Odd Feature in Boston Church

"The Church of the Letter from Home" is the name under which the First Presbyterian (Scottish) Church, at Columbus avenue and Berkeley street, has come to be known to strangers coming to Boston.

Back of the door of the minister's study, in the basement, hangs a large square wooden box and into this have fallen for many years letters and missives from relatives and friends to visiting strangers who have made the church their spiritual home.

This letter box is one of the institutions that came into being almost with the church itself.

Mail received here is either held on call or forwarded to further addresses.

The privilege is open to any one who attends the church but once and will call on the minister and register a request.

"The Church of the Letter from Home" has received and distributed many thousands of pieces of mail matter in this way. It is the only church in Boston and ever devised and carried out this method of keeping in touch with the stranger within the city's gates.

"I see many new faces every time I go into the pulpit," says the Rev. Dr. Alexander, the present pastor, "and I know that the majority of them are strangers in Boston."

"Most of them come here to seek their fortune—to make their way in the world. Much, very much, depends on their welcome here on the threshold. That is what this church tries to give them—a welcoming hand. We have established that mail box as a familiar help to them, and from that the church gets its well known name."

"The idea of having their letters come to the church has been a part of our plan for a long time. We got the title we are so well known by away back in Beach street days nearly thirty-five years ago, when Dr. Dunn was pastor.

"I believe that one in every ten of the Sunday evening congregations averaging the year through, is a stranger, and yet the church is always crowded."

Typhoon Claims 500 Philippine Victims

Additional reports of damage wrought in the Cagayan Valley by the typhoon of Oct. 12, indicate that the loss of life will reach 500.

At Aparri, where a thrilling rescue of a hundred natives was effected through the heroism of Lieut. Robert Clark, Lieut. Herdway and Postmaster Foss, the survivors say that 300 residents of the submerged fishing village which is located some distance below Aparri, were swept away and drowned. The three Americans, aided by one Filipino volunteer, were informed of the danger that threatened the village and managed to reach it by boat. Approaching the shore in a series of short rushes between breakers that threatened at any moment to swamp their frail craft, the rescuers found scores of natives clinging to the poles of their wrecked habitations. Lieut. Clark and Lieut. Tredway, carrying lines from the boat, fought their way through the breakers and swinging from house to house saved the lives of about 100 women and children. So thorough was their work that all but six of those living when the boat reached the village were saved.

The half dozen unfortunates in question were swept away by the force of the waters, while the Americans were striving to reach them. More than fifty bodies were recovered in this locality.

It is reported that many were drowned at Lalang and that the town was almost entirely destroyed.

It is feared that the storm and the resulting flood has seriously damaged the tobacco crop of the islands.

The principal supply and the best quality of Philippine tobacco is grown in the Cagayan district, where two plantations report serious damage.

Up to the present time there has been no communication established at other sections where the cotton crop is of more importance.

Maiden Trip of the Heredia

The Heredia in Command of Captain L. H. Porter, Admiral of the Fleet of Fruit Steamships, in Port.

(New Orleans Times-Democrat, Oct. 13) Bringing thirty-two passengers and a cargo of 50,000 bunches of bananas, the new steamship Heredia of the United Fruit Co.'s, New Orleans-Colon service, arrived in port yesterday morning on her maiden trip in the fruit trade. The trip was made in good time, the vessel arriving about four hours ahead of her schedule, which would have brought her to anchor about 9 o'clock. Capt. L. H. Porter, who is known as the admiral of the Company's ships, since he superintended the construction of the sister ships—the Cartago, Parismina, and Heredia—at Belfast, and remained at the shipyards until the Heredia was ready for him to assume his duties as her master, was in command and fair weather was enjoyed during the entire voyage. The Heredia is built on exactly the same plan as the Cartago and Parismina, but has one ton more capacity. Her cost was about $800,000 and her tonnage about 5,000. She has room for 125 first cabin passengers and on the promenade deck are four handsome suites with individual beds and all the conveniences of an ocean grev-hound. The cabin on the main deck is spacious and handsomely fitted with artistic and glass dome, which extends to the library and lounge room on the upper deck. In this is an upright piano and comfortable and handsomely upholstered chairs, together with a library of no mean proportions. The second cabin accommodations are for about fifty persons and the stateroom is large. The officers of the new vessel are: Capt. L. H. Porter, of Port Wade, Nova Scotia, formerly master of the S. S. Limon, in the Central American-Boston fruit trade; first officer, W. E. Helmes, formerly of the Limon, second officer, J. W. Gibson, of Glasgow, third officer, J. N. Lindsay, of Glasgow, chief engineer, J. E. Low, formerly of the Southern Pacific ship Proteus, wireless operator, J. W. Laughlin, of New York, steward, H. E. Saunders, of New York, second steward, V. Denaro, of New York, medical officer, Dr. C. M. Winn, of New Orleans.

(Capt. L. H. Porter is a son of E. H. Porter, Customs Officer, Port Wade.)

Terrible Tragedy in Shelburne County

A terrible tragedy occurred on Thursday last week near Jones Harbour, Shelburne County, when John Richardson, a lifelong resident of that place, was shot in the woods near his home by John Chivers, who mistook him for a moose. The unfortunate man was horribly wounded and died on Sunday in intense agony. Mr. Richardson, who was 82 years of age, had gone into the woods near his home to gather wood and Chivers happened to be hunting in the vicinity. The old gentleman was going through the woods with a log on his shoulder and was moving slowly when Chivers heard him and concluded that it was a moose coming through the bush. He took the log for the animal's horns and fired two shots at it. Immediately aiming lower he fired again and struck Mr. Richardson in the body. The unfortunate man fell to the ground groaning. Chivers ran over expecting to see a moose in his death throes and was horrified when he came upon the prostrate body of his old friend. He was overcome for a moment with fear and distress but in a few moments regained his faculties and summoned assistance. The wounded man was conveyed to his home where he lingered until Sunday when death came to relieve his sufferings. The melancholy incident has cast a gloom over the village where Mr. Richardson had spent a life time and was most highly regarded. He was one of the best known men in the eastern part of Shelburne County and news of his tragic death will be heard with general regret.

MILNARD'S INMINTMENT CURES DANDBRUFF

Supreme Court

Copy of docket of cases tried at the October sittings in Annapolis Royal.

(1) The Canadian Fairbanks Co. Ltd., vs. L. McNayr. G. O. Chess for Plaintiff, W. E. Roscoe and W. G. Parsons for Defendant.

An action on contract for sale of Rotary Mill. Plaintiff partially succeeded on his claim. Defendant succeeded on his counter claim.

(2) Mary E. Wyners vs. Elizabeth Hilton and James B. Hilton. W. G. Parsons and W. E. Roscoe for Plaintiff, J. M. Owen for Defendants.

Plaintiff sold a farm in Wilnot to Defendants for $2,500, to be paid on delivery of a sufficient deed. Plaintiff's solicitor tendered a deed which Defendants' solicitor advised Defendants was not a good and sufficient deed and was not signed by the proper parties. Plaintiff's solicitor thereupon brought an action for the $2,500 and interest. The Court decided that the deed was not sufficient, dismissed the Plaintiff's action and gave judgment in favor of the Defendants with costs.

(3) Norman Orde vs. Harry Vidto J. M. Owen for Plaintiff, P. L. Miller and W. E. Roscoe for Defendant. An action for trespass. Judgment for Plaintiff for amount paid into Court, $10.00.

(4) Carl M. Qumby vs. Henry Kirwin. J. M. Owen for Plaintiff, O. T. Daniels for Defendant. An action on account. Judgment for Plaintiff for the amount of his claim.

Liberal Government Returned

Canada has for the fourth time honored Sir Wilfrid Laurier with the leadership. The government was sustained with a majority of 63, according to latest information obtainable. In Nova Scotia, which at the last general election lined up a solid eighteen for the liberals, six seats have been gained by the opposition. In Manitoba the Conservatives gained four seats, in British Columbia two seats. Quebec was unchanged, supporting Laurier with fifty-four seats. On the other hand the government candidates gained eleven out of thirteen seats in New Brunswick and made gains also in Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and Saskatchewan. There were as usual great surprises for both parties. Fuller returns will be given in next issue, when the exact count is obtainable.

NEW ANGLICAN CATHEDRAL AT HALIFAX.

The laying of the corner stone of All Saints Cathedral took place Monday afternoon at 3 p. m. the ceremony being performed by His Lordship the Bishop of Nova Scotia. There was a procession of the clergy in robes and a number of clergymen outside of the city were invited to attend. The combined choirs of St. Luke's and St. Stephen's and the officials of the two congregations were also represented, the Dean and Chapter joining in the procession. The band of the R. C. R. was present and rendered appropriate music. Addresses were delivered by Bishop Worrell, Lieut.-Governor Fraser, and other prominent persons.

STRATHCONA'S RETIREMENT EXPECTED.

The report that Lord Strathcona is now at Balmoral and the surmise that this is preliminary to his imminent retirement with the rank of an earl is the subject of much discussion among Canadians in London. I suppose if we are wise we should exclusively consider how fortunate it is that Canada has a man as well fitted as Sir Montague Allen to succeed one who has so adequately and with such dignity represented Canada for so long. But as yet we fail to realize more than the fact that one of the kindest and friendliest figures known to us in our experience of London, will not be so accessible or so frequently seen among us as formerly and our regret is heartfelt. The suggestion of a new honor for him, however, gives unqualified satisfaction. It is felt to be the fitting reward of the long and worthy service of Canada's Grand Old Man.—London correspondent to St. John Sun.

Provincial Game and Fisheries Protection Association.

(Outlook) The regular monthly meeting of the Torbrook Mines Branch of the P. G. & F. P. Association, was held at Torbrook Mines on October 12th. President C. R. Banks in the chair.

A new member, Mr. J. L. Hatt, was duly proposed and elected a member of the association. The president read a letter from Mr. Russell, of Dartmouth, secretary of the main association, regarding the Port Medway River suit, or Mack vs. Dwyer, from which it would appear that a considerable sum of money would be required to help Mr. Mack in his suit.

It was suggested that as this case had a very strong interest for all who wished to have the fishing privileges on all our lakes and streams continued in this province, that members of this association who have not already contributed to this cause, hand their contributions to Mr. C. R. Banks who will forward same to Mr. Russell. Contributions from the general public will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged.

A discussion regarding the appointment of game wardens for Annapolis County took place. The three wardens appointed are located at Bear River, Milford and Bridgetown. Avarad Anderson is game warden at the latter place, no warden residing in the eastern part of the county. It was the opinion of members present that a game warden residing near the moose hunting grounds of our South woods, Albany Cross, or that vicinity, would be more likely to do effective work in this end of the county. A motion was then passed that J. H. Parker and J. White be a committee to draw up a resolution regarding the appointment of a game warden and suggest a suitable man for this work, the same to be submitted at our next meeting, to be ratified and sent to the Game Commissioner, J. A. Knight, Halifax. It was suggested by a member that the secretary through the medium of the Middleton Outlook draw the attention of the moose hunters in this district to several clauses in the 1908 Game Act. It appears that last season 17 of the 41 persons who killed moose during October and November last, in the Albany, Halfway, Springfield, and other districts of this county to the south of Middleton, failed to report to the game commissioner that they had killed a moose, with date of the killing and locality where moose was shot, thereby rendering themselves liable to a penalty of ten to thirty dollars. This section of the Game Act will be rigidly enforced this season.

FATHER'S REMARKABLE ACTION AGAINST THE C. P. R. OVER A LOST CHILD.

Early during the past summer Canada was ransacked from end to end in search for a little girl named Olive Duprau, but she has never been found.

The father, Mr. Augustus Duprau, bought a ticket for the child for Fort William, in company with an older girl—and never saw her again. Where she went to, or what happened to her, nobody knows, but it is believed that she got off the train at Fort William, and wandered away.

The father is now taking an action against the C. P. R. for damages, his claim being based on a breach of contract in failing to deliver the child at her destination. The case is an extraordinary one, and will doubtless excite considerable interest when it comes on for hearing in the courts in Toronto.

Canadian Butter and Cheese

The arrivals of Canadian butter in Great Britain continue to be small in comparison with previous years, but the quantity imported from July 1 to September 28, viz., 35,904 cwt. is larger by 4,003 cwt. than in the corresponding period of 1907. The high prices of August continued to rule in September and a further advance took place in the fourth week, the official prices per cwt. on September 24 being as follows: London 118s. and 116s.; Bristol 120s. and 116s.; Liverpool 117s. and 114s. New Zealand butter, of which 13,682 cwt. has arrived from July 1 to September 28, or 8,038 cwt. less than in the corresponding period of 1907, was quoted in London at 116s. per cwt. on September 24.

The quantity of Canadian cheese imported into the United Kingdom during the three months ended September 1908 was 709,468 cwt., as compared with 785,564 cwt. for the corresponding three months of 1907. The average prices per cwt. for Canadian cheese in British markets for the month of August were: London 60s. and 59s.; Bristol 60s. and 58s. 6d.; Liverpool 60s. and 58s. 6d. At the end of September the prices were: London 62s. and 61s.; Bristol 62s. and 60s.; Glasgow 62s. and 60s. Glasgow farmers are reported as increasing their output of cheese owing to the fine weather and the prospect of remunerative prices. Reports from New Zealand indicate that the prospects are good there also for a large make of cheese. It is stated that factories in New Zealand which have hitherto confined their output to butter are being fitted up with cheese-making machinery, so that either cheese or butter may be made according to the product that is more profitable. It is anticipated therefore that more cheese will become available for export. The imports from New Zealand into the United Kingdom from July 4 to September 26, 1908, amounted to 16,211 cwt.—Department Statistics.

Aeroplanes for all in Ten Years

"In less than ten years aeroplanes will cost no more than $500," is the prediction made by Frank Hedges Butler, the well-known English balloonist, who has just returned from Le Mans, where he made an ascent in Wilbur Wright's aeroplane. Mr. Butler thus continues his glimpse into the future:

"Lighthouses on land will be erected by the Trinity Board. To mark the way at night, lamps on aeroplanes or dirigibles will be used. With the smaller planes the speed will be terrific—100 miles an hour—and the twenty-one miles across the Channel will mean a very few minutes. Winds at sea blow more steadily than on land, and aeroplanes can be made to float on the water and raise themselves. If such machines now can carry what is equal to three passengers, there is no reason why an aeroplane should not carry more with larger planes and engines.

The north pole, the tropical forests of Central Africa, Australia and the Sahara desert will be new fields for the explorer to slide over."

TRULY HYGIENIC.

Dear mother, may I go to school? With brother Charles today? O, yes, my little maid, if Doctor Evans says you may!

Your arm must show a perfect scar (What trouble that avoids.) Your tongue be clean, your little throat Be free from adenoids.

Here in your dinner pail I've placed Some thymol iodide, With H2O2, HCL, And some formaldehyde.

Here are a pair of rubber gloves, Which must be boiled, you know; And here some antiseptic sauzie, In case you stub your toe.

When mamma was a little girl She learned her A. B. C. But you must learn to swab your throat With KClO3.

Here are your disinfected boots, And fumigated clothes; Now whether you can so or not, The goodness only knows.

Repeat it—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

New Invention for Fishermen

The Pacific Fisherman says: "E. A. Smith, the inventor of the 'Iron Chink,' the efficient fish cleaning machine that has revolutionized methods of operation in many of the salmon canneries of the Pacific Coast is at present working on a machine to clean and remove the backbone from codfish. This new machine which has already been proved successful at the factory, takes the fish as they come from the schooner, removes the head by cutting the throat and breaking the back part of the neck to save the meat on the skull.

"The machine also splits the codfish and takes out the backbone without taking any of the meat, effecting a large saving over the hand method of cleaning. The new machine is similar to the 'Iron Chink' but has special attachments and improvements for codfish. It is just completed and as soon as it is done will be placed in the codfish plant of King & Winge at West Seattle, where it will be demonstrated for 30 days."

Mr. Smith was in Gloucester recently and had several conferences regarding cleaning and splitting fish by machinery and told them that one of his famous Iron Chinks, with a few changes he could make, would easily do the work of many men. Before he left he said that he should immediately go to work on the machine on his return. From the above article it would seem that he already has it completed and in operation. It will doubtless be seen here soon as Mr. Smith said that he should surely bring one to Gloucester set it up and operate it, and show just what it could do and how fast it could do it. He promised the fish firms that he would open their eyes on fish splitting and cleaning.

Killed Comrade Aiming at Bird

Andover, Mass., Oct. 24.—Gerald Robinson, a boy 12 years old, was accidentally killed today by his brother Charles, aged 13, while in the woods in West Andover.

According to Charles, they were sitting on a stone wall cracking nuts when Charles saw a bird flying towards them and picked up his rifle to fire at it. In his haste the weapon was discharged prematurely and its bullet—of 22 calibre—entered his brother's head through the nose. The wounded boy lived only a few minutes.

BURIAL DELAYED FOR CERTIFICATE.

Peterborough, Oct. 23.—As a result of inability to secure a burial certificate, the body of Elizabeth Borland, who died on Wednesday morning, is lying at an undertaker's establishment in this city. The funeral was to have taken place Thursday. The young woman was treated by R. J. Todd, a Christian Scientist, a medical doctor not being called in till a few hours before death occurred. The doctor refuses to give a burial certificate, as does also Coroner Doctor Gray. Several doctors in the city have been asked to sign the burial certificate, but have refused.

It is expected that the coroner will call an inquest, although it has not yet been done. It will be the only solution of the trouble, as it is impossible for the relatives of the dead woman to secure permission to inter the body.

PLACED IN COFFIN, WOMAN REVIVES.

Ellis, Kan., Oct. 21.—Timely intervention of a physician who was not satisfied with the appearance of the body presented the burial alive of Mrs. Thomas Chapman, sixty years old, today, who was supposed to have died suddenly of heart disease on Saturday.

The body was prepared for burial, but was not embalmed. The funeral was to have taken place at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon.

A few minutes before the coffin was sealed a physician requested permission to see the body. After contriving his suspicions that the body was made rigid by suspended animation the woman was removed from the coffin, placed in bed and revived.

While her heart is weak, it is believed that Mrs. Chapman will recover.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Monitor:

Reports have reached me from time to time about forest fires, which start up in your vicinity, and work more or less havoc. As one who is interested in the preservation of the forests of the province from destruction by this element, I desire to call the attention of the citizens of the township and surrounding regions of the dangers in setting forest fires, and the severe penalties attaching to those who carelessly or wantonly set fires to clear up their own debris, and thereby endanger other people's property. The law should be rigidly enforced in every case of violation. Those who set fires in the woods and, as a result, burn the nearby premises should be held liable for full amount of damages to timber of others.

Another matter deserves attention. Where the farmer cuts cordwood or does lumbering on his own premises during the winter season, he should use care to clear up the brush and loose wood, which accumulate from such operations, and have it piled in heaps, and burned at some time when conditions are absolutely safe. Judgment is required in this matter. If carried out as suggested by the most scientific methods of modern forestry, the country as well as individual owners will benefit as a result.

Commending the aforesaid to the intelligent consideration of the citizens of Annapolis, and hoping that they may be on the alert to see that laws respecting forest fires may be rigidly enforced, believe me,

Very truly yours,
W. INGLIS MORSE,
Paradise, Nova Scotia.

THE TEACHER AND HER HEALTH.

Dr. Lowden, professor of principles and practice of education, Ohio State University, has a paper in the September number of 'Education,' in which he considers the health of the teacher in its relation to her work and her duty to herself in the matter. He says: 'She ought to strive to keep always at the very top of her existence. This she can do, and ought to do, by studying her own abilities, limitations, her personal hygiene. Not for a moment do I mean that a teacher shall become less enthusiastic in her work, lack interest, and really do less for her pupils. On the other hand, I mean that by conserving the health at this point and that point, here and there, that she shall always have a reserve, and in the end do longer and better service: not that she, when experience has come, through failing health, shall be compelled to give up the work.'

Dr. Lowden does not profess to go to the bottom of the difficulty. There is no doubt the maintenance of a teacher's health is largely a question of temperament, and there is no care-taking, no effort to save oneself that will avail in the case of the teacher who has the nervous, worrying disposition. When a teacher sits up, night after night, wasting her energies on routine business of this kind, instead of seeking healthful recreation, or resting in preparation for the next day's claims, it is not she, but the whole body of education, that is responsible for not a small portion of her fatigue.

Selected Story.

THE REPENTANCE OF MRS. COWSLIP.

(By Annie O'Hagan, in the New York Evening Post.)

In her narrow quarters of the end of the assembly room the matron was knitting a red hood when the clang of the bell summoned her to the desk. It was early in the evening, and the night's crop of offenders had not yet begun to be gathered in by the harvesting police. Two hours earlier it would probably have been a shoplifter; two hours later the matron would have been sure of a poor, hard-featured Phryne of the streets, or of a drunkard, sodden and shrieking. At eight o'clock, however, there was room for speculation as to what awaited her. When she saw, her professional stolidity was for the moment shaken.

Iron rimmed spectacles walled in a pair of clear, snapping, kindly, old brown eyes; hair, soft and white as the silk of the thistle, was primly parted beneath a close, country made bonnet, and was drawn across the wrinkled forehead and back to a tight little knot; the cheeks and chin where age had set its crepe like markings, were fair with applebloom tints which the matron never saw on even the roughest faces in that grim hall. The slack, decent, black frock the big brooch woven of sunny oak, the cashmere shawl about the slim, elderly shoulders, the valise of embroidered canvas—all these were new in the matron's experience.

The sergeant somewhat gruffly stated the charge against the old lady. She was lost. She had been found wandering near the Pennsylvania ferry, inquiring the way to Mystic, Conn. She was Mrs. Elvira Cowslip, and she seemed to be without funds.

"Take her and search her," he commanded exasperatedly. "And try to get her to give you some address to telephone or telegraph to, if she's telling the truth. She may be just dotty."

"You'll search a long time, young woman," said Mrs. Elvira, Cowslip firmly, and as if the matron's forty-five arduous years were a decade or two of summers, "before you find out anything more than I told that young man."

"Why," said the matron, gently, as she led the old lady away, "what would your folk think if they knew you were in a place like this—a police station?"

"Serve 'em right!" said Mrs. Cowslip, with a glitter of defiance behind her glasses.

The search revealed nothing of importance. There were a few cents in a limp purse. A tidy flannel night-dress and a sober combing jacket were rolled together with a pair of knitted slippers in the bag, and a pressed glass butter dish was carefully swathed in tissue paper in one corner of it. Mrs. Cowslip's eyes clouded as this was drawn ruthlessly out.

"I'm bringing it," she faltered, "to my own daughter that I'm on my way to see at Mystic. It's my own; I always had the egg money, an' I bought her with enough of it to set that dish as a premium. Real handsome, ain't it?"

The matron nodded appreciatively. "But your daughter will be awfully worried when you don't come and she doesn't hear from you," she urged.

Mrs. Cowslip smiled superior. "She don't know I'm comin', my dear," she whispered. "An' if I'd told that young policeman in there her name an' let him telephone to Mystic, she'd just up an' telephone her father back in—back in where I come from this mornin'. An' I won't have that."

The matron tried sterner tactics. "Oh, very well," she said, with an air of elaborate indifference. "Just as you please. This is my room, and there's no place in it for you to sleep or anything. But I'll make you as comfortable as I can in a cell."

"A cell!" Mrs. Cowslip grew perceptibly taller. "Yes," the matron nodded with her most business-like manner. "I won't let you up. It isn't a crime to get lost. And you can come around here if you get lonesome or frightened in the night. But there's no other place for you. This isn't a hotel, you know."

Mrs. Cowslip seemed to waver in her purpose of silence. Then she compressed her lips in token of unchanging resolution and stately followed the matron to the whitewashed dungeon in the women's quarters of the prison. But the sight of a un-mannered of good. So I told Emma—she's the help—to go to the apothecary's an' get me a little paregoric. She was scared too, for Luella had made her as notional as she is herself about paregoric; but I told her I was mistress there when her mistress wasn't at home, an' she went. An' I was just putting away the bottle when Luella came in. She came early because she was anxious about baby."

"Be it ever so humble," quavered the voice from the corridor, "there's no place like home."

"Well, what Luella said to me, an' what my son, John, stood by her in sayin', an' what my own husband, Mrs. Matron, that ain't crossed me before in forty years—not since we was first married—what he stood by her in sayin', I—I—"

Her fine pride and ire gave way. Her lips lost their determined line and shook; her firm old chin quivered and she sobbed.

"So this mornin' I took the egg money," she went on brokenly. "I kept the hens at John's—an' started for my daughter's. I didn't go to our station, for they'd find out from Dina Simms that keeps it that I'd come to New York. I walked—an' it's four miles an' there are two hills too—to the next village. Twice I was scared. The Fowlers were gathering in their pumpkins down at the roadside patch, an' I thought if Sam Fowler saw me he could tell Pa which way I had gone, but he didn't. An' the Lahey children were up in an apple tree near the fence, but they did not see me either. Nobody stopped me. I went on, past our own farm, that I had left to be—to have my own husband stand by Luella Johnson against me—an' I'd have gone in there an' never let it again but the people that rent it—I could just see some of them up around the doorway, weddin' out my chrysanthemum border, maybe! Well, anyway, I went on to—the next station, an' I bought a ticket, an' then I only had seventeen cents left. But I wouldn't go back. They shan't know, no; of them, where I am, till I'm with Josephine. She'll stand by me, not by Luella Johnson. An' do you think she'll like the butter dish?"

The sick stage of sobriety had passed from the occupant of the cell, and she demanded to know, with many oburgations, why she found herself in surroundings so distasteful to her. But the old lady, lost in the bitter recollection of how another ruled in her stead, no longer listened.

The hideous night wore on, and the curiosity of the earlier evening returned to her. The alarm in the matron's room kept changing. The off-scourings of the city were gathered up. Mrs. Cowslip watched through a crack in the door of the matron's room, in which she was finally allowed by that good-natured woman to stay. The procession of erect, painted creatures and of shaming dishevelled ones passed by, this with a purple stain on her cheek where she had fallen, those with the marks of each other's fingers on throat and forehead. The whole shocking array she saw. She heard the screams, the oaths, the songs from the corridor into which they passed, in the firm, unmovable charge of the small, kind, unsentimental matron. Her ruling passion mounted high. She wished to address, exhort, improve, direct them.

Finally, she persuaded the matron to let her walk through the prison before the tiers of cells. At the sight of her a silence fell, so strange an apparition was she in that place, in her homely, grandmotherly garb, with all the records of a clean and simple life set fair upon her. When she had passed, some laughed harshly and broke into singing, that none might deem them worse; but others silently turned their faces toward the white-washed wall against which their beds were propped, and hid their faces.

Before the cell of Irish Maggie, the early comer, the matron paused.

"This is the one you heard singing earlier in the night," she told Mrs. Cowslip. "Maggie, this is a lady from the country who was lost late to go on with her journey, and she is looking about her. It makes her very sad to see you foolish girls."

"I never saw a drunken woman in all my life," she said, solemnly and a little fearfully. "Oh, it's awful. But maybe, if I could see her, I could say something to her to lead her to a better life."

The matron's discreet lids fluttered down over her shrewd eyes. "I'm afraid not," she said, refraining from even an inflectional comment on the connection between missionary zeal and curiosity. "She's an old hand. But go on about the baby."

"Oh, he's a dear boy. Mrs.—Mrs. Matron! You'd love him. You've got children of your own, I guess"—she nodded towards the red hood in the matron's indefatigable fingers—"an' you couldn't help but love him. So round an' rosy an' good natured! But Luella has got no more feeling for him than a clock—not a bit. Feeds him on the hour, puts him to sleep on the hour, airs him by the hour! Ugh!"

"For you'll never know a blessing like a mother's love," carolled the old-offender from the corridor of cells, with inebriate pathos.

"Are you sure I couldn't exhort her?" bearded Mrs. Cowslip. "Our minister—maybe you've heard of him."

the Rev. Orlando Green? No? Well, he says I have a real gift for exhortin' an' that he often wouldn't be able to get a prayer meetin' started if it wasn't for me."

The matron shook her head. "About the baby?" she reminded her guest.

"Well," Mrs. Cowslip's face settled into lines of grievance, "yesterday Luella went to a meetin' of the woman's club of—the place where I come from this mornin'. She let me an' the hired girl—Luella keeps hired help an' John keeps a man; he needs one, of course, for the barn work, but as I tell her, I always got along without hired help, an' I had a big family, to hers; not but John can afford it, though. Anyway she left us to take care of little Jacky. He was colicky and cross. He fretted an' worried, an' I dandled him an' rocked him, but it didn't seem to do no manner of good. So I told Emma—she's the help—to go to the apothecary's an' get me a little paregoric. She was scared too, for Luella had made her as notional as she is herself about paregoric; but I told her I was mistress there when her mistress wasn't at home, an' she went. THE COMMON APPLE A GREAT SOURCE OF HEALTH

The Juice of the Ordinary Apple is One of the Best Things in the World For Keeping the Blood Pure.

Few people there are but enjoy a ripe, juicy apple. But how many realize that it is a medicine as well as a treat?

Apple juice has a very marked effect on the kidneys, increasing their power to throw off the waste products of the body, called urea, and thus prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuritis and similar troubles that come from poisoned blood.

Similarly, other fruits stimulate the action of the liver and bowels—others of the skin. Combined, they keep the blood pure—the body clean and healthy.

To get this effect, however, one must eat a great deal of fruit, or better, eat a little fruit and take "Fruit-a-lives."

"Fruit-a-lives" are tablets in which the juices of ripe fruits, with their medicinal value intensified, are combined with valuable tonics. They act directly on Bowels, Kidneys and Skin and put them in perfect condition, thus ensuring the thorough elimination of all waste matter and poisons from the body. Trial box 5c. Regular size 50c.—6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

ST. JOHN LADY FASTS OVER FORTY DAYS.

Miss Godard, a daughter of John W. Godard, of St. John, is afflicted with acromegaly and is undergoing the longest fast ever known in the city. Today will be the forty-first day of fasting. During this long period, the young woman has not tasted one morsel of food. The only nourishment she receives is about a quart or more of water and plenty of fresh air every day. Strange to say, Miss Godard does not feel the effects of her long period of fasting. In fact, she feels exceedingly strong and in good spirits. She is apparently in no manner inconvenienced by not eating and the only thing that the modest young woman strongly objects to is the publicity that she is receiving. She is taking the treatment as a cure for this rare ailment and finds that she is being greatly benefited and is satisfied that she is being cured. Miss Godard says she intends to fast for five or six days longer and will not partake of food until she becomes ravenously hungry. She will then commence eating a little at a time.

Acromegaly is the title given to this peculiar ailment. It is very rare and baffles the best of physicians. It is the swelling of the tissues of the body that afflicts the patient. There is first noticed a sudden tightening of the shoes or gloves, then the lips and nose become larger and the features become large. With Miss Godard the ailment caused her to gain greatly in weight and up to the time the present treatment was commenced she weighed in the vicinity of 170 pounds. It was through the efforts of her sister, who resides in Philadelphia, that this treatment was commenced. A specialist in Philadelphia advised fasting, and the time should expire today, but Miss Godard will go for another week, as she has decreased in weight about 30 pounds. The swelling of the tissues has almost entirely disappeared, her features have returned to their proper proportions and she feels satisfied that she is about cured.—St. John Times.

WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

The annual Provincial Convention of the W. C. T. U., in Nova Scotia, met recently in Dartmouth, and was well attended by delegates from all parts of the province. Practically the same officers were elected, with Mrs. C. H. Whitman, Canso, President. Resolutions were passed prohibiting the desecration of the Sabbath, Bands of Hope, etc., are to be recognized as affiliated with the W. C. T. U. Town councils are to be asked to provide labor for prisoners. Newspapers are asked to refrain from publishing questionable and demoralizing articles. The enlargement of the franchise for women is to be urged. The observance of Temperance Sunday is to be urged upon all Sunday Schools. Temperance teaching in day schools is to be insisted upon as prescribed. White ribbons are urged to patronize temperance grocers only. Militarism was denounced and arbitration commended. Members are requested to wear their white ribbons as much as possible. The convention meets next year in Sydney.

COUNTERFEITER'S PLANT.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 14.—One of the most complete counterfeit plants ever discovered in this country was unearthed today by United States and Canadian Secret Service officers, on a small farm a few miles outside of Canada, Cattaraugus county. It was operated by Thomas Washington Crozier and his son, Milton, who were arrested the other day at Oakville, Ont. More arrests will follow and the secret service men hope to clean up a bad game.

W. L. Gammon, of the United States Secret Service, and James Parkinson, Inspector for the Dominion Secret Service, returned to Buffalo late today with a complete counterfeit outfit found on the farm, which the elder Crozier bought but recently. The farm is in a most secluded locality, where operations could be carried on without attracting attention.

The capture included 150 Farmers' Bank of Canada $10 notes, 89 Farmers' Bank of Canada $5 notes, 100 Standard Bank of Canada notes for $10, and 138 United States $5 silver certificates, making a total of $3,645. In a deserted old house were discovered rubber stamps and letters, 47 engraving tools, with the sets of United States silver certificates and Canadian bank bills mentioned. The officers also found buried under an old barn on the premises a front plate of the United Empire Bank of Canada $5 notes, and parts of finished and unfinished plates.

According to the officers, the elder Crozier bought the Cattaraugus farm last summer, and while on his way from Canada always stopped off in Buffalo to drop a little of the "queer." Several merchants were defrauded last summer, and a vigilant watch was kept up.

The counterfeiters would pass United States bills in Canada and Canadian money on the American side.

Chief of Police Alexander McCleary, of Oakville, caught the elder Crozier at the fair grounds a few days after Crozier had bought a ticket for a side show with a big bill and then failed to use the ticket. The son's arrest followed at Milton, Ont.

The Croziers live at No. 9 Girard street, Toronto, Ont., and the police there have already taken a printing press from the house and are conducting a searching investigation.

The two men will be given a hearing before Police Magistrate Shields at Milton, Halton county, next Tuesday. The crime is punishable by fourteen years' imprisonment. The United States authorities can order without bringing them to this country.

A WELL-KNOWN MAN.

Dear Sirs,—I can recommend your MINARD'S LINIMENT for Rheumatism and Sprains, as I have used it for both with excellent results.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD.

The 38th Synod of the Presbyterian Church in the Maritime Provinces met in Truro recently. The first Presbytery in Canada was organized in Truro; there was held the first meeting of Synod; and there was formed the first Presbyterian union. There are three strong Presbyterian churches in the town. Within the bounds of the Synod there are 793 preaching places, manse or rented houses 204, families 27,671, communicants 44,133, S. S. attendance 31,042, total raised for all purposes $317,596, value of Church property $2,353,288. The Synod upholds one college at Halifax, pays a chair and an assistant in Dalhousie, and supports a college in Trinidad, British Guiana, and Korea. Rev. Robert Cumming was elected Moderator. Reva. Dr. Grant and Coffin, of Trinidad, and Dr. McRae, of Korea, added to the interreg of the Synod. All departments of work were reviewed. The Home Mission receipts amounted to $18,500, an increase of $1,944. The Foreign Mission work showed a deficit of $12,000. Strong ground on temperance and moral reform was taken. The Laymen's Missionary Movement was highly endorsed. The Synod will meet next year in St. John.

HEAD-ON TRAIN COLLISION.

Woodstock, Oct. 17.—A frightful head on collision occurred at Stickney near here early this morning. Both were freight trains, No. 91 and 517. Engineer Charles Humphrey, of this town, and his fireman, Johnson, were taken out of the wreck badly injured and the latter has since died. Conductor Taylor of 517 is also badly injured and it is not known whether or not he can live. The accident is supposed to have been caused by train 517 passing the south switch at Stickney. Both engines are completely wrecked. An auxiliary train with doctors and nurses was sent from here.

THE GOVERNMENT AND ZAM-BUK

SURVEY OUT FROM FORT WILLIAM TAKES THIS WONDERFUL BALM.

Zam-Buk the favorite household balm is now adopted as "The Doctor" by leading parties in surveying various parts of the Dominion lands. Mr. Henry Hall writing from Fort William says:—"Having noted how beneficial Zam-Buk is in cases of cuts, skin injuries and diseases, I determined to keep a supply handy. Being engaged to go on a Survey I thought it would be a most useful thing to take along. I obtained a supply in Fort William, and very well it did. I may say that pretty nearly every day it was called into requisition by one or other of the party for cuts, bruises, burns, or some injury or other. It is wonderful how quickly Zam-Buk takes the soreness out of cuts, burns, bruises and injuries, and on our survey it earned golden opinions from all who had occasion to try it. I have found it very fine for skin disease, and I can strongly recommend it as a household balm."

Mr. Lascelles Scott, one of the leading Government analysts, says:—"I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk which in my opinion is excellently adapted for skin injuries and diseases."

Zam-Buk cures cuts, scalds, burns, bruises, eczema, scap sores, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, chapped places, cold sores, blood poisoning, chronic abscesses, etc. As an embrocation it relieves rheumatism, neuralgia, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50 cents a box, of from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25. Send 1 cent stamp for daily sample box.

HOW HE CLIMBED.

Suspended above the desk of a bank president is this motto: 'Do the hard things first.' Ten years ago he was discount clerk in the same bank.

'How did you climb so fast?' asked the unknown writer of this story.

'I lived up to that text,' he replied.

'There's not much to tell. I had long been conscious that I was not getting up with my work; it was distasteful to me. When I opened my desk in the morning and found it covered with reminders of the work to be done during the day, I became discouraged. There was always plenty of comparatively easy things to do, and these I did first, putting on the disagreeable duties as long as possible. Result: I became intellectually lazy. I felt an increasing incapacity for my work.'

'One morning I woke up and took stock of myself to see what was the matter. Memoranda of several letters that had long needed attention stared at me from my calendar. I had been carrying them along from day to day. Enclosed in a rubber band were a number of unanswered letters which necessitated the looking up of certain information before the replies could be sent. I had tried for days to ignore their presence.'

'Suddenly the thought came to me: 'I have been doing only the easy things. By postponing the disagreeable tasks, the mean, annoying little things, my mental muscles have been allowed to grow flabby. They must get some exercise.' I took off my coat and proceeded to "clean house."

It wasn't half as hard as I had expected. Then I took a card and wrote on it: "Do the Hard Things First," and put it where I could see it every morning. I have been doing the hard things first ever since.—'Presbyterian Record.'

MORE THAN ENOUGH IS TOO MUCH.

To maintain health, a nature man or woman needs just enough food to repair the waste and supply energy and body heat. The habitual consumption of more food than is necessary for these purposes is the prime cause of stomach troubles, rheumatism and disorders of the kidneys. It troubles with indigestion, revives your diet, let reason and appetite control and take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be all right again. For sale by A. SCULPTOR'S DELAY ANNOYS KING.

London, Oct. 24.—"We shall all be dead before the memorial of my royal mother is completed," is what is reported King Edward said recently, when he paid a visit to the sculptor's studio to see how the statutory for the Queen Victoria memorial at Buckingham Palace was getting on. The electric light standards which are to surround the memorial are now being cast in bronze, but progress with the erection of the memorial itself is very slow, for, although the pedestal which is to support the imposing statutory has been ready for a long time, there is no design when the beautiful marble design can be placed in position. It will likely be a number of years before the unveiling ceremony, which is to be of international character, can take place.

and the trouble you bring on yourselves."

Maggie had been asleep for some hours. She had waked to address some pointed observations to her unseemly companions on the subject of their noisiness. Now she eyed Mrs. Cowslip surlily.

"It makes her so sad, she ain't under any force to look, is she?"

"For shame, Maggie! Have you no respect for grey hairs?"

"Not when she comes a pryin'."

"Pryin'!" cried Mrs. Cowslip. "I ain't pryin', you unfortunate creature! I'm only wishful to have you see your wrong-doin' an' your sin, an' to—"

"Bah!" cried Maggie. There was a rustle throughout the prison, denoting a movement of the occupants of the cells toward the gratings. Maggie turned away, as one doing with conversation. Then she whirled about and asked fiercely, "Was you, I say?"

"No," faltered Mrs. Cowslip.

"No! You wasn't! An' was you twelve! To service before you was twelve? No! An' was you a slave for a boardin' house before you was fifteen? No! An' was you glad enough to marry the first loafer that ever spoke a word to you? No! Or to take his beatin' if he'd only make up to you again? No! Or to work the flesh off your bones to get him money, so he'd stay with you? No! An' he never left you, did he? Your husband ain't never deserted you, has he? He's a nice, white haired, old gentleman with a cane—oh, I see him—an' he thinks you're wonderful good because you ain't never done none of the things you ain't tempted to do! An' your children—they ain't robbed you an' cast you off, I bet. It's 'Mother, this,' an' 'Mother, that,' an' 'Where's Mother's armchair?' an' 'Mamie, run upstairs for your grand-mamma's sashes!' Oh, I know, I know!"

"Come away, come away," Mrs. Cowslip, urged the matron. "There's no use trying to stop her when she gets going on like this."

"No, no," said the old lady, shaking off the hand that would have led her away.

"Neat an' warm your house," went on Mag, sing-songy. "Lovin' an' willin' the hands about you. What cause would you have to go an' drink? But are you grateful for what you've got?" She came close to the barred door of the cell and peered out at her sister, her blessed eyes, the better to see. "You're not! Of course you don't steal! You've no sympathy, but what have you got to forget? But you've got your sins an' no excuse for them!"

She turned and paced to the end of her cell. Then she whirled about.

"Go down on your knees," she said fiercely, "an' thank God for a good husband an' good children an' a good home."

The bell clanged peremptorily in the matron's room. She caught the outgoing old lady by the arm, and hurried her away to that dismal abode.

She pressed her gently down into a chair. "There, there," she said, soothingly, "stay here and I'll be back in an' instant."

When she returned from that visit to the sergeant's desk, the slow tears of old age were crawling down Mrs. Cowslip's finely wrinkled cheeks.

"There," she said, putting a slip of paper into the matron's hand—"there's the address—for the telegram; an' he, the policeman, you know, in there—he might say that I'm sorry if—if they was upset at home."

PANDORA RANGE

Train up a girl in the way she should bake, and when she is married she will not depart from it.

"My mother taught me how to bake, and told me why she always used a McClary Range.

"Now I have a 'Pandora', and, as with mother, my troubles are few. After fire is started, I simply bring thermometer to desired heat and leave the oven in charge of the baking. It's built for faithful service.

"While housewives with other ranges are poking fire and changing dampers, I sit and read the 'Joy of Living'."

"No! You wasn't! An' was you twelve! To service before you was twelve? No! An' was you a slave for a boardin' house before you was fifteen? No! An' was you glad enough to marry the first loafer that ever spoke a word to you? No! Or to take his beatin' if he'd only make up to you again? No! Or to work the flesh off your bones to get him money, so he'd stay with you? No! An' he never left you, did he? Your husband ain't never deserted you, has he? He's a nice, white haired, old gentleman with a cane—oh, I see him—an' he thinks you're wonderful good because you ain't never done none of the things you ain't tempted to do! An' your children—they ain't robbed you an' cast you off, I bet. It's 'Mother, this,' an' 'Mother, that,' an' 'Where's Mother's armchair?' an' 'Mamie, run upstairs for your grand-mamma's sashes!' Oh, I know, I know!"

"Come away, come away," Mrs. Cowslip, urged the matron. "There's no use trying to stop her when she gets going on like this."

"No, no," said the old lady, shaking off the hand that would have led her away.

"Neat an' warm your house," went on Mag, sing-songy. "Lovin' an' willin' the hands about you. What cause would you have to go an' drink? But are you grateful for what you've got?" She came close to the barred door of the cell and peered out at her sister, her blessed eyes, the better to see. "You're not! Of course you don't steal! You've no sympathy, but what have you got to forget? But you've got your sins an' no excuse for them!"

She turned and paced to the end of her cell. Then she whirled about.

"Go down on your knees," she said fiercely, "an' thank God for a good husband an' good children an' a good home."

The bell clanged peremptorily in the matron's room. She caught the outgoing old lady by the arm, and hurried her away to that dismal abode.

She pressed her gently down into a chair. "There, there," she said, soothingly, "stay here and I'll be back in an' instant."

When she returned from that visit to the sergeant's desk, the slow tears of old age were crawling down Mrs. Cowslip's finely wrinkled cheeks.

"There," she said, putting a slip of paper into the matron's hand—"there's the address—for the telegram; an' he, the policeman, you know, in there—he might say that I'm sorry if—if they was upset at home."

BLACK KNIGHT

is a revelation to housekeepers. Nothing like it has ever been made before. It means less work, because it does not get dull or brown. The hottest fire can't burn it off.

It means less work, too, because just a few rubs bring a bright, brilliant polish that always looks fresh and clean.

It is cheapest, because you get a bigger can for the money.

If your dealer does not handle "Black Knight" send his name and the full sized can.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1908.

It cannot be said that the general public in this campaign has undervalued the gift of suffrage, nor has it shown an indifference to the claims and statements of its candidates. Both sides have given and received a fair hearing. In this county the interchange of personalities and abuse has not been a feature of the campaign as it has been in other localities. It is unfortunate that this mode of attack should be so common as it tends to lower the respect the country should feel for its public men. It is, however, a signal of the general uplift of public sentiment in regard to the standard of morality it is beginning to require of its leaders, and the general trend of later day politics to make the issue not of party nor policy but of men.

The question of securing pure untainted milk is one which should claim a wider interest than it does at present. The article entitled "Impure Milk, etc." which we publish elsewhere should arouse the vigilance of every thoughtful reader in endeavoring to promote an intelligent interest in a matter of so vital importance to ourselves and especially to the children in our homes. The statistics quoted, that 195 epidemics of typhoid, 99 of scarlet fever, and 36 of diphtheria, are directly traceable to milk and the United States government's claim that 10 per cent. of typhoid may be traced to impure milk, and the statement that half the deaths of infants are caused from the same condition must awaken a realization that the source of our milk supply and the manner in which it is handled is a matter of serious importance to us. Many of our readers have the solution of their individual requirements in their own hands, so to speak, but even with the most careful selection of cows and most hygienic stabling a careless hired man or a slack housemaid may undo all our care. The only remedy must come from a general educational movement in the care of this commodity which is so important in its relation to health or disease.

Our readers will find elsewhere a letter on the subject of fire-protection for our forests. Clearing the land with fires at a dry season like the present is nothing short of criminal.

Bishop Charles D. Williams, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, after having been firebound for two days at Hogensville, back of the burned village of Metz, states:—
"The whole country is a veritable fire-trap. The woods are full of dry fallen timber, left by the old lumbermen, and slashing and old mills with seasoned lumber are everywhere. There are not sufficient clearings about the towns and no fire protection. Everything is parched with drought, yet the people carelessly clear the lands with fires."
"It is simply miraculous that more towns do not go like Metz. The situation demands, first, reforestation to cure the frequent and persistent drought; second, stringent statutes requiring lumbermen to clear the forests of debris now carelessly left, and requiring the mills and town and railways to provide adequate protection and wider clearings, and forbidding under severe penalty the careless use of fire."
"But chiefly we need officials who will enforce such laws and a public sentiment that will back them up in so doing. Unless we quit our greedy, wasteful and careless ways we shall have many horrors worse than Metz."
World-Wide has the following summary of the situation in the Balkans:—
"Ataris in the Balkans have been let during the past week. Previously Bulgaria had been clamoring for war and Turkey had begun, regretfully, to make preparations to meet the crisis. The general representations of the powers in favor of peace had little effect at Sofia until Russia finally took decisive action. She notified Bulgaria that unless she instantly modified her attitude, Russian troops would be sent, with Roumania's consent through that country to invade Bulgaria from the north. That saved the situation. Ferdinand's government had no choice but to notify Turkey of her desire for peace, and to that end would yield her wishes on the railroad question and would negotiate conciliatingly on other matters. On receipt of this communication on October 17, Turkey promptly countermanded her orders for mobilization. Austria also has now taken more friendly attitude towards Turkey and has notified her that she prefers to negotiate with her direct on questions regarding Bosnia and Herzegovina. Turkey sympathizes with this suggestion and will inform the powers of her desire that a conference be held at all, which she no longer asks, it shall confine itself to Bulgaria's action, and the question of compensation for that action. The discussion of the conference problem continues between the powers, but the desire to call one is diminishing in more than one important quarter."

A PRETTY TRUE PICTURE.
It is the business of a newspaper man to boom the town for all it is worth, month after month, and then see $10 worth of printing go out of town because 10 cents can be saved by so doing. It is the business of the newspaper to give every local enterprise enthusiastic and frequent "serifs," and then catch the mischief because he failed to record the fact that some prominent citizen has had his delivery wagon painted. To subscribe liberally to every public, charitable and church enterprise, advertise them for nothing, pay his own way to everything, and then be called prejudiced and mean spirited because a column is not devoted to that particular affair. Do you wonder that there are so many cranks in the newspaper business? It is bound to make either a crank or a philosopher out of a man.—Press and Printer.

SCHOONER'S QUICK TRIP.
The three-masted schooner Conrad S., that arrived yesterday afternoon from Port Greville, N. S., with a load of piling, came down from the north like a whirlwind. She did the total 840 miles in two days, and for twenty hours she reeled off nearly twelve knots an hour. This is going faster than most of the foreign steamers that enter this port. Capt. Cochran, who owns the vessel himself, said he will go back to Parrsboro and load potatoes for Havana. In order to take advantage of the high prices now being paid in the Cuban capital.—(Boston Journal, Oct. 22.)

TWO WOMEN SAVE DRUNKARD'S LIFE.
The St. John Sun, Monday, says:—Saturday night the timely action of two women was probably responsible in saving a drunken man's life on a West End street. They found the drunk lying across the rails in a dark section of the street and pulled him out of danger just a few minutes before a car passed along.

HELD UP IN THE ST. LAWRENCE.
Montreal, Oct. 25.—Fog and smoke have securely tied up navigation for the past four days and there are now thirteen ocean liners waiting here for a clearance. Four of these are passenger vessels, and as a result 1,200 passengers are detained. The Virginian and the Marina, which should have sailed last Thursday, are still here and the outlook tonight does not promise much change for the better. This is the third time within the past six weeks that ships have been held up by the smoke and the loss to the steamship companies has amounted into the thousands of dollars.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WHILE PARTRIDGE SHOOTING.
Charlottetown, Oct. 17.—This afternoon James Strain, aged 18 years, was taken to the Charlottetown hospital suffering from a sun shot wound in the head and thigh. Eleven small shot were removed from the wound and no serious results are expected. He was partridge hunting with several other boys near Southport and the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of one of the latter caused the trouble. Fortunately he was some distance from the muzzle, otherwise the injury might have been much greater.

Since the opening of the moose season fifteen moose have been brought to Yarmouth from Kent. Only two cows were included in the number. The male moose were all remarkable for their large horns.—Times.

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

LARGEST SHIPS IN THE WORLD.
New York, Oct. 21.—The White Star liners Titanic and Olympic, according to announcement made by the officials of the line here, will be in commission on the New York, Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton service in about two years and will be the largest and finest ships, although not the swiftest, in the world. They will be 800 feet long, or seventy feet longer than the Cunarder Mauretania, the biggest ship afloat, and will have a speed of about twenty-two knots in all kinds of weather. They will be of unusual depth and beam, to accommodate tremendous cargoes that will help to make them profitable. The line thinks apparently the problem of ocean transportation is to be solved by big and swift ships that can be run almost on schedule except in very foggy weather. It was said that the new ships will exceed the Mauretania by fourteen thousand gross tons—which in itself represents a liner of great dimensions. The keels of the Titanic and Olympic will be laid at the yards of Harland & Wolff in Belfast in January.

HOW ONE FARMER DOES IT.
A farmer wrote as follows to his home newspaper:—"When I am ready to sell my stuff I insert a little advertisement in the local paper telling the people what I have to sell and, if live stock, how many head of each and when they will be ready to ship. The result has been that the buyers are right after me, either personally or by mail, and naturally I always get the highest prices. If I want to buy a cow, a steer, a horse, or a dozen of each, I insert a little ad. that costs me maybe 25 or 30 cents and instead of travelling over the country inquiring of my neighbors who have this or that for sale, the newspaper does it for me at less expense and those who have what I want manage to let me know in some way. I save the time and expense of travelling aimlessly about and get a better selection to choose from.—News-Times, Maroa, Ill.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY INAUGURATED.
On Saturday the system of rural mail delivery was put into practical operation on the seven-mile postal route between the city of Hamilton and the village of Ancaster. This was the small beginning of an enterprise that will soon assume gigantic proportions. The arrangements had been made under the direction of Mr. Geo. Ross, Chief Post Office Superintendent, and the experiment was completed without a hitch. The carrier had to deliver mail matter in thirty-seven boxes, but he nevertheless made good time in covering his route.

LOOKS LIKE WAR IN THE BALKANS.
London, Oct. 26.—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Belgrade says that the Serbian government has called out all the first reserves and has ordered Khaki for the troops, three hundred Maxim guns and 400 military automobiles. According to this despatch, King Peter has informed the Turkish minister that an alliance probably has been concluded between Serbia and Montenegro, but that this has in no way interfered with the friendship of the countries for Turkey.

TRAMS DELAYED BY SNOW DRIFTS.
Toronto, Oct. 25.—A St. Paul despatch says that blizzards and heavy snow storms in Montana yesterday where fifteen feet of snow fell in some places, wrought havoc to the passenger train schedule on the Pacific Coast extension of the St. Paul road and trains from the west are delayed by snow drifts on the tracks.

THOMAS E. KENNEY DEAD.
Halifax, N. S., Oct. 26.—Thomas E. Kenney, ex. M. P., president of the Royal Bank of Canada, and one of the richest men in Nova Scotia, died at his residence, Thornevale, North West Arm, at one o'clock this morning. His illness extended over two years.

GRAIN CROPS OF THE WORLD 1908
The Hungarian Agricultural Ministry estimates this year's production of the world's principal grain crops in qrs. of eight bushels as follows: Wheat, 388,340,000; rye, 181,670,000; barley, 189,076,000; and oats, 422,787,000. The estimated production of corn is 1,782,500,000 cwt. Dornbusch's List of August 28 estimates the world's production of wheat at 386,250,000 qrs.

A direct and immediate system of dealing with the rat pest is that of the Paris sewers. A naked electric wire is stretched about six inches above the ground, and on it are strung pieces of horsehair. The rats paw at the wire, and are "electrocuted."

with a shine on it like something newly varnished, has no attraction for the careful dresser: Shine on his linen he abhors as a rule. It isn't good style and he knows it. It's time for a change—in the weather.

Mr. W. E. Hatt, who moved from Lawrenceville to Keene, N. H., some months ago, returned with his family last week and will take up residence in Bridgetown.

The Clarence W. M. A. S. will meet on Monday evening, Nov. 2nd, at 7.30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Norman Phimey. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

Messrs. Frank Charlton, Arthur Wade and Gilbert Gibson, who are engaged on construction of the Science Building at Wolfville, were at home on Election Day.

This evening, (28th) at 7.30 o'clock, in Providence Methodist Church, there will be a Thanksgiving entertainment by children of the Mission Band. Silver collection will be taken.

The first 1909 Calendar reaches us from the St. John Business College. It illustrates a peaceful and prosperous scene in rural life which is very attractive to the eye in its cool green tints.

Wells and springs are reported dried up all over the country and the rural districts are suffering for water. The water remaining in the wells is stagnant and should be well-boiled before using.

The man who advertises a little and then says advertising does not pay is like unto the man who burns one match beneath a five-barrel kettle of water and then says fire will not heat water.—Exchange.

The Clarence bundle of Monitors which went to the post-office at the usual time on Wednesday last remained in the office until the next day, the mail driver stating that he had so much political matter to carry, he could not take them. Probably the political matter consoled our readers.

The drought of the autumn has had a similar effect on our town water supply as in 1905 when the straits supplying the reservoir became dried up, and much trouble and anxiety ensued as a consequence. This time, however, we were prepared and on Friday the reserve supply of Crosskill's Lake was turned on.

The Union Bank of Halifax, with head office in Halifax, has more branches in Nova Scotia than any other banking institution, and its important business is steadily and consistently increasing. It now has assets in excess of $13,000,000 and its management is of the strongest and most conservative character.

Sunday next being All Saints Day, there will be a celebration of Holy Communion in St. James' Church at 8 a. m., in addition to the usual evening service at 7. At the latter service Stainers anthem, "What are these who are arrayed in white robes", will be sung, also, a solo, "Face to Face," by Mrs. H. Buckles.

The members of the Junior Mission Band of the Baptist Church held a handkerchief sale in the vestry of the church on Wednesday evening, 14th inst., the proceeds of which were $31.00. This sum is devoted to the support of a girl in Miss Churchill's school in India. There are sixty-four children in this Band, of which Mrs. E. C. Young is the president.

Messrs. Woodall and Company, Liverpool, in their last cable, state that the market is showing an improvement as the apples are more saleable. On October 14 they cabled that the bulk of the arrivals was unattractive in quality and selling largely at 5s. to 9s., some only 2s. to 4s., a 100. Prices Saturday however, show a decided difference, ranging from 9s. for Greenings to 16s. for Baldwins. Seconds are quoted at 5s. to 14s.

Monday was undoubtedly the most orderly election day ever held in Bridgetown. Although there was a strong under-current of feeling, the day was in no way marked by disorder or excitement. The service of the Telephone Company in forwarding prompt returns after the close of the polls was greatly appreciated. The office of the C. P. R. at Halifax being headquarters for the transmission of results at the polls all over the Dominion. At eleven o'clock all but isolated sections had been heard from and the electors quietly departed for their homes. Some boys who were anxious to celebrate with bonfires were prevented from doing so by Policeman Anderson, who wisely prohibited them on account of the extreme dryness of the atmosphere. It was also a dry town in other respects.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL.

There is just one way to prove the excellence of "Salada" Tea and that is to try it. Ask your grocer for a package today.

Mr. C. G. Pincombe, by the unanimous vote of the Baptist Church at Annapolis Royal, has been granted a license to preach.

Rev. G. F. Johnson, pastor of Providence Methodist Church, conducted the services at Bear River and Clementsvale on Sunday last.

Courier: For the next two Sundays the preaching services of the Digby Neck Baptist Pastorate will be omitted, the pastor, Rev. A. F. Browne, being on his vacation. During his vacation, Mr. Browne's address will be Upper Granville, Annapolis County, N. S.

The Nova Scotia Farmers' Association has accepted the invitation from the Digby County Farmers' Association, the Municipal Council and the Town Council to hold their next annual meeting in Digby, and will meet here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, January 26, 27 and 28th, 1909.

Political excitement has crowded out legitimate news from our exchanges for the past few weeks and it looks as if even our correspondents were suffering from the political fever, judging from the abbreviated and infrequent contributions we are receiving. We trust that the course of events in the various sections will be hereafter duly recorded.

The pulpit of the Baptist church next Sunday will be supplied by a member of the senior class from Acadia College, and the Sunday following by Principal DeWolfe, of the Seminary, Wolfville. The pastor of the church, Rev. A. S. Lewis, will attend the first convention of all the Baptist churches of Canada, meeting in Ottawa on the 4th and 5th of November. The church has granted the pastor a leave of absence for two Sundays and he will visit several of the Upper Canadian cities during his absence.

Considerable excitement was stirred up last week by the discovery of a consignment of seven barrels of ale at the D. A. R. station. The casks were consigned to a commercial man by the name of John Dixon, who travels for a St. John brewery, as we understand. The goods were examined by Policeman Anderson and, no claim being made by local parties for delivery, the shipment was ordered to be returned to a St. John firm. If intended for the refreshment of Bridgetown politicians, it fell short of its destination.

Mr. Stephen Winchester, a native of Lower Granville, N. S., spent Saturday in Yarmouth and left for Boston by steamer Prince George that afternoon. Mr. Winchester has been absent from his former home for 32 years. He worked on the bark Advance at Metehan in 1857, shipped on board that vessel as carpenter and followed the sea for ten years. He then engaged in the shipwright business in Liverpool, England. He is now 72 years of age. He is well-known to many of our ship captains, who were pleased to meet him during his short stay in Yarmouth.—Herald.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Dr. and Mrs. Louis H. Morse received a pleasant surprise last Monday evening when a number of their friends, who had remembered it was the 10th anniversary of their wedding called laden with tin gifts of almost every description. The genial doctor received a telephone call at his office that he was wanted at home and, his surprise was certainly an agreeable one. A general good time was indulged in by everyone, and the Courier joins their numerous friends in wishing them many happy returns of the date.—Digby Courier.

PAPER MAKERS STRIKE IS MADE GENERAL.

New York, Oct. 17.—Through the ordering out of men employed in the Independent Paper Mills, it was indicated today that efforts are being made to make the paper strike general. Several independent concerns were compelled to close down today because the men were ordered to go on strike by J. T. Casey, President of the Paper Makers' Union.

C. P. R. WILL OPERATE MOUNTAIN TRAINS BY ELECTRICITY.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 17.—Sir Thos. Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is in favor of double tracking through to the coast. This, he said, was the cause of voting $50,000,000 of new stock last week. The company is preparing to operate trains over the mountains by electricity, generated by water power for 700 miles, probably the longest railway undertaking in the history of the Continent.

AN ARMY WOMAN CURED!

Mrs. T. A. Leadley, of Amherst, N. S., writes me as follows: "Seven months ago I suffered intense pain from a large swelling on my leg. The Dr. was called in. He pronounced it a chronic abscess which must be operated upon at once so that the pus might be drained off. I objected to operations, so began to poultice with Reed's Earth Cure. The second application greatly relieved the pain and in two days was able to get up. In five days I was out. The abscess entirely disappeared. The Dr. said it probably would break out somewhere else but has never yet. I have found R. E. C. excellent for rheumatism and neuralgia. I believe it to be all you claim it to be. P. S.—Mrs. L. is the wife of Sergeant H. L. Leadley, Salvation Army. You write either and they will tell you what value they set on R. E. C. N. H. Reed, H. D. Shelburne, N. S.

OUR CANADIAN PEERS.

Not one of our three Canadian peers has an heir male to continue it. Lord Strathcona's title, presumably, will one day descend to his daughter, Mrs. Howard, who in that case will add another to the small and select company of British peeresses in their own right. Lord Mount Stephen, though he has been twice married, has no children; and the other Canadian peerage, that of Macdonald of Bernelife, is now held by the widow of the first Lord Macdonald, and as yet no provision has been made for its inheritance by her only daughter.

Impure Milk Kills Thousands of Children

(Canadian Home Journal.)

The government of this country goes to enormous trouble and expense to protect the people against bad whiskey and most ingenious methods have been adopted to detect and punish adulteration. Bad or even good whiskey may kill a man in twenty or thirty years but dirty milk will kill a child in a few hours. It kills thousands of them every summer of the well-to-do as well as the poor, and yet the government seems able to do no more than once a year publish analytical reports showing the variation of milk in butter fat and solids in various parts of the country.

Some newspapers, medical health officers, members of the medical profession and others are already doing what they can to arouse public opinion and secure much needed relief from the abominable conditions that so widely prevail with regard to the milk supply. Winnipeg and St. John, N. B., are at present the only municipalities that have anything like adequate pure milk laws and while Quebec, Montreal, and one or two other cities follow with regulations governing to some extent the standards of quality and methods of sale none of them seem to take seriously the most important phase of the whole question, the thorough inspection of the farms or dairies whence the milk comes. There is no more important issue in any municipality than its milk supply and a newspaper or public spirited citizen who takes up the question will be doing the greatest boon possible upon the community. We give for those who desire to take up the question in their own community, a few facts that may be useful in preparing a campaign.

Milk is one of the best and most easily digested foods when pure.

It is claimed that a quart of good milk equals in nourishing value a pound of beef.

It is the principal food of children who are not in a position to protect themselves against any impurity.

Half the deaths of infants are due to gastro enteric diseases principally caused by impure milk.

Ninety per cent. of the trouble with milk is dirt that has got in when milking or afterwards.

Even with tuberculous cows most of the taint results from the dirt that falls from the cow into the milk.

Perfectly clean milk never disagrees with the stomach of a healthy child and never breeds disease.

During the past twenty-five years there have been 195 epidemics of typhoid, 99 of scarlet fever and 36 of diphtheria directly traceable to milk.

A United States Government report claims that 10 per cent. of the typhoid may be traced to milk.

Impure milk is more dangerous than sewage. A quart of water will not develop as much germ life in months as a quart of milk in the same number of hours.

A teaspoonful of milk absolutely germ free exposed to the air of an ordinary milk room will develop in the first hour about 3,000 germs, in the third 15,000, in the sixth 45,000, and in the ninth 100,000, in the twelfth 200,000. The moral is protect the milk from contact with the air, clothing or anything that will contaminate.

Cows do not have typhoid or scarlet fever. Germs from these diseases get in through water added to milk or through cans washed in infected water.

Any plan that will keep milk from contamination from outside will be more or less effective.

Clean milk kept at a temperature below 55 degrees will keep sweet for weeks and will develop no disease germs.

The common plan of cleaning milk is to pasteurize it, that is bring it to 155 degrees. It has been found effective in the destruction of most germs but it is not absolutely safe.

Unfortunately it affects the taste so that children do not relish pasteurized milk like they do raw. It is thus more difficult to get them to take it.

Pasteurization really cooks the milk and thus interferes with its character. It changes the solids and destroys the good bacteria with the bad; many of the former help digestion.

Those in charge of children's hospitals and homes find that the children while relieved from intestinal troubles by pasteurized milk do not thrive as well as on the raw live milk.

Pasteurizing while destroying germ life leaves the poisonous products of these germs still in the milk and is thus no more effective as a cleanser than a good sieve.

It moreover destroys the bacteria which produce sourness and which are not harmful to health or digestion and thus takes out the "alarm bell." When milk sours we know it is deteriorating but it may be pasteurized and go on gathering its army of dis-

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's Emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens. Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking case germs and be thought wholesome.

Too much trouble is the excuse that farmers and others make for neglecting the commonest precautions against dirty, disease laden milk.

An extra man will do all the work necessary for a herd of thirty-five or forty cows, to keep them and their surroundings clean. This is the price of health to those using the milk.

Dairy cows should be regularly examined by a veterinary surgeon and all diseased animals eliminated.

They should be kept free from flies and the udders and flanks should be carefully wiped each time before milking.

Milking should be done in clean, well kept and ventilated stables. Fresh air and whitewash are foes to germs.

Milk pails should be covered and milk should pass through sterilized strainers.

Milk should be cooled within an hour from milking to less than 50 degrees F. and then placed in sterilized air-tight cans or bottles and stored so to keep the temperature at less than 50 degrees F.

Fies should be excluded from milk rooms and places of delivery.

Milk should not be exposed to the air even in a refrigerator but kept covered.

These simple rules cover most of the requirements for pure milk. Given a healthy cow and care in the handling of the milk it ought to be possible to get the pure raw product to those that use it at very little more expense than by the present careless, dangerous system.

If this is accompanied by as large a saving of human life as has been realized in some localities it is surely well worth the ambition and effort of attainment.

SMOKE ON THE BAY CAUSES WRECK.

A despatch to the St. John Sun says—Navigation has been rendered difficult and dangerous on the Bay of Fundy, over which hangs a pall of smoke, and today reports reached here of two wrecks. The schooner George L. Slipp, owned and commanded by Arthur Ogilvie, of Parraboro, N. S., is ashore three miles west of Gulliver's Cove, and will be a total wreck. The vessel left Hantsport with lumber for Boston. She struck on the rocks last night during a heavy sea and the crew was rescued with great difficulty. The vessel is rapidly breaking up. She hauls from St. John, registers 98 tons, and was built at Harvey, N. B., in 1888. The vessel and cargo are insured.

The schooner Vandy, from Metachan, N. S., for Annapolis, in ballast, went ashore in the ebb tide west of Point Prim light. She floated on the flood tide and was towed in a water-logged condition and grounded at Victoria Beach. The Vandy hauls from Yarmouth. She was built at Port Maitland in 1882. There is no insurance on the vessel.

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

Students at Yale Earned Big Money.

New Haven, Conn., October 15th.—Fifteen Yale students working as trolley-men in this city, a few of them during term time and the rest of them during the vacation, earned $2,418 last year, according to a report made public today by C. L. Kitchel, secretary of the Yale bureau of self-help and appointments.

According to his estimation, Yale students last year earned toward the cost of their education $214,449. In answer to inquiries sent out by Mr. Kitchel, 564 students representing, it is estimated, about nine-tenths of those who worked during vacation or term time, replied, stating the amount earned by each. The total amount reported was $190,449, of which $127,561 was earned in term time and $62,888 in vacation.

The members of the graduate school, 88 in number, led in the amount of cash earned, having $46,970 to their credit. Seventy-nine academic seniors last year earned $29,540, while fifty-three Sheffield seniors earned $22,529. Among the freshmen, the academics, with fifty-three men, led with $14,427, and the Sheffield freshmen, thirty-five men, earned $7,340.

Private tutoring and teaching proved the most lucrative employments, according to the report, graduate students earning $37,163 in that way. Waiting on table was a popular and remunerative employment for Yale men, and ranks next to private tutoring. One hundred and thirty-five men earned $18,460 in this way. Sixty-one students managed eating clubs and earned $7,465.

FOR CHAPPED SKIN.

Chapped skin whether on the hands or face may be cured in one night by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It is also unequalled for sore nipples, burns and scalds. For sale by A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS, W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

GENUINENESS.

There is nothing which will add so much to one's power as the consciousness of being absolutely sincere, genuine. If your life is a perpetual lie, if you are conscious that you are not what you pretend to be—that you are really a different person from what the world regards you—you are not strong. There is a restraint, a perpetual fighting against the truth going on within you, a struggle which saps your energy and warps your conduct. If there is a mote at the bottom of your eye, you can not look the world squarely in the face. Your vision is not clear. Everybody sees that you are not transparent. There is a cloudiness, a haze about your character, which raises the interrogation point where you go. Character alone is strength; deceit is weakness, sham and shoddy are powerless, and only the genuine and true are worth while.

TWO HUNDRED SINGERS.

London, Oct. 22.—Arrangements for the visit of the Sheffield Choir to Canada are now complete. The choir will consist of 65 sopranos, 50 contraltos, 35 tenors, and 50 basses. The Bishop of Sheffield had intended going with the choir but the visit being earlier in the year, but will now be unable to do so. The choir will sail on the Allan liner Grampian from Glasgow on the 23rd of this month.

THE OPENING ARTICLE IN THE NOVEMBER SCIENCE.

"On the Old Boston Post Road," is by Stanley M. Arthur, the artist. It recalls with humor and spirit the time before railroads and steamboats, when a journey between Boston and New York meant days in one of the great lumbering tallboys. The scenes along the way, the changing of many horses, the road-houses that contributed so much to the social and creature comfort of the journey, the rivalry among the competing lines and the drivers, are described in the text and pictured in a series of paintings in color.

In the third and last article dealing with the career of Richard Mansfield—these of course are only a very small part of the complete life, which will be shortly published in book form—Mr. Wiltach tells of the actor's great performance of "Othello" and of the arduous labor he put into the preparation of that play. It will be a pleasant revelation of the man to read a series of letters written by him to his little son, Gibbs. They are full of tenderness and humorous fancy and reveal a remarkable understanding and sympathy with the child mind.

Another of William T. Hornaday's articles on "Diversions in Picturesque Game-Lands" describes "Golden Days in the Shoshone Mountains" in search of mountain sheep and adventure in the open. Among the things he saw was a wonderful canyon that has never yet been explored by man.

Florence Craig Albrecht contributes an interesting series of "Friesland Memories," describing one of the most picturesque parts of Holland. It is illustrated with photographs.

In an article on "The Absentee American" Mary Crawford Fraser, a sister of F. Marion Crawford, the novelist, says some very pertinent things about the expatriates who deny their own country and never really belong to the one of their adoption. It is full of a spirit of fine patriotism and written with a convincing truth and frankness that are quite refreshing.

John Fox, Jr.'s novel, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," ends in this number with a charming picture of the return of June and her meeting with her lover in the little cabin home near the Lonesome Pine. The story concludes with a scene full of tenderness and idealism, one that will win the sympathies of all readers.

The short stories include "Grantham's Limitations," by Mary Heaton Vorse—a charming story of sentiment with a keen study of a very attractive character; "Drywater Trestle," by Helen Haines—telling of the awakening of an old Southern town; and "Pic," by Wolcott Le Clear Beard—the exciting adventures of a little Indian boy and the part he played in a bit of romance.

Beaver Flour

Gluten is really the nutriment in wheat. It is a heavy, tough substance much resembling raw dough. The trouble with Manitoba flour is, that it contains too much gluten. Bread made with it is apt to be gray and heavy, and pastry is sure to be.

Ontario wheat does not contain quite enough gluten, but it is rich in carbohydrates—which give to flour the qualities of lightness and whiteness.

Beaver Flour

is both a Manitoba and an Ontario wheat flour.

Just as much Manitoba Spring Wheat are used in blending Beaver Flour, so that each will supply what the other lacks.

That is why Beaver Flour makes whiter, lighter, more wholesome Bread and Biscuits than Manitoba flour—and makes lighter, tastier Cakes, Pies and Pastry than any "pastry" flour.

No matter what other flour you are using now, try Beaver Flour. The first sack will prove its superiority. At your grocer's.

TO JUDGE A LADY.

An English writer says: I have read many articles purporting to show how a lady may be known. In one of the articles it was asserted that "a lady may be known by her boots."

1. The Boot Test.—The last seat in the car was taken by a faultlessly attired beauty. She had a pretty foot and wore an elegant shoe, which fitted her perfectly.

2. The Handkerchief and Glove Test.—In a large dry goods store I saw a clerk cross the house to pick up a dainty cambric handkerchief for a customer.

3. The Laugh Test.—I heard a merry, ringing laugh, which I would have declared came up from a pure as well as a happy heart.

4. The Voice Test.—I heard a reader give in the sweetest, most musical voice that old but beautiful poem, "Somebody's Mother," and the next day I saw that same reader laugh immoderately at an old woman who fell and scattered her marketing over the pavement.

5. The Hand Test.—Over the keys of the piano swiftly and gracefully moved hands that might well serve as models for sculptor or painter, but those hands on a bitter cold day rarely closed the door in the face of a woman who was asking alms.

Then I concluded that while a lady should be scrupulously neat in her dress, she should cultivate sweetness of voice, and should be able to write an elegant letter, yet all these qualifications, if combined with selfishness or rudeness, would fail to constitute a lady for one of the chief characteristics of a lady must be forgetfulness of self and consideration for the wants of others.—Exchange.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

This is for the woman who has never worked outside of her own home, but who must start in to earn her living.

If you want to be a business woman do not forget that business is a bit brutal. Do not go into business to be helped or lifted gently over hard spots.

You will never be hired because you need the money, but because your employer wants your services. If you are not competent to do the work, do not embarrass your influential friends by asking them to secure a position for you.

Do not say, as they all do, "I will do anything." That means that you are not capable of doing anything. Find out some one thing that you can do and then hunt for a chance to do it.

And do not think that you are going to a party or the theatre when you get ready for your work. Dress yourself with neatness, but plainly. Do not wear transparent waists, your employer may not speak against it, but he will not like it; do not dress your hair in exaggerated styles; do not wear too many fixings. Dress suitably and maintain your dignity, work honestly and strive to improve and success will be certain.—Catholic Union Times.

PURE FOOD AND CLEANLINESS.

At the recent biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Boston, the matter of pure food received ample attention.

A great point was made of the matter of cleanliness. A story was told of a lady who gave up trading with one grocer and substituted another not far away, without giving the former any reason for deserting him.

"I let you," she said frankly, "because you do not keep your eggs covered up. I saw the dust blowing in clouds through the street—and there were your little bins of cereals exposed to that and any other sort of dirt that might happen along."

"I wish you had told me of this before," said the poor man. "Nobody has ever found fault before with my methods. I thought I was cleanly, and I was not brought up to look out for these little things."

"They are not little things," she told him. "And you are right. I should have spoken of it before—and your other patrons ought to speak to you about it, too. It is the fault of us who are housekeepers if those who supply us with our food do not take care of it and serve it to us in the right way."

SELECTED RECIPES.

Hot Supper Dish.—For the simple little supper that every one wants on Sunday nights when the maid is out and no one wants to work, the following dish is most acceptable.

It is a regular chafing dish bit of cooking, and is frequently concocted by clubmen for an after-theatre party.

Good sized tomatoes are skinned, chopped into tiny pieces, and put on the ice. Half a dozen eggs are beaten up, seasoned with salt and paprika, and a small quantity of thick cream is slowly poured in and beaten up.

Cress Salad.—Allow the cress to stand in cold water for one hour; then free it from moisture by swinging it in a wire basket. Rub the salad bowl with a piece of garlic, lay in the sprays of cress, and put on the ice. Remove the kernels as nearly whole as possible from a cup of pecan nuts. Slice one tart apple very thin. When ready to serve, put the apples on top of the cress, sprinkle the nuts over them, pour over French dressing to which has been added a teaspoonful of sugar; mix well, and serve.

CREAMED CODFISH.

Creamed codfish makes a simple and tasty breakfast dish, and may be prepared several different ways. The fish should be freshened over night in sweet milk or cold water. If in milk, of course the dish should be kept in the refrigerator in hot weather. Make the cream first and have the flour well cooked before adding the fish; this does away with the raw taste one gets in improperly prepared creamed dishes.

For four persons take a pint of milk, add to it two tablespoonfuls of flour worked into a little of the milk first, and then add two tablespoonfuls of butter and a pinch of salt to taste. Let this come slowly to a boil, stirring it frequently or continuously; let it boil fully three or five minutes, tasting it to see whether the raw taste of the fish is gone.

THE BEST PLASTER.
A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Liniment and bound on the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords.

Joker's Corner.

THE MISER OF LORETTO.

Charles M. Schwab, in a studio in New York, was describing a very mean dealer in pictures who had tried to cheat him.

"I can only compare the man with a Loretto miser. To show this miser's meanness, many stories, more or less true, are told of him. For instance: "It is said that the miser once lost near Loretto a pocket-book containing $1,000.

"The miser, on getting back his money, counted it again and again. "What's the matter?" said the farm hand anxiously. "Isn't it all right?" "Right? No," growled the miser. "Where's the interest?"

A COWARD OF CONSCIENCE.

Tired and dusty the excursion was returning from the Bank Holiday trip and Simkins, a little bald man with big ears, overcame with his day of happiness, a sort of sleep. In the hat-rack above, another passenger had deposited a ferocious crab in a bucket, and when Simkins went to sleep the crab woke up, and finding things dull in the bucket, started exploring.

"Let go Eliza," he murmured. "I tell you that I have been at the office all the evening."

ANY EXCUSE WILL DO.

Capt. George H. Knox, the richest officer in the United States army, is an advocate of temperance. At Fort McIntosh, in a talk with some privates, he said recently: "Of course, if men want to drink, they can always find some excuse for drinking."

"I once knew a New York man who drank entirely too much. His doctor, in order to moderate his tipping a little, ordered him to take more light beer and less strong wine—to every quart of beer, not more than a pint of wine at the outside.

"The patient said to me one evening a week afterward, as he rang for a bottle of champagne: "What a bore! I've drunk eight glasses of beer today, and now I've got to get away with four glasses of wine. Doctor's orders."

THE PEDESTRIAN IN 1910.

Chug-chug! Br-r-r! Br-r-r! Honk-honk! Gilly, gilly-gilly-gilly! The pedestrian paused at the intersection of two busy cross streets. He looked about. An automobile was rushing at him from one direction, a motorcycle from another; an auto-truck was coming from behind, and a taxicab was speedily approaching.

HE WOULD NEVER RETURN.
A Victor Victorius, of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers was narrating in Philadelphia the interesting history of mercerizing.

Lucile, a carefully brought up little girl of five years, returned from her first party in great glee. "I was a good girl, mama," she announced, "and talked nice all the time."

HOW TO CURE A COLD.
Be as careful as you can, you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliability, one that has an established reputation and that is certain to effect a quick cure.

Little Francis, seven years old, was being questioned, in the parlor, by his oldest sister's fiancé, as to what constituted his studies at school.

Edward prayed one night: "Dear God, take care of my mama away off in Europe; don't let her be in a smash-up. Send your angels to take care of her and send Jesus to take care of papa in Cleveland, but you stay here with me!"

Royal Household Flour

YOU cannot buy flour as fine, white, pure and nutritious as Royal Household under any other name. There is no other flour in Canada upon which half so much money is spent to insure perfect purity—just think for a moment what that means to the health of your household—how very important it is that your flour, above all things, should be absolutely pure.

is the best—most wholesome—most carefully milled flour to be had in this country. The Ogilvie name and trademark are on every barrel and sack—a guarantee from the maker to the consumer. Tell your grocer you must have Royal Household.

Literary Theft is Not Stealing: It is called Calves Genus.
 All authors steal. The capacity for stealing with art and elegance is one of the most potent equipments of the literary man.
 Shakespeare was a magnificent thief. He stole whatever he could lay his hands on in a literary way and never marred in the stealing. He stole "Measure For Measure" from a play called "From a play called 'Cassandra'." He stole "Hamlet" from a play by George Kyd. "Romeo and Juliet" he stole from Italy.
 Sir Walter Scott stole with a sublime taste. He stole from Shakespeare's sonnets. He stole from Goethe. He stole from Sheridan.
 Charles Reade claimed the right of the literary artist to set jewels, even though the gems are the property of another.
 Alexandre Dumas, the author of "The Three Musketeers" and "Monte Cristo" was one of the most remarkable thieves in literature. In one single year his name was attached to no fewer than forty different books. Not only did he steal unashingly from every author who came handy, but he employed other literary ghosts and passed off their work as his own.
 Brought to book, he had a ready reply. "The man of genius does not steal," he said; "he only conquers."
 Alexander Pope, who translated thousands of pounds by his poetic translation of Homer's "Iliad," was an indifferent Greek scholar. In addition to stealing from previous translators, he employed others to help and then claimed the whole work as his own.
 When he translated "The Odyssey" he kept the public in ignorance that only twelve books could be called his and that the rest were the work of men whom he paid badly.
 The arguments in Pope's "Essay on Criticism" were furnished by Lord Bolingbroke, and his "Essay on Criticism" was a poetic version of the conversation of his intimates.
 Richard Brinsley Sheridan, wit, dramatist and politician, stole his famous character Charles Surface and Joseph Surface in "The School for Scandal" from Tom Jones and Bill in Fielding's well known novel, and he introduced Tabitha Bramble and Sir Robert Blackall and transformed them into those still more entertaining characters Mrs. Malaprop and Sir Lucius O'Trigger in "The Rivals."
 Of modern authors who stole and are stealing still the present writer does not say a word. Only history can afford to be free spoken.—Exchange.

Word Painting.
 Mrs. Bradley, when questioned by a fellow traveler in the Pullman car in regard to her home, launched forth into a rather long and detailed description of its charms. Her little girl, Grace, who had been reading when she began to speak, soon closed her book and listened with great interest.
 "It must be very pleasant," remarked the chance acquaintance, somewhat perfectly, when Mrs. Bradley finished, and Grace, her eyes gleaming with enthusiasm, said: "Oh, it must be perfectly lovely! What place is it, mamma?"
 "Why, our own home, of course," answered the mother, somewhat embarrassed.
 "Oh, dear," said Grace, sighing, "how much better it sounds than it looks!"

Need and Needs.
 Perhaps many persons have wondered why we are taught to say "He need not do that" instead of "He needs not do that," as the singular pronoun, he, requires under ordinary conditions the singular form of the verb. The reason is that in a sentence of that kind, a negative sentence, expressing requirement or obligation, "need" becomes an auxiliary and takes no change of termination in the third person singular. This exception is laid down in the grammar.
The Iron Crown.
 The iron crown of Lombardy, so called from the narrow iron band with which it is supposed to have been besetted out of one of the nails used at the crucifixion, was probably first worn by Agilolph at his coronation in 501. The historic crown after gracing the brows of such sovereigns as Charlemagne, Henry of Luxemburg, Frederick IV, Charles V, and the great Napoleon was in 1806 given up to Victor Emmanuel and is now preserved with great care at Monza, near Milan.
Extravagance.
 "This is your little sister, Tommy," said the father, showing him the baby.
 "You will love her dearly, will you not?"
 "Yes, of course," replied Tommy, inspecting the latest arrival, "but it'll cost a great deal to keep her, won't it?"
 "I presume so."
 "Yes," said Tommy, with a long drawn breath, "and when I asked you the other day to buy me a white rabbit you said you couldn't afford it."
This is a Fact.
 "When a man loves a girl in a novel he raves about her through forty chapters. In real life he never mentions her name."
 "What's the application?"
 "Merely that realism in a love story is not possible."
Still Faithful.

Pen and Ink Pirates.
Literary Theft is Not Stealing: It is called Calves Genus.
 All authors steal. The capacity for stealing with art and elegance is one of the most potent equipments of the literary man.
 Shakespeare was a magnificent thief. He stole whatever he could lay his hands on in a literary way and never marred in the stealing. He stole "Measure For Measure" from a play called "From a play called 'Cassandra'." He stole "Hamlet" from a play by George Kyd. "Romeo and Juliet" he stole from Italy.
 Sir Walter Scott stole with a sublime taste. He stole from Shakespeare's sonnets. He stole from Goethe. He stole from Sheridan.
 Charles Reade claimed the right of the literary artist to set jewels, even though the gems are the property of another.
 Alexandre Dumas, the author of "The Three Musketeers" and "Monte Cristo" was one of the most remarkable thieves in literature. In one single year his name was attached to no fewer than forty different books. Not only did he steal unashingly from every author who came handy, but he employed other literary ghosts and passed off their work as his own.
 Brought to book, he had a ready reply. "The man of genius does not steal," he said; "he only conquers."
 Alexander Pope, who translated thousands of pounds by his poetic translation of Homer's "Iliad," was an indifferent Greek scholar. In addition to stealing from previous translators, he employed others to help and then claimed the whole work as his own.
 When he translated "The Odyssey" he kept the public in ignorance that only twelve books could be called his and that the rest were the work of men whom he paid badly.
 The arguments in Pope's "Essay on Criticism" were furnished by Lord Bolingbroke, and his "Essay on Criticism" was a poetic version of the conversation of his intimates.
 Richard Brinsley Sheridan, wit, dramatist and politician, stole his famous character Charles Surface and Joseph Surface in "The School for Scandal" from Tom Jones and Bill in Fielding's well known novel, and he introduced Tabitha Bramble and Sir Robert Blackall and transformed them into those still more entertaining characters Mrs. Malaprop and Sir Lucius O'Trigger in "The Rivals."
 Of modern authors who stole and are stealing still the present writer does not say a word. Only history can afford to be free spoken.—Exchange.

Word Painting.
 Mrs. Bradley, when questioned by a fellow traveler in the Pullman car in regard to her home, launched forth into a rather long and detailed description of its charms. Her little girl, Grace, who had been reading when she began to speak, soon closed her book and listened with great interest.
 "It must be very pleasant," remarked the chance acquaintance, somewhat perfectly, when Mrs. Bradley finished, and Grace, her eyes gleaming with enthusiasm, said: "Oh, it must be perfectly lovely! What place is it, mamma?"
 "Why, our own home, of course," answered the mother, somewhat embarrassed.
 "Oh, dear," said Grace, sighing, "how much better it sounds than it looks!"

Need and Needs.
 Perhaps many persons have wondered why we are taught to say "He need not do that" instead of "He needs not do that," as the singular pronoun, he, requires under ordinary conditions the singular form of the verb. The reason is that in a sentence of that kind, a negative sentence, expressing requirement or obligation, "need" becomes an auxiliary and takes no change of termination in the third person singular. This exception is laid down in the grammar.
The Iron Crown.
 The iron crown of Lombardy, so called from the narrow iron band with which it is supposed to have been besetted out of one of the nails used at the crucifixion, was probably first worn by Agilolph at his coronation in 501. The historic crown after gracing the brows of such sovereigns as Charlemagne, Henry of Luxemburg, Frederick IV, Charles V, and the great Napoleon was in 1806 given up to Victor Emmanuel and is now preserved with great care at Monza, near Milan.
Extravagance.
 "This is your little sister, Tommy," said the father, showing him the baby.
 "You will love her dearly, will you not?"
 "Yes, of course," replied Tommy, inspecting the latest arrival, "but it'll cost a great deal to keep her, won't it?"
 "I presume so."
 "Yes," said Tommy, with a long drawn breath, "and when I asked you the other day to buy me a white rabbit you said you couldn't afford it."
This is a Fact.
 "When a man loves a girl in a novel he raves about her through forty chapters. In real life he never mentions her name."
 "What's the application?"
 "Merely that realism in a love story is not possible."
Still Faithful.
 Mlle. Suzanne—is that young man still under the window? Maid—Well, mademoiselle, he's running around in the snow to keep himself warm but he goes in the shape of a heart all the time.—Bon Vivant.
 Going to law is losing a cow for the sake of a cat.—Chinese Proverb.
