The Crors.—The Paris Star says:—
"The barley and fall wheat harvest are very near at hand. Already the 'fields are white for the harvest." The first named crop taken as a whole, will be very light, although in some favoured spots, owing to early sowing or other exceptional causes, there may be a fair return. Oats and peas being a later crop, may yet be considerably improved by rain, although their present aspect is not promising. Fall wheat will generally be a poor crop, one of the poorest reaped the last 20 years.

Look Our For Him.—A scoundrel has been travelling through North and West Dumfries, passing himself as a son of Edward Kitchen, Esq., of South Dumfries soliciting money for a widow who was burned out on his father's farm. This villain is in no way connected with the clan Kitchen, and furthermore, Mr. Kitchen, has had no house burned, and has no widow living on any of his places. Quite a large sum has been thuscollected, and if such a person should be overtaken we hope he may be brought to the proper authorities and receive the punishment due him.

Livingstone, and the latter's account of the Costgan Act has, during the last his explorations. Stanley and Livingstone say that the Zambezi is the head waters of the Nile. The stories the doctor tells of the two countries through which the great river runs read like a fable. He tells of ivory being so cheap and plentiful as to be used for door posts, of skilful manufactures, of a fine grass cloth rivaling that of India, of a people nearly white and extremely handsome, whom he supposes to be descendents of the ancient Egyptians, of the copper mines at Katanga, which have been worked for ages, and of a docile and friendly people. Dr. Livingstone and Stanley explored the head of Lake Tanganyika and returned to Ujiji, where they spent Christmas, 1871. Stanley says he found if divided, to give each a vote. The his explorations. Key West, July 13.—Havana papers, dated up to the 12th inst., have been received. The Deario publishes the particulars of the defeat of the Spaniard on the 29th ult., near Holguin, and acknowledges that the Spanish loss was very severe. The victorious Cubans subsequently attacked and burned a portion of the town of Sama. The "Herald" still Wriggling. On Saturday, the Joint Stock limited Company of the Guelph Herald were treated to even more than their usual diurnal dose of in-furiate personalities, which are the great distinguishing features of its great editorials. On this occasion Mr. George Elliott is the theme of the Herald's penny a liner, and, gracefully, as usual, does he handle it. "Mr. Elliott is," we are told, a "very estimable, though rather obsolete old gentleman, one who appears to be a candidate for Mr. Stirton's political shoes, but who by some fatality never succeeds in getting higher up than the exceedingly honorary position of President of the Association;" and again "as a man who wrapped up in the importance of the occasion and himself, a man engaged in exchanging admiring glances with his political friends amidst bursts of globular cal friends amidst bursts of globular oratory," and the whole spiced with a reference to a personal peculiarity which, harmless in itself, is purposely attempted to become, through the instrumentality of the Herald's odious vulgarity, a butt for offensive ridicule and jeers. And wherefore this disgusting diatribe against an admittedly "estimable and highly respectable old gentleman? Simply because Mr. Elliott felt obliged in the performance of a public duty to characterize the Herald's mendacity as a falsehood stamped by itself on its own face. And as a further testimony to the Herald's genuine appreciation of its own expressed opinion of Mr. Elliott's estimableness, respectability and veracity, and to "clinch it by person whose names" (Jerry Connors being the most important) guaranteed by the Herald, will be a sufficient passport of their reliability. A series of psuedo-saturical letters, are covertly introduced in order, as is fully intended to throw discredit on Mr. Elliott's veracity altogether.

The Herald's Ishmaeliush adventurer does not seek to overturn Mr. Elliot's "ellinche" as furnished by oratory," and the whole spiced with and we wish him joy of his luxurious revel.

Mr. Elliot's personal character is too unimpeachable in every particular to be either attacked or sneered at by anyone in this community. Apart altogether from his service as a public man, his private relations in life command universal respect, and the public cannot, therefore, but be abundantly satisfied that the statement made by us and unequivocally substantiated by Mr. Elliott, that Mr. McMillan was not "hissed down" at the recent Reform meeting was correct.

Equitable Life Insurance Company.

Equitable Life Insurance Company.

We call attention to the advertisement of this Company alsewhere. Mr. J. W. Paterson is general agent for Wellington, Grey, and Bruce, and will be happy to give any information concerning its standing and system. A contemporary says of this Company:

The enterprise, steady perseverance, and thorough scientific knowledge of those unatiring men, who, in spite of all obstacles, brought the "Old Equitable," (as it is called) to a successful issue—have had their counterpart in the energy and ability by which our Equitable in New York has, in many respects, been able to outstrip all competitors. Not only does this latter Society annually assure a greater number of lives than any other Co. in the large average of their policies, the selection is from the best and wealthiest classes in the community. Merchanits, bankers, capitalist all-seem to prefer the Equitable, who from the extent of their business are enabled to grant the heaviest risks on single lives, and the liberal and yet conservative management entitles them to the utmost confidence.

We have already alluded to the application of the tontine system to Life Insurance. A defined and very marked improvement has been added by the Equitable in its various documents and publications; and many other Life Insurance known as the Tontine Savings Fund Poley, which has become exceedingly popular in this country, and has attracted more business since its introduction than any plan yet adopted. A very full explanation of this policy is given by the Equitable in its various documents and publications; and many other Life Insurance Companies, though at first opposing it, have since adopted a somewhat similar assurance.

Enormous as has been the growth to the Equitable in the various documents and publications; and many other Life Insurance Companies, though at first opposing it, have since the product of the course of the content of the course of the course in this respect or the braise and gratitude of the community.

There are many reasons for selecting the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

1st—No company has such large annual transactions, thereby infusing into its business aconstant accession of fresh and selected lives which is one of the greatest elements of strength.

2nd—Liberality in dealing with all claims: observing at the same time, a due regard to policy-holders by a first ensistance to any attempt at imposition.

3rd—Perfect organization in every department, which renders official information casily attainable and secures a complete administration of its affairs.

4th—Being one of the most progressive institutions of its kind in the world, it is ever prepared to seize at once upon all the improvements in the business that science can suggest.

The Foster Brother

The Orphan of the Wreck.

The Orphan of the Wreck.

CHAPTER VI.

His walk was slow until he passed the slight eminence in the road which shut out the view of the asylum. Then looking back, and seeing nothing but the chimneys of that spacious but dreary building, he drew himself up into an erect and vigorous posture, and walked forward with the air, and at theipace of a strong, active, and exultant man. Then, having got to a greater distance along the road, and finding that no one was in sight in front or in rear, he suddenly removed his spectacles, and lifting his broad-brimmed hat, pulled from his head the wig of long silver bair which had given him such a venerable aspect; reduced the folds of his huge comforter; and with a loud "Ha, ha!" of triumph, stuck the beaver on his crown, and went on at at still faster pace.

Lo! what a transformation. The meek, bland, fair-spoken Jonas Sweetbread had in a few moments been turned into a big-boned, coarse-featured fellow, with a hawk nose and sandy hair, and an aspect in every respect entirely opposite to that which he had presented on his visit to the Asylum.

He was undoubtedly himself now, and that self was was neither attractive nor prepossessing. Evidently enough he had been disguised, and acting a part of some special purpose, and that purpose, it may be guessed, was an evil one, since it led him to play the hypocrite and the deceiver in such elaborate fashion.

And to judge by the elation he manifested, his object seemed to have been gained, and the result satisfactory.

Early in the afternoon he reached Glasgow, and entering the first omnibus which came in his way, he was carried by it into the centre of the city. Turning into a narrow street off one of the busy thoroughfares, he went into a second class hotel there, and ascending to the first floor, opened and passed im.

An olive-complexioned woman, with coal-black hair and dark flashing eyes, sat by the fire with a child on her knee, and on his entrance she turned quickly round and fixed her tarring eyes with keen scrutiny on his fa

- "We are safe to proceed."
 "Ah!"

"Ah!"

"She drew a long breath, and her eyes glittered with new vehemence.

"You are sure of this?" she added, after a moment's silence.

"Sure," he repeated, in a decided tone,
"He knows nothing; his mind is as much wrecked as the ship was."

"But may he not recover?"

"Not a chance of it; the doctor says go, I tell you, Rangoon, everything is right for us, and that name I give you for the last time. Henceforth you are Mrs. George Morrar, and our boy is the Heir of Ardgowan.
