New Colonies for Alberta

Montreal, Feb. 19.—A big colony of Russian immigrants, picked families from Siberia, will be brought to the country via Dalney, Manchuria and Vancouver, and settled on the eastern section of the C. P. R. irrigation block in Alberta as soon as spring opens. These settlers are said to be intelligent farmers and among the most desirable citizens coming into the country, each with a considerable sum of money to enable him to begin operations successfully.

Alberta is also to be invaded in the spring by a colony of Norwegians, whose representatives visited the province last fall and purchased 4,500 acres of land in the irrigation block. The Norwegians look very favorably on Southern Alberta for the settlement of their nationality, and expect, once they make a beginning, to interest many of their countrymen at home.

Picturesque Wedding Rites

"During a visit to India," writes a correspondent to the Queen, "it was my good fortune to witness a Paris wedding, which is a ceremony of unusual picturesqueness and beauty. A marriage among the Paris is always arranged by a matchmaker, who is generally a priest. If his choice of a bride is pleasing to the bridegroom's family they send a request to the bride's family for her horoscope, and this, with the young man horoscope, is submitted to an astrologer. If the stars are not propitious the match is abandoned.

"The marriage ceremony usually takes place just about sunset, and great preparations are made for it. The bride, whose mistress I saw, was the daughter of a duxter, or chief priest, and the rite was performed at the fire temple. The entrance was decorated with garlands and flags. Later in the evening thousands of tiny oil lamps outlined the building.

"The bridegroom and his family, together with the male members of the bride's family, arrived first, and opening ceremony was the exchange of some handsome silk shawls between the two fathers. A band heralded the approach of the bride and her party, who upon the priests and the priests and the bridegroom took up their places on a raised dais, over which a lovely canopy of flowers was suspended.

"Two handsome chairs facing each other were placed immediately under the canopy and on these the bride and groom sat, a piece of cloth being held between them as a curtain to screen them from each other's sight. But before this the bride's mother entered bearing a silver tray containing coconuts and rice which she passed three times round the bridegroom's head, while some maidens, charmingly attired in soft silks of delicate hue, sang some verses in his praise.

"When the bride and groom were seated they were made to hold each other's hands under the curtain and another piece of cloth was placed round both chairs and tied by a double knot of the encircling cloth. Incense was then placed on a small brazier and lighted, to the further repetition of prayers.

The dividing curtain was next loosened suddenly and the bride and groom, who had each been provided with a few grains of rice, hastened to throw them at each other the one who succeeds in getting the stronger affection, while the attendant maidens clapped their hands gleefully. The bride party were then seated side by side and two chief priests took up a position facing them and pronounced a long recital of blessings in the ancient language of Persia emphasizing each sentence by throwing a few grains of rice from trays placed at hand at the devoted pair in a manner that struck Western ideas as most disconcerting.

The whole ceremony lasted nearly an hour and was concluded by the chief priest pronouncing the marriage dissolved.

"May the omniscient Lord bless us with many sons and grandsons, with great livelihood, heart ravishing wealth, long life and an existence of 150 years."

The parents of the happy pair were thanked by the priests if the marriage had their full consent, and the bridegroom and bride were also asked if they were agreed to live together in harmony to the end of their lives, after which followed a short hymn and prayers and blessings in the Sanskrit language and the signing of the marriage certificate by the latter, by their parents and the two officiating priests.

"It is difficult to convey, in words the brilliant picture such a scene presents. Light and color seem to vibrate in the air. But a scene composed of white-robed priests, men in light-colored garments, women and children arrayed in silks of every color and tint conceivable, gold and silver embroidered and sparkling with a wealth of jewels, flowers and lights forms a picture that would tax the pen of a practiced word painter."

A Travelling Hat

Mr. Silas K. Hocking tells a good story in connection with the recent visit to Germany of a party of English clergymen. One of the Roman Catholic dignitaries who had joined the party decided on arrival at Hamburg that his silk hat was not new enough for the reception by the Kaiser, and invested in a hat of the shiniest and most fashionable style. He left the old hat at the railway station.

He had reckoned, however, without the Berlin committee, which had organized a department for the collection, conveyance and delivery of the guests' baggage that worked with a precision which was a perpetual wonder. An attendant with the abandoned hat boarded the train on the journey to Berlin, and insisted on the monsignor retaining possession of it. He left it again at his Berlin hosts, but it again reappeared in the train on the way to Eisenach. At Eisenach the hat, stuffed with torn-up letters and papers, was thrust into the hands of a bewildered porter on the platform, who was implored to keep it. But, with the fear of the Berlin Committee before his eyes, the porter handed it over to the baggage department, and the monsignor found it awaiting him on his chair at the next banquet. He left Eisenach on his way to Switzerland, believing that at last he was rid of the hat, but his Romish brethren waggishly had it packed and despatched to Fulda, where he was to break his journey at the Seminary.

Richest Man in the United States

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 24.—Although Frederick Weyerhaeuser, the billionaire lumberman who is reported critically ill at Pasadena, Cal., has made his home in St. Paul for many years, he is almost as little known to the people of this city as to the public in general. And this despite the fact that he is to be the richest man in the United States, richer probably by some millions than John D. Rockefeller, whose name is synonymous for riches in almost every part of the civilized world. Weyerhaeuser, with his timber land possessions aggregating 30,000,000 acres, is said to be worth close to $1,250,000,000, which at the present rate of advance in lumber is increasing by leaps and bounds.

The personality of Frederick Weyerhaeuser is little known. He is a recluse and his own business associates have never shared his secrets. His home life in this city is quiet and simple. Even to those who know him best he is a living puzzle, an enigma, a mystery.

Born at Neidersaalheim, a hamlet of southern Germany, in 1834, he worked as a farm laborer until his eighteenth year, when he made up his mind to seek his fortune in a land where freedom played a more prominent part than it did in southern Germany at that time. So in 1852, accompanied by his mother and sisters, he crossed the ocean.

Setting first in Erie, Pa., he found work in a brewery, but migrated four years later to Rock Island, Ill.; where he got employment at $1 a day piling shingles in a saw mill. In a little more than a year he owned the mill. In a fellow-worker at the mill F. C. A. Deckman, Weyerhaeuser found a fellow entrepreneur, destined in after years to be a close ally in all his schemes and enterprises. Together they bought the other men out of the business, and soon found themselves free of debt and with enough capital to enable them to strike out with boldness and confidence.

From the time he acquired his first saw mill until the present life of Mr. Weyerhaeuser has been a slow, unobtrusive, steady grind of buying timber cheap, selling it at a profit, then acquiring still larger tracts. He first visited Wisconsin and Minnesota, where he discovered lands, rich in timber, that could be purchased for a few cents an acre. He and his partner bought the lands. Saw mills were constructed, and money began to roll in fast.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser, as the leading spirit in the partnership, created the little known and mysterious "Weyerhaeuser Syndicate," which soon was acknowledged by the lumber world to the most powerful factor in the trade. The Mississippi River Boom and Logging Company, of which he was elected president in the early eighties, has always been the base of his known transactions.

Master of the marvelous forests in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and in Washington and other States in the far North west, Weyerhaeuser in time came to control most of the logging done on the Mississippi. He was able to fix the price of logs, the price of handling them on the rivers, the price of sawing them, and the price of the finished product.

And in all this, he shunned publicity like the Grand Lama of Tibet. Though possessed apparently of an unquenchable ambition, he has never made a display of his wealth. The simple life of his earlier days has satisfied him and his family. He has never cared for yachts, automobiles, fast horses and other luxuries common to the millionaire class. His four sons all received excellent educations, but were obliged to work in the lumber camps and go through the mills, as their father did before them.

Basket Ball

The basket ball season was opened on Wednesday, February 22nd, by a match game between the Nestorians and the Goaheds. The game resulted in a victory for the Nestorians. The score being twenty-one to five. Owing to the absence of two of the regular players two novices had to be substituted, which put the Goaheds at a disadvantage. The girls are badly in need of a new ball; here is a chance for some good Samaritans. Basket ball is a good healthy game, other places smaller than this have a good team, why not St. George? We have the girls, all we need is a ball. The lineup in last game was as follows:

Nestorians: Ella Armstrong Centre, Lelia Armstrong Forward, Hazel Craig Forward, Helen McMillan, Laura Meating Forward, Nellie Finnegan, Helen Kernighan Defence, Laura Armstrong, Ray Cawley Defence, Jennie Dadds Referee: Miss Knight. Timekeeper: Bessie Cawley. Scorers: Helen Dunn and Margaret Dully.

Singing Term for

Wm. Montgomery

(Special to St. J. Times.)

New York, Feb. 21.—William R. Montgomery, formerly president of the Hamilton Bank of this city, who was convicted recently of misappropriation of funds of the institution amounting to $4,400, was sentenced today to an indeterminate period of not less than two years and two months, nor more than five years in Sing Sing prison.

The court was crowded when Montgomery was led from the toms across the bridge of sighs and into the part of general sessions presided over by Judge Otto Rosalsky who had presided at the trial.

Apart from the slight pallor incident to his confinement in the city prison, Montgomery shows but few signs of what he had gone through in the trial and since he stood before the bar.

The only interruption of the routine proceedings was the reading of a petition for clemency emanating from the jurymen who had convicted the banker.

This plea bore the signatures of eleven of the twelve men in the box. It was of no avail, however, Judge Rosalsky declaring that crimes of this sort were becoming far too common and that the prisoner was not entitled to any unusual consideration. Sentence was then pronounced.

Montgomery was not sent to Sing Sing at once, and in fact it is not known when he will be taken there. His counsel, James V. Osborne, applied for a certificate of reasonable doubt. This stays execution of the sentence until argument can be made on the motion.

In the meantime Montgomery will remain in the toms unless admitted to bail.

Montgomery is a St. John man a former resident of Carleton.

About Gunpowder

As with the compass, the first knowledge of firearms and gunpowder may be traced to the Chinese, who, it is recorded, used cannons over twenty five centuries ago. The principles of these crude guns, however, reached Europe through India. At first these aids to warfare were in the order of cannon. In the fourteenth century a fire tube with a small bore was invented. Until 1216 gunpowder was not readily explosive, since the materials were only roughly cleared of impurities and then mixed together on a slab. In 1520 Berthollet-Suatz discovered a process of granulating powder which made it effective as an explosive. From that time on warfare was changed. Gradually improvements in making both powder and firearms were made, and in the fifteenth century the first form of hand gun which could be compared with the modern musket made its appearance. At first these guns were fired by applying a match at the touchhole, but later triggers were invented. With the protection offered by these new weapons it is not strange that the conquest of savage people and wild lands was looked upon as having lost many of its dangers.

A New Alloy

A new and valuable alloy called Duralumin has been discovered by Vickers & Maxim. It will be made at Birmingham, and will be placed on the market this month. It is slightly heavier than aluminum, and is strong as steel.

Mr. H. B. Vicks, the chief chemist of Vickers' works at Barrow, stated that in the course of investigations they had found an alloy which they believed to be superior to anything of its kind hitherto manufactured.

The new metal could be rolled, drawn, stamped, extended or forged at suitable temperatures. It was less corrodible than other high aluminum alloys under all the usual corrosive tests, and possessed such valuable properties that Vickers, Sons & Maxim think there is bound to be a large demand for it. It was only one-third the weight of brass. The firm have protected this alloy by taking out patents in all the countries of the world.

The Swiss have invented an entirely new type of plow which has certain marked advantages over anything at present in use. On the rear of a light motor driven truck is a drum carrying four parallel rows of boxes. When the drum is revolved by the motor in the truck the boxes spade up the ground and at the same time propel the machine. The ordinary plow in its work is harder to pull in proportion to the depth of the furrow, but this box plow, instead of retarding the machine, actually pushes it forward. It is said, however, that a field worked in this manner is much more thoroughly prepared for the harrow and the subsequent sowing than one plowed in the old fashioned way.

It is largely because of outlays for military purposes that Germany has pursued for many years the vicious financial policy of spending in excess of its revenues and borrowing to make good the deficit. Thus in ten years $7,300,000,000 has been added to the national debt. There could be but one end to annual deficits of that magnitude if continued, so the German secretary of the treasury says they will cease. For the coming year receipts and expenditures are to balance. If this shall be brought about in reality, and not through any trick of book keeping, German credit will be strengthened.

A Sympathizer

"Come mister, no one can sleep here!" said a policeman the other evening when he found a man lying on a vacant plot of land by the side of the road and aroused him.

"But I have a good excuse," replied the man.

"What is it?"

"See that house over there? Well, please to do me the favor to go and ring the bell, and ask if William Dockey is at home."

The officer went to the house, ascended the steps, and rang the bell.

A head was thrust out of a window, and a woman's voice demanded:

"Now, who is there?"

"Madam," replied the officer, "is William Dockey at home?"

"No he ain't, and I don't expect him until daylight," said the woman, and at the same time a bowlful of water descended on the officer's head.

"Well," said the man on the grass, as the dripping officer came up, "you see how it is, don't you? I'm Dockey; that's Mrs. Dockey."

"I think I understand," replied the officer. "You can remain where you are."

Gasoline Ousts Rats

Rats appear to have a strong objection to gasoline. Not long ago a visitor exploring the London (England) sewers was told by his guide as they walked under Long Acre and Soho that the sewers in the neighborhood are almost entirely free from rats. This immunity has been noticed only since the development of the motor-car industry and the establishment of its headquarters in Shatesbury avenue and Long Acre. A large quantity of gasoline thus finds its way down the drains, and this, in the opinion of the sewer men, effectually keeps the rats away.

The new directory for the city of Toronto recently issued, claims the population of the city is now 424,057. The area is now 28 square miles and it has 1,342 streets, and 76,531 buildings, of which 3,724 are vacant.

The United States railways are not to be permitted to make the proposed increase in rates. The Interstate Commerce Commission says they are making enough profit at the present rates. The commission is a useful institution.

UNIFORMITY

WHAT do we mean by uniformity in flour? We mean stability and dependability, every barrel like every other barrel, every baking like every other. Now, uniformity in flour comes only from eternal vigilance. It is the result of everlasting care and watchfulness at the mill. It can only be produced by the most advanced methods of milling and the most expensive up-to-date equipment. One of the many great virtues of is its absolute uniformity. It never varies. It is the same yesterday, today, to-morrow. Year in and year out it is always uniform, always the best, always invariable in results whether for Bread or Pastry.

Royal Household Flour has to be uniform. It cannot be anything else. It is surrounded at every stage of production with the utmost care and watchfulness.

The Ogilvie Mills are models of up-to-date equipment—the machinery is the most advanced and most expensive—the inspection laboratory and test baking departments are the most complete and scientific in the world.

It has taken enormous Capital and the experience of a life time to achieve the absolute uniformity of Royal Household Flour. The watch, watch, watch and test, test, test which have made ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR the world's finest flour are your permanent safeguard as to quality.

Royal Household Flour is best for bread, best for cakes, best for pies, best for all household baking.

To be sure of uniform results in baking whether for bread or pastry—use Royal Household Flour and stick to it.

A Black Bog

The black bog of Kibbarron, in the County of Kildare, Ireland, lies five long miles from either railway or post office and is considered to be at the "back of beyond" entirely.

There are three styles of dwellings in the black bog, says the Rosary Mega zine, houses, cottages and cabins. The houses are quaint, rambling edifices, owned by the farmer, who still hold to olden styles and ancient ways, unimpaired of the great modern note which is sweeping through Ireland to-day.

The cottages belong to the government and are rented to laborers at a very low rate; while the cabins are simply relics of the old regime, just clay huts roofed with straw. There are very few of the latter standing in Ireland now.

The black bog is a dangerous place for nightly rambles, as it abounds in deep holes full of ink water. But some warm summer evening after sun-set, when the fogs are rising all around, go down there all you who are city tired, and find out how good that springy soil will feel to your cramped feet.

Try a short Marathon along these short pathways, you who are weary of life's treadmill, and see it you do not get to feeling like a young colt just let loose in a clover pasture. Or some misty day in October go down there among the brown heather and let the long, clean, wet winds blow the furrows from your fore head while the rain drops are pattering on the bracken like the wee feet of the fairies themselves.

Always enchanting, always beautiful even if it is at "the back of beyond" the charm of this old bog will twine itself round your heart with a lure strong enough to draw you back to the wilds of Kibbarron for evermore.

A Woman's War Record

(From the London Daily News.) The death has occurred in the National Asylum at La Vesinet, of Mme. Le Breton, who, until quite recently, was a canteen woman in the French army.

She followed the colors in the wars of the Crimea and Mexico, and in the war with Prussia in 1870 she was wounded and taken captive. Although approaching her eightieth year, she went out to Morocco with the expeditionary force a year or so ago, and was once more wounded, and captured by the enemy.

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA AND BRONCHITIS

Brought Mrs. Baker to Death's Door. Father Morrissy's No. 10 Saved Her.

Of the many hundreds of cures wrought by Father Morrissy's No. 10 (Lung Tonic) few are more remarkable than the saving of the life of Mrs. John S. Baker, of 104 Rossland Road (North End), St. John, N.B. She wrote on Oct. 16, 1909:

"I wish to express my gratitude that I am living to-day, saved from the grave by Father Morrissy's No. 10 (Lung Tonic). This time last year I had pleuro-pneumonia and bronchitis, and had been given up to die, and had my lungs tapped in the City Hospital, and never expected to walk again; I was continually getting worse every day. I came home from the hospital, and everyone was watching for me to die. I tried everything but there seemed to be no cure for me.

"I began taking Father Morrissy's No. 10, and the second day I could eat without pain. I used 22 bottles of No. 10, as I was run down right into consumption, and for six months was just a shadow until I began to use it, and now I am in good health, and surprised most of my neighbors by gaining so quickly. I feel it my duty to publish it everywhere I can, as with all I can say I cannot recommend it too highly—it was a life saver to me, and I am very thankful to recommend it, as it is worth all it is said."

Father Morrissy's No. 10 is very different from the many preparations that simply relieve a cough. No. 10 relieves the cause of the cough, restores the membranes of throat and lungs to a healthy condition, and tones up the whole system, giving strength to resist future attacks. Trial bottle 25c.—regular size 50c. At your dealer or from Father Morrissy Medicine Co., Ltd., 72-73, N. B. St., Montreal, Que.

Shipwrecked.

"What are you doing outside on a night like this?" said the miller, "what are you doing outside on a night like this?"

"I'm sheltering from the storm," said Sandy, somewhat sadly. "Men, it's nothing outside what it is inside." —Dundee (Scotland) News.

Where He Went For It. Albert was sent downtown by his mother to get some bit cradish which she needed for her pickles.

After quite a long absence he came back home, tired and empty-handed. "Well, where is the horseradish?" asked his mother.

"Why, mother, I went to every berry stable in town, and they didn't have a bit," answered Albert, with a weary sigh. —Fit File.

The inflow of foreign capital into Canada is unprecedented. From England, from France, from Belgium, from Germany and the United States millions for investment and other purposes. A careful estimate has been made by leading bankers and brokers as to the amount of capital likely to find its way into the Dominion during 1911, and it is claimed that not less than $300,000,000 will be received, while the more optimistic do not hesitate to place the amount $500,000,000.

Of course, all this huge amount, at whatever figure it may be, will be distributed from Halifax to Vancouver in railways, manufacturing concerns, traction enterprises, mining and lumbering operations, as well as the purchase of municipal bonds and stock supplies of many public and private companies.

Then, again, large amounts will be invested in land speculations and the new inauguration of new and progressive corporations, while much money will be placed in enterprises of long lease terms.

Altogether the present year gives evidence of great expansion in all avenues of trade and commerce, and it is to be hoped that Canadians will be equal to the responsibility placed on them by foreign capital and insist on Canada's reputation being maintained as a company of honest and progressive business principles.

Tree Full of Bible Lore.

A student of Holy Writ has composed biblical statistics in this novel form:

The Bible contains 3,566,480 letters, 810,607 words, 31,175 verses, 1,189 chapters and 66 books. The longest chapter is the 119th Psalm; the shortest and middle chapter is the 117th Psalm. The middle verse is the 8th of the 118th Psalm. The longest name is in the 8th chapter of Isaiah. The word "and" occurs 46,627 times; the word "Lord" 1,855 times. The 37th chapter of Isaiah and the 19th chapter of the Second Book of Kings are alike. The longest verse is the 9th of the 8th chapter of Esther; the shortest verse is the 35th of the 11th chapter of John. In the 1st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra is the alphabet. The finest piece of reading is the 20th chapter of Acts. The name of God is not mentioned in the Book of Esther. It contains knowledge, wisdom, holiness and love.

Dreadnought Outclassed

German naval designers are at work on a small type of battleship which is expected to put the great Dreadnoughts in the obsolete class. The new vessels will be lightly armed and very speedy. Their length will be 280 feet, breadth 46 feet and draught 19.2 feet. The hull will extend 39 inches above the water line.

The armament will consist of two 16.7 inch guns, capable of throwing a projectile of 5,940 pounds from one great turret amidship. Four explosive gas motors, each of 6,000 horse-power, will give the vessels a normal speed of 19 knots an hour, and under forced pressure 27 knots. Extraordinary heavy armor plate will be placed on the decks, turrets and sides of the new vessels.

Speaking theoretically, the designers claim that it would require a three-ton projectile to tear up any Dreadnought, while the low freeboard and heavy armor of the new vessels would make their damage by 12-inch guns most difficult.

The cost of the new type ships will be considerably less than that of battleships. The vessels are spoken of in the Navy Department as cruiser destroyers. British naval designers are said to be working along the same lines as the Germans. The fear of dynamite throwing airships or aeroplanes is said to be eliminated in the new type, which is calculated to be bombproof.

Travel With Desks

A school of an entirely novel type has recently been started in Rome, says a writer in The Wide World Magazine, and has already given very good results. This "open air" academy differs from the German open air schools, inasmuch as it is essentially travelling, whereas the school at Charlottenburg, for instance, is composed of a number of pavilions.

The composed satchel and desk carried by the pupil only weighs ten pounds, and therefore no fatigue is caused through carrying this on the back. The pupils, together with their master, wander from one part of the outlying country districts of Rome to another.

The desk is placed on the ground, the backboard is fixed up, and the lesson begins. It is very practical, and the pupils are able to do their work in any place, as they carry with them all that is required. It is held in Rome that this form of instruction will do much towards doing away with the large number of literate persons in the vicinity.

Why Ten Commandments

Are to be Shown

(From the Hartford Times.)

A recent news despatch as to what is described as an abridgment of the Ten Commandments, or in some of the headlines editing the Ten Commandments, has evidently worried some excellent people.

It seems nothing short of blasphemy to those who still believe that God wrote the commandments with His finger on tablets of stone.

It is also true that any alteration of the familiar form must be disagreeable to many who can see no serious harm in changing the phraseology of a translation in any other case, especially if the translation is not from the original document.

For these reasons it seems worth while to explain that what has been proposed by the convocation of Canterbury, an extract from the Dean of Westminster for formulation, is not even a novelty, and in itself of no more importance than the fact that churches differ about the division of the commandments.

Here a quotation from the article of the Decalogue contributed by Mr. Wilhelm Lutz, professor of Old Testament exegesis at the University of Erlangen, to the Schaff-Hertzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge may be of interest:

About the division of the decalogue churches differ; the Jews count Exodus 20, 2, as the first commandment, 3, 6 as the second and (verse) 17 is consequently the tenth; the Greek and Reformed churches make 3 the first, 4, 6 the second and 17 the tenth; the Roman and Lutheran churches see in 3, 6 one commandment and in 17 two commandments. The oldest witness favors the second view, held by Josephus and Philo, and this is undoubtedly the correct one; there is no reason for seeing in 17 two commandments, moreover the text forbids division here, though a highly important statement is not a commandment, and 4, 5 may well on internal grounds be taken as independent of verse 3. The decalogue is divided in Exodus generally, into nine, and in Deuteronomy always into 10 sections.

More interesting than this and more directly related to the present subject is the following passage:—

The difference in the length of the commandments is remarkable; and since this seems due to the addition of explanations, threats or promises, the conviction is forced that originally the decalogue contained 10 short sentences, about as follows: (1) Thou shalt have no other gods besides me. (2) Thou shalt not take unto me any image. (3) Thou shalt not take the name of Yahweh the God in vain. (4) Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. (5) Honor thy father and thy mother. (6) Thou shalt not kill. (7) Thou shalt not commit adultery. (8) Thou shalt not steal. (9) Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor. (10) Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house.

It is probable that the form of the commandments was unknown to any of the copyists or by writing from memory. But as far as the Westminster undertaking is concerned it is nothing more than an attempt to do precisely what is suggested in this passage as quoted.

A Tennis Trick.

Doctor Eaves, the famous lawn tennis player, tells a delightful story of his visit to South Africa.

A wealthy mine owner backed a man who could not play very well against a man who was in the first flight of tournament players. Just before the match he went to the cubicle where his man was dressing, carrying with him a multi-colored suit of flannels, shoes, and a cap to which tinkling bells were attached.

"Back up," said his patron, "your going to win hands down! Your opponent has Spanish blood in his veins, and when he sees you coming on to the court with these things on he won't be able to hit a ball over the net. In vain the duffer protested; he was obliged to dress up like a circus clown. But the contest was never finished. There was such a halloo when the man appeared that the match was declared after the first game.

The Oldest Coin.

What is regarded as the most ancient coin in the world is one that was discovered a few years ago by a German archaeologist during his exploration in north Syria. It is a coin of pure silver, bearing a perfect Aramean inscription of Panamu Herab, King of Schamol, who reigned 800 B. C. Up to the time this coin was found the Lydians had always been regarded as the inventors of money but this new find showed that the Semitic Arameans, who lived two centuries before Lydians, are oldest known coiners of money.

Patriotism

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can wither under hunger but not dyspepsia. The confirmed dyspeptic is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils. The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier and a fault finder.

A sound stomach makes for good citizenship as well as for health and happiness. Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are promptly and permanently cured by the use of

A Pillar Coffin

Perhaps the most singular coffin in which a human being was ever buried is the one of which the following story is told—A workman engaged in casting metal for the manufacture of ordnance in the Woolwich Arsenal, in England, lost his balance, and fell into a cauldron containing twelve tons of molten steel. The metal was at white heat, and the man was utterly consumed in less time than it takes to tell it. The War Office authorities held a conference, and decided not to profane the dead by using the metal in the manufacture of ordnance and the mass of metal was actually buried, and a Church of England clergyman read the sermon for the dead over it.

A Big Hat Nuisance

Mr. Editor: I noticed in the Telegraph that they are about to pass an act not to allow ladies hat pins to project more than a half inch. I do not see why this is of any great importance, but I think it would be a benefit to the ladies and to the public if they would make their bonnets about half the size they do. The stock would not cost as much and they would be less expensive for making. I have sat in a congregation where the light would be so obstructed by those big bonnets that if the services were in the day time you would think there was a total eclipse on the sun. I think pride is the curse of the world. There is no restriction on pride as there is on liquor; it goes in the church, in the choir, in the pulpit and in the grave.—Exchange.

A Correction.

"Ethelinda's sister represents one of the best families in Europe," said Mrs. Chuzzlewick. "No, he doesn't," answered her husband. "I've heard about that family and it's a party good one. He misrepresents it!"—Washington Star.

Do you believe that marriage is a lottery?" she asked.

"Yes," he replied, "and I also believe that every woman is anxious to take one or more chances."—Chicago.

In a year, of the men that go down to the sea in ships as a trade, well up to three thousand were drowned, and the sea took toll also of about two thousand passengers.

Ten or eleven thousand accidents to the world's shipping are recorded each year. Three quarters of them are important and seven or eight hundred are total losses. More than half the disasters happen to British ships, of which there have been lost over eight thousand, or more than three million tons in twenty years.

In the same time, 19,000 sailors and over 4,000 passengers have met a watery grave in British hulls alone.

A Paying Crop.

In 1902 F. S. Kirk of Garfield county, Oklahoma, sowed a field near a creek, but about twenty-five feet above water, with thirty to thirty-five pounds of alfalfa seed per acre, broadcast.

The soil, which he calls "high ottom" was a dark brown, and contained considerable sand.

For two years no attention was given the alfalfa, except harvesting from it three crops the second year and four the third year. In 1905 he harvested from ten acres nine cuttings, estimated to weigh fully one and one-half tons each per acre. The longest time between any two cuttings was twenty two days.

During the season of 1904 six cuttings were made, and the field was gone over with a disc harrow early each time after removing hay from the field. It was possible to cut another crop eight to twelve inches had he preferred to use it as pasture for stock.—From Colburn's "The Book of Alfalfa."

Hon. (or otherwise) Sifton one of the plague spots on the liberal party of Canada has rapped to the other side which will now have to forget all the unpleasant things they have been in the habit of saying of him. He evidently is now in with the Capitalists whose interests or money making privileges and monopolies are endangered by freer trade. Some reports are afoot that he may attain the leadership of the opposition, but that seems overdrawn.

"You were good friends, weren't you, up to a certain time?"

"Yes, but dog-gone it, I lent him 50 cents and he wanted too much time," Boston Herald.

A town with the industrial possibilities of St. George should be encouraged by the Government to the extent of erecting a respectable public building.—Beacon.

The Post Office for a town the size of St. George is a disgrace to the town and also to the Government that will provide such inadequate and shabby quarters.

On Monday evening at a meeting of the congregation of St. Marks church a call was extended to the Rev. Mr. Spencer of Grand Manan conditional on the Parish of Penfield being willing to do the same. Representatives of Penfield parish were to have attended the meeting but were prevented from doing so on account of helping at the Justison fire which occurred that evening.

A disastrous fire occurred at Penfield last Monday about 4 p. m. when the residence of Enoch C. Justison was totally destroyed. The fire caught in the eaves and most of the furniture and contents of the main building were saved, but nothing of any account was got out of the ell part. Mr. Justison had $200 insurance which will go but a small way in covering his loss and much sympathy is felt for him. The adjutor from St. John arrived Thursday to adjust the loss which was in the Sun Company.

Red Granite Division as reported last week held a straw ride on Wednesday evening to pay a fraternal visit to Bocabee division leaving here about 6 p. m. returning about 2:30 a. m. About 46 attended driving in 5 teams with harness, one double seated sleigh also going. The visitors were most royally entertained, refreshments being served during the evening and a very pleasant visit enjoyed by those going. Next Wednesday the Bocabee division will pay a return to visit Red Granite division should the weather prove favorable, it is not on Thursday evening.

A quiet wedding took place at the Chapel on Monday morning when Rev. L. F. Carson united in marriage Miss Mary A. Scullin of Rolling Dam and Harry L. McAlenann of Bocabee, Miss Jane Murray and Geo. Scammell doing the honors for bride and groom respectively. The bridal party after taking dinner at the Victoria, drove to Bonny River in the afternoon taking tea there, returning here in the evening and remaining over night leaving Tuesday morning for their future home in Bocabee. All wish the happy young couple a prosperous journey through life. The bride is well known in several districts of the county where she has taught school during the past few years.

A very interesting game of Hockey was played on the rink Saturday afternoon of last week, when the St. John High School team played the St. George High School team. At the beginning of the game it looked as if the home team were not to have any show as the visitors forced the game around the home goal and got in 2 almost at the very beginning of the game.

The boys however braced up and things began to get more even, and before the first half was finished had succeeded in obtaining a goal.

On the line up for the second half it was evident that the home team were up for business and kept the game well up in their adversaries ground and shortly succeeded in getting another goal, thus making a tie.

Notwithstanding the efforts put forth by both teams no more goals were obtained when time was called at 3 p. m. and as the visitors had to catch the 3:30 train for home they decided not to play any longer, the game thus resulting in a tie.

The visitors with good cause were rather sore on account of the home team having E. Johnson who is somewhat one of the school class. The game throughout was played in a nice clean manner, penalties being about even. The line-up was as follows:

St. John H. S. Position St. Geo. H. S.
Ritchie Goal McNeill
Smith Point J. Dewar
Carr Cover E. Johnson
Teel (Capt.) Kover Macham
Hunter Centre Hillhead
Leavitt L. Wong H. Stuart
Hippwell R. Wang A. Johnson (Cap.)

The goals were got by Hippwell and Hunter for St. John and A. Johnson and Hillbar for St. George. E. J. O'Neil refereed the game in a satisfactory manner. During the game several nice plays were made by both sides.

The County Court

The County Court convened on Tuesday last, Justice Cullen presiding. C. L. Ketchum was present as stenographer.

The barriers in attendance were M. Macdonough and N. Marks Mills, St. Stephen; M. N. Cookburn St. Andrews; W. E. Malloy was chosen foreman of the Grand Jury.

The only case to come before the Grand Jury was that of Grossvener Gupitt who was charged with assault upon Edward Cook at Grand Manan, on the 17th of October last. Gupitt was also charged with escaping from the North Head lockup while the preliminary examination in his case was in progress.

Attorney Macdonough notified the court that a statement had been filed in the civil case in which he had been employed.

Attorney Mills stated that the case in which he had asked for a jury had been deferred until June. This left the court without any cases to try.

Naturalization papers were applied for on behalf of Thos. Edward McGarry J. Mr. Mills.

The Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Gupitt for common assault and for escaping a bench warrant and was ordered to issue against him, after which the court adjourned.—Beacon.

FROM HANSARD
Extract from Speech of Hugh Guthrie M. P., for St. John's, Wellington on the Trade Arrangement with N. S.

I have no stock whatever in the idea that we are going to ruin the country. The railroads have always been able to take care of themselves. I take no stock in the cry that we will originate British capital. I believe the Hon. member from North Toronto (Mr. Foster, yesterday based 75 per cent. of his argument on the declaration of letter written by Mr. Blake in 1891 upon a proposal radically different from the one now before this house. That was a policy of un- restricted reciprocity or commercial union; this is a proposal of a very limited trade agreement. The one was to be in the shape of a definite binding treaty, this in the shape of a treaty which we or the United States can set aside at will, which will remain in force only so long as it proves mutually beneficial. The arguments of Mr. Blake, for whom I have the highest respect, do not pertain to the question now under consideration; this committee, although they might have pertain and probably did pertain, to the question under discussion at the time Mr. Blake wrote his letter. But what about the railroads? Who says the railroads of Canada have any fear of this? Who has the right to say so? Who has heard from them in regard to the subject? Have any railroads pronounced upon the question? The only railroad man who has pronounced upon it is Sir Donald Mann, of the Canadian Northern. It was rumored in one paper that Sir William Mackenzie had said something but Sir Donald Mann is quite clear in his statement, which is published in a very respectable financial paper in Canada called the Financial Post, in the issue of Feb. 4. Sir Donald Mann there says:

"The products of the farm, of the sea, and of the mine are entitled to equal consideration. No should the lumbermen be overlooked. Timber is a crop which ripens, and should be reaped. If it is not, it deteriorates. He who cuts down one ripe tree and plants one or more in its place is a producer of wealth. If we have seven or eight millions of people in Canada, with a free market for the producer, and to that number we add the 95 millions of the United States, we are assisting the most important industries in Canada.

"Next in importance to the producer comes the manufacturer and it is the duty of the government to provide increased market facilities for both. The United States has ceased to export cattle, and may soon cease to export wheat. The balance between production and consumption is drawing nearer adjustment. If it were possible to prevent grain from going south, without injury to the producer, I would say avoid a treaty or other reciprocal arrangement, but it is beyond our power to hold our wheat within British territory. The U-thing like it. Never an other, though out the world, we have not known, have good trade relations between two countries brought about by commercial or political union. Look at the trade union between Great Britain and Germany, amounting to £78,000,000 or £80,000,000 a year. Is it this that we want? Who, Hon. gentlemen oppose say they are ready to spring at each others throats. Did the trade treaty between England and France, negotiated by Richard Cobden 50 or 60 years ago, bring about political union between those two countries? Previous to that treaty there was a pretty bad feeling between England and France and out of it came peace and harmony, but no political union. On what is this the cry based? I know, for no reason and perhaps the real reason, why there has been an annexation feeling in this country. Before the negotiations of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, there was an annexation party in Canada. We have not forgotten the annexation manifesto signed by such men as the late Sir John Abbott, afterwards Prime Minister of Canada, Sir John Rose, Sir Francis Hincks, and other staunch Conservatives. They afterwards changed their opinions and became great men in public affairs. I am free to admit. What was the cause of it? It was because they could not get reciprocal trade relations with the United States.

THREE MARKETS INSTEAD OF TWO
Mr. Guthrie—The hour of adjournment is so near, that I cannot continue this discussion longer. I have heard no substantial reason advanced against this proposal, which will bear investigation. Every interest of Canada is guarded. It gives us three markets, instead of two. Every interest of Great Britain is guarded. If a day comes when Great Britain is able to enter into better arrangements with the colonies and to bring us all together our hands are free. It will become a greater and more prosperous people, if we become a richer people, we shall be all the stronger as a British nation and a part of the British Empire, and we shall never with my consent, be other than a part of the British Empire. But why mix this matter up with questions affecting our political relations? The whole and sole question for us is, have we made a good bargain? As for me and the part of the country which I represent, this proposal will be welcomed as one of the most progressive acts of a government which for fourteen years has shown nothing but progress, development and success in Canada.

RAILWAYS NOT AFRAID
That is a very strong settlement and it is the only authoritative announcement by any important railroad man I have seen. Why then raise that cry about railroads? The railroads are not afraid of it. What are the Canadian Pacific railway doing? They have completed their lines to Chicago and Duluth; owning now the Wisconsin Central through the United States and the Sault line to Duluth. What are the Canadian Northern doing? At this moment they are completing their line from Winnipeg to Duluth and by Aug. 1 that line will be in operation and it will be carrying grain in September. The railroads are not afraid of it. Who is afraid of it? I do not know that the Manufacturers' Association have made any pronouncement upon the subject. I do not think they have. They probably will oppose it on the ground that they have opposed almost everything that emanates from this government in regard to tariffs.

Then, what is their real objection? I think the weakest objections I have heard, and one which it is almost useless to discuss, is that a good trade agreement between Canada and the United States, which will be beneficial to this country—and if it is not, we will abrogate it—will lead in some way to a commercial or political union between the two countries. Some people say—I do not think they are very brave in the idea—that it is the entering of the wedge; that it is the beginning of the end. Well I cannot see in a trade measure anything of the kind. There is nothing to support such an idea. There has been no experience, so far as I am aware, of any-able bodied 'strap passengers,' who assist in hauling the boats and mails, is very arduous. The time required to make the crossing is from three to nine hours, both limits being exceptional, and the average being perhaps about four hours. At the crossing the passengers who work their way are laboring at the straps in drags of the boat ice fields launching it into the open water when such is found and hauling it out again when ice is met. They get wet to the hips at frequent times; they are exposed to the wind and to zero cold, usually in the three to five hours in which they make this journey of seven miles. In emergencies, as has happened, they may be out among the bergs and ice-flows all day and night. Some have met death and others have been maimed for life from these hardships. These are the conditions of the Capes service, the only reliable route at this writing between this Province and the other Provinces of Canada. It is an inter-provincial service conducted by the Government of Canada. And the charge upon passengers is two dollars for the 'strap passengers' and four dollars each for women, aged or infirm persons, who are unable to work their passage. This for seven miles distance. We have submitted to this for thirty-eight years since the union of 1823, paying 57 cents per mile, or, working the passage and paying 28 cents per mile, to

THE CAPES ROUTE
Some interesting Facts in regard to the Ice Boat Service Now in Operation between P. E. Island and the Mainland.

The Charlottetown Guardian under the caption, "A noteworthy inter-provincial route" says:-
"When the winter steamers are unable to make the passage between Prince Edward Island and Pictou, the only route by which passengers and mails can go or come from or to this Province is by the way of the Capes route, as it is called, from Cape Traverse, P. E. Island and Cape Tormentine, New Brunswick. This is now the only route open. In all ordinary winters, last winter being an exception, this route is the only one available during longer or shorter periods in mid-winter. The periods during which the winter steamers fail to effect a crossing vary from two or three days at a time up to weeks, and in 1905 they failed continuously for a period of two months, and at other times within the present decade half as long. The distance between the Capes is hardly seven miles, but the distance traversed by the Government ice-boats may be several times that distance owing to the boats being carried up or down the straits by the swift tidal current. The work of the boat's crews and of the Synopsis of Canadian North-West Land Regulations.

Any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months residence and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter brother or sister.
In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside on the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres, erect a house worth $300.00.
