News Notes

With every rising of the sun Think of your life as just begun. The past has faded and faded deep. Not seek to summon back one ghost of that innumerable host.

You and Today.

When a girl in her teens becomes peevish, listless and dull, when nothing seems to interest her and dainties do not tempt her appetite, you may be certain that she needs more good blood than her system is providing.

Listless, Peevish Girls.

When a girl in her teens becomes peevish, listless and dull, when nothing seems to interest her and dainties do not tempt her appetite, you may be certain that she needs more good blood than her system is providing.

Where to Keep Cream.

It is a common idea that the better is a good place to keep cream, and in many cases it is a mistaken one. Unless the cellar is perfectly ventilated and free from all rodents and vermin, there is almost sure to be a taint of the cream.

Stick To It.

There is a tendency among boys and girls to relax their efforts during the closing days of school. It is so much pleasanter to be out of doors in the fresh and balmy air, untroubled and care free, than to be occupied with the serious tasks of the school room.

Files.

They say that everything on earth was made for purpose; there's nothing that's devoid of worth—just what's the good of files? They keep their merit so concealed we can't discern the same, while our swatting stick we wield, and ensue the endless game.

Nerves Are Exhausted.

When you have frequent headaches, feel yourself easily irritated and annoyed, feel discouraged and depressed, cannot rest and sleep well and find appetite lacking and digestion bad, you may know that the nerves are in bad condition.

A Wife's Opinion.

A young married woman complained to Mr. d'Esposito at Baylebone (London, England) police court that during the four months her husband had been home from the army he had never spoken to her, says the London Times. Occasionally he spoke to her through her children, but that was all, and meanwhile he lived and slept in the kitchen by himself.

N. S. College of Agriculture.

Applications are now coming to the Agricultural office from students who are planning to join the classes when they open in the fall. The staff has been impressed on all the value of scientific education, and in these times of high prices for farm products advantage should be taken of all sources of information so that the best results may be obtained.

Canche For Investors.

On page three will be found particulars of an attractive investment security brought out by F. B. McCurdy & Company, Halifax. The issue consists of Three Year Coupon Gold Notes in denominations of $500 and $1,000, bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum. It will be noted that both the Notes and the Coupons are payable in New York.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., JULY 25, 1919.

Editorial Brevities.

On account of the war, shoes went up enormously in price. Since the Armistice was signed, shoes have gone up again. And now the shoe dealers announce another increase for next fall. Let us, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, practise going barefoot. 'd while the weather is still warm.

One of the most serious hamperings of the apple export trade that ever occurred has just been declared in the announcement that hereafter the freight to the English market must be prepaid at the rate of $3 a barrel. This not only shuts out the small shipper, but creates a condition hitherto unprecedented. The difference between such a rate and one of about 65 cents a barrel payable on delivery, which used to prevail, can be readily appreciated. The decision ought to be a powerful incentive for Nova Scotia apple growers to unite in chartering vessels for their own exports.

We Should Boycott Them.

The profiteers are quite content to let people protest against the high cost of living. Protests are usually directed towards a government, and well, in this country, it is not of much use to protest to governments. Petitions and other woody forms of protest are not direct enough. They do not land on the big fellow's jaw. They scarcely send a breeze towards his face.

If the housewife wants to score a knockout on Mr. High Price, there is one way of hitting all together and the boycott is the weapon. When articles are too expensive, just quit buying them and keep at it until the price tumbles. The profiteer and his friends will tell you that this is not an effective weapon. Prices do tumble. That is what they are afraid of. They tumble a long way, somebody gets hurt in the process, and it is not the consumer. It is the hoarder, the cold storage baron, the monopolist and profiteer.

Worse still for the people's enemy and better still for the family, prices stay down after a tumble for a long time. The tumble gives the public a chance to see just how outrageous prices were and how easy it is for the big fellow to stay in business, making a living and even a profit, without rushing the price up again. That's how it happened with butter and eggs in Chicago, and that's how it will happen in any city or town in Canada, if the women just go to it.

Summer Complaints Kill Little Ones.

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little one Baby's Own Tablets or in a few hours he may be beyond aid. These Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally to the well child and will promptly relieve these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine as good and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Former Gaspereau Lady Died.

Mrs. Frederick W. Parmenter, who died recently at Attleboro, Mass., was formerly Mary Thompson, a native of Gaspereau. Mrs. Parmenter was a woman of sterling character. Very early in life she united with the Baptist church in her home village. Going to Attleboro shortly after she has ever since been a consistent Christian worker, and lived a life of service, duty and devotion to high and noble ideals. A teacher in the Sabbath school for thirty-one years she taught children the old, old story.

As active member of the W.C.T.U., at one time president of the home department of the Sabbath school in which she worked with untiring zeal, ever obeying the words, "Whatever thy hand findeth to do do with all thy might."

Besides a husband she leaves one sister, Mrs. J. M. Harte, of Tanton, Mass., and one brother, Mr. S. N. Thompson, of Mansfield, Mass.

White Rock News.

Mr. Ralph Ellis, Black River, a recently returned soldier, has purchased the property of the late John W. Coburn, White Rock. A small store was part of the property and residents of the place are pleased to know that Mr. Ellis will conduct business there. Mr. Ellis has had a good experience in the meat and grocery business, being a clerk in the store of Heineger Bros., Wolfville, before he enlisted for overseas service. Mr. J. W. Coburn, an old resident of White Rock, died this spring and the widow sold the property to Mr. Ellis, and has gone to Queens county to reside.

Mr. Jacob W. Pick, White Rock, is now owner of a five-passenger Ford automobile, one of the later models. Mr. Pick will no doubt find the Ford of use to him in connection with the work of his mill at White Rock where he and men are doing a good business.

Memorial Hospital.

On Wednesday evening, July 16th, a meeting was held at the Court House, Kentville, to consider further about the Memorial Hospital for Kings county. A good number were in attendance from Wolfville and Berwick but the representation from other parts of the county was small. Among those from Wolfville were Mr. W. H. Chase, Dr. G. H. DeWitt, Dr. Avery deWitt, Dr. M. R. Elliott, Rev. G. B. Catten, D. D., and Rev. H. T. DeWolf, D. D.

Mr. W. H. Chase, chairman of the memorial executive, presided and first called upon Dr. John Stewart, of Halifax. In a brief address he laid emphasis on the duty of providing a hospital for the benefit of the people of the county in order to increase the number of successful treatments. In a hospital the number of cures were often 90 per cent greater than in the homes. To some, he said, a hospital connoted surgical treatment only, but this hospital would likely be used for medical and obstetrical cases even more than for surgical cases. In a hospital there would be given expert treatment such as the general practitioner had not time to give. There would be found the best of scientific treatment available to all classes at a minimum of expense. It is your duty as Christian citizens to see that such a hospital is provided for the benefit of your fellow men.

Dr. MacDougall, of Halifax, then dealt with the problem in detail, giving statistics as to the cost of maintenance per day, per patient, in the hospitals at Yarmouth, Amherst, Glace Bay, Sydney, Sydney Mines, Antigonish, Truro, Windsor and New Glasgow. The cost ranged from $1.05 to $2.45. The difference is due to the fact that some of the hospitals maintain nurses' training schools and some do not. In Amherst and other industrial centres, employees of certain companies paid in 25 cents a month to the hospital. This guaranteed them in case of sickness the best hospital treatment, free of charge, up to twenty weeks. He laid great stress on the fact that in Amherst the women had given much assistance. The first year they furnished the operating room at the cost of about $1,000. Each succeeding year they have contributed $1,000 or more to the maintenance. "We must," he said, "win the sympathy of the women in this movement. The original capital was met by long term bonds. The interest on these was felt by no one to be a burden."

Dr. DeWolf, of Wolfville, moved a vote of thanks to the two busy doctors, who had, at such a great personal sacrifice, given their time and aid to this object.

Dr. Moore, Kentville, expressing hearty approval of this movement, seconded the motion.

Dr. McNally, of Berwick, spoke of the enthusiasm of the people of Western Kings, stating that they had held one meeting among themselves to discuss the subject.

Councillor Nicholls, of Berwick, stated that great interest was being shown in Western Kings and that some had talked of a separate hospital for that part of the county.

Rev. Raymond then spoke of the desire of the people for a separate hospital in Western Kings, saying that if two hospitals were erected, probably more generously would be manifested.

Dr. Catten said that he thought one good hospital would be more desirable than two second rate hospitals.

Dr. Elliott, of Wolfville, reported on the attitude of the county councillors in the matter stating that they were quite in sympathy with the project. He also mentioned the advantage, as to overhead costs and the obtaining of better service in one hospital rather than two.

Arrangements were then made for more publicity and prominence to be given to the movement.

Unightly Billboards.

Advertising, when properly directed is no doubt a means of creating additional business for the advertiser. How the advertiser spends his appropriation—from the standpoint of securing results—is his own concern. The medium by which he reaches the public, however, concerns the public, and the people are awakening to the fact.

Appearance counts. For this reason and for no other, all modern daily newspapers, notwithstanding that the greater proportion of their revenue comes from advertising, have excluded display advertising from their front pages.

When a private industry, so dependent upon its advertisers, can take a stand on behalf of appearances, how much more important is it that our public streets, the front pages of our city, should be protected.

The more public a situation is, the more eagerly is it seized upon for the erection of a billboard, and this regardless of the fact that it constitutes a deteriorating influence upon surrounding property. In many cases it is a hiding place for a 'dump' and often creates a great menace of a mean prospect.

Cities are spending enormous sums in the construction of good roads and sidewalks; merchants and residents, largely for the sake of appearances, improve their property fronting on them; but the eyes of the travelling public may not be offended. Yet billboards and signs are permitted without control as to location.

It is high time our municipal authorities recognized their duty towards public aesthetics, and regulated the erection of signs and billboards.—J. D.

Nova Scotians And The Thrift Campaign.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF SAVING IN SMALL AMOUNTS AND THE MEANS OF MAKING THIS EFFECTIVE BY WAR STAMPS PLAN.

Nova Scotia has done well in the National Thrift Campaign which has been in operation for more than six months, and the plan for thus mobilizing our war savings has justified the work and energy put forth to make it a success. It is beneficial to the people who through it are enabled to practise the virtue of thrift and at the same time is helpful to the country which must have the use of borrowed capital in this period of the country's reconstruction and besides there is the great advantage of borrowing at home and not abroad. The interest payments remain with ourselves. There is no doubt of the great advantage to the citizen of Nova Scotia, that he should thus learn to save the small amounts systematically and thus witness the rolling up of a great aggregate with advantage individually to himself and collectively to the nation as a whole.

This province has done well in the war savings and thrift campaign. Our people have saved an amount which places the province fourth in the Division and it may yet be higher. The children in the schools of Nova Scotia have done particularly well in the thrift campaign. A school in Colchester, for instance, has the honor of outstripping all its rivals in the amount its pupils saved per capita during the past six months. All the schools of the province should be engaged in this good work. There is a pleasure in seeing one's savings grow and the satisfaction is increased when it is remembered that he or she who saves is not only doing something for their own personal benefit but is at the same time helping in a great national work and doing something to make Nova Scotia and the whole Dominion a better place to live in—a country where our people shall become more prosperous, more happy, and more independent.

A Thrift Stamp costs 25 cents. Sixteen of them purchases a $4.00 War Savings Stamp which in the year 1921 becomes worth $5.00. Ten of these stamps with a face value of $4.00 but $5.00, on the first of January 1924. A good return on your investment.

Mr. McKeen, of Halifax, is the Chairman of the National War Savings Committee, Nova Scotia, and F. N. Dewar, is the Secretary. Write to either of these gentlemen and you will at once receive literature and all the information you require.

Women's Christian Temperance Union
founded in 1852, and sacred to the memory of Charles Lamb, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Leigh Hunt, and many other distinguished men, was built on the cramped site of an ancient monastery. The new school at West Horsham occupies one of the finest sites in Sussex. Picture vast spacious buildings, grouped at intervals round the wind-swept playgrounds, a large truck-shop, and plenty of sunlight and air; then go to Newgate street, and you will realize how the Blue Coats have prospered. Thus did the retiring headmaster, recently, the principal summary of the famous Blue Coat School. It is all true, of course. No one who travels down, and northward, from London, and looks out of the window as the train rushes through West Horsham, and takes note of the glorious playing fields of the new Christ's Hospital can fail to agree with Dr. Horsham's account of the boys have, indeed, prospered. And yet, although the new Christ's Hospital has been "adapted" to other uses, the great story of Christ's Hospital still centres round Newgate street. It does so, perhaps, the more perfectly because the story of its 250 years in Newgate street is a closed book. The famous buildings, the magnificent site, the memories of Coleridge's memories, the Hall, the Counting House, the Mathematical school have all been "adapted" to other uses. They have been swept away, and so are preserved in history as a matter of fact, Christ's Hospital was ever used to changes. The authorities never hesitated to pull down a building and put up another in its place, if the advantage of doing so was obvious. Thus the famous Erasmus Smith School, associated so vividly with Lamb, Coleridge, and Hunt, was pulled down in 1759, and another building erected at the expense of another Smith, John by name. So, as one writer justly remarks, it was in the Erasmus and not John's building that Coleridge "enjoyed the inestimable advantage of a very sensible though not a very famous master, the Rev. James Bowyer"; there Charles Lamb earned nothing, because his master, Matthew Felde, "was engaged in gay parties, or with his country box at some Episcopal levee, when he should have been attending on us," and there Leigh Hunt's "grammar seemed always to open at the same place." Felde "happily hearing his name as if it were a lily, and hearing our eternal Dominions and As in possession with an air of ineffable endurance."

Our Own M. P.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.
We women of British Columbia follow the career of Mrs. Ralph Smith M.L.A., with special interest, and we were delighted with her fine speech in the House the other day. Our Vancouver member advocated a number of reforms, and amongst other things Mrs. Smith declared that she desired to see a full investigation of the prohibition administration, no matter whose head might fall in the basket. She asked for the early appointment of a superintendent of neglected children, and stated that she was disappointed because nothing had been done to bring in Mothers' Pensions. The provincial inspection of meat and state health insurance. Mrs. Smith commented also upon the wisdom of co-operation between the agriculture and educational departments in order to provide some system of nursing in rural districts, particularly in expectant mothers. Congratulating the Government upon the good work being accomplished by the University of British Columbia, Mrs. Smith went on to say that something definite could be done for the returned soldiers, if a veteran's delegation and two provincial cabinet ministers went to Ottawa to inquire of the Federal authorities the reason of their delay in this matter.

The many things that a woman may accomplish, is set forth in a very able article in the Western Women's Weekly, by Mrs. J. L. Solloway, the president of the Mission City W.C.T.U. To establish travelling libraries and so bring reading within the reach of all; help save the forest from denudation; clean up her own backyard; make it a thing of beauty that will be an inspiration to her neighbors; see that the health of her fellow-citizens is cared for by securing the appointment of a public nurse whose duty is the care and instruction of the poor; secure lighted streets at night and thereby prevent crime; insist upon paved sidewalks, demand clean streets and get them; help to prevent the injustice of child labor; do away with window boxes; prevent telephone and window companies from backing off and mutilating the branches of trees; prevent loss of life by seeing that all wires be underground; arouse public interest in public welfare; keep her garbage can clean and covered; and insist upon her neighbors doing the same; regulate the public care of the aged, sick, insane and paupers, so that only sane, wholesome and humane treatment of these dependents is possible; make the parks, art galleries and museums accessible to all; see that every citizen can be a clean one through the establishment of public baths; establish night schools; open schools for defective children; visit the tenement house district with the inspector, her eyes

Lake Louise and the Rockies

Lake Louise.
To the ancients all roads led to Rome, and it was the ambition of young and old to behold the Eternal City and its wonders. Now however, every Canadian to behold the "Eternal Snows," and as the Applan way led to Rome, so the great iron road, the Canadian Pacific Railway, leads to the Rocky Mountains. Canadians have a wide field to pick and choose from in the matter of places to spend holidays, but the West has no attraction as its own.
Lake Louise is one of the many beautiful spots in the Rocky Mountains, and a trip West is not considered complete without a stop-off there. Lake Louise is one of the Lakes in the Clods (the others being Lake Agnes and Mirror Lake) and at one time its existence was only known to the Indians. Now however, thanks to the enterprise of the C.P.R., it is visited by thousands of tourists yearly, the railway passing through at this point, and a palatial hotel, the Chateau, having been erected here, where the most affording simple accommodation.
Stepping off the train at Lagopus the tourist boards an electric car, which runs up the gradient to the lake, the trip only occupying twenty minutes. The drive is a most delightful one, the car being open on both sides, affords an uninterrupted view of the wonderful scenery with the minimum of exertion. The Bow River is crossed by a pretty little bridge, and in the early morning sunshine, the white spray like oval fires, boiling furiously in eddies as the river forces its way down the valley.
Arriving at Lake Louise one feels transported into another atmosphere, if not to another world, feelings of wonder, awe, and admiration grip the mind, compelling a reverential silence. The lake itself is small, but a perfect gem, lying at the base of the Victoria Glacier from which it is fed, its waters being pure turquoise in colour, that deep turquoise so difficult to describe. Behind the lake Mt. LeRoy towers like a giant to the heavens, reaching an altitude of over 10,000 feet—one huge mass of dazzling snow and ice, resembling the Matterhorn in Victoria's ruggedness, and unsurpassed for grandeur.
The surrounding country suggests an Alpine valley. Ranges of snow-capped mountains stretch as far as the eye can reach, while the air is filled with the scent of the pine. Snows of brilliant colour bloom everywhere.
Facilities can be obtained at the Chateau to enjoy parties going to Mirror Lake and the Valley of the Ten Peaks by automobile or earline. Motor cars can also be hired to take tourists to Lake Agnes and Mirror Lake.
On the way to Moraine Lake a splendid view of Mt. Temple is obtained, and the scenery is of an altitude of 11,000 feet. Its snow-capped peaks, of a fine, cold mountain stretch as far as the eye can reach, while the air is filled with the scent of the pine.

Mr. Herbert Hoover estimates, according to The Farmer's Sun, June 23d, that Europe, apart from Russia, will need to import 800,000,000 bushels of wheat and rye this year. Russia, once a large exporter, will certainly not be an exporter in 1919. With India importing instead of exporting, it looks as if all of Europe's bread imports will have to be supplied by the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia. It is just possible that the American guaranteed minimum price of $2.00 in the farm for wheat, may be exceeded after all.

The Ten-Thirty Call

By PERCY WILSON

Snapper was looking over the yardmaster's shoulder when the operator handed the letter the order for an extra. Snapper was not unusual with him on a slight provocation, the yardmaster immediately "went off the track." "Where's that call?" he demanded. "What's become of that head?" Where is—Oh! as he turned his head and came afool of Snapper's smirking countenance, "here you are!"

"Yes, here I am!" mocked Snapper. "Go on, go on—say what you were going to. Don't mind me! Where did you expect to find me—in your lap?" The call-boy was agitated. "What's the earliest you can call this extra for?" was the brisk query. "Ten-thirty!"

With an exasperating affection of indifference, Snapper let his eyes wander to the clock, gaped a minute over the crew-board, and gradually came around to the book. "I reckon," he answered, then, with sudden interest: "Who's to shovel smoke?" "Oh, you take notice, do you? Now, that's what I want to impress on you, Listen."

"I'm saying a hand to his ear," quoted Snapper from a favorite author, and sitting across to the speech, "he gave close heed to the fabled disclosure." "Go on!"

The yardmaster was too accustomed to these burlesques to honor them with any attention. "Go for Burnside," he directed.

"I know that. Pay attention. He was to be off until midnight, unless we should need him in some emergency this morning; and this is the emergency." He promised to stay at home until nine o'clock, and not to leave before ten. He glanced at the clock. "It's only eight-fifty-eight now. You ought to find him easily," winking to the operator.

"Sure," returned Snapper. "If I hadn't beat one of my wings! What was it the coal-heaver wanted off for, anyway?"

"To rob a bank, maybe. Don't bother me; but go get him." "Put his name down," said Snapper in disgust. "I'll get him."

The yardmaster entered the name and handed the call-book over. "Now, hustle," he directed.

She, to his inquiry she replied that Mr. Burnside had been there that morning, but had gone into town. Was he wanted?
"Oh, no, he wasn't wanted. Snapper had merely noted that he had been looking poorly of late, and stopped to inquire about his health. He sprang to the corner just in time to see the freeman turn to the right a block ahead. On an easy trot the call-boy followed after. Overlooking a brakeman, Snapper asked if he had seen Burnside."
"Burnside?" said the man. "Yes; just passed here with throttle wide open and both pops up. Hit the curve and shot up the first alley—plop!—and he was going south. Why, I'll bet he was halfway up the side of that house when he made the turn, and I reckon you'll find his footmarks on the wall."
"He called to me to tell you to hurry up, kid," he said with a grin; "and you want to move lively, or he'll lose you."
Snapper knew this was all gammon. He glanced at his watch. It was almost nine-thirty.

"I'll look for those footmarks some other time," he remarked dryly; "I'm in a hurry now," and he started off afresh at a jog trot in the direction that had been indicated.

"There's that long-legged kid again!" ejaculated Burnside. "If he comes back here, so he runs again, I'll slip out the front door and join you on the ear somewhere. If he comes to the front, keep him till I can get to the other side of the run; and after he's gone, I'll come around by the street."

"Snapper's schedule took him to the front door. There was no answer to his first ring, so he rang again; and shortly Miss Carnigan answered. "Oh! it's you, is it?" was her tart greeting. "What do you want now? It's a pity you couldn't have come around to the kitchen door."
"That's the fault of me tender heart, Kiddy," returned the unabashed Snapper. "I want Jimmy Burnside, and I couldn't bear to break it to him suddenly. You tell him, will you?" "Didn't I tell you he had left here?"

"Aw, quit it, Kiddy! Ain't he going on the picnic with you?" "Well," was the admission, "he came back after you left, but he's gone again. You might find him at his boarding house."
Snapper struggled to keep a straight face.

"I've been there once," he returned; "and the book of rules says—he held the book close to his nose and sniffed over some of the pages—"It says here: 'Rule 100—in case of any doubt or uncertainty, see for your self.' I've got to do it, Kiddy," and he pushed into the house.

"Oh, very well," returned the young lady, and followed through to where her mother and a younger sister were finishing the packing of the picnic baskets in the kitchen. "Now! are you satisfied?"
Snapper made no reply. Something of more immediate interest absorbed all his faculties, for his eyes had lighted on the top layer in one of the baskets. "Are there some of your own pies, Mrs. Carnigan?" he inquired in a waned tone.

"Sure," was the answer. "Whose were they?"
"But some that you baked yourself?" he persisted with an air of strong disbelief.
"Of course!"
"Mrs. Carnigan"—he wanted a calm, judicial answer to this question—your pies as good as they used to be?" "Well, I never tried Mrs. Carnigan's, flinging up her hands. "If you ain't the blindest, Snapper, you're not a beauty. He was still growing; his joints were too loose, his feet too big, his clothes too small; yet when he opened his mouth to take in the piece of pie that was immediately cut for him, expanding into his freckles ran together, and his whole countenance resembled nothing so much as a wedge disappearing through a large hole in the wall of a house. At the moment a sight that gave true joy to Mrs. Carnigan's domestic heart.

"That certainly was good," he murmured in heartfelt commendation as he swallowed the last of it. "I'm in luck. Miss Carnigan's anxious eyes gave her a sudden glimpse start. "See, Kiddy!" she exclaimed. "Someone's fell in the creek."
Stopping at the creek merely long enough to pull the plank out of the water and set it roughly in place, he hastened to the boarding house and went softly up to the freeman's room. He unlocked the door, and found Burnside muttering objections inside and thrusting wet clothes about.

In this dilemma the pie furnished him a hint, for, as it gave a cosy corner of his anatomy in which to dispose itself comfortably, it gave him a gentle internal tweak. In an instant he had doubled up as though taken with a violent cramp, and falling against the door with a horrible groan, seized the knob.
The door was locked, but as he sank down to the floor he kept up a piteous wailing. In another moment the door opened and he fell half inside.
"You—" began the freeman, then lost speech.
"What's the matter with you, Snapper?" thrusting it at him. "And he quick to follow the lead of it. "I can't be footed all my days on you."
Burnside mechanically signed. "I hated to get you up, Jimmy," said Snapper as he took back the book. "I—"

A WOOL-SELLER KNOWS A WOOL-BUYER
You cannot pull the wool over the eyes of the modern housewife. She knows or soon finds out the quality of what she buys. In former times many fraudulent articles were advertised in the belief that people liked to be fooled. Nowadays, to make advertising pay, there must be repeat sales and established confidence. That means the article advertised must be worth the price asked.
