FIFTY YEARS OF PROGRESS

If you are a resident of the City of Chatham or County of Kent, this store has been prominently before either you, your parents or your grandparents for the past fifty years.

Started in a Small Way

It kept on growing and growing and still grows faster than ever. Every month shows an increase in the business done over the preceding month of a year ago.

This is Not by Chance

But the result of a well laid foundation in the years that have gone by, of straightforward dealing and reliable goods.

It's Easy for Us to do Business

Everybody knows that "Stone's" goods are always the best, and that no misrepresentation is allowed in regard to them, and that our guarantee goes with every article sold, and your money cheerfully refunded if you want it.

This is a Safe and Profitable Place to do Your Trading

Quality is the first consideration everywhere—then price, which we guarantee to be as low as others for inferior qualities.

We're After Your Trade

And we'll get it, too, if placing before you the most stylish goods in the finest qualities at the lowest prices is any inducement. We promise you courteous treatment and prompt delivery.

OUR IMPORT of British, French and German goods are now well to hand, and now is just the right time to select your new gown.

TARTE TALKS PROTECTION

Is Not Ashamed to Change His Opinions.—Canada Must Help Herself.

Best way to Keep Country Under British Flag to Build Up Our own Industries and Trade.

Toronto, Sept. 6. — Hon. J. I. Tarte was the principal speaker at the Exhibition directors' luncheon to-day.

In the course of his address he spoke strongly in favor of a protective tariff, and, in part, said:—"The raising of the tariff in favor of the manufacturers merely creates a market for the farmers' products. These centres of commerce make a general market for all Canada. I am a good Canadian, and I do not know why Canadians should buy from foreign countries. If we give western Canadians transportation facilities they will buy our manufactured goods. We have a great foreign immigration from the United States, but I do not fear this. It means some difficulties, but nothing serious. We must not look to the markets of the United States. If we go on spending a hundred and fifty millions annually with our neighbors for manufactured products, we are not helping ourselves. I see no shame in changing one's position in these matters, as conditions change—that is natural; it is right. The truth is not dangerous. Time changes all things. I desire the privilege of changing my mind. We have the great natural resources—corn, coal, wheat lands and fine harbors. Why have we not made more progress in the past than the United States, which has advanced so rapidly? Because they have transportation and protection for their industries. Our prospects are bright, and we have the products of the farm and of the manufactures side by side. Germany can take care of herself, the United States can take care of herself, so can John Bull. Let us take care of ourselves. The best way to keep the country under the British flag is to build up our industries, our own trade. Why have we not the proper transportation, tariff laws and harbors? After all, it is purely a question of home harbors. In discussing the question of a fiscal policy, let us discuss it in a broad Canadian spirit. Look to the great resources of our country and sink personal and party feeling. This is the position I take and I am not ashamed of it. But other public men are entitled to their opinion too, and after all the people are the judges of the soundness of our ideas. This is the court of last resort to which these things must be submitted. The petty interests of party should never be permitted to stand in the way of a national progress. Let us show all parts of Canada and all interests represented that we have a common purpose—the building of a nation—and invite to contribute in the promotion of Canadian industries."

A GALA DAY

The employees of The Wm. Gray & Sons Co., Ltd., wish to thank the company for the pleasant outing furnished them last Tuesday. They all express themselves as having spent a most enjoyable time, as indeed could hardly have been otherwise with Mr. Robt. Gray, the genial president, on board; while the young people took advantage of the excellent music furnished them by Pritchard's Orchestra to trip the light fantastic in the cool lake breezes.

Altogether, it was a gala day, one long to be remembered, and may the president live to enjoy many such pleasant days.

Signed on behalf of the employees. THOS. SIMPSON. ED. LAMPMAN.

TEQUIMSEH

(From a collection of poems to be shortly published by the author, Mr. J. B. McKenzie, of Toronto.)

Destine a mighty warrior the gaze; Royal discerned his carriage—proud his mien.

Him the muffled wine of Flattery could not wean From Britain's side; not pledges' sun-burst daze;

Who, hearing with chagrin, as with amaze, That he on timorous agency would lean,

Strove with his leader—all its vainness seen— And won the day; no title weak to praise

Curtailed the spot where lies that worthy dust; Else honor's plinth such hallowed turf would mark.

His faithful kinsfolk, dreading "Long-knives" lust, Their chief's slain scar-vald body, rigid, stark,

Into the wilds' most darkened hollow thrust; Grand one, sleep there, unweary'd by care.

Local Briefs

Capt. Barry and Capt. Lane have been secured to sail the "Windy", was brought in from Bridgetown on Saturday, to answer to a charge of horse stealing.

Bert Graham passed through the city en route for Walkerville. He has been spending his holidays in Dresden, Toronto and other eastern cities.

A few good second hand bicycles for sale at Geo. Stephens & Douglas's at prices ranging from $5 to $20.00 each. The whole lot must be cleared out this fall.

Rondeau Service—On and after September 15th, until Oct. 1st, leave Chatham daily 1 p. m., Fargo 1.15, Blenheim 1.25, returning leave Rond-eau, 3 p. m., arriving Chatham 3.40.

James Chinnick, president of the West Kent Agricultural Society, left on Saturday to attend the Toronto exhibition. Mr. Chinnick has his fine horse at the exhibition.

Lost, on Saturday, a ladies' gold watch, supposed to have been dropped between the bridge and Elizabeth street. A reward will be paid to the finder if it is left at this office.

In Tilt's art window appeared a picture of some very pretty scenery just above the Lake Erie bridge, by famous mineral springs. The picture was taken by J. A. McGregor, photographer.

Percy Houston is spending a few days with his parents. Since leaving Chatham he has travelled over a good part of the United States. He spent some time at Pittsburgh, Pa., and at Salt Lake City, Utah.

An application made to set aside an order on Praepice, changing the solicitor for the plaintiff in Chatham Binder Twine Company vs. Ross et al., is being argued to-day before Judge Bell. W. E. Gundy appeared for Wilson Pike & Gundy, and J. B. Rankin, K. C., contra. Judgment reserved.

John Wallace and Albert Johnson appeared this morning at the Police court to answer to a charge of drunkenness. Wallace pleaded guilty and was fined a dollar and costs, five dollars in all. Johnson pleaded not guilty and was remanded till this afternoon.

The silver watch that was lost on Thursday night and that was advertised in Friday's Planet, has been returned to the owner. Small articles that were lost during the present week have been returned to the owners through the medium of The Planet editor.

James Bows appeared before Judge Houston in the county court on Friday, to answer to a charge of breaking 45 panes of glass in the windows of the house of his son-in-law, Joseph Hamilton. The case was adjourned for a week, after much evidence had been taken. The parties live in Blenheim. W. G. Richards appeared for the defense.

Miss Caroline Elsie Glendenning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Glendenning, formerly of this city, and Arthur Dell, son of Wilber Dell, North Chatham, were married at the home of the bride's father, Monastique, Mich., on Wednesday, Sept. 3rd. After visiting in this city, they will leave for their future home, at Wheatley, Ont.

The City engineer says that he is not to blame if the Sixth street walk is torn up. A peculiar feature of the case was that denunciations for the work could not be issued till C. B. Atkinson's objection was removed, and for this reason the work was hastened. The trouble is that there is no gravel content and everything else is on hand. The city engineer says that he ordered the gravel four months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. James Corsant, Anson, Ind., arrived in this city Friday by the steamer City of Chatham, and spent the afternoon at the residence of N. H. Stevens, leaving Friday night for Blenheim. Mr. and Mrs. Corsant have come to attend the gathering of the Biscoe family, which will be held in Blenheim on September 11, on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Samson. This re-union is held every five years and Anderson, Ind., was the scene of the last one. Mrs. John M. Burke is a Biscoe, and so is W. E. Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Corsant have arrived early to assist in the arrangements.

Last Band Concert to Port Lamb-ton, Monday, Sept. 15th.

The Uncle Tom's Cabin Company, that played here on Saturday, left this morning for Wallaceburg.

A silver brooch was lost on Sunday afternoon, and a reward will be paid to the person returning it to this office.

Rondeau service—Trains 56 and 57, leaving Chatham Saturday 8.10 p. m., and Rondeau 9.30 p. m., will not run on Saturday, September 13th.

Re Ward vs. Potter, an order was made by Judge Bell, in Chambers, on Saturday, continuing till the trial the injunction restraining the defendants from negotiating or transferring the note and mortgage in the action, to anyone until the trial or final disposition of the case. An order was also made to the effect that the plaintiff was at liberty to enter up judgment for the amount endorsed on the writ and costs unless the defendant deposited $50 in court within ten days. W. A. F. Campbell for plaintiff, Walter Mills, for defendant.

HER THANKS

Danish Girl Who Was Stranded in Chatham Sends Them To Mrs. Peck.

W. R. Peck, proprietor of the Hotel Rankin this morning received word that the Danish girl, whom he befriended when she was stranded here, had reached her new home safely.

The message was accompanied by the following letter to Mrs. Peck from D. C. McKee, clerk of Division Court, Bridge End:—

Sept. 6, 1902.

Dear Madam,—Miss Henriette Fredrickson arrived last evening, and her brother met her at Dalhousie Mills station. She wished me to return you her most sincere thanks for all your kindness.

Yours truly,
D. C. McKEE.

HANDSOME HOTEL

Chatham is to have one of the largest and most up-to-date hotels in the province. It will be situated in the business part of the city on King street at the Third street bridge corner. Such is the proposition of Wm. Baby. Mr. Baby is forming a stock company, and thinks it will be a huge success. He has already purchased the corner from the Hamilton Loan & Savings Co., and will grade back of the property up with the earth taken from the excavations for the large grocery he starts to build in a couple of weeks.

"The hotel," said Mr. Baby, "will cost in the neighborhood of $75,000, and will have a beautiful water front and wharf for the excursion steamers to land. The present Rankin dock is a disgrace to the city."

Mr. Baby is an energetic prosperous man and this, like all his former enterprises, will no doubt prove a successful business venture. The site chosen for the hotel is the best possible and the hotel is just what is needed.

OLD FASHIONED

George Alexander Baird appeared before Judge Houston this morning to answer to the charge pending against him for non support of his wife.

Judge Houston, in consideration of the fact that both H. D. Smith, for the crown, and O. L. Lewis for the defendant, cited cases, reserved judgment for a week. The Judge, however, said that he thought that Baird should pay $2 per week towards the support of his wife. In the court's opinion the defendant should do something towards keeping the woman with whom he had gone through the marriage ceremony. The wife was really ill. The doctor who made the examination had said so.

"I may be old fashioned and not up to the present times," said the Judge "but I think that the marriage ceremony means something."

HOT SHOT FOR SIR W. LAURIER

Canadian Premier is Accused of Gross Sedition By a London Newspaper.

While Chamberlain is Persuading Britains to Immigrate, Laurier is Stimulating Stream of French Immigration.

London, Sept. 6.—To-day's Speaker, in an article dealing with the loyalty of the colonies, refers incidentally to the influence of the labor party in the Federal administration of the Commonwealth of Australia which wished to introduce a clause into Sir Edmund Barton's alien bill that would have practically shut the Australian door in the face of the British workman.

"But," says the article, "the particularism of Australia is nothing to the gross sedition of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It was particularly important, we were told to aggrandize and strengthen the British element in Canada, and any one reading Henri Bourassa's article in the Monthly Review will understand why an imperialist believes the problem so momentous. Premier Ross, in his letter to the Times in Sept. 1901, urged Britons to emigrate to Canada, giving among other reasons the advantage of strengthening that element of the colonial population. Yet Sir Wilfrid goes to France to suggest a direct steamship line, and implores France to send emigrants to Canada. Whilst Mr. Chamberlain is exhorting his eloquence to persuade Englishmen to emigrate to Canada and other colonies of the empire Sir Wilfrid Laurier is busy trying to stimulate a stream of French immigration."

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.

A NEW ISSUE.

Goldwin Smith, in the last issue of the Sun, expresses no surprise at the evident determination of the Ontario government to hang on to power and endeavor to secure a majority through the courts and bye-elections. It was pretty certain, he says, on which of the two courses before the Ontario government would decide. The natural course, and that which was dictated by the broad interests of the country, surely was a speedy meeting of the newly elected legislature for the purpose of taking a decisive vote, after which, if necessary a fresh appeal might be made to the country. But the tactical advantage of the government, with its financial resources, means of influence and machinery, pretty clearly lay the other way. The government, however, in its course is felt to be regulated by mere party strategy, and will be in some danger of raising a new issue between itself and the people.

The writer proceeds to speak of the experience of the old land. It is true, he observes, that ministries in England have, on recent occasions, been content with the verdict of the constituencies without a meeting of the legislature, and he proceeds: "But the verdict of the constituencies in those cases was clear. The majority in 1868 was 123, in 1874 it was 108, not counting Home Rulers. The verdict of the constituencies in the present case is as far as possible from being clear. While one side has a majority of a single seat, there is a large popular majority on the other side. Even the majority of a single seat on the side of the government can hardly be taken absolutely for granted till the legislature has met. Not all the elections were fought on perfectly strict party lines. The one thing that is clear, in fact, by the election, is that the ministers have not support enough to carry on the affairs of the country. The inference from this, if any, would be rather that they should resign. The English judges are now appointed with little reference to party, and are there, little exposed to political suspicion. But such a strain has never been put on their reputation for impartiality, as will be put on our judiciary by calling on them to decide to which of the two contending parties the government shall belong."

After pointing out that governments have, in this country, usurped the power of pulling off bye-elections to suit their own convenience, the professor insists that there ought to be at least an assurance that the Clerk of the House, on whom, there being no Speaker, the issue of the writs will devolve, should issue them all without delay. That he entertains doubts as to the power of the Ontario government, in the present situation, to issue writs for the bye-elections, the concluding paragraph of the article plainly indicates: "The Controversial Election Act is not a very lucid piece of draftsmanship, and it may be well to examine it carefully, in order to make sure that when there is no speaker or organized legislature, the judges and the clerk of the house can, if an election is voided, do between them all that is necessary for the holding of a bye-election."

HAPPY NEW ZEALAND.

Simple, intelligent application of the principle of government ownership of public utilities has resulted in giving to New Zealand the highest general average of comfort, general industry and prosperity—wealth—of any country on earth. There are few men with large fortunes, and no multimillionaires, but the policy of Premier Seddon has given to each and all equal opportunity to do business, and has brought about "the greatest good to the greatest number"—that greatest of all governmental desiderata.

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust. But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system. It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain. It is always radically and permanently cured by which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

NOT WHOLLY VICIOUS.

Woodstock Express.
Of course we are told that compulsory arbitration is all wrong in theory, and that it is an infringement of the rights and liberties of a free people; but society is largely a compromise with theories, and an adaptation of principles to needs and necessities. Compulsory arbitration is not an ideal system; but so long as it gives the results Premier Barton says it gives, it cannot be wholly vicious.

ROOSEVELT THE GARRULOUS.

Philadelphia Record.
Probably President Roosevelt, if his health should hold good, will take his place in history as the most profuse of presidential speechmakers. Now that the press and the wires enable the head of the nation to talk to a hundred or so people gathered at Wiscasset or Oshkosh, and yet, on the same day, or the next day, have the whole nation for his audience, the importance of executive utterances is wonderfully magnified. What the president says becomes matter of serious discussion not only throughout the United States, but in distant countries. In discreet hands such extended advertisement may be of great advantage in the molding of government policies; but there is much danger in it.

WHO IS THIS RASCAL?

London Free Press.
The Dominion fruit inspector of Winnipeg has sent to the department of agriculture at Ottawa a box of apples taken from the middle of a consignment of apples shipped to Winnipeg by an eastern firm. The apples were described by the shipper as "fancy Canadian apples." The specimens sent to the department are very poor quality indeed. Twenty of them weigh only eight ounces. Twenty others weigh only four ounces. It is too bad that Ontario fruit is being shipped to the excellent markets of Manitoba and the northwest territories in this manner. It is killing the trade out and playing directly into the hands of fruit growers and shippers from California.

MADE A GOOD GUESS.

Spare Moments.
She was an amateur artist, and, like most of her kind, considered herself several laps in advance of the average amateur. She was eager, however, to know how her work would impress one of the masters who had managed to grasp fickle Fame by the back of the neck. One day a real painter called at her home, and she immediately conceived the idea of testing him. She would show him a specimen of her handiwork, but would reveal nothing that might lead him to suspect her as being the creator thereof. So the fair amateur proceeded to guide the real painter toward her masterpiece. "Of what school would you call this painting?" she asked, expectantly. "Of the boarding school," promptly replied the real painter.

THE "SANKERO."

Unhappy Lot of a Peculiar Figure of the Irrigation Country.

An eastern farmer coming to an irrigated valley finds everything as different from his accustomed life as he can well imagine. He must learn a new set of farming rules. His neighbor greets him, not with the remark, "It looks like rain," but "Have you heard when the water is coming in?" or "The ditches are low today." He learns to speak of miners' inches and acre feet of water, and he can soon tell at a glance whether a ditch is carrying 50 or 100 miners' inches of water. He hears wise discussions of headgates, weirs, laterals and canals. He finds that he is "under" a certain canal, which by and by will come to seem to him like an inexorable fate.

He will very promptly make the acquaintance of the king of the irrigated land, the zanjero, in Arizona called "sankero," in California sometimes shortened to "sanky," the water master or ditch rider, a bronzed man in overalls and sombrero, who drives about in a two wheeled cart, with a shovel and a long crooked lined fork by his side and precious keys in his pockets. Life is the yea and nay of the arid land, the arbiter of fate, the dispenser of good and evil, to be blessed by turns and cursed by turns and to receive both with the utter unconcern of a small god, for it is the zanjero who distributes the water. He opens the headgate of each farmer's canal, and when the water has run the necessary time he shuts it down again and again locks it securely. If the water is short, he sees that it is divided properly between Smith and Jones and Brown, usually watching him like cats. It is a hard place, that of zanjero in the valleys, subject to accusations, temptations, heartburnings; but, he is said to be the credit of the American, there is many a zanjero who is universally respected in his community as an honest man.—Ray Stannard Baker in Century.

MEN AND BOOKS.

Chopin rarely read anything heavier than a French novel.

Lord Clive said that "Robinson Crusoe" beat any book he ever read.

St. John Chrysostom never tired of reading or of praising the works of the apostle John.

James I. of England was a lover of the classics and very familiar with most of the Latin writers.

Bunyan read little besides his Bible and often said that Christians would do well to read no other book.

Salvador Rosa liked any kind of poetry, but more especially that relating to the country or to country scenes.

Hume said that Tacitus was the ablest writer that ever lived and himself tried to model his style on that of the Roman historian.

Locke gave most of his attention to works of philosophy. He said, "I stand amazed at the profundity of thought shown by Aristotle."

The elder Pitt liked Shakespeare, but not the labor of reading plays. He enjoyed hearing them and once said that he had learned more English history at the theater than at the university.

WHILE WE SLEEP.

The Muscles and Organs of the Body Are Still Working.

If the organs of the body cannot be said to sleep, neither can the voluntary muscles. Witness the phenomena of sleepwalking, the postillions in stage-coach days who slept in their saddles and cavaliers who do it today. Infantry who have been known to sleep on forced marches, sentinels who walk their beats carrying their guns in a fixed position while they sleep. For all we know policemen may do it too. People who talk in their sleep are familiar to all of us. Experiments made by Spier, Armstrong and Child on 200 college students of both sexes showed that 47 per cent of the men and 37 per cent of the women talked in their sleep. A number of things might be proved by these statistics. Of these sleep talkers one-half of the women and one-third of the men are able to answer questions while asleep. More women than men could answer questions on any subject, not alone that of which they had been talking. It has also been found that most sleep talkers are under twenty-five years of age.

Evidently, then, with the muscles and organs of the body all working, it is the brain only that sleeps, and by no means all of the brain. The senses of sight, hearing, touch, smell and taste may be very much awake while the subject sleeps. A sleeping person hears and answers questions, rearranges his bedclothing, covers his eyes to keep out the light, draws away his hand when the experimenter tickles it. A child is broken of the habit of sucking his thumb while asleep by putting a piece of cotton in his mouth. The nerves, then, and the brain centers corresponding to them are awake. A busy lawyer, exhausted by overwork, one night went out to supper with some friends, ate, talked and walked with them, and the next day remembered absolutely nothing of the occurrence. He was simply asleep during the whole evening. His conscious memory—that is, consciousness itself.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Fruit trees and fruit require potash for their best development.

With house plants all extreme changes of temperature should be avoided.

Too many trees prevent rapid growth and extend the time when a grove is well shaded.

Gravestones like their roots to be near the surface, and the food for them should not be placed at too great a depth.

Small growth and too much small fruit go together. Thrifty growth furnishes a few large and fine specimens of fruit.

There is no use in growing a tree very tall. The top limbs are apt to become slender and break if fruit is produced on them.

All members of the poppy family are hard to transplant. By choosing a rainy day and not exposing the roots one can sometimes manage a transplant.

Avoid straight lines as much as possible. There is no straight line in nature. It is for this reason that groups and masses are so much better than formal or set beds.

What Fuzzled Louis.

Louis Philippe was a wit. What he especially excelled in was the clinching of an argument, such as, for instance, his final remark to the death of Talleyrand. He had paid him a visit the day before. When the news of the prince's death was brought to him, he said, "Are you sure he is dead?" "Very sure, sire," was the answer. "Why, did not your majesty himself notice yesterday that he was dying?" "I did, but there is no judging from appearances with Talleyrand, and I have been asking myself for the last four or twenty hours what interest he could possibly have in departing at this particular moment."

A Queer Library.

A curious collection of books is contained in the library of Westmont, near Cassel, in Germany. The books appear at first sight to be logs of wood, but each volume is really a complete history of the tree it represents. The back shows the bark, in which a small place is cut to write the scientific and common name as a title. One side shows the tree trunk in its natural state, and the other is polished and varnished. Inside are shown the leaves, fruit, fiber and insect parasites, to which is added a full description of the tree and its products.

A Matter of Fact.

"Do you see the horizon yonder, where the sky seems to meet the earth?"

"Yes, uncle."

"Boy, I have journeyed so near there that I couldn't put a sixpence between my head and the sky."

"Why, uncle, what a whopper!"

"It's a fact, my lad. I hadn't one to put."—London Tit-Bits.

Excellent Explanation.

"Why is a woman honest, now—why is a wife cross?"

"Before marriage she was an I. After marriage she leaned on another I, and they formed an X. Of course she's cross, and so are you, I'll bet."

Benefit your friends, that they may love you more dearly still. Benefit your enemies, that they may at last become your friends.

A boy is usually ready to eat every time he stops playing.

Just within her grasp is safety—but she does not see it; she is looking the wrong way. There's many a woman struggling in a sea of disease who is doing the same thing—looking the wrong way—snatching at medicinal straws when the life buoy, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is within her reach. Many a woman has testified: "I know I should not be alive to-day but for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription." This famous medicine establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Weak and sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I take pleasure in writing to let you know the great good I received from your 'Favorite Prescription' and your 'Pleasant Pellets,' says Mrs. Nora Gaddie, of Rio, Hart Co., Ky. 'I took seven or eight bottles of the 'Pellets,' and one or two vials of the 'Favorite Prescription.' I think I would have been in my grave had it not been for your medicines. I had been about four months since I took the medicine. I was all run down, had loss of appetite, could not sleep at night, was nervous, had backache, black spots on my limbs, and sick headache all the time. I have not had sick headache since I took your medicine."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure dizziness and sick headache.

What Blue Eyes Indicate.

The blue eye indicates love and sentiment. This eye belongs to the temperate or colder regions and is associated with temperate character. It may glow with love, but it never burns with that consuming flame which marks the torrid black. It has amiable dispositions and tastes that are refined, is mentally active and usually of a versatile intellect. The light eyed races have always attained a higher degree of civilization than the dark ones, and that which holds true of nations will be found the same in individuals.

The eyes which borrow their tint from the summer sky dazzle and bewilder, whether flashing in scorn or melting in sorrow. The large blue eye is the type of purity and peace and thrills the heart at a single glance. It has a meaning that you can never forget and an expression which tells of the trusting heart. It is the eye which haunts the lover's dream and has perhaps been praised by poets more than any other color. Even the passionless Wordsworth has told us:

"Those eyes, soft and capacious as a cloudless sky, whose azure depths their color emulates, must needs be conversant with upward looks—prayer's voiceless service."

Duchess Versus Lord Chancellor.

The English house of lords has never been particularly kind to its fair visitors. Long ago, in the days when duchesses sold their kisses for votes, the house of lords forbade them to enter, and a battle royal ensued between the ladies and the peers. The lord chancellor had sworn that he would not let them in, and the Duchess of Queensberry had sworn that ladies should come in. "This being reported," we read in an old diary, "the peers resolved to starve them out. An order was made that the doors should not be opened till they had raised their siege."

These amazons now showed themselves qualified for the duty even of foot soldiers. They stood there till 5 in the afternoon without either sustenance or intermission, every now and then playing volleys of thumps, kicks and raps against the door with so much violence that the speakers in the house were scarcely heard. At last, by strategy worthy of a general, the ladies "all rushed in and placed themselves in the front row of the gallery," where they remained till an hour before midnight, applauding or hissing to their hearts' content.

A Mysterious Sign.

A man is known by his motions—if the looker-on has the discerning eye of a fellow-craftsman. Such is the opinion of a street scene reported by a St. Louis newspaper. A stranger in Boston stood in front of a Columbus Avenue apartment house in process of construction, apparently interested in what he saw, and picked up a brick which he turned over in his hand once or twice.

"I will give you a job if you want it," said the foreman, who had observed the stranger.

"What kind of a job?" asked the other, as he shook the brick dust from his gloves.

"Laying brick, of course," was the answer. "I know from the way you picked up that brick that you are a brick mason, and we are short-handed, with the cold weather on us."

"Thank you," answered the stranger. "Once I would have jumped at your offer. Thirty-three years ago I was a brick mason, and couldn't find it, though I needed it as much as any poor fellow in the city. I took Greeley's advice and went west, where I have laid tens of thousands of bricks and employed men to lay millions for me. I don't need the work, but I am pleased that you recognized in me a member of the craft."

The stranger was one of the largest contractors in St. Louis.

Don't You?

The persistence of a street urchin who wishes to earn any money is something to be admired. Now and then it becomes amusing and almost irresistible.

"Say, mister, do you want your bag carried?" asked a boy, running after a man, who was hurrying along to the railway station.

"No, I don't," answered the man a little sharply.

"I'll carry it all the way for a penny," persisted the boy.

"I tell you I don't want it carried," persisted the man, quickening his pace.

"Don't you?" said the boy breaking into a trot to keep abreast of his victim.

"No, I don't," said the man, glancing furtively at his small tormentor.

"Well, then, mister," said the urchin, with an expression of anxious and innocent inquiry on his round face, "what are you carrying it for? Why don't you set it down?"

In spite of himself his mouth twitched, and with a "There, take it," he passed the bag over to his persistent companion who staggered along without another word until the station was reached, where he received twopenny with a beaming smile.—Tid Bits.

How Drunkards are Made and by Whom.

A lady happened to be passing a public house in West Kensington just as a little girl was coming out of it with a brimming jug of beer. Seeing the child stop to drink greedily, the lady spoke to her, and taking the ethical side of the matter as easiest to understand, asked if she did not know it was wrong to drink her mother's beer. The answer was: "O, but Mr. (the publican) told me he had put some in for me, and that mother would still have her full pint left. And it is so nice! Wouldn't you like to taste it?" He gave me these, too," displaying a handful of sweets.

"I'm to have them when I go in, and Mrs. So-and-so has promised to let me fetch her beer, too!" The child was not eight years old, and, as Mrs. So-and-so lived near, the lady made it her business to call and remonstrate, finally succeeding in obtaining a promise that the little creature should not be sent again.

A day or two later the same woman escorted the lady in the street to inform her she had kept her promise, but that the child had "gone on dreadful" when told she would not be allowed to fetch her beer for her any more, "screaming and crying like anything." There, sir, is a drunkard of less than eight in rapid process of formation.

For Boy.

It was the first day at the new school, and he was standing the fire of the usual questions asked on so auspicious an occasion.

"What's your family doctor?" asked a big boy.

"Haven't got any," said the new boy.

"How jolly!" responded the questioner. "Why don't you have no medicine to take?"

"Don't I?" was the sarcastic reply. "That's all you know. Why, my father's a dentist, mother's a homoeopath, my sister's a nurse, and the ambulance grandfathers believe in a new method of resuscitation from drowning, grandmother goes for every quick medicine that's advertised, my Uncle Sam's a house doctor, and with a pathetic tone—"they all experiment on me!"

The symbolism of Colors.

Red, for courage and intense love. Its emblem the ruby.

White, for youth, freshness and innocence; represented by pearls and diamonds.

Yellow—the topaz—wisdom and glory, but, jealousy, too, except for November—means dignity, and the aesthet is highly prized as an amulet to keep friendship and love.

Green symbolizes hope, youth and is represented by an emerald. It is fabled to change color if the love changes.

Blue means constancy, truth and friendship, and is represented by the sapphire, although the "forget-me-not" stone, the turquoise, and even turquoise—have claims for recognition.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Sympathetic English Judge.

A good story is told of Mr. Jeff, who has just been appointed a Judge of the High Court. On one occasion, when he was recorder of Shrewsbury, a prisoner who was something of a hypocrite, tried to melt his heart with tears. "Have you never been in prison?" asked Mr. Jeff in soothing tones. "Never, my lord, never," was the reply. "That can easily be remedied. I'll send you there now."

PAMPHLETS FOR TOURISTS

Grand Trunk Issues New Summer Resort Publications.

Two new publications have just been issued by the publicity department of the Grand Trunk Railway System. One of them is descriptive of the charming summer resorts on the east coast of Lake Huron, including Southampton, Port Elgin, Kincardine, Goderich and Sarnia Ontario and the beaches that are reached through Port Huron, Mich.

The publication is enhanced by direct reproductions in half-tone from photographs and is printed in the latest process. In addition to a description of that part of the country there is information for the lover of road and gun, lists of hotels, with accommodation and rates, and a great deal of other data that is of interest to those who are looking for a summer play ground.

The other new publication is a description written in a story-like form most interesting, and dealing with that vast wilderness embracing the region around French River. The descriptive matter takes the tourist over the northern division of the Grand Trunk to North Bay and from there across Lake Nipissing to Chaudiere Falls on the French River, which is as far as navigation by steamer can be enjoyed. The rest of the journey is made by canoe, several portages being necessary; but the scenery is so grand and so magnificent that anyone is well repaid for a visit to this charming locality.

The hunting and fishing in this comparatively virgin district is unequalled—black bass, muskies and pickled being the most numerous of the finny tribe found here, the full fellows of the muskies species running from 20 to 30 pounds are a frequent catch. The charms of this wonderful country beyond Lake Nipissing are not all confined to the summer season—it is beautiful in August and September, and it is gorgeous in October and November.

During the first two weeks of November the deer-hunting is good, and in duck-hunting season a full bag is obtainable at any time. The waters of the streams tributary to the French river are literally alive with gamey fish of all varieties and sizes. This interesting booklet just issued by the Grand Trunk includes all information how to reach the locality, and other particulars looked for by the sportsman or tourist. Copies sent free on application to G. T. Bell, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Montreal.

Miss Annie D. Anderson, who has been spending the summer vacation in this city with her brother, Harry W. Anderson, left this afternoon for Ottawa to resume her studies in the Presbyterian Ladies' College.

Lost a silver brooch, with quite a number of small stones in it, Sunday afternoon. Lost from Adelaide street to the corner of Wellington and Queen streets. A reward for the finder on leaving it at The Planet office.

Miss Maude Tighe, of the Cleveland general hospital, who has successfully passed the examinations of the training school for nurses, will receive her diploma at the commencement exercises, Tuesday evening, Sept. 9.

The regular monthly meeting of Typographical Union, No. 490, will be held in their room, Odd-fellows' Auditorium, at 8 o'clock this evening. It is hoped that every member will be present, as the session will be a most important one.

The Maple City Creamery was broken into last Friday night, and 50 cents taken. Officer Groves saw the robbers and gave chase, but they got away in the darkness. The policeman, however, would like to know who the fellows were.

Memorial cards announcing the death of Mrs. Thomas Anderson, of Washburn, Minn., and a resident of this county many years ago, have been received. The deceased lady was a cousin of Mr. Wm. Somerville, who, with Mrs. Somerville, spent several pleasant weeks four years ago at the residence of Mr. Anderson.

John J. Doyle, Dover, has gone to Toronto Fair.
Miss Glassgow has returned from visiting in Detroit.
The City of Chatham took quite a number to Detroit today.
Dr. Holmes was in Tapperville yesterday on professional business.
Will Robert, of Detroit is spending a few days with his brother Fred.
Father Parent, of McGregor, is asking for tenders for the erection of a stone church.
T. B. Farley left today for Toronto, where he will attend the convention of retail grocers.
A lady lost a black coat out of her buggy on Sunday when driving between Chatham and Louisville.

DISASTROUS FIRE

The Erie Tobacco Co.'s plant, at Kingsville, was damaged by fire on Saturday night. The charred remains of Jesse Robinson, one of the workmen, were found in the ruins.

The building was owned by Hiram Walker & Sons, and was valued at $15,000. The tobacco Co.'s loss is about $20,000.

REMARKABLE ESCAPE

Mrs. Murphy and daughter and two children of Darwin Pelett were driving to Wm. Cochran's on Sandy's St. last evening, when the horse was frightened by a collie dog and backed up, tipping the rig, occupants, and itself into the six foot ditch.

Mr. Cochran came to the rescue, but in getting the horse up it hit him in the head, making a bad bruise. Remarkable to state Mr. Cochran was the only one hurt. The one in the rig was uninjured, and the shaft of the rig was the only part of the rig broken.

STOLE LEATHER

Chief of Police Benn, Wallaceburg, arrived in this city today with H. F. Aylesworth, arrested on the charge of stealing leather from Francis Jacques & Sons on May 5th, June 30th and August 6th. Benn had had Aylesworth in his office not three minutes before he received a telegram from Chief Holmes, notifying him to arrest Aylesworth. The man was drunk and was begging. The Wallaceburg chief then went out and looked up the man he had just ordered out of town. He found him. The man pleaded guilty this morning and was remanded for sentence, to give him an opportunity of getting references as to his character. Last week Officer Deszelski visited Watford in search of Aylesworth. The officer didn't find his man, but found a quantity of the leathers in a hen house. The man had stolen the leather and shipped it to his son at Watford.

BAIL ESTREATED

William Templeton was out on bail charged with stealing a silver watch from Bill Bates. Templeton didn't appear at the police court this morning. He sent in his stead a doctor's certificate that he was suffering from malarial fever. S. T. Martin is his surety in $200. Judge Houston said that he had no course to estreat Templeton's recognizances. If Templeton appears and surrenders, the Judge will apply to the Government not to enforce the estreatment. There is no provision in the law permitting the Judge to continue the bail or release the bondsman without the presence of the prisoner. The Government has power alone to free Mr. Martin, and application will have to be made to them.

O. L. Lewis—He doesn't belong to the Government and they want that $200 just now.

Judge Houston—I have nothing to do with that.

Crown Attorney Smith was dissatisfied with the condition Bates, a witness on this case, was in. He asked if there was no way in which the man could be brought to court sober.

Ben Harrington, another witness on this case, wanted to go west. His evidence will be taken by commission tomorrow at Wallaceburg. Crown Attorney Smith and Judge Houston will go out.

Washing Powder

At present there are a great many Washing Powders on the market, all claiming superiority over all others. We have 2 or 3 new ones, but have tried them first and can recommend either one to you. Our latest is Cyclone, a powder especially adapted to curtains or fine goods, as it does not require rubbing so that the articles washed last that much longer—Naphtha, another powder that has no equal for washing clothes. We also have Electric Soda Powder, Pearlina, Gold Dust, all these powders have proven themselves First-Class.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube gets inflamed you have a running sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE STURGEON LAKE REGION.

An Interesting Report From Professor W. G. Miller.

An interesting report on the mineral deposits in the vicinity of Sturgeon and Savant Lakes, northwest of Port Arthur, is contained in a letter from Prof. W. G. Miller, Provincial Geologist, to the Bureau of Mines.

The district, Prof. Miller says, seems to have been at one time well timbered, and in this connection he mentions that from his experience the regions frequented by prospectors show less wanton results of fire than those traversed by the railway builder and trapper.

There are no agricultural areas of any importance, and game appears less abundant than in the territory farther south. Two companies are at work in the Sturgeon Lake gold fields, and more or less prospecting is going on. The Jack Lake Mining Company has done considerable development work, and has sunk two shafts to a depth of 100 feet each, while the manure is reported as well satisfied with the quantity and quality of the ore in sight.

Savant Lake, which is little known, is 23 miles long and 4 or 5 miles broad. Prof. Miller visited a belt of iron-bearing rock discovered by the Provincial exploration party of 1900, and found it to be of magnetite and 150 to 200 yards wide. The ore occurs sparingly in it, he says, and is much faulted and broken. He traced the band for a few miles, but found nothing of importance, though if the belt were followed further better results might be obtained. Prof. Miller remarks on the frequency with which these iron belts occur in northern Ontario, and says that if some of them are not found to contain ore bodies of economic importance they would be truly unique in view of the results in Michigan and Minnesota. Their distance from lake ports does not destroy their value, he says, as they are well situated for charcoal furnaces, and the smelting of the ore on the spot would be more beneficial to the district than to ship it out.

The placer deposits on Lake Savant Prof. Miller examined, but from his panning, he concludes they are of no value. He collected a number of samples, however, which he will assay. The sands and gravels are glacial deposits and not unusual.

Prof. Miller intends visiting the iron deposits of the Atikokan and Steep Rock Lake regions on the Canadian Northern.

CHINESE IN CANADA.

Professor Cody, of Toronto, says They Do the West Dirty Work.

Rev. Prof. Cody, rector of St. Paul's Church, Toronto, has just returned from a trip to Manitoba and British Columbia. Speaking of the Chinese question, Mr. Cody says there are two sides to that question. His impression was that British Columbia could not get along very well without the Chinese. In the salmon canneries the Chinamen do all the really distasteful and dirty work, and do it well. As a servant, a market gardener, or in whatever capacity you find him, the Chinaman is always law-abiding, civil, and generally honest. Mr. Cody does not think the Chinese enter into competition with white labor. They clean fish, but do not fish. The Japs, on the other hand, fish, but absolutely refuse to do the cleaning.

An Englishman's Appreciation.

Prince Henry of Prussia, according to a story told by a diplomat who was once attached to the British Embassy in Berlin, was one day chatting with an English friend in a cafe in Bonn, when he became an object of suspicion to one of those meddling minor officials who flourish in such numbers in Germany. The Prince is too discreet a man to discuss affairs of State in a public place, but on this occasion some subject arose which, while not of general interest, related to the Imperial family. The conversation was in English, and the spying official was acquainted with that language. At length Prince Henry remarked: "Why, my dear fellow, don't you see that the Emperor would be even crazier than some people seem to believe he is if he did anything like that?"

The official leered toward his Royal Highness and said: "Sir, are you aware that there is a less majestic law in this country? Let me hear another remark of that kind, and I make a complaint against you."

The Englishman took in the situation, and a moment afterward remarked: "As I was saying to your Royal Highness before we were interrupted—"

The meddler gasped, rose hastily and withdrew.

J. L. Scott is now ready to deliver what can be had on hand and will be obliged by his customers sending in their orders without delay. Office Fifth street; phone 100.

Resting the Feet.

Some women know by instinct how nearly the nerves of the feet are related to the nerves of their hearts, stomachs and brains, and Miss Calve is one of them. When anxiety and hard work press upon her, she puts off slippers and stockings. Letting her feet breathe is what she calls sitting a long hour wriggling her pink toes delightfully in the sun or running up and down the room to stretch the soles. After this she lies down and has her maid gently chafe the bottoms of her feet till she drops into a deep sleep, whence she comes soothed and vigorous for any amount of work.

A Business Woman.

One of the most remarkable women in Great Britain resides at Swansea. Miss Dillwyn has written successful novels, acted as a reviewer, carried out the duties of a farm bailiff and is now the partner in a flourishing spelter business. She walks three miles to business every morning and remains at her office daily from 9 in the morning until 5 in the evening. She is a member of the school board and chairman of the hospital committee.

Care of Brushes and Combs.

A girl's idea of neatness is sometimes like the ostrich's idea of concealment—he will hide his head in the sand and rest in the comfort that he has eluded observation. Often girls who wash their hair persistently give never a thought to the care of the brushes and combs. A specialist says that hair brushes should be washed once a week at least, and if used on hair in which there is much dandruff twice a week is not too often.

An Individual Omelet.

A delicious individual omelet is a change from the eternal fried and poached eggs. Beat five eggs well; add six tablespoonsful of milk and a little salt; pour into a very hot buttered spider and as soon as set cut in quarters and fold each over like a tiny omelet. This quantity will serve four people.

IN ROYALTY'S SHADOW

By Frank H. Sweet

Copyright, 1902, by the F. S. McClure Company

As he stumbled down the steps he almost ran into the postman. With a muttered apology he was brushing past when the postman touched his arm.

"A letter for you, Mr. Wyatt," he said.

The young man took it mechanically and slipped it into his pocket, noticing as he did so that it had been forwarded from the Raleigh. Two weeks before he had been a guest at the Raleigh. Now he was leaving a small back room on C street because he could no longer pay the rent.

But as he turned the corner and went up the avenue his pace began to slacken. He had nowhere to go, so there was no haste. Presently he took out the letter for want of better occupation and carelessly tore off one end.

"I DO NOT LIKE TO TAX YOUR COUNTRY."

But before he had read a dozen lines his indifferent gaze had become eager, and he hurried on to the end. Then he gave expression to a low whistle, in which were mingled relief, exultation and dismay. The concluding paragraph read:

So give up your Washington project and come back to Texas. Very likely your ancestors did own the land, but it was a hundred years ago, and a mountain of rival claimants has piled up and covered proof from any belief but your own. You're already been there six months, and I'll be bound spent a lot of money, and where have you got? You might continue it for a lifetime—others have—and then get nowhere. So what's the use? There's plenty of land here that you have unquestioned title to, and some day it will represent a lot of money, and you know Texas is a good starting point for a racer like you. Another thing, I saw Miss Atmar the other day, and from the way she asked after you I knew that whatever misunderstanding there had been was forgotten. So, with all due respect, I say you are a fool if you stay in Washington twenty-four hours longer.

The letter was crumpled and thrust back into his pocket. Return to Texas! If only he could! The "Washington project," as Tom called it, had long since been relegated to a place in the background of his future, and he had only clung to it because there seemed nothing else for him to do and because he was not ready to go back to Texas. But the reference to Miss Atmar did away with that.

Mechanically his fingers sought the three remaining half dollars in the depths of his trousers pocket. Ten minutes before he had been deliberating whether to expend them for lodging and trust to his finding work for meals or to take them to some good restaurant and let chance or luck provide the lodging. Now food and lodging were both forgotten. They must take him back to Texas.

He was on the fashionable side of the avenue, where there was usually little passing. But as he moved forward again he noticed that people in increasing numbers were arriving and taking positions as near the curbstone as possible. Already they were three or four lines deep.

He glanced across to the other side. That was packed with people, as were also the windows above. What was it—a parade. Then he remembered. Why, Prince Henry was coming, of course. He had lost sight of New York's enthusiasm in his own concerns. Even if he had but three half dollars to get back to Texas with, the world was still able to go on about its own affairs.

He walked on more slowly, gazing at the people, but his eyes unseeing and full of thought. Suddenly he turned and pushed his way through the lines of spectators. Several policemen shouted and started toward him, but he strode across the avenue without heeding them and forced a passage through the denser crowd upon the opposite side.

A few minutes later he entered a costumer's shop on F street.

"Can you furnish me a German uniform?" he asked. "I do not wish it to be very elaborate or conspicuous, but suitable for meeting the prince and his suite."

"Yes, yes; I understand, sir," bowing and smiling. "I've had several such calls already; private theatricals or maybe the vaudeville. Everything German just now. Yes, sir, I've got the very thing you want. One of the German embassy had a suit mislaid by his tailor and wouldn't take it. The tailor turned it over to me. Perfectly new and just your fit, sir. Five dollars for the night, sir.

"Oh, I only desire it for an hour," the young man said quickly. "I'll give you a dollar and a half for its use and will bring it back here inside of an hour."

"Well, I don't know," returned the costumer doubtfully. "That isn't much for such a suit, and you're a stranger."

"It is plenty for only one hour's use," firmly, "and, as I am a stranger, I will leave my watch as security until I return the suit. You would hardly let it during the next hour?"

"No, I suppose not. If you're sure to get it back so I can let it for tonight, I wouldn't mind. Still you leave security. Yes, I guess you may take it."

There was a large crowd about the New Willard, but it opened readily to let the prince's suit pass through, and not a few admiring glances rested upon the tall, soldierly figure which walked at some distance behind his companions.

Inside the hotel he loitered for some moments near the door gazing at the people outside. After his companions had registered and been assigned to their apartments he seemed to awaken to his tardiness and went forward to the desk, signing the name "Fritz."

In big, round imperiously to a complacent looking gentleman who stood near the obsequious clerk and who appeared to be the manager or proprietor of the house.

"Will you be so kind as to direct me to some bank in the neighborhood where I can obtain exchange?" he asked. "Neglected?"

The man stepped in front of the clerk, his face wreathed in smiles.

"Any bank would be delighted, Herr—er—Baron Fritz," he answered, with a low bow, "but if you would permit me the accommodation I would be only too delighted to make the advance. His royal highness 'Baron' Fritz raised his hand deprecatingly.

"His royal highness, or, rather, our ambassador, would attend to all such matters, of course, but this is a private affair of my kind that I do not like to tax your courtesy."

"But I assure you, baron, it will give me the greatest pleasure in the world," eagerly. "I am delighted to have the opportunity. How much shall it be—a thousand, two thousand?"

"No, no, Herr Proprietor; you are too generous. I will soon get my exchange into your money. But just now, to save the inconvenience of going out, I will accept—er—it is so hard to reckon in your money—say, $50. Thank you! No; no more," as the money was counted and passed to him and more offered for his acceptance. "Now, if you will tell me the way to the—er—what you call—barber shop."

"Certainly. This boy will show you."

When he left the barber's chair ten minutes later, the soldierly figure in resplendent German uniform did not return to the office, but passed directly to the street.

Three days later the manager of the New Willard hotel received a certified check for $50 from a bank in Texas, and with it was a short explanatory note from a man who signed himself "Fritz Wyatt."

Wells for the Ditches.

Among the most essential things in the construction of tile ditches is a good outlet. A ditch may be dug and tiled all right and do the work for which it was made all right for a short time, and then it begins to fail, and when investigation is made to find the cause nine times out of ten it is found that the tiles have filled up for some distance. This is frequently caused by hogs and other stock. Now, this can be better prevented than remedied. Dig a well at the mouth five or six feet square and four to six feet deep and wall it with two inch lumber. Cut a hole for the tile and let the tile project a few inches in the box, or well. Cut a space on the lower side of the box, for overflow. Now you have your tile where you can go any time and see if it is right. Nothing can enter the tile to choke it. Clean the mud, etc., out well as often as necessary to keep it below the tile. This can generally be done during dry times. More than one ditch can be constructed in one well all right. We have a ditch and well constructed on this plan, and over 300 rods of tile empty into the well, and we expect to run another ditch into the same well. This is not an expensive arrangement, and we would recommend it highly. We consider this one of the best things we ever learned in connection with farming and expect to adopt this plan until we have found something better.—W. T. Burford in Practical Farmer.

The Longest English Word.

Which is the longest word in the English language? The controversy on this subject may break out afresh over a note of Dr. Murray's in "The Oxford English Dictionary." He points out that "Incircumscriptableness" and "Incircumscriptableness" both contain 22 letters, says the London News. But these are beaten by a word coined, or at least first used by Dr. Benson, the late Archbishop of Canterbury, "Antidisestablishmentarianism," which contains as many letters as the alphabet, viz. 26. We think, however, we can go one better than this. For each of the above words an authority is given. But if "Incircumscriptableness" be allowable, why not "Incircumscriptableness?" This has 27 letters and 14 syllables, and we have seen the word used somewhere. After all, if it be allowable to build up compound words on the German system, our language has infinite possibilities in syllable spinning.

Climate and Language.

The recent agitation in the philological world for the adoption of Latin as the universal tongue of cultured people is doomed to failure owing to the fact that it is confronted with a physical impossibility. In the first place the vocal organs are so entirely dissimilar in different races that a language will change too much for the various people using it to understand each other. Again, if we could give the Italian language to the Chinese or Russians it would change so that in a few years we would not recognize it as the same. This disability may be accounted for by the fact that the people in the north speak with the lips nearly closed, and those living in a mild climate give free articulation by opening the mouth.

Where Newspapers Are scarce.

In Paraguay there is a little cosmopolitan colony known as the Cosmo colony, which was founded several years ago by an enthusiastic band of Australian Socialists. After many hardships and privations the colony is now in such a flourishing condition as to have a newspaper of its own called the Cosmo Monthly. The manner in which news is dispensed to the colonists is interesting. A horn is blown, generally twice, with half an hour's gathering time between. The colonists assemble and the reader for the occasion gives out his news, which consists of interesting items selected from the latest weekly papers and dispatches from the Assuncion daily paper, which the colonists receive twice a week.

Feeding Hogs Indoors.

In order to determine the value of indoor and outside feeding, the Ontario Agricultural College fed hogs of several breeds out of doors and in a hog lot. Both those outside and in were fed twice a day what grain meal they would eat readily. This meal consisted of two parts barley or oats and one part middlings by weight. The inside hogs were fed all they would eat of green feed, tares and rape being cut and taken to them. The hogs on the outside were allowed to pasture on rape and tares. Hogs show that the hogs outside ate more meal and made slower gains than those fed inside. The conclusion was reached that feeding hogs on pasture is very expensive. However, the time required by taking care of hogs on the outside was just about half of that required for those on the inside.

Hatched Egg in Arm pit.

M. Kolomaizoff, a medical student, of Moscow, has discovered an ingenious method of hatching eggs. He carried for eighteen days a turkey's egg in one of his arm pits, and lo, on the nineteenth day a young turkey made its appearance.

For some months M. Kolomaizoff has been experimenting in this direction, and now he considers he is amply rewarded for all his labor.

The news of his discovery went at once to St. Petersburg and now, according to a Russian journal, several persons there are trying to hatch hens' eggs and ducks' eggs in a similar fashion.

The Size of Arcturus.

From the small value of the parallax found for Arcturus we cannot place very much reliance on its accuracy, but there can be little doubt that the distance of this bright star is really very great, and that consequently it is a much larger sun than ours, probably one of the most massive bodies in the universe.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A STORY OF HENRY BERGH.

One of His New York Experiences in Protecting Dumb Animals.

Like a well dressed, somber ghost he went striding down the snowy street, and at University place he found the thing he had expected—a car packed inside almost to suffocation, both platforms packed outside, with men clinging like big burs to bottom steps and dashboard rails, and before it, within a cloud of steam, two ill fed, lony hinds with bloodshot eyes and wide, red nostrils flaring in their effort to fill laboring lungs with air, with heaving sides and straining backs and flanks, white their madly scrambling feet struck fire from the slippery stones as they strove in vain to start against the awful weight behind them. Curses, oft jerked bell and assisting yells of passengers failed of effect. The driver's whip was raised ready for the stinging blow, when suddenly the straining effort ceased, the horses' heads drooped low, and through the thick air there loomed up before them a tall, dark form, with hand up raised commandingly. And calm and distinct two laconic words reached all ears: "Stop! Unload!"

"Who the blank are you?" furiously demanded the driver. "And where's your authority for interfering with this trip?"

He knew well enough whom he was talking to, so silently Mr. Bergh turned back the lapel of his coat to show his badge, for in those days he had to do constabulary work as well as official, then repeated, "Unload!"

But, being tired, hungry and mad, the floodgates gave way, and the passengers' wrath burst forth. Abuse, satirical comment, threats, filled the air. To a few straining effort ceased, the horses' heads drooped low, and through the thick air there loomed up before them a tall, dark form, with hand up raised commandingly. And calm and distinct two laconic words reached all ears: "Stop! Unload!"

The conductor was especially ugly and became unpleasantly demonstrative. His example worked like a leaven on the rest, and a spirit of riot began to show distinctly in the crowd closing about the tall, calm, self possessed man. All faces scowled, and evil names were tossed upon the air. He had just said, "You are yourselves increasing this delay; you might have moved two minutes and a half ago," when a scurrilous great brute came close up to him and, with an unspeakable epithet, shook a dirty fist directly in his face. Without the flash of an eye or the quiver of a muscle in his quiet face Mr. Bergh caught the ruffian by the shoulder, whirled him around, grabbed the seat of his breeches and the nape of his neck, and with a splendid "swow all together" sort of a swing, he fired him straight across the street, head on into the snow bank.

A silence of utter amazement was suddenly broken by one great, swelling laugh, and then followed the always thrilling sound of three gloriously hearty American cheers. Many men shook hands with Mr. Bergh benevolently, some admitted their error in aiding the overloading.—Clara Morris in McClure's Magazine.

Morbid Sensitiveness.

The surest way to conquer morbid sensitiveness is to mingle with people as freely as possible, and, while appraising your own ability and intelligence at least as impartially as you would those of a friend or acquaintance, to forget yourself. Unless you will become unconscious of self you will never either appear at your best or do the best of which you are capable, says a writer in Success. It requires will power and an unbending determination to conquer this arch enemy to success, but what has been done can be done, and many who were held down by it for years have by their own efforts outgrown it and risen to commanding positions.

Mind Action Revealed by a Watch.

"If I suspend my watch directly in front of me by holding the end of the chain with both hands, I find that the watch will swing in the direction of which I am thinking," says a psychological writer. "If I think of it swinging in a circle, it swings in a circle. If I think of it swinging from right to left and from left to right, it swings in that manner. I try to make no movements with my hands, but find it impossible to keep them from it for any length of time, if I concentrate my attention on the movement."

Where Things Are Made.

A clergyman in the neighborhood of Nottingham was complimenting a tailor in his parish on repairs which he had done for him. In the course of conversation he, however, incautiously observed: "When I want a good coat, I go to London. They make them there." Before leaving the shop he inquired, "By the bye, do you attend my church?"

"No," was the reply; "when I want to hear a good sermon, I go to London. They make them there."

A Ghostly Joke.

Raynor—Yes, I believe in ghosts. I have seen at least one in my life.
Shyne—Well, I have never seen any. You have a shade the best of me.

"She married him to reform him."
"And what was the result?"
"She wished she had reformed him to marry him."

ROYALTIES' RECORD.

Striking Performances in Oratory, Travel and Literature—The German Kaiser to the Vanquished.

Royalties seem to possess more records in proportion to their number than most other classes.

The German Emperor is, of course, in the van. He has made 250 speeches in a single year, a number probably unequalled by any of his subjects. He probably holds also the travel record for anyone except an engine driver. In one recent year he traveled on 199 days, covering in all 18,750 miles by land and sea. His average journeys for the past seven years have been 13,000 to 14,000 miles a year. Another record of the Kaiser's is the ownership of the greatest number of estates held by any one person on earth. He has no fewer than eighty-three.

The Shah of Persia speaks three languages, but the Khedive leads the list with a good knowledge of six different tongues. His Arabic, Turkish, French and English are perfect and he is sufficiently well acquainted with German and Italian to make himself understood without the least difficulty, though he is not really a fluent speaker of these tongues. Few men alive can do more.

The young King of Italy is the possessor of a magnificent collection of coins. There are 50,000 specimens kept in twenty-four great cupboards. These coins come from 200 different mints. The old Roman coins are unequalled.

Besides being in the very first class as a writer of romantic word pictures, the talented Queen of Roumania is believed to be unequalled anywhere as an embroiderer. That this is no idle boast on the part of her admirers, is proved by the fact that her work took the gold medal at the Paris Exhibition in open competition with that of all the best seamstresses in Europe.

Nor was Carmen Sylva the only Royal exhibitor at the great Paris show. King Carlos of Portugal sent a very beautiful pastel drawing, for which he, judged as an artist and not a King, received a silver medal.

Mention has been made of the Kaiser's large number of estates. The Czar beats him in acreage. He owns more land than any other human being. Russia's Crown estates comprise over 650,000,000 acres of cultivated soil, to say nothing of uncounted square miles of forest, and about sixty-five miles.

A queer record belongs to Princess Sophie of Russia. At her wedding she had 146 different Royal friends and relatives. She is said to have accomplished the task in three-quarters of an hour.

The tallest reigning Queen is Wilhelmmina of Holland, who measures 5 feet 5 1/2 inches, the shortest the German Empress. The tallest King is Oscar of Sweden, the shortest the Czar of Russia.—London Mail.

The Artist at Home.

A great public dinner was given to Isaac Hull by the town of Boston, and he was asked to sit for his picture to Gilbert Stuart, the celebrated artist. The picture, or a copy of it, is in Faneuil Hall to this day. Everybody is dead now, so that I will make bold to tell one of the anecdotes of the picture.

Stuart was himself a great braggart, and he was entertaining Hull with anecdotes of his English success, stories of the Marquis of this and the Baroness of that, which showed how elegant was the society to which he had been accustomed. Unfortunately, in the midst of this grandeur, Mrs. Stuart, who did not know there would be a picture, came in with her apron on, and her head tied up with a handkerchief, from the kitchen, and cried out, "Did you mean to have that leg of mutton boiled or roasted?" To which Stuart replied with presence of mind to be recommended to all husbands, "Ask your mistress."—Dr. Edward Everett Hale in The Outlook.

Wearing Out the Nerves.

Many people wear themselves out needlessly. Their conscience is a tyrant. An exaggerated sense of duty leads many a person to anxious, ceaseless activity, to be constantly doing something, overpunctual, never idle a second of time, scorn to rest. Such are in unconscious nerve tension. They say they have no time to rest, they have so much to do, not thinking they are rapidly unfitting themselves for probably what would have been their best and greatest work in after years. Self control of nerve force is the great secret of health and therefore of life itself. To understand how to relax is to understand how to strengthen nerves. Hearty laughter is a source of relaxation, as are also all high thoughts, as those of hope, beauty, trust or love. Relaxation is found in diversion.—London Doctor.

A Short Way to Grease a Wagon.

Drive your wagon on to a smooth, level place, or if in mud upon two wide planks, remove the nut and spoke on each side of the hub, pull upward and outward alternately with each hand and be surprised how easily and quickly the wheel will slip the tallest, have so much to do, not thinking they are rapidly unfitting themselves for probably what would have been their best and greatest work in after years. Self control of nerve force is the great secret of health and therefore of life itself. To understand how to relax is to understand how to strengthen nerves. Hearty laughter is a source of relaxation, as are also all high thoughts, as those of hope, beauty, trust or love. Relaxation is found in diversion.—London Doctor.

Birds of Iceland.

The bird fauna of Iceland is credited with 103 species. Of these there are residents, twenty-seven summer migrants, twenty-one occasional visitors and eighteen rare stragglers. The land birds are few, including only seven residents and five that come in summer or twice. The great auk once resorted to the island, but the most interesting birds now probably are the northern wren, the great northern dove and the Iceland falcon. Singing birds are few.

Nearly ten per cent. of all children learn to walk by the time they reached their tenth month.

The Turn 'o the Year

First hints of Autumn are appearing—a stray red leaf amongst the green; a touch of asperity in the evening air, dark at seven o'clock.

It isn't summer and its hardly fall. Not time perhaps, to put warm weather clothes away for good, but time to tone them up with a bright new item or two—For instance, the straw hat that's getting rusty can be retired in favor of a trim fedora; and a new silk tie with a touch of color in it puts a man more in touch with the time of year.

Then there's the question of heavier underwear and socks. They are both important just now in point of health.

And don't you want an umbrella before the Fall Fair Season sets in?

Of course we should not remind you of all these wants if the wanted things were not here.

WESTMAN BROS. CHATHAM

BYRON WAS BARRED.

Dean of Westminster Refused to Accept Statue of Poet.

Many years ago some admirers of Lord Byron raised a subscription for a monument to the poet, to be placed in Westminster abbey. Chantrey was requested to execute it, but on account of the smallness of the sum subscribed he declined, and Thorwaldsen was then applied to and cheerfully undertook the work.

In about 1833 the finished statue arrived at the custom house in London, but, to the astonishment of the subscribers, the dean of Westminster, Dr. Ireland, declined to give permission to have it set up in the abbey, and, owing to this difficulty, which proved insurmountable, for Dr. Ireland's successor was of the same opinion, it remained for upward of twelve years in the custom house, when (1846) it was removed to the library of Trinity college, Cambridge.

The poet is represented in the statue of the size of life, seated on a ruin, with his left foot resting on the fragment of a column. In his right hand he holds a style up to his mouth; in his left a book, inscribed "Childe Harold." He is dressed in a frock coat and cloak. Beside him on the left is a skull, above which is the Athenian owl. The likeness is of course posthumous. Thorwaldsen was born Nov. 19, 1770, and died on March 24, 1844.

Our journey is comparatively easy, learn to walk by the time they reached their tenth month.
