MR. GAMEY'S CLOSING WORDS IN THE LEGISLATURE.

Trusts to the Future to Substantiate His Charges—Compliments to the Judges—Mr. St. John Follows.

Toronto, June 23.—For another day the Opposition were given full swing in the Gamey debate in the Legislature. The afternoon opened with Mr. Gamey's concluding remarks, which lasted an hour, and the balance of the day was occupied by Mr. St. John in the commencement of his lengthy address. Mr. Gamey began with an effort to justify himself for his attack on the Judges, which, he said, was following the practice in the Court of Appeal, where the decisions of lower Judges were vigorously criticized.

"If I have used the word false in regard to the commissioners," said Mr. Gamey, "and that word is unparliamentary, then I want to get the next best possible word conveying the meaning 'false.' I would be contented to have a chance to meet the Chancellor, Boyd, anywhere, and if I cannot substantiate it, then I would leave public life for ever. And I repeat, and will repeat for months to come, that he is absolutely false."

Mr. Gamey said that he was well informed, and that he believed it had been mentioned in the past that Mr. T. C. Robinette, K. C., had been engaged on this particular case on the defence against him, and had withdrawn from it, and this man McEvoy from London had been substituted in his place. That indicated to him that at that time there was not enough life in the case for him to continue in it, and he was not prepared to do the character of work that this man McEvoy would do. That was the reason Mr. McEvoy was brought here to do the work.

Mr. Gamey, continuing, complained that the defence had gone to the Manager of the Confederation Life, with which he had been connected for fifteen years, and tried to get information from them against him, and they failed, because his past relations with that company had been such that they could not get anything against him. Then they went to the Canada Accident representatives, Medland and Jones, and said to Jones that Gamey's business connection with the Confederation Life Company was far from satisfactory. That was where the counsel came in who were prepared to do the dirty, low work that men like Robinette would not do. That was why such scoundrels and scamps as McEvoy had to be employed. Then they went to the Anglo-American Fire Company. That company could not say one word that was not in favor of him. They went further, and sent a man associated with the Government and paid by the Liberal party to Manitoulin, and they could not get anything out of him who had lived near him for twenty years to say one word against him. In the township where he lived he had received a record majority at the general election. "That shows that I am not such a peculiar monstrosity as this head-headed editor of The Globe would have you believe me."

Mr. Gamey went on to point out the evidence which he believed proved that Frank Sullivan was the first one to commence the negotiations. The fact was, however, that there were negotiations, and that on a particular day in September Sullivan introduced him to the Provincial Secretary. He contended that from that stage on the negotiations were continued, but the Provincial Secretary contradicted this.

He had noticed from the newspapers that the Premier would not expel him from the House. Awful kind, wasn't it? Kind-hearted fellow he was! The Premier knew that if the commissioners had done their duty he and his associates would not have the power, would not be in a position, to expel or talk up the head-headed man from the House. Considering the minority vote, considering the West Elgin ballots, considering the Manich confession, considering the recent developments in the Crown Lands Department, with the Sullivans and the Taylors stealing our timber, considering the corroborative evidence, if the Premier had any respect, if he had a particle of that theological garb that he had thrown around himself for years, if he had any pride he would stick out like a man and appeal to the people and ask what party should rule. But he dare not do it. He was afraid to do it. "Talk about expelling him, but he would expel him so quick, sir, that he would have thought he never was in the House." (Applause.)

Mr. Gamey said friends of his in the southern States had written telling him the kind of force that would be used down there against such a Government as we had here, but he would not tell the House what it was. (Laughter.)

"My conduct will be just the same in the future," said Mr. Gamey in conclusion. I make my charges again, sir, that I made on the 11th of March. I am not afraid to make them outside the House, sir, and will take an early opportunity to stand right up in this Province and make these charges again, and then I will defy the Provincial Secretary to take any action against me, and if he does I will then have the case tried where I want it, and before a jury of my own countrymen, not a jury of paid Government officials. (Applause.) Let me tell you, sir, that I would rather be R. R. Gamey to-day than the hon. Provincial Secretary, Minister of the Crown, recipient of pyramids of roses from his dependent officials, with their souls polluted with perjury. (Applause.)

"To the Hon. Chancellor Boyd I say this: when he, sir, will surrender back the money that he has received from this Government for work when he was drawing his pay as a Judge, when he will return back to this Province the fees that he will receive, sir, for this commission, when he is drawing his pay as a Judge—and big pay at that—I tell you, further, sir, when he will surrender back the money he received as arbitrator for this Province when he was a Judge, and drawing the judge's pay every day, sir; I tell you, sir, if he will let his sons earn their livelihood in the independent walks of life instead of in the Government—when he does that I will consider something about whether his report is fair or impartial. I might go on and say something with regard to Chief Justice Falconbridge along that line, but he is so infinitesimally small and insignificant to me that I will not refer to him at all. (Some applause.)

"I say again, when these gentlemen act independent, as the average man has to, and not as pensioners on the Government, and fathers of pensioners on the Government—that is what they are, pensioners on the Government of Ontario, and fathers of pensioners—let me repeat that, with their progeny and the social conditions of their progeny staring them in the face when they are writing a report to condemn me; when they stand out like men, then I might consider their report. But until then I will not consider it at all except in this way: that I will analyze it, as I have done, show that it is false and wrong, sir, and when I can do that, sir, I have perfect confidence in the people of this Province, when the time comes, to say who is guilty or not."

"But I just want to close by saying that I will fight this case. I will not stop. Evidence will come out later on; I have evidence now, sir, but I will not tell you of it. I will go home from this House, proud of the fact that I have told the truth, proud of the fact that no man will ever have to accuse me of asking a man to be a perjurer. That is what I will do. And, sir, let me tell you, there is a God in heaven; I believe in Him, whether the Provincial Secretary does or not. Some day, sir, he has got to reckon with that God, and let me tell him before this House and before the people of this Province, sir, that he knows, God knows, what I say is wrong and false, and I leave it to the future and to that God to judge who is right and who is wrong." (Loud Opposition applause.)

GLASS WAS MURDERED.

Jury Says Alfred Kennard Inflicted Knife Wound.

Toronto, June 23.—A score of employees of the Davies packing house related to Chief Coroner A. J. Johnson's jury last night the circumstances under which Willie Glass was stabbed on December 10 last. Glass was struck with a piece of fat, and thinking Arthur Kennard threw it, went towards him. "If you do that again," exclaimed Glass, "I'll knock the head off you." As Glass was going back to his place in the shop a knife was thrown. The knife struck Glass in the left shoulder and dropped on the floor.

Young Kennard was present at the sitting, but did not testify. He was represented by Mr. T. C. Robinette, K. C. Mr. McGregor Young appeared for the Crown. The jury found that Glass came to his death from a knife wound inflicted by Alfred Kennard.

SIR A. COOPER DROWNED.

Fell Overboard From the Treasure Steamer.

Halifax, June 23.—A letter was received here to-day from a member of the party of treasure-seekers who sailed from Halifax on March 17 for the south seas in the schooner Hattie L. M., commanded by Capt. C. H. McLeod, announcing the drowning of Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., of England, who was second in command of the expedition. Cooper tripped on the deck, fell overboard on April 8th, and, being unable to swim, was drowned before the vessel could be brought about. Sir Astley Cooper was a grandson of Sir Astley Cooper, the famous Court physician. He met Capt. McLeod in Vancouver a year ago and then formed the plans to join the expedition. He was a man of wealth and high social position.

WALTER CROWE DEAD

Well Known Revenue Officer Expired Suddenly Last Night.

Walter Crow, well known to most of the citizens of Windsor, and especially to the business interests, was found dead in bed at noon to-day.

Deceased had been ailing for some time with tubercular troubles, but was able to be about and was on the street yesterday with no apparent thought that his end was so near at hand. He retired about half-past six last night at the home of Joseph Pepin, 14 London street west, with whom he lived. He was heard to cough violently several times during the night and when he had not arisen at noon an investigation was made and he was found in bed partially disrobed and with his hands folded across his breast.

The late Walter Crowe was a man of many friends. He made friends rapidly wherever he went and his legion of acquaintances in this city will regret to learn of his untimely end. He was a special class revenue officer of long and varied experience, having filled many responsible positions in distilleries and revenue offices in Chatham, Petrolia, Guelph, Brantford and other places. Deceased entered the service of the government twenty-five years ago in Chatham. He was a bachelor, fifty-seven years of age, and has no relatives here, although a sister and niece live in Chatham. No arrangements for the funeral have as yet been completed.—Windsor Record.

The late Mr. Crowe was born in this city and went to the old Grammar School with Judge Houston and other of the older citizens. In company with his brother Allie he built the first opera house in Chatham. He was a civil engineer here for many years, but later was appointed to the Inland Revenue Department, Windsor and Walkerville. Mrs. William Gordon, who lives on King St., opposite the Gas Office, is a sister, and Miss Gordon, of the Central school staff, is a niece.

BOYS STARTED FIRES.

INDIAN LADS ARRESTED AT BRANTFORD.

Roy Wilson Confesses to Having Set Fire to the Mohawk Institute—Implicates Companions in Other Fires—Sunday Night's Blaze.

Brantford, June 23.—Indian boys, who were arrested, have confessed that they started the blaze that destroyed the Mohawk Institute on April 19, and that they were also responsible for the destruction by fire of the barns of the New England Company on June 6, and the playhouse and adjoining buildings, which were burned last night. Four of them were arraigned before Magistrate Woodruff, and, although no very complete evidence was taken, enough was learned to show that all the fires were of incendiary origin, as the police supposed. The boys who are charged are Roy Wilson, Jesse Debo, Isaiah Antoine and Alexander Maracle, and four others are held as material witnesses. The youngest one, Wilson, is twelve years old, and he told his story with apparent unconcern, not realizing the enormity of his offence. He said that the other boys suggested the firing of the buildings, and that he was the one who started the fires. On the night when the institute was destroyed two boys helped him to climb into the attic. He took with him an old coat stuffed with shavings which had been saturated with coal oil from a lamp. He set fire to the bundle and placed it in a corner of the attic. Then the boys helped him down again, and they all went to bed and remained there until the general alarm of fire was given, and he helped to carry out some of the contents of the building. He denies having had anything to do with the second fire, when the barns were burned and a number of valuable cattle perished, and implicates another boy named Winnie, who has not yet been arrested. Wilson was concerned in the fire last night, but he lays the blame for it on Maracle. Debo and Antoine were the boys who helped Wilson to climb into the attic, but they claim that they did not know what he intended to do. The boys say that they had no grudge against anyone, and the only reason that they give for starting the fire was that they wanted to see how the buildings would burn.

A man often imagines he acts when he is acted upon, and while his mind aims at one thing his heart insensibly gravitates towards another.

TOURING CLUB

The 'Varsity baseball team stopped over night in Chatham and left this morning for Aylmer, where they play a game to-day. Joseph Robert, son of Peter Robert, is playing a great game with the 'Varsity club. He left at noon to join the team at Aylmer.

"We have been playing in very hard luck and the rain has been stopping our games. We only played four games during our trip through the States, the others being postponed on account of rain. So far we have broken even, winning five games and losing five. During our tour across the line, we won one game and lost three. The Ohio State University defeated us at Columbus 5 to 2. We defeated the Delaware State College at Delaware by a score of 4 to 2. The next day they turned the tables and won from us by a score of 6 to 5. The Delaware Stars in the same place defeated us on the following day by a score of 5 to 3. In Canada, so far, we have won four and lost two games. We were defeated at Windsor and Lucan and won at Chatham, St. Thomas, Ailsa Craig and Niagara. We have yet to play games at Aylmer, St. Thomas, Ingersoll, Norwich and Hamilton."

WORSE FOR ROWLEY.

MORE UNENTERED DEPOSITS AND SHORTAGES.

Revelations of the Elgin Loan Books—Stories of Forgeries Which Are Not Officially Confirmed—Order to Wind Up the Company.

St. Thomas, June 23.—The investigation into the affairs of the Elgin Loan Company as it proceeds discloses further defalcations on the part of the late Manager, George Rowley. Several additional cash deposits not entered and shortages in accounts have been discovered, and the total so far will probably reach to between $25,000 and $30,000. John Taylor of this city says that while he had $4,000 deposited there is only $667 to his credit. The balance is reported to have been checked out. Mrs. Lizzie Baker of Littlewood denies signing a receipt on October 30th, 1902, for $1,720.

There are stories of forgeries being circulated on the street in connection with this and the Taylor case, and Mr. Moore, who represents the liquidators of the Western Guarantee Co. of London, was seen by The Globe correspondent. He states that so far no forgeries have been discovered. He admitted that things were in a bad shape, but said he expected that every depositor would be paid in full.

Up till Saturday night no earnest effort appears to have been taken to capture Mr. Rowley. A warrant was issued charging him with stealing $4,000 from one account, and the police searched his residence, but that was all that was done. However, on Saturday County Attorney Donahue was asked to confer with the Attorney-General's Department and secure the assistance of the Provincial detective force in locating the fugitive.

At Osgoode Hall yesterday Mr. Justice MacMahon granted an order to wind up the Elgin Loan & Savings Company, appointing the London & Western Trust Company liquidators, and directing that Judge Hughes of St. Thomas take the accounts. The application was made on behalf of John McLean, a depositor, and a shareholder to the extent of $4,000, of which $2,000 has been paid up.

THE LEGISLATIVE MUDDLE.

The Globe is horrified by Mr. Gage's language and especially by the violence of his attack upon the judges. To the Globe and the Government it is due that the judges are exposed to this attack. The Ministers were warned not to bring the judges down from the bench to umpire a dispute in which the strongest party passions had been aroused. When it was found that they were obstinately determined on this course they were asked to allow the Lieutenant-Governor to name the judges. They refused to yield; they refused to allow the opposition or Mr. Gage to name either of the judges. They acted as if they had deliberately planned to embitter party feeling, and to prejudice Mr. Gage and the opposition against the tribunal they had created. Now they hold up their hands in horror at the inevitable result of their obstinacy and lack of statesmanship.

A statesman at such a juncture would have assumed that all the members of the Legislature were equally desirous of discovering the truth and would have invited the co-operation of all. The Government had its judges named and published in the Globe before the debate began, and it refused to consider any other choice. Now it is surprised that the person against whom the award is made does not hail it with delight. The report of the Commission, thus constituted, severely denounces Mr. Gage as a scoundrel unworthy of belief. The report is presented to the Legislature, and Mr. Gage, as a member of the Legislature, is asked to approve of it, and to thank the judges. In moving its adoption, the Premier says, in effect: "I will not attack Mr. Gage, but I will read what the judges think of him. He thus drags in the judges as assailants of Mr. Gage. And now the Globe is horrified because Mr. Gage strikes back, and because the opposition applaud. Mr. Cameron referred to Mr. Gage as a liar, and when he was called to order the Premier contended that his language was justified by the report. So the names of the judges are dragged into the discussion as having given a general license to abuse Gage. And now the Globe is shocked by Mr. Gage's attack on the judges.

Not only statesmanship, but ordinary knowledge of human nature seems to have been lacking. Who could suppose that Gage or any other man in his position would act differently? After he had made his charge in the House he was forced away to another tribunal, so chosen that he had every reason to believe it to be hostile. He was deprived of his rights as a member of the Legislature, and exposed to the fiercest cross-examination. He was abused by the Government newspapers. And, finally, he was condemned by a court nominated by his enemies.

Now he is back on his own ground. He strikes back fiercely at all his enemies—at the government, at the cross-examining counsel, at the Globe, which abused him and searched all history, sacred and profane, for injurious comparisons. He strikes at the judges, who, if not his enemies, have by the monumental folly of the government been exhibited to him as enemies. And the government and the Globe are shocked at the spectacle.

Obstinacy, self-sufficient conceit, and contempt for constitutional usage have produced their natural and expected results. Apart from the gratuitous folly to which we have referred, the whole proceedings are founded upon an absurdity. The question to be tried was virtually whether a government should stand or fall. The judges say as much. The government appoints two judges to answer the question "Shall we stand or fall?" The judges make a report upholding the government. It comes back to the legislature, and will, we presume, be carried by the government and its friends. In other words, a government must stand or fall as it holds or loses the confidence of the legislature and the people; and a report from all the judges in Canada would not alter that rule of the constitution.

It would be well if this result were nothing worse than absurd. But unfortunately it is also mischievous. Judicial authority has been invoked for a purpose with which it has nothing to do, and judicial authority has suffered. With personal attacks on the judges we have no sympathy, although we think they were unwelcome in accepting the commission, and their report must be open to the freest criticism. But we think that the whole question of the relations of judges with governments should be considered; that practices tending to impair the independence of judges should be abolished; and that judges should be kept as much as possible out of politics. Thus confidence in the judiciary will be restored. At the same time

Nothing to do
But eat it.

Malta-Vita is cooked ready to eat and the whole wheat, flaked and toasted, is already partly digested by the malting process which gives it that delicate flavor and makes it so delicious.

No Work—No Heat;
Just Cream—Then Eat.

It is better that Ministers and members of parliament should manfully face their own problems, and not shift them to judges. If the legislature cannot deal with Gage and Stratton it is not fit for any of its duties. If it took up the great question of the day, affecting the welfare of the masses of the people, such changes would not fill so large a place in the politics of the country. — Toronto World.

A PERILOUS OCCUPATION.

The 400 Carrara Marble Quarries in Italy Give Employment to Nearly 7,000 Men—How They Work.

The marble quarries of Carrara, Italy, number about four hundred and give employment to nearly seven thousand men. Hand-labor is the rule, for the distances separating quarry from quarry and the declivity nature of the country make the use of machinery almost impossible. Hence, says a writer in Pearson's Magazine, have grown up the methods of the "lizzatura," or workmen, who convey the marble over the roadless steep that stretch from the quarries to the wagon-track.

As soon as a great fragment of marble, detached by a blast, has stopped rolling, it is roughly squared into a block weighing, say, forty tons. Then the "lizzatura" set about getting it down.

Along certain lines of descent offering the least resistance a succession of stout posts has been firmly driven into the mountain-side. The men, by means of crowbars and screw-jacks, raise the block on to a soaped skid and hard beechwood. Before doing this they secure the blocks by means of three long hempen cables, which they take turns round the posts. They pay out sufficient rope to allow it to gain too much momentum down the incline.

During this descent, besides the men tugging on to the ropes, two or more cables are attached to the block, and a man following closely in the wake of it hands them the skid just passed over, which they re-soap and hand to a man who keeps just in front of the moving mass, to put down in its path, and so provide a continuous slipway. This last, of course, is the most perilous task. If one of the cables parts at a critical moment, or if a mistake be made in paying out or slackening them, he must inevitably be crushed.

It is an amazing fact that in former times the "lizzatura" used only one cable to hold back the load, until the Government, rightly regarding theirs as a dangerous occupation, passed a law that not less than three cables should be employed. On an average, this work is responsible for three deaths a year, but for the most part the finest discernment, judgment, coolness and skill are displayed by the "lizzatura," who work in gangs numbering from twelve to fifteen men.

It is really astounding to see how these workmen handle the huge masses of marble, without machinery of any kind but crowbars and jackscrews. Pieces of forty tons' weight, with these simple implements, are loaded on bullock "ragons and carted down to Carrara all the way by road—a terribly tedious process, for the mountain road is more like the bed of a torrent than a beaten track.

CHAPTER XI. CROSS PURPOSES.

TRUE to his custom, our colonel ordered a scout promptly at the beginning of one very cold spell. The roads, never traveled in wet weather, had frozen as hard as any pavement, and we and our horses had been imprisoned so long by the preceding rain that we heartily enjoyed the beginning of the trip. We had been well fed all winter, but no one neglected the precaution of carrying all the rations, particularly fat pork, that he could get. In camp we had good fresh bread daily, but once in a while when other rations abounded I had begged a day's rations of hard bread instead and stowed it away against the next scout. I had never forgotten the semistarvation of our first three days' outing.

On the morning referred to only four companies of us went out, but we felt entirely safe. What could happen to us? We were strong enough to whip any force of the enemy that had yet moved between our lines and their own unless our irregular spies—all colored people and natives of the country—had counted incorrectly the enemy's few detachments. Of course we would be fired upon as soon as the advance struck the enemy's pickets, and, as most southerners had handled guns from their youth up, two or three of our men would probably be killed or wounded, but we had come to regard that sort of thing as a matter of course.
It was one of the fortunes of war—or misfortunes of being at the head of a cavalry advance. To prevent unfairness in this respect companies took turns of a day each at the head of a scouting party, but the advance proper was always taken from the right, or head of the company, so in forming line for a start there never was an unseemly rush for positions at the right.

The extreme advance consisted of four men, riding abreast or by twos, according to the width of the road, and carrying carbines or revolvers in their hands ready for instant use. About 50 yards behind rode a single trooper, called a messenger, to pass back any alarm or other information which the men ahead might shout to him. Fifty yards farther in the rear were two men, who also had a messenger within earshot, and within 50 yards of him rode the remainder of the platoon—8 or 12 men—about as far from the main body as from the man in front.

The specified distances were measured only with the eye, but whether they were too little or too great the main body was far enough in the rear to be out of point blank range of ordinary firearms, and most firearms of the enemy's cavalry were ordinary.

This distance enabled the main body to draw sabers or get their carbines or revolvers ready for action, according to order. It also allowed us to get into a trot or gallop with some momentum to it by the time we had closed on the advance and begun the charge or chase. Meanwhile the messenger and reserve had closed on the first set of four and begun firing if they saw anything to fire at. Should the advance halt, they began firing at once; if they turned to run, they parted and galloped down either flank in single file, so the troop they unmasked could clear the road by firing or charging. (I never had the melancholy satisfaction of seeing the advance break to the rear.)

Whenever we found the enemy in line, even behind breastworks—for not all of them were cavalry—we would deploy as skirmishers in the woods or fields on either side of the road and advance at the gallop, firing rapidly as we rode. I don't believe carbine firing at the gallop at a mark 200 or 300 yards away ever did much damage, but the successive puffs of smoke made our horsemen difficult marks to hit. In such dashes the bugle generally sounded the recall before the skim-ishers were upon the enemy's line.
Even if it didn't, most of the horses turned suddenly and dashed back, but an occasional good rider with a horse under perfect control would get far enough within the line to estimate its strength and see if it had any artillery.
Quite as often a poor rider with an obstinate horse would get within the line and find himself unable to return. The horse that knew him would know him as more before, and the rider would take up his abode for an indefinite season at the Hotel Libby, Richmond, Va.

A single man surrounded by enemies at short range was seldom killed or even hurt unless he refused to recognize the inevitable. The general mass of our men regarded a skirmish dash against infantry with very little apprehension. A trooper and his horse generally are one for practical purposes, the animal seeming to know what is in his rider's mind. Besides, the enemy had only muzzle loading weapons, which could not be reloaded and fired more than once during the forward rush of cavalry skirmishers, while the rapid fire of our breechload-ers and revolvers had a disturbing effect upon a foot soldier's hand and eye.

Our advantages and precautions being so many, we felt entirely secure in the scout of which I have begun to tell. Yet things did not turn out at all as we had expected. We struck the

The Start

In married life is generally made on an equal footing of health in man and wife.
But how soon, in many cases, the wife loses the start and fades in face and fails in flesh, while her husband grows even more rugged and robust.

There is one chief cause for this wifely failure and that is, the failure of the womanly health. When there is irregularity or an unhealthy drain, inflammation, ulceration or female weakness, the general health is soon impaired.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"A little over a year ago I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Elizabeth J. Fisher, of Diana, Va. "You advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which I did, and with the most happy result. I was troubled with female weakness and bearing-down pains. Had a very bad pain nearly all the time in my left side, nervousness and headache. Was so weak I could hardly walk across my room. Could not sit up only just a little while at a time. My husband got me some of Dr. Pierce's medicine and I began its use. Before I had taken two bottles I was able to help do my work. I used three bottles in all and it cured me. Now I do all my housework. It is the best medicine I ever used." in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of

R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

enemy's outpost during the middle of the afternoon and drove it in without any casualty on our side. We dismounted, took cover behind some trees and exchanged shots with skirmishers across a small river, and we had our horses far enough to the right and left to avoid the round shot or two that were fired down the road by a cannon which guarded the bridge. Then we remounted, retired through the woods and fields until out of artillery range, after which we took the road for home, with the cheering hope that we would be out of camp only about half the customary time.

Just about sunset, as we were approaching a long bridge over one of the wide, high banks, but shallow creeks peculiar to the tide water region of Virginia, the word was passed back from the advance:

"Close up! Quick! Send the major up!"

The major commanding the battalion dashed toward the front, and the rest of us followed rapidly. "As my company was the second in column we soon saw what was the matter, and it didn't please us much. A body of the enemy's cavalry was approaching the bridge from the other side.

This was something we had not counted upon. It was enraging. It was also ridiculous. We were between the Johnnies and their camp, the Johnnies were between us and our camp, and the bridge, which both parties agreed in wishing anywhere else at that particular moment, remained just where it was and looked as dark and threatening as if it meant to make no end of trouble. It would be foolish for either body to ford the stream, for those tide water creeks invariably have one bank which is too steep for horses to climb or descend, except through occasional tributary gullies.

The major began to think. So, evidently, did the commander of the Johnnies, while I indulged in a wild hope that they would both keep on thinking until one or other got tired and took his men away.

"We can reach the Blue Church road for camp by making a detour through the fields at our right," suggested a prudent captain. "Meanwhile, as soon as they cross the bridge and show fight we can fairs about, come on the left into line and drop half of them from their saddles before they can fire more than once."

"No," said the major, "I don't want to show them our rear. They'd never stop blowing about it if they got away.
We're twice as many men as they. We ought to be heavy enough to press them back. If we can cross like cat-tles."

To Be Continued.

Possession is nine points of the law, and self-possession is the other one.

DUELING IN OLD TORONTO.

Reminiscences of Former Times in Canada
—Where a Kidnapped Attorney-General White's Duel with Small.

There may be living to-day Toronto people who recall the time when dueling was not uncommon in this country, and even in this city, says
The Toronto Mail and Empire. Dr.
Scadding, in "Toronto of Old," has occasion to mention and deplore the practice. "He quotes Mandeville, whose defence of dueling is supposed to have had considerable influence in the earlier days, as follows:—

"Without it there would be no living in a populous nation. It is the life of society, and though we are beholden to our fratries for the chief ingredient of it, there has been no virtue, at least that I am acquainted with, which has proved half so instrumental to the civilizing of mankind, who in great societies would soon degenerate into cruel villains and treacherous slaves, were honor to be removed from among them."

The reader will observe that the gentle Mandeville considers "honor" and "dueling" as synonymous terms.

On the west side of Yonge street, near Grosvenor, there was a vacant field, with trees sheltering it on three sides. An old Dutch barn stood near the centre, and to the north of this a fine piece of sward.

On this spot the young life of a son of Surveyor-General Kidout was offered up one fine morning in 1817.

Samuel Jarvis stood with a smoking pistol in his hand, and the July sun beat down on the dead boy.

Apparently no official cognizance was taken of the affair for ten years, and then Jarvis was found "not guilty." It is probable that he never would have been tried but for the fact that Francis Collins, of the Canadian Freeman, published the story of the meeting in his paper, and made charges against Jarvis, who had been instrumental in having the editor jailed for slander.

Dr. Scadding also mentions a duel which took place on January 3rd, 1800, at a place known as the Park, situated near the foot of Parliament street. There John Small, clerk of the Crown, and Attorney-General White faced each other with pistols, and the latter fell, mortally wounded. The men were prominent in Upper Canada, and, more than that, they were warm personal enemies.

They locked side by side, side by side, in the Park, and then some trivial difference, perhaps, ended their long friendship and the life of one of them.

The victim was buried under a summer-house on his own property, according to his dying request, and seventy-one years later his remains were disinterred by laborers digging for sand. They were removed, and now lie in St. James' Cemetery.

Small was indicted and acquitted.
The historian of Toronto further notes a quarrel between two men, Joseph and Charles Willcocks, who belonged to different families. They arranged a meeting, but Charles alone turned up. He waited some time for Joseph, and then chipped a piece of bark from a tree, and, standing at a distance, put a bullet in the spot. "Oh, Joe, Joe," he exclaimed, passionately, "if you had only been here!" Wherever Joe was, at the moment, it seems certain that he was better off.

Lower Town, Quebec.

The streets in the Lower Town of ancient Quebec are full these days of honey-mooners, and they are well worthy of a day's attention; among the most interesting are Sault, au Marché, Sous le Cap, the narrowest street in the world, and Little Champlain street, where, hardly wider than a carriage track, with steep-roofed, plaster-covered houses huddled together on each side, straggles along for a half mile, hugging the side of a nearly perpendicular rocky wall, which, 350 feet above, is surmounted by the fortress.

The old wooden "break-neck steps" at the head of the street have been removed and an escalier of iron has taken their place; otherwise, the street remains unchanged save that, here and there, is seen an old stone house fast crumbling into ruin, and the pile of stones and mortar that, a few years ago, demolished several houses and cost several unfortunate people their lives.

If the bride cares for afternoon tea, she is likely to pilot her legs into the Keefe House on St.
Louis street, where they will receive "a warm welcome and a warmer cup of tea" from Miss Yates, who is a friend to all honeymooners and delights in showing to them her superb collection of antique china, furniture, bronzes and all sorts of curiosities; and the tea! Miss Yates' tea, say the brides, tastes so different from ordinary English breakfast or Oolong.

Well it may, for it is served in eggshell cups of fragile china, over 100 years old; an ancient "Toby" jug holds the hot water while a dear little pitcher of genuine lustre ware holds the golden cream; and in a covered dish of blue and white Canton that is their envy and despair, steam slices of butter toast, a rare old plate from a famous London coffee house of olden times heaped high with cakes that fairly melt in one's mouth.

And they are tempted to break the commandment, "Thou shalt not covet," when they see this wealth of ancient treasures, gathered principally in Quebec and vicinity. The collection is as famous and well known in its way as even the citadel itself.

have called for bids on what will be the largest power wheel pit in the world. It is to be 430 feet long, 180 feet deep and 27 feet wide, cut through the solid rock. The work will cost

SOUGHT TO END HER LIFE.

Blanche Royal Swallowed Dose of Laudanum.

Toronto, June 22.—Blanche Royal, a seventeen-year-old girl, was found on Saturday evening in an unconscious condition at Mrs. Bel-lamy's Home for Girls, 639 Queen street east. Her condition was due to laudanum poisoning, and she was sent immediately to the General Hospital, on the advice of Dr. Frazer. An empty bottle labelled "poison" was found in her dress pocket. Last night she was reported to be doing nicely.

Miss Royal was discharged from the Mercer Reformatory on May 31 last.

Odors of Sickness.

In gout the skin secretions take a special odor, which Sydenham compares to that of whey. In jaundice the odor is that of muck; in opilation, of vinegar; of sour beer in scrofula, of warm bread in intermittent fever. In diabetes, when there is perspiration, the smell is of hay or, rather, of ace-tone; but, according to Bouchardat, midway between aldehyde and ace-tone, being due to mixture in variable proportions of these two bodies.

A Bashful Man's Ruse.

A bashful young man who was afraid to propose to his sweetheart induced her to fire at him with a pistol which he assured her was only loaded with powder, and after she had done so he fell down and pretended to be dead.
She threw herself wildly upon the body, called him her darling and her beloved, whereupon he got up and married her.—London Tit-Bits.

The Cow.

"Johnny," said the teacher, "write a sentence containing the word 'contents.'"

After a few moments' hard labor Johnny submitted the following: "The contents of a cow is milk."

TEACHER HONORED

The pupils of the entrance class of the Central school gathered together this afternoon in the large entrance class room for the purpose of presenting Miss Jean Coltart, Mr. Plewes' able assistant entrance class teacher, with a ring set with a beautiful Olivine and surrounded by pearls, also a very pretty bouquet and nicely worded address. The presentations were made by three pupils, Misses Marion Martin and Alice Massey, and Master Tracey Waddell.

Miss Coltart was taken entirely by surprise but replied in a very feeling manner.

WEATHER SOLDIERS

The rain last night affected very materially the attendance at drill. Colonel Rankin and Major Schofield were absent, as were all the other officers except Captains Stone and Black. Lieutenants Lewis and Turner, Adjutant Coltart and Sergt.-Major Geo. Embrey. Lieut. Lewis was the most unfortunate of the bunch. When he left home it wasn't raining very much, so he thought that his cape was sufficient protection; besides, it does not look too soldier-like to carry an umbrella. Lieut. Lewis had no sooner reached the creek bridge than it began to pour. The officer thought that a cloud-burst had seen him first. When he reached the drill hall he was soaked through his cape, forage cap and all.

B Company was the best represented. Including the officers they mustered about 20 men. Captain Black and Lieut. Turner drilled the men in firing exercises, with the assistance of Adjutant Coltart. Capt. Stone drilled the soldiers in taking orders by signals.

SUGAR...

That there is a great difference in the quality of sugar will be readily admitted. Those who have had the misfortune to get European granulated sugar instead of Canadian granulated, will not soon forget it.

Besides the fact that the imported sugars are not so nice to use on account of appearances and cleanliness, there is also more sweetening power in the "extra Standard" quality Canadian made. What is true of granulated, is true also of yellow sugars. Some are much better than others—better flavor, better quality, more sweetness.

Finest Canadian Granulated, 20 lbs for $1.00.
Finest Yellow Sugar, 22 pounds for $1.00.
Special prices by the 100 pounds.

The rain stopped the out-door part of McKeough school picnic, and the games and band concert were in consequence postponed till a more favorable date. The children, however, were given their annual feed in accordance with the program, and from four to six o'clock, while the rain poured down without, the interior of McKeough school was merry with the bright chatter of happy children. Dog Figures in Arson Case.

Toronto, June 23.—A dog figure, as one of the important witnesses in the case of a man named Miles, arrested last week by Provincial Detective Murray on the charge of setting fire to Tait & Turnbull's timber limits near Huntsville. Miles was in a blacksmith shop near the camp just before the fire, and a few hours afterwards a dog, with its hair slightly singed, turned up at the shop and whined considerably, as though for its lost master. It was surmised that perhaps the dog had become separated from its master in the smoke and dust of the fire, and had returned to the last place in which they had been together. The dog was turned loose in the court room where Miles was being examined. The prisoner was scented, and despite the prisoner's denial of acquaintanceship, the dog's demonstrations of joy were too evident to be mistaken. Miles was committed for trial.

SUGGESTION

"Now that the Grand Trunk is going to move its freight sheds, it would be a good idea for the city to take action," suggests R. S. Dunlop. "Rat-eigh street should be put right through across the G. T. R. track. The moving of the freight sheds affords a very good opportunity, and the Council should take advantage of it. By cutting the street right through to Park avenue two very long and inconvenient blocks will be cut into decent size. The cost will not be in comparison to the good done."

A SLAVE TO CUSTOM.

Unfortunate Experience of Mr. Portman, Author of "Station Studies"—His Experiences in Africa.

To have a servant so industrious as to interfere with all chance of comfort was the unfortunate experience of Mr. Portman, who lived in Africa, and is the author of "Station Studies." Buttons that disappeared one day were replaced before the dawn of another in entirely opposite spots. New flannel shirts were shrunk by unnecessary washing until they were past all service.

The trouble was, writes Mr. Portman, that nothing could stem the flow of his good intentions. I had only, for instance, to leave my things for a few moments to find on my return my camp-bedsheet carefully folded up in one corner of the room, the mattress and blankets forming a neat roll in another, and any clothes which I had happened to leave about snatched away for washing. It mattered nothing that I wished to lie down on the bed, use the mattress to encourage my siesta and change into the clothes; all this lay outside Hamis' view of his duty.

Nothing would induce him to sweep from under my feet a pile of life, nor any remonstrance gain any response but the three words, delivered with a pitiful smile at my ignorance, "It is custom."

"Custom," for example, decreed that he should sprinkle water on the veranda at daybreak to lay the dust. It mattered nothing that a flood of rain had been pouring all night and had removed all possibility of dust for hours to come; custom still had its way, and the stones were sprinkled according to rule.

Custom bade him bring me a cup of tea before I rose. I did not want it, and told him so day after day; but weeks passed before I managed to prevent his bringing it. In accordance with custom he daily seized my bed, bedding, and all the under-clothing on which he could lay his hands, and spread upon the patch of grass or, worse still, on the wall surrounding it. But custom hardly ever reminded him that if rain fell they would possibly get wet and as rain storms in Africa are likely to resemble waterpots in volume and April showers in frequency, the chances of my having a dry bed by the evening soon gave to be very small.

CRITIC IN SAVAGE MOOD.
W. E. Henley, Who Says Wordsworth Was a Bumpkin and a Lout.

William Ernest Henley, poet and essayist and acknowledged as one of the leading English literary critics, who a couple of years ago aroused all England to wrath and disgust by an attack on Robert Louis Stevenson, the author of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," has again stirred the literary world on both sides of the Atlantic by turning the vials of his wrath on the poet Wordsworth.

Wordsworth, according to Mr. Henley, "for four-fifths of his time was but a piddling poetaster." In the same article, which appeared in the Pall Mall Magazine, he criticized Wordsworth's handling of meter as savouring of the bumpkin, the yokel, the lout.

Burns and Byron have, on the other hand, received Mr. Henley's approval, and a few days ago he was awarded the second prize of 50 guineas from the London academy for his essay on the Life, Genius and Achievements of a critic, however, his book, "The Works of Lord Byron," was highly laudatory of that author.

Mr. Henley made his first literary reputation as editor of the National Observer, of which he was the controlling spirit from 1888 to 1893, when he founded the New Review.

His influence as a critic, however, has not been bounded by his writings. It has been his delight for years to gather about him young men and to preach to them the doctrine of art for art's sake, and he has had an enthusiastic following. His influence over Stevenson, whom he attacked after the latter's death, was deep and permanent. Henley has the credit of being among the first to recognize the genius of Kipling.

As a poet Henley has done some fine work, and he has published several volumes, his most recent being "Hawthorn and Lavender." Perhaps his best known and most characteristic poem is that which concludes with the lines, "I am the master of my fate; I am the captain of my soul." Mr. Henley is about fifty-four years of age.

Animals and Poisons.
Certain substances which are deadly in their effects upon men can be taken by the brute creation with impunity, says The Family Doctor. Horses can take large doses of anti-mony, dogs of mercury, goats of tobacco, mice of henlock and rabbits of belladonna, without injury. On the other hand, dogs and cats are much more susceptible to the influence of chloroform than man, and are much sooner killed by it. If this invaluable anaesthetic had been first tried upon animals we should probably never have enjoyed its blessings, as it would have been found to be so fatal that its discoverers would have been afraid to test its effects upon human beings.

THE SYSTEM OF ORION.

Most Brilliant Constellation in the Sky—A Canadian's Contribution to Its Literature—Leading Stars of Orion.

The name of Orion, the giant-hunter of ancient mythology, is now remembered chiefly because it designates the most brilliant constellation in the sky, writes J. Miller Bace, St. Catharines, in The Globe. The story of this constellation, whether we regard it from the historical, literary or purely scientific point of view, is full of interest, and might well form the subject of a special treatise. Such a work would include many notable quotations from ancient and modern writings—from the Book of Job, and the Homeric poems, down to Tennyson's "Locksley Hall." It would contain a wealth of scientific details, embellished with charts, drawings and photographs of the highest interest.

In the present article we are concerned chiefly with the system of Orion, properly so-called—a system whose discovery constitutes one of the triumphs of modern scientific photography. Before, however, proceeding to deal with this subject, it will be desirable to give some particulars respecting the constellation as a whole.

Orion is one of the forty-eight constellations included in the so-called Greek star-sphere, which has been handed down to us through the Egyptians, Phoenicians and Greeks, from remote antiquity. By the application of methods which need not here be described, modern astronomers have ascertained that these constellations were mapped out about 4,700 years ago—i. e., about the epoch 2800 B.C. At this early period, owing to the slow recession of the equinoxes, Orion occupied a more southerly position in the heavens than that which it now holds.

Our present Polestar was then far removed from the northern pole, while the Southern Cross must have been clearly visible, when on the meridian, in mid-northern latitudes.

The leading stars of Orion form a brilliant and almost symmetrical group which includes two stars of the first magnitude—Betelgeuse and Rigel. Like the well-known "Dipper," this group is familiar to many persons unversed in the science of astronomy. With one striking exception, its component stars are all members of the great system already referred to. The exception is Betelgeuse, an object noted for its ruddy tint, its "fluted" spectrum, and its variations in brightness, which were first noticed by Sir John Herschel in 1836. During the past eight months it has been shining with unusual brilliancy, and on this account has received special attention from observers in all parts of the globe.

The first step towards the discovery of the Orion system, as we now know it, was taken many years ago by an eminent Italian astronomer, the late Father Secchi of Rome. Father Secchi found that the brightest stars of Orion (excepting only Betelgeuse) showed spectra of a distinctive type. This "family likeness" was subsequently recognized by Prof. Scheiner of Potsdam, who found that a similar likeness could be traced also in the spectrum of the Great Nebula of Orion, the object mentioned hence inferred that these bright Orion stars, together with the Great Nebula, formed a true physical system—an "island cluster" in the ocean of space. Later on, it was discovered that the "family likeness" noted above was mainly due to the presence of helium in the objects mentioned. This gaseous element, first revealed in the spectrum of the sun's atmosphere, was "run to earth" in 1895 by Prof. Ramsey, who later demonstrated its presence in the air we breathe—a striking climax to one of the most notable chapters in scientific history. It should have been added that the "helium stars" are not confined to the region of Orion. They are found, chiefly in groups, in other parts of the sky, a notable instance being that of the Pleiades cluster.

The more remarkable features of the system under notice were revealed on a photographic plate taken in 1889 by Prof. W. H. Pickering of Harvard University. This plate was secured on the summit of Mount Wilson, in southern California, with a portrait lens of moderate size and an exposure of three hours. The chief feature depicted is an immense curved nebula, which winds, like a luminous river, through a large part of the constellation. The three "belt" stars and the great nebula in the "sword-handle" of Orion are almost surrounded by this vast nebula, which, when seen through a telescope, is reckoned in billions of miles. Extending from it in an easterly direction are several bands of faintly glowing matter, which connect together the belt-stars and the great nebula, recalling a well-known passage in the Book of Job (xxxviii. 31): "Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion?"

The details of this marvellous structure have been more fully revealed by later photographs of the Orion region. Two of these photographs—taken respectively by Dr. Max Wolf of Heidelberg and by Mr. Ritchie of the Yerkes Observatory, University of Chicago—were exhibited at a recent meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of London. Dr. Wolf's negative was taken on Jan. 16, 1903, with a sixteen-inch lens and an exposure of six and a quarter hours. It shows the nebulous structure already described upon a scale hitherto unattempted. Mr. Ritchie's picture, which is a large-scale view of the Great Nebula in Orion, exhibits the details of that well-known object with marvellous distinctiveness and forms a great advance on previous efforts in the same direction.

Astronomers have not yet succeeded in measuring by direct methods the distance of any member of the Orion system. It is known, however, that this distance is very great, and that the brighter stars of the system must greatly surpass our sun in size and intrinsic lustre.

The Rocking Chair.

The amount of vitality that some women put into the rocking of a chair would surprise them if they were told of the wasted force. A woman will sit and make a backward and forward movement hour after hour and then wonder at the feeling of exhaustion that comes over her. There are some women who cannot occupy a rocking chair without keeping it constantly in motion. Every time that it is swayed to or fro it is a useless, a wasted giving out of strength.

No other breakfast food sold by grocers has ever attained such widespread popularity or given such satisfaction to young or old. It is especially mentioned and recommended by Webster Edgerly, president of the Ralston Health Club. "Malt Breakfast Food is entirely free from all starchy elements and irritating properties which characterize oatmeal and the common breakfast foods. The regular use of Malt Breakfast Food is a guarantee of perfect digestive vigor and good health in the summer months. Ask your grocer for it."

Bonaparte and the Violets.

Bonaparte having on his departure for the island of Elba promised his confidential friends to return in the violet season, his adherents adopted the above simple flower as a rallying signal. "Corporal Violet" became their favorite toast, and each was distinguished by a gold ring with a violet in enamel and the motto, "Elle reparaitra au printemps" (It will appear again in spring). As soon as it became generally known that he had landed at Frejus a multitude of the women of Paris were seen with baskets full of these flowers, which were purchased and worn by their friends without exciting the least suspicion. It was customary on meeting any one thus decorated to ask, "Aimez vous la violette?" (Do you like the violet?) when, if they answered, "Oui" (yes), it was certain the party was not a confederate. But if the reply was "Elle bien" (well) they recognized an adherent and completed the sentence, "Elle reparaitra au printemps!"

Pains in the Back, Hips and Spine.

Great Suffering and Loss of Weight—Doctors Could Not Help Him—A Splendid Tribute to

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

When you read such letters as the following from well-known and highly respected people in all parts of the country you need no longer wonder why the sale of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is so far in advance of any similar remedy. When the people find out the virtue of this great medicine they tell their neighbors about it, and so the good news spreads.

Mr. James Clark Conson, Prince Edward Co., Ont., states: "Eleven years ago I was taken with pains in my back, settling in my hips and extending up my spine. The pain was very severe, and at times almost unbearable and many days I was not able to do an hour's work. My weight was reduced from 190 to 160 pounds, and though I had consulted many first-class physicians and tried several advertised medicines I could get no relief.

At this time my father-in-law told me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and said he knew they would cure me. I secured a box, and great was my surprise when I began to feel better after using only the one box. I continued their use until I had taken about four boxes, which made me a sound man, and I also regained my usual weight, 190 pounds. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have done so much for me. I have recommended them to a number of my friends, and have never met with one case where they did not meet with good success. My daughter, Mrs. Chas. Phillips, has also been cured of a severe stomach trouble by the use of these pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, 5 boxes for $1.00. At all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect yourself against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Truth does not need any proof of evidence for the real truth is self-evident.

LETTER BOX

THE GLOBE'S BLASPHEMY.

To the Editor of The Planet:

It is exceedingly unfortunate that the editor of the Toronto Globe persists in trying to throw around the political aggregation that occupies the government benches at Toronto a halo of sanctity, and, Sat-like, seeks to strengthen his undesirable position with ill-advised Scripture quotations. In the editorial of Saturday last he says, "The Conservatives have chosen their Barabbas." The idea is borrowed from one of the closing scenes in the life of Christ, when Pilate, willing to please the Jews, offered to set a prisoner at liberty, and the Jews said, "Not this man but Barabbas." A significant sentence follows.—Now, Barabbas was a robber.

What does the editor of the Globe wish the people to infer? Does he think for a moment that the thoughtful public will detect any likeness between the scenes? The "other man" in the scene referred to by the Globe was the one "whom the common people heard gladly"; the one of whom Pilate said after the severest trial, "I find no fault in the man"; the one "without spot or blemish"; the one whose attributes were truth and goodness. What a mockery, yes, what blasphemy even to compare the Provincial Secretary with such a character, when the request to change the interview made to a Globe reporter, and the suggestion "can't you forget," made to a witness in the recent royal fiasco, are still fresh in the minds of the people.

The Provincial Secretary is the man who swore that he did not know who the treasurer of the campaign fund was, swore also that he did not even know that there was a campaign fund. Do the people of this Province believe he was telling the whole truth? The Provincial Secretary is a member of a government that has profited by the burning of ballots, the stuffing of ballot-boxes, the employment of criminals as witnesses, the machinations of an army of Sullivan's, Vances and Pritchett's, justly described by one of the defence witnesses as parasites. Who, we ask, is the robber? Who has received the stolen goods? Who is the Barabbas?

Let us suggest to the editor of the Globe that he forget his early training and in the future refrain from dropping into Scripture.

HE'S AT WORK ONCE MORE

Simon V. Landry Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Had Lame Back, Weak Lungs, and was a Total Wreck before he was Induced to Try the Great Kidney Remedy.

River Bourgeois, Richmond Co., C. B., June 21.—(Special).—One more remarkable cure has been credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills in this neighborhood, and the story is best told in the words of Simon V. Landry, the man cured. Mr. Landry says: "I was bothered for over a year with Lame Back, Weak Lungs, and palpitation of the Heart and general weakness and shortness of breath. In fact I was a total wreck. I could not work as I got tired and weak so easy."

"I also had a weakness in my stomach, and it was so bad that I could not bend down to do anything. I tried many medicines without getting any relief till I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"After I had used three boxes of them I was able to start to work again. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to everybody."

It is curious like these that give Dodd's Kidney Pills their popularity. They not only relieve but make people able and willing to work.

The House of Commons in Committee on the Bill.

Ottawa, June 23.—The attention of the House, to the exclusion of other private bills, was engrossed with the consideration of the Grand Trunk Pacific bill in the committee stage. Many of the clauses met with determined opposition, but in the absence of notice suggested amendments were ruled out of order, with the result that the number of notices placed upon the order paper to-night indicate that even after the bill passes the committee stage it will be fought strenuously on the motion for the third reading, when the members can be placed upon record on each amendment. A protracted debate took place upon the clause fixing the capital stock at $75,000,000, and Mr. Bourassa endeavored to have it reduced to $65,000,000. Sir Wilfrid Laurier doubted whether the company would be able to build the road with the resources placed at its command by the bill. He admitted the probability that the company will apply to the Government for aid. Hon. A. G. Blair emphasized the point that if the services rendered by the Government were then then by in a position to dictate the terms upon which that assistance would be granted. Another clause which was productive of a long discussion was that authorizing the company to issue paid-up stock in payment for plant rolling stock, vessels, and other equipment, also for the bona fide claims of contractors for property or services rendered, but not for promotion services. Exception was taken to the issue of stock for services rendered, and also that it was not clear the clause as drafted might not be construed as authorizing the issue of preference stock for that purpose.

The Minister of Railways intimated he would not object to the words "or services rendered" being struck out, but Mr. McCarthy was not prepared to agree to this, and asked that the clause stand for consultation with the incorporators. This evening was enlivened by a spirited debate upon the respective merits of Halifax and St. John as winter ports, during which the spirit of rivalry which exists between these ports found vent in the characterization of the port of St. John by the representative of Halifax as a mud-hole. The representative of St. John retorted that captains declared Halifax was a good harbor when they succeeded in getting into it. After eight hours' debate the committee reported progress, two clauses of the bill being held over for further consideration.

On the opening of the House Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave Mr. Borden the information that he had promised in reference to the transportation and the Treadgold concession. He said:—In regard to the first of these commissions, the House is already aware of our intention was that it should be composed of Sir Wm. Van Horne, Mr. John Bertram and Mr. Harry Kennedy. Mr. Kennedy has signified that it is impossible for him to accept the duties of the commission, and therefore we have selected in his place Mr. Fry of Quebec. Mr. John Bertram has accepted without any qualification. When Sir Wm. Van Horne was first approached upon the subject he expressed his willingness to give his valuable services to this commission. Since that time Sir Wm. Van Horne intimated to Hon. Mr. Sutherland that matters he doubted whether he would be able to accept the labor of the commission, and rather asked Mr. Sutherland to be relieved of the duties and the qualified consent that he had given. We were not to accept this implied suggestion from Sir Wm. Van Horne that he should be relieved, and we still hope that we shall be able to secure to the country the valuable services he can render upon such a commission as that.

In regard to the second commission, that is, the commission for the investigation of the Treadgold and other concessions in the Yukon, Mr. Justice Britton has appointed a commissioner, and has accepted the services of another gentleman as second commissioner, but account of differences of opinion and the fact that probably he could hardly serve for the term which we proposed to ask, we have thought it proper to ask the services of Chief Justice Killam of the Supreme Court of Manitoba, whose consent we have not yet received.

THE UMBRIA PLOT.

Arrests in New York May Solve the Mystery.

New York, June 23.—Joseph Fignaro and George Bruno were arrested here, charged with robbery. The detectives say they found on them a paper relating to the Cunard Liner Umbria's dynamiting bomb mystery. The men are charged with robbing A. Bertolli, an Italian banker, of $6,200 on June 10. Inspector McCluskey declines to say in what way the men were connected with the Umbria plot.

BRITAIN UNABLE TO STRIKE.

Present Fiscal System Prevents Effective Steps, Says Chamberlain.

London, June 23.—When asked in the House of Commons what steps were being taken to induce Germany to cease differentiation against Canada, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain replied:—"I am not aware that there are any effective steps that can be taken under our present fiscal system."

When the House went into committee on the budget bill, Henry Chalmers (Conservative), former President of the Board of Agriculture, moved the rejection of the clause providing for a discussion, during which Mr. Ritchie, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared the tax had been of no advantage to the British farmers, and had been a disadvantage to the dairymen by increasing the price of foodstuffs, and pointed out that the whole of the tax fell on the consumers, the motion was defeated by 416 to 32 votes.

MULLAH THE AGGRESSOR.

The Somaliland Situation is Considered Grave.

London, June 23.—The Times, in an editorial to-day, says that the net result of the recent British operations against the Mad Mullah in Somaliland appears to be that the Mullah has now established himself in British territory. Mr. Brodrick's last speech regarding the operations was more confident than was justified by the facts. "The facts that an undisturbed withdrawal is about the best we can hope for, and that the Mullah has marched, with all his army, into our territory, are proof enough of the gravity of the situation."

Dublin, June 23.—At a meeting of the Irish physical force party, held at Borestown, Kildare, J. Keating, representing the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Chicago, advocated Ireland's emancipation by armed rebellion, abused the Irish Parliamentary party, and the United Irish League, and referring to the comparative failure of the recent financial missions to the United States, said that Irish America "had only pennies for bread, but millions for lead."

MRS. SANFORD'S FUNERAL.

Newcastle District Paid Tribute to the Deceased.

Newcastle, June 23.—The funeral of Mrs. Olive Wilmot Sanford, wife of Henry Sanford, Vice-President of the Adams Express Company of New York, took place yesterday. The general esteem in which she was held in all the surrounding country was shown by the great numbers who drove in, many from a distance, to attend. A special Grand Trunk train came down from Toronto, having on board Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Osborne, Mr. George Beardmore, Mr. Frank Darling, Mr. A. Kelly Evans, Mr. Gibson Cassels, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gibson, Miss Parsons, Mr. Albert Nordheimer, Miss Francis, Miss Dwan, Bishop DuMoulin, Rev. Scott Howard, Mr. H. J. Scott, Mr. Sheldon of New York, Mr. Edmund Phillips and others. The service at the house was conducted by Rev. Canon Fatcombe. At the church Bishop DuMoulin officiated, assisted by Rev. Scott Howard, and there was a special music service conducted by Mr. Edmund Phillips, organist of St. George's Church, Toronto. The service at the grave was conducted by the Bishop. Among the relatives present were two sisters, Mrs. Charles Thorne and Mrs. D. J. Galbraith, and her stepson, Mr. Sanford of New York. Rain when needed.
