CHAPTER XII.
A BATTLE FOR LOVE.

"Never mind that," he said, frankly; another man would have protested that he had the advantage. "Don't hesitate. You know a woman who hesitates is lost! I rather like this mare. I should like to take the non-sense out of her."

"Shall I? Well, I will. I feel safe on this horse! How admirably you have trained him! Yes, I will! But I'm sure I have the best of the bargain!"

He laughed.

"I am not so sure!" he said. Then he began to ride the mare as she should have been ridden.

"What will you do with her?" she asked. "Sell her?"

"No!" he said. "I shall keep her. I shall send her down to Faneworth—they have plenty of room there—and ride her when I go down."

Fateful words, that ought to have brought a shudder to Edith Drayton's frame.

They reached Elton Square without further mishap. The mare behaved admirably while she felt a strong hand upon her, and subsided into a decent trot.

They arrived at Elton Square in the most pleasant manner, and found luncheon awaiting them.

It was a good lunch, but without any ceremony Edith Drayton took off her gloves and flung them onto a sofa, and walked to the table where Mrs. Drayton was seated.

"We shall make you quite at home, Lord Edgar," she said, smiling at him. "We are really very simple persons, although we are the fashion. Would you like a glass of ale?"

It was the one thing that Lord Edgar was longing for, and when he said "Yes," Edith Drayton poured it out for him with her own white hands.

There was a haunch of cold mutton, and a chicken pie, and the usual sundries which go to make a little lunch, and Edith Drayton sent the servants out of the room, and waited upon him.

There was a brilliant color in her face, a deep glow in her eyes; she talked fluently and well, and, as he leaned back in the easy-chair, Lord Edgar felt particularly comfortable.

Edith had not changed her habit, and moved to and fro like a Venus Aphrodite, chatting with the best of spirits, telling her mother about her adventure, and enlarging upon Lord Edgar's kindness.

It was a most enjoyable meal, and Lord Edgar would have been the happiest of mortals if he could have rid his mind of Lela Temple, who was waiting in the silence of the Abbey for him.

Presently Edith produced a box of cigarettes.

"I know that gentlemen are never happy unless they can smoke after a meal," she said; "please do so—"

"But—" he remonstrated, gently.

"Please," she said, and lighted a wax vesta for him.

He leaned back in his easy chair—it was extremely comfortable—and puffed at his cigarette, and looked at the graceful figure moving to and fro in the well-fitting habit.

But, still, his thoughts were of Lela.

Edith Drayton drew down the blinds, to shut out the sunlight, and went to the piano—there was a piano in both of the reception rooms—and sat down and played.

A dreamy, subtle influence was stealing over him; the pretty room, this exquisitely beautiful girl exerting herself on his behalf, were telling upon him.

He smoked a couple of cigarettes in this blissful, dreamy state, listened to the music, then the clock on the mantelshelf struck four, and, as if it had been a warning voice, he sprang up.

"I must go!" he said, suddenly. "I am very sorry, but I must go."

"You have another appointment?" said Edith, looking around at him.

"Yes," he said, half guiltily. "Yes." She glided from the piano, and held out her hand.

"We can not hope to monopolize you, Lord Edgar, but whenever you have half an hour—only half an hour—I hope you will give it to us?"

"I will," he said, grasping her thin, white hand in his. "Yes, I will." And then he leaves.

There was a moment's silence; then Mrs. Drayton glanced at her daughter, who stood still in the center of the room.

"Well!" she said.

"Well!" echoed Edith Drayton. "He is adamant at present, mother—adamant. But I do not despair. Give me time. He has left me for this sweet-heart of his. Perhaps in the time to come he will leave her for me!"

CHAPTER XIII.
"I COULD NOT LIVE WITHOUT YOU."

Lela sat beside the fountain, her white hand drooping in the water; and the song of the plashing water seemed to her to shape itself into the words, "I sing for those I pity," instead of "love!" Certainly if the fountain did not pity her, she was full of pity for herself; for it was evening now, and she had been waiting all day for some sign of him who had become as a life-giving god to her, and still he had not come.

Fifty, a hundred times, she had taken the precious slip of paper from her bosom, and dwelt on it lovingly and adoringly. "How good of him to think to write to her!" she had said to herself; most men would have gone and explained their absence when they came back, but he had not been satisfied with that—he had written to her!

She tried to console herself with this scrap of paper, which his hands had touched, which, perhaps, she thought with a flush, his lips had kissed.

At tea-time there came a note for Mr. Temple, and the blood rushed to her face at the wild conjecture that perhaps it might have come from Lord Edgar; but the professor looked up and gave the servant the answer. "Tell Mr. Radley I will come directly."

Mr. Radley was the vicar of Faneworth, and a book-worm, like the professor.

"He has got a copy of the first edition of 'Quarles' Emblems,' Lela," said Mr. Temple—"it has just come down from town—and he wants me to go and see it. If you don't mind be-ed, and which certainly her own did many a time during the long, tedious day.

For the first time in her life she felt restless and dissatisfied, and full of disquiet fears. She tried to sing the song that he had praised, but the words died away on her lips. There was only one refrain that her heart would utter, and it was, "Come soon, oh, my love!"

Mr. Temple, of course, did not notice anything unusual in her manner. She seemed quieter than usual, and he looked up once and caused her to start by asking her why she didn't go for a walk, seeing that the day was so fine. Go for a walk and perhaps be out of the way when he came! She laughed, murmured something, then glided from the room.

The morning passed, and the afternoon, the sun began to fall behind the hills, and she who had hoped so bravely through the day began to despair. He would not come that evening, she felt sure.

At tea-time there came a note for Mr. Temple, and the blood rushed to her face at the wild conjecture that perhaps it might have come from Lord Edgar; but the professor looked up and gave the servant the answer. "Tell Mr. Radley I will come directly."

Mr. Radley was the vicar of Faneworth, and a book-worm, like the professor.

"He has got a copy of the first edition of 'Quarles' Emblems,' Lela," said Mr. Temple—"it has just come down from town—and he wants me to go and see it. If you don't mind being left alone I think I will just run over. The first edition—it is priceless!"

"I shall not mind, grandpapa," she said, and she did not. She would be lonely with a dozen for company, if her lover were not among them. With much great-coasting—the professor was always cold—he set off to the vicarage; and Lela got up, sauntered sadly through the silent rooms, and then made her way to the fountain. She could better think of him beside the plashing water—could call up his beloved form more distinctly in the pretty garden, sheltered between the ivied walls.

Seven o'clock struck, then the half hour, and Lord Edgar vaulted the stonework of the terrace, and came eagerly to the window. The whole place was silent as the dead. He called her name softly, waited a few minutes, that seemed hours, then turned the handle of the door—the professor did not recognize the existence of burglars—and went into the library.

He scarcely expected to see her there, but its emptiness and solitude gave time for pause; he did not know what to do next; but with sudden courage he pushed aside the curtain in the china-room, and, opening the door gently, saw her sitting beside the fountain. Her back was turned toward him, and he stood for a moment drinking in the sight of her, then he approached her gently and knelt down beside her and whispered her name.

She started, and turned with an inarticulate cry of surprise and joy, and he caught her in his arms and held her as he knelt. In the first moment of rapture she hid her face that he might not see the tears with which her eyes had been filled when he came, but presently, as he murmured those short, tender sentences which are as old as the hills, and yet as sweet as if one's lover had invented them for one's special behoof, she raised her head, and with her dark eyes glowing, her face still pale, whispered:

"Ah! I am so glad! I thought that you would not come to-night. I had been hoping all day, and you know how deferred maketh the heart sick!"

"Are these tears?" he said, kissing them away. "Did you miss me so much? Well, if I had been the girl and you the man I should have cried. My darling, the day has seemed an age to me—an age." He did not mean to tell an untruth, though we knew that Jove laughs at lovers' perjuries; he had simply forgotten that pleasant half hour in Miss Drayton's comfortable room, with the cigarette and the soft music. "You don't know how mad I was at having to go!"

"Was it anything very important?" she asked, not curiously, but because everything, small or great, in his life must have intense interest for her."

"Yes," he said, "or be sure I shouldn't have gone. It was about a horse."

"A horse!" she echoed, with surprise in her lovely wide-open eyes.

He smiled at her; her very ignorance of the outside world had its charm, and a very powerful charm for him.

"My darling, that doesn't sound very important," he said; "but it was important to a great many persons, as well as myself. They would have lost a good deal of money if I hadn't gone up—and now don't let's talk of it! And yet, a week ago I thought of nothing else—that was before I saw you. Did you get my note?"

"Yes," she said, with a blush.

He smiled and drew each of the fingers of the hand that nestled on his breast apart, and kissed them.

"Clever of me, wasn't it, to send it in a book? I puzzled and puzzled over the question of how I was to let you know. I didn't like to write openly, because I knew I shouldn't be able to keep my love out of it, and Mr. Temple might have seen it. I endured agonies all the way up to town at the idea that he might get hold of the book first. He did not see it!"

"No," she said, then she looked around and turned crimson. "Edgar—no pen can describe the delicious shyness with which she spoke his name, and the thrill of delight it gave him—"it made me unhappy to deceive grandpapa!"

"I knew it would!" he said, "and yet I could not go away without letting you know. But don't talk about deceit, Lela. I hate it—almost as much as you do—"

LONDON, April 23.

As a result of President Wilson's statement on the Peace Conference, the Italian delegation has announced that it has decided to leave Paris on Friday, according to a despatch from the Exchange Telegraph from Rome.

CLEMENCEAU INFORMED.

PARIS, April 23.

Premier Orlando, of Italy, this morning addressed an official communication to Premier Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, stating that as a result of the declaration by President Wilson, the Italian delegation has decided to leave Paris on Friday, according to a despatch from the Exchange Telegraph from Rome.

AN EFFECTIVE ADVANCE.

LONDON, April 23.

Reuter's Ottawa Agency.—According to authoritative information, Premier Clemenceau has learned the Roumanian advance in Hungary is progressing excellently. Roumania is acting solely upon the orders of the Allies and purely in the interest of stemming the German advance. No permanent occupation of territory is contemplated without the sanction of the Peace Conference. While the danger of a Bolshevik attack on Roumania is not completely removed, it is believed that the disposition is much improved. The situation in Roumania grows brighter daily. The spirit of the army is magnificent and the continued arrival of food, equipment and stores is having a great effect.

Italy Withdrawing From Conference--Peace Treaty Signatures May be One Sided--Uneasiness in Roumania--Hamburg in State of Siege.

WILL BE SIGNED ANYWAY.
PARIS, April 22. According to the Associated Press, the Peace Treaty will be signed even if Italy refuses, though the London Conference forbids any member of the Entente signing a separate peace. It is believed economic conditions are so bad that no important country will continue fighting, cut off from supply lines.

ITALIAN DELEGATES LEAVING.
PARIS, April 23. The Italian Vice-Admiral Thaon d'Audoubert, former Chief of the Staff, has left Paris for Rome. General Armando Diaz, Commander in Chief of the Italian Army, it is said, will leave on the 24th.

WILSON TALKS OUT.
PARIS, April 23. In testing his official statement on the Adriatic question, President Wilson let it be known that he desired to see again to call attention to the fact that there were well-defined principles which have been accepted by the peoples of the world as the basis for a lasting peace. The United States delegation simply recalled this fact, and that there should be no deviation from these principles.

DECIDES TO LEAVE PARIS.
LONDON, April 23. As a result of President Wilson's statement on the Adriatic question, the Italian delegation has announced that it has decided to leave Paris on Monday, according to a despatch from the Exchange Telegraph from Rome.

CLEMENCEAU INFORMED.
PARIS, April 23. Premier Orlando, of Italy, this morning addressed an official communication to Premier Clemenceau, president of the Peace Conference, stating that as a result of the declaration by President Wilson, the Italian delegation has decided to leave Paris at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. A conference held by the Italian delegation to the Peace Conference this afternoon, it was announced that the delegates would leave Paris to-morrow.

AN EFFECTIVE ADVANCE.

thousand New Zealanders and one thousand South Africans. The procession will march from Grosvenor Gate, via Hyde Park Corner and Constitution Hill to Buckingham Palace where the King and other members of the Royal Family will receive the salute, thence to Victoria Street, Whitehall, Trafalgar Square, the Strand, Kingsway, Oxford Street and the Marble Arch.

THE ALLIES IN RUSSIA.
LONDON, April 23. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Advices received by the War Office from Archangel, state that two field guns and a large quantity of stores were secured at the capture of Bolshevoigt. Many Bolshevik deserters have joined our Russian troops and openly show their hatred of the Bolsheviks.

SEES VICTORY AHEAD.
ARCHANGEL, April 23. The head of the Archangel Government is opposed to the cessation of hostilities to feed Russia, now that victory is at hand.

REPATRIATION FIRST.
AMSTERDAM, April 23. The German peace plenipotentiaries, the Frankfort Zeitung says, have been instructed not to sign the treaty of peace unless it provides for the immediate and unconditional return of German prisoners of war.

FOR GERMAN READING.
PARIS, April 23. Articles of the peace treaty explaining the position of Germany towards the nations which broke relations with her during the war, were to be drafted at the meeting of the Council of Five, composed of the Foreign Ministers of Great Britain, France, Italy, the Secretary of State of the United States, and Baron Maizoin, of the Japanese delegation.

FAVORS STRIKE.
WASHINGTON, April 23. Returns from the strike vote of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union indicate that 90 to 95 per cent. favor a strike to enforce demands. The strike may be postponed until May 15.

AT FRANCE'S INVITATION.
LONDON, April 23. The British squadron, under Admiral Beatty, intend visiting France at the invitation of the French Government is being arranged.

BERNIER REPORTED.
SEATTLE, April 23. Captain Joe Bernier, Arctic trader and navigator, is still sailing west to east through the North-West Passage and should reach the Atlantic Coast by October.

NO CREDENCE TO RUMOUR.
LONDON, April 23. No credence is given the rumor of a Soviet Govt. being established in Turkey. The report came from Odessa, a Bolshevik stronghold.

WHAT KIND OF WORK!
LONDON, April 23. Work has been resumed at Budapest in the war materials factories.
SOCIALIST DEMANDS.
PARIS, April 23. The Socialist Congress demands the return to the state of excess war profits and taxes on financial monopolies, railways, mines and banks. Also that the body of Jean Leon Jaures, assassinated in 1914, be removed to the Pantheon.

ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION.
LONDON, April 23. John Cope is to head another Antarctic expedition, starting in June to survey mineral deposits. The expedition ship Terra Nova will be used and will carry an airplane for inter-oceanic voyages.

GOING BACK TO WORK.
MADRID, April 23. The Spanish Government has announced the idea of placing the postal service under military control, as the men are returning to work.

"BIG UNION" MEN OUT.
EDMONTON, April 23. The executive of the Trades and Labor Council have declared the seats of delegates voting for "one big union" vacant. This is a big blow to the movement.

STATE OF SIEGE IN HAMBURG.
COPENHAGEN, April 23. A state of siege has been proclaimed in Hamburg and the suburbs of Altona and Wandsbeck, according to advices received here from Hamburg. In consequence of the disturbances in Hamburg the police received orders to immediately shoot persons carrying arms, plundering or fighting against the National Police.

MYSTERIOUS EXPLOSION.
LAWRENCE, Mass., April 22. Two mysterious tenement-house explosions occurred to-day in the mills section. There were no fatalities.

TERMS GRANTED.
PARIS, April 22. The Temps says Italian demands against the German-Austria front have been granted.

NAVAL FLEETS ON FRENCH TOUR.
LONDON, April 22. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—At the invitation of the French Government, two British squadrons are visiting France. An elaborate programme for a week's entertainment has been arranged in Paris for officers and crews, which are commanded by Admiral Beatty. The officers are making a tour of the battlefields including Rheims. The visit is made the occasion for leading articles in the French newspapers, which pay warm tributes to the British Navy. On arrival at Cherbourg to-day, a British squadron comprising four battleships, one cruiser and eight destroyers commanded by Vice-Admiral Eyreton, was given a splendid welcome. The town was profusely decorated. The second squadron, composed of five cruisers and eight destroyers, commanded by Admiral Corwhitt, arrived in Brest to-day. Enormous crowds welcomed the naval party.

BANK STRIKE SETTLED.
BERLIN, April 22. The bank employees' strike was settled to-day and employees resumed work.
"THE WORST IS YET TO COME."
BUDAPEST, April 23. The worst crisis is now on. Rumors that Roumanians and Czechs are to attack the city increase the unrest.

Presentation to Popular Official.
Royal Stores, Ltd., Honor Manager Hirst.
Last evening, at the Royal Stores Clothing Factory, a very pleasing presentation took place when Manager Hirst, who is resigning his position owing to ill-health, and who on Saturday next leaves for England, was presented by Mr. A. Macpherson, in the presence of his co-workers, with an address and purse of $1,000. Mr. Macpherson spoke very kindly of the services rendered to the firm by Manager Hirst during the past 18 years, and hoped that, with his visit to the Old Country and with a suitable rest, his health would be fully restored. He was very sorry indeed to lose the services of one who had served him so faithfully, and wished him "bon voyage." Mr. Macpherson then requested Mr. H. Macpherson, Secretary of The Royal Stores, Limited, to read the address. Needless to say Mr. Hirst was completely taken by surprise, and in the best way possible thanked his employers for such a token of esteem, which he would ever cherish. He had the satisfaction of knowing that he had done his best during that period, and hoped that the factory would continue to flourish as in the past. He wished the business all success and felt the parting very keenly. Following this presentation was one from the staff, suitably worded accompanied with a very handsome set of cuff links of Newfoundland gold coin, with initials engraved, enclosed in satin case. Also another very beautiful address from the home-workers, who had gathered together for the occasion, which was accompanied by a very handsome Mother of Pearl and gold fountain-pen, with initials, in a plush case. The address of the home-workers was read by Mrs. Wm. Coady. All felt keenly the parting with one who had been so long connected with the firm, and Manager Hirst leaves, without doubt, with the best wishes of all concerned.

Guard of Honor.
By last evening's train a squad of soldiers from the Royal Newfoundland Regiment went out to Carbonear to attend the funeral of the late Pte. William Roy Saunders, who died on Tuesday last from wounds received in the battle of Monchy LePreux.

Capt. McDonald's Thanks.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I desire to give public expression of my thanks to the following officials who answered my call for assistance on the occasion when five of my officers and crew lost their lives through the boiler explosion on board the Cape Breton.
To the lighthouse-keeper at Cape Spear, who so quickly interpreted my signals and exerted himself to summon aid to the ship; to Mr. Stone, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who not only made every arrangement for sending relief to us, but personally came out to us and directed the bridging of the straits of Bellefleur. Nothing was left undone by him and his department which could afford us assistance and bring relief to the sufferers; to Mr. Crosbie, the Minister of Shipping, who personally joined the relief party; to Dr. Campbell, who so speedily was on hand with all assistance and appliances ready to afford relief to the injured, and who performed all his duties with the utmost promptitude and tenderness; to the nurses, whose skill and humanity did so much to ease the sufferings of my injured officers and men; to the hospital doctors and officials who cared for our third-engineer, Mr. Campbell. I also feel that I ought to express my thanks to Mr. R. G. Reid, for his thoughtful attentions to us when we arrived in port. Nor can I omit to mention the steadiness, skill and energy with which my officers and crew faced a situation of great distress to them. I have nothing but thanks for everybody who had an opportunity of giving us assistance and rendering us kindness in our trouble.
Yours truly,
S. E. McDONALD,

A Complete Set of Emergency Repair Equipment

This handy Goodyear Tyre Saver Kit contains just the accessories you need to properly care for your tyres and make emergency repairs on the road.

It is a much needed package that every motor car owner should have—useful safety insurance. This Goodyear Tyre Saver Kit will help you avoid needless tyre damage and expense. It may save you from having to drive home on a flat tyre after you have run over a piece of glass or a nail.

And the price of the whole Kit would seem cheap for just the one article you may need when you meet with a mishap miles away from a garage or a tyre dealer.

The only way to have the help you need, when you need it, is to have it with you.

So we suggest that you pack this kit under your seat or in the side pocket of your car. Then you will be ready for the emergency when it arises.

Legislative Council.

(Yesterday.)
The House met at 4 o'clock yesterday.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs asked for correspondence between the Imperial Government and local Government re the sale or purchase of the produce of the sealfishery of 1918.

A reply is being prepared.

The second reading of the Tenants' Ejecting Bill was deferred.

The Bill to amend the Workman's Compensation Act, was deferred.

The House went into Committee on the Extension of Parliament Bill.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs moved an amendment that an election be held in 1919, and not later than Nov. 10th. In doing so he pointed out that though the life of Parliament was extended to Sept. 1919, it did not prevent the Government from postponing an election until the Spring of 1920, and if the Ministers of the Crown so advised the Governor, there was no reason why His Excellency may not delay the election accordingly.

The leader of the Government raised no objection, and the amendment was inserted in the Bill and carried unanimously, and the Bill passed committee and was read a third time.

On motion for adjournment, Hon. Mr. Anderson again referred to the housing problem, and quoted from Hon. Mr. Ellis's speech a few days ago. He invited the Government to bring along any new policy it had, and he would give it his hearty support. If they had no policy to offer, they should, instead of wastefully spending money, encourage the working men's company, which he then represented. It was useless to have water and sewerage system running through the city unless the people could use them, and the only way in which they could become public utilities in the proper sense was by building houses for the people.

Hon. Messrs. Harvey and Bishop were deeply interested in the housing problem, but thought Mr. Anderson before occupying the attention of the House and asking for Government assistance, should make his plans fully known; so far they were probing in the dark.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs fully explained what the Co-operative Company asked from the Government. To reduce the cost of building the houses, they asked that duty be removed from glass, locks, sanitary fittings, etc., which were not made locally, and a grant of $100,000, which would only equal grants given to local concerns, that were making big profits, and out for such only. If the Government was subsidizing private investments, surely it was right that they should at least encourage an enterprise that was not out for making money.

Hon. Mr. Anderson replied to the criticisms of Hons. Harvey and Bishop. To the former he said he had given a prospectus of the Company weeks ago, and if he had not studied the matter up in the interim, it was not Mr. Anderson's fault. For almost a year the Press had dealt with the matter, the Government and the Municipal Council had been consulted and the country had been talking about it. He would deal with the matter more fully when the Bill came before the House.

At five o'clock, on motion of Hon. Mr. Ellis, the House adjourned until 4 o'clock to-morrow.

flows into the Bug. Eighty-seven miles to the east is Tarnopol, near the Russian border, among the first points of attack when the Muscovites crossed the Galician. The scene of a popular uprising in 1848, Lemberg became the seat of the Galician Diet upon the establishment of that body in 1861. Before 1914 it manufactured iron ware, machinery, matches, candles, liquors, chocolate, leather, bricks and tiles. Its commerce was largely in linen, wool, oil, flax and hemp.

The "Write-Up" Pest.

The most successful editor is the one who best handles the newspaper pests. A man calls at a newspaper office who has made a dull speech of no importance. The speaker wants a good "notice," and tries to influence the editor to give it to him. If the editor is weak he succumbs. A politician has a scheme in which there may not be a particle of sense. He hangs around the newspaper offices, and begs for free publicity. It is dishonest for the politician to expect it; dishonest for the editor to give the man a showing better than the rest. A preacher is raising a fund of no importance. It is his business to raise such funds, and he coaxes the editors to give his scheme more publicity than it deserves. A theatrical man has a poor show, and loafs around the editor with all sorts of schemes to induce the newspapers to boom him. He invents big stories, and gives the public a wrong idea of his star and his play. A committee man has a scheme; schemes are as numerous as leaves on the trees, and the first place the schemers go to is the Newspaper office. The idea always is to fool and rob the patient and overburdened public. A woman gives a party. She expects more publicity than her party deserves. A MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, ETC.

musician plays a piano solo, and begs the editors for free space in which to unduly praise it. If the editor is weak, his paper appears with a lot of rubbish of no importance to anyone, to the neglect of real news and real opinions. Such an editor is not only weak and foolish; he is unfair to his employer, and to the people who buy the paper. Every editor of reasonable sense is able to handle bores successfully; he refuses to give them the space they demand—he is honest, and therefore becomes successful. I can show you scores of American newspapers rendered ridiculous, ineffective, and less successful than they might be, by the newspaper bores. Every editor can pick out the stuff coaxed in by the newspaper pests. Every editor who runs a lot of free stuff is not only foolish; he is dishonest, and injures himself, because he is not a good editor, and will finally be compelled to make way for a better one. The big and successful publications are noted for the absence of free stuff; of silly puffs. The great papers stand by their readers, and the readers appreciate it.—Vancouver Daily Sun.

WITH FINGERS! CORNS LIFT OUT

Freezone is magic! Corns and calluses lift right off— Doesn't hurt a bit

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So easy! So simple. Why wait? No humbug!

An Important Point.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Will you, in the interest of all concerned, use your influence to see that one important point is not overlooked in the awarding of the Coastal Contract by the Government. This important point is, that the firm who is awarded the contract, must provide suitable premises, and have a certain number of checkers, to assure, that no unnecessary delay is caused in receiving freight at St. John's. Everybody knows the delays caused the past few years, at Reids', Crosbie's, Bowring's, etc. It was only an everyday occurrence, use your influence to leave his employer's premises at say, 3 o'clock, only to return about 5 p.m. with his truckload of goods, not having been able to get near the shipping point.

All this delay can be avoided, and the Government should see to it that a clause covering this, is inserted in the contract. If the present mode of receiving freight is to obtain for the next 20 years, it would be just as well not to have any contract at all. It is next to impossible to do business under such conditions. In both Houses we have business men who are fully aware that what I state is correct, and it is to these people the country now look (not for protection) but for ordinary fair play. I trust we will not look in vain.

Obituary.

MRS. JAMES G. HUNT.

Yesterday evening at 8.30 Mrs. Mary Julia Hunt, relict of the late James G. Hunt, died peacefully at the General Hospital. A few days ago the good lady underwent an operation and for a time appearances of recovery were very favourable, but a relapse set in and death superseded. Mrs. Hunt was born at Greenspond, Bonavista Bay, in 1861, and was the daughter of the late James L. Noonan. In 1882 she married the late J. G. Hunt, commission merchant, one of St. John's most respectable citizens. She leaves to mourn five daughters, viz., Gertrude, wife of Mr. F. M. Stirling, of the Colonial Secretary's Department; and Hilda, Alice, Janie and Nellie at home, and also three sons, Charles, the well known barrister of the firm of Conroy, Higgins & Hunt; George, of the Victoria Rifles; and Nicholas, of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, the latter now returning home.

The youngest son, Cecil, of "Ours" died on the other side last year. Mrs. Hunt was most forward in any good work of the community and was closely associated with the C. L. B. Memorial Committee and St. Thomas's Sewing Circle and similar circles.

To the sorrowing relatives sympathy is offered in which Telegram joins.

Engineers Fare Bad

As a result of the agreement entered into by the engineers with the ship owners before the seal hunt began, the percentage basis, the engineers' staff made very poor wages, in cases the amount of fat brought was comparatively small. To this, the ship owners, it is said, intend putting their sealing ships on the coal trade this year, and before they are cutting down the regular staff of engineers, and consequently many of the latter are out of work.

The Troubles of Lemberg.

Already bearing the scars of the world war, added to the marks of sieges and captures through the first five centuries of its municipal existence, even the armistice has not brought peace to Lemberg, which Ukrainians are reported to have attacked.

Residents of the city must walk with a grim smile through the battle-torn promenades built on the space left free by the demolition of the fortifications of the inner city of Lemberg in 1811, at a time when the citizens of the Galician capital looked confidently for an era of peace. Lemberg, known as Ludwiga in Polish and Leopolds in Latin, was founded in the thirteenth century by a Ruthenian prince. Casimir the Great added to it his domain in 1340 and bestowed upon the city the charter and privileges known as the Magdeburg Rights.

When Constantinople fell its trade with the East flowed, but it was all but engulfed in the revolutions and maraudings which swept over the Ukraine and parts of Poland during the last half of the seventeenth century—an earlier manifestation of Bolshevism directed by the Cossack hetman, Chmielnicki.

Charles XII of Sweden, took Lemberg, along with other Polish cities when the ill-advised Augustus II. was drawn into the Great Northern War. Upon the first partition of Poland, in 1772, Lemberg was allotted to Austria.

In connection with the division of Polish lands, the Empress Maria

Theresa wrote, prophetically in view of recent events, "I have yielded, not wishing to make war, but quite contrary to my convictions. I hope that the monarchy may not feel the effects of this after my death."

Frederick the Great of Prussia, who had engineered the partition, did not take the Austrian monarch's qualms seriously. "She is always weeping and always taking," was his comment.

In the same year Austria came forward with additional claims on the ground that Prussia and Russia were availing themselves of the opportunity to acquire certain districts for which they had long contended. Therefore, despite her pangs of conscience, the provident empress gained possession of about 1,500 square miles of territory, to which she gave the title of the kingdom of Galicia and Lodomeria, and made Lemberg the capital. Twelve years later Joseph II., whose futile ambitions caused his reign to be compared to a man who constantly desired to sneeze and could not, established the University of Lemberg. This university became one of the best known Polish institutions of learning.

One of Lemberg's parks bears the name of the Polish patriot, Jan Kilinski, a shoemaker, who fought bravely in 1796. He was captured and taken to St. Petersburg. Following his release he returned to his shoemaker's bench and when custom was light he wrote his recollections which form a valuable record of this period.

Lemberg, nearly as large as Winnipeg, before the war began, was the fourth city of Austria. It is 60 miles east of Przemysl, and more than 450 miles northeast of Vienna. It lies on the banks of the Peltew River, which

Half The Truth.

By RUTH CAMERON.

What a dreadful thing it is to tell half of an unkind truth about anyone and then leave your hearers to fill in the rest.
Here's an example of the sort of thing I mean. Some years ago at a small summer place where I was staying was a young married woman whose husband was away on business. She had no children nor household cares, there being no war work then to give her energy, she was naturally restless. In the middle of the summer there appeared at our little place a young man who had come to the rest of the season for his wife's sake. Inevitably the two got much together. They walked, sang, rode and read poetry together. There was nothing secretive about their relationship—it was just a case of where that Mary went that man sure to go.

The Husband Didn't Mind. Of course there was some talk as to always is, but the husband in brief visits he made seemed to have no objection to the friendship I don't believe the talk would amount to anything if it had been for one of those half truths. The woman who had the room the young married woman used to be. We were discussing as to how deeply impressed the young man was. "You had heard what I have," said, "you'd think it was a pretentious affair."
Of course, being woman born of man, we wanted to know what she heard.
"Didn't Believe in Starting Gossip!" she said. "I don't believe in talking and starting gossip," she said righteously.
"If anything in the world could start me gossiping," she said, "it started so much gossip that a divorce nearly occurred. I'm sure perhaps someone is thinking

WHEN THE KIDS ARE AT THE WINDOW.

When the kids are at the window with their faces all aglow
With a merry smile of greeting, up the steps I gayly go
And I leave my cares behind me and I hustle through the door
For the hugs and glad embraces and the romp upon the floor.

It may be that I am weary with the burdens of the day,
That my task was over-heavy and I've faltered on the way,
But when home I come at evening I'm as happy as can be
If the kids are at the window there to welcome me.

There's a smile for every failure, there's a hug for every care,
There are little hands to lighten every burden that I bear,
There are eyes that fairly glisten as I walk along the street
And a promise of a welcome that shall make my toiling sweet.

Let the rich man have his mansion, let the great man have his fame,
I thank the Lord above me for the joy that's mine to claim;
And whatever else may happen, every day shall end in glee,
If the kids are at the window with their happy smiles for me.

MAKING DAINTY ANKLES.

You can never associate the term "dainty" with a woman who has large ankles. Grace, for some reason or other, goes hand in hand with slender ankles. The feet may be large, but if the ankles are shapely no comments will ever be made upon their size. It is impossible to change the conformation of the bone, but exercises and massage will do much toward bringing shapeliness to ankles that are naturally homely.

When there is too little or too much flesh about the bone it can be increased almost at will. I know a woman who reduced the size of her extremely large ankles by 10 minutes' work twice a day. She first removed her shoes and stockings and then exercised her ankles in this manner:

Cross one knee over the other until the foot is raised from the floor, thereby taking any support from it. Thrust the foot out and move the joint at the ankle with a twisting movement, followed by an up and down movement. When one foot grows tired the exercise should be repeated with the other until the first is rested, when it should again be exercised. A slight variety may be given to these exercises by standing and turning the feet from side to side. Of course, you must not wear shoes while following this exercise.

After exercising plump the feet into a hot bath, in which the water must cover the ankles. Allow them to remain in the water for 10 minutes. The feet and ankles should then be carefully wiped and rubbed well with camphorated oil or a strong saturated solution of alum.

This will reduce the flesh around the ankle in a surprisingly short time. The action of the oil is slower, and if desired it is possible to use both remedies alternately.

Cabby's Deduction.

During a lecture tour through the United States, Sir Conan Doyle arrived one day in Boston and was considerably astonished when a cabman accosted him and addressed him by name. "How did you know who I was?" said Sir Conan Doyle, much interested, and not a little flattered by the recognition.

"If you'll excuse me saying so," said the cabman, "the lapels of your coat look as if they had been grabbed by New York reporters, your hair looks as if you had had to stand your ankle with a twisting movement, followed by an up and down movement. When one foot grows tired the exercise should be repeated with the other until the first is rested, when it should again be exercised. A slight variety may be given to these exercises by standing and turning the feet from side to side. Of course, you must not wear shoes while following this exercise."

Household Notes.

Salt brings out the flavor of sugar. A good chutney is made with dried peaches.
An oyster shell in the teakettle will prevent rust.
Fresh bread in the cake box will keep the cake fresh.
Never use for the skin anything but the purest soap.
In roasting a leg of lamb allow 20 minutes to the pound.
The larger the roast the easier it is to cook it properly.
Never try to dig your garden until the soil is friable.
Fresh fruit syrups, cold, are delicious served on waffles.
Scalloped salsify is a delicious dish for spring luncheon.
Canvas gloves when paraffined are very useful in housework.
Place a large sponge in the bottom of your umbrella jar.
Soap rubbed on the screens and screen strips prevent sticking.
Wash black silks in water in which pared potatoes have boiled.
Almond meal is an excellent cleanser for a very sensitive skin.
Pistachio nuts when ground add flavor and color to desserts and salads.
If china is carefully wrapped and boiled before using it will last longer.
Orange is one of the most agreeable of all flavors in a cake filling.
Small loaves of bread are better for several reasons than large ones.
Barley is a most excellent breakfast cereal with abundance of cream.
The cheapest food that can be bought at the present moment is milk.
Meat should be looked upon now more as a flavor food than a main dish.
Combinations of vegetables and milk are above the best meat substitutes.
Mignonette in window boxes will help prevent flies from entering the house.
Remedy sagging cane seats by scrubbing with boiling hot suds. Set in sun.
When boiling salad dressing, stir the beaten eggs into the vinegar before boiling.

Detrimental to Marriage

The scarcity of houses all over Great Britain is having a very prejudicial effect on the marriage rate. At a meeting of the Spalding Rural Council, in a discussion on the housing question, the Vicar of Deeping St. Nicholas, the Rev. W. M. Benson, said that young people were coming to him and saying they wanted to get married, but they could not obtain houses to live in. He added, "I am losing feet!" The same state of things appears to exist in the parish of St. Michael, Cricklewood, with a population of nearly 6,000, for the Vicar points out that there has been no wedding in his church since August last. St. Pancras Borough Council are to invite plans, etc., for the erection of blocks of flats on a site in Prince of Wales Road, to contain provision for two, three and four room self-contained flats, to have gas, electricity and hot water services, and common baths and wash-houses.

Divorce Figures.

Approximately one out of every nine marriages in the United States is terminated by divorce, according to figures compiled by the Bureau of the Census. Excluding South Carolina, where all laws permitting divorces were repealed in 1878, and the three lowest divorce rates in 1916, for which year returns are now complete, are shown now for the District of Columbia, North Carolina and New York, where the rates were 13.31, 42 per 100,000 respectively. The highest rates were returned for Nevada, Montana and Oregon, which shows 697,

FISH.

The fish again are in the brook, from distant waters fishing; and I must take a line and hook, and catch a cod or herring. When spring arrives I always feel an idiotic longing to go abroad with rod and reel, where other sports are thronging. My wife remarks, "To stream-let's shore I beg that you won't beat it; go, buy canned salmon at the store, and stay at home and eat it. You're always grouchy as a bear when you come home from angling; the way you rave around and swear sets all my nerves a-jangling." I know she's right; the fishing game I ought to call a halt on; I'll never duplicate the fame of good old Isaac Walton. 'Twere better far to plant some spuds, or prune the growing carrot, or gather up my winter duds, and store them in the garret. And yet the mighty urge I feel would make the dearest swab stir; I'll have to try to catch an eel, a dolphin or a lobster. I ought to trim that stately tree, whose life is plainly falling; but oh, the brook is calling me, and I must catch a grayling. I ought to grind the reaping hook, and toil like thrifty brothers; but there are suckers in the brook, and wall eyed pike and others. So I'll forsake the growing greens, and leave the rhubarb dying, and go and catch some canned sardines, or break a fishpole trying.

Half Truths Are Cowardly.

There is nothing in the world more cowardly or mean than an insinuating half truth. If you must speak at all for Heaven's sake tell the whole truth.
One sometimes does this sort of thing unconsciously, I think. The other day I spoke slightly of a doctor. I wouldn't tell why I disliked him and the inference might easily have been that he had given me treatment of an unsatisfactory nature. Which wasn't at all the case. So I hastened to tell the whole truth.
There is something infinitely healing about the whole truth, isn't there? Even if like many healing measures it is sometimes painful at the first.

Engineers Fare Badly

As a result of the agreement made by the engineers with the ship owners before the seal hunt began, when for the former were to be paid on percentage basis, the engineers' staff made very poor wages, as in cases the amount of fat brought was comparatively small. To add to this, the ship owners, it is said, do intend putting their sealing ships on the coal trade this year, and therefore they are cutting down the regular staff of engineers, and consequently many of the latter are out of work.

The Incomparable Infantry.

The famous Victoria despatch of Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, dated December 21st, 1918 and addressed to the British Secretary of State for War has been published in the full text, and is one of the most absorbing documents of the war, describing the complete operations on the Western front from the end of April 1918 to the signing of the armistice on November 11th, and being a record of continuous victory. The Field Marshal touches on every detail of the great offensive and pays just tribute to every department of the services engaged, but particularly does he lay emphasis on the most striking kind on the gallant deeds of the incomparable infantry, whose rifles and bayonets won the war. The infantry battalions, to quote a famous General "are the backbone of the British army," but in the recent war they were, as well, the whole body, because it was upon the foot regiments that the brunt of the fighting fell. In the early days, before the British artillery had been brought up to the requirements of the struggle, it was the rifle and bayonet that stemmed the crush of the German torrent and stayed its course, and though utterly outnumbered by the enemy the men of the line were never outfought or outgeneraled. Yet notwithstanding the superior numbers of the foe, it was not until two and a half years of conflict had passed that the high water mark of the fighting strength of the British infantry had been reached, and this fact itself more than demonstrates that any demonstration were needed—the indubitable superiority of the British army in morale and fighting power. To quote General Haig's despatch:—

"Despite the enormous development of mechanical invention in every phase of warfare, the place which the infantryman has always held as the main substance and foundation of an army, is as secure to-day as in any period of history. The infantryman remains the backbone of defence and the spearhead of the attack. At no time has the reputation of the British infantryman been higher or his achievements more worthy of his renown. During the past three months, the same infantry divisions have advanced to the attack day after day and week after week with an untiring, irresistible ardour which refused to be denied. No praise can be too high for the valour they have shown, no gratitude too deep for the work they have accomplished."

In this eulogy of the infantry, Newfoundlanders will be deeply interested. Our regiment shares in the praise so lavishly and sincerely bestowed by the Field Marshal commanding the British forces. The men from Terra Nova formed part of the line which was bent but never broken, and through all the turmoil of the mighty struggle, the Caribou with upreared head and branching antlers was ever in the forefront; the men wearing the noble stag as their badge being part of the backbone of a defence which held and broke the advancing waves of German divisions. Every branch of the army in the field receives its tribute from the gallant Field Marshal: Artillery, Cavalry, Air Forces, Tanks, Labor Corps, Medical Corps, Forestry, Machine Gunners, Engineers, Gas, Signal, Transportation and Supply services, Chaplains and Administrative Departments, not one is omitted, but, as is only natural, the successors to "the men that fought at Minden" come in for the lion's share of the praise, as they bore the lion's share of the engagements, which ended in the breaking down of the spirit of the enemy, and his utter discomfiture. "The strain of the closing years of the war" says the despatch, "was never ceasing, the demands they made upon the best of the Empire's manhood are now known. Yet throughout all these years... the confidence of our troops in final victory never wavered. Their courage and endurance rose superior to every test, their cheerfulness never falling, however terrible the conditions in which they lived and fought. By the long road they trod with so much faith and with such devoted and self-sacrificing bravery, we have arrived at victory, and to-day they have their reward." Eloquent testimony indeed to the unequalled spirit and devotion of the soldiers of the British Empire.

The Public Debt.

From the recent figures presented to the House of Assembly by the Minister of Finance, it is calculated that, including the new loan to be raised next month, the public debt of the Dominion has now reached the enormous sum of approximately $46,250,000. (Forty-six Million and a quarter dollars), the interest charge on which is Two Million and Ninety Thousand Dollars. ($2,990,000). To go against the gross debt there is about $1,500,000, due the Colony by the Municipal Council, and some scrip of the Harbor Grace Water Company amounting to $13,700. The net debt, therefore, approximates Forty-four Million, Eight Hundred Thousand Dollars ($44,800,000), an increase of some twenty-two million dollars since 1909, when the Morris Government assumed control. Verily the money has flown in the past ten years.

Why the Rake-Off?

Returns tabled by the Minister of Finance at the House yesterday show that the subscriptions to the Victory Loan taken in Canada, last year, were underwritten at 95. In other words the Canadian purchaser bought the Bonds at a discount of 5 per cent, which gives him an additional interest and a profit over and above that enjoyed by the Newfoundland investor, whose lowest rate of purchase was 98, when taken in blocks of $50,000. The small subscriber received no such discount, having taken his shares at par, a discrimination which, as was pointed out at the time was both unjust and unfair. But what can be said of the exceedingly favorable terms allowed the Canadian investor, who not only received the five per cent discount, thus buying stock at 95 for 100, but gets on that account an extra ½ per cent on his investment. Whereas the local subscriber receives 6½ p.c. per annum the more fortunate and privileged outsider is drawing interest at the rate of 7 per cent. Was there a rake-off? Subsequent events will tell.

Annual Vital Statistics.

The Registrar General has our thanks for a copy of his Annual Report on the Vital Statistics of the Dominion for the year ended December 31st, 1918. During that year the registration of births were 7,465, deaths 5,182. Natural increase, 2,283. The death rate for the period covered by the report was unfortunately the highest for some years, the epidemic of Spanish influenza being responsible for the increased mortality, the total rate reaching the proportion of 19.98 per thousand. It is interesting, as well as hopeful to notice the decrease in the Infant Mortality rates, 1918 showing the least percentage—135.30 per thousand—for eight years, for the St. John's districts, but the death toll of infants is yet too high, and more care and attention will have to be given both mothers and children, if the infant mortality is to be brought to a normal stage. For the Dominion, the rate is also the smallest for eight years, the proportion of deaths to births being 114.32 per thousand. For St. John's City, the infant deaths per thousand, though much less than those of the previous year (1917) still reach the appalling ratio of 152.05. Much remains to be done regarding the welfare of the child in order to reduce these figures in future.

The comparative table of twelve principal causes of death is headed by the "White Plague," which is responsible for 746 victims. Next comes Influenza with 743; Old Age, 438; Congenital Debility, 395; Pneumonia, 338; Infantile, 311; Paralysis, 143; Cancer, 134; Bronchitis, 116; Measles, 108; Whooping Cough, 94; Diphtheria and Croup, 40.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Geo. W. LeMessurier, of the G. P. O., is still confined to his home with a heavy attack of bronchitis. Mr. Geo. Neal has been ill for the past few weeks and is still unable to get out. Mr. Charles Bulley, accompanied by his wife, leaves to-day on a health trip to Canada and the United States. Mr. L. Wakeley, of Hr. Buffett, is at present in the city. Messrs. O. Leach and H. Archibald, of Harbor Grace, are registered at the Crosbie. Mr. J. Kelloway, for so many years purser on the South Coast steamship route to the Reid Newfoundland Co's boats, has been appointed station agent of the Company at Bonavista, and left by train to-day, with his family, to take up his new duties. Mr. Kelloway takes with him the best wishes of all who travelled with him on the Glenoce, Fogota, and other ships in which he served. L-Cpl. James Peyton arrived in town on Friday night last, after an absence of seven years, four of which he served for his King and Country, two years and three months being a prisoner of war in Germany. He is looking fine after his long absence, and feels nothing the worse for his experience with the Hun. He is now spending an enjoyable time with his parents and many friends who are glad to see him back again, and will shortly be leaving again for the Old Country where he will make his future home. Cpl. Peyton was a member of the 17th Battalion, C.F.

The Majestic.
To-night's presentation at the Majestic will be a "Select" film, portraying Constance Talmage in "Up the Road with Sallie." This picture is a complete departure from those formerly presented at the popular theatre, being bright, vivacious, breezy, humorous and pathetic by turns. There will also be screened a Drows Comedy, a laugh-maker from start to finish and one which it will be a delight to witness.
The management are considering the reproduction of last night's presentation of "War Brides," having been requested to do so by hundreds of people who, owing to other engagements during the opening evenings of Easter week were unable to witness this production. The Majestic has the popular pictures and will continue its policy of giving nothing but the best.

The Harkins Co.

Despite the rain storm last night, the Harkins Company had no cause to be disappointed in the size of the audience when the curtain rose on the first setting of "Johnny Get Your Gun," a comedy in a Prologue and three acts, the former dealing with the motive picture taken out West, the latter with scenes occurring in an aristocratic country home at Long Island, New York, where the usual matchmaking in money and titles was exemplified.

The whole play evoked a continuous roar of laughter, the characters being well sustained both in acting, expression and elocution, every word being distinctly audible throughout the Hall. Janet Burnham, the heroine, was portrayed by Miss Maureen Lyons; the society aunt by Miss Bern. Mrs. Tupper, by Miss Boniface, Miss Marjorie Dalton, as Jordan the maid, played a difficult part with great vim and dash. The title role "Johnny" was taken by Mr. Keith Ross, and was typically Western. The pseudo-duke of No Man's land, who is after the cash, was presented by Mr. Cody, who was really funny. Pollett, the duke's English valet, bore a remarkable resemblance to a distinguished individual at present in our midst, and if the make up was accidental it was none the less striking. The other characters in the comedy were Johnny the Butler (Mr. Mann), Cotto, the family lawyer (Mr. Jolley), John Milton, a friend (?) of the Burnham family (Mr. Hubert) and Bert Whiting, who eventually marries the heiress (Mr. Harvey). The play, which will be repeated to-night, is excellently staged, and is well worth seeing. (If only to note the "valet") and another crowded ed house will undoubtedly witness the presentation this evening.

Wedding Bells.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Patrick's Church on Easter Monday night, when Pte. David Hipditch, of "Onra," son of the late Thomas and Elizabeth Hipditch led to the altar Miss Victoria Marie, second eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Marie of Salmonier. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Fr. Benoit, P.P. The bride, who was very prettily attired in a costume of sage blue silk with hat to match, was attended by her sister, Miss Jessie Marie, while the groom was supported by the bride's cousin, Pte. A. Whelan. Many numerous and handsome presents were received testifying to the popularity of the couple. After the wedding a reception was held at the groom's residence and was attended by many friends.

Victim of German "Kamerad."

HAS SCAR AND GUN AS SOUVENIRS

"He's faking," warned the Y.M.C.A. man's companion as they approached a supposedly wounded German officer. The "Y" man had gone over the top with the boys and was serving as a stretcher bearer, so he kept on toward most of us neglect to explore a foot of him when the officer, who had his hands above his head in regular surrender fashion, made a sudden motion with the right hand, there was an explosion and a bullet tore through the American's arm.

The victim of this bit of German "strategy" is Alexander P. Watson, of Knoxville, Tenn., who has just returned from France. The "kamerad" gun, which he brought home as a souvenir, is so small that it can be concealed in the palm of the hand. The short muzzle is entirely hidden by the fingers. The weapon is also fitted with a stock so built that it fits into the curve of the hand as it is held above one's head, and the long trigger is worked with the little finger.

In "surrendering" the wielder of this treacherous mechanism holds up his left hand with the palm forward in the usual fashion, but the right holding the gun is extended above the head with the palm turned in, concealing the pistol. When the victim is close enough, a twist of the wrist is enough to do the work.

There was no resistance on the part of the German when Watson finally got this souvenir. A doughty in a "mopping-up" party at work nearby saw the attack on the "Y" man. The soldier's action, which was instantaneous, made it unnecessary for the stretcher bearers to pick up this particular "wounded" man.

London Leads.

By a World-Traveler.

The "Tipperary" song revived a vague sentimentality over the passing of Picoacilly and the loss of Lesfesters-square, but few Englishmen and no Londoners seem to realize the pre-eminence of London. Indeed, the term "Cockney" is almost a reproach. Every foreigner is obsessed with the delusion that London is garrotted half the year by fogs. We know better, but many of us cherish the humbler ideas about her beauty, pleasures, comfort, and climate.

I have spent part of this winter in Paris. The cost of necessities was between 60 and 100 per cent. higher than here, congestion greater, locomotion much more difficult.

The fogs may never have been so black as our worst are painted, but they were certainly multatio. To snatch a cab was a miracle. The Metro was a sardine-box, where you could scarcely stand on the platform, and you had to begin to wriggle your way out two stations ahead.

All this without the infinite patience and good humour of Londoners. Pavements were packed with people and usually flanked by muddy streams. Gaiety is still checked by law and there are fewer opportunities for dancing.

Rome has more monuments, but most of them are buried or hidden away. They do not display themselves with the grandeur of Westminster Abbey or St. Paul's. All the streets are narrow, even the daunted Corso being no better than the Strand. The muddy Tibet has none of the tender glories of the Thames. The Borghese gardens cannot rival the flowers of Hyde Park or the verdure of Kensington.

Madrid, Vienna, Budapest, even dog-dreamy Bucharest, are too hot in summer and too cold in winter, whereas London never offers painful extremes. Constantinople is just a glorious slum. Athens a collection of coffee-houses and tramways huddled round the Parthenon.

Copenhagen is the only real rival I know, with the gay shops, the smiling people, the night-life of the Tivoli, an inspiration rather than an imitation of Earl's Court. But here is merely a Gaiety miniature, and at present suited to millionaires.

London alone offers solid comfort, the best of the whole world's goods, incessant entertainment, spick tidiness, a sense of home. If you were condemned to give up wandering, where else could you bear to remain?

Most of us neglect to explore a tithe of the treasures and beauties and mysteries which our capital contains, and here we might learn a lesson from our present Dominion's visitors, who often tell me they wonder how they will tear themselves away.—Daily Mail.

The M. C. U.

We have heard a lot recently about the upper class and the working class. Now the middle class has something to say. They have called a meeting in London and decided to form an organization called "The Middle Class Union." The purposes were set forth as follows: To remove undue burdens upon the middle class, including the cost of living; to protect the middle class against bureaucratic and industrial tyranny; to combine for the common protection of those members of the community who have no organization to safeguard their interests. They will in future protect themselves against the tyranny of the autocrats and the industrial classes.

British Seamen and the Indemnity.

Mr. Havelock Wilson's Suggestion.

The Master of the Gladiators' Company (Mr. George Paget Walford) entertained at luncheon yesterday, at the Painters' Hall, Little Trinity-lane, E.C., the members of the Court, a number of shipping members of the Livery, and several guests, including General Peter Balinsky, of Petrograd. Mr. Havelock Wilson, M.P. (president of the Merchant Seamen's League), Captain Tupper (National Organizer of British Seamen), and Dr. Williamson (vice-president of the Oddfellows' Society).

The Master, in proposing the toast of "The Guests," said he deeply sympathized with the admirable letter which Mr. Havelock Wilson wrote to The Times last Thursday, and from his long experience in the shipping world he could not but express his astonishment that there should be any English shipowner at this moment who would desire to suppress any advantages which might have been obtained by the agreement made with the Government authorities for the rate of wages and payment of overtime during the period we had been at war. Shipowners were now able to obtain very profitable freights, and there was absolutely no necessity whatever for any cheese-paring. How long the high rates of freight would be maintained he could not say, but he looked forward to the prosperity of shipowners for some time to come yet.

In the meantime, he thought that some effort should be made by the League and by the Governments of the Allied countries to use their influence to get Allied and neutral nations to legislate so that their crews should be paid a uniform minimum rate of wage. They wanted to level other nations' wages up to our own, and they did not want to bring the wages of their seamen down to the level of competing nations. Some people had an idea that shipowners had been profiteering, but that was not the case as nearly all the steamers requisitioned by the Government during the war had been worked at a loss to their owners. It was also not the fact that the high prices of imported produce were due to excessive freights.

Mr. Havelock Wilson, M.P., in replying, acknowledged the compliment which they had paid, through him, to the British seamen, and said that some of our statesmen had an idea that everything under the sun should be nationalized. If that were done he proposed that the freedom we had enjoyed in this country would be a thing of the past. He did not believe in nationalization at all; he believed in individual effort, which had made us what we were to-day. The Seamen's League stirred up patriotism among the working classes when things were looking bad; whilst the Labour Party, who did not represent the working men in any shape or form, declared in 1917 that we should seek peace by negotiation, and that indemnity should be asked for. The League opposed the Labour Party on both points.

As to the indemnity, it was for this country to tell Germany that until she settled the account we were not going to have any business with her. If the seamen of this country and other countries joined together and said they were not going to carry any goods to or from Germany until the account was settled the difficulty would quickly be solved. (Cheers.) If he were satisfied that the bulk of the Russian people were Bolsheviks he would advise that they should leave them severely alone; but as they were only a small portion of the population we had one policy to pursue, and that

Miss Information.

Sound Detective.

The geophone, invented during the war to determine the exact position of sounds above and beneath the surface of the earth, soon was extensively in mining operations in the United States, according to the Bureau of Mines. The instrument proved of great value in determining the location of the batteries and in detecting the approach of the enemy. The geophone could be located with great accuracy in mining operations, the Bureau says. The instrument will be highly valuable in locating caves and tunnels from escape by cave-dwellers and explosions.

House of Assembly.

(Yesterday.)

House met at 3.15 p.m. Petition presented by Mr. Stone, residents of Trinity Bay on extension, telephone connection by Mr. Walsh, supported by Mr. Piccott, from the residents of Oderin, P. B., on the subject of a road. Mr. Moore from residents of Roman gave notice of a bill to amend relating to weights and measures. The following questions were Currie to ask the Minister to lay upon the table of the House a detailed statement of the amount paid by his department for construction and equipment of Empire Building.

Currie—to ask the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs to lay upon the table of the House a statement in detail showing the services rendered by one thousand dollars during the past year on account of investigating fishery products.

Currie—to ask the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs to lay upon the table of the House a statement showing the cost of raising the $7,543,400.00 of last year, as compared with the cost of the present year at which it was floated.

Piccott—to ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for details of the expenditure of $48,395.80 listed in the report of the Auditor General for the year 1918-19 under section 23 (b) of the Audit Act, for the heading of Marine and Fisheries, for the year 1918-19. Replies were as follows: Currie—referred on account of absence of the Minister from the House. Mr. McGrath was Secretary of the Fisheries Commission in 1914 and in 1918 been paid the sum of $10,000.00. Mr. Currie asked if he had been paid some money on account of his services in 1914 or 1915, to which he responded in the negative. Mr. Piccott, who was then Secretary of Marine and Fisheries, was appointed in the year 1915 to the heading of Marine and Fisheries. He had protested at the time. Mr. McGrath stated that Mr. McGrath had received $600.00 and that he had been voted an honorarium of $100.00 after a lapse of five years. Mr. Piccott said that was a bit mysterious. Another member of the House stated that the claim would have been paid under the Statute of Limitations. The Minister tabled the following questions: Currie—to ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to state the answer was given to the question of preparation of the House then went into Committee on the following: (1) "An Act respecting the evidence and extra-judicial evidence of the Department of Justice." # The Trans-Atlantic Flight

Further Particulars of the Sopwith Attempt --- Hawker's Desperate Intention..

Our readers will be interested in the following additional information concerning that greatest of all great adventures—the flying of the Atlantic Ocean from the New to the Old World. The accomplishment of this mighty feat will represent the third historic event in which the Atlantic has figured. The crossing of the “herring-pond” by the first steamer, the Savannah, just a hundred years ago was regarded as practically the climax of science and wonders. The crossing of the same great waste of water in the early part of the war by the first submarine may be regarded as the second great achievement of the three. And the crossing, in the air will perhaps be the greatest of them all, the very keynote of man's wonderful ingenuity and skill. That this will be done very soon there can be no doubt, for with the brains and capital that now lie behind the many attempts that are being made to accomplish this, the successful achievement, be it sooner or later, is assured. And what a race it is becoming. Despite the fact that the Sopwith machine had arrived here, been assembled and made its test flight before the second machine—the Martinsyde biplane, Raymor—had reached the city, Hawker needs must stay on in impatience, for although to a very great extent man has conquered the elements, he has not yet proven himself absolute master of the air and the ethereal spaces above.

Readers will be startled to know just what a desperate intention the fliers of the Sopwith biplane are entertaining. When about one hundred miles off the Newfoundland coast, and well on their way across, they will drop the whole of the under-carriage of their machine into the ocean, and thus lose all hope of rising again if by any chance something went wrong and they had to come down. By this act of casting off the under-carriage, the machine will have to alight on either land or water with a crash. Thus, with the 6,150 pounds the machine will carry, the very best they can hope to receive upon landing at Brooklands, outside London, is a bad bumping, and that, only if the landing place is exceptionally favorable. Then, of course, there is the terrible possibility that they may, through losing their course, be obliged to land on some rocky shore, and descend with a smash—and the almost inevitable result will be disaster and death. And it is with the presence of such iron-nerved men that St. John's is honored to-day. Determined to risk life for the sake of being the first to accomplish this stupendous journey, Messrs. Hawker and Grieve are brave men—men whose bravery no one but those thoroughly conversant with the conditions that must be faced by the fliers can appreciate or comprehend.

This under-carriage, weighing several hundred pounds, will be released by the pulling of a trap lever at the pilot's right hand, which will automatically release the under-carriage and allow it to drop into the sea below. This, of course, will leave the weight of the machine unevenly distributed, but another ingenious device provides for this and the petrol tanks will be re-distributed. The result of dropping the under-carriage will not only lessen the weight of the machine, but will also materially reduce the wind resistance—a valuable reduction in an airplane, and the engine, ordinarily doing 100 miles an hour, will immediately increase to 118, a speed that then can be maintained under good weather conditions for the duration of the flight.

Needless to state, this intention, although practically new, has been tried before by Hawker, when he went “aloft” in Brooklands, and, releasing the under-carriage, circled downward, without wheels, or other landing gear. He crashed to earth; the propeller was smashed to bits and the underside of the machine cracked. He himself escaped with only a few bruises. In all, before coming here, the Sopwith machine flew about 150 hours, and beyond the short test flight made over St. John's, it has done no other flying. The gasoline and oil have been loaded and everything is ready for the flight.

Both Hawker and Grieve will do well out of the success of their machine. The former, who is a regular member of the Sopwith Co.'s experts, being the best test-pilot in the world, will receive a bonus of $50,000, in addition to the share of the Daily Mail prize of $50,000. Lt. Commander MacKenzie Grieve will get $20,000. To give an idea of the pay Harry Hawker commands, it might be stated that he receives $125 for each test flight he makes, and as there are often as many as a dozen machines to be tested in a day, his earnings may be imagined. His yearly income is about $100,000. He possesses a dozen motor cars. Hawker was a bicycle mechanic in Australia, and went to England in 1912, becoming an airplane mechanic. In 1913 he went to America, there flying in an aviation exhibition.

The moment the biplane gets away from here, the Mt. Pearl wireless station will flash word to every ship at sea, asking them to send out the Sopwith call and their own position, if they have reason to believe the plane to be in their vicinity. The desperate character of the Sopwith attempt surely appeals to Newfoundlanders—used, as many of them are, to brave the storms and terrors of the Atlantic, and nothing but the very best of success is wished the brave men—contrary to the thought given expression in one of the local screeds that bring disgrace upon it and our country.

Meanwhile other plans are being made by other aviators, and if the present weather conditions continue, both here and in mid-Atlantic, the entire project will develop into an even greater race than it now promises, and instead of having two machines ready at the same time, waiting for the first favorable moment in which to leave, we may have half a dozen, and as a result St. John's and Newfoundland must necessarily receive the prominence and publicity so long due but hitherto denied them.

Cathedral Girls' Sale.

The Cathedral Girls' Club continued their sale in the Presbyterian Hall yesterday evening. The attendance, in spite of the weather, was large, and crowds came in after leaving the theatres. So large was the attendance that the girls had the proud privilege of seeing all their goods disposed of. The C.L.B. band was again present and discoursed the usual sweet music. The net results of the bazaar are highly satisfactory and the President, Mrs. H. Hayward and her associates must be praised on their successful bazaar. The stallholders were: Fancy Work—Misses L. Miller, Ryall and Whiteway.
Pantry—Misses Windeler and V. Hayward.
Baby Stall—Mrs. F. Noseworthy.
Novelty—Mesdames Taylor and T. Collingwood.
Candy—Mrs. Fletcher, Miss E. Godden and Miss Reid.
First Aid—Misses Stafford (3), and Reid.
Meat Teas—Mesdames J. and F. Davey; Misses Stick and Edgar.
Afternoon Teas—Misses White, Gardner, Bolt and Furneaux.
Handkerchiefs—Misses M. Gould, V. England, D. Wells and Chislett.

Observed at the House.

In answer to the question, asked yesterday why Sir P. T. did not collect his $1,000.00 before, Sir M. P. stated that a most valuable amount of work was done by the Hon. Sir P. T. as Secretary of the Fishery Commission, but that through some cause or other he had not asked for his salary before now. We perceive that his work was valuable to the extent of $1,000 but any other value we fail to see; perhaps the Minister of Finance could enlighten us in this matter.

Mr. Piccott yesterday in referring to the Grand Bank pier stated it was no good for a member to be bragging of things not done. We think that possibly such a statement, from its forcible veracity is rather hard upon the members to the left of the Speaker.

The “genial” Minister of Works certainly expands daily in geniality of features facial, and we are forced to the painful conclusion that the care-free air is due to the fact that for a few months longer the Board of Works may have his directorship. We wonder is there any thing in the rumours around town that the member for Burgeo and LaPolla hurried to take his seat in the House while the Government member for Burin took his leave of absence. Whether so or not, there was a preternatural look of gravity on the face of the Burgeo representative yesterday as he slowly walked to his seat sometime after the House had convened.

These days are full of worry and grave fears, and such is the condition of things that even the master mind of financial figuring making little errors in his presentation of the Loan Bill. Surely there must be stirring times in the camp these days, to make it possible for such mistakes to emanate from the brain of the financial student of the Walpolean doctrine.

The Wordy President has again made his appearance in the House. Presumably he thinks that his short absence has given the different factions of the Nationalists time to forget his political blunder of recent date, and that things are now as heretofore; perhaps so? but nevertheless silence yet reigns testifying that there is still a lingering doubt in the mind of the Twillingate member.

NURSERY HYGIENE.

The nursery is the most important room in the house; therefore its hygiene must be above suspicion. Many parents fall into a fallacy regarding modern heating methods, and while admitting the comfort, cleanliness and convenience of the Gas Fire, call its suitability for nursery use into question on the grounds of hygiene. This idea is wrong. The modern Gas Fire is more hygienic than the coal fire, has all its noxious points without its bad ones. The Gas Fire gives radiant heat and assists ventilation. All the products of combustion are carried off by the fine connection to the chimney. There is no smoke, dust or ashes, and for a sick room it is invaluable.

The modern ventilated Gas Fire produces radiant heat, a natural heat similar to that given by the sun, and adds hygiene to its many other advantages.

For Conspicuous Gallantry.

The appended official communication, has been received by Mr. Fred O'Brien, 32 Lime Street, from the Department of Militia, and is a fitting testimonial to the gallantry and daring of a son of Terra Nova, who gave his life in the glorious cause of liberty. Pte. H. Trask also mentioned in this despatch, was the companion of the late Pte. O'Brien in the deed which won for both the award of the Military Medal.

Department of Militia,
 St. John's, Nfld., April 15, 1919,
 Fred O'Brien, Esq.,
 32 Lime Street,
 City.

Dear Sir,—
 No. 3603 Pte. E. O'Brien and No. 3156 Pte. H. Trask.
 I beg to quote hereunder the details of the deed for which the Military Medal was awarded your late son No. 3603 Pte. Ed. O'Brien, Royal Newfoundland Regiment, taken from supplement to the London Gazette.

"For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty.
 "On the morning of the 14th October, 1918, during the advance from Ledeghem towards the Lys, almost before the barrage lifted, these two men dashed forward at a pill box. A few of the enemy were leaving the pill box, and as soon as they saw Ptes. O'Brien and Trask threw bombs at them but these two men rushed in and bayoneted three of the enemy. They then went to the pill box and threw a bomb into it, then entered it and captured an Officer and 35 men and 2 M. G's. It was entirely due to the prompt action and dash of these two men that the enemy were prevented from bringing their M. G's into action and causing heavy casualties."

Please accept my congratulations and assurance of the appreciation of the splendid conduct of your son.
 Yours faithfully,
 J. R. BENNETT,
 Minister of Militia.

Mr. Wm. P. King, South Side, Battery, is another parent honored in the exploits of his son, who unfortunately did not live to wear the decoration conferred upon him. The following is the official account of Pte. William King's deed which won the Military Medal.

Department of Militia,
 St. John's, Nfld., April 15, 1919,
 William P. King, Esq.,
 South Side, Battery.

Dear Sir,—
 I beg to quote hereunder the details of the deed for which the Military Medal was awarded your late son, No. 2577, Pte. William P. King, Royal Newfoundland Regiment, taken from supplement to the London Gazette:—

"For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty.
 "On the 14th October, 1918, during the advance from Ledeghem towards the Lys, this man was acting as Company runner. During the whole of the day he carried messages back to Battn. H. Q. often under heavy fire. Especially when his Company was held up at Neerhof during the advance, he carried messages continually back to Battn. H. Q. On each occasion he had to cross about 200 to 300 yards of open ground swept by enemy M. G. fire."

Please accept my congratulations and assurance of the appreciation of the conduct of your late son.
 Yours faithfully,
 J. R. BENNETT,
 Minister of Militia.

Trench Commandments.

The "Ten Commandments" of the Trench are:
 1. When on guard, thou shalt challenge all parties approaching thee.
 2. Thou shalt not send any engravings or any likeness of any airship in heaven above, nor any submarine in the sea, for I, the censor, am a jealous censor, visiting the iniquities of the offenders with three months' C.B., but allowing mercy unto thousands by letting their letters go first who obey my commandments.
 3. Thou shalt not use profane language, unless under extraordinary circumstances, such as, seeing thy mate shot, or getting petrol in thy tea.
 4. Remember the Soldier's week consists of seven days. Six days shalt thou labor, and on the seventh thou shalt do odd jobs.
 5. Honor thy King and Country; keep thy rifle well oiled and shoot straight that thy days may be long in the land the enemy giveth thee.
 6. Thou shalt not steal thy Comrade's kit.
 7. Thou shalt not kill time.
 8. Thou shalt not adulterate thy mess tin by using it as a shaving mug.
 9. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy comrades, but preserve silence on their outdoings.
 10. Thou shalt not covet thy Corporal's post nor the Sergeant-major's, but by thy duty and perseverance they shall rise to the position of field-marshal.

کتاب متوجع للدراسات New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons—First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.
