

Dominion General Election.

Polling, Tuesday, - Feb. 22nd.
Declaration, Saturday, - Feb. 26th.

YORK COUNTY Liberal - Conservative Candidates, THOS. TEMPLE, Esq.

TO THE ELECTORS COUNTY OF YORK.

GENTLEMEN:
The House of Commons having been dissolved, I have, at the request of many of the Electors of this County, again consented to place myself at your disposal.

Since I have had the honor to be your representative, I have always endeavored to do my utmost for the County of York, and to act in the best interests of the Province and Dominion generally.

I have, as you are aware, secured the aid of the Dominion, and the construction of several public works of much interest to this County and the Province at large, and there are others for which I have succeeded in obtaining partial aid; and, if again elected, I have no doubt I will be able to secure such further assistance as will ensure their successful completion.

Should you consider my past course in your interests, I may ask with confidence a renewal of your support.

During the present canvass I shall endeavor to visit as many of you as possible, and explain more fully my acts since you last honored me with a majority of your votes.

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant
THOMAS TEMPLE.

HOW TO VOTE.

On the voter entering the polling place, the presiding officer asks him his name, occupation, residence, etc., and his answers are entered by the clerk: If no objection be offered, the voter is given a ballot, of which the following is a likeness:-

Electors for the Electoral District of York County, February 22nd, 1887.

I
GREGORY,
Geo F.
of Fredericton,
COUNTY OF YORK,
Barrister.

II
X
TEMPLE,
Thomas
of Fredericton, County of York,
Gentleman.

except that the cross will not be on it. The presiding officer has previously intimated the ballot and numbered the counterfoil attached, the voter is then directed to enter a comparison provided, where he will make a cross X to the right of the name as we have marked above.

Should the voter be unable to read, he must take an oath to that effect. Then he will be accompanied by the presiding officer to the comparison, and in the presence of the candidates' representatives (who are sworn to secrecy) the officer makes the cross alongside the names of the elector and for whom the elector desires to vote.

Electors of York, see that your ballots are marked as the one above. REMEMBER THIS, THAT NO MISTAKE MAY OCCUR, if you wish to vote for Mr. Temple, place a cross opposite his name as indicated above.

THE RESULT IN 1884.

Now that the electors are once more about to engage in another trial of strength between the party of progress and that of stagnation, and disloyalty, the numbers of votes thrown at the result of 1884, will be with interest.

FREDERICTON.

Wentworth Ward..... 42
St. Ann's Ward..... 40
Carlton Ward..... 41
Queens Ward..... 48
Kings Ward..... 47

Total Fredericton..... 300
Non-Residents..... 80
19

New Brunswick..... 36
King's County..... 97
Manners-Sutton No. 1..... 108
do No. 2..... 8
Princes William No. 1..... 41
do No. 2..... 45
Dumfries No. 1..... 41
do No. 2..... 45
Canterbury No. 1..... 29
do No. 2..... 169
North Lake..... 66
St. Mary's No. 1..... 38
do No. 2 (Gibson)..... 307 Dundas No. 1..... 72
do No. 2..... 67
Bright No. 1..... 78
do No. 2..... 67
Queensbury No. 1..... 68
do No. 2..... 11
Southampton No. 1..... 168
do No. 2..... 17
Stanley No. 1..... 116
do No. 2..... 68
Total..... 3012
1884

Majority for Temple..... 178
The total number of votes cast was 3880.

THERE ARE CHEAP PANACEAS for various human ailments, continually cropping up Northrop & Co.'s Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure has no affinity with any of these. Unlike them, the article is prepared from the purest sources, is prepared with the utmost chemical skill, and is a genuine remedy and not a palliative for Bilemness, Constipation, Kidney trouble, impurity of the blood, and female complaints.

Sir John Lester Kaye has completed the organization of a powerful syndicate for the purpose of working the farms of 10,000 acres in the Northwest territories. His associates are "Englishmen, and they have decided to place the capital stock at the high figure of $1,500,000. The farms will give employment to thousands of persons. Sir John has sailed for England for the purpose of making the final arrangements. The farms are along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railroad. All the thoroughbred stock for the farms will be imported from England.

"What's in a name, &c." "Cure-All" Liniment, (the name given it by one of its patrons when first introduced) is now for sale by all respectable dealers throughout the Province. The trial of a bottle of Bairstow's All Liniment will convince you of its value.

THE CAMPAIGN!

Two Rousing Meetings in the City Hall yesterday in Mr. Temple's Interest.

The Prelude to a Glorious Victory.

Yesterday's proceedings in the city have raised the enthusiasm of Mr. Temple's friends to a fever pitch. There was a splendid representation of the party electors here to attend the nomination proceedings, and it is safe to say that two thirds of the people were supporters of Mr. Temple. After the formal nomination proceedings at the Court House, Mr. Temple held a crowded meeting in the City Hall, where the speaker was plain and straightforward statement of the valuable way in which he has served this constituency in Parliament, and of the great things he hopes to accomplish in the future. He was applauded to the echo. Ald. Gaunce was at the meeting, and made a most telling address being frequently interrupted with applause. The meeting was a great success for Mr. Temple.

A second meeting in Mr. Temple's interest was held in the City Hall last night, and long before 8 o'clock the building was packed to the doors. Ald. T. W. Smith was called to the chair, and when Mr. Temple made his appearance on the platform accompanied by Mr. Watmore, Ald. Gaunce, Mr. Jordan, Mr. C. H. B. Fisher, he received a perfect ovation, the audience cheering again and again. A large body of leading supporters of Mr. Temple from the Parishes sat on the platform, and the audience was composed very largely of Mr. Temple's friends. An organized Grit clique went to the meeting to create a disturbance and annoy the speakers, but they were most effectively set upon, and compelled to behave themselves. Mr. Temple, when he arose to address the meeting, was cheered again and again. He said he scarcely expected to be present; he thought Mr. Gregory would have had him safely locked up in the County Jail. But he was glad to be there, and he would do his best to help Mr. Gregory to win the vote. (Tremendous applause.)

Mr. Jordan followed in an able and convincing address, taking up the great issues of the contest. Mr. O. H. B. Fisher delivered a most able address, which was warmly received. Mr. Watmore delivered a rousing address, and Mr. Jordan followed in a most able address, which was warmly received. Mr. Watmore delivered a rousing address, and Mr. Jordan followed in a most able address, which was warmly received.

The meeting was a magnificent success, and Mr. Temple's stock went up in the city.

SUNDAY NOMINATION.

The proceedings at the Court House Sunday, yesterday, resulted in a great victory for the Liberal Conservatives. Mr. Burpee's speech was a rebuke of the Government's policy, and was warmly received. Mr. Burpee's speech was a rebuke of the Government's policy, and was warmly received.

It is believed that Mr. Puley, M. P. P. for Kings, will be elected speaker of the new Assembly.

Mr. John R. Dunn, a former University student, is returning officer for the Dominion election in Queens.

Mr. A. A. Bartlett has succeeded in forming a Curling club at Charlottetown, of which he is the Sec'y-Treasurer.

James Malone, Duncan Kelley, Thomas H. O'Neil, and W. Rogers Evans, are guests of Justice of the Peace for York County.

Next Wednesday being Ash Wednesday, the monthly tobogganing party at Government House will be held on Saturday afternoon at 11 o'clock.

In the curling match last Thursday between the St. Andrews club of St. John, and the home club—the latter won by six points. The visitors were dined at the Barker House the same.

Calley, Brunning & Woods, dry goods merchants, doing business on King street St. John, and in Halifax under the firm name of Alfred H. Brunning, have announced for the benefit of their creditors George Hatt, Jr., of Fredericton, and R. A. Courtney, of Portland.

Mr. Nelson Campbell whose place of business is on Queen Street opposite the City Hall has in stock a splendid selection of boots shoes and caps. Mr. Campbell offers these at the most reasonable prices, and feels that he can thoroughly satisfy his customers.

The first meeting of Marysville Town Council was held on Thursday afternoon, Mayor A. Gibson, Jr. in the chair. All the councillors were present. E. A. Tapley was appointed Town Clerk; H. G. Robinson, Treasurer; James Murray, Jr., Auditor; M. Weeds, Road Commissioner; Geo. B. Hanson, Commissioner of Poor; Alfred Barker, Surveyor of Drills; Constable A. number of committees were appointed and the Council adjourned to meet on the second Tuesday in March.

Notwithstanding bad weather, the carnival Friday night, was largely attended and passed off successfully. The prizes were awarded as follows:-

Best of best snowshoes costume—Mrs. R. M. Jack; prize a pair of blankets presented by Mr. F. B. Edgecombe.

Best original character, "The Fishery Supply," Miss Mary Campbell and Mr. Thos. Walker; prize $5 donated by Fredericton Brass Band.

Best second best original character "Two Old Time Squaws," the Misses Winslow; prize $3 presented by directors.

Best original character, "Just from Cork," Harry Pat; prize $5 presented by band; best prize, "Pie Man," Byron Phair; prize $3 presented by directors.

15,000 cases of canned meats have been ordered in Australia by European parties. The Maine mackerel catch for 1886 was 18,940 barrels against 138,185 barrels for 1885.

The United States has passed bills appropriating $21,000,000 for modern ordnance and coast fortifications.

Hanlan, the oarsman, had a narrow escape the other day from being killed in an ice-blast race at Hamilton, Ont.

It was long ago discovered that a sufficient supply of iron in the blood was one of the indications of good health, the vice versa, to obtain richer, richer blood, use Bairstow's Kidney and Blood Purifier, and it promotes its growth.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

That Canterbury Meeting.

The Gleaner's Falsehoods Nailed by Ald. Gaunce.

Gregory's Dishonest efforts to bolster his Failing Cause.

DEAR SIR.—I have just seen an article in this evening's Gleaner, which refers to a late political meeting in Canterbury, which is such a tissue of falsehoods, that I beg space to reply thereto. A cause which needs such reports to support its failing energies, and which allows an organ to indulge in such open and deliberate falsehoods in a space less than a column, must be weak indeed.

Falsehood No. 1.—Mr. Gaunce made an effort to out Mr. Gregory of the meeting. Fact No. 1.—I learned at Mr. Gregory's in the afternoon, that Mr. Gregory and our party were billed for some place same evening, and before I even entered the village, on my way into the village, we went to Mr. Ford at home and asked him to tender Mr. Gregory half the meeting. Mr. Gregory half the meeting.

Falsehood No. 2.—The resident electors would not listen to my urgent demands, to monopolize the occasion. Fact No. 2.—No resident electors were consulted about it, but Mr. Moore referred to, and Rev. A. H. Traflet, whom we later met at the hotel. Both gentlemen appreciated our course.

Falsehood No. 3.—Mr. Gaunce evaded the main issue? Fact No. 3.—Mr. Gaunce discussed the Debt, the Taxation, the Expenditure. He thought these were main issues, but getting into power is evidently the main issue in the Gleaner and his champion just now.

Falsehood No. 4.—Mr. Gaunce related two stories which were of more than doubtful propriety. Fact No. 4.—Mr. Gaunce told no story of doubtful propriety, and for that matter, is ready to measure either reputation or character with any of the Gleaner's staff or their champion before any jury of the people to whom all parties are known.

Falsehood No. 5.—Mr. Gregory's opponents, Mr. Jordan and myself, remained until he was done, and on his requesting us to leave, we up, I offered to let him go on 10 minutes if he would give me 10 minutes to reply. This he declined, and coward-like, after having spent the present campaign, fairly and honestly, I might speak 10 minutes and he would reply. The repetition of my challenge brought the reply that he would not stop, and he forthwith began to peddle the "Boodle Brigade" and other literature to the boys.

Now, sir, that your readers may judge by this, the quality of the Gleaner's reports, and the quality of their champion's mettle, I take the liberty to refer you to my own doubt which story to believe, to any of these gentlemen who were present at the meeting: Frederick Moore, O. L. Brinkley, Mr. Traflet, O. E. Grovesman, Mr. Edwards or Mr. Masten. I have not exchanged words with these gentlemen since the meeting on that night, but have no fear in thus referring the facts to them.

Yours, sincerely,
W. G. GAUNCE.
Fredericton, February 16, 1887.

TO LET.

TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

Just Received:

A LARGE LOT OF TEA!
carefully selected and of different grades. Will be sold cheap for Cash. Also, on hand a full stock of

Flour, Meal,
Sugar,
Molasses,
Tobacco,
Canned Goods
AND GENERAL GROCERIES,
which will be sold at Rock Bottom Prices.

S. L. MORRISON,
Opp. Normal School,
Queen St., - Fredericton.
February 16.

PAIS!
HALF PAIS!
Brooms,
WASHBORDS,
Clothes Pins,
For sale Low by JAMES HODGE.
Fredericton, February 16, 1887.

Hanging Lamps.
EVERYBODY wants light, and knowing this, I have a large stock of hanging lamps, and selling them at other goods, very cheap. Any person wanting Furniture, Crockery, Silver, Glass, etc., etc., can get it at a low price.

SAVING MONEY,
by purchasing from LEMON & SONS.
We also keep on hand WINDOW LADDER TABLES, and other furniture. February 16.

HOUSES TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THAT residence in the Brick Building, Queen Street, at present occupied by Mr. McKeen. Excellent accommodation for a large family.
Possession given 1st May. Apply to
J. D. MACPHERSON.
Fredericton, February 9.

TO LET.
TWO HOUSES in Gibson to Let. Barns on a commodious lot required.
For particulars apply to the subscriber.
JOHN NEILL.
Gibson, February 9, 1887.

THOS. W. SMITH

has commenced his Great CLEARING SALE
—OF—
Ready-Made Clothing, BOOTS, SHOES,
AND
BOYS' HATS and CAPS.
ALSO,
Gents' and Youths' Underwear,
with other lines of Goods too numerous to mention, and as his whole stock is marked down to its lowest margin, Bargains may be expected.

His Tailoring Department is under one of the Best Cutters in the Dominion. He guarantees satisfaction in this department to all his patrons.

THOS. W. SMITH
Fredericton, December 6.

GREAT
CLEARANCE SALE!
AT THE STORE OF
S. F. SHUTE.
NOW IS THE TIME TO PURCHASE
Watches, Clocks and Jewelry,
Silver, and Silver Plated Ware,
Diamond Sets,
Diamond Pins,
Diamond Ear Drops,
Diamond Lockets and Diamond Rings.
PEARL RINGS, BAND RINGS,
Stone Rings,
PLAIN WEDDING RINGS,
Gold and Silver Head Covers,
Flush Goods, Bronze Goods,
Brass Goods, Leather Goods,
And a full line of Fancy Goods.

WALTHAM WATCHES,
Egin and Springfield Watches
Swiss and the Celebrated Quick Turn Fredericton Railroad Watches.
All going at Extraordinary Low Prices.
Sole Agents for the Celebrated Lazard & Morris perfect SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.
November 17, 1886.

JUST RECEIVED:
10 gross Diamond Dyes,
1 gross Tapley's Remedy,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
Fellows Hypophosphites,
Shiloh's Remedies.

JOHN M. WILEY,
Opp. Normal School,
Queen St., Fredericton.

Inspection Invited.
TENNANT, DAVIES & CO.,
Directly Opp. Normal School,
Queen Street, - Fredericton.
Fredericton, January 10.

WILEY'S
DRUG STORE!
Just Received:
10 gross Diamond Dyes,
1 gross Tapley's Remedy,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
Fellows Hypophosphites,
Shiloh's Remedies.

JOHN M. WILEY,
Opp. Normal School,
Queen St., Fredericton.

Inspection Invited.
TENNANT, DAVIES & CO.,
Directly Opp. Normal School,
Queen Street, - Fredericton.
Fredericton, January 10.

WILEY'S
DRUG STORE!
Just Received:
10 gross Diamond Dyes,
1 gross Tapley's Remedy,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
Fellows Hypophosphites,
Shiloh's Remedies.

JOHN M. WILEY,
Opp. Normal School,
Queen St., Fredericton.

Inspection Invited.
TENNANT, DAVIES & CO.,
Directly Opp. Normal School,
Queen Street, - Fredericton.
Fredericton, January 10.

WILEY'S
DRUG STORE!
Just Received:
10 gross Diamond Dyes,
1 gross Tapley's Remedy,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
Fellows Hypophosphites,
Shiloh's Remedies.

JOHN M. WILEY,
Opp. Normal School,
Queen St., Fredericton.

Inspection Invited.
TENNANT, DAVIES & CO.,
Directly Opp. Normal School,
Queen Street, - Fredericton.
Fredericton, January 10.

WILEY'S
DRUG STORE!
Just Received:
10 gross Diamond Dyes,
1 gross Tapley's Remedy,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
Fellows Hypophosphites,
Shiloh's Remedies.

JOHN M. WILEY,
Opp. Normal School,
Queen St., Fredericton.

Inspection Invited.
TENNANT, DAVIES & CO.,
Directly Opp. Normal School,
Queen Street, - Fredericton.
Fredericton, January 10.

WILEY'S
DRUG STORE!
Just Received:
10 gross Diamond Dyes,
1 gross Tapley's Remedy,
Warner's Safe Cure,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
Fellows Hypophosphites,
Shiloh's Remedies.

JOHN M. WILEY,
Opp. Normal School,
Queen St., Fredericton.

Inspection Invited.
TENNANT

Poetry

The Model Subscriber.

Good morning, Mr. Editor, how are the folks at home?
I owe you for next year's paper—I thought I'd come and pay it, and you'd be glad to see me.
And Jones says to take it, and this is his money here.
I shall send it to him, and then come
him to try it a year.

"You're doing the politics badly, as all our family agree;
Just keep your old nose-quill a dapple, and give them a good one for me.
And now you are cheerful of business, and won't be taking your time, I've things of my own I must tend to—good day, Mr. Editor, I believe I will climb."

The editor sat in his sanctum, and brought down his fist with a thump;
"God bless that old farmer," he muttered;
"he's a regular jolly old tramp."
And the thing with his noble profession, and thus it will be ever still.
There are some who give to labor, and
some who give to the poor;
But in the great field of coming, when Gibbs's trumpet shall sound,
And they who have labored and rested shall come from the quivering ground;
When they who have suffered and suffered to teach and console the race Shall march at the head of the column, each in his God-given place.
As they march through the gates of the city with glad and victorious tread
The editor and his assistants will travel not far from the head.

Lifeature.

RETRIBUTION.

CHAPTER XXX.

"IT CANNOT BE."

"You said you were eternal, my love," he heard her say, after what seemed to him a long silence; but her voice sounded after of old.

He removed his hand from his eyes and looked over at her.
Was she grinning at him, and was that agitation caused by having painful memories of her own life revived?

"Yes, in a certain sense it is—it was too deep and true ever to avenge from its allegiance; but it was for the real woman—
my ideal," he said, mournfully.

"But, my love, if this and this could be explained—this girl, who is your wife, could prove herself false, then then?" pleaded the nun, her head still
bowed low.

"I shall never give her the opportunity,
there can be but one way to explain it,
and the matter must rest where it is. The past is past, and nothing can recall it," he said, firmly.

"You are doing wrong, my love," the
nun now replied, with much earnestness
as he had displayed; "it is right that all
should have the opportunity to speak in their own defense. If you have decided this to the young girl who has just been wedded, you are guilty of great wrong."

"Get back to her, I pray, and
tell her, if she says, 'I have decided this
to her,' I will not object."

"I want no explanations, I tell you;
they would only serve to stir up the bitterness of the past again. I saw with my own eyes her perjury, and I will never return to her again; I will never look upon her face again. I have said it, I have returned, stubbornly."

"But she really believed what she said,
and there could be no explanation, and
that Nina was misled as false as she appeared."

Oh, if he had only known the truth,
how much after suffering he might have
been saved!

"Nay, do not leave me, Sister Agnes,"
he said; "you are stronger than me, and I do not enjoy Sister Rachel. I thank you for your sympathy, though I know it must be beyond the pale of your duties
to listen to the confessions of your
penitent."

She came close to his bedside now, but
the light was so dim that he could not distinguish her features at all.

She stood before him with her hands
crossed upon her breast and her head
bowed, and spoke in the saddest tones
he had ever heard.

"My love," she said, "it is impossible
for me to tell you how deeply your words
have moved me; you have my sympathy
and my prayers. I trust your life is not entirely ruined, as you fear—I hope the
future may have much of peace for you;
but let me plead with you, as one who has
also suffered much, and with equal injustice—let me plead with you, I say, to go back to your former bride, and give her
an opportunity to defend herself if she
can, and something tells me that she can."

She paused a moment, as if it was difficult to go on; then she resumed:

"You were wrong, all wrong, to judge
her so rashly; you were jealous and passionate, doubtless, in your first grief
upon discovering what you did. Oh! go back to her, listen to her calmly and
patiently, and do not judge her until you
learn all the truth from her own lips."

"That I have already refused to do—
she said she could make everything plain
in five minutes, but I do not believe it,"
he said, firmly, and he saw that his words
made her shudder.

"How she feels for me!" he thought,
never dreaming of the cause of her suffering.

But he did not like to be blamed—he
had suffered enough from his own conscience for having been so rash and hasty;
but it was not pleasant to have it put into
words by another.

"Then you can never hope for peace,"
she said, with infinite sadness, "and you have also barred the way for her. My love, my love, heed my warning. I pray—
I beseech you, if you would not make your future a blank, if you would not have the
sin on your conscience of ruining the life
of another, if you would not entail upon
yourself a life of ceaseless remorse and
pain, when you shall discover all too late,
that you have been in the wrong, go back
to your wife and listen to what she
has to say to you."

Pen cannot portray the pathos of her pleadings.

Her earnestness thrilled him, and for the moment he was almost tempted to believe that her woman's intuition had shown her the truth; that he had been all wrong.

But he felt so sure of his own position—that lightning vision was so fresh in his mind; those wild ravings of the sick actress were still ringing in his ears—that he could only feel that the hope she held out to him was mockery, and he steered his heart against her prayer.

"Go back to have her mock me and cheat me again? Never!" he cried, the blood rushing over his white face.

"How do you know?" he demanded, fiercely, and raising himself on his elbow
to peer into her face.

Something in her tones, something in her manner, made him quiver with strange emotion.

Who was she—what was she to be moved
thus by a stranger's history?

Why did she shudder so when she came near? What was there about her
that affected him so strangely?

For a moment he held his breath as he strove to read the downward face in the gathering gloom.

But the slender figure stood motion-
less as a statue; the little hands, although clasped, still the smile were livid
though only calmly clasped upon the quiet breast.

He caught the sound of a quickly
suppressed sob, as she answered, in strained, suffering tones:

"My own heart tells me I have suffered
oh, so cruelly, that I feel it must be so.
Will you not be merciful?"

"Who are you?" he cried hoarsely.

She reached out and grasped one of her
little white hands.

It lay cold and shivering, and he felt the faint tremble and shiver beneath his touch.

A low moan escaped her lips, and in the next instant she had turned away, the
tears gleaming in her eyes.

But she turned back, and with a gasp,
she asked, almost sternly:

"Will you go back to your wife? Will you conquer your pride, for it is half that
which keeps you from her, and be just
and kind to her?"

"I cannot, let her explain things to me, the will, the fact remains that she has
deceived me," he replied, gloomily, and fell
back upon the pillow with a deep sigh.

"By clandestinely meeting that man
on our wedding day, and pretending she
had gone for another purpose."

"It must have been some innocent
error, which she could not reveal just
then," pleaded the nun, brokenly.

"She had no right to have any secret
from me, her husband," he cried, indignantly.

"You are resolved, then, never to be reconciled with this woman, to listen to
her defense?"

"Why should I care so much?" he
again demanded, curtly.

"Why should I care? Ah, I would see you happy. I have nursed you back to life from death's door; you have, as it
were, a new lease of life, and I would not have you mar it all your future, and besides—"

"Besides what?"

"I feel for the poor crushed wife
whom you have forsaken, and whose life
you have forever sealed by refusing to go back to her and listen to her defense. But then?" pleaded the nun, her head still
bowed low.

"I shall never give her the opportunity,
there can be but one way to explain it,
and the matter must rest where it is. The
past is past, and nothing can recall it," he
said, firmly.

"You are doing wrong, my love," the
nun now replied, with much earnestness
as he had displayed; "it is right that all
should have the opportunity to speak in their own defense. If you have decided
this to the young girl who has just been
wedded, you are guilty of great wrong."

"Get back to her, I pray, and
tell her, if she says, 'I have decided this
to her,' I will not object."

"I want no explanations, I tell you;
they would only serve to stir up the bitterness of the past again. I saw with my own eyes her perjury, and I will never return to her again; I will never look upon
her face again. I have said it, I have returned, stubbornly."

"But she really believed what she said,
and there could be no explanation, and
that Nina was misled as false as she appeared."

Oh, if he had only known the truth,
how much after suffering he might have
been saved!

"Nay, do not leave me, Sister Agnes,"
he said; "you are stronger than me, and I do not enjoy Sister Rachel. I thank you for your sympathy, though I know it
must be beyond the pale of your duties
to listen to the confessions of your
penitent."

She came close to his bedside now, but
the light was so dim that he could not distinguish her features at all.

She stood before him with her hands
crossed upon her breast and her head
bowed, and spoke in the saddest tones
he had ever heard.

"My love," she said, "it is impossible
for me to tell you how deeply your words
have moved me; you have my sympathy
and my prayers. I trust your life is not entirely ruined, as you fear—I hope the
future may have much of peace for you;
but let me plead with you, as one who has
also suffered much, and with equal injustice—let me plead with you, I say, to go back to your former bride, and give her
an opportunity to defend herself if she
can, and something tells me that she can."

She paused a moment, as if it was difficult to go on; then she resumed:

"You were wrong, all wrong, to judge
her so rashly; you were jealous and passionate, doubtless, in your first grief
upon discovering what you did. Oh! go back to her, listen to her calmly and
patiently, and do not judge her until you
learn all the truth from her own lips."

"That I have already refused to do—
she said she could make everything plain
in five minutes, but I do not believe it,"
he said, firmly, and he saw that his words
made her shudder.

"How she feels for me!" he thought,
never dreaming of the cause of her suffering.

But he did not like to be blamed—he
had suffered enough from his own con-
science for having been so rash and hasty;
but it was not pleasant to have it put into
words by another.

"Then you can never hope for peace,"
she said, with infinite sadness, "and you
have also barred the way for her. My love, my love, heed my warning. I pray—
I beseech you, if you would not make your future a blank, if you would not have the
sin on your conscience of ruining the life
of another, if you would not entail upon
yourself a life of ceaseless remorse and
pain, when you shall discover all too late,
that you have been in the wrong, go back
to your wife and listen to what she
has to say to you."

Why did she shudder so when she came near? What was there about her
that affected him so strangely?

For a moment he held his breath as he
strove to read the downward face in the
gathering gloom.

But the slender figure stood motion-
less as a statue; the little hands, although clasped, still the smile were livid
though only calmly clasped upon the
quiet breast.

He caught the sound of a quickly
suppressed sob, as she answered, in strain-
ed, suffering tones:

"My own heart tells me I have suffered
oh, so cruelly, that I feel it must be so.
Will you not be merciful?"

"Who are you?" he cried hoarsely.

She reached out and grasped one of her
little white hands.

It lay cold and shivering, and he
felt the faint tremble and shiver beneath his touch.

A low moan escaped her lips, and in
the next instant she had turned away, the
tears gleaming in her eyes.

But she turned back, and with a gasp,
she asked, almost sternly:

"Will you go back to your wife? Will
you conquer your pride, for it is half that
which keeps you from her, and be just
and kind to her?"

"I cannot, let her explain things to
me, the will, the fact remains that she has
deceived me," he replied, gloomily, and fell
back upon the pillow with a deep sigh.

"By clandestinely meeting that man
on our wedding day, and pretending she
had gone for another purpose."

"It must have been some innocent
error, which she could not reveal just
then," pleaded the nun, brokenly.

"She had no right to have any secret
from me, her husband," he cried, indig-
nantly.

"You are resolved, then, never to be reconciled with this woman, to listen to
her defense?"

"Why should I care so much?" he
again demanded, curtly.

"Why should I care? Ah, I would see
you happy. I have nursed you back to life from death's door; you have, as it
were, a new lease of life, and I would not have you mar it all your future, and besides—"

"Besides what?"

"I feel for the poor crushed wife
whom you have forsaken, and whose life
you have forever sealed by refusing to go back to her and listen to her defense. But then?" pleaded the nun, her head still
bowed low.

"I shall never give her the opportunity,
there can be but one way to explain it,
and the matter must rest where it is. The
past is past, and nothing can recall it," he
said, firmly.

"You are doing wrong, my love," the
nun now replied, with much earnestness
as he had displayed; "it is right that all
should have the opportunity to speak in their own defense. If you have decided
this to the young girl who has just been
wedded, you are guilty of great wrong."

"Get back to her, I pray, and
tell her, if she says, 'I have decided this
to her,' I will not object."

"I want no explanations, I tell you;
they would only serve to stir up the bitterness of the past again. I saw with my own eyes her perjury, and I will never return to her again; I will never look upon
her face again. I have said it, I have returned, stubbornly."

"But she really believed what she said,
and there could be no explanation, and
that Nina was misled as false as she appeared."

Oh, if he had only known the truth,
how much after suffering he might have
been saved!

"Nay, do not leave me, Sister Agnes,"
he said; "you are stronger than me, and I do not enjoy Sister Rachel. I thank you for your sympathy, though I know it
must be beyond the pale of your duties
to listen to the confessions of your
penitent."

She came close to his bedside now, but
the light was so dim that he could not distinguish her features at all.

She stood before him with her hands
crossed upon her breast and her head
bowed, and spoke in the saddest tones
he had ever heard.

"My love," she said, "it is impossible
for me to tell you how deeply your words
have moved me; you have my sympathy
and my prayers. I trust your life is not entirely ruined, as you fear—I hope the
future may have much of peace for you;
but let me plead with you, as one who has
also suffered much, and with equal injustice—let me plead with you, I say, to go back to your former bride, and give her
an opportunity to defend herself if she
can, and something tells me that she can."

She paused a moment, as if it was difficult to go on; then she resumed:

"You were wrong, all wrong, to judge
her so rashly; you were jealous and passionate, doubtless, in your first grief
upon discovering what you did. Oh! go back to her, listen to her calmly and
patiently, and do not judge her until you
learn all the truth from her own lips."

"That I have already refused to do—
she said she could make everything plain
in five minutes, but I do not believe it,"
he said, firmly, and he saw that his words
made her shudder.

"How she feels for me!" he thought,
never dreaming of the cause of her suffering.

But he did not like to be blamed—he
had suffered enough from his own con-
science for having been so rash and hasty;
but it was not pleasant to have it put into
words by another.

"Then you can never hope for peace,"
she said, with infinite sadness, "and you
have also barred the way for her. My love, my love, heed my warning. I pray—
I beseech you, if you would not make your future a blank, if you would not have the
sin on your conscience of ruining the life
of another, if you would not entail upon
yourself a life of ceaseless remorse and
pain, when you shall discover all too late,
that you have been in the wrong, go back
to your wife and listen to what she
has to say to you."

Why did she shudder so when she came near? What was there about her
that affected him so strangely?

For a moment he held his breath as he
strove to read the downward face in the
gathering gloom.

But the slender figure stood motion-
less as a statue; the little hands, although clasped, still the smile were livid
though only calmly clasped upon the
quiet breast.

He caught the sound of a quickly
suppressed sob, as she answered, in strain-
ed, suffering tones:

"My own heart tells me I have suffered
oh, so cruelly, that I feel it must be so.
Will you not be merciful?"

"Who are you?" he cried hoarsely.

She reached out and grasped one of her
little white hands.

It lay cold and shivering, and he
felt the faint tremble and shiver beneath his touch.

A low moan escaped her lips, and in
the next instant she had turned away, the
tears gleaming in her eyes.

But she turned back, and with a gasp,
she asked, almost sternly:

"Will you go back to your wife? Will
you conquer your pride, for it is half that
which keeps you from her, and be just
and kind to her?"

"I cannot, let her explain things to
me, the will, the fact remains that she has
deceived me," he replied, gloomily, and fell
back upon the pillow with a deep sigh.

"By clandestinely meeting that man
on our wedding day, and pretending she
had gone for another purpose."

"It must have been some innocent
error, which she could not reveal just
then," pleaded the nun, brokenly.

"She had no right to have any secret
from me, her husband," he cried, indig-
nantly.

"You are resolved, then, never to be reconciled with this woman, to listen to
her defense?"

"Why should I care so much?" he
again demanded, curtly.

"Why should I care? Ah, I would see
you happy. I have nursed you back to life from death's door; you have, as it
were, a new lease of life, and I would not have you mar it all your future, and besides—"

"Besides what?"

"I feel for the poor crushed wife
whom you have forsaken, and whose life
you have forever sealed by refusing to go back to her and listen to her defense. But then?" pleaded the nun, her head still
bowed low.

"I shall never give her the opportunity,
there can be but one way to explain it,
and the matter must rest where it is. The
past is past, and nothing can recall it," he
said, firmly.

"You are doing wrong, my love," the
nun now replied, with much earnestness
as he had displayed; "it is right that all
should have the opportunity to speak in their own defense. If you have decided
this to the young girl who has just been
wedded, you are guilty of great wrong."

"Get back to her, I pray, and
tell her, if she says, 'I have decided this
to her,' I will not object."

"I want no explanations, I tell you;
they would only serve to stir up the bitterness of the past again. I saw with my own eyes her perjury, and I will never return to her again; I will never look upon
her face again. I have said it, I have returned, stubbornly."

"But she really believed what she said,
and there could be no explanation, and
that Nina was misled as false as she appeared."

Oh, if he had only known the truth,
how much after suffering he might have
been saved!

"Nay, do not leave me, Sister Agnes,"
he said; "you are stronger than me, and I do not enjoy Sister Rachel. I thank you for your sympathy, though I know it
must be beyond the pale of your duties
to listen to the confessions of your
penitent."

She came close to his bedside now, but
the light was so dim that he could not distinguish her features at all.

She stood before him with her hands
crossed upon her breast and her head
bowed, and spoke in the saddest tones
he had ever heard.

"My love," she said, "it is impossible
for me to tell you how deeply your words
have moved me; you have my sympathy
and my prayers. I trust your life is not entirely ruined, as you fear—I hope the
future may have much of peace for you;
but let me plead with you, as one who has
also suffered much, and with equal injustice—let me plead with you, I say, to go back to your former bride, and give her
an opportunity to defend herself if she
can, and something tells me that she can."

She paused a moment, as if it was difficult to go on; then she resumed:

"You were wrong, all wrong, to judge
her so rashly; you were jealous and passionate, doubtless, in your first grief
upon discovering what you did. Oh! go back to her, listen to her calmly and
patiently, and do not judge her until you
learn all the truth from her own lips."

"That I have already refused to do—
she said she could make everything plain
in five minutes, but I do not believe it,"
he said, firmly, and he saw that his words
made her shudder.

"How she feels for me!" he thought,
never dreaming of the cause of her suffering.

But he did not like to be blamed—he
had suffered enough from his own con-
science for having been so rash and hasty;
but it was not pleasant to have it put into
words by another.

"Then you can never hope for peace,"
she said, with infinite sadness, "and you
have also barred the way for her. My love, my love, heed my warning. I pray—
I beseech you, if you would not make your future a blank, if you would not have the
sin on your conscience of ruining the life
of another, if you would not entail upon
yourself a life of ceaseless remorse and
pain, when you shall discover all too late,
that you have been in the wrong, go back
to your wife and listen to what she
has to say to you."

Why did she shudder so when she came near? What was there about her
that affected him so strangely?

For a moment he held his breath as he
strove to read the downward face in the
gathering gloom.

But the slender figure stood motion-
less as a statue; the little hands, although clasped, still the smile were livid
though only calmly clasped upon the
quiet breast.

He caught the sound of a quickly
suppressed sob, as she answered, in strain-
ed, suffering tones:

"My own heart tells me I have suffered
oh, so cruelly, that I feel it must be so.
Will you not be merciful?"

"Who are you?" he cried hoarsely.

She reached out and grasped one of her
little white hands.

It lay cold and shivering, and he
felt the faint tremble and shiver beneath his touch.

A low moan escaped her lips, and in
the next instant she had turned away, the
tears gleaming in her eyes.

But she turned back, and with a gasp,
she asked, almost sternly:

"Will you go back to your wife? Will
you conquer your pride, for it is half that
which keeps you from her, and be just
and kind to her?"

"I cannot, let her explain things to
me, the will, the fact remains that she has
deceived me," he replied, gloomily, and fell
back upon the pillow with a deep sigh.

"By clandestinely meeting that man
on our wedding day, and pretending she
had gone for another purpose."

"It must have been some innocent
error, which she could not reveal just
then," pleaded the nun, brokenly.

"She had no right to have any secret
from me, her husband," he cried, indig-
nantly.

"You are resolved, then, never to be reconciled with this woman, to listen to
her defense?"

"Why should I care so much?" he
again demanded, curtly.

"Why should I care? Ah, I would see
you happy. I have nursed you back to life from death's door; you have, as it
were, a new lease of life, and I would not have you mar it all your future, and besides—"

"Besides what?"

"I feel for the poor crushed wife
whom you have forsaken, and whose life
you have forever sealed by refusing to go back to her and listen to her defense. But then?" pleaded the nun, her head still
bowed low.

"I shall never give her the opportunity,
there can be but one way to explain it,
and the matter must rest where it is. The past is