All Signs Point To Early Resumption Of German Attacks On Western Front

GERMAN ACTIVITY IN FRANCE IS INCREASING AFTER A LONG LULL

French Military Critics, Usually Correct, Sense Signs of Coming Military Storm—They Believe Big Troop Movements Have Taken Place and That Enemy Nearly Ready For Attack.

Paris May Be the Objective Again — Count Von Hertling, German Chancellor, May Resign His Post—Some Opposition To Ludendorff Among Pan-Germans.

Special cable to New York Tribune and St. John Standard. (By Arthur S. Draper).

London, July 10.—Seldom do German military manoeuvres wait on political developments, but such seems to be the case today. The resignation of Von Kuehlmann and the rumored elevation of Admiral Von Hintze, the ultra jingo, to the foreign secretaryship are indicative of a lively political battle in which the extremists gained the day.

Simultaneously come signs of German activity in France after a pause lasting a month. Von Kuehlmann made his famous speech just at the close of the Austrian disaster and a week after General Mangin stopped the German push for Compiègne.

Count Von Hertling may follow Von Kuehlmann into retirement. The majority and minority Socialists who refused recently to vote war credits and the Reichstag majority that a year ago decided on a moderate course now face another test and it is of interest to the Allies to know whether they will stand up and fight the Pan-Germans and militarists—Hindenburg, Ludendorff, Von Tirpitz & Co.

Signs of Storm. From within as well as from without, Ludendorff has growing opposition. As usual, the French critics are first to sense the signs of a coming military storm. They consider with suspicion the small number of prisoners taken in the French attacks around Montdidier. They believe that big troop movements have taken place. They think that the Germans are preparing another surprise with a preliminary diversion.

The enemy has always clung tenaciously to his positions along the Aisne, and though he failed to recast after the Allied blows on the Lys and the Marne, he has never long delayed his counter-attacks around Albert. Behind his positions here he has concentrated heavy stores of ammunition and many guns of large calibre. He has had two months more to rebuild the roads and railways that cross the Somme battlefield.

Is Prepared. Whether he will return to his original plans and try to drive through Amiens is impossible to forecast, but he is certainly prepared for the attempt, and the frequent attacks around Villers Bretonneux show that the Allies are ready also.

Most French observers consider that Paris remains the enemy's chief objective and that Ludendorff will attack south of Montdidier.

The Allies' superiority in the air, which has never been more apparent, reduces the possibility of surprise, but the situation remains anxious, and every one, the soldiers included, will welcome an ending of the long lull.

Military Failure.

Last winter the German militarists decided upon a campaign of vindication, and after three months fighting Von Kuehlmann branded it a failure. Major Gaedke, in the "Bremer Bürger Zeitung," writing at the close of the spring campaign as spokesman for the militarists, said: "Not so far have we obtained any decisive results. In such a short period and under the prevailing circumstances such a thing could not be looked for. We must not forget that we still have opposed to us all the forces of England and France, increased by hundreds of thousands of brown men and negroes and supported by the fighting power of the great English colonies, beside an imposing army of Americans."

Against these Germany was not even able to oppose the whole force of its army for at the same time we were still conducting campaigns in Finland, on the border of the Ukraine and in the Crimea, we were occupying Rumania and supporting an army in Macedonia. If we were at all numerically superior in France, it could be only to a small extent."

A Greater Reason.

Ludendorff has even a greater reason and desire to vindicate militarism. Because Von Kuehlmann has strong support, Ludendorff must make colossal efforts to break down this

CANADA FACES A STRIKE OF TELEGRAPHERS

At Later Hour It Looked As If Great Northwestern Men Would Quit.

LONG CONFERENCE HELD AT OTTAWA

Government Urged To Declare Strikes Illegal During War.

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, July 10.—Canada is faced with a strike that threatens to seriously cripple internal telegraphic communications. After almost a week of unceasing effort to negotiate an agreement between telegraph operators and the Great Northwestern Company Hon. Gideon Robertson, labor representative on the cabinet this evening admitted that chances of a settlement were remote. In the final days of the negotiations the government exerted every possible bit of pressure to get the disputants to avert a strike. Early today the cabinet met. Z. A. Lash and D. B. Hanna, president and vice-president respectively of the Great Northwestern, and late this evening Hon. Mr. Robertson was still in communication with representatives of the men in Toronto.

Another Proposal.

Almost at the eleventh hour tonight a modified proposal came over the wire from the men but, it is understood that it was not acceptable to representatives of the company. The belief in official circles here late tonight was that unless some new proposal came from one side or the other a strike is unavoidable. What action the government will take in the event of a strike is problematical.

It is being strongly urged to declare all strikes and walkouts illegal. It is submitted on behalf of the necessity of such drastic action that with the war at the peak of its crisis the nation cannot permit its efforts to be enfeebled through labor disputes by which employers or employees paralyze vital industries at their own sweet will. While thus far the government has not decided upon such a radical step indications are not wanting that it is prepared to deal firmly with any situation that may arise to threaten war effort.

opposition, and the only method at his disposal is to win a victory. If Von Kuehlmann has resigned, Ludendorff's position is unchanged. He has been challenged and he must strike to vindicate himself. Ludendorff must launch some blow quickly to divert attention from the political struggle. Ludendorff would prefer to have Poch attack. He would like to engage the allied reserve, but he cannot wait. He must gamble.

THE EMPIRE MUST PREPARE FOR TRADE

Premier Hughes Urges Organization Industrially and Economically.

London, July 10.—(Via Reuters Ottawa Agency)—Addressing a large representative meeting of the British Producers Organization of London and Australia, Premier Hughes dwelt at great length upon the absolute necessity for the British Empire to seriously organize industrially and economically, if it wishes to maintain its position after the war.

"To win the war without being prepared to meet the immediate post-war conditions would mean that we would clasp empty husks," said Mr. Hughes.

SISTER AND SISTER AID J. J. O'LEARY

She and Brother Take Stand For Defense in German Propaganda Case.

New York, July 10.—Relatives and character witnesses testified in federal court today in behalf of John J. O'Leary, on trial on a charge of having conspired to aid in the flight of his brother, Jeremiah O'Leary, on the eve of the latter's trial for publishing alleged seditious articles in Bull, an anti-British periodical. Mrs. Margaret O'Leary, a sister, and Lieutenant Arthur G. O'Leary, U. S. A., asserted that up to the time of Jeremiah's arrest his relations with the other members of the family, especially John, were far from cordial. Both testified that so far as they knew John had no knowledge of Jeremiah's plans for flight. They asserted that all of Jeremiah's relatives protested against his Sinn Fein activities. Several witnesses, including Surrogate Dan P. Cohan, told of the great character of John O'Leary. Just before adjournment Jeremiah was brought into the court room to stand in his brother's behalf but he will be called tomorrow.

NEW YORK'S DAY OF MOURNING

Thousands Honor Memory of Major John Purroy Mitchell—Funeral Today.

New York, July 10.—Silent, saddened citizens, in seemingly endless lines marched through the rotunda of City Hall tonight past the flag-draped casket in which reposed the body of Major Purroy Mitchell, soldier of the United States and late Mayor of New York. The coffin had been sealed before it was brought to the historic building to lie in state where the bodies of Abraham Lincoln and U. S. Grant once rested, but those in the motley throng who passed before it felt no shame in the tears they shed for the young officer who led the Mayor's chair to serve his country in its most dangerous service and fell to this death in Louisiana last Saturday.

Business in the city will be virtually suspended.

THE UNION OF MUNICIPALITIES

Mayor Hawkins of Halifax Surprised by Premier Oliver.

Victoria, B.C., July 10.—Premier Oliver declared the national convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities open yesterday afternoon with an address in which he sponsored civic home rule. The establishment of a provincial municipal department and other legislative reforms in the interests of municipal welfare. Mayor Hawkins, of Halifax, who was chairman of the afternoon session, said the broad-minded view taken by Premier Oliver was a revelation to him. In his own province he looked upon the provincial authorities more in the light of arch enemies than his brothers.

The home rule idea civic government, after all was the only sane proposal. The war effects on the cities of eastern and western Canada were dealt with in a discussion in which those taking part were: Mayor Costello, of Calgary; Mayor Hawkins, of Halifax; Alderman Owen, of Vancouver; W. D. Lightbail, of Montreal; Mayor Cater, of Brandon, and C. J. Yorath of Saskatoon.

Putnam's tenth victory on June 30, now has been verified officially. In the month of June, Putnam brought down seven German machines.

C. Smith, the president, who presided, stated that Premier Foster recently told him that the bye-election would be held this fall. C. A train to be known as the sea foods special, leaves Miramichi and Halifax on Thursday, Friday and Sunday of each week. This train hauls refrigerator cars for the transportation of fresh fish, and is operated on an express basis.

Montreal, July 10.—Mgr. Wilbrod Cleophas Martin, Domestic Prelate to the Pope and Procurator and Archdeacon of the Archbishop's Palace here after several months' illness. He was born at St. Cyrrien, Quebec, in 1864, and had been for 36 years connected with St. James' Cathedral in this city.

Mr. Wetters had nothing further to state on the labor situation here.

Net Result of Two Days' Hearing of Currie Charges Is That Quantity of Lumber Cut For His Company By Its Operators Was Proven By Company's Records To Be Hundreds of Thousands of Feet in Excess of Cut Returned By Scaler Murchie—Next Session Will Be Held At Fredericton on Wednesday.

Amount of Stumpage Paid Proven By Cheque Signed By William Currie As To Which Mr. Rossborough, Campbellton Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Gives Evidence—Continental Co. Cut Many Hundreds of Thousands of Feet, For Which Province Received No Returns.

Special to The Standard.

Campbellton, July 10.—The net result of two days' hearing of the Currie charges is that the quantity of lumber cut for his company by its operators was proven by the company's records to be hundreds of thousands of feet in excess of the cut returned by Scaler Murchie after his conversations with Mr. Currie, while the amount of stumpage paid was proven by the cheque signed by William Currie as to which Mr. Rossborough, Campbellton manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, gave evidence this morning. This cheque was for $6,006.30, and represents the stumpage paid by the company on Murchie's reduced statement.

It thus appears that no matter what may be said of Murchie's methods of scaling, the fact is that the Continental Lumber Company, Ltd., of which William Currie, Speaker of the Legislature, is manager, and of whose operations he has knowledge, cut many hundreds of thousands of feet of lumber on crown lands and for which the province received no stumpage returns.

The witnesses today included Mr. Rossborough and a number of the operators for the Continental company.

Mr. Murchie was recalled for a considerable portion of the day and cross-questioned by Mr. LeBlanc and Mr. Copp.

The next session will be held in Fredericton on Wednesday next. After that it is probable the commission will either return to Campbellton or meet in Moncton, when the case will be finished. (Continued on page 3)

Allies In Albania Continue To Win

For the Moment Eyes of Entente World Are Turned To Eastern Battlefront—Big Offensive May Be Launched Along the Saloniki Front.

(Undated war lead by The Associated Press)

For the moment, the eyes of the allied world are turned away from the battle front in France, where the Germans are believed to be preparing for a resumption of their offensive against the positions held by the soldiers of the entente nations. The most active area in the various theatres of the war is in Albania, where the French and Italians are continuing their successes against the Austrians.

While it is not expected that far reaching results will be brought about by the offensive in this section of the world, the movement has in it possibilities which seem interesting. The rapid progress made by the French and Italians, the probability that the Austro-Bulgar line to the east past the Lake Ochrida may be outflanked, and the possibility that an offensive may be launched along the Saloniki front tend to give the events in Albania some importance at a time when the main battle area is quiet.

To Draw Austrians

There have been indications recently that an offensive might be begun in Macedonia, if for no other reason than to draw Austrian and possibly German troops from France and Italy. It is reported that the Bulgarians are weary and that an Italian blow along the north front of Saloniki might bring about notable military and political results. The Teutonic allies in Macedonia have been heavily attacking the entente lines, but have been driven back. French troops continue their offensive tactics north of the Retz Forest, along the line from the Mare to the Aisne. The fighting has gradually extended southward along the front southwest of Soissons, with the

MORE DISORDERS IN GREEN ISLE

Toronto, July.—The Belfast correspondent of the Evening Telegram cables from London as follows: "Last evening Constable Butler and Constable Blummell, whilst driving home in a car from a proclaimed Gaelic at Coolea, in County Cork, were attacked by armed disguised Sinn Feiners. Butler was shot through the neck and Blummell's arm was broken and the car was hurled over the cliff. The police are hunting down the assailants." "At Dunmanway in the County of Cork, troops and police dispersed a Gaelic meeting. The town was cleared with difficulty and arrests were made. One man named Walsh received an ugly bayonet wound." "At Kildary the police raided a Gaelic meeting pulled up Gael posts and prevented speakers from entering the field." "At Derry Park, Ballinrobe, a Sinn Fein meeting on Sunday was dispersed by the police using the batons freely. They will most probably be tried in Ulster where jurors freely return conscientious verdicts without fear of being murdered. Justice Kenny at the opening of the Tipperary Assizes commented on the large number of Sinn Feiners, larcenies and raids for arms without any person being made amenable."

"We are fighting for a worthy purpose, and we shall not lay down our arms until that purpose has been fully achieved."—H.M. The King.
TO THE PEOPLE OF THE EMPIRE—Every fighting unit we can send to the front means one step nearer peace.

A LONG LIST.

Another St. John home has been saddened through the death of one of its members in the pursuit of his duties in the Aviation Corps. Following on the comparatively long list of similar casualties, an impression is gradually being created that all is not as it should be in the supervision of training camps or garrison quarters in which the preliminaries to active service are carried on. There have been altogether too many accidents of this nature, a condition which creates in the minds of those at home a feeling that all possible is not being done to assure the safety of the boys who offer for service in this most dangerous branch of the army.

Aviation under the most favorable conditions is dangerous enough. The percentage of men who come through long service without injury is small indeed, and when the time and cost of training is taken into consideration, apart altogether from the inestimable value of the human life involved, every conceivable precaution against accident would be pre-supposed. Fatalities in the course of training may naturally be anticipated because of the very nature of the occupation, but it does seem that there are altogether too many of those occurrences.

VACCINATION.

The smallpox scare in St. John is practically over. We had a number of scattered cases, the majority of them of a very light type. There were no deaths, there were no patients really seriously ill at any time, nor is it generally believed that there was very much danger of an epidemic. However, precautions are always advisable and it may be that the efforts of the local Board of Health and their officers aided very greatly in checking the spread of the disease. Yet whether or not the Board acted at all times with proper regard for the good of the community is a point on which all do not agree. The wisdom of one ruling in particular, that making vaccination compulsory, was very generally questioned. At the time there was little comment, as most people held to the opinion that possibly some danger of an epidemic existed and may be after all vaccination would be of some benefit. But now that the thing is over and hundreds of people have suffered through this compulsory vaccination there is a feeling that such a measure was by no means necessary, that it imposed a great deal of suffering which might have been avoided, and that the Board of Health possibly acted without due consideration.

There is a very decided difference of opinion even among the best qualified medical men as to the value of otherwise of vaccination, even when such regulations as made by the St. John Board of Health are properly carried out. But when a considerable proportion of the population escaped the ordeal, the measure of good accomplished is greatly reduced. Instances—many of them—have been reported where the victims of vaccination have suffered far more than should have been necessary under the operation, where, rightly or wrongly impure lymph or careless operation is believed to have been the cause of illness and perhaps permanent weakness. In these cases vaccination has not done much good, but on the contrary has been decidedly injurious.

ELIMINATING WASTE.

The waste of foodstuffs in the American army is being reduced to a minimum. By a recent order authorized by the Quartermaster General, a division of Conservation and Reclamation has been organized to save war supplies and reduce expenditures as well as to provide for a more satisfactory distribution of garbage. This measure has already been taken by the British, French and other Allied countries, which have established such services with surprising results.

The new plan, as worked out by the United States army authorities, does not reduce the scale of food rations from the former standard but aims to save much that was lost through carelessness. Kitchen waste will now be dumped indiscriminately into a waste container. For example, bread and breadstuffs no longer to be eaten will be dried and packed in blocks. Canned meat will be gathered up from the plates of the men after each meal and likewise saved. Raw meats and bones, such as the trimmings and scraps left for human food will be segregated and saved. Cooked meats discarded as of no further use for human food will be packed in suitable receptacles. Bones, including all those discarded in the preparation and serving of men's meals, will be saved. In addition to the saving of waste, the Nutrition Officers of the Food Division of the Medical Department of the army organization will co-operate in the reduction of waste in preparation, waste in service, waste in storage and loss from spoilage through delay in serving food after it has been issued.

In the early days of the war there was an enormous loss from waste of food and all other materials used by the armies of Great Britain, France and all warring countries.

Some corporations are still foolish. A New Glasgow dispatch states that the Acadia Coal Company, Ltd., has announced its intention to evict a widow. The widow happens to have lost her husband in France while fighting for the officials of this same coal company, and the Great War Veterans' Association is indignant and has its war paint on.

The Canadian Municipalities Convention in the West is in session. Halifax and other cities are well represented. St. John is not.

It is alleged that the men are international Socialists. Searches have been made of the offices, workshops and dwellings of the accused. The utmost secrecy has prevailed.

London, July 10.—The German government does not intend to hold the Soviet government responsible for the death of Count Von Mirbach, the German ambassador according to a semi-official announcement from Berlin transmitted to the Exchange Telegraph Company by way of Amsterdam, it being evident that Russia is doing all that is possible to punish the murderers. The semi-official statement adds: "The German government and nation hope that the Russian government and people will succeed in nipping the present revolutionary agitation in the bud."

MUCH MOVEMENT OF HUN TROOPS

General Pershing Reports Considerable Activity By Enemy—Working of U. S. Airmen.

Washington, July 10.—General Pershing's daily communique made public by the war department today follows: "Headquarters American expeditionary forces, July 9.—In the Chateau Thierry region conditions were practically normal on July 5 and 6, the outstanding exception being the activity of the German air forces. An enemy attempt to raid one of our advanced positions was driven off by our rifle and machine gun fire with losses. There was much movement of troops in the German rear areas where as many as four companies were seen at one time. "Our observers reported buildings on fire at the Southard Farm, and the explosion by our batteries of what is believed to have been a trench mortar ammunition dump. This sector on July 8 to 7 experienced an increase in enemy artillery activity on the right half of our line where there was considerable use of gas, shrapnel and high explosive shells. The German air forces were still very active. The movement of troops and traffic in the German rear areas continued abnormal. "In the Marne sector between July 6 and 7 conditions were quiet."

The captain of the tug reported there were no deaths among the crew, but that several men had been left on the island of Flores ill from exposure in open lifeboats and the terrific seas.

ALLIES IN ALBANIA CONTINUE TO WIN

Along the British front there have been intermittent artillery duels, deepening here and there into bombardments of great intensity. This has been the case east of Amiens, where the Germans have drenched Australian positions with shells and then attacked in an attempt to regain territory lost when the Australians and Americans attacked on July 4. The enemy has been repulsed with losses. Near Merris, the British have improved their positions in a minor action. There have been no events of an unusual character along the American positions along the line except at Chateau Thierry, where American Aviators have been active. One squadron has penetrated far behind the German lines and it is believed they brought back valuable information.

"With the exception of some hostile artillery activity in the Morlan Court Hinges and Lore sectors there is nothing to report."

Premier Lloyd George was also a guest at Cliveden. Premier Borden on Monday held a conference with the Canadian ministers, attended the war conference, and moved the address to their majesties on the occasion of their silver wedding. He later inspected the famous statue to be erected in the soldiers' cemetery at Cliveden.

One policeman was severely wounded, another had his arm fractured, and others were badly beaten. The cab driver fled for his life. The assailants unharnessed the horse, and then threw the vehicle over a cliff.

New York, July 10.—Mid-summer dullness prevailed during the greater part of today's stock market, but the final hour was enlivened by an active selling movement, with numerous net losses. United States Steel and industrial stocks as well as shippings and various specialties, were carried down in the abrupt decline, Sumatra Tobacco being the weakest issue at an extreme reversal of 7 points.

Luxury Tax. Lacking more cogent reasons, the market's lethargy during the early and intermediate periods was commonly ascribed to the proposed "luxury" tax, and the government exhaustive weather report, which again dampened corporate prospects.

SHARP RALLY IN THE CORN MARKET. Bearish Aspects of Government Crop Report Brings About Only Temporary Weakness—Oats Gain.

Chicago, July 10.—Bearish aspects of the government crop report brought about only temporary weakness in the corn market today. On the buying side, which one of the largest houses was conspicuous, led to a sharp rally. Offerings speedily dried up. Opening prices, which ranged from 5 1/2 cent off to 3 1/2 cent advance, with August $1.54 7/8 to $1.55 1/8 and September $1.56 3/8 to $1.57 1/8, were followed by a general upturn to well above yesterday's figures.

SAY TWO HUNDRED QUEBEC SLACKERS ARE ENTRENCHED. Story Brought To City Has It That Men Are Armed and Have Mined Certain Stretches of the Roadway.

Quebec, July 10.—That at least two hundred young men of military age are hiding in the bush somewhere back of Ste Anne De La Perade, Que., is the news brought in by travelers arriving from that section. The story, as far as is stated, is that the men are well armed, provided with ample ammunition and that they have even mined certain stretches of the roadway. According to the story, the men have established outposts with watchers who stop any stranger going towards that part of the woods where the alleged hide-outs are reported to be. Enraged citizens at La Perade, spoken to over the telephone, say this is the first news they have of the alleged entrenching of young men eligible for military service. They say the number of draftees in that section is not large enough for such a big force of them being thus entrenched.

THE LIVE STOCK MARKET DULL. Abundant Supplies in Montreal—Choice Steers Worth $12 Per 100 Pounds.

Montreal, July 10.—The offerings of live stock at the Canadian Pacific yards this morning amounted to 200 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs, 1,300 calves. The dullness which has prevailed over live stock markets has been the past week was still in evidence. Abundant supplies are held and it is supposed that this is one of the factors for the dullness and lack of demand. Prices, however, are holding well under the poor demand, and at the C. P. yards choice steers sold at $12 per 100 pounds, while poorer bulls sold as high as $10 and from that sold to $7. Butchers' cows were $7.00 to $9.00 per 100 pounds, while canners' were $5.00 to $6.00. Large quantities of calves coming to market caused a decline in prices and choice milk fed sold at from $3.20 to $3.00 per 100 pounds, while poorer grades sold at $2.00 to $2.50. Sheep and lambs were steady, sheep at 12 per 100 pounds and spring lambs at 12 cents per pound. Choice select hogs off cars sold at $19.00 per 100 pounds while roughs and heavies were as low as $15.00 in some instances.

CHICAGO CATTLE. Chicago, July 10.—(United States Bureau of Markets)—Hog receipts: 17,000; good hogs, mostly 15 cents higher than yesterday's close. Cattle receipts: 10,000; mostly 10 cents lower and showing little strength; bulk of sales, $16.65 to $17.35; butchers', $17.00 to $17.40; packing, $16.20 to $16.95; light, $17.40 to $17.65; rough, $15.60 to $16.25; pigs, 1825 to $16.97; cattle receipts: 7,000; best steers, steady to strong, others and butcher stock strong to higher; calves, steady to strong. NO COMMON STOCK DIVIDEND LIKELY. Motor Stocks Not Appreciably Affected By Heavy Taxes.

(McDougall and Cowans). New York, July 10.—The market became even duller in the afternoon and was devoid of interesting features other than the activity of a few specialties. American Can continues to attract a following, although men close to the company saw that no dividends for the common are in sight. The earnings of this year on the present basis of taxation would be close to 325 per share, on the common, but half of this may be taken up by the proposed increase in taxes.

FISH TALKS BY GEORGE KENNAN. Secretary of the Victoria Fisheries Protective Association. FISH PROTECTION.

Inasmuch as fish and game are the property of the public—that is, of everybody—and as everybody suffers if they are completely exterminated, one might naturally suppose that everybody would be interested in taking care of them. But such is not the case. The prudent man takes care of the property that he owns individually, but when it comes to public property, that is, property of which he is only a joint owner, he regards the theft or destruction of it with indifference. In this respect the case is not different from that of the fish and game.

Then, too, some of us had the mistaken idea that although we might know about the fish and game laws, it would be dishonourable to report them—it would be like "telling on" one's neighbor. But this idea will not stand a moment's examination. If you were one of a hundred stockholders in a corporation which owned a thousand acres of timber land, and if that land and selling them for lumber, you would not hesitate to give information to the authorities and stop the depletions, even although you were only one stockholder out of a hundred. We are all stockholders in the public stock of fish and game, and it is not only the right, but the duty of every one of us to furnish information that will tend to prevent the illegal destruction of it. It belongs to us, not to the pot-hunters and poachers, and we have a right to take care of it.

AN UNSCRUPULOUS MAN WAS TRUSTED

How Wurttemberg Was Nearly Ruined By Adviser and Man of Influence—Duke Was Poisoned and Adviser Executed.

The name of Sues Oppenheim may not be familiar to readers of history, but in spite of that fact he was a very extraordinary character, who had immense influence over one of the world's rulers, and ended a very eventful life in a most tragic manner.

Charles Alexander, Duke of Wurttemberg, came into possession of his principality on December 16, 1733. Before that he had been an Austrian field marshal and the Governor of Cervia. In those capacities he had met Sues Oppenheim, who had helped him out of various financial difficulties, and who was altogether an unusual person. Oppenheim had demonstrated so many talents and qualities to the Duke that he decided to take with him in his new field of endeavor.

It was an unfortunate decision for both of them. Between the prodigality of the Duke and the resourcefulness of Oppenheim they pretty nearly ruined the country, from a financial point of view. The people were taxed to an extent that brought them to the verge of revolution. Finally the Duke and his adviser began to consider the desirability of suspending the constitution in order to give themselves unlimited taxing power. This scheme was supposed to be a secret, and was to be put into effect suddenly, so that the people would not have the opportunity of protesting or resisting.

But somehow the news leaked out, and it caused consternation among the members of the Assembly who had been deposed to support Duke Charles, but who would not tolerate such a revolutionary proceeding if it were in their power to prevent it. Before taking any action they appointed a deputation of their members to call upon the Duke. It comprised the oldest and most respected members, and when they reached the palace they found the Duke was giving a grand ball, notable for its lavish expenditure of money, in a court that had already broken all precedents in the way of dissipating the taxes of the province. The Duke was loudly consenting to see them, and they were ushered into an ante-room where he was resting on a couch. He had just taken a powerful medicine that had been given to him in a silver bowl by the Chamberlain of the Court.

It was an impressive scene, because while the Assembly stood before the Duke and recited their wrongs the sound of music could be heard from the large ballroom where the frivolous followers of the Duke were dancing. The Duke did not listen graciously. On the contrary he reproached them for having forced their way into the palace while he was entertaining his friends. Before he finished one of the deputation ventured to remark that the welfare of the people was more important than the entertainment of the Duke's friends. At that he became livid with rage, and threatened to call the soldiers to oust the Assemblymen by force.

They left in silence—a silence that was ominous. The news of their reception was told to the people, and that night not a window was lighted in the town. The palace alone blazed with light and resounded with music and merriment. Aside from that it was like a city of the dead. But in their darkened rooms the people prepared to assert themselves with the rising of the sun.

In the meantime events were hurrying on which were to make the popular uprising unnecessary. The Duke, left alone in the apartment where the deputation had gone, suddenly found himself becoming ill. He called for aid, but no one responded. He thought of the strong medicine that had been given him by the Chamberlain and he was greatly alarmed. Rising up with a sudden burst of strength he hurried into the adjoining room, but there was no one there. He made his way to the next apartment, but that also was vacant. With much violence he tore open the casements of the window and shouted for help into the immense courtyard. But by the irony of fate his voice was drowned by the playing of the band that was guiding the footsteps of his frivolous friends in dancing. He shouted again and again, and finally fell over in a dead faint.

Chamberlain Neuffer was the first one to arrive in the room, and he found the Duke insensible. Physicians were summoned and they bled him. The blood flowed, and the Duke opened his eyes and gazed at the circle of faces that surrounded him.

"What is the matter?" he gasped. "Why do I feel this way? Am I dying?"

He was lifted into an armchair, and before another minute passed he had succumbed. The news was announced to the guests and by them given to the people of the town. Now the conditions were reversed. The dead city came to life. Lights appeared in all of the windows and there was general rejoicing and the palace was the only building in the place that presented the aspect of mourning.

He was buried with due formality, but there was many a dry eye in Wurttemberg. Duke William was made regent and he immediately started in to institute reforms to pacify the people. In the meantime Sues Oppenheim hesitated. He felt that the suspension of the constitution, which had been one of the last acts of the dying Duke, would protect him.

In that hesitation he was lost. He realized this when it was too

How Secret Service Man Solved Theft of $75,000

Mysterious Disappearance of Gold Bars From United States Mint in Cars Cleared Up By Some Carefully Planned Pantomime Work.

Some years ago an operative of the United States secret service was sent to the Carson City mint to investigate the theft of $75,000 in gold bars from the institution. When he reached there he found that there were three men in whom he was especially interested, James Smith, the assistant smelter and refiner; John Harris, the silver dissolver, and Frank Jones, his assistant. He took possession of the private room of the superintendent of the mint and had three men come before him in succession. Smith was to be examined first.

"When I press the electric button on this desk," the detective said to the superintendent of the mint, "send Harris to me. Give him a message of any kind, but when he enters the room have him say that he wants to speak to me privately. When I sound the buzzer a second time send Frank Jones into the room and have him act in the same manner as Harris."

facturing imitation bricks made by commoner metals. These bricks were marked with a false value by aid of a die made to imitate the assay stamp. Oh, but it was a clever game, sir, and I do not believe it would ever have been discovered had the treasury department not sent in the rush order to make up $100,000 worth of double eagles. Then the whole scheme was laid bare. It was a dreadful thing to cheat the government in this way, although as I said before, we have little reason to feel sorry. The government has not treated me well at all; in fact, I do not believe I have taken a holiday or at least six years. "How long do you suppose this robbery has been going on?" "Why—why I should say for about six years."

The detective looked steadily at his man from out of a pair of cold gray eyes. The silence lasted so long that it was painful. When the inquisitor spoke it was in slow, deliberate tones and every word seemed to go through the man before him.

"So you have been missing your vacation for exactly the number of years that the government has been robbing of $75,000."

"Exactly," said the detective. "Now how was the money stolen?"

"Oh, that was quite simple," said Smith. "It seems that some one in the mint abstracted a few ounces at a time, and then covered it up by manu-

"Two thousand dollars a year." "You have been living very well recently and the cost of your living must have been more than twice $2,000 a year."

"There you go again," wailed the witness. "Why do you keep accusing me?"

The detective arose, and leaning in the direction of Smith said slowly:—"Smith, why don't you make a clean breast of the whole business?"

"I have nothing to confess," whined the witness.

At that moment the detective, unnoticed pressed the buzzer on the desk. While the two men stood there silently looking at each other the door opened and Harris, the silver dissolver, entered the room. He had a haunted look and moistened his lips before he spoke. "I really the words came out."

"May I speak to you sir?"

"To me?" echoed the detective in countervailing amazement.

"Yes, sir."

"Of course," said the other, arising with a puzzled air.

The two men retired to a corner of the room and began to whisper. In the meantime Smith stood at the desk and hearing only mumbled sounds was in perfect agony of doubt and fear. Presently Harris left the room. The detective sat down again but did not speak. He seemed to be thinking. The suspected man could stand the strain no longer.

"What did he tell you?" he asked.

"The officer paused a moment before replying.

"Oh, I guess, nothing of any importance."

At that moment he stealthily pushed the buzzer again and the door opened. A little man with a bald head came into the room. It was Frank Jones, assistant to Harris, the silver dissolver.

"I would like to speak to you for a moment, sir," he said to the detective.

The pantomime of a few minutes before was repeated. They retired to the side of the room and walked in whisper. Smith gazed on happily. Once he half arose from his chair as though he would separate the two men by force. Heads of perspiration stood out on his forehead. Presently the conversation ended. The detective took the employe by the hand and in tones that were over cordial:—"Thank you very much."

As one left the room the detective resumed his talk.

"Smith," he said calmly, "there are some flaws in your story and I want you to start in and tell it over again."

"How long is this going to last?" the suspect asked.

"All summer unless you tell me the truth."

Smith's face was ashen by this time. He was trembling from head to foot and his speech was becoming more incoherent. Suddenly he jumped up in frenzy. He threw out his arms at full length and his face twitched.

"Quit!" he cried. "Quit in Heaven's name and I'll tell you the whole story. Let me alone and I'll give you the truth. I stole the gold."
