$100 WORTH OF SUBSCRIPTIONS WHICH WILL COUNT OVER 3,000,000 EXTRA VOTES IF SENT IN BY 10 P.M. NEXT MONDAY.

11-AUTOMOBILES-11 WILL BE GIVEN AWAY

Two new candidates enrolled Saturday and they are real workers too.

Where a person is now taking some other paper and is paid up to next August or some other date, they may pay you for a year's subscription to The Advertiser and have the paper started at the expiration of their bottom of your receipt, stating when you wish to have The Advertiser started.

All candidates living outside of the City of London may work up to the last minute next Monday night, then mail their subscriptions to The Advertiser Contest Department. Some may not reach us until the following afternoon, but all such returns will be protected on the extra 300,000 vote offer.

Already we have been asked to extend the extra offer of 300,000 votes to the end of February. This we cannot do as we distinctly said at the start that this was the biggest offer in extra votes that would be given at any period of the contest and would not be repeated.

The next extra vote offer that will be given will be 250,000 and the third extra vote offer will be 200,000. So that it is up to all candidates and their friends to rush along all their subscriptions during this week so as to get in on the 300,000 extra votes.

Two hundred dollars in cash will be given to the candidate who sends in the most yearly subscriptions by 10 p.m. next Monday (Feb. 25).

Candidates in The London Advertiser Contest are again warned to be on their guard against the usual crops of "wiseacres" who are showing such a pronounced interest in their welfare, suggesting how to conduct their campaign for getting subscriptions to win one of the big prizes, and in some cases these so-called friends have even gone as far as to attempt to discourage the candidate, by putting up some counter proposition. Just ask yourself why these "so-called friends" have taken such an interest in you since you enrolled in The London Advertiser Contest. If you were not piling up a big vote total in the race for the $20,000 worth of prizes in The London Advertiser Contest, these "so-called friends" would never have taken the trouble to look you up.

A candidate who wishes to drop out of the contest may transfer his or her votes, but in each case the transfer must be to a person who has not heretofore been registered in the contest.

The name and address of all candidates working in The London Advertiser Contest is published on this page. Thus each and every candidate may be verified, which affords no opportunity for any "dummy" candidates appearing in the list.

Three and six months subscriptions count in the 300,000 extra vote offer. The same as one straight yearly subscription.

Who Will Win the Special Cash Prizes? $200 In Cash

Are You a Good Father, Mr. Man? Dorothy Dix Gives Jolt to Fathers Who Pamper Their Daughters

A Good Father Sees That His Daughter Is Taught Some Trade or Profession; He Churns With Her So That He Can Help Select Her Husband; Above All He Protects Her After His Death by Leaving His Money in Trust for Her.

Are you a good father to your daughter, Mr. Man? You smile derisively at my question. A good father to your little girl!

Will let me tell you that if you have done for your daughter is just to pamper her and spoil her and make her weak and selfish and self-centered, you have not been a good father.

You have never looked upon your daughter as anything but a pretty doll to dress up and play with, and dolls cannot take care of themselves in the rough-and-tumble fight of life.

A good father is a man who doesn't look upon his daughter as a toy or a piece of bric-a-brac, but as a human being who has been born with the heavy handicap of the feminine sex upon her.

So the good father sees to it that his girl gets the very best education that she will take. Not the faddish, fluffy sort, but a solid, practical education that develops whatever gray matter she has got in her pretty little head.

Then the good father has his daughter taught some profession or trade whereby she can earn a living, and he has her follow this occupation for at least a year.

He does this for many reasons. He does it because he knows how easily money is lost, and he wants to know that his daughter has in herself the skill and ability to make her own living if she is ever thrown on her own resources.

He does it because he is aware that the knowledge that she can stand on her own feet and earn her own bread and butter and cake gives a girl a poise that nothing else in the world can give.

A good father chums with his daughter. He begins being confidential with her in her cradle, and this makes it natural that when she grows up she would discuss with him the boys who come to see her, and that father should be able to form her tastes and assiduously guide her in her choice of a husband.

Girls know nothing about men. It is impossible that they should, but there is nothing about any young chap that father can't find out, and if he knew that this youth had a hectic past, or that one drank, or the other one was a trifling ne'er-do-well, it would be the simplest thing possible to prevent many an unhappy marriage by making daughter see an undesirable suitor through the sophisticated eyes of a worldly-wise man.

A good father tries to protect his daughter after he is dead. So, when he makes his will he leaves her whatever money he has to bequeath her to be held up good and right in a trust company so that she cannot touch anything but the interest.

He knows that every woman who has any money is the foredoomed prey of get-rich-quick sharks and all of her parasitic relatives. He has seen too many women sell their gilt-edge bonds and invest the proceeds in wildcat stock that promised to pay 40 per cent and never paid a penny.

Above all, a good father leaves his daughter's money in trust for her, not only to save her money but to save her from friction with her husband. He has seen many a man graft his wife's fortune deliberately, and he has seen many more good men, who were poor business men, bring their wives to poverty.

Are you doing these things for your daughter, Mr. Man? Are you a good father? DOROTHY DIX. Copyright, 1924, by Public Ledger Company.

DENNY BROOKS A STORY OF COURAGE

By ELENORE MEHERN. CHAPTER XCIX. New Offer.

When Denny stood before Bernie Melrose pleading, "I've not quit! I won't quit!" it was the boy in him that spoke.

It was as though he stood before a storm shouting in vast, charging waves, and these swept past him in a work of scant devastation.

"No, Denny, Joan has been alone all her life nearly. You'll see Joan is all right. I know it surely."

"I'll prove it," he said at a little desk pushed against the big window in the living-room. The lights of Oakland and Berkeley flashed their merry yellow eyes all the way from hill to water.

why Petra." He laughed a gladness shaking him. "You darling—Petra."

"Then you do care, Diddle?" The cool, white hands were on his arms and the face with its dimples, his warm amber richness raised to his.

"I'll make it up, Petra." "Will you, Dendiddle?" She turned her face to him. He took it in his hands, kissed it. The softness of her lips dropped like fragrant petals in a shower of gladness on his.

"Yes—yes—of course. Why—" he added, grimly, "I'm kicked out, Petra. I've got to stay."

"Don't say it like that. Those horrid old farmers. What could you expect? It's over, Diddle. It's past. You're glad to stay?"

"No, indeed not, Petra. It's the bitter truth." "Peter wants to see you tomorrow. He has a job. And it's wonderful." A smile came over her lips.

"You'll take it, dearest, darlingest, now. Then we won't have to wait so long." "I'll prove it," he said at a little desk pushed against the big window in the living-room.

Relief Work in London.

There have been a number of privately-called meetings held in the city to put forward various views in connection with the building up of an organization to take care of the distribution of relief in London.

There are those who would take it out of the hands of the city entirely, asking a grant from the civic treasury for the purpose. There are several things to be considered in this regard, and the city officials figure in nearly all of them.

The relief office at the city hall was called in connection with a case where relief was thought to be necessary. An investigation was made, and there was no doubt about the need of the family, but the man of the house had his own ideas as to how it should be given.

The matter was taken up with the engineering department, and work was found for this citizen. The work gave this family the relief that was best for it, and it gave the city some value at least for the money so expended.

There are families, and praise be for them, who will suffer hardship rather than go to the city for relief, or let their circumstances become known to others.

There are families, and praise be for them, who will suffer hardship rather than go to the city for relief, or let their circumstances become known to others. These are often the people most deserving of assistance, and very often those the least likely to get it.

London and Toronto had armed robbers at work on Saturday night. Toronto had the variety that drive around in a car, make a dash for a till and escape. London had the kind that know how to use a jimmy, nitro-glycerine, and the proper method of blowing a safe door from its hinges.

London and Toronto had armed robbers at work on Saturday night. Toronto had the variety that drive around in a car, make a dash for a till and escape. London had the kind that know how to use a jimmy, nitro-glycerine, and the proper method of blowing a safe door from its hinges.

The London police ought to have the co-operation of citizens generally in running down and stamping out the season of crime that is on in London.

Much of it is referred to as petty robbery, but there is no such thing as petty robbery, because the amount stolen is limited only by the amount that the thief can get.

Criticizing the police because they have not captured each and every culprit is not going to help matters. The London police have a good record in this regard, and right now they want to feel that they have the backing and assistance of the community. They are entitled to it.

Climate vs. Tariff. Hon. Hugh Guthrie was in St. Thomas to tell the farmers of West Elgin at a political gathering that what they need is protection—protection against American foodstuff coming into Canada.

His reasoning was like this: "Enjoying the additional advantage of climatic conditions which permit them (U. S. foodstuffs) to flood the Canadian market before the home products are ready, United States shippers are enabled to use the Dominion as a convenient dumping ground."

According to his own method of reasoning much of this foodstuff comes from United States because it is ready there before the same product is here.

In other words U. S. growers have it, and Canadian growers have not. Bringing it into the Canadian market cannot then be a matter of competition, as there is nothing with which to compete.

A tax under such circumstances is not protection; it is a straight tax on the food of the people. If Mr. Guthrie wants to sell protection to the Canadian farmer on the basis of protection as the American farmer has it, he is welcome to the business and all the political profits he can make from it.

The result is that he is worse off today than when he started. The Canadian farmers are too well aware of the condition of U. S. agriculturists to desire to follow in their steps.

Mr. Yorath's Warning.

Christopher J. Yorath has earned a reputation in Western Canada as an authority on finance. He is not a theorist alone, but has operated on the hard plane of making good on a positive issue, that of bringing Edmonton from a state of poor to that of good financing.

So when Mr. Yorath starts to speak on terms of education costs he is going to receive attention. Starting at 1901, he places the cost of elementary and secondary education in Canada at $11,750,000 against $37,688,000 in 1913. In 1921 it stood at $97,431,000, while today it is safe to assume it is comfortably over the $100,000,000 mark.

The amount handed over to school boards is a definite sum, while the city or town has to absorb any deficit there may be in the collection of taxes, and in western centers this shrinkage has amounted to 20 or 30 per cent in a number of cases.

Education costs are primarily a tax on real estate. Edmonton had an assessment for school taxes in 1913 of $181,000,000; today it is $60,501,000. Yet in this period the school expenditure has increased from $534,000 to $1,171,000. The source of school revenue has been cut in three, while the school cost has doubled.

Mr. Yorath is living in a district where he can draw upon positive figures to present the most startling argument for greater simplicity in the matter of schools and the extent of subjects to be taught in them.

We have had the same horizontal increases in Ontario, but the saving factor here has been the stability of the source of revenue to draw from. But for all that we cannot afford to ignore the point raised by Mr. Yorath. He makes no attack on education in so far as it touches substantial instruction in necessary lines, but he does draw his blue pencil through the tendency—and we have it—to keep adding items and subjects that cannot measure up to the standard of positive essentials.

The Work of the Police. London and Toronto had armed robbers at work on Saturday night. Toronto had the variety that drive around in a car, make a dash for a till and escape. London had the kind that know how to use a jimmy, nitro-glycerine, and the proper method of blowing a safe door from its hinges.

Much of it is referred to as petty robbery, but there is no such thing as petty robbery, because the amount stolen is limited only by the amount that the thief can get.

Criticizing the police because they have not captured each and every culprit is not going to help matters. The London police have a good record in this regard, and right now they want to feel that they have the backing and assistance of the community. They are entitled to it.

Another Vicious Circle. A mail carrier in Chicago was arrested for stealing revolvers from the mail bags. Some figures that have come out since lead to the belief that it was a good thing this man was stealing, a good thing he was arrested, and a good thing that some of the inspectors have pried into the business of shipping arms all over the country.

The one mail order house, whose guns were being stolen from the mails, was sending out, according to the reporters, 1,100 revolvers per day.

That is only one mail order business, and there are scores of them doing the same thing. The mails are used for this purpose, and it means that any such can be armed by writing a letter and inclosing the price of a gun.

The mails are run by a service financed by the people. The same people in turn pour out their millions to keep up huge police, detective and special squads to chase thugs and robbers.

It is about as silly a performance as could be imagined, and yet there it is.

Note and Comment. One competent publisher owns up to the fact that he tried to buy the Marlon Star, the late President Harding's paper, and said it was worth $400,000 or over. Muckrakers say it would be a crime to mention even $250,000 for it. The difference is between a man who knows and one who is out to spread scandal at any price.

The Guide Post—By Henry van Dyke

FORBEARANCE. Forbearing one another in love.—Ephesians iv., 2. We ought to see in God's forbearance to judge men a lesson of forbearance to us.

We are too quick; not often too quick to approve, but very often too quick to condemn. We think it confers a sort of dignity and virtue to say of other men and women that they are bad.

We are in haste to don the judicial ermine and put on the black cap and pronounce sentence. We foster evil-reports, and repeat gossip, and devour our fellows like cannibals.

Who art thou that judgest another? Remember Christ's words to his own disciples: "Judge not, that ye be not judged." How can we read the hidden motives, how can we know the deep repentance and regret that enter into the lives about us?

Beware of censoriousness. This world of impartial sunlight and equal falling rain is not the place of judgment. And thank God, you and I are not, either here or hereafter, the final judges.

My heart would shrink in speechless terror from deciding the destiny of a single human soul. That belongs to God; and to God not now, but when the shadows of time have vanished in the light of eternity.

Tavish Mactavish To His People At Home

Dear Bob,— How often stories in newspaper, either by accident or by the perspicacity of the editor, which have some bearing on one another, are placed in juxtaposition.

Today I find three interesting stories of jewels. One says that Mrs. Jerry of Washington has become the possessor of a string of pearls belonging to the ex-czarina, valued at $500,000 and the other two state that "the police have found a quantity of jewelry amongst the possessions of the dead girl which they consider valuable clues and are following up."

Women and gems have always been and I suppose will always be connected, whether in love or crime, in the ballroom or in the criminal court. The jewels of modern times have just as unsavory a reputation in the matter of fatal consequences as any of the famous jewels of history supposed to have caused a series of deaths and tragedies.

Sir James Cantile, that rather eccentric old Scottish surgeon, with a very fashionable coterie of patients, has made one more "sweeping attack" on hygiene. He is a most refreshing chap to listen to and his preambles on civilized health are always interesting.

This time he says: "I use a warm-pan every night and the result is that at 78 I can dance better than most of you at 17. Rheumatism is the curse of the professional man and it is due to damp clothes."

He is much more vigorous in dealing with the use of tooth brushes. He says: "You simply drive the poison deeper into the gums with the tooth brush. I cannot find any mention of dentists in the Bible, and if there were no dentists there were no bad teeth. Moses did not use a tooth brush. The country where teeth are worst and the dentists most numerous is America, which can produce good dentists, but cannot show sound teeth."

He likes to take a dig at all superficial fashions and adds on the subject of hats. "Adam in the garden of Eden used a piece of straw to tie a cabbage on his head, and ever since"

RESERVES JUDGMENT ACTION FOR $773,900

Application Made by Dominion Custodian To Be Made Part in Suit. Toronto, Feb. 16.—Judgment was reserved this morning on an application made by the Dominion custodian of enemy property, to add that official as a party in a suit between Marcel Weil of Paris, France, against the Canadian Picquets Railway, to recover 7,739 shares of C. P. R. stock (par value $773,900) and accrued dividends.

When war broke out these shares were registered in the name of the Deutschland National Bank, which owed the C. P. R. £250,000. The C. P. R. got authority to hold these shares pending peace. Later the interests of the Deutschland concern became involved in those of Marcel Weil, of Paris, and a suit in regard to the shares is now proceeding in France.

PROF. A. ROBERTSON TO LECTURE ON MASTODONS

Interesting Illustrated Address in Arts Building on Thursday Evening.

One of the most interesting topics that has been announced in the series of Thursday evening extension lectures given by the university will come this week, when Prof. A. Robertson of the biology department will lecture on "Mastodons of Western Ontario." The lecture will be illustrated with slides and with actual remains of these animals of prehistoric time. The university has a large collection of these remains which have been dug out of the ground in this district when covered by a glacier or other glacial deposit. Attention is drawn to the fact that this lecture will be given in the arts building on St. George street on account of the difficulty of moving the large specimens to a downtown hall. The lecture is open free to the public.

ONE MILL TAXRATE URGED TO SECURE HALF FOR FUND

United Welfare Association Decides To Carry On Work as Unit —Would Secure Other Half of Money by Drive as in Former Years.

QUESTION GOES TO CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT

The city council, at its meeting on tonight, will be asked by a deputation representing the United Welfare Fund Association to raise one-half of $125,000 by adding one mill to the tax rate.

This was decided at the annual meeting of the association Saturday afternoon, after it was unanimously decided to continue as a united organization. Twelve of the city's charitable and other organizations were represented.

George Reid occupied the chair and stated that there was still much to be collected from last year. This was mainly from persons who had promised large subscriptions which they were now finding it difficult to fulfill. Mr. Reid pointed out that one mill on the tax rate would mean about $65,000 and that everyone would contribute in this way. The remaining amount would be collected as usual.

"There are a few hard shells that we can't crack," he stated, "but they will also have to pay this way. The council has the power to levy this amount and many of the aldermen are favorable to the idea. In this way, too, the rich will be forced to contribute proportionately to the poor man, who in practically every case deprives himself to give an amount which is barely exceeded by some of the city's richer men?"

The financial statement was presented, showing that out of $114,499 subscribed, $103,202 had been collected, leaving a balance of $11,297 to be collected this year. The amount remaining to be paid to the various institutions is $10,982, while the assets, both on hand and to be collected, total $17,912. Expenses, including salaries, postage, campaign expenses, etc., were $5,122.

The following is the proportion each organization will have received from the fund when all is paid:

Aged People's Home — W. C. A., $6,329.40; Child Welfare Association $6,329.40; Children's Aid Society $7,233; Children's Day Nursery $2,713; London Health Association $8,228; Mount Hope and Mount St. Joseph $13,110.20; Protestant Orphans' Home $4,068.70; Salvation Army $18,082; St. John's Ambulance Brigade $632.90; Victorian Order of Nurses $2,960.40; Women's San. Aid Society $3,184.92; Y. M. C. A. $19,821.30; Y. W. C. A. $12,658. Totals $104,610.55.

SIR ADAM DENIES NIAGARA RUMOR

Hydro Chairman Says He Has Heard Nothing of More Power Application.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Feb. 17.—"We haven't made any application for any increased use of power at Niagara Falls. I am not aware of a proposal for an agreement," said Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, when interviewed over long-distance telephone yesterday afternoon.

A despatch from Washington Saturday said that the Canadian government had sent the state department a communication proposing an agreement for increased utilization of water power at Niagara. It was understood in Washington that the agreement was desired by the Ontario Hydro-Electric.

GYPSY SMITH WINS FAVOR OF KLANSMEN

Klan Members Present Noted Evangelist With Check in Indiana Church.

In an interesting letter to friends in this city, Gypsy Simon Smith, well-known evangelist who a few years ago conducted a number of meetings here tells of a peculiar incident which befell him in Pemberton, Indiana.

Mr. Smith was holding one of his regular meetings in a church in that town, and was about to begin his lecture when about 40 members of the Ku Klux Klan, attired in full regalia, suddenly burst into the church.

Taken by surprise Mr. Smith for some time was unable to speak at the commencement of his sermon. As he concluded the Klansmen gathered around him while the congregation, fearful of what might happen, sat motionless.

To the surprise of all, the leader thrust his hand into his garb and drew forth a check for a substantial sum. With it was a letter from the Klan members praising his good work.

THE REASON FOR ALUMINUM.

Because tea deteriorates very rapidly if exposed to air many tests and experiments have been made to find an efficient means of packing it so as to preserve the flavor. The "Salada" Tea Company first used lead packages but some years ago adopted aluminum foil, aluminum being more durable and lighter than lead, besides, of course, being absolutely sanitary and air-tight. This method of packing is admitted to be the most effective known to preserve the flavor of tea. All "Salada" is sold in air-tight aluminum packages.—Adv't.

He was playing in company with a number of other Boy Scouts, when the accident happened. The young lad was removed to Victoria Hospital, where he will be confined for six weeks. He was reported as doing nicely last night by hospital authorities. Dr. Bancroft is in attendance.
