methods quite in keeping with the character of the people of the young republic and it made very considerable progress. About sixty years ago itherant members from Maine began to make their way into New Brunswick, and they found congenial mental soil for their cultivation among the pioneers of Carleton County. Here fifty-two years ago was organized

The First Conference of the denomination, the place of meeting being Victoria Corner. At this time there were only two ordained ministers of the denomination in the province, Rev. Samuel Hartt, so well known once upon a time to everybody on the St. John, and Rev. Grace resisted, and the coming responsible for his appearance. Re-sistance of a peace officer in the discharge of tified in the arrest then to find a true bill. The third case was against Abner Morgan and was preferred by Thomas Jones of New Maryland. It arose out of a dispute about the lines of some land. The complainant was assisting in running the lines and was driving stakes on land previously in the possession of Morgan's mother. Morgan made threats and struck away the stakes with his axe and pointed a revolver at Jones and threatened to shoot him. If these facts appeared the jury should find a bill, if they were satisfied that Morgan intended to strike or shoot Jones.

of Queen Charlotte, Lord Glenelg, and Lord Sheffield, which have adorned the Assembly walls for so many years. The order for repairs has not been made too soon. Mr. Eggar will do the work in the new building the new building he has erected on Northumberland Street, where he has in various stages of completion several paintings Mr. Eggar took a few lessons from Mr. Wilkie, the celebrated Boston landscape painter, and the result of the instruction re-ceived is to be seen in the work Mr. Eggar has recently done. He has a Fine View of Grand Falls completed which, for faithfulness of drawing, very much superior to any work of the kind lately done in Fredericton. A moonlight view of the same landscape is very fine, and contains many points worthy of especia He has in course of com tion a moonlight scene on Lake Temis-Metion a moonlight scene on Lake Temis-conata, which promises to be a very fine picture. The moon is almost entirely obsenred by clouds, and the light breaks through upon the water with a very fine effect indeed. Among the various paintings which Mr. Eggar has on hand, is a very fine view taken from in front of the Murray farm and looking up river, the Keswick Ridge forming the back ground. It is an exquisite piece of scenery. A Bend of the Nashwank, ear Tay Creek, makes an exceeding prett picture, and two views of the Pokiok are excellent indeed. Mr. Eggar considers his best piece of work to be a scene on the coats of England representing a shipwreck. It is not entirely completed; several of the figures of men and pieces of wreakage are yet to be put in, but it is a very attractive painting as it is. It is a copy of a celebrated painting by one of the greatest of English landscape painters. Taking Mr. Eggar's work as a whole it must be pronounced highly creditable to him. He is able to produce some tent of landscape embraced in them.

THE CONDITION OF BUSINESS. A writer in the Montreal Insurance Journal demonstrates to his own satisfaction at least, that times are not nearly as bad as they will be, and that the depth of the depression will not be reached until 1888. His argument is based upon the trade statistics available, which do not, because a satisfaction was then treather than treather.

We used to be treated a few months ago with ponderous articles in the Farmer, entitled "Another blow at the County of York" and so on, wherein Mr. Blair would be assailed without regard to the truth or his feelings. To use a phase known to the yulgar, our contemporary has "let up on the business," and has not treated the public to a "blow" for some time. And yet how many golden opportunities it has let slip. Under these circumstances we propose to show some of the "blows" which Mr. Blair has struck at this constituency.

of the "blows" which Mr. Blair has struck at this constituency.
Without going too far back, let us begin at the last session of the last legis lature. Here we find Mr. Blair showing his disregard of the rights of his constituents by demanding of the Government a promise that $50,000 should be given towards a bridge across the river here, and before the echoes of this shameless request had died away he had the hardihood to unite in a conspiracy to defeat a high-minded and patriotic effort on the part of some of Mr. Colter's friends to get this $50,000 to build a $40,000 toll bridge with. A very witty newspaper paragraphist recently received a letter requesting him to state what were the principal causes of his wit. The answer was promptly returned. It was this: "Nine hours of sleep every night, three square meals every day, and a good salary." And the greatest of these was the salary.

Just then his wife entered the saloon, and seizing him by the collar said in a low, determined tone.

"There's one out got to be in-in his own house in ten minutes or there going to be music somewhere."

He smiled a sickly smile, as he said, "My wife's good at jokes," but he followed meekly in her wake, as she left the place.

He had a servant at the Goor who demanded cards from his visitors before they could be admitted. Cards do not grow in the rural districts, and even the playing cards are not of the best quality. All about the house seemed to have lost their heads in the excitment, and it is said that the hotel dog alone preserved complete control of himself, and alone took active measures to save the inmates of the house. In and out of the burning he kept continually dashing, piloting some half-dressed man or woman down stairs, only to at once return in search of stairs, only to at once return in search of others. Once a lady with a child in her-arms tripped on the stairs while hurrying out and fell to the bottom. The child out and fell to the bottom. The child was thrown on the floor of the hall some distance away. The woman regained her feet, and staggered in a dazed way out of the door, leaving the child in the midst of the smoke that was pouring from the office door. The brave dog saw the mishap, and, jumping in through the smoke, which was now becoming almost impassable, and seizing the child by its night clothes, carried it safely out.

The dog saw the firntic rush of the mother toward the burning building and heard her exclamation that some one w..s burning up in the house, and, although the building was now a mass of smoke and flames in side and out, the dog sprang forward and, as a dozen hands seized the woman and as a do en hands seized the woman and held her back from her insane attempt to enter the house, disappeared with a bound over the burning threshold. The faithful animal never appeared again.

Few are aware that in the bond vaults of the Treasury are deposited for safe-keeping a large quantity of diamonds and other precious stones which will form the nucleus of the crown jewels when the country becomes an empire. These gems all have histories. Among them is a bottle four or five inches long filled with diamonds, and there are many other kinds of precious stones. Some of them are set diamonds, and there are many other kinds of precious stones. Some of them are set in gold ornaments, intended for personal wear. The first collection of which we have any authentic account has been in the custody of the Treasury officials for over forty-five years. They were sent to President Van Buren by the Imaum of Oman, whose cap'tal city of Muscat, in Arabia, on the Persian Gulf, is the most widely known of all Arabian cities to out siders. The Imaum was the dude politic widely known of all Arabian cities to out siders. The Imaum was the dude politi-cian of Arabia, the boss dandy of the Bedouin kin, and having found that Mar-tin Van Buren was two-fold sharper, keener, subtler and dandier than he was himself he sent these diamonds and pearls to him as a tribute to superior genius and morality. It takes a tretty super seconmorality. It takes a pretty smart soo drel to discount an Arab cut-throat the higher classes, but the Dutch patro of Kinderhook could do it, and the Ima of Oman allowed he could take the cake and the diamonds, too. But after he took them he did not know what to do with them he did not know what to do with them. He had an elephant on his hands. He could not accept them for himself, although he wanted to do so, as the Constitution expressly forbade any person connected with the government accepting any present or decoration from any foreign power or potentate without express authority of Congress. This authority Congress would not give. In fact, it was inexpedient at that time to ask for it. So the jewels were finally turned over to the Treasury, where they are now.

But the Imaum's gift is not all. There are in the collection superb jewels re-ceived at other times and in various ways. They have no definite owners and are placed in the treasury vaults because they are to valuable to throw away, and nobody dares to claim them. What disposition to make of them is a puzzle. Congress alone can authorize their disposition, and Congress, although asked several times to do so, has declined to take any notice of them. Washington Gazette. f them. Washington Gazet

HANLAN IN AUSTRALIA.

He Cables from Sydney to Boston for Two New Racing Shells. If cables from Sydney to Boston for Two New Racing Shells.

If any doubt has existed recently as to Hanlan's intention to make a long stay abroad it must now be dispelled. A few days ago it was stated that Hanlan in tended to remain in Australia this year, and next season to start home by way of Suez canal, visiting England and giving exhibitions in all the large cities having suitable courses for rowing. Edwards, the Australian builder, was given an order by Hanlan for a new shell, and it is very probable that the boat has not some up to Hanlan's idea of what a racing craft should be, as a cable message was received from him yesterday by W. W. Ruddock, the popular Boston builder, reading as follows:

Mr. Ruddock will begin work on the Mr. Ruddock will begin work on the boats as soon as possible, and will hurry them forward in hopes of having both of them finished in about three weeks. The probabilities are that Hanlan has gone into strict training for another race with Beach, and means to regain the championship before leaving the colonies. To do this he finds he cannot afford to lose a single trick, and therefore has ordered two Ame ican boats, so that he may have two chances of getting one perfect boat after all the danger of transhipment and ocean passage. A Pugnacious Parson.

An interesting suit for damages, in which the Rev. Mr. Louck, of the church of England in Picton, Ont., is the defendant, and one of his parishioners named Welch is the plaintiff, was heard here lately. It appears that the parties had a dispute in the street about some private matter. High words sprung up and the defendant knocked the plaintiff down. A struggle then ensued, in which the plaintiff was very severely cut about the body, arms and head, in consequence of which he was for some time confined to his house.
