FRIEND TELLS A SAD STORY

McLaughlin Was Dumped at Wharf

Was Then Almost in Dying Condition—Kept in Ferry House All Night

Friends of Terrence McLaughlin, the North End consumptive who collapsed in the ferry house at Indian town on Wednesday are distressed at the plight which befell him. It appears that McLaughlin, who had been stopping with Anthony Maguire in Indian town, on Monday it was decided to send him to the hospital but, according to what his friends say, he was returned on Tuesday and left at the Indian town ferry house on Wednesday morning.

Anthony Maguire told his story of what happened to The Star yesterday. "McLaughlin," he said, "was stopping at my house, and last Monday I thought he should be taken to the hospital to receive better treatment, for the man seemed to be dying. I went to Alderman John McGoldrick and secured a permit from him to have McLaughlin placed in the public hospital. I then hired the ambulance to take him over, but on Tuesday night Dennis McCarthy, an attendant at the hospital, drove the dying man back to Indian town in a cab and left him at the ferry house. I went down to the wharf and found McLaughlin on board the ferry boat. I carried him into the ferry house and placed him on one of the seats and remained there with him until Wednesday morning. I had to keep a fire burning to keep him warm. Maguire said that the reason why he did not take him to his house was because he had no bed for McLaughlin and that the only reason the hospital authorities gave for turning McLaughlin out was that his case was incurable, and they did not want him there.

LONDON, Ont., May 7.—Shortly before noon today a report started that part of the roof of St. George's school, on Waterloo street, north of Oxford street, had fallen, and that many children had been caught in the wreck.

Apparently the plaster and masonry ceiling in the upper floor of St. George's school house, which fell, was between fifty and sixty in number had time to crouch down on the floor and in this way all escaped serious injury, some fourteen or fifteen receiving slight scratches and bruises. One of the teachers was also slightly hurt, but no one had to be removed to the hospital.

The maidens of Denmark never receive a diamond engagement ring. They are always presented with a plain gold band, which is worn on the third finger of the left hand. On the wedding day the bridegroom changes the ring to the right third finger, which is the marriage finger in that country.

MONCTON, May 8.—The death occurred very suddenly at 10.30 last night of Edward Robertson, one of the oldest and best known residents of Moncton. He was 78 years of age, was born in Moncton, where he spent nearly all his life. He lived in St. John for a time, being engaged in the livery stable business there with his brother, the late C. A. Robertson, up to the time of the big fire, when he came to Moncton, residing here ever since. Mr. Robertson of late years had trouble with his heart, but was in his usual health yesterday, being about town and calling on friends. He returned to the boarding house of Mrs. McDonald, head of Steadman street, about five o'clock, and ate a hearty supper. An hour or two after tea he went to his room, complaining of distress in the breast and an hour later he passed away. The deceased's father was the late James Robertson, who was one of the original land owners in Moncton. The only surviving member of the family is Mrs. Hiram Humphrey, Newcastle. The late Alfred Robertson, Portland, Me., was a brother. During the construction of the old European and North American Railway between Moncton and Shediac deceased was one of the contractors. For the last thirty years he had not been engaged in any business. He never married. Mrs. Geo. R. McChesney and Mrs. Charles Fowler of this city are nieces, and he had a large number of relatives living in different parts of the province.

THE LITTLE WARS ON THE INDIAN FRONTIER

"The finest chap in the world" is a pretty good testimonial to give a man who has a marked predilection for spending you when you are asleep, robbing you when you are wide-awake, and knifing you when on sentry-go, yet that is Tommy Atkins' whole-hearted appreciation of the Afridi in general, and the Zakkas Khel in particular.

Tall, sinewy, happy, as a sandboy, cunning as a serpent, bold as a lion—that is the Afridi. Meet him on the footpath, and if he has a mind to—even though you wear a red coat, and the sentries of Peshawar countenances stand only a few yards away—he will unceremoniously bump you into the gutter.

Like the traditional Irishman—and, by the way, many among the pure-blooded tribesmen have red hair and blue eyes—he is ever spoiling for a fight, and that is why Tommy loves him.

WHEN TOMMY REJOICES.

If it were not for the periodical shindies which it is his delight to organize, partly for profit and partly for amusement, soldiering on the North-West frontier of India would be a weariness to the flesh. When the tribes are on the rampage, Tommy rejoices, and prays that it may be his particular luck to be one of the expedition sent to quell them. His wish granted, he is on the march in twelve hours, with a battalion of Sikhs or Gurkhas besides, and a battery of two of mountain artillery, "to take lay with the Pathans," as Mulvaney puts it.

And a well-armed and exceedingly peppery foe he finds awaiting him. The law makes the selling of arms and ammunition to the Pathans a criminal offence. Thus, as he may not buy—at any rate, on our side of the Afghan frontier—he sets himself to steal. A Lee-Enfield rifle, valued at $18, Government price, is worth a good 400 rupees ($130) on the border.

PRECIOUS ARMS.

It is the English rifle only that the Pathans covet, and no doubt half the joy to him is in the procuring of it. In the days when sentries in peace times mounted guard with Service rifles, the task was not so difficult. A stealthy approach, a swift rush, the thud of an Afghan knife, and the rifle was gone. Now, however, Tommy, on all points except the guard-room door, mounts with an old Martini, bolted and loaded with black shot. Such a weapon is of no use to a Pathan, so he concentrates his attention on the guard-house, where the rifles are kept.

The sentry here, if the post is an exposed one, has his rifle changed to his bow. His post is also protected by glaring lanterns, reflecting outwards, in the shadows of which he stands. Even this will not deter a Zakkas, the boldest of all frontiersmen. A party of raiders will worm their way through the sentry-line into the heart even of a station like Peshawar—the Aldershot of the North-West. Here, as in all cantonments, the rifles are kept in racks, with a padlocked steel rod pinning the trigger-guards. With his head in this rack, sleeps the corporal of the room. The breech-bolts are hidden in the men's bedding. They are almost always in the complete rifle, for round them native chapsmen will build a weapon of sorts.

A DOUBLE ROLE.

"Come, let us send our women and children, our old and our sick, to a safe place, and then twist the lion's tail a little," says a wily tribesman.

"He will come up after us, and knock down our mud towers with his screeching arrows, but we can rebuild them in a few weeks. Meantime, by day we will sell him grass at fancy prices, ten-cent fowls at five rupees, and eggs at twelve cents apiece; then, at night we can amuse ourselves with a little rifle practice at his camp. He is a good sportsman, the rascal, and he will not mind."

And that is just what it comes to. The columns must depend to some extent on local supplies, so that a bazaar is opened outside the standing-camp, to which the natives are invited to bring their produce. Having hidden their rifles away first in some convenient cranny, in swaggers the Pathans, with bullock-carts loaded with fodder and burdens of fruit and edibles. At six o'clock the market closes, and they retire.

"What time are you going to open fire to-night?" asks one Tommy who can talk their "bat".

PART OF THE GAME.

"Oh, about eight o'clock" answers the foe, with a grin. And, sure enough, at that hour the rifles begin to flash on the hillsides, and in lob the bullets among the camels and mules tethered in the camp of the camp.

The sentries dotted thick round the walls, having set up a dummy or two to draw the enemy's fire, quietly watch them without replying. As for Tommy, he may spend ten minutes before turning in observing the smoke-forms crawling about the camp, perhaps only a couple of hundred yards away, but after that he drops off to sleep, safe under the shelter of the parapet, paying no more attention to the flying bullets than if they were scattered butterflies.

PLAN THE BEST EXPO. EVER HELD IN ST. JOHN

The first meeting this season of the executive of the St. John Exhibition Association was held last evening in their rooms, Sears building, King street. President A. O. Skinner presided.

Matters in connection with the exhibition were discussed at length. It was decided to make extensive repairs to all the buildings.

The opinion seemed to be general to make this year's show better than any yet held. It was also felt that something new should take the place of the different attractions seen at the other fairs. Some additions were made to the price list. It was decided to make an increase of about $100 to the benefit of the show.

In regard to the horse show, it was decided to make an effort to bring out a better class of horses and give every opportunity to local horsemen to show their animals.

This year's exhibit of poultry, it is expected, will be very large and make repairs and additions will be made to the poultry yard.

It was proposed to have an art room, as a special feature of the show, and a committee was appointed to see what could be done. At the Dominion Exhibition at Halifax the art room was a great success and there is also an excellent art building at the Toronto show.

The amusement features were left to a committee and something to take the place of last year's attractions will be secured. An effort will be made to make the automobile show as attractive as possible.

The president of the Kennel Club is to meet a committee from the exhibition in the near future and make arrangements regarding the dog show.

The public gardens in Rockwood Park are already beginning to take on their summer appearance. Notwithstanding that the season has been somewhat backward, Gardener Stephens is of the opinion that the gardens will be up to their usual standard early next month. MacKinnon, teller at the head office of the Bank of New Brunswick, this city, has tendered his resignation to that institution and will leave tomorrow for a visit to his home in Summerside, P. E. A large portion of that period has been spent at the head office here and he has made many friends in both the business and social spheres in this city, all of whom will hear of his departure with regret, mingled with the very best wishes for his future success.

SEND YOUR CHILDREN TO CHINA

What better entertainment could a parent have his or her child attend than the Nickel programme for tomorrow? In the first place, there will be an educational picture, "China, its people, its homes, its trades and its streets," something that will be of lasting benefit to the little ones. The Edison success, "Animated Snowballs," will make the children titter with glee, and "The Workman's Revenge" is not so sensational as its title suggests. Two bright songs, lots of good music, natron and amusements.

Tomorrow they will surround a village near at hand, rush it with the bayonet, and find, at the most, some old gentleman, too infirm to be removed, waiting to do the honors. Then his six or seven mud towers will be blown up by the pioneers, and the column will retire.

Next day the Pathan is back at the bazaar again, with fresh eggs and a cheerful smile, to inquire the extent of the "tag" overnight, and Tommy tells him.

A SCHOOL FOR COW-BOYS IN ENGLAND.

In England a school has been organized for the purpose of training boys who wish to become colonists, in the life of the ranch as it is lived in the North-West Territories. A great deal of interest is being taken in the scheme by prominent men who are interested in the well-being of the colonies. It is expected that the school will be opened in a few weeks' time.

DAY'S WORK.

He starts at five o'clock in the morning, and from then until a hard day's work has been done he will be living the life of the plains, although within a very few miles of London civilization. One of the chief things he will have to learn is the care of his horse. He is taught to be a "vet" and to be his own groom, just as he is his own servant. One of this first lesson is how to hobble his horse. Then he learns how to ride on Colonial and Mexican saddles. After that he is taught how to throw a restive horse, and when he has learnt to pack a pack, that makes life easy for the frontiersman, he is instructed in the other arts of his trade. There is a small herd of cattle on which he is taught the art of driving a herd. Then comes the stock-whip, and he has to learn to wield the twenty-four feet of heavy lash till he can, in the language of the cowboy, "cut any odd hair" of a galloping steed.

WORK WITH THE LASSO.

FRONTIERSMAN'S LIFE.

The principal of the school is a Mr. French, and when a contract for $750 course has been signed and $750 dollars has been paid, he takes complete charge of the young frontiersman. Once under his care, the pupil lives the life of the frontiersman to the full. There is no going back. If he finds the life too hard he cannot leave and then come back. He either stays the whole time or goes away altogether, with his $750 returned. In winter he must sleep in a house of corrugated iron and round boarding. A hard bunk and Army blankets are his bed; Irish stew his chief food. In summer his home is a bell-tent.

THE ARMY LIFE OF THE LAST CENTURY.

Life in the army was not always the serious business it is now, and striking evidence of this fact is to be found in the diary of General William Dwyott, which has just been published. In those days the army was regarded by the aristocratic classes more in the light of an enjoyable occupation than of a serious profession. Dwyott belonged to the ranks of the upper ten, but notwithstanding that he seemed to have been a good regimental officer with some special charm. He was quartermaster in Ireland during the most of his early years; constant hard drinking, varied by occasional long marches, and a little love thrown in to give spice to existence seems to have been the chief features of his military life there.

not another within five miles of the place, I asked him what the house was. He said, "Did you never hear of the Lawless House?" To which I replied in the negative. He said that house was not within any parish, did not pay any rates or levies. Dwyott did not see much of war. Although he saw service in the West Indies and was present at the siege of Alexandra and Fort Mervat, he remained in the ranks. Historically his notes on the last affair are probably the most valuable thing in the diary. At the end of Chatham had left, he was for a time second in command, and his splendid physique kept him fit for the most arduous work. He had previously sailed for Portugal to reinforce Moore, but had been ordered back on the news of Coruna. Dwyott seems to have had a burning contempt for the War Office of those days and does not appear to have been impressed much by Wellington. After leaving the army he settled down to an interesting social life as a "bon vivant." He held out long, and was a most devoted father to his children, whose mother had eloped and been divorced.

LAUGHABLE SIGHT.

"We had a very good dinner and he sent wine of his own; the very best I ever tasted. We had the mess-rooms drawn up in front of the mess-room windows to fire a volley in honor of the toast as soon as dinner was over he began. He did not drink himself, he always drank Madeira. He took very good care to see everybody full, and he gave twenty-three bumpers without a halt. In the course of my experience I never saw such fast drinking.

7,000,000 ACRES SEEDED TO WHEAT. Western Crop Expected to Exceed Previous Records. Informal Estimate Places 1908 Wheat Yield at 125,000,000 Bushels if Conditions Favor.

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Reports received from Western points indicate that the increase in wheat acreage this year will be tremendous. Local grain men are already making their estimates of what the western wheat crop will be, and conservative men have stated that in their opinion 125,000,000 bushels of wheat alone will be threshed out in 1908.

An estimate regarding wheat acreage made by W. H. McWilliams, an American prominent in the Winnipeg grain trade and president of the Canadian Elevator Company, makes very interesting reading. He had reports from every section of the west and says that 7,000,000 acres will be seeded to wheat alone, an increase of 2,000,000 acres over last year. The increase in course grains is also expected to be very large, farmers seeding more and more acreage of oats and barley.

LOST ON LONELY ROCK. Another amusing incident occurred while the diarist was travelling to join his regiment in Ireland in 1781. "When I had travelled about an hour I was awakened by the chaise stopping, when the post-boy did me the satisfaction of telling me he was lost for which I made him a low bow and then kicked him. It was in the middle of an immense forest, and not near light. I stood gazing about for an hour, and at last described a house at a good distance from us, which we made for, but on our way there we were so unlucky as to get the chaise overturned. When we got to the house the man told us we were about four miles from the road, but that he would take us a short cut. I asked the man where we were, but he said in the forest of Charlie, I think if we had not seen his house there was

The many remarkable cures of colds and grip effected by this preparation have made it famous over a large part of the civilized world. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. It not only cures colds and grip, but counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia.

This remedy is also a certain cure for croup, and has never been known to fail. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack.

Whooping cough is not dangerous when the cough is kept loose and expectoration free by the use of this remedy.

It contains no opium or other harmful substance, and it may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult.

GALICIANS WILL SOON TAKE PART IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Growing More Independent Politically - American Invasion

EDMONTON, Alta., May 7.—Among the numerous peoples who make up the population of the West an important part is that taken by the Galicians. A large colony of them is growing up in the Edmonton country, and a number are among the business and laboring classes of the city as well. That we are to have more of them is evidenced by the fact that recent immigrant arrivals at Winnipeg have included a large portion of Galicians, whose purpose it is to work during the summer on Grand Trunk Pacific construction.

The Galicians have proved thus far a useful class. It can hardly be said that they are entirely desirable citizens, for they are not only unimpaired with domestic habits and ideals that are distinctly not Canadian, but they are of unexampled temperance and still undeveloped in the principles of practical citizenship and independence, being subject largely to the men who pose as their local leaders. Nevertheless, they are sturdy workers, industrious, and thrifty, and will assuredly play a large part in the building of the West. They are, so far as industrial worth goes, a more desirable class of settlers than the Doukhobors.

Another notable feature of this season's immigration is the coming in of a much larger number than usual of intending settlers from the Western States. This applies indeed, to all of the West as well as to the Edmonton district and from Winnipeg west the immigration and publicity offices are receiving large numbers of enquiries from men who want to know about the Canadian west. Several advance parties have already come to Edmonton, and the country north and west of here will be a favorite objective point.

Angel's Fad.

By ANNA MUNSON.

(Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press)

Michael Angelo Moutrie was his name, and the diminutive of "Angel," bestowed upon him by a doting mother, was well applied. At least this was the opinion of other tenants in the big Burlington apartment house.

Angel was eight years old, but he scarcely looked six, with his long golden curls and ethereal beauty. In his velvet suits he suggested some child of the Little Lony Fauntleroy period held over into an age of Buster Browns.

Mrs. Moutrie was possessed of a theory that as the child is named so the tastes incline, and he had set her heart upon his being a painter.

Angel was quick to perceive his popularity, and with unerring instinct he found his way to those apartments where candy and cake were to be had. He seemed to know when callers with offerings of candy had visited the different young women, and his own calls were scheduled for the following day.

His one exception was Nannie Dimmick. Nannie seldom entertained callers of the sort Angel most loved. No five-pound boxes of sweets lay upon her table, and no great masses of flowers scented the room.

number of purveyors of candy. His face took on an expression of surprise as the operator returned an answer, that Miss Dimmick was not at home.

"She was there a little while ago," insisted Angel, selfishly interested in the stranger's success.

"The operator flashed an angry glance at him which caused Angel to subside, and the stranger left the lobby with an air of dejection far different from the springy step with which he had entered.

"The next day he came again and asked that a note be sent upstairs. He waited for the answer and read it before he turned to leave. Angel followed him to the street.

"I say," he began, "are you the fellow Miss Nannie used to like?" "Why?" asked Ryder, parrying question with question.

"Because she's sore on you because you didn't write, continued Angel. "Are you the fellow?"

Ryder nodded and after a moment's hesitation Angel continued. "On the level I didn't mean to do nothing, but—I took the letters for my collection."

"You are collecting letters?" asked Ryder, hardly comprehending the confession.

"Stamps," exclaimed the Angel. "They were bulky stamps. I didn't suppose Miss Nannie would care. My whole lot of letters that she throws into the fire without reading, so I took the ones with the funny stamps. I guess that's why she looks like she always wants to cry. I didn't think of it that way until the other day. Then I waited until I saw whether you made it up."

Ryder's face grew black as at last he realized what the boy was saying, but Angel's eyes were again his salvation.

"Go up and tell Miss Dimmick what you have told me," commanded Ryder. "Tell her that I wrote every stamp. Tell her that I have been half frantic. Have you the letters that you are carrying?"

"Burned 'em," exclaimed Angel, "that is, all except the stamps. They had no value. I don't collect postage, but I added virtuously, as though this were some extension of his fault.

Ryder paced the sidewalk while Angel went to make his confession. It was a long quarter hour, but at last Angel's face was white and scared, appeared on the steps.

"I fixed it for you," he announced, "but Mrs. Dimmick heard that I said I bet I got the licking of my life." And he sat down on the steps while yet he could sit, to ponder on the fatal fascinations of a fad.

Kokomo Woman Gives Fortune

To Help Women Who Suffer

In the past few years Mrs. Cora B. Miller has spent $25,000.00 in giving medical treatment to afflicted women. Some time ago we announced in the columns of this paper that she would send free treatment to every woman who suffered from female diseases or piles.

More than a million women have accepted this generous offer, and as Mrs. Miller is still receiving requests from thousands of women from all parts of the world, who have not yet used the remedy, she has decided to continue the offer for awhile longer, at least.

This is the simple, mild and harmless preparation that has cured so many women in the privacy of their own homes after doctors and other remedies failed.

It is especially prepared for the speedy and permanent cure of leucorrhoea or whitish discharges, ulceration, displacements or falling of the womb, profuse, scanty or painful periods, uterine or ovarian tumors or growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, burning, itching, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness and piles from any cause, or no matter of how long standing.

Every woman suffering, unable to find relief, who will write Mrs. Miller now, without charge, will receive by mail free of charge, a 50-cent box of this simple home remedy, also a book with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer and how they can easily cure themselves at home without the aid of a physician.

Don't suffer another day, but write at once to Mrs. Cora B. Miller, 6565 Miller Building, Kokomo, Indiana.

SENT UP FOR TRIAL FOR LEAVING THE CHAIN GANG

Four Prisoners for the Same Offence—
Guards Discover a Plot Among the Workers.

There were four men before Magistrate Ritchie this morning on the charge of escaping from the chain gang. One was Cook, who was only captured after being shot in the leg by Guard Beckett. Two others were O'Brien and Morris, who escaped while handcuffed together. O'Brien has served a Dorchester term for escaping. The fourth was a colored youth, named Wm. Smith, who was serving a term for stealing a watch from A. Poyas' store on Mill street, and was captured by Policeman Charles Marshall. At the time of his trial on the theft charge, Smith claims to have made a hit with the court by producing a small bible from which he started to read, and he informed the guards that he had the bible for a bluff in fooling the magistrate. Yesterday morning while the prisoners were eating dinner at the Victoria Square rock breaking plant, Smith made a dash for liberty. Guard Beckett followed him for about a quarter of a mile, and it was only when a bullet was fired past him that he stopped to be recaptured. The prisoner says that Wm. Baker and Karl Martimus, two other prisoners arranged a plot in jail. The plan was that Smith was to run away from the gang, and while the guards were looking for him the other two would escape. The four were sent up for trial, and the least sentence they are liable to is two years in Dorchester prison.

FISHING PARTY GOT ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY TROUT

Footsore and weary and with every bone in their bodies aching, but after a fine day's sport, J. W. Vanwart, Donaldson Hunt, J. A. Lipscomb and George Slocum returned last night after a fishing trip to Mud Lake, back of Gaspereaux station. This is one of the best fishing spots in the province, and also one of the hardest to reach. People going there have to tramp three and a half miles over the worst possible trail, up to their knees in mud half the time and for the rest of the journey stumbling over roots and fallen branches of trees. But the lake is full of trout and no one ever comes home without a big basket and a large stock of stories. Yesterday these four disciples of Isaac got one hundred and sixty large trout. Today they have a great many friends.
