

NEWS FROM NORFOLK COUNTY

SALTING VATS REPLACED BY COAL BUNKERS

Former Plant of Lea Company Undergoing Transformation.

OTHER SIMCOE NEWS.

From Our Own Correspondent. Simcoe, April 24.—Daniel Matthews, one of our oldest and most respected citizens, dropped dead in his home this morning. He had been up town last night as usual, and chatting with associates at the office of Dr. Burt, V.S. His late father had been Reeve of Windham and Warden of the County, and one of Norfolk's most prominent citizens in his day.

Simcoe, April 24.—The salting vats of the former Lea Co's plant at the air line station are to be changed into coal bunkers. A gang of eight men have been engaged in breaking out the concrete partitions and clearing the way for alterations which are to be completed within the next five or six weeks for the new owners have mapped out the work and have everything in readiness for the earliest strawberry importations before the local crop is ready.

One Hundred Women Wanted. Officers of the company say that when they get processing under way they will require one hundred women and girls, to handle the work, so that it is quite evident that Simcoe's need for a kindergarten and play school is much more urgent than any present organization or expenditures for athletics for men and boys.

Last winter a few ardent advocates of amateur fruit canning, got terribly worked up because the Simcoe Women's Institute would not buy a brass kettle at once and get ready to take care of surplus fruit. If any fruit in this vicinity goes to waste this year will not be for want of the machinery to do the processing. It will be for lack of pickers to gather the crop. And the level headed women of the Institute who insisted on turning attention to this phase of the work are already vindicated.

Only women can prepare the fruit for the process. They may expect our mid-day golfers to do the heroic act and turn nurse and supervisor of children's games in the parks while the mothers work. The children must not be neglected. The sooner that we really get to understand that there is a real war on the better. Let us remember that potatoes, beans and corn are at least quite as essential as fruit.

We are given to understand that the St. Williams plant will not be entirely vacated at once, but that as it may, there is quite evidently going to be no lack of employment in Simcoe for the next six or eight months.

At Last Fairly Passable. To-day, for the first time since the snow left, has there been tolerably fair going for a funeral procession to Oakwood Cemetery. The roadway east of the Bonner Terre subdivision is a contemptible conglomeration of sharp stones, unsuitable for motor or horse traffic. That through the subdivision is doggy towards the north end. Yesterday the corporation teams worked on what the L. E. and N. was allowed to give us for the former well gravelled Sherman street. Perhaps the board of directors of Greenwood Cemetery could prevail upon Mr. S. McPherson, superintendent of this corner of Woodhouse township, to have the township portion of the approaches put in better condition.

Good Citizens Leaving Town. Mr. and Mrs. S. Alward were last night tendered a farewell party by a number of their many friends, on the eve of their departure for Detroit, where one of the boys now resides. Mr. and Mrs. Alward take with them the best wishes of a host of friends.

Men Still Reporting. Men of Class A, who were placed in Category D by the previous tribunal boards, are reporting from here to Hamilton as summoned. Several on examination have been classed A2.

Unnecessary Irritation. A deaf mute resident in Windham who was called last fall to report, and who being quite uninformed of the purpose of the procedure, became despondent and strayed from home. He was located half way to Hamilton and brought back. He has just been summoned again, and is, of course, still a deaf mute. His father, fearing results similar to those experienced last fall, left his seedling yesterday and came to town for assistance and advice. He had not informed his son of the summons. Col. Alkon informed us today that headquarters is still ignorant of the facts as the exemption granted read, "Allowed till his physical condition is finally determined."

Odd Ends of News. Ab. Neilson, of Walsh, is reported on the way to recovery from his recent severe attack of pneumonia. Charles Burt, of Walsh, has just undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Domination Cannery has cleared off a portion of their property adjoining the G.T.R. tracks at the E. D. and Woodstock depots, and have constructed an open coal crib. Y.M.C.A. lectures announced for to-day, have been cancelled owing to the illness of the lecturer, we have been told. Later reports on the fall wheat outlook place the crop at not more than forty percent, of a fairly good yield throughout the county. Some

All is over but the reading of the papers in answer to the tests at the high school for those who desire to take the farm work exemption from final departmental examinations. If all who wrote are successful, there will doubtless by a present general exodus to the land and a very small remnant remaining in school. And if not there are going to be some sorely disappointed for the writing for granted that they were proficient and quit school.

Rippling Rhymes

HOME CHORES.

Of course you'll list to every yarn that speaks of siege and battle, but don't forget to paint the barn and feed the hogs and cattle. Anon you'll pause to criticize the latest war manoeuvre, but don't forget to swat the flies and mind the rules of Hoover. We mustn't overlook the chores that keep the pulleys turning, because a distant cannon roars, and battlefires are burning. With the boys will gladness jump when the Prussian strength seems waning, but don't forget to prime the pump and carry in some kindling. We have to keep things moving on in times of stress and panic, just as they moved before the dawn of war, fare most titanic. Our sacred bulwarks we betray if we stand idly yawning, instead of raising greens and hay, and corn for future popping. Oh, come, let's plant our Burpee bank peas, and hoe the fragrant lettuce, then talk of scraps across the seas and gains that they will net us. Come, let us prune the hardy squash, remove the weeds and boulders, then wade around in gore, and wash up our waists and shoulders. We have to feed the allied hosts, and stomp Bill's submariner, so let us quit the hitching posts on which we have been leaning.

Pen Picture of Future King of England

Clean, Wholesome, Natural Specimen of English Youth—Specialized Training Has Given Him Wide Experience

On February 20th the Prince of Wales took his seat in the House of Lords for the first time. On that occasion Mr. Sydney Brooks contributed to the London Daily Mail a full sketch of our future King. He looks you straight in the face as a man should, a clear, frank, steady gaze.

That is the first thing one notices in the Prince of Wales, and the impression it makes is altogether in his favor. He has, too, an honest, open face and the freshness of expression are the sure tokens of character; one goes half a century, before he has hardly spoken, that here is a clean, wholesome, natural specimen of English youth.

Ask the men who have come across him and they will say the same thing. "A good sort," "a bit of all right," "I like him." It is the obvious and therefore the universal judgment.

The Prince looks younger than his years, and probably always will, since only it shows, too, in certain initial hesitation of manner, a diffidence, an uncertainty that wears off after the first few moments and disappears altogether when a subject is broached that really interests him.

Unusual Range of Experience. Take a boy of naturally modest disposition, educate him carefully and even strictly, remove him from the rough, bracing competitions of life, and you can expect him to find his feet all at once. He develops late, and if the Prince strikes one as knowing less of life, than most fellows of twenty-three, he also strikes one as wholly and delightfully free from "side" affectation, and every sort of repellent precocity and pretence. When the foundations are sound it does not matter how long it takes to build on them, and the Prince is a completed character, and a prince with the right instincts and the sound, many tastes that this Prince has been to undergo a better stand him and the country in better stead in some way I should judge than in any other that his age.

Osborne, Darlington, Oxford, Paris three and a half years in the very thick of the war and the specialized intensive training that one in his position has to undergo have given him an unusual range of experience. My impression, too, is that he picks things up easily and stores them in a memory of royal retentiveness. I have heard him talk of the war, of Italy's part in it, of its possible after-effects with an uncommon degree of insight and good sense.

Another Edward VII. And what he said seemed to be his own, the fruit of his own observations and reflections. My guess is

CANADIANS GIVE ENEMY NO REST

Infantry Raids, Artillery Fire and Gas Attacks Harass the Hun.

(By W. A. Willison, Canadian Press Correspondent) Canadian Army Headquarters, April 23.—Raids in no less than seven places, gassed with thousands of lacrymatory and lethal shells, harassed by special artillery shells, and rifle and machine gun sniping, and trench mortar fire hampered by trench mortars, the enemy for the past twelve hours has had a lively time at the hands of the Canadians. From dusk until dawn the whole sector has been lively north and south of Lens. The ceaseless tumble of our heavies who are neutralizing hostile batteries by calculated and continuous gas shellings has been accompanied by the charge of our field artillery carrying out a particularly harassing program. Periodically our artillery fire has reached a barrage intensity in support of raiding parties. Recently the Boche lines have been lit up with flares, betraying the nervousness which has been produced among the enemy by such activity as he has not known on his front for weeks. The enemy has been forced to fight his guns underground, and gas clouds and gas masks, he has betrayed the effect of our tactics by the diminishing volume of his fire, but he has made answer to our effect, beyond discomfort, was slight. The weight of evidence gathered from enemy sources gives every ground for belief that it must be far otherwise with the Boche. His gas is not so effectual and his gas masks are nothing like as good as ours.

Of the batteries bombarded by our gunners during the past 24 hours many will not be heard from for some time. Continuous forcible feeding for such a protracted period on lethal and tear gas, mixed with high explosives has proved too successful before to doubt its destructive value now. Unable to secure rubber to give the masks that close fit which is essential for full protection, the Germans' protective measures fall short of our own and the enemy gunners must have suffered heavily under our bombardment, for we used nearly six thousand shells against some thirty lateral positions. Our 4.5 howitzers secured six direct hits on concrete shelters in the Avion district.

In some instances in our raids, which were all supported by our artillery, our men were unable to locate the enemy. In others sharp fighting developed, particularly in one case where protracted hand-to-hand fighting took place. So close was the struggle that we were unable to take many prisoners. Encountering gas in raiding operations, one of our patrols, consisting of one officer and ten other ranks, donned masks, and proceeded into the enemy trenches until they encountered a hostile party of fifty. The fight, ensued with bombs and rifles. Early in the morning another one-hour battle occurred between patrols under cover of a smoke barrage from trench mortars. Our men entered the enemy's line, and killed two, and wounded one and also secured valuable information. With fair weather succeeding the cold, dark days of last week, our army was busy. With reckless disregard for the regular machine gun or rifle-bullet barrage, a patrol of four of our machines flew up and down the enemy trenches for no less than fifteen minutes at an altitude of from 50 to 100 yards, aiming machine guns into the enemy front line. Like work was carried out in other parts of the line and at midnight one of our planes bombed the hostile firing trenches.

THE MAN WHO WINS. Some men seem to have all the luck. If there are any good things going these men seem to get them. They make other people do their will—they are leaders. If they are business men they are successful; if they are workmen they get the foreman's job. They have the power of influencing people. The same thing is true of women. Some have the charm that makes men seek them out; others are always neglected. But this is not luck. It is due to a personal gift—vitality. Men and women of this sort are never weak, nervous, or ill. They may not be big, but they are full of life and energy. The whole thing is a matter of good blood, good nerves and good health. Everyone would wish to be like this and the qualities that make for vitality and energy are purely a matter of health. By building up the blood and nerves, and the nervous system, and the muscles of the back, stopping shoulders, headaches and the ineffectual sort of presence which really comes from weakness can all be got rid of. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many, weak, tired men, vigorous and healthy, and many pale, dejected girls and women plump, rosy and attractive by improving their blood and toning up their nerves. If you are weak, ailing, low-spirited or unhealthy, begin to cure yourself to-day by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 25 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How Much Do Your Clothes Cost? The clothes are the answer to that question, not the price. If you figure cost by the month or year, you'll find that a suit of all-wool cloth, well-tailored and designed, gives more wear and in the end costs less than one that doesn't last long or look right. PROPAGANDA IS SPREAD THROUGH MUSICAL BOOKS

The Germans have found a new method for making propaganda for themselves in neutral and even in Allied countries, says the N. Y. Tribune. This new propaganda has assumed the form of music text-books.

THE SITUATION.

The daring raid made by British naval forces on Ostend and Zeebrugge will rank as one of the most heroic features of the present war. Half a dozen obsolete cruisers, filled with cement, were successfully sunk at channel points for the blocking of enemy destroyers and submarines and the entrance to the Bruges Canal is believed to have been closed. The positions affected have long been a central distributing base for the U-boats. The story of the British cruiser which took the leading part in the operations reads like an epic and will take rank with the previous memorable exploit by the age long heroes of John Bull's navy, brilliant though that record has been. Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, in relating to the members of the Commons the brilliant exploit made mention of the fact that the officer who developed the operation was killed. His name and his well-thought-out purpose will, however, be emblazoned among the long list of heroes who have made the grand old Empire what it is to-day.

Field Marshal Haig reports that since March 21st one hundred and two enemy divisions (1,224,000 men) have been employed on the Western front against the British army. The figures tell in eloquent terms of the tremendous pressure which the British forces have been withstanding.

The Hun is commencing to increase their demands upon the Dutch and now asked leave to send war material through Holland. "Permission" is the manner in which the request is couched, but it doesn't take the seventh son of a seventh son to prophesy what will happen if they don't get it.

Haig's men have been securing the advantage in outpost fighting north of Albert, and have improved their lines somewhat.

IRELAND AND THE WAR.

The Home Rule movement for Ireland has received a great deal of backing in the United States, both in money and influence, and our neighbors for the most part still continue to think that the Emerald Isle should have its own parliament. This however, has not prevented frank criticism with regard to Ireland objecting to a levy on her man power in this time of crisis, and on behalf of a cause whose triumph means just as much to them as to all the rest of us. At a recent meeting in Chattanooga three hundred men of Irish birth or descent passed a resolution on the subject which concluded as follows:

Resolved, That we deeply regret and deplore this attitude on the part of some of our kinsmen across the water and sincerely hope that through the wise counsels of Ireland's level-headed statesmen and the natural loyalty of the people, they may be led to see the error of their way and to lend us their much-needed aid.

"The people of this country have never faltered in their allegiance to the cause of home rule for Ireland, and we are more than ever convinced that the very principle for which we are now engaged in this war entitles Ireland to this right, and if the people of Ireland join in this great struggle for human rights no power on earth could prevent Irish home rule. But we can see no reason why any Irishman should fail to do his moral duty at this time or engage in any obstruction to the cause of the Allies, and we condemn as disloyal to the cause of human freedom any man or set of men who fails to give the cause of the Allies prompt and unqualified support at this time."

A Chicago paper in referring to the same matter says: "To-day the American people are vastly concerned with another battle—one that threatens, not the prejudices and the grudges of Irish Catholics and Protestants, but the stability of civilization and the liberties of the world. Just at present Home Rule for Ireland is swallowed up in the more important question of Potsdam Dictatorship for the Free Nations. Millions of us have had to forget momentarily our minor animosities in order to do our duty by the holy and paramount principles of Democracy. Ireland must do the same. We are beginning to watch for the casualty lists from France; pretty soon, instead of a column of so daily, they will come by the page, and hundreds of fresides will be received overnight. We shall be in no mood then to think kindly of the 200,000 lusty young slackers in Ireland."

Irishmen in the States have sensed the issue and have enthusiastically donned the khaki on behalf of the common cause. Their desire for Home Rule has not been lessened by that, on the contrary they fully realize that neither Home Rule nor anything else would be theirs if the Hun should get the upper hand. A resolute Ireland under the domination of the Hohenzollern outfit would make previous deeds of the "Bloody Sassenach" and many of them in former times have been altogether indefensible—seem like the most vertebrae child's play.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The cold weather still continues to hang on with the tenacity of a book agent.

It is announced that a successor has been appointed to Mr. O'Connor as Cost of Living Controller. The name is not given, but he will have to be a hummer to equal his predecessor. If petty inside office disturbances are allowed to remain on top the office had better be abolished altogether.

Captured Germans report that the present rations of the Hun soldiers are insufficient for the needs of fighting men and that there is an epidemic of trench feet in the ranks. What have they to kick about? Aren't the six sons of the Kaiser still intact?

The new man and woman-power registration act evidently means business, something which the old one most emphatically didn't.

The British navy still continues to be every bit of all right.

Detroit Free Press: The open announcement by the Sinn Fein and by at least a part of the clericals that they consider Germany their ally, must kill any sympathy for the cause of the Irish anti-conscriptionists which may have been lingering in America. It makes the announcement from Dublin that the Sinn Fein is about to issue an appeal to the world, and to the United States in particular, a piece of amazing effrontery. Why should open and avowed friends of the Kaiser appeal to the United States or undertake to send a delegation to Washington. We are not consorting with adherents of our enemy and of the arch-enemy of decency and freedom. Nor can we receive deputations from factions in rebellion against a close ally. By their avowal of allegiance to Berlin, the Sinn Feiners and their friends have read themselves out of court. Let them make their pleas to Wilhelm.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS AT GRACE CHURCH
 Old School Wing Will Be Torn Down. And New Building and Parish Hall Erected

Some very important improvements are about to be undertaken in connection with Grace Church. The old school house is to be torn down and a modern building erected in its stead, in addition to a parish house. The latter will contain accommodation for the Women's Auxiliary, the A.Y.P.A., Women's Guild, choir and so on. Members of the congregation have made many generous contributions running into five figures in more than one instance. The final outlay will be in the neighborhood of $35,000.

Fruit Growers Are Optimistic

If every branch of the farming industry is being undertaken this year with as much enthusiasm and hopefulness as is fruit growing by the Niagara district men, production is pretty sure of receiving the much-desired boost. The peach growers, who form the majority of the orchardists in that part of the country, will not hear of any such trouble as frozen roots or unpromising buds, even though this winter their trees were subjected to the lowest temperatures that has developed in the Niagara belt for years, namely, 50 degrees below zero. The claim that this hard freeze did not endanger the buds is established on the fact that humidity was lacking when it occurred. Prof. McCubbin, of St. Catharines, has found plenty of live fruit buds to satisfy him that the prospect for a fair show of blossom is a good one, and the growers are satisfied to accept his decision, backed by their own investigations.

Another point in favor of the probability of a good season for the fruit growers is the promise of a supply of the provincial Government in the spring seasons that exists in the minds of the labor section of the Organization of Resources Committee. Further, the fruit growers are well satisfied that their line of endeavor is calculated to produce for the benefit of the public and it is their intention to institute a campaign of advertising of their product so that distribution will be assured. A resolution to ask the co-operation of the provincial Government in this proposed advertising campaign was passed at the Niagara Fruit Growers' convention.

One measure, no doubt proposed with the idea of helping agricultural production, failed to secure the best of results. It was the suggestion of the Niagara district growers at their recent convention. Several members spoke in opposition to the daylight saving scheme, using the following arguments: First, the starting of the working day an hour earlier by the sun would mean a waste of time to fruit growers as the work of cultivating in certain growing crops and the harvesting of fruits cannot be commenced until sunrise in the day as the night dew is in the foliage; second, quitting work an hour earlier at night with the intention of starting an hour earlier the next morning would mean the loss of securing a good night's rest because the average farmhouse is too warm for sleeping in until some considerable time after sundown; third, with other industries closing an hour earlier than at present, the growers would be forced to discontinue their work of harvesting an hour before otherwise necessary so as to be able to make shipments to the market in the world outside their fruit farms.

No doubt a fruit grower, or other farmer could, and would, work from sunrise to sunset, no matter what the official hours might be; but a hired man working on a ten-hour-a-day basis, as most do in the fruit district, would want to regulate his starting and quitting hours to accord with those of the inhabitants of the village or village so as to be able to share his free time with his friends and neighbors. Of course, arrangements can be made for overtime work, but the idea of paying for overtime at hour times does not appeal to the fruit grower.

The fruit growers are agreed among themselves with regard to every matter of importance to their industry with the exception of the standardization of fruit packages. Yet, even in this matter, they seem agreed to a certain extent, namely, that each grower is opposed to standardization if it entails a change from his own particular style of package or that used in his particular district. For the being decided on a package for fruits that might be considered similar by the consumer, for example, peaches, plums, apples, etc., the growers cannot even decide on a standard package for peaches, some preferring a deep 1-quart tin, others a shallow ditto, and yet others a deep 9-quart. To the consumer and, probably to the dealer in fruit, the standardization of packages looks feasible and it is to be hoped that the arrangement can be brought about with reasonable satisfaction to all the growers.

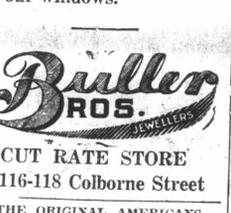

A Slight Risk.
 A British photographer writes to the Photo-Era that a camera is a dangerous bit of mechanism to toy with just now. He says that the captain of an English cargo-boat told him his ship met with an accident on its last voyage to Canada. Having a pocket kodak, he planned to go ashore and snapshotted the damaged how as a souvenir. He was a stowaway on board and on being pressed for a reason, said, "Well, you see, the harbor guards are young men with new rifles, and if they see you bobbing about with a camera you might get a bullet through you!"

National Games.
 One of the odd features about the Canadian national games is that they are so closely associated with certain towns. Kitchener, which won the Ontario Hockey Association championship this year, has always been prominent in this sport and won a Canada trophy twelve years ago for defeating Toronto Argonauts by a score of 5 to 4. Kingston is another town which is closely associated with the game of winter sports, just as the names of St. Catharines, Brantford, Orangeville and Cornwall, all great lacrosse towns, suggest to everybody the national summer game of the Dominion.

The first tank built in the United States is now ready for transport overseas. It is several sizes larger than any of the British tanks.

 THE ORIGINAL AMERICANS.

Facts About the Strong Women of the North.
 The original Americans of the far north are brown instead of red and are not Indians. Their name Eskimos—which they dislike—means "eaters of raw fish." But they haven't been driven yet to change their name by cooking the fish.

The Eskimo woman could easily put forth a good excuse for not cooking the food her family eats because she has so many other things to do.

After she has helped build the igloo, she takes her place beside her husband in fishing. This means going out and chopping a hole in the frozen ocean and keeping it open by swishing around a reindeer horn die with one hand while holding a line baited with red flannel with the other.

When the family wants a change of diet or some new clothes, she goes out to help hunt seal, walrus, whales, deer and caribou.

She may be physically stronger than her modern American sisters, but she has the same love of adornment and wears over her fur parka or coat a bright calico protecting patchwork borders.

When she gets the polar bear hunt, however, she must wear white—white drill trousers over the fur, and white snow shirts to match the landscape and the sky.

But the Eskimo woman's chief adornments are half-chewed-down teeth which she gains in this fashion: The Eskimo has come in from a day's hunt and scratched through the various doorways of her igloo, each made smaller than the one outside to keep out as much cold air as possible and put the baby and any stray orphans that may have crept into the house as a home, to bed on the shelf that makes the igloo's upstairs, she hangs out by the light of the seal oil lamp and keeps it from the soles turn back over the foot. The top can be sewed on. The men and women chew, the further down their teeth are worn and the more beautiful they become in the sight of Eskimo society.

There is no suffrage question among the Eskimo—the women own the igloo with the man and has equal rights in the council meetings.

And there are no vestigial questions about property rights to solve, because besides the igloo and personal belongings there is no property. The Eskimo cannot conceive of land as belonging to any one person. When told how it is held as private property in other parts of Canada they showed great surprise, and one old man asked if the white men also divided the oceans in the same way.

Isolation of French-Canadians.
 The phenomenon of all most striking, if not repeated, is that the French-Canadian, whether the almost illiterate peasant or the man of education, has no passionate attachment for France and no burning fervor for Canada. By choice he has sought out and kept his English-speaking neighbors and withdrawn from spiritual contact with them. If he has any pride it is a stubborn pride in not speaking English and in encouraging his children to scorn the English, who hearing only French spoken in the home, the school and the church, have naturally little inclination and less opportunity to learn any other language. If France were to the French-Canadian were home, as England was to the Puritan, driven into exile but still united to the land of his birth by the ties of sentiment, one could understand why the French-Canadian keeps aloof from the English; or if French-Canadians were only biding their time when from Labrador to British Columbia they were to be dominated by the sons of France. Latin culture is to take the place of Saxon, and in the western hemisphere is to be planted.

France that shall redound to the glory of the French-Canadian would be costly comprehensible. But there is no evidence that any such thought goes through his mind. He accepts the French flag and British rule, but he remains French-Canadian. Instead of a Canadian of Canada, he is an American of America.

Margaret Garrett's Husband
 By JANE PHELPS

A PECULIAR KIND OF JEALOUSY
 CHAPTER XXXVII.
 "What do you call it then?" Bob asked anent my opinion that he should not spend his time with Miss Warren.

"I am jealous, Bob," I answered matter. "But I am not jealous of any woman. Why that never has entered my head. I am jealous of the time you give to others; the interest you bestow on them which belongs to me and to your home. I hope that you love me too well ever to belittle me and yourself by making me jealous of any single person."

"It was almost inconceivable that he ever could do anything like that!" I never shall, Margaret. But there is no reason for you to be jealous of the time I give my friends. You could join us if you would."

"We won't discuss that, I have decided that I do not care to be with them. If you can enjoy yourself knowing I am sitting home alone, I will be glad to have you. I couldn't have a good time anywhere in the world if you were not with me." I told him, then wound up with my usual "you love me don't you, Bob: I love you so dearly, and as usual my arms were around his neck."

That he would ever become surfeited with my love or the express of it rather, I never imagined. A woman never tires of extravagant terms when used to express a man's love for her; and I figured that because I longed to hear a dozen times a day that Bob loved me, he must also long to know that I loved him as many times as I chose to tell him.

Often, about this time, Bob would decline invitations and remain at home with me. But I could see that he did not do it willfully; and un- fortunately I did not keep my knowledge to myself. I would accuse him of wanting to go; and he would either evade my questions about the matter, or make some reply like this:

"Why not forget why I remained and be contented? You have had your way, and yet you are not pleased."

"But I want your thoughts as well as you," I would answer. "I want you to talk to me about the things in which I am interested."

But though he did as I requested, I felt an unwillingness to give up the evening to me; and never stopped talking about duty—duty as I saw it.

Christmas came and passed. We spent it with mother and father. Bob was delighted with his smoking jacket.

"No matter what one paid they couldn't get so handsome a one," he told me, as he kissed me and slipped a lovely bracelet over my hand. Father and mother too were pleased with what I had made them, that it spurred me to make other things for them and myself.

I was not very well after Christmas and Bob left me but seldom. I did not lay his remaining at home to help for an hour in the evening. But now he never asked them to dinner. I tried to make them welcome for his sake when they did come, and would make them a little chat-ting dish supper. But I could not control my manner to any great extent, and I now realize that I didn't really try. They knew I did not want them, and seldom remained long.

In April my baby boy was born. These last months Bob had been so tender, so devoted to me that not a cloud darkened my horizon. He had learned that his happiness lay in doing his duty by me. I thought as I hugged my baby boy close to me. Never again would I have to coax him to remain with me, to give up those Bohemian friends I so objected to his spending his time with—time that belonged to me.

Bob was very busy now in his business. He had become interested also in some sort of manufacturing which occasionally took him to Chicago. I dreaded his absence; but business was business, as father was fond of saying, so I made very little complaint about these western trips.

"When baby is old enough we'll go with you," I had said one day. "All right!" Bob had returned laughingly. "Nice lot of business I'll do however with a woman and a kid along."

Bob insisted that we should make plans to stay down on Long Island all summer. I was still far from strong; and it would be better for the baby. Father and mother insisted that we stay with them. I was inclined to object; I thought I would have Bob more to myself if we had a small cottage or bungalow of our own, until mother said,

"If you are with us Margaret, you will be free to come and go with Bob. He told me he would often be obliged to remain in town, and you could sometimes run up and stay with him. I would gladly keep the baby."

That decided me. So the first of June we moved down to mother's for the summer. I took Della and we closed the apartment.

"I'll either stay with Kendall, or at the club," Bob had said as we discussed the matter. I had wanted to leave the apartment open, and have the laundress keep it clean and comfortable.

"But I'm coming up when you stay over night!" I exclaimed.

"When you do we'll stay at a hotel. But I imagine you won't care to do much coming in town with that youngster down on the island."

I was, I was going to say, just as devoted to my baby as I was to Bob. But I wasn't. I loved him dearly; but as much as any mother loves her baby. But he never could make me feel less devoted to Bob, never make me willing to relax one iota of my desire for his presence.

(Thursday)—It is a great thing to have faith.

NOTABLE ARTISTIC SUCCESS BY BRANTFORD ORATORIO SOCIETY

"The Banner of St. George" Most Appropriately Given on St. George's Day—Excellent Assisting Artists Assisted in a Thoroughly Enjoyable Evening

The driving rain storm could not dampen the ardor of those who anticipated a rich musical treat upon the occasion of the presentation of "The Banner of St. George" by the Brantford Oratorio Society, and those in attendance were thoroughly well repaid for braving the elements. Victoria Hall contained a large audience and the choir and assisting artists were alike in excellent form. Sir Edward Elgar most fittingly occupies the leading place among English composers and "The Banner of St. George" is one of the most striking of his productions. In breadth of treatment, harmonic results and contrasting effects it is a masterpiece. Under the able baton of Mr. J. T. Schofield a delightful interpretation was given. The soloists and altoists were present in fine force and the tenors and basses although not so strong numerically—the war has made great inroads upon male vocalists—were nevertheless of marked efficiency. The fortissimo passages were rendered with great, although not too boisterous vigor, while the pianissimo and shading effects were most artistic. Throughout, time and tone were both most noticeable. Perhaps the opening scene was the best rendered, but the performance throughout reached a very high plane indeed and the epilogue was a tour de force. It comes in the misty ages. "The Banner of England's might. The blood-red cross of the brave St. George. That burns on a field of white. It speaks of the deathless heroes On fame's bright page enrolled. And bids great England ne'er forget The glorious deeds of old. O'er many a cloud of battle. The banner has floated wide. It shows like a star o'er the valiant hearts. That dashed the Armada's pride. For ever amid the thunders. The sailor could do or die. While tongues of flame leaped forth below. And the flag of St. George was high. O'er many a flag beloved. But ever give strength to the right. And hope to the hearts oppressed; It says through the passing ages 'Be brave, if your cause be right. Like the soldier-saint whose cross of red Still burns on your banner white. Great race, whose Empire of splendour. Has dazzled a wondering world. May the flag that floats o'er the wide domains Be long to all winds unfurled. Three crosses in concord blended The banner of Britain's might But the central gem of the ensign Is the cross of the dauntless knight!" In the second part of the program the choir was also heard to splendid advantage in "Crossing the Bar," Tennyson's memorable poem set to most alluring and appropriate music by Mr. Schofield and "Unfold Ye Portals" in memory of Canada's fallen soldiers Gounod's triumphant production. They opened the second part with brilliant renderings of the Belgian national song and the French national anthem. "Le Marseillaise" is easily the finest outpouring of the kind in existence and the patriotism and the fervor of it were given full effect. Miss Gladys Jones, the Welsh artist, took the solo part in the Elgar production and later rendered a number of songs. She is the possessor of a true soprano voice of great range and flexibility and charmed everyone by her daintiness of style and interpretation. Nothing finer has ever been heard in Brantford than her rendering from "Madame Butterfly" by Puccini, and her other numbers were also most satisfying, not forgetting a little gem by Mr. Schofield. Her last group of songs consisted of Welsh airs, closing with the Welsh national anthem, during which the choristers paid the suitable compliments of standing. Miss Jones certainly proved her right to the many encomiums which proved the forerunners of her appearance here. Miss Helen Beatty Hunt, L.C.T.M., showed herself a violinist of far more than ordinary ability. She was heard in half a dozen numbers and her bowing and sonority of tone betokened true mastery of what is generally considered the most difficult and exacting of all instruments. Nothing finer than her rendering of the melody by Tchaikowski could have been imagined and her other numbers also manifested great interpretative powers and execution. Both she and Miss Jones had to respond to encores. Mr. Thomas Darwin was most efficient at the piano, as always. Conductor, choristers and assisting artists deserve to be heartily congratulated upon the presentation of a most memorable program. Brantford Oratorio Society. Municipal Kitchens Are a Success in Liverpool, England.

LONDON, April 22. — (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Liverpool, the second largest city in England, is leading the whole country in solving the food shortage problem. It has municipal kitchens which are models and work more efficiently than those in any other part of the kingdom. It sets every other city in the country an example by maintaining a municipal potato peeling plant and cooking the potatoes for the bakers to mix with their flour. Its latest enterprise is supplying householders with boiling water for cooking and washing purposes and thereby causing a great saving in fuel. Liverpool's city fathers are very proud of their efforts to make their

RAILWAY BILL CAUSED CLASH

Toronto Deputation Opposed Renewal of T. N. and W. Railway Charter.

LOBBYING CHARGED
Ottawa, April 23.—The contentious Toronto, Niagara and Western Railway Bill which extends the time for the construction of the lines of the company from Toronto to Hamilton and thence to a point on the Niagara boundary with a branch line to Port Colborne from St. Catharines, engaged the attention of the railway committee of the Commons to-day. Strong exception was taken to the renewal of the charter by the Toronto deputation, which included Controller McGuire and Alderman Ramsden.

Controller McGuire explained that this was a subsidiary C. N. R. company and Toronto objected to its being extended when a dollar had not been spent by the company. The objection would be withdrawn, he said, if it could be definitely stated that this line would become the property of the Dominion Government.

E. W. Nesbitt suggested that the committee should hear the views of the minister of railways. Hon. J. R. Reid, said that although the government owns the C. N. R. its charter would be retained and it would be necessary to have lapsed charters belonging to the company renewed. This company, he said, had spent over $80,000 on surveys and $1,437,721 on right of way. The public, he said, would be taking no risk in extending C.N.R. charters because the system is owned by the government. The system, he said, was under the control of the government and parliament. "Anything that is done on the C.N.R. in the future," he said, "will be done by the government and the people of Ontario are safe in the hands of government."

Repeating to Captain Tom Wallace, the minister stated that the C.N.R. arbitration proceedings would be completed within the next six weeks when the C. N. R. will be taken over and a new board of directors appointed. Controller McGuire said that Toronto would be satisfied if an assurance were given that this line is owned by the C.N.R. Would the solicitor of the C. N. R. give an assurance to this effect? Mr. G. Rull, C.N.R. counsel, assured the committee that the C.N.R. owns all the stock of the Toronto, Niagara and Western Railway. W. F. Cookshutt, Bassettville, emphatically disputed a claim advanced by Controller McGuire that the proposed line would parallel the Hydro Radials system. H. B. Morphy, in whose name the bill stands, said that the road was necessary. "Toronto," he said, "had been buoyed up with the enthusiasm of malice against somebody. Toronto has been asleep in the matter of railways and there was no reason why the rest of Canada should go to sleep."

GIRLS SEWING AEROPLANE INGS
This picture is from a photo taken in an English factory during the occasion of a visit of inspection by a number of newspaper men at the invitation of the Government

H. C. Hoeken thought some line should be built between Toronto and the Niagara boundary. He suggested a conference between the federal, provincial and Hydro authorities and expressed the view that Toronto would be pretty well satisfied with the statement that the charter would become the property of the Dominion Government. Chairman Armstrong read a telegram from Mayor Church of Toronto, summarizing the objections of the city to a renewal of the charter. Controller Wright of Hamilton said that Hamilton was very much interested in the bill because of the C.N.R.'s request for right of way through the city. Mr. Stewart: "Is it not the location of the line you are opposed to?" Mr. Wright: "Yes." Mr. Morphy: "That is controlled by the Railway Board." Mr. Wright: "Yes, but Hamilton is opposed to the renewal of the charter if the C.N.R. right of way is used." Mr. Stewart repeated that he had been assured by the Hamilton deputation that they would not oppose the bill if the road is to be the property of the Government. Mr. Donald Sutherland said it was important to the people of Western Ontario that this road should be built by the Hydro-Electric Commission. The preamble of the bill was then adopted without a discussion and there was no discussion of the remaining clauses of the bill. H. B. Morphy, however, moved the adoption of a new clause declaring that the rights of the municipalities as defined in the bill of 1916 should be maintained. Dr. Reid said there was no doubt as to the right of the municipalities. They were fully protected by the former legislation. Mr. Morphy was satisfied and offered to withdraw his amendment. But Col. Currie thought the new clause should be added. He thought there was too much of a lobby in connection with the bill. Controller McGuire, having secured the right to speak again, referred to an "extensive lobby" before the committee, but was cut short by H. Stevens, who said no one should make such a statement unless he was prepared to prove it. Chairman Armstrong said Controller McGuire should make good his statement. The controller quoted Col. Currie as stating he had been lobbied twice. Col. Currie said it was no reflection on the members of the committee to say that they had been lobbied. Col. Currie said he would be satisfied if the Minister would promise to make the same statement in the House that he had made to the committee.

Dr. Reid said that he would do so. Mr. Morphy thought that the bill should not be passed until Col. Currie and Controller McGuire had withdrawn their statement to the effect that the committee had been lobbied and H. H. Stevens supported this view. A wild scene ensued. Col. Currie said he had intended no reflection on the members of the committee. "I accept the statement of Col. Currie. If he withdraws, I also do so," said Controller McGuire. "Be a man and apologize," shouted E. W. Nesbitt of North Oxford. "I am a man and I do not have to take any instructions from the member for North Oxford," Mr. Maguire retorted. "I think it is up to Mr. Maguire to withdraw his statement," said Chairman Armstrong. "I accepted the statement of Col. Currie. If he has withdrawn it, I certainly do so," said the controller. This satisfied the committee and the bill was reported.

ENGLAND PLANNING HOMES FOR HEROES
Will Give Returned Soldiers Opportunity to Aid in Food Production.
London, April 23.—(Associated Press)—A new plan to provide comfortable homes for discharged soldiers by enlisting country people to act as "country hosts" to the army has just been launched by the Marquis of Salgo, himself a former captain in the army, and Viscount Knutsford, long time and a notable enterpriser. They have formed the Country Host Institution which "hosts" are urged to join. The scheme has a two-fold object. It aims, not only at giving the broken soldiers a lift but also to qualify them for farming work, thus increasing the country's food supply. Briefly the plan requires the host to provide free lodging and board for the man and a good-sized garden or farm in which suitable, light outdoor work can be found for him. The men selected as guests shall be of good character, sober, not suffering from any serious ailments and able to look after themselves. An allowance of fifteen shillings a week will, if required, be paid direct to the farmer soldier in return for his labor.

CRIME ON INCREASE.
London, April 23.—(Associated Press)—Crime in England is now showing an upward tendency, after a remarkable and continued fall since the beginning of the war. The annual report of the British Constabulary attributes this to restriction of street lighting and shortage of police.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY PROGRAM

Manifesto of Rights of Humanity With Distinctive Moral Fervor.

IS NOT A TREATISE.

(By J. W. MacMillan in Journal of Commerce.)

One of the leading men in England said recently that there was more political knowledge and ability to be found in the Labor Party than in either of the existing Cabinet parties or in the existing Conservative Party. He can credit this statement when he reads the reconstruction programme which the Labor Party has recently issued. It is short, but it represents labor in Britain now represents the union between the workers by hand and by brain. It is from the practical common sense of the manual worker and the intellectual equipment of the brain worker, now in co-operation that this programme has come.

We Canadians must remember that it springs out of conditions which exist in Britain, and which are very unlike those in Canada. For instance, the proposals regarding the liquor traffic, while radical and even revolutionary in Britain are tame and partial compared with our methods of handling the question in Canada. It is the element of private profit which is eliminated, and that local option shall be permitted as to the granting or forbidding of licenses. How far this is short of prohibition. Again, the document gives a list of the industries which are now under government control. It includes the importation of wheat, wood, metals and other commodities, and the regulation of the shipping, woolen, leather, clothing, boot and shoe, milling, baking, butchering and other trades. We know that the regulation is of a thorough-going character. It amounts practically to administration. One of the proposals regarding prices and profits falls far short of the British regulation as the British handling of the consumption of alcohol does of ours. The most eager Canadian dare not hope that such a radical programme of reconstruction will be adopted in Canada. Nor need the most conservative Canadian fear it.

Nevertheless it shows us the current of the demand upon which democratic civilizations have been launched. What Britain does tomorrow we may do a generation hence. This is a prophetic programme which we shall do well to heed. Its elements are not partyistic nor subject to the limitations of climate and geography. It is broadly human, and deals with conditions of life which are common to western civilization. It is only time and the consistent stages of development, which distinguishes from appropriateness to Canada of its proposals from that of Britain. It may not indeed be a fitting document for discussion in our municipalities but it assuredly is fitting for our colleges, and for our students of statesmanship everywhere.

Class Legislation. It's time is Catholic. It's proposals are not class legislation, and much that issues from labor on the continent of Europe, it contains no such words as proletariat, class consciousness, hourgeois. Undoubtedly those whose ease and wealth are threatened that it is class legislation of the most pernicious sort. But the general sense of mankind will not agree with them. In a country where one-tenth of the population owns nine-tenths of the wealth, and where ninety per cent. of those who die leave no estate, it is too much to claim that the distribution of a wealth is fair.

Indeed, this Labor Programme comes at the question of the division of wealth from quite another angle. It insists on the rights of human life as paramount. It does not argue the vexed problems of rent, wages of superintendence, and profit. While it is anything but a treatise on political economy, it is a manifesto of the rights of humanity. And thus it possesses a moral fervor, even a religious passion, which marks it off at once from many similar programmes. It does not balance reasons. It appeals to no precedents. It asserts rather than argues. It is a proclamation of the essential rights of human life, and a claim as to the necessary first steps towards acknowledging that sanctity.

Of course, it is possible to allow that the proclamation is just and yet deny the necessity or wisdom of the programme outlined. One may agree that the laws of Britain should place life above property, and yet disagree with "the four pillars of the house," which labor proposes to erect as the national habitation. Leaving the separate examination of these four pillars to another time we may notice the governmental principle which is common to them all. It is democratic control. That is government not so much of the people or for the people, but by the people. It is the committing of the destinies of the British people into their own hands.

Disappointment. Lord Morley, a few years since, wrote pathetically upon the disappointments of very radicals in regard to this very matter. He told like himself had indulged at the time when the franchise was broadened to include the male workers of Britain. "Now we shall see," they had said. "No longer shall the landlord and the manufacturer hold the reins of political power. Now the workers are masters of the situation and prosperity." But they saw no such thing. They saw no labor government established. They saw rather a more sympathetic government, which had been more sympathetic towards labor, defeated by the very voters they had made, and the Conservatives given a long lease of power.

The explanation generally given for this disappointing consequence of the Reform Bills is that they afforded such a small amount of democratization that they proved ineffective. Political emancipation is something indeed, but it is needed economic emancipation to round it out, and deliver the mass of Britons from their troubles. The part of a man's life which is influenced by the state is small, while the part which is ruled by his employment is very large. If he continues underpaid, badly housed, and ill-educated, with all the doors of larger experience closed in his face, he does not know enough to use his vote properly. Well, the British Labor Program is a demand for economic liberation. And it claims, as a thing which cannot be disputed, that it must come by means of democratic control. The point at issue is absolute abolition of co-operation. So the four "pillars of the house" are so many ways of gaining and using this co-operation in the national work and wealth.

One is reminded of the days of Chartism, for ten years the laboring classes continued in a state of ferment, demanding the 'five points' of their Peoples' Charter as their rights. All but themselves were persuaded that to grant these outrageous demands would be the death of British trade and British power. Every political party turned a deaf ear to their petition. But what were these five points? Universal suffrage, vote by ballot, annual Parliaments, abolition of a property qualification for members of Parliament, and payment of members. All these have now been granted since then, without causing disaster or even serious change to the fortunes of British trade or power.

Now comes this new bill of rights in the hands of labor. It will be opposed without doubt. But there is nothing of the alarm and dread which the Charter caused in 1839. There is now a firm alliance between the manual workers and many of the most capable thinkers and leaders in the nation. The chance of the programme which is put forward today would be immensely greater for its being put into operation than the chance the Charter had. It is woven of the same material. It is kindled by the same enthusiasm. It is a demand for justice. The men of Britain eighty years ago claiming a fair share in the wealth of the nation. Today they are claiming a fair share in the wealth of the nation. Both these claims are logical corollaries of the doctrine of the essential sacredness of man. A man is of such preciousness that he must not be treated as a thing. Being what he is he has the right to live, to be free, to order his own goings, and to share at least up to the point of the wholesome living in the common wealth.

It is the last—the participation of everyone, good or bad, useful or useless, rich or poor—in the vital necessities of decent living which is the first pillar of the house. I may write on that in another article.

NAVIGATION OPEN.

By Courier Leased Wire
Cornwall, Ont., April 23.—The water was let into the Cornwall canal yesterday and navigation in this section of the St. Lawrence will be opened on Tuesday. As the Lachine canal will be unwatered that day navigation through to Montreal will not be in full swing before Sunday or Monday next. In the meantime, however, boats from Upper Lake ports will be able to go as far as the head of the Lachine canal.

FARMERETTES DON NOVEL COSTUMES.

Two of Toronto's young farmerettes have purchased their working outfit, and are now ready to begin their duties. Garbed in their novel attire right consists of a coat of khaki drill with riding breeches of the same material. High laced boots protect the legs from brambles. The suit on the left is a bright blue smock with white lacings. Bloomers are worn instead of breeches. A large cow breakfast that makes an effective sunshade.

"SEVEN DAYS' LEAVE"
Robert Campbell arranged for the presentation in The States and Canada of "Seven Days' Leave," the big London military comedy, now being staged in London. Initially presented there in December, 1916, the play has attracted a fourteenth month audience after a fourteen-month absence that has exceeded in popularity the receipts the most profitable of all London engagements for the period, not even excepting the sensational figure attracted by "Hen Hur" "Seven Days' Leave" will be the attraction at The Grand Opera House next Friday evening, April 26th, for a return engagement.

THE TERRIBLE TURK.
The old fighting blood got the best of Abdul the Turk, in a new Sennett Comedy.
Abdul is Mr. Sennett's athletic trainer. In his yesterday's Abdul was a fighter and once knocked out the champion Jack O'Brien.
One of the scenes in the Sennett comedy is a battle royal in which a number of gentlemen of color took part.
Just for a joke, they backed up Abdul and put him in to fight. Abdul felt the old single of the ring. When he started they could not stop him and he finished the scene with the whole landscape full of dorkays hanging the canvas, too groggy to get up. It looked like a battle with Abdul the monarch of all he surveyed.

WE'VE CHASED 'EM, TOO.
The value of silver has fluctuated considerably in times gone by, but never to the extent recently experienced by a Goldwyn director. A silver dollar became more valuable than gold itself to Hobart Henley in charge of Mae Marsh's present production.
He needed a "cartwheel" for an incident in the picture, but it was soon demonstrated that such a coin could not be had. Henley despatched scouts to the butcher, grocer and baker in the neighborhood of the Goldwyn Studios at Fort Lee, but without success. Finally a seavenger touring car was put in commission with orders to find a dollar if it took all night.
Down the hills sped the automobile, making many stops between Fort Lee, Leonia, Englewood, Coysteville and Palisades.
At last the silver disc was picked up at a wayside inn in the last place. The landlord had accepted it the night when business was at its height in the summer and had ever since been trying to get rid of it.

SAVE OUR OLD CLOVES.
Digging deep into the bottom of her old trunks, used "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was the star show on the road and motion pictures were unknown. Gertrude Claire, one of the cleverest character women pictures, saved the day when she found an old gown that just fitted her character in "Naughty, Naughty." Although the costumes

PURE RICH BLOOD PREVENTS DISEASE

Blood—that is blood that is pure and invigorated, this and pale—is responsible for more ailments than anything else.
It affects every organ and function. In some cases it causes catarrh; in others, dyspepsia; in others, rheumatism; and in still others, weak, tired, languid feelings and worse troubles.
It is responsible for run-down conditions, and is the most common cause of disease.
Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest purifier and enricher of the blood the world has ever known. It has been wonderfully successful in removing scurf and other humors, increasing the red-blood corpuscles, and building up the whole system. Get it today.

HOT TIME ON VINDICTIVE

British Cruiser Was Hit and at One Time Could Not Steer.

TOOK OFF THE LANDERS

Some Lively Scenes in Connection With the Attack on Zeebrugge.

London, April 23.—An eye-witness describing the naval raid on Zeebrugge says: "The effectiveness of the operation may be judged from the fact that every one of the laden cruisers which were sunk at Zeebrugge was able to go as near the lock gates as was desired, receiving no interruption from the enemy. Indeed, one of the destroyers or accompanying submarines exploded a charge at the very lock gates and it is believed, destroyed them."
Meanwhile four destroyers had also entered the harbor and were able to cruise around and make observations, but were unable to take part in the battle.

Cruiser Hit Many Times
When the attacking ship and landing parties had completed their work the men were taken aboard again, despite the damaged condition of the cruiser, and it began to make its way out of the harbor. One 17-inch shell out of hundreds of shells fired at her got well home on the upper works and forward. Her steering apparatus was injured and she signalled to some of her escort destroyers to show her the way out. But before they arrived she managed to make her way out of the harbor and to take her place under her own steam behind the lines of protecting cruisers.

One of those watching the operations from one of the escorting ships said: "When I saw the damage she had suffered I could scarcely believe it possible to have kept her afloat. Her men must have worked with tremendous energy, for she was throwing flames ten feet high from her funnels. I should think it a moderate estimate to say that three or four thousand shells were thrown at the vessels in the attacking squadron."

FIGHT THE TUSOCK.

By Courier Leased Wire
Kingston, Ont., April 23.—A. B. Klugh, professor of biology at Queen's, has made the timely and important discovery that there is a parasite which feeds upon the body fluids of the tussock caterpillar, which has caused so much destruction to Canada's maples and which promises to be unusually destructive this season. The parasite, the professor says, he has ascertained, is a little fly-like insect of next month order to which the legs and wings belong. It splits its little cocoon within the cocoon of the tussock caterpillar. Prof. Klugh says the most effective method of fighting the tussock moth is to remove the egg masses from the trees which should be done at once as the caterpillars will begin to hatch about the end of next month. He warns, however, against removing any cocoon which does not bear egg masses, because many of these cocoons contain the cocoons of the parasite.

MAY LOAD IN EXCESS.

By Courier Leased Wire
Ottawa, April 23.—The Canada Food Board announced today that in future ships trading with the United Kingdom ports will be allowed to load ships stores in excess of their voyage requirements, if such ships conform to local regulations of the shipowners' provision pool. This will enable vessels to fill all available stowage accommodation, including foodstuffs, which is practicable with the arrangements made by the board upon representations from the British ministry of food.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Flush the Kidneys at Once with Back Hurts or Bladder Pains.
No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. He says uric acid which clogs the kidneys may poison so they sluggishly filter out only part of the waste and get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.
The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, or contains sediment, irregular of passage, attended by a sensation of scalding, etc., about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will be made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with 11-14 and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so that no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.
Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.
