SELECTIONS.

"THE GREAT DIVORCE CASE."

The London correspondent of the "Hereford Times" writes:—"There has leaked out a little special information on a matter which has not yet long gone by, and which, it is to be hoped, is only partially and temporarily revived. I refer to the case in which Mr. O'Keane ventured to bring a suit for a divorce from his wife, and to make the case of his own, a corresponding one. People naturally wondered how it came about, and what pretext for such a proceeding was obtained, and it seems that at the time that the Attorney General for Ireland was standing for the town of Frisco, the Irishman received communication from Mrs. O'Keane, stating that her husband, who had at one time edited a newspaper in Tralee, and believed that he had some political influence in the borough, was going over to Ireland to oppose the Government candidate; and that his Lordship was desirous of preventing his doing so, if an interview was granted to her by Lord Palmerston, she would point out means by which her husband might be induced to give up his design. It was thought a matter of some importance at the time that the Attorney General for Ireland should not be defeated at that election, and Mrs. O'Keane was permitted to see the Premier; and whatever she had said, she said; and moreover, as it is believed, managed to carry out her real object, which was to get something for herself; and it is not denied that by means of a tale of distress and bad treatment, she got a sum of £1000 from the Government, £500 pounds—but so far as her intention of serving her husband was concerned, she took nothing by her motion, for the Premier, who had also had to say to the divorce case, the groundwork of the subsequent proceedings was an envelope addressed to Mrs. O'Keane in Lord Palmerston's hand, and which, in fact, contained the bank note which had charitably given to her.

GEN. GRANT'S PROGRESS TO CHICAGO.—Gen. Grant received a splendid ovation on his way to Chicago. At Cleveland, the citizens fairly captivated him on Friday night, and made him partake of a splendid banquet; but they could not get a speech out of him. After supper, the modest hero offered himself to the hundreds of fair sex, who were to kiss him with flowers. First came a lass who placed about the chestnut's neck a beautiful and costly wreath of flowers. He took her hand kindly, and as the crowd applauded, kissed her. Then followed a young woman who had a large bouquet of flowers. She encircled his neck until his head was obscured and his arms full of bouquets. Still they came, and he was obliged to lay the fragrant offerings upon the table.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY occurred in Saugus Centre on Tuesday afternoon last, which caused much excitement. George Holliday, a very respectable man, was shot, while on the way from the latter's shop to his dwelling house, a distance of about half a mile. The boy subsequently committed suicide—shooting himself in the chest. The father afterwards was shot, managed to get to his home, where a physician was called. The next morning he was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital in this city, and the ball having been removed from the wound, there are hopes entertained of his recovery. Mr. Holliday is a Scotchman by birth, and is about fifty years of age. He is much esteemed by the citizens of Saugus, and is said to be one of the best mechanics in the State. He lives with his wife and five children. George Holliday was very strong for his years, and a man in stature. The incident feelings had existed between him and his father. He was considered a good boy, and had a kind disposition, and it is the belief of those acquainted with the facts, that he had become insane in consequence of a sunstroke.

A SON OF THE LATE DUKE OF NEWCASTLE IN THE DIVORCE COURT.

The case of Clinton vs. Clinton, in the London Divorce Court, occupies a large share of the attention of the London press, and a lively correspondence on the subject has been going on in the "Morning Post." The suit is instituted at the same time that an application is made to Lord Thomas Clinton, second son of the late Duke of Newcastle, on the ground of adultery.

DICKENS AS A REPORTER.
Readers of "David Copperfield" will remember Dickens's lively description of a newspaper reporter's struggles with the stenographic system of shorthand reporting, which was so incomprehensible in its details, and so difficult to master, that the luckless learner was driven to the verge of distraction by the severity of his labors. This passage, and its allusion here, many of my readers's successors, can form no adequate conception. I have often transcribed for the printer, from my short hand notes, important public speeches, in which the strictest accuracy was required, and a mistake in which would have been to a young man severely compromising, written on the palm of my hand by the light of a dark lantern in a post-chaise and four, galloping through a wild country, all through the dead of night, at the then surprising rate of 15 miles an hour.

MY OWN DEAREST PET. of all dear Pets my Truly Loving Dearest Pet, I received both your dear little letters quite safe, and a thousand kisses to you, my own dearest life. How delighted it makes me to see that my poor dear little pet is all well. Keep up your spirits, my own true love, and arrange sometime to take plenty of exercise, and then how delightful it will be to me to see my loving dear well and flourishing when she runs into my arms at my happy reunion. My thoughts of you, dearest life, is the only thing which will make me keep up my spirits in this melancholy place.

THE GREAT DIVORCE CASE.
Nothing coarser than rose leaves should be used for the setting of this tender romance. But the inexorable lawyers follow it up with this miserable prosaic continuation—
In March, 1858, Lord Thomas had to leave London to avoid his creditors. He first went to Worthing, and afterwards to Arundel, Bognor and Brighton. During this time his wife supplied him with money through the assistance of friends and by selling her own jewelry. She continued to reside in London, to look after his affairs; but, from time to time, went to him for a day or two at Regate, Red Hill and Horsham. What he then thought of her shows in the following letter, from Worthing, written the day after he left London:—
"My Own Street, Dear Little Pet, I arrived here quite safe yesterday evening, and went to the Marine Hotel, where the people were very civil and obliging. I got a good tea and went to bed, and got up this morning at the usual time, and after breakfast bought a passport, pens, and paper, and then looked out for a lodging. I found one close to the hotel—a very good sitting-room, and a bedroom at the back, at one pound a week, which I took, and where I am now writing. I then took a walk about two miles along the sea-shore and back, and then sat down on a seat on the parade; who should come and sit on the same seat but Mr. and Mrs. Enright. You may fancy his surprise at seeing me. I walked about with him for nearly two hours. Poor, dear man, he was most kind, and asked after you a dozen times. He is going to carry me off to his castle on Monday next, and when I once get there, I am all very difficult to get away again." Take care to let me know on Thursday what train you are coming by on Saturday, as I shall go by one that will bring me into Regate before you, so that you may not have to wait that morning, and the boat at Regate will give you a good bye, my pet; a thousand kisses to you. Make yourself as comfortable as you can, and we must hope for better times."
"Ever your most affectionate husband,"
"T. C."

THE DOUBLE MURDER IN WEST ROXBURY.
There is an intense feeling among all classes of the citizens of the quiet village of West Roxbury in relation to the shocking double murder which was committed by some fanatical brute upon two innocent children, while they were enjoying themselves in recreation among the green leaves of the Grove one week ago to-day. Such a horrible deed cannot be found recorded in the whole history of crime in Massachusetts or elsewhere.

One of our reporters this morning visited the spot where the deed was committed and the bodies found. It is about two miles from the West Roxbury Post Office, and near the Dedham road, in what is known as Fanny's Woods, some three hundred acres of land and now owned by Thomas Metley, Esq., whose mansion is near by. Two gentlemen from Boston who were taking a stroll through the woods, found the body of the young girl near the Dedham road, in what is known as Fanny's Woods, some three hundred acres of land and now owned by Thomas Metley, Esq., whose mansion is near by. THE DOUBLE MURDER IN WEST ROXBURY.
The young girl must have made a desperate struggle to free herself from the hands of the villain, as the leaves around near the rock are very discolored and the twenty-seven wounds received upon her body, from a large dirk-knife, sixteen of them being upon her back. She must have also made an attempt to grasp the knife of the murderer, as one of her fingers on the right hand is severed and all the others are nearly cut off. Her father, under her and her development, having been the days, that it could only be recognised by the clothing. Her mouth was discovered to be full of grain, which had been used to stop her cries from being heard.

VISCOUNT BURY ON THE COLONIES.—The London "Economist" of the 9th inst. in quoting Viscount Bury on "The Exodus of the Western Nations," alludes to Lordship's views, favoring the independence of the Colonies:—
"A federation of our Colonies has been proposed, but we cannot see how colonies could, by any union of government, contribute to each other's assistance when the minor members are excluded from all communication with the principal and most valuable one for half the year, or accessible only by a railway which may run for a long distance within a few miles of the enemy's frontier. It appears to us, then, very plain that the sooner we part in peace and friendship with our North American colonies, and strictly have it already, while all our independence and dignity are still in our hands, and that remains in us is the least costly and most responsible of colonial sovereignty. This is the ultimate opinion of Lord Bury, who has, in fact, given us the draught of view, with great skill and judgment and thorough knowledge of the subject it deals with. From the present state of the political relations of North America, the question is soon likely to become a very prominent one, and in such a case the work of Viscount Bury will be the text book and guide of every statesman of reliable information."

THE FRENCHMAN who won the Derby this year, won £30,000 sterling at the same time.

An onion farm in Wetherfield, Conn., has yielded its owner $177,000 from one crop.

Four fine young men, the sons of a farmer in "Pearbore," C. W., recently went down in an old mill to open it, and were smothered by the foul air which it contained.

The Haytian rebellion has been "crushed out."

"Ladies and gentlemen: I mention these trivial things as an assurance to you that I never have forgotten the fascination of that old pursuit. (Cheers.) The pleasure that I used to feel in the rapidity and dexterity of its exercises has never faded out of my breast. Whatever little cunning of hand or head I took to it, or acquired in it, I have so retained as that I fully believe I could resume it to-morrow" (Cheers.) To this present year of my life, what I sit in this hall, or were not, hearing a dull speech—the phenomenon does occur—(laughter) I sometimes beguile the tedious of the moment by mentally following the speaker in the old, old way; and sometimes, if you can believe me, I even find my hand on the table-cloth. (Laughter.) Accept them as a proof that my feeling for the vacation of my youth is not a sentiment taken up to-night to be thrown away to-morrow, (hear, hear,) but a faithful sympathy, which is a part of myself. (Cheers.) I verily believe I am sure, that if I had never quitted my old calling I should have been foremost and zealous in the interest of this institution, believing it to be a sound, a wholesome, and a good one. Ladies and gentlemen, I am to propose to you to drink "Prosperity to the Newspaper Press Fund."

A correspondent proposes a new way to kill rats. His own house being overrun with vermin, a servant girl who had seen the effect of old Bourbon whisky upon bipeds, thought she would try an experiment on the rats. Accordingly, she took a small quantity, made it very sweet with sugar, crumbled in bread enough for the crowd, and set the dish in the cellar. A few hours after she went down and found several rats gloriously "fuddled," engaged in throwing potato-parings, and hauling one another up to drink.—These were easily disposed of; those not killed, left the premises immediately, suffering with severe headache.

A gentleman of the Church of England has shown recently the power of stating debtor and creditor account better than has ever been done by even the most intelligent accountant. In his new church he has two pews, one side of the church being for those who have paid poor rent who are his creditors, the other side having pews for those who do not pay rent—that is the Reverend gentleman's debtors.

A forgery to the extent of £8,000 has just been attempted to be perpetrated on the Bank of Ireland. The discovery has excited no little sensation in commercial circles, not merely on account of the largeness of the sum involved, but also from the fact of the name which has been fraudulently used being that of the Chief Secretary for Ireland. The exact circumstances under which the fraud was committed have not transpired, but it is understood that cheques purporting to have been drawn by Sir Robert Peel, were forwarded from London; but the amount being so considerable, it was thought a prudent precaution to communicate by telegraph with the right hon. baronet. It was then found that the signature was a forgery.

Having taken out a general cargo of Merchandise to Charleston, she and her crew, including a full deck load, and completed her return voyage in the almost incredible space of one month and 24 days, 36 hours of which she was detained by a dense fog at the entrance of the Gulf of Canada and was two days becalmed on the homeward passage. Her previous voyage on the same route was performed in one month and 29 days, thus establishing her character as one of the swiftest vessels ever built.—Liverpool Telegraph, June 2, 1865.

Hon. Charles G. Duffy was entertained in London by a number of his fellow countrymen.

The "Dublin Irish Times" says the report is correct that Mr. C. G. Duffy will contest the borough of New Ross at the next election.

Canadian papers, both East and West, report an alarming exodus of young men from that country to the United States.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Impurity of the Blood.—In most human acts, there are a thousand ways of going wrong in the way of going right. The right way to preserve or restore health, is to keep the blood pure and the corporal functions regular. These objects are quietly and fully obtained by Holloway's Balsamic Pills, which purge from the system all morbid matters before they have caused any serious derangement; or, if mischief has already produced, they arrest its progress and repair its devastations. This is the rational treatment, ever safe, always effective. When the spirits flag, when the nerves fall in their duty, when the appetite is capricious and the digestion is at fault, these admirable Pills will readily re-organize the disordered actions.

Perfectly safe in all cases.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP, for all diseases of children, such as teething, wind colic, &c., is a safe, reliable, and harmless remedy. It not only relieves the child from pain, but regulates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system; gives rest to the mother and health to the child.

As Good as New. In this fast country the hair whitens and falls early. But thin and grey hair indicates only a local decay. Your hair may be renewed and sustained through life by the use of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylabassam, or Hair Dressing. Every Druggist sells them.

DIED.
At Rest on Thursday, June 23rd, Mr. Abram Finlay, in the 7th year of his age, leaving a widow, a family, and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn the loss of an affectionate husband, a kind parent, and a true friend. Deceased was a Director of the Farmers' Bank at Ruston, and had won the esteem and the confidence of the Society for his integrity and good judgment in the management of affairs concerning that institution.—*R. To Consumers of Gas.

THE Directors of the Charlottetown Gas Light Company have pleasure in announcing that they have purchased the COOKING STOVES. Consumers desirous of proving these most desirable and economical Gas Ranges are requested to make an early application at the Gas Works, as only a limited number will be dispensed.

TESTIMONIALS.—REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF HOTEL PROPRIETORS, PUBLISHED BY CHAMBERLAIN'S ASTOR, BARRETT, & CO., NEW YORK.—We, the undersigned, present by invitation, yesterday, to witness the operation and working of the new principle of gas used for cooking purposes, were present at the trial of the same, and after a series of fully calling out the utility of these Stoves. As the result of actual experiment the following was performed:—1. Gas, in its natural state, and as it is delivered by the gas works, is by two instances, broiled in five minutes, and that to a turn.

Broiled cut fresh from the new loaf was delicately browned in two minutes. In each case these viands were pronounced deliciously and thoroughly cooked. In the case of the meats, the water boiled in 44 minutes, consuming 1 cubic foot of gas, and the substance of the whole, when cooked retained their juices and flavor. In no case was there the faintest perceptible flavor or odor of gas in or about the Stoves, or in the food when cooked. We regard the process as entirely superior and successful.

It is with pleasure that I give my testimony of the great value of the Gas Stove you are now offering to the public. The Stove for ironing I regard as destined long needed in house-keeping. The benefit and economy occasioned by many hours spent at the ironing-table, in a room heated in the ordinary temperature, is all spent by your stove, which heats the iron quickly, and leaves a comfortable room. This stove is equally successful as a boiler.—Much more might be said in simple justice to this great invention were it not that I am already too long in giving it a trial.

Yours respectfully, Mas. W. W. EVERTS.

From D. B. COOK, III, Lake St., Chicago.

I regard W. F. Shaw's Patent "Gas Smoothing Iron" as one of the greatest inventions of the age. It is all its claims for it—novel, economical, and exceedingly convenient.

The much-dreaded "ironing day" is welcomed with pleasure wherever the Gas Iron is used; and no housekeeper will consent to be without it after giving it a trial.

Yours, &c. D. B. COOK.
