed advice respecting his conduct in this difficult poxition: he was to practise impartial justice to rich and poor, never to grant access to the emperor for a brile, to be courtenus, benevolent, and modest on all occasions, and especially to obey and serve the emperor himself' with the utmosat fidelity, so long as in so doing he was not involved in a breach of religious duty (Bilioth. PP. Gallandh, iv. 69, 70). "If a Christian was appointed librarian, he was to take good care not to shew any contempt for secular knowledge and the ancient writers. $\mathrm{H}_{8}$ was advised to make himsalf familiar with the poets, philosophers, orators, and historians of classical literature, and while discussing their writings $t_{0}$ take incidental opportunities of recommending the Scriptures, etc." (Newman, Arians, p. 68). Not withatanding, howerer, many aud eminent exceptions, it is evident that the larger proportion of the converts to Christianity during the first three centuries was drawn from the humbler classes of society. To Celsus, who made it a matter of reproach, that the new faith appealed to and was embraced by the most illiterate and simple of mankind, Origen contents himself with the geveral reply that Christianity was essentially catholic in character, sud, while receiving accessions from all parts, did not exclude the young, the uneducated, and the slare (Origen, c. Cels. iii. 44 ; Migne, Patrol. Grace. xi. 476).

Although the foregoing ontline is liable to the objection that the picture it presents is derived rather from the precepts which we find laid dowa by the anthorities of tha church than from facts in the actual lives of the early Christians themselves, there is good reason for believing that precept and practice in these ages were in closer agreement than perhaps at any aubsequeut period of church history. The observation of Milman (Lat. Christianit,!, bk. i. c. 2), that "early Christianity cannot be justly estimated from its writers," is applicnble rather to the polemical character of many of their treatisesa feature which in no way detracts from the value of the didactic literature of the age, or the presumption therein afforded of large and inereasing communities, like that at Rums, growing into power and importance amid quiet obscurity and the practice of a genuine though retiriag Christianity. The impression which the very imperfect data that remain to us are calculated to produce-the heroisin of those who fron time to time were compelled to attest the sincerity of their convictinns by encountering martyrdom-the reluctant admiration which the lives and tenets of the Christians evidently excited in the minds of the less prejudicial observers among the pagan party-all combine to prove that the natural recoil from the excessive demoralisation of society under the empire uniting with the lofty teaching of the new faith brought about a very high standard of practics morality.
Already, hnwever, there were evidences of a considerable decline from the primitive simplicity and enrnestness. Cyprian contrasts the lukewarmness of the church in Africa with the zeal of the apostolic age, when believers sold their possessions and gave them to the poor: "Now," he aays, "we give not even tanths from our patrimons, and when the Lord bids us sell, we buy and store" (de Unit. cs 24; Migne, iv. 203). In abother passage he siys that long immunity from persecution had brought abont a great decline in religis disciplinam pax apon the trial divinely designe alinost unconscio Migne, iv. 182). the increasing $t$ avarice, but als Christians with p (II.) That Chris ness and earneata by the state and emperors, is a ge Die Christl. Kirche trois premiers siè Schmilt, La Societ existence, it has $h$ by the vast num accessions to its Mforal, ed. $185 \mathrm{~L}, \mathrm{i}$. century themselves the degeneracy of with apostolic time large numbers of p whase sole religic coming to church anał той eviauroû \#) (do Bapt. Christi, c. 364). Augustine 1 defections in his floc the church to a corp fession of religion, he unworthy motives: seeks to gain the go they may interest another takes refug powerful foe ; anothe accomplish a marriag sibility, " ut aliqnan evadst" (in Joh. Eta xxxy. $1600 ;$ Serm. xly On the other hand, $t$ a really Christian lif persecution and ridic Serm. i. 4; Migne, xx Turia compares the ab works in his day with age. So far from coll the apostles' feet, the says, are to be seen dra extortion from the feet wealth consists in goo he fears that a wealth found " in coetu nostro 321).

That, as soon as Chr ander the protection emperor, large number its tenets from no bett self-interest and poliey is but it is necessarry alss other cruses which at considerable potency, and able to morality and sim these the most importan
(1) The removal of $t$ nople. By this importan ourt was brought direetl infucaces of Oriental hab the result there prevai classes of society an ar effeminacy unprecerdented

sOCLAL LIFE

cous, bene1 especially $f$ with the ng he was ious duty ." If a he was to tempt for riters. He or with the storings of ssing their ities of re (Newmad, ever, many $t$ that the hristinnity Irawn from Jelsus, who e new faith the most en contents hristianity and, while s, did not Id the slave l. Graec. xi.
inble to the is derived d laid down from facts tians themeving that re in closer subsequent ervstion of c. 2), that - estimated her to the treatises; from the the sge, of - large and nt Roms, anid quiet ine though a which the to us are f those who , attest the icountering a which the s evidently prejudicial combine to excessivs he empire & new faith f practical lences of a e simplicity the lukethi the zeal sold their r: "Nuw," f from our us sell, we te, iv. 20\%). ; immunity nt a great decline in religious observance (" traditam nobis discipliaani pax longa corruperat '), and he looks apon the trial of the church under Decius as alinost uncoigned to reatore ber "fallen and Migne, iv 1 so) the increasing tendency to monence nut merely avarice, but also the frequentyerting and Christians with pagans (ibequent marriages of (II.) That Cbrisgans (ib. c. 6).
nesa and eurnestness by the atate nind its profession ita recognition emperors, is a generally admitted fact (Bnur, Die Christl. Kirche, ii. 287; Preasensé, Hist, ales trois yremiers Sièc'es de l'Éylise ohrét. vol. v.; Schmidt, La Sociéte Civile, \&c. p. 484). Its very existence, it has heen observed, was threatened by the vast numerical, bnt merely nominal Moral, ed. 1851, ranks (Hirscher, Die Christl. century themselves freque fathera of the 4 th the degeneracy of thair age when and deplore with apostolic times. Chryse when contrasted large numbers of professed Christians in his the whose sole religions observance consisted in coming to church once or twice in the year-(de Bajt. Christi, c. 1 ; Migne, Patrol. Graec, xlix. 3b4). Angustine laments over the numerous defections in his flock, and compares the body of the clturch to a corpse. Those who make a profession of religion, he says, are often inflnenced by aeeks to gain the good will of a lawsuit, and they may interest themselves in his behalf; aoother takes refuge in the church behalf; powerful foe; anotlier aeeks to gain a friend, to accomplish a marriage, or to evade some reaponsibility, "nt aliquam pressuram hujus aacenli evadst " (in Joh. Evany. Tract. xxvi. 10 ; Migne, axxy. 1600 ; Serm. xlvii. 17 ; Migne, $x \times x$ iiii. 306 ). On the other hand, the few who sought to load a resily Christian life were often subjected to persecution and ridicule by the reat (in $/ 1 / \mathrm{s}, 90$, Serm. i. 4 ; Migne, xaxvii. 1152). Maximus of Turin comparea the absence of charity and good works in his day with the zeal of the apostolic sge. So far from collecting money to lay it at the spostles' feet, the Christians of his dny, he says, are to be seen dragging the victims of their extortion from the feet of the priests. If true realth consists in good works ( 1 Tim. vi. 18), he fears that a wealthy man is scarcely to be found "in coetu nostro" (Hom. 94; Migne, lvii. 32I).
That, as soon as Christianity had been taken under the protection and patronnge of the emperor, Inrge numbers should have professed selt-iaterest and no better motives than those of selt-iaterest aud policy is aufficiently intelligible;
but it is necessary also to other causes which atso to take into accunnt considerable potency and this period acted with able to morality and and in a direotion untinvourthese the most important apity of lite. Among
(1) The removal of the capital to Comstentio nople. By this important capital to Constantiourt was brought directly under the enervating infucnces of Oriental habits and castoms, and as the result there prevailed amony the upper effeminacy unprecedented in then of lnxury and effeminacy unprecedented in the history of the

SOCIAL LIFE

1915
Milmire. "The manners of the Eat,", observes "were (IIst. of Christianity, bk. iv. c. 1), first Cere too strong for the religion. With the ceremonial whieror commenced that Orientnl rebuked by which it might almost seem that, imperial despe old liberties of Rome, the founded another would not assume till he had describea the court al. Ammianus Marcellinus "vitiorum omninm the accession of Julian as With the lntter timinarium " (bk. xxii. c. 4). to be seen spreading of the century this evil is also in Rome anding not only in the East, but of Chrysostom and throughont italy. The sermona and the letter, Maximus of Turin, and Theodoret, shew that luxury and and Angustine plninly usual concomitants of suapation, with their love of money-gettiag, were at this inordinate most flagrant vices of socinty this period the which the teachers of the ciety-vices against in a continnal struggle, thourch were engaged perfect success.
(2) The rise of nu
ing attention given to cornus sects and the ubsorbnffected more directly controversial theology, which the age. Ammianus the doctrinal teaching of the reign of Constantina as $t$.", highways in urging their way to the differe ${ }^{2}$, ed by bishops on "redncing the whole differe.. synods intent opinions" (bk. xxi. c. 6 ) the distinguished opponent. Hilary of Poitiers, that there are " opponent of the Arians, laments among men, as many many creeds as opinions and as nanny sources of blaspes as inclinstions, (ad Constant ii 4 ces of blasphemy as faulta" that the ten provingne, $x .545$ ), and he nffirms Arian (de Synodis ce 63) of Asia are nearly all the simple enumerntion). Pacian declares that Christianity at thition of the different sects of huge volume (Nigne, xiii would suffice to fill a essayed to establish thin. 1053). When Julian equality in the relatish the principle of religions contending sects, relations of the state to these appenred to him to surceness, says Ammisnus, arpass that of the wild extent to which (bk, xxii. c. 5). Of the stirred all clasaes of these disputes affected and is afforded in the thirtociety, a good illustration of Nazianzum. He says econd oration of Gregory putes generated by says elsewhere that the dismarket places rin eunominns made the penetrated even to the womed evely banquet, and 27 ; Migne, Patrol. Graec. xxxvi. 488) (Orat. tine deplores the fact xxxyi. 488). Angusworship many gods withont while the pagans tinns who worship but one God are nng, Chrisremain in unity (Serm. one God are anable to Bigoc, xl. 712). (Serm. de Utilit. jejun. c. 7,
(3) Importance attached to formal religious observances. As the result of this excessiva attention to obscure queations in theology, dogmatic belief began to be looked upon us of grenter importance than virtuous condnct ; while conduct itself was conceived in too mechanical a hours being the ving, fasting, and praying at stated (Baur, Die the rirtues most strongly insisted on expressly says that these are it 285). Augustine actions in this lite (in are the most meritorions "Three things," sery (in Ps. 42; Arm. ix. 11). "there are which most of all (Serm. xii. 4), godly action-praylng, fasting, and almergivin to

Penance was imposed by the church for comparatively small otlences, and the canons of namerous councils shew a tendency to enforce a disciphae which, although perhaps productive of greater outward decorum, cannot bat have exercised an edervating iatluence on the higher cunceptions of morality.
(4) E'nhanevd distinctions betveen tho monastic and ecclesiastical orders and the laity. Notwithstauding the many examples offered by monasticism in its earlier stages of self-denying virtue and snintly life, its influence on seciety at large was certainly of a somewhat mixed character, attracting admiration among the majority of a life which they were unable to imitate, and thus, as Gieseler observes, familiarising seciety with the notion of a "higher and a lower order of virtue" (Kirchengesch. vi. 104). It is again at least doubtful whether the greatly advanced conception of the priestly office that now hegan to prevail teaded to raise the moral tone of society at large. The elergy were regarded as a class exclusively devoted to religious dutics, whose works of supererogation might avail on behalf of others. Eusebius describes the clerical and lay elements as constituting the two great divisions of society, of which the former, seeking neither for marriage, nor chililren, nor wealth, is devoted to appeasing the Deity both on their own behalf and that of their fellow-Christians (Dcm. E'vang. i. 8 ; Migne, xxii. 29, 30). No humiliation or punishment was regarded by them with so much dread as that whereby they were degraded inte the position of laymen (Milman, IIist. of Christianity, bk. iv. e. 1).
(5) Defeneracy of the clergy. Notwithstanding the increased attention paid to organization and to riturl, the morality of the clergy was exposed to no ordinary temptations by their growing power and wealth, and expecially by the right which the church acquired under Constantine of holding laaded property aud iaheriting it by bequest. The practice that now began to prevail of making the clergy the ordinary dispensers of charity, was also productive of trequent abuse. A law of Valentiniau J. (Cod. Theod. XVI. ii. 27, 28) declares all bequests and douations to eeclesiasties null and void. "Charioteers, aetors, and harlots," says Jerome, "yea even jagan priests, may receive what a Christian priest may not; 1 complain not on behalf of the church, but I blush for those who have made this law necessary " (Epist. 52; Migne, xxii. 26I). Chrysostom advises his hearers to distribute their alms themselves, and not through the agency of a priest or deacen (Thierry, S. Jérome, p. 17).

Other causes might be enumerated, but the foregoing may aafely be aosigned as those which appear to have operated with the greatest potency when tested by the social phenemena of the 4 th and 5 th centuries. The period A.D. 350400 has indeed been indicated as that when the greatest luxury known in ageient times prew vailed, and whatever may be the feature of society selected, it is impossible not to recognise, even smong those communities which enjoyed the most enlightened spiritual listruction of the time and attorded the mest eminent examples of the Christian virtues, the demoralising effects of this influence. In the 4th century, the ostentation and luxury that prevailed among the Christians excited the surprise even of the pagan party, and Chrysestom remiods his hearers how much more effective is practice than precept: "when they" (the pagans), he says, "ste us building splendid palaces and baths, laying out garikns, and purchasing estates, they cammot believe that we are looking forward to dwelling in another city" (Hom. xii. in Matt.; Migne, Patrol. Grace. lvii. 2(18). The view that the frivolity and dissijation engendered by thls excessive luxury are to be looked upon as mainly characteristic of those who, while giving s formal assent to Christiauity, really retained the habits and tastes of paganism, is not altogether borne out by the facts. Zosimus (iv. 33) does not hesitate to accuse even Theodosius of culpable efleminacr; and the sons of Theodosius were conspicuous for the oriental splendeur by which they were surrounded, and the gorgeous attire which attracted the admiration of the vulgar to their person (Müller, de Genio, etc. Aevi Theodos. p. 10). The language of Synesius at the ceurt of Arcalius attests the existence of $n$ moral degeneracy at the imperial court which the philosopiher and the Christian alike condemned (Migne, $P^{\prime}$ tr. Grae: Ixvi. 1075-90). The gevernors of the provinces, Entropius, Rufinus, and Andreniens, were as corrupt, as rapacious, and as cruel as Verres. Milman characterises the life of the aristocracy as "exhibiting the pomp and pro. digality of a high atate of civilization with none of its ennobling or humanizing etlects" (llist. of Christianity, bk. iv. e. 1). Ambrose describes the holders of high public offices as seeking to gain the popular favour by instituting games in the circus, performanees in the theatre, and exhibiting gladiatorial combats (de Offcciis Minist. ii. 21 ; Migne, xvi. 131). In another passage he says that the regard for wealth has taken such a hold of men that none but the rich are had ia honour (ib. ii. 26 ; iii. 6). Asterius, bishop of Amasea in Peatus, remonstrates with his hearers on their abandonment of "all care for virtue and the welfare of their souls;" he describps them as deveting themselves entirely to the pursuit of gain and to lounging about the market places; he depicts the luxury of their bangnets, -the attendants, wine-bearers, butlers, musicians, dancing girls, flute-players, butfoons ( $\gamma \in \lambda \omega \tau 0 \pi 0$ ous ), parasites,-and then asks, "How many poor are wronged in order to provide this luxury? How many orphans are maltreated (кovסu入(Govial)? How many widews made to weep ?" (Migne, Patrol. Graec. xl. 170). Perhaps however the most sinister fenture is that he declares that many seek to be well spoken of by slave-dealers. In his sermon on Dires and Lazarus, he describes the prevailing extravagate in dress-a feature almost invariably indicative of a low atandard of publie morality. Some wove into the material of their costume representations of wild rimals and hunting scenes, which excited the wonder even of the childrea in the street, who would follow pointing at the wearers. The more pious selected subjects in sacred history, the miracles, se. (ib. xl. 166-170).
The elergy shared in this form of degeneracy. Jerome deseribes the young deacons at Romeas appearing in publie with their hair curled like that of actors, perfumed, and wearing rings on their fingers, geng from palace to palace, snd there singing love-songa or dechaiming comedis, and leaving w 22 ; Migne, $x x$ The amusem same tendencie observes, "man these " (Civilis Anmianus $\mathrm{N}_{6}$ orders that th "their temple, assembly, and (bk. xxviii, 4). previlent, and habits of thrift At the council deemed necessar ing marringe fe leap- $\beta a \lambda \lambda$ (SEt 574); the clerg before the plays direction which formances were e the laity.
As a consequen duties and the sad the Grent (cle Io even the rite of 1 uatil they foumd t Other observance teasts at the tombs into occasions of $s$ l
The widespread whether we look u (Paganism, Surv new Oriental infle was the Christian on presenting to $h$ "mathematicus"w and had come for books, implies that tians,--" "Quain mu nummos abstuliss nummos abstulisse xaxri. 748).

The lasity that $p e$ inferred from the fac by Constantine on a 1) were almost abr III. xvi. 2) ; and $A$ changed their wives prepared fresh marri booths at a fair (Mig) Zosimus (iv: 28, strictures of the Fath ruptions of the court grade of society, and were disregarded in tl and indolence-a con the view of Gibbon (ii the overflowing prosj from "that indolent from "that indolent present hour, and deel rity." If indeed we n quated, from Ammian close of the 4th centur -represent both paga and also depict society important provinces bo Western empire, the "d Western empire, the " $d$ recommends ln estimat times from the writiags prevent us from conclud oonveyed is, on the wh bo a matter for aurpris

SOCIAL LIFE

pranar party, 's how muci cept: "wheo tus building out gardens, beliere that ag in another Patrol. Gratec. lity and dise luxury are racteristic of al assent to its and tastes ae out by the hesitute to etleminney; ispicuous for ey were surich attracted their jerson - p. 10). The of Arcadius legeneracy at losopher and Nigue, Putr. rnors of the Audronicus, I as cruel as e life of the mp and proon with none ets" (hist. of ose describes as seeking to ing games ir thentre, and Officiis Minist. er passage he as taken such ch are had in us, bishop of th his hearers re for virtue he describes ly to the pur$t$ the market eir banquets, utlers, masiers, bulfions n nsks, "How , provide this -c maltreated ows made to (170). Pereature is that well spokea on Dives and extraragance bly iadiestive ality. Some ostume repreunting scenes, o the childrea inting at the d ssubjects ia xl. 106-170). & degenerscy. is at Rome as ir curled like ring rings on to pralace, and ling comedias, and lenving with their hands full of gold (Epiat. 22 ; Nigne, xxii. 112)
The amusements most in rogue exhibited the same tendencies. "l'aganism," ns Ozanam truly observes, "made its last stand as associated with Ammianus Marcellin the Fifth Century, i. 89). orders that the Circus asserts of the lower "their temple, their dwaximus was ot oace assembly, and the centreling, their place of (bk. xxviii. 4). Gambling of nll their desires" prevalent, and teuded naterially to espeeinlly habits of thriftiness (Thieterially to check all At the council of Laodicen, St. Jerome, i. 4). deemed necessary to enact that (A.D. 320) it was ing marriage feasts ought neither to dancend-574 ); the clergy are also directed to retire before the plays ( $\theta \in \omega \rho i \alpha_{l}$ ) have commenced, a direction which evidently implies that such perthe lnity. As a co duties and the sace of this degeneracy, religious the Grent (de sacraments were neglected. L.co even the rite of baptism was ii, 33) says that until they found themin was deferred by many Other observances, such as the " great peril. feasts at the tombs of the martyrs, were degraded iato occasions of shametul excess.
The widespread belief in magic (Magic), Whether we look upon it as a relic of paganism (Paganisu, (Paganism, Survival of), or as fostered by was the Christianity of the ths how imperfect on presenting to his the time. Augustiue, "mathematicus" who congregntion in chureh a and had come forward embraeed Christianity books, implies thst he prepared to burn his tisns,--"Quann multis had duped many Chrisnummos abstulisse?" (in Psal. Ixi. Christianis xxxyi. 748).
The lsxity that perraded married life is to bs inferred from the fact that the reetrictions placed by Constantias on divorce (Cod. Theod. III. xvi. 1) were almost abrogated under Honorius (ib. III. xvi. 2); and Asterius declares that men prepared fresh wives as often as their clothes, and prepared fresh marriage chambers as readily as Zosimus at a fair (Migne, Patr. Graec. xl. 227). Zosimus (iv. 28, 33) supports the severest strictures of the Fathers, declaring that the corgrade of society, and penetrated through every were disregarded in the gratificater and decency and indolence-a condition gratification of appetite the view of Gibbon (iii, 404) of society which, in the overflowing prosperity resulted, not from from "that indolent despair which enjoys the present hour, and declines the which elijoys the rity." If indeed we note that the writers above queted, -from Ammianus, who died towards the close of the 4 th century, to Leo who died in 461 , and also depict both pagan and Christian opiuion, and also depict society as it existed in the most Western empire the both of the Eastern and the Western empire, the "discretion" which Milman recommends in estimating the morality of the times from the writings of the Fathers, will not prevent us from coneluding that the impression oonveyed is, on the whole, correet; nor can it be a mstter for surprise that many Cbristians sinc.. hare songht to escape from the influenco almost complate corruption by retiring into lives of St. Basil aud from society. The at Annesi, of - mansion in the sella, and of Marcella at her Jerome (Epist. 24, 38 ; Rome, described by that of Jerome him, 38 ; Migne, xxii. 129, 175), may all be looked upon as it of Paulinus at dola, ing seatiment which found indications of a growsion in monasticism. Yet notwithstan.

SOCIAL LIFE

1917
where presented of a the evidenca everystandnrd of Christin a great decline from the there yet appears suan practice in earlicr times, us in ascribing to Christianity to warrant which mainly averted the of society, and ultimate entire demoralisation reorganisation. Fentures brought about its which contrast favourably with the to be discerned of pagan communities in with the best norality and the exposure of offspring age. Infauticide persistently denounce offspring continued to be extent suceessfully (Chrysostom, in illud repressed by the church Hom, 4). The dignity fins ex se nihil facit, in some degree recognige labour began to be associnted with frecdom (W) and industry to be vige, iii. 92 ; Guizot, (Wallon, Hist. de l'L'sclaChrysostom declares that Inborious poverty preferable to indolent wiborious poverty is xxxiv. 5). The rights and social Cor. /Iom. women continued to be respeeted, and position of fully protected by the legpected, and were careThe prineiple of universal (Women).
more systematically recognised, and Amee was (de Offic. Minist. iii. 7) denouuces the Amblose eustom of expelling aliens from the city whan famine appeared to be impending. Asterius, While censuring the selfish luxury of the age, affirms that the man who can look upon others suffering from hunger or disease without being Patrol, Gracc, the lie to his human nature (Nigne, relating to Celestin). The letters of Theodoret thage, who had been a wealthy citizen of Carcity on its capture by compelled to flee from that the loss of all his bos the Vandals in 439, with pleasing relief to possessions, attord a picture in been eminent both for his virtues Cestiaeus had hospitnlity, and Theodoret (at that and for his of Cyrrhus) describes the C (hat time hishop which he bears his he Christinn fortitude with series of letters of introdury misfortune, and in a to the sympathy of Doduction recommends him and other of the chiomnus, bishop of Aatioeh, Patrol. Graec. Ixxxiii. 1090-1096) city (Migne, It is, in fact, the eminent men who virtues aad abilities of episcopate, melt who at this period adoraed the which society we recognise the element to which it was, to a preservation, and round reorganized. "The bishop," says subsequently 36), "was the perpetual cep," says Gibbon (ir. his people." "Tpetual censor of the morals of mualties," says Mileligious heads of the com. the supreme and malveran (bk. iv. c. 1), "were In all the transs universally recognised arbiters cipline nequired greater definite As church disenactments of numeater definiteness, from the influenca made itself mouncils, the eplscopal bishop often confronted the civil

1918

SOCIAL LIFE
courage and authority to which the latter found it expedient to yield. Ambrose at Mllan, Gregory at Nazianzum, Synesius at Ptolemails, Deogratias at Carthage, Leo and Gregory the Grent at Rome, are instances which may be considerably multiplied at this period.

In proportion to the social and political authority of the bishop was the influence which he exerted as a teacher of morality, and the teaching of these centuries was diten siagularly enlightened and humane. No more judicions nad etfective rebukes of superatition can well be cited, than nre to be found in the sermons of Miaximus of Turin (Paganism, survival of). The argoments by which Asterins of Amasea enforces the advantages of temperance and occasional abstinence might command the assent of the most enlightened modern accial reformer (Migne, Patrol. Graec. x], 37 I-4), Synesius, "in whose hands," says Milman (Hist. of Christianity, bk, iv, c. 1), "the power of the Christian bishop appears under its noblest and most beneficinl form," repudiated the theory of the celibacy of the clergy. The most eminent of tha Eastern clergy (in contrast to the narrow view that prevailed in the latin church) encouraged the study of pagan literature (Schools). Even Gregory of Tours, though aingularly prone to superstition and credulity, defended the principle of religious toleration. Of society, as presented to us under the influence of these more humane and liberal conceptions yet free from the deeper corruptiona of the empire, we gain a glimpse in the pages of Sidonius Apollinaria, where he describes the ordinary life of the nobility of southern Gaul, with whom the bishops of the province associated on equal terms. The day commenced with attending aervice in the church; then early visits were paid to nelghbours, from which it was customary to return before ten o'clock in the morning : the remainder of the morning was spent in playing tennis or in reading Latin authora in the library. Here the ladies were supposed to occupy themselvea only with religious works, the profane writers being reserved for the men. Then followed the uae of the hath, after which dinner was aerved (Eptst. ii. 9 ).

It is probable that a full and satisfnctory investigation of our subject at this period would render it necessary to distinguigh the phenomena of Eaatern and Western civilisation. In the opinion of some writers, tha earlier and more complete acceptance of Chriatianity in the East served as an element of cohesion among the different ranks of society, which, notwithatanding the fierceness of theological controversy, enabled the Byzantine empire to oppose succesaful resistance to succeasive shocks of barbaric invasion auch as those to which the Western empire succumbed. Tha traditional theory, that "the example of the Byznatine empire has proved on a vast scale and in the most indisputable manner that Christianity could act only mediately and indirectly on social life, that it might receive the assent of an entire nation and yet not anve it from decrepitude and death" (Flint, Philosophy of Mistory, i. 54) is accordingly not unchallenged. "The popular element in the social organisation of the Greak people," asys Mr. Finlıy, "by its alliance with Criristianity, insfused into society the energy which sated the Eastern empire; the disunion of the Pagnna and Christians, and the disorder in the administration flowing from this disunion, ruined the Westeru" (Hist. of Greece, ed. Tozer, i. 138).

(III.) "As Christinnity," snys Milman, "received the rude anl ignorant barbariand within its pale, the general effect could not but be that the age would drag down the religion to its level, rather than the religion elevate the age to its own lofty standard " (Hist. of Christuinith, bk. iv. c. 5). The features of society in the Teutonic communities, after their conversion, attest the truth of this observation. It is agreed by the majority of the most competent writers that the stnadnrd of morality in these communities, when compured with that of the Jatin races, exhibits yet a further decline, and that if we are presented with fewer evidences of vice there was a larger nmount of brutality and violence. The barbarian conquerora and the subjugated Latin communities reciprocally influenced each other, but this influence was, in the first instance, for the most part unfavourable. The latter were atill further demoralized by their anbject condition (Jerome, Epist. 89; Sulvian, de Gub. Dei, vii. 5-10), the former by the licence in which they could indulge without check. De Broglie ('Église et PEmpire, Ill. ii. 497) characterises the conquest as "la mise à aac d'une socićté tout entière par des hordes qu'aucun lien social ne contient." The farnful atate of aociety in Fanklnad under the Merovingian dynasty, as described by Gregory of Tours, is familiar to most students of history. Ozanam (Civilis, chez les Francs, p. 311) quotes from the Libellus de Ecclesiae Disciplinis compiled by Regino, abbat of Prïm in the 9 th century, the questions which the priest is there directed to put to an ordinary warrior in the confessional-a category which inplies that crimea of violence and the groasest auperstition were atill fearfully prevalent. The aversion of the conquerors to city life enhanced the ditficulty of bringing them within the influence of Christian teaching. The clergy, whoge duty it was to convert, instruct, and humanise the conqueror, themselves ahured in the general corruption. "From the moment that the barbarians became masters in the Weat, an immense deterioration becomes manifest in the clergy, in their tenching, in their atandard of conduct . . . . Even from men like Prosper of Aquitaine, Avitus of Vienne, Caesarius of Arles, the descent is great to the next generation in the 6 th century, with their coarse and superficial religion, their readiness to allow ain to buy itaelf off by prodigal gifts, the connivance by the best men at imposture, its direct encouragement by the average" (Church, Beginning of the Middle Agcs, p. 49). The episcopal order, indeed, lost for a time, much of its aacred character. The bishop was often a warrior, and differed but little in his habits of life from an ordinary baron; while the work of evangelisntion and the preservation of the scanty learning of the time devolved almost entirely on the monastic ordera. Slavery reappeared in its harshest form, and, in spite of the efforts of the clergy, continued long after the 9 th century to diagrace the Christianity of the age (Sla averr)

In fine, it would seem that society, if we interpret the term in its atrict sense, can scarcely be said to have existed in Italy, Gaul, or Bitaio during the per the cunquests the Suxon, in state of disorg and restraints in form of civilisat This condition of with the inter relnpse, succeede organisation of ticnl influences stitutiona, nntion reflect a combin Christian doctrin Authorities an the standard his Gieseler, Milmnn, des preniers Che Christianity; Gen ticnue au 4me siéc de l'É'glise grecque, civile dans to Mrund mation par le C (A. F.), La Civilisat 18+9, and $L a C i o$ 1850; Lecky, His Augustus to Charte St. Jérôme, 2 v . Kirchenyeschichte, $A$ bingen, 1864; P'res premiers Siecles de 1869 ; Church (D) Jiildle Ages, 1877.
SOCRATES (1) with Stephanus in B Adon., Notker.).
(2) Sept: 21, soldie Theodorus, under $A_{n}$
(3) Oct. 23, preaby at Ancyra (Basil. Men Sirlet.).

goISSONS, COU Concilium), A.D. 744

 blshops, when ten passed, A bel nnd Arthe Rheima and Sens, and heresy. (Manai, xii, 3
sOLDIERS. [Mil

SOLEAS. A term tecture, as.to the m which there has been $g$ The orthography of th sble. We find $\sigma \omega \lambda$ 'as ookía. The difficulty ence of the word was $r$ sttributea it to the arra passed out of use, nnd Grsecias ubique nomen ha citur" (Goar, Eucholog. kont, pours forth a mase ject, and comes to stran sions in the end. At or Meursius and Beveridge ( p. 74) ': regarding the with "solium," a thron Recent. ep. ii.); but is Solea he identifies it witl inistration Westeru" man, " reuns within it be thnt on to its the sge to iris ' unity, ty in the onversion, $t$ is ngreed nt writers communithe Latin nd that if es of vice tality and s snd the ocally ince was, in unfarouremoralized Epist. 89 ; former by fe without tire, 1II. ii. la mise à les hordes he finful the Meroregory of of history. 11) quotes linis com9th cen$t$ is there iner in the plies that aperstition wersion of e difficulty of Chrisaty it was conqueror, :orruption. us became terioration $r$ teaching, Even from of Vieane, reat to the with their eadiness to gifts, the osture, ita " (Church, The epiweh of its ten a warbits of life work of the scanty entirely on tred in its orts of the century to Sidavert). f we intercarcely be or Bitain during the perind that immedintely succeeded the conquests by the Lombard, the Frank, and stnte of disorganisation we can discern only a and wherein the obligations form of civilisution nearly the most rudimentary This condition of thearly nitoget her disappreared. with the interveings was gradually, and often relnj)se, succeeded by one which almost completa organisation of society mninly under eccle retreal influences, and the eatablishor eeclesiasstitutions, national, social, and domestic, whichreflect a combined tradition of Romas, which Christian doctrine.

SOCRATES

Authorities and works of reference: besides the standard historians, Gibbon, Neander, Banar, Gieseler, Mihnan, Finlay, &c., Fleury, Mucurs dirs proniers Cheetiens, 1720; Cave, Primitive Christiunity; Genin (J. L.), De la Societe chredep'É, au ame siecle d'après les Lettres des Péres de "Eglise greeque, 1850 ; Schmidt (C.), La Societe mation par le Christionin et sur sa Transjor(A. F.), Lar Civilisation Chrisme, 1853; Ozanam 1849, and La Civilisation aune chez les Francs, 1850; Leeky, Hist. of European Siecle, 2 v., Auyustus to Charlemagne, 2 vols. ; Thierry from St. Jérôme, 2 v. 1867; Hefele, Beiträge (A.), Kirchengeschichte, Archäologie und Liturgik, Tuibingen, 1864 ; Pressensé (E. de), Hist. des ik, Tiipremiers Siècles de 1869 Église chretienne, vol. v. 1869; Church (Dean), The Beginning of the Mitdle Ages, 1877.
[J. B. M.]

SOCRATES (1), Sept. 17, commemorated

 with Stephamus in Britain (Mart. Bed., Usuard.,Adon., Notker.).
(2) Sept: 21, soldier, martyr at Amasea with Theodorus, under Antoninus (Bssil. Menol.).
(3) Oct. 23, presbyter (3) Oct. 23, presbyter, Martyr with Theodota st Ancyra (Basil. Menol.); Cct. 21 (Menol. Graec.
Sirlet.). sirlet.).
[C. H.]

SOISSONS, COUNCIL OF (Stubssionense

 Conclusm), A.d. 744, nttended by twenty-three passed, Abel nnd Arthert ordained diseipline were Rheima and Sens, nad Adelbert condemhops of hejesy. (Mansi, xii. 369-372.) condemned for[E. S. Ff.]

SOLDIERS. [Military Service.]

SOLEAS. A term in Eastern ehurch archjtecture, as to the meaning and derivation of Which there has been great diversity of opinion. able. We Wringhy of the word is also very vari$\sigma_{0 \lambda \prime}$. The difficulty in $\sigma \omega \lambda \in a, \sigma \omega \lambda / a, \sigma \omega \lambda \in i a$, eace of the word was recogrised by the referattributes it to the arrangement by Goar, who passed ont of use, nad remanks, "in ecelesiis Graeeis ubique nomen habet, in rarissimis censpiis citur" (Goar, Eucholog. 18). Allatios, as is his kent, pours forth a mass of learning on the aubject, and comes to strangely erroneous conclusions in the end Meursins and Beverid one time he agrees with p. 74) ': regarding the word as aynonynot. with "solinm," a throng woru as aynonymous Recent. ep. ii.); but in his Templ. Graec. Soleo he identifies it with this "Dissertation de "iconostasis." An examination of the pasaages

SOLITARIES

3910
In which the word occurs proven the erroneousness of both. It in true that the word is not signifientlon than nt others; butimea bas a wlder donbt that the "solens" ; but there can be no church, not a piece of "was a division of the there can be as little question furniture; an l right in deeiding it to be the that Neale is intervening between the be the raised phatform the "bema" or sanctury, trapeza" cr nave, and " nave by one or more tary, astendied from the "eancelli" or "fconosteps.," It was outsile tha was appronched from the simpt of the "bema," and "holy doora." The "beautiful through tha are placed by Nenle further dows the ne," which to the (ritnal) west of the " "amho" stood near it. It correass," and the chancel-rail step in it corresponded to the place where the commur churches, being the the Eucharist. At ordinations holt to receira Goar (u.s.), the ordinand, whether ordinating to priest, took his place on the "shether dencon or dencons came ont the "solen," and two dncted hime on eith from the "bema" and conAt a later period the "aolea" seemoly doors. gained extension to the west, and became hava place for the anbdeacons and readers, became the called $\beta \hat{\eta} \mu \approx \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ dvayvacond readers, It is and was defined by Gretser (Annotat. ad Corlin. correctly 361, ed. Bonn) as " gradus vel locus pp. $360-$ ad sacrus $\beta \not$ hanatos fores positus, ex quo Cheelsior pro Christinas pro Christinaa communione distribuitur" true position and charneter appear from." Its passages in Codinus, who describes the emperor descending from the "ambo," nnd passing emperor scross the "solens," "ambor," nid passing alone "wards the beantifyl doors," but he came to"soleas" and "bema," and fiadiog the patriarch standing to receive him at the "holy doors" (Codin. Curopal. c. 17, pp. 91, 94; nlso p. 361). In the more stately churches the "soleal" was plates of silver, marblea, ornamented with When the dome of St decorated with images. pieces rois $\sigma$ metias $\& \xi$, Sophia fell, it broke to on the restorntion by ovuximou סuras $\lambda$ loou; and ambo were made of ailver II., both it and the 361 ; Allat. de Solea, c. xi.). Codin. Annotat. p.
SOLITARIES. For some [E. V.] impulses which led men to seet acconnt of the wilderness, sea Hermit, Moek solituda in the be added that solitaries Monasterr. It may cluster round great and populo long began to pare Saranaitare.] Papulous cities. [Cominfluenced by actnal Partly perhaps they were horrora of loneliness, partly by of the spiritual in tha theological fray by a wish to mingla heretics, partly perhny between orthodox and their hardships norticed by a looging to have Sometimes tha cell of thd honoured by men. attached to a monastery the solitary was semic. 3). Sometimes the (Theodoret, Hist. Relig. temporary shelter, ine solitary cell was only a breath, as it were, for a moment which to take agnin in the battle of life. It was everer the adpice of the wisest leaders of was ever the movement that there should be of the monastio of probntion in a monastery before certain period the life of a solitary, and that none shertaking allowed to expose themselres to none should be without the express sanction of their risks of it auperiors (Cass, Collat. Praef. xviii.). As the menastic system becnme more firmly consoljdated, and at the same time more complex in its organisation, the solitary life, especially in Western Christendom, came to be more and more exceptional in its occurrence (Conc. Toletan. vii. A.d. 646, c. 5; Conc. Francof. A.D. 794, c. 12).

SOLOCHON

Literature.-Petrarca (Francesco), Dialogus de Vitâ Solitariâ; Parisjis, 1513. Rnsweydua (H.), Vitae Patrum sive Historice Eremiticao; Ant verpiae, 1528. Zimmermann (Joh. Georg von), C'eber-die Einsamkeit; Leipzig, 1784. Hauber $(\operatorname{lgn} .)_{n}$ Das Leben und Wirken Gottgeureihter Persinen in der Einsamkeit; Lindau, 1844. Zoeckler (D. Otto), Kiritische Geschichte der Ashese; Frsokfurt a. M. 1863.
[I. G. S.]
SOLOCHON, May 17, Egyptisn soldier, martyr under Maximiau (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Gracc. Sirlet.).
[C. H.]

SOLOMON, king, June 17 (Cal. Ethiop.).

[C. H.]
SOLUTOR (1), Nov. 13, martyr, commemorated at Ravenna, with Valentinus and Victor (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Adon.).
(2) Nov. 20, commemorated at Turin, with Octavius snd Adventor (Murt. Usuard., Hieron.).
[C. H.]

SOMNIARIUS, Somniatorum Conjector,

 of Constnntius nod Julian, A.D. 358, denounces those who " narrandis somniis occultant artem aliquats divinandi" (Theodos. Codex, x. 16, De Malef. 6). The offence was equally forbidden in the empire founded by Chariemagne (Capit. inc. sn. c. 40 ; Baluz. Cap. Reg. Franc. i. 518 ; comp. the complete code, vi. 215 ; Herardi, Cupit. 3). The council of Paris, A.D. 829, regarded the practices of the "somniatorum conjectores" as a relic of paganism (iii. 2 ; comp. Add. ii. to the Cap. Reg. Franc. c. 21).
[W. E. S.]
SONUS, or rather, corruptly, sonum. The Offertorium of the Franks was so called, e. g. "Scuum quod canetur (sic) . . . quando procedit oblatio" (German. Paris. Expos. Breo. Mfiss.). The name is said (Germ. u, s. ; comp. Isid. Hisp. de Eecl. Off. i. 14 ; Amal. de Eccl. Off. iii. 19) to have been given to the anthem, bechuse sung in imitation of the sounding of trumpets over sacrifices ander the law (Num. x. 10).

Among the Goths of Spniu the proper anthem at lauds and vespers on festivals was also called sonum. E. $g$. the council of Meridn, 666, orders that on such days "post lumen oblatum ( $=$ lucernarium) prius dicatur vespertinum qusm sonum" (can. 2). This sonum was sometimes called laudes; for wherens the Mozarsbic brevinury diiects that it shall follow vespers immedintely, Isidore says that the lucernarium was followed by "two psalms, one responsory and laudes" (Regul. Monach. 6). The following is the sonum, or in the yet lower Latin of the Hispano-Gothic breviary, the "sono," for Easter day: "ego dormivi et quievi, et resurrexi, quonism Dominus suscitavit me. $P$. Gloria men. Alleluin. V. Non timebo millia populi mei circumdantis me: exurge, Domine; sslva me, Deus meus. $P$. Gloria mea. Alfeluin" (Bree. Goth. Lorenzana, 370).
[W. E. S.]

SORTILEGY

SOOTHSAYER. [Mathematiccs.]

SOPHIA, S'T. [SAPIEntia.]

SOPHRONIUS (1), patrinrch of Jerusslem, commemorated Mar. 11 (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.).
(2) Dec. 9, bishop of Constuntia in Cyprus (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.). [C. H.]

SORTILEGY. It was held thnt "demons rule lots" (Cypr. de Idol. Vanit. ; comp. Minut. Fel. Octav. 8; Greg. M. Epist. vii. 66). Heoce divination by lots whs thought a part of magic and a branch of idolatry. It was therefore forbidden to Christinns both in the East and West ; as by Conc. Ancyr. 358 (can. 23), C. Venet. in Gallia, 465 (c. 16), C. Agath. 506 (c. 42), Aurel. I. 511 (c. 30), Autiss. 518 (c. 4), \&c. It was ${ }^{\text {r }}$ subject of inquiry nt episcopal visitation (Regino, de Discipl. Ecel. 1:1, el. Baluz.), and at confession (see the old Gallican penitential, c. 26, in Mus. Ital. i. 393, nad others in Morinus, de Sucram. Poenit. 587, \&e.). It was condemned by Christian princes; as hy Childeric, 742 (c. 5), Carloman, 742 (c. 14). Car. M. 769 ; id. 789 (c. 23), Capit. Reg. Frime. vi. 215, vii. 128. Under the Frankish lnws sortilegi were not. received ns witnesses (Capit. Reg. Franc. vi. 397, vii. 369).

The methods were various, "sortes quas sanctorum vocant (comp. Concc. Agath. Venet. Aurel, u. s.; Bede, de Remed. Peccat. c. 11), vel quas de ligno, aut de prne faciunt" (Conc. Autiss, u. s.). Divinntion "per sortes sanctoruin" was a Christian counterpnit of the sortes Virgilianae, \&c. An augury was drnwn from, or a conclusion founded on, the first passage at which some sacred book (ns the psalter or gospel, Car. M. an. 789, c. 3; the lectionary, Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. iv. 16; the sacramentary, Jonas Aurel. in Vita S. Huberti, c. 15, in Baluz. Not. ad Cup. Reg. Fr. Ii. 1038; \&c.) first opened nt hazard. This is condemned by St. Angustine ns an abuse of the divine oracles, though he had rather men had such recourse to the gosjels than to demens (Ep. 55 ad Janvir. xx. 37). The Gallican Penitentinl, u.s. punished even this when "coutra rationem." See instances of the practice in Greg. Tur. or Jonas, u. s. ; Vita S. Consortiue 9. in Acta Bened. i. 249 ; Vita S. Hucberti, 18; Acta Ben. iv. i. 302. An unsought omen from ${ }^{\text {a }}$ Psalm ended the opposition to the choice of St. Martin as bishop of Tours (Sulpicius Sever. de lita B. Mart. 9).
There is extant, under the title of Sortes Apostolorum, a collection of pious sentences, but nat from the apostolical writiugs, so framed as to give suitable, though vague, replies to every probable inquiry. They were printed by l'etr. Pithoeus in his Codex Ćanonum let. Eccl. Rom. Par. 1687, p. 370. A fast of three dars on bread and wnter is prescribed before using them. On the third dny the office of the Holy Trinity is to be recited aud Mass heard. Specinl prayers are also provided. At the end we read, "Hiec sunt Sortes Sanctorum quae nunquam falluntur, neque mentiuntur; id est, Deum roga et obtinebis quod cupis. Age Ei gratias."
Many tribes retnined a custom observed by their hesthen ancestors (see of the Suessonee, Fita Anskari, 18, 26, 30, Pertz, ii. 701; of the Snxons, Transl. slones, Wilframi i. 359, 361; Vit torum "), ib. 60 Pertz, il. 381) of innocence, life or tloned by Christ accused of theft, bert, 593, c. 5). method (comp. I tallies, one marke in white wool, nn marked was draw Some kinds of or were included und sartem ambulare" 630: "" Ad ignem s dest" (Lex Ripua Baluz. i. 34). Leo settling every cau cuncta vos in vestri ii. 4).

SOSIPATER, A

 of St. Psul (Basi Byzant.; Afonol. $G$ Pyrrhi Beroes (Afa Vet. Rom.; Menol. Olympss, Rhodion, "spostles," Rom. Byzant. ; Menol. GraSOSISTRATUS, Antioch with Hesp Mart.). Mart.).

SOSIUS (Socius),

 with Januarius bishop rated or mentioned w Menol. ; Menol. Graec. Vet. Rom., Notker.), (3fart. Bed., Usuard., Wand.). He occurs on Sept. 29 in Mart.
SOSTHENES (1),

 Psul, comniemorated Vet. Rom.); Nov. 2 Rom.); Dec. 9 with A snd others (Basil, MenoSirlet.) Sirlet.).
(2) Sept. 10, martyr, cedon with Victor (Ma Rom., Notker.).

SOTER (SoTher),

 in the East (Jfart. Us Notker., Wand.); her day in the Gelasian Sacr her in the collect, secret Shs or snother of the under liocletian, is men May 12.
SOUL, SYMBOLS 0 ing symbols were used by centuries to denote the from the fetters of the fie hesven: (1) a horse runn goal, derived no doubt fr perhsps from 2 Tim. iv. sail towardu a lighthouse,Saxons, Transl. S. Alex. 2, ib. 675 ; of the

i. 359 , 3ts. rami Vita, 6, 8, in Acta Bened. iii. torum "), ib, V09. Willibrordi, 11 ("sora damnsPertz, ii, 381) of deciding. Willcbrordi Vita, 3, ianocence, lite or death, by lot. Thens guilt or tioned by Christian princes; This was sancsccused of theft, "ad printem ; e.g. of a slave bert, 593, c. 5). The Lex Frisionum de" (Childenethod (comp. Tacitus, Germania, 10). Two in white marked with a cross, were wrapped in white wool, and laid on the altar. If that Some kinds of ordeal, is goven was acquitted. were included under the term sorns. by chance, sortem ambulare" (Childeb. sors. Hence, "ad 630: "Ad ignem sen ad sortem. 8). Dagobert, deat" (Lex Ripuar. xxxi. 5; Reg. Arcusare stuBulnz. i. 34). Leo IV. charges Reg. Branc. Cap. settling every cause by lot: "Sortes gith cuncta vos in vestris discriminatis jurticiis quibus li. 4).
[W. E. S.]

SOSIPATER, Apr. 27, with Jason, disciples of St. Paul (Basil. Menol.); Apr. 29 (Cal. Byzant. ; Drenol. Gracc. Sirlet.); June 25 at Pyrrhi Beroea (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Notker., Vet. Rom.; Dfenol. Gracc., "lympss, Mhodion, Tertius, ; Erastua, Quartus, 10 with "apostles," Rom. svi. 11, 15, 22, 23 (Cartus, Byzant. ; Menol. Graec.).
[C. H.].
SOSISTRATUS, Juna 8, commemorated at Antioch with Hesperiua and Glycerius (Syr.
Mart.).
[C. H.]
SOSIUS (SooIUs), deacon of Misenum, martyr with Januarius hishop of Bebevent um, commemorsted or neentioned with him on Sept. 19 (Basil. Met. Rom. Menol. Graec. Sirlet. ; Mart. Bed., Adon., (Mart. Bed., Usuard., and separately on Sept. 23 Wand.). He occurs with Januarius and other', on Sept. 29 in Mart. Hieron.
[C. H.]
SOSTHENES (1), June 11, diaciple of St. Paul, commemorated at Corinth (Mart. Adon., Vet. Rom.); Nov. 28 (Usuard., Adon., Vet., Rom.); Dec. 9 with Apollos ( -Rom.); Dec. 9 with Apollos, Cephas, Tychicus, Sirlet.).
(2) Sept. 10 , martyr, commemorated at Chalcedon with Victor (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet.
Rom., Notker.).
[C. H.]
SOTER (SOTHER), Feb. 10, virgin, martyr in the E.ast (Jfart. Ususrd., Adon., Vet. Rom., dotker., Wand.); her natale is given on this day in the Gelasion day in the Gelasian Sacramentary, which names Shs or another of the seand post-communion. noder Diocletian, is mentioned by name, a martyr May 12 .
[C. H.]
SOUL, SYMBOLS OF THE. The followlog aymbols were used by Christiaus in the firat centuries to denote the deliverance of the soul from the fetters of the fesh and its of the soul hesven: (1) a horse running a to goal, derived no doubt from a race and near the perhsps from 2 Tim. iv. 7 ; (2) a ship in, and sail towards a lighthonse, or already arrived at Wand.).

1921
port; (3) a sheep or a lamb, sometimes by itself sometimes borne bnck to the fold in the arms of the Good Shepherd ; (4) a dove, sometimes on the wing, sometimes seated near, somelimes on the symbol of the body dear an empty vise-a again settling in a deserted by the spirit-or repose of the soul iner-garden, to signify the figure quitting a lifeless Paradise; (5) a femule ture figure resembling, snd ; (6) by a miniasentation of the dead. and close by, the repreuse of the female figure occurs instance of the medallion figured by Lupi (Dicurs on a leaden senting the mortyr Lupi (Dissert. i. 197), reprepl. viii.]. An execationer is. Lawrence [Honer, the saint upon the grer is turning the body of female figure is rising from it and a half-length towards heaven, from which with hands clasped placing upon her hend which a haad is extended, It is possible that the crown of gold.
or contemplation betwe female figures in prayer many tombs, may ween two trees, found on so tions of the sonl nlso be symbolic representaChret. s. v. 'Ame')
[E. C. H.]

SOULS, FESTIVAL OF. [ALL Souls.]

SOZON, Sept. 7, martyr at Pompeiopolis under Maximian (Basil. Atenol.; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.). $\begin{array}{ll}\text { SPAIN } & \text { Byzant. } \\ \text { [C. H.] }\end{array}$

lium). [Toledo, Councils of (Hispanum ConciSPANOCL

 patens, chandeliers, &c., closed-in ap to thalices, word occurs frequently in Ann at the top. The we read that Leo III. nureum praecipung gave to St. Peter's "calicem tum lapidibus," tog spanocliatum diversia ornaspanoclistam" together with "patenam auream alao gave "gabathae spanoclist The same pope the purpose of giving spanoclistae" to hang for cus" or cloiater ( $$ 418$ ) clistum" of gold (18); and a "regnum spanoto hang over the altar a cross depending from it presented to the altar (§ 398). Paschal I. also and jewelled "regurch of St. Praxedes a gold the altar (§ 435). [CRownoclistum" to light Gabatha.]
[E. V.]
SPERATUS, July 17. [Sciliftani.]
SPES. [SAPIENTIA.]
SPEUSIPPUS, Jan. 17, with Elaslppas and Melasippus, Cnppadocian martyrs.(Basil. Menol.), Hieron., Notker., Wandes (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Hieron., Notker., Wand.). - [C. H.]
SPEUSIPPUS and his brothers Elasippua and Melasippus ; natale Jan. 17. (Bed. Mart.)
SPIRIDION, $\dot{D}_{\text {ec. } 12, ~ T h a n m a t a r g u s . ~}^{\text {[C. }}$ ] father," biahop of Trimithos, coufgus, "our Maxinnian Menol.; Cal. Bymemorated in Cyprus (Basil. Dec. 14 (Mart. Unt.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.);
[C. H.].
Expirits, EVIL. [Demon; Demoniac; SPIRITUAL EXERCISES. Under the hend of "Spiritual Exercises" (Exercitia Spiri-tualia）it is cenvenient to enumerate the prin－ cipal practices which are believed to centribute to the exaitation of the spiritual life．

1．First among these we may reckon Reading， and especially the reading of the bible［Scrip－ ture，Study or］，both in public and in private． To this soon came to be added works compiled With a special view to edification，such as the Acts of Martyrs，the Collationes of John Cassinu， and the lives and miracles of fanous men col－ lected by Rufinus，Theodoret，Joannes Muschus， Gregory of＇lours，and others．Forgeries in this field of literature soon came to be frequent，and maoy Christians had an inclioation for the pagan literature which the more ascetic leaders con－ demned；circumstances which led to certain books being marked off by authority as unfit for the reading of Christian people［PROHinited Books；Schools］．
2．The P＇salms in particular have always had a special prominence among the books used for spirilual exercise［Psalmody］．The fathers constantly recommend the learning and the saying of pisaluns as an exarcise of the highest etficacy．（See，fur instance，Jerome，Epist．107， ad Lactan，c．4；Epist． 125 ad Rustic．c．11； Epist． 108 ad Eustoch．c．19．）And the psalms －however long a portion might be said－were commonly recited stauding，unless in case of sume gricvous infirmity（Theodoret，Hist．Relig． c．． 2 and 5 ；Moschus，Pratum Spirituale，c． 140 ； Basil．Epist． 63 ad Ncocacsarcenses，\＆c．）．With psalmody is iutimately connected the observ－ ance of Vigils，especially in monasteries［Hours OF Prayer，p．795］．A whole class of monks， the＂Sleepless＂［Acoemetae］，devoted them－ aelves to keeping up the Divine office［OFFICE， tie Divine］without intermission．

3．Prayer and Processions，Litanies，Ro－ gations，Stations，and Pilarimages，which are reckoned among spiritual exercises，are treated uncter their proper headings．

4．The Confession of ain，both to the Lord （Pe．xxxii．6； 1 John 1．8，9），and to the brethren （Janies v．16），is reckoned among the exereisea which tend to edificution．Nothing，says an old father of the desert（Rufinus，Vitae Jatrum，ii． 9），so weakeus the power of Satan as to disclose our unclean thoughts to holy men and spiritual fathers．And nothing，onys another（ib．117）， more rejoices the eaemy of souls than the con－ cealment of such thoughts in the breast．Hence in monastic orders，both of earlier and later times，a reciprocal confession of sing is enjoined on the brethren．Sce，for instunce，Regula Co－ lumbani，c． 10 ，and the Regula Cujusdam，c． 6 （in Holstenius，i．397）；the latter is supposed by Holstenius to be Columba＇s．This kind of con－ fession is distinct from the auricular confeasion which is followed by sarramental absolution．

5．That the Holy Communion holds a high place amoug the means of grace needs scarcely to le said．On the frequency of communion， see Communion，Holy，p． 421 ．It may further be observed that in the early African Church the brethren were so anxious to sanctify every meal by first partaking of the Eucharist，that the consecrated elements were taken home for that purpose（Tertullian ad Uxorem，il． $5 ; 1 / e$ Orat． 19 ；Cyprian，de Lapsis，ii．26．See also Arca，Risebvation）．Hippolytus wrute a treatise，which was known to Jerome（Epist．

71 ad Lucin．c．6），on the questlon whether we ought to communleate daily or at set timies． We may see from the laments of Chrysostom and others that ordinary lay persons communicated less frequently than was desired，but with speci－ ally devout men it was otherwise．The old monk Apoilo，for instance，communicated daily，and taught his disciples not to eat until théy had received the Encharlst（Palladius，Hist，Laus，c． $52, \mathrm{Jp} .750,751$ ）．
6．Self－Examination（sometimes cnlled Recol－ lectio）is a recoguised duty of Christlans（＂）Cor xiii．5），expecially before Holy Commuaion（1 Cor． xi．28）；but selt－examination as a systematic practice，regulated by definite rules and recurring at certain times，is the development of a later age．Clement of Alexnndrin，in the directions for Christian life which form the Paedagofus， though he quotes the Pythagorean precept，thint a man should exnmine himself every day，does not hold it up as necessary for the Christian （Paedag，i．111），and Macnrius in his special treatise on＂the Guarding of the Heart，＂while he in－ sists strongly on the necessity of withlrawing into oneselt and of censtant self－watchfulness， nowhera recommends any methodical practice of this exercise（ $\pi \in \rho 1$ фu入aкฑิs карঠías，c．l．；but compare Athanasius，Vita S．Antonii，c．28）． Cassian（Collat．v．14）advises every man to direct his principal eflerts against the sin which most easily beseta him，but gives no directions for self－examination such as prevailed in lnter times． Nor do Chrysostom＇s atreng recommendations of watchfulness over oneself（Hom． 73 ad $P_{o p}$ ． Antioch．；Hom． 82 in Jounn．）imply any detinite rules for examioation of conscience．Such rules， in fact，scarcely belong to an age earlier than that of St．Bernard and the medineval mystics．

7．Meditation or Contemplation，the effort to withdraw the soul from the world of sease，and fix it on God and thinga divine，plays a very imporiant part in the lives of mediaeval and modern mystics．But in this case also the de－ velopment of the system does not belong to the ancient Church，though we frequently find in ancient worthies－especially in the ancient her－ mits or＂Fathers of the Desert＂－an immense power of withdrawal from the outer world， generally coupled with the freulty of seeiug＊ visions of things uvenrthly．One particular form of contemplation－the contemplation of denth－ is found from a period of considerable antiquitr． Several of the Eastern ascetics，after the example of Anthony，dug their graves near the csyes which they inhabited，or lived in tombs，so as to be always reminded of their latter end（Palladius， Lausiaca，cc．5，45，109， 113 ；Theodoret，Hist． Relig．cc．6，9，12）．John the Almsgiver，patri－ arch of Alexandria（ $\dagger 616$ ），had his grave sad coffin partly prepared，and bade the workman inquire aloud，on every high featival，whether he should not finish the work，is he knew not when his Lord would come（Leontius Neapol． Vita S．Joann．Elcemos．c．18）．The abbess Caesaria of Arles，sister of the fumeus bishop Caesarius（ $\dagger 542$ ），had a hundred stone coffins made for her hundred nuns，which were placed around the church，that they might daily be re－ minded of death．And other instances might be mentioned of similar practices．

8．Silence of course accompanies meditation． Pambes，the monk，we read（Socrates，II．E．iv．

23，p．238）was the 39th Psalm－ my ways，that I that he would h． many years be $h$ Monks came to $b$ dwellings 力ovxaa ［Hesychastae］． Lent（Lausiaca，e． from the tumult oople to learn to （Rufinus，ii．190）． ＂o profound a silen solitule（Lausiaca， to havo kept silen except when they Sabbath and the $\mathrm{J}_{4}$ fhomas kept silen Rufinus，ii．6），an 85 ）for 85）for twenty－fir forty－日even（Cyrill， Surius，v．399）．P to indicate their wa talking（Pachomii $N_{2}$ The Benedictine Rul rules following it，e monastery after Cor except so far as rega tag book（Reg．Benco twosi，cc．8，15； c．8）．（Alteserrae $A$ ． Geschichte der Askese．）

BPOLIA．［VACA：

SPONGE．The s liturgical ritual ia $k$ Moî́a，spongia sacra， present form，which with little change from by Allatius（de Rec．G piecs of sponge compr affixed to a long hand office of prothesis to co the bread on the paten， （Office of Prothesis，Ne 349），and in the Euchari employed by the deacon chalice（Goar，Eucholog． 1 and after the reception a ware swept by it into th and the paten cleansed． boly veil was also employ тоте $\lambda a \beta \Delta \nu$ т $\delta \nu$ \＆$\gamma 10 \nu$ ठ rov̂ árlov потทplov anoone тdyv кal ${ }^{\omega}$（Liturg．S．C p．83）．The sacred p．83）．The sacred virtue regarded as being imparte according to Goar（u．s．） potriarch among the pe recorded in the memoir of sius（ $\$ 182$ ）that Eudo of to encounter the Saracens of a sponge＂ad usum men aved all who received th death．A liturgical speng silo kept for the ritual
Table by the patriarch （Typ．Sy．Sabae，patriarch or 41 ；Euc） disc．Graec．Tcmp．Epist． 1
SPONSALIA，［MARZI
whether we set timies, ysestom and monnicnted with syectne ohl monk daily, and il they had ist. Laus. с. alled Recol. nns (! Cer. nion (1 Cor. systematic d recurring of a luter directions Paedagoyus, recept, thint y day, does e Christina cial trentise hile he inithlruwing atchfulness, nl practice , c. I. ; but nii, c. 28). an to direct vhich mest rections for later times. undationa of 3 ad Pap. my defirite Such rules, arlier than I mysties. e eflort te ' sense, and ys a very liaeval and lao the deong to the tly find in neient hera immense iter world, of seeiug' icular form of denthnntiquity. he example the caves bs, se as to Palladins, oret, Hist. iver, patrigrave and workmsn 1 , whether knew not us Neapol. The abbess ous bishop one coffins ere placed laily be re1 might be

SPOLIA

23, p. 238) was so struck by the first vefse of my ways, that I offeud not in take heed to that he woull bet not in tongue" many yenrs he had not mare, auif said that in Monks esme to be nomed tearnel to practise it.
 [Hescciastax]. Mincurius kept silence st silence Lent (Laussiaca, e. 20, p. 723) pt silencea a whole from the tumalt of the court-1ifsenius rushed nople to learn to practive silence of Constnati(Rufinus, ii. 190). The monks of Ti the desert so profound a silenee that they seomed to keyt selitude (Lausiana, 48); the they seemed to be in to havo kept silenee, eneh in his sepuss appear escept when they met at the ehoreh on the Sabbuth and the Lord's Day (ib, 69). The atbot Thomans kept silence for thirty years (i). 50;
Rufinus
ii. 6 ), an
 forty-aeren (Cyrillus, Jolin the sila Jo. Siltiary for for Surius, v. 399 ). Patchomius tought his mouks to indicate their wants by signs, so hs to mouks talking (Paehomii Reg. c. 3, in in Holtensius, i. 27 ).
The Benedictine The Benelietine Rule, and most other mons, i. 27, rules following it, monastery after Compline, sudut silence in a except so far as regards the rending of na tadifle, ing book (Rcg. Benedicti, ce. $38,42,52$; ${ }^{\text {Prify }}$,

brolia. [Vacancr.]

[C.] EPONGE. The aponge used in the Greek liturgical ritual is known as as yios $^{2} \sigma \pi \delta$ thros, or

 br Allatius (de Rece. Gracc. Templ ufixixed to a long haudle. It was used in cube, office of prothesis to collect the amall crumbs of tha bread on the paten, that none might fall off (Office of Prothesis, Neale, II, East. Ch. Futrodf. emplioyed by the deacon to to cleanoe was repeatedly. chalice (Goar, Eucholog. Lit. Chrysesst phaten and ond after the reception any remaioing fragment Ware swept by it into the chalice, and both that and the paten cleansed. For thia purpose the holy peil was and Rdw wa $\hat{\omega}_{s}$ (Liturg. S. Chrysost. ; Goar, Euchol.

p. 83 ) p. 83). The sacred virtue of the Eneharist was regarded as regarded as being imparted to the aponge, which partiarch among the people. It is is aimy the the recorted in the memoir of Gregory 11 . by A Anasta-fiud ( 1 . rius ($ 182) that Eudor of Aqgory 1 I. by Anasta-to encounter the Saracens, distrine, when sbout of enceunter the Saracens, distributed portions ured all who received mensae pontifcis,", which death. A whiturgical spongem from wounds and atoo kept for the ritual washing lar size was (Typ. by Shabee, eatriarch on Slaundy The Thursday

SPONSORS

1923

 fidejussores ; fidee doctorase ceptores; ; compantress spiritites fidedoctores; susofferentrs. The oeeurinites, eren pmrintes; sereral of these titles will aypeand meaniug of Historv.-Though aunlogear below). for the institution of spousurs and justification the bible, yet there is ponsors say be found in thing. And though is no mention of the word or lun $\}$, p. 326) siys "that the Jewirthics of Eingat the circumecising of their chids had a custom, undertakers shoull make a chill ren, that certnin for their pious edncation, a solvmn stipulation godfithers in baptisism,", it is confrimable to our these were nuything more than wit full whother ceremony. Wive mav adtopt the wituesses of the Tertulinin (de Cor. Mili, 3) " $1 f$ the argnureut of determined this, sssurei, "If no scrip,ture hath firmed it, which doubtless ins heem hath contradition. Other oubservantes, derived from Seriut Scripture doeunent, we defend without nuy tralition alone, aud by the auppe ground of gea gequent eustom. Iu fact, to begiup with of conwhen we are about to foct, to begiu with laptism, same phace, butu at to come to the water, in the as cateehumens), we do in the earlier time (i.a. under the haud of a chief the church testify, renounce the devil, his a chief minister, that we Then are we thrice dipped, pled aul his aogels. something more than thed, pledging ourselves to in the Gospel; than the Lord hath preseribed charge of uspe (suscopti, i.e. by undertaking the lit. those who take the eandidates suscoptorese, font, or god-parents), we first taste a out of the honey and milk." The origin of taste a mixture of in obseurity, for though some giponsurship is lost Rit. Ecc. i. 19) mako Ily ginus, bish Durautus, do A.D. 138-141, to be the firss, bishop of Rome, the necessity for ite intro first authority for it, referred to the general circumstances or to be times. The frequent persecumstances of those early ages brought with perseutions during those the probability of the riol them a twofeld perii, parents, and the possibility death of Christian paganism of the possibility of the lapse into $t$ wofld necessity on the part Hence arose a obtaining a seeurity, ind one part of the ehurch of that the baptized infants sho of the parents, up in the faith of the chants should be brought parenta' death or aposthureh in case of their character of adults seopy, and that the real be answered for by other than thatism should guard against the like spiritual calamityes, to know that the risk of popritual enlamity. We led many of the of poat-baptismal ain and fall thought to advise and perer school of Christian baptism, e.g. Tertullian wractise poat poneinent of argument, which incidentally bears wit following spo sponsorial office as an established witness to the the church. "The delaring es shed institution in profitable, aecording to thying of baptism is more tion, and mereoperer th the condition, or disposiespecially in the case the age of each person, but necessary, if the thing be net so so nor why is it the spousora (spomsores) net so necessary, that danger? for both thes the be brought into therr mortal nature, fail of their promises from they may be disature, fail of their promises, and mere charitable and truaptism. v. . The mere charitable and trustful course

sionsors

indleated in the Respons, ad Orthod., attributed author uniler the nume of Diomys, Areop, (de Ecc. Hicrurch. enp, vil. ad tin.), "It appeared good to recelve infnats in this way, tint the natural parent of the child offered should hand the boy over to one of the finthful, a good tencher of divine things, uniler whom, as under a divine father (golinther), and a pupil In ancred snving truth, the boy should be. Un this man then promising that he will educnte the child in holy living, the priest enjoins that he promise the reuuncintions and confess the faith. Mark, he does not say, I do this lnstond of the child, but so the child does, i.c. I promise that I will traiu up the child by my eedulous exhortations, so that when he grows to years of diseretion he will renounce."

The rationale of the office for adults is thus given by the same writer (de Ecc. Hierarch. cap). il. par, 2): "Ile that is Inthamed with lesire of obtaining the heavenly gift (in baptism) goes to some one of the number of the faithful, and prnys him to tnke him to the priest, promising that he will thoroughly follow all that is delivered to him ; ani he prays that he will both bring him, nud that ha will undertake the cnre of regulating the rest of his life for him. The other (with deep sense of his responsibility, &c.) most kindly promises to do whit he asks, and, taking the man, lirings him to the priest, who with joy proceeds, &c. [At a later stage of the proceedings] he orders the man sand his susceptor to be described and the names written down. One of the ministers calls aloud to each, and then leads him into tbe water," &c.

That these sponsors were provided in a great measure te nfford guarantees for the charseter of the catechumen is plain from the Apostolical Constitutions (lib, viii. c. 32), "Let those who first come to the holy mystery be led by the deacon to the bishop or to the presbyters, snd let them examine into the rensons wherefore they are come to the word of the Lord. And let those who bring them besr witness unto them, knowing accuratcly what concerns them. And let their manner and life be examined into." The rest of the chapter deals with this examination in detail, For the same ends it was customary for descons and deaconesses to undertake the office. In the Apostolical Constitutions ( llb . iii. 16) it is prescribed, "Let a dencun receive (i.e. as sponsor, for baptism) a man, a desceness $n$ woman, that the grant of the irrefragable seal mny be made with seemly security." Instances are given by Cotelerius in his note, from the Life of St. Epiphanius: "Lucian was the father (i.e. the godfather) of Epiphanius in boly bsptism; and Bernice, a holy virgin, had been the (god) mother of the sister of Epiphanius." Victor of Utica (de Persec. Vandal.) asys, "A descon stoed for (suscepit) each one." (See also Bingham, bk, xi. cnp, viii. § 7.)

Hence also the great care which the early church used in the selection of persons (other than deacons) to undertake the office of sponsors. The ancients excluded all catechumens, energumens, heretics, and penitents, that is, sll persons who were never yet in full communion with the church, as being themselves unbsptized; or else, such as hal forfelted the pribleges of their bnptlam by their errors, or crimes, or ineajaclty. By some canons persona whe were never confirmed were also extluidel. At a councll held at Auxerre, A.D. 578 , monks nal nuns wero forblhlen to act in this capnolty (see Bhighmo, bk, xi, cap. 8 , & 10 ). It dioes not appuar that wlves stond rith their husbunds in nny case. kilias, metromolitan of Crete (A.D. 7.30), naswering the monk I Honysius (lib. iii. juris Oricntal.), spenks strongly on the grave daties of sponsors,

The fourth Comncil of Cartlage (A.D. 348; cnnon 12, prescribed one of the duties of Whdows and deaconesses to be the instruction of the lgnorant noll rustic women how to make their responses to the interrogatorites which the ministers would put to them in baptism; and how to orler their conversition afterwarids,

In the writings of St. Auguntine, nuld in those attributed to him, we have frequent allusion to the instlation of sponsors, with practical alvice; e.g. Serin. 163, de Tempore, ani to similar purport, De Rectitutine C'isthol Conversut. \& 82,4 "1 nulmonish you nlove all, both men und Women whe have stood for chililren in baptism, that you recognise that you sre suraties (fidejussor, $\mathrm{s}^{3}$ ) to God for those whom you have been seen to receive from the font." Where also he adds further injunctions to persevere in this duty: "You ought to admonish them to preserve chastity, love, justice, charity, and above all things teach thum the Creed, the Lord's Prarer, and Ten Commandments, nud the first ruliments of the Christian religion." These instructions are queted in the connens of Cenlchythe, A.D. 785,

In his Epistle to Macellonlus, no. 15:3, he sjesks of a surety deceired by him for whom he steod.

The threefold interrogstorics put to sponsors, and the promises made in return by them, ate often sllucied to by St. Augustine, suld sll is reckoned to the benefit of the child : c.a.." "it is piously believed that the faith of those by whom he is offered for cunsecration is protitnble to ths infant" (De Lib. Arbitr, iii. 23; and similsrly De Baptismo c. Donatist. iv. 31; nud De Peoc. Mer. et Rem. lib. i, in various passages, especislly in cap. 38).

The quastions put to Augustine by a scrupulous bishop, Bonifnce, occasioned him to trest of the subject of sponsors, and to expound the rationale of them more fully than elsewhere (Ep, ad Bonif. 98, al. 23). He expressly states the Scripture truth that regeneration is by water and the Hely Ghost, not by the will of the parents (1), or by the faith of the syonsors (2), or by the faith of the ministers; where we ohould observe the distinction betwcen (1) sad (2) drawn by the writer. Agaio, even misdirected faith and lsck of right intention, on the pars of sponsors, do not vitiste the sacrament. "For it is not so much by those by whose hasds they are carried that children are oflered for receiving spiritusl grace (although by them too, if they be themselves good sud faithful), as by the universal society of the ssints and faithful; by all, in short, whose love sad faith is in operation." Thirdly: "lt is not necesssry for the remeval of original sin, thst the childrea be presented by the parents: for in fact many afe often offered by persons, as it may happen, ao way related to them, e.g. slaves offered by theit masterf; or children whose parents were dead are offeresl hy t to take oh the slso those wh expased to be are gathered presented to ba auy chilitren prospiect."

In the view great variety of we may beliove much when he "Pirrents were children." The the fommation e etnited by St. A chape. 5 of his seruple proposed Aogastine, woul ceerc' sponsors in but as loping me: senting the chur of iniant bnptism pend, not on a na the commumion Augustine is mad A chilif who thros he believes, does nacrnment of fait does itself rander addet thist, as th mately the spiritu ani not on the sp msintaining the bs
The writings of he trents of regener analogous to those embody the ancien designating the part regenerntion of the pledges, or engaging both (see Blunt, Of 537). And so is t? plained by Huge, de Rit. Ecc. lib. i. 19) : while they offer chid new life, they in a $8 C$ to their new regenert generation may be me there being spiritun called parentes, and $t$ (S. Aug. Serm, 116) the leve which a godfa his godchild as that of consanguinity but From language of hsps nstural to the the term "spiritual Dearees, p. 1728.] 4.D. 693 , ne. 14 , the $s$ gedson's weregild if to be msde in money of the murdered part of Constsntinople, A.D from church for having children he had stood "compster," i.e. " simi of Mayence, A.D. 813 "compatres spiritaies," a their children in the cat It is cajoined, "Nullu
fliam de fonte baption

SPONSORS

gus of thelr or ineapacity. e never colcoutucll held ins were foree Bliggham, uppear that in ally case. 'aj), noswertis (rientisl), of sponsurs. (1.12, 348), a duties of nstruction of ow to make es which the nutism; sud rwards.
nmi in those allusion to tical advice; to similar ersuat. §s 2, 4 tis men and in baptism, ureties (fideu have been 'here also he vere in this a to preserve ad abuve all ord's Prayer, st rulimeuts instructlons the, A.D. $78{ }^{5}$ 5i3, he sureaks in he stoed. to spmusors, by them, are e, and all is : e.f., " It is ose by whom fitnble to the nd similsrly and De Pecc. ex, especislly oy a serupa. in tu trest of exjound the in elsewhere ressly ststes 1 is by watet will of the ypensors (2) ; where we veen (I) and , even mis. ntion, on the e shersment. whose hands otlered for by them too, hful), as by ind faithful; faith is in ecessary for childrea be ct many are happen, no red by their a were dead

Broon, EUCHARISTIC 1025
tot tukeral by thuse who have hal it in their power also thewe wem this merciful otlice. Sometimes arposeci to be nurture parents have cruelly are gathered in by holly virgiwi chane people, presentod to haptitism. They certaiuly by them any chill ren of their own, nertiuly never had praspect."
In the view of this paragraph, exhibiting the great vuriety of eponsore in that disturbed time, we mny herlieve that blinghann has nssumnell too "P'arents were conman (bk. xi. capl. viii. & 2), ehildrenn." The dogmatie truth which luy own tho boundation of the institutiou which lay at etated by St. Augustine in the latter lurt of chajp, 5 of his letter aforessid. The very pext scruple propused by Boniface, and dissiputed by Angustine, would seem to shew that if parents eenting the ehurch; that the church and rejoreof intunt baptism was to nake primitive inet trine pend, not on a matural tie, hake grousiorship de. the communion of sninte. And the answer of Augnstino is made general for all cnase, viz that ne teild who through hie spmnsor nunwers that he believes, does believe, ns having received the oscrament of faith, for the sacrameont of faith dened itelfif $r$ roder him a faithful one. It may be addel that, as the mately the spiritect merch was really and ultiand not on the sponither, so on the church, maintuining the baptized, orphan or the duty of The writinge of Clemerphan or destitute. he trents of regeneration in baptism, with details analugous to those of the birth in the fesh embudy the ancient gense of "godphtrents," ns deaignating the partice who promote the spiritual regeneration of the infant by taking tor him the peiges, or engaging to remind him of them, or 537). And so is the later term "Fathers, $p$. phined by Hugo, do Sacer term "patrini" exRit. Ecc. Jib. i. 19): "They are eo called becan, de while they offier children to be regenerated to new life, they in a sort of way becone auxiliary to their new regeneration." "That the apiritual generition may be more expressively represeuted, there being spiritnnl parents present, thay are called parentes, and the susccpti are called filii" (he love which. 116). Other writers speaik of the love which a godfather ought to bear towards of conssaguinity but of father, not in the way From language of this sort the spoximity. heps natural to the doctrine nasocep was perthe term "spiritual affinity", associated with Degeres, p. 1728.] In the lawe of tifiteded A.D. 693, no. 14, the eponsor hawe of king Ina, gcdson's weregild if slain, i.e. the satisfaction to be made in money for morder to thatisfaction of the murdered party. Nieephorus, patriarch of Conatsntinople, A.D. 806, excluded a man from church for having married a woman whose childree he had stood for, thins being already a "compater," i.e " "ampul "compater," i.e. "simul pater." The Council ${ }^{4}$ mamayence, A.D. 813 , nsee the same term compratres spiritales," "and orders them to instruct their children their children in the catholic faith. In canon 55 it $i$ is enjoined "Null Glliam de fonte baptiematis proprium filium vel Glliam de fonte baptiematis suacipiat; nec filii olam, nec commatrem ducat usorem; nee illam cujus tiliun, ant filiam nd confirmationam duxerat." Where the reassun on which the cninon is toned is to be eqjerially observed. It wan the same reasan which ied to the limitntion of the number of number of mpunsors agnin, which originaily had
It was and in after yearys had grown to more. mude hy the sjomenors were that the promisises own name hut insors were made, not in their that they becane sub name of the baptized, and Binghan ( ik . xi. cant viil ) responsiits, usual, much valuabie intionii), has collected, an of mponsura. Martene has anl apposito the aubject from st. Chrysostom ' in Ps. pt, bus quetation ence is incorrect.
[1. B.]
SPOON, EUCharistic. In the 7 th ced-tury in the East comunuaicuntry often used small vensels the sacred sometimes of goid, in whicis to recelive month. Tlements and canvey them to their Ciuncill of Chis practice was firbidden by the that thers couid be nople in 691, on the ground ollice than the hand of the nore meet for that From the linguage of Jo thristian (cani, 101). "With hanls puat of Jogther cronaswive De, 730, receive the body of the crer crosswive let nis Orthod. iv. 13) and fre Crucitied" (De tüle mention of thene vessels, the absence of all later tice wne eflectually vessels, we inter that the prichowever, that the thapressed. It is probable, that of the spoon tradition of their use suggested general in the Greek eh somewhat ister isecame churches. This was first employed, posed (Maldonntus, de Cuermployed, as is supto take out of the chatice, after Diap. 2, xxii., 3), so mach of the steeped ablato the comarixture, served for the sick purpose and for the comnuunion of theth for that The Greeks call the empoon of the laity.
allusion to Isaiah vi. 6 it it $\lambda a A$ is, the tonge, in thing with them to s, it being a very cummon the figure of a "live coal;"" Eucharist under common among the Se coal;" a usage yet more iilnd Vidi $D_{0}$ ong the Syrians (St. Chrya. Hom. in Ephrem, Com, in Joan. Damasc. u. s.; St. Hence even $n$ conventional s. in. 31, Rom. 1740). sncrament, viz, gmurto, a eonl (J. $S$. A Aesempe the Biblioth. Oriment. i. 70. Reneud. S. Assemana in ii. 63). At first the fingers were Liturg. Orient. the tenga, as in the liturgers were afoken of as Lord shall heess we liturgy of Jerusalem: "The the fiery coal with the make ns maet to take up and to lay it on the pure tonga of the fingers, (Assem. Codex. Lit, the month of the faithful " was transferred to the spoon we cannot sama a Coptic prayer at the convecrationnot say. In the bishop, after a the consecration of the latter, whese hands were the tongs wio the angel "in the live coal frum the altery which he took "Now also, oo from the altar," proceeds thus: hand over this spoon, in which stch forth Thy up the members of the holy body, i. 54).
la all the churches of the East the laity receive the elements together, ie. the body steeped
In the bloud and Brun, Dissert. $x$. 21 ) the except the Armenian ( $\mathrm{Le}_{\mathrm{e}}$ the Syrian rite the the spoon is employad, In priest or dencon, may minister assisting, whether rately or from the apooa (Renaud: ii. 119)
$6 \mathrm{H}_{2}$

1920

syoon rivil ristio
other Oriental whurches ant is the Greak ho

Intinctiom, as the prastise of ateeping the body io the bised wis callet in the Wext, in thoughit by mome (ligeridiwg in Goar, 1521 Arcuillins, Cumowne (NGE. AB Or, III. 53) to have been tirst alopted ( quence of a hikentic at ('onstantimple, whom St. Caryanetom wud cumplati ating, having earried otf the Eiucharist whan bis hal phaced in her hand (see Sozim. Hist. Ead. pili. 5). It is more probable, however, that a custum so general was suggested by the convenienee found in milintering thus to the slick. In a story toll by Euseblus the person aent to a dying man with the kucharist, the priest himself being sick, was disected to moisten it and drop it into the mouth (1ist. Eiccl. vl. 44). The Connell of Cart lage, a.d. 398, orders "the Eucharist to be poured into the moth" of those who have become lasensible (can. 76). In the sanoe clty, not much later, a woman who had an obstruetion in the thront received a "steepend partiele of the Lord's beidy" (Di' Prom. et P'rowd. Dei, Dim. Temp. 6, inter Opp, Prosp.).
When intiuction for ordinary onmmuaions hegan to prevall in Lurope, It exems, like so many other minor rites, to have been Introduced from the East through Spaln and lortugal ; for we find the first mention of it in a prohibition by the Council of Braga, A.t. 675, The ground leged was that our Lord gare the bread and the to the afostles neparately (cna. 2). The practice thas received a great check moong the latins, but la the 11 th century we tind it general. In the 12th it was suppressed, very much beerauss it auggested the sop of Judas, but still under the authority of the cavon of Bragn, which was then known as a decree of pope Jnlins (Notitia Eucharistica, 705 , ed. 2). There is no evidence that a spoon was ever employed in the West during the prevaleace of intinctlon.
So far as I have discovered, the only proof that the practice of intinction existed in Europe between the 7th and the 11th centuries is to be found in the words of delivery used in many churches at the communion of the sick, and in directions that have reference to them. The form given by Theodulf of Orleans, A.D. 794, runs thus: "The smady and the blood of the Lord be unto thee remilation of all sias," &c. (Capit. ii. is Boluze, Miscell. ii. 104, ed. 2). A Scottish order of the beginaiag of the 9th century: "The body with the blood," &c. (Book of Deer, 90). Similarly two Irish orders in the Books of Dimna and Moling (Liber de Arbuthnott, xix. xxi.). Srudentius of Troyes, A.D. 846: "The body and blood of our Lord," &c. (in Martene, de Ant. Eccl. Rit. l. vii. 6, n. 3). Regino, A.D. 906, gives a canon of Tours of uncertain dnte, in which it is express! $y$ ordered that the "sacred oblation be steeped in the blood of Christ, that the presbyter may ie "is to say with truth, The body and blood," in \%. Jiscipl. Eocl. i. 70. See again Not. k'ech.
$\because \therefore$ : the 11 th century some formulas of ter: rev ierbality re-Jesus Christ, steeped in atis ti : ; thseive thy Miss. Ambros. clted by Sul is Bew-, Rer. Lit. ii. 18, § 2)
[W. E. S.]

S'TALIS

 dist ribulag procent of mowey or fioul to chlints (Juremal, if. 2til). Hence it anme to be applied to preschte or donations geacratly, ind Cyprian cally the clevgy of hia time "sprortulates fratren," Av depeading upou the contributions of thelr Howk (E/ist. 1, p. 406, Hartel).

ETACIIYF, Oct. 31 ; commemorated with Ampllas and thanas, Rom. xvi, 8, 9 (Baxil. Ascroh; Menol. Girwoo. Sirlet.).
[C. 11.]
S'TACTEUS (1), June 27, one of the aeven sons of Symphorobn. [SYMphorosa.]
(2) Sept. 28 ; commemorated at llome ( J urt. Uuanrd., Hierom.).
STAFF (Baculus, onmbuoa). During the saying of long office, consisting prinkiputly of pasmody, at which it was usual to stuni, it wha premitted for the worshlppers to lean on a long staff or crutch by way of relief (Martene, the his Eocl. Ant. Iv. xv. 13). Clirodegang of Metz in his liale (c, 26) does not perinit this indulgence to his canons, unless in case of lutirmity. The monks ol' Fulda in their supplication to Charles the Great (Migne, l'atrol. cv. 419) complain that their abbat did not permit aven the intirm to use a staff or to lean on the atanding-desk (inclimutoriun or reclinatoriun). The stat was laid ande at the reading of the Gospel (see p. 744). For thy stafi' of the tishop, see Pastohal Stafe.
[C.]
stag (in Art). From a very early dnte in Christian symbolism and iconugrajihy, the stag has been used to represent the Gentile convert thirsting for and approaching the waters of baptism [Cross, f1. 490]. He accompanies the lambs or sheep, the catechumens of Christian or Jewish birth, in most baptismal works of art, as the Lateron cross, the frescoes of St. Portinnus, and the more ancient mosaice of the Ravenna baptisterles.

The stag is represented in the mossics of Ciampini (De sacr. Acdif. cap. Ix.) ; on tombs (Ciampini, Vet. Mon. ii. c. 3 ; see also for later paintings Bottari, tav. xliv.) ; on lamps (Aringhi, ii. p. 603 ; see Lamps, p. 921).

It would seem, from a Ravenna sarcophagus given by Ciampini ( Vet. Mon. ii. p. 7, tab, iii. D), where two stngs are sepresented with the chalico (as birds frequently at Ravenna), that the animal symbolises the desire of the faithful for the other sacrament also. These examples of Christian tombs can hardly have a secular mesting only; though oucasionally, as in Buonarottl (Frammenti di Octro, xxiv.), the stag only $\mathrm{g}^{\prime} \cdots$ pears 88 a beast of chase. It is seen in this sense very frequently on the Lombard carviugs from the 8th to the 11th century ; very notably in the celebrated hunt of Theodoric on the façade of S. Zenone at Verona. [R. St. J. T.]

STAGE. [Actors; Taeatre.]

STALLS, SEATS ( $\theta \rho \delta{ }^{2} 0$; ; conscssus presbyterorum; sedes; formula [Magri, Hikolexicon]; vastellum). Compare STasidia.

The most ancient notices describe the seats for th: .chenyters as heing arranged in the arc of the apse, behiad the altar, on either side of the seat ( $\theta$ pobos) of the bishop, which was in tha miltlle of the Blinghum (Ant thio arraugeme buly of preaty an Majnes, (3) The term "thr to the neat of a of the preshyte of by Coustantio perwony from the Nrzianatum apen as furced ly viol d.e. 'into priexts', Viollet-lo-1)no ( Chocur), was ma oxample in that of the 18th cen 8. v. Stalle) aflirn anstructed in In Italy and Sonlt nometimes imade which the compa whidered unanitab stalls remaining in of Charlemagne ; sey left can only, consequance of a
The priaciple u assigned in the earl this, that sents w ralk. Hence great who were in dene with those of super the Connctl o that deacony were ex eelves into the ron canon of that conac part to intrude in the synagogue " is $f$ let it not be pern sit in the midst of which is taking pluc coutrary to orler." deacons wery alwnya the priests in the sun of the Council of Ar The dencons were bour It is not ensy to arrangement of tho cler originated in the East pha of a choir with w But the ancient arrn appears to have prevail in the 6th century.
the cross in her lirin rhce the abbess, an in nssembled nriasts, w tribuaal of the church dotibus qui aderant su (Greg. Turon, Mist. Frun
No mention of those a Which are known ns Mist bas been found within $t$ \} this work.

STAMINEA (nlso sta A woollen under-garment Rule of fructnosus ailinte exch (c. + , Patrol. $1_{x \times x v i i}$ the Cincordia Regularum c. 17, Patr $l$. ciii. 1248 , note). The Regula Magis

A meed in to allunta me to be rally, ind artulantes butions of aossies of on tumbs for later (Aringhi, rcephagus

b. iii. D), he chslice that the ithful fer mples on lar mes:uonarottl only a'a $n$ in thin csrvitgs y netably en the it. J. T.] milille of them (Apost. Conatit. I. a, c. 57), this arraugetmat may cap, xix. $g^{8}$ i) thinks that borly of presbyters was called reasen why the and Jla enes, lij) the "crown of the lreaby ( $E_{j}$ ", The term "throus" was not anclently greaty:" to the sent of a blshop, but was applled to that of by curenhyter also, I'reshyters wero spoken persuns from the socond throme", S. S) us "certain sazanaim speaks of himself (ile likit suat as forced by vlolonce "into tha second throne" Chocur), wav maniatainet in d'Arehitectior', s, v. example in that of Ly cins, down ent hadrala, fur of the 18 th ventury. The same writer (isitic 3. I. Stalle) allirms that in Frume witer (ibit. onnstructed in woon at in very remoto perione. somethes and sicily, on the contrary, they were which the comparative rig marble, a practice rundered unsuitablo in rigour of the cllante stalls remaining in Firance rance, There are no of Charlemagne; but the earllext spechor the time are left can only, says Viollet-le-Duc, be the The principle upon tradition.
assigned in the early church secmy to seats were this, that seats were church seems to have been rauk. Hence great eare was taken spiritual Whe were in dencons" orders taken that men with those of superior spilritual should not sit as the Cctinch of Nienen thera is a trace that deacons were cnleavonring te thrust theine selves into the row of pricsts. By tho Ibth part of that conacll the disposition on their part to intrade into the "higheat seats of the synagoguo" Is formally condeminel. "But let it not be permitted to the deacons to which in the midst of the presbyters, for that coatrary to order." it shaulary to canon and deacons were alwags forbliden be observed that the priests in the sanctuary (ree the 15 th canon of the Council of Arlex, ap. Ifartene, iil. 1, 7). The deacons were bound to stant. It is not easy to say urecis arrangetnent of the clergy behind the a when the erigianted in the East, was sur the altar, which plan of a cholr with which we are now faniline But the ancieat arrangement of the clergy appears to have prevailed in the French church Th the 6th cedtury. Queen Chrodieldis, with the ross in her lirnu, enters the char, with : unce the abbess, and presents herself before tribusal assembled priests, who take their seats in the tribuan of the chureh-"Tunc residentibus sacer(Greg. Turo aderant super tribunal ecclesiae" (Greg, Turon, Mist. Francomin, lib, x. 15).
No meation of those appendages to choir stalls Which are knewn as Misericordes (Misericordiale) this work,
[H. T. A.]
STAMINEA (nlso stamineum, staminia, &c.). A woollen under-garment used by monks. The Rule of Fructuos.). Rule of Fructuosus allots "staminime duae "the Rath (c. 4 , Putrol. Ixxavil. 1101: reproduced in the Cuncordia Regularum of Benedict of Ani a. 17, Patr.l. ciii. $12+8$, where see of Aniane, note). The Regula Mugistri, making a distine thon accoriling to the seasons, owfert phit in grossam guntilunk on onlat hare "jaraturan also male below to shminemm." lienirence is (c. 80, /atrol. Ixaviii, "pallium stamineum" Cilussury, a. v.

STASIUIA

1027
STANDINE
[13. S.]
sommon posture was, na is well known, a In l'mayers [p, lamong the nacient Christians [1, 24t] or aermons, on hearing the Gospris 1747], which tirmet' m liritueping l'sal.siody [ $\mu$. oflleces, Compare Srary, p, portion of the daly

STAILO. A word of dentriful meatise standing for sorne article of feroale meaning, but Txrxilis. 50:i) Venantius Fundix ( 6.13 ; Patrot. the rich objects depositeel Fortunatus describes tivent altars, incluoliog the the queed at difsuggests that sorpuio (with the nbove. Mabllon sort of crown) should (with the meaning of sonse orlinis Benedicti, sach be real (A th Smatoruin If stapio be retainell, it must ite argues thut ornament for the feet. it must be some kind of STARS (in Amr) often neen on either). One or mere stars are on early glassea, $\& 0$., which tigure of Christ Beunarotti as symbols which are rugarued by p. 38). A Christian of lis divinity ('etri, (Antiche Lacerne, Dart iiai, no given by Bellori Shephoril with Uis hart iii. 29) presents the Good Sonetimes the monogd encircled by seven atars. atteeded (i)id. viii. I) Hsed in early Chaistian antarry fiold is livequently heaven. At st. Vitaliart as emblematieal of Lamb is seen in a field thurema the Holy (Ciampini, tab. 18), and thus sown with stars placed in the chapel of Guthe eross is similarly 65). On a sarcoppagus at Arles atadia (ibid. tab. single cund double, are placed bet atars, alternately the apostles (Millin. pl. Ixy between the heads of p. 27). The figure of Habakkuk brint, pl. siv. to Danjel on a sarcophagux at 1 stars above his head (Le Blant Brescia has seven star, together with emblems if p. 12). A single and a bove surrounded with of the Resurrection, gem given by Perret (Coth stars, are seen on a A young man with four stars on his iv. $\boldsymbol{p}^{1 .} \times \mathrm{xil} .8$ ). parled with eucharistic ars on his tunic, accomglass (Maranzoni, Cose emblems, is found on a representations of the Nativity and theschi). In the the atar is an almost unfuity and the Epiphany of the seene. Instast unfailing accompaniment woodeuts of the articles Nill be fortad in the rafion of.
[E. V.]
STASIDLA. The stalls ln the monastic and other churehes of the East. They are distinguishel from the atalla of the Western church by their being originally, as their name implieh places for standing in, not for sitting. They has, no seath, and their occupants supported themselves when weary on the elbows of the stails, which corresponded to the crutches the stails, and are atill much used by the worshippers in the Eastern churches. Suicer defines them with much accuracy as "sedilia in quibus sacerdetes laborem lesi quiescunt, vel atantes accumbendo laborem lerius ferunt; eo ordisa at digniores dignius occupent sedile" (sub coo.). Goar states that the stall of the "hegumenos" was the furthest to the esst, on the south side opposite the "icon" of the patron saint (Euchol. p. 4, n. 35). He says also that in monastic churches they were usually returned, but not in parish churebes (ibid. 19). Each monk had his own atall. The Typicon S. Sabac speaks repeatedly of a monk going ais to araatbiov aivo $0 \hat{v}$. They are sometimes called tóro1.

gTASIS

STASIS ( $\sigma \tau d \sigma 1 s$ ), one of the subdivisions of he Greek Psalter. In the Greek church the Psalms are divided into twenty groups, eslled $\kappa \alpha \theta$ iopara or sessions. Ench $\kappa d 0_{1} \sigma \mu a$ is diviled into three $\sigma \tau d \sigma \in i s$ by the recitsl of the formnla, $\Delta \delta \xi a$ кal $\nu \hat{v} \nu$. 'A入入 $\eta \lambda$ oúta. So imperativa whs this rule that even l'salm exix., which by itself constitutes the 17th session, was divided into three $\sigma$ róceis. And further, when the number of Psalins in a session is even, still the odd number of $\sigma \tau d \sigma \in 1 s$ in it was preserved by gronping two or more Psalms together. With this may be compared the Western practice of necuring the same result by saying two Psalms under one Gloria Patri. For further information on this curious subject the present writer may be permitted to reter to an essay upon it in his volume on The Gradual Psalms.

For the sctual division of the Psalter see Psalmody.
Suicer thinks the term ordors arises either (1) from their standing to recite the Psalms, or (2) from their standing up at the close of each session (Thesaurus, s. v.). lerhsps, however, it may have meant a halt or stop, a sense which the word acquired in post-elassical Greek.
[H. T. A.]

STATE AND CHURCH. [LAW.]

STATIO. 1. By early Latin writers was applied to a fast day. Yet a distinction can be drawn between jejunium and statio.

There has been much difference of opinion whether a statio liffered at all from a fast (jejunium); snd if so, in what respect it differed. Parnelius, for example, argues that there is no difference. Bons, however, concludes that the statio is sometimes identical with the jejunium, and sometimes not. The statio closed at none, the jejunium (proper, e.g. in Lent) at vesper ; then they were different. But sometimes the shorter fast (which Tertullian calls semi-jejunium) was called jejunium. In this case the faithtul might take for the statio. The relation fist was the same as the statio. The ren Bon between statio Horis Div. Psalmodiae cep. iii.) tullian, he says, solvere stationem is the same as jejunium solvere. But Gregory the Great assigned certain churches of the city (Rome) to atatlons, and on the more solemn days commanded that stations should be done (stationes pieri) until sext, and to those churchiss on stated days (statis diabns-this perlaps suggests the origin of the term statio) the fsithful usually resort. Thestations, Bona complains, have disappeared, owing to the chill that has come upon love, and the sbstinence of the fast alone remains.

The classical passage on the subject in very early writers is a clause of Tertullisn's: "Similiter et stationum diebus non putant plerique sacrificioram orationibus intervenlendum quod statio solvenda sit accepto corpore Domini" (d) Orat. c. xiv.). To this there may be added one or $t$ wo other sayings of the same writer (de Jejun. c. 14 ; ib. c. 10 ; ib. c. 13), from which we gather that the statio was held on Wedaesday and Friday is every week throughout the year (because, necording to Gratian, on those days, respectively the betrayal wss planned and the Crucifixion accomplished), and that it lasted till the ninth hour. The fast on these two days of the week is enjoined by the sixty-ninth of the A postolical Canons, though the Greek equivalent of the aame statio does not appear there. It may be added that bishop Beverege's long note upon this canon will be found to give the most complete and the clearest resume of the facts, amidst all that has been written npon the subject (Pandectac Annot. !. 35).

STATIO

lt has been alrady suggested that the fast was called statio, because the solemnity was kept on fixed days (statis diebus); but St. Ambrose gives nnother sccount of the origin of the term. "Our fasts are our enenmp"onts which protect us from the devil's attaca; in short, they are eslled stationes, because stunding (stantes) and staying in them we repel our plotting foes" (S. Ambr. Serm. 25). Tertullian likewise undoubtedly takes advantage of this military sense of the word (stationem fucere) in his treatise de Corona Militis (cap. xi.). For an account of how the fast of the Wednesilay stutio became in process of time exchanged for the Saturday fnst in some psrts of the West, see SabBath.
2. An assembly of the faithful in church, especially that which took place on the Lord's day. It has been mentioaed above that Gregory the Grent regulsted these stations in Rome, but it is clear thst he did not originate them: for though the word appears to be used in the sense of the Fast in sll the passages of Tertullian (see the several notes on them in the Oxford translation), yet it ( $\sigma \tau d \sigma 1 s$ ) is used by St. Gregory of Nszianzum in a passage where it conld hardly mean anything but an nssembly (Greg. Naz. Orat. hab. in Concilio Const.). The term has nn obvious appropriateness in a Greek church, where there were no seats snd all had to stand.
3. In a scnse closely connected with the foregoing, a station in a church, oratory, or other place where ecclesiastical processions mades halt, and certain othces of divine worship were performed, sometimes the service of the Holy Eucharist itself. From this it came to pass thet the proceasions themselves were called stutiones. They were first instituted by Cyril of Alexandria (Ducange, s. v.). The tombs of the martyrs wers often the scenes of stations. In later times the term was used of a procession made by all the clergy of a city to some lending church of the city. (Anse!m. Leod. c. 69, in Wolb.) Ducarge says that wnen the clergy from the various chutt question assembled at a station, any diftio This fact, he thinks, acconnts was settled statement that the station was an Tertullian longed to the vesper hour. It appesis from Cyprian (Ep. 41) that the Novatian shimatia demanded that their charges should be investigated "in statione." Solne have shought that it was the stations of this class that Gregory the Great took or narit "), and that delivered many This would point office in the prevsiled in the where we are to at the statioas (Nicolans I. Ep. Vitaliano) speak Petrum " on the $L$ celebrated there. in the early Chris connected with th sponding woul (7 the ritual of Israc ohlation (see Buxt sad statio may b idens which Christ Hofmana (Lex. U as ritus audiendi would seem to res word too much.

STATIO

At these stations carried in processi this prsctice exis Hilsrus (A.d. 461 Grest is the papa 795) mada twent silver, to be carri ("qui praecederen acolytorum ").
Is modern time often applied to th front of pictures the lesding inciden this use, however, withis the period restricted.
STATIONS 0 tence, p. 1591.]
STAUROPEGI solems set of fixing diocese, at the founc tery. The service a an occasion, with given in Goar's Euc, castom is an ancien to by St. Chrysost community is there cross? What chur fied with the eross? distinctly meationed in caa. vii. Septimne
In later times $t$ opecial right claimed a church in any dio sending a small wo fred behind the alta ths patriarch's pe asry diocessn jurisd controversies caused Ducsnge, Glossary, ú for further authorit Nesle, Eastern Chure diecovery of the tru enstody of the holy r time being to one of om the various tation, any dilib ng was settich, for Tertullian' sometimes pron uppeais from St itian schismatio could be investive shought that uss that Gregorythe Great took order to regulate (" sollicite ordinarit"), and that while taking pert in them he delivered many of his homilies on the gospels. This would point to the use of the encharistic office in the station. The same use, too, prevailed in the church of Constantinople, where we are told that the epistle and gospel at the stations used to be recited in Latin (Nicolnus I. Ep. 8). Anastasius again (in $S$. Vitaliuno) speaks of a station "ad Sanctuas Petrum " on the Lord's dny, and of the mass being celebrated there. It is not unlikely, indeed, that in the early Christinn mind statio was eminently connected with the Eucharist, becnuse the corresponding word (ֵֻypu) was already in use in the ritual of Israel in counexion with the sacred oblation (see Buxtorf, Lex. Talmud. s. v. עָּרַ); add statio may be an example of those many ideas which Christianity adopted from Judaism. Hofmsmn (Lex. Univ. s. v.) boldly defines statio as ritus audiendi Evangelium. This, however, would seem to restrict the liturgical use of the word too much.

STAUROPHYL

At these stations the sacramental vessels were carried in procession. Anastasius tells us that this practice existed as early as the time of Hilarus (A.D. 461), the successor of Leo the Great in the papal sce. Leo the Third (A.D. 795) made twenty such vessels of the prrest vilver, to be carried by acolytes in procession ("qui prsecederent per stationes per manus acolytornm").
In modern times the term stationes is most often applied to tha use of certain devotions in front of pictures or scalptures representing the leading incidents of our Lord's Passion. Of this use, however, no example has been found within the period to which the present work is restricted.
[H. T. A.]
STATIONS OF PENITENTS. [P. 1591.]
STAUROPEGIUM ( $\sigma$ тayporthiov). The solema act of fixing a cross by the bishop of the diocese, at the foundation of a church or monastery. The service and ceremonial in use on such aa occasion, with full rubrical directions, are given in Goar's Eucholoyion, pp. 608-613. This custom is aa ancient one. It is probably alluded to by St. Chrysnstom, when he asks, "What community is there which has aot the staff and cross? What church which has not been fortified with the cross?" (Hom. in Baia.); nad it is distiactly mentioned by later writers (Balsamon in can. vii. Septimae Synodi).
In later times the term came to denote a special right claimed by a patriarch to consecrate a church in any diocese within his province, by seading a small wooden inscribed cross to be fixed behiad the altar. Such a church became the patriarch's peculiar, exempt from ordiasry diocessa jurisdlction. An account of the controversies cansed by this custom is given in Ducaage, Glossary, G̛raec. Mcd. Aevi, s. v. See for further authorities on the subject J. M. Neole, Eastern Church, Gen. Introd. p. 1041.
[F. E. W.]
STAUROPHYLAX. After the supposed discovery of the true cross by St. Helena, tha cnstody of the holy relic was committed for tha time being to one of the presbyters of the church of Jerusalem, who was thence called $\delta \sigma \tau a v \rho o$ фú入ak. It was regarded as a position of very high dignity, und the holder of it was frequently advanced to the episcopate. Porphyrius bishop of Gaze (A.D. 421) held the office, as did John 111. bishop of Jerusalem (513-524). "Elias episcopus Hierosolymae exilio traditur et pro eo Joannea crucis custos episcopus ordinatur" (npul Ducange sub voc.). The names of several presbyters who were "guardians of the Cross" occur in the biographies of St. Euthymius and St. Subas by Cyril of Scythopolis.
[E. V.]
STAUROTHEOTOKION ( $\sigma$ Tavpo $\theta_{\text {eot }}$ кiov), a Troparium or Sticheroa, including a mention of both the cross and the B. V. M. ( $\theta_{\text {eотокós) }}$. For a rubric directing its use see Goar, Eucholog. p. 188; Triodium iu Dominica Tyrophagi Menaea, Jnly 12, iu J. M. Neale, Lastern Church, Gen. Introd. p. 832.
STEPHANIS, Nov. 11 , martyr with Victor, under Antoninus (Basil, Menol. ; Menol. Graec.
Sirlet.).
[C. H.]
STEPHANUS (1), Jan. 14, monk, "our holy father," in the time of Leo lsaurus, founder of the monastery of Chenolacus (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.).
(2) Mar. 27, hegumen of Triglia, confessor for image-worship uader Leo Armenus (Basil.
Mcnol.).
(3) Apr. 1 ; commemorated in Egypt with Victor (Mart. Usuard., Hieron.); May 8 (Usuard., Hieron., Notker.).
(4) May 24, nartyr with Meletius under Antoninus (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Gruec. Sirlet.).
(5) Ang. 2, pope (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon.; Micron., Jet. Rom., Notker., Wand.; Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Grucc.) ; Sept. 7 (Menul. Graec.); Nov. 4 (Cul. Armen.). In the Gregoriaa Sacramentary, he is commemorated on his natale, Aug. 2, and named in every prayer; there is also an office for his natale in the Liber Antiphonarius of Gregory.
(6) Aug. 6, subdeacon, martyr with pope Sistus (Mart. Bed., Usuard.).
(7) Sept. 17. [Socrates (1).]
(8) July 13, Oct. 28, "our father, Stephen the Sabaite" (Cal. Byzant. ; Menol. Graeo.).
(9) Nov. 22, martyr under Diccletian, with Marcus, natives of Antioch in Pisidia (Basil. Monol.; Menol. Graec.).
(10) Nov. 28, The Younaer, martyr for image-worship (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec.; Mart. Usuard.).
(11) Protomertyr. See Stephen. [C. H.]

STEPHEN, ST., PROTOMARTYR, LE oend and festival of. 1. Legend.-In one of the appendices to the works of Angustine is a letter from Avitus, a Spaaish priest then living in Palestine, to I'alchonius, bishop of Bracara (Braga) in Spain, which was to be conveyed to him by Orosius the historian, then about to return to Spain, which was his native land. Besides the letter, Avitus furthur entrusted Orosius with some relics of St. Stephen, and with a Latia translation of the Greek narrative of Lucian, to whom, it was believed, had been vouchsafel the discovery of the martyr's remains (Augustine, vol, vii. 1125 , el. Gaume).

We shall proceed to give, in the lirst place, a brief alstract of thls latter doenment. Lucian 'was priest of the church of Caphar-Gamala, a village twenty miles from Jerusalem, and on a certaio Friday (" parnsceue, hoc est sexta feria"), three days lefore the Nones of December, Honorlus being for the second time, and Theotosius for the sisth time, consuls (Jee. 8, A.D. 415), he was lying half asleep in the baptistery, where his bed was placed that he might guard the siacred vessels. Here, int the third hour of the night, he satw a rision of an old man clad in white, with a goldeo wand in his hand, who comonauled him to go to John, bishop of Jerusalem, and bid lim open his sepulchre. He further anaunuced that he was Gamaliel, the teacher of Piml, and that he had caused the remaius of Stephen to be secretly conveyed by night from the scene of his martyrdom outside the north gate of Jerusalem to Caphar-Gamala. Here Gamaliel laid the body in his own tomis, on the east side; and subsequently Nicodemus, who hal been excommunirated by the Jews and had been maintained by Gnmaliel, was laid in the same tombl. There also Abibas, a son of Gamaliel, who had with his father been baptizel into Christ, and had died betore his father, was laid. Last of all, Gamaliel himself was buried there; but his wife Ethna, and his eldest son Selemias, not having embraced the faith of Christ, were buried elsewhere.

Lucian, od awaking, doubted the reality of the vision, and prayed that if it were sent by God it might be repeated a second and a third time. On tha fillowing Friday the vision appeared again, and Ganaliel asked why Lucian had not oheyed. On being told the reason, he shewed as embleme of the relics three golden baskets filled with roses (one with red for Stephen, two with white for Niculemus and Gamaliel); and a silver basket filled with fragrant crocuses for Abibas. The vision then vanished. Yet a third time it appeared. On the following Frilay, at the same hour, Gamaliel appeared and upbraided him for neglecting to obey.

Lucian, being now convinced, set off for Jerusalem, and related the story to the bishop, who bade hin dig for the relies, it being beliered that they would be fuund under a heap of stones in the fiell indicated by Gamaliel. However, Gamaliel in a vision to a monk named Migetius esplained that the bodies were not there, but had merely been laid down there at the funeral, the heap naving been set in sign of mourning. The bolies really lay in the north part of the field, in a spot called Debatalia. A vain examination of the heap proved the truth of the last rision, aud the relies in four coffins were found at the spot indiented. On that of St. Stephen was engraved, aceording to one text, "Kenyea Celiel, quod iuterpretatur servus Dei" (e. 8, Op . Cit. 11:3); according to another, "Celeliel quod Stephanas dicitur" (ib.1134). The Intter interpretation is of course the correct one, oclil (לִי) being a common Aramaean word for a crown, as Stephen in Greek. Bishop John, then at the Council of Lidda or Lhospolis, being at once informed, came to the spot, bringing with him Elcutherius bishop of Sebaste, and Elentherius
(al. Eustonlus) of Jericho. When the cotin of St. Stephen was opened, the earth shook, and a tragrant odour was diflused, by which seventythree persnns were restored to health. The coflin was then reelosed, and was carried to Jernsalem, as the church of whieh St. Stephen hal been deacon; a small portion of the relies leing left at Caphar-Gumala. This transkation was made, aceording to one text, on Dee. 26 ( 7 Kinl. Jan.), or, aceording to the other, on Aug. 3 (3 Non. Aug.).
We cannot of course attempt to define accurately the historical element in this legend, still it is clear that some discovery of the relics, real or supprisel, touk place ; and that this was followed by universal credence in the story. Thus, fir example, as we shall presently see, Augustine, in the twenty-seeond book of the De Civitutc Dei, writteu a few years after the above events are said to have happened, refers to miracles supposed to have been wrought by relics of St . Stephen brought from Palestiae to the provinee of Africa; and the events are taken for granted by most of the immediately succeeding writers. The series of visions supprosel to have been seen by Lueian we may readily alluw; it demands nothing more from us than to credit Lucian with a lively imagination and an intease faith. Explorations in pursuance of these visions might easily be rewarded by the finding of a body, even if not so simply as the story makes out. We are not called upon either to lay to the charge of bishop. John a craftily conceivel and carefully worked-out imposture, or to aceept the elnborate story in all its details. Much of these, the names upon the collins and the like, we may readily discard as mere embetlishments-a story of this kind never loses by the telling.

The news, when promulgated, would be, we ean well believe, eagerly caught up. Relics were, as we have seen, widely dispersed; and the simple but intense faith of the time might often, by its very intensity, do marvels. Thus, for instance, the case of l'nulus and Palladis, afterwards to be mentioned, is just one where strong faith, working on the line of strong bervous excitenuent, might well produce the results said to hare happened.

We retarn now to Orosius. We find from the letter of Avitus that, in Dec. A.D. 415, he was eagerly looking fortwirl to his return journey from Palestine. He returned to Augustiae in the following year (Ang. Epist. 175, § 1 ; vol. ii. 923), bringing with him portions of the relics of St. Stephen, which Avitus had obtained from Lueinn (Avitus, l. c.; Gennadius, de Yiris llluw tri'uss, c. 39 ; Patrol. İviii. 1081). The history by which Orosius is most generally known was then written ; and after this he set sail for Spain with the relics. On his way, he landed on the island of Minorea; and here, learning that the Goths were ravaging Spnin, and that it would hardly be possible for him to return thither, he settled rather to retura to Afriea, having intrusted his relies to the chureh in Minorea (Severus, Epist. ad omnem Ecclesiam, § 3; apud August., vol. vil. 1146, in Append.).

We have said that the belief in the diseorery of St. Stephen's relics soon spreal widely. Besioes Augustine, of whom we have alrealy speken, and to whom we shall recur presently, e may mention Chryaippus, a priest of the ehureh of Jerusalem, livi coutiny. l'ho Gr. ciii. 500 ) Chrysiplus, a where, in a lig his vision, and about the same panegyric of di.covery of th lxaxy. 461). T the manifentati at Jerusalem in li. 877); aud spenks of the Lucian's narrat de Jiris Illust 1080 sqq .).

We now retı book (the tweut writen mpare 426, he tells us been wrought near Hipipo (c. 8 a memaria or orat Bbout A.D. 425 it would applear, relics of the ma seems to have b cecasion (Serm. aeding one whe the church eree Augustine's to b tro ladies to hi are the bearers of your Holiness kn ought to honour done " (Epist. 21
Besides the me cifies Aquae Tibil and Cirta, Sinita Calama, where I these places, an as at Hippo, we Augustine remark has mentioned man over many, which "plarimi conficien not only in the Czalis aliso, a tow were doue. The intimate friend of : written, De Mfiracu in two books, whic the serenth volume One more examp it was made the oc, Augustine, the cast Ciritato Dci, xxii. 8 1881). These were lady at Caesarea in mother's curse ha shaking of their lin came at lunt in $t$ sbout fifteen days daily visited the $m$ whilo praying on Ea suddenty healed. 0 is his sermon, embo Psulus (S. rm. 322, s situter was restored Obviously, however, bave slready said, of the eotinin of h shook, and a which seventyhealth. The earried to Jerruit. Stephen hal the relics beipg triunslation was Dee. 26 ( 7 Kal. er, on Aug. 3 to define aceuthis legend, still f the relics, real that this was in the story. 1 presently see, II book of the years after the happlened, refers een wrought by com lalestine to events are taken ediately succeedons supposeil to y readily allow; is than to eredit on and an intense of these visions the finding of a story makes out. - to lay to the $I_{5}$ cenceived aed or to aceept the Much of these, he like, we may liments-a story elling.
1, would be; we ght up. Relim dispersed; ; snd the time might marvels. Thus, us and Palladia, ; just one where line of stroag ell produce the

We find from the A.D. 415 , he was return journey to Augustiue ia 175, § 1; vol. ii ons of the reilis ad oltained from is, de litiris Mlus.The history by known was tbea iil for $S$ pain with led on the island that the Geths it weuld harrdy ulther, he settled having intrusted linorca (Severus, ; apud August., n the d!scovery of widely. Besinees alreaids spoken, resently, $\because$ e mas of the church of

STEPIIEN, ST.

Jerusalem, living atbout the mildle of the 5 th cuutury. Photius (Billiotheca, cod. 171; Patiod Gir. ciii. 500 ) say.s that he had read a work of Chrysiplus, a panegyric of Theodore the martyr, where, iu a digression, he speaks of lucian and his ision, and the consequent discevery. At panegyric of St. Stephen of Seleucin wrote a di.envery of the relics (Orat. $41 ;$ Patrol. Gr. Isxxv. 461). The Clironicle of Idatins mentions the manife, tation (martyr Stcphanus reveletulu') at Jerusalem iu the episcopate of John (Patiol. i. 877); nud the Chronicle of Mareellinus gleaks, of the diseovery of the relics and of Lucian's narrative (ib. 923: see also Gennadius, $d e$ liris Illustribus, $39,46,47$; Patrol. Iviii.
1080 sqq.). 1080 smq .).
We now return to Augustine. In the last book (the twenty-second) of the Do Co Civitute Doi, writen apparently towards the close of A.D. 426, he tells us of numerous miracles that had been wrought hy the help of the relics in and near Hiplo (e. $8, $ 810-22$, vol. vii. 106\%), where a memeria or oratory of St. Stephen had heeu built gbout A.D. 425 (ibid. $$ 20$ ), in commemoration, it woull appear, of the arrizal in Africi of freesh relics of the martyr A sermon of Augustiae's seems to have been le:ivered specially for this oceasion (Serm. 317, vil. v. 1870), and the sucaeding oue whia the relies were deposited in the chareh erected for them. In a letter of Aurustine's to hishop Quintilian, commending are the bearers of relics of St. Stephen, "which gour Holiness knows in what befitting way you ought to honeurr, eveu as we ourselves have dune" (Epist. 212, vol. ii. 1194).
Desides the memoria at Hippo, Augustine spedifes Aquae Thililitauae, a place lietween Hipro and Cirta, Sinita, a town near Hippo, and Calams, where Possidius was bishop. At all these places, and at others near, as well as at Hippe, were memoriae of St. Stephen. Augustine remarks (ibid. § 20 ) that though he has meutioned many miracles, he has also passeel orer many, which, were they all to be given, "plurimi conficiendi sunt libri." He adds that not enly in the country round Hippo, but at Czalis alse, a town near Utica, mnuy wonders rere done. The bishop of Uzalis, Erodius, an intimate friend of Angustine, enused a work to be writen, De Afiracullis $S$. Stephani Protomartyris, in two books, which is given in the Appendix to the serenth velume of Augustine (eol. 1161 sq .)
One more example may be aided, secing that it wss made the oceasion of se veral sermons by Cuypustine, the case of Paulus and Pulladia (de Ciritate ${ }^{1}$ Doi, xxii. 8.22 ; Serm. $320-324$, vol. v.
1881 ${ }^{1881)}$ ). These were two gut of ten children of a lady at Cuesarea in Cappantocia, all of whom their mother's curse had afflicted with a terrible shakiag of their limbs shakiag of their limbs. The two above-named came at came at last in their wanderings to Hippo, goout tifteun about tifteen days before Enster. Here they daily visited the memoria of St. Stephen daily visited the memoria of st. Stephen, and while praying on Easter morning, the youth was while prraying on Easter morning, the youth was widdeniy healled. On Enster Tuestlay Augustine in his sernuon, embedied the whole deppoultimn ot Paulus ( $\mathbb{S} r \mathrm{~m}$. 322, supra), and on that day the fitter was restored as the brother hal been. Oblyously, however, the above admits, ns we bare alrealy seid bave already said, of a rery simple explanation,

STEPIIEN, ST.
withnut recourae being had to the theory of mirarlex properly se called.
Ansther place where the cuitus of St. Stephen early 1 irerailed was Ancona. Augustine relates (Serm 323, vol. v. 1884) that at the inartyilom that hal rohounded certan man picked up a stone elbow, A This manded after striking the martyr's at Ancena, it was reveas a sad to li, and, onee being deporit the stone tovealed to him that he shoulid deponit the stone there, which he did, and thenceplace. This is ment. Stephen existed in that (Dial. lih. i. 5is mentiened by Gregory the Great Into inte; Iatrol. $1 \times x$ vii. 177), enter at length, but we shand not worth while to ing notice length, but we shall give them a passing notice. A translation oi'st. Step hen's bedy by Jerualem to Constantinople is mentioned by Nicephorus Callistus (Ilist. Eicles. xiv. 9; Patrol. ©ir. exlvi. 1084) as taking place in the reigu of Constantine. This, of course, is nt pariance with the story of Lucian. Theolorus Lector (Ilist. Eeves. ii. 64; Patru.t. Gr. $1 \times x \times x$ i. ${ }^{215}$ ) also speaks of a translation to Constantinople, luut puts it in the reign of Theodosius il on a certaiu September 21. The story of the translation, with much the same details as that tull told by Nieejhorus, is given in a writing parperting to be a trauslation into Latin by Anastasius Bibliothecarius, and sent by him with au accompanying letter to Landuleus, bishop of Capua (Augustine, vol. vii. 1137 sqq.).
From this we gither that Capua, too, elaimed to possess relies of St. Stephen. In this narrar tive the translation to Constantinople is referred to the episcopate of bishop John. In the Murtyrolo jium Romunum is recorded, under May 7, a translatiou of the body of St.'Stephen from Constantinople to Rome in the pontificate of Pelngius, when it was leid in the sepulchre of St. Laurence. Even Baronius, however (not. in b.c.), gives up this legend.

To draw illustrations from other distriets than those we have alrendy cited, we find Gregery of Tours speaking of the relics of St. Stephen taken into Gaul(Hist. Franc. i. 30; De Gloria Martyrum i. 34; Putroh. Ixxi. 177, 734). For the story of the Atrican bishop Gauliosus fleeing from the persecution of the Vandal king Geaseric to Naples, and of the relics of St. Stephen taken with him, see Baronius (not. ad Slart. Siom. Aug. 3, Nev. 28). We may note in conclusion before leaving this part of our sulject, that the empress Eulocin, wife of Theodosius II., built a church just outside Jerusalem, on the scene of St. Stephen's martyrdom, and was herself interred there on her death in A.D. 461 (see e.f. Nicepherus Callistus, Hist. Eccles. xiv. 50 ; P'atro. Patrol. Gir. exlvi. 1240).
2. Festitals.-The discovery of the relics in Palestine, whatever explanation we may give of the matter, soon caused the commemeration of St. Stephen to be widely observed as a festival of high importance. Still, prior to the date of that event, we have definite traces of the existence of a festival of St. Stephen. Thus we have two two sermens for the festival by Gregory of Nrssa ( ${ }^{\text {b. c. cirra A.D. } 346 \text { ), in which, as well as in that }}$ next to be meutioned, we are told that it fell on the the day after Christmas (Patrol. Gr. xlvi. 701, [^169]721). We nlso have a sermon for the day by Asterius, bishop of Amasen in Pontus, which we may safely refer to a date prios to A.D. 415 (Ilom. 12; Patrol. Gr. xl. 338). Indeed the absence from the above three sermons of aay allusions to the discovery in Palestiue would of itself he evidence. The homilies, however, for the festival of St. Stephen, once attributed to Chrysistom, are clearly spurious (vol. viii. 501 , 699 ; xii. $929,931,933$, ed. Migne).

To the above may, we think, be added the instance mentioned by Augustine (supra) of the ancient memoriz of St. Stephen at Ancona. If Augustine honestly believed tbat this had been built at a period not long subsequent to the martyrdom, we may fairly nequiesse in at any rate sufficient antiquity to carry it back to is time before A.D. 415. The reference to the festival of St. Stephen in the Apostolical Constitutions (viii. 33) wonld be of great importance, it only we had mere detinite knowledge of the date of the work. In the passage cited, it is ordered by Peter nnd Paal that slaves are to rest on certain great festivals, besides which are the days of the apostles and of Stephen and other martyrs unspecified.

It may at once be allowed. however, that these isolated notices do not suffice to establish the existence of a festival observed by the church at large, and thus we record its absence from the Roman calendar of Bucherius, a docuaneat of about the middle of the 4th century. When, however, we pass to the period after A.D. 415, we soon find all ancient calendars, martyrologies, and liturgies agreeing in containing a commemorution or commemorations of St. Stephen. The days specinlly associated with him nre Dec. 26 and Aug. 3. The first is certainly the commemorration of the martyrdom, both because we have it mentioned in writings prior to the date of the finding of the relics, and because of the constancy with which it is so noted in ancient authorities. On the other hand, one test of Lucian's narrative gives Dec. 26 as the date of the translation, the other referring it to Aug. 3. Probably the latter date really commemorates the consecration of some church in honour of St. Stephen, or the like event, but, as we shall presently see, it is generally associated with the translation.
The festival of Dec. 26 is recorded in the Roman calendnr of Polemeus Silvius of A.D. 448 (Patrol. xiii. 688), and in the Calendarium Carthaginense, which is probably only alightly subsequent to A.D. 484 (ib. 1228). It is not necessary to give an extended list of ancient authorities recognising the featival; it may suthice to wention the Mart. Hieronymi as edited by D'Achéry from the Corbey MS. (Patrol. xxx. 43i), the Mart. Gellonense (D'Acherry, Spicilegnum, xiii. 390), the Gelasian (Putrol. Ixxiv. 1309), the Gregorian (ib. $1 \times x$ viii. 33), nad Ambrosian (Pumelius, Lituryg. Latt. i. 306) Sacramentaries, the Mozarabie Missal, the Lectionarium Luxoviense, the GothicoGallic Missnl, and others. To the Leonine Sacramentary we shall refer at length below. Among the fathers who have written homilies tor the day are Maximus of Turin ${ }^{\circ}$ (Hoin. 64,

- This sermon is definitely ascribed to Asterius by Photius (Bibliotheca, cod. 271 ; Potrcl. Gr. civ. 204). Photius (Ribinotheca, cw. other sermous attributed to Serm. 85 ; Patrol. 1vii. 379, 701) and Fulgentlus of Ruspe (Serm. 3; Patrol. lxv. 729). Again, Aug. 3 is given as the date of commemoration of the discovery of the relics, e.g. in the Murt. Corbeiense (supra), the Martyrologies of Lede (Patrol. xciv. 996), Rabnnus Maurus (i), cx. 1160), Wnadalbert (ib. cxxi. 606), Notker (ib, cxxsi. 1131), &c., and in one text of Lucian's anrrative. Besides the above-mentioned two days, the Mart. Corbwiense nlso cites a commemor. ration at Jerusalem on Jau. 2, and at Antioch the " natalis reliquiarum Stephnini protomartyris et diaconi," on Aug. 2. It is not improbable that in this last case Antioch is an error for Ancona, for several martyrologies (e.g. Bede, supra), while naming Aatioch, udid the story of the stone which struck St. Stephen's min, mentioned by us above. Also Ang. 2 is perhaps an error for Aug. 3, on which day the refereuce occurs in Bede, Rabanus Maurus, &c.

It is now necessary to enter into detnils in connexion with one or two liturgical monuments. The Leonine Sacramentary makes no mention of St. Steplien among its December festivnls, though it recognises there the festivals of 'St John and the Innocents. In August, hewever, we have the heading "iv, nonas Augusti. Natale Sancti Stephani in coemeterio Callisti via Appis," after which follow no less than nine masses for a festival of St. Stephen (Patrol. 1v. 91). Muratori, connecting the hending with the masses, considered that the io. nonas was an error for iii. nonas, but there is no doubt that the Stephen mentioned in the healing is Stephen hishop of Rome (ob. 4.d. 257), for in the Depositio Episcon porum (i.e. of Rome), which stands at the liead of the calendar of Bucherins, we have " ir . nodas Augusti Stephani in Callisti" (Bucherius. de Doctrina Temporum, p. 267). Also the Mart. Coibeicnsc gives under the snme date, "Romss in coemeterio Calisti Sancti Stephani martyris," and the Mart. Gellonense, "Romin Stephani episcopi et martyris." In like mannex, too, the Gregorian Sacramentary gives a mnss for the day (Patrol. Ixxviii. 128). While, however, there can be no doubt as to the reference in the heading in the Laonine Sacramentary, the inasses have direct reference to the protomartyr, except the eighth, which has no iudividual reference 8 all. It is important to note that the Preface in the seventh mass detinitely places the festival of St. Strphen on the day after Christmas, shewing clearly that this mass, and therefore probably some at any rate of the others, nre in their wroag place here, and should be transferred to December. It may be alded that several of the prayers in these masses occur in the Gelasion and Gregorian Sacramentaries under Dec. 26. The ninth of the Leonine intsses refers to the dedication of a church in honour of St. Stepher and the Ballerini (not. in loc.) suggests that the reference may be to the church on the Mons Cielius, dedicated by pope Simplicius (ob, A.D. 483). Possibly this mass properly belongs to Aug. 3.

In Mabillon's Lectionarium Luxoviense, a lection is provided for the festival of St. Steplien, ad Maxtmus, bot relogated to the appendix as epurions one for the festival of St. Stephen and the other fot the Octave (Sermin, 29, 31, in Appcad.; Patrol, IrL 905, 913).

matutinum, Jerem estract from a ser the lections are Ac xiii. 11 (Petrol. Gnllic Missal is a called praefatio prayer) of nansua of the worshipper the solemnity whi we may see obvion of the festival (ib.

In the Mozarabi is not a specinl festival of st. Cle for the epistle and vi. 1-viii. 4 (on x $x i i i .1-39$ (l'utrol
In the Greek el Stephen is now con festival of the 11 the Blessed Virgin in the Menaca sl " holy protomartyr Lival of the transla notices for these day pretized by l'apebi for May, vol. i., ar ZTéфavol $\mu$ ópos xxxix.). The epist the Greek church a and Matt, xxi. 33-4
In the calendars lished by Assemani Dec, 26 is the comm and Aug. 2 that of Jan. 7 is also $n$ com sppareutly of the m lt will be observed which the Armeniar tians, celebrate th [Caristmas.]
In the caleadars churches, published day for the comm though the Coptic ca ing of the bones of Comm. p. 403). T already said, is obvi both calendara hne specislly defined in "martyrdem of Ste] 14 is yet another, bu only (ib, 395).
3. Ajocryphal Lit st Rome in A.D. 49 Gelasins, condemned "Revelatio quac apr lis. 178).
In addition to $w$ reference should be festival of St. Steph pour servir à l'Histoir 1, 503. The Acta Sa

[^170]
STEPHEN, ST.

Fulgentlus 9). Agnin, memoration the Murt. ies of Bede rus (i), cx. Notker (is. of Lacian's ationel two a commemo. nt Autioch cotomartyris improisable an error fos ; (e.y. Bede, the story of s arm, menperhap he referencs to details in monaments. 0 mention of er festivals, tivals of St ust, however, gusti. Xitale ti via Appia," masses for . 91). \lurathe masses, as error for $t$ the Stephen ten bishop of rositio Episcoat the head ve "ir. nonas Bucherius, de se the Mart. late, "Romas ni martyris," Stephani epimex, toe, the mass for the ile, hewever, ference in the ry, the masses nartyr, except al reference st the Preface in the festival of tmas, shewing efore prebabiy , are in their trausferred to several of the I the Gelasiex nder Dec. 26 . refers to the of St. Stephen, gests that the on the Mons licius (b. a, D. riy belongs to viense, a lection 3t. Stephen, od idix as spurioas and the other to Id.; Patrol. 1+L matutinum, Jereminh xvil. 7-18, followed by an extract from a sermon of Augustine. At mass, the lections nre Acts vi. $1-$ vii. 2 ; Matt. $x$ vii. 23 xviii. 11 (Pctrol. Ixxii. 174). In the GothicoGallic Missal is a contestatio or preface (the socalled praefutio being here the priest's first prayer) of unusual length, by whieh the minds of the worshipjers were to be better fitted for the solemnity which was to follow. In thls fact we may see obvious evidence of the inloortance of the festival (ib. 230).
In the Mezarabic Missal, the prephetic lection is not a special one, but serves also for the festival of St. Clement, Wisdom ir. 7-15; and for the episistle and gospel are reen. ${ }^{7}$ tirely Acts vi. 1 -viii. 4 (omitting vii. $2-51$ ) and Matt. xriii. 1-39 ( ${ }^{\prime}$ at ${ }^{2}$ ot. lxxxv. 190).
Io the Gireek church, the martyrdom of St. Stephen is now commemorated on Dec. 27, the festival of the previous day commemorating the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph. The heading in the SHeraea speaks of St. Stephen as the "hely protomartyr and arehdeacon." The fesciral of the translation is held on Aug. 2. The notices for these diys in the metrienl Ephemerides pretired by Papebroch to the Acta Sanctorum for May, vol. i., are respectively cikd do daiveos sxxix.). The epistle nind gospel for Dec. 27 in the Greek chureh are respectively Heb. ii. 11-18 and Matt, xxi. 33-43.

In the calendars of the Armenian church, published by Assemani (Bibl. Or. iii. 1. 645 sqq .), Dec. 26 is the cemmemoration of the martyrdom, and Aug. 2 that of the discovery of the relics. Jan. 7 is also $n$ cemmemoration of St . Stephen, appareutly of the martyrdon, which thus comes, It will be observed, on the day after that on which the Armenians at:ll, alone among Christians, celebrate the Nativity of our Lord. [Cimistmas.]
In the calendnrs of the Coptic and Ethiopic churches, published by Ludolf, Dec. 27 is the day for the commemeration of St. Stephen, though the Coptic colendar adds the note "Find$\operatorname{lng}$ of the bones of Stephen" (ad, Hist. Acth. Coma. p. 403). This, bowever, as we have ${ }^{8}$ lready said, is ebviously wrong. On Sept. 12, beth calendars hare another commemoration, specially defined in the Coptie calondar as the "martyrdom of Stephen" (ib. 391). On Oct. 14 is yet another, but in the Ethiopie celcndar only (iio. 395).
3. Apocryphal Literature.-The council held at Rome in A.D. 494, under the episcopate of Gelasins, condemned emong other boeks a "Revelatio quae appellatur Stephani" (Patrol. lix. 178).

In addition to worke cited in this article, reference should be made for the legend and festiral of St. Stephen to Tillemont, Mémoircs potr servir à l'Histuire Ecclesiastique, vol. ii. pp. 1, 503. The Acta Sanctorum of the Bollandists ${ }^{4}$ It is s!l the more probable that this vartation from oriunary use is simpty an error, because in the C'alendar of the coptic Church, pubishhed by Mr. Malan, the entry Cor Septeniber 12 is "Remuval of bones of Stephen, First of Martyrs and First of Deacuns; " and that for December 27, "Martyrdom of the holy Apostle stephea, . . . ""

STICHARION
1933 do not avail us here, not harlng get reached beyond the end of October.
[R. S.]

STERCATIUS, July 24, martyr at Merila with his brother Antinogenus (Miart. Usuard., Hicron.).  [c. H.]

STICEARION or STOICHAEION ( $\sigma \tau_{i} \chi^{d-}$ prov, $\sigma \tau 0<x$ ápıov). This vestment is simply the equivalent in the Eastern church of the alb [ALB] of the Western church. Before citing aoy references as to its use, we must tirst speak breetly as to the word itself. The etymology most be considered doubtful. Gomer (Luelulo yion. p. 110) derives it from $\sigma \tau i x 0 s_{\text {, "ab une }}$ tuasi linene ortine," from the long uutroken sweep of the dress ("recta et longum protensa"). Ducange (Glossurium Graecum, s. v.) forms it from a werd $\sigma \tau x l^{\prime}{ }^{2}$, a tunic. There is no reason to donbt the bona-fide existence of this latter werd, for we find in Hesychius, $\alpha_{B} B_{0} \lambda_{o \nu}$, ovoma orixeloo, and there are perhaps traces of a Latin word stica (see Ducauge, s. v.) in the same sense; still it briugs us no nenrer the derivation. G. J. Voss (de lituis Sermonis, lib, iii. c. 50) suggests that stion is for sticta, giving us the notion of a $\chi$ ит $\dot{\omega} \nu$ катd $\sigma \tau i к \tau o \mathrm{r}$. He callis attention in suppert of this, to the fact that the sticharia of bishops are waved in bands. Altheugh the fact is certainly so, the roundabout theory of derivation must be pronounced absurd. Indeed it does not seem unlikely that stica may have arisen as a shortened ferm of sticharion. It is possible, however, tiat the sticharion may have received its uame from the bands or line upen it.
As in the case of mast other ceclesiastical vestmenta, the word evidently represents in the first instauce a dress cf ordinary life. One of the charges brought agninst Athanasius was that he hed required the Egyptians to furnish contributiens of linen sticharia (Apol. contra Arienos, e. 60 ; Patrol. Gr. xxv. 358). As, in describing this incidcnt, Sozomen speaks of $\chi_{\iota} \tau \omega \nu\left(\omega \nu \lambda_{\nu} \omega \omega\right.$ ¢ópov (Hist. Ecoles. ii. 22), nad Secrates (Hist. Ecolce. i. 27) of $\lambda_{i \nu} \nu \bar{\eta} \nu \sigma \theta \hat{\eta} \tau a$, we may feel pretty certain that we are net dening here with ecelesiastical vestments properly so called. The same may be said of the references to sticharia in the will of Gregory of Nazianzum, who bequenths $\pi \alpha \lambda \lambda \iota a \beta^{\prime}$, and to the "notarius," Elaphius a similar gift (Patrol, Gr. xxxvii. 293). See alao Palladius (Hish. Lausiaca, e. 136; Patrol. Gr. xxxir. 1235), where Athanasius, on an attempt to apprehend him, catches up a sticharion and a Buppiov and flees in the dead of night.

We must refes now to the worl in ita ecclesiastical sense. Here we find it for thac tunic ot bishops, riests, and deacons, as well as for subdeacons nnd for monks. The eurliest refereuce with which we are acquaniated, other than these in a Liturgy the date of the several parta of which must be considered doubtful, is to be found in Germnnus, patriarch of Conatantinople, enrly in the eighth century. His account 12 , "And first the sticharion, being white, setteth forth the aplenlour of the Godhead and the glorious citizenship of the priest (roo $i_{\text {eféas }}$ ). The atripea ( $\lambda$ opi(a) of the sticharion which are on the sleceve ( $\tau \dot{d} \hat{E} \nu \tau \hat{\eta} \chi \chi \in \rho)$ ), do set forth the bonds of Christ

1934

STICHERA
across，the blocd which flewed from the aide of Chriat on the eross＂（Hist．Eecles．et Mystica Theuria ；Patrol．Gr．xeviii，394）．＂

We gather from all this that the vestment was origimally of white linen；though it is aow often made of cestly materials，and in Lent （except on the Anandiation，Palm Sundag，and Easter Eve）puple sticharia are worn（Corlinus Curopalata，do Officiis，c． 9 ，in fin．）．This is of course meant in sign of neourning．

The bunds spoken of by Germanus may be fllustrated by those found in enrly instances of vestments in the West［see e．g．Dalmatic］．It will have been neticed that Germanns referred te the sticharion withont special reference to any particular order．The wayy bands nre now， however，peruliar to the sti harit of bisheps． For another kind of ornamentation see Gam－ madia．
the Liturgy of St．Chrysestom，at its begin－ ning，gives the formulae to be used by priest and deacon en assuming the sticharion（Gonr，p．5is）． The same bame，too，is given to the garment put on the subleacon at his ordination（ib，2＋4）． Accerling to Goar，however（p．246，n．6），this is a tighter and sherter garment than that ordinarily se called．Fer an instance of the use of the term for the dress of monks，see ib．p． 484 ． Among the Syriac churches the vestment is known as koutino，a mere cerruption of रirúviay （Renaudet，Lit．Or．Coll．vol．ii．54，ed．1847）． Among Coptic Christians it is known as jabut，or tumint，the latter obviously formed from the shove Greek word（ib．vel．i．161）．See for further notices Ducange＇s Glossarium，a．v．：and Saicer＇s Thesaurus，s．v．
［R．S．］
STICHERA（ $\sigma \tau i x \eta \rho \alpha)$ ．（1）Verses com－ posed by ecclesiastical authority，and fermiag part of the Greek liturgical offices．（Goar， Eucholog．pp．32，206．）$\sigma \tau i \chi \eta \rho a ̀ ~ \pi \rho о \sigma \dot{\jmath} \mu о \imath \alpha$ were versicles composed of an equal number of syllables，so that they could be sung cenveniently to the same tone．
（2）Stichera Biblia was a name given to certain books of the Old Testament，iu consequence of their metrical or poetical character，viz．Job， Psalms，Proverbs，Ecclesiastes，Canticles．（Greg． Naz．quoted by Ducange，s．v．）
［F．E．W．］
STOLE（orarium，stola；inpdpiov， $\mathrm{emirpa-}^{2}$

 does not occur，in its technical sense，ns the title of a certain oraamental Christinn vestment，till＇ after our period of the first eight centuries，but it will be convenient to include hore under this hend our notices of the various ornaments which，under whatever name known，may be grouped together as being but varieties of the stme general type． Before doing this，however，we shall briefly rennark on the uses of the word stole（ $\sigma$ тo八h， gtolk）itself，in its earlter non－technienl meanings， In classical Greek，$\sigma$ oo $\lambda \bar{j}$ is moast eften found in the sense of garb or equipment（see e．g．Hero－ also，though less frequently，with the mean＇$g$ of as article of clotbing，a siagle garment．This －Ducange（Gloss．Graec．s．v．）speaks erroneonsly of Germanus referring merely to the sticharion of deacons．

STOTE

twofold use obtains also in the LXX．Here $\sigma \tau 0 \lambda \dot{\eta}$ staads fur a variety of Hebrew words，but mest frequently it is used tor the priestly nod high－priestly garments，beth in the singulur for the whote set of vestments（and that though the e．7．Evol．xxvlii．2， 3 ；xxix．21，29，\＆c．），and is the plaral，where reference is made to the com－ poneat parts（e．！）Exod，$x \times$ viii，4）．The collec－ tive sense of $\sigma$ rody is not contined to the prieatly garb，though this is the commonest use of it（see e．f．Deut．xsii．5，бто入ो $\quad$ 子uvakeía；Jer．lii．27，
 We may adil that $\sigma$ rod $\hat{y}$ is the word used for the robe jint on Joseph by Pharaoh（（ien．xli．+2 ）， for the＂change of raiment＂given by loseph to his brethren，and that it twied occurs as the translation of cphod，Divit being the wearel（a） Sam．vi．I4；I Chroa．xv．27）．The word will doubtless carry with it ns a rule the notion of a long，stately dress，as may be interred from the choice of it to represent the ftowing priestly gat－ meats，though of course it is not meant to injuly that the word per se will mean the priestly garb．Such is markelly its New Testameat use （see e．g．Mark xii．38；Luke xx． 46 ［of seribes leving to walk about $\boldsymbol{\epsilon} \boldsymbol{\nu}$ arodais］；Luke xy． 22 ［where it is the＂best robe＂brought forth for the prolignl］，alse Mark xvi．5；Rev．vi．I1，\＆es）， and atso that leand in classical Latin，to which we shall presently refer．

In ecclestastical Greek，the word，as applied to the garb of Christian priest hood，arcurs exceed－ ingly rarely．${ }^{\text {a }}$ Theodoret（Fist．Eccles．ii．27） tells of Constantine＇s gift of a iepà $\sigma$ тo入h to Macarius，bishop of Jerusalem，where one would suppese the werd to be used much in its old classienl meaning．Germanus，patriarch of Con－ stantinople early in the 8th century，speaks of ＇Aapóv（IIst．Eccles．et Mystica Contemplatio； Patr．Gr．xeviii．394）．This，it cannet be douhted， is to be taken of the phelunion，the vestmeut par excellence；indeed it may be noter that the orarium is afterwards mentioned and described， as we shall shew belew．Again，in the still ex－ tant letter of the patriareh Theodosius of Jeru－ salem to Ignatius of Constantinople，at the time of the Fourth General Council of Constantinaple （ $\mathrm{A}, \mathrm{D} .869$ ），when a present of the supposed $\pi 0 \delta \eta \rho \eta s, k \pi \omega \mu / s$ and $\mu i \tau \rho a$ of St．James is sent to the latter，they are greaped under the collew cilia，v．1029）．

In classical Latin，the stola was the chara－ teristic dress of a Roman matron，as the toga of a citizen．${ }^{\text {b }}$ It came dewn to the feet，ad talos stola demissa（Herat．Sat．i．2．99），and wis generally edged with a kind of flouace（institi）． The use of stolu in the Vulgate version of the Old Testament is not of ceurse specific，tika this， but it generally carries with it a notion of stateliness．In the collective sense of the Greek word tor the set of priestly vestmeats，it does not seem to occur．In the Vulgate version of －Hefele（Beiträge，1t．185）speaks of only two instanos as to be feund in the writers of the first eight centuries．
－Very rarely we find the word used in connexim with men，e．g．of the priests of Isis（A puleius，Metam． zh 24）．
the New Testamen tion of $\sigma \tau 0 \lambda$ h．
The technical a． occur befere the $9 t$ current name of $t$ centuries．Early seen，the new na Thus Rabanus Mad speaks of the＂oraz stelam vocent＂（de 307）．Only n few of the oramment as orarium altogether cv．1096）．In Wata restuseats，howeve century，the name Rebus Eccl．2t；$P_{0}$ this，moreever，the with the new．Th bishep of Soissons proper stock of vest one item is＂oraria （stat．7，Patrol．exx once wrongly ascrib written in the 10th with the expression， Div．Off． 39 ；Patro former were rather familiar name．Wri the 12th centiry，II the old word，＂stel tur＂（Gemma Ansim 695）．
It may now be aske with its long－establis ing robe，sheull have so totally different a like ornament which this question De ver been given．It has border was the only su sola，asd thus inherit view of Durancius（ $R$ after stating that th dress ceming down to quam albs coepit porta With this，Boek（Lit alters，i．437）agrees． sere，that this theory bable．Equally little d Christ．p．215）commen from the use of atola especially associated w robe，and that perha the 8th century＂the [^171]LXX. I lere w words, but priestly nad singular for t though the -7ִ? sc.), and in to the coin-

The colleco the priently use of it (see ; Jer. hii. 27 Barach v .1 ), 1 used for the (ien. xli. 4?), by Joseph to xecurs as the the wearer (2 he word will ne notinn of a red from the ! pricstly garenat to inply the priestly restanient ase H [of scribes Luke xv. 22 ght forth for v. vi. 11, \&c.), tin, to which , as applied to w:curs exceedEccles. ii. 27, epd $\sigma \tau 0 \lambda \lambda$ to ere one would tch in its old riarch of Conury, speaks of à $\tau \partial \nu \quad \pi o \delta i t p m$ Contemplatio; ot be doubted, vestmeat par ted that the and described, $n$ the still esosius of Jernle, at the time Constantinople the supposed James is seat der the collewIardouin, Conn is the characas the toga of feet, ad tulos 99), and mas unce (instit 1 ). version of the eific, like this, t a notion of e of the Greek ments, it does fate version of the New Tentament, stola is always the transla tion of $\sigma$ to $\lambda$.
The technical use of stola for a stole does not oceur before the 9 th century, ${ }^{\circ}$ orariun being the current amme of that ornament in the preceding centuries. Early in the 9th century, it would seem, the new name began to come iato use. Thus Rabanus Maurus, writing about A.D. 820 , epeaks of the "orarium . . . . licet hoe quidam stelam vocent " (de Inst. Cler. i. 19; I'atrol. cvii. 307). Only a few years later, Amalurius speaks of the oroament as stok, and ignores the word orarium altogether (de Eccl. Off. ii. 20; I'atrol. ov. 1096). In Walafrid Strabo's list of Christian vestments, however, in the middle of the $9 t h$ centurg, the name orarium nlone is used (de Rebus Eccl. 24; Patrol. exiv. 952). Loag after this, moreover, the old name survived side by side with the new. Thas, in a statute of Kiculfus, bishop of Soissous (ob. A.D. 902), enjoining a proper stock of vestments for priest and altar, one item is "oraria, id est stolae duae nitidae" (stat. 7, Patrol. exxxi. 17). Agnin, in a work once wrongly aseribed to Alcuin, hut evilently written in the 10 th or 1 ith century, we mect with the expression, "orarium, id est stola" ( $d_{e}$ Din. Off. 39; Patrol. ci. 1242), as though the former were rather a teehnical, the latter a Camilinr name. Writing as late as the middlle of the I2th centiry, Ilonorius of Autun till the Loth century, Honorius of Autun still uses the old woid, "stola, quae et orarium dicitur" (Gemma Anince, 695).

It may now be asked why such a word as stola, with its long-established meaning of a full flowing robe, should have been chosen to represent so totully different a thing as the narrow ribandlike ornament which we know as a "stole." To this question no very satisfactory answer has been given. It has been suggested that the border was the only surviving element of the old tola, and thas inherited its name. T'bis is the vies of Duranius (Rut. Div. Off. iii. 5, 6), who, sfter stating that the stola was once a white dress coming down to the feet, adds, "sed postquam alba enepit portari, mutata est in torquem." With this, Bock (Liturg. Gewänder des Miltelditers, i. 437) agrees. It must be confèssed, howerer, that this theory does not seem at all protable. Equally little does Marriott's view (Vest. Cirist. p. 215) commend itself to our mind, that from the use of stola in the Vulgate it became expecially associated with the idea of a priestly robe, and that perhaps the orarium, being in the 8th centary "the special vestinent of Chris-

[^172] "pro humiliatione." Agaln, the word etola accure in the thenufcal sense in the Gregortan Sacramentory, hat wuch modified from this has reached us is certainily too being given to this the original to allow of any weight ring given to this instance in the sbisence of any tlan priesthood," gradunlly acquired tho name of the "stola," as though the vestment par earcellence. It does not, however, seem to us that stulu, as used in the Vulgate, has any sjecind priestly connexion; and further, it is rather a large assumption that the orurium, and not the planeta, should be considered the typical Christian restment.

Esen after slola had assumed the specia! meaning of orarium, the old meaning was still retained side by side therewith. Thus, e. g. Honorius ot Autun (op. cit. 216) spenks of the "best robe" of the prodigal's father as prima stola. Very rarely we find stola and oruriun spoken of together, the former presumably in its enrly sense-"stelam cunt orario" (rita is Livini, c. 14; in D'Achéry and Matillon's Acta Sanctorum Urdinis Benedikti, saec. 2, p455 ).
We must now discuss the history of the earlier word orarium ; and here, as with stola, the technical meaning is preceded by a nou-technical one Of this we have given one or twe instances under the separate article, to shew that the nun-techneal sense still, as it were, overlapped the however, carry Christian writers. We must now, further. Much back our exnmination a stage orarium is from the most probable derivation of some indeed very far-fe face, but several others, some from the Latin anded, have been proposed, Salmatius (infru) derives some from the Greek. sense of horder "crives it from ora, in the asseritur," much, lorum quod ad oram vestis the stola, Anothe same in fact as the instita of orare, seeing Another Latin derivation is from during prayer the stole is nlways to be worn canons of the Fabanus Maurus, and one of the derivs of the Fourth Council of Toledo (infri), derive, it from orure in the sense of praedicare, with reference to one of the special offices of the deacon. The advocates of a Greek etymology propose, some to derive it from \%oa, because by means of it "is indicated the time of the ditterent parts of the service," or because it is useful "ad ministrationem in horas; " others from woat $¢ \in(\nu$ because the deacon is leantified with it (!); aud others even from $\delta \rho d \omega$, because the sight of it shews whether it is the priest or the deacon who is ministering. A significant piece of evidence bearing on the question of the language is furnished ly the Etymologicum Mfagnum, s.v. фف́б $\sigma \omega \nu$, ф$\omega \sigma \sigma \omega \boldsymbol{\nu}$ ov (an Egyptian word, meaning a linen eloth), which is explained as $\sigma(\nu \delta \omega \nu$ able than any of these latter views is that first given, and we thus obtain the meaning of handkerchief, in the point of view of a primary use of wiping the face. Then, by a very natural extension, the word would become used for things lite the handkerchief, strictly so called, but without any reference to the function implied by the derivation. Thus in this latter stage it would cover pretty much the same ground as the English word herchief.

Our earliest examples are found in the Historiae Auqustae Scripiores. Trebellius Pollio quotes a letter of the emperor Gallienus (A.D. 260-268) to Claudius, who afterwards sueceeded him, in which he mentions the presents he had sent him. Among them we find "penulam [see

STOLF

Sarabtena ${ }^{\text {d }}$ quatuor" (Vita Claudii, c. 17). The next emperor, Aurelinn, was, as we are told by his biographer, Flavius Vopiscus, the first who gave oraria to the Roman people, "quibus uteretur populas ad favorem" (Vita Aurel. c. 48, whers see the notes of Casauboc and Salmasius). This appears to mean that the people conld by these indieate their applanse in the circus or theatre, harlng prevjously been in the habit of waving their togas. Thus they would naturally be worn over the other dress. Marriott justly cites in evidence here one of the sculptures on the Arch of Constantine, where a number of the attendants of the empror wear over their left shoulder a broal baud or scarf (Fest. Christ. plate iv.). When we find that the earliest pictures of the ecclesiastical orarium (ib. plates $x \times v i i i$. $x \times x$, $x \times x i$. ) are, on the whole, similar to the above, the inforence does not seem at all forced, that the Christian orarium, like the chasuble, the dalmatie, and other vestments, is but the old seeular ornament, modified and adapted to its new use. The technical Christian meaniag of the word then being thus formed, it speedily passed into Greek and Syriac; and indeed the enrliest instance we are able to cite of this technical use is from the canons of a Greek council. Doubtless relevant to this matter is the question of the pullia lino tima, which Sylvester, and afterwards Zosimus, is said to have commanded dencons to wear [Maniples], and the papal pallium [PALLLUM] is obviousiy but another special instance of the general ornament. So too in the East we have updptov, doubt, are but modifications of one primary idea.
We must now trace the history of the orarium as a ministerial garment. In the West our atarting point for such a history will be the canons of enrly Spanish councils of the 6 th and 7 th centuries, one of which furuished us with an important record in tracing the history of the chasuble [Planeta]. In the Eastern ehurch, however, the use of the orariunc ann be traced much further back. It is to be remarked, before ontering on this discussion, that the orarium, having been originally merely a handkerchief, even though at times of a choice and ornamental character (from which species of it, indeed, the oraritom, in the sense of stole, has sprung), still retnined its ordinary, as opposed to its ecclesiastical, meaning, even amongst Christians, long after ita ecelesiastical meaning had been formed. Of this we have already given acme examples [Orarium], but shall again here cite one or two instances, Ambrose uses the word orarium for the "napkin" with which the face of Lazarus was bound ( $d e$ excesst fratris Sutyri, ii. 78 ; Patrol. xvi. 1396). We find it in Augustine for the bandage which binds up a wounded eye (de Civ. Dei, xxii. 7 ; Patrol, xli. 765). Jerome couples it with sudarium (Epist. 52, ad Nepotianum, c. 9 ; vol. i. 264). The Christian poet Prudentius says of the martyrs Hemeterius and Celedonius, that they sent up to heaven, as it were horalds, the one his ring, the other his orarium-" hie sui det pignus oris e ut [^173]ferunt orarlum" (Peristeph. 1. 88; Patrol. $\mathbf{1 x}_{\mathbf{x}}$ 289 ; cited also by Greg. Turon, de Gloris Martyrum, i. 93; Patrol. $1 \times \times x$ i. 7 E 7). Indeed, nearly two hundred years after this ws may stiil cite an instince. The four orarit which Gregory the Great seads as a present to Constintinople, together with two camisise, are obriously merely handkerchiefs (E'pist, vii. 30; Patrol. 1xxvii. 887). We must new proceed to speak of the orarium as a ministerial veatment.

'I'he geaeral result yielded by the whole seriea of early allusions is that the orarian might be, and was to be, worn by orders down to that of deacon inclusive, but below the order of deacuad its use was prohibited. It thus becomes sperially associated with the order of deacons, as the plenets with that of priests. Our earliest reference is to be found in the eanons of the Council of Ladicea (e. A.D. 363), which forbade the use of the orarium to sub-deacens, readers, and siogers. The latter are not to wear a stole when they read or sing (cann. 22, 23 ; Labbe, i. 1500), Again, in a sermon onee attributed to Chrysostom, and which, though probably spurious, is not much later than his time, the writer speaks of the $\lambda$ eiroupyol tîs $\theta \in l a s$ deirauprias imitating the wings of tha angels with their $\lambda \in \pi+a l$ ied val, which are worn upon the left shoulder, the earliest trace of that which we afterwards find the universal custom (Purab. de Fil. Prodiga, vol. vii. 655). Much about the same time, Isidore of Pelusium speaks of the d $\theta$ óv $\eta$ with which the deacons minister in holy things (Epist. i. 136 ; Patrol. Gr. Ixxviii. 272). It is true that per se the word $\dot{0} \theta \delta \nu \eta$ might just as well bs a muniple, as a stole; but, in the first place, tha mani ${ }_{i}$ le, as the word is understood in the West, is unknown to the Eastern ehurch, and moreever in the preceding passage the $\dot{\sigma} \theta \delta v a i$ of the deacons are wern upon the shoulder. A very similar allusion to that of the Pseudo-Chrysostom is found in the account of Christian vestments by Germnnus, patriarch of Constantinople (l.c.), Here the word dodyn has been replaced by むopdpıov. We must notice, however, that whereas in Latin orarium means a stole, by whatsoever order worn, in Greek $\dot{\omega} \rho d \rho t o y$ menns the stole of a deacon, and emirpax $\boldsymbol{\eta}^{1} 10 \nu$ is applied to that of s priest or bishop.

We shall next call attention to a series of eonciliar decrees on the subject of the orarium, which, taken together, give us a pretty cemplete view of the state of the cass. In the first instauce, that of the Council of Orleans (A.D. 511), it is probable that the ordinary interpretation, which explains orarium in its nen-ecelesiastical sense, is correct, from the compang is .which orarium here finds itself. The use of orarium and tsangae [TSANGAE], a kind of boots, is forbidden to monks (can. 20; Labbe, iv. 1407). Ouy earliest definite instances are drawn, as in the case of the planeta, from Spain. The Second Council of Braga ordnined in A.D. 563 thst, inasmuch as the hablt had arisen among deacons of the province of wearing the orarium below the tunic, and consequently hiding it, so thsi they could not be distinguished from subdeacons, therefors for the future, "superposito scapulae (sicut decet) utadtur orarid" (cap, $9_{1}$ Labbe, v. 841). It is from the records of the Fourth Council of Toledo (A.D. 633) that wit obtain the greatest amount of information. On regulation passe clerics unjustly fresh synod reve net to be conside functions till the the exteranl ba hadeds of the bi priests, and deace A subsequent car blshopis ani prie wear two orarit. the lett shoulder (purmin), not orn (cann. 28, 40; Fenrth Council o at the celebratio should wear his should pass rou sheulilers, and tor Labbe, vii. 581). lonecent III. (de c. 54 ; Patrol. eex for disebedience is All this points thiugs, when even vestment is prese nofair in nssumin settled usage. T' ornamented with g same conclusion. lsst point, we mi bishop of Helena (o legateses to his ch ${ }^{4}$ atolas quattuor cum tintinnabulis may probably assu sod oraria, by pres Nicetns Paphlingo ( cr. 572 ), the patri restoration (A.D. 8 ; mented.

A number of Inte have alrendy cited, priest to wear his Council of Mayence wear the stole, propter differentin (Concil, Mogunt. cau. the view of course of was a priest. This as laid down at the tary by Regino, abbe that a priest on a jou "stola vel orarium" exxxii, 190).
Later notices of th and special rules e within our province. that even in the $9 t$ coloured and orname the prehibition to w seems to have been erample, in the illustr Landulfus, a MS. of th of the priests wear ty white, with black cro coloured (plates xxxiv. from D'Agincourt, Ei Monuments).
The resson for choosit the thst, the right betng the more readily to hasten
; Patrol. 1x. Gloris Maro niced, nearly may still cite Gregory the tinople, togeously merely : 1xxvii, 887). he orurium as whole series on might be, on to that of er of deacous mes specrally reons, as that parliest referf the Council bade the usp realers, and $:$ a stole when abbe, i. 1500 ). o Cbrysostom, wious, is not iter speaks of yias imitatiag their $\lambda$ ental left shoulder, we afterwards le Fil. Prodigo, e same time, 2ө $\dot{3} \theta$ óv with things (EPist. It is true that as well be a irst place, the d in the West, , and moreever of the descons very similur Chrysostom is vestments by tinople (l.c.). a replaced by r, that whereas by whatsoere tns the stole of ied to that of s a series of conof the orarium retty complete In the first Orleans (A.D inary interpre its non-ecclesi. he company in The use of $a$ kind of boots abbe, iv. 1407). -e drawn, as in in. The Second A.D. 563 that, among deacons orarium below ing it, se that red from sube, "superposito orario"" (cap. 9, records of the 633) that m ormatien. Ow regulation passed here was to meat the case of clerics unjustly depused from their orders. If a fresh synod reverses the sentence, they are stlll not to be convidered to have regained thelr lost functions till they have received before the altar the external badges of their order from the hands of the blishop. In the case of bishops, priests, and deacons, one of these is the orarium. A subsequent canon of the same councll forblds bishops and 1 rriests, and a fortiori deacons, to wear two orarit. The dencon is to wear it on the left shoulder only, and it is to be plain (purun), not ornamiented with colours or gold (eana. 28, 40 ; Lnbbe, v. 1714, 1716). The Fourth Council of Braga (A.D. 675) orders that at the celebration of the Eucharist the priest should wear hly stole (and only one) se that it ohould pass round the neck and over both ahoulders, and torm a cross on his breast (can. 4 ; Labbe, vil. 581). This regulation is qre ted by Innocent III. (de Sucro Alturis Myysterio, lib. i. c. 54 ; Pat/ol. cexvii. 794). The penalty onacted for disobedience is excommunication.

All this points to a well-established state of things, when even the manner of wearing the vestment is prescribed; and there is nothing nnfair in assuming that it represents a longsettled usage. The reference also to stoles ornamented with gold and colours points to the same conclusion. As an illustration to the lsst point, we may cite the will of Riculfus, bishop of Helena (ob, A.D. 915), who, among his legates to his church and successors, leaves "stolas quattuor cum auro, una (sic) ex illis cum tintinnabulis" (Patrol. cxxxii. 468). We may probably assume, teo, that the omophoria and oraria, by presents of which, necording to Nicetas Paphlngo (Vit, Ignat. Coust., Patro. Gr. cr. 572), the patriarch Photius signalised his restoration (A.D. 878), weuld be richly ornameated.
A number of later rules go beyond those we have alrendy cited, and require at any rate a priest to wear his stole constautly. Thus the Council of Mayence (A.D. 813) directs priests to wear the stole, -"Sine intermissione. .
prepter differentiam sacerdetii dignitatis " (Concil. Jojunt. can. 28 ; Labbe, vii. 1249), with the view of course of shewing at all times that he was a priest. This rule assumes a special form as laid down at the beginning of the 10th centary by Regino, abbat of Prumis, to the effect tory by Regino, abbat of Prumia, to the effect that a priest on n journey shall always wear his "stela vel orarium" (Eccl. Discipl. i. 62 ; Patrol. axxii. 190).

Lster notices of the stole, its ornamentation, and special rules concerning it, do not tall within our province. It may suffice to remark that even in the 9th century not only were coloured and ornamental stoles worn, but also the prehibition to wear more than one stole seems to have been disregarded. We find, for ersmple, in the illustrations to the Pontifical of Landulfus, a MS. of the 9th century, that some of the priests wear two stoles, one of which is White, with black crosses, and the other goldcoloured (plates xxxiv.- xyxvi. in Marriott, taken from D'Aginceurt, Histoirs do VArt par les Monuments). Momuments).
I The reason for choosing the left shoulder is given, This that, the right belng free, the descon may be able the more readily to hasten to and tro on his duties.

STOLE
1937
In the Greck church the stole is known by a different name, and nssumes a ditherent: form, according to the different orilers by which it is wora. Thus, as we have alrealy seen, the form [OMOPLorion], the stole worn by bishopis generally and by priests belng know nas ? $\pi$ riroax $\boldsymbol{h}_{\text {Nion }}$ and $\pi \in \rho!\tau p a x \dot{\eta} \lambda ı a \nu$, the name wóprov being exclusively associated with the stole as worn by deacons. Inte the case of the omophorion we need not agnin enter; the epitrachelion differs from the Western stole in that it is not thrown round the neek, but has a hole for the head to pass through and hangs down in front, though, trom the seam down the midille, it preservea the iden of the ornament of which it is but a malification.
It may be convenlent now, if we, at the risk of a slight repetition, indicate the various methods of wearing the stole characterising different orders in different branches of the church. In the Western church, the custom has been that pricsts, wearing the stole over both shoulders, should cross it on the hreast, and confine it at the walst with a girdle; the bishop, who has his pectoral cress, allowing it to hang free, while the deacon has the stole hangright hip. Astr, shoulder and fastened at the prese hip. As regards deacons, however, the present plan is an innoration ou an older one dating, it would seem, from the 12th century (Hefele, p. 191), before which tione they appear to have allowed their stoles to hang down freely like those of the Gruek c :acons. Perhaps from the 12th century also dates the habit of deacons of the Western church of wearing the stole under the dalmatic. To do more, however, than just hint at this would be to go beyond our legitimate limits.
In the Greek church, the epitrachelion (worn by priests and bishops) practically forms, as we have said, one band, haaging down in front; and the deacon wears his orarium over the left shoulder, hanging down before and behind, thus justifying the simile of the wings. Among Syrian Christians we find a difference: here the stele is worn by readers (but among the Maronites only), hanging from the right shoulder; by sub-deacons (nmong the Syrian Christians generally, round the neck; by deacons, hanging from the left shoulder (as in the Greek church generally); and by priests, hanging round the neck and in tront of the breast (Assemani, Bibl. Or. iii. 2. 797). It may be added that ameng the Nestorians a reader wears the orarium over his arms, but only at the time of his own ordinstien. Among the Malabar Christians, the vestment, as worn by deacons, is known under the name of orro, the shape beling apparently like that of the epitrachelion, with $n$ hole for the hend (Howard, Christians of St. Thumas, p. 133). The vestment is known in the Coptic church under the name bitarchil, which is clearly a corruption of epitrachelion (Renaudot, Liturg. Or. Coll. i. 162, ed. Frankf. 1847). Among the Armeniane it is known as poor-Ourar, apparently a corruption of orarium; the shape, however, is that of the epitrachelion (Fortescue, Tho Armenian Church, p. 133).
For the matter of the foregoing article, we must express our obligations to Hefele's essay die Liturgischen Oevoinder In hio Beiträjs *s

SUBDEACON

Kïr, henyeschichte, Arehäolozic und Jiturgik, li. 184 mg . ; Bock' Eitu*). Gexänder des Mitto ̈̈llers, i. $4: 36 \mathrm{miq}$; Bonat, de Rehus lituryiets, 1. 24. 6; Murlutt's Jentiurium Christianum; Ducange's Gilossaries, s. vv. Orurimm, stohn, גрф́pos ; l'ny口а Smith's Thesaurus Syriacus, s. v. Jifyl.

STRATO, Ang. 17, martyr ; commemorated at Nicomedia with Philiphis nud Eutychianus (Basil. Ahenol.); Aug. 15 (Jlart. Nieron.).
[C. H.]
STRATOCLINLANUS, June 30, presbyter; commenorated with another presbyter (Alpinianus) and bishop Martialls, nt Limoges.
[C. H.]
STRATONICUS (1), Jan. 13, soldier., martyr with the dencen Hermylus, under Licinius in Moesin (Basil. Menot. ; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Grace. Sirlet.).
(2) Mar. 4, Aug. 17, lietor, martyr with Paulus and Juliana at l'tolemais, in the reiga of Aurelian (Basil. Menol.); Aug. 17 (Mend. Gracc.).
[c. 11.]

Strenae. [New Year's Gifts.]

STIIIGIL. [Sculpture, p. 1863.]

STUDITAE. [ACOEmetae, p. 13.]

STUPACIUM. A kind of cloth made from - arse flax. In the work De Vita Eremetica, - peaded to the writings of Angustine, we find long the rules for clothing a drection that nere be in use for both summer and winter duae de stupacio camisine vel ataminae" (c. 20, -ol. i. 1390, in Append. ed. Gaume). [1K. S.]

STYLITES. [Compare Mortification, p. 312] Solitaries, who made their abode on the $<p$ of a pillar ( $\sigma \tau \bar{u} \lambda o s$ ), received the name of crunita. The first of these pillar-snints was symeon, who in the early fart of the 5th cen--ury took his stand on a pillar in the neigh'ourhood of Antioch, and died, after many gears' exposure to the elements, A.D. 459 (Evagrius, II. E. i. 13 f .). His most famous followers were his pupil Daviel ( $\dagger 489$ ), whose pillar was near Constantinople, and Symeon the younger ( $\dagger$ 596), whe displayed himself, like his namesake, near Antioch (Evagr. vi. 23). [See their lives in the Dict. of Christ. Biogr.] A certain Alypins is said to have spent seventy years on a pillar in the neighbourhood of Adrianople (Surius, Nov. 26). The first Symern's pillar was, according to Evagrius (i. 13), two cubits (about thres feet) in circumference; and the saint abode seven years on lower pillars, and for thirty years apon one of forty cubits (about sixty feet). Another nuthority (Theodoret, Mist. Rel. c. 26) says that he took his stand at first on a pillar six cubits high, then on one of twelve, then on one of twenty-two, and that in the year 440 he was seen on one of thirty-six cubita. Tha supposed base of Symeon's pillar is still shewn at KhelatSema'n in central Syria, between the church and the monastery of St. Symeon (De Vegüé, Syrie Gentrale, pl. 139, quoted by Martigny). So slender a pillar as Evngrius describes must of course have had some kiad of platform at the top, probably railed, or it would bave been impossible to avolin falliug during slepp; hut it is clear that the suint nillowed himseff uo protection froms ann or storm. la an anciat drawing tigurel by Martigny (p. 745. 2nd ell.) tho vaint is represented sitting in a kiad of cup-shabled enpitul, while a figure below attaches a bisket, probably of food, to a cord which he lets down.
The pillar-snints unturally found fow imitators In the more rigorms climate of the West. A Lombard named Wulfilae dil, however, plasa some time on a pillar in the d'itrict of Treives and quitted it it the desire of ifs blshop. 11s himseff told Gregory of Tours (1/ist, Frano. vill. 15) that he suttured horribly in winter from the cold, which had caused the nalls to drop from his feet; and that the rain, freezing on his beard, formed icleles which hung down like n bunch of enadles. (U. G. Sieber, do Simitis Columaribus Jissert. Li, psiae, 1714; Schrö̀kh, Kirchengeschichte, vili. 237 tr; Uhleman, Symeion der erste Siudenheilige, lo Illgen's Zoitsehrith 1845; Herzog's Real-EMcyclop. 8, v.; Martigup, Dict. des Antiq. Chret. s. v.)
[c. $]$
STYRACIUS, Nor. 2, martyr with Tobila and Nicopolitinuas at Sebnste in Armenia, in tha relgo of Licinius (Basil. Menol.).
[C. II.]

SUBCINGULUM. [GirdLE, p. 728.]

 diaconus). At what precise time the orders lower than that of deacon were instituted in the church is a matter of complete uncertainty. The attempt to trace it to the apostles or their Immedinte suceessors is acknowledged by Cardinal Bona (Rer. Litury. lib. i. c. $25, \S 17$ ) th he a failure. The most probable view of the cast is that the growing needs and organization of the Caristian commanity gave occasion to their Institution aud gradual and orderly development. "Crescente ecelesia, erevit officium ecelesiasticum: ut multitudini ecclesiae subveairi posset, adjiciuntur inferiores in adjutorio praepositorum" (Amalar. de Ecc. Off. Jib. ii. c. 6). And, after their introduction, an apposite precedent wns discovered by later writers (e.g. Isidor. Hispal. de Ecc. Off. lib. ii. c. 10; Amalarius, lib. ii. c. 11; Rabanus Maurus, de Instit. Clería lib. i. c. 8) in the Nethinim of the Jowish church, though, with their ignorance of Hebrew, they strangely interpreted the word as equivalent to "humilis;" and, by a similar mistake in etrmology, they considered Nathnnael, the "Israelits in whom was no guile," to have been a tyly of the order.
St. Ignatius certainly mnkes mention of enly three orders-bishops, priests, and deacoss. Is hia Epistle to Polycarp, ri., ín evidently a deacon. And so it is in Hermas, Yis iii. 5. Beverege ( $C u d$ Can. lib. ii. 4), aftet quoting No. 43 of the Apostolical Canons, argue that the office existed as far back as the 2 nd century, though (he acknowledges) we can find nu mention anywhere of its first institution. All that can be said is, with Martene (tom. ii. lib. i. c. 8), that it may have been of more ancient introduction thas the other " minores ordines," and that it, as well as they, was instituted by the church in the 2nd or 3rd century.

Subdeacons are not mentioned by name in any Chriatian writings of the West till the 3rd century ; e.g. St. Cyprian, Epp. 24, 28, 78, 79, 80 (ed. Benedict), and the Epistle of Cornelius biahop of Rome, and lin the Greek e.g. St. E.pipham. St. Basil, Epist.
 some uncertninty introduction into other inlour ayider deacon, after the E.g. Optatus (lib, i. by Cotelerins in his "pipscopes, preshy laicos sen turbam tis genera capitum in byterorima, diacon St. Jerome, on lsni in the chureh, not the Apest. Const. I bu used as an equiv places, e.g. inl. 11. v oquira'mat to $\dot{\text { ona }}$ menolug pints to tl polation in theser. variation of meanin other writers.
The age for orlin was twenty years, nec ef Tile lo, cin. 1 (a in Trullo, can, 15 ( 1 ordination, see OnDIN
In regard to his du first, no doubt, little imperted, one under deacen. Special dat assigned to him. Sucl the priest in which appointed time in the o a function elsewhere Cyril. Hieros. Catech. lical Constitutions (vii deacens should stand entered, and subdeacon entered, so that no o should go in or out dun eolemn part of the of doty presently devolve Dion. Arcop. Ecc. Hierc of the Nicene council, imypeings. It was the remain at the narthex o to keep order as peopl not te depart from the over. By the council of subdeacon is to pay th deacen as the deacon to have any place in the touch the sacred vessels. Orarius, nor leave th fotbidden him by can. canens explains that the at the doors for the $p$ the catechumens nfter t . mas finished; and so out, the penitents, calli leare the church, and to They were not to leav purpose of joining in th that effice belonged to tl service they had to bria paten, te hare charge of $t$ tions, and of the chalice; CHRIST. ANT.-VOL II.

SUBDEACON

ip ; but lt ls 0 jrotectlon int drawing 1.) the sains cup-вhapend s it bisket, lets dowa. ow imitators e West. A vever, jusa of T'reves bishop. Ile frano, vill. er from the drop from fing on his down like do Sinctis ; Schröckh, ann, Symeon Zeitschrijh ; Martigny, [C.] vith Tulilas enia, in the
[C. 11.] 728.]
pétทs; sub the orders tuted in the ancertainty, les or their by C'ardinal 17) to bia a the ease is ation ot the a to their evelopment. eeclesiastiniri posset, praeposito2. 6). And, a precedent (e.g. Isidor, Amalarius, instit. Cleric rish ehurch, abrew, they quivalent to se in etymoo e"Israelite in a type of tion of only teacons. In fíns meant fermas, Vis i. 4), sfter nons, arguet the 2 ad cercan tind no tution. All m. ii. lib. ore ancient stituted bs the 3 rd cen78, 79,80 Cornelius bishop of Rome, to Fablus, ap. Euseb, vl, 43 and In the Greek church not till the 4th century; e.g. St. Epphan. in Eixposit. F̈̈ki Cuthol, nand St. Basil, Ejpist. Cien. li. who ealls the othee in dxeiporoviris ún mpeoia. Even then, mad later, ome uncertninty linngs over the time of thelr introduction into dithrent churches, beenus: other minur orilira were hachuded under the term dencon, after they were certainly in operation. Ey. Optatus (lits. 1. p. 39, lib. ii. p. sis, as ynotei by Cotelerius in his note on Apont. Const, ii. 25), "eprecopos, preshyteros, diacunos, minist ros, et laicos selu turban tidelium ": "enm sint quatuor byterorim, dincumurom, et fiduliam," And so St. Jerome, on Isniah xix. njeaks of five orders th the chureh, not sperifying sublencous. In the Apist. Cunst. lib. ii. 28, the word unnpertys places, e.g. iii. 11, vi. 17 , viii, 28 , it is in other equivieat to úmodidecolos. This variution of meanang points to the jrobability of some interpolation in thesep assages; nithough the same raviation of meaning can he exemplified from other writers.
The age for ordination to the subdineonate Was twenty years, necording to the second council in Trullo, can. 15 (A.D, 60\%). For the form of ordination, see Ondination, ]. 1510.
In regnral to his duties, the subdencon was at first, no doubt, lit tle more than what his name Imported, one umaler the dencon, io assist the deacon. Specing duties, however, were soon assigned to him. Such were, to supply wnter to the priest in which to wash his hands at the appointed time in the otlice (Apost. Const, viii, II), Ifunction elsewhere assigned to the dencon (see Cyril. Ilieros. Catech. xxiii. 2). By the Apostolical Constitutions (viii. 11) it is enjoined that deacons should stand at the door by which men entered, and subdeacons by that at which women entered, so that no one even of the faithful shonld go in or out during the recitntion of the solemn part of the office. The whole of this daty presently devolved on the subdeacons (so Dion. Arcop. Ecc. Hierarch. c. 5). In the acts of the Nicene council, part 2, were recounted the inmpérys. It was the province of the last to remaia at the narthex of the church, nnd there to keep order as people went out and in ; and not to depart from the door, till the service was orer. By the council of Laodicea, cans. $20-22$, a aubdeacon is to pay the same resjuect to the deacon as the deacon to the priest. He must not have any place in the dencon's apartment, nor touch the saered vessels. He must not wenr an orarium, nor leave the doors. This is again forbidden him by can. 43 . Zonaras on these cauens explains that the subdeacons were placed at the doors for the purpose of elearing out the catechumens after their jart of the service was finished; and so to bring in, nad shew eut, the penitents, calling aloud to them to. Theave the chureh, and to the laithful to remain They were not to leave the doors for the purpose of joining in the sacred mysteriws, for that effice belonged to the priests. Before the service they had to bring to the dencon the paten, to have charge of the bread for the oblations, and of the chalice; and after the concluCHRIST. $\triangle$ NT, -VOL. II.

SUDINTRODUUTAE

19.99
slon, to convey them bnck again. In earlier tlmes, the ppistle hal been commonly rend hy printector, i. $c_{\text {a }}$ after the deacons had been np. printed to take the gisplel. The juractice of the subutencon reading the edistle calnot be traced earlier than the 7th century. Martene anys it did not bogin till the sth century. Amalarius, at the lieglaning of the 'th (ii, 11), exproses the wonder how the suldencons hal come to remd the "pistle, n new practice whllh was then gainlng ground. Other functions in detail fuld lled by subtentons are to be found in Apest. Const. viil. 11, 1: ; Martene, sub roce eutdinconus (lad.); and lingham, lik. Hi, c. 2.
In the church of kome, ns we learn from Liuseb, vl. 43, the number of subileicons was, and continued to be, seven only, in closin nulherence to Acts vi. In the ehurch of Constantinople there were seventy. The sube seventy.
The subtuconi reyioniria in liome, of whom wi. p. 906 , S.l. (lib. viil. Indict. i, Ejp. It, the priest, Bend.), were nipolated to attend on as he colchand on high days the prope himself, his vestments, &c. Origintion days, to change in humber, then Originally these were seven again, so ns to make were nided, and seven were placed ander twentyoone in all; and they Milmnn, Latir: Christrimity, bk, ibi, chge, s. roc.;
At their first institution suiden, 7, p. 411). zeckoned amongst the minor orders, as is evident from the comeril of Laodicea. From the writings of Gregory the Great, it appenrs they had order to be consilered a sort of intermediato order. [Ordens, Holy.]
It is ditlieult to sily when celibncy was first the first conneacons. By the fourth canon of deacons marrying of Toledo (A.D. 400), "sinbto the rank of polter time are to be reluced permitted to read the or reader, and not to be the thirteen cad the gospel or epistle." From we learn that cans of the council in Trillo, suhdencons. Sundry epistlen hal been ordained Gregory the Great to subdencons, from which we gather that the rule of celibacy was strict in Rome, but Icss so in Sicily, where Gregory made arrangements for a stricter rule in future. And as by degrees celibacy wns enforced, so was "the subdiaconate by degrees reckoned amongat the holy orders ": subdeacons could now euter the sacrariuns, and touch the boly vessels; thus innorating on the canons of the councils of Carthage, and of Agde (can. 66). (Cf. Greg. M. Efp. lib. i. Ind. ix. E.p. 44, &e.) [H. B.]

 бактөi, extraneae adoptivac (Cone. Brace. ii. iii.) called also d̀ঠe入фai, sorores, and d $\gamma a \pi \eta \tau a l)$, femnles, not related by blood, who, under the plea of spiritual relationship, resided with the clergy, occupying not only the same house but the same room, and even sometimes, with perilous rashness, often productive of the grossest scandals, the same bed (Ilieron. Ep. ad Eustoch. 22, de lirg. Custod.). These femnles were sommonly some of the consecrated rirgits of the church, "whom," in the words of Bingham, only that entertnined them pretended to lore only with a chaste Jove." The suspicions, however, which this injudicious custom gave rise to were so grave, and the evils resulting so terrible,
1940 SUBINTRODUCTAE

that the practice recelved the steruest condemnations of the church. How deeply it was rooted in human nature is evident from ite springing up again and agnin in spite of ecelesiantienal censures, and requiring to be repressed by ropeated canons of councils. One of the earllest notices of this close intercourse between the sexes, clonked with a religious sanction, occurs in the Shepherd of LIermis (lib. iii, simil. ix. \&11). The virgins of the vivion invite him to stay with thom. To his question, "ubl manebo?" they repiy " nobiscum dormies ut pater, nun ut maritus," which put him to the blush. He necelits, however, their invitation, and passes the aight with them outside the tower, lying in the midile of the virgins on their "tunicae liutene," tho whole night being spent by them in prayer. This pasange, though, as Hefele remarks, inconsistent with the early date once assigned to the "Shepherid," proves the existence of this practice in the 2nd century. As early as the council of Elvira, A.D. 305, can. 27, a bishop or uny elerio wns forbidelen to have any female reaiding with him exeept a sister or daughter, "extranenm neque quam habere placent" (Labbe, i. 973). The council of Ancyrn nlse by lis 19th canon, A.D. 314, forbaide virgins to hold intercourse with males, ouvepxouivas ds dide入фds (Labbe, i. 1463). The third canon of the council of Nicaca was directed against this practice, forbidding any cleric, either bishop, presbyter, or deneon, to have any such female to reside with them, but only their mother, sister, or annt, whose natural relationship would disarm auspicion, $\mu$ ो $1 \xi$ eivas $\sigma v v a l \sigma-$ \# Belar (Labbe, ii. 29). These "subint loductae" were also condemned by the third and fourth canons of the first council of Carthage, A.D. $3: 8$, (b. 715), the seventeenth canon of the third council and the forty-sixth of the fourth, as well as by the secoml council of Arles, A.D. 452, can. 3 (ib. Iv. 1011); and of Lerida, A.D. 524, can. 15 (ib. iv. 1613); the first conncil of Seville, A.D. 590 , can. 3 (ib, v. 1589), and the second and third of Bragn, can. 15, and lex. 19 (i). v. 838, 909), and the second (ean. 3) and tourth (can. 42) of Toledo (ib. iv. 1733, v. 1716). The council of Antioch also, by which Paul of Snmosata was deposed, A.D. 369 , urged among the reasons for his degradation that his clergy had received into their houses " ouvel бaкт оi $\gamma$ vacîkes, as the Autiochenes called them" (Euseb. H. E. vii. 30). In spite of ecclesiasticnl ceneures, howover, the custom continued to Hourish to the great scandal of the church anil the demoralisation of those who adopted it. The frequency of the recurrence of its prohibition by the Spanish councils proves its prevalence in Spain, where it was practise d by the Priscillianists (Braecar. ii. can. 15, labbe, v. 838). How intolerable the practice had becone is evident from several passages of the writings of Cyprian, who praises Pomponins for excommunicating a deacon who had persovered in it in spite of episcopal warning (Cyprina, Epist. 62 [4] ad Pomponium; Epist. 6 [14]; Epist. 7 [1:3]). The grossly indecent lengths to which it was carried by some called forth Jerome's mnat poworful vitaperation ( Ep , ad Eiustoch.). "Unde in ecclosins Agapetarum pestis introiit? Unde sine nuptiis aliud nomen uxnrum? Immo unde novum concuhinarum genus? Plus inferam, unde meretrices unvirae?
subintroduotae
Quase ealem domo, uno cubleulo, saepo the tenentur et lectula; et suspicionns nom Vosunt si aliyuhil existimamus . . . eun In endem pro. posito easo simulant quaprunt aliouorum spiritale sulatium ut dond hainent enrnaie commercluta." Ani in his letter to Oneanus, de Vita Clericorum, he orlalos that if any one after his warningo, "agajetas ampllus quam c'lirintum quaesierit nunore," hu do to be convened according to the rule of the ayoll, ant the Neeme eanoms rend to hitn. Among the letters of linsil is one to s prosbyter, by nume l'a.cgorias, an old man of soventy, threatening that, unless ho dismissed his "subiatiodncti," he woulif depose him from his ollice, alad If ho ventured to uxerelve its functions he would excomnaniento all who recogniset him (Basil, Eip. 55. [198]). Bail', brother Gregory Nysen also conlemns thuse who opeuly cohabit with wotnen, and gire the name of sisterhood to such eohabitation (De Viry, c. 23),

We learn from Gregory Nuzinnzen that not only were clerics in the habit of having females to resile with them, but that lalies, who proo fessed celibsey, also had their ouvelaaktot of the opposite ses. In his alvice to virgins he says:

and he expresses his susplcion of this questlonnble relationship in the following Jines:

We see from the words of Jerome, "coolibem virgo spernit germanum, fratrem quacrit extraneum " ( $A d$ Lustoch.) that this indecorous custom was also in vogue among the religious ladies of the Western church.

On his appolutment to the see of Constantinople, Chrysostom found " anbintroductne "prevailing to the most scandalous extent among his clergy, and the unpopularity which enlminatel in his deposition and exile had as une of its first moving causes the stern deternination with which he endeavoured to put them down, and the withering sarcasms he poured out upon them. It appears from the two homilies delivered by him, "de ius qui subintroxluctus virgincs huhent," that the clergy who adopted this practice degradel themselves into "cavalieri serventi" to their Imperious mistresses, carrying their cushions, smouthing their sotas and ensy chairs, providing delicacies for their table, and humonring theis whims, to the complete disregard of their sacred charneter and the ueglect of their clerical duties, The voice of the church having proved insulticient to repress the spreading evil, the ciril power was called in to legislate against it. a Jaw of Honorius and Theodosius II. (Car, Tiend lib. xvi. tit. ii. do Episc. leg. 44 ; Cod. Just. lib. i. tit. iii. leg. 19) expresses its strong dif approbation of this "consurtium sororiae sppella. tionis," and forhids the clergy of any degree whatsoever to have any females residing with them, except mothers, daughters, and sisters with a special roservation for wives martied before their husbands entered holy orders, "quas ante sacerdotium maritorum legitimum meruere conjugium." The words of the law are "quicum. que igitur cujuscunque gradus sacerdutio fulci-untur, vel cleric anarum sihn ms cognoscant ; hato ut mutros fillas at suarum sepite con ever, ohstinately dennimeed by tho rain. The second Rome under papu 8 th century repent Sivene comacil, and with as little effi oubintroductas mi sulesant habitare ni proximitntem gener FI. Ii. 13; Bever pp. 45-47, ib. p. 178 p. 218 sq. ; de syni in can. 3. Nicuen.
Theod.; Novell. 123,

SUBSCRIPTIO

SUBSELLIUBI.

 mame senso are scabe clusively applied to $t$ our Savinur on tho footstool or any rest earliest time persons rquresentel, when sea upoo a subsellium. Th ing to Cloment of Ales liveated by the J'ersi itool to Helen and to 8. 315). In Christian $n$ lo assigned to God whe of Cain and Abel (Bott crxxrii.) ; to our Lori his disciples (Perret, $C$ 24): and to the Virg presenting their offerin Pitture, xi).
Episcopal chairs alw and Christians generally 8 matter of humility, for bishops. In this Eantochium (Ep. ad E'us Dist. des Antiq. chret. s.

SUBSTRATI. [Pen

SUBURBICARII (E  URBICARIAE (ECClF

 of this term, io connexios eccurs in the sixth can Sicaea as given by Rufi Eccles, i. 6 ), decreeing that shali continue to be obser and at Rome, whereby the politan) of the one city ex sight over the churches $t$ the metropolitan (or pat orer "the suburbicarian c Alexnadriam et in urbe Ro servetur, ut vel ille Aeg eiritm ecciesuirum sollicitu Patrol, xxi. 225 ; Mansi, ii. pooding decree of the cou tame expression occurs: " urbis Romse episcopus halanepe nne hoa vocunt endicm pros "1111 日ldritale notercium." C'lericorma, lis warninge, o quassterit riling to the tuons rend to is sine to $n$ olil mail of he dinmiased use him frem exercive ita ute ull who 8]). Masil's ins thase who e the name of J'iry. e. 23), cen that aut iving termales les, who pro. cartol of ths las he says:

d MáAıgta

h/s questienиен:

- ̈̈ravteq

үа́цокя $y^{\mathrm{d} \rho} \rho \mathrm{e} \gamma \omega \boldsymbol{\gamma}$ ivigouais 1e," coelibem quacrit esis indecerous the religious of Constrativiuctne " preant amoge hin h culminatel ne of its first rination with down, and the pon thear. 1 t vered by him, hatent," that tice degruled ti" to their reir cushiuns, irs, , hroviding nouring theis of their sacred llcrieal duties. roved ingutifvil, the ciril gainst it. A (Cod. Tiend ; Col. Just $s$ streng dire oriae sppelino of any degre residing with , and sisters ives married orders, "quse mum meruere sre "quicum. cerdutio fulci-

SUBSCRTITTON

untur, vel elericatus honere
ararum sihe mulierum io ernsentur, extracognoserant; hate els tan haterifeta consortin ot matres tillias atque germunas intra domerna suarim septe contiseant," The practice, howver, ubationiely aurvived, and way ropwatelly denounced by the eccleniastical authorities in rain. Tha necond canun of the council held at Rome uniler popro Zacharian in the mhdle of the 8 th century repents the old frohibition of the Nirene comencil, and, as subserpuent hiatory shows, with as little eliect, "presthyterl vel dimeno andeant habitare mulleres nutlo moto secum proximitatem generis sul habentes." (binumat II. 1. 13; Bevereg, Jandect. tom. II. annol. pp. 45-47, ib. p. 178, Murnturi, Anecdet. Graec. p. 218 sif. i do Synisactis et Lyy in clis ; Justellus Theol.; Novell. 123, c. 29 ; Norell. Nut. in Coxt.

SUBSCRIPTION [SUPER [E. V.]

SUBSEL

amma вense are scubel Other words used in the umme sease are scubelitum, suppositorium, suppedancum ( $0 \pi \sigma \pi \delta \delta \delta a \nu$ ), the last clusively applied to the support which is exour Saviour on the cross. They all mean a footstool or any reat for the feet ; and from the esrliest time persons of rank or authority are represented, when seated, as resting their feet qpon a subsellitm. This mark of honour, sccordInveated by the Persians. Homer gives a fost itool te Helen ead to Ulysses (Otl/ss. iv. 136; 2.315). In Christian monuments this distinction bs sasigued to God when receiring the offerings of Cain and Abel (Bottrirl, Sculture e Pitture, \&c. crivxil.) ; to our Lord criswil.); to our Lord when sented and teaching 24): sud to the Virgin when the Rome, ii. pl. presenting their offerings (Bottari, Sculture are Pittwere, xl).
Eplscapal chairs always had the subsellium, and Christians generally avoided the use of it as a matter of humility, and reserved the honour for bishops. In this spirit Jerome cautions Kustochium (Ep.ad Eustoch. $1 \times$ iiii.) (Martigng, Dit. (les Antiq. chret. s, v. Dit. (les Antiq. chrét. s. v.). [E. C. H.]'

SUBSTRATI. [Pentence, p. 1593.]

SUBURBICARII (Episcopates) or SUBURBICARIAE (EcclesiaE). The earliest us. of this term, in connexion with church history, occurs in the sixth conon Sicaea as glven by Rufinus of Aquileiacil of Ecoles. i. 6), decreeing that "the Aquileia (Hi.t., shail centiuue to be observed both at Alpandria ond at Rome, whereby the patriarch (or metropolitay) of the one city exercises a general oversight ever the churches throughout Egypt, and the metropelitan (or patriarch) of the other, orer "the suburblearian churches," "et ut apuid derandriam et in dearandriam et in orbe Roma retusta consuetudo servetur, ut arvetur, ut vel ille Aegypth, vel hic suburbiPatrol, xxi, 225 ; Mansi, il 702 ) gerat " (Migac, ppanding decree of the council of Chalcedon the mme expressien occurs: "Antiqui moris est, ut urbis Romae epiacopus habeat primipipatum, ut

sUBURBICABII

 is mater if gubarnet " (Mansi, vih. 1127). It is intiniord by the ahove expreseion "(I) "o what carian churches," "suhurticariuns, "subarbi(ii) whether the superintenicariun dlsfruts;" Way that of a putriarchlence to be exerelined (Meanotolitas). Patriach or a metroqulitan (i) A decree of further Illustration of the nise of tulian afforils nays that the resoure the 1188 of the term. It whether patrimonial of the lanided extatea, earefully preserved "not onfy throughot be Italy, but also la the not only throughout nil nnil in Sicily": "Non enlm per Itan territories, sed etiam fur suburbicarita reagiones en tantum, patrimonialium et emuthytion regiones et Siciliana servandus esse perspexinutis " ( Cund fundorum vires Ifere it seems difficult to "(Cord, Theod. II. i. 9). Gothofredus (adluc.) nad Co necept tho wiew of bicariae reglones." are those that the "suburdistrict governed by the "pre inciuded in the "custos Urbis," a region "praefectus Urbl" or of Augustus embraced a which from the time radius from thome (Dis, a circuit of 100 miles ${ }^{\prime}$ Opera, Jurid. Min. p. 1320). The Gothofredus, rather to contempiate the divisious law appears pire established by Co divisious of the emwhich "Italia" would onstantine, sccorling to which comprised vourt mean the Italian vicuriate, Second Whaetia, \&ec. in in distincty, the First and "suburbicariae regiones" would drom this the provinces of the Roman wicariste denote the ten 1. Campania; 2. Tuscin and Umbria; which weresuburbicariun (so cailud to Umbria; 3. Picenum Picenum Annonarium in to distinguish it from 4. Valeria; 5 . Samulum ; 6 , A Italind vicardate); 7. Lucania sad bruttif; 8. Apulia snd Calabria; 10. Corsica. To this interpretation 9. Sardinia; presslon in the decree interpretation of the exSicilia presente a slight, beparate mention of superable, difficulty. Bingham, in discu pretations, says, "elther the above two interhaving at least their ar may be admitted, as to defend them" (s. v.) distiaguishes between " sub. i. 9). Ducange "urbicariae," holding that "suburbicarise" and nates the ten proving that the former term deof the "praefectus Urbi." Baronins, territory other hand (Ann. 325, cxxxp., cxxxyins, on the that these terms were of the anmei.), considers and both denote the yet of the same significance, bound hy the " leges frumer range of provinces the capital with corn at a tixed rae" to supply (ii) Bearing in mind the fixed rate.
existed between the political close analogy that organisation of the political and ecclenjastical suppose that the term "suburbicarifficult $t_{1}$ have been used in the chur surbicarjae" could from that in which it chureh in a different sense we are thus led to the conpluyed by Julian; and of Nicaea recognised the right of the the council Rome to exergise over right of the bishop of Roman diocesese or or the ten provinces of the city corresponding to that a patriay chal authoarch of Alexandria over exercised by the patriHory Orders.] That egypt. [Metropolitan, mediate jurisdition hat aiready exercised improvinces, and that this metropulitan over these as "vetusta consnetudo" st have been described council of Nicaen, is contrary to all probability (Pore, iv. 2).

SUCCESTOR (Latin, succentor ; Freck inosay when this word or the corresponding office first came into use. But it was known to Joannes de Janua, who finished his Catholicon in 1286, for he describes it thus: "Qui in ecclesiâ post praecentorem sive principalem eantorem subsequenter canendo respondet, vel qui facit oflicium prineipuliter in choro sinistrd." But although the word does not become at all common till later times, still it seems quite clear that it was known in early days; for it is named by St. Augustine: "lraceentor scilicet qui rocem praemittit in cantu, succentor autem qui subsequenter eanendo respondet " (Enarr. in Ps, 87, 1). This is the earliest known passage in which the word oceurs.
Some idea of what was meant by the term "snceent" (succinere) may be gathered from the following passage, in which St. Basil describes the antiphonal mode of singing the Psalms in very early days:-"They sing them alternately, dirided into two choirs. Then having eutrusted to one to begin the tune, the others succent." ( $£ \pi \eta \times 0$ ốt, suceinunt, Lat. Tr. Ep. 63 (al. 207) ad Cler. Necoaes.)

The Greek word which is given by Ducange as the equivalent of succentor, is feund in in passage of the interpolated epistle of Ignatius to the Philadelphians: $\boldsymbol{\tau i s} \gamma \dot{d}, \rho \in i \mu, ~ \in \gamma \dot{\omega}, \ldots$ $\dot{\alpha} \lambda \lambda \lambda^{\prime} \dot{\omega} s \quad \sigma v a \tau \rho a \tau i \omega ́ \tau \eta s \quad \dot{\nu} \mu \bar{\omega} \nu, \dot{v} \pi о \phi \omega \nu \eta \tau o \hat{v} \tau \alpha \mathfrak{\xi} \iota \nu$

The passages already quoted point to this officer's duty of "suecenting" in the service of the ehureh. In subsequent times, when the otfice became a dignity in the greater churches, another character was superadded to him in that be was made the representative of the precentor in his absence. It is observed by Magri (Hicrolex, 8.v. Cantor) that in many churches of France a festival of the first class is called fcstum cantoris, because it then belongs to the praecentor (enntor) to arrange the service (officium orlinare); while a festival of the second elass is called fcstum succontoris, beenuse then the same duty falls upon the succentor.
[H. T. A.]
SUCCESSUS, Apr. 15, martyr of Saragossa (Mart. Notker.); Apr. 16 (Usuard.).

SUCCINCTORIUM. [GirdLe, p. 728.]

SUDARIUM. [Maniple.]

SUESSIONENSE CONCILIUM. [SoIssons.]

SUFFETA, COUNCIL OF (SUffetanum Conciliess), a.d. 524, where St. Fulgentius yielded the presideney to bishop Quodvaltileus who had disputed it with him at a puevious council. (L'Art de térif. les Dates, $\mathfrak{j}$. 150.)
[E. S. Ff.]
sUFFETULA, COUNCIL OF (Suffetuwexse Concllium), a.d. 418 (?). The only record of this is a canon attributed to it by Ferrandus, (Mansi, Iv. 439.)
[E. S. Ff.]
SUGGESTUS. [Амво.]

SULPICIUS (1), Jan. 17, bishop; commemarated at Bourges (Murt. Usuard.); Jan. ${ }^{26}$ (Notker.).
(2) Apr. 20. [Serviliants.]

SUN (see Moon). Martigny states, on Pottari's authority (tavr. xaxii. Ixavi.), that the two colossal masks or grotesque faces, buthe times observed at the angles of ancicnt sareophagi, are intended to represent the sum and noen. In this sense they hare the same impritt of the sensons, as denoting the meting-out of human life. Such faces or masks oceur, at all events, on the altar of the Basilica of S . Lorenizo fuori-le-Murant Rome, which resembles mana init sarcophngus in all its details of ornament (C'ian. pini, Iet. Mon. c. 1, tab. xlv, fig. 4).
The sun appears on the well-kuown Vaticas sareophagns, with the history of Jonah and the double sea monster (Bottari, tav, alii.) with rays and a nimbus (see Parker, Phot. 2005). On a lamp referred to by Martigny in the enllection of Sante Bartoli (Lucern. antich. part iii. No. 39), the sunand moon accompany the Good Shepherl, perhnis representing time and eternity, as is suggested by the Abbé Cavedoni (Rayguaylio delle Art. Christ. p. 32). Or they may probally lie placed with the Good Shejiherd, for the same varied reasons which aceount for their presence in se many of the enrly crucifixions. Either, which is pessible, they denote the two natures of our lord, or they give the idea of a presence and attendance, as it were, of the powers of nature at the central event of the world, and reminil of the eelipse and darkness of that day. Both sun and moon occur, at all events, in the crucifixina of the Laurentian or Rabula MS. of Florence [Crucifix, p. 515]. So in the 9th century NIS. Bibliotheque nationale, No. 510). On the gates of St. Paul (R. de Fleury, ii. [J. 88) as angels. So in the majority of Saxon and lrish MSS.; on the diptych of Rambona, ns halikength figures [Crucifix, p. 515]; on the cruss of Velletri (Borgin, de Cruce Veliterna), as faces; so also in the wall painting of the cemetery of pope St. Jnlius I. (Bottari, t. Ixaxii.). The torches borne by the figures of the diptych of Rambena are a singular instance of barbaric return to classical treatment, quite in keeping with the almost unique addition of the wolf and twins.

In the classical revival of Charles the Great and Alcuin, for sueh in MSS. it really was, the sun and moon become figures in chariots, the sun drawn by horses, the meon by oxen. The Bible of Ct . Vivian in Count Bastard's second volume, contains a beautiful example of limake or Anglo-Greek fancy [Moos]. In the MS. of Jeshua, 7 th or 8 th century (Vatican; l'Agincourt, Peinture, vol. v. pl. axviii.) the sun stands still as an 8-rayed star, and thn moon on the othr? side. This had been long before represeuted is the 5th-century mosnies of St. Maria Maggione at Rome. The Utrecht Psalter has a sua und moon on its frontispiece; at the heading of the Song of the 'Three Children, at Pss. cxxstiiia, and exliii. as two heads, one wearing a cmwa d spines or rays, the other a crescent; and it Ps. cxxi. they are represented ns shooting "shap arrows and hot, burning coals" on the fila tongue. They are not present at the Crucinitio in Ps. cxii.
[R. St. J. T. $]$ writers, who sal reproluction of $t$ representation of this name. Aeco often thus called Off. 39, Patrol. ci statu Eecrl, Ratre
The werd is al pallium [Pale.ie: (Rey. Pust, e. 14 lib. i. 25 ; ib. 471 preceling work]; Collcetane of of Ana: motionis in $S$. Mu In this last case $t$ is $\omega \mu$ офб́раи [Oмо rences see Ducange

SUPERPOSIT

 of one fast to anc sometimes even fo in total abstinence church by the nan in the Greek by periols of fasting ${ }^{\circ} \mu \mathrm{f} \rho a \mathrm{a}$, and the col Beroat, superponere. day of abstinence at any time as an a but it was most c Week, as a prepari nities, espeeially on which were very fast. This pract "jejunia conjunger "sabbatum continuu (de Jејun. с. 14). I Jerusalem (Catech. the intiptears $\tau \hat{\eta} s$ as a reason for sho should exhaust the slso, when speaking week, states that all poparia, i.c. taking b that only in the eve passed the greater week in perfect absti кal трı $\pi \lambda a ̂ s$ каl $\tau \epsilon \tau \rho a$ c. 22; ef. Huer. 29 , lib, v. c. 18) Diouy in his canonieal epis Pundect, tom. ii, p. ن́reptitévau and ữt those who practise sp week, some addling throe, some four, sol

10p; commeme rid) ; Jan. ${ }^{20} 6$
[C. II.]
states, on Peitxvi.), that the ne faces, stmes ancient marcoit the sum and he same impurt met,ing-out of ks occur, at all ca of $s$. Lnrenzo. mbles an ancient ruament (C'ian4). -known Vatiean of Jonah nul the . xlii.) with rays ot. 2005). On a in the collection part iii. No. 39), Good Shepherd, d eternity, as is (Reyduaybio delle nay probally be crif, for the same is their presence ifixions. Fither, he two natures of of a presence and wers of nature nt and remind of the y, Both sim and the crucifisint of IS, of Fhareace the 9 th century o. 510). On the ry, ii. pl. 88), as - Saxon and lribh ambona, as halii15]; on the cruss eliterna), as faces; the cemetery of t. Ixxxii.). The of the diptych of sance of barbatic quite in kerping on of the wolf nin

Charles the Great it really was, the es in chariots, the on by exen. The t Pastard's second xnmple of lirnako ]. In the MS. of tican; d'Agiteost, he sun stauds still moon on the othi? fore represented is St. Maria Naggion ter has a sun and the heading of the at Pss. cxxxriii, and enring a crownd crescent ; and is as shooting " sharp onls" on the falim it at the Crueitixia
[R. St. J. T.]

SUNDAY. [Lord's Day; Week.] SUNDAY-LETTER. [EASTER, p. 593.] SUNDAYS, NAMES OF. [Year.]

SIPERIIUMERALEE. This word is primarily used in patristic Latin for the ephod of the Jewish highopriest, exactly trunslating the liaumls of the 1.XX (see c.y. Exodus xxviii, 4, 6, &e.: Jerome, Epist, 64 ad Fidjolam, § 15 , vol. i. 863: Bede, de Tibernaculo, iii. 4; Putrol, xai, 466: Rabnnus Manrus, de Mist. Cler. i, 15; Patrol, crii, 306).
The meaning of the word having thus been fixel, it seemed only natmal to later liturgieal writers, who saw in Christian restments the reproduction of the Jewish, to find a Christian repreventation of the ephod, and to eall it by this name. Accordingly the amice [Antct:] was often this called (see e,y. Psendo-Alcuin, de Div.
Off. 39, Pettrol. ci. 1242 ; Gilbert of Limerich Off. 39, Petrol. ci. 1242; Gilbert of Limerick, de Steth Ecel., Putrol. clix. 999).
The word is also used for the archiepiseopal pallium [Palaida], as by Gregory the Great (Rej. Pust. c. 14 ; Patrol. Lxxvii. 29 ; Lipist. lii. i. $25 ;$ ib. 471 [a long quotation from the preceding work]; lib. vi. 64, it. 848), nul in the Collectane 1 of Anastasius Bibliothecarius ( liclutio motionis in S. Muximun; Petrol. exxix. 610). In this last case the corresponding Greek word is $\omega \mu$ оф $\delta \rho$ oa [Omophorion]. For lurther references see Ducange's Giossary, s. v. [K. S. $]$

SUPERPOSITIO JEJUNII. An adlition of one fast to nnother, causing two, three, or

 sometines even four or six days to be passed ia total abstinence, was known in the Latin church by the name of superpositio jejunit, and in the Greek by $\dot{u} \pi \epsilon \rho \theta \in \sigma$ is, Such lengthened $h_{\text {hef }}$ oul, and the corresponding verh was intepriBftoal, superponcre. This superposition of one day of abstinence on another might take place at any time as an act of extraordinary devotion, but it was most commonly practised in Holy Week, ns a preparation for the Enster solemnities, espeeiully on Good-Friday and Easter Eve, Which were very usually kept ns a continuous frast. This practice is called by Tertullian "jejunia conjungere" (de Pationtia, c. 13), and "sabbatum eontinunm cum jejuniis parascenes" (de Jejun. c. 14). It is referred to by Cyrid of (de Jejun. c. 14). It is referred to by Cyril of Jerusalen (Catech. xviii. c. 17) when he gives as a reason for shorteuing his address, lest he should exhanst the entechumens. Epiphnnius alse, when spenking of the observance of this week, states that all Christians observed it iv $\xi \eta$ poparia, i.c. taking bread and water and salt, numl that only in the evening, but the more earnest passed the greater part or the whole of the Heek in perfect abstinence: oi $\sigma \pi \sigma o \delta a \hat{a}$ i $\delta, \pi \lambda \hat{a} s$ $\tau \dagger y \in \beta \delta \delta \mu a \delta a$ тivés (Epiphan. Eipitum. Fid. tom. ii. c. 22; cf. Hacr. 29, Nuzoraeor.; Constit. Apost.
lib. v. e. t8) Dionysins bishop of Alexanluin lib.v. e. 18) Dionysins bishop of Alexandrin in his canonienl epistle (can. i. apud Bevereg. Pondeet, tom, ii, $\mathrm{p}, 3$ ) uses the same terms, irfertit'fal and $\dot{\sim} \pi \epsilon \in \theta \in \sigma$ th when speaking of those who practise special abstinence during this week, some adding two days together, some three, scme four, some the whule six, while

SUPERSCRIPTION
1943 some reep the fast of superposition only on the Friday Friday and Saturday, and think they have done a great ihing if they hold out till break of day on Easter moruhg. This continuation of the fast from day to day during Holy Week is termed by was peeuliur said, neither the term ior the thing was peeuliar to lloly Week, but was applieable to any period of special abstinenee. So Evagrius, speaking of the strict ascetieism of the monis of l'alestine, observes, oi mó入лакıs тàs калоuдévas rinus ases "superpusitio" of abstinence for two days in succession: "rationstenditur quare nsque ad horam nonam jejunamus, us $q u e$ ad vesperam nut superpositio usque in alterum diem fiat" (De Fubried 1/undi, apud Cave, Hist. Lic. i. 103), and in the Aeta M"rtyrum Numilurum, e. 8, we find "continuatis in carcere geminis jejuniis." duplictun wns also called jojuninm duplex, or dupliuttun (Hieron. Epitaph. Pullae, c. 1). The prolongation of the Friday's fast through Saturday, which we learn from Angustine (Epist. 86), had become custmary in his time in the charch of liome and in some "f the A frican and Spanish churches, was also known by the title of "superpositio." This double fast was, with the excephealth of the months of July and August for health's sake (Labbe, i. 973), euacted by the council of Elvira, can. 26, "Errorem placuit corrigi, nt omni Sabbati die jejunium celebremus," and can. 23, "jejuniorum superpositionem per singulas menses placuit celebrati." [E. V.] SUPERPOSITIO SILENTII. This expression oceurs in the de Poenitentive Mensura of Columbanns, e. 5,6 , for the penance of total silence.
[E. V.]
SUPERSCRIPTION. The superseription and subscription of letters of ceremony early became in the Christian chareh, as elsewhere, matters of form and preseription. John the Deacon informs us (Vita Grey. iv.) that Gregory the Great in his letters used to address all bisheps as "brothers and fellow-ministers;" eleries of other orders as "dearly beloved sons;" laymen as "dominos;" nand laywomen "ns dominas," He seems in fact to have used "dominus", and "domina" nearly as equivaleut to the "sir" and "madam" of modern corre" spondence. According to the common forms of the Roman court, preserved in the Laller Diunate, letters to the Byzantine emperor are to be aldressed "Domino piissino et serenissimo, victori et triumphatori filio, amatori Dei et Domini mostri lesu Christi;" to an empress (Augustae), "Dominue piissimae filine;" to a patrician, a "Comes Inperislis obsequii," an exnrch or a king," "Domino excellentissimo "atque prae-exccllentissimo filio;" to a consul "Domino eminentissimo filio."' This is so far in accorlance with liregory's practice that "dominns" forms part of all the superseriptions, to luymen given in the Liber Diurnus, but none are given to a person of tower rank than a consnl. Prohably the prope did not communicate directly with inferior pel'suns. [Lomb, p. 1041.]

[^174]The subseriptions given in the Liber Diurnus (fib. i.) are: to an emperor, "plissimum Domini imperium gratia superaa custodiat eique omnium geatiliam colla substeraat; " to un empress, "vestrae pietatis imperimo gratin superaa custodiat, domina filin;" to a patriciad or count, "incolumem excellentiam vestram gratia superaa custodiat, domine fili;" to a consul, "Dens te incolumem custodiat, domine fili." Of eeclesiastical persons, a patriarch is addressed by the papal chaneery as "dilectissimus frater;" a bishop as "dilectissimus nobis;" a presbyter, or oue of lower rank, as "dilectissimus filius;" while to au archbshop of Raveana the superscription is "reverentissmo et sanctissime fratri cocpiscopo, servus servorum Fei." The sulseription is in each case "Deus te incolumem custoliat," with the addition " dilectissime frater, fili," &c. as the case may be. To the pope himself the superseription used-at least by the elergy of a suburbienrian church - is "Domino beatissimo papae," or "Domino sancto" (Lib. Diurn. ii. titt. 1 and 3).
[C.] SURIEL, archangel, July 15 (Cal. Ethiop.).
[C. H.]
SURPLICE. The surplice (superpelliceum) is a late modifieation of the alb with loose sleeves. There appears to be no trace of it before the end of the 12th ceatury, so that the history of it does net fall within our periol.
[R. S.] 1693.$]$
SURSUM CORDA. [Preface, p. 1693.]

SUSCEPTORES. [Sponsors.]

SUSPENSION. [Orders, Holy, p. 1496.]
SUSANNA, Aug. 11, martyr under Dioeletian; commemorated at Rome with Tiburtins (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Jct. Rom., Hieron., Notker.).
[C. H.]

swearing. [Oath; Perjury.]

SWINE, MIRACLE OE THE (in Art). The only instance of a representation of this mitraele (Luke viii. 27) given by Martigny is from a mosaic of St. Apollinarts at Ravenmi, in which the possessed kneels, at the mouth of a eave or tomb (Mark v. 3) and stretches out his hands towards the Lord, who stands before him, nimbed, while in the backgronad the swine are rushing towards the sea (Martigny, Dictionnairc, p. 241, ed. 2).
[C.]
SYMBOLISM. $\Sigma i^{\prime} \mu \beta_{0} \lambda_{0 \nu}$ means a sign by which one infers or knows a thing. It will apply in fact to any object by whose means we get a new idea of compratison, which is substituted in our own thoughts, or by general consent, for anything else; the substitution of a more obvious or familiar idea, drawn, written, or spoken, forla more recondite or importmit one, is necessary to human instruction or communication, in spite of all its various dangers of misapprehension or misapplication.

1. Symbulism of Decoration-The idolatrous misuse of picture-symholism within the body of the faithful itself, seems not to have aflected the Christian church very severely for the first three centuries.

SYMBOLISM

( $)^{\text {a }}$ The strong expressions of Tertullian (de Ilolulutria, iii.) are directed ngainst pnganism, and in his anxiety to prevent any tampering with it, he objects to all images and representations indiseriminately, and considers the painter's art unlawful. But it is evident that he virthaily excepted the scriptural emblems, such nis Clement's list (Pacdayog. iii. 11, § 59 ; see Geas, p. 712 ), and the figure of the Gowd Shepherd. He is obviously not thinking of thein at all, and indeed has to make an exception in favour of the brazen serpent soon aiter one of his most sweeping statements. In the primitive church it was so practically understood as not to need statement, that images in painting or carring, made for the sake of evnveying instruction, are an entirely different thing from images intended for use in praver. The sulject of hagas is already treated [p. xi:]. The rejugnance of the dews to the use of mages extendel, after the time of the Maceabers, erea to the making of the form of any living thing; and this would nccount of course for the stroug feeling among Hebrew Christians against both symbolic and direct representation, if it involved the use of images resembling living beings in any place of worship. This prohibition has been adopted in its fulness by lslam. Agnia, recently converted heathen would often hare nearly as strong a detestation of the idolatrous system which they had escaped from. Symbuls in the second or a subsequent generation are apt to become, first, couventional realisms, then personifications, then idols. In the middle ages, the cross, from being in the 6th century the symbil of Christ's person, hecame an object of wirship in itself, no longer an emblem of the life and death of God for man. This degeneracy of symbolism has exercised the church from the th century at least, and ran a parallel course in the Christian church and in the Hebrew. For as the Hebrews were always tempted to worship the images of the nations among whom they livel, so the Christims were tempted towards saint worship, as a traditiouna reproduction of the aucient Greek hero worship, or of Roman adoration of the manes. All mankind have a tendency either to turn symbols into images or actual tetiches, or to substitute beantiful personifications, or portraits of divine or sacred persons, for nucient conventional symbols of the entirely unsean presence of the Lord. Nevertheless, however dangerous tendencies may always exist in imagesymbolism, earved or painted, very few systems of worship, Christian or gentile, have tutally resigned its use. That the Hebrew dread of images in the apostolic days by no means prevented pions Hebrews from using pintureornmanent is proved once for all by the Jewish caticombs (larker, Phot. no. 1160, 1161). The seven-branched canullestick was painted in red of scratched in the mortar of every loculus. One of them was adorned with human figures, flowers, and lirds, including the peacock, afterwarls adopted as a Christian imuge. The earliest part of this cemetery dates from the Augustan age, but part is as late as Constantine. The Christina picturial or graphic syatem was a convenience of teaching. Those whe could not real, and per: haps could not well understand the languge used by oral teachers, had the pictures of our Lord, His miracles and history, to help them

The pictures we if they conveye The ancient famil and ancestral, anc in death belonge expectation of an illustrating both its tombs. The the dead led them sepulchres; and ia sacient Etrur Rome, bears imp nence of national tion by the ehure if only it was not
There will be (Architecture, plo x important bearing interior of the $t 0$ discovered and des bas chieff ${ }_{5}$ archite from its sarcuphas of Christian buri barisl vaults of T contain symbolism: ing immortality a there, led away dark yet beantiful guardian angels int of Day and Night, subjects known in be no donltt that with its notes of already naturalised Rome, made it easie) picture-symbolism
The relations of of enrlier religious as fullows:-Certain riss imagery, passer were there found to idulstry of the race and therefore, after were rejected by $t$ partly resumed in id the Christian church forms. Those of the hase s Christian posi posed permission of more was inherited the cherubic images being taken as preced vears of its existene Christ might be cons with cosmopolitan re Greeks were used to weuld freely adopt mall-psinting of their large halls of palaces for worship, there wo tures st sn early datethe Good Shepherd, co of the Lord's words. coms to consider that Was less mythological ite aucient E.trurian r adorning the tomb-ch will le seen what speci there were for the sep catscomils. The Etruri bnowa lifs beyond known life beyond the et forth a known one.

SYMBOLISM

artullinn (de aganism. and 1]ering with presentations painter's art he virtually ts, such as § 59 ; ses of the Good thinking of ke an excepnt soon after ents. In the ically umler. at images in sake of con:ely different se in pruyer. ated $[\mathrm{p}, 8 \mathrm{~B} ; 3]$. use of manges tceabees, even living thing; or the strong ngainst both if it involred ing beings in ohibition has lam. Again, 1 often have the idolatrons min. Symbels ention are ajt ins, then periddle ages, the ry the symm! ct of worship f the life and eracy of symfrom the th course in the w. For as the o worship the they lived, so rds saint worof the ancient a adoration of endency either ctual fetiches, nifications, of uns, for ancient atirely unseen elers, howerer exist in imagey few systems have tutally brew dread of no menns preb 1sling picture by the Jewish 0 , II 61 ). The tinted in red of oculus. One of igures, flowers, ck, afterwarls he earliest part Augustan age, The Christind convenience of reat, and jer. the language pictures of out to help them

The picturea were understood by the brethren if they conveyed no meaning to the heathen, The ancient fanily religion of Rome was domestic and ancestral, and the human symbolism of hope in death belonged to it. It held the spiritual expectation of another lifo, and of a retribution, illustrating both largely by emblem and sign in its tombs. The Roman-Etruscan reverence for the dend led them to pay grent nttention to their sepulchres; and the decorstion of burial vaults in ancient Etruria, and also in pre-Christion Rome, bears important witness to the permsnence of national custom, and the willing adoption by the church of non-Christian symbolism, fonly it was not pagsn or anti-Christian.
There will be found in d'Agincourt, vol. ii. (Architecture, pl. x.-xiii.) three illustrations with important bearing on this point. One is the interior of the tomb of the Scipios, long since discovered and despoiled under Pius IV. This has chiefly architectural or constructive interest, from its ssrcophagi and loculi-the prototypes of Christian burial in after days. But the barisl vaults of Tarquinii, which accompany it, contain symbolisms of the gravest kind, assertthere, led awny and retribution. The soul is dark yet beauny lamenting to punishment by guardian angels in cinil or Eumenides, its white of Day and Nighterceding. There are chariots subjects knownt, Seasons, and various other be no doubt thin the catacombs. There can with its notes of this enrier sepulchral art, slready noturalis future life and retribution, Rome, made it easier for the early centuries in picture-symbolism in tombs.
The relations of Christian of earlier religious system symbolism to that as follows:-Certain relics of Egyptian or Asen risn imagery, passer? into the Hebrew system, were there found to lad back at length to the idolatry of the races who had first used them, and therefore, after the Maccabenn dynasty, were rejected by the Jewish nution, though partly resumed in idea, nad as pure symbols, by the Christian church. Such were the cherubic forms. Those of the lion, the ox, and the eagle have a Christian position of their own. A supposed permission of symbolic images and no more was inherited from the Hebrew church: the cherubic images and the brazen serpent being taken as precedents. But for nearly 300 yesrs of its existence in Rome the church of Christ might be considered as a Greek colony, Gith cosmopolitan relations as well as Hebraic. Greeks were used to pictures everywhere, and would freely adopt and adapt the decorative wsil-painting of their day. In the basilicas, or lsrge halls of palaces where the brethren met for worship, there would then be symbolic pictures at an early date-principally the vine and the Good Shepherd, considered as painted texts of the Lord's words. But further, when we coms to consider that the old religion of Rome Was less mythological than sepulchral, and that its sucient Etrurinn rites dwelt so much on adorning the tomb-chambers of the dead, it will te seen what sjecial family-Roman reasens there wete for the sepulchral patntings in the catscombs. The Etrurinas had imnged an unkowa life beyond the grave; the Christiana

SYMBOLISM
1945
The following is a list of the symbols most frequently represented in painting or sculpture by the church of the first seven centuries. Most of these are treated in separate articles, or under Old Testament in Cilistian Art, or under Paganisa in Christian Art.

Symbolic personifications occur not unfrequently in enrly art, especially in the MSS. and may be distinguished from pure symbola because they are in some degree connected with mythology; perhaps with idolatry, either as derived from it or leading to it. For instance, the frequent repetition of the figure of the river-god, Jordsn, as in the celebrated Greek drawings of the Book of Joshua in the Vatican, in the grent Venctian Evangeliary, on the vault of the baptistery at Ravenna, and in the Benedictional of St. Ethelwold (Westwood, Palacographia Sacra) are harmless relics of Greek personiication. In the Greek 7th-century MS. of the Book of Joshua in the Vatican (D'Agincourt, Peint, pl. 29), the hill of the foreskins (Josh. v. 3) is represented as a young minn, and the city of Gibeon as a woman with a face full of anxiety; not to spenk of the frequent personifications of the church as an Orante, as Susanua, or even as the womnn with the issue of blood. A pic. ture of Night occurs in a Bible of the 9 thic or 10th century in the Bibliotheque da Hol at Parls, as a female figure in a dark-blue robe powdered with stars, and bearing an inverted torch. It is a benutiful reproduction of classical Imagery, combined with Gothic colour and depth of feeling. Day and night, or the sun and moon, drawn respectiyely by horses and oxen, are found in the Bible of Charles the Bold (Puhatar. Stera). [Personification.]

The range of authorities on this subject is, of conrse, very wide. The best manuals, perhaps, are those of Alt (Heiligenbilder, Lerlin, 18t5), Dr. Piper's Mythologie d. christl. Kimst, and Merz's article, "Simbilder," in Ilerzog's Encyclopädic, 13p. Munter's Simblider (1825) is strongly commended. The Abbi Auber's Symbolisme religieux is ample, and perhapes rerbose. The author miny refer to a book called Art Teaching of the Primitive Chureh (S. P. C. K. 1873). The proper authorities for the art of the Christinn cometeries will be found under Catacostes. Prof. Westwood's works contain many facts relative to MSS. Aringhi's index, in Roma Sotterranca, contaiss an excellent account of early Christian symbo!, with quoted authorities, for the most part. Lond Lindsay's work, with references to ['Agincourt's plates, is an equally briliiant and accurate mamual of Christian art and symbrlism.
11. Nymblism of Construrtion. Fitherto we have licen considering symbolic ideas as conveyed by sculpture or printing. But we ean hardly pass over the indirect or less demonstrable symbolisms of architecture, or the religions or spiritual meanings attached to styles and feaatures. What spiritual ileas did, or do, certain styles of buildirs, in fact, convey to a computent nimber of competent witnesses? and how far, by the buiders and contrivers, were the styles or features intembed to convey spiritual or any other anecial iteas?
In the first place. the churelh or temple itself is in all cases a rmbolic object, as indicaing an unseen objest if more importance than itselt. Ali its splendour, ail its grandeur, is in the nature of things coblematic of a house not made with hands. Symbolisms of the altar, nud all in which the idea ot sacrifice is involved, are mutier for the theological rather than the artistic departmeat of this work. We are coucerned only with the coustructive form of sacred buildings, whether designed by the ingenuity or piety of the ouilders, or inherent in the structure itself. Decorative symbolism is an addition to structure, unmistakably plamed and intended by those who paint or carve; while to a great extent constructive symbolism seems to depend on resemblances observed after the fact, and aualogies which the original builders may not have thought of. The teatures of a buililing typify or indicate the needs for which it was raised, or in houest architecture they ought to do so.

The simple constructive arrangements of the earlier Greek temple, passing through all the vicissitudes of time, climate, barbarism, war, and peace, developed into the Christian, even into the Gothic church, by a steady natural law of progress, which some call decadence and others development. The essential parts are always the place of the god, and the place for his ministers, with space - "temple," or "enclosure" - around, roofed, unroofed, or cloistered, for his people to stand before him. In the Hebrew temple there was strict classification; all the chosen people were sacred, and had their exclusive court; and the department of the priests was divided between their inner cloister and the sanctuary where the ministering course were employel ; but the IIoly of 'tolles still remainel, where the brightuess of God's jresence hat appenced. The later syungogue bas its choir, stanctury, and symbiolic ark or chest as n memorial of the ark of the covenant, uceurying the Jerusalem end of the building, as the Christian altur is plaed at the enst. [Omentation.] The ennstruction of a Christian church then is in itself symolic, like that of all other temples. The meanings rattached to various parts of it, or to the hurizoutal or rertical style of its arehitecture, appear to have sprung up grodually from devout inaginations of various timus. The form of the church is tracentle in all cases either to the Basiliea, or the circular buikings, baths or temples, of which the luntheon is the grandest type remaining. The church, in the tirst instance, oceupied the basiliess, or her builders mopted heathen construction, as they dil heathen painting and seuppture. But they lost no time in cunnecting meauings of their own with the building and its parts. The ship-symbolisin is fully carried out, when resemblances are coutrived in the form and arrungements of tho actusl structure; and this is certainly indicated in the well-known passage from the Apostolical Cobstitutions. (Apost. Const. ii. e. 57, erl. Cotelerii, tom. i. p. 263.$)$

There was an important symbolism connected with the crypt of the busilica, which eonaects the larger churches with the primitive worship and celebrations in the cataeombs, and may proo bably be coeval with the Book of Revelation. The altar of a cubiculum was origiually the tabletomb above the remains or a martyr [CATAcosurs]. It is searcely possible not to conaect this with the passage in Rev. vi. 9, reterring to the souls of the fiathful to death, who ery from below the altar; nor with the parallel use to which the crypt (or prison cell) of a Foman basilica was converted. In Christian hands the crypt become the tomb of the martrr or saint to whom the chureli was dedicatel, and its altar was placed directly above his sapcophagus or grare. Lord Limdsay anys the theory of an ancient charch presumed it to be built over a catacomb, but it seems probable that the catacombs were often opened from churches or their area (see s. v.). An altar in later days could not be consecrated without relics.

The arch of triumph, between the central aare and the sanctuary, in the Christian basilica. church, was figurative of the transition through denth, and the decoration of the apse and tribule are often elearly intended to give the ides of heaven or the apocalyptic Jerusalem, with the lresence of Gor [Mosaics]. See Art-T'aching of the Primitive Church, p. 163, by the author of this article.

This is matter of decoration; and the constructive symbolisnt of the simple or Roman basilica goes no further. But in Byzantinm, during the early splendour of Constantine's great works, the Eastern or absolutely Christian furm

- The introductory essay to a transiation of Book t of thrandus of Mendo's Rationale Divinorum ofliciorum by Neate and Webb should be read by all who with fur futl enumeration of symbolisms in eburch conastre. tion.
of chureh was ol male, as it were, tions by treing $r$ : The cross is now form of the chur tion and sacrilice tral cupola invol tion and soaring clamed, ahoost a the nurtherin spil sad luttiest ideas strictly horizontal dome and cujula. which gives the sweeping and climb is perspective. which or by whicl purards. The soar such as Westminste perpendicular lines, of piers and arehes tion has been worke as welt as ly the horizontal architect ling, but adapted in of a hot climate, an by morifiertions of needs of any climate. dome, rightly decorat gud does seemi, his Los expand into intinity li beautilial corollary, bearen, us the erossis the type of suffer and is built up or edi the best and truest and he alds, in a not of temples, both Chri quently painted azure to coovey the same id
The elaborate symb ture are far beyond ot

SYMBOLUM. [C SYMEON. [SIME SYMMETRIUS, M commenorated at Kon Sotker.).

Symphorianus reign of Aurelius; (JI, it. Bed., Bed. Metr. rianas in the Gothic mass for his natale (t) is mentioned in the Andochius nod Benignu mrius of Gregory has at that of 'Timotheus joint) SYMPHOROSA, J pania with her seven Adon.); commemorated Tibartina July 18 ( $H$ Wand.) ; July 21 (Bed. Mart. Vct. Aom.).
SYMPHRONIANUS artifieer and martyr ; with Claudius, Nicostritt Csuard., Adon., Vet. Rom

SYMBOLCM

Int the IVoly brighthess of a later syuamil symbintie e ark of the a end of the phacell at the istruction if elf symbulic, he meaninga to the huri"ture, anpear levout hangiof the chureh e Basilica, or temples, of lest typie re. irst instance, ders alyited theo painting time in conthe building ism is finly are contrived f the actual icated in the stolical Cen. el. Cotelerii,

sm connected

 aich conaects itive worship and may proof Revelation. lly the tableortyr ['ATA. ot to cuanect , reterring to th, who cry the parallel on cell) of a In Christian of the matyr ns dellicaten, bonve his saray says the umed it to be ems probable opened from An altar in ated without e central asre tina basilica. sition through se and tribune e the ides of lem, with the rt-Tiaching of the author of nod the con, le or Raman a Byzantium, tantine's great Christian furm
Ition of Boan I wrum oficiorvin y all who w:s

 church coastro.of church was adepterl, and the whole builling made, ns it were, enthlematief from its folumbit tinns by leing raised in the form of the crows, The cruss is now combined with the dome; the form of the church commomorates the hamiliation and sarrifice of Goll tir man, while its central cmpola involves all those ideas of aspiration and soaring victury which have since been clamed, almust as its exchusive property, by the northern spire, and eampanile. The first strictly horizontal architecture by the given in dome and cupula. It is not pare rertical height which gives the idea of aspiratiom, it is the sweequing and climbing curves of arehes or circles in perspective. Aspiring lines mesm lines in which or by which the sight is leol to travel apwards. The soaring eflect of a Guthic interiur, such as Westminster Albley, is not conveyed by perpendicnlar lines, but by the perspective curves of piers and arches. The symbolism of aspiraas well an worked ont in the dome and cupola, as well as by the pointel aryh and spire; and horizontal architecture is not necessarily grovelof a hot climate, ind the tirst instance to the nses by modifications of the weh and wault to the needs of any elimate. Without doubt the Eastern dome, rightly decorated, and seen from within, did and daes seenr, as Lord Linissay says (i. p. 63), to expand into iutinity like the valt of heaven. His beautifill corollary, that it is the emblem of heaven, as the cross-structure on which it rests is the type of suffering obedience, which in the ead is built up or edified to reach haven, is in the best and truest spirit of ancient inagery; snd he alds, in a note, the remark that the roofs of temples, both Christian and Pagan, were frequently painted azure and powlered with stars to cenvey the same iden.
The elaberate symbolisms of pointed architecture are far beyond our period, [R.St. J. T.]

SYMBOLUM. [Creed; Traditio.]

SYMEON. [SIMEON.]

SYMNETRIUS, May 26, presbyter, martyr ; commemarated nt Rome (Murt. Usuard., Alyon., Sotker.).
[C. H.]
SYMPHORIANUS, Aug. 22, martyr in the reiga of Aurelius; commemorated at Autne (II, 1 t. Bell, Bel. Metr., Usuard.); called Sintinthaus in the Gothic Missal, where there is a mass for his natale (the day unammed), and he is mentioned in the is mentioned in the prayers as a follower of Andochins nod Benignus. The Tiber Anti, honrius of Gregory has na office for his natale nad nrius of Gregory has an office for his natale and thast of Timotheus jointly. thst of 'Timotheus jointly.
[C. H.]
SYMPHOROSA, Juiy 2, martyr in Campaia with her seven sons (Mart. Usuard.
Adoa.); commemorated at Tibur Adoa.); commemorated at Tibur or on the Via Tiburtina July 18 (Hieron, Jart. Vct. Lom.).
[C. II.:
SYMPHRONIANUS, July 7 and Nov. 8, artificer and martyr ; commemorated at Rome pith Claudius, Nicostritus and others (Mart. gith Chaudius, Nicostriatus and others (Mart.
Csuard., Adon., Vet. Rom.).
[C. H.]

SYNCELIUS

1947 SYMPILRONICS, July 26 ; commemerated with olympilus and others on the Via Litina (Mturt. U. wisrd.); Dee. 4 (Mart. Vet. Kiom.)
[C. II.]
 the Greck term equivialent to the Latin Collecta, were called uevadal anger prayers in the liturgy Collects in rally rad by a deacon or their being genepax robiscum which precedel thema, from the properly aplied to precedel them. symapte is which often oced to the series of short petitions a Western example may be seen in the the which Missal (Domin. 2 may be seen in the Ambrosian expressiun avoartò aitnjocws ratery, ta the the quent repuetition of the phrave reters to the fre (Morinus, de Siteris Ordinat. p . 2.27 ; G\%aci Eacholog. pp. 46, 47).
[F. E. W.]

SYNANARIA. [Mevolomust.]

 the saints as drawn up and arranged in the Mnnata ur other ecclesiastical broks, sometimes estracted and puhbished for courenience' sake in a sepmate form by themselves.
[F. E. W.]
SYNAXIS (róvaçis). (a) A genernl name for a eourse of ecelesinstical othices, constituting the diy-hour; and night-hours of the church. Cap. vii. of the Reg. S. Colnmbani is entitled "De Synaxi, id est, de cursu l'salmurum et orawas also modo camuncio." Euch sepparate oflize was also eatitled a synnxis. Mention is malle of a vespertina symasis (liule of st. Benedict, e. 17 ; Mab, do Lit. Gell. p. 109); a matutimalis or matutinorum synaxis (Martene, Ampliss. Colt. p. 399); nonae synasis (i) shee, vace. iv. pt. i. p. 399); nonae synasis (ib, sace. v. li, 15).
(b) A cangregation or gathering it mout
(b) A congregation or gathering of monks or clergy for nay religious purpose (Cassian, lib. ij.
de Instit. Alon. eap. 10). de Lastit. Alon. cap, 10).
(c) Au equivaleut
(c) An eguivaleut term for euchari-tia (Dionys Areop, do Eccles, Hicrerr. lib. cap, iii. Areop. de Eceles, Hicrut. lib, cap. iii. ; de sacramento synaxeos sine communinis, it
(1) In a non-technical sense in passim).
with time; pontechuical sense in commexion lapse of anios ami synaxin, aiter the

[F. E. W.]
SYNCELLUS. Originally a monk occipying the samo cell with another monk; subsequently a subordinate brother who shared the celt of the abbat, or of the bishop when the latter resided in a monastery, to be the constant by his of his manner of life and devotions, who by his presence might strengthen him ngainst piety (see the nuthorition him to the practice of piety (see the nuthoritics given by Duennge, sub voc.). In later time voce.). In later times the term fost almont all designation of original meaning, and became the "syncelli:" of a high ceclesiastical ilignity, the ministers, or prive the chaplains and contidential ministers, or private secretaries, of met ropolitans and patriarehs, who very frequently became their patrinch of The number of "syncelli" of the phariarch of Countantinople attached to the but it was reduced wy at one time very large, early in tho 7th century to two. In public assem")lies nal synods the "syncelli" took precedence of the metropolitans, which, aceording to a passage cited by Suicer, once gave rise to an unsecmily squabble at the lenterostal velebration (Codin, Curopal. p. 112, ed. Bonn). The chicf of the "syneelli" at Constantinople was corrupted into пратобírүє入os (Litury. Chrys.) ; he rauke! next to the patriareh, whose spiritual director he was, a ad whose confessions he heard. He had roons in the archiepiscopal pulace, or when the patriarch resiled in a mounstery, a cell adjacent to that ocenpied by him. Cedrenus states that the "pretosyncellus" before his time had usually succeeded to the patriarchal throne on its vacancy. (Goar, Euchol.p. 112 ; Suicer, sub toc. ; Ducange, sul voc.; Codin. Annotat. pp. 112, 377.)
[E. V.]

SYNDICUS. [ADVOcate.]

SYNETUS, Dee. 12, martyr at Rome in the reign of Aurelian (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Gracc. Sirlet.).
[C. H.]

SYNOD. [C'ouncll.]

SYNODICAE EPISTOLAE. [COUNCIL, p. 475 .]

SYNODITAE. Monks are called Synoditae In the Theodusian Code, from their living in cemnunitics (auvdous) [Cosnobsum; Monastery].
[C.]
SYNOPSIS ( $\sigma \dot{v} v o \psi u s$ ). Any abbreviated compilation from the larger Othice Books of the Eastern churel and from other sources for private use.

SYNTHRONUS ( $\sigma \dot{v} v \theta \rho o \nu o s$ ). The name given to the chancel seats round and behind the altar in the Greek ehnreh, in use by the officiating clergy during the Liturgy, \&c. The Thronos, or chief seat, the bishop's thronc, occupied the central nad easternmost position behind the altor. It is marked G on the ground plan of the church exhibited in Goar's Ehcholoy. p. 13.
[F. E. W.]
SYNTYCHE, July 22, Phil. iv. 4 ; commemorated at Philippi (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Bom., Notker.).
[C. H.]
SYRINX. As in pumberless instances in ancient Pugan art the pipe is the regular accompaniment of the shepherd, so the Good Shepherd is, in Cbristian art, often represented with a pipe of seven reeds or straws. So netimes he is holding it in his hand (Bottari, Sculture e Pitture, lxxviii. ev. cix.), sometimes he holds it to his mouth (Perret, Cut. de None, v. pl. Ixriii.), somptimes it hangs on his arm (Bott. clsix.), or at hus side, suspended by a strap over the ahoulder (ib. elxxiv.) ; again, it is to be seen lying at his side, as on a fragment of ancient glass in the collection of Buonarroti (Osservazioni, &c. tav. v. 2).

This primitive musical instrument, with which ohepherds were supposed to call back their flocks to the fold, like other pastoral emblems, soon began to be used in an allegerica? sense by the early fathers. Thus Gregory Nazianzen (Or.

28,43 ), after descriling the saxiety of a shepherd, who, mounted on au eminence, fills the alr with ths melnncholy strains of lisis pipe, recommends the spiritual pastor to follow his example and try to win souls to Goll by persuasion rather than biy furce, to use the pipe rather than the stat' (Blartigny, Dict, wes Antio. chret. s. v.).
[E. C. II.]
SYROPHOENICIAN, TIIE (in Anr), The Syrophoenlcian supplicating the lord to hetal her daughter (Matt. av. 21 tl, ; Mark vii. 24 ti ) is thought to be represeuted in a bas-relief of a sareophagus from the Vatican cemetery (lowio, Roma Sott. p. 65 ; Martigny, p. 162, 2nd el.), The woman, represented of small size, kisses the hand of the Lord, while an apestle behiu: her lays his hand on her shoulder. The it ntitication of this figure with the woman of C'snaan is however by no means eertain (Martigny, biet. des Antiq, chret. s. v. Chanuménne).
[C.]
SYRUS, Sept. 12, confessor ; commemolated with Eventins at Ticiaum (Mart. Usuard, Alon., Vet. Rom., Notker.).
[C. H1.]
SYSTATICAE EPISTOLAE. [Соммея. datory Letters. 1

T

TABITHA (in Art). The subject of ths resurrection of Tabitha is not to be found, as far as is known, on any Roman menument, bat two instances ocenr in France. One of these is on a sarcephagus, supposed to be of Sideaius, bishop of Aix, secmingly as early as the 4th century, aud still exjeting in the crypt of St. Madeleine at the abbey of St. Maximin (Monum. relat, a $S^{\text {ee Mudelcine, t. i. col. 767). In agreement }}$ with the Scriptural necount, St. I'eter is represented stauding and holding out his havd to Tabitha. The bed on which she is represented sitting up is furnished with curtaius suspended by rings from a rod, and uear it two children of unerpal height kneel and extend their hands to the apostle in token of gratitude. On the other side of the bed ia a front view of two female figures in a dress very like that ef modern nans, which is supposed to have beea the dress of widows in the earliest Christian times. These two figures are of course intended for the widows spoken of in Acts ix. 39. The other instance referred te repeats all the features of the one already deseribed, and is to be seen on a tomb in the museum of Arles, No. 71). The same subject is also found on a sareophagus in the cathedral of Fermo, with this ditlerence of treatment, that all the persons represented sro taken from the Acts of the Apostles, and are in some way connected with the life of St. Peter. (Martigny, Düt. des Antiq. chiet. s. v.)
[E. C. II.]
NABULARIUM. A name sometimes giren to the muniment-room of a church in which the arehives were kept. It was ordered in the legislation of Justinian, and sfterwards ia that of Chrrlemagne, that documents of special import. ance should bo deposited in the thbularia of clurehes. (T. Eekhart, Schediasma de Tubulariss Auti,uis, 1717 ; J. C. Beheim, de Architis sint Tabulariis Vet. Christian. Altorf. 1724.) [C.]

TALIONIS Ll MENT, p. 469.$]$
TANIST ABB jaws of Tanistry, (Reeves, St. Adcum exercised a certain teauit, Ann. Tig. Hib. Seript. iv. 224) (Skene, Fordun, ii. $265 \mathrm{sq} ., 274 \mathrm{sq} . ;$ Anc. /r. iii. 600.)

TAPERS. [Lig

TARACUS (TH. with Probus and An persecution (Murt. 1 Notker., Wand.); Oe Byzant.); Sept. '&7, May 1 is in Palestine Notker.).
TARASIUS, Feb. tiaople (Basil. Meno Grace. Sirlet.).
TAILBUA, Apr. 2 Sapor, sister of bisho Nitker.).
TARRAGONA, C conensla Concllas). limits.

1. A.D. 464, to cet Calahorra, for ordain sud to appoint to th racant. The alleged la pape Hilary have been Reman synod of the $y$ 957).
2. A.D. 516, when eipline were passed. to John, Lishop of Tarrugo 539-46.)
TARSUS, COUN( Covellial), A.D. 431 an sereral bishops returni met and deposed St. Cyi Who had been sent thit Ephesus against the Ea the secoud when liel Trisus, and several of $h$ alhesion to the peace Antioch and St. Cyri Nesterius. (Il. p. 1179 .
TATLANA, Jan. 12, tre nuder Alexander S Cal. Byzant.; Mcnol. Gr
Tatianus (1), m menoratei at Aquiieia (Hart. Usuard.); Mlar. 17
(2) July 19, martyr; Hacedonius and others at Sejt, 12, with Maceloniu: Julian, the place not nan let.).

TAURINENSE CON

TAURINUS, Aug. 1

TALIONIS LEX

God by per. 1se the pipe t. Iles Anti]. [E. C. II.]

N Abr). The If to heal her vii. 24 (f.) is 8-relieft of 8 etery (Busio, 32, 2nd el.). e, kisses the e behinst her The id ntifiIn of Cauain rtigny, lict.
[C.] mmemosated uard., Alun.,
[C. H.]
[COMMEY.
bject of the found, as tar ent, but two these is on ooius, bishop 4th ceatury, it. Madelene uum. relat. à agreement t. P'eter is put his hand he is repreith cartaits near it tro and extend of gratitude. front view of like that of :o have bees st Christian azse intended ix. 39. The I the features is to be seen No. 71). Tho reophagus in dithereace of oresented are es, and sre in of St. Peter, v.) [E. C. H.] etimes girea in which the 1 in the legis. Is in that of ecial itupert - iubularia of de Tibulariis Architis sir6 28.)

Talionis lex. [Corromal Punish-TANIS'T ABBAT, necorling to the Celtic laws of Tanistry, was the abjut designate (Reover, St. Addmanan, 364, 379), nad may have exercised a certain nuthority (principntum the tenuit, Ann. Til. A.d. 707, пp. O'Connr, Rer. Hib. Scrijit. iv. 224), but the matter is obscure. (Skene, Fordun, ii. $4+1$ sq. ; Vallency, Coll. i .
 Anc. 17. iii. 600.)
[J. G.]

tapers. [Lights; Paschal Tafer.]

Taracus (Tharacus), Oct. 11; martyt with l'roobus and Andronicus in the pioeletian persecution (Murt. Usinard., Alon., lot. Rom, Say iser. in Pulestiue (Ilieron.); Apr. 5 (Ilieron., Notker.).

(C. II.]
tarasius, Feb. 25, patriareh of Constmtinople (Bisil. Menol; ; Cal. Byzant, ; Mentan-Grace. Sirlet.).
[C. H.].
TARBUA, Apr. 22, martyr in Perria under Sapor, sister, of Lishop Simeon (Mart. Usuard., Notker.).
[C. H.]
tarragona, councils of (Tarracovessia coschasa). Only two fill within our limits. limits.

1. A.D. 464 , to censure Silyunus, bishop of Calahorra, for ordaining out of his diocese ; and to appoint to the see of Barceloun, then rwant. The alleged Jettors from this council to pmpe filary have been noticed under na nalleged lioman synoll of the year following (Mansi, vii.
9957 ). 2.
2. A.D. 516, when thirteen camons on discipline were passed, to which ten bishopss under Jeha, bishop of Tarrugona, subseribed. (n. viii.
539-46.)
[E. S. Ff.]
tarsus, COUNCILS OF (Tarsensia Coxcluat), A.D, 431 und 435. The tirst when sercal bishops returning from Constiantinople met nud deposed St. Cyril nad the seven bishopls Mho hal beea sent thither from the council of Ephesus against the Easterns (Mansi, r. 1147); the seeund when Hellalius, metropolitan of Tarsus, and several of his sutfri, gans, gave their adhesion to the pence male adhesion to the pence male between John of Antiech and St. Curil, and Antiech and St. Cyril, and nuathematised Nestorius. (Ib. p. 1179.) nad nuathenatised
[E. S. FF.]
TATLANA, Jun. 12, Roman denconess, martyr under Alexauder Severus (Banil. LConol.; Cal Byzant.; Monol. Grace. Sirlet.). [C. A.] (a. byzant.; Monod. Grace. Sirlet.). [C. H.]

TATIANUS (1), Mar. 16 , deacon, commemorated ut Aquibeia with bishop Hilarius memorated ut Aquiieia with bishop Hilarius (Hut. Jsuard.) : Mur. 17 ( Notker ). (Mart. Usuard.); Mirr. 17 (Notker.).
(2) July 19, martyr; commemornted with Sppt. 12, with Bracedonius and Theodulus, under Julian, the phace not paned let).
[c. 11.]
taurinense concilium. [Turin.]
TAUKINUS, Aug. 11, hishop of Evreux, anfesor (Mart. Usuard., Mieron.).

TE DECM
1049

tecla. [Thecla.]

TE DREMS. The hi,tory of this wondrow, hymu is olseure. Although no version of it in Greek hav as yet been met with, thure can be little doubt that large portions of it were drawn from Greek or Oriental sources. Tuking our modern ver modern version as our text, we shall tind that it consists of twenty-nine clunves. Of these the first ten are eclosely connected with the Eucharistic hymn of the liturgy of Jerusalem. We find tho germ of the next three in the Norning ilyman of the Last nine clanses thandrine manuscript. Of the to be found inses those numbered 22,23 , are tuagiut). The Psalm xxvii. 9 ('ulg. or SepMorning Hymn nibove three are found in the tical with Pinna anove referred to; 27 is itentical with $P$ salm exxii. 3; 29 is clearly derived frum Psalm $x$ xi. 6 .
The conclusion of the hymn varies from our received text in three series of important manurecrint scripts.
sury survived the sack of a French monastery, and, anter being purchased by Queen Christiman of Sweden, was given ly her to the library of the Vatican (hey. xi. or Vat. Alex. xi.), we have the following elauses: "Beneflictus es Lomine Dens jatrum nootrorum et laudahile et gloriosum nomea tuun in neternnm. Dignare die ita sine sine peecato nos enstodire." In nuother MS, at the the vitican, No. 82, we have neurly the same clause " clause: "Benedictus es Domine," "ce. We may ${ }_{25}$ compure this, together with the clauses 24, ${ }^{25}$, 26 still remaining in our verrion with the following portion of the Alexnardine hyma, and the complarison will shew Alexandrine hyma, is the origin of these elauses :-
kai eis róv aīva toû aī̀vos.

It will have been seen that there are four different conclusions to this hymn. Speaking generally, all the copies are the same ull to and ${ }_{82}$ ineluding our elnuse 21; but the Vatican Ms. 82 (a Romaa 1 psilter), after 21 , has only 24,25 , 22,23 , coneluting with the Benelictus es, ns 29 abuve. That is, it omits altogether $26,27,28$, 29, and so far severs itself from the Greek hymm. The Vat. Alex. xl. a magnificent psalter, containi ig the versio Hebraica of Jerome, omits in the Te Deunn clauses $24,25,28,29$, and reads thus: 22, 23, Benedietus es, 26, 27. A third revsion was curreat in Ireland. In the hymnbook edited by Dr. Toodd for the Irish Archieological and Celtic Society, p. 194, and in the hymn contained in the Antiphonary of Bangor (now one of the treasures of the lijimury at Milan) the order is $22,23,24,25,28$. They leive out 26, 27, 29. These versions are introdure duced by the words "Lnudate pueri Dominum; laulate nomen Domini" (see the Bangor Antiphonnry, tu Migne, 72, p. 58?). Thlese last verses precede the hymn also in the copy contained tnined in the lsidtore MS. now in the Franciscan convent nt Dublin. At the end of the copy in Dr. Todd's Book of Hymus, p. 19, is the folfowing:

TE DEUM

"Te Patrem aloramas eternun : te sempiternum filium inhucamus: teque spiritum anctum in uma diuhitatis substantia maneatem confitemur. Tibi uni beo in Trinitate debitas lan les et gratias referemus ut te incesisibili unce taudare mereamur per eterna seenla." These words also oceur in the Francisean MS., but they are not arranged in versicles in the Irish hyma-book. The order in the Bangor Antiphoanry is the same as in the Irish hyma-book. According to Muratori, the "Te latrem aloramus" is not fonal in this Antiphonary; but towards the end of the MS. there are some curious fragments sewn together (not noticed by Muratori), amongst which the above address to the IIoly Trinity is incerted, nal also another, which is Hentical with it as flar as the werd coufitemur, and then proceeds:-
"Tibi Trinitas laudes et gratias referemus; tibi uni Deo incessabilem dicimus laudem; to patrem iogenitum, te filium unigenitum, te spisitum sanctum a patre [et filio is aldel in the margin] procedeatem corde credimus; tibi in:testimabili incomprehensibili omapotenti deo qui regans in aeternum."
The result of this invastigation seems to be that the Te Deum, even in its carliest torm, was regarded, like the Morning Hyma of the Alexandrine NS., as a hymn sung to the IIoly Trinity, even though the work of eur Lord predomiantes in its latter clauses.
The earliest notice of it that has been discovered is in the Rule of Caesarius (abont A.D. :27). According to it on every Sunday there were to be first six misuce or prayers ; these finished, the Matins were to follow. Exaltabo te (Psalm exlv.) ; then Confitemini (exxxvi. (?); then Cautemus Domine (the cauticle in Exodus xv.); Lauda, anima mea (Psalm cxlvi.) ; Benedictio (the Benelicite omnia opera Domini Dominum); then Laudate Domiaum de caelis (Psalm exlviii.) Te Deum laudamus, Gloria in excelsis, and the Capitellum. The Rule of Aurelian was somewhat similar. Columbanus, who was coanected with the Irish Bangor, anil fonuded the monastery of Bobio, where the Baagor Antiphonary came from, does not mention the canticles or Te Deum in his rule; but it is werthy of notice that this Antiphonary gives the hymns Canticum, Cantemus Domino, Bencdictio trium puerorum, Benedicite," Ilymnum in die Dominico, Laudate pueri Dominum; laulate nomen Domini; Te Deum laudamus" in the erder of the rule of Caesisius. Only the litroduction to the Te Deum is furnished by the two verses of Psalm exii. instend of P'salm exlviii. : the same twe varses which precede the Te Deum in the two Irish hymn-boeks.
Towards the end of the Banger Antiphenary, as given by Muratori, are series of five or six sets of short prayers to be used after the Cantemus, after the Benedicite, after the Laudate Dominum do ceelis, and after the gospel. Internal evideace shews that the Laukhte Dominum de caelis included here the To Doum; and the prayers furnish a beautiful illustration of the Rule of Ciesarius.

Columbanus died sbout 615, Caesarios about 542, but there is ene expressien in the Te Doum which seems to csrry us back to an earlier date, We refer to the phrase "suscepisti hominem," for such was the nniversal reading until $A$ bbe of Fleary altered it to " вusrepturus." There are two realings of the verse. The two Irish manuseripts remi, "Tu ad liberamidum mundum suscepisti hominem." All the other oll copies which have been examined emit the word "mundum." In either case the rerse means, "Thou didst take upon thee man" or "n man" either " to deliver him" or to "deliver the world." The phrase "suseepit hominem" was current in the time of St . Augustine, but went out of tavour ntter the Nestorisa controversy ; it gave way to the phrase "adsumpsit lumanitatem " or "humanam naturam.". (We find the words "ad liberanlos homines" as deseriling one object of our Lorl's Incarmation in Augustine's lettors No. 137, § 11). We conceive that so fur there is sufficient eridence that the worls of the hymn may date from the time of st. Augustine.

The titles which we find prefixed to the hymn in various 1 salters are interesting in themselves, and may perhaps throw some light upon the localities where theso pasalters were written. 'fhe hymn is not found in the oldest paniters, as in those at Bamberg and Vcrona uml the original Vesjasian A 1 (which no doubt belonged to St. Augusthe's monastery, Canterbury, and which was phacel in a kind of recess or sholf over the high altar on the supposition that Augustine brouglat it from Rome, a present from Gregory the Great), or the original Galba A, xviii. It is found in several psalters written in the 9th century. The title "Hymus in Die Dominica ad matutin." or "ad matntin. in die dominien" is pretixed to it in Marinus' podter at C. C. C. C'ambrilye (No. $27^{2}$ ) ; in the beautiful psalter of Charles the Ball nt Paris; one at St. Gall, 15 ; another at C. C. C. 411 ; and the secoud part of Galba . 1 , xriii. In the benutiful volume at Oxford, Dence, 59, it is entitled "Hymnus in Die Dominica." In the latter part of Vespasiun A 1, in Chaulins C. vii. (the Utrecht psalter), Harleian 2904, and the quadripartite psalter at Bamberg it is called simply "Hymnus" or "Ymnem in matutinis," or otherwise to the same effiect. In the hastnamed psalter there is an uttempt at a Greek version as far as clause 12, when it ceases. la St. Gall 20 we find the worls "hymuus domin. pro nect. hoc est ante lectionem evangelii," and in Arundel 155, "hymnus doms. necturna laud. can." In the fermer as well as in St. Gall 23 (Folkard's magnificent psalter), the words "Te decet laus, te decet ymnus, tibi gloria, dowine, patri et filio et spiritui sancte in saecula saectlorum. Amen," are at the ead of the hymn. la what is called Bacen's psalter in the Cambrigge University Library it is entitled "Hymus optimus." In Reg. 2 B. v. at the British Museum "oratio pura cum laudatione." In st. John's College, Cambrilge, c. 15, "laus angelica," Then we come to a series in which the title is prefised, "hymnus quem S. Ambrosius et S . Augustinus invicem condidernnt." This is found in Vienna, 1861 (the famous psalter siil to have been sent by Charlemagne to Halrian: Daniel "confesses that he had always suspected that additions were made on the end of this psalter hy a later hand "), Vitellins E. xviii.; St Gall 23 (Folkard's) and 27. This or sonte equio valent title prevaileal in later years. In a psalter at Salzburg, A. v. 31, "hymnus Augustini." In several notable psalters sich as that in the grat

Venice bible no Lsmbeth 197, s title prefixel. "haee est hats sa tinus sanctus et blshop Ussher see scripts in which $t$ one Nicetis: one Such a volume car Norfolk Library, "Arundel 60," th "YMit' sci viefti sud there are two Col. iii. and viii. are fount. Elgew it is described as " "S. Abundii;" spellings of the sau
These memorand effort to trace these sources or to the lo Many of the titles in the rules of Caes In this last the $T$ from the Gogpel, th vigils of the Sumlay to nocturns is intere was the same, thoug sloo interesting to ac as new, the To Deu the Gospel.
The words " Te gl hare recalled to ma sage at the ond of talitute, "illic apea illic prephetaram e martyrum innumeral
The Te Doum laud Alcuin in his beok de pp. 468, 469). It is p. 592. But the text "suscepisti."

TEKLA HAIMA spostle of monachism

TELEPTE, COU Telense, or Zelleen We have ten canons by Ferrandus, and nin with them, in a lette bsse been recited at pressions in both caleu their authenticity; Zosimus, who was thet alleged letter of his fo lection ; nar are the $n$ letter in Ferrandus of sll through quotes $t$ council, sad never of differ; see Rome, Coun iv. 379-82; comp. Cav

TELESPHORUS
martyr, Jan. 5 (Mar Rom., Wand.); Jan. 2 (

TEMPESTARIUS,

 tatum immissor, N $\in \phi$ Word Balsamen (Comme 61) understands a divin tlouds ; but the earlier
TEKLA HAMMANOT

Veniee bible and Paris 13,1: J, c. c. c. 391 , Lsmbeth 197, Silzhurg A. v. 30 , there is no "title prefisel. The frish hook of hymus has "haree est lans sanctae Triultatis quain, Augustinus sanctus et Amlrooius comprosult." Archhishop lissher seems to have seen twe manuseripts in whieh the composition was ascribed to one Nicetus: one was in the Cotton Lilrary. Such a volume cannot now the funnal, but in the Norfolk library, now in the British Museum, "Arundel 60, " the hym is introduced thus, "YMit' sci vieeta epr men; pomin. al matur." and there are two MSS, at Florence, Plut. xvii. Col. iii. and wiii. where nearly the same words gre foum. Elsewhere (see Oudin, t. i. 1 . G68) it is deseribed " it is deseribed as," Sisebuti," "Siselyuti imonaehi," "S.i. Ahumili;" these probably are pheieietic spellings of the same name.
These memornnda may possibly assist in the effort to trace these manuseripts to their original sources or to the loenlities where they were usel. in the rules of Ches In this last the $T_{e} D_{\text {elun }}$ preeceded the lesson from the Gospel, the $T_{i}$ decet followed it on the vigilis of the Sundiays. The ehange from mattine to nocturns is interesting. Of course the service to nactirns is interesting. Of course the service was the same, though the was the sime though the name was altered. It is also interesting to notice that in the 7 th century, as now, the $T_{c}$ Deum preceded the lesson from the Gospel. the Gospel.
The words " Te gloriosus apostolorum chorus" have reaalled to many minds, the beantiful passage nt the end of Cyprian's treatise de MIMortubitute, "illic npestolorum gloriosus cherus, illic prophetarum exultantiun numerus, illic martyrum innumerabilis populus."
The $T_{e}$ Dcun lauthumst is mentioned twice by pp. 468, 469). It is entitled Mymnun dominicale, p. 599. But the text has been mederoized "suseepisti." But text has been medernized in the tekla haimanot, Aug. 17, Dee. 20, spostle ef monachism in Ethiepia. (Cal. Ethiop.).
[C. A. S.]
TELEPTE, COUNCIL OF (Tele. H.] Telense, or Zellenge Conilluum); A.D. 418. We have ten canons attributed to this conncil by Ferrandus, and nine, by no means identieal with them, in a letter of with them, in a letter of pope Sirieins, said to have been recited at it. There are several expressions in both calculated to suggest doubts of their authenticity; ner was it Sirieing their authenticity; nor was it sirieins, but Zosimus, who was then pope; nor, agnain, is this alleged letter of his found in the Dionysian col. alleged letter of his found in the Dionysian collection ; nor are the marginal references to letter in Ferrandus of any value, as Ferrandus sil threugh quetes the exact words of the council, and never of the pepe, where the two differ; see RoMe, Counclis of, A.D. . 386. (Mansi, Ir. $379-83$; comp. Cave, Hist. Lit. i. 15. 379-82; comp. Cave, Hist. Lit. i. 473.)
[E. S. Ff.]
TELESPhorus (Thelrsphonus), pope, martyr, Jan. ${ }^{5}$ (Mart. Usuard., Aden., Rem, Wand.); Jan. 2 (Flor., Notker.). [C. H.]. Rem, Wand.); Jan. 2 (Flor., Notker.). [C. H.]

 Ford Balsamen (Comment. in Conc. Trullan. can.
6 f) understands

TEMPLUM

at Respansa ad Ortholbans, loper sribed to "Hstin, makes it ithentienl with tempersturius. "How is it," bis gurrist demnuls, "that they who are ralleel $\nu$ ¢申osiüktac contrive by meatus of certain inventions to send , hail and excessive rains wherever the riains wherever they please" (Qu. 31). The reply denies that reply denies that any lave such prower; fut this reminaan of heathen superstition prevailes widely among all clasess nmong all classes of Chritians froun the th eentury downwaris. A law of Constantius, 357 , dechlares that thero were "many who dared to disturb the ellenents ly magyir whts, (Cothe Theodus, ix. I0, v.). The ofience, which seems to have been nure common in France than anywhere alse is Where else, is frequently inentioned in the carlovingin Vingian laws (Curn. M. 789, Cuyit. i. 63 (Capit.
 "impuiser A law of the Visiguths tells us that imnissores tempestatum " were "reprortel by means of certnin incanta viuevards naid crols": (Ins to send hail on the declares that ahanst every one in his sulpect, France, of whatevert every one in his part of power, of whatever condition, believed iu their power, and that a storm ascribed to it was commonly called "aura levation" (Cown mommony called "aurs levatitia" (Contra insulsam Tullyi Opiniunen de Graudine ct Tonitruis, 1.12, 14). They also belieyed in a country called Magonia, from which ships came to the earth in the storm elouls, whose sailors bought of the tempestarii the fruits nand corn that appeared to perish here (2). This imaginary erime is punished by the Greek eouncil in $T$ rello (6. s.) with six years' penanee, Latin penitentials assign seven to it (Halitgar, Poen. Iom. c. 5 ; Cum Cumeanus Hyens.," A.D. 630, de Mensur. Poenit. 7; Theodor. Cant., Poenit. 356, p. 73, Par, 1677); the old Gallican alds that three of the seven are to be on bread and water (Hus. Ital. i. 3993).
[W. E. S.] ChempLUM for a Christian church. In the Christian writings of the first three centuries is searrum " maintains its pagan meanaing, and is searely ever used to denete a Christian church.
Wherever pads or "templum Christer vais or "templum" oecur with a Christinn reference it is-almost nniversally in a metaphorical metaphorical sense. In the passage from Ignatius (ad Majnes, c. 7) Tdures oủv ©̈s eis eiva local reference which cannet be ignored is subordinate to the spiritual. The early fathers are unanimers in spiritualising the idea of a temple, Th applying it to the heart of the Christian. Thus Barrablas in answer to the inquiry whether the temple of God still exists, replies that it does, but it is the heart of Christian $\pi \nu$ vunartuǹs

 i $\mu \hat{\nu} \nu \tau \hat{\eta} \mathrm{y}$ кapsias (ibid. e. 6); nad Augustine, to quote one out of an infinite number of similar passages, writes, "Simulaerum Deo nefas est Christiano in templo enloeare ;" how much mere to adnit evil passions into the true temple of his heart 1 de Fid. et Symbol, c. 7). Passagges are, however, to be found in which "templung " and vab́s are unmistaknbly used tor a sacred Christian bniling. Ambrnse, writing to Marcelina ( $E \mu .33$ ), says that, on the uew basilien being demanded of him for Arian worship, "respondi, templum Dei a sacerdote tradi non posse." Lac-

* Cumeanus Hyens., A.D. 630.

TENEBRAF

tantius also (de Inst. lih. v. c. 2) states that at the time he was summoned to Bithyula to teach orntory "the temple of God was overthrown." The word vaós is also of frequent occurrence In the Inter books of Eusebius's Eercsiastical Jistory for the churches rebullt after the pereqeıpouévouy ( $H .$, I: lib. x. c. 2), and says of that erected by l'aulinns at Tyre, vè́s $\phi і \lambda o \pi \delta \nu \omega y$ ใбке́́arto (ibid. c. 4). Nany other examples are referred to by Bingham iVIII, 1. 6).

TENEBRAE, The office of Matins and Lauls in the last three days of Woly Weck, at which a triangular candlestack with fifteen candiles is used, one of which is extinguisheil after each $\mathrm{p}^{\mathrm{sa}}$ lan. The last one ls, however, held behind the altar durirg the Benedictus, and is thea brought back to typify Christ's resurrection from the dead. Allusions of Alcuin and Amalarius prove such an office, with local variations, to have existed in the 8th cent. (Nartene, de Ant. Ec. Rit. iv. xxil. § 2).
[F. E. W.]

TERCE. [Hours of Prayer.]

TERENTIUS, April 10, African martyr under Decius (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.); Apr. 10, Oet. 28 (Menol. Graec. Sirlet.)
[C. H.]
TERMON, receiving etymolngies more or less fancilul as terra immuais, terre-molne or terra monachorum, and the Saascrit tarman, is probibly the Irish form of the Latin termianiz, and was originally the name given to a place of sanctuary, marked off by its stones set up as bouadaries. Hence it was applied to all lands belonging to a sanctuary, and more generally to all church lnads. As such the termons were entirely free from secular control or interfereace; they might be mensals to the bishop or monastery, or let to tenants for maintenance, service, or money rent, and he whe had charge of the termon lands was called the erenach, whose importance is shewn by his name being often found in the Irish ananls. The immunity of the termons from all lay exactions was affirmed by the council of Cashel (c. 4), A.D. 1172, as an old right that had been encronched upan by the liny lords. In the year 831 (Four Mest.), and agnia In 844 , the Irish annals record the buraing and pillaging of the termon or terra immunis of St. Ciaran at Clonmacnoise. The presence of a termon is frequeatly found in the nomeaclature of Irish tojography. (Ord. Surv., Londonderry, 50,208 sq.; Ussher, wks. xi. 421 sq.; Val. lancey, Coll. 'de Reb. Hib. 1. 132-3, 158 sq., 179 sq., 2nd ed.; Lanigna, Eccl. Hist. Ir. iv. c. 26, n. as, c. 29, § 3 ; Robertson, Scot. under her Early Kings, i. 329 sq., ii. 469 ; Killen, Eccl. Ihist. Ir. i. 109 ; Girald. Camb. Hib. Exp. i. c. 35, whs. .281 sq.; Ware, Ir. Ant. c. 17 ; Four Mfast. by O'Donovad, i. 447, 471, et al.; Joyce, Ir. Names of Places, 2ad ser. 208-11, very full and appesite.)
[J. G.]

TERSANCTUS. [Preface, p. 1696.]

TERTIUS, Dec. 6, martyr; commemorated in Atrica with Dionysia, Dativa, and others (Mart. Usuard., Aden., Vet. Rom.).
[C. H.]
TERTULLA, Apr. 29, rirgin; commemerated with Aatonia (Mart. Usuard., Adon.).
[C. H.]

THEATRF

TESLFON (CTEstpuion), May 15, blahop of Verginm in Spain (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Iom.).
[C. H.]
THESSFILII. A word necurring in the life of C'nesarius of Arles by Messianus and Stephen, published by Mabillon (Act S Simetorum ordinis Rewedicti, vol. 1. 672), who explains (not. in loc.) tha worl as mennling "qualrati ptonnicull fovento stomncho appositi." See also Ducange's Glossary, s, v.
[R. S.]
TESSERAE. In the tlme of persecution, Christians recognised each other by secret signs or symbols, whether spoken as watchwords or pictorial. [Gesis; Rinas; Seals.] Simail tablets engraved with such symbols were called tesserac. Tesserne were given in particular to the newly hajutized (tesscrac baptismules), and the small fish of bronze or crystal which are frequently found, are believed to have served this purpose [Fisit, p. 674]. It seems also probable that Christians, llks their pagan forefathers, gave tesserae to each other as pledges of friendship (Martigny, Dict. des Antiq. chret. s. v. Tessères).
[C.]
TETRAPODIUN, a term in general use for nay table with four feet; in special use for the table on which the bread ard wine for oblation, the oil for consecration, &c., were placed in the Enstern Church. It usually stood near the iconostasis on the north side of the holy dours.
[F. E. W.]
THADDAEUS, apostle, June 19 (Basil. Mfenol.) ; Junc 19, Aug. 21 (Mcnol. Gr(we.); July 20, Nor. 30 (Cal. Armen.) ; Aug. 20 (Cal. Byzant.) ; Oct. 28 (Bed.).
[C. II.]

THADDEUS. [JUDE, p. 891.]

 recess benenth the altar of a Greek church, used for the same purposes as the Western piscina. A detailed description of its shapes, ornamentation, and use is given in Goar's Eucholog. p. 15.
[F. E. W.]
THALELAEUS, May 20, physician at Anazarbus, martyr under Numerian (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.). [C.H.]

THANKSGIVING. [Evcharist, p. 624.]
THARSICIUS, Aug. 15, acolyte, martyr at Rome; commemorated on the Via Appia (Mart. Usuaril., Adon., Vit. Rom.).
[C. H.]
THEATRE. The objections of the tenchers of the early church to the theatrical profession, and the reasons on which those objections were chiefly founded, have been partly stated under AcTors; it will here consequently be necessary to consider aimply what the church taught, and on what grounds, as regarded the lawfulaess of witnessing such performances.
Here the maxim enunciated by the author of the treatise, do Spectaculis, that it was uolawful to witness what it was unlawful to do, "proo hibuit enim spectari quod prohibuit geri" (de Spect. c. 4 ; Migne, Patrol. iv. 340), wouid supply a rendy solution of the question; ner is it necescary to inquire what was taught as te the desirability of being present at grossly immond and indecent per by the early fathet 34:7-1; Tutian, u de spectisenl's, we slove treatize de to Cyprian, obser lawfil to teach wh $8+1$ ), ral declare aights to witness aromnd, the rishag of the twinkling Civit. Dci, ii. 8), between the corrse sud conedies or t plays heing, he sn language, while th In a scheme of lihe bis Cunfessions (iii ances he had him stque tragicn," mul as "vel antiguno clearly implies tha Its ground.
That the stagemig moral lessons was at te the primitive eh summarily dismisse c. 27), who ndyises look upon whatever discern in stage pro than "drops of hon of tonds " (Nigne, i. the recognition of $C$ majority of the pop Christian, it was fou suppress such exhibit the ganes and combu stituted very nearly t the lower ovders (At c. 4). Hence the ut appears to have buan of the actor among $C$ as far as possible the po performances. The $t y$ canons, recited at the year +19 , forbids that shail be given on Su sacred in the Christia is the case, and especi goes on to siny, " the p the church," "populi scelesian conveniunt. these performances majority is, however, fact that the same cano shall not be compellod oportcre etiam quemq ad haec spectacula" (M the council of Arles, A forbidilen to take part plays, but nothing is present as spectaters Conciliengesch. ii. 28 3). in his day the thentre than even the celebration martyrs (Scrm. 8.4; Mig In the East the untiri Chryonstom attacks these Migne), ii. 337, 682; is 71,426 ; viii. 120, 188, in which he indulges, e umong the Christian com and Inderent perfirmanneg like those referred to by the early tiuthery hy the early tithers (Minurins Felix, octurits, Ip. de Spectionls, w. 10 and 17). The anthor of the to Cyprinu, observes that "at the thentre it wns 841), and dectures that the law forlmate" (Migne, alghts to withess, "the thristian has i,etter around, the rising and setting sun, the evolutlons of the twiukling stars," &e. Anguxtine (lle Civit. Dei, li. 8), however, draws a distinction betwent the coarse representntlons of the mines, sind comedies or tragedies, -the latter class of plays being, he saye, nt least free from tilthy io a scheme of their study is approved by elde is io n scheme of liberal educention for youth; in ances he had himself witnenseal the perfurmstque tragica," nud of witnesseet he "Inctuns $n$ as "vel auti"une vel falsne,", langunge which clearly implies that the ancient dranm still held Its ground.

THEATHE

That the stage might be mnde a menns of toaching moral lessons wns n theory eridently not unk inown to the primitive church, althuyg the plea is summarily dismissed by Tertullian (de Spect.
$c, 27$, who c. 27), who advises those whom he naddresses to liscern in stange proluctions of good they may mother than "drols of honley intermingleot wing better of tunds "(Migne, i. 659). Whell, however, with the recognition of Christinnity by the state, the majurity of the population becrame proflessedly Christian, it wns found nltogether impossible to suppress such exhibitions. In conjunction with the gnines and combnts of the circuss they conthe lower orlers (Anuminn of the diversions of e. 4). Hence the utimnst the church could do do appears to have ban to prohibit the profession of the actor among Christians, nnd to discournge as iar ns possible the popular pussion for thentrieal performances. The twenty-eighth of the African canons, recited nt the counral of Carthnge in the yenr 49 , forbids that "s spectacula thentrorum" " thall be given on Sundafs or other days held sacred in the Christimn callendnr, for when such is the case, and especinlly at Enster, the canon the church," " "populif people prefer the circus to teclesiam conveniunt." The popularity which these performances still possessed for the mjority is, however, clenrly nttested by the fact that the snme canon enjoins that Christinus dhall hot be compolled to witness them,-"nee at hnee spectaculaenqunm christianorum cogi the council of Arles, A.D. 452, Christians were forbididen to take part in the performnnce of piars, but nothing is snid about cheir being present as spectnotors (Mansl, vii. 881; Hefele, in his day the thentre. Leo the Great snys thnt in his day the thentre a ttracted greater throngs than even the celebrations at the than even the celebrations at the festivals of the martyrs (Serm. $8 .+$; Mige, liv mstyrs (Serm. 8.8 ; Migne, liv. 335).
In the East the Chrymantum attacks thesc exhibition with which Migne), ii. 337,$682 ;$ iv. $696-7$; vi. 267 ; vii. 21, 426; viii. 120, 188, &c..], and the reproaches in which he indulges, clearly prove thint even amoog the Christinn cornonunity the fascinations

TILEATRE

1953
princt thentre were too strong fire their religious prinadples At Antiowh he complains that his anllience brought with them to church the habits neculidred in witnessing these perthrmances, and instend of laying the exhortations of the preaciber silently to heart, witeherl fur opportuuities tumities of indulging in thentrical apphanse (18). In his ; Seamuler, din heci. Chryssost. is that many christ humily on St. John he sars worlds of Serintwons niter lixterning to the therelu, go nway to withe holy spirit speaking ing obscene thlurs winess lewid women "snyoiscene actions,", and reprenentiug still mors in butlionery one with anotleer inen indulying Gruce, lix, 28-4).
Thentrical pertormnnces nnd the the circus appear to hatc bell exhe exhinitions of comblued, and Ishidoros, in almenst inswiparably indicates the churncteri in the ith "entury, perfirmance when he teac vice of eath kinil of have no right to share la infes that Cobristions of the circtus, the shre in "the mand excitement crualty of the amuphprity of the theatre, the nrella, and the lusuryentre, the barbarity of the 59; Migne, Sxxury of the ploy" (Ett/m, xix. when deseribing the 409). So nguin Salvinn, tion of Chrthnge recklessness of the populnVouddals, says that "the the inversion of the indiu red in the maul "the ehureh of Cnithnge the siiter delights of excitement of the efrens and victims of the whe thentre, and while the city, the viatims of the butchered without the within" (lle Gub, Dei, vi, 12), were debauched from other passuges beside 12). It is probable, the exhibition of thefexhibition of gladintorinal conflicts was not (hifrequent, even niter the time of Honorins the Grent ansh, We find, for esmmple, Theoldoric tetter in and dressing to Mnximus, the consul, a modes of contlict in mes reference to the dititerent mus has recently been certain games which Maxiconfficts of men with wituting, esplecinily the that the result is ith wild beasts, and implies He regrets that necessity of holding these ghen be under the necesse ext talin populis exhibere") bunt quibus him to grenter liberality in revere", but urges batants (Cassiod. Farike, v, 42 . Ning the com-675-7).

Among the collection of canons from former councils made nt the second council of Hrarm A.D. 610 , we find one furbidd council of Bragh, present at certain "s surbiading the clergy to be customary to give on the ala, such ns it wns fensts or other convivinl ocernsion of marringe nuy such exhibitiwn wintertninments; when the clergy were to withe nbout to commence Ixxxiv. 624). Were to withdraw (Migne, Patrol.
Where plays were not actuully immornl in their tendency, the inthers of the church nppears to have still hell them to have stil held them to be open to objection. The anthor of the trentise nttributed to Cyprian says tint in n ridident of fanilies were usunlly represented 341). Augustinght (de Spect. c. 6; Migne, iv. with paganism, and asseciates such performanees them when the sasp that the gods enjoined hnve fortbillen thentifex Muximus would fain
We find no traces (ric Civit. Dei, i. 32). properly so tew of thentricul representations, for a long time after their couversienic race fact, until the institution of the relighoun plays of the middle ages.
[1. 13. 11.]
THETBAEA LECIO, Sept. 22 (Mart, Bel., Usuari., Alon., liet. Liom., Micren., Susker., Wnul.).
[c. 11.]
THECLA (Tecla, Temla) (1), Sepit. 23, virgin, "Protomartyr" of lemilum, diseiple of St. Phal, buried at selenela ia Isaurla (Mart. Bed, Usward., Adun., Micron., I'ct. Liom., Rom., Notker., Wanl.; Bull. Acte SS. Sipt. vi. 546 ); Sept. at (Baril, Menol.; Mraol. (iruce. Sirlet.) ; Jhert. Hicron., folluwed by Notker, mentions her again maler Fetb, 22 , in cominexion with Nirometla, and liele's metrical martyrolugy assigns her, If the same, to Nor. 22. It must be this st. The la the martyr in whose memory Juntibian built a churoh at Conatantinople near the Julian gate (l'rocop. The Aedif. lib. i. eap, 4, ed. Dindorf, p. [40), and whoso chured or maptipiov Is montloned in the prefice to the 159th Novel of Just inipa (Dueange, Cjolis. Christ. Lib. Iv. Ip. 104, 1:33, ed. 1729).
(2) Jane 1; commemerated with Zosimus at Antioh (llieron., Notker); Dec. 20 at Gildoba in Thrace (llieron.).
(3) lune 9, martyr in Persla in the 4th century with Mariamne, Martin, and Marla (Boll, Actis SS. Jun. ii. 173).
(4) Aug. 19, mnrtyr with Agaplus at Gaza (Basil. Nenol.; Menol. Grace.).
(b) Oct. 8, virgin martyr with Barbara and Pelagia (Cal. Armer.); she may be the companion of Andropelagia at Alexnndria on Sepit. 6 (Menol., Gracc. Sirlet.).
[C. II.]
TIIENES, COUNCIL OF (Thenitanum Coschava), a.d. 418 (?). Tinree canons preserved by Ferrandas alone voach for it. (Mansi, iv. 440.)
[E. S, tf.]
THEOCTISTUS, Sejt. 3, monk, "our father," companion of Eathymias; martyr unler Maximian (Cal. Byzant.; Monol. Gruec. Sirlet.).
[C. H.]

THEODOLUS. [ThEODULUS.]

THEODORA (1), Mar. 13 ; cemmemorated at Nicsea with Theuseta and others (Mart. Usmard., Adon., Vct. Rom., Notker.).
(2) (Tueodata), Apr. 1, martyr, sister of Hermes (Usmard., Allon., Vet. Rom., Notker.; Boll. Acta SS, Apr. i. 5).
(3) Apr. 28, virgin martyr with Didymus at Alexnndria (Mart. Usuard., Aden., l'et. Rom., Notker.; 13oll. Acta SS. Apr, iii. 572); May 27 (Basil. Menol. ; Ap. 5, May 26 (Menol. Grace. Sirlet.); Jan. 12 (Cal. Byzant.).
(4) Sept. 11, confessor at Alexandria in the time of the emperor Zeno (Basil. Mcnol.; Menol. Gracc. ; Boll. Acta SS. Sept. iii. 788). [C. H.]

THEODORETUS, THEODORITUS.

 [Theodores (11).]
THEODORICUS. July 1, confessor at Reims (Mart. Usuard.).

THEODORUS (1), DUX, of Euchaita, general of Licinsus, martyr ; comm morated on

THEODORUS

Jan, 12 (Cul. Byzunt.) F Fel. 8 (Cul. Byzmat. 1 Basil. Jlenol.) F Feb. 7 (lthll. Act: ss. Febh, il.
 (imace. Siriet.). It was prubinibly this saint or the following to whom the chureh of st. Thesto durua, urected byy st. Ifeleaa at Constantimple, was dedicated (Coutinam, De Aclif. p. 38 ; Clamb yrected ly Jastinhin (I'rowop. De Aedif. lil. I. cal, 4 ; Iucange, Cpolis. Christ. lib, iv, pe 13s). There was likewise at Constantinople In 5sif a monastery of St. Theodorns (Mansi, vili. fot n), On the distinction hetween this salint and the following Bell. Acta SS. Feb. il. ats may be cosaultel.
(2) Tino, of Amasla, solilier, megalomarty: at Heraclen, mater Maximian; commemornted on Fei), 17 (Cut. Bysent.; Basil. Melw, ; Menel. (iruecs); Nov. 9 (M.rrt. Bel., Flor., Csamrh., dlun., Limm.): unler the same day Jet. Rom. Jhart. and Want, probably menn this satut. He is commenorated in tho Giregorian Sacrantentary on Kov. $\{$, his mame a!perring la the Collect, Super Oblata, and Al Complenilum.
(3) l'utriareh of Alexandria, commemorated on Firb. 1, Mar. 9 (Cul. Ethimp); Dec. 8 (Basil. Menol.) ; Sejt. 12 (Basil. Memol. ; Menol. Circec.; Boll. Acta SS. Sept. ir. 10); under Sep.l. 2 the Murt. /heron. prombly means the same.
(4) Mar. 26, Lishop of Pentapulis in I.ibya, martyr ; commennorated with the deacon Hliereneus or Ireaneus and the realers Sernyion and Ammonius (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Wit. Rom., Notker. ; Lioll. Acta SS. Mart. Hii, 617).
(5) Tricuinas, Apr. 20 , solitary nenr Cono stantinople (basil. Menol, ; Cul. Byzant. ; Menwl Grace. Boll. Acta SS. Apr. ii. 756).
(6) Sicvores, Apr. 22, bishop, "our holy father " (Basil. Menol. ; Cut. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. ; Bull. Acta SS. Apr. iii. 32).
(7) Sanctificates, May 15, disctple of Pachemius (Bnail. Menol.; Mcnol. Graec.).
(8) July 4 , bishop of Cyrene in the reign of Diocletian, martyr (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Cir.; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. i. 19).
(9) Sept. 19, archbishop of Canterhury. It is inferrod by the Bollandist Cleus ( Heti SS, 19 Sept. vi. 55) that Bede, who recortis the day of his death, Sept. 19, must have taken it from the ealemlars of the chureh, thus nfiording proof of Theodore's early beatitication. The iafereace is not confirmed by Bede's own marty rology, which omits him. Theoshore does not occur in any of the early martyrologies, nor in the Martyr. ofoyiun Romanus of 1498, Venice ; but it appears in those of 1576,1586 , and all later dates.
(10) Martyr at Perga in the reign of An toninus; commemorated Sept. 21 (Basil. Jlenol.); Apr. 19 (Menol. Graec.); Sept. 20 (lart, Rom.).
(11) (Theodoretce, Theodoritus, TheodBICES, Tueonules), presbyter of Antioch, marty under Julian; cornmemorated Oct. 23 (Murt Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Rom.); Mar. ${ }^{23}$ (Flor., Biticron., Nother., Want. & Pell. Acha se Mart. iii. 449); Oct. 22 (Notker. ; Nor. 24 (M.nol. Gracc.); Mar. 2 (Basi). Menor.); Mar. 29, Apr. 10 (Hieron.). On the variety of nama and attempts to divt SS. 2:1 Oct. x. 34.
(12) Nov. 3, blaho (13) Stupita, ef (Basil. Alenot. ; Min (14) Dee, 14, еом Drusua and Zosimus Rom.).
(15) Graptur, "h on Deo. 27 with The oppronents of the feon
(18) l'atriarch of rated Dec. 28 (Basil.

THEODOSLA, $A_{P}$

Dioceletina, it C'nesa Vsuaril., Adon., Iet. Cul. Byzant.).
THEODOSIUS (1
"holy father," eir. 48
(2) Emperor, comm March 2 (Cal. Ethiop.)
(9) Patriarch of A Ethiop.).
(4) (Theonotius), 0 with Lacias, Mareus, on the Via Salaria (Jfa THEODOTA (1), $\mathrm{J}_{1}$ dotus under Trajan (Ba:
Sirlet $)$ Sirlet.).
(2) Mnrtyr at Nlenea under Dioeletian; com (dart. Usuard., Adon., July 29 (Cal. Byzant.); It is probably this Theod was delicated in the Hel stantiaople (Procop. de p. 190, ed. Dindorf. ; Du lib. iv. p. 105).
(8) Of Pontus, mar Severas, commenorated Scorstes on Oct. 23 ( Ba (Menol, Grace.).
THEODOTION (1), Cleepatris, martyr with under Diocletian (Basil. M (2) Jane 20 , martyr in Probably the same as Tureo

THEODOTIUS, $0_{\text {ct. }} 2$

THEODOTUS (1), J dquilinas and others in A djon, Hieron., Notker, Ron
(2) Of Cyrinia in Cyp Liciaitus; commemorated Byrant.); Jin. 19, Mar. Jan. 19, May 6 (Afenol. Gr Rom. ; Boli. Aeta SS. Mai hare been this Theodotus o lonoar there was a monastes is 336 ( ($ Iassi, viii. 906 E). (6) Martyr under Maxim 1 ind Asclepionoto or Asclepi Mred on Fe', 19 and Sept. spt. 16 (Menol, Graec. Sirle ChRIST. ANT.-VOL. MI.

THEODOSIA

and attempts to diatingulsh them, see Boll. Acla SS. 2:1 O.t. x. 33.
(12) Nov, S, bishop of Aneyra (Menol, Grace).
(13) Stuojta, commemoratel on Nov. 11 (Basil, Menol. ; Jfenol. Graec.; Cal. Dyzant.).
(14) Dee, 14, commenorated at Antloch with Drusus and Zosimus (Nurt. Uabard., Adon., Vet.
Rom.).
(II)
(I6) Graptits, "holy father," commemorated on Dec, 27 with Theophanes yoet atil confesmor, opponents of the leonoclasts (Jenol. Gr.).
(I6) I'ntriarch of Constantinople, commemorated Dec. 28 (Basil. Menol.). [C.H.]
THEOODOSIA, Apr. 2, virgln martyr uniler Diocletian, at C'aesaren in Cappaloela (Thert.
Unamil., Adon., Vet. Hom. Calari., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker May 29 , Cah. Byzont.).

THEODOSIUS (1), Jan. 11, Coenobinchn, "holy father," cir, 485 (Cal. Byzant.).
(8) Emperor, commemorated on Jan. 18 and Msrch 2 (Cul. Ethiop.).
(3) Patriarch of Alexandria, June 22 (Cul.
(4) (Ttienomitus), Oct. 25, martyr at Rome with Lucius, Mareus, Jetrus; commemorated on the Vin Salaria (Mfart. Bed., Usanrd., Adou.).

THEODOTA (1), July 3, martgr with Theodotue under Trajan (Basil. Dfenol. ; Menol. Graec.
Sirlet.).
(2) Martyr at Nicaes with her three childiren under Diecletian; commemorated on Aug. 2 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker.); it is prebably this Theodots to (Basil. Menol.). was dedicated in the Hebl to whom a charch stantineple (Procop. de Aedif. lib. i. cap. 4, p. 190, ed. Dindorf.; Du Cange, Cpolis. Chp. 4, lib. iv. p. 105 ). lib. iv. p. 105).
(8) Of Pontus, martyr under Alexander Severus, commemorated with tho presbyter Socrates on Oct. 23 (Basil. Socrates on Oct. 23 (Basil. Menol.); Oet. 21 (Menol, Graec.).
[C. H.]
THEODOTION (1), Jan. 24, of the city of Cliepatris, martyr with Paulus and Pausirins ooder Diocletian (Basil. Menol; Cal. Bu: anant.). (2) June 20, martyr in Galatin (Cai. Armen.), probabily the same as Treononus ( 12 ). The Cal.
Amen, places a Theodotion Amen. places a Theodotion under Oct. 22 also. Theodotius, Oct. 25. [Theodosius H.] THEODOTUS (1) Theodosius (3).] Aquilinas and others in Africa 4 , martyr with docn, Hlieron,, Notker, Rom.). (Mart. Usuard., (2) Of Cyrinitir, Rom.).

Licibius ; cymmemorated Cyprus, confessor under Jin. 19, May 6 (Menol. Graec.). (Basil. Mrenol.); Ram; B Bull. Acta SS. Mai. ii. 105). It may bare been this Theodotus or the next in whay tusourr there was a monnstery at Constantinople ${ }^{1} \mathrm{D} 336$ ( $\mathrm{Manasi}^{2}$ viii. 906 E ).
(e) Marify under Miaximian with Maximns nd Asclepiodotote or Asclepiodotnin, commemoatad on Fel. 19 and Sept. 15 (Basil. Senol.); Spat 16 (Menol. Gracec. Sirlet.). spt. 16 (Nenol. Graec. Sirlet.).
CMRIST, ANT,-VoL. IL.

THEONAS

1955
(4) June 7. [TuFonoris (12).]
(6) Jun. 19, martyr at Antioch (Mint. Syr.)
(8) July (Baja, martyr with Theodatn Bniler
 (7) Ni, 1.0 .4 ).
(7) Not. 2, blshop of Laoticea, physician (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Ronn., Nom.).
(8) Nav. 3, companion of Theodorus of Ane eyra (M, wold Grace.).
(9) Nov, 14, martyr with Demetrius, presbyters, at l'erinthus (Afirt. Si/r.).
(10) Nov. 14, martyr with Clementinua and Philuminus at Heraclea (Ilart, Usuard., Adon., Wand., Rom.).
[C. H.]
THEODUTA, Jan. 18, of Anazarhins, martyr Feb, 5 (Boll. Actu SS, Feb. i. 657). Cul. Ryzant.); THEODUTU日, [U. II.] son of Nilus son of Nilus (Busil. Mend.; Cul, Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet. ; Boll. Acta 967).
(2) Mar. 23, presbyter of Antloch [Theo-
(2) (11)].
(3) Apr

Agathoprs, reader, martyr wlth the dencon Mfart.; Hatail. Sesolonica, under Maximian (Syr. Notker., Murt. Rom.); Afart. Slieron., Mart.
(4) May 2, martyr with (Cul. Byzant.). their mother Zomartyr with his hrothers and Hadrian (Basll. Menot in ltaly, in the reign of Rom.).
(5) May 3, presbyter at Rome, martyr under Trajan with bishop Alexander and th preshyter Eventius (Dfart. Bed., Usuard, Adun., bet. Kum., Wicron., Notker, Wand., ?
(6) Jun. 18, martyr iu Phoenicia, companion of Leontius in the re ga of Vespasian (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Gruec.; SNurt. Rum.).
(7) July 26, martyr at liome, commemorated with Symphronius and Ol mpius (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom.); July 26, Oct. 31 (Mart. Rom.) ; translatio, Dec. 4 on Via Latim ( Fect.
Rum., Aden.).
(8) $\mathrm{Scpt}$. 12, martyr under Julian commemoGrated with Macedonius and Tatianus (Menol.
.om.)
(8) Dec, 23, martyr with Saturniaus and (Bnsil. Menol. ; Mart. Rom the reign of Decius

THEOGENES (1) Jan

Hellespont under Licinius Jan. 3, martyr in the Cyricus and Primus (hath, commemorated with Ificron., Rom.; Boll (Mart. Flor., Usuard., Jau. 4 (Notker.). Boll. Acta SS. Jan. i. 133);
(2) Jan. 26, martyr with thirty-six others (Mart. Uisard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Rom., Netker. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. ii. 718). [C AH.], THEOGNES, Aug. 21, martyr with his mother Bassa and brothers Agapius and Pistus in the reign of Maximina (Basil. Menol, ; Henol?
Graec. Sirlet. ; Matit. Romp)

THEONAS (1), Rom.):
[C. H.]
andria (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vatriareh of AlexBoll. Acta SS. Aug. 4, 579); Vct. Rom., Rom.; Ethiop.).
(2) Jan. 4, martyr with Theopemptus in Cilicia under Diocletian (Basil. Menol.) ; Jnn. 3 or 4 (Menol. Grace. Sirlet.); Jan. 3 (Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. 1. 127); Jan. 5 (Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 250); Jan. 5, called Thomas (Cal. Byzant.).
[C. H.]
THEONILLA, Oct. 29, martyr in Cllicia under Diocletian (Basil. Menol.).
[C. H.]

THEOPEMPTUS. [Theonas (2).]

THEOPHANES, hegumenus, confessor for imnges under Leo Armenus, commemorated on Mar. 12 (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Mar. ii. 213); Oct. 11 (Cal. Dyzant.). See also under Theodorus (15).

THEOPHANIA. [FPIPHANY.]

THEOPHILUS (i), Junior, Jan. 30, martyr under tho Mnhometans in the time of Constantine Copronymus (Basil. Menol.; Cal. Byzant.).
(2) Sciiolasticus, Feb. 6, martyr at Caesarea in Cappadocia with Dorothen (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Rom.).
(3) June 26, bishop, martyr with Philip and others at Ladicea (Syr. Mart.); July 28 (Hieron., Notker:).
(4) July 23, martyr with Trophimus under Diocletian (Baail. Menol. ; Menol. Graec. Sirlet. ; Mart. Rom.).
(5) Sept. 8, martyr at Alexandria with Ammon, Neotherius and others (Mart. Uauard.; Mart. Rom.).
(6) Oct. 2, monk, confeasor under Leo Ianurua, (Basil. Menol.; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Oct. i. 492) ; Oct. 2 and 10 (Menol. Gr.).
(7) Oct. 13, bishop of Antioch (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker, Rom.; Boll. Acta SS., Oct. vi. 108).
(8) Oct. 14, patriarch of Alesandria (Cal. Ethiop.).
(9) Nov. 3, martyr at Caesarea in Cappadocia with Germanus and others (Mart. Syr.; Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Wand., Rom.) ; Nov. 12 (Hieron.).
(10) Dec. 20, martyr at Alexandria (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Rom.).
(11) Dec. 28, deacon, martyr under Maximinn. (Basil. Mfenol.).
[C. H.]
THEOPISTE (TheOspis), martyr with her husband Eustathius and her aons Agapius and Theopistus er Theoapea, in the reign of Trajan; commemorated Sept. 20 (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.; Mf(art. Rom.); Nov. 2 under Hadrian (Mart. Usuard.).
[C. H.]
THEOPREPIUS, Aug. 22, martyr, companion of Agathonicus (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.).
[C. H.]
THEOTECNUS, commemorated on Oct. 4 (Syr. Mart.).
[C. H.]
THEOTICUS, Mar. 8, martyr with Arrianua at Antinous (Mart. Usuard.; Mart. Rom.).
[©. II.]
THEOTIMUS, Nov. 5, martyr, companion of Domninus under Maximin (Ball. Mienol.; Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]

THEVIS, COUNCIL OF
THEOTOKION ( $\theta$ eot $\delta \kappa i o \nu$ ). A troparium or sticheron in honour of the Virgin Mary, of frequent occurrence in the sacred offices of the Greek Church, into which it is stated to have been introduced after the condemnation of the Nestorian heresy. Its occurrence is sometimes indicated by the marginal mark $\theta$. [F. E. W.]

THERAPEUTAL. The ascetics mentioned under the name of Oeparєural by Philo (de Tith Contempl. c. 4) were (it can acarcely be doubted) a development of the same tendency of Jewish thought which in Paleatine produced the Essenes [Dict, of the Bible, i. 583]. There would be no need to notice them in a work on Chriatian Antiquities, were it not that Eusebius (II. E. ii. 17) takes them to have been a Christian sect which retained some Jewiah customs. The supposition, however, that a Chriatian sect could have been formed in Egypt before the time when l'hilo wrote his treatise is destitute of all probability, and hia langunge in no way favour's the supposition.
[C.]
THERISTRUM ( $\theta$ épı $\sigma$ т $\rho o \nu$ ). A dress or veil for female use, apecially adapted, as the name ahews, for aummer wear. The Greek word occurs geveral times in the LXX (Gen. xxiv. 65, xxxviii. 14, 19 ; Cant. v. 8 ; lsa. iii. 23), in ail cases for one of the two Hebrew words 耳yy, 7'ㄱ․ In Gen. xxxviii. 14, Isa. iii. 23, the Vulgate reproduces the Greek word. See Jerome (Comm. in Isa. l. c.), whose remarks are also cited by Isidore (Etym. xix. 25. 6; Patrol. |xxxiii. 692).
[R. S.]
THESSALONICA, COUNCILS OP (Thessalonicensia Concilia), a.d. 649-50. Two seem to have been heid in consecutive years by Paul, its Monotbelite bishop-one for confirming his heretical doctrines which he then embodied in a letter to be aent to pope Martio, the other for dealing with the reply made to him by that pope. (Mansi, x. 785; L'Art de verijf. les Dates, i. 155.)
[E. S. Ff]
THEUSETA, Mar. 13, martyr at Nicaes, commemorated with Horria and others (Hari. Usuard., Adon., Notker., Hieron., Rom.).
[C. H.]
THEVESTINE, COUNCIL OF (Theres tinum Concilium), A.D. 362, held by the Donatists, whom the emperor Julian had given leave to return, at which Primosus, bishop of that place, protested in rain against their eycesses. (Mansi, iii. 374.)
[E.S. Ff.]
THEVIS, COUNCIL OF (Thevinerse CONCILIUM), A.D. 536, when ten bishops onder Nierses, calholicos of the Armenians, rejected the council of Chalcedon, and declared for the Monophysite doctrine, thereby separatiog them. selves from the church (Mansi, viii. 871). Massi (ix. 771) reports a second council, which, how. ever, he miscalls, at this place, where the addition to the Trisagion-Qui crucifixus es promid -was confirmed, A.D. 562. The suthors of L'Art de verif. les Dates report a couveil at another place in Armenla, called Tiben, ten reant before, confirmlag all that had been dope by Nleraes and the ten bishops of the first council ( (1. 152.)
[E. S. Fit.]

THOMAS, ST
Festivals of. 1. Thomas is nerely twin, with a Greci that the apostle mu name. This is give (llist. Eicules. i, 13 Doctrine of the Ap Syriac Documents), correct, it would be other Apostles of shoull thus be take distinction.

Who the other impossible to guess. Thomas is always co the lists of the $A$ post it has been argued other brother. Agai Cotelier (Apost. Cons St. Thomas and his Antioch was the uativ has been argued by 't that the author of th fied Thomas with Jnd Here we might cite lsidore, that Thomas guam Christi gemin (de Ortu ct Obitu Pat I52).
Save the mention of Apostles, the only allu Testament are to be xiv. 5 ; xx. 25 sqq.

The genernl teuonr him with Edeasa and Hist. ECcles. 1. 13 ; iii. Socrates, Hist. Eiccles, i. in Heb. 26, § 2 ; vol. xi of the graves of Peter, as being those whose loc he does $r \cdot{ }^{\prime} c$ specify the the current tradition, $S$ at Edessn may be infers Eccles. iv. 18, cf. Sozoin who speaks of the sple there ( $\mu$ aptú $\rho$ oov). Som India as the scene of (Greg. Naz. Orat. xxxiii. 27). Sophronius, in an $A$ Illustribus ot Jerome (vol Thomas preached the Go lledes, Persians, Carman trians, and Magians," Calamina in India. The Work in India also forme Thomas, already referred lt is by no means clear prat the name India. I oftea used in a somewhat are grounds for belioving fthomas to be Arachosin regions, lying westward of of Christian Biogriph the other hand, we find the pame of St. Thomas w of India. When the P onder Vasco de Gama as succeeded in reaching Indi (first apparently in A.D belonging to a fully devel very ascient church.

A troparium Virgin Mary, 1 olfices of the tated to have nation of tha is sometimes [F. E. W.]
jes mentioned Philo (de Itith y be doubted) ney of Jewish produced the 583]. There in a work on that Eusebius been a Chriswish customs. Christian sect pt before the se is destitute tge in no way

A dress or veil

 as the name Greek word Gen. xxiv. 65 , ii. 23), in ail words ${ }^{2}$ 桨s, i. iii. 23 , the d. See Jerome 8 are also cited Patrol. Ixxuiii.[R. S.] bich he then - pope Martin, ceply made to 85 ; L'Art de [E. S. F.]
yr at Nicses, others (1fart. Rom.).
[C. H.] OF (There held by the inn had girea sus, bishop of uinst their er.
[E. S. Yf.]
(Thevinemse bishops ander viaus, rejected clared for the arating then. i. 871). Mass I, which, howbere the addio us cs pro njis e authors of a coancil at ben, ten yens been done by - hirst council
[E. S. Fi]

THOMAS, ST.

THOMAS, ST., Apostle, Legend and Themas is of. I. Legend, dc.-As the name twin, with a Grely the Aramaean word for a that the upostle mued terinination, it is obvious name. This is given as Judas e lad a personal (Hist. Eiciles. i. 13), as Judas, e. g. by Eusebius Doctrine of the Apustles (in Cureton's anas, the Syriac Documents), &c. Supposing this to be correct, it would be very natural that with two other Apostles of the name Judas, advantage should thus be taken of a convenient means of distinction. Who the Who the other twin was it is of conrse impossible to gaess. From the fict clat St. Thomas is always coupled with St. Matthew in it has been argued that St. Matthew Gospels, other brother. Again, two Paris MSs was the Cotelier (Apost. Const. lib. ii. 63, note) cited by St. Themas and his sister Lysia, and ndd that Aatioch was the native place of the Apostle. it that the author of Thile (Acta S. Thomae, p. 95) fied Thomas with Julas the brother of the Lord. Here we might eite the curious remark of lidere lsidere, that Thomas was "juxta Latinam lin-gamm Christi (de Ortu et Obitu Patrum, c. 74; Patrolvatori" 152).

Save the mention of Thomas in the lists of the Apostles, the only nilusions to him in the New Testament are to be found in John xi. 16; xiv. 5 ; $\times x .25 \mathrm{sqq}$.

The general tenour of early tradition connects him with Edessa and with Parthia (Eusebius, Hist. Eccles. i. 13 - iii Socrates, Hist. Eccles, i. 19). Chrysostom (IIgen]; in Heb, 26, § 2; vol. xii. 338, ed. Gaume) (Hoon. of the graves of Peter, Paul, John, and Thomas, as being those whose locality was known, though he does $r . c$ specify them. That, according to the current tradition, St. Thomas was interred at Edessa may be inferred from Socrates (Ilist.
Eccles, iv. 18, cf. Sozennen Eccles. iv. 18, (f. Sozonnen, IIist. Eccles, vi. 18), who speaks of the spleadid who speaks of the spleadid momorial church there ( $\mu$ aptúprov). Some authoritien thatre ( $\mu a \rho \tau v \rho i o \nu$ ). Sume authorities atso give India as the seene of the A (Greg. Naz. Orat, xxxiii. 11; Apostle's labours Putrol. Gr, xuxvi 27). Sophronius, in an A ppendix to the Gr, xxxvi. Illustribus of Jerome (vol. ii. 9i8), says that St Thomus preached the Gospel to the "Parthians, Medes, Persians, Carmanians, Hyrcanians, Bactriaus, and Magians," and chat he died at Calamina in India. The story of the Apostle's Work in India also fermas the basis of the Acts of Thomas, already referred to.
It is by no means clear how we are to interpret the name India. The word is doubtless often used in a somewhat vague way sre grounds for belleving vague way, and there are rrounds for belleving the India of tho Acts fergomas to be Arachosia and the neighbouring op Christian Begrard of the Indus (see Dicr. the other hand, we tind the name of St. Themas traditions associating of ladin. When the Portuguesc expeditions onder Yaseo de Gama and Pedro de Cabial succeeded in reaching India, they found there (fist apparently in A.D. 1500 ) Christians, belonging to a fully developed and obviously verg ancient church.

THOMAS, ST.

1957
These Christians claimed the apostle St. Thomas as their founder, and, still surviving "Ch a distinct church, are ordinarily known as "Christians of St. Thomas." The district occupied by these people was part of Malabar, on the western side of the southern extremity of of north latitude pinth and twelfth parallels we have nothiug. With their history generally may be bestowed on the legend a briel' notice with the noostle. 0 e legend connecting them sec Assemsni, Bibl. On the subject generally, sq4.; La Croze, Histoire dui. part 2, pp. 43.5 Indes; Howard, Thic Christic Christianisine d.s and their Lituryies.] Christians of st. Thoonts, to claim the legen. It would of course be rash perhaps, none the less as authentic history ; it is, groundlessness, but this latter farm its certain it would appear, has seeped morm of rashness, than the former. We secmed more justitiable from the vaguegess of pass over as incenclusive of Pantaenus's Eccles. v. 10) ; jomney thither (Eusebius, Hist. "Metropolitan; of the alleged presence of a among the signatories of and the great India," We come to something unoucil of Nicilea. ${ }^{a}$ in the narrative of coming undoubted, however, visited India in of Cosmas Indicopleustes, whe "In the island of ce 6th century, and tells us, (Ecout $\rho a)$ India, there is a church of the Iudiau Ocean is, clergymen and believers Christians, with both in like manner, where the pepper grows (Ma入'), and in the place called Calliana, there is also a bishop, ordained and sent from Persia" (Topographia Christiana, lib. iii.; Patrol. G\%. 1xxxviii. 169 ; cf. lib. xi. ib. 446). In the 9th century Sighelm and Aethelstan were sent by king Alfred with alms to Rome, and thence to India, Saxon Chomas and St. Bartholotnew " (AnyloSaxon Chronicle, sub anno A.D. 883, p. 152, ed. Thorpe; William of Maluesbury, lib. ii. 122). Sigelin later chronicler speaks of the envoy as Sigelin, bishop of Sherborne. Again, in the Southern have been india, where St. Thomas was said to Col. Yule's notes, yed (iit. iii. ce. 17, 18); and see The existenc, vol. i. $3+2$, ed. 2).
St. Thomas," car be traced back destians of the 6th century, and traced back definitely to still earlier date, whe have references of a sarily apply. Those however, do not necesof the apostle's labe who reject, the tradition the foundation of labours in ludia nscribe Thomas Cana, who, in Many cir ehurch to one portant part in the history of the an inbranch of the church history of this distant ality, however, church. His date and uationone account makes much disputed, for while places him at any hate an Armenian, and tury (La Croze p the before the sixth cenop. cit. p. 444) think others (e. g. Assiemnom, Aramaeau, and fix the Armenian an error for 8 th century, when he date at the end of the Nesterian patriarch. If this sent out by the [^175]be considered as proved, then whatever share this later Thomas may have had in the development of the Malabar chareh, he elearly could not have been the founder, ${ }^{\text {b }}$ since the testimony of Cosmas shews that Christianity was existing in Malabar more than two centuries before his time. In this uncertainty we must leave the matter, merely observing that if it be proved that the word India in the apocryphal Acts is used in a different sease from that in which we now use the word, atill this only touches the main queation to the same extent ins if the Acta bad called the region, e.g. Parthia, in which case we should have had two distinct claimants, not necessarily altogether antsgonistic.

We conclude this part of our subject by remsrking that the common form of the story as to the apostle's remains describes them oa translated from India to Edessa, where they were buried (Mart. Rom., Ususrd, Bede). The first named Martyrology speaks slso of a later trunslation thence to Orthona in Apulia.

It may further be noted that wherens writers whe refer to the manner of St. Thomas's death at all, invarlably speak of it as a violent one, Clement of Alexandria cites Heracleon the Gnostic to the effect that Thomas was one of those whe died a natural death (Strom. iv. 9).
2. Festirals.-It seems probalile that the observance of a fcstival of St. Thomas first arose in the East and thence passed to the West. Perhaps the eurliest testimony to which we can refer is a Homily, cited as Chrysostom's by two enrly councils, but which editora have long deeided not to be his, from the marked inferiority of style (v,l. vili. 624, in Spuriis). Still Tillemont's arguments, to which Montfaucon assents as at any rate prohable, tend to shew that it would hatve been delivered at Edessa in A.D. 402 . The Homily is evidently delivered betore the tomb of the Apostle ( $\gamma$ foorves nal ע́ó tpo evidence of the existence of a festival (cf. also Socratea, l.c.; Sozomen, l.c.). The two historisns spenk of the splendid church of St . Themas at Elessa and of the emperor Valeas's visit to it. The author of the life of St. Ephrem (ob. circ. A.D. 373) tells a story of the healing of a paralytic belore the doors of this chureh (Aasemani, Bibl. Or, i. 49). About twenty years after St. Ephren's death (year of Greeks $705=$ A.D. 394), there took place, according to the Edessene Chronicle, the trenslation of the coffin of St. Thomas to the chureh dedicated to him in Elessin. The day is spuecified as August 22 (op. cit. p. 399 ; cf. also p. 403, where the prefect Anatolius is said to have made a silver coffin for the apostle's remairs). The celebration of the festival in Elessa is dwelt on by Gregory of Tours (de Glorita Martyrum, 1. 31 ; Patrol. 1xxi. 733). By him it is said to happen "mense quinto." If this is taken sccording to Western reckoning, the 5th month would be July, and, as we shall see, on July 3 is a commenioration of the translstion
b No welght at all need be given to the claim on brhalf of the Thomss, mentioned by Theodorel (Haeret. Fab. Comp I. 26 ; Putrol. Gr. (xxxil. 381), as one of the three misalunary dieciples eent out by Manes, India belng assigne $i$ as his province. It is a suffletent answer to say that an truce of Mantehuetsin was seen, when the Malabar Christians becume known to the outer world.
in the Western church. Ruinart, however (not. in loc.), appears to refer the 5 th to the Syriac reekoning, so that counting from November, the 5 th month would be March. We shall presently mention a commemorution of the Apostle in this month in the East.

The earliest detinite reference to a festival nther than the loeal Edessene one, carries us back to the middle of the 5 th century. Theodoret ((iraec. Aff. Cur., Serm. 8 ; Pat,ol. Gr. Lxxxiii. 1033) speaks of the change of the old festivals of the heathen gods, into those of Peter and Paul and Thomas (the only three ajostles mentioned), and other saints.

As regards the West, the earliest reference to the cultus. of St. Thomas in any way is, so tar ss we are aware, to he fonnd in a sermon of Gaulentius (bishop of Brescia at the beginuia, of the 5th century), on the occasion of the dedication of a ehureh (basili:a concilii Sowtoruin). The good bishop elaims to have aequired for this chureh relics of St. Thomas and three other saints (Sirm. 17 ; Pat.ol. xx. 959).

It may fairly be assumed that the fentival of St. Thomas was but gradually, and not till a comparatively late date, rocogoized in the churches of the West. This may oe inferred from the absence of any mention of it in $e, g$. the ancient Kalendarium Carthaginense, the Roman Calendar of Fronto, the Leonine Sacrimentary, and some forms of the Gregoriane Saeramentary (e. g. Cld. Reg. Suec., Calensis), Mabillon's Lectionarium Iuxoviense, the GothicoGallic Missal, the Orationale Gothicum, Ne., representing North Africa, Rome, Gaul, and Spaio. It is found, on the other hand, in the Gelasian and in some forms of the Gregorian Sacramedtaries, the Mozarabic Missal and Breviary, the Martyrologium Hioronymi, &e. In these St. Thomas is commemorated on December 21 , the commemoration being undoubtedly of the martyrdom, though, as we shall see, in some cases it has been referred to the supposed translation of the Apostle's remaios from lodis to Edessa.

In the last named of the above cited nuthorities, beaides the main Western festiral on December 21, several other commemorations are given. As regards this chief festival, it mar be noted that while the referenee to it in the list of festivals of A postles, which forms a prologue to the Martyrology, speaks of it as "notatis Thomae Apostoli qui passus eat in India "(Potnd. xxx. 451), the notice in the ordinary course of the Calendar gives "in Mesopotemia, natalis et tranylatio sancti Thomae Apnasteli qui tranalatus est sb Indis, cujus passio ibidem celebretur" (ib. 501). We turther have on December 28, "in Edessa, translatio corporis S . Thomene Apostoli; " on February 9, "depositio Thomae," if this be the Apostle (ib. 457); on M3y 9, a commemoration of SS. John, Andrew, and Thomas, at Milno, in the "basiliea al protam Romanam" (ib. 471) ; on June 3, a festival of the "natalis" (ib. 476); and on July 3, "in Edessa . . . nntnlis et translatio corporis S . Thomae Apostoli . . ." (ib. 479).

In the other documeuts cited, December 21 is the Natalis in the Gelasian nod Gregorian Sactr-

[^176]mentaries, the m iastance, we hav Bede (Patrol. xci "Bis senis cael
The metrical mart (Patrol. cxxi. 62: lation, "Tranalat Tho and the martyrol (Cod. Lucensis) th (Cod. Corbeiensis combined. The last martyrology day really aasoet the Western chur Bede, Usuard, Mfu two commemoratio
In the Greek c Thomas is comme e. $g$. in the metri Papebroch to the notice for the day
 p. xh.ii.). It may Suoday after Easte kaown as the Sunc subject of the ges strietly to be called Pentecostarion the full, as кupiaк̀̀ tov Synaxarion as кvpa gospel is used both 6, St. John xx. 19-3 In the calendars given by Assemani 645 gqq .), March 31 memoration of the August 22 comm Apostle," with a refe of one of them; and commemoration, but In the calendars Ethiopic churches, gi menoration of St. Th on September 9 ( $a d 1$ by the latter chureh note " apoatle of Iod both churehes on May 3. Apocryphal Lite gospel, bearing the current in carly times. revensions of it in $G$ Latin form, the Latio n hrring first been pu The gospel is apparentl (ade. Huer. i. 20); Philosophumena mentio Patrol. Gr. xvi. 3134), bius (IIist. Eccles. iii. ' in speaking of it, ass missioasry-disciple of 1 alrendy rénrred (Catco nxili. 593 ; cf. Catech. above-mentioned refere absurd. For further Apocryphal, in Dict. We have also Acts of ? Thilo, and since by Tisc Consummation of Thom

TIIOMAS, ST.

however (not. to the Syriac November, the shall presently Apostle in this a festival nther ries us back to Theodoret ol. Gr. laxxiii. he old festivals of Peter and e apostles menast reference to tway is, so far n a sermon of the beginuing cension of the concilii Sono have acquired mas and three x. 959). tha festival of and nut till a gnized in the lay oe inferred n of it in e.g. thaginense, the Leonine Sacrithe Gregorime Suec., Calensis), se, the Gothicothicum, &c., reJaul, and Spain. in the Gelasian rian Sacramend Breviary, the In these St. Decemher 21 , ubtedly of the II see, in some supposed trassfrom Indis to ve cited autho. arn festirsl on nemorntinns are tiral, it mar be to it in the list orms a prologue it as "nstalis India " (Patrol. linary course of :amia, natalis et Ii qui translatus" em celebretur" a December 28 , ris S. Thome ositio Thomse," ) ; on May 9,3 Andrew, and ijlics ad pmrtam 3, a testival oi on July 3, "in tio corporis 8 . ).
December 21 is Gregorisn Sactr
;bot Pamellis poul mentaries, the martyrology of Bede, &c. Se, for instance, we have in instance, we have in the metrical martyrology of Bede (Putrol. xciv, 606), "Bis senis cuelum coepit conscendere Thomas." The metrical marty relogy of Wsidalbert, however (Putrol. cxxi. 62\%), reters the day to the trang (Patrol. exxi. 622), reters the day to the translation,

"Translaty Thomae celebret duodenus honorem," and the martyrology of Usuard has in obe MS. (Cod. Lucensis) the translation, and in auother (Cod. Corbeiensis), the two commemorations combined. The true text, however, of this last martyrology certainly gives Nutalis. The day renlly associnterl with the translation in Dede, Usuard, Murt. Hicr.), and octasionally the twa commamorations have flowed together. Thomas is commemornted is October 6 . Thus e. $g$. in the metrical Ephemerides prefixed by Papebroch to the Acta Sunctorum fur May, the Maкpoitiv &V Eкrn (Acta Sunctorum; May, vol. i.

p. xlvii.). It may be noted further Sunday after Easter is, in the Greek church, known as the Sundny of St. Thomas, from the subject of ihe gospel. This, however, is not strictly to be called a commemoration. In the Pentecostarion the title of the day is given in gospel is used both on this day and on October 6, St. John xx. 19-31.

In the calender
In the calendars of the Armenian church given by Assemani (Bibl. Or, vol, iii part given by Assemani (Bibl. Or. vol. iii, part 1, pp.
$6+5$ sqq.), March 31 is given in both 6+5 sqq.), March 31 is given in both as a commemoration of the "unbelief memoration of the "unbelief of Thomss;"
August 22 conmemorates "Thomas Apostle," with a reference to India in the the of one of them; and on October 6 is yet snother commemeration, but in one calendar only. In the calendars of the Alesandy. Ethiopic churches, given by Ludolf, is a commenoration of St. Thomas by the former church on September 9 (ad Hist. Aeth. Comm. p. 391), by the latter by the latter church on October 6, with the note "spostle of India" (ib. note "spostle of India " (ib. p. 394), and by buth churches on May 21 (ib. p. 417), and buth churches on May 21 (ib. p. 417 ).
3. Apocryphal Literature. gospel, bearing the nsme of $S t$ An apocryphal current in early times. There St. Thomas, was recensions of it in Greek, and ane two distinct Latin form, tha Latin Greek, and an independent haxing first been publishad by Thischendorfs The gospel is apparently referred to by Irenaeus (adi. Muer. i. 20); and the author of the Philosophumena mentions it by name (lib. v. Patrol. Gr. xvi. 3134), and probably also Easebius (Hist. Eccles. iii. 25). Cyril of Jerusalem, in speaking of it, assigns it to Thomas, the miasionary-disciple of Manes, to whom we have alieady renarred (Catech. iv. 36 ; Patrol. Gr.
mxiii. 593 ; cf. Catech. vi. 31 ). shove-mentioned catech. vi. 31). In view of the absurd. For further details see course is Afocryphal, in Dict. of Christian Bee Gospels, Wie have also Actaphy. We have also Acts of Thomas, first edited by Thilo, and since by Tlschendorf. This and the Consummation of Thomas, tirst edited by Tischendorf, form the beginniug and end of a Au abrilged form is the middle part is lost. Histury of the Porm is given in the Apostolic cius, Cudex Pseruloulo-Abdias (lib. ix.; in Fabriand wa have also the S. vol. i. pp. 687 sqq.), Acts edited by Dr. Whe Syriac form of the Thomns are mentiooed Wright. The Acts of 47 ; Putrol. (ir xli. $8: 3$ ) by Epiphanius (Haer. is named in the $8 . i 2$ ), and a $\pi \in p l u \delta o s ~ \Theta \omega \mu a ̄$ (Patrol. Gr. c. 1060), which is possibly Nicephorus not certaioly, the same which is possibly, though Gospel and Acts of Thomas wereceding. Both the council that sat at Rome under Gemned by A.D. 494 (Putrol. lix. 169) under Gelasius in Thomas, no longer extant, was Revelation of the same time. In the Apostolic condemned at (lib. viii. 2I) the constitution with Constitutions sub-deacons is referrent to cotion with respect to

THRONE
1959

For further notices to St. Thomas.
Thomas reference may be made thject of St . Denkwürdiykeiten der Christ-Katholischen Kerim, vol. v. part i. p. 523 sqq.; Augusti Kirche, uürdifkeiten aus der Christlichen Archäologic, vol. iii. pp. 219 sqq. The Acta Sancturum of the Bollandists do not avail us here, not having advanced as yet farther than the end of October.
) $)^{\text {MAS }}$ (1), Jan. 5 , martyr. [THEONAS
(3) Mar. 20, patriarch of Constantineple (Basil. Menol.).
(3) July 7, solitary in Mons Malsens (Bssil Menol. ; Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.; Dsniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 262 ). . Graec. Sirlet.;
(4) Apostle, commemorated

Bed., Usuard., Adonemorated on Dec. 21 (Mart. Rom.) ; on this day, Vet. Rom., Hierm., Wadd., the Gelasian Sacry his natale is celebrated in in the Collect acramentary, his nmme appesring to him was built secreta. An oratory dedicated chus in the Vatican anderned by pope Symmaart. 'Symmnchus': Ciampini Anastas. Lib. Pontif. 95). In the Cal. Ethiop. he ini, de Aedif. pp. 69, nud "Thomas, apostle of India" under May 21, His festival in thestle of India" under Oct. 4. (Basil Menol. ; Me Greek church was on Oct. 6 Cod. Liturg. ; Menol. Gr. ; Cal. Byzant. ; Diniel, monsstery dedicated to St. Thee charches and a have existed at Codstantinople in the 6nown to tury (Du Cange, Cpolis. Christ. pp. 116, 117) cen-THRASEAS (Traseas), blshop of [C. H.] martyr at Smyrna; commemorated Eumenin, (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Vct. Rorn., Netker., Rom.)
THRASO, martyr $\ln$ the reign of $[\mathrm{C} . \mathrm{H}$. commemornted at Rome on Dec. 11 Maximin, Jsuard., Vet. Rom., Micron., Rom.). ${ }^{\text {T }}$ (C. H.].

(27) p. 442.] CHAPTERS. [Congtantinople

ThREE CHILDREN, SONG OF THE ## THREE KINGS. [EpJphany; Magi.]

THRONE (Lat. thronus; Gr. opdoos), a sent to be occupied by persons of pre-eminent dignity on solemn occasions. By early writers ( $v$ Catuedra) the werds "throne" and eathedra seem to have been not unfrequently employed mdiscriminately for the seat of the bishop, and "throne" was even employed for the benches on which the presbyters sut. At the present day we use the former word when we speak of the bishop's seat in his cathedral church.

1960

THRONE

A distinction, however, has existed both in the use of the words and in the $o^{\text {o }}$, themselves; "cathedra" being the mor: proper ex. pression for the chair of a bishop, throse for that of an archbishop, a patriarch, a pope, or a sovereign priace. A good though late example of this distinction is afforded by the words used in the consecration of the pope of Roine when alrendy a bishop, before he is placed in the pajal sent by the senior cardinal bishop: "Deus respice quaesumus propicius hunc famulum tuum N. quem de humili cathedrs vlolenter sublimntum in thronum ejusdem apostolorum principis (1.e. St. l'eter) sublimamus" (Marcellus, Rituuin Eccles. \&c. libri tres, p. x:. Ven. 1516).

That there was a distinction between the material throne and the cathedra we may learn loy comparing the representations of the former to lie found in mosaics in Rome and Ravenna, and in sculpture in marble and ivory, with existing exninples of cathedrae; of these last several are to be found in the basilicas at Rome, often ancient "sellae balnenres," of marble, of moderate size, with arms, rounded behind, and with a sow, upright, back finishing, with a curved outline. Such are the cathedrae in the chureh's of S. Stefano Rotondo and SS. Nereo ed Achilleo at Rome. The chairs in the eatacombs hewn in the living rock, and that in which the figure believed to represent Hippolytus, bishop of Porto, is placed (now in the museum of the Lateran), are all varieties of this form. The ivory enthedra at Ravenna, believed to date from the time of Justinian, is of nearly the same type, but has a much higher back, The cathedra in St. Cecilia at Rome is formed of murble slabs, but is of the same type.

If, however, we examine the mosaics abovemexitioned, we find that objects symbolical of our Lord, as crosses, or figures representing Him or the Virgin Mary, are placed on seats of a different type-that of a wide seat without urms, and usually with a low, straight back. I'his type, it would seem, was derived from the Joma: bisellium, a seat of honourable distinction, which was a sort of wide stool without arms or back.

The emperor Theodosiua and his aons Arcadius and Honorius are represented as sated on such seats on the silver disk at Madrid. In the mosaic, probably dating from the 4th century, in the ajse of Sta. Pudenziana at Rome, the throne on which our Lord sits eppears to have a low, straight back; and in the mosaic on the triumphal arch of Sta. Maria Maggiore, in the same city, the infant Saviour is placed on a wide seat with low sides and back. This mosaic probably dates from the 5 th century. In the church of SS. Cosmo and Damian-a mosaic which covers the surface of the wall in front of the apse-has on the summit of the arch a figure of the holy lamb placed on a throne, represented as a wide stool richly ornamented and furnished with a cushion, hut without sides or back. I'his mosaio dates from the 6th century.

THRONE:

The distinction between the two ferms was, it would appenr, not rigidly kept up, thrones being sometimes furnished like 'athedrae, with arms and baeks; but it will generally be found that down to the medineval perind bishops are usually represented in works of art as seated in chnirs with arms and backs, while sovereign princes often appear as oreupying seats without sides, though furnished with backs. Good examples will be found in plates 1xvi. Ixvii. of Agincourt's Mistory of Art by its Montments, section "lainting," particularly figs. $2-7$ on the former, and 4 on the latter page. In the first the countess Watilila and her ancestors are shewn; in the last, the emperor Constantine. All these ore taken from Mss. of the 12 th century.

It seems probable that thrones were constructed without arms, in order that as they were intended for the use of persons of ti:? highest dignity, on oceasions of great volemity; when dresses of the utmost richness would be worn, the stiff or voluminous embroidered robes of the dignitaries who occupied them might be conveniently disposed and fully seen, possitl! also the tradition of the form of the Roman bisellium may have had its influence.

No example of a true throne, constructed within the period embraced by this work, has been described, but ona probably vory little laterin date has been preserved-the so-called cathelra Petrl-which is kept in a repository in the wall of the apse of the Vatican Basilica at lome. This chair, after haring remained shat up for many years, was exhibited in 1866 on the oreasion of the centenary celebration of the martyrdom of St. Peter, and was carefully examinel, among others, by that distinguished antiguary and student of Christian art, Padre lafnelle Garrucei. The legend that it had been the carule chnir of the senator Pudens, and bestowed by hinn upon St. l'eter, is evidently erroneous, for the chair bears no resemblance whatever to a curule chair, which was fashoned in such a manuer as to fold up like many garden chairs ( $v$. n paper on the "Fauteuil de Dagobert," by M. Lenormant, in the first volume of the Detanges $d$ Archete $\left.\log \dot{u}^{\prime}\right)$. It is a chair without arms, but with a back finishing in a pediment. On the front, below the sest, are fixed some carvings in ivory, but these are additions, not part of the original decorations. What, doubtless, are original, are the bands of carved ivory which are placed perpen. dicularly and horizontally on the frout aal back, and on each side of the pediment. On these are scnlptured various gronps of warriors fighting with men and with beasts, monstrons animal figures, and the like; but the mast remarkable subject is a half-length figure of an emperor which l'adre Garrucci believes to represent Charles the Bald. No figure or symbal of a religious character is to be found in these carvings; and from these facts it has been inferred that it was probably a throne made firs or presented to Charles the Bald at the time of his coronation at Rome, A.D. 875 . It may be, at any rate, safely asserted that neither its construction nor its ornamentation indientes that it was constructed for a cathedra (v. Two Mifmors on St. Peter's Chair, published by the Society of Antiquaries, 1870).

Thrones are to be tound on works of art so represented as elenents of th the throne ; a in the "Faute Louvre ( $v$. woo seen, that, in ado the form of an $X$ in lions' heads. throne on which $t$ as to shew that msaner. M. Leno in question is pr sovereign whose $r$ The curule chair, ferm, was eviden atofium or faldsto by a bishop or abl that the use of $s$ bishops in recogni office.

In a painting in at Rome (v. Marri pl, xv.), St. Peter as occupying such seated on an elevate with a high back. nimbi surrounding drswing is good, thi an early period.

THURIBLE, incense, called also inceusorium, fumiga usually maile of prea ao more than on o a pierced cover wa erentually ohains for ever, are not found es An example of this chsias, is given by $M$ the Nitivity at Betl de la Terre Sainte, tab, xxxiii. There the Apostolical Consti or cilver, of large s precieus stones, necu. atasius among the gi the Vatican and otl take one example. have preacuted to the two forms dly kept up, elike cathe. will genarally diacral prrind works of int 1 bucks, while as occapying ruished with und in plates of Art luy its particularly he latter pirge. dat and her , the emperior o from Miss.
es were collthat ns they ersons of ti:? ent oolempuity, ness would ife roilered robes lem might be secn, possibly f the Ruman ce. constructel his work, has y little Jaterin illed eathedra $y$ in the wall lica at Rome. 1 shit up for 3 on the occaof the marally examined, eeil mintipuary adre hafaelle sen the curnle bestowed by oneous, for the er to a curule in manver as (v. a paper on 1. Lenormant, ges d'Arciés s, but with a e frout, below in ivory, but e original degimal, are the laced perpen. he frout and ediment. Oa s of warriors ts, monstrons ut the nust figure of an cves to repreor symbol of and in there has been inone made for at the time of It may be, at ther its cestlieates that it Tro Memorrs the Society of represented as to shew that they combine the eleanents of the curule or folding chair and of the throne; nud one remarkahble example exists in the "Fanteuil de Dugobert," preserved in the Lourre ( $v$. woodcut).

THURIBLE

seen, that, in addition to the folding-pieces in the form of an $X$, there are uprights finishing in lions' heads. On many consular diptychs the throne on which the consul sits is ao represented manaer. M. Lenormant considers thnt the chair in question ia probably of the period of the sovereign whose name it bears (A.D. 622-638). The curule chair, in its simple and primitive form, was evidently the noodel of the faldistofium or faldstool, the portable seat occupied by a bishop or abbat. M. Lenormant supposea thar the use of such a chair was allowed to bishopa in recognition of the dignity of their office, In a painting in the cemetery of St. Callixtus st Rome (v. Marriott's Vestiarium Christianum, pl. xv.), St. Peter nad St. Paul are represented as occupying such aeata, while our Lord is sented on an elevated throne without sides, but with a high back. As none of the figures, but nimbi surrounding their heads, and the style of drawing is good, thia painting should belong to ao early period.
[A. N.]
THURIBLE, $z$ censer, a veasel tor burning incense, called also thymiaterium, thuricremium, incensorium, fumifatorium. The thnrible was ustially made of precious metals, and was at first no more than an open dish or vase, to winich a pierced cover waa subsequently added, and ereatually chains for swinging; these last, however, are not found earlier than the 12 th century. An example of this date, auspended by three chaias, is given by Martigny from the cburch of the Nativity at Bethlehent, De Vogue, Eglises de la Terre Sainte, pl. iii. Ciampini, tom. iii. tab. xxxiii. There is no mention of them in the Apostolical Constitutions. Thuribles of gold or cilver, of large sizer and ornamented with precious atones, occur very fraquently in Anaprecious atones, occur very fraquently in Anastasius among the gitts made by the pops to tha Vatican and other Roman basilicas. To take one example. Constantine is recorded to have preseated to the Lateran two thuriblea of Rom.).

TIBURTIUS

1961 gold set with jewela, one welghing 30 lbs,, the other 15 lbs . (Anastaa. in Sylrestro). Evagrius (II. L. vi. 21) also mentions. golden (hurch of Cunstanting gifta of Chosroes to the Church of Coastantinople. The weight of theso vesscls ahews that they wera stationary, not to be awung.
The following deacription of a thurible ia given by Alcuin (poem. 3):-
"Hic quoque Thuribulum capitellis undique cinctum, Pendet de sumno, funosu foram'na
 De quibus aubrusta sptrabunt tara Sabuca, Quando sacentotes nulssas offerre Jobetitur."
According to Amalarius (lib, iii. c. 18), "Thut ribulum ante Evangelium portatur, quia Christus odor suavitatis in igna passionis pro nobis sacri-ficatus praedicat ur") We find dither ficatus praedicatur." We find a ditlerent symbolism in the Gemma Animue (lih bofism in the Gemma Animue (lih. i. c. 42), "Thu-ribulum sigaificat corpus Dominicum; incensum ejua Divinitatem ; ignis Spiritum Sum ; incensum

THURIFICATI. Those who [E. V.]
pervecution betrayed the faith by offering incense to idols. Frankineense was an afcoring incense of the heathen snerifices, so that the ollering of it was made a common test in the Th was made a common test in the persecutions. two or three arning incease wns so alight, taking two or three grains in the fingers and sprinkling them on the fire, purposes of a test, and the Chy lent itself to the purposes of a test, and the Christians were urged to snve themselves by to snve thernselves by complying with it. "It seems absurd to be tortured and sing than throw into the fire iuced and shin rather little fir ers" " The fire incense taken with two Oxford ed.). For the penaltiea incurrel by note, piliance sce SAClificati.
[G. M.]
THYRSUS (TYRSUS) (1), Jan. 28, martyr ín the reign of Decius, cominemorated at Apollonia with Leucius and Calliuicus (Mart. Uszard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker., Rom.); Dec. 14. (Bnsil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet). It was this Thyraua (Du Cange, Cpolis. Christ. lib. iv. p. 97) in whose honour Justinian erected a church at Constantinople (Procop. de Acdif.
lib. i. cap. 4, p. 190, Bonn.).
(2) Jan. 31, martyr, commemorated at Alexnndria with Saturninus and Victor (Mart.
Uaurd., Ailon, Notlor Tircus in Wandalbert.
(3) Sept. 2
at Autun with deacon, martyr, comriemornted Bed., Usuard, with Andochins and Felix (Mart.
[c. H.]

tiara. [Mitre.]

TIBERIUS, Nov. 10, martyr in the district of Agle in the reiga of Dioclatian (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Wand., Rom.).
[C. H.].

TIBURTIUS (1), Apr. 14, martyr, commemorated at liome at the cemetery of Prnetextatus on the Via Appia with Cnecilia, Valerianus and Maxinua (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Allon., Vet. Rom., Hicron., Notker., Rom.); commemorated the same day in the Leonian Sacramentary; and nlso iu the Gregorian, where his name appears in the collect; Nov. 22 (Menol. Gracc. Sirlet.); Nov. 24 (Basil. Mcnol.). There is an antiphon tor his natalia in tho Gregorian Antiphonary.

TIRIDATES

(2) Aug. 11, martyr, $i o n$ of the prefect Chromatins, commemorated at Rome "iater Duas Lauros" (Mart. Bed., Usnard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hierun., Rom.); his natale is kept this day in the Gelaxian Saeramentary, his name occurring in the Collect, Secreta, a all Post-commanion. Also in the Gregorinn Ss ramentary, his name occurring in the Collect and Ad Complendum.
(3) Sept. 9, martyr, commemorated in Sabinum with Hyacinthus and Alexander (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Notker., Rom.).
[C. H.]
T1GRIDES, Feb. 3, bishop, commemorated with bishop Remedius at Gap (Mart. Usnard.; Mart. Hicron., naining him Eporteredus ; Murt. Roin., 'Jigides).
[C. H.].

TILSAN. [Planeta.]

TIMOLAUS, Mar. 15, martyr with Agapius under Diocletian (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.); Mnr. ? 4 (Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
TIMON (Turmon), Apr. 19, one of the seven deacons, said to have been a martyr nt Corinth (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Adon., Rom.); July 28, commemorated with Prochorus, Nicanor, Parmenas (Cal. Byzant.); Dec. 30, as bishop of Bnstra and martyr (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.)
[C. H.]
TIMOTHEUS (1), disciple of St. Paul, commemorated by the Greeks on Jnn. 22 (Basil. Mcoul. ; Cal. By. ut.; Menol Graec. Sirlet.; Mart. Ussuard.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 251); by the Latios on Jan. 24 (Mart. Bed., Adon., V'et. Rom., Notker., Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. ii. 566); at Ephesus, Sept. 27 (Hieron.); his trinslatio commemorated at Constantinople, May 9 (Mart. Rom.).
(2) Patrinreh of Alexardria, commemorated on Feb. 7 (Cal. Ethiop.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 253).
(3) Ap. 6, martyr with Diogenes in Macedonia. (Mart. Usund., Hieron., Notker., Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Ap. i.' 537.)
(4) Martyr commemorated with Maximus at Antioch on Ap. 8 (Mart. Syr.).
(5) May 3, martyr in the Thebaid with his wite Maura in the 3rd century (Basil. Menol.; Menot. Gir.; Cal. Byzant.; Dnniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 258; Mart. Rum.; Boll. Acta S.S. Mai. i. 376).
(6) May 20 , martyr, coupled in the Syrian "Martyrulo,y with Polyeuctas, and may be suspected as identical with the following.
(7) May 21, martyr with Polius and Eutychius in Matritania Caesariensis (MArt. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Notker, Wand., Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Mai, v. 4).
(8) June 10, bishop of Prusa, martyr under Julian (Basil. Menul.; Menol. Graec.; Mart. Rom. ; Daniel, Cod.' Liturg. iv. 260; Boll. Acta SS. Jun. ii. 273), This was probably the martyr Timotheus to whom two churehes at Constantinople were dedicated, mentioned is the Menaen, but their period or origin not stated (Du Cange, Cpolis. Christ. p. 115).
(9) June 20, martyr at Rome with his brother

Novatus, disciples of the apostles (Jart. Usaard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker.).
(10) Ang. 22, martyr at Rome in the time of pope Silvester, commemorated on the Via Ostiensis (Mart. Metr. Bed.; Mart. Bed, Usuari., Adon, Vet. Rom., Wand., Rom.; Bnoll. Acta SS. Auy. iv. 534). Murt. Alieron. makes the saint of this day and cemetery the disciple of St. Paul. The Gregorian Sacramentary com. memorates his untale on this day, naming him in the Collect and Ad Compleadum. 'The Gregerian Antiphonary has an antiphon for the joint onfalis of Timothens anci Symphorianus.
(11) Aug. 23. martyr with Apellinaris at Reims (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Wand., Livm.; Bell. Acta SS. Aug. iv. 573).
(12) Sept. 8, martyr, commemorated with Faustus at Antioch (ifurt. Usuard., Hieron., Rom.).
(13) Nov. 5, companion of Domninus and Theotimus, martyrs under Maximin (Biasil. Menol.).
[C. H.]
TINTINNUM, a bell (v. Bell). The verses by Tatwine, archbishop of Canterbury (A.D. 731-734), alluded to in the article BELL, run as folluws :-

De Tintinno.

Olim dictabar proprio cognomine Capsar

Optabantque meum proceres jam cernere vultum
None allter versor superts suspensus in auris
Et caesus cogor late persolvere planctum
Cursibus haut tardis cum adher tom turba recurrit Mordeo inordentem labris mox dentibus absque.
From these verses it would seem that ia the earlier part of the 8th century it had vecome customary in England, as on the Continent at a still earlier date, to hang bells of consilierable size on the exterior of churches in order that the congregation might be summoned by thrir sound. Alcuin (ob. 804), deseribing the works executed at York, says (Opera, ed. Fröben, ef. 171), "Videtar condignum ut domuscula cloccarum stagno tegatur propter ornamentom et loci celebritatem." The "domuscula" in this instance would seem not to have been a tower, but rather a small separate edifice. Bells, according to Walafrid Strabo, who wrote in the early part of the 9th centary ( $d e$ Exord. et Increment. rer. Eccl. c. 5), were of two kinds, "fusilia," and "productilia," the former cast, the latter of sheets of metal, joined by rivets and hammered into form, in the manaier of the early lrish hand-bells. The "tintinnum" of which archbishop Tatwine wrote was of the former class, and it should seem formed out of a bronze statue of some Roman emperor. Fer, if any, bells of this early period (if we except the small 1rish hand-bellis) are probably yow ia existence, but Filippini is quoted as statiag ia his history of Corsica that a hell, bearing the date a.d. 700, had been found is the old camps. nile of the church of' S. Maria dell' Assunzione near St. Florent in that island; it does not appear what was the aize of this bell. [A. N.]
TIRIANUS (Thazanes), mattyr, commame rated on June 7 (Syr. Mart.).
[C. H.]
TIRIDATES, king, commemorated Juae 20 (Cal. Armen.).
[C. H.]

TITHES (Séko auy evidence of th fore the end of the cation of Selden's the generally prev were due de jure d the beginning, th church was tree fr not ouly lacks the but is opposed to maining of the prac the snme passsages sides of the contr upon the actual exp evidence must be $q$ In the 1st centur there is no evidenc When the collectic brethren in Jerusale "according to his nl churches of Galatia dered to give "as (1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2.) where St. Paul toucl church, there is $\mathbf{n o n}$ other fixed proportio due.
In the 2ad century upon a definite propo spirit of Christian lor says that our Lord c the law, and in place substitute principles ; 'thou shalt not comm mea not to lust (Ma 'thon shalt not kill,' insted of paying tithe the poor." "Thus did of slavery." So again the servitude of the la dow, of the sonship of reason, whilst they ( sider the tithes of their they, on the contrary freedon, decrec to the $u$ which they hare-joyn what is loss, inasmuct hope." Yet in iv. 20, rites liswl on tithes, he Dominus Leviticam sub In the 3rd centary, Simeros), advocating th mentious tithes also, not but as a limitation whic ceed. Ile quotes Matt. you, scribes and Phari pay tithe of mint, and a hare omitted the weight judgreent, mercy, and fa bare done, and not to 1 But if you say that He reference to the Pharise hear IIim $a^{\text {a }}$ ain saying $t$ your righte usness shall aess of the scribes and I case enter into the kingd then He wishea then $H e$ wishea to be d he wishes to be fulfilled greater abundance by $t$ He does not wish to be dor does not command the $P$ How then is our righteour

TITHES

stlee (Mart.

 .). in the time on the V is Mart. Bed., , Rom. ; Roil. tieron. makes $y$ the disciple mentary com, naming him m. 'The Girea for the joint ianus.tjollinaris nt Vaad., Rom.;
norated with ard., Hieron., omninus and :imin (Busil.
[C. H.]
The verses erbury (A.D. BeLu, rua as sar
rere vultum in auris tum turbs recurrit us absque.
) that in the thad leceme continent at s ? considerable n order that oned by thir ag the works 1. Fröbela, ep. nuscula clocammentum at aln" in this been a tower, ifice. Bells, wrote in the le Exord. et of two kinds, former cast, led hy xivets nataner of the ntinnom" of was of the irmel out of ror. Few, if e except the ably now in as stating io bearing the e old campat 1' Assunzione it does not ,ell. [A. X.]
$\mathbf{r}$, commemin
[C. H.]
Ited June 29
[C. H.]

IITHES (Sératal, decimae). There is hardly aure the end of the geaeral payment of tithes becation of Selden' the century. Until the publithe generally prevailistory of Tithes, A.D. 1618, were due de jure divino, and that if not puid from the beginuing, they were paid as soon as the chureh was tree from persecution. This opialon not ouly laeks the direct support of aatiquity, maining opposed to the few notices we have rethe sanue passsactiee of the early church. As sides of the controvare been quoted on beth upon the aetual expresy, and as much depeads evideace must be quoted in full more important

> In the 1st eeatury it is in full. there is noevidence of the payment of oll that When the collection was made for the poor brethren in Jerusalem at Antioch, each man gave "according to his ability" (Aeta xi. 29); in the dered to give "as God has prospered is or-" (1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2.) In the epistles to Timothy, where St. Paui touches upon the fionnees of the chureh, there is no mention of tithes or of any other fixed proportion as being paid or considered due.
In the 2ad century also it was felt that to fix upen a defiuite proportion was to limit the free spinit of Christian love. Ireuaeus (llaer. iv. 27) says that our Lord came to expand the law, and in place of to expand and extend substitute priaciples ; "and thite commaods to 'thou shalt not commit adnltery,' he constend ot men not to lust (Matt. v. 28), and instead of 'thou shalt not kill,' not even to be angry ; and insteud of paying tithe to divide all one's goods to the slay."." Thus did Christ remove "the fettors. the servitude of the law (iv. 34) Iremeus contrasts the servitude of the law of Moses with the free-don of the somsh dors of the sonship of Christians. "and for this sider the tithes of their (the Jews) used to consider the tithes of their property as censeerated, they, on the contrary, who linve apprehended freedem, decrec to the uses of the Lord all things which they have-joyfully and freely giving not What is less, inasmuch as they have-n greater hope." Yet in iv. 20, after stating that the Levite. lis. vites lis yil on tithes, ho adds "Discipulis inquit Dominos Leriticam substantiam habentibus." In the 3rd century, Origen (Hum. xi. in dimeros), advocating the payment of first-fruits mut ss a lithitation not as due from Christians, but ss a limitation which the Christian will exceed. He quotes Matt. xxiii. 23, "' Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint, and anise, and cummin, and judgment, merey, and faith : thers of the law, judgment, merep, and faith : these ought ye to But if you say that He was saying thandone.' reference to the Pharisees, not to the disciples, hesr Ilim a ain saying to the disciples, 'Except your righte .sness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no cass enter inte the kingdom of heaven.' What then He then He wishes to be doue by the Pharisees, he wishes to be fulfilled much more and with He does not wish to by the disciples. What die does not wish to be done by the diseiples $\mathrm{H}_{\mathrm{e}}$ does not command the Pharise How then is our rightecumness abounding to do. How then is our righteousness abounding more than that of the scribes and Pharisees, if they dare not taste the fruits of their laad before they separirst-fruits to the priests, and tithes be separated for the Levites; whilst I, duiag none that the things, so misuse the fruits of the earth Levite is priest knows nothing of them, the not perceive them of them, the divine altar does That Origen did not inten. xvi. in Gencoim.) gire his judgraeat upon tithes is this passage to the incideatal way in which the evideat from to, and from his formal which they are referred makes no meation of themusion in which he efferentes mandatum of them, "Hace diximus pecorum debere etium de primitiis frugum vel Cyprian (Epist. i. 9 , ed. Erasmuan stare." writes to dissunde : 1.9 , ed. Erasmus, 66 Pamel.) position of guncdian presbyter from accepting the elergy are separated from the ground that the The tribe of Levi hes no all secular business. supported by tithes no inheritance but was themselves entirely to that they might devote plan and form is tow divine service; "the same elergy," that they preserved in regard te the their sacred dutjes may not be diverted from tithes ("sed in honores, but receiving, as it were quim decimus accipientes") the altar. Here thes ") may not depart from is deeisive agninst the phrase tanjuam decinas legal due, for decimae payment of tithe as a fixed not be tanquam decime paid as legal dues conld identity in the method of There is analogy, not Cyprinn also laments thapport.

TITHES
giving, which was consequent thinution of alms(de Linitate, 23). "Thequent upon dissension houses and estates, "Then they were selling we give not even tithes ; and our patrimony bids us sell, even tithes; and when the Lord creasing." sell, we ars rather buring and in-This passage is against the fact of payment, rerereace is not to recommead tithes; for the relereace is not to annual income, but to property: "we give estates," not, "we do not the tenth part of our estntes,"

Thus the fathers of the first three centuries nowhere speak of tithes as even a minimum due saying so, had such they had occasion for chureh, or had sueh been the opinion of the legally due; they frequenerally been paid as hort to almsgiving frequently and earnestly exhearers to give tithes.
These are all the ge be brought forward genuine passages which ean shew that tithes were paid fail completely to ment was considered paid as a fact, or that payearly times a tenth neeessary do jure ditino. In adequate proportion was not an authorised or an Cyprian, all make. Justia Martyr, Tertullian, fiannce, but in none some reference to church as a source of income.
During the 4th cen
tutions refer to century the Apostolic Constiread, "The gifts of tithes lib. .h. cap. xxv. we are given in aco thes and first-fruits which God, let the biscopp, is a with the command of The Levites were so support of God, expend." clergy are the Levites nows of old, and the clear distinction in drawn now. Yet after this, a then wnder the law, and the oblithes payable $n, w$, under the Gospel. Siee oblso lions ollered xxx., and lik. viii. cap. xxx., whlch regulate the disposal of tithes.

TITHES

St. Ainhrose (Sermo $x \times x$ ls. in feria 3 post prin. dom. qu ${ }^{\prime} d r$.) says, "Goil has reserved the tenth part to Himself, and therefore it is not Jiwful for a man to retnin what Gord has resorved for Himself. To thee He has given nine parts, for Himself He has reserved the tenth part, and if thou shalt not give to God the tenth part, God will take from thee the nine parts."

So in a sermon on Asceusion Day, "a good Christian pays tithes yearly to be given to the poor." (Cit. in Lucam xi. 7.)
Epiphanius (Hacr, 50) argues against those who kept Easter accorling to the Jewish law for fear of the curse of the law, though in other respects they agreed with the church. The carse, he snys, refers not to the case of the passover only, but also to cireumcision and tithes. Thus ha implies that the law of tithe was not binding on the church any more than the law of circumcision, and also that it was not observed by those whom he was addressing any more than by the church at large.

In the 5th century, Jerome on Mnlach: iii. says, "What we have said of tithes and firstfruits, which of old used to be given by the people to the priests and Levites, understand also in the case of the peoples of the church, to whom it has been commanded to sell all they have and give to the poor and follow the Lord the Saviour. $\qquad$ If we are unwilling to do this, at least let us imitate the radimentary teaching of the Jews so as to give a part of the whole to the poor, and pay the priests and Levites due honour. If anyone shall not do this he is convicted of defrauding and cheating God."
In an epistle to Nepotianus, Jerome writes, "If I nm the portion of the Lord, and the line of his inheritance, and do not receive a portion among the other iribes, but as if (quasi) a Levite and priest live upen tithes, and serving the altar am supported by the oblation of the altar." His laagnage is elearly metnphoricnl, and oot a precise statement of a fact.

Angustine ( 1 's. 146) gives conclusive evidence that tithes were not yet regarded as a legal due "Cut off, therefore, something first, and assign some fixed partion . . . . take off some considerable part of your income? Tithes will you? Take off tithes, although it be too little ("decimas vis? decimas exime"). . . . He beyond whom your righteoussess is to abound, gives tithes; you, however, give not even a thousandth part.

In Homily 48, Augustine says that the present excessive taxation is laid upon them because they do not give to God the things that are God's. "Our nincestors used to abound in wealth of every kind for this very renson that they used to give tithes, and pay the tax to Caesnr. Now, on the contrary, becnuse devotion to God has ceased, the drain of the treasury has increased. We have been unwilling to share the tithes with God, now the whole is taken nway. Alms ought to be paid according to the measure and quantity as it is written (Tobit iv.) 'As thou shalt have, give alms; if thou shalt hare little, from that little impart to the hungry.'"

In his germon to the brethren in the wilderness (Serm. 64), he warns those who till the earth not to defraud the chureh in the matter of tithes, nor any other, however they may live, lest they lose all.

A spurious sermon, attributed to Augnstine (do Tempore, 219) is wholly on the duty of puying tithes. God who has given the whole condescends to demand back the tithes. This is enforced by Mnlnehi iii. and Exodus xxx. God is wont to reduce to a tithe those who withhold tithes. For tithes are sought as a delit, nol he who has refused to give them has invaded the property of other men. He, therefore, who wishes to gain reward or to merit indulgence for ain, let him pay tithe, and out of the nine parts as well, be zealous to give alms to the poor.

Other spurions documents are-n cnaon of Damasus, a letter of Jerome to Dnmasus, and later, a decretnl of Gelasius, and some enoons of Orlenns and Seville (Selder, ch. v.).

Chrysostom (Hom. iv. in Eph. ii.) says that the Jews paid two tithes, whereas, now, a man observes to him with astonishment, "So-and-so gives tithes 1 Is not this shameful? If nader the law it were dangerons to neglect tithes, consider how great a danger there is now,"
Some writers quote also Hom. xxxv. in Genesim, and Hom, x viii. on the Acts; but in both these places decimas is found only in the Latin translstion for àrapxd́s.

A homily on Luke xviii. 12, attributed to Eusebius of Emessa (c. A.d. 430) says that the payment of tithes is a very good ond Inudable practice.
Cassian (Collat. Abbat. Theonce xxi.) tells us that in Egypt many persons offerel tithes and first-fruits to the famous old man, allbat Joha (c. 1). This is the enrliest instance of the gift of tithes to a monastery. Yet they were not regardad as legally due, for (c. 3) the rightenus shew that they are not under the lnw hy exceeding the legal tenth (cf. c. 5); and Christ bids us not to pay tithe, but to sell all (c. 7). Yet, ia c. 25 , he says, that by the Jnw of Moses a general precept was promulgated ("universo populo"), and we who are bidden (qui pracipimur) to pay tithes of our substance should also pay tithes of our time, and observe the lenten fast (cf. c. 33).

Isidore of Pelusium (c. A.D. 44'), lih. it. Epist. 317, writes to count Hermin that he duns great honour to the Lord by paying first-fruits and tithes, and will, as a rewnrd, enjoy much prosperity here and eternal happiness hereafter.

The evidence belonging to this period would seem to shew that payment of tithe was first regarded as a dnty soon after A.D. 350 . By that time the idea generally prevailed that the priest of the Christian chureh had succeeded to the office of the Levitical priests, and consequently to their rights and privileges. Ambrose was he first exponent of this dnty. Augustine and Serome waver, partly influenced hy the new ideas, partly mindful of the perfect freedon of Christian charity. In the East this doctrine Reems to have made very little progress; Chresostom shows that it was rarely practised. Epiphanius completely rejects it, Eusebins can say no more than that it is a good practice Isidore is grateful ; even the monk who sccepts and enjoins tithes is mindful of a higher las than the Mosaic.

Caesarius of Arles (c. A.D. 490) de Eleemos.

Hon. 2, suys n but belonging have is from give to the poor he quotes chlefl (Vita S. Several that in P'annoni "quod mandntur sit," was tnught which happened ment oi neglect were threatenin their savage hafi tithes (Greg. Tur (A.D. 544), in hi what proportion uffer to God. Th half [referring quanti erit is qui
In a synodical council of Tours exhorted to follow pay tithes.
Thus for two $h$ the obligation of $t i$ but still remained forced by any decr
At length, in $A$. eager to take away church, recites how the payment of tit the payment of tit Christianorum cong todivit intemerantas praevnricatores leg ostenduntur, dum e alimplere negligunt sll are to pay titl spend also in redee poor. All who refu cation.
Selden snys this collections. Agobar writes as if he had $n$ Grest (Hom. xvi. in bidden by the law $t$ strive to offer Him al mout A.D. 660, Ma forms relating to lane charging land with ti hortations of the cler permanent results.
Towards the end of the custom of making upen land. The cour 813) orders "ut eccles nec decimis nec ulle This does not require would fully satisfy " a ln. A.D. 680, "decim that is, a tithe of smal Rodolph's Court-was of Arras.
The Ethiopian Missal this time, has a form o tis qui obtulerunt mu est super omnes ecelo primitiarom decimaru signum et monumentum A.D. 720, Eadbert, bis noted for his charities, Eich iv. 29), he used, a e duty of payhe whole conthes. This is $8 \times x \times$. God is who withhold a debt, and he as invaded the herefore, who rit indulgence ut of the nine alms to the -n canon of Damasis, and some caboas of II.) says thst s, now, a man It, "So-and-so ul? If under neglect tithes, is now."
$x \mathbf{x}$. in Genesim, in both these Latin translaattributed to says that the and laudable $x$ xi.) tells in red tithes and m, albat John ce of the gift they were aot the righteous law by exceedChrist bids us e. 7). Yet, ia w of Moses a ed ("uniresso a (qui praecibstanee should $d$ observe the ), lih. i. Epist. he duw great irst-fruits sud oy much prohereafter. s period would ithe was first 350. by that that the priest cceeded to the 1 consequeutl ${ }_{5}$ Ambrose was Augustine and 1 by the new et freedon of this dectrine ogress ; Chry. ely practised. Eusebius caa grod practice, ik whe accepts a bigher lsw
0) de Eleemas

TITHES

Hom, 2, says not ouly are tithes not our own, but belonging to the church, but also nll we have is from Giml, and therefore we ought to he quotes chiefly from Aur. and xxxyii., where (Vita S. Secerani, c. 17 Augustine). Eugippius that in Paunonin, cithes were zealouslo, shys "quod mandatum lieet cunct tise zealously paidsit," was taught there by the suint. A famine which happened was thought to be the panishment uineglect of tithes. When the Lombards were threntening Ituly, one instance given of their savage habits was that they did not pay tithes (Greg. Turon. vi. 6). Anastasius Sinnita (A.D. 544), in his Dux Vitae, question 13, asks what proportion of his goods a man ought to ofier to God. The answer is, "If he who gives half [referring to Zacchneus] does nothing,
In a synodical letter written after the second council of Tours, A.D. 567, the faithful are exhorted to follow, the exnaple of Abraham and pay pay tithes,
Thus for two hundred yenrs, the doctrine of the obligation of tithe had been makiug its way, but still remy but still remained only a pious opinion, unenAt length, in A.D. 585 , the
At length, in A.D. 585 , the council of Macon, church, recites how the diviue the decay of the the payment of tithe thive laws nad ordered left free to their sacred duties elergy might be Christianorum congeries longis temporibus custedivit intemeratns. Kunc nutem punlatim praevaricatores legum pene Chrinn palinatim ostenduntur, dum en ostenduntur, dum en sume divindere neglinitus sancita sunt sdimplere negligunt.". Wherefore for the funure sll sre to pay tithes, which the prissts all sre to pay tithes, which the pricsts may spend also in redeeming poor. All who refuse are liable to excomg the cation. Who refuse are liable to excomnuni-Selden snys this canon is not in the oldest collections. Agobard, bishop of Lyons, certainly writes Writes as if he had never seen it. Gregory the Great (IIom. xri. in Evang.) says: "As ye are biden by the law to pay strive to offer Him tiso pay tithes of dnys." property, so mout A.D. 660, Marculphus colles. forms relating to land; but there is no all legal charging land with tithe. But the constant erhertations of the clergy began at last to produce permanent results.
Towards the end of the 7 th century grew up the custom of making tithe a permanent chnrge upan land. The council of Arles (iv. c. 9, A.D. 8i3) orders "ut ecclesiae antiquitus constitutae nee decimis nec ulla posseasione priventur., rould fully satisf 4 an eariier date ; 130 years In. A.D. 680 , "deciman ${ }^{2}$ that is, a tithe of small value, in a pllace carteRodedph's Court-was consecrated to the called of Arras.
The Ethiopian Missal, which dates from about thia time, has a form of prayer: "Rogemus pro iis qui obtulerunt est saper omnes ecclesiae snerificium ance quae primitarum decinaram, gratiarum actionis signum et monumentum.;' gratiarum actionis A.n. 720, Eadbert, bisho noted for his charities, so that, sasys Bede (Hist Ecch ir. 29), he used, according to the law of

TITHES
1965
Moses, every year to give tithe, not ouly of beasts, but of corn nud fruits, beasts, but of corn nad fruits, and of clothes for the poor. Rede also says (super Exud. puaest. c. 36) that ten ls the number of perfection, and as in tithes we truits we make a begiming, ao in In his Scintillared to perfect our work.
quotes from paying tithe; also from ther texts in favour of De Tempore, 219 also from the spurions sermon
Also in a sermon on supra Augustine).
Trin.), he urges his on Luke xvi. (Dom. ix. post goods, as Zacehaens, hearers to give half their to surpass the Jews. In A.D. 742, Pip.
Fulda all grants of confirms to the nbbey of A.D. 750 he gives to the pust or future; and in tithe of land.
There is.
Charles Martel foundation for the story that in A.D. 740 , and granted the tithes to his knights synod of Ratisbon, A.D. 742 .
A.D. 745, Boniface of 742.
bert, archbishop of of Mentz, writing to Cuthclergy as receiving tithes.
A.D. 750, the Exceptioncs of Egbert, archbishop of York, make mention of tithes. No. 4 , the priest is to teach bis people to pay tithes of all their property. No. 5 , the priests are to receive tithes and write down the names of those who pary them; they nre to be divided into threa parts-for church oruament, for the poor, for tithe. No. 100.99 refers to the Mosnic law of exhorting a tithe to from Augustine a passage income.
Though tithes were now generally were still quite voluntarily, for the paid, they Màcon seems to have become, hre canon of own province But it was obslete even in its coerce the reluctant.

Of the capitulari
refer to tithe, but mes Charlemagne many A.D. 778, Charles the are later than A.D. 800. be paid throughout the Great ordered tithes to payment is to be enforced or by the civil magistrated by excommuniention of Tours, at the magistrate (v. 46). Herardus use other than the nilime forbids his clergy to and warning.
Capit. vii. anni xi. A.D. 779-"Concerning tithes, let each man give a tenth, and let it be dispensed at the commnad of the bishop."
A.D. 787, the council of Caleuith (c. xvii.)
quotes the law and Malachi, and ore be paid of everything.
tithes of all, to expiate of the Mercinns, gave of Ethelbert.

The council says that there is n ( tithes than Malachi iii
The council of Frank orders all who hold bert, A.D. 7.94 (canon xxp.), pay tithes and ninths, and every man is to to the lawful tithe to the church man is to pay Yet towards the close of this bishop of Lyons, in of this period Agobard, tion of church revenue (reatise on the dispensathat before his time any synod or eressly denies had determined any any synod or church fathers nocessity. necessity. From his position he must have bad

1966

TITULUS
every opportyity of knowing the canon of Macon. About the same time Aleuin ( $E /$ ist. vii.) pressee upon Charles the Great the inexpediency of exacting tithe from auch weak Chriatians as the newly conguered Huns. This he could scarcely do if tithes were generally regarded as of divine obligation.

Though the payment of tithes was always based upon the law of Moses, the duty was extended beyond the Mosaic precept (cf. Luke xviii. 12).

There was ne limitation as to the kind of property of which tithes were paid.

Origen speaks only of anaual produce; Ambrose, of grain, wine, fruits, cattle, business, hunting ; Angustine, of income, of annual fruits, or daily gains. The spurious sermon commands tithes of anything whereby the man lives-warfare, business, or trade. So an epistle of the bishops of the proviace of Tours, A.D. 567, exhorts payment of tithes of all property, and even of slaves. Eadbert, bishop of Lindisfarne, gave tithes of fruits, quadrupeds, and clothes.

Similarly, whereas the Mosaic law granted tithes to the Levites, in the church they were claimed not for the clergy alone, bnt for the peor alvo.

The persons for whose benefit tithes were given were the clergy, says Ireaseus ; Jerome, the poor, the priests and Levites. The Apostolic Constifutions claim them for the orphan and the widow, for the poor and the proselyte; "for the other clerics" (the bishops, priests and deacons were to be supported by the first-fruits) and for the virgius. The council of Mâcon decrees them for the clergy, the poor, and for the redemption of captives. In Cassinn, we see tithe paid to monks, and in a capitulary of the fourth year of Charlemagne to monasteries.

Thus in two points the advocates of tithea went beyond the law upon which they based their claim.

At what time parochial tithes were separated from the mother church and alfixed to the parish church does not appear. Selden (chap. xii. on Tithes) says that in the Saxon times we find "ecclesiae" simply, and not antil the Norman dynasty "ecclesise cum decimis."

See Selden on Tithes; Tillesley's Reply to Selden; Spelman on Tithes and Concilia Anglicand; Thomassin, part iii, lib. i .
[J. S.]
TITULUS. (1) In pagan usage an inscripqion on a stone; later, the stone which marked the boundary of property:
(2) In the time of Trajan it meant the limits of the jurisuliction of preabyters at Rome. This is the germ of that meaning which title bears in ecclesiastical practice.
(3) Sphere of work for orders. [ORDERS, HoLy, p. 1486 ; PARISh, p. 1556.$]$

Closely allied to this sense of Titulus is the application of the term to some churches in Rome. Some of the churches there were called tituli, and some were not. Of pepe Marcellus (A.D. 308), it is said he appointed in the city of Rome twenty-five "titufi, quasi dioceses." This last expression might suggest a correapondence, with the idea of " mother churchen." And this would support, Bingham's view, which he takes from Mede (Discourse of Churches), that the name titulus was given to certain churches, because they gave a title of cure or denoming tion to presbyters to whum they were comnitted (Bingham, Antí, viil. 1. 10). Succeeding popes, -Silvester, Damasma, Innocent-appointed each a titulus in lowne; so that in the time of Alesander the l'hird, they are spoken of as lecing twenty-eight in number (Anast. Vit. Pontit.). Another reason for the name titulus, an nupied to the church, is suggeste! by Baronius (an. 11:). The sign' of the cruss, which was inscribed uiva them, was the titulus by which they were known to belong to Christ, just as inperial property was declared to be such by the imperial mark (titulus fisculis) affixed to it.

From meaning the whole church the term titulus was sometines spplied to a part of the church, (a) a chapel in which the bobes of a saint rejosed, and (b) the sanctuary (presbyterium, $\beta \hat{j} \mu a$ ) or part which contained the altar. The churches called tituli were distinguished from the others, which were called dicuonto, oratoria; and, as being the principal churches of the city, were called tituli cardinales or simply cardinules, the priests whe were attached to them being called presbyteri cardinales. See Cardinal.
[H. T. A.]
TITUS (1), diaciple of St. Paul, commemerated by the Latins on Jan. 4 (Mart. Usuard. Adod., Vet. Rom., Notker., Rom.); by the Greeks on Aug. 25 (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Grace. Sirlet. ; Cal. Ethiop.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 266).
(2) Martyr at Nicomedia, commemorated on Jan. 25 (Syr. Mart.).
(3) Apr. 2, Thaumaturgus, confessor for Images (Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 256)
[C. 11.]
TOB1AS, martyr at Sebaste in Armenia under Licinius, commemorated on Nov. 2 (Basij. Menol.; Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
TOLEDO, COUNCILS OF (TOLETANA Concilia). No less than 21 councils are said to have been held at I' 'ado, between A.D. 400 and 701, when they were stopped as abruptiy by the invasion of Spain by the Moors, as they had commenced on its conquest by the Visigoths. But the genuineness of the two first, as now given, is more than doubtful, for the reasons which follow. The authorities to he cousulted more particulerly, besides Mansi and Hefele, are the Collect. Max. Conc. Hisp. by Cardiual Aguirre (Catalau's ed.); Collect. Can. Eocl. Hisp. by Gonzalez, Madrid, 1808: and mere recently, with notes by M. Tejads y Ramiro.
(I) A.D. 400 , or, as another reading has it, 397 , when 19 bishops are said to have met and passed 20 canons. But appended to these canons is, first, a rule of faith followed by 18 anathemas, which, as we shall aee, was made by a later and southeto council. Some professions come next, which are called the professions of bishops Symphosius aod Dictinnius, of happy memory; whe certainly would have been dead by then. But, again, the definitive sentence, which comes last of sll, must have been passed during their lifetime. Now, the two first documents, necessarily, can have no connexion with a couneil of this date; nor the third, for another reason, viz. that neither Symphosius nor Dictinnius appear amoag the subscribers to those 20 canons on discipline that come first. Nor, lastly, can pope lnnocent have correspon suppused to hay fur he was not On the wther $h$ who was contem Chronicon (My the pontiticate bishop's met at $T$ acts, symphusi bishops of the subscribed to th whom they hall snces of ectelesin and Ortigins, bis exiled by the I'rise part." This stat nance to the third whatever to the 2 it is of course qui which Symphosiu to have passed c these. True, the Orticius, who subs is aaid by the presi thing special in $h$ these canous bears 3 rd of the first co but it might have years loter as 21 y the quotidianum sa affords a fair pr framed in Spain (I there is a curious names of the last Exuperantius and E with whom Inaocen p. 1038), which will mind further on. Dlansi, iii. 997-1015, de Verificr les Dut attemptiug to expl recent editor of $S_{1}$ Ramiro, diacusaes at Aguirre, but alike f
(2) A.D. 405, ac 1161), and Cave ( $F$ sccording to others, is, of bearing out already noticed. But in either the Isidoria collections ; and 2, no lnoocent by Dionysiu as, 3 , this Jetter in Isidorian collections Toulouse, and is muc explicit on disorders i rersion of it publish collection of the syao doubt which deserves the aynod. The simile of the last subseriber to conncil, and the bisho lanocent cerresponded out, and is worth consid lidorian and paeudo-J second council of To 527, when 8 bishops $n$ but between this and A.D. 405 , another of $\Delta$ Wentical with a genera posed to have been he inserted (Mansi, vi. 491 or denominare cmumitted reeling pryea, puintel ench time of Ales. of ns being Vit, Poutio.). us, as applied acribed upon a they wera imperial prothe imperial ch the term a part of the he bones of a ary (presbyined the altor. distinguished led dictonite, al churches of les or simply attached to dinales. See a, commenotart. Usuard., by the Greeks Graec. Sirlet.; v. 266).
[H. T. A.]
nemerated on confessor for raec. Sirlet;
[c. 11.]
irmedia under Basil. Menol.;
[C. H.]
(Toletasa :ils are snid to 1 A.D. 400 ROd abruptly by s, as they hsd he Visigoths. first, as now $r$ the reasons be cousulted ad Hefule, are dinal Aguirre ocl. Hisp. by 1ore receatly, ng has it, 397, aet and jossed eanons is, first, hemas, which, $r$ and seutheto ext, which sre mphosius sod who certuidy 3ut, again, the lost of sll, heir liftime. ecessarily, csa of this dast ; on, viz. thst appear among oul disciplioe pepe lonocent

TOLEDO, COUNCILS OF

hare corresponded with this council, as he is On the wher hape tate years alterwaris. who was contemporary with, hishop of chaves, Chronticon (Migne, the puntiticate of Anastasius ", that, during bishops net at Tuledo, iu which, "s stated in its acts, Symphuslus and Dintinuius and in it her Blshops of the province of Gullicia anith whem, subseribed to the couldemaation of Prixcililian, whom they had once fullowed; cartain observiances of ecclesiastical discipline were decreed ; and Ortiglus, hishop of Celene, who had been exiled by the l'riscillianists, was present and tock part., This statemeat leuds puaitive counteance to the third of these docunents ; but noue whatever to the 20 canous that ceme first; for it is of course quite poasilhle for the council at to have passed easons ictinuius were present these. True, there is a bishop, Ottizius, or Orticius, who subscribes to these; but nothing is aidid by tha presideat to shew there was anything syecial io his cass. Again, the 14 th of these canoos bears a close resemblanes to the 3rd ef the first council of Saragossa, A.D. 381, but it might have been just as well passel 40 years linter as 21 yeara earlier that peissed 40 the quotidianum sacrifocium, in the fifth of them affords a fair presumption that they were framed in Spain (Bingham, Ant. xv. 9, 4), yot there is a curious resemblance between the names of the last bislop subscribing to them, Lxuperantius and Exuperius, bishop of Toulouse, with whom Inaceent I. corresponded (Mansi, ib. mind further oo. All the pieces are calliug to Hansi, iii, 997-1015, which the authers given by de Jerificer les Dates only countuse further, in attempting to explain; and which the most receut editor of Spauish capons, M. Tejnda y Ramire, diseusses at grest length, after cardinal Aguirre, but alike fails to clear up.
 accorling to othera, for the mere purpose, that is, ef bearing out the letter of purpose, that sirealy noticed. But as, 1 , no auch syuod oceurs io either the Isidorian or the psendo-Isidorian callectiens; and 2 , no such letter is ascribed to Inaceeut by Dionysius Exiguus; and further, as, 3 , this letter in the Isidorian aud pseudoIdiderias collections is addressel to a synod of Taulense, and is much shorter and vastly less explicit on disoriers in Spain, than the longer resion of it published by Sirmondus in his revieo of it publighed by Sirmondus in his collectioa of the synods of Gaul, we mmy wis doubt which deservea most credit, the letter, or the syod. The similarity between the names ai the last subseriber to the canons of the former cancil, aud the bishop of Toulouse with whom out, and is worth cousidering. According to the lisiderian and pseudo-lsidorian collections, the eecond council of Toledo was not till A.D. 527 , whea 8 bishops net and passed 5 canons, bot between this Aot between this and the suppased council of wentical with a general council of Spain, supmerted (Masi, vi. 491-494), the only ground for elther being another pupal letter, which even Cavo will nut dlspute (hiat. Lit. i. 440). But Asturiener (Lip. xy. of St. Leo, ud Thrribiusin Asturiensem cpiser pum, according to Mansl, v.

TOLEDO, COUNCILS OF 1967

$1286)$ is 1286) is open to grave doubts, affecting not merely the nlleged symod of its own date, but ulso that of A.D. 5.27. For the three loeal account of it are far from consistent. 1. Whatlus, a oonwemporary, says in his Chronicon, that the writings of St. Leo againat ths I'riscillianists were brought to the Spanish bishopls by Perviners, deacon of bishop Turriblus; anong which was a full discourse nddressed to Turribius himaolf, the blasplervance of the Cutholic faith, nad on the blasphemies of the heresies ; to which soma Gallivians, however, gave but a trencherous assent (Migne, ib. 882). 2. Lucrothes, president of the first of the first council of Braga, then metropulis of forwarded his 563 (Mansi, ix. 774), says that Len to a syned his writiugs against the Priscillians Tu a synod of Gallicia by a notary of his own see, Tarrogom, Cart that by his order the bishops of having assembthagena, Portugal, and Andalusla, a rule of faith with thelves in councll, drew up the Priscillith, with chapters sppended, against then bishop of Rs, which was sent to Balconius, tius thus makes Ta, nnd read out now. Lucrebut a courier, of urribius, not a correspondent, notsry. He saya further, not a bishop, but a St. Leo were adiresserther, that the writinga of council then aduressed not to a bishop, but to a afterwaris alog in the nerth; nud that, was held at his aouthern, dot a general, council was drawa up iastance, where the rule of faith read at Braga. But to Braga, which was now St. Leo have been reatd not the writings of been then extant? 3 out there too, hal they of Toledo, and presided in the alleg was bishop A.D. 57 I , speaks, in the first of the syaod of ascribed to him, not the first of the epistles of books addresg, not of any letter of St. Leo, but of bouks addressed to St. Loo by a most blessed ments his the second of is never onee named); yet, that bimself is of the epistles ascribed to Montanua bius, is proved ined also to a pious bishop Turricus, is proved incontestably by the words vester cuepiscopus fecit (Mansi, viii. 791), which cardinal Aguirre must have beed napping not to have noticed. This clumsy forgery, which must have been concocted before the middle of the 7th ceutury to have imposed on St. Ihlefonsus (de Vir. llust. c. 3), only makes the inconsisteney between the two former accounts doubly pe:plexing; and it is further enhanced by the fact that while the Isidorian collection includes both Montapus of St. Leo and the two letters of all thates, the pseudo-sidorian collection ignorea have Let the author of the false Decretals The letter for superior discernment for once. without mof Montanus destroy each other Turribius has ado; similarly, that of Leo to allegibius has only to be compared with the alleged letter of Turribius to Ceponius and Idatius (Mansi, г. 1302), and it will be seen that while both affect the papal in tone, one is not really more papal than the other. Baluzius had more reason for his suspicion than he liked to arow (ib. vi. 491), and cardinal Aguirre cas find nothing to oppose to it , bot the antiquity of a MS. (ib. 492). The main upshot of it all, however, is, that in neither of these collections, nor

In any of these documents, is there the amalleat aviluce for a second symad of Toledo beform a.d. 527 ; and as for the acts of the allegid syand of that date, besiles belng prejuiliced by the two letters ascribed to itn president, they betray far tow) much suerial plendiog for the metropolitan righte of that wee to inspire confilance. (Comp. Carl. Aguirre, Diss. tom, iil, 48 et nesp; nrt. Galhicla, Counchi. p. 708; and the alleged syond of T. A.D. 610, below.)
(3) A.D. 589 . Of this outuncil there ean be no doubt whatever, except ns to its being the thiril, anel as to its priacipal ruling having been tumbded on a misapprefunaion. An 68 bishops or their representatives subscribed $t 0$ it, every see, whether of Spain, Portugnt, or Narbomne, then lu existence, must have been representel there; and as each bishop in subscribing nppeads the name of his see, the subscriptlons are worth n careful study. It is the metropolitan of Merlda who subscribes second-perkaps at being the oldest - and the metropolitan of 'Tolede subseribes third ; but he whe subscribes first is the kling. Recenred, king of the Goths, summoned it to celebrate his own conversion, and that of his queen and people, from Arianisin ; and he and his queen commence proceedings in it by making profession of their orthodoxy, and reciting the creeda of Nicaca and Constantinople, as the, faith professed by the Cathelic church throughout the whole worh, and then subscribing to them, nus to the debinition of the council of Chalcedon, in thelr ewn onmes. In reciting the creed of Constantinople, translated into Latin, they inaert, according to the reading of some MSS. the words, "aud from the Son," in describing the l'rocession of the IIoly Ghost. Eight bishops, a number of presbyters, deacons, nud of the high nobility, converts from Arianism, likewise, follow with their profession; In which besidea reciting the two creeds, and the definition of Chalcedon, like their sovereign, they anathematise twenty-three ditferent errors, the third of which ia that of theae who deny the Procesaion of the Holy Ghoat te be from the Father and the Son. Regulntions for discipliue come next by order of the king, embolied iu 23 lengthy canons. Among the subscribers to them, nud to the acta of the couucil in general, are those bishopa whose ahjuration had just been made, with the king at their head, who aubscribea first ; and as no kjng, probably, before or aince: "I, king Flavina Receared, in confirmation of these matters, which with the holy synod we have defised, bave subseribed." Each bishop after him meekly anys, "I have subacribed aasenting to these constitutions." So that this addition to the creed, and doctrine invelved in it, was originally defined, in pojnt of fact, by a convert prince at the head of the same council that received his abjuration. On the other hand, in the 2nd of these rery cnnona we read: "The holy synod ordnins that throughont all the churches of Spain and Gallicia, according to the form of the orieatal churches, the creed of the conucil of Conatantinople, that is, of the 150 fathers be recited, so that, before the reading of the Lord's prayer, it may be intoned in a loud voice by the people before communieating." Thus it would seem, that in anathematising the opponents of the twofold Procession of the Holr Ghoat, the council never really contemplated

Interpelating the creed | lut meant in all honeaty to miliere to the formo of it then used in this East. If, therefire, the interpolation of the ereed dates from this council, it was as lguornit an interpolation an its dutence has been. At the same time the dnctrine meaut to be exprensed lige it hat been previously laid dnwa in the rula if faitlo transmitted to bolconius, aud endorsed in the su-ealled letter of lee to Turribius; unlusg these documents have likewlse receivel alilithus. But how, on the other haml, is the ominatio if all reference to tho filth coumedil by lecearel an! his bishops to be explained? Having been helt A.D. 553 , It was then thirty osix yenrs ohi. And the pen of St. Gregory the Great with whith he congratulated hls friend Leanter on the conversion of lecenred (Ep, i, 43, Indict. ix.), 111nst have been dipped in the same link with which he wrote to the Eastern patrinrehs shortiy betive: "Quintum conclium puriter veneror" (ih. Ep, 25). Lennder was in all probability grandsom of Theoderic, king of the Ostrugnthm, and edtucated In his domiuions. He may thus have sided with the bishops of Aquilein amd Istrin on that subjert, rather than with llome. At all events, wither at this, ner any subsequent council of Toledo, was the fifth council so much as samed. l'rio ceedings were wound up by a glowing review of them in the shape of a homily from I.eander, metropolitan of Seville, who lisd acted ns lutor to the king, and corresponded with pope Gregory whom he had known at Constautinople (Mausi, ix. 997-1010).
a.d. 597, where Massona, metropulitan of Meriln, subscribes tirst agnin; the metrop rulitan of Narbenae, second; the metropelitan of '"oletl, third. It ia colled a council of 16 bishupra, but only 13 subseribe. And it passed only 2 caunis, the lst of which, relating to the celibacy of the clergy, cardinal Aguirre says, "dithicilimns intellectu est," but he omits to ndd that this council is unknewn both to the Issderian sut paeudo-Isidorinn collections, and has not loen known anywhere aa the fourth council. It is transcribed from Lonisa by Mausi without com. ment ( $x, 477$ ).
A.D. 610. But this, again, with the alleged edict of Gundemar confirming it, is unknown to both Isidorian collections, like the last, besides which, the plea set forth in it for the metropelitan rights of thia see shews too palpably the use which it was designed to serve, and this ita reference to the alleged council under Montanus only further confirms, ao that even Mansi says its genuineness is a question which he leavea to the most learned to decide ( $x, 51$ ). Nothing else purports to have been diseussed at it ; the petitions appended to it are, therefore, beyond explanation.
(4) A.D. 633, which is called everywhere the fourth council. Here the metropolitas of Toledo subacribes only fifth, and the metropolitan of Merida third, after the metropolitan of Narbonne; while the metropolitan of Seville, St. Iaidere, whe had succeeded his brother Leauder in that see, presides. It passed no leas than 75 canons, and no less than 69 bishops or their representatives subscribed to them. The first, headed "Ds evidenti Catholicae fidel veritate," dogmatises on the Triuity and Incarnation in lagguage that every now and then exhibits phrases common to the

TOLE:
Athanasian crees ast Catholicae ec conservamua nt firmissime custox bebit. . . ." 'I'l for divine service ordo erandi atque Hlspaniain atyue modua in missas vespertinis mntut ultra in molis ec uni fide contines antigul canones le rlincia et psallend auetuilinem tenent whataver to the church of auy either cunon. If, the 3rd, councila juxta antiqua pat least be held once, case may require concelved in the book of the lBible librum multorum synudica sanctorun creta Junnuis eva at inter divioos li ruut. . . ." The sacerilotum," leave antonched, and is sos igitur et imm sacerdotes, nec ull pollui. $\qquad$ ordinances about Julaeis hoc praece deinceps ad creden saim tales laviti sal lategra sit forma seveaty-second says been emanclpated, " tegantur ; sive in stat calio quod habere nus of St. Isidure afford hensive character of 611-50). Compare, What is said of Siseb
(6) A.D. 636, "D panise" is what and it is a fact thi proviaces of Tarra bonae figure ameng sil the rest of the seated bishops were a metropulitan, Eugeni time, subscribing first viaciis," whether reg did homnge to the o politan was present. self: "Dei miserat proriaciae Carthagini contrsating with his n Years afterwards, w eclipsed. All of th hare reference to existi (Maasi, x. 6538-8).
(6) A.D. 638, when bonne presided, and Eu after the metropolita the then metropolitar No less than 53 bish tatives, subscribe to th in all honesty nsed in this ation of the Is as Igmorant wen. At the expreswed ine a the rulu if entorseal in ibliss ; unless ved additions. e omissinn of Recenred anl ug heen hulh irs oll. Sol th which he a the canver $t$, ix.), must ith which he ortiy betine: or " (i). lin y grandsinl of nnid educnted ve shlded with that subjeret, rents, neither il of Tuleton, ramed. Pro ing revipy of om l.ander, cted as futor pupe Gregry nople (Mnusi, ropolitan of metrenulita an of Twisedic, bishups, but nily 2 cmunns, fibacy of the c difticillimus dd that this az lorina sand as not leeen macil. It is ithout com.
the alleged is muknown e the last, in it for the ws toe palred to serve, ouncil under o that even ion which he inle ( $\mathrm{x}, \mathrm{s}$, 1 ). discussed at :e, the refore,

everywhere

 netropolitan , and the the metroropolitan of ceeeded his resides. it no less thas s subscribed De eridenti ises on the that every mon to the
TOLEDO, COUNCILS OF

Athanasian creed, and ents almilarly, "Haec est Chtholicae ecelesine fidea : hanc confealiunem conservamus stque tenemus, quam quilyula firnisiane eusturierit, perpetuan salutem hafor divine "ervice is po leas made by the next for divine service is un leas noteworthy-"Unua modua in tnissarum anliam conservetur, unas vespertinis matutiuisque offlcisis ; nec diveras in uitra in nobis ectiesinstica comanetudo, gul in una file continemur et regno, hew enim et antiquit canones decreverunt : ut unaquaque provincia et issiliendi et miulatrandi parem consuetuluinem teneat. . . ." Therr is to referenee church of any country ber the tenets of the either canon. If, owing to circumstances, sany the 3 rd , counclis canonot meet twitane a yearjurka antigus patrum decreta-they should nt least he held once, generai or provincial, as the case may repuire. All the other canone are book of the bibibe sams spinit. Of the last librum multorum the 17th says: "A pocalypis arnudica sancturum coneliiorum sucturitas, et creta Jonnuis evangelistae esse praescribunt et inter divinos libruas recipiendum constituerunt. ...", The 21 st, entitied, " $\mathrm{De}_{6}$ castitite antouched, and is thes question of marringe ova igitur et immacunatos decet Dei existere uacerdites, nec uilo eos fornicationis cuntagio pellii. . . ." The 57 th commences a series of erdinances about Jewa in these words: " $\mathrm{De}_{\mathrm{e}}$ Judaeis hoc praecepit sancta aynodus: nemini deinceps ad enim taies inviti salvandi sunt, sed voleutes ; nt integra sit forma justitiae. . ." And the serenty-second says of those slares who have been emmancipated, "A cujusilibet inaolentia protegantur; sive in statu libertatis eorum, sen in peculio quod habere noscuntur. $\quad$ " The writinga hensire character of these enact to the compre-611-50). Compare, for instance, can. 57 witb whtt is said of Sisebute (Cliran. aera dec. ).
(6) A.D. ${ }^{636 \text {, "Diversis ex provinclis Hla- }}$ paniae" is what they say of themselvea ; ond it is a fact that 2 or 3 bishops of the provinces of Tarragona, Portugal, and Narall the rest of theng the subscribers to it ; but sented bishops were the the subscribing or represeated bishops were guffragana of Toledo, whiose metropolitan, Eugenius, ia found, for the first time subseribug fill time, subseribing first. The "diversis ex prodid homage to the oular or not, feiv or many, did honnage to the oceasion. No rival metropolitaa was preseut. Lugenius subscribed himproxincise Carthariuis metropetanae ecclesine provinciae Carthagiuis metropolitianus," a astyle contrasting with his meek subscritution but Feara afterwarda, when hiscription but two eclipsed. All of the 9 canons was again hare reference to existing diaordera in the passed (Massi, x. 6538-8).
(6) A.D. 638, when, the metropolitan of Narbonne presided, and E: Egenius subscribed third, siter the siter the metropolitan of Braga, but before the then metropolitan of Serille mit the then metropolitan of Sevilie, Honoratus. Less than 53 biehops, or their represen.
tatires, subscribe to the 18 canons now passed,

TOLEDO, COUNCILS OF 1963
the first of whlch is ontitles, "De pienitudine fidei Catheilicae," and embodiee a disyuisition on the Trinity and Incaruathun ahout three times as lung as the lat canon of the teath conucil under St. Isidore, yet burrowing in the Irovession trom his aceount of the third council under as their 3 rid calurun. atra dexxiv.) as clearly as their rit cauuu-" De custulid fidel Judne-orum" depmrts from his purit about half concern his piritit. Of the reat church, and the thanks of tate rather than the church, and the thanks of the council are voted to king Chintila fur having (Manal, x. $659-674$ ). (7) A.b, 646 dethroned the son of the ching Chindasinda, who vivus councii. Here the aunmoner of thu prepresides, nuid Eugeuiua of Tuled. (utto of Mely lefs out in Mansi) sulseribes thind (ut 3 位ely left thia time aftur the muctri/, suce s, wee, hut (Antonius), who hat succectiad lan of :yrille the previous coumcil, and iser nive wimut are been hia junior. Thus the hyrot --vis of car areal Agnirre making precedence def tifl on soitsority but Eugenius I. who was presci. , as we learn frum St. Idefonse (Vïr. Illust. o. 13). But 6 canons wera passed on this uceasion, and the is headed ai De refug of expoundiug the faith, laicis," whose refugis atque perfidia clerieis sive lanicis," Whose case is disceussed at very great length. The rest are nut of interest. Forty rest are not of more lasting interest. Forty-one bishopa or their representatives subscilo tatives subscrilie to them. (Mansi, x. 763-74.)
Another Another councii is appended by intm to this in the next page, on no better evidence than because certain duties ascribed to archdeacons and other functiouarics in the first book of Decretais (tit. 23-4), are there headed, "Ex concilio Toletano." But on this, see Bingham, ii. 21, 8 .
(8) A.D. 653, where the metropolitan of Merida presides agnin, and a second Eugeviua of Toledo sulscribes third, after Antonius of Seville. Abbats here subseribed for the first time, signing betweeu bishops and their representatives, and laymen of rank ginilarly for the first time, signing last. Twelve lengthy canoons, in the $1_{s t}$ of which the creed of Constanticeple is professed in its interpolated form, were passed, "d'un style si diflus et ai figuré, qu'il n'est poiut aise de les eutendre," as the autbors of $L^{\prime}$ 'Art de Vérifier les Dates traly say; 62 bishops or their representatives subseribed to them. King Recessinda heads them with a lengthy profession of his own to which he subscribes himeelf, self, and the bishops supplement them with s decree respecting his goels anl chattels, which he finaliy confirms (Mansi, x. 1205-1228).
(9) A.D. 655 , where the second Eugeoius subscribes first, ndopting a new style, "Regiae urlia urlis metropolitnnus episcopus "; and from this time, whether it was a general or provincial gathering, the metropolitan of Toledo presides always at councils held in his own metropolis, and signs first. On this oceasion, indeed, no other other metropolitan was present. Seventeen cavons, anl on discipline, were passed, and signed 816 bislicry and the representative of a 17 th ; 8 abbats and 4 counta complete the list. The beading of the last canon, "Ut baptizati Jodael cum episcopis celebrent dies festos," shews what course legisiation had trken on that subject since the days of St. Isidure ( (Nansi, xi. 23-32).

1970 TOLEDO, COUNCILS OF

TOLEDO, COUNCILS OF

(10) A.D. 6:36, when 3 metropolitans were present, and the second Eugenius agaiu presiles and signa first. This was the first general council at which this had occurred. Only 7 canons were pasaed, and 20 bishops and 25 apiscopul representatives alone subscribe to them. Yet this council deposed Potamiua, metropolitan of Braga, whose name appears among tho subscribers to the eighth council, on his own confession of a critne committed by him, and appointed Fructuosus, one of his suffragans, in his atead. It also transferred the festival of the Anounciation to Dec. 18, by an express canon, on the ground that it clashed so frequeotly with Lent or Easter that its due observance was compromised (Manai, xi. 32-46).
(11) A.D. 675, at au interval of nineteen years from the preceding one, during nine years of which the aee of Toledo was filled by St. Ildefonso, nephew to the last prelate, and pupil of St. Isidore. Why no council ahould have met in his day is a question to which more than one answer might be returned. This, however, is what the 16 bishops who met under hia auccessor, Quiricius, on this occasion, say on the subject:' 'Eramus huc uaque pro labentis seculi colluvione instabiles, quia annosa aeries temporum, subtractâ luce conciliorum, non tam vitia suxerat, quam matrem onniam errorum ignorantiam otiosis mentibus ingerebat." This is in the preface to their own proceedinga, which eads with a lengthy paraphrase of the faith of the first four councils, and is followed by 16 canous, the 6 th of which begins as followa: "His a quibus Doninin sacramenta tractanda sunt, judicium sanguinis agitare non licet." Yet the very next canon contemplates bishops pronouncing sentences of exile and prigon against offendera, if notbing worac (Mansi, xi. 129-152).
(12) A.D. 681, at which king Ervigius was present to open proceedings and make known his wishea, Julian metropolitan of Toledo aubscribing first, the metropolitans of Seville, Braga, and Merida, being present, and subscribing after him to 13 canons then passed: in the 1st of which, after a profession of the faith of the first four councils, and a recital of the interpolated creed, the resignation of king Wambs and the accession of king Ervigius is declared to have becn duly received and authenticated. Whereupon both acts are contirmed by thn council, aod all who had taken oaths of allegiance to the one are released from them in favour of the other; "Le premier exemple d'une parille entreprise des évêques," as the suthors of L'Art de Vérificr les Dates say of it. The pendant to it is coutained in t.ie 6th canon, whose title 1 uns thus: " $\mathrm{De}_{e}$ concessa Toletano pontifici generalis synodi potestate, ut epiacopi alterius provinciae cum conniventiâ principum in urbs regià ortinentur." The 9th canou enumerates and ordains a scrics of aevere saactments against the Jews tu be made more stringent than ever. By the 10th protection is assured to all who have taken sanctuary; the 11th shews that worsh:ppers of ilola were by no means extinct iu spain at that date. Thirty-five bishops, 3 represcotatives of absent bishops and abbats, and 15 nobles, subscribe to them. Afterwards, in the ellitions of councila, followa an edict of king Ervigius confirming then all. But in the Isidorian collection the firat part of this edict is omitted, and appended to the second is the long edict of king Gundemar, asid to have heen issued in confirmation of the alleged council of A.D. 610, neither of which, as stated alrendy, were before given in this collection, each setting forth the privilegea of thia see. In the paeudo-lsidorian collection only the aecond part of the edict of king Ervigiua follows these canons, and that of Gundemar appears nowhere (Mansi, xi. 10:31044).

(13) A.D. 683, when king Ervigius was again present, and retired after stating lis wishes and handing in his address. Thirteen canons or chapters, as they are called from the tenth council onwards-and their length alone warranta the distinction-were then passed, after the faith of the first four councils hal been professed and the interpolated creed recited, determining civil questiona with as much freedom as eccleaiastical, and beginning with them in fact. Canon 5, which concludes this branch, forbids anybody to marry the widow of the king. Canon 9 confirms the twelfth council anew, while reciting the confirmation given to it at the time by Ervigius. The subscription to them of Julian, who subacribes firat, is peculiar: "Ego Julisnus indigaus annctae eccleaiae Toletanae metropolitanus episcopus instituta a nobis definita subscripai." All the reat, 3 metropolitana and 44 bishopa, merely subscribe their names ani sees. Eight abbata, 27 representatives of absent bishops, 2 of whom were metropolitans, and 26 nobles complete the list. King Flavina Ervigius follows with his ratification (Manai, xi. 1059-1082).
(14) A.D. 684, when 16 bishops of the province of Carthagena mat under Julian of Toledo, their metropolitan; 6 abbats, and 2 repreanntatives from each of the metropolitans of Tarragona, Narbonne, and Merida; 1 from vach of the metropolitans of Braga and Seville, and 2 from abaout auffragans of Toledo, being also present and aubscribing. They had been ordered by king Errigina, as they say in their 1st canod, to assemble thus, ob confutandum Apollinaris doyma pertiferum, concerning which a communicstivn had reached them, a Romano praesule; so that whatever they might decide thereon the metropolitans of other provinces, apprised of it by their representatives, might be able to enforcs by meana of their own proviocial aynods throughout Spain and Gallicia. They therefore proceed to diacuss this question in all its bearings, quibus Romance sedis jueramus literis invitati. Ths 2nd canon adds that the courier of ths Roman prelote had also brought with him the acts of a council held at Conatantinople under the then Emperor Constantine; and that by the courteous letter of the pontiff of ancient Rome they were invited, ut praedicta synodalia instituta quie miserat, nostri etiam vigoris manerent auctoritate suffulta; omnibusque per nos sub regno Hispaniae consistentibus patescerent ditul. ganda. This task is accordingly taken in hand by them forthwith; and finding thess acts, on examination, to be quite conaistent with the faith of the four first councila, they resolve as follows in their 7th canon: "l'ost Chsl cerlonense concillum haec deblto bonore, loco, et ordiva, collocanda sunt: ut cujus glorioso themate fulgent, ei et locl et ordinis coaptentar honore." Even so, they cannot let the oppor.

TOLE

tanity alip of du themselves, whic the exclusion of difficult to say w by Roman Catholi or the papal epist this council we le the sixth council from the then p necessitates their Latin under his an templates and hiso (Manai, xi. 1047, considered itself fr them on their bei this council, by it distinctly testified of the fifth coum epistle to the bisho particularly the a named five univer abore, council unde the papal epistles bishops and their demnation of Houc council formally nc successor. G. Loa genuineness of the the MS. contaiuing to him, of the nex useful for throwing why were they not but one and passes o foranother (ib. 1085printa them timidly Others centent the them spurious or int (Mansi, ib. $1050-10$ Councils of, p. 446 coancil by the king B. 1085-1092).
(15) A.D. 688, wh opened proceedings, a withdrawing ; after their adherence to councila, and recite th then proceed to thei carions in the extrem had aent a work ent stantuis, to Rome, wh dict II., had criticised against. He had expression in their which had accompani beeitatiogly vindicate:
the fatherg, and in the fathers, and in re xith canstic vein: six ora sunt defcndere, hin que rera sunt ignora another is settled in th equsl freedom, relatir formally released from tione to which the late marrying his daughte politans, 55 biahops, metropolitan and 4 mo toperior clergy, and 1 reliags on each head. confirms them by a sp
$i-26$.
(16) 4.D. 693, when proent, opened proceed oublat. ANT.-VOL I this edict is ad is the long e been issucd necil of A.D. sirendy, were setting forth, udo-Isidorian the edict of , and that of si, xi. $1023-$ us was again is wishes nad n canona or a the tenth 1 alone warpassed, after ia 1 been proecited, deter$h$ frcedom as hem in fact. , forbids anyig. Canon 9 hile reciting the time by em of Juliag, Ego Julianus e metropoli. definita subtans and 44 les and sees. sent bishops, ad 26 noblea igius follows 9-1082). tops of the Julian of bats, and 2 retropolitane ; 1 from uach Seville, and , being also been ordered ir 1st canon, linaris dojma nmunication ale; so that 1 the metroed of it by le to enforca ods throughfore proceed rings, quibus ritati. Ths ier of the ith him the nople under that by the dcient Rome alia instituta s manerent yer nos sub erent dirul. ken in hand these acts, isteut with they resolre 'Post Chal. wre, loco, et us glorioso coaptentar the opportnnity slip of dugmatising on the same points themselves, which occupies five more canons, to the exclusion of every other subject. It is difficult to say which is found the greater crux by Roman Catholics of modern times, this council or the papal epistles that gave rise to it. From this council we lenrn-1. That acsta synodalia of the sixth council were duly receired in Spain from the then pope, Leo II., which of course Lecessitates their having been translated into Latin under his auspices, as his own letter contemplates and his own biographer expressly states (Mansi, xi. 1047, 1052). 2. That this council considered itself frec to examine and only receive them on their being found orthodox. 3. That distinctly testified its continued non-acceptan, of the fifth council, though the pope, in bis epistle to the biahops of Sjain, had called them particularly the acts of the sixth council, and named five universal councils in addition (see abore, council under Reccared, A.d. 589). From the papal epistles we learn that the Spauiah bishops and their king Ervigias had the condemnation of Honorius of Rome by the sixth council formally notified to them by his then successor. G. Lonisa dares not impogn the genuineness of these letters ; on the contrary, the MS. contaiuing them has others, according to him, of the next pope, Benedict 11 ., no less to him, of the next pope, Benediet 11 ., no less useful for throwing light on this council. If so, why were they not all published ? Mansi prints hut one and passes off one of the letters of Lee foranother (ib. i085-1086). Cardinal Aguirre reprints them timidly without a word from himself. Others content themselves with pronouncing them spurious or iuterpolated in general terms (Mansi, ib. 1050-1058, and Constantinople, Cooncils of, p. 446). No confirmation of this council by the king is appended to it (Mansi, ib. 1085-1092).
(15) A.D. 688, when king Eglca was present, opened proceedings, and handed in an address on withdraiving ; after which the bishops reiterate their adherence to the faith of the first four councils, and recite the interpolated creed. They councils, and recite the interpolated creed. They then proceed to their real busiuess, which is carious in the extreme. Julian, their president, had sent a work entitled Liber de triluss Substantüs, to Rome, which the then pope, Benedict II., had criticised in detail and pronounced against. He had likewise condemned one expression in their own dogmatic profession which had accompanied it. The council unthe fathers, and in res both by passagea from the fathers, and in re-affirming them observes with caustic vein: sicut nos non pudebit quas ara sunt defendere, hinc forsan quosdam pudebit que vera sunt ignorare. This matter ended, snother is settled in the same breath, and with equal freedom, relating to the king. He is formally released from intricacles in the conditions to which the late king had bound him on marrying his daughter. And then 5 metro politana, 55 bishops, the representatives of 1 metropolitan and 4 more bishops, 8 abbats, 3 raperior clergy, and 17 nobles subseribe to its rulings on each head. Naturally king Egica confirms them by a special edict (Mansl, xil.
$\mathrm{P}-26$ ). (16) A.D. 693, when king Egica was again present, opened proceedings, and handed in an address on withdrawing, after which the bishops, without any prerious reference to the faith or state cred of councils, put forth a long dognatic statement of their own, in which the points criticised by pope Beaedict are once more re-affirmed. At its close, those who depart from the communion of the church or have never joined it, or who reject the faith and decrees of the first councils, are anathematised; and I3 chapters ou matters relating to church and state fuluw. Of these the 1st is headed De Juducorum pcrfidio, and refers in high terins of praise to a late ordiunace of the kiog haring for aut in perfidiâ perdur convertantur ad fidem, mulotentur stimus acriorions scdule last on ecclesinstical The 6th, which is the the light it throws on the bread is curious for then used for the Eucharist, and fommonly ruling thereon prolis regire; the 9th, De Sigcberto munimine that is to say, the la Syererto episcopowho had been, the late metropolitan of Toledo, ngainst the king. The council theving conspired him, translating. Fhe council therefore deposed succeed him from the see of Seville to to socceed Felix, Portugal Felix, another Felix from the see of Portugal to succeed Faustinus, as the 12 tb canon relates; and the last canon orders that the metropolitan of Narbnnne, who was prerented from being present, should lose no time in convening his suffragans to subscribe to these chapters, which king Egica thereupon confirms. All the newly-appointed metropolitans, with Felix at their head, and the metropolitan of Merida, who alone went as he came, 54 hishops, 5 abbats, 3 representatives of absent bishops, pep, 16 nobles subscribe to them (Mansi, xii. 59,88 ).
(17) A.D. 694, when king Egica was once more present, opened proceedings, and handed in an address as before. After this, the bishops commence their part, by reciting the interpolated creed, and proclaiming their adhesion to it. In first 1st canon they further decree that the first three days of every council shall be spent relating and occupied wholly with matters relating to the faith and other spiritual or perana Inders, to the exclusion of secular only the 7th ind of the 8 canons now passed, conjugis atqu, which is neaded De munitione thing else, By the regiae, deals with anybe kept locked in the 2nd baptisteries are to for some grare cause. By the opened except of the grare cause. By the 3rd the washing heen intermitt Maundy Thursday, which had be revived and in some chnrehes, is ordered to By the 5th and everywhere duly performed intended for thernicious custom of using a mass the living in repose of the dead on behalf of be living, in order to imperil their lires, is to be punished with lifelong excommanication and imprisonment. By the 6 th the general nse of litanies in every month of the year decreed of old, is made special for Spain in these terms: "Ut deinceps per totum annum in cunctis duolecim menaibus, per universae Hispnniae et Galliarum proviactas, pro statu ecclesiae Dei, pro incolumitate principis nostri atque salvatione populi, et indulgentiâ totius peccati, et cunctorum fidelium cordibus expulsione diaboli, exomologesis votis gliscentibns celebretur. with which St. Isidore, de Etym. vi, c. $75-8 \mathrm{l}$, may be prefitably compared. The heading of the 8 th is Do Judaeorum damnatione. The usual confirmation of these canons by the king follows; but there are no subscriptions to them (Mansi, xii. 93-108).

1972

(18) A.D. 701. - But there is no earlier suthority for it than that of Roderie, nrchbishop of Toledo in the 13 th century ; who merely mentions it to add, tamen in corpore canonum non habetur, without giving any partienlars of it himself (Mansi, xii, 163-164). Aiter this there is tut ons more renl or conjecturn! council of Toledo till A.D. 1086, at the earliest, and this is vaguely called by most a "council of Spain;" bnt ns it had Elipandus of Toledo for its president, Mansi thiuks it may have been held in his metropolis. The data assigned to it by him is A.D. 793, und ic is said to have declared in favour of the views of its president on Aloptionism, and to have defended them by testimonies from the fathers in a synodical upistle addrensed to the bishops of France, subsequently refuted at Frank fort (Mnnsi, siii. 857-858). [E.S. Ff.]

TOLERATION, EDICT OF [Martyr, p. 1125].

TOMAS, Tombstones. Frnm the earliest times the bodies of Christians were interred in places open to the sky (Cemetery) and in sub- terrnoenn burinl-places ${ }^{\circ}$ (Catacombs). The forms and arrangements of the tombs in the catacombs of Rome und ulso of Naples are suffieiently deseribed in the latter article. Those in the catacombs of Syrncuse, Taormina, Malta, Canopus, and Alexnndrin, ${ }^{\text {b }}$ are likewise alluded to and hardly require further mention here. ${ }^{\circ}$ In the following article an endearour will be made briefly to notice-
(A) Varrious kinds of tombs, excluding those mentioned above, found in different countries. ${ }^{d}$
(B) Objects found therein.
(C) Seleet sepulchral iuseriptions of all kinds, wherever found.

- M. de Rossi (Rom. S.ett. Crist. t. I. p. 87, Rom. 1864) announces his preparation for a general work on Chriatian tombe of both these classes. This most important work has not yet uppesre!, ao far as the writer is aware.
- Cbristian caticombs oceur aiso in Milo (M.los), in which verrullion in-criptions, probably of the 4 th ontury, as well as a small stefle, have been found. (Böckh, C. I. G., nng. 9288-9290.)
- It should perbsps Juat be mentioned that in countriea where catacombe were unknown, some few sopulchral chambers have been discovered underground. De Rusal mentions une found at Rheims in 17:3, adorned with pictures, which have perisied; ani another at the same plice whiteh was found snd deatroyed th $1 \times 17$ (Rom. Sotl. t. I. p. 100): see also Le Biant (Manuel, e. Ix.) for n nubterranean chamber at Montmartre, under a martyrium. In thaleatine, agaln, we have an example of the some sort; a subterranean chamber thity feet long, twelve wide, and ejght high was discovered in 1854 near Sulds (Sidon). On the futerior of fts whited walla vartous Gguras were drawn $h_{1}$ red, and an inseription was written all ronnd below their upper edge, which recorded that the chamber was mado "for the menory and the repose of Anarbaa and his lirother John;" with two pas. sages quoted from Pb. xxili, and 1 Cor, $\mathbf{x v}$. The date also given in the Inseriptiou to rather mutilated, but probably worreaponda to A.D. 642 (Buckh, C. I. G., no. 9153).
- Inecriptiona in connaxion with the particular tombs menthind are inciuded under thls section.

It may be adrisnble, however, to make a few preliminary remarks.

The nneient Roman laws of the twelve tables and those of imperial times, from: Hulrinn to Dincletinn, strictly forbnde burials to take platee in Rome nnil in cities generally (see the laws quoted by Bingham, Antiy. XXIII. i. § 2). The Christians do ant uppear ever to have been charged with transgressing these laws, but rnther objected the trinsgression of them to the heathen. It must consequently follow that we ennnot expect to fincl tombs in eity churches or in nny grounds contiguous to them during the first three centuries. [CuURCiryabos.] There is, in fact, as yet no literary or archapological evidence to shew that any Christinn burial took place in a church, or that any sepulehral monument was placed in or even near to a church before the death of Constantine (Bingham, u. s.; Muratori, Anect. t. i., Dissert. xvii. pp. $185^{-1}$ 189).

Neither does there appear to be a single wellnuthentiented instnnee of nuy burinl, nor of any tomb properly so called, in any city whatever during the same period. For although it is stated by Eusebius, following Hegesippus (Hist. Eccl. lib. ii. c. 23), that James the Just, the brotber of our Lord, had a tombstone ( $\sigma \tau \nmid \lambda \eta)^{\prime}$ erected to him close by the Temple at Jerusalem, on the spot where he was martyred, yet it is thr more probable that he was buried on the Mount of Olives, st no grent distance indeed, but outside the city walls. This was the opinion of others mentioned by St. Jerome (lib. de Vir. Ill. c, 9); and it appears from the Gospels that it was the custom of the Jews to bury nutside the precinets of cities. (Luke vii. 12 ; Jobn xix. 42; coll. Heb. xiii. 12.)

For these three centuries we hnve very few sepulchral monuments remuining, with the exception of those in the Romnn eatacombs, though

- De Rossl's work on the Roman inscriptions of the first s'x centrifies shewa no sepulebral slab placed, of preaumed to have been ever placed, in a church or basilica turing the first three centuries. There arp, however, many epltaphs of the 4th eentury now of lately to be seen in Roman ehurches or basllicas, bat very few can be connted upon us being in their original sites. One in rblo alab was found adhering to lis sepulchre on the pavement of the basilica of St. Alexander on the Via Nomentann (A.D. 396), and another (A.D. 4:2) on that of the subterraminan bisillea of St. Hermep (De Rossl, Nos. 438, 507). Sume appear to bave been talien from the catscombe (ace Nos. 80, 153, 182, 186, 221); but The Rossi consiters that this is not the cose with others (Nos, 149, 184). The presteat number have oceurred in the pavement of the baslifica of St. Paul on the Vhosthensis; it was bnilt, according to Ittbech, a $\mathbf{D}$. 3*8, but soms of the alaba bear cariler distea, the earifist being A.d. 345 (see Nos. 88, 88, 204, 209, 240, 316, 371), conaequently the blabs have been movet from their original sitcis. This may also have been the case in many othet tnstances.

An eariy example of a hurial in an Africav basilima will be found in the nosaic of Reparatua, A.D. 475 (see below ), Slabs beantifully decorated with follagi, flower, etc. occur in the church of Briord, A.D. 487 (Le Blant, no, 379, pl. 43), and in the nave of tho cathedral u? Vaison, A.l. 615 (Ie Illant, no. 492, pl. 66), ${ }^{\prime}$ For the form of the orijn $\eta$ see Dict. Gr. and Rom. Ant. a. v. "Funus;" hut the word appears to be uod somewhat vaguely.
there is abunda places of varion: parts of the C'hri ments were dout of persecution the few which re tions made in thi De Rossi thinks scription (see V That of Caesaren is unqueationably $\oint$ iii. I Cemeteri At Rome, ane several centuries some were Christi by the siles of 11 the city. Thus naris (Epist. i. 5, St. Peter was ol church being st: standing over it. apostle was buried the Tiber, and thi Via Ostiensis, thre the city (ct. s. c. 1 of the church of speaks of these to spostles " (Eliseb. 1 removed about th combs, lest some is them at that time ap. Pearson, Annal. fact of their remove have been of very $c$ probably have bee Some other monun burial-places in th which hare come notlced below under "Qrum antiquit nlas (Rit. Sep. Mf "tantum extra urbe corpora sepelirentus orbes ad templorinm plis sepeliri mos inv, examples of burials wa proceed to cite : buried in the porch at Constantinople, earliest known exa emperor Honorius St. Peter's church a wife Maria inside th king of the Lombard: of St. John the Bip lharius in the basil Paris; Brunichildis, ths chureh of st. 1 Martel and his son St. Denis at Paris ; C of St. Mary at Aach stone bearing his nur is still to be seen. many popes after him, ai Rome ; St. Benedic basilics of St. John chnracter of their bsbly in most cases o

[^177]
TOMBS

to make a fow
twelve tables m. Hrurian to s to take pliliee (ste the lawis II. i. § 2). The to have been ese laws, but of them to the collow that we ity churches or em during the andss.] There archarelogical an burial took ulehral monu. ir to a ehureh 3ingham, u. $s$. xvii. pp. 185 a single weil. ial, nor of any eity whaterer although it is gesippus (Ilist. ast, the brether $\lambda \eta)^{\prime}$ erected to usalem, on the it is far more the Mount of ed, but eutside nion of others Vir. Ill. с. 乌); hat it was the side the preJohu xix. 42; have very few with the excepcombs, though

scriptions of the d alab placed, or In $s$ church or res. There arp century $u 0 w$ a or baellicas, bat In their eriginal rtigg to its sepul. St. Alexnnier on her (A.D. 412) on 3t. Hermep (De bave been takten 2, 186, 221); but rase with otbers lave occurred in on the Va Ots. h, A D. 396, but le carlinst befng , 316, 371), conon their orig'nal e in many otherAfricaa basilica ns, A. . 475 (see 1g ${ }^{2}$, flowerv, etc. 487 (Le Blath be catbedral of 6). Gr. and Rom. ears to be used

there is abundant evilence that open-nlr burialplaces of various kinds were then in use in many ments were doulutless world. Many of these monuof persecution (Euseb. II : viii 6). Even of the fow whit remain some appear to be restorntiens made in the time of the peace of the church. De Rossi thinks that the colebrated Aurun inserijetion (see Vol. I. p. 806) is one of these. That of Caesarea in Mauretsnia (Vol. I. p. 8+8) is unquestionably so. (De Rossi, Rom. Sott. t. i. § iii. / Cemeteri sopra terra.)
At Rome, and indeed everywhere else for aeveral centuries, many tombs, among which bome were Christian, were erected in the suburbs by the sides of the prineipal ronds leading into the city. Thus according to Sidonius A pollinaris (Epist. i. 5, ed. Sirm.) the burial-place of St. Peter wrs outside the walls of Rome, a church being still, in his time (A.D. 470), standing over it. St. Jerome says that that apostle was buried in the Via l'riumphalis beyond the Tiber, and that St. laul was buried in the Via Ostiensis, three miles without the gates of the eity ( (!.s. c. 1 and c. 5). Caius, a presbyter of the church of Rome, about the year 210 , speaks of these tombs as "the trophiess of the apostles" (Euseb. Hist. Eccl. ii. 25). They wero apostes (ELiseb. Hist. Eccl. ii. 25). They wero removed nbout the yenr 258 into the cata-combs, lest some indignity might be offered to them at that time of persecution (Dep. Metrt. op. Pearson, Annal. Cyprian. p. 62). The very fact of their removal shews that they eould not have been of very considerable size. They maty probibly have been ciphi benring inseriptions, Some other monuments belonging to open-air burial-places in the neighbourhood of Rome, which have come down to our times, will be, noticed below under ltaly.
"Quum antiquitus," says Onuphriue Panvinins (Rit. Sep. Mort. e. vii. ed. Col. 1568), "tantum extra urbem in coemiteriis hominum corpora sepelirentur, pace ecciesiae datn intra arbes ad templorum limina, posten in ipsis templis sepeliri mos invaluit." He then gives many eximples of burials in or close to churches, which wa preceed to cite: the emperor Constantine was buried in the porch of the temple of the apostles at Constantinople, and this is probably the earliest known example of the kind; the smperor Honorius wha laid in the porch of St, Peter's ehurch at Rome, and his espoused wife Maria inside the same chureh; Rotharis, king of the Lombards, was buried in the church of St, John the Baptist at Paria; king Clotharius in the basilica of St. Vincentius at Paris; Brunichildis, queen of the Frnnks, in the church of St. Martin at Autun; Chrrles Martel and his son Pepin in the ehureh of St. Denis at Paris; Charlemngne in the church of St. Wre beary at Anchen, where a large tombstone bearing his name only, Carolo Magno, is still to be scen. Pope Leo the Great, and many popes nfter him, were buried in $S t$ beat, and at Rome; St. Benedict, abbot of Casino, in the basilica of St. John the Baptist. But of the character of their tombs, which were probably in most cases of great ragnificence, we are unabls, whth scareely un exception, to say anything. It may be suapected that some of them were marble sarcophagi, placed elt her nbove the ground or possibly below it, of which we ing from the Chrisian examples yet remainless from the 4th century downwards, more of less elaborately seulptured. [ScutPTtIte.] Notwithstanding the eximples above named, and some others which might be mentioned [Cubrculum ; Oisequies of the Dead. § xiv.], there wore several laws of emperors of the 4 th and from fowing centuries, and several canons of councils Com the Gth century onwards, down to the which distinctly in the time of Charlemngne, this last council powered burials in churchey, ceptions (Gretser, howerer, making $c$ hin exXXIII. i. $\S \S+6,7,8$ ). Christ. ii. 8 ; lingham, about this time many nersons ${ }^{2} \mathrm{n}^{2}$ doubt tha tageous to the many persons considered it w? vanand Greots to their souls to be buried in churehes, tions this opinion. "When the 6th century sancmen down it is. When heavy sins do not press buried in chur profitable for the dead if they be ns they come thither their friends, is often sepulchres the thither, remember those whose loord for they" of this opiaion in is. lib, iv. e. 50). In spite tinued to be made not only, as has beun condown to the time of Charlemagre's death, but also as lite as A.D. 1076, when a council of Winchester under Lanfrane laid down in its ninth crinon that "In ecelesiis corpora defunctorum nan sepeliantur." Nor was it lutil the time of Boniface VIII., about the elose of the I3th century, thit it was spoken of as a cusiomnry thing for men to he buried in a church where their nneettors lay. From his decretals, as Bingham thinks, "may be dated the ruin of the old laws " (u. s, §9). ${ }^{\text {h }}$

[^178]
TGMBS

1973
In what follows little will he snid of any lambs which do not now exist, or have not
(A) General Character of Christian Tombs, exciusive of Catacombs, in various Countries.
Italy,-Christian tombs of a very early period have been found above ground in Tusculum and Rossi Rossi (Bull. di Arch. Crist. for 1872) has a memoir entitled $I l$ Tusculo, le Ville Tusculane o

[^179]
TOMBS

lu loro antiche memorie Cristime, In which he says that lie was desirous to find a cippus which hal been transeribed by Fabretti, and had been seen many years later, not bearing the patera and simpulum so frequent on pagan cippi, but two anchoms, symbolical of Christian hope, $n$ device found on the tombs of the Catacombs. It ruas thus: Cl. Irenico | flio do'cis | simo cl. Ecty | ches avs et cl. Po|themenes pa|ter et Decia Ro | fina mater feceront (p. 98). It had been found it Ciampino, in the vicinity of Tuseuhim. The account of his suecessful exploration is very interesting (pp. 99, 100).

De Rossi s acquainted with only one other cippus bearing the Christian symbol of the anchor. It scems now to be known merely by the description contained in a MS. of the Va.:can (6039, f. 252 verso): Cippus in hortulis S. Scbastiani extra muros l. V. ('etrus Victorius) scripsit. It reads: Marcellae $\mid$ sanctissi $\mid$ mae femin | ae Alvnni |anvs frate |r. Below which are two anchors, that on the left being reversed. "The cippus form of the monument," remarks De Rossi (u.s. p. 99), "if, accor ang to nll ordinary rules, it excludes a subterranean origin, does not necessarily exclude its Christianity, becnuse we know that Christinn sepulchres still exist above gronnd which are in the form of cippi " (Bull. di Arch. Crist. 1864, pp. 25-32).

But besides isolated tombs in fields or vineyards or by the sides of the public ways, we hare in the suburbs of Rome severnt cemeteries around basilicas which were apparently executed about the 4th century. De Rossi has observed traces of such in various states of preservation in the field above the cemetery of St. Callistus, and in the Agro Verano abore that of St. Cyriaca, and in other places. He deseribes at length and gives a figure of the necropolis above ground under which is the catacomb of St. Callistus (Rom. Sott. lib. iii. pp. 393 sqq. tav. xxxix.). It consists of an nssemblage of deep oblong chambers of different dime sions formed by walls made of mised tuft and ick, intersecting ench other at right angles, the tops of which are on the level of the ground. The covers and the bottoms of these chambers were sometimes composed of marble or granite slabs, the lateral walls being left rough; within them bodies were placed one aloove another in differeut manners, which De Rossi describec. Sometimes they were only separnted by a atone slab, sometimes the bedies were placed in distinct sarcophagi ; eight or nine corpses were ordinarily placed one nbove another. It would appear that only a very few inscriptions, unimportant and undnted, have hitherto been fonnd; but the cemetery may be referred to the fourth or fifth century from the style of the work of its walls. 1 He also found above the crypts of St. Lucina a few chambers or fosses, not subdivided like these into horizontal planes and receiving the corpaes in their empty spaces, ${ }^{1}$ With this necropolis De Rossi comparea a very perfect example of an above-ground cemetery whtch has Jately been fonnd at Portogruaro, the ancient Jolia Concordta, in Venetia, the excavations of which had not in 1877 beed completed. Sarcophagi lie on the anrface of the ground, and the tuserigtions at present discovered ajpear to be of the fourth century. For some account of it sce De R.ssil (Bull. 1873, pp, 80-82; and for 1874,7 . 133 sqg. tav, Ix. and Rom. Sott. (1877), tom, Sil. p. 396).
but left open like a well and having locnli excavated in their sides, precixely as in the Cntacombs ( $4 . s . ;, 404$ ). Ile gives in inne an account, in the first volume of his Ins:rint. Chrioh Urb. Rom 2. 108), of a cemetery attachel to the Vatican basilica, which was aecidentally discoverel in the following manner. On september 6, 1689, a horse trod upon nud broke the stune which covered the opening ta the graves below. Beneath was found a white marble sareophagus, between seven and eight feet long, three feet broad nad three feet deep, crimposed of seversl piece joined by mortar; the body, placed thereia on its back, was swsthed and embalmed. Below this, divided from it is a partition about ning inches thick, was discoverel nuother collin of the snme size and with similar contents. On the insile of the lid of the Intter was fuund an inscription, whose date corresponds with A.D. 369 . Other coffins again wero discovered below this, but the excavations were not thoroughly carried out. The stone, as frequently happeos, was broken in pieces and part of it built into a wall. De lossi descrites the whole inseription from C:ampini, and indicates by his plate the small protion still surviving (see his no. 211, p. 102). He also gives (Rom. Sott. t. i. p. . . rram illustrating this mode of sepultue. Colfins thus placed one above another in strata have not, so for as De liossi is aware, been observed in Africa, or in Uppar Italy or in France, or in any other country where subterranean cemeteries were unknown. The arrangement indeed is substantially the same as that which is ndopted in the eatocombs of Rome [Catacombs, in Vol. I. p. 31:3].

Some yery singular tombs have been found in the north of Italy, st Brescin, Verona, zed especially at Milan, below the floor of the basilica of Fausta. Contrary to the rule which obtains in the Romnn catacombs, the tombs are decornted with paintings in the interior ; they are constracted of masonry, and their narror walls are adorne' ' : ' 'he inside with images and symbols traced in olor rs. They hare been assigned to the agea or, secution, but although this opinion can hardly be manintained, their style is in all likelihood a survival from the times when it was dangerous to nllow signs of Christianity to be seen outuardly (De Rossi, Rom. Sott. t. i. pp. 100-101, and references).
A few words should be said in conclusion of the $t$ wo principal forms of the sarcophagus which are found in ltaly, and also in other countries: (1) the oblong chest or coffin type, with flat lid; the ends are oenerally scuare (De Rossi, Rom. Sott. tom. i. thv. xxx., two examples-one sarcophagus is quite plain; the other slightlyornamented) or more rarely rounded (D'Agincourt, Mist. de l'Art, Sculpture, pl. iv. nos. 2 and 3, both sculptured): (2) the cottage type (a apanna of the Italian antiquaries), with lid like a roof, (Le Blnnt, Inscr. Chret. Gaule, pl. 78, quite plain) ; the roof ridge is sometimes truncated to ndmit of an inscription being placed thereon (Le Blant, u. s. pl. 22, no. 139, uearly plain; D'Agin

J He mentions, however, as an exception, the dispa tton of the sarcophasi in the church of Vlenne. $s$. Gervals furntshes another exception. (For both them see below.) Suft he thinks tt not improbable that tals mode of burial may have been introduced into otbor parts of the Roman Cliristian world.
court, \% s. pl. writtell on the the sile (böckh base of the tri times crnament (Böekh, u. s.) of a single ston were also used sort. See vario in Scolitcres.
France,-Aft most abounds w sad slabs. But of parntively few te stances under wh quently unknown observations and snd figures, come were three forms Gaul aecomprnie tombs; (2) ceme eitner below the ing on the soil; sanctuarics of (Samucl. pp. I44, two examples shni burne in mind th scription of Graul thao the 4th cent
(1) Isolated Ton lation was to be se phias, nt Sninte-Cr 405. It bears the

Depositio Adelf mensitm | et tridec Avgnati| Sex a $及$ el Frsa m| 9 (mate
It is now in the m Ins. Chr. G. t. ii. p
" bille (l'inseripti "encore en place il des côteaux de Viol pres do la voie pub sur la grande face motilons à chaux e eneore un squelette lt would appear $p$ number of the sma marhle of square or late the tombs or dear them, both in F countries (De Rossi, 86).

Another and a ve isolated tomb occurs risited in the 17 th it, ss the burial-pl? arciption is in elegi person buried, Alethit siagular that it con tinctly Christian teelf is prose, probnbly in constlate of Paulinus, hrvaled Burgundy, to made in line seven. T containing the laserip a commen form, is fig 196, pl. 64, no. 391 ), of the sareophagus is ring locnli ex. as in the $s$ in tive an ne inswipt. Churist ry attached to cidentally djpOn september roke the stone graves beiow. e sarcophagus, ng, three feet sed of several placed therein dmed. Below on about nine er collin of the On the inside an inscrijtien, . 369. Othet $\checkmark$ this, but the cartied eut. was broken in all. De liossi om C:sumpiai, amall pertion 102). He also rram illusCollins thus a have not, se ved in Afriea, in any other eries were nasubstantially al in the cata. l. I. p. 313]. e been tousd Verona, and $r$ of the basie rule which he tombs are nterier; they tl:eir narrow th images nod y have beed but although atained, their ;al from the dlew signs of y (De Rassi, ferences). conclusion of phagus which er countries : pe, with fint re (De Rossi, xamples-one alightly orna(D'Agineourt, 2 and 3, both e (a axpanna id like a root, pl. 78, quite truncated to d thereon (Le ain ; D'Agin on, the dispa of Vlenne. :For both these bable that this aeed into othes court, ヶ.s. pl. ir., sculpture 1), insteal of being Written on the enl (t.e Mhant, u.s. pl. 59) or on the sile (Buekh, C. I. G. no. 916.3, pl. sv.). The base of the triangular end of the lid is sonsetimes ornamanterf with rerotcriu, like a temple. (Böckh, u. s.) The chest and lid may each be of a single stone, or of many; bricks and tiles were also used in the constriction of the meanter sort. See varione examples of sarcophagi given in Sculiture.
Frasce.-After Itnly this is the comantry which most nbounds with Christinn sepulchral stones and slabs. But of those which are preserved comparatively few tell their full story. The circumstances under which they were found are frequeatly unknowa. M. Le Blant, partly by his own observations and partly by examinations of books and figures, comes to the concluslon that there were three forms of Christian burial in ancient Gaul accompanied by ioscriptions. (1) Isolated tombs; (2) cemeteries, where the tombs were eitaer below the surfice of the ground, or restlag on the soil; or (3) tombs clustered about sauctuaries of saints, or placed in churches (Slanucl, pp. 144, 145). Of each of these one or two examples shall now be adduced. It most be borne in mind that no Christian sepulchral inseription of Gemul whose date is known is earlier than the 4th centur:
(1) Isolated Tomis.-An example of this isolation was to be seen in the monument of Adelphims, at Sainte-Croix-du-Mont. The date is A.D. 405. It bears the following inscription :
 mensivn | et tridro P. C. Dom. ntri| ITonori
Avgnti| Sex a $\mathbb{R} \omega$ posvit | pater \$aurvsivs et Frsa $m \mid 9$ (mater?).

It is now in the musemun at Bnrdenux (Le Blant, Jns. Chr. G. t. ii. p. 384, no. 591).
"Elle (linascription) était," Rays M. Jouannet, "encare en place il y a quelques aunées an pied des côteaux de Viole dans les rignes du Peyrat, près de la voie publique. Elle était eacenstrié mowllons à chaux et à tombeau construit en moellons a chaur et à sable, et qui reofermait encare un squelette "(quoted by Le Blant, $\nu_{,} s$ ). aumber of the smaller extant a considerable number of the smaller extant inscriptions on inte the tombs or sarcophagi, or into been let near them, both in France and in various other countries (De Rossi, Rom. Sott. t. i. .pp. 95, 83).

Another and a very curious instance of an lsolated tomb occurs near Charmes, whinh was risited in the 17th ceatury, when Spon salw it, as the burial-place of a saint. The inorription is in elegiacs, and the naine of the person buried, Alethins, is read in acrostic. It is singular that it contains no evidence of distinctly Christian feeling. The last line, which is prose, probably Indicated the date of the consulate of Paulinus, A.d. 534, when the Franks Invaded Burgundy, to which allusiou seems to be made in line seven. The lid of the sarcophagus, containing the inscription enclosed in a label of 8 common form, is figured by Le Blant (u, s. p. 196, pl. 64, no. 391), and he salys that the form of the sarcephagus is exictly like one given by

TOMBS

1975
M. de Bolssleu (Inscr. Ant. de Lyon, no. cvii.
p. $\mathbf{i 2 \cdot l}$ ). The epitaph runs thus:

Aevi ingens genvs egregivm atq ordine pinceps L'gdeni procer rm notile comsilivn Exacto nitae tramacendit oul aethera corsu [Hic patric] religea gener ac pun siperis rgnara ve] non sient ac pilt filia comdunt
 Vsur [ae] lec's nates melioriture an[nis] [Civis] qui fverit simul non breve ter spatiom [Ver]sibus in primis ordine . $n$. . . terrier . . . $\boldsymbol{x}$. .. pauvlvi..

If the last distich is rightly restored tha initial

 Rentera C V will probably stand, as M. Leon Renier thiaks, for Clarissimus Vir; his proper(2) Cemetcries.
(a) Where the earth received the sepultures. many St. Gervals a cemetery was discovered not Viay years ago, in making a cutting for the tions frilload. A great part of the inscripto beloung therein are supyosed by M. Le Blant to belong to the 5th century. Among the sarcophagi some were made out of one block, but the majority were composed of tiles and old fragments; in several lastances the tombs had been placed one above another, and some corpses had been depasited between their lateral walls. With the exception of one which faced the south, they were regularly turned towards the east, after the usual Christian manner. Although the cemetery had never been violated, none of the epitaphs were placel symmetrically; they were found as it were thrown hap-hazard in the inside par hasard) upon the tombs, or in the inside or near them. A hasty sketch, by M. Girard, shews the irregular disposition of the tombs (Le Blant, u. s. tom. ii. pp. $52-53$, with a figure).
Recent excavations in an ancient censetery of the church of St. Jean-des-Vignes, near Chalons-sur-Saône, have revealed sarcophagi of freestone (grès) placed one above another two or three deep. They are aupposed to be of the Meroringian age (Le Blant, u.s. t. ii. pp. 543-4).
At Lyons, in 1731, in making a trench for laying down pipes, a cemetery was discovered which sarved at once for Chriatian and pagan burials. The excavations were not pursued firrther than was necessary for making the conduit. Of the inscribed stones which turnel up by chance the greater number were dated, and among them was found the earllest dated inscription yet discovered in France, being of A.d. 334 (Le Blant, u. s. t. i. p. 139, no. 62; and Manuel, pp. 211, 212).
The irscription was sometimes written in the inside of the sarcophayus, on a slab formiag its botton. Two such were found at Briord, whe being made of stones and bricks, the ottor having its sides and lid composed of tiles and undressed fragments (non-tailles). They are at lenst as early na the beginning of the sixth century (Le Blant, u. s. t. 1i. p. i, no. 37i; atso p. 20, по. 381).
(b) Whre the Sarcophagi tere resting on the Sol.-Such occur at Aliscamps, near Arlos, in great numhera. L.e Blant (Minuel, p. 145) observes that the mass of tembs here struck the eyes of Dante and Ariosto with $r^{2}$ adarment. (Inf. ix. 112, 115 ; Or. Fur, xxxlx. st. 72.)

TOMBS

l.e Blunt mentions an inscription engraved "sur le versaut du couvercle d'un sarcophage de pierre." This cover, in form of a root, is also marked with a crors pattee rudely traced with the point (u. s. t. il. p. 271, no. 535). It is undated. Another inscription from the sams place belongs to A.D. 541 (Le Blant, u. s. p. 272, uo. 537). De Rossi alao mentions having seeo at Aliscamps collins of calcareous stone with covers of the same shape incised with the clurisina and various torms of crosses, as well as lead coffina to contain the body (Licm. Sott. t. i. p. 95). When Mr. Fiirholt visited Aliscamps in 1856, he remarked that, in spite of the numbers of sarcophagi that have been carricd thence, hundreds still remain; and that for nearly a mile, as the visiter walks from Arles to the old chureh, he passes between rous of Koman tombs lying three and four deep on euch side of him. The best tombs have beer carried to the ransums; a few of those that remain have acnly, ine inscriptions; some bear the insignia of t.i- 1 , wefession of the dead which they contained, es wheye the carpenter's adze and t'e mason's plumb and line appear; but the larger number have tim Christian monogram only, A sketch of the general appearance of a part of the cemetery : given (C. R. Smith's Collect. Ant. voi. v. pp, 3 , 44).

At Sivaux coffins or sarcophngi, engraved with a cross or cbrisma and bearing a simple name, hare been found on an old burying-ground (cheinp de sepulture). They seem to be of the 6 th century, or thereabouts, and among them are some which appear to be pagan (Le Blant, u. s. t. i. ;p. 357-359; nos. 676 A-576 b). Some of the monuments of Aliscamps and of Sivaux have been drawn by Beauméné, but not very correctly (Le Blant, u. s. t. i. p. 25 ).
(3) Burials in Churches and Sanctuaries.From the apse to the middle of the nave of the aucient church of St. Peter of Vienne have been found benesth the aurface an important series of Christian tombs, and mure recently others reaching down to the threshold between the church and the porch. Towards the altar, where the relics of the martyrs were preserved, they were more numerous, and in the choir were two or three deep; but not so near the entrance. The cotlins had been old pagan sarcophagi, or made out of the debris of ancient buildings. The inscriptiuns, mostly cut in marble, have often been let into the stone which re-coverel the tombs (L.e Blant, t. s. ii. p. 581 ; see also De Rossi, Rom. Sott. t. i. p. 95 , and the reference). They belong, certainly in part, and probably all, to the bth century. Among these broken relics was found a piece of the epitaph of Sylvia, wife of the patriciau Celsus (A.D. 579), of which a complete copy exista in a MS. of the 9 th century (Le Blant, u. s. p. 582, and Manuel, p. 219). A great number of Gaulish iuscriptious shew that tombs were placed under the protection of the graves of martyrs (Le Blant, u, s. $t$. i. p. 397 ; see also his Munuel, pp. 146-148).

The tomb of Hilary, bishop of Arles, who died in 449, was formerly in a subterrasean chapel of the church of St. Houoratus at that place. It is a sarcophagus of white marble, and the inscription is written on the triuagular end of the lid. It is now preserved in the muscum. It reads: Sutcro $\mid$ sarache $l e \mid$ gis antestis $\mid$ (fi) $1-$ lowed by a leaf) Miluries (between two doves) hic quicscit (preceded by chrisma, followed by vase) | (Le Blant, u. s. i. ii. p. 252, no. 515. pil. 69, no. +1 (i). De Rossi remarks on the beauty of the marble earcophagi with Christian sculp,tures, representing sceaes of the Old and New Textameats, whicin are to be seen at Morscilles, Arles, Nismes, Aviguon, and other cities in the south of France (u. s. 1. 95).
Zacharias, third bishop of Jyons, in the 1 n . ginuing of the 3rll century, hail the first found. tion of a cella known as the charch of the Maccabees, and in after-times as the erburch of st. Justus. It was originally undwrground, being a kind of crypt which was caretully conceried from the knowledge of the pagaos; threin were deposited the remains of the illustrious matyry of Lyous, with St. hreuaeus at their heal In the mins of this church were found in the ytar $17: 3$ several Christinu sepulchral sliabs of marble belonging in part or entirely to the 5th century (Le Blant, u. s. t. i. pp. 39 aqq.). The two twivwing are ninong the most important:-
(1) Fhwivs Flori [nvs] | cx tribunis qui vixit | retcyinte et $\mid$ septim milituvi (sic) ann. | trigina ot novem positv (sse) | est ad sanctos et pro | butes annorun. decin $\mid$ et octo hic commemo $\mid$ ra $[$ tio jit $]$ santa in eclesia Lvgdvnensia |id Calemdas Aus. (Le Blant, no. 41).

Date probably of the 5th century, the aid (ante diem primum) for pridie being a formula of that age. (See Le Blant, u. s. p. 338.)
To Florinus, a tribune, buried beside the tombs of the saints or martyre of Lyons; entered as a military probationer, when eighteen years of age; mentiond during divine aervice in the diptychs, or i- of benefactors to the church.
This inscrip.on is interesting as mentioning the military profession of a Chriatian, Others have been diligently collected by Le Blant ( $u$ s. ).
(2) In hve loov (for hunc locuin) reqvicvit Levcudia | deo sacrata prella qui (sic) vitam| svam provt proposverat \| gessit qui vixit annos xvi tantom | beatior in dno condedit meniem i pst consv 7hevdosi xiii. The chrisma between two doves facing each other (Le Blaut, nu, 4t).

Post consulatum Theodosii xiü. gives A.d. 430 for the date.
The qui twice occurring as feminine msrks the transition to the French qui.
Le Blant's remarks on the three forms of Christian burial in France apply to sepulehres in France of an earlier date than the 8th century.
There is however another class of tombitoses which he does not notice, belonging, in part at least, to a somewhat later time, but not altogether too late to be noticed in the present work. Le Men (in Revue Arch. vol. sxix. p. 89, for 1875) observes that at an ancient periol, about the. $\mathrm{h}, 9 \mathrm{th}$, or 10th century, it was cust. in $2 \cdots$ er Brittany to mark the graves of " p persons by a loug stone set in ground having the form of a pyramid or cated cone, often channelled from top to botten, sometimes surmounted by a cross of stove, an 1 frequently having a cross pattée incised on on:
face, ${ }^{k}$ They some few rec are very man bihan and Stubbs (Cus cconint of so hors, one oy eorly as the they all "me to nseertain $t$ Sraln,--A cbral inscrip removed from ataices under been recorded. modes of inter the country w All the thre occur here alsc Oppitaras was Yillarauca ue constructed of mathle slab, lines, dated by (Hübner, Inscr. Christian ceme rosa, about half (Ilureo). Full brought thene centurg, are to Ws have an sauctuary at A is an ornament. bishop Gregory chrisma, combin a circle. On one above anoth meaces with the shews that the mediate connexi standing in the century by kin which was probia a more ancient Fine sarcophagi subjects, probabl have been found at Saragossa (Ilii Germany.-Fc follow, we are inc Augsburg there i quem dudum Afre soleum aibi aui writer of the 15 t following some $n$ lies buried in a sa similar to those of of the present ce contain a plate of Roman uncial chat cation of Christian suffered in the Dio $\therefore$ Ruinart on Ang a sarcophagi of s. ription whatev St. Gereon and in At Trier likewise of SS. Paulinus am face. ${ }^{\text {. }}$ They rarely bore any inseription, but some few record the names of the deceased. They are nery numpous in the departments of Morbiarn and Finisterra. Messrs. Haddan and Wtubbs (Cu wei's, vol. ii. Pp. 97, 98) give an hare, one or two of chere tombstones aud inscrip. corly as the 6 th of whi, 1 appear to be even as they all "med siftime and eat they observe that to "ssertain their real dates."

[^180]
TOMBS

Srain.--A very latay 1 roportion of the sepulchral inscriptions now remaining have been removed from their originsl sites, and the cireumstatices under which they were found have zot been recorded. It is probable, however, that the modes of interment which premiled throughout all the were much the same as in France. accur the three kinds mentioned by Le Blant oceur here also. Thus, an issulated tomb of one Yillatranca found in 1821 in ano olive-yard in Cillatrama ee Cordoba. It wrs a sarcophagus constructed of stones, covered with a large mawile slab, bearing an inscription in twelve lioes, dated by the Spanish era 680, i.e. A.D. 642 (Hübner, Lascr. Christ. Hisp. p. 36, no. 123). A Christian cemetery was discovered near Asquerosa, about half a league from Pinos de la Puente (Ilureo). Full particulars of an inseribed slab brought thence, probably of the 5 th or 6th century, are to be fonnd in Huibner (u.s. no. 116). We have an example of $n$ tomb placed in $n$ ssuctuary at Alcala del Rio (Ilipa), where there is an ornamental cippus erected in honour of bishop Gregory, A.D. 544. At the top is the chrisms, combined with the a pad $\omega$, enclosed in $s$ circle. On either side are two quatrefoils, one above another. The inscription, which commences with the words " in hoc trmplo iacet," shews that the cippus was once placed in immediate connexion with the grave. It is now standing in the chapel, dedicated in the 15th century by king Ferdinand to this Gregory, which was probably erected on the same site as a more ancient chapel (Hübner, u.s. no. 60). Fine sareophagi, sculptured with seriptural subjects, probably of the 5th or 6th century, have been found in the crypt of a ruined chureh at Saragossa (Hibbner, u. s. no. 152).
Germany.-For the few notices of tombs which follow, we are indebted mostly to De Rossi. At Augsburg there is a sepulchral areat or "hortus, quem dudum Afra comparaverat et in quo mausoleum sibi suisque esse decreverat," as a writer of the 15 th century expresses it, perhaps following some more ancient authority. She lies buried in a sarcophagus of calcareous stone similar to those of Aliseamps. At the beginning of the present century her ceffin was found to contain a plate of lead inseribed AFra in good Roman nucial characters, but without any indication of Christianity. She and her companions suffered in the Diocletian persecution, aecording $\therefore$ Ruinart on August 7, A.D. 304. There are sarcophagi of the same kind without any St. Gerion whatever at Cologne, in the erypt of St. Gereon and in the basilica of St. Ursula. At Trier likewise were found in the basilicas of SS. Paulidus and Matthias a large number of sarcophagl similar to those of Vienne, mentioned above (De Rossi, Rom. Sutt. t. i. pp. 87, 95, 98, and the references). At the same place, as Le Blant observes, occurred a cemetery in which Christinn and pagan tombs were mixed: on oue of the former an inseribed tablet of white ninrble was let into a thick stone slab, which was placed against the side of the lid; this tomb was made in the form of a roof turned upside down ( 4.8 . t. i. p. 380 ).

[^181]TOMBS
1977

The ancient Franks, nud perhaps the Germanic tribes generally, buried the dead in a wooden coffin (the noffus of their ancient laws, see Ducange, s. v.) or in a stoue chest ( $p e t r a$ ), placing thereover small wooden structures corered with drapery (the aristato or staplum of the same laws, see Ducange, s. v.). The Christinns adopted this usage; we read of corpses " pallis ac naufis exnrnata" (Greg. Turon. de Glor. Conf. c. 20); and from it our modern pall seems to have descended. Sometimes the structures of woed were larger (porticulus, atriolum, or basilica), and were of an oblong form, having four celumas and being open on all sides; these also were used by the Christians. Wendelin in his Sillic Glossary observes that up to the year 1000 almost all basilicas in Burgundy were made of wood (see Chiflet, Anast. Child. Regis, pp. $78-\mathrm{f}$ 80 ).
Great Britain,-In the Celtie parts-that is to say, in Cornwall, Devonshire, Wales, and Seottish and English Combria-pillar-stones, generally very rudely formed, were erected over the graves of the deceased. They vary in height from about two feet and a half to twelve feet, the most usual height being about four or five feet or a little more; they are four-sided, fur the most part of pearly the game breadth throughout their whole length, usually rounded at the top, but ocensionally sloping from the base to a point or cut square (Hübner, Inser. Brit. Christ. nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 10, 15, 18, 19, 30, 71, &e. $;$ Berlin, 1876). ${ }^{1}$ A great many of these besr no signs of Christindity, though ther are presumed to be Christian by Hübner and others ; but ujoon some few of then such signs are manifest in the chrismn, the only symbol save the cross which occurs), or in words, as Christianus, in pice, &c. It is exceedingly difficult to assign most of them to any particular period; some however are regarded as probably belouging to the 5th, while others are referred to various succeeding centuries. The inscriptions are mostly very sholt, otten giving the name only, or "Here lies (hio jacet, mare commonly ic jucit) such an one." In some cases the corpse was certainly buried under a heap of stones aud the pillar placed at the top (Hübner, u.s. no. 136); such monuments wers probably solitary. More usually the burials were in churehyards, or in cemeteries attached to religious houses, many pillar-stones having been found in such places or built into the walls of churches and priories (Hübner, u.s. passim). These rude cippi are often found not in situ, some having been converted into gateposts (Hibner, u. s. nos. 14, 21, 102, 148), or [^182]ased for stiles, or bridges, or door-sills (Ilübner, u. s. nos. 17, 29, 101).

The number of Cornish pillarestones bearing inscriptions falling withia our period, whose Christianity can be counted upon, is extrewely small. (See lliibaer, u. s. nos. 1-22; Hadlan and Stubbs, Councils, vol. i. pp. 162 and 16:3.) In Devonshire there are no stones indubitably Christian bearing inscriptlons; hut stone crosses net inseribed, which are considered te be Christian, occur in several places here aud in Cornwall.
In Wales, pillar-stenes with Christlaa iuscriptions are much more numerous. On oue of them Panlinus ls commemorated in two barbarous hexameters; he is presumed to be the bishep of that name who lived about the middle of the 6th centurg. and who taught st. Darvid and st. Tile at his college of Whitland. Another mentlons Idnert, whe is supposed to be the same as the last bishop of Llanbadaru in the firat part of the 8th century (Haddan and Stubbs, Councils, Fol. i. pp. 164-169, 625).

Eirbmadrine Pinaratone. (Straart.)
In Scettish and English Cumbria there are very few inscribed tombstones whose Christinnity is certain, but uniuscribed crosses, some ormameuted, have been found in churchyards in Cumberland, in Wigtonshire, and about Glasgow.

TOMBS

At Kirkmadrine in Wigtonshire, however, there was in the old church. gard a stone bearing the chrismat on the upper part of both back and frent. On the front the A ETT $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ is placed above the chrisma, which is enclesed in a circle, and below it, " Here lie the holy and priacipal priests, he. Viventius and Majorius." It is probable that it Is of the 5th century, nad commemorates priests connectel with St. Niaiau. This stune, and another bearing the chrisma aall the name of Fioreatius, were lately ased as gate-posts in the wall of the burying-ground (llubner, u. s. nes. 205, 206; Haduan and stubbs, u. s. vol. ii., pp. 51, 52).

The Bewcastle Croes, (Stepheus)
There are very few pillar-shaped monuments inscribed in the Anglo-Sason language; oue, apparently sepulchral, has been found near Camelford in Cornwall, but the menuing of the inscription has not been ascertained (Hübner, u.s. ne. 16). 'the Saxoa tombstones are priacipally of two kinds-stnne crosses with loag stem and short arms near the top, sometimes highily ornamented with scribed with Run crosses very simil below), and with Sylendid Ruate ero that one of our ear to Oswin king of reads ouly "After Collingham, Yorks Cumberland, was e a.D. 670 . The tep have beed broken teen feet and a halt been originally mo Upon it are figure lamb, of the Savio 8 bird (hawk?). sre viec-branches an also Runic iassripti Where the figures loagest inacriptinn o beacon (pillar) was named "after" (to). on of Osery." The cross is pretixel, is sin." A third, the la is to Ealulf (A.D. 70 meat only remains. is King Eadulf's' Sfyre lah , made me, $I$ Stepheas' liunic Mon A more humble, but any ef the foregoing, s churchyard by som grave. Its date is st and 700 , and it rea Cynibalth; God bless ancther cress, abeut found at Falstone Nor inscription written $t$ in Romin characters cross found at Dews os Sixoo iuscriptiou, w ters; it probably bel ceatw y. (Sce fig. p. request prayers for $t$ phens, u. s. pp. 375, 45 Sarcephagi were not Sasons; ${ }^{m}$ ene of the Greek cross on the sid st Dewsbury (Fosbroke p. 132 , with fig. from $G$ The lid of another, rol beariug a peculiarly for inscribed in Runes, $K$ i discovered nt Dover (Ste At Hartlepoel, in Durl 1833, the cemetery whic charch of St. Hilda. S 7), seme with Runes a criptions, were dug inp thirty yards distant fr bore crosses, with or either the name of the sditien of a request for Some are sai." to have and a half wouw the su tike a pllluw uader the ornamented with interlacing patterns, \&c., inseribed with Runes; or slatse beariag incised below), and vith Latin of to the Irish (see Splendid Rume crosses have been echaracters, han one of our early have been erected to more to Oswin king of Dings : ene, now matilated, reads only "After ( $\mathbf{t}$ ) Onsleciui, Kin, ", it now Collinghan, Yorkshire. Another, at lieweastle Cumberland, was ereeted to king Alefrith about A.D. 670. The top and both arms of the cross have been broken off; its present height is fourteen feet and a half, and it is conjectured to have been originally mere than tweaty teet high. Ljen it are tigures of Joha the Baptist with lamb, of the Saviour, and of another holling aird (hawk?). On three of the four sinles are vine-branches and grapes; $t$ wo of these have where the figures are seen in the fourth, Where the figures are seen in relief. The beacon (pillar) was erectel by there piethis named "after" (to) Alefrith, some three prersons on of Ostey." The last senteace, to which and cross is prefixed, is "l'ray for his soul's areat sin," A third, the latest belonging to our perioul, is to Eadulf (A.D. 705), of which a smalll fragment only remains. It ajpears to read: "7his is King Lalulf's grave; pray for his soul. Syyre lah mute me, Mludioyg inserihe me" (see Stephens' liunic Monuments, pp. 390, 398, 461 ). a more humble, but hetter pre-ervel cross than any of the foregoing, was found at Lancuster in a churchyard by some men who were digeing a grave, its date is supposed to lio between 600 Chnibalth, and it reads in Runes: "Prety for Cynibalth; Gool bloss him." A fragment of founl at Falstone wout A.d. 700, to Hroetberht, foum at Falstone Northumberlanal, has a Saxon inscription written twiee, in Runic and also in coman characters; and a small piece ot' a cress found at Dewsbury in Yorkshire bears a Saxon inseription, written in Roman characters; it probibly belongs to the 7th or 8th cont"ly. (See fig. p. 1987.) Both inseriptions request prayers for the sonl of the dead (Stephens, u. s. pp. 375, 456, 464).

[^183]
TOMPS

Sarcophagi were not unkoown to the AngloSaxons; ${ }^{m}$ one of the capanna type, bearing a Greek eross on the sido of one end, way tound at Dewsbury (Fosbroke, Encycl. of Ant. vol. i. p. 132, with fig. from Gent. Bfay. 1836, ii. p. 38). The lid of another, rounded at both ends, and beariug a peculiarly formed cross, on which is inscribed in Runes, Kitil Urna lieth hore, was discerered at Dover (Stephens, u. s. p. 465).
At Hartlepoel, in Durham, was fouud in July, 1833, the eemetery which belongel to the ancient church of St. Hilda. Several small slabs (cent. 77), some with Runes und some with Latin inscriptions, were dug up about one hundred and thirty yards distant from the church. They bore crosses, with or without $A$ and $\omega$, and either the name of the dend ouly, or with the Soune of a request for prayer on his behalf. Soine are sni. to have been found three feet like a hallow under the head of soil, each like a plllow under the head of a skeleton placed north nnd senth. The largest of these Wats oaly a foot square, the smallest seven and a half by five nnil a halt' inches. Bele (Lib. times buried mentions that the Sixons someperhaps nillided the dead in stone cotlins, and may of the burial to a pillow-stone in his account (Stephens, tb. 3. 1p. 39.197 of the Eant Saxuns true, that ston. Fp . 392-i97). It is strmage, if should be orivinally placed "ray for such a one," Saxon tomhstones plated nadergrouml.0

[^184]Tombs
1979
occorred in varioun with Latin lineriptions have in Yorkshire. On parts of kighand, mostly of a eross, we have the nums, perhaps pieces abbess of Hackuess ; on hoth of Aelillurga, invoked for her ress on both pieces prayers are ning of the 8th repose. They are of the begin18:3) For th centary (Hïbner, u. s. nos. I82, sulficient to the remaining tomberones it must be pillars havelieen small number of tour-sided which are of the same gencral chariacterneteries, ot Wales and other same general character as those these have been her parts of Gireat Britain. Most of bear incised been found in the county of kerry; they panied by the lettera which are sometimes aceomDomini, the lettera dNs, DNi, DNO, for Dominus, they were ""nno. Dr. Petrie considered that latest, of the 6th centionably of the 5th, or, at the Insor, vol. ii. p. 6). Other square pillars, bearst. ing crosses of various forms, have pillars, bearKillpeacan (now Puckawn), in the county of Tipperary, stunding close together near the ruins of an old ehurch,p These last bear every apparance of being sepulchral. Some of those of lierry, in Miss Stokes's opinion, viz. those bearing letter's as above, do not appear to have been sepulchral, but were rather signs set up as terminal crosses to mark the bouadaries of the sadetuary (u, s. vol, ii, p. 133). There is a fine quadrangular pillar-stone at Killnnsaggart in the county of Armagh, which certainly seems, thom the inscription, to have been erceted for the latter purpose (ef. the Whithorn Inseription, IIibner, u. s. noo 207). Ilübner, u. s. no. 207).

By much the greater number of sepulehral monuments consist of that slabs, which hare ween semetimes found in situ. The earliest which can be approximately dated are of the of the 9th. and there are others of the 8th and of the 9 th. There is little doabt that they were

- May not these little slabs have origtnally been set in earcophagl a bove gronad, or In the wallis or floor of the monastery? Slmilar small slubs have been fouad Burgou)

$$
\text { - The } 1
$$

- The letters das are tnecribed on one at of an mented cross In the churchyard nt Nevern In Pembrokeohire; it is supposed to be of the sth century letters on the other alde, $\Delta$ sher (?) have pory. The plaioed (Hubner, u. 8. no. 103).
${ }^{\mathrm{P}}$ At Kllieen curmac, in the county of Kidare, there wite ways Dr. S. E. mimuit of a mound. "Pllar stones," dibris of the wafle, which formenty crosaes, and the terraces, give an appearance of formerly supported the to the place which it is ance of alagularity and autiquity to the place which to is difficult to deseribe." A sizetch It does not clearly appear whether the s. vol. If. p. 2, but crossces er not; one of themether the pillur-stooes bear wth ne celtil? mark of Christlantty.

1980

 TOMBSalways laid flat upod the surface of the soil, or in the floor of a church or other sacred buildiog orer the body of the deceased. The brief request which most of them contain to pray for the deceased seems to shew that they could not have been buried along with the corpse, but mus: have been visible to the eye. The greater part of them have been broken, so that it is impus. sible to asecrtain the dimensions accurately. A few are aearly perfect, and their dimensions are approximately as fullows:-27 iaches ly 20 (rol. i. jl. xviii. tig. 47); 32 inches by 18 ( $p$ ! xix. tig. 49); 40 iaches by 29) (pl. xliii. fig. 108) ; 58 inches by 20 (vol, ii, jl. xv, tig. 319); 33 luches by 12 (pl. xvi. fig. 34). The great ancient cemetery of lreland was at Clonmacnois, or Cluan, in King's County, and princes and nobles desired to be buried there for the sake of the iatercession of the patron salnt Ciaran, who built the mouastery at that place about the ycar 544. An aucieat Irich poem bjeaks of mea "sleeping under the tlags of Cluain." Many of these flags of liae work hive been met with in digging graves and daring recent excavations (Stokes, ut, s, vol, i. pp. 4, 5). Another singularly beautiful stone, probably of about the 9 th ceatury, the time "when hrish art was at the bighest polnt, still lies half-buried ln grass in the churchyard of Durrow "in the same county (Stokes, u. s. vol. ii. p. 57). At Termonfechid, near Drogheda, in the county of Louth, a native stone was foond in the clay floor of the ch.urch when it was exeavated about ten years ago. It benrs n Greek cross, and a rery early Celtic inscription, entreating prayers for two persons named, "who made the stone fort" (Stokes, u. s. vol, ii. p. 70). Some sepulchral atones.were discovered ln a chareh of the 12 th century at Mona-incha in the county of Tipperary, which appear to be greatly older than the building itself, and may have been laid on the tloor of an enrlier structure on the site (Stokes, $u$. . vol. ii. pp. 35-37). DFias Stokes remarks that "while the standing crosses" (none earlier than the 10 th centary, as it would appear) "throaghout Ireland are much alike, there is a marked dissimilarity in the sepulchral slabs fouad in the different ancient burial-gronnds throughout the country" (Stokes, u.s. vol. i. p. 8). These were, in perhaps every instance, marked with a cross of some kind. Sometimes a simple Greek cross precedes a proper name, as that of Colman at Clommacnois, who died A.D. 661. The Ogham following the pame answers to the Irish word bucht, i.e. poer (Stokes, tu. s. rol. i. p. 16). Sometinses an orbamented Greek cross has a circle about the centre, and each arm is terminated by a aemicircle, as that of Colouban, who died A.D. 628 (Stokes, u. 8. vol. .. Pp. 15, 16, 11. 1. fig. 3 ; see also Vol. I. p. 847). Birt the peculinel ! in, f.mm is the Latin cruss having a cin in t tre 1 're, of whicls the carliest at Clomin nors; he died A.D. 724 (Stokes, u. \& vol. 1. $p$ t ty). Crosses, both Greek and Latin, are sometimes enclosed in parallelograms. For the various details of ormamentation, see Stokes, u. s. vol. D. pp. 138-146, Resjecting the tombs of other couatries, a very fow words must suffice. In most of them they nppear to be of much the sume general character as those which ariv, hen ibrealy mentionenl. There are cuppi in Egypl (Boeckh, no. 9131), la Asia Minor (id. no, 9165), as well as in Greece and the adjucent Inlands ( $\mathfrak{i}$ h, no. 9311 sqq. nos. 9292,9299 ). Sarcophagl appear to have beea general throughout Asia Minor (id nos. $9206,9264,9283$ ), and have been found in considerable numbers in the cemeteries of Corycns In Cilicia (iul, no. 9163, with fig., 8qq.). They oceur also in Africa, ode seulptured with the Good Shepherd between sheep (Renier, Inscr. Rom, de l"Alyérie, nos. 2293, 4031).

TOMBS

It is curieus to observe that the columas of the peristyle of the Partheaon have beea converted, so to say, into Christiad tombstones. Upon them are iascribed in situ a great number of Christian epitaphs, the carliest of which appear to be of the 7th and 8th centuries, while they go down as low as the 14th (ul. nos. 9330 9421). Their genwineness, however, has been denied (Ritter, de. Comp. Fit. Christ. p. 2).

Cemeteries were attached to churches or monasteries in Nubia (id. no. 9112, and in Asia Minor (il. nos. 9249, 9:68).q Buriuls in chorches perhaps occurred at Constantioople and in Thesbaly (iul, 9447, 9424), ${ }^{r}$ but appear to hare been rare throughout the East generally, at all events in early times.

Tombs excavated in rocks occur at Jerusalem and elsewhere. Oa the side of the motutaia called the Hill of Ofience facing Mount Zion, a serjes of subtermaean chambers have been cut ont, each containing one or more repositories for the dead, craved in the rock of the siles of tisose chambers. M. Clermont Ginneau has lately disco:ered here several small sarcophagi, or rather ossuary chests, some bearhy Hebres and sotne rireek inscriptions, in which the name of the deceased is accompanied by a eross; these, he thinks, are almost coeval with Christianity in Pulcstine (De Rossi, Eull. 1874, P1. 155-158; Quart. Statem. Pal. Expl. Fuınd, 1874). Orer the entrunce of some of the e... mehres are Greek inscriptions, to which crjsses are unually prefixed. One of the $s$ orer the door of the chamber appropris ${ }^{\text {a }} \mathrm{J}$ Jomminh, a monk of the monastery of The (ii. no. 9139). These tombs are hout sament, aud are suppesed to be eadwr than rume other sepulchres at no great distance from them at Acel-

9 Hamilton (Researches in Avia Minor, p. 390) says that the columns and capitals in this borial-grooad at Nefer Kleul tu Gatatia are Byzantine. Theat tembs mot bire been of a considerable size.

* The cpituph at Constantinople is upposed to te of about the 6th ceotury. That at Lamia in Thessly of' about the 4th. Query: Are they In their original gites?
dama. In som probably be of are unclent pain of the chambers others with nim Travels, vol. hi. 441-44:3). Sepn Syrla (Boeckh, $u$. Asla Minor (id. n (110. 9450)."

We have sald a monuments of in s meniory of Chris of the empress lle ! fum at liome of emperor Constanti domes; of the cro Ilacidia at Kaven lemm of Theodoric for these see C'Ita knowa works of 1 where figures will few others still msusoleum of St . of gigantic size, st not far from $r$.et Callistus ( $\mathrm{De}_{\mathrm{e}}$ lioso tom, iii. P, 465). considers to belong other companions alove the cenieter hexagonal form and u.s.p i/1). He described by St. Gre aal form surmount 472). It can har more Christinn sel architectural chara are several imper 5th centuries (ior c. 4) directed nyains general; one of Con tion of columins an Constantius the tran sepalchral buidings laws were issued $t$ without religions dis spared no expense in see the jassage from

B. Objects

The Christians, in aeighbours, were in tl ff ojjects in the tomb A Christian motive is selection, althongh fi been intinunced by Many of them have meationed [Ousequie a variety of jermonal the toilet are among moaly found. The w thus placing gold becane indeed everyw imperial edict, though

[^185]
TOMBS

dama. In some of these last, which may are ancient paintings npon the sidea and ry, of the chamibers, representing the apostles and others with nimbi nbout their heads (Clarke's Truecls, vol. ii. pp. 549-571 ; Boeckh, t. s. pp. $4+1-443$ ). Sepulchral enves oeeur also in North Syrja (Boeckh, u. s. no. $910^{2}$ ), in varlous parts of Asin Minor (id. nos. 9211, 9259), and in Malta (no. 9450)."

We have sald nothing of certaln architectural monuments of a sepulchral character erected ia memory of Christian prluces, such as the tomb of the empress helena outside Rome, the masusum at home of Constantia, a daughter of the emperor Coustantlae, both eireular buillings with domes; of the cruciform faneral chapel of Galla Placidin at Ravenna, or of the splendid mausoleum of Theodoric the Great at the same place: for these see Chapla, Churcir, also the wellknown works of Hübsch, Quast nal Fergusson, where figures will be found. The ruins of a very few others still anrvive. One known as the masoleum of St. Soteris, of circular form and of gigantic size, stands beside the Apptan Way, not far from t .e above-ground cemetery of St. Callisius (De Jossi, Rom. Sett. tom, i. tavv, 1 ; tom. iii. p. 465). Anuther, which De Russi considers to belong to the martyr Tibertius and other comprantons of St. Cecilia, is to be seen sheve the ecmietery of Praetextatus; it is of hexagonal form and having six ajises (De liossi, u. s. p क1). He points out tha a martyrium described by St. Gregory Nyssen waty of octagonal form surmounted by a dome (... pp. $459-$ 472). It can hardly be donbted (i. it many more Christinn sepulchral monuments of nn architectural chatacter have perished. There sre several inperial haws of the fil and 5 th centuries (for which see binghayu, xatio. c. 4) directed a painst the violation of tombs in general ; one of Constuns coudemins the abstructien of columas and marbles, nad another of Coastantius the transferriag of the materials of sepulchral buildings to private houses. These laws were issued to prutect such sepulchres without religious distinction, nad rich Christhans spared no expense in the erection of these edifices; see the 1 nassage from St. Basil quoted above.

B. Objcuts found in Tombs.

The Christians, in common with their heathen neighbours, were in the habit of placing n varicty af cojects in the tombs of their departed frieads. A Christinu mot're is sometimes evident in their selecticu, although for the most part it has not been intluenced lyy nuy such consideration. Maay of them have been already incidentally meationed [Obsequiss of the Dead, p. 1433]; 8 variety of per wond ornaments and articles of the toilet are amongst the objects most comthe toilet are amongst the objecte most commoaly found. The waste to which the custom beeame indeed everywhere so excensingents led beeame indeed everywhere so excessive that an imperial edlict, though not al imperial eclict, though not always enforced, was

> I He Forsi mentiuns that ptctures lik those in. catacombs of Rome are to be seen tn a Claristian cavern Io the Cyrenaica, aud that a almillarly patured vault (Rum. Sott. vol. i. p. 100). (Rom. Sott. vol. I. p. 100). Prubably these were nepalchrail tomas 1981
issued to check the enstom. [Buriat, or the Dead, Vol. 1. 1. 253.] The mest remarlinhle example is the large marble cotfin of the child Marla, who had been atlianced to the enupuror Honorlus, which was placed in the Basillea of St. Peter of Rome; it was foumi, when it was opened la 1544, to contain an inmense quantity of jewellery nmong many other things, as will be seen by the following epitome of Its colltents: a vest, clonk, \&c., made of silk and cloth of gold, from which forty pounds of gold were extracted by melting ; a Iarge silver great and small, ony vases and nrtieles in erystal, great and small, one in the shape of a nautllua titted titted up with gold nettling for a lamp; other litele vessels lite animals in agate and in gold, little vessels of gold, a gold heart, gold bucklea ndorned with gems, rings and hoops of gold of various patterus, gold pendants, and perhips the remains of a rattle (crepundia), crosses made of red and green gems, erosses of "old set with gems, earrings of precious ston , necklices of gold and genas, gold bracelets, a gold pin beariog the names of Maria and Hodorius, a silver pin and many fragments of precious stones, beshles 5 other articles. (Chiffet, Anast. Child. Hicyis, pp. 55, 56, queting Surlas; King, Gnostics, 1p. 123125, quoting Fanno; De lossi, liull. 1863, pp. found in 1653 in the may be compared the objeets Childerie 1653 in the tomb of the pagan king (u. s. 1p. 37-39, 188, 189) For by Chitet contents of the Cur 188, 189). For the spleadid contents of the Christian tombs of Helena, mother died 56tantine, of Narses, dake of Italy (who Chitlet, u, of Clovis, and of Charlemagne, see lojia, vol, sii. pp. 59, 60, 91, and compare Archaeocataeomis nre concerned, these objects Roman merated under Cataconns, Vol. 1. p. 31t. See alva Martigny, Dict. Ant. Chret. under "Objets 4. vís dana les Tombeaux Chrétiens," and De Ro n. Sott. t. iii. p. 305, for impressions to 1 ers remaining in the exterior mortar of the loculi. Thuy have also been founi, though not in equal numbers in other in Gaul (Cochet, La countries, , particularly passim ad (Cochet, La Normandie Soutervine, passim and plates). Some of these oechsionally Rives: Mings; Geas). Fibulae have also occurred in tumbs of the Merovinglan nge, on which Dadiel is seen between two lions: in one instance his uhme is ndded (Le Blaut, u.s., pl. 42, 8i). The nhbé Greppo possessed a silver hair-pin of slx faces above, on the first of which was written romvla (the name of the owner), on the third rivas in dilo, on the fifth semper; it was probably found in the catacombs of Rome (Perret, Cutac. vol. iv. pl. 20, no. 5, nad vol. vi. p. 120; Martiguy, u. s.). A pendant, composed of two onyx-stones joined together by a circle of gold ornamented on the edge with four emeralds and ten rubies, was discovered in the tomb of Maria. On one face was inseribed honorl | Maria \| stilicho \| serena | vivatis, on the other stilicho $\mid$ serena |therdantita | egoneri| Vivatis |, with bile chrisma (F) in the centre of each side (lerret, u. s. pl. 16, no. 78). The comb of St. Lupus (died 623), preserved in the treasury of the cathedral of Sens, was frobably placed in his tomb with a religious feeling, as priests were accustomed to comb their

1982

TOMBS
hair bufore celebrating the Eincharlat (Martlgny, u. st; |rucingw, s, r. Diecten).

Vestments ane aiso firpuently found in tombst Gor Maria see aboso; for Cunatantiae, who was placel in a gehl cotlin, cluthed io the Imperial purple and haviog a diadem on has head, see Eus, Fit. Cunst. lib. iv. e, 613 ; and for Chariemagne, who was dressed in his imperial rohes, aee Aro chncolingu, u. s. Military men were buried in nilitary gameats: St. Gereon was cluthed in a soldier's purple elonk and bluck lenther belt (chitlet, \%. 8. pp. 95, 107). See mure on thls subjoct generally under Onswacies on Tus LEAL! S $\because$ P. 14:3.

The inalguia of utlece of thase interred therein have uften been found in tombs. Sebert, king of the Eant Iogles, was burled with his royni robes und thumbering net with a ruby; while Cbarlemague hail his sword girt at his side, and offosite to him were suspuaded his golden aceptre ani golden shield, which hui been consecrited by pop Leo III. (Arehacologtit, u, so). Eicelesiastics were aiso sometimes burieal with the aymbuls of their atlice. In the last century the tomb at Clonmacoois of St. Climno (lied A.D. 544) was openel, and amongst other things his chalise ami crozier were found therein (Stukes, Irish Christ. Iuser, vel. 1. 11). 1, 3). A pectural eruss of lead and a small chatice were found among other ohjects In the grave of Birhus, bishop of Dorchester, who died A.D. 650 (Sarius, do l'it. Sunct. Hec. 3, vol, vi. Y. 220, Ven. 1681). And when the tomb of Sit. Cuthbert, who died 687, Was openell in the I2th century, no onyx chalice whis discovered beside his bedy [Citalice]. To desrend to puople of lower rank, implementa of handicraft, some of which have been mistaken for instruments ot torture, have been found in the loculi of the catacembs [Catacomis, Vol. I. p. 31 +].

Lamjes, pottery, and giass of various kiads have occurred both in the inside and outside of tombs in many parts of the Chbistian world [Catacombs, u. s.; Lamps, Pottery, Glass]. Bay leaves hava also been found nater the head of the corpse or elsewhere in the collin; they were placed there in token of triumph over death (Martigny, u. s.).

The iostruments by which their sufferings were inflicted were sometimes jlaced within the tembs of martyrs [ sec Oissequies, p. 1434]. Martigny has collected references to other instances. Leaden rollo containing the acts of their passion hare also been found buried with martgrs (Boldetti, Cimit. pp. 322-324, nod tav. ii. no. 3).

Perhaps the only other objects discovered in tombs which need be mentioned here are coins and medals. The first Christians, says Bosio, when they buried martyrs, were aceustomed to bury with them the coins of the emperer under whom they suffered (Rum. Subt. lib. iv. c. 31). This may explain the finding of coins of Diecletian in the tomb of Cains, bishop of Rome (A.d. 283296. Beldetti, $C$ mit. pp. 102-3). But in a single temb of the cemetery of St. Agnes, Buonarotti counted more than ten coins of different emperers of different times (Buon. Vetri orn. di Fig. Pref. f. xi.). Roman money of rarious periods has also been found in the Christian tombs of Gaul and Germany (Le Blant, Iusc. Chrét. de la Gaule, t. i. pp. 210, 345 ; Boldetti, Cinit. p. 644).

TOMBS

Coins and medals have likewlse bean seen fixed on the cutivide of tombin in the catacombs, perliaps for the anke of reagnition only (Buon Usservis. agira alo. Meditsl, referreal to by Marignay, u.s. minong other authuritien). Their lmpressiong have sometimes remained on the mortar, cleariy shewing the typer, after the colna hare vanished (De J wsi, Hom. Sutt. t. Iil. JP, 305, 309).

C. Select Sepulchral Inscriptions.

(See nlso Clatacomis, Vol. I. P]. 303-4-7-8-11.)
The small colfection here given has imme ilate reference to the article on Isisubiptions (Viol. I. 1] $1.811-862$ ). These which are thore figurel ( $1 \mathrm{j}, 845,847$ ) will nll be found written out and in anne eases trauslatel below. They ware selectel mostly with a view to illustrite the diflerent styles of jalacograjhy and the dilliment symbols exhibited in dillerent ejitiaphs. They likewhe serve to lliustrate the generni subject of the present articic, which contains a few mditional figures; one having symbuls not men. thoned or represented abrive (1p. $8+7,8+8$ ). The following relection and the examples alrealy cited in this naticle have beeu chosen to illustrate, so far as could be doae by a limited number, the varleus points of interest which epitaphs present, such as their dilferent ages, styles, grammatiend peculiarities, contractions of words and mades of dating, as well as for their intrinsic historical, ecelesiastical, or doctrinal importance. Thos the three carliest kuown dinted inscriptions, all in Reme, are here given, ns well as the earliest of those in our own coututry, which belong to the latter jart of the perivi comprised in this work. Exampies of the raried torns of composition will here be found, iacluling the most ancient, which have much iu common with pagan epitnjihs, and those of several detinite Chrlatian types which differ in dilferent conotries. A few instances of the selecisms, incorrect speit. ings, and peculiar uses of words an well as of the contractions of words (see lnscuiptions, $\S_{j}$ v. rii.), oecur in the epitaphs now given at length. The different mules of dinting by consulates, post-consulates, indictions, whs of provinces, reigus of kings, or cyclic perionls of time, will also here be exemplitied (see u. s. § vi.).

1. Italy.

1. (De Rossi, Inser. Urb. Rom. no. 3, p. 7.) Found by Boidetti in the cemetery of Lucind on the Vin Ostiensis.
gervilia , annorvar . Xill .
pIS . ET . bOL . COSs .
Servilia, 13 years old, (buried) in the consulate of Piso and Bolanus.-Piso and Bolanus were consuls A.D. 111. The earliest complete Christian inseription yet found.' The plice of finding, the omission of D. M . and the simplicity of the diction, uaite in proving that the epitaph is Christian. After this no dated Christian in-

- Onty two eartler are given by De Rosst, both very fneomplete: one, A.s. \%i, a fragment recwilug twit burials to one tomb, from the Catacombs, a ag oaly [kal ? a] vo . vespasiano mi cos. \| . . . . [kal? $]$ lan. (p. 1). The other, A.D. 107, from tho cemetery of Luctan, reading tn one (the last) line w. (i.e. ann[oraml) xxx bvra. Ét , senec . Coss . (p. 3).
seriptino of Rume ever) hay beed fuy 2. (he luessl, $u$ St. Jermes.
TI. CL MaRCIANy CuInELLA . HILAR connelitabi. Pavt FECt, (fecerunt") VIII. DEC. (decess VRD, COS.
(dien)
A fixh nad an an Urbanus were co Clnudius Marciana nominas they have say Christian ejit the 3ril ceotury. bearing Christion sy

3. ( 0 Ressi, $u$. s Inschirtions, Yui. cemetery of Saturn printed in vermilion separatlons of words
Latin Inscription
K $\Omega$ COYAE KAYム N $\Omega$ NEIC
NOBENBPEIBOY AOYNA XXIII AEYKEC ФEAEI CEME HOCOY EA EICTEIPEIT CANKTת TOYS P $\Omega$ M LV
E $\triangle$ MHC $\Omega P \Omega N$ Or, in Roman chara rosvile (consule) KLV ed (et) paterno non nodenhreaboys (N bexerrs (Vencris) levhes pileleje (fili resseme (carlsbimat ed (et) eispeireito sankto (sancto) to tua) answoron (an ED (et) Mlssoron (me ram) $x$.
In the consulship of the noncs of November, Fridiay, Nov. 5), the t Lewces (Lucens?) erca duwhter, Severa, and to aged fity-five years, elet Date A.D. 269.
"The inflexions of th appear nlso in no epitnp its Greek origin, almos racters in which it is racters in which it is July 1864, p. 233). Th the has its parailiel in Mec'sul, Christiar Cepita This inseription has bo Lupi's special trentise th For the mode of datit and Prologom, cap. De $C_{l}$ [^186]
TOMBS

en reen floce mbs, perlapis III Usserveis. art|gny, b, s. imiprestiony utar, clearly uve vanished 309).
!ions.
$-4-7-8-11$. is imme liat lows (hiol here figurem tten ont and They wire Instrate the the diliteren uphs. They teral subjeet tullus a few muls act men, 848). The Nees aliealy to illustrate, number, the thhy preenent, grammatienl ind moles of ic historical, inee. Thus criptiens, all the carliest hich belong omprised in ed torms of relurling the iи cumnnon verull detinite ut countries, zarrect spell. a well hs of murioss, &s ow given nt tiug by con. etas of protoclis of time, s. § vi.).
a. 3, p. 7.) y of Lucias the consulate Bolanis were iplete Chis ce of finding, alieity of the e epitizh is Christiaa in eription of Rume (or lodeed of any place whatever) has beea fount until A.D. 2014.
2. (lie Russl, u. s. no. 0.) lione, cemetery of St. Herines.

Th. CL Manclanys. ET.
cuthelda , Hllartitas.
collneldafi. parlata. Par. (parenten)
FECR. (fecerunt ${ }^{\text {b }}$ ) QCAE. VIX, ANA. X. DIEFI, (dien)
VIIt. DRC. (decessit) x, KAln Avo. MAX. ET,
A fish and an anchor below, Maximus and Urbanus were consuls A.v. Rit. 'Jiberius Claudlus Murcinaus la all example of the triu nomina ; they have not been hitherto found on any Christian epitiyph known to be later than the 3rd century. This is the earliest Inserijition beariug Christian symbols.
3. (Je Jonsi, $u_{0}, s_{0}$ do. $11, p_{0}$ 18. Engraved in Inscmrtions, Vol. [. p, 840,) fiome, from the cemetery of Saturninus; letters aot inelsed, but painted in vermilion: the polite do not indicate separations of words.

Latin Inscription in Greek characters :-
K $\Omega C O Y A E ~ K \wedge Y \triangle E I \Omega ~ E \triangle ~ T A T E P N ~ \Omega ~$ N $\Omega$ NEIC
 RYNA XXIIII

CEME MOCOYETE CBHPE KAPEC-

 EA EICHEIPEITSCANKT $\Omega$ TOY MOPTOYA ANNOY .都
E $\triangle$ MHC $\Omega$ P $\Omega N$ XI $\triangle E Y P \Omega N$ ' .
Or, in Roman characters :-
roavle (consule) klvonero (Claudio) ed (et) Paterno nones (bohis) nonenirelbovs (Novembribus) deje
IE (die)
2andis ( eueris) Lovna (luna) xsim levkrs pheleje (filiae) seabine (Sererac) ea-Ressese (carisximae) posvere (posuit)
ED (et) Eisperimito (ispirito, for spiritui) tna) AnsYoron (unaorual) Lv.
ed (et) Mlesoron (mensium) xi devron (die-rum) rum) $x$.

In the consulship of Claudius and Paternus, on the nones of Noocmber, on the day of Venus (i.e. Friluy, Nor. 5), the twenty-fourth of the moon, Lences (Lucens?) ercocted this to his dearest duyhter, Severa, and to thy holy soul. Sho died, agyd fitty-five ycars, eleven months and ten days. Date A.D. 269.
"The inflexions of this epitaph, some of which appear also in an epitaph of the year 291 , betray its Greek origin, almost as phainly as the chnracters in which it is written " (Edinb. Reo.
July 1864, July 1864, p. 233). The transition trom ejus to
 This inscription has been render Lupi's special treatise thereoon. For the mode of dating, see end Prolegon, cap. Ds Cyclicis Tempossi's notes The mention of the persons who made the tomb is general In pagan Inscripttons, but fell before long futo dagse among Christians.

Vol, (De Resvi, u, 8, до. 23, p. 27, Engraved la Vol. 1. p, 846.) Found In the eemetory of St, Laurentlas, Rome, in liga; the tablet was affixel to the locilnis, to which a bloody (?) reasel [GLass] was at tached.

Simplicir, who seces also tecll named (l.e. as being of a slmple dliprosition), died on the thir. tesuth clisy befire the Ci. 'ends of Vorember (oct. 20), in the consulship of Fiustus and (iulhus (i.e. A.b. 298).

A very carly example of a Greek Christian inscription with a date. For the play on the name see INschirtions, Vol. 1. p. 85\%.
5. (Ie liossl, u. s, no. 1103.) Fragment of a Ioman catacomb-stode, "tabula coemeterialis," now at Velitrue.

D M

leopardys qui vixit [anvos . . .]
ET, MENBES N (numero) XI Dio is (relddit)
8 (npiritume sa[AcTVA]

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { ELATVS EST VIn IDV's avo. [oons . . . } \\ & \text { a } \end{aligned}
$$

The great interest attaching to the fragment is the oecurrence of D . A (fir Dis M/aniths) on "Chrintian inseription. A few other examples of the same kind are found; nearly all, like the present, suppused to be enrlier than the 4th ceatury. (See Vol. I. p. $8: 51$; Mectaul, u. s. p. 60 ; Martigny, Dict. so x. 1). M.) It bas beea rarlously explained; either as being engraved by stonceutters on the blank stones in advance before they were sold for actual nso, or as. repeated by Christians by the force of pagan example and haisit without definito meaning attached, or as implying a certaia fusion of heathenism with Christianity. Such a fusion Cluritine ref this very nanter apjears in a Clrintian epitaph (queted by McCaul, u, s. p. 63), sanctique tui manes petentibus adsint. In one example the chrisma is on cither side of D. M. (De Rossi, Bull. 1873, tar. xi.) Deo reddidit christian sanctum is an expression found oaly on Christiaa monuments. Elutus est is very rarely met with exeept in pagan epitaghs. The date, aow lost, is from the consulate of some emperor.
6. (De Rossi, u. s. no. 48. Engraved in Vol. I. p. 847.) From the cemetery of Callistus and Prae. textatus, Rome. A marble tablet, which had oace been the side of a sarcophagus; the original iascription having been obliterated:-
Eq(uitius) Heracius, qui fuit in scemulum (saeculo) an(nos) $x i x, m$ (enses) tiii, $d(i e s) x x$, lector $\boldsymbol{r}$ (cgionis) sec(undae). Fecerun(i) (sc, parentes) sibi et filio suo benemercnti in $p(a c c)$. Decesit (sic) vii Irus (ldus) Februarias, Urso et Polenio conss (consulizus) (i.e. Feb. 7, A.D. 338).

Rome was divided into seven ecclesiastical districts or regions, and Heraclins was attached as a reader to the second of these.
This inscription ehews examples of the rarious leaves, points, and marks which are frequent in Christiaa inscriptions, besides the symbols of the chrisma (of unusual form), the dove, and palmbrazehes.
7. (ve Rossi, u. s. no. 55. Engraved in Vol. I.
p. 846.) From the cemetery of Theodora.

Constantio Auy. II. et Constanti Aug. [Conss] Nonis Lecemb. Claudianus dormit in [pace] (i,e. Dec. 5, A.D. 339).

Priacipally remarkable as a piece of rude and hasty palaeography on mortar.
8. (De R.ussi, Dull. cii Arch. Crist. 1863, p. 17. Engraved in Vol. 1. p. 847.) Discovered in front of the square crypt in the cemetery of Praetextatus, Rows.

Bcatissimo Martyri Januario Damasus Episcopus fec $t$.

Date of inscription determined by the pontificate of Damasus (A.D. 366-384). (Januarius was martyred in 305.)

From a few fragments De Rossi happily restores this inscription, which is ". itten in the beautiful Damasine charater.

TOMBS

later period by Pope Symmachus or Vigilius, or John 111. (4.v. 4u8-573), jound in the cemetery of st. Cullustus.
The restored inscription itself, beautifully written in vermilion, required the restoring haud of De Rossi, who has pieced all the fragments together, and has thus obtained the whole epitaph, with scarcely the loss of a single letter. In addition to this, nine morsels of the originsl inscription written in the splendid calligraphy of Damasus, or rather of his artist Philocalus, were oltained, and their places were of course st once determined from the restored inscription (De Rossi, u. s. t. iii.). This was one of those epitaphs which was knowa in MSs. from the transt ripts of Alcnin's scholars.

The restored inscription is bounded on all

Fragroents of original Damnsina Inscription to Enseblas. (De Rnasi.)

The same Inacript in re:t rel. (De Rowl.)
9. (De Ressi, Roma Sott. rol. ii. p. i91 sqq, tav. iii. ir.; Brownlow and Norchcote, Rom. Sott. p. 170, pl. ii. iil.).
Epitaph of St. Eusebius, bishop of Ronne (a.d. 310), composed by Damasus, but restored at some Tes by two others, in the second of whith the 1 "ers are placed columnwise below each et her. Abeve and below we have:-

+ Damasrs episcopvs fecit $\mid$ Eisebio episcopo a martyri

On the right and Frrirs 1ionysivs Fit masis pappae celt For Damasis mm suipapae, a phrase c ( $\mathbf{u}$. s. p. 200).

The text of the cerrupt, runs thus are given below: omitted on the ston "Heracliss vetvit 1 Ersebirs miseros Scinditvr [in] ${ }^{\circ}$ pal Seditio, caedes, ${ }^{\text {a }}$ be Exemplo pariter p Integra cum recto Pertvit exilivm [ Litore T[r]iancrio
(a) labsos. (b) sum. in the Damaviae frag visible, possibly ori hare been obliterated
The whole may b follows:
"Damasus, Bishop, Bishop and Martyr."
"Furius Dionysius lover of Pope Damusus
"Heraclius forbad $t$. sins. Euscbius taught for their crines. The $p$ and trith increasing fur fiyt ting, discord, and [the rope and the her cruelty of the tyrant preserting the bonds of his exile with joy, lo judye, and on the shore and his life."
The inscription (tran Brownlow aad Northeo the severity of Heraclin: would fain close the d apostates, in contrast w of Eusebius, and to the populace about the mat 10. (De Rossi, Inscr. graved is Vol. I. p. 84 of Commodilla, Rome.
Pctroniae dignae coju annis (aunos) xxi. et fec 2. dies $v$. [Deposita est] pos (post) conss (const Equiti. Ursus maritus fecit. Cesquet (quiescit)
The year after the con the ycar after Gratisn': under 375 A.D., when (De Rossl, u.s. Prole,, p. bymbolise conjugal affect then is an orante.
11. (Do Rossi, Inser. From the ruins of the the Va Oxtiensis.
gatdentivg presb, bibi et contvgi sval severa saxc[TAE]

TOMBS

or Vigitius, or a the cemetery ; beautifully the restoring all the fragled the whole single letter. the original d ealligraphy st Philocalus, e of course at ed inscription one of those Ss. from the anded on all

On the right and left t
Frries Dionysivs Filocales scribsit (ecripsit) | Damasis pappae celtor atque amatot (amator). For Damasis mppae De Rossi suggests Damasi suipapae, a phrase confirmed by other authorities (u.s. p. 200).

The text of the restored inseription, a little corrupt, runs thus when corrected; the errors are given below: the letters in brackets are omitted on the stone.
"Heraclivs vetvit lapsos ${ }^{2}$ peceata dolere, Evsebirs miseros doevit sva ${ }^{\mathrm{b}}$ crimina flere; Scinditur [in] ${ }^{\circ}$ partes poprlvs gliscente frrore, Selitio, eaedes, ${ }^{i}$ bellvm, discordia, lites. Exemplo pariter polsi feritate tyrani, Integra erm rector servaret foedera pacis. Pertvlit exilivm [d]omino ${ }^{*}$ sub ivdice laet vs ;
Litore T[r]inacrio ${ }^{\circ}$ mvadvm vitamq. reliquit," () $r$ ]macrio mvadvm vitamq. reliquit."
(a) labsos. (b) sum. (c) in, omitted here, oceurs in the Damasine fragments. (d) eaedo only now risible, possibly originally cacdē. (e) $\bar{d}$ may bave licen obliterated. ( $f$ ) Tinaerio.
The whole may be expressed in English as follows:
"Damasus, Bishop, set up this to Euscbius, Bishop and Murtyr."
"Furius Dionysius Filocalus, a worshipper and boter of Pope Damusus, wrote this" lorer of Pope Damusus, wrote this."
"Heraclius forbad the lapsed to grievc for their sins. Euscbius taught those unhappy ones to wecep for their crimes. The people were rent into partics, and rith increasing fury beyan sedition, slaughter, the rope and discord, and strife. Straifhtway both the rope and the herctic] were banishod by the cruelty of the tyrant although the pope was preserving the bonds of pence inviolate. pope was preserring the bonds of pence thviolate. He bore his exile with joy, looking to the Lord as his his exile with joy, looking to the Lord as his judye, and on the shore of Sicily gave up the world and his life."
The inscription (translated as above by Messrs. Brownlow and Northcote, w. s. n. 170) refers to rould fin of Herachius, who folluwing Novatian Would fain close the door of recoseilination to apostates, in contrast with the mercifnl conduct of Lusebins, and to the excited feelings of the populace about the matter in dispute.
10. (De Rossi, Inser. Urb. Rom. no. 251. Engraved in Vol. graved in Vol. I. p. 847.) From the cemetery of Commodilla, Rome.
Petroniae dignae cojugi (sic) que (quee) rixit annis (aunos) xxi. et fccit cumt conpare m(enses) $\boldsymbol{x}_{1}$ dies $\mathbf{v}$. [Deposita est] Kal. Nob. (Novembribus) pos (post) conss (consulatus) Gratiani t $t$ ct Equiti. Ursus marittss sibi et innocenti compari fecit. Cesquet (quiescit) in pace fecit. Cesquet (quiescit) in pace.
The year after the consulate of Equitins, and the yesr nfter Gratian's third consulate, falls vader 375 A.D., When there were no consuls (De Rossi, (De Rossi, u.s. Prole,. p. xxx.). The two dores srmbolise coajugal affection; the figure betwe bymbolise coajugal affection ; the figure between then is an orantc.
H1, (De lossi, Inscr. Ur.b. Rom. no. 376.) From the ruins of the basilica of St. Paul in tha Yia Oxtiensis.
oapdentive presb, sibi
rt conivgi sVal abverae cabtae hac (i.e. ac)
sanc[tae] rome. dered-

FEMivae quae vixit ann. xlif. m. ili. d. x . DEP (depositus) III, NON. APRIL, TIMASIO ET PRO-MOTO [conss]. moro [conss].
Gaudentius, a presbyter, made this tomb for himself and his wife Sevcra, a chaste and hory voman, who lited 42 years, 3 months, and 10 diys. Brricd April 2, in the consulship of Timasius and Promotus (i.e. A.D. 389).
Allusion to the marriages of ecelesiastics are not unfrequent-is epitaphs. Thus in an epitaph in Rome, in which Petronia the wife of a dencon is the spenker, occur the benutiful lines-

Levitae conjunx Petronia, forma pudoris,
His mea deponens sedihus ossa loco,
Parcite vos lucrimis, dulces cum conjuge natae,
Viventemque Deo credite flere nefas.
T, Petronia, a deacon's (lit, L'vite's) viffe, a model of modesty, lay down and pluce my bones in this resting-place. Refrain from tears, my sweet sweet daufhters and husband, and believe that it is sinful to weep for one who livcs in God.
The remaining lines in prose tell us that her burial took place Oct. 5, A.D. 472, and that her daughter Paula and her son Gordian were buried in the same tomb in A.D. 484 and $4 . D$. 485, as well as Aemiliana, 'sacra virge,' probably also a daughter, in A.D. 489 (De Rossi, $u$. s. no. 843 ; McCanl, rhrist. Epist. no. 65). A lengthy inscription, probably found at Narbonne, recording the reparation of the church in A.D. epicopi Ref a married bishop, Rusticus episcopus, episcopi Bonosi fitius (Le Blant, u. s. no. 617).
From the cemetery of SS, Quartus. no. 489.) Rome.
calevivs nendidit avin[ 10 ] trisomv[m] et positi erant vini (bini) et calvilive ET LVCIVS IN PA[CE] COS (consule) sTIL[ICHONE].
Calevins sold to Avinius a place for three bodies, where both Calvilius and Lucius had alrcady been A.D. 400).

Remarkable for the necompanying symbols: the chrisma, the balance (cf. Dan. v. 27), tha fish, the Jewish candlestick (a Jewlsh funeral ornament), the bouse (the last divelling-place of the departel), and the mumray (Lazaras?) approached by steps, awaiting its resarrection See McCaul ( $\%$, s. 1,49 ).
13. (De Rossi, u. s. n. 847. Figared in Vol, I. p. 84\%.) Engraved in a small takella coemeteriatis, fond in situ attached to the loculus in the cemetery of St. Zoticus on the Labicsn Way,
This barbarous inseription may be thus ren-Lepusculus Leo, qui vixit annum et menses undecim, et dies decem et novem, perit septimo calen. dus Augustas, Honorio sexies Aluyusto.

TOMBS

Scaics, sc. consule, i.e. A.D. 404. Perit is prohably a preterite: but $\tau \in \lambda \in \nu \tau \hat{a}$ occurs in a Syracusan inscription, A.D, 408. It is one of sereral pagan words which survived in Christian times.

De Rossi does not give the size of this little slab, whose breadth does not very much exceed, its height. Mr. Burgen remarks on the great difference in size of the early Christian gravealabs in the catacombs of Rome," some three or four feet long, yet ranging in height from a few trehes to two or three feet, and some only a few inches across, either way " (Letters from Rome, p. 175).

Remarkable no less for its rustic palaeography than for ita rustic spelling.

2. France.

1. (Le Blant, Inscr. Chret. de la Gaule, no. 58.) Lyons, in the underground chapel of St. Ire-naeus:-

PROCVLA , CL FEMINA FAYVLA , DEI .
A. TERRA. AD MARTYRES

Considered to be of the 4 th century ; punctuation capricious.

Famulı lici. This expression, though occurriug elsewhere (see Vol. 1. p. 848, b), is found ; in the epitaphs of Gaul and Spnin only, and aeems to be therein applied exclusively to the doud (Le Blant, Manuel, pp. 10, 11). The last liue indicates that she has joined in glory the martyrs beside whom she lies buried.
2. (Le Blant, u. s. no. 145.) From St. Eloi in Upper Normandy, where eight other Runic inscriptions have been found:-

LrGombr : SEN : HAGEN[8]
IN : FRIEDE :
KONOUNG: OLOUDOOUIG CONSOUL:
(In Runic characters.)
Ingomar, son of Hayen, in peace. Kiing Clovis being Consul.
The date is A.D. 510. A confirmation of the statement of Gregory of Tours: " Igitur Chlodovechus ab Anastasio imperatore codicillos de consulatu accepit" (Hist. Franc. lib. ii. c. 38). The nbsence of the name of Cloris from the Consular Fasti had caused Gregory's accuracy to be doubted (Le Blant, u, a.). Perhaps the enrliest Christian Runic inseription whose date is known.

3. Spatn.

(Hübner, u. s. no. 117. Figured in Vol. I. p. 847.) A long marble tablet formed in an ancient wall near Arjona in Spain : remarkahle for th6 manifold ligatures of the characters composed.

TOMBS

(1) + maria fidelis chr(ist)i in vita sua (2) H(U)NC DILIGENS LOCOM, IBIQ(U)E SUMMUV M(AN)ENS? ET R(E)BCS?
(3) QUATLOR DENI UNO SUPERVIXIT ANNOS; CUM PEN(1)TEN-
(4) (TI)A HEC(E)SSIT IN PACE D(IE) VII ID(V8) MARTIA(S), SECCNDO R-
(5) ECCISVINTI REGNAN(TIS) C(UM) PatR(E) PR(IN)CIPIS ANNo. (Hübner's text.)

+ Maria, a faithful servant of Christ, who loved this place (a church?) in her life, and thers at last remains and reposcs (read requiescons rather than robus), overlived fourteen years by one  (month or day). She departed with penitence in peace on the ninth of March, in the seconl year of Reccisvintus the prince rcigning with his father (Chintasvindus), i.e. A.D. 650.

This appears to be the sense of this puzzling inscription. The second liae may possibly be corrupt ; in the third is some omission.
4. Germany.

1. (Le Blant, u.s. no. 226.) Found at Trier, now in the Museum of Porta Nigra:-

HIC AMAN
thae in pace hospita $C$ ARO IACET .
Two doves facing, the chrisma enclosed in a wreath between them.
IFere the pilgrim body of Amantia lies in peace.
The letters are neatly formed, and also the birds: perhaps of the 4 th or 5 th century.

For Amantin see Vol. I. p. 853. The beautiful expression hospita caro implies that hearen is the Christian's true home : and the same thing is more directly said in the $A d$ coelum pracmisit opes in an epitaph suspected to be written by Venantins Fortuatus, who uses varions equivilent expressions (Le Blant, u.s. no. 218).

5. Great Britain and Ireland.

1. ITaddan and Stubbs, Counc. and Eccl. Don i. 164 ; Hibacr, Inscr. Brit. Christ. no. 82.) Os a stone found at Pont y Polion, Cardiganshize, in five lines:-

> BERVATVR FIDAEI
> PATRIEQVE SEMPER AMATOR IIC PAVLIN VS IACIT CVLTOR PIENTI SIMVB AEQVI.

Meant for two hexametera. Paulinus, the instructor of St. David, was present at a synod la Wales held before A.D. 569 . An inseription in 01 d Welsh relating to St. Cadfan and king Cyogen is in a similar style and about the same diste (Haddan and Stubbs, te. s.).

The other early Welsh Christian inscriptions, presumed to lie between A.D. 500 and 700 , are very short and mostly barbarous. No prayers for the dead in any shape occur in nny of them; little more than a ic jacet (often barbarized) and the name of the person buritc, the name of the father being sometimes added. The stone sometimes has a cross within a circle
Threc will suffice for this place:-(1) Porius
hic in tumulo ja On a stone bear eompanied by $n$ centre of the sto inscription in filius | Cunoceni peculinr form.
con|geries la|pid (Pascent) only.
164, 169; Hübne
2. (Bentham's p. 846.$)$
"Found some
Ely; the stone base of a cross $i$ and 14 in . thick part is a square with lead another and then broke 0 in a cross. The it of the stone is this $+\mathrm{Lve}$
DA. DE
... Only one 1 the rest being pure Now in Ely Cathed achus mayni meriti) dreda, whom he ac on her first marr H. E. iv. 3). H reason, thinks this 169).
3. (Archacologia, . T. Fowler in Yor with more correct fif

Saxon Epltaph at Found some yenrs Dewsbury, Yorkshire, Dr. Hemingwny. Fra of a cross (apparently) off; frul inches acros in Saxou (roodified Rom
 M. or N. set up this beacon (monument), aft aim. Inrey for the sure The proper name is the 7th century or son ( $\mathrm{m} .8, p, 464$ ) observes CHRIET, ANT, -VOL I

TOMBS

hic in tumulo jacit |homo Christimus fuit. (2) On a stone bearing a cross within a circle (accompanied by a long atem ruaning down the inscript the stone, and with an eqaivalent (?) fiscription in Ogham characters): Cunocenni filius | Cunoceni (sic) hic jacet. (3) Chrisma of peculiar forn. Carausins hic jacit | in hoc (sic) con Igeries la pidum. We have nlso the name 164, 169. Hübmer Haddan and Stubbz, u. s. Pp. 2. (Bentham's Ely, p. 51 . 14-55.)

p. 846.)

Found
Ely; the stome years since at Hadenham, near base of a cross is ich seems to have been the and 14 in. thick; in the, $2 \frac{1}{3}$ feet in dinmeter, part is a square mortise, into which is upper with lead another stone erect, into which is tixed and then broke off, which probably terminated 4 feet high, in a cross. The inscription which fills one side of the stone is this :-

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { + LVCEM.TVAM. OVINO. } \\ & \text { DA. DEVS. ET. KEQVIE. } \\ & \text { - AMEN. } \end{aligned}
$$

... Only one letter $\in$ is of the Saxon cast, the rest being purely Roman" (Bentham; u.s.). Now in Ely Cathedral. Ovidus or Winn (monachus magni meriti) was the ateward of Ethel-dreda, whom he on her first marriage about A.D. 652 Anglia H. E. iv. 3). Häbmer, appareatly without reason, thinks this inscription muach later ( $n$.
169).
3. (Arehaeologia, vol. xxxiv. p. 437, pl. xxxv. ;
T. Fowler in Yorts. .. T. Fowler in Yorks. Arch. avd Topogr. Journ. with more correct figure.)

Saron Epltaph al Dawsbary, (Eowler.)
Foand some years ago near the church of Dewsbury, Yorkshire, now in the possession of Dr. Hemingway. Fragment of the upper arm of a cross (apparently) with the top edge broken of; Cour inches across in widest part. Rends in Saxon (rnodified Roraan) letters in soven lines:

M. or N. set up this in mamory of . . .] rht, a tacoon (monument), after (on account of the bairn, Pray for the sout?
The proper name is $1 m$
the 7 th century or is imperfect. Probably of (w. a. p. 464) observes that inter. Stephens CRBIET, ANT, - YOL, II.

TOMBS

1987
inscriptions in these letters are still rarer than hose written in Runes.
4. (Christian Inscriptions in the Irish Language. Chiefly colleeted by G. Petrie. Editet by M. Stokes, vol. i. p. 15, pi. 1. Engraved, Vol. I. p. 847.)

At Clonmacnols, in King's County, now placed as a head-stone to a recent grave.

$\mathrm{O}_{\mathrm{R}}^{-}$do Cholumbon.  i.e, Pray for Colomban.

$\overline{O r}$ for oroit, equivalent to the Latin orate, which also occurs at length (p. 74). The form of the cross and churacter of the letters belong to the earliest period of Christian art in Ireling There is little doubt that this is the Columbanus whose death in A.D. 624 is thas recorded in the Annals of Ulster: "Pausa Columbnai, filii Barddaeni, Abbatis Clono," i.e. of Clonmacnois, Where a monastery was founded ahout A.D. 544 . The formula here used is frequent in the Irish inscriptions: thus we have $\overrightarrow{\mathrm{r}}$ ar Chuindless (u.s. p. 18), $\overline{\mathrm{Or}}$ do Comgán (u.s. p. 19), both at Clonanacnois; the former supposed to be the epitaph of an abbat who died A.D. 724, the letter have it to a person not clenrly identificd. We have it also in the epitapha found at Fuerty, ${ }^{\text {x }}$ Inismurray, \&c. In one of the Aran islands occurs, or ar. it. canoin, h.e. pray for teo crnons ( u. s. vol. ii. p. 21). Nuch more rarely the good wish takus good wish takus this form, Bendachd for anmainn Joseph, i.e. a blessing on the soul of Joseph, who seema to have died is A.D. 811 at ( $u$. s. . 0 , where the inscription is to be seen (u. s. vol. ii. p. 11; see also p. 31, bis).

6. Greece.

1. (Böckh, C. I. G. n. 9303).

Island of Salamis in Greece.

$+$

OOIKOC AIWNIOC
AГAOWNOC ANA
「N KAI EYФHMIAC EN $\triangle$ VCl OHKAIC I $\triangle I A$ EKACTW HMWN El $\Delta \in$ TIC TWN IDIWN EI ETEPOC TIC TO (A) MHCH CWMA KATA OECOAI EN TAVOA MAPE ETWIN $\triangle V O$
HMWN NOTON $\triangle \omega$
H TW 〇ew KAI A NAOEMA HTW
MAPANAOAN $+$
The eternal house of Agatio, a reader, and of Euphemia in two graves, one for each of tus, But if any of our oun or any one elsc dare to place a body here excent ts tuco, may he give an account to God; and let him be unathema maranatha.
Perhaps of the 4th or 5th censury : see domus aeterne in a Christian Roman inseriptien, A.D. 363 (De Rossi, I. U. R. n. 159). For similar pagan sentiments in Greek inscriptions see Ritter, for aimilnr execrations, $\mathrm{p}_{1} \quad \mathrm{I}_{2}-39$.

[^187]
1988

TOMBS
2．（Böckh，u．8．n．9489．） Thessnlonica－

Калдкєроs Макє $8 \delta$－$\nu_{1}$ кє іка！）इwarvevia，то̂sd̀vaordócess．A fish below．

Calocarrus made this for Macedon and Sosi－ genia，his sweetest parents，as their resting－place （lit．cemetery）till the resurrection．

The form of the letters（often lignted and acarcely capable of being represented by types） and the style of this beautiful inseription are considered to point to the 2 nd or 3 rd century．

7．Asia．

Bückh，C．I．G．n． 9148.
Ezra（Zorave）in Syria ：above the cntrance to a mansoleum．

「EPONTIOY \｜$\Psi Y X H\|C \omega Z E C O \omega$.  May the soul of Gerontius be saved！

A very uncommon formula．
2．（Böckh，u．s．n． 9180 ．）
Corycus in Cilicia in a cemetery，on the lid of n sarcophagus，upon which are four crossea．
 rected text）．$\delta$ oa申épouga is often joined to $\theta$ भ́к $\eta$ and $\sigma \omega \mu a \tau 0 \theta \eta \dot{\eta} \kappa \eta$ in various Asintic tituli； it appenrs to mann particular or peculiar，i．e．in which no other body must be laid．киртоках $\eta$ 入оs is a fishing－tackle seller．The trade of the person buried is frequently nnmed in the sepulchral ioscriptions of Cilicia and other provinces of Asia；thus we have a brazier，an oil－seller，a potter，a seaman，and several otherg． The inscriptions of Corycus appear to be of the 5th and 6th centuries．

The most curious example is from Ancyra in Galatin，where Theodorus is described as beiug at once a presbyter nnd a silversmith（Bockh，C．I．G． n．9258）．Dr，McCaul givea Latin examples from the catacombs of Rome of the mention of the secular position of various persons buried there， as count of the household troops（comes domesti－ corum），lawrer，prefect of the city，physician， laker，gardener，ex－quaestor，prefect of the market，keeper of n public granary（Chrust． Epitaphs，pp．28－36）．M．Le Blant，therefore， must be understood with consideratle limitn－ tions，＂Des indications courautes sur les épi－ taphes des priens，In filiation，la patrie，la con－ dition sociale，In profession ：．．ne figurent point，pour aiusi dire，sur les inscriptions chré－ tiennes de langue latine＂（Manuel，p，20）．The inscriptions，however，where a profession is named，seem to be nearly，if not always，later than Constantine．

Representations of tools belonging to particu－ lar trades lave been mentioned above as occurring at Arles，and there nre other examples in the Catacombs at Rome（Martigny，Dict，a．v．Instru－ meats）．

Slaves and freedmen are occasonnlly men－ tioned in Christian inscriptions，sime of which appear to be tery nacient，one is cstuinly before Constantine（Le Blant，I，C．G．to n，I．pp．119－ 121．De Robsi，I．C．U．R．и．5，dited A．D． 217. Edinburgh Review，u．a，y．2 24 ）．

TOMBS

8．Africa．

1．（Renier，Inscr．Rom．Alger．n．3701，p．448．）
Orlénnsville，Algerin；designed ln mosaio in the pavement of $a$ basllica．

hic requies  cit sanctae memo

hiae pater noster
reparatys e．p．s．qui fe
CIT IN SACERDOTIVM AN nCs vilit men xi et pre cessit nos in pace die vndecimy ．kal
avg provnc ．ccccexx et bexta
Ific requiescit sanotae memoriae pater noster， Reparatus episcomus，qui fecit in sacerdutium （sacerdotio）anıos $I X$ ，menses $X I$ el praecessit nos in pace，die undecimu（undecimo）Kalendas Aupustas，$P$ rovinciac［anno］quadrinjentesimo tricesimo et sexta（sexto）．
＂Here rests our father of holy memory，Rc． paratus the bishop，who passed in his priesthoad nine yeara，eleven months；and went before us， in pence，on the elerenth day before the Calents of August，in the 436th year of the Province， i．e．July 22nd，A．D．475．＂（McCaul＇s Transl＇ u．s．p．37．）
The years of the secular life are entirely omitted，those devoted to God alone being men－ tioned．（Le Blant，Hanuel，p．10，who refers to many other examples in Gaul and Italy．）

2．（Renier，u．s．n． 4026.$)$
A marble slab，found to the west of Cherchel， near Caessrea，in Mnuretania． in memoria．Eorvm quorvm corpora in ac cvbitorio hoc sepvita
svar alcimi caritatis ivlianae et rogatae matri［s］victoris prebbyte ili oevi ilinc locym cunctis fratrib，fect． （fecit？вee fccerun sbove，Itsly，n．5）．
Kemarkable for the word accubitorium（i，e． publie cemetery or area），and nlso for the word sepulta，which has been thought to be unknowa ${ }^{\text {to }}$ Christian epigraphy．［Ixscriptions，p．831．］ Perhaps of the $3 \mathbf{r d}$ century，to which several inscriptions in this region belong．

3．（Böckh，C．I．G．n．9114．）
From Kulabscheh in Nubia．

［E］NOAKATAK［EI］

TGHMAKAPIA

OHMAOYPAIN
$\Delta I K$（lit．lig．）H ГOCANATIAV CONTHNYYXHN
AYTHCENKOAMI
MIC（wion поss）ABPAAMKAI（litt．lig．）
ICAAKKAI（ns before）IA KWBTENITO

AMHN $\dagger$

Here lies the blessed Thisaurit．She tras mule perfect on the fourth day of the month Athyr，is the eighth indiction．$O$ God，rest her soul in the bosoms of Alraham，Tsago，and Jacob．So let it bel Amen．

Probably of the 5th or 6th century．Another very sinilar inscription from Nubia（ $\mathrm{n}, 9120$ ），

glves the date

 the martyrs， 489．The Egyp these prayerful the nncient lit considers that $t$ quite peceliar $\mathbf{t}$ Judaco－Christian
TONSURE．

the head wholly modes to be here the earliest times holy orders，or t and an outward persons who sub ecclesiastical law pretations of the ritualists（Amalar Isidor．de Eccles． Institht．Cleric．i． was believed to be thorns．Bede spe the yoke of Christ sembling the thorn head of Christ＂ fauciful reasons wh duced St．Peter to by Rabsn．Maur．（ fir $\quad$ m）．
The net of tonsu the bishop in the ea the case of a mon menkish corona beir of a secular priest． the performance of priest of the church took place（in the ch and even by the ca self（Greg．Tur．Hist and Syrin it was the to shave the heads o the munastic profes Sobhivian）；but such ralent in the West， law of Theodosius th Episc．Leg．27）．［O
It has been stated ference to the cleric： very early period，and Christian church． regulations do not d later and technical a merely injunctions to larg hinir，and hare be service by eager advo the curonal tonsure． aitributed to Anicetns Migne，Dib．Pat．L－t． pope Damasus（I：p．viii Cesthag．can．44；Op p． 58 ；Hieron，xiii． tius＇s description of St． by the clergy at Cartha

＂Defua cecsartes comp

Socrates＇s degeription of Apostate＇s hair，when monk，tv $\chi \rho \bar{\varphi}$ кeipd $\mu$ Enagrius＇s description Marcinnus（flist．EE．
. 3701, p. 448.$)$ in mosaic in 5 memery, Rehis priesthood rent before us, re the Calends the Provinee, Caul's Trassl. are entirely one being menwho refers to Italy.)

st of Cherchel,

E
presbyte batrib. fect.
, n. 5).
ubitorium (i.e.
for the word to be unknown rioss, p. 851.] which several

TONSURE

given the date (mutilated) taken from the era of the martyrs the martyrs, probably corresponding to A.D.
489.
The Eryptian epith these prayerfull hopes for the dead tulk contain the ancient liturgies. Ritter dead taken from considers that these inscriptions are ale aimost or quite peculiar to Egypt and Nubia, and nre of Judaeo-Christinn origin.
[C. B.]
TONSURE. The cutting off of the hair of the head wholly or partially, in some one of the the earliest times a mentioned, has been from holy orlers, or to embracing the monastic life, nnd an out ward mark of the placing of those persons who submitted to the operation under ecclesinstical law. Numerous mystical inder-pretations of the tons pretations of the tonsure are mentioned by carly ritunlists (Amalarius, de Ece Isidor. de Eccles. Off. i. 4 ; Rnbon. Si. . . 39 ; Institut. Cleric. i. 3). The usual circular shnpe was believed to be an imitntion of the crown of thorns. Bede spenks of St. Cuthbert "receiving the yoke of Christ and the Petrine tonsure resembling the thoruy crown which encircled the head of Christ" (Vit. S. Cuthberti). Other fanciful reasons which are supposed to have indived St. Peter to institute dived St. Pater to institute the tonsure are given by Raban. Maur. (Lib. de Institut. Cler. i. 3, ad fin m m .
The net of tonsure was solemaly performed by the bishop in the case of clergy, by the abbat in the case of a monk entering a monastery, the menkish corona being somewhnt larger than that of a secular priest the performace of the tensure by the officinting priest of the church within which the offeremning took place (in the church of St. Martin of Tours), Bnd even by the candidate for holy orders himself (Greg. Tur. Hist. Prunc. iii. 18 ). In Esypt and Syrin it was the custom ${ }^{\text {and S S Srin it was the custom in St. Jerome's time }}$ to shave the heads of virgins on their entering the munastic profession (Hieron. Ep. 48, cont. Sadisiain); but such a custom never became prelalent in the West, and was condemned by a law of Theodosius the Great (Liib, xvi. tit. 2, de Eppis. Leg. 27). [ORDERS, HoLr, Epise. Leg. 27). [ODDERs, Holv. p. it91.] ference to the clerical cut regulations with rovery early period, and are almost coeval with the Christinnt church. But the eandier of the regulations do not describe the tonsure in the later and technical sense of the term, but are merely injunctions to the elergy not to wear loog hhir, and have been erroneously pressed into serrice by eager advocates of the nntiquity of the curonnl tonsure. Such the ecorond tonsure. Such nre the directions aitributed to Anicetus A.D. 167 (Anast. in Vitaca Ind Mligne, Bib. Pat. Lut.t. cxxvii. p. 12v3), nnd of ppe Damasus ( (i. P. viii.) A.D. $366-843$. iv. Concil.
Corthar. Carthag. cran. 44; Optatus, c. Purmen. lili, ii. p. 58 ; Hieron. xiit. in Ezek. cap. 4t; Prudentius's deseriptien of St. Cyprian on his reception turss deseription of St. Cyprian on his reception by the clergy at Carthage:

"Deitua chesaries compescitur ad breves capillos," Peristeph, xiii.

Scerater's deacription of the entting of Julian the dpostate's hnir, when he preiended to be a Marcianus (Mist. Ecc. iii. 2s); the account of

tonsure

the admission to holy orders of St. Germum of Auxerre in the 5th century (Vit, S. Gcrmus ap. Surium, 31 Jul.); and (Vit. S. Gcrmun. of Arles in the 6th century of St. Caesarius The phraseology of some of (hidi. 27. Aug.) consistent with but some of these passages is the employment of the coronal tocessurily prove indisput:able evidence for which is a fthecenturs mosaic representation of St . Apollhinaris of 4 Ravenna (Ciampini, Jet. Mon. ii. 27) and can. 41 of the fourth council of Tole lo (A.D. 633), which ordered that "omnes clerici, detonso superius capite tuto rius capite toto, aferius solam cireuli coronam relinquant," relinquant." A similar direction is givonam in Concil. Quinisext. A.D. 69, cun axiif The custom of the to ritualists to have been derived is smal by most from the Naznrites, in derived by the Apostles dicated themselves, in order that those who dedistinguished like to God's service might be The resemblance is by the tonsure of the hair. Nazarites cut off is not very complete, as the of at the commenceir hair at the cluse instead Div. Off. i, 4; Alcuin, de of n vow (Isidore, de p. 61 ; Raban. Naur. Lib, dc Institut Cdit. Hittorp. Gregory of Tours Atr, de Institut. Cleric. i. 3). to St. Peter, as a sign of humility its introduction i. 28), a theory which is criticised by Glor. Mfort. as possible but wot proved critised by Amalarius as possible but not proved, and he concludes by wisely leaving the origin of the question like the origin of the tonsure an open (de Eccles. Off. ii. 5, iv. 39). It the book of Joh improbable that either the. It is of course most cessors during the period of heostles or their sucshould have the period of henthen persecutions, might at any received an outward mark which identification moment lend to their detection and the meunbers of which leaders of a religious body, ment of torture or of death. We the punishexpress testimony of Hegesippus to the contrary in the case of St. Jnmes, "upan whose head no rnzor was ever passed "' (Enseb. Hist. Ec. ii. 23). tical tonsure

(a) Thene.

(a) The Roman tonsure, nssociated with the of the head being which was formed by the top of the head being shaved close, and a circle or breadth this coronal tonsure grow round it. In the golden crownal tonsure was sail! "to be like the golden crown which is placed on the head of (b) The Eastern or. Gff. ii. 4).

Paul's, which wis or Greek tonsure, styled St. selected to be nrchbishop When Theodore was 668) he was ehliged to of Conterbury (A.D. his hair grow in ed "nit four months to let him to receive the a mamer as would enoble manner, "for the coronal tonsure in the Romun manner, "for he had previously, as suoteacon, manner the tensure of St. Paul, necording to the (c) The Con Easterus" (Bede, Hist. EC. iv. 1). (c) The Celtic tonsure, known as St. Jolin's, Ireland. it consisted in shaving Britain and froat of a line drave in shaving all the hinir in from ear to drawa over the top of the head attributed this form of Anglo-Snxon church their opponente to Stimen tonsure in use nmong discussed the subject at leayth in hat Ceolirid Nectan, king of the Picts, A. $\mathrm{n}, 7: 0$ (Beqe, $l$ tist Ec. v. 21). Although not A.D. 710 (Befle, llist. St. Augustine cither not hrought forward by Bangor' this question of the shave of she or at
But

1990 TORMENT, PLACE OF

sure firmed the aubject of the most frequant and violent controversy in England during the 7 th and 8 th centuries. There are traces of the anme controveray in France, where a Saxon colony at Bayeux had copied the Celtic tonsure from the Bretond before A.D. 590 (Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. x. 9), and in Spain, where a tonaure like the Celtic was condemned by Conc. Tolet. iv. A.d. 633, can. rli. [Further detaila are given by Bede, H. E. iv. 1 ; Gildas, Epist. ii. ; Aldhelm, Epist. ad Geruntium in Haddan and Stubbs, Councils, &c. iii. 268 ; Mabillon, Ann. Benedict. i. 528 ; Act. SS. oril. Bened. ssec. ii. pp. 110-20; Chamillard, de Corona tousura et habith cleric.; Martene, de Antiq. Eccles. Rit. tom. ii. p. 14, edit. 1788.]
[F. E. W.]
TURMENT, PLACE OF (in ART). The only representatious of rny place of bodily punishment, beyonl the grave and in the spiritual state, which the writer knows of as possibly within our period, are the hell of the Torcello mosnics, and the numerons pits or rapidly sketched infernas, generally with ministering demons, found in the Utresht Psalter: [See Resurrection.] The writ, r counted eighteen in the first hnlf of that extraordinary work (see woodcut). But the dates of both these documents are very doubtful It is particularly curious in the Utrecht Psalter, that there (for the first time in Christian imagery as far as he knows) the mouth of hell is sometimes an actual mouth, belonging most frequently to a monstrous head, sometinies quasihuman, sometimes nearer the tish or serpentmonster of the Giottesque infermos. The iden may be derived from the vision of Er, in Plato's licpublic, bk. x. The souls in that allegory who have pussed round the circle of the sivers of punishnient are allowed to try to leave Tartarus by its mouth; which lets them pass, if their purgation is complete. If not, it roars horvibly, and the sinner has to go back and repeat his circuit of Phlegethon and Cocytus. But this subject is not renlly a part of Christian iconography, even of the first millennium. It came into prominctuce with races like the Lombard, accustomed to every form of slaughter and terror, and also full of inventive genius. [R. S. T. T.]

Fron the Uirecht Palter, Hell.
TORPES, May 17, martyr in Etruria under Nero (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Noiker., Rom.).
[C. H.]
TORQUATUS, Mny 15, bishop of Guadix: one of the seven apostolic bishops sent to Spain (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker., Rom.).
TORTURT, INSTRUMENTS OF. [CATA сомвs, p. 314.]
TOUL, DOUNCIL OF (Tullease Concilumi, A.D. 550 , held by order of king Theodebald to support Nicetlas, metropolitan of Treves, in whose province Toul lay, tn his struggle with persons excommunicated for incestuous acts (Mansi, 1x. 147-50.)

TOWER

[E. S. Ff.]
TOURS, COUNCILS OF (TURONENSIA Concilia), A.d. 461 and A.d. 567. Both remarkable for the length of their discipliaary canons; the first, at which thirteen were passed, to which Perpetuus, bishop of Toure, and seven blshops, a blind bishop through his presbyter, and Thalas. sius, bishop of Angers, on their being commumicated to him, subscribed (Mnnsi, vii. 943-8) the second, at which no less than twenty-serea were passed, and aubscribed to by Eophroaius, bishop of Tours, and eight others (Msnsi, ix. 789 814). Both were celebrated in honour of St Martin, but the latter was held in his church, as though it had been finished in the interval between them.
[E. S. Ff.]
TOWER. We have now so long been sccustomed to see a tower either attriched to or immediately adjoining a chureh, that many persons would be disposed to make the preseace of a tower the distinctive mark of a church, and its absence that of a chapel. Such, however, would be a very great mistake aa regards the churches of the earlier centuries of Christianitr. Uatil bells came to be in general use a turer would have served no other purpose in connexion with a church than that of a place of security for the servants and treasures of the church ia the event of an attack from brigands or enemies, Towers, therefore, did not in the earlier sges in variably form part of the design of a church.

In the centre of cruciform churches towers may, however, have been erected rather fur asthetic reasons than for any special use, as the raising the central part of such a church obriously greatly adds to its beatuty and dignity. The germ of the centrsl tower may perhaps be found in such buildings as the scpuichral chapel of SS. Nazzaro and Celso at Ravenda [Cuapelp p. $3: 6]$, built before A.D. 450 , where the iutersection of none, transepts, and chazel is coserad by a dome enclosed in a low square tower.

It has been shewn in the article Bell that bells, and probably bells of considerable size, were well known in Grul and England in the 6th 981 7th centuries, and in ltaly doubtless they were kuown ns enrly, if not even carlier. Towers wers of course familiar objects, and it mas easily have occurred to some ecclesiastic or architect that a tower adjacent or aonesed to a church would afford a convenient nieans of so hnnging bells that their sound would travel freely.
The earliest examples, of towers connected with, or adjacent to, churches would seem to bo the towers of some of the churches at Revenga Huibsch (Altchrisil. Kirchen) asserts thnt the lowt? part of the tower at the cathed 31 shews that it is of the same date as the adjacent baptistry (attribuieu to A.D. 425), by the fact that the quality and form of the brieks, and the manate in which they are liniu, are identcal in the trio strwetures. On like crounde ne cunsiders the the square tower of S. Francesco (see wodert) and the circular one at S. Giovnoni Evaggelifs date from the latter part of the 5 th centory and that at S. Apollinare in Classe (o. Chued,
p. $377^{\circ}$ ) from the church (A.D. 568) On similar evi that $\beta^{\text {rart }}$ of the $t$ Lorenzo at Rome Certainly no one the character of b dntes of buildings the opinion expres earliest documenta a tower in connexio rould appear to be Pontificalis of the tov III. (A.D. 768-772) at bells were placed "t aud people to the serv is given by Ducang all cditions of the Li certninly geems to of a practice which shout it.

In the life of pore the Liber Pentif., is church of St. Andre: panile et posuit c:erpp if there were some ${ }^{\text {hin }}$ markable in the fict to strike the bel!. Tr there are nearly thir which are of earlier the existing bell-tower erceptions, of later dat tion of the construction in the Libor Ponlif., w detail upon the works nopes to the varioua c make it almost certai befire, it was not until that a tower was deeme adjunct to a church; $\mathbf{s i}^{\prime}$ oder churches in that c day unfurnished with chueches (built 827-82

TOWER

TOWER

p. 375) from the priod of the bullding of the thurch (A.D, 568).

On similar evidence the same writer thinks that part of the towers of $S$. Pudenziana nad $S$. Lorenzo at Rome are as early as the 7th century. Certainly ne one who knows how safe a guide the character of brickwork at Rame is as to the dates of buildings will be disposed to disregard the opinion expressed by Herr Hubsch, but the earliest documentary evideuce of the building of atower in connexion with a enurch nt Rome riould appear to be the mention in the Liber Pontificaliv of the tower built by pope Stephen Ill. (A.D. 768-772) at St. Peter's, in whleh three bells were placed "to call together the clergy aud people to the service of God." This passage is given by Ducnnga, but does not appenr in all editions of the Liher Pontif. If genuine, it certainly eeams to point to the introduction of a practice which had something of novelty shout it.

Tower of 8, Francesco, Havenna (Erum IItbsh's Aldsiri. A. Kirches.)
In the life of pore Leo IV. (A.D. 847-855) : $n$ the Liber Pentif., it: is stated that he at the church of St. Andrew $\therefore \therefore$ A nostle "fecit campanile et posuit e., npenam cum mailan aereo," as if there were some: hithg rither unusuai and remarkable in the fuct or a hammer being esed to strike the bel!. Th.e fact that while at Rome there are nearly thirty churches, purtions of Thich are of earlier date than A.D. 800 , while the existing bell-towers are, with very doubuful elepptions, of later date, and that no carly mention of the construction of towers is to be found in the Liser Pomif., which enters into such full detail upon the works done by the successive sopes to the various churches, would seem to make it almost certain that, as line been said befre, it was not until a comparatively lata data that a tower was deemed to be at all an essentia! dujunct to a church; and, iadeed, many of the oder cburches in that city remain to the present day unturnished with such an appendage. Two churches (built 827-824), Sta. Cecilia and Sta.

Prassede, shew clearly that a tower did not form part of the originn plans; in the first case, it in awkwardly wedged in in a corner ; in the latter has been rised on the end of a transept.
The early examples above mentioned are all detached from the neighbouring churches, but towers forming internal parts of churches of very early date are to be found in central Syria. The annexed woodcut of a part of the front of the church at Taftkha, from Comte de la Vogüé's work, shews the three-storied tower which forms part of the fnceade. This church, Comte de $\ln$ Voguió says, is probnbly of the 4th, but cannot be later in date than the 5 th, century. At Tourmnnin, in the same country, are remnins of a church which the same authority attributes to the 9th century; here are two western towers, which, however, do not rise above the roof.
Towers were, it would seem, built as portions of churches in England at an early date, for a equare tower an:lexed to the nave is to be found at Brixworth in Northamptonshire, which there is some historical ground for believing to have been ivilt before A.D. 700 ( v . the Basilica, &c., by the Rev. C. F. Watkins, and Britton, Chron Mist. of Christian Architecture, p. 192). That the existing building is renlly of an early date is the more probable as the head of an origionl window in the wall between the tower and the nave has been altered by the insertion of a window of three lights, divided by two balusters; this alteration is supposed to have been a part of the repnirs effected after A.D. 870, when the monastery was devastated by the Danes.
Another early example of a tower is afforded by the church in Dover Castle; in this case the tower is in the centre, resting on four semicircular arches. No historical or documentary date from which the period of the erection of this church can be inferred have been brought forward, but the character of the architecture is mush the same as that of Brixworth, the nrehes in both cases being square-edged, and constructed chiefly with large flat tiles; in Brixworth of luman make, and at Dover, it would seem, iniltative of that manufncture, being much inferior in quality to those of which the adjacent pharos is built.
Another feature these churches have in common, viz. windows of large size, measuring, nt $D_{0 v e r,} 7 \mathrm{ft} .2$ in. $\cdot$ by $3 \mathrm{ft} 8 in.$. , and at Brixworth 5 ft .10 in . by 3 ft .0 in. ; these dimeosions much exceed these of windows of churches of the same proportions of the 11th or 12th centuries, and this is what is just to be found in the churches at Rome earlier than A.d. 1000 . Windows may be seen in some of these, e.g. the clerestory of S. Lorenzo fuor le Mura (772-795?), and the windows in the transept of St. Prassede (817824); which approach very closely in size proportion, and construction, to those of Brix wortb and Dover. In Rome the great window spaces were filled with pierced marble slabs ( 0 Churches in Rume before A.D. 1000, Archaeologia, vol. xl.). In England wood may probably have served in place of marble, and the apertures in the wooten slabs filled with horn, or other semitransparent substances, or even with glass, the use of which for such purposes was, as we are told by Bede, introduced by Benedict, bishop about A.D. 675. It is possible that in both these eases the towers may have been built with the view not only of hanging bells, but also as afford. ling places of securlty for the treasures of the church and its ministers; some of the latter may even have dwelt in them, as whs so frequently the case in lrelaul during the midlle ages.

1992

TRACT

The history of the detached slender circular towers with conical caps, which are peculiar to Ireland, was very carefully investigated hy the late Earl of Dumraven, and his notes and conclusions have been well edited and commented on hy Miss Stokes, who expresses an opinion hased mainly on the character of the masonry of the towera, and ita correspondence with that of buildings, the date of which ean be approximatively fixed, that none of these towers now existing in Ireland can be believed to date from an earlier period than the latter part of the 9 th century. But see Round Towers,

The fonndations of two circular towera, one on each side of the altar end of the old cathedral at Brescia, still exist ; the date of thia church has not been ascertained, but it may be as early as the 8th century. Hübsch (Alt-Christliche liuchen) plutes it between 600 and 750.

According to the restoration suggested by the same author the original plan of S . Lorenzo at Nilan comprised four towers at the angles of the buildings ; this church is not later than the bth century.

In the church of Romain Motier in Switzerland, which was dedicated in 753, is a low but perfectly-developed central tower, and it seems nat uulikely that if we had more examples of this century in existence we should find that then or afterwarde, on this side of the Alps at may rate, a tower, either central or at the west end, irepuently, if not even generally, formed a portion of every important church. We find, however, in the plan prepared for the monastery of St. Gall [CuURCu, p. 383] about 820, only two circular towers, one on each side of one of the apses, and connected with the church only by narrow passages.
In the dome at Aix-la-Chapelle we have at the west end a tower-like building flanked by tyo circular towers containing staircases.

Sureval churches in France of' about the same date as St. Martin at Angers, founded in 819, and Germigny-sur-Loire, dedicated in 806, have central towers.

In the countries where the Eastern church was predmminant towers do not appear to hare been built in connexion with churchea until a late period. An exceptional instance ia that of the crection of a bell-tower at St. Sophia, in Coustantinople, between 867 and 880 , by the emperor Basil, to receive bells sent to him by Orso, Doge of Venice ; at no time do they appear to have been commonly built. The central cupola is, however, in the mediaeval churches of the Byzuatine type no mueh elevated as to present aomething of the appearance of an octogonal tower.
[A. N.]
TRACT. [Gradual, § v. p. 747.]
TRACTORIAE. [Councll, p. 475.]
TRACTUS. [PsALMODY, p. 1745.]
TRADES (including Profersions). The only pursuits absolutely interdicted by the chureh were

trades

those assoclated with hlolatry, such as statuary and painting (so far as they involved tha fashloning of ldols or the representation of false divinities), or those of a drectly immoral tendency, such as the theatrical professlon, as practised In these times. [Actons, Theatre.] Tertullian (de Idololat. c. 6), in condemaing the trade in idols, replies to the supposed excuse: "Facio, sed non colo," by asking how it is possible "to disavow in speech what we confess with the hand, to destroy with words what we construct by our actions, to proclaim but one Gord and to make many?" The artificer, he aflims, is even more culpable than the priest: "plus es illis quan sacerdos, cum par te habeant sacerilotem" (Migne, i. 66x). On like grounds, he condemas with equal severity the trade in incense, a peopliarly lucrative one ia his day; and he coneludes that every art, profession, and trade which ministers to idol worship is itself' a species of idolatry.

As regarded other ordinary modes of moner. making, they were in no way looked upon by the early chureh as incompatible with the duties of the Christian lite, Tertullian, when repuliating the notion that Christianity involvel a withdrawal from ordinary society, says (slpol. c. 42), "we carry on trades among you" (i,e, among the pagan world of the 3rl ceatury), Euselins (/em. Evany. i. 8; Migur, Series Gruca, xxii. 30) says that the pursuits of agrieultore, of the market-place, aud of civie iadustry generally, are perfectly compatible with a God-fearing lite. The only requirements of the chureh, indeed, in these relatons, appear to have been honesty sad moderation. Tertullian (de Patientiâ, c. 7) contrasts the impatience of the pagen trader uade: losses, and the eager desire of gain which scemed to hold it preferable to life itself, with the Christian view which teaches us to prefer our spiritual weltare to the acquirement of wealth (Migne, i. 1262; Cyprian, de Orat. Dom. c. 20). Cyprian (de Lapsis, c. 6) states that masy bishops in his time had abindoned their sacred profession to seek the nequirement of wealth in distant provinces, attending markets, and evea leading ont money on usury: "negotiationis quaestuosae nundinas aucupari ....usuris multiplicantibns foenua augere" (Migue, iv. 183).

It is, however, to be remembered that, accending to the traditions of the enmire, all trades were looked upon as unworthy of a free citizan and, to some extent, disreputable. It is probable, therefore, that in the earlier centuries they were largely carried on by Christians. Justin Martyr (ad Zenum et Seronam, c. 17) repudiates the nowion that Christians should be ashamed to labour for fear of sinking in public estimatiou. The Apostolic Constitutions (iv, 11) enjoin that children shall be taught some useful art. The legislation of the state, after the recognition of Christianity, does not appear to indieate a juster sense of the dignity of labour ; a ad the removal of the capital to Constantinople was followed by a marked deeline in the commercial prosperity of the empire. "The humble and honest occupmtion of the shopzayjor," says Finlay, "was treated as a dishonourable protension, and his condition was rendered doubly contemptilie. He was made the serf of the conporation in waich he was inacribed, and his indanty was fereved hy restrictions in peverty" (His Cord. Theod. IX. Hextemeron) say is aware that audience a good Bavaúaw $\tau \in \chi \nu \bar{\omega}$ to their work, an him to shorten hi 22). It is eviden fulness in which often made comn Christian. Augus verse of Psalm 1 and alloptiag the "for I am not men "-renders th "negatiatores," a tores, et mutent point out that tra incompatible. He urge in his defence his hire ; and that from a distance to entitled to a profit is not the point in $q$ de perjurio ; " and not inherent in the the vendor. He a what he has give what ho demands enim dicere, Tant placet, eme." He acted thus would g He also rebukes wi phase of mercanti example, when a sho for a pair of shoes time; but, on recei first order aside an (Nigne, $x \times x$ vii. 886
In the West, by a not be very clearly 5 th century a rema in the respect paid $t$ fermerly carried on are to be found, e cities of Gaul, in the themselves in corpor their interests (Gui 52 ).
The following exar from various collect catacombs and elsew occupations pursned centuries:-
Of a "rationalis (Aringhi, j. 406) ; of shields (ib. I17); of xvi. 14), of silversmit lspidaries, potters, tan colliers, and fisherm Aprist. p. 18t). Mar (rist. p. 26) gives an ef barley, and (p. 28) linen-weaver. De Re with that of a bake that of a " p :nitellat found after the 5th cellus patron of the c larii, ${ }^{-}$is given by Mu alse epitaphs of on by restrictions which compelled him to remain In poverty" (llist. of Greece, ed. Tozer, 1. 117; Hea. Thex. IX, xxiii, 1). St. Basil (Hom. 3 in Iexaemeron) says in one of his sermens that he is aware that there are present among his audieace a good many artisans ( $\tau \in \chi \nu$ ใтal tồ Bavaúaw $\tau \in \chi \nu \omega ิ \nu$ ) who are wantling to get away to their work, and are consequently anxious for hlm to shorten hls diacourse (Migne, S. G. xaix, 22). It is evident, however, that the untruthfulness in which traders habitually indulged often made commerclal pursuita difficult for a Christian. Augustiue, in commenting on the 15 th verse of Psalm lxsi. (Septuag. Vers. No. Ixx.), and adopting the rending of the Septuagint"fer I am net acquainted with the ways of " megotiatores" the Greek word mparرatelas by tores, et muteat vitam"" He then proceeds to peint out that trading and truth-telling are net incompatible. He supposes the "negetlater" to urge in his defence that the labourer is worthy of hia hire; and that bringing, as he dees, his wares from a distance to aupply a public want, ho is entitled to a profit. But this, replies Augustine, is not the point in question, " agitur de mendacio, de perjurie;" nnd he malntains that the vice is net inherent in the transaction, but is the fault of the vendor. He advises him to confess candilly what he has given for his warea, and to atate what $h$ g demands as his fair prefit: "Possem enim dicere, Tante emi, sed tanto venilam; sl placet, eme." He thinks that tradesmen who acted thus would greatly jncrease their custom. He also rebukes with severity another common phase of mercantile disingenuousness; as, for example, when a shoemaker, on receiving an order for a pair of shoes, promisea them by a certain time; but, on receiving further erders, puts the first order aside and disappoints his cuatomer (Migne, xxxvii. 886).

TRADES
In the West, by a series of changee which cannot he very clearly discerned, we find that in the 5 th century a remarkable change had taken place in the respect paid to labour. Trades and crafts fermerly carried on almost exclusively by slaves are to be tound, especially in the municipal cities of Gaul, in the hands of free men who united themselves in corporations for the protection of their iaterests (Guizot, Hist. de la Civilisat. i. 52).

The following examples are given by Martigny from various collections of inscriptions in the catacembs and elsewhere, which illustrate the occupations pursued by Christians in the earlier centuries:-

Of a "ratienalis," or cellector of taxes (Aringhi, i, 406) ; of a " scutarius," or maker of shielda (ib. 117); of dealers in purple (cf. Acta avi. 14), of silversmiths, blacksmithe, carpeaters, lapidaries, potters, tanners, teut-makers, weavers, Aliers, ad fishermen (sce Lami, de Erudit. Ajrist. p. 184). Marchi (Monumenti delle Arte (rist. p. 26) gives an epitaph of a female vendor of barley, and (p. 28) that of a " lintearius," or linen-weaver. De Rossi (i. 212) furnishes us that of o "Manteltarius," or mak PISTOR; and found after the 5th century; that of one Marcellus patron of the corporation of the "pistellarii, is given by Murateri ( $3: 27, v$ ). We find also epitaphs of one Lucilius Victorinus, a manufacturer of dice- shtys tessalabie luvsome (Boldettl, p. 4lí; of a "cenfectorarius," or pork butcher (Murator', cmliv. 5), and find from Gruter (ceclal. 5) that the "confectorurlf" formed a corporation along with the "suarii," or dealers in swine; of a "capsarlus" (Narchl, p. 27), or keeper of the clethes at a public bath; of a sculptor, wlth design of his chisel and puncheon (Ressl, i. 188); of a painter, with similar deslgne of compass, puncheon, and brushes (Marangeni, Acta S. Vít. p. 125); of a publio "meatsurer of corn, accompanled by designs of a (Luplius full of whent, and a measuring rod (Lupl, Sev. Epituph. p. 51) ; of a "faber," with the acoign of a shovel; of a Christian lady, SEVERA SELEUCLANE, on whose tomb there is the deaign of a weaving loom (Lupi, Opp, Laud. pp. 28, 29) ; desigas of combs (bb. pp. 22, 29, 30) designate " lanarius pectinarius." Fabretti (Inse. Ant. Explic. p. 574) shews us a peor "colonus" uamed Leen. Perret (V. lii.) gives us the representation of a sower. Marini (1scriz. Alban. p. 188) supplies us with the only koown example of a "pincerna," or cupbearer, theugh Lami (de Erud. Apost. p. 230) says that this was an office often filled by Christians. The "fossores," who prepared the tombs in the catacombs, are tirequently represented by a spade, or some other implemeut of their profession (Boldetti, pp. 53, 59,65 ; Perret, i. 30). Beldetti (p. 181) gives a design which he supposed to represent an instraletino, 1864, p. 36) has explained as designed for a dentist's instrument for extracting teeth with an extracted tooth liy the sile.

TRADES
1993

The evidence with respect to professions has an almost entirely different aignificance. The military , prefession and these of the "grammaticus," the "rhetor," and the jurist, were generally held in high honour, and instances of Christians in these, during the earlier centuries, are comparatively rare. In the legnl profession there occur the names of Minucius Felix, the senators Hippelytus and Apollonius (Baldin. Fracf. in Minuc. Fel.), and Tertullian, according to Eusebius (H. E, v. 21), was distinguished by his knowledge of Roman law. De Rossi (i. 64) givea an iascription on the tomb of a Christian jurisconsult, which records that he was honoured by the friendghip of Constantine during the emperer's sojourn in Rome. The protission of the healing art, often adopted by slaves, appeara to have been tar more common among Christians. The name of St. Luks at once suggests jtself. Boldetti (p. 416 et pass.) givea a large number. of inscriptions of this class. Reiaesius gives the epitaph of one Alexander, a physician, who is suid to have been XPIETIANOC KAI INETMATIKOC (Syntag. 898, v.), the latter probably denoting that he belonged to a claas of empirics who in their diagoosis profess to refer every symptom to the $\pi \nu e \overline{\mathrm{D}} \mu \mathrm{a}$. Aringhi (i. 415) gives the epitnjlh of one Timethy, an "arch iatrus" or "princeps medicerum," an officer who was also physician in ordinary to the emperor. Christian freedmen appear as discharging, in the service of the emperor or of semators, the oflices of secretary "commentariensis " (Lami, de Erud"t "Apost. p. 250), of " librarius" or copyist; of (Passionel, 124 or courier who carried despatches (Passionel, 124, n. 84), of "arcarius" or treasurer, and "cubicularius" or groom of the bedchamber. Lucian, head of the "cublcularll" of Dlocletian's palace, was instrumental in the conversion of many to the Christlan faith (litlemont, Hist. Eiccl, v. 7, 8, 180). Au Justance of a Cluristian holding the office of " werluarius" or keeper of the archives, an important function, and one involving considerable attaluments, occurs in Aringhi (1. 415). The futher of St. Basll was a teachar of rhetorie equally famed for his eloquence and his Christian virtues, The profession of a "grammaticus" was not common among the earliel Christians, probably on account of its association with pagan observnaces (sce Schoots). De Rossi (i. 1242) gives us the epitaph of a "magister lind"" nad also (i. 116i) that of a "magister ludi litteraril." The military profession, though often disavowed by certain aects and by individuals, does not appear, at any time, to have been netually forbidlen by the chureh (see WAR, and, for other poinis convected with the whole subject, Commence).
[J. B. M.]
TRADITIO SYMBOII, the solemn delivery of the erced to the catechumens as their baptism drew nigh. We only read of it in connexion with the more numerous baptisms of Easter Eve, but it is certain that a similar discipline; pravailed with refereace to those of Whitsun Eive. At Rome it took place on a day appointed by notice in the fourth week of Lent (Ordo Srutinii, 6, in Mus. Ital. ii. 79). Wednesdav was the usual day (Assemani, Cudex Litury, I. 93 , "feria quarta, seu illa ferin;" see Amalasmon de Eccl. Off. i. 8 ; Ordo Rom. in Hitterp. Ecel. Cuth. Off. 31, ed. 1). At Milan tir was given on Saturday in Pastern of exe (See Samatum, \&c., p. 1827). 1й Lizek, before the Roman scrutinium nad other sites were forced on the national churches (Capit. Rey, Pranc. v. 372). Palm Sunday was the day universally observed. This appears from the internal evidence of the "Missae in Symboli Traditione" in the Gallican sacramentaries, which refer to the eotry into Jerusalem (Miss. Goth. in Lit. Gall. 235 ; Miss, Gall. 1et. ib. 346 ; Sucram. Gall. in Jlus. Ital. i. 314), ned from the thirteenth canon of Agde, A.D. 506. The lessons or Palm Sunday in the Gallican lectionary (Lit. Gctl. 127) are obviously chosen with an eye to this rite (Jer. xxx. 1-34; Heb. x. 3-34; Joho xii. 1-24). In Gothic Spain it took place on the same day (lsid. Hispal. de Ececl. Off. i. 27), but not everywhere in Spain; for the council of Braga (now in Portugal) in 572 (can. 1) says that the creed is to be tanght the catechumens "in the twenty days" before their baptism. The traditio, then, was some three weeks before Enster, in which the church of western Spain seems to have agreed, or nearly agreed, with the ehurches of Greece and Asia. There has been a controversy about the time of the traditio in proconsular Africa. The Benedictine editora of St. Augustine infer from his language in Serm. 212 "in Traditione Symboli," that it took place "die ante Pascha serius ocius quinto decimo" ( $\operatorname{bote} u . s$.), while Martene argues from the same premises that it was "sabbnto ante dominicam quartam quadragesimne" (De Ant. Eccl. Rit. 1. i. $11, \mathrm{n} .11$ ). The radditio or repetition of it to the bishop was eight days later when the catechumens received the Lord's Prayer, and again on Easter kive before thelr baptism (Aug. Scrm. $58,6 \S 1,13)$.

We have alao less praclse Information on the practice of the Greek and Oriental churches than on thase of Gaul, Spain and Italy, St. Jerome, A.D. 397, writing in Palestine, saya, "Consuet ado antem apmul nos latinsmoll est, ut his qui baptizandi sunt jer xl. dies publice tradamus sanctam et adorandam Trinitatem." From this we should infer that the creed was delivered at tha beginaing of Lent, unless, which seems limprobable, it was ouly imparted piecemeal during the whole course of it. We find Cyril of Jeruvalem, A.D. 347, explalning the first article of it in his fourth catechetical lecture delivered not far from the beginning of that season, and in the fourteen that follow dealing with doctrines exclusively Christian.
Tha only carly notice of the in the church of Constantinople with which 1 am able to meet oceurs in the statennent of Theodorns Lector, that before the time of 'Timothens, A.D. 511, the Nicene creed was "recited onl 5 once in the year, viz. on the holy day of preparation (parasceve) of the divine Passion at the time of the catechisings held by the bishop" (IIst. Eocl.ii. 32). We caa only suggest that the Apostles' creed was used in carlier catechisings by the priests.
The delivery of the creed was in the Latin church preceded by a short address, "praetatio symboli" (Stcram. Gelis.; Assemanl, Codex Liturg. i. 11 ; Ord. Sorut. 6, u. s.; Miss. Gall. Vet. in Lit. Gall. 339 ; Stcram. Gull. in Mus. Ital. i. 310. Comp. Catech. (iracc. Ass. 111).
It was afterwards explained in detaib (lug. erm. 214; the Sacramentaries, u. s.). St. Augustina has three sermons (214, 213, 214) "in Traditione Symboli;" but the olfice looks give forms to be used on the occaxion.
According to the earlier Roman ritual the creed was said in Greek over the male candidates, and in Latin over the female (Martene, u. s., I. i. 12, ord. 2 (MS. Gellon) ; Pontij. Pictar. $i^{\prime \prime}$ ord. 3 ; ord. 4, ad Scrut. Ms. Wertin. is, \&c.). In the Gallican it was said in Latin only, but over each sex (HIiss. Gall. Vet, u. a. 340 ; Jesse Ambianensis, de Baptismo, § 1). In the Gelasian Sacramentary, as we have it, it is given buth in Latin and Greek, but both are said over all the candidates.
The duy on which the delivery took place was called by the Latins "Dies in Apertione Aarium" (Sucram. Gelas. i. 34 ; Murat. i. 537 ; Miss. Gall. Vet. in Lit. Gall. 342 ; Jesse Amh. u. s., 8e.) It had a proper mass, "Missa in Symboli Traditione" (Miss. Guth. u. 8. 235; Gill. lict. 34b; Sacrım. Gall. u. s. 314 ; Afiss. Ambros, u. s. 336).

The creed used was at first everywhere a form identical with or closely akin to the Apostles' creed (Mise. Gall. Vet. n. s. 348 ; Swer. Gall. u. a. 312; Isid. Hispai. de Ecol. Off. ii. 22; Raban. Maur. de Instit. Cler. i. 27 ; Ord. Rom Bernoldi in Hittorp. de Ecol. Off. 32, ed. 1 , Ordd. 9, 10 in Martene, u. s., "Credo in Deam," &c.); but when the Nicene creed was generally adopted into the liturgies it was also chosen in many churches for the instruction and profession of catechumens (see for the latin, Sacram. Gehs. Assem. .u. s. 11 ; Greg. ib. 22; Ord. Serut. 97; Ord. 5 in Martene, u. s.; for the Greek, Assem. u. a. 114, 138; Armenian, ib. 17:; Syrian, 212, $238,252,271$ ). There ia early evidence of the Crapk use of Theodore alre utantinople, a. symbol in whi tixe" (Lipist. Some monks the same plac In tho same Caesar Basillise "The symbol o we and all wh been baptizized The Copts use the Three Perse In one latin $O_{1}$ Deum" or "Cr 4. s. ord. 4).

TRADITOR the Dincletian bibles, and sacre Cypriani mortem cum facta est, ditores " (Aug. The charge of be in turn against tists (Aug. Jipp. xviii. 19 ; Cuntr conncil of Arles, ately after the clergyman cunvi manifest acts, of sacred Scriptures names of the bret

TRANQUILL

 Rome under Dio Adon., Vet. Rum., Sirlet.).TRANSENNA seman" stands tor either a net or ana Barchis, iv. 6, 22 ; 7, 10), or a wieker imitating that fo applied to a carve ture of a window hiadering those out by the Greeka סikt srrangement is to Sylvester, below th in Reme. "Per tr common Latin pro Orature, lib. i. c. 35 Paulinus of Nola seana" as adapted "laetissimo vero co aperitur tribus ar transenna ' (Eipist. 1 In Christian Anti plied to the carved to fill up the opening churches and oratorie the secular basilieas example has been fou "basilica Joris" on protent the shrinea of handliag, while the mysterious view of "llowed handkerchie
m (Aug. Sirm.
rimation on the Il churches than y. St. Jeroma, ", "Consnetuda sst, ut his yul ablice tradamus in." From this vav delivered at hich seems imjecemeal during d Cyril of Jeruirst article of it re delivered not t sensen, and in with doctrincs n the church of able to meet eodorus Lector, 1s, A.D. 511 , the nee in the year, on (parasceve) of the catechisings ii. 32). We can creed was used ests.
$s$ in the latin ress, "pruefatio ssemani, Codex s.; Miss, Gall. Gall. in Mus, ec. Ass, 111). in detait (Aug. s, u. s.). St. 212, 213, 214) he office books tsion.
man ritunl the he male candimale (Martene, Pontij, Pistar. Vertin. i', &c.), Latin only, but a. s. 340 ; Jesse In the Gelasian $s$ given both in aid over all the took place was tione Auriam" 137 ; Miss. Gall. mh. u.s., se.) Symboli TradiCall. Vct. $346 ;$ bros. u, s, 336). rywhere a form - the Apostles' 8 ; Sxer. Gall. I. off. ii. 22; 27 ; Ord. Rom fff. 32, ed. 1; redo in Deum," was generally also chosen in and profession Sacram. Gechs. Ord. Scrut. 97; Greek, Assem. ? ; Syrian, 212, ovidence of tho

TRADITOREs

Creek nie of this creel, as in the statement of Theodore nlrenly quoted. The council of Conaymbol inl which we were bef it as "the holy
 Some monks nemorialising Lather Cunc, v. 16i6). the sanne place (A.D. 336 ) 3 later council at in the kume mauner (i) 172), Siluilarly, Caesur Basiliseus writing to Timuchy Aelurvis, "The symbol of the 318 fathers . . . into which we and all who have believed before into which The Coptst use a shart fors, Hist. Eicel. iiii. 4). the Three Pervons of the Trinity (Assemn. 159 ) In one J.atin Ordo an option is given, "Credo in Deum" or "Credo in Unum Deunn" "(Martene, 4. s. ord. 4).
[W. E. S.]
TRADITORES. Thase who in the time of the Diseletian persecution delir :red up their Cypriani mortem 40 annis pernest ruction: "rost Cyprianh mortem 40 annis perractis traditio codiditores " (Aug. de lapt. conurt apppellari traThe charge of betraying sactred bookst was wii. 2). ia turn agniost the tang satred borks was urged tists (Aug. Epp. l., elxii, clxirs and the Dounxviii. 19; Cuntra Crescon. iii, 27). The first council of Arles, A.l. 314 (e. 13), held immeuitntely after the persecution, decreed that nay elergyman cooriitsod, not by henrsay but liy manifest acts, of having betrayed either the bicred Suriptures or the church vessels or the names names of the brethrea, was to be deposel.
TRANQULLLINUS,
Rome under Ding
6, martyr at
[G. M. Rome under Diocletian (Murt. Usuarli., Fior., Adoa,
Ict. Alvo., Vet. Rom., Riom.); Dec. 18 (Menol.' Grace.
[C. H.]
TRANSENNA. In classical usage "tran-tenuil " stands for any piece of reticulated deither a net or sumany piece of reticulated work, Barchis, niv. 6,22 ; Persa, iv ching birds (Plant. 7, 10), or a wicker hurdle, or lattice, Ruteny, iv. imitating that form. In this sense in it ing applied to a carred grating filling up the aperture of a window, ndinitting the light, hut bindering those outside from looking in, called by the Greeks $\delta_{1 \times \tau} v \omega \tau \delta \nu$. An example of this srraggement is to be seen in the church of Syll rester, below that of St. Martino nij Monti, ia lione, "Po in lionee. "Per transennam aspicere" was a comimon Latin proverb found in conimnon Latin proverb found in Cicero (de Orutore, lib, i. e. 35 ). Oratere, 1ib. i. c. 35).
Pauinus of senna" as ndapted to des, ribes the "tran"laetissino vero conspectu totn hnec opening, aperitur tribus anculuas paribus peoluilica, transenna: "(sipist. 12, ad Sever.). In Christian Antiquities "trans. plied to the carred marthe "transenana" is appo fill tup the openings of the " charches and the openings of the "enacelli" in the the secular basilicas, of which as in those of cexmpile has been found in the recently excellent "basilica Jovis" on the the recently excaroted proteat the shrines of the Paletinie Hill), and to kandling, while they afforded a distant ande mysterions view of the sacred treasures, and allawed ailawed handkerchiefs and napkius called "brandsa" to be put through the latitice work, transenna
1905
and bring back healing virtue from contact with the consecrated coffer. A "transemna" in this last sense was completed of pare silver by SIxtus III, about tha tomb of St. Lawrence, "ornavit transemnam at altare et coufessionem sancti martyris Laurentii " (Anastas, in Sixto I/I. 8085). The design of a "tranvenna" discovered In the cemietery of St. Callistus is given by beddetil (Ossercaz. p. 35). One published by De IRoss! (Inser. Christian. tom, i. proleg. cav. tion of the end of pl. ix.) bears a curiuus inseripan earlier one of the 3rd century, together with furmer we larm partially obiterated. From the by a heathen ludy that it was originally prepared epitaph. It was subseque reception of her own of, as the later inscriptlon ry taken fossession named Severus, inseriptlon records, by a dencon hustead of verticnlls cumsily set it horizoatally "cubiculum duplex to guard the aperture of a constructed duplex cum arcosolio et luninare" constructed for hinself and his fumily by the seam," which ls one of elellinus. This "tran6 feet by 3 fich ls one of elegant design, mensures obing slab in the Thescriptions ine on a plain "transennae" the ceatre. The design of the of what la knowa "cancells" abd of the aitar cemetery of St. Callistus papal erypt in the restored by De Rossi frus, has been faithfully covered, and the supposed arrane frigments dis(tar. 1, A. of the second volugement is given Sutterranea, see second volume of his Romus "transenna" to fence in the "The use of the still seen at St . Clernent's. Phe "confessio" is ful examples from St. Prisellla and St. Heleua

The life of Stephen IV. (Anastas, § 274) afforde an instance of the use of the word in its first me:ning as a feace. A presbyter named Waldepertus, whe had fled for refuge to the church of St. Mary ad Martyres, was dragged church of thrown "justa trinsennam anged out and where his eyes were dag out.

> IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic ${ }_{\text {Sciences }}^{\text {Scienation }}$

1996

TIRANSFIGURATION

Martigny (sub voce) presents $n$ beantlful and elaborate exampla of a "transenna" from a churen at Cherchel, in North Africa, with the latters $A$ and $\boldsymbol{W}$ forming elementa of the lattica work.
[E. V.]
TRANSFIGURATION (IN ART). This event In our Lord'a history had no place in the ordinary cycles of art representations in the early church. It occurs, however, two or three times in mosaics, and has been found in some minor works of art. The most remarkable is that of the 6th century at St. Apollinnre in Classe, already described in the article Mosaics (p. 1333). Here the representation is almoat entirely symbolical. A jewelled cross within a circle of glory occupies the central place, on either side demi-figurea of Moses and Elias float in clouds, while three sheep nmong the trees on the hill below represent the apostles. The Transfiguration is also depicted in a mosaic of the 6 th century in the chapel of the convent of St. Catherine on Mount Sinai (La Borde, Voyage dans ('Arabie), and in an ill-designed clunssy work of the 8 th century in the church of SS. Nereus and Achilleus at Rome (Mosaics, p. 1333). Martigny states that Millin mentions the subject being found on a sarcophagus at Ostia, but he gives no reference to the place. Rnonl Rochette speaks of it as being seen on a lamp discovered in a catacomb at Corneto (see also D'Aginconr't, Scuipt. 1xii. no. 24, 28).
[E. V.]
TRANSFIGURATION OF CHRIST, commemorated July 14 (Cal. Armen.); Aug. 6 (Cal. Byzant.; Cal. Ethiop.; Basil. Menol.; Menol. Grace. Sirlat.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 265 ; Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
TRANSITORIUM, the anthem sung after the communion (see Communio, p. 412) in the Ambrosian liturgy (Radulphus Tungr. de Cononum Observ. Yrop. 23, in Mir. Bihlioth. Vet. Patr. xxvi. 319). It ia ao called becanse, while it is being sung, the priest leaves his place and "transfert missala ad alinm partem altaris" (Rubr. in Missali Ambr. A.D. 1669 ; Martene, de Ant. Eccl. Rit. I. iv. 12, n. 3). See an example in Pamelius, Liturgica, i. 305.
[W. E. S.]
TRANSLATION [Bishop, p. 225 ; R६цLCs, p. 1772.]

TREASURER. [Oeconomus.]  TRECENSE CONCILIUM. [TROYES.]

TREES IN AR'T. The trees so frequently seen in the early Christian mosaics and frescoes, and on gilded glassea, sarcophagi, and other objects of art, are commonly, as Bosio ncknowledges (lib. iv. c. 44), simply oroamedtal accessorics devoid of any symbolical meaning, though in some cases it is probable that we may not be wrong in regarding them as typienl of the Tree of Life, an emblem of immortality, and of Christians as trees of the Lord'a planting. This is certainly the case with the palm-tree. [Palm Tree.] The trecs between which the Good Shepherd is often placed, sometimes with the aljuncts of birds and a milk-pail (Perret, Catacombes, V. pl. xlviii., Ixxvi. ; Agincoart, iv. vii. 10), may be anfely regarded as decerative, though a symbolical meaning may be easily read iuto them. The same may ba said of the trees which accompany the raising of Lazarus, rometimes growiag out of the tomb (Buonarruotl, tav. vii. 2) or in part of it (Bottnri, tav. vli. 2), nad of those between which the "orantes" often atand; sometimes with a lamb on either side (Perret, V. v.). St. Agnes is 80 depicted (Buonarruoti, tav. xviii.xxi. ; Bottari, tav. xcvii. 4). The symbolical reterence is more unmistakable when a tree or a branch is depicted between $A$ and $\omega$ (Da Rossi, Rom. Sott. tom. ii. p. 323), and where a green tree, rich in flowers and fruit, is opposed to ons that is dry (Le Blant, Inscr. Christ. pp. 390, 394 , 409). Compare Paradise.

TRENTALS. [ObSEQUIES, $x \times x i$. p. 1437.]
TREVES, COUNCIL OF (Trevireitse Concilium), a.d. 385, at which St. Martin was beguiled into being present, when Ithacius, the accuser of Priscillian, was acquitted, and Felis ordained bishop of Treves. (Mansi, iii. 67984.)
[E. S. Ff.]
TRIANGLE. For this emblem, which is rarely used in the early church, and has been little noticed in consequence, Martigny refers almost entirely to a learned article by M. de Rossi, in the Spi-ilegium Solesmense, vol. iv. p. 497, on some inscriptions from Carthage.

Triangle. (Martgny, p. 641.)
These examples are almost the only ones knowin. [See Monogram.] The first will be found in Aringhi (Rom. Subt. i. p. 605), the second and trind are Lupi's (Sev. Epitaph. pp. 64, 102), the fourth in Boldetti's Cimit. p. 402. The fifth and six, h, with the monogram and enclosing the $A$ and a were found by De Rossi in a MS. of the Barberini library, and published by M. E. Le Blant (fnscr. chret. ds la Gaule, t. i. p. 107), the last is on the fifth of the former'a African marbles (in the Spicilegium).

Three fiahes arranged in the form of $a$ triangle are represented in Munter's Sinnbilder, p. 49, tab. i. 26. And, as Martigny observes, all the triangles are closely connected with the Monogram, the special symbol or name of the Second Person of the Holy Trinity.
[R. St. J. T.]
TRIBIMAEUS, Mar. 1, martyr at Perga with Nestor under Decius (Basil. MIenol.).
[C. H.]

TRIBUNAL. [Immunities; JURisdio-

 TION; LAW.]TRIFORIUM. It is defined by Ducange a a kind of gallery or arcade, which is carried all round a church, In order to furnish means of cir: culation about the charch above the princinal areade. The same writer derives the mame from the fact that in the earlier forms of the triferium the wall had $n$ triple perforation between each pair of the grent columns below. Structurallp the triforium is It is pronounced de l'Architectur gallery (ambula Roman basilica. duced lato tha English archaeol passage to which triforinm, Violl used for the con drals on the occa early Christians the Father in hu pictorial represen Trianole was us this early examplBut thie appea Abraham (Gen. $x$ by the ancients .as Trinity, and it is represented in a a work of the Munim. I, tab. li.

TRINITY, I

In representation by St. John, the p quently indicated cloud, while the 1 [DOVE, p. 576]. scribes in the chur abhe Martigny sees Trinity in a mosai church of SS. Cost Vet. Mon. ii. tab. x teaching; a hand f over His head, wh rounded with raya, sarcophagus recentl Lateran Museum. probably representio in the creation of the latter half of $t$ Dict. des Antiq. Chre TRIODION (T $\rho$, tical books of the En offices from Septunge It derives ita name hymns in honour of 0 other saints had use during this period o three, Hence lxx. s simply "Triodium." exrmination of the cor written by the Roma Lib. Eccles. Graec. Han Holy Lastern Church,

TRIPHO. [TRYPI
TRIPHONIA, wif memerated on Oct 1 Ador.. Vet. Rom., Wan

TRIPODES, June

 and Madales under A Usuard., Adon., Vet. RTRIPODIUM. Th Icription of a Gospel quoted by Marteae (de
2) frem an aucient Tour ich sccompany growing out i. 2) er in part those between ad ; sometimes ret, V. v.). St. ti, tnv. xviii.The symbolics when a tree or d $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ (De Rossi, whers a green opposed to ons t. pp. 390, 39t, [E. V.]
xxi. p. 1437.]
(Trevirense St. Martin was n lthacius, the tted, snd Felix ansi, iii. 679-
[E. S. Ff.]
lem, which is d has been little y refers almest M. de Rossi, in iv. p. 497 , en 1.)
nly ones know. ill be found in second and tr ind 102), the fourth fifth and six.h, ng the $A$ nnil a of the Barberini Le Blant (Inscr. he last is on the narbles (in the $r m$ of a triangle bilder, p. 49, tab. all the triangles Monegram, the econd Person of [R. St. J. T.] artyr at Perga Dienol.).
[C. H.]
es; Jurisdio
l by Ducange a ch is carried all ish means of ciro ve the principal s the name frem of the triforiam on between each w. Structurally the thiforium is the roof-sprace of a lean-to aisle It is pronounced by Viollet-le-Duc (Dictionntire de (Architecture, s. v.) to be a tradition of the gallery (ambulatorium) of the first story of the Roman basilica. The name he aays was introduced into the vocabulary of architecture by English archaeologista. Besides its purpose of a passage to which Ducange appears to limit the triforinm, Viollet-le-Duc speaks of its being used for the congregation in the larger cathedrals on the occasion of a great solemnity.
[II. T. A.]
TRINITY, THE HOLY (in Art). The early Christimns shrank from representing God the Father in huminn form, much more from $n$ pictorial representation of the Holy Trinity. The Triangle was used to symbolize it, but even of this early examples are not commou,

But.the appearance of the three angels to Abraham (Gen. xviii.) was commonly regarded by the ancients as a manifestation of the Holy Trinity, and it is no doubt as snch that it is represented in a mosaic of S. Maria Maggiore, a work of the 5 th century (Ciampini, Vet.
Monim. I. tab. li. 1). In reuresen. li. 1).
In representations of the baptism of the Lord quently indicated by a hand the Father is trecloud, while the Holy Spirit appearing from a [Dove, p. 576]. Such a picture Paulinus describes in the church of St. Felix at Noln. The abhe Martigny sees also a representation of the Trinity in a mosaic of the 6th century in the church of SS. Cosmas and Damian (Ciampini, Vet. Mon. ii. tab. xvi.), where the Lord stands teaching; a hand from above suspends a crown over His head, while a dove, the head sursarcophagus recently discovered, ons him. On a sarcophagus recently discovered, and now in the Lateran Museum, three benrded persons probably represeuting the Trinity-sre engaged in the creation of Eive. This is said to be of the latter half of the 4th century (Martigny, Dict. des Antig. Chret. s. bict. des Antiq. Chret. s. v. Trinité).
[C.] TRIODION (Tpiчforiov). One of the ecicleainstical books of the Enstern church contnining the offices from Septuagesina Sunday to Easter-Eve. It derives its name from the fact that while hymns in honour of our Lord, the B. V. M., and other saints had usunlly ninc strophes (ढठai), three. Hence lix. Sunday is they have only three. Hence lx. . Sunday is sometimes called eimply "Triodium." A detailed and eimply "Triodium." A detailed and hostile written by the the contents of this book has been Written by the Roman Catholic Leo Allatius de Lib. Eccles. Graec. Hamburgi, 1712 ; Neale (J M) Holy Eastern Church, Introd. p. 857. [F. E. W.]

TRIPHO. [TRYPHO.]

TRIPHONIA, wife of Decius Cnesar, commemorated on Oet 18 (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Alor., Vet. Rom., Wand., Notker.). [C.H.]
TRIPODES, June 10, martyr with Basilides and Madales under Aurelian at Rome (Sfart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom.).
[C. II.] I'RIPODIUM. This word oceura In a deIcription of a Gospel procession in a passage quoted by Martene 2) Irom an aucient Tours ritual. It was probably a triangular stand, on which the Evangelistarium reated while the Gospel was being read.

TlROPHIMUS
1997

TRISAGION (Tplod $\gamma / \sigma \nu$ ). A hyini E. W.] the Eastern liturgies duriov). A hyinusung in It derives its wording, "Ayos $\dot{v} \theta_{\epsilon} \delta s,{ }^{*} A>$ the nature of its been first indoyias enßónбis. It is aaid to have been first introduced into the Liturgy in tha it is probably mneh Theodosins (408-450), but being superust mich older. The legend of its atricken populaty communicated to the terrorcarthquake in thon of Constantineple during an 434 ) is pre in the episcopnte of St. Proclus (A.D. 434 ) is preserved by many writers (Jomn. Damnsc. de Fid. Orthodox. ili. 10). Jeter the Fuller at $\delta_{i}^{\prime}$ Antioch (ob. 477) added the words $\delta$ oravpoocls $\delta_{i}^{\prime} \dot{\eta} \mu \mathrm{a}_{\mathbf{s}}$. His successor neutralised this Patrineither phrase obtained a permanent footing, although the emperor Anastasius (A.D. 491-518) tried to impose the acceptance of Peter's heretical formula which was adopted by the Syrian Monophysites (Bingham, Autiq. xiv. ii, 3 ; Robertson, (J. C.) Hist. of the Christiun Shurch, i. 527, ed. 1864 ; Martene, de Antiq. Eccl. Rit. lib. iv. c. 23). Good Friday wherms part of the Improperia on earlicat extont it is placed in some of the (ib.). The Eviरù roí tooks of Troyes, Poictiers aaid by the priest (uuaruariou was the prayer trisagion was being snng. For the Latin Sanctus or Tersanctus, with which the Trisagion is sometimes confused, see Preface, p. 1696.

[F. E. W.]
TRIUMPHAL ARCH. The name given to the large arch at the altar end of the ave in the early basilicas, separnting it from the transept or from the sacrarium. Of this arrangement we have examples in the basilicas of St. Panl's outside the walls, St. Praxedes, ant in the original church of St. Peter's. The application of the apse is also extended to the great arch of the apse. These arches are often supported with spondrils nnd of precious marbles, and have the spandrils nnd soffites richly decorated with mosnic pictures.
[E. V.]
TROJANUR, bishop of Saintes, commemorated on Nov. 30 (Mart. Usuard., Adon.); Feb.
10 (Notker.).
[C. H.]
 for all the short hymons which nbound in the offices of the Eastern church (Neale, J. M., Eastern Churoh, Introd. pp. 832, 918).
[F. E. W.]
TROPHIMUS (1), Apr. 14, commemorated with Aristarchus and Pudens, " apostles" (Cal. Byzant. ; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.) ; Apr. 1.5 (Basil. Menol. ; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 257) ; Dec. 29 as Wlshop of Arles (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Wand., Roti.).
(2) Martyr with Thalaeus or Thalus under Diocletian, commemornted on Mar. 11 (Menol. Graes. ; Mart. Rom.) ; Mar. 16 (Basil. Menol.).
(3) July 23, martyr with Theophilus under Diocletinn (Basll. Monol.; Menol. Gruec. Sirlet. Mart. Rom. ; Daniel, Cud. Litury. Iץ. 264).

TURRIS

(4) Sept. 19, mastyr with Serapion, or Sanortius, and Dorymedon, under Probus (Cal. By zant.; Basil. Mcnol.; Menol. Graec.; Mart. Rom.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 269).
[C. H.]
TROYES, COUNCIL OF (Trecense ConCILJUM), A.D. 429, from which Lupus, bishop of Troyes, and Germanus, bishop of Auxerre, were sent, at a request of the British church, on a mission into Great Britain to assist in confutiog Pelagianism. (Msnsi, iv. 543; Haddan and Stubbs, Counctis, etc. 1. 16-18.)
TRUDO (St. Truyen), presbyter and confessor at Hasbadium (Haspengaw), commemorated on Nov. 23 (Mart. Usuasd., Hieron., Wand., Rom.).
[C. H.]
TRULLUS, a Latinised form of the low Greek $\tau \rho \circ \overline{i ̃ \lambda \lambda a}$ or $\tau \rho \circ \hat{\nu} \lambda \lambda 10 s=\theta \delta \lambda o s$, a hemispherical roof or dome. The covering of the cupola of the church of SS. Cosmas and Damian at Rome by pope Sergius I, is thus recorded in Anastasius (§ 163), "trullum ejusdem ecclesiae fusis chartis plambeis coopernit et munivit." The anonymous writer (de 10 .is Hierosol. § 1) describes the charch of the Holy Sepulchre as being otporqu-
 Quinisest council has gained the name of "Trullan" or "in trullo" from having been held in a large domed hall in the imperial palace at Constantinople (cf. Ducange, Constuntinop. Christiona, lib. ii. c. $4, \S 20$; lib. iii. c. 33). [Constantinople, Council of (34), p. 444.] Codinus gives the name "trulla" to the silk cap or turban worn by the chief imperial secretary (De Offic. c. jv. p. 22, ed. Bonn). [E. V.]
TRUMPET. The Egyptian monks appear to have used a trumpet as the call to prayer, probably in imitation of the trumpets by which the lstielites were summoned to their solemn assemblies. Thus Pachomins (Regula, c. 3) bids every monk to luave his cell as soon as he heard the sound of the trunupet summoning him to divine service. And the same usage is mentioned by Joannes Climacus (Scala Paralisi, Grad. 19) as prevailing it the convent on Mount Sinal in the 6th century. Perhaps the custom was then general in Egypt and Palestine (Bingham, Antiq. VIll. viii. 15 ; Martene, de hit. Antiq. IV. ii. 9).

TRYPIIO (Tripho) (1), Jan. 4, martyr in Africa with Aquilinus and others (Mart. Usuard., Hieron., Adon., Notker., Rom.).
(2) Feb. 1, martyr in Phrygia under Decius (Basil. Afcnol.; Menol. Graec.). At Constantinople were two churches dedicated to him by Justinisn and Justin II. respectively (Codinus, de Aedif. p. 5, p. 100, Bonn; Precop. de Aedif. lib. i. cap. 9, p. 201, Bonn; Du Cange, Cpolis. Christ. lib. iv. 140), nnd in 536 a monastery is mentioned (Mansi, vili, 907 c ).
(3) July 3, martyr with ted others at Alexandria (Mart. Usuard., Hieron., Rom.). [C. H.]

TULLENSE CONCILIUM. [TOUL.]

TUNICA. Any description of the tunica ln its ordinary classical sense is foseign to our purpose; and its diminutive tunicolla (whence the English tunicle, and less correctly tunacle) does rot ocenr within our assigned period, i's Iater special use leing for the vestment of the subdeacon at the Eucharist (see e.g. Durandus, llat. Div. Off. iii. 11. 3).

One or two instances, however, of the word tunica in early Christian writings must be noticed. The tunica was one of the nsticles of dress provided by the Rule of St. Benedict for his monks (c. 55, Patrol. lxvi. 771). It seems to have been much the same as the Colotion (see the article), a tight-fitting garment, shortsleeved or aleeveless. Later on, we find the tunica as an article of sacerdotal dress. Here it is a kind of uppes shirt, worn over the camisic, and of course under the casula. Two tunicae might be worn, an upper and an under one (Amalarius, de Div. Off. ii. 22; Patrol. cv. 1097). The word often occurs in the Vulgnte as a translation of $\chi_{1} \tau \dot{\omega} \nu$, and thus our Losd's " cont without seam" becomes tunica inconsutilis. For the legend in connexion with this, see e.g. Greg. Turon. de Gloria Martyrum, i. 8 ; Fredegarius, Chronicon, c. 11 (Patrol. lxxi. 712, 614).

TUNSIO PECTORIS, (1) St. Augustine more than once nlludes to the beating of the breast by priests and people at the recital of the petition of the Lord"s Prayer, "Forgive us our trespasses " [Lord's Prayer, p. 1058].
(2) It was also usual in some churches to beat the brenst when the Agnus $D$. was said (Martene, de Rit. Antiq. i. 158, ed. Venct. 1783).
[c.]
TURBO, Jan. 17, martyr with Speusippus and his brothers (Basil. Mewol.).
[c. H.]
TURIANUS, bishop and confessor in Brittany, commemorated on July 13 (Mart. Usuard, Rom.).
[C. H.]
TURIN, COUNCIL OF (Taurinf CLLUMM) A.D. 400 or 401 , assemble request of the bishops of France, for $c$. a difference between the metropolitans or Arles and Vienve respecting the primacy which ench claimed. Eight canons nre embodied in their synodical letter. (Mansl, iii. 859-66.)
[E. S. Ff.]
TURRIS, a plx of preclous metal for the reservation of the consecrated bread in the Eucharist, formed io the shape of a tower, as other similar vessels were fashioned in the shape of a dove (DOve, Euciapristic). In the Greek church aupyos was used for the ciborium (Ducange, Const. Christ. iii. 62). Panlus Silentiarius writes of St. Sophia (ii. 303), ä

Smaller towers were emploged as reliquaries. Not unfrequently the dove and the tower were conjoined. Conical vessels surmounted by a dove appear in the 6th century mosnics at St. Apollinare in Classe at Ravenna (Ciampini, Vet. Mon. H. c. 12). There is nlso a doubtui example on a sarcophagus (Bott3rl, tsv. xis.). The two are constantly united in the catalognat of presents to the Roman churches in Anastasius; e.g. Hilary gave to the Lateran "turrim srgeno team et columbam auream." Martene stats that towers were hanging in his time in somb of the Rominn i.). Gregory of "nccepta turre nici corporis hab gressusque temp The will of St. ii.) enumerates chalices and ve church furniture Gallican liturgy P. col. 95) snys th in towers, " $q$ similitudinem tu sufficiently far-fe Mabillon (Afus. I "benedictio calici celebraturi sumu supplies a referen desiring "turric fabricari " (Flodo TUSDRUM, COUNCIL OF marginal reference Coscluium), A.d. ginal references to and from words in Telepte, A.D. 418 ; TYANA, COU, CILIUM), A.D. 36 Sebaste, deposed at to be restored to hi was only followed 393-8.) TYCHICUS, d commemorated at Usunrd., Adon., Vet Sosthenes, Apollos, Lenol.).

TYPICON ( $\tau u \pi$
(a) One of the eccle churcla containing t the perfurmance of Liturgy, the Hours, variations to be ob days throughout th eessed its own typi wilely nccepted was for the monks at Je vised by Sophronius, and John of Damias given by L. Allatius Dissert. p. 1, Hamb Eastern Church, Intro
(b) Typica is also selecteld from the $\mathrm{P}_{\mathrm{si}}$ festivals obsurved in $t$ of our Lord nad the Pull directions are $g$ pp. 124, 186.
TYRANNIO, Feb. Peleus, and others Usuaril., Notker., Rom TYRF, COUNCI: exsia Concilia), a.d. 318). Of these the fi for having deposed St that turned out utterly of the Roman basilicas (de Ant. Eccl. Rit. lib i.). Gregory of Tours has (de Glor. Martyr. i. 86) nici copts turre disconus, in qua mysterium Dominici corporis habebatur, ferre coepit ad ostium, inThe will of St. A rodlue am altari superponeret." The will of St. Aredlus (Mabillon, Anclect. tom. ii.) enumerates " turres," together with sllver chalices and velvet coverings, among essenthal church furuiture. The exposition of the ancient Gallican liturgy given by Martene (Anecdot, tom. v. col. 95) says that the body of the Lord is carried in towers, "quia monumentum Domini in similitudinem turris fait scissum in petra," a Snbillontly far-fetched snd uninteiligible reason. Mnbillon (Mfus. Ital. tom. i. p. 389) furnishes the "henedictio calicis et patenae, et turris in qua celebraturi sumus sacrosnncta mysteria," and supplies a reference to the will of St . Remigius desiring "turriculam et imaginatum calicem fabricari " (Flodoard. Hist. Rem. i. 18, ii. 6).

TUSDRUM, THYSDRUS

[E. V.]
TUSDRUM, THYSDRUS, or TISDRUS COUNCIL OF (TcsDRENSE, or, ss in the marginai references to Ferrandus, Tucsditanum ginnl references to 417, inferred from the marsnd from words in the prefice to the council of Telepte, A.D. 418; but see that council.

TYana, Council of (Tyanense Con. Ciliem), A.D. 366, at which Eastathius of Sebaste, deposed at the synod of Melitena, sought to be restored to his see, which was done; but it was only followed by his relapse. (Mansi, iii.
$393-8$.) TYCHICUS, deacon, disciple of St. Paul, commemorated at Psphos on Apr. 29 (Mart. Susurd., Adon., Vet. Rom., Rom.); Dec. 9 with Sosthenes, Apollos, Cephns, and others (Basil.
Mfenol.).
[C. H.]
TYPICON ( $\tau \cup \pi ⿺ \kappa \delta \nu$ ) [ $=$ Lst, Ordinarium] . (a) One of the ecclesiastical books of the Eastern church containing the regulations and rubrics tor the performadce of divine service, including the Liturgy, the Hours, and other offices, with the rariations to be observed on festal and ferial days throughout the year. Every church posbessed its own typicum, but the edition most widely necepted was that drawn up by St. Saba for the monks at Jerussiem, and afterwards revised by Suphronius, patriarch of Constinationple sod John of Damascus. A full description is given by L. Allatius (de Lib. Eccles. Graecortin Dissert. p. 1, Hamburg, 1722; Neale, J. M., Eastern Chweh, Introd. p. $8+8$ ).
(b) Typica is also the name applied to verses selected from the Psalms to be sung on certsin festivals observed in the Greek church in honour of our Lord nad the B. V. M. called Derpotica. Fuil directions are given in Goar's Eucholugion, pp. 124, 180. [F. E. W.]
TYRANNIO, Peb. 20, martyr with Silvanus, Peleus, and others under Diecletian (Mart. Ususrd., Notker., Rom.). [C. H.]
TYRE, COUNCILS OF (TyRIA or TYRI${ }_{518,51 A}$ Concilia), A.D. 335, A.D. 449, nad A.D. 518). Of these the first hals become notorious for having deposed St. Athanasius on charges that turned out utterly false; but that it could have been summoned for no other purpose than to condernn him must have been clear at the time from the fact that it was chlefly composed of his enemies. All the documents relating to it are given in Mansi (il. 1123-54), and its proo ceedings told clearest in Cave (Hist. Lit. i. 353). At the second Ibas, bishop of Edessa, charged by four of his presbyters with Nestorinnism, was, after s full hearing, acquitted. The documents relating to it were rehearsed at the winth and tenth sessions of the councll of Chalcedon (Mnnsi, vi. 497, and vil. 197 et seq.). At the third the orthodox acts of a council of Constantinople three months esrlier were coufirmed. The syd the letter of Epiphnnius, bishop of Tyre and the other bishops with bim, was rehearsed st the fifth session of $n$ later council of Constan577 and l073-8eanas, A.D. 556. (Mansi, viii

TZANGAE

1999

TYRSUS. [TiyRsus.]  [E. S. Ff.]

TZANGAE (also tsancac, zanchre, zancae, zanyae ; $\tau$ §dryai, $\tau$ §ary(a), a kind of high boot, first spparently mentioned (with the spelling zanchae) in the letter of the emperor Gallienus (ob. A.D. 268) quoted by Trebellius Pollio, in which he enumerates a list of presents he had sent to Claudius, who afterwards succeeded him. Among these we find "Znuchns de nostris Par. thicis (at. Parthicas) paria tris" (Vita Claudii, c. 17; where see Salmasins' note). Thus their foreign origin may be inferred; and probably it is on this ground that the Theodosian Code prohibits their use in Rome. A law of Honorins, promulgated in A.D. 397, threatens those who wear tzanyoe ss i braccae, intra urbem, with confiscation of property and perpetual exile (lib. xir. tit. 10, 1. 2, where see Gothofredus's note). Two years later the same lnw was re-issued (i) 1. 3).
This prohibition refers to persons gcnerally, inclusive that is of laics, but at a later generally, find the prohibition specially laid down for monks. The first council of Orlenns (A.D. 511) forbids the lise of oraria [SToLe] and tzanjue to monks (can. 20 ; Labbe, iv. 1408). Akin to this is the order of the first council of Mâcon (A.D. 581) that the clergy shall not use "calceamenta ssecularia" (can. 5 ; Labbe, v. 968).^
The Greek words often occur in Byzantine writers for boots worn by persons of high rank, especially the emperor. Codinus Curopalats, (de Officizs, c. 5) describes those worn by the emperor when walking or on state occasions (тpokúweis), b adding that the workman who made them for the emperor was called $\tau$ §dryas, not $\tau$ Sarydpios, as in the case of other people. See also Chronicon Paschitle, p. 614, ed. Dindorf; Theophnnes, vol. i. pp. 260, 484, 705, ed. Bekker. The etymolagy of the word is quite unknown. Salmasius suggests that it. is to be vicwed as equivalent to a supposed form $\delta_{i d} \gamma \times \eta$, derived from $\alpha_{\gamma \chi \omega}$, which seems most improbable.

[^188]
UNCTION

Sophocles (Greek Lex. of Roman and Bizzantine periods, s. v.) derives it from the Tentonic word, which nipeare in English in the form shank. For further notices, sse Ducange's alossaries, a. $\mathbf{v v}$.
[R. S.]

U

UNCTION. I. Of Persons.

(1) Of Catechumens. - (a) The practice of anointing catechumena in Africs on their tirst reception appears to be implied by St. Augustine when he says, in reference to the anointing with elay in John ix. 6, "When He anointed him, He perchance made him a catechomen. . . . (Trict. 44. in S. Joan. Ev. § 2). A Roman council assigned to the age of Innocent (402416) decides, in reply to a question of some Gslliesn bishops, that it is sutficient to use the "exoreised oil" once before the day of baptism, viz. "at the third scrutinium" (can. 8). In Spain, Isidore of Seville, 610, who distinguishes between the catechumens and competentes, says of the former, "These are first exoreised, then they receive the salt, and are anointed " (De Ecct. Off. ii. 20). So Ildefonsus of Toledo, 657 (De Comnit. B ppt. i. 29; see Hincmar, Epist. de Baptismo, 7 ; Hard. Conc. v. 417). There is no trace of this rite in any extsnt Ordo Scrutinii. See the collection in Assemanus, Codex Liturg. i. 53-104. Only one Ordo ad faciendum Catechumenum out of ten printed by Martene (De Ant. Eccl. Rit. I. 1. 7) preserves this noction (Ord. 6); but there not the ears but the breast and shoulders are to ached, as in the later pre-baptismal unction.
(b) In the East we early hear of an unction with exorcised oil immediately befure baptism. Thus in the Apostolical Constitutions (vii. 22): "Thou shalt first anoint him with holy oil and nfterwards baptize him with water" (compare iii. 16). St. Cyril of Jernsalem, A.D. 350 : "Being stripped, ye were amointed with exorcised oil from the hair on your head to the soles of your feet. After that ye were led by the hand to the holy font of baptism" (Catech. Myst. ii. 3, 4). So Chrysostom (Hom. vi. in Ep. ad Coloss. § 4); Pseudo-Dionysius (de Eccl. Hier. ii. 7). the Recognitums of Pseudo-Clement (iii. 67). This "anointing with holy oil" before the bnptism is meationed in an Egyptian story told by John Moschus, 630 (Pratun Spirit. 3).
In the Greek church there is atill but one unction with exoreised oil, which takes place innuediately before the baptism (Goar, Euchol. 354; Assem. ii. 141). With this agrees the Arabic otfice of the Greek Melchites (Assem. it. 149). The Armenians have no such unction now. They had it, however, in the 8th century, as appesrs from a canon of John the Catholic printed by Msi, in which "the oil of catechumens" is expressly mentioned (Nova Collectio Script. Vet. x. ii. 304). In the Coptic church, when its constitutions were compiled, there was clearly but one unction with oxoreised oil during the previons part of the baptismal office (Apost. Constit. Copt. ii. 46; Tattam'd ed. 57; Boetticher's Gr. Tr. In Bunsen's Anal. Antenic. ii. 467); but in the Coptic order of baptlam, as we hitye $i t$, there are two (Assemani, Codex Liturg. i. 148, 163). The Abyssinians use the same order. There are two also in thase of the Nestorians (ibid. i. 204; ii. 211), of the Syrians (i. 239, 254, 272, and ii. 224, 234,240 ; ii. $253,259,285,296,312,304$ ), and of the Maronites (ii, 332, 349). In the former of these uactions the Syrian priest uses his thumb (1. 239; ii. 285).

UNCTION

We infer from the nsrrative of John Moschns that both sexes were snointed over the whole body (Prat. Spir. u. s.) ; and the rituals make no distinction when they prescribe the unetion of the whole. See Goar, Eurhol. Gr. 354 ; Ordo Nestor. Assem. ii. 211; Syr. 224 (Antioch.), 234 (Hieros.); 240, 259, 296, 304, 349 (Maroa.). The Office of Philoxenua (240) expressly orders it in the case of femules.
The unction of which we nre now speaking appears to have beea of much Inter introdnction in the West. It is not noticed by the Spanish writers (Isidore, 610, De Bapt. in Ecel. Off. ii. 24 ; Ildefoase, 657, De Coyn. Bajit. i. 111, in Baluz. Misc. Sacra, tom. ii.). The earliest witness in Gaul is Caesarius, who died in 54?: "All who are presented to the church for ssving baptism receive both the chrism and the oil of benediction" (Sorm. 22, § 2). Germanus of Paris, 555, mentions an unction that took place when the creed was given at baptism, but he is singular in spenking of it as an unction with proper chrism: "Catechumenis (sic) chrismate unguetur." This he expressly says was made with balsam (Epist. ii. Migne, lxxii. 96). The mistake in using chrism implies that the rite was quite recently adopted. We next real of this unction ia the Besan; on sacramentary fuund at Bobio, which is assigned to the 7th ceutury (Mus. Ital. i. 324). Another probsble Gailican witness is the author De Sucrumentis: "Thou didst enter . . . I'hou wast anointed as an at hlete of Christ" (i. 2). This dstes from about iti, if Ambrose of Cahors be the writer. It appears, however, in the Gelasian aacramentary (Litury. Rom. Ict. Murat. i. 563), our copy of which is of the time of Charlemagne, and in some copies of the Gregorian of the צth century (Minat. us. s. ii. 61; Pamel. Liturgicon, ii. 264; Gerbert, Munum. Vet. Liturg. Alem. i. 83; not in Ménari, Opp. Greg. Ben. iii. 70, or Rocca, Opp. Greg. 1615, v. 111). We find frequent mention of it by Gallican bishops using the Roman rites at the close of the 8th century; as Theodulf of Orleans, 794 (De Ord. Bapt. 10); Leidrad of Lyons, 798 (De Sucram. Bupt. 2); Jesse of Amiens (Epist. de Bapt. c. De Unct. Pect. &e.); Niagaus of Sans (de Myat. Bapt. ad Car. Mayn. priuted in Msrtene, de Ant. Eccl. Rit. i. i. 17).
This unction, as we have alrendy mentioned, is prescribed in some of the Romsa Orders of Bsptism. It sppears also in the Ordo ad Scrutimuiun printed by Assem. Cod. Lit. i. 102, and the earliest Ordo Romumus by Mabillon, Mus. Itth. ii. 24. It is found in the modern office of Nilan, but as it comes before the exorcism of the child and the giving of the salt, it is rather in the place of the ancient unction of the catechumen than of that of the compatent. Sec Assem. es. a ii. 44. As we might expect from the silence of Isidore and Ildephonsus, it is not prescribed in the situal of the Gotha of Spain (Miss. Mozar. Leslie, 18?), nor do we find it in the Gothioce

Gallican missal Old Galliciun (i) in which it apl tary of Besancor too, that where directa presbyte their bishop (C Pepin, who des 744 orders them and oil " (0. 4, il
For the form must refer geve tene and Assen selves with that "I anoint thee Christ our Lord u. s. 1. 102).
(2) The Uncti - According to dencon and the ne the preshyter with the oil of thee with an an name of Jesus $\mathbf{C}$ ii. 46, Boetticher Antenic. ii. 467, Copt. 59). This mistake not, for t unction by the baptism is menti before we hear fro diately preceded is was used (as evide above cited no dis material exorcised the chrism being esrly writers who compound ( $\mu \dot{\prime} \rho o \nu$ ) which soon approl "chrisma." The first Latin tallian, 192: " $\mathrm{H}_{\mathrm{a}}$ sre thoroughly ano after the ancient ri to be anointed unto a horn" (De Bapt. (comp. Adv. Mare. Cyprian: "It is als person be anointed chrism, i.e. the uneti God, and hare the thst is a thank-offer titles of the praye Constit. Apost. vii. 2 those who are baptiz hallowed on the alt De Mlysteriis, the w (r. 29); Jerome ( $D i$ tine (de Brpt. Don. Trin. xv. 22, § 46) (Epist. i. 3); Isidor ii. 25) ; Ildefonsus i. 123); Caesarius Fortunatua (living ; 1786); Pseudo-A mbr Theodulph ( $d_{e}$ Ord. Sacram. Bapt. 7);

[^189]
UNCTION

Gallicun missnl ( Liturg. Gall. 248), nor In the Old Gallicann (ibidi, 364). The only Gallican book in which it appears is the Romanizing saccamentary of Beasan ;on (Mus. Atal. 1. 324). We remark, too, that whereas a law of Carloman in 742 noly directs presbyters to obtain "new chrism" from their biehop (Cap. 3, Capit. Reg. Fr. 1. 147), Pepin, who deasired conformity with Rome, in 744 orders them to apply to him for both "chriam and oil" ( (. 4, ibid. 158).
For the formulae used at thls anction we must refer generally to the collections of Martene and Assemani as above, contenting oursilves with that anciently employed at Rome: Christ our Lord unto life ererlastion in Jesus u. s. i. 102).
(2) The Unction of the Baptired with Chrism. -According to the older Coptitcr cite, when the the presbyter anointed came out of the water, with the oil of thanksgiving, saying, I snoint thee with an anointing, with holy, oil, anoint name of Jesus Christ "' (Constit. Eocl. 'Aegypt.
li. 46 , Boetticher's Gr li. 46 , Boetticher's Gr. Tr. in Bunsen, Analecta Antenic. ii. 467, or Thathm's Apost. Constit.
Copt. 59. This is the copt. 59 ). This is the only authority, if we mistake oot, for this practice in the East. An mistake not, for this practice in the East. An nnction by the officiant immediately ungitism is is mentioned by Latiant immediately after by before we hear from them of that which immediately preceded it. It is probnble that pure oil Was used (as evidently in Egypt, for in the canons above cited above cited no distinetion is made between the material cxorcised and thnt blessed for chrism, the chrism being termed oil merely by several esrly writers who will be which soon appropriated to itself the name of "chrisma."
The first Latin witness to this unction is Tertullian, 192: "Havingess come out of the font, we sre thoroughly anointed with a blessed unction, niter the ancient rite, in which they were wont nitter the amcient rite, in which they were wont to be anointed unto the priestlood with oil from s hern" (De Bapt. 7h; preesthood with oil from (comp. Adv. Marc. i. 14; De Resurr. 8). St. Cyprinn: "It is also needful thit the baptized parson re anointed, that having received the chrism, i.e. the unction, he may be an anointed of God, and have the grace of Christ. thst is a thank-offering (encharistia: comp. the tites of the priners over oil and $\mu$ U$\rho \rho_{0} \nu$ in Constit. Apost. wii. 27, 42, 44, \&c.), from which those who are baptized are anointed, viz. the oil hallowed on the altar" ( De Mysteriis, the werk ascribed to St. Ambrose (r. 29); Jerome (Dial. ado. Iucif. $\S$ ) ; A A unguse tine (de $B$, pt. Don. v. $20, \S 23 ;$ Serm. 324 ; de Trin.
 (Epist i. 3); Isidure of Seville (de Ecool. Off.
ii. 25 ); Ildefonus of Toledo (do Cogn. Bapt. ii. 25); ; Ildefonsus of Toledo (do Cogn. Bapt.
i. 123); Caesarius (d. 542 ) (Strm. 22, § 2 ); Portuatue e living in 600 ) (i. v .5 ; F Opp. ed. 1786); Pseudo-Ambrose (de Sacram. iii. 2 , & 8); Theodulph (de Ord. Theodulph (de Ord. Bept. 15); Ieidrad (do Sacram. Bapt. 7); Sacram. Bapt. 7); Jesse (Epist.•ad Sacerd.

[^190]
UNCTION

2001
c. De Unctione Capitis); Magnus (Mnrtene M. 8. i. 1. 17; siln. Anon. Tract. de Sucr. Bupt. ibid.) ; Alcuin (Ep. 90 ad. Lutgd. and De Bapt. Cucrem. ad Oduin. Oppsc. 4); Smarngdus (Coll. in Epist. in Stabb. Pontec. u. s. 321). From Aquilela we have the testimony of MnxenBapt (Collect. Dicta npp. Epist. de Signif. Rit. Bapt. §8); from Metz, of Amalarins the chorepiscopus ( $d e$ Eocl. Off. i. 27); from Treves of Amaiarius the Amaiarius the archblshop (de Sucr. Bapt. u. s. 897) ; from Mentz, of Rabanus Maurus (de Instit. Cler. i. 28); from Rome, of John the deacod (Epist. ad. Senar. 6, u. s.).
dulph, wastion, ns we have learnt from TheoSuaph, was on the head. So other nuthorities; Sacram. Gelas, in Murat. i. 570 , "on the brain;" Greg. ii. 65; Codex Elig. Greg. in Opp. Gr. iii. 73, ed. Bea., and Cod. Vatic. Rocca Opp. Gr. v. 111, ed. 1615, "on the crown;" a Gregorian Order for the Sick, Mur. ii. 264, Assem. ii. 10 ; the Milanese Office, "the crown" (Ass. ii. 47), The Besancoon Sacramentary (ibid, 42) is peculiar in having "in frontes ejus." This unctlon was with the thumbs. See the Ordo Ambros. Assem. u. s. 47; Sucram. Gellon. ibid. 54; Remig. 59; Codex Elig. Greg. u. s. ; Cud. Vat, u. s. ; &s.
(3) Oil of Chrism ( $\mu \dot{\prime} \rho o v$ ) used at Confirmation. from unction, generally on the forehead, distinct from the naction of the hend which imme. in the chuwed baptism, came to be practised carlier church. This is not mentioned by the carlier lantin writers who speak of the imposition of hands. viii. ; Cyprian, See Tertullian, de Baptismo, council of Carthage, A. 72 ad Steph. and the that of Elvira, Carthage, A.D. 256; cc. 5, 24 ; inferred of Elso from, about 300, can. 38 (to be Bapt. in App. ad Operg Cppr 23 De Haeret. The date of P seudo-lnnocent Cypr . 23, ed. 1690. as we certaiseudo-Innocent is not known, but the 5th cently hear of the rite in Italy in here. His statement may give his testimeny not to sign the forchead of presbyters ought the oil of chrism, "for the baptized with bishops only, whe "for that is the privilege of (Epist. Ina. i. § 3). Cnssiodere Holy Ghost" forehend has been Cnssiodorus, 514; "Our of the sacred been anointed with the unction v. 2, E.V.). Fortunatus (Comm. in Ps. cxxxviii. Gailican writer who ituatus, 560 , is the first to the rite in France; but we marary witness a passage in the rance; but we may infer from received in the remnins of St. Patrick, who received Gallican consecration and was closely practid with the church in Gaul, that it was practised there in the middle of the 5th century. Some of his Irish neophytes were murdered by robes, iavaders, "while still in their white robes, the day after they had been anointed with chrism, and while it was yet visible on their forehends" (Epistle to Curoticus, Olden's tr. 93). The froatal chrismntion at confirmation is mentioned by Fortunatus in a hymn (Opera, i. ii. 9). Gregory of Tours, 573, says that Chlodovaeus was baptized (in 496), and "aneinted with the sacred chrism, with the sign of the cross of Christ" (Hist. Franc. li. 31). In the 6th century the rite was probably universal in the West. The gift of the Holy Ghost is also connected with the imposition of hands and unction of chrism by Ildefonso of Toledo, 657 (De Cogn. Bapt. i. 128-131). Later witnesses towards the close of our period nad beyond it are Theodulf (de Ord. Bapt. 17) : J.eidrad (de Bapt. 7); Jesse (de Bapt. c. De Conf. Epise.) ; Amalarius of Metz (do Eccl. Off. i. 27); Rabanus Maurus (do Instit. Cler. 1. 30).

UNCTION

Id France the general adoption of this practice met with a check from the council of Orange in 441 : " Jnter nos placuit вemel chirismari." ${ }^{\text {c }}$ If the chrisin had been from any necessary cause omitted at baptiam, the bishop was to be laformed that be might supply the omiseion "Nam iatcr quoslibet (al. nos) chrismatis lpsius noa nisi una benedictio est; ned ut praejudicans quicquam (al. dico), sed ut non necossaria habeatur repetita chrismatio" (can. 2). This decree was adopted hy the council of Arles in 452 (can. 127). The testimonics of Fortunatus of Poitiers and Gregory of 'Tours shew that the rule of Orange did not prevail over France. That it obtnined largely and survived to the time of Charlemagne may be inferred from the silence of certain authorg, who speak only of the imposition of hands in their description of confirmation. Thus A1cuin, after an account of the rites of baptism : "Novissime per impositionem manus a summo sacerdote septiformis gratiae Spiritum accipit" (Epist. 90 ; sim. De Bupt. Cuterem. ad Oduin.). So Magnus of Sens, uaing here the same words as Alcuin, but ndding much of his own (Martene, de Ant. Eecl. Rit. i. 17), and an anonymous copier of Alcuin (ibid.).

We see from several of the foregoing authorities that the forehead was anointed at confirmation. This was done both in the East and West, but in the East other parts are anointed also; as the eyes, nostrils. ears, breast, hands, and feet among the Greeks (Goar, Euchol. 355, 6). or, as in some MSS., the eyes, nostrils, and ears oniy (359, 360); one omits the feet only (362); another omits the hands and feet, but prescribes an unction of the back (368). Cyril of Jerusalem mentions the forehead, ears, nostrils, and breast (Catech. Myst. iii. 3). The Copts and Abyssinians anoint the forehead, eyes, mouth, ears, hand, breast, knees, feet (the soles), back, arms, and shoulders (Assem. iii. 83 ;-compare a purely Abyssiuian order, 111); the Armenians the forehead, ears, eyes, nostrils, mouth, hands (tugether), brenst, shoulder, feet, shoulderblades, saying a proper sentence over each (ibid. 119 ; see Vartanes, Rcsp. 2 in Mai, Script. Vet. Nov. Cull. x. ii. 271 ). Most of the SyroJacobite orders prescribe an unction of the whole body in hoth sexes, but they all begin with the forehead ( $154,160,163,169,175$, 184); one (148) mentions the forebead and ## c A couplet from an inacription to the memory of a biahop naned Mareas found in a church in Rome (Gruter, Corpus Inscrip. 1176) hat been quoted in the same sense:-  "Tuque sacerdotes dncuistil chrismate sancto Tangere bis nullum judice posse Deo."

It is, however, difficult to believe that an onsuccessful attempt to introdice the Galican restriction inio the siburbicarian dioceses would have been rpcorded with approlation: In Rome ifself; and an the contrxt spask of confict with miabelievers, we rather understand that Mareas malntsined the Roman rulo not to give unction to herciles who Joined the chusch. See Murinus, de Sucram. Poenit. Ix, 10.
whdpipe only. The Maronite bishop anoints the forehead, the priest the head onij (187). The Melchites, the forehesd, ears, hanils, feet, breast, sheulders, nostrils, palms, knees, legs, back (227). The apostoiic imposition of hauds is lost in every Syrlan order. On the other hand the Nestorian books do net prescribe the unction at all (ibid. 138; Badger, Nestorians, ii. 209) ; from which we iofer that this unction was not universal when they left the church in 451. When this rite found its way into the West the frontal unction only was adopted, probably because none other was then practised, nt least over the greater part of the East. See Sacram. Gelas. Murat. Liturg. Rom. Vet. 1. 571 ; Sacram. Gregor. Codd. Elig. In Opp. Greg. iii. 74, ed. Ben., Cod. Vat. u. s. 112; Pontif. Egbert; Surtees Soc. no. 27, p. 7 ; &c.
The Ronians used the thumb in this naction (Sacram. Greg. Codd. Elig. Vat, u.s.), as they and the United Maronites (Assem. iii. 187) do now. In theory the minister of this rite wiss the bishop. In the West it is expressly confined to him by the author of the Epistle to Decentivs ( Epp. Jnnoc. 1. i. 3), Gregory I. (Ep. iii. 9), the Council of Seville 819 (cad. 7), Ildefunse of Toledo 657 (De Cognit. Dapt. i. 131); Theodere of Canterbury (Pvenitentiale, iii. 8, in Stubbs and Haddan's Councils, iii. 193), Theodulf of Or'euna (do Ord. Bapt. 17), &c., ; and recognised as his proper office by all, as e.g. Cornelius, A.D. 251 (Euseb. Hist. Ecel. vi. 43), St. Jerome (c. Luuif.4), Isidore of Seville (De Eccl. Off. ii. 26), Jesse of Amiens (u. s.), &c. See also the Sacramentarics.
Nevertheless some liberty was allowed even st Rome. In Sardinia it had been the custont for priests to anoint the head after baptism. Gregory 1. iorbade this, but afterwards, in 593, modified his prohibition which hnd given offence: "We acted indeed according to the old custom of the church, but if any are really distressed about this matter, where bishops are wanting, we permit presbyters also duly to touch the baptized on their forehends with the chrism" (Epist. iii. 26). In Spain the council of Teledo, so early as 400, had allowed the preshyter te do this in the bishop's absence; and even beforehim, if he commanded it (can. 20). The latter liberty is alao given by a canon in the collection of Martin of Braga, A.d. 569 (c. 52). In Fraace, as we have seen nbove, the unction by the bishop was from the 5th century to the 9 th cossidered a needless repetition of that by the priest immedintely nfter baptism. Pseudo-Bseds (in Psalmo 26 v .1 , Comment.) asserts that the onctien "quae per manuum impositionem ab episcopis" is the same with that last meationed, adding "propter arrogantiam tamen noa coscessa est singulis sacerdotibus sicut et muita alia" (Baed. Opp. viii. 558, ed. 1563). That one of the chrismations was origionlity regarded as a substitute for the other, or otherwise connected with it, may also be inferred from the tradition that Sylvester, A.D. 314, permitted priests to use the chrism after baptism, lest the persen ahould die without any chrismstion (Anastas. Biblioth. Vit. Punt. 34).
In the East, also, the bishop was considered the proper minister of this unctinn (ses Dioays. Hier. Eccl. iv. 10; Maximus, Scholia in H.E. ii. 78) ; but there the liberty which Gregory I. permitted in a special case was extended to all priests. Hilar Eyist. ad Eph, Egyptians presb net jresent" (e et Nov. Test. 10 In the Apostolic than the bishe] $\mu u \rho^{\prime}{ }^{\prime}$ " after b century Photius give the unction baptize (Epist. Philadelphia, wh the privilege of 1 Church consider: only, but to prenl of baptism " (in The bishop is, $h$ minister of the the priest applies [Chaism]. To ti Domasus, Epist. 6 8 ; Gelasius, 494 , Hispal. 619, cap. Cuac. Wormat. 86 Information ress which we have tri in them, may be sad many others. Rit. ii. 42, Mediol Ritit. i., Med. 1618 ; eect. de is penes $q$ gendi, in his Advers Luc. Holsten. Disse Sacram. Comfirm. priated in Morini Jo. Dallacus, do $D$ firm., \&c., Gener. Sacram. Confirm. 1750, a reply to $D$ rE,lise, ii. Rem. : J. A. Orsi, de Bapt Mediol. 1773, the la
(4) Unction of bsptism was consio gronnds, were bapti admission Into the onanimonaly by the 256 , in the case of afterwards allowed tism, Iteration of,
There were some was admitted, but The Novatians "did chrism on those who ucoant," says Theo wteemed fathers gav Who are joined to the (Hacr. Fabul. iil. 5). Those whose bapti monsidered valid were
Who had received tho Who had received tho fore they lapsed into had received them fro i. The fermer wer (Hzrezs, 4, i. p. 76 dmitted with the alm the absolution of othe 95s, ce. 4 and 22). Owint. ; Ep. 74, ad Po tho bad been rebaptiz rodmitted as peniteni Niout. e. 6 , ed. Baller cerriet. ANT.-vol

UNCTION

prieats. Hilary the Deacon, 351 (Comm. in Epist. ad E'ph. iv. 11), tells us that "among the Egyptians presbyters give tho senl if a bishop be et present (comp, MS, Colbert, ef. Quaest. Vet. In the Apostolical, probably by the same writer). than the bishop is commanded to "seal less $\mu$ vopo" after baptizing (vii. 22). In the 9th centary Photius affirms the right of pulests to give the unction of confirmation as freely as to baptize (Epist. Encyel. 1. 13, §7). Gabriel of the privilege of bish sware that this was at first Church consideratelys, sags that "the Eastern ooly, but to pressbyters also after the sacred rite of baptism" (in Assem. Cod. Liturg. iii. Ixxxi.). The bishop is, however, in every case the real minister of the rite, because the chrism which the priest applies has been consecrated by him [ChRism]. To the authorities there given add ${ }_{8 ;}$ Damasus, Epist. 5 ; Conc. Vasense, a.d. 442, can. ${ }^{8}$; Gelasius, 494, Ep. ad Episc. Lucan. 4 ; Coac. Cispal. 619, cap. 7; Synod. Regiat. 850, can. 7 ; Cuac. Wormat. 868, can. 2.
Information respecting the several uactions of Which we have treated above, and the oils used In them, may be found in the foilowing books and many others. Jos. Vicccomes, de Ant. Bapt. Rit. i., 42, Mediol. 1615; idem, de Ant. Confirm. seet. de iis penes quos recens tinctos, $j$ Brevis Disgendi, in his Adecrsaria, iii. 7, I.ugd. Bat. 1688; Lnc. Holsten. Dissert. Ditplex de Forma et Materia Sacram. Comfirm. apud Ǵraecos, Kom. 1666, repriated in Moriai Opera Posthuma, Par. 1703 ; Jo. Dsllaeus, de Drob. Latinorum Sucram. Confirm., &c., Genev. 1659 ; J. A. Assemanus, de Sacram. Confirm. in Codex Liturg. iii., Rom. 1750, s reply to Daille; Cl. De Vert, Cérén. de PÉllise, ii. Rem. sur Ch. ii. 32-34, Par. 1708 ; J. A. Orsi, de Buptismo et de Chrism. Confirm. Mediol. 1773, the latter an answer to De Vert.
(4) Uution of Heretics. - Heretics whose baptism was considered invalid, on whatever gronads, were bsptized and confirmed on their admission into the church. This was ruled onsaimonaly by the council of Carthage, A.D. 256, in the case of hereties whose baptism was afterwards allowed by the chureh. See Baptism, Iteration of, p. 172.
There were some, however, whose baptism Fas sdmitted, but who were not confirmed. Ths Novntians "did not confer the most holy chriem on those whom they baptized chriam on those whom they baptized ; on which accoant, says Theodoret, "the most bighly oteemed fathers gave command to anoint those whe are joined to the chirch Who are joined to the chirch from this heresy" (Haer. Fabul. iii. 5). (Haer. Fabul. iii. 5).
Those whose baptism and confirmation were who had received were of two classes; $i$. those Who had received those rites in the church, bebed received them from heresy and ii. those who and received them from heretics.

1. The former were regarded as penitents (Mrresy, 4, i. p. 768 ; Prinitence), and readmitted with the slmple laying of hands, as in the abolution of other penitents (Conc. Carth. 258, ce, 4 and 22). So Cyprisn (Lipist. 71, ad Ouint. ; Ep. 74, ad Pomp. in fine). Even those tha had been rebaptized by heretics were thus Mdmitted as penitents (Leo. I. Epist. 159, ad Troth. c. 6, ed. Ballerin. Comp. Iunocent I. CHBIST. ANT.-VOL II.
A.D. $402, ~ E p . ~$ Ep. il. & 3).
at Alex. 83 ; Vlgillua, $538, ~$ il to those conent language was held with regnard heretics only. The had beea baptized by gustine, supposing these from the time of St. Auright form had been emat the proper matter and first with imposition of the hand simply at Stephen in Cypriaa Epist, 74 ; De Bept. Haeret. in App. ad Opp. Cypr.; Euseb. Hist. Eccl. vii. 2; Leo M. Epp. 166 ad Ncon. 2, Ep. 167 ad Rust. Resp. 18), nfterwards with' imposition and unction. The enrliest change is the courcil of Liest witness to the place so enrly couccil of Laodicea, which some This council directs others so late as 372 nians, and Ousirects that Novatians, Photi"having Quartodecimans joining the ehurch, faithing learat thoroughly the symbols of the shall thus comanuniced with the holy chrism, (ean. 7). So St. Basil directs the misitery" Encratites, Aquarii, and Auotactites to be nnointed by the faithful and oo approseh the mysteries" (Ep. ad Amphil. can. 1). Y'seudoJustin: "Let the fall of the heretic who comes to the orthodox filith be remedied, as to his heterodoxy by a change of miad, so to his baptism by the unction of the holy $\mu$ úpov, as to his ordination by the imposition of hands " (Queest. et Resp. ad Orthod. J. 14). The council of Constaatinople, 381, decreed that Eunomians, Montanists, and Sabellians should after a long catechumenate be rebaptized, because It regarded their baptisms as defective in form ; but it only required that Arians, Macedonians, SabbaApollinarians other Novatians, Quartodecimans and with the hols should be "first sealed or anointed and nostrils pupov, on the forehead and eyes, The council add mouth sad earg" (can. 7). say, The seal of the and while sealing them we thus making it an act of confirmation. Cono verts from these fire sects are meationed as reguiring the unction only by Timotheus C. P. (Epist. de Recept. Haeret. in Coteler. Eccles. Graec. Monum. iii. 392-396), and Theodorus Studita (Epist. ad Naucrat. i, 40). The council in Trullo, A.D. 691, reaffirmed the decree of 381 , only adding the Pauliani to the nutaber of those Who were to be rebaptized (can. 95). See also the Arsbic Nicene canon in the article on Herfary, 4, ii. (p. 768), and the Eastern form of sdmission (ibid. jv. p. 769).
It is probable that this onction was never introduced at Rome; for we find Gregory L saying in 600, "the West restores Arians by the laying on of the hand, but the East by the anction of the holy chrism, on their entranee into the holy Catholic church." Some, he tells us, as the Monophysites, were received on a pro fession of faith only (Epist. ix. 61). In Gaul, however, this rite had slieady been observed for more than a century and a half. For the council of Orange in 441 says, "It is decreed that beretics in danger of death and desiring to become Catholics be senjed by the presbyters with if trim and benediction (i,e, imposition of hands), if the bishop be not present" (ead. 1). The council of Arles, 452, ordered Photinisna or Panlianists to be baptized "secundum patram (Conc. Nic. 19, &c.) statuta"; but Boaposiani (a subdivision of the same sect), because they baptized in the name of the Trinity, were to be received lnto the church "with chrism and imposition of the haad" (cann. 16, 17). Faustus of Rhegium, 475 (Dc Grat. Dei et Lib. Arb 1. 15), taught that one thus baptized was to be " juiged to be so washed by the operation of grace, that he need only to be clothed wlth the benedictlon of the chrism." The author De EC" clesiasticis Dojmaticis ( 22 al. 52), supposed to be Gennallus of Marselless 495, says that all who have beea bajitized in due form and matter by heretics should, if able to answer for themselves, "being alrendy purged by the soandneas of their falth, be confirmed by imposition of the hand;" but that those who canuot enswer for themselvee should be prebented by aponsors no at baptiam, "and so being fortified by imposition of the hand and the chrism, he minaltted to the mysteries of the Euchnrist." The Callican council of Epaone, A.D. 517: "We require the presbytere for the safety of souls, which we desire In all, to assist wlth the chrism heretics who are given over and confined to bed, if they seek a sudulen conversion. Which let nll desiring to tura know that they muat, if in health, seek from the bishop " (can. 16). Examples of such chrlsmntion in France are found in Gregory of Tours (Hist. Franc. 31.31 ; 34 ; iv. 27, 28). The anme discipline prevailed in Spaln. "Herctics," anys lsillore, " if they are proved to have recelved baptism in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Qhost, nee aot to be baptized a second time, but are to. be purged by chriam only and imposition of the hand" (De Eccl. -Off. ii. 24). The council of Seville in 619 says rthat it is not lawful for presbyters to sign the forchead of the baptized with chrism (can. 7). For instances of the practice see Greg. Tur. Hist. Franc. v. 39 ; ix. 15 ; and Reccared at the council of Toledo, 589 (Conc. Hsard. iii. 471 ). In the 9 th century we hear of the same rule from Whilafrid Strabo (de Reb. Eccl, 26).

2004

UNCTION

UNCTION

(5) Unction of the Sick.-The Apostles anointed many for whose recorery they prayed (St. Mark vi. 13), and St. James (v. 14, 15) recommends the same practice to "the elders of the church." It was followed by very many, both laymen and women, in every part of the church. E.g. a female aaint, Eugenia, is suld to have healed a sick woman by anointing her with oil (Vita, 11, in Rosweyd, 343). We need not stop to prove thie at length; as it will be conceder that they who could do the grenter, viz. bless the oil (of Which eee many instances in OIL, Uses or (3), p. 1455 , could certainly do the less, viz. apply it when blessed. The oil bleased ly St. Monegund on her denth-bed was necessarily used by othere. It is more important to shew that this liberty remained, when the oil was no longer blessed by laymen and women. Thus Pseudo-jnnocent ( $p$ p. ad "ccent. § 8): "Being mado by the bishop it is lawful, not for priests ouly, but for all Christians to use it in nnointing in their own need, or that of their' friends." Caesarius of Arlee, 502 : "Let him who is sick receive the body and blood of Christ, and then let him anoint his body" (Serm. 66, § 3). In an epidemic he recommends a person to "azoint both himself and family with blessed oil " (Sirm. 89, §5). St. Eligius, 640: " Let him fnithfull'y seek the blessed oil from the church, wherewith , oanoint his body in the name of Christ" (De.

Rect. Cathol. Convers. 5). This llberty in raceg nised in an old jontifical of Ronon, in whlech the blahop is anid to "bless the oll for the vick and for the people" (Note 282 In Iib. Sacrion. Gregor, Menard). Notices of the rite In the 8th and 9 th centuries sometimes leave it uncertain whethor the priest anoints the slek hlinself, though the unctlon and communion are hoth mentloned. E./. Theodulf of Orleans, 794: "When the sick man" shall have been anolnted, with prayers, \&c., then let the priest give him the peace and communlcate him ${ }^{\text {. (Copitulare il. }}$ in Baluz.; Miscell. Ii. 104, ed. Mansi). With this comprare Conc. Aquisgr. 836 (De Vita Infer. Ord. c. 5) ; Conc. Nogunt. 847, can. 26 ; llerard. Turon. 8.58, cay, 21 ; Jaiac Lingon. 859, Cinonen, 1. 23; Capit. Req. Franc, vi. 75 ; the nrticles of visitation ( n .18 ) preserved by Reglno ( $D e$ Discipl. Ecel. p. 23, ed. Baluz.) ; " jede" cited Whid. i. 119 ; \&c. Not tlll the midulle of the 9 th century, if f mistake not, do we meet with any express injunction to the priest to pertorm the unction himself. Then Hincmar, 852 , ssys to his elergy, "Let him himself both anoint them with the sacred oil and communicate them" (Capit. 5, Labb. Conc. viil. 578). Riculfus of Soissons, 889 : "It is the duty of presbyters to anoint their sick with holy oil " (c. 10 , ind. Is. 419). So Leo iv. 847 (Le Cura Pastorali, ib. vili. 84), snd Ratherius of Verona atter him, 928 (Synodica, ib. ix. 1271 ): "Oleo suncto inangite et propria manu communicate"), and the three Admonitiones Synodales printed by Baluze in App. to Regino (De Discipl. Ecclcs. 603, 608, 612).

The restraint of the unction to the priest had momentous consequences. The original inteation of it in relation to the healing of the body was practically forgotten, and the rite came to be regarded as part of a Christian's immediate preparation for death. Hence, in the 12th century, it acquired the name of the last unction, " unctio extrema," (Peter Lomb. Sentent. iv. 23) i.e, as the Catechisin of Trent asserts (P. 2, De Ext. Uuct. 3), the last of those which s man received from the church. In the 13th it was placed by schoolmen among the seven rites to which they then limited the application of the term "sncrament" (Thomas Aquin. Summa, snppl, ad P. iii. qu. 29). See Martene, de Ant. Eccl. Rit. I. vii. 1, §2; Notitia Eucharistica, 1011, 2nd ed.

The order in which the sick were anointed and commmicated was changed more than once. The earliest extant notices (Conc. Turon. in Regina, i. 116; Chesarius. u.s. ; Eligius, u. s.; &c.) put the communion before the unction. This is what we might expect ; for when recovery from sickness was the object of the unction, the sufferer would naturnlls prepare for it by communicating. On the other hand, when they had recourse to it only at the supposed approach of death, it wai put at first before the communion, becsuse that had always been regarded as the proper viaticom, the last preparation for departure. This was the common order in the 9 th and 10 th centuries, as we learn from "Bede" in Regiao, Leo, Hincmar, &c. already quoted, and from nearly every O'do Ungendi in Martege, de Ant. Rit. Eccl. I. vii. 4. See algo the first Admonitio Synodalis cited above. At length, however, extrema unctio was supposed to mean unctio in extremis, and men re new motjue last rite of this ; but Allustration, and commur nitio Synok inverted wi rearling is," sacro inunga orido given Is an Amicns 4 ord. 27 ). of England. life of St. Hi pore Dominic oleo" ( I itia,
It has been for more than rite; but the or Orientals 9 th century. utriusque Ece Concord. Eech. however, exan E.g. St. Cloti lum inuacta § 19, Boll. Jun unction of St. Boll. Ang. 25) In ${ }^{\circ} 850$ the sy presbyter of $t$ neighbouring can. 8) ; and $t$ some of the an "unus ex sac "acerdotes").
The Greeke three crosses wi out of the an and drese and (Theodulf, u.s.). us this elso int Was to anoint $t$ the back of the neck, shoulder -b (ib.). The same English pontifical Mart. u.s. Oril. Troyes, 850 (Ord throat, the latter with the oil oa e
We need hard tent could not be had been "recon body and blood o. 8).

On Maundy Th were provided be ings of oil for $t$ people, who probal of it, took much o had been blessed. about 730, says," lua offert" (S 30, sian Sacramentary lum" (Liturg. Rom Gregrrian: "Ampe (ibid, ii, 55).
On some points we are at a dioadv Tatholic enthors, aliberty In recog. noo, in which the I for the wick and in lib. Saerim. he rite in the 8th onve it uncertain the sick himself, munion are buth f Orlenna, 794: ve been anointeil, 1 prient give hima ${ }^{5}$. (Ctopitulure ii. , Mnnsi). With 16 (De Vita Infer. can. 26 ; Heranl. gon. 859, Cutumen, 75 ; the articles 1 by Regino (De ); "Jiede" cited middle of the 9 th re meet with ray riest to jerform nemar, 80.2 , s8ys self both anoint nmuniente them" 78). Riculfus of of presbyters to " (c. 10, ibiul. ix. ura Pastorali, ib. erena after him, Olee snacto inus. dicate "), and the rinted by Baluze Eccles. 603, 608, to the priest had e original intenling of the boly the rite came to stian'a immediate In the 12th centhe last uaction, 1. Sentent. iv. 23) asserts (P. 2, De se which a mas the 13th it "As he seven rites to pplication of the Aquin. Summa, Martene, do Ant. titia Eucharistia,

Is were anointed

 I more than once. Turon in Regino, u, s. ; &c.) put theThis is what sovery from sicktion, the sufferer y communicating, and recourse to it of death, it whs ion, becsuse that he proper vaitrdeparture. This th and 10 th cen" in Regino, Leo, and from nearly ne, de Ant. Rit. Admonitio Syno nowever, extrens netio in extrenuis,

UNCTION

and men returnell to the original arder from a

 late rite of the dy unction is atill notorionsly the this ; but we wiug, we needi give no proof of illustration, that mention, as in interesting and communion the chases ordering unction nitio Synoxdtis (uthe irst furm of the AdmoInvertei with realing la, "Propria manu this change. Their aacro inangat " (Regino, 600, 112 ) orito given by Martene whieh fil The earliest Io an Amiens Pontificni not 600 yenrs old (l. vii. 4 oril. 27). It whs never adepted in the church of Eugland. An enrly exanple occurs in the life of st. Hilldegund of the 12th eentury, "Coroleo" (litut, v. 30 : Buthe sancto eam inungi fecit It has been conman beth. Apr. 20). for more than one priest to the fenst and $W_{\text {est }}$ rite; but there is no evidience tresent at this or Orientals observed and the Greeke Oth century. See Leo All custom before the utriuspue Ecclesiue, Lii. $16, \$ 15$, Il Consensu Concord. Eecl. Oce, et Or. iv, 3). Areudins, de howerer, examples oce or five 3). In the West, E.g. St. Clotilitin, 554, wae "secundrly period. lum inuactn sncerdotibas " (Actandum Apposto- unction of St. Hunegund, A.D. 690 ( Boll. Aug. 25). Theodulf $\begin{aligned} & \text { requirea } \\ & \text { three } \\ & \text { ( }\end{aligned}$ In 850 the synod of Ticine ordered that "the presbyter of the place . . should invite the neighbouring preshytere alio " (Syn. Regintic.
cmn. 8) cno. 8) ; and traces of the custom are found in some of the ancient offices (Mart. u.s. Ord. 1:3, ancerdotea"). The Greeks three crosses with the 8 th century made only out of the ampulla crosswise they "poured and dress and whole body of tha the head (Theedulf, tas.). The French bishe sick man " us this also intorms us that the Lap who tells was to anoint the eyebrow, eare, nostrins, lipa, the back of the hands, the feet, throat, breast, neck, shoulder-blades, navel, or the geat of pain, (ib.). The anne details are given in an old Engliah pontificat of abont 4.D 800 (MIS. Gemmet. Mart. u.s. Ori. 1), and in that of Prudentius of Troyes, 850 (Ord. 3); ooly the furner omits the thront, the latter the brenst. A crosa waa made with the oil on erery pirt.
We Deed hardly mention that a public penilent could not be anointed in tent could not be anoidted in aickneabs untio he he had been " reconciled by the communion of boly and blood of Christ" (Communion of the 8).

On Muundy Thursday, while the other oils were provided beforehand by the clergy, offerpenple, who probably, as we were brought from their use of it, took much of it home with them after it had been bleased. The enrliest Ordo Romanua, ${ }^{\text {about } 730, \text { says, " "Benedicitur oleum quod pepus, }}$ lus offert " (S 30, Mus. Itd. ii. 20). The Gelasina Ser simn Sacramentary has "Benedictio olecind Gela-lunn" (Liturg. Rom. Vet. Mornt. i. sis).
 (ibuitii, ii, 55). Ampull:c quas uferunt populi"
On some points connected with this subject We are at a diasdrantage in connuulting Romanan
Atholic anthora, as they draw no clear line

UNCTION

2005
between the primitive use of oll with prayer and the medieral prieatly rite ; but we may e. 7 In severnl editione, De Aint. Ecel. Rit. Ilb. I. Unctionis sernl editions; Jo. Laumoiua, de ©scram. bellius, Tract innors, l'ar. ${ }^{1673}$; J. C. Trom1770; and on the Stcram. Extr. Unct. Boan. Extromus, st vocant, Unclione, Gencr, Dailacue, de (6) For the Uuction of King Genev. 1659
p. 466 ; for the Unetion in Ordinationonation, nation, p. 1512 ff .
$11 . \mathrm{p} .1512 \mathrm{f}$.
perhaps aboat 520 , Tuivos.- Pseudo-Dionysius, consecrated by the affusion us that altars were iv. iii. 12). An aftusion of $\mu$ ópon (Ilier. Ewr. century says of Armenian Catholicus of the 8th century says of the chrism, "The prieat ought anoint altars, temples and charps, and with it can. 9; Mai, Nura Coll. Seript, x. ii, 30t). (Joannis Coptic priest signs the sewi, x. ii, 304). The sroos, and the binck corw paten, chalico, and altar itself with chrism when he well as the them. Sce the Benediction when he consecrates Or ent. i. $5+, 55$. In the Sysin Renaud. Litu"y. consecrated by a bishop syrian rite an altar is slab by anointing it with only, who "slgns the dips his thumb, draw with chrism in which he which te had befrawing it over the aame lines cross, and that ho described in the form of a while versiclea from the pace, reciting meanresponsorles." After paima, hymins, nad alt:rr set before After which he says, "This and sealed in the Name" been signed, anointed, practice has descended," \&c. (ibid. ii. 57). The whese office directanied to the modern Greel:a, of $n$ church. to pour $\mu 6$ poop on the dedication cross it thrice with the at the crosses to anoint the, and then beginning The pillara and sides of the whole upper surface. crossed with chrism the altar are then thrice with it on every column and pilaster in the church (Gonr. Euch. 837-8). The pilaster in the also used at the consecration of Antinersis before as well as after being mixed with relics and ceromastio (ibid. 648). We hear of the same uae of oil in the West from the iatter pnit of the 5th century hawuward, if indeed the ascribed on the 4th Sunday after Pentecost ascribed to Eusebius Eialssenns be reaily written by Faustus of Rhegium, who is said to have "Bsumed that naine, A.D. 472; for there we read, "By oil a church is haliowed" (Hom. Euseb. E. 15l; Par. 1554). The council of Agde, 508 , nays, "It is decreed that altars be hallowed not only by the unction of chrism gacerdotal (i.e. episcopal) chrism, but nlso by a The council of episcopnI) beaediction " (can. 14). pidea chrismatis ungulae 17 : "Altaria nisj la26). Yet the inguine non sucrentur" (can. only orders a eprinkling missnl, of ahout 560 , mixed (Liz. Rom. Vet. Murat wine nnd water, casen of Epaone was adopted by Egbert of York, A.d. 732-766 (can. 51 ; Hard. Cono. iii. 1966), The rite is not, however, mentioved by the conncil of Cenlchythe, 816, when it prescribes the mode of dedicating a church. In Spain, scopum of Serille, about 630, snys, "Ad episcopum pertinet basilicarmm consecratio, unctio It was thought to be dons in (Ad Leudef. § 10). nltar in ingitation of done in the case of the xxxv. 14). The council of Aix lan chxiii. 18, xxxy. 14). The council of Aix la Chapelle, in E'3U, after citing hia action, any, "The Chrlstian religion. takiug example from the ancient twalition of the fatherw, . . . erects nltars, and prors of on them, and awointe then with the most huly chriam, and from the acte and vows of the aforemadid Jacob sing a meloly to Chrint" (lib. Bit. eap. 23). Compare Rabayna Maurua de' Instit. Cleric. ${ }^{2} .45$, and Wilaft. Stralo, de ficb. licch. 9. This notion is preserved in the oll linglish pontiticala. See lienigiua of Auxerre (de Dedic. Bicrles. 8) on the queation, "Quid signtetur In varla Unitione Altarls?" Aiter the unction of the altar, the brahupgoing round the church nigns the walls with chrixm, using his thumb ( $P^{\prime}$ ontif., Figberti Ebor. In Martene, do Aut. Eecl. Rit. i1. 13, Ord. 2). (omp. the Euglish pontilical proserved at Jumiéges (ibid. Ord. 3), that of Dunstan (Ord. 4), mul the (Ballican I'ontificals of Rheims, Noyon (Oridd, 5, t), \&o. Egisert gives a furm for consecratiog a paten and chalice with unction (Mart. u. w., but at length in the Surtees Society's edition, p. 47. Comp. Mart. Ordd. 1, 3, 4, \&c.). The bleasing of the chaliea fillows, and here Dunstan only of those whom wa have cited ordera it to be anolatel. Dells wers also ansinted with chrisw when bleased (Surt. Soc. 118 ; Mart. U.s. Ord. 3).

USURY

[W. E.S.]

UNIVERSITIES. [Scחools.]

UNLFAVLENED BREAD. [ELements.]

URBANUS (1), Jan. 24, one of three chlldren martyred with Babylas at Antioch under Decius (M.rit. Usuard. ; Mart. Rum.).
(2) Apr. 16. [SAragossa, Martyre of.]
(3) May 25 , pope, martyr, commemorated at Kome on the Via Numentina, in the cemetery of Practextatus (Mart. Ihed., Usuard, Adon., Hieron., Fet. Rom., Ron., Wand.; Boll. Acta SS. Mai. vi. 11), conmemorated on this day la the Gregorian Sacramentary, which mentions him in the collect.
(4) July 2, martyr, one of the companions of Aristo in Campania (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Rum.).
(5) Sept. S, martyr with Theodorus, Medimnus, and eighty priesta and deacons under Valcos (Menol. Graec. Sirlet.; Mart. Ron.).
(6) Oct. 31, commemorated with Stachys and Auplias, disciples of the npostles (Basil. Ifenol; Dlenol. Gr. ; IIFart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
URCEOLA -US. A pitcher for containing water for ritual uas in the Eucharistie service, whether for washing the ministrants' hands, or for cleanaing the vessela. In the ordination of acolythes the delivery of as "urceolus" formed psst of the ceremonisl: "sccipient urceulum in quo datur eis potestas infundendi aquarm in calicemn dominicum" (Steph. Eduens. lib. do Sucr. Altaris). In Lanfrabce Epistles we find "vaa superiua unde lavandis manibus aqua intunditur" (Cantuar. Ep. 13).
[E. V.]
URGEL, COUNCIL OF (UraEllense Conciliom, 4.D. 799, where Felix, bishep of that see, was condemned by the French bishoya aent oy Charlemagne to alt in judgureut on him Manel, xili. 1033).
[E. S. Ff.]
URSACIUS, Aug. 15, confessor at Nicaea under Licluiua (Jurt., Usuard, Alon., Vod. Rom.).
[C. H.]
URSICINUS(Unsinos) (1), June If, martyr at Rivenna (Jurt. Unuurd., Aden., Jett. Nom., R'um.).
(2) Nov. 9, blahop of Bourges, coufeswor ( Bhitht. Usuaril., Flur., Adou., Rom.).
[C. II.]
URSICLIS. Ang. 15, tribune of Illyricum, martyr under Maximan (Basil. Menol.); Aug. 14 (Alenob. Gruev. Sirict. ; Mhirt. Rom.).
[C. H.]
URSMARUS, bivhop, eonfensor! cummumorated in the monastery of Lobber, Apr. if (Mart, Usunrd. ; Mart. Rom.) ; Ajr. 18 (lbull. Acta Ss Apr. ii. $\mathbf{5} \mathrm{B} 7$ ).
[C. 11.]
UIISUliA, Oct. 21, martyr with eleven thounand virgins at Culugne (didurt. Rom.); the virgins without Urxula in some MisS. of Bede and In Waudallert.
[C. II.]
URSUS, Sept. 30, commemorated at Solothurn or Soleure with Vietor, martyre of tha Thebau legion (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Rom.).
[C. II.]
USTAZADER, Apr. 21, martyr in l'ersia (Mart. Unuard., Adon., Vot. Rom., Jlom.).
[C. II.]
USURY. In the early church, the nustere moraity Inculeated by ita teachers and the cumparative seclasion of its members from inter. course with the world and jarticlpation in the more equivocal methots of acguiring wealth, combined to cause the calling of the usurer, and eveo the cocasional lending of money for purpases of gain (whether to fellow Christians or to stranger*), alike to ba regarded as unhwful. Such procedure, whether systematic or exceptional, was accordingly allogether condenaed; 1/assages anch us Exod. xxil. 24; Levit. xxv. 36, 37 ; Heut. xxili. 20,21 ; Neh. $\mathrm{v} .7,10,11$; 1s. xir. 4, 5; liv. 12 ; St. Lake, vi. 34, 35 ; \&s., Leing regarded ns decisjve of the scriptural teaching on the aubject. This view continued, for the most part, to prevall long after the 8 th century. The schoolmen ununimeusly raised their voice against usury in any form (lionaventurn, ad Sent, iv. xv. 2, art. 2, quaest. 1, 4; Aquinas, Summa, II. II. 78, art. 1). The passage in the New Testament (luke xix. 23) which appear to counteunnce the practice was expinined away by Aquinas by supposing that money as referred to in this parable is to be understood only in a metaphorical aud spiritual sense. The Reformers (I.uther, Melanchthon, \&e.) also held that the teaching of the Mossic law left do doubt ae to the obligations of Christians in this matter.
The practice of usury under the Empire offered tuwever peculiar temptations to the clergy, from the fact that it required no previons acquaintance with any craft and but little koowledge of commercial aftiairs. On the other hand, it was lisble to abuse which Involved great moral wrong: the legal rate of interent was fixed st twelve per cent.-" "usura centesima," "-but in the time of [^191]Chryezeturn an much ins रivn vónav, even liy the waly, the tull who his a w by thrishing $H_{1}^{\prime}$. Hon. 588).

A prilonins the lenting other undius teatisery of th drinus (Strom Moanio Iaw) interest to "brother" (Higne, ith, ril (xviii. 8), an 014 'lestamen (nile. Mitroisun. 48) vites the and Jent. $x x$ ado, ivent. Deo of the nsures even though l emount that enable him to mimm" (Higne vi. (8) rlassen that no man sh to anowher wh says, the kindly Is as one who j -"qual yui slterius nec'essit
But while it that in the jrac culicated by the correnumbing of rity, the evidin frequeutly disreg the mecount give Callistus and his pursued the eal Amal. Anto-Sica tise du Lapsis (c. among the "I ofllee, "divina turned thelr atte andering about markets for the s capital by lending uncgotiationis pari . . . 11 sugers" (Migne, It is supposed b *o may infer fro Cybrinin's time ne church on the In appear's, however, that the above bis ecclesiastical contr ion of which we auliject is that of $t$ which directs tha are to he deharred formam divinitus da (Mansi, Conc. ii. 47
[C. 1 .] - $]$ commumopr. 19 ( Mart. bull. Actu S\%
[C. II.]
with eleven liom.) ; the iss, of liele
[C. H.]

tel at Soloo

 irtyrs of the 1., Rom.).[ C : II.] yr in l'ersia Rom.).
[C. 11.] the nustere and the qumfrom interpution in the ring wealth, o usurer, und - for purposes stians or to as unliwful. tic or excepicondenned; evit. xxv. 36, 10, 11 ; P. 34,35 ; \& $\mathrm{c}_{4}$ e seriptural or continued, after the 8 th ously raised m (Bensvesbacst. 1, 4; The passage - 23) which vas explained at money as e understood sense. The c.) alse held left no doubt 1 this matter. mpire offered clergy, from aequaintance edge of comit was liable wrong : the twolve per the time of

18w was re

 ire the councll qunk observes enutd hass had 4. 23; Funk
USURY

Chrymeturn there were many who demandel as muth no fity, Ile drymmes this as kavid

 aye the lho laws of the pazan," nui yet, hu which hat a wife mill evact it froma a por man by thrashing wim or tredin and guts hals livius 588).

Apollomine (Enseh. E. II. r. 18) enumeraten the lending of money at interest as ono amo.ng other unlawful proutione indulged la by the tearliers of the cutryinrygians, "immpas dexandrimes (s'rom, in, 18) say", "the haw" (i.e. the Mosile thw) "fortilis thee to leni moncy at linterest to thy brother;" and he finterprete "brother" ne lucluding os àv opside orer $p$, (sviii. 8), anl saye that the jrubilitition of the Oid Teetament is ratified hy that of the sew (ato, Musim. Iv, 17). Cyprim ( $7_{\text {cstin, ini. }}$ ii. 48) cites the sune pasagy, ani also l's. xiv.
 ato, thent. Deses, o, 8.5) dedfures that the nhus. even theuth he bentew in echarity twis sight, amount that the legiol rate of intiteret would enable him to give, - "'dullicern centesima num-
 vi. is) clasyen it as on of the " man latn insi" that no man shall recfive interist for' money lent to another whe is in necessity, "therwie, he say*, the kiodly net loses its ralue, and the Jeuler is as one who prolits by his neighbent's trouble, But white it is not unrer "(3) vi. 699). that in the practice of the ansuanabe to appprose culcated by the early churr:in thise morewity incorresponding olservance ameng a certain minority, the evidence plainly shews that they were frequently ilisregariced. it; for example, we aece eit the necouat givea by Hippmolytus of Callistus, beth Callistus anil his christiun master (urpuphurus Anrsuef the calling of maney-lenders (Bugsen, Anal Ante-Ficace, i. :371). Cyprian, in his treaamong the "Lapos,"," neglecting their dishope eflice, "divina procuratione comtunijta," had turael thein attention to wirlily gitin, and were manlering about in other provinces, attending markets tor the sake of lucre und inereasing their capital by lending it out at compound ioterest,pari . . . . usirris multiplicantilus ancuangere " (Migne, lv. 18:3) multiplicantibus feenas It is supphased by we may infer froin this (heitrafe, I. 38) that Cyyriag's time from this that there existed in church on the lormal deciaration from the appens, however, mere reasiumhle to conclule that the ubeve bishopws had repmidiatelif all further ectusiasticas control. The tirst catumical decisian of which we have evileare reliting to the natijet ulyject is that uf the conuril of Arles (A.D. 314 ). are to ie deharred full priests practising usury are to ie deharred frum enmnuunion, - "eos juxt, (Mansi, Conc. ii. 472). At the connabstineri" " Minana, Conc. ii. 472). At the council of Landicea (f ann. 320 ) it was decreal, "Non oportere

usury

2007
hominem sacratum fremerari, ot usura, ot quae Niemintur menqualterasb acepipere" (i, ii. 34t). Thig entun was revernurtel with yet greater stringency at the council of Niraen, when it was decreed that whoever "f the clergy shuulit be frumt indiuging in the prastice in his dealings: with anothes or demanding "sesgniulternue," ahmild be depoed frum his ofice and excoumunicated: "sil quis inventus prost otatutum usirras rem aliter persenul, vel sessumititerna exigere, vel vel aliquil alinif oxcogitare turpha quagertus (ryatha, e ilerd depmanat ur et sit alienima a c:unono" (Mansi, ii. $475 ;$; ib: iv, $+1: 1$ ). The firty fofurth of the the Apustolical Cunans similarly requires that any "bishop, priest, or deasen" who demanits iuterest from a deltor shall be deprived of his oflire (Cotelerius, i. 418).
Athough the conliticuss of the mercantile community in the East nond the West diflereld materinliy in some respects, the fithers of the two churches are efunlly explicit anil systemntio in thuir combemuatim of the practice of usiry: Among those brlenging to the Greak chureh we find Athanatins (l.xpese in $P$ s, xir.) ; Hasil the Hreat (Ifom, in $l_{\text {s. }}$ xiv.), (iregory of Nazinnzum (O) wat. $x \times 1$, in Patrem twentem), Gregory of Nysma (Outt, cont. Usururims), Cyril of Jerusilam (Citecth. iv. c. is), Epiphanius (ude. Hueres, Epition. c. 24), Chry aeston (IIom. xli. in Genes.), and Thealoret (faterim, in $P$ 's, xiv. $\overline{5}$, anil liv. 11 ), Anowg those belonging to the Latin chur h, Itilary of Piotierst (in $P_{d,}$ x|v.), Amirose (to Thbir tiber unts), Jerome (in 1 Esech. vi. 1y), Alugustiun (te Beptisma vontr. Don tisthus, iv. 19), ${ }^{\text {i.eno the Great ( }} \mathrm{P}_{\mathrm{s}}$ pist. iii. 4), and Cossioulurus (in Ps. xiv. 10). Among these writers some evfince less disjmsition to nlywnl exclinsively to the Mussie law; Bnail, for exnmple, cites Luke vi. 34, 3.3; Chrysootom, Mnth. v. 42; Gregury of Nysan, the fate of the unmerciful servant in the pirable (Matth, xviii. 23-15), and the fifth petithon in the Loril's I'rayer: Anbrose, whose treatice do Tosia is ectirely devoted to tho cendemantion "f usury, quotes the sentiment of Cato, -"tenerara est homiuem orcidere," aud iuveighs strongly agninst the cruelty involval in the practice. "The borrower," he says to the usuress, "asks of you medicine, and you give lim puison; breal, and you jrotler him a aworl; liberty, and youl condemn hina to slavery I" Re. frering to the tecinienl term "centesimn," he asks, whet her it might not better serve to reeall to our resoliection Him whe came to senk the hundredth logt shcep? (Migne, xiv. 591-52\%). Christ, he enys, came to fultil the law, not to destroy it, consequently the Mosaic prohibition Is still in ferce. Leo tho Grent, in lis letter to the bishops of Campania and Picenum, implies that the elergy aometimes evaled the prohibitition by lenling their money in the name of anothrr, and deelares this to be equally forbidden. ife Indents that even laymen, who wish to be egnsidered Christians, ehould jractise the usurer's ralling,-"quoil et in laiiess eadere, quil Christin. nus so diri cupiuat, cundolemus " (Epist. 3 ; Migne, fly, 615 ). Chry sontem refers to the legisiation which forbale senaturs ( (oois.

[^192]USURY
$\left.\kappa \alpha \lambda_{0} \hat{v} \sigma_{1}\right)$ to take interest for loans, and contrasts the usurer's craft with that of the husbandman, the grazier, or the artisan, affirming that his gnin is a harvest reaped without the nid of noil, plough or rain (in Mutt. Hom. Ivii.; Migne, Patrol. Graec. Jviii. 557).

The conditions of modern society and commercial life have involved such a revolution in the conceptions respecting the employment of capitsl, that the arguments whereby it was sought to justify the Mosaic condemnation of usury now ajpear searcely intelligible. It was objected that usury was an infringement of equal dealing, because more was given by the borrower than he received,-that it was ruinous to many, while serviceable to but few,--that it was oppression of the poor man under the guise of rendering him a service (August. in Ps. xxxvi. Serm. 3; Ambrose, de Ofjic. ini. 3 ; Chrysost. in Matth. Hom, 56). When it was aaked, as an extreme case, whether the man wino lent a bushel of cora to his neighbour, from which the latter reaped tenfold, might not jistly claim to share equally in the gain, Jerome replied by citing Gal. vi. 7, and by a quibble worthy only of a professed dialectician (al Ezech. vi. 18 ; Opera, ed. Migne, vi. 176). This excess of stringency produced its natural results and evasion was frequently resurted to. Ambrose (de Tubia, c. 14) states that it was a common practice for those who lent money (especially the wealthy) to receive the interest in the form of goods.

The canons of later councils differ materially in relation to this subject, and indicate a distinct tundency to mitigate the rigour of the Nicaeau interdict. That of the council of Carthage of the year 348 enforces the original prohibition, but without the penalty, and grounds the reto on both Old nod New Testsment authority, "nemo contra prophetas, nemo contra evangelin facit sine periculo" (Mansi, iii. 158). The language, however, when compared with that of the council of Carthage of the year 419 , serves to suggest that, in the interval, the lower clergy had occasionally been found having recourse to the forbidden practice, for the general terms of the earlies canon, "ut noo liceat clericis fenerari," are enforced with greater particularity in the latter, "Nec omaino cuiquam elericorum licent de qualibet re foents accipere" (Mansi, iv. 423). This supposition is supported by the language of the council of Orleans (A.D. 5.38), which appears to imply that deacons were not prohibited from leuding money at juterest, "Et clericus a diaconatu, et supra, pecuniam non commodet ad usuras" (ib. ix. 18). Similarly, at the second council of Trullanum (A.D. 692) a like liberty would appear to have been recognised among the lower clergy (Hardouin, iii. 1663). While, again, the Nicsean cauon requires the immediate deposition of the ecclesiastic found guilty of the practice, the Apostolical canon enjoins that such deposition is to take phace only after he has been admonished and has "isregarded the admonition.

On the other hand, at the second council of Arles (A.d. 452), we find that such on offence on the part of an ceclesiastic was required to be punished not only by deposition but also by excommunication, "depositus a communione alienus fint " (Mınsi, vii, 880).
Generally apaking, the evidence points to the conclusion that the church imposed no penalty on the layman, St. Basil (Epst. clxxxviii. can. 12), says that a nsurer may even be mimitted to orders, provided he gives his nequired wealth to the poor and abstains for the finture from the pursuit of gain (Nigne, Putrol. Graec, xxxii 275). Gregory of Nysss says that usury, unlike. thett, the desecration of tombs, and sacrilege (ifpooviia), is allowed to pass unjunished, although among the thing forbilden by seripture, nor is a candi-late nt ordination ever asked whether or no he has been guilty of the practice ${ }^{0}$ (Migne, ib. xlv. 233). A letter of Silonius A pollinaris (Epist. vi. 24) relnting nn experience of his friend Naximus, appears to imply that no blame attuched to lending noney at the legal rate of interest, and that even a bishop might be a creditor on those terms. We find nlso Desideratus, bishop of Verdun, when applying for a loan to king Theodebert, for the relief of his impoverished diocese, promising repayment, "enm usuris legitimis," an expresaion which would seem to imply that in the Gallican chureh usiry was recognised as lawful under certain conditions (Greg. Tur. Hist. Frunc. iii, 34). So again is letter (Epist. ix. 38) of Gregory the Great seems to shew that he did not regard the payment of interest for money advanced by uno layman to mother as unlawful. But, on the other hand, we find in what is known ns archbishop Theodore's Penitentinl (cire. A.D. 690) what appears to be n genernal law on the subject, enjoining "Si quis usuras undecunque exegerit ... tres annos in prne et nqua" (c. xxv. 3); a penance again enjoined in the Penitential of Egbert of York (e. ii. 30). In like manner, the legates, George and Theophylact, in reporting their procecdings in Ensland to pope Adrian I. (A.D. 787), state that they have prohibited "nsurers," and cite the authority of the Psnlmist and St. Augustine (Haddan and Stutbs, Conc. iii. 457). The councils of Nayence, Rheims, and Châlens, in the year 813, and that of Aachen in the year 816 , scem to have laid down the same probibition as binding both on the clergy nnd the laity (Hardouin, Conc. iv. 1011, 1020, 1033, 1100).

Muratori, in his dissertation on the subject (Antichitu, vol. i.), observes that "we do not know exactly how commerce was transacted in the five preceding centuries," and consequently are ignorant us to the terms on which loans of money were effected. A later period shews us, to use the language of Mr. Pearson, "the moral guides of society, on the one hand, codeavolring to anforce a law which was, without alustement, the law preacribed originally for the Hebrews in Palestine; while, on the other, forcign wars, foreign commerce, and the perfectly unequal division of land, were introducing entirely new conditions of life, which could not be sntisfied by the provisions designed for a nation living under totally different circumstances" (Theories on Usury, p. 16). See also Funk, Gesch. des Kirchlichen Zinsverbotes, Tübingen, 1876.
[J. B. M.]
e A can in of the councti of Agde (A.D. 506): "Sottflonarios nunquam ordoandos, sicut nec ushrarios," etc., pruhably puints to a distineiton drswn liy the church between the professilual usurer and thoss who only occustonuliy practised usury (Maust, \Ith. 536).

VACANCY bishop's death and outruge, w made successiv nosuccessful efft

There are the tinct in any di vacant benetice, the property of revenue of the and (3) the incor half a year-of The twenty-e Chalcedon, A.D. not lawful for cl bishop to scize w forbidden by the Apost. 40 ; Cam. Antiochene canon the private prope estate of the see to protect.
A canon such sometimes took "This also is dete sommoned from t clerics keep rapac or whatever is in to the bishop, in utenails, vessels, $p$ property, altogethe robbers." (Conc. $\Gamma$ 524).

By the following the kindred of a firbidden to touch of the metropolita They were require of his successor. T should touch some o might have got mix to his heirs. Oth effiect are laid dow the ninth councils lsw (l. 5, t. i. c. 2) should at the comn verify the inventory The second coun enacted that the funeral should dema cessariam nihil pre same council also pr the presbyters togeth residence (domum ecc iaventoried (descript fersods. So striet wards issued by Gr even the cost of the out of the episcopal
From a canon of $t$ it appears that on the gools and those of $h$ cuatody of the clergy, the custody of the me them to the successor
Besides the visiting archdeacen is often no penalty xxsviii. can. admitted to al wealth to re from the irace. xxxii sury, unlike nd sacrilege anpunished, en by Scripn ever asked the practice ${ }^{0}$ of Sillonius n experience ply that no at the legal ishop might 6 find also en rpplying he relief of repayment, ssion which licnn chureh uder certain iii. 34). So Fregory tbe ; regard the nced by one But, on the wh as arch. - A.D. 690) the subject, bue exegerit xxv. 3) ; a uitentinl of manuer, the n reporting e Adrian 1 . prolibited the Psnlmist bs, Cuc. iij. theims, and $f$ Aachen in un the sme clergy and 1020, 1033, we do not ansacted in onsequently ch loans cf 1 shews us, " the morni denvouring abatement, Hebrews in cign wars, ly unequal atirely new satistied by ving under Theories on - des Kirchusuraries," awn by the I thase who (i. 536).

V

VACANCY. The voidance of a see by a bishop's death was often the occasion of abuse and outrage, which the church in various parts made successive and (it may be ndded) not nosuccessful efforts to restrain.
There are three factors which must be kept distinct in any discussion nbout the property of a vacant benefice, bishopric or other. There is (1) the property of the deceased (spolin) ; (2) the revenue of the bencfice in the interval (deportus) half a year-of the new incumbing-a year or
The twenty-eighth conof of the (nnnata). Chalcedon, A.D. 451, stands thus: "Thancil of not lawful for clergymen after the death of their blshop to scize what belongs to him, as has been forbidden by the canons of old time" (sc. Can. Apost. 40 ; Cun. Antioch. 24). A reference to the Antiochene canon here quotel shews that it is the private property of the bishop, and not the estate of the see which the canon was designed o protect.
A canon such as the following shews what sometimes took place on the voidance of a see. "This also is determined, that on a bishop's being sommoned from this world at the Lord's bidding, or whaterer is in than hands from all furniture or whatever is in the church house or belongs utensils, vessels, produce, flocks, animals or all property, altogether, nad plunder nothing like robbers." (Conc. Valentinum Hispan. cap. 2, A.D. $524)$.
By the following chnpter of the same council, the kindred of a bishop dying intestate were firbidden to touch anything without the sanction of the metropolitan or four provincial bishops. They were required to wait for the ordination of his auccessor. The reason assigned is lest they should touch some of the official property, which might have got mixed with what would descend to his heirs. Other precautions to the anme effect are laid down both in the seventh and the ninth councils of Toledo. The Visigothi Inw (1. 5, t. i. c. 2) even directs that every bishop should at the commencement of his episcopate verify the inventory made by his predecessor.
The second council of Orlenns (A.D. 5.33) enscted that the bishop who cane for the funeral should demand "praeter expensam necessarinm nihil pretii pro fatigntione." The ssme conncil also provided that he should call the presbyters together and, going to the bishop's the presbyters together and, going to the bishop's residence (domun ecclesiae), should leave it when inventoried (descriptam) to the custody of fit persons. So strict were the directions afterrrards issued by Gregory the Great that not even the cost of the inventory might be taken out of the episcopal property. out of the episcopal property.
From a cnoon of the Trullan Conncil (c. 35) it appears that on the death of $n$ bishop his own goods and those of his church were under the cutedy of the clergy, or in default of that under the custody of the metropolitan, who shall give them to the successor in the see.
Besides the visiting bishop or the clergy the archdeacon is often named as the proper

VACANCY

2009
gaurdian of the vacnnt see. "Phtrimonio ecclesine in gubernatione urchidinconi ejusdern ecclesiae constituto," says (Ep. 7) pope Agapetus ( $\dagger: 56$ ). The same arrand joined in France by the council of Paris in 615 (can. 7). For the form of appointing a bishop to take temporary charge of a vacant diocese, see Liber Diturnus, c. iii. tit. 11 .
From the seventh and eighth canons of the same council of Paris Thomassin (Discipline do l'Eglise, pt. ii. Liv. iv. c. 25, 4) draws the fowl'Eglise, pt. ii. Liv. iv. c. 25, 4) draws the followunder this head as to the state of the church century. 1. Other churcheg besides cathedrals were despoiled at the death of their incumbent. 2. Bishops and archdeacons seized the "spoil" of nbbeys and other benefices, 3. This was done churches suecious pretences, as that all other churches were but offishoots from the cathedral. clergy (sc. the cathet to the commonnlty of the bishop or the enthedral body), and not to the council condernng the aburticular. 5. The revenues of the vacant chure. 6. Both the property of the deceased in and the private spoiled. 7. The spoliation $t=$ hent were deauthority of sovercigns, magiscrates, and msgnates. 8. Archdeacons are recognised as tha proper guardians of all the property of the vacant bishopric and of other vacant churches. 9. The clergy are associnted with them in thim charge. 10. That these ancient outragea, peing any pretended rights of colour of justification to times have been based spoliation, which in later most important of all upon them. 11. But deduction from the langus Thomassin) is this that temporal princes were not yet put in pos. scssion of the guardianship of the racsnt sees or abbeys. Yet it must be observed that Clothnira the Second, when confirming by an edict the decrees of this council of l'aris, seems to reserve to himself the right of making certain donations (praeceptiones nostrae) from the goods of a vacant see.
The lengths to which the outrnge of "spoliation" sometimes went may be gathered from a story told by Gregory of Tours (lib. 6, c. 13). The clergy of Narscilles combined with the governor agninst their bishop. The bishop was arrested, and the clergy themselves pillaged the residences of the bishop, and made a raid upon his property, just (adds the narrative) as if the bishop were alrendy dead. This licence, however, must not le supposed universa!, as there is a marked nobence of any allusion to it In the letters of Gregory the Great about the property of vacant sees. The first recorded instance in Rome is that recorded by Anastasius (A.D. 638) of the pillinge of the church of St. John Laterun on the accession of Severinus.
The great point to be estnblished nou the subject is that in early days the sovereign did not pretend to have any rights either upon the property of decensed bishops or upon the proceeds of vacant sees. This appenrs conclusively Tours ( 1.10 examples, also given hy Giregory of Tours (l. 10, c. 19). Giles, the bishop of Rheims, of moner wed and exiled. In his chests large sums portion moner were found. The king confiscated that portion of it which had been gotten by illicit means; the rest was left. Again, Baudin the sixteenth Dishep of Tours, was enabled to dlatribute amongst the poor a very larae sum of money ("nmplius quim riginti millin solidorum "), which his predecessor hind left, and which clearly hail not eschented to the erown.

2010

VACANTIVI

The letter of Gregory the Groat to the elorgy and peeple of Itortona (lib. $\mathrm{iii}, E p,: 39$ ) is a geord apecimen of his action duriag a varamey. "We solemnly delegate the visitution of the destitute church to our brother mul co-bishop, Barbnrus. To whom we have given in ebarge 'ui mibil de redditu, ormatu, mitisteriisque a quoquan usurpari putiatur'. . . . We have givou him licence to ordnin priests nad dencons, if nead be," \&i. In anothar conse (lib, iv. Ep, 12) he directs that the bisherp-visitor of the church of Agrigentum should reveive the same ineome for his services as the regular hishop wonlil receive. At times the arrival of the visitor-bishop was the oceasion of a stuabble. How prope tiregary doalt with sueh a dilliculty may be seen in his lotter to Loontins, who was male bishep-visitor of Kimini (Lib. iv. Ep. 42). [Visttaton.]
In reply to the claim that has at times been made of the right of the pope to the "spuil" of a verant sec, Thomassin quotes words of Gregory the Grent addressed to Constantius, lishop of Palermo, who was mide visitor of the chureh of Terravina (lib, vii. Ep. 75): "Mobile vero praedictue eeclesine factn subtiliter volumus lesoribi notitin, nobisque transmitti, ut ox hoe quill fieri debent, nu"tere Domino, dixponamms," Tho French writer argues that Gregory woulll not have considered at his leisure how it should be disposed of, if it had belongerl of right to his own church; and he concludnes that all the "spoi] "of a decensed bishup, anil all the revenue of the vncancy belongs to the clergy in common, and the succeeding bishop, whilst ecelesinatienl superiors and worldly magnates can pretend to no ather glory than that of giving protection to the canons nud liberties of the church. Bishops lost neither spolia nor deporlus nor cmatar ; anl bishops in their turn preserved the deportus of vacunt parochinal cures, handiag them inithfully to the new incumbents (Discipline do l'Eylise, pt. ii. Jiv. iv. e, 2if).

That portion of the episcopal resonue whleh fell to the crown during a vacant.y wns known by the name of regalia (1) nrange, s. v.). When the bishop was dend, it was sainl to be apertes ("regalia est ajerta"), nat it so continued until his snecessrir was appointerl, when it became chansa. The act of homage or allegiance on the part of the successor preceded the delivery of the regalia to him.
[II. T. A.]
VACANTIVI, or, in the Groek form, $\beta \alpha$ adyrikol, were clergy who were found in other dioceses than that in whieh they were first ordained, with letters from their binhop. Against such frequent iperces were made. The comnail of Agde ( $c .52$ forbids communton to be given to sach wandering elerks, nam this is repeatei by the council of Ejaon (c. 6); the council of Valentin ( $C$. Valentin. e, $\overline{5}$ ) urifers snch wanderers, if contumacious, to be leprivel both of commusion and of ostors (Eingham, Amin, Vl. iv. j).
[C.]
VAISON, COUNCILS OF (Vasengia ConCILIA), A.D. 442 and A.D. 529. Formerly there were thought to have been three. 1. Which some make the secomi, "ypul duspicinm eplsompum veclesine ratholica," salys the It lor, which was the fivenrite style of the bishops af kome, whes teu canens on discipline wre pissed, hat mo subseript tuas to then have beon presurtal (Mansi, vi. 45t-60), 2. Whieh some make the thind: where four intorestiny eamons on ritual-one relating to the rending of homilies of the fat here by dencons when no preslister conlil be got to pronch; another to the saying of the Fiyrie ahison, the simetus, sin'tus, simetes, the sime crot ot the lloxaligy, nid recital of the name of the pope fir thas time hoing in ilivine norvire follow the tirat on dissipline, with tho mames of St. Ciesarias of Arles same cleven wher bishope alixad to them. (/2, viii. 725-4.) [Ki, s. Ff.]
VAKASS. The evakass is a vestment or ormanent permilar to the Armenimu churw. 1t. bears $n$ rertain resombinust to the amive but has a breasplate attached to it, as in the anse of the Jowish high-pitiest; the mames or ligures of the twolve aprostles replating those of the twelve tribes (Nombe, Sinstern Chumb Intros. p. 3004 ; Mabin, liturey of the Armonasm Chareh). It is dombithil whother we are to view this as a direet imitation of tho dowish pphod, or as renily a moditionalon of the Western anice The Armenians themedres malatnin the Jewlsh origin of the vestamit, but the Armoninus have boriowed so murh from the loman ehurch that the latior is hy many thought the more probnhle viow, in in recent work by a Nelchiturist of st, batzare, aud therefore of the Roman commanion, the vaknss is "lescribed ns "a large collar of prerious stull, to whieh is nttached the ani"w" (lsase verlens, The irmertion Chasoh, f. $41: 3$ ). [16. S.]

VALENCR, COUNCTLS CHF (VAbintiva
 1. When thirty bishops, necoriling to sumum slis., passed four canoms on tisciplino, abl ndlyessed two synorlical letters, one to the lishops of lirnnes, the othir to the clergy und peapho of Frejus, invitiug attention to thelr fourth canun respecting candilates far the epismopate, priesto hoed, or diaconate (Manai, lii. 4 (91-sint). 2. Where the doctrinas of frepwill nul grave wers -lisenssed with refermen to S't. (hatosting of Arles, who was prevented from attending it by 1ll-health, but deputed abla representatises to express and defund his opinions (ib, viio. 7at-fi). 3. When the dumations of king liunt ram and of his wife and daughters to different churchen were confirmed by eveventeen bishorg \{ $/$ b. ix. (34\%-8).
[Fiss. Ff.]
VAI.ENS, Feb, 16, deacon, marlyr with I'amphilus, Selenciter and J'oulus, at fispasea nder biocletian (lasii, Menol.; Mart. Ilierom),
[C. II.]
VALIENTIA, COUNCTL, OF (Vabifintinem Coscilitu), a.b. 516, where six chaptera on discipline were drawn up hy six bivhope, and an archileacon represeating a soventh. (Mansi, viil. 619-24; but he suggests a later date for it on the nont jiger.)
[Fi, M, Vf]
VALENTINA, martyr with Thea and Panas at Chesarea, noder Maximin; commemnrated oo Jnly 15 (Basil. Menol. ; Sfench. Graec. Sirlet.); July 25 (Mart, Rom.).
[C. H.]

VATAN'I martyr nt kin Ustaril., Alon Acenilling क 13 it is thia Vi, ha thia diay ith the unnes him in t is also emietiva Gregory, 1. 7is thint cymunem! of 'lagery, 1 . chitroh in hiv h minha war tho dy litis Rom. 124; Mrnt. Ru Holl, Acthe No 1 butwen this Va Sullerias's Ohse.
(2) Fph, 14, (Afwet Bual, Us liom. ; Bull. det to liarmilts (l. commemoraterl Felitula In the names them in pust-commumbor unilatinguiaherl, marty rologise at bilter cise it Ia commemaritel Fel. ii. Ill. 742, 7
(3) Nov. 1it, 1 venta wilh Solill Allun., I/ieron., It
(4) Hoe, II, Naveama with $N$ Usuaril, llieren.

VALIEN'IGO memorated whith Morshat ly the lati Notker., Rom.); (bisil. I/Cnol.; MI.

VALEIRANUA Trapezus with C Dieclectian (hisll. N ant.) ; din. 21 (1)
(2) April 14, mor smid Maximons at lion cometery of I'rache. Adon., Itieron., Vet. 21 (Hinsil. Alenol.) Sirlet.).
(8) Sput. 15, mart Verus, cummemerste tary of Chillonsessur-s Ilierom. Nutker., Rom
(4) Sepit. 17, mart duntum (Nyom) with (Mart. Uismril., All (Notker., liom.).
(b) Dee. 15, Mshop Graserie (Mart. Us Eivin.).

VALEKLIIS (1), Papoted disriple of Adon ${ }^{y}$ Ifierom., Natiker

VATENTINUS

VALENTINI's (1), foh. H, preshyerp;

 nnmen hime in the ent

 chureh in his humar at Rumee an the Via Fhabretwen this Valmitimis "nid the billowsing spe Sollerins's Uhas, miler Feh. It in Usmind.

(2) Fois, 14, hishur of lithaminit, matyr commenuma (\% o.) it is this Vinhentinus when is names them in the cullan saremmentary, which alus (hac.). For cothore sainets if the same mane

(3) Siov, lis, martyr, comamementerl at baveata with Soluter nind V'ictow (Muret. Usuario. Adim., llicron., Vet. Kimu., liom.).
(4) Theo. ${ }^{14}$, martyr, memmemerutod at

VALENTIG (VALENILNTE), martyr, cembe mprourated with Pasierntes at martyr, cemmMorsia thy the latine on May en ( 1 hirl. Usharil., Notker.: lome.) ; lyy the Growk wo dpre gt (lasil. Menol, ; Mrmut. Grwe. sirlet.). [C!, il.]
VALEMIANUA (1), Jam. 20, mimtyr uf

 *at.); lan. 21 (1haim, Cubl. Litury, Iv. 2ib).
(2) April 14, commemornted with Tiliarthus and Maximus nt bome on the Via Appia it the opmetery of Iructextatus (Murt. Bum., Visurd., 24 (bisxil, Memol.); Nov, g2 (ilfenol. (Iruce Sirlef.).
(8) Sept. 15, martyr in the relgn of Antoninus Verne, echmomernted at Toummes in the torrithry of Chaltonsosur-Shôm (Mhart. Usinari., Alum., Miercm. Notker., Rome). Aherm. Notker., Rom.).
(4) Sect. 17, martyr, remmamarated at Nividanme (Nym) with Nacrinus any finclimuse (Notker., Rom.). Allon.); ne at Nuvierlumum
(5) Dec. 1., Hlahop, confesaor in Africa under Oraserio (Mart. Uauardis Allan., Vet. Lirm., Euinu.).
[ $\left(1, H_{1},\right]$
Valiehilis (1), Jan. 29, bishop of Trèver, Adon.g Ilierom., Notiker., Wand., Nom.),

Veiles

2011
(2) Juar 14, matity with Rufinua noar Suige Nillt nuler bivelotimin (Mat. Usmand., Mhir., [c. 11.]
VANNBQ, Cold

 "thers, thin spat, with a sy mollinat hetter in their (Mamai, vil. In: ( N.)
[ $\mathrm{F}, \mathrm{S}, \mathrm{s}, \mathrm{If}$. ]

[C. 11.]

[ 11.11.$]$

 "r Anyphow) the cutroing the howly homen; (2)

 were alwnys of the tinest and hose mate.

 (brseriy. S. Soph. Anem. "Pull bu ('me"). Contmene to the mystient intermetaton of that was almat our lorrl's heal; and the dhp thener on the shining rlame at the Transtigerathan, or the stame whith elosen ther hener ift the rath armering the lhily Wi, in, on whith the the Rnmennthurig, agmbulisem, the titu linen ( (lumr, Pa, whel nur liwel's huely was wraped

The riturl of the witls, ne given in the 1,1 mergy
 val. vi.) At the suilas multion of (liorysustom, paten vell, and prithesty the primst catigea tha placed over than hower the netarisk has lomen with it, with warts frum l's. 9:1: "The lated self with stronzth." Ho then remeses the challee vail anil revera the holy cerp with it, while he hatrana, and the eneth was fill of lise proise." Alter thls he rensiss the ding and eprands it oreps (f. gisti) me under the shathow of Thy wings" has hemen rand, the pripst lakes ting cin $\eta$ ther and unfulds it unfolds it, nuly pheres it on the hily tuhle befire the atop is placed over tha left shanilur uf the donecen at tha same timn that tha thak is pint on his heal (p. b19t). The pitiest then remuves the veily from the paten and chaliee, alal taking the deacon then takes the asterial and puts it crosswise over the disk, and having sponged it on the ciA $\eta \tau \delta \nu$, he covers it with the ajpp, and if there is no fan he fans the holy things with the paten veil (p. 997). After the priest has communicated he aponges the cup and his own lips with the veil (1. 1002). After the deacon has communiented he sponges the disk over the cup, and covers the cup with the veil, and replaces the asterisk and the veil over the disk (p. 1003). Finally, atter the washing of the cup and clennsing of the disk he covers the holy things, the cup and the disk with the veils, according to custom (p. 1004). The form of consecration of disk veils in the Coptic ehurch is given by Renaudet (Liturg. Orient. i. 304).

2012.

VENANTIUS
[EL. V.]
VENANTIUS (1), Apr. 1, bishop, martyr (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Notker., Rum.). There was a monastery bearing the name of Veantius at Constantinople in the 6th century (Mansi, viii. 1056 13; Du Cange, Cpolis. Christ. lib. iv. p. 162): The oratory of St. Stephen in the Vntican basilica is said to have been called also that of Vemantius (Rasponi, de Basilica Vaticana, p. 234 ; Ciampini, de Sacr. Aedif. p. 17).
(2) Albat, cemmemerated as Tours on Oct. 11 (Mart. Flor.); Oct. 13 (Mart. Usuard., Mart. Rom.) ; Oct. 23 (Notker.).
[C. H.]

veneticum concilium. [Vannes.]

VENITE. [lnvitatoricm.]

VENTRILOQUUS. The "master of obh" was frequently called ventriloquns, eryaorpl-
 Hebrews, according to Bochart, "ariolum id genus non ex ventre, sed ex axillis vacem emigisse bonmiant" (Hicroz. iii. 5). To prove this be cites the Talmud in Sunhedrim 7, the glosa on it, and Rabb. Selomo on Deut. xriii. 11. Maimonides (de Idol. vi. 2) a ays that these diviners after certain ceremonies appear to be "consulting another person, whe spenks with them and answers their questions from the earth in a very low voice, which they cannot hear with their ears, bnt only perceive in their mind"; or they "fumigate the skull of a dead man and sing charms, until they hear a voice going before them coming out of their armpita, and an answer is given them." It is evident, at least, that the veice was generally traced to some part of the persen. Thus Plutareh says that "the rentriloqui [formerly called Eurycleitac, from Eurycles a soothanyer; see Hesychiua, Suidas] are now called pythons" (de Orac. Defectu, Reiske, vii. 632). The italic version of Lev. $x x .27$ gives "ventriloquus" (Sabatier); that of Isaiah viii. 19, "Qni de terra loquuntur, qui de ventre clamitant." So the LXX render obh by er $\gamma$ aactp\{ $\mu v$ Oos in Lev. xix. 31; xx. 6, 27; 1 Sam. xxriii. 7, 9; Isaiah tliv. 25; \&e. Thut sueh' divinera were ventriloqui in the common belief appears a'so from various ancient writers. Origen affirma that some "from the earliest age have been under the infuence of a demon, whom they call psthon, i.e. a ventriloquus" (de Princip. iii. §5); au opinion noted by St. Jerome as unsound ( Ep . 124, ad Avit. 8), but only as to the carly possession, for the latter himself paraphrases Is. viii.

9, thue, "Quserite ventriloques, ques pythonas intelligimus" (Comment. in loe.). Gregory Nyss. saym, referring to the witch of Endor, "One form of deceit was that of the ventriloquus, whose magic art was skilled to drag, back to the life above the aouls of the departed". (de Pythonissa Ep. 1. 869). See also Tertullian (de Aninz, 57); Jerome in Ezek. xiii. 1-9; Quaest. Christ. et Resp. inter Opp. Jukt. M. 52; Pionius in Ruinart, Actu Sine. Mart. 124; Isilore, iii. 370; Eustathius Antioch. de Engastrim. 30.
[W. E. S.]
VENUSTIANUS, Dec. 30, martyr with his wife and children under Maximiaa; commemerated at Spoleto with bishop Sabinus (Mart. Usuard.; Murt. Vet. Rom. which states that his passion was on Dec. 7, and the festival of his sepulture on Dec. 30).
[C. H.]
VENUSTUS, May 6, martyr, commemorated with Heliodorns in Africa (Mart. Usuard. ; Mart. Rom.). In Mart. Hicron. both names occur oa this day in a numerous list, Venustus at Milan and Heliodorus in Aifrica.
[C. H.]
VERANUS, bishop, commemorated at Lyens on Nov. 11 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Hieren., Rom.).
[C. H.]
VERBERIES, COUNCIL OF (Vermerdense Conclliust, a.d. 753. Several canons od discipline are found in Gratian and elsewhere given to a council at this place, which is thought to have met in the first year of king Pepin, and been ntteuded by him. (Mansi, sii. 365-8.)
[E. S. Ff.]
VERIANUS, Aug. 9, martyr at Colonia in Etruria under Decius, commenorated with Secuadianus and Marcellianus (Mart. Usuard., Notker., Rom.).
[C. H.]
VERISSIMUS, Oet. I, martyr at Olisepons (Lisbon) with his sisters Maxima and Julia (Mart. Usuard., Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]
VERN or VER, COUNCIL OF (Vernense Concthium), a.d. 755, held by order of king Pepin in his palace there, when twenty-firs canous on discipline were published. (Mlansi, xii. $577-86$, whe thinks, however, it should be dated A.D. 756).
[E. S. Ff.]
VEROLUS, Feb. 21, martyr, commemorated at Adrumetum with Sccundinus, Servulus, and others (Mart. Usuard., Mart. Romi.).
[C. H.]
VERONIOA, commemorated at Antioch on Apr. 20 with Prosdecius and Romanus (Mart. Syr.) ; Apr. 15 at Antioch with Presducus ( Hieron.) ; July 11 at Antioch with Prodixa aad Specinsa (Maיt. Ilieron.); the matron of Jerusalem so called is said to have been commemoraterl at Reme on Feb. 4 (Boll. Acta SS. Feb. i. 451 f).
[C. H.]
VERSE, VERSICLE. $\boldsymbol{A}$ ohert verss or text said by the priest in the course of the liturgy or the divine office, to which the congregation replied in another sho:t verse or test called a Response. Some of these versicles, as the Sursum Corda in the liturgy, and the "Dens in adjutorium," which eccurs nt the commencemeat of ali tho Hours, are of great antiquity. The latter is mention and in the rule of Monastic Consue regulations for th may be aeen in $t$ Rejularium, S. Martene (de Anta edit. 1788). Thi reacon why are des de Eccles. Off. iv. 1 were applied to Lord, open thou o opened (Amalar. called "Versus $A_{1}$ as bless the Lord, cluded, was hence verulam, ksse Concinturn), Offa, archbishop H before whom the fo Alban was discusse a journey to Rome Wilkiaa by Haddan

VERUS, Dec. 2, brother Securus (M)
VESPERS. [H the Divine.]
VESTA aud VE tanmartyrs (Mart. B 08.]

VESTMENTS.
been two leading $t$ Christian vestments, Leritical, the other d of ordioary life prer Coristianity. The fo bably meet with any the present day. Som festures of the Jewish the Christiad. Thus priestly dress the ele morked, we have eve the dress worn by $t 1$ times was simply whi beaddresss of Jewish the more striking cap golden п'́tanov, had fo aoswer to it among Ch we have already shewn traces of a use of an art of the Christiay fousad for the first $t n$ coloented girdle of the appear, for the girdle pised Christian vestme Coasersely the Christia the chssuble [CAsULA] thing in the Jewish dre Now, on the other consider the nature of under the empire in $t$ tianity, we are at once of cofincidence lu the for the names.
A Romsn gentleman liter weara his tunic w restment, lacerna, palliu

VERULAM

Latter is mentioned by Cassian (Collat. x. 10) and in the rule of St. Benedict (cnp.x.). Medineval Monastic Consuetudinaries contained elnborate regulations for their use, of which a specimen may be seen in the may be seen in the Antiq. Consuctulines Cunon.
Regularium, S. Victoris, Paris., Martene (do Antiq. Eccecs. Pit. tom. Piii. pi. 279 edit. 1788). Their rationale and the ritual reacn why are described nt length by Amalurius, de Eccles. IIf iv. 13 , et de Ecoles. Iff. iv. 13, et passin. Technical namines were applied to some of these were epplliad to some of these versicles. names "O Lord, open thon our lips," with wwhich opened (Amalar. de Eccl. Offic, which nocturns us bless the Lord," with which most offices concinder cloded, was hence called "Versus Clusor." verulam, council of ${ }^{\text {[F. E. W.] }}$ exse concliuvis), A.D. 793, aftended by kianbefore whom the foundation of the abbey of St. St.
Alban was discussed, Alban was discassed, and the king reconimended
3 journey to a journey to Rome thereon. (Mabsi, xiii. 861 ; Wilkius by Haddan and Stubs, iii. $4 \hat{\imath} 0$.) VERUS, Dec. 2, maxtyr in Africa [E. S. Ff.] VERUS, Dec. 2, mnrtyr in Africa with his brother Seenrus (Mart. Usuard.). brother Seenrus (Mart. Usuard.).
[c. H.]
viespers. [Hours of Prayer; Office, Vestry
2013.
the toga being now rather old-fashioned. If we the ne our stand-point for Christian vestments (A.D. 633), to which we council of Toledo alresdy, we have mention mave of all, pulaneta, and arurium. Here, then, we have the tunicta, the atal, the super-vestment in the phaneta, and an cumment, whose seeular origin is ubsolntely demonstrable in the orarium. [SToLe.] The planeta does not under that name meet us as a it worn by Chris by heathens, though we do find practically Christian laymen; still its shape is practicnlly the same as the pnenuln, which meets is identical in ngain in heathen writers, nod which of the chasuble, the we Eastern, equivalent The casula, snother variety of the [Paenula.] whose name another variety of the samse dress, whose name hns given rise to the modern chasuble, is itself found in use by Christian laymen. As regards other varieties of the tunic, the dalamtic is first met with as in use by a Roman emperor; the Greek $\sigma$ oorxd́olop [STICliARION] is first mentioned in connexion with the dreis of ordinary life. Anotior form of supervestment, the cope, has certainly had a similar origin. The stole and the mannle, again, were both, ns has heen slready shewn, in their origin of the nature of handkerchiefs, carried in the hand; nor can there be any reasooable doubt thnt in such things as the onorhorion, arehiepiscopal Pallium, \&e., sre mere modifications of what in its simplest form we know as the stole. stole.
On the general subject of the history of Christian restments reference may be made to Marriott, Vestiarium Christianum; Hefele, Dis Liturgischen Gecünder in his Boiträje zur KirRock, The Cheschäologie und Lit 4 rgik, vol. ii.; Rock, The Church of our Fathers, London, 1848 ;
Bock, Die Liturgischen Gexänder des Mittel alters, fo. Lituryischen Gexänder des initel-
[R. S.]

VESTRY. (Secretarium, secretaria, sacristia, Among the exedrae of an ancient church was an apartment to which these terims were applied. Some writers take it for a part of the church itself, whilst others are of opinion that it was a distinct building distiact building. (See Bingham, Antit. VIII.' चii. 7.)

We find thet in early, as in modern days, not only the vestments but also the treasures of the church wers sometimes kept in the vestry [Scelophylacium]. Sacred vessels were kept there (in secretario), no one being allowed to touch them except the subdencon or acolyte, (Capitula Martini Brac. e. 4I. cent. vi.). Besides cucharistic vessels, a gold cross of six pounds weight is given by pope John JII. ( $\dagger$ 573), "ex sacro nostro vestiario." Gregory the Great, when he would give six coins to the angel who appeared to him in the guise of a shipwrecked stailur, was informed that there were no coins in his vestry (Joh. Diac. Vita S. Greg. Mag. lib. i. e. 10). In these passages, however, as well as in several others quoted by Ducange, it may be doubted whether the vestiarium was an attachment of a chureh. It seems rnther to have formed a portion of a roysl or pontifical establishment.
Another point of resemblance between the: ancient and the modern use of the vestry is: found in the fact that it was ueed as a place of mecting. From this it may be inferred that the vestry was sometimes a place of considerable size. The third, furth, and filth councils of Carthage were sproken of as in secretario basiicae restitutce. The synod of Arles wiss held "in secretario eeclesiae." The same is true of a multitude of other councils. Just as the modern word vestry means both the place where a meeting is held, and also the assembly or session that takes place there, so we rind a similar transition in the Latin word sewctrium, which at times means a part of a church, and at times a session of a council held in that part. Hence we get such phrases as " secretarium venturum " for the "coming session" (see Conc. Rom. ii. act. 1 ad fin.).

2014

VEXILLUM

There were some other uses to which the restry was at times appropriated. Du Cange (in l'aul. Silent. p. 594) shews that it was sometimes nsed as a place of confinement for delinquent ecelesiastics, and pope Gregory lI. in a letter to the emperor Isaurus eoatrasts the actions of a secular with that of aspiritual juige. The former confiscates, hangs, beheals; but the latter places the gospel and the cross about the culprit's neek, shuts him in the vestry, and puts farting in his stomach, vigil in his eyes and doxology in his mouth.

Sometimes the vestry became the lodging of an ecelesiastic. Sulpicius Severus relates that St. Martin had his lodging "in seeretario ecelesiae," and that after his decease all the Virgins burst into the apartment, licked the several spots where the saint had sat or stood, and appropriated the straw upon which he had lain. Bingham (Antiq. VIII. vii. 8) shews that the vestry was also called receptorium nod salutatorium, as being the scene of pastoral intercourse between elergy and people.
[H. T. A.]
VEXILLUM. (1) The principal Christinn banner has ulrealy been described uniler Labarusi. From an ancieut period banners were carried in processions, the bearers of which were called Draconarin or cexilliferi. When Gregory of Tours (Hist. Hiane, v, 4) speaks of a procession to a basilica "post crucem praccelentibus signis," we are no doubt to understand that a cross headed the procession, followed by banners. Similarly Honcrius of Antun (Gemma Animae, 1. 72) says, "ante nos crux et vexilla germatur." An old use of Sarum ordered a banner of sackcloth to be carricd in the procession st the Reconciliation of Penitents. (2) The word cexillun is sometimes applied to the processional cross itself (Durandus, Innocent III.)
[C.]
VIATICUM. This word, which oecurs frequently in classical authors denoting "provision for a journey," is, together with its Greek equivalent ¿ $\phi \delta \delta \Delta o \nu$, often used in early Christian writings to denote the Euchrist, generally, but not always, as the communion given to a sick person before impending death. "This mystery is sometimes called 'viaticum, because, if any one enjoys it on the way, he will arrive at that life which he already has within himself" (Car. Mray. lib. vii. 101). "This word 'visticum' is the name of communion, that is to say, 'the guardianship of the way; for it guards the coul until it shall stand before the judgmentseat of Christ" (Synodus IIibcrnensis, lib. ii. c. 16, Wasscrschleben's edlt. p. 20).

VIATICUM

The phrase $\tau \dot{d}$ e $\phi \delta \delta \iota a$ rov̂ Eeồ is used by St. Clement in a passige (Ep. I ad Cor. eap. it.) which need not necessarlly bear, although it is not incapable of bearing, a Euchari,tic reference, but which is usually interpreted as involving s general reference to the "doctrines mind means of salvation," as where tho same phrase is used by St. Basil (Ep. Ivii., eexlix. ad Heiet. tom. iii. Pp. 157, 384) and by St. Cyril of Jerasnlem, of faith (Ifom. Cutechet. v. § 12), The phrase eqó $\delta 10 \nu$ §ó $\eta \mathrm{s}$ disiou is employed by St. Clement of Aleandria (Strom. vi. 3i3), which is like the liturgies of St. James, St. Basil, anl St. Mark, with a necessarily Eacharistic meaning (in the Irayer of Thanksgiviag, Ilammond, Litur:jes, ote. p. 191). Bede, in his ucount of the death-ided of Caedmon, speaks of his last comnunion as "eaclente viatieum" (IL. E. iv. 24), aml descrihes its reception in his hand. Amalarius speatis of the "viatieum morientis" (de Lecl. Off. iii, 85) , The expression é $\phi \delta \delta i o \nu$ т $\hat{s} s$ oarqplas oceurs in an Easteru formula of indulgence (Goar, Euchaton. p. 68:2). The earliest extant eonciliar directiou on the subject is can. xiil, of the council of Nice, ordaining that "none, even of the lapsed, shall be deprived of the lask and most necesmiry \&фodiou), but let the old canonical law be observed . . . let the bishop, upon exmmination, give the oblation to all who desire to partake of the Eucharist upon the point of death." This direction is re-enforced in vurying phraveolegy by the following councils: iv, Carth. ce. 76, 77, 79 ; i. Araus, c. 3 ; ii. Vasens. c. 2 ; Gerundeas. c. 9 ; ii. Arelat. e. 28 ; Agath. c. 15 ; Ephon. c. 36 ; iii. Aurel. c. 6 ; j. Matise. 12 ; xi. 'lolet. c. 11. By all these canons the alministration of the viaticum is eajoined, even to apustates and parriciles, without waiting for the fulfilment of the incurred course of penitential discipline, although stipulating for its completion in case of recovery. Another relaxation of chureh rale lay in the fact that it was permittel to be receivel by persons not tinsting. Cardinal Boaa calls this exemption a "praxis eccleviae ubique recepta," but gives no authorities for his statement (Ror, Lit. i. c. xxi, \& 2). Alcuin refers to its immediato administration in such cases as a " lex antiqua regularisque" (cle Div. off. p. "79, edit. Hittorp.), but the abolition of this formal pre-requisite of fasting seems to be a tacit inferenca or unwritten custom rather than an explicit dispensation resting on conciliar enachment.

The language of the canons recently quoted throws no light on the question whether the death-bed Eucharist involved reservation or otherwise; but there is plentiful evideace from other sources that the dying person was ususlly communicated from the reserved sacrament [RE* servation]. It was carricil in a vessel called a Chrismal [p. 356], and various penalties were assigned by St. Columbanus for dropping it aecidentally, or learing it hehind throagh negligence (Reg, Coenob, xv.). The capitalaties of Charlemagne order that "the priest should nlways have the Eucharist in readiness, that if any one is ill, and if a cliild is ill, he nay comminnicate him at once, that he may not dia without communlon" (lib. 1. c. 161). Sumetimes but rarely, there seems to have been a privste and special celebr man's house. Pau had an altar in consecrated the death (Uranius, possibly the olj Ambrose to offer et Rome (Panlin Bingham withou chap. xlvil. Paul reserved Euchatist
It has been a sal viaticum was adn kinds, Bede deser "viatico 1)ominici although the wor communion have b reier to one kind pucro de codem s particulam deferri The same inferenc lsnguage in which described by Euseh the decision of the use of the singula evidence is supplie reserved Eucharist "oblatis snjer sanct Anglo-Saxon Church tallies with other sick person was ust вpecies (Concil. Tole Eccles. Discip. cap. of the reservel sacra its corruption in the possibly joints to reservation of both custom of the simu both reserved elemen ing of the formulae service-books, c.g. in munion of the Siek Dimnia, and Moling: nostri Jesu Christi snimam tusm in rit Dimna, fol. 53 b). - Domini nostri Jesu vitam aeternain "[per] Deerj (Book of Molin: , The formnla in an quoted by Gerbertus ( sill more explicit: " Christi, sangnine suo i) te ab omni peecato."
Here there is a litera of the council of Tours in reference to the via intineta debet esse in citer presbyter possit sanguis Domini proficin Liturg. Aleman. disqui Was a curioua provisic Cone. Cartheg. can. 76 ; in case of extreme in might be communicate the chalice, its liquid co his mouth when he was food.

It was the office of $t$ viatieum to the dying, a the Eucharist to the al time (Apor. i. 65) ; but

viaticum

and special celectration of the Eucharist In a sick man's house. Phuliuns, bishop of Nola ( $(+091-31)$, had an altar in hus had an altar in his sick chamber, st which hs consecrated tho Eucharist not long before his death (Uranius, Lit. Paulin. & 2). Such was possibly the object of the invitation to St. ambruse to offier the sacrifice in a private hovse at Rome (Paulin. Vit. Ambros, as quoted by cbap. xlvii. Piulinus cridently refers to the reserved Euch:rrist).
It has been a subject of discussion whether the vinticum was administered in one or in both kinds. Bede describes s dying boy as refreshied although the words corpuris et sanguinis accepto,", communion have beon sometimes, interpreted to refor to one kind only, "simul et intirmanti pocro de codem sacriticio Dominicae oblutionis particellam deferri mandavit" (H. E. iv. 14 ). The same inference hus heen drawn from the language in which the communion of Serapion is described by Euse ehius (H. E. vi. 44). But it the decision of the question is to tura upon the wie of the siug eviduace is supplited by the description of the rescrred Eucharist found on St. Cuthbert's hody, "oblatis super sanctum corpus poositis" (Lingard, Anglo-Saxon Church, ii. p. 44, edit. 1858). This tallies with other and direct eridence that a vick person was usually communicated in both species (Concil. Tolet. c. xi. Reginon. lib. 1, de Eccles. Disoip. cap. 119). The decolorization oit the reserved shacrament alluded to as a test of its corruption in tho Reguld $S$. Columbani, c. xv.
possibly possibly points to the twofold but conjoint regervation of both elements. The Esstern custom of the simultaneous administration of both reserved elements is implied in the wording of the formulac in several ancient Western erriee-books, e.g. in the offices for the Commanion of the Sick in the Celtic bonks of Deer, Dimnia, and Moling: "Corpus et Ennguis Domini postri Jesu Christi filii Dei vivi, conservet soimum tusm in vitam perpet soimime tusm in vitam perpetuam" (Book of Dinnua, fol. 53 b$)$. "Corpus cum sanguine Doniai nostri vitsm aeternain ", perp Christi sanctus sit tibi in Deeri (Book of Molin? ?, ad fin. Ev. S. Mat.).
The formula in an ancient Ambrosin. quoted by Gerbertus (Litury. Alcman. ii. 487), is bill more explicit: "Corpus Domini nostri Jesu Caristi, ssnguine suo inlitum intinctum, mundet Here there of the council of Teurn complinace with an order in reference to the rirs (A.D. 813), which enacted iotiacta debet esse in sanguine "hristi what on diter presbyter possit dicere infirmo, corpus $t \mathrm{t}$ unguis Domini proficiat tibi," \&cc. (Gerbert, de Liturg. Aleman. disquis. v. c. iii. §4). There was A curious provision sometimes msde (iv. Cone. Carthag. can. 76 ; $;$ si. Toled. can. xi.), that In case of extreme infirmity the sick, persion might be communicated in ong kind only, from the chalice, its liquid contents being poured into his mouth when he was unsble to swsllow solid food, litwas the office of the deacon to convey the iaticum to the dying, as it was his dutut to take Minticum to the dying, as it was his duty to take time (Apol. i. 63); but in cases of emergency

VICAR

2015
any ordinary messenger might be despitehed Serapion in the case of that sent to the dying bionysius, mise the circumstances describe ly by Eusius, bishop, of Alexumdrin, and recorded by Eusebius (II. E. vi. 44). This permission to derogatory ageut was ufterwards abolishel as derogatory to the diguity of the Eucharist (Concil. hemens. A.d. 813, Reglioo, lib. i. do Ecoles. Disoip. enp. 120), but several later visitation neticles and eplscopal inauiries prove that the custom becane by no means immediately In co In cases where the sick man was both nneinted have promunicated, the unetion scems usually to Dive preceded the rinticum (Ive Carbotens. art. 2, and the e. 35; Martene, lib. i. c. vit. there), but this was not ritual offlees preserved casc. Sometines the alsays or necessarily the Serm. 265, in appendice $S$. Aus inverted (Caessrii Migne, Bib. Put. Latt. Som. Aug. Op. tom. v.; evidence for early Lasat. tom. sxxix), But the the enrliest ordines " on this peint is deficient, "ungendi infirmos" nustanui infirmum" or present form to a period before the 9th century Mabillon, Lit. Gall. lib, i. c. 9 ; Gerbert, Vet. Lit. Aleman. pars ii. Disquis. 5; Martene, de Antiq. Leceles. Rit. lib. i. c. vii. nrt. rii.). Compare Uncrion, p. 2004.
ii. A title ( $(\phi \phi \delta \delta o \nu)$ sometimes given to baptism in allusion to that sacrament being the spiritual provision for Christians in their way through this life (basil. Hom. siii. d: Bapt. p. 480, edit. Paris, 1618). To administer the rite of bajtism is termed (фoסid $\delta_{\epsilon i \nu}$ by Greg. Naz. (Orat. sl. de Bapt. p. 644, edit. 1630 ; Suiceri Thes. Eicolcs. sthb voc.) ${ }^{\text {644, }}$, edit. 1630
[F. E. W.]
VIATOR, Oct. 2I, martyr, minister of Justus bishop of Lyons (Mart. Usuard., Adon.); Oct. 20, translatio (Notker.) ; Dec. 14, depositio at hyons (Murt. Flor. ; Mfurt. Rom.). [C.H.]
VIbIANUS (Bibianus), Aug. 28, bishop, confessor at Suintes (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Wand.).
[C. H.]
VICAR. Though the term vicarius, or vicarius generalis, is later than the period with which wo are concerned, it is, from the nature of the csse, probable thst bishons who were either infirm or oppressed by extrsordinary labours must sometimes have had an assistant, who corresponded more or less to the "Vicar-Genersl" of modern times. In fact, Touttée (Cyrilli Opp., Vita S. Cyr. Diss. i. c. 3, p. 8) does not scruple to call Cyril, who had scted as assistsnt to his predecessor in estechising and other episcopnl offices, the VicarGeneral of Jerusslem. So Vincentius (Kuinart Acta MM. p. 366, ed. 1713) acted as the vicar of Vslerius, bishop of Sarngossa, so far as preaching was concerned. Psulinus (in Ruinsrt, p. 251) deseribes the presbyter Felix of Nola ss assisting the successive bishops Maximus and Quintus. Gregory of Nazisnzus, as he himself declsres (Oratio xviil. p. 327), while still a presbyter, sssisted his father, who was bishop of the ssme see, and afterwards performed similar offices towards Basil the Great at Csesarea. Basil had himself performed simllar services for Eusebiua (Greg. Naz. Orat. &x. p. 340). In Constantinople the Cinartophylax was a kind of vicar-general to the patriarch. For eplscopal asslatants, see Co.ndjutor, p. 398. (Biaterim, Denkwürdigheiton, Bd . I. Th. ii. p. 415 ff ; Alteserrne Asceticon, ii. 13).

2016

[C.]
VICTOR (1), Jan. 22, martyr, commemerated at Embrun with Vincentins and Orontius (Mart. Usuard., Notker., Rom.).
(2) Jan. 3I, martyr, commemorated at Alexandria with Saturninus and Thyrsus (Mart. Usuard., Fieron., Romi).
(3) Corinthian martyr under Declus, commemerated on Jan. 31 with Victorinus, Nicephorus, Clnudianus, Diodorus, Serapion, Paplas (Basil. Menol.) ; Jan. 30 (Menol. Graeo. Siriet.). Feb. 25 under Numerian in Egypt (Mart. Usuard. Vet. Rom., Adon., Notker., Rom.); Apr. 5 (Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec.); Mar. 6 at Nicomedia (Ilieron.) ; Mar. 6 at Nicomedia with Victorinus, having been tortured three years with Claudiantus and his wife Bassa (Usuari., Vet. R.m., Adon., Rom., Notker., Wand.; Boli. Acta SS. MIart, i. 423).
(4) Mar. 30, commemerated at Thessalonica with Domninus (Mart. Usuard., Hieron., Netker., Wand., Rom.).
(5) Apr. 1, martyr, commemorated in Egypt with Stephanus (Mirt. Usuard., Fieron., Rom.); May 8 (Uquard., Hieron.; Boll. Acta SS. Mai. ii. 299).
(6) Apr. 18, martyr under Diecletian, commemorated with Acindynus, Zeticus, Zeno, Severianus (Basil, Menol.); Apr. 20 (Mart. Rom. ; Mcnol. Graec. ; Bell. Acta SS. Apr. ii. 747).
(7) Apr. 20, bishop of Reme, martyr (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Fieron.); July 28 (Boll. Acta SS. Jul. vi. 534, whera see the natale discussed; Aug. 1 (Fior.).)
(8) Maurus, May 8, martyr under Maximian, commemorated at Milan (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Hieron., Wand., Rom.; Bell. Acta SS. Mai. ii. 288).
(9) May 14, martyr with Corona under Antoninus, commemorated in Syria (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Roin., IIieron., Notker., Wand. ; Boli. Acta SS. Mai. iii. 265); elsewhere Feb, 20 (IIieron.; Boll. Acta SS, Feb. iii. 173).
(10) July 21, soldler, martyr at Marseilles nnder Diocletian (Mart. Uauard., Adon., Hieron., Vet. Rom. ; Notker., Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. v. 142).
(11) July 24 , soldier, martyr at Merida with his brothers Stercatius and Antinogenus (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Tet. Rom., Notker., Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. v. 535).
(12) (Victorius, Victurius, Victurus), Aug. 25, bishop of Le Mans cir. A.d. 619 (Boli. Acta SS. Aug. v. 140).
(13) (Victorius, Vigiurivs), Sept. 1, bishop of Le Mans, cir. A.d. 690 (Mart. Usuard., Ifieron., Flor. ; Boll. Acta SS. Sept. i. 220).
(14) Sept. 10, martyr in Africa in the time of Decius and Valerian with Felix, Litteus, Polianus, and others (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Notker., Rom.).
(15) Sept. 10, martyr with Sosthenes at Chalceden (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom., Netker, Wand., Rom.).
(16) Sept. 14, martyr with Cyprlanus Crescentlanus, Rosula, Generatis, and otiers (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Rom.).
(17) Sept. 22, martyr of the Thebaean Legion (Mart. Usuard., Hieron., Rom.). [THEBAEA Legaio.]
(18) Sept. 30, martyr with Ursus, both of the Thebaean Legion (U゙hari. ; Mart. Rom.; Botl. Actu SS. Sept. viii. 201); his transtation cem. memorated at Milan (Murt. Licrun.).
(19) Oct. 10 , martyr in the territory of Cologne (Murt. Bed., Usuard., Ificron., Notker., Wand., liom.).
(20) Nov. 11, martyr under Antoninus, commemorated with Mennas and Vinceotius (Basil, Menol. ; Menol. Graeo. ; Daniel, Cod. Litury. iv. 274).
(21) Nov. 13, martyr, commemorated at Ravenna, with Solutor and Valentinus (Mart. Usuari., Ilieron., Vet. Rom., Rom.) ; Mar, 26 (Hie,on., here calling him Picter; Boii. Acta SS. Mart. iii. 617).

VICTORIA (1), Nov. 17, martyr with Acisclus at Cordova (Mart. Usuard., Adun.).
(2) Dec. 23, virgin, martyr under Decius, commemerated at Rome (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Mieron., Vet. Rom.).
[C. H.]
VICTORIANUS (1), Mar. 23, preconsul of Carthage, martyr under Hunneric, commemorated in Africa with Frumentius (Mart. Usuard, Aden., Vet. Rom., Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Mart. iii. 460).
(2) May 16, martyr with Aquilints in Isauria (Mfart. Usuard., Adon., Hieron., Vet. Rom., Rom. Notker.).
[C. H.]
VICTORICUS, Dec. 11, martyr under Maximian, commemorated at Amiens with Gentians and Fuscinnus (Mart. Usuard., Flor., Flieron, Wand., Rom.).
[C. H.]
VICTORINUS (1) Mar. 6, martyr nt Nico. media (Syr. Mart.). Fer references to him as the companion of Victor and commemorated with him on other days, see Victor (3).
(2) Apr. 15, martyr under Trajan or Nerva, commemorated in Italy with Maro and Eutyches (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vct. Rom., Netker, Rom.).
(3) July 7, martyr, commemurated at Rome with Nicestratus, Claudius, and others (Mart. Usuard., Adon. Vet. Rom., Rom.).
(4) July 19, martyr, commemorated at Synnada with Macedonius and others (Syr. Mart.).
(5) Sept. 5, martyr, brother of Severinus; commemorated at Rome (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. $R^{\prime} \cdot m$., Notker., Rom.); on the question of his Identity see Boll. Acta SS. Sept. ii. 489.
(6) Nov. 2, bishop of Poictiers, " episcopus Pitabionensis," martyr in the Diocletian persecrtien (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Rom.).
(7) Nov. 8, one of the four crowned martfif [CORONATI QUATUOR].
[C. H.]
VICTORIUS (1), May 21, martyr, commemorated at Casarea in Cappaduc:s with Polyeuctus an Notker.); Vic (Start. IIeron.

(2) Aug. 25
(3) Sept. 1 [

VICTURUs (13)].

VIGILIUS, (Mirt. Usuard.
SS. Jun. v. 165)
VIGILS (V)
waking in the ni Hocrs of Pra
(2) As a prep vigils were obser or the greater called by the $\mathrm{G}_{1}$ Peroigilia, or $P_{c}$ stom speaks ( $H / 0$ B, ed. Montfan leng vigits iinki preceded not onl Easter and Pentec the Lord's Day aspecially in the custom of the fa ceding his festiva his remains, or in Chrysostom (IHon that on the eve faithful had turne watchings ( $\delta \stackrel{1}{a}$ ? dgainst auch wat century Vigilantiu Vallarsi) proteste and disorder, and his accustomed vi (Epist. v. 17, in deseribing the cele St. Justus at Ly vigil. "We wen "before dawn; the sexes, greater than hold. After the aatiphonally by ti separited, going he to be ralily for the the moruing], when priests in the divi sppears to have be the moruing, not on festival. Such vigil Lections [see p. 25 occasionally include Arles, Sermon. 285 Works).
The interval which the vigil and the ser of great disorder. T siaging, not only in but in the out-bnildit in the chureh itself. the council of Eliheri from keepiag vigil in their excesses. A cuns (Hardnuin, Cuncilia, which took place at uürdigkeiten, V. ii. liqquiry from Theoder

VICTURUS

Vincentius

Polyeuctus ind Denatus (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Nutker.) i Vietoriaus (Murt. Rom.), Victurus (Mart. Ificron.). (2) Aug. 25 [Victon (12)].
(3) Sept. 1 [Victon (13)]. VIOTURUS or VIOTURIUS [Victor (12), 1s, both of the Rom.; Boll. inslation com. n.).
territory of son., Notker, toninus, com ceatius (basil. Col. Litury. iv.
acmorated at atinus (Mart. m.) ; Msr. 28 r; Boll. Acta martyr with d., Adon.).
r Decius, cemJsuard., Adon.,
[C. H.]
, preconsul of commenorated rart. Usuard, Acta SS. Mrrt.
ints in Isauria t. Rom., Rom.,
[C. H.]
yr under Masivith Gentinaus Flor., Hieron.,
[C. H.]
artyr at Nicoaces to him ss emornted with jan or Nerva, sad Eutyches Pom., Notker, ated nt Rome others (Mart. others (Mart. ted at Synoada Mart.).
ieverinus, comd., Adon., Fich uestion of his i. 489.
s, " episcopus letinn persect

VIGILIUS, Jan. 31, bishop of Trent, martyr (Mfirt. Usuard., Yet. Rom.) ; Jun. 26 (Boll. Acta SS. Jun. v. 165).
[c. H.]
VIGILS (Vipilite). (1) For the custom of waking in the night for prayer and psalmody, see Hocrs of Prayer, p. 798.
(2) As a prepuration for the grenter fentivals, rigils were obverred in churches for the whole or the greater part of the nigit. These were called by the Greeks navvuxifes, by the Lntins Pervigilis, or Pernoctationes. Of such Chrysostom speaks (Ilom. 4, do Verbis Esaide; vi. 121 B, ed. Montfauton). "See the boly nightlong vigila linking day to day." Such vigils preceded not only the great festivals, such as Easter and Pentecost, but also the Sabbath and the Lord's Day (Socrates, II. E. vi. 8). But aspecially in the case of a martyr it was the custom of the faithful to pass the night preceding his festival in the church which covered bis remains, or in one dedicated to him. Thus Chrysostom (Hom. de Martyr. ii. 668 D ) says that on the eve of a martyr's festival the faithful had turned night into day by their holy dgainst such watchinga at the end of the 4th century Vigilantius (Hieron, c. Figilant. p. 395, Vallarsi) protested, as giving occasion for riot and disorder, and Jerome defended them with his accustomed vigour. Sidonius Apollinaris (Epist. v. 17, in Sirmondi Opp. Tar. 1. 569) describing the celebration of the anniversary of St. Justus at Lyons, mentions the preceding vigil. "We went to the church," he says, "before dawn; there was a concourse of beth sexes, grenter than the apacious church would hold. After the vigil-office, which was sung antiphonally by the monks and clergy, we separited, going however to oo great distance, to be renty for the third hour [uine o'clock in the morning], when we were to join with the priests in the divine office." Here the rigil appears to have begun at an early hour in the morning, not on the evening preceding the festival. Such vigil-offices consisted of prayers, Lections [see p. 252] and psalms, and at least accasionally included preaching (Cacsarins of Arles, Sermon. 285 and 300 , in Augustine's Ths).
The interval which Sidonius mentions between the vigil and the service of the day was a cause of great disorder. There wrs often doncing and siuging, not only in the neighbouring honses, but in the out-buildings of the church, and even in the church itself. As early as the year 305 the council of Eliberis (c. 35) prohibited women from keeping vigil in cemeteries on account of their excesses. A constitution of king Childebert (Hardouin, Concilia, iij. 3:34) notices the riots wuindig took place ot vigils. Binterim (Densvündipkeiten, V. ii. 154) quotes an article of inquiry from Theodore oi Canterbury, complaining of the indecent sperts whlch were somelimes practised in vigils.
There is in early times no indication that fasting whe a condition of a vigil. Chrysostom, indeed, in the homily delivered at dintioch after the earthquake (il. 718 n ), seems to sppaik ns if fasting was connected with the vigil; but this was on a very special oceasion of humiliation. Gregory of Tours (llist. Franc. x. 31) says that Perpetnus, in the latter half of the 5th century, arranged the fasts and vigils which were to be observel thronghout the year, but there is nothing to indieate that the fants and the vigils were identical. Niectus, however (De Jigiliis, c. 4, in D'Achery's Spicileyium, iii. 6), tlocs warn his monks to prepare themselves by abstinence for a vigil as for a divine mystery. Pope Nicholas 1. (858867) in his Responsio cid Bulyaros (Mansi, xy, 420) enjoius a fist before the Assumption of the Virgin Mary and before the Nativity of the Lurd. Regiao (Concil. Germ. ii. 482) quotes a cman of ancertain date, in which presbyters are desired to give notice to the people not only of testivala to be observel but also of vigil-fasts (jejunia vigilitrum). We may any therefore that the observance of a vigil by fasting came to be usual not later than the 9th century. Vigils aro of rare occurrence in the oldest colendars. [Calemdar, p. 258.]
(Bingham, Antiq. XIII. ix. 4; Binterim, Denkwiirdigkciten, Bd. V. Th. ii. p. 152 fi.) [C.]
VIGOR, Nov. 1, bishop of Baycur, confessor (Mart. Usuard., Ifieron.). Bayeux, confessor
[C. H.]
VINCENTIUS (1), Jnn. 22, deacon, martyr in Spain (Murt. Bed., Usuard., Flor., Adon., Mieron., Vet. Rom., Rom., Notker., Wand. ; Basil'. Menol. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. ii. 394) ; commemorated this day in the Gregorian Sacramentary, being named in the collect and Ad Complendum. $\mathrm{H}_{8}$ is nlso celebrited in the Liber Antiphonarius of Gregors, p. 664.
(2) Jan. 22, martyr, commemornted with Orontius and Victor at Embrun (Mart. Usuard., Notker., Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jma. ii. 389).
(3) Apr. 19, martyr at Colibre (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Hieron., Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Apr. il.
621).
(4) May 24, martyr nt Portus Remannes (Mart. Usuard, Adon., Hieron., Vet. Rom., Notker., Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Mai. v. 281).
(5) Abbnt of Lerins, commemerated on May 24 in modern martyrologies (Boll. Acta SSS. Mai. v. 284).
(6) June 9, deaeon, martyr at Agen (Mart. 166). Hieron., Rom.; Boll. Acta SJ. Jun. li.
(7) July 24, martyr, commemornted at Rome on the Via Tiburtinn (Mart. Usuard., Aden., Vet. Rom., Rom.) ; July 23 (Hieron., Notker.).
(8) Aug. 25, martyr under Commodus, commemorated with Eusebius, Pontianus, Peregrinus (Mart. Usuartl, Adon., Vet. Rom., Liom.)
(9) Oct. 27, martyr at Arila, commemorated with Sabina and Christeta (Mart. Usuard., Adon., V'et. Rom., Wand., Rom.).
(10) Nov. 1I, martyr, cor

Meunas, Victor, Stephanus iil. Menol.;

2018

VINE

Afcnol. Aracc. Sirlet. 1 Daniel, Cod. Liturg. iv. 27.1).

There was n church namell nfter $S t$. Vincentius at Constiatinople in the reign of Justinian (Theoph. Chronig. p. 190, am. A.c. 550 ) Du Cesngr', C'polis. Christ, lib, IV. p. 196). [C. 11.]

VINE (in Art). (Sce John xv. 1 ; Psaim Ixxix. ; lsinhe v.). The vine is the most ancient subject of Christisn art, perhaps without excepitlig the Good Shepherd, with which it is so frequently combined [see Sakpuerd, the Goui], It is one of the foremost of the symbols chusen by our lord llimself from the natural things around 11 im , ns the nneient vines on Mount Olivet atill remind the traveller. lts carliest examples in Christian fresco are probsbly the vine of St . Domitilla [Fresco, p. 693], and those of St. Practextatus (ib.). The stuccoes of the tomb on the Latin Way, woodeut No. 1 (Bottari, tsp.

So. 1, From a tomb on the Latin Way, (Bottarl, tav, zelil.)

rciii.; Aringhi, ii. 29), certsinly existed in Bosio's time, though now unknown, and aeem to have been of the 2od century. The grest vine of the Callixtine Cemetery (woodcut No. 2) is prohably of high antiquity, and is the bestknown instance of the graceful naturalism of the Christian classic style of decoration (ijottari, tar. Ixsiv.; Aringhi, i. 669). In mosair, the vines of St. Constantia in Rome are perhapis the earliest example (see l'arker's Jfusuics of Rome and Ravenna, and a fine fac-simile in the South Kensington Musenm). The vine of Galla l'lacidia's tomb, woodeut No. 3 (combined, like most of the others, with the Good or Roval Shepherd), dates about A.I. 450 , sud is highly interesting ns compared with the stuccoes and slso with the Callistine vine.

VINE

No. 8. Tomb of Galla Plecialin. TParker's Muaice of Rome anil butenna.)

The three modes of trestment are so distinetly related to each other and to the Domitills example, and give so clear an illustration of the progress or retrogress from classic naturalism to Byzantine formalism of the highest order, still retnining classic beanty, that woodents are given here to illustrate them.

It is surprising to sec how far the vine has ahsred the sate of the Good Shepherd, so as to exist no more as a sacred emblens after the first five or six centuries. lts heathen or ethnic or human use welit on; but the use of the vioe becomes idly decorative, in churches and houses alike. However, its eculpture is a little later than ita painting, and as important. The porphyry sarcophagus of St. Cunstantin (Aringhi, ii. p. 157) has been photographed by Mr, Parker. See Aringhi, i. 307-9, fcr vines on unquestionably Christian sareophagi, St. Constantia's being by no mesns certain. See also Parker, No. 2917, for a qusint and besutiful sarcophagus, evidently by some zealous and ingenions workmen, perhsps of the 3rd century, who cared more for his subject than for the exemplaris Graeca of his art. Again, Bottari, i. p. 1. There wns, in 1871, a curious sercophagus in St. Vitsle at Rarenna, where the mind of the sculptor seemed to have been bent on the vine and the scanthns at the ssme moment. The rine of the columns of Torcello is a late type of GraecoByzantine work of the highest order (Stuncs of Venice, if. plate 3).

For the vine or grnpes on lamps, see Aringhi, i. 517, for two exsmples, also ii. 648, with the Good Shepherd. Grapes are cut on tombe of varlous $\mathrm{k} / \mathrm{r}$ Fabretti, 581 resemblance kial at t.yone Lyons, 1843-5 Dict. of the this be infers $t$ the symbol en rence to a Prom a glass in Garru inscription, " lr which would ce and historical Millin, Midi de for Gallic sarco Nevertheless, obvious truth, rine or its frul histozic symboli The first written is that of Pascha pore et Sanyuine ed. Colon. He genii with ears o besring grapes, o Arles sarcophag pl. Iviii. No. 5) Roysl Library at 52) with e vine-t esrs on each bide. elements. But tl Christisn aymboli Lord's words in Hie servants are $t$ while they abide i:

VIRGINS. It

 the 2 ad century of feefing in favour on the part of $b$ tendency is not fou io the Epistle of 1 though uader alleg of Hermas (Sim. (Apol. i. 15) epenk of sixty and sevent disciples of Christ themselves uacorru c. 32) nses almost (ado. Graecos, 32, Gentiles their taunt the ead of the centu relation of Christiani promiaently into di prevalence of Monts of Tertullian, de Vel Aortatione Castitatis, forth by a zealous ad tion Origen (c. Cel Christinas who dedic of virginity for the $s$ the pagin priestessea sake of worldly hon probably for the firs the idea that virginit msrriage. Clement o 558) and Tertulliad ( agree with those whe or fidoshood above that "facile est nod but Cyprian gives the (o. g. De Habitu Viry.
virgins

of various kinde (Lupl, Sev. Epitaph, p. $182 ;$ Fabretti, 581). Martigny points to a strong resentinnee bet wsen certain earvings of this Iypms, 1844-54) sad Jewish, Inscr. Antil. de Dict. of the Ribte, fii. pl. 3, pp. 17-19. Yrom this he infers that both Jews and Christings rom the symberf ench in their own sense, with reference to a Promised Land. This is confirmed by a glass in (Garrueci( (ietri, tav, ii. No. 9 ), with tha which inoun, "In Den, Anima Dulcis, Pie Zesea," Which would certainly connect the sacramental Millin, Mididide la Erance, the aymbol. See also for Gallic sareophagi.

Nevertheless, as nbvious truth, the eucharistio remarks with vine or its fruit is later tha menning of the histotic symbolism of the peran of original or The first written evidence on this point he Lorv. is that of Pasehasius in the oth this contury, he says, Cor. pore et Sanguine Christi, e. x. t. ix. Dibl.' Put Corve, ed. Colon. He mentions a sculptare in which genii with ears of corn are combined with which bearing grapes, of about the same date. It is an Arles sarcophagos (Millin, Sfidi de la Prance, Rayel Library 5). There is an amethyst in the 52) with e vine-atock and (Prret, iv. pl.t. xvi. No. ears on ench side. Both these may point to the elements. But the real meaning of the rine of Christian aymbolism is that assign ned it by our our Lord's words in St Lord'e words in St. John xv. He is the vine, while they abide in Him.

[R. St. J. T.]
VIRGINS. It is clear that in the course of the 2ad century there arose a strong current of feeling in on the part of both men and wommarringe tendency is not found in Clement of Rome, This in the Epistle of Berrabons, but it is apparcut though under allegorical forms, in the Shepherd of Hermas (Sim. 9, 10, 11). Justln Martyr (Apol. i. 15) spenka of "many men and women of fixty and seventy of sixty and seventy yearrs ofd who have been disciples of Chret themseive curcorrupted." Affacy, and have kept
c. 32) oseagoras (Legat. C. 32) ases almost similar langugge. (Tatian (addo, Graecos; 32, 33) fings back upon the Geotiles their thunts the end of the century the whistian virginity. At relation of Christianity to marriage was wrought of the prominently into discussion by the rise and prevalence of Moontanism; ;ndd in the rise and of Tertullian, de Velandis $V$ irginizus and do $d$ ses hortatione Castitatio horratione Castitatis, the Mootanist view is set forth by a zealous advocate. In the tica Origen (c. Cels. 7,48 ) contrasts the Christinas who dit Christians who dedicated themsel contras to to the of virginity for the sake of virsinives to a it life the parian priestessese with the pagia priestesses whe did so ooly for the sate of worldy honour In Col sare of worldly hoonour. In Cyprian wo find, probabiy for the first timee the the Idea that virgiaite is in in titself expression of marriage. Clement of Alexandrin Strom than ${ }^{558}$ ) and Tertullian (ad $\begin{aligned} & \text { Oxar. 1, 8) appenr to } \\ & \text { to }\end{aligned}$ agree with those who place married continence or widdowhood above virginity on the ground that "facile est non appetere quod nescias;"
but Cyprisp

virgins

In the Apostolienl Constitutiona the anme relutire raak appears to be implied in the metaphor, that whe wherens widows are ithe auglagThpoov, or allur of sucrifico, virgius are the altare npuon whigus are the evulathpoov, the log of incenve (Const. Aposed the purer wiffer-the earlier and later book of thees betwaen Constitutions that in 2,25 of the Aprestolical willows ; 2, virgins; whereas in the order is 1 , Inter books the order is reversed). apeaks of the fict that girist of tender Athanasins vows of peryetanl pigh of tender yenws took power of Christ in virginity ns a proof of the tinence (lie Imarind fostering the virtho of conJe rusalem (Cat ches, 4, 24, 1 ); and Cyril of Lyist. 107 (57) ad Lutietium, e. 7; S. 1licron. E:pist. 150), speaks of those who hud tahen sucin vows as tiving a life like who had tahen sucin but with the exception of that of the angels; decem Virginum of Methotiuy (printed in Migne P. G. vol, xvili. 27 sqia, the (printed in Migne of virgiaity which ehatracterise somo the pater literature are almost altogether absent ithe

from the genuine asd orthodox wirting abvent from tour centuries; those writings of the first tnin the centuries; those writiags nodoubterily conis a significant fact the developments, but it developments required that, when those harrer fithers, spurions treatise support of the earlier e. g. those of S. A thanansius do Viryinufictured, P. G. vol. xxvifi. 251, and of Vityinitute, Migne, Bened. vol. I. p. G18.) The St. Basil, Op. ed. the church seams to be expressed in ther view of which the Apoatolical Coxpressed in the language mouth of the apostles: "About put into the have received uo commandment ; but we wing we it ns a vow to thoue wndment; but we permit this upon them-that they wish it, ouly urging fession rashly. . . For one make ant nny pro. profession, doing works the who has inade a profession, must whews that are worthy of her true, and that it Is made to her profession is religion, and not to cast a alur her leisure for(Comst. Apost. 4, 14). Those girls or wome sel ves to lives of virginity thus devoted thema separate class or "or came in time to form. the single passage of the the church. In proximately genuiue, of the genuine, or aprefers to them, they with widows (ud sey are apparently co-crdinated passage is obscure, Smyra. c. 13. The text of the discussion : the in Gebhardt and Har heree tanken is that of Zahn ii. p. 95, which is siron Patres Apostolici, fusc. glose on the cores sirongly confirmed by the polated epistle, eorresponding passage in the inter${ }^{\text {pointed }}$ epistle, and also by Pseudo-Ignat. ad treats in succession Pofy (ad Philipp. c. 4, 5) men, and sircessina, which of wes, widows, young indication that virgius had may be taken as an the distinct status which not as yet acquired nor do they appeer to haich they piltimately had; the time when the earlier had such a status at Constitutions were writtent of the Apostolical certnin evidence of writen; nor is there any distinct "orrio" of their being regarded as a order of "holy virgins," or "century. This

Jerusalem (Sozom. /I. E. 2, 2; 放ocrat. II. E. 1, 17), Whore the empreas Helena ansunbled them and waitod on tham at supper; In l'ersia (Sozum. 9 11, 12) at Alexandria, where Constantine Writes, affoep the death of Arius, to the "flerks aud Bulf tsigias," eajoiphig quietaens (ibid. 2, 31); and at incomolia (ibid. 8, 23). Their exiateace is also inupitiol fif the fact that Constantine divinion for them as wali autlor widows (Iucert. Auct. de Constant, inp. Iiseacl, Corpus Leyum, p. 196). The exteni of their existence may be measured by the violence of the Arian reaction against them; whatever was priaed by the Cutholie party wam profancd by the Arian purty; and this comparatively new institution of an order of holy virgias seems to have excited an eapecial sphrit of antagonism. The Iudignities to which the virgins were subjected are mentionad by many contemporary writers, e. If. St. Athanas. E'pint. Fincyel. e. 3, Apol. ad Constant. Jirp. c. 33 ; Socrat. II. E. 2,28 ; S. HIlar. Yictav. ad Constant. Auy. 1, 6, sud Fruym. Ilist. 2, 3; 3, 9, ap. Migne, P. L. vol, x, pp. 561, 633, 665 ; S. Greg. Naziauz. Orat. 4is in luud. Basil. SI. e. 46, p. 805 ; and Orut. 33, c. Arinnos, c. y, p. 605. A similar inference may be drawn from the pagan reaction nuder Jullas; that part of that reaction was directed egninst this institutlon of virgins is clear from S. Greg. Nazianz, Orat. 4 ; c. Julian. c. 87, j. 12i, and sozom. II. EE. 5, 5, who mentions that Juliau went se far as to require virgins and widows who, under the regulation of Constantine, had received allowances from the state to refund them. After this time the references to them are frequent. Basil (Epist. Cunons. 2 ad Amphiloch. e, 18) nad Cyril of Jerusalem (Cateches.
 and, probably about the asme time, the spurions ejpistles of Ignatius speak of ro $\sigma$ viar $\eta \mu a$ тây rapoívov (ad Philipp. c. 15) and exhort Christians to honour them as consecrated to Christ (ad Tars. c. 9). As an "ordo" or class they were td tdjua râv trapoévan (S. Basil, Epist. Canon. 2, ad Amphiloch. c. 18 ; S. Cyrili. Hierosol. Cuteches. 4, 24, p. 64; so, probably about the Ignat. ad I'hilipp. c. 15. As individuala, they were, like tio Virgin Mary who was constuntly beld before the m as their pattern, "handmaicie of the Lord " ( $\delta$ obin roù Ecoû on a tombstone at Sinyrna, A.d. 540; Corpus Inacr. Graec. no. 9277 ; cf. ibich. nos. $9286,9324,9448$; ao in the West " puella Dei," 1 Conc. Tolet. c. 6).

It is not clear by what external sigas the row of virginity was indicated in the first three centuries. There is no mention of any special ceremony, and the fact of Cyprian writing on exhortatory treatise, De Habitu V'irginum, in which he urgee those who had taken such a vow to have nothing to do with worldly ornamenta (" quid iatac cuis "orreno cultu et cam ornamentis," c. 5), she that as yet there was no special dresa, But, the :curse of the fourth century two exte"nal : , he rove came to be adopted, the weav:, $\therefore$ ajiv-cols, ed drese, and the ceremony $j^{\prime}$ cow eving witin a veil. The first of these wem b:A :aby adopted in the time of Jerome: " virginem apopenderir. pulla suatica eam induere et furvo operire pallio, auferre linteamenta; $\ldots$ allis veru e contra videtur" (S. Hieron. Ep,ist.

128 (98) cul Gubulent. vol. 1. p. 961, ed. Vallars. 8 et. id. Hipial. 107 (57) ad Letiom, e. 3, vol. io 1. 683 ; Ejpisf: it (21) ad Marcellam, vol. I. p. 120). A fow yeasu later Leo the Great spenk of "virgiaitatis proponituan atque habitun," as though by that tinie the adopition of a apechal dress hul become usnal (S. J.eon. M. E.pist. 167 ad liustio Jarbow. 0. 15, vol. 1. p. 1423). Sueh a change of stess was not only a voluntary net, but was not necessarily attended by may special ceremony: a Spanish council of the sevpath century forbids any who have ailupted it to return to the acoular life ( 10 Conc. Tolet. A.b. 650, a. 5), but this stern rule does not appenr elsewhere, and the fact of lts being enacted and of the severe penalties by which it had to bo enforced, shew that it had not up to that titne been universally recognised even in Spain. The second mark of the adoption of a vow of virginity seems to have arisen out of the metaphor which is found as early as the time of Cyprian (e.g. E'pist. 4 (62), P. 472, ed. Harte]), and which is treated as a common expression by Athanawlus (Apol. ad Constantin. Imp. c. 33), that a girl who had vowed virginity was a "bride of Christ." The peetry of the metaphor (which survives e.g. in Methodius, Cunviv. Deo. Wirg. Orat. 11, c. 1, 1. $20^{\circ}$, where the virgins sing a hymn with the lated into visible acts. The virgin was publicly vested with the bridel veil (" finmmeum Christi," S. Hieron. Epist. 147 (93) ad Shbinian. vol, i. p. 1090; Epist. 108 (86) ad Eustoch. vol. I. p. 723). This was a solemn and irrevocable net. It could only be performed ( $a$ ) by a bishop, sad, (b) upparently, on a great festival ; for tha istter polnt, ef. Ambros, E.short. Virgin. c. 7, vol. H. p. 288, "venit paschae dies, in tote orbe baytismi sacramenta celebrantur, velantur sacrae vir gines ;"Gelaxius, Epist. al Episc. Lucan. $=$ Decret. General. c. 14, ap. Hinachiue, p. 652, ellews Epiphany, Easter, or the Nativity of an apostle for the furmer point ef. S. Hieron. Epist. 130 (97) cd Demetriud. vol. i. p. 976, scio quod al imprecationcm pontificis flammeum virginalem annctum operuerit caput ; the absolute restriction ot the veilirg of a virgin to a bishop buleaga to an African councl of uncertain dato, 2 Conc. Carthag. c. 3, and to later times, 2 Conc. Hispal. A.D. 618, c. 7, Conc. Rotom, A. D. 650, c. 9, 6 Cobe. Paris, A.D. 829, lib. i. c. 41, 43, in all of which prasbyters are prohibited; Caroli M. Capit. Aquisgran. A.D. 780, c. 75, prohibits abbesses $;$ in the other hand 3 Conc. Carth. e. 36, silows preabyters to act with the consent of the bishry. The reason for thls restriction to bisht,ps why probably the desire to uphold the digni? profesaion of chastity; it was fitting tast the "sanctiores purioresque hostiae," who were thus offered upon the altar of God, should be effered "per summam sacerdotem" (Epist. ad Claudiam surorem de J'irginitate, c. 1, ascribed erroneously to Sulplelus Servius, and printed by Halm as so appendiz to his works in the Vicuna Corpus Script. Lat. vol. 1.).

The act of vciling came to be accompanied with ceremonies. Basil apeaks of the vow being aken "before God and angels and men, the reneratole gathering of clergy, the holy band of virgis $s$, the ansembly of the Lord and the charch of th. sainta" (S, Basil. Epist. 46 (5) ad Virg. Lap: g. 136). Augusting aeems to imply that there was a fea ap Migne, P. aponhuretrim gr presalon may Lo, Lipos Víyo averibed ta Ami rol. fi. 11. 805 ; an Eifinul MS. o Nicetas, bishop, Io Lisle, Cum, $t_{1}$ scriptions, 1877. of the coreuroni the lapsed (i.e. row "in trato elesiee Dei [sc. phytorum milen cuelestis quasj I ejuthulamion of rung over her; a peopie in thair si were, her aphritus later rituals in pro coruin ap. Miry 11. 461), which for the Loonine Sace: the Gelasian Sict sad the Gregoria p. 88; the situa p. 141, contains and with some rul Codex Matteianus different.

There was the those who hald "c who had "taken there wan a limit 2 ad Amphiloch. sixteen or seventse his time there wus veiling of virgins they were of matu is a question of sob lapse of time ( S . rol. ii. p. 223). B century the civil virgins until they a that any one who before that age is goods (Novell. Ma A.D. 458 , ed. Haen august. A.D. 381 ? (A.D. 506 c. 19) and S. Leon. M. p. 67) that of sixty youry rode (Coul. Eccl:s. tines the Caroungiti firt. A.D. 79.4, c. 4 gum, vol, i. p. 74, H1 A.D. 817, c. $26 \mathrm{np} . P$ p. 209) fix the a canonists made a di "velum profensionis, twelve years of age ; at twenty-five; (3) forty ; (4) "veluns (5) "relum continent widows, and for whi vester Prierns, ie. Mz s.r. Consecrutio, ed. Durandus, Rationale, different order).
In erder to prote el. Vallares 4 c. 5 , vol. cellum, vol. h Great apenks habitum,"" na o of a npeciul M. Epist. 167 142d). Sneh voluntary net, by any special the seventh ulopted it to 20. Tolet. A, D, es not appear enacted anil It had to be to that the 3 Spain. Tha W of virginity etaphor which Cyprian (e.g. and which in by Athamavius bat a girl whe le of Chriat." hich survives . Orat. 11, c. 1, ymn with the бot) was transwas publicly neum Christi," Ibinian. vol. 1. ustoch. vol. I. rrevocable nat. a bishoy, and, ; for the Jatter b. c. 7, vol. il. orbe baptismi r bacrae vir. ucan. $=$ Decret. . 652, allews of an nyoutle; on. Epist. 130 , aclo quod au m virginalem solute restric. blshop boloags 1 date, 2 Conc. 2 Conc. Hispal. j0, c. 9, 6 Conc. in all of which 'oll M. Capit. ts abluesses ; on c. 36 , Biluns of the bishep, to bisheys wna dignity if tting that the who were thus ould be offered st. ad Claudum oed erroneousty by Halm as an Vienea Corpus

be accompanied

 the vow being men, the rese holy band of and the church 66 (5) ad Virg. to imply thatvinoins
 ap Migne, P'. L., vill, xaxill. 645, "velationia nyophouretum gratinalite nceppimus," but the exprestion may he metaphurical), The treatine 20 lupgs Vigginis consecratue, e. 5 (wommetines ancribed to Ambruse, and printed in hiw works, vol. ii. p. 805 ; more recently, on the strength of nn Epinal Ms, of the uighth century, aseribed to Nicetan, bishop; of Romnelann In Servia; aee seriptions, 18i7, in 274), dives a verivid des itof the ceremonies, which hat taken pluce when the lapped (i.e. married) siater hud taken her vow "in thato tamyue entemni courentulu eeclemae Del [sc. at Easter], Juter iuniun neoophytorum splendida, inter candidiatoo regni tung over her; And the pruyorna of the hamembled reople in their mhanited "A men " hasi beech, an it were, hur apiritual dowry. The earilest of the Juter rituasis ia probably that of the Missale $F$ rancormm ap. Muratorl Lit. Rom. Vet. vol. lii. 11. 460, which for the most part colincildee with the Luonine Sacrumentrry, ibid. vol. 1. p. 719, the Gelasian Sicramentury, ibid. vol. .i. p. p. 222, and the Gregurlan sacramentary, ibidi, vol. it. P. 880 ; the rituut of Hittorp's Orch Romanus, p. 141, cuntains the sume prayers with others, and with some rubrical directions ; that of the difilerent.
There was the further distlinction between thave who had "chnanged their dress" nad those there was a taken the veil," that for the intter there was a limit of age. Banil (Limst. Canon.
2 ad Amphiloch. c. 18 ) nllows it at the sixteen or aevententa. $\mathbf{c}$. 18 nillows it at the age of sirteen or aeventeen. Ambrose mentions that in hia time there wus $n$ controverxy whether the veling of virgins should not be deferred until they were of mature years, and decidea that it If a question of sobriety of character nud not of lapse of time (S. Ambros. de Viryinitate, e. 7, vol. ii. p. 223). But in the course of the finth century the civil Inw disallows the veiling of century the civil Inw disallows the veiling of rirgins until they are forty yeirs old, and euact, that any one who canses $n$ rirgio to be veiled before that age is to be fined $a$ thiyd of his goods (Novell. Majorina, tit. 6, e. $1, \S 1,2$, A.D. 458, ed. Hnenel, p. $306 ;$ so Conc. Caesur-nugust. A.D. 381 P c. P). The council of Agside (A.D. 506 C. 19) nd the Liller Pontificalis (Vit.
S. Leon. M. p. 67) fix a still Inter puriod viz.
. that of sixty. yuars of age ; buit the Africad code (Cod. Eccl:s. Afric. c. 16 ) nid in later tines the Caro. inglian enpituluries (Cupit. Eranajurt. A.D. 794, с. 46, np. Pertz. M. H. G. Legua, vol. i. p. 74, Hluyowici I. $C$, prit. Ayuivgran. ${ }^{\text {A.D. }}$. 817 , c. 26 ap. Pertz, M. H. G. Jegunn, vol. i. p. 209) , fix the age at twenty-fire. (Later caronlust calonists made a distinction bet ween (1) the "velumn provensionis," which might be taken twelve yenrs of age; $;(2)$ " velum consecerationis" at at twenty-five ; (3) "velum ordinationis" at forty; (4) "velum pralationis" at sixty; (3) "velum continentiae," which was proper to , widows, and for which no age is specified (Sil-veter Prierns, ie. Mazolinus retter Prierns, ie. Mazolinus, Silrestrina Summus, s.r. Conseetritio, ed, Autwer Surandus, Rationale, Aut 1, 45, 1581, p. 173; Durandus, Rationale, it. 1, 45, puts these in a difierent order). different order).
lo order to protect the virginity of those virains
2.121

Weclucting thaten the vow arose the custom of secluding them. Tha rustom exinted an unrly as the time of Turtillim, whos speaka of is as cllin (ireece prevailed in wome churches of huth Greece and Atricn (de Ve'ond. Iirg. o. 2). The virgina lived of apecial houses fo which anch virgins lived tugethrer is in the nildide of the fourth century; kileusius was baniahed by (Suzom. II. $E$ y ing founded napetyayay at ('yzichs

 s. Basi. M. c. n2, vol, i. p. 817); and Ambrose "lieaks of " "sncrarjum virginifatis" as existing at Bolugna (de lirginims, \}. 10, vol. 1i. p. 160). In (II. E. & &an organization prevailed; Sozomen (II. E. B. 23) speaks if the virgin Nicarete, ns having prasses an the best woman he ever knew, as having refused frequent anlicitations to prealde over the church virgina; and of Matrona na hav.
 Athananina in his life of the menk Anthony apenks of hla sister na having been placed enrly in life In a rapoivou, where she nfterwarda became
 it. S. Anten. c. 2, 54, vol. 1. pp. 6i4, b68). thove who thia seclusion became the rule; merely "changed thelr, whether they hat "professane," or whe ther dress" and were veil and were "whether they had received the in monasteries velntae," or "consecratac," Hived and organization were nuns. For their history and organization reference most be mado to other nrticles (Nun; Monastery).
A virgin who married after tuking a vow was subject always to censure, and sometimes to peanlties. Cyprian spoke of such on one ns "non maritil sel Christi adultern" (de Mabitu Virgin. 0. 20 and Epist. 4 (62), ed. Hartel, p. 476 ), and the phrase was often repeated, e.g. by 138 Bail, Epist. 46 (5) ad Virginem lapsain, p. 138; but Augnstine repudlates It , and will not allow that marriage after a vow of continence is adultery (de liono liduitatis, c. 10). Leo the Great treats it as a case of "praevaricatio " or double-dealing (Epist. 167 ad Rustic. Nirbon. c. 15) ; but both Jerome (ado. Jovin. lib. i. 15, vol. ii. p 258, ed. Vallars.) nnd Gelaius (Epist. 9. ad Episc. Lmean. c. 22) apply to it the stronger term "incest." The civil law made marriage with a dedicated virgin penal ; Con stantinua in 354 (Cod. Theorloo. 9. 25, 1) enacted a severe penalty upon thove who made attempta on the chastity of virgins, whether with or without their consent; ten years later Jovian, happe counter reaction against what had happened under Juliaa, went so far as to enact that even the solicitation of $n$ virgin or widow, willing or unwilling, was not merely penal but capitel (Cod. Theodos, 9. 25. 2, Sozom. H. IF 6. 3) ; but the euactment, though preserved in Cod. Justin. 1.3. 5, probably fruled from excessive sererity, since in 420 Honorius and Theodosius imposed the mildsr, though still ocvere, pewalty of ennfiscation and deportation; but Majorian, Novell. tit. 6.1. 4, re-enacted the penalty of Jorian, with the addition of confiseation. The Barbarian Codes follow the prinefple of the Clvil lam; the fulerpretatio and two Epitcmes of the Visignthic Code punish the rirgin or Widow as well as the man (Lex Romana Visigothorum, ed. Hsenel, p. 195) : the laws of Luitprand make fo seiture the plequlty of marriage even with one who has been dedicated by her parenta, or herself taken a vow, without having been veiled (Leges Luitprandi, e 30, A.D. 723, in Gengler's Gurmanische liechtsdenkmüler, p. 556 ) ; the Bnvarian code makes the penalty for such marriage twice the ordinary composition for the abduction of a married woman (Lex Baiuwariorum i. 11, textus primus, ap. Pertz, Legum, vol, iii. p. 276); in the Frankish domain, Lothair l. simply forbad such marringes (Chlothacharii 1. Coustitut. c. 8, A.D. 560, Pertz, Lejum, vol. i. p. 2) ; but Lothair II. made even the attempt to marry capital (Chlothacharii II. Edict. c. 18, A.D. 614 , Pertz, vol. i. p. 15). The ecclesiastical pedalty for virgins who married was excommunication, for a longer or shorter periol. The leadiog enactment' of a general couucil is that of Chalcedon, c. 16; of local Western councila the chief enactments are the following. The council of Elvira A.D. 305 , c. 13 , condemns them to perpetual excommunication; the first comncil of Valence, A.D. 374 , c. 2 , will not admit them to penance until after the lapse of a long time; the first council of Toledo, a.d. 398, e. I6, will not readmit the offender to communion unless ahe lives, even during her husband's lifetime, a life of continence; the first council of Orange, A.D. 441 , c. 28 , treats the offence, as Leo the Great had done, as a case of "pracvaricatio;" the second council of Arles, A.D. 45I, limits the excommunication to those who were above "twenty-five" years of age; the council of Vannes, A.D. 465 , c. 4 , treats such a marriage as adultery; the council of Lerida, A.D. 323, c. 6, treats it as "stuprum;" the third council of Orleams, A.D. 538 , c. 16 , treats it as "raptus," and makes the excommunication perpetual: 80 also the secend council of Tours, A.D. 567, c. 20 , the first of Mâcon, A.D. 58I, c. 12, and the fifth of Paris, A.d. 615, c. 13. So also in Spain; the sixth council of Toledo, A.D. 638, c. 6 directs those who persist in anch a marriage to be "banished from all Christian aociety, so that not even talk be had with them." (The canons seem alwaya to avoid the honourable word for marringe to be used in reference to such cases; but that "rapere" is used not in its ordinary civil sense, but only to cast a stigma upon such marriages is shewn, c.g. by the council of Reims, A.D. 625 , c. 23 , which.implies that the " raptor" sometimes had the king's consent, or was supported by other legitimate authority.
[E. H.]
VIRGINS, THE WISE AND FOOLISH. A curious painting of an arcosolium, in which the part of the parable relating to the wise virgina is unquestionably treated, was found by © Bosio in the cemetery of St. Agnes at liome (Bottari, Scult. e Pitt. &c. tav, cxlviii.). In the centre is a woman in the attitude of prayer, probably intended for the person buried in the tomb, robed in a dalmatic, with two bunda of purple down the front. At her fect, representing the soul of the deceased, is a dove with ontspread wings, and as if listening for the voice of her mate (Cantic, ii. 10). On the right of this female figure stand the five wise virgins, similarly clad in dalinatics with purple bands, each bearing in her right hand a torch, and carrying in her left by the handle a ressel of oil (St. Matt. xxv. 4). The leader of the five, who is knocking at the door of the room where the fenst is guing on, has her torch lighted. On the left of the praying figure five other women, also intended no doubt for the wise virgins, are seated at $n$ table on which are two dishes, a flagon, and two loaves.

There is also in the cemetery of Cyriaca, a painting in fresco of the same subject, more fully trented, the foolish virgins being also representel. They are standing on the left hand of the Saviour, easily recognizable by their extinguishedtorches and down-cast looks. Our Lord, turning to the wise virgins, points out to them the heavenly feast to which they are invited (De Rossi, Roma Sott. p. 76). De Rossi thinks thst this fresco, so frar unique of its kind, indientes that the tomb is that of a virgin consecrated to heaven; a conjecture deriving much probability from a trust worthy tradition of a convent on the same spot. The sarcophagus under the fresen exhibits on its front face a figure in the attitude of prayer, $v$ hile two other figures of ssiuts, thought t.a ',e intended for SS. Peter and Jaul, are drawing back a curtain and ushering the aoul into paradise (Martigny, Dict. des Antig. Chret. a. v. 'Vierges Folles, &c.). [E. C. H.]

VISITATION. The right of personal visitation appears to have been considered as ioherent in every office that conferred anthority or imposed responsibility for the maintenance of discipline. Thus it belonged (i) to metropolitans in their provinces. Bingham (Antiquities, ii. c. $16, \S 18$ ) thinks that the right of visitation is implied in the ninth canon of the council of Antioch, A.D. 34I, which asserts that the metropolitan received the care ( $\tau$ 立 $\nu$ $\phi \rho о \nu \tau(\delta a \quad \alpha v a \delta \in \chi \in \sigma \theta a i)$ of nll the dioceses in his province. But the wording of the canon, which goes on to assign as a reason that all men who had any busidess in hand visited the metropolitan city to transact it, seems rather to point to some supreme power of jurisdiction to be exercised in the metropolis itself, as having been in the minds of the framers of the canon (cf. Bracar. II. c. 4 ; Bruns, Conc. ii. p. 44). Clearer language is employed by the conncil of Turin, A.D. 401 (Conc. Taurinense, c. 2), which, in deciding between the rival claims of the bishops of Arles and Viende to the office of metropolitan, decrees that each should viait the clurches which were contiguous to his own see (eas ecclesias visitet quas oppidia suis vicinas magia esse constitunt). The council of Lertimn, A.D. 743, or Boniface (Ep. Ixx.), decrees that it is the duty nasigned by the canons to metropolitans to look into the lives of the bishops of his province and the way in which they discharged their duties. Oceasional notices of metropolitan visitations sre met with in eurly writers. Thus Possidonius (Vit. Augist. c. 8) speaks of Megilius, primate of Numidia, arriving at Hippo in the course of his visitation toul, and Bede (Hist. Eccl. iv. 2) speaks of Theodore, archbishop of Canterbury, as passing through the whole island, ordaining bishops where they were needed and actiug right all things which he found in disorder.
(ii) But tho duty of visitation especially belonged to hishops in their dioceses. [B1suor, p. 232.] The councila were continually [sj: ing down rules for the punctual performance of this duty an transaicted.
(a) Visitations every parish. Tl (Cunc. Lucense, orders a new div licia, on the grou dition they were risitation. The (c. 8), orders th yearly visitations of such churches The second counc (Bruns, Conc. ii. should visit every the first day, inqu their duty, in ord s3ry he might inst especially with ref for the exorcism mens during the baptism. On the s the people and in both as to belief mention is here $m$ but it appeara imp of a visitation ext found oppressive to council of Toledo, amongst other prec that do bishop shall his visitation for m bably many parishes nvoiding the expenst council of Merida, $\boldsymbol{A}$ speaks of certain had obtained exem former bishops, and bishop arrives for t should be received rensonable provision visitation is provide of Toledo, A.D. 63 that a bishop shall his diocese every yea that the churches ar he limself is preven pressure of other dut performed by one of who should inquire churches and the live mission of visiting $b$ led to abuses, for we (Conc. Meldense, e. terms of the atronge lquitous custom (rep consuetudo) which bishops, of never, or person the parishes ur
(b) The canona ab objeets of the bishop: chiefly in the inspee churches, and the n amoog the clergy. 0 a later period. The quoted, decrees that should be held annua administering confirt people, iaquiring into and searching out an customs. To add we this last duty, it was ited. On the women, also ns, are scated a flagon, nnd

of Cyriaca, a ct, more fully o representel. hand of the extinguished Lord, tarniug to them the invited (De if thinks that ind, indicates onsecrated to h probability onvent on the er the fresco a the attitude res of saints, ter and P'aul, ushering the st. des Antiq. [E. C. H.] of personal considered as cred autherity maintenance (i) to metre. ham (Antiqui; the right of canon of the which asserts the care ( $\tau \rightarrow \eta$ dieceses in his canon, which that all men 1 visited the seems rather of jurisdiction olis itself, as he framers of Bruns, Conc. ployed by the c. Taurinense, cen the riral nd Vienne to 'ees that each were contigus visitet quas istitunt). The Boniface ( $E_{p}$. y assigned by leok into the e and the way duties, Occavisitations are ys Possidonitus galius, primate it the course of ist. Eccl. iv. 8) of Canterbury, land, ordaining d and settiug disorder. tion especially e8c8. [Bisuor, ontinually layal perlormanct of this duty and defining the business to be ransacted.

MISITATION

(a) Visitations were to be held yearly in every parish. The conneil of Lugo, A.D., 569 (Cunc. Luccnse, Labbe, Conc. t. v. p. 874 ) orders a new division of the dioceses in Gallicia, on the ground that in their present condition they were too large to admit of a yearly visitation. The council of Tarragona, A.D. 516 (c. 8), orders that the bishop should make yearly visitations to provide for the reparation of such churches as had tallen into bad repair. The second council of Braga, A.D. 572, c. i.
(Bruns, Conc. ii. 39), ordera that the bishop should visit every parish in his diacese, nad, on the first day, inguire how the clergy performed their duty, in order that where it wns necessary he inight instruct those who were ignorant, enpecially with relerence to the canonical rules for the exoreism and instruction of catechumens during the twenty-one days before their baptism. On the aecond day he was to assemble the people and instruct them in their daties, both ns to belief and practice. No express mention is here made of an onnual visitntion, but it appears implied. Probably the expensea of a visitation exteading over two days were found oppressive to the clergy, for the seventh council of Toledo, A.d. 646 (c. 4), enacts, amongst other precautions to prevent extortion, that no bishop shall remain in any parish during his visitation for more than a single day. Probably many parishes were desirous of altogether avoiding the expenses of the visitation, siace the council of Meridn, A.d. 666 (Conc. Emerit c. 11), speaks of certain abbata and presbyters who had obtained exemptione (absolutionem) from former bishops, and orders that whenever a bishop arrives for the purpose of visitation he should be received with due honour, and a rensonnble provision for expensea. The annual visitation ia provided for in the fourth council of Toledo, A.D. 633 (c. 36), which ordera that a bishop shall visit eack of the parishes in his diocese every year, for the parpose of seeing that the churches are in proper repair ; but if he himself is prevented by ill-health or by the pressure of other duties, the visitation might be perforned by one of his presbyters or deacons, who shovld inquire in to the condition of the churches and the lives of the clergy. This permission of viaiting by deputy appears to have led to abuses, for we find the council of Menyx (Conc. Meldense, c. 29), A.D. 815, apeaking in terms of the strongest condemuation of in iniquitous custom (reprehensibilis et dnmnabilis consuetudo) which had arisen among some bisheps, of never, or scarcely ever, visiting in person the parishes under their jurisdiction.
(b) The canons above quoted speak of the objects of the bishops' visitations as consisting chiefly in the inspection of the fabric of the churches, and the maintenance of discipline among the clergy. Other duties were added at a later period. The council of Leptinn, above queted, decrees that the bishop's visitation should be held amnually, for the purposes of slmiusistering confirmation, instructing the people, inquiring into the norala of the clerg people, inquiring into the norala of the clergy, and searching out and prohibiting ell pngan customa. $T_{0}$ add customa. To add weight to his authority in this last duty, it was provided that he should be accompnaied by the grnplio, or count, wh. filled the office of "defensor eccleatae" in his diocese, "Gravione, qui defensor ejus ecclesi:te est" (Labbe, Concilia, vi. p. 1534; see Adrocatus Leclesiac, p. 34). The capitularies of Charlemayne, vii. cc. $94,95,129,365$ provida thnt the bishop shall visit every parish in his diocese for the purpose of admiuistering confirmation, of inquiring into the morals of his people, and extirpnting any pagan practices that yet lingered ainong the people, and (Addit, iii. 65) of correcting any oppressium or corruption on the part of the nobles or judges. Otleoders were first to be reproved and admonished by the bishop, and if this failed to produce refurmation to lee reported to the emperor.

VISITATOR
2023
(c) These visitations nppear to have been conducted with large and oceasionally extravagant expenditurc. Some exceptions are recorded. Severus Sulpitius (Dialog. 2) writes of St. Martin that he went round his diocese clad in n ragged dress and a blick cloak and riding upon nul ass. Betle (Hist. Eccl. iii. 28) narrates that St. Chad went round his diocese on his fect, especially noting that he visited all the conntry districts, the farms and villages and castles. But these are evidently noted as exceptional instances. Athanasius, on the other houd (Apolog. ii. § 74), is said to have becn invariably attended while on bis visitation not ouly by priesta and deacons, but by a considerable numiber of the laity, " non praucos ex plebe." For the measures taken by later councils to check the oppressions and exactiona for which visitations were made the excuse, sce Procurations.
in (iii) Archleacons also had the power of bolding visitations, but the practice seens to have been of gradual growth. Isidore of Seville ( $E_{\eta}$ ist. ad Ludifred), after defining the ordinary dutiea of an archdeacon, adds that he investigates in person, " i ise inquirit," the condition of the fabric and ornaments of the churches and other parish matters, and sends his report to the bishop, but notes that this is done by special conmmission "cum jussione episcopi." Hincmar of Rheims, however, in his Precepts to Archdencons, c. 1 (Opp. ii. p. 728), speaks of their visits to country parishes, either in his company, or by themselves, as if such visitations were part of their regular duty (see Arcildeacon, p. 138, and Procurations).
(iv) The right of visitation appears to have been claimed in some instances by the civil authorities. The council of Chalons (Conc. Cubillon (c. 11) speaks with great indiguation of the conduct of certain judges who claimed a right of visitation over all parishes and monasteries subject to episcopnl superintendence, and demanded provision for their expenses, Probably this claim nrose from the pract'ce above meutioned of associnting the civil "defensor ceclesine" with the bishop, in order to provide for the more effectual suppression of pagan customs. [Missi Dominicl.] [P. O.]

VISITATION OF TIIL SICK. [UNC. tion, p. 2000; Viaticum.]

VISITATOR. A bishop temporarily appointed to perform the duties of a vacant see, or to act in the place of another bishop when incapacitited by illness or lying under ecclesiasti-

VOLUME

eal censure. See lntencessor. An old formulary relating to the elertion of a bishop, quoted by Du Cange from the Spicilefium Acheriense, tom. viii. p. 15t, provides that the bishop whe hal been in charge of the funcral of a deceased prelate (" tumulator") should be the " visitator" of the vacant see, and take charge of the property in or belonging to the church, the appointment to be made by the metropolitan. T'he council of Riez, A.d. 439 (Cona. Reg. e. 6), orders that in ease of the death of a biahop, no other bishop should approach the eathedral chureh at the time of the funeral, except one frem a neighbouring see, who should take charge of the see in the enpacity of a "visitator""visitatoris vice." The use of the word seems especially to belong to the Western ehurch. It is of frequent occurrence in the writings of Gregory the Grent. Thus (Ep. ii. 25) he appoints Leontius te ba "visitator" of the see of Rimini in consequence of the ill-health of the bishop, and (1.15) comunands Balbinus, and (1. 51) Felix to go as vixitatores to certnin churches, mentiening that their ehicf duty was to provide for the ordination of the elergy. Hincmar of Rheims, in his epistle to the bishop of Laon, expressly claims the right, as metropolitan, of appointing a visitator" to the care of a vacant see (soe Thomassin, Vet. et Nov. Eccl. Discip. ii. 2, e. 21, § 9 ). The word $\pi \in \rho 6 \delta \in u \tau \eta$ ' is sometimes translated visitator (see Bruns, Canon. note in Conc. Latodic. e. 57), but the oflices were essentially distiact. See Periodeutes, Vacancy.
[P. O.]
VITALIANUS, pope, commemorated in modern martyrologies on Jan. 27 (Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. ii. 780).
[C. H.]
VITALICUS, Sept. 4, youthful martyr with twe others, Rufinus and Silvanus (Mart. Usuard., Notker., Rom.); Vitalica (Hieron., Vet. Rom., Adon.).
[C. H.]
VITALIS (1), Jan. 9, martyr, commemorsted at Smyrna with Revoeatus and Fortunatus (Mart. Usuard., Wand. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jan. i. 567).
(2) Feb. 14, martyr, commemorated at Rome with Felictula and Zene (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Ron., Notker.; Boll. Acta SS. Feb. ii. 743). This is probably the St. Vitalis commemorated in the Liber Antiphonarius of Gregory, p. 693.
(3) April 21 , one of the companiens of Arator (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Hieron., Notker, Rom.).
(4) Apr. 28, martyr, commemersted at Ravenar (Mart. Uauard., Adon., Vct. Rom., Rom., Notker., Wand.).
(5) July 2 , one of the cempanions of Aristo (Murt. Usuard., Adon., Rom.).
(6) July 10 , one of the seven sons of Felicitns, martyrs at Rome (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Hieron., Notker., Rom.).
(7) July 23, bishop, martyr, commemerated at Ravenna with Apollonius (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.).
(8) Sept. 22, nartyr of the Thebaean Legion (Mart. Uauard., Hieren., Rom.).
(9) Nov. 3, martyr, commemorated at Caesarea in Cappadocia, with Germanus, Theophilus, and Caesarius (Mart. Usuard., Adeu., Hieron., Vet. Rom., Rom.).
(10) Nov, 27, martyr, commemorated with Agricola at Bologna (Mart. Ubuard., Alon., Iheron., Vet. Rom., Wand.).
[C. H.]
VÍTUS (1) (Vitius), Jan. 20, martyr, commemorated st Nicomedia with Cyriscus and others (Mart. Syr.).
(2) Jan. 15, martyr under Diocletian, commemorated in Sicily with Modeatus and Creso centis (Mart. Bed., Flor., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Wand., Rom.; Boll. Aeta SS. Jun. ii. 1013); in Lucania (Fieron.); commemorated on this day in the Gelasian Sacramentary, and named is the collect and pest-commanion.
(3) Jun. 26, martyr, commemorated at Nicomedia (Mart. Syr.).
[C. 11.].
VIVIANA (Bibiana), martyr, commemorated at Rome on Dee. 2, with Faustus mad Dafoosa (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Rom.).
[C. hi.]
VOCATORIUM, nn invitatory. [linvitatorium.] "In oratorio versum non dicant, nec vocatorium" (Ordo Off. in dumo S. Bened. ante Pascha, in Mabill. Vet. Anal. 151, ed. 2).
[W. E. S.]
VOLUME. The "roll of a beok" (volumen) was composed of leaves of papyrua or parchment, glued, or otherwise fastened, end to end, and rolled, as its name implies, runnd an axis. Libri and codices, on the other hand, derived their names from the materinl of which they were formed, and worc put together as books are now. Donati (de' Dittici degli Ant. p. 17) gives a draving of a volume rolled up and fitted with all requisites for use and protection. The fittings of a volume, as seen in a drawing given by Moatfaucon, were a stick to roll it on, with a boss or knob at the left hand of the MS., and projectiog a little way beyoud the right side of it, so as to furnish a handle; a cover of vellum fastened with strings or straps at either end, and a silip of thinner vellun glued on, with the title of the beek written on it. Volumes were gometines called by a name of similar origin, rotulae (Durand. Ration, Div. Off. i. e. 3, n. 11).
I. Among the Greeks and Remana, a volume ia the hand was the mark of an orator. Polyhymnia, the muse of rhetoric, is always represeited in this way, and the same mark of distinction is given in statues and bas-reliefs to senntors snil other great men. In the museum of the Vatican there is a statue of Augustus, with a volume in the left hand, and making a rhetorical gesture with the right. Among the early Christimns the use of the volume as a symbol seems to have been more general, though apparently slways confined to persons of distinction, and its signiticance more varied and subtle.

1. It was used in representations of the first peraon of the Trinity. Bettari (Scult. e Pitt. ixxxiv.) gives a drawing of a sarcophagus from the catacombs, in which the Pather appears as sa old man standing up, with a volume in his left hand, and hia right stretched out after the clsssical manner, and representing an orator towsids Moses, whom be is ordering to put off his shoes before he approaches the burning bush.

The hand alone bearing a volume la sometimes met with as a aymbol of the Father, as in a bas-relief of the 6th century represeuting the

baptiam of $A$

 (Ciampini, $V e$ 2. The pat Teatament are hand (Durand on sarcophagi e Pitt. xlix. et the rock, whic tended as a ma him to work n engravinga the the space behi &c. tav. ii. 10)3. Our Savi in mosaies and with a velume is shewn uarol Peter (as on a there is a ren treatment in th to be due to (Cismpini, de S lactery which h unrolled, and in pacom dat, inte commission as $p$, vi. 15). (b) Our he is tesching ( Allegranza, sau when he is u: Roma Subt. 1. with тue]; casket at his fee of the Old Test reference in his being wrought t roiled up, as in blind (Bottari, paralytic (ib. lxx into wine (ib. womsu with th aome representat (Bottari, Scuit. e is unrolled, with bolizing the reve John xi. 4), an through the gos some reason as which is an in miracle in the set appear on glass catacombs. In th is a beautiful fres exhibitiug, as far representation of the sariour apper in his hand.
4. Where a vo St. Peter or St. I seat his own writ on ancient gilles between these $t w$ symbolize the una identity of the go golden crowo by w is probably iutende the good news of Matt. iv, 23). apostles with the, extracts from Sc remarkable event apse of the ancien baptiom of Agilnlfus, king of the Lombards (Ciampini, Vet. Mon. ii. tnb. v.)
5. The patriarcha and prophets of the Oht Teatament are represented with the volume in hand (Durand, quoted above). Moges appeara on aarcophagi thus represented (Buttari, Scult. e Pitt. xlix. et pass.) only when he is striking the rock, which looks as if the volume were intended as a mark of the divine power granted to him to work miracles for the people. In aome engravings the volume is not in his hand, but in the apace behind his head (Garrucci, Vetri Orn. &c. tav. ii. 10).
6. Our Saviour is almost always represented in mosaics and in the bas-reliefa of anrcophagi with a volume in his left band. The volume is shewn unrolled ( $a$ ) when he is addressing St. Peter (as on a great number of sarcophagi), and there is a ramarkably clear exnmple of this treatment in the mosaic of St. Constance, thought to be due to the munificence of Constantine (Ciampini, de Sacr. Aedif. tab. xxxii.); the phylactery which he presents to St. Peter is alsoshewn nurolled, and inscribed with the worda Dominus pacem dat, intended, of conrse, as the apostle's commission as preacher of the gospel of peace(Eph. vi. 15). (b) Our Lord also bears the volume when he is teaching (Bottari, Scult. e Pitt. &c. cxxxiii.; Allegranza, Sicer. Mon. di Milano, tav. i.), and when he is cepoting with the doctors (Aringhi, Roma Subt. i. 579 ; ii. 213) [Docrors, Curist with THE]; and on this occasion he WITH THE]; and on this occasion he has a casket at his feet, supposed to contain the books of the Old Testament, to which he may make reference in his discussion. When a miracle is being wrought the volume is always represented rolled up, as in the bealing of the man born blind (Bottari, Scult. e Pitt. cxxxvii.); of the paralytic (ib. Ixxxvii.); the changing of water paralytic (ib. (ixxxini.); the changing of water inta wine (ib. Ixxxix.); the healing of the inta wine (ib. lxxxix.); the healing of the womau with the issua of blood (ib.). But in some representations of the raising of Lazarus (Bottari, Scuit. e Pitt. xxxii. xxxvi.) the volume is unrolled, with the probable intention of aymbolizing the revelation of the glory of God (St. John xi. 4), and of "life and immortality through the gospel" ( 2 Tim. i. 10). But, for some reazon as yet undiscovered, the volume, which is an invariable accompaniment of a miracle in the aculptures of sarcophagi, does nat appear on glass or in the paintings of the catacombs. In the museum of the Vatican there is a beautiful fresco brought from the catacombs exhibiting, ns far as is known, the only ancient representation of the Last Supper, and in this the Saviour appeare with the rolled-up volume in his hand.
7. Where a rolume appeara in the hand of St. Peter or St. Paul, it is supposed to represent his own writinga; but when, as sometimes on ancient gilded glass, a volume is placed between these two apostles, it ia supposed to symbolize the unauimity of these apostles and the symbolize the unauimity of these apostles and the identity of the gospel preached by them. The golden crown by which it is generally anem. The is probably intended to indicate its royal origin as the good news of the kingdom of heaven (St. Matt. iv. 23). Mosaics often exhibit theas apostles with the volume unrolled and showing extracts from Scripture referring to some remarkable event in their lives; thus, in the apse of the aucient Vaticau, St. Peter is represented (Ciampini, de Sacr. Aedif. tab. xiii.) with ${ }^{\text {a }}$ phylactery in his hand inseribed with his memorable confession (St. Matt. xvi. 16). In the same mosaic St. Paul nppeara standing by the seated figure of the Saviour with a volume in his hand, bearing the words "Mihi vivere Christus est"" (Philipp. i. 21).
8. The apostles, as a body, are found repreaented both on mosaics and bas-reliefs with this gign of their commission to preach the gospel (Aringhi, Rom. Subt. passim; Bosio, Rom. Sutt. pasaim ; Ciampiui, Vet. Mom.t. i. tnb. Ixvi.), and the Saviour commonly atanda in the midat as if he were teachiug them (Milliu, Múti de la France, p. lix.). France, p. lix.).
9. In the more ancient monuments bishops, as depositaries of the word, bear the roll in the left hand; but in mosaics (Ciampini, Vet. Mon. ii. tab. xxiv.), diptycha (Paciardi, de Cult. Joan. Bapt. pp. 230-2t0), nnd paintings of a later age, a square book richly bound. A representation on glass of the figure of St. Cyprian (spelt Cripranus) from the eatacombs has the roll in hand, and, besides, a volume standing on end at the feet (Garrncci, Vet. Ornat. xx. 6). Representationa of Justin aud Timothy may be cited as instances of similar treatment (ib. xxiv. 3), the latter having always on ancient glass a recond volume behind him-a possible allusion to the two epistles addressed to him by St. Paul.
10. Deacous are also represented bearing in the left haud the aame badge of their ministry. Buonarotti (Vet. Ornat. tari, x vi. 2) gives a drawing of St. Lawrence from a glass bearing the volume, and sented betwcen SS. Peter and Paul, who appear to be teaching him.
11. Readers, in toter
12. Readers, in token of their office, as readers of the Scriptnres to the congregation, always appear with the volume. A gilded glass, given by Buonarotti (ib. tav. x xii. 2), preserves what appeare to be a representation of the ordination of two youths as readera, who both bear the volume in their handa.
13. In some eepulchral monuments, especially bas-reliefs of double asrcophagi, in which the marriage ceremonies of the deceased are commemorated (Bottrari, Scult. e Pitt. &c. tav. exxxvii.; Maffei, Veron. Illust. part iii. p. 54) the bridegroom holds a volume in his hand suppensed to be the nuptial contract. Sometimes three or four volumes stand on end at his feet, possibly iudicating the varioua offices or magistracies he may have held. Volumes of this kind are said to have been borne by slaves after patricians at Rome; nnd when they appear, as they sometimes do, on glass (Buonar. Scult. e Pitt. tav, xxviii.; Garrucci, Vet. Ornat. xxvii. 1), and on the ahields and sarcophagi, it is probnble that they are merely a mark of the dignity of the person commemorated, as he has almost alwnys, in such cnses, the seuatorial badge of the broad purple band.
II. Besides thene volumea borne in the hand by divers personages and for various reasons, a great many are fund on ancient glass (Garrucci, Vet. Ornat. xviii. 5, 6; xvii. i. 5, &c.) to which it is difficule to assign nuy certaiu siguificance. Buonarotti (tar. xx.) gives a representation of St. Felicitas and her seven aons between two volumes supposed to signify the two volumes of Scripture, for the truth of which martyrs shed their blood; and Bottari (Scult.e Pitt. tavs, xix.) preserves a figure in the attitude of prayer, with two volumes tied together on one side and an eucharistic cup on the other-a symbolism of which the meaning is obvious enough.
III. Although books, as we undurstand the term, soon began to be used for the realing of the goapel in churchea, volumes, strictly so-called, were, for some timc, retained for the prayers nud ritual of certain ecelesiastical functions. Cardinal Cassaunta lad some of these volumes of as late a date as the 9 th and 10 th centuries, contaiuing the forms of the ordiuntion service, the ritual of baptism, of the blessing of the font, aud of the paschal candle (Martigoy, Diet. des Antiy. Chret. 8. v. 'Volume').
[E. C. H.]
VOTIVE OFFERINGS, " votiva," "quae sanctis $c x$ voto aut veneratione offerebantur" (Murntori). The custom of bringing offerings to Christian churehes in acknowledgment of some signal deliverance from peril or illness or of $&$ me other answer to prayer, with the design of perpetuatiog the remembrance ot these divine favours, became widely prevalent in both the Eastern and Western churches at a very early period. While the observance undoubtedly offers a strong resemblance to the same custom as known to pagan antiquity, it was held to be sanctioued by Scripture; e.g. in such passages as Exodus xvil. 4; Ps. exi. 4. It ultimately hecame closely nssociated with the reneration of the tombs and relics of martyrs, whose intercession and aid were frequently implored. Augustine seems to have sought to divest the practice of the superstitious ootions with which it was alrendy becoming connected in his time, by poiuting out that such oflerings, "apud memorins sanctorum martyrum," ought to be Jooked upon as really offered to God (Serm. 273 ; Migne, $P$ (trol. xxxviii. 125l).

The same father is the first who diatinctly lays down the theory that such offerings muat be male in churches. As quated by Prosper of Aquitaine, he says that the best offering we can make to God is that of ourselves, and as the image of Cnesar was to be given to Caesar, 80 the image of the Deity is to be cousecrated to Him. We have however not only to consider what we can offer and to whom, but also where our offering should be made, "quia veri sacrificii extra catholicam ecelesiam don est" (Opcra, ed. Migne, x. 1860). It is in harmony with this view that we find the 20 th cadon of the collection ascribel to the council of Nantes (A.D. 660) forbidding the offering of vows or presenting of enndles or suy other offering for the restoration of health in any other place except Christian churches: "Nullus votum faciat aut candelam vel aliquod munus pro sanitate sua rogaturus alibi deferat nisi ad ecclesinm Domino Deo suo" (Mausi, Concilia, xi. 59-61; Migne, 1xi. 846).

Similar otlerings were made by virgins on the occasion of their consecration to the service of the altar, with the prayer that they might be enabled to keep inviolate their vow of virgiaity. In the ancient Sacramentarium attributod to St. I.en (Migne, Iv. 38), we find in the sppointed service for such occasions, "Offerimus tibi, Domine, preces et muncra." Gregory the Great, in his Liber Stucramentorum, speaks of the relics of a martyr (those of St . Laurentius) as them-aelves a kiad of offering, "votiva martyria" (ib. lxsviii. 1251); and on another ocession, when referring to minstance of a wife who preseuted offerings at the altar for her hushand'a recovery from sickueas, styles them a " sactificium" (Diah. iv. 57).
The extent to which the practice prevniled both in the Enst and in the West in the 5th century, is suificiently proved by two writersTheodoret and Paulinua of Nols. Of theie, the former, in a remarkable passage, exultingly describes the honours paid to the tombs of the nartyrs in his time-and the tombs themselves as objects of univorsal admiration, spleadidly ndorned, and radiant in every part. "To these," he says," we repnir not once or twice a yesr, or tive times only, but frequently and in great multitudes ( $\pi$ av $\eta \gamma$ úpets $^{\prime}$, addressing often, ench day, hymns to Him who is their Lord. And those who are in henlth pray that their health may be preserved; those in sickness, tor relicf trom their mnledy; the childless, for chiddren; the barren women, for otlspring; while thess alrendy thus blessed, pray that their sons and daughters may be endowed with desiralle gitts." He then goes on to describe some of the offerings (ava日huara), as consisting of models of arms, lega, eyes, \&c., nccording to the affected part, and fashioned out of gold, sil ver, or wood"for the Lord," he says, "accepts both sinall and costly gifts, estimating them by the capacity of the giver." He deacribes other offerings (probably tablets) as recording the virtues of the martyrs, " but their virtues," he snys, "prove that He who was their God was the true God,"- ג̇тофаlvєi ©єóv (Graecarum Affect. Curat.; Mligne, Pat. Graeo. Ixrxiii. 922). At the conncil of Lestines (A.D. 743) the offering of models, suth as those which he describes, was condemned as a pagan usage (see Paganism, ili. ij.).

The references to the practice in Paulinus give evidence of a still more superstitious conception of its efficacy. He describes in his fourtrenth poem (de S. Felice Natalitium Carm. iii.) the assembling througs and the donors as hianging their votive offerings to the pillars of the church. He then proceeds to narrate three storiea, which enforee the necessity of faithtully observing much vows. The first is that of an inhabitant of the town of Abellina, who, having vowed a pig to St. Felix, brought his oflering to the slirine of the aaint, but endeavoured to evade the genuine performance ot his vow by killing the pig and simply giving the entrails to the poor of the church, himself carrying off the carcase. On his journey home, however, he was thrown from his horse, and smitten with apparent paralynis, but having been carried back to the church, he there implored the forgiveness of the saint, and ordered the whole uncase to be divided among the poor. Whereupon he was miraculously restored to the complete use of his limbs and to his former health (Nigne, Ixi. 438-501).

The seconl instance is that of some peasants of Apulia, who, having reared a thit suw and dedicated it to the same saint, proceeded to drive it to the church. The animal however succumbed to the fatigue of the journey, and was unable to proceed. Full ot anxiety lest they should seem uufaithful to their vow, the pious peasants haste smaller size, cented themsel astonishment been miraculo

Aecording $t$ similarly dedic and when the yoke it to the escaped. Un n the owners fou ingly voluntary

VOWS (e่ेx

 a vow is usua! as a prayer, we that kind of jra a row, i.e. $\pi \rho \partial \mathrm{s}$ we olfer to God oflering of the $h$ greatest of all o in Christ, as $I$ tine, $E_{\mu}$. lix., adThe enrliest proceeding deri cedent, is that rviii. 18,- $\boldsymbol{\varepsilon}^{\boldsymbol{l}} \chi^{€}$ lius, $H$. E. ii. 2 was under a simi church, sfter th hsve beeu at one msking vorve and would seem an e: observance. Whi mple, advises you unable to preser marry, the 19th c (A.D. 314) speaks obligation, and atf row of virginity $\cdots \tau \nu \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \delta_{i} \gamma \dot{\alpha} \mu \omega$ Coic. ii. 520). Sis tise de Fide, lays i are of perpetual ol Patrol. x1. 769).
Among the p,rin abore referred to, disposition to nse clergy to the lait which it was sough the monk or the martyrs and of the pilgrimages to shri The attacks directe and practices by sue and Vigilantius bei teachers of the chur to excesses and ahuse which ench was ass left untouched, and of taking vows, unde never to have been for example, has a w is only ngrinst such made could not be e aibi cui promittitur iii. 12). The Aposto fith approval the $t$ simply alvising that assumed (bk. iv. 14 ;

Vows were disting er occasion, a wife who rer hushand's a a " sacaifi-

ice prevailed

 in the 5th wo writersOf there, the , exultingly umbs of the is themselves 1, spleadidly "To these," ce a year, or nd in great 5 often, each Lord. And their health ss, tor relief or children; while those their sons ith desirable some of the g of models o the aliected ar, or weodth small and e capscity of flerings (prortues of the says, " prove true God,"$\partial \in \partial \nu \partial \lambda \eta \theta_{1} \nu \partial \nu$ set. Curat. ; the comucil models, such ideaned as ain Paulinus rstitions conin his fourCurn.iii.) the s as hanging $f$ the church. hree stories, tinly observ$t$ of an inwho, having is oflering to ured to evade w by killing trails to the yiug off the ever, he was ;en with apcarried back e furgiveness rarense to be apon he was tte use of his (Migne, Ixi.
ome pensants fit sow and eded to drive towever sucney, and was ty lest they w, the pious peasants hastened to select one or two pigs of a smaller size, and with these ns an offering presented themselves at the church, where to their astonish astonishmeut they found the sow, which had been miraculonsly According to the third similarly dedicited to St. Felix a hrifer had been and when the time came the owner from its birth, yoke it to the cart, when it bruke awny a:id escalped. Un arriving at the temple awny aidd the owners fonnd the nnimal stauding, a seemerningly voluntury victum, at the aitar of the saint vows (eixh, "votum") "If [J. B. M.] vows (eixht, "votum"). "If in Scripture as a praver, we mnst unded $x \eta$, being desigunted that kind of prayer which we oftler when ennking we oflier to God are vowed, and nost of all the grentest of all our vows wherein is inplicd the in Christ, as members of Hishy we vow to be tine, $E_{j}^{\prime}$. lix., ad Puulinum). His body" (AugusThe earliest example of proceeding derived from Old Testanent vow, a cedent, is that recorded of Stest Paul in Acts Lins, $H . E$. ii. 25 ) implies that James the Just was udarer a bimilar vow. The tendency in the thurch, after the 3rd century, would seem to have been at once to encourarge the proent to making vows and to attach an increased, aud it would scem an exnggerated, importance, to their observance. Whila Cyprian (Epist. ir.), for exsmple, advises young women who feel themselves marry, the preserve their vow of virginity, to (A.D. 314) speake of such wows aba of pernetnal obligation, and atfirmss that thowse who break their Conc. ii. 520). Simimiarly Fulgentius, in his trea-- tise de Fide, Iays it down that are of perpetual obligation on both sexes chastity Patrol. xl. 769 ).

VOWS

Among the principal causea of the tendency abore referred to, may be named the increased disposition to disposition to nseert the superiority of the clergy to the liaity, the speciall sanctity with which it was songht to Which it was songht to invest the profession of the mouk or the martyrs and of their relics, and, at a later period pilgrimages to shrines and masses for the deadd. The attacks directed ugninst these for the theories and practices by snch writers as Aërius, Jovinian, and ${ }^{\text {and }}$ Vigiliatius being recognisell as just by the teachers of the church only so far as they npplied to excesses aud abuses, the theory of the vow with which each thich each was associated seeins to have been left untouched, and the lawfulness of taking vows, under certan the lawniness or expediency and never to have been called iu question for exnmple, hns a waruing against vows, but it is only against such as He to whom they are mode could not be expected to approve, -"quod bibi cui prowittieur sibi cui promittitur nolit exsolvi " (de officizs, iii 12). The with approval the takiag of vows of recognise simply ndrising that they should not be hastify, assumed (bk. iv. 14 ; Cotelerius, i . 302 ). hastily Vows were distinguished as (i) " 4 vo Nnalia," or those applying mainly to voneself; (Tsundd.).
vulmarus
(2) as "rota renlia," or those having reference to to external oljjects and circumstances ; they were niso distinguished as " perpetua" nud " tempornitia" nlia," or vows taken for a specified time. Among the "rotns those of nustivencen ia "the most cemmon were of Poitiers sarys, "De chastity, and fasting. Hilary corporis, canstitntis co vorends sunt conteraptus (Migue, ix. 184) custotin, jejunii tolerantia" not to be lnckward Angustiue urges Christianas will not, he says, bu ia taking rows, for they umaided strength, be aufficiently inspired by their dnm ; nou entim, "Non sitis pigri aid vovenenunacrates as viribus vestris implebitis." $\mathrm{He}_{\mathrm{e}}$ of married as ordinary vows in his time, thuse other - per people of conjugal fidelity to each with or or of of hestinence from sexual intercourse with ench other, of the wenlthy to extend hos-pitaty to all their honses, of rethergous persons npproaching to the poor, and others, to givenill thicir property ligious life (in $P_{3}$. Ixxvi.). The most conmou tor. centuries would apperar to bow in the earlier virginity. Those who to bave been that of their naines entere who assumed this vow had chureh, and certtrin in recorls kept by the served, calculated to other formalities were obinpressive /Sined to render the cerenoony more Sucerd. iii. 16). The biudiug not chrysost. de personal vow, The biuding nature even of the personal vow was not only insisted upon by the church but Thus ehurch but sometimes enforcel by the law. Tonrs (A.D. 567 ) invon of the second council of law to impose divavoked the assistance of the violated his moustice on a monk who had so far judicis ansilio separetur ", "o marry,-"etiam Generally, howerer, the " (Mansi, ix. 760). vows was a matter the nou-observance of such episcopal courts, and the bishop was befld to the the power of mitigating the peunalty according to circumstances (council of chalced. can. 16 . Mansi, viii. 378). As regards the " vota realia," the the reader may consnit the comments of Ulpian in the Digest (tr. 2, D. 50, tit. 12 de Pollicit.). the tombs of thear to have been frequeutly taken at of this as of the martyrs, and Eusebins apeaks xiii. 7).

Th).
be of vo lime like votive offering, was held to accomo chricacy lialess taken in a chureh and ligious rited $y$ the observance of certain ryligious rites. Thus Hilary of Poitiers, when ${ }_{\text {aro }}^{\text {columenting on Ps. Iv. (liv.) 1, says that vows }}$ are of use only when invested with this character rncter, and that it is only when they are thus cifreded that the intercession of the Holy S pirit can be can be iooked for in our behalf: " Vota euin tantun ceclesiasticue relligionis vitilia sunt. Quae cum et dignis Deo cantionitus et proposithe in eeclesia observantiae atudio probabunutur, tum digni erimus pro quibue Deum Satctus Sipiritus interiellet "(Migne, ix. 184). Siec also Novice, p. 1409; Pligrmage, v, (2), p. 1 tisis, Virgive, and Votive Offehings. [ [j, B. M.], VULFRANUS, Mar. 20, confessor (Mart.
[C. H.]
VULMALIUS, June 17 , confessor (Murt Uaunrd., Adon.) ; July 20 (Hart. Roms.).

W

WAFER. [Elements, p. 603.]

WALERICUS, confesser in Pagus Vinnaeensis (or Vinemanus) in Picardy, commemorated Dec. 12 (Mtrt. Usuard.); Apr. 1 (Notker.; Boll. Acta SS. Apr. i. 14).
[C. H.]
WANDREGISILUS, confessor in the neighbourhool of Rouen ; commemorated on July 22 (Murt. Usuard. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. v. 2533).
[C. H.]

WANTI. [Gloves.]

WAR. The question of the lawfulness of war, as it presented itself to the early church, assumed a twofold character: (1) whether a Christian prince could rightfully embark in any war; (2) whether a Christian sulject was bound to reader military service. On both points the decisions of successive teachers of the church exhibit a material ditlerence, a difference mainly to be explained by the altered relations of the church to the civil power

During the tirst three centuries the consideration of both the above questious was necessarily complicated by the flacts, that the soldier in the Roman legions would be compelled to bear arms in the service of a state professedly pagan, add that military service was closely conjoined with the ceremoninl of pagan worship. Hence to both questions the more nustere teaching of the church rejoined with an unqualified negative, and the words of Christ (Natt. xxvi. 52) were adduced as placing the matter beyond dispute.
If, as some critics maintain (Hefele, Beiträge, i. 21), the language of Justin (Apol. i. 14) and of Athenagoras (Legatio pro Christ. c. 35) does not neeessiarily imply n general disapproval of the prulession of the warrior, the writings of Tertullian, both beture and nfter his conversien to Montanism, contain passages which are sufficiently explicit. "There can," he says (with allusion to ordiuary military service) "be no harmony betweer the divine and the human oath, the standard of Christ and of the devil, the camp of light and the camp of darkness; one senl cannot be claimed by two masters,-by God and by the devil " (de Idol. c. 19). His treatise, de Cirona, called forth by the incident of the Christian soldier who irefused to adorn himselt with the laurel wreath nssociated with pagan observances, is well known. He there declares that merely to wear the wreath alone constitutea an act of idolatry-" Ita et corona ideluthytum efficitur" (de Corona, c. 10). As for the military profescion itself, "Cau it," he asks, "be lawful to handle the gword, when the Lord Himself hath declared that he who aves the sword shall perish by it? Shall the child of peace engage in battle, when he looks upon cven the strife of the law-courts as unseemly? Shall he who avenges not even his own wrongs, censigu others to prison and to chains, torture and punish them?" (ib, c. 11). In the same spirit the martyr Maximilian (circ. A.D. "95) says, "Mihi mon licet militare, quia Christianu. sum" (Ruinart, Acta Martyr. ii. 209). So sgsin Clemens of Alexandria (i. p. 289) asserts that they who seek peace have no need of the sward or the bow.

The opinion of Origen is less distinctly pronounced. In twe passnges (adv. Cels, v. $3 \dot{3}$; vii. 26) he appesrs to support the view of Tertullian, and in a third (ib, viii. 73) he puts forward the theory that Christiann, as a race professelly devoted to the service of God, cannot justly be called upon to bear arms. The pagna priests, he urges, are exempt from such sorvice, and, on like grounds, Christians claim a similar immunity. "We could not fight under the emperor," he says, "even if he should seek to constrain us; but we fight for him when in our own camp ( 8 סiov $\sigma \tau \rho a \tau \delta \pi \in \delta \sigma \nu$ tioceBeias) we offer up prayers on his behalf" (Migne, Patrol. Graec. xi. 797). This argument, it is to be noted, appears as a rejoinder to certain criticisms of Celsus, who, in the opinion of Gibbon (ed. Milman and Smith, ii. 189) had exposed a weak point in the Christian theory: "the pagans very frequently asked, what must be the tate of the empire, attacked on every side by the barbarians, if all mankind ehould adopt the pusillanimous sentiments of the new sect?" Lactrntius condemus war on purely philosophic grounds. The aim of the wise man, he sags, should be not to engage in combat, the issue of which must always be doubt ful, and therehy to annihilate (" tollere") his foe, but to do avay with the canse of disagreement itielf (Div. Inst. vi. 18). Origen himself, in a fourth passage, appears to allow that defensive war is ju tifiable, and somewhat qusintly suggests that the mode in which bees carry on their wars may perhaps serve as an example mpoेs cò̀s סikalous kal it is tolerably certain, indeed, that whatever may have been the prevalent theory of the clurch during the first three centuries, many Christians at that period served in the armies of the empire. Tertullian's own expressions, "vestra omnia implevimus, urbes, insulas, castella, municipia, concilisbula, castra ipsa" (Apol. c. 37); "pavigamus et nos vobiscum militumus" (ib. c. 42); and the atory which he tells of the "legio fulminatrix" (ad Scapulam, e. 4), are decisive evidence to this effect. We find again from Eusebius (II. E. viii. 4, x. 8) that in the time of Diocletinn the number of Christian soldiers was considerable, and that many officers were consequently called upon by the emperor to choose between a return to paganism sud degradation from their posta.

The important evilence afforded by Christian inscriptions might, it is true, seem at first sight to contradict these stntements. Aringhi (Antif, Christianae, i. 430) gives an epitaph of a soldier of the time of Hadrian, and (ii. 170) that of a soldier in the prnetorian guard; Boldetti ( $\theta$ sservazioni sopra $i$ cimitcri, \&c., p. 432), one of s veteranus ex proteriorinus (? "protectoriorilus "), and alse (p.415) ene "Pyrrho militi," and (p. 416) that of one who is described as "felicissimns miles." Marangoni (Act. A. Jict. p. 102) gives us that of a centurion, and Ruiaait (Act. Mart. 1. 50) that of two brothers, Getulius and Amantius, whe were military tribunes under Hadrian. Le Blant, with the view of nrrivigg at a more precise estimate of the evideaca thas afforded, has results exhibi inseriptions ts (Reinesius, $S y$ Inscript. Rom. Neapol.) with in Seguler ( $I$ parison has sh give, out of no 545 as those per cent., the $473+$ in numb per cent. He accepted ns a disparity, and a incompatibility early Christian service mach slavery, namel ever, the Chris fact of his eart his tomh, becau all Servus De was first of al recording in his aoldier of man Guute, i. 81-87)

As seon, howe recognition of scrupulosity beg scribed by Conat subsequent app imperial eagles, change. Sume the fact that th Nicaea (if we a imposes thirteen haring abandone miluced again to confessionem mil hanc abierunt, h gerere," etc. ( I however, mainta taken in immed which it is prece the soldiers under Christians resigne part in pagan as mercenary motive paid the required (Beitriäye, i. 22 ; St. Baail, again says that soluiers service has expired sacrsment of the years. But Hefe this as referring o been actually imb fellow beings. He as cosveying rathe the part of the writ and msintains tha Basil held all war Chrysostem now soldier's calling, alt he laments the ten iadulgence of the exceptionally expos But by far the $m$ declaration on the writings of August 9) asserts that d of the sward distinetly proCels. v. $8 \dot{3} ;$ vii, $v$ of Tertullian, ts forward the see professedly annot justly be pagan priests, h service, and, aim a similar ght under the should seek to $m$ when in our є $\dot{\sigma} \sigma \in \beta \in \mathfrak{i} \alpha s)$ we (Migne, Patrol. at, it is to be rtain criticisms of Gibbon (el. exposed a weak "the pagans $t$ be the fate of de by the bardopt the pusil. - sect?" Lacly philosephic mon, he says, at, the issue of and thereby to ut to do away tself (Dir. Inst. fourth passage, ar is ju-tifiable, that the mode rs may perhaps 's סikaious каl iv. 82). that whatever theory of the senturies, many I in the armies on expressions, ps, insulas, castra ipsa" (Apol. cum militamus" he teils of the lam, e. 4), sre We find again 8) that io the ar of Christisn at many officers by the emperor pagnnism sod ed by Christinn am nt first sight Aringhi (Antiq. aph ot a soldier 170) that of a Boldetti (Osser432), one of a (? "protectorioPyrrho iniliti," is deceribed as ii (Act. S. Tíct. ion, and Ruioart others, Getulius y tribunes under iew of arriving e evidence thus afforded, has been at the trouble to compare the results exhibited in three collections of pagan inscriptions takea from three distinct lecalitiea (Reinesius, Suntag. Inscript. Antiq. ; Steiaer, Cod. Inscript. Run. Rheni ; Mommsen, Inscript. Reyni Neapol.) with the Christian inseriptlons contained in Seiguler (Inseript. Antiq. Index). This cemparison has shew that while the pagan epitaphs give, out of an aggregate of 10,050 , as many as 545 as those of soldiers, or an nverage of $5 \cdot 42$ per cent., the Christian epitaphs, amounting to 4734 in aumber, contaia only 27 , or about 0.57 per cent. He offers, hevever, what may be accepted as a leasonsble explanation of this disparity, nnd a sufficient solution of the apparent incompatibility with the historical evidence. The service much os considers, necepited military service much as they did the institution of slavery, namely as n puliticud slavery, namely as n puliticul necessity. As, howfact of his earthly servitude would not suffer the fact of his earthly servitude to be recorded on his tomb, because he regarded himself as first of all Servés Dex, as the Christian soldier, who was first of sll Miles Curistr, shraak from recording in his epitaph that he had been the soldier of man (Le Blant, Inscrip. Chrét. do la Goule, i. 81-87).
As soon, however, as Christianity received the recognition of the state, much of this early scrupulosity began to disappear. The $R$ inscribed by Constantine on his stanilard, and the subsequent appearance of the Cross on the imperial engles, mark the commencenient of this change. Some difficulty is inceed presented in change Some difficulty is inceed presented in Nicaea (if we accept the version of Rufinus) imposes thirteen years' penance upon those who, haring abandoned the military confession, were maluced again to embrace it: "Qui vero propter confessionem militiam abjecerant, et rursum ad have abierunt, hos tredecim annis poenitentiam gerere," etc. (Mansi, Conc. ii. 708). Hefele, however, maintaius that this canon is to be taken in immediate connexion with that by which it is preceded, and that it refers only to the soldiers under the emperor Licinius, whe as Christians resigned their posts rather than take part in pagan sacrifice, but subsequently from mercenary motives returned to the runks and paid the required homage to the pagan gods (Beiträyje, i. 22 ; Conciliengesch. i. 399).
St. Basil, again (Epist. 188, ad Amphilochium), says that soldiers, after their term of military serrice has expired, are to be excluded from the sacrament of the communion for three whole years. But Hefele (Beitrige, i. 23) interprets this as referriag only to those whose hands had been actunily imbrued in the blood of their fellow beings. He looks upon the passage also ss conveying rather an expression of opinion on the part of the writer than an express injunction, and maintains that it does not imply that St. Basil held all war to be unjustifiable.
Chrysostom nowhere actually condemns the soldier's calling, although (Mom. in Matt. 61, c. 2) he laments the temptntions to violence and the indulgence of the pnssions to which soldiers are exceptionally exposed.
But by fur the most explicit and authoritative decharation on the subject is to be found in the writings of Augustine, In his letter, to Mar-

WAR

2029.

cellinus (Epist. 138), he snys that if Christianity demandsd the condemnation of all warfure demanded the condemnation of all warfure, the soldiers in the New Testament seeking for a knowledge of salvation wonld have been directed by our Lord to throw nside their arms and altogether renounce their profession; whereas the advice he gave them was to be centent with their wages, &e.; nad "quibus proprium stipendium sulifere debere praecepit, militare utique non prohibnit" (Migne, xxxiii. 532). In the severely dealing whith dises the son whom he loves, so, in dealing with ditlereat nations, the Romino power may be compelled to oonsider when benefit compelled to oonsider what is for their benefit rather than what they would themselves desire,-" quorum petius ntilitati conxulendum est quam voluntati" (ib. xxxiii. 531). Eliewhere he says that ambuseades and other deceptive in Hopt. bk. vi. ; Migne, xxxive in war ((2uaest. also Hept. bk. vi. ; Migne, xxxiv. 781). He draws clnssical, between just and unjust former class he just and unjust wars. In the obtaia redress for wrongs; as, for instance, when a neighbouring state has neglected to make reparation for injuries inflieted by any of its citizens, or to make restitution of property wrougfully seized. A war entered upon for the purpose of chastising the undue arrogance of another state, ""ad subjugandnm mortulium superbinm,"-may even be lookel apon as entered upon "Deo auctore" (cont. Faust. c. 75; Migne, xilii. 447), A Christian man may fight even under a sacrilegious king, previded that what is enjoined upon him persenally is not "eantra Dei praeceptum" (ib.). Augastine eacouraged Conat Boniface in his valiant struggle agninst the Vandals by the exhortntion not to think that "no one who wages war can please God," and cited for his encourngernent the examples of king. David and Cornelius, the centurion (Epist. 189; Nigne, xxxiii. 855).
These and similar utternaces of this father would seem to have determined the theory of the church after his time, and it is easy to understand that the views to which he gives expression would be further enforced by the fact that a large proportion of the wars of Christendom were carried on against the pagan or the infidel, as, for example, those against the Lombards, the Saracens, and the Turks, and thus represented a struggle in which the existence not merely of the state but of Christianity itself was in peril. The werds in which he seeks to reassure the conseience of Count Bunifsce are quoted as authoritative by Hinemar (de Reyis persona. et regio ministerio, c. 10); and the moral distinetion which he draws between different kinds of war is reproduced nad further elaborated by Isidorns. The latter, in his Etymologiae (bk. xviii.),-the standard inthority, after the 7th century, with respect to the relintions of the church to secular matters,-distinguishes wars as of four. kinds: (1) just; (2) unjust; (3) oivil ; (4) "plusquam civile." His definition of the first coincides with that of Augustine, to which he adds, "aut propulsandorum hostium causa." Unjnst wars he defines as those undertaken from passion and witheut adequate cause. No war can be ju-t save that which is undertaken, for the purposes of inflict-order to repel aggression．As an instance of（3） he cites the war between Sylla and Marius；of （4）that between Caesar and Pompey，who were uot only＂cives＂but alse＂cognati．＂
The efforts of the church，after the time of Augustine，were mainly restricted to repressing the far from infrequent endeavoure of the clargy themselves，in times of special danger and excitement，to particlpate in the atrife of the battlefield．That such eervice was wholly unbecoming their profession does not appear to have ever been geriously denied．War was always regarded by the church as distluctively the coneern of the laity；and Eusebius（Dem． Leany．1．8；Migne，Patrol．Graec．xxil．29－30）， in drawing an elaborate comparison between the avecations permissible to the ecclesiastic and to the layman，specifies as among those that belong eolely to the latter，the carrying on of just war－ fare，一тоîs тє катd то סiкaiov otpatevopèvois． The 74 th of the Apostelical Canons requires that any bishop，priest，or deacon devoting him－ self to military service and aiming at combining it with the duties of his otfice shall be forthwith degraded from his ecclesiastical rank，on the principle of giving to Cacsar the things that are Caesar＇s and to Cod the things that are God＇s （Bunsen，Analect．Ante－Nic．ii．31）．The council of Toulouse（A．D．633）directs that these of the elergy who venture to take up arma＂in quacumque seditione＂ahall be similarly treated and sent to do peuance in a monastery，－＂jn monasterium poenitentiae contradantur＂（Mansi， x．630）．At the council of Meaux（A．D．845） the clergy were forbidden either to engage in nilitary service or even to carry arms，＂armati incedere，＂under pain of deprivation of office as ＂sacrorum canonum contemptores et eccle－ siasticae sanctitatis profanatoree＂（ib．xiv．827）．

But notwithstanding these and similar pro－ hilitions，we find pope Nicholas I．，in the year 865，remonstrating with Lewis the German and Charles the Bald for allowing many of the Frankish bishops to absent themselves from a ayuod for the purpose of joinı．1g in the defence of the coast against the Northmen，一＂Cum militum Christi sit Christo servire，militum vero saeculi，saeculo＂（Epist．83；Migne，cxix． 922 ）．
［J．B．M．］
WASIIING．The principal ceremonial ablu－ tions anciently used in the church，besides baptism itself，are：the washing of the heads of the catechumens on Palm Sunday［Holy Week， p．780］，and of their feet，and sometimes of their whole hodies，on Maundy Thursday ［ p .1160 ］：the washing of the feet of the newly baptized［Baptism，p．164］；the solemn washing of an infant seten days after baptism（Martene， de Rit．Antiq．I．i．18，Ordo 26）；the washing of the hauds of those who entered a church for worship and communion，and of the ministrants in the celebration of the holy Eucharist［Hands， Wabiang of，p． 758 ；Lavabo，p．938］．For the ablution of the vessels used in boly com－ munion，so far as it is found withie our period， see Purification of altar Vessela，p．ī56．

WATCHERS．［Acoemetae．］

 Water，holy．［Holy Water．］WATER ORDEAL OF．［ORDEAL， p．1468．］

WEEK

Water－vessel．．Holy watwr must of course have reguired some vesscl to receiva it，and very ancient vessels destined for this use are believed to be still in existence．Moldetti （Osservationi，p．16）declares that ha had seen in the eatacombs certain round vessels of marble， terra cotta，or glass，placed on pillars at such a height as to be easily reached by the hand． Such a pillar，which may have supported a water－vessel，is found at the entrance of an ancieot subterranean chajel at Chiusi（Cavedoni， Cinit．Chius．p．20）．The well－known palin． dromic isscription，NI $4 O N$ ANOMHMATA MH MONAN O $\Psi$ IN，which is found on a vase discovered at Constantinople in the last century， and also（in an incorrect form）on one mora recently diacovered at Autun，is thought to in－ dicate that the vare had been used to hold holy water．There is in the chureh of SS，Mark and Andrew，is the island of Murano，a well－pro－ portioned urn of Parian marble，brought by the Venetians from Greece，which bears the inscrip－ tion－ANTAHEATAIIE］Y $\Delta \Omega P$ META EYФPOミYNHE ：OTI Ф $\Omega N H$ KY EПI T $\Omega N$ Y $\triangle A T \Omega N$（lsaiah xii． 3 ；Ps．xxviii． ［xxix．］3）．This is also thought to have been a holy water vessel（Paciandi de Bulneis，p．1＋1； figured in Martigny，p．263，2nd ed．）．Gori （Thes．Diptych．iii．auppl．pl．xxv．）has figured an irory vessel，bearing in relief the holy family and the four evangelists，which is believed to have beed a portable holy water vessel．But perhaps the most curieus of all the vessels of this kind which have been discovered is a leaden vessel，from the district of Tunis，bearing the inscription－ANTAHCATE Y $\triangle W P$ MET EYФPOCYNHC．Within a border formed partly by the inscription itself，partly by branchee of the vine，are two rows of figures． The upper row displays the Good Shepherd between a palm und a gladiutor，who takes the wreath of victory frem a cippus or low pillar； and a praying figure between a palm and a winged Victory．The lower row shews，twice over，the cross placed on a reck，wheace issue the four rivers，at which a aheep and a stag－ the Jewish and tha Geetile Church－quench their thirst．This vessel is figured in De liossi＇s Bulletino，1867，p．80，and in Martigny，p． 264. Comprare Colymbion，Fountains，nymphaecy， Phiala（Martiguy，Diet．des Antiq．Chret．s．v． Eau Bénita）．
［C．］

WEDDING．［Marriaoe．］

WEEK（in New Testament，$\sigma d \beta \beta a r a$ and adBBatov，in the phrase $\mu l a$ ，or $\pi \rho \omega \dot{\tau} \eta, \sigma a \beta$ ． $\beta d \tau \omega \nu$ or $\sigma a \beta \beta d \tau o v, \delta \in \nu \tau\left(\rho a \quad \sigma . \kappa . \tau . \lambda_{1} ;\{\beta-\right.$ $\delta o \mu d s$ ，hebdomas and hebdomada；septiman，first so used in Cod．Theodos．xv．5，5；laterculus septem dierum，Tertull．ad Nat．i．13）．For the measurement and notation of time，the Christian communities，as they formed themselves in the various provinces of the Roman empire，had，in the sxisting local or national methed of ＂dating，＂all that was needed for ordinary secular purposes．They had but to retain the received calendar names of day and month，and the current notation of the year expressed in terms of an＂era，＂or by name of consuls，sad the like．The requirements of Christian worship breught with them certain modifications of the accustomed city of the gogue，Jews， round which the fientile Alrealy the by Greeks an as a measure dean and Eigy Institution，${ }^{\mathbf{w}}$ imported into Jew，and Ge continued to a Saнвати，арр brated the firs the Lord＇s rest Nimes of th derived from बaßBd $\tau \omega \nu$（or in the New Test times，e．g．Tert （de Jejiun．14， But the first киріккй or кup （Dominicum doe day＂in Acta 10：＂non potes Tertull．de $F u \nmid a$ domicica sollem ava $\alpha \tau d \sigma t \mu o s$ dominicae resur The numerical occurs only in $m$ $E p .15$ ；St．Iren Praef．in Explan Ep． 119 ad Janu
By the close o Wednesday and （or semïjejunia）u ordoeis．The G тetpás and rapa Expos．hd．§ 22 ， xv．42，тарабкє of Coestantine（ E the parascere quarta，sexta sab＇ monly feria quart Alex．fr．de Pascha Constit．Apost．vii． In use for the d סeutipa，тpir $\eta$ ， $\sigma d \beta \beta a \tau 0 \nu$ ；the secun＇a，f．tertia，$f$ sabb tum．This $\mathbf{e}$ feria is variously present writer cot tertia，sc．，came equivalents for the to as Jewish．Con Zeitrechnung，t．xv The planetary week eame to th the Christian era）f astrological，not a r explanation of thes －the second of the axxrii．18，＂the locus

[^193]
WEEK

aceustomed method and nomenelnture. In every g"yue, dews, with prospelytes, formed the a synaround whieh the chureh grew; nnd from these the (ientile believers aceepted the Jewish week. Alrendy the seven-lay week was widely known by Greeky and Romans, but, for the most part, as a mensure of time used by astrologers (Chnldean and Egyptinn). The Salha'h, as $n$ Jewish institution, way hut one of many superatitions impurteimpurtet into Rome from the East. Christina, Jev, nad Gentile nlike, whether or not they continued to attach nny sjecinal snactity to the Samasth, appear, fron the first, to have colethe Lorrl's resurrection.
Nimes of the Days of the Hecs. derived from Jewish wsige Hees. - The names in the New Testament; ос évitpa, к. т. $\lambda$., oceur times, $o . y$. Tertulll has " "quarrta et sexta salisuunt (do Jejivn. 14, and St. Ejpiphan. Haer. Ixx. 12 ) But the first day is almost cers stanatly ( $\eta \mu \epsilon \rho a)$ киpoak' or kuplov, dies doninicus or dominica; (Jominicum does not necessarily mean "the Lord's day"" in Acta Martyr. S. Saturnini, Ruinart, 9 , 10 ." 10 : " non potest intermitti duminicum." Comp. dominicas sollemnia celebraviu, e 14 : "quomotio dominicae resurrectionis" (Tertul. 59 ); "dies oceurs only in mystieal expusitions, as St. Barn. ${ }_{P}^{E p}$. 15 ; St. Iren. de Oydoad. fragm. ; st. Hilar. ${ }^{\text {Pracf. in Explan. Psa/m. t. i. } 7 \text {; St. Augustine, }}$ Ep. 119 ad Januar. 10-16.
By the close of the 2nd century, we find the Wednesdngy nnd Friday distinguished as fast-days (or semije ""nia) under the name dies stationos, ${ }^{\sigma} \boldsymbol{\sigma} d \boldsymbol{d} \sigma$ es. The $G$ Greck names for these days are of Constantine (Euseb., Vitt. Const. iv. 18) a law quarta, sexta sabbati (Tertull. u.s.); more commonly fria quart ta and par iscetere. Comp. Petri Alex. fr. Alex. . Ir. (Ie Paschate, in. Routh, Rell. Sace. iii. $3+3$; Constit. Apost. vii. 23. The Greek names most if use for the days of the week are kupackikn, ${ }^{\sigma d \beta}{ }^{\text {decharo }}$; the Latin, dies duminizus, foria sceunha, $f$. ter tia, $f$. puarta, f. puinta, parascere, feria is rariously explained. [FERIA. The present writer conjectures that ferias seound ${ }^{\text {an }}$, tertia, s.e., came into use as Christianizod eqairalents for the sceunda sabhuti, \&e., objected to as Jewish. Comp. Resch in Herrog, $R$. $E$. Zeitreehnung, t. xviii. 473).

The planetary names for each day of the week came to the Romans (probnbly of the the Christinn era) from Ale the Christinn era) from Alexandria, as a plurely sutrologival, not a religious institute. The true explanation of these names institute. The true -the seand of the two given by Dion Cassius, xxxiii. 18 , the locus classicus on this subject (see xxxrii. 18," the locus classicus on this subject (see

[^194]WEEK
2031
Ideler, Hath. der Chron. u. s, and ii. 177 ; Lobeck, Aghophamus, p. 1+2, and J. C. Hare, on the A ames of the Diags of the $H$ e. $k$, in the Cumbinidye Philological Muscum, vel. I.), viz. that each of the twenty-four hours of each dny, beghaning at suarise, was assignel to one of the seren "planets," taken in the then-received or ler, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sun, Mercury, Venus, Joon, continued, without interruption, from day to day. Thus, the first hour at starting of the cycle being that of Saturn, that planet is "regent " of the Whole day, the eighth, fifteenth, twenty-second hours being also his; the twenty-thirl has Jupitar ; twenty-fourth, Mars; and the twentyfilth, or first of the following day, comes to oun, who, therefore, as "regont," gives his name to the day; Thus the twenty-second hour being the oun's, the twenty-third and twenty-fourth the fellowing day to enus, nod the first hour of and so on to day to Moon, whence dies lunae; this natrologlenl seheme first hour, Venus. In week is Saturilay seheme, the first day of the that the practice of Cass. (u.s.), who says seven plancts, though inming days after the knewn, "had comeng in his time universally must be understeod to so to say, bat recently," sion. It was certninl ty an of its general ditfutime. "Pumpey," he says, "througloore his siege of Jerusi) he says, "throughout the his great operations, of the well (B.ed hinself for the Jews on thens, of the well-known dopla of city by the final seventh day, and se took the And by the same nault 'on the day of Suturn.'" day of the taking of 'Jerusulequently calls the Sosius (i.c. 37), in of 'Jerusulem by Herol and tifying Saturn's in both statements clearly iden(Browne's Ord $y$ with the Jewish seventh day "day of S' Ordo Saeclorum, § 207 sq .). The name, stituy of Saturn," may have been Lion's own substitute for a "sabbath" or "seventh day" in the Sontemporary records relating to Pompey and Sosius. But early in our era, Tiballus (i. 3, 17) clearly auspicious Jewish enturday with the supposed insatus ares aut omina dirn Aut ego sum cautenuisse diem" (comp, Orid "rebus minus apta gerendis Culta Paluestino sep tima festa Syro "). Tacitus (IIst, y. 4) says sephsome imagined the Jews' sablintical rest to have been in heneur of aturn; Frontinus, in the reign of Nerva (Strateg. ii. 1, 17), that Vespasime reserved his shief assaults upen the Jews for the "day of Saturn," on which it was uniawful for them to do any work. Between this and the time of Dion Cassius, we have Christinn testimonies to the application of the planetary nanies Tertulligs of the Jewish week in Justin Martyr, Tertullisn, and his contemporary Clemeut of Alexandria. Plutareh's (iu. Sympos. iv. qu. 7, is unfortuuately lest: nccording to the heading, its gubject was the order of the planetary dsys, tions, which relate of the two preceding questhe planetary week was known, sabbath. That early in our era, is furt known, at least to artists, In the Pittore is further proved by monuments. of seven heads Erculano, iii. pl. 50, is a series Apollo $=$ Sol, Disìa $=$ Lana, Mars, Mercurius, has been fuuad on Egyptian monuments; the Egyption Chronologic der Aegypler, p. 131 It

WEEK

Jupiter, Venus, i.e. in the order of the wewkdays; also an ancient bronze represents the same seven deities, likewise beginniag with Saturn (Moatfaucon, Antiq. Eixpl. Suppl. J. pl. 17, p. 37 ; J. C. Hare, s. s. p. 31).

Early Christian writers use the planctary names, for the moat part, only in their apologies and other addresses to the henthen. Thus Saturday and Sunday; and Tertull. Apologet. c. 16,"Aeque si diem solis laetitiae indulgemus alia longe ratione quem de religione solis, aecundo loco ab eis sumus qui diem Siturniotio et victui decerunat, exorbitantes et ipsi a .Judaico more, quem Ignorant;" the samo matter is more fuily expressed in ad Nutiomes, i. 13. In the Codex alsu solis dies often occurs, but with expressions of honour attached; thus, in a law of Constantine (Cod. Just. iii. 12, de feriis, 1. 3, A.D. 321), "Umnes judices urbanaejne plebes et cunctarum artium officia venerabili die solis quiescant;"so Cod. Theod, ii. 8, de feriis 1 . 1 (same year), "djem solis vencratione sui celebrem;" and ibid. viii. 8, 1. 3 (A.d. 386), "Sollis die quem dominicum rite dixere majores." In addresses to Christians, when the planetary name, Sunday, is used, it is usually with a mystical or allegorical reference to the creation of light on the first day (alluded to in the passages of Barnabas and Ignatius, and clearly expressed in that of Justin Martyr, given above. Compare Leo the Great, Ep. leecret. 81, c. 1), or to Christ as the Sun of Righteousness. So St. Ambrose, Serm. 62 : " Dominica nobis venerabilis est atque sollemnis, quod in ea Salvator velut sol orens discussis inferorum tenebris ince resurrectionis emicuit: ac propterea ipsa dies ab hominibus sacculi Jies Silis rocatur, quod ortus eam Sol Justiticte Christus illuminat." Gregory of Tours (Hist. iii. I5)," Ecce adest dies solis: sic enim barbaris diem dominicum vocitare consuetudo est." Clement of Alexandria (Strom. vii, I2, § 75) finds a mystery also in the planetary names of the stationes: "The true Gnostic knows the aenigmata of the tetras and parasceve, our fasting days: to wit, that these being the days of Hermes and Aphrodité, he shall fast, his life long, for covetousness and carnal lust." The planetary names occur in some Christian calendars, and all through the Fasti Consulares Anonymi, from A. U. C. 246 to 1107 , in which to the consuls of each year is appended, together with the moon's age, the week-day of 1 st January: e.g. U. c. 1107 [ = A.D. 354], "Constantio VII. et Constantio II. Sat. xxi.;" meaning that the 1st January of that year was Saturday (Norisii Opp. xi. 595 sqq.). And even in Christian epitaphs, as in the following (ap. Noris. l. c. 686), of A.d. 457, in which Paschasins is said to have been born, "Dies paschales prid. Non. April. die Jobis," i.e. "in the paschal days, on 4th April, Jupiter's day." By the generality of Christians, however, the use of these heathen namee was avoided. Indeed Philastrius (or Philaster), contemporary and friend of St. Ambrose, cir. A.D. $3 $ 0$, In his work De Hacresibus, condemns the uge of the planetary names as heretical. Isidore of Seville, A.n, 59 S. (Etym. v. 30), having explained, for the benefit of the unlearned, that " the first day of the week, the una sab'atiof the Hebrewa, is with us dics Dominurus, which day the Gentiles hare dedicated to the Sun; the $2 d a$ sabbuti our $2 l a$ feria, by them of the world is called dies l.unae", etc. goes on to suy, that one dres best to comply with the ritus cocelesinvticus ly which the days are called ferise; and that if one of the hent hen names should chance to esrape one's lips, it should be considered that those whose names the pagans have given to the week-lays were human beings whe, as benefuctors of mankind, received divine honours and were translated? Into the heavens, so that it is no sin if their names do, now and then, happen to be usell by us. Comp. Bedne de Temproun Ratione, c. 6 .
[H. 13.]
When the Latio came to mingle with the Tentonic races, the Lati. roughly transinted the names of the Teutonic ginls by names uf deities with which they were familiar (Tacitus, Germ. 9 ; Anr. xili. 57 ; Mist. Iv. 64), anll conversely the northern triles found (as thay thought) Tentonic equivnlents fur the names in the Romm Pantheon (Grimm, Icentsche Mythoo logie, p. 108 fF . 2nd ed.). Hence the days of the week received names which were thought eguivnlent to their classical planetary deaoninations. This fact renders it highly probable that the week was adopted by the northern tribes in pre. Christian times; for if it had bem received from Christian missionaries, they would searcely have adopited a nomenclature which tended to jurpetmate the names of the very deities whose worship they sought to abolish. Both William of Malmesbury (Gesta Reg. p. 9, ed. Savile, 1601) and Matthew of Westminster (Flores, p. 82) make Hengist say to Vortigern, that the Saxons gave the nanse of Woden (as equivaient to Mercury) to the fourth day of the week, and of Freya (as equivalent to Venus) to the sixth. Further, the name of Thus or Zio (etyalalgically connected with Sanscrit Dúaus and C. $4 \times \mathrm{K}$ Zcis) was given, as equivalent to Mars, to the third day; and of Thor or Doamr, as eguivalent to Jupiter, to the fifth. Saetere or Siter (found in Saxon Saeteresdig, Frisian Suterdei, etc.) seums to be no more than the Teutonic way of writing the Latin Saturntes. Sol and Luna were simply translated into Sun and Moon. Hence arose the Teutonic and Scundinavias names of the days of the week, which are still preserved complets in Eaglish, Danish, and Swedish. In modem German Samstag (=Sabbatstay) has displacel Saturday, and Mittucoch Wednesday. In the Romance languages, the first day of the week hss a nanue derived from Dies Dominica (Ital, Domenica, Span. Domingo, Fr. Dinanche), and the seventh day one derived from Sabbatum (Ital. Sabbato, $\mathrm{S}_{\mathrm{j}}$ uar. Sabado, Fr. Samedi $=$ Salbuti Dirs). The Slavs, Lithunnians, and Finns do not appear to have adopted the planetary nomes; they simply number the days, making Monday the first day, and consequently Sunday the serenth. (See further in Grimm, D. M. p. 111 ff .). [C.]

The Sunday Letters.-From the earliest times after the introduction of the Julian catendar, we find the first eight letters of the aljuhabet A-H ranged in unbroken succession against the days of the months, from 1st Jan. to 31st Dec. (monumental calendars collected by Gruter, and by Foggini, are enumerated by Ideler, Handbuch, ii. 135). These letters marked the nundines : viz. on whatever day of January the first nuadines fell, the letter of that day marked the nundinal days througiout the year (except in leap year, when after $2+$ place, e.g. from rangement mus in or near Rom In use), it is a apply the like caleadars, fur in Yet it is not un Nice that tho $S$ viz. is the cales edited by Lamb t. iv., In which, numilinal, are $\mathbf{r}$ "qua nulla ant memorin extat, paschuli Rurenn further, Eastea

WHIPPING of rode as a jur others, see Cont
(2) Whipping discip) line. Thu ( +737 ), that in and commanded rids (Mahillon, the Penitentiad Bussordnunyen, redeeming a year huadred strokes And there are $m$ lash for penitenti
(3) The discipl mas to his own within our perio Spontanea Discip claims to have pr of this practice fourth century, spurfons writings hand. Some of the breast [TUNs of peaitenco, wh from whipping (Z p. 38 ff.)

WHITBY, CO CILUM), A.D. 66 tioned by Bede Wilfrid, and oth Osw respecting. 67-72; Wilkins 100-106).

WHITE GAR alls, in which the as they issned fro frequently allnded for instance, the $p$ sttributed to Lac Epit. xii. ad Se Catech. Mystag. iv c. 7 [BАРTISM, p. 1 white robe was ac Gregorian Ordo Bo "Accipe vestem quant perferas sine Nostri Jesu Christi.
It was the alm church that the worn for eight dn rla is cullad hat one doen exintions by id that if one lescape one's those whuse week-ilaya tors of mail. re translated sin if their , be used by tione, c. 13.
[II, II.] le with the y transidet b) names of iar (incitus, 4), and rond) (as they the uames in tsche $M_{y}$ thodiays of the hought eypinominations. ble that the rilies in pres. eceived from earcely have aded to preteities whose oth William Savile, 1601) (ores, p. 8:) the Saxons lent to Merveek, and of of the sixth. y:uologically C. *ik Zés) to the third quivaient to Sater (found oi, etc.) seums ly of writing were simply nee arose the of the days red complets In moilew us divplaced ay. In the the week has (ltal, Dume (c), and the batum (ital. $S\left(a^{\prime}, b u t i\right.$ Dics). lo not appear anmes; they Monday the the soventh. 1 ff .). [C.] earliest times calendar, we phabet A-H st the days of Dee. (monuuter, and by Handluch : ii. lendines : viz. irst nundines the nundinal in leap year,

WIIIPPING

WIDOWS

When after 24th Feb, the letter fell back one place, e,y. from B to A). Familiar as thie arrangement mast have been to Christians living in er aenr Rome (or wherever the nundines were is use), it is atrange that they did not earlier apply the like arrangement to their enclesiastical calsodar, for marking the Sundays of each year. Yet it is not untif some time after the councll of Nlee that tho Sunday letters are first met with, viz. in tho calendar of the reign of Conatantius, edited by Lambeciua in the Bubliotheo. Vindebon, t. iv., in which, side. by alde with the oid eight nundiuai, are rasged the aeven dominical letters, "qua nulia antiquior dominicalium charscteram memoria extat," any cardinal Norss (de Cydo puschuli Rarennate, Opp. t. 11. col. 786). See further, Eisster, p. 593.
[H. B.]
WIIIPPING. (1) For the use of the lash or of rois as n punishment, whether ca monks or others, bee Cobioral Punisiment, p. 469.
(2) Whipping was also used an a penitentiai discipline, Thus it ia related of abbat Pardulph ( $\dagger 737$ ), that in Lent he bared his whole boiy, and commanded his discjpie to beat him with vids (Mabillon, Aetr SS, Bened. iij, 537). In the Penitentid of Cummean (Wasserschleben, Bussorduungen, p. 463) one of the methods of redecming a year of penance is to receive three hundred strokes of the rod on the bare body. And there are many instances of the use of the lash for penitential purposes in later times.
(3) The discipline of the scourge applied by $n$ man to his own baek probably does not fall within our period. For though Gretser ( $D e$ Spontanea Disciplinarun scu Flagellorum Cruce) claims to have produced proofs of the existeneo of this practice from writers es early as the fourth century, his proofs are either from spurious writings, or fail to prove the matter in hand. Somo of them relate to the beating of the breast [T'unsio Pecroris] as an indication of penitence, which is a very different thing from whipping (Zöekler, Geschichte der Askese, p. 38 ff .)
[C.]
Whitby, council of (Piarense ConCllicm), A.D. 664, when the eunference mentioned hy Isede between Colsuan, Agilbert, Wiffrid, and others in the presence of king Onw "-72; Wilkjns by Haddan and Stubbs, iii. 67-72; Wilkjns by Haddan and Stubbs, iii, 100-106).
[E. S. Ff.]

WHITE GARMENTS. The white robes, or alls, in which the baptized were elothed as soon as they issued from the bnptismal waters, are frequently alluded to by ancient writers. See, for instance, the poem De Ricsurrectione Domani sttributed to Lactantius ; Paulinus of Nola, Epist. xij. ad Sever.; Cyril of Jerusalem, Cutech. Mystag. iv. 8; Ambrose, de Mysteriis, c. 7 [Baptism, p. 163]. The conferring of the white robe was aecompanied, according to the Gregorian Ordo Baptizandi Inf., by the words : "Aceipe vestem candidam et immaeulatam, quam perferus sine macula ante tribunal Domini
It was the almost universal custom of the chnrch that the white baptiamal robes were worn for eight daye, so that when baptisme took place on Easter-Eve the alby were taken off on the tlrat Sunday after Eister, the Dominica in albis depositis. This eeremony appears to have taken place in the ancristy or vestry attached to the baptistery, where they were attached to the baptistery, where they were washed in water blessal for the purpose. What became of them after this is not quite clear. In some cases they sem to have been preserved in the chureh or by the sponsor; for a certain dencon Maritta (Fietor Vitensia de Persco. V'undal, v, 9), produeed as a witness against hia godehild Eipidopherus, who had fullen into Arianism, the sabana which he had received at baptism. In other cases the baptized person seeme to have ratalne! it, for we read that St. Anthony of Egypt, in the prospect of martyrdom, appeured betore the judge in his baptismal alb Martigny, Dict. de's Antiq. Chrét. s. v. Aubs; Suicer'a Thesaurus, в. vv.
 on the Gregorian Sacramentary, p. 356). [C.]

Whitsuntide. [Pentecoat.]

WIDOWS. It is elear that the cars of the fintherless and the widow formed in enily times an imporitant department of ecelesinstical administration. Among subapoatolic writings the Shepherd of Hermas is conspicuous for the prominence which it gives to the aubject, re8 jeatedly enjoining it aa a Christinn duty (Mand. 8,$10 ; \operatorname{Sin} .1,8 ; 5,3$ ), and contrasting the "pernicious men who, abnsing their ministry, plunder widows and orphans" with the good bishops who shelter and protect them (Sim. 9 , 26, $2 ; 9,27,2$ ). Ignatius makes it a repronch against certain herities that they neglected widows and those who were in distress (ad Smyrn. c. 6), and urges Polycarj, not to neglect widows, but to make them his especial care (ad Polyc. c. 4). Polycarp himself urges the presbyters of Philippi not to neglect the widow, the orplian, and the poor (nd philipp. c. 4); and using a metaphor which was not unfrequently repeated, and which is of importnnce in relation to his conception of the Christian sacrifice, hs apeaks of widows as being "an altar of saerifice" (Buनıa⿱艹hiptoy, ibic.). In the older dis* pensation the offerings which were presented to God were offered and partly consumed upon the great alter of the temple court, but uader the new dispensation they are distributed among widows and others who were in need (so Const. Apost. 2, $26 ; 4,3 ;$ Pseudom Ignat. ad T'ars. c. 9 ; Tertull. ad Uxor. 1, 7). Justin Martyr (Apol. i, 67) places widowa and orphans fist on the list of those to whom the offerings of Christian assomblies were distributed by their president. The Clementines (Efist. Clement. ad Jacob. c. 8 ; ef. Const. Apost. 4, 2) make it a primary duty of presbyters to stand towards orphans in the place of parents, and towards widows in the plaee of husbands. In the earlier books of the Apostolical Constitutions the references are frequent: 60 great was the care which was taken of widows and so libersl were the offerings which they reccived, that some of them shamelessly abused their privilege and made their wide whood a profitable trade ( ${ }^{2} p \gamma a \sigma i ́ a, 3,7,12.13: ~ c f$. Pseudo-Ignat. ad Philadelph. c. 4).

In order to entitle anyone to recel re reliaf, widowhood scems to have been of irsell:
sufficient quallification. Tho number of widowa thus reileved wan large, Corneilus of Rome, in the midale of the 3rd century, says that at ikome the whiown and others who were in distress amounted to tifteen huudred ( $E_{j}$ ist. Commel. ap. Easeb. II. A. 6, 43); and Chrysostom reckona the namiar of widows and virgins who were supported by the comparatively joor church of Aniech at three thuusand (S. Chrysost. Hom. in A/att. 06 (67), c. 3, ap. Migne, 1'. G. vol. Ivii. 630).

Of the wldows who were thus the ohjects of care to the church officers, some were formally enroiled on the matdiooyos, or liat of church mensiers, as a distiuct clasm or "orio": (the Clementines, Recogn. 6, 15, Hom. 11, 35, attribute the furmation of this "ordo" to St. Peter). But even at the time at which the Pastoral Ejuistles were written it is clear that restrictions wero placed upon admission to that ciass. It is inid down in 1 Tim. ₹. 9, 10 that a nodow is not to be entered on the church-roll (karale $\gamma \dot{\sigma} \theta \omega$ ) "under three-score years old, having been the wife of one mau, well reported of for goot works, if she have brought up chiliren, if she have lodged strangers, if she have washed the saints' feet, if she have relieved the afflieted, if she have diligently followed every geod work." These restrictions seem to have been consistently maintained in the eariy church. They are elaborately repeated in the Apestolical Constitutions, 3, 1, 5 ; Origen (in Joann. tom. 32, c. 7, vol. iv. p. 422, ed. Deiarue) shews that stress was lajd upon every part of them by arguing against too literal an interpretation of the ciause "if she have washed the saints' feet," the omission of which, he says, must not be taken to exclade a widow who, in her time of prosperity, shewed hospitality to the brethrea in other ways; Tertuliian (de veland. Virg. c. 9) shews that the restrictions of age and monegamy were maintained in Africa; and Ambrose implies that they existed in his time in Italy (Exhort. Virgin. c. 4, 23, vol. ii. P. 284, where Juliana of Bologan speaks of herself as being "adhue immaturam riduitatis stipendiis," i.c. not yet sixty years old ; so de Viduis, c. 2, 9, voi, ii. p. 188). There was sometimes the further restriction that $a$ widow must not have childrea or grandehildren capable of supporting her (Amhrosiast. in Epist. I. ad Timoth. c. 3, in the Append. ad op. S. Ambros. p. 295); but in later times the reatriction as to age was sometimes waived (Statt. Eccles. Antiq. c. 101, " viduae adoleseentes quae corpere debiles sunt sumptu ecclesiae cujus viduae sunt sustedtentur").

The possession of the qualifications which are mentioned in the Pastoral Epistles did not, ipso facto, entitie a widow to a place on the churchroll. She had to be definitely appointed words were in ordinary use for the oriination or appointouent of elerks; see Ordination). It doea not appear by whem the appointment was made. Chrysostom (de Sucerlot. 3, 16) counts the selection of fit persons among the burdens of the episcopal othice; but there is no evidence that the right of appointment was confined to bishops.

T'be "order of widows" ("ordo viduarum," Clement. IHomil. 11, 35; Const. Apost $\widehat{3}, 1 ; 8$, 25) which was thas formed was evidently a small ciass in each community. One of the earliest collectona of ecciesiastical rugulationa

 c. 21 (24), ed. Ditra. Juris Eiceles. Gruec. Monumenta, vol. i. p. 84 ; Lagnrde, Juris Eicoles. Religuite, p. 74; Ililgenfeld, Norum Testamentum vatrit canom'm receptum, fasc. 4, p. 101), but it haid in Joann. tom. 32, 7, rol iv. p. 422, ed. Welarue), and it is enumerated as co-ordinate with, and therefore distinct from, both clerks and hymen (Const. Apost. 2, $25 ; 3,11,15 ; 8,10,12,29$ ). Its members were supported ont of the chureh offerings until about the time of the council of Nicaen, when Constantine seut a rescrijit to provincial governors, ordering that they should for the future reccive an annual prevision in common with the charch virgins "et aliis qui disino ministerio erant consecrati" (iacert. Auct. de Con-tant. ap. Haenel, Corpus Letym ab /mjerat. Romanis anto Justinianum latomum, p. 196). Julian abolished this proviaion and compelled those who had received it to refund it (Sozom. II. E. 5, 5), but hia nuccesser, restored it ; and Theodoret speaks of it as existing in his own day (Theoloret, II. E. 1, 11).
The daties of the widows who had thus a separate place upon the church roll were of two kinds. For some of them the model was the Anna of the Gospel "which departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayersnight and day " (St. Luke ii. 37, referred to specially in Const. Apost. 3. 1: ef. S. Basil, Epist. 174 (283), p. 261 ) : others were croployed in the good works of nursing the sick, urging the younger women to live chastely, and, without teaching the mysteries of the kingdom of Gud, making converts of heathen women. The leading early rule is $\Delta$ ıar. K $\lambda \nmid \mu$. c. 18 , referred to above, "Let three widows be appointed: of whom let two centinue in prayer for ali whe are in trouble . . . . and let one attend to these who are being tried by illnesses, ministering to them, and vigilant, and reporting their neeessities to the presbyters." This rule ls repeated in the Jacobite canons of Gregory Barhebrseas, cap. 7, sect 7, ap. Mai script. Vet. Nov. Coll. vel. x. pars 11. p. 50, and in the Coptic Apostolical Comstitutions, ed. Tattam, p. 24. A more preeise account of the daties of a widow, especially in regard to "those who are without," is given in Const. Ajost. 3, 5 : cf. Clem. Alex. Strom. 3, p. 536, who traces back this part of the ministry of women to the times of the apostles. Origun (in Iraiam, Hom. 6, vol. iii. p. 117, ed. Delarue) sjeaks of their duty in relntion to younger women; Tertuliian (de Velund. Virg. c. 9) implies the existence of a similar duty, in giving as the reason for the restriction as to age and having berne children, "ut facile norint ceteras et consilio et solatio jurare." The leading Western canon in Slatt. Eecles. Antiq. c. 103 , " viduae quae stipendiis ecclesiae sustentantar tam assiduae in dej opere esse debent at et meritis et orationibus suis ecelesiam adjurent." (it is interesting to find an silinsion to the work of widows in the satirical account of the Christinns which is given by Lucian, de Morte Peno grini, c. 12, whe senterl as waitis How long thi is not telear; help its widow catena of pasas coustantly the meculated; bu the recognition widews after th Constitutions in Antion $t$ in the 1 "ordo vidunram not limited to $t$ years of age or This second orde vived the tirnt, a from it so earl Hom. de liduis, has often been ec the strong feel which manifented second century. meriterious for a band, not inere marriage, but to to inlieate her vo ("vestia frascior," voi. i. p. 174). ' cially strong in fathers of the en their best to enco a treatise $D_{c}$ l'i alsewhere speaks as a plant of sp L'vang. sec. Luc. Ii 19, p. 105). St. J at leme contained themselres the $v$ letters contain man had done so (e.g. Epist. 108 ad E.u Ageruck. p. 900); her purpose, he e "Reflect dajly tha yeu will never th (Epist. 54 ad Furi alse wrote a treatis P. L. vol. x]i.) ; in $i$ Novatians and Tert sre always to be cor those who thought s widew who had ta adultery (c. 10), b widews should take tuken it they should
The result of this widowhood was that took the vow. But appear to have been to gain greater free cloke for lascivious had at first supporte was compelled to cl after reciting the $a b$ bood, that childleas uge must either marr property to the pall it. 6, 1, 1, ed. Hacne the ether hand, conti of perpetual widowh Tho married a widow CHRIST. ANT. - VOL ua Tผ̂̀ Xทpây, ; тठ хワрікоу, lpost 3,$1 ; 8$, evidently One of the al rogulations al Кдһцегтог, Gruec. Monucoles. Rediguine, mentum extrit 1), but it hal т $\quad \mu \boldsymbol{\eta}$, Origen , ed, jelarue), ste with, and s and layman , 10, 12, 29). of the chure'h the conned of a rescrijet to it they shoull 1 provision in "et aliis qui (incert. Auct. um ab /mprerat. ні", p. 506 ). and compelled nd it (Sozom. tored it ; and ig ju his owa

3 had thus a Il were of two nodef way the rted not from 1 fastings and ii. 37, referred : ef. S. Bavil, were employed ck, urging the anli, without gdom of God, n. The lead18, referred to appointed: of r for all whe ttend to those ministeriag to g their neces. le ls rejeated - Barhebraeus, ov. Coll. vol. x. ic Apostolical A more prolow, especially tout," is giren iex. Strom. 3, of the ministry stles. Origen 7, ed. Delarue) n to younger irg. c. 9) imuty, in giviag as to age and norint ceteras The leading Antiq. c. 103, sustentsatur debent ut et am adjurent." in to the work of the Chrise Morte Pere

WIDOWS

WIDOWS
2035
grini, c. 12, where widaws nud orphans are rapreented as whiting at the jmison of i 'roteus). how long this primitive institution continued is not cleary the obligation of the ehurch to help ite widows of course contimued, and a long cutena of pasangesimight be made to shew how coustantiy the obligation was recognised and inculeated; but there are no certain traces of the recognition of the primitive class of poor Hidows after the later books of the Apontolical Conatitutions in the Fant and the Statute Ecclesite Ahtipus in the West, In the meantime mosher "ordo viduarum" was being formed, whith was not himited to those who were more than sixty Years of age or who were ja need of supiort. This second order of wifluws, which long surevived the first, nud which (though distinguished from it so carly as the time of from it so carly as the time of Chrysoustom, has ofton been confuanded with it, ell. Migne) the atrong feeling against second marriages Which manifented itself in the course of the second century, It cime to be considered meritorious fur a woman who had lost her husband, not merely to abstain from a second marriage, but to take a vow of nbstinence, and to indicate her vow by alopting a peculiar dress ("vestis fusciar," S. Iileron. Lipist. 38 ad Jarcell. cially strong in the Weest, and the great Latin fathers of the end of the fourth century dial their best to encourage it. St. Ambrose wrote alsewhere speaks of the (op. rol. ii. p. 184), and elsewhere speaks of the "grace of widowhood" as a plant of specially Christinn growth (in $19, \mathrm{p}, 105$ ). St. Jerome's circle of uoble Indies at Rome contained several who hal taken at Rome contained several who had taken upon themselves the vows of widlowhood, atd his letters contain many commendations of those who had done so (e.g. Eipist. 38 ad Maroell. p. 174 ; Epist. 108 ad Eustoch. p. $690 ;$ Epist. 123 ad Ageruck. p. 90() ; Ageruck. p. 90 (); 'to one who was wavering in her purpose, he ends a long letter by saying, "Reflect dnily that you will pue day die, and, you will never think of a second marringe" (Epist. 54 ad Furimb, p. 282). St. Augustiae (Epist. 54 ad Furim, p. 282). St. Augustiae also wrote a trestise De Buno V'duitatis (Migne,
P. L. Fol. xli.); in it he does not agree with the Novstians and Tertullian that second marriages are always to be condemned ( $c, 4$ ), nor even with those who thought that the second marriage of $a$ widow who had taken a vew of continence was adultery (c. 10), but he strongly urges that widows should take such a row, and that having tiken it they should persevere (c. 19).
The resuit of this ineulcation of the virtue of widowhood was that a large number of widows took the vow. But some of those who did so appesr to have been influenced ouly by a desire to gain greater freodom and to have a decent cloke for lasciriousuess. The civil law, which had at first supported the ecclesiastical teadency, had at first supported the ecclesiastical tendency, was compelled to Tras compelled to check it. Majorian enacted, after reciting the abuse of the vow of widowhood, that childless widows under forty years of age must etther marry again or forfeit hulf their property to the pullic chest (Novell. Majorian, it. 6, 1, 1, ed. Hacnel, $s$ 306). The church, on the ether hand, continued to proclaim the merit of perpetual widowhood. It made all persons Vho msrried a widow ineligible for admission to holy ordern, or, if alrendy in orvers, inellgible for promotion [Onders, Holy ; Sualifications for, $1 \%$. $1445,1+02]$; and if the whow of a clerk married agaiu, she was liablo to perpetual secluantter a convent. A curious lavtance of the Jatter rule is atlorded by Gregory the Great : the widow of a subleacuo who, after her huse visited with thls ordiwarried agalo, had been visited with this ordiuary punishment of seclu before but it was discoverel that her husinnd, before his death, had resigned his oflice; where. ispon Gregory arders the widow to be released is. Greg. M. Eyist. 4, 36, ad Leonem, p. 716). It is probabte that amang the Teutonje peoples fhe ecclesiastieal tendency was fostered by the feeling agninst second marringes which to inentiune i by Tacitus (Germ. c. 19), and which is Meroviug orh in the Tentonic codes and in the Merovingian enjuitulariea (cf. Walter, Deutscho Auchts, fcschichte, $2^{24}$ Ausg. 8487 ).
CHEIgT. ANT.-VOL. H.
who is clear that for several centurles widows Who took the vow were free to live, as they had eighth contury their own houses. But by the in Ghth century a feeling had grown up, espectaliy in Ginul and Spain, that the only safety from temptation lay in their living, as virgius under a vow usually lived, in munasteries. In A.D. 748 Ilpin and the Gallican ciergy put the formal question to pope Zachary " whether wilows who lived in their own houses could save their souln," to which the pope gives no definite answer, but, following the decretal of Gelasius, lenves thase who break their vows to the judgment of God (Zachar. Pap. Epist. ad Pippin. ap. Cenni Codex Ctrolinus, vol. i. p. 46, and Migne, P. L. vol, xcriii. 84). la the following ceutury the Gallicen church abolislied the option which, though diacouraged, had still continted to exist, and enacted that professed widows should no longer be nllowed to hive Io private bouses ( 6 Couc. Paris, A.D. 829, lib. I. c. 44). In this, as in some other respects, pope Nicholns I, disnpproved of the Gallican ennetmeut, and refused to allow Widows to be forced into monnsteries (Nicol. I. Respons. ad Bulyar. c. 87, ap. Mansi, vol. xp. p. 429). But ultimately the Gallican rulo preYniled; the taking of the vows of widowhood implied eatrance into a monastery; the order of Widows was merged in that of nuns, and, as may be gathered from the omission of the rltea of benediction of widows in the later Sacramentaries, at jength disappeared altogether:
The taking of the vow of perpetual widowhood whs accompanied by the adoption of a dresa which at first probably differed from the ordinary dress only in its material and its colour (S. Hieron. Epist. 38 ad Marcoll. vol. i. p. 174, S. August. Epist. celxii. 9 ; ap. Migne, P. L. vol. exxiii. 1081). The assumption of this dress was probably at firat the private act of the widow herself, unattended by any ceremony; but it soon became usunl to give grenter emphasis to the vow of which it was the token by making it in the presence of a bishop. Even this was in the first instance a private and not a public ceremony; for the first council of Orange, A.D. 441, c. 27, speaks only of " viduitatis servandse professionem cornm episcopo in secretarie habitam imposita ab eniecopo veste viduali indicandam."

But uitimately, In the West, the act was attended with a ceremonial for which proviglon is made in most enrly ordinals. This was especially the case after the identification or confusion of the order of widows with the order of deaconesses. In early times, and probably always in the East, the two orders had unquestionably been distinct. (1) Their functions were distinct, widows being employed in prayer and in tending the sick, whereas deaconesses had the special duties of assisting at the baptism of women, and of guarding the church doers. (S. Epiphan. Expos, Fid. c. 21, p. 1104, I'soudoIgnst. ad Antioch. c. 12 , Constit. $A_{l}, 0$ ost. 3. 15). (2) The mode of appointment was different, deaconesses lesving imposition of hands, which widows had not (Const. Apost. 8. 18, 29). (3) The Apostolical Constitutions state it as a mark of a good widow, that she suhordiantes herself to the deaconesses as well as to the presbyters and dencons (Const. Apost. 3. 7.). (4) A deaconess might be a virgin (Const. Apost. 4. 17, Sozom. I. E. 8. 23). But it is clear from the enactments of the council of Epaon, A.D. 517, c. 21, and the second council of Tours, c. 21, fifty years later, that in the Frankish and Burgundian kingloms the distinction had come to be disregarded. It may also be noted that the Statuta Ecelesiac Antijua, c. 12, give to widows the same functions in the baptism of women which in the East were assigned to deaconeases. It whs a mutural result that many parts of the rite of ordination were common to willows and deaconesses. The earliest ritual is that of the Missale Francorum (Muratori liturgia Rom. Vct. vol. iii. p. 463), which consists of two parts, (1) the benediction of the widow's clothes, (2) the beraediction of the widow herself. For the first part two prayers are given, which are found slso in Eghert's Pontifical (ed. Surtees Society, p. 110); where two other prayers, "Deus qui vestimentum salutare," . .. "Dcus bonarum virtutum dator," . . are added, which are also found in the text of the Gregorian Sucramentary (as given by Muratori, vol. ii. p. 785 ), and in the Codex Maffianus (ibid. vol. iii. p. 103), for the consceration of the vestments of either a widow or virgin. The second part consists of three prayers, (1) "Consolare Iomine hanc famulnm," . . . which is found also in Egbert's Pontitical, p. 110, in Hittorp's Ordo Romanus, p. 149, in the Gelasian Sacramentary (Muratori, vol. ii. p. 380), and in the Codex M tlfeianus (ibid. vol, iii. p. 109) ; (b) "Domine Deus virtutum coelestium,".... which is found also in Hittorp's Ordo Romanus; (c) Deus qui Annam filian Fsanuelis," .... which is partly found alse in Egbert's Puntifical und in the Nissale Gallicanum Vetus (Muratori, vol, iii. p. 507); and which In Hittorp's Ordo 1 omanus, p. 144, forms part of the othice of the consecration of a deaconess, Egbert's Pontifical adds annther prayer, which is omitted from tha other ordinals at the consecration of a widow, but oceurs in Hittorp's Ordo Romunus, ibid, in the consecration of a deaconess. The rites of imposing the veil and of plaeing under tha bishop's ban all who disturb the peace of the widow or deaconcss are identical in the two cases in Hittory's Ordo, pp. 144, 149 ; in each case, it is the deaconess or widow hersalf who places the veil upon her haid. This point is of some importance, as interpretling and illus. trating the Western ulo that no bishop should veil a widow; (Gelas. Epist. 9 ad Episc. Lucan. c. 15, Decretum General. app. IIinschius, Decretales Psoudo-Isidoriante, 11. 652; repeated in Conc, Rotom. c. 9, Karoli M. Cipit. Alpuis,ran. A.d. 789, c. 59. The rule seems sometimes to have been interpreted as prohibiting the veiling of widows at all; its meaniuy appears to have been that only hishops could veil virgins, and that ooly presbyters could veil widows; so 6 Conc. $\dot{P}$ aris. A.d. 829 , lib. i. c. 40 ).

A widow who after thus making a solema profession of continence broke her vow, wss liable to severe ecclesinstical censure. Gelnsius, Decretum Gencrale, c. 21, ut supra, had been content to leave such an one to the juigment of God. But the African, Spanish, and Gallicon councils imposed the penalty of a more nr less lengthened excommunicstion ; stat. Eicles. Antiq. c. 104, 3 Conc. Tolet. c. 10, 3 Arrel. c. 18, 4 Tolet. c. 56, 5 Paris. c. 15, 6 Tolet. 6. The Eastern rule visited a deaconess who married with death and confiscation (Nomocanon, tit. 9 , c. 29, ed. Pitra, Jur. Eecl. Gracc. Mon. vol. ii, p. 564 ).

It is probable that at one tıme, in the East, the senior willows had as such a distinct raok and distinct functions. As women had theit own deaconesses, so also they seem in some places to have had their own presbytercsses. The references to them are few in number. The most important is that of the apecrypihal Actu et Martyrium Matthaci, c. 28 (uceording to the Paris MS. as edited by Tischendorf, Acta Apoo stolorum A pocrypha, p. 187), which spenks of the apostle as having ordatued the wife of a certain king as $\pi \rho \in \sigma \beta$ ûtis, and his son's wife as deacomess, The Council of Landicen, e, 11, implies their existence in its prohibition of their appointment for the future; but this prolibition must be held to refor to their functions, or to their place in church ( $\pi \rho о к a \theta \eta \mu$ évas), and not to their existence as a class, since they are distinetly recognized in the Apostolical Constitutions as being co-ordinate with widows and virgins $(2,57)$, thongh iuferiors to deaconesses ( 2,28 ), and also since Epiphanius (Lixpos. Ficl. c. 4, P. 1060), arguing against the Collyridians, states that the church gave the title $\pi \rho \in \sigma \beta$ útisas to the eldet widows. The carlier Western collections of enaons understand the Laodicean canon us referring to 'mulieres quae apud Graecos presbyterae appellantur, apud nos autem viduae seniores, conversae, et inatriculariae' (Fulgent. Ferrand. Breciat. Canon. 221, ap. Migne P. L. vol. Ixvii. 960 ; 80 I:idor. Mercat. ap. Migne, F. L. vol, exxx. 287): and a canonist of the 10 th century, whose source of information seems to be lost, speaks of them as having the power 'praedicanli, jubendi, rel docenili " (Atto Vercellens, Epi t. 8, ap 1)'Achery, Spicilogium, rol. i. p. 438). It is probable that they were also to some extent recoguized in the West : for although in many places, e.!. in St. Greg. M. Epist. 9, 7, p. 931, the term 'preshy. terae' may be only used of the witc of a presbytest on the other hand Mabillon's Ordu Romans, ix. p. 91 and Hittorp's Ordo Rominus, p. 88, maka a distinct provision for the benediction 'presbyterissa um atque diaconisssrum.' Un. fortunately, however, these references, though clear and salhicient to establish their existente, stand altogether alone.
It may be added, partly in explanation of the above qu
East as w was appli sepration instance is Le Biss an et Latines Cotiaeum $\chi \eta \rho \circ \sigma \dot{v} \nu$
$\tau \in!\rho \delta \mu \in \nu 0 \nu$.
WIGS.
that in a which was supposes to wig with $t$ lying on th

The use a nations of a Martial dir the women this means, case," like men who ch of the year, outwit Fate an absurd Commodus, and then po

Christians influeace of to be expec would not a former life. been objects women, and use (I Cor. among Chri artificial mea of the fathe siganlizes hi "gave their wher passag menstrosities were in vogu cella (xxiii.), wenring wigs hnir make at frescoes and s be seen repre seated at bar nrtificially dr and is a grea these monume

WILFRED, on Apr. 24 (M willebr memorated in Wand., Rom.).

WILLS (T) siastical law $\mathbf{r}$ cannot be co rangement, as t form of excep eivil law mron extent, incoipo pifriod subserfue and lit ls a no tangle from this above quotation from Ferranius, that in the Enst as well as in the West the term 'widow', was applied to a wife who lived in voluntary separation from her husband: the most pertinent instance is afforded by a sepulchral inscription in Le Bats and Waddington's Inscriptions Grecques et Latincs d'Asie Mineure, No. 816, found at

[E. H.]
WIGS. Boldetti (Osservazioni, p. 297) relates that in a tomb of the cemetery of St. Cyrinca, which was without inscription, but which he supposes to be the tomb of a martyr, he found a wig with the hair arranged in plaits and still lying on the head of the corpse.
The use andabuse of fulse hairamong the pagan nations of antiquity is well known. Juvenal and the women who the force of their satire against this womenss, who try to revive their youth by ease," like, "enclosing their heats in a sort of men who change their its scabbard; against the of the year, and the dotards who think they ean outwit Fate by a blonde wig. Lampridius gives an absurd aketch of the wig of the emperor Cominotus, sprinkled with giutinous perfumes, and then powdered with gold dust.
Christians were not always free from the influence of the prevailing fishion; nod it was to be expected that converts from Paganism would not at once abandon the fashions of their former life. Long and Howing lociss have always been objects of admiration, at ali events on women, and St. Paul expressly sanctions their use ( 1 Cor. xi. 15). Hence, perhaps, the desire among Christians to supply their place by ortificial means, This brouglit down the censure of the fathers of the church, and Tertullian signalizes himself by an attack on women who "gave their hair no peace." He speais in another passage (de Cultu Fo min. 7) of "the monstrosities of twined and stitche! hair," which were in vogue, and Jerome, in a letter to Marcella (xxiii.), pointedly alludes to the rage for wearing wiga among women "who with fillse lanir make an edifice of their heads." In the frescoes and soulptures at the catacombs are to be seen represent.tions of women in prayer, or seated at banquets, with abundant hair very nrtificially dressed. This marks their epoch, and is a great help in determining the ditte of these monuments.
[E. C. H.]
WILFRID, bishop of York, commemorated on Apr. 24 (Mart. Metr. Bed.). [C. H.]
WILLEBRORD, bishop of Utrecht, commemorated in Frisia Nov. 7 (Mart. Usuarl., Wand., Rom.). WILLS (Testamentr). The rules [C. H.] siastical law relating to testamentary matters camont be collected in any systematle urrangement, as they are for the most part in the form of exceptions to the general law. The civil law upon the subjret has been, to a large extent, incorporated into the canon liw of the perind subsequent to the limit of this article; noll it is n natter of some difficulty to diseentangla from this great mass of legislition those enaetments which properly belong to tha ecelasiastical law of the first eight centuries,
In this article the regulations to be found in the different codes will be arranged under tha following heads:-
I. The Capacity to bofueath by will.
II. The Capacity to take under a wil.
III. The Property uthich may be made the trill.
IV. Miscellaneous Provisions.
V. Succession by Intertacy.

The law relating to the testamentary disposition of Apostates will be found in the article on that subject. [Apostasy, p. 104.] See also Property of also Property of mhe Church (p. 1730 f.), Hospitals (p. 788 , col. 1), nad (Masurirties 1), Bisiop (p. 238, tie Ciergy (p. 8:6, col. 2).

I. The Capacity to bequeath by Will.

In France.-By the second canon of the second council of lyons (A.D. 567), bishopa anil other elergy might bequeath property to the church without the formalities required by the civil law. This law was repeated in the tenth canon of the fifth council of Paris (A.D. 615). The eighth canon of this council contained the provision, that the archbishop or archleacon should not appropriate to themselves or their church any property left by a clerk to another ehureh
In the African Clum gustine the right of giving or riding to St. Au* was taken away froin the or receiving by will contr. Ep. Parmeniani, 12.) Donatista. (Líb. 1, Unter the Imperial Laro.-The duty of bein the ainproperty to the church was enforced in the amplest terme and facilitated by Constantine in A.D. 321 (Cod. Theod. 16, 2. 4). For the Gothofred, and This constitution, see the note of This injum, and Thumassinus (3, 1, 16, and 18). This injunction was repeated in the Code of better better opinion amongst civiliaus would appear to be that it does not gire the right of making a Thil, to those who had not otherwise that right. The solution of other questious arising upon this constitution will be found in the commentaries and suminarized in the notes of Van Leeuwen (Antwerp, 1809).
Bequests thus made were secured to the possession of the chureh by a constitution of Leo (A.D. 470), ingerted in the Code of Justinian (1, 2, 14). 2, 14 ).
Women were forbidden to bequeath property Valentinian an persons by a constitution of Valentinian a.0. 370 (Cod. Theod. 16, 2, 20).
This was extended so perty of deaconcesses to far as regards the proand noor he Teonesses to hequests to the church and poor by Theolosius, A.D. 390 (i.od. Theod. 16, afterwards last constitution was two months Theod. 16, repealed as regurds mavables (Cod. gated by Marian in Both constitutions were ahro${ }_{\text {obser by Martian in A.D. } 455 \text { (Nov. Mn't. 6!. Tha }}$ ${ }_{25-28}$ ) 25-28) on this. Hoocll. mar be compared with the notes of Guthofred on the three constitutions of Theodosius, in A.D. 381 (Cud. Theorl. 15, 5, 7), a disability which was exten led by the same emperor to Eunomians in A.D. 389 (Cod. Theod. 16, 5,17 ). Thia right of giving and receiving by will will was restored to and taken awny from these hereties seversl times during the subsequent forty years. The seventh book of the history of Sozomen illustrates these changes of imperial policy ond feeling.

At leogth in A.D. 428 a comprehensive coastitution wns promulgated by Theodosius the younger (Cod. Thed. 16, 5, 65), which confirmed the loss of testamentary rights in the case of tweutythree elasses of heretics mentionod therein by name. These penalties were confirmel by Justiuian in his code $(1,5)$. In the 129th Norell., A.D. 559, he grants privileges to the Samaritani, but these were taken awny by Justin in the 144th Notell.

By a constitution of Valentinlon in A.D. 426 (Cod. Theod. 16, 8, 28), two privileges were given to the converted children of Jews. In the first place they could not be disinherited or passed over by their Jewish pareats, nor given less than they would receive under an intestacy. Sccoadly, even if they were disinherited for a erime against their parents, they were still to receive the quarta Falcidia. In the code of Justinian is inserted a constitution of Marcian (A.D. 455), euabliag women dedicated to religion, in the teehnieal sense, to bequeath their property to eeclesiastienl purposes (Cod. 1, 2, 13). Justinian himself in A.D. 538 forbad to monks the right of making a will (Nov. 76, 1). In the 123 rd Novell. (A.D. 546) he secured to presbyters and elerks of inferior orders the right of bequeathing their property (Nov. 123, 19).

Under the Barbarian Codes.-By the laws of l.uitprand, king of the Lombards in A.D. 721, minors under eighteen yenra of oge could bequenth a part of their property in favour of churches and hospitals (Davoud Ouyhlou, vol. ii. p. 61).

II. The Capacity to take under a Will.

In France.-By the 6th canon of the council of Agde (A.D, 506) followed by the 20th ennon of the council of Rheims (A.D. 625) preperty bequeathed to s clerk was considered to be bequenthed to his church.
In the African Church. - It had, in St. Auguatine's tim', become a rulo that the church ahould receive no estates given to the great detriment and prejudice of common rights, as if a father disinherited his children to make the churetr his helr (Augustiae, Serm. 49, De Diecrsis; Possidius, Vita Augustini, c. 24; cited by Binghem, 5, 4, 13).

By the 13th canon of the third council of Carthage (A.D. 397) bishops and elergy were forbidden to bequeath their property to non-Catholic Christians, even when blood relations. By the 81 st canen in the Codex Ecclesiae Africanae (A.D. 419), bishops who appointed heretical or pagan heirs were pronounced anathemn, and removed from the roll of thoge whose names were recited as priests of God. The same penalty was inflicted if by his dying intestate the property of a bishop should devolve on heretics or pagans.

Under the Imperial Lato.-Justiniau permilted the disherlsion of heretical children by their parents in the 115 th Novell. A.D. 542, and of heretical parents by their children $(3,14 ; 4,8)$. In A.D. 546 he forbad the disherision of children by parents and of parents by children by reason of their embraeing a nonastie life (Nov. 123, 41). He also directed that if a person had entered a monastic life, and had died bofore dividing his property, his chularen ony toon a pars leyitima, the rest of the property ging to the monastery (Nov. 123, 38). Parents were not nllowed altugether to diwinherit ehildren taking orders or eatering a monastery, ns appears from a Constitution of Justiniaa, A.D. 534 (Cod. 1, 3, 55).
11I. The Property which may be made the Subject of a Will.
In the East.-The councll of Antioch held in A.D. 341, iu its twenty-fourth and twentyfifth canons, provides for the sepuration of the private property ef a bishop from the property of the church under his enre, so that the latter might not be bequenthed by him with his private property. [On these canons, and the ajostolic cranons on the same subject, see AlinNAtion, p. 51, col. 1.]

A case in which this law was disregurded will be found in the acts of the council of Clalcedon (A.D. 451). Four presbyters of the church of Belessa accused their metropolitan, lbas, of conniving at the misconduct of his snffragan, Daniel, who had bequeathed ecelesisatical property away from the chureh.

In France, by the thirty-third canon of the counell of Agde (A.D. 506), if a bishop, not having children or graudehildren, did not make the chureh his heir, his property was to be muleted of a sum equivalent to that spent by him out of eqclesiastical revenues on other objects; hut if he left descendants, they must indemnify the chureh out of the inheritanes. The canons numbered forty-eight and fifty-one (but which are of doubtful authenticity) forbid bishopis to leave to heirs or legatees any church property. This provision as to legacies is found in the serenteenth canon of the council of Epaon (A.D. 517), but it excepts cases whire the testator hns given an equivalent out of his private property.

In Spain, the first canon of the first council of Seville (A.d. 590) repented the abeve-cited thirty-third canon of the council of Agde.

Under the Barbarian Codes.-The laws of Aistulphus (A.D. 749) gave exceptional yalidity to wills in faveur of boly places. In the laws of the Visigoths provisions will be found for restrining the cupidity of the hoirs of lishops and other clergy (Davoud Oghlou, vol. li. p. 151, vol. i. P. 163).

Upon the whole matter Van Espen (Jus Ecclesiusticum, 2, 4, 1, 8) draws the conclusion that in the encient canons it was forbidden to the elergy as well as to the bishops to bequeatio sny property which they had acquired from the chureh.

As to the operation of the Lex Faleidin upon bequests for church purposes, see Prorerty (p. 1731), and Ferraris, Bibliotheca sub voce Legatum, весs. 137-138.

IV. Miscellaneous Provisions.

In France.- By the fourth canon of the first council of Vaison (A.D. 442) any person as an infidel who should keep back the gifts of the faithful departed, was to be crast out of the church. This canon was sepeated in the twenty-second canon si the third council of Orlesses (A.D. 538). The fourth council if Orleana (a.d. 541) simply provides in cenon fowrteen that property left by a lawfol will to the ehurch by the hein provisions by the fot Múcon (A.D In the A eighteenth que that a under a wil

In s'pain. council of ' decerased bis proprity w politan, and consent of t
In liughon brought in would seem dialogue of 732-7615; p. 40.3), w! beeome witn company wit Unelcr the should prest questions see -": absurdur opprobriosum ceptitinuum (A.D. 524 ) ut

Justinian $\mathbf{i}$ limit of act purposes (Co reduced it to chureh of Ro Justinian coustitution bishops, and politing, the applicat ton of Two vins clergy of thei sny "querela thia privilege 123, 19).
There are Justinian of $A$ struction of wi bounty is obse Our Lord are church of the decensed, bequi churches dedic or neighbourh nsmed in the churches than of the testator 1 this eannot be to be chosen ( $C$ legislation on $t$ bee l'roperty

V. $s$

In the enrlies Whether bishops order succeeded from a consitit (Cod. 1, 3, 20), Care wns, howev perty of bishops chureh property right of their oniy ioun a perty ghing nreuts were rit children F as npleners D. 534 (Cod.

the Subjict

 ntioch held Ind twentry. ation of the he property it the latter ith his prind the aposee Aliena-egarded will of Chalcethe church an, Ibas, of 8 suffiragan, iastical proanon of the ,not having $t$ make the be muleteded him out of ects; but if leunity the The canons (but which I blshops to b property. und in the Eppan (A.D. testntor his co property. Grat council nbove-cited Agle. wo of Aistul. dity to wille lnws of the r restraining sand other 151, vel. i.

Espen (Jus e conclusion bidden to the equenti sny d from the

WILLS
the church or to $n$ hishop cannot be demanded by the heirs of the decensed. The more stern provisions of the earlicr councils were repeated by the fourth cauon of the first council of Mácon (A.D. 581 ).
In the Alfrieden Church it was forbiden by the eighteenth conen of the Statutio Licelesiad Antiqua that a bishop should accept a guardianship under a wili.
In sipain,-By the seventh rnuon of the ninth council of Toledo (A.D, 655) the relations of $n$ deceased bishop were forhiditen to denl with his prowerty withont the consent of the metropolitan, and in the case of the clergy without the consent of the bishop.

In Einglend the only distinct enactment not brought in by the adoption of forrign comencils would seem to be the second naswer in the dialague of archbishop Figuert of York (A.D. 732-7ut; see IJadlan and Stubbs, rol, iii. p. $40: 3$, where he directs the clargy not to company with of of nuncupatory wills exerpt in company with other persons.

Unler the Imperial $L_{\text {ine. -That the rergy }}$ should presume to decide upen testamentary questions semped to Justin a most improper act -"nbsurdum etenim clerieis est, immo etian opprolniosum, sl peritos se volnit ontenlere disceptationum esse furensinm," nud he torbad it (a.i. 524 ) under "heavy fine. (Cud. 1,3 , +1). Justinian in A.D. 528 gave 100 years ns the limit of aetions upon legncips to eeclesiastiral purposes (Cod. 1, 2, 24); but he afterwards reduced it to forty yeary, except in the case of the church of Roone (Nov. 131, 6).
Justinian in A.D. 530 promulgated $n$ long constitution (Corl. 1, 3, 46), imposing upon the bishops, and in their defiult upon the metropolitins, the duty of looking siter the proper applicat:en of vecquests to pious uses.
Twe ra ars later he exempted hequests by the clergy of their "peculium puasi castrense "from any "querela inofficiosi" (Cool, 1, 3, 50) ; but this privilege way taken away A.D. 5413 (Live.
123,19 . 123, 19).
There are provisions in a constitution of Justinian of A.D. 530 for determining the ronstruction of wills when the object of the testator's bounty is obscurely indicated-c.g. bequents to Our L.ord are to be held to be given to the church of the town or neighbrurhuod of the decensed, bequests to archangels nal martyrs to churehes dedicated by their natne in the town or neighbourhood, failing such to the church so named in the metropolis. If there are more churches than one of the same name the intention of the testator must if possible be nsecrtnined; if this camnot be done, then the peorest church is to bs chosen (Cod. 1, 2, 26). [For the further legislation on this subject in the 131st Notell. bee Property of the Clurchi.]

V. Succossion by Intestacy.

In the earliest times the heirs of the elergy, Whether bishons, presbyters, or others of inferior order succeeded in ense of intestacy, ns appears from a constitution of Valentinian, A.D. 334 (Cod. 1, 3, 20), In whleh no distinction nppenrs. Care was, however, taken that the private property of lishops should be separated from the church property, which they administered in right of thelr sees, so that the fermer slone should pass to the private heirs, (Sve Conc. Autioch. A.D. 341, eap. 44 ; Cone. Chate. A.D.
451, cap, 22. ) 451, cap. 2e2.)
In the tith century the camons of conneils, Which dirented bishep to make the ehureh their heir in deffult of issue, nefiected to the samp extent the succession by intertacy (see Cone. Agath, A.d, 5013, cap. 333). But this rentriction did not aply to the priperty of the elergy below the order of hishops the order of hishops; and in eonsequence nttempts were wont to lie mate to excluile the heirs of the clergy, The spventh camon of the tith council of liaris (a.D. 615) was directel agninst this aluse.
Tho contrary pactlee, by which the heirs of un intestate bishop appropriated rhurch property, hall to he gaarided agalast. This tempitation semms to have been especially felt in Spuin, and ennous of several councils are concerned with its suppression. (Cone. Thracon. A.d. 516 , cap. 12; Cone. Ilerdeuse, A.D. 523 , cap. ult.) liy degrees the moveable property of intentate ecclesiantice was elaimed be tho church on the pretext that this property had been aequired from ehurch property. This claim was styled the jus spolio.
testate clergy did not difler the property of intestate clergy did not difler trom that of laymert, except as regaris the children of those clergy who were torbidden to marry. Thene chiddren could not by a constitution of Justinian in A.d. 530 (Cod. $1,3,45$ ), cvea succeel to their mother's property. If a clerk died intestate nam left no heirs, his property went to the church which he had serve. I. (Cod. 1, 3, 20, A.d. 3.34; Nov. 131, enp. 13, A.d. 545; Cupit. Curol. lib. 5, eap. 173.) Passing to the rules which govern the succession by clerks to the property of intestates, they succeeded in the siome manuer as laymen ( $C$ erl. 1, 3, 5h, 1) nuil their professional earrings were not brought into computation (Cod. 1, 3, 34). The same law ajplied both to seculars and regulars (Cud. 1, 3, 56), but this was afierwarls altered, and the community sueceeded to the rights of regulars. (Nov. 5 nadl 12:3, cap. 38.)
See upon the succession in intestncy boehmer, Jus E'ce'csicast. Protest. 11b. 3, tit. 27.
[Beside the articles and anthorities elted in this article, and the commentators on the cited passages of the elvil and canna law, the following nuthorities may be consulted. Van Esjen, Jvs Ecclesinsticum, vol. il.; Reiffenstuel, Jus Canomiculm, vol. iii. ; Photii Nomocanon, tit. 10; Thomassinus, I'elus et Nova Ecolesiae Diseipline, 3, 1, 16-21, 3, 2, 38-43; Herzog, Real-1 ncyhlopätio, "Testnmente"; Ferraris, Bibliotheca, "Testamentum"; Walter, Kirchenrecht, 262 ; Binghum, Christian Antiquities, $5,4,5-9,6,2,9$.
[1. B.]
WOMEN. Certain features in the domestic and sucial intluence of women among Christian communities will be found treated of in the article on Soctal Lifs. It is proposed here to notice some of the special points of dillerence in the Christlan, as compared with the in the Christlan, as compared with the pagan, conepption of woman's character and dutien,
The estimate of wemanhood in the earliest Christian literaturo exhibits a remarkable contrast to that of paganism, as both attnehing far more importance to female moilesty and cinustity, nod, at the snme time, greatly enhancing the dignity of the femnle character and enlarging the sphere of womsan's activitles. The

2040

WOMEN
WOMEN

Epistle of Clement of Rome to the Corinthlans speaks of the hushands whom he addresses, as exhorting their wives to the discharge of their duties with a blameless, grave, and pure conscientiousness, und in a spirit of conjugal affection, and also teaching them to superintend domestic matters with dignified decorum ( $\sigma \in \mu$ $\nu \omega \bar{s})$ [c. i. ed. Drossel, p. 48]. In the sume manner, Polyeary (ad Philipp, c. 4) exhorts the Christion wives of Philippi to live in the faith, in love und parity, to duly honour their husbands, nud to instruct thelr children in the fear of the Lord. Second marriages being systematically diseouraged in the early chorch, the advice given by the same writer to the widows seems directed ngainst the faults to which women, when lone:y and nnemployed, are specially prone - "caluminy, spenking ngainst their neighbours, bearing false witness, and avarice" (ed. Dressel, p. 381).
The ndvice of Tertullian (ad Uxorem, bl. ii. c. 8) that a woman should not refuse to marry one slightly below herself in stntion, provided he is likely to prove in other respects a good husband, peints probably to the existence of a eertain social ambition among those to whom his trentise is addressed, which he considered unvorthy of the Christian character. As contrasted with the cruelty which too often dismaced the privney of $\mathrm{p}^{\text {ngign }}$ households, we fin! Chrysostan observing that it is a shame for a man to beau his fumale slave, much more his wise (in Epist. i. ad Corinth. Mom. 26; Migne, Putrul. Graec. 1xi. 2!2).

The tenching of the most enlightened of the fathers was untwabedly to the effect that there was no matura' irferiority in the woman to the man. Theoder: (Gruec. Affect. Curut. bk. v.) invists eraphatic: Ily on their exact equality, und sny that God atade woman from man in order that the fendencies and action of both might be hirmonicus. Sometimes, indeed, he observes, woman has been foud superior to man in encoantering adversity (Migne, Ixxxiii. 836). Chrysostom (Hom. Kxi. 3) says that no one is more fit to instruct nal sxhort ier husband than a pious vemad. This cenception differed, however, msterially from that ot Plato (Repub. v. p. 455), in that while the Greek philosopher sought to obliterate the ordinary distinetions between the sexes, the Christian father held that nature assigned to woman her specinal and diso tinct province of activity. Chrysostom, In a passage of singular beauty, gives us a comparison between the duties of the wife and those of the husland, the former being represented as in some respeets the more dignified; for while the husbond is described as engaged in the rougher work of life, in the market or the lawcoarts, the wife is represented as remaining at home and devoting much of her time to prayer, to renling the Seriptures, кal $\tau \hat{p} \varangle \lambda \lambda \eta$ $\phi t \lambda o c o \phi i q$. When her hushand returns, harassed with his labours, it is her function to cheer кal $\alpha_{\gamma \rho i a} \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \lambda o \gamma ı \sigma \mu \omega \bar{y}$, so that he ngain goes forth into the world purified from the evil influences to which he has there been exposed, und earrying with him the higher influchees of his home-life (in Joann. Hom. lxi.; Sligne, lix. $3: 40$ ).

The participation of young fumales in the exerelses of the pulnestra nad in races, commended by pagan theorlsts (Grote's Pl to, iii. 217), is condenned by Clemens of Alexandria (Pacd. iii. 10) as nltogether repagnant to tho notions of female medesty (3igne, viii. 626). Chrysestom (in Matt. Hon. i.) contrants the difference in re'ation to these points betweea Christinn and pagan teaching, and even goes so fir ns to atlirm that true virginity was n nution which pagnuism was unable to realise (Migne, 1vii. 19).

At the same time we have satisfactory evidence that this exalted conception of the female character and female duties did not involve any renunciation of her humbler functions. Clemens says that it is right that women should employ themselves in spinning, weaving, and watching the bread-maker ( $\tau \hat{n} \pi \in \tau \tau+0 \dot{\sigma} \eta$ ), and that it is no disgrace for n wife to grind corn or to superintend the cookery with the view of pleasing her husband (Migne, viii. 626).

The excessive laxury of the 4th century would seem however to have been not less fatal to the maintenance of this higin ideal than to other features of the Christian character. Amedée Thierry says that, by one of those contradictions which "déroutent la logique des idées," Christianity itself, essentially the religion of the poor, conspired to give to the manners of the Western empire a degree of effeminacy unknown in pagn times (Scint Jérôme, p. 2). Chrysostom declares that many of the ladies of Constantinoplo would not walk across even a single street to attend church, but required to be conveyed for the shortest distance (in Matt. Horn. vii.; Migne, Ivii. 79). When there they were to be seen with their necks, heads, arms, and fingers londed with golden chnins nnd rings, their persons brenthing preeious odours, and their dresses of gold stuff nad silk (Milman, Hist. of Christianity, L.k. iv. c. 1). Others, agnin, affected mascaline apparel, and seemed to blush for their womanhood, eutting short their hair, and presenting faces like those of ennuchs - "impudenter erigunt facies cunuchinas " (Jerome, Epist. 18). According to the same nuthority, the greater facilities possessed by ecclesiastics for gaining admission to female society whs an inducement with some to become priests-"ut mulieres litentius vidennt" (ib.). Elsewhere Jerums strongly dissuades the clergy from aceustoming themselves to private interviews with these of ths other sex,-" Solus cum sola, secreto, et ahsque arbitro vel teste, non sedeas " (Epist. 52 ; Migre, $x$ xii. 260).

The exnggerated Importance attnehed by Jerome to the unwedded life, as one of superior sanctity, seems to have led him to dwell sonewhat harshly on the wenknesses and wortilizess of many of the wealthy matrons of his day. He represents them as given to excessive personal adornment, und bestowing much of their time on preparations for feasts and other househoid matters. When, however, we fiad him enumernting such obvious duties as "dispensatio domus, necessitates mariti, liberorum educatio, correctio servuloram," as prejudicial to the higher interests of the soul, we perceive that his tone is that of one to whom the aseetic life nlone nppenred adequately Christinn (de & $p$. l'ing. c. 20; Migne, xxiii. 228). On the other hand, it is evident that the state of Roman society st diffieult for ciples of th this Marcell suburbs, ns indieation. which her m a splendid m wealth, whil her seclusion apostles nnil frequentel b mistresses of Jerome, werc tations ; and sometimes e bands in or dishonest ste inseparable householil, th by a former eneiny ; not a Migne, xxii.

Among oth demoralisatio tury must b discipline whi public religio to women. I collection aser ss evidence religion had feminae sacris et cuncta qu deputata sur orhibere " (Mi
It is general scanty and dot of the convers regard for fem to the sex wer ties than nmon this may have inherited and church with re priety lib rty to those that barbaric codes. retlected in Je sures parents lsaving Jeform daughters inac xxii. 981 ). Maine, "confer generstions by the Roman property; " and was really car Roman dos. service, "With endorv," is on puzzles the En correspondence smong the oldes Hist. of $L_{1 s}$ 'itut. r'Eylise et l'Emp ment D).

WONDERS

 tenta-Aaúuara, т $\ddagger \rho a \tau a, \pi \alpha \rho a \delta o \xi a$ foll within the society at this time rendcred it exceptionally difficult for Christinn women to carry the prin－ ciples of their religion iato dnily practice．Of this Marcelln＇s retirement to her mansion in the suburbs，ns described by the same father，is an indication．He depicts the very different future which her mother Albina had designed for her－ a splendid marriage nod the possession of great wealth，while the daughrer rarely issued from her seclusion save to visit the ohurches of the apostles nat martyrs，especially those lenst frequented by the multitude（Epist．98）．The mistresses of large establishments，according to Jereme，were often exposed to exceptional temp－ tations；and he states that young wildows would sometimes consent to marry even pagan hus－ bands in order to aveid being plundered by dishonest stewards and to escnpe the anxieties insejparable from the managenent of a large household，thus bringing home te their children by a former marriage＂not a guardinn，but an enemy ；not a parent，but a tyrant＂（Epist． 54 ； Migne，axii．291）．
WONDERS

Among other indicntions of the confusion and demoralisation characteristic of the 5th cen－ tury must be included that lixity of church discipline which permitted the performance of public religions rites to be sometimes entrusted to women．In the rwenty－first canen of the collection ascribed to Gelnsius this is spoken of as eridence of the＂coutempt＂inte which religion had fallen－＂nudivimus ．．．．ut feminae sacris altaribus ministrine firmentur， et cuncta quae non nisi rirorum famulatui deputata sunt，sexum cui non competunt oxhibere＂（Migne，lvi．420）．
It is generally nssumed，though on somewhnt seanty and doubtful evidence，that nt the period of the conversion of the Teutonic nations the regard for female chastity and the respect paid to the sex were greater among pagan communi－ ties thas among the Latin races．But however this may have been，it is cert：in that the views inherited and handed down by the Western church with regard to＂the personal and pro－ priety lib rty of women＂were greatly superior to those that tind expression in nny of the barbaric codes．Something of this fecling seems reflected in Jerome when（Epist．130）he cen－ sures parents fer their too common practice of leaving deformed or otherwise unmarriageable daughters inadequately provided for（Migne， xxii．981）．＂fhe church，＂says Sir Heary Maine，＂conferred a great benefit on several generations by keeping alive the traditions of the Roman legislation respecting settled property；＂and he poiats out that Christianity was really carrying on the tradition of the Roman dos．The formula of the narriage－ service，＂＂With all my worldly goods I thee endow，＂is one，he snys，＂which sometimes puzzles the Euglish lawyer from its want of correspondence with anything which he finds among the ollest rules of English law＂（Early Hist．of Ins＇itutions，p． 337 ；see alse De Broglie， TEylise et l＇Empire，1．ii．273，and Eelair isse－ ment D）．
［J．B．M．］ WONDERS（miracula，signa，prodigia，por－ тtpara，$\left.\pi \alpha \rho \AA \delta_{0} \xi a\right)$ ．The rep $n$ rted miracles which fall within the limits of our period constitute

WONDERS

110 cempact hemogeneous whole．They ferm themselves lnte distiact groups．One group having for its object the conversion of the heathen，gathers round notable wonder－workers in pagan countries，such as Gregery of Neo－ caesarea（Thaumaturgus）and Martia of Teiurs． Another group，or ether greups，of miracles， whose object is the support of Athanasian orthodexy，gather round the great monks of the East－Antony，Hilarion，Pachomius－Am－ brose in，the West，and salnts of lesser note and of later times in Spain，or appear as irter－ positions of ！revidence in the form of inarvellous deliverances under cr：elties inflicted by Vandal tyrants in Africa or lembard invuders in Italy． Other miracles viadicate the sanctity of images or condemn the cenduct of the leonoclast． Others again，whose object is to glorify the enterprise and attest the piety of founders of monasteries，cluster thickly round a Benedict or Columban，amidst a galary of lesser wenders that stretch across the centuries in the acts of the snints．This classification，as bringing ont the ethical fentures of the miracles and their relation to important events in church history，may well be borne in mind and allowed，so to speak，to run pari pussu with a more methodical arrange－ ment，nccording to which we shall classity the miracles thus：－

> 1．Hon levs wrought by Living Saints．
> 1I．By Retics．
> 1II．by the Eucharist．
> IV．Iy Pictures and Images．
> V．By Celestial lisitants．
> VI．Apart from human or angelic Agency，or the alove－named steans．

In adopting for the purprese of further classifica－ tion the division of miracles inte these of beneficence and power，we do not regard these twe heads as denoting distinet zinds of miracles， but simply classes，in the first of which the beneficence of the object and in the second the power of the performer is the dominant idea． Miracles of beneficence are also these of prower－ $\delta u \nu d \mu \mathrm{is}-\mathrm{although}$ miracles classed as those of power are ant miracles of beneficence．Again， miracles of either class，but expecially thise of power，wlil appear as sigas－aŋ⿲二丨ia－or pledges of a superhumin mission on the part of the per－ former，i．e．when they are wrought by a living saint，or，as Tertullian calls them，＂documenta virtutum，＂nitaining ns such to the highest， because tho ethical，character of a miracle， althengh both classes of miracles may degenerate into nere wonders－－químaza，tépaza－calling forth simply wonderment and amazement（see Trench，Notes on Mir．Intred．）．

1．Wonders urouyht by liviny Saints．－Whether by direct means，snoh as invecation of ：H．．ther of Christ，prayer，signing of the cross，imposition of hands；or indirect，such as sending to the siek saints＇garments or other garments，bread， cil，or water which had been blessed by saints．
One of the first points that strike us in the earlier nutices of miracles which have reached us from the fathers is the absence of all claims on the part of the writers to the performance of the miracles they attest，aud of all mention by name of those who wreught them．Thus Clemens Remanus states that t．rere was a plentiful outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon all，

WONDERS
and Ignatius, in his letter addressed to the church of Smyrna, says that church was mereifully blessed with every good gift; and they refer without doubt to miracles that were going on in the ehureh, but they do not arrogate to themselves individually the power of overeoming the laws of nature, or apeeify any by anme who possessed such a power, in which latter respeet they stand in strong eontrast with the chroniclers of the acta of later saints. As to the gifts here spoken of, they appeared in the form of the following powers: the casting out of devils, healing of diseases, raising the dead, speaking with tengues, the prevision of events, and seeing vision, the three first kinds being miracles of beneficence, the three last of power; the first finding their parallel $\ln$ point of character nad the sphere of human life they affect in the evangelical miracles; the last their source in the promises of our Lord and the predictions of 1 loly Writ.

1. Miracles of benefieence. (1) Exorcism and healing; (2) Ralsing the dead; (3) Deliverance, protectien, succour.
(1) Justio Martyr says that Christians in the name of Jesus cast out demens from those whom pagan enchanters could net cure (Apol. ii. 6). Amongst the deeds of merey whieh the true disciples of Christ performed in His name, Irenaens specifies exorcisms and cures of the sick (Contra Huer. ii. 32). Cyprian writes, "O si audire eos velles quande a nobis adjurantur et torquentur" (Ad Demetr. xv.). Tertullian, "Place some possessed person before your tribunals; any Christian shall command that spirit to speak, who shall as surely confess himself to be a devil as elsewhere he will call himself a ged falsely" (Apol. 23). And again, "Devils we not only despise, but both overeome and daily expose and expel from men, as is known to very many" (Ad Scap. 2; cf. also Apol. 37). [Denowiacs; Esorcism.]

When we pass from this general testimony of the early fathers respecting the existeace of a miraculous agency at work in their days to the more detailed accounts of later miraeles, we learn more as to the meuns by which the miracles were wrought. We gather that on the whole these means were much the same as those which the apostles themselves and the saints of their tlme nade use of, who on their part were guided in some mensure by the exampte of our Lord, viz. in respect of prayer and the imposition of hands (Mark vi. 41, vii. 34; John xi. 41; Mark vi. 5), and in some measure by the practices He enjoined, viz. the anointing the sick with oil, and the use of His name (Mark vi. 13, xvi. 17; Luke X. 17), although, as we may see from Acts v. 15, 16, xix. 12, they did not restrict their metheila of workirg cures either to the divine precedents or precepts.

Taking first the miracles of exoresm and healing which were wrought by direct meana, riz. invecation of the name of Christ, prayer,' signing of the cross, and inposition of hands, we find that some of the earliest of whleh we possess any detailed arcount are those which Gregury, bislep of Neocacsarca in Pontns, wrought in the 3rd century, but the record of Which belongs to the 4th century and is due to Gregory of Nyssa, who is said to have received his information from his grandmother Macrina.

As being less nurtable than the niracles of othet kinds which the sinint wrought, we shall only reter to hls exoreism of an evil spirit from a youth by impusition of hauls (Newman, on Miracles, p . xxviii.), and to his miraculous healing of the plague-stricken io Neocaesarea (Fleury, liv. vii. c. 11). Of the miraeles of this elssn which the earlicr Eastern monks wrought, those of Anteny and Hilarion may stand as examples." St. Athanasius, whe wrote the life of the firstnamed monk and was his persomal friend, says that "everywhere he had hail an anxious desire for truth" in the necounts he hal given. Of Antony's exorcisms we may name the instance of a boy whom he cured in a fishing-boat, and of whose state of possession intications were given by the presence of a foul zteuch in the boat (Newman, on Mic: xxxi.), and of a girl from whom he cait out an evil spirit at Alexandria, whither he had gone in his old age to support the party of Athanasius (Fleury. xi. 41); and of his cures that which he wrought in the desert upou a mau ailicted either with ejilepsy or madness, not by any ineans he employed on the spot, but by bidding him to go to Lgypt, aud assuring him that he would there be healed (Newman, ua Mfir, xxxi.). Respecting the nimacles Hilariun wrought in Sicily, which island was together with Palestine the chief scene of his wonders, we bave the testimony of a Jew, in Greece, who reported that "a prophet of the Chri tiaus had appeared in Sicily and was doiug so many miracles and signs that men thought him one of the old saints." Jerome, who wrote his hife, records the following miracles: restoration of sight to a woman who tor ten years had been blind; a cure of paralysis ; nuother of dropsy; exoreising the possessed-even a camel whe in its fury had caused the desth of many (Newman, on Mir. p. xxxii.; Jerome, t. ii.). of his exarcisms we may specify one as remarkable for its being followed by the offer of a sum of money on the part of the mąn who had been dispossessed, and for the saint's reply that his acceptance of it would surely bring back the possession; and nother as notable for the capacity which the energumen displayed, on the occasion of his cure, of speaking in Syriac and Greek, of which languagea he, being a Frauk by birth and uneducated, had no knowledge (Fleury, xii. 17).

Turning to the West, we find in the 4th century St. Ambrose curing a womaa of palsy, laying his haads on her in prayer, while she toached his garmeut (Paulini Vit. S. Ambros. in Append. $2, \S 10$ ), casting out evil spirits, and on the other hand causing for his misdeeds a thief to be repossessed (I'ita, 43; Flenry, xx. 20), and St. Martin of Teura deliveriag a slave of a deril, and healing a leper at Paris (Sulp. Sev. Viti, 16, 19); and in the following century Germanus of Anserre, at Arles, curing a prefect's wife of a quartan ngue; at Alesia, bestowing power of speech upon a girl who had leat it for twenty years; at Autun, healing a girl of a withered hand; in England, a boy of contracted limbs; at Milan and Karemma, casting ont evil spirits (Acta SS. ad d. 31 Jul.; La l'ie du gramd Sb. Germain, par Dom Viole, A.D. 1654).

As examples of exorcisms and cures wrought by indirect meaus - viz, the sending to the sick the garments of saints, or other garments which sainta had likewise ha following l noteworthy the energul wrong-doin stlpaey, cou thaumature been applie evil spirit man bring warning hin he should I as loug as $h$ life. Aceor the had eon other iustan order to ob before each breai which refused to adoptel of c but with no fally extraet some days w was cured ( $A$ 60). By mea the bites of Jerome, t. ii., paralytic gir putting into oil (Sulp. Sev St, Martin's round round written by th laid upen her which Germa tingle night e upou it ; and had blessed a possersed, and working prop Vie due grand Lastly, by thre of Paris cast ol cured the sick

A miraculon: tury, deverves the pertormar by the employn case-of more $t$ of healing, as asceticism of $t$ Basil of Caesare for years sufticre for the cure of modesty and in treaties of her avail herself of $n$ passed the nigh from the floor a had fallen and al the same time he the cross over th an immediate en miniag, which Marrina lay in hrother Gregory the first time div
In illustration miracles of bene those who were

WONDERS

iracles of ether we shall only spirit from (Newman, on iraculous healtesnrea (Fleury, s of this class wrought, those al as examples, fe of the firstail friend, says anxious desire had given. Of te the instance shing-boat, and diunions were atench in the I of $n$ girl from at Alexandria, age to support xi. 41) ; and of : in th? desert pilepsy or midd. ed ou the spot, t, and assuring d (Newmme, of racles Hilarion was together f his wonders, in freece, who Chr tiaus had ing so many tht him one of wrete his life, resterntion of years had beea her of dropsy; canel who in lay (Newman, Of his exerramble fer its sum of money had been diseply that his ring bnck the able for the played, on the in Syriac and ag a Frank by dedge (Fleury, $n$ the 4 th cenof palsy, layile she touched os. in Append. d on the ether hijef to be re20), and St. of a devil, and litit, 16, 19); Germanus of ct's wife of s ing power of it for twenty f a withered rseted limbs; at evil spirits du grutud St. ure: ures wrought g to the sick rments which

- saints had blessed, or bread, oil er water, which following io been Hessel-we may mention the netewerthy as in inicative of the ebstacles whict the euergumen, in the ene case by pervistence in wrong-doing, in the other by craftiness nnd obstlancy, could oppese to the salutary exercise of thaumaturgin gitts. The monk Pachomius had been applied to ly n man whose daughter had au mand girit to work a cure. The saint bale the mand bring him one of his daughter's tunies, warning him nt the same time that the blessing he shond bestow upon it would be of ue arail as loug as his dnughter eontimed to live a siatiul she had contes, ed the girl was not cured till other instance, the saint had directeld thnt in in order to obtain a cure the energumen ahould before each meal take a small fiece of a lunf of brenu which had brend which had beea blessed. As, however, ho refused to touch the bread, the device was adopted of concenling piersel adopted of concenling mersels of it inside dates, but with ne better success. The demounac cur fally extrnetedt them. At Inst, having been left some days without foed, he took the breal and ${ }_{60}$ Was cured (Acta SS. ad d. 14 Maiii; Fleury, xv. 60). By means of ceaseecrated oil Hilarion healed the bites of serpents (Newninn, un llir Jerome, t. ii.), nund St. Martin of Mhir. p. xxxii.; paralytic girl, when at the point of death, by putting inte her meath a few drops of the like oil (Sulp. Sev. Vitt, 17. Threals frayed from St. Nartin's garments St. Martin's garments heilled the diseased when Wound yound the neck or finge-z, and a letter Written by the saint cared a gill of fever, when laid upon her chest (Iitt, 19, 20). Straw urean Which Germanas of Auxerre hai reposed for a single night cured a demoniac when beund down upun it; and a barley loaf which the bishlop had besseel nad sent to the emplress Placilia possessed, and for a long while retinued, wenderpossessed, and for a long while retained, wonder-werking properties $A$ A.ta os werking preperties (Acta oS, ad d. 31 Jult; Vie dhe grand St. Gicrnain, par Dem Viole). Lastly, by threads of her garmients St. Genevieve of Paris cast out devils, and by bits of her cinadle cured the sivk (Acta is. ald d. 3 Jnn.).
A miraeulous cure, eccurring in the 4 th century, deeverres notice, as having been wreught by by the employment- upan her own person, and case-of more than one et the reeegnised menns of heating, as well as for its indications of the ssceticism of the age. Marrina, sister of St.
Besil Bssil of Caesaren and St. Gregery of Nyssa, had for years suftered from a tamour in her breast, for the cure of which she had, from motives of morlesty and in opposition to the enrinest on-treaties of her mother, persistently refer avkil berselfof medical aid. One morning, having passed the night in suppliention, she gathered from the fleor a little dast upon whiel her tears the same time her mother to make, begging nt the same time her mother to mike the sign of the cross over the diseasell part. The result was an immediate cure ;-a slight scar, howerer, remaining, which years afterwarts, when St. brother Gregory in proof of the niniracle then for the first time divulged (Acta. SS. ad d. 19 Jull.). miraeles of ber of the ethical aspert in which mirateles of beneficence might be rienved by those who were the subjects or wituesses of them, we may note the eure of leng-standing Prapalysis which Euthynius, a monk whe lived Terebo, the son of ath century, wronght upon resulted in the cenversion to chicf, nuly which only of the patient hinself, but histimity not attendants (Fleary, xxiv. 27):

WONDERS
With regard to the compurt mirnculous $g$ ifts of healing narative prevalenee of salints, in the dillerent ages of vur period be ling forin na opinion enly the of our preried, we can have reached us enly from the records which of workhed us. Julging from these the pawer the 6th, 7th cures wns ia ne wise diminished in Che oth, 7th, and 8th ceaturies. Dernonilical possessions, mes possessions, maduass, lepresy, paralysis, blint-neess, deatioess, loss of sprece) name other disanas of speech, lameness-not to name other disasies and intirmitie-were illa which, occurring which, occurring no less frequently than in preceding ages, ceastnotly refief throngh, the thy called forth, end found which monks nal bishops were endowed whith necidents such as those to were endowed, while selves were exposed th in the whiffurmance of their agricultural labours-the loss of a tinger or thumb in reaping, or wounds on the forchead from the impact of a wedge in felling trees or cleaving logs-were naturally not exeluded from the Columbere of miraculons trentment (Vita $S$. Columb. in Acta SS. Ben, snec, ii.). As a specimen of the powers with which mooks were gifted for the for the casting out of evil spirits nud working cares we have only te follow St. Colmablun in whis jeurney from the east to the west of France when driven by Theoderic from his doninions (i)id.). Nor was there nuy partinlity in the distribution of these miraculeus powers over the variuns regions of Christendom, althengh the accident of the place of birth or dwelling of those who undertook to record certain miraces misht lend us to an epposite epinion. If, for example, during the 6th century, thaumnturgy, as exercised in the matter of exercism anil lrealing, shene brightly in Italy in the ferssns of monka and bisho and lishoph-ns to judge from the writings of pope Gregory (Dial. i. 4 ; ii. 26,30 ; iii. 6,21 ; in Patestine in the it did-it shone no less brightly siu: ( $A$ ta $A S$, instances of Melauiux, bish.) or in France in the ad d. 6 Jan.) and St, (ishop of Rennes (Acta SS. (2) To the raising from the of farls. although io terns less fefinite and precise than these he and others of the early finthers employ when spenking of exercisms and cures-bents his testimony: "with mueh fasting and prayer the spirit of the dead returned " (Cuntra Haer. ii. 31); and agaln: "befere now, as we have saill, even the dend have becn raised up, and have rennained with us many years" (Contra Hacr. ii. 32). As individual inotances of this wender as they occur in the course of our peried we may take the following. Julisn, who suffered martyrdom at Antioch in the Diecletian persecution, raised a dead man to life (Acta SS. ad di. 9 Jnn.), and St. Janles, bishop of Nisibis (Antiochin Mygdenica) A.D. 325, a man whe was brought to hime, as dend, with a view to ebtnining money, (presumably to defray the expenses of burial), and who renlly died while ceunterfeiting denth (Acta SS. ad d. 15 Jul.). St. Martin of Tours restered to life a eatechumen who had died in his monastery unbaptized, by throwing blimsolf upon the dead body and praying earneatly for its restoration (Newman, on Miracles, p. xxxil. ; from Sulpicius Severus, who subsequently knew the subject of this iniracle, and asserts that be lived for many yenrs), and on another occasion a slave who had hanged himgelf (ibid. p. xxxiii.). Hilary of Poitiers raised a child to life who had died unbaptized (Fortunatus in Migne, Patrol. Lat. ix. 190 ; Acta SS. ad d. 13 Jan.). Marcellus, abbat of a monastery of the Acocmstne, near Constantinople, A.D. 446, $n$ monk (Fleury, xxvii. 30), and Gelasius, abbat of a monastery in Palestine, A.d. 452, a child (Fleury, xxviii. 38). Germanus of Anxerre, when at Ravenna, raised a man from the dead (Acta SS, ad d. 31 Jul ; Vie du grand St. Germuin, par Dom Viole); St. Benedict of Nursia, a boy (Greg. M. Dial. ii. 32); St. Bavo of Ghent, A.d. 6i53, a man (Acta SS. Ben. saec. il.) ; St. Walaricus, abbat of a monnstery on the Somme, A.D. 622, one who had been unjustly hanged (ibid.); St. Wulfranı, bishop of Sens, a.d. 720, five Frisiun youths who had been hanged as a sacrilice to the gods (Acta SS. Bcn. eaec. iii. pt. 1)
(3) Mirncles of deliverance, protection, suc-cour-called forth as they were by the dangers and vicissitudes to which men were constantly exposed, and the various needs to which they were subjected-afford a series of wonders which, ranging downwards from the deliyerance of cities from siege or assault, or of districts from inundation, to the multiplication of corn in a granary, or of wine or beer in a cask, differ widely from one another in respect of their object and importance, nul the sphere they atlect, and at times degenerate into little else than a display of miraculous power for its own saketherein betraying their lack of the requisites of a true miracle: " miraculum si piai utilitate nut necessitnte careat, eo facto suspectum eat" (Gerson, de Distinct. Ver. Mir.).

Of miracles of this class no instances are given us by the early fathers in their general notices of the deeds of mercy wrought by the true diaciples of Christ, and we have to pass on to the more detailed accounts of later times. The raising of the siege of Nisibis well illustrates the protective power which living saints were enabled to exercise. Sapor 11. of Persia was besieging the city. The inhabitants in their alarm appealed to their bishop, st. Nmea. In answer to the supplications he offered, swarins of gants attacked the besiegers, their horses and elephants, irritating both the latter to such a pitch of frenzy that they broke loose. To increase his discomfiture the Persian king mistook the bishop, when he appeared on the walls in his purple and with his diadem on his head, for the Roman emperor, and thereupon raised the siege (Acta SN. ad d. 15 Jul .). According to Theophanes (Chronographia, up. 52, 53) the bishop's prayera had the further result of bring-ing-famine and pestilence upon the besiegere when returned to their own land; with this miracle we may compare the deliverance of Paris from the Huns through the prayers of St. Gencviève (Acta SS. ad d. 3 Jan.). The miracle wrought by Gregory Thammaturgus on the banks of the river lycus furnishes an instance of the exercise of this power in another direction. The bishop having been appealed to by the inhabitants of a certain district to deliver them from the calamities to which they were from time to time exposed through the overflowing of the river Lycus, mada a journey to the place, and, lavoking the name of Christ, planted his statl' at the particular spot whers the stream was wont to burst through the mound which hud heen erected on ita bank to prevent its encronchments. The staff becnme a tree; the water rose ns usur!, but henceforth never passed the tree (Gregory of Nyasn, t. i1. pp. 991, 992). This miracle hud ita ethical result in the conversion of the inhabitants who were henthens (Newman, on Mir. p. xxvii. ; Fleury, yi. c. 14). Similar mirncles were wrought by Hilarion at Epidamnus (Gretser, de Cruce, ii. 63), by Scverinus, A.D. 475, ia Noricum (ibid. Acta SS. ad d. 8 Jnn.), by Fridian, A.D. 578, at Lucca (Greg. M. Diel. iii. 9), nad by Attnla, A.D. 627, a monk of Bobio, in ltaly (Acta SS. Ben. saec. ii.).

As $n$ rule the miracles we read of as belonging to this class were confined to a nariow sphere of beneficeace, having been wrought for the good of small communities, and frequently individuala. Thus we find St. Hilary clennsing the Insula Gallinaria (Isola d'Arbenga) of serpents (Fortunatua in Migne, Patrol. Lat. ix, 190); St. Martis of Tours, when in his missionary zeal he had set fire to a heathen temple, successfully repelling the flamea from an adjoining house (Nowman, on Jlir. p. xxxiv.) ; St. Maur walking on the water to save the life of his friend Placidius (Greg. M. Dial. ii. 7); Germanus of Auxerre restoring a stoleu valise to ita owner (Actu SS. ad d. 31 Jul. ; Vie du grand St. Germain); St. Benedict of Nursia (Greg. M. Jial. ii. 6), and Lentfred, abbat of a monastery near Evreux, A.d. 738 (Acta SS'. Ben. aaec. iii. pt. 1), causing iron to awim; Honoratus, nbbat of Fondi, A.D, 5.0 , by the sign of the crosa, nrresting on the hill-side a huge fragment of rock which threatened in its fall to overwhelm his monastery (Greg. M. Dial. i. 1; Gretser. de Cruce, iv. 57).

In special connexion with their needs, whether on their missionary journeys, or nt home, wa may note the miraculous power monks possessed of cousing water to flow in dry places by the simple expredient of plantiug a staff in the ground or of atriking it, or, as the case might be, tho rock with a rod-examples of which we find in the lives of Richarius, abbat of Centulles, A.D. 645 (Acta SS. Ben. saec, ii.), Furseius of lagny, A.D. 650 (ibil.) and Wulfram of Sens (Acta SS. Ben. saec, iii. pt. 1)-, as well as of multiplying wine or beer in the cask-of the exercise of which gift numerous instances oceur in the deta SS. Benedict.-and of quenching the flames when fire had chanced to break out in a monastery or convent, ns may be seen in the Lives of Sulpicius of Bourges, A.d. 644 (Acta SS, Ben. saec. ii.), nad Leutfred of Evreux (ibid. saec, iii. pt. 1).
2. Miracles of pawer, wrought, (1) In confirmation of Christianity, (2) of orthodoxy, (3) In punishinent of evildoers, (4) la illustration of gifts bestowed upon mon in reward for pious enterprises.

The ethical character which nttaches to such miracles as fiud a place in one or other of these categories proves them to bs not only exhibitiens of power ( $\delta v v d \mu \in 1 s$ ), but also aigns ( $\sigma \eta \mu \in i a$ ).
The forms which miracles of power assumed in the early church were, as has been said, the speaking with the secing of of tongues- 0 church-it m lreabeus: ка iv T $\hat{\eta}$ éккл $\pi$ aîs $\gamma \lambda \omega \sigma \sigma$ ais that of previsi was long cont -we may giv cencerned, the el $\delta \epsilon \pi \rho \sigma \gamma \nu \omega \sigma$ Haer. ii. 32). no shorter dur than the Inst n tion by itself. as later saints simple wonter, will now be $g$ writings of th chureh of their
(1) Amongst tien of Christio Gregory Thaur occasion of his the approaching tegether with heathen temple for its oracles. Christ and signe spent the night the priest of th that the demor Gregory informe back as wotl as form the former paper the word and handed them upon the nitar. evilence of thei still firther as Gregory accepted of his word alone to lie near. He, vinced his oppon Hilarion wrought class nt Gaza. A bred horses for Hilarion to help use of magic to herses, and thus ewn steeds. The ing to lend his ni to the request a was went to use wherewith horses, to be sprinkled. horses, tlying like Wherenpon the pn "Marmas (their" Christ" (Fleury, lact.). Of this Martin of Tours lenge from a paga the sign of the $c$ lita Mart. 10; FI
(2) As confirm nete two minacles put to death at Rh 6th century, wrou receired a comma goths, who wished apeaking with tongues, prevision of evint , and the seeing of visivus. With regard to the gitt of tongues-one of no long continuance in the church-it may sultice to quote the worls of that of prevision-a gift whieh on tho cuntrary was long coutinued to the saints of the Church -we may give, as far ns primitive times ure concerued, the testimony of the same writer:

 Huer. ii. 32). The gift of seeing visions-one of no shorter duratiou, but of far wider signifieanee than the last named-we reserve for consideration by itself. Of other mirneles of power such as later snints wrought, whether as sigos or as simple wonders ( $\tau$ tipara), and of which exnmples will wow be given, we fiud no mention in the writings of the early fathera concerning the church of their times.
(1) Amougst miracles wrought in confirmation of Christinuity we may place those which Gregory Thaumanturgus pertorned upon the occasion of his being foreed, through storm and the approaching fill of night, to take refuge, together with his companions in travel, in a heathen temple which happened to be famous for its oraeles. Having invoked the name of Chriat and signed the cross, the bishop, we read, spent the night in praising God. In the morning the priest of the temple found upon his arrival that the demons had forsiken their shrine. Gregory informed him that he could bring them back ns well ns expel them. Challenged to perform the former fent, he wiote upon a piece of priper the worda "Gregory to Satin-enter," add hauded them to the priest who placed them upon the nltar. Forthwith the denoons gave evilence of their return. To satisfy the prient still further as to the truth of Christinnity, Gregory accepted a challenge to move, by means of his word alone, a large stone which happened to lie near. He at oace moved it, and thus convinced his opponent (Newman, on Mir. xxxi.). Hilarion wrought a remarknble miracle of this elass at Gnza. A Christian named Italieus, who bred horses for the charict-rinces, applied to Hilarion to help him aguinst a rival who maile use of magic to chrck the speed of ltalicus's horses, and thus to secure the victory for his orra steeds. The saint, although at first unwill.
ing to lend his aid in so trivial a matter, aceeded to the request and sent ltalicus the veseded to the request and sent talicus the vessel he he was wont to use in drinking filled with water, wherewith horses, chariot, and charioteers were to be sprinkled. This done, the Christian's horses, flyiug like the wiud, easily won the race. Wherenpon the pagna party raised a loud shout: "Maruns (their goil) is conquered by Jesus Christ" (Fleury, xii. 17; ef. Hieron. l:p. 7, ad Lact.). Of this class also is the miracle St. Martin of Tours wrought, in answer to a challenge from n pagan, in averting from himself by the sign of the cross a falling pine (Sulp. Sev. Iita Mart. 10; Fleury, xvi. 31).
(2) As eonfirmatory of ortholosy we may note two miracles which St. Arnulph, who was put to death at Rheinss in the beginuing of the bith century, wronght when in Sping. Ifaving received a comuand from the king of tha Vigireceired a comanand from the king of the Yiartgothe, who wished to test the saiut's powers, to rill the lad of a serpert whose brenth was of so fiery a nature as appurently to dry up water, St. Arnulph was conductel | "- the sery, ent's lair, where he laid his stola t the head of the monster, and bilding him finlow led him to a pond and forbale him ever to lenve it or thenceforth to injure nay living crenture. In the snine pond lay the boily of a man who hal died a violent death. Upon the suint's njpwidl the dead man prayed to be delivered from his miserable resting-place. St. Arnalyh at once raised him nall buried him in a fitting grave. Thesa miracles made such an impresion upren the king and his courtiers that they firsouk their Arianism nand necepted the Catholic faith (Acta SS. ad d. 18 Jul.).
(3) As an example of a miricle wrought in puuishmeut of evilioers we may take the following. When St. Willibrord, A.D. 739, wss on a missionary journey, he with his compnay sought rest one day in a field. 'fhe owner of the land proceeded to drive him away, refusing to listen to his remonstrances or to drink with him in token of amity. "Then," exclaimed the ssisint, "driak not." Consequently the man lost the power of drinking while sullering all the paugs of thirst, nor did he regain it till he had confessed his sin to the saint upon his returu in the course of a year (Acta SS. Ben, snee. iii. pt. 1).
(4) In junstratiou of the gifts bestowed mjon mea for their enterprise and fiety, we may refer to the miracles of power St. Benedict of Nursia wrought, the record ot which is to bo found in the second book of pope Gregury's Dialoguss, e.g. the saint's defent of an nttempt made to poison him (ii. 3); his niraculous detection of an infraction of the monastic rules on the part of some of his monks (ii. 12), and of theft on the part of a measenger (ii. 18); his enabling two monks to carry a heary frigment of rock (ii. 9); with which miracles we may compare others of the same class wrought by St. Columban (Acta SS. Den. saec. ii.).
As instances of mirncles of power falliug in none of the abovs categories, and appearing rather in the light of simple wonders, we maly note the following: St. Macarius the elder, A.D. 356, ciuses a human skull he found in the deaert to spenk (Acta SS. ad d. 11 Jan.; Fleury xiii. 38), and Severinus of Noricum, A.D. 775 , a dend priest (Acta SS, al d. 8 Jno.); St. Mary the Egyptian, A.D. 421, after signing the cross walks on the waters of the Jordnn (A. Butler's Lircs of the Saints, s. v.); Hermenlandus, abbat of a monastery near Nantes, A.D. 720, by the use of the same means lights his lamI. (Acta SS. Ben. snec. iii. pt. i.), and St. Gudule of Brussels, A.D. 712, by prayer her candle (Acta SS. ad d. 8 Jan.), while likewise after prayer two monks of Bolio are able to earry the trunk of a larga tree (Acta SS., Ben. aaec. ii.).
Betore quitting the subject of wonders wrought by living saints we shall do well to note first, the nspect in which the workers of miracles regarded their nchievements, and the causes to which they attributed then. When no ansiver wns accorded to his prayers respectlag the cures ho was called upnn to perform, Pachomius used to confurt himself with the reflection that often God shews more favour in refising than in grauting our requests (Fleury, xv. 60). Gernanus of Auxerre-displayed a like humility in attributing the cures he workel to the means he employed, and not lemst to the relles he bore about hls person (V'ie du grand St. (Vermein, bar lown Vlole). Secouilly, we may note the acknowledgment on the part of thase who fully belleved in und themselves recorded contemporary miracles, that thote who wrought them were liable to be unduly elated by their own performauces. Thus pope Gregory reminds Augustine, in respect of the miracles that saint hal wronght la England, that the working of miracles wes no reguivite for obtaining a place amongst the elect ( $E p$, xl. 28).

II. Wonders urought by Relies.

The relica of a salnt perpetuated the benefits which the saint hluselt during his litetime had conferred upon those who stoud ln need of healing or succonr. [Rratcs.] The trauslation, again, of a scint's body, fur the purpose of obtaining for it a safer or more honourable resting-place, frejuently gave rise to a diapliy of its thaumaturgie virtues ( $c$ ig. Transhatio S . Severini, Actal Ss. al d. 8 Jan.). We muat note that, unlike those which were wrought by living saints, miracles due to relics forin no contiauous chain reacising fr. $m$ the earliest to the latest portion of our period, origiunting as they did in the latter half of the 4 th century. The church, however, wits prepared to believe in the workiag of miracles by relies through the operation of various causes: first, by the regaril she had long paid to the remains of marturs; secoully by the association of these remains-placed as they were benenth the nitars of charches-with the mysteries: "Eplseopus, qui super mortuorum hominum, Petri et Pauli, secunluus nos, os a veneranda ... offert Domino sacrificia, et tumules eorum, Christı nltaria arbitratur" (Hiesonym, ii. adv. Viyil. p. 153); thirdly, by the prevalence of a notion, of heathen origin, that the souls of the departed lingered about the graves in which the bodies rested (Lactant. ij. 2; Greg. M. Dial. ii. 38). Perhaps also in necounting for a readmess to believe in the virtue of that which was inanimate and possessed no powers of volition, we must not wholly eliminste even from the mind of the populace the effect of the teaching of philosophy that the Deity Himself wrought by inherent virtue rather than by will-фúger oú $\beta$ 听 $\lambda$ h $\sigma \in 1$; -while as an influence acting immedintely and most effectually in bringing about this belief we must place the example of notable men such as Ambrose, Augustine, Basil and Chrysostom.

1. Mirneles of beneficenee. (1) Exorclsm, healing; (2) Rnising the dead; (3) Deliverance, protection, suceour.
(1) Exorelsms and miraculous cures wrought. 1. By the bodies of snints. 2. By objects bronght into contact with or proximity to the bodies of saints, living or dead. (a) The garnueats of saints or other objecte possessed by saints. (b) Cloths laid upon the bodies of dead snints. (c) The candles which illuminated or the lamps which were suspended abore the tomb of a saitnt. (d) The dust which gathered upon the tomb. (e) Water with whith the tomb was washed. ( $f$ ) The fabrie and furniture of the chureh which held the relies.
2. By saints' bodies.

Many miracles were wrought by St. Stephen's relles.* And first uron thelr discovery at Csphargamala near Jerasalem, In consequence of a twotold revelation. The town of Calama had poescased relics of st. Siefinen for nbout eight years, and that of Hiplo for less than two yeare, when St. Augnstine made the assertion that many books would have to be written in order to recount all the miracles of nealing-to any nothing of others-which had beeu wrought by menas of these relics during this space of time in the two listricts of Calamas and lippow, and that of those whleh had taken place in the latter distrlet alone nearly seventy necounts had alrealy been written ( De Civ, bei, xxil. 8, § 20).

For further eximples of mirnculous chres wrought by salnts' boulies we may refer to the following lastances: the cures which took place at Milan, after the discovery male by St. Ambrose of the bodies of SS, Gervasius and Irotaslus, of the bllnd Severus [ReLics, p. 1769 ], and of demoniaes and wther sick people upou thair touching the cloths which lay upon the relics, or by menns of the shatow the relics east when borae through the streets of the town (Ambros, Ep. $\Delta x i i .9$ ); the healing of a leper at Alexardria by the body of Elisha, A.D. 456 (Theoph. 176); the enre of a bind man who on touching thr corering of the bier of St. The uderius found blood flow from his eyes and $r$ celved sight (Ado Viennensis in Migne, Patrol. L (t. cxxlli. 4.47); of a blind woman at the funeral of St. Aigulphus of Lerins, A.D. 675 (Acta SS. Ben. snec. ii.) ; of five blind persans und two with shrunken limbs, at St. Martin's tomb at Ton's (Greg. furon, de Mir. M.ut. i. 12, 2 i ; ii. 44,58 ; 18. 42 ) ; of a palsied man at the tomb of Germanus, bishop of Paris ( $D_{0}$ Gloria Confessor, 90); frequent cures of ague at the tomb of St. Genevieve (ib. 91) ; one of tooth. ache at that of St. Medard near Soissons (is. 95 ) ; and varions mirncles of healing wrought by St. John Baptist's head at Emesa (Theeph. 665).
2. By objecta broughi into contact with, or proximity to, the bodies of saints, living or dead, Miracles wrought by such means were, aecording to Gregory the Great, likely to makess deeper impression upon the popular mind than those which were wronght by the netual bodies of salnts (Dial ii. 38); and for this reason: is the latter ense they might be regarded a wrought, in answer to prayer by the saint him. self whose spirit was supposed to hover about its former tenement.
(a) Saints' garments or possesslons.

The tunic of St. John the Evangelist, preserved in Rome, worked many miracles (Vita Grey. M. auctore Jo. Dincono, lib. iii. 59). The shoes of St. Gall, A.D. 646, healed a man, to whom they were given after the saint's denth, of coutraction of the limbs (Acta SS. Ben. saec. ii.); these of St. Cuthbert, A.D. 687, one nfflicted with paraly. sis (ibid.). The bed on which St. Gertrude, abbess of n convent at Nivelles in Brabant, A.D. 658 , had been wont to sleep, wrought eures (ioid.), as did also the fringe or threads of $$$

[^195]chastible whic worn (ireg. I keys of St. $\mathrm{I}^{3}$ e "mprer acgros coruscare" (G
(b) Clothis 1

From the his which had be salists in orde pessessed of m those of the bo in the absence whether the $t$ relies rafer to or to oljects w tact wlt! or these to relics the braadea. trunsmuted in the face of Mel of his funeral distributed nm (Fleury, xviii. : handkerchiefs ( cast upon relics and Protasius ( invest them wit also that thire (facietergium) face of Nicetius, his death, wher eplleptle who pr Vit. I'atr. viil. 8
(c) The cand which were auspe [OIL, HoLy.]
(d) The dust the ordinary met to give it mixed Dust from the was the nieans of sight upon a blin apon two person (Fortunatus in 1 Aetis Sn ad. 13 msrtyrs in Lyons true faith, cured Martyr. 1. 50), a Modealdus, bishe: SS. ad d. 12 Mail tomb at Toure, A twe youths got el dysentery, and $f$ vielent fit of faces hlihop betrays eulogy he passes the Turonensian $r$ bilem! O pigmen Isudabile 10 purga (de Mir. S. Mart.
(e) Water with

During the prev already mentioned of dysentery by Martin's tomb wa Easter (Greg. Tur Similar curative $v$ with which the com lnstsnce the cure (Acta SS. Ben. вae
( $f$ ) The fabric which held the reli

WONDERS

WONDERS

chas:bhe which Nieetiua, blishop of Lyons, had worn (Greg. Turon. de Vita Iatr, vili. 5). The keys of St. Peter wrought mnny cures at Rume, "super negros pusitne multis solent miraculia coruscare" (Greg. M. E.jp. i. 26, 30, 31).
(i) Cloths laid upon the bodies of dead naints.

From the habit of rugardiag clothn (Beanima) which had becu luld upon the bo lies of deand sainta in order to obtain virtue from them, as passessed of propertles equally miraculous with those of the buly itself, it is frequently difficult, in the absence of nay apecific turn, to deteruing Whether the terms generally used to designate relies $r$ ofer to the aetual remalns of the sainta, or to objects which had been brought into contast with, or proximity to them, and nmongst these to rellics manufatured, so to speak, like the braidea. To gire an iastance of cloths thus transmuted into relics, cloths were laid upon the face of Meletius of Anlloch, on the ocension of his funcral nt Constantinople, A.D. 381, and distributed amongst the people as prophylnetica (Fleury, xvlii. 2). And in a less formal manuer handkerchiefs (orarin) nad garmenta in inse were cast upon relles, e.g, upen those of SS. Gervasius and Protasius (Ambr. Ep. xiji. 9), in order to invest them with remedial propertiea. We Wenl also that threads frayed from a handkerchief (facietergium) which had been used to cover tho fisce of Nicetius, bishop of Lyons, on the day of hia death, when laid upon an altar, cured an epileptie who prayed before it (Greg. Turon. $d_{e}$ Vit. 1 Iatr, viii. 8).
(c) The candles which illuminated, or lannpa which were suspended nbose the tomb of a sailt. [OıL, Howx.]
(d) The dust which gathered upon the tomb, the ordinary method of ndministering which was to give it mixed with water as a drink.
Dust from the tomb of St. Hilary of Poitiere was the menna of cleansing two lepers, bestowing olght upon a blind person, and soundness of limb npon two persons afflicted with withered bands (Fortuantus in Migne, Patrol. Lat. cxev. 6, 7; Act (S. s. sd d. 13 Jan.). Dust from the tomb of martyrs in Lyons, when gathered in a spirit of mastyrs in Lyons, when gathered in a spirit of trye faith, cured the lifirm (Greg. Turon. de Gl. Martyry. i. 50), as also that from the tomb of Modoeldus, bish p of Treves, AD. 640 circ. (Acta SS. ad d. 12 Naii). By dust from St. Martin'e temb at Tours, Avitus, bishop of Auvergne, and two youthe got cured of fever, several persons of dyseatery, and Gregory of Tours himself of a vialent fit of faceache, of the prags of which the blshop betraye a lively remembrance in the eulogy be passes upon this particular form of eulogy be pasacs upon this partieular form of the Teronensian relics: " 0 theriacam ineanarabilem 0 pigmentum ineffabiel 0 antidotum lsulabbile I Opurgatorium, ut ita dicam,coelestel" (de Mir. S. Mart. ii. 31 ; iii. 60).
(e) Water with which the tomb was washed. During the pre valence at Tours of the epidenic. already mentioned, several persons were cured of dyentery by the water with which St. Martia's tomb was washd in in preparation for for Easter (Greg. Turon. de Mfir. S. Mart. ii. 51 ). Similar curative virtues attached to the water with which the corpso of a snint had been washed; lintanee the cure of a demoniac by this meana (Acta SS. Ben. saec. ii.; Vita S. Cutthberti).
(f) The fabric. and furniture of the church

A boy suffering from the effects of a polvoned dart was cured upen kissing the thresholl of st. Martin's basillca, in aceordante with $n$ wellknown ecelledinstical custom, prevalent alikg in the l:ast und Went, and nlludel to by Chrysastum (tom. xxx. iu li. ad Cor.) nad l'rudentius (Hilmanas de S. Lanurentio). Sidonius Apellinaris ( $E_{i}$ p. i. s) tells a friend that he lust the sense of bix deblility when prostrate nuwn the threshold of the Yaticilu basilica in Rome. In the nelghbourhood of Bordeaux, hurses were cured of disease ly being markell with the key of the door of a chapel which was dediented to St. Martin, nnd which held his relics (Greg. Turon. de Shir. S. Mart. ili. 33).
(2) Raising the dend.

For examples of thls wonder as wrought by mesus of relies, see lielics, p. 17i7. To these we may idd the inatance of a man who was malsed to life nt the tonil of st. Genevieve of Yaris (Greg. Turan. de Gl. Confess, 91).
(3) Deliverunce, protection, succour.

The belief in the efficacy of relics to secure, whether for the indivi iual belle eer or the whole populatlon of a city, deliverance from or protection agninst all ills, was equally prevalent, and of the sime dute as to its urigin with the belief in their curative virtues.
As instances of this belief, wa may note that the inhabitnnts of home regarded the relice of SS. Peter nail Prul as safeguards to their city. [Parron Saints.] la the amme light the people of Nisibis regarded the relies of their hishop, St. James, nttributing, indeud, to the remoral of them by Julian the loss of their town to the Persians (Fleury, xv. 44).
As examples of netun) deliveranee from danger arlsing respectively from hostile ssssult, infletious disease, inuadutions, and storins, we may mention the following instances. When a bnad of rebellious monks belonging to the monastery of St. Sabas in Pulestine were on their way to attuek the monastery, they were seized with blindness, and unalle to reneh their destiantion. This deliverance of the abbat and his party was attributed to the preseuce of the relies of St. Sabns (Fleury, xxxiii. 3). In the time of Gregory of Tours, the populations of several districts of Gaul were visited with a plague of an infectioue character, amongst thpse, the province of Prima Germniia. The town of Rheins, however, escaped, by virtue of the pall or covering of St. Remigius's tomb, which was carricd in procession, with the accompnuiment ot' crosses and candles, Gound the town (Greg. Turon. de Gil. Confess. 79). Gregory himself, when the disense had reached Auvergne, sought and obtained protection agitiost it at the tomb of St. Julian (de Mfir, Martyr. ii. 45). On the occaslon of an inuadation, caused by the overflowing of the Adige, at Ver Verona, in the 6th century, a large crowd assembled in the church, and before the tomb ${ }_{12}$ St. Zeno, bishop of Verona (Martyr. Rom. 12 April.), to beseech his protection. The waters surged up round the edifice to the height of the windowa, blocking up the door, but did not penetrate into the chureh or endanger the lives of the supplicants (Greg. M. Diul. iii. 19). By the erection of a shrine with the usual necompaniment of relics, the frequenters of a festival held yearly in the Cevennes, were delivered from atorma which had become a matter of certain occurrence on the eccasion (Greg. Turon. de Gi. Conf. 2), leshles afforiling deliverance from, and protectlon agninat, illa, relles could confer posilive benefits. Thus at Nurwa In U'mbria, the carrying of the robe of Eutychius, formerly ahbat of a neighbouring monatery, round the fielis, in seasons of drought, Invarisbly produced raln (Grog. M. Dial. 1il. 15).

This beliof in the miraculous virtues of relles led to the practlce of carrylng relles, as the Jews of old their ark, lute battle. Thus the Frankinh princes reguived thelr army chaplains to carry them at the head of their forces (Carlomanil, capit. 1. aun. 742, c. 2 ; Caroli M. çpit. vilh. anu. 8uj); Chllperle hal them carried hefore him when he entered J'aris (Greg. Turon. vl. 27); and an Vastern king, according to a story (iregory of Tours repeats, went so frer as to lasert the thumb) of St. Sergius in his own right srm, and was able, us a reward for his fitith, by raising his arm, to conquer his enemles (IIist. vil. 31). And apart from this public and official use of relles, many were wont to carry them about their person for their own ladividual protection ngainst dangers In genersl, especially atch as might arise in travelling. Gregory of Tours illustrated the practice and the benefit resulting from it in his own case. When he was on a journey from Burgunily to Auvergue, a thunderstorm came on. Plucking some relics he carried from his bosom he held them up in the directlon of an ominous-looking clouil. The cloul parted in two, and no harm betell the travellers (de Gl. Martyr. 1. 84). Upon another occasion he extingulshed a firs by producing a cross, which contnined relics of the Virgin, the Apostles, and St. Martin (de Gl. Martyr. I. 11). In Gregory the Great's epistles frequent mention fs made of relics being sent by that prelate to varlous individuals, nmongst these to C'hildebert, Rechared, and Constantina, the wife of the emperor Naurice, which were to be worn round the neck an snleguarls against.physienl ills, and for the sake of the spiritual beaefit they were calcusInted to bestow, e.g. (1) keys of St. Peter, together with which, as a rule, was included a minute portion of his chsins (Ep. $\mathrm{I} .26,30,31$, iii. 48, vi. 6, ix. $52,122, x i \mathrm{i} .7$ ); (2) chains of St. Panl, i.e. particles filed off from (Ep. iv. B(1); (3) crosses, containing relics, e.g. (a) particles of St. Peter's chains ( $E p$. iii. 33), (b) wood of the cross, aud hair of the Baptist (Ep. 1x. 122); (4) the gridiron, i.e. pieces of, on which St. Lawrence was tortured to death (Ep. Jii. 33). With this use of relics as safeguards we may compare the like practice of wearing a portion (lectio) of the gospels suspended round the neck for the sake of protection (Jo. Chrysost. tom. xix. ad Antioch.), sad of placing one on the head to obtain a cure (Aug, in Johin. c. 7).
2. Mirscles of Power wronght by Relics. (1) In attestation of the righteousness of the innocent, and the guilt of the wrong-doer. (2) In punishment of those who treated relics with contempt, and appearing in either case in the light of sigus.
(1) Gregory of Touzs detates the two following instances: A priest who had taken refuge in the church of St. Martin at Tours, and was there put into chnins, was proved to be innocent by the fact that hia chains fell off him, and could not be male to remain on hlm when replaced ( he Mir. S, Bhart. I. 2:3). On the wher hami, a priest who hal falsely aoserted his innocence befiore the tomb of St. Masimin in freves fell down dead (de al. Conf, 103). For a similar instance occurriog in Bourgen, see tireg. 'furon, ic Gl. Mutyr. 1. 34, und for another in Milan, Fleury, $\lambda x \mathrm{l}_{\text {. }} 54$; and compare pope Gregury's words: "Ad exntibita numyue eorum corjora "Disi perjuri venlunt et demonio vexantur" (Dial. Iv, 6).
(2) The power of rellcs to punish those whe treated them with contempt is thus lllustantel, When the relles of St. Babylas, blahop ot Antloch, hall been removel at the emperor Jullan's command from Daphne, where thelr presence was sulposed to render dumb the oracles of Apollo, the temple of Apollo caught lire, nod no traces of it were left, A.D. 354 (liuf. I, 35, 36 ; Sozom. v. 18, 19 ; Theoph. jp. 76, 77). During the troubles with which the 6th century drew to its close in France, a basillea which stood near Agen, on the Garonne, and held the relies of the martyr Vincentlus (of that town), was set on fire. Of thone who had done the deel, some wero selzed with madness, some were scorched with lightulng, some intlicted wounds on themsclvea, some drowned themselves in the river, and others were tormented with varjous disenses (Greg. Turon, vil. 35 ; de (Nh. Mirtyr. J. 105), We read of similar judgmenta in the instance of a colnint, who threntened to fire St. Martin's basilica (do Mir. S. Mirt. ii. 2i); a councillor who had suggested the partinl demolition of a church (de Gl. Mirtyr. f. 92); a man whan aeglected to deliver relics when warned in dreams to do so (1.42); & queen who stole some (Kidius, 33-38; Robertson, Ch. Hist. ii. 67) ; n lumbard who was about to make nn incision in a sey of St. Peter's (Creg. M. E'p. vii. 26); a band of Lombards who attempted to drag some monks away from a tomb (Dial, i. 4).

Other mirncles of this class may be regarded In the llght of wonders, such, for instance, ss Indicate the possession on the part of relics of a power (1) to postpone, with reference to them:selves, the process of decny. Thus Hilarion's body ten months after denth was wholly free from corruption and gave forth a swect frsgrance (Jer. t. ii. ; Newman, on Mir. p. xxxii.). When the body of Amandus, bishop of Maestricht, A.D. 679 , was translated, ferty yenrs after its burinl, it was found to have so little perished in the interim that blood tlowed from the gums when some teeth were extracted, while the beard and nails had actually grown (Acta SS, Bens anec. 1i.). See also in reference to St. Euphemin, Eragr. ii. 3 ; Fleury, xxviii. 1. (2) To increase in bulk, e.g. : Some dust taken from St. Martin's tomb at Tours so increased in quantity as to fill, and even force its way through the lid of, the box in which it had been placed (Greg. Turon, viii, 15). (3) To exereise & will sud purpose. When the corpse of St. Theuderius was borne out to burial, it conld be moved in no other direction than that of the snint's monastery (Ado Viennensis in Migne, Futrol. Lat. caxihi. 448). (4) To vindiatate theis sanctity. Gregory the Grent alludes to estory current about his predecessor St. Leo, who, to convince some who were sceptical on the subject of such relics, tore a "brandeum" with a pair of pincers flowel ( of other $r$ Cross.
III.

Partly
partly from charch m Catholle fa by the Fue of punltive often as, in in the case or the meat bencficence description. the misnele not only a Catholic fa and in cor heretical er

1. Mirac healing ; (2
(1) A gl receiving $t$ Bourges, A. mave (Acta) church choi bishol' of tl exhanisted a conllict wit cattle of a sufferings owner's par Civ. Dei, xx Eucharlst a by fire. At miracle-the tomary to dis of Christian Encharistic $b$ [EULOGIAE.] mingling wi ceived nud father of th whs 60 enrag furnace in 0 destroy all $t$ was snved, result in the baptized toge des I'roph. e virtues of the extended even St. Benedict's visit to his customary ble ting the mot return. Afte have been dis displaced. be buried wit which the co Dial. ii. 24).
2. Niracles nstion of inme (1) Gregory - 8 man of $u$ the Eucharist of his hands a Gloria Martyr of pincers. From the rent thus made blood flowed ( $1: p$, iv. SO), All that is here snil of other relics may be anid of rellies of the lloly Cross.

WONDERS

III. Wonders wronght by the Eiucharist.

Partly from the solemnity of the rite, and partly trom its lutimute connexion as a mark of church inembership with the dactrines of the Catholic faith, the miracles whleh were wrought by the Fucharist alyear in the light of signs nud of punitive niracles rather than, or at least an often $n s$, in the light of works of mercy, wherens In the ense of those wrought by anintly agency or the means we have hitherto nuticerl, mirncles of beneficence propundernte over those of an opjonite description. Lapecially, too, must ws note that the miracles the Eucharist wrought, it wrought not only no n sacramelit, but as that of the Catholic trith in contradistinction to the rite and In condemantion of the doctrines, of an heretical ereed.

1. Diracles of bencficence, (1) Exorcism, healing; (2) Deliverunce, protection, nuccour.
(1) A girl possessed of nn evil spirit upon recelving the Eucharist from St. Austregisile of Bourges, A.D. 624, at once censed to ohout and rave (deta SS. Ben. saec. ii.) ; and a singer In a church choir upon recelving it from Sulpielus, bishop of the same see, A.D. 644, revivel wheu exhausted and in a prostrate condition from a contlict with demons (ibid.). The slaves and cattle of a tribune at Hippo were freed from sufferings intlicted by demons upon their owner's partaking of the Eucharist (Aug. de Civ. Dei, $x x i l .8$, § 6). (2) liy means of the Encharist a child was preserved from perishing by fire, At the time of the nccurrence of the miracle-the reign of Justinian-it was cus. tomary to distribute amongst the young ehildren of Christian jurents such tragments of the Eucharistic bread as remained after communion. [Evlomae.] By accident a Jewish elijd, mingling with his Chfistian compianons, recejved and ate one of these fragnmenta. The father of the boy-a glass-blower by tradewas so enraged that he shut his son into his furnace in order not only to kill him but to destroy all traces of him. The child, however, was saved, and the miracle hall its ethleal was saved, and the miracle hal its ethleal csuit in the eonversion of the mother, who was baptized together with her child (Migoe, Dict. des Proph. et des Jirac. t. i. 1. $6+1$ ). The virtues of the Euchnrist, as a means of suceour, extendel even to the dead. A young monk in St. Benedict's monastery, who had gone on a visit to his parents without obtnining the customary blessing from the saint before quitting the monastery, died on the day of his return. After burial his body was found to have been displaced and, when roburied, nunin displaced. St. Benedict then ordered it to be buried with the Host lind upon it, after which the corpse reposed in peace (Greg. M. Dial, ii. 24).
2. Niracles of power wrought (1) In condemnation of inmorality ; (2) of haracy.
(d) Gregory of Tours relntes that as a deacon -a man of unholy life-was one day carrying the Eucharist into a church, the bread flew out of his hands and placed itself on the altar ( $D e$ Gloria Martyr. 1. 86). In the time of St.

Liulger, Blahop of Miluater in West phalia, A.D. 804, n woman, living In Illieit eonnesinn with a prieat, sent n jar of honey to a church, where it Whs placed behind the altar. As aocon as the bishop, who was otliclating on the wreaslon, began the mass, the jar broke (data SS. lien. sneo. iv. ${ }^{\text {pt. 1), (2) Certain members of the }}$ 1honatint acct, in token of their contempt for the Catholies, onee ordered the Euchuriatic brual to be given to their dogs, Upen eating it the dogs Went mad nuid bit their mastera (Opiatus Milev, de Schism. Donatist. bk, vi.). A woman receiving some of the Euchnristic brend of the Macedonians, to her alarm found that it had turned into stume (Soamen, vill. 5 ; Theoph. 120).
As a wonder or proiligy wrought by the Bucharist we may noite that sccording to Greg. of Thurs ( Hist, vi. 21), the Host on one accasion shed blood when brokej.
The conseerated bread set nside and reserved [RFsERVATION] whe creditel with similar If not equal powers of working miracles with that partaken of in communion. As constituting a menns of grace, it was sinful to troat it from Whatever motives with indiflerenes, as may be seen from the following inchifent. A bishop named Marsius upon recelving the Encharist from the hands of Melnnius, bishop of Rennea, A.D, 530 , let his prortion fall into the folds of his robe, deeming it a mark of superior sanctity not to break his fast. The bread turned lito a snake, which wreathed itself tightly round the bishop's waist nal could not be got rid of till Melnaius had spent a night in suppliation on the sulferer's behalf, when it reverted to irs original condition, in which form Marsius thankfully ate it (Acta SSS all d. 6 Jan.).

Diraeles were ulso wrought by holy baptism. St. Angustine (ele (iir. Dci, xxii, 8, § 4) mentions the miraculous siliect $f$ baptism upon a surgeon attlicted gout. St. Augustine further relates $t$ iat an actor was eured of parnlysis by this rite (§ 5). Theophanes reeorids s similar cure in the instnnee of a Jew (Chronograph. 127). Sicht was bestowed upon Othilin, afterwards an ubbess in Alsace, on her bnptism (Mariyr. Rom. 13 ()ec.). As a miracle of power, Theophanes relates that when Deuterius, an Arian bishop, A.D. 502, was about to baptize a catechumen after the Arian formula, "In the name of the Fither in the Son," the water in the piseina suddonly dried up (Chronojgraph. 234).

IV. Wonders wrought by Pictures and Tmages.

(a) l'ictures and images of our Lord and the saints.
In the controversy which was raised in the first half of the gth century respecting pictures, one argutnent put forward in favour of their usa was the fact that they possessed miraculous virtues. Heaven, it was urged, had wrought many miracles by means of pictures. Cures had been eflected, charms broken, visions hal bean accorded. To thia purport pleads Germanus, patriarch of Constantinople, in a letter addressel, A.D. 725, to Thomas, bishop of Claudiapolis (Actu Cun-il. Nicaen. ii. Actio iv. in Mansi, xiji.). Such miracles, howerer, were confined to representations of our blessed Lord and the saints,

1. Miraclea of beneficence. (1) Healing ;
2) Protuction, suecour.
(2) Protuction, suecour.
(1) A picture of the Virgin Mary at Sozopolin

2050

 WONDERSin Pisidia was wont to shed, at the peint where the hand of the lirgin was represented, a sweetsmelling ointment. To this picture Germanus evpecially alludes as one whose miraculous virtues were attested by numerons witnesses (Mansi, xiii.; Flenry, xlii. 2). For the statue at Caesarea Philippi, see Jesus Curist, Peepre-sextation of, p. 877. An image of our Lord on the cross which stood near the great gate of the imperial palace at Constantinople was supposed to possess miraculous virtues, and in fact was believed to bave wrought a cure of hemorringe similar to that mentioned in the Gospels. To the adoration paid to it on this seore it owed indeed its destruction by the emperor Leo IlI. (Maimbourg, Histoircde l' Hérésie des Icoroclastis ; Fleury, xhii. 3). John Damascene, after praying before ad image of the Virgin, had his right haud, which had been cut off, miraculously restorel (Robertson, Ch. Hist. ii. $84,85)$.
(2) The victories which Heraclius won over the l'ersians were attributed to the fact of his carrying at the head of his legions images of our Lord and the Virgin Mary (Maimbourg. u. $\varepsilon$. ; cf. Fleury, sxxvii. 3); and the repulse of a Saracen army from the walls of Nicae:i, A.D. 718, to the possession by that city of images of the saints (Theoph. 624, 625). For the destruction of the war machines of the Persians at the siege of Edessa, A.D. 621, by means of a portrait of Christ; see inaglis.
2. Miracles of power.

A Jew stole a picture of our Lord from a church, and in token of bis contempt for and hatred of the Person it represented, transfixed it with a dart. Forthwith blood began to flow from the picture, and in such quantity as to cover the Jew from head to foot. Whereupon be resolved to burn it, but the blood it had shed caabled its rightful owaers to trace and bring condign punishment upon the thief (Sigeberti Gemblac. Chronicon, A.D. 560 in Migne, Patrol. Lat. clx. 105).
(b) Images of the cross.

As the portrait of a saint became endowed with miraculous powers by reason of the holiness of the individual therein portrayed, so representations of the cross obtained ns such some mensure at least of the virtues which sttached to the true cross itself. Niracles of beneficence, healing, protection, succour, ars nttributed to such ordinary crosses, exnctly similar to those attributed to the true cross itself. See Gretser, de Cruce, aud his Hortus Crucis.

V. Wonders ecrought by Celestial Visitants.

1. Mirncles of beneficence. (1) Healing ; (2) Deliverauce, protection, succour.
(1) St. Cuthbert, hishop of Lindisfarne, A.D. 687, was cured of weakness in his knee by an angel who nppeared to him on borseback (Acta SS. B.n. saec. ii.); and a nun in a convent at Pauvilly, in Normandy, of an ulcer in her thront after the hand of some invisible personage had been placed in support of her head, and a vision bad been subsequently accorded to her of one clothed in the white robes of a virgin (Vita $S$. Austrebertuc, Acta SS. Ben. saec. iii. pt. 1). In short we may say that whntever wonders were attributed to living snints were also attributed to celestial visitants.

WONDERS

As wenders wrought by celestial visitants we may clavs (t) the presentation by them of gifts, e.g. of a magnificent vestment which the Virgin Mary presentel to Hletonsus, bishop of Tolelo, to be worn on her fentivals, in rewarl for his defence of the doctrine of her perpetual virginity (Baron. ad ann. 657. 53, 56 ; Robertsen, ii. 58); (b) directions given by nagels in visions or dreams respecting the buildiag of churches or mousteries in all iustances in which the miraculous was not confined to the apparition itself. Thus when the archangel Michael had thrice appenrel, a.D. 709, to a bishop ammed Autbertus, bilding him found a clurch to his honour on the monnt now known as St. Michael's mount, on the coast of Normandy, the bishop found a confirmation of the superhuman nature of the behest in the fulfilment of an appointed sign, and further instruction as to the exact dimensions of the church in its lines being left untouched by the dew which covered the top of the monut (Appar. S. Michnelis, Acta SS. Ben. saec. jii. pt. 1).
VI. Wonders wrought apart from Human or Angelic Agency or the above-inamed Deans.
Wonders of this kind, consisting as they do largely of instances of providential interference, whether merciful or punitive, rank in a different class from those wreught by sinints or their relies, or by sacraments in contradiction to the laws of nature. Those, teo, which are best attested are perhaps the least marvellous, nlthough in different degrees-those which are most miraculous rest on manifestly insufficient testimony. Such phenomena as the fall of a shower, the death of an heresiarch, the interyuption of a work by sturm and volcanic disturbance, the appparition of a cross in the sky, may now be viewed, some as special providences, others as extraordinary coincidences; but at the time of their accurrence they were one and all uaquestionably regarded as interpositions of Proridence, intended to supply the needs or to confound the enemies of the faithful; and as such it is probable that they were deemed no less miraculous than many wonders wrought by living aaints or by their relics after them; while many possessed the advantage of being widely known, whereas the knowledge of the others was often confined to the narrow sphere in which they had been wrought. With regard to such wonders as were rather of the nature of inarvels or prodigies, it was different; of these some were in a measurs signs, denoting as they did the piety of a saint when living, or the heliness of his memory when dead; many, however, were devoid of all cthieal features, and provocative ouly of wender, while few were well attested, resting as they often did on the authority of monkish traditions, or the testimony of solitary witnesses.
(a) Miraculous occurrences.

1. Miracles of beneficence. (1)
Deliverance, protection, succour.
(1) A body of Catholics living at Typass in Manritsnia, A.D. 484, for the crime of holding assemblies and refusing to communicate with an heretical bishop, had their right hands amputated and thelr tongues cut out by the roots by order of Hunneric, the Arian king of the Vandals. The miracle lay in the fact that on the third day they were able to speak as before. Three at lesst of the na of Gaza, a the phrasto), the tit. 30), and co cellor (Chronic of the mutilat articulate in th who were livi adds that one durmb, spoks fo of his tongue. states that tw one-ont of the power of speech living. No ce number ot the was fixed at si Patrol. Lat. Ivi man, on Mir. the preservatio occur in the in: A.D. 675, and $h$ saec. ii.), and Le (ibid.); while of kind, we find an band of five Catl having been beat sions, almost to ably cured by th
(2) As an exan sccorded to large miracle of the sothe emperor Ma agninst the Quac suffered greatly thirst. Amongst tisns. Those $n$ legion fell on thei rain fell, refreshin army, but terrifyi to whom it had pi lightning. Such ${ }_{1}$ which Eusebius ( $L$ etatement of Cla Hierapolis, in an Aurelins, A.D. 176 and the few words ad Scap. 4) allude (Hist. 1xxi.), omitti of the Christians, 8 wonderful and prov he attributes to ma Marc. Aurel.) to $t$ event itself is repre in the mode of read Antonine column in it is erroneeus to d legion" from this existed and was ay o Baronius's explanati Christian soldisrs w and after this wers $i$ thundering legion cxxii. ; Migae, Dict.

As examples of pr

> These cases of reco the tongue have been $t$ by the Hon, E. Twtsleto la nudern times, authen Ia whlch persons thus m [ 0. ]

CHRIST. ant.-vol

WONDERS

isitsnts wa m of gifts, the Virgin of Tuledo r] for his 1 virginity n, ii. EB ) ; visions or qurches or which the apparition ichacl had op named reh to his . Michael's the bishop im nature appointed the exact being left the top of d SS. Ben.

ITuman a Means.
as they do terference, n different heir relics, the laws of ttested are gh in dif. miraculous ny. Such re death of work by npparition twed, some raordinary occurrence y regarded ito supply jes of the that they ann mauy r by theit sessed the herens the confined to had been rs as were rodigies, it a measurs of a saint nory when all cthical der, while roften did ns, or the least of the narrators of this miracle, viz. Aedeas of Gnza, a rhetorician and philosopher (in Theophasasto), the emperor Justininn (Cod. Justin. i. cellor (, and count Marcellinus, his former chnnof the (Chronic. Marcellin.), were witnesses both articulate in thion inflicted, nad the cnpacity to who ware living case of some of these martyrs adds that one of the their time. Marcellinus dumb, spoke for the first time having been born of his tongue. Procopius enter the excision states that two-Gregory (de Bell. Vandal. i. 7) one-out of their numbery I. (Dial. iii. 32) that power of speech through having lapsed into evil iving. No contemporary nuthority gives the number of the confessors; in an old menology it was fixed at sixty (Victor Vitensis in Migne, Patrol. Lat. lviii. 245; Gibbon, xxxvij.; Newmno, on Mir. cc.-ccxiji.). Other examples of the preservstion of speech after mutilation occur in the instances of Aigulphus of Lerins, A.D. 675, and his compaoions (Acta SS. Ben. (ibid.); whilg Leger biahop of Autun, A.D. 678 (ibia.); while of miraculous healing of another band of five an example in the instance of a hasing been Catholic slaves in Africa who, after hsving been beaten, not once, but on several occasbly cured by the m , had their wounds invari-
(2) As an example of protection, xxviii. 58). ${ }^{\text {b }}$ scorded to large bodies protection and succour sccorded to lnrge bodies of men, we may take the the emperor so-called thundering legion. When sgninst the Ourcus Aurelius was waging war suffered greatly owing to the heat and from thirst. Amongat his sold the hea and from tians. Those who belooged to the Melitene legion fell on their knees in prayer; a shower of rain fell, refreshing aod invigorating the Roman srmy, but terrifying and dispersing the enemy, 0 whom it had proved a atorm of thonder and lightning. Such in the maio is the account with which Eusebius (Hist. v. 5) prefaces the original Hierapolis of Claudius Apollinaris bishop of Aurelius, 4.D. 176 , although addressed to Marcus and the few words, although no longer extant, ad Scap. 4) alludes to which Tertulliau (Apol. 5, (Hist. Ixxi.), omitting the event. Dion Cassius of the Christiana, speaks of the occurrence as "s wonderful and providentinl preservation," which he sttributes to magic, as Julius Capitolinus (in Marc. Aurcl.) to the emperor's prayers. The event itself is represented, with pagan features in the mode of rendering, on a bas-relief of the Antoaine column in Rome. Manifestly, however, it is erroneous to darive the title "thundering legion" from this occurrence, as it already existed and was ns old as the time of Alnguatus. Bsronius's explanation (Ann. 176, 20) is that the Christian soldiers were in all parts of the army, and nfter this were iocorporated into the existing thandering legion (Newmsn, on Mir. cxiii.cxii. ; Migne, Dict. des Mir. t. i. p. 759).

As examples of protectlon afforded to indivi-

Abstract

- These cases of recovered apeech aftor mutliation of the tongue have been investigated in a apecial treatise by the Hon. E. Twisleton, who has quoted several cases Ia modem times, authenticated by well-known surgeons, la which persons thus mutilated have been able to epenk. $[$.]

 [C.]christ. ANT,-VOL. II,

WONDERS
2051
duals we may note the instance of Theotimus, bishop of Toni, A.D. 400 , who became invisible to his pursuers (Fleury, xxi. 5) ; St. Martin of Tours, the arm of whose assaidant fell powerless (Sulp, Sev. Vita, 13); Armogastus, a young Cathulic in Theodoric's service, whose limbs were freed from their bonds on his signing the cross and invoking Christ (Fleury, xxviii. 59). Of protection against the fatal effects of poison we find CD example in the instance of Sabinus, bishop of of Snmson, bishom (Greg. M. Diul. iii. 5), also SS. Ben. saec. i.); and, A.D. 565 circ. (Acta under circumstences and of miraculuas soccour, want, in the instances of Clovis or absolute marching ngainst the Vis of Clovis who, when guided to the right place for crossing the Yienne by a stag which began to ford it (Greg. Taron. who were of St. Columban and his companions, (Acta SS Ben ravens in a time of famine stance of a prior in Life of Austr. also the in-
2. Mirncles of power. (1) Pustregisile (ibid.).

Marvels. (1) Punitive;
(2)
(1) Of this class was the fiery eruption The the rebuilding of the Temple of Jerusalem. rebe emperor Julian had given orders for the rebuilding of the Temple, hnving entrusted the Alyperintendence of the work to his lieutenant Alypius, and himself issued invitations to the Jews of all countries to Assemble at Jerusalem the marvellons accomplishing his purpose. Of the marvellous manner in which the work was we learn the and the imperial designs thwarted, wo leard the particulars, some from one writer, tering heapsother. A whirlwind arose, scata storm of of lime and sand in every direction; in storm of thunder and lightning fell, melting an earthence the implements of the workmen; tion of the old followed, casting up the foundations and causing the public porticg the fall of buildings, cspecinlly multitnde had coes beneath which the territied men resumed thaght shelter. When the workmen resamed their latbours bulls of fire burst out beneath their feet, not once only, but ns often ns The fiery mass to continue the undertnking. from the doors traversed the streets, repelling, life or limb, those whe church, even with loss of This miracle has who had tled to it for satety. writers. Gregory en support of contemporary Ammianus Megory Nazianzen (Orat. v. 4), and later historians Rufinus (Hist. xxii: 1); and of ${ }^{\text {. }}$ (iii. 20), Sozomen (v. 22) (Hist. i. 37), Socrates. iii. 20). See Warburton's Julian (Hist, Eccl. . xxili. Newman on Gibbon, c. des Mir. t. ii. p. 1115 Mir. elxav.; Migne, Dict. of Arius, the event With regard to the denth party in general as a direct ind by the Catholic vidence in their favourect interposition of Proprayers of the bishop of Constantinswer to the clergy, and by Athop of Constantinople and his refutation of the A rian heresy (Athanasicient Epist. ad Monachos, 3 Op. v. i. 344 ; Milmnn Mist. of Christianity, bk. III. iv.). Amongst miraclos of this class those of an anti-Arian. complexion are ladeed conspicuous. We may instance the atory of an Arinn bishop who was. struck blind when about to force his way into a Cnthollc church (Greg. M. Dial. iii. 29) ; of a man who, when counterfelting blindness at the instlgation of an Arlan bishop who wished to display his pretended powers of healing, becane acturlly blind (Greg. Turon. ii. 3) ; and pope Gregory's account of the prodigies which attended the re-consecration for purposes of orthodox worship of an Arian church at Rome (Dial. iii. 30). For further examples of Divine judg-incats-for as such they were regarded at the time (Socr, vi. 19 ; Sozom. viil. 27)-we may refer to the various secldents, unwonted illnesses and sudden deaths which took pince at Constantinople, A.D. $40 t$, after the persecution which was raised agninst St. Chrysostom (Fleury, xxi. 48). That Divine visitations were not confined to this side of the grave, see Greg. M. Dial. iv. $51,53,54$.

WONDERS

(2) Amongst marvels which were not specially connected with saiats were the circunistances which led to the development of the angelic soag, the Greek Trisagion in the reign of Theodoslus II. A child at Constantinople was caught up into the air, and on his return in the course of an hour reported that he had heard the heavenly host singing, dyoos $\delta$ Oeds, \& yios laxupols, alyos àdivaros (Mansi, t. vii. p. 1041); the fall, at Alexandria, of statues from their pedestals, proclaming the death of the emperor Maurice and his sons (Theoph. 450); the filling of a piscina with water through some unknown agency (Greg, Turon. de Gl. Martyr. 1. 24) and the mysterious strewing of the pavement before a saint's tomb with roses (De Mir. Mart. ii, 46).
(b) Miraculous appearances.
"They have visions," writes Irenaeus (Contra Haer. ii. 32), "when emumerating the gifts possessed by Christ's true disciples in his day." To quote the words of a historian who does not err on the side of credulity, "it is impossible to overlook the clear traces of visions and inspiration which may be found in the early fathers" (Gibbon, c. xv.). As the exercise of powers of healing and exorcism constituted the chief mode in which the early Christians exhibited in an sctive form the miraculous gifts which had been imprarted to them for the good of others, so were visions no less the channel by means of which they became passive recipients of supernatural communications voucheafed to them for their own edification aad gnidance. Thus the purport of visions wris sometimes to allay the fears, to solve the doubts, to direct the steps of those who were in trouble or difficulty, sometimes to nulmonish the guilty, and sometimes to forewarn of approaching calamities. Nor were they restricted to those who are supposed to be the fitting recipients of communicntions of this sort-the hermit in his cave, or the monk in his cell-having been vouchsafed to men in general, to the young ind old, to the lowly as well as to the great. During the first ages they constituted an important means towards the conversion of the pagan from his heathedism, the heretic from his schism. Tertullian writes: "Major paene vis hominum e vislonibus Deum liscunt" (De Animâ, 47), and Origen, "Many hare come to Christianity through the medium of visions which occurred to them while awake or in dreams " (Contra Cels. i, 46).

1. Apparitlons of Beings. (1) Angels; (2)

Diemons; (3) Departed Spirits; (4) Living Saints.
-(1) The appearances of the archangel Michael -_" qui universalis ecolesiae a Deo patronua et protector est institutus "-were numerous both in the Enst and the West, e.g. near Byzantinm, near Colosse, on Monte Gargano, A.D. 500 circ., in Normandy (see above), A.D. 709 (Martyr. Rom. 8 Maii). An angel appeared to St. Theuderius directing him where to erect his monastery (Ado Vienn. in Migue, Patr. Lat. cxxiii. 447); two angels to Furseius, A.D. 650, admonishiag him as abbat of a monsstery that monks should pay lcsa attention to the mortitication of the body, and more to the cultivation of a humble, contented, and charitable disposition (Fleury, xxxviii. 28).
(2) As examples, we may take first the appearances of the evil one to St. Anthony in the guise of a woman, then of a black child; as a monk: with loaves in his hands, when the saint was fasting; as a spirit calling himself the power of God, and lastly avowing himself to be Satan; and secondly, the appearnnce of demous to the same saint in the form of wild beasts aad serpents uttering horrible cries (Newman, on Mir. xxix. ; Fleury, viii. 7).
(3) First of scriptural saints. St. Stephen appeared, A.d. 420, to Pulcheria, aister of Theodosius II., informing her of the safe arrival of his relics (i.e. his right hand) from Jerusalem (Theoph. 133, 134); St. Barmnbas, A.D. 484, to Adthimus, bishop of Constantia, in Cyprus, revealing to him the resting-place of his body, nea: Salamis, in that island (Fleury, $x \times x, 19$ ). Secondly, of bishopa and abbats. St. Ambrose on the night, being Easter Eve, on which he was laid out for burial appeared to the newly-baptized infants, varying the manner of his nplearance, but to the parents of the children remaining invisible, even when pointed out. Again, on the day of his death he appeared to saints in the East, praying with them and laying his hands upon them, while in Florence he was frequently seen after his death, praying before the altar of a church he had built in that city (l'aul. Vita, $48,49,50$; Fleury, xx. 21). St. Benedict appeared after death to an abbat and prior of his order at 'lerracina instructing them as to the plan of a monastery they were about to build (Greg. M. Dial. ii. 22).
(4) As an example of the nppearnace of a living saint we read that a child who had fallen into a well was found sitting upon the surface of the water, and that his account was that St. Julian Sabas who at the time was being entertained by the mother of the child had appenred to him nod borne him up (Fleury, xpi. 28). We find a similar atory in the life of Theodosius of Palestine (Acta SS. ad d. 11 Jan.)
2. Visions of Purgntory, Hell, Heaved.

A vision the martyr Perpetua (Martyr. Rom. 7 Mar.) had of her brother, in whose behalf she had been moved to pray, first as suffering and in a place of darknesa, and then as comforted snd aurrouniled with light, has been supposed to refer to a state of purgntory (Robertson, i. 68; Nilman, ii. 221). As indicative of the puaishment of the wicked, an abbat in Auvergae had a vision of a stream of tire, and of men immersed in it bitterly bemoaning their suiterings. Thess had lost their footing when crossing a narrow bridge which apanned the stream, and were men who had been careleas in the dischargs of their spiritual duties. $\therefore$ After this rision the abbat becal monastery of similar Theodoric tl crater of a Visions of h to St. Furs Salvius, bis paved with a cloud shini (Greg. Turon 3. A pparitio

On the
(1) Const

Maxentius, deity he sho enemy whose company wit in the sky a inscription, " our Lord app shewed him standard after victory in his is the account stantine (i. 28 nfter the occ to have heard affirmed his st Philostorgius, the phenomen and Rufidus authority of apparition in $t$ immedirtely af is a pagan, refe $312,14)$, and Nazarius, also talk of all the seen who bore o messengers " (a alludes to a med ing the figure of "In this sign th Mir. cxxxiii. ; Pentecost, Miny the sky at Jer Calvary to Mou brillinncy equal apparition laste city beheld it, Christians and scknowledgment did not rest up haman wisdom, diviae interventi Of this phenome Jerusalem, wrot Coustantius, wh sgainst Maxenti sccording to Phil it was seen by confusion of the of the Christian Dict. des Mir. tom of the cross in the Gretser mentions the 4 th century of Armenia, and $t$ that country, and occasion of their to which Gregory

WONDERS

abbat becaine stricter in the regulation of bis monastery (Greg. Turon. Iv. 33). Compare, as of similar signitication, an hermit's vision of Thendoric the Ostrogoth being cast into the Vrater of a volenmo (Greg. M. Dúll. iv. 30). Visions of heaven were accorded amongst : thers to St. Furseius (Fleary, xxxviii. 28) and to Salvios, bishop of the Albigenses, as a place paved with gold and silver and illuminated by a cload shining beyond the light ot sun or moon (Greg. Turon. vii. 1). (Greg. Turon, vii. 1).
3. Apparitions of Crosses.
(1) In the air; (2)

On the garments of men; (3) On asimals. (1) Constantine, when marching against deity he should apply for in doubt to what enemy whose forces outnumbered hir againet an company with his whole army a his own, suw in in the sky above the mid-day sun with this inscription, "In this conquer:" The same night our Lord appeared to Constantine in a vision, shewed him a cross, and bade him fashion a standard after the pattern of it as a mellus of victory in his contest against Maxentius. Such is the accoant Easebins gives in his Life of Constantine (i. 28-32), but not till twenty-six years after the occarrence, nud which he professes to have heard from the emperor he professes affirmed his statement with an onth. Socrates, Philostorgins, Gelasius, and Aicephorus speak uf the phenomenon as seen in the sky and and Rufinus in a dream, althoue:, suthority of Easebius they also nea he hee apparition in the sky. In a panegy wis sued immediately after the victory the speaker, who is a pagan, refers to "the omen "(Bar. Ann. ano. 312, 14), and ten years after another orator, Nazarius, alao a pagan, alludes to "the common, talk of all the Gallic provinces that hosts were seen who bore on them the character of divine messengers" (ap. Bar. Ann. 312, 11). Gibbon alludes to 2 medal extant in the hast century benring the figure of the labarum with the inscription, "In this sign thou shalt conquer" (Newman, on Jlir. exxxiii.; Gibbon, xx.). On the feast of Pentecost, May 7, A.D. 3:1, a cross appeared in the sky at Jerusalem, stretching from Mount Cslvary to Mount Olivet, and shining with a brillinocy equal to that of the sun's rays. . The spparition lasted for several hours; the whole city beheld it, and all, residents and visitors, Christians and unbelievers, alike joined in the did not rest upon the persuasive discourtians human wisdom, but upen the sensible proofs of divine intervention " (Cyril, Ep. ad Comst. Inp.). Of this phenomenon Cyril, then patriarch of Constantius, whe at the time the emperor sgainst Maxentius in Pannonia, where also, sccording to Philostorgius (Ihist. Eccles, iii. 26), it was seen by the contending arricies to the confusion of the pagan and the eacouragement Dic'. des Mir. tom. i. 247). To other appenrances Dic'. des Mir. tom. i. 247). To other appenrances Gretser mentions two to wards the beginaing of the 4th century-cne as seen by Gregory, bishop of Armenia, and the other by Tiridates, king of that country, and by his fellow-converts on the occasion of their baptism. Cedrenus azother, to which Gregory Nazianzen alludes (Orat. v. 7), at Jerasalem on the occasion of Julian's attenph to rebaild the temple, as surpassing in point of 1. briliancy that recorded iny Cyril (IIst. Compend. 1. p. 537). The same writer mentions two ajpearances of a cross, which he terms $\boldsymbol{\sigma} \eta \mu \mathrm{ia}$, at the third year one in the second, the other in Copronymus (ibid ii the reign of Cunstantine vouchsiffed to (is. in. p. 5), while ancther was martyrdom, which tuphemin shortly before her the Diocletian phers place at Chalcelon in Sept.), "a syoubors," writes (Astertyr. Rom. 16 A masea, "of the panishrites Asterius, bishop of

WONDERS

(2) As examples of crosses appearing ergo." garments of men, we read appearing on the emperor Jalian was entering that when the appeared laden with entering Illyricum the rines vintage had tate unripe grapes, although the from them upon the place, and that dew filling and his companions left giments of the enpreror crosses; a phenomenon which them the imprint of posed to portend that the emperor should perish prematurely like anripe grapes (Sozomen, $H . E$. i. 5). The appearance of the luminous cross in the shy on the occasion of Julian's attempt to appearance temple, was accompanied by the of crosses which bodies and garments of men i. 37), in some iostances of at night (Ruf. (Theodor. iii. 20) and wases of a dark colour. iii. 20). Nor was the rhat noth out (Socr. Jerasalem, being seen in amenou confined to cities likewise (Theoph. 81; Aatioch and ather pend. i. 537). See Newman on Mir. Hist. ComMigne, Dict. des Mir. t. ii. 1117. Crosses "as of oil" ( $\sigma$ quupla è $\lambda \alpha, \omega \dot{\sigma} \eta$ ) appeared in Constantinople in the sixth year of the reign of Constantine Copronymus on the garments of men as they walked in the streets, and on the altarcloths of churches. Those whose clothes were thus marked were nttacised with mortnl illness. The pestileuce which prevailed was such as to party the capital into a desert. The Catholic iconoclastributed both it and the portents to the pend. ii. 8. of the emperor (Cedrenus, I/ist. Com-
(3) Of crosses appearing Mir. i. 248).
the following instances. Whang ands we find Julian was inspecting the entrails of emperor he was offering in sacrifice, he beheld an animal the figure of a cross encircled by a crown Gregory Nrzianzen (Orat. iv, 54). St. Placldas, when hunting a stag, beheld amidst its horos, a luminous cross and the figare of the Crucified, and heard a voice saying: "Quid me persequeris, Placida? Ecce propter te adsum: ego sum Christus quem ignorans veneraris;" (Niceph, iii. 19). St. Meinulphus also saw a cross amidst a stag's horns (Gobenus in Vitâ $S$.
Meinulphi). Meinulphi).
The above classification of apparitions and visions, according to the form of the one and the subject of the other, has placed in less prominence the notion, but not preeluded a passing notice of their ohject and purpose. The use of apparitions and visions has been exemplified under other sections of our subject-for their use in admonsshing the guilty, see section II. their use in and power wrought by relies. For their use in animatiag the courage of the falthful we may refer to the visions by whith

Perpetua was sustalned in prospect of her martyrdom (Rob. i. 68), and for their use as progmostics of approaching calamity we may instance those which were vouchsafed to the church in Africa, A.D. 480 circ., to prepare her for her persecution by the Vaadals (ib. i. 500 ; Vict. Vit. ii. 6).

Lastly, in the eyes of the monkish and episcopal chroaiclers of the dark ages $c$ stial or atmospheric phenomena, such as "mets, meteors, displays of the aurora borealis, wore the aspect of "wonders" (prodigia), especially when coincident with or preceding the deaths of saints, e. g. St. Liudger, A.d. 809 (Acta SS. Hen. saec. iv. pt. i.) or princes, e. g. Theodebald (Greg. Turon. iv. 9) Merovechus (v. 19), Gundobald (vii. 11), or the occurrence of plagues and pestilences (iv. 31). Certsin concomitants of these phenomeaa, such as a shower of bloed from the clouds besprinkling the garments of men and the interior walls of a house (vi. 14), and the coaversion of the water of a ponc into blood iviii. 25) do not it is true belong to the same natural order of things.
[C. G. C.]

x

XANTIPPE, Sept. 23, commemorated in Spain with her sister Polyrena, disciples of St. Paul (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.; Mart. Rom.).
XENODOCHIA. Guesthonses for the reception of strangers and pilgrims. [Hosprasis.] There were four such of ancient foundation in Rome, which, having fallen into decay, were restored by pope Stephen II., A.D. 752-757, and furoished with all things needful both within and without. He also founded $\varepsilon$ " xenodochium" where a hundred poor men were fed daily (Anastae. § 228), and built two without the walls near St. Peter's, which he attached to the ancient "diaconiae" of the Blessed Virgin snd St. Silvester (ibid. § 229). Pelagius II., A.D. 557-590, converted his own iouse into a glesthouse for poor and aged maen (ibid. § 112). Belisarius, $c$. 540, erected a "xenodochium" in the Via Lata (ibid. § 102). We find these Roman guesthouses distinguished by different names, probably those of the founders, c.f. "xenodochlum Valerii" (§ 274); "xenodochium Firmi," contsining an oratory of the Virgin (§385), and adorned with gifts by Leo III. (§ 402); and the "xenodochium quod appellatur Tucium," contuining an orstory of SS. Cosmas nad Damian (§ 408). [PluarimAGE, § vii. p. 1641.]
[E. V.]
XENOPHON, monk, "holy father," cir. 520, commemorated on Jan. 26 with his sons Arcadius and Joannes (Basil. Menol. ; Daniel, Codex Liturg. iv. 251).
[C. H.]
XEROPHAGIA ( $\ddagger \eta p o \phi a \gamma i a$, aridus victus, dry fond). This word, as expressive of the sct or habit of living on dry fool or a meagre diet, is in common use by ecclesiastical writers, both Greek and Latin, to denote the Christian rule of fastiog. Tertullian compares lits adoption by Christians for spiritual ends, to its practice by the hesthen athletes for earthly victories (ds Jejun. cc. i. xvii.). Eqpoфayeiv is employed of the Lenten faet in the filtieth caoon of the council of Laodicea, A.D. 390; of the fast ia Hely Week by Epiphaaius (Compend. Doct. Cath. vol. ii. pp. 295, 296, 361, ed. Paris, 1622), when bread and salt was the ooly solid food sllowed, and water was druak only in the eveding. For the varieties of practice which existed with regard to fasting in the early church, see Socrstes, Eccles. Hist. v. 22; Balsamen, Epist. de Jejun. in Cotelerii Eccles. Graco. Mon. tom. ii. p. 498; edit. 1681.

[F. E. W.]
XYSTUS (Sixtus II.), pope, martyr, consmemersted on Aug. 6 (Mart. Met. Bed.; Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Rom.).
[C. H.]

I

yEAR, the Ecclestastical. The object of this article is to sapplement that on Calendar [ p . 256], by giving a complete account, according to the principal calendars, of the arrangement and designations of the several Suadays of the ecclesiastical year, as asso of the Festivals in the weeks corresponding with them.
This Calendar presents an abnormal number of Suadsys (57), in order to shew the full arrangement of these for beth an early aud late Easter, according to the position of which festival nome either of the earlier or of the later Sundays in the Calendar would need to bo omitted ; it must be remembered, however, that in different years the correlation of Sundays would vary, inasmuch as those, whose place depends upon that of Eastcr, mas occur more than a month earlier than in our Calendar, while other Sundays, dependent upon fixed festivals can only be a fow days earlier or later in the year. While care has been taken to exclude festivals of later origin than the 9th century, the alternative numes (most!y Latin) of festivals and Sundays, the precise period of the origin of which is uncertaia, have generally been included, on account of their common use in early and mediaeval documents; and the Latin introits are also given for the same reason. Besides other obvious abbreviations the following hnve been used:-D. Domiaica dies, Hebd, hebdomada, Sab. Sabbatum, fest. festum, mart. martyr, com. companion. An alphabetical index to the names of the Sundays and festivals is subjoined.

The chief anthoritiea used in the compilation of the Calendar are: the ancient Roman (Rom.) and Greek ( (irr.) Calendars to be found in Allatius (de Domin. et Hebd. Graccis); the Ambrosinn (Amb.) and Mozarabic (Moz.) Calen. dars; the Sacramentary bearing the name of Gregory the Great (Greg.); the Armenian (Arm.) and Georgian (Georg.) Calendars ; the Gothic (Goth.) Calendars in Migne (Patrology); the Syrian (Syr.) and Nestorian (Nest.) in Etheridge (Syrian Churches) and Assemanus (Bibl. Orient. iii. 2, 380); for the British and Irish (Br.)

Gallican
H.ımpson been mad Fortescu Dates, an

Dom from
I. F. i. eve
S. 1. pos Y. of Nativlt thum. W. Med F. II. aft Friday epectal chitef S
II. 8. CInfr ( $\pi \rho \dot{\partial} \tau \hat{\omega}$ the $\mathrm{Na}^{\prime}$ vel vach
F. 1 . of tb
III. S. 1. p after th

* Disputa
M. Dies

Plough
F. In. of th

1V. 8. in. p Luke, or phaniae.
Omaea
F. .1H. of
V. S. m. $\mathrm{p}_{0}$ of Luke, Intr., Ad
F. iv. of (Nest.).
VI. S. w. pe Lake, or F. v. of the wrius, do VII. S. v. pc of Matthe
M., Tu., W.
W. Monk

Th. Thaoks
F. vI, of $t h$

Narses, $\mathbf{A}$ and Barsu TLII. S. YI. of Luke, dion or Pr Weeis. Proe served as W, and F. at
F. vin. of $t h$

Sa. Alteleual
IX. S, ta Sem phavian, 1 Gr.; Lost nium sacer qua Altelu! Allelenatic Week of apo
M. Blue M.,
F. vilu. of the

Sa. of Apocia
X. 8. in Sexao slan, Rom priviam, (Khortat tha

[^196]ts practice by y victories (ds employed of canon of the he fast in Holy Doct. Cath. vol. 22), when bread wed, and water or the varieties gard to fasting es, Eccles. Hist. n. in Cotelerii 8, edit. 1681.
[F. E. W.] martyr, comit. Bed. ; Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]

The object of $t$ on Calendar account, accordof the arrangeeral Sundays of of the Festivals them. normal number shew the full a an early and sition of which rlier or of the vould need to te d, however, that tion of Sundays se, whose place nay occur more 1 our Calendar, upon fixed festiearlier or later 3 been taken to in than the 9th most!y Latin) of ise period of the have generally aeir common use ments; and the the anme reason. ons the following dies, Hebd, hebfestum, mart. iphabetical index and festivals is the compilation nt Roman (Rem.) to be found in racecis); the Amic (Moz.) Calenng the name of Armenian (Arm.) dara ; the Gothio (Patrology); the Vest.) in Etheridge anus (Bibl. Orient. and Irish (Br.)

Gallican (Gall.) and German (Germ.) charches, H.mpison (Medii Aevi Ral.). Reterence huta also been made to Neale (Int. to Hist. East. Church), Fortescue (Arm. Church), L'Art de Verifier les Dates, and Ducange (Glossurium).

Dominical and Weekly Calendar, from Christmas to the following Christmas.

1. F. i. eve (sc. of the Sabiath) after the Natriutr, Nest. S. i. poest Natale Domin, Rom., Ambr., Gri, Nest.; vi. of In. P'entecost (the so daya before the Arm. Nativity, Jan. 6), Arm. Intr., Dum medium ailenthim. thim.
V. Media aeptImana, quarta SabbatI (week).
F. II. after the Nativiry ; the Virgin Mary (ail the Fridays of the year with the Nestorianas are days of special observance snd name, and dedicated to their chlof Saints), Nest.
II. 8. [Infra octavam Circumelistonis]; befora the Lighta the Nativitr, Arm.; post Strenas (Jsh. 1); vacanas vel vacat. vel vacat.
F. I. of the Emppany; John Baft., Nest.
III. S. I. poat Epriphanianc, Rom., $\Delta m b r$., $A v m$., Nest.; siter the Lights, Gri ; 1. post Theophanlam., Gres.

* Disputatio cum doctoribus. Intr., In excelso throno.
M. Dies perdita (the Christmas feast being over); Plougb and Rock M, Mistaf'e dsy.
F. II, of the Eppphany, sps. Peter and Paul, Nest.
V. S. I. poett Eprphanian, Rom., Arm., Nest.; Xin. of Luke, or of the "Ten Lepers, Gr.; post octavas Epipbaniae. Feetum *Architriclini. Intr. Omnis terra, Omoea gentea. Omoen gentea.
F. Mif. of the Epiphant, iv. Evakoelists, Nett.
V. 8. III. puat Epiphaniah, Rom., Arm., Nest.; xrv. of Luke, Gr.; ante Candelas (Candlemas, Feb. 2).
Intr., Adorate Dominum Intr., Adorate Dominum.
F. IV., of the Eprpuast, Stephen the firat mart. (Nest.).
VI. 8. Iv. poot Epiphaniam, Rom., Arm., Nest; ; xv. of Luke, or of *Za chseus, Gr. Adoraio nesendum.
F. v. of the Eptrhany; Dlodorus, Theodore and Neswrius, doctors of the Greeks; Nest.
VII. S. v. post Eriphaniant, Rome., Arm., Nest.; xxir. of Matibew, Gr. Adorate tertinm.
M., Tu., W., of the Prayer of the Ninevites ; Nest.
W. Monk Anaatasiua, Rom.

Th. Thankegiving, Nest.
F. vi. of the Epiphany; the Syrian doctors, Ephraem, Narses, Abrsham, Jullan, John, Michael, Job, Eshali, and Barsuma; Ncst. and Barsuma; Ncst.
TIII, 8. wi. post Epiphanian, Rom., idrm., Nest.; xir. of Luke, or of the *Publican and Pharisee, Triodion or Prosphonesimus S., Gr. Adorate quartum.
 served as a fast (Artziburier) by $A \mathrm{rm}$.
W. and F. are not observed aa fasts in thia week, orr.
F. vili of the Epiphanr, patr. Maraba ; Nest.

Sa. Allelenaticae kixequlae.
IX. S, In Sertuagesiara, Rom., Amb.; vil, poat Eftphanian, Nom., Arm.. Nest.; of the *Prodigel Son, Gr.; Lost S., Aijeluia S., Carnlapriviom, Privicarnium sucerdutum; featum Repositionis (sc. Allelulae), qua Alletaiaciauditur, Alleluia dimissum or ulausum, Allefinuaticse Exequiae. Intr., ©ircumdederunt me.
Week of Apocreon (änóxpews), Oir. $^{\prime}$.
M. Blne M., Garm.
F. vil. of the Epiphant, tha xt. marts.; Nest.

Sa. of Arocakus, $G r$.
X. 8. in Sexaorsima, Amb., Rom.; vih. post Eplphaкlay, Romu, Arm., Nest.; of Apooreos (or Carnisprivinm, as the last day of ealiog meat), Gr., (Khortaltha agheblaa) Georg. Intr., Exsurge Domine.

[^197]
year

2055
Week of Trrophaoce (tvpoфáyos', Cr.
F. IX. of the Epiphany, comm. of the Deparied; Nesf.
Sa. Fest. Ovorom; Sabionm
XI. Sa. Fest. Gvorum; Sabia: um in Xis, lectionlbua.
I. I, In QUINQUagesima, Amb., Rom.; ix, pust Eptphaniant, fom.; of Triopianove (as the last day of eating cheese), Aprotyrosis, Tyrine, Gr.; Cuseas 8 . (Queliereth), Georg.; S. before the Fast, Arm.; of the entrance in the Fast, Nest.; aate carnes tollendas, Mozar.; Shrove S.; Escarnalfum, Carnisprivium novum; Clericorum vel ilominortam Bacchanalia (Fasonacht, Gcrm.); in cspite jejumil, ante Diem Cinaris; snte Brandones, Intr., kisto mihi.
Week 1. of the Fabt (commencing thid day), Gria Chaste (casta) W., Cleausing wis pilvia. (casta) W., Cleausing W.; inter duo carnisM. Collop M.
T. and T. Antecinaralea feriae; Shrovetide.
T. Quadrsgesinis Intrans; Curaroentrannus, Carempreulum, Carnicapium, Carnibrevium, Carnlvora; Fastens even. Shrove Tueeday.
W. Abн Wednesday, Br.; Caput Jejunii, Mozar.: veris day (Schuertag), Germ.; Cinerum dien, Pulveris festum, Cineralia; Cillifi dies; Caput QuadraWerimse vel Carenae; Carniprivium.
Th. Crastluum cing daya, Br.; dies quatnor.
Sa. Sabhatum cinerum, 1. poti cinerum.
Sa. Sabhutum post cinerums.
XII. S. I. in Qusdragesims, Amb., Mozar. ; in Quadrag. (as Lateranie), Rom. ; Caput Quadragesinae, Gall.; Quadrag. intrans, Dominica quadraginta; $I$, of the Fast Ontilodoxy S . (from the restoration of image wornhip), Gr.; ir. In the Fatt, Arm., Nest.; Quintans (v. from Pabiover); Privilegiata; Carnisprivium vetus; dies Burarnm, Brandonum, vel Brandurum; dies focorum, de lignis (Funcken Tag, Germ.); Holy Day. Intr., Invocavit me.
Week in. of the Fabr, Gr.; Brandons, Br. ; Chaste W. M. I. day of the Fast, Gotho-Hisp., Rom., Greg. Intr., Sicut ocull servurum. Silcut ocull servurum.
W., F., end Sa. Tempora de Frimavera, Ember daya.
Th. Cananuese. IV. Cananuese.
XIII. S. II. in Quadracersima, *Samaritanue, Amb. ; i. meneia primi, Rom.; in. of the Fast, Gr.; in, in the Fast, Arm., Nest.; of the *Prodigal Son, Arm.; Ignes. Intr. Reminiscetgurutione; pest Focos vel Ignes. Intr. Reminiscere.
Week III. of the Fabr, Gr.
XIV. 8. III. in Quanragesina, Amb., Rom.; inf. of the Fabr, of the Adoration of the Cosss (Ztavpomporkuvigews), Gr.; iv. in the Fast, Arm. Nesi.; of the *Unjust Steward, Arm.; de *Abrshame, Amb.; mel. wee (ºs), Fir.; septlnaana media jejunlorum Paschelium. $X V$. Dies magni Scrutinil.
XV. 8. iv. in Quadragrsima, Amb., Rom.; iv. of the Fast, Gr.; v. In the Fast, Arm., Nest.; of the Medis Quadraginta, Mio Doms, Mudiante, Maz:r.; Medis Quadraginta, Mid Luint ; Bragad (Braggot) S., Simnel S., Br. ${ }^{*}$ Cuect Natt, Amb.; de *Pribus. 1). Jerusalem, Methering S.; de Fontanis, Refectlonis. Intr., Letare Hlerusalem.
Week V. of the Faer, Gr.; Hebd. mediana Quadra-genimae. genimas.
1V. Dies caeci natt.
Th. #Nagnificet.
Sa. Siltientes venite ad equam.
XVI. S. v. in Quadragkarka, Amb., Rom., Nozar.; v. of the Fait, Gr.; vi. it. the Fast, Arm, Nest.; of the *Entry of Chriat, Arm. ; de *Lazaro, Amb.; *iati sunt dies; llepositus (from the replacing of Insagee); Mediana, Medisor octava; D. quintanae (sc. Ludi), ante Palma, in Passloiie Domini, Passion S., Black S., Care or Cariling B. Intr., Judica me Deus.

Week. Palm W., Gr.; Pacelonalia, Passion W., Hebd. Passlonia.
Sa. Sab. Akathiati, Resurazction of Lazarug, Gr. Arm. ; Sab. vacans, ante ramos palmarum, dationis eieemosynae vei fermenti, in Traditlone Symboli; Mandatum pauperum.
XVII. 8, vi, In Quanraokima, Rom.; vir. of the Fabt. Arm. 1 Oliverum, Amb.; Pals S. (rш̈v ßatwv), Gr., Arm.; Prostitution S. (*Bzobisa from Mary Magdalene), Gearg.; de Traditions Symboli (Catechumens then learning the Creed), Mozar.; Hosanna S., Nest.; in ramis Poimarum, Greg.; Ramsilia, Oschophoria; dies Palmsrum, gestationle I'slmerum, Onannas; Induigentiae, Pascha potitum ve' competentium; Broncheriae, Calicie, Capitilavium I Pascha florum, Verbenalis: D. Lazari. Intr., Domine ne ionge.
Week. Iloly and Garat W., of the Redeemiog Pascion ( $\sigma$ wippiov máOovs), Gr.; last of the Fabt, Nest.; Hebd. Poenosa vei l'oeosalis, Laboriosa, Magna, Major, Authentica, Crucis, Induigentise, Muta. Quindens (Quinquenne) Puschse (incioding also the week after Easter).
M. Fest. of the Creation of the World, Arm. M., Tu., and W. Dies "Lamentationis.

Tu. Holx and Great T., Gr.; last T. of the Fast Nest.; Fest. of the Deluoe, or Ten Virgins, Arm.; feria int. magne vel major.
W. Fest. of the Destruction of anom, or the Bethayal, Atm. ; Suceinctio Campanarum.
W., Th., and F. Tencbrar ; dies Muti.

Th. Fest. of the Mystiu suppre, Arm.; natalia Calicis, Coena D-mini, Mandati dies (Manndy Th.), dies Jovis in msadato; Th. of the l'ascha, Nest.; Peccatrix poeoitentialis, Aboolutionis dies, Capitulavium, dies Viridium ; Green, Shere or Schire, Chare, and Goon or Hotr Th.
F. Day of Salvation (tà $\sigma$ wtipla), Day or Pabcha of the Chose, Gr.; great or holy Pieparation (Parasoeve, tapaбкeví), Gr., Lat.; Passion and Myatery (eucharist) of the Pancha, Nest.; Coens purs; Good F., Br.; Care F. (Charfreytaf); Biduans, Veneris diea Adoratus, Mortis Christi ; fest. Compassionis vel vil, dolorum V. Mariae, Ibledo.
Sa. Holy an ${ }^{*}$ Frfat Sabdath, Gr.; Sab. Sanctum (Paschse), hu.ib.; Grest Sab., Rest of Chirist (Reqnies Domini corporia, Lat.), Nest.; fest. of the Berial, Arm.; Sab. Luminum; Benedictio (Pracoconium) Cerel et Fontium; Nox sacrata vei sancta; Easter Eve.
XVIII. 8. Eastre S., Pace or Pans day, Joumey Fegtival, Br.; D. Sancta is Pascha, Rom. ; Dies Sauctus Paschae, $A m b$.; D. Sancta, Greg.; Dies Domintens (кat' i乡oxiv), Tertul.; Resuraectionis, Amb., Gr., Nest.; Pascha, Arm., Gr.; Bright S. ( $\lambda a \mu \pi \boldsymbol{q}^{2}$ ), Gr.; 8. of Sundays, Nest.; Annus Novus; dies Regsiis; feat. Azymorum; Paschs bonum, carnosum, communicane; Prima Dominiza, Primum Pascha.
Week of the Renewal (סıaxaiviouos), Gr. ; of the Sabbath of Subbaths, Nest.; in Albis, Greg.; infra Albas Paschse, Hebd. Albana; dies Boni et Neoploytorum, reriatae vel Feriati.
M. Paschalie dies; All Souls, $\boldsymbol{A r m}$.
W. Paschs medum.
F. All Confessura, Nest.; ad S. Marlam ad Martyree, Rom.
Sa. Sab. in Alble, infra Albas; I. post Pascha; Lawson Eve, Br.
XIX. -8. Octava Paschae, Rom., Mozar.; Clausum Paschae, Gothico-Gall.; in Albls Depositis, Amb. New S., Arm., Gr.; Autipascba, 8. of S. Thomas

 Nest.; Octava Infantium ; Dom. post Aibas vet in Ainis; Dum. Inferius (Low S.), Mensis Paschae, Missae Domini, Alieluia. Intr., Quasimodo geniti. Week of Autipascha, or if. efter Pabcha, Gr. M. W. and F. Jejuniom banni, bannitum, vel magnum.
XX. S, It. post Pascha, Amb., Nett.; I. puet ectaves Paschare, Rom., Greg.; 1. post clausum Paschae; III. after Pascha, of the Ointment bearers ( $\boldsymbol{\tau} \boldsymbol{\omega} \nu \mu \nu \rho o-$ \$o pav, who anointed our Lord's body), comm. of Joseph of Arimathaea; Green S., Arm.: trium septimanarum Puschae; post Ostensionem reliqui-1 arom; Mapparum albarum; Mirubilis Domine, Pantor Bohus. Intr., Misericurdia Domini, et Ulam Domini.
Week iII. after Pascha, or of the Ointment Bearers, Gr.
XXI. 8. IIf. post Pascha, Amb., Nest.; i1. post octavam Paechae, Rom.; 11. post clausum Paschae, Duminicum u. post Pascha; rv. S. after Puscha, of the - Paraiytic, Gr.; Beantiful, or Red S., Arm.; * Dcus qui errantibus. Intr., Jubllate omnis terrs.
Week iv. after Pascha, or of the Paralytic, Gr.
W. Feast of Mid Pentecost begins, isating a week, Gr.
XXII. S. rv. post Pascra, Ambr., Nest.; mi. post octavem Paschee, Rom. ; Hi. post cisusum Puschae; v. after Pasche, Arm., Gr.; Min Pentecost, Gr.; of the *Samaritan woman, Gr., Lat. Intr., Cantuta Dumino.
XXIII. B. v. poet Pascia, Amb., Nest.; rv. prt octsvam Paschae, Rom.; rv, post clausuni Pascb e; vr. after Pascha, Arm., Gr.;* of the *Blind Man, Gr.; Dom. Rooationum, vel ante Litanlas; fest. Evangeilsmi. Intr., Vocem jucunditatis annunciate.
Week of the Ascengion, Gr.; Hebd. Crucium; l'rocescion, Rogation, Grubs W.
M., T., end W. Gang daye, Br.; Rogation days, Litania minor, Triduana; Jejunium Ascensionis.
T. Eod of Pascha, Gr.
W. Vigilia de Abcensa 1 ,mini, Rom.

Th. Ascension of our Lomb, Rom., Arm., Nest., docia.
F. 1. of the Abcenaton, Neit.
XXIV. 8. post Ascensionem (Ascensa Domini, Rom.), Amb., Arm., Nest.; vir. S. after Pascha, of the ccexvin fathers of the counell of Nice, Gr.; vir. in Easter, 11. Pala S., Atm. Intr., Exeudi Domine. Week. Hebd. Expectationis.
Th. David of Garedj, Georg.
F. 11. of the Ascensiod, Nest.; All the faithful Departed, $G r$.
Sa. Sabbatum ante Debcenbim Fontis, Greg.; Jeftnium Sab. Pentecostes; Sab. xif. lectionum; in Albis, prima vil. dierum Neophytorom, Aibas Pentecoster.
XXV. B. Pentecostes, $\Delta m b$., Arm., Nest., Gr.; D. sancta Pentecoster, Rom.; (Yuinquagesime, Gall.; Pentecoste collectorum; fest. Sptartes Sancit; D. Alba (White S.); Charismatio dies; Rosalia, Rosnceum, Rosarum.
Week 1. after Pentecost, Gr. ; Pentecostmas W.
M. Fast of the Arostles begins, lasting vii, weeks, Nest.
W., F., and Sa. Jejunium acativale, Ember Days; Pentecostes Medis.
Th., F., and Sa. Rooation days, Spain.
F. Golden F, I. of Pentecost, Nest.
XXVI. 8. 1. post Pentecosten, Amb., Gr.; feet. S, Trinitatis, Amb.; Dom. octava l'entecostee, Rom.; t. 8. after the Descent, Arm.; t. S. of the Apostles Neat. ; 1. S. of Mstthew, of Acl Saints, Gr.; Canductua Pentecostes; Dom. Duplex, r. aestalls ; *heus omnium exsuditor, Domins in tua misericordia, *Spiritus Domini replevit. Intr., Benedicta.
Week II, of Matthew, Gr.; Hebd. Triditatik, Dupiex.
T. Fast of eps. Peter and Pacl beging, Gr.
F. in. of Pentecost, Nest.
XXVII. 8, il. post Pentecoeten, Amb., Rom., Gr., Mozar.; II. efter the Descent, Arm.; in. of the Apostlegs, Nest.: n . of *Matthew, of the *Teaching of Christ, Gr.; D. trium septimsiarum Pentecostes, in Quindena Pentecostes. Intr., Factua est Domines. Week ini. of Matthew, Gr.
XXVIIL S, iII, poet Pgntroosten, $\boldsymbol{A m b}$., Rom, Gr.; iII. after the Descent, Arm.; iII. of the Apostles,

* So Allatius; the Synaxaris and.Triodion make this S. the fitth, and sccordingiy the previous Sundajo sfler Pascha one less in their number.

Nest. 1
me.
Week rv.
XXIX. 8 .
after $t$
Nest.; r Domion
$\mathbf{X X X}$. s. $\mathbf{v}$. after the , of ${ }^{*}$ Exaudi
Sa, Feast
XXXI. 8, v the DESC Ezechlet

* i'aralyt

Week, last fioumat
F. The lx:

Sa. Comm.
XXXII. 8.
*Mattha Stumer, piotrati
M. Alf Sou
F. 1, of the

Nisibis, 1
XXXIII. s .
*Matthew
n. of Sum

Arm. Int,
XXXIV.c $.

Mutthew
octavam Nest.; HI .
Reliquia Wcek x . of $\mathbf{X X X V}$. S. x .
Matthew
Nest.; iv.
Dum clam
M. Fast of $t$ Niet.
XXXVI. S. xi

Matthew,
of Stimner Arm. Intr
F. Samonas a

XXXYII. 8 , $\mathbf{x}$
Matthew,
Yi. of Stim
tion, Arm.
Week. Fast o F. conim, of

Chaldon, an XXXVIII, S. $x$ of *Mattle vit, of Stm?
Reqpice 1
M. Fast of EL weeks, Nest.
XXXiN. S. siv
*Matthew,
Elijah, Nes
Intr., i'rotec
F. conim. of $\mathbf{~ L}$. S. $x v . \quad p o$ *slattiew, o
1I. of Elujab, Mant, Arm.

- The Sundays numbered "post Petfen, p. 1623.
- No name is g in the Mozarable
${ }^{1}$ The Sundaye numbered "poat &

YEAR

2057
Neat.; III, of Matthew, Gr. Intr, Renpice in mia.
Werts rv. of Mathew, Gr.
XXIX. S. iv. post Pksteconten, Amb., Rom., Gr.; if. after the Descent, Arm; ; iv. of the Aroercks, Nest.; $\boldsymbol{r}$. of "Matthew, of the *Centurion, Gr.; Intr., Doininus Illuminatio mea.
XXX. 8. v. post Pentrcosten, Amb., Rom., Gr.; v. ster the Drscent, 4 rm.; v. of the A Arourleg, Nest.; $\stackrel{v}{\mathrm{~V}} \mathrm{Ex}$ of "Matthew, of the *Two Demonlack, Gr.; Intr., Exaud Domine.
Sa, Feast of Petrez and Padl and Apobtles, A rm.
XXXI. 8. vi. post Pentrcostun, $A m b$., Gr.; vi. after the Descernt, Arm.; vi. of the Arostless, comm. of Ezecilei Dakuk, Neat.; vi. of *Matthew, of the *Paralytic, Gr. ; Intr., Dominus fortitedo mea.
Welk, last of the A posilies, $N^{\prime}$ tst. ; Fast of the Transpiguration, Amp.
F. The lxixi. Discipleg, Nest.

Sa. Comm. of Otd and Ngw Coverants, 4 rm.
XXXII. g. vin. foal Prntrcosten, Amb., Gr.; *Mathaw, of the *To Blind Men, Gr.; vil. of Sumikr, feart of Als tho Bind Med, Gr.; 1. of Sthier, feant of All the Apobtlea, Nest; Trangpiovration S., Arm.; Intr., Omnes gentes
M. All Souis, Arm.
F. I. of the beginning of Sumaer, comm. of James of Nisibls, Nest.
XXXIII. S. viil. post Pentecosten, Amb., Gr.; viit, of Mutthew, of the ${ }^{ F I v e}$ Losvee and Two Fribhea, Gr.; n. of Sumarer, Nest; in, after the Transficibation, Arm. Intr., Suscepimas Deus. D
XXXIV.c S. ix. port Pextecoeren, Amb., Gr.; ix. of *Matthew, of *Waiking in the sea, Gr.; i. post octavam Arogtolones, Rom.; m. of Summer, Nest.; ill. after the Tanaspricuration, Arm.; Dom. Reliquianlis. Intr., Ecce Deus adjuva me.
Week x. of Matthew, $G r$.
xXXV. 8. x. post Pretecoaten, Amb., Gr.; x. of *Matthew, of tho "Lunatic, Gr.; w. of Sumpre Nest; ; iv. after the Transfig oramion, Aim. Intr.. Duda clamaren.
M. Fast of the Assumption begins, lasting xiv. days Nest.
X.XXVI. S. xi. post Pentecosten, Amb., Gr. 1 II. of *Mattinew, of the *Purable of the King, $\boldsymbol{G r}_{\mathrm{r}} ; \mathbf{v}$. of SLixake, Nest; ; $\mathbf{v}$, after the Trasistigubation, Arm. Intr. Deua in loco sancto.
F. Samonas and sor:s marts., Nest, xXXYII. 8. xil. post Pentecobtan, $\Delta m b$., $G . \therefore$; xn, o *Matthew, of the *Rich Man questioning Jesus, Gr.; vi. of Stmmer, Nest; ; vi. after the Thansfigeration, Arm. Intr., Deus in adjutorlum.
Week. Fast of the Absumption, Arm.
F. conim. of Rabban Moses Heth Salara, John Bar Chuldon, and patr. Simeon Rarsaba and com. ; Neat.
EXXVIII. S. xil. post Pentecostex, Amb, Gr.; xill, of "Mattiew, of the *Parable of the VIneyard, $G r$.; vir. of Suamer, Nest.; Assluprion S., Arm. Intr., lespice $b_{\text {omlne. }}$
M. Fast of Elijah or of the Cnoss begins, lasting vir. weeks, Nest.; All Souls, Arm.
XXXII. S. Auv. post Pestrcosten, Amb., Gr.; xiv. of Matthew, of the *Wedding Gueats, Gr.; 1. of EliJah, Nest ; il. after the Assemption, Arm. Intr., 1'rotector noster aspice Deus, ${ }^{\circ}$
F. conim. of Cathoficus, Nest.
XL. S. xy. post Pratrcosten, Amb., Gr; ; xv. of *Hathew, of the *Lawyer questioning Jesge, $G r$. ; in. of Elijah, Nezt.; Invention of the Girdle of $\dot{V}$. Mant, Arm. Intr., Inclina Domine aurem luam.

B The Sundays which follow June 29 are sometime numbered "post Natale Apostolorum" (Rom.). Sce Peter, p. 1623.

- No name ls given to this and the following Sundays in the Mozarablic Calendar.
d'The Sundsys which foilow Ang. 10 are sometimes numbered " post S. Laurentif" (Rom.)
XLI. S, Xvi, post Pentecosten; ini, of Ejyah, Nest. 1 S. before the Exaltation of Holy Cross, Gr. ; S. before Iloly Cross, Arm. Intr., Mlserers mel Domine.
Week. Fust of Joly Crosa, Arm.
XLIJ. S. XYi. pori I'enthcosten; rv. of Elijah, : of the Invention of the Cross, Nest.; S. after the Eross, Cross, Arm. Intr., Justus es Domine.
M. Alf Sonta $4 r$ Gr

XLIII All Souta, Arm.
Lili. 8. xvin. after Pentrocos, $\mathbf{t}$. of "Luke, of the *Fishing, Gr.; v. of EliJah, II. of the Invention M. Nest.; it, after Holy Cross, Arm. Intr., Da pacem, M., W., and F. Fasts (as W. snd F. are generaily XLIV. 8 , yis the year); Arm. to Enem. aiter J'entecost, If. of *Luke, of *Love tion, Neat, ; IIt, ifter of EliJah, III. of the Invention, Niest.; int, after Holy Czosa, Arm. Intr., Salua populí Ego sum.
M., W., and F. Jejunium benni.
XLV. S. xx, after Pentecoes, ith, of *Luke, of the vewridu's Son, Gr.; vil. of Elijah, iv, of the IsVention, Nest.; tw. after Holy Caoss, Arm. Intr. Omnia quae fecisti.0
F. iv. of the invertion, of the fast week of Elijain, comm. And fast of proph. Elifah, Neat.
XLVI. S. xxi. after Pentecost, IV, of *luke, of the ${ }^{\text {aparable of the Sower, } G r, ; ~ i . ~ S . ~ o f ~ M o s k a, ~ N e s t . ; ~} v$, after Holy Choss, Arm. Intr., In voluntate tua.
T. of V. week after Holy Cross, comm. uf Ananias of Damascus, Matthias, Bairabas, Philit, Stefien, Silas, and Silvanles, add xil. Airobters; Arm. Nest. Week of Howss, somm. of Elias of Hirta;
XLVII. f. xini, after Penticost, v. of Luke, of the *ILich Man and Lazarus, Gr.; ii. of Moses, Nest.; vi. after Holy Crose, Arm. Intr., Si miquitates.
XLVIII. 8. xxiri, after Pentecost, vi. of ${ }^{*}$ Luke, of the H Demoniac Legion, Gr.; int. of Mosms, Nest.; vir. after Huly Cross, Arm. Intr., Dicit Iominus Ego cogito.
M. Ombium Lidelium Defunctorum, Amb.
XLIX. 8. xixiv. after Pentecost, viI. of "Luke, of the *Ruler's Daughter, Gr.; iv.t of Moses, Nest.; vur.
after Holy Cross, Arm. Week viuy Cross, Arm.
Week vith, of Luke, Gr.
L. S. ixv. after Pentecost, vir. of "Luke, of the -Lawyer questicalng Jesus, Gr.; ix. after Holy Cross, A1m
F. comm. of Eugenius and com. ; Nest.
LI. S. xxyi. after Pantecost, ix. of ${ }^{*}$ Luke, of the *RIca Man, Grr. ; x. after Holy Cross, Arm.
LII. 8. xxvil. after Pentecost, xili, of Luke, Gr.; I. in Auventri, Amb., Mozar.; xı. after Holy Crobs, Arm.
Week. Fast of Skcond Pentecoet, Arm.
LIII. 8. xxvim, alter Pentecost, xiv. of *Like, Gr.; II. In Anventu, Amb., Mozar.; v. ante Natalem Domini, Greg.; 1. of the Second Pentecost, vi. before the Nativity, Arm.
LIV. 8, i. de Advgnte, Rom.; i. of the Anejnelation, (Subora) Nest.; in. In Adventu, Amb., Aozar., iv. ante Natalem Dominl, Greg.; xilx. after Pentecost, XV. of lluke, of */acchaeus, Gr.; II, of the Sxcona fentecost, $v$, hefore the Nativity, Arm.; *Agpsclens a longe. Intr., Ad te fevavi.
Advent aeasun. Nati Adventci; Quadragesíma $S$, Martini vel Parva.
M. Fast of the Annu ciation begins, lasting iv. weeke, Nest.
LV. S. in, de Advento; If. of the Annuaciation, Nest., II. ante Natale Domin!, Rom., Arm.; HI, ante Natalem, Greg.: iv, in Adventu, Amb., Hozar.;

[^198]
YEAR

xxx. after Pratrcoet, x. of *Luke, of the "Woman with a Splrit of Infirmity, Gr.; ill. of the Srcond Penteicost, 4 rm.; D. de Jerusalem. Intr., Popuiue Slon.
LVI. 8. 1tt. de Adventu; ift, of the Annunclation, Nett.; ift. ante Natale Domini, Rom., Arm.; it, ante Natalem, Greg. ; v. in Adventu, Amb., Misar.; xt. of "Juke, of the *Wedding tiueats, of the holy Forsfathers, Gri; Iv. of the Second Pentecost, Arm.
W. Ad Angelum.
W., F., and Sa. (of I, complete week before Christmaa).

Jejuniun hlemale iv. temporum, Ember daya.
Sa. Subbatum de Gaudete; Sah. xit. lectionum.
LVII. S, iv. de Auykntu; ty. of the Annunciation, Nest.; 1. ante Natalem Dominl (D. vacat cod. Cal.), Greg.; th, before the Nativity (Jan, 6), v. of the Second Pentecort, Arm.; vi, In Adventu, Amb., Mozar.; S. hefore the Bhitu of Christ, Gr.; Jonduica de $\mathrm{a}_{\mathrm{i}}$ *Canite tuba. Intrs., Memento mel, Rurate Coell.
Week. Hebd. de Excepto.

INDEX OF NAMES OF SUNDAYB, ETC.

The Roman numerals refor to the preceding list,

Abrahame, D. de, xiv
Absolutionia dicer, xvii
Adorate Dominum, $v, v i$, vil, viii
Adventu, Dominicae in (de), til-lvil
Akathisti Sabbatum, xyi
Aiba Ikninics, $\mathbf{x x x}$
Alhana hebd., xvili
Albas, II, post, xix
Albas Paschae, infra, xvili
Albas J'enterostes, xxiv
Albls, In, xvili
Alleluia, $\boldsymbol{x}\{\mathbf{x}$
Allelaja clausum, ix
All Saints, S. of, xxvi
Angelum, ad, Ivl Annuncintiom, Snndaya of the, liv-Ivil
Annus Novis, xvili
Autecinerales feriae, xi
Antipascia, $x$ lx
A pocreos, ix, x
Apentica, faat of the, $\mathbf{x x v}$ xixx
Apostlea. Sundaye of the, xxvi-xsxi Apulyrosia, x1
Architriclini, festum, iv
Artzilmarjon, vill
Aacenal $\cdot \mathrm{hem}, \mathrm{D}$ ) poet, xxiv
Ascen 1011 of Christ, $x x$ iil
Ash Wertneaday, xi
Aspiclens a lungo, lly
Assumption Sunday, xxxviil
A utnentica lhebd., xvit
Azymurum featum, xvili Bacchanalia clericorum vel dominorum, $x 1$
Kanni, vel bannitum, Jejn-nhum, xix, xilv
Reantiul Sunday, xxi
Benedicta, $x \times v i$
Betrayal, $\mathbf{F}$. of the, $\mathbf{x v i l}$
Biduana, xvil
Birth of Christ, S. before the, lvil
Mlack Sunday, xvi
Hind man, S, of the, xxifi
Biind men, S. of the two, xxxii
Blue Monday, ix Fond dies, x xill liraggot Sunday, xy
Hrsndonum dies, xdi
Bright sundar, xylit
Broncherlae Domlulca, xvii
Burarum diea, xil
Burlal, F. of the, xyil

Caecl nati Dominics, xv Calicle Dominics, xvil Campanarum sureinctlo, $x$ vil Cananaeae, xll
Candelaa, D. ante, v Canite tuba, Ivil Cantate Tromino, xxii Capitilavinm, xvli Caput jejutili, xI Caramentraanus, xi Care filday, xvil Care Sunday, xvi Carlling Sunday, xvi Carnes tollendas, D. ante, xl
Carndsprivium, ix, x Carniajrivlum novum, xi Carnisprivium vetus, xil Cista hebromuda, xi Centurion, S. of the, x xix Cerel benedietio (praeconlum), $x$ vil
Chare Thureday, xvil Chariamalis dies, $\mathbf{x x v}$ Chaste week, xi, xil Cheese Sunday, xi Clicil dies, $x 1$
Cinerum diea, xi
Circumcisiunis, D. infra octavam, 11
Circumdederunt me, ix
Clatuanm Parchae, xix
Coena lumitid, xvil Coena pura, xvil
Collup Mınday, xi
Communibus, ferlae in, xlvi
Compassionia V Mariae, F. xvil
Conductus Pentecostes, $\underset{\text { xxvl }}{ }$ Covenanta, Comm. of Old and New, xxxi Creation of the World, F. of the, $x$ vil
Croes, day of the, xvil Cross, fast of the, $\times \times x$ vili, $x{ }^{11}$
Cross, Pascha of the $\underset{\text { xvil }}{ }$
Cross, S. before holy, xil Cross, S, of the Aderatlun of the, $x i y$
Croas, Suladaya atter holy. xlifi-1il
Cross, Sundaye of the invention of the, xili-xty

Daemooje muti Dominica, xiv.

Da pacem, xilli
xvi,
Deciea quadratum, xi leluge, $F$, of the, xyll Deacent, Bundaya after, xxvl-xxxi
Delai in adjutortum, xxxvit feue in loco sancto, $\mathbf{x} \times \times \mathbf{x}$ i Dena emndum exauditor, xxyl
Deue qui errantibns, $\mathbf{x x i}$ beuteruprete sunday, $x \mid x$ Melt INminus, xivifi Distoffs day, III
boctors, Christ with the, dij Iomine in tha nisericordia, xxyl Domine ne ionge, xvii Dominica vacana, 11, Ivil Dominicua dies, $x$ vili Doniluue fortitudo mea xxxi
Domioua iliuminatio mes, xxix.

Dum clamarem. $\times x \times v$ Dum medium ailentium, $i$ Tuplex Jominica, xxvi

Faster Snnday, xvili
Hece leus adjuva me xxxiv Eiljah, fast of, xxxylit, xiv. EIjab, Sundaya of, xxxixElv Fmber daye, xif, xxv, ivi
Entry of Cbriat, S. of the, $x \mathrm{xl}$
Epiphaniam, Dominicae ;post, III-xi
Episozomeñ, xxlii
Eate mihl, xi
Fivaugeilami festum, xxili Exaudi lomine, xxiv, xxx Excarnalium, xi tiscepto, bebd. de. ivii Expectailouls hebiumada, xxiv
Exaurge Domine, $x$
Factus est Dominus, xxyif Fast, S. of the entrance io, $x 1$
Fast, Sundays of the, xilxvil
Feticlasimus dien, xvilt Ferlatee dies, xyli Feriatae dies, $x$ Nil Fermenti Sablatum, XVI
Flahing, S. of the, xifil
Five loave and two flshes,
S. of the, xxxili

Focorum diea, xil Focos, I). post. xlli Fontania, D, de, xy
Fontium benedictle, xvii Forefathers, 8, of the holy, IV

Galliael, xvili
Gang daya, xxill
Gaudete, Salbatum de, Jvi
Gaudil dies, x vill
Gelden Friday, xxv
Good Friday, xvil
Good Thursday, xvil
Gruss week, xxilit
Great Salbath, xvii
Green Sunday, xx
Green Thursday, xvil
Hely Sabbath, xvil
Holy week, x will Holy day, xil
Holy Thursday, xvild
Husanna Sunday, xvil
Ignes I). post, xill Inclina lomine aurem tuam, $x$ l Indulgentiae dies, xyli In exceliso throno, ili Infantium octava, $x$ Ix Interius Dom., xix

YEAR

Infirmity, S. of the Woman with a spirit of, is Invention, Fridays of the, xili-xiy
Invocavit me, xit In volontate tua, xivi istl aunt dies, xyl

Jerusalem, Duminlea de, xy, iv
Journey featival, xvili Jubliate omia terra, $x \times 1$ Judica me |htux, xv1 Justus es Domine, xlli

King, S. of the, xxxvi

Laborlosa hebd., xvil
Laetare Ilicrusalem, xy Lamentationis dles, $\mathbf{x v i l}$ Lawson Eve, x vili Lawyer questioning Jeaus, S, of the, xl, I Lazarl lominica, xvl, xuli Lazarua and the Hich Mao, xivil Leglon, S. uf the, xivili Lent, x1
Levavi, liv
Lep ra, S. of the Ten, iv Lights, S, alter the, ill Ligula, dies de, xII Lost S., ix
love to Eiremles, S. of, xilv Lowe to Eunday, xix
Low Sunday, xix , $\mathrm{iv}, \mathrm{v}, \mathrm{vf}$, vii, xlili-ivd Luminum Sabbatum, xvil Lunatic, S . of the, Xxx

Magna hebdemada, xvi, xyll Mamificet, $x$ v
Magnum jıjunlum, $\mathbf{x i x}$
Major hebdi., xvii
Malor hebul., x vil
Mandati dlea, xvil
Mandatum pauperum, xyl Mapparam a ibaruns lom.,
Xx
Matthew. Sundaga of, VII , xxvi-xl
Maundy Thursday, x xif Mediana Domínica, xyl Media Pentecontes, xxy Media erptimama, 1 Mementu mel, Ivif Mimenturn mel, Mid-Fast, Siv
Mid-lent cost, feast of, $x x i$ MId-Pentecost S., xxil Mirabilia innine, xx Milaerere niei Domine, xli Misericordia Domini, xx Missue Domini, Dom., xix Moses, Sundays and weeks of. x|yi-x |ix
Mutierling Sunday, xv Muta ficbiowada, xvii Mystery of the l'ascha, xyil
Nutaie Domini, I D. post, 1 Natalls calicls, $x$ ifi Nativity, sundays befire the, lifi-jvil, i, if Neophytorum dies, xvili
New Sunday, xix
Nice, S . of the fathers of the council of, xxiv
Ninevites, I'rayer of the, vil Nox sacrata vel sancta, xvil

Oculi mel, xiv
0. Dominitca de, Ivil

Ointmpat Bearers, S. and week of the, $x x$
Olivarum Iominica, xuli Onimeg gent 8 , xxaif Ominia quae feciatl, xiv Omula terra, Oaines gentes, iv Orthodoxy Sunday, xil Oaunnue dles, xvil kcophorit vorrm, is ${ }^{\text {Enge day, }}$ talmas, D

- alm Sund
- Im Sund
suibna, D oraiytic, $\mathbf{x x} \mathbf{x}$ crasceve, uscha, xvi Lscha fion sesiontalta, Maion Sna
blor bonu sccatrix $\times \mathrm{VHI}$ entecost, x antecosten, post, $x \times \mathrm{y}$ ] untecost, F ili entecoat, Ft $\mathbf{x x y}$ nntecost, Su Second, ilii perdita dies, I'luugh Afond
Poenailia hebd Populua Sion, I'reparation,
xvil Privicarnium
ix
Priviliegiata D rocession we Prodigal Son, xilit Prosphonesimı
Prostitution $\mathrm{S}_{\mathbf{t}}$ Protector noste Pubilican, S , of Pulchra dies,
Puiveris festur Quadragesima, xil-xvil
Quadragesims 1
Quadragealma ilv
Quatuor Iempor
ivi Quindena Pasch
Quindens Pente
Quindena Pente
xxvil Quinquagesima, Quirquenns Pas
Quintana Itomin
Quintanae Domi
Ramalia, xvil
Red Sunduy, xxi lefectionis, Dom
Regalia dies, xvi

ZABULUS

ecophorla, xvil vorp'n, festum, x kace day, xvili timas, D, sute, xv ilm Sunday, xvil im Sunday, second, xxiv fulbas, D. de, xv sralytic, $S$, of the, $x \times j$, Xxxi sasceve, xvil 4ncha, xvili-xxill
uscha florum, $x$ vil ssionuila, xvi Esion Suaday, xvi etor bonus, $x$, chertis, $x$ ccairix poenitentialls,
xvil
entecost, $\mathrm{avilh}, \mathrm{xxv}$ intecosten, Dominicse pust, XXvi-iv Intecost, Fast of Second, - III entecost, Fridaya of, $x \times v$, xxy] stitecost, Sundsys of the Second, Illi-ivii, i, II

perdita dles, IiI

Jlungh Munday, iti
Poenaile bebdi, xvil Populus Sion, iv
Ireparation, great or holy xvil
Privicamium accerdotum, ix
Privilegiata Dominica, xil
Processlon week, xxIII Prodigal Son, S. of the xili Prosphonesimus, vili
Prostitution Sunday, xvil
Protictor noster $x, x i z$
Jublican $S$ of $\operatorname{xxxix}$
Pulchra sles, of the, vili
Pulveris festum, xj
Quadrageslma, Dominicae in xll-xvif
Guauragesima parva, Ifv Quadragesima S. Martin
Qundragesima S. Martini,
Quatuor tempora, xil, $\times \times V^{\prime}$ ivi Quindena Paschae, xvil Qulndena Pentecortes,
Quindens Pentecostes, 1 , iv xxvif
Quinquagesima, S. $|n, x|$ Quliqquenns IPsehse, xvil quintans Duminlca, xil Quintanae Domiaica, xvi

Ramaila, xvil led Sunduy, xxi
Refectlonls, Dominica, xp Regalis dles, xvill
Reliquiarum, Dominica xxxiv Reilquiarum, D. post ostensionem, xx
Reminiscere, $x i l f$
Renewa!, x vifi
Repositionls festum, ix
Repositus, xvI
Rerpice Domine, xxxvili
Respice in me, xxvil
Rest of Chriat, Xvil Reaurrectionis Dominica, xuili xvilf Rich man queationing Jesus, S. of the, $x x x v i l$ Rieh msn, S , of the, II
Rock Mfonday, III
Rogation daya, xxill, xxv Rogallonum fominica, xx Rorats coull, Ivil Hosarum In in Rusarum, Duminica, xxv Ruiar's Dhughter, S. of the, xilx

Sablyith of Sabbaths, xvili Nabbatl quarta, I Sabbatum, in Xn lectionibum, $x, x x|v, I v|$
Sabluatum vacans, xvi
Salus popull Kgo Ram, xllv Salvation, day of, xvil Samaritan woman, S. of the, xili, $x \times 11$
Saneta I ominica, xvill Sanctl diex, xI
Sallctum Salihatum, xvil
Scrutinli, diea magni, x|v Septuageaima, S. In, ix Sexageaina, S. In, x Shere dsy, xI
Sbrro Thursdag, xvil
Shrovethis, xi
Sicut ocull servorum, xll SI Inlquitatea, xivil Slmuel Sunday, $x$ x Sijeutes venlte ad aquam, xv Sodum, F. of, xvil Suwer, S. of the, xivi
Spiritus Nanell festum, xxv Sulritus Donini, xxvi Suscepimus Detis, xxxili Symboll, D. de truditione, xvil

Tesching of Christ, S. of the xxvil

Tenebrae, xvif
Thanksgiving Thursday, vil
Theophinlam, I D. ponst, ill
Thumas, S. of St., xix
Transflguralione, 1 . de, xill
Transfiguretion Suiday, Xxzli
Triduans, xxill
Trinliatls, festum S., xxvi Triodlon S., vill
Two Dacmoniacs, 8 , of the,
Tyrophagus, $x$, $x$
Unam Domint, $x x$
Unjust Judge, S. of the, xv Unjust Steward, S. of the Xiv

Veneria dies adoratus, xvil

Verbenalia, xvil
Vineyard, S. of the, $x \times x$ vil Virgins, F, of the Ten, xvil Vocem Jucuoditatla, xxill

Walking on the Sea, S. of, xxxiv Wedding Guests, S. of the, $x \mathrm{xxIx}, \mathrm{fvl}$
White Sunday, xxv
Widow's Son, S. of the, xiv
Zacchaeus, S. of, vi, ilv
[E. B, W.]

Z

ZABULUS, another form of Diabolus, as n desiguation for Satan, often found in the writings of the Fathers. It is well known how readily the letter $\delta$ passes into $\delta$. (Cf. Zé's $=$ Chrigt. ant.-VOL, in.

ZENDO
 and conversely 8ıa-into كa-. Of this we have diabindos, and in Latin zacones $=$ diaconi zametrus $=$ diametrus, zebus $=$ diebus, zeta $=$ diaeta (Röasch, Itala und Vulgata, p. 509). We fiud instanees of the use of Zabulish in Cyprian "nobis a Zabulo obsistitur" (Orat. ii.), "Zubulum qui zelum initatur" (Zel, ct Lib. lib. iv.), "in. vidia Zabuli" (c. 8), "in laqueum Zabuli"); in Ainbrose, who denounces Arius as being werse than " pater suus Za'ndus. Zabulus enim verum Dei filium fatebntur, Arius negat" (de Fid. lib. V. c. 8) ; in Augustiae, whe says of St. Lawrence, "adversus omnea Zabuli terrores.. . Animus immobilia perstat "(De diversis ; Serm. 123). Lactantius uses it frequently ; cf. providens Deus ne fraudibus suis Zabulus. . . corrumperet (Instit. i1. 14. 1) "novem debellasti" " ( $D_{d}$ ), "novem praeliis Zabulum debeilnasti" (De Mort. Persec. 16. 5), "a ts found in Hiary in (ibid. 16.10). It is also xxiv. can. 20 ; Paulinus, pp. 28,50 can. 12 ; Mntt. 498, and Commodian, Instr. i. 35 ; ii. 17 291, 31).

ZACCHAEUS (1), (Zacifarias), [E.'V.]
Jernsalem, commemorated on Ans), bishop of Usuard., Adon. Vet. Rom , on Aug. 23 (Hart. Aug. iv. 555). Vet. Rem., Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS.
(2) Oct 3
(Syr. Ma,t.) martyr, commemorated at Antiech

ZACHARIAII, prophet,

Feb. 8 (Cal. Byzant ; Basil commemorated on Gracc. Sirlet. ; Daniel; Basil. Menol.; Menol. Sept. 3 (Cat. ' Armen.); Cod. Liturg. iv. 253); Usuard., Adon., Vet.) Romt. 6 (Mart. Bed., Rom.). A church et. Rom., Notker., Wand., him nt A church was built aad dedieated to in the Constantinople by a lady from Carthage Cange, Cpolis, Chry (Basil. Menol. Jan. 10; Du
. .

ZACHARIAS (1)
the later mart (1), pope, commemorated in Mar. 15 ( $R^{2}$ martyrologies ; Mar. 14 (Notker.); (2) Juue 2, presbyter, Acta SS. Mart. ii. 406).

Lyons (Jart. Usuard.).
(3) June 10, commemorated at Nicomedia (Mart. Usuard., Notker., Rom.).
(4) Sept. 5, son of Barachias (Cal. Ethiop.).
(5) Sept. 5, father of John the Baptist (Cal. Byzant.; Meno!. Graec. Sirlet.; Nov. 5 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom. Wand., Rom.).
[C. H.] ZEBENNUS, Jnn. 13, marty:. commeino-
[C. H.] ZELLA, COUNCIL OF. [TELEPTE.]
ZENAIS, Oct. 11, of Tarsus, and her sister Philonilia, reputed reiatives of 'St. Paul (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Graec.; Mart. Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Oct. v. 502). A church dedieated to her at Constantinople is mentioned is the Menaea nader May 7. (Du Cange, Cpolis. Christ. Lib. ib.
p. 151. .)
[C. H.]

ZENAS. [Zeno (3).]

 Syrian churches for the enimavikia of the Greek church. [Maniple.] Ameng the Christiaus of St. Thomas in Southern Indla the term zando is atill used (Hownrd, Christiana of St. Thomas and their Liturgies, p. 133). See also Payne Smith's Thcaurus Syriacus, s. v.
[R. S.]
ZENO (1), Jan. 19, Feb. 23, martyr, commemorated at Nicnea with Cosconius and Melanippus (Mart. Syr.).
(2) Apr. 18, 20 [Victor (6)].
(3) Jun. 23, martyr with Zenns under Maximian, commemorated at l'hilaileiphis in Arabia (Brsil. Menol. ; Menol. Graec. Sirlet. ; Mart. Rom.; Boll. Acta SS. Jun. iv. 474).
(4) July 9 , martyr, commemorated at Rome with ten thousand two hundred and three others (Mart., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker., Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. ii. 687).
(5) July 15, martyr, commemorated at Aloxandria with Philippus, Narseus, and ten lafnata (Jfart. Usuard., Notker., Rom.).
(6) Dec. 20, martyr, commemorated with Ammonius at Alexandria (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Rom.).
(7) Dec. 28, martyr under Maximian with ludes, Gorgonius, and Petrua (Basil. Menol.).
[C. H.]

ZENOBIA. [Zenobius (3).]

ZENOBIUS (1), preshyter, martyr under Diocletian, commemorated at Tyre, Feb. 20, with Tyrannio (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Rom.) ; he may be the presbyter Zenobiua, martyr, "in the last persecution," commemorated at Sidon, Oct. 29 (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Wand., Rom.).
(2) June 12, martyr, commemorated in Isauria (Syr. Mart.).
(8) Martyr with hia sister Zenobia, commemornted on Oct. 30 (Cal. Byzant.; Menol. Graec. Sirlet.; Daniel, Cod. Liturg. Iv. 273; Mart. Rom.); Oct. 31 (Basil. Menol.). A monastery calied after Zenobius existed at Constantinople in the 6th century (Mansi, viii. 989 A ; Du Cange, Cpolis. Christ. lib. iv. p. 141).
[C. H.]
ZEPHANIAH, prophet, commemorated on June 28 (Cal. Ethiop.).
[C. H.]
ZEUGMA, COUNCIL OF (Zeugmatense Conclliums), at 432, at the instance of Theodoret, bishop of Cyrus the historian, to whom the peace re-estabiished between John of Anttoch and St. Cyril of Alexandria was not acceptable; but no details of what was done there have been preserved (Mansi, v. 1161), though the authors of L'Art de verif. les Dates affect to aupply them (i. 146).
[E. S. Ff.]
ZOA, July 5, wife of Nicostratus, martyr, conmemorated at Rome (Mart. Ueuard., Wand., Vet. Rom., Adon., Rom. ; Boll. Acta SS. Jul. ii. 221).
[C. H.]
ZODIAC, SIGNS OF. A drawing is given by Boldetti ( p .500 ) of a bracelet discovered in a Christian burial-place engraved with the conventional symbola of the signs of the zodiac. This is reproduced by Mertigny (art. Zodiaque), who apeaks of the extreme rarity of examplea of this nature.
[E. V.]
ZOE, May 2, martyr with her sons and Hesperus in Italy under Hadrian (Basil. Menol. Menol. Graec. Sirlet. : Mart. Rom.). A magnificont church was dedicated to her at Constantinople by Justinian (Procop. do Aedif. lib. 1. cap. 3).
[C. H.]
ZOELLUS (1), (7,uelug, Zoilus), May 23, martyr, conmemorated at Lystra (Syr. Mart.).
(2) May 24, martyr, commemorated with Servilius and othere in Histria (Mart. Usiard, Vet. Rom., Adon., Notker., Ron.); Zebellus (Hieron.). Ado names him Joellus.
(3) Jun. 27, martyr, commemorated at Cordova (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Notker, Wand., Rom.).
[C. H.]
ZOSIMA, July 15 , martyr with her sister Bonosa and Eutropius, commemorated at Portua Romazus (Mart. Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Notker., Rom.).
[C. H.]
ZOSIMUS (1), Jan. 4, Cilician monk, martyr with Athanasius Comentaresius (Cal. Byzant. ; Basil. Menol.); Jan. 3 (Hart. Rom.) ; Jan. 3 or 4 (Menol. Gruec. Strlet.; Boll. Acta SS. Jan, i. 128).
(2) Jan. 21, bishop of Syracuse (Cal. Byzant.; Baail. Menol.) ; Mar. 30 (Menol. Graec.; Boll. Acta SS, Mart. iii. 837).
(8) June 1, martyr, commemorated with Octavius at Antioch (Syr. Mart.); with Tecia at Antioch (Notker.; Boll. Acta SS. Jun. I. 42).
(4) June 19, of Apoilonias, martyr under Trajan (Basil. Menol.; Menol. Graec.; Mart. Rom. ; Boil. Aota SS. Jun. iii. 814).
(5) Sept. 28, martyr under Diocletian, commemorated with Alphaeus, Alexander, Mareus (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Graec.; Mart. Rom.).
(6) Dec. 14, martyr, commemorated with Drusus and Theodorus at Antioch (Mart. Usuard., Vet. Eom., Adon., Rom.).
(7) Dec. 18, martyr, commemornted with Rufus at Phillpip (Mart. Usuard., Adon, Vet. Rom., Rom.); ${ }^{\text {ac. }} 17$ (Wand.). [C. H.]

ZOTICUS (l), Feb. 10, martyr, conmemorated at Rome with Irenneus, Hyacinthus, Amantius (Mart. Bed., Usuard., Adon., Vet. Rom., Rom., Notker.).
(2) Apr. 18, 20 [Victor (6)].
(3) Aug. 21, martyr (wjr. Start.).
(4) Aug. 22, martyr, commemorated with Agathonicua (Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Gruec. Sirlet. ; Mart. Rom.).
(5) Oct. 21, martyr, commemorated with Dasius and Gaius at Nicomelia (Mart. Syr. ; Basil. Menol. ; Menol. Graec.; Mart. Rom.).
(6) Dec. 23, one of ten Cretan martyrs under Decius (Basil. Menol.).
(7) Priest, founder of an orphanage at Conatratinople in the 4th century ; commemorated on Dec. 30 (Cal. Byzant.; Daniel, Cod. Litury. iv. 278) ; Dec. 31 (Menol. Graec. ; Mart. Ron.).
[C. H.]
3asil. Menol.
A magnif-her at Con-lo Aedif. lib.
[C. H.]
j8), May 23, Syr. Mart.). orated with art. Usoard.,
..); Zebellus 8.
rated at Cor- tker, Wand.,
[C. H.]
h her sister ted at Portus , Vet. Rom., [C. H.] nonk, martyr Tal. Byzant. ; ; Jan. 3 or 4 t SS. Jan. i.

Cal. Byzant.; Gracc. ; Boll. orated with ; with Tecla 3. Jun. 1. 42). lartyr under raec.; dart. ). cletian, comnder, Marcus rt. Rom.). arated with fart. Usuard., porated with , Adon., Vet. [C. H.]
r, commemo Hyacinthus, Adon., Vet.
).
norated with Ienol. Gracc. norated with (Mart. Syr.; rt. Rom.). nartyrs under nage at Con:ommemorated 1, Cod. Litury. Mart. Rom.).
[C. H.]

[^0]:    - Machadorus is the hearitng of Acta SS; but in the lext Macedo, while Ilieron. Mart. (Which la the auth inity quoted) has Macbarlus, to Migne. Potthast ulso gives Machadorus.

[^1]:    ${ }^{4}$ Blaeothansti. He uses the word twice in the ssme chapter. Cssalan (Instit. vit. 14; Collat. II. b) and olhera (Lamprid. in Heliog.; Bede in Alartyrol. June 27; Passio S. Andr. In Surius, Nov. 3n; Jutlus Firmicus, very often. Sce Gszaens, note $d$, on Cass. Instit. u.s, and Rucca note $e$, on Sacram. Greg. Opp. Greg v. uns. and 1615) use the less cocram. Areg. Op. Greg. v. 275, ed. occurs in the less correct form owothanatus. Another in the Vaticepreface of a "Salis et Aquie Benedictio" lished by can IBs. of the Gregorian Sacramentary, pubdrive eway "omacm ung in which the water is aitured to machlnationes shen umbram, omnem satanam, et omnes slve erranilam syiritunm, imminadorum, sive bithonatum Greg. u.s. 239) "Biopucantone magicue artls" (Opp ${ }^{5}$ For this interpretation of 1. 207; Faiturve, I. 658.] Emls, A.d. 341 (F.agm. of Gen. vt. 2, see Euseb, St. Angustine (de Civ. Deti, xv. 23, Pentat. Op. p. 185), (Hom. 22 in (iea. vL. 47), etc.

[^2]:    c"Sucinos" would seem a probsbte amendment See Eligius in text above. Pirmintus joins hetbs with amber: "Karacharee "Characteras), herbas, suceino (succinos) noilte vobrs 60).
    stris sppendere" (Scarar $\}$, $*$.

[^3]:    a curious error has been here made by IIefele, who (op, cit. p. 181) has inadvertenty clied as giveo by Mar teae from a "copy of the Ambroulan Liturgy made by

[^4]:    ${ }^{4}$ Comtinbernium was a concubinsge, or permanent mar-riage-r lation, between one man and one woman, and reenguised by the law as murringe. Kiven that was forbliden to their slaves by many masters (see Plutareh. Cati Maj. e. 21); snd when not forbidilun it was comimonly tmpossible, as the nule slaves in Rome were about five times as mayy as the female slaves.

[^5]:    T The place and date of these canons is somewhat anof the two the canon given ahove is found fa only one c the only trust wurthy they are priated.
    tial are thuse of worthy coples of Thrertore's ienilennungen der Abendündischeben, in hls Lie Bussordof Hadian sind Stundischen Kirche (Haile, 1×31), and edition of the coumcils, in their learned and aceurata relating to Great Dritain and Iretand (Oxf. 1871)

[^6]:    d Dölilioger's argument to the contrars ( $\boldsymbol{H}_{2}$ pi,lytus and Callistus, c . Iti .), grounded on the fact that a simultuneous second marrlage was contrary to the law of the Roman emplre, is of tittle weight; for the contemptuous tole. rance of the Romsin magistrate would not have condeacended to interfere with a Jew's acting in accordance with his own law (Cf. Acta xvili, 15, xxy. 19): he would regarding the teimself with tgnoring the marriage, and regoraing the lisus of it as spurious in case any question bavout it arose. The second marriage woutd in his eyes bave been a contubernium such as many of his own fellowcountrymen bad entered !nto. Prowites, many jews woald iiving to converted to Christisnity who had married whilte living to the jurisdiction of the Herods, and it Is impossible to belleve that the Roman magistrates would fiave troubled themsetves with the Internal oeconouny of thetr bouscholds.

[^7]:    - The Latio translation of the passage ta as follows: "Jann veru unius quoque uxorls virum utique admiltult, monto eitra reprebenaconus, Beu Lalcus, utens matriBillorum procrestlonem," Bin. Servabltur autem per that "ut"0s" applies only to "laicus," mulnatitulug sayg otherwise the reading would be "utentes" mand " buntur" (Denkwilh digkeiten, ve. "uten).
    ${ }^{1}$ According to tis grammstical cunstruction this canon deposes from the niministry all clergy who refose co live in wedlock wilh their wives. it is generaily supposed hilite what I seems wo order., and that It hitends to prue milit whally it weuld be simith. If it were cuustrued gram. maticaliy it would be similar in its character to the tuurth lower down in the text. er down in the text.
    ${ }_{5}{ }^{5}$ The canone of a supposed councll held at Rome by Sirlctus, $4: 2.388$, the nlath of which "advises (evanuemus)

[^8]:    Preesis and Levitee not to live with thelr wives,' and with a widdow, are spurioua, the marriage of a clergyman (vili. § 105).

[^9]:    h Atbanaeus says that one shject of the nuptlal hanquet was to serve as a witpess. "ate enim nuoribus et legibus scitum est, ut in nuptifs epulum fiat, tum nt nuptfaips Deos veneremur, tum ut pro testimonfo id sit." (beipnosoph. lib. v. c. t., Op. p. 185, Lugi. 1657.) Annther way to which pubhleity was effected was the tusertion of the marriages io the Acta, which appeared daily, like modern newspapers, but there were ao puble marriage registers.

[^10]:    * Van Expen considers it doybtful ir marriages were contracted in a church, thoukh they were no diuabe were tracted in the face of the vi. 4). The face of the church (De Spons. et Aratr. ${ }_{i}^{4}$ ).
    describe a marringe - his usual exactness, makes a priest
    " A contract of eternal bond of love, Contrmed by mutual Joinder of the banda, Attented by the holy close of Hps , Strengihened by interchangement of your rings; Sealed in my function oy my testimony."
     was necessary (stricily apeaking) on contract: all that prlest was bis teatimony to the contract having of theen fully made and declared. moly made and declared.
    ID Apuletue introduces Venus denying that Payche is Cuptd's wife, on the ground that "Impares nuptiar", et lugitimae non possunt viderl." , et patre non consentiente p. Iet.)
    ghrist, ANT, -VOL. II,

[^11]:    Lent was the only forbldiden season. A supmeal canon of the eauncll of Lerida, in lie bith century, filterdteting the celebration of marriagre in Advent, in the three wrekg preciding the Feast of John the Baptist, and in the period om Suptusgesima to the octave of Easter, is apmartons.
    benedicet? benedicet? (Clem. Alex. Strom. lib. ih. c. vi., rp. p.

[^12]:    - The indunetion of the Council of flertfurd is rather a crensen than a rute ef untversal obtigationt "Ifet no whe leave hifs wife exapt, as the holy Giandel tumeties, for the cause of furnteation. Rut If anyotic has dismlssed, hin wiff imsrry nnuther, if be would be a Cliristlan, as the humbth it be (ni Clirlstianus esse recte voluerit), but iet bim so rewaln or be reconciled to hts wiff."

[^13]:    - The constraction of the passage in Tactton t+ obscure, but becomes clearer if we suppose him to be transcriblog With a change of tense the actual terms of the senatusconsultum, which in that cuse seems to have been artfully worded, so as to stretch phrases dencrlptive of the old pumshment of parricide, to be sewn up to a hide with a dog aod thrown in to the river, and of simple cructixiton. so as to oaske them include the novet aports of dressing men up as beasts, snd setting dogs at them, or setitog dogs at them as they hung on their crosses. "Pereuntlbus adienda fudibria: fersrum tergis contecti laniatu canam defecerit dies in pibus affili; aut finmmsodi, atque ubl tunica molesta, or piaguy docturni luminis urantur." The to the charge of arson, The victm's throet was not figin lest he shoutd inhsie the anoke and suffocate himself, The threat of thls penalty was afierwards used to compel a gladiator to play, the part of Mactus (Martlal, Epig. x.
    a5).

[^14]:    b the rescript is given at the ciose of the so-calient first apology of Jistin. We agrie whil Papebrinhe in IPgarding the two apologies as one, though not in the date.

[^15]:    - The words of the canon are: OU סat ev ग̂ी reagepan tom 1. p. $740, \mathrm{~J}$ haris, 1715 ).
     ทis dyias той evayyedtomoù j̀ $\mu$ ípas (Hard. Concil. tom. iii. p. 1681).

[^16]:    * That the or represputations they uppear is 1 faccrib dover tl epl:aph below. liana oll s sarco Whe caotlons as the Virkin (Mac subject of orantes p. 114 ff.) ; Grim p. 328, note F)

[^17]:    - That the oranter may be often regariled as memorial repir sputuiuns of pernous fnterred in the cennetery where tascrib ed over the proved by instancen in which a nsms is epi'aph below the figure the sade name being found in ithe liana on a sare E.g., Grata (Perret, voi, Hil. pl. 7); Ju. wise cinthins against ceganding ati). Garrucet has sonie the Virpins Macarius. regardina afl ofantes as pictures of sabject of orantes In general, see Munter note). Un the p. It fif.); Grimougrd de Saint-Iaurent (Sinnbilder, II. p. 328, note F)

[^18]:    b It is no these sacred preserved at Virgo Hodege istter, which Justhitu, as Venctians it sarved at St. cully without true that the till the final f: picture taken ualess indeed, was subbtitute of devotees. where the hol tured, wss der it was promise wrikes Gibloon at Venice as a munt bave che de Saint-Laure

[^19]:    b It is not certain whether there were one or two of theee sacred pirtures of the Virgin ascribed to St. Luke preserved at Cunatantinuple. Garrucel distingulebies the istur, Ilodegetria fron the Virgo Vicopoeia, regarding the Isturr, which he asserts was reverenced from the time of Justinian, as the natlonal pallsdium captured by the Venctians in served at St. Mark's. Ducenge ( $p$. 89) rofers to thi preculty without pretendiog to De (p. 89) refers to the diffculty without pretending to setile t . If, he snys, it is true that the ffodegetris was preserved at Conatantinople titt the final fall of the city in 1453 it in vident that the picture takea by Dandolo must have been a different one; unicess indeed, it masy be ediled, by a ploue froud a copy was aubitleuted for Was aubutituted for the originat to eatiafy the demsnda of devotes. A further uncertalinty ariare as to the place where the holy plicture, whichever it was, that was cap. tured, wse deposited. A letter of Baldwin shews that It was promised by hitm to the monks of (Iteaux. "If," writes Gibbon (ch. Ix.), "the banaer of the Virgin sbewn st Venice as a trophy and relic la genulae, the piouad doge must have cheated ibe monks of Citeaux.'. (Cf. Grimouard de Saint-Laureat, $\Delta \boldsymbol{r t}$ chrćcien, vi, 3iz.)

[^20]:    e Salatier, vol. 11. pla slvil. fig. 18. This type appears eagrsved on a seslof the priols of the convents of Mount Athos dedicated to the Virgin. It Is given by frimouard de Salnt-Laurent, art chrétien, voi. it. p. 18 from Didron

[^21]:    - A similar representation of the Virgin, In the scene of the Avecusion, vecuis in the famous ils. of she Syriac Ganpels ( $1.1 \mathrm{~b}, 5 \mathrm{st}$ ), which la one of the truantres of the Meticean Lifirary at Florence. Bhlow the aseenting flgure of our Lurd appesir the Aposites by an historie.sl error re. presented as twilvo) with the Virgin in the midst, sisnisIng witt: her husdsexteniled in the uttifud. of groyer and staration. An angel in eltbar side of bur is a.idressing the Apantles The V'igeln athl the angels are the only permus with the ninibus in this lower grump, the ap will s toing destitute of ft . (Wbartho Marrlute, Tres. timony of the Cutacombs, 1. 44; Ass manot. Riblioth. diedic. p, 1742. See woodcut, art, Axgels, 1ot. 1. p. 85.)

[^22]:    e Asommant ( Bi this Liturgy in th 8 yld the "Litur called Hermas, one

[^23]:    c Asqemant (Riht, Or iil , ant) this Jiturgy in the Vatican, at 637) mentions $s$ MS. of slod the " liturgy of Matiow the end of whleh It is called Hermas, one of the Seventy." Shepherd, who is [^24]:    This passage is not distinctly referres to the rapaSógecs, but tt is probably to be connected the rewith.

    ' Some MSs. bere read Matthew, hut this is an obvioue error, slice the mame of this latter upostle has already beeu given.

[^25]:    - Card. Beltrr mucla play to hila

[^26]:    - Card. Rellarmitne chargres this anther with giving too uch play to bis tmagsiuatluse

[^27]:    - See the curious hnsription from the theatre at Miletus, quoted by tr. Lightioot (p. 68 n .). b Relerence calay aleo be mate to Augustine (de Ilaeres. c. 59 ; vol. vill. 57 , ed, Gaume).

[^28]:    ${ }^{c}$ Cf. further 1016), "Nome leutissimo. . Chrisif et ab ce 21 , vot. vifi. 545 .
    4 It cannot be ment that the ic prayers to angel. lectio, p. 277, ed,

[^29]:    ${ }^{\text {c }}$ Cf. farther Augustine (Coll. cum Ilaximino, vol, vili 10t6), "Nomme st trinplum bilcut sancto anyselo excyl. fentissimo .... facremus, anathemarmur a verthte 21, vot. vilf. 545 . 21, vol. vili. 545.
    ${ }^{*}$ It canoot be considiered a real exception to thia state. prayers to angel Coptie Eucholigion coutahes some dirivet prayers to angels. (See Remaudut, Liturg. Orient. Cul. lectio, p. 277, ed. 1847.)

[^30]:    *The sermon o bute4t lu Is lil ; is In connexion witi Benificer is a aide tor at Oritorf, in eons This buibling of tha a tite of Sc. tio llih contury ( I'at? tion of a festival givetu in the statute

[^31]:    a The Buok of 1 slinost tu a certa whatever duolt m buok of hells. We Petrie, abl also giv 8 ribe for the prayel of thurow: " Rug") Patred, ut quicunqu minerlt Columbue evangelium per al nustri." Below is "Ora pro me, fruter gospets are contalued

[^32]:    a The Book of Durrow, or Gisppls of St. Culumber aluust to a cortainty uriten hy the of St. Columba, is whatever duabt may b. felt us to che exuct dath thad, burk of Kells. Wenswod, weres the exuct date of the Petrie, and aso gives from hin the urom the late Dr. a ribe for the prayers of tho rom the usual rergae-t of the of Duirow: " Ruger beatitulinem, al the und of the Buok larici, ut quleungue bunc mandi Columbue serintoris, quit tragu tenuerit, meevangelium fer scriptorig, qui hoc acripal ipsemt nostri." Below is written, spatínm, gratia Ibomini "Ora prome, frater mi: Iominns tecum olt." gospels are contalued to the MS.

[^33]:    - Photograjhs of the entre pages contatning theop mintatures have been puitistied by the Palavographtcal Suctety.

[^34]:    - This alone would disprove an carlier conficture of Mabillon, that "misssm revocarg" nueana to cutw brite of this (in note to fortumatu, No. IX.), When he offired thought that the phrase was "ita Germani. c. Bo) he The suggestion is reprioted by "pecidlar to Foriunatas." though withdrawil by Mabillon In Lit. Gall, b7omment, [^35]:    - On the conversion of the Burgandlans see Soncrateg, E. II. vil, 30 ; Ozanam. Civitization ches les France, p. 5 t. For the labrure of Severimua in Bavaria and Austria, see Tuta S. Scverini, Acta SN. Bolland. Jan, 8.

[^36]:    c "Ile natione Anglorum, qui ir Hibernia diatios exulaverat pro Caristo, eratque et doctlosimus in Scripturis ei Chronicon Hyense, Reeves, Adamnan, p. 383.)
    E Se the account of him in the Vita s, v, 11). in Pertz. Mon. Germ. II. 405, 4e6. Wialiudgeri, c. 1-4, assissed by Wolfram, bistop te6. Wenalbrord was also rammi, Acta SS, Bened, saec, tat. 1, 342.) (Vita S. Walf.

[^37]:    Wh nue parage ( It wontid sapm at first, but It seenss to ns that

[^38]:    - In one pagage (Exod. xaxtr. ft wrould smm at first might that 28 [xxxvi. 3 b , LXX])

[^39]:    ${ }^{1} \Delta t$ is donbtless to be read as Marriott euggesis.

[^40]:    ${ }^{m}$ A possibly eariler Inatance is referred to by Marriott (p. 24t), from a coin of Sergius III. (ob, A,b, 91t), whera the mitra fa sald first to sppeur as replucing an older papai head-dress, the Camelaucium. Thts, however, must perhapes not be pressed in the absence of couffrma. tory evilience.
    ${ }^{n}$ See for an example probably of thla type, Mserfoth, plate xilv. (and cf. p. 220), fgured from a MS. of the tth century. Thla fa the earleat example of the kind known to Marriott, except perhaps one in the Benedictional of St. Etheiwald, a MS. of the 10 th century. Here, however, the figure wears a kind of gold circlet, which may fullcate roysi rank and not be an eccleslastical head dress in the atrict sense at all.

[^41]:    - Balsamon, ette prusidency of Cyril thls need not be tak and Symeon of 'Th the Roman mitre to otantine to pope Sil

[^42]:    - Baisamon, clted by Goar (l.e.), derlves this from the prouldency of Cyril at the cuuncil of Ephesus. However, thls need not be taken very serlously. The same writer, sod Symeon of Thessaloolca absurdy refer the origin of the Ruman mitre to a privilege epeclaily granted by Con. otantine to pope Silveater.

[^43]:    "The emperor's attenti of an educational reform fetters to himself from de Stud. Afumast de Stud. Afonast. 1. c. 8).

[^44]:    ${ }^{0}$ The emperar'y attention was nwakened to the need of an edicational reformation by some badty written leters to himself from certalu monastertes (Mabitt. de Stud. Mcnast. t. c. 9 ).

[^45]:    - Some very carious pa nse of the plckle atlowed to th the bread or vegetablen. ita zast hut recominends its aness of bread or vegetable aurear (c. furear (c. 25).
    CHRIST. ANT.-VOL

[^46]:    Some very carious particalara are glven as to tbe ose of the plckie altowed ta some convents to as to the zest to the bread or to the bread or vegetables. Shat recominendentitug tives not forbid a mpan of bread or vegetablee as to deaten with so large flavoar (c.25).
    OHRIST. ANT. - VOL $\mathrm{IH}_{\text {. }}$

[^47]:    dGibbon（Rom．Emp．ed．Sm（th，vol．11．pp．354，355） thlaks that there ls reason to helleve，or at leost to sus． pect，that ahe escaped the blind and susplelous cruetty of her husband，and apparently prinefpolly on a statement tn an oiation pronomend during the aucceeding reign （Honod．in Comstantin．jun．c．4，ad calcem Nutrop．ed． Havercamp）．But the Abbe Cavedubl asserts（Incerche Crit．etc．p．4，note）that the supposed Honodia ou the death of Cunstantine Juntor has been proved by Wesseting Whare been written on the death of Theodoris Palueolo－ Ous，about the middle of the fiftecnth century（Anonymi Orat．Fun．ed．Frotseliero），whilat Mataso（Leben Con－ lantins，p．＇65）treats the suggestion with contempt． there is，however，a great want of positive proof on this puasiun．

[^48]:    - Abont the year $23, sfter the defeat of Licinlus I. there was tssued at the mints of Lyons, Loudon sid Treves, a serles of cotna of Constanilne I., Crispus, Idcinfus II. and Constantine II. C'aesares whth the tegend agata thanqvillitas and the typa a glube on an star on whleh voris $x x$, snd ebove the gtobe three sturs.

[^49]:    This remark must not for the sons of Constantin givina him the epithet of 1 This attribation is ob (Early Christian Numis would wish to assign these Julian, and those of Fausta been the wife of one of the ister $(P)$ of Gallus and $\sqrt{ }$ u the latter in his eptotles $t$ bowever, prspared to scee Se my paper in the Num p.287.

[^50]:    This remark inust not however be taken as aboolute， for the sons of Constantine struck oofing after his death glivig him the epithet of Dieus（ $$$ xifi．）．
    ${ }^{8}$ Thly atributton is objectect to by Mr．C．W．King （Eariy Christian Numismatics，pp．36－39，304），who wonid wish to assign these colns of Helema to the trife of Julian，end those of Fausta to some lude Who might have ban the vife of one of the cousins of Jutian，or to the rister（ $)$ ）of Gallus and Julian，eald to be mentioped by he later in his epteties to the Athenians．I am not， bowever，prapared to sccept Mr．King＇s condations， See my paper in the Num．Chrom．N．S．187\％，vol，zvil． م． $29 \%$ ．

[^51]:    h. On certatn conas of Constantine I. blruck at Constantinople, his hesd bears the nimbus (nee $$$ xvil.), whilst oft the magnitie ont geld medaltion of Cimstantitus I1. Caesar, also struck at Cinstantnopte (Culien. Néd. Imp. No. 21, from Nusée de Vienne) weighlng 3920 gratas or 56 solidi, Cunstantine 1 . ts represented standhig hetwern hits two sons Constautine II. and Constanz, whilst a hand from heaven crowns him with a wreath ($ xill.). This pliece must have been Issued between 323 and 337, as Constantias II. is cacsar, arid perbaps in 33 on occation of bis marrlage. There is also the gold medatition of Cumatuntine 11. with epear-head ending in a cross and exergual leters cone. (see & vi.).

[^52]:    - Gibbon huwever ofen speaks of cotris as medale: alvo the French wrilurs in penks of cotns as medalk; so Engllsh and French writ peneral style them medaillea, Eaglish and French writers allike use medallion for elther a cota or medal of large slize.

[^53]:    －P iy the nameral for

[^54]:    - Ple the nomeral for 100; and the letters which make up Aontia, takea as numersis, also amount to ico. [C.]

[^55]:    - Assemant, tudeed (Bibl. Orient. 1t. 488), describing a Syriac MB. of "a Gospel" prescrved in the Vaticin, gives from tos epigraph (Syriac) the following s'sitling dite - whifh, however, he rectves unģustioned-" Abrolutua est iste libur ferla quinta die is Canun prioris anno Graccorum 389 "- whed yeur (Acra S leue.) began in the autamn of a.p. 77. Of courae there fo some error here. At any time to whith the epigraph can br referred the Syrtan montio were identical with the Jnlian: the "former Canon" was Syru-Macedonian Apellaens, idntirai with liccember. Now as in A.d. 77, Sunday letter E, the 1 thth December did fall on a Thoralay, the simplest explanation is to ssy that there is an error in the centaria; for 389 read 1089 ; of A.D. 777 the Sunday fetter to of course E, as of A.D. 77, snd 18 llec . Thundsy.

[^56]:    "The tirrerk word f towales are furnued wro pubble. In the Acts datraction of the moss thus descrillod: ôga $\mu$ (Lible, Concil, vil. vif. w set op sucred pletures tixuras tas iк хрондitw irimbeiws provas (Ibi pleture of Thentaric in $t$ distitateration of which sga, us des. rilud by $P_{7}$ gxedov 7 a anagats (l)e $R$ be hanliy prwsible to de accurate language. Tlae togethes with the art and Byantium. The Arabic "is frefolis or frefysa. of the seh ceutury peace tum sud the caliph Wat leted for a certato quamiti of the new moeque at t Iuth century also Romato theman ifl. the materials the moseque st Cordova, ' (

[^57]:    D Pruitnus' description is given in articie Dorza, vol. 1. p. 6 \%

[^58]:    d In describing tha Ravenna mosalcs I have drawn larguly from the admilrable articles which appeared to the Thes new ppaper diting the yoar $18760^{\circ}$, especialty thinse whll-hand September 25 and llecember 30 .

[^59]:    e The scmewhat exabgerateci fautation given to tets mosaic by vor Qusat and others may be estimated by an inanection of the accurate reprodaction of tha original sian by Salviatt and Roolo, tu the gallery of the eouthcast court at the Strath Kensington 3theoms.

[^60]:    - This diversity contint

[^61]:    -This diresaity continuet down to 1749 .

[^62]:    "The "curlales," or "cariat Whys be compared to our afdes lifers summuned to the office, It they endaravoored to evade it tum. They wers responsibl toe Impust dus from their 100 bunfensoms was liveated with Finthon, but cane notwithata tind of pervitude. (Sce Oriol Lew, tranalatel by Rjchard s particularly Instinisat Coliex, zuxix. 5.$)$

[^63]:    "The "ciriales," or "ourlae subjecti," may in some Ways be compared to our aldermed or cown-counclimen. then summoned to the office, they could net refises, and Ithes end davoured to evade it, they were compelliti to mura, They were respoustb- for the fill paymertit of Le limpast duxe from their locillty. The oftice beling menheme was inyested with wome dignty ye $a$ ams
     Luv, trangl, tet by Rychamp and Nistory of common

[^64]:    - The words iv $\tau \underset{\text { ü }}{ } \boldsymbol{\sigma} \tau \delta \mu a \tau t$ aùroû in Pseudo-Amphilochlus ( Iita S. Bas.) are an Interpolation. See Amphil. Opera, p. 224 ; Par. 1614.

[^65]:    b Isidure of Sevilie, de Situ Corporum SS, Petri ak Pauli, has been cited to shew that Christigos buried to thic east in the fist century. There is no work of Isidure's under that titte, and the reference can unly beto the tract once uscribed to him, D: Ortu et Ubitu Patrum (App. 20; $\backslash 1 i .388, \mathrm{k} u \mathrm{~m}, 1802$ ), where wo read in the account of Sc. Peter: "Sepultus in Viticano ab urbe Hema ad orientem (forte, eccidentem) tertio milliario" (\$ 38). One Ms. (Isidoriana, ibid. c. 107) says of St. Peter, "Ad Ausiralem phagum est 'epultar," sind of St Paul, "conira Orientalen plagam."

[^66]:    It will the remembered that palns appolated for the nocturna a the Gregorlan anil Benedictine [^67]:    It will be remembered that twelve is the number 0 pasime appointel for the nocturnsl of ordinary days buth in the Gregortan and Benedictine psaiters.

[^68]:    The reformed Chureh of Eingland also respects thld order in its Sundey lessons, which begin in Advent with Isaish, at Septurgesims with Genesis, sind which during the summer and autumn are taken from the histurical and prophetical books.
    d Thef formula is known in the booke as de eunormods ; snd the priest is suld noceiv eùdoynróv.

[^69]:    1 Thie hour is ould con beging at unce with the in $"$ wuthd be prefoeed by the mefore Faster, i, ie, the Westi - By mbia le meant the " Ulitrgy as difisinguinthed fron

[^70]:    Thite hear is sath contimousty with lauds, and so beghs at ence with the inviatory. If salit separatily, theuvid be prefaced by the numal lintrodectlon.

    Uilutgy, es distlanilshied

[^71]:    - This hyma is weil known in to Engish tranvalaten. It is callet in the Girevk $\dot{\eta}$ iminuxplay eixapioria, or iunos rpabiacós. It is actrlluteml by St. Baxll (de Spir. Nanct. c. 29] to, Atwrnogenes the Martyr, circ A.D. 1 ifs. it upmars to have brear redued to its presentit Aoria by Sophruilus, l'autisich of Jerusalem, Urc. A.D, ©29.

[^72]:    p It fa impossible withlir reasonabie limits to give more than the skeletur: of this tong snd inuricato office, even could inure be attempted without sacritice of elcardess. The treparia, de., are ati of the ordinary form.

[^73]:    s Se Parayody fur detaila.
    ${ }^{2}$ Thut forordinary Suadaya ia kc. That for ordinary week da night is far spent," &c.

    - L.e. when a donble feast, wh as ordinary Sunday, dops not fsll - The original of our third Col [^74]:    - Se lealymody for details.

    "That farorthary Sublays is Rev. vil. 12. "Blesslag," de. That for ordinary week days, Rom. xili. 12, "The night is fir epent," &c.
    - Ie. when a doubls feast, which takes precedence of an ordinary Sunday, doess net thell on the das:
    I The origlual of our third Cullect at Morning Prayer.

[^75]:    - When Cardtnal Gaisruch in the present century sttempted to impuse the Ambrosisa Liturgy on this portion of the diocese, the publio votee answered, " Lither Romans or Lutherans."
    w Archblshop of Milan, atre, A.n. 480. He wrote a enmmentary on the noelirnal and matutinal office of the Mitanese church. See preface to the A mbrostan Breviary as cdited by Cursinal Gaisruch, a,n, 1541.

[^76]:    - Our third collect at Eventr In the Sarum and othar Eng collect at compiine is "Visitan
    - Vide Prelace to Mozarsbic

[^77]:    - Our third collect at Eventng Prayer, sald at comp'fue In the Sarum sod other English uffices. The Roman coliect at compllne is "Visita quaesumus Donine."
    - Fide Prelace to Mozarsbic Brevinry by Loremzana.

[^78]:    d The legend la familiar how the two books, the Roman and Mozarabic, contended by the ordeal of hattle, a Frenchman belog champion for the Roman Book (he Roman office flud at that time been eatablished In France), a nalve of Toledo for the Mozarabic. The Frenchman la suld to have conquered. The result however wats not taken as cooclusive, and he books were submitted to the firther ordeul of fire; whrreapon ine Ruman leaped out of the tire, while the Mozarabic remalued aninjored by the flames: "Rumanue ex lgoe procedit; Gothleus sub flammis Illaesus." The interence drawn was that the koman bork should be generally used ihroughont the kingdom, while the Mozarabic should be continued to use at fead-quarn rat ie. In 'rub do.

    - The Muzarabic hours are said to have been originally twelve In number, the fur rejected oncs belng at the beginning of night, "in princlplo n ctls;" bufore bet beginning of niyht, "in primelplo n ctls; brfore bedtime, "ante J"ctum;" at midnight, "medla noctis;" and on rising from bed, "In eurrectone lecti."
    'The office for the day beginc, as in other rttes, with vespers of the precedlag evening; but in a short conspectus, such as alune is possible, it seeas more cunveoient to begln with matins.
    E The Muzirablo antiphons are broken Into verse sid response, after the manaer of a Roman raponsory.
    [See art, ANTIPHON.] side art. ANTIPHON.]

[^79]:    - Ducange (6. v.) states that Germanus distinguishes betwech the omuphorion worn by a patriarch or metropolitan sod that worn by an ordinary brbop. Tas Greek of the passage is certaluly sonacwhat peculiar, and may perhap 4 be corrupt, but it seema hartly possilite dextepeús merely mpans a jreiate (of whatever kind), as opposed to the prist (iepeis), whuse spectai restoninta -sifeharion, peritrachetion, girdie, and phenollonGermanus hat just mentioned; and then adde to these an ornament $b$ longing to the higher rank ot the minastry, With which be connects a doubte symbelism.

[^80]:    * Le, an math to which moleminty was buipurted I Was udulalatered tonching a valut or a cruas (in) tatar the Gospete.

[^81]:    - I.e, an oath to which it wus suppused additional velemity waw buparted by the persou to whom the cuath was udininistired toneling at the same thine the rellies of the doupels.

[^82]:    - The differ-nt forms of ordea? referred to in connexiun with the nulracers of st. Alban in the 3 rd century, e.g. or iteal by loo water, the trial of relles by fire, bibibomancy, se., probably point to the essentially nuhtiatorio char ieter of the whole tradition (see Hardy, Intiod to עescript. Cataloyue, 1. fi. p. xsx(v).

[^83]:    dam potituus orgestrar in quo alterium perperam fecerit debiturem," whero Cuarlas, ad bo. Coci. Justh, explialins He worta In lalles, "In eodem thl. puta la auro vel in Hgeatbe et in exdem modo id est eadem quantiltate ": Cod.

     exrgesint ad necessitates allas trunsferre licere"; cind.

     Inio which R. me was divliced for ecrelestaxtical purpones, and each of milch Lad is pruper revenues; s.g. stit. s. $s$.
     dioerses propper baptisnium et poenitentiana multurum qal canvertebatur ex paganls et propter seputuruas
     p. 28. Hence the medisevsI meaning of eecetestisatical Hame e.g. S Conc. Lateran. A.D. 1179, c. b , "Enisecepus Fitiquem sine certit tithol de quo necessartia vitiae pertipat ia dacoonum vel preshbyterum urdinaverit"; synod.
     Vead ut thtuium hbbeant sufficlentom ": Sarun. Pontififcal

[^84]:    - The prineiple which this invoives was known to the difl law, which may possibiy have burrowed it from the Christian pracitee: Juitan enacted that no one shoruld become a public teacher or a physician withon* a "deGretam curialium, optimarum conspirante consilio." Cod. Theodos. 13. 3. $5=$ Cod. Justin. 10. 52. 7.
    - For an account of the ordinals and other authorities Which are thus destgnated bere and thronginont the prowent article, see Oudinal.

[^85]:     wrong whit this texl，bu Bee rearling to conclude th Bee Alberti＇s note，in loc．

[^86]:    Kipires deedúpmp déyovoc. There is perhaps sumetiong Wrong wilh the texi, but it seems hsrilly sale witi Se Alberui's notu, in loc, and Sutcers is a Crectan word.

[^87]:    Seners (Nut. Quarest. iv. 6) neems to distinguish the paenula trum the scortea, but this probably ouly impliea it woot was the orilinary materiul.
    I 1 seems desirable to suhstitute senatores for speo tatures, the reading of the MSS.

[^88]:    Another very tmportant version, the Memphitte, is practically of no avatl to us here, tnasmuch as it merely reproduces the Greek word, and there ts no Independent evidence as to the aense in which it uses it.

[^89]:    ${ }^{1}$ Neale (Eastern Church mply ibst Iraac censores clasignd the shape of the ruc we should cail a chasible ope. Any ont who witt to nee that he finds fanitt with thatic vestment at atl.
    Cchu Sanctorum, Jan., Y

[^90]:    ${ }^{1}$ Neale (Eastern Church, Introd. p. 309 n.) seems to chpy that Iraac censures the Armenians for having clunget the shape of the ruchariatic veatment from what ape. Any one a chasuble lato what we abuuld cail a mee that he finds fanit with the at the passage itself will mee inst he finds fanit with them for not uatug a tucbs-riote vestnient at ait.
    delu Sanctorum, Jan., vol. I. p. 612.

[^91]:    - TMis edict bas not dee meat; but the copy sent by reffet of Blthynia has b

[^92]:    a This edict has not descended to as as a atate docu-直ent; but the copy sent hy the emperor Llofntoa to the prefict of Bithynia has beed preserved hy Lactanitua

[^93]:    - An inseription at Ter Diccletian, quated by Maer on the authority of Velas speaks of haring both seen purprting to record the irperiai authority, to cetel Christian falih, is given by p. $26^{\circ}$ ), but rejected by him [^94]:    ${ }^{1}$ An Inscrintion at Tera, in Castilie, of the time of Diclitian, queted by Hamitu (IFist. de Espuña, v, 372) oa the authority of Velasco Perea de la Torre (who ppeakn of huring both seen and carefully examineal (t), plippriting to record the sacritice of a white cow by Christian fulth, is siven by Hubner (inppression of the $\mathrm{p} .26^{*}$ ), but rejected by bim as epurious.

[^95]:    ${ }^{4}$ The day of the martyl osilas birth to tumortult

[^96]:    The day of the msrtyr's death being regarded as that inis birth to immortality.

[^97]:    ${ }^{4}$ Lestines or Liftinae was the disuriet now represented In Bylyhum. It wurld appen abve epactments had refer Boailace's labours were chlit

[^98]:    ${ }^{4}$ Lestines or Liftlnae was the site of a royal vilis in the disirict now represented by the province of Fiendegau in Beighom. It wuuld appenr, however, that most of the Bove enactments had reference to Thuringia, in whieh Boilace's tabours were chitfly carried un.

[^99]:    - It alhoult be remembered that io contra tstinction ${ }^{*}$ the paltium, the togu was in some sense ruaud, petcupa making a stgment of a circle.

[^100]:    fine", "tase canons bave sometimes another reading, "In fine," ta place of "ree fin fine," and also in c. 63 of " vix in fine;" but the haraher reading to the more generaily received one. Chtefly on accouat of the simplarity of endeavaurits 20 the Novatian heresy, Morinus (1x. 19) held priur to the prove that the council must have been held prior to the cuademnation of Novatus, in fact before the afe of Cyprian.

[^101]:     Lausiaca, c. 83 (Patrot. Gr. x $\times \times 1 \mathrm{~F} .1185$ ), bot here there is more chance of the word betng used in the ordinary meaning.

[^102]:    - Since the consulship of Toscos and Bassus fell tn 4.D. 258 (Clinton, Fasti Romani, in toc.), the assigned or is to either altogether erroneons, as Barontus thinks, or is to he referred to some othrr event than the martyrdom. Peareon (Annal, Cypr. In ann. 25k) saggeste that malns in the date of the translation of the apostiea' remains in the time of the Valirion persecution; and it bas even been anggented that the tranalation fell on the conjecture.

[^103]:    - It may be noted thas thle arrangement is not quite ontversal, for some forms of the Gregorian sacramentary have in Roma added to the heading of Feb. 22 .

[^104]:    - Of a yet earifer Instito for the maintenance of th there is, as Professor Stubbe the metement occurs in Lay

[^105]:    Of a yet earlter tnetitation of the tax by king Ine, for the malotenance of the Eoglish school st Rome, there ta, as Professor Stubbs says, "a want of evidiance;"

[^106]:    *We may note that in the Aagto-Saxon Ginasary of Aelfric, planeta is deflined by caeppe; thuyku conversely may lndtotined pallium, vestis sacerdotalis. Thit may indicate a certain lutitude in the use of the word

[^107]:    - These pneumsta or passages were st a iater prod estlet "divislons;" thos Shakspere "Some say the with makes sweet division " (Romeo and Juliet, ili. 5).

[^108]:    - Zaccaria (Biblioth. Rit orum Pontificalia celebrtore I can obtala no Information din; and suapeot that the

[^109]:    - Znccaria (Bibliotk. Rit. 1. vi, 2) says: "Inter Lattn0ram Pentificalta celebriora aunt S. Protadit, II. 628," &c I can obtaia no informarton about the Ponifical of Protadios, and suspeet that the statement is a mlatake artsing [^110]:    For a futl sccount of this literature the reader may refer to the artictes Acts of the Aphetles (ApociyBlog.

[^111]:    'The duratlon of Plus's temure of oflice is given In tire text of the cilt. Kib. as any, xx. m. lill. d, xxl.; this howyears of bls nowergsion thed detes theregiven of the consular with $I I$, III., and IV. On these prounds also at variunce Hanself justlifed to altering the preriod to sixteen gears.

[^112]:    ${ }^{\text {B }}$ Rutnart, who ta followed by Migne (ixxi. 168), reada Romanam" for "Turontcam," bat see dote to Hefele Concitiengesch. 1il. 20.

[^113]:    - According to Miman (Laf. CAristionity, bk. f. c. 1), the bishope of the adjucent towna, Ostis, Tibur, Portus, tre., wers "the inifiatory college of cardinals"; but thto tarm, when to firat comes under nur notice, geeme to have inctuded only the prosbyters and deacuns of the Roman Church (eee Cardikal, 292).

[^114]:    p The letter te conisined both in the collection of Dionysius Exiguan and in the Collectio Hisponas ace Masssen, Geschichte der Quellen des canonischen Kechts, t. 246, $\mathrm{n}, 17$.

[^115]:    - Ealogla, a word Encharist, theu for falthful, is also exten blessligg' (De Rosu letlia chrismaria, b arved in Moaza Cath KYPIOY T $\Omega$ NA Kirchoif observes (ln nered ofl ls so calle oblatum.' and refers Do Rossh, Bull. 1869 coone.

[^116]:    - Enlogla, a word used nrimarily for the bread in the Encharist, theu for loavee distrlbuted after it to the fuchfal, is also extended to 'other pledges of heavenly bleasings' (De Rossal), and occurs not onty on these fictite chrismaria, but on one of those metal ones precyrved in Monzs Cathedral, where we have EY^O「IA KYPIOYTתNATION (sic)TOMWN, on which Kirchote observes (In Bückh. C. I. G. n. su7t) that the mocred oll ls so called 'nt pote Domino pro sacrificlo oblatum.' and refers to Du Cange, Gloss. t. p. $44 i$; see coolus. Bull. 1869, p. 31, and 1872, p. 7: also Ev-

[^117]:    - Stnce most of the sbove was in type, Mr. Franks bas kind's catled the writer's attentlon to a paper In the Archaeologia, vol. xllv. by Mr. A. Nesbltt "On a Box of Carved Ivory of the Sixth Century," representing the Acts of St. Menas ; at the concluslon (pp. 329, 330) la a in the Brittah the faske of the same salot, which were in the Britith Museum in 1876. They are nineteen in number, and except one, which was found in Calymnos, were alf found In Efypt ; eteven ar inseilbed, elght are not so. They more or tess resemble those which bave been mentioned above; some, Indeet, sre exactly tike no. 3 (above). Two of thrm have profle beads of 8 .

[^118]:    - A brick fenod at (Hertched) reads: "Caxil. (Habber, u. s. n. 194).

[^119]:    - A brick fonnd at Adaman in Bpatn (probably

[^120]:    'The authorship of this to Sh Ambrose, but thits ts

[^121]:    - The anthorshtp of this isw is frequentiy attribnted to St Ambrose, but thla is disproved by Gothofredus Comment, in tit. to, tib. Itt. Cod.

[^122]:    r Under the shodow of the syetem of dispensationa the practice of marriage with nieces sud sisters-intlaw has beome once more not unfrequent. Cardinsi Guibert, archbishop of Paris, in an addrese to his dlocese made st the beginning of Lent, 1877, which is devoted to the question of marrisge, complaitued that ia Paris the infractions of the rules as to intermarrying within the probibited degrees had become alarming in their number. "Mar. riages between unelus and nleces, and between brothers-in-law and sisters-in-iaw, which used to be unknown, or almost unknown, have multiplied in these latter timen to a degree which saddens us, Inasmuch as it is a grlevous weakenlag of the priaciples of the Christian faith." The arebbiahop cas complain of the evil, but he cannot forbld it, and he acknowiedges that the atate of things is worse al the rest of France tlaan in Paris. (Sfandement de S. Eic. le Cardinal-Archevêque de Puris pour le Carême cee 187\%.)

[^123]:    PROTOPAPAS

[^124]:    ${ }^{4}$ These have been mentloned in the article, Taz Divisk Oprice, but for completeness they are here

[^125]:    - Charlemagne's Psalter

[^126]:    - Charlemagne's Psalter does not contaín thie,

[^127]:    - In the Dactytiotheca of Gorlasn, may be seen figure of upwards of 2011 rlngs, one or two of which ( 144,211 ) are certaioly, and a few others (210, 205-2v9 from the catacombs) probabty Chrisitian.

[^128]:    - Bezel is used here aod in the following pages as eynonymous with chaton, so as to Juclude the whole ornamental surrounding, tf any, together with the metal face or table. If the lstter word wire kept for the metailic face ouly. aud bezel for its aurround lngs, it wonld be a gaid. Scudo (Lat. scutum) is quamblguous.

[^129]:    ${ }^{-}$Thore only sre here given whtch bear some probable metrund elgn of their Chriattiality. Thus the rlyg found a Corstilen whose name bown to be a Chriatian famsty name there, thota belrig touthing Christlan aboumt tha ring itself, it is omitted

    Thense in the Briflish Museum, in the Waterton colPromm's collection, have been in most com, and in Mr. ty the writer, and he hus occastonally mont cased remarsm upen Wt. Ahe dexires to expreess hin thanke to Mr. Frunk Ny: A. Soden Smith, and to Mr. Fortoum for facllites tody given to inspect them cirirgr, ANT. - vol

[^130]:    coranstioes not appear that kinge recetved rings at thelp

[^131]:    "See lloberisun, $I$ Ane), and Investitea alence of the Carolín "teems conelusive" a of Alcuin, Amadarits, similerly arged, necos doubt on the existence century, which has bee ase for some tine ear dneeau (piscopal.)

[^132]:
     dience of the Caroiline Cayituluaries, it has bhen enleged of Aeems conclusive" " nguinst ti. Tho silence, however, erlury, whtcb has been elear eniscopal ring to the 9 th ape for sone thino eariller. (Searty shew ot to hive been in [^133]:    This is the earllest passage quoted by mabilion fo Mr . Waterton and from him it tis doubtlens derived by [^134]:    * But Mr. Forinn thast the figures ha actors in a play.

[^135]:    - But Mr. Fortnam, 'who has a photograph, thiaks that the figurea have masks, and that they repreaent actore in a play.

[^136]:    Apparently given in Mr. Parker'a Pbotograph No. 1801, and if e0, very dublous as to meauling.

[^137]:    b It is impertant to remember that throughout our petiod the term "granimaticus " denoted gomenthing much more than A teasher of grammar in the molern much more than 4 teancher of gramipur in the molern ceose, beigg really equivalent koses being really equivalent to a tencher of bellisketra
    See ketree See Gräfenban, ciesch. d. classischen Philologie Ae , ,reat, p. iz. 52,65 ; Mullinger, Schoola of Charleas streat, p. iz.

[^138]:    'The incongruity of St. Busil, adhlresse community, nay per reight in connexfon antiquity of these wr numos.]

[^139]:    ${ }^{\text {r }}$ The incongruity between these precepts and thoss of St. Busti, odiressed to the same class in the Christian communily, may perhaps afford an srgument of roms weight in comnexion with the glieged but dspated antiquity of these writings. [See Aroatolical Conert turiong.] these writings. [See Aioatolical Cunbti-

[^140]:    s A precisely similar experience is recorded of Capsarius result (Migne, Patr. Ixvil. 1004).

[^141]:    1 Compare with these pabages Canalourna, de Inst Div, Litt. c. 28 (Migne, I'atr. Ixx. 651), aml Rahanus Maurua, de Institutione (lericorum (opera, et. Colvener, vi. 41): the latter qnoting Augastine wil hoat any acknowledgment, -a frequeot practice in the middie ages.

[^142]:    * Perhaps one of the passages that may be accepted as gepuine in this largely interpolated production.

[^143]:    - There is ground for dot monds interpretes and inter denote onity translators fr whether be inctuded also recision of exlsting verston CHRIST. ANT. - VOL

[^144]:    - There is ground for doubt whether by the nse of the Tonts interypretes and interpretari, Angustine meant to dencte oaly translators from the urigtual tongues, or whetber he tncluded also those who rodertook the retition of existing verstons.
    CHRIST, $\triangle$ NT, -VOL. II.

[^145]:    Quoted by Bingha

[^146]:    ${ }^{4}$ Quoted by Bingham, Antiquities, book xiv. 0, iv. § 7.

[^147]:    - "In Earope, as tar as "wax has been every wher carlest ages." (Beckmair A. 40 , transl, by Johnston, [^148]:    " "In Enrope, as far as I know," says Beckmann, "Fax bas been everywhere used for sesling since the a ito, transi, by Johnston, In Bist. of Inventions, vol, i. A 140 , transi, by Johniston, in Bohn's Stand. Libr.)

[^149]:    ${ }^{6}$ The earliest example in the Britioh Moseum ts of Eudes in the 9th century, just too late for this work.

[^150]:    ${ }^{\text {K }}$ D'Arcq (u. s. vel. 1. p. 269) ascribes this bull to Charies

[^151]:    I The ame formula occura aleo, though rarely, on rings. Prof. Salinas describee and figures a gold ring, preserved at Dalermo in the museam of the Irince of Trabla, which reads in four tinee $K \in B O H$ il oträapiq. He consdera that be to probahly the Ntcetas mentioned by throntue undicr the sear tot as prefect of siclly. (Tra anelli regnator. . . . incenuti in sicilia, pp. 4, 8, Firemze, 1s71.) We have also a ring of uncertain age, preserved at Ayracuse: K[vриe] $\beta$ [огi日et] rïs фор[ovons] (15"ckh, n, 9067). These should have been given in fuxea, under Cruas.

[^152]:

[^153]:    －Aa elegant epigram Neale（ $p$ ，219）from Alls
    ${ }^{6}$ The vignette on the of the Levant represents tiee outer court of a mon

[^154]:    - An elegant epigram on a semantron is extracted by Seale (p. 219) from Allatius and Englished by himself. - The vignette on the titie-page of Curzon's Monasteries of the levant represents tho beating of the Simandro in the outer court of a monastery.

[^155]:    $\cos$ and " datatemper'

[^156]:    - The Kavavirns of some authoritins is a mivtless a chaoge of spelling due to the belief that the tord was derived from Canaan or Cana.

[^157]:    bo in the Aportolio Constitutions, Iv. 12 (Cotelering

[^158]:    - The sanction extended by Csilistus to marriages solemaised in his duccse between free Cbrisilisn women and Chriatian s'aves, is noted by Overbeck (Stu/lien, &c. p. 190), As one of the very rare instances list present themseives before the ilme of Constantioe of any attempl on the part of the church to determine quextions that came withtn the provisions of state legisiation (see IIippolyti Refut. ix, 12).

[^159]:    ${ }^{4}$ This passage appears of bishop fiorsley (Babing cc. p. 16), that St. Paul (ivopaarookcтai) Intends blisery as an institution theo who gatried a liveith tncluding free men and c selligg them into captivet of the charch, throughoul ; to redeeming these yofor Epitt. 60 (MIgne, iv. 98); Ambrose, Ciff. Lib. II. 2 Viluable as evidence of C be reganded as proof of a hame, of the, the law o ith century, gives decistw own countryman, bond or the sea, lel him pay for (Stubbs, Documents, p. 61).

[^160]:    This passage apprars conclusive against the argument of blshop Horsley (Babington, Influence of Christianity, (iviparasi (avisparodiotai) Intends to convey a condemostion of slavery as an institution thavery as an institution. His reference is plainty to Inciuding free men and hood by kilnapping-a practice selling them into captivity indren, as well as alaves, and of the church, throuphity in other lands. The chsrity to redeeming these unfortupste vicitime isgely devoted Epist, 60 (Migne, Iv. 99); Lactantius, Dios (see Cyprian, Ambrise, Uff. Libb. it. 28), bat such if. Inst. vi. 12 ; valuabis as evidence of Chiristian philanthropy, cannot be regsinded as proof of a desirs to sbollsh slavery at th century, the the law of king Ine of Wessex, in the Own countryman gives decisive proof. "if anyone sell hls the sea, let him pay for blim according to bist "over (Slabbs, Documente, p. 61).

[^161]:    'For the main facts desceat of the "colonus" Biot, de l'Abolition de l'Es CHRIST. ANT, -VOL.

[^162]:    'For the mala facte which illinstrate this gradual dstent of the "colonus" from his ancitent treedom, see [^163]:    *The "coloni" by degcent, as distinguished from those influenere such by agreement, the "ascriptitul." The land is to the question of labour in connexlou with the decree of the recogulsed in many directlona: thus a enfruchisement unjust "ut monachis quatidisnum rurasterices, holding it servl eorum libertatis otio vili. 334).

    As the com
    that wbich considerent to this sentiment we may note war Jublifuble (seed Bine enstaving of pagain captives in p. 233).

[^164]:    ${ }^{1}$ Vtnedey (J.) Romert) matenthum; c. viil. "D nuch den Sturze Roms."

[^165]:    ${ }^{1}$ Venedey (J.) Römerthum, Christenthum und Germanenthum; e. viit. "Die Germunlsche Kuechlschaft [^166]:    ${ }^{4}$ So Neander (Denkwoil that the sumerous monast fourth century were often the grest cittes.

[^167]:    ${ }^{4}$ So Neander (Denkroïrdi/keiten, &c. 1. 218) notes that the numerous monasteries whtch grew up in the loarth century were often in the fmmediate vicialty of the grest cittes.

[^168]:    ' It has been the ende that the difference in th pagaz and Christlan boc thun religious upinions,

[^169]:    bvieut, play upen Aucona and ayкwy is of course

[^170]:    ${ }^{4}$ It is all the more pro ordinsry use is stmpty an of the Coptic Church, pul for September 12 is "R First of Martyrs and for December 27 , "Mal Stephea, . . . ."

[^171]:    －There would bo a moc if we colld accept the judg dute of an anonymous fragu ued in the Gallitan charch Anoid v． 99 ，cited by Marr meat is called stola，the nan wheent．Although，heweve ygiren by the edtiors os ti there seems every reason for bler．Ws may note bera oncermíag the stole，that t ＂pro humiliatione．＂Agair to taluical sense in the $G$ the form in whtch thts bas much modised from the orig berisg given to this instan widence which would be add

[^172]:    - There would be a much earller tastance than ibls If we could accept the judgment of the editors as to the date of an anonymous frogaient eoncerning the vestmenta aed in the Gsilican church (Martene and Durand, Thes. Anead. $\nabla .99$, cited by Msrriott, p. 204). Hero the vestment is called stola, the name orarium being altogether abseat. Althougb, bowever, the dste of this docament $t 5$ girea by the editors as the middle of the bth centary, there seems every reason for putting tt several centaries later. We may note bere thst the rule is laid down oncerniog the stole, that it is not to be worn in Leat, [^173]:    a The meaning and speiling of this word is doubtful; one conjecture is Sareptena, from Sarepta, the Phoenlcian elty.

    - The impled connexion here between orarium and of, as bearing on the question of derivation, will be noticed.

[^174]:    A spectmen of this form of address may be seen in the tetter of Pope Foutiorlus, A.n. 634, to Klug Edwin, in Bede, Hist. Angl. th. 17. P'upe Buniface IV., A.D. 628, wrote to Edwin as "glorioso regi" (ib. It. 10).

[^175]:    - The reference to a mentron a mistake; and evers mention of India seens attogether reason for thinking that there ins been there seetax good betiveen the name of the there inas been some cunfusion a place (Pitra, Syicilegium Solesmense, i. 533 tho name of [^176]:    - Menard gives the mass for the dsy, bat Pamelius çit It in brackets (Liturgg. Lall. 11.344).

[^177]:     ixu (Psendo-Chrysost. do -d. Bened.).

[^178]:     ixu (Phendo-(Brysost. de Fivide et Lege Nat. t. i. p. 829, Mi. Bened.). unter the aftar in the basllica which he had built at. Milan. consucrit." ference to to Orat, in SS, Gerv, et Prot. The true reof his authrittest. xxit. p. 87\%, ed. Benud.) Nune of his authorites are earjer than the end of the 4 th century.

[^179]:    ${ }^{2}$ Muratorl (u. e. p. 188) bolda a brlef to shew that burials in churches, in connlry places at lcast, had never been mgarded as unlawful, and explainaaway the church canone aud tmperial liws above referred to as merely designed to prevent avererowd d burtale In churches: "quia nimis in aedlbua sicrls tumutorum radaverumique fuerin augelantur, ut propterea en reendl, ex purto fuerint Christianl." But, to say notbing of the fuct that and lawa and cuunclis make no distinction berween tonn and country churchea, the Cuuncll of Braga in Spain, about A.D. 583 , expreesly assigns a very cifferent reakon for the probibition (see can. 18, quoted in Onsequctes op the Deadi, f x l.). The principal passages on whicb Muraand from C e from Psultnus (both quoted in Centella) under the altar in the, who deplred to be and was burit 4

[^180]:    *Christisn symbole Laninon, in the depa: Icidan and Stutbs, vo

[^181]:    "Christian symbols occur on 8 "menhtr" near Latuion, in the department of Côtes du Nord. See Tiddan and Stulbs, vol. U. p 98; note.

[^182]:    This important work has sppeared since Inschiptions (Vol. I. p. 845) was written. Ftgures are frequentiy added. Prof. Westwood's Lapidarium Walliae (now in course of publtcation) gives splendld plates of the Welsh taseriptloas.

[^183]:    - For two Roman sarcophag be Christian, sce Sculprcae, [^184]:    - For two Roman arroophag! in Eagland, presumed to be Cbristiaa, see Scolptore.

[^185]:    - Pe Rorsf mentious ti catacombs of Rome are to In the Cyrenaica, and th occurs in a chamber excav (Rom, Sott, vol. I. p. 100).

[^186]:    - The mention of the per teneral in pagan tuscriptton cupse ameng Cbrtstlans.

[^187]:    In one instance accompanied by a fish, the only in Scutland (yol it (oa a tombstone), though frequeat [^188]:    Ducange (Glossary, s.v.) cites a capitilary of Charlemagne ortering "tut clerici pampis ut tzang's vel amnis non utantur" to the text, howfver, as given by Baluzizs is reat "prompis aut sagis" (Lib, vit, 398; vil. 1, 1112); and, further, the whole of the pait of the capitularies is considered by l'crts as npurious (Nomumenta fite manicae Historica: I egum, tom II, 107 in b This wurd literally mesis a lin eprige). See Docange, Glofs, Graec, s.v. $k$ nd uf raised throne, [^189]:    - Pliny (Nat. Hist. xilt rum genti ss debet." He the "anguentum regafe" ruembled the $\mu v^{\prime} \rho o \mathrm{y}$ of the

[^190]:    - Pliny (Nat. Hist. xifi. 1) says, "Uaguentum Persa$\pi \mathrm{mm}$ gent se delvet," He ealso gives the composttion of membled the $\mu$ mipov of the of the Parthtane (2), whtch [^191]:    - I.e. ons per cent. per month. Thls inw was re enacted by Constantue ouly a month before the councll of Ntcaea, a fact whith, as Professor Funk ebserrex, shews that the prohibltiva of the charch cauld havs ind but very partiul effect (Cod. Theod. I. 4. 23; Punt Gesch. des Eirchlichen Zinswerbotes, p. 9).

[^192]:
    Interest hall as much as the caltal or 150 per for [^193]:    －Heler（Hdb．der Ch passage，held that the with the seven plant to， no tace of such a weel

[^194]:    - Iteler (Hab. der Chron. I. 179), on the warrant of this passage, held that the sevedaduy week, In connexion with the seven plants, was early known in Egypt. Bat no trice of euch a week, civil, religlons or astrological, [^195]:    - So many indeed were wrought tn the course of tha ages as to give tise to a proverb. "Whoever pretends to hase read all the miraeles of St. Stephen, be lies" (Freculphus apud Basnage, Hist. des Juift, tom. vill p. 249, Gibbon, $\times x$ (Aa.).

[^196]:    - An asteriak portione of the subject of Gospe furnulitite a titio

[^197]:    * An asteriak is prefixed to appelistions taken from portions of the services for the day; frequentily the aublect of Gospel or Lesson, as wCII as the Introit, thus furalutes a title to the Sinnday.

[^198]:    -The Sundays which follow Sppt. 26 are sometinee numbered "post S. Cypriani" (Rom.).
    f The number of these Sundays may be less than four as required.

