CHAPTER LXIII.
A PAINFUL POSITION.

In the modesty of fearful duty I read as much as from the rattling tongue
Of stately and audacious eloquence.—
SHAKESPEARE.

If Mr. Reeves had taken unto himself a motto wherewith to carry him through life it was surely "Be consistent and do your duty."

The painfulness of the position in which he was so unexpectedly placed can easily be understood and appreciated.

Here, without a word of notice, or note of warning, he had been started by the announcement of some foul play, some evil work enacted by his most influential client; he had been, furthermore, requested, and in a measure compelled, to take cause against him, and now, as a finite to his wonder, a positive and irrefutable proof of his client's crime has been placed in his hands.

It was very hard upon him, and for a few minutes the poor old gentleman felt inclined to give up in despair; but Rebecca and Sir Charles would not allow that.

They hedged him around, consoled him, and at last ventured to ask the contents of the soiled and dirty document.

"The contents?" he exclaimed piteously, feeling the out-side of his pocket and looking sternly straight in front of him. "Why, madam, this paper is nothing more nor less than Squire Hugh Darrell's last will!"

"Oh!" cried Rebecca, sinking into a chair and turning deathly white. "Oh,

Wash Day and Backache

WASH day is the least welcome day of the week in most homes, though sweeping day is not much better. Both days are most trying on the back.

The strain of washing, ironing and sweeping frequently deranges the kidneys. The system is poisoned and backaches, rheumatism, pains in the limbs result.

Kidney action must be aroused—the liver weakened to action and the bowels regulated by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This favorite prescription of the well-known Receipt Book author will not fail you in the hour of need.

a few words, signifying her readiness to carry out his directions.

There he felt himself safe. With a feeling of triumph and exultation, he rose the next morning and, after a careful toilet and an elaborate breakfast, proceeded to give directions to his secretary.

That gentleman he intended leaving behind to conduct his correspondence and inform him of passing events. He thought he could trust him; he had no suspicion, no doubt whatever.

John Stanfield was, as usual, seated at his writing-table. As usual, he gave no acknowledgment of his master's entrance beyond the slight bow.

Reginald Dartmouth stood looking at him for a moment, then said:

"Stanfield, I have some matters of importance to go through with you this morning."

The secretary looked up. "I am going on the Continent for a short time," continued Reginald Dartmouth, with his languid air. "I am tired of London, bored with England—a trip will do me good."

The secretary, silent still, inclined his head. "I shall start by to-morrow night's mail."

The secretary gave the slightest start, too slight to be perceptible.

"I wish you to remain here and keep a lookout on things at the Dale—you understand?"

The secretary nodded. "I may be away some little time, or I may not. At any rate, I shall forward my address in a day or two; that and all other matters you will keep looked within your own breast."

"I can trust you, I think; you know too well the penalty of unfaithfulness. You will want some money. There is a check for a reasonable amount. You can write for more if necessary. But whatever you write, post the letter yourself, with your own hands. Mark that! Now let me see the letters—the private ones—never mind the others."

He seated himself in the easy-chair and lighted his cigar with the air of a man who had little on his mind save the weariness of killing time.

The secretary handed him one letter marked private.

A slight frown contracted Reginald Dartmouth's brow as he took it, and a dark shadow of doubt, hesitation, and irresolution made it still heavier as he read the short letter.

"When did this come?" he asked. "It was delivered an hour ago," was the reply.

Reginald Dartmouth rose from the chair and, with the frown still black and heavy, paced the room.

What did it mean? Why could not the old idiot explain, or, at least, give him a hint of the business he deemed so important? What was he to do—only two days clear, and; come what would, he must start to-morrow night—what was he to do?

At last he decided and, glancing at his watch, said: "Have the goodness to give directions for the immediate saddling of my horse. I am summoned to Dale. Lose not a moment! I must start to-morrow—stay!" he exclaimed. "Send Philip on to engage post-horses at the different stages. I will follow within an hour."

He turned to leave the room almost before the last words had left his lips, or most assuredly would have seen the pained expression on the secretary's face.

"An hour!" exclaimed John Stanfield. "Oh, Heaven, be kind and lend me strength of body and mind to keep pace with him! An hour—an hour!" And, with trembling lips and excited eyes, the slim, graceful figure of the youth ran with the speed of a fawn down the broad staircase.

CHAPTER LXIV.
BACK FROM THE CAPE.

I have set my life upon a cast
And I will stand the hazard of the die.—
SHAKESPEARE.

The hero of the "Clavonia," Laurence Harman or Hugh Darrell, whichever name the reader may choose to assign to our hero, was certainly not wanting in firmness and a dogged sort of patience.

Some men, most men, would have gone mad in such an imprisonment, at such a restraint, as he endured.

He had not seen England for years; he knew absolutely nothing concerning his father and his old home. During the long and fearful journey home, when men and women were lying about the decks panting with thirst and dying of hunger, he felt maddened by the intense longing to see Dale—dear, sweet, old Dale! But now he was bound hand and foot by his promise to these men that he would not leave their sight until he had worked off the debt incurred by his illness.

A promise to Hugh Darrell was a sacred thing, to be kept faithfully and strictly, though death stood in the way.

So he remained within the huge walls working—still silent and thoughtful as ever, consoling himself, perhaps, with the reflection that a sight of Dale could only give him pain, now that it had passed from his hands forever.

Yes, if the squire still lived, his wandering son knew, or felt convinced, that he would be as stern and unyielding as ever, and if he were dead, then that other individual, of whom the old gentleman had spoken when they parted, held the grand old place and called himself master of the Dale.

This sad reflection helped him to bear his imprisonment wonderfully for a time, and when it failed he wrote to his father, as we have seen.

After the dispatch of the letter—we know how far it traveled and whom it reached—he settled into his silent but not morose manner again, and rose the next morning stronger still and readier still to work his promise out.

Allies Will Blockade Russia!

Soviets refused British proposition--Independence of Poland a necessity -- Warsaw now under bombardment by Reds--Democratic Presidential Candidate declares for League of Nations--Western Union cannot land cable.

THE COLONIAL COMPLICATION. MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 8. Permission for the British cable to begin laying outside the three mile limit the proposed cable from Miami to Barbados, has been refused by the British Embassy in Washington. The request of the construction company was transmitted by H. Hubbard, British Vice-consul here, who was directed in reply to hold the cable at anchor until the United States Government had decided as to the issuing of a permit for landing of the cable on United States soil. The cable has a length of sixteen hundred miles of cable valued, according to best construction company officials, at five millions and it was represented to the Embassy that holding of the cable indefinitely was a costly undertaking for both the construction company and the Western Union Telegraph Co., for which the cable was to have been laid.

ARCHBISHOP MANNIX. LIVERPOOL, Aug. 8. Announcement was made by the Bishop to-day that Archbishop Mannix of Australia, would not be disembarked from the steamer Baltic.

COULD NOT ACCEPT DESPATCH. WARSAW, Aug. 8. The Foreign Office announced last evening that the Soviet wireless operator at Moscow, had refused for the third time to receive the Polish Government's message announcing that Poland would send delegates to the Bolshevik-Polish Peace Conference at Minsk. The Soviet operator declared that he was too busy to accept the despatch. Prior to this refusal the Polish Government received a wireless despatch from Moscow expressing surprise that the Polish Peace delegation which returned from its successful meeting last week at be re-imposed within forty eight hours.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA TO HELP POLAND.

PARIS, Aug. 8. Polish counter attacks against the Russian Bolsheviks have been successful, according to newspapers here. France and England, say the Matin, can, without furnishing troops give assistance to Poland in her battle against the Soviet armies. The Czechoslovakian Minister to France declares in an interview printed to-day in the Excelsior that Czechoslovakia would consider intervention in Poland if the territorial integrity and sovereignty of that country should be threatened. He says his country considers the existence of an independent Poland necessary from the view point of European equilibrium.

BOMBARDMENT OF WARSAW.

LONDON, Aug. 8. Outer forts of Warsaw has been under bombardment since Friday morning says a wireless despatch received from Berlin to-day. The Poles are returning the Bolshevik fire.

COX DECLARES FOR LEAGUE.

DAYTON, Aug. 7. Peace for the United States and the world by this nation's entrance into the League of Nations with "interpretations," not disturbing its vital principle was pronounced to-day by Governor Cox, Democratic Presidential Standard Bearer, as his paramount policy.

OSTOOLENKA TAKEN.

WARSAW, Aug. 8. Ostoolenka on the Narow River, northeast of Warsaw, has been captured by the Bolsheviks after a two days' fight. The Bolsheviks now have reached a point seventy kilometres northeast of Warsaw.

A SEE SAW SITUATION.

LONDON, Aug. 7. Russian Bolshevik armies hammering Polish lines northeast and east of Warsaw seem to have encountered stern resistance. With exception of the area around Brest Litovsk on new advances by Soviet troops have been reported. Toward the East Prussian frontier a great battle is being fought but no details of the outcome are in late dispatches. In southern sectors of the front the Poles seem to be gaining ground at some points. Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand will meet at Hythe to-morrow to discuss emergency plans. It seems certain there will be no immediate break in negotiations between the Allies and the Soviet.

THE POLISH SIDE.

WARSAW, Aug. 7. The Polish foreign office has sent the League of Nations a note presenting the Polish side of the peace and armistice controversy, and a proclamation calculated to quiet the Polish people and asking them to support the Government, will be issued by officials.

DECLARATION CONCERNING PERMANENT ARMAMENTS.

LONDON, Aug. 8. Denials of published reports concerning the work of the permanent armaments commissions of the League of Nations, with an explanation is contained in a statement just issued by the Bureau of the League. "Reports grossly misrepresenting the powers and purposes of the permanent armaments commission of the League of Nations have been published in certain papers," says the statement. "An effort seems to have been made to represent this body as invested with functions directly opposite to those actually entrusted to it. The whole object of the commission is to secure voluntary international agreement for the reduction of armaments throughout the world. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the functions of this commission are those set down in a covenant and none other."

An Attack From Within.

(From Saturday's issue of The Trade Review.)

West Coast fish exporters are exasperated over the restrictions that have been placed upon their shipments and would like to know what authority the Government, or any one else, has to keep their vessels from sailing to market with their cargoes. This question The Trade Review does not feel competent to answer and think it is a question which comes within the province of the legal fraternity rather than that of the Newspaper.

St. John's Exporters, also, are up in arms over the policy pursued in connection with the Fish Export Regulations and the usurping by the Minister of Fisheries of Powers which, it is contended can only be exercised by a Board composed of Six Exporters and the Minister.

At the recent session of the Legislature an Act was passed creating a Board composed of Six Exporters, two of whom were to be appointed by the Board of Trade and four to be appointed by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries who, in conjunction with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries would have power to form such Rules and Regulations governing the export and price of fish as were deemed to be in the best interest of the Colony.

The Board of Trade within twenty-four hours of receipt of the Government's intimation that they were to appoint two members of the Board nominated Mr. W. B. Grieve and Mr. R. B. Job, but Mr. Coaker has not gazetted his four nominees so that the Advisory Board has not yet been appointed and it can only be assumed that the Rules and Regulations which have been informed have been formulated by the Minister. Certainly they have not been made on the authority of the Advisory Board as no such Board has been legally formed. Whether Mr. Coaker has this authority or not is, as previously stated, a matter for legal advice.

The temper of the whole trade was exasperated to a crisis last year by galling restrictions and it would be much better if those in authority would strongly urge upon them the advisability of getting the Advisory Board appointed as quickly as possible and to do away with a control that was suited only for war times.

A Negro Ultimatum.

New York, August 3.—(Canadian Press.)—England, France, Belgium, Italy and every other white nation that has pre-empted any portion of the African continent are to be summarily ordered to get out of there, declared Marcus Garvri, President-General of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, in an address at Madison Square Garden last night.

It was the opening of the first International Convention of the Society Garvri predicted that Asia would undertake the bloodiest war of all times to match its strength and civilization against that of Europe, and in predicting this war, he declared he saw in it the opportunity for the negro to strike for his heritage.

The message of peace brought from the conference at Versailles by President Wilson, by Premier Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau meant nothing, he said, "for the handwriting on the wall pointed to the big war of Asia against Europe."

League Football.

Only two League Football games will be played this week. The Cadets and Star will contest to-night. There will be no game on Wednesday night, owing to the Garden Party at Shannon Munn Orphanage, when several of the league teams will be contesting there. On Friday night there will be a match between the B.S. and Coblegians.

Thrills Found in the Bible.

Sporadic discussions crop up every now and again in the public press under such title as "Who Reads the Bible?" or "Is the Bible Interesting?" and then we go to church and come away with the conviction that very few persons read the Bible as though it were worth reading, and not one in a hundred can make it sound interesting, says a writer in Answers. Can we wonder, then, that few read the Bible, and that fewer still find it interesting, much less inspiring?

Yet there are great exceptions to this sweeping generalisation. I shall always cherish the memory of the reading—by a parson, too—of the 27th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, the vividest sea story in literature. Robinson Crusoe contains no such passage. Clark Russell or Frank Bullen never reached this pitch of realism. Conrad labors far behind. The reader brought all the scene before our eyes as he read.

Euroclydon was a more wondrous wind than any which shrieked through the cordage of the Argonauts or of Sinbad the Sailor. Scylla and Charybdis were as nought to "the place where the two seas met," and where the shipmen ran the ship aground. When "the forepart stuck fast and remained unmovable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves," we heard the crash of the heavy seas, and the cries of men in deadly peril.

I recall the reading of another parson. This time it was a chapter of "Joseph and his Brethren." It was probable that many beside myself had never before realised that here is a great story greatly told. But as the reader's voice ceased, we all woke from a dream of ancient Egypt, from the spell of a story of malice, hatred, envy and lust; of love, generosity, magnanimity and loyalty—a story before which the richest tale of "The Thousand and One Nights" waxes pale and glamorous. It appeared for the first time that it is a magical story that will outlive the Pyramids.

Why don't we have this experience of great reading oftener? Is there no drama in the Bible, no invective, no passion, no exceeding pathos? I wonder what some of our greater actors would make of David's lament over Saul and Abalom, or of the fierce song of Deborah, or of the chapter in Job, which tells of the miners' toil in the bowels of the earth, or of the 8th chapter of Romans, or of Paul's great chapter in praise of charity? Here are the greatest things in literature, and we hear them intoned or muttered, or gabbled as though they were of no account.

Does the reader think that the reading of the Scriptures is a work of supererogation to be got through as a duty, a task in which he has little or no interest? If he believes that he is reading great words—words which he calls words of life—why does he not convey that impression to his congregation? How can his congregation realise the greatness of his message unless he realises it himself?

I wonder how many persons rehearse the lessons for the day? What would we think of an actor who left his part to the casual inspiration of the moment, and did not strive, in the privacy of his own study, to give proper emphasis and significance to every word? We know what his manager would think of him. He would have no further need for his services.

Emphasis, modulation, expression, a passionate desire to make the scene live, are indeed far to seek in our modern pulpits. The reading of the Scriptures is perfunctory and colorless. It was not always so. In the days before education was widespread the preacher felt it was "up to him" to interpret the Scriptures to his unlettered hearers by the beauty of his reading. To-day perchance he thinks we can all read for ourselves, so it does not matter. But Ellen Terry knew that we could all read "The quality of mercy is not strained," yet did that take one jot or tittle from her exquisite rendering of that immortal passage? On the other hand, she gloried in making it more beautiful than her hearers had ever imagined it to be.

And that is the way to read the Scriptures aloud. We want all the pathos and drama and appeal to become a living thing in the tongue of the reader, and until it does so become, the reading of the Scriptures in our churches will remain the colorless, inept thing it usually is, and few indeed will go away saying, "I must read this for myself. Here is something precious and beautiful beyond anything I had imagined."

A Story of Second-Hand Sugar.

(From the Brockton Times.)

All the retail grocer of the country have had rather a frenzied time trying to supply their customers with sugar this winter and spring. One of them told this story the other day as one example of his difficulties. He ordered from his jobber a large quantity of sugar which was to be delivered to him at $18.35 per hundred pounds. He had a signed contract to that effect. After waiting until he got to the point where he had to dole out the little he had left at the rate of one pound to each family on Wednesdays and another on Saturday, the sugar finally arrived. It was billed to him at $27.85 per hundred—about a 50 per cent. increase. He objected, but the jobber stood firm. The grocer took it up with an attorney. The lawyer looked at the contract and advised his client that he had a perfectly good case. Any court would sustain that contract. "But," said the lawyer, "I'll give you a tip. I know another grocer in just your case who did sue the jobber. He won. And the head of that firm gave orders that that grocer should never be given another pound of sugar." As a matter of principle the grocer wanted to sue. He had a right to that sugar at $18.35, and his customers could then have had it at twenty cents per pound. But he depended on that jobber for many things besides sugar. And his customers depended on him for those things and the sugar besides. He yielded, and paid the $27.85, and his customers paid thirty cents a pound. But they got the sugar. The grocer's own percentage was lower at the higher price. Now this was the jobber's side of the story: "This isn't first-class sugar. This is second-hand sugar. I couldn't get it direct, as I expected to when I made the contract. I had to buy it from a speculator and pay the speculator's price. So you've got to pay me. But I've got the sugar for you, and you've got it for your customers." Something ought to be done in this free and enlightened country to keep its citizens from being slaves to the second hand man when it comes to the necessities of life.

The Thunderer Speaks.

We have long and persistently urged the Ministry to offer to Ireland a wide measure of autonomy. We have condemned every proposal that fell below the standard of a just and generous settlement. We have chafed bitterly at every procrastination and delay. Viewing now a situation which bears a terrible testimony to the truth of the arguments we have employed, we can but urge upon the Government the paramount necessity of concentrating all their ability and all their zeal upon an effort to give to Ireland, as soon and as freely as the circumstances will permit, a satisfaction of her just demands.—London Times.

A Hard Job.

Missing her two-year-old, the mother went to look for him, and found the youngster in the kitchen on the floor by the coal-scuttle, carefully wiping a piece of coal with his little white handkerchief. "Cleanin' tool, mamma," he explained. "Why, sonny, come away from there! You can't clean coal!" "Yes, mamma. See?" showing the blackened handkerchief. "All comin' off—all black comin' off!"

Wants Everyone Who Suffers With Stomach Trouble To Know What Tanlac Did For Him.

"If I could speak with everybody personally who has stomach trouble, I would tell them to take Tanlac, for I have tried it myself, and have never found anything to equal it," recently declared Simon Pike, of Old Perlican, Trinity Bay, who is at present in the oil refining business in St. John's.

"I certainly was in mighty bad shape before I started on Tanlac. I had such awful pains in the pit of my stomach after eating, they fairly doubled me up. Even a bit of bruis and gravy would hurt me this way and so much gas formed in my stomach that it nearly made my heart stop beating and at times I became awful dizzy-headed. I suffered a great deal from constipation and often had bad bilious attacks. I got so weak and run-down I couldn't do above half a man's work and my sleep at night was so broken with dreams that I always got up in the mornings feeling tired and good for nothing. I must have taken enough medicine of various kinds to fill a hoghead, but it never did me any good.

"One of the men who at the oil factory told me about Tanlac and how it was helping folks with just such troubles as mine, and so I sent along to Connors' drug store and got a couple of bottles. Well, the way it got after my troubles was surprising. Within a week it relieved me of the indigestion and I can now eat three good meals a day and enjoy a 'mug-up' between meals as well, and never suffer in the least from pains in the stomach or gas. I'm not bothered with dizziness or biliousness any more and am so much stronger I can do a day's work with an man and never get tired. Believe me, Tanlac is a great medicine and there's nothing like it for such troubles as I had."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Balne Harbour; W. A. Burdock, Bellefleur; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renew.—adv.

A Deathless Journey.

The Old Legend of the Wandering Jew.

The Wandering Jew is not mentioned in the Bible. He is merely the principal character in a story, like Rip Van Winkle.

The story is certainly of very ancient origin. It is that most commonly accepted form, it is that Jesus, weary of carrying the cross, sought to rest for a moment on the doorstep of a shoemaker named Ahasuerus, who told him to "get on, and be quick about it."

To which the Saviour replied: "I shall soon be at rest, but you will wander until I come again."

Ever since then Ahasuerus has been doomed to wander over the earth; and, strange to say, he seems to have turned up now and again, at long intervals of time.

Dr. Paul von Eitzen, Bishop of Schleswig, met and talked with him in the year 1547. He told his story to the Bishop, who described him as very tall, barefoot, with an astonishingly long beard, and hair hanging over his shoulders.

He was seen in 1575 in Madrid and again in Paris in 1694. In 1640 he turned up in Brussels—an aged and tattered man, who accepted food, but refused to sit down and eat—and in Leipzig two years later.

The description of his appearance is invariably the same. He tells his story to somebody, passes on and disappears.

The last occasion on which he was seen was in England, nearly two centuries ago. Many people talked with him, and he gave an account of the crucifixion, speaking as an eyewitness. He told anecdotes of the apostles, some of whom he professed to have personally known. He spoke many languages, with all of which he seemed equally familiar. Then, suddenly, he vanished, and nothing more was heard of him.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ARE YOU A BULL DOG?

Can you let go? There has been much said in praise of the bull dog grip and it has excellent usages. When the bull dog has hold of the right thing (the would-be thief's leg, for instance) nothing could be finer than his tenacity. But when he has hold of the wrong thing the trouser leg of a welcome guest, for instance) his grip is considerably less admirable.

And so it is with tenacity among human beings. There are times when tenacity is a splendid quality, and times when it is the sign of an intellect that is not functioning properly.

One example of these latter times is when one has hold, mentally, of so many things to do and can't seem to let go of them.

This state of mind is sometimes the sign of over-exhaustion, sometimes a symptom of it, and sometimes both.

Before You Go Away.

You know the condition I mean. You have a certain number of things that you think you must do before you go on your vacation. You must finish these two dresses, you must make certain calls, you must have your hair shampooed, you must put up that fly. You can't see how you are going to get them all in, and you feel driven and irritated and harassed, and yet you don't or won't or can't let go of any of them.

What happens?

Perhaps you get them all done and away a nervous wreck.

Or perhaps some are forcibly crowded out of your programme, in which case you undergo a double strain—the strain of trying to get onto them and the strain of having them crowded out.

Or, if you are one person in a hundred, you will let go of some of the things and do the rest in peace and comfort.

The Will Power to Let Go.

Letting go is a great achievement, it takes just as much will power to let go at the right time as to show a bull dog tenacity in keeping to a good purpose. Perhaps more.

I know a man who was very ambitious and who almost wrecked his whole career because he set himself certain standards of accomplishment and fought to keep up to them. He was headed for a nervous breakdown when he realized that the only way he could save himself was to let go of these standards, content himself with not doing just so much each month, not making just so much more each year, but doing what he could and making what he could. Tenacity started this man on his career—but letting go saved him from wreck.

Try This.

Is this a time when you need to relax and let go? If it is, let go. Do not say "there is nothing I can let go." That is not true. Suppose you were ill or died, what would happen? None of us and none of our activities are as vital as we think they are. Select the least vital, and definitely let them go. Don't have mental reservations that you will do them if you get time (that keeps up the subconscious strain). Just let go of them altogether. Your value to yourself and to all with whom you come in contact, will be immensely enhanced.

PLANS.

If you observe the also rans, you'll note they're always making plans. Some day they'll reach the shining heights and bask in wealth's and fame's delights. Next week, perhaps next year, they'll venture on the high career, and show the natives goggle-eyed that they're all wool and three feet wide. And while they plan they let to-day, the golden present, slide away. They sit around the village pump, and plan and dream while others hump. And Time flies on with eager pace; the way Time scoots is a disgrace; and men grow old and bent and bald, and hang around until they're called. And those who worked with pep and power and made the most of every hour beneath their big trees sit in peace, and find old age as sick as grease. But those who sat immersed in dreams, and made their futile plans, and schemes, and talked "to-morrow" when "to-day" was slipping from their grasp away, find age a grim and sad ordeal; you cannot guess how tough they feel. Oh, make your plans for future times, but while you're planning nail the dimes.

Just Folks

A LOVE SONG.

Oh, I can slave for the yellow gold
And battle for earthly fame,
I can go to the end of a purpose bold,
Its splendid reward to claim;
Some pleasures there are which depend on me,
And the deeds which my strength can do,
But the smile that a hunger each day to see
Must be fashioned, my dear, by you.

I can stand alone at my task each day
And buy what the flesh may need,
But I'd soon grow lonely and old and gray
In serving a selfish creed;
For the spirit needs more than a stranger's cheer
Or a glimpse of a sky of blue,
And this world to me would be cold and drear
If it weren't for the love of you.

Oh, nothing that I have the skill to do
Can comfort this heart of mine,
For myself I'd never a goal pursue
Or follow a purpose fine;
And if all the wealth of the world I had,
With its fleeting glory, too,
I'd still be a lonely old man and sad
If I couldn't come home to you.

I couldn't be happy without you, dear,
Nor strong in the time of test,
It is only because I feel you're near
That I struggle to do my best;
For after the cares and the hours of strife
Are closed, and the day is through,
I must still depend for the joy of life
On the smile which I get from you.

The Price of Sugar.

If sugar prices are due for an early decline, then there is no doubt that the people of Newfoundland will be badly mulcted because of control which did not carry out the first principles of regulation of prices in the public interest, or if this were done—which is very much open to debate—then another door was left open into which the dealers abroad unloaded at fancy figures large stocks at the instance of the St. John's Board whose prime function was to have purchased shortly and as cheaply as possible. But our F.C.B. members were not shrewd enough to avoid this. The more clever foreign exporters put one over them and the future looks as though the public, as always, will have to pay expensively for the commercial blunder. The Canadian Grocer is of the opinion that the peak prices of refined sugar have been reached, and that from now on the trend will be downward. Out of that expression Newfoundlanders will extract but cold comfort, as unless the unexpected occurs and the Board of Control decide to come down a few cents, all hands are bound to have to pay top notch prices for an article the import of which should never have been interfered with, much less the regulating of prices. However, there it is, and some one has to settle with the piper.

A New York Trade Circular, in a review of the sugar markets, says that "Foreign whites on the spot are offered at nineteen to twenty-one cents ex dock, but there is little demand at present. For forward shipment it is not easy to sell except to refiners on a raw sugar basis. The unwillingness of the Banks to finance these sugars has caused a lot of them to be thrown on the market. As arrivals of these sugars should be very free for the next two months, a good chance should be offered for manufacturers and other buyers to pick up some cheap goods." Other comments on the sugar situation, made by the writer of the circular from which we quote, are equally interesting. The demand for refined is quiet. Few transactions are being made, expectation being that a decline must come. Hence the dull condition of the markets, most everybody being "bearishly inclined." The American Sugar Company is willing to sell at twenty-two and a half cents for September shipments, but buyers are not falling over themselves to enter into contracts at present. Under all circumstances affecting sugar and the price abroad, the people of this dominion must preserve a cheerful mien. That is about the only thing they can preserve with local sugar prices at thirty-two cents.

Referring to Canadian conditions the Canadian Grocer (Toronto) says: "The raw sugar market has shown further declines this past week (July) bringing the price down to fifteen and a half cents per pound c.i.f. New York. It is the general opinion among the trade that the peak prices for refined sugar have now been reached. Wholesalers are reluctant to stock up at these figures, many are of the opinion that the trend from now on will be downward. On the other hand refiners state that there can be no lower prices for some time. The latter are now working on high price raws, and even at today's cost of raws laid down in Montreal, would warrant keeping refined at present prices. However the fact remains that raw sugar has greatly receded. Some six or eight weeks ago raws were selling around twenty-three cents, cost and freight, New York, and were scarce at that price. Today the situation is reversed and there are more raws arriving than refiners are willing to buy." The inference is obvious, and we can at least console ourselves with the fact that by and by other people will be getting the benefit of reduced rates, while Newfoundlanders are digging down in their pockets for the wherewithal to buy a pound of sugar at controlled rates, to reduce which would possibly hit some speculator in that part of his anatomy where he is most vitally affected. So after all, control does bring its advantages—but not to the populace.

A Matter for the G. W. V. A.

We have received a letter signed "Returned Soldier" from St. Anthony, under date of August 5th, protesting against the bestowal of the order of the M.B.E. on an official of the Grenfell Mission at that place. As we are of opinion that such a protest should be investigated by the proper authority, we are handing the letter of "Returned Soldier" to the Executive of the Great War Veterans Association. It is not the duty of the press to give publicity to communications of this nature, unless supported by more evidence than the bare testimony and signature of the writer, therefore we make no comment whatever on the subject matter of Returned Soldier's complaint, preferring to leave it in the hands of the G.W.V.A.

BEUTEAU-MUNN.
At St. Thomas Church on Saturday last, Rev. A. Clayton officiating, Mr. Errol Munn, eldest son of W. A. and Mrs. Munn was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Dorothy, second daughter of F. C. and Mrs. Beuteau. The bride was given away by her father, Mrs. T. V. Hartnell, a sister, being the matron of honor and Miss Angel bridesmaid, with the two little nieces and nephew of the bride as flower girls and train bearer. Mr. Max Shears supported the groom, and Messrs. T. V. Hartnell, Harold Mitchell and Lionel Mann were ushers. Following the ceremony a reception was held at "Sunnybank" the residence of the bride's parents, which was attended by numerous friends and guests. The Telegram joins in the multiplicity of felicitations extended to the happy couple.

Col. Martin's Lecture at S. A. Congress.

The spacious hall of the Methodist League was filled to overflowing on Sunday afternoon. After hymn and prayer Sister Mabel Barter pleasingly rendered a sacred solo. His Excellency's address was listened to with interest, and his appeal for good citizenship was timely. The lecture by Colonel Martin followed. His subject was "Impressions gathered in Germany during nine years of Salvation Army officership. Causes of the War and Germany's Ruin." The Colonel spoke earnestly and vigorously; he knew his subject and discussed it in a manner at once interesting and helpful. Despite the heat, and the crowded room he was listened to with eager attention from start to finish. It was "no hymn of hate," but nought was extenuated, or sought set down in malice. The militarists, rather than the people were responsible. For Prussianism he had nothing but unqualified detestation. The three causes of the war he attributed to: (1) Militarism, with which the Fatherland had been saturated since the Franco-Prussian War; (2) the writings of professors of the Nietzsche type and soldiers of the Von Bernhardi class, which formed text books in the colleges and universities, and above all (3) the decay of vital religion which has during recent decades transformed Germany from a Christian to an almost pagan land. Through his address ran a spirit of optimism, a grateful tonic in these days of disappointment and disillusion "God is in His Heaven, all's well with the world" was the golden thread whose message was never lost. His lecture instructed, his patriotism thrilled and his Christian confidence inspired. As the Colonel is resident here, even though in labours abundant, if he could find time to deliver the same or similar address in every outpost which he may visit, he would accomplish great and lasting good.
At the close of a vote of thanks to His Excellency and the Colonel was proposed by Mr. J. W. Withers and seconded by Mr. Isaac C. Morris. The Salvation Army Band was in splendid form, and rendered notable service. On the platform were Hon. John Anderson, Hon. Samuel Bell, John Steer, Esq., J. W. Withers, Esq., I. C. Morris, Esq. His Excellency the Governor was accompanied by Capt. Saltmarsh. The preliminary and closing exercises were conducted by Staff Captain Thompson, the S. A. Territorial Chancellor.

Montreal's Welcome.

Montreal welcomes to-day more than one hundred distinguished editors, journalists and newspaper proprietors, who are staying in the city for two days on their way to Ottawa, where the second Imperial Press Conference will open next Thursday.
The Metropolis of Canada is justly proud of the name she has earned for hospitality to the guests who enter her gates from time to time, and the preparations which the citizens have made to render the stay of the present guests enjoyable are an index of her determination to uphold, if not to eclipse, this tradition.
In justice to herself Montreal could not do otherwise. These men and women are no ordinary tourists, attracted to the city in a round of sight-seeing or to spend a summer holiday. Our guests to-day have special claims upon us. In the first place, they are family relations, blood of our blood, who have travelled so far to "get acquainted."
Moreover, no convention has ever assembled on this continent—where conferences are frequent and recurrent—at which the assembled delegates came from the four corners of the earth. It is an unique distinction that Canada should have been chosen for the holding of such a conference.
Nor should it be forgotten that there are men who are actively engaged in that profession which, perhaps, of all others, makes the most severe demands upon the time and the energies of its members. They have left their desks, many at considerable personal sacrifice, to undergo fatigue and the strain of a journey of from ten to twenty-five thousand miles, because they are seized of the seriousness of the aims of the Conference and are sincere in their belief in its practicability and usefulness.
Lastly, these men wield a powerful influence in the most distant corners of the British Dominions and possessions, and in so doing rest upon one another, upon us and upon the Empire as a whole. It is not necessary to enter into idle speculation of the future status of the existing units of the Empire family to realize that the term that the Empire will take in the future will, in no small degree, be moulded and inspired by the men who are now among us.
Lord Burnham in a speech a few days ago said that the delegates had come to Canada only to learn. We admire the modest candour of this declaration, but we would reply that they cannot, even if they would, withhold the opportunity to teach also. Their very presence among us is a stimulus, their friendliness is an inspiration, their sincerity and earnestness an example which we may worthily emulate. — Montreal Daily Star, Aug. 8.

Improved Quarters.

The temporary addition now being made to the Postal Telegraph room in the lobby of the Post Office is a great improvement to the 8 x 10 office in which the employees were compelled to work during the past 17 years. The new office extends to the western main entrance door of the Post Office, the latter vestibule being included and is now used as a cloak room. It is likely that the new Postal Telegraph office to be erected at the western end of the present building will be started this fall.

"BELLES OF THE DARDANELLES" THE CAUSE.
Between 10 and 11 o'clock on Saturday night a disturbance arose on New Gower Street between some citizens and some members of the crew of the S. S. Wabana now undergoing repairs at the dock. A large crowd gathered and followed the dusky sailors to the dock gate where stones were pelted and revolver shots were fired. A policeman who was on the scene was powerless to do anything and went off for assistance, the crowd meanwhile shouting for the arrest of the sailors. The police on making a search of the ship did not locate any firearms, although it is said empty and loaded shells were picked up on the quay. So far no arrests have been made and it is quite difficult to tell who took part in the affair. The trouble, it appears, arose from jealousy. The sailors who hail from Arabia, the Soudan and the Malay Straits, have made themselves very attractive to "the Belles of the Dardanelles," by their immaculate attire and taking ways, and this being resented by the white element, the row started.

DIAMOND DUST

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

There will be a full practice of the ALL STARS at the Shamrock Grounds (opposite St. George's Field) at 7 o'clock to-night, and Manager John B. Orr requests those picked to be on hand promptly.

Saturday night there was a practice though owing to some of the players having to do night work, it was confined to hitting fungoes.

To-morrow night will witness the second game of the final round when the B.I.S. will face the Lions. The Irish youngsters have been hard at it under the direction of Manager Channing and their supporters are hopeful that they will give a good account of themselves against the veteran Hiltz crew to-morrow night.

The big event for Wednesday afternoon is the Church of England Garden Party, and its chief attraction for the sports loving public will be the playing off between the C.E.I. and Lions for the Bowring Baseball Cup, which has been presented by Sir Edgar Bowring for annual competition.

In addition, the Sports' Committee are presenting a set of gold and silver medals to the winners—the first ever given for baseball competition in Newfoundland. They will therefore form a most interesting souvenir and will, we feel sure, be highly prized by the recipients.

On Thursday night Harvey's plucky crew will face the Cubs in the third game of the final stanza, and an exciting contest is looked forward to.

Manager Morse of the Grand Falls team, who is at present in town, informs us that they are already prepared for the invasion of our All Stars. Their team, already so formidable, has been considerably strengthened by Murphy—our Joe—at first, Jamie Murphy in centre field, and Oss Sharpe, their new pitcher. The latter pair are from the United States, and outfielder Murphy is the heaviest hitter the Falls have ever had. Lefty Joe is also polling them all over the meadow, and fans will remember that Joseph always packed a heavy wallop. Their other pitcher—Sebat Foran—is also in wonderful shape, and Manager Morse says that if St. John's wants the Reid Cup back they will have to go some, and will find it necessary to play a fifty per cent. better team than they produced last year. Now then, John B!

The Sydney series will commence this day week, and fans had better look after the reservation of their seats for the three games as already over a dozen telegrams have been received by the management from near-by outports asking that they be protected in the matter of seating accommodation. It appears that the Reid Newfoundland Company have advertised next week as "Shopping Week" all over the country, with special shopping excursion railroad fares, and Mr. Pittman—the genial G.P.A.—has been kind enough to include in their ad. the fact that the inter-Dominion baseball games will be the chief source of attraction for visitors. The reserved seats will be 50 cents each, and bookings can now be made at Chesman's.

We learn that four of the visiting team are Dalhousie students, so that doubtless they have many acquaintances in the city.

George Sisler, first baseman of the St. Louis Browns, is far out in the lead in the American League batting race. He is smashing the ball for an average of .408. With the serious disablement of Ty Cobb (who was out of the contest for nearly half the season owing to injuries) it doubtless means that Sisler will capture the big honors this season.

It's the fellow who has nerve enough to stretch a single across two bags that puts the ACE in base and ALL in ball.

Salvation Army Congress.

For over a week special announcements appeared in the daily press of the coming Congress. Friday and Saturday every train and boat brought officers from the different corps. A great united parade preceded the welcome demonstration in the No. 1 Citadel on Saturday night. After the opening services, the Chancellor, Staff Captain Thompson, introduced Colonel and Mrs. Martin to the delegates of Newfoundland's first Territorial Leaders, making special mention that the Colonel had spent 32 years as a Salvation Army officer and that Mrs. Martin had 6 years added to that, making 38 years' service. The Staff Captain made reference to a little incident in the life of "Bert," the son of Colonel and Mrs. Martin, who though English born, after living so long in foreign countries when he went back to England couldn't speak the English language. This brought out the cosmopolitan character of our new Territorial Leaders. The Colonel then stepped forward and was greeted heartily. After speaking for himself for some considerable time he completed the introduction of Mrs. Martin, who held a very interesting story of her father being a preacher, and the joy of pointing to God our present Chief of the Staff. He then called to the front his son, and with Mrs. Martin they sang a chorus "I'm going there some day." This finished the Colonel made reference to our visitors, viz. Adj. Hard of Canada, an old Newfoundland officer who is here on furlough; also Capt. and Mrs. Skotness who is a Nfld. officer, but the Captain is a Norwegian and they are appointed to South Africa. Mrs. Colonel Martin then read the Bible Lesson and spoke some very encouraging words of welcome to the delegates. Representative speakers then followed. First Adj. Cole of Carboneau, then our old warrior comrade Adj. Dowry of Catalina. Mrs. Adj. Oake, of Fortune, Ensign Abbott, of Triton, Lieut. Winsor, of Griguet and Lieut. Shute, of Harbor Grace. Adj. Hurd represented the many Newfoundland officers now fighting in the Canadian field, and his old friends were glad to see him. The Colonel then, after a few words of exhortation, brought the first meeting of the Congress to a close.

prayed, also Mrs. Colonel Martin and the Colonel. The Chancellor gave out the second song, after which the Colonel gave a Bible reading and the comments on the same were exceedingly rich and a great blessing to all. It was indeed a foretaste of what was in store later on. Several speakers were then introduced. Mrs. Commandant Strickland, of Bell Island, gave a very definite testimony of the blessing of the illness. She also referred to the illness of the Commandant who was prevented from coming to the Congress. He misses his familiar face, but pray that God will speedily heal him. Ensign Roberts, of Lush's Light, was then called upon. He referred very kindly to the welcome received from the Territorial Commander and Mrs. Martin, and without reserve he spoke out of a full heart what God can do for people who will be led by Him, and of his own experience of full salvation. Captain Skotness gave a splendid talk on his experience before and since joining the Salvation Army. It was interesting for the Newfoundland officers because of the little tinge of another tongue which was detected in the Captain's speech. The Colonel then took hold and very feelingly got the whole audience to sing "At Thy Feet I Fall," and we believe many completed themselves afresh for service. Surely the message given by the Colonel will long live in us.

A report of Colonel Martin's lecture delivered in the afternoon appears in another column.

Row in a Laundry.

Chin Tung, a well to do oriental appeared in the Magistrate's Court this morning with his head bound up in a black stocking and a gaping wound, 4 inches long in his skull, the result of being hit with an iron by a country man during a dispute at a Chinese Laundry, situated near Waldegrave Street. The row occurred early this morning and the injured man had a warrant issued for the arrest of his assailant.

Lightning Storm.

Saturday night and yesterday morning a heavy lightning and rain storm prevailed on the western end of the railway from Port aux Basques to Notre Dame Junction. The storm destroyed a number of telegraph poles but as far as is known no other damage was done.

SHIP PASSED QUEENSTOWN.

EXCITING TIMES.
BELLEVUE, Alb., Aug. 8.
In a running fight between two of the bandits who held up a Crows Nest train at Sentinel on Monday afternoon last, Dassoff, one of the bandits was killed and a mounted policeman named Usher, and an Alberta provincial policeman named Bailey, were shot dead in the street Saturday afternoon. A member of the bandits, thought to be Arkloff, escaped and is now in hiding on Frank-slide, with a big posse of police and citizens in pursuit. The third bandit is believed to have been wounded in the fighting and is with Arkloff.

BRITISHERS WON.
DETROIT, Aug. 8.
Harry Vardon and Harold Ray, British golf stars, defeated Walter Hagen, holder of the United States Open Golf Championship, and Alex. Ross, formerly holder of that title, three and three in a thirty-six hole match over the Detroit Golf Club course Saturday. The British professionals had the Detroit men three down at the end of the morning round, but Hagen and Ross held them all even in the afternoon play.

BRITISH NAVAL FORCES READY.
LONDON, Aug. 8.
If it is decided to reimpose the blockade of Russia, it is to be made effective within a few hours, as far as the British Navy is concerned, and upon the British Navy will fall the bulk of the work. A squadron of light cruisers, and other light craft, is in the Baltic Sea, ready at a moment's notice to begin intensive patrols, while units in the Black Sea are more than enough to effectively blockade all ports there. The force in the Baltic is also considered sufficient, and the Admiralty denies reports that another squadron will be ordered there immediately, even should additional blockade work be decided on.

The Growing Naval Power of Japan.

Japan's great battleship Negato is fast approaching completion at the naval dockyard at Kure, and will shortly be commissioned.

This ship has about the same displacement as Great Britain's famous battle cruiser Hood, though she is not so long and therefore has less space to armor. In offensive and defensive power the Negato is superior to the Hood. The main battery consists of ten long 16-inch guns as against the eight 15-inch guns of the Hood. Speed and length have been sacrificed to give the Negato superior armor protection to the Hood, or any other vessel afloat or proposed.

No exact details are available on the subject of the Negato's armor, but the Japanese have, for several years past, been studying both submarine and aerial protection in addition to protection against plunging shell fire. Huge sums have been spent in the course of their experiments, which have been conducted with characteristic Japanese thoroughness and efficiency. The Negato embodies the result of these experiments.

The Mutsu, a sister ship of the Negato, is to be completed in 1921. Two other ships, the Kaga and the Tosa, are under construction. There is some doubt as to the particulars of these latter ships. There is said to be a controversy over their armament. It is proposed to arm them with either twelve 16-inch or eight 17-inch guns, and there appears to be some opposition to arming them with the short-lived, slow-firing 18-inch guns with their great range and punishing power. The Japanese ordnance experts received their training in England and the introduction of an 18-inch gun into the British service is known to have had a marked influence upon the Japanese.

To Surpass the Hood.
In addition to these ships the Japanese are building four battle cruisers that, it is said, will be superior to the Hood and the United States ships under construction.

Their programme calls for twenty-five scout cruisers in 1924. Five vessels are complete, each having a great cruising radius. In future wars Japan means to take the offensive as the best means of defence. This carries the scene of battle far from Japanese shores and in this way the offensive gives greater security than any other form of warfare. The plan of operation is to conduct a dashing offensive with all the naval power she can muster and to leave the problems of home defence to the ships of the second line. Her navy is at present carrying out this plan.

The battle fleet, consisting of four dreadnoughts carrying twelve 16-inch guns, one dreadnought carrying twelve 12-inch guns and four battle cruisers of twenty-seven knots speed carrying eight 12-inch guns, is absolutely free of the problems of home defence. Five scout cruisers and all of the destroyers in the navy of over 1,000 tons are with this fleet.

For Home Defence.
Home defence is maintained by submarines, destroyers and aircraft. For Japan this is an ideal arrangement. The submarine is in its element in the warm waters of the Japanese Islands and when the submarine is aided and protected by the destroyer it becomes doubly dangerous. A number of destroyers between 600 tons and 1,000 tons are building for this purpose.

Japan has been somewhat backward in the air. This is not a result of national disregard of this potent military factor but rather from her isolated position and her remote theatre of operations in the war. At present both the army and navy are experimenting with and building aircraft. The Imperial Diet has made vast sums available for this purpose. An aircraft carrier, typed after the British ships of that kind, has been laid down by the Navy to keep the battle fleet supplied with an air force in any theatre of operations.

The Prince Mobbed.

BACK-DOOR RETREAT FROM CHEERING CROWD.

Adelaide's reception to the Prince of Wales grows daily more enthusiastic. At the state banquet he was in his best speaking form, without any sign of nervousness. His speech contained a touch of adoration in reference to the need for a broad, far-reaching railway policy for Australia as the result of his journey from the west. Mr. Gunn, leader of the Labour Opposition, referred to the Prince's visit as probably the last he would be able to pay to Australia owing to his future. This gave an opportunity for one of the Prince's happy impromptus. He declared as soon as he got up that he would be "sorry indeed if he went away thinking that this would be his only visit to Australia."

While the Prince spoke there came instant murmurs through the windows of the gathering of a great crowd outside, and when the Prince emerged it was found that the crowd had broken through the barriers and was surging round the Prince's car. He made a vain attempt to get through the crowd and then went upstairs, climbing through a window and appearing on a galvanized iron balcony overlooking the street, whence he said a few words to the crowd below, receiving a most uproarious reception. It was hoped that the crowd would then disperse, but the people remained, crying for more and more, and finally the Prince escaped reluctantly through the back entrance, having a remarkable progress through the streets where the crowds were less thick.—Daily Mail.

Magistrate A. R. Forbes conducted a searching investigation and information elicited was much in line with what has already been published and the exact cause of the fire will not likely be definitely determined until investigation has been forwarded to provincial fire marshal J. A. Rudland.

Ross Confident of Cup Challenge Scheme.

TORONTO, August 2.—It will not be the fault of Mr. A. C. Ross, of Nova Scotia, if there is no race for the America's Cup in 1921. When seen to-night Mr. Ross stated that he was wiring the New York Yacht Club again in case his previous message had failed to reach them. "I wired from the train at Prescott," he said, "handing the message to the porter who promised faithfully to see that it was sent, but to avoid any possibility of miscarriage I am sending another wire to-night."

Optimistic enthusiasm positively radiated from Mr. Ross when speaking of his scheme of having a national yacht race for the cup in 1921 and the possibility of defeat he considers too remote to even be considered. The problem of raising the necessary funds he does not consider offers any difficulty. "I had a man tell me to-day," he said, "that he would gladly give $1,000 towards having a share in such a project, and he was not a man of means either. My idea would be to limit the amount any man could subscribe to $1,000 so that the man of small means who could only give one dollar could have a share in the yacht. I would rather see the mass of the people put a dollar each into the scheme than a few men subscribe the required amount by hundreds of thousands."

Such a scheme as this is not a new idea of his, Mr. Ross stated, as the thought of having such a yacht race has been in his mind for the past thirty years—ever since the "Thistle" was defeated. Canada has the money to finance the project, the men to build the boat, and the men to man her, and there is no reason so far as Mr. Ross can see why the America's Cup in 1921 should not find a permanent home in Canada.

Mr. Ross in his first telegraphic challenge to the New York Yacht Club, gave the names of the Royal Cape Breton Yacht Club, Sydney, and the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron, Halifax. He is a life member of the Sydney Club, but is not a member of the Halifax organization, and therefore had no authority to challenge on its behalf. R. N. S. Y. S. officials say, however, that any feasible plan for challenging for the America's Cup would naturally have their heartiest co-operation.

Miami, Fla., August 3.—Florida National Guardsmen were called out last night to protect the city from disorders threatened by 400 negroes natives of the Bahama Islands and British subjects who have been aroused over the death of Herbert Brooks, one of their number charged with assaulting a Miami white woman.

Brooks was arrested at Ormond, Florida, Saturday, and reported to have been killed in a leap from a train taking him to Jacksonville for safe keeping, but the other negroes, said to believe instead that he fled at the hands of a mob, made a demonstration and threatened to obtain vengeance when his body was returned to Miami. Troops were patrolling the negro residential section last night.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)
CODFISH.—The shipment from St. John's this week was 4000 quintals to Pernambuco from A. E. Hickman, S. Tibbo at Grand Bank, loaded the Jas. W. Parks for Oporto, and S. Harris of the same place, the General Gough also for Oporto. There are seven vessels on the South West coast, all loading new fish for Oporto. There is a ship loading for Brazil at Goodridge's and for Lazo and Saule also at Goodridge's. The price of new fish will be, it is said, $11.00 for No. 1, and $9.00 for No. 2.
 Note.—The appended item taken from the news columns of the Trade Review on Saturday is very significant, when compared with the above quotations.
 "A few small parcels of new codfish (1920 catch) were brought to town this week and sold for $3.50, although it was all small fish."
COD OIL.—As the United States is one of our principle markets for Cod Oil, it is interesting to have some information of their Menhaden Oil, which has always been one of their principal sources of supply for the canners in their process of curing leather.
 This Menhaden Oil is by far the most important fish oil produced in America. The annual production exceeds three million gallons. These fish first appear in Northern waters in April, and disappear in December to the Gulf or Southern waters. The production in 1919 was 198,000 barrels, as compared with 75,700 barrels in 1918. The catch reported this year is exceedingly abundant, and producers are forced to store it owing to the poor state of trade and a laxity of demand.
 All kinds of vegetable and animal oil have had a big drop in prices, and buyers of Cod Oil are very cautious about buying in stocks at present rates. We quote $200.00 per ton on local market.
COD LIVER OIL.—The Norwegian competition with non-freezing oil is becoming severe in New York especially. A large steamer arrived there a few days ago with 15,000 gallons of non-freezing cod oil. Sales of Newfoundland oil (medicinal) are therefore very hard to make at paying prices, owing to the competition both in Great Britain and America, and conditions are such at present owing to Norwegian competition that dealers are compelled to abandon the idea of living as much as $1.50 for cod liver oil.
CANNED FRUITS.—The demand for canned Salmon and Canned Halibut is increasing and a local firm received quite a big order from a firm in Toronto this week. Lobsters are slow sales just now, very few cases are coming forward to St. John's from the outports. The few sales that are being made are at $25 outright as the markets are making poor demand. The total catch it is estimated will be over 10,000 cases this season.

PORK.—Dealers in Pork on Water Street complain of dullness of trade in Provisions unequalled since previous days. This condition is attributed to several causes, including the unpromising outlook for fishery returns, and the dullness of the Pork and Beef market abroad, including speculations in these commodities. After a gradually advanced level of prices for the past few years, it was only natural that prices reached a peak from which a decline would have been inevitable. This point has been reached and passed and the trade will have to exercise caution from this time forward in order to avoid losses. Prices are included between $46 and $56.
BEEF.—The market remains very quiet, but is strong owing to light supplies. This is the digest of latest information from Chicago. During the early part of the year heavy supplies of cattle reached packing plants. Holders were forced to market the stock owing to the high cost of feed. These accumulations had the effect of weakening prices the early part of the season. Stocks are now coming along in more restricted totals and the Beef market in consequence has grown firmer. The prices in the local market were as last week, $27.00 to $35.00 wholesale.
WHEAT.—The Wheat crops throughout Canada and the United States have been greatly improved by the recent heavy rains. As a consequence a startling decline took place in the Chicago wheat market, December wheat July 27th went off 40 cents a bushel, but this favorable decline did not last long and the tendency was upward again. It was down to $2.12 a bushel, and soon swung back to $2.30. It is likely that those up and down fluctuations will go on till September and that no change will be made in present four prices.
MOLASSES.—The John W. Miller arrived to Geo. M. Barr July 30th from Barbados, with 552 puncheons, 128 tierces and 134 barrels of molasses. The total will now be about 7000 puncheons when the other two or three ships there, or on the way there, for cargoes arrive here. This will be a shortage of over 4000 puncheons. The local price of Fancy is $1.85 per gallon and $1.75 for Choice.
SUGAR.—There can be no change in the local sugar prices, unless the Government decides to make new regulations, as the whole supply is now entirely under their control. The wholesale quotation is now $28.25 per 100 pounds, and retailers are letting it out at a maximum of 32 cents a pound. They can sell for less if they like, but not for more. The supply in is enough to do till the end of the year, especially at the reduced rate of consumption in consequence of the high prices.
POTATOES.—The old potatoes are being fast cleared out at $5.00 half sack and $11.50 to $12 a full sack (180 lbs.) Halifax had new potatoes this week, and we shall likely have some on the market here by the 20th of August. The price of new has not been quoted in Canada, but as the crop is going to be a good one, there is reason to believe that they will be much lower by October. The local crop is growing well since the middle of July, except where seed failed altogether.

A Matrimonial Tangle.
 Kansas City, Mo., July 30.—A Canadian war veteran was one of the principals in a matrimonial problem that was solved in the Circuit Court here yesterday, when Mrs. Esther Warren Curtis Peel was granted a divorce from Eugene Peel.
 The woman was married to Henry Curtis in 1914. In 1915, Curtis joined the Canadian army, and after the second battle of Mons, his wife was officially informed by the Canadian authorities that he had died as a result of being gassed. The following year, she married Peel, but in June, 1919, Curtis reappeared. He said he had been gassed and spent some months in hospital, delirious, his identity being unknown for a great part of the time.
 Finding his wife married to another man, Curtis asked her to choose between himself and his successor. She chose the returned soldier and the divorce followed.

Did Shamrock Race Under a Handicap?
 New York, Aug. 1.—That the Shamrock IV was to have been repainted with blacklead if the challenger and the Resolute had not raced on Monday, was disclosed today by an official of the States Island Shipbuilding Company. One of the dry docks had been engaged for that purpose and was held in readiness Monday morning, he said. The black lead was to have been worked up to a high polish with the designed purpose of causing the challenger to slip through the water more easily than would have been possible with ordinary paint.
 It also was stated that the blacklead intended for the vessel arrived at the port Richmond yards of the States Island Company on Saturday morning. It was understood the paint was sent from the Victoria, the chartered steam yacht of Sir Thomas Lipton. The official stated that the blacklead would have increased the vessel's speed considerably. Blacklead is composed principally of plumbago and is worked into a high polish by rubbing much after the fashion of shoe polish.

Cow Gored Little Boy.

ST. STEPHEN, N.B., July 30.—A common old cow, always regarded as docile, developed sudden madness this evening and, in a few brief moments, wrought fearful havoc on a young boy. F. J. Rossiter, an electrician in the United States Navy, employed in the Navy Yard at Killiverry, Maine, with his wife and son, ten years of age, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Baxter, in Milltown, N.B. They were camping for a few days at Mohannas, a few miles from Milltown, and this evening the boy went with his father to the pasture for the cows. The father's back was turned to the boy for just a few moments, when he heard a cry of alarm and pain, and turning saw one of the cows standing over the prostrate boy and savagely goring him with her horns. Seizing a club the father drove the infuriated cow off her victim, picked the boy up and carried him to the farm house, the cow following him to the door and constantly menacing him.
 The boy was taken to a hospital in Calais, where a doctor was summoned and dressed the wounds, which are of fearful extent, and will disfigure the boy for life.
 Had not the father been at hand, it is believed that the boy would have been killed in the furious and unexpected onslaught of the cow that had never before shown signs of temper.

Westminster Abbey.

ON THE VERGE OF BANKRUPTCY.
 Westminster Abbey can no longer pay its way, and is "on the verge of bankruptcy." That is the purport of an appeal which has been issued by the Dean on behalf of this great national monument.
 The appeal states that the means placed at the disposal of the Dean and Chapter no longer suffice for the maintenance of the building. "The most historic and most beloved sacred building in the Empire is in danger of entering upon a phase of steady structural deterioration."
 The sum of money which more than fifty years ago was fixed for the maintenance of the fabric and for the services of the Abbey has become utterly inadequate for those purposes. "The immense rise in the cost of materials and in the wages of the staff, together with the greatly increased standard of efficiency demanded in the last half-century from every branch of service to Church and nation, have brought us to the verge of bankruptcy. It has even been necessary, while fabric repairs have unavoidably been postponed, to divert to the absolutely essential duty of keeping up the services and worship of the Abbey the inadequate sum of money which had been earmarked for keeping the fabric in repair."
 "We are no longer able to pay our way."
 There is urgent need for:
 1. The repair of the two great western towers.
 2. The reparation of the external stonework of Henry VII's Chapel.
 3. The renovation of a large portion of the parapet running round the roof.
 4. The repair of the clerestories and flying buttresses.
 There is besides a continual large outlay required by the maintenance in proper repair of the much-delayed cloisters and the ancient dwellings.
 £250,000 Wanted.
 The sum of £250,000 is asked for. Of this £100,000 is required for structural repairs in the immediate future. The remaining sum of £150,000 would constitute a fund by which the whole Abbey and its buildings would be kept in a condition of efficiency and repair. The trustees of the fund are:
 The Governor of the Bank of England.
 Lord Salisbury.
 Sir Robert Hudson.
 The King has made a donation of £1,000, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have given £10,000. Contributions should be sent to the Dean, at the Deanery, Westminster Abbey, S.W.
 It is stated that so far a tenth of the required sum has been raised.

To Sir Thomas Lipton.

(From the Boston Herald.)
 All America salutes you. Yachtsmen and land lubbers, adepts in every sport afloat and ashore, weather-beaten experts who have driven racing sloops through the brine with lee rails under and arm-chair critics who argue while others perform, all render you a genuine tribute of admiration and affection. You are a real sportsman—never censorious, always optimistic; eager to win, generous in defeat; scornful to seek any unfair advantage, quick to accept every official ruling; asking only a fair field and no favor, magnanimously paying tribute to your victorious adversary.
 When from the bridge of your steam yacht you saluted Charles Francis Adams, Robert W. Emmons, and their council and crew, and led the cheers for the Resolute as she crossed the finish line, you did a becoming and manly thing which this country gratefully approves. It may comfort you to know that the end of your twenty years of endeavor that the people of the United States during these days of racing have been of divided mind, hoping to keep the historic trophy yet loath to see so gallant a challenger for the fourth time beaten. So all Americans salute you, Sir Thomas.

DR. SCHOLL'S FOOT POWDER.

(Antiseptic)
An ideal antiseptic foot powder for hot, tender perspiring feet. Dr. Scholl's Foot Powder is sprinkled on the feet and in the stockings and shoes, giving a cool, restful feeling. Takes away the friction of the shoe and stocking upon the foot and has truly antiseptic, deodorizing qualities. Put up in an original shaped attractive can which makes it convenient for reaching either the tip of the toe of the shoe or the foot of the stocking. Dr. Scholl's Foot Powder should be used by all. It is a true medicinal and toilet necessity of great merit. Price per can, 35c.

DR. SCHOLL'S PEDICO FOOT BALM.

This is a soothing, cooling and healing cream-like preparation which should be rubbed well into the skin. It is refreshing and penetrating and relieves various foot discomforts and keeps the feet in good condition. It tones up the foot muscles, making them respond more freely, and leaves the feet as smooth and soft as nature intended. Prior to this treatment we strongly recommend bathing the feet, using Pedico Granulated Foot Soap to cleanse the pores of all impurities. Price 35c. per jar.

DR. SCHOLL'S PEDICO FOOT SOAP.

Blood circulation is slowest at extremities and careful attention to the feet is absolutely necessary, particularly regular washing with a real cleanser. Washing with ordinary soap and water is not sufficient to deodorize, purify and thoroughly cleanse the feet. Dr. Scholl's Pedico Foot Soap is chemically compounded in granular form in order that the rubbing massages the tissue and increases blood circulation thereby. Cleanses the pores of the skin of all impurities, leaving the feet soft, smooth and healthy. After this bath, feet should be dried and a little Dr. Scholl's Pedico Foot Balm applied. Price 35c. per can.

Beautiful Reparation.

In the year 1755, the two great Nations of Western Europe, England and France, had been at war almost constantly for a hundred years, and in every part of the globe—on land and sea—the clash of armies and the roar of opposing fleets rose to the Heavens. For generations after generation the children on each side of the Channel were taught to look upon each other as their natural enemies against whom war was the natural condition. Centuries of fighting had resulted in a settled condition of deepest hatred—a hatred deep and merciless that is not common to either of the gallant races concerned. In the year above mentioned, just as the fruit in the orchards were beginning to ripen and just after the hay had been gathered into the barns, and when the grain was showing the first glint of gold among the green, ships bearing the flag of England appeared in the Gaspereaux River at Grand Pre. A few days later, the peaceful people were called into the little chapel and there made prisoners. A few days more and the entire population of the village, amid sobs and tears, wended their way to the ships, exiles forever; the last sight to greet their streaming eyes being the smoke and flames which proclaimed the destruction of their beloved homes.

Almost two centuries have passed. The sad story of their exile has long been told in verse and prose to the universal sympathy of the sufferers. The two great enemies of the olden times have gone through the most terrible storm of war in all history. Allies of heart and hand against a common and brutal foe. Emerging victorious after untold suffering, their friendship has been cemented and sealed in blood on a thousand battlefields, cemented, we hope and believe forever. From the island of the conquerors of 1755 come a notable band of the brightest minds and noblest hearts. To the scene of the tragedy of that far-off time they come over land and ocean. They bow low and bare their heads in honor of the poor peasants who so greatly suffered, and proceed to perform a pleasing act of reparation. In the poetic personality of Evangeline the Acadian race of Grand Pre has been typified and enshrined. A beautiful statue has been moulded in her honor and placed upon the traditional site of her home. When the moment comes, a noble English lady steps forth from the group, and, with a voice filled with emotion, pronounces an eulogy upon the Acadian maiden and her people, expresses a noble sympathy for the victims of the tragedy, and with an eloquence worthy of the great subject, refers to the heart-to-heart love and alliance of the descendants of those whose mutual hatred was so deep and merciless in the long ago. Then the statue was unveiled.

The whole proceedings may be likened to a pilgrimage to some sacred shrine in order to offer up reparation for some regretted deed and to celebrate an anniversary of the world-protecting union of the two splendid races who no longer desire to refer to "old, unhappy, far-off things and hatreds long ago."

No more dramatic and touching incident could be imagined than the visit of the Imperial Press Association to Grand Pre, the unveiling of the Evangeline statue by Lady Burnham and the touching oration delivered on the occasion.—Acadian Recorder.

Sydney Team Ready for Nfld. Ball Tour.

Final arrangements for the trip of the Sydney All-Star Baseball Team to Newfoundland have been completed by N. Nathanson, of Whitney Pier, who is the business manager of the team, and the players will leave North Sydney on Saturday, Aug. 14th, for Port aux Basques. From Port aux Basques the players will travel to St. John's in a special sleeping-car which will be at the disposal of the party. The first game of the series with an all-star St. John's team, which will be picked to meet the local team, will be played on Monday, the 16th.

On Tuesday the teams will meet in the second game and the series will be concluded with a double-header on Wednesday. On Thursday the team will go to Grand Falls, where games have been arranged for with an all-star team of that town, on Friday and Saturday. From Grand Falls the team will go to Port aux Basques returning to Sydney on the following Monday.

In connection with the picking of the team that will represent the city on this trip, one of the promoters told The Record this morning that only players who are qualified will be chosen on the team. "There is an impression," he said "among the local players that only a certain bunch of players will be selected, but it has been definitely decided that only the best of the Sydney ball players will make the trip, and a player does not have to be a city leaguer to make the team." Another thing that the promoters are decided on is that no player will be taken unless he turns out to the practices, and all baseball players are asked to be at the Ashby field on Wednesday when a practice will be held.

Practices have been set for Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of this week, and every day next week. Saturday's practice will be held in the afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. All other practices will begin at 6 o'clock. The members of the team will be picked by Manager Fulton for the ability they show at these practices.

The team, which will be in charge of Lewis Fulton, will be composed of from 15 to 17 players. The arrangements for the games in Newfoundland have been made with responsible parties, and the success of the trip is assured.—Sydney Record, Aug. 3.

High Mass at St. Patrick's.

His Grace Archbishop Court, of Tyre, celebrated Last Mass at St. Patrick's Church yesterday, according to the Syrian rite. The Archbishop, in Pontificals, was attended on the altar by Rev. Fr. Soab, of Sydney, N.S., who acted as High Priest and Master of Ceremonies. The ritual was very impressive; the Mass was recited in Arabic, and the large congregation devoutly followed the service of the Holy Sacrifice with fervor and devotion. After the celebration His Grace knelt in prayer at the foot of the altar until all the worshippers had left the church.

The City of the Dead

Sarajevo Where the World's Tragedy Was Precipitated.

Sarajevo, where the murder of Duke Francis Ferdinand, the Austrian Crown Prince, precipitated world war, is a city of about 100,000 souls, living or dead, says a writer in a contemporary journal. Thousands of them are living and rest repose, apparently, on the tomb of Allah in the various Moslem cemeteries which impede traffic everywhere throughout the town.

colling open shops, in which merchants with red turbans and huge red beards sit cross-legged and sip Turkish coffee like the heroes of "The Arabian Nights." And everywhere in the streets one sees the Moslem women in the full trousers and tight hooded veils which Mohammed prescribes to preserve them from the gaze of men and infidels.

There are three great world cultures to clash and fought themselves deep. First, the primitive half-civilized Slav culture symbolized in its colorful costumes and its minor songs. Then the Latin culture of the west, north bringing the right discipline of the Austrian empire and the church. And finally the culture of the Turks, who devastated the city in the fifteenth century, and not leave it until the congress of 1878.

Sarajevo is perhaps of all cities the best type of that mongrel breeder of wars which is the Balkans. Here, besides the clash of religions and of cultures, there was, before the war, the political clash of pan-Slavism and pan-Germanism, complicated by the plotting of the Serbs to unite all south Slavs under the house of Kara-George. And here, six years ago, the Archduke of Austria-Hungary, who had come "to receive the homage of his loyal subjects," was assassinated by Gavrilo Princip.

through the city is almost entirely in race and language, these cultures have divided it geographically into almost equal parts. There are in Sarajevo about 12,000 Mohammedans, 12,000 Roman Catholics and 12,000 of the Greek Orthodox. Comprising nearly all the best of Bosnia, who came from Spain in the acquisition drove all the rest from that country and who speak to this day a dialect of Spanish.

the spot of the assassination bears no mark to distinguish it. Of, rather, one must be told by a native that the patch in the asphalt pavement and the patch on the wall of the nearby shop building cover the physical remnants of one of the most fatal acts of human history. By the river wall, some 40 feet away, there was formerly a temporary tablet placed by the Austrian Government to commemorate the place. This was removed at the time of the revolution, and is now a historical curiosity in the town museum. There are reports of a somewhat vague fund being raised to erect on the spot a memorial to Gavrilo Princip. But for the present the place is bare.

Mosques Everywhere. Although the Moslems have a bare shanty, they give the town all its life, with their mosques everywhere, with white plastered walls, on all at all times of the day can be seen the Moslem priests chanting to Allah. All the streets around great mosque are lined with low-

When they go out on the street the Sarajevo women wear veils, not like the Turkish women, from the eyes down, but covering the whole face. The veils are thick and black for young women, white for the old. If the wife is especially beautiful, she is commanded to wear a mask, too. Some unusually jealous husbands require their young wives to wear white veils. But the gossip of Sarajevo has it that even Moslem women are human, and that in spite of all veils young women will make eyes at young men.

Some day, after foreign capital has changed the tiny Metkovich railway into a great broad gauge, double track modern railroad line, and brought artificial fertilizers and steel plows to the Bosnian farms and opened up the fabulous Bosnian mines. But until then the red turbanned merchants will continue to sit cross-legged in their penny jewelry shops, sipping black coffee and waiting for Aladdin's lamp.

Women Are Veiled. When they go out on the street the Sarajevo women wear veils, not like the Turkish women, from the eyes down, but covering the whole face. bian secret terrorist society, he was chosen for the deed because he was still a few weeks under the age of 20, and, according to the Austrian law, the death penalty cannot be pronounced on any one under 20. All that is definitely known about him subsequent to the assassination is that he was condemned and taken to the fortress of Dusseldorf in Bohemia, where he died. It is said that in prison he played the part of a hero by refusing, under unspeakable tortures, to incriminate the Serbian Government in his plot. It is also said that the Austrian authorities, to take revenge, caused him to be infected with a vile disease, which necessitated the amputation of his arm. From this, and from the suffering he endured through torture, he died. His body was taken out in the dead of night and interred in a nameless grave, that his compatriots might never be able to make it a holy spot for pilgrimages. A Czech soldier, who assisted at the burial, secretly sympathizing with the Slav national aspirations, kept his counsel and betrayed to the Serbs the location of his grave. And from this grave some day the body of Gavrilo Princip may be brought back in triumph to Sarajevo, to be buried with solemn rites in a cemetery in the town or on the spot where the Crown Prince was murdered.

An Easy-Going City. Awaiting this event, Sarajevo lives its grubby life, talking about the movies and the price of meat. The brother of Gavrilo Princip manages his tobacco store a couple of blocks away from the great mosque, and every week or so he goes to his native village nearby to attend to his farm and see his aged parents. The local bureaucracy speculates on the next change in the Belgrade Government and how on earth a man can live on a Government official's salary.

One numerous portion of the inhabitants has lived all these years without probably ever having heard of Gavrilo Princip or the Crown Prince. It is to the inhabitants of the Sarajevo harem. It must be confessed that the harems of Sarajevo are mostly harems of one. The town rather deprecates more than one wife, except for good reasons, such as childlessness. But even when the Moslem wives are alone in their glory they are subject to the rigid rules of Mohammed. Though they may be jewels in the eyes of their husbands, the Koran says that in the eyes of Allah they are lower than the cat. They may not learn to read or write, for that would put ideas in their head. They may not leave their house except with the express permission of their husbands. They sleep on the floor. Their lives are passed in anticipation of Friday, the Moslem sabbath, when they visit one another in one of its most splendid palaces. And once in a long, long while, when they have found great favor in the eyes of their lords, they are taken to that marvel of marvels, the moving pictures.

Some day, after foreign capital has changed the tiny Metkovich railway into a great broad gauge, double track modern railroad line, and brought artificial fertilizers and steel plows to the Bosnian farms and opened up the fabulous Bosnian mines. But until then the red turbanned merchants will continue to sit cross-legged in their penny jewelry shops, sipping black coffee and waiting for Aladdin's lamp.

Whiskey Runners Attempted to Rob Farmer's Home. Windsor, Ont., Aug. 1.—Five motor cars carrying whiskey runners, paid a visit to the home of Frank Tourangeau, a farmer on the Malden road, Sandwich west, Friday night, in an effort to rob him and his brother of their supply of liquor, but were defeated in their attempt by the brothers defending their home with rifles and shotguns. The thieves used rifles of a heavy calibre, riddling the house with bullets, breaking windows and piercing doorways.

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation. Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors said that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well. My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARY BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

It is said that the invaders numbered 12 men and it is believed that the cars all came from the American side. Bullets picked up in the house show them to be steel-nosed and .45's and .38's. The police state that the Tourangeaus have over 400 cases of liquor in their home and it is thought that the bandits were aware of recent importations that had been received.

More War Clouds Are Gathering.

If the United States is not deliberately planning for an open rupture and a possible war with Japan, they are making a pretty poor job of it diplomatically. For years and most particularly since 1898, when the United States entered the Pacific by acquiring the Eastern possessions of Spain, there has been a great deal of covert hostility shown, particularly on the part of W. R. Hearst and people of that stripe, the drama being added to periodically by legislation adverse to the Japanese placed on the statute books by California, where the Japs are regarded with open hostility, chiefly because of their business-like qualities and capacity for hard work. The yellow man is the busy bee of the Pacific, and given equal chances with the white, will more than keep his end up.

The Legislature of the State of California has now passed a bill which will make it practically impossible for a Japanese to acquire by purchase or lease any land within its jurisdiction. This bill will shortly go before the people of that State for a referendum vote, and no doubt will eventually become law.

In political circles it is thought that this last action of California, heaped as it is on top of other unfriendly legislation passed by that State, will eventually lead to the breaking off of diplomatic relations between the two countries, and from that to war is but a step. The anti-pathetic against the Japanese on this continent arises from a dozen sources. Their inability to assimilate with other peoples, their isolation into communities; and their religious, or lack of religious belief, are among the many causes. When the adherents of the various Christian sects cannot get along without squabbling with one another, how can we expect a "Christian" to do other than fight with the "blooming heathen."

Another and greatly to be regretted factor toward engendering hatred is the false reports which from time to time come out of the Far East in respect to Japan's administration of Korea. We all know that when the Jap is on top he is no regard in officialism. But at the same time many of the widely printed stories of brutality toward the Koreans are both absurd and false. For instance, we read that a Korean citizen has been brutally murdered by the Japanese military authorities. "We do not hear, however, that the man was a spy and was executed according to military law. One could name dozens of like instances where just about half of the truth has been told, and always to the discredit of the Japanese. It being the business of these gossip mongers to enlarge upon the faults of the Japanese and hide their virtues. This business of stirring up trouble between the United States and Japan is attributed to various "interests," who for the dollars there would be in it are anxious to get a foothold in Kamakoucha and Siberia, where precious minerals abound. The "pesky" Japs, being crowded beyond endurance in their own little islands, are spreading over Asia. This thrust is an aggressive one, and this does not suit the book of the Anglo-Saxon clique who would like to operate in the Far East as they pleased.—Saturday Night.

Useful and Ornamental.

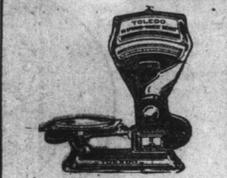

There are a considerable number of up-to-date householders who keep porch lights burning on the residential streets at night, adding considerably to the appearance and convenience of the streets. Why not a propaganda campaign by some of the city societies to see what can be done to make this practice more universal?

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors said that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well. My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARY BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal. If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years' experience is at your service.

TOLEDO SCALES

The Scale with the sign "Toledo—No Springs—Honest Weight" protects the customer against short-weight, and the merchant from over-weight. It is the square deal scale, giving sixteen ounces to every pound, no more, no less.

Freaks of Fame.

Who would have believed that the designer of the Washington monument and the Bunker Hill monument could keep his name from becoming a household word? To have planned either of these monuments ought to be enough to insure the planner's fame; to have planned both of them would be to take a bond of fate. But how many of those who read the account in the "Saturday Evening Post" of the career of Robert Mills could remember having heard his name? And what stanger irony could there be than that he owes his present fame to the circumstance that he has been nominated for a place in the Hall of Fame at University Heights? We are interested in him, not because he is famous, but because he ought to be famous. One is tempted to suggest a special section in the Hall of Fame, inscribed "Obscure Immortals."

Architects have always been ill treated by fame. Pickle towards everybody and everything else, the willful goddess has been consistent in her indifference to those who endeavor to build material monuments more enduring than brass. To know a poem without being able to give the name of the author on demand is a disgrace. Engravers are similarly neglected. So are composers of popular songs. Everybody can tell who wrote a musical masterpiece that lies untouched in the music rack, but to say who is the author of the song that we hum as we go about our work is beyond us. The fame of the mortal singer of an undying song may be far greater than that of the one who wrote the song. Jennie Lind's rendition of "Annie Laurie" is familiar history, but who except the compilers of reference books know of William Douglas? In a desperate effort to compensate for this ignoring of some of those who should be her children, Fame, unlike lightning, sometimes strikes twice in the same place, as when she acknowledged Sir Walter Scott as poet and then as novelist.—New York Tribune.
