A TERRIBLE DEATH LIST. Sixty-four deaths occurred among the sick men on the journey from Madagascar to this port.

Seditious placards have been discovered posted in different parts of the city, and the disappearance is reported of several softas and other notabilities. The Government is making military preparations in anticipation of trouble.

BRITAIN AND BRAZIL. London, Oct. 24.—The officials of the Brazilian embassy here say that Prince Pierre of Saxe-Coburg, is in a lunatic asylum in Austria and that there is no foundation for the report of a movement in Brazil in favor of the restoration of the monarchy. In regard to the dispute between Great Britain and Brazil on the subject of the island of Trinidad, the Brazilian officials say that no action is expected before the next Cabinet Council at Rio

ROSE IS RIGHT. London, Oct. 24.-The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon, commenting upon the action of Mr. Charles D. Rose in withdrawing his challenge for the America's cup, remarks: "Mr. Rose has done right in withdrawing. Had he won the cup it would forever have lost the international significance which now attaches to it. If the cup is to retain significance in the eyes of English yachtsmen it must be sailed for as Lord Dunraven demands, over an unobstructed course, and Lord Dunraven has unquestionably the first right to a match under such conditions."

ANOTHER LIE NAILED. London, Oct. 23.—The United States embassy this afternoon issued a statement regarding dispatches from New York, published by the London Times, saying that the United States ambassador, Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, has had an interview of an unpleasant nature with the Marquis of Salisbury on the Venezuelan question. The United Venezuelan question. WILLIAM'S WARM WORDS. Berlin, Oct. 24.-Sir Edward Malet, retiring British ambassador, presented his letter of recall to the Emperor at the new palace yesterday. The occasion was one of grand ceremonial. Sir Edward was accompanied by Lady Malet. who was received by the Empress, and both Sir Edward and Lady Malet afterwards tok luncheon at the castle. In presenting his letter of recall, Sir Edward made an address, to which the Emperor replied with a speech, in which, it is said, he gave the assurance that England and Germany were united by ties which could not be drawn closer, namely, blood relationship, fel-lowship on blood-stained battlefields, and people next of kin.

ARMENIANS PANIC-STRICKEN. Constantinople, Oct. 24.-The greatest alarm prevails in Bagchejik, an Armenian village of 900 inhabitants, situated eight miles from Ismid, owing to the threats made by Mohammedans to attack the place. An English missionary and his family reside in the village. Serious trouble is feared, and troops have ben sent to the scene. The danger arises from the fact that the Armenians have been disarmed by the officials while the Turks are fully armed. The public prosecutor at Ismid has started for Akhissar to begin an inquiry into the recent massacres there. According to advices received from Adana and Aleppo, a revolutionary propaganda of serious proportions is in operation in those sec-tions. Agents of the propaganda are enrolling young Armenians under the standard, and arms, ammunition and dynamite are reported to have beeu secretly imported into that vicinity.

ARCTIC PERILS. London, Oct. 24.—The steam yacht Windward, which conveyed the Jackson-Harmsworth Polar expedition to Franz Josef Land, has arrived in the Thames. The Windward brings Jackson's sealed records of the expedition up to July 3, on which date the ves-sel left Franz Josef Land. The mission of the Windward here is to bring dispatches to Mr. Harmsworth, who bears the whole cost of the expedition, and to take on board a store of provisions and ammunition. She will then go back to Franz Josef Land and take on board Mr. Jackson's party. It is claimed that ex-perience has proved Mr. Jackson's theory that more is achievable in the direction of the North Polar research by going overland than in ships. During a 65 days' struggle in the ice the Windward ran short of coal, and was compelled to use her 'tween decks planking, her foretop gallant mast and bulwarks for fuel.

SUPPRESSING THE YOUNG TURK-

ISH PARTY. London, Oct. 24.-The Standard publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that most sinister stories come regarding the venegance wreaked on the young Turkish party. Various versions are given to what happened to Izzet after his arrest, but it is certain that he was severely tortured in the Yildiz prison before he was removed to the Beshiktach prison, where he was mercilessly beaten on the stomach with clubs in the presence of many witnesses. He was then sent back to Yildiz prison, where he is supposed to have died. It is stated that his wife is insane from grief. It is also stated, although it is impossible to obtain quite satisfactory proof of the assertion, that about 50 of the leading members of the party were arrested on Saturday and conveyed to the school of medicine, where they were summarily tried and executed, nominally for where they were summarily heing guilty of excesses during the re-These strong measures have effectually dampened the ardor of the party, which lacked organization and power necessary to cope with the officials. On Saturday the Sultan had his brothers, Mohammed Munrad Effendi and Mohammed Reshad Effendi brought to Yildiz, where it is be lieved they are still kept. The Sultan's recent vigor has taken the spirit out of his opponents. Referring the new scheme of reform is merely a reiteration of the old law, which has been systematically ignored in the teeth of all the consular reports. The general opinion is that the whole question must soon be reopened.

STEAD ON MONROEISM. London, Oct. 24.-Mr. W. T. Stead has a long article this afternoon in the Westminster Gazette on Monroeism, during the course of which he says: "Englishmen would do well not to belittle the significance of the ebullition of American sentiment on the question of the Venezuelan frontier. It must be taken with the usual discount, and is no doubt due to the system by which foreign affairs are discussed by bawling journalists, rather than by suave diplomats; but it is serious, nevertheless. Its gravity consists in two facts, neither of which have anything to do with the merits of the question in dispute. In the first place, for the first time since the civil war, the Americans have built a navy of which they have some reason to be proud, and which sooner or later they will use against somebody. In the second place, it is equally significant that the American press assures the United States that the Monroe doctrine has been informally adopted as a national faith by the American people, and the dispatch sent to the New York Herald, referring to the reported Bayard-Salisbury interview, probably has a basis of truth.

"Considering the disreputable character of the Venezuelan Government, it seems extraordinary that any civilized power should contemplate such a crime as trusting a peaceable region under the rule or government of Spanish-American adventurers, whose only claim to the sympathy of the United States is that they call their anarchy a republic, and fly a flag which does not fly outside the western hemisphere. We do not fear arbitration; but before it begins, reparation must be made for the high-handed violation of the territory governed by England."

CRASHED INTO THE STATION. Paris, Oct. 24.-A train from Granville entered the Mount Parnesse station last evening at full speed, owing to the failure of the brakes to work. There is a rumor current in Grand Trunk circles at Montreal that in the near future the Brockville and Belleville shops and trainmen's quarters will be removed to Kingston. This yould mean that the Montreal freight gangs, including the passenger enginemen and firemen, who now run to Brockville, would have to run through to Kingston. With the double track almost the entire distance from Montreal to Toronto, this arrangement would be quite feasible, the amount of time occupied to Kingston now by freights being about the same as occupied in reaching Brockville when the road was single-tracked. On Oct. 11 some person placed a 44inch iron scrap (angle splice) on the M. C. R. track near Hewitt, in the township of Wainfleet. A short time after it was placed on the track the pay-car came along, but before the train reached it the obstacle was removed by Samuel Robins. On Oct. 16 the angle splice was again placed on the track and a train struck it. Detective Heenan took the matter in hand and succeeded in arresting John Green, a 14-year-old colored boy. The prisoner was arraigned before Police Magistrate Hellerns and pleaded guilty. He was remanded till Oct. 29 for sentence. Green is a tough young customer. He admits setting fires to fences, which the farmers would claim started from engines.

The Latest Sensation.

How the Resignation of fir. White, M. P. for Cardwell is Viewed.

Conservative Newspaper.

(From the Toronto Star.) If Mr. White resigned his seat in disgust and despair at the Government's procrastination, he cannot be congratulated on his reason, but the incident illustrates the growing dissatisfaction of Conservatives with the half-dozen petty politicians who have seized control of the party and are blindly exploiting their power for their own aggrandizement. is not a hopeful augury of success in

The political sensation of the day is the resignation of Mr. White, M. P. for Cardwell. Mr. White intimates that his business interests necessitate his withdrawal from politics. But few people will accept that as the real reason. The Montreal Gazette does not suffer from the absence of Mr. White when his duties take him to Ottawa. There are very few people who know the circumstances who will not think that the real reason for the resignation is the fact that the Government has refused to make the long-promised appointment of Mr. White to the customs collectorship at Montreal. Mr. White was promised that job years ago; but on one excuse or another, the Government has insisted upon him keeping his seat in the Commons. In view of Sir Mackenzie Bowell's promise to introduce "remedial legislation" and force it through next session, it is easily understood why the Government wishes Mr. White to remain in his seat until that matter is disposed of-his successor would probably vote against the Government's coercion scheme. It is understood that there are several others in exactly the same fix—who have been promised office, but are held in their seats by the Government to insure a majority for the Manitoba coercion bill. The Government cannot afford to shelve these men and take chances on the votes of their

We are informed that even if the British are obliged to fight against a combination—perhaps Turkey and Russia—they will not hesitate a moment, no matter what the cost of the struggle may be. While we deeply sympathize with the down-trodden Armenians, let our thoughts revert for a moment to our own enslaved and suffering people in this Canada of ours. They are numbered by thousands, and are in some respects more to be pitied than the people so cruelly ruled by the bloodthirsty Turks, Instead of armored warships and batteries of modern artillery, as a means of delivery, our suffering people need Paine's Celery Compound, that God-given remedy that makes people well." By the aid of Paine's Celery Compound—that strong deliverer and rescuer—every sick man and woman may soon cast off the chains of disease. The rheumatic, neuralgic and dyspeptic soon find a cure. Headaches, sleeplessness and nervous-ness that make life a burden, are banished forever. All who are nearing the grave from kidney and liver complaint, heart disease and the troubles that arise from impure and poisoned blood. are quickly released from sufferings and agonies; their lives are renewed, happy future placed before them. Are these results and grand physical reforms not worth looking after? A suffering and diseased individual will gladly part with his whole fortune for health. The use of Paine's Celery Compound entails no such sacrifice. In very many cases a few bottles have sufficed to cure people who had been given up by the doctors. The record of Paine's Celery Compound in the past is a perfect guarantee of what it can do for all who seek for a new and better life. ORCANIZED CHARITY.

Ways and Means of the Association's Establishment

Discussed by the Members of the Committee-How the Plan Works in Buffalo-Suggestion by Committee Members.

A meeting of the committee having in hand the consideration of the ways and means of forming the proposed organized association of charities was held in the city hall last evening. Miss Carling and Mrs. Levine were the only ladies present. The gentlemen in attendance were C. F. Complin, Dr. Arnott, T. R. Parker, Frank Plant, Adjutant Taylor, S. A., Warren Rodney, Ald. Wm. Heaman, Ald. Parnell, John Labatt, J. Pocock, Talbot Macbeth, and A. Talbot (secretary). Mr. Complin was chosen chairman.

Letters of regret at inability to attend were read from Ald. Geo. W. Armstrong, Joseph T. Marks, E. N. Tilley and A. Thompson. Mrs. Shuttlewrote declining to act on the committee on account of her time being already so much occupied.

Mr. Complin stated that the meeting was called to take into consideration the financial aspect of the question. He asked Dr. Arnott if he had any suggestions to make.

Dr. Arnott said he had understood that some members were going to write to places where a similar scheme was in operation, and until they received that information he did not know how the committee could proceed. The doctor said that he had heard a good deal at the late meeting about charity overlapping. He did not think it would hurt if some of the cases worthy of charity did receive a little at times. Very often they were subject to a great deal of "underlapping." The organization was not so much to prevent over-lapping as to prevent poverty, and the crime springing therefrom, which was fostered to a great extent by the in-discriminate and sometimes careless method of giving charity. The only financial suggestion he could make was that he knew a number of citizens who would be willing to subscribe for the first year at least. There was no doubt that the organization could be successfully conducted in a place the size of London. It was working successfully in about 200 American cities and towns, some having a population as low as four, five or six thousand. He also advocated the employment of an experienced man, such as an organizing secretary, for a short term in order to launch the organization successfully.

Mr. Talbot Macbeth said that from reading reports of other charity organizations be thought it. izations he thought it could be conducted for $500 or $600 a year.

Mr. Warren Rodney, superintendent of the Barber Paving Company's work in the city rows conducted the state of the state in the city, gave a short outline of the plan of work in vogue in Buffalo. First he said that the committee named to deal with the matter of organizing was altogether too large. He advocated the formation of a sub-committee to draft a plan for raising money. The work in Euffalo was remarkably successful. It was a distributing organization entirely, and included a labor bureau, and men who were registered there were given preference on public works. The first money was raised by contributions from leading merchants. Anyone could become members of the society by paying a fee—$5 for a first-class member-ship and $2 for second-class. T. R. Parker gave an interesting account of the workings of the Children's Aid Society, and the incidents of poverty met with by the society's agent. Mr. J. Pocock, representing the Irish Benevolent Society, said he did not know whether the constitution of the society would permit of its affiliation with the proposed organization. It had been organized primarily to assist unfortunate arrivals from Ireland, and after a while had started the idea of Christmas cheer, principally because the people the society was more in-terested in were given the "cold shouldby. other charitable institutions Mr. Pocock spoke of Mr. Sam Grigg's admirable talents in charitable work, and did not think it necessary to go outside the city for an expert.

Adjutant Taylor, S.A., gave a detailed statement of the work of the Workingmen's Hotel and showed how the moniously together.

T. R. Parker thought that if the organized charities could have a person to do the clerical work of the office that the agent of the Children's Aid Society could be associated with the outside work. The office hand would cost $400 or $500, and Mr. Sanders could be obtained for a couple of hundred dollars. This would make the minimum expense for the year about $700, as an office could be obtained free of charge in the city hall.

Ald. Parnell thought it was a wrong idea to spend a great deal of money in salaries which could be better used for purposes of charity.

Talbot Macbeth said that the visiting and investigating in societies, whose reports he had read, was done by "friendly visitors," free of charge.

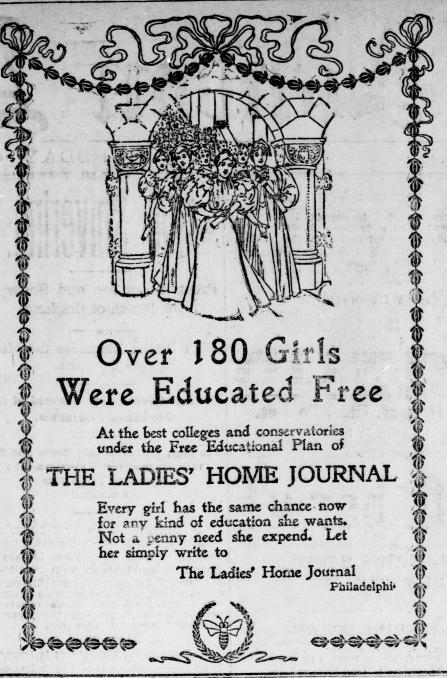

Mr. Parker pointed out that Mr. Sanders was clothed in authority by the Ontario Government, and as a police officer could command respect. He said that a junior clerk could be employed at $25 or $30 a month to do the office work. In reply to a question he said that Mr. Sanders received $450 from the Humane and Children's Aid Societies.

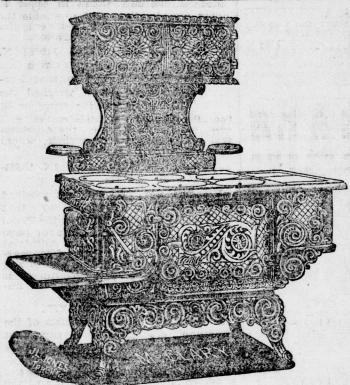

Dr. Arnott said that there was nothing to prevent a smart girl or young man from doing the work at $30 a month-$180 for the six winter months. The other expense could not amount to more than $100, so that for less than $300 the experiment could be tried. If it prevented six men from becoming paupers it was worth $1,000 a

Miss Carling said that there was a balance of $60 or $70 in the bank from last year's charity concert, and it was proposed to hold another concert short-

It was finally decided that Miss Carling and Mrs. Talbot Macbeth, with any other they wish to associate with them, make a canvass to ascertain whether the amount required for immediate work ($300) would be forthcoming, and that the committee meet again on Monday evening in the council chamber. It was also decided to recommend that the membership fee be $1 per annum, instead of $2.

Wilderlee was driven by D. Bell, of Birr; Nellie Bruce being handled by D. A. COPYRIGHT.

There are two main views on the Copyright question, now in dispute between Great Britain and Canada.

The Canadian view, coincided in by both sides in Parliament, is that Canada has a right to make and enforce a Copyright law, and that she should have the same rights with regard to English works as is possessed by the United States. Parliament affirms that English works should be printed in Canada within a reasonable time after they are printed in Great Britain, and that if the works are not so printed in Canada, the Canadian publishers shall have the right to reprint the works, and pay the authors a reasonable royalty.

The British view, as voiced by Herpert Spencer, in the "Advertiser" cables yesterday, is that the demand that British books shall be reprinted in Canada is unreasonable and hurtful, not only to the authors of the old land, but to Canadians themselves. Mr. Spencer affirms that the restriction in the United States, larger market for British works though that country affords, discourages scientific and other authors from publishing books, and thereby hinders the progress of the enlightenment of the race.

Another objection to the contention of Canada that she shall manage her own copyright lies in the fact that if this is conceded, other British colonies will demand a similar right, but in Canada no one takes the objection serlously. This country is a self-governing community, and means to retain its rights no matter what other colonies may do.

CANADA FIRST.

Mr. Laurier, speaking at Merrickville about the Manitoba school ques-

"Upon this question as upon every other question, while I belong to a church whose teachings are mine, let me tell you this: I never shall approach this question, or any other, upon grounds which should appeal to one church, to one creed, or to one race enly. I have the ambition to take my party into power, but if I am to take the Liberal party into power at Ottawa it shall not be by appealing to one creed or to one race or to one church, but it shall be by appealing to the intellect, to the heart, and to the in-telligence of all creeds and races. If I cannot succeed upon these grounds I shall be glad to remain to the end of my days in the cold shades of Opposition. (Cheers.) I am a party man, but above all things, I desire the grandeur and the welfare of this Canada of ours, and this country must be built up upon grounds upon which all Canadians, whatever may have been their origin can unite. This is the their origin, can unite. This is the policy upon which I stand, not only upon this question, but upon all other questions."

AN OLD LONDONER HEARD FROM. The following letter speaks for itself:

To the Editor of the "Advertiser": Having seen quotations from your good old paper, in opposition to the present barbarous system of taxation, which punishes enterprise and rewards indolence, I take the liberty of sending you herewith the copy of an address delivered by me before the Board of Trade of this city, and published and distributed by the leading business houses of this city-a fact in itself which will show you how surely and steadily progress is being made along the line of reform. I send you this address because of the world-wide importance of the subject-partly because of my interest in your city, where I worked for several years, and partly because of my interest in your paper, the "Advertiser," with which I got very well acquainted back about 1881 or 1882. White has had the promise of the having done a lot of work around your building as a carpenter, in the employ of Thomas Green & Co. So the "Advertiser" is an old friend to me. Yours JOHN S. MACLEAN.

Already the wisdom of the city authorities in arranging for keeping clean the asphalt pavement is fully vindicated. When the streets were blocked the dirt was churned into the wood, or down between the blocks, and the public did not feel incommoded. As they look on how quickly filth is gathered on the asphalted street, they begin to wonder how it was possible for so much germ-breeding waste to become packed among the wooden blocks. Medical men tell us that the street refuse of cities, ground into fine powder, and wafted in the face of pedestrians by every passing breeze, causes sore throat and kindred affections to an alarming extent. Keep the asphalt clean.

Referring to the coming Dominion bye-elections in West Huron and Cardwell in Ontario, and Montreal Center and Jacques Cartier in Quebec, the Montreal Gazette says:

"If bye-election verdicts were always reliable, a fair estimate might made as to whether the issuefacing Government or the question-dodging Opposition would come out No. 1 in the general melee."

The Gazette is edited by Mr. R. S. White, ex-M.P. for Cardwell. Mr. vacant collectorship of customs of Montreal for three years, if not longer. He has been put off from year to sick of heart through the procrastincase, it is Mr. White who faces the issue, not the Government at Ottawa. The Gazette has mixed things up. It's a mighty good time to keep quiet. BANISH ANGER AND WORRY. Menticulture; or, the A B C of True

Living. By Horace Fletcher, 12mo. Chicago: A. C. McClurg & Co. This is an interesting and suggestive volume. The author of the book has so divided it that after stating his theory he can demonstrate with clearness the possibility of being abie to eradicate these pestirerous roots, or seats of evil passions, anger and worry, if one wishes to do so. The theory that he advances is based upon a proper estimation of the limitation of mental weaknesses; a discovery that they have roots, and also that they can be pulled out by the roots by mental effort. The idea that he inculcates is that through self-concaused to disappear and happiness and contentment then taking their places, each one will live for the amelioration of his fellow-men; undue selfishness will be banished, and men will be free from the shackles of conventionalities that now bind them hand and foot, and cause them to live false and disastrous lives. As there are physical diseases that spring from well defined and wellknown germs, so the mental diseases of afflictions have their known germs vate cars, provided at the public ex- also, and these germs, the roots of all evil passions, are, he states, anger and worry-anger, the root of all aggressive passions, and worry (or fear), the root of all cowardly passions. He mentions the following phases of anger: "Envy, spite, revenge, impatience, annoyance Among the children of worry he names "jealousy, fear, the belittling of self, the blues, and all the introspective

The successful working of the theory he calls the emancipation of the mindthe production of a mental state in which man rises above and is superior tural and are allowed to control our thoughts and actions. He does not claim his discovery to be a new one, as Christ, Buddha, Aristotle, Omar gested it, but states how a knowledge of it came to him, and the good that it has accomplished and can accomplish. His first recognition of the fact that Female Complaints, physical and mental life may be made healthier and happier by menticulture Biliousness, was due to a study of the character or the Japanese, whose philosophy teaches the Japanese, whose phinosophis them to get rid of anger and worry, them to get rid of anger and worry, Piles obtain a self-control, and so fit themselves to enjoy all that is intended for our enjoyment.

His theory, while it may seem to suggest that of the Christian scientists, is not the same, as it does not, and is not intended to, cure, bodily ills that are not caused by the diseased condition of the mind. A reading of this compact and attractive book may bring clearly before the reader the unperceived bondage in which he has allowed himself to dominated.

POISONED BY IVY.

Mr. Scott Picked Its Brilliant Leaves-His Children Escaped Injury.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Ephraim Scott, of 28 Le Count Place, died at his home Monday morning, after nearly three weeks of severe suffering, which originated from ivy poisoning. The immediate cause of death was

Mr. Scott went into the woods with his two young children three weeks ago. The place where they strolled is known here as Jerusalem. It is only a short distance from the village. Poison ivy grows there in great profusion.
The ivy leaves turn gold and conson with the very earliest frosts, at the first thing the children noticed of the woods were the vines running along the stone walls. The bright colors attend them, at once because the tracted them at once, because the leaves on most of the trees and shrubs were still green. The children at once asked their father to be allowed to gather the vines and take them home. Scott consented, and helped the children select the brightest sprigs. Bunches of the vine were carried home. Charles, Mr. Scott's oldest son, when he reached home and saw the ivy, at once told his father that the vine was poison. Mr. Scott, however, felt no alarm. The poison began to take effect Monday morning in the usual way, on the hands. It did not cause serious trouble to the children. hands, however, became very badly af-fected, and in two days erysipelas developed, and spread over the arms. The erysipelas in turn gave way to eczema. Scott's sufferings became intense, and continued until his death.

THERAPEUTIC ASPECT OF GOLF. In the current number of the Cale-donian Medical Journal, Dr. Macleod, of Beverley, has an interesting, pithily own absolute intrinsic merit.

It is not what we say, but

The triangle of the strength of the what Hood's Sarsaparilla relation to the maintenance of health. The consideration of this point is the more important at the time youth is passing off and middle age approach-

"When the stern part of life has to be faced," urges Dr. Macleod, "and the body is no longer able to games: the effort of the more active games; or when the sedentary employment of the day tends to make the circulation and the muscles unfit for calls upon them, the active recreations lose their charm; obesity and degeneration claim their sway. It is not only that golf preserves the physical parts of the body by exercising the muscular structures, but it has its good effects on mental processes apt to deteriorate along with them. It helps to preserve the reflex balance of concerted action between eye, brain and muscle; it cul-tivates precision of movement—both apt to blunt early—and it very greatly exercises the faculties of patience and self-restraint. The man who is daily exposed to the worries of business finds himself strengthened to endure them by the constant restraint he has to put on his temper during the various incidents of the game, or finds a vast relief from them by being able to explode his brooding wrongs with hearty energy on a ball. There is, besides, no stimulant equal in exhilarating qualities to the joy of a successful drive, the recollection of which alone will do a man good for a week. Memory is much cultivated by the game, and it gives ample employment to the imagination and invention. "The physical benefits to middle-aged and busy men, especially those engaged in town and sedentary occupations, are many. Golf is played either on ozone-producing seaside links, or on some wind-swept moorland; failing these, on a common which is a breezy

Most golfers are good fellows, and there is a 'masonry' between them that no other game fosters. Social asperiinterests of the game, and many lasting friendships date from a chance match. The Youngest Electric Railway Man-

Railway Review's Reference to an Energetic Londoner.

The Electric Railway Review of New York has the following in its last issue:

"Mr. Charles E. A. Carr, of London, Ont., is said to be the youngest manager of an electric railway in America. Besides his work at the manager's desk, Mr. Carr's duties include those of treasurer of the company as well as electrical engineer. He was born in 1870 near Barrie, in Simcoe county, Ont., and he attended the schools of that town. He completed his education in Toronto, and engaged for a short time in mercantile work, but his inclinations led him to accept a position in the office of the city engineer of Toronto, and he gained, while employed in this department, a practical knowledge of civil engineering. While he was in this office he was brought into familiar association with street railway matters. He was one of the party of city hall attaches who made the famous midnight demand for the surrender of the local railway to the municipality. When the railway system was turned over by the city to the present street railway company Mr. Carr was assigned to the task of checking up the property included in the transfer. In January, 1893, he accepted the position of private secretary to Mr. Henry A. Everett, then manager of the Toronto Street Railway Company, which had decided to equip its system for elec-tric traction. During his connection with the company Mr. Carr gained a practical knowledge of electric railway installation which has since stood him in good stead. He was appointed manager of the London Street Railway run the chance of getting poor and he has since that time been engaged in substituting electricity for animal power on the lines. Catharine Lane Asks to be Sent to the Mercer Reformatory.

She Gets Twenty Months-Half a Year for Stealing a Suit-Catharine Jones Discharged-Isaac Bird's Threat.

Catharine Lane, a delicate looking little girl of about 18 years, without a home or a friend in the world, was in the Police Court yesterday, and asked to be sent to the Mercer Reformatory at Toronto. She was charged with vagrancy. Though very young in years, the girl has suffered great hardships. She was born in England, but several seasons ago was brought to Canada with a large number of English girls and placed in a home. She left the home in a short time, and after roaming around for a while, entered the city hospital for treatment. There she met Wm. Lane, a chap of 20, and on recovering from their illness the two were married. Lane had no home for her; in fact he had hardly a cent to his name, but he had nerve and took his wife out to his heather in law. his wife out to his brother-in-law, Alfred Hall, of London township. Hall drives a dray. Lane did anything he could get to do, but he never seemed overworked. Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Lane didn't agree, and there was trouble almost from the start. Finally things became so interesting that Mrs. Lane left them and had her husband arrested for assault. Since then she has roamed to and fro until last night, when she was arrested at 12 o'clock while wandering the streets. She was given twenty months in the Mercer at Toronto. Richard Woods was up for sentence for stealing a suit of clothes from George Elson, of the Boswell House. He had nothing to say and got six months in the Central. Both charges were withdrawn, as to make out the cases the crown would have to summon several ladies living in Mrs. Jones' neighborhood. drinking.

Isaac W. Bird, of 414 Hill street, a young colored man, was arrested on the receipt of a telephone message from the hospital, to the effect that he was going to cut his throat. Isaac, however, stated that he had threatened to cut his wife's throat. "She has not been behaving properly," he told

True it's a low price, but that's what we've aimed at. We have desired to give our patrons a firstclass quality dress at a low-down price. We have succeeded, and instead of giving only the bare material at the above price we put in six yards skirt lining, two yards waist yards skirt lining, two yards waist lining, two yards canvas, threequarter yard fibre, one pair shields, one cotton spool, one silk spool, one that-just as they should be. 149-15 Dundas St. Automatic Fire Protection

Saved the London Furniture Company's Buildings From Destruction.

Street Car Runs Over and Destroys Hose-Loss Less Than $1,000, Principally by Water-Cause

Unknown. The London Furniture Company escaped serious damage by fire Tuesday principally through an admirable arrangement of automatic fire extinguishers. The fire was first noticed about 8 o'clock by a young man in charge of Young's livery stable. He hurried across the road and gave the alarm to the men at No. 1 station. As the fire was in a very dangerous locality and the building very inflammable, a general alarm was turned in and the companies summoned from the two outlying stations. The fire, owing to the automatic sprinking arrangement, had not obtained very great headway when detected. At no time was it out of control, but it required about an hour's work to completely subdue it. As near as can be ascertained, the fire originated underneath a work bench on the third floor. It burnt through the floor to the second story, and by means of a hole for conveying piping it communicated to the fourth flat, but did very little damage there. The ceilings of every room in the building are traversed by water pipes. As soon as the heat reaches a certain temperature the openings melt and the sprinklers automatically play on the fire below. Water at considerable pressure is supplied from a mammoth tank, which is higher than the roof itself. These sprinklers, it seems, were in active operation when the firemen broke open a window to turn on a stream, and they probably had been working for some time. Without their aid in checking the progress of the flames it is hard to say where the blaze would have ended. The automatic system was put in eight years ago.

During the course of the fire a trolley car ran over a hose which was connected with a hydrant at the Masonic Temple corner. The line was almost completely cut in two, and had the fire been burning fiercely the effect of the loss of the stream might have been costly. Although the corner is electric lighted the motorman says he did not see the hose, which is almost the same color as the pavement.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Manager Greaves says the loss will be less than $1,000. What damage there is was caused principally by water; the fire loss being practically nil. The building is fully insured.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles! SYMPTOMS-Moisture; intense itching and stinging; mostly at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. Swayne's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia, Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents.

MONTREAL.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—There has been no improvement in the situation of the live stock trade abroad since our last; in fact, cable advices today were of a more discouraging nature, and the bulk of the sales reported of both cattle and sheep showed losses to the shippers. The prospects for the future at present are not very encouraging, especially for sheep, as the shipments from this port show a large increase, there having been sent forward during the past two weeks over 34 000 head, which will probably have a further depressing effect on the market when they are landed, and especially so if any of the vessels are stopped on account of the scab disease, but it is to be hoped, for the interest of the trade at large, that they will all be passed. A large percentage of the sheep that are being shipped are Northwest stock. The shipments of Ontario cattle at present are small, and it is stated that there is not more than 600 to 800 head of choice stock left in the country to go forward, and it is a well-known fact that the bulk of the space at present is being filled with Northwest ranch and Manitoba stock. The local markets today were quiet and without any new feature of note. There was no export business done, as the stock offered was only fit for butchers' use, and some of it was not even good enough for them. In sheep trade was only fairly active, shippers holding off on account of the bad cable reports of late. The feature of the ocean freight market has been the advance in Liverpool rates owing to a temporary scarcity of space, and the ruling figures now are 45s to 50s for cattle and 55s for

FREE RAW MATERIAL

Wherein the Legitimate Manufactories of Canada Are Injured.

There is a tax upon the raw material of the iron manufacturer, a tax of $4 a ton on pig-iron, and this represents. under certain figures given to us by the Minister of Finance, a duty of no less than 66 per cent. Do you imagine that | interest. the manufacturers of iron benefit by a duty of 66 per cent put against them? I know, however, that these figures are disputed. I read an article in the Mail and Empire, in which that paper says I am all wrong in my figures, that the duty on pig-iron does not amount to 66 per cent, but amounts to 31 per cent. Very well, I accept the statement. I speech, paying the warmest tributes to the will not go through the figures. Let us suppose the duty on pig-iron or raw material is only 31 per cent. Do you believe that the iron manufacturer has much to be satisfied and thankful for to the Government when the Government taxes his raw material only 31 per cent? I say that the raw material of the manufacturer ought to be free, but here we are not to have that, because raw material is taxed 31 per cent. Let us see how that works out. The duty upon agriculture implements is 20 per cent. That is the duty that the manufacturer of agricultural implements has upon the finished article. But if he has against him 31 per cent on the raw material do you think he is benefited by the tariff? I venture to say that the national policy instead of benefiting the manufacturer has injured the honest, bona fide manufacturer. It has helped the monopolists and the combines, I don't deny, but it has injured almost every other in-dustry. In the interest of the manu-facturer I denounce the N.P., in the interest of the farmer I denounce the revenue tariff which will make as far as it is possible all raw materials free to the manufacturers of Canada, and of Galt, especially, will be in a better posiare today to buy and

CHAPTER XVI.-JOHN MARTIN'S

"I am the chief of police of Denby, and a deputy sheriff," added the stran-ger. "I was given to understand that would make no resistance to "Of course not," responded Mr. Warren sadly, with his thoughts on his wife and daughter. "Your name is Williams, isn't it?" Yes; you've heard of me, I sup-

"I have. When must I go?" 'Immediately."

Mr. Warren knew little about the policeman save that he was a new man the office, and rumor had had it that he was over-eager to signalize his administration by a great number of arrests. In fact, he was a shrewd, lous man, ambitious, too, and very naturally, therefore, given to exalting his importance somewhat. This comes at a most unfortunate time," said Mr. Warren.

"Arrests for murder are not usually happy events, I find," remarked Chief Williams, sententiously. He did not add that this was the nearest he had ever come to making an arrest for murder. Mr. Warren's eyes flashed a little resentfully as he responded: "If any justice had sent me word that I was wanted to answer for the assault on Freeman Dutton I would have hitched up and gone without waiting to be arrested." That isn't the way our business is

"I know 'tisn't; I was just trying to show you how I stand. It doesn't hurt me to be taken up on this charge, but here is the situation: not only is the wounded man in my house, with my vife nursing him, but within an hour has been discovered that my only daughter has been carried off, and those of us who understand the circumstances are convinced that her abductors are the parties responsible for the assault and the setting fire to-I suppose you've got that in the indictment, haven't you?" "This isn't an indictment; it's a warrant." Well, it's the same to me." "You are charged, if you want to know, with setting fire to a house on Baker Mountain."

That's the least of my troubles, Chief Williams, that and the charge of assault. It'll go hard to be taken away, though, while the search for my daughter is unfinished."

The chief was thinking hard. He not the slightest notion of complying with the accused man's coming equest, but he scented possible glory himself in this new crime. What if he should remain and effect a capture of Miss Warren's abductors? It would be a great deed for his record.

On the other hand, there was the justice in Denby who had agreed to hold a special session late in the afternoon or evening for the sake of a preliminary examination of this man charged with a crime that might be murder provided only that the victim should die. To send his subordinate back to Denby with the prisoner would to deprive himself of a great deal of immediate prestige on the slender chance of accomplishing something sensational here in the wilderness. "Who's making this search?" asked

Pretty much the whole village." replied Mr. Warren. "I suppose there's twenty of 'em all told."

That settled it with Chief Williams. If the girl should be found with any such party as that in the field, the would be divided, to say the Moreover, there might be a way to get not only the glory of conducting a supposed murderer to prison, but to take a hand in the search for abductors, too.

"I also want to find one James King." said the chief of police, con-sulting his warrant. "There's nobody at his house. Do you know where he

"He started off with the others to try and find my girl."

"Ah! Well, Jackson," and he turned to his assistant in the buggy, "I don't see but what I'll have to leave you here to serve the witness, King." "All right," responded Jackson, indifferently.

"Come into the house, chief," said Warren, well knowing that his wife must even now be aware of the nature of this man's visit. "I must get ready and let my wife know about it."

Williams followed Mr. Warren into the sitting room a little disappointed. He would have preferred some blustering, some display of temper, such as he had heard that Mr. Warren had already shown in connection with the affair. There seemed to be no especial credit to be attached to the rendition of a man who took his arrest as quietly as if it were an invitation to sup-

"This is Mr. Williams, of Denby, Martha," said Mr. Warren, when his wife came in. "He's the chief of police there, and he wants me to go with him. He has a warrant for my

"Well," said his wife, linking her arm in his and pressing it gently, "I suppose you'll have to go."

The chief was a good deal taken aback at the wife's calmness, and he was not without some sense of appreciation of the situation. He hastened to say, in an awkward manner: "I think I understand how you feel, Mrs. Warren, and I'm sorry to have to give you pain; but the law is my master and I must do my duty."

"I don't think," returned Mrs. Warren, simply, "that you understand how I feel at all. You don't give me the slightest pain, and, of course, you must do your duty."

Williams stared. This was entirely beyond his comprehension. He had arrested several thieves in the presence of their wives, and the women had taken on so that he felt himself quite a Spartan in conveying their husbands to the lockup. Even the wife of a man arrested for wife-beating had cried bitterly when the brute was led away from her presence to the prison pen. "I am sorry that this couldn't have come a little later, Nicholas, if it must come," said Mrs. Warren, putting both her arms to his neck.

"Yes," he responded, "that's the hard part of it. The Lord only knows how long I shall have to be away, and poor Elsie-"

His voice quavered. "I shall send you news of her just as soon as there is any," she whis-"I'll get Will to ride after you on Mr. Springer's best horses." turning to Williams she said: "Is it so very necessary that he should re-turn with you at once?" "I have no right to allow any de-lay," he answered stiffly. "The court waits for him."

"Indeed! I am not familiar with such matters, but do not police offleers usually search for all the evidence that can be had of the crime for which they are making an arrest?" "Certainly, Mrs. Warren, but I have not come with a search warrant. It wasn't thought to be necessary in the face of the evidence in our posses-"No?" The good lady spoke with rare sweetness of voice and perfect composure. "You don't need any warrant with us, though, of course, you didn't know that. The injured man is here. Don't you wish to see him?" "I suppose I'd better," replied Williams, in increasing wonder, and he followed Mrs. Warren into the sick room, Mr. Warren going with them. "Tell me one little thing," continued Mrs. Warren, as they stood at the bed-"Is it not sometimes the case that the police officer takes the accused into the presence of the victim and asks the victim to identify the accused as his assailant?"

"Yes, indeed," responded the chief.
"That is often done when there is any doubt in the matter."

"Do you mean to tell me, sir," and Mrs. Warren's voice grew stern, "that there is no doubt in this case?" "Well, of course, there's always a doubt unless a man is seen to do it," answered Williams, feeling very awkward and uncomfortable; "a man is supposed to be innocent until he's proved guilty." "Then I want to ask, without meaning to give offense, why you have not adopted that method in this case? Here is the victim of an assault, there stands my husband, accused.

don't you confront the victim with him and ask him about it?" The chief answered with some im-"You ask me that while the victim lies unconscious. We suppose that it is only a question of a few hours when he will be dead, and that there is no hope of his regaining consciousness." "Indeed! Mr. Golding told you that, I suppose?"

You may read the warrant if you want to. Mr. Golding is a witness. "I don't care to. The fact is, how-ever, that Mr. Dutton will probably He was conscious a halfhour ago, and spoke to us. The excitement over my daughter's disappearance broke him down again, but have no doubt that if you should wait a while he will awake, and then you can know to a certainty whether

Warren committed the assault or Williams hesitated. He had not been informed of Dutton's condition in such terms as to make him suppose that there was any hope of the man's recovery. He had more than half expected to find Dutton dead. For an instant he suspected that Mrs. Warren was trying to deceive him for the purpose of creating delay, and for that matter it was a part of the loyal wife's purpose to keep the officer there as long as possible, for it was dreadful to think of her husband going away without word of Elsie. This suspicion, however, the chief dismissed, for he was not only a keen observer, but he reasoned that Mrs. Warren would not dare to make this statement as a mere bluff.

"If she was afraid Dutton would incriminate her husband," he thought,

"she would not take the risk."
Aloud he said: "In any event I am bound to bring your husband before the court now that the warrant has issued. I have no right to wait for the experiment you suggest."

'Then we'll try it now." Mrs. Warren laid her hand on Dut-drowsily. "Will you ask him?" whispered Mrs. Warren, eagerly.

Considerably excited for a police officer, Williams leaned over the foot of the bed and said:

"Mr. Dutton, I am an officer. Did this man, Nicholas Warren, attack

you or in any way cause your injuries?" A faint smile flitted across Dutton's face, he shook his head very slightly, and again closed his eyes.

Williams was seriously disturbed. It looked as though he were not arresting a murderer after all. But there was the warrant, and there would be the temporary glory of bringing in his prisoner, even if he had to let him go again. "I must execute this warrant," he said sharply. "Come, Mr. Warren." Neither husband nor wife made any further attempt to create delays. Each felt that the sooner now he was taken to court the sooner would he be released, and but for Elsie they would have parted cheerfully.

"You must ask Will to stay here to-night," said Mr. Warren, when he bade her good-bye. Williams directed his assistant, Jackson, to remain until the search-ing party came home, and then to proceed to Denby with King.

"It wouldn't surprise me," the chief whispered, "if I got back here myself tonight. There may be a good deal of business for us in that girl affair. And so Mr. Warren was taken to the county seat to answer to the charge of attempting to murder Freeman

When the score of villagers who set out to rescue Elsie had crossed the road and stood on the top of one of the low hills that overlooked nearly the whole interval called the meadows, John Martin took Elsie's hat and a shoe that belonged to her, and excited the dogs to sniff at them.

In a moment the hounds dashed away down the hill and did not slacken pace until they came to the spot where Will had picked up the hat. There a moment of what seemed to be confusion on the part of the dogs occurred, and the villagers caught up. The pause was not a long one, how-ever, and away went the hounds again, as confident apparently as be-

Then all at once they yelped and wheeled about and searched the ground for rods around, finally striking a scent only to retrace their course. They had come to the spot where Wanga had taken Elsie in his arms.

The villagers were greatly puzzled. "If it had been the edge of a brook said one of them, "there'd be nothing surprising in it, but no one's going to suppose that Elsie flew away from that place, and Silver Brook is at least a hundred yards away."
Will overheard this comment, and the truth flashed upon him. He went

"Esie must have been picked up here," he said; "can't the dogs take the scent of the men who carried her?" "They may get on to it in a minute," replied Martin, who was watching the antics of the hounds with dissatisfac-

It seemed presently as if they had indeed taken a second scent, for they proceeded straight to the brook, but a dog follows a known quarry. As they came among the trees bordering the brook, they raised their snouts to should be interfered with? Second, the low bushes and sniffed and bayed | would interference give a just or fair as if there they had found a trace. "If she was carried," said Martin critically, "her feet or skirts may have scraped the bushes." At the edge of the brook the dogs not down, and whining.

"There's something wrong," mutter-ed Martin. "How long ago'd you say 'twas, Billy?" "It can't be much more than an

"Well, then, if anybody waded the stream, specially carrying a girl, 'tain't likely he'd go far without getting onto land again. Some of you cross the brook and some stay on this side. 'Tain't likely he went down stream, for that would bring him to the open meadows and take to the village. So you fellows go along the banks, and look sharp for wet grass or bushes. One drop may tell the story. So keep your eyes open."

The party separated as suggested, and after a few minutes a cry came from the men on the same side of the stream on which Martin stood with his dogs.

"'Twould be a good trick," he remarked, "if a man was to pretend to cross the stream and yet come out on same side he went in.'

He gave the leash by which he held the dogs, having caught them when they turned back, to one of the villagers, and examined the ground and bushes where the man who had cried out stood. It was in deep shade, for they had followed the stream into the edge of the forest. There was more than one tell-tale drop of water in evidence upon the ground and vines.

"This is where he came out," declared Martin, in a satisfied tone; "let's have the dogs."

They were led to him, and he tried to excite them to the fresh scent. They drew back whining, and made as if they would break away. Martin cuffed them and abused them for worthless mongrels, until at last, seeming to prefer the distasteful scent to his punishment, they took after it, and he slipped the leash.

The dogs crept along-it could not be said that they ran—while the villa-gers followed, amazed at their beha-

All at once both gave loud yelps of terror, abandoned the scent, leaved away and bolted, tails down, as fast as they could go. The villagers saw a small snake wriggling slowly along the line of the scent.

'You thundering cowards!" howled Martin, in a furious rage, as he drew a revolver; "turn tail at an adder, would you!" and he shot after the flying brutes, an answering yelp testifying to the accuracy of his aim. (To be Continued Tomorrow.)

Remarkable Record of Prisoners Who Did Not Survive Imprisonment.

Fatal Illness No Bar to Continued Incarceration.

All Going to Show How Connelly and McGreevy Were Specially Favored.

An Ottawa dispatch says: That the Government are extremely sensitive to any reference to the release from prison of Messrs, N. K. Connolly and Thomas McGreevy was shown by Sir Hibbert Tupper's ludicrous action in telegraphing Mr. Laurier. Well might the Liberal leader tell him to search the prisons and he would find numbers of prisoners whose health would be better outside. Mr. Laurier might have pointed to the case of Donald Morrison, who was only released the day before he died, notwithstanding petitions for elemency and medical certificates. He might, too, have referred the Minister of Justice to an official return laid before Parliament by the Department of Justice, showing that luring the last ten years 143 convicts have died in prison, an average of fourteen per annum. None of these were released, although for months they labored under the grip of fatal diseases. Why was Narcisse Beliuge allowed to stay for seven months in the prison hospital dying? Why was Edwin Paquin allowed to die in prison of consumption when he had to be kept for four months in the hospital? Another convict died by inches of consumption, having spent a whole year in the hospital. Sir Hibbert Tuper asks the public to bear in mind the pain endured by Mr. Connolly with a bad ear for a few weeks, but what about Robert Welsh, who was kept in prison, although dying of consumption, for a year, and actually nine months in the hospital? What of Joseph Livingstone, who was known to be afflicted with heart disease, and yet allowed to die in prison? Sir Hibbert Tupper justifies the release of his political associates because Mr. Mc-Greevy could not sleep as well as usual. But why, if this was good ground for release, was C. Van Allen allowed to die in prison of a fatal disease of long standing, and Nelson Ransome and Edward Tate and Jas. Desmore and John Sullivan and a hundred others? Were these men unfortunate anough not to have that police. fortunate enough not to have that political influence referred to by Mr. Jus-tice Rose, when asked to report upon the petition for elemency in the cases of McGreevy and Connoily? Here are the words used by the judge who pre-sided at the trial: "There remained two questions that seem to me of rather serious moment: First, would interference with the sentence introduce uncertainty in the administration of justice generally? Is it better that there was no life in their chase, none of the vigorous enthusiasm with which of their imprisonment than that after

There was nothing in the trial, verdict or sentence that warrants me in recom-mending interference." That was Judge Rose's report. His Lorship ap-prehended that the administration of justice would suffer from the impression that men with a pull could get out of prison, while men without wealth or friends are allowed to die in prison of organic disease, which gives timely warning of the approach

Is Bicycle Riding Injurious? There is a possibility that the fervor exhibited by all classes for the bicycle carries with it an element of danger. Exercise is essential to vigorous health, but in disesase or in those cases where the muscular force is greatly reduced the use of the wheel should be employed cautiously. The proprietors of the very well-known remedy, Putnam's Corn Extractor, attribute the largeness of their sales not to the use of the bicycle by the people of Canada, but to the absolute certainty of their preparathe absolute certainty of their prepara-tion to remove the most painful and obstinate corns in twenty-four hours. GET YOUR PENCIL. Says the Regina Standard:

The following arithmetical problem is No. 2 on the second-class paper at the recent teachers' examination: A person sets out to walk from A to B at the rate of four miles an hour. After he has walked 1 2-3 miles he is overtaken by the coach which started fifteen minutes after him. Thirteen miles from A he meets the coach returning from B, where it has stayed for half an hour. Find the distance from A to B.

It has been characterized a puzzle by knowing ones, and declared incapable of solution. One of the sub-examiners came to the rescue and solved it to his own satisfaction. Over the initials "J. C." he published a solution in one of the Calgary papers. He gives the answer, 20 1-4 miles. For this "J. R. C.," another Calgary correspondent, scores him thus: "When men like Mr. J. C. are allowed to sit on the examining board things have come to a pretty pass in educational affairs. What the candidates expect and what they are at least entitled to at the hands of the examiners, is justice. When one of the examining body cannot solve a simple problem, and through whose stupidity some of the candidates have probably been plucked, it is high time a radical change was made in the present sys-

A LONDONER OUT WEST.

He Listens to a New Preacher Who is Coming to This City.

Reflections on Prairie Fires, the Dairy Outlook, and the School Question

(Special Correspondence of the "Advertiser."

Winnipeg, Oct. 21. Your correspondent had the pleasure of hearing Rev. James Pedley in this city. He was making a short stay, breaking the journey from Vancouver to London, where he takes charge of the First Congregational Church on November 1. He filled his brother's pulpit last Sunday, and to do that in the larger sense is a great deal, as there are few more acceptable preachers in the west than Rev. Hugh Pedley. The brothers resemble each other in many respects. Both are small of stature, but large in mind and heart. Mr. James being the younger has not acquired the ease of manner or poetry of expression the elder brother is so dangerous sport to indulge in. It seems incredible that men will violate law and risk so much to gratify a whim or even to destroy a local nuisance. Every year damage is caused by these fires and the majority are started to burn off surplus straw. This year they have been more numerous and extensive, both man and beast falling a prey to the rushing flame. It may be there is need to summarily get rid of Manitoba's surplus grain. At all events wheat stacks containing some fifty thousand bushels, besides thousands of tons of hay have gone up in smoke. Thrashers report a much better yield than even our great expectations anticipated. Had Jack Frost not nipped the golden pickle in some sections, this year's effort would have been a record breaker. An American buying cheese and butter for an English firm, throughout Manitoba, tells me that where an Ontario trained cheesemaker has been employed, the product compares favorably with eastern make, but unfortunately a few inexperienced makers have been engaged and off cheese is the result. I have studied the aptitudes of this country for dairying and believe when close settlement is realized, and suitable buildings erected, the west will snatch the laurels from the east in the production of high grade cheese and butter. Out here there is not the surface agitation noticable in the east over the school question. A stag at bay might represent the attitude of a majority of the people, only they do not feel chased hard enough to make the death stand or conquer. If there is or ever should be a real grievance under which any minority should suffer, the western people can be depended on to deal fairly. They are not narrow or bigoted but hopeful and independent. hopeful and independent. To my mind a policy of coercion would be madness,
