CHRONIC BRONCHITIS.

Bronchitis is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes, and is one of the most common of the pulmonary affections. Chronic Bronchitis more often occurs later in life. When a cold settles on the lungs, the disease either ends in bronchitis or pneumonia. If it ends in bronchitis, it usually passes off as a cold on the chest, and still the patient does not feel entirely well. He feels tired and languid, and is incapable of taking his usual amount of exercise, and experience a shortness of breath, with more or less warmth in the palms of his hands. Soon after this a cough appear, accompanied by an expectoration of thick mucous, followed by a hectic flush, loss of flesh and strength, and night sweats continue, when the patient assumes all the appearance of having a genuine case of consumption. But this is simply catarrh of the ungs, or chronic bronchitis. ungs, or chronic bronchitis.

In the later stages of the disease the mucou membrane of the larger bronchial tube softens while in the smaller tubes and air cells of the lung while in the smaller tubes and air cells of the lungs the mucous membrane becomes congessed and inflamed. There are no cavities nor tubercles in the lungs, but merely a wasting away of the larger bronchial tubes, and death takes place from obstruction of the bronchial tubes and air-cells of the lungs. The patient dies from exhaustion and suffocation, being unable to expectorate the mucous which accumulates in the passage leading to the lungs, which in some cases is sticky and small in quantity, but more commonly conjous of a light threw or vallowish

Inhalations are applicable in all diseases of the epiratory organs, including catarrh, throat diseases, st hma, bronchitis, consumption; and thousands of a ses can be cured by this mode of treatment when Notwithstanding that Sir John Macdonald promised to give Mr. Costigan an opportunity to move his Irish resolutions on Thursday, the following editorial paragraph in this morning's Citizen is looked upon as an evidence that they will attmept to back out of the arrangement: It may prove somewhat difficult for the government to afford Mr. Costigan the opportunity they have promised of bringing on his resolutions on the Irish question next Thursday. If they propose to give them precedence of the government orders several other members will object, unless they are accorded so much consideration, and it is said that the motion cannot be made as an amendment to the proposal to go into committee of supply inasmuch as notice has been given of it already as a motion to be made in the ordinary way.

RAILWAY FUSION. It used to be called amalgam the new word is charter, and will probably come into use. As we are likely to have good deal of the thing itself, a short word to signify it will be handy. The Globe has another cable despatch, which is dated the 15th inst., and reads as follows :

"Mr. Abbott states that he has received promises of support of an arrangement between the Grand Trunk and Great Western railways from 1,340 shareholders of the latter railway, representing 115,000 shares. It is reported that the names of gentlemen well known in railway and financial circles will be submitted to the Western meeting as members of the new board of directors. These gentlemen will support plans for a cordial and amicable working of the two companies."

It has been contended, in these columns, that it would be for the country's interest to have three great through lines, rather than two only. The Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk we are sure to have, that makes twe. A third line could be obtained by securing the separate indentity and independence of the Great Western, and make the Quebec and Ontario road its connecting link eastward. That would be the best thing for the country, nor is there anything visionary or impractable about it. It is, on the contrary, eminently plain, and feasible, and But if Great Western proprietors in England think it best for their own interests to consent to fusion with the Grand Trunk, people in Canada cannot hinder them from doing as they please. If this thing goes on then what we have before suggested as a possible contingency will come to pass, and the whole governmental system of Canada will be overshadowed by the power of the gigantic railway corporations. What political results this may lead to some day remains to be seen. As means of safety to the interests of the public, the existence of a third through line would have been of untold value to Canada. There would literally have been "millions in it" for the country's good. But if the Fates otherwise decree, we must submit: and let the two great railway powers divide with the government the rule of our affairs-for a time. We may ever look forward to a greater fusion measure still—the fusion of the Pacific and the Grand Trunk. That would simplify matters wonderfully: and would relieve both Dominion and Provincial governments of much of the cares which now oppress them. The prospect of one railway government for all Canada is certainly a "big thing" to look forward to. For a while, however, possibly for a good to the test, he said, President Hayes failed to stand by it; he was not strong enough to face the politicians and carry out the terms of his own order. The closing days of his administration witnessed Sherman trying to elect himself president by the aid of the treasury department. "Then," continued Mr. McVeagh, "came the shortlived Garfield administration. Whatever hope was in that was cut short by Guiteau's bullet. What Arthur was in the New York custom house he is to-day in the president's chair. Men rarely change their political training after arriving at the age either gentlemen had attained. My party leaves me in this predicament—it has but three principles, and I find myself opposed to all sist of repudiation in old Virginia." On this question the democrats are in n such trouble. They do not pretend to be in favor of civil service reform at all ; the issue raises ne division whatever in their republicans are, and in fact more so. But over this matter of ours, and we wish to party, each advancing its claims upon patronage. Nor is the republican party as far advanced on this question as some republicans would have us believe. We go says: The spoils of the victors belong the figspoils. What is a stalwart! One who says: The spoils belong to the victors belong to the victors. That seems to be about the amount of it. The supposition that President Garfield would have in augurated a real reform had he lived, is strongly negatived by that act of his which made the trouble between himself and Mr. Conkling. He dismissed from the collectorship of New York a good and capable man, who was also a sound republican, who was also a sound republican. The lawyer-members must understand that if they cannot sit in the house and capable man, who was also a sound republican, to make room for Mr. Robertson, was known to everybody, and in fact was never legal services to the contract of the contrac known to everybody, and in fact was never disputed by anybody. Mr. Robertson was the man who did more than any other man to secure Garfield's nomination at Chicago.

It a nardship that they cannot sell their department of their hands by the legal services to whoever cares to retain them they had better stop out of the house. The tormer class misrepresentation used. The tormer class misrepresentation used. The tormer class them they had better stop out of the house. There are men to be had who will go to parliament and transact the public business. Brown.

McVeagh evidently implies, whether sident Garfield, had he lived, would carried the practice of civil service reform much further than was done by Hayes and

THE WORKINGMEN AND THE N. P.

It is the opinion of the Hamilton Times that the N. P. has injured the workingmen by raising the prices of the neccessaries of life. To increased cost of living we have already admitted the fact, and have urged it as the reason why there should be an increase of wages as well. But we cannot agree with the Times that the N. P.is responsible for the dearer living that the workingmen has now to provide for, except to the extent that it has increased gener prosperity. Whenever and wherever bet. ter times come, prices rise, simply because demand is brisker and consumption larger. The Times will surely understand that it would take a bigger market to supply the purchasing demand of a prosperous village than to supply that of another having the same number of people, but stricken with adversity. To the important fact of better times generally much of the increased cost of living is due. The better demand causes ion of a part of the phenomenon. But there is something more to be added. On the wages question we have taken the position that the higher price of bread, meat and provisions is itself sufficient eason for a general rise. There may have peen a slight rise in rent, fuel and clothing but all these items taken together do not rise in the cost of food. It is the rise in price of what people eat that does it. If rents have risen, it won't do to blame the N. P. for that, because there you would be admitting that the N. P. had made the eity prosperous. There are few workingmen's houses in which more than five tons of eoal are used per annum; that will onlyaccount for $2.50, even if you lay the whole of it to the N. P. In retail prices of dry goods there is positively not as much ise as would amount to five dollars on the whole year's purchases of an ordinary workngman's fa As for groceries, they are actually cheaper than before, the article of soap perhaps excepted. Cattle are learer, and more has to be paid for grease. The increased cost of supporting a workngman's family for a year is-nine-tenths of t-on these articles : Bread, meal and breadstuffs generally; meat of all kinds: milk, butter and cheese; eggs and fish. Is it the N. P. that has made these articles dearer? We wait to see whether the Times will say so.

ABOUT BRIBED LEGISLATORS. On Thursday last a scene occurred in the salway committee of the house of comrailway committee of the house of com-For a while, however, possibly for a good long while, there will be two powers. We were surely right in pointing out, as we did some time ago, that the accession of the Syndicate was precipitating a railway revolution in Canada. Not merely precipitating it, but rather forcing it, we may add. It may astonish some people to observe how big the revolution is getting to be, and how every week it looms up more largely than before. We should think that by this time even the most careless might "see it."

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM IN THE STATES.

Mr. Wayne McVeagh of Pennsylvania, formerly attorney general in President Hayes' cabinet, has long been known as a man who is not afraid to speak out. He is a strong republican party man, but for all that he has a way of letting the public know what he thinks of the party's doings.

At a fecent meeting of the civil service reform association at Philadelphia he referred

At a recent meeting of the civil service reform association at Philadelphia he referred to the celebrated civil service order of President Hayes, of a portion of which himself McVesgh) was the author. When it came the test he said President Hayes foiled of the committee against the motion. Cameron rose and protested as a member of the committee against the motion. Thus in the space of five minutes, he placed himself before the committee and the public as a hired advocate, and also as an independent legislator resisting the

The above is from yesterday's Globe. It is, to say it bluntly, that Mr. Cameron has been bribed by the telegraph company to promote their bill.

It is a sad statement to make though it is an undoubted fact that not only Mr. Cameron but many other lawyer-members of parliament are bribed by corporations seeking legislation. The mere fact that Mesars. McCarthy, Kirkpatrick, and Boultbee rose in their places and denied that they had ever received money to prethree. Its first great principle is the spoils mote the bills of corporations looked as if there was a nigger in the woodpile someservice reform, and the third seems to conwhere. We don't know sabout the three legal members in question, but we know for a fact that several others have been retained by corporations, allegedly for legal advice but designedly to promote bills. Let us make the case more specific : The ranks. On details of state and municipal patronage they are divided as much as the seeking a good deal of legislation from the federal parliament; the agents of these bills there is among them no pretence of civil approached leading lawyers, members of the service reform; the contests that arise are house, and said: "we expect litigation merely between different sections of the over this matter of ours, and we wish to

As to the boundary question: the Lower make up more than the tenth part of the at Toronto and dated New York in was fully exposed by the Montreal Gazette the other day.

What is more, the Wiman Dwight party have made corrupt bargains with the Globe and Mail in the matter of the rate at which their despatches are forwarded. No wonder these journals were silent when the deal was consummated. The Globe dare not show its telegraph bills and the rebates allowed thereon.

Again, Mr. Wiman is not a true Canadian ; he is the servant of Jay Gould and any way that the Canadian wires be manipulated in order to further the American railways that Gould is interested in, it will be done. Gould is pense of the St. Lawrence and he will use the Canadian telegraph systems that were we have been bled in money bent on building up New York at the ex-

The Canadian Pacific syndicate as we before pointed out have no confidence in the Great Northwestern telegraph line as now managed. Duncan McIntyre has said that he will build a line of his own if the Canada Mutual falls into the hands of the Gould party.

And still the wrecking business goes on at Ottown a restriction of the conservative stripe. They are opposed to our progress and even to our religion when that comes prominently in question before them. I say unhesitatingly that the agitation in favor of upholding our Ontario award is not confined to reformers, as they are called, but large numbers of conservatives in this city and elsewhere believe the award should be enforced. It was announced yesterday at the carpenters' meeting that the master builders were "importing" carpenters from England through Sir A. T. Galt, the Canadian minister in London. It must therefore be for some purpose other than that of direct returns in the shape of dividends, that Vanderbilt keeps it going. Probably he makes it pay as a means of controlling or overawing competitors. In this way there may be several "millions in this way there may be several "millions in the striking workpeople. Such claptrap they may think is necessary to keep up the wavering courage of the women and men on strike. Many of them they (the agitators) have reason to know are only too willing to return to their work if allowed the exercise of their own individual and better judgment.

A gentleman who was in Toronto yester day, and whose business has taken him all over the province, says the reformers could carry the next election if they would only leave the N.P. alone.

But as they are now going he says Si John Macdonald will be returned with a larger majority at his back than ever.

We will do Mr. Blake the justice of saying that he himself has let this tariff ques ion severely alone for months; but his lieutenant, Sir Jonah Cartwright, and his alleged organist, St. Gordon Brown, and the other smaller and over-zealous or-

" WHAT IS CRIME?"

To THE WORLD: A few days ago correspondent of yours expressed his sense of necessity to have "crime" defined, lest we should lose sight of it altogether, amid the turmoil of discussion which is geing on, and emerge into that which is the reverse of liberty, viz., license. This objection is well meant but needless. His creator has not left man without a guide. His voice speaks within all as "conscience," telling each, if he be but willing to hear and obey, that to injure one's neighbor is to commit a crime. There is no danger that this voice will be stifled altogether in this enlightened age. The more imminent danger is the inauguration of injurious methods of in-culcating its teachings upon others, with a ganettes, the Hamilton Times and the London Advertiser, have been harping on it till in Temperance hall yesterday morning. Mr. George Garratt occupied the chair. The men from the different shops reported the steps taken by the bosses and, it was found that the following of them had acceeded to the request of the men for an increase of wages: Gilbert Pearcy, R. H. Snith, J. Sears, J. L. Davis, Boulton & Litwistle, George Lucas, W. Stockdale, A. Partridge, William Eddington and H. M. Armstrong.

siderable length and advised the men not to use any illegal means, and explained the provisions of the trades union act, showing what was legal for the men to do, and advised them not to give any provocation whatever. He believed that the demand asked for was a just one and asked the men to be true to one another and stand firm and behave themselves like gentlemen. He much regretted that these means had to be taken to secure the raise, as the men organized and are determined to stand by their decisions. The men from Mat O'Connor's shop reported that Mr. O'Connor received his men in a gentlemanly manner yesterday morning. He advised trouble. He has paid the highest wages of any of the painters for the last five years, He asked the men to call on him again in the afternoon, which was impossible for them to do, as they were all chosen on picketing committees. The meeting then adjourned until 10 a.m. this morning.

There was a large attendance of carpenters and others at Temperance hall yesterday morning. J. P. Wagner's letter was up for ed to sign his name to what he had to say, like Fair Play. It was no fair play for a knowledge he was the father of. In the letter the writer had made the charge that the speaker was a firebrand. He did not Mr. Wagner said the masters had passed a resolution that a certain advance was to be paid, but if it had been passed the resolution was produced he would withdraw all he had said about this part of the mat-eing a carpenter. For himself he had never spoken wrongly of Mr. Wagner. The assertion in Mr. Wagner's letter that ch heavy jobs occurred that they took-12 and 13 months was received with laugh said it was merely a question of whether or not the workingmen should get an advance that they thought the employers could pay and that the men were earning. Mr. Moore in a few words disclaimed the idea of speaking or thinking for the carpenters. They could do that for themselves. The talk about the co-operative mill was more outside talk than any other. He said nothing about the scheme that was cer-tain; but it would not do him any good if it was started. It was said too that he was making $5 per day out of the strike. The the claim he might have made on the amalgamated society of carpenters, of which he was a member, when he should have from that society; and the secretary of the society here knew that he had never taken a cent from the funds of the Toronto society. (Applause.) He saw that a project was on foot to send out a large number of carpenters to Canada. This was thrown out as a threat. If Sir Alex Galt, getting a large salary from the Canadian government, was going to continue such practices, it might be necessary to call the attention of the parliament here to the fact that it was not fair to our carpenters. These men from the old country should be taxed like a bale of manufactured goods when they come in here. The observation by Mr. Wagner about the men getting along on charity was quite uncalled for. The circumstances and object both in giving and receiving this help took away everything of reproach from the transaction.

Mr. George Kerr said that Mr. Wagner had never made the offer to the men that the whole of Mr. Wagner's letter, commenting on various passages. If the difficulty had been narrowed down to a desire to meet the men they should take steps to do this in a way that would be to their own advantage, and if it was necessary leave him out of the question altogether.

The carpenters were willing to meet the employers in a fair and business manner.

A gentleman took the platform for a short time and spoke of the evil effects of the banking system on all branches of trade. He said a just distribution of the profits of work would do away with all labor difficulties.

THE PAINTERS'S TROUBLES.

A large meeting of painters was held in Temperance hall yesterday morning.

He will not consent to attend meeting to-morrow at best arrangement I could make. With kind regards.

It is understood that a deputation, as suggested above, will wait on Mr. King today. Rev. J, P. Lewis will accompany the SER A. T. GALT AND LABOR.

To THE WORLD:—The assertion made at one of the labor meetings lately that the at one of the labor meetings lately that the services of Sir A. T. Galt were now being utilized for the purpose of inducing carpenters to come to Canada, and particularly to Toronto, is a serious one if true. Canada is not in need of skilled labor of any kind. Surely Sir A. T. Galt would not be a party to sending skilled labor to Canada under false pretences—for such would be the case, if there is any truth in the rumor. As such a thing has happened before in the history of Canada, although not through Sir A. T. Galt, we notice this rumour as not being improbable. The only classes of immigrants required in Canada are farm and domestic servants, for both of whom there is good demand. If Canada under existing circumstances requires the whom there is good under existing circumstances required and the services of such an officer as Sir A. T. Galt, then let his acts be in the general interests of the country and not that of a class only. It should be borne in mind that the services of Sir A. T. Galt have to be paid for out of the hard earnings of hat not other class of the people. Besides, when these people arrive and learn the true state the better wages where better wages are the state to the state themselves to the wages are the state to the state county poor house were opened yesterday afternoon. Two plans had been submitted to tender upon, No. 1 representing a larger building capable of accommodating twenty-six inmates more than No. 2. The committee decided to accept No. 2 plan. The tenders upon No. 1 ranged from $25,000 to $26,000, or an average of $4,000 higher than those upon No. 2 plan. Upon the latter the tenders ranged from $18,000 to $22,300. On each plan there were five tenders. A Shirking Witness. Hugh McNabb is a young man from the country, at least the country village of Cannington, Ont. This young man left that place a few months ago to elude telling what he knew against a hotel keeper there who had been on several occasions to see so much ill-feeling displayed towards his friend Mr. Moor. But he thought he saw in the letter the means of an amicable arrangement. He believed the men would say that they always had been, and were now, willing to come to such an arrangement that a conference was possible. He hoped the men would pass a resolution that they were prepared to appoint a committee, or deputation, to meet the employers.

(From the N. Y. Sunday Tribune.) Jumbo was introduced to his fellow captives at the Madison Square Garden yester day afternoon. When the performance was over and the immense crowd had departed, eighteen elephants of various sizes were led into the south ring and ranged in there, as she had already received the honor of an introduction to the distinguished for-eigner, and Pilate was absent, his surly diseigner, and Pilate was absent, his surly dis-position and unauly temper unfitting him for good society. The elephants being all arranged according to their rank, Jumbo came slowly into the ring, accompanied by his keeper. When the elephants saw the huge mountain of flesh, swaying from side to side, coming down the track, there wes a momentary thrill of surprise along the line. One or two of the youngest ele-phants gave audible evidence of their phants gave autione evidence of their agitation. They were quickly frowned down by the older ones, and the whole party put on a most dignified and serene appearance. As Jumbo passed along he was greeted with uplifted trunks. He returned the salute and shook trunks with the party in a friendly but rather bored manner. After exchanging civilities with manner. After exchanging civilities with Jumbo, an elephant would run his trunk along the monster's back. the sawdust. There was no sign of fear among the elephants, and Jumbo seemed to consider the whole thing "an awful bore, you know," until he came to the elephantine damsel Baby. When he saw her, he stopped, and reaching out his trunk just touched her and drew it back again, all the time looking at her in a most interested and lov-ing manner. It was evidently a case of love at first sight. Baby was naturally thrown into a flutter of excitement, but she maninto a flutter of exerteness, but she man-aged to keep upla decent appearance of coy-ness. She finally consented however, to shake trunks with her admirer, and after a while llowed herself to be caressed, even going so far as to return her lover's endearments.

The other female elephants present were scandalized, and wound their trunks to-gother as if saying: "Oh, the bold-faced thing, did you ever!"

Jumbo was walked up and down the line several times, the elephants doing their best to attract his attention as he passed. But he had eyes only for Baby, and when at length they were all started around the track that giddy damed ran on ahead, disdaining to walk with the others, so proud was she, apparently, of her gigantic lover. When Jumbo was finally led out of the ring to his stable, he cast a lingering look over. to his stable, he cast a lingering look over his shou'der that gave evidence that he had ceased to mourn for his English Alice.
