NOTE AND COMMENT

"By the way, what has become of Mme. Schwimmer?" asked an exchange. Evidently she has been engulfed in the waters of oblivion, having got beyond her depth.

The breaking of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany might result in releasing the hundreds of interned enemy ships in U. S. ports. This would be welcomed. Enemy subs, sinking their own vessels, too, might then become a feature of Germany's naval success.

The movement for the right to increase the tax up to $5 has been hastened by the war, with its added calls for funds for patriotic purposes.

Obituary

George W. Partlow, a former resident of Walnut, who moved to Chapin, Mich., about 25 years ago, died on March 28th, 1916. The following notice from the Chapin paper will be of interest to many of the older settlers of Brooke:-

George W. Partlow was born July 9th. 1837, in the township of Malahide, County of Elgin, Ontario, and passed away at his home in Chapin March 28, 1916, aged 78 years, 8 months and 19 days. At the age of eleven he with five other children were left fatherless.

At the age of 23 he was married to Hannah A. Crane of the same neighborhood and moved onto a farm near Sarnia, Ontario. To this union was born two sons and one daughter, who passed away in 1894. Soon after his marriage he was converted and took connection with the Baptists and for about 25 years was superintendent of the S. S., which was first in the old log school house and then in the church which he helped to build.

After he had led the S. S. for so long, he thought he would let someone younger take it, therefore he resigned, and befere two weeks had passed he was holding S. S. in a new part of the township where there had never been meeting. For five years he led the S. S. with a full house, until 1891, when he moved his family to Michigan and united with the Christian Church at Chapin. For twenty-five years he has been faithiul and always found in his place at the church as long as he could attend.

On January 15, he fell on the ice, but in a few weeks was able to be about the house with a little help, until March 21, when he received a light stroke of apoplexy and he grad-ually went down until March 28, he left us.

He leaves to mourn, 2 sons, 5 grandchildren, 2 sisters and 1 brother together with hosts of friends.

The funeral was held at the Christian Church Chapin, Rev. Q. A. Kimberling officiated. Burial in Brant beside his companion, who passed away two years ago, April 12, 1814.

The pall bearers were five nephews and a grandson: Ernest R. Dexter, of Mt. Pleasant, Harvey Crane, Dillis Crane, Chester Crane and Jehiel Whaley of Brant, and one grandson, Oscar Willoughby.

Ben Potter's Proxy

It Proved to Be a False Friend

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Ben Potter was a cowboy down in that part of the western part of North America where the Mexicans have always been in evidence. Ben was as brave as a lion where a man adversary was concerned, but had a constitutional fear of the fair sex. A little gun play wouldn't faze him a bit, but to tell a woman he loved her was beyond the scope of his audacity. One day he came across a greaser who kept parrots for sale.

Ben Potter stood in front of the par-rot's cage and poked a tentative forefinger at the beautiful green and yellow bird whose yellow markings edged with black added to its gorgeousness. "You're dead certain she can talk?"

he demanded of the storekeeper. "Kin a duck swim?" retorted the storekeeper testily.

"What kind of talk can she hand out? I don't want no swear words. mind, Dawson-it's for a lady-it's for my sister." said Ben laboriously striving to cover up the fact that the parrot was for Linda Day, who was not his sister and who he fervently hoped would never offer to be a sister to him. "No swear words!" chuckled Dawson. "Will you hear that?" he went on addressing the bird. "Tell the gentleman pretty things, Polly?" "I love you," croaked Polly, with a wicked glance at Ben. Ben flushed hotly. If that was the sort of talk Polly indulgor in she was just the bird Ben needed to convey the story of his tender but diffident passion to Linda Day.

The deal was concluded, and Polly and her cage were transferred to Ben ONTARIO | Potter's hands. He arranged to leave them there until dark. "I shan't be going back again till 9 o'clock," he said casually.

"There won't anybody know you've bought a hansum parrot if you sneak it home in the dark," said Dawson innocently. "That's just what I'm calculating on, you idiot," snapped Ben coolly, as he turned and went down the street, his boot heels clicking on the board walk and the brim of his hat flapping in the

"I love you," chuckled Dawson as he shook a finger at Polly. "Oh, you Polly! And oh, you Ben Potter!" It was after 9 o'clock when Ben Potter called for his parrot. He had bought a new blanket, which he wrapped around the big cage, leaving an opening at the top.

"Good night, Polly," he called down the opening.

"Get out!" growled Polly crossly.

Dawson gave vent to an exaggerated yawn,

"I'm about closing up now," he muttered to hide a smile. "Hope you like the bird. If you get tired of her hand-ing out that line of soft talk, why, you can teach her something else, you know. "Sure thing," said Ben as he left the

As he went galloping home to the Twin Star ranch, the trail unwinding before him like a broad white ribbon, he held the cage on the pommel of his saddle and wondered what Linda Day would say to his strange gift.

"Gee whiz, I'm glad it's night!" he muttered as he neared the ranch. Suddenly he paused and looked around at the moonlit spaces of the cattle range. "Why not give it to her now?" he asked himself. "They'll sure hand me down the trail, turning to the right when he reached the three cottonwoods that marked the cross trail leading to the Widow Day's ranch.

He was glad that the bunk house was dark and that the big dance in Red Spider had evidently drawn all the men away for the evening. He guessed that Linda Day might be sitting calmly reading in her living room with a gun beside her on the table. She was perfectly able to take care of herself, and yet she was far from being masculine. It was her mixture of fearlessness and soft woman-liness that made her fascinating to the rough cowboys of the Red Spider dis-

Ben Potter knocked briskly at the door. He knew that Linda hated a soft, sneaky knock. It "gave her the creeps," she admitted.

In a moment she stood there, framed in the lighted doorway. "Oh, good evening, Mr. Potter," she MAKES PERFECT BREAD said pleasantly. "Won't you come in?" she added hospitably. "No, thank you," murmured Ben-"at took off the blanket and revealed the parrot stirring sleepily on the perch. "For me? How very kind of you!" cried Linda Day, as she gazed at the brilliant bird. "I think they are too amusing, Mr. Potter, and it is a bit lonely here sometimes. Polly and I shall become great friends." she continued confidently as she tapped the cage with her slender finger.

Polly writhed uncomfortably, cocked glassy eye at her new owner and rmured throatily:

"Bye-bye! I'm going to bed now!"
"How cunning!" cried Linda. "Poor polly shall go in this nice dark corner, and tomorrow I will have a hook placed for her in the window. It was very thoughtful of you, Mr. Potter." She glanced up at Ben's embarrassed face. His blue eyes looked at her wistfully, and his line trembled as if words were eager to betray his love; but he was so very diffident, she thought regretfully. when he finally turned away and with a hurried good night made for the front

In the safe shadow of the yard where he had mounted his horse Ben called back the important message he had to deliver. His tone was elaborately care-

"By the way, Mrs. Day," he flung over his shoulder, "that parrot can speak a few words, and what she says is-is-just what I think, only I can't find words to say it-you understand." He could not see Linda's tender smile as she closed the door and went back to the living room.

"As if a goose couldn't understand." she murmured glecfully. "You great big, brave, bashful little boy!" This last remark was addressed to the small snapshot picture of Potter which she kept hidden in her needlework. If Ben Potter had known about that picture he would have expired from very joy. He had left it there one evening, and when he inquired for it the widow had been unable to find it-even while she fumbled with trembling fingers in her work basket. "Polly-Polly Potter!" laughed the widow joyously. "You've got to wake up and tell me that story tonight-understand? I can't wait another minute." And she gently withdrew the covering from Polly's cage and brought it into the bright light of the evening

It was five minutes before Polly awakened sufficiently to exercise her vocal powers.

"Polly," whispered Linda, her soft res shining and her swee

Polly, dear, what have you got to say to me?"

Polly, disgruntled because of this rude awakening from her slumbers, was in a diabolical temper. "Want to say-eh? Want to say-eh? You're a busybody-there's only one girl in the world for me and her name is-her name is-gr-gr-grrrrr wheezed Polly.

"What is her name-tell it to me, Polly, dear," coaxed Linda, eager to hear the sweetest story ever told, even through the medium of the strange proxy Ben Potter had chosen. "Tell me the name of the girl he loves!"

"Her name is—ha, ha, ha! Her name is Maud—there! Lead me to my little bed!" choked Polly, wrathfully. "Maud, I love you dearly—Maud—Maud—Maud! Where are you, dearie? I'm waiting for you-it's a great joke-joke-ha!" Linda's eyes were full of tears. "You horrid thing!" she cried, "Th not have you in the house. I thought he had taught you some—something else!"

"Oh, the deuce!" cried the parrot, impatiently. "Trouble all the time."

Linda threw the blanket over the cage, blew out the light and went up to bed. The next morning she got up and wrote a note to Ben Potter. "Please come and get your parrot," she wrote, crisply, "it is impossible for me to keep it." It was a very much abashed and dis-concerted cowpuncher who rode up to Linda's door the next evening.

Linda Day stood in the sitting room staring resentfully at the form of Polly, who was swinging in her cage.

"I'm sorry you don't like the bird," said Ben awkwardly. "What seems to be the matter?" "Every-everything!" cried Linds, very near to tears.

"I guess I made a mistake," said Ben slowly, his heart sinking down and down in bitter despair. "You didn't like the message I sent you?"

Linda flashed an indignant glance at

"Of course it is a matter of perfect indifference to me whether you love a girl named Maud," she said coldly "Maud! Maud who?" he demande dazedly. Oh, Maudie." shrifted Polly airtis. "I forgot to kiss you goodby! You're the girl for me! I love you!"

"There!" cried Linda Day haughtly, "I'll kill Dawson for this," said Ben Potter in a cold, deadly tone.
"What do you mean?" she breathed hurriedly. "You'll not kill any one,

Ben Potter. Where did you get that parrot?" "I bought her from Dawson a few hours before I brought her here," said Ben grimly. "She repeated some words—that I wanted to tell-you—and I thought-I never thought that she might know some other words-and-

and-see here, what are you doing?"

He leaped toward the cage and snatched from Polly's inquisitive beat the needle book, which had been lying close to the bars of the cage. From the needle book there foll small picture, and he picked it up and glanced at it. There was his own gallant young form astride his new horse. He turned shining eyes upon Linda's blushing, downcast face.

"Oh, Linda, Linda!" he said softly.
"And you had it all the time!" Linda's pretty head drooped lower as he came close to her. She did not resist when his arms enfolded her.
"Ah, I love you!" cooed Polly suddenly. Ben laughed gently. "That's what I wanted Polly to tell you for me," he whispered in Linda's pink ear.

"But I knew that long ago," cried Linda saucily. "But, Ben, you can tell me again—now?"

The Point.

The "point" is a place which a great many people claim to see, but very few care to get to. They will travel all around it, but to go right through to it. to make an attempt to arrive at it, is quite beyond them.

The singular thing about this is that everybody is urging them on to do it. "If you will only get to the point," says the world, "it will be an immense help." Then all the psychologists, sociologists, theologians, orators and hu morists declare they are going to-immediately.

The point laughs at them all. "I'm safe!" says the point. "You'll never get me!"

A Cautious Judge.
"Safety First" seems to be the motto of some of the judges in the West Indies. The Nice of Austria. "The Nice of Austria" is the name by which Gorizia, or Goritz, is known among its habitues, owing to its mild climate. Curiously enough the city furnishes a link with the French Bourbons, for in a Franciscan convent there lie the remains of Charles X. of France, the last of the Bourbons; of the Duke of Angouleme, his son, and of the Duc de Chambord, who died as recently as 1883. Gorizia, under Austrian rule, was the capital of the crown land of Gorz Gradisca and first appears in history toward the close of the tenth century, when it was bestowed on the church. It is still the seat of an archibshop, and its special industry, significantly, perhaps, has long been the printing of Hebrew books for the east.—London Spectator.

BYRON'S UNHAPPINESS.

His ley, Frozen Mannered Wife and His Cruel Parents.

Marie Corelli, the English novelist, says poets do not really love. If they did they could not write about it. They imagine they love. And their imagination embraces many fair ob-

"Byron," she says, "was an unhappy man. But he was not as unhappy as he imagined himself to be. He found pleasure, even inspiration, in dwelling on his own troubles. Many poets do."

She tells us that Byron's mother had been a Miss Gordon before she married the shiftless and dissolute Captain Byron, the poet's father, and that amid constant quarrelings, thrashings and unjust abuse and the most coarse and intemperate language poor Byron began his career.

"With such a father and such a mother," says Miss Corelli, "the wonder is that he managed to store his mind with so many impressions of beauty and grandeur and that he was able to lift his soul above his surroundings to such a height of intellectual power. His mother's furious temper and her eruel mockeries stung him, not into a reply, but into silent and lonely brooding on his wrongs.

"He himself describes the sense of horror and humiliation which came over him when, in a fit of passion, she called him 'a lame brat.' When Sir Walter Scott met him he said he should scarcely have noticed it. In fact, the great novelist was as lame as the great poet, only Byron's brilliant personality made him, more than Scott, an object of comment. His marriage was a failure. It was a fortunate thing for literature that his wife left him after one year of matrimony.

"Had she remained with him his

"'I have seen her,' he says, 'come down in the morning as if she had lain all night on a glacier, frozen, as it were, to the very soul, and no efforts on the part of those around her could restore her for the day to any genial

"The Wind Is In the Palm Trees." But the glory of palm trees! No pictures or description in books had ever made me realize that before. "The wind is in the palm trees" had been for me but a haunting phrase in Mr. Kipling's most famous ballad, but when the bellboy threw open the door of my room (in Nassau of the Baha-mas) looking into the hotel gardens I cried, "What is that sound?" for my ears had been instantly filled with a delicious rippling, as though the room was alive with invisible rivers of running water. I ran to the window. was the wind in the palm trees—the freshest, purest, gladdest sound to be heard in the world.-Richard le Galli-

A Delicate, Tasteful Breakfast. Apropos of monotonous unimaginative breakfasts, Thomas Love Peacock once drew up the menu for breakfast "for a man of taste." "Coffee, tea, cream, eggs, ham, tongue, cold fowl,' he wrote, "all these are good and be speak good knowledge in him who sets them forth. But the touchstone is fish. Anchovy is the first step, prawns and shrimps the second, potted char and lamprey the third, but lobster is, indeed, matter for a May morning and demands a rare combination of virtue and knowledge in him who sets it forth."-London Standard.

Scotch Judges' Frugality. Scotland might safely be backed at least to rival England in the matter of frugality among her judges. There is Dean Ramsay's story of the dinner party given by Lord Polkemmet. When the covers were removed the guests were surprised to find that the dinner consisted of veal broth, a roast fillet of veal, veal cutlets, a florentine (an old Scottish dish composed of veal), a calf's head and calf's foot jelly. Observing the sensation, Lord Polkemmet explained: "Ou ay, it's a' cauf. When we kill a beast we just eat up ae side and lown the tither."—London Chronicle.

Good Start.

"I'm going to start a comedy company on the road in a couple of weeks," said the theatrical manager.

"What play?" asked the critic.
"Oh, I haven't that written yet, but I heard a good joke today that we can use in it."—Exchange.

Address and Presentation

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Melton on Friday evening April 14th, when about sixty of the friends and neighbors of Private Lewis Melton met to spend a social evening with him before his departure. Mr. Dobbin acted as chairman and gave an appropriate address. About the middle of the program Pte. Melton was called upon and the following address was read by Mr. Fred Peasly and presentation was made by Mr. James Rundle:

With feeling of deepest gratitude we your many associates and friends have gathered here this evening at your parental home to do you in honor for the manly steps you have taken in the frying hour of our national in honor for the manly steps you have taken in the trying hour of our national existence. When the war trumpet sounded and the cry went out for men and yet more men to defeat our common foe, you responded loyally to the call and gave up the ploughshare and sickle to don the honorable khaki and take your place on the firing line in bleeding Belgium and stricken Flanders to restore to the world the lasting peace. One and all we are proud of you and that you succerely fit the many sacrifices you are making on our behalf. We have spent many happy hours together and social intercourse and know that you will carry happy hours together and social inter-course and know that you will carry forward with you and fondly distribute the cheering power of yours, that you have so often lavished and not in vain upon us. Our most sacred thoughts in the future will be that you have most un-hesitating faced the many dangers on the battlefield and our sincerest wish and prayer is that you will be restored to us whole after nobly doing your bit with the deepest sense with your many benefac-tors. Your chums and neighbors assembled here have requested me to present you with this wrist watch as a token of our increasing admiration and esteemed for yourself and of our gratitude for your many sacrifices in our behalf, and we many sacrinces in our benait, and we further ask you to accept this New Testament as a slight token of kindest regards and high esteent in which you are held by the Young Men's Bible Class of St. Andrews School. Private Melton although taken com-pletely by surprise made a very suitable reply thanking his friends for the kind-ness showed towards him, then singing "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow" brought the program to a close. Jones-Lucas

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lucas, London road, at 4. p. m., April 26, when their youngest daughter, Myrtle J., was united in marriage to Warren Jones of Watford. The bride looked charming when she entered the parlor, leaning on the arm of her father. Lohengrin's Wedding March was played by Miss Rheta Helks. The bride, gowned in ivory satin with shadow lace and pearl trimming, with wedding veil caught up to form Juliette cap, with orange blossoms encircling, end carrying a shower bouquet of bridal roses, looked charming. The bride's little niece, Miss Marion Martin, and little Elduretta Jones sister of the groom, acted as flower girls. The parlor was beautifully decorated with palms, roses and carnations, of which a beautiful arch was formed, under which the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Pring of Wyoming. A large reception of about sixty guests was held in the evening, after which the happy couple left for a short trip amid showers of confetti and the best wishes of their host of friends.

The physical requirements of Amer ican soldiers and sailors are of a high standard as compared with those of other countries. The test for hearing, for example, in our navy and army is

BUT IT IS NOT VERY COSTLY.

An Experience With the Circumlocution Office That Would Have Been Amusing to the Innocent Victim but For the Dread of the Expense.

There are many curious customs in Japan, and many things are done in that interesting empire according to methods that would be called topsy turvy when judged by the standards of civilization in western lands. But in one respect the Japanese are fully abreast of any of the occidental countries, and that is in their ability to manipulate official red tape. The following incident, recounted by a correspondent of the Youth's Companion, admirably illustrates the point. He

"Although I have lived long in Japan, I have tried to keep pace with western ideas. A corner in my com-pound bears witness to the fact that I once tried to make practical applica-tion of the modern maxim Help the poor to help themselves.' It worked out in a rather surprising way. A beggar asked me for money one morning, and I saw a way to help him without, as the expression goes, 'pauperizing'

"There was a bad place just inside the compound gate that needed to be filled in with stones, of which there were plenty on the seashore near by. Here was a man who could transfer the stones to the compound for the 30 sen (15 cents) that he had asked of me. The man fell in with the plan cheerfully and set to work.

"The job was about completed to his satisfaction and mine when a police man, who appeared on the scene, asked my man if he had received permis sion to remove the stones. The workman referred the officer to me, and I had to confess that I had not thought it necessary. Evidently the officer thought otherwise, for I was politely but firmly told that I might secure a permit by applying at the city hall.

"To the city hall I went, knowing that it is not wise to trifle with the regulations of the police department. From there I was referred to the provincial building. As I was personally known to the governor of the province, I sent my card into him, only to learn that he was absent. The lieutenant governor, however, said he would be glad to receive me. That courteous gentleman was going to pass the whole thing by, but thought it well first to speak of it to the department of public

"Now, the department of public works had an efficient head, who believed in letting nothing go at loose ends. He announced that I must fill in a certain form in duplicate, making formal application for the stones. Then two maps would have to be drawn, showing where the stones had been found and the place to which I wished to remove them.

"The board of public works stood ready to make the maps-at my ex-There was nothing to do except to agree to this arrangement, since I had already had the stones moved. I thanked the lieutenant governor for his assistance and withdrew.

"In a day or two a messenger came with the maps and forms requiring my signature. After that they were sent to the city hall. Then another mes-senger took them to the governor for his signature. One set was filed at the city hall and the other at the office of the executive.

"In due time, notification came by special messenger that I was permitted to remove the stones-which every one knew I had done a week before. that prevented me from thoroughly enjoying the whole affair was the thought of the bill that I should receive from the department of public works.

"After several weeks of suspense I was notified to appear before the treasnrer, at city hall, to pay my indebtedness to the municipality. Armed with my bank book, I appeared at city hall. What was my surprise and relief to find that the bill for all this red tape and infinite trouble amounted to 11 sen, equal to about 5½ cents in good Mrs. Dubois, of Imperial St., Vancouver, can verify this. Her daughter writes: "Mother had such ulcers on her feet that she was unable to walk. She had doctors advice and treatment, but nething did her any good, and we were beginning to think she would never be cured, when a friend advised her to try Zam-Buk. She did so, and—surprising as it sounds—after a week's treatment with Zam-Buk she was able to walk without pain. A piece of iron will sink to the bottom no matter how deep the water is, because water is only slightly compressible. If water were highly compressible, as air is, the water at a great depth would be much denser and therefore heavier, and an object would sink until it reached a point at which its weight would be less than that of the water which it displaced, and there it would float, as clouds float in the atmosphere. But a cubic foot of iron weighs more than a cubic foot of water at a depth of two miles, just as it does at the surface, and therefore continues sinking until it reaches the bottom.-Christian Herald.

The Balkan States.

G IDE ADVOCATE, WATFORD, MAY 5, 1916

The countries known as "the Balkan states" occupy the Balkan peninsula, the easternmost of the three great southern peninsulas of Europe, which in its turn takes its name from the mountain range of the Balkan. This great mountain chain, running down into the peninsula, is a continuation of the southern Carpathians or Transylvania Alps. The strict limits of the Balkan peninsula place its base on a line from the delta of the Danube to the head of the Adriatic sea, but part of the territory thus defined lies outside what is conventionally designated as the Balkan peninsula.

The express was approaching a railway bridge that spanned a deep river, and a stout old lady in one of the compartments showed signs of nervousness. As the train went roaring across the structure she did not speak a word. but, seemed to be holding her breath. "There," said a gentleman in a neighboring seat, "we are over it safely." The old lady heaved an explosive sigh, "Well," she said, "if we had gone to the bottom I should have died with a clear conscience, for it wouldn't have been my weight that did it. I bore up so that I really made the train lighter than it would have been without me!"

VICTORIA'S LETTERS.

Royal Secrets That Are Stored Away In Buckingham Palace.

"We may wonder if the world will ever be allowed to see the private correspondence amassed by the late Queen Victoria." says a writer. It is stored away in a strong room built into the walls of Buckingham palace, and the queen shared her confidence with no

So long as she was physically able to do so she opened and closed the safe herself and arranged its contents. When she was too feeble to do this she employed an old and trusted secretary; but even he had to work under the royal eye. He was never allowed to keep the keys nor to read the letters that he handled.

Queen Victoria was always a voluminous letter writer, and she was in constant communication with most of the royalties in Europe. Every domestic secret and privacy of royalty during half a century is said to be represented by the contents of this wonderful safe, and it is easy to believe that the modern historian would find his hands full if he were permitted to browse among

But probably he will have to wait a few hundred years, and then his popular audience will be a languid one. It is one of the ironies of life that we can never have a thing when we want it.

Ancient Use of a Kiss. A Roman woman in the ancient time was not allowed to drink wine except it were simple raisin wine, and, how ever she might relish strong drinks, she could not indulge even by stealth-first, because she was never intrusted with the key of the wine cellar and, second, because she was obliged daily to greet with a kiss all her own as well as her husband's male representatives, down even to second cousins, and as she knew not when or where she might meet them she was forced to be wary and abstain altogether, for had she tasted but a drop the smell would have betrayed her. So strict were the old Romans in this respect that a cer-tain Ignatius Mercurius is said to have siain his wife because he caught her at the wine cask-a punishment which was not deemed excessive by Romulus, who absolved the husband of the crime

Place the steak in a slightly greased baking pan which has a close fitting cover. Cover it with tomatoes, sliced if fresh or just turned out of the can if canned. Add also one small onion coarsely chopped and a small piece of bay leaf, together with salt and pepper, Cover the whole closely and cook for an hour and a half without removing the cover of the baking dish. Add no water, as the tomatoes are moist

Preparation of Parchment. Parchment is the skin of sheep or other animals prepared in sheets to render them fit for being written upon, The heavier parchment, used for drum heads, is made from the skins of asses, older calves, wolves and goats. All these are similarly prepared. The skin, being freed from the hair, is placed in a lime pit to cleanse it from fat. The pelt is then stretched upon a frame. care being taken that the surface is free from wrinkles. The flesh is pared off with a circular knife, after which it is moistened and whiting spread over it. Then the workman, with a large pumice stone, rubs the skin. He next goes over it with an iron instrument and rubs it carefully with pumice stone

Home Grown Oats Best. The Maine agricultural experiment station has by its wide studies of inheritance in oats proved the idea cur-rent among farmers that foreign grown seed is better than home grown to have little basis. As the Journal of Heredity notes, a variety frequently behaves much better after it has been acclimatized for a year or two.

Kilbride, Ont.—"When I was only eleven months old my mother procured (Golden Medical Discovery' for me. I have taken it several times myself since and about one year ago I gave it to my two children. They i recovered very quickly with no bad results, after taking one bottle. I have recommended it to quite a number of late."—Mrs. W. J. SIMKINS, Kilbride, Ont.

Simkins, Kilbride, Ont.

The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated and the body is wasted by emaciation, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in most cases effect a permanent cure.

Get it to day from any medicine dealers.

Get it to-day from any medicine dealer; it is a powerful blood purifier, so pene-trating that it even gets at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system Remember it is not a patent medicine for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. It's a pure glyceric extract of roots, made without cloobel.

Depend upon this grand remedy to give you the kind of blood that makes the skin clear and puts ambition and energy into the entire body. You will not be disappointed. For free advice, write Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Trial package tablets 10 cents.

There are others who have no eye for the beautiful and will scatter newspapers on the streets to frighten horses and land up on the lawns and doorsteps of their neighbors, allow their dogs to run at after rigs the full length of our streets.

For the past two years certain members of the "Tennis Club" have spent scores of hours fixing up the lot at the rear of the Methodist Church, on Ontario St. and yet after all their trouble about a week or ten days ago someone (when the ground was the softest) drove a horse and buggy in both directions across the Tennis Court, with a result that is evident to all. Surely Mr. Editor anyone who would deliberately do this, for it was deliberate, must have the bump of destruction abnormally developed, or have no regard either for beauty or other people's prosperty. This is only a sample of what 's going on in Wasterd et nave no regard either for beauty or other people's prosperty. NEW STRENGTH

IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature' demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills actually make new rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Eugene Cadarette, Amherstburg, Ont., says: "I suffered for a long time from dizziness, pain in the back and sick headache, and nothing I took did me any good until I began Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These cured me after taking six boxes and I now feel better than ever I did in my life. I had tallen off in weight to 82 pounds, and atter taking the Pills I had increased to 100 pounds."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockvilled.
