POLICE SOLVE MYSTERY OF LOCAL BURGLARIES

Ex-Ald. Winnett May Oppose Beck As Conservative

POLICE CAPTURE MAN WANTED FOR BURGLARY OF HOUSES IN LONDON

Smart Work by Sergeant Percy Last Results in the Arrest Early Today of Carl Regis, Escaped Michigan Convict, Who Admits Several Burglary Charges.

ESCAPED FROM MICHIGAN PRISON MAY 24

Smart detective work on the part of Police Sergeant Percy Last resulted in the arrest at 4:15 this morning of Carl Regis, alias Earl King, alias Earl Regis, escaped burglar from Ionia State prison, Michigan, in connection with the many burglaries that have occurred in the city within the past few days. On his appearance in court this morning, Regis pleaded guilty on six counts of burglary, and was remanded for a week.

According to Sergt. Last, who was making his round on a bicycle shortly after 4 o'clock, he noticed, when going north on Talbot street, a man walking west on Ann street, near St. George street. The sergeant rode around the block, and when he again came near the man stopped him and asked him what he was doing on the street at that hour.

The man, who at that time gave his name as Carl Regis, stated that he was on his way home to 411 Dundas street. Sergt. Last pointed out that he was going a long way round to get home, but the man replied that he did not know London well and wanted to get on a street that he knew before he could distinguish the right way. Further inquiry by the officer enlisted the information that Regis had been at Springbank with a girl and had just left her house.

On the suggestion of the sergeant, they set out to find the house where the girl lived.

The man appeared doubtful whether he would know the house again, but they set off to find it. As a precautionary measure, the sergeant frisked Regis to see whether he was armed, but found no revolver or anything of that nature.

Learns of Robbery.

After proceeding but a few steps, Sergeant Last was haled by A. Holland, a youth, who told him that his mother's house had just been robbed. On hearing this, the officer grabbed hold of Regis and marched him to the Holland house, 193 Oxford street. Arriving there, Mrs. Holland was asked to identify the man, but was unable to do so at first, claiming that he had a heavy head of hair, which covered his face like a mask. His hat was taken off, and his black hair fell down almost to his mouth, giving the effect of his being masked. As soon as Mrs. Holland saw this, she identified Regis as the man she had seen in the house.

Sergeant Last then proceeded to search the man, looking particularly for an English farthing, which had been stolen from the home of Fred Pratt, 131 Mill street. He found the farthing, and satisfied that this was the man the force had been looking for, went through all his pockets. In each one was found a sum of money, the amount in every case being the same as that stolen from one place or another, in addition to a gold watch stolen from John Graham, 223 Burwell street. A cigarette case belonging to young Holland was also found. Asked where he had got it, he replied that he had picked it up on the street.

He then asked the sergeant what he would be likely to get for having the cigarette case in his possession, repeating his claim that he had only found it. The sergeant, however, did not believe this, and called for the wagon, which took him to 134 Mill street, where he had paid a visit about 1:30 a.m.

Again Identified.

On arriving there a young girl in the house immediately identified him as the man whom she found in her room when she awakened. Freda Pratt, the girl, told Sergeant Last that the man had robbed her, but not content with this, had placed his hands on her body, waking her up, whereupon she screamed and frightened him away. Her father had also been robbed of some money.

Appearing in police court this morning charged with burglary, he elected to be tried by Magistrate Graydon.

On being questioned by the court he stated that he had been born near Chatham, but that his people were dead. He admitted having been sentenced to a term of from three to fifteen years at Ionia State Prison, Michigan, from which he had escaped on May 24, this year, after having served 13 months and 23 days. When sentence was passed on him in the states a recommendation was made that he serve the three years.

Quiet But Not Defiant.

His attitude in court was quiet and not defiant. He faced the magistrate squarely, and in a low voice pleaded guilty to all counts. His black hair was brushed back pompadour fashion and he seemed in a chastened mood.

"Why did you do this?" inquired the court.

"I needed the money," replied Regis.

Magistrate Graydon remanded him for a week to make inquiries concerning his nationality. If he is a Canadian he will probably be sentenced and serve here. If on the other hand he is an American citizen, it is likely that he will be sentenced and then returned to the states to finish at Ionia, after which he will be brought back to do his time in Canada.

After court the money and valuables stolen were returned to their respective owners.

The charges to which Regis pleaded guilty concerned the robbery of the following homes:

June 2—John Graham, 223 Burwell street, gold watch and $30.

June 2.—M. Mercovitch, 116 Clarence street, $25.

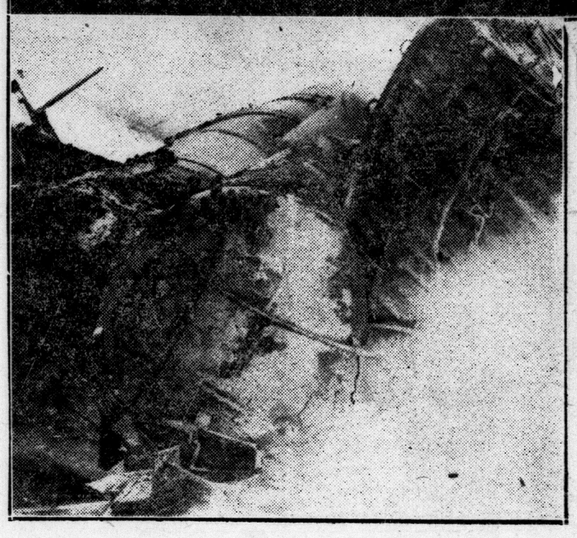

June 6—Charles Hessey, 444 Hill street, $11.

June 10—Fred Pratt, 131 Mill street, $2.

June 10—Mrs. Hattie Peterborugh, 49 Mill street, $2.

SCENES AT THE KERWOOD WRECK.

An idea of the ruin wrought by the wreck on the C. N. R. near Kerwood, when fourteen cars left the rails and tne were later burned, can be gleaned from the above pictures by The dvertiser staff photographer. The upper picture, showing a general view of the debris, was specially taken after sunset Sunday night, the necessary light being provided by the leaping flames, that even at that time, ten hours after the wreck, were consuming the cars and their contents. The lower picture shows the remains of the tank car containing the gasoline which started the fire. What were once modern railway cars are now nothing but masses of charred and twisted iron and steel.

DAMAGE IN TRAIN WRECK ON SUNDAY WILL BE SERIOUS

Wrecking Crews Still at Work at Scene of Kerwood Disaster.

Burning of Thousands of Gallons of Gasoline Made Salvage Operations Difficult.

Chas. Forrester, general superintendent of the London division of the C. N. R., is still at Kerwood, superintending the salvage operations and adjustments of claims in the freight train wreck and fire which occurred there yesterday. He is accompanied by the official claims agent of the C. N. R.

Although no official figures are yet forthcoming, it is expected that the total loss to cars and freight will run over one-quarter of a million dollars.

Investigation strengthens the opinion that the wreck was caused by the breaking of an axle on the truck of a car loaded with car wheels. As a result of this breakage, fourteen cars jumped the track, and were thrown into the ditch and across the east and westbound tracks. The damage to the right-of-way will be repaired by this evening, but at present the westbound track only is in operation. The damage to the tracks will cost the railway $500, and the loss in rolling stock runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Ten of the fourteen cars are totally destroyed from fire which resulted from the derailing of a tank car containing gasoline, which ignited as the car left the roadbed and crashed into the ditch.

The wreck occurred at 10:05 yesterday morning, and the fire from the burning gasoline spread along the ditch and into an adjoining swamp. The fire was so hot that it was with the greatest difficulty that the train crew and wreck auxiliary could rescue the portion of the train which had not left the tracks and to which the caboose was attached.

Although none of the train crew were injured, local railwaymen speak of it as one of the worst wrecks that has happened in this division in years.

Members of the repair gang working at the wreck say that the loss of railway equipment and freight would not have exceeded $100,000, had it not been for the gasoline, which made certain and rapid the work of destruction as soon as it left the rails. The tank was in transit to the Imperial Oil Company.

The drag of the damaged truck was felt as soon as the axle broke, but it was impossible to bring the train to a halt sooner, as it was traveling at 30 miles an hour.

C. N. R. officials inspecting the wreck, say that the damage will greatly exceed the first rough estimate, as the heat of the fire ruined much that was not actually burned.

It is expected that the eastbound track will be open for traffic late this afternoon, and the clearing up of the wreck will be completed by tomorrow night.

THINKS MURRELL TO BE DEPORTED WITHIN FEW DAYS

Crown Attorney Believes No Trouble Will Be Experienced.

STRONG EVIDENCE

States It Is Expected Extradition Proceedings Not Necessary.

"There is no doubt in my mind but that within a few days we shall hear that orders have been given to the United States authorities in California to deport Sid Murrell," declared Crown Attorney J. C. Elliott this morning.

Mr. Elliott stated that he did not see how they could refuse to deport the man against whom a charge of murder and bank robbery is pending, when the identification and evidence against him was so overwhelming. He has had no definite word as yet, but expects to hear almost any moment that Murrell will be brought to Canadian soil and turned over to officers of the crown.

Strong Evidence.

Referring to the extradition proceedings which may be required, the attorney said that in the face of all the evidence submitted to the American authorities, Murrell did not have a leg to stand on if he started to fight extradition. No lawyers from Canada would be needed to plead the case for the crown, as a prima facie case against him had been sent down, embracing all the evidence taken in connection with the murder of Russell Campbell. This evidence was of sufficient strength to gainsay any objection that Murrell might put up.

Would Not Hesitate.

"If it were the United States asking us to return a dangerous character, I don't think that we would hesitate five minutes about it. The American government has absolutely no grounds on which it can hold up the proceedings, nor do I think they can refuse to deport him."

Speaking of McGregor, Mr. Elliott said that he did not think Canada could insist on having him turned over to Dominion authorities, as no crime has been proven against him in this country, and it is not known whether he is even a Canadian.

"The only way we can get McGregor is to prove conclusively that he is Norton, or failing this that he is a Canadian, and I don't think either can be done," concluded Mr. Elliott.

SUSPENDS A. M. PIPER FROM CITY'S EMPLOY

Mayor Claims Civic Officials Should Not Have Autos.

London is without a building inspector. Mayor Wenige declared this afternoon that Inspector A. M. Piper had become automatically suspended.

"No other action could be taken," he told The Advertiser, "and definite action now rests upon a recommendation from the members of the board of works who meet in regular session tomorrow night."

It was his worship's contention today that there should be no cars for city officials. "I think they are unnecessary," he declared, "and I stand pat upon that opinion. The members of the board of works can do as they please about it."

URGES QUEBEC PEOPLE TO REMAIN IN CANADA

Canadian Press Despatch.

Quebec, June 11.—An appeal by Cardinal Begin and the bishops of the Province of Quebec to the people of the province, enjoining them to remain faithful to the homeland and condemning the desertion of the native province by emigration to the United States, was contained in a pastoral letter, which was read in the churches of the diocese here yesterday.

Ex-Alderman Harry Winnett Announces He May Be in Fight.

SUMMON PARTY WHIP

Even Soothsayer Joe Thompson Cannot Pour Oil On Party Waters.

Prospects of an opponent to Sir Adam Beck, the local Tory champion, from the ranks of the Conservative party, were accentuated today by the frank announcement from ex-Alderman Harry Winnett, that "he was considering a proposal to allow his name to go before the electors during the coming provincial fight."

"It is quite true," Mr. Winnett declared, "I have been approached by many since Sir Adam's nomination. Many have come to me from the car shops and from Ward 3 generally, as well as from the downtown districts, asking me if I would stand."

"I have not made any decision as yet. I am still considering the proposal, but it came so sudden, and they have made such a mess of things since they started the campaign, that I hardly know what to do. I will make a decision soon, however."

It was ex-Ald. Winnett's opinion that Sir Adam should be opposed, however, and from the feeling of the Conservatives in East and Southeast London it would appear that he voices the wishes of the majority of Howard Ferguson's supporters in Ward 3, the big Labor district of the city.

The Tories have been greatly worried ever since in the fullness of their heart they nominated Sir Adam Beck, and today's bombshell from ex-Ald. Winnett, one of the East London stalwarts in the Tory party, is having an effect not only at Tory headquarters, but among the rank and file.

They were in a fearful stew before this, and this is the blow that almost killed father.

DELORME PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO MURDER CHARGE

Arraigned in Court of King's Bench at Montreal Today.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, June 11.—Rev. Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother Raol, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in the court of king's bench this morning.

Adelard Tetrault, appointed curator of the Delorme estate, while the abbe was in Beauport Asylum, to which institution he was consigned, following the finding of an insanity vote against him by the first jury, which considered his case, though counsel had previously offered a plea of insanity. Mr. Justice Martin, who was on the bench, ruled that the curator had no standing whatever in the present proceedings.

This action by Judge Martin cleared the decks for the hearing of the murder charge, which Father Delorme has demanded.

When Gustave Monette, K.C., acting for Mr. Tetrault, made his plea, the abbe protested, and asked him "To leave me alone and have done with this nonsense."

Father Delorme is being represented by Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., of Quebec, and C. H. Cahan, K.C., Montreal.

Judge Martin fixed June 20 as the date of the trial.

Hundreds Take Advantage of New Train Service Allowed by Courts.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Man., June 11.—Several hundred Winnipeggers took advantage of the Sunday excursion trains to the beaches yesterday, which marked the opening of the Sunday service.

The bill has not been officially proclaimed yet, but authority has been granted by the government to the railways to provide the service. The validity of the bill has been unanimously decided by the Manitoba appeal court. Officials of the Lord's Day Alliance have indicated, however, that the measure will be submitted to the privy council for a decision.

WILL INDICT FILIPINO FOR KILLING N. Y. GIRL

Accused Alleges Slain Nurse Attacked Him With Knife.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, June 11.—An indictment charging first degree murder will be asked of the grand jury today in the case of Eulogia Lozade, 25-year-old Filipino, who confessed to strangling to death Blossom Martin, pretty nurse, 23.

Lozade insists that the girl attacked him with a knife.

Police have found a number of witnesses who, they claim, will testify that the Filipino had forced his attentions on the girl from the time he secured a position as man servant in the home of a physician where she was employed as nurse.

Among the witnesses is a well-to-do businessman, who had known the girl intimately for two years, police said.

PARTY LEADERS PLAN VIGOROUS ELECTION FIGHT

Voters Manifest Great Interest in Meetings Addressed by Big Guns.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 11.—As the provincial election approaches, interest in campaign meetings increases, particularly those addressed by the political leaders. Premier Drury had a big meeting at Bradford Saturday afternoon and another large one at Orillia at night.

Hon. Howard Ferguson had a good meeting at Meaford in Hon. D. Carmichael's constituency in the afternoon and one of the largest of his tour in the evening at Collingwood.

The meetings of F. Wellington Hay, Liberal leader, have also been large, manifesting the desires of the electors to hear the issues of the election discussed by the big men of the three parties.

The battle will be at its height this week. Mr. Hay is having a conference in Toronto tomorrow to map out a vigorous campaign from now until election day. Premier Drury speaks tonight at Owen Sound; tomorrow at Chesley and Walkerton; Wednesday at Durham and Harriston; Thursday at Brookdale and Kilbride; Friday at Simcoe and Hamilton, and Saturday at Ingersoll and Woodstock. Mr. Ferguson left for Parry Sound and Sudbury this morning, and will return to Eastern Ontario tomorrow.

C. W. Burr, the U. F. O. candidate for Prince Edward County, has retired, leaving a straight fight between former Speaker Nelson Parliament, Liberal, and H. S. Colliver, Conservative.

In Glengarry, Angus McGillis, the Conservative candidate, has dropped out, leaving D. A. Ross, U. F. O., and James A. Sangster to contest the riding.

EXPECT ASSEMBLY TO VOTE ON UNION THIS AFTERNOON

On Motion of President Murray, Motion Comes Forward at 4 o'Clock.

By R. E. KNOWLES.
Special to The Advertiser.

Port Arthur, Ont., June 11.—The assembly today had its first test of strength on the union fight. A motion was presented giving Dr. Drummond fifteen minutes to expound his federation scheme. The moderator ruled it out of order. Drummond appealed to the house against Gandier's ruling. The ensuing vote in support of the moderator was half torrent and half avalanche. Then came what amounted to a straw vote on the great issue. A motion was presented that discussion close at noon; that Pidgeon reply at 2 this afternoon, and that the vote be taken at 2:30.

Amid painful tension came the show of hands. The moderator then announced that the result as counted up by the clerks was so close as to be void of complete accuracy. The vote stood 213 for and 211 against.

On a motion of President Murray, who had stood with the majority, it was resolved that the discussion continue, and it was finally carried that Pidgeon should reply this afternoon, and that the vote be taken at 4 o'clock. Principal McKay asked for additional time to speak to the amendment he is about to present. The request was refused. All motions that incline to oppose or interrupt the union movement seem baptized for the dead.

It now looks doubtful if McKay's effort will change anything. But the minority will be increased and the cleavage of the most drastic kind.

Dr. Gandier's hand upon the helm through the storm is reasonable and firm, and his presidential abilities are surprising even his chief admirers.

REPLY UNNECESSARY TO GERMANY'S NOTE

France, However, Willing To Enter Discussion on Reparations.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, June 11.—No reply to the recent German note is considered necessary, so far as France is concerned, it was announced at the foreign office this forenoon, but if the Allies desire to improve the opportunity to resume a general discussion of the reparations question France is ready.

A reply by the Allies in common, it is held in official circles, would require probably several weeks' of negotiation because of the impossibility of their uniting in an answer until they themselves come to an agreement.

The only united action by the Allies now feasible in the view of France, it was said, would be a common notice to Germany that she must cease her passive resistance to the execution of the treaty of Versailles. Afterward the Allies would have leisure to go all over the problem if they were disposed to do so, but France will insist that if the discussions are resumed, they proceed on the basis of the French conditions as set forth at the Paris conference in January.

The board also authorized payment of the orders of the Kingston Construction Company as follows: To Eggett & Co., $2,000, and to the Belton Lumber Company, $1,026.76. These payments were made on the certification of the city solicitor, "provided the balance due the Kingston Construction Company by the board is sufficient to cover the two items."

Boys Discover Skeleton In Old Sand Pit Near City

Gruesome Find Believed To Be Remains of an Indian—Were Out Hunting Ground Hogs.

A human skeleton, thought to be that of an Indian, was unearthed by children returning from Sunday school yesterday afternoon in Maitland sandpit, a barren section of Chelsea Green.

The children, Cecil Champness, his brother Tom, Charles Bailey and Edward Smith, all residing in Chelsea Green, decided to start out on a hunt for groundhogs immediately after leaving Sunday school. The old sandpit was known as a prolific hunting ground, and it was while exploring the ground on the lookout for the illusive hog that they made the gruesome discovery.

The bones had fallen apart. Adults who were informed of the discovery upon examining the remains, expressed the belief that the skeleton was that of an Indian. It looked as if it might have lain there 40 or 60 years. The size of the frame showed that the Indian, or whoever it was, was an exceptionally large man.

The main reason for the belief that the skeleton is that of an Indian are the extraordinarily high cheek-bones of the skull.

WILL TRY TO PREVENT SMUGGLING OF LIQUOR

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, June 11.—How to prevent smuggling of large amounts of liquor from Canada in view of New York's repeal of her prohibition code will be one of the questions discussed at the conference of governors on prohibition which President Harding will hold before going to Alaska.

Prohibition officials and dry leaders are not only wrought up over the condition along the border brought about by New York's action, but fear other states will follow New York's example. The action of the lower house in Wisconsin in voting for repeal has added to their apprehension.

BECK AND WENIGE FIGHT ANOTHER DUEL WITH WORDS

Sir Adam and Mayor Wenige Stage Another Wordy War At L. and P. S. Commission

Tory Canididate Attempts To Switch Spotlight Off Conservative Bosses and Turn It Full On Mayor, But Wenige Fights Back.

PAY LIST MYSTERY AIRED, BUT NOT SOLVED

Sir Adam Beck, Tory candidate in London, switches the spotlight off the Conservative executive and turns it full blast on Mayor Wenige.

Sir Adam doesn't deny that the London & Port Stanley pay lists were handed over to Mayor Wenige after three special sessions of the London Conservative Association, but he did declare at a regular meeting of the London & Port Stanley Railway Commission this morning that "after Mayor Wenige had called Manager Richards of the L. & P. S. and threatened to dismiss him if the list was not forthcoming, he (Beck) called two members of the commission, who agreed that the lists should be furnished upon condition that they should not be published."

Mayor Wenige retorted that the business under discussion this morning was "not a question of the manager's dismissal," and added that "Sir Adam's charge about the dismissal was merely a question of the veracity of two men."

Sir Adam declared that if Mayor Wenige had any complaint against Manager Richards and desired his dismissal he should bring it before the commission in the regular way.

Challenges Wenige.

"You couldn't dismiss Richards in any event," he said. "You have not got the power."

"This question of the minutes of our meeting is not a question of his dismissal at all," replied the mayor.

"Well you told him you would dismiss him," objected Sir Adam. "And I suggest to you that this is no way to treat the head of a $2,000,000 corporation, threatening to dismiss him in this off-hand manner."

The discussion arose from the mayor's demand to know why he could not be furnished with minutes of a regular meeting of the commission sooner than a month later, and why he had been furnished with the L. & P. S. pay lists without a special session in view of the fact that a majority of the commissioners had voted twice against this procedure.

Mayor Wenige declared that a resolution had been passed providing that each member of the commission should be furnished with a copy of the minutes after each meeting.

Sir Adam Beck and his last-ditch supporters, Commissioners Percy Moore and Frank Harley, contended that this motion had been only mentioned, but never passed.

There was noticeable difference of opinion amongst them as to the precise time when it was mentioned. Sir Adam Beck and Percy Moore thougnt that it had been at the famous conference between the commission and the members of the finance committee. Frank Harley remembered, however, that it had been at a meeting of the commission as well.

Says Minutes Not Approved.

Sir Adam declared that there was no reason why every member of the commission should not have a copy of the minutes. Mayor Wenige wanted to know, then, why he should have been refused them and why they should not be ready one or two months after the meeting.

Manager Richards explained that he did not know that the question of whether the minutes should be sent out had been settled or not. And in any event they had not been approved by Sir Adam at the time that Mayor Wenige made his request.

The mayor wanted to know if all members of the commission did not have the right to "approve" the minutes, and Sir Adam acknowledged that such was the case, and the mayor wanted to know how they could do this without having a copy of them.

"You tell the secretary, and they'll be ready for you," Sir Adam directed. "I don't know what you are trying to make out. Let's get this settled."

"I want it settled," agreed Mayor Wenige warmly. "I asked the secretary for these minutes on June 5, and he said he would have to consult the manager about it."

After further discussion and crossfire between Mayor Wenige and Sir Adam, the latter declared: "I've been presiding at meetings for 20 years, and I never heard the like of this."

The argument continued for several minutes back and forth, until a resolution was passed, suitable to Mayor Wenige, that all members of the commission be furnished with the minutes of every meeting.

The commission then sidetracked Commissioner Donald Wright's proposal to revise the entire pay-list with a view toward general increases in wages if possible, or wherever deemed fitting.

Sir Adam immediately differed with Commissioner Wright, who reminded that at the last meeting he had moved that they have the pay-list at their disposal and revise it.

The chairman and his associates, including Commissioner Moore, tried to make Mr. Wright believe that he had included in his motion to wait for a special report and recommendation from the manager.

The latter added that this had been also his impression, and that he was now preparing the same.

Commissioner Moore thought that Commissioner Wright's motion had to deal with one department exclusively.

Commissioner Wright related, however, and Mayor Wenige supported him, that Commissioner Moore was thinking about another motion in connection with the trackmen's wages, which motion the mayor declined to second because "he had not sufficient information at his disposal."

Sir Adam thought they should not deal with wages until such time as Manager Richards could bring in a report of what is being done by the C. N. R., the Toronto suburban lines and other roads. The commissioners could be guided with this report, he believed.

It was finally ruled to wait for this report, which will, no doubt, be submitted at the July meeting. There will necessarily be no changes in the salary list until after that time.

S. L. SQUIRE.

Mr. Squire, as chairman of the executive committee of the Canadian Good Roads Association, replied to the addresses of welcome at this morning's session of the association convention in Hamilton.

IS SENT TO PRISON FOR BEING DRUNK DRIVING MOTOR

A. M. Piper Draws Seven-Day Term in City Police Court.

GETS SAME SENTENCE

Several cases of intoxication greeted Magistrate Graydon when police court opened this morning, two of them being for driving a car while under the influence of liquor, and the others just the ordinary kind.

A. M. Piper, 267 Talbot street, pleaded guilty to a charge of having driven his car while intoxicated, and was sentenced to seven days in prison.

R. Essery, 203 Pall Mall street, received the same dose when it was proven that he also had been incapable of driving. The evidence of three police constables and a citizen showed that at 8:30 p.m. Sunday Essery had run into a car belonging to William Germain, which was parked on Waterloo street. Not content with hitting it once, he repeated the performance three times. He then drove up over the curb on Grosvenor street. Sergeant Oakley and P. C. Nixon were then called, and they helped the man from the car and took him to the police station.

John Kinsella, John Campbell and Patrick Riley were each assessed $10 and costs for having imbibed too freely.

A charge against Frederick Sheehy, 247 Hamilton road, of having liquor in other than an authorized place, was dismissed. Sheehy was arrested last night when he drove a girl home at the corner of Piccadilly and Waterloo streets. A search of his car disclosed two bottles of beer, which were confiscated, and used as evidence in police court this morning. The defence proved, however, that the beer had been given to him by a friend with whom he had been passing the evening, and Magistrate Graydon dismissed the case, ordering the beer to be returned to Sheehy.

Quan Williams, tailor, and a Chinaman was fined $10 and costs for disorderly conduct. Police claimed that he had been riding his bicycle through Victoria Park, and that when asked for his name had been insolent and threatening. They had, therefore, picked him up, and laid him down. Quan swore that they tried to knock him down.

But, it's a hopeless job even for "Joe" Thompson—repairing Conservative fences and soothing Juddites, the Dennisites, the Wilsonites, and all those who have also fought but been defeated. "Joe" didn't stay very long, and evidently, realizing that it will take more than outside persuasion, he returned early to more congenial surroundings in Tory Toronto.

While the citizens are turning their attention to a more serious consideration of the Ontario temperance act and its proposed amendment, as suggested by J. M. Donahue, London's "moderate" candidate in the coming fight, Sir Adam Beck, the Tory nominee and follower of Howard Ferguson, who is secretly heralded as the "moist" salvationist, declines point-blank to state his views in this respect.

Sir Adam Beck was questioned this morning by The Advertiser as follows: "What is your stand upon the O. T. A.? Do you favor any amendment at this time, or what do you think about the O. T. A.?"

The choice of the local Conservatives had no reply for publication, but in a seeming jocular mood, predicted that "before the week was out," a straight O. T. A. candidate—a member of the fair sex—would be in the field. That is if all reports are correct, as Sir Adam has heard them.

Where Donahue Stands.

J. M. Donahue was questioned today as to his attitude aside from the O. T. A. issues now confronting public survey.

"Turn out the tikers now in power at Toronto," he declared. "If either of the old-line parties are returned to power I will support them but if the present conglomerate aggregation is returned I will be numbered among the Ishmaelities, then to remain until Ontario is delivered out of bondage."

It is quite plain to be seen that the treat the O. T. A. phase of the local Conservatives are commencing to situation seriously and there is a persistent report today that "in view of the fact that J. M. Donahue intends to remain in the race and has in fact been workin steadily for a month or more, it has become imperative to enter a separate candidate to insure that the O. T. A. shall not be endangered by the possible election of a 'beer and light wine' exponent.

"If I'm beaten in this election it will be by the "Party Wobbler" and not by hte women," said Mr. Donahue. "The old regular party politician who has voted more or less without thinking for years for his party is the greatest danger in the coming election. Never were such weighty issues hanging in the balance of political partyinsm as is the case today.

"The time and day have passed when indiscriminate casting of votes was sufficient to insure the success and the correct carrying on of the country's business. My advice to every voter is that he or she should most carefully consider the result of a party vote cast on the old party lines on June 25."

Mr. Donahue explained further his own position on the question of O. T. A. reform. "While I still maintain my former stand, and still maintain that reforms in this derection are most necessary, yet I am willing to fall in line with either of the old-established parties without relinquishing my independence in the matter of the Temperance Act. I have hosts of friends out canvassing for me and I am more than surprised at the reports that are coming in. As it seems to me there is a very strong reaction all through the electorate against the present system of enforcement of the act and as I said before the women are just as much in favor of it as the men. Provided that great bugbear of all reform, the 'Established Party Wobbler' can be induced to think over the question of the old-line vote on June 25 carefully, I think that I shall be able at least to have a fairly large vote recorded in my favor."

TWO CHILDREN HURT IN MOTOR "JOY RIDE"

Machine With Boys Playing in It Starts and Is Wrecked.

Special to The Advertiser.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 11. — Two babies, Donald Jackson, 4, and his brother Kermit, 3, are today recovering from injuries received in a brief joy-ride, which they staged together yesterday afternoon.

The two children were playing in an automobile parked near their home, manipulating the levers and gripping the wheel, just like grown-ups. Suddenly the motor started, the car began its mad dash down the street, the babies still enjoying the novelty of the game. In some manner the car kept in the middle of the street for about 100 yards, but their laughter soon turned to shrieks of terror as the machine suddenly swerved and crashed into another car, standing at the curb.

Both children were badly cut by flying glass.

LONDON AUTOMOBILE PLUNGES OVER BANK

Car of Morris White Meets Mishap Near Port Stanley.

A touring car, owned by Morris White, 79 Ridout street, went over a 25-foot embarkment Saturday night on the Wellington road, at the entrance to Port Stanley. None of the six occupants of the car was seriously injured, but all were badly shaken up.

The party was journeying along at a moderate rate of speed, when suddenly the car lunged to the right and jumped the embankment. Hugh White, who was driving, can give no reason for the sudden lurch of the car, but it is his belief that the steering rod broke.

Passers-by came to their help and aided them in getting from under the mass of twisted mechanism and drove them to Port Stanley, where medical help was received. The occupants were all able to attend work this morning. Mr. White suffered from a lacerated arm, but the injury is not serious.

SUCCESSOR TO MOONEY WILL BE NAMED TODAY

Applications For Central Collegiate Principalship Received Until Noon.

The successor to Principal W. H. T. Mooney of the Central Collegiate will be appointed at a special meeting of the board of education this afternoon. At the last meeting of the board it was determined that all applications must be in by noon today. It was felt that there had already been sufficient delay in making the appointment because the board desired the new principal to have full control of any reorganization of the collegiate staff that may be made. As soon as the appointment of the principal is confirmed, the filling of the remaining vacant positions at the collegiate can be carried out.

LAD INJURED BY AUTO IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Physician Reports Edward Smith Suffering From Bad Wound.

Edward Smith, the 17-year-old lad who was crushed against a telephone pole at Egerton street and Hamilton road last night by an automobile, still lies in a serious condition at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs J. F. Smith of 107 Trafalgar street.

The lad's right leg is severely gashed and swollen as a result of the accident, and the pain from the injured member is almost unbearable. Dr. E. M. Copeland, who is in attendance, visited the boy this morning, and in speaking to The Advertiser, said that the boy would be laid up for a considerable length of time as the wound is by no means a minor one.

Young Smith was standing at the telephone pole about 8:30, when the driver of the cary, trying to pass a buggy, apparently lost control of the machine, and the car dashed to the curb, pinning the bo yagainst the pole before he had a chance to escape.

FIVE DIE IN FLOOD WHICH INUNDATES SOUTHERN STATES

Thousands Made Homeless in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

WATERS STILL RISING

Damage to Property Estimated at Millions of Dollars.

Associated Press Despatch.

Kansas City, Mo., June 11.—With at least five persons reported killed, thousands of people driven from their homes and property damage estimated in the millions of dollars, many districts in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas are flooded today. Torrential rains over Kansas for the last three days caused rivers and smaller streams to overflow, destroying crops in the low lands and inundating residential and business sections of several towns.

The northern half of Oklahoma is virtually inundated, with the loss running into millions and still greater damage forecast from the swirl of waters.

Residents in the lowlands of the Trinity River at Fort Worth, Texas, early this morning were preparing to abandon their homes after heavy rains in West Texas caused the river to rise 27 feet, with a continued rise of seven inches per hour.

Arkansas City and Winfield, Kas., suffered greatly from the floods. Three thousand persons were declared homeless in Arkansas City. In an appeal sent by the mayor for outside aid, he estimated the flood damage there at $2,000,000. Both the Arkansas and Walnut rivers are out of their banks there and a large residential section of the city is flooded. One thousand persons were marooned last night in a schoolhouse and other buildings.

Winfield reported several hundred families homeless. Early today water from Walnut River was running through the center of the city.

Reports from Muskogee, Oklahoma, were that farmers dwelling in the lowlands of the Arkansas, Canadian and Illinois rivers were moving their families to the hills, being threatened by the rapidly rising flood waters.

Bird Creek, which flows by Pawhuska, Okla., was rising six inches an hour at 1:30 o'clock this morning and was only four feet from the top of the levee which protects the city. Should it reach the levee top, the city would be flooded.

FIRE WREAKS RUIN AT RAIL TERMINAL IN PHILADELPHIA

Pennsylvania Railroad Suffers Loss of $1,000,00 at the Broad Street Station.

MAIL IS DESTROYED

Sleeping Car Passengers Experience Difficulty in Making Escape.

Associated Press Despatch.

Philadelphia, June 11.—Fire early today practically destroyed the train shed of the Broad street station, the Philadelphia terminus of the Pennsylvania Railroad. A quantity of mail and baggage and a number of passenger coaches were also consumed.

Damaged by Water.

The flames spread westward, and did not reached the main building, containing the waiting-room and ticket offices. These, however, were damaged by water. The general offices of the company were not damaged.

There was no official estimate of the loss, but it will approximate at least a million dollars, it was believed.

A number of firemen were overcome by smoke, but no one was seriously injured.

The fire started shortly after 1 a.m. under the wooden platform the train shed, which covers several acres, and spread so rapidly that many passengers in sleeping-cars standing on the tracks had difficulty in making their escape.

Dense volumes of smoke soon filled the shed and poured into the waiting-room and other parts of the station. Incoming passengers, however, managed to grope their way through the smoke and find the exits. Hundreds of persons waiting for outgoing trains fled from the building when smoke began to come through the windows and doors.

Driven Off By Fire.

It was under the shed on the street floor that the mail rooms and express and baggage stations were located. A large force of men with trucks attempted to remove the mail, but they were driven off by fire and smoke before they had completed the job.

How much was destroyed or damaged by water could not be learned. A number of trains were in the shed when the fire started. Some were gotten out, but a dozen or more coaches caught fire and were burned before an engine could be attached.

DR. GANDIER SEES SUCCESS FOR CHURCH UNIONISTS

DR. GANDIER THINKS CHURCH UNIONISTS HAVE MADE GAIN

560 TO CAST VOTE

Impressive Sermons Preached in Various Churches of Port Arthur.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, June 11.—There is a strong possibility that the Presbyterian anti-unionists may seek an injunction to prevent the consummation of church union if the unionists carry the day at the present general assembly, it was stated here Saturday by P. A. Robson, K.C.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Port Arthur, June 11.—All that is finest in Presbyterian congregational life and worship was typified and exemplified in the annual service in the assembly church here Saturday. The commodious and attractive edifice was completely filled by a congregation which joined heartily in the singing of familiar psalms and hymns, chiefly selections used in the assemblies of the church of Scotland for hundreds of years. Principal Gandier, the moderator of assembly, presided in the dignified manner characteristic of him, and with him were the Rev. J. A. Tuer, minister of St. Paul's Church, a graduate of Knox College, and Dr. John Pringle, of Klondyke fame, a former moderator of the assembly. Mr. Tuer welcomed Principal Gandier to St. Paul's Church on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the formation of the congregation, and requested that he would say a few words with reference to the services which Dr. Pringle had rendered to St. Paul's congregation and to the church at large.

Dr. Pringle, in selecting a text from the 136th psalm, intimated to the congregation that he did not intend to confine his remarks to the words of the psalm. His address was reminiscent of early days in Port Arthur and its vicinity, which the speaker first visited forty-one years ago.

In the evening in St. Paul's Church the sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Clarence McKinnon, who spoke with all his usual clearness, force and eloquence to another crowded congregation. In the neighboring Methodist Church Dr. Wylie Clark of Saskatoon preached in the morning and Dr. Leslie Pidgeon of Winnipeg in the evening. In Knox Presbyterian Church Rev. Dr. Gordon preached in the morning and Rev. Archibald Young of Regina in the evening. In the First Baptist Church Dr. Secord preached in the morning and Dr. George Pidgeon in the evening. The moderator, Principal Gandier, preached in the evening at St. Andrew's Church, Fort William. Various other commissioners occupied pulpits in churches of the twin cities and preached to large congregations.

560 Likely to Vote.

The chief question of interest to the commissioners today in connection with church union is an estimate of the number of members of the court who will vote for the amendments to the report of the union committee, submitted by Rev. Dr. Drummond of Hamilton. This amendment involves a halting of the negotiations both by those who are out-and-out opponents of union and by those who prefer to give up union rather than cause any break in the ranks of the Presbyterian Church. It is expected that the amendment will be defeated, but it is stated that for the best interests of union it must be badly defeated. If this result should occur, many of the members of the present assembly who have been opposed to church union are ready to give up the fight and enter the united church ... a good spirit.

To the present assembly there were elected 630 commissioners. Rev. Dr. Laird, the treasurer of the church, stated that of these up to the present 545 had signed the roll, and it was known that 14 or 15 other commissioners were present. The number who will vote on church union is thus about 560. The Rev. Dr. Gandier, the moderator of the present assembly, a man of highly judicial mind, was asked by the Canadian Press how many would vote against union and in favor of the amendment proposed by the Rev. Dr. Drummond. Dr. Gandier was asked whether in his opinion the vote of the present occasion would be as decisive as the vote of 1916 in Winnipeg, when 406 commissioners voted for union and 90 against, and when the church was committed to the union cause.

Union Cause Progressed.

Replying, the moderator stated that he was not a member of the 1916 assembly, but that since 1916 the feeling had unquestionably greatly intensified on the union issue. Those who were opposed to union in 1916 felt much more deeply on the subject now, and those who were in favor of union in 1916 were much more determined and resolute on the subject than they were seven years ago. Asked whether there was any numerical change, Dr. Gandier was inclined to think that the cause of union had made progress in this respect since 1916, but that this was a question regarding which one could not feel certain. "There is one point," said the moderator, "on which there is miscalculation. The miscalculation in this regard is radical. The opponents of church union are widely under the impression that practically all the people who are opposed to union or who have voted against union will still be definitely against union after the matter has been decided. I am satisfied that this is a wholly erroneous view. There are a great many people in the church who would rather be members of the Presbyterian Church than to be members of the United Church. I am satisfied, however, that if the assembly decides to go forward with the plans for union, and if the bills are submitted, members of the church and these congregations will concur, and will give to the United Church the loyal support which they have for so many years given to the Presbyterian Church.

Antis May Raise Fund.

Rev. Dr. Laird, the treasurer of the church, who during the year has traveled extensively through Canada and who came into contact with ministers and elders was asked whether the vote in the present assembly would be as decisive as the vote of 1916 in Westminster Church, Winnipeg, and he replied that in his judgment it would be more decisive.

Dr. Laird stated that personally, as an official of the church, he hak taken no part in the discussion of the church union issue. Some of those who were most active in co-operating with him in the work of the church were opposed to union.

On Saturday night a meeting of those opposed to union was held in the old church auditorium. These meetings are in fact held two or three times a day, at hours when the generaly assembly is not in session. The Saturday night meeting was special, and there were 100 commissioners present. It may be taken for granted that over 100 commissioners will vote steadily against union, and it is a reasonable estimate that there will be fifty others who at least on the first vote in the assembly will be against union. Anti-union leaders being interviewed would not make an estimate of the number who would vote against union.

It was stated, however, that within a day or two the Presbyterian Church Association, which is the organization of the anti-union Presbyterians, would have a statement of some interest to give to the press. It is believed that this refers to the formation of a large fund to take care of ministers who may suffer loss as a result of their convictions on the union question.

REV. DR. ALFRED GANDIER, newly-elected moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYEES WILL GET HIGHER WAGE

Men At Saturday Night Meeting Agree To Company's Proposals.

DISCUSS POLITICS

Railwaymen Indicate Intentions To Support Dr. H. A. Stevenson.

Wage increases, varying from 2 to 5 cents an hour, will be granted all employees of the London Street Railway corporation—motormen, conductors, linemen, etc., The Advertiser learns.

The employees staged a special mass meeting Saturday after midnight in the Foresters' Hall, East London, and members of the union executive subsequently announced that the men were quite in accord with the company's proposals relative to the wage elevation. Minor questions of working conditions were also satisfactorily disposed of, it is further reported.

The new scale will be retroactive to June 1, according to Ald. John Colbert, president of the Street Railwaymen's Union, who explains that the members of the executive had been negotiating with the company for some time past, in view of the fact that the union's agreement with the company was expiring June 1.

This means in effect, the president states, a restoration of the scale in force a year ago. It will apply to all employees, he says, and the increases range "from 2 to 5 cents an hour."

The coming provincial election was also freely discussed, and from the attitude of the members assembled Ald. Colbert holds the opinion that the majority of them, at least, have concluded that Sir Adam Beck is not the logical workers' candidate.

The president reports, as a matter of fact, that it was resolved to aid one of his opponents as much as possible, Dr. H. A. Stevenson, the sitting member for London in the last legislature, who defeated Sir Adam in 1919.

FALLS FROM BALCONY AND FRACTURES JAW

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of McGillivray Has Strange Experience.

Eva Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lewis of McGillivray Township, who was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday suffering from a fractured jaw as the result of falling from the second floor balcony at the home of her school chum, Margaret Stewart, in Ailsa Craig, where she was visiting at the time of the accident on Friday night, was resting quietly late last night.

Just before the mishap the two girls had gone out on the balcony of the Stewart home for a few moments before retiring. Miss Stewart heard a scream from Miss Lewis, and in looking around saw her friend disappear over the ledge.

She ran downstairs and found her stretched on the ground.

Dr. Hamilton was called, and upon examination found that Miss Lewis had incurred a fractured jaw, and had several teeth knocked out in the fall.

PARTY LEADERS SPEED UP IN THEIR CAMPAIGN

Ontario Temperance Act Receiving Much Notice From Three Chieftains.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 11.—With nomination day on Thursday, campaigning for the provincial election will be resumed with increased vigor tomorrow. Premier Drury, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Conservative leader, and Wellington Hay, leader of the Liberals, will address meetings tomorrow night. Mr. Ferguson leaving tomorrow morning for a flying visit to Parry Sound and Sudbury. He will return to Eastern Ontario on Tuesday.

At Chesley, on Friday, Mr. Ferguson took occasion to more clearly define his attitude on prohibition and the Ontario temperance act. He declared that attempts were being made to foist on him the title of "leader of the wets," because a number of Conservatives have expressed their opinions about the administration of the O. T. A. "They are entitled to their own opinions," declared the Conservative leader, "but they do not speak for the Conservative party. I do not intend to allow either Drury and Raney to place me in a false light. The Ontario temperance act is the result of a public expression and it must remain until you choose to change it. The public will must control."

STEVENSON FLAYS LEADER OF CONSERVATIVE PARTY

A large and enthusiastic crowd listened to Dr. H. A. Stevenson, M.L.A., on the Market square Saturday night, when the Labor candidate outlined his platform and the faults of the Drury regime, and delivered a scathing denunciation of Hon. Howard Ferguson and the Conservative party. His address was much the same as that given in the morning to a number of people on the market. In addition to the member, Alderman Frank McKay, Arthur Mould and R. Hessel also spoke in support of Dr. Stevenson. The reception accorded to the speakers was orderly, and no heckling was apparent. The meeting lasted from 9:15 to 10:15, the late start being due to a religious meeting being held on the square.

Asks Setting Good Example For Younger Generation

Jared Vining Urges All Saints' Congregation To Regard Laws and Respect Public Officers At All Times.

"One's example to his fellowmen is one of the strongest elements in life," declared Jared Vining, who delivered a concise, but telling address on "Good Citizenship," during the morning service yesterday at All Saints' Church, East London.

Mr. Vining also stressed the fact that a scant minority of the people of London, as elsewhere, elect their representatives to the seats of administrative authority, and he urged a fuller exercise of the ballot.

"We are all desirous that our country should be the first among the nations," asserted Mr. Vining, "and that our city should be the first among all other cities, not necessarily from a point of wealth, but in good behavior and general observance of the law."

"If a city or a country is not law-abiding and God-fearing it does not command respect, and does not receive respect, and should not. We should all be careful to see that we are law-abiding. This is rather a delicate question. None of us would care to admit that we deliberately break any of our laws, but still there are laws, such as speeding, cutting corners and so forth, which may not appear to us as wise or beneficial but which we should observe."

Example to Young.

"Disregard for any law breeds in ourselves an evil and gives a bad example to the younger people. Example to others who look to us for guidance is one of the strongest elements in life. None are relieved of the obligation that our conduct imposes upon others as an example. We must be careful that we do not set an example that may contribute indirectly to another's downfall."

"While there may be no particular harm in cutting corners, for instance, the greatest risk is taken in the example it sets to others. If we think that a law is harsh we should attempt by proper means to repeal or amend it."

"This may seem trivial to some, but I think it is vital. Suppose that we ignore this or that law, which we may consider trivial, it will soon create in ourselves and others a complete disregard for the law generally that would perhaps lead us into serious difficulties."

"One of the best lessons can be taken from Socrates, who refused chances of escape and accepted death at the hands of his judges, although he knew that it was unjust. He was setting the example for those about him.

"Remember always that there are those about you who are looking toward you for example and guidance. There is always some one looking toward each one of you and formulating his course of conduct by your conduct.

"Then we should consider respect for our courts and all those placed in authority: the mayor, members of the council, and board of education and other public or state legislative bodies.

Respect Public Officers.

"They are in charge of our affairs and we would have a better city and a better country if we gave them their due respect just as long as they remain in their positions. If we do not consider that they are performing their duties we can see at the following election that there are not returned to office. It is the duty of every citizen to pay the utmost respect to their legislators, and that motive of respect should be created in the minds of all the people.

"It is also the duty of every real citizen to exercise his or her franchise. Every day we criticize the action of some one of our representatives, but when the time comes for us to say who shall take office, the majority of us stay at home.

"They who neglect to vote have no right to criticize. The least they can do is to remain silent. By their absence they have consented to the election of those chosen by the people who did vote. It is a sad thing to say, but the minority of the people of this city elect their representatives, and the same can be said of the provincial and federal situations."

In conclusion Mr. Vining urged again for a careful study to observe all laws as there is no question, he warned, that among the people today "there is a tendency to evade laws thought by them not to be of much importance."

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU EXPIRES SUDDENLY

Clerk and Deputy Head of Privy Council Dies in Ottawa.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, June 11.—Rodolphe Boudreau, clerk and deputy head of the privy council, died suddenly Saturday night.

Mr. Boudreau was one of the outstanding figures of the civil service in Canada. He was predeceased by his wife by a few weeks, and although showing signs of the strain of his bereavement, he was at his office regularly until a day or so ago. On arising Saturday he complained of indisposition, and asked for a physician. Upon his arrival, however, Mr. Boudreau was dead. Heart-failure was the assigned cause.

In 1896 when the government changed hands, Mr. Boudreau became secretary to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He became clerk of the privy council in May, 1907, a position which he has occupied until his death. He was made C.M.G. in 1918. He was born in 1865 at St. Gregoire de Nicolet, Que. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. P. D. Wilson, Ottawa, and Mrs. M. A. Campbell of St. John, and two brothers, J. B. A. Boudreau of the marine department, and Lucien Boudreau, ex-M.L.A., Edmonton. The funeral will be held Tuesday.

AUTO MOUNTS CURB INJURING BYSTANDER

Edward Smith Struck by Car Driven by James Smith On Hamilton Road.

Edward, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Smith of 1076 Trafalgar street is lying at home suffering from serious injuries to his body and a deep gash in his right leg as a result of being crushed against a telephone pole at the corner of Egerton street and Hamilton road by an automobile driven by James Smith of Egerton street last night about 8:30.

Mr. Smith, the driver of the car, was endeavoring to pass a buggy at the time of the accident. He apparently lost control of the machine, and it careened toward the curb, pinning young Smith against the pole under which he was standing.

The auto was not damaged greatly, due to the fact that the youth's body absorbed most of the shock of the impact.

The injured youth was attended by Dr. E. M. Copeland in his office nearby, and then removed to his home.

It is not known yet whether the victim of the mishap incurred any internal injuries, but this will be determined this morning when Dr. Copeland makes another examination.

English Farmerettes Are Pleased With Their Reception In Canada

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, June 11.—Sarnia was the host for a short while Saturday afternoon, prior to the departure of the steamer Huronic for the voyage, of the four English farmerettes, who are the guests of the C. N. R. on a tour of Canada, after winning the Sir Henry Thornton scholarships on the practical and theoretical agricultural subjects.

The young ladies are Miss Ivy Townsend of Guilford, Surrey; Miss Emma Absolen of London; Miss Mildred White of Exeter, and Miss Joan Moore of Leicestershire, and are in charge of Miss Wolfe Murray of the staff of the London Daily Mail. Three of the girls have chosen dairying as a career and the fourth bee-keeping. In the examinations for the scholarships they took practical subjects such as milking and judging cattle, while the one young lady hived a swarm of bees and then spoke on agricultural topics before the minister of agriculture.

They are all dressed in English schoolgirl style with neat costumes and large white panama hats. Each girl wears her hair braided at the back. Blue of eye and rosy of cheek they are a great advertisement for the country they belong to.

They think Canada is wonderful, and are full of enthusiasm for the kindly way in which they are being shown the high lights of the country and generally made to feel they are distinguished guests. Miss Wolfe Murray, besides looking after the young ladies, is writing reams of copy for publication.

LAKESIDE RESIDENTS HEAR R. C. R. MUSICIANS

Popular London Band Renders Sunday Concert At Port Stanley.

Lake breezes and ideal June weather at Port Stanley were supplemented by a third attraction Sunday afternoon, when the popular Royal Canadian Regiment Band, under Capt. M. J. Ryan, gave its first Sunday concert this season.

Promising weather conditions of Saturday took Londoners to the lakeside for the week-end, and together with Sunday visitors, motorists and those who have already established themselves in summer homes there, these made a creditable showing for so early in the season.

Always one of the city's favorite musical institutions, the R. C. R. bands enjoys a greater local prestige than ever since its recent triumphant return from the musical festival in Toronto, where it was accorded great honor.

An excellently varied program was provided for the season's opening concert. It included a march, "The King's Guard," by Keith; the overture to "Masaniello," by Auber; "Soldaten Lieder"; a selection from the Gilbert and Sullivan "H.M.S. Pinafore"; the "Russian Cradle Song," by Krein; a Porta Rican dane, "Rosita," by Missud; "Reminiscences of All Nations," Godfrey; a one-step, "Ta Bouche," by Yvain, with the concluding hymn, "Abide With Me," and "God Save the King."

ANNUAL CONVENTION HELD IN MELBOURNE

Caradoc Sunday School Association Elects Officers For Year.

Special to The Advertiser.

Melbourne, June 11.—The 35th annual convention of Caradoc Sunday School Association was held Thursday in the local Methodist Church. The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with the president, William Lewis, presiding. After the appointment of committees, and the secretary-treasurer's report was given, the reports of the following departments were received: Cradle roll, Mrs. (Dr.) Brown; home department, Frank Sutherland; teacher training, Rev. Mr. Hopper; missionary department, Mr. Winters; temperance department, Frank Sutherland.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m., with Rev. Dr. Brown in charge. The invitation from North Caradoc to hold the convention there in 1924 was accepted. Rev. William Jewett of London gave an address in which he stressed the great necessity of making religious education an integral part of Sunday School work. The evening session opened at 7:30 with Rev. Mr. Rutherford in charge of the devotional exercises, after which the new officers were installed by Rev. William Jewett as follows: President, G. W. Watson; first vice-president, Hugh Brodie; second vice-president, James Turnball; secretary-treasurer, H. A. McPhail; children's department, Miss Mathie; boys' work, Rev. Mr. Rose; girls' work, Mrs. (Rev.) A. Kell; adult work, William Lewis; home department, Mrs. N. Courtis; missionary department, C. Winter; temperance, F. Sutherland; teacher training, Rev. Mr. Hopper.

The new president, Mr. Watson, announced that the new executive would meet in the Methodist Church, Mount Brydges. He then closed with singing and prayer. The convention was considered the best in many years, the church being well filled for each session. Special music was furnished by the choir.

I. O. O. F. HOLDS IMPRESSIVE DECORATION CEREMONY

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, June 10.—The annual decoration day services of Waterloo Lodge, I.O.O.F., was held yesterday, and was the most impressive in the history of the society, the uniformed London canton in command of General Shaw, and the Brantford canton in command of Major Geo. Ham, assisting the local brethren and adding a touch of color to the ceremony.

The Preston I.O.O.F. band headed the parade, and over 200 local Oddfellows marched, while there were visiting brethren from all the neighborhood. A couple of thousand people gathered at Mountview Cemetery for the service there, Rev. Bro. S. L. W. Harton delivering an appropriate address, prior to the decoration of the graves.

A Fly's Life.

It was found at the Pasteur Institute that the longest life of a fly is about 62 days, so that at least three generations are required to span the winter months. Strangely enough, flies which feed on nothing but sugar never lay eggs. Some form of meat or animal food is necessary for them.

GASOLINE IGNITES WHEN C. N. R. TRAIN ROLLS INTO DITCH

Thirteen Freight Cars Are Derailed Near Kerwood Station.

BROKEN AXLE CAUSE

8,000 Gallons of Burning Fluid Spreads Over Extensive Area.

Piled high in an inferno of burning gasoline, ten freight cars with valuable cargoes were completely destroyed by fire, when 13 cars of a C. N. R. train were derailed one mile east of Kerwood, yesterday.

The wreck, which was perhaps the most spectacular ever experienced on a local railroad, will entail a property loss of nearly $250,000. Fortunately every member of the crew escaped injury.

At 10:50 a.m., as the Michigan-Buffalo stock train, eastbound, in charge of Conductor J. Smith and Engineer Millman, both of Sarnia, was traveling at a good rate of speed, an axle or an underframe gave way, and a heavily-loaded New York Central boxcar wrenched itself free from the string, tore up the tracks for a considerable distance, and then somersaulted into a ditch, a complete wreck.

In rapid succession 10 other cars careened on the broken rails and plunged in a twisted mass over a 10-foot enbankment. Then followed a tank-car loaded with 8,000 gallons of gasoline. As it reached the torn roadbed it turned sideways, teetered a moment on the brink, and then slid endways into the ditch. With a crash it ripped into an empty steel tank car, which had preceded it, and exploded.

Gasoline Takes Fire.

Through a hole in the end of the car a flaming stream poured out, and soon the ditch was filled to the brim with the burning liquid.

The pile of wreckage was soon saturated and burning from the bottom to the top, and then the flaming gasoline spread out over the waters of a nearby swamp, and as it crept far into the fields it destroyed trees and rushes.

The terrific heat prevented the train crew from approaching the wreck, and so they turned their attention to saving seven cars and a caboose which had been brought to a standstill while still on the rails by a car loaded with salt, which had been pulled from the rails but which crumpled up instead of turning into the ditch.

Among the seven cars were three stock cars, loaded with pigs and calves. With the flames sweeping near the animals squealed and stamped in terror, until members of the crew heroically shoved the cars one at a time from the danger zone.

In the ditch below motor trucks, bales of cotton, barrel staves and stock feed fed the flames, while the car wheels, rims and steel rails, twisted out of shape, glowed white hot.

Crowds had gathered, and although many were willing to aid in the fight nothing could be done to check the flames. All afternoon and late into the night the shapeless pile smouldered and burned.

Burns Up Swamp.

Efforts were made, however, to curb the spreading flames in the swamp, and the fire here was checked late in the afternoon after an area hundreds of square yards in extent had been burned. The stagnant water, bared by the march of the fire through the rushes and trees, presented a strange sight after the flames had been extinguished.

The wrecking auxiliaries from London and Hamilton were summoned, and on their arrival work was begun to clear the main tracks, both of which were badly blocked. A. F. Sharpe, trainmaster at London, was in charge of the work.

The wrecked car of salt still stood on the eastbound tracks, while a car heavily loaded with steel wheels and rims had swung clear across the westbound track, tearing the rails before it finally toppled into the ditch north of the tracks.

With the right-of-way entirely out of commission, all trains to and from Sarnia were held up or re-routed by way of Glencoe and Kingscourt Junction. Number 6, a passenger train from Chicago, was held up four hours until the westbound track was cleared at 3:30 o'clock. A first section was meanwhile started from London. Number 17, an express running from Montreal to Chicago, was sent from London to Sarnia by way of Glencoe.

The eastbound track was cleared early this morning.

The flames destroyed one car of gasoline, the property of the Imperial Oil Company; one car of stock food, three cars containing six "G. & M." motor-trucks; one car of baled cotton, one car of barrel staves, two cars of auto wheels and rims, and an empty tank car. The cars wrecked, but not burned, contained salt and carwheels.

Railway officials refused to place an estimate on the loss involved, although admitting that the loss in equipment and contents will be very heavy. They estimated the damage to the tracks at $500.

The exact cause of the wreck has not yet been determined, although the officials feel certain that an axle on the N. Y. C. car snapped under the strain placed upon it by the load of steel wheels and rims. They are just as certain that the rails were not faulty as this stretch of roadbed is considered one of the finest of the system, and is carefully inspected at regular and frequent intervals.

The hot twisted steel frames of the burnt cars were lifted from the ditch by huge cranes as rapidly as the dying flames would permit, and after being placed on new trucks were hauled to Strathroy where they were placed on a siding.

As the cars were removed steel rails weighing a hundred pounds to every yard which were torn from the roadbed, were found in the bottom of the ditch, bent and doubled as though they were wire.

The ill-fated train was a through freight running from Sarnia to Black Rock. It consisted of 55 cars loaded with miscellaneous merchandise hauled by engine No. 551.

The wreck occurred one and a quarter miles east of Kerwood on a level stretch of track.

PREACHER AVERS FEAR IS OBSTACLE TO ALL PROGRESS

Rev. A. Graham, Christian Science Lecturer, Speaks in Patricia Theatre.

ATTACKS FATALISM

Exhorts Hearers To Free Selves From Grasp of Material Things.

Rev. Andrew J. Graham, C. B. S., delivered an interesting lecture in the Patricia Theatre, Sunday afternoon, entitled "Christian Science and the Reparable Past." He showed by deduction and illustration that man, in science, can never lose his inherent right to harmony, happinness and peace. "For instance," he said "those too familiar sayings, 'He has had his last opportunity,' and 'He has had his last chance,' are simply declarations of the mortal mind, and should have no actual effect upon the real man, whose true selfhood, identity, and individuality are as unchangeable as God.

"The supreme obstacle to all human progress is fear," he declared, "and the greatest and most damning phase of fear is that the past is irreparable. Man's troubles and discords are chiefly in retrospect or prospect, and they spring from the field of memory or anticipation. So the conquest of this fear is the very root of all happiness in this plane of existence and of all faith in the next. There is no place in the life of the man in science for fatalism, for to be resigned to the facts is to be in the grasp and control of material, which is the very antithesis of the teaching of Christ."

Fear Old Age.

On the subject of old age the speaker was especially forceful. "Why," he asked, "should there be the universal fear and dread of old age in the world today? The general idea prevalent everywhere seems to be that old age and decrepitude are synonymous. Thought here, as in all life, is the basis of the result. We think, and believe so strongly in the certainty that old age is going to mean weakness, loss of the faculties and an added burden of infirmities that we should be disappointed if these did not materialize. Practically we ask for all the things we dread so much."

Mr. Graham pointed out that the so-called chronic diseases are said to depend upon time for their intensity. Yet just because a room had been in darkness for years was no reason why it should not be opened and flooded with light in a few moments. The thought that time made any diseases absolutely certain and binding was an iniquitous thought, a malpractice on life, and an injustice to the rights of every man and woman in the world, he said.

"If we can increase our lives by some added years of loving kindness and service for others we have accomplished a wonderful work, and in this alone will have justified our creed," he continued. "Those things within us that are divine and from God—love and thought and individuality, can never be obliterated or suffer from old age and decripitude. Only the body can become old and that is not you in the real sense."

Claims Antagonism.

On all sides there is a wall of antagonism from Christian people to Christian Science, and this constitutes the greatest hindrance to the progress of the work. In the time of Christ we read that when He raised Jairus' daughter, he had first to put them all out of the room, and in one part of Palestine we read "He could do no great work there because of their unbelief."

Mr. Graham emphasized the inherent right of everyone to be emancipated from his or her past. "Let us," he said, "forget those things which are behind, and looking in the strength of our faith toward the future and upon the present, open the doors of the soul and so, by freeing ourselves from the thraldom of the material world, realize to the fullest extent the wonderful benefits of our faith."

LONDON YOUTH INJURED AS CAR GOES OVER BANK

Hugh White of this city incurred severe injuries to his head and arms when the automobile he was driving, and in which several other young men were riding, plunged over a 20-foot embankment north of Port Stanley yesterday afternoon. The car rolled down the grade after it left the road but all the occupants, with the exception of White, escaped with minor bruises, and a shaking up.

REPORTS BRITISH SHIP SINKING IN RED SEA

London, June 11.—The British ship Maidan, bound for London from Calcutta with a heavy cargo, is sinking off St. John's Island in the Red Sea, according to a despatch to Lloyds from Port Sudan Sunday.

Another steamer, twenty miles distant was reported to have answered the distressed calls of the Maidan. The number of passengers and crew of the Maidan is unknown.

Let's Swap!

"Tick-tock, tick-tock," observed the clock.
"What an awful din!
My owner swapped a rocking chair
For a mandolin.
Since this swapping craze is on,
Time I keep with care;
I'm scared that bird'll trade me off
For another chair!"

MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1923.

Mr. Meighen Must Keep His Hands Off.

It is apparent that Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Conservatives who sit with him in the House at Ottawa are prepared to go the extreme limit in interfering with Sir Henry Thornton's management of the Canadian National Railways.

Sir Henry Thornton and the directors associated with him consider it desirable to make arrangements for suitable buildings in Paris, France, in order that the system may be in a better position to handle its business there. The Canadian Nationals, with their facilities for ocean commerce, are in a position to handle Canadian traffic to any point and to gather business coming to Canada from Europe.

The deal for the building in Paris is not completed; its details are under way, and no private company would for one moment consent to giving out the details of such a transaction before it was completed. To do so would involve all sorts of business risks.

Yet that is what Hon. Arthur Meighen and the group of Conservatives who sit around him in the House at Ottawa are prepared to do in order to make it as hard as possible for Sir Henry Thornton to conduct the affairs of the National Railways in a way that gives him a fair and equal chance for success with competing companies.

Not only so, but Hon. Arthur Meighen and the group of Conservatives who sit around him in the House, made an attempt to turn their opposition to public ownership into a want of confidence vote in the Liberal government.

The motion to hinder the work of the National Railways was beaten on a vote of 78 to 19, and every one of those 19 voters were followers of Mr. Meighen.

Hon. Arthur Meighen has reached out and taken to himself the task of making the work of Sir Henry Thornton as hard as possible ever since he arrived in this country. In his public utterances he has indulged in cheap sneers at the way in which Sir Henry set out to meet the people of Canada and to know their requirements. In between sessions, in his by-election speeches this same Hon. Arthur Meighen sought to create anti-public ownership sentiment by stating that it was time Sir Henry quit making banquet speeches and got to work.

Sir Henry Thornton since coming to this country has thrown his full energy and his splendid personality and leadership into the task of putting the Canadian National Railways in a position where they would take less money from the pockets of the Canadian ratepayers. He has traveled and visited and worked as he traveled and visited. He has got in touch with as many of his men as possible, and he has brought to them a courageous inspiration of what he has in mind for the future of the road.

And in the doing of all these things he has worked with the positive knowledge that the King government was playing the game with him on the basis that "there shall be no political interference in the operation of this railroad." That is the basis on which Sir Henry accepted the position, and that is the basis on which he is working.

The result is that the earnings of the Canadian National Railways are showing increases every week; the men on the road are working with the assurance and knowledge that they are co-partners in a great worthwhile project with a future; deficits are over a million a month less than they used to be.

And in spite of all this, in spite of the urgency of making that road pay its way as soon as possible, Hon. Arthur Meighen is willing to get up in his place in the Commons, as the leader of the remnant of the once great Conservative party, and force to a vote a demand that would place Sir Henry in a delicate position in putting through a deal that he considers in the best interests of the Canadian National Railways.

Hon. Arthur Meighen is playing into the hands of the interests that would gladly see the Canadian National Railways make a grand, spectacular failure of their work, and make the billion and a half dollar investment of the Canadian people an easy prey to competitors who would gobble up the best of it at their own figure.

Going After the People.

Electioneering in London becomes varied and strenuous. Dr. Hugh Stevenson was on the market Saturday morning, and there was a good crowd present. An auctioneer's wagon made a tempting-looking platform, so the candidate took possession and started in.

There is something to be said for this form of campaigning. When a political party hires a hall they are sure to get the people who are probably going to vote their way. They get very few others, and the result is that very little good is done.

When a candidate strikes his platform out in the open the chances are that he has an audience that do not vote solidly for him. He has a chance to get some of his facts before these electors.

The Salvation Army has found that this sort of campaigning is a good thing. They know that a lot of people take to the streets rather than go to church, so the Army very wisely takes to the streets to reach them.

If a church or a politician has a message for the people it is a fairly good idea to carry that message to the people rather than to wait for the people to come to some stated place to get it. Experience has shown that they are not likely to come.

What the Figures Go To Show.

If low prices reflect favorable living conditions, London is one of the most desirable communities in Canada. According to the Labor Gazette, prices in this city, from cheese to laundry, are substantially lower than the average struck for the entire Dominion.

Within the past month costs of basic commodities throughout Canada have decreased approximately 2 per cent. In London the decline has been more marked, although not so great as registered in Toronto and Ottawa.

The prairie provinces are the most expensive places. Saskatchewan and British Columbia vie for the distinction of being at the top of the price list, their averages being several points in advance of those current in the eastern provinces.

If the scale published by the Labor Gazette can be accepted as an accurate economic barometer, Ontario is close behind Prince Edward Island in the race to see who can return to pre-war industrial conditions the faster. Dairy produce is cheaper in London and St. Thomas than in any other good-sized community in Western Ontario, but rents of this city are high, only two other Ontario cities exceeding the average rent asked for six-room houses with all modern conveniences in London. The poorer grade of homes in this city are rented at fairly reasonable figures compared with those obtained in other districts. Thirty dollars a month is the current rent for a fair house, while the inferior ones run from $17 to $25.

If you are head of a family of five, and draw more than $25 a week, you are better off than the average householder in Canada. In Saskatchewan and British Columbia a $25 a week wage would not be sufficient to live on with any degree of comfort, but according to the average living costs in London you could not only live on such a wage but save a couple of dollars a week besides.

For food, rent, light, heat, laundry and a few other small essentials the average family in Canada pays $21.21 a week. More than half of this total is made up of food costs, while rent forms about a third. Before the war the average household living costs amounted to $14.21 a week. The peak of high prices was reached in 1920, and since that year the decline has been about 25 per cent.

The Lunatic at the Wheel.

At the risk of appearing monotonous, The Advertiser suggests that the city and county authorities are not doing their full duty in putting the quietus on the speed fiend.

Sunday afternoon a car coming toward the city on Richmond, on the stretch between the bridge and Huron street, was going well over 40 miles an hour, tearing along regardless of all the other cars on the road.

He threw up so much dust that it looked as though an explosion had torn up the center of the road.

It is not possible to get the number of such a car—dozens would gladly hand it in if they could see it.

It may be necessary to put on more speed cops to get these lunatics. It would be money well spent.

Get them at all costs. Lock them up for a couple of weeks and take away their permits to drive cars.

Some Commissions Earn Their Money.

Much has been said about appointing commissions by governments. There are commissions that succeed, and there are commissions that succeed only in drawing their fees.

The commission that was appointed by the Drury government to look into the crown land business was a paying investment for the people of this province.

This commission succeeded in bringing $1,372,607 to the treasury of the province. Of this, $1,250,000 came from one company, whose deal had been engineered by the Hon. Howard Ferguson, the leader that Sir Adam Beck has consented to follow.

It is not a sign of good government when a commission can go in and find the people's resources dissipated to that extent.

One Wife at a Time.

A British earl is scampering around this country wondering why under the sun he is not permitted to marry a chorus girl just when he wants to.

One trouble seems to be that the girl already has had a husband. Of course this is not a very serious objection, but she has not yet placed all her divorce papers in apple-pie order, so the United States will not grant him a wedding permit.

So he says he'll come over to Canada and get one. The only trouble is that the courts here do not recognize U. S. divorces.

So the earl and his wants-to-be bride cannot get married yet. He has had quite a lot to say about the folly and nonsense of regulations that keep him from having his own way, quite forgetful of the fact that these foolish and nonsensical regulations that permit only one wife at a time are part and parcel of the laws of the country that made him an earl.

Note and Comment.

It is now claimed that the shoemakers were at the bottom of that craze for non-stop dancing.

Lloyd George says real peace is hanging on recognition of Russia. Yes, but can't we have the peace without the hanging.

A Chicago woman has insured her life for $2,000,000. This will make good reading for the man who has to scratch around for enough to carry $1,000.

The longer a man drives a car the more serious he is to locate the lunatic who first started to speak about the rights of the pedestrian. To the aristocrats behind the wheels, said peds have no rights.

A firm that makes razor blades has bought a lot of steel out of a scrapped battleship in England, and the Hamilton Spectator sees in this a fulfilment of the Biblical saying of turning spears into pruning hooks.

It looks as though four Liberals and two Conservatives were going to run in Southwest Toronto. Four Liberals for two seats is obeying with a vengeance Wellington Hay's desire for a Liberal candidate in every riding.

Sir Henry Thornton seems to be able to make a good showing with Canada's greatest public ownership enterprise, the Canadian National Railways, without seeing any necessity for running for a seat in the House of Parliament as a candidate of a political party.

VOTES ALSO COUNT IN THIS.

(From the Hamilton Herald.)

Yesterday Hamilton Presbyterian women who are opposed to the union of their church with the Methodist and Congregational churches "took it to the Lord in prayer." They assembled and prayer that the General Assembly, which is to meet next week, shall be so guided as to decide against union; or, if it prove to be the Divine will that the General Assembly shall commit so grievous a blunder, then that Providence interfere to prevent the Dominion Parliament from ratifying the union measure.

It might perhaps be supposed that an opportunity is thus presented for testing the efficacy of prayer. But it would be unfair and illusory to regard the failure or success of the union movement as evidence for or against the efficacy of the supplications offered by those good Presbyterian ladies. It is to be feared that their prayers clash with many others in behalf of union. For a score of years such prayers have been made, and no doubt are still being made both in public and in private. If the fate of the union movement were to be decided by prayer, the movement would be successful, for it is certain that more prayers have been offered for it than against it. It has been said that, in war, Providence is always on the side of the strongest battalions. That is cynicism; but one might say without risk of being considered cynical that if prayer influences the course of current events, then the greater volume of prayer the greater its influence is likely to be.

FLUFF TO FRIVOL.

Oh, of course you were insulted,
And of course I never dream't you
Could have kissed with such expression
Though a thousand lips have lied;
And of course I was exulted
When those flatteries did tempt you;
And of course the indiscretion
Was denied.

Do you think, you little flirt, you,
Since I played at hesitation,
I was actually daunted
By your warning to desist?
Why with all your show of virtue,
Tears and righteous indignation,
You unquestionably wanted
To be kissed.

Advice to new boarders—Look before you sleep!—A.M.

To marry nowadays, a man must be able to support his wife in the manner to which she has been unaccustomed.

It is reported that a girl's father became so violent when a young man asked to marry his daughter that he almost shook his hand off.

Perhaps the reason young men are buying girls such expensive engagement rings is that they figure it will save a lot in gloves.

AGRICULTURIST RECEIVES BIG BOOST TO SALARY

Special to The Advertiser.

Windsor, June 8.—As a result of a large delegation of farmers urging Essex county council to retain the services of Justus Miller, county agricultural representative, the council at Sandwich today voted Miller an additional $1,000. The work of the agriculturist was lauded by farmer delegates, and the grant was authorized by unanimous vote.

PROFIT FROM THE PAST.

I have considered the days of old, the years of ancient times.—Ps. 77:5:

Henry Ford says that "history is all bunk."

That remark itself has become historical.

But Carlyle says that "history is the essence of innumerable biographies," and most wise men agree with him.

All the roads of life have been traveled by other men and nations before us.

Why not learn something from their experience?

Peace, prosperity, victory, have been won in former times.

Why not inquire of the past how good results have been attained?

Strife, disaster, misery, have been found on certain courses.

Why pay a new price to learn an old lesson?

At the cross-roads is the place to read the sign-posts and ask questions.

What our age needs is to face the facts of life more frankly and to think more soberly about them.

Deliberation is no waste of time.

It is a saving of expense.

Your Health

WHAT YOU OUGHT TO DO ABOUT INGROWING TOE NAILS.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

You don't have to suffer from some terrible disease or fashionable ailment to be most unhappy. There are any number of simple things that sap our strength and make us ill.

One of these is ingrowing toe nails, a condition in which the edge of the nail cuts through the soft tissues and becomes imbedded in the flesh.

Dr. Copeland.

The big toe is the one most likely to be affected. The size, thickness and strength of this nail, and the pressure placed upon it by the shoe, combine to make it a source of trouble.

There are a number of predisposing causes of ingrowing toe nails. The most common is the evil habit of wearing stockings that are short and shoes that are tight. A silk or cotton stocking seems so soft and yielding that it does not seem possible it could be responsible for serious foot troubles, but it can be and is frequently the cause for an ingrowing toe nail. Constant pressure of the stocking upon the tissues results in pulling the soft tissues up and over the edge of the nail.

So far as tight shoes are concerned, it is easy to see how the hard and unyielding leather will have pronounced effects upon the nail and flesh of the toe.

Another cause of ingrowing toe nails is improper trimming of the nail. If the nail is cut too closely, and especially if the corners are rounded off and the edges of the nail removed, there is trouble in store. Instead of clipping the offending nail closely, it should be permitted to grow long, especially at the corners. By cutting straight across, instead of in a curve, the nail is kept short enough for comfort, and yet the corners are not permitted to dig into the flesh.

Under no circumstances should the sides or edges of the nail be clipped. If there is tenderness in the groove along the edge of the nail, very light packing with a few fibres of cotton will offer some relief. Tight packing is apt to do more harm than good.

In neglected cases prout flesh forms. Then the trouble is more difficult to overcome. Monsel's solution of iron may be painted on a couple of times a day. This will give relief.

If the difficulty persists see a specialist in foot troubles. Trained chiropodists or podiatrists are now to be found in every place of considerable size. Their services will speedily overcome the stubborn cases.

Better than treatment, however, is prevention. With proper care of the feet and proper shoes and stockings, ingrowing toe nails will be avoided.

Answers to Health Questions.

WORRIED: Q.—Will you please tell me what causes an intense pain in my chest? I always feel nauseated and my food disagrees with me too.

A.—An examination at one of the hospital clinics will determine the cause of the trouble, and then suitable treatment can be prescribed.

LONESOME: Q.—Every time I ride in a train or street car I become nauseated. Will you please tell me what causes this?

A.—This condition is usually due to some intestinal derangement. You should have a thorough physical examination by your family physician, to try to find the underlying cause of the trouble, and then suitable treatment can be prescribed by him.

E. G.: Q.—My hair is turning gray. Will you please tell me what can be done to prevent this?

A.—Nothing can be done to prevent the hair from turning gray. It is natural for some people to be gray prematurely.

S. P.: Q.—Kindly tell me what will remove nicotine stain from the fingers.

2. How can I eradicate wrinkles?

A.—Apply peroxide to the fingers to remove the nicotine stain.

2. Massage the face with a good cold cream to eradicate wrinkles.

M. J.: Q.—Will you kindly tell me what to do for large pores, caused by blackheads?

A.—Apply hot and cold compresses to your face alternately, for ten minutes each, daily. If you will send a self-addressed stamped envelope, restating your question, full particulars will be given on the treatment of blackheads.

B. B.: Q.—The skin on my lower limbs and on the upper part of my arm is rough. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

A.—Massage the parts with cocoa butter. This ought to help you.

N. S.: Q.—I am a boy 17 years old, and seem to have an abnormally large appetite. Will you please tell me how to overcome this?

A.—This is nothing to worry about, provided you have no secondary symptoms. Should any appear, consult your physician for an examination and advice.

K. K. K. Q.—From my waist to my feet there is a numb feeling and my lower limbs are always cold. Will you please tell me what causes this and what to do for it?

A.—This is probably due to poor circulation. You should take more outdoor exercise and should keep your general health built up. Have your family doctor examine you. Follow the advice he gives you.

A READER. Q.—I have very weak eyes. Will you please tell me what I can do to strengthen them besides wearing glasses?

A.—You should make sure that your glasses are properly fitted and you should wear them all the time. Have treatment by an eye specialist and follow the advice he gives you.

INQUISITIVE. Q.—Will you please tell me whether permanent waving is injurious to the hair?

A.—It is not advisable to have the hair artificially curled too often, as it is apt to break the hair.

ANXIOUS. Q.—I am a girl 16 years old and am 5 feet 1 inch in height. Will you please tell me how I can increase my height?

A.—Stretching exercises, such as touching the floor with the fingers without flexing the knees will help you. If possible, join an athletic club or Y. W. C. A. and have the physical director outline a course of exercises for you.

J. C. H. Q.—Every morning when I awaken my hands are numb and there is a prickling sensation in them. What do you think causes this?

A.—This is probably due to poor circulation or to neuritis. You should have an examination by your physician to find the underlying cause and then suitable treatment can be outlined. Follow the advice your doctor gives you.

Looking Abroad

Age-Old Romance Haunts New Home of Duke of York—White Lodge Housed Kings and Warriors of Misty Past.

White Lodge, Richmond Park, which teems with historic associations, is to be the London residence of the Duke and Duchess of York, and although no official information on that subject is as yet available, it is believed that their royal highnesses are likely to have a country residence at Windsor, and that Frogmore House will also be theirs. It was from White Lodge that Queen Mary, then Princess Mary of Teck, went forth to her marriage with the Prince who then bore the title of Duke of York, even as his son does today. Here, too, it was that the Prince of Wales was born, Queen Victoria coming a few days later to see her great-grandson. The Prince was christened at White Lodge, the whole of the royal circle being present for the ceremony. With painful suddenness, after only the briefest illness, the Duchess of Teck, Queen Mary's mother, passed away here, as did the Duke of Teck, who never recovered from the shock of his wife's death.

No residence, apart from the palaces, has been more intimately connected with the reigning house of England for well-nigh 200 years, than has White Lodge, for it was begun in 1728, under orders from King George II., and superseded a previous building at a little distance away known as Richmond Lodge. For fully a century before that Shene Chase had been a favorite hunting ground of the Stuarts, who inclosed the great tract then known as "The New Park," and now as Richmond Park. A wall was built to inclose it, but when the Earl of Portland, in 1637, was appointed royal ranger, rights of way and other privileges were duly recognized. During the Commonwealth the park was given into the care of the city corporation, who loyally returned it to the crown on the Restoration.

* * *

The present site of White Lodge—on rising ground in the heart of the famous park—was chosen by George II., who saw in its seclusion the ideal spot for "a place of refreshment after the fatigue of the chase." The house which he built here was called Stone Lodge, and now forms the center portion of the building known as White Lodge today.

Here for a period lived Queen Caroline, wife of George II. The avenue of trees, nearly a mile in length, leading to the house was called Queen's Ride, on account of her attachment to this particular part of the park. As a mark of gratitude for services rendered, George III. gave it to his prime minister, Mr. Addington, who afterwards became Lord Sidmouth. Richard Crisp, in his history of Richmond, quotes a letter from George III., in which he arranged to show Mr. Addington over his new abode after it had been repaired and altered at the king's personal expense. "The appearance of the morning makes the king hope the evening will be dry. He therefore trusts Mr. Addington will bring his family in his 'sociable' to the Lodge in Richmond Park . . ." It was his majesty's wish that sixty acres of park land should be included in the estate, but history states that Mr. Addington modestly refused to accept more than five.

Many distinguished men were entertained at White Lodge during Lord Sidmouth's residence here. Pitt was his guest and so was Sheridan. Sir Walter Scott was so impressed by his visit that he makes the lodge the scene of the Duke of Argyle's interview with Queen Caroline in "The Heart of Midlothian."

* * *

Nelson went there, in his own words—to take Lord Sidmouth by the hand and wish him a most perfect restoration to health. A table at which he sat after dinner, and traced with a finger dipped in wine his proposed plan of attack on enemy ships afterwards carried out at the Battle of Trafalgar was treasured carefully for many years at the house. Queen Charlotte herself supervised the scheme of decorations for Addington, and her interest in the house was commemorated in a strikingly regal portrait which adorned the drawing-room during the tenancy of one of her last surviving grandchildren, the late Princess Mary, Duchess of Teck.

Addington died in 1844, and Queen Victoria conferred White Lodge upon Mary Duchess of Gloucester, who appears in such pleasant personality in the pages of Fanny Burney. In 1870 it passed to the Duke and Duchess of Teck. It was the scene of some of the most delightful and unconventional entertaining of the later Victorian years. The Duchess herself was a good musician, and was a keen and discerning patron of the drama. To her afternoon "At Homes" came all who were eminent in the three arts, as well as those who moved in the most exclusive court circles. Sooner or later, everyone of note found their way to these enjoyable assemblages, and an African chief with some mission to lay before the colonial office, a famous explorer, the celebrity of the moment, whoever he might be, would meet cabinet ministrs and the foreign diplomats, as guests of the genial kindly hostess.

And now, White Lodge, with its popular new owners, is bound to ring with the merriment of young voices, for so many of their friends are among the most attractive and most interesting of the younger members of London's inner circle.

Strangely enough, the Duke and Duchess of York have a joint descent from the famous Archibald Douglas, fifth Earl of Angus, known as "Bell-the-Cat" and "The Great Earl," High Chancellor of Scotland towards the end of the fifteenth century. His eldest son, the Master of Angus, who was killed at Flodden, was the father of Archibald, sixth Earl of Angus, and of Janet Douglas, Lady Glamis. The sixth Earl of Angus married Queen Margaret Tudor, widow of James IV. and daughter of Henry VII. The only issue of this marriage, Lady Margaret Douglas, married Matthew Stewart, fourth Earl of Lennox. Their eldest son, Henry Lord Darnley, by his marriage with Mary Queen of Scots, was the father of James VI., from whose daughter, Elizabeth, the Duke of York and the House of Windsor are descended. Janet Douglas was the Lady Glamis who suffered death on the Castle Hill, Edinburgh, in 1537, and the Duchess of York is her direct descendant.

The duke and his bride have a joint royal Stuart descent from Robert II. The duke descends from the king's son, Robert III. The duchess descends from his daughter, the Princess Jean or Johanna Stuart, who married Sir John Lyon of Glamis. The crest of the Strathmore family, a lady holding in her right hand the royal thistle, is an allusion of the marriage of the Princess Jean to Sir John Lyon. This joint Stuart descent gives the duke and his bride a descent from the great King Robert (Bruce), the grandfather of Robert II.

Curiously again, the Duchess of York is descended from both the marriages which have given historians so much trouble chronologically from Robert II. From this king's marriage with Elizabeth Mure of Rowallan the duke and duchess have their joint descent. From the king's marriage with Euphemia, daughter of the Earl of Ross, the Duchess of York is also descended. The granddaughter of this marriage, Euphemia, Countess of Strathearn, was the mother of Lady Elizabeth Graham, who married the second Sir John Lyon of Glamis.

TO THE EDITOR.

APT TO FORGET.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—What about Ontario's fuel supply?

Of the 278 candidates in the field for legislative honors how many are there pledged for the production of Ontario's coal? Is there one? The fuel question is of more vital importance to every individual than any other question, not excepting even the O. T. A.

Some weeks ago we had glowing accounts of a wonderful amount of pure anthracite near Sudbury or Chelmsford, but that seems to be the last of it, and it seems as if both our federal and provincial governments don't care a hang whether Canadian fuel supplies are developed or not.

If there is coal of good quality near Sudbury, it could be delivered at a reasonable cost to all points in Ontario, either by rail or boat.

The Country Doctor

By ANNE CAMPBELL.

The neighbors often saw his rig go by,
When dawn first painted pictures in the sky,
"There's sickness down at Stirling's place," they said,
Or "Guess the doc's been dressin' Andy's head,"
And sometimes they would see him ridin' past,
An' leave their buckwheat cakes to run an' ast,
"Hey, doc, is Mrs. Hillock doin' right,
An' did you bring a girl or boy last night?"
The dear ol' doc's fine face would beam with joy
As he pronounced the tidin's, "It's a boy!
Just what they wanted, Bill, an' doin' fine!"
An' then he'd go a joggin' down the line.

A sorta drawlin' voice he had, but kind;
A kinder man you'd almost never find,
Not much on bookkeepin', his bills piled high.
He allus meant to send 'em by an' by,
But never bothered much. When crops were good,
He knew he'd get his money as he should.
Or if the price o' beef was up, he 'lowed
He'd get his office ready for a crowd,

Still doctorin' he is, where I was born,
But now I s'pose he sounds a motor horn,
Time's mebbe changed the buggy to a car,
But he himself's as changeless as a star,
Still ridin' through the quiet country lanes,
A-healin' souls, as well as aches an' pains!

UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

By JOHN W. KANE.

Kane Undertakes To Help a Green Reporter Write a Story About the Prisoners

Synopsis.

Curly Kane wins his way to regeneration while in prison. A wild lad, he killed two carmen in a hold-up, and after seventeen months in Murderer's Row, got a new trial, with a life imprisonment sentence instead of death. He studies law, reads, trains himself to be a magazine writer, and conceives the idea of a law permitting parole for life prisoners who serve fifteen years. By finesse he gets it passed. A new warden, with modern ideas, makes Kane his private secretary. After thirteen years, Kane walks alone two hours in the open country. He discloses to the warden a torture chamber, the tombs. They are obliterated.

CHAPTER XLII.

It goes without saying that I found little time for writing anything for publication. In an indirect way I managed to get a few of my own thoughts published, but they were not under my own name. That indirect way was a result of the calling of a few newspaper people—mostly beginners who wanted unusual coloring—at the prison.

One case that comes to mind was that of a young woman, a very youthful-looking little widow, who called on a summer afternoon. I was out under a tree reading a magazine when one of the other men called to me that I was wanted in the warden's office.

"Mrs. C. here," said the warden, "is a reporter. She wants to ask some questions, and it seems that a friend of yours down town suggested that she talk with you. So, then, Mrs. C.," he turned to her as he arose, "I'm going to have Mr. Kane tell you all about it, if you'll excuse me—and I'll leave you now."

"What a splendid man he is!" she remarked, as the door closed behind him. And then turning to me, she added, with an amusing little grimace, "You, being old at the game of writing, must think that I'm a deuce of a reporter."

"How long have you been at it?" I asked.

"Just a day or two," she laughed. "You see, I have had a few little verses published from time to time, but this is my first—" She hesitated, and I knew she was trying to think of the proper word.

I Give Her the Word.

"Your first assignment?" I supplied.

"That's it," she agreed laughingly. "Why couldn't I think of the word! At newspaper talk I'm like my sister when she tries to talk baseball."

"As a matter of fact," I informed her, "I'm no newspaperman. If this is your first assignment, you're just one ahead of me."

"In a way it's a lot of fun, but I'll just bet they won't print a half dozen words of what I write," she said.

"Well, what are you going to write?" I asked, perhaps showing my amusement.

"I have no more idea than you do, maybe not so much."

"What did he tell you to write?"

"Well"—and she cleared her throat and tried to look very serious—"he simply told me to come out here and see if I could find a story of any kind—that's the way he put it—said for me to try to meet some of the men who have mothers or children or wives in the outside world, and to write something about the pathetic side of their lives."

"Who told you to see me?" I asked her.

"Bert Oldham, who used to work here. When I told him and Mrs. Oldham that I was to come—I went to him to find out how to act when I got here—he said for me to inquire for you and that you would know exactly how to advise me."

"Bert might over-estimate my ability," I suggested.

She Nominates Me.

"I believe I'd like to write something about you, Mr. Kane." She spoke with apparent deep thought.

"Don't. I held up a finger in warning. "As a subject I'm old; and no doubt a great many of the people are tired of seeing my name in print."

"I have the names of several others here whom I'd like to see." She passed me a list. I went to the deputy warden's office, where the warden himself was then seated.

"That little woman in there is trying to write some kind of story about the place and a few of the inmates," I explained to him, "and I don't believe she knows anything much about writing. Here"—and I handed him the list—"are some of the men she wants to meet."

He glanced at the names. "Well, it won't hurt anything for her to talk with them, will it?" he asked.

"Certainly not," was my answer. "But what if she should get some kind of tale tacked together that might give readers a wrong impression about the policy here."

"I hadn't thought of that," he returned.

"There's a way out. That is for me to write the article myself and have her name at the head of it as author. She's wanting to get into print with the story, and perhaps she needs a few dollars—I feel sure that I can work it."

He chuckled. "If she sees fit to have you help her with the story, and if you write just the truth, in fairness to all, why, go to it."

I Help a Bit.

Then the warden had the men whom she wished to interview called out. To each one I explained what was wanted, and with her secured from them some data concerning their home ties and their cases in general. Then, after the last man had left the office, I began angling for her to ask me to help farther with the story.

"What's to be the title of your story, Mrs. C.?" I asked her.

"It will have to have a title, won't it? I hadn't thought of that."

"How would 'Lights and Shadows of Prison Life' do?"

"That's the very thing!" she told me exuberantly. "Now, why couldn't I have thought of that as quickly?"

"You might think of something better than that later on. And now I'm going to suggest something t you about it—something that I'd ap preciate from you, if our position were reversed. If you're willing, I'l write a kind of brief of what I shoul submit to the editor were he to assig me to a joy like this."

"Oh, if you will!" she exclaimed "You just have no idea, Mr. Kane how anxious I am to get this done properly, and with your help I know it would be exactly right."

"I'll mail you the skeleton story thi evening; you'll get it in the morning —then you'll have time to tear it al to pieces, if you wish, and use whatever of the fragments you prefer."

Another Storm Breaks.

The newspaper reached me ahead of her note of acknowledgment, and I saw she had not changed the story in any material degree.

The next time she called, a week later, she thanked me in person for the help I had given her.

"But what do you think the editor said when he read over my story?" she asked. "He looked straight at me out of his old keen gray eyes and said 'Mrs. C., you didn't write this story—not by yourself!'"

"What did you say?" I asked.

"I made a bluff. I said to him: 'Why do you think that?' And he answered: 'I don't think anything about it—I know it.'"

"Then what?"

"Well," she answered me, "I confessed in a kind of weak and far-away voice, 'I did have a bit of help.' But he printed the story anyway."

My own part in that story supposedly written by her was not entirely to my conscientious liking, but I wanted to help her and to explain the new policy at the prison.

That new policy, however, was subjected to some terrible assaults during the second year of its operation, 1918. I got by without being singled out, for while my name was mentioned several times, it was merely as one of those who were, according to the opposition, being specially coddled and made over by the new prison administration. To this day it is a mystery to me why the warden was not attacked on the ground that he had one in my position doing his private work. Perhaps they never found it out; but if not, I cannot understand why. There was lots of talk of several escapes from the prison grounds and the road camps.

The Warden Stands Pat.

The warden himself took their fire without flinching. He went about his work, the main part of which was the constructing of state roads by the prisoners and the reconstructing of those prisoners themselves. Whereas under the old order of things men when released from prison would be unfit for work, after a season out in the open air and sunshine under the new they would be ready for doing a full day's work equal to that of any other man. The warden made it a point to see personally that every released man secured employment before he left the prison, and he also had them keep in touch with him by letter after they had gone.

I myself kept those letters filed away. And among them were also scores of letters from the mothers, sisters, wives or other relatives of released prisoners, who, due to the warden's help in securing transportation for them, had gone to their homes in distant parts of the country and were there making good.

If the head of the institution was not greatly disturbed by attacks he was different from some of us prisoners. For my part I was kept in a state of half terror lest the pressure would get so strong that an order would come from the capitol for the discontinuance of our sleeping outside the walls.

And one day that very order was sent down. I thought it would kill me to go back inside, and it was in reality much harder than entering the prison under the death sentence. My work on the outside continued though, and because of late hours out there I began to go to my room occasionally rather than to go inside to sleep—and soon I was staying out again all the time.

I Apply For Parole.

One particular effect of that criticism was to make the warden's office redouble its efforts to recapture prisoners who had escaped. And the efforts were effective to the extent that before the end of 1918 all but two or three had been found in different parts of the country and returned to the prison.

With the coming of the last month of that year, I laid before the state board of pardons my application for a release upon parole or otherwise. My "fifteen years' actual time in the state prison" was not to be completed for a few months, yet I hoped the board would set a date ahead for my release.

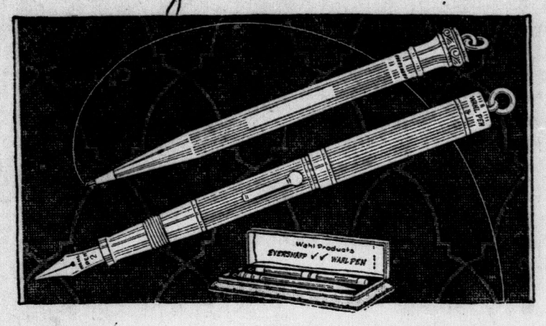

The pardon board met at the state prison in a specially prepared room next to the warden's office. That month's meeting came on Saturday, Dec. 21. It was an all-day session, and my case was called in the afternoon, then it was laid over until a few other minor cases were disposed of.

At 5:50 p.m.—I looked at my watch—I was called into the boardroom. The feeling as I entered that room was precisely the same as the one I had known almost fifteen years before, when I saw that jury filing into the courtroom. And as I seated myself in a chair at one end of the long table around which the seven members of the pardon board were then sitting, I questioned mentally: "Can it be possible that I am actually at the end of my imprisonment at last?"

London and Saints Both Win First Series Lies Between Two

Reilly's Homer in Sixth With Two On Puts Locals Ahead When Trailing Two Runs Behind—Bigger Crowd Warms Up To Amateurs.

London O. B. A. A. seniors continued their winning streak Saturday, this time humbling Stratford's "Classics," and incidentally treating their hurling ace, Young, with an utter lack of sympathy. London coralled the game by a score of 7 to 5, although, the way things were breaking up to the sixth, made it one of the most doubtful games played locally this year.

St. Thomas also continued to win, taking Woodstock nicely into camp by a 6 to 3 score. The results of Saturday's games, make tne Southern Counties title battle still more of an affair between St. Thomas and London, but London must beat the Saints on the 23rd in order to have a chance for the first series.

If these was any doubt in the minds of the several hundred supporters of the local O. B. A. A. seniors as to the result of Saturday's important game with Stratford, at Tecumseh Park, that doubt was suddenly dispelled with the lusty swing of Lloyd Reiley's trusty bat in the sixth inning.

London was traveling along just two runs to the rear at the time, and Down and Burgess were visiting at second and first respectively. Reiley's drive to right field was as pretty a homer as any seen in Tecumseh Park for some moons. It was still climbing when it whistled over Flannigan's reach, and it rolled to the exit gate.

The four-ply swat gave London one counter to work on, and they stuck another one on to the total in the seventh, but it wasn't really needed. Down was unbeatable, and his support, when his slants were touched, was airtight. He was found for a lone safe hit during the four and two-thirds innings he worked, and that one was a scratch, coming in the ninth, when Burgess fell after fielding Flannigan's grounder.

Nopper, who started for London, got by nicely for three frames, allowing one hit in that time. Three men faced him in each of the first three innings, a double play cutting off Moore, who had singled to start the third. He got himself into a bad hole in the fourth, however, when Lavelle singled past first, and on a hit and run, Livermore found the same spot. Flannigan drove through the box for the third successive single, scoring the two runners. He tightened, however, and after Southcott had thrown Berry out at first, he fanned both Jamieson and Moore.

A worse hole in the fifth cost him three runs, on four bunched hits and a walk, before Down relieved him. "Hank" hung the Indian sign on the batting order without any delay, retiring the two who faced him on strikes.

Stratford had nine errors, and they were all costly. Jamieson at short seemed to have a monopoly on infield boots, and he gummed up three plays out of a possible four that hobbled down his way. Marks, who replaced him, was some improvement, but looked better when he took up where Young was forced to leave off his hurling duties in the eighth. In the fast innings he worked, Marks didn't allow a hit.

SAINTS BEAT WOODSTOCK.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, June 10.—The St. Thomas ball team chalked up another victory in the S. O. B. L. series here Saturday, when they defeated the locals by a score of 6 to 3. However, the local crew threw a scare into Danny McPhee in the eighth inning, when with the count 5 to 0, they staged a strong rally and hammered Danny for four healthy wallops, which, coupled with a hit batsman, a balk and a couple of stolen bases, netted three runs. The rally was nipped in the bud by a little poor base-running. Linch came from second on a hit and was apparently safe at the plate with the fourth run but he was called out. Theh big crowd was in a frenzy when Danny hit the first man up and then lambasted the pride of West Lorne for four wallops. McPhee was in serious trouble and it looked as if he was ready for the showers. However, old man luck came to Danny's aid and the side was finally disposed of when Harvey hit an easy one to the pitcher.

Forest City, Alerts Win Inter-Club Series Finals

Former Beat Hermits 13--12—K. of C.'s Lose Fourth Straight—Orients Take Series Without Defeat.

Forest City and Alerts were Saturday's winners in the Inter-Club games, the former snatching a double-sided batting spree from the Hermits by a 13 to 12 decision, while the Alerts pounded Noonan for 14 tallies, and allowed five to drift across against them.

Despite the heavy scoring in the tilt at Queen's Park, the fray was interesting, because of its uncertainty. Hermits started off strong in the first with four runs, and added two more in the second. Forest City got one in the first, and three in the second, and by notching another in the third crept within one run of a tie. But Hermits again stretched out in the lead, by gathering in one in each of the 4th and 5th.

Forest City turned in four in the 6th, taking the lead, lost it in the last half, when Hermits ran in two, and regained it again, getting two in the 7th. Hermits again tied it all up with one in the 8th. Forest City's two in the 9th proved sufficient margin for a win, although it seemed rather scary for a moment, when F. Chantler, first up in the 9th, doubled and scored on Ruddy's muss of a throw.

AT SUNSHINE PARK.

Up at Sunshine Park K. of C. made it a clean series of defeats, although they climbed on McLeod for four hits and four runs in the first, and threatened to stack the game away in the win column. One more, however, in the fourth constituted the extent of their scoring exertions in the game, while Alerts continued to abuse Noonan's offerings until the weary ninth was over.

With the exception of the third and fifth, Alerts scored in every inning. Thirteen safe hits, including a homer to right field by Carfrae, and two double by Hodgson and McLeod, were ably abetted by eight errors.

"GREAT HEART" BREAKS HIGH JUMPING RECORD

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, June 9.—Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody's Great Heart, an 8-year-old thoroughbred, broke the world's high-jumping record for horses, when he cleared a hurdle at 8 feet and 13-16 inches at the South Shore Country Club Horse Show here yesterday. The old record, 8 feet, ½ inch, was set by Confidence at Cobourg, Ont., in 1903.

TERRIERS, LEAFS BOTH WIN TILTS

Galt Trims Kitchener On Home Lot 9--1.

PRESTON BLOWS UP

Leading in Sixth When Defence Cast Waver.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, June 9.—In their second home game of the season the Kitchener Wolves Saturday afternoon at Victoria Park lost to the Galt Terriers, O. B. A. champions, in a senior inter-county fixture, 9 to 1. As the score indicates the visitors had all the better of the argument. They hit and fielded better than the Kitchener clan.

The latter played poor ball in the field, their seven errors mostly all coming at times when they meant much. As a matter of fact of the ten runs scored during the game only eight of them were earned runs.

Friendly Graham, for the visitors, pitched gilt-edged ball, allowing but four hits, striking out six and passing three. In the first five innings he did not allow a hit. Zuber also pitched well for the homesters, despite Galt's dozen hits, but poor support put him in bad holes.

The locals played a good fielding game for three frames, doing some clever work, but then they blew. Only one extra base hit was made all afternoon, Evans the first man up getting it, though he did not tally. Hoffman, with three bingles, was the best batter.

PRESTON SWAMPED.

Galt, June 9.—The Preston Riversides were swamped on their own plot on Saturday afternoon by the Guelph Leafs in an inter-county fixture, 11 to 4. The timely hitting of the Leafs won them the game, coupled with the Riversides' poor fielding behind Nichol, and inability to hit Henry with men on bases. For five innings it was a real tidy game, with Preston leading, 4 to 3, but in the sixth the balloon ascension started, with the home team giving a weird exhibition in fielding, and Guelph piled up a lead that was not to be overcome. Jim O'Connor opened the sixth with a double, but went the circuit when two errors occurred on the play. That tied the score and spelled Preston's downfall.

Lefty Nichol pitched very good ball, but his support was wretched, hits being credited against him which should have been fielded. "Chuck" Henry, while he wavered a couple of times, went the full route. He had ten strikeouts to his credit and led his team with four hits out of five times up. Jim O'Connor also starred at bat, getting a triple and two doubles, while Brown, the Leaf's kid shortstop, got a homer. Umpire McAvoy was ridden by both teams for his decisions, Guelph raising quite a protest when he called Lindsay out in the ninth for interference.

Flint, June 10.—Flint made it two straight over London here today by taking a batfest by 10 to 7.

Both sides used two pitchers, but the visitors were unable to hit Jackson in the pinches. The one-umpire system was in vogue today with the release of Jack Brauer by President T. J. Halligan, after six of the eight clubs had filed protests on his eyesight.

LOST SATURDAY.

Flint, June 9.—Flint nicked Mackey's Tecs for a 9—1 defeat Saturday. London got men on second and third in the first frame but could not score. Stimpson singled to left, and was safe at second on Getsie's bunt which Ulrigg threw wide to Renser.

Next three were easy, Flint scored twice on singles by Morehart and John with Stricker's triple to right. Thut was hit to open the second but died stealing. Boyle and Mackey flied out, Carmen set 'em down in order in Flint half, neither team did any hitting in the third.

Schaefer and Mostade got on in the fourth on a single and Walsh's error but Thut fanned and Boyle lifted to Luce. Johns single and Warwick's double, both to center, gave Flint a run in the fourth. In the fifth Mackey doubled to left and Carmen singled same. Stimpson forced Carmen. Getsie fouled and McNamara flied to John.

Flint went down in order in the fifth. London scored sixth on pass to Mostade and Thut's double to center. Thut out at third on fine relay. Three hits, pass and force out, gave Flint two runs in the sixth.

Both clubs went out in order in the seventh. London failed in the eighth. Schaefer was chased by Umpire Brauer and Coogan went in. Flint scored four times in eighth on six hits. No runs for London in ninth.

INGERSOLL SPORTS BILL KEEPS FANS PEPPED UP

Special to The Advertiser.

Ingersoll, June 10.—There is much by way of sport to engage the attention of citizens at the present time; in fact, not in years has interest in all summer pastimes been so prominent. In the Oxford-Elgin League of the intermediate series of the O. B. A. the baseball team has won its first two games. Lacrosse is also creating increased interest. In the first association game the locals defeated Mitchell at home by a score of 10 to 3.

The gun club has a large membership, and several of the members are hanging up fine scores. The lawn tennis club is also a flourishing organization, while the lawn bowlers anticipate on the most successful seasons in the history of the club.

MUTUAL LIFE TEAM WINS.

Special to The Advertiser.

Waterloo, June 9.—The Mutual Life Tennis Club defeated Kitchener in an Ontario League match on the Mutual grounds Saturday, by taking three of the five events. The doubles were split but in the singles the Mutual men took two of the three, thus winning the match.

Down the Line In All Sports

The long-overdue shakeup in the London team has come. In the melee there'll be some heads off which may give the "faithful" a few twinges, but sentiment is the last thing the fans want in baseball, although it's usually the owners who appear in the cold-blooded light.

Individually, Mackey had a first division club, but as a combination the team was just what the standing shows it to be. Some ballplayers need change of scenery to keep the pace up, and apparently the fans have been demanding a change of faces, too.

* * * *

The amateurs came back Saturday after a rather dismal start the week before, and a bigger crowd than ever came back with them, and warmed up in fine style to the brand of baseball both teams displayed. While the first series lies between London and St. Thomas now, with the local fans getting the crucial game here, unless, of course, London drops the game to Woodstock, neither of these two teams will have any easy road in the second half of the schedule, the closer scores show.

However, the open spaces are still unfenced, the sunsets as intoxicating as ever.

SHAW DECLARES CANADA NEEDS 'BIG INTERESTS'

STATES "BIG INTERESTS" ARE NEEDED IN CANADA TO DEVELOP BUSINESS

John R. Shaw, President of Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Speaks at Opening of the Fifty-Second Annual Meeting—Declare Trade Outlook in Dominion Presents Optimistic Future.

DECLARES PROTECTION NECESSARY NOW

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 11.—That Canada needs more "big interests," or any kind of "interests" to provide employment and increase trade, and that these interests should be "encouraged instead of persecuted," was the proposition placed before the Canadian Manufacturers' Association this afternoon by the president, J. P. Shaw, of Woodstock, Ont., at the opening of the fifty-second annual meeting.

Mr. Shaw said that the term "big interests" was a senseless expression given a sinister meaning.

"It seemed," said the president, "that any group of men who secured some capital and began to turn raw materials into saleable products immediately attracted the enmity of certain elements in the population." He exampled the Hudson's Bay Company and the Canadian Pacific Railway, but pointed to the constructive and beneficial influences both these corporations had in the development of the country.

Reviewing the past year, the president said: "We can fairly sum up the last year by saying that the worst is over, that there has been some recovery, but that this recovery is not so great as was anticipated."

Present Reports.

Reports of the executive and other committees of the organization were presented later in the afternoon. The convention is being attended by members of the association from Vancouver to Halifax. Proceedings will last four days. After today the mornings will be devoted to business and the afternoons and evenings to recreation—the local committees having arranged a big program for the delegates and their wives.

J. R. SHAW, WOODSTOCK, ONT., President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who delivered his annual address at the association convention opening in Toronto this morning.

In delivering his address, Mr. Shaw made a strong plea for national unity with regard to the question of tariff. In the past, he declared, Canadians had been accustomed to dividing themselves into three camps, protectionists, free traders and moderate protectionists. Instead of adopting an attitude of prejudice it was necessary, he claimed, to study the question thoroughly and arrive at conclusions regardless of political affiliations.

Protection Required.

"At the present time," Mr. Shaw said, "It is becoming more and more apparent that protection of a certain measure is required by the industries of Canada. Free trade should not be urged under present unsound economic conditions.

"Since the war we have been pursuing a suicidal policy. We have been reducing our tariff, while other countries have been increasing theirs. The time has come when this policy should be reversed."

Mr. Shaw dealt exhaustively with the questions of transportation, legislation, education and immigration. Immigration, he said, was most necessary if the country was to grow rapidly. He condemned Canadian labor unions for their attitude toward receiving foreign immigrants into the country. But for legislation passed in recognition of the wishes of these unions, the population of the country would now be far greater than it is.

Future Optimistic.

The future, Mr. Shaw declared, is most optimistic. Trade is reviving, after a period of the most pronounced depression. Prosperity lies chiefly in the wealth of the natural resources, and the buoyant and indomitable character of the people. Some Canadians appear not to have faith in their country. But foreign investors demonstrate the fallacy of this by their increasing desire to invest in Canadian enterprises.

The report of the industrial relations committee showed that Canada was exceptionally fortunate in the small number of strikes occurring during the year. The unemployment situation reached alarming proportions in the early part of 1922, but the condition was rapidly changing, and better times were in the offing. The report took up questions in connection with workmen's compensation and minimum wage legislation. The labor supply was a vital matter with which the government would be called upon to deal. The report urged a return to the apprentice system in order to insure a proper supply of skilled men.

Increased Membership.

The executive report, presented by J. T. Stirrett, revealed an increased membership in the association. Mr. Stirrett outlined the activities of the executive during the year, which included arrangements for "Made In Canada" exhibits in foreign countries, and among other features, a conference on scientific and industrial research.

Satisfaction with recent legislative measures passed by the federal government was the keynote of the report issued by the legislation committee. The bank act, the report affirmed, required no change that would enhance the interests of industry generally. The bankruptcy act had been the subject of many complaints, but after investigation, the legislation committee decided the act was practically perfect under present conditions. The complaints were the result of too many government appointments of "authorized trustees," some of whom did not possess the qualifications nor the facilities for efficient performance of duties.

The committee lauded Premier King for carrying out his promise regarding the passing of the combines investigation act. This measure had proven beneficial to industry at large, the committee declared, and the necessary machinery had been built with which to combat illegal combinations and attempts to create monopolies

ARCOLA AGAIN RISES FROM STORM RUINS

Western Town Resumes Normal Condition Following Devastating Rains.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Arcola, Sask., June 11.—Arcola has recovered from the storm of Friday night. Damage to crops, garden stuff, windows, stock in cellars and the power-house, has been estimated at $25,000. Friday night the town remained in darkness, but by 7 o'clock Saturday night lights were turned on.

Train service was held up on the Canadian Pacific Railway, owing to the washout six miles east of here, where a culvert was taken right from under the tracks and gangs of men had to be rushed from all points to build a bridge about forty feet long.

The storm covered an area about eighteen miles east and west, and thirteen miles north and south.

Arcola and the immediate vicinity was visited by hail, but at no other point, according to reports, did hail fall.

GHOST OF THE BLACK COW ONCE MORE AT LARGE

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, June 10.—The "ghost" of the black cow of Forest, which became more or less famous in this district several months ago by reason of much litigation in which it was the "stock" of contention, stalked through the council chamber just prior to adjournment, when County Crown Attorney F. W. Wilson presented some accounts. These bills were for livery stable care for the cow in Forest after the magistrate had decided that the animal be placed under neutral care and virtually in custody of the court until the proceedings were over. The cow died during litigation proceedings.

CLAIMS IRISH REBELS STILL READY TO FIGHT

Associated Press Despatch.

Dublin, June 11.—Miss Mary MacSwiney, speaking at Kilkenny yesterday, said the "cease fire" order had been given, but that the men who had been fighting were getting ready to do so again if the Irish people attempted to turn down the "republic."

Expect Forty Thousand Will Return To London For Old Boys' Reunion

Invitation Acceptances From Over All World Swamp Secretary's Office.

ATTRACTIVE SPORTS

Businessmen Promise Co-operation To Make Movement Great Success.

Forty thousand former Londoners are expected to swell the population of this city to metropolitan proportions during Old Boys' week, which commences August 4. Arrangements are virtually completed by which the city shall become a mecca of jollity and celebration during the great festival which, according to advance reports, will exceed anything of its kind ever held in Canada.

Replies to the 50,000 add invitations sent out to all parts of the globe are swamping the office of Ed. Smith, the secretary. Practically all of them express keen pleasure with the prospect of visiting the old home town. And the attractions arranged for the occasion are of a nature that will arouse enthusiasm and delight in the hearts of all old-timers, many of whom will return to the city for the first time in twenty and thirty years.

Hold Championship Meets.

Perhaps the biggest attraction will be the holding of the amateur championships of Ontario here during the week. A. T. Taylor, chairman of the sports committee, plans every variety of athletic contest from motorcycle racing to cake-eating. Some of the most noted athletes of the continent will congregate in London for the carnival, attracted by big prize money offered for the professional events.

The boxing card to be staged at the armories or in Queen's Park may see Jess Willard, Firpo, Tom Gibbons and other pugilists of international repute cavorting in the ring. All the top-notchers of pugilism are being urged to compete in the big boxing program, and there is no doubt but that many of them will take advantage of the opportunity to grab off some big money.

An attempt is also being made to procure William Tilden, champion tennis player of the world, and William Johnston, champion of Europe and California, to play an exhibition match on the courts of the London Tennis Club. Other notable wielders of the hickory such as Vincent Richards, Fred Anderson and R. Norris Williams may also be on hand to show Londoners their wizardry on the tennis court.

The amateur championships of the province are open to the world and always attract athletic talent from the United States. These will be staged at Queen's Park. Marathon races, hurdles, jumping, hammer throwing and every variety of contest on the calendar of sport will be provided for.

Garbed in Gala Attire.

London will garb itself in gala attire for the carnival. Two hundred banks, loan companies, public and private business institutions have signified their willingness to drape the buildings of the city with all manner of flags, bunting and bizarre color designs. Badges will be issued to every member of the Old Boys' Association and a special celluloid banner has been struck for guests.

Secretary Ed. Smith received word from United States railways that no special rate could be given the old boys living in American cities. Reduced tourist tickets will be available, however, and this will constitute a substantial saving for those living across the line. The C. P. R. and C. N. R. readily accepted the proposition suggested by Mr. Smith that lower fares be allowed visitors from all Canadian points, and this arrangement will mean a big saving to former Londoners who have remained in Canada.

The executive, which meets tomorrow evening at 7:30, will make further representations to the American roads in a final attempt to secure reduced fares for incoming visitors.

The association last week contracted with the Henry Meyerhoff Carnival Company to provide the side-shows and grandstand entertainment during the week. Thirty cars containing circus and show equipment, will arrive in the city the week before the big event, and Queen's Park will look like a second Coney Island when the gates open to the Old Boys on Aug. 4.

On Saturday, the Ontario Amateur Athletic championships will be staged at the park, and Sunday will be devoted to special church services. On Sunday evening a massed choir will give a free open-air concert, and on Monday a grand parade of visitors will be held from Queen's Park to Victoria Park, where an athletic meet will be conducted exclusively for Old Boys. Tuesday is ladies' day at Springbank. Wednesday bicycle and motorcycle races will comprise the program at Queen's Park, and dancing will be held on the green in the evening. On Thursday, a picnic is scheduled for Port Stanley, and Thursday, which is travelers' day, will see the best professional athletes of the continent perform in the Western Fair grounds. Saturday is military day, and all the soldier organizations of the city, led by veterans of '66 and '85 will march through the city streets in a great massed parade. During the week a cricket match will be held at the Ontario Hospital grounds.

Dates Back to 1896.

The origin of the Old Boys' movement dates back to 1896, and London has the distinction of being the first city in the world to initiate the custom of staging a celebration of this kind. In the summer of 1896, a trio of former Londoners, resident in Toronto, met by accident, and as a matter of course, the old town at once became a topic of conversation. The days at the old Central School, the games on the cricket square, the swimming in numerous "holes" in the Thames known only to London boys of days long gone by, caused a flow of eloquence—sometimes enthusiastic, occasionally touched with sadness, and always reminiscent.

Finally, the proposal was made: "What's the matter with running an excursion to the old town on "Civic Holiday?" The idea struck home, other former Londoners in the Queen City were communicated with, and the result was the organization of the first London Old Boys' Association. A committee was sent to London to make preliminary arrangements, meeting hearty co-operation here, and the first Monday in August, 1917, London saw a home-coming such as was never before witnessed by any city. The reunion was a tremendous success. There were three days of jubilation, hand-shaking and rejoicing.

But the movement did not stop there; the reunion, possessing, as it did, so much heart-interest, had attracted notice all over the continent, and the year following London Old Boys' Associations were organized at Chicago, Cleveland, New York and other places. In this organization those interested were greatly aided by the Nicholas Wilson golden jubilee testimonial in 1895, the response to the appeal on that occasion being magnificent.

The reunions were of annual occurrence until 1901, when it was decided to make them biennial. Each succeeding gathering has surpassed its predecessor. It is significant that the Old Boys idea has been copied by many Canadian and United States cities and towns, and that organized home-gatherings are no longer confined to London.

STATE FARMER UNIONS TO STRIKE FOR DESIRES

Plan To Force Government to Accede to Wishes.

Special to The Advertiser.

Regina, Sask., June 11.—A farmers' union, which talks of "striking" in the manner of a trades union unless its demands are met by the government, is the latest Agrarian organization to be formed on the prairies.

According to those promoting it there are now 53 of these unions, or lodges, as they have been called, already operating in Saskatchewan. Of the aims of the organization, M. H. Schwarz declares:

"If we want a wheat board, we will get it by telling the government we want it. If we say we want a certain man to be head of the wheat board, he will head it. If this is not done we will stop marketing our goods and tie up the whole market, and before the government will allow such a thing, we would get what we demand."

DIVINITY OF LOVE MAKES PEOPLE DO HARD THINGS

Lloyd Houlding, B. A., Occupies Talbot Street Baptist Church Pulpit.

PLEADS FOR SERVICE

Declares Real Glory Is Personal Contact With Christ.

Lloyd Houlding, B.A., who is leaving London shortly to take the position of director of religious education at Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto, occupied the pulpit of Talbot Street Baptist Church on Sunday morning. Taking his message from the words of Paul, "God forbid that I should glory in anything save in the cross of Christ," Mr. Houlding spoke on "The Triumph of the Cross."

Glory in Attainments.

"Looking over the troubled state of the world as we find it today, with its turmoil of politics and world hate, you and I are calling upon God to vindicate the work of Christ. It was in such a time that Paul lived, and yet through all the chaotic conditions of his time, and out of the darkness of it all, Paul could come with this message, 'God forbid that I should glory in anything save the cross of Christ.' Today we glory in many things around us—in our attainments, in our progress, yet to what extent do we really glory in the attributes that come from a personal contact with Christ? Paul lived in the midst of art, of great commerce, and it would have been an easy matter for him to be carried away with these things, but he came back to his own people not with sermons on philosophy, not with discourses based on his own knowledge, but he came aflame with only one theme, the redemptive power of the cross"

Make no mistake, continued Mr. Houlding, Paul never glorified the literal cross. He was never known to carry around a splinter of the cross as a relic; but in the cross Paul saw the culmination of a life of service that had been spent for the redemption of men.

Paul gloried in the cross because it meant life. "I am come that ye might have life." That is what men and women need today. Germany took the cross in the late war, and from it they sought to make a two-edged sword with which in win battles. Today they have lost their grip because they failed to grasp what the cross really meant.

Cross Source of Power.

The cross is the source of power. It is not within the scope of our power to reason or to think to grasp the love that sent Christ to the cross. Love is a dynamo that has found its power in the cross to radiate out into the hearts of men and women. Once again Paul saw love in the cross when he wrote: "Now abideth faith, hope and love, but the greatest of these is love." The divinity of love is shown by the fact that it asks people to do hard things, "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you." Without the power and the love coming from the cross the natural man cannot do these things.

If the kingdom of God is ever going to be established on that earth, it is going to come through the channel of love. Let us then do the things which demonstrate the love that we have, because the extension of the kingdom depends on those who are in that kingdom.

When Christ came to the world he did so as the second Adam. He put on our form in order that he might bring to us the righteousness as he knew it in God. The Roman Empire could not see the vision that Paul saw, and it went down. If the world is going to be won it must be done in the sentiment that wrote:

"In the cross of Christ I glory,
Towering o'er the wrecks of time:
All the light of sacred glory
Gathers 'round its head sublime."

COCKSHUTT OPENS GOOD ROADS MEET IN AMBITIOUS CITY

Lieut.-Governor Refers to the Great Advance in Means of Transportation.

WILL BRING UNITY

Hon. E. H. Armstrong Declares Association Great Factor in Uniting Provinces.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, June 11.—The tenth annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association opened in the Royal Connaught Hotel today, with over 100 delegates present, and several more hundred expected. Hon. J. L. Perron, K.C., minister of roads, Quebec, presided and delivered his presidential address.

The premiers, government officials and highway officials of the various provinces will hold their third annual conference in connection with the convention on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Canadian Engineering Standards Association will hold a special meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt formally declared the convention open this morning. He referred to the progressive modes of transportation since Lasalle set foot here 250 years ago, and dwelt on the importance of highways.

Mayor Jutten welcomed the delegates, saying that Hamilton had given over a million dollars during the past few years on good roads. He presented a gold key to the city to President Perron.

Hon. E. H. Armstrong, premier of Nova Scotia, agreed with Mr. Cockshutt's idea of inter-provincial unity in which the association was one of the greatest factors. He wondered when Hamilton's infant industry would ever grow up enough to do without the bottle labelled "high tariff."

Hon. F. C. Biggs, minister of highways in Ontario, extended a welcome on behalf of Premier Drury. Hon. J. D. MacLean, provincial secretary, British Columbia, said good roads were the basis of our whole prosperity.

B. M. Hill, chief provincial highway engineer, New Brunswick, and A. C. McGillivray, chairman of the good roads board, Manitoba, also spoke. A. W. Campbell, federal commissioner of highways, Ottawa, dwelt on the development of the road problem since 1896, when the first county road policy in Ontario was formulated by Wentworth County Council.

NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH IN GRAVEL PIT CAVE-IN

Special to The Advertiser.

Milton, June 11.—While getting a load of gravel in Nelson Township on Saturday, Milton Clements of Mount Nemo, near Milton, had a narrow escape from being killed when a large section of the pit caved in on him. When rescued it was found that he had four ribs broken and was injured internally. Although his injuries are serious, it is expected, he will recover.

COUNTER REVOLT REPORTED BROKEN OUT IN BULGARIA

The Peasants Take Up Arms Against New Government; Suffer Defeat.

NEW WAR FEARED

Believe Stamboulisky Supporters Will Regain Reins of Power.

Special Cable to The Advertiser.

Paris, June 11.—A counter-revolution by peasants is reported under way in Bulgaria. Fighting has taken place, in which the supporters of Stamboulisky, deposed premier, have been defeated, according to despatches to Paris newspapers today. Several thousand peasants took arms against the new government which was established after a sudden bloodless coup de etat Saturday, and armored trains have been rushed to Plevna to suppress them, according to Le Journal's Sofia correspondent.

May Mean New War.

It is feared here that if counter revolutionary fighting spreads the entire Balkans may once again become inflamed with war.

"Heavy fighting in many cities, and in the streets of Sofia, where many have been killed and wounded," is reported by the Matin's Belgrade correspondent.

Another despatch says that at Radomir, in Bulgaria, bands headed by Dr. Bottef, president of the chamber of deputies, and friendly to the Stamboulisky regime, have been defeated by troops of the new government.

Premier Stamboulisky, who had headed the Bulgarian peasant government since October, 1919, ruling with an iron hand and even dictating to youthful King Boris, escaped the revolutionaries, who seized the reins Saturday, imprisoning practically the entire ministry. Stamboulisky fled to Slavovita, where he gathered a few hundred peasants and prepared for a counter revolt.

Detachments of new government troops went to Slavovita in an attempt to capture the ex-premier today, but he is reported once more to have escaped, with a handful of his followers.

Peasants in Majority.

The peasants, who supported Stamboulisky still are in the majority in Bulgaria, and a counter revolution on their part is regarded in Paris as certain of success, provided such a revolt is well organized.

When the peasant government was in the saddle it imprisoned many ministers of the war time regime. Twelve of the latter were released today from a dungeon at Choumen.

While reports regarding fighting in Sofia are conflicting, all agree that truckloads of troops, accompanied by armored cars, constantly patrol the streets and that frequent firing is heard.

ASSERTS PROHIBITION GAINING IN AMERICA

Commissioner Haynes Sees the Ultimate Success of U. S. Dry Laws.

Special to The Advertiser.

Washington, June 11.—The enormous effort of the federal government to enforce prohibition in every state in the union since its inception, Jan. 16, 1920, was revealed today by Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haines, detailing reports of enforcement during his first two years as head of the government's prohibition department. He celebrated his second anniversary as commissioner today.

The almost revolutionary effect of the adoption of the new doctrine on the social fabric of the country, entailing as it has thousands of arrests and prison sentences, fines and seizures, the erection of a new machinery for law enforcement and its concrete results in each state was clearly set forth in Haynes' anniversary report.

Haynes asserted in his report that prohibition in the United States will ultimately be successfully enforced, but added that at present adverse public sentiment in some sections was retarding the work.

His report, by states, showed that in most of them, those arrested for violating of the dry law are of foreign birth.

URGES FRENCH ACCEPT GERMAN PROPOSAL

Curzon Seeks Basis For Negotiations On Reparations.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, June 11.—Lord Curzon had an important conference with the French minister, Count Saint Aulaire, this morning, the British foreign secretary urging that the French Government accept Berlin's latest reparation proposals as a basis for negotiation. If France will do this, Lord Curzon will inform Germany, it was stated, of the French Government's willingness to discuss the problem collectively with the allies.

Great Britain, it is explained, will then endeavor to obtain from Berlin a pledge of the cancellation of the orders for passive resistance in the Ruhr, which Premier Poincare has named as a condition precedent to any pourparlers. If Germany acquiesces in this, steps will be taken to convoke an international conference for the settlement of the whole dispute.

National I. O. D. E. To Discuss War Memorial

Will Maintain Scholarships For Soldiers' Son or Daughter in Each Province of the Dominion.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Quebec, June 9.—The work of the war memorial committee, the greatest achievement of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, will be given the most important place in the deliberations of delegates to the 23rd annual meeting of this order, to be held at the Chateau Frontenac, June 11 to June 16. In this committee the educational work of the order is included, as it will be given in the report of the national educational secretary, Miss Constance Laing, Toronto. A strenuous effort is to be made to enable the order to live up to the original intention of the overseas scholarships—the sending annually of a son or daughter of each province to universities in Great Britain for one year. At present, owing to lack of funds, four go one year and five the next.

The third annual award of these overseas post-graduate scholarships, value $1,400, went in 1923 to the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, the winners being H. M. Thomas, Toronto; Elizabeth Monk, Montreal; G. A. Dowker, Winnipeg; and C. L. Lewis, Saskatoon. All these will go either to Oxford or Cambridge. Oxford is preferred by one 1922 scholar, because, he says, since I. O. D. E. groups may not visit each part of the empire, they should go where representative people and representative ideas of the empire most remarkable courage.

Agenda Is Interesting.

The agenda for the convention shows a week of much interest in topics provided, with the social end in the historic city by no means overlooked. When the convention opens on June 11, it will be addressed in welcome by Mrs. C. M. di Rune Finniss, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Quebec, and Mrs. George Morrow, representing Nova Scotia, will reply. The president's address will be delivered by Mrs. P. G. Doolittle of Toronto. Reports from national, municipal, primary and junior chapters follow, with the work of the India league, navy league, affiliated societies, etc. Other sessions will be devoted to finance, administration, general work and policy of the order; the report of the national educational committee, resolutions, election of officers, etc. It is probable that Mrs. Doolittle will continue as president.

Reports will show that the exhibit of war memorial pictures which, at a cost of $40,000, the order arranged for and alloted to the different provinces in proportion to membership, has continued to be a feature of real value, school teachers welcoming the very fine representations of historic events or empire leaders, each with its message for young Canada.

One of the evening sessions will be addressed by Sir George Foster, his subject being "The European Situation."

To Consider Immigration.

On Wednesday immigration, child welfare, the constitution and the junior work of the order will be considered; Lady Baden-Powell's suggestion that the Girl Guides might be the "nursery" of the order will doubtless meet with approval.

"Our Greatest Opportunity" is the way in which the subject of Canadianization will be considered by Mrs. Wilson Smith of Winnipeg, provincial representative for Manitoba, and other speakers. The children of foreign-born parents will not be 100 per cent Anglo-Saxon but they will be Canadians nevertheless, and the order will be urged to see that every chapter definitely "adopts" a new Canadian school taking up the work earnestly and seriously.

"Distance is no bar. Write to the teacher, send books and magazines to the pupils, give prizes, clothe those who are unable to attend school lacking necessary garments" is the plea of Mrs. Smith.

Child welfare and Canadianization are two departments which—especially in the West—take up much of the devoted labor of the order's members. The splendid Qu'Appelle Preventorium stands as a monument to the West's care for children; in London, Ontario, a $40,000 hospital for children has recently been opened; in Toronto the Preventorium sees yearly more beds endowed. The members of the order have every season to be proud of the fact that the sum of $6,327 was received for the building of a hospital in fire-stricken Haileybury, Ont., which will be run for six months by the Red Cross. Of this sum a notable contribution was sent from Saskatchewan, nearly a $1,000. Even the Yukon helped out.

Aim to Assist Art.

Under the capable management of Mrs. C. Pease, editor of "Echoes," the order's magazine, published every four months, is in a flourishing condition and on a paying basis. Its readers find an inspiration, as well as information and entertainment, in its pages.

One of the aims of the order is to "assist in the progress of art and literature." For some time past the "Edith Nordheimer" prize, open to essayists from the Royal Military College at Kingston, has been provocative of interest; this year, and for 10 years to come, greater scope is provided and tangible rewards offered in the direction of short story and one-act plays, through the generosity of Mrs. R. W. Wood of Fernie, B.C., and Mrs. F. McIntosh of Montreal, giving $200 and $100 respectively. Mrs. Beatrice Redpath of Toronto, a writer of short stories, but also a poet who has published two volumes of verse, took the prize for the story "Leggatt's Pond"; the West captured the dramatic trophy; George G. Clough, whose work has appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, sent in a play called "The Striker." The judges, Hugh Gayss, Hector Charlesworth and W. Jacobs, considered that it showed "well-fibred dramatic structure" and was essentially Canadian.

Paris, June 9.—Although the animal applique gowns of vionnet have made a sensation, a still greater one was caused today by the new jungle frock. The jungle frock has not only appliqued animals in silk, velvet and leather, it has also an appliqued landscape for the background.

Lace Supersedes Fur.

Paris, June 9.—Edgings of lace are superseding in some instances the edgings of fur on summer finery. One evening cloak shown today has a deep collar and cuff of finely-plaited and ruched brown lace, matching the brown silk of the garment. The lace being very narrow and in many rows, has a certain fuzzy effect not unlike fur.

Wedding Gowns Simple.

London, June 9.—The metal wedding gown, which was the conventional bridal dress last season, has disappeared today. At smart weddings it is noticeable that the gowns are very simple both in fabric and in style, a general air of unsophisticated girlishness being sought.

Chinese Designs For Silks.

New York, June 9. — There is a humorous touch today to the patterns of some fancy printed silks. Instead of the stiff Assyrian or Japanese designs, these silks—gray, for example, printed in deep blue—have vague figures of Chinese with long queues streaming in the breeze, of pleasure boats on a dim Chinese river and of Chinese lovers in a garden.

Black and White For Sports.

New York, June 9. — Black and white is more in favor today for sports hats. Stunning little hats, with brims just wide enough not to spoil the poke bonnet effect, have their natural leghorn crowns wound with a black and white silk scarf.

Bathing Ear-Rings.

New York, June 9.—A bathing cap of rubberized silk in Roman stripes of black, green, yellow and red, seen in an avenue shop today, has ear-rings attached to the cap. The ear-rings are of glass. They are two big green hoops, sturdy enough not to be broken by the first splash of surf.

THE BREAKFAST PARTY.

Week-ending is the order of the day, now that June is upon us, and our friends' out-of-door retreats are beckoning shining forefingers!! What good old times we can have in the open, when hostesses know how to entertain informally, and simply turn us loose among the trees and flowers!

Recently I was a member of a week-end party in the suburbs, where the Saturday night jollification took the form of a porch dance ending eternly at midnight. "Not because of scruples," explained our hostess, added: "not at 10 or 11 o'clock as you might think, but promptly at eight-thirty. Generally the men and some of the women have gotten up at six and had a few sets of tennis or nine holes of golf, and they come right to breakfast in their sport togs. She has a table set out under the trees on her lawn, with a big coffee urn steaming away, relays of hot biscuit from the kitchen, and her specialty—golden-brown round codfish balls, all you can eat of them. These are wrapped in oiled paper, both to keep them hot and so that they can be handled. It is a buffet breakfast, and everyone goes about with a cup of hot cofbut just so that we will be able to enjoy tomorrow! If you dance all night, you want to sleep all the next morning, and it is too heavenly out here to spend half a day in bed."

As we drove away, a cheerful, bonny woman ran forward and called after us: "Come over to our house to breakfast, won't you?" My hostess responded that we certainly would, and then told me that the Sunday morning breakfast parties of one or two of her neighbors were among their pleasantest experiences.

"We breakfast early, too," she fee and a piping hot buttered biscuit or fish ball. Such gayety and elation you never knew in your life. Sometimes her young daughter's friends are there, to pour coffee and hand food.

"By ten o'clock every one has departed—some to go back to the golf course or tennis courts, others to dress for church. This community has found that 'early to bed and early to rise' is the real secret of getting the most out of the summertime, and especially out of its week-ends."

Mothers and Their Children

True Courtesy.

Children learn courtesy from imitation. I try to be very careful about discussing friends or servants before my child. It is a particularly grave mistake to receive a guest with courtesy, and then as soon as she is gone criticize her before the child.

Lorne Avenue Mothers Aroused About Cinders

Will Protest To Board of Education Against Condition Which They Consider Dangerous and Annoying.

The Lorne Avenue Mothers' Club at their regular meeting last week registered a protest against the condition of the school yard, which is covered with cinders. The discussion waxed hot at the meeting, the result of which will be a protest to the board of education against such a condition. Before forwarding the protest, however, the mothers intend to take up the matter with the principal of the school with a view to getting his co-operation.

Several of the children have been severely hurt by falling while at play, and just a few days ago one small child was seriously cut in the face. As the accident occurred after school hours, the medicine chest of the school nurse was locked up and first aid materials were difficult to procure. The mothers also considered this difficulty at their meeting, and as a result may equip a second medical chest for the school to be placed in the kindergarten, which will be easily accessible to any person.

Not only are the cinders in the yard dangerous, according to the mothers, but they are exceedingly dirty, and tired mothers are forced to bathe their children every night, so grimy do they become by playing in the school yard.

The remedy which the members of the mothers' club suggests is the removal of the larger cinders and the placing of sand over the whole yard. Sand, they say, is clean, and not dangerous in case of falls.

Very little business came up at the meeting outside of the cinder question. Arrangements were made, however, for a mothers' club picnic to be held at Springbank on June 22. The layette, on which the members have been industriously engaged for some time past, is complete, the different articles being brought in at this meeting. It will be handed over immediately to Miss Bertha Smith of the Child Welfare Association.

WEDDINGS

DORLAND—McDONALD.

A quiet, yet very pretty wedding took place at 1 o'clock on Wednesday, June 6, at the Presbyterian Manse, Embro, when Miss Irene McDonald, youngest daughter of Mrs. William McDonald of Embro, was united in marriage to Mr. George Dorland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorland of Beachville, Rev. W. P. Lane officiating.

The bride looked sweet in a wedding gown of pearl gray canton crepe, with Paisley silk trimmings and hat and veil to match. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The happy couple will reside on the groom's farm at Beachville.

HIEPLEH—MATTHEWS.

A very pretty June wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Matthews, fourth concession, Malahide, on Wednesday, June 6, when their daughter, Mary Mildred, was united in marriage to Mr. Norman Hiepleh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Hiepleh, of the eighth concession of Malahide. Promptly at 3 o'clock, to the strains of Lohengin's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Clifford Ellis, sister of the groom, the bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father and took her place beneath an arch of evergreens, bridal wreath and pink roses in front of a bank of ferns.

The bride was gowned in white canton crepe trimmed with pleated chiffon with edgings of velvet. She wore a bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a sheaf of Sunset roses, lilies-of-the-valley and maiden hair fern. Miss Beatrice Hessenauer of Detroit, cousin of the groom, who acted as bridesmaid, was gowned in pale blue chiffon over pink satin, and carried pink carnations. Little Miss Marjorie Walker, niece of the bride, made a pretty little flower girl, frocked in white with pink and satin trimmings, and carried a basket of flowers. Robert Phillmore of London, cousin of the bride, acted as best man. Rev. W. W. Williams of Springfield, performed the ceremony, after which a buffet lunch was served.

The happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto and Buffalo, the bride wearing a navy tricotine suit and pretty flowered hat. The presents were numerous and beautiful, consisting of silver, china, cut-glass, a check from the bride's parents, and flat silver from the groom's parents. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond barpin, to the pianist and bridesmaid, barpins; to the flower girl, a gold necklace; and to the best man, an onyx tiepin. Guests, numbering about 50, were present from Detroit, London, St. Thomas and Port Burwell.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hiepleh will reside on the groom's farm on the eighth concession of Malahide.

CHENOWTH—HAYWARD.

On Wednesday at 2 o'clock, June 6, a most interesting event took place on "Maple Shade Farm," Embro, when Miss Hannah Lucretia Hayward, only daughter of Mrs. G. A. Hayward, was united in marriage to Vernon Roy Chenowth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Chenowth of West Zorra, Rev. W. P. Lane officiating.

The bride looked winsome in a gown of white canton crepe with satin bertha, and carried a bouquet of roses and lily-of-the-valley. Entering the drawing-room to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Lane, the bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. G. N. Hayward, took her place in front of a bank of flowers and wedding bells.

After the ceremony the happy couple led the way to the drawing-room, prettily decorated with flowers, where a dainty luncheon was served. Then, amid showers of good wishes and confetti, they left by motor for Woodstock, the bride traveling in a navy tricotine suit with black picture hat. Their honeymoon trip will be up the St. Lawrence to Quebec. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm in West Zorra.

SHERWOOD—BENO.

The home of Mrs. George Chalmers, Tilbury, was the scene of a quiet ceremony on Wednesday, June 6, when her grandaughter, Lila Bernice, daughter of Mr. John Beno of Windsor, and the late Mrs. Beno of Tilbury, became the bride of Mr. Beryl Sherwood of Windsor. Rural Dean Dobson, who had also officiated at her parents' marriage, performed the ceremony in the presence of a few immediate relatives. There were no attendants. The bride was becomingly gowned in tan Canton crepe, and wore matching hat and cape for traveling. After a dainty repast, Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood left via the C.P.R. for Ingersoll, where the honeymoon will be spent. They will afterwards take up their residence in Windsor.

MINERS—DOWN.

Quantities of ferns, palms and summer flowers adorned the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Down, Duchess avenue, for the wedding of their daughter, Elsie Ethelwin and Bruce Miners of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Miners of Culloden, which took place Saturday at three o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Reycraft.

As the bridal party entered the drawing-room the wedding march was played by Miss Helen Foore, of Leamington, a cousin of the bride. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a becoming gown of cocoa crepe heavily beaded, and braided in blue, with pleated side panels. She carried a shower of Sunset roses; and her slippers and hose matched her gown.

Miss Maude Down was her sister's bridesmaid wearing a hand-drawn gown of cocoa shade, with touches of blue, and she carried Ophelia roses. Mr. Reginald Blosdale of London acted as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held, Mrs. Down, receiving with the bride and groom, wearing a gown of mauve alltyme crepe, with a corsage of orchids. A buffet supper was served, from tables dainty with flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Miners left later on a honeymoon which will be spent in Detroit. The bride donned for traveling a wrap and smart hat, the same shade as her gown. Upon their return they will reside at 771 Dufferin avenue.

The guests numbered forty, and among those from out-of-town were: The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Miners of Culloden; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Miners; Misses Agnes and Elsie Miners; Mr. and Mrs. Chet Miners; and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hollingshead, all of Culloden; Mr. Norman Moyer of Embro; Miss Florence Armdrust of Welland; Mrs. C. Poore of Park Hill, the bride's grandmother; Mr. Minard Poore and Mrs. Jessie Elliott of Park Hill; and Miss Dora Sherrett of Hensall.

TIMMS—CARBETT.

On Wednesday, June 6, a quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at the parsonage, Fullarton, when Mary Rhea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Carbett of Carlingford was united in marriage to Mr. W. Russell Timms of St. Marys, the Rev. Mr. Colling officiating. The young couple left on a trip to Niagara Falls and on their return will reside in St. Marys.

JONES—MacNEILL.

One of the prettiest of the June weddings took place Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in St. Johns, when Marjory Isabella, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. G. MacNeill, was married to Chesley Linton Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Jones of this city. Rev. Creasy of the Methodist Church, St. Johns, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Gray MacNeill, wore a graceful gown of white charmeuse and georgette, with a wedding veil caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lily-of-the-valley. Ferns and palms and quantities of summer flowers were banked in the drawing-room, making a pretty setting for the ceremony.

The bride was unattended, and the wedding march was played by Miss Jessie Perrin, gowned in Alice blue georgette crepe, with beads to match. During the signing of the register, Miss Wanza Jones, a sister of the groom, sang "O Promise Me." Miss Jones wore a gown of orchid shade crepe. The groom's gift to the bride was a platinum barpin set with diamonds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, Mrs. MacNeill receiving with the bride and groom, wearing a gown of black georgette with touches of old gold. Mrs. Jones also received, gowned in black panne velvet, beaded in cut steel. A wedding supper was served, and later the guests, numbering 50, enjoyed dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones left later by motor on a wedding trip, which will be spent in Muskoka, the bride traveling in a smart navy blue suit, with a gray overblouse and gray hat. Upon their return they will reside at 371 Maitland street.

SPALDING—RAYMENT.

An attractive June wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rayment in Thames street, Chatham, Friday afternoon, when their daughter, Isabel McKerrall, was united in marriage to James R. Spalding, son of Mrs. William Spalding of Perth. Rev. A. E. Jones, pastor of Victoria Avenue Methodist Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of guests.

The bride, gowned in white silk crepe de chine and radium lace, and wearing a tulle veil with orange blossoms, entered the drawing-room with her father. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Mr. G. Clemens, to the strains of which the bride passed up through an aisle of pretty ribbons held by eight girl friends in pretty summer frocks. Miss Hazel Hicks, the bridesmaid, wore peach taffeta. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Percy Spalding, and during the signing of the register, Mr. Harold Shillington sang "Because, Dear Heart." Mr. and Mrs. Spalding left on a trip to Toronto and Montreal, the latter traveling in a costume of sand flat crepe, with touches of purple, sand cloak and French hat. Upon their return, they will reside at 228 Thames street, Chatham. Guests were present from London, Bay City, Detroit, Perth, Almonte, Toronto, Thamesville, Blenheim and Windsor.

ELLIOTT—KELSO.

A pretty June wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, 29 Langarth street, Wednesday, at 3:30, when Donalda Kelso, youngest daughter of Mrs. Janet and the late Rev. L. Kelso, was married to Dr. Victor Elliott, son of Rev. and Mrs. Elliott of Belleville. Rev. W. Elliott, father of the groom, assisted by Rev. J. C. Robinson of Wyoming, performed the ceremony. The bride looked charming in a graceful gown of white canton crepe, embroidered with pearls. Following a wedding breakfast, Dr. and Mrs. Elliott left for points east, the bride traveling in a becoming navy blue suit and a smart hat of sand shade. Dr. and Mrs. Elliott will be at home at their home, 400 Herkimer street, Hamilton, July 1.

The BOOKSHELF

"DESOLATE SPLENDOR."

(Michael Sadlier. The MacMillan Company.)

One bone of contention which the Canadian reader will find with Michael Sadlier, the author of "Desolate Splendor," a very fine book, recently published by the MacMillan Company, is his idea that any girl could be brought up in this country as the daughter of a professor at the University of Toronto and emerge with a vague notion that baseball was the national sport of Canadians. According to the author, this is practically all the knowledge of Canada that Viola Marvell, during the course of an intelligent 'teens, was able to absorb.

But against a rather shocking lack of knowledge of Canadian girls, with their well-known spirit of independence, resourcefulness and general wide-awakeness, Michael Sadlier gives a fascinating picture of the queer family party of the English Pletherns in their county home, a picture mysteriously shadowed on the side by the weird figure of Mrs. Plethern in her fearsome devil's tower, and heightened on the other side by the colorful career of her son and heir.

Mrs. Plethern becomes a most fascinating study. Here is a telling sentence in description of her. Imagine a nature of whom this was a casual description: "She became almost garrulous, urging her speech to the staccato canter of a plumed funeral horse, flogged to indecent haste by a hearse-load of drunken mutes." With the absolute hideousness of the picture, Mrs. Plethern becomes a character whom the reader could readily associate with the black arts of mediaeval times.

In contrast to his fashioning of this old woman of evil designs, the author is capable of scenes of rare beauty. As part of the setting for Mrs. Plethern and her "Devil's Candle," as the tower was called, he gives this: "So it was that while the nineteenth century died, and the twentieth struggled through its teething, the beeches still climbed the slope in solemn file and the great grille, strung like a wisp of mammoth lace across the sky, still closed with the serenity of lovely uselessness the avenue that sloped upward across the park of Morvane to the west.

"Desolate Splendor" is a book of vast interest, of strange contrasts, of sunlit pictures of health and happiness by day, of evil scheming toward vile plans by night, melodramatic, yet with a lovely romance, and beyond all, the study of the remarkable family of Pletherns, with the strangely placid and immature nature of the Canadian girl, penetrating their midst.

PALESTINE SHRINE.

The Palestine Shrine is planning a picnic to Springbank to be held on July 9, when the big feature will be a baseball match between the girls' team and the officers' team of the Shrine. Last year the girls' team won the cup offered for a similar match. And if they are successful in carrying it off three times, the cup will go into their possession. The officers' team, however, will put up a good fight for it this year.

Canadian Golf and Golfers

By Miss Cecil Leitch,

Canadian Ladies' Open Champion, 1921.

Thrice Winner of British Ladies' Open Championship.

After returning from Canada last fall, I walked over two London courses—Roehampton and Addington. Both were in wonderful condition, with dry fairways, and putting greens true and free from weed. As I wandered round these courses, watching numerous golfers enjoying the game under ideal weather conditions, my thoughts went back to Canada, whose ever-increasing army of golfers is obliged to give up the game for five months each winter. Golfers in our country who complain of heavy ground, worm casts, and other minor difficulties found on inland courses during the winter, little realize how fortunate they are to be able to play at all during this period.

In most parts of Canada, the only golf to be had, once the snow arrives, is indoor practice. This being so, one cannot but marvel at the high standard of play in your country. During the five months I spent there last year, I had many opportunities of watching most of your best lady golfers, and I was surprised to find how much they had improved since I saw them on my previous visit.

Secret of Canadian Progress.

There can be little doubt that the inclusion of visitors in the entry for the Canadian ladies' open championship is in no small way responsible for this rapid improvement. This "opening" of the championship is proof of the keenness, sporting spirit, and hospitality of your lady golfers. Rather than have a "Canadian born" open champion, they welcome strangers, and are only too willing to gain experience by trying their skill against all-comers.

Knowing the splendid sporting spirit which prevails amongst your players, I have no hesitation in saying that they would rather have this chance of playing against the world's best players and lose the cup than have the title kept in Canada by a player not wholly worthy of it.

But Canada promises very shortly to have many formidable exponents. During the open event at Toronto, Miss Ada Mackenzie and Miss Sidney Peplar put up magnificent fights against Miss Alexa Stirling. Miss Mackenzie is well known in British golfing circles, having competed in the ladies' open championships at Newcastle, County Down, in 1920, and again at Turnberry in 1921. In the latter year, she also took part in the Scottish ladies' championship, and did sterling work as a member of the Scottish international team. Her game benefited considerably by practice and experience gained during these two visits.

Cummings and His Pupils.

Miss Peplar is a young and promising player, a pupil of George Cummings, the popular and successful professional of the Toronto Club. It is interesting to note in passing that Cummings was originally attached to the Dumfries Golf Club, and was one of the first professionals to go to Canada. His interest in the game, especially in that of lady players is most marked, and he is always ready to give a helpful hint to anyone playing below form.

Another player whose name left a most favorable impression is Mrs. Hope Gibson of the Hamilton Club. In the open event, she met Mrs. Gavin, the ultimate winner, in the first round, but the following week, she was the worthy winner of the Canadian ladies' close championship in the year of its institution.

It is hoped that the above-mentioned and other Canadian players will be able to compete in the British ladies' open championship in the near future. Should they do so, they will be found difficult opponents to beat, provided the weather conditions are not too unpleasant.

Our Children

COMMENCEMENT SPEECHES.

"They're something awful," groaned the high school lad: "I'm in the orchestra, so I've sampled a few. They're strong on the 'commence,' but very shy on the ending.

"Last June there was a bird who talked for one solid hour and never said anything. We were bored stiff. Why do they pick those birds, anyway? Seems as though they said to themselves that it was their last chance to bore us, so they'd do it good and plenty."

I thought of the long hot hours I had sat on the platform and listened to the dreary, solemn speeches of the "birds" that "bored" them. Truly, they had been awful!

To the graybeard facing the youngsters, so new to the world, the dawn of adolescence still upon them, the occasion is one of responsibility and inspiration and opportunity. He has come over the road they are glimpsing in the distance. He would warn and advise and admonish.

What child ever heeds warnings and advice? Ever listened with respect to words of caution? They are neither weary nor afraid. They fret at restraint and race to adventure. Impersonal generalities never touch them save to irritate.

Youth deals in concretes. "This is what happened," means more to them than all the philosophies ever dreamed of. It is the true stories young graduates need. Why not let them have them instead of the "thirdly" and "fourthly" and "finally," and "just one word more and I am through."

The boy who lives in our house came home the other day prancing and breathless. "We had a special assembly today. Mrs. Robinson told us stories about her brother, Theodore Roosevelt. Great! She told us about his obstacle race.

"The kids followed Theodore. He said they must go 'over or under or through, never around.' He started by jumping down a 15-foot sandbank and ended with a dive over an unfinished bathhouse.

"If you balked at any obstacle you had to give up and go back home. She didn't want to give up so near the end, so, skinned and bruised and in tatters, she dived after him, missed, and stood on her head on the wrong side of the little-house. The thirty kids cheered her and made more noise than a presidential convention. Great!

"We missed 'chem' almost. We were so excited that we forgot it was our day on the first floor, and trailed to the fourth teacher, too. Then we trailed down again, but everybody was good-natured and we made up time."

"How long did Mrs. Robinson talk?"

"An hour and a quarter, and we thought it was 15 minutes."

Clever lady. We never met her, but we recommend her notion of a high school speech to those who find themselves on the platform at commencement.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe, and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts, and every blackhead will be gone. Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores, and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of peroxine powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.—Advt.

Sanardo, Geers Up, Breaks Mark

Associated Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 10.—Edward Frank (Pop) Geers, the idol of the harness turf, and his champion pacer Sanardo gave an exhibition against time at the exhibition park track here yesterday, and broke the record made by Dan patch on the same track in 1905. Sanardo covered the mile in 2:06¼, clipping a quarter of a second off the Dan Patch record, which was 2:06½. Sanardo's feat was accomplished in adverse weather conditions. The track was said to be several seconds slow.

WESTMINSTER HOSP. BEATEN 3--2 BY R. C. R.

Exhibition Tilt Produces Fast and Clean Football Contest.

Westminster Hospital lost an exhibition game, 3-2 to the R. C. R. Saturday. The hospital team won the toss and selected to take advantage of the hill. The R. C. R. center forward set the ball in motion and Egan of the hospital team secured possession and carried the ball into the R. C. R. territory. The R. C. R. goalie had an anxious time for the first 15 minutes, he being called upon to stop shots from all angles. Egan shook the crossbar with a beauty and Peacock caught the rebound but his shot struck the upright. The R. C. R. carried the play to the other end of the field and Minshall, the hospital goalie, was called upon to save which he did in good style. After fifteen minutes play, Watkins opened the scoring for the R. C. R. Half time score, R. C. R., 1; Westminster, 0.

The second half was as keenly contested as the first. The hospital team tried hard to equalize and their efforts were soon rewarded, Egan doing the needful. Both teams were playing in cup tie fashion and both goalkeepers were kept busy. Watkins scored No. 2 for the R. C. R., but this success was short lived as Hyde of the hospital team beat the R. C. R. with a hot shot from a difficult angle. In the remaining few minutes to be played both teams tired hard for the winning goal which came to R. C. R. five minutes from time. Watkins scoring his third goal for his side in a scrimmage before Minshall, who had no chance to save, and certainly could not be blamed for the hospital team's defeat. It was a good clean game and the hospital team are unanimous in the opinion that the R. C. R.' are one of the best sporting teams in the district.

The hospital line-up was as follows: Minshall, Davies, Davies, Henderson, Noble, Warren, Smith, Bishop, Peacock, Egan, Hyde and Graham.

Gross of Kitchener Hits Homer in First Frame With Bases Loaded.

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, June 9.—Guelph Outfitters, last year's Ontario junior baseball champions, added another win to their 1923 string of victories in the Inter-County Intermediate League here this afternoon when they defeated Kitchener, 8 to 6, in a hard hitting game which was featured by three home runs.

Gross, the Kitchener catcher, won his way into the baseball hall of fame by clouting out a circuit smash in the first frame with the bases loaded, and his team crossed the plate five times in the first inning. The locals came back with four runs in their half of the first and outhit the visitors for the balance of the game. Kaine and Richardson of the Outfitters also drove out homers during the afternoon. ALBY ROBINSON GIVES WOODSTOCK BIG BILL

Wednesday Afternoon Billy Bishop and Jean Burgen Get On Pat Pointers Trail.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, June 10. — The regular weekly half-holiday on Wednesday will be celebrated with a big afternoon of sports. A program of horse racing, including a free-for-all, a 2:17 trot or pace and a 2:30 trot of pace, has been arranged, and a large number of the best horses in Ontario are already entered.

In the free-for-all the race-goers will witness the renewal of the battle between Pat Pointer, the Michigan horse, and Billy Bishop, who are among the entries. The Pointer horse stepped over the Simcoe track, it is said, the other day in 2:08½, and, with Billy Bishop and Jean Bingen both on his trail here, it is expected a great struggle will take place.

For some time past the fans have been discussing a game of ball between the junior and senior Southern Ontario League teams, and the controversy as to supremacy will be settled when a game will be staged prior to the running off of the horse racing events. Alby Robinson is promoting the meet.

Inside Golf
By George O'Neil.

"Golf's Greatest Teacher," Says Harry Vardon—"O'Neil Made Me Champion," Says "Chick" Evans.

While I regard the irons as the first clubs the player should learn to use, it is commonly assumed that golf begins with the driver, and since that is where practically everybody starts, and anyhow since the most satisfying shot in golf is the long, straight drive, we will start with the long wood club. The first thing the player should get right is the proper place to hold this club. There is no fixed place and, contrary to the belief of some players, the ball will not go far in proportion to the distance up the shaft, toward its upper end, the club is held; that is, getting your hands away out to the end of the shaft will not in itself yield the longest drive, though many players so grasp the club. It is best to hold it a few inches down on the leather. The right place is found in this way: Take hold of the club at a point where you can feel the head balance like a weight against your finger muscles. After the stance is taken the club should be swung back and forth over the ball. The player should keep the club in motion after he has taken his stance. Keeping the club moving promotes balance and rhythm.

SHELBY TRYING HARD TO BE GOOD

Edict Curbing Wide Open Beginnings Obeyed.

Copyright.

Shelby, Mont., June 9.—Shelby was doing her best today to be nice and lawful so that Jack Dempsey may box Tommy Gibbons here July 4. The little oil town which jumped into prominence when it was picked as the site for the heavyweight battle and which later became famous for a revival of old frontier days, has nothing more interesting to talk about now than chorus girls of a burlesque show who go about the alkali caked streets in knickerbockers and silk stockings.

"Them's only ads," the cow punchers in front of one of the cafes remarked as the girls paraded.

The burlesque, advertised as a girly show, is to open Sunday night in a big tent back of main street and the tickets are selling fast. Mayor Jim Johnson, six feet three and 243 pounds a cow puncher for 33 years until he hit oil to become wealthy, was back today after a visit. He told the boys there was no fooling they had to be good.

Hard-boiled cowboys and grizzled old oil drillers, accustomed to doing things their way, could not see how it was anybody's business how Shelby operated.

"Turk," the town's leading bar keep, was particularly irate.

"In the old days we used to rope and hoss them meddlers, "Turk said. "It wasn't so long ago that an agent headed in to do a little fussing. Outside the cars was a bunch of punchers with the ropes ready to hoss him and he was on the train again when she rolled out. I believe in hossin's"

Some state prohibition agents were invited here last night but they failed to appear, they would have found little, as in all the cafes, dance halls and saloons, it was gloomily announced. "Beer or water for the angels and none of 'ems no good."

Some of the old-timers were taking the thing philosophically. "When a hoss is standing you can't tell how he is going to buck," one of them said. "When it is quiet it is not a sign he ain't going to rear up and jump."

While all the hordes of strangers are coming in and looking mostly for entertainment, the natives are more intent on making money and singing praises of Tommy Gibbons. There is no doubt that this is a Gibbons' town, they look upon him as a sure winner.

Gibbons had another quiet day yesterday. He did seven miles on the road and then went out shooting in the afternoon. He is better with his fists, however, than with a .22 rifle.

The building boom is continuing. There were buildings today on empty lots of yesterday and there will be others day by day, the arena is being pushed with almost unbelievable speed and the tickets are going rapidly. Tents large and small, fitted up like dormitories with army cots and beds, are springing up all over town. It seems that preparations are being made for the A. E. F., but Shelby thinks it will have none too many.

In the words of Alfred Keene, one of the cot and blanket merchants, "They all think we are suckers, that we should lose money, but we are to make the money certainly."

Charles "Whitey" Glazner.

To be dumped from a pennant contending team to a hopeless tail-end outfit is a tough blow for any hurler. That's the fate suffered by Whitey Glazner. He has been swapped with "Cotton" Tierney by the Pirates to the Phillies for Lee Meadows and Johnny Rawlings. Glazner had been with the Pirates three years. He won eleven and lost twelve games last year.

Tom Gibbons (left) and his trainer, "Buck" Pape.

Tommy Gibbons, the Minnesota mauler who will swap wallops with one J. Dempsey, shipbuilder and heavy champ, at Shelby, Mont., July 4, has gone into training for the joust. Gibbons and his trainer, "Buck" Pape, have set up quarters in Shelby in the mayor's home.

BAR PUNCH-FACED IRONS AT TROON

Hagen Thinks Change Won't Affect U. S. Chances

RULE NOT NEW

British Officials' Action, However, Unexpected.

By WALTER HAGEN.
Copyright.
Special Cable to The Advertiser.

Troon, June 10.—Just as I foreshadowed, the British authorities have barred punch-faced irons. They came to the decision late last night. Today we have been having faces filed to take off rough edges. First thought I should need new clubs, but not so. All the ruling means is nothing shall be on the club to bite the ball, and faces may be left rough.

My only complaint, and other Americans take the same view, is that the decision was not made before. We had been playing all tournaments with the clubs we brought from home. Until now their legality has not been questioned.

It must not be thought the authorities have introduced any new rules. To my knowledge it has been in force for two years, but ambiguously worded. To Americans accustomed to play with punched clubs, the meaning is not clear. Personally I don't think our prospects are affected, indeed probably improved. The danger with the punched club is to be short, and the trouble at Troon is to get up to the hole. Thus, I think our representatives will continue to play boldly to the flag and will actually arrive there.

The changed conditions won't spoil our prospects; in fact, we shall be all the keener to show that we are real golfers and not players who depend for our success on mechanical devices.

Today we are all resting and it is just as well. The course is swept by a gale of wind and rain. The weather-wise say we shall get fine conditions after this. Kirkwood and I have had another match with Duncan and Mitchell on the new course at Donnyton Moore, on the outskirts of Glasgow, and this time won one up, thanks chiefly to my partner's fine play.

The second round we were one down after eighteen holes. The scores being: Mitchell 73, Duncan 74, Kirkwood 75, myself 76. How well Kirkwood played afterwards may be judged from his score of 72, next best Mitchell 78, Duncan 80, and myself 81.

LOCAL KNIGHTS OF GRIP TIE NEWBURY TOSSERS 7--7

The U. C. T. Ball Club of London motored to Newbury and engaged the boys of that town in a friendly and exceptionally well-played ball game, which featured some lively hitting and smart fielding on the part of each club. The U. C. T. led until the 7th, when the high wind caused one of the gardeners to misjudge a fly ball, enabling Newberry to to tie the score, 7—7, which was not broken during the remainder of the game.

Fred Johnston distinguished himself on the mound for the U. C. T., pitching a tidy game, and the rest of the boys did well, each contributing a hit or more and fielding well. Newberry has a smart team and a return game in this city is being arranged.

The line up:

Newberry — Hendershott, Connolly, Babcock, Armstrong, Bayne, Beattie, Holman, Babcock, p.; Logan, c.

U. C. T.—McLean, Pitt, Brown, O. Malloy, Rowe, Farrow, A. Smith, Johnson, p.; Pierce, c.

ST. MARYS ALERTS TRIM LOCAL LACROSSE TEAM

BASEBALL POOLS GOING STRONG

Lots of Gambling At Parks Makes Owners Shudder.

By JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright.

New York, June 9.—Lots of gambling is going on today at the ball games. The owners are not exactly dodging the issue, but they are shuddering mentally whenever it is mentioned.

Gambling has increased ten-fold with the forming and operating of the baseball pool; it was the cheap pool that took everything from a penny on up that, more than anything else, started the gambling on baseball games.

Pools have been operated among school boys for a penny a throw and among office boys for a nickel a chance. Such pools must be honest or there would have been young Americans going around with black eyes. But the professional pools being operated today are biggest frauds in the United States not exen excepting wildcat oil and mining stock schemes. Such pools were so declared long before Commissioner Landis denounced them, and as is generally the case, even though the buyers of chances know they are being swindled, they keep biting at the hook because the individual cost is small and because they all hope sometime to be the one to get a little something back, maybe.

Much stress has been laid upon the trade between the New York Nationals and Boston, as being McGraw's first move in getting the Giants down to player limit for world series competition. Rather belated is that comment. The teams of the National League have been down to the limit since May 15 at which time they hurriedly reduced their rosters from 40 to 25 players upon a peremptory order from Landis who said that the June 15 limit ordered by the majors, was not operative because the minors had not agreed to it for some reason. This order received little publicity but the National League rushed changes through so fast that the Giants lost a promising pitcher in the scramble and had to send other players to smaller leagues without apology and by the quickest means possible.

The June 15 limit is a myth. May 15 was the limit and it has always been. Not more than 25 players will be allowed with each major league club from now till August 31 when the naming of players for the world series must take place. The Giants have got pepper at least in Gowdy. Perhaps that is the reason why McGraw may have taken him, for the Giants are not a talkative lot on the field with the exception of the pidgin English hurled by the pacific coast traveler Kelly at first.

The National League is morose over the failure to crowd the Giants down. The descent of Brooklyn may prove as swift as the rise of that team was phenomenal. Pittsburgh seems to be at a standstill. Chicago seems without recourse, due largely to accidents. Cincinnati's gamble on a slow moving team with fair pitchers has not won any place in the first three. St. Louis is like the clouds whose course is shaped by shifting winds. The only hope they have is that the Giants slump. None of them have been able to overcome the difference in the percentage points which separates them from the leaders and which is greater today than it was at this time in 1922. That tells how little the National League really achieved when it moved players here and there in the past winter to strengthen competition.

WATERLOO WIN START.

Kitchener, June 10.—The Waterloo Cricket Club won their initial start in the Western Ontario League when they defeated the Preston team, 73 to 67 in the Western Ontario Cricket League at the Waterloo Oval, Saturday afternoon.

As the score indicates the game was a close, well-played one, though the Waterloo Club did not take their full inning, two of their batsmen not performing. Seagram and Downing were the best for the winners with the bat.

SATURDAY RESULTS.
L. and D. Free Press Cup.

Westminster Hospital 2, R. C. R. 3.

Only one competitive association football game was down for decision in London Saturday. St. Andrew's Society F. C. faced their near and dear rivals, First Western Ontario Regiment F. C., on Springbank soccer gridiron in a first round cup tie for the Free Press Cup, emblematic of the L. and D. F. A. championship, the tilt ending in a 1—1 draw.

Westminster Hospital F. C. staged an exhibition encounter with the Royal Canadian Regiment aggregation on Westminster Hospital ground, and Royals, fresh from their recent 4—0 L. and D. F. A. cup tie victory over St. Thomas Caledonian F. C., nosed out the Westminsterites by the odd goal in five.

By TOM STRICKLAND.

Springbank soccer gridiron looked in good condition when the above teams turned out in a first-round L. and D. Free Press Cup tie. The breeze was out of the northwest. W. O. R. won the toss, and decided to face the wind aand sun, which seemed a foolish decision. Dicks set the ball in motion for the Saints at 4 p.m. After five minutes' give-and-take play Dicks sent the ball into the net, but the whistle had gone for offside. Perkins, from a good position, sent high over the bar.

Colvin while in a good position kept the ball too long and shot past. Peebles was having some nice runs down the right wing, but his crosses went for nothing. Glover had a good full-length save from Dicks.

Ashton gave away a corner. Peebles, taking the kick, sent across a beauty. It landed over beside Johnston, who gave Glover no chance to save. Twenty minutes of the first half had gone now. Colvin gave Adamson a hard shot to save, but Jock was as sound as the Dumbarton Rock. Wilson gave away a corner, but the W. O. R.'s made nothing of it.

Play was of a fairly fast order, but the Saints' forwards have played better than they were showing up this half. Colvin sent across a lovely pass, but Gellatly, with only Adamson to beat, shot high over the bar.

From the free kick the referee gave a foul against the Saints, which did not go down very well, as nobody seemed to understand what it was for. From the line one could not see the reason for it, unless Knight touched the ball twice to Adamson. The free kick for the W. O. R.'s off the six-yards line was cleared after a few anxious moments. Gellatly gave Adamson a great swerving shot to save. Perkins a few minutes later gave Jock a hard shot to clear. At the other end Glover gave away a corner in clearing from Peebles, but it turned out fruitless. Adamson was hotly pressed by Perry while clearing from a foul, and although the W. O. R. got the ball only two yards out from goal he lifted it high over the bar.

The Black and Whites were forcing matters now, Ashton being up in the Saints' half giving his front-line men a hand. Peebles was having some good runs, his speed coming in handy for the Saints and spelling danger for the soldiers. Perkins got on the run, but Wilson drew him up, giving away a foul for hands. Half-time result: St. Andrews 1, W. O. R. 0.

Second Half.

Perkins set the ball going for the second half, the breeze being a little stronger than it was in the first period Adamson was early called upon to save two good shots from Perkins. The Saints had a burstaway, but Glover ran out and cleared with Dicks in close attendance.

The Blues were having their innings now, Glover having a couple of hot shots to handle before relief came. Perkins was making some good openings, and from one of his passes Perry shot too high.

Wilson and Knight were both putting up a stout defence, both kicking well. Foul throws were the order of the day. They seemed to be rather plentiful. After 26 minutes' play Perry, with a great ground shot, gave Adamson no chance to save.

The Saints got a move on now, Dicks and McIntosh calling on Glover to save. Colvin and Perkins at the other end gave Adamson two hard shots to hold. On two occasions Dicks shot high over the bar when he might have sent the Saints on their way rejoicing. The game was fought out in a clean hard way right up to the last minute, the final whistle finding both teams level.

Full time score:

St. Andrews, 1; W. O. R., 1.

Neither side could grumble at the result, a draw being all it was worth. The backs and goalkeepers on both sides played a great game. The forwards on both sides were at fault in their shooting. It may be laid down to the wind and light ball.

The halves all over played a fairly good game. McIntosh showing up particularly well.

Line-ups:

St. Andrew's Society—F. C. Adamson, Wilson, Knight, McIntosh, Brewer, Hay, Peebles, Darroch, Dick, Mitchell and Johnston.

First Western Ontario Regiment F. C. —Glover, Herring, Ashton, Croot, Sumner, Faulkner, Grover, Gellatly, Perkins, Perry and Colvin.

ECHOES ARE HEARD AT ST. THOMAS OF SUIT FOR $40,000

Jurors in Breach of Promise Case Examined Before Magistrate.

COUNSEL PROTESTS

C. St. Clair Leitch, For Defendant, Says No Order For Examination.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

St. Thomas, June 11.—Echoes of the recent Pinfold-Honsinger $40,000 breach of promise suit were heard when eight of the jurors in the case were examined before Magistrate C. F. Maxwell as master in chancery in city police court today. It is expected some of the evidence will assume the form of re-echoes when the appeal for a new trial is taken to Osgoode Hall by W. H. Smythe, K.C., counsel for Mrs. Rose Pinfold. Although Colin St. Clair Leitch, counsel for Benjamin F. Honsinger, defendant in the recent action, did not act officially in the interests of any of the witnesses called, he raised most strenuous objections to the examination as a whole, and interrupted Mr. Smythe throughout the hearing.

Says No Order.

In the first place, Mr. Leitch objected to the examination on the ground that there was no order for it. "I am attending merely because of an appointment served on me," he explained.

"There is a motion pending before the divisional court (the appellate division) for a new trial. These gentlemen are being examined as witnesses," Mr. Smythe declared in giving his reasons why the hearing should proceed.

Mr. Smythe assured Mr. Leitch that the witnesses would not be examined as to discussion or strife which took place in the jury room in regard to evidence given at the trial. "I will take the evidence subject to the objection raised by Mr. Leitch," Magistrate Maxwell ruled.

Not Clients.

"These witnesses are not my clients," Mr. Leitch declared. "I would ask that the other witnesses be excluded," said Mr. Smythe, when William Demeray, who had been called as a juror to the supreme court at the session of the court early in the year, but who had not been on the Pinfold-Honsinger jury, was called.

"Why?" queried Mr. Leitch, "they are his own witnesses. This is not an examination for discovery. He had no right to exclude anyone."

"I don't see any reason why they shouldn't be excluded," the examiner decided.

"I don't think you have any jurisdiction," Mr. Leitch retorted. Demeray was put on his oath. He is a resident of Aylmer.

"Did you have any conversation with E. E. Martin a few days before the trial?" Mr. Smythe inquired.

"Yes," witness replied.

Was Martin sworn on the jury?" counsel pursued.

"Yes."

"What was he speaking about??"

Not On Case.

"I didn't think there was anything to it. I was not on the case."

"When did he say this?" Demeray was questioned.

"A week before the case, in his store, on Talbot street, in Aylmer."

"What did he say?"

"He said he didn't think she would get anything," Demeray declared.

"Did Mr. McKenna speak to you?" Mr. Smythe queried.

"Yes," answered Demeray.

"He said he didn't think that she (Mrs. Pinfold) would get anything."

"Did he say: 'Ben has paid enough?'" Mrs. Pinfold's counsel continued.

"Something to that effect," replied Demeray.

"Anything else?"

"Nothing in particular."

John J. Sinclair of Rodney, one of the jurymen, was called.

"Did anyone attempt to discuss the case with you?" Mr. Smythe began.

Gives Negative Reply.

Sinclair gave a negative reply.

"Did you know Malin Hale?" Sinclair was asked. "Just as a juryman," the witness answered.

He knew Gilbert, another juryman, in the same capacity.

These two men were in the room and were asked to stand."

"Did either of these men say anything detrimental to Mrs. Pinfold or her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence, not brought out in evidence?" Mr. Smythe wanted to know.

"I could not say," Sinclair replied.

"Did you hear anyone say, 'to hell with the notes, let's figure how many times he should be with her,?" Mr. Smythe queried.

"Well, I heard a remark about how many times he was with her," said witness.

"Did you know it was not in the evidence?"

"Yes."

"I told Mr. Phillips (J. P. Phillips) Toronto private detective employed by Mrs. Pinfold at the time, about it."

Didn't Hear Anything.

Tyler Leason, another juryman, declared he knew Malin Hale as a juryman, but didn't hear the latter say anything against Mrs. Pinfold.

Leason admitted he had told Phillips something about some remark, but was not positive as to what it was. He said he could not bring it to mind.

"Why did you speak to Mr. Phillips?" Mr. Smythe asked.

"Phillips asked me," replied Leason.

Mr. Smythe's examination of Leason did not meet with the approval of Attorney Leitch, who, turning to Mr. Smythe, remarked: "If I was a witness I would not allow you to treat me like that."

"How would you prevent me, as a witness or counsel, either?" inquired Mr. Smythe, adding, "I am not afraid of you or anyone else."

Henry Dadson, ex-juryman, did not remember any statements he had made, or had heard anyone else make about the case.

"Didn't you say you didn't belong to that 'bunch of black crooks'?" Mr. Smythe asked him.

"Not in the jury room."

"Anywhere else?" pursued counsel.

Didn't Remember.

"I don't remember," Dadson told him.

"If you made the remark that you didn't belong to that bunch of black crooks, were you referring to the jury?" Attorney Smythe inquired.

THE KIRK IN CONCLAVE

President McKay Submits Plan To Prevent Further Breach On Union Struggle.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Port Arthur, June 11.—The debate on church union reached high tide in the Presbyterian General Assembly here today, and new developments in an effort to reach a compromise are being planned.

President McKay of Manitoba College, recognizing that there is an irreconcilable difference of opinion in the assembly and in the church, and that a schism, possibly of considerable magnitude, is impending, s scheduled to submt a plan to lesse the breach as much as possible.

Dr. McKay's proposal takes the form of an amendment to the amendment, and is in seven sections as follows:

(1) That this assembly recognizses there is an irreconcilable difference of opinion within the church on the question of union with the negotiating churches, and that we have come to the parting of the ways.

(2) That we may part in the spirit of Christ which is the spirit of love, we allow time for rancors to abate and new viewpoints to emerge and now enter upon a period of five years of the closest possible co-operation with the other negotiating churches, looking toward the completion of union with them at the assembly of 1931.

Propaganda Cease.

(3) That from this time all partisan propaganda cease and a representative union committee carry on a temperate campaign of education, in which formal statements of both sides of the question are presented on the printed page, and if need be, on the platform, every such presentation to be with the approval of the union committee until the assembly of 1928.

(4) That between the assembly of 1928, and that of 1929 wherever ten members of any congregation present a written request to the session a vote of the membership of the congregation shall be taken to determine whether or not it is to go into the United Church, the question to be determined by a majority of the membership of the congregation, the assembly to urge that wherever there is a pronounced majority on either side the congregation remain intact.

(5) That at the assembly of 1923 a commission of seven members shall be appointed, consisting of three members appointed by those who elect to remain out and three by the rest of the church, with a chairman appointed by the commission, or in the event of disagreement, by the chief justice of Canada, which commission shall determine what is the fair equity of each party in the common property of the church as it exists at that date.

Take Any Name.

(6)—That the part of the church which elects to remain out be freely conceded the right to take whatever name it desires, so long as it does not take the corporate name of this church.

(7)—That the commission present its report to the assembly of 1930, and that during the year following all necessary steps be taken so that the first meeting of the council of the United Church of Canada and of the assembly of those who elect to remain out (if there be such) may be held in 1931.

(8)—That the other negotiating churches be at once approached with the proposal that a united campaign for the deepening of the spiritual life of our people and the presentation of the missionary obligations of the church of Jesus Christ be begun this autumn, to extend over a period of five years, reaching its climax at the time of the assembly of 1928.

The opponents of church union are signing a protest against its consummation. In spirit, tone and verbiage it is reminiscent of other documents in the Presbyterian history, when members of the church have felt called upon to enter protest of the strongest kind.

Revised by Counsel.

The document was in the first instance prepared by a minister of the church in Toronto, and was afterwards carefully revised by legal council. Seventy-five ministers and elders have appended their names to the document up to the present. It will, of course, not be used if the present assembly does not take final action in the matter, and in any case will not be submitted until the final vote is taken, which will probably be today.

The document is in part as follows:

"We, the undersigned ministers and elders, commissioners to this general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, in our own name, and in the name of all who may choose to adhere to us, hereby record our dissent from our deliverance now come to. Further, considering that:

"(1)—The Presbyterian Church in Canada is a church of Christ, composed of certain four Presbyterian churches of the Dominion, that entered into a covenant of union in 1875, and of such additional persons as since then have chosen to unite themselves with it.

"(2) And further considering that the basis of union negotiated between the Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian churches contains very many features inconsistent with the standards of the church secured unto us by the aforesaid covenant of union of 1875.

"(3) And considering that the resolution adopted by the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, held in the city of Winnipeg in 1916, approving the said basis of union was beyond the power of that or any other general assembly.

"(4) And considering that the ministers met in this general assembly have come under a solemn engagement and now lie under said engagement to maintain and defend the government of the church by session, presbyteries, synods and general assemblies, and to follow no decisive course from the present order established in this church.

"(5) And considering that the elders met in this general assembly have come under a solemn engagement and now lie under it, to maintain and defend the government of the church by session, presbyteries, synods and general assemblies.

"(6) And considering further that it is beyond the power of this or any other general assembly to approve the proposed draft of legislation now approved and directed to be sought for by the prevailing party in this assembly.

Further Protest.

"We do further protest that the prevailing party in this general assembly by reason of their illegal action as aforesaid have subverted this assembly and have thereby in effect seceded from the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

"(7) And we do further protest that any or all such illegal acts of this general assembly shall have no force or effect in the church.

"(8) Blank.

"(9) And finally we do protest before the great God, the searcher of all hearts, that we and all those who shall adhere to us are not responsible for this threatened schism in the church or for any consequences which may flow from our enforced separation. In humble dependence on His grace and the guidance of the Holy Spirit, we give this our testimony. To Him we commend our cause, and we pray that in the days to come His richest blessing may rest upon the church of our fathers, for the advancement of His own glory, and the extension of the gospel of our Lord and Savior throughout the world, which church we are resolved by His help to maintain."

Attacks Combines.

At the opening of the assembly debate this morning the moderator recognized C. S. Macdonald of Brampton, formerly of Toronto, who for many years has been closely allied with the general work of the church.

"I am well aware that in the world of commerce there is a decided tendency to mergers and combinations, but I know, too, that governments consider them such a danger that they legislate against them," said Mr. Macdonald. "It seems a pity that we should desire to introduce into church affairs the most vicious feature of modern commerce.

"We have been told many times that our church is governed by presbyteries, synods and general assemblies and that we must accept the rule of these bodies. In fact, we are told it is wrong to refuse to recognize their authority. If we are wrong in this, what glorious company we are in.

"There would have been no Christianity if one man had not dared to resist the constituted religious authorities of his day and there would have been no Protestant church if Luther and Calvin and all the other religious reformers that followed them had not refused obedience to the constituted religious authorities of their day.

Argues Against Form.

"I am not offering any argument against church union, but rather against the form of union proposed and the arbitrary and unwarranted method used to force this union upon a large section of our people to whom it is not acceptable.

"I have never said that organic union is not a beautiful and worthy ideal; I have never at any time said that a union of the churches would not come to pass.

"Since the publication of the bills the growth of opposition to unions has been very great. I do not think there is any man in a better position to speak of the strength of the opposition to union than I am, and I know whereof I speak when I say that it is greater today by many thousands than it was eight years ago, or even one year ago, and is growing every week. There are many congregations, of which I know, where the situation has entirely changed during the last few months. The remarkable growth of the women's organizations opposing church union should be a warning to any who think that union can be forced through at the present time.

"The chairman of the union committee says there is nothing in the bills that is not already in the basis of union; I will not attempt to argue this point; the bills interpret to the people just what is the meaning and effect of the proposed union, and when our people have the opportunity of seeing this in its true light they do not want it. I do not wonder the chairman of the union committee says there must not be another vote of the people. His cause would be ruined if the people had a chance to vote."

Start Work on Stanley St. Paving After Long Delay

Gang of City Workmen Commence Tearing Up of Crushed Gravel Bed and Residents Rub Their Eyes in Surprise.

After a delay of three years, a period marked by disputes and deadlocks, the street railway right-of-way on Stanley street is to be paved at last in accordance with the plan laid three years ago, when the street was paved by the city. A working agreement has been reached between the railway company and the city, and preliminary work on the paving of the stretch was begun this morning.

Early in the day a gang of a dozen city workmen appeared on the scene, and the arduous task of tearing up the crushed gravel bed, packed almost solid by heavy traffic, was started. The first sounds of the pick on the hard roadbed brought several residents to their doors, and smiles of satisfaction were noted on many faces as the people realized that the trouble was over and the street was undergoing renovations that would render the passage of traffic safer and less bumpy.

It is expected that the paving of the 1,500-foot stretch will be completed in about ten days, and in the meantime the street will be kept clear of traffic. Beginning at midnight tonight, the Street Railway Company will start a gang of men to work putting in new ties and replacing the old-style groove rails with the more modern and safer T-rails.

The roadbed under the present tracks consists only of dirt and gravel, and a new roadbed of concrete will be constructed, reducing the possibility of the track dropping under continuous traffic, almost to the minimum.

Barriers were placed at the Horn street intersection to keep vehicles off the block, but several motorists evidently thinking that "someone had blundered," drove right through, only to be shooed back again by the track foreman.

POINTS OUT 6,000 CRIPPLED KIDDIES LIVE IN ONTARIO

A. Fitzgerald Asks Co-operation in Work at Rotary Luncheon.

EDUCATION NEEDED

Noted British Surgeon, Sir Robert Thorne, To Visit City.

Local interest in the War Memorial Children's Hospital, the assistance given by the Shriners in the follow-up work of the hospital and an address given by Arthur Fitzgerald, president of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and past president of the Windsor Rotary Club, combined to set the stage for the announcement of Dr. Ramsay at the Rotary Club luncheon in the Tecumseh House today of the arrival in the city Thursday of Sir Robert Horne, acknowledged to be Great Britain's foremost orthopedic surgeon.

Rotory has interested itself to a great extent in the care cure and education of crippled children and Dr. Ramsay explained that the principle upon which it worked was that held by Sir Robert Horne, that the cure of a child did not end with the success of the actual surgical process but that there must be education in order that them member might render the maximum amount of use.

Mr. Fitzgerald announced that at the coming Rotary Club conference in St. Louis this month the suggestion woulud be made that Rotary take over the International Society for Crippled Children in order to strengthen the movement.

"In Ontario alone, with its 3,000,000 of population," Mr. Fitzgerald said, " we have 6,000 crippled children. Data we have collected indicate that there are two crippled children under 16 for every 1,000 of the population."

He paid high tribute to the medical profession for their work in this connection.

"They are more self-sacrificing than any other profession. To the crippled children they give freely of their time. They don't ask for money"

According to Mr. Fitzgerald, London, together with Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and other cities, has been made a centre for the work of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. In many of the clubs, he explained, members pledged themselves to a big-brother care of the crippled children.

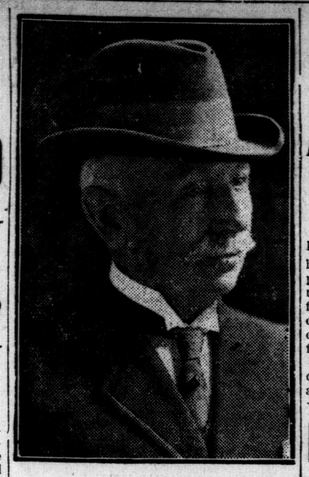

Owing to the illness of the president, Dean Sherwood Fox, the vice-president, E. V. Buchanan, was in the chair.

Hale and hearty, despite his 82 years, ex-Chief of Police Williams, for 43 years head of the London police force, and now a resident of Portland, Oregon, arrived in the city Saturday for a short visit with friends here.

When at the London Club, where he was having lunch with Magistrate Graydon, he told The Advertiser that he had never felt better, and that he was looking forward to a splendid time here. "Although," he said, "that where I was boss before, I am now under pettycoat government."

He spent the morning visiting acquaintances and enjoyed a half hour at the police station talking over old days with Chief Birrell and others whom he knew. He stated that he had noticed a remarkable change in the northern section of the city, it having been built up in an extraordinary manner in such a short time. Chief Williams is staying with E. L. Guillemont, 773 Wellington street.

Gandhi In Bombay Prison Reads His Bible and Spins

Released Fellow-Prisoner Declares India's Revolutionary Leader Not Altered in His Views.

Associated Press Despatch.

Bombay, June 11.—The Christian Bible is one of the books which Mahatma Gandhi reads regularly in his prison cell, according to a statement made here by Shankarlal Banker, a former fellow prisoner, released recently from the Yerevada jail. In addition to his reading, Gandhi spends four hours a day in spinning.

Mr. Banker said also that the prisoners are courteously treated by the authorities and are given all the food they needed. The doors of their cells are left open, and they are allowed to obtain books from the outside. Recently lights and bedsteads have been provided and Mr. Gandhi has been permitted to have a mosquito curtain. Hand spinning is permitted as a voluntary occupation.

"I have no message from Gandhi, either private or public," Banker said, "but I can say that his views have undergone no change. He swears by non-violence, Hindu-Moslem unity, and the removal of untouchability."

ENFORCE DRY LAWS IN PORT OF NEW YORK

Customs Officers' Action On Court Ruling Regarding Vessels.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, June 11.—The port of New York became officially dry at midnight last night when customs officers put into effect the supreme court ruling, prohibiting all merchant vessels, foreign and domestic, from possessing liquor within the three-mile limit.

Despite the fact that no definite instructions came from Washington, and despite the admitted inadequacy of their force, customs officials said the law would be rigidly enforced. It was stated that the 700 or 800 men in the customs service probably would not be able effectively to cope with their many new tasks.

Foreign shipowners, pending protests by their own governments, will meet the terms of the law, they announced.

BIG GRAIN SHIPMENT DUE AT PORT STANLEY

Manager Richards Reports Vessel Bringing 65,000 Bushels of Wheat.

Port Stanley's growing importance is further evidenced by the report today from General Manager J. E. Richards, that another grain vessel docks there tomorrow with 65,000 bushels of wheat for transmission through Ontario points.

Mr. Richards states that one other wheat consignment has been unloaded this year, but by no means as large as the one due in tomorrow. The grain will be unloaded at the elevator and quite capably handled to St. Thomas for further distribution.

The April report just submitted is very encouraging, the manager reports, and the passenger traffic is quite creditable, but would be much better, and will be, directly the warm weather arrives in earnest.

"We had a very good crowd yesterday," he said. "But the cool weather drives them home earlier than is customary."

FIVE GERMANS KILLED BY FRENCH TROOPS

Soldiers in Dortmund Allege Civilians Refused To Halt on Command.

Dortmund, June 11.—Five Germans were shot and killed by French troops here during the night for violation of the state of siege provision forbidding civilians to be on the streets after dark. The killings followed closely the assassination of two French officers by three German civilians here Sunday.

The acting mayor of the town and the head of the civil police have been arrested. The center of Dortmund is swarming with French troops, in an ugly mood.

A French account of the incident last night is that the Germans who were killed refused to halt at the command of a patrol.

A Durable Element

Why It Lasts Several Years

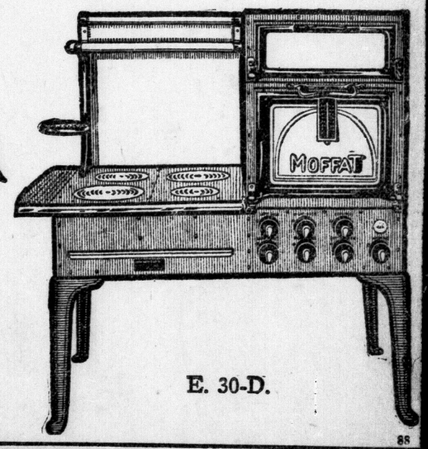

Note how the wire is coiled in the grooves in the plates. The plate, made of a very tough porcelain cement, is practically indestructible. It is not liable to warp, split, or break up. In the grooves are little lugs which keep the heating wires from touching the bottom of the grooves. This means that the moment you turn the switch the element gets red hot, because air circulates all around the wire. The heat is evenly distributed and goes direct to the cooking utensil; the result is quick, efficient and economical service. One of the proofs of Moffat superiority is the fact that there are over 50,000 Moffat Ranges in daily use.

THE elements on Moffats Electric Ranges are made to last for SEVERAL YEARS! You don't have to be replacing them every little while. In fact, the less you handle the elements the better. They don't "burn out" like electric light bulbs. They last for years under constant usage. Moffats elements have a record of 15 months continuous service, day and night, under a temperature of 1600 degrees Fahrenheit, while the highest temperature ever required for the very hottest cooking in a household range is only 400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Other Splendid Features

All new Moffat models have these up-to-date features; reciprocating switches, which turn either way, removable drip tray below elements, sliding doors covering all cut-outs; outside terminals fitted in porcelain bases, and protected from moisture and accident. All these at no increase in price!

INDECISION IS EVIDENT IN TRADE AND FINANCE

Buyers Are Waiting To Get Line On Consumption Needs.

NO SLUMP IN SIGHT

Prices For Farm Products Most Important At Present Time.

By STUART P. WEST.
Special Correspondent of The Advertiser. Copyright.

New York, June 9.—This is the in-between-seasons period, both in trade and finance, and the markets of the last week have moved with indecisiveness that is characteristic of such a time.

The mercantile reviews lay stress upon the fact that the buyers are holding off as long as they feel they can, in order to get a better line upon consumptive requirements. Had there been excessive stocking up with goods, this slackening of the new demand might have involved a much more important decline in prices than has actually occurred.

But the main point is that the rush of buying in the early part of the year was not buying to provide for future needs, but to replenish supplies, which for the previous year and a half had been allowed to fall dangerously low. Hence, the present condition in important lines is that consumers will before long be forced into the market to cover their wants for the third and fourth quarters of the year. In the meantime industrial plants have enough old business to keep them busy.

No Slump in Prospect.

Apart from the seasonal slowing down which always comes with the hot weather, there appears no likelihood even of a temporary slump between the time when old orders are used up and new orders are coming in to take their places.

Even in the steel trade, where until recently there was more doubt than in other directions, the situation is shaping itself in support of the prediction made some time ago by Judge Gary that while no boom was to be expected, business would continue in very fair volume for the remainder of the year at least.

Farmer Buying an Important Factor.

In former times the question of crops was uppermost at this particular season. Now it is not the size of the harvests that is the important thing, but the prices which the farmers of the country are to receive. With production costs high, and with the export demand below normal, owing to the unsettled conditions abroad, it is better that we should have moderate crops which can be sold at a fair profit than bumper crops that would have to be sold for little or no profit.

Inasmuch as the buying power of the agricultural regions is the most important single consideration for the business outlook, and for the financial market too, we are actually in a state where high crop estimates would not be welcome.

Certainly there is no wish for a return to the situation of three years ago, when the farmers were using their surplus corn for fuel because they could not dispose of it without a loss.

Moderate Crops Indicated.

From present indications, the harvest of 1923 will not be excessive, but will be merely a good normal yield. The government figures for June suggest that a crop of $17,000,000 bushels will be harvested, against 856,000,000, which was the final estimate in 1922. Winter wheat is pretty well made, and this is three-fifths of the total. Spring wheat has to face the critical midsummer period of drought and the frosts of the early autumn, but there is room for considerable deterioration before the final harvest would shrink below the ten-year average.

No reliable forecast is possible for cotton until it is known what is the extent of the abandoned acreage. The corn prospect is even more obscure, but the comparatively high level of corn prices—one of the most agreeable features in the present agricultural situation—shows that the grain trade is not looking for any abnormal production.

Wall Street in Waiting Mood.

The stock market is in the same mood as the other markets, waiting to see how the fall trade requirements will develop and whether or not this is to be a remunerative season on the farms. Industrial stocks, having had a substantial rebound from the low prices of May, which were reached during the period of unwarranted depression over the business outlook, have now fallen into the indeterminate movement, which often in the past has characterized the month of June and the first half of July.

Railway shares have been taken up in belated recognition of the record-breaking carloadings and what these will mean for the earnings of the next few months. Well Street, however, may be disappointed in its expectations that dividends are soon to be begun or increased in the numerous instances which are being talked about.

Railway managers will not be anxious to advertise their prosperity with the new congress only six months off and with the presidential campaign following, when railway valuation and rate reduction will be burning issues and the subjects of disturbing agitation.

WALL STREET BRANDED AS "A MODERN HARPY"

New York Broker Condemns System of Trading in New Book.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, June 11.—Wall Street is painted as a modern harpy, preying on a gullible public, by Louis M. Kardos, ..n., of the defunct brokerage house Kardos & Burke, in a book entitled "Within the Walls."

The book purports to show how Wall Street mulcts the public out of hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

"The machinery of Wall Street is working twenty-four hours a day, claiming as its victims the very soul of the American people, yet no press man or legislator seems to have the courage to touch upon the fact, as a result the American people are mulcted to the extent of untold millions of dollars yearly," an excerpt charges.

Kardos divides the operators into three classes. The man on the ground floor, the first story man, and the second story man. The first, usually a powerful financier with great banking resources at his beck and call, floats securities at far above their real value. The first story men are operators who ..d the securities, hammering prices down, inflicting losses on the little fellows, and then buying the stocks at low figures, boosting them again and then hammering them down.

The second story men are the brokers and investment dealers, who profit out of the public's losses. These men must exact a heavy tribute from the public, Kardos holds, because their expenses are far above the income derived from commissions on stock transactions. Total annual commissions and interest charges by the 566 brokers amount to about $51,000,000, while the cost of maintaining the establishments totals about $208,000,000 a year, he states.

DIRECTOR MISTAKEN.

Special to The Advertiser.

Cobalt, Ont., June 11.—The Dome director who is reported to have styled as "absurd" the statement that the hanging wall zone may be cut off by porphyry at depth, has either not read his own manager's report, or is unable to understanding mining reports, declared the Northern Miner, when interviewed by The Advertiser. Mr. Depencier's statement is very clear, and shows good developments in other sections of the mine, which should compensate.

NATIONAL AUSTRIAN LOAN HAS BEEN WELL RECEIVED

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, June 11.—The United States portion of the national Austrian loan, amounting to $25,000,000 seven per cent bonds, was over-subscribed fifteen minutes after the books were opened at 10 o'clock this morning, according to an announcement by J. P. Morgan & Co.

London, June 11.—The £11,000,000 block of the new Austrian loan which the Bank of England undertook to float was so well received by the investing public that the list was closed before noon today, although the prospectus had started that the subscription privilege would not cease until Thursday. This was taken to indicate that the British share of the issue will be largely over-subscribed.

ACTIVE RAIL BUYING SENDS SHARES HIGHER

Weakness Again Develops in Oil and Sugar Stocks.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Wall Street, June 11.—The stock market started in today subsequently where it left off on Saturday. Active buying of the railway shares was again a feature, carrying them up another half point or so. Soon, however, it became apparent that the usual Monday experience after a week of rising prices was to be repeated. It is quite the custom under such circumstances for the market to react under selling by professionals and office traders, who had been following the upward turn. This sort of selling made its appearance with the course of the first hour, checking the rise and forcing prices downward.

Special weakness developed in the oil and stocks again, and in the sugars. The street is looking for further cuts in the mid-continent field to be announced very shortly, and this was the reason for the selling. A number of the oils got down practically to the extreme lows of last month.

Selling of the sugars was somewhat influenced by a lower market for raw sugar. The decline in the sugar market, however, was too slight to be regarded as the chief explanation for the drop in sugar stocksk. Rather this was due to disappointment, because dividend talk has not been substantiated, and second because the incentive for speculation looked toward a further advance in sugar prices has not materialized, and, according to trade authority, may not materilize.

The stock market in the hands of the professional element was not in a position to reflect any broad view of what the success of the Austrian bond issue will mean for European reconstruction. It was mainly interested in its own local concern, namely, whether last week's rise had not been sufficient to invite some reaction, accepting the view that the time is not ripe for any general renewal of last winter's speculative campaign.

Most of the selling which occurred during the day was influenced by this purely technical consideration. In the oil shares, however, a special reason for weakness was found in the very general belief that further price cuts must occur before production can be brought down to the level of curent demand. Certainly all the figures that have been published for the last fortnight on output and consumption have tended to support the idea.

WALL STREET FEATURES.

The Sugars—The lack of interest in the sugar stocks recently has attracted less attention probably than it ordinarily would because of the outstanding strength in the rails. Nevertheless their lagging tendency is regarded as significant. The market for the sugar issues has moved pretty closely with supply and demand in the sugar trade. As indicated by prices of raw sugar. Companies like Punta Alegre, Cuba Cane and Cuban-American have made their 1923 crop and are in a good position, but the enthusiasm for the stocks of these companies as a group has worn off. Less is hoped for in the way of foreign buying, and it is thought that the price of raws may become fairly stable around six cents a pound.

LEADERSHIP RESUMED BY TWIN CITY SHARES

Advances to New High Record, But Later Reacts Half Point.

Reported for The Advertiser by Johnston & Ward.

Montreal, June 11.—With a turnover of around 350 shares, Twin City again resumed the leadership of the Montreal Stock Exchange in the first part of today's session. It advanced to the new high record figure for a number of years at 80. Later, however, it reacted to 79½. Brokerage circles confirm the statement previously made that Twin City is no longer considered as a speculative issue, but has definitely entered the investment category.

Outside of Twin City there was only moderate activity in the different departments, and price changes were limited to fractions. Around the noon hour Abitibi Paper showed signs of improvement, advancing to 65 on a turnover of 375 shares. Brompton received little attention, and remained unchanged at 39½. Laurentide experienced a fair demand at the firm price of par and a half. Spanish common dropped to 91.

In spite of the fact that the Brazilian exchange in New York and Montreal established a new low record at 10.09c to the milrei, the stock of Brazilian Traction scored a fractional gain, advancing to 49.

Bell Telephone sold at 121½. Detroit United improved to 75¾. Montreal Power was inactive but firm at 123, while Shawinigan and Winnipeg Electric preferred remained steady.

Asbestos Corporation continues to display easiness. On Saturday morning it was selling at 56; it is now down to 54¾. Officials of the company are reticent to give any information as to the situation since their recent trouble, and the street is at a loss to explain the depreciation in the value of the shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 11.—Little activity was shown by stocks on the local exchange this morning, trading being light and well distributed throughout the list. Few price changes were noted, and these were fractional. Dome Mines was the most active on the board, selling 50c higher to $39, on sales of 500 shares. The flurry that set in in Canada Bread shares on Saturday was not apparent this morning, no sales being registered in the common, while odd lots of the preferred changed hands at unchanged prices.

STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 11.—Trading was below the average on the Standard Exchange this morning, but concentrated, and the market was exceptionally strong. The largest gain was made by Dome Mines, going to $39 for a net gai nof $1. McIntyre was 20c higher at $19.25, and Hollinger 45c at $13.35. Argonaut advanced 3½c at 93½c. Teck-Hughes 2c at $1.38, and Goldale 1c at 61c. Heavy trading, 18,000 shares, in Lorraine, left that stock unchanged. Castle Trethewey was 1c higher at 25c. Lake Shore lost 8c at $3.50.

CHICAGO

Chicago, June 9. — Wheat scored a moderate advance in price today, chiefly as a result of heavy rains in the southwest and because of the bullish showing made by the government crop report. The market closed unsettled at ⅝c to 1¼c net gain with July $1.11⅜ to $1.11½ and September $1.09¾ to $1.09⅞. Corn finished at ¼c to ½c up. Oats at ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions 2c to 12c down.

With nearly 7 inches of rain reported as having fallen at Wichita, Kansas, and with damage by excessive rain elsewhere in Kansas and Oklahoma the majority of traders took promptly to the bull side of the wheat market. Reports of a wet harvest led also to some stimultaneous buying of July and selling of September and caused the difference between the months to widen in consequence.

The government forecast of spring wheat production was combatted by bulls who urged that the acreage figures were almost incredible in view of nearly unanimous private reports that the acreage had been much reduced. A good deal of selling to realize profits counterbalanced in the corn market. The bullish effect of wheat strength and of cold, wet wether.

Cash prices:

Wheat—No. 2 red $1.26.

Corn—No. 2 mixed 83½c to 83½c; No. 2 yellow 84c to 84¼c.

MONDAY'S OPENING PRICES.

Chicago, June 11. — Further rains threatening excessive damage to crops in the southwest had a decidedly bullish effect on the wheat market today during the early dealings. Estimates were current that as much as 25,000,000 bushels of wheat would be lost, owing to the excessive downpour.

European political developments were also to some extent a bullish factor and so, too, was announcement of proposed removal of Italian duties on food imports. Opening quotations, which ranged from ⅜c to 1⅛c higher, were followed by moderate additional gains and then something of a reaction.

Corn and oats were firmer with wheat. After opening ⅛c to ½c higher, the corn market continued to harden.

Oats started unchanged to ⅛c higher, and later gained a little.

Wheat—July, $1.12⅛; Sept., $1.10⅜.

BULGARIAN ARMY SEIZES PREMIER, PROCLAIMS SIEGE

Stamboulisky Surrounded by Troops On Arrival in Sofia.

FRONTIERS CLOSED

Military Coup Is Carried Out According To Prepared Plans.

Associated Press Despatch.

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 11. — The Agrarian cabinet, headed by Premier Stamboulisky, was overthrown early Saturday morning, the plot being carried out by reserve officers with the assistance of the active army.

Although there was no bloodshed, the new regime proclaimed a state of siege, and issued a proclamation to the nation, saying:

"Bulgarian liberty draws again. The regime of deceit, violence and murder has collapsed under the weight of its crimes, and a new era of law, harmony and peace has arrived."

Premier Stamboulisky, who has been living in semi-retirement in his native village, Slavonitz, returned to Sofia Friday night. On his arrival at the station he found troops drawn up and he was received in silence. When the premier asked for an explanation the officer ignored the question. He tried to telephone to police headquarters to obtain an explanation, but discovered the wires had been cut; then he understood he was a prisoner.

The coup was carried out with military precision. Members of the reserve officers' organization and units of the active army surrounded Parliament House and arrested the ministers and deputies, while those ministers, who were absent, were arrested later at their homes. Among those arrested were the members of a powerful organization, known as the "yellow guard," and alleged to be a staunch supporter of M. Stamboulisky.

All the frontiers are closed, and no trains are allowed to leave the capital.

"A simple incident in the internal life of the country" is the way in which the first official statement of the new Bulgarian government describes the coup d'etat. Just what effect it will have on the Bulgarian foreign policy is not yet divulged.

The existing public forces are well able to maintain order, and the mobilization of additional troops has not been called for.

A slight drop was noticed in the price of butter, the quotations being 35c and 38c lb., as compared to 36c and 38c last week.

ST. MARYS.

St. Marys, June 10.—The rain during the past week did an equal share of harm and good, according to the farmers of this district. No doubt it has hastened growth, but on the other hand a large quantity of corn, etc., has been washed out.

Oats are running at 50c per bushel; barley 60c, and wheat is five cents lower, the price now being $1.10 bushel.

Those staple articles, hides and best quality timothy hay, are still for the former 6c and the latter $8.50 to $9 per ton.

Eggs are somewhat lower this week-end, 23c and 24c prevailing mostly. Butter is bringing a higher quotation, 26c per pound now being the price.

Feed flour is $2.25, while "Luxury" flour runs at $4.

In the line of fresh fruit and vegetables there is little change this week-end.

MINING NEWS

According to private wire advices from Kirkland Lake the Teck-Hughes Mining Company experienced in May the best month in its history. Shipments of gold bullion from the mine reached a total value of $103,300, a new production record. It is estimated that net profits approximate two-thirds of gross, and on this basis May net should stand about $70,000. For the preceding months gross has averaged around $88,000.

The McIntyre Porcupine Mines has a grinding capacity of 1,200 tons per day. While full operations have been prevented heretofore by shortage of power, that difficulty will be over soon, as a result of increase in hydro-electric development in the district. Its present treatment is 1,000 tons. Based on this tonnage, with mill-heads running at $11 and cost at $5, net profits should be at the rate of $2,000,000. At the current market price of $20, the stock is earning approximately 14 per cent.

A dividend of 3 per cent. payable July 20 to shareholders of record June 30, has been declared by the directors of the Nipissing Mines Company, Limited. The books of the company will close on June 13, and reopen on July 18. The financial statement of the operating company as of June 2 shows cash in bank, Canadian war bonds, United States treasury certificates and investments, value of ore and bullion in transit, on hand and in process at mine and mill, and bullion ready for shipment valued at $4,676,-195.75.

The Lake Shore Mine is making strenuous efforts to have its mill capacity increased to 300 tons daily by fall. At the rate construction work on surface is progressing this expectation will be fulfilled. A steel headframe, 75 feet high, is being erected. The old mill building is being extended to the north and east. The foundation for the new primary crushing plant is now being built, as is also that for a new rock bin. Two new ball mills and two tube mills have been bought and will be installed on their arrival. One of the new features at Lake Shore will be a large oil tank, set up on a nearby hill with gravity feed to the refinery and various shops. The shaft is now down 760 feet. In a few weeks development work will be started at the 800-foot level.

Following a visit of the directors to the mine, it has been reported here that the management of the Wright-Hargreaves may defer mill construction a few months instead of rushing through the work of doubling capacity before the end of the current year. This change in policy is stated to be due to the belief that by proceeding slowly with the work the cost will be less and the finished job will be better than if rushed through. This was the policy followed in the early construction on the Wright-Hargreaves, and which resulted in the present equipment, standing as a model in the business of handling gold ore. In the meantime, development is proceeding at the 700-foot levels and is adding in a big way to ore reserves, while work in the upper levels is disclosing ore far beyond the previously known limits.

The twelfth annual statement of the Dome Mines, as printed in these columns, has aroused widespread comment in mining circles in Northern Ontario, both with respect to the favorable aspects as well as to the change in geological structure as noted at the twelfth level. Having reached the bottom of the sedimentary formation and not yet determined whether gold occurs in the underlying keewatin adjacent to the intruding porphyry, the trend of work to new depths will be of most vital concern to the future of the enterprise. Recognized authorities have stated that it is reasonable to expect mineralization to continue to great depth in the keewatin-porphyry contact area in a like manner as in the contact between the sediments and porphyry. As a matter of fact, there is no conglomerate formation on the Hollinger and McIntyre, yet mineralization occurs in great abundance.

Official statement on progress and plans of Vipond Consolidated is contained in an official circular letter now going out to shareholders. This reads in part: "Good developments have been continued at the property of the Vipond Consolidated Mines, Limited. The new ore-shoot, representing a connecting link between the No. 1 vein system of the North Thompson claim and the Davidson vein of the Vipond claim, has now been proven for a length of 170 feet at the 400-foot level. In this distance the full width of the vein has not been exposed in the drift—the width being considerably wider than the excavation—but the face assays indicate a value of $18.20 over 62 inches. Near the close of the month the same vein was cut at the 300-foot level. At this horizon, again the full width of the ore-body is not exposed, but face samples give a value of $15.55 for the 41 feet developed. Having regard to the future of the mine in depth, an even more important discovery has been made at the 1,000-foot level, where a vein assaying $28 over 4 feet was cut in a northerly crosscut at a point close to the Hollinger line on the 30th of the month."

The cross-cut at the 600-foot level of the Bidgood Gold Mines has advanced approximately 400 feet, and is nearing a point where veins are believed to occur.

The shaft on the Canadian Associated Goldfields is down 625 feet, at which point a working station is being cut. It is planned to continue the shaft to a depth of 750 feet, and then launch out into extensive lateral operations at the various levels at intervals of 125 feet apart.

Milling operations on the Beaver Mine will not commence before some time in July instead of around June 15 as intimated in the annual statement. Meantime, development is very satisfactory, and it will be possible to make a large shipment of high-grade ore in addition to carrying on milling operations at full capacity.

The Kirkland Lake Proprietary is gathering the first fruits of the big development program commenced some months ago. A vein has been opened up in a cross-cut at the 400-foot level about 200 feet south of the main shaft, and lying southeast of the main fall. Assays are running high in some places, with the average being of a commercial grade across a width of six feet, and for a length of upward of 30 feet as so far drifted upon.

During the month of May the Dome mine produced $355,532, in spite of having been badly crippled during the early days of the month through power shortage, and even below normal during the closing days of the period.

It has been learned on good authority that production from this date forward will range from $400,000 to $450,000 a month, or at a rate well over $1,000,-000 a year greater than any previous record in the history of the mine, the current rate of output being well over $500 every 60 minutes.

With a meeting of directors on schedule for June 12 next, talk of an increase in the quarterly dividend on Dome Mines Company, Limited, from 50 cents to $1 is spreading to new quarters. In 1922 Dome mines had its best year, earnings for the twelve months ended March 31 last being $2,-426,857, equivalent to $5.09 a share on the outstanding capital stock of $9 par as compared with $1,244,922, or $2.61, in the preceding year. At the special stockholders' meeting it is expected that favorable action on the proposal to split the stock will be taken, but final action on this will have to await legislation by the Canadian governments. Attempts were made a short time ago to solicit proxies in opposition to the existing conservative dividend policy, but the effort met with little favor, it is said.

A total of close to 75,000 hydro-electric horsepower will be available for the mines of the Porcupine district by the end of 1924, or early in 1925, or an increase of four times the amount available up to the current year. If gold production keeps pace with the construction of power plants, the yield will double and treble as compared with the previous best records. This summer finds the Hollinger, Dome and McIntyre, consuming every bit of the developed energy, while current for the Night Hawk Peninsular, Davidson and others will be on tap within a matter of days. Pending completion of additional power installations, a number of mines are using steam power, while still others are installing or using fuel oil engines. Vipond, Goldale, Newray, Hayden and others are using steam. The Rochester is being operated with a fuel oil engine, while a somewhat similar installation is being installed on the Premier Paymaster. It is through the decision of the Hollinger Consolidated to have done with expensive power delays that the rapid increase in the supply of energy is assured. The Hollinger having shown its determination to harness a falls on the Abitibi River and develop some 20,000-horsepower, the Northern Canada Power Company has lost no time in an endeavor to maintain its power monopoly, and this company is also rushing work on a new power site at Des Quinze Rapids in Quebec. This work is being started on a scale never before undertaken in the north. A few weeks ago the lease on Des Quinze was secured. A few days ago your correspondent paid a visit to Des Quinze and found a few men pitching camp. Today, the contractors who are doing the job have close to 100 men engaged, and are scouring the country for more, with a view toward increasing the force to possibly 400.

COL. CURRIE HAS RED HOT TIME FIXING LETTER

Declares He Found in It Plot To Blow Up Big National Party.

HE WASN'T TIRED

Mr. Ferguson Also Brings His Wit Into Play At Collingwood and Meaford.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Collingnwood, June 11.—The Hon. Howard Ferguson found Col. John A. Currie sitting on the platform when he reached here Friday night to speak on behalf of J. E. Jamieson, Conservative candidate for West Simcoe. Two other starters are going to the post, in H. A. Currie for the Liberals and Dick Baker for the U. F. O. The late member, W. T. Allan, Conservative, is not again contesting the riding.

Mr. Ferguson was introduced by J. Banting, of whom rumor said that he intended an independent candidature as just like a diamond, the more you polish the brighter he shines. He proceeded to deny rumors and vowed his allegiance to the leader and the candidate.

Colonel John Currie, who assured his audience that he did not propose to speak for ten and a half hours, modestly asserted that he had done his little part in exposing to the house that dreadful plan which would have placed dust candidates in the field against the Conservatives. Hardly a day passes but a Liberal pulls out and leaves the field to the Farmer, and vice versa. One of them would pull out of here before long.

The unhappy colonel had a horrid time explaining that letter. "The Toronto Star suggested that if I had a bag of flour left on my doorstep by mistake I should not be justified in keeping it. The analogy doesn't work. No. But if I looked inside and found a stick of dynamite, a jimmy and some glycerine I should be justified in telling the local bakers what was in it. I looked in the letter thinking it was mine. It was addressed to me, and I found in it a plot to blow up your great, big, national party, the evidences were there.

Something to Say.

"The Colonel also had something to say to the Liberals. They had said ditto to everything Drury did, and found nothing objectionable down even to the last awful night.

"Combined with the Conservatives, they could have wiped these upstarts out of office, yet they stood ready to jump down my throat every time I said anything about Drury."

The Colonel referred to his record-breaking speech in the legislature.

"I wasn't tired," he said, "and mind you it was good stuff all the way through. We compelled the government to throw up the Redistribution Bill."

He then gave a thoroughly "curried" account of the famous session: Mr. Drury virtually went down on his knees. The tears were running down his checks. He grovelled before Mr. Ferguson, and Colonel Currie prophesied that the premier would be beaten out of his boots. "He'll walk home barefooted."

When Mr. Ferguson rose to his feet the citizen's kiltie band thundered out with "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and the large audience rose and cheered him to the echo. He then proceeded to another entirely non-partisan discussion of the business condition of the province. In this impartial spirit he spoke of the prime minister as like the little fellow who was picked up in a basket in the bullrushes; a new Moses, who came to deliver the land from the wicked Tories and Grits. Then he accused Mr. Raney of running the biggest liquor business in the province, and remarked that Mr. Morrison had more brains that the rest of them put together.

Challenge Mr. Drury.

"In all great crises," said Mr. Ferguson, "people have forgotten their party allegiance. Today we are financially on the verge of embarrassment, and people should vote to put these spendthrifts out of office. I challenge Mr. Drury to name one Conservative that took part in that drunken orgy. The Conservative party retain their self-respect."

Mr. Ferguson, in the same elevated manner, promised that if he was honored with the duty of forming an administration it would be his object to maintain the dignity of the law. He hoped and was confident of better results than were achieved by the present aggregation of nincompoops.

SPEAKS AT MEAFORD.

Special to The Advertiser, by a Staff Reporter.

Meaford, June 10.—The Tories of Center Grey evidently believe that music hath charms to sway the voters' choice. The Hon. Howard Ferguson was greeted here by the blaring notes of "The Conquering Hero Comes," and each speech was preceded by an appropriately stirring piece of music. The meeting was held in the interests of Dr. Ego, the Conservative opponent of the Hon. D. Carmichael, minister of power in the Drury administration.

Mr. Ferguson took this opportunity to reply to Mr. Drury's unkind assertion that he is in the habit of quoting generalities in respect to government extravagance; that he never puts his finger on the spot.

The burden of Mr. Ferguson's reply was that you couldn't put your finger on any one spot because the waste was spread all over. He did his best, however, and aided by a certain facile wit carried his audience with him. His first reference was to one of Mr. Biggs' sins, when he gave a deserving young man down in Hamilton an order for $100,000 worth of automobiles.

Grateful To Biggs.

"No doubt that young man is grateful to Mr. Biggs," remarked Mr. Ferguson, "but he should be grateful to you because it cost you $17,000 to set that friend of Mr. Biggs up in business. Now let Mr. Drury get up and explain that. Why should he use public funds to help his friends into business?"

Another specific instance which Mr. Ferguson thought worth mentioning was the premier's $100 coal scuttle. The premier says there's nothing in the story. Let him look in the public accounts.

The fine big porcelain bath, with nickle-plated fixtures, which Mr. H. Mills had placed in his room at the Parliament Buildings, was yet another specific example of the government's prodigality.

"These are a few things Mr. Drury can make a speech about," remarked the Conservative leader.

Mr. Drury's claim that none of the money so spent came out of the people's pocket caused Mr. Ferguson to wax exceedingly scornful. "It is a reflection on the intelligence of the people," he declared.

He provoked loud laughter by his reference to the inquity of the attorney-general, who last year exacted $1,500,000 from the sick and afflicted by way of tax on our medicine which you get by prescription from our drug stores. "I'm getting sick and tired of this hypocrisy," declared Mr. Ferguson.

The action of Mr. Biggs in giving the contract for the auto markers to his friend Dr. Wright, whose tender was 23 cents, while the lowest tender was 11 1-4 cents, also provided opportunity for a pawky kind of humor.

Some Satisfaction.

"You have the satisfaction of knowing, as you drive along in your auto, that you have a marker with a $30,000 wrinkle on it, and they tell me that you have to cut the wrinkle off before you can fix it on your car. Now, I don't say that Mr. Biggs has any interest in the company, but he had a blamed lot of interest in Dr. Wright." An unholy trinity—Drury, Raney and Doherty—"not elected, but selected," were variously described as neophytes, incompetents and incapables. Much was made of their appointing commissions to furnish them with brains. What he objected to was the puritanical hypocrisy of their attitude.

"The man who has done more to deprave the morals of the province than any one before him," as usual came in for the lion's share of attention. When Mr. Ferguson is premier the law will be enforced with a single eye to improving conditions and not to making criminals.

Dr. Ego, the candidate, said that if some in the audience had come to criticize he hoped they would return home singing songs of praise. He had worked out that if the income from auto licenses was to be depended upon to pay for the roads of the province that it would take just 1,800 years. Taking his cue from his leader, perhaps, also in view of the absence of any Liberal candidate, the doctor turned an expectant eye in the direction of the Liberals.

"I can't think," he said, "that Liberals who have formed their principles following such men as Mowat, Brown, and Laurier, will support the U. F. O." but in the manner of the old negro he cried: "O Lordy, if you can't help me, for goodness' sake don't you help that bear!"

Flower Perfumes.

A well-known botanist has recently made an investigation of the odors of cut flowers. Out of 4,300 species of flowers cultivated in Europe, he says, only 420 possess an agreeable perfume. Flowers with white or cream colored petals, we are told, are more frequently odoriferous than others.

CIRCULATES RUMOR THAT PRINCE HAD BEEN KILLED

Hamilton, June 11.—Some hair-brained joker was responsible for the spread of a rumor Saturday that the Prince of Wales had been accidentally killed. Newspaper offices were besieged with inquiries as to the accuracy of the report. Inquiries made through the Canadian Press revealed that the rumor was baseless, and an announcement to this effect was made in some of the churches today.

GOVERNMENT OVERTHROWN.

Sofia Bulgaria, June 9.—The Bulgarian government was overthrown at 3 o'clock this morning by an organization of reserve officers supported by the active army.

REVISE VOTERS' LISTS.

Blenheim, June 10.—At a revision of part three of the voters' lists of Harwich Township held recently H. D. Smith of Chatham presiding, more than 190 additions and changes were made in the township list. In some polling divisions electors were quite active in having a complete revision made. Of the 11 divisions only one remained without revisions.

What Is a Cord Tire?

In cord tires the individual cords in each ply all run in one direction; in fabric tires these threads are woven at right angles to each other.

There is no crossing or binding in cord tires—practically eliminating all friction and heat from flexing and bending.

In Firestone Cord Tires the thousands of cords which compose the carcass are of long staple, high tensile strength cotton—from six to ten plies, according to size of tire.

These cords are fully permeated with rubber. They are calendered, forcing additional rubber into every fibre.

Between the cords and the tread go a breaker strip and cushion gum, extra thick—to protect the cord body.

The pattern and toughness of the non-skid tread provide a surer grip on the road—lend efficient traction without power wastage.

Firestone Cords give extra resiliency and easier riding—save gasoline consumption—render unusually long wear.

When you equip your car with Firestone Cords you are buying the best in tiredom—the highest class footing your car can have. When you buy your new car or order tires, insist on Firestones and insure yourself most miles per dollar. Ask your dealer.

WANT AD TIPS

The Reason For Selling

One question for the classified advertiser to put to himself is: "Are people likely to be suspicious of my offering, if I don't tell them why I am selling?" If the answer is, "Yes," he usually should give the reason in his Want Ad.

Back in olden times, long before the ethics of trade had developed to the high level of today, suspicion was the characteristic attitude of buyers. "Caveat emptor!"—an old Latin injunction, "Let the buyer beware!"—had both popular and legal approval. The seller, frankly, was out to "beat" the buyer, and whether he succeeded or not, his conscience was clear.

A buyer, to be successful, had to be every second on his guard. He considered not only what the seller claimed, but every pertinent detail on which he could obtain information. One point which often greatly interested him was: "Why does the seller wish to sell?"

Take the case of a horse offered for sale. The owner knew that horse better than anyone else. And he wished to sell it. Did he have a satisfactory reason for wishing to sell a pressing need for money, perhaps; some change in his affairs which made a horse unnecessary—or had he found something seriously wrong with the animal?

Trickery and dishonesty in business are less prevalent today than at any time in the world's history. Nevertheless, the attitude of suspicion of prospective buyers sometimes remains a serious matter for the advertiser.

When this suspicion exists, and the Want Ad user has a legitimate reason for selling, it is usually well for him to state the reason. Some of the reasons which often arise, not reflecting on the merit of the offered commodity, are need for cash; poor health; disagreement between partners; leaving city; no longer need in own business; taken in on mortgage; bought and found not fitted to owner's particular needs; overstocked. Any one of these reasons tends to give buyers confidence in the article offered for sale.

Warm Yards of Blankets To Save Shivering Maudie

Giraffe in London Zoo Catches Cold While Crossing the English Channel.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Eng., June 11.—One of the giraffes in the London Zoo has a sore throat. This condition of affairs has long tickled the imagination of humorists and cartoonists, but it is no fun for the boss of the giraffe house.

Every day and every night he has to warm yards and yards of blankets and wrap them around the shivering Maudie, which is the name of this afflicted giraffe.

Maudie caught sold coming across the English Channel the other day on the way into town from her old home down in Africa. Her mate also became sick and died, but they are pulling Maudie through.

It recommended that the sum of $500, as required by law, should be put in the bank to the credit of the representative.

The Perth County Plowmans' Association, a deputation from which was received so favorably during the week, was granted the sum of $200 for their work.

CO-OPERATE WITH CHURCH IN RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION

For some time there has been a course of Bible instruction in London's public schools, but it has been carried on independently of the churches. The new Bible memory course which will begin on September 1 will have the co-operation of the Sunday schools of the city. Every minister and clergyman in London has been asked by the school authorities to allow his Sunday school to work with the public schools in this work. The idea is that the passages of scripture to be read in school shall correspond with those read in the Sunday school. In this way there will be no overlapping and the children will have the passages explained and interpreted to them as they go along, which the school teacher is not allowed to do.

Local Maple Leafs Eliminate Dome "Miners" From Connaught Cup Series, In Far North Tilt

Maple Leafs Defeat Miners In Far North 2 Goals To 1

Ten Minutes Overtime Gives Local Eleven Victory in Connaught Cup First Round—Hazelwood Scores Winning Goal.

Special to The Advertiser.

South Porcupine, Ont., June 10.—The Dome Mines football team was eliminated from the Connaught Cup competition last evening at their home grounds by the Maple Leaf Football Club of London, Ont., but it was only after ninety minutes of a hard-fought, strenuous contest, followed by ten minutes' overtime that the winners of the game emerged victorious by 2 goals to 1. The teams were 25 minutes late in taking the field, owing to nearly one hour's delay on the T. and N. O. Railway service, and 1,500 spectators gave them a hearty greeting. It was the largest crowd ever seen at a football game in the history of the camp, and the scene will long be remembered by those who were present. The Timmins Citizens' Band was on the grounds.

Dome won the toss and elected to play facing the sun. Leafs commenced the pressure, and Leigh worked the ball up on the left, Whitelaw shooting past wide. Dome attacked and Armstrong shot wide. Hendry and Ewart relieved from a Leaf attack, and Fidock placed a beautiful pass to center with Harrower Marshall leading the Dome forces on the Leafs' citadel. Taylor got away with a dangerous rush, but Miner relieved. Young Jamie Fell was also doing some good work at right back. The Leafs came right back and Hendry and Ewart again had to clear their territory. Dome attacked dangerously, but were pulled up for offside. Harrower stopped a Leaf attack, and Dome penned the Leafs in their own goal for a few minutes, gaining two corners in succession. Croal and Smith were putting up a great defence, and their fine accurate kicking was a feature of the game all through. Miner, Ewart and Fell came into the limelight, and Dome returned. Dave Smith stopped a dangerous rush, but Dome bored right in, and Wallace fell just outside of the upright. Kellow stopped Hazlewood's effort and was ably supported by Fell, Ewart and Harrower. The Leafs came back and forced Ewart to give a corner, following which Holt shot high. Dome gained a fruitless corner and half-time arrived with no score.

The second period started off at the same merry old clip, Wallace and J. Smith colliding. The latter was slightly stunned, but pluckily stayed with the game. The Leafs were pressing hotly all the time, their more finished combination being evident. Croal relieved from Dome aggression and Ince kicked away. Even play again followed and it was anybody's game, Croal and Harrower exchanged long range fire and then Dome came back hard, Wallace being the casualty this time. The Leafs found Hendry on the job and some fast midfield play followed. Nudds pulled off a fine save, and Fidock forced a corner, which proved fruitless. McKenna broke up a Leaf attack in fine style, but Miner was forced to give a corner shortly after. Harrower organized a dangerous Dome attack, and McKenna forced Dome's fifth corner. Taylor broke away alone, but shot wide. Leafs kept up the pressure, and Taylor missed an open goal. D. Smith stopped the Gold Diggers, and Leafs returned to the attack. Nudds cleared nicely from Armstrong. Dome then rushed irresistibly, and Wallace scored with a low fast one, which Nudds had no chance to stop. With ten minutes to go, fast midfield play followed, and Fidock shot past. The Leafs then buzzed around Dome territory like bees and with less than forty-five seconds to go, Holt equalized the score and the whistle blew with the score one all.

Many of the spectators started to go home, counting on a replay, but the teams decided on a five minutes each way, and the excitement rose again. Dome attacked and even exchanges followed. Hitt got away alone but shot wide. Hitt got away alone but shot low. The teams crossed over and went at it hammer and tongs. Leafs broke away strong and Hazelwood put his team ahead with a beautiful shot. Dome came back strong, but could not break down the great defence of Croal and Smith. Hitt and D. Smith collided, the latter being slightly hurt, but resumed. The game did not slow up in the slightest degree, but there was no further score, and the Leafs were heartily congratulated on their victory by the Dome boys. The ground was fast, and after 26 hours in the train they had to hurry to the field and tackle a team in good condition, so that the Leafs deserve great credit for their victory under the circumstances. The game was very capably handled by Mr. W. E. Dean, president of the Ontario Football Association, and the linesmen were President Hodkinson of the London District Football League, and President Cherriette of the Dome Football Club.

The teams:

Maple Leafs—Nudds, goal; D. Smith and Croal, backs; A. Ince, J. Smith and Whiteslaw, half-backs; Taylor, E. Ince, Hazelwood, Holt and Leigh, forwards.

Dome—Hendry, goal; Fell and Ewart, backs; Kellow, Harrower and Miner, half-backs; Armstrong, Hitt, Wallace, McKenna and Fidock, forwards.

Soccer Notes

By BILLY BISSET

London soccermen were jubilant when they learned that London Maple Leafs, after a most strenuous railway journey and game, in which ten minutes' overtime play took place, had eliminated Dome Mines F. C. by 3 goals to 1 on the latter's "ain midden heid," in the Connaughts Cup series.

* * *

Maple Leafs' win was all the more meritorious viewing the fact that owing to one hour's delay on the T. and N. O. Railway, the Orange and Brown on their arrival at the gold center, had hurriedly to take the field in order that the game could be proceeded with and finished in daylight.

It was anybody's game when extra time play had been ordered, and to Bill Hazelwood, Maple Leafs' scintillating center-pivot, goes the credit of registering the winning goal for his side during that period.

* * *

Maple Leafs will now meet Toronto Ulsted United (Connaught Cup finalists and inter-city champions, 1922) in the second round of the same series.

* * *

After the Redhanders' elimination of Toronto Scottish (Ontario champions, 1922) Saturday by 3 goals to 1 in the Connaught Cup series, one can plainly see that the Londoners will have to extend themselves to their utmost in order to defeat or even draw with the famous Ulstermen, who are seemingly much stronger than they were last year.

* * *

However, seeing it is a cup-tie, there is no telling what may happen, and as in the Ulster vs. Toronto Scottish Connaught cup-tie game, it is generally the unexpected that happens.

* * *

There are lots of London soccer devotees who swear by Maple Leafs in the latter's capabilities to clinch the highest Canadian soccer honor. Whether they will or not is problematical, and no matter how far they go in the series, it can safely be said that the Leafs will at least give their victors, if there be any, both the fight and the fright of their lives.

* * *

As a free lance the writer wishes Maple Leafs every success in the national competition, trusting that they will bring honor and glory not only to themselves, but to London as well.

* * *

At the first round Connaught Cup game on Saturday between Toronto Ulster United and Toronto Scottish, the two greatest soccer football rivals in Canada, Bob Lavery, Ulster's brilliant center forward, in accomplishing the "hat trick," scored every goal tallied by his side against Scottish. Bob Lavery is undoubtedly Canada's best attack leader.

Lefty Carmen for Schwartje Tops Shake-Up in TecSquad

Rochester Pitcher and Hexenbaugh Added To Hurling Corps—Three New Infielders Have Been Secured—Directors Have Had Busy Search.

The Tecumsehs come home tomorrow to open a three-game series with Kalamazoo, but throughout the week there'll be such a shake-up in the lineup that by the end of the week the fans will need an announcer to make things clear.

The Carmen-Schwartje deal has gone through, topping the list of changes, resulting in a country-wide dragnet set out by the London directors. Carmen, who did such good work for London for two seasons, was popular here, but he couldn't win ball games this year for London, and felt that he could with Wetzel. Schwartje, on the other hand, has always been a hard nut to crack for London teams, when they were winning championships, even having only lost one start on the local lot, and the directors hope that he'll keep that up. A pitcher has been secured from the Rochester International League club, while Schwartje has been traded for Lefty Carmen with the Saginaw club. Charles Hixenbaugh has also been secured from the Bay City Club. Hixenbaugh was here last season, but couldn't stick. He's been going great guns this year.

Shortstop Raune of St. Bonaventure College will report here on Wednesday, while a pair of infielders have been secured from Chicago. One is a bangup third baseman and the other is a hard-hitting first baseman.

Three good right-handers should greatly augment the pitching staff, and the weak-hitting infield, though it has been fielding well of late, should also be repaired by the addition of three men. Third Baseman Mostade has been playing recently under the handicap of a "charley horse," in addition to his continual favoring of his right leg, which was broken last season.

Firpo K.O.'s Man In Second Round

Italian "Jack" Herman Takes Siesta At Havana.

Havana, June 10.—Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, this afternoon knocked out "Italian Jack" Herman in the second round of what was to have been a fifteen-round bout.

The fight, which was a very unequal one as regards the size of the men, lasted three minutes and nineteen seconds. Firpo was 30 pounds the heavier.

In the first round Firpo appeared to be holding back his blows. The contest resembled somewhat that of a terrier against a Great Dane. Nineteen seconds after the second round had started, however, the Argentina out loose and sent his opponent to the canvas for the count.

IS CALGARY GOING DRY OR EDMONTON SICKER?

Reports Show Great Deal More Liquor Consumed in Alberta's Capital.

Special to The Advertiser.

Edmonton, Alta., June 9.—Is Calgary going dry or Edmonton sicker?

The vendors' store at Edmonton during May sold $19,845.30 worth of liquor—to sick persons, of course. The vendors' store in Calgary only had a turnover of $4,558.50. (Calgary seems to have become a marvellously healthy town).

These figures are given out by Attorney-General Brownlee from a report submitted by R. B. Douglas, chief vendor of the province. For the month of April the difference between the Edmonton and Calgary dispensaries was even greater in the sale results than in May. Then the figures were $20,060 for Edmonton, and only $3,520 for Calgary in round figures.

CANADIANS CONFER ON ALIEN PROPERTY

Dominion Officials Hold Consultation At Washington With U. S. Secretary.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, June 11.—A party of Canadian officials arrived in Washington Sunday to confer with Secretary Hughes and representatives of alien property custodians' office to work out a uniform practice for the disposition of certain large holdings of seized property on both sides of the boundary.

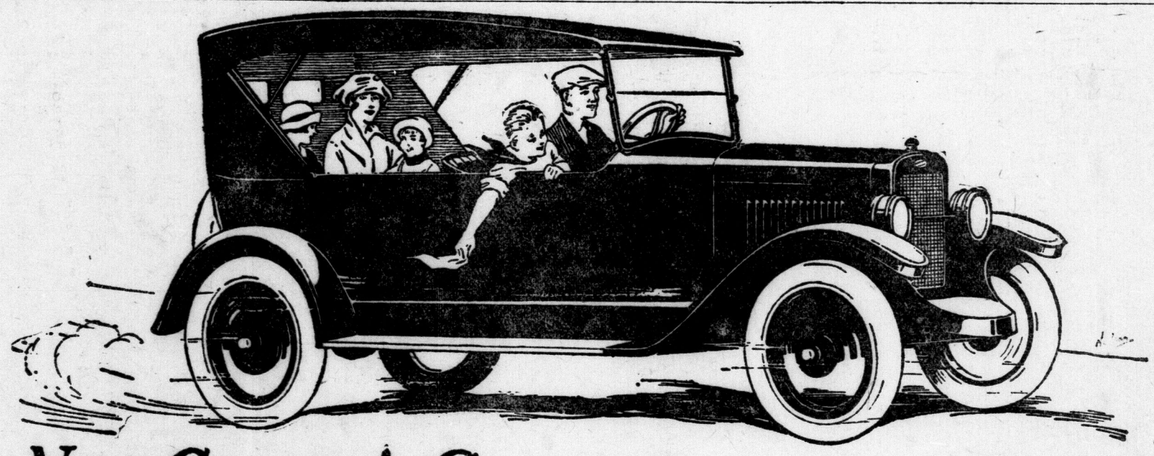

The conference grows out of the fact that the United States custodian has taken over shares of Canadian corporations which were supposed to be owned by Germans in this country, while the Canadians likewise have possessed themselves of properties of American origin owned by Germans living in Canada.

Efforts have been made with varying degrees of success by the German owners to recover these properties, and it is regarded as desirable that the same general rule shall be applied by each country. There are many complex questions to be discussed, and the conference will continue for some time.

"MIDNIGHT"

A Real Detective Story Told By a Master of Fiction With Mystery and Romance

OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

To Spike's Amazement, His Mysterious Passenger Disappears Competely from the Taxi Cab

"Cab, miss?"

He pulled up short before her.

"Yes." Her tone was almost curt. She had her hand on the door handle before Spike could make a move to alight. "Drive to 981 East End avenue."

Without leaving the driver's seat, Spike reached for her suitcase and put it beside him. The woman — a young woman, Spike reflected— stepped inside and slammed the door. Spike fed the gas and started, whirling south on Atlantic avenue for two blocks, and then turning to his left across the long viaduct which marks the beginning of East End avenue.

He settled himself for a long and unpleasant drive. To reach 981 East End avenue he had to drive nearly five miles straight in the face of the December gale.

And then he found himself wondering about the woman. Her coat— a rich fur thing of black and gray— her handbag, her whole demeanor— all bespoke affluence. She had probably been visiting at some little town and had come down on the accommodation; but no one had been there to meet her. Anyway, Spike found himself too miserable and too cold to reflect much about his passenger.

He drove in a head wind. The sleet slapped viciously against his windshield and stuck there. The patent device he carried for the purpose of clearing away rain refused to work. Spike shoved his windshield up in order to afford a vision of the icy asphalt ahead.

And then he grew cold in earnest. He seemed to freeze all the way through. He drove mechanically, becoming almost numb as the wind, unimpeded now, struck him squarely. He lost all interest in what he was doing or where he was going. He called himself a fool for having left the cozy warmth of the White Star Cafe. He told himself——

Suddenly he clamped on the brakes. It was a narrow squeak! The end of the long freight train rumbled on into the night! Spike hadn't seen it; only the racket of the big cars as they crossed East End avenue, and then the lights on the rear of the caboose, had warned him.

He stopped his car for perhaps fifteen seconds to make sure that the crossing was clear, then started on again, a bit shaken by the narrow escape. He bumped cautiously across the railroad tracks.

The rest of the journey was a nightmare. The suburb through which he was passing seemed to have congealed. Save for the corner lights, there was no sign of life. The roofs and sidewalks glistened with ice. Occasionally the car struck a bump and skidded dangerously. Spike had forgotten his passenger, forgotten the restaurant, the coffee, the weather itself. He only remembered that he was cold—almost unbearably cold.

Then he began taking note of the houses. There was No. 916. He looked ahead. These were houses of the poorer type—the homes of laborers situated on the outer edge of the suburb of East End. Funny — the handsomely-dressed woman — such a poor neighborhood——

He came to a halt before a dilapidated bungalow which squatted darkly in the night. Stiff with cold, he reached his hand back to the door on the right of the car, and with difficulty opened it. Then he spoke:

"Here y're, miss. No. 981!"

Still no answer. Spike clambered stiffly from the car, circled to the curb, and stuck his head in the door.

"Here, miss——"

Spike stepped back. Then he again put his head inside the cab.

"Well, I'll be——"

The thing was impossible, and yet it was true. Spike gazed at the seat. The woman had disappeared!

The thing was absurd—impossible! He had seen her get into the cab at the Union Station. There, in front of the car, was her suitcase; but she had gone—disappeared completely—vanished without leaving a sign.

Momentarily forgetful of the cold, Spike found a match and lighted it. Holding it cupped in his hands, he peered within the cab. Then he recoiled with a cry of horror.

For, huddled on the floor, he discerned the body of a man!

CHAPTER II.

The Suit Case Opened.

The barren trees which lined the broad, deserted thoroughfare jutted starkly into the night, waving their menacing, ice-crusted arms. The December gale, sweeping westward, shrieked through the glistening branches. It shrieked warning and horror, howled and sighed, sighed and howled.

Spike Walters felt suddenly ill. He forgot the cold, and was conscious of a fear which acted as a temporary anesthesia. For a few seconds he stood staring, until the match which he held burned out and scorched the flesh of his fingers.

His jaw dropped—his eyes widened. He opened his lips and tried to speak, but closed them again without having uttered a sound save a choking gasp. He tried again, feeling an urge for speech — something, anything, to make him believe that he was here alive — that the horror within the cab was real. This time he uttered an "Oh, my God!"

The words seemed to vitalize him. He fumbled for another match, found it, and lighted it within the cab. It seemed to have the radiance of an incandescent.

Spike had hoped that his first impression would prove to be a mere figment of his imagination; but now there was no doubting. There, sprawled in an ugly, inhuman heap on the floor, head resting against the cushioned seat of the cab, was the figure of a man. There was no doubt that he was dead. Even Spike, young, optimistic, and unversed in the ways of death as he was, knew that he was alone with a corpse.

As he gazed, a strange courage came to him. He found himself emboldened to investigate with fear and with the terrific cold of the night. He could not quite bring himself to touch the body, but he did not need to move it to see that murder had been done.

The clothes told him instantly that the man was of high social station. They were obviously expensive clothes—probably tailor-made. The big coat, open at the top, was flung back. Beneath, Spike discerned a gray tweed—and on the breast of the gray tweed was a splotch, a dark, ugly thing which appeared black and was not black. Spike shuddered. He had never liked the sight of blood.

The match spluttered and went out. Spike looked around. He felt hopelessly alone. Not a pedestrian; not a light. The houses, set well back from the street, were dark, forbiddingly dark.

He saw a street car rattle past, bound on the final run of the night for the car sheds at East End. Then he was alone again—alone and frightened.

He felt the necessity for action. He must do something—something, but what? What was there to do?

A great fear gripped him. He was with the body. The body was in his cab. He would be arrested for the murder of the man!

Of course, he knew he didn't do it. The woman had committed the murder.

Spike swore. He had almost forgotten the woman. Where was she? How had she managed to leave the taxicab? When had the man, who now lay sprawled in the cab, entered it?

He had driven straight from the Union Station to the address given by the woman—straight down East End avenue turning neither to right nor left. The utter impossibility of the situation robbed it of some of its stark horror. And yet——

Spike knew that he must do something. He tried to think connectedly, and found it a difficult task. Near him loomed the shadow which was No. 981 East End avenue—the address given by the woman when she entered the cab. He might go in there and report the circumstances. Someone there would know who she was, and—but he hesitated.

Perhaps this thing had been prearranged. Perhaps they would get him—for what he didn't know. When a man—a young man—comes face to face with murder for the first time, making its acquaintance on a freezing December midnight, and in a lonely spot, he is not to be blamed if his mental equilibrium is destroyed.

Wild plans chased each other through his brain. He might dump the body by the roadside and run back to town. That was absurd on the face of it, for he would be convicting himself when the body was found. It would be traced to him in some way—he knew that. He was already determined to keep away from No. 981 East End avenue. There was something sinister in the unfriendly shadow of the rambling house. He might call the police.

That was it—he would call the police. But how? Go into a house near by, wake the residents, telephone headquarters that a murder had been done? Alarm the neighborhood, and identify himself with the crime? Spike was afraid, frankly and boyishly afraid—afraid of the present, and more afraid of the future.

And yet he knew that he must get in touch with the police, else the police would eventually get in touch with him. He thought then of taking the body in to headquarters; but he feared that his cab might be stopped en route to the city and the body discovered. They would never believe, then, that he had been bound for headquarters.

Almost before he knew that he had arrived at a decision, Spike had groped his way across the icy street and pressed the bell button on the front door of the least unprepossessing house on the block.

For a long time there was no answer. Finally a light shone in the hall, and the skinny figure of a man, shivering violently despite the blanket-robe which enfolded him, appeared in the hallway. He flashed on the porch light from inside and peered through the glass door. Apparently reassured, he cracked the door slightly.

"Yes. What do you want?"

At sound of a human voice, Spike immediatetly felt easier. The fact that he could converse, that he had shed his terrible loneliness, steadied him as nothing else could have done. He was surprised at his own calmness, at the fact that there was scarcely a quaver in the voice with which he answered the man.

"I'm Spike Walters," he said, with surprising quietness. "I'm a driver for the Yellow and White Taxi Company. My cab is 92,381. I have a man in my cab who has been badly injured. I want to telephone to the city."

The little householder opened the door wider, and Spike entered. Cold as the house was, from the standpoint of the man within, its cold-over warmth was a godsend to Spike's thoroughly chilled body.

The little man designated a telephone on the wall, then started nervously as central answered, and Spike barked a single command into the transmitter:

"Police station, please!"

"Police?"

"Never you mind, sir," Spike told the householder. "Hello! Police!" he called to the operator.

There was a pause, then Spike went on:

"This is Spike Walters—Yellow and White Taxi Company. I'm out at No. 981 East End avenue. There's a dead man in my cab!"

The weary voice at the other end became suddenly alive.

"A dead man?"

"Yes."

"Who is he?"

"I don't know. That's why I called you."

"When did he die? How?"

Spike controlled himself with an effort.

"Don't you understand? He has been killed——"

"The devil you say!" replied the voice at headquarters, and the little householder chimed in with a frightened squeak.

"Yes," repeated Spike, painstakingly. "The man is dead—killed. It is very peculiar. I can't explain over the phone. I called up to ask you what I shall do."

"Hold connection a minute!" Spike heard a hurried whispered conversation at the other end, then the voice barked back at him: "Stay where you are—couple of officers coming, and coming fast!"

It was Dan O'Leary, night desk sergeant, who was on duty at headquarters that night, and Sergeant Dan O'Leary was a good deal of an institution on the city's force. He hopped excitedly from his desk into the office of Eric Leverage, the chief of police.

Chief Leverage, a broad-shouldered heavy-set, bushy-eyebrowed individual, looked up from the chessboard, annoyed at this interruption of a game which had been in progress since 10 o'clock that night. O'Leary grabbed a salute from thin air.

"'Scuse my botherin' ye, chief, but there's hell to pay out at the East End."

O'Leary was never long at coming to the point. Leverage looked up. So, too, did the boyish, clean-shaven young man with whom he was playing chess.

"An' knowin' that Mr. Carroll was playin' chess with ye, chief—an' him naturally interested in such things— I hopped right in."

"I'll say you did!" commented the chief, phlegmatically. "I have you there, Carroll—dead to rights!"

O'Leary was a trifle irritated at the cold reception accorded his news.

"Ye ain't afther understandin'," he said slowly. "It's murder that has been done this night."

"H-m!" Carroll's slow, pleasant drawl seemed to soothe O'Leary. "Murder?"

"You said it, Mr. Carroll."

Leverage had risen. It was plain to be seen from his manner that the chess game was forgotten. Leverage was a policeman first and a chess-player second—a very poor second. His voice, surcharged with interest, cracked out into the room.

"Spill the dope, O'Leary!"

The night desk sergeant needed no second bidding. In a few graphic words he outlined his telephone conversation with Spike Walters.

Before he finished speaking Leverage was slipping into his enormous overcoat. He nodded to Carroll.

"How about trotting out there with me, David?"

Carroll smiled agreeably.

"Thank goodness, my new coupe has a heating device, chief."

That was all. It wasn't David Carroll's way to talk much, or to show any untoward emotion. It was Carroll's very boyishness which was his greatest asset. He had a way of stepping into a case before the principals knew he was there, and of solving it in a manner which savored not at all of flamboyance. A quiet man was Carroll, and one whose deductive powers Eric Leverage fairly worshiped.

The CHILDREN'S HOUR

SULKY LITTLEST BEAR RUNS AWAY.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

No one loves a sulky face,
For such there'll never be a place.
—Mother Bear.

Littlest Bear was the most abused little Bear that ever lived. At least, that is what she thought, or pretended to think. Right down in her heart she knew better. She knew that she wasn't abused at all. She knew that she had simply been punished as she deserved to be. But spoiled little people are quite apt to think themselves abused when unexpectedly they are punished. It was just so with Little Bar.

So Littlest Bear sulked and sulked as she tagged along after Mother Bear and Brother and Sister. Brother and Sister had had a feast of fish, but Littlest Bear had had only the littlest fish, and that was hardly more than a bite.

"I hate them! I do so. I hate them!" said Littles Bear to herself. Of course, she didn't do anything of them!" said Littlest Bear to herself, make herself think she did. "I'll go way off where they will never see me again, and then I guess they will be sorry," she continued. "Yes, sir, I'll run way, way, way off. I'll run way, way, way, off where they'll never see me again. Perhaps Mother Bear will hunt and hunt and hunt, and she'll wish and wish and wish she never had treated me so."

Still, Littlest Bear tagged along behind. It was one thing to say that she would run away, and quite another thing to do it. But she kept lagging further and further behind. She tried to make herself believe that Mother Bear was walking too fast. Mother Bear was walking fast, but Littlest Bear could have kept up without any trouble if she had wanted to. She kept expecting Mother Bear to wait for her, as Mother Bear had been in the habit of doing. But Mother Bear didn't wait. This fact angered Littlest Bear still more.

"It's because she doesn't care about me any more," grumbled Littlest Bear to herself. "She don't care what becomes of me. If she did, she would wait for me. I'll run away. I will, I will."

Littlest Bear sat down. Mother Bear and Brother and Sister were out of sight. Littlest Bear waited a few minutes to see if Mother Bear would come back. Mother Bear didn't. Littlest Bear started off in another direction as fast as her short legs would take her. She actually was running away. Yes, sir, she actually was running away.

She didn't pay any attention to where she was going. There was only one thought in that foolish little head of hers, and that was to get as far as she could before Mother Bear would discover that she was no longer following. So se ran and ran and ran until she was quite out of breath, and until her short legs fairly ached.

Littlest Bear waited a few minutes to see if Mother Bear would come back.

Then she climbed a tree. Little Bears always feel safer in a tree. For that matter, big Bears often seem to feel safer in a tree. So littlest Bear climbed a tree where she found a comfortable seat in a crotch and prepared to take a rest. She didn't intend to go to sleep, but she did. You know she was still a very small Bear, and she was very tired. She was asleep almost before she had had time to wonder if Mother Bear had begun to look for her yet.

The next story: "Littlest Bear Is Lonesome."

Oxford's Ancient Recipe For Wassail.

Oxford claims to have the original recipe for wassail bowl, used centuries ago: Put into a bowl half a pint of Lisbon sugar (probably ordinary coarse sugar, such as we had in war-time) and pour on it one quart of warm beer; grate a nutmeg and some ginger into it; add four glasses of sherry and five additional pints of beer; stir it well and sweeten to your taste; let it stand covered for three hours, then put three or four slices of bread, cut thin and toasted brown, into it, and the drink is ready for use. It is only fair to the Elizabethans who enjoyed this drink to say that their beer was probably very different from the beverage served under that name nowadays.

Think of the hundred and one little comforts of life that surround you and that no force other than newspaper advertising could have brought to your doors. Then keep on reading the advertisements. Tomorrow's offerings are knocking for admission.

Inside the Big Tent.

Dear Cynthia Grey,—Well, here's Aunt Samantha back again after a long, long silence. I guess you will wonder what has got me started. It's reading all the election news in the paper.

I see the London Liberals are meeting this evening, Thursday, to nominate a candidate. I do hope they will put up a good temperance man to back Mr. Wellington Hay, who has come right out plain and pledged his party to support the O. T. A. and enforce it, until such time as the majority of the people call for a referendum, like they did the last time.

Yes, I'm a White Ribboner, and after all the years I've worked to make this province a safe and happy place for women and children, and a better one for the men, it would almost break my heart to see things slip back to the way they were before. Essex County, where I live, has had a lot of unpleasant notoriety about boot-legging and that sort of thing, but let me tell you conditions are away ahead of what they were before, and what they will be if Ferguson and his "beer and wine" and "abolish the O. T. A." backers get in power.

Perhaps you wonder, since I live out in the country, why I don't belong to the U. F. O. Well, it's just like this, Cynthia, I guess I'm what you'd call a confirmed democrat. I believe in everybody having a square deal and equal chance at running affairs, provided they have the intelligence and common sense and are honest. I don't think it's fair for farmers to want to run the government, any more than I would think it was fair for doctors or lawyers. Say, wouldn't there be a nice hubbub if the ministers all got together and said they should run as a party for parliament because they didn't think the churches were getting a square deal in the country and the ministers all the wages to which they thought they were entitled?

Well, that's the way I feel about a farmer government, or a farmer-labor government, as they call it. Its isn't fair all round.

I see women are running in the election in Toronto, and I hope they will get there, too.

Sakes alive, there's 10 o'clock striking, and I've got to be up at 5 in the morning. My Josiah says I never do know when to stop when I get started on politics, prohibition, or tatting patterns. He started calling me Samantha, on account of my taking the part of Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers when they were fighting for the vote in the old country before the war. I got back by nicknaming him Josiah, which, of course, isn't his real name any more than Samantha is mine. Fortunately, he's Liberal, too, though I noticed signs at times of leaning to U. F. O. He's through with that, though, since Drury made up with J. J.

Well, good-night, Cynthia and Boxites. AUNT SAMANTHA.

And now we're almost ready for another letter, Aunt Samantha, to tell us what you thought about Thursday night's meeting, from the account in the paper. Cynthia Grey popped into a corner at the back of the meeting and chuckled to herself with pride at the way the women acted in the "big tents" of the chief. But there's just this thing about the London women who were nominated, Aunt Samantha. They are staunchly Liberal-hearted and they're firm behind the O. T. A., and they're willing to think politics from the word "go," but they are just "womanly" enough women to prefer to be "wanted" rather than "want." They are willing to work like Trojans for the Liberal cause, but they aren't going to try to take their places inside the big council tent until they are very sure that the "big chiefs" want them. But in the meanwhile they're going to work, work, work!

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

CLARISSA MARKETING PROJECT.

By RUBY DOUGLAS.

Clarissa Hurd was experiencing, for the first time in her twenty-odd years of life, the hardships due to having an insufficient income and no training in any wage-earning work.

"But," she was explaining to the aunt with whom she was living in the suburban town, "I know I can find a way in which to support myself. I shall not let my mind rest until it comes to me with a bright and promising idea."

Aunt Emily was a little old-fashioned, but she did believe in concentration, and if Clarissa seemed a trifle absent-minded in the next few days it was because she was searching the realms of possibilities for her own material future, and her aunt sympathized with her mood.

"I have it—I have it," she almost shouted one afternoon as she dashed in at the back door, letting in a flood of red sunlight from the fast-disappearing disc of fire.

Aunt Emily was getting supper—they still had supper, as did many others in the surburban settlement, where the men folks came home at noon from factory or store for a noonday dinner.

"You might be going in for the movie business the way you are gyrating around," dryly remarked Aunt Emily.

"No, Aunt Emily—not yet. I'm going to turn this old jitney that father left to me as his only bequest into a means of making a living."

Aunt Emily was curious. "How so?"

"I'm going to start a little profession of my own—house marketing. Most of the people up here in this settlement have to go on the trolley car to the village to market. It costs them fourteen cents for carfare, but they have often told me it pays them to go for their things even then. And in the new shops in the village there is no delivery, but the groceries, meats and vegetables are marked far below those sold in the stores that have a delivery system and a telephone."

Clarissa was growing enthusiastic as she felt her aunt's understanding of her project.

"I propose to go to the neighbors, one by one, and tell them that I will call at their homes every morning or twice a week as they see fit, and get their whole list of errands for the day I'll take the laundry, collats and all the things that have to go to the village, get the groceries, meats, and take the children's shoes to the cobbler. All this for a quarter, only eleven cents more than carfare, and all the time and trouble saved for the housewife. I'll get the best of attention from the stores, and the customers will reap the benefit. Do you see, Aunt Emily?"

"It seems like a feasible idea, my dear. And it costs so little to run that car, and pa takes care of it for you."

Clarissa went to work at once to make a list of the persons who she thought would appreciate her services. One by one she called on them, and explained her purpose.

Inside of four weeks she had more than half a dozen families a day on an average, and numbered 40 housewives on her list.

In the big grocery store where Clarissa did most of her ordering, she was well liked, as much for her charming personality as for the business she brought to the shop daily.

"Miss Hurd, we are having a new manager in here next week," said Mr. Andrews, the young man who had been taking care of her orders.

Clarissa's face fell. "Oh, are you going?"

The young man blushed. "Yes, I have been made manager of a chain."

"They have promoted me faster than I have deserved, I fear," he explained. "I hope you won't make the lack of my personal attention to your orders keep you away from the store."

Clarissa assured him that she would not but she could not see how any new manager could make himself as popular with the shoppers as had young Mr. Andrews. The place was clean, everything was fresh and courtesy was the object of every clerk.

On Monday Clarissa began her day's work with a big list of orders contrary to custom. She sat down on the wooden stool and got out her marketing list and pencil.

"Have you been served?" she heard a voice at her elbow ask.

She turned to look into warm golden brown eyes and a smiling face. He was a stranger.

"No—thank you. Not yet." The young man took the place opposite her at the counter and filled her order quickly, with a quick understanding of the new stock. He was the new manager, Robert Underwood.

"I'll have the things put in your car, madam," he said when the order was ready.

Clarissa thanked him and led the way to her shabby jitney standing at the curb.

Mr. Underwood looked at the car as if he quite understood that this was merely the service car and that there was a better one at home, perhaps many. No one would be making such a big order if she owned only this ragged-looking jitney.

Clarissa thought she understood the expression and decided to have a little fun playing the grande dame to this new and unenlightened young store manager.

For weeks she made him think she was a wealthy young woman, quite out of his class, he had decided. With reservations he referred to his own station in life. Clarissa had noticed the shape of his hands and had caught the cultured tone of his voice occasionally.

One morning when they were loading Clarissa's big order into her old car she observed that her rear left tire was flat.

"Oh, dear," she sighed. "And these groceries are late now."

Robert Underwood came quickly to her rescue. "I happen to have my car standing at the back. Won't you let me run them—and you—home and see that this goes to the garage for you?"

His voice was so kindly, the necessity that she be on time so important, that Clarissa accepted the offer.

It was nearly two miles from the village to Clarissa's home. She had all the groceries deposited on her aunt's front stoop, and then and there she explained her profession.

"And I thought you were some horribly rich person who would not even know that I existed," said the young man, knowingly. "Was that kind?"

"It was purely business," Clarissa insisted.

"Perhaps you'd let me come to see you some evening and explain to you just what the business means to me—just why I am taking personal charge of each store in turn to find out its requirements. Would you be interested?"

Clarissa nodded. "I'd love to know," she said, as he left.

When he did come to see her he told her more than that he was the son of one of the members of the firm that ran the chain of stores in small towns. He told her that he had had a premonition that in this particular vicinity he was going to find the only girl in the world.

"And—have you found her—yet?" asked Clarissa.

"Have I?"

Clarissa decided that he had, and it was not long before she had to sell out her marketing profession to a young woman in the town.

CALCULATIONS.

A gentleman with long hair and an expression indicating heavenly resignation, stepped off the 12:30 train at the Grand Central depot yesterday. He had a little bunch of temperance tracts in his hand, and he struck a strong scent, and followed it up to a red-nosed individual who was leaning on a truck near the baggage-room.

"My friend," said the long-haired man, "do you know that if you had placed the price of three drinks out at compound interest at the time of the building of Solomon's temple, you would now have $47,998,645.22?"

"I do," said the red-nosed man. "I am something of a calculator myself. I also figured out when the doctor insisted on painting my nose with iodine to cure that boil that the first lantern-jawed, rubbernecked son-of-a-gun from the amen corner of Meddlesome Company that made any remarks about it would have to jump seventeen feet in nine seconds or get kicked thirteen times below the belt. You have just four seconds left."

The long-haired made a brilliant retreat within his allotted time and bore down with his temperance tracts upon a suspicious looking Houston man, who was carrying home a bottle of mineral water wrapped in a newspaper to his mother-in-law.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION by Felice Davis

THE CURE.

Herbert—I wish you'd stop humming; you're perfectly callous to my sufferings!

Emily—I'm sorry, dear—I thought you felt better.

Herbert—I'll never feel better in this world—and you know it!

Emily—But Herbert, the doctor said if you'd only look at the rosy side of things and take some interest in life you'd be all right.

Herbert—All doctors are fools—what does he know about the way I feel?

Emily—How would you like to go for a little ride in the new limousine? You haven't even looked at it!

Herbert—Nope—all cars look alike to me.

Emily—We might get up a party on the yacht and cruise in the Mediterranean—

Herbert—I'm sick of yachts — parties—all that's left for me is to lie here and think how I can leave you comfortably fixed after I'm gone—all the thanks I get for it!

Emily—Herbert! How can you—

Herbert—The estate'll be too much for you to handle alone, and I don't trust lawyers—pack of thieves!

Emily—I can always go to Mr. Darcey for advice—he was father's best friend.

Herbert—And an old fossil, too! Keep away from him, Emily!

Emily — Well then, there's Will Trevor?

Herbert—Too much of a gambler—he'd speculate with your last penny.

Emily—Then there's no one left but Jim Halliday—you've always liked him—

Herbert—Hm—I guess Jim's about the best—though that's not saying much!

Emily—Oh, I'm so glad you approve of him because I have it all planned—

Herbert — Planned? What planned

Emily—Well, it will look so queer for a young widow to be continually running to a good-looking young bachelor for advice, so we—we've decided that the only decent thing will be for me to marry him!

Herbert—M-marry him!

Emily—Yes; I knew you'd like the idea, dear—my future will be off your mind—so I've asked Jim to drop in this afternoon and we'll have a nice little chat and settle it.

Herbert — W-what! You—you're planning to m-marry him before I'm even—

Emily—Hush, dear — here's Jim now!

Jim—Hello, Herbert! Feeling better?

Herbert—You—you—

Emily—I've just been telling Herbert about our plan, Jim—he's delighted!

Jim—Pleased, eh? I knew he'd see things our way!

Herbert—Emily!

Jim—Now you needn't have a minute's worry about Emily's future, old chap—I'll take care of that!

Herbert—Listen here! I—

Jim—Poor old Herbert! Well, if he has to go we must look on the bright side of it!

Emily—Yes, the bright side is left for us, Jim. Come, let's sit on the window seat and plan our future!

Herbert—Emily! Come here! I—

Jim—That's it—sit here. Think how wonderful it's going to be when we can sit together this way in our own home!

Emily—Our love nest. You'll want us to keep the country house, of course, Herbert?

Herbert—I—I—I—

Jim—Think of being greeted each evening by you and the little voice of our—

Herbert—Stop! I forbid—

Jim—And the little voice of our Pekingese—we must name one for Herbert.

Emily—And you'll be my great, big, wonderful husband!

Herbert—Emily! Emily! I—

Emily—It's the illness that makes Herbert so excited, Jim.

Jim—It's the end coming on. I'm afraid—but it means the beginning for us—when you're my wife!

Herbert—"Wife!" You snake in the grass! You're not going to get rid of me so easily!

Emily—Herbert! Get back in bed! The doctor wouldn't—

Herbert—Get out of my way! Let me at him! I'll show you both I'm no dying invalid!

Emily—Jim! Quick—go! He'll kill you!

Herbert — There — and there! Now get out of my house!

Emily — Herbert! Don't — don't Oh! You've thrown him downstairs!

Herbert—If that scoundrel ever shows his face here again he'll be sorry!

Emily—You don't understand! It—it was all a plan to cure you—to make you jealous—Jim was only helping—

Herbert—Throw those medicine bottles out—get my clothes—

Emily—Herbert! Why Jim's engaged to Betty Tyler—

Herbert—Never mind explaining—I see your little plan all right, but it doesn't work! I won't die to please you two—not if I have to hang on until I'm two hundred! Get my golf clubs and tell the cook to have a big dinner ready—and if I find your Romeo on the porch when I get back I'll wipe up the earth with him!

PREDICTS WORLD SOON TO DEVELOP INTO PERFECTION

E. V. Whelpton Attacks Literal Translation of Symbolisms in Bible.

REVIEWS PROPHECIES

Asserts Righteous Will Live Happily and Incorrigibles Perish.

With clear and simple logic Mr. E. V. Whelpton of the lecture staff of the International Bible Students' Association presented on Sunday the evidence of Scripture that this earth is to be the happy and everlasting home of the restored and perfected human race. Mr. Whelpton spoke on "Where Will Those Millions Live and How?" at the Grand Theatre, and his lecture was a continuation of Judge Rutherford's lecture at Loew's last week.

"To take literally, statements that are evidently symbolical leads to confusion," the speaker said. "For one passage in Scripture that tells of the earth burning up also tells of the heavens being on fire, so that of the three conditions, earth, heaven and hell, we would have left one to choose. The Scripture also says 'Death and hell shall be cast into the lake of fire.' Creeds of men are confusing, but the scriptures rightly understood are thoroughly harmonious.

"The destroying of the first world by a flood did not mean the destroying of the literal earth," said the speaker, "but it signified a new civil and social arrangement on earth and new powers of spiritual control in the heavens." Thus, when "this present evil world," the god of which is Satan, shall pass away, which it is now doing, there shall be ushered in the world to come wherein dwelleth righteousness."

World Without End.

It will be a "world without end," and the new spiritual power will be Christ. That is not merely Jesus Christ alone, but also the members of his body of which he is the head. These constitute that "little flock" to whom alone a heavenly home is offered. These are not selected that they might selfishly enjoy the bliss of heaven to all eternity, but that they with Christ might bring to men the gift of life which he has promised to bestow. People do not at present live on the earth, the earth is where people die.

"The punishment for sin is death by a gradual process, which comes about through lack of perfect food. Precautions were taken that the first pair who were disobedient should not eat of the tree of life and live for ever. When in the near future men shall "beat their swords into ploughshares and spears into pruning-hooks," they will use them to draw from the earth the nourishment necessary to sustain life indefinitely contingent upon obedience to the creator.

Predicts Better Life.

Then the "earth shall yield her increase"; "the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose"; "the wilderness and solitary place shall be glad for them," and "every man sit under his own vine and fig tree," and "none molest or make them afraid," as landlords do now. Jesus taught us to pray "Thy kingdom come" to this earth; Daniel's vision shows the next universal dominion to be that of Christ and His church, who will establish God's kingdom. That kingdom is to stand for ever; therefore the earth must stand for ever, and that is the declaration of Jehovah. Great changes are yet to take place in the earth itself, for it is part of "the purchased possession." All in their graves, according to Jesus, shall ex- their preference for righteousness and perience this opportunity to manifest thus continue to live, but those who are incorrigible shall die again with no hope of resurrection.

SLEEPING SICKNESS ATTACKS E. FLANNERY

Well-Known London Commercial Traveler Is Suffering From Dread Disease.

Edward Flannery, a well-known and popular traveler of this city, is in a serious condition at his home, 436 Charlotte street, suffering from an attack of sleeping sickness which first manifested itself last Friday morning.

He is being attended by Dr. Angus McLean and Dr. W. McDermott, who state that from present indications Mr. Flannery is passing through the initial stages of this malady.

They are at present unable to predict how long the attack will last, as the continued condition of lethargy characteristic of the disease has not yet become markedly apparent.

Terrible Headaches and Dizziness

Miss S. Raphael, 237 Kenilworth Ave. N., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I used to suffer from terrible headaches and dizziness. Last summer, while I was walking up a side street, I got a dizzy spell and fell in the middle of the road. An old gentleman helped me to get to where I was going and told me to get a vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Well, I did, and they did wonders for me. I don't know how to thank you, as I don't get headaches or dizzy spells any more."

When your liver gets sluggish and inactive your whole health suffers, and the only way to keep well is to keep the liver active and performing its proper functions by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills.

Rev. Father Forristal Asks Respect For Name of God

Urges Catholic Men of City and District To Adhere To Pledges At Monster Rally in Sacred Heart Grounds.

Impressive both in numbers and bearing was the annual rally of the Holy Name Societies of the city and district held Sunday afternoon on the spacious grounds of the Sacred Heart Convent.

As in former years, the rally took the form of a monster parade from St. Peter's Cathedral to the convent grounds, where special services, including a sermon, initiation of new members and Benediction, were held. The attendance at the grounds was nearly 4,000.

Lining up in front of the cathedral at 2:30, the members of the branches of the society, St. Michael's, St. Martin's, St. Patrick's, St. Mary's, and St. Peter's parishes of London, as well as large representations from St. Thomas, West Lorne, Strathroy and Alvinston, marched down Dufferin avenue to Wellington, up Wellington to Queen's, down Queen's to Maitland, then to Dundas and the grounds.

The societies marching behind their various banners and to the splendid music provided by the Marconi Band, presented a smart appearance as they walked in columns of four to the convent grounds, proclaiming by their public manifestation that the name of Jesus Christ should be revered and honored by the whole world.

Scouts and Cadets March.

The Catholic boy scouts and the junior cadet corps from Holy Angels' Church, St. Thomas, were also in line. The soldierly touch their flawless marching gave the procession brought forth expressions of praise from the throngs that lined the route of march.

Rev. Father L. M. Forristal preached a stirring sermon to the assembled members urging them to increase their fervor and devotion to Jesus Christ, and to strive always to keep the name of the Son of God unsullied by human blasphemy.

Taking as his text: Chap. 1, verse 8 of the Acts of the Apostles, "and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." Father Forristal gave a survey of the religious conditions in the world outside the chosen people of God before Christ came to preach the gospel of redemption.

"With His coming," Father Forristal said, "a new order came into the world. God became man and He gave His doctrines to be preached to all men and all nations. To you men of the Holy Name Society I say that your mission on earth is similar to that of the apostles when they set out upon their God-given mission to convert the world. And today the conditions are not unlike those that confronted the apostles nearly two thousand years ago.

Asks Love For God.

"There are two faculties of the human soul which distinguish man from all other creatures," the speaker asserted. "They are the human intellect and the human will. It is through the subjection of these two faculties that men can show their real love for Almighty God.

"We should subject our intellect to God by accepting the truths. He has made known to us whether we can understand them or not, and our will by accepting His commandments and obeying them whether or not they appear reasonable to us.

"The world today refuses, for the most part, to accept the truths that God has made known to us by Revelation. But it is not so with scientific truths. The world accepts, unquestioned, the findings of science.

"Practically all the virtues the world accepts are natural virtues. The virtues are known through natural reasons, and are practiced by natural and not supernatural motives. For example, a man is temperate, not because God commands it, but because it might injure his reputation or efficiency if he were intemperate.

"Then, is a man honest because God in His commandments says that he must be honest or because dishonesty is despicable in itself and lowers a man in the opinion of his fellows? Is a man truthful because lying and hypocrisy are opposed to the natural dictates of reason or because God says that man must not lie?

"Men substitute the conclusions of their own reasoning for divine revelations. And this condition is not found among men who are engaged in an unholy warfare against religion, but in honest, sincere and, in a sense, God-fearing men who are victims of a false principle."

Then addressing in particular the members of the Holy Name Societies, he declared that they were the picked soldiers of Jesus Christ, and upon enlisting under His banner had pledged their loyalty and fidelity to Him who came to earth and died an ignominious death on the cross that men's souls might be saved.

Defend Faith.

"If you are true knights of Jesus Christ," he said in concluding, "you will be ready everywhere and at any time to defend that faith of which you are so proud. You will be ready to face the world and the devil fearlessly. Human respect should not interfere where the profession of your faith is concerned. What does it matter to you if men, groveling in ignorance and ridicule, laugh at you when you know you are following the teachings of God?

"In your private as well as public lives be loyal to Jesus Christ, and be true to your country and to yourselves. Keep His commandments, not for a day or week after you have received communion, but all the time.

"If your lives are modeled after the thirty-three years that God spent on earth for our redemption, then the glorious death of an apostle shall be yours; and when all is over, when the fever of life is through, and when your work is done, you will find peace, joy and happiness with God for all eternity."

After the sermon a number of new candidates were received by Right Rev. M. F. Fallon, Bishop of London, and then the members present renewed their pledges to lead a truly Christian life, to attend church and the sacraments regularly, and to reverence the name of Jesus Christ. His lordship, in a few words, commented upon the large crowd that had turned out for the annual rally and reminded the Holy Name members of the duties that are theirs in belonging to an organization, the prime motive of which is to keep holy the name of Jesus Christ. The rally closed with all singing, "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

DEPLORES INCREASING DISREGARD OF SABBATH

Rev. J. A. Agnew Outlines Activities At the Recent Methodist Conference At Sarnia.

Flagrant disregard of the Lord's Day Act is one of the most pernicious influences working against Christianity, according to Rev. J. A. Agnew of Ridout Street Methodist Church. Mr. Agnew, in a sermon Sunday morning, declared the delegates at the Methodist conference in Sarnia were agreed that non-observance of the Sabbath was one of the most urgent problems with which the church was confronted.

"Pillars of society must guard against the inroads made into the Sabbath day," Mr. Agnew said. "Sunday picnics, excursions and concerts are all unnecessary, and every effort should be made to combat them. The farmer is, perhaps, more justified than any other class to a certain amount of recreation on Sunday. But it is the farmer who is the most rigid in recognizing the sanctity of the day."

In outlining the activities of the Windsor conference, Mr. Agnew drew attention to the attitude of Methodism toward church union. His personal opinion was that union could not come too soon, and he believed its consummation would be in the spiritual, moral and intellectual interests of Canada. Church union was particularly necessary in the western provinces, where sparsely populated sections were divided into denominations, causing dissatisfaction and restraint.

In summarizing the work of the Windsor conference, Mr. Agnew said the attending ministers all professed to see a tendency on the part of the public to a greater church attendance. Methodism was in a healthy condition, he averred. Whether or not church union became a reality, Methodism promised to grow and flourish, and the future was to be regarded with keenest optimism.

UNUSUAL FEATURES MARK NEW OVERLAND MODEL

A new light car model with improved body lines and with construction hitherto used only on more expensive types is announced by Willys-Overland, Limited.

In presenting the "91," the company draws particular attention to the higher hood and radiator, which certainly do make the new car most attractive. The same up-to-date lines are used for both open and closed types, and in appearance the new Overland takes a foremost place in the light car class.

The Overland, in the four styles of the 91 as well as in the Blue Bird model 92, is manufactured, not merely assembled, in the Canadian factories at West Toronto. This industry has grown to large proportions, and the already big business of 1923 is calculated to receive a marked impetus by today's announcement of the new model 91.

Summer Suits—Practical As Well As Smart

Flannel, Grass Cloth or Homespun, all smart, one admits—but these suits demonstrate how useful they can be for summer wear in addition. A separate blouse is the answer, for by changing blouses one changes the costume; and a suit thus can serve for tailleur or dressy wear with equal facility. Coats are jaunty—skirts youthfully pleated or slenderly wrap-around. You'll find the loveliest suits here.

WAR VETERANS' BAND DELIGHTS HUNDREDS

Sunday Evening Concert in Queen's Park Proves of High Order.

Queen's Park again attracted hundreds of London's citizens last night, despite the promise of a rainstorm made by darkened skies, when the band of the Great War Veterans' Association gave another of its popular band concerts. Starting at 8:30, a program of the very highest type and which served well to show the caliber of the musicians was carried out. Motorists drove into the grounds or parked their cars outside for a half hour, enjoying the music before driving on.

The ground here and there was dotted with those who came to spend the whole evening and did. Probably the outstanding numbers on the program were "Down South," a descriptive fantasie, and a euphonium solo, "The Lost Chord," played by Bandsman W. Ward. Other selections were "Flanders," a march; overture "Poet and Peasant"; novelette, "Eleanor"; selection, "Iolanthe," and a march "Belphegor." The concert closed as usual with the National Anthem.

DECLARES KINGDOM AWAITS JEWISH RACE

J. P. Vibert of Hamilton Addresses Large Audience in Castle Hall.

Quite a large congregation greeted J. P. Vibert of Hamilton, when he spoke in Castle Hall, corner of Dundas and Clarence streets, Sunday night, on "The Jews to Become a Kingdom With Jesus Returned as Their King."

Mr. Vibert dealt with the subject in a very interesting manner, giving a lecture that was well worth attending. He delivered to his audience many interesting facts about "God's chosen people," now scattered over the face of the earth, but who are destined to become a kingdom again.
