at Dawson City. Vancouver. B. C., Nov. 16.-Belle Mitchell, who caused the fire in Dawson City which did $500,000 damage, has been the author of two previous fires. The fire of a year ago was caused by this woman, who threw a lamp at a man with whom she had a quarrel. A month ago she burned her own place on Third avenue, in Dawson, by throwing a lamp at a woman. The losses are as follows: Worden Hotel, $40,000; Pattison & McGraw's New England Saloon, $44,000; postoffice building, owned by Alex. McDonald, $1,000; Green Tree Saloon, $35,000; Empire bakery building, $40,000; McPherson & Johnson, $20,000; Vancouver Hotel, $25,000; John Sargent, New Saloon, $3,000; New York Store and Ladies' Bazar, $21,000; Case & Gilsey, $8,000; Mason Tortoni Jack Thiern, Nellie Lewis and several others, $43,000; Hibbard, boot and shoe store, and sixteen small buildings, $6,-000: E. A. Suter, jeweler, lost everything he had; I. Flataw, tailor, in same building, $6,000; John McDonald, tailor, $6,000; George Brewett, tailor, $8,000; Foley, butcher, $5,000; Seattle Lunch Counter, $5,000; restaurant, small stores, etc., on opposite side of street, $29,000; two cabins, occupied by women, furni-ture, etc., $18,000; other damage claimloses, $100,000, deduction 50 per cent, $50,000; total, $503,000. There is no insurance at Dawson, and the loss falls entirely upon the individuals. A number of the buildings burned contained shot and shell, and a number of the fire-fighters received injuries as a result of the fire. Among these were Pte. Mullins, of the infantry, contusions, sprains and burns; G. O. Ellis, contusions on head and a shattered shoulder; Dan Millen, scalp cut and skull cracked; W. A. Jones, head battered and burned; Constable Tipp, burns and sprains; Pte. # A Brilliant Banquet

A Magnificent Gathering at the Pavilion, Toronto.

Representative Liberals From All Parts of Ontario.

A Distinguished Array of Public Men Speak.

A Grand Tribute to Ontario's Faithful Premier-Details of the Great Event,

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The banquet to Hon. A. S. Hardy last night in the Pavilion was a magnificent success. His supporters gathered from every corner of the province to do him honor, to testify to the esteem in which they hold his leadership, to show, too, the spirit in which they face the political duties of the present hour. Fully onehalf of the guests came from outside places, and every part of the province which Mr. Hardy administers sent its quota to cheer him.

The tribute to the premier's high was a success not only in the unprecedented numbers who attended, and in the distances from which they traveled, but in the high level of the speaking. The premier's speech was been subjected. It was in Mr. Hardy's defend Spain's rights in the Philippine ford Sifton's appearance, and the minister of the interior gave his audience an exceedingly fine example of the practical man dealing with practical The Madrid correspondent of the subjects. The stirring tale of the way in which was grappled the great work of opening up Canada's resources, of stood in the way of her progress, was told in an admirably lucid manner, and tion. A feature of the evening was Mr. Hardy's tribute to Mr. Sifton, and the excellent style, and Hon. Mr. Ross, as usual, showed himself a consummate after-dinner speaker in his handling of splendidly-managed and most enthusiastic demonstration, the political and the personal significance of which were ### evenly balanced.

THE DECORATIONS. The decorations, with their color scheme of white and chocolate, were those of the dinner to Lord and Lady Aberdeen a week ago, with the addition of a gigantic "Hardy" in the colored electric lights which lit up the guest table from behind, and which was draped in Union Jacks. While the general decorations were simple, and, indeed, massive, the tables were exceedingly dainty in their setting. Baskets of roses and wreaths of ferns and roses set them off, while candles surmounting graceful iron candlesticks gave an exceedingly pretty finish to the scene. Not only was the arrangement aesthetic, it was also practical, for every man's seat was allotted beforehand, and a system of letters and numbers obviated all confusion.

THE ATTENDANCE. But the most impressive thing about the dinner was the men who were there. There were fully 450 guests present, and the tables were packed with a closeness which made the deftness of the waiters all the more creditable. They came from everywhere. South Brant sent a splendid delegation, adorned with the badge which they carried to victory in March last—a badge which Mr. Hardy wore-and occupying a coign of vantage in the center of the hall, from which pealed forth at intervals their Hardy war-cry. The elite of Ontario Liberalism was present, and the old guard rubbed shoulders with the youths who see the future of Canada expanding before them, who feel that it is indeed good to be young in these days, when the wine of nation hood warms the blood of our people. It was a responsive audience, which cheered Mr. Hardy to the echo, and which showed itself quick to appreciate the manliness of Mr. Sifton's reply to his traducers. The audience was by no means exclusively male, for a bank of ladies occupied the gallery and listened with marked interest to the speeches. Just before the speaking commenced Mrs. Hardy entered the gallery and occupied a seat in the center. Her advent was observed, and in a moment the men below were on their feet, and cheers rang out and the graceful Chautauqua salute was given.

AT THE HEAD TABLE.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Hon. Mr. Hardy made his appearance. As he came on the dais the colored lights of the inscription behind his chair lit up, and the first taste of the enthusiasm of the evening was given by the cheer which rang out all over the hall at the sight of the chieftain. Hon. George A. Cox was the chairman, and in the place of honor to his right was Hon. Mr. Hardy. Still to the right were Hon. Wm. Mulock, Hon. J. M. Gibson, Rev. Dr. Thomas, Mr. Elias Rogers, Hon. E. J. Davis, Rev. Dr. G. M. Milligan, Hon. John Dryden, Rev. Dr. Dewart and Mr. J. H. Mackenzle, To the left of the chairman were Hon. David Mills, Hon. Wm. Paterson, Hon. Clifford Sifton, Hon. George W. Ross, Rev. Dr. Parker, Mr. C. B. Heyd, M.P., Rev. Father Ryan, Mr. Robert Jaffray and Mr. J. K. Kerr, Q.C. Grace was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Milligan.

Hon. A. S. Hardy Honored by of his appreciation of the presence of the many ladies in the galleries and of the honor the committee had done him in appointing him chairman on this important occasion. Mr. Cox then without much ado, proposed "The Queen," which was drunk with ringing cheers.

Letters and telegrams of regret were read: From Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, at Washington; Sir Richard Cart wright; Hon. Mr. Marchand, premier of Quebec; Hon. Mr. Emerson, premier of New Brunswick; Hon. Mr. Longley, attorney-general, Nova Scotia; Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick; Young Liberal Association of Stratford; Rev. Dr. Caven; Mr. Strathy, of Lennox; Hon. Mr. Harcourt; Hon. Mr. Harty; Mr. J. T. Garrow; Mr. Belcount; J. Edmund O'Reilley, Mr. Edwards and many others. Mr. Cox resumed by proposing the joint toast of the "Governor-General of Canada and the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario," with a few compli-mentary remarks for both Lord Aberdeen and Sir Oliver Mowat. Lord and Lady Aberdeen had endeared themselves to the people of Canada, and would be long remembered.

MR. HARDY SPEAKS. The chairman then introduced Mr. Hardy, and when the premier arose the demonstration was tremendous. A special song, "He Was Born in Old Brant County," was sung

Brantfordites, the audience joining in the chorus. Hon. Mr. Hardy said words failed him to express his feeling at the warm, cordial reception given him. Under the peculiar circumstances he could not give vent to his feelings of gratitude qualities was an absolute success. It and gratification. He took the gathering as a manifestation of confidence by leading Toronto and Ontario Liber-

From every county, almost every village, he saw friends-an omen of Liberal advance. He accepted the tribute paid to his position as Premier of Ontario. Able colleagues and the heritage left by Sir Oliver Mowat were responsible for any good works accomplished, not personality. In administration or legislation only he claimed his reward. "The position is not easy. (Laughter.) Criticism must sometimes, you may think, be indulged in, but we must meet the enemy hand in hand and against the complimentary things may be termed an offset."

The demonstration was a credit to the organizers and the Liberal party, and Mr. Malone must be gratified to see it.

THE GOVERNMENT'S TRIUMPH. The attorney-general paid a great compliment to South Brant. were more prophets in South Brant than in any other riding. South Brant's assistance was invaluable; he was proud to stand as their represen-

Conservatives had thought Sir Oliver Mowat's successor must be a failure, but they were mistaken; 56,000 more of a vote had been the result than for Sir Oliver in 1894, and 20,000 more than for Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The country approved the record of the late government, and the policy of the past. Conservative friends said at the first meeting of the house the government would not last a week. We took them at their word and called the house, and imprecations resulted. They said we were in a panic; we were cowardly. I never knew it was cowardly to meet your foe face to face. (Laughter.) And the result was as we had said-our majority was eight. The courageous attitude of the government," said Mr. Hardy, "met with its reward. Difficulties are always overcome when you meet them half way. They said we were shirking the question before the courts; our answer was, it would go to the courts. would go Instead of twenty trials, we would have one. Our Conservative friends said our ministers were without seats; we The gave them seats. (Hear, hear.) minister of crown lands sits today for the county of East Wellington. Mr. Dryden was cowardly, they said, but South Ontario has returned him. Promises kept and the fight won, is our record.

The Reform member will win in Lennox. Mr. Aylesworth redeemed the ments of strength, awakening her dorcounty last election. Halton will be mant thunders. (Cheers.) ours, East Northumberland and West Huron-(hear, hear)-and our Conservative friends will find little comfort ed her from her attitude of peace. In in the bye-elections to come after." Mr. Foster called the calling of the house a terrible blunder. No Reformer, either before or since, had said so. "He had better pull the beam out of his own eye than with a microscope try to search for the mote in other eyes," said

the speaker. THE LIBERAL IDEALS.

Mr. Hardy drew cheers by his glowing references to Sir Oliver Mowat, wno was a true Liberal, because he believed in a proper conservatism. Mr. Hardy drew a distinction between the Conservative mind, which regarded change as dangerous, and the Liberal mind, which was sanguine in political speculation, believed in pressing for-Brant. ward, was anxious to experiment, placed law above the governing power, and believed that privilege attached to no

The great questions between the province and the Dominion growing out of confederation had been settled forever, said the premier. "They are fixed, they are determined as if mortised in granite, and they will remain as long as we have a province, as long as we have a constitution. (Cheers.) We are proud of the fact that we may claim that during all these years we have upheld the doctrine of the equality of all before the law, equality of opportunity to all. These have been great planks in the Liberal platform. Pride, too, may be felt that in no case, however great the provocation, has the Liberal party during all that time descended from its high pedestal by an attempt to arouse religious animosities, by an attempt to snatch a verdict. They have defended their principles; they have stood by the weak against the strong they have upon all occasions and upon every occasion taken a straightforward course, relying upon those great underlying principles which Liberals in England, and in this country have advocated for two centuries past. (Cheers.) Druing all that time the Liberals have proclaimed one doctrine that of justice, tolerance and liberty THE BANQUET OPENS. They are the three great policies which Mr. Cox began the important part underlie the Liberal platform, as they of the programme with an expression are the three great lights which have guided the Liberal party since confederation in this province. In this country we have two races, we have two creeds. It has been the policy of the Liberal party to weld them together, to help to harmonize, and to do away with sectarian differences; to build up a homogeneous people, and a homogeneous nation." (Cheers.)

THE FUTURE PATH.

In the future, the cause of labor, the fisheries of the great lakes, further development of the mining industry, reforestation and development of our great Northwest, would be the special care of the party. The heritage of the Canadian people was only beginning to be appreciated by them; what other 5,000,000 people had such a heritage? The Kootenays are today the richest mining centers in existence; further is the Yukon. These add to our wealth and our reputation in the continental countries of Europe. Speaking of the development of the Yukon, Mr. Hardy paid a splendid tribute to Hon. Clifford Sifton. The Yukon had hardly been known until it was provided with a governor and government, with soldiers, with cavalry, with mounted policemen and with law, because there was a man in the cabinet who knew something of the country—a man with the mind, the soul and the vision to grasp the situation. (Cheers.) It is because of that we see him traduced, that we see him maligned; and if the Reform party of this province of this Canada of ours lend a willing ear to nterested traducing, to interested defamation, then they will listen to what has been said with an open ear; otherwise they will know the interested source from which it comes. (Cheers.) Mr. Hardy concluded with this fine burst of eloquence:

"Unalterably determined as we are to maintain British connection and to have some share in the authority and the power wielded by the mightiest empire since the dawn of time, and in the glory which attaches to her history we are, notwithstanding, distinctly Canadian, and grow more so with British training, British sympathies, a fixed loyalty to British connection, and as part of the mighty empire which encircles the globe with her colonies and her possessions in both hemispheres, on every continent, in every clime, in every zone. She is great in Europe, nearly as great in Asia, nearly as great in America, Africa and Australasia and in the islands of the sea. Of what other nation now or in the past could be said with truth, 'Her flag floats on every sea, and she is unconquerable and triumphant wherever it floats?" (Loud cheers.) With an invincible spirit, boundless enterprise, adventurous souls, Britons and British stock stand for liberty and good, free government in every quarter of the globe. Notwithstanding this she loves peace rather than war. Her triumphs are those of peace rather than those of war. She is emphatically a nation of peaceful aims and pursuits, and in time of peace she has been likened to a great battleship or man-of-war lying calm and motionless, but when the time of action arrives she ruffles her swelling plumage, puts on all her beauty and bravery and collects her scattered eledents of Fashoda-(cheers)-and the Transvaal were occasions which arousa moment she ruffles her swelling plumage, put on all her beauty and her bravery and collected the scattered elements of her power, and if she did not actually awaken her dormant thunder, it was only because the wouldbe invaders of her rights had seen enough and heard enough to lead them prudently to haul down their flag of defiance, to muffle their war drums and to sound the retreat." When Mr. Hardy finished he received another tremendous ovation. Stirring speeches were also made by Hon. David Mills, Hon. Mr. Sifton, Hon. Mr. Mulock, J. K. Kerr, Q.C., Hon. George W. Ross, Hon. Wm. Paterson and Mr. C. B. Heyd, M.P., South

Discussion on the Subject of Ward-Grabbing and Reform.

Bowled Out, This Time,

On a Division of Six Yeas to Ten Nays.

Several Amendments Put Forward and Defeated.

Council's Golden Opportunity | bing. to Blow Its Own Horn.

Municipal reform measures were tumultuously discussed by the city night. The stampede, began with the introduction of Ald. Graham's motion, which was for a couple of hours, and resulted in the other cities as to whether the aldnothing more material than unstinted praise for the present and past councils of the city of London. The council rejoiced to find itself so nearly perfect. It estentatiously shook hands with itself and patted its own back in its exuberant expression of its selfadmiration. Evils might exist in the councils of other cities under the ward system, but in London-never! Were they not the champions of the present system in London? To say anything against it was a direct insult to every alderman around the board. This was the key-note-the cadenza-sustained by the opposition. Considering that the sole object of Ald. Graham's motion was merely to attain for the ratepayers the right to approve of the present system of the municipal government of the city or express themselves in favor of the reforms indicated, the personal af-front scented by certain of the aldermen seemed fancied. But fancied or not, the fact remains that the motion was voted down, the division being

THE REFORM RESOLUTION.

Ald. Graham's motion in full was: That in the opinion of this council the Municipal Act should be so amended as to allow ratepayers by their vote determine whether the number of their representatives at this board should not be reduced to one for each 4,000 of the population; and also whether they should not be elected in like manner as the mayor and hospital trustees, by general vote, and not by sections or wards, as at present; and that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a petition asking that the said act be amended accordingly. Ald. Taylor moved an amendment that the mayor, Ald. The mayor said the reform was not needed in the city of London. All the aldermen had tried hard to do their duty. He did not know that it would be wise to do away with the ward system all at once. There was the fact that not one of the three cities mentioned has as good streets as London, and they cost more money. The aldermen deserved great praise.

believed the city's interests were better by dividing up the city into municipalities. His opinion was to reduce the number of aldermen to twelve, but retain the six wards. He could see many disadvantages in the election by the city at large. To eradicate politics would be the greatest possible benefit, but under this new system more politics would be brought into the council than in the past. This had been the municipal evil, but there had been little or none of it this year.

Ald. O'Meara said the proposition of Ald. Graham was not a new one. Ald. Winnett's view that a saving would be effected in the expenditure on the city streets was a very narrow one. The fact of the matter was that the board of works got only $22,500 to spend on 110 miles of streets and 220 miles of sidewalks, he said. When anybody tackled an alderman it was about the expenditure on the streets, the employment of some poor workingman that did not get 40 days' work in the year, or some such picayune matter. Graham's motion, he said, was a direct insult to every man around the board. It was as much as saying they were not capable. The rich man's council had mortgaged Salter's Grove, and the city had suffered ever since. Workingmen made as good practical aldermen as the rich men. He had not alderman. Ald. Douglass also thought that under the new system the aldermen would be elected from the center of the city. If Ald. Grahlam and Winnett had been on the board of works this year they would have thought they represented quite a large enough part of the city. A better move for reform would be to cut the wards in two instead of doing away with them. There had been no ward-grabbing this year, he said.

Ald. McCallum-In the plan that you propose, do you allow the women to

Ald. Douglass-Oh, yes. Ald. Hunt said that fault was not found with the aldermen, but with the system. Ward-grabbing was an evil of the system, and had to exist to a certain extent. He saw no reason why the men elected from the center of the city would be debarred from taking an interest in the suburbs. There could be no doubt the citizens desired a change. Many had talked to the speaker, and there was not one but had condemned the ward system. Under no system would the workingmen have so good a show of being elected.

Ald. Cooper had traveled as much as Ald. Hunt or Graham, and he had not heard one man say he wanted the number of aldermen reduced to ten. The only mistake made during the year was on hospital business, and that was all the fault he had heard found. He was charged as being the grabber of the council, but while a member of the council he would always see that No. 4 ward got its share. The argument that the discussion would be curtailed was no good. The more discussion the was no good. The more discussion the was not true. He worked for the gen-

much heart as for his own ward. Ald. Stevely thought much could be said in favor of the several reforms which had been suggested. But since it was proposed that three other cities join with London in obtaining legislation, he believed it would be better for the clerk to communicate with these other cities, and get their views before any definite method of reform be decided upon.

Ald. Carrothers claimed that the board of works during the past year had not spent a cent unprofitably. He asked Ald. Winnett, as a lumber merchant, if he could lay sidewalks cheaper than had been done this year. Could ten men secure cheaper contracts than had been secured? The sewer contractors had all lost money. Ald, Graham's system would still have the aldermen elected from certain sections of the city. A reform in the way of shorter speeches might be well, but he did not think the people wanted a reduction in the number of aldermen. He had not heard one man ask for it.

Ald. Graham replied that he had not been running down the aldermen. No reflection on the present aldermen was intended. The objection was against the system. No business in the city was more laudably conducted than that of the waterworks board, with its three commissioners. What objection could there be to getting the legislation, so that the citizens could use it if they wanted to. It could be adopted only by a vote of the people in any event. Were the aldermen afraid that if legislation were obtained the citizens would clamor for the reform?

Ald. Cooper asked Ald. Graham if he knew of the enormous debt of the waterworks board.

Ald. Winnett believed the reform would put an end to letting contract-

Ald. Greenlees engaged the attention of the council with an interesting mathematical calculation offered as an argument in favor of the reform. If the aldermen numbered ten there would be only 140 speeches in one evening. (Laughter.)

are those having a fresh-made flavor, without any evidence of staleness. They want in most cases a mild-flavored butter, salted at the rate of from one-half to five-eighths of an ounce per pound of butter. In some markets they will take butter salted at the rate of three-fourths of an ounce per pound of butter. In nearly all markets they prefer the butter to be of a pale straw bolor, and even lighter than that.

British merchants require butter to be put up in neat, clean, convenient packages. The package which takes best is the 56-pound box; and each box should be covered with a coarse canves bag to keep it clean in transit. Each box should contain when packed 57 pounds net of butter. That allows for shrinkage and permits the butter to be turned out by the retailer when weighing 56 pound plump. I think the producers will obtain more money by put-ting in 57 pounds of butter and invoicing it at 56 pounds than they will by putting in 56 pound exactly and standing the claims for short weight, which usually bring dissatisfaction from the buyers. Each package should be lined inside with a good quality of garch-ment paper weighing not less than 40 pounds to the ream. A thicker quality is so much the better. When a thin and fragile quality of paper is used it sticks to the butter and tears when being taken off. When the thicker qualities of paper are being removed they leave the butter covered with a sparkling brine, and that improves its

The retail buyer in examining butter in the warehouse of the wholesale merchant, judges it at its worse points. He removes a small portion from the surface of the butter, or runs the butter trier down the side of the package. If he finds any staleness at these places he will depreciate the value of the whole package and of the whole lot. It is highly important that the but-ter intended for export should be kept at a low temperature from the day it is made. If it becomes slightly off flavor on the surface of the package it will fetch a relatively lower price.-Prof. Robertson.

Something About the New Discovery for Curing Dyspepsia.

The Rev. F. I. Bell, a highly esteemed minister, residing in Weedsport, Cayuga county, N. Y., in a recent letbetter. As for saying that an alder- ter, writes as follows: "There has man was elected for only one ward, it never been anything that I have taken that has relieved the dyspepsia eral interest of the city with just as from which I have suffered for ten years except the new remedy called Squart's Dyspensia Tablets. Since taking them I have had no distress at all after eating, and again after long years CAN SIEEP WELL. Rev. F. I. Bell, Weedsport, N. Y., formerly Idalia, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a remarkable remedy, not only because it is a certain cure for all forms of indigestion, but because it seems to act as thoroughly in old chronic cases of dyspepsia as well as in mild attacks of indigestion or biliousness. A person has dyspepsia simply because the stomach is OVERWORKED, all it wants is a harmless, vegetable remedy to digest the food and thus give it the much needed REST.

This is the secret of the success of this peculiar remedy. No matter how weak or how much disordered the digestion may be, Stuart's Dyspepsial Tablets WILL DIGEST THE FOOD WHETHER THE STOMACH WORKS OR NOT. New life and energy is, given, not only to the stomach but to every organ and nerve in the body. A trial of this splendid medicine will convince the most skeptical that Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles CAN BE CURED. The Tablets are pre-pared by the F. A. Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., but so popular has the remedy become that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can now be obtained at any drug store at 50 cents per package. pated in the Debate-The Municipal reform measures were tumultuously discussed by the city council last night. The stampede, began with the introduction of Ald. Graham's motion, which was vetoed at the previous meeting, lasted for a couple of hours, and resulted in nothing more material than unstinted praise for the present and past councils of the city of London. The council rejoiced to find itself so nearly perfect. It estentatiously shook hands with itself and patted its own back in its exuberant expression of its selfadmiration. Evils might exist in the councils of other cities under the ward system, but in London-never! Were they not the champions of the present system in London? To say anything against it was a direct insult to every alderman around the board. This was the key-note-the cadenza-sustained by the opposition.

Considering that the sole object of Ald. Graham's motion was merely to attain for the ratepayers the right to approve of the present system of the municipal government of the city or themselves in favor of the reforms indicated, the personal affront scented by certain of the aldermen seemed fancied. But fancied or not, the fact remains that the motion was voted down, the division being

A better move for reform would be to cut the wards in two instead of doing away with them. There had been no ward-grabbing this year, he said.

Ald. McCallum—In the plan that you propose, do you allow the women to

Ald. Douglass—Oh, yes. Ald. Hunt said that fault was not found with the aldermen, but with the system. Ward-grabbing was an evil of the system, and had to exist to a certain extent. He saw no reason why the men elected from the center of the city would be debarred from taking an interest in the suburbs. There could be no doubt the citizens desired a change. Many had talked to the speaker, and there was not one but had condemned the ward system. Under no system would the workingmen have so good a show of being elected.

Ald. Cooper had traveled as much as Ald. Hunt or Graham, and he had not heard one man say he wanted the number of aldermen reduced to ten. The only mistake made during the year was on hospital business, and that was all the fault he had heard found. He was charged as being the grabber of the council, but while a member of the council he would always see that No. 4 ward got its share. The argument that the discussion would be curtailed was no good. The more discussion the better. As for saying that an aldermuch heart as for his own ward.

Ald. Stevely thought much could be said in favor of the several reforms which had been suggested. But since it was proposed that three other cities join with London in obtaining legislation, he believed it would be better for the clerk to communicate with these other cities, and get their views before any definite method of reform be de-

Ald. Carrothers claimed that the board of works during the past year had not spent a cent unprofitably. He asked Ald. Winnett, as a lumber merchant, if he could lay sidewalks cheaper than had been done this year. Could ten men secure cheaper contracts than had been secured? The sewer contractors had all lost money. Ald. Graham's system would still have the aldermen elected from certain sections of the city. A reform in the way of shorter eches might be well, but he did not think the people wanted a reduction in the number of aldermen. He had not heard one man ask for it.

Ald. Graham replied that he had not been running down the aldermen. No reflection on the present aldermen was intended. The objection was against the system. No business in the city was more laudably conducted than that of the waterworks board, with its three commissioners. What objection could there be to getting the legislation, so that the citizens could use it if they wanted to. It could be adopted only by a vote of the people in any event. Were the aldermen afraid that if legislation were obtained the citizens would clamor for the reform?

Ald. Cooper asked Ald. Graham if he knew of the enormous debt of the waterworks board.

Ald. Winnett believed the reform would put an end to letting contractors fatten on city contracts.

Ald. Cooper—Mention one. Ald. Winnett-You know as well Ald. O'Meara said the council of this and past years had been more saving than any of the bolards or trusts in the city. 'Ald. Greenlees engaged the attention of the council with an interesting mathematical calculation offered as an argument in favor of the reform. There was one member who had made fourteen speeches during the evening. That would be a total of 252 speeches, if every alderman chose to exercise the same right. If the alldermen numbered ten there would be only 140 speeches in one evening. (Laughter.) DEFEATED. 'Ald. O'Meara's amendment to refer the matter to next year's council was defeated by 6 to 8. The amendment to appoint a deputation to consult with other cities was defeated—5 to 11. Ald. Jolly moved a committee, consisting of Ald. McPhillips, Carrothers, Hunt, Greenlees, Dreaney and the mover, to bring in some recommenda-tions along this line. Ald. Cooper sec-

Ald. Belton also favored this. The vote was 6 to 11 The original motion was then with the result stated above, and the council adjourned.

OUR BUTTER IN ENGLAND

A Vast Market-How the Butter Should Be Prepared for It.

The following table shows the quantity of butter imported to Great Britain in the year ending Dec. 31, 1897:

From Quantity. Value.

Canada ... 12,253,024 $ 2,164,995 United States 17,269,952 3,083,272 Denmark ... 149,489,312 32,841,060 Australasia ... 30,176,384 6,305,121 France .... 50,190,336 7,376,431 6,586,269 1,280,406 .... 33,511,968 Holland ... 31,206,672 Germany ... 5,797,232 Other countries ... 30,498,832

are those having a fresh-made flavor, without any evidence of staleness. They want in most cases a mild-flavored butter, salted at the rate of from one-half to five-eighths of an ounce per pound of butter. In some markets they will take butter salted at the rate of three-fourths of an ounce per pound of butter. In nearly all markets they prefer the butter to be of a pale straw solor, and even lighter than that.

British merchants require butter to be put up in neat, clean, convenient packages. The package which takes best is the 56-pound box; and each box should be covered with a coarse canves bag to keep it clean in transit. Each box should contain when packed 57 pounds net of butter. That allows for shrinkage and permits the butter to be turned out by the retailer when weighing 56 pound plump. I think the producers will obtain more money by putting in 57 pounds of butter and invoicing it at 56 pounds than they will by putting in 56 pound exactly and standing the claims for short weight, which usually bring dissatisfaction from the buyers. Each package should be lined inside with a good quality of earchment paper weighing not less than 40 pounds to the ream. A thicker quality is so much the better. When a thin and fragile quality of paper is used it sticks to the butter and tears when being taken off. When the thicker qualities of paper are being removed they leave the butter covered with a sparkling brine, and that improves its appearance

The retail buyer in examining butter in the warehouse of the wholesale mer-chant, judges it at its worse points. He removes a small portion from the surface of the butter, or runs the butter trier down the side of the package. If he finds any staleness at these places he will depreciate the value of the whole package and of the whole lot. It is highly important that the butter intended for export should be kept at a low temperature from the day it is made. If it becomes slightly off flavor on the surface of the package it will fetch a relatively lower price.

A PECULIAR REMEDY.

Something About the New Discovery for Curing Dyspepsia.

The Rev. F. I. Bell, a highly esteemed minister, residing in Weedsport, Cayuga county, N. Y., in a recent letter, writes as follows: "There has man was elected for only one ward, it never been anything that I have takwas not true. He worked for the general interest of the city with just as from which I have suffered for ten years except the new remedy called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Since taking them I have had no distress at all after eating, and again after long years CAN SIEEP WELL. Rev. F. I. Bell, Weedsport, N. Y., formerly Idalia,

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a remarkable remedy, not only because it is a certain cure for all forms of indigestion, but because it seems to act as thoroughly in old chronic cases of dyspepsia as well as in mild attacks of indigestion or biliousness. A person has dyspepsia simply because stomach is OVERWORKED, all it wants is a harmless, vegetable remedy to digest the food and thus give it the much needed REST.

This is the secret of the success of this peculiar remedy. No matter how weak or how much disordered the digestion may be, Stuart's Dyspepsial Tablets WILL DIGEST THE FOOD WHETHER THE STOMACH WORKS OR NOT. New life and energy is given, not only to the stomach but to every organ and nerve in the body. A trial of this splendid medicine will convince the most skeptical that Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles CAN BE CURED. The Tablets are pre-pared by the F. A. Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., but so popular has the remedy become that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can now be obtained at any drug store at 50 cents per pack-Send for book on stomach diseases free. 89c zxv

HOW TO CHURN

Advice by Prof. Robertson on This Fea ture of Butter-Making.

The preferable degree of ripeness in the cream will be indicated by the following points—a mild, pleasant acid taste, a uniformly thick consistency, and a glossy appearance, somewhat like white oil paint. If not at the exact temperature desired for churning, it should be cooled or warmed to point, which may range from 54 to 64 degrees Fahr. according to the season. It should be strained into the churn and the churn should not be filled to more than two-fifths of its capacity. If butter color is to be used, it should be added to the cream before the churning is commenced.

The regular speed of a factory revolving churn should be about 65 re-olutions per minute; and when butter granules are formed in the churn, a few gallons of weak brine (salt and water) at a temperature not above 50 degrees Fahr. should be added, to assist in the separation between the granules of butter and the buttermilk, and also to give a firmer body to the butter.

The churning should then be continued until the granules of butter become a little larger than clover seed. The buttermilk should then be drawn off and a quantity equal to the buttermilk, of pure cold water, at a temper-ature of 50 to 58 degrees Fahr., according to the season, should be put into the churn, for the purpose of washing out the buttermilk from the butter granules. The churn should receive a few quick revolutions, and the water should be drawn off immediately. Attention to this is one of some importance, as the water will contain more or less curdy matter, which, if allowed to settle on the sides of the churn, forms a film there, where it is apt to adhere to the butter when that settles gradually as the water is drawn off. After the butter has been left to stand for some 20 minutes, it should be salted at the rate of from one-quarter of an ounce of salt per pound of butter, to one ounce of salt per pound of but-ter, acording to the preferences of the market which is to be supplied. The very finest quality of pure butter salt only should be used. That which is of very finest quality of pure butter salt only should be used. That which is of a uniform fineness of grain and velvety to the touch is suitable.—Prof. Robertson.

ON THE YUKON BAR

The Big River Only Six Feet Deep at Its Mouth When It Is High Water.

The latest advices reached in this city from the government survey party at the mouth of the Yukon are to the effect that failure has fort to discover the entrance for deep sea vessels. It is now believed that no such entrance exists, and that before the Yukon can be made navigable for ocean craft considerable dredging will have to be done on the bar which cuts Bering sea off from the deep waters of the river. This news will prove a great disappointment to all persons interested in the development of Alaska. For a long time past there has been a widespread belief that a so-called "true mouth" existed through which large steamships could enter the Yukon. Once in the stream it would be an easy matter for them to ascend nearly 80 miles regardless of the fluctuating stages of the river, which maintains an average width of ten miles to the lower ramparts, and a depth varying from 40 to 150 feet. By using this water highway up to the Tanana and Nulato, supplies could be placed in the heart of Alaska almost as cheaply as though shipped to St. Michael. Such facilities would mean an enormous development of min ing industries, inasmuch as many claims which are now unprofitable on account of the high prices charged for supplies could be worked to good account. Moreover, plentiful supplies in central Alaska would mean an enormous increase in the amount of prospecting done. Experience has shown the river steamboats on the Yukon are expensive and unreliable.

It was with a thorough understanding of these facts that the United States coast and geodetic survey office fitted out a party last spring to go to the mouth of the Yukon and make a careful survey and ascertain whether or not the rumored deep sea entrance was a reality or a myth. Capt. Pratt had the work in charge, and since beginning nearly the entire area has been covered, but without result. A uniform bar appears to exist, crossing all of the various outlets, with about six feet of water on it at high tide. This bar is of soft muck, and varies from a quarted to a half mile in width. It is apparent that the bar originated through the long-continued deposit of river sediment. In fact it has been found that the sea itself has been partly filled up by the sediment for some distance out from the bar. The deepest water is toward the southern outlets.-San Francisco Call.

The Hardy Banquet.

The banquet tendered Hon. A. S. Hardy at Toronto last night was a distinguished event. It was the tribute of a great and united party to one of its most brilliant and successful Such an occasion is one of the splendid amenities which are not too frequent in public life in this country. The official career of Mr. Hardy is a long record of self-sacrificing de-wotion to the welfare of the province. When Mr. Hardy entered the House, in 1874, he had already attained an enviable reputation at the bar, and all his financial prospects lay in the direction of private life. He had been in the Legislature only three years when his signal abilities were recognized by a Cabinet appointment. He filled the portfolio of Provincial Secretary for twelve years, taking the Crown Lands Department on the death of Hon. T. B. Pardee, and finally the Premiership on Sir Oliver Mowat's retirement. During that long period-a quarter of a century-there has not been a single blemish on his political or personal integrity, or an effective criticism of his administrative work. Mr. Hardy has been singularly adapted for his duties by an eminently practical mind, equipped by a fine legal training. He has been a constructive legislator, and his name is written on a great body of statutes which will form his most enduring monument. To enumerate the acts which he devised and promoted would be to cover the whole range of provincial legislation. His capacity for work has been and is remarkable. If ever a Canadian statesman earned his position by sheer merit, that man is the present Premier

The Liberals of Ontario may well honor Mr. Hardy as a public benefactor and a conspicuous ornament of the party, and we believe his opponents will be generous enough to feel, if they do not express, some admiration of the Premier as a great and useful Canadian.

Will Not Trust the People. The City Council last night knocked out the question of municipal reform for this year at least. The motion of Ald. Graham and Greenlees provided for a vote of the people before any step could be taken by the Council toward changing our civic constitution. However much an alderman may oppose the principle at issue he can tend to a whole section, or 640 acres, have no excuse for refusing to allow and as men become rich enough to With the single exception of Berlin, every city and town that has voted on the question this year has pronounced against the ward system and in favor of the reduction of municipal representatives. We believe that London would do likewise if given the chance. The aldermen have denied the people that privilege, but the people may do a little reforming on their own account on polling day.

Australia's Financial Condition.

Premier Reid of New South Wales, in his recent financial statement for the year ending June, 1898, was able to announce a credit balance of £135,-000. The revenue for the current year he estimated at £9,433,000 and the expenditure at £9,681,000. The deficiency he proposed to meet by duties on tea, coffee, rice, sugar, biscuits and confectionery, which, with the amount brought forward last year, would enable him to wind up the current financial year with a credit balance of £30,000. In the last six years the customs taxation of New South Wales has been reduced 50 per cent, and it has been a strong argument for free trade, that the colony has since enjoyed uninterrupted prosperity. In the past four years £1,150,000 has been wiped off the debt, and despite this season's drought the railway revenue during the past four months showed an increase of £100,000 over the corresponding period last year. At first glance it may be surprising that a colony of 1,277,870 people should raise an annual revenue much greater than Canada's, but this is explained by the fact that the railroads there are under government ownership and control, and that several other natural monopolies are nationalized,

The Australasian colonies are heavily burdened with debt. The aggregate public debt of the group-New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand-increased from £166,700,000 in 1888 to £225,000,-000 in 1898. Of this £206,550,000 was borrowed in Great Britain. The Australasian debt now stands at £52 per head, the present population being 4,360,000. The net public debt of Canada is $257,613,907, or about $50 a head, while the per capita debt of Great Britain and Ireland is £16, 4s 9d. It must be remembered, however, that the public debts of the Australasian capable of securing it." colonies have been raised almost entirely for the construction of railways and other public works, all more or less remunerative. Fifty per cent of habit, prevalent in some of the richest the interest paid upon these public debts is derived from these productive public works, but even the remaining fluctuations in the yield and the price 50 per cent entails a much greater of wheat, the lesson is that mixed burden than British or Canadian taxpayers have to bear. The extraordin- fits of farming under average condiary natural wealth of the Australastan colonies, their present prosperity, and that capacity for government which is implanted in the race dispels any anxiety as to their ability to meet all obligations. Their financial condition is considered perfectly sound by British investors, and a steady decrease in the per capita debt is looked for under the more stable conditions which are expected to follow federation. The consummation of this great scheme is assured within a year.

The Canadian Prairies.

Miss Flora Shaw, in her sixth Canadian letter to the London Times, des votes her attention to the Canadian prairies and vividly sketches that vast region, 1,000 miles from east to west and 400 miles from north to south, which Canadians believe is to be the

"Towards the limits of the prairie on all sides the landscape is diversified by natural features. Eastward roune Winnipeg it has its lakes. Northward in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Nonthern Alberta it loses the quality of pure grass land and becomes parklike, with clumps of timber and streams winding in open vaileys between flow wooded hills. Westward the snow peaks of the Rockies rise in sharp relief above the buttressed outlinesof the foot hills, and even southwards, where the prairies are continued into the central districts of the United States, the horizon is broken by the line of the low watershed that separates the northern feeders of the Missouri from streams running to the Canadian lakes. The great center of the country is a rolling plain. In places it seems to heap itself in billows of grass against the sky, in others the horizon is so wide that between edge and edge the general curve appears to indicate nothing less than the roundness of the world. Yet the flat country has its characteristic charm, and when the sweep of the earth is unbroken the eye learns to look for form and feature to the sky. Nor is the monotony of the plain without relief. The prairies like the English downs, are full of surprises. Each lake and coulee hidden in the folds of the land from general observation is cherished by the district in which it is known, and it is usually around some such point that centers of farming have extended themselves."

Miss Shaw describes minutely the physical features of this territory, and says that the tendency of prairie farming, like that of prairie ranching, seems to be rather in the direction of a large number of small owners than in that of very extensive individual holdings. From the following paragraph it would seem that "small owners" of which Miss Shaw speaks would be regarded as land princes in the older provinces:

"The whole of the organized lands of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories are surveyed in sections of 640 acres, or one mile square. The government allowance of free land to settlers is a quarter section, or 160 acres. This constitutes the ordinary homestead farm. This, however, generally recognized as more advantageous under the conditions of prairie farming to take up a second quarter sectionfor doing which special opportunities are granted—and to farm 320 acres. of the most successful farms exe an expression of public opinion at the work the greater quantity the practice of farming on this scale grow common.

The writer notes a generally high standard of farming as compared with early days, and for this she gives great credit to the experimental farms established by the Dominion Government. Fortunately placed, as a rule, under able management, they have been of great value in raising the general level of the methods of cultivation. The Government also helps by the establishment of creameries and dairy centers to develop the dairying industry. of which the profits are now beginning to be appreciated. The output last year from 27 creameries was in round figures 1,000,000 pounds of butter and 1,000,000 pounds of cheese. The number of creameries has greatly increased, and the output for this year is expected to show proportionate results. Farmers put their profit at from $20 to $30 per cow per year. Every small farmer can keep three or four milch cows. If there is a creamery in his neighborhood it will pay him to keep more, and it is the object of the Government dairy department to cause creameries to be established wherever they are wanted. The climate seems to be favorable for the rearing of poultry. Turkeys especially do well, and the mining demand on the other side of the mountains has already created a special market for the local farmyard. Hogs are counted among the most regular sources of profit to the mixed farmer.

Miss Shaw, in the midst of these encouraging facts, interpellates the following good advice:

"It is absolutely vain for any settler to expect to succeed unless he knows how to farm. The young man at the beginning of his career never knows how to farm. The difference which exists between one young man and another is not that one knows his business and that the other is ignorant; it is that one is prepared to learn his business and the other is not. It is only for the man who is prepared to learn that success is to be anticipated in the cultivation of land in any part of the world; the results of early periments have shown it to be especialtrue of farming in Manitoba and the Northwest. Great profits are without question to be earned here by clean, careful and industrious farming; but the exigencies of the climate, the dangers of early frost, and necessity for sowing every hour in the spring-a season which passes almost in a few days into summerrender it practically impossible for the idle and careless to succeed. In estimating the reasonable profit of the land, the assumption must be that the farmer has rendered himself

The writer also comments on "the extremely speculative element which is introduced into farming by the portions of this country, of dependence on a single crop." Considering the farming is highly desirable. The pro-

tions the writer estimates thus: "Assuming that every 100 acres of price to be received at half a dollar a bushel is $1,000, or £200, representing 100 per cent. on the cost of production or a net return of £100. The farmer owns his land as a freehold estate. It is his own fault if there is any charge upon it. Tithe is unknown. There are some rates, but taxes are paid chiefly in the form of customs. His net income on this conservative estimate of profits is £1 an acre. He lives rent free and the farm produces in its other departments the greater part of his food."

At Indian Head and many other good centers the yield is 30 bushels an acre, leaving a net profit of $10 per acre when wheat is at 50 cents. But not many months ago wheat was $1 per bushel. Of course, due allowance has to be made for hallstones and have. frost. Miss Shaw relates that no fewer than six cases were pointed out to her in one district of men who, beginning as laborers without capital some years ago, each banked last year $10,000. The general contentment of the people is based on a very widespread foundation of prosperity. Miss Shaw draws this conclusion for the benefit of her British readers:

"Enough has perhaps been said to show that young men and women who have a taste for out-of-door pursuits, life before them, time in which to learn the details of a profession easy to master, where every one in the country is ready and even eager to teach, and a necessity for earning their own living, might do worse with the opportunities at their command than come out a reasonable age and take up in little partnerships of brother and sister the free farms which are to be obtained under the land regulations of the Dominion Government."

Mr. Hardy's good cheer was not exhausted at last night's banquet. There are several more bye-elections yet.

It is fortunate the country knows the exact cause of the Dawson City fire, else Mr. Sifton might have been blamed for it by the Opposition.

There are sad inequalities in this world. While Mr. Hardy and his friends are being filled with good things, Mr. Whitney and his friends are still hungry for office.

The Guelph Mercury says: "Here in Guelph the City Fathers are of opinion that the ratepayers are not capable of returning an intelligent verdict on the question of municipal reform."

The Doukhobors, a number of whom are coming from Russia to settle in Canada are derisively called the "Spirit-Wrestlers." Our esteemed contemporary the Free Press calls them "shirt-wrestlers." It has apparently confounded them with China-

The South African gold production goes on incresing, September's output from the Rand district being the largest on record and at the rate of $96,-000,000 a year. The output of 1897 amounted to $58,800,000. Nothing seems to be more certain than that these mines will give out $100,000,000 during the coming year.

The Louisiana sugar planters' association has unanimously resolved to fight Philippine annexation in co-operation with the tobacco and beet sugar interests. "Vested interests" like these have so long dictated the domestic policy of the United States that it is no marvel they dare to think they can shape the foreign policy, too, for their own profit. It may be interesting to know that Lord Strafford has sold his London house, at No. 20 Cariton House Terrace, to Gilbert Parker, the American author, who married Miss Vantine, of New York, some two years ago. ### Today.

In the calendars of greatness Are but nobly spent todays; For tomorrow brings no laurels, And the waiting win no bays. To the poet comes the vision, To the painter comes the dream; But only in the present Can he shape the golden theme.

BLANK KISSES WHILE CARS WAITED.

[From the Kansas City Journal.] It happened at Fifth and Walnut streets at an hour when the streets were crowded. The flagman had signaled an approaching northeast electric railway car to stop and give the right of way to a south-bound Westport car. Standing in the center of the network of the tracks were two women. It was evident that they had met by chance after a long separation. They rushed into each other's arms and were smothering each other's faces with kisses.

"Look out ahead!" shouted the gripman on the cable car at the top of his voice. The flagman waved his club frantically about his head and elevated his voice in an effort to attract the artention of the two women. But they stood as if glued to the spot, and were deaf to the cries of danger. One more embrace, one more kiss, and then one of the women happened to glance over her shoulder and beheld the gripmar yanking away at the brakes in an effort to bring his car to a standstill The air about was perfectly blue.

"Oh, dear me, here comes a car," is all she said. Taking her friend by the arm, they strolled leisurely toward the eidewalk.

"I'd be willing to wager my last cent," said the gripman to the conductor as the latter came forward to ascertain what was wrong, "that two women would stop to kiss each other if they were falling out of a balloon."

HEART PAINS THE INDEPENDENT

The Heart and Nerves are Often Affected and Cause Prostration of the Entire System.

A Kingston Lady Testifies to Her Experience in the Use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

People who suffer from any disease or disorder of the heart nervous system, such as Palpitation, Skip Beats, Smothering or Sinking Sensations, Sleeplessness, Weakness, Pain in the Head, etc., cannot afford to waste time trying various remedies, which have nothing more to back up their claims than the bold assertions of their proprietors. These diseases are too serious to permit of your experimenting with untried remedies. When you buy Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, you know you have behind them the testimony of thousands of Canadians who have been cured by their use. One of these is Mrs. A. W. Irish, 92 Queen Street, Kingston, Ont., who writes as follows:

"I have suffered for some years with a smothering sensation caused by heart disease. The severity of the pains in my heart caused me much suffering. I was also very nervous, and my whole system was run down and debilitated. "Hearing of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills being a specific for these troubles, I thought I would try them, and therefore got a box at McLeod's Drug

They afforded me great relief, having toned up my system and removed the distressing symptoms from which I suffered. I can heartily recommend these wonderful pills to all sufferers from heart trouble."

Laxa-Liver Pills cure Billousness, Dyspepsia and Constipation. Every pill perfect. Price 25c. Sold by all druggists.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces - Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S.-James R. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after aking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain on Anglo-French Relations.

THE WHOLE NILE VALLEY.

Manchester, Nov. 16.-At the National Liberal-Unionist conference here, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, made his first public speech since his return from the United States. Mr. Chamberlain, who was much more explicit on the subject of the Anglo-French relations than any of his colleagues in the cabinet, said it was the hope of every friend of peace that the French withdrawal from Fashoda is indicative of their acceptance of British control of the whole valley of the Nile, regarding which there cannot be any discussion whatever.

UNFRIENDLY ACTS.

Going on to recite a series of unfriendly acts perpetrated by France in various parts of the globe during the last ten or fifteen years, he said: "If better relations are to be established, it will be necessary for French politicians to abandon tactics whose object has been to hamper and embarrass British policy even in quarters where the French have no interests to protect. After referring to the thorough and complete sympathy so noticeable between the motherland and her colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, continued as follows: What is of equal importance, our American kinsfolk-(loud cheers)-have begun to understand us better. If we have had differences in the past, I believe they have arisen entirely from the want of a proper mutual understanding, but now the American people know that in the late trouble our hearts went out to them-(cheers)-and they heartily reciprocate our good feelings. I shall not attempt to predict what may follow this better feeling, but I may at least hope that in the future the ::nderstanding of which I have spoken may be perfected, and that in the face of that understanding we two may be able to guarantee peace and civiliza-tion to the world." (Prolonged cheers,)

DECAPITATED

John Breen Instantly Killed at the G. T. R. Depot This Morning.

Fell Under the Chicago Express While Attempting to Board the Train.

John M. Breen, the well-known butcher, formerly of 733 Richmond street, was instantly killed at the G. T. R. depot at 3:20 this morning. The unfortunate man about two months ago sold out his business. This morning he went to the depot, and purchased a ticket for Windsor. Mr. Breen remained in the refreshment room until the Chicago express began to pull out. The frost on the platform was heavy, and foothold was not of the best. Coming hurriedly out of the refreshment room, Breen made a speedy dash the train. He clutched at the railing of the fourth coach, when he elipped and fell beneath the moving train. His head was competely severed from the body, and the skull smashed to a pulp. The right shoulder was also badly smashed. The body was taken charge of by Night Constable Regan, who telephon ed for Coroner Flock. The coroner had the body conveyed to Hinton's morgue, where it was prepared for burial. An inquest was deemed unnecessary. He leaves a mother and four sisters sack and Up the Matterhorn Mountain," was the title of a lecture deliv-Fashoda incident only serves to dis- ered by Dr. Eugene May, of Washington, D. C., at the Auditorium last night. As a lecturer, Dr. May is superb. For nearly two hours he held his audience spell-bound with a story of his Alpine experiences. The personality of the lecturer is pleasing. His voice is sympathetic, his gestures easy, and his delivery is amazingly fluent. The lecturer took his hearers on an extensive peregrination over the continent to Switzerland. He passed through the most famous tunnel of he world, cut through rocks at an expense of $45,000,000, where 2,500 men worked without cessation for seven and a half years, and where hundreds of lives and housands of horses were lost. His description of the country was infatuating. "Switzerland, the beautiful, that land of William Tell, by many called the playground of Europe, open from June to September-a pano ramic casino of splendor, to which people crowd for amusement from every part of the world." With an ice axe, alpenstock and knapsack, a coil of rope and two guides, the lecturer ascended the perilous Alpine peaks. He drew intensely interesting pictures of Mount Blanc, 15,732 feet above the sea level; Monte Rosa, 15,150 feet; Mont Carvin, 14,835, and the Matterhorn, 8,feet-green pastures, prodigious rocks, the beautiful Lake Lucerne, gleaming glaciers-the blue above, beneath and on every hand the ice-cold and sea-green, glistening with a yellow light, the sinister gurgling from the abyss, where the raging Alpine torrents roll into cataract after cataract; where the fragmentary rainbow is seen above and the white foam beneath, all roaring like thunder in its awful splendor. The customs of the people, the charges against him, together with a government, the perils of ascensionists, bad record. Wilson broke into Mrs. avalanches, whirlwinds and storms were vividly described with many of the pathetic stories told by his guides. The lecturer admitted that he was several times baffled by the names of the villages, almost as picturesque as the places. One of these he had never heard pronounced, but it was spelled thus: Zweitelestescheninon.

REV. G. B. SAGE WILL REMAIN

Declines the Call to Arva Church-Decision Announced at the Vestry Meeting Last Night.

Rev. G. B. Sage will remain as pastor of St. George's Church, West London, having declined to accept the call to St. John's Church, Arva. This decision has greatly pleased his parishioners, among whom he is very popular.

A meeting of the vestry was held last night to consider the resignation, but the churchwardens were greatly surprised when they heard that owing to their unanimous action on Monday night the rector had resolved to remain. Mr. Sage was present, and he thanked the congregation most heartily for their kind expressions. He said the matter of resigning did not dawn upon him in all its fullness until Sun-day morning, when he took the notices to the pulpit. It was his intention to hand in his resignation in order that | it could be accepted at the vestry meeting, the move being prompted by the feeling that it might be better to have a new pastor for the church. During his ten years in West London he had received nothing but the greatest kindness, and he therefore very warm place in his heart for all the people. The action of the congregation was very pleasing to him, and he would be pleased to remain among them if his services were longer desired.

The announcement was received with applause. Thomas F. Kingsmill, jun., offered a resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Wm. Cotton, and adopted unanimously, to the effect that the congregation appreciated the self-sacrifice of the pastor in declining the call to St. Johns, and bound themselves to support Mr. more strongly than ever in the future. The canvass for increased subscriptions towards Mr. Sage's salary has met with very hearty response.

Death of Mrs. C. Shaver, of Westmin. ster-Revival Meetings at Muncey Good Prices for Cattle.

Mr. Will Collins, of Thorndale, is on the sick list. Seven cars of apples and two of cattle were shipped from Ilderton the past week. Mr. Jos. H. Patrick, of Ilderton.

shipped a car of Lincoln sheep to Wisconsin Friday. Revival meetings are now being held in the Muncey Methodist Church. They are largely attended. Bro. John B. Noah, a Moravian reserve carpenter, is putting up a fine frame house for Mr. Jacob Polson, Muncey.

Mr. Davis, con. 5, Thorndale, shot a very fine specimen of the eagle family, measuring seven feet from tip to tip of wings, recently.

Good prices are realized at the auction sale in Ilderton on Wednesday and Friday. Mr. Buchanan, of Ingersoll, sold 25 head of cows. They averaged $28 apiece.

Duncan, the second son of Alex. Mc-Tavish, of Ilderton, was laid to rest in Ivan Cemetery Saturday, Nev. 12. Deceased was 22 years of age, and had been ill about three weeks with typhoid fever. Mr. A. M. Hunt has sold the live stock and implements of Mr. Simeon Cornell, at Melrose. The prices realized were good, especially in cattle, cows ranging from $30 up, yearlings $20 and over. Sale proceeds amounted to upwards of $1,000. Mr Cornell is retiring from farming.

have been re-engaged as teachers in the Thorndale village school for 1899. Mr. A. G. Hannan, saddler of Thorndale, met with a distressing accident a few days ago. He was engaged polishing leather with a piece of glass when it splintered, a small piece lodging in his eye. He will have to consult a specialist. Mrs. Marion Shaver, wife of Mr. Charles Shaver, con. 8, Westminster, died Monday night after a lingering illness, in the 56th year of her age. Besides her husband she leaves one son, who lives at home. The deceased born in Hamilton and went to Westminster 44 years ago, where she has since resided. The funeral takes place today (Wednesday) to Hunt's Cemetery.

The sad and untimely death of Percy Charlton, of Ilderton, occurred Friday night at his father's residence, 12th concession. Deceased, who had his feet badly mangled in the cylinder of a threshing machine on the 3rd inst., was thought to be fast recovering from the injuries till Thursday, when symptoms of lockjaw began to show, and, despite all that could be done by medical aid to alleviate his sufferings, it was of no avail, and he passed away late Friday night. was 19 years of age, was well liked, and a general favorite among his companions. Numerous bouquets and wreaths of flowers from his friends and relatives showed only in a slight degree the manner in which he was esteemed. Besides his parents, three sisters and a brother are left to mourn his untimely demise. The funeral was on Sunday to Littlewood, and was attended by 150 rigs, which followed the procession to the grave to pay their last mark of respect to the dead. The Robinson (Ill.) Constitution says:

Mr. James Henry McRoberts, the wellknown stock importer, died at his home in Robinson, Ill., at 9:20 o'clock Thursday evening, Oct. 27, 1898. He spent an hour or two that evening at the home of his friend and neighbor. Dr. L. E. Stephens. Bidding the doc tor good-night, he returned home and retired, and in a short time was strick-en with apoplexy. Mr. McRoberts came from Lucan, Canada, to live in our city about three years ago, and he and his family became members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Deceased was born in London township, Ontario, Canada, Aug. 21, 1840. He was married to Jane Ann Armitage on Aug. 26, 1867. Five children were born to them, viz., Mary Jane, Susanna Agnes, William Wesley, Alva Alexander and Minnie May. Of these Mary Jane and William Wesley preceded their father to the grave. Mr. ceded their father to the grave. McRoberts was raised to the degree of Master Mason at Lucan, Ontario, in young manhood, and at the time of his death was a member of Robinson Ladge, No. 250.

A BRAW NICHT

Great Trio of Orators for St. Andrew's Banquet-Messrs. Ross, Johnston and Clark.

The promoters of St. Andrew's banquet have resolved that it shall outshine all predecessors. A brilliant trio of orators-Hon. G. W. Ross, Rev. Robert Johnston and Rev. W. J. Clark -have accepted invitations to respond to toasts. Mr. Ross will speak on "The Day We Celebrate"; Mr. Clark on "Scottish Literature," and Mr. Johnston on "Canada." A fine song programme has also been arranged to which Mr. Skinner, Mr. McDonald and Col. Gartshore will contribute. banquet will be held as usual, at the City Hotel.

POLITICAL POINTS

The North Waterloo election case at Osgoode Hall on Tuesday was adjourned until Monday next. Mr. John Yeo, M. P., East Prince, has been appointed a senator to fill the vacancy in the representation of Prince Edward Island. There are now six vacancies for the House of Commons. West Lambton is vacant through the appointment of Mr. Lister to a judgeship, West Huron because of the appointment of the late Mr. M. C. Cameron to the lieutenantgovernorship of the Northwest Territories, and North Simcoe, owing to the death of the late Mr. Dalton McCarthy. In Quebec there are two vacancies Bagot, by the death of Dupont, and Montmagny by the appointment of Choquette to the bench. In Prince Edward Island, Yeo was appointed to the

The referee awarded the plaintiff $200, but declined to assess damages for certain years on the ground that such damages came within the arbitration clauses of the municipal act. The appellant contended that the alleged bylaw was void for want of jurisdiction is the defendant municipality to pass it, and that she was entitled to recover as if there had been no bylaw, and the defendants were trespassers. Held, that the bylaw under which the award was made was completely void, and what was done under it not warranted. Appeal allowed with costs, and award increased by $80. McEvoy, London, and A. ## LORD-MAYOR OF LONDON

The "Mad Fakir" Creating a Ris- How He and His Colleagues Are Elected in the Metropolis.

> Ancient Rites-An Older Institution Than Royalty or the Peerage.

> Wednesday, Nov. 9, is always Lord Mayor's Day in London, when the new Lord Mayor is stalled to serve his fellow-citizens, the guilds and the aldermen for another year.

The city of London, over which the Lord Mayor is elected to rule, is not great metropolitan London, the largest city in the world, but a very in-significant part of it so far as territory and population is concerned. It lies between the town of London and Westminster Abbey and contains only 668 square acres and a population of about 50,000 people. It is divided into 26 wards, some of which cover but a few acres of ground, the largest of them having but very few voters, and these are known only to the ward clerks. Each ward elects an alderman, who serves for life, and who in due time becomes Lord Mayor, with a salary of £10,000 and an immense amount of patronage.

In order to be a citizen of London you must be a member of one of the numerous guilds or associations which are at the foundatin of the municipal government. No person who did not belong to one of these guilds could carry on business in the old time with-in the walls of London. They were the original of modern labor organizations. If anyone wanted to sell fish he was obliged to join the fishmongers' guild, or if he wanted to make and sell clothes he must join the tailors' guild. And so of the mercers, the goldsmiths, the drapers, the blacksmiths, and all the rest. As time went on these guilds became very rich and powerful, often obtaining additional monopolies from the English kings or from parliament in return for loans of money, and these privileges and monopolies they have defended and held on to with all their might and skill.

To be given "the freedom of the city" by the guilds of London or of any British or Irish city is a very different thing from what is called "the freedom of the city" in the United States or Canada. Here it is of little or no significance, and if it means anything it is that some certain access of hospitality is accorded to the city's guests present on some particular occasion of jollity or junketing. But when the freedom of the city of London is granted to any person he receives a regular grant of citizenship on parchment, which gives him all the privileges of the particular guild or guilds making the grant. He is a freeman of the Paris, Nov. 16.—The Spanish commissioners, at the joint session this af- a fishmonger, a merchant or a goldsmith, as the case may be.
Of course these grants have long been merely honorary when conferred upon distinguished persons. When Gen. Grant was given the "freedom of London in a gold box," on the occasion of his visit to England after his presidency, he received the honor with a parchment in an actual gold box, and Lord Kitchener received the same distinction the other day.

The manner of electing a Lord Mayor is as follows: On Michaelmas dayhave not already held the office Lord (Mayor. These nominations are submitted to the board of aldermen, who elect one of them as Lord Mayor, usually the senior in citiec, though once in a while there will be a contest, when the senior alderman for any reason is unpopular with the board. But, as a rule, it is a cut and dried affair, the senior taking the office in rotation as the years pass.

The 9th of November is Lord Mayor's Day, when all London turns out to see the Lord Mayor's show. It is always a great occasion, in which the populace delights.

The most ancient royal houses of Europe and oldest peerages are but of yesterday when compared with the chief magistracy of London. Before Edward the Confessor reigned it was old, for the city of London dates back to a time when the Britons still possessed the land. In that long line there are many distinguished and some historic names-men who well knew how to defend the rights and privileges of the city. There was Sir William Wal-worth, who arrested the rebel Wat Tyler, and there was Whittington, whose adventures are known to every child. William Beckford, the father of the author of "Vathek," withstood the encroachments of royalty itself, and the still more famous Jack Wilkes resisted parliament.

THE QUEEN OF THE SEASON

Lady Vivien shrugged her shoulders, but complied:

You must take this as an earnest of my good intentions."

It was the first sting of servitude, this offer of that coin. Cressida had extracted it from her porte-monnaie, and was holding it towards Marie, whose cheeks took the deep hue of the damask rose, then became white with suppressed resentment. Involuntarily she glanced as Vivier, as much as to

"You can take Miss Smith's gift," said her mistress, who saw the appealing look, but without understanding it. "Only be careful not to impose on her

"I prefer to wait until I have earned any such rewards," said Marie, try-ing to speak with proud humility. "Until I have done so, I must beg to decline mademoiselle's money.'

"Lor', now!" exclaimed Cressida, "you are the first person to whom I ever offered a half-crown that refused it. Perhaps she doesn't think it enough, eh, Vivien?" she added in a whisper. "These French people have such expensive notions, haven't they?" But Marie glided away ostensibly to look for some ribbon her lady required, and in another moment her rejection of the proffered gift was forgotten except by herself.

CHAPTER XIV.

"Now, Cressy, what is it?" demanded Vivien. "The second bell will soon ring and I have my toilet to finish. So say your say, and begone."
This reminder put Miss Smith in a pleasant flutter. She was the heiress of a large amount of funded property, besides some coffee and sugar plantations in the West Indies, her birthplace, and where her childhood had been spent. She was short, dark, muddy-complexioned, and much too plump for grace or elegance, but so happily ous of her personal def that they rarely troubled her. Like the ivy, she was wont to cling to any stronger nature with which she came in contact. Until she came to England, Nanna, formerly her nurse, and now promoted to the post of maid to her nursling, had been her chief friend and confidante. Now the countess, by a little artful petting and flattery, had acquired great influence over her, and was regarded by the credulous West Indian as the best and cleverest of

As to opinions, Cressida Smith had none of her own, and it was one of Aymer's amusements to make her unconsciously veer from one point to another, and contradict herself in the most outrageous manner. But on the other hand, she had the sweetest of tempers, was generous and obliging, if Vivien sometimes despised, she could not help liking, the fat, good-natured girl, who, on her part, regardher beautiful friend with mingled affection and adoration.

"Oh! Vivien, do help me out of my difficulty! Your lovely hair! If mine was but like it! Couldn't I have it dyed?" and Cressida contorted her features to get a fuller view of tresses that obstinately refused to lie smooth "Don't be absurd, Cressy. Now, Lady Esselyn, as a rule, superintended the attire of her ward, and prevented any displays of the barbaric ove of bright colors in which Cressida lelighted; but occasionally the young lady found opportunities for indulging ner own tastes, and she stood before Vivien inviting her admiration for a dress of dazzling blue, trimmed elaborately with frills and flounces of the

She could not see, poor girl, the unpleasant effect of the gay color against her swarthy skin, nor guess how the elaborate trimmings of the stiff skirts gave her a judicrous resemblance to a balloon; and it was with a complacent smile she exclaimed:

"Oh! Cressy, it's hideous!" burst from the lips of Lady Vivien. The disconcerted Cressida looked from the speaker to the glass, then to Vivien again. Was she jesting, or was the shrewd Nanna right when she said that Lady Esselyn was so eager to secure her darling mistress for the earl that she kept her in the background as much as she could. The thought gave her courage to utter a protest against such a sweeping denunciation.

"I don't know why you say this. My dress in all respects is precisely like the one that pretty fair-haired Mrs. Denison wore when last we saw her.

I am two years younger than she is. It may be a little too bright, but Nanna didn't think so."

"I wish you would dress in black, or the soberer, darker tints!" said Vivien, hurrying over her own toilet, and rue-fully surveying her the while, and wondering how she could be so obtuse.

"But you don't," the young lady objected, "and you know I like to look like you, because everyone says your taste in dress is excellent. There's the last bell. Oh, Viva! what am I to do? Now I come to look at myself again I'm afraid this dress doesn't quite suit me, and I can't go down to be laughed at, but Nanna will sulk if I ask her to change it."

"Marie, cannot you suggest any thing?" asked her young mistress. "For goodness sake don't begin to cry, Cressy, or your nose will be red and your lips swelled. Shall I make an apology for you? Then you can come downstairs presently."

"And lose my dinner! I can't endure half-cold chicken sent up on a tray. Yes, it's vulgar, I know, but I always enjoy my dinner. Do wait for me while I scramble into something else. What shall I put on Viva, dear, and how am I to manage Nanna?"

'Can't you suggest anything?" said Vivien again to her maid, who had been critically surveying the agitated heiress. Marie nodded, and coming forward, scissors in hand, ruthlessly unripped frill after frill, then she draped over the silk a black lace shawl so as to form a tunic, both graceful and effec-

In Woman's Interest

About Cosmetics.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in the November Woman's Home Companion, discusses "Man's Limitations," when he attempts to discourse on the secrets of beauty. She says: "To the average man the word 'cosmetics' has the effect of a red rag shaken in the face of a bull. Yet the word does not mean paint or pigment. Trace it back and you will find it signifies a preparation to restore harmony. This is the age of specialists. In days gone by whatever evil befell the human body the family physician was expected to relieve. Now we have the dentist, the surgeon, the oculist, the aurist, the pedicure, and still others skilled in the treatment of scalp and skin. A good complexion is the background of a woman's beauty. Nature's most beautiful grouping of feature is ruined if the background loses its tone, or becomes seamed or epotted. To avoid such disaster with the flight of years requires knowledge and patience. There are specialists in this line who are just as expert as the dentist or the oculiet. No man is in-dignant or disgusted if his wife consuits the dentist. He does not tell her that a cheerful disposition will preserve her teeth. Yet the complexion feels the ravages of indigestion, time and inheritance quite as much as the teeth or eyes, and needs quite as skillful treatment. Yet the majority of ladies must keep their methods a secret because of the intolerance and unreason of man upon this subject.

"If a woman goes abroad with visible rouge on her cheeks, powder on her nose, or pencil-marks under her eyes, a man has a right to utter a protest and voice his disgust. But he never stops at that. He immediately proceeds to air his ancient theories about a cheerful disposition and soup and water as the only cosmetic proper for a respectable woman to use. Meantime the deadly scented soap-cake has ravaged more complexions than any pigment on the

The New Commandments.

Matrimony has ten commandments. These were studied out by Theodore Parker shortly before the day of his wedding. They took the form of ten beautiful resolutions, which he inscribed in his journ. They are as follows: 1. Never. except for the best reasons, to oppose my wife's will. 2. To discharge all duties for her sake freely. 3. Never to scold.

Never to look cross at her 5. Never worry her with commands.

To promote her piety. To bear her burdens.

8. To overlook her foibles 9. To save, cherish and forever defend her.

10. To remember her always in my prayers. Thus, God willing, we shall be blessed.

Royal Apartments.

The private apartments of the Emperor and Empress of Austria in Vienna were separated by a large library so filled with palme, ferns and shrubs in full bloom, emerging from great bronze and silver boxes, that it closely resembled a conservatory. The kaiser's bedroom is austerely simple; a camp bed covered with military blue cloth, a priedieu surmounted by a large crucifix, a superb painting representing the Blessed Virgin, and another the empress and her children, being about all it contains. Far more luxurious was Elizabeth's sleeping chamber, but still the cominating note was peculiarly are of soft creamy whitness, that of the finest velvet and Alencon laces; opposite the low, narrow white lacquered bed stands a matchless alabaster statue representing a weeping Niobe. The pedestal of this exquisite masterpiece smothered in banks of delicately foliaged green plants, and was lighted all night, whether the empress was there or not, by tiny opalescent globes containing perfumed candles. During her long insomnias the poor bereft mother found a sort of comfort in contemplating this, her counterpart, and used to lie with her eyes fixed on the white form so pathetically pure and beautiful.

Marking the Waist Line. Everyone doesn't know how to make a belt, as simple as it seems. Satin ribbon is often used, which is an artistic mistake, because the material is too stiff to fold itself easily into the figure. Whatever else a woman wants about her gown, she wants an arrangement which makes the waist look suppliant. A man expressed it by saying: "I do Po like a woman's figure where the waist isn't attached." One wants the belt line to curve in, then out. To be an integral part of the body, not a distinct shape that is brought out or accentuated by a stiff material. "To make the line of the waist too significantly," says an artist, "is to hear the thumb always in a scale. "Any musician will unmake They wear satin ribbon that doesn't fold well, stiff leather that doesn't yield, boned girdles that are too ungainly in their shape. A woman who knows how will make her belt of something plastic and soft, that folds and fits and sways into the curves that swing down from the ribs. By this she also reduces the seeming of her waist.

I have found taffeta silk cut on the bias and securely stitched, say three times, about the edges, the most graceful and satisfactory of belts.

They follow every undulation of the waist they give with every movement of the body, and make the dividing line between the skirt and bodice a graceful part of the costumes, a meeting from one into the other, as it were, and not a noticeable line of division. This explanation is intended to put into a system that others may follow what every dressmaker of taste knows full well. She knows that there is no more beautiful curve in a wo-man's body than that of the waist. It baffles artists, defies imitation, is the quintessence of grace and pose-when So the costumers endeavor to make it or develop it or accentuate it, and they know that nothing so destroys all hope as an ungainly belt, one that is not suppliant, that does not melt into the

This season has done a great deal to teach women that art. Leather belts have become almost obsolete. Of all the ribbons, taffeta is the best for the purpose.

The Proper Way.

Chops, birds and dry fish are all most delicate when broiled in paper. Use heavy white note paper spread with olive oil or butter. When the erticle to be broiled is laid therein, salted and peppered, the edges of the paper case should be turned over several times like a little hem, and pinched together close to the meat. The paper will char a long while before igniting, and the contents will be basted in their own juices. The time required for broiling in paper is usually about eight minutes. When the paper is wellbrowned the contents will be done to a turn-juicy, delicate and digestible for even the stomach of an invalid. Serve in its envelope, which conserves the heat and juices to the moment of eating. The large fillet of chicken broiled in this way is delicious and easy of assimilation.

Orange and Macaroon Pudding.

Soak one-fourth pound almond machalf cup sugar and the grated ye.ow rind of an orange. Do not gate a bit of the white, as it spoils the flavor. Stir carefully into the macaroons and sugar, add the juice of two oranges. Pour into a buttered mold or tin pail and set on a stand or ring in a kettle of boiling water. Keep boiling steadily for an hour; add only boiling water to keep covered. Serve hot with orange sauce.

Orange Sauce.

Two heaping teaspoons corn starch, dissolved in water, with boiling water poured on to make a smooth, thick paste; add a beaten egg, a heaping teaspoon butter and a small cup sugar. When cooked, add the juice of two oranges. Serve hot.

VICEROY

A Brilliant Farewell Speech by Lord Curzon.

His Exalted Conception of His New Duties.

Says India Had Always Attracted Him -Reasons for Accepting the Office.

The Eton dinner to the Earl of Minto, governor-general-designate of Canada, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, viceroy-designate of India, and the Rev. J. T. C. Welldon, bishop-designate of Calcutta, took place on the evening of Oct. 29 at the Cafe Monico, London, England. Lord Rosebery presided, and many of the most distinguished men of Great Britain were present. The address of Lord Curzon, in reply to the toast of his health, is worth reproducing as a good specimen of English oratory:

I have often seen during the past few weeks my aceptance of this office attributed to a variety of causes-to personal ambition, to the disappointment of parliamentary hopes, to failing health. (Laughter.) My own experience of public life, such as it has been, leads me to think that the simplest explanation of the phenomenon of human action-human beings being, more or less, always cast in the same derstand how comprehensive this is. mould—is apt to be the most correct,

But it is a mistake the majority of and the recondite is often the fallacimould-is apt to be the most correct, ous as well as the obscure. (Laughter.) Is it permissible, therefore, for me to say in this company of old school-fellows and of personal friends, that whatever may have been the views of those who thought me worthy of this office, I gladly accepted it, because I love India, its people, its hist) tory, its government, the absorbing mysteries of its civilization and its life? I think it was first while I was at Eaton that a sense of its overwhelming importance dawned upon my mind. There we were perpetually invited by a body of assiduous and capable mentors-I need hardly say I allude to the Eton masters (laughter)-and we responded with greater or less reluctance to the appeal, to contemplat the ma-jesty, the law, and the living influence of the empire of Rome. We had at Eaton, and I hope it still flourishes, an institution called the literary sociof which, I believe, my friend Welldon was the first president, and in which I afterwards had the honor to follow in his footsteps. To this society, from time to time, came down eminent men to preach to us about the wider world outside. Among those distinguished persons who came in my day was Sir James Fitz-James Stephen, but just returned from India—the father of my dear friend Jim Stephen, the "J. K. S." of the literary world, that brilliant but meteoric intellect that all too soon plunged into the abyss and was lost from view. (Hear, hear.) Sir James Stephen came down to Eton and told the boys that listened to him, of whom I was one, that there was in that ancient continent an empire more populous, more amazing, and more beneficent than that of Rome; that the rulers of that great dominion were drawn from the men of our own people; that some of them might perhaps in the future be drawn from the ranks of the boys who were listening to his words. Ever since that day, and still more since my first visit to India in 1887, the fascination, and, if I may say so, the sacredness of India, has grown upon me until I have come to think that it is the highest honor that can be placed upon any subject of the Queen that, in any capacity, high or low, he should devote such energies as he may possess to its services. (Cheers.) But may I carry my suggestion one step further? May I not say that the growth of the ideal of duty has been the most salient feature in the history of our relations with India during the past hundred years, and still more during the reign of the present Queen? (Cheers.) A century ago India, in the hands of the East India Company, was regarded as a mercantile investment, the business of whose promoters and agents was to return as large dividends as possible, and the larger, of course, aroons in a pint of water until soft. the better, to the pockets of their Beat four eggs without separating with shareholders at home. In the course of these proceedings many of those men amassed great wealth, almost beyond the dreams of avarice-wealth, the display of which was apt to be vulgar and the source of which was often impure. Indian posts, low as well as high, were the spoils of political patronage at home, and were exclusively distributed according to the narrowest and most selfish exigencies of party polemics at home. We have only to look to the treatment of Warren Hastings to realize how little the welfare of India was thought of in comparison with the loss or gain to Whigs and Tories in London. I do not say that we have altogether extricated India from the perils and the

> HIS CONCEPTION OF DUTY. What, then, is the conception of his duty that an outgoing viceroy should set before himself? I have no new or startling definition to give, but the light in which it presents itself to my mind is this. It is his duty, first and foremost, to represent the authority of the Queen-Empress, whose name, revered more than the name of any other living sovereign by all races and classes, from Cape Comorin to the Himalayas. is in India both a bond of union and a symbol of power, and that cling about that name, the conviction that the justice of her government is inflexible, that its honor is stainless, and that its mercy is in proportion to its strength. (Cheers.) Secondly, he should try to remember that all its people are not the sons of our own race, and that it is only by regard for their feelings, by respect for their prejudice—I will even go so far as to say by preference to their scruples

Strathroy, Ont., for burial. -The Brantford Courier says: It is understood that Rev. W. J. Clark, of London, will receive a call to Zion Church, to succeed the late Rev. Dr. Cochrane. The congregations are unanimous in the choice of Mr. Clark, and if he can be prevailed upon to accept he will undoubtedly receive the for-mal call. It is likely he will be privately interviewed in the meantime with a view to ascertaining whether he is inclined to accept or not. Mr. Clark has refused several flattering during the past year or two. Should the reverend gentleman express his willingness to accept, a congregational meeting will have to be held to make the call a formal one, and at the December meeting of the Paris presbytery the matter would have to come up and be forwarded to the London presbytery, and then to Mr. Clark personally. It would therefore be some time before any acceptance could be made

Rev. Walter Moffatt, pastor of Chalmers Presbyterian Church, was last night tendered a hearty reception by the members and friends of the congretion on his return from a visit to the homeland. Mr. Bapty was called upon to act as chairman. An address of wel-come was presented by Miss Grace Stil-son on behalf of the senior Christian Endeavor Society, and an address with a beautiful palm, with handsome vase, by Miss Kathleen Rutherford. and Master W. Michael, on behalf of the junior Endeavorers. Mr. Milliken conveyed the good wishes of the session and board of management. Mr. Moffatt suitably replied, and handed over a check to the treasurer for $334, this being the sum he had collected among friends in Scotland to reduce the mortgage on the church property. Rev. E. Sawers, of Westminster, also addressed the gathering, while the choir, under the leadership of Mr. Forbes, rendered an anthem and other suitable music during the evening. Refreshments were served by the members of > London district ladies' auxiliaries and mission circles met in quarterly session at Dundas Center Church yesterday afternoon and evening. The chair was occupied by Mrs. Dickson, president of the Dundas Street Church auxiliary. There was a very large attendance of the representatives of the different auxiliaries and circles. Rev. Mr. Ford conducted the opening devotional exercises. An address was then given by Mrs. Robert Greene, of West London, on "Mite Boxes," followed by an interesting paper on "Our Duty to the Heathen," by Miss Crozier. Reports were read from the following circles: First Methodist, Dundas Center, Wellington Street, Askin Street, West London, Centennial, Colborne, Lambeth, Thorndale, Arva and The Grove, and all showed increased funds, and also greater interest in the work. Mrs. Gordon Wright gave a number of interesting incidents in connection with the recent board meeting held in Kingston. She also spoke of the death of Mrs. (Dr.) Roseburg, of Hamilton, and of the late Mr. W. W. Ross, husband of Mrs. Ross, president of the

Mrs. (Rev.) Ford introduced a resolution, seconded by Mrs. Fowler, to discontinue the quarterly meetings, and hold a convention once a year. The resolution carried unanimously.

The annual gathering will be held in Askin Street, the date to be fixed by the district organizer, Mrs. Evans. Mrs. J. H. Tennent was called upon to speak on "The Blessing of Giving." Her remarks were listened to with deep

THE AGREEMENT WAS ADOPTED

Hospital Question Now Left With the County.

City Makes Some Slight Amendments, but No Material Changes - The Mayor Greatly Disappointed for a Few Minutes.

The city council last night, besides discussing municipal reform, adopted, with slight amendment, the county's proposed agreement for the care of pauper patients in the Victoria Hospital. City Solicitor Meredith and City Auditor Jewell were present.

Ald. Carrothers asked if the city could take the $15,000 from the county without first obtaining legislation.

It was nothing but a mortgage, said Ald. O'Meara.

The city solicitor said the question of providing the money without legislation was one for the county to consider, not the city. To accept the money in this way would be legal, though unusual. The county would no doubt ask for the ratification of the agreement by legislation, and the city's liability would then be established.

Mr. Jewell, in answer to Ald. Winnett, stated that the cost per patient per day last year was 65 cents under the present agreement, and he estimated the cost under the proposed agreement to be about 78 cents per day. This estimate was based on last year's expenses, and although these would be increased per patient, in the new building, Mr. Jewell understood the trust recognized that they would have to increase the fees from paid patients, which would be an offset to the in-creased expense. So 78 cents would probably be the average to come. There could be no doubt, said Ald. Greenlees, the building would cost $15,-000 or $20,000 to complete, and the city could not do better than accept the On motion of Ald. McPhillips, the first clause that the county provide the city with $15,000 at 31/2 per cent, was adopted on the following division.

Yeas—Ald. Taylor, Belton, McPhillips, Douglass, Jolly, Winnett, Graham, Hunt, Gerry and Greenlees—10.

Nays—Ald. O'Meara, Carrothers, Cooper, Dreaney, Nutkins and McCallum—6 lum-6

At the city solicitor's suggestion, chause 3 was amended to simplify bookkeeping, charging the 75 cents per day absolute, irrespective of trust fund

Ald. O'Meara wanted clause 4 to provide for the termination of the agreement at the expiration of two instead of five years, but the clause was adopted unchanged. At Ald. Winnett's suggestion clause of the agreement possible if the gov-ernment grant be withdrawn in part, The last clause provided that the expense of securing legislation should be borne jointly. The cost would be $250 or $300, in all, Mr. Meredith said.

5 was amended to make the termination

Ald. Carrothers said it would be better to raise the whole amount needed— $15,000 would not be enough—then they could get a premium. Ald. Nutkins, seconded by Ald. Graham, moved the county pay the whole The clause was also defeated by a tie vote.

"Rather than see the whole agreement defeated for this little matter, I would pay the city's share myself," said the mayor.

Ald. Greenlees said the council had swallowed the camel and was straining at the gnat. Ald. Graham would change his vote to year sooner than block the agree-ment. He had voted against the clause

Ald. Jolly moved that the matter be left to the joint committees to arrange. The mayor ruled that a two-thirds vote was not required and the motion carried 10 to 6.

Moore Farmer Kicked in the Head by a Horse-Child Burned to Death.

Brigden, Nov. 16 .- Thomas Duncan, a farmer living two miles northwest of here, on the sixth line of Moore, went out to do his stable work at noon on Monday. As he was longer than usual in returning, his wife went to see what was delaying him, and found him lying under one of the horses' feet unconscious, having been kicked in the head, badly fracturing the skull, and receiving other serious injuries. Dr. Fisher, of this place, assisted by Dr. Wilkinson, did what they could to relieve the unfortunate man's sufferings. He now lies in a very critical condition. Duncan is about 40 years of age, and has a wife and young family.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Lauda Gohier, a 5-year-old child, residing with its parents of 107 Beaubien street, was burned to death on Saturday. Her clothes caught fire from some burning paper.

Taik About Blankets

There are poor blankets. There are good blankets. Some blankets are made from pure cotton, whilst some are made from waste cotton. There are shoddy blankets-made from such poor material that they are dear at any price. Neither wear nor warmth-simply a delusion. There are union blankets and there are all-wool blankets. There is a great difference in wool blankets-the quality varies according to the quality of wool used and the experience of the carder, spinner, weaver, comber and finisher. Practice makes perfect. It requires years of close study to produce a perfect article—even from the best materials.

If you want a pair of cotton blankets we get as low as 50c and go upwards, according to size and weight. Shoddy blankets we don't keep. No, madame-for those you must try another store. Today we can give you some wonderful values in large size, well-made union blankets, made to sell at $3 25 pair; the season is getting advanced and now the price 15 $2 50 the pair.

All-Wool Blanket to talk about—a Wool Blanket to remember us by; pure in every respect; durable-'twill be in the household ten to fifteen years hence. The price so low-$3, $3 50, $4, $4 50, according to weight and size. The manufacturer expected to get more for them-it is your ad-
