G. A. Lounsbury & Co. near by conduct a carriage repository here that for variety and excellence of stock cannot be beaten. They carry surreys, carriages, buggies and phaetons of leading makes and styles, and are satisfied with a moderate profit, too. Mr. C. C. Hayward, the genial accountant, sold Polly a handsome carriage, but before they left, Charley, also, got much interested in a road wagon. Uncle Josh saw what was up, so he quickly said, 'I'll honor your draft for that, too, my boy, 'cause I know that anything you get of Lounsbury & Co. is O. K., and now if you'll just excuse me a few minutes I'll make myself a present of a few farm implements. I buy all my farm machinery here 'cause they keep the best and don't want all the money a fellow's got either.'

'And as you are going to keep a horse,' continued the old man, 'of course, you'll need harness. The boss horse milliner of this section, to my notion, is John Clark. He uses only first-class material and gives personal supervision to the minutest detail of manufacture. There is nothing in harness that cannot be had of him—heavy and light, single and double, plain and fancy, work and buggy harness, he can make 'em to order on short notice, besides he keeps every other kind of turf goods imaginable.' After a visit to J. Clark's harness shop Charley said he thought 'if a man couldn't get satisfied it would be his own fault,' and he expressed himself pleased with the liberal treatment he received.

'Yum, yum,' laughingly escaped Polly's rosy lips, as she glanced into Geo. Stables' attractive confectionery and variety store. 'Uncle Josh, you know I've got a sweet tooth, and those candies look so nice I just can't resist the temptation to go in.' Charley here objected, because he knew if Polly got into a confectionery store once, there's where she'd likely want to stay. He relented, however, when he remembered that Uncle Josh was settling all bills, so in they went, and the girl loaded up on chocolates, bon bons, butter-cups and taffy enough to make every tooth in the county ache. Charley was straggled to Mr. Stables' elegant assortment of smoker's articles and got himself a fine meerschaum pipe while Uncle Josh took time by the forelock and laid in a supply of garden seeds to have 'em ready for early planting.

'Let's see—I promised you a gold watch, didn't I,' queried Uncle Josh of Polly, 'and the place of all to get a good one is at H. Williston & Co.'s. Entering the popular jewelry store the old man gallantly acquiesced himself of the promise and then directed Polly's attention to the superior stock of silverware carried by the house. 'There is no other such house in town,' said the old man, 'and I will guarantee the quality to be the very best. Pick out your family clock while here,' he added. 'H. Williston & Co. carry a magnificent line. Don't forget another fact,' he continued, 'if ever you unfortunately need optical goods, this is the place to come, and say, my boy, when your old turnip breaks down just remember that these folks are also expert doctors on sick watches.'

'Yes, and I must have some fancy stationery,' quoth Polly. 'Yes, and I've got the very place in my eye,' quickly responded Uncle Josh. The Newcastle Book Store is right next door. You will find many articles there to please you. Step right in and I'll introduce you to two real pleasant young ladies, Miss Layton and Miss Holt. So here Polly's purchases included miscellaneous books, enough fancy stationery and writing material with which to write letters to all her kindred—even back to her forty-eighth cousins. She then made arrangements for the late periodicals, magazines and newspapers. Polly also learned that fancy goods would soon be made a feature of the Newcastle Book Store and she then and there declared her intention to call again at her earliest convenience.

'And in the matter of insurance,' continued the old man, 'I'll introduce you to a very reliable and experienced agent. He carries a complete line of building material—everything from the sill for the foundation to the shingles for the roof, including doors and windows, mouldings, etc. It is pleasant to deal with Geo. S. Stothard for his great aim is to give satisfaction to every customer.' It did not take long to arrange for the improvements to everybody's entire satisfaction.

'I believe I heard you speaking about a piano, didn't I?' asked Uncle Josh. 'Yes, and I'd be dreadfully lonely without one,' eagerly responded Polly. 'Well, I guess I can stand it,' he said, 'but what piano would you most prefer?' 'I think I'd like to have a Whaley & Royce. Several people have recommended it to me for its purity of tone, sympathy of touch, beauty of finish and a whole lot of other good points.' 'All right my girl,' replied Uncle, 'the man to see for musical instruments is C. Park. Besides a piano, Mr. Park also sells the graphophone and all kinds of stringed instruments and musical merchandise, and he don't charge fancy prices either.' Polly got a piano, graphophone and some late sheet music while Uncle Josh settled the whole bill with a grin.

'Law sakes!' suddenly exclaimed Uncle Josh, 'all this trading and shopping round town has caused me to forget one of the greatest essentials to future existence. I have heard it said that newly married folks could live on love and scenery, but an old man of experience knows better—your table would look slim without bread; it's the 'staff of life' you know. 'Polly you must meet H. Wyse, the baker. His bread, pies, cakes and nick-nacks are conceded by all to be the finest on earth. Remember, Charley, there's no use of your 'ootsy tootsy' bothering herself much about baking, so long as there is a good baker in town like H. Wyse. He made that elegant cake I brought to your wedding.' 'Yes, and everybody said it was lovely,' eagerly replied Polly.

'Now,' cried the old gentleman, 'now for a picture of this crowd in good old country fashion. We'll go to the photograph gallery and Larsen has a good one. His pictures are wonderful in fidelity and finish. I want one full-size photo for my study and some small ones for my friends. Larsen has the soul of a true artist; all his work is a labor of love, in which he will not stop short of perfection, and he is famous for successful enlarging. I want to give you a life size representation of 'yours truly.' (Uncle Josh's picture may be seen at Larsen's studio any time the reader desires to call.)

En route to their home the party called at THE ADVOCATE office. 'You'll want the news every week,' remarked Uncle Josh 'and as this is the favorite local paper, I'll subscribe.'

Upon summing up the wonderful events of the day, Polly began to vaguely express thanks. 'You have bought us everything,' she exclaimed.

'Only one thing,' replied Uncle Josh, reflectively, 'but I can remedy that. John Morrissey, the furniture man, always has a nice line of them and you can get one whenever you want it; I'll pay for the best.'

'W-h-y,' exclaimed Polly with great surprise, 'Uncle, what can it be?'

'Well, it's a baby carriage, and—'

But Polly had fainted.

WAITING FOR MY BOY.

A few years ago, in one of the growing cities of New York State, there was a home into which the great sorrow of a father's death had entered. The sons, of whom there were several, were of a nervous temperament, full of animation, and exposed to many temptations which endanger the young in large cities.

The widowed mother realized the vast importance of her responsibility, and many a time did she look upward toward the Heavenly Father for divine aid in the guidance of her fatherless boy. She made it a rule never to retire for rest until all her sons were at home. But as the boys grew older this became a severe task, both on her time and health, often keeping the faithful mother watching until the midnight hour.

We hear a great deal about purifying the blood. The way to purify it is to enrich it. Blood is not a simple fluid like water. It is made up of minute bodies and when these are deficient, the blood lacks the life-giving principle. Scott's Emulsion is not a mere blood purifier. It actually increases the number of the red corpuscles in the blood and changes unhealthy action into health.

If you want to learn more of it we have a book, which tells the story in simple words.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Baltimore, Md.

"THOUGHT MY HEAD WOULD BURST."

A Fredericton Lady's Terrible Suffering.

Mrs. Geo. DORRIST tells the following remarkable story of relief from suffering and restoration to health, which suffices.

For several years I have been a constant sufferer from nervous headache, and the pain was so intense that sometimes I was almost crazy. I really thought that my head would burst. I consulted a number of physicians and took many remedies, but without effect. I noticed Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, and as they seemed to suit my case, I got a box and began their use. Before taking them I was very weak and debilitated, and would sometimes wake out of my sleep with a distressed, smothering feeling, and I was frequently seized with agonizing pains in the region of the heart, and often could scarcely muster up courage to keep up the struggle for life. In this wretched condition Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills came to the rescue, and to-day I state, with gratitude, that I am vigorous and strong, and all this improvement is due to this wonderful remedy.

he continued, 'that is of importance.' You will want a risk on your new house and furniture, then you can't do a more sensible or satisfactory thing than to provide for your wife a policy in life insurance. My old friend E. Lee Street, not only has lines of the 'most solid and best companies, but he is an expert and trustworthy underwriter. He has a large number of companies, all of which belong to the 'old reliable category, being well known for their prompt and satisfactory adjustment of losses. It's better to be safe than sorry and you'll surely be safe in his agency.' Not only did Charley place his fire risk with Mr. Street but also took out a $5,000 life policy in the Standard.

'By the way,' exclaimed Uncle Josh, with a paternal air, 'the next thing to look after is the lumber for these improvements which are absolutely necessary. Come with me and I'll introduce you to Geo. S. Stothard who is the principal dealer in that line here, and he has a well equipped planing mill in connection. He carries a complete line of building material—everything from the sill for the foundation to the shingles for the roof, including doors and windows, mouldings, etc. It is pleasant to deal with Geo. S. Stothard for his great aim is to give satisfaction to every customer.' It did not take long to arrange for the improvements to everybody's entire satisfaction.

She made it a rule never to retire for rest until all her sons were at home. But as the boys grew older this became a severe task, both on her time and health, often keeping the faithful mother watching until the midnight hour.

One of the boys displayed a talent for music and became a skilful violinist. He drifted among the wrong class of people and was soon at balls and parties that seldom dispersed until the early hours of day. Upon one occasion it was nearly seven o'clock in the morning before he went to his home. Entering the house and opening the door of the sitting room he saw a sight that never be effaced from his memory. In the old rocking chair sat his aged mother, fast asleep but evidently she had been weeping. Her dilapidated cap, as white as the snow, covered her grey hair; the knitting had fallen from her hands, while the tallow from the candle had run over the candlestick and down her dress.

Going to her the young man exclaimed, 'Why, mother! what are you doing here?'

His voice startled her, and upon the question being repeated, she attempted to rise, and piteously but, oh, so tenderly looking up into his face, said, 'I am waiting for my boy.'

Constipation

Causes fully half the sickness in the world. It retains the digested food too long in the bowels and produces biliousness, torpid liver, indigestion, bad taste, coated tongue, sick headache, insomnia, etc. Hood's Pills regulate constipation and all its results easily and thoroughly. Hood's Pills

Law sakes! suddenly exclaimed Uncle Josh, 'all this trading and shopping round town has caused me to forget one of the greatest essentials to future existence. I have heard it said that newly married folks could live on love and scenery, but an old man of experience knows better—your table would look slim without bread; it's the 'staff of life' you know. 'Polly you must meet H. Wyse, the baker. His bread, pies, cakes and nick-nacks are conceded by all to be the finest on earth. Remember, Charley, there's no use of your 'ootsy tootsy' bothering herself much about baking, so long as there is a good baker in town like H. Wyse. He made that elegant cake I brought to your wedding.' 'Yes, and everybody said it was lovely,' eagerly replied Polly.

'Now,' cried the old gentleman, 'now for a picture of this crowd in good old country fashion. We'll go to the photograph gallery and Larsen has a good one. His pictures are wonderful in fidelity and finish. I want one full-size photo for my study and some small ones for my friends. Larsen has the soul of a true artist; all his work is a labor of love, in which he will not stop short of perfection, and he is famous for successful enlarging. I want to give you a life size representation of 'yours truly.' (Uncle Josh's picture may be seen at Larsen's studio any time the reader desires to call.)

En route to their home the party called at THE ADVOCATE office. 'You'll want the news every week,' remarked Uncle Josh 'and as this is the favorite local paper, I'll subscribe.'

Upon summing up the wonderful events of the day, Polly began to vaguely express thanks. 'You have bought us everything,' she exclaimed.

'Only one thing,' replied Uncle Josh, reflectively, 'but I can remedy that. John Morrissey, the furniture man, always has a nice line of them and you can get one whenever you want it; I'll pay for the best.'

'W-h-y,' exclaimed Polly with great surprise, 'Uncle, what can it be?'

'Well, it's a baby carriage, and—'

But Polly had fainted.

Temperance

WAITING FOR MY BOY.

A few years ago, in one of the growing cities of New York State, there was a home into which the great sorrow of a father's death had entered. The sons, of whom there were several, were of a nervous temperament, full of animation, and exposed to many temptations which endanger the young in large cities.

The widowed mother realized the vast importance of her responsibility, and many a time did she look upward toward the Heavenly Father for divine aid in the guidance of her fatherless boy. She made it a rule never to retire for rest until all her sons were at home. But as the boys grew older this became a severe task, both on her time and health, often keeping the faithful mother watching until the midnight hour.

One of the boys displayed a talent for music and became a skilful violinist. He drifted among the wrong class of people and was soon at balls and parties that seldom dispersed until the early hours of day. Upon one occasion it was nearly seven o'clock in the morning before he went to his home. Entering the house and opening the door of the sitting room he saw a sight that never be effaced from his memory. In the old rocking chair sat his aged mother, fast asleep but evidently she had been weeping. Her dilapidated cap, as white as the snow, covered her grey hair; the knitting had fallen from her hands, while the tallow from the candle had run over the candlestick and down her dress.

Going to her the young man exclaimed, 'Why, mother! what are you doing here?'

His voice startled her, and upon the question being repeated, she attempted to rise, and piteously but, oh, so tenderly looking up into his face, said, 'I am waiting for my boy.'
