CHAPTER XIX.

"Her father would never consent. The property goes to the nephew, that boy at Eton, and, as you know, she must marry well."

"I know—I know," he said, gravely. "That's why I went abroad, why I shall have to go again. Don't fret about it, mother. There's hope for me, Mary—"

He did not finish; but Lady Bryan understood; and, of course, was not surprised. How could any girl help loving this handsome, manly son of hers? she thought, as she watched him mount his horse from which Ralph had tumbled, and ride away at a sharp canter. But swiftly as he rode, his thoughts went more quickly. Love is prone to jealousy, and keen at detecting a possible rival; and suddenly it occurred to him that he might have a rival in the new Earl of Raton.

He had thought that Ralph had looked at Mary once or twice at the dinner-party—well, as a man looks when he is interested in a girl; but he had tried to persuade himself that it was only fancy on his part. But this morning it seemed to him the most natural thing in the world that Ralph should fall in love with Mary. And if it were so, what chance would he, the penniless second son, have against the richest and most powerful nobleman in the county, especially after that nobleman had saved Mary's life? And yet he felt that Mary loved him, or would learn to love him. They had been playmates together; he had, in the old childhood, called her his "little wife," and she had not resented his half-avowal of love the other night! Oh, if he were only rich! if he had only been able to make some money during the last four hard years!

He found Mary in the rose-garden, and her face blushed as redly as the flowers in her hand as he came up to her with outstretched hand, his face grave and anxious.

"Oh, I am so glad to see you—out here and all right!" were his first words, and his strong hand closed tightly over her soft warm one.

"Is that why you came—to see?" she said with a smile—the smile with which the woman who loves tries to hide her joy at the presence of the man whose footfall, whose lightest word has power to stir her heart.

"I came at once. I only heard at breakfast, through the paper—"

She made a little grimace.

"Oh, that paper! Father read it to me."

"But it is true?" he said. "He—he did save you?"

INSTANT RELIEF—FEW HOURS FOR CURE

Nothing known to Science is so Invariably Sure to Cure as "Catarrhone."

Its health-laden fumes contain the leading balsams of the pine woods. Soothing and antiseptic, it gives instant relief—stops gagging, hawking and sneezing.

She nodded gravely, and turned to pick a rose.

"Yes," she said, "Lord Raton saved me. It is a correct account, though it exaggerates and colours."

"All the same, he saved you," said Bryan. "And for that I owe him a debt."

Mary laughed a little uneasily.

"That is what father has been saying ever since," she said. "But it is quite true," she added, quickly. "We do owe him a debt; nothing less than my life."

Edward almost groaned.

"Oh, why wasn't I there? I wasn't far off. I'd only just ridden back to the Court. I'd been with Lord Raton."

"Yes; he told me—told me that he had fallen off his horse."

"He told you that!" exclaimed Edward, with some surprise. "I can't make him out! He—well, he seemed to me the last man to risk his life for anyone or anything."

Mary looked down gravely.

"But he did," she said, "and it was a wonder he was not hurt or killed. He behaved most nobly."

Edward took off his cap and wiped his brow. He had ridden fast, but the perspiration was not caused only by his ride.

"And—and your father?" he said.

"Father was terribly frightened when he heard, and, of course, very grateful to Lord Raton. He dined with us last night; and father has gone over to the Hall this morning to advise Lord Raton about some new stables."

The penniless second son groaned inwardly.

"Of course your father is grateful to him," he said. "I myself am grateful—so grateful that I'd do and say anything, go anywhere, to show it. But oh, Mary, why was it not I who saved you?"

She crimsoned, then went pale, and stood trembling waiting; for the man's heart had declared itself too openly for him to stop at this. He took her hand and held it in a grip that almost hurt her.

"Mary," he said, brokenly, "I didn't mean to speak out. All the way home I told myself that I would not, that I was a failure, and until I had done something to redeem that failure, I must in honour hold my tongue. It was hard work to keep my vow yesterday, when I saw you for the first time for all these years, and you looked so beautiful, so pure. I've seen you in all my dreams; and when haven't I dreamt of you? Mary, you know that I love you; you know it. I've loved you ever since we were boy and girl together. You are part and parcel of my life. The hope that I might one day win you for myself, for my very own, has kept me going, kept me straight, at times when nothing else would have supported me or kept me from going to the dogs. Oh, my dearest—don't be angry with me, Mary; bear with me, dear. If you knew how precious you are to me, how I love you—"

Her face was pale now, and the roses had dropped disregarded to the path, and her hands were clasped tightly.

"In every man's life there is one love which is sweeter and more desirable to him than life itself, and my love for you is of that kind. I ought not to tell you this, to talk like this; but, Mary, something—I don't know what it is, I can't explain it—fills me with dread and forces me to speak. See, dearest—you'll let me call you so without offence, Mary, for you are and always will be dearest to me—my mind is full of misgivings, of dread. Bear with me, dear; consider how I stand. poor, and—and there are others—Oh, I must speak plainly. There is, for instance, this other man, the new Lord Raton."

She started and her face grew paler. The premonition which had sprung into her mind yesterday, sprang into it now with increased force and power.

"He is what he is—the possessor of an old title—is rich in land and money; and he—he—has saved your life. Mary, no man could see you without loving you."

She smiled for the first time, and shook her head; but he insisted.

"It is true. Where is there a lovelier girl than you? Where is there a sweeter? Who, with a heart in his bosom, could help loving you? I—I saw him the other night looking at you. Ah, don't be angry with me, Mary. If—it—it should be as I fear, what chance should I have against him? I am nothing—a nobody; he is an earl; I am poor, he is rich beyond counting—and he saved your life. But, Mary, I love you, love you, love you! I can't live without you. The hope of winning you is my life, just my life. Ah, Mary, speak to me—speak to me! Tell me that I may hope still!"

Few women—even a woman of the world who had sounded the whole of Love's gamut—could have resisted such an appeal coming from the heart and lips of the man she loved.

Mary turned to him, her face pale, her lips quivering, her very body vibrating with the thrill of love's music—music evoked by the touch of true love, as the harp thrills under the fingers of its master, and her eyes shone with all a woman's surrender in their pure depths.

He caught her to his breast, and held her there in the joy which scorn speech and kissed her lips and brow passionately.

There was an arbour close to them, and, half unconsciously, he led her into it; and there they stood, his arm round her, her head resting on his breast. She was so happy in this new heaven of her lover's arms, that for a moment or two she forgot everything in her great joy; and suddenly she looked up at him and murmured:

"Father!" For she was no woman of the world, only a girl just fresh from school.

"I know, dearest," he said, gravely. "He would not consent. That is why it was wrong for me to speak."

"There was no need. I—I knew," she whispered. "I knew the other night."

"And I meant to hide it from you," he said, with self-reproach. "I meant to go away without telling you. You father wouldn't consent, and he'd be quite right. In the first place, I'm not worthy of you; and in the next I'm poor. I know, dear," for she had murmured something like "I don't care." "But he cares, and he is quite right to care. And so, Mary mine, I came to a resolution as I rode over this morning," he went on, trying to speak with a smile, and in a matter-of-fact voice. "I must go away again at once—"

"At once! Oh, Edward!"

"To sit down before me periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated."

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

Lord Hatherley came home to lunch, so full of enthusiasm over Ralph that he did not, for a moment or two, notice that Mary was pale and sad-eyed.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." — Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont.—"I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble. My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated."

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." — Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

"No," she said, very quietly; "not forever, Edward."

"Hush!" he said. "I can't let you bind yourself to me, Mary. I'm bound to you for life, but you shall be free, free as air, until I come back with a fortune, and can claim you."

This generosity of his brought the tears to her eyes, and she hid them on his breast.

"I should be ashamed of myself if I went away and left you pledged to a mere adventurer; for that is what I am, Mary mine. But adventurers win the day sometimes, and I mean to win. I shall start at the end of the week—"

"Oh!" She drew a long breath. "So soon!"

"The sooner I go, the sooner I shall come back. Besides, there's danger in every day I stay. You see, I feel as if I must go out into the market-place at Raton and cry aloud, 'She loves me! she loves me!' I feel capable of any kind of madness in that way, I am so proud, so intoxicated—"

"And where will you go?" she asked, after a pause which was more eloquent than any words could be.

"I shall go West, to British Columbia—Vancouver," he said. "I met a man on the homeward voyage who gave me some accounts of opening there; but it's too long to tell you now, dearest, and there is so much to be said. I'll ask you not to forget me, Mary; but you shall not pledge or bind yourself. You shall be quite free to—marry anyone; only—only"—he tried to laugh—"don't marry anyone—Lord Raton, for instance—if you can help it."

She started; then she smiled up at him, a glorious smile which put to shame any verbal promise.

"I will not marry—Lord Raton, if I can help it," she said in a low voice.

"I'm more than content, dearest," he said almost solemnly. "And now I'll go; and how much happier I shall go than I went last time! To know that you love me! Why, Mary, no matter what happens to me, that thought ever in my mind, I must wish I dare not write to you, dear; but you will hear of me from my mother. I shall write to her regularly, and tell her to show you my letters, just to keep me in your mind. Good-bye, dearest, if we don't meet again, and we may not!"

She put her arms round his neck and drew his head down and kissed him; and he got out of the arbour; somehow, mounted his horse and rode away; and it was well that he rode better than Lord Raton, for there was a mist before his eyes which rendered him quite incapable of seeing where he was going.

Lord Hatherley came home to lunch, so full of enthusiasm over Ralph that he did not, for a moment or two, notice that Mary was pale and sad-eyed.

Your Name!

A CALL TO EVERY FIT MAN.
When the breakfast book is opened and the thrilling tale is told of our heroes of the Channel where the battle-tide has rolled, humble names will shine with glory golden-hued in fame's bright glare—
Tell me, when we read the story, will your name be written there?

When the deeds of pal and brother echo loud from shore to shore, will you feel, like many another, sick at heart and conscience-sore, knowing that you shirked your duty, paid no heed to country's call; theirs the honor and the glory, yours the wormwood and the gall?

Too late then to don the khaki, too late then to wear the blue; now's the time to grasp the sword-bit fit to manhood you'd be true; sweep aside that paltry hindrance, be a Briton; play the man!
Sign today the roll of honour, volunteer while yet you can.

Let the sneering, craven scoffer live his little, useless life; there's no room for slimy reptiles in the British Lion's stride.
No! 'tis men that hear the summons, men that hasten to obey,
Men from Pezrag, men from Combs, will you take your place today?

And when tranquil lies the regions now by war so sore oppressed, you can proudly hold your head up, knowing that you did your best. And with finger pointing eastward or that narrow stripe of sea, tell the story of the fighting with the magic pronoun "We!"

Show the Huns that Britains glory is no myth of days of yore; British hearts still bear the banner Wellington and Nelson bore; British hearts still beat as loyal, British hearts still do and dare— and I know your heart responds with the answer, "I'll be there."
—"Tit-Bits."

How Zam-Buk Cures Skin Diseases

As soon as applied, Zam-Buk penetrates right to the very root of the disease and kills the cause thereof. The rich herbal essence then so stimulates the cells below the surface that new healthy tissue is formed, which, as it grows, forces out the diseased tissue. Zam-Buk cures from the bottom up. This is the reason that sores and skin diseases cured by Zam-Buk, do not return.

Zam-Buk is entirely different from all other ointments. It does not contain harsh minerals, or poisonous coloring matter. Nor does it contain coarse animal fats, which, in a short time, go rancid. Zam-Buk will keep indefinitely.

Many people have been cured by Zam-Buk after having suffered years and spent hundreds of dollars trying various remedies in vain. If you suffer from any skin disease or injury, benefit by the experience of others. Try Zam-Buk first. Don't trouble with useless remedies.

Zam-Buk is unequalled for eczema, piles, pimples, cuts, burns, bruises, cold sores, frost bites, chapped hands, and all skin diseases and injuries.
We are so convinced that a trial of Zam-Buk will prove to you its superiority, that we will send you a FREE TRIAL box on receipt of this article, name of paper, and 1c. stamp to pay return postage. Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

All Druggists and Stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box.

DETAINED BY EOG.—The s.s. Stephano is now due. No wireless was received from the ship to-day and she is supposed to be detained by fog.

MOBILIZED!—50,000 bottles of Stafford's Liniment for killing Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia and all Aches and Pains.

TRAP BERTH CASE.—The trap berth case between two fishermen of the Battery, was continued to-day and was not finished up to 1 p.m. when recess was taken.

BOWRING'S SHIPS.—The Prospero sails to-morrow morning for northern ports. She is detained on account of the big freight offering. The Fort left Placentia at daylight this morning going west.

UNDERGOING INSPECTION.—The s.s. Kyle is now at North Sydney undergoing the annual Canadian inspection for service on the Cabot Strait route, and will probably get away from there for Port aux Basques to-night. The Bruce, which is now on the way to North Sydney, will upon arrival undergo a similar inspection and will be ready to resume the service on Saturday next.

ALBERT MATTHEWS WOUNDED.—Mrs. Matthews, of Parade Street, widow of the late Rev. Solomon Matthews, is in receipt of a message from Ottawa, saying that her son Albert had been wounded at the front, and that further information would be forwarded in due course. Albert Matthews enlisted with the Ottawa 43rd Rifles and sailed with the first Canadian contingent. He is a brother of the Rev. F. R. Matthews, B.A., President of the Methodist Conference, and has another brother Harold, in the Nfld. Regiment.

THIS CORPS REFUSED TO FIGHT OUT OF Cape Colony, and so Captain Driscoll called for volunteers, and raised his own regiment—the famous Driscoll Scouts.

"He gained the D.S.O. for making a forced march with only fifteen men, and suddenly entering the town of Fouriesburg in the Orange Free State. This feat released over 300 British officers and men who had been prisoners there. The enemy, finding they had been surprised by such a handful, returned in force; but Captain Driscoll armed the released soldiers with Mauser rifles and ammunition.

Amazing Marches.

The swiftness of the present Russian advance is in keeping with their traditions for good marching, as exemplified in the long journey of Suvaroff's army from Russia to Italy in 1799, and of Kutusoff's forces during the invasion of 1812. In this, as in other matters of warfare, however, the record seems to be with Napoleon. In 1805 he crossed the Rhine on September 26th, was in Vienna on November 13th, and on December 2nd crushed the united armies of Russia and Austria at Austerlitz. Almost incredibly swift was Napoleon's swoop on Prussia in the following year, when, crossing the Saale on October 9th, he defeated Hohenlohe's army at Jena on the 14th, and was in Berlin on the 26th, with all Prussia at his feet. Three years later he broke even these records by returning from France to Spain on April 17th, rushing to the Austrian frontier, defeating the enemy five times in as many days, and entering Vienna on May 12th.

Driscoll's Dare-Devils.

Rough-Riders Who Sign on for "The Colonel" Will Have Their Hands Full.

Who'd like to go for a trip through a healthy country swarming with big game and with all expenses paid by the Government?

Intending applicants, in response to this unique offer, would do well to call at 6 Adam Street, Strand.

In a small office upstairs they will discover a strongly-built Irishman, whose black hair and moustache emphasize the grim determination of a face as implacable as Fate. The room is littered with papers and letters, and all day long—from every corner of the Empire—keen-visaged men call upon the solitary occupant.

But Colonel Driscoll, D.S.O., is used to hard work, of the kind which would wear an ordinary man down in a month. In South Africa he is known as "the man who sleeps with one eye open"; and so stupendous is his present task that it is a wonder that he is able to sleep at all.

A representative of Answers managed to secure from him, in a hurried interview, the following facts:

"The War Office has just given me permission to raise a battalion of 1,000 men for active service against the Kaiser's forces in Africa.

"When I tell you that the men have to be good rifle shots, to begin with, and must be able to pass an exceptionally severe medical test, and that the corps is expected to leave England in a few weeks' time, you will have some idea of the magnitude of my task. A good many of my old 'scouts,' who served under me in the Boer War, have joined me. One officer reached me yesterday who had actually travelled all the way from Zoutansberg, 6,000 miles off, giving up a position worth £800 a year to come!

"Our work will largely consist of guerilla warfare, and the Government are equipping us in special uniforms suitable to the tropics. We shall be officially known as the 'Frontiersmen's Battalion,' in compliment to the men who will form the backbone of the regiment. I had the names of some 5,000 of these men down on my register in the early weeks of the war, but in the long waiting for official sanction most of them joined other corps. So I have now to recruit in a more or less clean-swept country.

"Many famous hunters and travelers have joined me, including Messrs. Frank Selous, Cherry Kearton and G. H. Outram. To any young fellow who is fond of adventure, and who would prefer picturesque campaigning, in a healthy country, to the monotony of trench warfare on the Continent, I would say 'Come along.'

"Where we are going is swarming with big game of all sorts, and at night we shall have to take as much precaution to guard against lions as we shall against the enemy."

The gallant colonel declined to talk about himself, but an old comrade, who fought by his side in South Africa, and will be with him in his new venture, spoke thus of the chief:

"The colonel will get his 1,000 men all right. His name alone will be sufficient to bring in dozens of old comrades who, like himself, would not serve under any other leader. He is a born leader, too. He was a captain in the Upper Burma Volunteers at the time, and, proceeding by himself to the front, he was attached by the late General Gatacre, who knew his worth, to the Frontier Mounted Rifles.

"This corps refused to fight out of Cape Colony, and so Captain Driscoll called for volunteers, and raised his own regiment—the famous Driscoll Scouts.

"He gained the D.S.O. for making a forced march with only fifteen men, and suddenly entering the town of Fouriesburg in the Orange Free State. This feat released over 300 British officers and men who had been prisoners there. The enemy, finding they had been surprised by such a handful, returned in force; but Captain Driscoll armed the released soldiers with Mauser rifles and ammunition.

Household Notes.

When preparing peppers for stuffing do not throw away the end of the pepper that is cut off, but boil it tender and grind it up with the meat for filling.

Always have pantry cupboards fitted with glass doors, and keep the rice, spices, etc., in glass jars. Then a look through the doors will show exactly what supplies are missing.

To remove grass stains from white flannels, take equal parts of yolk of egg and pure glycerine, apply to the stain and leave on for an hour or longer, then wash in the usual way.

Even when there is cream in the coffee, the stains can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabric by brushing the spots with pure glycerine and rinsing in lukewarm water.

Never throw away pieces of stale cake. They are good for puddings. If you do not wish to use them directly, dry them thoroughly in a cool oven, crush with a roller and put them in a glass jar until wanted.

If a varnished floor has white spots on it as a result of water having been spilled on it and drying without being wiped, they may be removed by rubbing briskly with a cloth well dampened with ammonia.

When preserving, sprinkle some ashes on the stove lid beneath the kettle of boiling fruit. This prevents standing over the stove to stir the fruit. It will not burn or stick if this method is followed.

If you are troubled with mice, put camphor about wherever they are, and you will find that your trouble will be at an end, as mice dislike the smell and leave the place where they find it.

In packing children's lunches for school, always wrap the sandwiches in oiled paper. Meats for filling are best chopped. Cream cheese combined with nuts makes a good filling for a change.

In house-cleaning or moving times it pays to have large quantities of hearty food prepared—baked ham, doughnuts, sandwiches, bread and butter and jam, and so on, anything that will save cooking.

If the piano keys are washed with a soft flannel dipped in alcohol they will retain their color and not grow yellow as they do when washed with water.

Losses Very Heavy on Both Sides.

NO TRUCE GRANTED.
Paris, April 30.—Frightful losses on both sides have marked the past ten days' fighting in West Flanders, and it is unofficially stated that from 12,000 to 16,000 unburied corpses dot the lowlands or lie in the flooded marshes between the North Sea coast and the battlefield of Ypres. Graves' tears are felt that an outbreak of cholera may develop. Neither side will grant a truce for burials.

French, British and Belgian forces are hurling themselves against the German lines between Ypres and Dixmude with the utmost fury. Over a strip of land comprising 150 square miles in this area, not a building has been left undamaged by the artillery.

"Watch the centre," is the order given by the French General Staff. It is thought that the Germans' knowledge that their offensives in Belgium and east of the New Forest have caused withdrawals of French troops from the Allies' centre, may suddenly undertake a dash on the Aene and Oise rivers to cut the Allies' line.

Water-Power Policy.

The fact that the people of Ontario have long been fully alive to the importance of the value of the natural water-flow of the country is to be seen by a declaration of policy made by Premier Wilson in 1905, when he said:—

"The water-power at Niagara should be as free as air, and more than that, I say on behalf of the Government, that the water-powers all over this country shall not in future be made the sport and prey of capitalists, and shall not be treated as anything else but a valuable asset of the people of Ontario, whose interests the Government of this country are."

For some years before this an agitation had been carried on with a view to prevent water-powers falling into the hands of monopolists, and with a view to the supply of cheap electrical energy which culminated eventually in the Ontario Power Commission.

The state of public feeling there may be gathered from a perusal of the Resolution passed at Galt on March 23rd, 1906 by 40 representatives of municipalities immediately concerned with the power problem. "That, whereas power from the Niagara Falls is natural wealth, and as such should be enjoyed by the largest possible number; and whereas cheap power is essential to the success of the factories and industries of almost any kind, particularly in Ontario whereas coal is expensive; and whereas experience has shown that this great national and natural asset would be practically worthless if controlled by private companies; and whereas there is in our opinion no regulation sufficiently effective whereby power can be obtained from the owners of existing franchises at reasonable rates; Therefore be it resolved, that this gathering of municipalities urgently desire and respectfully ask the Government of Ontario to at once themselves establish a power plant at Niagara Falls, or secure the power produced under existing franchises for distribution to reachable municipalities of Ontario."

The expensiveness of coal and the value of water power to Ontario are features applicable to the situation in Newfoundland, and we should act warily in granting water power. Our general policy should be that of Ontario:—

(1) Short leases.
(2) Rental. According to horsepower, and this should be followed in all cases, unless good and sufficient reasons make an exception advisable, and in any case no lease should be perpetual and no lease should be granted unless for an adequate consideration.

Entertainment at Synod Hall.

The annual tea and entertainment of the Cathedral Band of Hope, was held at the Synod Hall last night. Rev. Canon White presided, and over 150 members of the Band were present. An interesting programme of songs, recitations and drills was given under the direction of Rev. Mr. Adams, Misses Windler, White and Purchase, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the children. Following the entertainment teas and refreshments were served by the following ladies: Lady Horwood, Mesdames (Canon) White, Bowring, Miller, W. Willis, Miller, G. Davey, LeMessurier, Shears, H. Couterbridge, R. B. Job, Misses Long, Horwood, Job and Crowley. At the close Rev. Canon White thanked the ladies who had assisted in making the evening so enjoyable for the children, and the singing of the National Anthem brought the entertainment to a close.

Norwegian Sealers.

The two Norwegian sealing steamers, which were prosecuting the seal-fishery in the Gulf, have not yet returned to North Sydney whence they cleared, though they remain out as long as they like, not coming under our sealing law as regard killing. They were not seen recently by the last of our Gulf fleet that arrived, the crews of both ships comprising between 120 and 130 men, are made up of Cape Bretoners and Newfoundlanders who signed on in Cape Breton. As exclusively stated in the Telegram some few weeks ago, the sealers signed on with the understanding that they would be paid $15 a month and $5 per thousand pelts.

Prompt Response of Fire Brigade.

Though the fire in the Prescott St. building yesterday did considerable damage, the splendid work of the firemen in controlling the outbreak so promptly and preventing it from spreading, saved further destruction. A business gentleman who was interested financially in the fire, asserts that from the time the alarm was sent in yesterday until the Eastern apparatus and men arrived, and had hoses out, connected, water turned on and everything ready to begin fighting the fire, only two minutes exactly had elapsed. This is certainly a commendably quick response.

PRISONER ARRIVES.—Three articles by last night's train from Mannville Constable Humber, in charge of a man named Dave, who was convicted before Mr. Furneaux, J.P., of assaulting another man and was sentenced to 20 days' imprisonment.

A Rare Treat.

The audience that attended the illustrated lecture given by Dr. Curtis, last night, in George Street Church, enjoyed a rare treat. The lecturer, confined his treatment entirely to Jerusalem, and the slides, many of which were from snap-shots taken by the Doctor while out East, were splendid. Such rare views as the interior of the Dome of the Rock (Mount Moriah), the interior of the Garden Tomb and the Pool of Bethesda were worthy of special mention. Most interesting and instructive also was the treatment of the relative claims of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and "Gordon's Calvary," to be the scene of the Crucifixion.

ENORMOUS LOSSES OF TURKS.

PARIS, To-day. News from Mytilene says that Turkish prisoners, who have arrived at Tenedos, admit that the Turkish army has suffered enormous losses from the combined fire of the Expeditionary forces. The Allies, according to reliable information, occupied a number of strategic positions on May 4th, and land forces continue to receive reinforcements daily.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST TRAWLERS.

LONDON, To-day. The trawler Sceptre was torpedoed forty miles off Peterhead. This makes fifteen trawlers sunk since Sunday. The trawlers are victims of German submarines and which seem to be making a determined effort to prevent England from procuring fish in the North Sea. None of the trawlers, according to the stories told by the crews surrendered, while they had the slightest chance to escape. Generally the fishermen did not take to their boats until the bullets or shells were flying about them. Despite these statements no loss of life among the crews of the trawlers has occurred. Several trawlers which were challenged by submarine made their escape.

JAP ULTIMATUM EXPECTED TO-DAY.

LONDON, To-day. The legation here has notified all Japanese to prepare to leave the capital within twelve hours, says the Daily Telegraph's Peking correspondent. Telegrams are pouring in from every part of China foreshadowing hostilities. An ultimatum by Japan is expected by the latest on Thursday. Near in the highest quarters that Chinese surrender is out of question, as revolutionaries who are attacking the Government are immediately with an army, thus precipitating the fall of Yuan Shi Kais Government. I am authorized to demand that the Chinese Government will make a direct appeal to Great Britain, Russia, France and the United States, immediately an ultimatum is received.

CORPORAL HUNT WOUNDED.

HALIFAX, To-day. The casualty list contains the name of Corporal George C. Hunt, St. John's, of the Fourteenth Battalion, wounded.

ALLIES HOLD IMPORTANT POSITION.

LONDON, To-day. The Turks, considerably reinforced, attacked the Allied camp at Kritia on Tuesday morning, but were repulsed, leaving 1,500 dead according to advices from Mytilene received from Athens. The Allies have advanced into the interior, the despatch says, and are now occupying a position of great strategic importance. A report from Tenedos, says that British warships continued yesterday their bombardment of the Turkish forts of the Dardanelles and also of Smyrna.

ROUMANIAN AND BULGARIAN COMBINE.

TURIN, To-day. A military agreement has been concluded between Roumania and Bulgaria, which is a preliminary to a formal political alliance to maintain it obligatory for these nations to support each other in case of war according to Saloniki despatch to the Gazette of Torino.

POSSIBILITY OF AN ACCORD BETWEEN ITALY AND AUSTRIA.

ROME, To-day. In official quarters where the situation of Italy is known and, notwithstanding anti-Austrian feeling shown at travelling of Garibaldi monuments at Quarto, Sant Elena, it was stated to-day that the possibility of an accord between Italy and Austria had never been so probable.

RUSSIANS DEFEAT TURKS AND TAKE PRISONERS.

LONDON, To-day. A Petrograd despatch to Reuter says that details have been received here of the defeat by the Russians of the Turkish army corps in the Caucasus. An effort was made by 30,000 Turks to invade Diyarbakir region, which the Russians occupied. The entire Turkish force was hurled against the Russian position at Mascovia, although numerically inferior, held their ground. Each successive attack was repulsed at the bayonet point. The Russians then began a general counter attack and completely routed the exhausted Turks, who retired in disorder. Prisoners including famous Kurd Leader Simko, were taken.

GERMANS RAM SWEDEN.

STOCKHOLM, To-day. The Swedish steamer Vasa was rammed yesterday afternoon while at anchor off Island of Femern, by a German auxiliary cruiser, the Silvanit. The crew were saved.

WILL GIVE MORE MEN.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., To-day. Details of the ship...

against the Dardanelles have been received with enthusiasm. Recruiting shows no signs of dimming. Premier Fisher, replying to the question whether in view of the fighting the Commonwealth intended sending more men to the front, said to-day: "Our offer is unlimited; we shall train and equip men to the best of our ability, and provide means for getting them speedily to the front."

JAPAN OPENS HOSTILITIES.

SHANGHAI, To-day. Chinese papers publish a despatch from Peking stating that Japan has opened hostilities against China without a formal declaration of war. The despatch gives no details as to the scene of hostilities.

STEAMER TORPEDOED.

LONDON, To-day. The steamer Cathay, from Copenhagen for China, was either mined or torpedoed late last night in the North Sea. Her passengers and crew, totalling four hundred, took to small boats and landed safely at Ramsgate to-day.

GREAT BATTLE BEGINNING IN GALICIA.

LONDON, To-day. In a despatch to the Daily News from Petrograd last night, Frederick Rennel says, all the German movements in the East are now composed of immense forces from Cracow, especially southward. Since Sunday, there have been sharp separate engagements at Tarnow and Gorlice in Galicia, and at Barstet in Hungary. The Russian Army has driven the Austrians westward from the right bank of the Nida, in the south of Poland, a battle involving enormous numbers is now beginning. It is believed that General Litvinov, of the Russian Army, last week abandoned an attempt on the Strij Road, is now hastening westward to fill the right wing of the German line.

St. Pierre Bulletin.

The following Bulletin is posted at St. Pierre, May 5, 1915. (Official).—In Belgium, a quiet day. During Tuesday night we captured a German trench and pushed forward our lines between Lizerne and Hatsch, which we captured; the enemy didn't counter-attack. In Champagne, to the west of Verdun, a German attempt to attack completely failed, likewise in Arbonne. At Four de Paris, very sharp actions took place between the Meuse and Moselle about four a.m. The enemy strongly fortified our positions of Eparges and Calonne trench, and about ten o'clock they attacked on the latter point but were completely checked; our fire stopped the attack beyond our first line which remained in the German hands. Losses were high and we made some prisoners. During the morning three regiments attacked our positions, recently conquered by us atilly Wood, especially on the eastern part of that wood on open ground of a slope to the slope we held on the ground captured, and at the end of the day delivered a second counter-attack. Details of trenches which we immediately consolidated and connected with our lines. Three counter-attacks took place during the day, but were entirely repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy in dead and prisoners. In Alsace, on the northern bank of the Moselle, a German advance on the 28th of April, at night, was repulsed. This morning we took possession of a hollow east of Sillaker-wasen Hill 850; there we progressed in the direction of the River towards Steinbruck, 900 metres from Metzrai. Official Note on successes gained by our Army: On March 22nd a bombardment of Briey Station and the Junction of Conflans, Frey Metz, provision stores were destroyed and lines interrupted. On the 15th April, bombardment of St. Quentin Station, Main Depot of munitions, in sheds of Petite Vesle, and 180 waggons containing fuel, set on fire and burned. From 15th April at 4 p.m. until next day at six a.m., all night explosions and projectiles were fired and burned. On 28th April, bombardment of Friedrichshafen, sheds were damaged, a Zeppelin damaged; and in the bombardment of Larrach Leopoldshohe district and Tallingren Station, a repair shop was completely destroyed, and two locomotives of express trains put out of service; all materials of guards and munitions were destroyed at Lorach, and 42 sappers of Landstrum killed or wounded. Two aces were destroyed at Leopoldshohe; the embranching but was hit and trains between Leopoldshohe and Haltingen suspended.

The Largest Sailing Yacht.

Boston, April 20—A yacht of far more than ordinary interest is scheduled to be launched at the yards of George Lawley & Sons, of Neponset, Mass., to-morrow. The vessel was designed by Wm. Gardner & Co. of this city, for Alex. Smith Cochran, the enthusiastic yachtman, who defrayed the expenses incidental to building and racing the America's Cup defence candidate, the Vanda, last year.

The new yacht is to be christened the Sea Call, and she is the largest sailing yacht ever built in this country. She is a three-masted schooner yacht, with a water length of 150 feet and an over all length of 215 feet, while her beam is 32 feet 8 inches, and she draws 18 feet.

The Sea Call will be equipped with a special Intervale combustion motor of eight cylinders and developing 400 horse-power at 250 revolutions per minute. All materials entering into the construction of this sailing yacht and her motor are specially selected as being the best for their respective purposes, and she will be the most important addition to the great fleet of American yachts in many years, barring cup defence yachts.

The Sea Call is to be used by her owner for long off shore cruises and ocean racing. Mr. Cochran owned and raced the schooner Windward, which won practically every event in which she started in European waters.

"BULLS" IN PARLIAMENT.

There is nothing, perhaps, which members of the House of Lords and the House of Commons enjoy so much as a "bull," one of those quaint inconsistencies of speech involving a contradiction in terms, which is all the more ludicrous because it is uttered quite unconsciously.

Not long ago Mr. Bonar Law brought under the notice of the Lower House a "bull" of more than ordinary proportions when he spoke of "the habit of the Government in letting things drift until they run against some precipice which brings them to a standstill."

Sir Edward Carson, when making an attack on the Government some time ago, remarked that "Mr. Asquith was like a drunken man walking along a straight line—the farther he went the sooner he fell," while it was also Sir Edward who referred in cordial tones to "the gentleman I see behind me."

Mr. F. E. Smith, on one occasion, in discussing the Parliaments Act with its famous preamble, referred to them as "twin Bulls, the younger of which has not yet been born," an Ulster member being equally humorous when he said, "We have to go back centuries for a parallel to such treatment, and even then we don't find it." Mention of Ulster reminds Mr. J. C. Perry, to whose book, "Bulls and Blunders," we are indebted for these amusing examples of Parliamentary metaphors, that a Northern politician is responsible for saying that "with one voice Ulster would lift up her head and stamp out the outrage."

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald once referred in the House of Commons to the "empty grave where all our ruined industries lie," and it was another Irish member who, speaking of a question about which there had been much discussion, extending over a long period of time, remarked, "if you leave this question to us for three years, we will settle it to-morrow morning."

Probably the champion mixed metaphor on record is that attributed to an Irish member, who is said to have accused the Government of "killing the fatted calf which lays the golden eggs," while the House roared with laughter, when a member, denouncing a Bill he did not like, said, "Sir, I intend to drive the last nail into the coffin of this unborn babe."

Mr. Masterman, M.P., when Financial Secretary, informed Mr. Fells that the rotation book which some employers were invited to obtain was to be used by those who were "regularly casually employed." And Mr. John Burns has made a notable addition to our already rich store of mixed metaphors. Speaking some time ago on the Insurance Act, he referred to one of the Unionist members, Mr. Jardine, as "a brand from the burning," and expressed his willingness to "throw out a life-line and draw the honorable member ashore." According to the Press report, the House was convulsed with laughter, and took several minutes to recover its equanimity, whilst the President of the Board of Trade, on discovering his slip, surveyed the boisterous scene with a look of amused serenity.

Spending Other People's Money!

By RUTH CAMERON.

How rare it is to find anyone who doesn't feel called upon to spend other people's money for them. I have a neighbor who does every bit of her own work, including her washing, although her husband is able and willing to have a helper for her. Most of the money she saves in this way she spends upon her home. Her furniture is the most costly in the neighbourhood, her china is exquisite and her beautifully embroidered linen is of the finest.

Now, my neighbour also has a neighbour. This woman lives in a small house very simply furnished, but she keeps a helper. My neighbour cannot understand this. "I should think she would want to fix up her house," she says, "even if she did have to work a little harder. The maid's board and wages and what she wastes must cost her ten dollars a week. Just think, if she went without a maid for a year she could furnish that house decently."

How Much More Wisely She Would Use It. And my neighbour sighs with the unresigned helplessness of those who could spend other people's money so much more wisely if they were allowed to do so. A day or two later my neighbor's neighbor, she of the small house and plain furniture, is talking about her neighbor at an afternoon tea at which the latter had the misfortune not to be present. "My dear," I hear her saying to the woman at her right, "how can Mrs. M. be willing to slave over that house from morning until night? She never has time for anything else. I should think she'd rather have a little less expensive furniture and some time to enjoy life."

If I Had Her Money. "Or some better looking clothes," says the other woman who is known for the simplicity of her table and the elaborateness of her toilets. If I had her money. . . .

Owing to a shift in the alignment of forces I am deprived of the pleasure of knowing how she would spend her neighbour's money, but I can guess. And so it goes. I have quoted others because that's easier than quoting myself, but I often catch myself saying, "I should think she'd spend less for," etc.

I fancy there are few indoor sports more universally enjoyed than criticising one's neighbour for the way he spends his money and explaining how much more wisely you could spend it.

It gives one such a sense of superiority and a sense of superiority is something we all feel obliged to have, even if we must buy it by silly, useless and uncalled for criticism of what is, to put it frankly—none of our business.

Questions and Answers. Question: "Can you give me a name for a Sunday School Class?"

—Letter Friend. Answer: I asked our minister's wife and she gave me the following names which have been used in parishes to which she was attached: The Crescents, The Ramblers, True Blue, Ever Ready, The Willing Workers.

The Baraca for young men and the Philathea for young women are national organizations of Bible Classes.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

For the little-mother-to-be, there are a number of requisites, none of which should be forgotten. Plenty of night gowns, of extra amplitude, are, of course, the first necessity. Then come the pretty bed-sacques, made with reference to the poetic attractiveness of motherhood.

In one instance all were of washable crepe, made with dainty and original touches. The nursing night gowns, by the way, were of unique design, having a buttoned-over piece at the front for convenience in nursing. The bodior caps matched or pleasantly contrasted with the bed-sacques, and one could readily imagine how prettily these will frame the sweet mother face.

Then, for the time when the home duties will be resumed, there is a quota of house dresses made on the order of kimono aprons, but having the buttoned front like the night gowns, so that baby's comfort shall be easily compassed.

Vice-Capt.—P. W. Pitt, elected.
Secy.—R. H. Taylor, re-elected.

Committee—C. Tibbo and A. Noseworthy.

Our Volunteers.

The total number of volunteers enrolled with the Reserve Force to-date is 1,737, the name of Fred Martin, of Harbour Grace, having been added yesterday.

There are now about 160 men under drill, and the work of equipment is going ahead rapidly. Yesterday the men spent the day at drill indoors while in the afternoon squads had rifle practice at the Southside range and at night at the Highlanders' Armoury.

The picture programme at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is a remarkably good one, there are three excellent dramas and the best Bunny comedy ever seen.

Mrs. Nurse, the talented pianist, has an appropriate programme of music, and Miss Hannaford sings a new song.

There are no better pictures shown anywhere than those at the Crescent. Go to-day and see what they are offering.

MAN WITH THE HOE.

Oh, this is the time when the man with the hoe gets out in the garden where gooseberries grow; he weeds out the stalks, and no one would say he was kin to the ox.

You see him exclaim, "Maria, come look at this cucumber frame! The digbusted beans and the marrowfat peas are growing and thriving as fine as you please! Come hither, Maria, and squint at the corn—the way it's been climbing since yesterday morn'! And look at the onions, a-flourishing there—they'll take the blue ribbon this year at the fair!" And then, if you watch, you will see the man go, this down-trodden mortal, the man with the hoe, to call on his neighbors and brag of his greens, his cabbage and spinach and Safety First beans. The man with the hoe, in the lands o'er the brine, may look like an ox or a sample of swine, as he drudges along in the heat of the day, for a crust and a drink and some counterfeit pay; but here in this land of the brave and the free, he bubbles with mirth and he chortles with glee; he whoops and he laughs, where the peasant re-ripes, and pores us with tales of his succotash vines.

Slight Fire.

At 9:30 p.m. yesterday an alarm of fire summoned the Central and Western Companies to the basement of the store occupied by J. Deshouwitzer, Water Street, where a slight fire caused by some rags becoming ignited, was in progress. Very little damage was done and the "all out" signal was sounded about five minutes after the alarm.

MINARD'S LINIMENT LUMBER-MAN'S FRIEND.

SEEING AMERICA FIRST — THE INDIAN.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Sivash." Among all the sights of America which cannot be duplicated in other countries even at great expense, the Indian is one of the most interesting and instructive.

The Indian has always been a very prominent feature in American history and scenery, but of late he has not been advertised so extensively as formerly. For this reason Americans have thronged to Europe to see the inhabitants of Maarken wearing seven pairs of trousers, and to view other ethnological curiosities, when for half price they could see a real American Indian driving an automobile in a blanket and a look of invincible dignity.

The Indian has changed much since the late Mr. Cooper named him for future use in literature. A hundred years ago people cheerfully undertook journeys of a thousand miles on foot to get away from. But to-day every American should pay careful attention to what he has to do and discover from a casual survey just how a firm but humane government has been working him into agriculture, the census, the United States Senate, and other useful lines of endeavor.

The American Indian is still picturesque. He often wears a plug hat and a pair of trousers with no other formalities, and in painting his face he can give a few pointers, though not many, to a New York society lady. His dances are not as weird as those produced by modern science, but he still rides ponies occasionally clad in an eagle's feather and a warwhop. However, he has abandoned scalp collecting and war-patching as a profession, and can now be approached with more safety than can a Tammany precinct chief in a close election by a citizen who wants to vote the other ticket.

American tourists who wish to re-view the American Indian, and note his sad lot should travel southward to California, this summer, stopping off copiously and see many interesting things. They can behold Indian millionaires, governors, bankers, baseball champions, and fashion plates; they can see Indian families living in costly homes with automatic pianos, and a litter of new puppies in the bath-tub; they can see Indian farmers breaking the corn raising record, quoting Shakespeare, and waving blankets more artistic than other Americans have yet produced; and they can also, if properly introduced, attend snake dances, and buy baskets from Indians, who lose 25 pounds in weight when they get rained on.

America now has more Indians than it has had in 200 years, and they are of more kinds. One of them is leading modern thought in the United States Senate, and some others are leading the American army a lively chase in the good old way.

MINARD'S LIMENT CURE S LOLS, Etc.

At the House.

WEDNESDAY, May 5th. The Premier presented a petition from Wm. Jas. Morehen, Brigadier of the Salvation Army, asking that the Salvation Army in Newfoundland be incorporated.

Referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Premier, Mr. Kent, Mr. Clift, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Morine, Mr. Piccott and Mr. Jennings.

Mr. Moulton presented a petition asking for $3,000 for a wharf at Rose Blanche.

Mr. Hickman presented a petition asking for a railway station at Blackhead, Broad Cove. He pointed out that it was originally intended to have the station midway between Blackhead and Adam's Cove, a distance of one mile, in order to save the people of both places. Something was brought to bear since then, transferring the station to Adam's Cove, thus hampering the people of Blackhead who have to walk a long distance now when going to the station; he also presented a petition from Northern Bay asking for a small sum of money to build a road, also a petition from the residents of Red Head Cove in relation to the placing of cod traps.

Mr. Clapp presented a petition from Rev. J. T. Richards and a large number of others asking that a ferry be put running between Port Saunders and King's Cove. In presenting the prayer of the petition he showed the great hardship it was on fishermen going back and forth to these places, covering a large stretch of coast line in their boats. The placing of a ferry there would cost little and be a great benefit to the fishermen. He expressed the hope that the petition would be given earnest consideration.

Mr. Stone called the attention of the Minister of Public Works to a question asked May 3rd re sum of money allocated in Trinity District, 1912-13. The Minister said it was being prepared. Mr. Stone contended that there were no returns to prepare as the money had not been spent at all and it was another "come off" for which the Minister is noted.

Mr. Kent for the 12th time asked for returns from Bell Island and was told that they were being copied. He then asked the Minister of Public Works for a copy of the agreement made between the late J. O. Fraser, Chairman of Public Works in 1908 or about the year 1886 and Mr. Clement Hudson, of Pouch Cove, in the District of St. John's East, as to the right to land supplies, etc., for the Light House at Cape St. Francis, and to state why the agreement has not been carried into effect. He stated that there was no record of the agreement in his department. Mr. Kent rose to state that he was stating that he had seen that there were after the fire of 1892.

The Administration of Local Affairs Bill was read third time and ordered to be sent to the Upper House for concurrence.

Committee of Whole on Supply. Mr. Coaker protested against proceeding with the votes until the report of the Fishery Commissioners, expressed his disapproval of $2,500 which was voted last year under the heading of travelling expenses, being paid to the Governor for entertaining. He thought the tuberculosis money was doing good. He criticized the vote of $20,000 for Agriculture and read some ludicrous reports from the Agricultural societies. In commenting on the Lobster fishery vote he recited instances of the slipshod way money was given out for the fostering of that industry.

Messrs. Jennings and Piccott then spoke on lobsters.

Mr. Coaker continuing, asked the Premier if anything was done regarding his report of the train accident, and was informed that the Government Engineer had been instructed to take proceedings against the railway contractors in case of any violations of the contract.

Mr. Morine speaking of the tuberculosis vote he was of the opinion that better results could be obtained. He said that the localized and specialized effort existing at present, was not the best way to grapple with but an endeavour should be made to get at the causes of the disease. He spoke of the good work done by the methods initiated by Hon. John Harvey and advocated now that a commission of professional and laymen be appointed to report on the best system to follow and the Government to act on that report.

The Premier said it was true that a good deal of this work has concentrated in St. John's and not enough in the outports but the Government were advised by Dr. Rendell that the best course was now being followed.

Regarding the increase of the Governor's travelling expenses from $1,000 to $2,500 he said that it was made to cover cost of entertaining visitors of Government and that such a course was in the interests of the country.

Mr. Lloyd said that the Prevention of Consumption was better than its cure and that a preventive campaign was the most effective and successful way to stop the spread of the disease. Referring to the campaign that was inaugurated by the Commission, headed by Hon. John Harvey, he spoke of the excellence of the work done all over the country, pointing out that the excellence of that work depended mainly on extending knowledge, by the distribution of literature and the education campaign conducted by school teachers in the outports. The main problem was not the cure of those who are already affected but to prevent those who are not afflicted with the disease. He said that the ravages of consumption in Newfoundland was even more dangerous than the war and as we were ready for the sake of Empire and honour to put up with an expenditure of a million dollars for the war, and it surely was reasonable to spend of the grant on an educational campaign to put down this worse scourge. He urged upon the Government to utilize the whole of the Tuberculosis grant and direct Dr. Rendell to take up the educative part of the campaign, which was conducted by the Commission, in addition to his present duties.

In connection with the vote of $2,500 for the Governor, his recollection was that the money was voted to meet travelling expenses and not entertainments. Mr. Lloyd pointed out that the salary of the Governor was raised to cover entertainment and extra cost of living, and that in addition a sum of $2,500 was voted for travelling expenses. Any practice in the past could not justify the illegality of paying this amount in equal monthly instalments as a part of the salary. Such payments were clearly illegal. The record of the House showed that it was not voted as a salary but as a fund for out of pocket expenses actually incurred in travelling; and although he considered that there was no intentional wrong-doing on the part of the Government or the Governor he considered the payments of a twentieth of the vote of $2,500 for travelling expenses in equal instalment was illegally made. He cited a similar instance of where a Judge in Canada who obtained money similarly and was forced by the law of the land to return the money. If the Government, said Mr. Lloyd, wanted to pay this amount as an addition to the Governor's salary why not put it down in the Estimates as salary in the regular way. Mr. Morine emphasized the illegality of the payment to the Governor and thought the Auditor General lacking in his duty in permitting the payment of this money in equal monthly instalments as salary. It was a clear infringement of the Audit Act.

Mr. Kent also criticized the illegality of the payment of $2,500. It was voted last year expressly for travelling expenses and that the reason for increasing the Governor's salary was that some years ago the salary was reduced and it was the intention to bring it up to its original standard. There was no other understanding when every member of the House voted on the matter, and the Government intends to continue paying the instalments monthly to state it definitely in the Estimates and not continue illegality. Mr. Kent thought that there should be a justification also for increasing the Governor's salary, as to what applied to Government House applied to every other department of the Civil Service in which occupants were understood. Mr. Kent also pointed out that $1,500 was allowed for two road inspectors, $900 for the West End and $700 for the East End. He showed the satisfaction of the House that Inspector Parsons, though paid the smallest, was a competent and exceptional man, had most work to do with roads and urged that he be paid as much salary as the West End Inspector, Mr. Dewy and Mr. Higgins strongly endorsed Mr. Kent's remarks as did also the Minister of Public Works and the Prime Minister.

The Committee rose and asked leave to sit again this afternoon. The remainder of the order paper was deferred and the House adjourned at 6.30.

Death of Mr. John J. Carnell, Halifax.

A message was received this morning by Mrs. Carnell, Cochrane Street, that Mr. John J. Carnell, of Halifax, carriage builder, passed away on Tuesday. The deceased was seventy years of age and left St. John's many years ago and established a carriage factory at Halifax, which he conducted with success. He leaves a sister here in the person of the mother of Mr. J. C. Oke, and many relatives among the Carnell and Collier families.

A matter which calls for some explanation is the delay in the transmission of the message. The message as delivered shows that it was filed in Halifax on Tuesday and received here on Wednesday, but it was not delivered until 9.30 this morning.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, May 5.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
General French reports that the line in front of Ypres, which required readjustment owing to the loss of ground through the enemy's use of asphyxiating gases, is now successfully completed. The new line runs west of Zonnebeke. A half-hearted enemy attack northeast of Ypres was easily beaten off.

The French Government report continued progress in the region of Steenstraat. Three enemy attacks were repulsed in Champagne and advance was made in the Argonne.
The Russian Government report the Black Sea fleet vigorously bombarded the right bank of the Dnieper. In Galicia the enemy succeeded in crossing the river in the direction of Strijl. The fiercest battle continues, the Russians capturing 1,200 prisoners.

HARCOURT.
DARDANELLES LANDING.
CAIRO, May 5.

Some of the British troops who took part in landing at the Dardanelles, have arrived in Egypt. They are the first men to reach here from the scene of fighting, and they relate some striking incidents in connection with the landing of the Allied forces at the Straits. At San Ban the men were so eager to get ashore that they jumped from the small boats before they had been beached, and found themselves up to their necks in water. Wading ashore, they rushed three ridges in succession, and a running bayonet fight extended for a distance of more than three miles. In the words of one of the invaders, "we lifted the Turks on the end of our bayonets and hurled them over our heads." Continuing their recital, these men related that with the arrival of reinforcements the ridges were carried by storm in the first rush.

Concentrated Turkish fire during the beginning of the fighting was terrible. Shrapnel, machine gun fire and rifle fire caused very heavy casualties among the Allies, but the wounds of many men are slight, and they will soon be on the firing line.

STILL USING GASES.
LONDON, May 5.—(Official.)
The general situation remains unchanged. Fighting is progressing at Hill 60, southeast of Ypres, on which the Germans attained a footing this morning under cover of poisonous gases which were excessively used and were favored by weather conditions. A feeble attack also preceded by extensive use of poisonous gases, made east of Ypres, was easily repulsed, our artillery inflicting severe losses on the enemy. In the neighborhood of Guinchy the Germans exploded a mine, again employing poisonous gases. Fourteen were poisoned, but otherwise the enemy's efforts in this direction failed completely.

water supplies to fall into the hands of the enemy, in a form which allows it to be used for man or beast."

When Swakopmund was evacuated, the reply from Colonel Francke continued, the officer in charge had several bags of cooking salt thrown into the wells, but it was found that this "could in a short time be rendered ineffective." "Therefore," Colonel Francke's letter said, "we tried copper dip, and found that by using this material, any enemy occupying the town would for some time have to rely on water from elsewhere."

The communication says that despite General Botha's protest, the practice continued. Messages said to have been from Capt. Kruger of the German troops, intercepted on March 22nd, are quoted in the communication as saying, "The pistol at Ghahid have been instructed to thoroughly infect with disease the Ida mine. Approach Swakop and Ida mine with extreme caution. Don't water there any more."

Since their evacuation of Aus, Warmbad and other places, General Botha says in his letter, "the German troops have consistently poisoned all wells along the railway line during their retreat."

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

LONDON, May 5.
German official report, issued this afternoon claims victories both over the Russians in Western Galicia, and over the British to the east of Ypres, in Flanders. Field Marshal French, British Commander-in-Chief, admitted that he was compelled to readjust his lines in the region of Ypres, but the French communication far from confirming the German victory in Belgium, states that German attacks were repulsed, and that the Germans being taken on the flank by the French artillery, suffered very severely.

A late report from the British War Office also says that German attacks were repulsed, although the Germans used asphyxiating gases, and did get a footing by use of these fumes on Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, which since the British captured it recently, has been repeatedly attacked.

There has been fighting all along the rest of the western front, in all of which the Germans claim to have been successful. The French, however, have another story to tell. They insist that their advance continues both along the Yser Canal, and in Flanders, and in Woivre, where battles have been continuous for weeks on end.

Conflicting reports from belligerents in the East make it impossible to judge of the position there. Austrians and Germans to-night say the Russians have been badly beaten in Western Galicia, and have commenced to retreat from the western Carpathians, whereas the latest Russian report, while admitting that Austro-Germans succeeded in getting across Dunajec River, declares that they were checked there. The country around the East Prussian frontier also has been the scene of battles of more or less importance; while at the other end of the Russian line in Eastern Galicia, the Russians are attacking the Austro-Germans, despite their reported defeat, or check, in the western part of that province.

Athens credits the Allies with further successes in their attacks on the Dardanelles and Smyrna, but the Turks again report defeat of the Allied troops who have landed on Gallia Peninsula.
German submarines seemingly now are devoting their attention to the British fishing fleet. Fifteen trawlers have been sunk since Sunday night, but without any loss of life.

HOSTILITIES MAY BE AVOIDED.

PEKIN, May 5.
The Third Secretary of the Japanese Legation, to-day visited Tiao Yuen, Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, and intimated to the Legation that they might still be able to prevent hostilities. He asked whether China's reply of May 1st to the Japanese demand was final. Despatches received here from Tsinan, Province of Shantung, report that the Japanese troops have mounted nine cannon in the suburbs of that city. The Chinese troops, obeying the general order from Peking, did not interfere.

"Came Out of Ypres Battle O.K."

Last evening Mr. J. J. French, of the Evening Telegram-staff, received the following message from Harbor Grace:—

"Cable from Sandy. Came out of Ypres battle O.K."
W. W. FRENCH.

"Sandy" is a son of Mr. Robert French, sailmaker, Harbor Grace, but has been living in Montreal for about five years. He is a member of the 5th Royal Highlanders, which forms part of the 13th Battalion of the First Canadian Contingent, and when the Highlanders volunteered en bloc, "Sandy" was one of the number, his father being made aware of the fact about five days after the declaration of war. There are several other Newfoundland boys in the Royal Highlanders, and we hope that they, too, have had a similar good fortune.

Hr. Grace Notes.

News has just been received in town that Mr. Albert Brazil, son of the late John Brazil, has enlisted with the Canadian Contingent, and left Montreal for France, it is said, about three weeks ago. Albert is not a new hand as he fought in the Boer War.

The harbor is full of ice, and some men crossed over from the north to the south side yesterday—a very dangerous journey.

Miss Dora Stickland, one of the nurses at the General Hospital, St. John's, is in town on a visit to Miss Carrie Parsons.

We have been asked to draw the attention of the goat-owning public to the posters calling for yokes, and asking the owners of dogs to clog them. In the west end particularly, this is not done, much to the annoyance of the other citizens who keep none. No doubt it is simply a slight neglect, and not a determination to defy the law.

Some young lads, while playing near the beach at Caplin Cove, on Monday evening were surprised to see what appeared to be a large dog trying to get up on a pan of ice. It was no doubt a seal that had got a wee bit out of its reckoning.

Mr. T. C. Makinson, of the Goules, was in town for a few hours on Monday. Mr. M. is a busy man, and although living so near, can only spare time to visit us occasionally.

Misses Hettie and Louise Yetman left for Barenwood on Monday afternoon on a few days visit. They will be the guests of Capt. Bartlett and family.

Mr. W. J. James, Manager of the Nfld. Boot & Shoe Co., who spent Sunday here, returned to St. John's on Monday.

TRANSPORT SHIPS.

During the last six months transport vessels with their freight of troops, guns and provisions have steamed to and fro across the Channel with the regularity of clock work. At the outbreak of war hundreds of ships, which were commandeered for this purpose, cargo-boats, cattle boats, steamers and emigrant vessels being pressed into service. Each transport has been fitted so as to carry horses, guns, motor-cars, aeroplanes, and the hundred-and-one necessities of war which are required on the Continent. Great cranes on the quayside hoist the guns, with their waterproof covers, on to the transport, and they are firmly stacked in the hold with other heavy objects where weight does not perceptibly interfere with the balance of the ship. When possible, horses are led on to the transports through covered-in gangways, but those who prove vicious are coaxed into a wooden cage and are slung on board by cranes. Each horse on the vessel is placed in a narrow stall only 2ft. 6in. in width. It is not possible for the animal to lie down in his narrow prison, so, to provide the horse with some means of resting his legs, a canvas sling like a hammock is placed under his body. On this the animal can rest his whole weight and can sleep without falling. The captain of a transport has to convey the troops on board safely to their destination, and there his responsibility ends. The feeding of the soldiers is in the hands of the Government, who supply the food and drink necessary for men and horses during the voyage. A military commander sails with every transport and controls the troops. In the present war, the troop-transports cast off from the English shore with little excitement or fuss. There is no shrieking of sirens, playing of bands, or crowds of hand-waving friends to give the ships a "send-off," when voyages considerably longer than that across the Channel had to be negotiated.

ORIGIN OF WAR TERMS.

With the exception of shrapnel, named after its inventor, an English colonel, there are very few war terms now in use which have a British origin. Sword, musket, grenadier, dragoon are all alien terms. "Grenadier" is generally supposed to come from the French. The word is, however, of German birth, and originally was "grenatier," the force owing their name to the hand-grenades with which they were armed. The word "musket" has an Italian derivation—"moschetto," which was really a species of small sparrow-hawk. In ancient times and in the Middle Ages the name musket was used to designate a small mortar which threw arrows. When gunpowder was invented a small cannon was baptized "musket" and later the rifle of the ordinary infantryman earned the name, while the whole unit was called "musketeers." Both "dragoon" and "cuirassier" come from the French. The dragoons had a dragon painted on their shields, and the cuirassiers carried a breast-protector made of copper—in French "cuivre." "Hussar" comes from the Hungarian word "husz," which means "twenty." The force derived its name from the fact that long ago every twentieth recruit in Hungary was placed in one of the mounted regiments. The Ulians owe their name to the Turkish word "oglan," youth. "Sword" comes from the Polish word "szabla," and "pistolet" from the Italian town Pistoja, which was famous in the Middle Ages for its arms factories. The bayonet takes its name from the French town Bayonne, where the inventor lived some 125 years ago. "Howitzer" is derived from the Czech word "houfnice," a wooden apparatus used in ancient times for the purpose of throwing stones. We meet with the word also in the Hussite war in the fifteenth century, where the weapon figures as "hanflitz." The officer's rank of major was derived originally from the Spanish word "mayor," signifying great or high. Even "war" itself springs from a foreign source, coming down from the Italian and Spanish "guerra," and the French "guerre" from the old German "werra."
