Three Kisses of Farewell. Three, only three, my darling Separate, solemn, slow; Not like the swift and joyous ones

We used to know, When we kissed because we lov'd Simply to taste love's sweets, And lavished our kisses as summe

Lavishes heats ; But as they kiss whose hearts are wrung When hope and fear are spent, And nothing is left to give, except

First of the three, my darling, Is sacred unto pain; We have hurt each other often, We shall again;

When we pine because we mis other, And we do not understand.

How the written words are so much colde Than eye and hand,
I kiss thee, dear, for all such pain Which we may give or take; Buried, forgiven, before it comes, For our love's sake.

The second kiss, my darling, Is full of joy's sweet thrill

We have blessed each other always, We always will. We shall reach until we feel each other Past all of time and space; We shall listen till we hear each other In every place.

The earth is full of messenger.

Which love sends to and fro; I kiss thee, darling, for all joy Which we shall know ! The last kiss, oh, darling,

My love-I cannot see Through my tears, as I remember What it may be. We may die and never see each other

D.e with no time to give

Any sign that our hearts are faithful To die, as live. Token of what they will not see

Who see our parting breath, This one last kiss, my darling, Seals the seal of death.

"What is to Become of Sam?"

It was generally supposed that San was what is called "deficient." As to his own family, they were sure of it; at all events, they treated him as if he were so. Not that they were unkind to him; on the contrary, they were all very find of "poor old Sam;" but it seemed to be taken for granted that whatever he said was not worth noticing, and that almost everything he did was to be made fun of more or less. He was, in fact, the family butt, though the shafts were, as a rule, so tipped with good nature as not to hart his feelings.

Of course, there were some patent casons for all this. To begin with, there was something manifestly peculiar or backward in his mental development. He never could learn like other boys, and all masters had shaken their heads ality in his face and an awkwardness in his gait, together with a stunted growth, self, and did not join in the laugh, but him see anything." all of which betokened an abnormal conall of which betokened an abnormal condition of nature, and furnished some expectation of nature, and furnished some expectation of nature. cuse to his brothers and sisters for regarding him as an oddity in their midst. where else. The news of that morning's able in Sam himself, and far more accountable, that, being thus accustomed from his childhood (and he was now Mr. St. Leger, who lived but a few miles about nineteen) to be treated as if he off, and it created a profound sensa-were little better than a fool, he settled tion, so much so that instead of spenddown more and more to being one, ing the afternoon with the Freres, as Hardly ever did he attempt to say or expected, he took himself off, and was do anything in serious earnest, since almost everything he did or said was covered that Tom Tyler's version had treated as a sort of joke.

Mothers always know best how to deal and wronged can never quite recover with the weak in the flock, and Sam's itself. mother never laughed at him, and never despaired of him. "What is to become treated at home. They felt the force of his simple explanation, why he had never earn his own living;" and his chosen such a singular way of uttering mother would quietly answer, "Wait a bit, my dear; there is more in him, perhaps, than we think, but it wants to be drawn out, and I doubt if we are ashamed of themselves. Now, Sam had a sister, Mary, of whom he was especially fond. Perhaps it was because she was the sister nearest to him in, age, but it was more likely because she placed a little more confidence in him than the others did; it wasn't much, but it was more than be got from any of the rest. He would do anything for Mary, and when a certain Mr. St. Leger in the neighborhood took a fancy to her it was amusing to see how Sam resented the engagement. This Mr. St. Leger had lately come into the neighborhood, no one knew where from; but he had plenty of money and very agreeable manners, and was a general favorite, with the Frere family. Sam, however, never liked him from the first, and when a length in him from the first, and when a length in home than be going through another. No sooner was the service over than he was assailed on all sides for an explanation. Two only were serious about it—his father and Mary. "What is the meaning of this, sir?" said his father sternly; "what could have possessed you to make yourself so ridiculous?"

"He has got a wife already," replied sam degreedly.

And, sure enough, it was done better the second time. In short, his uncle began with and, in spite of every discouragement, persevered in the plan of trusting him. And by degrees he found that the more he trusted him the better he did, and the more he treat ed him as if there were something in him the more he got out of him. Had Sam nothing in him to begin with, the plan could not have answered; but this was just what his uncle believed, namely, that there was something in him, bu that it had been systematically laughed down and sat upon from superficial con-siderations, and that it could only be brought out by a total change of nal influence and treatment. And now his powers began to show themselves and to expand, just as a shrub that has been stunted and blackened from the want of room and uncongenial soil begins to throw out vigorous shoots when trans-planted to ground that suits it, and where it has space to grow.

Nowhere on the face of the earth is tere such a congeries of islands as that which is strung along the coast of the United States from Key West to Charleston. The archipelago of the China sea or of the Bahamas possibly includes a large number, but they are scattered feet high, and are composed of a sandy alluvium in some cases, in others of a soil formed of coral abraded to dust while others, again, combine both formations. They are often divided from each other or from the adjoining mainland only by winding but deep creeks through which the tide flows. These where it has space to grow.

From New York we earn that the shop windows were neve. more profuse in the rdisplays of expensive goods; that the ladies were never more lavishly dressed than now; that the shops swarm with customers, and that in the way of jewellery there is much less of the sham Abraham sort than there used to be. Be sides all this, the people appear to have a great deal of money to spend beyond what is required for more necessaries markets are profuse, not merely-with meats and vegetables, but with fruits and luxuries from lands beyond the sea, which day after day are dispose | of, and as often rehouses are reported as being exceelingly busy receiving, as well as sending out by the way the tolls he has received. In goods, while among masons and carpenters there is more activity than has been witnessed for a Bng time

WHITE, BLUE, RED, ORANGE AND GREEN. Made of Good American Cotton with great care Correctly numbered and Warranted Full Length and Weight.

WE would ask the purchasers of Cotton Warp to remember that our Yarn is spun on Thros-tle Fram-s, which make a stronger yarn than the Ring Frames, used in making American yarn. It is also better twisted and more carculilly reeled; each hank being tied up in 7 leas of 120 yards each. This makes it much more easy to wind than when it is pur up without leas—as the American is—and also saves a great deal of weeks.

Those acquainted with weaving will understand the great accountage it is to them to use yarn put up in this manner.

Words of Wisdom.

We give advice, but cannot give the risdom to profit by it.

Sobriety is the love of health, or an apacity to eat much.

Sometimes we meet a fool with wit, ever one with discretion. Luziness is a premature death. To be no action, is not to live. The world oftener rewards the appear-ice of merit than merit itself.

He who thinks poorly of himself can ot win the respect of his fellows.

The trouble with many communities that their dead men refuse to be

Au auctioneer lately indulged in the following little bit of the pathetic: "Gentlemen, if my father and mother stood where you do, and didn't buy these boots-these elegant boots-when they were going for one dollar, I should feel it my duty as a son to tell both of 'em that they were false to themselves and false to their country."

The Chinese Encyclopedia meets long-felt want, and no family should be without it. It is published at Pekin, in 5020 volumes, and at the price of $7,500 is the same as given away. "Get the best."

Systems toned and renovated with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are most effectually defended from disease. That subpreme invigorant soon overcomes that distressing feebleness consequent upon aliments which impoverish the blood and relax the muscles. Vigor, appetite, sleep return to the wasted frame, and every physical faculty gains greater activity through its benign infloence. Nor is this all, for the Bitters have a most genial and cheering effect upon the mind of the despondent invalid, which is the natural effect of the increased bodily vitality which they produce. Nervous symptoms disappear in consequence of the use of this medicine, and the evil consequences sure to result from a premature decay of the physicial energies are averted. Dyspepsis, liver complaints, rheumatic ailments, urinary and uterine irregularities, malarial diseases, and many other disordered conditions of the system, are remedied by the Bitters.

"But Mrs. Blank always appears well-dressed, even if she does wear shams."

"Yes, but her few shams are such that only experts can detect them. Her diamonds are of the purest water; her laces are real; her silks are superb, even if manufactured here; her gold is real and solid; and it is only the few fancy articles for evening wear that she buys in infitation, and these are always the perfection of art. The secret of her elegance is—she knows how to dress appropriately; she wears a plain black silk dress to a funeral, a handsome silk to dinner, and a lace robe to an evening entertainment, while for home her costumes are neat, simple and most becom—

When neglectful of the duty assigned to it by nature, that of eccreting the bile, the liver should be disciplined with Dr. Mott's Vegetable. Laver Pills which will speedily remedy its in-action and stimflate it to a vigorous perform-ance of its eccretive function. Constipation, which is an invariable accompaniment of liver disorder, is always overcome by this great anti-bilious cathartic, and indigestion, chronic and acute, is completely cured by it. All druggists sell it.

Horse and cattle powders if unadulterated are of immense advantage, but the large packs now sold are trash only one kind now known in this country are absolutely pure and those are Sheridan's.

Sudden changes in the weather are producive of throat diseases, coughs and colds. There s no more effectual relief to be found, than in tive of throat dise the use of "Brown's Bronchisl Troches."

It is demonstrated that America makes the best Cabinet or Parlor Organs in the world. At all world's exhibitions in recent years Mason & Hamlin have obtained highest honors, having received the gold medal at the Paris Exposition of 1878.

Familiarity with the writings of the great poets is a necessity to any one who wishes to appear well in company. For 10c, we will send a book of 160 selections from the beautiful melodies of Moore, the grand peems of Byron, and the unequaled songs of Burns, and 50 popular songs.
