CHAPTER IX.

"A false note! a false note!" he cried. "They had better leave me alone, had they not, Marie? Here, give this back to my devoted mother-in-law, and tell her to leave it upon another man's table. I never plucked those flowers, never wrote those lines on that glorious night in June, 18—"

I took the paper from him and he left the room without another word. The battle was over: I could do no more. He knew all now! The last pebble had been removed from the widow's path! How quietly, how lightly he had taken it—this knowledge that I fancied would have robbed him almost of reason! A swift rush of blood from his face, an impetuous movement of his hand, a cynical laugh, and—and that was all! What did it mean? Had I been mistaken all along—was I dreaming the whole scene? Half dazed I reached the door and came face to face with Mrs. Massey, who seemed to be much startled at seeing me, and rather unnecessarily, I thought, explained the cause of her presence there. She was looking for the clasp of her chain, which she had dropped on her way to bed, she told me.

"You—you were in the study, were you not, Miss Bernard? I thought you had gone to bed quite early."

"No, I did not. I was in the school-room until Sir Richard called me to his study to give me directions about his letters."

"Oh, I see! You don't look well, Miss Bernard. Does your head ache? Can I do anything for you?"

"Nothing, thank you. I am quite well."

Olivia Massey did not leave in triumph the next day after all, for Sir Richard was thrown heavily from his horse while out hunting in the morning, was pronounced by the doctor to be suffering from a rather severe strain in the side, and advised to lay up for a week or ten days, during which time I saw but very little of him, so surrounded was he by his devoted nurses, who never left his

The Kidneys Wear Out

But in advanced years you can keep these organs healthy by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

An old age comes on most people either more or less from derangement of the kidneys. With some there are years of pains and aches, with others Bright's disease sets in and the end comes quickly. Fortunately many have learned about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and are enabled by their use to keep the kidneys healthy and active.

Mr. Richard A. Preston, Osborne, Lambton County, Ont., says: "Seventeen years ago I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills when my back was so bad that to stoop or rise was torture to me. The kidneys were in bad condition, but these pills entirely freed me of back pains. I have used them ever since, whenever the kidneys would get out of order, and now, at eighty years, am well and hearty, thank to this grand medicine."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Toronto.

We had only got so far as the foot of the terrace, when Mrs. Johnson's voice recalled us imperatively.

"Miss Bernard, come back—come back! Sir Richard wants you and the children in the drawing-room at once!"

"We can go by the next train," I whispered to the boy, who nodded a glad assent—he was fond of riding in trains; and then, after taking off our things, we all three entered the drawing-room.

The children, pleased with the novelty of their father's position, rushed at once to his side, and began to pour questions upon him. I took my seat in the background without a word, and he did not even glance up to see if I were present!

His two guests were with him, and Mrs. Seymour, profiting by her rival's enforced absence, had declared the tumbler of egg-flip just brought in to be unfit for consumption, and had ordered her daughter, who, it seems, was an excellent cook, to mix a fresh one on the spot.

I sat quietly by, darning a rent in Bijou's jersey, while Mrs. Massey, her sleeves pushed slightly off the plump, white wrists, beat up, whisked, daintily sipped the pleasant dose, then playfully urged her patient to try and drink it off quickly before Mrs. Johnson found her out and annihilated her.

A request which, after a slight interlude of gallant banter, he complied with, and all this without once glancing at me, without even wishing me good-day, though I had not seen him for two days.

My poor hands trembled so that I could scarcely ply my needle, the tears gathered in my eyes, and even fell unheeded upon the wool. Oh, after all we had gone through together, after the secret he shared alone with me, after those terrible watches by her death-bed, the battle I had fought—poor suicidal fool—fought so fiercely on his behalf, to keep from him the knowledge of that bitter wrong, that shameful pain, which I thought would have blighted his whole life, broken his proud, tender heart—after all that to forget my very existence, to forget even the ordinary courtesies of life in the infatuation of that woman's presence!

"Pappy, how soon will you be well?" asked Birdie, who, perched at the head of his sofa, was finishing a bunch of grapes off his plate. "You're very nice when you're ill, pappy dear; not a bit cross and greedy and nasty, like Bijou was in France. Miss Bernard and I wouldn't mind nursin' you a bit, we wouldn't."

"Let Miss Bernard speak for herself, Birdie."

Then he knew I was in the room!

"Oh, Miss Bernard wouldn't mind nursing you, like she did poor darling mamma and Bijou, I know; only she said there were plenty of other people to do that, and she had our lessons to look after," pursued Birdie, emphatically; and granny and Cousin Livy and Mrs. Seymour were there to do everything for you. And Birchett—that's Mrs. Seymour's maid—said that if there ever was a woman who ought to know everything about nursing, that woman was Cousin Livy, for that she had nursed poor years and years the cross old man that ever was—didn't you, Cousin Livy?—and never turned on him couch unguarded for a moment.

His mother-in-law gave up her numerous household engagements, even sacrificed her afternoon carriage exercise, spent the whole day in his society, knitting a jersey for her grandson, only leaving the room for a few moments at a time to return laden with some delicacy which she forced upon him with simply overwhelming persistence. Mrs. Massey, who had discovered a long, low table that exactly fitted the side of his couch, devoted herself entirely to his amusement and mental relaxation; read to him, played backgammon, dominoes and bique, with the same unvarying cheerfulness and unflagging interest she had maintained throughout that terrible ten years' apprenticeship at her old husband's bedside; and her mother, who had shaken off all rheumatic symptoms at the sight of her best's prostration, was well enough the second day to go up to London by herself and settle in one afternoon the whole of the tiresome legal complications.

CHAPTER X.

It was three days since I had spoken to him, three days since he had asked to see either me or his children. I might have been dead, I might have left his home forever, and he would have been none the wiser. Well, I thought, if I were dead, if I were gone—what would it matter to him? He would get over the calamity, I suppose, without even such a slight display of emotion as I had witnessed in his study that night.

"Leaves may fade and flowers may wither,
Clouds o'erspread the summer sky,
Joy and weep depart forever,
But true love can never die."

Oh, what a farce life is—what a comedy human love! How true the dismal story that was dimmed into my childish ears—Vanity of vanities all is but vanity! Only beyond, on the shore that Jessie's feet had reached, were peace and rest.

I made an effort to leave. I had made the effort before, it was true; but now things were different. I knew that in a very short time I should have to go and not of my own free will. When Olivia was his wife I should get my conge, for she did not like me—she distrusted me; she saw, perhaps, a faint glow of the jealous fire that filled my eyes when they rested upon her sleek, fair face, as I knew I should have to go when she was his wife.

I packed up a few of my things; I wrote him a little note—a somewhat high-flown, bitter fare-well note, like the young ladies in novels write when they run away—and laid it upon his desk between the pages of a book of which he was fond, and which we had sometimes read together in the evenings when Mrs. Johnson slept. Then I kissed his daughter, and turned to Bijou. The boy opened his arms wide to me, and I found I could not say good-bye to him, though I could to his father. I found I must take him with me, as his mother had wished. So I put on his warmest clothing, and we walked out of the hall-door hand in hand. I wondered if Jessie could see us.

Insure Against Serious Colds

Of the many forms of insurance probably that which protects you against the serious results of colds is the most valuable at this time of year when so many are becoming the victims of the grippe and pneumonia.

By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can keep the cough loose, prevent further development of the cold and cure it up in two or three days, whereas the usual lifetime of a cold is three or four weeks, to say nothing of the serious results so frequently the outcome.

Mothers insure their children against croup by the use of this great, family medicine, for if given frequently in small doses it prevents the dreadful choking spasms and soon effects a thorough cure. Whooping cough, bronchitis, asthma, croup and severe chest colds are quickly brought under control by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

DRY SACK Sherry

From Spain's richest Wine Province. Matured in wood for over fifteen years—most stimulating and nourishing of all the products of the Grape.

In bottles only—of all good dealers.

D. O. ROBLIN, (Canadian Agent), JOHN JACKSON, Resident Agent.

once, or shook him, or pinched him, as Birchett says she felt inclined to do forty times a day.

"Hush, hush!" I whispered, warningly, as the ladies fidgeted nervously, and Mrs. Johnson, who had entered a moment before, laid her hand, with a half suppressed giggle, upon the child's shoulder; "you must not talk so much Birdie, or mind what servants say."

"But pappy wants me to talk to him, Miss Bernard, that's why he sent for me; and he likes what I say, for he is laughing away in the cushions like anything—he is!" And Birchett did say all that; and she said too yesterday, when I went out with her and Jane, that Cousin Livy used to sit with the old man just as she is sitting with you, pappy, now, and play games with him; and make him lovely things to eat, and sing to him, and make jokes, and tell him stories, all day; so that if he hadn't got out of his bed that night and heard her talking to the young German officer in the drawing-room balcony, he'd have left her every penny of his fortune—his would, Birchett said!

It was of no use, she would not be suppressed, and a dead silence followed the climax. Sir Richard's voice, quite calm and grave, was the first to break the stillness, after poor Mrs. Massey, with a half-stifled sob, had hurried from the room.

"Birdie, my child, Miss Bernard is quite right. It does not amuse me to hear the idle, groundless gossip of servants, which you are much too fond of listening to and repeating. For the future you must remain entirely in the schoolroom with your brother and Miss Bernard, who, I regret to say, has several times lately complained to me of your partiality for the servants' hall. Now, be a good child, and repeat that first-verse hymn I have been hearing so much about."

Miss Birdie, but little impressed by the parental reproof, folded her hands and began to repeat the hymn in a labored, whining voice, when the noise of advancing wheels on the gravel made her dart to the window.

"A cab, pappy, with luggage—such a funny luggage—only one trunk and ever so many handboxes. I wonder who it can be, pappy? And look, such a queer old lady in a pink bonnet with blue strings, bowing and kissing her hand from the window; and she has red mittens instead of gloves! Such a queer-queer—"

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Johnson, almost falling back from the window. "If it's not my sister-in-law, Boudicca Johnson! Well! I never!" The—the idea of her following me here!

"Your sister-in-law?" repeated Sir Richard.

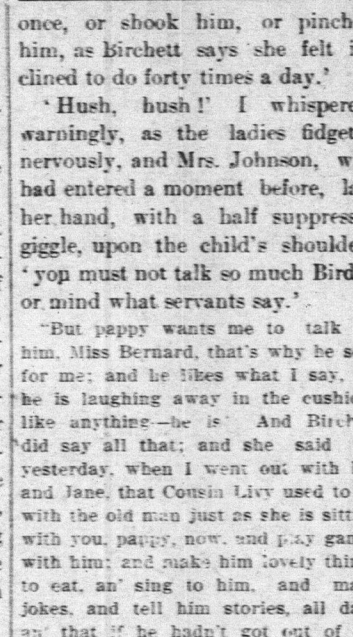

"Yes, yes; my poor dear husband's eldest sister, Boudy," she explained, moving rather furtively about the room. "She—she always comes, you know, to spend a fortnight with me in the spring; and I presume, not finding me at Brighton as usual, she must have got my address from some of the neighbors and followed me on here. A most extraordinary thing for her to do—most extraordinary!"

BOVRIL IS ALL BEEF.

Questions we are often asked.

Q.—What is the sediment at the bottom of a cup of Bovril?
A.—That is a valuable portion of the nourishment, and should never be left.
Q.—Are you serious when you say that Bovril is more nourishing than ordinary Meat Extract or Home-made Beef Tea?
A.—Certainly! and we have for years offered large rewards to anyone who can prove the contrary.
Q.—But can you prove your statement?
A.—Yes—from the pen of Baron Liebig himself, who told the world that the man who managed to get the nourishing, as well as the stimulating properties of Beef in a liquid form, would produce something far better than Liebig's Extract, and would be a public benefactor.
Q.—And you have done this?
A.—Yes. By a special process, the entire nutritious constituents of prime ox beef are separately treated, pulverized and added to specially-prepared Meat Extract, and that is Bovril.

Don't experiment with artificial imitations of dubious quality (which are dear at any price) when such a tried and proven nutritious food-beverage "made in England" is within your reach.

really is.

The investigator suggested that the husband should take his wife into his confidence on this subject. I have a further suggestion—and that is that he also give his children some idea of the family income and outgo.

I happened to hear some children the other day accusing their father of extravagance, because he did not seem to be able to keep out of debt. I am pretty sure those children did not know the father's income. I am very sure they did not have any idea what it cost to keep up the establishment of which they were a part. Now, if these young people had been taken into the father's confidence, admitted to the family financial council, made to understand more about what it costs to live, I feel sure that they would not only have known better than to make such cruel, unjust criticisms, but would have been willing to help their father keep expenses down.

In his father's absence, John, the fifteen-year-old son of a certain family, tends the furnace. Often he puts on more coal than is necessary, or forgets to close the draughts, thus wasting a great deal of fuel. He is sometimes scolded for this, but he knows that somehow or other father will buy more coal when this is gone, and the scoldings roll off of him as water from a duck's back, or rebukes from a fifteen-year-old boy's back always do. Now, if John were taken into the family council, shown just how much coal father has to buy in a winter and how much it costs, made to realize the relation of more coal to his father's salary, and to the possibility of a new suit for himself or a new hat for mother, I maintain that that would have more effect upon him, and make him more anxious to run the furnace economically, than many scoldings. It would arouse his pride and a sense of responsibility, and, believe me, these are stronger motives, even in a fifteen-year old boy, than many of us realize.

In like manner, if his sister Jane, who is eighteen, fond of fun, and hospitably eager to entertain continually, should be introduced to the weekly grocery and provision bills, and made to understand that fancy cakes and good meats and cream and grapefruit and all the good things she wants for her guests, may not be procured merely by lifting the receiver off the telephone, and then eaten and forgotten, but have an ugly way of appearing on the weekly bills and swelling them to painful proportions, she, too, might be a little more thoughtful.

Many of the children of to-day have absolutely no idea of the limits of the buying power of money, until they begin to earn it. It seems to me that we cannot better advance their education to develop their sense of responsibility and at the same time enlist their co-operation in the difficult task of making a limited income cover unlimited desires, than by taking them into the family confidence, showing them the family budget and frankly asking them to help us in this matter.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trading with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

Household Notes.

Don't add the flavoring to soft custard until the custard is cold. A slice of lemon stewed with prunes gives a most delightful flavor.

If meat for soup is cut into small pieces, more nutriment will be obtained.

When frying mush dip the slices first in white of egg. This makes them crisp.

To peel tomatoes without scalding, rub them backward with the blunt edge of a knife.

In selecting beef, the pieces which are well mottled with fat will be found the richest and juiciest.

For the roast of cold lamb course, serve an egg salad, sprinkled with minced mint leaves.

Clean the glass of pictures with whitening, as water is apt in time to mar the painting beneath.

When leather armchairs look shabby, they should be wiped off with a soft cloth, dipped in olive oil.

Wooden breadboards are kept in better condition by rubbing them with sand than by simply using soap.

In making bread, do not fill the pans over half full. Bread should rise to twice its size before baking.

Though steak should be chopped and mixed with diced potatoes, and then baked. Grated cheese over this dish improves the flavor.

Do not destroy any net from old curtains. Cut into squares of desired size and stitch together, and they will make excellent wash cloths.

A saucer of baked beans can be heated with catsup in a pan, and a spoonful on toasted crackers serves nicely for the noonday luncheon.

Be careful never to use too much butter in cake. Use a scant amount rather than what the rule calls for, and it will save many a poor cake.

When next frying oysters, dip them first in mayonnaise, and then in crumbs before immersing in the deep fat. They will be found delicious.

Don't handle the dough any more than necessary when making biscuits, doughnuts or cookies. The more you handle it the tougher it will become.

A Romantic Marriage.

The following authenticated incident occurred in P. E. Island over 100 years ago. It illustrates the primitive simplicity of the manners and habits of the early settlers of this Province:

On a cold winter night a gentleman hitched his team at the gate of another man and went in to warm himself before crossing the Bay, a distance of 9 miles. The team consisted of a yoke of oxen and sled and the animals were put up and fed.

The driver was supplied with a good stiff glass of Scotch whiskey. Under the exhilarating influence of the draught he became very communicative and as a great secret told his host he was on his way to be married.

After another drink or two the prospective groom was persuaded to lie down and rest and start early in the morning. He accepted of the invitation. No sooner had he gone to sleep when his host, who had matrimonial designs on the same lady, set off on the same journey, reached the home of the intended, proposed marriage and was accepted and the ceremony was performed. Shortly after the other person put in an appearance and was sorely grieved that his friend had stolen a march upon him. The bride's sister came along with a milk pail in hand, and talking in the situation said, "Why mon, what's the use of greetin', ain't I just as good as my sister? Will you ha' me?" The bargain was made and the minister got another fee.

The descendants of the two have filled honorable positions both in church and state in P. E. Island. They were also intelligent and highly respected. One of their descendants became an honored minister in Canada, two of them were successful missionaries in the foreign field, and two of them members of Parliament.—Windsor Tribune.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

"There's no good in printers' ink," with emphasis says Jabez Dink. "I tried that graft for many years: it brought me bitterness and tears. Last summer I blew scads in droves announcing low priced heating stoves; such bargains as I offered then were never known by mortal men, and not a customer arose—I didn't sell a doggone stove! This winter I have tried once more to bring the people to my store; I advertised some useful wares—porch furniture and garden chairs, and didn't sell enough to pay the ad expenses for a day! To one great truth I'll put you wise—it doesn't pay to advertise!" But Gaffer Spink across the street, says advertising can't be beat. "I think of what the people need, and then write ads that they will read," says Gaffer Spink, who gets the dough, while rivals wring their hands in woe. "I don't cry 'fans!' when winter's nigh, or Christmas trees in mid-July!"

To meet the demands of our rapidly increasing business we are compelled to make extensive alterations to our store. To enable us to do this without inconveniencing our customers, we have decided to close our Store for 14 days.

When we have completed these alterations our Store will be second to none in the city. This will enable us to stock a larger range of Up-To-Date Gents' Furnishings, which up to the present we were unable to do, through lack of space.

We thank our numerous patrons for the excellent support they have given us since we started the K. & A. STORE, and hope that when we re-open that Bright little Store on the Corner, it will be just as popular as ever.

We remain, yours faithfully,

OBITUARY.

There passed over to the Great Beyond in Brooklyn, New York, on the 26th January, William, second eldest son of the late Morgan Morrissey, in the 41st year of his age. About Christmast last the deceased contracted a heavy cold which later developed into pleurisy. Despite the best medical treatment and kind and skillful nursing, the young man after an unsuccessful fight with his insidious foe, breathed his last on the above mentioned date. Though dying far away from the land of his birth, and missing the maternal endearments of a fond parent in his own dear natal Isle, yet his last days were not devoid of that kindness and sympathy that go far to assuage the sadness and solemnity that naturally fill the chamber of the dying. During his illness his aunts and cousins were most attentive and untiring in their ministrations, and spared not themselves in the futile endeavours to save the life of their dear one. Ere his departure from the "vale of tears," he received the last Sacraments of the Catholic Church, together with all the sweet consolations that our Holy Mother—the Church—so lovingly lavishes upon her dying children. His end was peace. May his soul rest in peace.

The deceased young man was a native of Harbor Grace. After receiving a fairly good education he was apprenticed to the late Mr. Michael O'Flynn, cooper. When his time of apprenticeship was over, finding work in his trade none too brisk, he with his cousin, John Doherty, since deceased, left his native town in 1831 to seek more remunerative employment in the land of the Stars and Stripes. Up to the time of his illness he worked almost uninterruptedly at his trade. He liked well the country of his adoption and always took great interest in all and everything appertaining to its welfare. The love for the homeland was in no degree diminished by his lengthy residence in America. On the contrary, absence had but contributed to augment this attachment, for but a short while ago he expressed the intention of soon re-depositing his own dear Isle. God had disposed otherwise. He wished to take him to Himself. In lowly submission to that Divine ordinance he cheerfully acquiesced. He married Hannah, daughter of Mrs. P. Griffin, of this town, who predeceased him about three years ago. His funeral took place on Sunday, January 28th. The mortal remains of William Morrissey quietly rest in the land of his manhood years, awaiting the great resurrection day. The news of his death came as a great surprise to his aged mother; his sister, Mrs. J. Moore; his only living brother, Charles, and the family of Mrs. P. Griffin. The heartfelt sympathy of their many friends goes forth to them in this their sad hour of bereavement.—Com.

IS THE TIME RIPE?

Hon. P. T. McGrath on Saturday in the Evening Chronicle adapted a vituperative expression which the arch-rival, Disraeli applied to Gladstone, and charitably decided that he will be more inebriated with our own verbosity, and suggested that the time was ripe for Total Prohibition in the Evening Telegram Office. We thank the Jew, for that word, and we will endeavour to profit by it.

The Morris party have lost their balance by the exercise of political power, and their antics make angels weep and men wonder. Their givings-out show a complete absence of sober dealings. The profusion of their picnics is prodigal. Economical expenditure has given place to wanton waste. Foolish favoritism is shown in raises of pay to some partisans. So much for political inebriation. Now for Total Prohibition. That is what people are petitioning for. They want an election this fall to put a stop to these political revels. They want to prohibit wanton waste. They want to conserve the public domain. But the Picnic Chief declares he will hold on till the Fall of 1912. We have to doubt that he can. But when the People's will is put into force, when the people get a say, they will bring into force Total Prohibition of any further exercise of political power by the Picnic Party.

Then political inebriation will give place to sober administration. Until then the carnival will go on. The time is ripe now but the Premier fears the times.

Little Girl Nearly Burned to Death

Gladys, the Three Year Old Daughter of Mrs. Jenkins, the Victim—Mother of the Child Badly Burned Also

At 11 o'clock to-day a fearful accident, which may prove fatal, occurred at the residence of Mrs. William Jenkins, King's Road. Gladys, her three year old little girl, was almost burned to death. The child lives in the General Hospital in a precarious condition. At the hour mentioned Mrs. Jenkins, who lives in an upstairs tenement, went to a neighbor's house on business, leaving her eldest child, Annie, in charge. During the mother's absence, which was about five minutes, Gladys, who was playing around the fire, opened the doors of the stove. A flame came out and ignited her pinafore, and very soon the child's clothing was in flames. Her elder sister, Annie screamed and attracted the attention of her mother, who as soon as she entered the house quickly removed the burning clothing. Dr. Macpherson, who responded promptly to the summons, bandaged the child's wounds, and after doing all possible to alleviate her sufferings had her conveyed to the Hospital in the ambulance. The poor little creature must have suffered awful agony as her lower limbs were badly charred and her body severely scorched. The mother was also badly burned about the hands and head. At 2 p.m. the child was very low.

In addition to the meeting on Tuesday night of the sealers, the F. P. U. will hold another meeting on Wednesday night. President Coaker will address the meeting.

A meeting of all those anxious to join the LEGION OF FRONTIERSMEN will be held on Wednesday next, March 13th, at 9 p.m., in the King George V. Fishermen's Institute. Information will be given concerning the objects of the Legion, and a day for Field Practice will be arranged. It is hoped that many young men will prove the reality of their patriotism by attaching themselves to this body which is strictly undenominational and only Imperial in its objects.

The Evelyn's Eventful Trip.

Sails Blown Away—Beet by Ice—Adventure With Polar Bear.

The schr. Evelyn, Capt. Burke, arrived here at 9.35 Saturday night from Bahla after the most eventful trip that Capt. Burke has had in his 18 years experience. She made the run down in 37 days. Eight days before her arrival the captain was stricken with rheumatic fever and was 18 days in hospital. The ship left Bahla for St. John's on the 9th January. In a hurricane five ribs were completely blown away with two main and mizzen sails, and as sea after sea swept on board all the windows in the cabin and deck houses were broken in, the skylight was smashed and considerable other damage done. So fierce was the weather that the ship had to run before the blast for 200 miles under bare poles. Heavy Arctic ice was encountered 24 days ago. The first land sighted was Cape St. Mary's when the ship was in an unmanageable condition. While 2 days west by ice the vessel managed to make Admiral's Cove, lay there 3 days, when the ice moving off she left there on Monday night last and at 4 a.m. Tuesday had to tack ship in the ice off Bay Bulls. She then tried to make Cape Broyle but the slob about froze too quickly, the vessel again became unmanageable and drove away to the south in a gale of wind going 75 miles to the S. and E. of Cape Ballard, where on Friday morning last she was frozen in 6 inches of ice. Several old seals were seen and at 12.30 p.m. that day an immense Polar Bear made for the vessel and evidently intended, so Captain Burke believed, to come on board. The men armed with axes and cudgels came on deck to "repel boarders" and when Bruin was a few yards distant from the side Mate Deacon put a bullet from a revolver in his side and he went away howling with pain. Cape Ballard was again made that night and with slob running thickly on the land she ran to get into Aquaforte. Later they reached Ferryland and were towed down here.

A Man Reported Missing.

Martin McAllister, married, with a wife and two children, who resides at Brennan Street, in the West End, left Placentia to walk here early Thursday morning, and since has not been heard of. On Saturday morning a lone pedestrian passed Placentia Junction, but his name was given as "Tom". If the man does not put in an appearance to-day the authorities will be notified.

Here and There.

YOUTHS CONVICTED.—The three boys who were charged with stealing coal from the R. N. Co.'s premises were convicted to-day.

THE STELLA MARIS.—The Stella Maris sails for Twillingate and intermediate ports Wednesday morning if ice conditions permit.

REID NFLD. CO.—The Reid Nfld. Co. had no word of the Bruce leaving Sydney this morning. The telegraph lines are interrupted with the storm.

The Argyle is still at Placentia. The Home left Fortune early yesterday morning, inward.

POLICE COURT.—Two drunks were discharged on payment of cash fine. Head Const. Peet summoned a carman for cruelty to a horse; dismissed. Const. Tobin summoned two women for receiving stolen goods within the past two months; judgment reserved.

SEALER INJURED.—At 2 p.m. to-day a sealer of the Erik was seriously injured. He fell out of one of the boats landing on the deck. His left side was badly bruised and two ribs broken. Dr. Macpherson was called to attend him. He was conveyed to the General Hospital and will not be able to go to the ice.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS.—Saturday evening and night large numbers of sealers went to confession in the R. C. Cathedral and at St. Patrick's. At the early Masses in both churches yesterday hundreds of these men received Holy Communion.

FUNERAL THIS AFTERNOON.—The funeral of the late Jas. Eales, who was killed near the round house Saturday, took place this afternoon. The deceased leaves a wife and five children. Mrs. Eales is a daughter of the late Reuben Sparkes of Whitbourne. Messrs. George, John and Samuel Sparkes, brothers of Mrs. Eales, arrived by train to attend the funeral.

MEETING ALSO ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT.—In addition to the meeting on Tuesday night of the sealers, the F. P. U. will hold another meeting on Wednesday night. President Coaker will address the meeting.

A meeting of all those anxious to join the LEGION OF FRONTIERSMEN will be held on Wednesday next, March 13th, at 9 p.m., in the King George V. Fishermen's Institute. Information will be given concerning the objects of the Legion, and a day for Field Practice will be arranged. It is hoped that many young men will prove the reality of their patriotism by attaching themselves to this body which is strictly undenominational and only Imperial in its objects.

N.B.—The above meeting has necessarily been postponed until Wednesday, March 13th, owing to the Sealers' Meeting having been postponed till Tuesday.—mar11,t

Railway News.

A special train left here at 6 p.m. Saturday with several passengers and mails for Brigus Junction and returned at 2.30 a.m. yesterday with 10 passengers.

The train which left Whitbourne Saturday morning arrived here at 5.50 p.m. Saturday. She took 75 sealers at Avondale who travelled from different points of Conception Bay and came to the city. The plow which was smashed in snow fighting near Avondale was brought along by this train.

No. 1 rotary plow on which Saturday's terrible accident occurred, left here at 5.50 p.m. Saturday to go out to clear Brigus Junction.

No. 1 rotary plow left Clarke's Beach at 11.45 a.m. to-day on her way to Placentia to clear that branch.

A local train left Spaniard's Bay at 11.30 to-day with sealers and is due here at 5 p.m.

If all goes well the Placentia branch will be opened by to-morrow. The rotary will only have to proceed five miles down this branch.

A train leaves here at 6 p.m. for Carbonar by way of the Brigus branch, and a train from Brigus Junction will connect with her.

The West Coast train from Port aux Basques was to-day one mile east of Spruce Brook water shute.

The Fisheries of Iceland.

The smacks fishing from Reykjavik, about 50 in number, did well during 1911, says a recent consular report on the fisheries of Iceland, their catch consisting chiefly of large cod and less than usual of the cheaper qualities of fish, such as small cod, haddock and saithe. The Icelandic fleet of trawlers, of which there were six last year, did exceedingly well. During the earlier part of the season they sailed their catch aboard, landed it, and cured it in the usual Icelandic manner. During the latter part of the season they took their catch to the United Kingdom in ice and realized very good prices. This year there are eight steam trawlers owned by Icelanders and two British boats hired by Icelandic merchants. All of these boats have so far done well. There are also two German steam trawlers hired by Icelanders on the west coast of the island.

Fish and fish products were the most important features of Iceland's exports during 1909, and included shipments of salt cod valued at $830,274; small cod, $206,599; salt haddock, $110,581; ling, tusk and saithe, $34,708; salt herring, $101,009; cod oil and shark oil, $71,980; whale oil, $333,282, and other whale products, $99,598. The Seydisfjord fishery was good during the whole summer. The cod fishery in the fjord was carried on with about the same number of motor boats as in 1909, besides a few row-boats. The fishing per motor boat was very much better than during the previous year, although the constant bad weather during the autumn prevented much fishing during that period. The rowboats have been fishing extremely well, as there has been a lot of cod standing near the coast, where these boats have their fishing grounds.

In 1910 some merchants at Seydisfjord started buying green fish from a Grimsby trawler, which landed the fish here every two days during May and early June, when the fishing at Hvalsbak was very abundant. The good result obtained from this venture led to its being repeated on a larger scale during 1911, contracts having already being made with more trawlers. This is one of the greatest interests to the populace here, as there is practically no work at all going on during the winter, in fact, not till the motor boats start fishing in May, and then the weather often prohibits successful fishing for quite a long time. But with the trawlers landing in April, as is the intention, there will be work in plenty curing and preparing the cod. Several Norwegian line fishers also landed their catch at Seydisfjord regularly during the 1910 season, but their fish had been salted on board. The year 1910 was a good one for the fishermen. Herring fishery with trap seines (snurpevod) was carried on during the summer of 1910, like the previous year, by the joint stock company "Aldan" of Seydisfjord, but with poor results. Otherwise there was no herring fishing in the fjord and very little in the fjords to the southward except small herring caught in casting seines, which have been sold for bait to the motor boats. On the north coast, especially at Sletfjord and Eyrafjord, a considerable herring fishery was carried on, as in the previous years.

The fisheries of Westmann Islands are chiefly cod and ling. About 50 motor boats are engaged in the industry. The fishing, which is the principal occupation and on which the commercial well-being of the Westmann Islands mainly depends, was very good during 1910 and 1911, and it must be admitted the motor boats are a great advance in the direction of fishing in the islands. The size of the boats is about 34 feet long and 19 to 11 feet wide, they having an engine of 8 to 12 horsepower. The motors are all Danish and burn petroleum. The result of the cod fishery reached in 1910 higher figures than ever before, the whole catch amounting to about 80,000, which gives an average of 150 to 250 shipments of dried and cured fish for each boat, and because of higher prices for the fish than those in 1909 the net profits were above the average. In 1910 a few boats were engaged in herring fishing during the summer months, but the financial results was generally poor, some of the boats having, in fact, been worked at a loss. The number of trawlers of all nationalities that fish around the islands is increasing year by year.

The total exports of the principal fishery products from the Westmann Islands during 1910 were: Cod—full cured, 20,732 cwt.; half cured, 45,800 (pieces); saithe, 294 cwt.; codliver oil, 1,294 barrels; rocs, 513 barrels; halibut, frozen, 260 cwt.—Fishing Gazette.

F. C. C.—At the C. C. C. Band room, Mechanics' Hall, on Saturday evening, two more games in connection with the billiard tournament were run off. J. Robinson won out against Alec Myler by a margin of 29 points, after an exciting contest; their respective scores being 250-230, while J. Tobin defeated H. Foster by 14 points.

History of the Society of United Fishermen.

BY JAMES H. MOORE, J. P.
 (Edited by W. E. Bradbury.)

INAUGURATION.
 About the month of July 1861, a young clergyman (Rev. George Gardner) was appointed to the mission of Heart's Content. Finding that there was no benefit, or any other kind of society or club working there and feeling that such would be a great assistance to the community at large, which was chiefly composed of fishermen, and who through the nature of their calling were often thrown upon very scanty means in times of sickness, determined to inaugurate a Benefit Club or Society for mutual help and assistance. Accordingly on the 14th day of February, 1862, a meeting was held in the schoolroom of the Colonial and Continental Church and School Society for that purpose. About thirty of us then present approved of the undertaking, and after subscribing our names drew up a set of rules for the working of the Society, which was named The Heart's Content Fisherman's Society. Although it was so named it was our intention to enroll members from the neighbouring settlements, if any men so desired.

OFFICERS.
 The Society was worked by a President, two Vice-Presidents, Secretary, Treasurer, and a Committee of twelve. These seventeen members acted as an Executive, as there was only one full meeting in each year which was called the Annual Meeting.

FINANCES.
 Each member was to pay a fee of 5s. (5 shillings) in each year (quarterly or semi-annually) to the Treasurer, also an additional subscription of 1s. in case of the death of a member, and 6d. on the death of a member's wife.

BENEFITS.
 In case of sickness after a member had been enrolled one full year (and not in arrears) he would receive the sum of 8s. per week for the first three months, and 5s. per week after, so long as he was afflicted. In the event of the death of a member the sum of £2 would be granted, and on the death of a member's wife the sum of £2. 10s. 0d. to defray funeral expenses.

After initiatory matters in connection with the Society had been arranged, men began to join not only from Heart's Content but from Scilly Cove, now New Melbourne, until in a Heart's Desire, Heart's Delight, and we had one member from Russell's Cove (now New Melbourne) until in a short time the membership reached about 250. With such a large membership there was considerable work for the Treasurer to keep correct accounts of income and expenditure, which accounts were presented at the Annual Meeting in each year, which was held the first few years in the schoolroom.

BUILDING OF HALL.
 In a short time the Society has grown considerably in membership and funds, when an idea sprang up that a Hall to hold meetings in was necessary. In 1868 a site was purchased from the President, and matters in connection with the construction of the building—such as getting wood for frame work, appointing a foreman, etc., etc., were arranged, and the following year with free labour and help from the funds of the Society the Hall was in a fit condition to hold the annual meeting in.

PARADES AND BAND.
 One of the Rules of the Society was to have its annual parade on New Year's Day, and as the time would arrive the President (who was a musician, and very fond of music) would much regret that we did not have some music for the occasion. Once or twice the Society hired music from Carbonar or Harbour Grace.

The President kept agitating for a band in connection with the Society, but having no instrument, and no person qualified to play one, the procuring of a band was an almost insurmountable task, but still he persisted, and the first instrument that was obtained was a second-hand cornopone purchased from a Mr. Pittman, of Hant's Harbour.

It was the first brass instrument that I remember seeing, and when I first tried to manipulate it the sound produced was not at all harmonious. After much perseverance I succeeded sufficiently to justify Mr. Gardner's opinion that we should have a band. He, therefore, ordered a bass drum, one cornet and one clarinet, for these instruments we had to pay to the tune £27, 2s., 11d. The growth of the band from then was slow but sure, but we were never afterwards without one for our annual parade. In 1910 we had ten instruments, but owing to some of the members of the Band having to seek employment from time to time elsewhere, it was a difficult matter to find men to use the instruments at all times. The L. O. A. Lodge having a band was in a similar predicament, so the two bands by mutual consent combined and we have now at Heart's Content a band we think second to none outside St. John's.

The Heart's Content Fisherman's Society had a few prosperous years at its outset, during which period its funds considerably accumulated and as time rolled on, there were some members afflicted with long periods of illness, and as we had to pay those members 8s. a week for three months and 5s. per week after so long as they were afflicted, the Society was taxed to an almost unbearable extent when it had members sick for two or three years. At last the funds were so drained that it looked like bankruptcy but the man at the head of affairs (Rev. Mr. Gardner) was equal to the occasion and he considered that to keep the Society alive it had to be worked on different lines, accordingly in the autumn of 1872 he outlined a plan of working which changed the whole features of the movement.

THE PLAN WAS:

- 1st. The Society was to change its name from The Heart's Content Fisherman's Society to the Society of United Fishermen (S. U. F.).
- 2nd. It was to be a secret Society consisting of a Grand Lodge, District Grand Lodges, and ordinary Lodges.
- 3rd. It was to be put on such a basis as to be capable of extension to other localities and still to be in unison with each other.
- 4th. The members were to meet more frequently for the despatch of business.

Matters were arranged as far as possible by the President, Rev. Geo. Gardner, and at a full meeting held in the early part of 1873 a transfer was made of the Hall, property and other effects from the H. C. F. Society to the Society of United Fishermen, and shortly after the Grand Lodge was formed with the Rev. Geo. Gardner as Grand Master, and during that year, 1873, Lodges were opened at Scilly Cove, Hant's Harbour, and perhaps at Bay Roberts.

Matters progressed rapidly after the change was made in 1873. The officers and members of Lodge No. 1 were active and energetic and soon had the Society in good working order. Lodges were opened in many other settlements, and business in connection with the Society looked bright, but in 1877 a shadow was cast over it through Rev. Geo. Gardner, Grand Master and Founder, leaving the Diocese.

Losing as it were the parent of the Society it was an urgent matter to find some member capable to fill the office of Grand Master. Rev. Wm. Pilot, D. D., I. S. O., was chosen, who certainly possessed the ability, and it was thought the time for the successful carrying on of the work. He filled the office with all aptitude until 1911, and as there was now a Lodge (No. 5) working at St. John's it was thought advisable to transfer the Grand Lodge from Heart's Content to St. John's. It was accordingly done. Many more new Lodges were opened until by 1888 there were 23 Lodges working with a membership of 977 paying members.

The Society has progressed perhaps more rapidly the past 23 years especially in point of membership. We had in 1910 37 Lodges working with a roll of 2,881 paying members.

BENEFITS PAID.

During the past 23 years there have been benefits in accordance with the By-Laws of the ordinary Lodges paid to the aggregate amount of $32,000.00 in addition to casual assistance that sick members have received from time to time especially during the summer season to help them along till the Lodges would meet in regular session in the autumn.

The Society has had its times of prosperity and times of adversity, but it has been a gradual although slow growth until by the Providence of God we can say without hesitation that it is a never stronger than it is at the present time. It has been during the past fifty years a great factor in relieving the sick and suffering, the widow and orphan in our country.

Let all members resolve to make our Society still more useful, bearing in mind and basing their actions upon the words of The Great Master above: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye did it unto Me."

Bitter Disappointment.

Special to Evening Telegram

LONDON, Mar. 10.
 Whilst there is bitter disappointment that Capt. Scott has not yet reported, there is nothing but praise for Amundsen's achievement. The Norwegian explorer has not an inkling of Scott's whereabouts. Scott's steamer, the Terra Nova, has reached London, but his agent in New Zealand believes he is still engaged in exploring and scientific work, and may not be heard of for several weeks. The Morning Chronicle has published the first instalment of Amundsen's account of his discovery. He describes his long journey over great ice barriers, and tells how he followed the outline of South Victoria and King Edward Land, over a great mountain range which stretches across this region, the general direction of which he followed. He named it the Queen Maud range. He states that he left winter quarters at the Bay of Whales on October 20th. His story leaves no room for doubt that he reached the South Pole on Dec. 14th. No reference is made to Scott, and experts here suspend judgment till the British explorer is heard from. There is still a possibility that Scott reached the pole before the 14th, and that the parties were separated by two or three miles.

Hard Labor Not to Their Liking.

Special to Evening Telegram

LONDON, March 10.
 Bitterly resenting the action of the authorities in tacking the hard labour clause to their prison sentences, the convicted suffragettes have set Holway jail in an uproar. Led by Alice Wright, an Albany, New York, girl, who came from Paris to assist in the window-breaking campaign, and was given two months hard while the majority of her accomplices got only thirty days, the prisoners attempted to defy the officials. When ordered into the robing room to remove their ordinary clothing, take the compulsory bath, and don the prison garb, the women rebelled. While the details are carefully guarded, it is alleged that the riot that followed was the worst in the recent history of this noted prison. Two wardresses, it is asserted, had their clothing torn from their bodies, and had to use fetters to subdue the disorderly women and compel them to obey the prison rules. When the leaders were ordered to the workroom to sew on hags, another row followed. At a given signal, all the suffragettes jumped up; those working at machines smashed them up as well as they could without tools. For a time the entire room was in an uproar. Finally the wardresses regained control of the situation, and the disorderly women were returned to their cells. The Governor of the prison ordered the ringleaders to be placed in solitary confinement.

Alexandra Workers Meet.

In the British Hall Saturday evening the Alexandra Workers held their annual meeting, with a very large attendance. The matter of holding the annual entertainment at Easter was discussed. The funds of the Society are increasing, but will require to be greatly augmented if the proposed building is to be erected. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Mrs. A. B. Ayre; V.P., Mrs. E. Carney; Asst. V.P., Mrs. Keegan; Treasurer, Mrs. C. W. Tessier; Asst. Treas., Mrs. V. Crowdy; Secretary, Mrs. Benedict.

IS GETTING BETTER.—Master Quick, who was in Hospital for several weeks and underwent a serious operation, came home from the institution a couple of days ago. He is greatly improved and will be able to be about soon.

THE CHURCH CHOIR.

The church choir is a collection of song birds who rise up and sing just when everybody is perfectly satisfied with the way things are going. Some people enjoy a choir music, while others put up with it in order to retain their standing in the church. Many a man is kept away from divine worship by the harrowing fear that the choir will bob up and sing a 16-page Te Deum before he can make a successful get-away. The choir loft is always filled with peace and love and several patterns of picture hats. Every choir has four self-possessed soloists who take care to pronounce their words so that nobody can tell whether they have gotten off to a bad start or are rounding into the home stretch. The quartet choir is an institution which makes the finance committee as short of breath as the winner of the fat men's race. The old-fashioned choir, which was led by a hugh-cut parson with a tuning fork and a cold in the head, has become little more than a gloomy reminiscence. It is not considered the thing in fashionable churches nowadays to line the hymns, as the choir attends to that, usually lining them with nine different qualities of tone production. The choir is aided and abetted in its nefarious undertaking by a pipe organ which is subject to fainting spells and is liable to lie down in the middle of the offertory and leave the soprano soloist hanging onto a high A-flat by her eyelids. The pipe organ is played with the hands and feet, and the organist who cannot run up and won the pedal board with the grace and agility of a St. Bernard dog with the St. Vitus dance is considered a joke in choir circles. A determined choir, which is always coming in when a man is trying to make up a little lost sleep, is a blessing which causes mingled feelings of joy and pain to permeate the pew.

Women and the Franchise.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, March 10.
 Despite the fact that opportunity has been afforded to introduce amendments to the Government's Franchise Bill, with a view to extending the franchise to women, the advocates of the movement have decided to reintroduce the Bill which failed to pass last session, known as the Conciliation Bill. This Bill confers the right to vote on women who are inhabitants or occupiers of any house or tenement, when separately rated. They will not be disqualified by marriage, except that husband and wife cannot vote in the same constituency. The Bill does not propose to enfranchise women lodgers, nor women possessed of only freehold qualifications. If the Bill should pass, the number enfranchised would be about a million, of whom only 3 per cent. would belong to the working classes.

SURELY SETTLES UPSET STOMACHS

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia vanish in five minutes.

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapessin, and realize not only immediate, but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapessin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no more sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapessin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

Bruce Delayed By Storm.

The Bruce, which left Sydney at 6 a.m. Saturday and was caught in the ice off Low Point, returned to that port at 6 p.m. same day. The Reid Nfld. Co. had the following wire from Capt. Spracklin: "Returned to North Sydney, N.E. gate. Will leave first opportunity. At 6 p.m. yesterday Capt. Spracklin wired: 'Heavy snow storm and E gale, lying in North Sydney harbor.'"

Memorial of Diocesan Synod.

Education Committee to the Governor-in-Council. To His Excellency the Governor-in-Council. The memorial of your petitioners, the Diocesan Synod Education Committee, humbly sheweth: (A.) That the census recently taken will probably show an increase in the population over and above the number recorded in the census in 1901. The grants for education are allocated upon a per capita basis and the Church of England Boards of Education throughout the colony, for whom the Diocesan Synod speaks, expect the distribution of the educational grants for 1912-13 to be in accordance with the new census. This expectation is based upon the precedents established in 1892 and in 1902, on each of the occasions when the Legislature made provision for increases in the educational grants corresponding with the increases in population. The Diocesan Synod Education Committee prays that your Honourable Council will make the necessary recommendation to the Legislature to secure that such increased provision shall be made for education on the present per capita basis as the increase in population indicates so that the educational grants may be distributed among the several Boards after July 1st, 1912, on the basis of the new census. (B.) The petitioners are of opinion that the time has arrived when the question of compulsory attendance of children at school should receive the most earnest consideration. It may be that no means of enforcing attendance in certain localities can at present be devised, but on the other hand there are many places where your petitioners think attendance can be enforced and particularly in the city of St. John's, where the Commission on Public Health has already recommended compulsory attendance on other than educational grounds. Your petitioners therefore suggest for the consideration of your Council the appointment of a commission to inquire into the possibility of enforcing compulsory school attendance—particularly in St. John's. The commission might at the same time consider the consolidation of the various Education Acts on the Statute Book. (C.) The Diocesan Synod Education Committee while it appreciates the generous manner in which the Legislature has increased the grant for education during the past few years and recognizes the sympathetic manner in which your Honourable Council heard the prayers of the committee in 1900 and again in 1907, feels that it owes it as a duty to the colony as well as to the Church of England people, whom in educational matters it represents, to inform your Honourable Council that even after the additions on account of increase in population shall have been made, the grant of Education—seen particularly those for districts in which the population has not increased during the past decade—will not be sufficient to enable them to discharge their duties to their respective districts in providing educational facilities. It is in a more or less retrograde, due in great part to the fact that the cost of service and labour of every kind has increased since 1905, since when the grant for general purposes has not been increased, and it is manifest that a dollar to-day does not go as far as it did a dollar seven years ago. The Diocesan Synod Education Committee therefore urges upon your Council the necessity of raising the grant for general purposes from its present rate of 48 cents per capita of population to 60 cents per capita. This would have the advantage not only of enabling boards operating in sparsely populated localities to do more extensive work in the same, but also of placing all boards in a better position to provide adequately for education in their respective districts. (D.) Your petitioners likewise feel that the grant for the professional training of teachers is insufficient, the present grant being for all denominations $3,000.00. It is being recognized more and more generally that the training of the teacher is the important point, and that with a staff of teachers who have received little or no professional training, all the other grants for education are in a measure wasted and the whole service impaired. Your Council is therefore respectfully urged to make further provision for the professional training of teachers. Your petitioners are not without hope that some means of friendly co-operation between the several denominations in this important work may be found. Increase suggested, $6,000. (E.) The Superintendents of Education of the several religious denominations, assisted and encouraged by the Commission on Public Health and the Association for the Prevention of Consumption, have arranged to conduct for three months, commencing in April, a joint school of practical domestic science. In which a course of instruction in this step and householding or housecraft, will be given to the female teachers in training now resident in the city and to classes from some of the girls' schools of the city. Your petitioners foresee the possibility of great good to the country in this step and urge your Honourable Council to increase the grant for Manual or Industrial training so that the joint movement in the direction of technical education for both boys and girls may be placed on a permanent footing and opportunities afforded for the extension of the work to some of our outport schools. Increase suggested, $6,000. (F.) In the year 1908 the Legislature by means of a loan provided the sum of $100,000 to be expended in the

President Yuan Installed

Special Evening Telegram. PEKING, To-day. The Provisional President of the Republic of China in presence of a great gathering of Delegates, Provincial Governors, Military and Naval Officers and other prominent personages, many foreigners attended the ceremony, but the Legations were not represented. Yuan who was wearing a military uniform read a Declaration, promising faithfully to develop the Republic, observe Constitutional laws, and retire when the National Assembly appoints a permanent President. The ceremony was solemn and almost pathetic, typical of the Chinese transition. Most of those who assembled were attired, either in uniform or European dress. The only touch of Orientalism was the presentations of scarfs to Yuan by two yellow robed Lamas.

The Star Savings Bank Finalized

At yesterday's special session of the Star of the Sea Association, matters relative to the proposed Saving Bank in connection with the Institution, were brought to a finale. The rules of the Committee of Management were presented by the chairman, Mr. Thos. Kelly, while resolutions and amendments were introduced with fitting speeches by Messrs. W. J. Higgins, L. C. Murphy, and W. P. Trelogan. The debate on these questions lasted over three hours, those contributing being J. J. Lacey, J. J. McGrath, E. M. Jackman, W. F. Graham, D. Mespence, J. Vinnicome, and J. H. Farrell. The outcome of the meeting was the adoption of the Banking Scheme, and the necessary legal matters will be arranged immediately. Previous to adjournment, Rev. Father O'Callaghan announced that he would lecture in the rooms for charitable purposes at an early date, while a tournament, between the members, will take place this week for a like object; Mr. S. Congdon and a sub-committee being named to look after matters.

St. Bon's Debate.

The students of the intermediate class of St. Bonaventure's College held a very interesting debate in their study hall on Saturday evening. The subject was:—"Which is of more benefit to man: mental or manual work?" Several very well prepared speeches were delivered and the students proved themselves fully conversant with the question; the verdict of the jury going in favour of the mental advocates by a vote of 8 to 3. Following were the participants:—Mental: J. Hoskins, M. Costello, F. Hogan, E. Coughlan and H. McGettigan. Manual: G. Flynn, C. Poole, J. Gillis, J. Carroll, W. Gladstone, and G. Coughlan. Rev. P. J. Cullane, President of the college, occupied the Chair during the debate.

A Runaway.

On Saturday night, a horse, attached to a sleigh, took flight on New Gower Street and bolted. "Near Adelaide Street, the occupant, a young man named Brown, was thrown out, and hitting the tram-rail with considerable force, inflicted a nasty wound in his right leg. The horse was afterwards caught near Callaghan & Glass Co.'s store, and the injured man driven to a doctor for treatment.

Tribute to Amundsen.

NEW YORK, To-day. The Times publishes the following tribute from the discoverer of the North Pole to Captain Amundsen:—"I have read Amundsen's own terse story with the greatest interest. Reading his experiences has carried me back to my own days on Greenland's ice cap. There seems little room for comment on Amundsen's account. Shackleton who is fully acquainted by hard earned experience with every detail of that particular region and has covered the ground fully. I am glad Amundsen developed for himself a new and independent route for the entire distance to the South Pole. His determination of the head or limit of the Ross ice barrier is particularly interesting in its bearing on the theory which is being advanced that the Ross Sea and Weddell Sea indentations were connected by a trough of low elevation filled with barrier ice, cutting the Antarctic into two main portions. (Sgd.) Peary."

Return of the "Ventures."

The S. S. Bellaventure, Capt. Randall, arrived back from the northward at 6 p.m. Saturday with 900 sealers on board. After leaving here the "Bell" proceeded direct to Pool's Island, thence calling at Greenspond, and had a difficult time to get in both these places, progress being impeded greatly by heavy Arctic ice. She then steamed south forcing her way towards Bonavista. The men from there had to cross the ice to get aboard owing to the ice blockade in the harbor. She then made for Catalina and Trinity, taking a contingent from both places, thence bearing up for St. John's. Despite the large complement of men handled not a single accident occurred. Mr. B. Hayward, of Harvey's office, made the round trip as purser.

The Bonaventure, Capt. Cross, which left here Saturday at noon for Bay Roberts got there at daylight yesterday morning. She brought along 300 men to go in the different ships. The ship met heavy ice and could not get to a wharf so that the sealers had to use horses and sleds to convey themselves and belongings down to the mouth of the Bay, a distance of four miles to get on board the steamer.

An Inebriate Female on Street.

Shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday night a young woman who was well under the influence of drink walked up Water Street West followed later by a man also intoxicated, and who claimed in strident language that the woman had stolen a $5 bill from him. A crowd followed the pair, and the woman gave the man the slip by turning up a narrow way to Newburg Street.

The man was of exceptional physique and nearly seven feet tall. Two policemen were phoned for and conveyed him to the station in a sleigh.

Gulf Sealers Sail.

Except Kite and Southern Cross. Special to Evening Telegram. CHANNEL, To-day. The S. S. Bloodhound, Labrador, Viking, Seal and Neptune sailed for the Gulf sealfishery Saturday afternoon in the order named. The Kite and Southern Cross have not yet arrived here. Yesterday there was a hurricane from the S. E. with snow and high drift, veering N. E. at night and blowing with increased force. The codfishery is hampered by ice on the coast. All ships of sealing fleet carry best wishes for bumper trips. CORRESPONDENT.

Clapp Got the Bridge.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—In a letter which appeared in Saturday's issue of the Chronicle signed "West Coast," the writer appears to be hurt at the success which Mr. Clapp has met with in getting the bridge for Baker's Brook. Now "Arty" don't get annoyed with the doings of the popular member for St. Barbe, for he has always been a worker for the District, and if Brother Mott, who last contested it had given half his time to it instead of to feathering his nest with a fine fat job as Clerk to the House of Assembly to the tune of $500 of the overburdened fisherman's money for the session, he might now have received the credit for it. No fisherman who knows that part of St. Barbe coast but will say that a good work has been done in providing a bridge. Yours, FISHERMAN.

WATCH FOUND.—The watch advertised in Saturday's Evening Telegram, was picked up by a little girl named Moore and brought to this office this morning where the owner can get same upon paying the reward.

DR. ROGERS LECTURES.—Dr. Rogers will lecture for the Epworth League at Gower Street this evening on a "Trip to Cuba and Jamaica." An invitation is extended to any who would like to hear the Doctor on this interesting subject.

SAILING OF GULF FLEET.—The sealing ships Neptune, Viking, Labrador, Bloodhound and Seal sailed from Channel for the Gulf on Saturday afternoon. The Kite and Southern Cross the last to have left here and the less powerful were not reported at Channel up to Saturday night.

DIED IN GERMANY.—Mr. J. B. Burnstein, ladies' tailor, of Water St., had a letter from Germany last week apprising him of the death of his mother. The old lady was in her 83th year and Mr. Burnstein had not seen her for 17 years. He had intended going home next year. Several other sons and daughters survive the deceased.

THE WOODEN FLEET.—The sealing ships Ranger, Newfoundland, Eagle and Algerine will finish signing their crews to day and sail immediately for Wesleyville and Greenspond. The Erik and Diana which were ready Saturday night but did not go owing to her crew failing to turn up, sails to-day for Wesleyville. All the wooden fleet will clear for the floe on Wednesday.

Saturday's Terrible Accident.

MR. CHAS. GORTH, WHO WORKED WITH THE VICTIM, TELLS OF IT.

Mr. Charles Gorth, of No. 30 South Side, who worked at the rotary with James Eales, the victim of Saturday's awful accident, was interviewed Saturday afternoon by a Telegram reporter relative to the tragedy. Mr. Gorth has been greatly affected ever since the occurrence, which so greatly shocked him that his nerves are almost unstrung, and he trembles when he thinks of the awful sight he witnessed. The unfortunate man Eales, he said, worked inside the dome of the rotary and when the accident occurred was engaged in removing a bolt from the "baffle." Mr. Gorth was standing on the plates on the outside of the rotary, and from their position they could not see the engineer, Joseph Byrne. Eales was in a stooping position as he worked and everything went along all right until suddenly Gorth heard a bell ring and immediately divined that the rotary would be started. Yelling to Eales, "Look out, Jim; she is going ahead," the words had scarcely passed his lips when the rotary started rapidly revolving towards the left, and in a few seconds of time poor Eales' body was terribly mangled by the fans and knives as they went round. Not a cry escaped the poor fellow. He had not time to utter a word or cry before he was hacked in pieces. Mr. Gorth stated that when the rotary started it went with much violence into a bank of snow about 8 feet distant, just near the Gas House fence, and was dazed for several minutes. When he came to himself a horrible sight met his eyes. The rotary had stopped but the fans and knives were smeared with blood and pieces of mutilated flesh, while the torn and dismembered body of his friend was scattered about the place, with shreds of clothing in some cases attached to the flesh. He tore away a piece of canvas hanging over the door of the cab of the rotary and placed it over the remains. Gorth says that when they started to work a boy named Curney was with them for the purpose of heating rivets. The men knew that steam was on the engine but did not for a moment imagine that the rotary would turn. The only portion of the body left intact was one of the legs from the knee down, and it was a gruesome sight to see lying near this one of the hands with which the poor fellow worked only a few moments before. When Gorth recovered, and after covering the remains, he gave the alarm, and soon Dr. Paterson, Const. Conway who was passing at the time, Const. Nugent, and later Inspector Collins with Sergt. Noseworthy and Constable Lawlor, were on the scene. To Rev. H. Up'ill, who had been early informed of the tragedy, a harrowing task was assigned, that of informing the widow and her five helpless little ones of the awful fate of the husband and father. The poor woman could not realize that her husband, who had left home in the morning in buoyant spirits and perfect health, was now dead, and when it came home fully to her, her grief few could witness and remain unmoved. Under the kind ministrations and encouraging influence of the clergyman she became reconciled, but later in the afternoon, when the casket containing the remains was borne into the house, the scene which occurred was heartrending. Soon after the accident the remains were placed in a casket by Undertaker Collier and put in the station until they were removed home. The man Byrne, the engineer in charge, was found in the cab of the rotary by Sergt. Noseworthy, and on being taken to the station could give little account of what had occurred. Shortly after being placed in the cells he fell asleep. The circumstances connected with the setting of the rotary in motion will probably be cleared up at the enquiry into the tragedy. The deceased left two brothers and a sister, as well as a wife and 5 children, the oldest of whom is 10 years. His mother died only little more than a month ago. He was a member of Tasker Lodge, A. F. & A. M., was a boilermaker by trade and one of the most steady and best in the Reid Co. shops.

C. E. Sealers' Service Sunday.
Yesterday the annual service for sealers was held at Church of England Cathedral and was attended by large numbers of men who are preparing for the seal fishery. The service was an inspiring one. The prayers were read by Rev. Canon White, and Rev. James Bell read the Lesson, His Lordship the Bishop preached a very eloquent sermon taking as his subject the Magnetism of Christ and the Attraction of the Cross, taken from the words: "I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto Me." St. John, xii and 32.

Sealers Were Snow-Blind.
Two sealers belonging to Bonavista who arrived by the Bellaventure were snow-blind. Having to walk long distances from their homes to connect with the steamer they encountered thick snow drifts and as a result their eyes became affected. When they reached the city Saturday evening they visited a doctor for treatment.

The F. P. U.

A meeting of the members of the F. P. U. now in the city will be held to-night at the Fishermen's Institute, near Harvey & Co.'s office, to make final arrangements for to-morrow night's parade and mass meeting which will also be held at the Fishermen's Institute. The speakers will be Mr. Karnopf, Mr. J. M. Devine and the President of the F. P. U. The sealers' parade will start from the Institute Building at 7 p.m. attended by two city bands. The meeting will open at 8 p.m. The procession will march up Water Street to Waldegrave Street and down New Gower Street to Prescott Street and on to the Institute. It is very proper that the first gathering in the new building should be composed of the bone and sinew of the country—the sons of toil. Every sealer Union and non-Union, is invited to attend the parade, when tickets of admission will be distributed. No person will be admitted without a ticket. The sealers will be seated first after which city ticket holders will be admitted if space permit. The request for tickets from citizens of St. John's is surprisingly large, several clergymen having applied for admission. Of course the meeting will be unique in the history of the Colony, and will mark the first great event of the F. P. U. at St. John's.

The Advocate to-day published a special sealers' issue, which contains several illustrations and articles relating to the seal fishery, a list of F. P. U. Local Council and their officers, the sealing agreement, a diary of President Coaker of the 22 days trip to Millertown made by the express which left here Feb. 15th, which is headed "Marooned." An organization embracing 140 Local Councils consisting of 15,000 members—the result of three years exertions by President Coaker—must now be considered as an important factor in the political and commercial affairs of the Colony. Politically, because it has placed already twelve candidates in the field to contest the next elections; commercially, because it was instrumental in securing a large advance in the price of codfish and cod oil last fall which made the fishermen's pockets heavier by at least $500,000. Now it has gone a step further in securing for the steamer owners which provide better accommodation, better food, shorter trips for the iron ships, protection for old seals, insurance against loss of the men's share of the voyage, and proper treatment and accommodation for the sick and disabled sealers. Formerly the Tory Party claimed the sole right to convene a sealers' public meeting at St. John's, but this season nothing whatever has been heard of a Tory sealers' meeting, presumably because of the decision of the F. P. U. to do so. No doubt the parade and meeting will be largely attended, and prove an eye-opener to some of the anti-F. P. U. citizens of St. John's.

Prescription "A"

Cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia in all its Forms.

IT IS QUITE A DAILY occurrence to hear persons say: Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach trouble. It can be obtained at
