Expresses His Views on the Wall Street Situation--'The Inevitable Has Come."

New York, May 10.—Russell Sage, the wall, but that is only an incident in when seen last night at his home, and the fight. asked his opinion of the stock market,

"I have been associated intimately with transactions in Wall street for half a century, and I can say truly that the last two days have been the most remarkable I have ever seen. Fictitious and inflated values have prevailed, and the smash that was inevitable has come. I knew it would come and pre-

Jas. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railroad, when seen concerning the struggle in the stock market, said:

"When I have spoken at all I have I have had nothing at all to do with 1 these market transactions. I have been busy all day long buying locomotives for the road. I have not been in the street, and I have neither bought nor sold a share of Northern Pacific stock." A banker who participated in the movement to relieve the market this evening made this statement to the Associated Press: "We loaned $1,000,000 in the street after 10 o'clock today, some of it as low as 6 per cent, and feel that the crisis is over. I don't believe that a single large house will go down. "The banks acted together today, but there was no conference or agreement about it. We placed about $16, 000,000 in the aggregate, and the moral "Wall street could not stand many days like this, but, as it is, the storm is weathered and the situation will improve from the opening tomorrow.'

Today's Developments.

MILLIONS ROLLING IN. Chicago banks shipped $20,000,000 of York close, the better feeling became currency to New York last night as a result of the fall in stocks. Urgent demand for margins had been sent from New York, and much of the money was for this purpose. Some of it was the result of investment by the buying of stocks and bonds by Chicago men yes terday. It was a day of unprecedented excitement in Chicago. Everybody who could not produce promptly all the margin demanded was ruthlessly margin d closed out.

SOME LUCKY ONES. New York, May 10 .- The Times says:

Richard W. Miles, of Meriden, Conn., was one of the few happy speciators in the transactions in Wall street yes terday. Some time ago, on the advice of a friend, he bought 100 shares of Northern Pacific at 84c. All through the excitement of the last few days Mr. Miles closely watched the course of the market. He offered to sell once at less than 350 and was laughed at; but when the uproar was at its height, some broker who had learned of his possession paid $700 a share for it, and Mr. Miles

Another lucky man was Peter Mc-Queen, of Schenectady, who had 100 shares, for which he paid $9,500. He deposited these with a loan and trust company. A few days ago Mr. Mc-Queen sustained an injury in a rail-road accident in Michigan, and was taken to a private hospital. On Tues-day and Wednesday he was bombard-ed with telegrams from the trust comed with telegrams from the trust company, asking permission to loan the stock over night. Mr. McQueen wearled of this, and early in the day telegraphed: "Sell the stock outright." ders were obeyed, and he obtained $700

New York, May 9.—Jacob H. Schiff in Wall street thoroughly disorganized the American section here. The stock market opened this morning with wild fluctuations. Speir Bros. and the Morgans reported New York buying with early London realizations, which afterwards were mingled with London and continental buying. J. Pierpont Morgan, jun., said to a representative of the Associated Press: 'The situation looks a little better. I would not be surprised if the buying continued, though no one can tell what tomorrow will bring, these days." Spier Bros. attributed what realizations there were to the British dealers' anxiety to get clear before Monday, which is settling day, and as to morrow is a holiday in New York. they are anxious to do all they can today.

New York, May 10.-Sentiment in the financial world was much reassured today by the announcement made last night that the shorts in Northern Pacific were to be settled with at 150, thereby ending corner in the stock. Brokerage offices were filled speculators at an early hour, and to some of the large offices admission was to be had only by ticket. Before the New York opening interest center-ed in London's quotations, and when stronger and the New York opening prices were awaited with a confidence in marked contrast to the complete demoralization that prevailed on every hand yesterday morning.

A dispatch was received from London saying that at 1:45 in that city all American securities were higher, with St. aul quoted at a price equal to a 20 points advance, and Union Pacific showing a rise of 10 points. Northern Pacific sold in London at a price equivalent to 134½ in New York. MUCH CALMER.

WARM DEBATE ON TELEPHONE BILL

Measure to Increase Bell Telephone Company's Stock to $10,000,000 Keenly

Ottawa, May 9.—The bill permitting the Bell Telephone Company to increase its capital stock from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 will never pass the Senate in its present form if its opponents can prevent it. A most determined fight will be waged against the measure, and even if it succeeds in scraping through the Upper Chamber it will still have to run the sauntlet of the heuse. There its doom is certain, unless the company agree to accept amendments which are deemed to be necessary in the public interest. The first skirmish took place this afternoon, when the bill as amended in committee came up for consideration.

The debate will be resumed on Tuesday.

BRITISH CENSUS

Show Increase of 12.15 Per Cent in England and Wales.

William O'Brien's "Irish People" Taken Charge of by the Police-Civil List Discussed in House of Commons-The King Has No Personal Fortune.

London, May 10 .- The total population of England and Wales is 32,525,-716, an increase over the population of 1891 of 3,523,191, or 12.15 per cent. The increase for the decade between 1881 and 1891 was 11.65 per cent.

Dublin, May 10.—The police last night seized William O'Brien's weekly paper, the Irish People. It is reported that the seizure was made on account of reflections on King Edward. Another report says that the Irish People was seized for a coarse personal attack upon George Wyndham, the Irish secretary.

London, May 10.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, in discussing the civil list, said: "The King has no personal fortune-a fact which could not be too widely known. He was therefore lependent on the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster and parliamentary grants. The King was anxious for a further investigation into the system of management of the royal house hold in order to correct any abuses and waste. The sum of £110,000 which, out of the total of £470,000 it was proposed to grant, was the King's privy purse, out of which came the sums expended as a result of in-numerable requests for charities throughout the empire, and even from foreign countries, and out of which also came the sums expended to keep up the private residences.

The Liberal leader, Sir Henry-Campbell-Bannerman, supported the government's proposal as reasonable.
Mr. John Redmond, the Irish leader, in explaining why the Irish members declined to support the proposals, said it was for three reasons: First, the insult to certain of the King's subjects in the accession proceedings; second, Ireland was paying double today what she paid eighteen years ago, and England was paying 25 per cent less. The third—the real ground for the opposition—was the people of Ireland were mocked by a freedom which was devoid of substance.

Upwards of £6,000 was realized. CABLE NOTES.

A Reuter dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Russian troops sup-pressed a demonstration of workmen at Tiflis, May 5, and that several persons were wounded on both sides by revolvers and knives. Forty-one arrests were made, including several students. Dispatches from Madrid report that altogether five hundred arrests have been made at Barcelona, but that the disorders are now subsiding. A translation of an article in a Berlin publication regarding German en-terprise in Central America sets forth that fully $60,000,000 of German capital is invested in Central American enterprises. German plantations occupy an area of 740,000 acres.

Marquis Ito, according to a dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Yoko-hama, is suffering from brain trouble, and is not likely to resume office. The correspondent says the ministerial deadlock continues.

In front of the royal chair was a small table. on which was a telegraph key, by which the Duke of Cornwall and York was to flash the opening signal throughout the commonwealth, when the Union Jack was to be simultaneously raised in every settlement of the federation. The majority of the audience was composed of women, mostly clad in mauve colored costumes; but many in Prince Consort. This motion was speakers wigged and gowned similar to the speaker of the British House of Commons; British and foreign military and naval uniforms; bishops and clergy of many denominations in their respective canonicals, contrasted with khaki-clad officers. The formal proceedings were begun at 11:54 a.m., with the reading of the proclamation summoning the senate and representatives. Noon was signalized by a fanfare of trumpets. The royal party was conducted to the dais, the orchestra playing the national anthem. The Duke of York wore an admiral's uniform. The Duchess of York and Lady Hopetoun, wife of the governor-general, the Earl of Hopetoun, and the ladies of the suites, all wore black. The duke, through Black Rod, summoned the two houses, in accordance with the strict formula of the British parliament, and the members filed in. The Hundreth Psalm was sung, with all present standing, and the Earl of Hopetoun read a prayer, after which the Duke of York made a lengthy adress and declared parliament open. [A summary of the Duke's address and the King's message were given in yesterday's Advertiser.] Prolonged cheering greeted the con-clusion of the speech. The members then took the oath and subscribed their name on the roll. At the conclusion of this ceremony the Earl of Hopetoun dismissed them to their respectoive houses to elect officers. The entire audience thereupon rose as the first bars of the "Hallelujah" chorus was played by the orchestra, and the chorus was sung by an opera company. "Rule Britannia" followed and, finally, the whole assemblage joined in singing "God Save the King," a fresh blare of trumpets followed, the royal party retired and the ceremony was over.

TEACHERS ARE IN CONVENTION

Semi-Annual Meeting of East Middlesex Association.

Interesting Address by Principal Radcliffe on the Romantic Poetry of the Nineteenth Century.

The semi-annual convention of the East Middlesex Teachers' Association is in session in the county council chambers. There are about one hundred teachers in attendance. Yesterday morning, after the devotional ex-A. J. McGillivray, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secre-

After the president's address came the reports of delegates to the O. E. A. Her report favored the elimination of minors from the profession. A very interesting paper was given on the subject of reading by Miss A. H. Hodgins. Miss Hodgins dwelt upon the import. Miss Hodgins dweit upon the importance of her subject, which she discussed under the heading, "Thought-Getting" and "Thought-Giving."

The afternoon session concluded by a aper entitled. "The Teacher on the Playground," by Mr. R. Thompson. The essay was full of suggestions as to how the usefulness of the teacher in a school might be greatly augmented by his co-operation with the children in their games. Mr. Thompson maintained that the teacher who let this very important phase of school life pass was neglecting an opportunity that would otherwise be of untold value

AN EVENING ENTERTAINMENT. A musical and literary entertainment was presented by the East Middlesex teachers last evening in the assembly room of the Collegiate Institute. The programme was as follows: Instru-mental selections by Miss E. Blackwell; solos by Miss E. McDougall, Miss E. Williams, Miss G. Mills and Mr. A. Blackwell; recitations by Mr. G. Ram-say, Miss Annie Hardie and Miss S. Murdock; violin, selections by Messrs. John Currie and A. Morton. PRINCIPLE RADCLIFFE'S AD-

Every day adds to the list of deaths attributed to heart failure. If the truth were told the bulk of these deaths might be written down as due to stomach failure. For it is in the to stomach failure. For it is in the failure of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, that "weak" heart, "weak" lungs, "weak" nerves and other forms of physicial deterioration having their beginning. The man whose stomach is sound, who can digest and assimilate the food he eats, and so keep each organ of the body well nourished, is the man who is least liable to collapse under the sudden weakness of some under the sudden weakness of some

The preservation of health which fol-lows the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, is chiefly due to the fact that it perfectly and permanently cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies the blood and increases the blood supply of the body. Weak people will find in this medicine a sure means of strength.

"I was under doctors' care for quite a time," writes Mr. J. F. Kidd, of Parmleysville, Wayne Co., Ky. "They had almost given me up, and my suffering was very great. My pulse was weak, breath short and I had severe pains in back, head and legs. Had palpitation of heart, and for eleven months I was not able to do a day's work. I purchased five bottles of Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and by the time the fifth bottle was gone I was a well man." Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate the liver, sponded to the German romantic school, which was headed by Noralis. The galaxy of poets which marked the beginning and first half of last century consisted of such names as Byron, Scott, Burns, Shelly, Coleridge and Wordsworth.

The latter part of the eighteenth century witnessed a revolt against the classical school of poetry, which was headed by Dryden and Pope. With the classical school, form and with the classical school, form and diction were everything. The rhymed couplet was the favorite form of expression. These poets were cold and impersonal, drawing as they did their inspiration from books. The subject matter of their poetry concerned itself to a large extent with man's outward life. Prose was also a favorite ward life. Prose was also a favorite form of expression, as seen at its best in the sprightly essays of Addison and Steel. But soon the literature of this age was to UNDERGO A CHANGE. The revival of Methodism stirred up the stagnation of the religious world day morning, after the devotional ex-ercises, which were conducted by Rev. the French Revolution, disintegrated the old state of society and made the atmosphere congenial for a new school of poetry, one which entered into the neart of mankind, and which took for President Dale, of East Middlesex its text nature. It is not a mere coincidence that we have so many firstclass poets at this particular time. The question suggests itself to us, gave a few words of advice to new teachers in regard to the preparation of a timetable, and also as to becoming acquainted with the subjects required to be taught. He advised that local or terial spirit seems to dominate to a large extent our national life, and such circumstance is not congenial to noble thought and feeling. In GRAY'S FAMOUS ELEGY, the poet strikes the key note of the transformation which English literature was soon to undergo, but it is Cowper to whom we must look for the poet of the transition. Notwithstanding the fact that Cowper was re lated to different lord chancellors, he preferred the lowliness and simplicity of a quiet life to that of court. He is important for the position he occupies between the two schools, the classical and the lake school, rather than for his real work.

The next poet of importance wa

He went ance of a unit of measurement in to France, but returned to England, teaching decimals, and also advocated taking up his abode at Grassmere. the use of the metric system, which is a system of tens. The speaker illusand Wordsworth knew every little hillworth loved nature and found great delight in its humblest aspects; he remembered distinctly and accurately the picture of every place he had seen, and when in the city, surrounded by dingy factories and uncouth buildings, he could call up a beautiful reminiscences of the Yarrow or some other place no less famous for its picturesqueness. > Wordsworth, though in nowise a pantheist, discerned God in nature. All nature was to him a manifestation of the divine mind. He turned the transcendental philosophy of the Germans into the purest poetry. Wordsworth possessed a spiritualizing tendency which enabled him to look beyond nature to a deeper and more subtle significance that lay behind her. While Burns and Cowper were content with describing humble things, Wordsworth discerned in them a spiritual meaning. He discarded the old-time poetic diction and adopted a style at once simple and direct. He had his that, by intensity of thought and or- and is not yet full." iginality of form, he raised himself to the third place in English literature, Shakespeare and Milton occupy-ing first and second places.

In concluding his remarks on Wordsworth, Mr. Radcliffe read Words-worth's poem, "Three Years She Grew," taking it up verse by verse by a comment on the poet's ideas on the education afforded by nature.

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE, who is classed as one of the lake school poets, attempted much, but accomplished little; he seemed utterly incapable of concentrated effort. He was a great lover of nature and instilled magical charm into what he wrote. He will be known chiefly as the author of the "Ancient Mariner." Coleridge might have made himself famous as a critic or philosopher, rather than poet, had he possessed such desultory methods in his work; as it is, there has never been a greater genius who has left so little behind him. In marked contrast with Coleridge is

SIR WALTER SCOTT, who was in every sense of the word a man of action. He did not, like Coleridge, live in the realm of the abstract. Sir Walter was a great antiquarian. His poetry, which was romantic in its nature, had become very popular, but when Byron appeared upon the scene, Scott turned his attention to prose, and romance, in which he has never been though a young man, set his heart on winning for himself a deathless name in literature. He sought the beauties of both classical literature and of nature. His name has been identified with the "Endymion," which, though lacking in method, is still a great poem. But his greatest work is his "Odes." But his greatest work is his "Odes."

Shelley is the greatest of the lyric poets. His sensitive nature led him into many faults, which, however, are to a large extent atoned for by his intense spirituality. The address was concluded by a reference to Lord Byron, whose greatest work was "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage." Byron was in direct opposition to the classical poet of the previous century. Byron and Burns are true exemplifications of the adage that poets are born, not made. that poets are born, not made.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Radeliffe at the close of his address.

A Sparta correspondent writes: During the severe lightning storm on Wednesday night the electric current entered the house of Orlando Fordyce, third concession, Yarmouth, between Union and Sparta. The house is a new frame onestory cottage and has not been occupied many weeks. The deadly current came down the chimney into the bedroom occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Fordyce. From the stovepipe it cavorted with the corrects of Mrs. Fordyce that were on a chair at the foot of the bed, burning them. It also struck the lower portion of the bed, burning Mrs. Fordyce's feet slightly, and then entered the ground. The escape of both occupants of the room from death or serious hurt was quite providential.

DID HE BURN HIS CHILDREN?

Awful Charge Pending Against Joseph Parton.

Story of the Wife—Origin of the Fire Unexplained—How the Family Were Treated.

Parry Sound, May 9 .- "Yes, all my good clothes are burnt, and nine dol-

This brief, miserly declaration, while the bodies of five of his children lay in the ashes of his home, was the only comment of Joseph Parton concerning one of the saddest tragedies enacted in Canada for a genera-tion. For the death of Sarah, the elddaughter, Parton now languishes in Parry Sound jail on the charge of murder. The story of the fire and the entire domestic life in the Parton family is a revelation of cruelty and hard-heartedness scarcely credible in these days of enlightenment. Parton's

EXTREME ECCENTRICITY, to say the least, is shown by his not rendering assistance towards rescuing his perishing children, and by his selfish spirit, which caused him to regard his children as a burden, which the crown connects with the fact of his intended removal to Parry Sound, where they would be more than ever a "burden" to him, while at the same time there is no explanation of the origin of the fire.

The accused is an Englishman by birth, 70 years of age, who has lived in this locality for more than twenty years. He occupied his farm in Mc-Kellar township, about thirteen miles northeast of Parry Sound. His wife was formerly Miss Martha Wallace. of this town, and their family number twelve living. Parton was generally credited with receiving regular remittances from relatives in Crewe, England. He was disposed to keep aloof from his neighbors, and the coldness was mutual, for Parton's cynicism, socialistic and generally revolutionary ideas were not in harmony with those of his neighbors.

THE FAMILY'S EVIDENCE. His attitude toward his wife and amily has been that of a crossgrained, crabbed man, according to the evidence of Mrs. Parton at the inquest, when she said: "I he e had to leave the house for violence to myself, and have had to go and get assistance for the children, and as the boys grew up, owing to his violence, they James, the eldest boy at home, swore: "Father said that he had a big family to keep, and used to rail at mother for having us around. If any of us had an escape from death he would laugh and say, 'that would have been one less to keep.' He did not come to help me out when I fell through the ice last spring, and never told either of my brothers of my danger. He never used any of us right."
This witness also declared that he suspected his father had something to do with the fire. Parton, not content with living apart from his neighbors, tried to

During one of as we put the ladder against the his visits to the old country a year building to help the girls out it began to burn. The fire was burning in the ago, the family destroyed this den. Since then he has retired to a newer or frame part of the house, and current gossip credited him with hurling missles at any child who dared invade that section. Parton's house was located in an isolated section, near the Seguine River, his nearest neighbor My husband remained nearly as long being about a mile away.

THE FIRE. The fire occurred between 12 and 1 on the morning of Tuesday, April 30. The house was built in three sections, the first and oldest built of logs. In this was the kitchen, with picious language about his children. I boys at home, James, aged 20, and things, but in my heart did not be sleeping rooms overhead for the two Reginald, aged 12. This section was joined at the gable end by a covered passage way, twelve feet long, on the further side of which was the the further side of which was the new frame building, one and a half stories high. I served in the British army eleven years, and was through the Indian Mutiny under Sir Colin Campbell and Gen. Havelock.

I had the bone of my left leg shattered by a splinter of shell at the relief of Lucknow. The wound never healed up properly and was continually breaking out and discharging matter.

It was of such a size that two fingers could be laid in it.

In the year of 1881 I took Burdock Blood Bitters and used Burdock Ointment as a dressing. This treatment gradually healed up the sere until at the end of six

Exhibition as Equal to World's Fair. S. P. Zavitz and wife, of Coldstream, S. P. Zavitz and wife, of Coldstream, who started on April 39 from their home for a six months' trip e-stward, writes from Buffalo under date of May 8: We spent yesterday at the Pan-American, although the fair was opened on May 1 the grounds, buildings, and interior display are in a very unfinished condition, and four or five weeks will still be required to get things in proper shape. The work is going on day and night. New walks things in proper shape. The work is going on day and night. New walks are being built, trees planted, flower beds arranged, buildings painted and decorated, fountains arranged, and the basins are being filled with water; and already we can judge somewhat of the beauties which a short time hence will meet the eye of the visitor here. In artistic beauty both grounds and buildings of the "Rainbow City" will not only compare favorably but will even surpass that of the "White City" of the World's Fair at Chicago, though the whole is upon a less gigantic scale. If one may judge so early as this, we would say that the Pan-American will be best remembered for the wealth and beauty of its floral decorations, the artistic arrangement and coloring of the buildings, and especi-ally its wonderful electrical display, surpassing anything of its kind ever seen in America. Centering in the tower, 350 feet high, with its thousands of incandescent lights, and reaching the zenith of its magnificence there, it spreads from building to building, until the evening becomes one glow of light and beauty and display of man's inventive genius in utilizing natural Australia Steps Forward.

The formal opening of 'Australia's first Federal Parliament at Melbourne, at high noon on Thursday, May the 9th, 1901, constitutes another greatly Important epoch in the history of the world-wide British Empire. The great group of confederated Canadian provinces, which led the way, has now been paralleled by the Australian group, under the title of Commonwealth; and within a few years a similar ceremony will inaugurate a great federation of South African provinces. Thursday's ceremonies at Melbourne seem to have been dignified, brilliant, and befitting the importance of the occasion. The formal inauguration was conducted by the King's son, the Duke of Cornwall and York, and there was a special telegraphic message of congrat-ulation from King Edward himself. Those who believe they can descry some special providential element and meaning in the expanding greatness of the British Empire, may pardonably take Thursday's inauguration as a new sign and seal. So far as one can peer into the future, this unparalleled series of free English-speaking peoples, headed by Britain, and counting in also as kindred the United States, with their combined energy, their genius for government, their democratic principles, their capacity for combining law with liberty, will for many an age dominate the world; at least in ideas and ideals; and ideas and ideals in the final analysis are the forces which dom-

Exit the Cook Slander.

The Senate Committee appointed to investigate the charge made by Mr. Cook, that the late Mr. M. C. Cameron an agent to offer Mr. H. H. Cook a Senatorship for the sum of $10,000, held their final meeting on Thursday. They decided to report the evidence to the Senate, without any finding, together with the addresses of counsel. The report to this effect will when there may be an attempt to a fair figure, or by establishing an inmake political capital—a sort of last dependent system altogether. partisan majority to be politically disagreeable. The failure of the Senate Committee, though composed of a majority of opponents of the Government, to formulate a finding, is virtual confession of the collapse of the slander. Both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Richard Cartwright have denied the impudent charge under oath; and as for the late Mr. M. C. Cameron, who was alleged by Mr. Cook to have been an agent in the transaction, it would be very unjust to besmirch his memory in a matter in which, were he alive, he could have given testimony on his own behalf. If the proceedings in the Senate committee have been unpleasant in unnecessarily bringing in the name of the late Lieutenant-Governor Cameron, it should be remembered that it has been done, not by any member of the Government, but by his professed friend (?) Mr. H. H. Cook. Exit, the Cook slan-

Advantages of National Rivalry.

Sir Edward Malet, who has seen much service as a British diplomat, has published a very interesting book of "Shifting Scenes." Dealing with one phase of the British character he tells his fellow-countrymen that they are too easily made jealous of the progress of other nations, and he asks them to recognize the benefits they have received from the stirring up that trade rivalry of other countries has brought about. Germany, for example has made great strides in commerce and in territorial growth in the last 30 years, but great Britain, stimulated by the growth of her continental rival, has made greater progress. "It is a singular thing," he continues, "that while we English, of all nations of the world, have recognized and experienced the enormous advantage to progress which comes from competition in every branch of our internal development, we cannot bring our minds to view the competition of other nations as destined to produce the same progress for the benefit of the world. and to welcome it as a further incentive to our own action, and as a preventive of going to sleep. There is no question that the rapid advance of Germany has given us a rude and healthy shaking, and that we owe to it a great part of our own progress in recent years." It is no evidence of Great Britain's decadence that other nations have been running her in strong competition in recent years. Her decadence will only be assured if she fails to profit by the experience of her rivals and is unready to adapt some respects she has been rather slow

Bell Telephone Company's Stock

Daniel Webster is credited with having said to a politician, who desired to discuss the Trinity with him "You and I know very little about the mathematics of heaven;" and that man is a very able one who can tell with accuracy much about the mathematics of the world today, and especially with reference to the values of stocks and the transactions of joint stock companies. At the present time there appears to be a wave of speculation in joint stock companies, and many men have suddenly made fortunes by their organization and promotion. The old methods are too slow. The Bell Telephone Company is doubling its capital from five to ten millions, and if at any time the public desire to assume control, there will be millions to pay that the stockholders are not entitled to.

Many electric railways have been built on the money obtained by the sale of bonds, the stockholders getting their stock for nothing and becoming rich by the values subsequently acquired. Many companies issue preference shares sufficient to furnish the N. B., Globe, extends the glad hand to capital, and the ordinary shares rep- the Canadian Press Association as folresent the profits to the promoters.

Telephones are almost of necessity a monopoly. If there are two companies it causes many to take both. The original cost of a telephone system is small, with the cost of operating added, compared with the income derived for its use. The earning power of a telephone system is large compared with the outlay necessary to its establishment.

The present system of operating telphones restricts their use. The local telephones alone pay large profits, and the outside telephones, that is, from London to outside points, are nearly all clear profit. We say the present system restricts their use, because the sum extracted for that use is large, much larger than they could afford to let the public have the telephones for. It is a rule often acted on by business men to increase the volume of business and lower the rate of profit. This is precisely what would happen if the public operated the telephone system, as it does the poston the part of a vanishing Is it fair that all the burdens of the ernment, without, on the other hand, the Government controlling and operating some of the profitable enterprises? The Government carries the people's burdens in many ways. They aid hospitals. They maintain asylums for the blind, the insane, the idiotic, and are looking forward to helping those who need treatment for the liquor and kindred habits. All praise to them for the great good they do. We believe the operation by them of a telephone system would bring many thousands of dollars profit annually, and help to bear the burdens for those who need and obtain help.

Not only will taxation be lightened, but the telephone service be made much more general and much cheaper. The good the public could derive means millions of dollars to them in money and much in convenience and comfort.

Let the question be well considered by competent men, and we believe a Provincial telephone system will be adopted and telephones managed by the public for the public benefit.

Agriculture a Profession. This may seem a somewhat para doxical expression to apply to a calling that has for a large part been identified with manual labor. It is true that farming will always be as sociated with labor; no one would in this that agriculture as a profession consists. In spite of the fact that we hear so much about consolidation of capital and centralization of industry, which mean the massing of people tothe farm. The millions must be fed, and who is to do it? The outlook for the farmer seems brighter than ever. PRESBYTERIAN WORSHIP, ITS

He must not content himself with the performance of mere drudgery. The leading agricultural colleges and schools seek to instil into the minds of students a knowledge of principles, as well to impart skill in manipulation. The capacity farm is of paramount importance, but if a man's business is to increase, he must himself be greater than the work he is to perform, which means herself to meet new conditions. ground

In England it is counted a matter of no small importance to own land. In Canada the time is not far distant when greater value will be attached to agricultural possessions. Farmers should not be too ready to dispose of their property. It will be a matter of increasing advantage and dignity, as time goes on, to be a landed proprietor in Ontario.

Britain's Enlarged Army.

It is pointed out by military critics that the new scheme for improving the British army, brought forward by Mr. Broderick, the Secretary of State for War, requires a steady average of 45,000 recruits a year-a figure largely in excess of the returns of any year up to 1900. How are the new recruits to be obtained? There is but one way -to raise the pay of the men. It is now but a miserable pittance, and the SWISS wonder is that so many young men at a time when employment in town Shams, and country is plentiful, can be induced to give their services for it. Nothing but a strong love for the profession of arms or for adventure could have influenced these young men to join the ranks, for the outlook for a private soldier is far from bright.

That excellent journal, the St. John, lows: "The visit of the Canadian Press Association to the Maritime Provinces during the coming summer will give the newspaper men of Upper Canada a delightful outing. It will afford them an opportunity to learn something of the geography of this section of our common country. The mistakes made by leading journals in their references to Lower Province places are of a kind that should not occur. A personal visit will give the pressmen real knowledge of the Maritime Provinces, and will make them realize more than ever before that there is a Canada outside of Ontario and Quebec. That they will be welcomed in all parts of these provinces goes without saying."

The Toronto World strongly advocates the building of a railway line from Toronto to Ottawa by the Grand Trunk Company, and likewise an airline division, double-tracked, from Kingston or Napanee to Ottawa, in order to give all Southern Ontario the most rapid and direct service to the capital of the Dominion. "The time has arrived," says our contemporary, when a person should be able to leave Toronto at 7 o'clock in the morning and get into Ottawa by noon, have all the day up to 7 in the evening for business, and then take the train and reach Toronto by midnight." The World makes another suggestion to Mr. Reeve, the general manager of the Grand Trunk, when it speaks of making a two-cent a mile rate between Buffalo and Montreal. It thinks three cents a mile is driving the public more and more into use of the long-distance telephone. A two-cent-mile fare, says gether into cities; it is better that all, the World, would be the means of who can possibly do so, remain on not only filling up the cars, but making it necessary to provide new ones.

It only stopped when it reached a marsh two marsh, two squares from our house, and we had a few things packed to carry with us, but should have to fly as soon as it crossed the marsh, and as soon as it crossed the marsh, and would have cleaned up another mile to the river bank. WALL ST. WILD!

Battle of the Bulls and the

Both Sides Panic-Stricken—Northern Pacific Forced Up to $1,000 a Share-Other Stocks Falling.

New York, May 9 .- The stock market yesterday offered the novel spectacle of a bear panic and a bull panic in progress side by side. The bear panic in Northern Pacific was the impelling cause of the demoralized rush to sell other stocks, which was held in check for a time after the astounding opening in Northern Pacific, but which gained almost panic force in the late trading.

Northern Pacific's skyrocket course to 180, compared with 143½ at the previous night's close, and 132 for the London parity, is almost unprecedented for short-time movements in the local stock market. This stock was up to that figure and back to the opening figure of 155 within three minutes. It vent as low as 145 afterwards and as high again as 170, closing at 160.
The local transactions of the day were 2,461,100 shares.

At 11:15 Northern Pacific sold at $1,000 a share for cash. As fast as Northern Pacific went up, other stocks were going down. The opening declines in New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Louisville, Atcheson ranged form 2 to 5 points, and it seemed for a time as if orders were being given to sell without regard to prices. This wildness was uninter-rupted until about 10:40, when it seemed that for the moment at least there was a disposition to steadiness. All interest centered on reports that conferences were being held to patch up a truce preliminary to a permanent pasis of agreement between the rival interests in Union Pacific. It was learned from an authoritative source that up to 11 o'clock no compromise had been agreed upon, but that the situation was more hopeful

A GENERAL BREAK. New York, May 9 .- Shortly after 11 support seemed to be withdrawn from the stock market, and prices began falling many points between sales, with sensational declines, the like of which has not been seen on the street for many and many a year. At 11:40 the statement was made that J. P. Morgan & Company and Kulm, Loeb & Company had just agreed not to enforce deliveries on Northern Pacific stock today. With this announcement there came a rally in prices throughout the general list.

The rally did not hold for more than a moment, and United States Steel common sold at 251/2, St. Paul, 138; Brooklyn Rapid Transit, at 681/2, and Northern Pacific, after selling at $1,000, fell to $600 on the next sale. Even Standard Oil declined to $650 today, a drop of 171 points from last night's close.

Swan Lake, Man., May 6 .- A young man is living here today whom many people in and about Somerset, Man. no doubt think to be in the grave. His name is Arthur Coley, and when he left Somerset in 1894 he was in the last stages of Bright's disease and diabetes. "Many will be surprised, I am sure, to find that I am alive," says Mr. Coley,

"I did not expect to live. Now I am able thankfully to say that pain and weakness are unknown to me. I am a farmer, and can now do as hard a day's work as anyone, whereas before using Dodd's Kidney Pills I was given up to die with Bright's disease and diabetes. This was in 1894. I am well today. DAY. Hamilton, May 9.-On the grain market yesterday, during a discussion on the weather, J. G. Weir led the argument on late storms, and told of a snowstorm which raged in this vicinty 46 years ago yesterday. During the night and morning snow fell to a depth of over two feet, and the weight of the snow and the cyclonic winds combin to wreck barns in several localities. At Stoney Creek the barns and drivingshed of the old Canada House were wrecked on that occasion, and many barns, especially in the neighborhood of Tapleytown, collapsed as the result of the storm. There was good sleighing for ten or twelve miles on many roads for several days after the storm.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY

Have an Excellent Exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, N. Y.

The handsome collection of large photographs and steel engravings, depict-ing the points of interest on the Grand Trunk Railway System, and which are on exhibition at the Pan-American Exposition, will be a source of great interest to the visitors at this great exposition. The space in which this exhibit is located covers 640 feet of floor space and over 4,000 feet of wall space in the machinery and transpor-tation building, directly to the right on entering the main building from the mall on the north side. About 150 pictures form the collection, which are tastefully arranged in tiers to allow visitors close inspection. Among the collection are included the 60 pictures which were awarded the gold medal of the International Exposition are grouped in districts, displaying in natural life-likeness the beauties of the Canadian summer resorts which are becoming so popular with the everincreasing brotherhood of tourists, and include the Muskoka Lake region the Lake of Bays region, the Kawartha Lakes district and the 30,000 islands of the Georgian Bay. Scenes in the White Mountains of Maine and New Hampshire are also shown, as well as views on the Atlantic coast. Mounted speckled trout from the "Highlands of Ontario" intersperse the scenic views, and these alone will whet the appetite of the keenest fisherman for the sport which awaits the angler in the northern districts. Across the upper portion of the front wall space a large painting of the Grand Trunk Victoria Jubilee Bridge across the St. Lawrence River at Montreal 43 feet long and 16 feet high, is placed. showing the bridge and the mighty St. Lawrence in the foreground, and the historic metropolis of Canada nestling at the foot of Mount Royal as a back ground. HOPEFUL VIEW OF THE FUTURE!

all around, the only exception being South Railroad, which was off 2½.

There were some dips again after the opening, and Illinois Central ran down 2½ below last night. The tone was unsettled after the opening, but the first dips showed recoveries. called to express the notion of all the evil that could ever befall Wall street. In speaking of the happenings of today and their consequences, an old stock trader said: "That which makes this day disastrous is that so many small fortunes have been wiped out, and so many persons of small incomes have been ruined. This fact will make the day felt by the butchers and bakers all over the country. After the experience of today, it will be many a moon before the general public will venture again into speculation as it has been venturing the last two months. "The wonderful trading down here is to be accounted for, not by the enormous transactions of the big fellows, but by the operations of thousands of men and women who were led to believe that it was easy to make quick fortunes in stock gambling.

"They had heard of the luck of their friends. They had read in the news-papers of the luc kof persons they had never heard of, and they concluded to take a flyer in the street. Many of them got out by the middle of last week, and they are richer by thou-sands than they were before they spe-culated. Many more stayed in too long, and tonight they are many dollars worse off than nothing."

VICTIMS. The havoc that was wrought in the fortunes of bank clerks and brokers, bookkeepers, and accountants, and office boys, and in fact nearly all the employes in Wall street was something prodigious.

There was pandemonium on the Stock Exchange, but the scenes were not to be compared with those enacted in the offices where the women trade. As the tickers showed that prices were going down until it seemed as if there was no hottom to the market the there was no bottom to the market, the women who gathered around the tickers, ten and fifteen and a score deep, simply went clean off their heads. It was really pitiful to hear some of the stories they told. Some of them had borrowed money to speculate with, and so long as prices kept advancing they believed that there was practically no end to the money they might

IN MONTREAL AND TORONTO. There was great excitement on the Montreal stock market yesterday afternoon, owing to the bad slump in New York. The values of Montreal stocks were more or less demoralized, but there was a recovery towards the close. Canadian Pacific declined eight points, from 104 to 96, but advanced to 1001/4 before the market closed. The biggest decline was in Montreal Street, which dropped to 273, compared with 284 the day be-

The panic of the New York Exchange cost two Toronto speculators a pretty penny. They were not caught on the fancy priced stock, but on C. P. R., U. P. and the Southern and Southwestern group and Copper stocks. There were many big lines held and some of the operators were badly hit by the heavy declines, especially in C. P. R. cially in C. P. R.

IMMIGRATION

Mr. Sifton Ably Justifies Government's Policy.

Seybold's Amendment Defeated by a Majority of 45—Trade and Commerce Estimates.

Ottawa, May 9.—Mr. Taylor's amendment to the motion to go into supply, condemning the lease of the Seybold building for the census staff at Ottawa, was this afternoon defeated by a majority of 45. In supply the estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce, an item for harbor improvements at Sorel and the items for immigration were passed.

IRISH AND SCOTCH IMMIGRATION.

Mr. Wilson contended that no value was received for the money spent on agents in Ireland, amounting to some $15,000 for 765 immigrants, while the United States obtained 40,000 immigrants from that island. Too much money altogether for the returns obtained was also being spent in Scotland. He objected to spending large sums of money with poor results, and the introduction of an undesirable class of immigrants.

Mr. Sifton said he could hold out no hope for a reduction of expenses in Ireland or Scotland. Last year 1,900 immigrants came from Scotland. The average cost to the Dominion for immigration last year was about $10 per head for all purposes, and he thought these results satisfactory in view of the fact that the United States railways calculated that each settler was worth $500. In 1896 he found the immigration to Canada was at a standstill, but for the last three years some 43,000 settlers have IRISH AND SCOTCH IMMIGRATION. Canada was at a standstill, but for the last three years some 43,000 settlers have come in each year, upwards of 15,000 coming from the United States last year.

Mr. Sifton, in justification of his immigration policy, advised the opposition to go to the Northwest and see for themselves, in Edmonton district particularly, where four years ago nothing but virgin prairie was to be seen, thriving towns, in the centers of well-settled farming districts now existed.

NIGHT AIR NOT HARMFUL

No More Injurious Than the Atmosphere of Day-Not a Lung Poison.

In passing along a row of city tenements in the dawn of a midsummer day about 99 of 100 windows can be seen tightly closed. Sleepers whose lungs crave night air as a desert traveler thirsts after a draught of cold water have excluded the refreshing night wind in obedience to the behest of a sanitary superstition. "Beware of draughts, get a dollar's worth of weather strips, be sure to close your windows after dark"-in other words exclude the air which the children of nature have for myriads of ages breathed with perfect impunity, and poison your lungs with the azotized, sickening atmosphere of an unventilated bedroom. We might as well adsprings and fill his water bucket at the effluent pipe of a festering city sewer. We might with the same lo-gic admonish our children to beware of fresh vegetables and mountain strawberries and still their hunger with the garbage of the dumppile says the Chautauquan.

storms of the tropical forests. Is night air a lung poison? Is the outdoor atmosphere made deadly by the absence of sunlight? the cool night wind bringing relief to countless sufferers from the misery of a sweltering summer day?

It is no exaggeration to say that individuals who have freed themselves from the nightmare of that superstition can live out-and-out healthier in the central wards of a large manufacturing town than its victims on the airest highlands of the Southern Alieghanies.

It was Lurline Lovering who spoke, and the man turned a stern glance upon her, for the slighting tone had angered him.

"Yes, that is just what she is," he affirmed; "a heroine," in deed and truth. Let me tell you about it—yes, I will," he added, as Shirley would have interposed to prevent him. "Late in the month of May we were both passengers on a crowded excursion steamer. There was an accident which resulted in the boat taking fire, and of course there was the usual panic and confusion which always accompanies such disasters. There were a great many children on board; some of them were separated from their parents and friends, and were very unhappy and distressed in consequence. This young lady gathered them about her, told them stories, thus interesting and calming them until help came to us, when she insisted that every one of the help-less things should be removed from that burning boat before she would allow her friend to help her. The flames reached here ere this was accomplished, her clothing caught fire, and I am sure that she was badly burned, but I never saw a pluckier spirit than she manifested in my life." It was Lurline Lovering who spoke, and "Mr. Hartman forgets himself and his own earnest efforts on that occasion," Shirley here interposed in her clear, fresh tones, as the man paused to take breath, "for he worked with all his might to save others, and was the last one save the captain to leave the fated vessel."

A vigorous clapping of hands here testified to the hearty favor with which this testimony was received.

"Suppose we change the subject," said Mr. Hartman, looking slightly nonpulssed at this unexpected turning of the tables.

"With all my heart," responded Shirley, laughing at his discomfiture and very thankful to have the attention of the company diverted from herself.

"By the way, my little friend," the gentieman resumed, with a rougish twinkle in his eyes, "what became of the young hero of that occasion?"

Poor Shirley! This was worse for her than all that had been previously said, and she blushed a painful crimson as she tried to answer composediy:

and she blushed a painful crims as she tried to answer composedly:

"He is in Europe, I believe."

Lord Wallace shot a quick, startled glance at her, and Mr. Hartman, who saw that he had been trenching on delicate ground, thought it would be wise to take another tack.

"Well," he remarked, "we have been this all this time and I do not even "Well," he remarked, "we have been talking all this time, and I do not even know your name. Will not some one be kind enough to introduce me!" and he glanced around with a look of comical appeal; "for, in the confusion of the time to which I have referred, no one thought of formal presentations."

A shout of laughter greeted this information, for whom the cordiality of his manner when he had saluted Shirley every one had supposed that they were

The stranger than anything that had hap pened previously.

Alexander Hartman gave a violent are as the young man pronounced Shirtley name, and a look almost of terror came into his eyes.

"Shirley Livingstone!" he repeated, studying her face with a glance that seemed to be seeking something familiar in it.

"Everard Livingstone, an artist," was the brief response.

"Everard Livingstone your father!" burst from Mr. Hartman in a tone so intense, so almost fierce that every eye was fixed upon him in undisguised astonishment, "then Edna Remington was your mother?" he hoarsely added.

"Yes, did you know my mother?" the young girl inquired, with slightly trembling lips.

"Know your mother— Ah!" and a spasm of pain almost convulsed the man's face as he thus suddenly checked himself.

spasm of pain almost convulsed the man's face as he thus suddenly checked himself.

There was a moment of awkward silence, during which everyone wondered what would come next.

Then the stranger turned abruptly and coldly away from the young girl, and, linking his arm within that of Mr. Charles Wallace, walked away from the wondering group without another word.

"Aha! and so there is a mystery connected with the life of our little 'heroine!' "exclaimed Lurline Lovering, with malicious sarcasm, to Miss Alice Montcalm, as they proceeded slowly toward the hotel where they were to remain until the time set for the tournament.

"What a very strange occurrence!" Miss Montcalm thoughtfully remarked.

So thought Shirley also, and so thought a number of the others of the party.

But Neil Wallace did not speculate over this circumstance so much as he did over the identity of the "young hero" to whom Mr. Hartman had referred, and the mention of whom had caused such blushes to mantle Shirley's cheeks.

"A mystery!" Miss Lovering had remarked, and so it had seemed to all who had witnessed the strange ending to the interview between Mr. Hartman and Shirley Livingstone.

The young girl herself was very much disturbed and perplexed by the sudden transformation on the part of the gentleman from warm friendliness and admiration to such extreme coldness and an evident desire to get out of her way.

What could that violent start, that strange pallor, that look almost of terror have meant, when he had learned that Everard Livingstone was her father, that Edna Remington was her mother?

With a fierce, intense inflection he had repeated her father's name, as if the sound of it had aroused some fearful memory in connection with the man who had borne it.

Could it be possible that the two men had known each other, and that some wretched misunderstanding, some fierce quarrel, perhaps, had made enmity between them?

She could account for the stranger's emotion and peculiar behavior in no other way; and yet, as she remembered him, her father had been a gentle, affectionate, charitable man, and one so abnim, ner lather had been a gentle, affectionate, charitable man, and one so absorbed in his love of art that it did not seem possible for him to quarrel with any one of do aught to make an enmy.

Had the two men been jealous of each other because of this love? Was that the cause of Mr. Hartman's apparent aversion to her father and the abrupt change in his feelings toward herself?

All day long these questions and speculations haunted her and marred her enjoyment; the more so because the man did not once come near her nor speak to her again; inded, he even appeared to avoid looking at her or meeting her glance.

This singular adventure had, of course, aroused considerable curiosity on the

"I don't know about that," said Lurline, with a frown over this charitable view of the case. "It is evident to me that she has a lover somewhere, and I think it is very brazen of her to be throwing herself in Lord Wallace's way all the time."

TURF.

Toronto, May 10.—Yesterday was a great day for the Queen's platers at the Woodbine, and from daybreak until noon there was something doing among candidates for the guineas. The track was in capital condition, and the weather was all that could be desired. The best work accomplished at the track this season by platers was done by the Barrie entry, Lastlo, and the 3-year-old Dyment filly, Silverlocks. They ran a mile quite handily in 1:494, the fractional time for the quarters be ing:26½,:53¾ and 1:20. Lastlo went ahead, but both were not feeling their best by any means. and reinvigorates the various organs. To ward off the ills and weaknesses of spring, to restore the tired brain and exhausted nervous system, to make the pale, weak and emaciated strong, healthy and robust, there is no treatment so thoroughly effectual as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the favorite prescription of the venerable physician and recipe book author. It is by far the greatest of spring restoratives known to medical science. Its cures are certain and permanent, because it builds up the system. 50c a box. At all dealers, or

A blood builder and nerve vitalizer, such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, is required by nearly everybody at this time

Mrs. Charles Keeling, sen., Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"It is a pleasure to tell what great benefits I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I am 55 years of age, and for about five years my life was one of great suffering from nervousness, weakness and extreme physical exhaustion. I could not sleep, and hot flushes would pass through my body from feet to head. I consulted our family physician and two other doctors, but they told me that about my time of life I was likely to be troubled in this way. I continually grew worse, and despaired of ever being cured. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food came to my notice, and as we have Dr. Chase's Recipe Book I had confidence in the doctor. I was so surprised at the help I received from the first box that I bought three more. They built me right up, and made me feel healthy and young again. They have proven a great blessing to

Patent Report.

In Commissioner Duell's report to congress of the business of the Patent Office for last year, he says that to the patent system, more than to any other cause, are we indebted for the industrial revolution of the century just closed. In 1816 the personnel of the Patent Office consisted of a superintendent, a clerk and a messenger. receiving in salaries $1,772. The office force now numbers 679, and the salaries paid during the past year amounted to $761,691 60. While the expenses of the Patent Office have enormously increased, the receipts have more than kept pace with them. The receipts for the past year were upwards of $1,350,000, with expenses of about $1,260,090. The receipts from Leitch, for $1,630.

1836 to the present time have exceeded War Stonton the disbursements by $5,177,458 55. Commissioner Fisher was the first to publish his decisions and to have the copies of the specifications and drawings made by photolithography. He also instituted the practice of requiring competitive examinations for entrance to and promotions in the examining force of the office.

BIGAMY CHARGED

A Kent County Woman Arrested and Committed for Trial.

Moranca Douthwaite, alias Moranda

McCain, of Blenheim, was arrested by Chief Grant, of Ridgetown, Monday, being charged by Henry B. Parker, of the township of Howard, of having been married in Howard some 25 years ago by Rev. Mr. Downie, to William Douthwaite, a former resident of Howard, but who is now living in Dakota. About twelve years ago the accused Moranda Douthwaite was mar-ried a second time in Detroit, to Henry B. Parker, who laid the charge. The case was taken up Tuesday before Magistrate McKinley at Ridgetown, who thought the evidence strong enough to commit the defendant for trial at the June sessions in Chatham.

Mrs. Douthwaite alias McCain. claims she had secured a divorce, and brought a witness to verify the state-ment, while the prosecution produced a certificate from the circuit court to the effect that there was no record of any divorce having been granted. H. Smith was crown prosecutor, and Mr. Walter Mills, formerly of this city defended the accused, who was admitted to bail.
