CITY COUNCIL'S LONG SESSION

Clarence Barfoot Gets $50

THIRD STREET BRIDGE

Free Market Wednesdays
—Favorable Statement
Of Expenditures

The Council meeting last evening was a long one—somewhat longer than the nature and amount of the business transacted would warrant. Some of the aldermen succumbed to the chronic complaint of talking at considerable length without saying very much upon the subject under discussion, but the Mayor allowed generous latitude in order that no light should be spared the aldermen in arriving at intelligent conclusions. The routine business brought up was not of a very important character and very little action of vital interest was taken.

Several Board of Health accounts were presented and passed. These were all previously passed by the Board of Health.

John Burns complained of his assessment last year. He was assessed for $700 on the roll, but the amended assessment with which he was not credited was only $600. The error will be rectified.

SINNER'S TROUBLES.

The matter of Mr. Sinner's income tax came up for discussion. Mr. Sinner came to this country from Germany. He was assessed on his income on the $300 tax, before his family came to this country. When his family came he rented a house, and a demand had been made by the collectors, for income tax during nine months when he was paying rent. This was unjust, and he wished a rebate. It will be granted.

FAVORABLE STATEMENT.

The Finance Committee brought in a statement of the expenditures of the year so far, with a comparative statement of what the expenditures were last year. The statement showed that the expenditures in the Board of Health were $525 more than last year; in the Bridges account, $436 more; in the Board of Works, $802 less; Administration of Justice, $30 more; Cemetery, $548 less; Contingencies, $38 less; C. C. I., $468 less; Election expenses, $42 more; Electric Light, $408 less; Fire Department, $191 less; Harrison Hall, $470 less; Market, $41 more; Pounds, $12 less; Police, $103 less; Public Schools, $1,250 less; Printing and Stationery, $20 more; and Salaries, $136 more. This shows that the different departments are being run this year much cheaper than they were last year, which was considered a very satisfactory state of affairs. The Council of this year is doing its best to curtail expenses in every possible way and in this they are to be encouraged. It was a matter of congratulation among the aldermen that they were succeeding so well so far at least.

A petition was received from 21 of the residents of Queen St. South, asking that their street be sprinkled this year. The petition was referred to the Clerk in the usual order of things.

WILL PAINT BRIDGE.

It was pointed out that the Aberdeen bridge is very much in need of paint. Before the paint is put on, it will be necessary for the iron work to be scraped and brushed with steel brushes. The City Engineer said that now, while the bridge is being overhauled, it would be a good time to have this work done. It would be done much easier and more cheaply before the planks are put down. He suggested that the scraping and brushing might be done by the city workmen, and thus save money on the cost of painting.

It was also pointed out that at present there is no agreement between the city and the company as to keeping the bridge in repair, although there was a mutual understanding that the company should have to pay half the cost of repairs. The matter of painting the bridge was left with the Board of Works and the Railway Committee to investigate and report on at the next meeting of the Council. They will

A Live Board Of Trade Will Assist In Booming Chatham

—Meeting Friday Night

Chatham will have a Board of Trade is at last in sight for Chatham.

This was the interesting and welcome news handed out by Ald. Westman, chairman of the Industrial committee, at the meeting of the City Council last evening. In speaking of the matter Mr. Westman said:

"Chatham's great need of a Board of Trade has been felt for a number of years. The Industrial committee has been working on the case for the last week or two, and we have been in touch with the present officers of the Board of Trade, trying to arrange for an annual meeting. There is but one opinion, and that is that a Board of Trade should be organized and placed upon a working basis at once. The Industrial committee has made arrangements to call a meeting for Friday, April 12, in Harrison Hall, for the purpose of re-organization.

We hope that the Council will give us their support in this matter, and we are assured that the citizens will give every assistance. A Board

Sudden Sensation Is Sprung By The Maple City Auditors

—Water Coms Attacked

Mayor Stone created a small sensation at the Council meeting, last night, when he read the report of the Municipal Auditors, Messrs. Wilson Taylor and W. T. Campbell.

Besides reporting on their work of auditing, they called the attention of the Council to a few matters which have come before their attention in the course of their work.

They pointed out that one of their recommendations made last year, re the payment of wages, had not been carried out, and that large sums had been laid out without adequate vouchers.

They recommended that the Assessors make valuations of city property so that the auditors will be in a position to arrive at the proper value of the city's assets.

They pointed out that the Water Commissioners had allowed N. Massey's account to run from December, 1901 to June, 1906, and had then allowed a rebate of $40. They had also allowed Dr. J. L. Bray's account to run from December, 1898, to December, 1905, and had then allowed a rebate of $37.93. Water had been turned on in Dr. Hall's office and the account had run up to $78.93, and $25 had been taken in settlement. The Commissioners had also granted free water to the Law Tennis Club.

Mayor Stone said that all this had happened last year, but he would take the matter up at the next meeting of the Commissioners.

The chief feature of the report showed that the City Council last year had a surplus of $6,328.45 and all the floating debt had been practically wiped off.

The Auditor's report will be printed, and 200 copies will be made.

also look into the matter of an agreement between the city and the railway company as to future repairs. Tenders will be asked for the work.

The Mayor also asked if the city did not own the steel which has been taken out of the bridge, and if they were not entitled to dispose of it as they saw fit.

The Engineer replied that there was not much steel over, and most of it in repairing the bridge.

The Mayor also brought up another matter in connection with the bridge. He said that the specifications called for white oak planks. He was down at the bridge the other day and he saw among the lumber to be used for planking, a number of pieces of red oak, which kind of timber is not suitable for this purpose.

Ald. Massey—I spoke to the Engineer about that and he was under the impression that all of the lumber there was white oak. He said, however, that it is all inspected by the specifications call for white oak, all the rest would be thrown out.

This was satisfactory.

TO WIDEN APPROACH.

The matter of widening the approach to the Third St. bridge from the north side was left with the Board of Works and the Railway Committee. It was pointed out that this is at present considered advisable, and there is a resolution on the minutes which reserved the right of the Council to decide upon a wider approach any time after the fourth day of May of this year. The present idea is to erect a sidewalk 41-2 feet wide on the East side of the approach on brackets extending out over the present walk.

This will be considered between the Railway Company and the Council. In the meantime the Board of Works were instructed to bring in an estimate of the probable cost of such work.

It was brought out that the caretaker of the cemetery has a man

NORTH BAY COLLISION

Ope Killed And Two Injured Near Huntsville

G. T. R. EXPRESS WRECK

Crashes Into Stalled Freight—Wreckers Work Five Hours

Huntsville, April 9.—The North Bay express, which left Toronto at 11:30 Sunday night, crashed into the rear of a stalled freight train three miles north of Huntsville early yesterday morning, killing the brakeman of the freight and seriously injuring his assistant and the conductor.

When the collision occurred the three men were in the van, the escaping steam from the express locomotive causing the death of Richardson and the injury to the other two.

The van and several other cars were smashed to pieces, and the scattered ashes from the stove set fire to the debris. The engineer of the express, J. Firman, and his fireman, jumped from the cab of the engine just in time.

A few passengers in the smoking car were given a shaking up, one man having his face cut with the glass from a broken window.

Richardson leaves a widow and child in Midland where he was a member of the L. O. T., and his widow will receive $1,500 from the society. The two other injured men were conveyed to the General Hospital at Huntsville, and latest reports ensure their recovery.

A miscalculation on the part of the officials is held as being responsible for the smash. The express was 10 minutes behind when the freight left Huntsville, and it was thought that the latter could reach the siding at Novar in time to give the passenger train a clear right of way.

The wrecking crew from Allandale had five hours good work in clearing away the tracks.

Dead: Brakeman Nelson Richardson, Midland.

Injured: Duke Wellington, Allandale, conductor, badly scalded. Brakeman T. Myers, Allandale, seriously injured.

than he could endure. His case was silently and solemnly handed over to the Finance Committee.

A resolution from the Board of Health, recommending the construction of a sewer as a sanitary measure, was referred to the Board of Works.

THE PRINTING TENDERS.

Ald. Austin, for the Finance Committee, recommended that the Council get out a list of the printing supplies which will be required during the coming year, and that tenders be asked for from the city offices. Carried.

BARFOOT GETS $50.

Ald. Austin also recommended, in reference to the claim of Clarence Barfoot for damages caused him through being confined in the Isolation Hospital, that while the Council acknowledges no liability in the matter, they agree to give Mr. Barfoot $50 in full of all claim he might have in the matter. The City Solicitor had advised them that the city was in no way liable, but the Finance Committee thought that there was a moral claim which the city should try and live up to. It was claimed by Mr. Barfoot that it was on account of neglect during his first confinement in the Hospital which caused him to have to go back the second time. He wanted $100 at first, but to-day had agreed to take $50. He was supported in his claim by a physician who was acquainted with the full particulars in connection with the matter.

The Mayor said that while there might be a moral right, it was establishing a very bad precedent. He understood that the Board of Health had made a demand for the payment of his board while he was in the hospital, and the Mayor thought that if he were freed from this it should be sufficient.

Ald. Potter agreed that it was a bad precedent, but it would at least be cheaper than a law suit.

The Mayor—When Mr. Barfoot left

BEAUTIFYING HOMES.

Upon more than one occasion The Planet has strongly advocated municipal improvement in the way of beautifying the lawns and boulevards. There is no better advertisement for any city than for a stranger to come in and see clean and beautiful streets and lawns. It gives a refreshing impression and speaks volumes for the thriftiness, taste and prosperity of the place. Not only that, but it is a source of comfort and pleasure to those who take a pride in having their homes beautified and improved.

Professor Nazro, of Plymouth, Mass., in the course of a lecture in Galt the other evening, gave some timely advice on the matter of home improvement, and as this is the time of the year most suitable for this work, a portion of his address is reproduced for the benefit of Chathamites. The people of this city should be especially interested in this subject, for there is not another city in the provinces which offers more natural advantages for beautiful homes.

Pro. Nazro said:
"We find that houses that have good gardens about them are more enjoyed as true homes, for it is here that the occupant spends a great deal of his time, cultivating his garden."

"The desire for gardening is in-born, and even in the city tenements in the dark and grimy courtyards, you will find that desire expressed in little boxes of seeds and plants, which decorate the windows."

"We may say also that the consideration of the arrangement of the house is not the only question to solve, for close attention should also be given to the environment, besides an ample garden the environment itself should be healthy and pleasant. With the stimulant of a pleasing environment we will find its influence reflected in the desire of the workingman to beautify his own home."

"I have seen many men, who have the good fortune to live in such surroundings, spend their leisure hours among their flowers and vegetables, which, otherwise would have been spent in idleness about social halls. As we look upon the problem, not confining it to sections, but upon a broad field, we find many different solutions of interest. Perhaps the foremost of these are carried into execution by manufacturing concerns, and we find manufacturers and other employers of labor of all sexes and nationalities, being impressed more and more of the need of producing, as much as possible, a pleasing and stimulating influence upon the general environments of the persons with whom they work day by day in conjunction with co-operation, for the one great aim of making the industry with which they are associated grow and extend in magnitude."

Right Breathing Cures Catarrh

Simple Way to Kill Catarrhal Germs in Nose, Throat and Lungs.

If you cut your finger, you don't attempt to heal it by swallowing a pill or a dose of medicine. It is just as foolish to try and cure catarrh of the nose and throat with pills and stomach dosing, for catarrh is a local disease, and needs special local healing treatment.

The only natural and common sense method known for the cure of catarrhal troubles is Hy-o-mei. It is breathed through an ingenious pocket inhaler, so that its medicated air reaches the most remote air-cells of the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, soothing the irritated mucous membranes, and restoring a healthy condition.

If you suffer from catarrhal troubles, such as offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, husky voice, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, loss of strength, spasmodic coughing, or a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest, you should begin to use Hy-o-mei at once. It will destroy all disease germs in the nose, throat and lungs, and provide the blood with additional ozone.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit with inhaler costs but $1.00. So strong is C. H. Gunn & Co.'s faith in the power of Hy-o-mei to cure all catarrhal troubles, that with every dollar outfit they give an iron-clad guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

It is a curious paradox that the more one likes a sermon the shorter he wants it.

They scowled and looked sour from morn till night,
They never would agree;
Now they are healthy, happy and bright,
They both take Rocky Mountain Tea at night.

ENLISTS IN THE RANKS.

English Army Officer's Mysterious Disappearance Accounted For.

Debonair Lieutenant Tryon, who mysteriously disappeared from the Hotel Metropole on the early morning of January 31, has for three weeks past been the darling recruit of the Seaforth Highlanders in Edinburgh Castle. Now, to the great regret of his comrades, he is again a prisoner in the castle.

It was at the beginning of the frenzied search for him by private detectives and Scotland Yard that on Thursday, February 7, a tall, clean-shaven young fellow walked up to a recruiting sergeant in Stirling, and after an introductory word remarked: "I would like to enlist in the Seaforth Highlanders." The recruiting officer, with a keen eye for a fine man, regarded the young six-footer as a "find." He asked him particulars as to himself.

"My name is John Fraser," said the young man, "and for eighteen months I have been at a place near Stirling." There was more conversation, the upshot of which was that the stranger was given a railway warrant for Edinburgh, and on February 9 found himself with the Seaforth Highlanders at Edinburgh Castle, an accepted recruit. He entered himself as having been born in the parish of Waterloo, London, and his trade or profession as that of a laborer.

John Fraser soon proved himself no ordinary laborer. A giant in physique, he had the upright carriage and the high movements of the athlete. Critical drill sergeants turned an approving eye on him. He was really a wonderful recruit. Within a week John Fraser had been tentatively selected to beat the big drum, though it was feared that he should never reach that honor.

Scrubbing the Floors. His comrades liked him very much because, speaking and behaving as a cultured man, he yet showed nothing in the shape of "swagger." In athletics he excelled, and he carried out his new duties as though to the manner born. On getting up in the morning he would quickly make his bed, and after recruits' drill would take his turn at the ordinary duties of the newly joined soldier, helping to carry in the food of his colleagues, sweeping the floors and scrubbing them. The men were instinctively impressed with John Fraser, and in the course of a week or two he became a favorite. He put on no airs, talked the canteen with the others, but never revealed a great deal or no information about himself.

It was in the canteen on Monday evening last that there arose a dramatic scene. A lance-corporal was reading a paper which contained a portrait of the missing Lieutenant Tryon, and suddenly looking up at Private John Fraser near him, he called his attention to the picture and the strong resemblance.

The new recruit turned not a hair. Smilingly he admitted that he and Lieutenant Tryon were one. The men were staggered into silence. But then came the surprising thing. These star-wart Scotsmen, having found a good man, had no idea of telling tales about him. The news spread like wildfire among the Highlanders, but although many scores knew of the identity of John Fraser, all kept the news religiously from the authorities. How it eventually crept out is not known, but two days later, on the Wednesday night, John Fraser was placed under arrest. Under the name of Lieutenant Tryon he still remains under arrest.

Colonel's Statement.

The following statement was issued the other morning by Colonel Macintosh commanding the regiment: "Private Fraser, who enlisted three weeks ago into the Seaforth Highlanders, quartered at Edinburgh Castle, has been identified as Lieutenant Tryon, who absented himself without leave from his unit at Gosport. He is at present detained at Edinburgh Castle."

Speaking the other day, Colonel Macintosh remarked: "I do not think there is anything else to say. A large number of the men knew of his identity, but they kept it to themselves. Now, all I have to do is detain him. What action the authorities will take I cannot say. As to any explanation of the lieutenant's action, I have heard nothing."

Break. The sergeant major of the Seaforths, a splendid specimen of the muscular Scot, was a little dejected the other day. "You ought to have seen him (Lieutenant Tryon) walking at the end of that detachment of recruits on parade. He was great. There was only one other man in the regiment to equal him in physique," said the sergeant major sadly.

A fellow-private with Lieutenant Tryon remarked on the evening with which he did his military tasks. "You ought to have seen him, sewing the buttons on his clothes. He did it perfectly." Another private remarked: "One of the smartest chaps we ever had. A splendid fellow," and a sergeant added: "He was just the man for our big drum, and we shan't get another like him." Altogether, an air of melancholy lies over Edinburgh Castle.

Some Peersesses' Jewels.

Many society women are the owners of jewels worth the proverbial king's ransom. Perhaps the largest collection belongs to the Duchess of Portland and the Duchess of Marlborough, but Viscountess Ivesagh is the possessor of one of the most valuable necklaces in England. Her pearls are worth over £70,000, and took Lord Ivesagh a long time to collect. Lady Rothschild, the Countess of Dudley, the Countess of Annesley and Lady Denman all own most beautiful pearls. The Duchess of Roxburghe and the Marchioness of Dufferin both have a large number of turquoises.

Lord Mayor Soldier and Sailor.

"You would hardly think, to look at me that I am colonel of the regiment," said the Lord Mayor of London at the distribution, at Guildhall of the prizes to the First City of London Royal Garrison Artillery, of which he is honorable colonel. He is also Admiral of the Port of London.

A CASE IN WEST AFRICA.

Mrs. A. P. Ferguson, a well known Cape Bretoner, has cured asthma by Catarrhoxone. Her statement is convincing: "Although I was troubled for years it was only recently I tried Catarrhoxone. When an attack started I got out my inhaler and invariably of relief. Feeling satisfied Catarrhoxone would cure, I continued the treatment until one bottle was finished. I didn't use more because I was cured and the asthma has never returned." Catarrhoxone is sure death to asthma and bronchitis. Try it and be convinced. Two sizes, 25c. and $1.00 at all dealers.

Immigrant Slashes Throat.

St. John, N.B., April 6.—Charles Minus, an immigrant, made a sensational attempt to commit suicide at the immigration sheds yesterday. He slashed his throat with a razor, but bystanders prevented him doing further injury.

He is being deported on account of a suicidal mania and will be sent back in the next boat.

WHEN THAT COLD COMES.

How is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself. Rub the chest and throat well with Nervine, use it as a gargle and take some in hot water before retiring along with one of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Next morning find you refreshed, free from cold and as bright as a dollar. These household remedies are wonderfully successful, and certainly won't fail in your case. For sale at all dealers.

Mrs. D. Shaw was called to the bedside of her sister, who is very ill at her home in Chatham.

The farmers have commenced their spring plowing.

Stanley Hannon and Harvey Bedford met with what might have been a very serious accident. While driving out to C. Pumphrey's their horse became frightened at the train and ran away. The animal ran into the fence and tore the wheel off the cart. The two young men escaped with a lame hand and a few other bruises.

Well, he had begged in Edinburgh. He appealed to the old "Chuckle Reekie," as Burns called Edinburgh. He hoped the old Chuckie was going to lay some eggs. What he was asking of them that day was a certain sum of money to be got within a very limited time to save what was merely the subject of one of Burns' famous poems, but was also an object of national and antiquarian interest. It was very desirable to save the Auld Brig. He regarded that as absolutely necessary; otherwise, suppose they failed to find the sum, they might have the Auld Brig purchased by some great American multi-millionaire, who would have all the stones numbered and have them again built together in his back yard at Chicago.

Stone of Destiny.

The real feeling he had at heart in this matter was to avert that stain from Scotland, and from the Scottish escutcheon, which he thought would be absolutely indecipherable. They had not many monuments in Scotland. Their principal stone monument was the Coronation Chair in England. (Laughter.) The Stone of Destiny was a stone associated no doubt with many tragic and interesting traditions, but he was not so sure that the Stone of Destiny itself was so interesting as this Auld Brig of Ayr—(cheers)—and if they allowed that brig to be replaced by a structure, however valuable and however interesting, and however commodious that new structure might be, he did not think that they should be able to hold up their heads again.

What Burns Did.

Did they ever realize what Burns did for Scotland? Did they realize how completely he transformed our national life and our national character? It was perfectly true that the great rascal, Sir Walter Scott, did in a sense more for Scotland than even Burns did, because he enveloped the whole country in a haze of romance which could not die away; but Scott had never dwelt in the hearts of the Scottish people as Burns had done. His birthday at this moment was celebrated in few centres, where as the natal anniversary of Burns was a subject of festal wherever the sun shone throughout the whole civilized world. (Cheers.) There was no birthday of any dead man, perhaps there was no birthday of any living man—the King included—which was so universally commemorated as the birthday of Burns; and who was that? Because he was a man. (Cheers.) He was, besides, a genius, flesh of our flesh, blood of our blood, and bone of our bone. (Cheers.) He spoke the accent of Scottish manhood. He spoke rarely in the classical phraseology of England, but in the language and dialect of Scotland, and therefore to them he was a Scottish representative man. (Cheers.)

Picture of Burns.

Coming through in the train to Glasgow he made the couplet—

O'er Burns Scotland wept with annual pang.

But would not save the sacred stones he sang.

Suppose by some magic power they could summon Burns there that day. Suppose that by the door through which he and the others came to reach the platform, Burns was to come clumping in in his peasant shoes, in his worsted stockings, and with his broad, pleasant face, out of which looked those globes of fire containing a world of poetry and thought—those eyes which Sir Walter Scott never saw matched, though he saw the great men of a gigantic era. Suppose that peasant could walk in with him as he spoke, and as few men had ever spoken, because all who knew him agreed in saying that his conversation was more wonderful than his poems. Suppose he came in there and asked them to save the Auld Brig for his sake, why they would have broken down the reporters' barrier, they would have sprung upon the platform, and they would have produced their shillings, emptied their purses, in fact, laid down their watches and chains and rings and every personal ornament, and laid the fee of the feet of Robert Burns. (Loud cheers.)

Want $50,000.

Why, sir, great millions of the world would spend their substance in giving thousands for the manuscripts of his poems, would give hundreds of thousands for a shake of his hand or for the sound of his voice, yet we cannot raise £10,000 now that he is dead to save the object on which his heart was set. (Cheers.)

Ah, it is not to me you are listening to-day; it is not I who speak to you; it is Burns himself. He has left this legacy. In this book lies the very manuscript of that poem in which he appealed to posterity to save the Auld Brig. I don't believe I hold it in vain in my hands to-day. (Loud cheers.)

ROBBIE BURNS' MISSION

LORD ROSEBURY TELLS WHAT THE POET DID FOR SCOTLAND.

At Glasgow Meeting At Which He Appeared As a "Jolly Beggar" to Plead For the Preservation of the Auld Brig o' Ayr, Made Famous By Burns, Who Had Transformed Scottish Life and Character.

Within the Banqueting Hall of Glasgow Municipal Buildings recently a meeting was held in furtherance of the scheme for preserving the Auld Brig of Ayr. The chief speaker was the Earl of Rosebery.

Lord Rosebery said he had come to Glasgow on many previous occasions, and in many different characters, but he never before came in the character of what their poet whom they were thinking of that day would have called "A Jolly Beggar." He was a jolly beggar that day—(cheers)—at least as jolly as he could be under the circumstances, because the avocation of a beggar was not very congenial to himself for want of practice. (Laughter.)

Well, he had begged in Edinburgh. He appealed to the old "Chuckle Reekie," as Burns called Edinburgh. He hoped the old Chuckie was going to lay some eggs. What he was asking of them that day was a certain sum of money to be got within a very limited time to save what was merely the subject of one of Burns' famous poems, but was also an object of national and antiquarian interest. TOBOGGANING A JOY.

Is the Winter Pleasure of Canadian Outdoor Life.

In an article on the delights of the Canadian winter, in The Morning Post, Mr. E. B. Osborn says: "It is in tobogganing that the winter joyance of Canadian life finds its ultimate expression. There is no 'Cresta Run' in the Dominion; the pastime has not yet reached such a pitch of athletic artificiality as to exclude ladies from its delights. A voyage on a well-made, well-banked slide with a cleverly-arranged jump is really a momentary heaven. Yes, and marriages are made in that heaven, as is forthwith explained.

She's in front, I behind. We are off and away

O'er the edge of the world in our tiny trim sleigh.

See that little red flag on the plain far below.

Like a clear flame of fire in the midst of the snow!

'Tis the goal of our flight on the perilous slide;

One in ten yards of fall and five hundred to glide.

Now we speed to a climax. The banks spin uphill.

From the dim gulf beneath blows a breeze silver-shrill.

The winding swift track whirls up out of the gloom.

The fir-trees fly upward like ghosts from the tomb.

Through silence all glist'ning we pass—like a star,

Down the sheer slope of Heaven that falleth afar.

Forty feet to the river! Our runners then flash in mid-air as we take the great leap.

Earth reels like a drunkard, the depths of the sky

Turn swift as a whirlpool, the sun from on high

Is hurled to our feet, and the edge of the wind

Cuts keen—a sharp scimitar swung from behind.

Then backward she leans, and with sweet lips apart,

Droops her head to my shoulder; and heart beats heart.

(Like a rose in the dark is the heart of my sweet)

And the icebound deep river roars under our feet

Till we rock o'er snowdrift, and find a full stop.

A Square Deal

In assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle's wrapper and their formulas are stated under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests while potent to cure and perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition, and they are not used in any way that would injure them. VIZ—purely refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, and loss of sleep and general debility of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy. It is not so good for acute coughs arising from irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes.

"It is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption. It is the best medicine that can be taken.

There are hat makers and confectioners at Marienbad and Homburg; bootmakers, chemists, and steel pen makers, rose growers, tobaccoists, and fruiterers all over the country, and in India and Malacca, purveyors of lavender water at Plymouth and elsewhere, and even a "contractor of fat" and of "billet wood."

"He says he owed me a grudge," the husband explained, with a chuckle.

DOCTOR AS AN ART CRITIC.

Pictures As Seen From a Medical Point of View.

Dr. Leonard Mark, in an interesting paper on art and medicine in the Lanet, criticizes some well-known masterpieces in this country in which the artist has dealt with medical subjects.

St. Sebastian, whose body is always represented tied to a stake and pierced with arrows, is one of the most interesting subjects from the medical point of view.

"In our National Gallery," says Dr. Mark, "I have counted eight pictures in which he finds a place, and I have been much interested in studying the various ways in which the arrows have been depicted penetrating his flesh."

"Some of the methods adopted are purely conventional. In one of them six or seven arrows are drawn exactly alike, and under each one is painted a group of five drops of blood, which, one cannot help remarking, look like a small bunch of currants hanging from the arrow."

Ophelia Too Healthy.

"Apart from the medical question, some of these artists have shown their ignorance of the legend, which says that the martyr recovered from his wounds without the help of any miraculous agency."

"Milla's picture of 'Ophelia' calls for a few remarks. A mistake that strikes me is that she has far too healthy a look with her plump cheeks and rosy lips."

"I remember that at Bethlem Hospital Dr. G. W. Savage frequently pointed out to the students the patients of what he called 'the Ophelia type.' They were generally girls with sallow complexions and flushed faces, who had been refusing their food, and in consequence were emaciated."

In criticizing Sir Luke Fildes' famous picture, "The Doctor," Dr. Mark says:

"I think there is scarcely any other picture which touches with such ability of execution the emotional chord of old and young, educated and uneducated."

Complaint a Puzzle.

"The child's complaint is said to be a puzzle for every new house surgeon who sees the picture hanging in the wards of a hospital, where it so often finds a place. The little which one can see of the child, with its flushed face, well-nourished limbs and extended arm, suggests some acute chest complaint, probably pneumonia."

"A Sherlock Holmes might help one to form a diagnosis by pointing out the bowl and spoon on the stool, which have just been used to make a poultice, the soothing effect of which the doctor is now watching. In this picture morbid details are conspicuous by their absence. The whole interest of the subject, the critical condition of the child, is conveyed to the observer by the distress depicted in the face of the father, by the mother's attitude of despair, and by the kindly smile of the doctor, which is expressive of deep concern for the recovery of his little patient."

Big Royal Appointment.

More than 1,200 tradesmen appeared in the New Year's Gazette—not in the uncomfortable part of it, but in a section which tells them that they are entitled to use the royal arms over their shop fronts.

Their warrants, however, as royal tradesmen do not carry the right to fly the Royal Standard.

They are of all sorts and descriptions—bakers, and candlestick makers, and, moreover, chimney sweeps, heraldic painters, sword cutlers, interior decorators, gold lace men, geographers, bagpipe makers, bridecake makers, purveyors of turtle, and—in spite of the horrible example of Henry I.—there is a maker of lapreps!

There are hat makers and confectioners at Marienbad and Homburg; bootmakers, chemists, and steel pen makers, rose growers, tobaccoists, and fruiterers all over the country, and in India and Malacca, purveyors of lavender water at Plymouth and elsewhere, and even a "contractor of fat" and of "billet wood."

Come and Hear The Unrivalled Nordheimer Tone

A cordial invitation is extended to you to come in and hear the unrivalled tone of the celebrated "NORDHEIMER" Piano.

Run your fingers over the scale or play a selection and listen to the beauty of the "NORDHEIMER" tone.

Piano salesmen may talk about the various mechanical contrivances of a piano until they are "Blue in the face," but all the talk in the world will not alter the tone-quality of a piano.

It is not necessary to take a "NORDHEIMER" piano to pieces and go into ecstasies over its wonderful mechanical features to prove that it possesses an unrivalled tone. It is there in reality. Your own ear tells you it is there—a tone so sweet and sympathetic, so clear and pure, and so rich and powerful—a tone that is of such rare beauty and quality that it lifts "NORDHEIMER" pianos above the commonplace and places them on a pinnacle of perfection in the musical world.

In after years you will congratulate yourself on the wisdom of your choice if the piano you buy happens to be a peerless "NORDHEIMER."

The One Price System assures a safe, satisfactory and square deal to you. Same price to all, and easy terms if you so desire.

Our Mr. R. V. Carter will visit Chatham frequently in our interests and will be pleased to furnish you with any information you may desire. Correspondence addressed to him in care of the Garner House will receive careful attention.

Westman, representing the Retail Merchants Association, appeared before the Council and asked that body to assist the association in establishing two market days in Chatham instead of one, as it is now. If the farmers could be induced to come to Chatham on Wednesdays as well as Saturdays, the big Saturday rush would be lessened and in this way merchants and all would receive a benefit. They asked that the market fees be remitted on Wednesdays, so that there would be an inducement for the farmers to come in on that day to the market.

It was explained to them that under the present conditions, the market spaces are rented for the year, and those lodging spaces would have first claim upon the spaces, but the Council is perfectly willing to allow all the rest of the spaces to be used without charge, on Wednesdays, and thus do all in their power to further the idea of the association.

RAILWAY GATES.
Ald. Massey, in reference to the proposed gates for William and Centre streets over the C. P. R., that he had written to the company, but had received no reply. The City Solicitor, however, has been instructed to write the company a letter, informing them that the Council means business in this matter.

HOUSE NUMBERING.
The special committee on house numbering, reported in favor of having the Engineer, during his spare time, prepare a plan of the present streets, marking them off in lots of 16 feet wide each, and that when this plan is completed, he report to the Council. It seemed to be the idea that each lot 16 feet should be counted one number, and when the plan is completed, the work of house numbering can be done by the men under the employ of the Board of Works.

This did not meet with the Mayor's approval. He thought that when the streets and houses are numbered, a census of the city should also be taken. He thought the correct census had not been taken for some years, and it was supremely important that the people should know the correct number of people living in Chatham.

Ald. Potter wanted to know if the committee had the correct system of house numbering, or is this an original scheme.

Ald. Stevens thought that the work could not be done properly by drawing out a plan. The only way to properly do the work is for a man to go along and make the actual measurements.

The report was adopted, and the matter of how the houses will be numbered will come up later.

The Board of Works were instructed to look after a sewer which is filling in on Park street.

Mr. Kelly, Queen street, called the attention of the Council to the fact that the ditch opposite his place is higher than the road, and as a result the water all comes over to his property. Referred to the Superintendent of Public Works.

The dirt which is being taken from the streets which are being paved will be given first to the property owners along these streets. An endeavor will also be made to get enough earth to fill in the ground around the armories.

The Property committee was empowered to advertise for tenders for new plank to put in the sidewalks over the Third street bridge.

BAD SIDEWALKS.

The attention of the Board of Works was called to the poor condition of the sidewalk on the north side of King street from the post office to Third street. It was also suggested that they take a look at some other sidewalks in the city, whereupon Ald. Benson announced with an air of importance and anticipation that it was the intention of the Engineer and himself to take a drive over the city some day and look up poor sidewalks.

"Who is going to pay the bill?" asked the Mayor.

"I will," replied Ald. Benson, and then the look of anxiety left the Mayor's countenance.

A by-law was then passed changing one of the constables. The name as it appears in the former by-law is George Barker, whereas, the man whom it was the intention to appoint was John Barkes.

The Mayor was empowered to appoint three competent men to inspect Alderston House and the Third street bridge approach, who will be required to report to the Council upon its condition.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

At the Brisco Theatre—
Shadows of the Past—April 10.

SHADOWS OF THE PAST.

Lincoln J. Carter's emotional drama, "Shadows of the Past," will be presented at the Brisco Opera House to-morrow night.

Some exceedingly clever character work is shown in the play. The character of Adolphus Bond, the eccentric funny little English barrister, is one of the most pleasant bits of comedy work that has appeared on the stage.

Miss Julia Gray, who plays the stellar role, in which she is given a wide scope to show her dramatic abilities, plays the part to perfection and in a way that always elicits the applause.

It is an audience and sympathy of an audience. It is that of a mother who sacrifices her honor in order that her child may be spared to her. It is one of the most unselfish acts of womanhood ever exhibited, and one that every courageous woman would sanction and duplicate were she similarly placed.

Date for Chatham—Wednesday, April 10th.

A LARGE FUNERAL

The funeral of the late James Farquharson, whose sad death was previously announced in The Planet, took place yesterday morning at ten o'clock from the family residence, 1000 Ave. to the Stewart Cemetery.

The service, which was conducted at the house by Rev. A. H. MacGillivray, was very largely attended by many of Chatham's most prominent people, who, by their presence, gave evidence of the universal sympathy which is felt for the surviving relatives. During the service a number of duets were rendered by Mrs. Cooper and Miss McGeorge, and a quartette by Mrs. Cooper, Miss McGeorge, and Messrs. Angus and Wilson.

The bearers were six of the deceased young man's closest friends.

A NEW UNION

Mrs. Graham, W. C. T. U. organizer for Kent county, visited Ridgeway last week and organized a W. C. T. U. A public meeting in the interests of temperance was held on Thursday evening, and, despite the rain, there was a large and enthusiastic attendance.

Mr. Reynolds, the chairman, in an excellent address urged the desirability of Local Option for Ridgeway. Capital ten-minute addresses were given by local clergymen of different phases of the temperance question—Does Local Option Pay? In Local Option Practical? The Christian Hotel Practical, the Christian Hotel being the hotel with the liquor business eliminated.

Captain Sharp, of the Salvation Army, spoke on The Reformation of the Drunkard, and Mrs. Graham told of the work of the W. C. T. U.

TRIBUTES OF ESTEEM

House Deplores Death Of Late Speaker St. John

CRAWFORD IS SPEAKER

Toronto, April 9.—The spirit of solemnity characterized the impressive ceremonial which constituted the opening session of the Legislature yesterday. The Speaker's gallery was preserved absolutely empty, until the election of the new Speaker, while the other galleries and the floor of the House were thronged with silent spectators. The Minister and the leader of the Opposition came in to go, all dressed in black, and took their places.

Then in the solemn hush the Sergeant-at-Arms marched in with the mace and placed it below the table.

The Prime Minister rose. "Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly," he said, "you are aware of the mournful and sorrowful circumstances under which we meet to-day. I am asked by his honor, the Lieutenant-Governor, to convey to you the sad intelligence that Hon. Joseph Wesley St. John, Speaker of the Legislature has died this life and that his seat in this Assembly is rendered vacant. His Honor asks you forthwith to choose a fit and proper person to preside over your deliberations."

Hon. Mr. Whitney intimated that the precedent being followed was that surrounding Hon. R. W. Scott, when 40 years ago, within ten days of the close of the Dominion session, he was called from the speakership to become a Minister of the Crown.

Mr. Crawford Chosen.

In accordance with the message of his Honor, the Prime Minister, moved the selection of Mr. Thomas Crawford (West Toronto) as Speaker. In so doing Mr. Whitney spoke in highest terms of Mr. Crawford as a respected member of the House, a gentleman of valued municipal experience and one held in honor by those who knew him.

Hon. Mr. Foy, the Attorney General, seconded the resolution. He believed that the selection would commend itself to all members on both sides of the House. Mr. Crawford was a man of experience and excellent sense and possessed an even mind which was both judicious and judicial. The Minister believed he would fill the office with impartiality and fairness.

Hon. Mr. Graham heartily acquiesced in the choice. He thought Mr. Crawford was a man of the highest caliber of Speaker with dignity, fairness and good sense.

The Prime Minister and Hon. Mr. Foy then escorted Mr. Crawford to the Throne.

"No words of mine can express my feelings at this moment," declared Mr. St. John, "and I feel that the House, 'I can truthfully say I appreciate the honor, but the circumstances bring pain to my heart and mind. I shall seek to discharge the duties in a manner worthy of the position."

A few moments later the Lieutenant-Governor clad in his robes of state entered the chamber with the Prime Minister. Having taken his seat on the Throne the new Speaker presented himself and was approved.

Prime Minister's Eulogy.

Then followed an affecting scene. Hon. Mr. Whitney, his voice choked with emotion briefly addressed the House. Members sat with their heads resting on their hands or desks, and spectators sobbed in the gallery.

"My words must be few," began the Prime Minister, "I speak of a man of deep humanity and with a wounded heart. I shall not attempt extravagant eulogy—such would be ill pleasing to him who is gone."

"I am not equal to the occasion," confessed the speaker after a moment's pause, his voice breaking. "Mr. St. John came to me the yearman of the Province," he finally continued. "The story of his life was one of absolute fairness and honesty of purpose. The man was an open book—he was transparently honest. He had a broad and Catholic nature. He held a position in the public esteem not given to many of us. If he saw the world about him happy, he was happy."

"I cannot express all I feel," concluded the Premier, "in the sacred grief of the home we have the deepest sympathy. Mr. St. John lived his life that he fought the good fight and humanity was the gainer by his life."

Hon. Mr. Graham said on an occasion like the present when the very air seemed laden with grief and sorrow sat on every heart words seemed meaningless. "This Legislature," said the Liberal leader, "sits in the sombre shadow of a great sadness. We are compelled to ask, Why? That friendship should be thus ruthlessly broken, tender ties severed and a useful life cut off is beyond the pen of mankind. We shall only learn why when the curtain lifts as the cycle of earthly rolls by. Mr. St. John was a man of friendship and threw enthusiasm into every walk of life. He was big in stature, large of heart and broad of mind. We have all suffered a great loss—a friend has gone."

Other brief addresses were made by Messrs. W. H. Hoyle (North Ontario), J. P. Downey (South Wellington), Col. Atkinson (North Norfolk) and Allan Studholme (East Hamilton). Mr. Downey's tribute was one of the most eloquent utterances ever heard in the House.

Out of respect for the memory of the late Speaker the House then adjourned.

After Wednesday—the day of the funeral—the Legislature will meet at eleven o'clock in the morning, and Government business will have precedence. To-morrow the House will meet at two o'clock in the afternoon.

LONDON IS AMAZED.

Stage Svengali's Trilby Plays Any Piece Spectator Makes Known to Him—Repertoire 8,000 Times.

When "strong men" were wanted for one's entertainment they were forthcoming by the score. When Chinese jugglers became a craze in London music hall managers produced them expeditiously and mysteriously, like rabbits from a conjurer's hat. It was the same with "strong women," with "living statuary," and now it happens with the so-called "thought transmission" exponents.

We have three shows of this kind at different houses of entertainment in London, writes a correspondent at the world's metropolis, and so marvellously clever and mystifying are they that all London is talking about them and hardly an evening party can be got through without some amateurs with a system trying their best to show powers of thought transmission.

The Zancigis Mystify London.

Mr. and Mrs. Zancig, who were honored recently by a command to appear before the King and Queen at Sandringham, mystify the audiences at the Alhambra to such a degree that investigation of their methods by the psychical research society and other eminent scientists has been called for, and enthusiastic admirers have attributed to the performers powers more marvellous than any to which they lay claim.

Now recently have appeared a Sheffield working mechanic named Retil and his 15-year-old daughter Myra, who give a replica of the Zancigis performance. This is all the more astonishing as Retil is an uneducated workman. His daughter, a polish-er in a brass foundry, saw the Zancigis performing for the first time last Saturday night, yet they were able to give a display of the same sort by the middle of this week. The girl is blindfolded on the stage and the father goes among the audience.

No matter how apparently difficult or complicated may be the question, the girl answers at once and never makes a mistake.

Real Svengali and Trilby.

But more staggering than these performances is that at the Hippodrome by a man and woman, who have adopted the names of the late George Du Maurier's characters Trilby and Svengali.

Their performance has achieved a bewildering success by the manner in which the woman, seated at a piano-forte upon the stage, plays or sings any piece of music immediately its name is whispered or written down in the presence of her silent colleague as he moves about the auditorium.

Whatever the means by which the knowledge of the particular composition desired is transferred to the pianist and vocalist, it is evident that her musical repertoire must be astonishingly comprehensive—indeed, it is said to include no fewer than eight thousand.

No words pass and Svengali has his back to the stage all the time, the woman watches him closely, but it is impossible to detect any gesture or movement that suggests a code. It matters not what you write down on paper, nothing comes amiss. Immediately Svengali reads the name Trilby, far away on the stage, breaks off what she may be singing, calls out the name of the new piece, whether it be grand opera, the latest musical comedy or the oldest forgotten song, no matter what the language may be, and starts over again.

It is indeed the weirdest and most mystifying exhibition of its kind ever seen.

Happy Decembers and Mays.

The marriage of May and December has passed into a proverb. In point of fact, these unequal unions have often proved most successful. The wedding of the late Marquis of Donegall, at the age of 80, made an event of December, 1902. He married a young and charming Nova Scotia girl, Miss Violet Twining, and, in less than a year, a son and heir was born to the happy couple. This boy, who is the present Marquis, recently celebrated his third birthday.

The late Duke of Argyll married at the advanced age of 72, and his bride was the Hon. Ina McNeill, a lady of the court of Queen Victoria.

The late Sir Charles Tennant took a second wife when he had passed his seventy-second birthday, and a child was born to him when he was 80 years old. There was a touch of romance in this marriage, as Sir Charles had become a keen golf player, and first met his future wife—then Miss Marguerite Miles—on the golf links at Biarritz.

The Earl of Wemyss holds pride of place among living instances of ancient bridegrooms. He was born in 1818, and when about 83 took as his second wife the handsome dark-haired Miss Grace Blackburn. This union has proved an ideal one; husband and wife are deeply devoted to each other, and the story goes that at the time of the marriage the new Lady Wemyss would allow no jointure to be put on the estate on her behalf.

The Vote Was Secured.

An ex-M. P. who contested a highland constituency some years ago tells the following anecdote:

Once, after a long and fatiguing day's canvass, I tackled a dissenting minister, who was very keen upon the subject of getting the bishops out of the House of Lords, and in pursuance of his favorite hobby he asked me:

"Well, sir, what are you prepared to do about the bishops?"

I was irritated and fatigued by my day's work, and I testily muttered, "Oh, hang the bishops!"

The minister bowed and replied: "Well, sir, you go rather beyond me there. I cannot undertake to go altogether that length with you, but you shall have my vote."

CABLE DISPATCHES.

A New Guessing Game That Will Furnish a Pleasant Hour.

A certain man went to Europe, leaving his family at home. He was either too indolent or too busy to write often. But he could not afford to cable lengthy dispatches, so he wrote his wife that he would condense each cablegram into a single word by using only initial letters. The first message he sent was B R O W N. While he was congratulating himself upon outwitting the cable company by sending five words in one, the family at home were distracted over their varying interpretations of the message. His daughter thought it meant "Bought ring on Wednesday night" and began guessing just what kind of a ring it was. His wife in her anxiety read it: "Big rain—out—wet—neuralgia." Other guesses at the intended meaning differed quite as widely.

In playing the game any word may be used instead of "Brown." Let the leader, who is supposed to be the traveler, announce the word, keeping the meaning to himself, and let each player write his guess of the intended meaning on a slip of paper. If there are prizes, the one who offers the nearest guess wins. The game may be varied by supposing that the message is sent to mother or son or to wife or to business partner or from some particular city, as London, Rome or Jerusalem.

Etc.

The wide awake boys and girls should remember that the abbreviation etc. means "and other things" and may not, therefore, be applied to persons. It stands for the Latin words "et cetera," of the neuter gender. The symbol &c. is only another form of etc., the & taking the place of the conjunction etc.

The Lopsided Habit.

The girl was tugging her chiffonier across the room when a friend dropped in unceremoniously and demanded an explanation. "That's the third time you've changed that piece of furniture in so many months. I'd like to know the reason for such foolishness."

The girl gave the chiffonier a final shove into the corner and then said gaspingly: "In order that I may be beautiful on all sides. Sherlock Holmes is out to that side of the body which the light struck the most clearly is always dressed the most immaculately. He showed that on that side the hair would be most artistically curled, the neckwear most patently adjusted."

"And I've found out a lot more things he didn't speak of. On that side a woman will pencil her eyebrows more cleverly, will massage her face more thoroughly, will put in her side comb more neatly, etc. So every month I shove my chiffonier across the room that I may not become lopsided."

Cured of Drunkenness.

How a Montreal lady cured her husband of drunkenness with a secret home remedy.

"I want to tell you that I have cured my husband of drunkenness and I am astonished."

How I did it I am confident in my own mind, and as I had no taste for wine, beer, or any other intoxicating drink, I wrote for your free sample package. HAS EYES LIKE OWL.

Daylight is as Darkness to This Canadian Woodman.

Because he has eyes like an owl and is unable to see during the day, Jacques Lombard, of the Lake St. John district, Quebec, is compelled to do all his hunting and trapping at night. He is the wonder of all the men in that district and many doubted the story until a fur trader named Jepsen, who was never known to tell an untruth, went to see the man with the "night eyes."

As Lombard has never visited a physician, the cause of his affection is not known, but it is believed to be due to an ultra-sensitive retina. Whatever may be the reason, it is certain that he cannot stand ordinary light, while at night he is able to see well. The extent of his vision may be judged from the fact that he shoots accurately at two hundred yards and can find a pin dropped among leaves when the night is so black that an ordinary man would be forced to grope his way through the forest. The darker it becomes the better is the trapper's vision; moonlight nights being less suited to his work. When light is entirely absent the pupils enlarge so as to seem to glow with fire, while at noon on a bright day the pupils are the size of pin points.

Shortly before Jepsen visited the trapper Lombard was forced by circumstances to subject his eyes to strong light, and the pain was greatly increased. But this condition disappeared after he had remained in a dark room twenty-four hours. To him the room was light until a lamp was introduced, when, as he expressed it, darkness radiated from the lamp. This explanation brought out the fact that the flash from a rifle appeared to him to be a black streak, momentarily clouding the atmosphere. To his eyes a searchlight would darken all objects touched by its powerful rays, and the letters of an electric sign would spell in black.

The trapper's visual affliction has rather added than interfered with his work, as most of the animals whose pelts he seeks are nocturnal rangers and he can observe their habits with his own eyes. He has a cabin at the outlet of a small lake, which forms the source of the River Croche, lying due west of Dablon. Here Lombard sleeps during the day, and commences his duties at night. His traps are strung for three miles along the lake and in the forests adjacent to it, and the rounds of them are made while other trappers are asleep.

While Lombard's life has been particularly free from woodland mishaps, he has had some exciting experiences with wild animals, and on several occasions has been slightly wounded. His hurts have never been serious, and his physical health has been almost perfect. His one ailment has been chills and fever, which come when the heavy dew appears in the spring and summer.

The trapper never lacks for meat, for he is able to take sleeping birds without effort. When it comes to capturing partridges it isn't even necessary to use a gun. They can be lured on the hand with a stick. In fishing he isn't so successful, as trout seldom bite at night, and even on cloudy days the light is too strong for him. Deer are nocturnal, as are moose, but Lombard says they are easily shot at night, as it is then the deer are out to drink and feed on lily pads. In the daytime they hide and take their rest.

Jepsen's story differs from former reports in that the trapper has possessed "night eyes" since birth. Formerly it was understood that Lombard had been partly blinded by the explosion of a pan of gunpowder and that thereafter he was sensitive to light. However this may be, it is true that the trapper's sight is better now than it was ten years ago. He is about forty years old, and is thoroughly contented with his lot. Apparently he has no inclination to have his eyes treated, although he has been told that he might be helped.

Some Modern Follies.

"Simplicity," said Dr. Farrow of New York at a recent Methodist meeting in Toronto presided over by Speaker St. John, "is closely related to the mind, the body, the spirit. It touches the individual, the home and society."

"No man can make the best or the most of life without simplicity—simple needs, simple pleasures, simple faith. Those who have lived the simplest lives have developed the highest types of character," and pictures of the late Queen Victoria, of John Bright, William E. Gladstone, Abraham Lincoln, Benjamin Franklin, and John Wesley were shown to enliven the accompaniment. He added, in part:

"We perhaps have more knowledge than our forefathers, but are we as strong, as healthy, as good, and as spiritual as they were?"

"A strong, sound body, a clear, active mind, can only be obtained by following certain prescribed rules."

"If one gets away from nature's simple problem, the greater the penalty he has to pay for it."

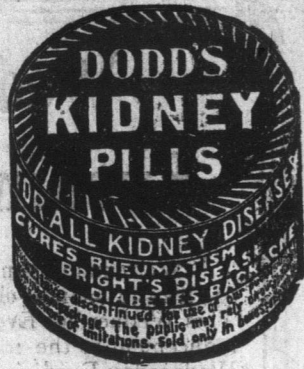

"In gratifying our ambitions for the luxuries of life we have deprived ourselves of some of its greatest pleasures."

"Many a young man, upon coming to the city, forgets the simplicity of the old home. With his first cigarette and glass of beer he loses the memory of the little church pews from him. Conscience often calls him to consider. The Church door is as open here as it is in the village, and friends there are many who will prove as dear. There are many temptations, but the simple life is as potent and as possible here as in the country."

"Simplicity is no man's prerogative. No one individual can purchase it, the ruler cannot command it, nor the strong man acquire it by force."

English Society.

Cockney is rapidly becoming the current dictum of the best English society. A well brought up young lady was recently heard to call across the table at a shooting lodge to a man with Wellingtonian nose and dome-like forehead. "Now, then, bird face, pass the rabbit food."—Vanity Fair.

SULTAN WILL YIELD.

France's Prompt Action Causes Consternation in Court at Fez.

Paris, April 8.—The official despatches received from Fez say that the French claims were presented to the Sultan March 3. The news of the occupation of Oudja by French troops arrived at the Moroccan capital March 29, the day the column entered Moroccan territory. The impression prevails that the Sultan will concede all the French demands. The energetic action of France caused consternation among the court entourage at Fez, and is expected to result in a prompt reply, but no official notification of its nature has yet arrived here.

PITY THE BUSY OFFICE MAN.

He feels half dead, a sense of nausea, headache and nerve strain. He is on the verge of breakdown owing to overwork and lack of exercise. These difficulties are best overcome by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which make the bowels active, stimulate kidneys and liver and thereby free the system of impurities.

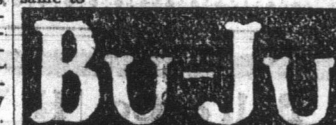

To revitalize and stimulate your whole being, to shake off lethargy and tiredness, nothing compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which do make good looks, good spirits, good health. Sold everywhere in 25c. boxes.

Bruchesi Still Busy.

Montreal, April 8.—Archbishop Bruchesi is extending the scope of his censorship. He now expresses his conviction that such books as the works of Voltaire, Rousseau, and others ought not to be included in the Civic Library at the Monument National. The City Hall Committee in charge of the Civic Library have been discussing the question with him, and it is thought that they will comply with his request and remove what he calls "objectionable" books from their list.

A lazy liver may be only a tired liver, or a starved liver.

A sick is all right for the back of a lazy man. But it would be a savage as well as a stupid thing to beat a weary man or a starving man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging liver it is a great mistake to lash it with drastic drugs. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a torpid or sluggish liver is but a symptom of an ill-nourished body, whose organs are weary with over-work. Let your liver alone. Start with the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in proper working order, and see how quickly your liver will become active and energetic. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs. Cinderella to Date.

By HELEN MAXFIELD.

Copyright, 1906, by May McKoon.

"I suppose you have read in the papers—if you have time to think about anything except yourself—that the Westfield bank is wrecked. They have arrested Mr. Hartley and Mr. Manners, but that does not help the rest of us. In a short time I presume I shall be on the country. If you had married Dan Martin, as I wanted you to do, I should not be facing this terrible situation, but you always were headstrong, and my whole life has been sacrificed to the effort to raise you as your dear dead mother would have had me. Even now Dan is willing to forgive you fully and marry you. He will have the house all done over, and his sister will go to John's to live, and there will be only Dan and you and me."

The letter covered five closely written pages, and Annabel read it through twice with firmly set lips and dry eyes. Then very deliberately she put on her coat, hat and gloves and went out for a long walk in the snowy park, where motor cars filled with fur clad figures drew past and laughing children pelted her with harmless balls of feathery whiteness. It was a glorious day, and when she came back to her dingy hall room she was smiling, and the hard lines had faded from her face. Then she wrote her answer:

My Dear Aunt Molly—I am so grieved to hear of the bank wreck. I had not read of it in the papers, because we have been enjoying the privilege of some special instruction under Professor of New York, and I have been working at the academy night and day. Perhaps the bank receivers may save something, and in the meantime you must not worry. I will have the store decorated to you, and the rent will move then keep your house going, and each week I will send you some of my earnings. I am inclosing a money order for $25 that I happen to have in hand. Have Mr. Gregory arrange the transfer of the store property. As to Mr. Martin, please do not urge that upon me again. I still feel that I have some right to happiness, and I know it will never come to me through Dan Martin.

Not one word of reproach, no reminders of a dun colored childhood and a dreary girlhood, spent under nagging of the most trying sort, no reference to the fact that her own patrimony had gone under with her aunt's small fortune in the bank wreck; no intimation that she had sent almost her last dollar in the money order and must now drop her art studies and seek a position in the workaday world. She smiled grimly as she mailed the letter. Her aunt would accept the sacrifice and wait to Dan Martin over Annabel's lack of appreciation.

Dan Martin! How she hated every inch of his underlined person, his small beady eyes, his perpetual smile, his weak, receding chin! She mailed the letter with a strange feeling of independence achieved, for now she had paid to her own satisfaction the debt of gratitude imposed by her aunt, which had hung over her young life like a pall. She was free now to work out her own happiness.

But for the next week happiness seemed to move farther and farther away. In later years she never thought of those days without shuddering.

The holidays were over. Nobody wanted to hire clerks or buy illuminated cards or telephone records or any of the pretty things she paraded. The room rent was again due. She might sell her few castles and paintings, but she set her lips firmly and climbed the stairs to a fashionable employment agency. The manager was sitting at the telephone when Annabel entered. She hung up the receiver with an impatient frown.

"What do you want—a position as governess or companion? Nothing like that in view; a hundred applicants for every position. Oh, wait a minute! You look bright. Can you do manicuring and dress hair a bit and mend laces? If you can do it even halfway, I wish you'd try this place. I've sent the customer a dozen girls, and they always part after a terrible scene. The woman's a crank, but you look as if you had tact."

The upshot was that Annabel, with 25 cents in her purse and a notice of rent due under the door of her hall room, went to see Mrs. Cartwright Brown, and that highly strung personage said with dissatisfaction and suspicion in her voice that she would give the girl a trial.

The Cartwright Browns were newly rich. The father had made an enormous fortune through his own efforts and was proud of it. The mother was so burdened by it that she was on the verge of nervous prostration. Annabel saw it was nerves and not temper and took heart. Later she learned that there were a son and a daughter away at college who were just a little ashamed of their new riches.

Nobody, Annabel least of all, knew how it happened, but she became the virtual head of the Cartwright Brown household. Mrs. Brown vowed that she could hire a visiting manicurist and hairdresser, but no one could stand between her and domestic and social worries as Annabel could.

It was Annabel who reorganized the staff of servants and installed a competent housekeeper. It was Annabel who had the conservatories brought up to date, Annabel who made out congenial dinner lists, Annabel who conferred with Mrs. Brown's modiste and Mr. Brown's tailor, Annabel who shipped smart, suitable clothing and room furnishings to two colleges.

Annabel's position in the household was peculiar. She was neither housekeeper nor private secretary—just "Miss Annabel." She did not receive with Mrs. Brown on Wednesday afternoons, but she did join the family occasionally at the theater or in viewing art exhibitions. And it was after one of these rare occasions that she realized the full extent of her happiness. She had been hunting congenial work, not an art career. She knew now that her small talent for drawing had offered her only an excuse for feeling an unhappy home life, but that she never would have become a great artist, while she was a competent manager of the Cartwright Brown home. She sent her aunt's allowance regularly and gave no thought to the future—until the two young people came home from college. The daughter was a mere butterfly, who neither appreciated nor resented Annabel's position in the household. The son was a grave-faced chap who seemed suddenly oppressed by the responsibility of his father's wealth. He had studied theoretical sociology in college and on practical lines among the gilded youth of his class.

By this time the Cartwright Browns were at their country place, and Annabel found that her early morning rides were subject to interruption, not unpleasant, but disturbing. Norman Brown insisted upon unloading upon her capable shoulders, as his mother and father had done before him, the burden of his personal problems. But they were no longer burdensome when he found that Annabel shared his ideals about the use of wealth, and he boldly carried his plans to his father. "No more college? You're going into the works? Say, what will our rich friends think?"

"I am more interested in knowing what the men at our works will think. And Miss Annabel says—" Cartwright Brown waved his hand as if to dismiss the entire subject. "Oh, if Annabel says you are right, neither heaven nor earth could shove you. I declare that girl has this family hypnotized."

"Nothing of the sort, and you know it," replied his son hotly. "She has simply taught us how to make the best of our money."

"And cured your mother of nervous prostration. Gracious, when I think of those old days! Oh, try it if you like."

Letter from Miss Molly Sewell to Annabel Matfield:

... We were inexpressibly shocked. Of course I had watched for your name under some magazine illustrations or for some work you would send me, and when I saw it I sent Dan Martin to Denver to find out what you were doing. You, a Sewell and a Matfield, hiring out as a mere servant! Your mother must have been at the Westfield bank will pay 50 cents on the dollar, and we can get along somehow, and if you show some signs of settling down I think Dan will marry you after all. He isn't like some men, holding a grudge.

Letter from Annabel to her Aunt Molly:

... The wedding took place yesterday afternoon. I wanted to have you come, but we were compelled to hasten matters. There trouble at the Blackstone smelters, and Norman wants to be on the ground at once. He is a prince among men, dear aunt, and you will learn to love him when we come to see you; forwings the fact that this prince found his Cinderella not behind the kitchen stove, but in his mother's boudoir. I am not ashamed of my work in the past, yet for it brought me the greatest happiness that can come to a woman. We were married with the full consent of his parents, and I can't write more. My cup of happiness brims over and blots out mere words. MOLLY.

Moral Snobbery.

One of the commonest forms of snobbery is not social at all, but moral. Many people are moral snobs who are not a grain of social ambition. When Napoleon said, "I am above morality," he not only gave expression to what some great people have secretly thought about themselves, but to what thousands of their small admirers have openly said of them. They do not reflect, perhaps, as they justify their heroes, that to declare any one in the world above morality is to say that morality has ceased to exist, has been found out and exploded, nothing remaining but some utilitarian rules suitable for the guidance of mediocre minds. The moral law must be supreme or nowhere. Yet this, as it seems to us, self evident proposition is by no means easy to apply. Most of us feel that for any one to lay too much stress upon the moral shortcomings of a great man is a sign of a small mind, or at least of a defective education. We do not habitually speak of Nelson in respect of his marriage, of Bacon in the matter of his proved corruption, of Coleridge in connection with his opium habit or of Charles Lamb in his cups as we should speak of Smith, Brown and Robinson in like circumstances. Must we, then, admit ourselves to be moral snobs? The prima facie evidence is very much against us.—London Spectator.

Why They Wanted to Win.

We knew of only one case in which a man has tried to select a wife by a competitive examination. Fifteen ladies entered for the matrimonial prize and sat down to a paper of questions of which the following are samples:

Name seven kinds of pie and describe how each is prepared. Do you advocate the use of chewing rings for teething children? Give in 100 words your views on suitable dress when married.

The exam came when the man who set the paper proposed to the winner. She refused him point blank, and so did the other fourteen.—London Tit-Bits.

A Dainty Sandwich.

A very pleasant and healthy variation of the meat, jam, egg or lettuce sandwich can be made with the assistance of the nutritious currant. Take a teaspoonful of currants and rub them in a cloth; then butter rather thickly some thin slices of bread. Cover the buttered bread all over with currants; sift a very little castor sugar over them and make into sandwiches. This satisfying little novelty is wonderfully appreciated and will not fail to delight the children.

Introduction Customs.

In introducing a woman and a man the latter should be presented to the former, as, for instance, Mrs. Jones, allow me to present Mr. Smith. In the case of two women, one elderly, the younger should be presented to the elder as a pretty mark of respect, as, Mrs. Jones, my friend, Miss Brown. In the event of one party to the introduction being an elderly man of prominence it would be proper to show him the deference and present both a man and woman if younger to him.

The Baby Baskets. Nothing is better for a baby basket than a wire dish drainer, either round or oblong in shape. They only cost 10 cents at any store where kitchen goods are sold. Cover the wire with blue cambric or blue satin first. Over that place white dotted or plain muslin, rather full. Make a deep ruffle edged with baby lace to fall over the outside. Cut out a piece of cardboard to fit the bottom. Cover it with a layer of cotton batting. Cover with the cambric and then the muslin.

Sprinkle sachet powder on the cotton batting if one cares to have the basket scented. Make little pockets and pin cushion to fasten on the sides. Around the top edge sew heading with ribbon run through it. The wire frame is durable and light.

No guttiness in WINDSOR TABLE SALT. The perfect crystals melt quickly, imparting a delicately piquant savour.

DELMA'S PLEA FOR THAW

New York, April 9.—The curtain began to fall yesterday on the dramatic trial of Harry K. Thaw, charged with the murder of Stanford White.

Attorney Delmas, the California advocate, began his long anticipated address to the jury in the afternoon, and after he had spoken for more than two hours and a half, adjournment was taken until to-day. Mr. Delmas expects to finish his speech before the luncheon hour is reached.

District Attorney Jerome will make the closing address of the trial tomorrow and Thaw's fate should be in the hands of the jury by Wednesday evening. Justice Fitzgerald ordered the jury locked up until the end of the trial. The judge's charge to the jury will be delivered immediately after the district attorney concludes his speech, which will take up three or four hours.

Declaring that he would not base his plea upon the "unwritten law," because his client found ample justification in the written statutes of the State of New York, Mr. Delmas made a striking appeal to the sympathy of the jury. But so far as he went yesterday, the subject of Thaw's sanity or insanity at the time he committed the homicide was not even hinted at. Mr. Delmas grounded his argument solely upon the story of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

"Even a beast protects its young," he declared with scornful emphasis, "but this unnatural mother deserted her daughter in this city of millions to be betrayed by a false friend, to be lured into a gilded palace, and there left the victim of a gray-haired man, wounded, bleeding and devoured."

Jerome Not Present.
All of Thaw's family were in the courtroom. They sat stolid, as usual, throughout Mr. Delmas' argument, their features betraying no emotion which they might feel. Thaw turned to them from time to time, as his attorney seemed to strike some telling blow, and they smiled back, reflecting his own pleasure. Thaw also turned frequently to his wife, who, in the last stages of the trial, as in the first, seems to be bearing the stress of the trial. She had a responsive smile ready for his every look.

District Attorney Jerome was not in court to hear Mr. Delmas' speech. His assistant, Mr. Garvan, took voluminous notes, however. Mr. Jerome, it was said, was busy with the preparation of his own address. The "Real Facts."

Mr. Delmas began his appeal to the jury by quoting from an utterance of District Attorney Jerome during the trial. He said:

"We have no right if the real facts were known to be here trying this man, and would be absolutely prohibited by the statutes."

Defended by Written Law.
"In the performance of my task, it is perhaps not improper to say that I shall make no attempt to influence your passions, no attempt to make your sympathies overbalance your judgment; I shall not call on such a flimsy thing as the 'unwritten law.' This defendant finds his justification in the written law, in the statutes of this state. In the written law he finds all necessary to protect his life and his liberty."

The Tragic Story.
The story is that of two young people whom fate by inscrutable decree had determined to link together, to be united and walk through life in the company of one another. The story covers only a few years. It is the saddest, most mournful and most tragic which the tongue of man has ever uttered or ear of man ever heard.

He told of Evelyn's early life. "As she became the family drudge, assisting her mother in the household duties. But nature had endowed her with the fatal gift of beauty—a beauty which manifested itself in early youth and a gift with which the mother soon saw means of supporting the family."

Assaults White.
"At this time," he said, "we find a man whose hair was tinged with gray, who had an excellent wife and an accomplished son, fixing his eyes upon the faded child and determining to make her his."

"The child was left alone. In one of those dens fitted up with all the beauty and taste which this man of genius possessed, into one of these dens this child was lured and found herself alone with this man, old enough to be her father, the man who was to be her protector."

He accused White of the crime, the penalty for which he declared that President Roosevelt had said in a message to Congress should be visited with death. This was one of the suggestions which Thaw himself made to his counsel for his summing up on of the suggestions which played so important a part in the proceedings before the lunacy commission.

Hummel's Affidavit.
That Evelyn Nesbit's story was true, and was told to Harry Thaw, formed the subject of the argument for more than an hour. Mr. Delmas declared that the only evidence the district attorney had to bring against the girl was the "miscellaneous affidavit," conjured up by Abraham Hummel.

Speaking of the latter, Mr. Delmas again drew heavily upon the bitterest adjectives of his wide vocabulary, and asserted with emphasis that it would require more than the word of a perjurer man to send Harry Thaw to an infamous death. Hummel was charged with deliberate perjury upon the stand when he swore he was not acting as Evelyn Nesbit's counsel, and that no action was contemplated in her behalf. He said the so-called affidavit had itself convicted the man of falsehoods.

Protest Against Commission.
At the morning session of court, Mr. Jerome formally protested against the confirmation of the report of the lunacy commission. He made no argument, however, and his motion was quickly overruled. The defence then sought to have Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton testify that Thaw was insane at the time he committed the alleged murder. The district attorney prevented this by an objection to Dr. Hamilton's sur-rebuttal.

He was sustained, and Mr. Delmas announced that the defence rested. Mr. Jerome made a similar announcement, and then an adjournment was ordered until two o'clock, that the jurors, who were to be deprived of their liberty, might adjust their business affairs.

SURVIVES 60,000 VOLTS.
Winnipeg Electrician Undergoes a Wonderful Experience.

Winnipeg, April 9.—After receiving the shock of a flash from 60,000 volts, Eugene Pilon was picked up unconscious, but still living, at the sub-station of the street railway Sunday.

The current passed right through him, leaving the impress of his feet burnt into the floor, the soles of his shoes being burnt off by the powerful current which had struck him, and which, in passing out, bored deep holes into the concrete.

It is stated by an expert that probably the carbon in Pilon's pencil attracted a jump spark from wires at a distance of 10 inches and this would be near enough to give him a terrible shock, although not the full force of the current.
