Write Often to the Old Folks.
"Write often to the old folks,"
Said sister Kate to me.
"You're just a young fellow,
Among strangers you will be."
I know you'll write me well as play,
But never forget that you, my home,
Will long to hear from you.

"Now, Will, don't think me foolish,
But write me often,
And the will surely worry
If you put off writing long;
I know your eyes will sparkle,
And a bloom would tinge her cheek,
If you could only write her
A letter once a week.

"Write often to the old folks,
And you'll be glad,
Not very many years, alas!
Have they on earth to stay?
Oh, brother, write me often,
And never will you rue
The hours you write the old folks,
Who will long to hear from you."

"Dear sister, this I promise,
I'll write you often,
I'll write often to the old folks,
If you think 'twill please them so."
I wrote a weekly letter,
In my case and in yours—
And sister Kate informs me
Mother's cheeks are full of bloom.

Scriptural Measure.

November, the month of harvest had come. A soft hush of golden quiescence rested over the peaceful countryside.
Above, was the pale azure of the skies,
And yet beneath the hush of rest mingled the hush of expectancy. All things were resting yet waiting for that thick, comfortable blanket, which the defiant hands of winter never yet failed to spread over the land.

The leafless branches of the trees
swayed restlessly in the chill wind that whistled, sometimes with a harsh
whine, sometimes with a wailing note,
but murmured softly, like a mother stippled over the pathway of poplars, as if the thin rim of ice along its edges
thick, that was to bind fast all waters
that leap and surge that still and silent
and yet so full of life.

The Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 5, 1890.

Notes on Old Times and People.

The following gleanings, we believe, will read with interest by our readers. Ebenezer Felch, a native of Massachusetts, with his wife and children (several of whom were then married) came to Annapolis, and settled in what is now known as Bentleyville, in 1790 or 1791. Mr. and Mrs. Felch were the first white settlers in that town, and the survivor of them died, as we shall see, in 1878. Their son Ebenezer, Isaac, Daniel and John, were settled in the same district, and the former was a land surveyor, cordwainer and farmer. He had received what was then recognized as a good education in his native province, and became, on his settlement here, a prominent and useful citizen, though never possessed of a very strong constitution. This man kept a diary from March 19th, 1777, to February 20th, 1779, which is now before us. It deserves to be printed verbatim, as it gives an admirable picture of the daily life of our ancestors more than a century ago with a vividness and interest which is rare. We will, however, content ourselves, in this article, with a reference to some people and events noted in it.

Under date, Sunday, 8th of June, is the following entry: "I read the Rev. Mr. Allyn's sermon from Psalm 107, v. 31." This sermon was preached by Henry Allin, the evangelist Newlight, whose father and family were at that date residents in the township of Falmouth, and who, a few years later, died of consumption while on a preaching tour through the New England States. Mr. Felch makes frequent mention of the preaching of this man during that year and 1778, the latter being the last year during which he visited this district. On the 10th he writes: "Went to Edmund Hill and Rev. Evans." Henry Evans, sometime an M. P. for the township of Annapolis, was the person to whom he made reference in this entry. He had been previously domiciled in or near Salisbury, Mass., and had married a sister of Rev. John Baldwin, D. D., of Boston, by whom he had one child only—a daughter. He had been selected in conjunction with David Bent and Ebenezer Felch, as the father of the district—in 1780, to visit Annapolis, and report upon the propriety of accepting the grant of a township of 100,000 acres of land without payment. This grant was to include the marshes, which had been laboriously dyked by the dispersed French habitants, and the orchards they had planted, and the lands they had cultivated. It is no wonder that Messrs. Evans, Bent and Felch reported favorably, and during the next and following years came into possession of the land. Mr. Felch says on the 12th: "This day I went to Esq. Prince's." This reference reveals the fact that Christopher Prince, then M. P., resided on the "Bent Farm, though he represented the township of Granville in the Assembly until the first house erected in Digby, at which place he had located some years before, as a convenient place to carry on trade with the Indians, with whom he did a large business. He was a native of Boston, and a partner in the firm of Prince Brothers. His first wife was Mary Foster, a native of Boston, who died in this province. He afterwards married a daughter of Jonathan Payne, one of the grantees in Annapolis township. Mr. or Colonel Prince was in conspicuous figure in the early history of the country. His remains lie buried in the village of Lawrenceville, to which place he went about 1785. He died before the beginning of the century.

The following entry in the diary was made on the 20th, being Sunday: "Went to meeting to hear the Rev. Mr. Morse who preached from Acts, ch. 26, v. 14, and in afternoon from 2 Cor., ch. 4, v. 10." The reference here is to the Rev. Amos Morse, for whom a meeting house was built in Granville, on lands then belonging to Joseph Dodge. He had accepted of a call to preach to the Granville settlers in that part of the township, and to extend his services on the Annapolis side of the river from time to time. A few years later this man having first sold the "ministerial hands" granted to dissenting congregations, returned to his native province, Massachusetts, where he sometime afterwards died. The meeting house thus vacated was purchased by the Episcopalians of the two townships, and was for many years after used as a place of worship for that body of Christians. Mr. Morse was, we believe, distantly related to Abner and Samuel Morse, from whom the Morse families of the county are descended.

On the 25th August he writes: "Heard Mr. Fisher was dead. Watched at night at Fisher's and next day went to the funeral." This was Nathaniel Fisher, a grantee of Annapolis, who was the grandfather of the Rev. Nathaniel Vailo, so well known throughout the county.

Sept. 22nd: "Very rainy; old house fell down; had to move out to Widow Lawrence's house in the rain and in which he lived, and which fell down during this stormy equinox, was an old French dwelling, spared by accident from the flames which consumed so many others in 1795? The widow Lawrence referred to was the widow of William Lawrence, who was one of the early settlers here. Her maiden name was Messenger, and she was a daughter of Ebenezer Messenger, from whom all our Messengers are descended, and was born at Wrentham, Mass., and probably married there a few years before her father's removal to the valley. She afterwards returned to Massachusetts, where she died leaving three children to mourn her departure.

"Octr. 7th, 1797: Warm for the time of year; went to Beriah Rice's, got a plough." This reference is not to Beriah Rice, senior, (who had died in 1764), but to his son Beriah, who at that time lived, we think, on the farm now owned and occupied by Mr. Joseph Rice, near this town.

"Nov. 25th: Made cider for Mr. Bass." This Mr. Bass lived a mile or more eastward from Mr. Felch's home. His name was Joseph, and he was a brother of the right Rev. Edward Bass, D. D., first bishop of Massachusetts. "He was one of the very few adherents to the English church then to be found in the county, and was a man highly esteemed for his many good qualities, and has left descendants who are yet with us. Joseph Bass, of Melvers Square, is a great-grandson. The Bars of Queens County, are descended from John Bass, another brother, whose descendants have changed the orthography of the family from some cause which we have been unable to trace. On a near future occasion we shall endeavor to resume the subject.

Meadows Iron Mines.

Active work is being thoroughly and most satisfactorily pushed forward at the iron works in Meadows, and the promoters of the enterprise look forward to a very extensive business during the coming summer. The provisions of an old and special mineral from Londonderry have been secured, and the effort is now being put forth on the property of the late Ingram Banks in driving a tunnel in a straight north and south line, in order to strike the main lead which runs in an easterly and westerly direction.

Mr. Roman, the superintendent of the entire works, has the lead on the Millberry property under his management, and has been giving employment to some thirty laborers during the past two weeks. He had received what was then recognized as a good education in his native province, and became, on his settlement here, a prominent and useful citizen, though never possessed of a very strong constitution.

Mr. R. G. Leekie, a gentleman who has been an indefatigable promoter in the advancement of these works, and whose business in connection therewith lately took him to Ottawa, made a statement during his visit there, in which he said that he was satisfied to be an uncontradicted fact in the county that the ore from the leads in this county far surpassed that of the Picton mines.

The adjourned meeting of ratifiers for the Water-District Bridgetown took place at Denison's Hall on Wednesday evening the 26th ult. A large and representative meeting gathered together, R. E. FitzRandolph, Esq., in the chair. The minutes of last adjourned meeting were read over and approved by the meeting. The Auditor's Report was now called for, and duly read and presented by W. M. Forsyth, Esq., and laid on the table, when it was moved by J. G. H. Parker, and seconded by E. Ruggles, that the report, as a whole, be received and adopted by the meeting. This was put to the meeting and passed. A lively discussion now took place between the commissioners, auditors and ratifiers as to the report, and it was moved by J. G. H. Parker and seconded "That the day-book, ledger, cash and bank-book of the commissioners be now produced at this meeting, and laid on the table, with the auditors' report, to which an amendment was moved by John L. Cox and duly seconded, as follows: "That to produce the books as mentioned would be inexpedient, and that said books be not now produced," which amendment was carried.

By some oversight, it was again moved by Mr. R. A. Crowe and seconded, "That the auditors' report be received and adopted," which passed unanimously. The resolution proposing free water to the manufacturers which last year over from last year was now taken up for discussion and reads as follows: "In order to encourage the manufacturing industries of this town, that all the factories therein where steam is the motive power, have the use of the water necessary for manufacturing purposes free of charge for the next five years."

After several persons had spoken thereon, and the matter of free water to all had been proposed and found impracticable in the present state of the law, an amendment was moved by John L. Cox, Esq., and seconded by E. Ruggles, "That the following manufacturers be allowed the use of water for the next five years at the following rates: Geo. Murdoch, $20 per year; J. B. Reed & Sons, $25 per year; The Bridgetown Foundry Company, $15 per year; and the Acaadian Iron Company, $10 per year."

A petition from the owners and occupiers of real estate on Queen Street, Bridgetown, to have a public sewer laid down on said street, was now laid on the table and ordered to be read. It was then moved by J. G. H. Parker and seconded by J. W. Beck, that the prayer of said petition be granted; which on being put to the meeting, passed unanimously.

Meeting now adjourned sine die.

Local and Other Matter.

The Annapolis Steam Packet Co. have chartered the steamer Monticello for $1,000, for damage done by collision last week.

T. G. Bishop has just received a new lot of Prints, Gingham and Shirtings. Splendid value for 8 cents per yard.

We have been credibly informed that three years ago, when he was but a boy, the butcher business in that town. His father the debtors were outlawed, three years ago he went money enough to pay off fifty cents on the dollar and now he has come over himself and paid them the last cent due.

Noble Conduct.—Mr. James Wyman, well-known as the proprietor of several eating restaurants in Boston, recently returned to Yarmouth for the purpose of paying off creditors for debts contracted some fifteen years ago, when he was in the business of a butcher in that town. His father the debtors were outlawed, three years ago he went money enough to pay off fifty cents on the dollar and now he has come over himself and paid them the last cent due.

Narrow Escape.—Mr. J. R. Reed, the senior member and founder of the industry known as J. B. Reed & Sons, furniture manufacturers, had a very narrow escape from losing both legs, if not being killed, one day last week. While ascending on the elevator with a load of materials, one of the upper rooms, he accidentally slipped and fell, his limbs projecting out over the platform. In trying to save himself he caused a square piece of timber, laid diagonally across the elevator, to shift position enough to come in contact with the flooring of the second story, causing the chain on the hoist to slip for a second or two, thus enabling him to recover the rope, and save himself from what might have proved a terrible accident, if not an untimely death.

Donation Party at Wadville.—Fully seventy-five happy people, members of the Baptist church and congregation, met at the house of Mr. Eben Bent on Friday evening, 28th, last, on making their pastor, Rev. F. M. Young, happy; and if cheerful countenance, warm hearts and open hands could do it, they must have succeeded, for a more pleasant party has seldom been our privilege to meet. After partaking of a beautiful repast, prepared in the best style, and such as to tempt the most fastidious, and spending the early part of the evening in general socialities, Mr. Chas. Weather was called to the chair, upon taking which he introduced Mr. James Morrison, who, in most, impromptu speech presented Mr. Young with a purse containing nearly $35, as an expression of good-will. In replying Mr. Young expressed himself to be much surprised, both as the number of people gathered to meet him and his companion, and the amount raised, and assured the company of his growing esteem for them, and hoped by faithful work among them to be found worthy of their confidence. Encouraging words for the pastor were said by Mr. Eben Bent and Mr. Valentine Eaton. With singing and prayer the party separated, feeling such gatherings to be profitable to all concerned.

A GREAT VICTORY.—The Montreal #48 says: "Rev. G. Osborne Troop won a great victory for the free seat cause—and won it over his people by the help. First having prevailed at the meeting of the partitioners of St. Martin's that had been called to consider the proposed abolition of pew rents. The meeting was a large one and it was noticeable that not one voice was raised against the principle of free seats."

Willamston Whispers.

ACCIDENT.—Messrs. Byron and Alfred Morse lost a fine ox one day last week by the falling of a tree while in the woods. Fortunately, he being fast beef, the loss will be somewhat made up.

Division Grange meets in Temperance Hall on Thursday, the 6th inst., at 10 o'clock, a.m. All Grangers are cordially invited to attend, as a grand time is anticipated.

"The 'Pie Social' held in the Hall on Friday evening last proved a grand success. First of the season.—C. R. Morse, Esq., made a small quantity of maple sugar on March 1st. Who can beat it?"

LAWRENCEVILLE NOTES.

The Hand super on Friday evening last proved a decided success. Notwithstanding the unpleasant state of the roads the Bridgetown boys were on hand to aid their brother Bandmen—and they did it right.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. CO.—A change is announced in the sailing of this line from St. John. Instead of the steamer "St. John" every Monday and Thursday mornings, they will leave, on and after March 11th, Tuesdays and Thursdays, at 7:45 a.m., eastern standard time. Fare table, with the rates of Boston, first-class, 89 second class, $4.00.

CLUB OF TRAVELERS.—The members of the Lawrenceville Brass Band and the residents of Lawrenceville desire to express their thanks to the Bridgetown Brass Band for their kind services on Friday evening last as well as on former occasions, and trust that the good feeling existing between the different Bands in the county, as well as between the several communities, may always continue and prove mutually beneficial.

ANNAPOLIS NOTES.

Last Thursday evening the meeting held in the Union Hall for the purpose of forming a "Salvage Corps" was very largely attended, only the following gentlemen being present: Messrs. W. J. Shannon, E. D. Arnold, R. C. Hamilton, W. H. Weldon, Fred Leavitt, H. A. West, A. H. Moore, A. D. McRae and Geo. K. Thompson. Mr. W. J. Shannon was elected chairman, and Mr. A. D. McRae secretary pro tem.

It was moved by Mr. Leavitt, seconded and passed, that a "Salvage Corps" be formed. As there was so few present it was decided to wait until next meeting for the election of officers.

THE MONITOR HAS ALWAYS been ready and willing on all occasions to advance the interests of any charitable or beneficent object that may transpire throughout the county in the town, and is willing to lend its services to such in the future. There is, however, one thing that we do not wish to do, and that is to give gratuitous press notices and "pufts" of entertainments and amusements where a regular admission is charged at the door, and from which we receive no compensation whatever.

BERWICK ITEMS.

On Wednesday afternoon, a number of friends and relatives assembled at the residence of Mr. A. F. Chipman, to witness the funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Chipman, nee Geo. W. Eaton, Esq., a prominent citizen of Berwick. The Rev. E. O. Reed, of Lockeport, assisted by the Rev. D. O. Parker, brother-in-law of the bride, presided at the ceremony; after which an interment was held. The bride was a native of Hampton, and especially so when he had to contend against such strong opposition, in spite of which he was always held to the front. My motto in the future, will, as I have said, be "I will fight for the rights of all," and I still hope for a large share of the patronage.

THE BAPTIST Church of this place is at present without a pastor. For the past few months the pulpit has been supplied from Sabbath to Sabbath by students from Acadia. At a recent church meeting a resolution was passed to extend a call to the Rev. A. B. Kempton, of Canaan, to assume the pastorate. Both the Baptists and Methodist congregations are making preparations to thoroughly remodel their respective churches. Work on the Methodist building will commence this month, and the Rev. A. B. Kempton, of Canaan, will be engaged to superintend the work on both houses.

"A Lost Art."

Mr. Editor, I was fortunate enough to be present at the Lenten Service held in St. James' Church, in this town, on Friday evening, April 2nd, last. The subject was "The Christian's Duty," and the lecturer was the celebrated Oliver Wendell Holmes on the last arts, together with the experience of the present day, suggested to the preacher the idea that this great essential the christian life should be well added to the last arts. Capital illustrations were presented to the audience from the manners and customs of the Mohammedan when he worshipped, and the heathen who truly worshipped the only God he knew, and the trials of the Indian—"Get all and give little."

Indeed, we do not require even to look about us in a modern place of worship now-days to observe how far short christians of the present day come of that standard of public worship set us by our Creator, and which is required of us if we read and believe our Bibles. The friendly greetings and smiles, and many thanks, exchanged and indulged in by members of choirs, where the strictest demands should prevail; the too frequent coming into the church with covered heads; the every-day talk indulged in by congregations on the eve of their departure is indeed painful, and far other than we should expect of the followers of the holy Jesus. Let all things be done decently and in order, particularly apply to the house of God. Let me add that this discourse was in every sense of the word an intellectual treat, a telling christian discourse, and worth repeating.

Through the kindness of Mr. S. T. Neely, we have received a number of "Ingalls' Home Journal," which we can heartily recommend to those of our readers interested in Household Decorations, Art Studies, or Fancy Work of almost every description. The low price asked for each copy is well repaid in its wide reach of all, and we may add it compares very favorably with the other popular magazines of the day. Published by J. F. Ingalls, Lynn, Mass.

"A Lost Art."

Mr. Editor, I was fortunate enough to be present at the Lenten Service held in St. James' Church, in this town, on Friday evening, April 2nd, last. The subject was "The Christian's Duty," and the lecturer was the celebrated Oliver Wendell Holmes on the last arts, together with the experience of the present day, suggested to the preacher the idea that this great essential the christian life should be well added to the last arts. Capital illustrations were presented to the audience from the manners and customs of the Mohammedan when he worshipped, and the heathen who truly worshipped the only God he knew, and the trials of the Indian—"Get all and give little."

Indeed, we do not require even to look about us in a modern place of worship now-days to observe how far short christians of the present day come of that standard of public worship set us by our Creator, and which is required of us if we read and believe our Bibles. The friendly greetings and smiles, and many thanks, exchanged and indulged in by members of choirs, where the strictest demands should prevail; the too frequent coming into the church with covered heads; the every-day talk indulged in by congregations on the eve of their departure is indeed painful, and far other than we should expect of the followers of the holy Jesus. Let all things be done decently and in order, particularly apply to the house of God. Let me add that this discourse was in every sense of the word an intellectual treat, a telling christian discourse, and worth repeating.

"How to Purify Drinking Water..."

"Prof. Peter T. Austin, Ph. D., F. C. S., says in Scientific American..."

"The method of filtration is simple in its nature... It is to be noted that the bottle should be thoroughly cleaned and the water filtered..."
