By Special Wire to the Courier. BLOEMFONTEIN, Union of South Africa, via London, June 22.—A sentence of six years' imprisonment and a fine of two thousand pounds was imposed to-day on General Christian De Wet, one of the leaders of the South African rebellion against the British Government, who was found guilty yesterday of treason on eight counts.

AVIATORS NOT STRAPPED DOWN

Were "Switch-backing" at Time of Accident, Not "Looping."

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Paris, June 22.—Investigation made by experts is said to have revealed that the aeroplane accident which resulted in the deaths of Lieut. R. A. J. Warneford and Henry Beech Needham, the American writer, on June 17 was due to the fact that the men were not strapped to their seats. It is now believed that Lieut. Warneford was "switch-backing" and not attempting to loop the loop when the accident occurred.

Mr. Needham was thrown out first. He was struck and killed by the propeller before he reached the ground. Lieut. Warneford fell, but the injuries he suffered when he struck the earth caused his death a few minutes later.

The body of Mr. Needham probably will be sent to the United States aboard the French Line Steamer Chicago sailing from Bordeaux.

Music and Drama

BRANT THEATRE

Another all feature bill is being shown at the Brant Theatre the first half of this week. The clown seal is a very clever act and reflects much credit on the skilled trainer. The educated animal performs difficult feats of juggling with great ease and precision, and it is a pleasure to see such polished acting. Mazie Hughes and sister offer one of the prettiest dancing exhibitions ever seen here. Both of the pretty maidens are very graceful dancers. Marmeen Four also offer a very pleasing act, presenting a melange of musical oddities.

The quartet's singing is excellent and their handsome costumes lend a pleasing finish to their act. The extra feature is Charles Chaplin in "Dough and Dynamite." This roaring two reeler was shown at the Brant some time ago and it proved so popular to hundreds of people then, that a return date was requested. As a result 'Charlie' may again be seen in one of his best and funniest pictures, being shown the first three days of this week.

Another instalment of the popular "Who Pays" series is also being shown, and with several other photographs, completes a very superior program.

James Slidden of Toronto, dropped from a bridge at Elora one hundred feet to the rocks below, being crushed to death.

Duff Sanderson, an employee of the Thestral Lumber Company, was reported murdered in a lumber camp back of Thestral.

FRENCH KNOCK AT SOUCHEZ IN ALSACE

Attackers are Only a Few Miles From the Northwest of the Village.

Paris, June 22.—Metzeral on the River Fecht, in the Vosges, which was occupied by the French on Saturday was taken by assault, the War Office announced last night, after the outlying cemetery and the railway station had fallen into the hands of the advancing troops. The Germans apparently retreated with great precipitation, for the advance of the French lines was straightway pushed forward to the south of the village, and for a considerable distance to the east.

To-day the war office reports that in addition to this gain in the advance on Colmar, the approaches to the village of Bonhomme have been captured and some of the heights in the neighborhood have been taken. Bonhomme is only about three miles from the French border in Alsace, but it is on another direct road to Colmar, being about the same distance from that city as Metzeral, 15 miles. The Bonhomme road runs down through the Vosges through La Poutroye and Kaiserberg, crossing the Fecht about five miles from Colmar, which is on the Ill.

There has been little activity in the much fought for German ground north of Arras to-day.

Progress has however been made in the direction of Souchez and the capture of several trenches has brought the attackers near the northeast of the village, and all the ground conquered has been conserved. Air squadrons bombarded the aviation parks of the enemy, setting fire to four hangers and damaging two aeroplanes and a captive balloon. The success gained by the Germans at Ypres and in Russia by the use of suffocating gases was repeated in the western border of the Argonne. During an intense bombardment wavy poisonous projectiles the French advance line was bent at certain points, two companies being buried in the overturned trenches. An immediate counter attack, however, enabled the French to regain the lost positions. Gains of the preceding day were enlarged on the heights of the Meuse, and progress was also made in Lorraine.

According to reports received here the French aeroplane swoop on the German hangar at Evere, near Ghent, resulted in the death of 44 German soldiers and of two women, and the wounding of 137 other persons.

Announcement has been made here that the French postal service is handling mail in 90 towns and villages in Alsace, all of which now bear the names they had 45 years ago. Minister of War Millerand, replying to the request of Ferdinand Buisson, president of the League for the Rights of Man, that lists of French killed, wounded and missing in the war be published, takes the stand that such a step does not appear at all necessary at this time.

LATE WILLIAM WOOD

The funeral of the late William Wood took place yesterday from the residence upon Oxford street to Mt. Hope cemetery, when the Rev. Marshall conducted the obsequies before a large number of friends and relatives. The flowers were profuse and many tokens of sympathy were received. The pallbearers were as follows: David Young, James Steves, William Iver, Albert Crooms, George Snider, Leslie Wood.

Capt. Pequequet Writes Home From Hospital

A graphic account of the battle of Langemarck in which the Canadians played such a prominent part, is given in a letter received recently by Mr. James Pequequet, from his son Captain Albert Pequequet, and to the Courier by Mr. A. Pequequet, jeweller, Market street. The letter was written under date of May 4th, from the Boulogne Hospital, in which Capt. Pequequet was confined. Since then, however, he has been transferred to an English hospital, and is rapidly regaining his health.

While in the hospital at Boulogne he was visited by Sir John Rose-Bradford, physician to King George V., and by Major McDermott, D.S.O., as well as several other important personages who visited the hospitals. He also refers to Capt. Irwin, another Y. M. C. A. attaché. He says he has no definite information, but thinks that Capt. Irwin is dead. The letter in part is as follows:

"On Thursday night, April 22nd, there had been some terrific bombardment in the vicinity of Ypres, but we didn't think anything of it, for it often sounds like that, so I retired about 10 p.m. We then were at Waton, nearly eighteen miles from the line of fire, and were doing rest hospital work with about 100 sick. We were attached to the brigade which was back quite a ways resting at the time.

"About 11 a.m. I was awakened by the hurrying about of our boys, and on getting up to enquire as to what was happening, I learned that the Germans had given way and were on the run. In fact some had already reached our town. I also learned that our R.O.M.C. were ordered up immediately with the first brigade to the attack, so I got to sit up, but just as I was about to fall in, the O. C. came up to me, saying, 'Peggy, I wish you would remain behind with Capt. Boyce to look after the wounded, for in case of a general retreat they would all have to be moved to safety. I can assure you that I felt rather disappointed at not having the chance of a little excitement, but consoled myself with the thought that perhaps the work I had been allotted to was even just as great, so back I stayed.

"The first thing I did was to go to the 28th Divisional Ammunition Column O.C. to see if he would give us three or four large lorries in case we were ordered to retreat, and I found him very agreeable. This was a great relief for they had gone off, leaving us without an ambulance of any kind. Capt. Boyce and myself then went over all the patients to see who would have to sit up in a retreat. This done we just sat up and waited for developments.

"At 7 a.m. our O. C. came back with the news that the Canadians had been rushed up and taken over the German troops with bayonets and had retaken the lost ground, and were holding their positions, but that the loss of life was appalling, for the Huns were pouring poisonous gas fumes into our trenches, and relieving our minds as to a retreat, but told us to be always prepared.

"That afternoon I mounted one of the ambulances and went up myself to do a little work for our boys, who were pretty nearly all in. The sights I saw were simply terrible. I can assure you that my nerve was tried, but on I went, shells bursting on all sides, and our foremost ambulance was completely blown to pieces, with the two drivers. Fortunately it was otherwise empty. These big 16 and 17 inch shells were playing havoc with Ypres. We had at one time to stop the car in order to drag a couple of dead horses out of our path. Our work carried us right up to St. Julien, where we were right in range of the German machine guns. It truly all seems like a bad nightmare to me. In our little unit we lost four killed and many wounded. Amongst them was my friend Capt. Duval, a Baptist from Grande Ligne, Que., and Capt. McGibbon. Both these were seriously wounded, and the former may lose his leg.

"If anybody deserves the V.C. it is our stretcher-bearers, who behaved like heroes, and worked without sleep for nearly three days, under the most trying conditions, and it was only by mere force that they were compelled to give up.

On Sunday night I came back to Waton, for our sick now numbered 314, so that meant work. I worked there until I was driven to my bed by Capt. Graham on Tuesday night. I had hated to have to leave off, but I was all in with pain. I tried to do my little part, but could not hold out to the finish. On Thursday they took me away on a stretcher to an ambulance and carried me to the clearing station at Hazelbrooke, and there held me over night, and on the following morning I was carried over to the Red Cross train and brought to Boulogne.

"The terrible loss of life is so dreadfully sad. Our fellows simply went to them like mad men, and many were the cries of mercy. The warfare of the enemy is hellish beyond words. One has to be hit to see it for oneself. They were actually seen destroying our wounded, among whom was a major friend of mine. Our poor 4th Battalion was wiped out, all my personal friends were killed, and only 118 out of 1,000 reported next morning.

"Capt. Young was wounded, but to what extent I have not heard as yet. As to the others I know nothing, only that Harry Coghill is safe."

Some 150 London, Ont., men have to date applied to be sent to England for work in munition factories, and many more applications are expected.

The Canadian Phoenix Insurance Company of Brandon, gives notice in this week's Manitoba Gazette that it proposes to go into voluntary liquidation on July 8.

PITTIABLE CONDITION OF MEXICAN CITY TOLD IN CIRCULAR

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Mexico City, June 7.—The pitiable condition of Mexico City, after the months of absence of communication by rail, mail and all other means, was made evident to-day by a circular issued by the British legation. This circular was addressed to six hundred foreigners of all nationalities who have been vainly trying to leave the capital for the past few weeks. Among them are thirty-four Italians who wish to join the colors. Thirteen other nationalities are represented, including 90 Americans. The instructions follow:

"All passengers are instructed to be at Calle Ponciano Arriaga in front of the Palacio Legislativo at 4 a. m. The last of the caravan wagons will leave at 6 a. m. The vehicles will not wait for anyone who is late.

"Women, children and infirm will be carried by train out of the suburbs as far as Tizayuca. No baggage will be allowed on the train. The train party will unite with the caravan at Tizayuca, from which all will proceed to the place of encampment. A "lager" will be formed. No one must count on obtaining any provisions or food stuffs on the trip, and passengers are ordered to keep together. Food and water for at least four days should be carried by each."

Four years ago through trains to the principal cities of the United States, carrying diners and Pullmans provided with all the luxuries of modern travel, left this capital. At the present time wagons and automobile caravans leave for nearby cities where connections are made for the port of Vera Cruz. The fare on these primitive trains ranges from $100 to $1,000 Mexican currency, according to the class of vehicle employed.

Even this service has been in existence only a short time. The roads leading out of Mexico City towards Puebla and Pachuca now resemble stretches of the American prairies in the late forties, when immigrant trains were travelling westward.

Loss of Appetite is commonly gradual: one dish after another is set aside. It is one of the first indications that the system is running down, and there is nothing so good for it as Hood's Sarsaparilla—the best of all tonics.

Unprecedented Piano Sale

We desire to sell every piano in our store before July 1st. Some are new, several only slightly used, and one very old, but each and every one will be placed at such a surprisingly low price that it will simply have to go. In fact, the opportunity to buy pianos at such bargains has never been equalled in the history of piano selling in Brantford, and we should know, for, as many of our readers are aware, we are the oldest dealers in town.

Our object is to empty the store, and our reason for wanting an empty store will be explained to you after the object has been attained.

We want to impress upon you as strongly as words can do that this is a real bargain sale. Come and prove our statement. We will not allow a few dollars to stand between us and clearing the store.

We will make terms so reasonable for responsible people that they cannot help buying.

British News

Movements of troops are taking place all over England, some leaving for the front and others moving from the towns where they have been billeted to encampments in the open country. It means Egypt, the Dardanelles or some other far point. Every soldier of England troops may be seen on the march, generally in brigades. To conceal the movement of troops constant practice marches in full equipment are held, and the men do not know whether they are returning to camp until they are actually back there. Often they march to some point, entrain, and in the course of a few days find themselves on board a transport. If their quarters are crowded, they may be sure it is only to cross the channel. But if bunks are provided and ample deck room, it means Egypt, the Dardanelles or some other far point. Every fareweller a soldier takes of family and friends he expects in any case to be his last until his return from war. So secret and so complicated are the movements of the new forces in England that no authentic information could possibly be collected for the enlightenment of the enemy.

Queer queries are frequently asked at the Emigrants' Information Office in London. A few days ago a man and his son visited the office to inquire as to the prospects of sheep farming in British Somaliland. It was gently intimated to him that the Mad Mullah was hardly a desirable neighbor, but he persisted in his assertion that it was Somaliland he wanted to inquire about. Eventually it transpired that he had the Nairobi district of British East Africa in mind. Another prospective colonist had heard of the lonely island of Tristan Da Cunha—which is visited about once a year by a warship—and thought he would like to settle there. He was dissuaded. So was a kindred spirit who had in some mysterious way been smitten with the charms of the island of New Amsterdam, a lonely volcanic rock in the Indian Ocean. Yet another anxiously inquired as to whether he could purchase an absolutely uninhabited island in the South Pacific on which he, with his wife and family could make his home. A little sympathetic treatment brought out the reason for this misanthropic desire. It seems that the visitor had been badly treated by some one and his resentment had led him to wish for a retreat where no other person would be left to injure him in a similar fashion. He, too, left the office with a rather more enlightened view of the probable results of the step he proposed to take than he had when he entered it.

THE SITUATION.

The Russians admit that matters just now are in bad shape for them, but they point to the fact that for months they have borne the brunt of a large part of the fierce fighting, a claim which is undoubtedly well founded.

The French continue to do well in Alsace and Lorraine, and they have evidently made quite good use of that opportunity while the enemy have been so busy with the forces of the Czar.

The Dardanelles job is proving quite as tough as expected, and perhaps a little more so. Always fearless fighters, the Turks with German aid are putting up a most stubborn resistance.

The British House of Commons has given the Government a blank cheque with regard to the amount to be borrowed for war purposes. The Government can go to any limit which they deem necessary.

THE DYNAMITING OUTRAGES.

There can only be one conclusion as to the partial wrecking by dynamite of a Walkerville factory engaged on a British war order, and the discovery of the same explosive under the Windsor armories.

The last time there was anything of the kind in this Dominion it took the form of an assault upon the Welland Canal, but the perpetrators were caught and landed behind prison bars in short order.

Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General for the Province, has announced that nothing will be left undone calculated to bring the perpetrators to justice, and that he will at once institute most thorough and far-reaching enquiries.

There have been people who have rather decided the guarding of armories, that at Brantford included, but such a course from the very first has been fully warranted. In addition it is quite clear that those Canadian concerns having war orders should also be placed under special surveillance.

A FINE RECORD. The new outfielder whom the Brants have secured, certainly has some record. Comstock played last year in the Michigan State League, with Muskegon. He played 119 games with a percentage of .286 and made only two errors. He played both first and in the outfield. He leads the first basemen's record of the league. He played 28 games, put out 240, made 18 assists, no errors and had a percentage of 1.000. He stands sixth in the outfielders record with a percentage of .990.

BAD STATE OF AFFAIRS.

The disclosures in connection with the Manitoba enquiry are daily becoming worse, if, indeed, such a thing could be possible.

Everybody remembers the suddenness with which the Roblin Government gave up the reins, as it afterwards turned out, because of the tentacles closing around them with reference to an investigation into wrong doing.

Hardly had the sensational resignation of the Administration become known ere the statement was whispered about that the Liberals had also received a big contribution for campaign funds from the same firm, stated to have figured in the miserable business.

On top of this, as announced in last evening's paper, over the Courier's special leased wire, Mr. C. P. Fullerton, K.C., of Winnipeg, created another sensation when he asked permission from the commissioners to show that there had been collusion all through between the heads of the two parties, and cash paid in connection with the Roblin government resignation for the purpose of a stifled enquiry.

The commissioners declined for the stated reason that they did not think their scope of enquiry extended that far, but it should most undoubtedly be made to do so. This paper still holds to the opinion previously expressed in these columns, that no matter whose head may fall, Conservative or Liberal, this thing ought to be pushed to the bitter end without false regard for anyone and suitable punishments result.

Mrs. Rose McGuire of Seymour township died in her one hundred and third year.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

General De Wet will be kept out of de Wert for a few years anyway.

Judging from all reports, the proper name for it should have been Scenral School.

It is rumored that some people in Windsor are now so nervous that they can scarcely dynamite.

What with the lions for the new public building and her white elephant in the shape of the City Hall, Brantford will have quite a nucleus for a menagerie.

Traitor De Wet has got off lightly enough. Most people will incline to the belief that this man, overloaded with British kindness and favor, should have been placed with his back to a wall and been afforded a chance to look down some rifle barrels.

Special Meeting

and Street Railway systems, then it could afford to look after the health of the children. Anyone only had to visit the school to see the conditions. It was only allowed to remain in such a state because it was a public building. It was highly detrimental to the health of the children.

Ald. Minshall asked if the Board of Education was empowered to order such work done and have it paid for in one year, regardless of what the City Council did. The Mayor replied in the negative.

Ald. Calbeck said that he plainly saw the necessity for the improvements, but couldn't advise that both be done at this time of the year, when people found it hard to pay the present taxes.

Mr. Bentham stated that not a single dollar more than was positively needed, was included in the total. The plumbing and heating could be installed separately, but it would cost much more to do the work in this way. The total cost, with fees, when the work was done at once was about $25,000.

Ald. Calbeck thought that it was only fair that the people should be taken into consideration and acquainted with the facts before any definite steps were taken.

Ald. Cuff asked why the new school had not been opened (meaning King George school).

Mr. Coulbeck said it had not been ready at the first of the year, and since then it was not thought advisable to take the students from other schools and put them under new teachers, just before the exams.

Ald. Suddaby wanted to know what connection the plumbing had to the heating. When a new sewerage system was supplied, it would do away with two flues, thus allowing those flues to be used for ventilation.

Ald. Bragg heartily endorsed all that Ald. Suddaby had said. By putting the school in the hands of the Board of Education, it would not cost so very much more.

Mayor Spence asked if new flues could not be made, which would aid the ventilating system. Mr. Bentham replied that one chimney could be built.

Ald. Ryerson stated that he had introduced the by-law to give every one an opportunity of expressing his ideas. It could be voted down now or given two readings and allowed to go on to the next meeting.

Mr. Coulbeck replied that it was, and again urged that all the work should be done at once. After more talk a vote was taken on the first reading with this result: Yeas—Ald. Calbeck, Dowling, Freeborn, Mellen, Minshall, Secord and Ryerson—7.

Nays—Ald. Suddaby, Bragg, Woolams, Jennings, Pitcher, Cuff, Welsh.

The meeting adjourned at 9.30.

Ald. Secord thought that it was decidedly bad when children had to wear extra clothing when in school, such as wraps and overcoats.

Mr. Spence in reply to this said that he knew of several cases in other schools, where the children had to wear out of door clothing in the class room on very cold days. He believed that certain officials of the board were trying to drive the matter to a conclusion.

Ald. Dowling understood that the obnoxious fumes arose from the basement and that several windows were kept open for purposes of ventilation.

Mr. Bentham stated that if it was decided to put plumbing in singly, it would upset the present heating system.

Mr. Bentham stated that if it was decided to put plumbing in singly, it would upset the present heating system.

Mr. Coulbeck replied that it was, and again urged that all the work should be done at once. After more talk a vote was taken on the first reading with this result: Yeas—Ald. Calbeck, Dowling, Freeborn, Mellen, Minshall, Secord and Ryerson—7.

Nays—Ald. Suddaby, Bragg, Woolams, Jennings, Pitcher, Cuff, Welsh.

The meeting adjourned at 9.30.

Work of Germans On Border

Windsor, June 22.—While there are several theories entertained as to the perpetrators of the outrages here and in Walkerville, the majority incline to the belief that they are the work of German sympathizers.

The discovery yesterday that more than 200 horses at the Imperial remount station on Dougall avenue, just south of the city limits, were ill, led to the report that an attempt had been made to poison the animals simultaneously with the attempt to destroy the Windsor Armories with dynamite.

Last evening the story was denied by a man in charge of the depot. Several hundred of the horses are sick, the authorities admitted, but pneumonia, caused by dampness in the stables, was given as the cause.

There are about 5,000 horses at the station now, most of them having been brought from the United States within the past few months. The animals are to be used by the allies.

Lieut.-Col. McCrimmon of the First Division Headquarters at London, Ont., sent word yesterday that he would be here to-day to conduct an investigation into the Armouries explosion.

Brisk recruiting, appeals for protection and increased vigilance marked the developments late in the day, following the realization of the seriousness of the explosion of the Peabody factory and the attempted blowing up of the Armouries.

Twenty applications were received in the afternoon for enlistment in the overseas forces, more than have been received on any three successive days since the outbreak of the war.

The military authorities have issued an appeal for recruits for the local regiment and also for the 33rd Regiment at London.

Several factories engaged in furnishing Great Britain with war materials are alarmed and have appealed to the Government for special protection, and one company has asked permission to swear in its own men as special officers to guard its branch plant at Windsor.

Dr. J. O. Reams, Registrar of Deeds fearing for the safety of valuable papers stored in the vaults, has asked special protection for the records of the Registry Office.

A movement was started late in the afternoon to force the official registration of all German citizens in Windsor.

The police were notified that Sunday night a man carrying a grip asked an automobile driver for a ride from Walkerville to Windsor. He sought the ride fifteen minutes after the factory explosion occurred. The police

NEW LOAN SCHEME IS A SUCCESS

British People all Participate—Union Leaders are Pleased.
London, June 22.—The trades union leaders prophesy tremendous enthusiasm for the new loan scheme which will tap a new source of revenue and have a widespread influence in encouraging thrift.
"Some such inducement to saving undoubtedly is needed," says one newspaper, in explaining the labor leader's point of view, "for the situation in this respect was becoming serious. It has been as plain as daylight for some time to students of the war situation that the general exercise of thrift and the creation of new savings available for government borrowing would lighten immensely the difficulties of providing for the war.
"On the other hand we have had an enormous increase in unthrifty spending on the part of vast numbers of the people who are drawing better wages than ever before, and who did not realize the critical quality of their prosperity. The terms of the new appeal ought to make a satisfactorily change, because the inducement to saving is so great and the facilities so easy that even the lowest classes should see that continuance of wasteful spending is sheer folly."

THE PROBS

Toronto, June 22.—The areas of low pressure which were west of the great lakes yesterday are now passing quickly eastward across Ontario and the middle Atlantic states, while the Atlantic low pressure is almost stationary south of Nova Scotia. The weather is fine and warmer in the western provinces. Showers have occurred pretty generally in Ontario and heavy rain has fallen in the Maritime provinces.
FORECASTS.
Fresh west and northwest winds, fair. Wednesday—Westerly winds, fine and moderately warm.

Rev Mr. Latimer Gets Important Appointment

General Sam Hughes, Minister of Military, has appointed the following committee to administer the voluntary aid in the care of wounded soldiers invalided back to Toronto and district: W. K. George, chairman;
Sir Edmund Walker, Sir John Eaton,
Archdeacon Cody, Z. A. Lash, Rev.
W. Latimer (Brantford), Mrs. A. E.
Gooderham, Mrs. T. Crawford Brown,
Mrs. R. Capreol, and Mrs. (Lieut.-Col.)
Rennie, Hamilton, whose husband commanded No. 2 Casualty Clearing Hospital. The department has accepted for convalescent hospitals the homes of Mrs. J. F. W. Ross and Mrs.
C. W. Beatty.
The committee will look after all comforts for the wounded soldiers, seeing that they get tobacco, fruits,
and other things.
Lieut.-Col. Marlowe has announced the names of the nursing sisters to take training in the local camp. The trainees are: Misses M. J. Murray, Leishman, who receives the assistance of Sister Beer, Sisters Elsie Ross, S. B. Stretton, and Mary Mc-Cuaig are qualifying for their rank now, and the following are under orders to report here: Misses M. J.
E. A. Dynes, A. Cherry, Toronto General Hospital; Miss G. G. Sangster, Riverdale Hospital; and Misses M. H.
Taylor and Isabel Connor, of Hamilton.
The Rev. Mr. Latimer, above referred to, when in Brantford, had charge of Trinity and Mohawk Churches.

With the City Police

A family quarrel was before Magistrate Livingston this morning in which counter charges and contradictions were rampant, and the Bench wound it up by advising both the defendant, Cunliffe Taylor and the complainant, William Henry Taylor, to make it up and forget. Both got a load off their chests and were told that it ought to be a little easier so lightened. It appears that Cunliffe had interrupted William Henry whilst he was at work and had administered a black eye and several bruises. Then the question of old debts came in, and the result was inevitable. A general spilling of the beans. The case was dismissed.
Domitro Dodovick came across seventeen dollars, in the course of his travels in the Pearl street region, and when he found that it was claimed by Enver Romnski, he did not care to part. He subsequently did before the magistrate of the bench, and a charge of conversion was thereupon dismissed.

ROACH AT SHORT FOR BUFFALO "FEDS."

Buffalo, June 22.—The poor support given to Bedient by the local team in the early part of yesterday's game was largely responsible for Kansas City's 9 to 5 victory, Buffalo outfit and scored more earned runs than the visitors. "Roxy" Roach, late of the Toronto Internationals, appeared in a Buffalo uniform at short yesterday. The score:

R. H. E.
 Kansas City 9 11 2
 Buffalo 5 12 3
 Cullop and Easterly; Bedient, Marshall and Blair.

PITTSBURG IN SECOND DIVISION.

New York, June 22.—Newark defeated Pittsburgh 3 to 2. The score:

R. H. E.
 Pittsburgh 2 9 1
 Newark 3 10 1
 Dickson, Hearn and Berry; Falkenberg and Raden.

GUELPH KEEPS ON WINNING

Hamilton Beats London 5-4—Lacroix Catching for Cockneys.

Guelph, June 22.—The Leafs kept up their winning streak yesterday when they administered a whitewash to the Ottawa Senators, the score being 4 to 0. Kirby pitched masterly ball for the Leafs all the way. He was never seriously threatened until the ninth, when the bases became filled, but he pulled out nicely. The fielding behind him was of a high order. Shocker was on the mound for Ottawa and was hit hard. The visitors were somewhat handicapped owing to the absence of Fuller and Dolan through illness. The score:

R. H. E.
 Ottawa 00000000—0 5 4
 Guelph 1000012x—5 4 1

THIRTEEN IS LUCKY FOR CLARKE'S PIRATES.

Pittsburg, June 21.—Pittsburg defeated Philadelphia yesterday 4 to 3 in 13 innings. The winning run came on a single by Collins, Bancroft's error and a single by Hinchman. The Pirates gained an early lead, but the locals' first run was a homer by Wagner. The score:

R. H. E.
 Philadelphia 3 10 2
 Pittsburg 4 10 2
 Mayberry, Chalmers and Killifer; Cooper, Mammau, Adams, McQuillan, and Gibson, Murphy.

"ROXY" ROACH JUMPS TO BUFFALO FEDS

Leaf Shortstop and Captain De-serts Organized Base-ball.

Toronto, June 22.—"Roxy" Roach, shortstop of the Leafs and captain of the team, yesterday jumped to the Buffalo Federals and his going has left a big gap in the team and a hard one for Manager Clymer to fill at this late date. It appears that Charlie Hanford, the former Montreal player and now with the Chicago Federals, was here last week to sign Roach up, but he failed. Then Press Agent Kelly, of the Buffalo Federals, appeared on the scene Saturday and offered Roach a scene Saturday and offered Roach a two-year contract, calling for $4,000 a year. Roach went Sunday to Niagara Falls, N.Y., in charge of the Leafs, but did not play, and along about noon of the day he was seen going away from the park in an auto. However, while the Toronto Club had an inkling of what was happening Sunday night they were not positive until yesterday afternoon when he failed to show up at the park. Roach having evidently been successful in cashing his cheque for the bonus at Buffalo yesterday morning.

FRED HERBERT LOYAL.

There is one ball player on the Toronto team whom the Federals tried hard to wane away last year, and that is Pitcher Fred Herbert, who this year is twirling better ball than ever before in his career, and bids fair to get into the majors this Fall. "Herbert doesn't know that I know that he was offered $3,600 to jump to the Federals last year, and that he had the money offered to him in cold cash in a certain hotel," remarked President McCaffery some time ago, and added that these were the kind of players that were a credit to the game.

ALGONQUIN PARK.

Two thousand feet above the level of the sea, Algonquin Park, Ont., offers an ideal territory to all who are looking for some place to spend the summer. The angler can find here excellent fishing (s. m. black bass, speckled trout, sunfish, and gray trout), the business man can find rest and recreation, and those who are run down will quickly regain health and strength. It is the objective point for those who love nature, fresh air, high altitude, simple living and fellowship with kindred spirits. Good hotel accommodation.

HAMILTON JOCKEY CLUB OPENS FRIDAY

Hamilton, June 18.—The Hamilton Jockey Club first summer meeting will open next Friday with the Derby as the feature. The race is attracting much attention this year as some of the best 3-year-olds in training are to face the starter. Royal II, the winner of the Latonia Derby last Saturday, Dorch and Rancher, who were behind the winner in that event, will represent the Kentucky division, while The Finn, the best 3-year-old in the East will carry the colors of Mr. H. C. Hallenback a prominent New York owner. Commonada, the smart 3-year-old that has raced so well on the Canadian tracks this season is another that will try for the Hamilton prize, and arrived at the track today to receive the finishing touches in his

MANAGER WARNER WAS IN THE BOX FOR THE LOCALS AND WAS NEVER IN DANGER, ALLOWING ONLY FIVE HITS TO BE MADE OFF HIM DURING ENTIRE GAME—LAMOND RELEASED.

After a disastrous trip to Guelph in which the Brants did not have a game put in the win column, they wandered into St. Thomas yesterday and managed to apply a nice coat of white wash to the Railway men by the score of 2 to 0. Warner was on the mound for the locals and pitched airtight ball while the team held without an error behind him, which is altogether different from the reports of the games in Guelph. There were a few changes on the team, which probably added to the playing strength. Dunn, who has been putting up a star game in left field, has been behind the plate in the last two games.

Many fans will be sorry to learn that Matty Lamond has been released, but Matty has been off color, especially in Guelph. Cooper, last year catcher for the Erie team in the Canadian league, has been signed, and is supposed to have James Slidders of Toronto Believed to Have Ended Life in Despondency.

Elora, June 22.—Last night about 10 o'clock, James Slidders ended his life by dropping from the Irving Bridge here. He was dashed to pieces on the rocks below, the fall being about a hundred feet. He was about fifty years of age and had been attending the funeral of his wife's mother, Mrs. Alexander McCrae. His home is in Toronto. He leaves only his wife. He had been in poor health since Christmas, and of late it is said had been acting strangely. He left the house last night apparently to go for a walk and it was not until this morning that his mangled body was found.

IDEAL SUMMER ROUTE TO WESTERN CANADA IS OVER GREAT LAKES.

When you use the Grand Trunk Lake and rail route between Eastern and Western Canada more than five hundred miles of your journey is covered by steamship—a magnificent sail across Lakes Huron and Superior. No better supper trip could be planned. Full service will be inaugurated on Saturday, June 19th, with the sailing of the S.S. "Noronic," flagship of the Northern Navigation Co.'s fleet, from Sarnia, Ont., for Fort William and other points. Throughout the season there will be three sailings each week, viz., Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. Special Grand Trunk train leaves Brantford for Sarnia at 1:15 p. m. each sailing day carrying passengers and baggage. Special train also carries passengers from Fort William to Winnipeg.

CELEBRATE AT FRONT

Special Wire to the Courier.—London, June 22.—The Prince of Wales will attain his majority tomorrow. At the request of the king, there will be no public celebration of the event. The Prince will not come back to London for the occasion and the numerous addresses of congratulation prepared by various civic and patriotic bodies will be forwarded to him at the front.

Arrangements are under way for a great memorial service in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Ont., for Lieut. Col. Campbell Becher, commanding officer of the Seventh Fusiliers, who fell in Wednesday's fighting at Festubert.

Washington Navy Yard

BY J. E. MIDDLETON

Washington, June 22 — In a broad, deep archway of light-painted brick stood a corporal of marines smart in his mud-colored uniform of cotton drill, but casual in his attitude towards the world.

"Are visitors permitted?" he was asked.

"Yes, sir; the Navy Yard is open to visitors," a formal but comprehensive reply.

It was a pleasant sunny enclosure of some acres. The exact number may be discovered in any encyclopedia. Therefore it is a pity to overload one's intellect by mathematical detail—which is of no real consequence. The yard is more than ten acres in extent and less than a hundred. There is plenty of room in it—even for visitors.

Just inside the gate stands a melancholy-looking, rusty, six-inch gun with its armored shield. Once it was mounted on the deck of the battle ship Maine which one night blazed into sudden and thunderous destruction in Havana harbor nearly 20 years ago. Now, rescued from the sea floor, it sits on a pleasant lawn in full view of the officers' quarters, and tells its silent tale of a great tragedy.

PARTY ROUND THE CORNER.

A few steps farther is a little waiting room with a sign that guides the blue serge suit and a white, peaked cap, who evidently is neither soldier nor sailor, but a semi-official civilian "betwixt an' between."

"Could I procure your services?" "Yes, sah, I have a party just around the corner now. Will you join us?"

Though it sounds like an invitation to partake of liquid hospitality, it is in reality a bid to a banquet of curious and interesting information. The young man is clean shaven and as he speaks twists his mouth in an oddly impressive manner, as if he has to unscrew the knowledge he so carefully imparts. There is no "y" in his enunciation, which inclines one to the belief that he has long dwelt in the neighborhood of Virginia. But it is pleasant speech and satisfying to the ear.

Here is the party, around the corner sure enough, and all ready to enter the gun factory. Here is a solemn business man accompanied by a gloomy boy in ten. Here is a talkative old lady in rusty black with a purple flack in her bonnet. Here is her husband with a white chin whisker and gold spectacles. Here is a lean spinster of stern severity. Here is a bride. Here is the self-conscious and verdant bridegroom, his trousers too long, his collar too big, his tie too red, and his ears too outstanding. But if she likes him—and it is apparent in certain turtur arm squeezings and certain vagrant smiles—why should mankind be mindful? And here is a fatty personage of great ardor, who crowds in front of his betters, to hear what the guide has to say, to step frequently upon the feet of a Canadian journalist. If the journalist suddenly, by accident, jerks an indignant elbow into that personage's "wind" let it be imputed unto him for righteousness by all who suffer from the rampageous tourist.

IN THE GUN FACTORY.

And here we are in the gun factory. Vast length and vast width and imposing height! Travelling cranes bearing guns, or parts of guns, acres of heavy machinery. Hundreds of ardent busy machinists, nearly all with those curious wrinkles between the eyes which tell of the persistent search for absolute accuracy. Here is a 12-inch gun with the vast breech open and the rifling of the barrel rippling away in a hundred shiny spiral curves. "Look through it" says the guide. The white chin whisker does so. His wife follows suit. Even the lean spinster bends stiffly. "This gun," explains the guide, "is—feet long, and weighs—so many—tons. It costs a hundred thousand dollars and throws a shell weighing 850 pounds. We can make eight of these guns in a month.

White Chin Whisker turns to the party with a benevolent smile and in a general sort of way says, "Gosh! It is the sentiment of all crystallized in one, which, by the way, is a definition of an epigram." "How many men work here?" asks the solemn business man. "Foah thousand!" is the reply.

But here is a vast ring of shining brass, smooth as hypocrisy, and here is another—and still another. "What is this for?" inquires one. "Foh the gun carriage, sah," says the guide. It is bronze, the only metal which will resist the corroding influence of sea water. The Rampageous Tourist shoulders his way in to see it. "Think what it costs!" he says, "you know what a brass-tap costs—gee whizz!" Wisely the Canadian journalist opines that copper is contraband of war.

THE TRAGEDY OF FORCE.

We go to another place where torpedoes are being made. These also are of bronze, for the torpedo must slide out without a jar, and the tubes lie close to the water line. Two feet six inches in diameter, perhaps ten feet long, and reasonably thick, all made of beautiful light-colored bronze like your grandmother's parlor candlesticks. White Chin Whisker once more becomes epigrammatic.

Then we go to a building where brass cartridge cases are being made for 5-inch guns. The shell must be in one piece, drawn out to shape. Here is a circular plate of brass, a foot in diameter and an inch thick. It lies in a bath of soapuds, connected by a hydraulic press. A workman slides it under the plunger of the press which is about the size of a man's thigh and rounded at the end. There is a hole in the steel table. This hole is the world which can so definitely picture the inevitable tragedy of force.

Farther up the factory these brass plates are being prepared for their fate. A mad looking planer is ripping off shavings of metal, each a neat curl about an inch wide. Instantly the rusty old lady, the grim spinster, and the bride pick them up and carry them away triumphantly as souvenirs. The home of a souvenir hunter must be a sight for gods and men—a concentration of junk, terrible as an army with banners. The gloomy boy fills one pocket with shavings—probably to throw at his school teacher.

Now we are out in the open again. The Potomac lies before us, fertile and bright. But before we reach the river the guide draws our attention to the wireless station. "These heah iron towahs are three hundred feet high and have a radius of communication of oveh 1,000 miles. We can talk here with the Panamaw Canal. You will observe the cable coming down to the brick station yondah." "Well," remarks the rusty old lady, "I never expected to see them things with my own eyes, did you, James?" James agitates his white chin whisker and says, "Gosh, no."

THE PRESIDENT'S YACHT

Here we are at the waterside. A trim navel yacht lies moored there. Snow white is its graceful hull. A score of bluejackets are polishing brass on deck under the supervision of a placid lieutenant. "No" or "three" three pounder guns are mounted, and the whole outfit is as clean as smart as a June day. "This is the president's yacht," "Mayflower," says the guide. In the cabin at Portsmouth was signed the peace treaty between Russia and Japan. The solemn business man regards the craft with intense interest and says to the gloomy boy, "That was in Teddy's time, tell ye the boys do keep her everlastin' slick," probably a New Englander by his accent. The gloomy boy merely says, "Gee, she's swell," his only remark of the day.

"I suppose the big ships come here," said the business man. "No," replied the guide. "The water is too shallow. They stay at Newport News." "Then how do you get these heavy guns on board?" "Ship them by rail," said the guide. It came with a shock. An inland navy yard. No accommodations for anything bigger than a yacht, and guns going out by rail—heavy guns, each weighing as much as a Pullman sleeping car. One thought of Robinson's Crusoe's boat built on a mountain and incapable of being moved. And the Canadian journalist began to wonder if a navy yard at Orangeville or Regina might not be possible. Perhaps there was something in the Newmarket canal and the rampancious tourist crowded in to hear the explanation; then shouldered his way out again with the remark, "Well, that's a — of a note."

TROPHIES OF WAR

Now we are coming to the trophies. Ah! Behold the small guns, none of which is any longer than a wheelbarrow and all of the oldest pattern, captured from Cornwallis in the Revolutionary War! 'E ejaculated the guide, not without a slight wagging of the head—due probably to sinful pride. The Canadian journalist instantly understood the real reason for the British general's surrender. He was ashamed to stay in the field any longer with such a one-horse collection of antique artillery. He came to the Americans and said, "For goodness sake, take these things off my hands and I'll quit. I've had enough. Another month of this and I would go mad!" Sometimes concrete objects teach more history in a minute than books could teach in twenty years. We are no longer sorry for Cornwallis. We congratulate him. The solemn business man looked long at the Cornwallis collection. "Well," he said, "that was a time when poor old England bit off more than she could chew!" The grim spinster nodded her head emphatically and led the way to the model room where there was a long table for sailing models of new warships, testing their resistance and fixing their engine power.

Then we walked towards the gate. "What is your fee for all this kindness?" we inquired of the guide. "Well, sir, the Government does not allow us anything, but would twenty cents be too much?" "No," he replied, "I responded and devoted three seconds to the gentle art of remuneration."

START OF AN AUTO CHASE

The sixth car still waited, and meanwhile—

The lieutenant looked sheepish, then swore. He had never driven a car and didn't know the difference between change of speed and brake levers. Still his orders were formal and he turned to me. An hour before I had left my old Clement-Bayard after 125 miles of the worst roads in France, mud nearly up to the radiator, and an impromptu scurry in a 40 horse power armored Mercedes—taken from the Germans and refitted—on a vague mission failed to appeal to me.

But the lieutenant looked so downcast and spoke so pathetically of ruined chances, spoiled career, etc., that I gave in, squeezed through the door, followed by the now elated officer and two Tommies to work the Maxims, and glancing through the slit over the steering wheel started off with a jerk after the other five now grey specks on the long stretch of road ahead.

Between jolts I listened to the lieutenant's explanations. It seemed that German armored cars were playing havoc in half a dozen villages north of here, between La Bassee and Arras, making their raids at most unexpected hours, working their quick-firers, two to each car, against every living thing in sight—soldiers, inhabitants, and even cattle.

As we neared over the rough cobles, jumping in and out of mud-holes and ruts, the roar of the powerful motor was lost in the awful din of banging metal, as if a thousand tin cans were dancing a mad jig behind us.

One of the soldiers, leaning over my shoulder, shouted in my ear, that he thought "the hind left tire, sir, was a bit worn, and going as we are, sir, should it blow up we might be delayed."

"Delayed! Heavens, man, we'd break our blooming necks," I shouted back. The lieutenant wouldn't stop to change, however, and tried to console me by pointing to a coffee under his feet, shrieking, "A surprise for them! Here, gentlemen!"

"By the smile on his face I saw he expected me to be pleased, so I smiled in a sickly way and tried to slow down, but my torturer glanced reproachfully at me and certain that my friends would speak well of me when they heard the fatal news, I rushed on again, eyes on the road, but my mind busy with that combination of a weak back tire and boxful of bombs under my neighbor's wheels.

To the driver's great relief there came an opportunity farther on to repair the doubtful tire, while the lieutenant watched the road with his glasses.

FORTY-FIVE MILES AN HOUR.

In five minutes I could see the Germans in front of me with the naked eye, continued the correspondent. From a man's head they grew to a man's size, and then things began to happen.

Through the narrow main and only street of F— we pounded, the speed indicator registering forty-five miles, and as the half burnt farms rushed by us, the black faces of African troopers appeared cautiously at the windows and windows, while threatening guns were lowered as the tricolored bands painted on our steel box flashed by. At times, as gutters were crossed, the wheels, rising in the air, fell with a crash, while springs groaned and creaked, and the men behind clinging to the sides were jerked bodily to the floor.

The lieutenant sat on the floor of the gear. They were using rifles at such a rate. Our only hope lay in overtaking the car ahead, and praying that the tires, our only exposed parts, would hold.

"Faster," yelled the lieutenant. I ignored him, getting already out of the engines all that had in them, and anyway we were now within 100 yards of the German, and her quick-firer was beating a tattoo against the steel shield in front of me.

Seventy-five yards more—sixty-fourty, and the German swerved from side to side, intent on keeping us behind him. So close our tires were safe, the biting angle being too great for the mitrailleuses in front, and as to ourselves nothing but a shell could penetrate the half-inch steel plate, and the bullets glanced upward harmlessly from the sloping front.

Bending close to me, eyes glued to the slit, the lieutenant spoke. "Now's the time. When you see my arm fly past, put on the brakes hard. Stop as short as you know how, for the fellow in front is going to stop shorter still."

"A smell of burning tinder came to my nostrils along with a warning cry of 'Look sharp!' from the lieutenant. And so, more through intuition, I felt his arm flash over my head, my whole weight was thrown on brake and clutch pedals, while the motor, released, turned crazily.

The three grenades, dragging their short fuses, timed at five seconds, sailed true to their goal, over and in front of the onrushing Germans. I was too busy straightening my own car, which, skidding from behind, leapt across the full width of the road at nearly a right angle, to notice exactly what occurred in front, but when we brought up hard against a pile of crushed stone, which Providence had miraculously placed between us and the ditch, the German car, not ten feet away, was just ending a 'whirl of death' act and landing on its side, both front wheels smashed under it.

Out of the tangle we pulled five men. One, the driver, his breast crushed by the steering wheel, was dead. Among the four others were broken arms and collar bones! Such is the new 'sport' at the front!

RAILWAY MILK SERVICE.

Average Milk Can on Cars One Hour—Supervision Must Go Further.

The problem of milk supply in large cities is one of ever-increasing importance, and as soon as the warm weather begins Montreal has its agitation for better control over production. The natural tendency of many reformers is on all occasions to hit blindly at the railways, but in this question of milk the railways have themselves always readily cooperated in any practical proposal to secure a pure milk supply. In his report on the milk supply of New York City, Commissioner Lederle pays his tribute to the help given by the railways, and in Montreal both the C. P. R. and Grand Trunk have urged a more adequate organization for the protection of milk.

As, however, the average time spent by a milk can in a railway car is just one hour, whereas the time between the milking of the cow and the delivery to the customer may be as much as thirty-six hours, the responsibility and authority of the railway is comparatively small, and it has been found that the inspection and supervision must be carried right to the farm itself where the physical condition of the cow, the stables, the farm hands, the farm water supply have an important bearing on the bacteriological contents of the milk. Moreover if the milk is not quickly cooled directly after being drawn from the cow, the bacteria increase with enormous rapidity, which no amount of careful handling in transit can counteract.

The creameries must also be subjected to close supervision. In 1905 where 500 creameries were inspected the drainage was found to be almost universally defective and the milk inadequately protected against dust and direct. At the city end, inspection is almost impossible for the weak and ailing. Enjoyment is not for the sick. Impaired health and serious sicknesses usually begin in deranged conditions of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels.

CROSS COUNTRY HUNTING WITH ARMORED AUTOS

Probably the most exciting of all forms of warfare is graphically described by a war correspondent, who quite unexpectedly drove a British armored automobile in a mad rush after a German machine across variously bad country.

A dozen leather-clad officers—French and English—rushed out of a nearby farmhouse, followed by a score of soldiers hurriedly adjusting goggles.

A few rods down the road six armored motor cars were waiting and a minute later five motors were hunting, while four men beside the driver piled into each car, disappearing through little doors cut in the rear, immediately under the Maxims, which peeped out a few inches from the half-inch steel plating.

The sixth car stood motionless and a British captain hailed the lieutenant at my side.

"Here, lieutenant, you take the last car. Hatton is down with fever. You drive, don't you." And without waiting for the answer the captain crawled into his steel cage, slammed the door after him, and was off.

A command is a command, even though your superior rushes off to practically certain death immediately after the order is given; but here was a serious difficulty, which gave the correspondent his chance to be an unwilling and totally unrecognized hero.

RUSSIANS GIVE UP OF LEMER

Sentiment Sacrosanct to Forces of Operation

London, June 22—Evacuation of Lemberg by Russian forces is indicated to-day from Petrograd. It is stated that the Austrians have failed to penetrate lines north and south of the west of the city. It is admitted that a crisis in Galicia is at hand. Bourse Gazette is quoted as saying that the situation forces us to retaining Lemberg, the freedom of our possible we shall have timental sacrifice and Galician capital.

Rawa Ruska, according to official report, is in the hands of the Austrians as the Teutons are all fighting east of the vestment of Lemberg nearly complete that either must withdraw capital or leave their forces there to RAILWAY LINE The German General

RUSSIANS WILL GIVE UP CITY OF LEMBERG

Sentiment Sacrifice is Essential to Freedom of Operations.

London, June 22.—The impending Russian attack on Lemberg is indicated in despatches from Petrograd. Though it is stated that the Austro-Germans so far have failed to pierce the Russian front north and south of Grodek, the crisis in the great battle of Galicia is at hand. The reliable Baza Gazette is quoted in Petrograd despatches as saying:

"In view of the continued German reinforcements in Galicia, the Russian forces are to choose between retreating from Lemberg and preserving freedom of operations, it is probable we shall have to make a sentimental sacrifice and abandon this Galician capital."

Rawa Ruska, according to a Berlin official report, is the latest Russian position in Galicia to fall into the hands of the Austro-Germans and the Austro-Germans are reported to be fighting east of the town the intention of Lemberg must be so nearly complete that the Russians either must withdraw from the Galician capital or leave a portion of their forces there to be besieged.

RAILWAY LINE SEIZED

The German General von Macken-

sen is reported to have seized the railway connecting Rawa Ruska with Lemberg, thus cutting off the retreat northward of the Russians. According to the latest news from the Austrian headquarters, the Teutonic allies north of Lemberg have reached Zolkva about 18 miles from the city. On the west they are within nine miles of Lemberg, while on the south they have reached the Skemipek creek, where they are furiously attacking the Russian positions.

On the other hand it is admitted by Vienna that the Russians have not withdrawn from the Dniester River line, further to the south-east, and strong Russian attacks from the direction of Bessarabia are reported. Gen. Pflanzer's troops are declared to have repulsed these attacks in the region of Zale Szczyty, which is in Bessarabia, just over the Bukovina border.

The Bucharest correspondent of the Daily Mail, writing under yesterday's date, says that Russian counter attacks on the Eastern Bukovina frontier have driven the Austrians from the villages of Mahala, Raranczo, Toporowet, and Sadagora, 27 miles north of Czernowitz and that Austrian troops are surrendering daily to the Roumanian authorities along the frontier.

The German predicament, in question, he adds, is becoming serious.

Considerable wonder is expressed by the German military critics over the Austro-German advance of the last few days. They had expected the Russians to make a firm stand along the Grodek line. Instead, however, Grand Duke Nicholas, the commander-in-chief of the Russians, not only retired quickly from this position but evidently recognizing his danger, he ordered the withdrawal of the Russian forces from south of the Dniester River.

By day the Germans hurl on Russian trenches tons of iron, forcing the night the Russians return, shoot and bayonet the German infantry, and recover the trenches, only to repeat the same process on the succeeding day. There are intervals of real human battles in the green corn fields and on the banks of the swift flowing rivers, but in the main this is a battle between men and machines. The Russian army is not defeated. It has suffered losses, but it is whole and is steadily and successfully pursuing its task of swelling casualty lists of the German army, whatever sacrifices of territory this may involve. Lemberg is now threatened. The Germans are advancing by a series of violent paroxysms, succeeded by brief periods of exhaustion and recuperation. Their last paroxysm has brought them right up to the defenses of the Galician capital. From the northwest, west and southwest the German columns are advancing on Rawa, Ruska and Lemberg, on the high road between Jaworow and Lemberg, on the Grodek Lakes, and on the Sambor-Lemberg Railway to the south of the lakes.

Thousands of inhabitants of Lemberg are leaving the city. The sacrifice of Lemberg will be extremely painful to the Russians but the national spirit is now roused to a pitch of fierce determination, and in order to wear down and ultimately defeat the German will be prepared to make even a greater sacrifice than this.

SWELLING THE GERMAN LIST OF WOUNDED

Russian Army Has Performed a Great Task in a Grim Retreat.

London, June 22.—A despatch to the Daily Chronicle says: The battle in Galicia is an undying testimony to Russian heroism. For six weeks the Germans have been pressing with all their weight on the Russian armies. They poured upon them hundreds of thousands of every kind of shell. They have created an inferno in the country between the Carpathians and the Russian frontier, and with the bodies of thousands of their own men have paved the way for the advance of their batteries.

The Russians have stood against this unexampled fire, yielded ground inch by inch, destroying one after another of the enemy's units, and yet have been compelled to retire gradually from point to point under a blinding and deafening shower of German explosives.

By day the Germans hurl on Russian trenches tons of iron, forcing the night the Russians return, shoot and bayonet the German infantry, and recover the trenches, only to repeat the same process on the succeeding day. There are intervals of real human battles in the green corn fields and on the banks of the swift flowing rivers, but in the main this is a battle between men and machines. The Russian army is not defeated. Just as the Bowser had finished dinner the other evening an express wagon drove up with a parcel, and as it was brought in Mrs. Bowser looked at it and turned for an explanation. Mr. Bowser didn't give one until they got upstairs. Then he assumed a look of superior wisdom and began:

"Do you know the money value of the property annually destroyed by fire in the United States?"

"It must be quite large," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"It amounts to tens of millions of dollars, my dear woman. Not only that, but at least 1,000 lives are sacrificed to the fire fiend every year. Business is interrupted and ruined, homes made desolate, wives made widows and children made orphans by the devouring element. You should read up on the statistics. They will furnish you more food for reflection than a hundred novels."

"Have you posted yourself?" she asked, with a tartness to her tones.

"Certainly I have. You don't imagine I am talking through the top of my head, do you? It was my duty to post myself, and I know all about it. There were just 11,329 fires in the country last year, and the loss was exactly $128,282,747.29. The point I set out to make is that of these 11,329 fires 9,288 were due to carelessness."

"How carelessness?"

LITTLE CLARA REIS TELLS OF ZEPPELINS

Was Pupil in a Ramsgate School For Two Years, Now in New York.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

New York, June 22.—Miss Clara Reis, fifteen year old daughter of a New York manufacturer, told from the deck of the New York, of the American line yesterday how for months she watched Zeppelins sweep over her school in Ramsgate, in a trail of bombs and shells, on their voyages of destruction.

For two years she has been a pupil at Homecroft school, at Eastcliff, Ramsgate. She has seen Zeppelins drop their flaming bombs, with deadly effect and has seen the futile efforts of the land and sea craft guns to bring them down.

"My," she gasped, "it was exciting. We were chased out of bed almost every night by the hissing and rattling of the Zeppelins. I did there the whole two years. I'm mighty glad to get home, though, for now I can sleep a whole night through without expecting a bell."

Many of the Zeppelins flying over the different sections of England cross in the vicinity of Ramsgate, and for that reason there are many alarms sounded and the land and sea batteries open up on the long, grey envelopes of gas and whirring searchlights. Hundreds of tongues of light from the battleships off the harbor and from the towers on land spit the night and from all the heights there roar angry guns. And from the banks of the river, the aeroplanes which make after them, the Zeppelins answer with their flaming bombs.

It was on May 17 that Miss Reis had the greatest and most exciting experience after which she and the other girls refused to go to bed until daybreak.

"It was two o'clock in the morning," she said, "when, my gracious, a racket. One by one the Zeppelins came and all the sirens blew and the teachers and maids called to us to get up quickly. Our clothes were arranged neatly for expedience, and we dressed quickly and then went in to help the little children. You know that school is for girls from one to fifty years. Some of the other girls and I went to the window and got behind curtains and peeked out. We saw up in the sky three Zeppelins going along with those bobbing cradles underneath and from all of them were coming a perfect stream of bombs. After they left the Zeppelin a little ways they burst into flames and lit up everything.

"The guns nearby and the guns from off the harbor fired and fired for two hours it seemed they stayed around, and we were hurried down stairs where we could be harmed. Finally at 4 o'clock, more sirens blew to assure everybody that everything was all over and we were told to go back to bed. The little girls went, but I just couldn't and some of us talked until morning."

The MASQUERADER

By Katherine Cecil Thurston, Author of "The Circle," Etc. Copyright, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

"When you went up to your rooms?" Loder strove hard to keep his control. "To my room?" Oh, yes, I forgot about that. I forgot about the night!" He hesitated, confusedly. "All I remember is the coming down to breakfast next morning—this morning—at 12 o'clock!"

Loder turned to the table and poured himself out some whisky. "Yes," he acquiesced in a very quiet voice. "At the word Chilcote rose from his seat. His disquietude was very evident. "Oh, there was breakfast on the table when I came downstairs—breakfast, with flowers and a horrible, dazzling glare of sun. It was then, Loder, as I stood and looked into the room, that the impossibility of it all came to me—that I knew I couldn't stand it—couldn't go on!"

Loder swallowed his whisky slowly. His sense of overpowering curiosity held him very still, but he made no effort to prompt his companion. Again Chilcote shifted his position agitatedly. "It had to be done," he said disjunctively. "I had to do it—then and there. The things were on the bureau—the pens and ink and telegraph forms. They tempted me."

Loder laid down his glass suddenly. An exclamation rose to his lips, but he checked it. At the slight sound of the tumbler touching the table Chilcote turned, but there was no expression on the other's face to frighten him. "They tempted me," he repeated hastily. "They seemed like magnets; they seemed to draw me toward them. I sat at the bureau staring at them for a long time. Then a terrible compulsion seized me—something you could never understand—and I caught up the nearest pen and wrote just what was in my mind. It wasn't a telegram, properly speaking. It was more a letter. I wanted you back, and I had to make myself plain. The writing of the message seemed to steady me; the mere forming of the words quieted my mind. I was almost cool when I got up from the bureau and pressed the bell!"

"The bell?" "Yes, I rang for a servant. I had to send the wire myself, so I had to get a cab." His voice rose to irritability. "I pressed the bell several times, but the thing had gone wrong; 'twouldn't work. At last I gave it up and went into the corridor to call some one." "Well?" In the intense suspense of the moment the word escaped Loder. "Oh, I went out of the room, but there at the door, before I could call anybody, I knocked up against that idiot Greening. He was looking for me—for you, rather—about some beastly work affair. I tried to explain that I wasn't in a state for business. I tried to shake him off, but he was worse than Blessington! At last, to be rid of the fellow, I went with him to the study!"

"But the telegram?" Loder began. Then again he checked himself. "Yes—yes—I understand," he added quietly. "I'm getting to the telegram! I wish you wouldn't jar me with sudden questions. I wasn't in the study more than a minute more than five or six minutes"—His voice became confused, the strain of the connected recital was telling upon him. With nervous haste he made a rush for the end of his story. "I wasn't more than seven or eight minutes in the study; then, as I came downstairs Crampham met me in the hall. He told me that Lillian Astrupp had called and wished to see me and that he had shown her into the morning room!"

"The morning room?" Loder suddenly stepped back from the table. "The morning room? With your telegram lying on the bureau?" His sudden speech and movement startled Chilcote. The blood rushed to his face, then died out, leaving it ashen. "Don't do that, Loder!" he cried. "I—I can't bear it!"

With an immense effort Loder controlled himself. "Sorry," he said. "Go on!" "I'm going on. I tell you I'm going on! I got a horrid shock when Crampham told me. Your story came clattering through my mind. I knew Lillian had come to see you. I knew there was going to be a scene!" "But the telegram! The telegram!" Chilcote paid no heed to the interruption. He was following his own train of ideas. "I knew she had come to see you. I knew there was going to be a scene. When I got to the morning room my hand was shaking so that I could scarcely turn the handle; then, as the door opened, I could have cried out with relief. Eve was there as well!"

"Eve?" "Yes, I don't think I was ever so glad to see her in my life." He laughed almost hysterically. "I was quite civil to her, and she was—quite sweet to me"—Again he laughed. Loder's lips tightened. "Yes, you said it saved the situation. Even if Lillian wanted to be nasty, she couldn't while Eve was there. We talked for about ten minutes. We were quite an amiable trio. Then Lillian told me why she'd called. She wanted me to make a fourth in a theater party at the Arcadian tonight, and I—I was so pleased and so relieved that I said yes!" He paused and laughed again unsteadily. "If his tense anxiety Loder ground his heel into the floor. "Go on!" he said fiercely. "Go on!" "Don't!" Chilcote exclaimed. "I'm going on—I'm going on." He passed his handkerchief across his lips. "We talked for ten minutes or so, and then Lillian left. I went with her to the hall door, but Crampham was there too—so I was still safe. She laughed and chatted and seemed in high spirits as we crossed the hall, and she was still smiling as she waved to me from her motor. But then, Loder—then, as I stood in the hall, it all came to me suddenly. I remembered that Lillian must have been alone in the morning room before Eve found her! I remembered the telegram! I ran back to the room, meaning to question Eve as to how long Lillian had been alone, but she had left the room. I ran to the bureau—but the telegram wasn't there!"

ESPECIALLY FOR WOMEN

"Fruit-a-lives" Now Known as Woman's Best Medicine

"FRUIT-A-LIVES," the famous fruit medicine is particularly well suited for the use of women, because of its mild and gentle action and its pleasant taste. In severe cases of Constipation, Indigestion, Bloating, Sick Headaches, Pain In The Back, Neuralgia, or a General Run-Down Constitution, "Fruit-a-lives" is the only medicine needed to correct such troubles and restore the sufferer to complete health. As a tonic, "Fruit-a-lives" is invaluable to purify and enrich the blood and build up strength and vigor. 50c. a box, or for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

the evidence of her eyes, but something at once subtler and more definite that prompted her recognition of him. She smiled. "Why should I expect you? On the contrary, I'm waiting to know why you're here?" "He was silent for an instant. Then he answered in his own light tone. "As far as that goes," he said, "let's make it my duty call—having dined with you I'm an old-fashioned person."

For a full second she surveyed him amusedly. Then at last she spoke. "My dear Jack"—she laid particular stress on the name—"I never imagined you so much of a bohemian. I should have thought bohemian would have been more the word."

Loder felt disconcerted and annoyed. Either, like himself, she was fishing for information or she was deliberately playing with him. In his perplexity he glanced across the room toward the fireplace. Lillian saw the look. "Won't you sit down?" she said, indicating the couch. "I promise not to make you smoke. I shan't even ask you to take off your gloves!"

Loder made no movement. His mind was unpleasantly upset. It was nearly a fortnight since he had seen Lillian, and in the interval her attitude had changed, and the change puzzled him. It might mean the philosophy of a woman who, knowing herself without adequate weapons, withdraws from a combat that has proved fruitless, or it might imply the merely catlike desire to toy with a certainty. He looked quickly at the delicate face, the green eyes somewhat obliquely set, the unreliable mouth, and instantly he inclined to the latter theory. The conviction that she possessed the telegram filled him suddenly, and with it came the desire to put his belief to the test—to know beyond question whether her smiling unconcern meant malice or mere entertainment.

"When you first came into the room," he said quietly, "you said, 'I thought it would be you.' Why did you say that?" Again she smiled—the smile that might be malicious or might be merely amused. "Oh," she answered at last. "I only meant that though I had been told Jack Chilcote wanted me, it wasn't Jack Chilcote I expected to see!"

After her statement there was a pause. Loder's position was difficult. Instinctively convinced that, strong in the possession of her proof, she was enjoying his tautened discomfort, he yet craved the actual evidence that should set his suspicions to rest. Acting upon the desire, he made a new beginning. "Do you know why I came?" he asked.

Lillian looked up innocently. "It's so hard to be certain of anything in this world," she said. "But one is always at liberty to guess." Again he was perplexed. Her attitude was not quite the attitude of one who controls the game, and yet—He looked at her with a puzzled scrutiny. Women for him had always spelled the incomprehensible. He was at his best, his strongest, his surest, in the presence of men. Feeling his disadvantage, yet determined to gain his end, he made a last attempt.

"How did you amuse yourself at Grosvenor square this morning before Eve came to you?" he asked. The effort was awkwardly blunt, but it was direct. Lillian was buttoning her glove. She did not raise her head as he spoke, but her fingers paused in their task. For a second she remained motionless; then she looked up slowly.

"Oh," she said sweetly, "so I was right in my guess? You did come to find out whether I sat in the morning room with my hands in my lap or wandered about in search of entertainment?" Loder colored with annoyance and apprehension. Every look, every tone, of Lillian's was distasteful to him. No more fully to him than did his own eyesight. But it was not the moment for personal antipathies; there were other interests than his own at stake. With new resolution he returned her glance.

"Then I must still ask my first question. Why did you say, 'I thought it would be you'?" His gaze was direct—so direct that it disconcerted her. She laughed a little uneasily. "Because I knew." "How did you know?" (To be continued.)
