

THOUSANDS PAY THEIR TRIBUTES TO DEAD POPE

Body of Pope Lies in State in Sistine Chapel of the Vatican.

MASSES ARE CELEBRATED Sacred College To Meet Next Week To Elect a Successor.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The exact hour of the death of Pope Benedict XV. at the Vatican Saturday night has not yet been fully established.

At 2:22 p.m. Saturday afternoon Reuters' News Service, recognized since its inception as the most reliable of all European news services, in a dispatch to Berlin, relayed from that city to London, England, and from thence to The London Advertiser, announced the death of the pontiff. Ten minutes later this advice was corroborated in an E. O. S. Bulletin received by the Canadian Press.

It was by this means that The London Advertiser was enabled to publish an extra at 3:10 p.m. Saturday afternoon. Thirty hours ahead of any other London newspaper, and a few minutes earlier than Toronto newspapers, in forming the public of the passing of his holiness.

At 3:10 p.m. in London, Ontario, it is 9:30 a.m. in Rome, and an official dispatch from the Vatican received here Sunday day night insists that the pontiff died at 5:59 a.m., or 11:34 p.m. Saturday night in London, Ontario.

Reuters' News Service still insists, however, that the original dispatch is correct.

Rome, Jan. 23.—In the Basilica of St. Peter's historic church of his faith, the body of Pope Benedict XV lay in state today while vast throngs passed reverently before the catafalque.

Early in the day the body of the late pontiff, whose death in the early hours of Sunday plunged the church throughout the world into deepest mourning, was taken to the Sistine Chapel from the throne room of the Vatican, where it had been placed on Sunday shortly after his death. Then, at 9:45 o'clock it was solemnly carried to St. Peter's, attended by a procession of cardinals, priests, members of the diplomatic corps and dignitaries of the Vatican and placed on the catafalque, surrounded by votive candles.

Word was given that the public of Rome would be admitted to St. Peter's up to 11 o'clock, and immense crowds immediately began entering the vast edifice and filing by the body of the dead pontiff.

The body of the pope is robed in white, with stole and chasuble of red, embroidered with gold. The head, wearing the pontifical mitre, reposes upon cushions of red and gold velvet. The hands, wearing the pontifical gloves of purple silk and holding the rosary, are clasped over the breast. The body, as it was solemnly brought into St. Peter's, was borne upon a red-covered bier by ushers clad in medieval costumes of scarlet. The procession was headed by the gendarmes of the Vatican, the pontifical police, with their elaborate uniforms of blue and white, walking with drawn swords.

Following them were the palatine guards, in dark blue uniforms and plumes of black feathers standing erect.

Successor Will Be Chosen Next Week

Rome, Jan. 23.—The meeting of the Sacred College in conclave to elect a successor to the late pope will open Feb. 1 or Feb. 2, it was said today.

Cardinal Merry Del Val, who is among the possibilities as successor to the late pope, visited Canada in 1896. He went as papal delegate to report on the adjustment of the claims of the Canadian bishops, to separate Catholic schools in Manitoba, with the policy of the provincial and Dominion governments.

On the report which he made to the Holy See, Leo XIII. issued the famous letter to the Catholics of

Charges School Board Ignores Catholic Rights

BISHOP FALLON CLAIMS ACTION WAS 'UNSEEMLY'

Thinks the London Trustees Moved With Undue Haste in Passing Resolution.

SEES INTOLERANT STAND

Diocesan Head in Open Letter Explains Agitation For Taxation Changes.

Bishop M. F. Fallon, London, in an open letter to the boards of education of Toronto and London, accuses the former of basing its resolution, opposing the effort of Catholics to secure a revision of the assessment act, on misinformation, and the local board of "unseemly haste" in adopting the resolution, when not a member of it was acquainted with the facts.

"They gave no attention to the merits of the case," says the bishop in discussing the action of the London Board.

"They showed no consideration for the rights or opinions of their Catholic fellow-citizens, whose school taxes none the less they to a considerable extent expend.

"With little knowledge of the question in issue, and less reflection upon it, can they successfully influence public opinion in the ways of unreasoning intolerance?" asks the Bishop.

"Taxation without representation is tyranny," declares the Catholic prelate, in discussing the local high school situation, referring to the battle to decide whether London would have one or three high schools, Catholics having to contribute to the building of schools, but having no vote whatever in the matter.

The resolution passed by the two boards is dissected by the bishop, clause by clause. Some of the statements contained in the resolution, he brands untrue, in others, he says that Toronto Board set up its own man of straw to mow down. He contends that the separate schools are not seeking new rights, as the resolution sets forth, and asks if it is fair, praying for the remedy of certain educational grievances under which they claim to suffer, and asking for the legal definition of their educational rights as guaranteed to them at the time of confederation. Their petition was couched in the following terms:

"Whereas under the British North America act, which is the constitution of Canada, the educational rights in the matter of denominational schools of the Protestant minority in Lower Canada and of the Roman Catholic minority in Upper Canada, were guaranteed by solemn compact, and

"Whereas amongst these rights are the full development of the common school system and the equitable division of the school taxes of minorities, and the proportional distribution of all school grants; and

"Whereas the school system of the Roman Catholic minority of the province of Ontario is deprived of the legal machinery necessary for its complete functioning, and

"Whereas the Catholic school system of Ontario does not receive its just and proper share of certain school taxes and school grants; and

"Whereas the spirit of the constitution pertaining to denominational schools is fully carried out in the province of Quebec, where all schools receive their fair and just proportion of all rates and taxes, and are given equal facilities for their full development.

"Therefore, the undersigned respectfully request the government and the Legislature of Ontario to enact such legal measures as will put the Roman Catholic minority of this province in the full enjoyment of its educational rights under the constitution.

"No reasonable objection can be taken to the interest thus manifested by Catholics in the welfare of their schools.

"On the other hand, Catholics readily admit the right of their non-Catholic fellow-citizens to oppose their views.

Repeats Resolution.

"That such opposition may conduce to the supporters of both sections to an equitable solution satisfactory to our common school system, it

FAVORS PLAN FOR EXTENSION OF SEAWAYS

President Harding Discusses Feasibility of St. Lawrence-Great Lakes Project.

HIGHLY ADVANTAGEOUS

Would Enable Ocean-Going Vessels to Have Access to Inland Ports.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Feasibility of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterways project "is unquestioned," President Harding declared today before the National Agricultural Conference. "I have spoken," the president said, "of the advantage which Europe enjoys because of its easy access to the sea, the cheapest and surest transportation facility. In our own country is presented one of the world's most attractive opportunities for extension of the seaway many hundred miles inland. The heart of the continent, with its vast resources in both agriculture and industry, would be brought in communication with all the ocean routes by the execution of the St. Lawrence waterway project. To enable ocean-going vessels to have access to all the ports of the Great Lakes would have a most stimulating effect upon the industrial life of the continent's interior.

"The feasibility of the project is unquestioned, and its cost, compared with some other great engineering works, would be small. Disorganized and prostrate, the nations of central Europe are even now setting their hands to the development of a great continental waterway, which, connecting the Rhine and Danube, will bring water transportation from the Black to the North Sea, from Mediterranean to Baltic. If nationalistic prejudices and economic difficulties can be overcome by Europe they certainly should not be formidable obstacles to an achievement less expensive and giving promise of yet greater advantage to the peoples of North America. Not only would the cost of transportation be greatly reduced but a vast population would be brought overnight in immediate touch with the markets of the entire world.

Development of a thorough code of law and business procedure, with the proper machinery of finance, to assure the farmer as generous a supply of working capital on as reasonable terms as is granted to other industries was advocated by the president. He told the conference that "concerning the grim reality of the present crisis in agriculture there can be no differences of opinion among informed people."

"The depressions and discouragements," he continued, "are not peculiar to agriculture and I think it fair to say there could have been no avoidance of a great slump from wartime excesses to the hardships of readjustment."

FIND WOMAN THOUGHT TO HAVE SLAIN SELF

New York, Jan. 23.—Canadian Press.—A. H. Bull, Ridgewood, N. J., Harriman bank teller, was reunited with his wife and daughter last night for the first time since they vanished Dec. 31 last.

He found Mrs. Bull and their 7-year-old child Eleanor, in the health farm retreat of a former New York clergyman at the foothills of the North Carolina Hills. Mrs. Bull was threatening to kill herself. He took the first train there when the clergyman telegraphed him, ending the nation-wide search for the woman and child.

Ralph Costa, youthful neighbor, who left Ridgewood for Toronto at the same time Mrs. Bull disappeared, but who returned on Friday, said Mrs. Bull had mentioned a visit to Dr. Heywood.

More cancer was found in women between the ages of 35 to 55 than among men of the same age.

Dr. Grant asked that the club take up the question of educating the people of London to fight the disease, and a committee was formed of all the doctors present and the hospital representatives to get into touch with the institutions that would supply literature on the subject.

Dr. Alfred Grant was the speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon Monday, held at the Tecumseh House.

The subject that Dr. Grant took for his address was the "Cancer Problem." In introducing the subject, the speaker said that he did not want to create a scare about cancer, but that on the other hand, he wanted to educate the people along the lines of prevention, similar to what was launched for the education of people in the tuberculosis question.

Cancer was not considered incurable if taken in its early stages, when it could be submitted to surgical treatment with success, but the trouble that medical men had was to get people to undergo treatment when the cancer was only a local trouble. Referring to the cause of cancer, the speaker said that it could be caused by irritation of any small lump or sore, that could easily be removed if taken in time.

The results from educating people had been observed by various organizations and hospitals in the States, where the people had been educated by means of the newspapers and other publications regarding the causes and effects of cancer. More cases were treated in the earlier stages now than any time before.

EXPECT REEVE COUSINS TO BE CHOSEN WARDEN

Veteran Member of County Council Favored by Many.

WILL HAVE OPPOSITION

C. C. Henry, Metcalfe Township, Also Has Strong Following.

Members of the Middlesex County Council, who drifted into London Saturday and Monday for the opening session on Tuesday afternoon, are almost unanimously of the opinion that John Cousins, reeve of Westminster Township, and veteran member of the council, will occupy the warden's chair after the balloting takes place.

Mr. Cousins is the oldest member of the council, and has represented Westminster on and off for the past 20 years," said one councillor Monday morning. "He is a good man, we know it, and the people of Westminster Township must think a lot of him when they elected him over W. E. Grieves, who was one of the best men who ever sat in the council."

"I think, and I'm not the only one either, that C. C. Henry, reeve of Metcalfe, will give Mr. Cousins a good run, but I know that Cousins has the edge, and I'm sure he will win out."

Other members of the council, whose names are mentioned in connection with the wardenship are: Frank Nichol, reeve of Elfrink Township; A. Holman, of Newberry; E. J. Harrison, of Parkhill, and A. McPherson, who was elected reeve of Glencoe by acclamation.

None of the councillors interviewed Monday expected that anything but routine business would be transacted at the January session.

DRUNKEN AUTOIST IS SENT TO JAIL

Windsor, Jan. 23.—Wm. Wessinger, 623 Langlois avenue, was sent to jail for 7 days, charged in Windsor police court today with driving an automobile while drunk. Patrolmen Ryan and Johnson took him in custody at 7:55 o'clock Sunday night, a few minutes after he ran his machine into a street car at London street and Souglais avenue. So severe was the impact that the street car was knocked off the track. Both the automobile and street car were badly damaged.

CHOIR OF KNOX CHURCH ELECT 1922 OFFICERS

Knox church choir held their annual meeting. After interesting reports were read, Mr. Chas. Percy outlined the program for 1922, which will prove to be the finest yet undertaken. The following officers were elected: Honorary president, Col. W. Gartshore; president, Miss Lolo McLeish; vice-president, Mr. S. McPherson; secretary, Miss McCullough; treasurer, Miss G. McEwen; librarian, Mr. M. Westland; wardrobe committee, Mrs. McKay; social committee, Miss U. Shay; visiting committee, Miss A. Grigg and Mr. Alexander.

DECAPITATES MOTHER AND SON WITH HATCHET

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The decapitated bodies of Mrs. Margaret Ton Ralph, 35, and her 3-year-old son Ralph, yesterday were found in their home. They had been murdered with a hatchet found near the bodies. The room had been tightly closed and the gas turned on, but the coroner said there was no doubt that both mother and child were dead long before the murderer had fled. Patrick Tierney, husband, is sought in connection with the double killing. Ralph's body was tightly clasped in his mother's arms, and police think that she was defending her child from the murderer's attacks.

FIVE MEN RESCUED OFF NEWFOUNDLAND COAST

Boston, Jan. 23.—The rescue at sea from an open boat off St. Johns, Nfld., several days and nights after abandoning the British schooner Eileen Lake, was announced by the Belgian steamship Persier in radiograms received here today. The cook of the schooner lost his life in the experience, dying the second night that the crew spent in their little boat.

ONLY SWEDISH AVIATRIX DIES IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Stockholm, Jan. 23.—Elsa Anderson, the only Swedish woman to hold an aviator's certificate, was killed at Askersund yesterday. Four thousand spectators were watching her make a flight and were horrified when Miss Anderson, in attempting a parachute descent from the machine, fell like a plummet to the earth. The parachute failed to open and the aviatrix plunged 2,000 feet to death.

ARCHBISHOP GAUTHIER TO BE BURIED TUESDAY

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—After having lain in state at the palace since his death on Wednesday morning last, the body of the late Archbishop Charles Hugh Gauthier of Ottawa was on Sunday afternoon transferred to the sanctuary of the Basilica, where it will be exposed to the public until after the funeral services, which will take place Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

PLAN TO HURRY CITY TERMINAL OF L. AND P.S.R.

Railway Commissioners Are Negotiating With Grand Trunk For Property.

START WORK SHORTLY

Sir Adam Beck Is Re-elected Chairman of Board For Ensuing Year.

The London railway commission will spend $20,000 in remodeling the buildings on Richmond street, between Hurst street and the G. T. R. tracks into an up-to-date terminal for the city.

Exclusive announcement of this proposal was made in The Advertiser in December, and denied in "well-informed circles" immediately afterwards. The plans for changing the building are ready, said Sir Adam Beck, but the commission is being held up pending negotiations with the G. T. R., which owns the buildings in question.

The plans of the commission call for a double track entrance into the terminal. In the center will be a covered platform with another at the end of the tracks. The building will be remodelled into waiting-rooms, baggage-rooms and offices.

Sir Adam outlined the scheme to the new members of the commission which met at the Utilities Building on Monday morning. It is hoped to have the new terminal ready for the summer business.

Manager Richards made an important proposal in regard to the sale of tickets on trains. This is no doubt an echo of the trouble which the road had with conductors reselling collected tickets. Mr. Richards stated that 89 per cent. of the ticket sales made on trains are to passengers boarding trains at points where there are ticket agents. His proposal is to add ten cents to the charge when fares are paid on the trains and this will be refunded at ticket offices. He believes that such a move will do away with this phase of the trouble.

Improve Harbor.

The commission is desirous of having certain harbor improvements made at Port Stanley. This has to do with harbor piling, in connection with the coal ferry. The chairman brought the matter up with the late Government and suggested that as soon as possible the negotiations should be taken up with the new minister of works.

Manager Richards was instructed to get a price on 15 or 200 seats, to be placed in the parks at Port Stanley. He will also get a price on a plant for unloading coal from vessels, and some coal dealers are desirous of bringing in coal if plans can be made.

When the Chamber of Commerce proposal as to a finance commission for all city bodies came up, Sir Adam asked if the commission would be affected. Mayor Wilson expressed the opinion that it would apply to utilities that are paying their way.

Delay Selling Bonds.

Sir Adam urged that the city should withhold from sale all the bonds possible, contending that before the end of the present year, five per cent. money would be available. It was suggested that the city should advertise the sale of its bonds as the Ontario Government was doing.

Philip Pocock suggested that it would be as well not to cite the Ontario Government's bond selling abilities, as it was the laughing stock of the country.

The agreement with the M. C. R. in regard to charges has not as yet been settled. The Dominion railway commission is having its experts size up the situation, and when the report is ready a meeting will be held in London.

Sir Adam proposed to Mayor Wilson that the members of the commission should attend a meeting of the council and lay before that body the full details of the financial position of the railway.

"There has been much propaganda going on that is not based on fact. The affairs of the railway are being misrepresented, and it is not fair to the city, its finances or to the commission."

The chairman proposed that the commission statement to the council would deal with the affairs of the road since it was electrified. He told of the splendid position which Toronto was enjoying because of the excellent state of its utilities was known. There was no reason why London should not be in the same position, with her water system paying and hydro and railway doing so well. He pointed out that since electrification the railway has paid out $9,920,000 in interest, rentals, taxes, etc. In a couple of years the rental paid the city will jump $5,000 to $25,000, while the Pere Marquette, when it had the road, only paid the city $12,000 yearly in rental. Interest charges met by the railway alone since it started amount to $405,000.

Have Right to Know.

After giving out figures in regard to the city's finances, Sir Adam Beck turned to Page 3, Column 6.

Believe Securities Removed From Western Ontario During Christmas Week.

BULLETIN.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 21.—Canadian Press.—The finding here of $275,000 worth of negotiable bonds, said to have been part of the loot of a $600,000 mail robbery in Los Angeles nearly a year ago, was announced by the police today.

[Special to London Advertiser.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 23.—Federal authorities working on the Los Angeles mail truck robbery here last March, in which loot valued at $600,000 was stolen, yesterday recovered $300,000 in negotiable stocks and bonds in Detroit, Michigan, and are also alleged to have uncovered further evidence of the connection of Herbert L. Wilson, former head of the City Mission at London, Ont., with the daring hold-up.

Deputies here asserted this morning that it had been admitted that the securities had been taken to Detroit from a cache in or near London, Ont., to which city a member of the bandit gang was believed to have made his way Christmas week.

Every effort to guard this secret has been made by officials, according to the reports.

Postoffice inspectors from California and other federal officials co-operating with them obtained the bonds.

A woman whose name is withheld figured in the recovery.

Information said to have been obtained in Los Angeles following the arrest several weeks ago of Herbert Cox, the former London pastor, is believed to have given the clues that led to the recovery of the stolen property, officials admit.

The bonds, according to the dispatch, were part of the valuable loot seized here March 3 when a mail train on its way to the Santa Fe station was held up near First and Alameda streets, driven to a dark alley several blocks away and looted by a gang of bandits who had followed in automobiles.

Local Railway Workers' Union Negotiates For Revised Schedule.

Negotiations are going on between the officials of the railway unions and the management of the roads to arrange for a more satisfactory working schedule for the shop workers. At present the men are working only for about fifteen days a month, and this does not net them an existing wage. It is the desire of the union officials that the men be able to work at least a 40-hour week.

If this can be arranged for it will mean that the present number employed in the shops will be kept on without reduction in wages. The union officials are trying to keep the maximum number of men at work for the rest of the winter with at least a living wage.

EXPECT SUIT OVER SEWER TO BE CANCELLED

City Council Again Discusses Knollwood Park Controversy.

PROPOSE COMPROMISE

Residents Ask Debuture Term Be Lengthened to Thirty Years.

The suit of the Knollwood Park ratepayers against the city to have the bylaw pertaining to their sewer set aside, which is slated to come up at the winter assizes before Mr.
Justice Mowat, may not come to trial.

Members of the city council are again dealing with the matter, and it seems certain that the city will propose a compromise in an effort to bring about a settlement.

The Knollwood Park people, through their solicitor, J. G. Donahue, proposed a settlement, asking that the life of the debenture be made 30 instead of 10 years. The fly in the ointment was that they wanted the city to shoulder the burden of the added interest period, 20 years.

What this meant can be sized up from the fact that the cost of the sewer was about $33,000. The interest for ten years brings the total cost to $113,000, and the interest for 30 years would make the total about $170,000.

Some of the aldermen are taking the position that it is better for the city to spend money towards relieving the distress of the property owners affected, than to pay money into the courts, and the outlook is that this council is going to prevail to some extent at least.

Ald. Childs, Ald. J. Ashton, City
Clerk Baker and Engineer Brazier had a conference with the city solicitor Monday morning, and it is believed that a compromise will be followed.

"It's rather a serious thing to have a $700 or $800 charge for side drains stand against a 100-foot lot," said Ald. Ashton Monday.

Six Motorists Fined For Driving Over Hose At Cowan Fire

SIX motor car owners, who carelessly drove over the fire hose while the Cowan fire was in progress last Wednesday, each paid $10 and costs for the privilege in police court Monday morning. The magistrate warned the owners that it was a most dangerous thing to do, as the hose might have been broken, causing the firemen a considerable waste of valuable time to replace it.
He hoped it would be a warning to others.

Those who were fined were:
Fred Heximer, Murray Lewis,
Wm. Pennock, Thos. Stinson, Albert Brown and Berry Lambells. C. Lankin and G.
Wright have yet to appear on the charge.

SUE FOR $2,000 AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENT

Tavistock Residents Enter Action Against London Man.

COUNTER-CLAIM IS MADE

Two more cases have been set down for trial before Mr. Justice Mowat when the winter assizes open at the court house on Jan. 30.
Harry W. Schulze, a farmer, living near Tavistock, and Rossie Winholt, of the same village are suing H. Y. Woollett of London for $2,000 damages in all, as the result of a motor car accident near Galt on Sept. 6, 1921.

Mr. Schulze, in his statement of claim, alleges that the defendant was driving carelessly and at great speed when his car crashed into the plaintiff's at an intersection, completely wrecking the machine. Mrs.
Winholt claims $200 for injuries sustained, and Schulze $1,800.

Mr. Woollett in his statement of defence claims that the accident was due entirely to the carelessness of the plaintiff. Mr. Woollett sustained several broken ribs as the result of the accident, and his wife and daughter were both seriously injured.

Enters Counter-Claim.
He counter-claims $1,500 for injuries to himself, $1,500 for damages to his car, $100 for medical expenses in connection with the injuries to his wife and daughter, and $200 for loss of use of his motor car, a total of $3,200.

J. M. Riddell of Stratford for the plaintiff, and Ivey, Elliott & Ivey for Mr. Woollett.

John A. Cole, carrying on business under the name of the Canada Overland Express, is suing the Gore Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Galt for $2,000, and interest, since September, 1920.

The plaintiff claims that in June, 1920, he entered into an agreement with F. E. Wray, 389 Talbot street, to manufacture certain material of his into overalls. Wray insured the plaintiff's material and machinery for $2,000 with the defendant company.

There was a fire on Sept. 19, 1920, the damage being estimated at $1-500. Mr. Wray assigned his right to the policy to the plaintiff, who has not yet been able to collect from the company.

The defence claims that the goods belonged to John Pringle, carrying on business under the name of F.
E. Wray, in trust, and according to the contract is not liable for loss of property owned by any other person than the assured, unless stated in the policy, and submits as a defence sub-section 6 (A), of section 194 of the Ontario Insurance Act.
They ask that the action be dismissed.

Gibbons, Harper & Braden for the plaintiff, and Melvin W. Secord, of Galt, for the defence.

Goodbye Galoshes! Welcome Russian Boots!

AS THEY WERE—GALOSHES.

MILADY PUMPS—patent leather and otherwise—trod a steady step whatever the weather be.
Draped snugly over heavy woolen socks she cared not—neither did she mind. She was the last word in style, until—
Enter Dame Fashion again!
And this time she has brought with her Lady Russian Boots. Truly
the new arrival is a formidable
—Miss Flapper Galoshes.

AS THEY ARE—RUSSIAN BOOTS.

Shortly Miss Flapper was getting along nicely—plodding gamely through slush and snow. And never a care had she. Silken hose took the place of woolen and everything was sweet and pretty, until—
Enter Dame Fashion again!
And this time she has brought
with her Lady Russian Boots. Truly
the new arrival is a formidable
—Miss Flapper Galoshes.

AS THEY WERE—WOOL SOCKS.

Fashion, otherwise known as Latest Style, has decided that she quickly became naturalized.
"I women folks in general and Miss Regina Kennedy in particular, will pay strict attention to the suggestions of Dame Fashion, Miss Flapper, Milady Pumps and Miss Silken Hosiery will do a fadeout while Lady Russian Boots and Fuzzy Woolen Socks, will step forth as the reigning style."

Became Intoxicated Without Opening Bottle Friend Gave Him

How did James Stripp, 110 Bathurst street, gather a fair-sized "jag" while merely crossing the road to his home from the residence of Dominic Barnard, 128 Horton street? This was the question that bothered Deputy Police Magistrate P. H.
Bartlett in police court Monday morning.

James was arrested Sunday night at 9:50 o'clock by Constables Percy Last and Fraleigh, who both swore that he was drunk. They also found an unopened bottle of whiskey in his overcoat pocket, which evidence for the defence brought out by R. G.
Fisher, showed had been given to him by his friend Dominic. This meant that Mr. Stripp was assessed but $10 instead of $200.

"He kind of have cold. I am old friend, give him a present," explained Dominic. "I have him bottle. Only one I have. A compliment. Not my business to sell a drink. Have had it three, four years from Montréal."

"Thank You, Very Much."
Nick Barnard was the next witness.
"What did Stripp say when he was given the whiskey?" questioned the court.

"He say: Thank you, very much!"
was the answer. Mr. Fisher had difficulty in bringing out the facts as far as his client

SONS OF SCOTLAND INSTALL OFFICERS

James Hamilton Occupies the Chief Position in Organization.

Assisted by Past Grand Chieftain
Rev. D. L. M. McCrae, Bro. J. M.
Watt, Grand Camp representative has duly installed the following officers for Camp Flower of Dunblane of the Sons of Scotland for 1922: Bro.
Jas. Hamilton, chief; R. C. Jenkins, past chief; Archie Henderson, chieftain; J. G. Henderson, chaplain; Geo.
Gray, treasurer; George Murray, marshal; Francis V. Dunlevy, standard-bearer; Thos. L. Tagg, senior guard; Malcolm McLeod, piper; Jas. Riddell and Jas. Hamilton, auditors.

After the installation an instructive talk was given by Past Chief D. L.
McCrae on the association in general, and by Bros. James Watt on the duties of the individual members of the camp. There was a large delegation from Edinburgh Castle, No.
109, ladies' camp, present at the installation and they took an active part in the meeting.

MERCURY GOES
1 BELOW ZERO
"Gee, isn't it cold," was the salutation hurled at citizens by their friends as they were hurrying to work Monday morning.

Rumors as to the exact temperature ran everywhere from zero to ten degrees below, but according to the government weather bureau, it was one degree below zero. The cold wave hit the city Sunday, and during the afternoon the government thermometer registered four degrees above zero.

There is one consolation, however.
It is not believed that the cold wave will last, and the sun of Monday afternoon gave Londoners some hope that it would pass along to Alaska, Iceland, or somewhere else where cold weather belongs.

TENDER BANQUET TO REV. T. S. ROY

Ministers Express Regrets At Talbot Street Pastor's Departure.

Rev. T. S. Roy, Rev. A. C. Bingham and Rev. J. N. Norton were the guests of the Ministerial Alliance at a farewell luncheon in the De Luxe Cafe Monday at 12:15.

Rev. W. E. McIntosh, in proposing a toast to Mr. Roy, a liberal-minded theologian, and one who had been most successful in promoting social virtue and co-operation among his congregation, referred to Mr. Roy's ability to make friends among the various businessmen of the city, and his ready way as a minister.

"It is not hard for a minister to make headway with the women of his congregation," said Mr. McIntosh, "but it is most remarkable to make an influence felt among the businessmen of the city."

Mr. McIntosh expressed a fervent wish that Mr. Roy would make his influence felt for the West, referred to him
as "one of God's gentlemen."

"Mr. Bingham has inherited from his family, the members of which are most eminent in the work of the ministry, a singular gift of Christian expression. May his work prosper in the west as it has done here. We are thankful that the west is least gaining one of our ministers.
The United States is drafting too many men from our ranks."

Rev. Leslie Armitage, in speaking of Mr. Bingham, who is shortly leaving for the West, referred to him
as "one of God's gentlemen."

At the close of the meeting of the Universophists society, Sunday evening, at 212 Dundas street, a junior club was organized, which T.
L. Reeve, the director, stated proposes to hold week-night social evenings at which contests in chess and other mathematical and scientific games will be a feature of the entertainment. Dramatic and musical undertakings are anticipated at later developments of the club program. Miss Birdie Reeve was elected as secretary.

ZIONISTS HEAR OF PALESTINE ADVANCEMENT

London Hadassah Chapter
Entertains Mrs. I. Siegel of Toronto.

HOLDS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Guest of Honor Tells of Self-Sacrifices Made by Colonists.

"The restoration of Palestine means the re-organization of a nation, involving the expenditure of great national sums for irrigation, re-forestation, sanitation, schools and other institutions. It isn't just a matter of a little philanthropy here, a little philanthropy there," was the striking statement made on Sunday evening by Mrs. I. Siegel, of Toronto, the guest of honor of the fourth birthday party of the London Hadassah chapter, held in the Alma block. An interesting incident of the evening was the presentation to Mrs. Mary Fishbein and Miss Leah Lewis by Mrs. William Leff, president of the local chapter, of Golden Book certificates, in recognition of their efficient and untiring work in connection with the Zionist movement. The highest honor in the gift of the Zionists was thus accorded them.

As a permanent record of their work in the Jewish national cause, the names of Mrs. Fishbein and Miss Lewis will be inscribed in the Golden Book, a book with gold covers, which at the present time, reposes at The Hague, in Holland.
72 Colonies Founded.

In the course of her address, Mrs.
Siegel referred to what already has been accomplished in Palestine in the way of restoration after the long years of neglect and devastation.
Seventy-two colonies have been established, vineyards and orange-groves are proving a wonderful success, and the Jew is demonstrating his ability in dairy farming and general farming, much to the surprise of the world.

In connection with the actual hard work of reconstruction, a tribute was paid to the "Chalutzim," the trained men, the Jewish intellectuals, who are going back to the national home from Russia, Rumania and other countries, engaging in the road-building and the other hard labor.
Wives and children live in tents in the fields.

"Notwithstanding the hard conditions amid which they live, the mercenary and the mercenary for their pittance of culture and education, these men, these Jewish intellectuals, are going back to the national home from Russia, Rumania and other countries, engaging in the road-
building and the other hard labor.
Wives and children live in tents in
the fields.

To illustrate the fine spirit of the women, Mrs. Siegel told of their refusal to accept of anything but the babies' outfits sent over by the Hadassah chapters of the United States and Canada, and their insistence upon paying one-tenth of the cost and the freight expenses.

Marks Palestine Spirit.
"That spirit, however, is not just characteristic of the men and women of culture and education," said the speaker, "it is the spirit of the whole of Palestine, a spirit of determination on the part of the settlers to stand on their own feet and pay their way as quickly as possible, a spirit that insures the future of the nation."

With regard to the medical work which is being done in Palestine, Mrs.
Siegel referred to a report made by Col. Harriman, head of the medical department of the British Government, in which he stated that the Hadassah medical unit, supported by the Hadassah in Canada and the United States, is "the real medical department," a model for all public health work there.

While Britain has made possible the restoration of Palestine to the Jewish people, the speaker emphasized the point that the actual rebuilding of the nation and its future depends upon the Jewish people themselves in all parts of the world.
She concluded with an appeal for personal responsibility in the work on the part of all lovers of Zion.

Mrs. Leslie Goldstick, secretary of the London Chapter, presented the year's report, in which she stated that nearly $1,000 had been collected by one member since October, and this was distributed among several funds raised for various phases of the work in Palestine.
A donation of $200 was made to the Jewish war orphans; $100 to Hadassah Hospital; $200 to the Golden Book national fund for the upbuilding by the Jewish race of Palestine as a whole; $200 to the Palestine foundation fund. In addition to this, the chapter gave $110.89 to the War Memorial Children's Hospital in London.

PLAN TO HURRY CITY TERMINAL

to the railway's growth, Sir Adam said that he believed that the people had a right to a true statement of the railway's situation, and the proposal was to outline this to the council.

Mayor Wilson said that the council would be glad to have the true figures. It was unfortunate that the figures now being used in the city year book were compiled years ago, and were, therefore, not correct. He would see that not only were these figures removed from the year book, but would undertake to hold back the year book from publication until such time as the figures were corrected.

Sir Adam Beck was re-elected chairman; Philip Pocock vice-chairman; and C. S. Wacy, secretary.

Broken Window Converts Police Court Into Real "Cooler"

THE London police court has often been referred to as the "cooler," and it literally lived up to its name Monday morning, for the sweat into the court room with a chilly whistle of joy from a broken window just to the right of the prisoners' box. Spectators sat with their overcoats turned up and so did the prisoners. Even Chief Birrell admitted that it was "a little chilly."

It seems that the window has been cracked for years and years, and the chief had pointed it out to Clerk John Moule for years and years, and he in turn, so it is said, called upon Building Inspector Piper to replace it, also for years and years.
"Maybe something will be done about it now," declared the chief, as he stalked off to his own warm office.

VERY LITTLE USE has been made of the Thames Park skating rink in London South, while Victoria Park is crowded every night.
A. O. Hunt stated this morning that he would be glad to see the London rink more fully utilized, as Victoria Park is almost too crowded for comfortable skating. Music rendered by means of a magnograph was a great attraction for skaters on Saturday night, and over $60 was realized at the checkroom.

PROPOSALS HAVE been made by the department of education that the standards of the matriculation examination for entrance to universities be raised. The local board of education has received notice that the Hespeler Board of Education is circulating a resolution decidedly against the department's proposal.
The result is to the effect that greater requirements for the examination would prevent many students of average ability and moderate means from making the grade and obtaining a university training.

ALD. JOHN ASHTON says that
W. Tite of the trades union labor council is not well informed in regard to the action of the council on the question of giving wives of property owners or tenants a vote. The action of Mayor Wilson, when the vote was first taken, was being discussed and Mr. Tite found fault that the year and nays were not pointed out by the council. Mr. Ashton proposed the motion in which he proposed the council's action on the question of giving wives and sons as well.
It was referred to a committee, and when brought back included only wives and went through the council without any objection at all.

TO OPEN SECOND STUDY COURSE IN CHURCH WORK

City Organizations To Give Instruction in Sunday School Teaching.

WILL BE HELD EVENINGS

Advanced Class To Be Formed
For Students of Last Session.

London Religious Education Council and the Y. M. C. A. will open the second term of the evening training school for church school workers Jan. 26, and continue it until March 2.

The first portion of the evenings, forming the period from 7:45 to 8:45, will be taken up with the teaching, by G. V. Hoffer, M.A., of London Normal School, Everton A.
Miller, M.A., of London Collegiate, and V. K. Greer, inspector of schools.
The subject will be "Methods of Teachings" the work to be based on the book called "The Teacher," by L. A. Weigle, Ph.D.

Students who took the lectures last term will constitute an advanced class, which will complete the course.
Students who have not covered the work before will have an opportunity of taking up the work from the beginning.

The second period, 8:45 to 9:30, provides for several different phases of the work in separate courses. Students may enroll in any of the following courses in this period: I.
"Teaching Values of the Old Testament," instructor, F. W. K. Harris, B.A.; II. "The Boy and the Sunday School," instructor, L. M. Houlding, B.A.; III. "The Study of the Life of Christ," instructor, Miss R. McCamus, B.A.; IV. "The Sunday School Lesson by Leading Teachers" (for teachers of young people's and adult classes), to be given by the following leading Sunday school teachers: Rev.
D. C. MacGregor, Mrs. W. N. Manning, Dean Sherwood Fox, Col. W.
J. Brown, A. R. Kennedy and W. R.
Stansell; V. "School Organization and Administration" (for school officers and superintendents), instructor, Ed. E. Reid.

The following form the teachers' committee of the Religious Educational Council: Rev. N. S. McKee, Rev.
L. W. Reid, Rev. E. W. Jewett, Rev. F. W. K. Harris, Miss Helen Avignon, P. D. Mitchell, Ed. E.
Reid, Col. W. J. Brown, L. M. Hould-ing, J. S. Lovell, E. J. Jenkins.

Everyone Is Welcome at Any of These Churches On the Sabbath Day

Declares Infirmities of Weak Should Be Borne by Stronger

Hon. Canon Cody of Toronto Appeals For Broad Tolerance in Attitude Toward Those Who Lack Equality of Endowment—Claims Opportunity Should Be Fair To All.

"We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak and not to please ourselves," from St. Paul, was the theme which ran through-out the eloquent sermon delivered Sunday night at St. Paul's Cathedral by Hon. Canon Cody of Toronto, who visited the church on the occasion of the dedication of the redecorated interior.

"If St. Paul is pleading for a broad tolerance," said the speaker, "St. Paul recognizes the fact of inequality among men and women and boys and girls."

This very fact of inequality in human life creates a very difficult problem.

"The statement that all men are born equal is not true in every sense. Some are born with greater ability than others. But all should be born with an equal chance to make the best of their capabilities. There should be equality of opportunity, even though there may not be equality of endowment."

"Men and women are constituted in such a way that if ever there were an equal distribution of things material, all should revert to a state of inequality of possessions, shortly."

This was proved in an interesting manner by a Toronto physician. One morning he distributed one cent each to the children throughout one of the wards at the Sick Children's Hospital. Returning at night, he found that one little foreign lad had managed to get possession of every one of the coppers which he had given out in the morning. Here was a case of equality of distribution, shortly followed by inequality of possession, due to inequality of endowment."

Not on Equality.

"I venture to say that we are not on an equality even in spiritual capacity. And we should be judged according to the faithfulness with which we use our gifts. There will always be the strong and weak in individuals and nations. And we are all involved in the complication because we are every one of us weak in relation to some other."

"We may use our strength to please ourselves or to help others. We may exploit the weak to gain power for ourselves. Throughout the history of the world, the weak have often been the prey of the strong, whether it may have been in times of war or in times of industrial tyranny."

"The struggle of existence" and the "survival of the fittest" were the watchwords of the old Darwinian theory. But in the past few years we have seen that philosophy of life tragically emphasized on a large scale."

And now even science has come to our rescue in destroying this diabolical doctrine. There is the mother instinct running throughout nature, which shows sacrifice and struggle for the life of others. The whole grand course of evolving life has been found to depend on goodwill and mutual aid. And the evidence is against the pagan doctrine of the exploitation of the weak by the strong.

Died for the Unfit.

"Christ, the fittest, died that the unfit might be saved and made fit. And we who are strong, should seek to obey this great law of Christ, bearing burdens and not pleasing ourselves. We are trustees for the advancement of the whole human family."

"After all, the cannibals in the uncivilized countries of today are not so very far removed from the civilized peoples. A letter of St. Jerome, written in the fourth century, refers to the Scotchmen of the north feeding on human flesh with relish. So we see that we who are along the road, have privileges which we hold in trust for the backward ones."

"We cannot separate the weak from the strong, the degraded from the others, the ignorant from the educated. The taint of the one is the taint of the other, and we must all do our utmost to blot it out."

"Christ, the All Strong One, bore the burden of the weak, whether it was the woman of the street, the grasping tax gatherer, or the robber upon the cross, and He still bears the burden of our life."

"The weak are worth the saving that they may become strong."

SINGS PONTIFICAL MASS AT ST. PETER'S

Bishop Fallon Pays a Glowing Tribute to Memory of Pope.

Special reference to the death of Pope Benedict XV was made in all the Catholic churches of the city yesterday. His Lordship Bishop M. F. Fallon was absent from the city, but returned Monday morning when a solemn pontifical mass was sung at St. Peter's Cathedral for the repose of the soul of Pope Benedict XV, Bishop Fallon being the celebrant.

The sanctuary was hung in mourning for the occasion of the mass, and the solemn mass, carried out in all the pontifical splendor, made the event most impressive. The choir was well filled.

Father E. Tierney, pastor of St. Michael's Church, was the assistant priest of the mass, with Fathers Pocock and Webber as assisting deacons. Father Forristal was deacon of the mass, and Father Chisholm of St. Mary's, sub-deacon. Father A. O'Donnell was master of ceremonies.

At the conclusion of the mass, Bishop Fallon spoke at some length, touching first on the suddenness of the pope's death, and making fitting reference to the work of his holiness during the war. He sketched the position which he occupied during that conflict, and how well he held it, declaring that the pope had emerged from the war "the biggest man in Europe," and added that he had been steadily gaining power and influence since its conclusion.

The bishop reminded his hearers that no matter what the earthly glory of the pope, he had already stood before the judgment seat of God, stripped of all his earthly glories, and on account of the responsibilities which he had shouldered on earth, the bishop said the pope's judgment would be the more intimate or strict. Concluding, the speaker commended the pope to the prayers of the congregation and also asked their prayers that a fitting successor might be chosen.

Father Brisson was the preacher at the different masses at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday. In referring to the death of the pope he said: "As you are no doubt aware, our chief pastor, Pope Benedict XV, was called to his reward yesterday. The holy father was relatively a young man, and only seven years ago he had called upon to represent Christ on earth."

"While his pontificate lasted only seven years," said Father Brisson, "it is safe to say that the anxiety and cares crowded into those years were as great as those experienced during any other fifty years."

The pope was called to head the Catholic church one month after the declaration of war and found his children, on two sides, seeking each other's blood. He found himself obliged to adopt a position of neutrality on all sides, some nations contending that he was not neutral, while others attacked him, for remaining neutral.

"After the smoke of battle had cleared away, it was found that his path had been marked by justice and right and that by his statesmanship the pope had won the admiration of all nations. He had emerged from the conflict with flying colors. The result was that the Vatican was never so prominent as it is today."

France and Britain, which for 20 and 300 years had not maintained relations with the Vatican, before the war ended each sent a representative to the holy see and asked him to send representatives to their court. "There is no doubt," concluded Father Brisson, "that the responsibilities of these times brought his holiness to an early grave. I recommend him to your prayers."

Father Webber, St. Mary's; Father Tierney, St. Michael's; Father Forristal, St. Martin's; and at St. Patrick's Church reference to the demise of his holiness was made.

SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

In the course of an address on "International Psychology" before the Social Psychology Club, Sunday morning, in the Higgins Block, ex-Ald. Fred W. Daly declared that the treatment of foreigners and the attitude expressed generally in Canada and the United States towards races which are not Anglo-Saxon is likely to provoke a great deal of harm in the future, through the resentment it will inspire in those towards whom it is directed. Mr. Daly referred briefly to racial prejudices entertained towards the various colored races, and political and social prejudices against the Russians at the present time.

He criticized the London Trades and Labor Council for supporting William Tite in ejecting a representative of the "Friends of Russia" from the relief organization from the Labor Temple. Mr. Daly referred to Delegates Ernest Ingles as having said that organized labor had suffered through the actions and propaganda of Bolsheviks and foreigners. This was a poor argument, said Mr. Daly, who declared that a "gross injustice" had been done to the ejected organizer, not a foreigner, but a Scotch-Canadian, who was advocating a humanitarian undertaking.

Fear of public opinion, he said, caused a great deal of harm. References were made to the Bullock case elsewhere in the address, and the chief points at issue in this case were afterwards reviewed by J. F. Jenkins, a member of the Beth-Emmanuel B. M. E. Church, who was present.

NEW BUILDING PERMITS issued by Inspector Piper include a $1,200 frame house on Highbury, being erected by H. Wammanaker; C. L. Walker, 23 Mt. Pleasant avenue, will erect a new kitchen to cost $220, and Walter Stiel, Wharncliffe road, will erect a building to cost $400.

Rev. Quentin Warner Exhorts Submission of Material Things

At the morning service Sunday in Cronyn Memorial Church Rev. Quentin Warner spoke forcefully from the words of St. Paul: "Things that are seen are temporal, but the things that are unseen are eternal."

"The expression is ultra-modern," Rev. Mr. Warner began. "It is one of the healthy signs of our own times that great minds are engaged in working out a philosophy based on this fact."

He referred to the view taken by the majority of believers that the second coming of Christ would be in the form of a glorious advent, bursting suddenly upon the world, whereas Christ's coming might be conceived as a gradual entering of the hearts of all men, wherein is really the kingdom of heaven.

When men had conquered things material, and made them subservient to things eternal, then pain and sickness and death would be nothing more than a challenge to the mighty power of God, which would reign supreme in men's hearts, enabling them to overcome the hardships of life, secure in the thought that the things of this life are temporal, whereas the things of the life to come are eternal.

Believing in God, and struggling to merit the rewards of his kingdom, men would consider only the welfare of the inner and spiritual man. The struggles and hardships of the outer man would count as nothing in the great striving to win eternal life.

"We must realize the difference between morals and righteousness," said Rev. Mr. Warner. "What the morals of one country will countenance, the morals of another country will brand with the stigma of disgrace, but righteousness is ever the same. With righteousness in all men's hearts there would be no moral codes, and the kingdom of God would have its true being here on earth."

He emphasized the fact that congregations as a whole were too apt to stress the material things of life. The body was not yet subservient to the mind. He begged that all the spiritual making of his hearers be bent toward the things seen and temporal, the servants, and not the masters, of the things unseen and spiritual; that in his work among the numerous members of his parish who were suffering from physical ailments, he might feel that the whole parish was striving toward one goal, that of making the mind triumphant over the body, and having the love of God supreme in their hearts."

I was not so perceptibly impressed on my three former visits.

"Still there was another element which I did not expect. Immediately there arose a hearty cry 'E viva il Papa,' 'Long Live the Pope.' Others contented themselves with just cheering, while none could refrain from the continued applause. A thrill of joy, reality and literally ran up and down my back."

Just as he was passing out of the room, the cheering increased to such a state that the holy father made a signal with his hand to stop.

"Never before, if I except the days of my ordination, and my first mass, have I been so impressed. It was a birthday present I had not expected, a birthday present I will never forget."

D. B. HANNA RENEWS LONDON FRIENDSHIPS

When the reception committee of the Commercial Travelers' Association entered the private car of President D. B. Hanna, of the Canadian National Railways, Friday night, they discovered him discussing "old times" with B. S. Murray, of the Canadian National Express Company. Mr. Hanna explaining to the committee that his acquaintance and friendship with Mr. Murray, "dated back" for 39 years, as early in 1883, when as a traveling auditor for the Grand Trunk Railway, he was detailed for joint inspection duties on the lines of the middle division with Mr. Murray, then Canadian representative of the old American Express Company.

LONDON PRIEST WRITES ABOUT POPE BENEDICT

Rev. Fr. W. T. Flannery Describes Last Public Appearance of the Pontiff.

WAS BRILLIANT EVENT

Seventh Anniversary of Coronation Observed in Sistine Chapel, Dec. 22.

A letter, vivid with details of the last public appearance of Pope Benedict XV, in the Vatican, has just reached Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Flannery, 31 Piccadilly street, from their son, Father W. T. Flannery, who is pursuing further studies at the Canadian College of the Holy Cross, which fell on Dec. 22. Incidentally, that date was also Father Flannery's birthday.

It is clearly evident from the statements contained in the letter, that the pope's last public appearance was a gorgeous one, and marked by all the pomp and ceremony that surrounds events of importance at the Vatican. Accompanying Father Flannery was another London priest, Father Foulkes, and Father Lynch of Winnipeg.

Watch From Sala Regia.

On their arrival at the Vatican, Father Flannery says they entered the "Sala Regia," or Royal Room, and it was from this place that he and his fellow priests were to watch the procession from the Sacristy of the Vatican to the Sistine Chapel, where the pope was to say mass.

As a prelude to a description of the procession, or rather while they awaited the coming of the procession, Father Flannery had an opportunity to look about him, and at some length he described the various countries and orders represented by priests and people gathered in his immediate vicinity. The cosmopolitan make-up of the gathering being cited as a true evidence of the universality of the church.

It was with difficulty, he stated, that they were able to see the first part of the procession, finding it necessary to strain on tip-toe to catch glimpses of it. The bishops they could tell by their precious mitres. Then came the cardinals. There were about twenty of the princes of the church in the procession, each crowned in bright red and assisted by his own ministers.

"About sixteen cardinals had gone by when a shout of triumph broke in on us, from the adjoining room," he writes. "Again we stood on our tip-toes and this time we knew we would not be disappointed."

"What should I do when he entered? Should I lean down on my knees? All these thoughts agitated my mind, and yet the most predominant was 'Why does he not come immediately?' I did not feel this way on my former visits to the Vatican, and yet this time I really expected to see something that was going to make an impression on me."

Carried by Guards.

The pope finally did come. Elevated high above the heads of all, he was sitting on his "Sedia Gestatoria," a platform with four protruding bars, which serve as handles, by which four Swiss guards carry it, resting the bars on their shoulders. On the platform is placed the throne of the holy father. Directly behind the Sedia Gestatoria are two other officers, carrying long pole-like things, to the top of which is attached a broad group of peacock feathers. All this, of course, is emblematic of royal processions, in which the king was carried on a Sedia Gestatoria, followed by officers, who fanned him with these fan-like groups of feathers.

"And yet this feature was hardly noticed, because the pope himself was the attraction. He was sitting on the throne, entirely covered by a rosy white cope. On his head was a Tiara of Gold, or triple crown, signifying the triple power of teacher, ruler and sanctifier."

"He looked so small, almost doll-like. I could not see the man, the priest, the bishop, but only the vicar of Christ, and it was for the reason

PASTOR APPEALS FOR "REAL HOMES"

Rev. W. Beattie Begins Series of Sermons On "Making of a Canadian Home."

Rev. William Beattie, D.D., C. M. G., minister of the First Presbyterian Church, would like to see in Canadian homes the restoration of conditions which would make possible "real homes," spacious enough for the children to play in, far enough separated from the neighbors that the little ones might make a noise without calling down the objections of the dwellers across the hall. He would like to see the restoration of old-fashioned, simple hospitality; of parties for the boys and girls under thirteen and fourteen, that began at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and were over in time to let them be in bed after 8 o'clock.

He would see restored in Canadian homes wholesome discipline, not austere, but "frank." He would see the old-time reverence for the Sabbath restored, without the severity of restrictions that made it a day to be feared. He would do away with parents "too busy to be bothered," or who "can't be bothered" with the things that contribute to the happiness and welfare of their children. And he would see the restoration of the family altar, the placing again of the father, not only as the head of the household, but priest in his own home.

All these things, Dr. Beattie named in the course of the first of a series of sermons on "The Making of a Canadian Home" on Sunday evening, when his theme was "Restoration of Old Customs."

He stated that his decision to preach the series of sermons had been made in view of the fact that on all sides are evidences that Canadian home life and influence are seriously menaced.

He quoted from arraignment of homes made by grand juries recently against young girls and boys.

"The home as an institution," he said "precedes any other institution, and was the foundation of all other institutions. In the first homes, the father was the high priest, stood in the place of God to his household. Out of the home grew the church; from the bedside ministry of women, the hospitals; from the little cherished bookshelf our public libraries of today. The homes are the best fortifications, schools, colleges, hospitals."

"Courts of justice, halls of law-makers, and treaties of nations cannot replace the homes."

ALD. H. J. CHILDS was acting mayor on Monday, having the honor of being the first acting mayor of the year. Mayor Wilson was attending the meeting of the London Railway Commission.

Rev. W. H. Hiles Shows Need For Personal Evangelism

Rev. W. H. Hiles occupied the pulpit at the morning and evening services at the Robinson Memorial church Sunday. At the morning service preaching from Acts viii:4, "They that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word." He pointed out that the success of the early Christians in winning the world to Christ was largely the result of the work of the rank and file of the church.

"The apostles themselves," the record tells us, remained in Jerusalem, their converts were scattered abroad by the persecution. But, wherever they went they told the gospel story, for that was what their preaching amounted to, just telling the gospel story and what it had done for them.

Accounting for the rapid spread of Christianity, Gibbons tells us the chief cause "was the zeal of the early Christians, each witnessing to his friend, his fellow slave, or his fellow soldier." By this personal witness the word of God ran very swiftly and rooted very deeply.

Gospel Urgently Needed.

"We live again in a day when the world needs the gospel very badly. Materialism has swept us, a practical atheism has put its clumsy hand upon us. God has not been in all our thoughts. Our hearts are dead and cold. We are longing for a better earth. We thought perhaps the fire of war would purge away our sins, and that we could reconstruct a better world. Today the church of God is being thrown back on the redeeming grace of God in Jesus Christ. The words of Jesus, 'Ye must be born again,' are being emphasized. Not 'reconstruction' but 'regeneration' is the great word."

This is our time of opportunity. We are to go out as the first Christians went out, and win the world for Christ. If we are going to be successful in our witness for Christ as these first Christians were we must have their experience. They had been stabbed into life by the sword of God's spirit. They had a real repentance. Their only hope for salvation was in Jesus Christ. They knew the power of God's spirit in their lives. With such an experience they could not but help have "a story to tell," "a song to be sung," "a Saviour to show." They knew the disease, and they knew the remedy; it was a day of good tidings, and they could not hold their peace. It was the natural and ordinary topic of conversation, because it was the chief thing in their lives.

Need of Today.

And the great need today is just the need of such spontaneous witnessing. When we have had the great experience ourselves, when we are persuaded that Jesus is the only hope of this world's redemption, when we set ourselves to the great task of witnessing to the love and saving power of God in Jesus Christ, then shall the world be persuaded, "And I, if I be lifted up," says Jesus, "I will draw all men unto me."

EXPECTS TO OPEN HOSPITAL MAY 24

Committee Reports Rapid Progress On Sick Children's Institution.

If the work on the War Memorial Children's Hospital continues to progress as rapidly as it has done recently, the new institution will be ready to be opened by May 24. This was the statement made on Monday by Lieut-Col. W. M. Gartshore, chairman of the building committee, with reference to a visit of inspection paid on Saturday by the building committee, and Mrs. A. H. Smith, chairman of the War Memorial Hospital committee, Mrs. F. J. Greenaway, the honorary secretary, and the architect, Capt. J. M. Watt.

The heating system has been installed, the floors are laid, the wood work in place, and the building is now in shape for the finishing process.

In the meantime, the campaign is going quietly on to raise the "Last Hundred Thousand" dollars required. "We are not making any big drive or holding a whirlwind campaign," said Col. Gartshore. "We believe we will be able to meet the obligation in the other way."

RHEUMATISM vs. T.R.C.'s

Lumbago, Neuritis, Sciatica

Have you given up? Have you resigned yourself to that old, gnawing pain that nothing seems to relieve? Do you think because you can't go to Hot Springs or take some expensive treatment that you have no other alternative? We have many cases considered hopeless, tried everything, baths, serums, electricity, who found recovery in using T.R.C.'s. (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules). We have thousands of letters that prove beyond doubt T.R.C.'s to be the most practical and successful Rheumatic remedy sold. At druggists, $1.00 per box. For Free Trial write Templeton, Toronto.

1921 A year of Normal Growth and Solid Prosperity

NOTWITHSTANDING the disturbed conditions during 1921, the London Life Insurance Company enjoyed the most prosperous year in its history. Combined with a satisfactory volume of New Insurance and Gain in Insurance in Force, the Surplus earnings were much greater than in any previous year.

The following comparative table shows the recent progress of the Company's business:

| Year | New Insurance | Insurance in Force | Assets      | Surplus-Basis Dominion Gov't Requirements |
|------|---------------|--------------------|-------------|-------------------------------------------|
| 1915 | $11,060,000  | $34,820,327       | $6,075,323 | $753,626                                 |
| 1916 | 16,433,580    | 59,804,430         | 9,189,657   | 926,605                                   |
| 1921 | 31,219,127    | 111,113,664        | 15,920,518  | 1,952,613                                 |

The full details of the year's operations, as they will be disclosed at the Annual Meeting, will show every department to be in an exceptionally satisfactory condition. The statement shows:

ASSETS—Absolutely non-speculative. Interest yield 6.69%. Increase for the year approximately $9,000,000.

LIABILITIES—Policy Reserves on highest standard on continent. One Million Dollars above Government requirements. Accruing Profits fully covered, including profits payable in 1922.

SURPLUS—Gain during year—$500,000—largest in Company's history. Surplus on basis of Dominion Act (including Capital $82,500) $1,952,613.

The Mortality Experience in the Ordinary Branch was only 35.2% of expected and the total earnings for the year fully justified the continuance of the high scale used in dividend allotments to Policyholders. These dividends now amount, in many cases, to 200% of the estimates originally made when present Premium-Rates were adopted. Needless to say, Policyholders express greatest satisfaction.

The Sign of Motoring Satisfaction

There is a book about the Ford Service Man

The local Ford dealer has one for you. Call in or write for it. You will find it interesting reading.

"The Ford Service Man" personifies Ford Service. He is the skilled mechanic you find in every Ford Garage. His years of experience on Ford repairs save you money and assure the satisfactory performance of your car.

"The Ford Service Man" has one pet aversion—spurious parts. He simply cannot understand why any Ford owner should be so indifferent to the welfare of his Car as to permit a spurious part to be used.

Genuine Ford Parts—as exact as the original—are made for your car by the makers of your car, and are subjected to tests before leaving the factory far more severe than any they will meet under actual running conditions.

Have all repairs made where you see the familiar Ford sign. Genuine Ford Parts and Genuine Ford Parts alone are used wherever you see it displayed. It is the safety sign—the Economy sign—the sign of Motoring Satisfaction.

Facts About Features

that help to make The London Advertiser the Most Complete Newspaper in Western Ontario

"All the News That's Fit to Print"---First and Best!

It is pertinent at this time to call attention to two vital facts of vast import to London Advertiser readers:

1. The morning edition of The London Advertiser contains more St. Thomas and Western Ontario news every day than any other paper in Canada.
2. The evening edition of The London Advertiser prints more city news than any other paper in London.

What's Good To Eat?

It's the ever-present problem of the housewife. For upon her falls the responsibility of keeping hubby and the kiddies happy through their stomachs. And it's a seven-days-a-week problem. Sister Mary's Kitchen helps her in the task of keeping the daily menu varied, and always with the thought of economy, too.

Style Isn't Expensive

The lady of today doesn't have to be rich to be stylish, but she does have to know what the styles are. To satisfy the feminine "style appetite," Marian Hale has a daily article on what the women are wearing. And the best part of it is, she covers fashions that fit every purse.

Sports for the "Sports"

The baseball news has been shoved out of the limelight for the time being, but there is much of interest happening for the man with sporting blood in his veins. Hockey, curling, bowling, basketball, indoor baseball, boxing, wrestling, "big league" winter gossip, pithy comment by Billy Evans, dean of all major league baseball umpires; horse racing results and entries (without the mythical selection and illegal odds features so harmful to the civic welfare of a community), all have their innings on a comprehensive sport page.

News of the Business World

Of vital interest to the businessman is the news of the markets, both stock and produce. A half hour spent scanning the page given over to quotations and news of the business world keeps Dad in close touch with money matters.

All Affairs of the Heart

Are ticklish propositions, especially when one is after advice concerning them. But Cynthia Grey's Mail Box has been discussing heart problems and matters of conduct for years and today she has found a place in the hearts of thousands through her ability to render opinions in a wholesome sort of way. "Polly and Paul in Paris" is an added feature on the same subject. It is a brilliant study of the first year in the married life of a real Canadian couple in Paris, and it's written by Zoe Beckley, which is proof enough you can't afford to miss it.

The Daily Cartoons and Comics

Have become permanent features because of their immense popularity. Old and young alike enjoy "Our Boarding House" by Gene Ahern, "Mutt and Jeff," by Bud Fisher, "Doings of the Duffs," by Allman, and "Freckles and His Friends" by Blosser.

Now, Up at Ottawa---

What's going on at the capital these days with Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and his cabinet on the job. Dominion and international questions furnish plenty of food for thought. The London Advertiser representative is on the "inside." He proved it by giving you the correct "cabinet slate" 24 hours before any other newspaper, and he'll continue the "good work" by giving you all the news in a non-partisan way.

What of the Kiddies?

We haven't forgotten them. For aren't "The Adventures of The Twins" in fairy land, by Olive Roberts Barton, in The London Advertiser every day?

A Complete Novel Every Two Weeks

An Exclusive London Advertiser Feature.

The present novel, "The Step On the Stairs," by Isabel Ostrander, ends on Saturday, January 28. Beginning Monday, January 30, Raine's Best Book—"Gunsight Pass."

---and the Editorial Page

has a powerful appeal to readers of all classes. Dr. R. H. Bishop is a daily contributor on "How To Keep Well," and Digby Phillips in a "Read Your Character" series is of interest.

Hydro and Politics.

THIS SPEECH in London on Friday night, SIR ADAM BECK took action to place himself on record being opposed to the appointment of a minister of power.

He also claimed that hydro must be kept out of politics.

This paper has previously pointed out the fact that this question of hydro out of politics is raised at any time except at elections.

SIR ADAM BECK has not hesitated to plunge into politics, and take the whole question of the hydro department with him, and seek to use the Conservative political capital of it.

Why not take our railways, or our office, or our educational system from a responsible government department?

Why not keep all these matters out of politics.

Politics is simply government by men elected by the people. It is right and logical and legal way to deal with public expenditure.

The position is this: The credit of the province of Ontario is being run on to back up operations carried on by an association that is not solid, and that has no standing outside of that granted by the laws of the province.

Otherwise, the hydro management run riot with the finances of the province, and all the province to say in the matter is to vote money.

There is no question of wrecking trying to wreck hydro. All such is pure rubbish. To wreck hydro, with its present financial position, would mean high wreck the province. The cry of "Trying to wreck hydro" is so poor and so thin cannot claim serious consideration.

The position of claiming that a hundred millions of the province's money is at stake, a responsible government department would handle it, is reasonable and sound, and is coming to be more seriously considered as the proper way to handle the case.

Sunday Drug Stores.
SHOULD BE AN easy matter for London druggists and the police department to come to some understanding in regard to keeping certain hours on Sunday. It can be claimed that it pays the drug stores to open on Sunday. They do make conditions much more favorable to their employees were they to close up tight on Saturday night and stay closed until Monday morning.

It is quite necessary, from the standpoint of the public, not only the city, but in the district, that drug stores be open at stated hours on Sunday—numerous calls are made on these places in the hours between Saturday and Monday and it is necessary that preparations calling for the services of a competent druggist be attended to.

It is strange to see stores open on Sunday, and the people in the city and district do not want to be ridden to the point where they will lock the door Saturday night and keep it locked until Monday morning.

Iowa and Russia.
THE QUESTION has been put before, and it can well be retorted: Why, in this highly-organized world, should Iowa be burning corn for fuel, and at the same time Russia is starving for want of food?

There is shipping tonnage rusting in the harbors, and the volume of goods going to pieces for want of something to do, and the volume of goods going to pieces for want of something to do, and the volume of goods going to pieces for want of something to do.

There are plenty of railway lines carrying grain to the idle boats, and there are no snow-bound tracks to impede the progress.

And yet, according to latest reports, to people of Iowa continue to burn corn for fuel, while the people of Russia continue to die for lack of corn for food.

The Housing Plan.
LONDON HOUSING COMMISSION is going to sell the houses it has left at a reduced price, in order to dispose of them, and this is the best course that can be taken.

It is harder to secure buyers following all the undesirable publicity that has been given these houses.

The operation of the housing commission will result in a loss to the city. Reports made on the condition of these places show there is defective work in a good many cases.

Why should a city not be able to do good work done as a private enterprise or a corporation? When an employer or a contractor sets out to do good work, he generally goes to it with good workmanship, and materials used are up to standard. There is nothing about it at all, and it is understood why the same

There was considerable need for houses when the move was first made. There were then, and there are now, many men who are glad of a chance to get assistance in the way of a loan at a reasonable rate to help them pay for their home.

As a general thing these men have nothing that can afford to lose, and it is fair and also necessary that they be accorded 100 cents for every dollar in housing efficiency when they invest. They are not speculative buyers, and it is highly unfortunate that such numerous defects should have come to the surface.

The idea of assisting a worthwhile man to build his home still holds good, but the experience here and elsewhere leads to the belief that it is better, when it comes to the building part, for the ultimate owner to get in touch with a reliable contractor, tell him what he wants, and then see to it that he gets it.

Need Assistance.

MENTION IS MADE in the Brantford Expositor of the need of a moratorium to protect those who have been trying to buy homes, but who find that they cannot hold on and keep up their payments. If they are forced to let go the chances are, unless some special arrangement is made, they will lose their holdings entirely.

Fortunately, there are not many people around who are anxious to squeeze the small man out in order that they may take his property, but against the few who are always open and ready for this kind of business, protection is needed.

The man who is making an honest attempt to pay for his own home must have every possible encouragement in this effort.

Lynchings.

MATTHEW BULLOCK does not want to leave Canada for North Carolina because he fears he will be lynched when he gets there. Nor can it be said that his grounds are useless and without reason.

The fact that he fears he will be lynched is based on the known condition that others have been lynched.

It might be as well for United States to know at times that the civilized world holds the opinion that the way it strings its colored residents up by the neck without a trial does not fit in well with the many other excellent qualities of that republic.

If Bullock were going back to Britain from United States he could not make the claim that he would not have a fair and impartial trial.

Unfortunately, in the face of the history of lynchings, it is possible for him to make the charge against United States as one reason why he should not be sent back to North Carolina.

LITTLE 'TISERS

Our idea of a smart man is one who can dress in a pullman berth and not look as though he had been out all night.

It's an awful lot harder to explain a thing to your wife after she has found out all about it from another source.

Charlie Chaplin lost $100,000 when a New York stock broker blew up. All of which goes to prove that Chaplin is a good comedian.

The Scots' Guards band is going to tour Canada. May this be the first of a procession. Canada has never heard better band and orchestra effects than those produced by the famous British military bands.

The report is current that Sir Robert Borden is to assist in drafting a new constitution for Ireland. Sir Robert's knowledge of Canadian affairs, and of the strength and weakness of our system should make his services most acceptable and valuable in this work.

Dry Goods Economist—Once upon a time a man had a furnace which was not heating his home to a very great degree of satisfaction. One day he became angry, and going down to the basement, stood before it and exclaimed: "Not one more lump of coal will you get until you give me more heat!" The poor nut froze to death. Therein is a lesson for advertisers.

NOAH'S POETRY

THEY ALL SAY IT.

I met my friend upon the street,
The steam was rising from his mug,
While one lone hand was workin'
Hard to keep the frost from off his lug.

He had a quilt around his neck,
A fuzzy cap encased his ears, while
From his frosty eyes there crept two Skinny, weary lookin' tears.

My friend, he was a learned man,
His brain it almost weighed a ton,
He knew the kings that ruled the roost, could name them over one by one.

In politics and arithmetic he was a wizard through and through, he'd reckon more inside an hour than most men in a week or two.

So when I met him on the street
when comin' down to work today,
I reckoned that he'd speak a bit of empires fallin' toward decay.

Or how he'd take six rows of sums and count 'em just as one, two, three, or why a cow can't sing a song, nor yet a calf climb up a tree.

He never touched on these here things, his nose was turnin' purple blue—he looked me in the eye and said: "Say, ain't this cold enough for you?" —NOAH.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Stomachache

TOMACHACHE, like headache, is always a symptom. In young people the chief cause is indigestion in diet. Eating too much starch food that is often imperfectly digested or eating indigestible food, pastry and concentrated sweets, as candy, causes an excessive flow of gastric juice. The drinking of a large amount of ice water may check digestion.

Aside from simple indigestion, stomachache may be caused by gallstone colic, ulcer of the stomach, or even cancer, though in many cases of cancer there is no pain. Pain in the large intestines may feel like a stomachache.

One cannot be too often cautioned to be careful in eating. Form the habit of chewing your food carefully and thoroughly. Never eat immediately following an emotional strain. Anger, fear and worry cause indigestion, chronic constipation and severe attacks of stomachache.

There is a multitude of pills we may inflict on our stomach before we get as far as a stomachache. When a stomachache follows a heavy meal it is fairly certain that it is due to indigestion.

Relief will come when the stomach is emptied of its contents, undigested food and toxins, by forced vomiting. Persistent, recurring stomachache that does not yield to simple treatment should be carefully investigated by a stomach specialist.

READ YOUR CHARACTER
(By Digby Phillips.)

NO. 100—THE PERCEIVERS.

In previous articles the general significance of the forehead which slants backward and the bulging brow have been discussed. Now comes a more careful observation of forehead shapes.

Traits of character really may be divided into three classes; those which are mere expressions of it, those that are inherited with the character and therefore betray it, and those which are truly physiologically connected with it. Head shapes are typical of the latter class.

In general the forehead which slants backward denotes quickness of thought and perception, as opposed to slowness, depth and concentration of thought. This has been pointed out before.

But the reason lies in this: that the faculties of perception in the brain are located just over the eyes, in what the character analyst calls the "first floor" of the brain. It is the excess development of this "first floor" of the brain over the second and third "floors" that gives the slanting forehead its slanting shape.

Persons with such development are the "perceivers." They are the quick observer, hunting always for facts, not theories, whose most reliable reactions to their observations are as rapid as the observations themselves. They are, therefore, people with a very practical turn of mind, doers rather than theorists, accomplices of the work that lies before them rather than the solvers of deep problems. They are dynamic rather than analytic.

Best Cold Weather Food for Children

On these cold mornings, children need hot, sustaining breakfasts. It must be food providing properly balanced nourishment. Vitamins, salts for building the body, bulky waste to regulate the organs are all essential. Otherwise, with cold food, unbalanced or too highly refined, the children are improperly nourished and fall easy prey to colds, adenoids, tonsillitis, bronchitis and sundry cold weather ailments.

ROMAN MEAL and lots of milk is the best food to give them. It is better than meat, better than bread or eggs, better than refined cereals, because it is properly balanced and nourishes every part of the body. It makes delicious, hot breakfast dishes, such as porridge, muffins, gems or pancakes, and takes but a few minutes to prepare. You can get a package at any grocer's.

TO THE EDITOR

Editor Advertiser:

Sir: May I have a few lines of your very valuable space to reply to the spokesman of Mormonism, who took exception to some reported statements of mine regarding Joseph Smith. At first I considered his letter so weak that it was not worthy of attention. I still feel the same way about it. But I find in the occasion an opportunity to present the basis of condemnation of all such impostures.

In the last chapter of the New Testament God places His signature and seal, indicating the completion of all necessary, authentic revelation. On the Cross Christ indicated the completion of all necessary atonement, when he cried: "It is finished."

So God has emphatically stated that all authentic revelation that had been given was imperative and no further revelation was necessary. These are the words: "If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book. If any man shall take away from the words of the Book of this prophecy God shall take away his part from the Book of Life."

My position as a minister of Christ gives me no authority or dominance over my fellow men. My business as a preacher of the Gospel is to present what is already revealed in the Word of God. I am commissioned to preach the Word.

Any person who comes along and claims to have had a supernatural revelation and through that claims the homage and obedience of his fellow men—any person who even claims a superior interpretation that in any way gives him authority over any other regenerated individual, I am ready to denounce as an impostor. I am ready to denounce him in the strongest terms as ecclesiastical liar, a false prophet, a blind guide or an embodiment of the anti-Christ.

God has made us all (clergy and laity) prophets, priests and kings with equal privileges and equal authority. Anyone who assumes to lord it over another is a usurper, for One is our Lord and Master, even Christ and all we are brethren. The only authentic interpreter of the Scriptures is the Holy Spirit, and He is just as willing to interpret to the humble as to the high. He interprets to all, not to occasional individuals. The only one who has a right to command is Christ, and He has no lieutenants. He deals directly with each individual.

The only one who has a right to our worship and adoration is God, and He must have it all, or none. Thanking you for your courtesy,

A. C. BINGHAM.

CHILD WELFARE WORKERS.
Editor Advertiser:

Sir—As regards the case of the welfare worker who recently summoned a boy for assault, it seems to me that a man who has not sufficient personal influence with children to prevent such occurrences should hardly be occupying the position he is in. A little tact, a little sympathy, and a little firmness will always circumvent such boyish, savage impulses.

We all feel savage at times, especially when some dear friend steps on our worst corn. At such times we feel that assault and battery would be a great relief, but prudence and self-interest forbid. A boy, however, has not always such control over his impulses, but with a little patience and insight he can be taught.

It is said the lad is to be examined by an alienist. There is only one competent alienist in this city, and I do not remember that he was ever called in a public case. It is a difficult profession, and the assertions of amateurs, whether they have degrees after their names or not, are untrustworthy. Some of these so-called alienists should be examined themselves.

Many of us good churchgoers have fits of temper more or less unmanageable. But we are not sent to have our minds examined, not even if the case gets into court. Assault and battery, however, illegal, immoral, and deplorable, is a most natural and healthy human instinct handed down to us by our pre-historic forefathers, who were a great deal saner than we are.

Truly, we need a juvenile court. Alienists, indeed! Why not also provide an alienist for Mr. Lowman; it is just as reasonable.

We have heard so much about a juvenile court. When are we going to get one? What are our ministers doing that they do not take some effective (not ineffective) action in the matter? We do not pay them just to preach sermons, but to get things done. To right wrongs and to defend the defenceless and the poor.

For God's sake, and for our children's sake, let us put an end to this farce that has been going on in city courts for so long. Let men be put in charge of the juvenile cases who are mentally and morally and temperamentally fitted for the work.

Can anyone imagine a boy acting before Canon Carlisle or Judge Lindsay in the manner that this lad has done before this welfare worker of ours? Of course not!

Why, I have seen the head matron of a great London hospital, called in to see a husky prizefighter with the delirium tremens, who had just laid out two attendants with black eyes and broken noses. I wondered what she would do.

She stood there calm, dignified, aged and frail and spoke a few quiet words to the drunken beast. She said that she was surprised that he should behave in such a manner! Without moving a muscle she stood there in the center of the room with no one to defend her from a sudden murderous attack and quietly ordered the man to get back in to bed, which he did, muttering excuses for his conduct. How did she do it? I don't know, unless it was because she saw and appealed to the real man behind the appearance of a jungle beast, whereas the attendants only saw the beast, which they feared, and sought to down by brute force, and so aroused what they wished to subdue.

Would that frail old woman, who seemed to be the very spirit of that great hospital, have called in the police to subdue a silly, hot-tempered boy? I guess not!

Then, again, how often we pick up the paper to read that some proscribed man has been in the reformatory once and this is his second offence. Shucks! A reformatory would make a sinner and a second offender out of an angel. And scientific statistics prove that they are not reformatories but do reformatories. So when we do get that juvenile court let us keep gentlemen who make such idiotic remarks as far away from it as possible, for I am assured that they wish to serve as juvenile officers.

Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Gentlemen:—

The results which can be obtained by newspaper advertising are reflected, in a large way, in the growth and prosperity of the Canadian Postum Cereal Company, Ltd. From the start of its advertising experience, the Postum Company has been a consistent user of newspaper advertising space. During these years, our newspaper schedules have constantly increased in volume and have been carried through with practically no interruptions. It might be said, in a general way, that the advertising policy of this institution is founded on newspaper publicity.

It is the belief of our organization that the present world events have increased the value of the newspaper as an advertising medium. Newspapers are followed closely for developments with regard to foreign policies and the settlement of the many international problems. Such a reader interest cannot help but put newspaper advertising on a more substantial value basis than ever before.

In keeping with our past policies, our newspaper advertising schedules are being steadily maintained and we are looking forward to active campaigns during the year 1922.

Yours very truly,

CANADIAN POSTUM CEREAL COMPANY, Ltd.

ENGINEER DIES, TWENTY INJURED IN C. P. R. CRASH

Passenger Train Plunges
Over Embankment Two Miles From Ottawa.

DISCOVER RAILS TORN UP

Victim Scalded To Death After Being Pinned Under Locomotive.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Engineer Hawley White of Prescott was killed and a score of persons injured when the Canadian Pacific train from Prescott to Ottawa plunged over an embankment near Chandler Junction about two miles from this city, last night.

A singular feature of the catastrophe was that while the engine and the mail and baggage cars fell down a 15-foot slope to the right of the track, the next car, a passenger coach, remained on the track, while two other coaches went over the embankment to the left.

Fireman George Elliott of Prescott saved his life by jumping. Conductor John Young and brakeman J. Heardon, both of Prescott, escaped uninjured.

Smith's Falls and Perth hockey teams, on their way to play in Ottawa last night, were on the train, two players of the Smith's Falls team being among the injured.

It is thought that the accident was due to a spread rail, but an investigation showed the rails to have been torn up and spread for many yards.

The injured are: George Elliott, fireman, cut about head; Mr. and Mrs. R. Greer, Smith's Falls, cut about head; Clare Purdy, hockey player, Smith's Falls, head and legs badly cut; Robert Naud, Smith's Falls, hockey player, head badly cut; Mrs. Ed. Harvey, Perth, left arm cut; Mrs. Rose Wright, Manotick, face badly bruised; Mrs. Ben Patterson, Kemptville, legs badly injured; Ben Patterson, Kemptville, head and legs cut; Robert Motherwell, Perth, face and arms injured; Miss E. McCurry, Oxford, arm and hand cut; Mrs. E. R. Nelmer, 122 Gilmour street, Ottawa, hand injured; Mrs. L. A. Lane, 171 McLeod street, Ottawa, hip injured.

Wm. Campbell, 8 Renfrew avenue, Ottawa, had head cuts, shoulder and arm hurt; Mother Clement, Kingston, had head injuries, in a critical condition; a man named King, of Gilmour street, Ottawa, shoulder broken; Sister Mary Child, Kingston, hip injured.

Passengers in the car which remained on the track, although severely shaken up, rushed to the assistance of those in the other coaches, and were instrumental in opening the doors. The relief train from Ottawa took doctors and nurses to the scene, and the injured received treatment at the wreck and on the journey back to the city.

Prior to the arrival of the relief train the emergency bandaging was greatly facilitated by Mrs. George Goodwin of Billings Bridge, who, hearing the crash and cries for help, emptied her medicine chest into a basket and rushed across the fields to administer first aid. Eyewitnesses declare that Mother Superior St. Clement and others who were bleeding freely, probably owe their lives to the prompt action taken by Mrs. Goodwin.

Canadian Press Explains Reports of Death of Pope Benedict XV.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(By Canadian Press).—The announcement Saturday that Pope Benedict was dead was based on cable dispatches from London and Rome, and was founded on official information.

Dispatches from London at 1:40 p.m. gave an announcement by Cardinal Bourne of the demise of the pope. The announcement made by a member of the cardinal's staff stated that official information had been received of the pontiff's death. The Associated Press telephoned the cardinal's residence to confirm this, and one of the secretaries replied that they had the news officially.

A dispatch sent out by the Reuter Agency in London, and received in New York at 2:10 p.m., Saturday, announced the death of the pope. The dispatch was dated Rome. Other dispatches announcing the death were received from Paris quoting the Wolff Bureau as saying Pope Benedict died at 5:35 p.m. (Rome time), Saturday, and a Reuter News dispatch from London stated that word of the death of the pope had been received in Berlin.

Up to this time the last direct dispatches received by the Associated Press from Rome showed that his holiness was on the verge of death.

Meantime, urgent messages for definite information direct from Rome brought replies from London that the Italian telegraphic system had been in a state of chaos for more than a year, and that undoubtedly the wires were overburdened with hundreds of messages concerning the pope.

were pitiful in the extreme, especially when the wounded were being removed from the wreck to the snow-covered adjoining fields. Coats and blankets were appreciated, and immediately on arrival of the relief train stretchers were rushed up.

Five of the injured were able to leave the hospital late tonight, those still on the sequestered list being George Elliott, Clare Purdy, Arthur Naud, R. P. King and William Campbell.

MEDICAL MEN TO SIFT "PERS" ISSUE

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—The board of license commissioners and representatives of the Ontario Medical Association will hold a round table conference in Toronto on Jan. 31 with a view to trying to arrive at a more workable basis for the handling of liquor prescriptions.

The profession will be represented by the special committee, of which Dr. George S. Young is chairman, together with any directors of the O. M. A. who may be able to attend.

As yet no concrete plans have been formulated for a submission at this conference, but it is hoped that out of the general interchange of views may come some agreement as to the future policy, which would be most acceptable to the government, medical profession and the public at large.

While Dr. Young was not prepared to forecast what scheme might meet with most general approval he felt fairly confident that the medical men would not take a favorable view of the proposal that they should tear up their prescription books. However, much irritation and trouble may have been caused in the past, he considered that the profession would not, in justice to the public, allow itself to be deprived of the right of prescribing liquor for medicinal purposes. At the same time, all due respect must be paid to the mandate that liquor should not be issued for leverage purposes.

TRAINS BLOCKED IN NEW ONTARIO

COCHRANE, Jan. 22.—Train schedules in this section are completely disorganized, following a heavy storm overnight. Drifts are piled high and the Continental Limited for Montreal, which arrived here this morning after having been delayed by a wreck near Armstrong, was only at Porquiss Junction late this afternoon. It is held there by the snow.

Traffic on the Iroquois Falls and Porcupine branches of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway is suspended meantime, and no passenger train has gone south since early yesterday morning.

CO-OPERATION IN NAVY PLAN URGED

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Speaking at the University Club here Saturday evening, Lord Lee of Farnham, first lord of the admiralty, and one of the members of the British delegation to the conference on the limits of the empire held at Washington, suggested that it would be a profound mistake for Canada or for anyone in Canada to assume that they have no concern in the British Navy, and added that the need for co-operation in the empire navy from every part of the empire still remains almost as vital as it was before the Washington conference.

He pointed out that the total budget was within one or two millions of pounds the same as the naval estimates, for which he, as lord of the admiralty, was responsible, and he accordingly hoped that the "very modest contribution which was offered to imperial naval defence at the imperial conference last summer would be honored by the successors of the government which made the offer, and that we shall feel that in this great and vital question of naval defence we have Canada playing the same full and generous part as she has played in military affairs in the past."

TAKES BULLOCK'S CASE TO OTTAWA

HAMILTON, Jan. 22.—F. F. Treleven, counsel for Matthew Bullock, the North Carolina colored man who is fighting extradition from Canada, left for Ottawa tonight to support his appeal to the immigration department against the deportation order of the immigration inspector.

W. F. White, New York, representing the Society for the Advancement of Colored People, was in Buffalo today, addressing meetings in Bullock's behalf. He left for Ottawa tonight, where he will join Mr. Treleven.

Extradition papers are expected here tomorrow or Tuesday. The documents have been much longer in arriving than the legal representatives anticipated, but the delay has had no serious effect on Bullock's case. When these papers come the exact charge on which it is planned to send Bullock from Canada will be known and the counsel will decide whether or not to waive extradition proceedings and carry the fight into the United States.

2 FIREMEN PERISH IN MONTREAL FIRE

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Caught under a falling wall, following an explosion, Lieut. Paul Deloges and Fireman Louis Paul Pressau, were killed, and it is feared that other victims may be under the ruins of the Vimy Apartments, which, with the adjoining Harvard Apartments, on Sherbrooke street west, Notre Dame de Grace, were totally destroyed by fire of unknown origin, which was discovered at 7 o'clock this evening.

Four other firemen were overcome by gas and sustained cuts, but none were seriously affected.

After the fire had been discovered in a laundry at 5618 Sherbrooke street west, and the firemen were subduing it, there came a not very loud report which was almost immediately followed by a shattering explosion which tore out the front of the laundry and spread the fire in all directions with amazing rapidity. It was in this explosion that the firemen were caught.

MAY SOON ENTER COMMONWEALTH

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The latest political developments in the empire is embodied in a "white paper," containing a draft of a proposed constitution for Southern Rhodesia which was recently drafted between Winston Churchill, secretary of state for colonial affairs, representatives of the people of Rhodesia and the present ruling authority, namely the British South African Company.

In an accompanying dispatch Mr. Churchill expresses the opinion that the new constitution, if adopted, will confer on the people of Rhodesia full and satisfactory control of their own affairs. Mr. Churchill proposes to appoint a delegation of Rhodesians to ascertain the terms on which Rhodesia could enter the union of South Africa. The two alternatives will then be submitted to a referendum of the people of Rhodesia.

ENGAGE 600 MEN FOR FULL TIME

BRANTFORD, Jan. 22.—The industrial situation is brightening up considerably. The Massely-Harris Company has taken on 600 men for full time work and report that the work will last for some time. The Cock-shutt Plow Company has 350 men working three days a week. The Verity Plow Company has taken on 50 men, with prospects of more departments being opened as the

NEW NORWEGIAN VESSEL SINKS IN MID-OCEAN

Steamer Reports Picking Up Survivors 1,200 Miles
by Radio.

WAS BOUND FOR BREMEN

Sent Calls For Help, Stating Boats and Propeller Were Lost.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 22.—The steamer Centennial States reported by radio tonight that the new Norwegian freight steamer Mod had sunk in mid-ocean. The message said the survivors were on board the steamer Melmore Head, but did not indicate whether any members of the crew were lost.

The Mod, giving her position as about 1,200 miles east of Halifax, sent out calls for help yesterday, saying that her boats and propeller were gone, and she was in danger of sinking. She was bound from New York for Antwerp, Bremen and Hamburg.

Several steamers sought the Mod yesterday without success, but today the Melmore Head, bound from Belfast for St. John, sent word that she was standing by the distressed steamer, and was taking off the crew. The Mod registered 2,707 tons.

PERILS 50 PASSENGERS.

PRESCOTT, Ont., Jan. 22.—Fifty passengers aboard the ferry steamer Ferdinand suffered a harrowing experience here Saturday night when the boat ran on the rocks about 200 yards below the Ogdensburg light-house in a thick fog. The density of the mist prevented assistance from the shore, and as a result the majority were marooned on the steamer until early today when they were taken ashore by the Steamer Miss Vandenberg.

No panic followed the grounding of the vessel, and no one was hurt.

GIVES $1,000 FOR SON'S RECOVERY

INGERSOLL, Jan. 22.—In connection with the annual meeting of the congregation of the Baptist Church, a thankoffering of $1,000 was made by George Smith, a local merchant in recognition of God's goodness in restoring to health his son, Percy L. Smith, who was critically ill for a long period. The money will be devoted to improvements to the church building.

RESTORE SIGHT TO BLIND INDIAN

HEPWORTH, Jan. 21.—David Thompson, an Indian, of Sauble Falls, who was totally blind, and for whose benefit a box social and concert was held there, Nov. 15 last, has returned home with his eyesight perfectly restored from an Ontario hospital at which he has received treatment. He expresses profound gratitude at the thoughtfulness of the people of Sauble Falls who made this possible.

FINED $500 FOR OPERATION OF GAMING HOUSE

Ex-Alderman Hooper Severely Censured by Judge in the Windsor Police Court.

CONDUCTED CIGAR STAND

"Criminal Code Violation Unpardonable in City Head," Declares Court.

WINDSOR, Jan. 22.—Ex-Ald. Archibald Hooper was strongly censured by Judge Gundy in the Windsor police court Saturday, shortly before the judge imposed a fine of $500 and costs on him on the charge of keeping a common betting house at his cigar stand in the waiting-room of the Hydro-Electric Railway Company, Sandwich and Ferry streets.

"This is an aggravated case," the judge said. "Unfortunately, I cannot overlook the fact that at the time of the offence he was an alderman of the city—a man who should have upheld the morals of the city, and, least of all, who was directly responsible to the police in suppressing vice."

"He openly made use of the public office of the railway company for running a common betting house. That is the very last place in the world where anyone should open up a gambling place."

Expected Different Conduct. "I would expect different conduct from a man who held the post of alderman and had the respect of the citizens who placed him there. During his term of office he criticized every other department of the city, and even the private bills committees and its officials at Toronto for their conduct, so naturally one would not expect anything unlawful from such a person."

Judge Gundy, before imposing sentence, said that in several previous cases he had imposed jail sentences in cases where the gambling section of the criminal code had been violated.

Frank W. Wilson, attorney for Hooper, made a strong plea for a fine. Judge Gundy stated that he believed the ends of justice would be best served if he allowed the defendant to go with a fine. He then imposed the maximum. It was immediately paid, but Mr. Wilson stated that the case would be appealed.

Seeing Week-End Market Through Aunt Maria's Eyes

Rhubarb was so plentiful on the week-end market as to be perfectly obvious, even to the very short-sighted. The pink and red bunches, with tuft tops of pale green, added a gay bit of color, and distinctly brought to mind the words of the popular person to be a whole week behind with the news and consequently it took a big crimp in the sanity of Aunt Maria to make the discovery that this was positively not the first appearance of the season of rhubarb on the London Market.

It had been there a week before, apparently, however, the early birds got it, or, as the Highland Scotman said of his potatoes: "It was good, but seldom whatever."

In any case it failed to catch the eye at every turn as it did Saturday, Jan. 21.

Rhubarb was at least one commodity which offered an advantage in the way of price for purchase on the market and carrying home, done up all snugly in a newspaper-covered parcel. The groceries, where it was in exhibition earlier in the morning, and where inquiries were made, asked 20 cents a bunch. Market makers were selling it for 15 cents a bunch, or two bunches for 25 cents. "Rhubarb never tastes so good as when it first comes in," said one woman, as she bought two bunches.

The owner of the pile from whom she made her purchase was inclined to take the view that all tastes did not agree with hers. "My experience," he said, "is that there is the largest demand for it in the early spring, when people begin to want something to sharpen up their appetites."

A Cellar Rhubarb-Bed.

Where does the rhubarb come from that is offered at this season of the year? Would it be worth while, at the price, to run a greenhouse, just to produce rhubarb?

No need at all for such orchard-culture. One youth was good enough to tell Aunt Maria all about it between his rush of making change for the numbers who wanted rhubarb, or crisp, tender lettuce, at 8 cents a bunch, two bunches for 15 cents. (He sold out his last bunch of lettuce just at 11 o'clock.)

"It is grown in the cellar," he said.

"We have a regular dugout, 50 feet long, with a dirt floor, but any cellar will do, provided sufficient heat can be provided. We bring in the roots when they are frozen solid, set them right side up and fill them round with earth.

"No, it isn't necessary to cover them with earth, just enough to hold them so they will stand level on the floor to take the water. It takes six weeks of steady forcing to get the rhubarb ready for market. The main thing is the watering and keeping the temperature high enough. You can grow it in any cellar if it is warm enough. I keep ours at 70 degrees until the rhubarb is six inches high, then 50 after that. Our cellar is heated with a hot water furnace.

"So? Any kind will do. Our cellar has a sand bottom.

"The rhubarb doesn't take any humus out of the soil, just forces itself until it dies."

Now Aunt Maria is trying to decide between rhubarb and a mushroom bed in the cellar, or raising turkeys for the next Christmas market as a means of getting rich quick.

Talking of rhubarb, a certain woman who cooks it to such perfection that it is actually delicious as strawberries says—but we will save that for next week.

That Chicken Massacre.

Eggs were down, very much down, bringing 45 to 55 cents a dozen, the 50 and 55 cents quoted for the kind that the sellers guaranteed were all laid within the past week. Hens are evidently laying well, judging by the quantities.

One farm homemaker had the eggs she offered all nicely stamped with the date and other particulars, and for this additional flourish, an extra 5 cents a dozen was asked.

Apparently Friday was an unlucky day for hapless Christmas fowls. There had been a massacre of them the day before the week-end market.

In Lavender

BY MARIAN HALE.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—When lavender appears in the smart shop windows then spring is just around the corner.

And—all along Fifth avenue is lavender. Lavender in frocks, in hats, in handkerchiefs in silken knickers and negligees.

This Doris Reid gown is done in exquisite lavender crepe.

judging by the great numbers offered for sale.

One marketer called to Aunt Maria as she descended the basement stairs, "Get after the poultry-sellers for the prices they are charging. I couldn't get a chicken to suit me, so I'm going to have a roast of pork instead."

In any case, prices were considerably better than a week ago. The market clerk himself was displaying a fine buy he had made for $140.

Time was when a clean-picked fowl was scarcely ever seen on the London Market. It is still a rare bird, but it can be found, and it is a joy when the tussle with the tightly-set feathers of the wings is taken into consideration.

"And how much harder it is to get the feathers out a day or so after, than right after the chicken is killed," says the woman who has lived in the country, killed chickens herself, and knows what she is talking about.

Vegetables Now Popular.

Vegetables were far from plentiful, and they won't be any more abundant.

"When they begin to get scarce, the grocers always get friendly with me," said a market gardener, adding, "and I've been mighty popular this forenoon."

One man was selling potatoes by the bag at $1.75 a bag, and 35 cents a peck, his easy-to-peel potatoes.

He assured, almost to the point of crossing his heart, that they were mealy and sound, through and through.

"We bake 'em most of the time," was his final grand bit of evidence to prove his case. In broken lots, he sold them at 35 cents a peck, and the canny person took a peck to try them before venturing on a whole bag or more.

Onions were 15 cents a quart, 35 a bushel.

"That settles it," said Thrifty Housewife. "For the rest of the season, until the onions grow up again, we will use them for flavoring and not for vegetables."

Parsnips were 50 cents a peck, turnips, 20 cents a peck, and vegetable oyster, 10 cents for a bunch.

Front quarter of beef was selling for 12 cents a pound, hind quarter for 15 cents.

"And that's by far the most economical way to buy if you've got a big family, or run a boarding-house," said the farmer-dealer.

WITH THE BRIDES

TACKABERRY-LAMKIN.

LISTOWELL, Jan. 21.—Mr. Norman Tackaberry and Miss May Lamkin of Gorrie were quietly married at the manse at 4 p.m., Rev. J. M. Nicol performing the ceremony. The bride and groom were accompanied by Mr. Leroy Lamkin and Miss D. Bulmer of Elmira, Ont. The couple left for Toronto after the ceremony.

CLASS SHOWERS

Following the weekly prayer meeting of Hale Street Methodist Church last week, 60 of the members of the Friendship Bible Class held a happy social evening at the home of Mrs. W. L. Talbot. Mr. and Mrs. Wellington McLeod (formerly Elizabeth Wakeling) were with the class for the first time since their recent marriage, and an interesting feature of the evening was the presentation to the young couple by the pastor, Rev. L. W. Reid, of an aluminum and miscellaneous shower. The "best wishes" address was in the form of verse, written by F. W. Joffile and read by Mr. Forrester. Mr. McLeod made a suitable reply on behalf of himself and his bride.

Addressees were given by several prominent members of the class, and at the conclusion of the program tempting refreshments were served.

Three Organists Give Recital

Miss Vann, Soprano; Mr. Willgoose, Violinist, Assist at Music Club Event.

A number of music lovers enjoyed the twilight organ recital in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Women's Music Club, in aid of the War Memorial Children's Hospital.

Three solo organists were presented, Miss Annie C. Arnold, Mr. Ewart George and Mr. Evans Davis, and, as assisting artists, Miss Edythe Vann, soprano, and Mr. F. Linforth, Willgoose, violinist.

Miss Arnold opened the program with a capable reading of the prelude and fugue in C major (Bach) marked by nicety of phrasing and differentiation of the voices in the fugue. Following this, she played in pleasing manner the pastoral from 1st Sonata (Gulmunt).

Mr. George delighted by the crispness and assurance of his playing, his clean cut pedaling and his excellent style. His group included three numbers, (a) Fuguetta, F minor (George E. Whiting); (b) Reverie Pastorale, op. 8 (Charles Morse); and Gavotte B flat (Handel).

Mr. Davis revealed himself as a young musician of exceptional promise in his rendition of the ambitious "March Pontificale" (Lemmens), and a charming contrast (b) "Sunrise" (Clark-Eliot).

Miss Edythe Vann, possessor of a sweet, clear, flexible and well-trained soprano voice, sang with fine artistic appreciation (a) Recitative (aria con), "Welcome Hallelujahs" (Mozart); "The Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart); and (b) "Vol che Sapate" (Mozart).

Not for many a day has Mr. Willgoose, most versatile of musicians, appeared in the role of violin soloist. The excellence of his contribution came as a most welcome addition to the program, adding variety and real value. His offerings were "Sonata in A" (Handel), "A Vision" (Dreda), and "Canzonetta" (d'Ambrosio).

DISCUSS PROTECTIVE TARIFF.

An interesting feature of the January meeting of the Lobo Women's Institute was a discussion on the subject, "Resolved, That Protective Tariff is Beneficial to Canada."

A debate was to have taken place, but, as some of the debaters were not present, each side gave its points, but judgment on these was not rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ferguson, Melrose, were the host and hostess, and thirty-nine were present. Mrs. H. D. Little presided, solos were given by Miss Gladys McIntyre and Kathleen Crawford, and a recitation, "Betty and the Bear," by Miss Daisy McNeils. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. D. Steele, on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 15.

WOMAN INSPECTOR ASKED TO SPEAK

School Work Exhibits Planned For Educational Campaign.

Dr. A. E. Marty of Toronto, who has the distinction of being the first woman in Ontario to be appointed an inspector of schools, and one of a very few to hold such a position in Canada, has been asked to come to London for the educational campaign, under the auspices of the London Union Mothers' Club, and lead a discussion on Friday evening, Feb. 24, on the subject, "Ethical Aspects of Education." Rev. D. C. MacGregor is giving the address on the theme.

Dr. Marty, a former St. Thomas girl, and a graduate of Queen's University, had a prominent place in Canada for several years before receiving her appointment to the Toronto Inspectorate. She is a most fluent and interesting speaker.

Mrs. John Rose, president of the London Union Mothers' Club, is awaiting a reply from Dr. Marty. A feature planned for the convention is an exhibit of art, manual training and household science work done by the pupils of the city schools, to be arranged in the convention building. Mrs. Rose has conferred with Inspector V. K. Greer, Miss Mulveney, the supervisor, S. R. White, manual training supervisor, Miss Isabel Craig, household science supervisor in the public schools, and they have shown themselves sympathetic with the project, and willing to co-operate.

Guides Link Up Ontario-Brazil

Provincial Commissioner's Cousin Organized First Company of Guides in Brazil.

A welcome visitor to the desk of the editor of the women's department is a copy of the January Girl Guide Bulletin, which gives many interesting tid-bits about what the guides are doing throughout the province.

A considerable amount of space is devoted to the doings of the guides in London in the past month, including the visits of Capt. Winifred Head and Miss Alice Lea of Toronto to inspect, teach and inspire to more ambitious efforts; the consecration of company flags in St. Paul's Cathedral, and the many events of the holiday season.

Rodney guides report the holding of a successful sale, Miss Symes, Ottawa, commissioner for Division I, gives a glowing account of the activities of the guides in Renfrew.

Here's an interesting extract: "When we quoted an extract from the Gazette about the guides in South America, we didn't realize that the first company of guides in Brazil was started at Rio De Janeiro by Lady Alexander Mackenzie, who is cousin of our own provincial commissioner, Mrs. F. P. Betts. This company was formed entirely of Brazilian girls."

This month, the bulletin, edited right in London, by Miss Beth Pennington, provincial secretary, has a new department, riddles and simple acrostics. And it also has a clever double limerick to follow up that of last month. Here it is:

There once was a girl who declared (Though the housework her sisters all shared)

That she worked and she worked, While the others all shirked, And how hard she worked nobody cared.

But now this girl is a Guide, In her efficiency takes great pride, The badges she's won weigh nearly a ton, And there are lots that she hasn't yet tried.

"Use the Bell to Sell"

While others wait—you sell!

by Long Distance

ALADDIN rubbed his lamp and summoned anyone to his presence. This same thing is being done to-day—only Aladdin's lamp has changed to a telephone.

Call the man you long to do business with, by Long Distance, and he is virtually in your presence when he lifts the receiver to listen. Practically, you are face to face. Long Distance makes him more accessible than if he lived next door. The man you might hesitate to borrow a monkey-wrench from greets you cordially when you call him. While others cool their heels in outer offices, waiting, you sell him.

He is in a receptive frame of mind. His curiosity is appealed to. He realizes the conversation will be brief, and lets down the bars. And where a salesman knows his goods there is something in the tones of his voice that carries conviction—puts over the deal. Your goods go through doors that were formerly closed to them.

We were satisfied with the pony post, until the railroad came. The mail and telegraph answered every need until the telephone came. All means of communication have their special uses, but for speed the telephone is best of all. Long Distance reaches more places than there are Post Offices.

Because of the very low rates on Station-to-Station calls after 8.30 P.M. Evening and Night calls by Long Distance are being used more and more for business purposes. It only requires a little planning.

POLLY AND PAUL— AND PARIS

CHAPTER II.—IF SOMEBODY CARED

By Zoe Beckley

IT was at her sister Bert's party that Polly first met Paul Dawson. He was tall and slenderly strong, with crisp hair the color of shiny golden oak, deep-set blue eyes and a jolly, boyish smile.

Polly's quick glance noted that his clothes were right—beautifully cut and fitted, immaculately pressed. So different, mused her sensitive mind, from Charlie Briggs'.

Yet she felt sure there was an aggressive quality in Charlie Briggs that would earn him a million perfectly-tailored garments before this straight and supple-waisted Paul had got round to his life-work and started doing it.

"I just yanked myself out of a soft job," he was saying to Polly's brother-in-law as the four sat at dinner in Bert's well-appointed house, "because I liked it too well. It never would have led to anything. The opportunities are all out here in the smaller places. Horace Greeley was right!"

"You betcha life he was," assented their host, attacking with a large gesture the roast turkey. "The West's the place for young men. You'll do well with the Volcano Heating Company. Sims & Brady are fine fellows to work with. A corking big concern and going to get bigger. They'll treat you right. Have another bit of dark meat—atta boy; the cook won't think you appreciate her art if you don't."

Polly loved Paul's smile as he passed his plate, noted his strong-looking, well-kept hand and the neat compliment he made to Bert on her housekeeping.

But despite his enthusiastic responses to Bert's husband, Polly felt that this competent-looking Paul Dawson didn't have the advantage she was so much enamored of the problems of combustion and central heating.

"It must have been mighty interesting," she said later when they were in Bert's proud "drawing room" and the others had been talking interminably of the advantages of Edmonton and the Heating Company—"your working on a Montreal newspaper?"

He turned such an eager look upon her that she knew she had touched a vibrant chord.

"I'll say it was!" he smiled away his slang. "Most fun of any work I know. Unless," he added boyishly, "it might be bossing a movie company or going out 'on location'."

Polly smiled her prettiest. "You love adventure?"

Paul saw sympathy and a bit of wistfulness in her smile. One of those swift understandings flashed between them—a sort of I-can-see-you're-my-kind-of-person message. But all he answered was, "Oh, yes—" with a little half shrug. Polly understood. He didn't want to get round Edmonton that he was a wild fellow or a rolling stone. Bert's banker husband wouldn't like it. Or the Volcano Heating Company. People had such a way of exaggerating things.

That night Polly lay awake a long time with a warm feeling round her heart that Somebody had come at last who was Her Kind!

Somebody who like the things she liked.

Somebody who could laugh with her and be serious with her on occasion—not like Charlie Briggs, who always said, "Aw, cut the highbrow stuff," or "Why speak of love?" whenever she mentioned a book or play.

How wonderful it would be, mused Polly, as a bell somewhere far off rang midnight, if Paul should come to care for her.

What a soft, sweet bell! She had never noticed it before. She wondered if Paul heard it...

OATMEAL COOKIES.

Oatmeal cookies are an invaluable aid to the housewife who must prepare lunch. They may be made in large batches to be kept in a tin and filled as needed.

Dates stewed like apples, alone or with a little lemon and juice make a splendid filling. Apple sauce or any kind of jam or marmalade may be utilized as a filling. The following recipe makes fifty or sixty cookies:

Put three cups of oatmeal and three cups of flour in a bowl. Add a cup of sugar and a half cup of butter. Work well until the oatmeal has become quite powdery. Then mix to a soft batter with milk. An egg well beaten may also be added. Roll out quite thin on a well floured board and cut in large sheets. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Press this in lightly with a rolling pin and cut into cookies. A hot oven is necessary.

CUT GLASS.
Use lukewarm water, softened by the addition of soap, ammonia and washing soda, for cleaning your cut glass.

Hot Water Is Beauty's Aid—Edith King

EDITH KING.

The London Advertiser asked several of the world's leading beauties how they keep beautiful. Following is what Edith King gave as her recipe for beauty. Others will tell their beauty secrets in stories to follow.

BY EDITH KING.

HOT water, inside and out! If there's anything at all that will keep a skin looking all glossy and soft and lovely it is plenty of hot water to drink and plenty of warm water to wash with.

I've watched it with so many girls that I've followed the trick myself! Haven't a bit of use for this greasy cold cream of cleaning skin! Of course, must have cold cream to protect the skin, but when it comes to real skin—nothing in all the world like soap and warm water.

A skin which doesn't get its warm water bath must surely become thick and saggy looking instead of transparent and exquisite as skin really should be.

I have the same theory in regard to hair—wash it as often as it needs it—which in most cases, mine in particular, is once every two weeks. Tea and coffee I avoid. They tend to make one nervous, and jumping nerves mean wrinkles! A disturbed condition of the mind will spoil the nicest kind of a skin—beauty isn't any matter of magic! Can't eat too many sweets—mean a splotchy skin pimples! And a shiny nose!

Fried foods I almost never eat—something else that isn't good for the skin or the digestion. Fruits are really the thing I eat the most of. Two meals a day are quite enough for the average person.

Strong For Walking.
And I don't believe in dawdling! Spoil the finest figure and most beautiful skin in the world. Keep eternally doing, accomplishing while you rest, rest every bit of the way. Don't make either the resting or the working or the playing half way.

Walking is the only exercising I do—because I have time for nothing else. And I think for the busy girl, who would keep in trim, nothing is better than brisk walking in the open air.

gent's footsteps had died away in the quiet night air, and then turned to the guard.

"Do you know who I am?"

The patrolman nodded.

"All right," Barry broke in. "I take it that your orders tonight, Doane, are to keep guard outside the apartment house in which the woman was shot, unless you hear any suspicious sound within, or see something which you think should be investigated. Is that so?"

"Right, sir," Doane responded. "Very good. You're going to see and hear something suspicious within five minutes, and that something is going to be me. Understand?"

"I don't, sir," Doane replied. "But you're going to see and hear something suspicious within five minutes, and that something is going to be me. Understand?"

"Well, John, we've a nice mess to report at headquarters," he announced in a low tone, that the policeman of guard might not hear. "Here's a woman shot dead, and every last tenant in the house except the professor seems mixed up in it somehow, though every one of them have lied and peached on the rest." "Who the devil was this Miriam Vane, anyway? Where did she come from, and what were the rest to her?"

"I think we can guess what Ladd was," Barry whispered as he led his colleague up the stairs once more. "Just an idealistic young fool who let her hair with him like a cat with a mouse to please her vanity, and then kicked him out when he became inconvenient. He may have killed her, but I don't think so; I think he would have adored the woman he thought she was, and protected her with his last breath."

"The woman he thought she was," repeated Craig, pausing on the stairs in his astonishment.

"What are we going upstairs again for?" demanded Craig. "I've got to make my report at headquarters, and it's getting on toward morning."

"You're not going to rouse up old Griswold again, then, and ask him why he let about his acquaintance with Mrs. Vane?" Barry bent a quizzical glance upon the younger sergeant.

"I am not," the other announced with decision. "We have young Ladd's word for it that Griswold lied, but neither of them were under oath. They're both under guard, and in the morning we'll have them down on the carpet and get the truth out of them."

"That's a good idea," approved Barry. "And while you are about it, you might find out what time Miss Shaw goes out, and let the professor know. I fancy he'll be waiting to hear."

Craig stared.

"Oh, yes; I forgot that note you slipped under his door. You said something about porch-climbing and chemistry. You're not putting anything over on me, John?"

"No," Barry smiled. "I'll put the men on guard outside wise, so that they won't kick up a rumpus if they see him, like a modern Santa Claus, perambulating the fire escape with his white whiskers waving in the early morning breeze. That note simply asked him to get into the other apartments when he was sure the occupants were gone, and search for traces of a certain chemical compound."

"But we'd only just left Miss Shaw's apartment; we hadn't seen either Griswold or Ladd's then," Craig exclaimed beneath his breath. "You don't suspect her, John?"

Barry smiled, but a trifle dryly.

Barry waited until the younger sergeant swung drunkenly on his hinges, and entering the perfumed, littered living room, he found his way to the wall switch and turned on the opalescent lamps.

The little writing desk was open, its profusion of papers scattered on the floor and drawers of an almost priceless Chinese cabinet had been forced. Approaching the latter, Barry observed that its contents were mainly scraps of drawing paper on which tiny figures had been scrawled, each with a few deft lines, and picking up one, he whistled softly.

It was a miniature caricature, cruel in its sharply-defined character delineation, yet purposeful, good-natured. Theodore Vansittart, husband of the woman whose unfinished portrait stood on the easel in the studio, and, glancing over the others, Barry found like caricatures of several people prominent in the social and political life of the city.

He was turning away from the cabinet when he noticed something which he overlooked: a small compartment at top, with a handle formed by a tiny red-gold dragon, remained unopened. Barry tugged at the little dragon, but it was immovable, the single eye above its snout-like nose seeming to wink mockingly at the futility of his efforts. Something about that eye and the curious formation of its socket gave him a sudden inspiration, and, taking a blunt pencil from his pocket, he pressed sharply upon the globe of its eye as upon a bell button.

Instantly the dragon, turned inward as upon a spring, the front of the compartment dropped forward on noiseless

Mentally congratulating himself that Doane had elected to remain outside, Barry drew forth the contents of the compartment in both hands, and carried it carefully to a small table. It was evident enough at last that somewhere beneath the hard surface brilliancy and devilishly clever, bitter humor of the dead woman there lurked a humanly sentimental regard for episodes in her life that had vanished from the sophisticated present, for there beneath his hands were clearly mementoes of the past, the foolish, faded objects, meaningless to anyone else, which every woman treasures until memory ceases to have value.

A faded blue satin ribbon, stiff and yellowed at the edges, held a knot of crumbling brown twigs which must once have been flowers; a torn scrap of real lace, discolored now, and too rich in quality for a graduation dress, but it might have been a bit of a bridal veil or christening robe once upon a time; a lock of short, curling hair, matted and red-brown; a battered gold locket without initial or inscription; an empty cartridge of .44 calibre, and a small snapshot, alike faded and discolored, and half torn across as though someone had started to destroy it, and then thought better of it.

Taking up the faded snapshot, he examined it closely. Its faint lines showed the figure of a tall, slender girl clad in a light-colored gown, which made it stand out against what appeared to be a mass of shrubbery in full leaf. At her side, and reaching to above her knee was a blurred object resembling a huge dog, but the outlines were so indistinct that its breed could not be determined.

"RUNAWAY FEATHERS"
(By Olive Roberts Barton.)

WHAT do you think Nancy and Nick found when they reached the little house?

The Green Shoes! Yes, there they were, and beside them, smiling out of his funny little eyes was the Magical Mushroom.

"I thought I'd fool you a bit this time," he said. "I wondered if you had enough perseverance to climb when you didn't find the shoes on the ground."

"You're ever so nice, Mr. Mushroom," said Nancy. "We're allowed to climb now, since Daddy nailed the house and tight and put in some new boards. When we told him that it wasn't a house at all, but a magical elevator that went up into the sky among the clouds, and even up to the stars sometimes, he said he thought he'd better stop the leaks or we might fall through."

"Where are you going now?" asked the Mushroom.

"Buckins said that some day he would take us to the 'Land of Runaway Feathers,'" answered Nick, "and we hoped he would pick today."

Here's a 6-Room Dutch Colonial House For You At $6,000

HERE'S a distinctive little six-room Dutch colonial house that's yours for less than $6,000. This is a frame house with shingle roof. It has a fireplace and full basement. Basement contains laundry, space for heating apparatus and storage bin for fuel. On the ground floor are kitchen, dining-room and living-room. On the second floor are three bedrooms. How do you like it? The London Advertiser will show you another attractive set of house plans tomorrow.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN
THE SHIN OF BEEF

NE of the best of the cheaper cuts of meat is the shin of beef. The meat is tender and much finer grained than some of the so-called cheap cuts. While there is quite a lot of bone the meat is really cheap enough to make up for the waste and the bone can be boiled for soup stock.

Have the bone removed from the shin, leaving a piece of solid meat. A two and a half pound middle cut of this shin will serve four persons.

Pot Roast of Beef.
Two and one-half pounds shin of beef, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup flour.

Have the butcher remove the bone and cut it in several pieces. Roll and tie the meat. Mix flour, salt and pepper and thoroughly dredge meat. Remove some of the marrow from the bone and fry out in the kettle in which the meat is to be cooked. When very hot put in the meat and sear quickly on all sides. This keeps in the juice.

Let the meat brown well, dredging with more flour as fast as the meat absorbs it. When nicely browned add 1 1/2 cups boiling water. Cover closely and let simmer for two hours. There should be a rich brown gravy with a piece of beef cooked this way.

Shin of Beef a la Mode.
Three pounds of meat, ¼ pound salt pork, 1 pepper, 2 carrots, 1 small onion, parsley, bay leaf, ½ lemon, 1-3 cup vinegar, 4 cloves, salt and pepper.

Have the meat boned and rolled by the butcher. Put in a crock with the onion minced, cloves, bay leaf and minced parsley. Pour over the vinegar and lemon juice and let stand half a day, turning the meat often.

Cut half of the salt pork in narrow strips and use to lard the meat. Fry the rest of the pork out in the kettle in which the meat is to be cooked. Drain meat and brown quickly on all sides in the kettle. Remove meat from kettle and stir 2 tablespoons flour into fat. Add 2 cups water slowly, stirring constantly, and the vinegar and spices in which the meat was soaked.

Cook, stirring constantly until the mixture boils. Add 1 cup hot water and replace the meat. Season with salt and pepper and cook just below the boiling point for two hours. Add the carrots, scraped and thinly sliced and cook thirty to forty minutes longer.

Beef Stew.
Have meat boned but not rolled. Cut in pieces 1-2 inches thick. Dredge with flour and salt well mixed and brown quickly on all sides. Add boiling water to cover and simmer for an hour. Then add 3 cups diced potatoes, 2 cups diced carrots, 1-2 cup diced turnips, 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 cups boiling water. Cook an hour longer, adding more water if necessary but not enough to make the stew thin.

The woman who cooks on a coal stove will find these ways of cooking meat very satisfactory and the amount of gas used is practically the same as when meat is cooked at a higher temperature for a shorter length of time.

HEARTBURN
A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, it is liable to ferment, and becomes extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The one way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS, and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Agnes Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

Price, 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Advt.

Give "California Fig Syrup"
Harmless Laxative for Your Child's Liver and Bowels

Hurry mother! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If your child is constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, remember a good "physic-laxative" is often all that is necessary. Children love the "fruity" taste of genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children printed on bottle. Say "California" or you may get an imitation.

No Appetite

Nervous exhaustion leads to distaste for food. The nerves of the stomach are weak, digestion fails and you become generally upset and out of sorts.

The secret of complete restoration is in getting the nervous system fully built up.

Mrs. R. Cheney, 208 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with indigestion, which caused me many sleepless nights. I would be in terrible distress at times, and would get no relief for two or three hours. For sixteen months I ate nothing but Shredded Wheat biscuits, as I dare not eat anything else. I did not know what to do, as I had tried so many different remedies, as well as doctor's medicines, without gaining permanent relief. Finally I got some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and while on the second box noticed that I was improving. I continued the treatment until I am now fully restored, and have returned to my regular diet. My husband has also taken Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results, so we are glad to recommend it to others."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe head-aches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in the weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jals Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will not find. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in uric acid, to soothe urinary and bladder disorders.

Jals Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent water drink, and anybody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clear and

"Well, John, we've a nice mess to report at headquarters," he announced in a low tone, that the policeman of guard might not hear. "Here's a woman shot dead, and every last tenant in the house except the professor seems mixed up in it somehow, though every one of them have lied and peached on the rest."

"Who the devil was this Miriam Vane, anyway? Where did she come from, and what were the rest to her?"

The STEP on the STAIRS

by ISABEL OSTRANDER

"When his door had closed and he was out of the way I rushed up to her. I don't know what I said; I must have been crazed with jealousy and the mystery of it all. I do remember, though, quite distinctly, that she turned on me in a cold fury, forbade me ever to address her again, and entering her apartment, shut the door in my face! I descended, let myself in by almost mechanically, and dropped into that chair you're sitting in now, sergeant."

Craig was settling back in his chair, with a gesture to Barry, when the latter stepped forward.

"Mr. Ladd, as I understand it, your apartment here is a replica of the one just above, studio and all. Have you any objection to showing us about?"

"Not at all." In contrast to that of the dead woman's, Ladd's studio was hung with rare tapestries and furnished as luxuriously as that of a social dilettante, yet its easel upon which stood an unfinished landscape, and the carved refectory table carelessly covered with paint tubes and smeared cloths, showed it to be a workroom no less than hers.

"What color do you call this?" Barry picked up a tube, and squeezing a bit of its contents on the palette, he indicated the blotch of reddish brown.

"Burnt sienna," responded the artist, promptly. "I seldom use it—you can see there was none on the palette before—but I always keep a full assortment of colors on hand. It is odd you should have asked me about that!"

"Why?" demanded Barry quickly, for the young man's tone had tensed with some sudden emotion.

"Well, it is just a trivial matter, but over a week ago—the last time, I met, that Mrs. Vane and I had a chummy little talk in her studio—I advised her to use more burnt sienna with the seal brown to get the proper effect of the wood on the staircase in that portrait she was doing for Mrs. Vansittart, the one before which her—her own body was found tonight."

Barry replaced the tube reflectively on the table as Craig, with an evident effort to emulate his colleague, picked up one of the bottles and sniffed it speculatively.

"That's turpentine," Ladd remarked, and his voice had sunk again to a dull apathy.

"It's funny about this turpentine," Craig still stood by the table. "It's used as a cleaning fluid, isn't it? Seems to me I've smelt that odor somewhere else in this house tonight."

"Naturally the studio above is permeated with it," Barry turned away from the window and let the shade

drop. "Mr. Ladd, if you'll just show us through the rest of your apartment now we won't trouble you any more tonight."

Barry thanked the artist and bade him good-night. In the hall Craig produced a handkerchief and wiped his ruddy brow.

"Well, John, we've a nice mess to report at headquarters," he announced in a low tone, that the policeman of guard might not hear. "Here's a woman shot dead, and every last tenant in the house except the professor seems mixed up in it somehow, though every one of them have lied and peached on the rest."

DAVIS WILL BE HANGED MAY 9 IN MURDER CASE

Found Guilty by Toronto Jury of Slaying Philip Goldberg.

PROTESTS HIS INNOCENCE
Knife Found Near Boy's Body Proves Important Link in Case.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Frederick L. Davis, 35 years old, was found guilty by a jury here late yesterday of the murder on Aug. 7, 1920, of Philip Goldberg, an 8-year-old boy, and was sentenced by Mr. Justice Riddell to be hanged on Tuesday, May 9.

Just before he was sentenced Davis was asked if he had anything to say. "All I have to say," he responded, "is that under the eye of God I am innocent."

The jury was out several hours. In his address to the jury, Basil Essery, counsel for Davis, laid emphasis upon the fact that Davis had returned to the Goldberg home the night of the tragedy.

He asked the jury if it was possible that he could have gone into the boy's home and talked to his mother if he had killed the lad. He also drew attention to the fact that there were no blood stains on the knife found near the body. If there had been stains the police would have put that evidence before the jury.

Doubts His Guilt.

Mr. Essery thought it unlikely that a man who had committed a crime would have returned to the scene of the crime and talked to the newspapers. The scratches on Davis' hand he thought were too slight to connect him with a crime that could only have been committed by a criminal. He wound up with an appeal to the jury to give him the benefit of the doubt.

Gordon Valderon, K.C., crown prosecutor, summed up the case against Davis in a few sentences. He spoke of his flight from the country as an evidence of guilt. The evidence, he declared, was perfectly plain. There was absolutely no doubt that the prisoner had committed this revolting crime.

Mr. Justice Riddell took the same view for in charging the jury he informed them that their duty was quite clear. The police, he said, had very wisely not rested their case on Davis' confession, but had sought to prove the case by linking the circumstances together.

The murder, which took place in a lot adjacent to the Sunnyside Orphanage, was marked by revolting features.

Knife Important Clue.

An important exhibit was a small white bone-handled knife, which Kenneth Blythe, a boy, testified he had found near the spot where the body of the Goldberg boy was discovered. "Bobby" Blythe, another boy, corroborated young Blythe's story. The knife, which was produced in court by Detective McIlwraith, was identified by E. A. Allison, an employee of Canadian Mill Products, 12-14 Mercer street, as one Davis had used when working at the same plant.

Davis was in his cell, Crawford testified, about six weeks, leaving on Aug. 6. He was paid up to Thursday night, Aug. 5, and left with a credit of $6.50. From the state prison at Auburn, N. Y., recently he had written, asking for the money.

Mrs. Molly Schwartz testified that Davis took a room at her house on the Wednesday preceding the murder. He slept there Wednesday night, Thursday night, Friday night and Saturday night. On Saturday night he told Mrs. Schwartz's little girl "about the accident." On Sunday he asked witness to wake him very early next morning as he had to go to work. On Monday when she went to wake him he was gone.

On the Sunday afternoon following the murder, stated James R. Haig, a war veteran, he saw Davis lying on a couch. Witness noticed two small cuts on Davis' left hand. Davis said they were inflicted by a cat. They did not look like cat scratches, thought witness.

U. F. A. TO BACK BENEFICIAL LAWS

CALGARY, Jan. 22.—(By Canadian Press.)—After fifteen long sessions, the convention of the United Farmers of Alberta was brought to a conclusion last evening. Officers of the association expressed themselves as gratified with the results of the deliberations.

Scores of resolutions were passed during the five days, involving questions of finance, taxation, political action, internal organization and public policy.

The convention in the following resolution endeavors to express their view of the position of the Progressive group in parliament:

"Resolved, that it is the sentiment of this convention that the members of the Progressive party, although the official opposition, will support all legislation that tends to the benefit of the Canadian people, and that this Progressive party will not affiliate permanently with any other party."

The convention asked the provincial government to fix at $20 the fee for normal maternity cases, with mileage charges and, one-half the fee itself to be guaranteed by the government.

A poll tax on all male residents not otherwise assessed was approved.

WILL FACE TRIAL ON DRUG CHARGE

BRANTFORD, Jan. 22.—Frank Bryan, fish dealer, was committed for trial recently on a charge of administering drugs to a colored woman, who declared in court that Bryan threatened to take her life if she told on him. She disappeared before the trial, and a warrant was issued for her arrest. This afternoon both were arrested on an indecency charge, and Bryan bailed out, while the woman was held.

"HUNGER STRIKER" ENDS FIFTH DAY

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 22.—Peter Robertson continues on his "hunger strike" at the local jail. Robertson commenced his fast on Tuesday evening last, when he was remanded to jail on a charge of not sending his children to school. He has been offered both jail and restaurant meals, but he absolutely refuses to eat, although he occasionally drinks water furnished him by the attendants.

"The Lane That Had No Turning" Exposes Star System

BY JAMES W. DEAN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The movie star system is a complex arrangement. The name of the star is frequently used as the box-office attraction while the work of another player is the true screen attraction. An example of this frequent situation is "The Lane That Had No Turning," the film version of Sir Gilbert Parker's novel.

It is the first starring vehicle of Agnes Ayres, but she isn't the star of it. Theodore Kosloff, who was a dancer and, therefore, an adept in pantomime, completely overshadows the star who enhances the picture only by her personal charm.

"The Lane That Had No Turning" also bears out the assertion made frequently in these columns that the motion picture is not a form of literature.

The story has been screened in faithful adherence to the novel version. However, incidents of the book afforded a study of characters, those of a man who became warped mentally and spiritually when his body became deformed and a woman who sacrificed much for that man.

This study in character analysis is lost on the screen. Action subordinates characterization. The film becomes melodrama.

If in the opening chapters of a book one is told that a man is descended from a family suffering with spinal disease and learns that the man meets with an accident to his back, one anticipates the malformation that ensues in later chapters. The malformation develops along with the action of the plot, the time element being taken into account.

This condition is too subtle to be effectively transposed to a motion picture whose action is compressed in an hour. One sees a normal man

Theodore Kosloff. The misanthrope in "The Lane That Had No Turning." He is a master of pantomime.

Agnes Ayres. She is billed as star in "The Lane That Had No Turning," but her role is not a star role.

one minute and a few moments later sees him hideously deformed in a manner which takes nature months to accomplish.

The same obstacle lies in the development of the character in character. The warping of a mind is either a spontaneous affair, the switching-off of reason like the switching-off of an electric current, or a gradual process ensuing from the weight of an obsession, of a worry either real or fancied.

The illusion of this latter change is lost in a film which occupies the attention an hour or less.

former ensign of the local corps of the Salvation Army, who recently resigned, has joined the Baptist Church. He has announced that he will enter the Baptist ministry.

VISCOUNT BRYCE DIES SATURDAY AT SYDMOUTH

Former British Ambassador To United States Succumbs Peacefully.

HAD BRILLIANT CAREER

Was Member of British Party To International Hague Tribunal.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Viscount James Bryce died at Sydmouth today.

The end came peacefully and somewhat suddenly. Viscount Bryce had been staying in Sydmouth for the last three weeks, and was extremely energetic to the last.

The first Viscount of Dechmont, Lanarkshire, was born at Fordbank, near Manchester, on May 10, 1838. He was a son of the late James Bryce, LL.D., of Glasgow.

The viscount was educated in the high school and University of Glasgow, and was a scholar at Trinity College, Oxford, where he obtained the degree of B.A. in 1862 and the D.C.L. in 1870.

He was a Fellow of Oriel College in 1862, later spending a year at Heidelberg University. He was made a barrister at Lincoln's Inn in 1867, and practiced law until 1882.

In 1870 he was regius professor of civil law, resigning that office in 1893. He was elected a member of parliament in 1880.

Had Cabinet Seat.

The viscount was under-secretary of state in 1886, and was a chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, with a seat in the cabinet in 1892, and was president of the board of trade in 1894. In the same year he was chairman of the royal commission on secondary education. In 1898 he was made a member of the senate of the London University, and was corresponding secretary of the Institute of France in 1891 and a foreign member of the same institute in 1904.

Viscount Bryce was a member of the Royal Academies of Turin and Brussels in 1896, and of Naples, St. Petersburg and Stockholm in 1903. He was corresponding member of the Societa Romana di Storia Patria in 1885, and was a member of the Reale Accademia in 1904. He was one of the British members of the international tribunal at The Hague.

Held Many Degrees.

He received the honorary degree of LL.D. of Edinburgh University in 1883; of Glasgow University, 1886; Michigan University, 1887; St. Andrews, 1902; Aberdeen, 1906; Doctor of Political Science of Royal Hungarian University of Budapest, 1896; Litt.D., Victoria University, 1897; D.C.L., Trinity University, Toronto, 1897; Harvard and Princeton University, 1907; Litt.D., Cambridge University, 1908; Oxford; LL.D., University of Jena, 1908; of California and of Leipzig in 1909; of Buenos Ayres, 1910; of Adelaide and Brisbane in 1912.

From 1899 to 1901, the viscount was honorary fellow of Trinity and Oriel Colleges, Oxford, and president of the Alpine Club. From 1905 to 1906, he was chief secretary for Ireland, and from 1907 to 1913, he was ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary at Washington.

PAIN IN THE PIT OF THE STOMACH?

Redmac Relieves It

Truly wonderful how quickly you can get rid of all stomach trouble. Redmac goes right to the seat of the trouble. Mrs. Vanhorn, of Winnipeg, writes: "I have suffered for years from indigestion. I would get such a sharp pain in the pit of my stomach, it would almost double me up at times. During this time I have not known what it was to enjoy a meal. I got very thin and weak. I have been taking Redmac and what a blessing it is to me. I can eat three square meals a day now. If you want to feel fit, if you want good strong nerves, lots of good pure blood and plenty of energy and vitality, you get a bottle of Redmac and see how quickly it will put you on the road to good health. Go to your druggist today, and get a bottle of this wonderful Tonic, made from herbs and roots from foreign countries. Sold by Taylor Drug Store, 290 Richmond street. Sole agents. —Advt.

Fresh Milk Always on Hand

YOU simply take Carnation Milk off your pantry shelf. For your cereals or fruit or in tea and coffee you use it as it comes from the container—its creamy richness and wonderful freshness give an added delicious flavor.

For a beverage or for table use, add water as desired.

Thus you always have milk for any need on hand—on time. It is always fresh in summer—never frozen in winter.

Carnation milk is just rich milk with most of the water taken away by evaporation—nothing is added. It comes to you sealed and sterilized—safe.

Buy this convenient milk the convenient way—from your grocer. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans.

MUFFINS.

1/2 teaspoonful salt, 1 tablespoonful sugar, 1 1/4 cups flour, 4 teaspoonfuls baking powder, 1 egg, 2/3 cup water, 1/3 cup Carnation Milk, 2 teaspoonfuls melted butter or substitute. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add milk with the water to well beaten egg, and add to dry ingredients, then add the melted fat. Bake in oiled muffin tins from fifteen to twenty-five minutes. This recipe makes ten muffins.
