ON THE PEST SHIPS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The work of fumigating the Scandia was begun long before daybreak yesterday morning. Dr. Jenkins visited the Scandia and examined every person on board. Their task was an arduous one, for her immigrant passengers alone numbered 981. This is one of the largest crowds of immigrants ever brought here by any of the Hamburg lines. The Scandia is a small steamer, and at quarantine there was considerable uncomplimentary criticism on the course of her agents in sending so many persons on her, knowing the state of the health of the city of Hamburg at the time of their departure. The Scandia's passengers are for the most part Russian Jews. They all stopped at cheap and dirty lodging houses near the wharves in Hamburg for some days before they boarded the steamer. All classes were allowed to intermingle during the trip. Little care is ever taken aboard those immigrant vessels to keep them clean, the ship's crew being inadequate for the work and the passengers themselves being indifferent to their surroundings. The fumigation and disinfection of the Wyoming was repeated this morning, and it will be continued two or three times every day during the period of her detention. All the Wyoming's immigrant passengers were removed to Hoffman Island and there given a bath. They will not be returned to the steamer. Their clothing and baggage will be thoroughly fumigated and disinfected.

So far as known the cholera record is as follows: Moravia, 22 deaths at sea, 1 death in port, 23 total deaths, 2 sick, 25 total cases; Normannia, 5 deaths at sea, 9 deaths in port, 14 total deaths, 25 sick, 19 total cases; Rugia, 4 deaths at sea, 5 deaths in port, 9 total deaths, 14 sick, 23 total cases; Wyoming, 2 deaths in port, 2 total deaths, 2 total cases; Scandia, 32 deaths at sea, 2 deaths in port, 34 total deaths, 7 sick, 41 total cases; totals, 63 deaths at sea, 19 deaths in port, 82 total deaths, 48 sick, 132 total cases.

WHY NEW YORK IS HOPEFUL.

The new addition to the cholera fleet has increased the gravity of the state of affairs existing at quarantine and the already much overtaxed quarantine officials have more than they can well attend to in fighting the enemy off our coasts. But nobody has lost heart and the belief that the scourge will be driven back is strengthened instead of weakened as days go by and no case of cholera is discovered in New York. This feeling of security arises from the fact that every day draws us nearer to cold weather, because the city is getting cleaner and cleaner every day, because all the health fortifications have been erected and because it cannot be denied that cholera has been besieging us now for sixteen days, yet our defenders have so far managed to keep the enemy from landing on our coast. Thus it is that New York grows more confident day by day, while in no way ignoring the dangers which beset this city and, through New York, the country at large.

The Board of Health issued this bulletin at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon: "No cases of cholera in the city to-day. The number of deaths for the week ending noon to-day, 731, against 747 in the corresponding week of last year. The deaths from diarrheal diseases numbered 92, which is less than in any corresponding week since 1870, although the population of the city has nearly doubled since. There were no deaths during the week from typhus fever or smallpox. The health of the city is unusually good in every particular.

PASSED THE ORDEAL.

Three steamers were released from quarantine Saturday afternoon, the health officers having been convinced that no sickness occurred on the vessels during the voyage to this port, and a vigorous medical examination on their arrival here showing no trace of cholera, or any choleraic disorder whatever. To render assurance doubly sure, however, each of these vessels had to undergo a thorough course of fumigation and disinfection, each person on board being put in such a condition that it was practically impossible for them to convey any contagion to the city. These steamers were the Britannic, of the White Star Line, from Liverpool, the British steamer Joseph John, from Hamburg, and the Dutch steamer Zaandam, from Antwerp.

CANADIAN COMMISSIONERS INCOG.

One of the most important and interesting features of the present quarantine against cholera at New York developed when a reporter ascertained that since Monday last two secret representatives of the Canadian Government have been in the city and have visited quarantine stations daily for the purpose of keeping the health officers of that Government fully informed as to what was being done by the authorities here to prevent the cholera from entering this city. Upon the reports of these secret agents, it is said, depends the question whether the Canadian Government will establish a complete and rigid quarantine by water and rail against New York. The establishment of such a quarantine against this city is of great interest to merchants, as the result would be a great loss to all commercial interests. It is impossible to learn whether the reports of the secret agents were favorable.

CANADIAN QUARANTINE.

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.—The steamships Waldram, from Hamburg, and Labrador, from Liverpool, arrived at quarantine yesterday. Dr. Montizambert boarded both steamers and examined the passengers, after which they were landed to receive a bath in order that their clothing and effects should be fumigated. No symptoms of cholera have been discovered. The new sulphur blast is in operation at the quarantine station and works splendidly, as did also the oxide infector. The accommodations for hundreds of patients are about completed and confidence in the efficiency of the Canadian quarantine has been somewhat revived. Both the Wandram and Labrador will leave their passengers at quarantine and proceed to this port after a thorough disinfection.

THE SITUATION IN HAMBURG.

If any reliance whatever is to be placed upon the official cholera statistics, the disease continues to abate at Hamburg. Yesterday 182 new cases were reported, a decrease of 211 as compared with the returns for Thursday. The deaths yesterday are placed at 122, against 215 for Thursday. The daily reports, however, continue to be badly mixed up, as is evidenced by a supplementary report issued to-day, giving 128 new cases and 41 deaths, that occurred prior to yesterday, and were not incorporated in the prior returns.

Business reports from Hamburg grow worse. It is estimated that the financial and commercial losses there already reach a total of 200,000,000 marks. The disclosures of the horribly unsanitary state of the city and its suburbs have raised the question as to whether the Hamburg Senate ought not to be deprived of its administration of affairs and the Prussian Government assume control.

THE BERLIN SCARE VANISHED.

Among the public in Berlin the scare has utterly vanished. Even the hotels have now ceased to reject guests from Hamburg. A panicky feeling, however, continues to prevail in the rural districts. An instance of this feeling is given at Alt Ruppin, a town of Prussia, were a volunteer corps has been organized to guard the approaches to the town and to keep strangers out until they have been subjected to a week's quarantine. The town of Pine is similarly cordoned and has shut itself off from all communication with visitors even from adjoining districts.

The Berlin authorities consider that the foreign press exaggerates the condition of affairs in Hamburg. Cholera is bad enough in the poorer and older quarters of the city, but the middle and upper-class residents would not have known of the existence of the epidemic, except for the information gleaned through the newspaper.

RUSSIA'S HOPES DISAPPOINTED.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Again the hopes that the cholera has spent its strength in Russia have been dashed to the ground and the people are asking when the end will be. The official returns for Tuesday showed a decerease of 843 new cases throughout the empire, and 1,109 deaths, and this led to the belief that the disease was decreasing in virulence. Yesterday when Wednesday's returns for the whole empire were issued it was seen that a comparison with Tuesday's returns showed an increase of 918 new cases and 927 deaths. The figures for Wednesday stood: New cases, 4,679; deaths, 2,358. In St. Petersburg, however, the returns still show a decrease.

HAMBURG'S DEATH LIST GROWS LARGER.

HAMBURG, Sept. 11.—The cholera epidemic continues to rage in this city, and the total of the death list is growing appallingly larger and larger. Yesterday 310 new cases and 161 deaths were reported here, but of this number 117 cases and 59 deaths had occurred previously.

RUSSIA'S DEATH ROLL.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 11.—Cholera statistics show that 2,337 cases of disease and 1,869 deaths occurred throughout the empire yesterday.

IN PARIS.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—In the suburbs of this city cholera is still pursuing its deadly march and is daily claiming many new victims. Yesterday there were 69 new cases.

WON'T WAIT FOR THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT.

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.—The Quebec Government has decided, notwithstanding the objection of the Dominion authorities to go ahead with its quarantine legislation. The proclamation prohibiting all vessels from cholera infected ports from bringing emigrants to this Province or landing at any point in the Province of Quebec will be rigorously enforced. If the Dominion Government interferes their issue will be brought before the courts, and by the time a hearing is reached it is likely that all danger from cholera will be over. Premier De Boucherville and members of the Cabinet have decided upon the line of conduct indicated, and will take every possible means—even if they may not be strictly constitutional—to prevent cholera from gaining a footing in Quebec.

FIGHTING CHOLERA ON THE STEAMERS.

QUARANTINE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Dr. Jenkins has wired Gov. Flower the following: "Have possession of Fire Island and have transferred first and second cabin passengers of the Normannia and placed them on board the iron steamer Cephus. We have been successful in stopping the disease on the Moravia and checking it in the Rugia and Normannia. The Scandia is being disinfected. The steamship Wyoming is not definitely infected with cholera, but will hold her until we are perfectly satisfied of her condition."

NO MORE IMMIGRANTS TAKEN.

At the Liverpool office of the Guion Line the announcement is made that no immigrants will be taken after the sailing of the steamer Nevada on Wednesday next. The steerage passengers by that steamer engaged their passage some time ago.

DEATHS IN NEW YORK HARBOR.

QUARANTINE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The following telegram was received to-night from Dr. Byron at Swinburne Island. Total number admitted dead 14, died on the dock 2, died in the hospital 12, total cases treated for cholera 26, total suspected cases 67, deaths 27, transferred to Hoffman Island 11, remaining suspects 56, sick patients 26. The steamships still at enforced anchorage were the Kaiser Wilhelm II, the Dubbeldam, the Wieland and the Columbia.

A TIMELY WARNING.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Sir Thomas Spencer Wells has uttered a vehement protest against the emptying into British rivers of the drinking and bilge water from ships that have arrived from infected ports without such water having first been boiled. Water from infected ships was recently emptied into the Tyne, and Sir Thomas expresses fear that the result may be an outbreak of cholera in Newcastle and other towns on that river. Sir Thomas reaffirms that cremation of the bodies of persons who have died from cholera is imperative. It has been proved, he says, that the bacilli of typhoid fever and of phthisis, and other infectious diseases, in the bodies of persons who have died from those diseases, can percolate from the bodies and flourish in water into which they have found their way. As evidence of this Sir Thomas instances the epidemic which occurred at Plymouth, Pennsylvania. Sir Thomas is one of the most distinguished of British medical authorities, having been appointed in 1883 president of the Royal College of Surgeons, and being also surgeon to her Majesty's household.

NOTES.

Residents of Islip, Babylon and along the shore have determined to resist forcibly if need be the use of Fire Island, N. Y., for quarantine purposes, dreading the introduction of the disease.

FATAL FIRE IN MONTREAL.

Three Men Killed and Others Seriously Injured.

Awful Leap for Life by One of the Victims.

MONTREAL, Sept. 12.—A disastrous fire broke out in the Chambly Hotel, Jacques Cartier Square, at 1:30 this morning, by which three men lost their lives. Two heads were seen to come to the windows on the second floor and then go back into the flames. On the third floor, both front and back, the boarders had a chance to leap for their lives and did so, jumping on the pavement 40 feet below. The first to lead was Maxime Filiatraul, about 35 years of age, who fell on his back with a horrible cry. He was next followed by Charbon, who got off with a sprained ankle. Both men jumped in front, while Jules Commery, a furrier, jumped out of the back window, Commery breaking both of his ankles. While this was going on the shrieks of a woman were heard, and three carters standing near by, finding that the sound came from over the barroom, rushed in and rescued the woman—Mrs. Hurberdean, the wife of the proprietor of the house, who is at present away visiting relatives at Chambery. She, however, was not hurt, but badly frightened. A front room boarder on the third floor, wrapped up in a coat, was the first of the fire's victims. This was Turcotte, a sewing machine agent. He had evidently made a hard fight to get to the door, but had fallen on reaching it and was then overcome. He was dead when brought out. The second to be brought out was Oneidalo, a medical student, according to what Charbonneau, a fellow-boarder, said. He was breathing, but died soon after in the hospital. The next body was that of a man who was found lying under his bed on the top floor, the body being charred beyond recognition. The whole place was gutted. Loss $10,000 on the building and furniture. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

As the train pulled out of Atlanta the champion was cheered to the echo. At every station large crowds of people were assembled and cheered Corbett.

TIDINGS FROM TORONTO.

Funeral of the Late Bishop O'Mahoney —The Court House Dispute— The Water Supply.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—The funeral of Bishop O'Mahoney took place at St. Paul's Church yesterday morning. The leading church dignitaries present were: Archbishop Walsh, Toronto; Archbishop Cleary, Kingston; Bishop O'Connor, London; Bishop O'Connor, Peterboro; Vicar-General Rooney, Toronto; and Vicar General Gauthier, Brockville. The remains were interred under the southwest corner of the church the dead prelate had loved so well.

Justice Ferguson has handed out his decision on the court house dispute. It is a complete vindication of the action of Architect Lennox and the corporation.

The official report received yesterday from the city health office shows the city water to be first-class in every respect, and even improved since the last report a few days ago.

Dr. Kellogg, pastor of St. James' Presbyterian Church, preached his farewell sermon to-night. He is on the eve of leaving for India.

Magnificent Chrysanthemum Show.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—In the Aquarium there is a magnificent show of chrysanthemums, of which by far the finest flowers have come all the way from New Zealand, bedded in blocks of clear ice. The flowers are as fresh as when cut in their native land.

The Servia Collides with a Sailing Vessel.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Cunard Line steamer Servia, Capt. Dutton, from New York Sept. 3 for Liverpool, arrived at Queenstown at 8:15 this morning. The captain reports that at 3 a.m. on Sept. 6, while running slowly owing to a dense fog, his vessel collided with the ship Undaunted. Neither vessels were damaged.

The Financial Pulse.

LONDON, Sept. 11—Discount rates continue easier with no prospect of a betterment. At the meeting of the Bank of England next Thursday it is expected that the Government will announce that the advances to the Berings have been reduced to about £5,000,000. On the Stock Exchange during the week a spiritless feeling prevailed with no defined tendency in either direction.

Rebuke for the Extremists.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The balloting in the Trades Union Congress in Glasgow, for members of the Parliamentary committee, to represent trades union interests in legislation, resulted in the election of only one man, Ald. Benjaman Tillett, who ran as a Labor candidate for Parliament in West Bradford in the general election and was beaten. This is a rebuke for the extremists.

Snow in the Austrian Alps.

VIENNA, Sept. 12.—Considerable snow has fallen in the Austrian Alps. The mail cart from Pottenstein and Brenner, in the Tyrol got stuck in the snow and had to be dug out. At Kitzbuhel the express train from Italy was blocked by the snow. The train was full of passengers, who suffered severely. They were half starved and nearly frozen. A rescuing expedition was organized, and succeeded, with great difficulty, in reaching the train and rescuing the passengers, several of whom were faint with hunger and privation.

The "Grand Old Woman."

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Sir Andrew Clark, the court physician, has given to Mrs. Gladstone the title of "Grand Old Woman," to match her husband's equally appropriate designation "Grand Old Man." The appellation is going the rounds of the press, which tells that the old lady's 80th birthday was occupied during the morning hours in writing letters, using neither spectacles nor eyeglasses of any kind. Every morning, when at Hawarden, Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone attended early service in a church three-quarters of a mile from the castle, whatever the weather may be. Mr. Gladstone invariably walks to the church and back again, even when snow is falling heavily, while Mrs. Gladstone drives herself in her little pony carriage.

Robt. Timson, Elias street, was working at Carling's brewery this morning when the scaffold on which he stood collapsed and he was precipitated to the ground, a distance of about 60 feet. His right arm was broken near the shoulder and his left eye was destroyed. In addition he was considerably bruised about the head and body. The ambulance was at once summoned and the injured man was taken to the hospital. He is a widower, his wife having died about four months ago. Less than two months after that affliction he was called upon to suffer the loss of his only remaining son, who died from the effects of injuries also sustained by a fall from a scaffold. Timson has no relatives nearer than London, Eng. He is a member of Court Forest City, A. O. F., East London, and of British Oak Lodge, Sons of England. His external injuries are terrible and he may be as seriously if not fatally hurt internally.

CHOLERA IN LONDON.

Reminiscences of the Outbreak in 1854.

No Sanitary Regulations Then—The City Better Prepared to Meet an Outbreak Now—Some Improvements That Might Be Made—An Old Resident's Asiatic Experiences.

Many remember the cholera outbreak in Canada in 1854 and its ravages here are doubtless vividly recalled to mind now that the grim monster is once again seeking admittance. It would seem by conversation with several old settlers that London in those days was hardly in as fit condition to grapple with the enemy as now, when the city is equipped with modern sanitary conveniences and possesses a more rigorous health government. The excellent water with which it is blessed will no doubt prove one of the best safeguards in case of an attack.

"The cholera outbreak here in 1854 I attribute to foreign immigration," said Mr. Hewitt Fysh. "The Great Western Railway opened up here in 1853, and quite a few immigrants arrived here the next year. No doubt they brought the cholera germs along with them. I was living in Brantford then; we had none of it there. I can remember meeting and speaking to Capt. Porte's father one morning while in London, and you may imagine how shocked I was to hear that afternoon that he was dead. My earliest recollection of cholera was in 1832, when the plague raged in England. I was a mere boy then, in old London, but some of the dreadful experiences of those days are still fresh in my memory."

"The cholera is an old acquaintance of mine," said Mr. F. Westlake. "I have witnessed its ravages where it is seen it its worst form—in India. I was in that country during several scourges. Did I feel frightened? Certainly not. There's no danger if one only attends to one's self and is careful what he eats and wears. Why, I have walked through the wards of cholera hospitals in Asia, and seen the patients change the colors of a dying dolphin—red, green, yellow and all the hues of the rainbow—the poor fellows roaring with agony all the while. An hour or two usually sufficed to settle them. I remember once when at anchor on the River Hoogly off Calcutta—I was the captain of a ship then—one of my seamem got hold of a cucumber, and as it was a great luxury there he started to prepare it for dinner. Cholera was raging then, and I warned him of the danger. But he wouldn't listen; he ate the cucumber at dinner. We held his funeral service at 3 o'clock that afternoon. Yes, the plague was chiefly confined to the natives. Quite a few Europeans were carried off, though. You see, they got in the custom of putting brandy in their water as a sort of disinfectant. A little of it was all right enough, but most of them were so scared that they drank more brandy than water, and were half drunk a great part of the time. They were the very first ones to catch the cholera. If a man is temperate, keeps himself and his surroundings clean, is careful to eat nothing green or half cooked, and drinks everything boiled, he need not be alarmed. Have I ever been in Hamburg? Yes; I know the place well. A fine city it is, too. It is a great trade and shipping center, and is a resort for all nationalities. The foreign elements (generally not the cleanest) combined with the excessive beer-drinking habits of the people may account for the virulence of the plague there. The cholera in Canada in 1854 was of a much milder form than the genuine Asiatic brand. London is better prepared to meet an attack now than it was then. We had no sewage system in those days; the Dundas street sewer was the only one laid I believe. Of course our water is much purer now and there are better public health regulations."

"I remember well the cholera scare we had here in 1854," said Mr. James Gillean. "Quite a few died. The old smallpox hospital on the Hamilton road was used for the patients. Yes, we are in a better position to resist an attac know. We've got the finest water in the world; then we had only well and surface water. A supply for the Court House and some other public buildings used to be brought from the hills near Hellmuth College. Our sewage system is also much improved."

"I possessed a diary in which I had recorded all the events and happenings for years past," said Mr. P. McCann, "but I lost it some time ago or I might have been able to give you some particulars about the cholera here. I remember it was not very bad in London, although people were pretty well scared. Mr. Porte and Mr. Cullivan are the only victims I can recall just now. No, the health authorities took no active steps that I know of to put down the outbreak."

"London is the healthiest city in Canada, according to the mortuary statistics," said Mr. B. A. Mitchell, "but I think there's plenty of room for the improvement of its sanitary condition. A great many houses, even in the thickly settled parts of the city, have no sewer connections, and filth is bound to accumulate. When the cholera broke out here orders were given to remove the garbage and refuse from the yards. The scavenging system now seems as defective as then. I could show you some rear gardens on the best streets in the city that are a disgrace. I am glad to see the Board of Health is taking steps to appoint a public scavenger and make compulsory the periodical cleaning up of these places. I also think the cellars and yards of business houses should be thoroughly inspected. A great deal of offensive matter is apt to be thus stored up. With such remedial measures as these, I don't think we need fear another visitation of the cholera."

"I came to London in July, 1854," said P. C. Wallace, "and the cholera was raging throughout the country then. Along the line of the Great Western Railway there was a continual blaze of shanties, which had been set on fire after the men had died. London did not fare as badly as most places. When I arrived here they had just started to lay out the Market Square and four or five feet of gravel had been put on it. They couldn't get a man to work on it because they were all so frightened of the cholera, so I worked there myself, all alone, for a time. Next year I went on the police force. I should say there were between 40 and 50 died here."

"I think the number of deaths from cholera in 1854 was 26," remarked Ald. Stephen O'Meara. "Most of the cases were south of Dundas street. There were a few on Carling street and more on Ridout near York. The first one who died was a young man named Tooher, who lived where the police station now stands. An old hospital on the Hamilton road was used for the cholera patients, and they were buried in a cemetery behind the One-Horse Tavern. The bodies are still there, I suppose. There were no sanitary regulations then; it was a sort of go-as-you-please. If I mistake not the epidemic lasted only two weeks. London had a comparatively light touch of it. In Montreal people died by the scores."

Mr. James Anderson, of 19 Cartwright street, said that no precautions of any account were taken to prevent the entrance of cholera into the city. He did not think that there was any board of health in 1854, but the sanitary condition of the city was as good as it is now. About twenty Londoners died of the disease at that time.

MURDER AT AMHERSTBURG.

An Insanely Jealous Husband Cuts His Wife's Throat.

He Makes an Unsuccessful Attempt at Suicide, and is Arrested for His Terrible Crime.

AMHERSTBURG, Sept. 12.—A shocking affair—the brutal murder of a wife by an insanely jealous husband—startled this town about 6 o'clock Saturday evening, and Anderson Veney, about 45 years old, by trade a barber, though acting as steward of the steamer Norman on the lakes during the past summer, is in prison charged with the most serious of all crimes, while his wife, a woman of excellent reputation, is dead by his hand. The circumstances of the awful affair are as follows:

George Street, a citizen of Amherstburg, while on his way home about dark, heard screams emanating from the house of his neighbor Veney, and immediately sought for their occasion. The front door being locked, he ran around to the back door, which he found open, and on looking in a frightful scene was presented.

Mrs. Veney lay upon the kitchen floor, her throat cut from ear to ear, and Veney was walking up and down the room, covered with blood and with an open pen-knife in his hand. Mr. Street at once ran to summon the police and soon returned in company with Chief Le May. When Mr. Street and the officer reached the kitchen they found Veney in the act of cutting his own throat with the same knife he had used to murder his wife. The knife was taken from him and Dr. Proudfoot called in.

An examination showed that Mrs. Veney was dead, and that Veney's injuries, though severe, were in no way likely to prove fatal. The small gashes in his throat were stitched, and he was locked up. In answer to all questions he persistently refused to return any answer, and it is inferred that he will make insanity his defense.

The murdered woman was Veney's second wife. He has two children by a former marriage, and none by the last. The couple have been married about eleven years, and have of late had repeated quarrels, all on account of the husband's jealousy. About four weeks ago, during one of these fits, he nearly chopped her to death with an axe. Mrs. Veney bears an excellent reputation and comes of one of the oldest and most respectable families in Amherstburg, as does also the husband. Both are colored. Veney's father and mother, who stand high in the community, were supported and well cared for by him, and his only foible was a weakness for local politics.

Big Lumber Blaze in Belleville—Loss $26,000.

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 11.—About 5 o'clock this morning fire broke out in Mr. C. P. Holton's mill yard, destroying upwards of 2,000,000 feet of lumber and a brick house adjoining. Loss on lumber, $25,000, insured for $6,000; on buildings, $1,500; insured for $1,000.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 10—The rag warehouse of Joseph Josephs was burned this morning. Loss, $150,000.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

That Hide Nuisance.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

How is it that the Board of Health in the face of a petition with 75 signatures, including both ratepayers and residents of the immediate vicinity of the hide storage corner of York and Talbot streets, will allow to remain in the heart of a residential part of the city, what was declared, by the health officer at the Board of Health meeting, Tuesday, Sept. 6, to be a nuisance and which was ordered by the board to be removed. Apparently the residents of the neighborhood are not sufficient judges of what is or is not a nuisance. Are not the opinions of three medical men whose names are on the petition, and who through living directly beside it know, together with inspection and decision of the health officer, that it is a nuisance. The stench during the frequent loading of the lorries, when the rear lower door is necessarily open for hours at a time, is unbearable always, and especially so in the warm weather. Nothing could deodorize it at such times. The hide inspector's office on the market has been deemed a nuisance, and has been ordered by the city to be removed; then why should they allow this storage to remain, which is a much greater nuisance to the citizens than the hide office on the market. It is to be hoped the board will do its duty and remove what is not only a nuisance but a menace to the public health. ALBERT E. VINCENT.

MOTHER EVE'S TOMB.

It Is Located at Jiddah, in Arabia, by This Account.

[From the Philadelphia Press.]

The Arabs claim that Eve's tomb is at Jiddah, the seaport of Mecca. The temple, with a palm tree growing out of a crack in the rock roof (which is of itself one of the wonders of the Orient), is supposed to be built directly over the last resting-place of the first woman. According to Arab tradition Eve measured over 200 feet in height, which, unlikely as it may seem, strangely coincides with an account of our first parents written by a member of the French Academy, who also claimed a height of over 200 feet for both of the tenants of the Garden of Eden. Eve's tomb, which is in a burying ground that is surrounded by a high wall, the gate to which has not been opened for a single interval for over 1,000 years, is the shrine of thousands of devoted Ishmaelites, who make a pilgrimage to the spot once every seven years. Once each year, on June 3, which is, according to Arabian legends, the anniversary of the death of Abel, the doors to the tomb of our first mother remain open all night, no matter what precautions are taken to keep them closed. Terrible cries of anguish are said to emit from the tomb, as though the memory of the first known tragedy still haunted the remains which blind superstition believes to be deposited there.

The brig Drama, that arrived in Halifax Wednesday, reported that a man named T. A. Pierce, who gave his residence as Windsor, committed suicide while the boat was six days out from London. He was working his passage out to Canada, and said that at one time he was in the United States cavalry. He had been to England to see about some money that was due him, but his mission was an unsuccessful one and he felt very despondent over it. It has since been learned that the unfortunate young man was a son of Thomas A. Pierce, a wealthy farmer living near Woodslee. He was subject to crazy spells and was long ago disowned by his family. He had a number of wealthy relatives in England and went there with the supposition that they would give him a share of their fortunes.

Hiram Walker & Sons think they have now enough natural gas to warrant them in piping it to Windsor, and will ask the council leave to pipe the streets.

It was further decided to offer Mr. Walker a substantial amount if the Lake Erie and Detroit Railway would build their road from Harrow. A petition will be at once signed asking the town council to submit the necessary bylaws to the people to be voted upon about Oct. 1.

At the recent public school leaving and entrance examinatin held at London the following pupils from Byron (S. S. No. 5, Westminster, J. N. Humphry, teacher) were successful in passing: For public school leaving—Annie Boler (634 marks), passing second highest in the county, and Frank Tanton (573 marks) taking fifth place. Frank had attended school but four months since passing entrance. For entrance eight pupils were successful—Edith Griffith, Will Mair, Ella Foster, Will Montague, Archie Simmie, John Ayling, Fred Wells and Lesslie Griffith. The third last-named pupil is 11 years of age; the two last-named and the second-named 12 years of age. Edith Griffith was eighth on the list, but failed to get the diploma for Westminster by two marks. This school passed the pupil one year ago at the next preceding examination that made the highest mark in the county—Maud Jarvis; also, at the examination before that, two of the same teacher's pupils passed first and second in the county—Frank Wilsie and Albert Letts, S. S. No. 4, Delaware. Before vacation ten pupils were promoted from Part II. of the First Reader to the Second Reader, the whole class, with the exception of one pupil, being in Part II. just three months. The pupils were: Oswald Elson, Edgar Griffith, Arlo Wells, Laura Ayling, Lottie Wickerson, Minnie Marsh, James Mair, Ernest White, Susie Potter and Honor Potter. About the same time eleven pupils were promoted from Part I. to Part II. of the First Reader. They were: Willie Mair, John Boriner, Mabel Marsh, Bert Wadsworth, Bertha McNeish, Clifford Elson, Clara Ayling, John Merian, Fred Walkers, Bessie Findlay and Walter White. Progress of the G. T. R.

The Montreal Herald, in an article on the Grand Trunk Railway, says the road has no less than 3,499½ miles of track on which there is constant traffic; there are 385½ miles of double track and 671½ miles of siding, making a grand total of 4,556½ miles. The rolling stock necessary for the immense freight and passenger work of the company is so large that to those who are uninitiated into the wonders of such a great concern the truth seems incredible. Seven hundred and ninety engines are required to draw the 901 passenger cars and 22,480 freight cars. During the year 1891 there were no less than 6,555,172 passengers carried, and the freight amounted to 4,583,233 tons. It builds all its own rolling stock, and has car shops at Portland, Montreal, Toronto, London and Brantford, and locomotive shops at Gorham, Point St. Charles, Stratford and Toronto. The total number of people employed by the G. T. R. is 19,270. The traffic department, which includes the officers, agents, clerks and all those required to look after the freight and passengers, requires 6,070 people. Under the heading of the engineers may be mentioned the entire staff of men who have charge of the tracks. There are 6,200 hands employed in that department. The mechanical department numbers 6,400. The Grand Trunk is a big concern.

"August Flower"

What is It For?

This is the query perpetually on your little boy's lips. And he is no worse than the bigger, older, balder-headed boys. Life is an interrogation point. "What is it for?" we continually cry from the cradle to the grave. So with this little introductory sermon we turn and ask: "What is August Flower for?" As easily answered as asked: It is for Dyspepsia. It is a special remedy for the Stomach and Liver. Nothing more than this; but this brimful. We believe August Flower cures Dyspepsia. We know it will. We have reasons for knowing it. Twenty years ago it started in a small country town. To-day it has an honored place in every city and country store, possesses one of the largest manufacturing plants in the country and sells everywhere. Why is this? The reason is as simple as a child's thought. It is honest, does one thing, and does it right along—it cures Dyspepsia.

THE BATTLE OVER THE BORDER.

Before 60 days have elapsed the Presidential battle in the United States will have been fought and won. After all the outcry that has been made in certain quarters about the demoralization of business that results from this four-yearly contest, it is significant to learn that but comparatively little excitement has so far been evidenced, and the business of the country proceeds with its accustomed activity. It is true that the professional politicians are busy, as they generally are in all countries in the few weeks prior to an electoral struggle, but the great mass of the people go about their business in the usual way, and confine their activities in the political arena to their spare moments.

There seems to be a belief that as between the two great political parties (the Democrats and the Republicans) it is anybody's battle, with the advantage decidedly in favor of the candidate who gets the electoral vote of New York State. In addition to Cleveland and Harrison, representing the two chief divisions of the people politically, there are other two Presidential candidates in the field—one the Prohibitionist, the other the People's or Farmers' Alliance Party. In some instances in the Western States the People's Party have fused with the Democrats, in order to defeat the Republicans. The question then is whether Cleveland or Harrison will suffer most from defections to the other parties. The advantage seems to be slightly in favor of Cleveland, because, while the People's Party will draw from both the old parties, the Prohibition candidate generally gets more Republican than Democratic votes. Nevertheless, the strength developed by the Farmers' Alliance in the 1890 elections, and the disposition of many Republican prohibitionists to regard separation from their friends as a questionable means for promoting a reform that can only be accomplished by one or other of the great political parties, has given rise to considerable uncertainty as to the result in more than one State both east and west.

The Republican as well as the Democratic candidate lays much stress on the carrying of New York. That State, with its large electoral vote, is worth to either of the parties half a dozen of the smaller States or Territories, and it is made apparent that the great struggle of the campaign will take place within its borders. To this end the managers on both sides have not been idle in recent weeks. They are doing the best that can possibly be done to get in good shape to poll a full party vote. There was a disposition on the part of ex-Senator Platt, a prominent Blaine man, to kick against the re-nomination of Harrison, whom he regards as weak; but after sulking for a couple of months, Mr. Platt has been moved to say that he favors the party ticket, despite the fact that his advice was not followed in its make-up. As for the Democracy, it is now pretty generally understood that Cleveland lost his election in 1888 through some sort of a "trade," whereby, in return for Republican votes given for him as Governor, Mr. Hill prevailed upon enough of his Democratic associates to cast their ballots for Harrison. The breach caused by this "knifing" was not healed at the Chicago convention, when friends of Senator Hill earnestly endeavored to have Cleveland set aside in favor of the ex-Governor, and failed. Since that time, until last week, there has been doubts as to the fidelity of Hill and his friends, emphasized by the failure of that politician to say one word in favor of the nominee of the national convention. The enemies of the Democracy have been rejoicing at the possible rupture in the party, and they have been hopeful that Tammany would be no more united to support the national ticket of 1892 than it was in the indorsation of Cleveland in 1888. There are appearances, however, that the very fact of the rejoicing has had the effect of bringing the Democratic leaders of all shades of opinion together, and that the next month will prove it. Mr. Bourke Cockran, one of the strongest New York opponents of the nomination of Cleveland, is about to go on a western speaking tour in favor of the National Democratic ticket, thereby showing that the union between the forces is an accomplished fact. Cleveland, too, will deliver addresses in the Western States next month, and the flow of oratory on both sides will be plentiful. Blaine will not talk for the Republicans, but he has written a letter trying to simplify and curtail the issues which President Harrison, in his letter of acceptance, has broadened to include almost every act of his Administration, good, bad or indifferent. It need surprise no one to find Senator Hill expressing his readiness to support the Democratic ticket in November, bitterly disappointing to his ambition though the convention verdict was. If he does so, then we shall have the fight fully cleared of some of its doubts and side issues, and brought down, in the main, to a request that the people decide in the main, either:

1. In favor of the re-election of President Harrison, in favor of the high tax "protective" policy, accompanied by a restricted reciprocity provision, and in favor of the Force Bill, which is a proposal to establish a similar infamous system in the United States to that existing under the Dominion Franchise Act in Canada; or

2. In favor of Ex-President Cleveland, in favor of reduced taxation, in favor of cheapened raw material for manufactures, against the principle that one man shall be taxed to benefit another, and against the Force Bill, because it would be an instrument to subvert the liberties of the people.

The issues, as will no doubt be made more fully evident when Mr. Cleveland issues his letter of acceptance, are pretty clearly drawn.

THE LATE JAMES TROW.

No more popular representative ever sat in Parliament than James Trow, ex-M.P. for South Perth, whose sudden death, reported in the Evening ADVERTISER of Saturday, has shocked a wide circle of his friends. Mr. Trow, it may safely be said, had not an enemy either in public or in private life, and that is saying a good deal for a man who had to rub up against all sorts and conditions of men in a long public career.

Mr. Trow was a Welshman by birth. His early days were spent at Newton, Montgomeryshire, and he was educated at Welshpool. When but 17 years of age he came to Canada, and six years later he was married to Miss Mary Moore, of Blenheim, Oxford county. He first followed the occupation of a conveyancer. For nearly 30 years he was reeve of North Easthope, chosen each time by acclamation, and he had the honor of being elected warden of Perth. At Confederation he was elected a member of the Ontario Legislature for South Perth and held the seat till 1871. In 1872 he was chosen representative of the riding in the House of Commons, and was the member continuously till the recent bye-election, when, through various causes that need not be stated, he was defeated by a small majority. For many years he enjoyed the distinction of being elected as Liberal whip in the Commons, and received many marks of the appreciation of his services by his associates. He was a model whip. He held a prominent position in various financial institutions.

Genial, kind-hearted James Trow! Few there are possessed of the gift to make and to hold friends as he was. Thousands who knew him and had learned to enjoy his society and to honor him for his political rectitude and manly independence will join in condoling with his bereaved family in their great loss, all the more difficult to bear because it was sudden and unexpected.

DESTITUTE ALIENS STILL FLEE.

An agitation is on foot to prevent the immigration of destitute aliens into Great Britain. The agitation was begun in 1890, and had almost died down when the danger of the extension of cholera from this source again caused public attention to be directed to it. Returns just issued show that 3,685 aliens, not stated as being on the way to America, arrived in England during August this year, as compared with 4,727 during August, 1891. The aliens who arrived in England certified as en route for America during August numbered 9,667, as compared with 9,817 in August, 1891. Of the former class, that is, of the aliens presumed to have remained in England, because they were not stated as being on their way abroad, 1,608 were from Hamburg, this past August, as compared with 2,423 in August, 1891. Of those aliens on their route to America in the August just past, 3,396 were from Hamburg, compared with 4,388 in August, 1891. While this shows a decrease for August, nevertheless eight months of the year show an increase, the total of both classes for that period being 109,747, as compared with 97,629 for the first eight months of the previous year. The emigrants from Hamburg included in the numbers above stated were 39,001 in the first eight months of this year, as compared with 37,305 in the first eight months of 1891. The debate in the Trades Union Congress shows that workingmen are taking up the question. A bill is being drafted for the next session, the main features of which will be a requirement that all immigrants arriving in Great Britain shall furnish evidence that they are possessed of means. It is suggested that a man coming alone should be required to show the possession of £10, and that man and wife should show £20, an amount sufficient, in England, to enable them to live without aid for three months or more. The figures given above, however, show that comparatively few destitute aliens settle in England, and it may be that, as a consequence, special legislation will not be granted.

It is an ascertained fact, nevertheless, that Great Britain is a favorite field for immigrants from France, Germany, Italy and other continental nations. They are glad to escape from the high "protective" taxes imposed in those countries, presumably for the benefit of the workers, but really to enable the governments to get money to keep up the large armaments and to put wealth in the pockets of rich friends. These continental immigrants flee to free trade England, where they get much higher wages and work fewer hours than in their "protected" homes. There is absolutely no truth in the allegation that "protective" tariffs are imposed to keep wages high.

The Earl of Essex, whose death is reported by cable, was in his 80th year. He leaves an estate of 18,037 acres, bringing a rental of over $100,000 a year.

DEATH OF A BRITISH M. P.

The death is announced by cable of Arthur Brend Winterbotham, M. P. for the Cirencester Division of Gloucestershire. Mr. Winterbotham was born at Tewkesbury in 1838, and was educated at Amersham School, Bucks. He was the junior partner in the woolen cloth firm of Hunt & Winterbotham, Hursley. He had represented the Cirencester Division of Gloucestershire since 1885. He was elected as a Liberal, but voted against Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill in 1886. When the Salisbury Government took up coercion, however, he returned to the Gladstonians, and has done the Liberal party signal service as a platform exponent of its views.

APPLES IN EVIDENCE.

[Seaforth Expositor.]

As an example of the great benefits (?) protection confers upon the farmers, we may state that this year Messrs. Scott Bros., of Seaforth, being unable to find a profitable market in Canada for their fall apple, shipped them to Buffalo. They paid 75 cents per barrel to the farmers here; they paid 85 cents duty to the American Government, and 35 cents freight, and still they realized a paying profit on their apples. We leave it to our farmer friends who, election after election, vote for protection, to figure up for themselves the amount they lose on their fall fruit by not having free trade with the United States. If the farmers of Canada are willing to lose 85 cents per barrel on their apple in order to add to the already enormous wealth of the Masseys, Harrises, Redpaths and other combination lords, we presume they have a perfect right to do so, but if the lords laugh at them for their folly no person need be surprised.

A LEADER FALLEN!

Details of Mr. James Trow's Sudden Death.

The Remains Taken to the Family Residence in Stratford—Characteristic Message of Condolence from Hon. Wilfred Laurier—The Funeral.

STRATFORD, Sept. 11.—In regard to the sudden death of James Trow, ex-M.P., on Saturday it is learned that Mr. Trow had been ailing for some time, and went to Toronto with his son Edward Trow, to consult a physician. No serious result from his illness were looked for. Mr. Trow married in 1847 Miss Mary Moore, of Blenheim, Oxford county. She survives him, along with four sons and one daughter: James Trow, jun., auctioneer, etc., Stratford; Thomas Trow, an alderman of the city, and clerk of the Division Court, Milverton; Dr. Charles Trow, of Toronto; Edward Trow, barrister, Toronto; and Miss Mamie Trow, residing at home.

The Stratford Herald says of the deceased:

"He was essentially a self-made man, and his memory is entitled to respect owing to the illustrations he furnished to the younger generation of the value of the qualities of tact, courage and perseverance which he possessed in an eminent degree. From landing in this country a poor boy of 16, he leaves behind him at dying an estate valued at between $300,000 and $400,000. In South Perth alone he owned nineteen farms. Mr. Trow's public experience has been long and varied. He began life in this country in 1842 as a school teacher, at the school on lot 21, con. 2 of North Easthope, known as Bell's school house, at which time there was but one other school in the township. He followed the calling of a teacher for ten years. Becoming assessor and afterwards clerk of the township, he won public esteem and confidence to so large a degree that his election to the reeveship followed in 1861, which position he held for 21 years, including the office of warden of the county of Perth in 1870. During his long term of municipal office of 21 years he was re-elected to the position every succeeding year by acclamation, and also held continuously during all those years the chairmanship of the finance committee of the county council, a municipal record of which there can be few parallels."

THE REMAINS TAKEN TO STRATFORD.

STRATFORD, Sept. 11.—The remains of the late Jas. Trow, ex-M.P., late chief whip of the Liberal party in the House of Commons, arrived here from Toronto at 3 o'clock this morning in charge of his sons, Dr. Trow and A. E. Trow, barrister, both of that city. They were met by a delegation of the city council and prominent citizens, headed by the mayor, and conveyed to the family residence, "The Grange." The body lay in state this afternoon and was viewed by hundreds of old friends and political associates. In the different churches this morning reference was made to the loss the city and country had sustained, and the flags on public buildings are half mast.

KIND WORDS.

Telegrams of condolence were received by Mrs. Trow from Mr. W. C. Moscrip, president South Perth Reform Association, R. S. Armstrong, secretary Blanchard Association, J. D. Moore, St. Marys, and others. Dr. Trow received the following message from Hon. Wilfred Laurier:

"Please accept for yourself, your mother and family the expression of my deep sympathy in the sad bereavement which deprived you of a father, and me of a very dear friend."

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday at 1 p.m. to Avondale Cemetery, this county, and it is expected it will be the largest ever witnessed in the district, as Mr. Trow was widely known and well esteemed by all classes.

Were the scrofula sores on my poor little boy, sickening and disgusting. They were especially severe on his legs, back of his ears and on his head. His hair was so matted that combing was sometimes impossible. His legs were so bad that sometimes he could not sit down, and when he tried to walk his legs would crack open and the blood start.

OUTSHONE BY THE STARS.

The Alerts Lose a Closely-Contested Game.

Bruiser Sullivan Described as "Maimed and Maudlin"—Echoes of the Fight—Various Sporting Events.

BASEBALL.

THE STARS DEFEAT THE ALERTS.

Failure to straighten out Sim Collins' curves to any appreciable extent was the prime cause of the Alerts' defeat by the Stars on Saturday afternoon. This promising young pitcher has just returned from professional work in the west. He throws a lightning ball, has all the curves from the common "out" to the zig-zag variety, watches bases like a cat, and keeps his cranium at a proper temperature. Therefore basehits on the opposing side were few and far between. A pretty good crowd gathered on Tecumseh Park, as the talent on both teams comprised the very best in the city. The Stars have apparently gathered in all the old-timers, and the game they put up showed that they are hardly back-numbers yet, although not as lively as of yore. The Alerts were more youthful and agile than their opponents and with a little more stick work would have won. They made a grand rally in the eighth and ninth and nearly tied the score. In the former a hot hit to second brought Hiscott and Hynd home. In the ninth, Arthur got his base on balls, Johnson made a hit and both scored on Ball's beautiful two-bagger. Ball tallied on Jerry Collins' brilliant muff of a fly. Sheere flied out and closed the inning with the score 8 to 7 in favor of the Stars. Ed Johnson, who is at home anywhere on the field, pitched for the Alerts and kept the basehit column down well. In fact the battery work of both teams was excellent, no earned runs being made. Collins struck out 11 men and Johnson 6. The errors of the Alerts were very costly, particularly in the sixth inning. Individual features of the game were Sheere's running fly catches in right field, McLeod's catching and "Bull" Thompson's coaching. Umpire "Bob" Reid showed lots of sand and stuck to his decisions, though it was just a question as to wheter they were not a little hard on the Alerts in a couple of cases. The score:

LONDON BALL-TOSSERS AT DORCHESTER.

Two nines comprising the cream of the baseball talent in the Richmond and the London athletic clubs of this city took the afternoon train for Dorchester Saturday in order to play a return match. The fact that they left town to do it will be appreciated by many here who might have been induced to go had it be played on local grounds. The spot chosen was graced with the name of the Dochester athletic grounds. With the aid of a fence rail some resemblance of a diamond was scratched on the plot, while heavy rocks served to mark the bases. This is likely the reason a spectator was afterwards heard to call the game very "rocky." Art. Huff and Jack Bell were the opposing pitchers; both claim to have twirled well and attribute the large scores to poor support. The great and only "Billy" Helman completely covered second base. He stopped the balls, well as it was difficult for them to pass his broad frame, although he had some trouble hauling down high balls. With Charley Blinn it was exactly the reverse. Furness' feet stood him in good stead at short. Frank Farnsworth in endeavoring to do what he had never done before — catch a foul ball—broke a finger in the eighth. Will Lind kindly caught for both sides after that. O'Brien surprised everybody including himself by making a phenomenal catch. But nothwithstanding all these brilliant features on the part of the Athletics they were beaten by a score of 19 to 16. J. Richards, of Dorchester, was the nominal umpire, but most of the decisions were made by the players themselves. The teams and their respective positions were:

COBURG COMING.

One of the best games of the season will be played at Kensington Park Wednesday between the Alerts and Cobourg's crack team. It is practically a contest between the champions of the East and West. Cobourg has a phenomenal pitcher and is assisted by Andrus, the clever right fielder whom the Blues imported here. The Alerts will have their very best nine in the field, and Sim Collins will probably pitch for them.

FOOTBALL.

LONDON VS. PETROLIA.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—The executive of the Ontario Rugby Union has arranged that the season shall open Oct. 8 at Petrolea, when London will play with the local team. The second round in the senior series will start Oct. 22, the third Oct. 29 and the finals as arranged later.

ATHLETICS.

BRUISER SULLIVAN "ON THE BUM."

John L. Sullivan and party arrived in Cincinnati on Saturday, and stopped at the Burnet House. The ex-champion is described as "mutilated and maudlin." He told an interviewer that he had no definite plans as to the future.

ECHOES OF THE FIGHT.

The excitement in New York on the night of the Corbett-Sullivan battle was tremendous. Ten thousand people gathered in Printing House Square and cheered, howled and shouted as the bulletins showing the progress of the fight were posted. A presidential election never caused more excitement. There is a story of a young man who went to New Orleans and bet on Sullivan. The next day after the fight the father of the young man received the following telegram: "Dear Father—Please send me a pair of boots and a hat. I have a lantern and know all the stations."

Referring to the last round of the fight, Corbett said: "I was determined to knock Sullivan out then, and used all my force. My right landed too hard, and I have sprained it. I came very near knocking Sullivan out in the eighth round. He was groggy, and I went in to finish him, and had forced him to the ropes when the bell saved him. If I had had a minute longer I could have finished him then. He had recovered by the next round, and I determined to wait a little longer for a better opportunity. I don't think Sullivan was himself after the second round. He was decidedly weak. He wanted to rest his arms all the time, but I wouldn't let him; I made him keep them up. He hit me most on the back of the shoulder. Some of his blows were so strange that I did not understand them. It looked to me as though he was more or less dazed."

AT TORONTO'S FAIR.

Toronto Carpet Manufacturing Company (Ltd.)

Jas. P. Murray (president), John A. Murray (vice-president), F. B. Hayes (secretary-treasurer), Henry Wolfe (superintendent), manufacturers of Two and Three-ply Ingrain, Cotton Chain, Medium and Union Carpets.

In the Main Building of the Industrial Exhibition at Toronto is a magnificent display of carpets by the above firm. It is well worth witnessing, as they have a machine in operation.

Befor entering into a description of the factory or referring to the young but powerful company, it may not be out of place to refer in a short way to the carpet trade of Canada.

In the first place, it is not generally known that the Dominion buys more carpet, and of better quality, than any nation in the world in proportion to its population. There are annually made in Canada over 1,250,000 yards, in the manufacture of which are employed between 500 and 600 people. Canada also imports over 3,000,000 yards a year, of which 1,500,000 are of low-priced tapestry which form the greatest competition to the product of Canadian looms.

In the United States, in the year 1890, there were 29,000 people engaged in making nearly $40,000,000 worth of carpet, and they earned nearly $12,000,000 in wages. Forty million dollars worth of capital was thus employed, including land, buildings and machinery.

Knowing what a large and growing business, the carpet trade in Canada is bound to become, the promoters of the T. C. M. Company, a year ago set about gaining all possible data and information and learning that a small number of looms were to be disposed of, the owners not having the capital to carry on manufacturing, a joint stock company, with limited liability, was formed, and an Ontario charter was procured for a company capitalized at $50,000, and having as directors Mr. A. Claude Macdonell, of Toronto, and Mr. Louis M. Hayes, of Peterboro', besides those at the head of this article.

Some few months having been taken up in getting their nine looms into proper trim, overhauling the dye house, enlarging the drying room and getting out samples for their travelers, brought it to Aug. 20, 1891, before they could really open up to do business.

Orders came pouring in from merchants who had determined never again to buy Canadian carpets, having been so thoroughly dissatisfied with the greasy, poorly colored, old-patterned, badly-dyed goods sold them by makers relying on the tariff to hold their customers for them.

The T. C. M. Company, believing that intrinsic excellence must assert itself, bought modern scouring machinery which thoroughly cleans the yarns of all grease. They also bound in heavy bonds their yarn makers to use only the best lard oil in manufacturing, and a heavy forfeit must be paid the Carpet Company if mineral oil, at any time or in any quantity, is found in the yarn.

Then, in designs, they sought the best designers of the United States, and, selecting new and original effects and the latest weaves, at once placed themselves on a level with the largest Philadelphia makers in respect to quality and pattern.

Such an important feature as the dyeing of the yarns could not but receive the close attention success demands, if in anything they would succeed. The past experience of others was a sufficient lesson for this young concern to guard them against the error of trying to save money in dyes at the reputation of the goods, and they resolved to use only the best aniline dyes, and if need be, in certain colors, alizarine. The brilliancy in the coloring of their carpets soon told in their favor.

Then in weight, knowing that the English-made carpet had the best reputation of all ingrains, it was decided to surpass them, and, on examination, it was found possible to do so only in two ways—to supply a better grade of stock and increase the weight. Buyers of this Company's carpets will therefore find them to be at least 15 per cent. better in quality of stock, and counting from 1 to 1½ more picks to the inch to the same weight in the yard.

Finding the orders for the spring trade could never be completed in time on the nine looms, and hearing that it was possible that the Ontario Worsted Company would probably entertain a proposition for the purchase of their entire carpet-making plant, negotiations were opened with a result of the thirteen looms being brought from Elora to Toronto, making the T. C. M. Company the largest power-loom factory in Canada in this industry.

Success followed on their efforts so rapidly that it was soon evident that the premises, Nos. 1 and 3 Jarvis street, would never accommodate the increasing business. Arrangements were therefore immediately entered into for a new factory that would give the room and facilities required. The building, situated on the south-west corner of Jarvis and Esplanade streets, has a frontage of 100 feet with a depth of 70, four stories high and lighted on three sides.

The president and vice president having been for many years connected with the finest drygoods trade in Canada, the secretary-treasurer's long service as accountant with one of our banks, and the superintendent having graduated from one of the largest Philadelphia factories, places this Company under officers, who, with their technical knowledge and experience, their energy and perseverance, will not be satisfied until "the Maple Leaf brand" of ingrain carpet shall be known throughout the length and breadth of Canada, showing the world that for purity of stock, beautiful and lasting quality of dyes, graceful and original designs and superior weight and technique the Toronto Carpet Manufacturing Company (Ltd.) are leading.

The president of the Company is Mr. Jas. P. Murray, who has severed his connection with the drygoods firm of W. A. Murray & Co., with which firm he has had one of the foremost places. He is now devoting all his time and energy to make the Toronto Carpet Company a perfect success. Mr. Murray's many friends throughout this Dominion knowing his thorough business habits will feel confident of his success in the carpet trade.

Eat and Grow Fat.

The wants of the inner man are amply provided for at the Toronto Industrial Fair in the official dining-hall. It is both commodious and comfortable, and there the hungry sight-seers are satisfied at an ordinary charge. The large crowds are easily handled, and there is no delay in supplying the wants of all. Those who visit the Fair will find Betts' dining-hall one of the attractions. E. W. BETTS, Caterer.

A Deadly Crash!

Eight Persons Meet Almost Instant Death,

Three Die From the Effects of Their Injuries,

And Nearly Thirty More or Less Hurt in a Collision on the Fitchburg Railway.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 11.—The horror of the great Quincy accident was recalled last night when a through freight express train west bound on the Fitchburg Railway ran into a passenger train standing on the outbound track at west Cambridge junction, telescoping the rear car, killing eight persons outright and injuring nearly 30 others. Three are reported to have since died.

When West Cambridge junction was reached the engineer of the passenger train found it necessary, owing to the dense fog, to run close to the crossovers in order to see if he had right of way from the signal tower, which is located close by. The passenger train was said to be five minutes late, and about the same hour the local passenger train from Waltham, scheduled to leave there at 10:30, was due at West Cambridge Junction also. The west-bound train which left Boston had come to a full stop in order that the east-bound train from Waltham, which had the right of way, could pass that point before it crossed over to the Watertown branch.

THE CRASH.

While standing near the crossover the express freight train bound west came thundering along and just as the passenger train started to cross to the Watertown branch the freight train crashed into the rear of the passenger train with the result above described. When the engine of the freight struck the rear car it entered like a wedge, splitting it into two parts, each of which fell outward on the tracks, while the roof of the car lodged on top of the locomotive. The recoil from the collision drove the heavily-loaded freight cars backward, and although the two cars nearest the engine (which were a refrigerator car and a Burton stock car) were not injured, the ten or twelve cars behind were smashed into kindling wood. The cars were piled upon one another in indescribable confusion, completely blocking both tracks for over 100 yards. Flames began to burst from the wrecked freight cars, but the fire department of Cambridge responded promptly to the alarm and soon put out the flames. The windows of the rear car had to be broken in and a portion of the side cut out in order to reach the inmates, and the station was turned into an emergency hospital, to which was taken those removed from the wreck. The dead, many of whom were burned or scalded beyond all recognition, were taken to Long's undertaking establishment.

The rear brakeman of the passenger train, who shortly before the accident was sent back about 600 feet to notify the engineer of the freight train of danger ahead, states he went back as directed and signaled the freight train, and his signal was answered by two whistles, which is the usual answer that signals have been seen and noted.

Engineer Goodwin of the freight train is in Cambridge Hospital badly shaken, but not seriously injured. He was substituting on the trip. He says: "We were two hours late leaving Boston, and had the right of way. Everything was all right until we got to West Cambridge. The signals were all right beyond the station for us to have the track. I whistled and immediately after saw the rear end of the passenger train. I was only a short distance from it then. As soon as I saw the signals on the rear of the passenger train I reversed the engine, but the momentum of the freight carried it into the passenger train. Fireman Alexander and I stuck by our engine. Where the accident occurred there is a straight stretch of track nearly a mile long, and under ordinary circumstances the rear lights on the passenger train could have been seen, but the thick fog made it impossible to see the most brilliant lights even a quarter of a mile.

The complete list of killed and injured as far as known is as follows:

KILLED.

S. J. Sullivan aged 50, a pawnbroker of No. 12 Norman street, Boston.

L. O. Raymond, Winchendon, brakeman on the freight train.

John Hudson aged 51, of Watertown, leaves a widow and eight children.

James Lane, East Watertown.

J. H. Barnes, Newton.

Miss Retta F. Eyler, Waltham.

Benj. Tuck, Waltham, died on the way to Cambridge hospital.

Miss Magarie Adams, Waltham, a watch factory employe, died to-day at the hospital.

H. H. Merrifield, Watertown, died today at his home.

INJURED.

Cornelius Doyle, Waltham, probably fatally; John Reagan, Frank Mills, Andrew Doyle and his son Edmond, Mary Dardis, Eleanor O'Hern, Wm. O'Hern, Peter Whitney, John McPhee, Patrick Oates, all of Watertown; G. M. Spear, Thos. O'Connell, Fred Warren, Thos. Hinds, G. E. Murphy, C. E. Hall, all of Waltham; Herbert P. Goodwin, engineer of freight train; Florence F. Parke, Boston; Kate White, Cambridge; Florence Clark, Boston; Patrick Downey, Thomas E. Berry, George Good, Mrs. Fahey, James Smith, Mrs. George Wright, Cambridge; Mrs. Mary Ann Elliot, Newton; Harry Elliot, Newton; Thos. Cane, Thos Lennon, John Mullin, Michael Mullin, Mrs. Stephens, Mrs. Walsh and Richard Hallis, all of Watertown.

One on the Widow.

"Which weeds are the easiest to kill?" asked young Flickers of Farmer Sassafras, as he watched that good man at his work.

"Widow's weeds," replied the farmer. "You have only to say, 'wilt thou,' and they wilt."

A Victoria Idea of Marriage.

An old proverb says: "Marriage resembles a village fair, where everyone endeavors to trade off his lame horse or his vicious cow for a handsome, sound and useful critter."

Big Hats and Stoop-shoulders.

"Almost every farmer boy and girl is stoop-shouldered," says a Cincinnati physician. "I have often been at a loss to account for it, but a few days ago a solution of why it is, struck me. Farmers' children all wear broad-brimmed straw hats in summer, and as these blow off easily, they are continually holding their heads down, so as to bring the wind directly on top. This position of the head becomes habitual, and so where you will you will see farmers' children holding their heads so."

To Make Soft Soap.

Dissolve a half pound package of Peerless Washing Compound in one gallon of boiling water, then add one gallon of cold water, stirring well together. When cold you will have two gallons of good soft soap.

ANTI-DANDRUFF ANTI-DANDRUFF

Anti-Dandruff acts directly on the scalp, removes all Impurities, cures Eruptions, prevents Baldness and causes the hair to grow thick, soft and beautiful. No sugar of lead or any other poisonous ingredient is contained in the formula. It is a new departure as a hair preparation and contains properties unknown to any other preparation. Be careful to get Anti-Dandruff, manufactured by Dr. L. A. Smith & Co. Toronto, Ont.

If a dealer tells you he has something just as good as Anti-Dandruff do not believe it; he has not and would not make such statement if he knew the ingredients of Anti-Dandruff. We have paid for and have received from the Trade Mark Office at Ottawa papers showing that we are the only persons in Canada entitled to use Anti-Dandruff as an advertising design or such name to a specific preparation. Any preparation advertised to the public in which advertisement of Anti-Dandruff is used is a fraud and will be dealt with accordingly.

When a barber tells you he has something better than Anti-Dandruff take no stock in the statement; there is nothing so good, therefore nothing better. Barbers, like other business men, will wake up to the fact that a preparation of merit like Anti-Dandruff and one that is far superior to any preparation for the hair now known must come to the front. Try it once with your patrons and advise us if it does not please.

LADIES

Anti-Dandruff is a valuable addition to your Toilet Table, is exquisitely perfumed, pleasant to use, clear as Crystal, free from all injurious ingredients and is thoroughly appreciated by all who use it as a perfect Hair Dresser. In every home there is some one who requires a hair dressing or a remover of dandruff. The mother usually knows first when such an article is required. It is within our province to say that Anti-Dandruff makes the outer head comfortable and imparts pliability to the hair. One trial with father, mother or child will prove its merits. No poisonous ingredient enters into its composition.

The Wool Market.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—Good extra Ohio fleece can be bought at 27c, and straight double extra at 28c per lb. No. 1 wools are not so strong, and dealers find that they have to take less. For Ohio 33c is an outside price, and for Michigan 32c per lb. The market for washed combing wool has been quiet, and the sales are in small lots of No. 1 at 35c to 36c for Ohio and 34c to 35c for Michigan. Fine delaine selections have been dull, and some dealers complain that it hardly pays to take it out. Ohio is quoted at 31c to 32c and Michigan at 29c to 30c per lb.

Dairy Markets.

LONDON.

LONDON, Sept. 10, 1892.

The London cheese market was well attended by both buyers and sellers to-day, the former numbering 12 and the latter about 40. The market was very active. Thirty-five factories boarded 10,974 boxes, August make. The sales were: 216 boxes at 9½c, 1,130 at 9 15-16c, 4,348 at 10c, and 3,170 at 10 1-16c. From this it will be seen that the buyers offered considerably more than at any previous meeting of the board this season. The Liverpool cable was also up. It registered 45s 6d. Following were the factories represented:

Of the cheese trade the Montreal Trade Bulletin of Sept. 9 has the following to say: "Farmers are evidently reaping a profitable harvest from their cheese production, whatever may be the case with those who handle it for the English market. The shortage in the English make which for some time past the Trade Bulletin has repeatedly brought before its readers is now generally admitted to be beyond dispute, and is no unimportant factor in the present firm condition of the market. Most of the cheese made, and to be made, between here and Toronto has been contracted at 10c to 10½c for August, September and October, a few fancy factories having obtained 10½c. A number of factories in the eastern townships have sold their last half of August make within the past few days at 9¾c, and 9⅞c has since been bid. A lot of 1,020 boxes of western, last half of August, was placed at 9¾c, and a lot of colored was sold for this week's shipment at 10c, and we have been repeatedly referred to the apparent discrepancy between these prices and the Liverpool public cable, which only registers 45s for white and colored. But it should be remembered that the cable quotation of 45s refers to hot weather goods and not to August make. It is believed that the production now going on is unprecedented for this season of the year, as the pastures are good, and present remunerative prices induce farmers to take every gallon of milk they can spare to the factory; but whether this will make up for the shrinkage in the English production remains to be seen. There appears to be a mistaken idea entertained by a portion of the trade in regard to the extent of the make of cheese in Great Britain; but we may state for their information that it is enormous, amounting to more than double the quantity of her total imports from Canada, the United States, Europe and Australasia. This may seem prodigious, but it is true nevertheless, and supposing the shortage of the home make was only 10 per cent. it would mean about 500,000 boxes. Regarding contracting, every factory in the Belleville district is said to have been secured, while most of the make has been engaged in the Kingston and Brockville sections to the end of the season."

Dawson, master; Geo. Bowman, huntsman; J. D. Kilgour, G. W. Graydon, H. J. Shirreff and H. W. Marshall. From "The Kennels" the hounds went northeast across the fifth and sixth concessions of London township, then turned and halted just west of the Proof Line road, where the run ended. The absence of a number of the old riders was noticeable.

A Prosperous Sunday School.

The anniversary festival of the Colborne Street Methodist Church Sunday school will be held this evening. The annual reports to be submitted show receipts of $213 12, with a balance on hand from last year of $34 57—total, $247 69. The disbursements were $227 57, leaving a cash balance of $20 12 on hand. The receipts for 1892 show a gain of $77 89 over those of last year. The average attendance at the school was 203, and the number of verses committed to memory was 2,511 by the boys and 5,742 by the girls. By this it will be seen that the school is in a very satisfactory condition. The officers of the school for the coming year are: Superintendent, Mr. W. D. Buckle; assistant, Mr. W. Henderson; treasurer, Mr. Alex. Burness; secretary, Mr. Thomas Tapp; assistant secretary, Mr. W. D. Thomas; librarian, Mr. Woonton, assistants, Messrs. W. H. "Young Men's Rally."

The first of the series of young men's meetings was held yesterday afternoon in Victoria Hall, and was well attended, the body of the hall being nearly filled with men of all kinds. The Citizens' Temperance Band aided very materially in the musical part of the services and did themselves credit. The choir was composed of members of the boys' department of the association, aided by some older voices, and considering this was their first attempt at leading singing, got along very well. They sang a very pretty thing entitled "Throw Out the Life Line," at close of address. The meeting was presided over by Mayor Spencer and was addressed by Rev. W. H. Ware (an ex-secretary of the association here), now of Chatham. He gave a very stirring address on "When He Came to Himself." It was full of meaning and those present seemed to enjoy it very much. These meetings are sure to become popular and will be productive of much good. Directors (Mayor) Spencer, Hodgson and Jeffers were present and quite a number of the active workers of the association. Next Sunday Rev. W. J. Clark, of the First Presbyterian Church, will address the meeting, which is sure to be crowded.

Adam Graeme, of Mossgray.

By Mrs. Oliphant.

She had entered the garden of Mossgray before she became aware that there were visitors in it. Under the shadow of a fine beech tree, Lilias, in her mourning dress, sat on a garden seat. It was Saturday, and those holidays were now very frequently spent by Helen Buchanan with her pensive and delicate friend whose health needed all gentle care and attendance. Helen was standing behind Lilias, looking shy and something out of place, as she bent over the downcast Lily of Mossgray, and tried to shield her from the remarks sometimes addressed to her by the young men who stood with the fairs and Halbert at a little distance. The strangers were Alick Fendie and the redoubtable Captain Hyde; Hope did not know them—she came up, stealing under cover of the trees, to Lilias and Helen. Lilias had turned her head away, where no one could see the drooping, melancholy face. They had been talking in her presence of those fatal Indian wars—had seen running over, with careless levity, those names, made so bitterly memorable to her, of places where the dead had been. She had turned side, with her trembling arm resting against the silvery beech; and Helen's eyes were cast down too, and no one saw what clouds were passing over the wan face of the Lily of Mossgray.

Hope did not think of that, as she advanced innocently to the mourner's side, and looked into her face; the tears were standing upon those colorless cheeks in large drops—the pale lips were quivering.

"Hope!" said Helen, in reproof.

Lilias put her hand on Hope's, gently detaining her.

"Hope has been my shield before," she said in her low, broken voice; and Hope's heart swelled with graver emotion than was wont to move it, as the drooping Lily leaned for a moment upon her shoulder. She remembered very well the other time—the bow window of Mrs. Fendie's morning-room and the first meeting of Mossgray with his ward; but Lilias was still paler, still more fragile now, and people said she would not dwell long in this life.

The young heir of Mount Fendie, lieutenant in his regiment, but captain at home, was the model of his sister Victoria—malicious with a kind of pert cleverness, which passed muster for wit among the stupid Fendies; but Captain Hyde, his butt and companion, was much too complacent to be at all conscious of being quizzed. In himself, a tall fellow in his hands—in estate, a considerable proprietor in one of the rich English counties on the other side of the island—the arrows of ridicule glanced innocently from off the glittering armor of good-humored self-importance which buckled Captain Arthur Hyde.

"Poor Robertson," said Alick Fendie, in a loud voice, as Hope began to listen. "He was killed in that skirmish at ——; but by the bye, don't you remember hearing a rumor before we left India, Hyde, that those poor fellows were not killed after all?"

Captain Hyde gaped a "never heard it."

"I am sure you did," responded his brisk companion. Why, man, don't you recollect? Somebody's servant had turned up, reported that himself and his master were not dead—very near it—very badly wounded, but not killed outright, and that the Afghan fellows were nursing a lot of them—I think there was a lot; and the fellows who had taken them were just about to turn their coat; they are always doing it, these wretches of natives, and were taking care of them to curry favor with us; not to be sure we heard it. It was a mere rumor, you know, but it might be true. Anything may happen in India. Men get killed and then turn up again in the most mysterious way—eh, Hyde?"

Lilias had risen and turned round blindly to Helen as if seeking support.

"Save me, Helen," said the Lily of Mossgray, "save me from this hope."

"And is that all? do you know nothing further about these unfortunate young men?" said the anxious voice of Mossgray.

"Nothing at all," answered Alick Fendie, gaily. "It may not be worthy of the least note what we did hear. I only give it you as a rumor."

"Lilias is ill; we will go in," said Helen, supporting her friend on the nervous, firm arm, which began to tremble in sympathetic sorrow. "Will you come to us when you can, Mossgray? Lilias is ill."

And Lilias was ill. After this long sinking in the deep waters of grief, the fever of hope was too much for her. Large, cold drops stood upon her white, shadowy forehead, her thin, wasted frame was shaken with sudden pains, the mist of blindness came upon her eyes, and the slender arm leaned in Helen's leaned so heavily—you could not have fancied there was so much weight in the slight, drooping figure together as there was in that one thin hand.

"And, Captain Alick," said Hope, stepping forward bravely, "did you see Peter Delvie in India? They have sent home word that he is dead; do you think Peter is dead?"

"Why, I believe this is little Hope herself," exclaimed Captain Alick, shaking Hope's hand energetically, and offering a quotation from which Hope, immensely red and angry, withdrew in high disdain. "By Hope, you are taller than Adelaide; and what a little thing you were when I went away."

"Will you tell me about Peter Delvie, Captain Fendie?" said Hope, with some gravity.

"Who is Peter Delvie, Hope? I never knew him in India, I assure you. But why do we not come to the Mount? I must come and see you myself one of these days."

Hope went away dissatisfied and sad. Nobody would care except for themselves, nobody would attend to her inquiries, nobody would think of the old man who had lost his only child.

Lilias was sitting on a low chair, bending her head down upon her knees, as Mossgray looked in at the door of their usual sitting-room. Her face was hidden in her hands; she did not see him.

Helen stood close beside her, holding one of those feverish, hot hands.

"Helen, it is very hard to bear," said the sick Lily, "very terrible. I thought I was patient, I thought I had learned to endure; but this hope, this false, vain hope—I cannot bear it, Helen."

Helen answered nothing; she only pressed gently the thin, trembling fingers which lay in her own.

"And if it is true," said Lilias, "they were many, very many; would you have me hope that it was him—that he was saved alone?"

And then the wan face was lifted, supplicating, begging to be contradicted—instinct with its woful entreaty that this hope which it called false might be pronounced true.

"Will you not speak to me?" said poor Lilias. "Have you nothing to say to me, Helen?"

"I cannot tell," said the faltering voice of Helen. "I have heard of very wonderful things; this may be one of them. What can I say Lilias? There have been such deliverances before—I cannot tell."

Lilias rose up suddenly, and laid her arms upon Helen's shoulders, supporting herself there.

"He is the only son of his mother. She would pray for him night and day. Helen, Helen, there are few so blessed. Would they not be heard in heaven, those prayers?"

Poor Helen trembled as much in her strength as the other did in her weakness; she dared not recommend this hope to the sick heart, which had already grasped it so strongly.

"We must wait, Lilias," she said. "It is very hard, very hard to do it, I know, but it is in God's hands, and we must wait."

Lilias put her hands to her head; she staggered as she withdrew from her support. A sickly smile came upon her face.

"I ought to go to his mother, Helen. Will you come with me to seek his mother? Mossgray is very good, very kind, but she has more need of me. She has not written, because she would think, like me, that he was dead; but it may be true. You have heard of very wonderful deliverances. You said so, Helen; you thought it might be true."

But Helen's head drooped. She feared to encourage the expectation.

Lilias sat down on her low chair again, and again bent her head upon her knees; her feeble frame was distracted with bodily pains no less than her mind was with mental.

"I think my head is dizzy, Helen," she said, in her melancholy, broken voice. "I think I am forgetting myself—for this is only vain and false, a mockery of hope. I see it is. If the grief were yours, Helen, you would see that this could not be true."

"Those strange artifices of misery! they brought tears to the eyes of the looker-on, to whom this did indeed seem a mockery of hope.

"You must stay with her, Helen," said Mossgray, when they had left Lilias alone. "You must stay with her till I return. I cannot leave Fendie to-night, but to-morrow evening I will. I will go to London, and ascertain at once if there is any truth in this. Do not let Lilias know where I am nor what is my errand, I leave her with you in all confidence. Helen. You will be tender of my poor Lily."

We have no hesitation in saying that Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is without doubt the best medicine ever introduced for dysentery, diarrhœa, cholera and all summer complaints, sea sickness, etc. It promptly gives relief and never fails to effect a positive cure. Mothers should never be without a bottle when their children are teething.

Mr. J. R. Allen, upholsterer, Toronto sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered with Dyspepsia Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

When the weather is propitious the greater part of the forenoon Sarah Bernhardt spends out of doors in the garden, in a morning wrap of silk, caught in only at the hip by a girdle, and with the lace scarf, one knows so well, twisted around her head. Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, is ear ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, in which the young are specially subject.

Local Option.

This term should be applied to the choice every intelligent person has between Burdock Blood Bitters, the natural and certain remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, headache, and bad blood, and the various imitations offered by unscrupulous parties being "just as good." There is nothing else as good as B.B.B. It is an honest medicine and has made remarkable cures right in our own town.

LAID TO REST.

Funeral of the Poet Whittier in a Quiet New England Town.

AMESBURY, Mass., Sept. 11.—This quiet town was thronged yesterday with those who gathered from far and near to gaze for the last time upon the features of the dead poet, John G. Whittier, and pay the last tribute of respect and love to the patriot bard, honored by the nation in life and mourned by the nation in death. All over the city flags were at half mast, and the public buildings were decorated with emblems of mourning. The remains of the departed poet, encased in a rich broadcloth covered casket, and surrounded with beautiful floral tributes, lay in state in the parlor of the home of the great poet on Friend street from 10 a.m to 2 p.m. During that time thousands passed in and took a farewell glance at the calm, peaceful face of the sweet singer who had furnished them so much of inspiration and hope.

At 2:30 o'clock the funeral services were held in the garden in the rear of the house. There was a large attendance. The Quaker form of service was used in accordance with the request of the deceased. The interment was in the Friend's section of the Union Cemetery at Bartlett's Corner. Floral tributes were received from all over the country, many of the pieces being very elaborate. The Haverhill City Government was there in a body, coming in a special train. The Loyal Legion of the United States was represented by a delegation of ten members. The Whittier Club of Haverhill and several other organizations were present. Telegrams and letters were received from a number of distinguished people expressing sympathy and grief. Among them were messages from James G. Blaine, Frederick Douglass, ex-Gov. John D. Long, Hon. T. R. Davis and Alfred H. Love. Business in the town was suspended throughout the afternoon, the factories being shut down and stores closed.

WHY SHE USES IT NOW!

A mother living in Kingston, Ont., writes saying that her babe was very ill in July owing to an attack of diarrhœa. A friend advised her to use Lactated Food for the little one instead of another prepared food which she was then using. This mother declares that the good qualities of Lactated Food proved satisfactory the first day it was used; it stopped the diarrhœa, and baby soon regained health and strength.

She emphatically asserts that Lactated Food saved the child's life, and that for the future she will use no other make.

Such grand results are being obtained every day, in Canada, from the use of Lactated Food, and we are astonished that so many mothers continue the use of foods that have no merits, or any good points to commend them. The use of Lactated Food means life and health for the baby.

Ingenious Subterfuges by Which Men Try to Escape Military Duty.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Malingering is best known in army circles, and the records of the French army are especially rich in medical studies of famous cases. Some of the subterfuges are stimulated through the swallowing of brick dust. False epilepsy becomes startlingly natural when, to well-acted spasms, is added a foaming at the mouth caused by chewing soap.

A fair heart disease used to be set up by taking tobacco into the stomach. Insanity in all its phases was long a favorite act, but makes little headway in the light of modern science. A Parisian murderess long escaped the guillotine by pretending to be with child, though she was 65 years old. It was subsequently found that the great distention of of the abdomen was caused by her ability to retain the contents of the bladder, and she was promptly executed. But perhaps the most famous case of all, and one which for months baffled the most distinguished physicians of France, was that of a man who sought to avoid army service on the plea of being deaf and dumb.

His early history could not be traced, but he was suspected of malingering, and was for weeks and weeks vainly subjected to every conceivable test. Cannons were fired beside his bed while he was soundly sleeping, but, aroused in an almost insanity of terror, his lips gave utterance only to those horrible, inarticulate sounds of the deaf mute.

Finally a young physician from the provinces asked to see one of the fellow's letters. It was full of misspelled words, but the misspelling was all phonetic, like "ruf" for rough, and "bow" for bough. Then the young savant declared that the man must have been of good hearing when he learned to read and write, or he would not misspell phonetically.

Upon this dictum he was forthwith sent to the army, and so soon as he found himself hopelessly in service, he began to hear and to talk as well as anybody. Malingering has cost public institutions the world over a vast amount of money, and has absorbed the attention of the most distinguished physicians of all lands. Happily, under modern methods, successful deceit is becoming daily more rare.

Relative to Canal Tolls.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11.—The following circular has just been issued by the Treasury Department:

"Tolls will be collected in the case of vessels passing through St. Mary's Falls Canal, consigned to American ports, but whose manifests state that the cargo is to be exported to Canada, either to be retained there or for export therefrom to a foreign country other than the United States. When the manifest shows that the final destination of the cargo is the United States or a foreign place other than Canada, via the United States, whether the merchandise be subject to 'shipper's orders' or otherwise, the collector will issue lading certificates accordingly, unless upon investigation he shall find that the manifest was made out with intent to defraud the United States or to conceal the true final destination, and that tolls were properly payable, in which case he will withhold his certificate and take measures for the collection of the tolls due."

A WOMAN'S DAY.

A hurry to the kitchen, a strife with pot and pan,
A tempting little breakfast set for a hungry man;
A row of fresh-washed dishes put back into their place,
A row of children sent to school, each with a shining face.

A whirl of sheets and pillows, of dustpans and of brooms,
A set of smooth and snowy beds and neatly ordered rooms,
A rather rapid toilet, within the glass a peep,
A tidy housewife setting forth with market-basket deep.

A little rest and reading, a noonday lunch to get,
A rush of school-free children—a hungry, hugging set;
A trim and tasteful street dress, a little hat of brown,
A solemn "Shakespeare Circle," and a little jaunt downtown.

A most delicious dinner, served up with love and fun;
A chat—a yawn—a pillow—and then her day is done.

Police Court Items.

Alf. Prodgers, who was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of the larceny of two bridles from Alf. Dengate, Hamilton road, was remanded for a day by the police magistrate this morning.

Harriet Williams, a veritable old-timer, pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness and vagrancy, and was sentenced to a year in the Mercer Reformatory.

Robert Bradley was remanded for a week on a charge of vagrancy.

One drunk was discharged.

Alf. Prodgers Arrested.

Alf. Prodgers was arrested yesterday afternoon by Sergt. Crawford and Detective Rider on a charge of larceny. It is said that he broke into the barn of Alf. Dengate, Hamilton road, and stole two bridles. When pursued he made for the G. T. R. car shops and then started east along the track and dropped the bridles. He was chased to Barnes' hotel near the asylum where the patrol wagon came along and he had a free ride to the police station. He was under the influence of liquor. Prodgers has been arrested on a similar charge before, when he and two comrades were charged with the larceny of a quantity of lead piping from the Ball Electric Light Company.

Josie Mills All Week.

Josie Mills and her big company, including band and orchestra are at the Tecumseh, and Manager Haystead's smiling face may be seen around the corridors. To-night a week's engagement will open with the "The Gambler's Wife." An exchange says of its production: "The bill was 'The Gambler's Wife,' Miss Mills in the leading role. Of her there is no occasion for remarks. She always delights her audience. Her support this season is better than it ever has been heretofore. Mr. J. W. Turnbull, as Jim Bixley, was the character itself, while Mr. J. E. Sheridan, as Pat Murphy, was a genuine Irishman. Manager Haystead has made a great hit this season in furnishing such excellent music. Our citizens have a treat in listening to his orchestra, such as they are not often given. The rendition of the descriptive fantasia, 'A day with the circus,' was well worth the price of admission alone."

Western Ontario Travelers.

The Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association met in their rooms on Saturday evening and adopted a report of the board of management, which recommended that the advice of a first-class insurance actuary be obtained in the matter of revising the accident insurance and mortuary benefit schemes of the association at a cost not to exceed $100. A committee appointed to act with the board in considering the report, and advise a general meeting to be held on Oct. 1, was composed of W. J. Reid, S. N. Sterling, J. M. Dillon, J. Marr, S. Screaton, C. E. Perry, Wm. Gray and W. S. Case. It was also decided to ask the Toronto association to co-operate in having a provincial sanitary inspector for hotels appointed. The travelers complain that some of the accommodations provided at some hotels, particularly in small places, are disgraceful.

Death of Mrs. John Ingram.

The death occurred on Saturday evening of Mrs. John Ingram (nee Miss Mary Ann Kirkpatrick, of Hamilton), at her residence, Clarence street. The illness from which she died had lasted about two months. Deceased was born in Donegal, 48 years ago. In May, 1863, she came to Canada, and was married to John Ingram in Hamilton shortly afterward. She had been a resident of London for 22 years. For a number of years she had been a strict adherent of the Wellington Street Methodist Church. Her husband and a family of one daughter and three sons survive her. The latter are Frederick, of the London Machine and Tool Company, Bert and William and Mrs. Atwell Roddam, all of this city. Andrew Kirkpatrick, of this city, and Joseph, William and Robert, of Hamilton, are brothers of deceased, and Mrs. Joseph Adams, of St. Thomas, is her sister. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

A Career of Crime.

The Syracuse Standard of a recent date says that a young man alighted from a New York Central freight train there, walked into police headquarters and gave himself up to Chief of Police Wright, as a criminal. He gave his name as Robert Russell and said that he was 29 years old and lived in Dundas, Canada. His father is Samuel Fuller, a millwright of that place, and his family is in good standing in the community. He gave the chief a detailed account of his career, which seems to have been largely characterized by crime. He said that he once entered a house in Dundas and stole $35; that in March last he entered a grocery store in the same place and took all that was there, amounting to 45 cents; that during three days' residence in Woodstock, he stole from a hotel where he was employed as waiter, a rug and a watch. His statement contained the following reference to his career in London: "I sold the watch in London, Canada, and then broke into a freight car and stole some boots, shoes and shirts. In London I entered a drygoods and grocery store, but found no money. I got some goods, however. To get into the store I climbed through a cellar window and cut through three doors." He afterwards operated in Sarnia and West Humber.

The police records here show that on Sept. 25, 1891 he was arrested by, Detective Rider on a charge of having broken into a house on Ontario street and stolen some clothing which he sold in a pawn shop. For this he got a month in jail. On April 27 last he was again arrested, this time by Sergeant Adams, on a charge of vagrancy. He asked to be sent to jail and was given a month. When here he gave his name as Robert Hamilton, his residence as Lapeer, Mich., and his occupation as printer. He went by the same name in Woodstock.

STOPPED AT WINDSOR.

Immigrants Detained by Detroit Authorities—Said to Have Been Sent Back to London—No Signs of Them Here.

The Detroit Free Press of Sunday says: Sixty immigrants from New York were detained at Windsor late Friday night by orders from Dr. Corcoran. They came in by the Grand Trunk. When news of the matter got around town in Windsor yesterday there was some excitement and numbers of citizens were outspoken in the action of the "invasion" by the Detroit authorities. The detained travelers, however, took matters very complacently and spent the day in "doing" the city. Half a dozen of them, when they learnt that they were to be sent back to New York, decided to steal a march, and, leaving their baggage in charge of friends who went back, crossed on a ferry over to Detroit, and presumably proceeded westward. When asked what he would do with the the quarantined passengers, should they return, Dr. Coventry, Windsor's health officer, said: "We have no quarantine against New York or any other State. Had Michigan wished to quarantine them they should have done so on Michigan soil. Had those passengers been allowed to proceed they would have been beyond Michigan in twelve hours, as Illinois has no quarantine against Michigan or New York, but simply because they passed through Canada from Niagara to the Detroit River, they are detained here.

"Many of the passengers cursed Canada for detaining them, as the inspectors did not explain the situation to them.

D. S. Wagstaff, of the Grand Trunk Railway, said to a Free Press representative yesterday: "We started those emigrants back for Niagara Falls this afternoon, but soon got a dispatch from the authorities at Niagara Falls saying that the emigrants would not be admitted to that State. The car load of passengers was therefore stopped at London and turned back. They will soon be in Windsor and will doubtless be cared for there for a few days."

Inquiry in this city elicits the fact that the immigrants were not returned to London. It is said they were sent back as far as Jeanette's Creek, 30 miles east of Windsor. No doubt they will easily slip over the border.

THE KING'S HIGHWAY.

Well-Built, Clean, Plain, Safe and Pleasant.

"The Redeemed Shall Walk There, and Sorrow and Sighing Shall Flee Away."

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 11.—Dr. Talmage's sermon for to-day is entitled "The King's Highway," the text chosen being Isaiah xxxv., 8-10: "And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it, but it shall be for those, the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there, and the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

There are thousands of people here this morning who want to find the right road. You sometimes see a person halting at cross-roads, and you can tell by his looks that he wishes to ask a question as to what direction he had better take. And I stand in your presence this morning conscious of the fact that there are many of you here who realize that there are 1,000 wrong roads, but only one right one; and I take it for granted that you have come in to ask which one it is. Here is one road that opens widely, but I have not much faith in it. There are a great many expensive toll-gates scattered all along that way. Indeed at every rod you must pay in tears, or pay in flagellations. On that road, if you get through at all, you have to pay your own way; and since this differs so much from what I have heard in regard to the right way, I believe it is the wrong way.

Here is another road. On either side of it are houses of sinful entertainment, and invitations to come in and dine and rest; but, from the looks of the people who stand on the piazza, I am very certain that it is the wrong house and the wrong way. Here is another road. It is very beautiful and macadamized. The horses' hoofs clatter and ring, and they who ride over it spin along the highway, until suddenly they find that the road breaks over an embankment, and they try to halt, and they saw the bit in the mouth of the fiery steed, and cry "Ho! ho! But it is too late, and—crash!—they go over the embankment. We shall turn this morning and see if we cannot find a different kind of a road.

First, this road of the text is the King's highway. The King sent his Son to build it. Being a King's highway, of course it is well built and clean. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death." Without holiness no man shall see the Lord; and if you have any idea that you can carry along your sins, your lusts, your worldliness, and yet get to the end of the Christian race you are awfully mistaken.

The road spoken of is a plain road. "The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein." That is, if a men is three-fourths an idiot, he can find this road just as well as if he were a philosopher. The imbecile boy, the laughing stock of the street, and followed by a mob hooting at him, has only just to knock once at the gate of heaven, and it swings open. If one shall come in the right spirit, asking the way to heaven, he will find it in a plain way. The pardon is plain. The peace is plain. Everything is plain.

He who tries to get on the road to heaven through the New Testament teaching will get on beautifully. He who goes through philosophical discussion will not get on at all. Christ says: "Come to me, and I will take all your sins away, and I will take all your troubles away." After this Bible has pointed you the way to heaven, is it wise for me to detain you with any discussion about the nature of the human will, or whether the atonement is limited or unlimited? There is the road—go on it It is a plain way.

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners." And that is you and that is me. Any little child here can understand this as well as I can. "Unless you become as a little child, you cannot see the kingdom of God." If you are saved, it will not be as a philosopher, it will be as a little child. "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." Unless you get the spirit of little children, you will never come out at their glorious destiny.

Further, this road to heaven is a safe road. Sometimes the traveler in those ancient highways would think himself perfectly secure, not knowing there was a lion by the way, burying his head deep between his paws, and then, when the right moment came, under the fearful spring, the man's life was gone, and there was a mauled carcass by the roadside. But, says my text, "No lion shall be there." I wish I could make you feel, this morning, your entire security. I tell you plainly that one minute after a man has become a child of God he is as safe as though he had been 10,000 years in heaven. He may slip, he may slide, he may stumble; but he cannot be destroyed. Kept by the power of God, through faith, unto complete salvation. Everlastingly safe.

The severest trial to which you can subject a Christian man is to kill him, and that is glory. In other words, the worst thing that can happen a child of God is heaven. The body is only the old slippers that he throws aside just before putting on the sandals of light. His soul, you cannot hurt it. No fires can consume it. No floods can drown it. No devils can capture it.

His soul is safe. His reputation is safe. Everything is safe. "But," you say, "suppose his store burns up?" Why, then, it will only be a change of investments from earthly to heavenly securities. "But," you say, "suppose his name goes down under the hoof of scorn and contempt?" The name will be so much brighter in glory. "Suppose his physical health fails?" God will pour into him the floods of everlasting health, and it will not make any difference. Earthly subtraction is heavenly addition. The tears of earth are the crystals of heaven. As they take rags and tatters and put them through the paper mill, and they come out beautiful white sheets of paper, so, often, the rags of earthly destitution, under the cylinders of death, come out a white scroll upon which shall be written eternal emancipation.

Still further: the road spoken of is a pleasant road. God gives a bond of indemnity against all evil to every man that treads it. "All things work together for good to those who love God." No weapon formed against them can prosper. That is the bond, signed, sealed and delivered by the President of the universe. What is the use of your fretting, O child of God, about food? "Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feedeth them." And will he take care of the sparrow, will he take care of the hawk, and let you die? What is the use of your fretting about clothes? "Consider the lilies of the field. Shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" What is the use of worrying for fear something will happen to your home? "He blesseth the habitation of the just." What is the use of fretting lest you will be overcome of temptations? "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able, but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."

I pursue this subject only one step further. What is the terminus? I do not care how fine a road you may put me on, I want to know where it comes out. My text declares it: "The redeemed of the Lord come to Zion." You know what Zion was? That was the King's palace. It was a mountain fastness. It was impregnable. And so heaven is the fastness of the universe. No howitzer has long enough range to shell those towers. Let all the batteries of earth and hell blaze away; they cannot break in those gates. Gibraltar was taken; Sebastopol was taken; Babylon fell; but those walls of heaven shall never surrender either to human or Satanic besiegement. The Lord God Almighty is the defense of it. Great capital of the universe! Terminus of the King's highway!

When my last wound is healed, when the last heart-break is ended, when the last tear of earthly sorrow is wiped away, and when the redeemed of the Lord shall come to Zion, then let all the harpers take down their harps, and all the trumpeters take down their trumpets, and all across heaven there be chorus of morning stars, chorus of white-robed victors, chorus of martyrs from under the throne, chorus of ages, chorus of worlds, and there be but one song [illegible], and but one name spoken, and but one [illegible] honored—that of Jesus only.

CORNER-STONE LAYING.

Red-Letter Day at St. Marys—Corner-Stone of the New R. C. Church Laid with Fitting Ceremony.

ST. MARYS, Sept. 11.—A very large number of spectators witnessed the laying of the corner-stone of the new Roman Catholic Church in St. Marys this afternoon. The ceremony has performed by Bishop O'Connor, assisted by Rev. Father McBrady, of St. Michael's College, Toronto; Dr. Kilroy, Stratford; P. Connolly, Biddulph, and P. Brennan, Ph., St. Marys. A most impressive and eloquent sermon was preached by Rev. Father McBrady, after which the bishop delivered a very interesting address. He thanked those present for their attendance and liberality and concluded by asking that God's choicest blessing might rest on all the community, including all denominations, living in the town. A very liberal collection was taken up at the close of the service.

Crops in the United States.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The September average of the condition of winter and spring wheat in the States as harvested is 85.03; corn, 79.5; oats, 78.9; rye, 88.5; barley, 87.4; buckwheat, 89; potatoes, 74.8; tobacco, 79.9. This is a heavy reduction in everything except rye and barley.

Walter Watson has been carrying on the general store business under the style of Watson & Co., in Dresden, Ont. An extension of time was granted him in May last. Now he finds an assignment necessary. His liabilities are $5,800 and assets $5,900. He has been there a number of years.

"You bring up your girls," says Ruskin, "as if they were made for sideboard ornaments, and then complain of their frivolity. Give them not only noble teaching, but noble teachers, and give them the help which alone has sometimes done more than all other influences—the help of wild and fair nature. You cannot baptize them rightly in inch-deep church fonts unless you baptize them also in the sweet waters which the great Law Giver strikes forth from the rocks of your native land."
