DEBATE CAME TO END SUDDENLY

Soldiers' Gratuity Report in House of Commons

LOOKED LIKE A REVOLT

Hon. Mr. Calder Felt Impelled to Crack Government Whip—Election Bill and Other Matters on the Way

(Special to Times.)
Ottawa, Nov. 8.—With dramatic suddenness the debate on the gratuity report also ended what looked like an incipient revolt in the government forces. All the trend of the speeches on the measure during the last two days was such as to prove very disquieting to the government. Members from both sides of the house had been on the committee, which brought in the report, although Messrs. Cope, Flanders, George Foster, Kay, from the opposition, asked a reservation to the effect that had it not been for the extravagance of the government, the gratuity could have been granted; but the most severe criticism of and dissent from the report in the debate came from members on the government side.

The Whip Cracked.
Then Hon. Mr. Calder made it a life and death matter by announcing that the government proposed to stake its existence on the report—the most outright cracking of the whip that has been heard since the action of the premier on the titles matter.

The action of the minister was, presumably, considered an emergency move to produce any noticeable diminution of the criticism from his followers and it looked on Thursday night as though the matter might become more serious situation than the Grand Trunk trouble in the senate, which had just been tried over. Then, yesterday morning, Sir George Foster delivered a very forcible and good tempered speech on the situation, which was sympathetic to the soldiers, but firm, that the government could not expect another pension on a general scheme of gratuities. His speech produced a good effect, but the trouble was far from over.

In the afternoon Hon. W. S. Fielding made a very strong and moderate speech on the matter, which evoked a tribute of applause from both sides but it was that the matter should be sent back to the committee.

The government would not listen to the suggestion, but it had the effect of strengthening the feeling among the dissatisfied in their ranks. Then, Hon. Mackenzie King made a motion for adjournment, which was carried, and the speaker, concluding his speech in language which was so critical of the government that it produced another change of feeling among the government following, and swinging them back towards the ranks again.

Colonel Currie, whose name is now synonymous with the matter in the government side, clinched the matter by announcing that he would support the motion for the adjournment. When the adjournment was taken, a hearty shout of approval followed, and the speaker, carrying by a majority of sixty-five, Col. Currie and Wm. Smith were elected members of the committee. Messrs. Cope, Kennedy, Kay and Pardee were not in the house for the vote.

All that is now before the house is the finishing up of the gratuity matter in committee, the prohibition measure, which will likely come on today, and the estimates.

(Canadian Press.)
Ottawa, Nov. 8.—A bill to amend the Canadian Railway Act, which provides for the repeal of a section which placed certain tramways under the control of the government was introduced in the House yesterday and given first reading.

The House considered a resolution providing that ships registered in Canada, employed in voyages between any port in British Columbia and San Francisco or any port in the United States, including Alaska, North of San Francisco, should be exempted from the payment of pilotage dues. The gain for Canada shipping act based on this, introduced by Mr. MacLean, and given first reading.

Consideration was given in committee to a bill to amend the civil service act with respect to the salaries of certain postmasters and assistant postmasters. It was given third reading.

The senate amendment to the Opium and Drug Act, providing that the act shall be enforced on a date set by parliament was concurred in as also were the senate amendments to the act respecting patents and inventions.

As Hiram Sees It

Wholesale Arrests Of Alleged Reds In States

"Say, Mister," said Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to the Times reporter, "that there dream 'bout comin' 'round here about the women of St. John leavin' the way to better things seems to be comin' true. I was proud of that there Wimmim's Council when I read about them votin' for a new name for the city buildin'. What they want to do next is to tell the men that could get a million dollars subscribed in an hour or two for the Victory Loan and say that the city of St. John is just as good security as there is in chinin' bond, an' to tell the city council to put enough bonds on the market to git St. John on the map. This talk about makin' two bites of a cherry don't git you anywhere. I calculate if them wimmim' starts out to tell the men to back up an' show some faith in the town—the men'll just safo get a move on. I bet the some people wants some 'thin' to preserve, let 'em put a fence around Gallows Hill. It's old, all right, but George F. Matthews can tell 'em how old it is. Mebbe it goes back a million years—an' the walls of it ain't plugged with mortar—nuther. The Lord was the architect. If I was a member of the Wimmim's Council I'd go to any man that's doin' the sub-sister business about poor old St. John an' stick a hat-pin into him. I would—By Hen!"

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—The fight in the senate on the Grand Trunk bill came to a close last night when the bill was reported from committee and given reading without a division. Governor's Name Mentioned in Chicago For Presidential Ticket—Red Cross Drive in Boston is Making Good Progress

(Special to Times.)
Boston, Nov. 8.—In a little fifty-two ton schooner rigged ingeniously, the Lucy B. Winsor, carrying only two auxiliary engines of thirty horse power for use in bad weather, Graciano F. Rio, a Boston lobster merchant, his wife, his son, his nine-year-old grandson and one hired navigator have crossed the Atlantic ocean to the Azores and have undoubtedly by this time reached Portugal, their destination.

In the whole library of New England sea lore there is recorded no other analogous feat than the voyage of this Boston family, which was undertaken as a pleasure trip. The start was made August 22. Cobleigh's letters, postcards and clippings from Portuguese newspapers published in the Azores have reported the safe arrival of the vessel and its crew at Angra in the Azores on Sept. 29, though no word has reached Boston, so far as is known, since the Winsor left the Azores on the last 1,000 miles leg of the 8,000 mile journey. Those here who knew of the stunt are satisfied that the intrepid family has safely reached its destination.

Her crew of thirty were taken off by the life-saving detachment maintained on the island. The government steamer Anarrouse will sail from North Sydney next week to bring the shipwrecked crew to Halifax.

THE FAKE PEACE DAY

Just a year ago last night St. John was the scene of a boisterous, joyous and noisy celebration upon a report spreading and being taken up generally that the war had ceased that an armistice had been signed. Huge crowds paraded the streets with bells, tin horns and instruments of various kinds aiding in making a racket, and even denial of the report and the news that the war was still on did little to dampen the spirits of the people who felt certain that the word meant only the postponement of the happy day a few hours longer.

Employers' Position on 8 Hour Day Question

Proceedings at The Conference in Washington—Labor Amendments are Proposed

(Continued from page 1) "Have you ever thought" he asked, "that if we are to have a maximum of hours of work, it might be also wise to have a minimum in consideration of the world's great need?"

Mr. Barnes, British government delegate, in speaking of the proposed forty-eight hour week convention, had emphasized that agriculture was excluded. But Mr. Parsons argued that shorter hours would draw workers from farms to the cities and workers themselves would suffer as a result of consequent shortage of foodstuffs and higher prices.

Mr. Parsons' view, there was another serious objection. It was, he said, an attempt to deal with legislation with business matters. "It is not an economic problem and I fear that if we try to settle it in our own legislative halls and in a political way, it will get a political and not an economic answer."

In his opinion, too, an attempt to limit the hours of work would have a death blow to smaller industries and would prevent the establishment of new industries. "That," Mr. Parsons continued, "is likewise true of the small and newer nations. It will be the larger nations, if we go into this universal eight-hour day, which will suffer the most."

Mr. Joushaux, secretary of the French Confederation of Labor, and Tom Shaw of the Weavers' Association of Great Britain presented proposed amendments from the labor group.

The amendment provided for a normal working day of eight hours and a normal maximum working week of forty-eight hours. They also propose to bring commercial works as well as industrial works within the scope of the convention.

In seasonal undertakings, the labor group propose, overtime may not be worked for more than twenty-four hours a year, subject to the condition that overtime pay shall at least be fifty per cent higher than pay for ordinary working hours.

Under the labor proposals the convention would go into effect on July 1, 1920, or twelve months earlier than proposed by the organizing committee of the conference. In regard to agriculture and the mercantile marine, the labor group propose that the international labor office convene a special meeting of each of these trades with as little delay as possible.

When the conference resumes on Monday afternoon, Sir Malcolm Delvin, British government delegate, will move closure of general discussion on the eight hour day. The employers group have given notice of an amendment that the proposed convention be regarded as a recommendation.

At a meeting of St. John business men last evening more than a million dollars of the Victory loan was taken up. This should be an inspiration for the business men of every city and town in the province.

tion, by education, and by organization steadily to improve the brain power of the nation. It is striving to hasten the time when our people will be so begot and so reared that their minds will develop normally and harmoniously; when society will have less need than now for sanatoria, asylums and prisons, and when all but an irreducible minority of those born to membership in the nation may think, feel and act in a way that will make them desirable citizens of that better state which is our goal.

WHAT NEXT?
The quarrel between Hon. J. B. M. Baxter and his St. John colleagues was one of the sensations of the secret meeting on Thursday night. If the Globe is correctly informed, and we rather suspect its information came from one of those colleagues of Mr. Baxter, the latter not only approved but suggested amendments to the resolution of censure of the old government, which Dr. Campbell moved in the House.

THE COURT HOUSE.
A good many people in this city appear to have been hurried into an expression of opinion regarding the old court house by an appeal to sentiment, and without looking at all at the other side of the question. Some of them have joined the ranks of the progressives, who look forward and not backward. There has manifested been an attempt to rush the position of those who stand for progress, and it has gone merrily along for some days, but without complete success.

MENTAL DEFECTIVES.
No reconstruction scheme will be complete without ample provision for the protection of the mentally defective. The above sentence is taken from the last annual report of the British Board of Control having to do with lunacy and mental deficiency. It is estimated that the ratio of mentally defective persons to the whole population is three in one thousand, and that the number of such persons is increasing more rapidly than the number of normal persons in the ratio of two to one, or even more.

On this basis there are not less than one hundred and fifty mental defectives in St. John, and over seven hundred in the whole province of New Brunswick. If, as is claimed, the number tends to increase, the need of better provision for their care is obvious. The aim of those who plead for action is well stated by Dr. Barker of the American National Committee for Mental Hygiene, as follows:—

FASHION.
The dames have stacks of coats and gowns that they might wear for years; but women will wear Fashion frowns, and shake with craven fears. The rags they buy are out of date as soon as they are worn; and husbands sad, who pay the freight, can only mourn and mourn. I hear my Aunt Jennina say, "This hat I bought last year would put me, if I were worn today, upon the street named Queer." But I still wear the old brown tulle I bought before the war, and no one asks, with caustic smile, "What do you wear for?" A man may wear the ancient suit his father handed down, and still be called of good repute, a credit to the town. Along the village street I strut, and hear no jeering whizzers, because my coat has ancient cut, my pants have baggy knees. But if my Aunt Jennina goes in duds two seasons old, the women cry, "Those my Aunt Jennina wears! Consider and behold!" The cost of living would defossil clothes! Consider and behold! The cost of living would defossil clothes! Consider and behold! The cost of living would defossil clothes! Consider and behold!

CANADA—EAST AND WEST
Dominion Happenings of Other Days
ST. CHARLES AND ST. DENIS.
The day following the rioting in Montreal, that is on November 8, 1919, Colonel Wetherall sent his force of troops to St. Charles where it was reported an insurgent body of 500 men had collected. For a time there was a sharp battle but in a little while the rebels, seeing their barricades falling under the determined attacks of the soldiers, took to flight. But that was not before twenty-five had been killed and forty others wounded or made prisoners. A few days later Colonel Gore, having in the interval received considerable reinforcements, left St. Charles to march to St. Denis. A deserted village greeted him upon his arrival and unfortunately the entire plundered the place and then set it on fire. Martial law was declared and a price put on the heads of the alleged leaders in the trouble making.

SOCIAL DISCONTENT.
(By the Bishop of Birmingham.)
A few days ago there was actually the possibility of a general strike, bringing with it misery to the whole nation and practical revolution. In the opinion of many, all that we have secured is a precarious compromise. What lessons can we learn from the recent disturbance?
(1) Its prophylactic effect has been considerable. It has drawn some hot blood; it may have given an added sense of responsibility to labor leaders, and have impressed the rank and file with the greatness of the game in which they have allowed themselves to be "but pawns."
(2) It has forced the public to take intense, though momentary, interest in the whole subject of industrial unrest. If hints of coming trouble will not keep this interest alive, incessant propaganda must be employed for that purpose, and in that propaganda the overtones, or might say, of civilization; the breaking down of the greatest barrier against world-wide evolution—viz, English stability—will be shall see the defeat of religious influence.

AUTUMN LIGHTS.
Still within the season's urn
Drinks the salvia's embels burn;
Still the aster flambeus flare
In the crisp morning air;
And the goldenrod is still
Like a flame upon the hill.
These, with all their glow and gleams,
Light the Autumn's path of dreams;
Light the path of promise to Verbaliveness we knew.

THE BRITISH NAVY.
"The reduction of the fleet is going on almost as though the sack then all slugs were being taken literally," said an English naval reporter. "During this week sixty-three flotilla leaders and destroyers are being reduced to care-and-maintenance parties. This means the liberation of about five thousand officers and men. It is clearly the policy of the Admiralty to keep only the very latest ships of the various classes in full commission, and precious few of these. I am wondering what will become of all the officers and men put upon the beach in this way. As recruiting for the navy is still going on briskly, there can be no intention of reducing the personnel to smaller proportions. The problem has presumably been considered by the Admiralty, but I confess I am at a loss to imagine what will be done with all those ships crews to keep them professionally all fit. Very short commissions might prove a solution."

THE CHILD IN THE MIDST.
"It was very wonderful when one stopped to think of it," said a delegate just from the Educational Conference in Winnipeg. "To look round that great gathering of 1,500 people, and to see noted men, men of affairs, men prominent in business life, meet together on the one purpose—to think about the welfare of a little child. One doesn't wish to seem irreverent, but I couldn't help thinking of the Wise Men of the East who came to worship at the cradle of a little child and to bring their best gifts."

A Modern Invitation.
"I'm invited to a tea. I know that R. S. V. P. means, but this card has not the conventional two letters B. S. What do they mean?"
"Bring sugar."—Kansas City Journal.

ALL THE WOMEN LOVE OUR GAY COMMODORE

In connection with the nomination of Lady Astor as a Unionist candidate in Plymouth, England, J. L. Stewart of the Chatham World writes in his paper: "Lady Astor, a Virginian by birth, a bright and breezy conversationalist, a 'good mixer', and must be a power as a personal canvasser. The Canadian Press party visited the Canadian Red Cross hospital in the gardens of Cliveden, the ducal palace in which the Astors live, in August of last year, and were dined by her and the Astors, and escorted by her and the Astors through the several wards of the hospital. They were photographed in the little Canadian cemetery that has been consecrated in the Italian garden. Mrs. Astor, arm in arm with the editor of this paper, smilingly asked him: 'Will there be any heartburnings at your home when this picture appears in the newspapers?' He assured her that it was all right, as he was a bachelor. 'But what will the colonel say?' asked one of the English gentlemen. 'I'll make it all right with him,' she responded laughingly."

WHO'S WHO FOR 1919-1920.

The Times has received a copy of the 1919-1920 issue of the annual publication, Who's Who, published by the International Press Limited, Toronto. This excellent work, which has grown in size and excellence from year to year, has reached the acme of perfection in the most recent issue.

The publishers are to be congratulated this year especially, on account of the fact that the collection of necessary data has been greatly affected by the general upset following the recent war; but success has been achieved and prominent in the 1924 pages which make up the present issue are the names and photographs of many of Canada's and Newfoundland's professional and business men who have achieved enviable reputations on the fields of Flanders. 'Who's Who' maintains its reputation as an authority on our people who are in the public eye. It is an indispensable book of reference.

The Early Bird

The old proverb which draws attention to the advantages to be derived from being first in the field, is too well known to need more than a passing reference.

TRINITY SUPPER BIG SUCCESS

Pie Made by Twelve Year Old Scout a Feature—Centenary Has Visit From Lieutenant Campbell—Badges to Russian Scouts

St. Paul's Boy Scouts met as usual on Tuesday evening and carried out the usual amount of work, finishing up with a lively game of basketball. Among the visitors who dropped in to see them at their work was A. C. Skelton, provincial commissioner, and he seemed very much pleased with the progress that is being made with this troop. This troop, through the energy of their scoutmaster, Norman Bets, have raised a good sized cabin in the outskirts of the city for the use of St. Paul's scouts, and it goes without saying that the boys are delighted.

The Wolf Pack met on Thursday evening under the supervision of Mr. Peters, assisted by King's Scout Fred Strong, and the little fellows were delighted with the programme arranged for that evening.

On next Tuesday night the troop will discuss the advisability of subscribing for "Canadian Boy," which is the official magazine for the Boy Scouts Association in Canada, and it should be in every boy's home.

Boy Made the Pie.

At 6:30 p. m. on Monday, Nov. 3, the Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs of the 17th St. John Troop (Trinity), sat down to a beautifully decorated and well laden table in the Sunday school room of Trinity church, with Rev. D. H. Loweth in charge.

Among the table decorations were emblems of the scouts and wolf cubs, the scout cup won by this troop last year, and a delicious pie made and presented by Scout Cecil Stewart, age 12 years, and a delicious pie made and presented by Scout Stewart, who lives at 43 Carmarthen street, is a very energetic little worker and at the present time holds many proficiency badges.

Sitting with the boys at the table were Rev. Canon Armstrong, Rev. F. Ellis of Halifax, Genl. and Johnstun Sturdee, W. S. Clark, R. W. Tilson and C. E. Upham.

After an enjoyable supper, served by some of the ladies of the church, the troop formed up and were inspected by Mr. Skelton. Marching and stave drill was carried out by the scouts and some physical drill by the wolf cubs. Both were under the direction of C. M. Belyes, assistant scoutmaster. A first aid demonstration was given by the scouts, and it brought out the uses of the bandages for the broken leg and arm, collar bone and the fractured leg and arm, and also the construction of the improvised stretcher. King's Scouts P. Walsh, E. Walsh, I. Seeds, Genl. and Johnstun gave an interesting display of signalling. This was followed by a few games by the scouts and wolf cubs. The admission of tenderfoot was the next feature and here a new tenderfoot was added to our roll. The scout yell and then the national anthem brought the programme to a close.

Many of the parents and interested scout workers were seated along the sides and ends of the room and looked on with much interest and delight as the boys went through their programme, and at the close of the display went home very much impressed by the showing which the scouts and the wolf cubs rendered.

Centenary Troop.

As Friday night was Hallowe'en No. 15 St. John Troop, Centenary Methodist had a quiet evening as some of the scouts had other engagements, but by those who attended the troop meeting a very interesting evening was spent in various games and scout work and some investitures of tenderfoot and second class were given. The pleasure was greatly added to by the presence of Lieutenant Campbell, who is the official examiner for several of the scout tests. He also advised the scouts and gave them some very useful information in the form of camping and cooking, which was both practical and interesting to them. And they are looking forward to have Lieutenant Campbell visit them again in the near future. He has only recently returned from overseas and has a great deal of useful knowledge for scouting.

The Mission Troop met on last Tuesday evening with a good attendance. During the evening scout work was carried on. To Scout Aubrey Priest was

The Brave's Memorial.

(Manitoba Correspondence Detroit News.)

On an old cedar log in the village of Copemish is mute evidence of an Indian brave's great love for his squaw.

Years ago Albert T. Sanders and his two brothers went hunting in the Upper Peninsula, and camped on Ford River. They met an Indian called John, then 104 years old, but active as a schoolboy. John told the following story:

"There was a young brave who took his squaw from Marquette and came to Ford River to trap. He was very much in love. He was a good paddler, but he couldn't keep his eyes off his squaw. The canoe rushed into some brush near shore and capsized.

"The brave escaped, but the squaw did not come up. The young brave wouldn't go away. Day after day all that summer and fall he searched. The river never gave up the body.

"In despair one day he gave up hope and on a large cedar tree near the river he carved a picture of her as a memorial. It was his last tribute. Then he left this region and never returned."

The Sanders brothers were impressed with the legend and started to hunt for the carving. That was eighteen years ago. The first search was fruitless. But they did not give up. Fourteen years later they again took up the search. Again they failed to locate the carved image. They began to doubt the story of Indian John.

Two years passed and again the Sanders brothers went north to hunt and Germany Nationalizes Electric Power.

(Scientific American.)

A law nationalizing the electric power of the German Empire has been published by the government. Germany has over 4,000 power establishments, and the splitting up of their activities is held to cause serious waste. The scheme is made imperative by the loss of the Saar coalfields and the obligation to supply coal to the allies. The waterpower, which is mostly to be found in Silesia, Germany, is primarily to be made with those generating electricity from coal in central Germany. Power stations belonging to states and municipalities will not be disturbed, but the large plants belonging to private capital will be taken over and nationalized by the Central government. The government will buy up shares, so that the present organizations can remain intact. The nationalized works are not to be considered as a source of revenue, as the government holds that cheap power for industry is more important than fiscal interests. The private capital in electrical power works in Germany is estimated at 1,000,000,000 marks and the use of electrical power in that country has increased from 443 billions of kilowatt hours in 1907 to 22 billions in 1917.

TAXI-DRIVER STABBED.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—J. G. Rowland, thirty-five, a returned soldier, and taxi driver, was brutally assaulted and stabbed in the back, Leaside, one of the northeastern suburbs of Toronto, soon after midnight, and died in the Davis Military Hospital, after having dragged himself one hundred yards from the scene of the assault, to a neighboring residence to obtain assistance.

Rowland was unable to complete his story before death ensued, but declared that a foreigner, apparently a Russian, hired him at the Union Station to drive him to Leaside. There his story stopped and a great gash in his throat. It was evident that he had been attacked from behind. The police are working on various clues.

Rowland served with the 2nd Machine Gun Battalion overseas, and was wounded and gassed. He was a quiet, retiring man, of exemplary character.

MORMONS IN ENGLAND.

(New York Evening Post.) Those who believe that Mormonism is an almost extinct cult, and is confined within the borders of Utah, should make their way to the London headquarters in the gloomy suburb of Tottenham or visit the numerous chapels which have been established throughout England. In the imposing stronghold of the "Latter Day Saints," as they have called themselves, dwells a "brother" who is chief of the Mormons in England in the same way that Elder Grant is in America, and the gate is sent to Utah to live among that branch of the sect which has not been "reorganized" to condemn polygamy.

PIPE DREAM OF A MAINE WRITER

See's Liquor Pouring Into Aroostook From New Brunswick

Paints Picture of Line Houses Reopened and Bars With Half a Dozen Men Kept Busy Serving The Thirsty

(Staff Correspondent of Bangor Commercial.)

Van Buren, Nov. 4.—That Aroostook county bids fair, if national prohibition follows the present war-time variety, and it would seem that nothing short of an upheaval of the country could stop it, to be one of the wettest, if not the wettest county in the country, is the seemingly startling assertion of several northern Aroostook county men to the representative of the Commercial on his travels about the country. This assertion sounded mighty strange to the Commercial man who has always been led to believe that Aroostook was one of the mighty strongholds of prohibition in Maine. He has been around several state conventions of the Republicans of Maine and has always understood that it was chiefly the insistence of the thorough ways been led to believe that Aroostook that a prohibition plank always occupied a prominent spot in the party platform. He has understood that the Aroostook delegation had always been among those who demanded that the G. O. P. put itself on the public record as the dry party in Maine. The whole thing sifts down into one of the peculiar and probably unexpected workings of national prohibition under its war-time guise.

While the selling of liquors within the borders of Aroostook county has not in recent years been general owing to the vigilance of the county authorities, there has always been the leak from

You Cannot Hide Your Fat

Overfatness is the one misfortune you can not hide from yourself or from those around you. If too thin, your dressmaker or tailor can supply the deficiencies, but the overfat carry a burden they cannot conceal. There is one sure way to reduce your weight safely and quickly. The harmless Marmola Prescription, which changes the fatty tissues and fat-producing foods to solid flesh and energy, helps the general health and digestion, permits you to eat and live as you like, and leaves the skin clear and smooth. This famous prescription is not condensed into tablet form. Each tablet contains an exact dose of the same harmless ingredients that made the original prescription capable of reducing the overfat body at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week without the slightest ill effects. Take but one tablet after each meal and at bedtime until the normal weight is reached and the bodily health completely restored. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, or send to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., and you will receive for $1 a full case—enough to start you well on your way to slimmest and happiness.

across the line in New Brunswick. Very few, if any, Aroostook county men have ever made any money as rum-sellers, but there are many who live on the line between Maine and the Province of New Brunswick who have made their fortunes and retired. A younger generation has taken their place and is going business with a steady eye on the mighty dollar which bears the American eagle. It is probable wholly within the limit of the truth that Aroostook, at the present time, is the wettest county in Maine with the possible exception of the northern end of Somerset, which borders on the Province of Quebec and which has the little town of Jackman as a metropolis.

Man Leaks Along the Line. There are many leaks along the international boundary. Here at Van Buren the thirsty find their way across the bridge to St. Leonard, N. B., where anything in the alcoholic line can be purchased at prices that would make some of the downriver people it to get here. Some of them bring it across the river via the International bridge a bottle at a time and the customs men do not seem to consider it within their province to go out and search the person of every innocent foot passenger who crosses the bridge unless he is some person who is intoxicated and who is suspected of smuggling in liquor to sell for profit. If they did the force at this place would have to be doubled and tripled and there would have to be a disrobing station maintained on this side of the river. It would be an everlasting job.

The customs men say that it is not their job to prevent liquor selling but their specialty is smuggling. The national prohibition law will not be their duty to enforce but will come under the international revenue men. To enforce the liquor law along the St. John river, the men here assert, will require a revenue man every 25 feet. The river can be more easily guarded in summer but in winter when the surface is solid for miles it will be a remarkably easy matter to bring liquors over into Maine. It will not all be brought across at Van Buren but at dozens of other points along the river where the government cannot conveniently establish a revenue station. What is true of Van Buren is also true at Port Fairfield and other places although the system is not so convenient; the line being a greater distance away. At Fort Kent there is but a step across the boundary where anything in the line of liquors can be purchased at before-the-war prices.

New Brunswick Making Plans.

In the meanwhile the people of New Brunswick, the Commercial man is informed by people who know what is going on, are planning to reap a harvest through American national prohibition. New Brunswick has been supposed to be dry for the last two years through a war-dry act, which seems to work much the same as Maine state prohibition has worked in times past. Those who want to take the chance of prosecution sell liquor. If a man is caught drinking on New Brunswick soil, and if he refuses to tell where he bought the liquor, a heavy penalty is imposed. These cases, however, are said to be few and far between.

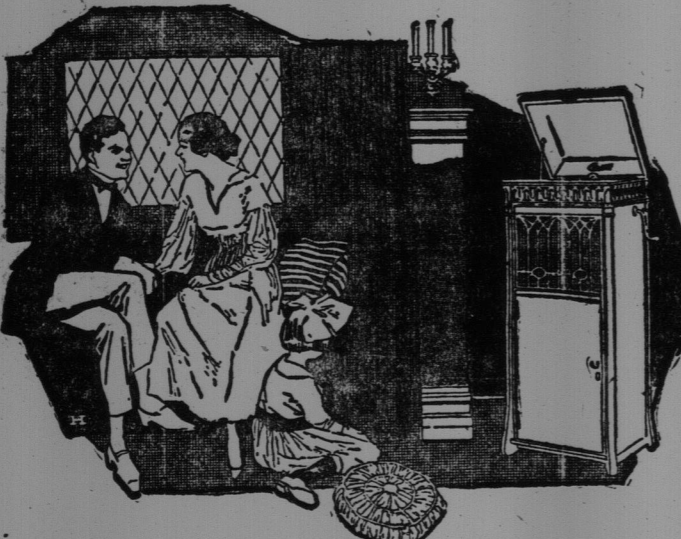

New Brunswick is, however, planning on paying a good portion of her war debt through the liquor traffic. Prominent residents of province towns say that next autumn will see them all wide open. The line houses will all be reopened and bars at which a half dozen bartenders will be employed will blossom out for business. It will be business from Maine and particularly from Aroostook county that they will be catering to. It wouldn't be surprising to see Aroostook establish a name for itself as a winter resort. There was never better nor more invigorating air in the winter than that of Aroostook. The hotels are excellent as a rule and it will be only a step across the border at many points to places where favorite Canadian

Under Searching Eyes— Do you ever wince inwardly?

AN unexpected meeting—a battery of eyes focused upon your face— Can you meet it with composure? Is your skin flawless? Clear, lovely in coloring?

Or is there some blemish that stands out mercilessly in your own consciousness? Some fault in your complexion that you know observant eyes must take notice of?

There is nothing that so destroys a man's or woman's poise and self-confidence as the consciousness of a complexion at fault. Even a little blemish in some conspicuous place makes you miserably embarrassed. You want to shrink into the background. You lose your confidence, your gaiety. Your very personality is dimmed just when you are most anxious to appear at your best.

Yet this suffering is entirely needless. You need never be miserable and tongue-tied from such self-consciousness. Almost anyone, by simple, regular hygienic care of the skin, can free her complexion of the defects so commonly met on otherwise lovely faces.

Blackheads are such a disfigurement. Enlarged nose pores, a skin that will get shiny— These things can be corrected.

Take care of the new skin that is forming every day as old skin dies. Give it every night the right treatment for your particular trouble, and within a week or ten days you will notice a marked improvement.

Take one of the most common skin troubles. Perhaps your skin is constantly being marred by unsightly little blemishes. No doubt you attribute them to something wrong in your blood—but authorities on the skin now agree that in the great majority of cases, these blemishes are caused by bacteria and parasites that are carried into the pores from outside, through dust and fine particles in the air.

How to remove skin blemishes

By using the Woodbury method of cleansing your skin, you can free it from such blemishes.

Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully with clear hot water, then with cold.

Use this treatment regularly and the blemishes will gradually disappear.

The famous treatment for conspicuous nose pores

Do you know what it is that causes conspicuous nose pores?

The pores of the face are not as fine as on other parts of the body. On the nose, especially, there are more fat glands than elsewhere, and there is more activity of the pores.

These pores, if not properly stimulated and kept free from dirt, lose their power to contract properly; they clog up and become enlarged.

Try using this special treatment for conspicuous nose pores, and supplement it with the steady, general use of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Wring a soft cloth from very hot water, lather it with Woodbury's Facial Soap, then hold it to your face. When the heat has expanded the pores, rub in very gently a fresh lather of Woodbury's. Repeat this hot water and lather application several times, stopping at once if your nose feels sensitive. Then finish by rubbing the nose with a piece of ice. Always dry your skin carefully.

Use this treatment every night before retiring, and before long you will notice how this gradually reduces the enlarged pores until they become inconspicuous. But do not expect to change completely in a week a condition resulting from long-continued exposure and neglect.

You will find Woodbury's Facial Soap on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. The booklet containing full directions for all the famous Woodbury treatments is wrapped around each cake.

Get a cake today and begin using it tonight. A 25 cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks of any one of these treatments.

Would you like to have a trial size cake?

For 6 cents we will send you the trial size cake (enough for a week of any Woodbury facial treatment) together with the booklet of treatments. Or for 15 cents we will send you the treatment booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 9950 Sherbrooke Street, Perth, Ontario.

PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION MEMBERS FOR BUILDING ON THE COURT HOUSE SITE

The Playgrounds Association met last evening in the Y. M. C. A. building with the president, A. M. Belding, in the chair. The reports of the various committees were received and were satisfactory. Much routine business was transacted. There was some discussion as to the place where the Boys Club is to meet this winter. As yet no place has been selected and it was decided to postpone definite arrangements until the annual meeting, which is to be held next week. L. P. D. Tilley brought forward the suggestion that a tea and sale should be held for the benefit of the playgrounds funds and it was arranged that Mrs. H. C. Groat should be convener for a tea and sale to be held at her residence early in December. A resolution, allowed on a bill, was gratefully accepted from C. F. Brown, as a subscription to the association's funds. Although no motion was passed, the matter of the proposed destruction of the court house was discussed and the majority of the members were in favor of the court house being destroyed and replaced by a larger building.

PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION MEMBERS FOR BUILDING ON THE COURT HOUSE SITE

The senior Epworth League of the Portland Methodist church held a very interesting meeting in the church last night when the fourth vice-president, John Howe, was in the chair. Some excellent musical selections were greatly enjoyed and an inspiring address was listened to with appreciation. The scripture reading was given by Stanley Irvine and Rev. W. R. Robinson delivered an inspiring address, at the close of which he was tendered a hearty vote of thanks moved by the president, Frank W. Merrill, and seconded by Kenneth MacLaughlin. The musical selection included a piano solo by Miss Hawke and a vocal solo by William McEachern. About eighty-five young people were present.

New Brunswick as Tempting Background For Fiction

Writer in Toronto Saturday Night Reviews Work of Rev. H. A. Cody, Charles G. D. Roberts, Theodore Goodridge Roberts and Others Who Chose Province as Setting for Stories.

(E. J. Hathaway in Toronto Saturday Night)

The life of the lumbermen and drivers has often formed the background for writers of fiction. Charles G. D. Roberts and his brother, Theodore Goodridge Roberts, lived for years at Fredericton, in the St. John valley, and acquired an intimate knowledge of the ways of the venturesome woodsmen. Several of the stories in "Earth's Enigmas," Charles G. D. Roberts' first volume of short stories, and those in "The Backwoodsman" deal with life in the backwoods and in the settlements of the province. They are a brave, fearless, and sometimes rough of speech and primitive in their habits, but beneath an exterior that is often unappealing there are qualities that call for courage, skill and judgment, and their work demands sacrifice and devotion just as surely as does that of men in conditions of life where there are more of the refinements and graces.

At the rough-and-tumble landing in "Earth's Enigmas," a splendid description of the perilous job of cutting out the pile logs which release the gigantic brow of logs accumulated along the bank, and the drive and of the spirit of abandon with which the men look upon such dangerous work. "Within the Sound of the Saws" is a picture of life in a mill town, and "Butt of the Camp" sketches the boisterous life of a lumber camp. Theodore Goodridge Roberts has given more attention to the life in the camps and mill villages. "Jess of the River" is a bright outdoor romance in the New Brunswick woods. The reader follows the timber down from the woods where it is cut to the empty booms in the lower St. John. Jess is the niece of "Chief" Morgan of the Blue Bend River. Archie Morgan is sent into the Blue Bend country to oversee the operations of the Marsh and West lumber camps. River driving time finds him with a lam on his hands caused by "Chief" Morgan, and Jess is nearly drowned during an attempt to break it. Archie returns to the Bend later, when he succeeds in overcoming Morgan's unreasoning antagonism towards himself, and becomes manager, and more, of his lumber interests.

"Rayton" is another of Theodore Goodridge Roberts' stories. It is located in Samson's Mill settlement on Beaver Lake. The Hartleys, the most important family in the village, have a family tradition that on three occasions of their previous generations the result of a playing card marked with red crosses is a forerunner of disaster. This tradition is recalled when a young man, Archie Morgan, who had given himself unsparingly to the people of his parish and now, in his fourth and last watch, beholds the fourth and last watch. In "Under a New Life" Mr. Cody weaves an interesting romance around the construction of a hydro-electric plant on a New Brunswick river. The development of electric energy from water falls is so modern a phase of scientific work that it is no wonder the people of Crestdale, a village at the foot of the falls, are delighted at the prospect of a half-witted old man, and being a pauper to the lowest bidder. But a dream came true through means which he knew nothing about. Crazy David becomes rich and happiness comes to some young people who had been loyal to him in the days of his adversity.

Fredericton, the beautiful capital city of New Brunswick, has not figured extensively in fiction, but it has a sort of motherly interest in literature from the fact that it was the home of several of the Roberts', but it was for several years also the home of Juliana Horatia Ewing, a well known writer of children's stories, who, half a century ago, accompanied her husband, Major Ewing, to the 22nd Regiment, when he was transferred to Canada. "The Brownies" and "Other Tales," published in 1867, and other two stories written in Fredericton, in which the author describes the experiences of the voyage to New Brunswick and her settlement in her new home. "Mrs. Overthway's Remembrance," issued in the following years, contains two other Canadian stories, the names of one of them, "Heka Dow—the house by the river," being that of Mrs. Ewing's home on the river front in Fredericton. Bliss Carman, whose Canadian home has always been in Fredericton, recalls interesting memories of the town, for it was associated with some of his boyhood days and those of his cousin and comrade, Charles G. D. Roberts. "I always kept my canoe in our back yard," he writes, "when I didn't keep it in my uncle's yard around the corner, which was still nearer the river and used to carry it down to the river and back whenever I wanted to paddle, which was almost every day between May and November, and I was big enough to stagger under the load at all."

Mrs. Harriet V. Cheney's story, "The Child of the Tide," deals with Carleton county people, and the scene is laid on the St. John. But if Charles G. D. Roberts, New Brunswick's most gifted novelist, and possibly Canada's finest prose writer, has not used the great forests of the province for stories of the life of the lumbermen as much as might be expected, he has used them to eminently better advantage, for he has written half a dozen matchless volumes of stories of animal life, the scenes of which are placed in that splendid forest country. Brought up in early life as he was on the edge of the woods in Westmoreland county, and later on the St. John river, Mr. Roberts early acquired an intimate knowledge of woodcraft and wild animal life, and in his studies of the deep forests and the ways of the animals he has revealed himself a keen and sympathetic student and lover of nature in all its phases. Gifted with the instinct of the naturalist, but without his morbidness, he has also the acute prescience of the poet, and he has succeeded in interpreting the charm of the woods, its infinite solitude and much of its secret symbolism. Although for twenty years now he has lived in the big cities, Mr. Roberts can still recall with all the enthusiasm of youth the thrill with which he used to follow—furtive, apprehensive, expectant, breathlessly watchful—the lure of an unknown trail, and the joy of those early intimacies with the wilderness. His "The Heart of the Ancient Wood," published in 1900, was in his own opinion, the "best sustained work of fiction" that he had done up to that time. Half romance and half story, it tells of a child who grows up in the forest alone with her mother and with the wild animals of the woods for playmates. Kirstie, the mother, loved the woods for its peace, but to Miranda it was anything but solitary. There was a strange kinship between the child and Kirstie, the she-bear, ten-time, the caribou, and Wah-shoo, the moose; but there came into her life the element of human love, and she was forced to make her choice between young Kirstie and those other affections which give such charm to the world.

"Kindred of the Wild" and "Watchers of the Trail" are collections of short stories about animals into which the author has breathed the spirit of romance. In "Red Fox" he traces the adventures and experiences of a typical fox in his life in the woods, revealing the intelligence, adaptability and foresight which he must exercise in his relations with the other animals and towards the people of the settlements. "The House in the Water" shows an equally clever discernment and understanding of the ways of that wonderfully acute and tireless little worker, the beaver. Here Mr. Roberts is wood-craftsman and poet, "one who," as Arthur Stringer has expressed it, "has dwelt amid the silence and beauty of his own Canadian forests, one who now writes what long ago he saw and learned and felt." The boy and the woodsman, figure largely in this story, and there are marvellous revelations as to the ways of lynx, bear, moose, wolves and other denizens of the woods. The main scenes of most of Mr. Roberts' animal studies were the Tobique, Miramichi and St. John Rivers, although almost any other river in the New Brunswick woods might have been used as the background.

In "The Heart that Knows" Roberts has for the first time placed a story in his early home. Though born in Douglas, near Fredericton, he was moved when less than a year old to the village of Westcock, below Sackville, at the mouth of the Tantramar River, in Westmoreland county. Here his home for the next fourteen years was in the old Westcock parsonage, and the life and experiences during those formative years have colored and influenced his line more than any others. The Tantramar is a typical tidal river, where from high tide Chignecto Basin discharges in tumultuous haste to the sea, leaving the steep-sided chasm glistening red in the sun, with the stream sixty or seventy feet beneath. The great Tantramar marshes—more than forty square miles of fertile salt meadows—which have been reclaimed from the sea by dikes, form the background of a splendid story. The village of Westcock provides the initial scene. A young sailor of the village, believing himself to have been deceived by his betrothed, runs away on the eve of his marriage. Presently a son is born, who is brought up to hate his father. When he reaches manhood he sails away to avenge his mother's wrongs. Fate throws his father in his way across at the other side of the world, and the two men come to love each other. Finally their mutual identities are discovered, the early misunderstandings are righted and the heart discovers love and truth where reason saw only deceit and betrayal. The opening chapter of the story describes the local scenery and the wonderful Tantramar marshes, the old parsonage, which was the author's early home, is minutely and accurately described in the third, and the characters of the Rev. G. G. Goodridge and his wife are studied from his own father and mother.

But the woods of New Brunswick have provided a background for another class of fiction—stories of those who frequent its great hunting grounds or those who hunt its rivers for fish. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, United States ambassador, during the war, in Holland, preacher, poet, essayist and professor, has done both. More than that, he has described his visits to Canadian and other woods in a series of most charming essays and sketches. He knows the New Brunswick woods thoroughly, for he is an accomplished sportsman and has fished the Restigouche, the Matapedia and other rivers in the north, and in the autumn has travelled the woods over the burned hills on the Nepisiguit in search of moose. Stories of fishing trips in New Brunswick are contained in "Little Rivers" and "Fisherman's Luck," and of moose hunting in "Days Off." There is also a delightful philosophy and dispassionate thoroughness in "Men's Little Ways," he says, "are usually most interesting and often more instructive than their grand manner. When they are of good guard, they frequently show better advantage than when they are on parade."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, the famous Philadelphia physician and novelist, is another who is "indebted to his life on Canadian rivers for much of the health of his life." For twenty years or more he fished Canadian waters, chiefly in New Brunswick and along the north shore of Lake Superior. "When all the Woods are Green," his only novel with a Canadian setting, is a charming idyll of outdoor life on the Restigouche. Reminiscent of Swiss Family Robinson, it deals with the summer camp of an American family in the woods and on the river, with detail of daily life, the sparkling banter of bright young people, the conversation of men and women of cultivation, the joys of salmon fishing, and of days full of sparkle and sunshine.

Miss Alice Jones, the Nova Scotian novelist, has also used the New Brunswick woods as the scene of her novel, "Marcus Holbeck's Daughter." The action of the story takes place in a village on one of the salmon rivers, Marcus Holbeck, a wealthy Englishman, lived at his home in the woods with his daughter, Virginia, her mother having died without marriage when she was born. Embarrassed by an affair with a lady of title, he is anxious that when he returns she may come as mistress of his home and yet the wife of his nephew, whom he brings from England to meet her. Virginia, however, remains loyal to her lover, Jack Leroy, a man of humble position in life.

The north shore in the neighborhood of Newcastle and Chatham in the days of nearly a century ago, when Spanish privateers hunted the St. Lawrence and preyed upon defenceless merchantmen, is the scene of Theodore Goodridge Roberts' romantic story, "Forest Fugitives." A young Englishman, wrecked off Miramichi Bay, is rescued not only from drowning, but also from an outlaw's knife by a young woman who proves to be the daughter of a pirate leader. He soon loses sight of her and the story deals mainly with his adventures search and final rescue of herself and her father and their flight through the woods across the Gaspé peninsula to Rivière du Loup.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL FOR REMOVAL OF
OLD COURT HOUSE

Endorsation of Proposal For New Large Building There—Commissioner Thornton Gives Explanation

The St. John Local Council of Women at a special meeting held yesterday afternoon passed the following resolution: Resolved that this women's council in session today disagree with the wish of others to preserve the old Court House and endorse the suggestion of the mayor and commissioners that a newer and larger building be erected on that site. A resolution protesting against the destruction of the Court House was lost by a large majority, as was an amendment to the resolution passed which was to the effect that the various delegates take the matter before their respective societies before taking definite action. The meeting was held in The King's Daughters' Guild and was presided over by Mrs. R. J. Hooper in the absence of the president, Mrs. E. Atherton Smith. Commissioner Thornton, by special request, was present and gave a statement of what is proposed to do if the Court House is torn down. There was much heated discussion before the resolution given above was finally passed by a large majority. Mrs. McCready of the Sackville council was a welcome guest at the meeting.

Mrs. Charnichael of New Glasgow was appointed to represent the local council at the meeting of the executive of the National Council next week. Commissioner Thornton enumerated the reasons why it was proposed to tear down the Court House. He said he was unaware that it had any architectural beauty; that it encroached forty feet on King street East; that its partial destruction had seemed opportune for the erection of a larger building in view of the crowded conditions in City Hall; that it would cost $20,000 to repair the old Court House, the insurance for which amounted to only $10,000; that it would not be possible to match the stone to give a uniform appearance exterior if the building were enlarged; that the two outside walls only, had freestone facing and that was of but six to eight inches of thickness; that there was no basement in the building and to excavate one through the solid rock would be very expensive; and that if left as it is, unroofed, through the winter, the building will be beyond repair. He then went on to outline what the city proposes to do if the Court House is destroyed. He told of two suggestions. First the purchasing of the whole block on which the Court House stands and which is already fifty per cent. city property, and the erection of a large municipal and community building, with possibly some accommodation for provincial government offices also, which would cost approximately $1,000,000 or, second, the building of a smaller municipal building on the present site with additions in the rear at a cost of about $234,000. He said much would be saved in the city in rent if all its offices were under one roof. Mrs. H. A. Powell suggested that the Court House might be preserved and another site chosen for the municipal building. Mrs. Alfred Morrissey said that an architect well known on four continents had expressed the opinion that the walls of the Court House were wonderfully built and were strong enough to defy the elements for many years if the building were roofed or bolted this winter. This proposition it was said would cost about $2,000 or $3,000. Mrs. Morrissey spoke of the educational and refining influence of the pure architectural beauty of the building as it now is. Commissioner Thornton pointed out that no arrangements had been made for tearing down the Court House, but that tenders had been called for. He said in reply to a question from Miss Amelia Haley that the money for the proposed new building would be raised by bond issue and that he thought that, at whatever time it was suggested to make large public expenditures, that time would be said to be inopportune. In replying to Mrs. Hooper, he said that the council could not guarantee to build on the Court House site at any definite time and that the lot might be vacant for ten years. He also said that the city council would have to go to the people before it could authorize an expenditure of $1,000,000 for the large municipal building. Mrs. J. Vermer McLellan spoke strongly against the preservation of the court house, saying that as a heavy taxpayer she objected to useless expenditure and that the enlarging of the court house which must entail the use of stone of different appearance would give the building a patch-work appearance. Mrs. J. Willard Smith was strongly in favor of restoring the court house for the sake of historical associations and because of the beauty of its architecture. She moved that a protest be made by the council against the destruction of

It was announced that the drinking fountain that is to be erected at the corner of Brussels and Union streets had arrived in the city and that at a later date it would be possible to say when it would be erected. A vote of thanks was extended to A. W. Estey for his splendid services in connection with the buying and transporting of the fountain. The sum of $29 was brought in by Mrs. David McLellan, as commission on subscriptions to a magazine and was added to the treasury. Mrs. McLellan was heartily thanked for her energy in this matter.

TEA AND SALE BY THE ROYAL ARMS
CHAPTER, I. O. D. E.

A most successful tea and sale was held under the auspices of the Royal Arms chapter of the I. O. D. E. in Orange Hall yesterday afternoon. Though but a young chapter, the Royal Arms has proved its ability to give delightful entertainments and yesterday it added another very enjoyable occasion to the list of its activities. The hall was resplendent in attractively placed flags and bunting. Each of the small tea tables had its gay little decoration of red flowers in a silver vase and the central table from which the tea was served, was bright with scarlet candles, scarlet geraniums and gleaming silver. On the home cooking table, also, red flowers and candles and bright silver made striking ornaments among the tempting good things displayed. The fancy work table had a great store of dainty, useful and novel articles and all of the wares were in great demand. There was a very large number of patrons and the event was a social as well as a financial success. The regent of the chapter, Mrs. T. H. Carter, and all of the members assisted in making the tea so successful. The chief convener was Mrs. E. S. Stephenson, assisted by Mrs. Roy Gregory. Presiding at the tea table were: Mrs. R. W. Wigmore and Mrs. G. G. Corbett. Mrs. W. Taylor and Mrs. W. H. Anderson were in charge of the home cooking table and Mrs. T. P. Orr and Mrs. Paterson of the fancy work table. Those who assisted with the serving of the tea were: Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. John McConnell, Mrs. F. A. Dvkenan, Mrs. James Christie, Mrs. J. Tilton, Mrs. C. J. Terry, Mrs. F. H. Neve, Mrs. Charles Harding and Mrs. L. M. Curran. Amongst those who assisted, although not members of the chapter, were Miss Carter and Mrs. Callow.

THE MILLION MARK REACHED HERE FOR LOAN

Big Boost at Meeting Last Night When Sum of $1,045,000 Was Subscribed.

St. John has reached the $3,000,000 mark in the Victory Loan campaign. That patriotism is not dead, as some people assert it is, in the city of St. John, was evinced in no uncertain manner at a meeting of the business men and members of the Victory Loan committee last evening at the Union Club, when some forty or fifty prominent citizens raised $1,045,000 to help St. John "over the top." T. H. Estabrooks, chairman of the provincial committee, presided and pointed out the object of the meeting, which, he said, was to insure St. John's objective. Premier Foster gave an inspiring address. His address was followed by one from Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, who suggested that the "two minutes' rest" on Armistice Day should be utilized by the Victory Loan campaigners.

The meeting immediately warmed up and the greatest enthusiasm for the campaign was soon aroused. Five subscriptions of $100,000 each were soon guaranteed from five of the leading business houses of the city and these were soon followed by another $100,000 subscription by a gentleman who said that he had decided his face was worth nothing in St. John and had therefore removed his money to other places but he had been influenced by speakers and decided to bring that much back again. Several $50,000 subscriptions followed and a ballot system suggested by M. F. Agar was introduced and then the $10,000 and $5,000 subscriptions poured in until the amount stood $3,000 short of the million mark. Here a very dramatic incident occurred when Leon Keith jumped up and threw in the odd $3,000 which brought the total up to a million. Mr. Keith's action was greeted with cheering and clapping of hands. Several men present who had already subscribed, all they felt able to do, doubled, in some cases quadrupled and in one incident even went eight times over their original subscription, so great was the spell cast over them by the enthusiastic speakers and so clearly was the necessity for this loan shown to them.

Two committees were formed to carry out suggestions of utilizing Armistice Day. Howard P. Robinson was elected chairman of the first, the object of which is to raise a million dollars from the $10,000 class on Armistice Day. E. Allan Schofield was elected chairman of the other to carry out his own suggestion of having a rousing meeting on the evening of November 11 with the object of getting at the savings bank accounts.

The chairman, T. H. Estabrooks, opened the meeting with a brief and concise speech, saying that the workers, although they had perfected their organization in the city, found that the job was more difficult than they expected. He spoke of St. John's record on previous occasions when she had always gone away over her objective and he hoped that on this, the most important loan of all, as it was needed to square Canada's debts and clean up after the havoc wrought by war, St. John would come out just as honorable as she had done in other years. He called upon Premier Foster to address the meeting.

The premier spoke from the provincial aspect and he related New Brunswick's record in the war, the men, ammunition and money she had always been ready to give unstintingly and he said he felt sure that she would come forward now just as generously as she had in the past if the people only could understand the necessity for this loan. He felt that this was the great trouble, the people did not realize that Canada really needed the money. They forgot, the premier said, that Canada had immense debts which she had to pay and great responsibilities which she had to meet in many different ways. Those who had not the money should believe in the future of the province and discount their future prosperity and pledge their future talents and energy to subscribe to the loan as he himself intended to do.

The city and county chairman, R. D. Paterson, spoke of the object of the meeting, saying that although he knew the business men and other citizens were giving their support, there was a feeling that it was a passive support, and he wished it might be more spontaneous. He spoke of the German gun trophy and said that although this might be mere sentiment still if it were placed in King Square it would show the generations to come where the present generation had stood in the clean-up.

Dr. J. B. M. Baxter referred to the maritime provinces as a whole and said that if they did not stick together for their rights they would be left behind as the population here was small and getting smaller, and this meant smaller representation. It was essential that New Brunswick should not only reach its objective, but go over it to show the rest of Canada that this province had not merely helped to win the war and then laid down, but that it intended to have some say in the future. He went on to say that this was a time of thankfulness for the storm of war was safely passed through, and his idea was to use

Armistice Day when the people would naturally be rejoicing, as a time to bring home to them the necessity of further assistance to the country. He said that, after talking to the chairman, he had decided to multiply his subscription by four and then after listening to the different speakers he decided to double that again.

The chairman then explained that the banks were willing to extend almost unlimited credit to the responsible business men of the city and he hoped they would take advantage of it. It was then decided to set apart Armistice Day as Dr. Baxter suggested, and another suggestion made by Allan Schofield that a rousing meeting be held in the evening of that day was also adopted. M. F. Agar suggested that a ballot system be employed at the present meeting to see if the men in the room could raise $1,000,000. After several large subscriptions of $100,000 were taken in, this system was adopted and the total was raised to $1,045,000. Several men raised their original subscriptions several times.

The meeting adjourned, having appointed the two committees to look after the Armistice Day arrangements, one to hold a meeting in the day time to get the $10,000 subscriptions and the other in the evening to get after the small bank accounts. No county returns were handed out last evening as there have been some miscalculations on the part of some counties and these will have to be adjusted.

An interesting and encouraging thing about these fortune producing inventions is that most of them are of ordinary or minor value in themselves. If you have a notion that you must invent a big thing to make money, get rid of it at once. Many of the Patents that have made their inventors millionaires are those which contained very few entirely new ideas. The simplest ideas have earned fortunes for their patentees. The safety razor, the sanitary drinking cup, the bump hairpin, the demountable tire rim—any of these could have been invented by a man of average ability. In your every day life, at home, at your office, in your shop you handle any number of articles that are subject to improvement. The president and the secretary and the president of the St. John council were appointed a committee, to name ten delegates from New Brunswick to the annual meeting of the Dominion Council to be held in Montreal in January. Dr. Shearer explained that this would be a most important convention with outstanding speakers from the United States as well as from Canada. Dr. Shearer spoke in high appreciation of the Proposal of Hon. Dr. Roberts to have a central bureau representing welfare organizations in the province to co-operate with the department of health in regard to the promotion of legislation affecting social welfare. He pointed out that in Manitoba there is a social welfare commission appointed by the provincial government and which has performed most valuable work.

The House committee report was given by Mrs. John Foster and it referred to the satisfactory conditions in the house which has its full complement of boarders and shows a balance on the right side. The secretary read a letter from Mrs. Crossley, of the Canadian Immigration of the Travellers Aid in London, asking that seven ladies who will reach St. John by the steamer Metagama, on November 15, should be met by members of the order. Committees were formed in connection with the semi-annual meeting to be held the latter part of the month. The programme was left in the hands of the officers. Mrs. H. W. Robertson was appointed convener for the refreshments, assisted by Miss Gertrude Campbell. Very interesting and pleasing reports of the work they are doing and of their methods of raising funds were given by all of the circles.

London, Nov. 7.—(Canadian Associated Press)—It will be of interest to Canadians to hear that their old commander Lord Byng has been permitted to retire from the army to become chairman of the united services fund which administers the accumulated profits of the army canteens.

An important conference concerning Red Cross operations was held at the residence of Mrs. John A. McAvity yesterday afternoon. Those present besides the officers of the provincial executive, were Miss Kate Miles, of Toronto, a headquarters secretary of the society, and Miss Margaret Brown, secretary of the Nova Scotia branch. The purpose of the conference was the discussion of the peace policy of the provincial branches. The conference had no power to take action, but the suggestions made at it will be brought before the annual meeting of the local branch when it is held at an early date.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Ella Wheeler Wilcox was probably the most prolific woman writer of verse this country has ever had. She was fifty-four years old when she died, and she began her writing forty years ago, when she was a fourteen-year-old child in Johnstown Centre, Wis., where she was born.

The first poem she sent out was accepted. By the time she was twenty-nine, when she married Robert M. Wilcox, in 1884, she had had four books of verse published, including "Maurine," a novel in verse, published by Jansen & McClurg, Chicago, and "Poems of Passion," which has remained perhaps the best known of her books, brought out by Bedford, Clarke & Co. after it was refused by her other publisher because of an alleged "immoral tone." Her last book, "The World and I," an autobiography, was published last year. She wrote thirty-one books in all.

Her first paid poem was sold to Frank Leslie's publishing house and netted her $5, and from that time she had no trouble in making her living with her writing. In telling about the beginning of her success, she once said: "I groped my way up. When I began to write I didn't know a soul connected with the press—not even a country editor. I did not even know where but two or three well-known literary papers and magazines were published. A little girl of my own age went to a bookstore and copied off the addresses of several of them for me, and I sent out poems to most of them, coolly requesting the editors to send me their papers as pay for the poems if they accepted them. The very first one I sent to responded favorably."

But soon after the suspicious $6 came from Leslie's there was no trouble in getting a more substantial return than the magazine in which the poem was published. She began to contribute rather regularly for Harper's publications, the Atlantic Monthly, Demarest's Magazine, the Galaxy, the Century, Peterson's Magazine, the New York Sun and many others. Later her regular work for the New York Journal and the Chicago American began.

The very first writing of all which she did was a novel of sixteen pages written when she was eight years old and which she always treasured with great care. From what is known of it, it must have been the flower-born-to-bloom-unseen prototype of "The Little Visitors," filled with human interest and unconscious satire. Perhaps it may yet see the light. The squeezed-up, wearying handwriting was bound in blue paper and sewed together with strong, irregular stitches. Minnie Tighthead was the heroine's name.

Mrs. Wilcox was graduated from the University of Wisconsin. The greater part of her married life was spent at her Connecticut home. Her husband died three years ago.

Among her books are "Sweet Danger," "Poems of Pleasure," "Poems of Power," "Men, Women and Emotions," "Poems of Sentiment," "New Thought Common Sense and What Life Means to Me," "Poems of Progress and New Thought Pastels," "The Art of Being Alive," "Poems of Problems," "A Woman of the World," and others.

To-day, people are demanding the better grades again. Those who from a mistaken idea of economy tried to be satisfied with common teas are coming back to Red Rose Tea. They realize that they cannot be satisfied with anything less than Red Rose Quality.

And Red Rose probably will cost them no more than common tea, because Red Rose not only tastes better—it goes farther.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE (Toronto Globe)

Arrangements are now being made by the department of education to put into operation the school attendance act, which was passed at the last session, taking the place of the truancy act. The new law becomes effective on Jan. 1. Major J. P. Cowles is the provincial school attendance officer.

This position was created with the passing of the act to co-ordinate the work of taking steps to insure better school attendance in the province. In many cases in the past the police have had the carrying out of the truancy act, and there was a feeling that if an officer approached a family to inquire as to the delinquency of a child who had been absent there was a stigma attached to it. School attendance officers, under the new act are appointed by the boards of education, and women as well as men may serve.

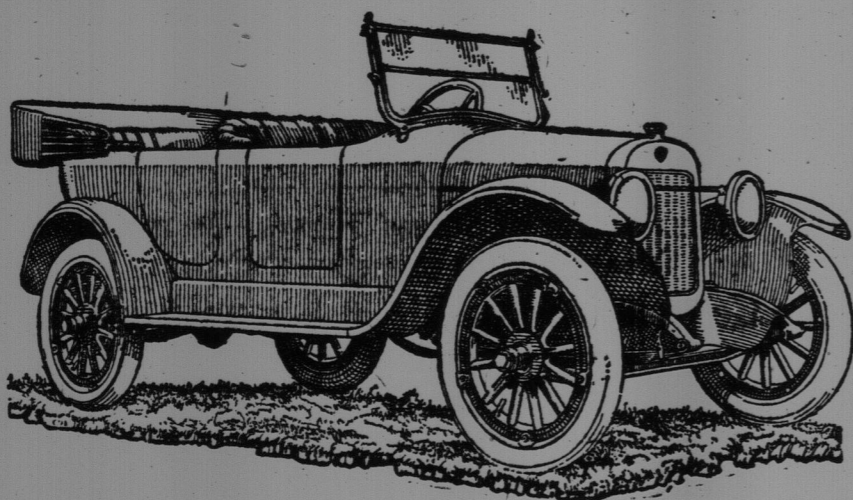

Major Cowles told the Globe yesterday that at present he is getting the organization in shape to take hold on Jan. 1. There are many places in rural Ontario where there have been no truancy officers. They are being requested to comply with the act and appoint some officer.

THE LATE MRS. JOHN BLACK.

Of the late Mrs. John Black the St. Croix Courier says:—

"Announcement of the death of Mrs. John Black, made last week, caused sincere sorrow in the community, for she was a lady held in high esteem for her exemplary life, kindly courtesy to all and her constant endeavor in all that made for the betterment of the community in which she lived. Her demise followed a protracted illness of much suffering which she bore with great patience and resignation. For some years Mrs. Black was president of the Women's Association of Christ church and president of the Ladies' Aid of Chipman Memorial Hospital, giving freely of her time and ability to these undertakings."

A Post-War Maxwell Gets Many a Longing Look

PASSERS-BY, upon seeing a Post-War Maxwell parked at the curb, often stop and look it over.

They are struck by the "atmosphere" of the car, its clean, polished, refined look, its rare symmetry of line, and the evident sincerity in its construction.

Thousands who have the rare fortune of possessing a Post-War Maxwell have been gratified time and again by the silent approval of the man on the curb. But they have a double satisfaction; they know they drive not only a good looking car but a remarkably good acting car.

For there have been a score or more of rather revolutionary improvements in the Maxwell.

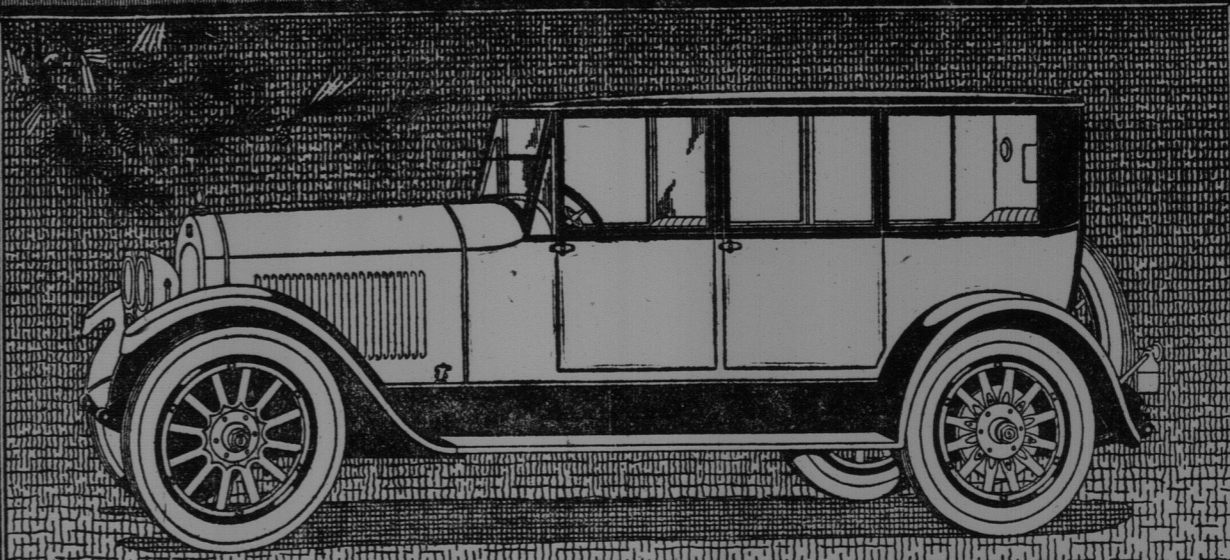

They can tell a volume about that easy casting effect in steering which a new type front axle gives, or that perfectly happy and secure feeling that is experienced when the emergency brake is applied (it's on the transmission shaft), or how the car hugs the road as a result of that masterly new rear axle.

When one stops to realize the great virtues of the 300,000 Maxwells that precede this, notes the new improvements, estimates their cost, and observes that the price is only $1395 f.o.b. Windsor, he gets a pleasant surprise—but not one bit more than when he takes his first ride behind the wheel.

ASKED $75,000 FOR TWO-YEAR-OLD

Baltimore, Nov. 7.—That Max Hirsch, who trains the thoroughbreds, belonging to George W. Loft, believes that Donnacona is a great race horse was shown here Monday, when Guy Bedwell, acting in quest of the colt. When asked to put a price on the youngster, Mr. Hirsch named $75,000. This price was more than Bedwell anticipated and no bargain was struck.

Donnacona is a beautiful imported bay by Prince Palatine and Kildonan. John Sanford brought him to this country, and with a dozen other thoroughbreds offered him at auction. Several horse-men bid on him, but every bid made was topped by Mr. Sanford, who bought him in for $10,000. The next day he sold him privately to Mr. Loft for that sum. He is a picture horse. In looks he is the ideal thoroughbred. And he can run, too.

In the spring he was the best in the Hirsch stable, which included Constance, the filly which won the Spinaway, and On Watch. But Donnacona was stricken with a fever before he was ready to race at his best and did not graduate from the maiden ranks until last Saturday.

TED KID LEWIS IS TO-BOX IN LONDON

Former Welterweight Champion to Sail Today For Two Bouts on Other Side

New York, Nov. 7.—Ted Kid Lewis of England, former welterweight champion, will sail Saturday for London, it was announced yesterday by his manager, Charlie Harvey. Lewis is scheduled to engage in two bouts soon after his arrival on the other side. Manager Harvey has closed negotiations for a match against either Johnny Basham, English welterweight champion, or Young Charles, holder of the French title. This bout will be held in January at the Royal Albert Hall, and will mark Lewis' first appearance in a British ring.

The former welterweight champion has booked passage on the steamship Lapland. Upon his arrival in England, Lewis will fulfil theatrical engagements which have been arranged for a period of one month. Subsequently Lewis will establish training quarters and train for three weeks in preparation for his first bout. Manager Harvey declared yesterday he has received many offers for bouts in this country, but Lewis has been compelled to decline them because of his prospective return to England.

houses, is responsible for the abandonment of so many homes.

Families not desiring to store their furniture have made continued efforts to rent it, in some instances allowing others to use it rent free. Many young couples beginning married life will remain with their relatives until spring.

"This is the first time in our married life we have lived in a hotel," said a man who recently took a suite of rooms at a downtown hotel. "My wife does not like the idea of bringing the children to a hotel, but we were forced to it. Our rent was increased 40 per cent, and, with the coal situation as it is and one of my daughters sickly, I did not care to take the risk of facing a coal shortage and a possible influenza epidemic coming simultaneously."

A re-appraisal of the estate of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, made necessary by the marriage of his widow, Margaret E. Vanderbilt, to Raymond T. Baker, director of the Mint, was filed in New York the other day. Mr. Vanderbilt provided that if his wife re-married a trust fund left to her should go to his sons, George and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who lived with their mother at Lenox, Mass.

The fund amounts to $1,760,746, and is divided between the sons in equal shares. It consists of the following railroad stocks: Beach Creek, $808,000; Canada Southern, $117,600; Connecticut River, $84,263; and Delaware and Hudson, $288,000. The following railroad bonds are included: New Jersey Junction, $50,371; Indian Harbor Belt, $182,000, and New York Central, $294,610.

Mr. Johnson said today, however, he would consider himself restrained from taking any action in the case so long as the injunction obtained against him by the New York club owners after he suspended Pitcher Mays following his transfer from Boston to New York stands.

"As I understand it," Mr. Johnson said, "the Mays case still is in the courts, with thirty days allowed to fight a motion for appeal. There has been no final disposition of the case, if my advice is correct, and pending such final disposition it would seem the part of wisdom for the commission to retain the disparity to money. However, that is entirely up to my colleagues on the commission."

KANSAS CITY FILLS HOTELS

Furniture in Storage and Home Firesides Abandoned.

Hundreds of Kansas City families who for years have rented residences have been obliged to forsake home firesides for family hotels. Never before in the city has housekeeping, in the literal sense of the term, presented such an ordeal, says the Kansas City Star.

The shortage of suitable houses and apartments, profiteering landlords and the unstable coal situation have driven householders to store their furniture and seek hotels, where all responsibility, save the payment of rents, rests with the landlords.

Fireproof storage warehouses are packed from cellar to ceiling with furniture. "More goods are in storage than ever before in my memory," S. C. Blackburn of the A. B. C.
