THE MODERN COURSE OF TRUE LOVE.

perfect, and—here Dora paused in dismay. The cheese might be a first-rate one, and was so, no doubt, but it was no longer in her possession. She had probably left it at the bric-a-brac shop.

DORA

By JULIA KAVANAUGH, Author of "Nathalie," "Adele," "Queen Mab," &c

"I wonder if the book is a dear one?" she thought. She hesitated a while, then ventured into the shop with the volume in her hand. The dealer was not alone. There was a customer with him, a slender, dark man, for whom he held a candle in a dingy iron candlestick.

CHAPTER X.

Mrs. Courtenay was getting restless when her daughter came home. "My dear, how long you have been gone!" she said, with a sigh of relief.

the earth, and saw the little old woman whose distress she had relieved the day before. "I am glad of it," she replied, with a smile. "And what is your name, mademoiselle?"

"This is particularly good cheese," he continued in a positive tone. "Now," he added, giving it up to her and putting his hands behind his back, "it is a pity you cannot draw; I would have let you have Epictetus for a crayon sketch like this; and he took and finished one before her eyes.

"I have one or two things by me," said Dora, still doubting his sincerity; shall I show them to you to-morrow?" "Perhaps you had better not," kindly replied Monsieur Merand. "I am a severe critic, and—and we all know how young ladies draw."

"I am sure you are a lucky girl," thought Dora, looking down at her. She laughed slyly, and showed her book; and sprang up-stairs. No sunbeam was brighter than Dora when she broke in upon her mother and her aunt.

twenty francs a drawing, and wants two more by Saturday. We shall be quite rich now. And Paolouze—she is Paolouze—is going to find in the room."

"I shall keep the cupid and the Dying Gladiator—for another time, if, as I hope, Monsieur Merand will want them. And now, mamma, since I am getting rich again, we shall take drives in the country and you and aunt must get a silk dress each, and I shall try books, and hire a piano."

"I have got a Cupid and a Dying Gladiator," replied Dora, with a gentle thrill of emotion. "Will you let me see them?" asked Monsieur Merand, rather eagerly.

Nanette's door was open, so Dora had no trouble in finding her. Nanette lived in a room which was about the size of a large cupboard, but which was exquisitely clean and neat, and Nanette being as small and as neat and as clean as her room, looked more than ever like a fairy, in Dora's opinion.

"I have got a Cupid and a Dying Gladiator," replied Dora, with a gentle thrill of emotion. "Will you let me see them?" asked Monsieur Merand, rather eagerly.

Nanette was fairly conquered. Candles were the secret desire of her heart. Even pride and ill-temper could not reject such a boon. She put her withered hand on Dora's and looked up in her face.

It was not merely the money, though that was welcome; it was also and especially the sense of leading a useful and active life, which charmed her. She had been poor, and she had been, if not rich, at least in easy circumstances, but never before this time had she earned money; never had she felt independent, and one of the great science of social life. It was a delightful feeling, and the more delightful that habit and time had not yet deadenied its enjoyments, and destroyed its freshness. And thus the happy summer stole away.

On a bright afternoon in September, Dora, on leaving the picture-gallery, went to the house of a poor girl out of work, from whom she had ordered a frame a month back for a drawing she had undertaken on her own account. A series of misfortunes had prevented Dubois from keeping his promise. Dora had been patient and forbearing, and generous even, but now her patience was out, and she entered the dark lane at the end of which Dubois lived, prepared to bestow nothing upon him save a severe scolding. "I shall not be at all good-natured," she thought; "but very firm and dignified." As she came to this austere resolve, Dora reached the girl's door, but when a dirty child admitted her within, and she once more saw the poverty-stricken aspect of the place, her heart relented.

There is a terrible resemblance between all poor homes. Place them in what latitude, under what sky you will, they are akin in three essential characteristics—darkness, dirt, and dinginess; we do not speak of exceptions, but of the general rule. Some features, too, they have in common to a singular degree. Why, for instance, must the poor be everywhere so fond of poultry? The Dubois had three children, but they also found room for a white hen, which went scratching and cackling about their two rooms. Dora had often looked at that hen with a secret shudder, inspired by the thought that it might possibly be killed, taken to market, and there purchased by Mrs. Luau for home consumption. "It must be such a fowl as this that she brought home last week," thought Dora, now watching the wretched bird as it wandered under an old bedstead, and looked ghost-like in that gloomy refuge; "one should really know more about the creatures one eats, and what their rearing has been, for instance."

Now that we have our daily, the Evening Post, in the market for public favor, and being anxious to extend its circulation and influence, we commence this week to mail sample copies to every subscriber to the True Witness.

The terms to subscribers are as follows:— One year $3.00, cash in advance. Six months $1.50, cash in advance. Three months 75c.

The amount in postage stamps will suffice when change in coin is not at hand. In all cases we pay the postage. Just think of it; a first-class daily newspaper, for three months, for seventy-five cents!

FRENCH CANADIANS AND IRISH.

The eyes of some of our contemporaries are uncaring as an April day. They profess desire to see the old well mowed "bones of contention" and national prejudices and find a "Union" the best of good citizenship.

ONE WAY OF SETTLING THE ORANGE QUESTION.

Orangemen, like all other noxious weeds, comes not from capital, but from the want of it. No man with considerable stake in our midst, and no man with such reputation, could be identified with such an organization.

THE TWELFTH.

We trust the authorities will take steps to lose the drinking saloons on the Twelfth. The necessity for doing this is apparent, and it may have some effect in restraining men who might otherwise be tempted to commit excess.

should insist upon every drinking bar in the city being closed, on the Twelfth. The law provides that these bars can be closed on election days, but the Twelfth of July is a day when party passions run higher than at any election.

A HOLE IN THE WALL.

A meeting of magistrates, called, as one of them said, "by nobody," was held on Friday at the City Club. From reports in the morning papers the meeting appears to have been informal and irregular.

"JUSTICE."

We publish a letter this morning signed "Justice," complaining of the treatment Catholics are subjected to in the Police and Fire departments in this city. We find some difficulty in believing that the state of affairs is as "Justice" represents them, and we incline to the belief that there is some mistake or that a satisfactory explanation can be given.

"THE ONLY RELIGIOUS DAILY."

"The only religious daily" continues to pursue the rugged tenor of its way. Day by day it fights the world, the flesh, and the devil, and adds "Popery" as the sum total of them all. At times such as these, when the public are all expectation and partisanship all fight, "the only religious daily" adds fuel to the flame by assailing "the absurd and revolting rapprochements" of the Catholic Church.

With devotion's visage And pious action, doth sugar o'er The devil himself.

INDEPENDENT JOURNALISM.

As it is the privilege of Independent Journalism to attack all abuse; it is its misfortune to come under the lash of all shades of opinion. For instance, the Nouveau Monde attacks the Post, because we remember that the Conservative Party would not pass a Party Procession Act.

Orangemen an opportunity to parade its triumphs, and if the merchants of Montreal would act upon these precepts the question would be settled.

THE CONGRESS.

The question of using Indian troops in European warfare was brought before Congress yesterday, and the cable said that "it created something of a sensation." Congress appears to sweep into its embrace questions which appear outside the range for which it was called together.

MR. McSHANE, M. P. P.

A few days ago we had occasion to point out the vacillating policy of Mr. McShane on the proposed Party Procession Act question. We still hold to the opinion that Mr. McShane has not toed the line, and his constituents should keep a sharp lookout upon him.

"GUARDS OF HONOR."

A rumor has been telegraphed all over the country that the "St. Jean Baptiste Infantry Company turned out as a guard of honor to Father Dowd and the Irish societies" on the occasion of the Fete Dieu procession in Montreal.

TEMPERANCE IN IRELAND.

Temperance reform is progressing satisfactorily in Ireland. From recent returns we learn that in 1877 duty was paid in the United Kingdom on 29,888,176 gallons of home made spirits, which was 62,112 gallons less than in the present year.

REFUSED.

Some time since, a movement was made to revive the 4th Battalion of Volunteers, in the 6th Military District. In order to facilitate the formation of the new corps three Independent Companies were returned as inefficient, and an application made for the transfer of their headquarters, from the country to Montreal.

more, there are some things in Les Orangers with which we do not agree. But all these attacks are the shafts which Independent Journalism draws upon it, and we can only let them rain away.

AS IT OUGHT TO BE.

Wednesday witnessed an interesting ceremony at the Windsor Hotel. Mr. McMaster, last President of the Irish Protestant Benevolent Society, was presented with an address on the occasion of his departure to settle in Toronto.

RESPONSIBILITY.

The Witness is angry with the Mayor, annoyed with "certain prints," and slanderously offensive to the Catholic clergy, and all because of the Orange question. The Mayor does not spring to the assistance of the Orangemen, "certain prints" extend their sympathy to men deadly hostile to the organization, and the Catholic clergy do not denounce overtly.

CATHOLICS AND PROTESTANTS.

The Herald of Friday morning says, that the Orange difficulty is "not a quarrel between Protestants and Catholics, it is not a quarrel between Protestant and Catholic Irishmen, but it is one between Irishmen and the rest of the world. It is merely an old faction fight: revived in this country between Orangemen, or a certain number of them and a certain number of Irish Catholics.

neither encourage nor approve of a branch of the peace—but if the Witness thinks it can force us to be silent by insinuating calumnies, then it is very much mistaken. Orangemen has no business here, and the idea that Catholics should consent to pay taxes to protect it, is too absurd to require serious attention.

THE OBANGE QUESTION.

WHAT IT COSTS US—SO FAR! The gentlemen who are anxious to incur additional taxation for the purpose of "protecting" the Orangemen, would do well to ponder over the little bill of costs which has been paid by the City of Montreal for Orange riots since 1858:

Table with 2 columns: Year/Event, Cost. 1859. Paid J. W. Carson for damages to his property by a mob in July, 1859. 116 23. 1861. Paid Ed. Carter, divorcee, and a judgment obtained by Lavigne and Caron for damages suffered by them in consequence of the burning of the Douglas Mills on the 12th July, 1861. 1,600 00.

This is an average cost of about $1,000 a year. The people of Montreal will be surprised to learn of this unthought-of tax upon their revenues, and, if we mistake not they will decide that it is time to put a stop to it.

LEAVE IT TO THE MAYOR.

The Mayor has issued his proclamation—peace will be preserved—and "no assemblage or gathering of people shall be allowed in the streets or elsewhere in the city." This is the civic command and all good citizens will obey.

THE LEGALITY OF THE ORANGE ORDER.

(To the Editor of the Witness.) Sir—It has been repeatedly stated by the True Witness and other Catholic journals that the Orange Association is an illegal one. So often and so openly has the statement been made, and it never having been properly met and contradicted, that Roman Catholics generally believe it to be true, and, as the law does not recognize or protect them, they have a perfect right to kill and maltreat them.

a bad day for Canada when legal protection for Catholics is at an end, for Orange ascendancy is so frightful a thing that there is no telling what might be the consequences of it. They have gone far enough and we look to the laws to protect us from further encroachments. But we are aware of their object for this parade. The Orangemen think if they walk this year that the Catholics will become accustomed to their display and will offer no resistance in future.

THE MEETING ON FRIDAY.

Beaten, fairly and overwhelmingly beaten, on their own ground, Messrs. Clendinning, Mercer and others are now seeking another means by which they think they can triumph. They assisted at the meeting of magistrates yesterday—may, they were instrumental in calling it—but the results have disappointed them.

IS ORANGEMEN ILLEGAL?

The following letter appeared in last night's Witness:— THE LEGALITY OF THE ORANGE ORDER. (To the Editor of the Witness.) Sir—It has been repeatedly stated by the True Witness and other Catholic journals that the Orange Association is an illegal one.

Matters of Public Order.

An Act respecting riotous and unlawful associations. 1st. DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

A book for the information of young ladies as to the best method of employment and amusing themselves, should certainly contain a few hints on this most important subject.

Under its head must be classed the best modes of cleaning and preserving our 'household gods,' so little known, unfortunately, by those who have the charge of them.

The very best material for cleaning plate that is in constant use is soap and water with a soft cloth.

TO CLEAN IVORY. If the real ivory handles of the knives should get stained, make a paste of sal volatile, prepared chalk, and oil;

TO CLEAN KNIVES. They should be held in a straight position on the knife-board, and moved backwards and forwards in as direct a line as possible.

THE KING OF RIFLEMEN.

HIS WONDERFUL EXPLOITS IN BOSTON—AN EDITION IN DEERFOOT PARK.

Dr. W. F. Carver, the wonderful rifleman, arrived at the Astor House recently. He left Boston yesterday morning.

On the 4th, 5th, and 6th of July the Doctor will give an exhibition of his wonderful skill in Deerfoot Park.

In New Haven on June 12, Dr. Carver broke 1,000 glass balls with a Winchester rifle in 72 minutes.

What shall I give? To the hungry, give food; to the naked, clothes; to the sick, some comfort; to the sad, a word of consolation;

WAS BRYANT A UNITARIAN?

[Janesville (Wis.) Gazette.] Rev. Mr. Clithero made a statement yesterday in regard to the late William Cullen Bryant, which will prove of interest to all those who have concerned themselves in regard to Mr. Bryant's religious belief.

"Deem not that they are blest alone, Whose days a peaceful tenor keep; The God who loves our race has shown A blessing for the eyes that weep."

He remarked that Bryant had sent a request to the publisher of the new Methodist hymn and tune book, that in their version they would alter the third line so that the verse would read:

"Deem not that they are blest alone, Whose days a peaceful tenor keep; The God who loves our race has shown A blessing for the eyes that weep."

The statement was made that this verse will appear in the new book thus changed at Mr. Bryant's own request.

USEFUL RECIPES. BOILED TURNIP-GREENS.—Wash well; tie in small bunches; put them in plenty of boiling water, with a tablespoonful of salt to two quarts of water.

CONSERVES OF STRAWBERRIES.—Select the finest, firmest fruit. To a pound of strawberries allow half a pound of white sugar.

ASPARAGUS.—Asparagus should be cooked as soon as cut, but if this is not done the stalks should be plunged in cold water until time for boiling.

LETTER-SALAD.

Plunge into warm water three good sized heads of lettuce; this will rid them of any insects which may be hidden among the leaves, but it allowed to remain long in the warm water the lettuce will wilt.

THE ELECTRIC EEL AND HOW IT IS CAPTURED.—The electric eel is remarkable for delivering powerful shocks of electricity, and is a native of South America.

HOW THEY DO IT IN JAPAN.

The Japanese assassins who murdered the Minister Okubo were a curious set of murderers. According to the Tokio Times they announced their purpose before executing it.

was discovered. In the meantime the six assassins had met Okubo, cut him to pieces, washed their hands at a neighboring spring and proceeded to the palace, where they proclaimed the deed and gave themselves up to justice.

NATURALIST'S PORTFOLIO.

SINGING BIRDS IN THE OLD AND NEW WORLDS.—It is a very unfounded notion that in the New World the brilliant lines of the birds take the place of the power of song.

THE CAMEL.—There has been some conflict of opinion among zoologists as to whether the camel exists anywhere in a wild state or not.

THE AFRICAN HONEY-BIRD.—The honey-bird is about as large as a grey mocking-bird, and is of similar color. It endeavors to attract the attention of travellers, and to induce them to follow it.

THE COLOR OF THE RED SEA.—Rumor says that the Red Sea is losing its ruddy hue, which, as is well known, is due to the presence of a microscopic plant.

THE BENEFIT OF LAUGHTER.—There is not the remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood vessels of the human body that does not feel some wavlet from the convulsions occasioned by a good hearty laugh.

AMERICAN SCARBROWS.—The Americans have a curious method of frightening away crows from a newly-sown field.

THE SPIDER AND THE LIZARD.—The following fact would seem to indicate that even in our own temperate climate an insect not generally recognized as poisonous may inflict a fatal injury on its human enemy.

THE DISEASES OF THE HORSE, AND THE ACCIDENTS TO WHICH HE IS LIABLE, WITH THEIR TREATMENT.

THE DISEASES AND INJURIES OF BONE. General Remarks—Splenitis—Ringsbone and Sidebone—Ossification of the Lateral Cartilages—None Spavin—Exostosis of the Ilium and Scapula—Fistula of the Withers—Poll Evil—Caries of the Jaw—Osteo Sarcoma—Fractures.

THE DISEASES OF BONE are not commonly attended by constitutional disturbance, and neither require an examination of general symptoms, nor the adoption of any but local treatment.

Exostosis is the result of increased action in the nutrition of the part, and is much more prevalent in young horses than in old.

After cutting the hair short, rub a little into the skin covering the splint, every night until a free watery discharge is produced from the surface.

HOW TO GET RID OF FLIES. We believe that the witty man of the Burlington Herald was trying to be serious when he wrote the following paragraph:

THE STRICT DEFINITION of this disease is "an exostosis from the lower part of the small metacarpal bone, connecting it by bony union with the large metacarpal bone."

The symptoms of splint are generally a greater or less degree of lameness during its formation, but sometimes it may go on to attain a large size without any such result.

It has been the aim of the Commercial Review, in the exhibits we have made of the various branches of industry with which our city abounds, to mention only those establishments that can be fairly called representatives of their trade.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS. A never-failing revolver—The earth. A rolling mill—A fight in the gutter.

PROVERBIAL—A rule without an exception—A carpenter. What herb is it which cures all diseases—Thyme (time).

Now is the time to put your hens under bonds with a coop on. A man always willing to make room for others—The carpenter.

When is the best time to buy cider? When it is not very clear, as it will then settle for itself. "Dying in poverty," says a modern moralist, "is nothing; it is living in poverty that comes hard on a fellow."

THE EMPRESS OF AUSTRIA wears a train thirty feet long, and when she walks upstairs, the disheartened Emperor goes up in the elevator. The difference between perseverance and obstinacy is, that one often comes from a strong will, and the other from a strong will.

Never take a bull by the horns, young man," counsels Josh Billings, "but take him by the tale; then you can let go when you want to." "What are you going to do with this?" asked a workman of the stage-carpenter in a theatre, pointing to pieces of scenery. "That remains to be seen," was the reply.

Physician: Put out your tongue a little further. Patient: Why, doctor, do you think a woman's tongue has no end? Physician: An end, perhaps, madam; but no cessation. There is this difference between happiness and wisdom: he that thinks himself the happiest man really is so; but he that thinks himself the wisest man is generally the greatest fool.

The wickedest man in the world—West West West—perpetrates the following in the columns of the St. Louis Journal: Russia is by no means consumptive, albeit she has Gortchikov. Inability to sleep is the first step toward madness, while sound and sufficient sleep imparts a vigour to the mind, and a feeling of well-being and activity to the body which are beyond price.

The world is a looking-glass, and gives back to every man the reflection of his own face. Frown at it, and it will in turn frown only upon you; laugh at it and with it, and it is a jolly, kind companion. Saxon Angler: Oh, but I can't try for a salmon. I haven't got a license. Native: Is it a license you want to kill a fish? Sure you might kill a man or two about here, and nobody'd say a word 'till!

"The funeral was elegant," wrote the waiting-maid of a lady whose husband had just been buried, to her sweetheart. "I was dressed in black silk, the flowers were lovely, and mistress wept just like a born angel." It is a terrible give way, says the Burlington Herald, when a temperance lecturer, pausing in his speech to take a drink of water sets the glass down and lazily reaches out toward the end of the table for a couple of coffee grains.

"Huh! huh!" cried a young lawyer who succeeded to his father's practice. "I've settled that old lawsuit at last." "Settled it?" exclaimed the astonished parent; "why, we've supported the family on that for the last ten years." THE POPULAR AIR.—I'm so glad you've come, Charley; we want to hear one of your songs. "All right; I've only brought one tonight," Nancy Lee. "Oh, dear, how unfortunate! We've had that twice already, and all the other gentlemen have brought it."

A SCOTCH GHOST. The highly practical and long-headed town of Pollokshaws has just started a very creditable ghost of its own, and great excitement is said to prevail in the neighborhood as to the identity of this mysterious visitant. It has established itself in an empty shop, and no sooner does darkness set in than quite a tumult takes place within the building. Knockings of all sorts, stampings, scratching, and "unearthly noises," whatever they may be, are heard in the open street every night by the crowd which collects to refresh itself with a sniff of the supernatural. So great is the excitement about this poor ghost that strong bodies of police have to be stationed at the spot to keep the street clear. But it seems perfectly plain that Pollokshaws must be proud of its spectre, for we do not hear of any effort having been made to get at the bottom of the mystery. Perhaps the inhabitants, looking forward to the next tourist season, may think it would be a pity to deprive the town of a brand-new attraction. A well authenticated ghost, that had excited public attention and baffled public prying for two or three months, would be sure to draw a large number of visitors to the spot. The Troscachs, and the glens of Arran, the mountains and lakes of Bonnie Scotland, have been so thoroughly worked that nearly every tourist has either seen them or says he has, which comes to much the same thing. But a bona fide Scotch ghost, warranted to go through some highly edifying spiritual performance every night, would be something new to talk about on returning to prosaic England. Indeed, it is rather a matter for wonder that some of our watering-places have not long ago started private spirits of their own.

COMPOUND OXYGEN TREATMENT.—This new treatment of diseases, which cures, it is claimed, nearly all classes of chronic ailments by a natural process of re-vitalization, is attracting wide attention because of the remarkable results which everywhere follow its administration. See advertisement of Drs. STARKEY & PALEY, and their references by permission to personages in whom our readers can not fail to have confidence.

"Is your master at home?" asked a gentleman of a servant. "No, sir." "When will he be in?" "Can't say, sir. When he sends me down he says he's out, and can never be sure when he'll be ready to have me say he's in."

"What time is it, my dear?" asked a wife of her husband, whom she suspected of being drunk, but who was doing his best to look sober. "Well, my darling, I can't tell; 'cause."

"What time is it, my dear?" asked a wife of her husband, whom she suspected of being drunk, but who was doing his best to look sober. "Well, my darling, I can't tell; 'cause."
