Under False Colors

OR Lord Somerton's Ally.

CHAPTER XII. A DREAD FOE.

"I am not likely to forget this path," Colin Ernscliffe said, when they were within a stone's throw of the ayah's dismal home. "It was here I encountered Lord Somerton, and it must have been fate that guided my steps this way, for I had wandered a long distance out of my course. By Jove! so this is your ancient nurse's cottage. She must be fond of the dark!"

Elsie tapped at the door, and on the instant there was the distinct "clink, clink" of coins, as though money was being hastily secured.

"Will you not open the door to me, Zeba?" "It is I—it is Elsie," the girl called.

"One minute, dearie—one minute," was the rather hoarse response, but the minute lengthened into five before the bolts were withdrawn, and the door was opened.

The sudden glare of daylight dazzled Zeba's eyes, and she looked anything but pleased to see that Elsie was accompanied by a man—and that man a stranger.

"Who is this?" she demanded, suspiciously. "Ah, my pretty lamb, trouble has crossed your path. Send him away at once—send him away! Why take your greatest enemy within your doors?"

"Silence, Zeba!" Elsie sternly commanded, her cheeks flushing with anger, for Ernscliffe's face had suddenly grown as white as death. "If your prophecies come so glibly, why do you not discover who it is—what man it is that haunts the vicinity of your cottage? To me it is a standing terror just some harm befall you."

The Indian's eyes glistened with cunning.

"None but friends ever come to see me," she replied. "Why should they? What is there—who is there to hurt Zeba? I will tell the gentleman's fortune for a silver coin," she added, suddenly.

Elsie was about to interpose, but Ernscliffe had already thrust his hand into his pocket, and produced, not a silver coin, but a bright gold sovereign.

"Perhaps this will wear the strange woman into regarding me with less disfavour," he whispered.

"Gold! gold!" Zeba croaked hoarsely, snatching at the coin with her clawlike fingers. "Gold is bright and beautiful, but nothing can glid lies until they shine like the truth!"

She took Ernscliffe's hand between her own, and he watched her with a strange fascination.

"Zeba, you must be able to see in the dark," shuddered Elsie. "This face grows more uncanny every day!"

came, but you are my young mistress's bitterest enemy! You are her father's most dreaded foe! and I curse you—curse you!"

She uttered the last words with a shrill shriek, and Elsie angrily bade her be silent.

"Zeba, I do not wish to unnecessarily alarm you, but I fear for your safety, and I have come to plead with you to leave this horrid place."

"No," replied Zeba. "I will never leave it! It is mine! Sir John gave it to me! It contains my secrets!"

She whispered the last words, and stared from side to side.

"Ha! ha! Money will not buy them—my secrets and yours! The secrets of Blairwood. I have fooled him! I have fooled him!"

"Fooled whom?" demanded Ernscliffe, interested in spite of himself.

"The man with much gold—hundreds of beautiful pieces of gold. Ha! ha!"

"She is losing her reason," Colin said, in a low voice to Elsie. "It is a sin that she should be left here in loneliness and dith. I am afraid that you will be accused of cruelty, of inhumanity, if this gets to the ears of those people in authority who interest themselves in the well-being of the unfortunate."

"Do you think so?" asked the girl, in sudden terror. "Oh, how disgraceful it would be! What am I to do?"

she added, piteously.

"Have the surrounding trees cut down, if she insists upon staying here, and send in workmen to clean and repair the place. I believe that she has hoarded a few coins—"

"You lie!" hissed Zeba. "I have no money—I have nothing! You are my darling's enemy—curse you! curse you!"

"Let us go," Ernscliffe said, nervously.

"One moment," responded Elsie, firmly. "I am convinced that papa has no knowledge of the real state of things, and I shall take your advice, Colin. I am mistress of Blairwood! Papa placed its conduct in my hands, under the guidance of the rector. In a case like this, where the well-being of my poor old nurse is at stake, I need not consult Mr. Vallance."

She turned to Zeba, who was seated on a low stool, her head between her hands, her bead-like eyes shining with a phosphorescent kind of glow in the sun-gloom—saying sharply and decisively:

"I will not permit this sort of thing to go on another day, Zeba. Your cottage shall be taken from you, but it shall be made wholesome, clean, and brightened by sunshine. To-morrow the trees shall be cut down, so you had better prepare."

At first the Indian woman uttered a hiss like that of an angry snake, then she clasped her arms about her young mistress, and begged piteously that her home be in no way interfered with.

"I am determined upon it, Zeba, for your own good," Elsie said, grimly. Ernscliffe led her by the arm from the cottage into the fresh, sweet air, and for many a yard they heard the moans and curses of the ayah.

"I have done right, have I not, Colin?" the girl whispered, with white lips. "It grieves me bitterly to cause Zeba pain, but it is all for her good."

"Of course, it is," the artist told her; then both relapsed into silence, until the park was left behind, and the turrets of Blairwood church were visible beyond the top of a hill nearly a mile away.

Securing the church keys from Mr. Vallance, the rector, they hurried up to the gallery, and while Colin busied himself at the bellows, Elsie selected her music and began to play.

Never before had the young man heard such masterly music, and several times he found himself pausing in his occupation, and listening like one entranced. There were songs of sadness, mad melodies, the thunder of battle, and fairy numbers, and then Elsie paused, half laughing, half crying, for at times like these her soul went out to the music.

"Beautiful, my clever little woman!" Colin said, enthusiastically. "If you are not tired, will you play and sing once more to me?"

"Anything you like, darling," she replied, her eyes shining with gladness. "I am pleased that you like my music. I fly to it in every mood, and find relief. It is too me a kind of confessional, a medium through which I communicate my joys and sorrows."

Ernscliffe caressed her shining hair, and looked into the misty blue eyes that were turned up to him with ineffable tenderness.

"There is one melody of which I am extremely fond," he said, "and if you like I will sing with you. I think I can manage to do that as well as blow the bellows!"

"I have not heard my lover sing!" murmured Elsie.

"And you must not be too critical, young lady," smiled Colin.

He turned over the music, and their heads came very close together, so close that Mr. Vallance, who had quietly entered the church, and was standing in the chancel below, was horrified.

"This is my favorite I alluded to," continued the artist, pausing with the book open at "She Walks in Beauty."

He turned back to the bellows, while Elsie played the prelude; then, as the organ pealed, their voices rose in unison, and the rector listened like one transfixed.

"She walks in beauty, like the night Of cloudless climes and starry skies; And all that's best of dark and bright Meet in her aspect and her eyes, Thus mellowed to that tender light Which heaven to gaudy day denies."

"One shade the more, one ray the less, Had half impaired the nameless grace Which waves in every raven tress, Or softly lightens o'er her face, Where thoughts serenely sweet express— How pure, how dear, their dwelling-place."

"And on that cheek and o'er that brow, So soft, so calm, so eloquent, The smiles that win, the tints that glow, But tell of days in goodness spent, A mind at peace with all below, A heart whose love is innocent."

The organ ceased its music, and the voices became still, but Mr. Vallance saw that Colin Ernscliffe and Sir John Sterne's daughter were dangerously near to each other again. Dim and religious as the light was, he felt assured of this. He heard faint whispers in tones of endearment, and awoke to the fact that they were lovers in an advanced stage. He could not understand it. He had known Miss Sterne from babyhood, and never once had he reason to even suspect her of anything but truth and candor in all things. She had held in his estimation a high place for her goodness—her sweet charity—her almost angelic qualities—and now!

He shivered with dread. This Colin Ernscliffe was a stranger, by her own confession. Sir John was away, and had left Elsie to him as a sacred charge. He slipped quietly out of the church, for he could hear that the lovers were preparing to leave. He walked to a tombstone, and leaned against it, faint and sick at heart. He knew not why, but the air seemed filled with impending trouble—trouble for poor Elsie.

King's Guns Take Year to Build

The King is very particular about his guns, in which respect he resembles most good sportsmen.

Whether he is shooting grouse over the moors by Falmouth (as he will be doing shortly) or whether he is shooting pheasants at Sandringham, he always uses a fundamentally modern type of gun. In one respect, however, he remains old-fashioned—he has never discarded the now out-of-date hammer action. He finds it suits him admirably, and therefore very sensibly refuses to discard it.

A good gun, practically speaking, lasts for ever. For that reason royal orders are few and far between. When the King orders a gun, however, he does so a year before he requires it, for it takes a whole year to make—or "build"—the perfect weapon used by his Majesty.

The type of gun supplied to the King has now been standardized, and is known throughout the world. It costs a hundred and thirty guineas, and bears the royal crown in gold inlay on the lever.

What constitutes the ideal gun? The perfect gun, such as the King uses, weighs just 6½ lbs. It has a 12 bore, a barrel length of 30½ inches, and a stock exactly 14½ inches from tip to tip. These dimensions are the result of years of experience, and are known to be perfectly right for a man of medium height. Short men or men well on in years require modifications, and some old sportsmen have two inches taken off the barrels to reduce weight to its minimum.

Unless a gun shoots well, of course, all the fine workmanship in the world will not make it an efficient weapon for sport.

The King's guns are designed to achieve the maximum killing efficiency. This is attained by the manner in which the barrels are bored. The right barrel—the first fired—spreads the shot wide, covering a wide area and enhancing the chances of a hit when the birds are near. The left, fired usually as the birds are well away, is choked so that the shot travels farther, but does not spread so as to become inefficient.

The English guns—for his Majesty has Irish and Scottish weapons, too, of course—are produced in their entirety under one roof; and in this respect they are unique. From start to finish a hundred men are employed on each gun.

Serve stewed prunes with grated lemon.

Oysters are delicious when sautéed and served on toast with creamed celery sauce.

Finely chopped candied fruit makes an attractive garnish for a fruit salad.

GERMANY'S TROUBLES. BERLIN, Oct. 17. The German Government will be forced to call for a new ministry, which is becoming bolder in its defiance of the central government's authority decreed in the existing state of emergency. The present situation has been measurably complicated through to-day's action by the Communist party, the governing party of which demands immediate abolition of the existing state of emergency. The relations between the individual federal states and the central government shall be settled. This action may cause an rift in Stresemann's laborious government, in that the Socialists will withdraw from the government under the party's radical left wing.

BRUCE FOR AN EMPIRE NAVY. LONDON, Oct. 7. Stanley M. Bruce, Australian premier, in an interview to-night, dealing with the effect of the Washington treaties on the British naval policy, expressed the hope that the Imperial Conference would endorse the principle of one Empire navy, and emphasized that now that the Empire was no longer engaged in competition with any power, the important question was the re-equipping of the naval bases to maintain the mobility of the main fleet. "With-out a base in the Pacific capable of docking modern capital ships, the Pacific and India oceans would be virtually closed to the British fleet."

Without such base the ratio agreed to at Washington is in the case of the British Empire absolutely ineffectual on the Pacific. That is the position the Conference has to face, and until it is altered the ability of the navy to defend Empire interests in the Pacific is largely a delusion."

McLACHLAN FOUND GUILTY. HALIFAX, Oct. 17. James B. McLachlan, former Secretary of District 26, U.M.W.A., was to-day found guilty by a jury of the Supreme Court of the charge of seditious libel in connection with a letter he published over his signature during the recent coal and steel strike in Cape Breton. The trial has been occupying the attention of the Supreme Court since Monday morning, and the jury retired with the case at 12.45 to-day, returning at 2.15 with the verdict. The prisoner was remanded to jail for sentence which will be pronounced October 1st unless the Judge decides otherwise. The maximum penalty is twenty years. Col. G. S. Harrington, counsel for the accused, did not make any appeal for his client and did not say any appeal had been considered. It was announced in court that the case of Daniel Livingstone, charged jointly with McLachlan on a seditious libel count, would not be taken up at present and the accused stands remanded in bail. Livingstone is the former President of District 26.

CABLE OPERATORS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT. ANTIGONISH, N.S., Oct. 17. Thomas O'Donoghue, 18, and David Peters, 30, are dead; and Mortimer Desbarres, 17, is suffering from painful bruises as the result of an auto accident to-day near St. Andrews, eight miles from here, in which the car, owned and driven by Peters, turned over when it was steered out to avoid a puddle on the road. The three men were members of the Hazel Hill Cable Station, near Canso. O'Donoghue and Peters died at St. Martha's Hospital where they were taken. (At least one of the unfortunate victims in this motor accident was well known here—Mr. Peters. He was one of the original staff of the Commercial Cable Company here, coming in 1914, and working at the Cuckold's Cove Station. He remained here for about eighteen months, making many friends, who will deeply regret his untimely passing. From here he was transferred to the Canso office, where he was continually employed till yesterday. It is understood he was shortly to be married.)

LOYD GEORGE TAKES DAY OFF. CHICAGO, Oct. 17. Fatigued by the strenuous programme he has followed since his arrival in America, Lloyd George spent this morning resting at his hotel. His programme last night and to-day was cancelled to permit him to rest and recover from the slight indisposition felt late yesterday after he had gone through with most of his first day's programme, but this afternoon after a trip round the city incognito, he expected to resume his prearranged schedule.

FLOOD RECEDING IN OKLAHOMA. OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 17. SHOT EACH OTHER TO DEATH. MARSHALL, Tex., Oct. 17. The sheriff of Marion County and the constable of Jefferson met on the main street last night and without interchange of a word shot each other to death. Both were past fifty years of age. It is believed the action was prompted by a bad feeling that had arisen over the serving of some legal papers on citizens. Their revolvers blazed in unison, and the bullets crossed one another when both fired several shots simultaneously.

TWO DADDIES OF MINE.

The large audience at the Casino last night were given a delightful entertainment when the light comedy "Two Daddies of Mine," was staged by the Mae Edwards Company for the first time. While the Comedy does not bring out to the full the histrionic qualities of the actors, it abounds in humorous scenes that afford the audience a thoroughly enjoyable evening. Such plot as there is centres around two old men, one a retired doctor and the other a retired lawyer, each bent on trying to get ahead of the other. The object of their affections is their ward whom they are trying to marry—the doctor to his adopted son, Robert; and the lawyer to his guest, Maurice. Stanford, a parasite, the merriment throughout is caused by these two old cripples trying to accomplish their object, not in order to make their ward happy, but with the intention of beating the other. The situations as they develop cause much fun, but give little scope for strong acting. The leading part was taken by Mae Edwards who played the adopted son and the parasite respectively. Mr. Jack Corbin took the part of the "dark horse" who, at the crucial moment stepped in and won the girl himself. Miss Fischer as the maid, and Miss Riggs as the colored servant, certainly played their parts well indeed. The intervals between the acts were filled by vaudeville specialties, in which the performers in roles altogether different from those in which they scored on the first two nights won fresh laurels and were highly appreciated. The musical specialties also were well received. The play will be repeated to-

What Happened the German U-Boats

Some interesting, if belated, information has recently been handed out by the U.S. Navy department respecting German submarines, their number and their fate. It appears that 281 U-boats had been delivered by the contractors and 197 were under construction when armistice was signed. Of this number 146 were destroyed by the allied forces. The loss in personnel was 5,346, including 515 officers. Of the total lost 37 were accounted for by depth charges, 36 by fixed mines, 20 were lost in fights with enemy U-boats, 14 by engine and other troubles, 13 sunk by destroyers, torpedo boats and sub chasers, 8 were lost through accidental ramming, while 12 were accounted for by fishing boats, aerial bombing and submarine nets. Of the losses 56 took place in the English Channel, 26 in the North Sea, 16 off the east coast of England, 16 in the Mediterranean, 12 off the Dutch coast and the remainder in a wide field, practically covering the seven seas.

Considering the great havoc perpetrated by the German submarines during the war, and the activity of these craft over a period of four years, the losses cannot be considered abnormally large, either in personnel or vessels. Between the U-boat on the one hand and the bombing plane on the other it looks very much as if the battleship of great size and enormous cost had about ceased to be effective.

A Real Social Success
at the C.C.C. Hall

A Dance given by Mr. E. Bowring, Jr., in the C. C. C. Hall last night, was attended by about forty couples and proved one of the most successful social events of the season. The decorations under the supervision of Messrs John Cook, S. James and J. Chate, who converted the room into a veritable bower of beauty. Magic lanterns, many colored lights, streamers and color decorations, avenues of trees etc., and confetti, all made an enchanting picture. The Prince's Orchestra furnished the music and contributed a nicely arranged program. The dance was in honor of Mr. Bowring's sister, who has been spending a holiday here and is returning to England soon.

Soccer in Old Country

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(By Canadian Press Cable.)—That the Football Association is pursuing with unabated energy the cleaning up campaign which it instituted last season was manifested at Sheffield yesterday afternoon when the commission of inquiry investigated incidents in the Huddersfield-Nottingham match on September 15 which resulted in injury to Huddersfield, and Flint of Nottinghamshire, being ordered off the field.

The commission suspended Flint and Jupp for one month and strongly cautioned Ironmonger, goalkeeper for Nottinghamshire.

Both clubs were warned as to their future conduct.

The commission found that the first half of the game in question was not played in the true spirit of sport and was unduly vicious.

Huddersfield had asked for the inquiry and was ordered to pay the expenses incurred thereby.

Model Town in Michigan Sold to Henry Ford

L'Anse, Mich., Oct. 16. (A.P.)—Pequaming, nine miles to the north of L'Anse, is Henry Ford's town. The highest rent there is $1 a month, electric light and water are cost, the doctor's bill is never more than $1.50 a month, and fuel families are unknown.

The Detroit automobile manufacturer acquired possession of Pequaming recently from Charles Hebard and Sons, Inc., pioneer lumbermen of the peninsula.

When the town was built in 1877 the owners set about to make it something different from other lumber towns. They wanted a community of comfortable homes and happy, contented workmen. They seemed to think more of the welfare of their employees than did of the profits of their enterprise.

There are 105 cottages for the workmen, two churches—one Protestant and one Catholic—an amusement hall, a school, a clubhouse, a waterworks and electric lighting plant, a telephone system, a general store, where all residents shop, and a public playground and park.

Each workman pays the same rent—$1 a month. He need never worry about coal, for he burns none. Instead he stufa his big stove with hardwood from the company's forests, paying $1.75 for a large wagon-load—barely the cost of cutting and delivering. A doctor administers to the ills of the community at a charge of $1.50 a month.

The beauty of Pequaming has won frequent comment from tourists. The streets are well shaded, the houses are of varying types, and there is a garden with every house. Purchase of the town gives Mr. Ford ownership of Pequaming's only industry, the saw-mill property of the Hebard corporation. This includes a large saw mill, lath and shingle mills, and 40,000 acres of land containing 400,000,000 feet of standing timber.

The saw-mill is the third purchased by Ford since his invasion of the Upper Peninsula two years ago. The first was at Iron Mountain, now fast becoming an industrial center of the Upper Peninsula, and the second was at L'Anse.

The Pequaming purchase makes the Detroit manufacturer the largest single taxpayer in Baraga. He will pay about three-fourths of the taxes of the entire county.

Mr. Ford has not announced what policy he will follow at Pequaming, or whether he will continue the Hebard programme that has made Pequaming a model town.

The C. B. R. E. Discuss the Effect of Reduced Wages

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 13.—Through its secretary, M. M. Maclean, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees has prepared the following reply to suggestions of certain public bodies that wages of railway workers be reduced with a view to stimulating business in Canada.

"A reduction of the wages of railway employees is urged by the Halifax Board of Trade and the Council of the Board of Trade of Quebec City. This, it is agreed, would make possible lower retail rates and so stimulate business.

"Business men are possibly not always so wise or enterprising as they seem. If low wages is the great stimulus and panacea for business, it is a wonder that business men do not transfer their enterprises to China, India, or other low wage countries."

"The truth of the matter is, of course, that low wages are associated with a small production, and petty business generally. If business men gave some study to the industrial statistics collected by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, they would not be so certain that their problems can be solved by reducing wages. Let us consider some figures of the manufacturing industries of Quebec City, Montreal and Toronto: said figures being derived from the last available industrial census.

"The manufacturing industries paid the following average of salaries and wages:— Toronto . . . . . $1.060 Montreal . . . . . 1.048 Quebec City . . . . . 738 All Canada . . . . . 1.010

"The gross value of the production per employee was on the average: Toronto . . . . . $5.171 Montreal . . . . . 5.284 Quebec City . . . . . 3.179

"The net value—that is, the value added by the manufacturing process was: Toronto . . . . . $2.324 Montreal . . . . . 2.267 Quebec City . . . . . 1.517 All Canada . . . . . 2.407

"The figures of gross values of production are not conclusive, because they include the cost of raw materials which varies for different industries. But the figures of net values, that is the value added by the manufacturing process, are instructive. The Quebec City manufacturers pay a low average of wages and salaries; and they have to be content with a low production, too. It is not the value added by the manufacturing process that low wages are profitable, but to show that though they pay low wages, the productive capacity of their labor is greater relatively than in other cities. But this is not the case. For every dollar the Quebec City manufacturer pays in wages he obtains a smaller productive power than does the manufacturer in Montreal, Toronto or All Canada.

Time and Money

London Sunday Express: We often say that time is money, but no money can buy a second of time. Time lost is gone forever. Yet the man who is frugal with money is often a spendthrift of time. There is nothing that we squander more lavishly. Time is a treasure. The wise man practices the art of thrift in time as well as in money. Above all things, youth ought to be niggardly of its time. The young man who knows the worth of time as well as the worth of money is the master of his fate and the captain of his soul.

COACH-BUILDER WRITES REPORT OF 9,000 WORDS.

Some remarkable performances with the pen have been accomplished by Mr. R. Risipin, of Alveston, Derby, a coach-builder employed at the railway works. He uses ordinary ink and mapping pens, and some of his most clever efforts in compressed writing include:—

The Lord's Prayer eight times in one language on the space occupied by a threepenny piece.

The Lord's Prayer in eight languages on the space occupied by a penny.

The Lord's Prayer on a piece of paper 4 1/2 in. long that can be passed through the eye of an ordinary sewing needle.

The first chapter of Genesis (more than 800 words) on a piece of paper the size of a postage stamp.

A report of the Charlesworth conspiracy case, about 9,000 words on a postcard.

Mr. Risipin regards the writing of the 9,000 words of the Charlesworth case report as his masterpiece. It took him 32 hours.

TRY THESE LITTLE HEALTH HINTS; THEY COST NEITHER TIME NOR MONEY.

Experiments in search of health, if made by way of pills, potions, or the like, are apt to fail, and may possibly bring about a worse state of affairs. The following hints, however, involve no risk and hold the additional recommendation that their efficacy can be quickly tested.

When in bed put your feet on a pillow and lay your head flat on a firm bolster—filled with horse-hair, for choice. If the change made at once is a little upsetting, adopt the flat position by degrees. The result will be a better distribution and circulation of the blood and a more refreshing sleep.

Hygiene means health. It may upset the routine of many years, but your daily bath should be taken at night, before you retire. The day's accumulation of dirt, grease, etc., is thus cleansed away, and not incorporated

Another Great Earthquake

900 MILES WEST OF LAND.

Has another great earthquake an accompanying tidal wave occurred?

The seismograph of Mr. J. J. S. the famous West Bromwich expert earthquakes, registered a very violent shock after one on yesterday morning.

"The alarm bell," he said, rang at once that there was a very earthquake somewhere.

"Stonyhurst Observatory, Aberg and Dublin recorded the shock at same time. The shock, which lasted for half an hour, came probably from the Atlantic 1,000 miles south-west Greenland and 900 miles west of land."—Copyright, London Daily Press.

Newspapers a "Key Industry"

Westminster Gazette: City life of today is a very intricate thing and newspapers are related to it as a "key industry." Most of us have felt very much the existence of key industries; but if such things can exist in the modern world, the newspaper is an indispensable example in the modern world. As the vehicle of news, the newspaper is a very important part of trade and commerce.

Forty Years at the Old Bailey

"FIELDING" A HAMMER MEANT FOR THE JUDGE.

The pleasant-faced official who, in barrister's wig and gown, sat at the desk of his own under the Recorder in the Central Criminal Court, is a puzzle to strangers unfamiliar with legal procedure.

True, he steps into the limelight at the beginning of the trial when he tells the accused in the dock that he is "indicted for, and also stands charged with—" the crime and asks prisoner if he is guilty or not guilty. And at the end of the trial he asks the jury for their verdict ("And is that the verdict of you all?")

Began at Sixteen.

At other times he is either listening to the case as keenly as if he were the judge's shadow, or is busily writing. And occasionally you will see him stand up and hand the judge the paper on which he has been writing. Then he sits down and perhaps rubs his chin expectantly.

The pleasant-faced official has been at the Old Bailey for forty years. On the day he completed the round figure the Recorder himself was the first to congratulate him.

Mr. Herbert Austin came from Reading School into the Old Bailey—as a clerk in 1883—when he was sixteen. His rise to the position of Deputy Clerk with his years, and may be said to have been immersed in the technique of the law all his career. He ought to be a dry-as-dust—a living tomb of lengthy phrases and concise expression.

Actually once he is free of the Court and of the mass of papers on his desk in his private room he can relax into smiles and good fellowship, and be a very human and charming man indeed.

Thrilling Scenes at Trials.

He has seen many changes in the administration of Criminal Law, notably the Act of 1898, enabling accused persons to give evidence on their own behalf, and the establishment of the Court of Criminal Appeal in 1908. The Indictments Act in 1915 was a welcome innovation, in that it rendered intelligible in criminal cases much more than the unintelligible to accused persons.

He has seen many changes in the personnel of legal administration, and has acted as officer of the Court under four Lord Chief Justices (Lord Coleridge, Lord Russell, Lord Alverstone, and Lord Reading), and has served under four Records (Sir Thomas Chambers, Sir Charles Hall, Sir Forest Fulton, and Sir Ernest Wild).

The Clerk of the Court is responsible for all arraignments, indictments, and sentence of death. His head is packed with an exact knowledge of procedure in the conduct of cases, and it often happens that the Clerk, free to study from his impersonal position the working of the machinery as the case develops, is able to hint to the judge a way out of a difficulty.

As to drama, it goes without saying that Mr. Austin has witnessed exciting scenes. There was the terrible struggle in the dock in 1896 between Albert Millsom and Henry Fowler, subsequently convicted of the murder of Mr. Henry Smith at Muswell Hill.

A Fight in the Dock.

There had been a desperate fight with the police when these two men were arrested at Bath. In the course of the trial one gave the other away in cross-examination—whereupon the aggrieved one sprang upon his colleague, and these two strong and active men, each about thirty years of age, fought furiously.

The glass screens about the dock were smashed as they rolled, a struggling, cursing mass, with the police trying to separate them. It took five minutes to do this—and the dock by this time was nearly wrecked!

The trials of the Suffragettes provided lively moments at the Old Bailey. During one of these a hammer was thrown, presumably at the judge, from the back of the Court. However, Mr. Austin looked like being the target, and would have received a nasty blow had he not "fielded" it with the skill of a good cricketer—which Mr. Austin certainly was at that time.

What amused the judge and counsel and others was the calm way Mr. Austin returned his work—as if hammers were pitched at him periodically every day.

A less dangerous missile took him by surprise while another Suffragette trial was in progress: it glanced off his shoulder, and the marks of it are still to be seen on the woodwork of his chair. It was well that the missile was wide of the mark, nevertheless, for it was a rotten tomato.

A Callous Murderer.

Of all the criminals whom Mr. Austin has seen in the dock—from O'Donnell, convicted of the murder in 1883 of James Carey, the Phoenix Park Incident—down to Mrs. Thompson and Brwaters—the most stony-hearted villain was James Seddon, the poisoner of Miss Barrow.

His meanness, avarice, selfishness, and smug self-satisfaction, were such as to leave a sordid memory (writes A. W. S. in the "Evening News"). The judge, a fellow Mason, was much moved in passing sentence, but Seddon preserved a contemptuous, unemotional front to the very end.

Mrs. Dyer, the baby farmer; Mrs. Pearce, "the perambulator murder" (she wheeled the bodies of Mrs. Phoebe Hoag and her child away from her rooms in Kentish Town and left them in different places); Bennett, who murdered his wife on Yarmouth Beach; Thomas Neill, alias Cream, the poisoner; Crippen, the murderer of Belle Elmore; and Ethel Morrison, who killed Louis Beron on Clapham Common—these are some of the most notable characters Mr. Austin has seen in front of him fighting for their lives.

MAURETANIA THE MARVELLOUS.

A very sensible scheme of co-operation has been arranged between the Cunard and White Star Companies with regard to winter sailings between Southampton and New York. Instead of each company maintaining a weekly service, a Cunard steamer will be despatched one week and the next weekly sailing will be taken by one of the White Star fleet. The advantages of such an arrangement are obvious. The Transatlantic passenger trade is practically a seasonal one. There is, of course, a constant steady stream of traffic right through the year, but those who travel for business or other essential reasons are comparatively few in number compared with the tourist element. This class of traveller fills the ships either eastward or westward from May onwards to September. During the remainder of the year competition for business is naturally very keen, and neither of the British lines running between the southern port and New York could hope to anything like fill their first and second-class accommodations. Under these circumstances the maintenance of a fast weekly winter service by the two rival lines was not a paying proposition. The new arrangement will therefore afford a certain amount of relief to both undertakings, especially as a similar policy is to be adopted with regard to Liverpool sailings. The public will not suffer in any way, for there will be a mid-week sailing from Southampton to New York and a Saturday departure from Liverpool alternately by Cunard and White Star vessels. Apart from the economical advantages of such a scheme, the companies will be assisted in another way. Under the strain of providing a regular weekly service it was difficult to arrange for the withdrawal of the big, fast vessels for their periodic overhaul. The substituted ships were usually smaller and slower and their accommodation on a lower plane of luxury, with the natural result that intending passengers frequently held back for a more attractive vessel, and thus diminished the earnings of the stop-gang. Under the new arrangement abundant leisure will be afforded for the withdrawal of units which require reconditioning. Thus during the winter months the Olympic, Homeric and Mauretania will all come under the hands of the ship-repairers. The first-named will undergo an extensive overhaul, while the Homeric, which

The Majority of these vessels have passed away. The torpedoing of the Lusitania will never be forgotten. The Campania was sunk in collision after doing much useful work, both mercantile and naval, subsequent to the burning out and breaking up of her sister-ship the Lucretia. The St. Paul, St. Louis and La Provence have all been removed from the Register. The Kronprinzessin Cecilie and the Kaiser Wilhelm II, now known as the Mount Vernon and Agamemnon, are lying rusting in American waters, the United States Shipping Board apparently unable to decide whether they are worth reconditioning. The Deutschland has reverted to her original owners, the Hamburg-American Line, and, having been "rebuilt," is doing service—but not at the speed for which she was built—as the Hansa. The Mauretania is as staunch as ever, and there is no reason to doubt that when "she emerges rejuvenated from her overhaul she will secure a firmer grip than ever upon the Atlantic record.

Wonderful Guarantee!

Of Over a Million Bottles of Carnol Sold—Only Four Have Been Returned

If you will read the second to last paragraph of the circular which accompanies every bottle of Carnol, you will notice the following guarantee: "If, after taking your first bottle of Carnol, according to directions, you find that it has not helped you, that its action is not already recognizable, and you can say so sincerely, take back the empty (or partly empty) bottle, and get your money back. Remember we refund the druggist the purchase price—he loses nothing."

Do you think the manufacturers would make this guarantee if they did not know that Carnol possessed properties of unusual merit? But, would it be fair to say that Carnol does not possess merit when, out of a million bottles sold, only four were returned?

If the other bottles sold had not proved beneficial, they also would have been returned.

These four bottles were returned and the money refunded without question, the only explanation being that Carnol had not given relief. As disease is of slow growth it naturally takes time for any medicine to eradicate it.

To get the full benefit of Carnol it is clearly stated in the circular that you should take a "Course of Carnol," although many people have been completely cured after taking one or two bottles.

Perhaps the reason why these people didn't benefit by taking Carnol was because they did not take enough of it—brades it is not claimed for Carnol that it will cure everything.

The Pilgrimage to the Battlefields

Lieut.-Colonel Nangle's letter which appeared in yesterday's paper referring to the proposed tour of the Battlefields of France and Belgium will awaken many memories of the days when the home was plunged into gloom and despair with the arrival of the message which told of the dearly loved son or brother who had made the Great Sacrifice. At the same time, it brings to the attention of many an opportunity to satisfy the longing which has been felt to pay those tributes to the graves of our departed which in a measure helps to ease the pain of those who

The time is well chosen for such a visit. Thanks to the ceaseless efforts of the War Graves Commission, of which Padre Nangle is our representative, the plots where our heroes lie are fittingly marked and set in surroundings such as befit those who sleep in them. Nature too has hastened to conceal the track of war, and has thrown a mantle over the shell ridden earth as if to hide her wounds. The plans made are comprehensive and have certainly been made in such a manner as to reduce the cost to the minimum. The opportunity not only to visit the battlefields, but also to view the countries and such cities as London and Paris is one which will appeal to our travel loving public. In addition the tourist will see the Empire in miniature at Wembley which alone will well repay the outlay. Colonel Nangle is deserving of the highest appreciation for the strenuous work which the planning of such an undertaking with its many details must have demanded.

On Scaring One to Death.

We did not know until recently that the use of tobacco tends to impair one's morals; that "better babies" can only come to those who never use tobacco, and further that tobacco is "the coarse indulgence of criminals, white slaves, hoodlums, political corruptionists, law violators, opponents of moral virtues, traducers of many virtues and others of ill repute." That sounds bad, does it not? But there is worse to come, according to a leaflet published by the No-Tobacco League of America, with headquarters at Indianapolis, Indiana. Says the leaflet: "The methods of the tobacco supporters are practically the same as those always used by the whiskey interests—scheming to violate the law, to hoodle with legislatures, to bribe young press reporters to spread false and scandalous stories about their opponents, and the like." If the above does not move the tobacco user to quit instantly, he should proceed with the pamphlet, which goes on to tell us that tobacco weakens the mind and the morals, and that it contains heroin, nicotine, arsenic and opium leaves, and that it is the first step in the drug habit. This opens a new field of thought. What are opium leaves anyhow? And where do you buy them? And arsenic. Have we for all these years been slowly poisoning ourselves? We must look into it.

But let us continue with the pamphlet. We are told that tobacco smoke contains carbon monoxide, the stuff that comes out of the business end of a motor car, costs a blue haze and smells like, well, not like any tobacco that we ever came across. However, it is not for us to deny that there may be a home brew in Indiana that smells that way. It all makes us very sad. For years and years we have been going straight to the dogs, and worse to contemplate, we have been taking well nigh the editorial staff with us. We have been filling our system with arsenic and heroin, and carbon monoxide and opium leaves, and goodness knows what, when all the time we thought it was tobacco. It is a wonder how we ever got by the health authorities all these years. If it is all true we should long ago have found a place in the city's incinerator. Then there is that criminal part of it. This being mixed up with hi-jackers and hoodlums, and no doubt gun men are included, though not mentioned, it is sad indeed. But we must live and learn, even if it has to go to the women's department of the No-Tobacco League, with headquarters at Indianapolis, Indiana, for our information.

It will doubtless come as a surprise to many to learn that a campaign of this nature has already been started in Newfoundland, and possibly before long ardent disciples of the Anti-Tobacco League will be found to denounce in similar terms all and sundry who worship at the shrine of the goddess Nicotine.

For the benefit of the timorous who may have been recipients of such propaganda, or will have it dinned willy nilly into their ears, we would refer them to the long list of faddists who since the world was young undertook similar missions. In some, they succeeded in a measure and created a state of affairs that was worse than the first; in others they themselves were the sole victims of the misery they planned for others.

They hold forth on the subject of babies, and forget that any baby is better than yours. They refer to the criminal class with which the smoker is associated, and fail to recognize that in the assemblies in which they sit they are cheek by jowl with members of the same fraternity. They preach principles and practice corruption, on the plea that any means is justifiable for the sake of the CAUSE. They talk glibly of the evils of poison and drugs, and forget that many of them are contained in the foods we consume daily, and in the medicines which we take by the doctor's orders.

We were to heed the 'don'ts' that are uttered from time to time by these would-be reformers, we should not eat, because eating tends to fatten; we should not drink, not even water, because of the animal life which it may contain; we should not sleep, because it encourages sloth, and we should not marry lest we add to the numbers of imbeciles and degenerates in the world. The slaughter of animals is cruel, and therefore it is wrong to eat meat. Fish and fowl, by the same token, are proscribed; so that in order to exist there is nothing left for us but to go into the fields and eat grass.

Take heart, therefore, ye of little faith, and learn from the long list of false prophets that all is not gospel that is preached with vehemence.

For some unaccountable reason the leaders of such a crusade are more often than not women of a peculiar temperament, and it is well for us that they are rare as aves. Of such must Kipling have been thinking when he said:— "A woman is but a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke."

Not Favourable to the Customs Circular

We are very much pleased to give space to the following letter and remove any misapprehension which may have been caused.

Dear Sir—Your editorial of yesterday's issue re Customs Circular Boots and Shoes, would lead the public to believe that all the Boot and Shoe Manufacturers were supporting the increased tariff on Boots and Shoes. We wish to state that, as one of the leading manufacturers, we had nothing whatever to do in the matter. The first intimation we received was the Customs Circular. We are totally opposed to the increased tariff which means an additional taxation of seventy per cent. on a present duty of one hundred and twenty per cent. on the class of footwear worn by working-men and their families. WAS 25 DAYS OUT FROM SYDNEY.

Anxiety over the safety of the schr. Freedom which left Sydney on Sept. 23rd, with a cargo coal for Carboncar, was set at rest this morning when a message was received by Messrs. A. S. Rendell & Co., stating that the vessel had arrived at her destination at 5 a.m. all well. Capt. Noseworthy had his wife and two children with him on the trip. By telephone from Carboncar it is learned that the vessel was caught in the storm of October 1st, and driven 50 miles S.E. of the Virgin Rocks. The forecast was blown away but otherwise the vessel suffered no damage. Following the storm the Freedom was becalmed and it was with much tacking that the master worked his vessel back to land.

A NAVAL SQUADRON TO VISIT THE EMPIRE.

LONDON, Oct. 18. The battleships Hood and Repulse with a light cruiser squadron will sail about the middle of next month on an Empire tour. They will proceed by way of South Africa to Singapore, thence by way of Australasia and New Zealand to British Columbia, where they will probably arrive about June. From there the Hood and Repulse will proceed through the Panama Canal to Halifax and Quebec, the light cruisers visiting South America.

EDISON IS INTERVIEWED FOR THE FIRST TIME.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. Thomas A. Edison, electrical wizard, gave yesterday what might be said to be the first interview he has ever granted newspapersmen. It was an impromptu affair arranged after Mr. Edison had appeared at a luncheon. He spoke on the presidential possibilities of his close friend Henry Ford. He said "It would spot a good man if the nation sent Ford to the White House." Turning to the prediction made recently by Charles P. Steinmetz, inventor with the Gen'l Electric Co. that electricity would eventually reduce the working day to four hours, Mr. Edison said he agreed with this opinion. Commenting upon the period of from the time of the initial demonstration of a beneficial device to its ultimate acceptance, Edison believed that within a few years coal would be transformed into electrical energy at the mines and distributed by high power transmission lines, doing more quickly and efficiently the work now performed by the fuel after long haulage and many handlings. He added, that he had recently discussed this project with a group of Nova Scotia power men.

RUSSIA PREPARES FOR EVENTUALITIES BY CALLING UP TERRITORIALS.

MOSCOW, Oct. 18. Soviet Russia yesterday called up three military classes 1898, 1899 and 1900 for territorial army training. This calling up territorialists is in line with a long contemplated training plan and probably has no particular significance, but it is obvious from indications made on all sides that the Moscow government while seeking to avoid participation in the German struggle nevertheless is taking no chances that it will be unprepared for eventualities.

NO FURTHER RIOTING IN BERLIN

When the police charged a mob which had gathered in the vicinity of Rathaus to protest against the excessive price of foodstuffs and to demand relief from municipal authorities.

Concert in Aid of the Child Welfare Association

The concert in aid of the Child Welfare Association, which is being held at the Methodist College Hall on Tuesday, Oct. 30 at 8.30 a.m., promises to be one of the best ever heard by a St. John's audience. Miss Marjorie Hubert, Gold Medalist, is a new comer to our concert platform, and there is a treat in store for all music lovers when she and Mr. Fred R. Emerson are heard in the famous and popular "Spring" sonata of Beethoven.

Miss Webster, whose beautiful soprano voice has charmed so many in the city is singing, and we look forward with pleasure to hearing Miss Herder's rich contralto.

Miss Allison Rennie's talent at the piano is well known and delighted in by all, while the Rev. E. C. Eary and Mr. Fred R. Emerson complete a musical programme which for excellence and enjoyment, would be hard to beat.

The historical side of the evening's entertainment is in the hands of Mrs. Herbert Overbridge, Mrs. Hugh LeMessurier and Mrs. Walter Rendell, who are presenting that amusing play "Fetlock Perdy." Can more be asked?

The Shoe and Leather Manufacturing Industry

Distributes $300,000 in Wages Annually—Is it Worth Preservation?

INITIAL.

THE SHOE MANUFACTURERS of Newfoundland are disbursing close on THOUSAND DOLLARS in wages to skilled NEWFOUNDLAND artisans each week.

The Shoe Manufacturers of Newfoundland conduct an industry that supports a local trade in hides and that makes possible the operation of the business of tanning these hides and preparing leather therefrom.

The Shoe Manufacturers of Newfoundland represent the huge sum of One Million Dollars in local money, invested in a local industry and paying their operatives the tidy sum of $300,000 in Wages every year increasing to $500,000 with the dumping stopped.

The Shoe Manufacturers of Newfoundland showed the Government of the Country that this big local industry was near extinction, that the factories could not be maintained, that this capital and these wages were menaced with total loss, and that an army of shoe workers were about to be driven to swell the ranks of the too numerous unemployed of the country.

The Government granted the Shoe Manufacturing Industry a measure of relief—not at the expense of the consumer, not out of the pockets of the general public and not to the detriment of the ordinary wage-earners of Newfoundland—but at the expense of those who have been reaping huge profits out of cheap and trashy footwear imported from abroad, stuff that cannot be marketed in America and that is manufactured out of odds and ends utterly unsuitable for use in the making of Boots and Shoes of any value, any endurance or any style or quality whatsoever.

This foreign footwear was being dumped into the Newfoundland market to enable foreign manufacturers to keep foreign workmen employed.

It was enabling some of the local shoe trade to make a quick turnover of sales and speedy and handsome profits.

BUT it was menacing a local industry with destruction and local workmen with unemployment.

That was why the Shoe Manufacturers of Newfoundland appealed to the Government and that was why the Government, persuaded of the justice of the arguments of local Manufacturers, moved to prevent the dumping of trashy and unreliable American footwear into this country.

Atclaire, Chronicle! What could be more natural than a union of the flesh-speaking peoples, seeking qualities they have in common? His enumeration of these, Mr. Balfour laid special stress on four—his sense of justice, a democratic outlook, a love of personal attachment to equal liberty—the right of every man whatever his race, to perform his rigorous exercises in his own way, natural in such a time as the present to think of the maintenance of the world's peace as the highest duty which such a union could be put to.

Mr. Balfour at the same time gave an eloquent call to America for operation in

Methodist College Field Day
 At the Arre Athletic Grounds yesterday, in the presence of a large gathering, the pupils of the Methodist College held their annual sports. The programme was carried out about a hitch and the various events were well contested. Mr. J. C. was captain of the course. The winners were as follows:
100 Yards Dash—Won by Max. 200 Yards Dash—Won by Max. 400 Yards Dash—Won by Max. 800 Yards Dash—Won by Max. 1 Mile Race—(Intermediate and Associate Girls)—Won by J. Johnson. 2 Mile Race—(Girls driving boys)—Won by Dorothy Bishop. 3 Mile Race—(Boys and girls)—Won by J. Holloway and Annie James. 5 Mile Race—(Intermediate and Associate)—Won by Rosa Peters. 10 Mile Race—(Intermediate and Associate boys)—Won by H. J. and J. Badcock. 15 Mile Race—(Boys and Girls)—Won by Dorothy Bishop and Master Boone. 20 Mile Race—(Intermediate and Associate)—Won by Anna Taylor, J. Johnson and J. Gooby. 25 Mile Race—(Preliminary boys)—Won by Masters Cowan and LeGow. 30 Mile Race—(Intermediate and Associate)—Won by Intermediate team. 35 Mile Race—(Preliminary Girls)—Won by Evelyn Grimes, Muriel Rabson and Mary Johnson. 40 Mile Race—(Intermediate and Associate)—Won by Max. 45 Mile Race—(Primary and Preliminary)—Won by Wm. Colquhoun. 50 Mile Race—(Boys)—Won by Whelan and J. Hiscock. 55 Mile Race—(Girls)—Won by Soper and P. Hudson Martin. The presentation of prizes will take place at the College on a later date.
All for a Shilling
 A shilling won't buy much now. We've been hearing that once for a good number of years, but we are quite sure that it is a shilling justified every time? For instance, a shilling will buy the cover issue of the "Veteran Magazine" which will be on sale on Saturday at all Bookstores and from newsboys. On looking through an ad copy, one must be "convinced" it's one of the most wonderful things ever offered to the public. The illustrations are many and good, while a large supplement of "Flanders Poppy" is very striking. The articles are interesting, and all the features of the magazine are up to the high standard set for itself by the "Veteran" and which has earned it the proud title of "Newfoundland's best magazine." Altogether it's good value for a shilling.
Novel Attraction at the Crescent To-Night
 THE THREE DAYS OF POPULAR NOVELTY SOLOIST.
 Tonight's bill at the popular Crescent is considerably unlike that of the past part of the week, in that it contains a much better variety of items. Most of all Pat Harrington will be heard in an entirely new program of the latest novelty song successes. He will sing a few clever dances, and commence the last three days of Mr. Harrington's engagement as he concludes on Saturday night. Mr. Robert Shields sings to-night some of the most popular numbers. The picture to-night is a rare display which is entitled "The Flood." It is the sort of picture which gives one the feeling of undergoing a personal experience. The scene seems to disappear and we are part in the activities of the characters before us. This is realism carried to the highest degree, and the story lends itself excellently to the theatrical form. It is an enlarged version of the stage play, by the eminent Swedish dramatist, Henning Lagerberg. None of the dramatic power the original has been lost in translating the play into the language of the screen. "The Sin Flood" is a picture none should miss. To-morrow night is the night of the big Amateur Contest, which promises to be the greatest run-off to date. A large list of names has been handed in a bumper night's amusement is assured.
Promenade Concerts
 The C.L.B. Promenade Concert, held last night in the Armory, was an attraction for quite a large number of people. Dancin' was indulged in until 11 p.m. The affair proved very enjoyable. The Promenade Concert held last night in the Prince's Rink by the C.C. Band, was largely patronized, an excellent programme of dance music was rendered. Flappers, girls and finale hoppers will learn something to their advantage from "Rich Men's Lives" at the Nickel to-day.

Treasure Islands

are quite a number of islands scattered about the world whereon treasure exists. And people are trying to find it.

A score of attempts have been made for instance, to unearth the treasure alleged to be buried on Cocos Island. In the Ladron Group, let us so far the adventures have not rewarded their toil.

A $20,000 has been wasted in futile attempts to recover "James' hoard" reported to be near the lip of the crater of the very active volcano on the island. In the Ladron Group, as a set-off against many failures there have been a few successes.

No doubt, for instance, that a good sailor named John Adams unearthed treasure to the value of between $250,000 and $200,000 on Auckland Island some years back; while William Watson, a shepherd, recovered in 1868 nearly a ton of gold that had been hidden on one of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Likewise, two runaway seamen, named Handley and Cross, successfully located and dug up a valuable hoard on Oak Island, off the coast of Nova Scotia, and this after many others had failed.

Lower Wages—Less Efficiency

The manufacturer in all Canada pays a yearly average of salaries and wages combined of $1,016; in return he receives a net product worth $2,467. When the Quebec City manufacturer pays $1,010 wages, his return is only $2,078. That is to say, the Quebec City manufacturer because of the rate of wages that does not encourage efficiency, must be content with a lower productive capacity per employee, than the manufacturers of Canada as a whole. For every $1.010 the Quebec manufacturer pays in wages, he loses in value of output $331 as compared with manufacturers in Canada.

For the merchants these figures also have their lesson. In business likely to be as brisk in Quebec City where the manufacturing employee earns on the average of $735.00 as in Montreal where the same class of worker has $1,061 to spend? Or look at it in a broader aspect. Is trade likely to be as active in Quebec City where the average manufacturing employee produces a value of $1.617 per year as in Montreal where the value produced is $2.267.

"Business men are saying that Canada above all needs more production and more trade to bring more traffic to the railways. But nothing is more certain than this: Increased production cannot be secured by reducing wages. And equally it is certain that the efficiency of the railways which is of first importance to the business of the country cannot be maintained or increased by cutting wages."

THE SULKY ONE

WALT MATON

We may respect the fellow who yields to fits of rage, who hands our language yowl, and would grim warfare wage. His temper is volcanic and when it vents, he causes quite a panic among the timid gents. But when his ire is ended, and cusswords cease to roll, a peace serene and splendid encompasses his soul. He shows new curves in meekness, he bravely plays the game; we all deplore his weakness, but like him, that is the game. But when a man grows sulky, and scowls for days and years, until his eyes grow bulky with pits of unshed tears, when he's a chronic applier whip never finds relief, we wish he'd whip a peeler and then forget his grief. The man who never twitters a gay or joyful sound with malice dark embitter the lives of all around. The woman in his company are weeping as they fry the fragrant mass of potatoes for supper by and by. The neighbors are regretting that they must live beside a skate who's always awaiting o'er his fate provide. His fellow workers loathe him in feathers doped with tar. If he would get excited and kick some rafters down! But no, he wears his blighted and everlasting frown.

Father also likes Cake

he ate a great deal of cake when he was a boy, for cake is one of a boy's luxuries, and he probably never ate all the cake he wanted. Drake's Cake will not only please father—it will help make him a boy again

Flashlights

Germany's critical position seems to have been brought about by her "Leak of Donations."

A man last week paid a London taxicab driver the bare legal fare, with no tip. He was 42 years of age.

Four sisters of Cincinnati, each of whom is a twin, have all become mothers of twins, two of them having two sets. There is some suggestion of appointing a chartered accountant to keep the score.

The latest unconfirmed rumour is that a man, pestered for cigarette cards by a small boy, eventually jumped over the embankment and escaped.

Owing to a strike of printers, no newspapers appeared for two days in New York. In consequence of this, quite a number of good divorce cases had to be postponed.

A machine which puts a polish on buns has been exhibited in London. With a high polish they can be dusted in half the time it used to take.

Man, according to Sir Oliver Lodge, is an unfinished article. If these statements are persisted in there is a possibility that Signor Mussolini will abolish science altogether.

A weekly paper informs a correspondent that it would cost very little to learn cornet playing. So much of course, depends upon whether the neighbours decide to sue for damages.

It is intimated in the Press that the production of a new aeroplane, costing $200, brings aviation within the means of the average man. Unfortunately, when it comes to the financial aspect of the matter, it is not so much the initial cost of an aeroplane as what it costs to keep up.

Royalty's Letter Bag

AN IDEA OF WHAT IT CONTAINS.

It is stated that the morning mail of the King of Italy, on a recent occasion, consisted of 7,000 letters and 300 parcels, followed later by over 370 telegrams. The huge delivery happened to occur on a day when the monarch was expecting a missive of some importance, which was not found until almost the whole batch of correspondence had been sorted and examined by a staff of secretaries.

Bulky post bags constitute one of Royalty's most severe afflictions. A commoner has only to place his hand in a diminutive letter box in order to secure at once a "looked-for" letter, which he is able to peruse within a few seconds of its delivery; it is quite impossible, in a royal palace, to obtain correspondence with such ease. The number of letters received is so large that a considerable staff has to be maintained in order to sort and arrange every incoming delivery.

Sorting Letter Writers.
Communications of a confidential nature intended to be read only by the personage to whom they are addressed are not, of course, opened by any other, but it would be impossible for any member of the Royal Household to read every letter received.

Every Royal Mail is a romance in itself; each bag contains hundreds of letters from those who seek to vent grievance, real or fancied, at the fountain head. Copious appeals are received from begging letter writers, who seem to think that the possession of royal rank also indicates possession of unlimited wealth available for distribution to all and sundry, who have but to express their wants in order to receive a share!

We all know that the mentally afflicted are prone to fancy that a relationship exists between themselves and Royalty; almost daily the royal mail contains pathetic, plaintive effusions written by these unfortunate, and their communications would be humorous if the circumstances in which they were penned were less tragic.

Velled Throats.
It is said that when King Edward was one day assisting in the disposal of his mail, his eye was attracted by a long envelope, plentifully daubed by smears of red paint. The contents consisted of twenty-six pages of script, written by one who rejoiced in the name of Ezekiah Cobman.

The shooting season was just approaching, and the occasion was deemed suitable by Ezekiah to warn His Majesty that unless he abandoned his much loved sport "something would be done in the matter."

Those who write direct to Royalty may feel assured that no letter requiring personal attention is ever disregarded, although it is obviously impossible for many oft-made requests to be granted.

Applications are often made by those who desire that decisions in court be reversed, or special privileges granted to prisoners serving sentences, and all manner of extraordinary requests are received, the granting of which would usurp constitutional law and upset the whole judicial system.

The Sultan's Mail.

It is impossible for every letter to be seen by the one to whom it is addressed, says a writer in the Weekly Star, but the mail is so carefully sorted that no missive deserving any special attention fails to reach its intended reader. There is only one ruler who can be said to see the whole of his mail—the Sultan of Turkey.

He inspects every single letter that arrives, but only the outside of it.

The daily collection is neatly arranged and sprinkled with sweet spices. With much pomp it is carried into the presence of the Sultan—and taken out again; he has seen the post—what more need is there to trouble about it?

Spencer Club Sale

PROCEEDS AMOUNT TO $1,000.00.

The Spencer Club sale, the object of which was to raise funds to equip a Domestic Science School for the College, was formally opened by Lady Allardye at 3.30 p.m. yesterday. Accompanying Lady Allardye were Miss Allardye, Miss Wright, the Girl Guide Commissioner, and Miss Dorothy Duff, representing the Girl Guides of Carbonear. They were received by Mrs. Geo. R. Williams, the President of the Club, Miss Cherrington the Principal, Mr. L. C. Outerbridge representing the Directors, and a guard of honor, consisting of the Daisy and the Thistle Patrols of Spencer College Girl Guides' under command of Lieut. Shirley Green. Lady Allardye, having been introduced to the gathering by Mr. Outerbridge, expressed her highest approval of the object of the sale, not because it was necessary to teach the ladies of St. John's how to make cakes, as they were already experts in the art, but because it was essential that every girl should have a thorough knowledge of cookery. She referred to the harmful effects of partaking of badly prepared food, and predicted that as a result of such courses, which she hoped would be generally adopted, the general health of the community would materially benefit. The sale was then declared open. The Spencer Hall, which had recently been painted and illuminated through the efforts of the Club, was tastefully decorated in the College colors and the stalls outlined in gold and crimson leaves and berries of Autumn, made a fitting setting for the many attractions which they contained. Fancy work, vegetables, ice cream, candy, condiments, and drinks appeared rapidly, and the excellent which had been prepared were a full justice to by all. At the close Mrs. Fred Sterling, the Treasurer, announced that the handsome sum of $1,000.00 had been made. A dance which the pupils of the College enjoyed thoroughly, brought a highly successful evening to an end.

Colonel Cloud desires to acknowledge with thanks receipt of $50.00 from the Ladies' of the Presbyterian Church, and $25.00 from the Ladies' of the Gover Street Church, toward the new Maternity Hospital. —oct18.11

Italy Again Reaping

GOLDEN TRAVEL HARVEST.

ROME.—(A.P.)—The Italian tourist trade has resumed its pre-war status, before the war the tourists flocking into Italy from all parts of Europe added 500,000,000 lire, or $100,000,000 at the exchange rate of those days, to the wealth of Italy. In 1922 tourists from all over the world brought 2,000,000,000 lire to Italy which, calculated at the present rate of exchange, would give about the same sum, $100,000,000.

Coupled with remittances received from Italian emigrants, mainly in America, the tourist revenue used to be sufficient to balance Italy's adverse trade balance. The emigrant remittances, especially during the present year, show a considerable falling off, probably owing to the restricted immigration system now in force in the United States. In 1922, however, the emigrant remittances equaled their pre-war figure, which was about the same as that of the tourist expenditures.

The falling-off of revenue from the emigrant sources has stirred the various commercial organizations to look for the missing income in an extension of the tourist business. At present tourists go over the beaten paths outlined by the travel companies. But that is not all of Italy, say the Italian promoters. While they point to Rome, Naples, Sicily, Florence, Venice and the Italian Alps as being very worthy of tourist patronage, they insist that regions of the Abruzzi, the Puglia and Romagna are also to be considered as possessing great tourist attractions.

Infantile Rheumatism

DISCOVERY OF GERM OF INFECTION.

After years of research Dr. F. J. Poynton, of Devonshire-place, W., has with another doctor discovered an organism which is believed to cause infantile rheumatism. Dr. Poynton, who is a specialist at the Children's Hospital in Great Ormond Street, W. C., where a research department into children's diseases is to be set up, said:—"I think it has been established that infantile rheumatism is due to infection and consequently means must be discovered to prevent infection. We have discovered an organism, but not the means of killing it without killing the child. Only by research can a cure be discovered."

Does Your Roof Leak?

If your roof leaks and you know where the water comes in, you can probably make it watertight with Plastic LASTY-GUM. A 5 lb. pail of Plastic LASTY-GUM costs only $1.50. Your carpenter will tell you that Plastic LASTY-GUM won't crack like cement and won't run like tar. Plastic LASTY-GUM is put on with a trowel and is guaranteed to stop leaks.

If your roof needs coating, we recommend LIQUID ELASTIGUM, which is put on with a brush. Liquid Elastigum will put a new surface on your roof and keep it in good condition. A gallon can costs $1.50, a five gallon can costs $6.00. This is the best coating for rubber roofing.

If your roof needs a new covering, we can sell you Campbell's Patent Roofing complete with fittings for $2.89 per full size roll. A roll weighs about 55 lbs., contains 108 square feet of roofing and will cover 100 square feet of roof surface. Regular price is $4.50.

In June this year we purchased 3000 rolls of Campbell's Patent Roofing from the manufacturers, who were selling their stock at auction. When our present supply is sold, new shipments will sell at $4.50 per roll. Now is the time to get a new roof covering at a bargain price.

Roofs covered with Campbell's Patent Roofing pay less for fire insurance than roofs covered with ordinary tarred felt. At our present low price of $2.89 per roll with fittings FREE, Campbell's Patent Roofing is cheaper than felt. Don't delay ordering. We are selling hundreds of rolls each month.

St. Andrew's Church

While all the services so far held have been good, it is but becoming to say that last night's was the best, both devotionally, and in spiritual and profound thought, as well as earnest preaching. There was a splendid congregation present, and from opening to close, a sense of reverence, which at all times becomes the house of prayer, pervaded the service. The Rev. J. G. Joyce, of Wesley Church, was present and assisted in the scripture lesson and opening prayer. The congregational singing was hearty, and as a setting to it, the duet rendered by the Misses Glendinning and Calvert, entitled "Some one is waiting and watching for you," was very effective.

We shall not attempt to comment on the address in full, because to do so would require fully two columns of the paper. We will, however, endeavour to convey to our readers the spirit and profundity of the address, and the conviction of the speaker, in its delivery. Basing his remarks upon the thirty-second verse of the twelfth chapter of St. John's gospel, where it is written, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me," the speaker at once struck an attractive note of gospel doctrine, and for the space of forty-five minutes, delivered a message of which every sentence was scriptural, and every comment logical. It was indeed an inspiration, and especially so to young men, to look into the face of the speaker, and to listen to his burning message. He spoke of the problem of sin, and its remedy; and of the teachings of the Scripture, and its lessons; and of the purpose of God, to overcome evil in redeeming mankind. He referred to the Saviour, and showed that He Himself gave assurance of final victory; and that in His Redemption and by His Divine Power, as manifested through His Church in all ages, He "could draw all men unto Him." The note of magnetism in the Saviour's claim to draw all men unto Him was a living factor in the power of gospel preaching; but it caused many people, both in the past and at the present, to wonder who it was that made such a statement—He "could draw all men unto Him." What authority had He to do so, or by what power could it be accomplished. To do so, meant that the claimant must be more than man. He could not do this by human means. No! there must be a Divinity, and so there was, for He was the Son of God revealed in the flesh.

It was this Divinity, and this Sonship which proved the drawing power in the propagation of the gospel. Thus it was that in the course of the centuries the Gospel spread from shore to shore, and believers increased in numbers, until to-day something like one-third of the world's population bow down at the Redeemer's name. No mere human effort could accomplish this. The work was greater than any temporal power. It was Divine work, and only Divinity could do what has been done. No man can save himself. Only God could redeem the world, and bring to mankind salvation.

In closing the address the speaker made an earnest appeal to the entire congregation; and all must certainly have felt that there was strong convictions behind what had been said. Mr. Greening during his many years of motorboat racing, in which period he has earned an international reputation not only as a good sportsman but as a scientific sportsman.

The Inequality of Man

Dr. Cyril Burt, speaking before the British Association at Liverpool, asserted that the idea that all men are born equal is, in psychological sense, totally untrue. Children vary from 50 per cent. below normal to 150 per cent. above.

The Socialistic theory that it is inequality of opportunity that mainly differentiates mankind is seen, in the light of these experiments, to be only a very partial truth. Men may have an inherent right to equality as citizens, but under any system of government ability will come to the front and man will be shown to be a born individualist, and that is why such attempts as we have witnessed in Russia are foredoomed to failure.

A Remarkable Test of Speed and Endurance

Harry B. Greening's Twenty-Six Foot Power Boat Runs 100 Miles in 24 Hours—A Figure Never Approached by Anything Afloat.

(Saturday Night.)
Harry B. Greening, Hamilton sportsman, established a remarkable record for his power boat "Packard Rainbow III" when, towards the end of September, he had her driven for twenty-four hours over a measured course on Lake Rousseau, Ont., at an average speed of 44.23 miles per hour. In the twenty-four hours of running Packard Rainbow III, rolled up a total mileage of 1,064 miles, a figure never previously approached by any type of craft from the mammoth ocean liner down. She broke every speed record for distances in excess of 150 miles established—this was Mr. Greening's main object—the reliability of the fast power boat beyond all question. The test was absolutely unique in the annals of motor boating, and when first projected by Mr. Greening the ability of any boat to stand such a grueling test was the subject of grave doubts. Some idea of how remarkable a performance that of Packard Rainbow III is, may be gleaned from the fact that her little twenty-six foot, quarter-cut motorboat hull covered nearly half again as great a distance in 24 hours as stands to the credit of the Commander Mauretania for her record-breaking 24 hour run of 783 miles. Rainbow III equalled the Mauretania's 24-hour record after only eighteen hours of running and had nearly six hours at her disposal in which to set a new figure.

Because of the menace to other craft constituted by Rainbow's 45-mile pace, it was impossible to run her at night, and the test was accordingly carried out in two twelve-hour stretches, in accordance with the rules of the American Power Boat Association. These rules provide that during the time intervening between the two daylight runs the motor shall be sealed and no adjustments made except when the time consumed in making any adjustments shall be figured into the running time. When Rainbow was taken out of the boat-house for her second run she needed no attention, however, other than a change of propellers, the terrific pace of the first day having weakened the wheel to such an extent that the blades had lost their pitch and were not delivering a maximum thrust.

At the start of the second run, between the two daylight runs, the motor was operating as smoothly as when she began. Her mileage for the first 11 hours and 35 minutes had been 513 miles, and in the 12 hours and 25 minutes running on the second day she covered 551 miles. She finished in a condition which, in the opinion of power boat engineers who were on hand, would have permitted of her continuing her terrific speed for perhaps another twelve hours.

While Rainbow's record is a tribute to her designer and to the builders of her motor and her hull, it is also a vindication of Mr. Greening's scientific sportsmanship. Rainbow outperformed other boats of identical design and power because she incorporates in her final form several refinements which were evolved by Mr. Greening during his many years of motorboat racing, in which period he has earned an international reputation not only as a good sportsman but as a scientific sportsman.

Rainbow's average of 44.23 miles per hour is figured on the elapsed running time. Were allowance for her stops for refuel and change drivers made, her average speed would be in the neighborhood of 46 miles per hour.

Christiana, Sept. 22.—Experiments in navigating ships through the dangerous fairways of the Scandinavian fjords by means of a sunken electric cable have been approved by a committee of Norwegian naval experts, and it is believed will have far-reaching effects in the pilot branches of navigation.

The experiments have been going on for some time at the Norwegian naval station at Horten with the "electric pilot," and have aroused the interest of the naval experts of all countries who gathered there to watch the operations.

Earthquakes and Their Cause

For those who live in earthquake belts, that is to say on the coast of California, the Alaskan coast, Chile and New Zealand, to say nothing of Japan, which is the best little earthquake ever, there is little heartening in Professor Lawson's explanation of the recent disturbances in the Far East. Professor Andrew C. Lawson, a distinguished Canadian, who is now head of the National Research Council's division on geology and geography at Washington, states that the Japanese earthquake was caused by a submarine slip. That is to say a great break occurred in the ocean bottom allowing one side to slip past the other and drop for probably a dozen feet, the result was the so-called tidal wave as well as the earthquake. The interesting point is that these disturbances seem to be associated with the extremely deep portions of the ocean. For instance just off the east coast of Japan is a long depression, miles deep, in the ocean's floor, while similar depths of the sea are found adjacent to other countries where earthquakes are frequent. In other words if you have abnormally deep water in front of the locality you reside in look out for quakes, as in such places slips of the earth in the ocean bed are constantly taking place, and which eventually result in a break sufficiently great to produce dire results.

Professor Lawson is of the opinion that in the future it may be possible to predict when the strains will be such that an earthquake is likely to follow. However, this would be small comfort for those destined to end their days in an earthquake belt.

New York Has a Sneezing Epidemic

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—The sneezing season has arrived. Pollen has blown into New York from all directions and the city has hidden behind its handkerchiefs.

Dr. M. A. Ramirez, of the French Hospital, where a hay fever clinic has been established, said nothing could be done permanently to cure a sufferer of the noisy ailment. "Hay fever is nothing to be sneezed at," he declared "We can inoculate a patient to afford relief for one reason, but first we have to discover what particular thing it is which causes each one to sneeze. There was one lady who noticed she sneezed every time she looked at the Sunday paper. We made a serum from the picture sections of three papers and injected it. She was immediately relieved." Cats, dogs, and horses are also possible causes, he said, as well as certain foods. The sneezing chorus will continue until the arrival of frost, though there may be intermissions caused by rainy periods. That's what the sneezers are hoping for.

Humor in Japan Tragedy

Quake Lurched Woman in Bath into Street Unhurt.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 1.—Commander Brockley, an eye-witness of the Japanese earthquake, during his brief stay in the city gave the "Province" a little story lightened by that rarest of happenings in the face of terror, a bit of humor. "I do not know if I could have stood the terrific strain," he said "if I had not had one good laugh."

"When the Grand Hotel—a six-story affair—collapsed, a woman who at the time of the shock was enjoying the luxury of a bath on the sixth floor, dropped the whole distance, bumping and ricocheting against furniture and fragments of masonry, and found herself sitting on the ground in the faithful tub, unscathed, though, needless to say, also unclashed. Luckily by some queer kink in reasoning, she had grabbed a bath towel when the downward journey started."

Charge is Dismissed

OF MR. F. J. MORRIS, S. IN THE INQUIRY, THE KING DONALD WHITEWAY, FOR MURDER.

An inquiry held before me on the charge made by the Crown against Donald Whiteway of St. John's on the 17th of July, 1923, feloniously did slay one Gerald Griffiths, the Peace of Our Lord: the Crown and dignity."

The incident occurred on the South side of the Long Bridge opposite the house of the boy's father. There were nine men called on behalf of the prosecution.

The first witness, Muriel Burt, had charge made by the Crown against the accused for a motor car on the 31st July. He was at her house at 3.15 p.m. She was sitting in the front seat with the accused.

There was no one else in the car at the time of the accident. The car was stopped suddenly in the middle of the road and it was impossible to avoid striking the boy.

The opinion of witness, May-Beatrice, at the time of the accident was going ahead about as fast as a horse and carriage; she could not see the boy.

Joshua Burt was about 300 yards away from the scene of the accident but could see all that occurred. The boy ran in front of the car. The car was on the left hand side of the road going about as fast as he (Burt) could run. He heard accused blow his horn two or three puffs. The horn blew a minute before the accident happened. He saw the boy run from the right hand side of the road; he was about two feet away from the car when he saw him. The accused turned the car as far as possible to the left to avoid the boy. He thought the boy was running into the car. The car was going very slow. It was just like a flash, the boy was running fast across the road. In his opinion it was impossible to stop the car quicker than it was stopped.

Richard Rodgers was playing ball with Gerald Griffiths and other boys on the hill side of the Southside Road and saw a motor car coming down the road towards the Long Bridge. Gerald Griffiths ran after the ball across the road from the left hand side of the road to the right hand side. Whilst he was running the car struck him. The car was going very slow and it turned towards the left when Griffiths was running across the road.

Ralph Burt remembered the evening of the accident and he saw the car going slowly down the Southside Road. There was a crowd of boys playing in the road, and the accused blew his horn when the horn blew the boys cleared off the road and ran to the side. A boy rushed across the road from the hill side to the water side, the car was then directly opposite the boy and the boy fell. The accused changed the direction of his car to the left of the road to avoid the boy but did not succeed. Immediately after the accident the accused had the boy in his arms and brought him in his car to Dr. Cowperthwaite's and then to the hospital. In accused's opinion it was absolutely impossible for any one to avoid striking the boy under the circumstances.

Arthur Howlett was playing ball in front of Griffiths' house on the right hand side of the road, with Gerald Griffiths and other boys, on the evening of the accident and saw a motor car coming East, heard the horn blowing; the car was going very slow. He had the ball in his hand beating it up and catching it; the ball fell out of his hand, he tried to stop it but it rolled out in the middle of the road. Gerald Griffiths ran after it and tripped in a stone and fell. The car was about ten or fifteen feet (the length of the room) away when the boy fell and the left wheel struck him. He heard the horn blowing coming down and he saw the accused change the direction of the car and turn to the left. When Gerald Griffiths was in the centre of the road the accused tried to avoid him but did not succeed. The car was a little bit off the road when it struck the boy. He was trying to stop the ball with his foot and was trying to cross the road to the left side, before the car passed.

Richard Silverlock, motor car expert, tested accused's car, found the things and foot brake were good. The foot brake was in as good condition as nine out of any ten cars round town. He gave it a real test going down hill at twenty miles an hour and stopped it within seven or eight lengths of itself by the use of the foot brake only. In his opinion a car driving at eight miles an hour on the level should be brought up in its own length. If a man driving on the Southside Road, as in the case of the accused, brought up his car in its own length, he was certainly driving with great care. The expression "going slow" he would regard as about a speed of ten miles an hour, and "very slow" at about seven or eight miles an hour.

Thomas Anderson, Medical Practitioner, examined the body of Gerald Griffiths at the morgue at the hospital. He made a post mortem examination on the night of July 31st. "The body was that of a well developed boy, fairly well nourished, aged about 12 years. On the back of his head, over the centre of the occipital bone, a lacerated wound running into bone extending forward and exposing an oblique fracture of occipital bone. There was no serious wound around the body and no vital organs were injured beyond brain. Death was caused by having been caused by fracture of occipital bone extending to base of skull."

At the conclusion of the Crown case the accused, Donald Whiteway, made the following voluntary statement upon oath:

"I have been driving a car this past couple of years and on the night of the accident I called at Mr. Burt's home about twenty minutes past eight, for my daughter. Just before coming to his house, on my way up, I noticed some children playing on my left hand side. They seemed to be about opposite Griffiths' house. I went up and turned and came back to Burt's. I did not get out of the car. The car was stopped opposite Mr. Burt's door. My engine kept running and when Miss Burt got aboard the car I started out at once. I started the car in first gear. I went into second gear and was going very slowly at the time. I went over to the left hand side of the road and changed back to top gear. Going down the left hand side I saw the boy close to the car and I turned to the left and put on all my brakes, hand brake and foot brake, and brought the car to a standstill. I got out and took the boy up in my arms. I found the boy at the back of the car on the left hand side behind the car. Mr. Griffiths came out of his house and I asked him to come to the hospital with me. I went to Dr. Robert's first and he was out of town and I went to Dr. Cowperthwaite's and then I went to the hospital. When I saw the boy first he was close to the radiator, about four feet from the car. He was running across the road sideways and his left side would be nearest the car. He was right in front of the car when I saw him first. I swerved to the left at once. At the time I was going at a speed of about seven to eight miles an hour. I knew on my way up the boys were there and I blew my horn on the way back knowing they were there. I was driving on the side of the road which was nearest to where the boys were. My car is a right hand drive. I was not engaged with anything in the car and I was minding the road and I blew my horn and it was not possible for me to see the boy before I did. I was well over on the left hand side at the time. Looking back on it now I cannot see anything that I could have done, as I could not have done any more. The distance it took me to bring up the car may have been a little over the length of the car but not much."

Cross examined by Mr. Summers, K. C.—The first time I saw the boy he was running across the road and was right in front of the car. I was driving on the left hand side. I did not see the boy fall on the road trying to pick up the ball. The car did not pass over the boy as far as I know as I did not feel any movement with the steering wheel."

All the witnesses for the Crown swear the car was going at a very slow rate of speed and all heard the horn blowing immediately before the accident. Their statements contain no evidence whatever of negligence or carelessness on the part of the accused. In a preliminary enquiry of this nature the evidence necessary to be submitted by the Crown, in order to obtain a commitment is well defined.

"Manslaughter by negligence occurs when a person is doing anything dangerous in itself, or has charge of anything dangerous in itself, and conducts himself in regard to it in such a careless manner as to be guilty of culpable negligence." (Cox Criminal Cases, Vol. 16, p. 306.)

"Where death results in consequence of a negligent act, or conduct, the charge of negligence must be so gross as to amount to recklessness; mere inadvertence would not suffice to create criminal liability." (Arch. Criminal Practice 1910, p. 892.)

The questions arising out of this inquiry which presents themselves for my consideration are—

- (1) Does the evidence submitted by the Crown show a strong and probable presumption of guilt.
- (2) Has the Crown submitted evidence of negligence amounting to recklessness.
- (3) Has the prosecution made out a prima facie case against the accused.

In my opinion no evidence whatever of negligence, carelessness or recklessness has been tendered by the Crown in this enquiry. The mere happening of the accident is not evidence of neglect on the part of the accused. The prosecution must produce some affirmative evidence of neglect on the part of the accused before I can commit him for trial.

The prosecution has not made out a prima facie case against the accused. The counsel for the prosecution does not move for a commitment. I therefore dismiss the charge of manslaughter and release the accused.

Dated at St. John's this 17th day of October, A.D. 1923.

Mr. Summers, K.C., Deputy Minister of Justice for the Crown.

German Small Coins Disappear

Berlin.—Aluminum 200 and 500 mark pieces issued by the government some months ago for small change purposes have entirely disappeared, and it is even impossible to obtain them at the banks.

With the depreciation of the currency, the metal in the pieces soon became worth more than their face value in marks. Poker players, too, are held partly responsible for disappearance of the pieces, as the aluminum coins were fast a handy size to be used for chips.

City Dwellers Invade Farms to Trade For Milk and Eggs

LEIPZIG.—The peasants of Germany have food on their farms, but they won't sell it to the cities because the only medium of exchange offered them has been paper marks, which they regard as worthless. Hence the farms have accumulated large stocks of butter, poultry, cheese, eggs, potatoes, honor, pigs and calves, while city people crowd the stores with bundles of paper marks in their hands, but find nothing to buy.

The solution has been a return to first principles. Dealers in food, and individuals seeking to fill their own larders, now travel out to the country in carts loaded high with great bundles of sugar, candy, cocoa, pipe tobacco, cigars, coffee, tea, candles, kitchen utensils, etc., all articles they can buy in the cities with their paper marks, and exchange them on the spot with the farmers.

Tomato sauce is quite savory with best croquettes.

Sleeping Sickness Responds to Scientific Treatment

Hamburg.—Cures which strike the Congo natives as being more miraculous than those of Biblical days are being performed on victims of sleeping sickness in Central Africa, according to Dr. Martin Mayer, of the Hamburg Tropical Institute, who was the first to test a German remedy on sleeping sickness.

A German commission under the leadership of Dr. Klein is now in the tropical section of Africa applying the remedy. There are records of 170 Congo natives who have been treated. Only a few of these died, owing to brain and nerve complications. The others regained their strength, and declared they were as well as they ever had been.

Dr. Mayer is of the opinion that science has found a remedy which will make it possible to develop much territory in the tropics which has hitherto been closed because of the danger of sleeping sickness.

Her Majesty the Queen Dances With Her Servants

ABERDEEN, Scotland.—Queen Mary danced with six of her servants recently at the annual ball given by their majesties to the employees of the Royal Estate at Balmoral. The programme, arranged by the Queen, did not contain a single fox-trot or one-step, and only two waltzes. The dances were Highland reels, eight-some reels, the reel of Tulloch, the flintation polka, the Spanish gavotte and other dances of the pre-war era.

For the opening reel the Queen's partner was Arthur Grant, the veteran head-keeper at Balmoral. Her later partners were gillies on the royal estates. The King and Prince Henry were there, but they did not dance. The Princess Royal, Princess Maud, Princess Alice and other royal ladies in the Queen's party followed the example of her majesty.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

HOW MANY RESIST?

Given a person who would meekly accept irritability and adopt an apologetic attitude instead of fighting back, I wonder how many of us would be able to resist the temptation to let off steam by being irritable whenever the pin pricks of daily life annoyed us.

I sometimes hear complaints of their husband's irritability made by women who I know do not dare to fight back because their husbands have what is vulgarly known as the drop on them. Yet these women would not, I feel sure, hesitate to be irritable to anyone who would stand it.

And They Took Advantage of Her! The other day I heard a confession along this line which interested me deeply.

A friend of mine has recently lost her mother. She was speaking about her to me as I had known her when the daughter and I were at college together.

"You know how sweet and cheerful she was," she said, "but I don't think you can have any idea how unselfish and self-effacing she always was. I never realized it until I grew up and went away from her. She was the kind of mother who simply lives for her children and it makes me feel terribly when I think of the way we took advantage of it and let her.

Mother Memories.

"If any little thing didn't go just the way we liked it about the house we would blow up about it. And instead of telling us to try running a house to suit four grown up children, and see how we liked it, she would be sorry about it and try to placate us. We used to fuss so if we didn't have all our favorite dishes at every meal. And then I can remember how she used to help us to get ready for a party, and if we were in a hurry and things didn't go right we would be cross to her. Just imagine it when she was doing everything to help us and when we were going off to have a good time and she was staying at home. It makes me just sick at heart to think of it.

"Isn't it queer how you can be cross to the people you love most in the world if they let you be.

"Oh, how I wish we could go back and do it over again and do it better." Her voice had the tears in it that always go with the most tragic of wishes.

The One Comfort.

"But there's one thing," she finished in a brighter tone, "that I'm glad about, and that is that though I couldn't seem to stop myself from being cross even by realizing how hateful I was, I did try to make up for it afterwards by admitting I had been horrid and by telling her I was sorry, of course that wasn't half what I should have done. But it was a little better than not being ashamed of it or not admitting I was ashamed, don't you think so?"

I did think so.

There are times when the best of us are irritable. Nerve strain may be an explanation if not an excuse, for that.

But I know of no explanation or excuse for the person who knows he or she has been unwarrantably irritable and who will not offer the one possible atonement—a frank "I'm sorry."

Dogs as Guardians

Born Instinct of the British Airedale.

In a recent issue we described the propensities of the Aisatian wolfhound and pointed out that in all probability the breed would become the most popular in the country in a few years' time. We also mentioned the fact that they have been used for some considerable time by the police in many countries. These dogs were originally chiefly used by the Germans as sheep dogs. Their mental powers were exploited and certain of them were found to possess the necessary intelligence required to fulfil the role of bodyguard or watchdog. In this direction, however, Col. E. H. Richardson, who was commandant of the War Dog School, where dogs of all breeds were trained during the war, declares that, although perhaps in isolated cases the Aisatians, or as he prefers to call them, the German sheep dogs, can be trained to perform the duties of bodyguard, the British Airedale will always prove to be their masters at the business when it comes to numbers. This is because they have been born with the instinct for attack for centuries. Colonel Richardson has some fine specimens of Airedale "bodyguards" at his kennels at Wormley Hill, Broxbourne, Herts, and in the presence of our representative he put some of them through their paces. Perhaps the most important of these was the total disregard a trained dog showed for the revolver. For the purpose of illustration only blank cartridges were used, but the explosions had no terrors for the dog who held tightly on a chain by a hefty keeper, struggled for all it was worth to get at grips with the possessor of the revolver. Set to attack a dummy, the dogs showed no mercy. "Airedales," explained Col. Richardson, "are exactly what is required in a friend and companion. They have one of the most faithful natures in the world. Their mental energy is directed towards the master and his property, and the interests of both become that of the dog. He takes the responsibility of guardianship, and it is safe to say that many of them would cheerfully lay down their lives in the protection of either. They are being bred and trained now with this special object always in view. Size enters in a good deal, and one point in support of the protective value of Airedales, is that while they combine all the alertness and intelligence of the terrier they are also of a size to constitute a menace to anyone endeavoring to interfere with them. They are becoming increasingly popular with ladies and children, as they are extremely reliable, and are not in the least treacherous. Our native breeds are infinitely better than anything they have abroad. No foreign animal can touch our splendid Airedales, collies, or retrievers for actual protective work. Before the war the Germans knew this, and large quantities were purchased over here and trained by their police. The policing of this country is at the present time greatly helped by the aid of dogs, which are all of native breeds, principally Airedales. These are patrolling suburbs and lonely country beats nightly with the constables. The work is being done quietly and without advertisement, but nevertheless, many a person owes his safety to the alert guardianship of these canine auxiliaries." An Airedale recently sold by Colonel Richardson obtained the conviction of a burglar. The dog was in the hall and woke up the house at 3.30 a.m. He was released and dashed into a clump of bushes and barked furiously at a man who was hidden there. A member of the household found the man afraid to move.

"DIAPEPSIN" ENDS STOMACH MISERY, GAS, INDIGESTION

Instantly! Stomach corrected! You never feel the slightest distress from indigestion or a sour, acid, gassy stomach, after you eat a tablet of "DIAPEPSIN." The moment it reaches the stomach all sourness, flatulence, heart-burn, gases, palpitation and pain disappear. Druggists guarantee each package to correct digestion at once. End your stomach trouble for few cents.

Men's Fashions

Lounge suits in London are showing certain little innovations. The lead given by the King in showing his preference for a single-breasted lapel on a three-button lounge jacket is being followed. At any outdoor function where well-dressed men congregate this little touch is to be noted. The popularity of the double-breasted lounge jacket with those men who are slim in build or whose figures are suited to this model is undisputed. The double-breasted jacket this year has largely even broader and with more "jewel" than last year. The roll is still continued to the centre of the three. The jacket is slightly longer.

The single-breasted jacket is more often than not worn with the double-breasted waistcoat, and here there is a new feature in the introduction of a shawl collar—one that has no notch. The line at the waist is still straight, accentuating the pleats on the trousers.

The fashion of wearing trousers without permanent turn-ups is increasing.

Where colours are concerned, snuff and tobacco brown continue their popularity, but striped materials are everywhere to be noted. Stripes have the advantage of adding height to the figure. Self-colour diagonal designs are extremely smart, particularly in greys and shades of brown and powder blues.

Black and white and grey and white two-and-two anglois are having a revival—no doubt because the Prince of Wales is such a persistent wearer of this pattern—"London Daily Mail."

Wise Words From Japan

The Japanese, who are already setting to work to reconstruct the cities devastated by the recent terrible earthquake, have many quaint national proverbs.

One of the greatest characteristics—preservation—finds expression in their saying: "Fall seven times, stand up the eighth time." Another in the same vein declares: "A road of a thousand miles begins with one step."

The Japanese equivalent of "casting pearls before swine," is "giving gold coins to a cat," and instead of "a wolf in sheep's clothing," they say "a wolf dressed in a priest's robes."

that a thing is quite impossible, he tells you that one might as well "learn to swim in a field," or "lap up the ocean with a shell."

"A small-minded man looks at the sky through a reed," and—"The heart is the same at three as at sixty," are other Japanese gems. Picturesque, too, are "At the foot of the lighthouse it is dark," and "When the hen crows the house goes to ruin." The latter saying indicates the Japanese view of feminism. Equally witty is: "There is no medicine for love-sickness and a fool."

New Boon to Science

After many years of experimenting, a French scientist has succeeded, by using glass shells filled with fluid, in producing lenses said to be as good as the best massive glass lenses at present in use.

The importance of such an invention in the field of astronomy is great. The average large lens manufactured out of glass for astronomical purposes has a diameter of about one and a half yards, and takes several years to make, while the price is more than $20,000.

Such a lens, it is stated, may be manufactured by the French process in a few weeks, at a cost of from $100 to $150. Lenses of smaller diameter for photographic purposes, and glasses, reading glasses and smaller ones, can be produced at correspondingly smaller prices.

The lens consists of a fluid enclosed between two uniformly hard glass surfaces, similar watch crystals, in which the relative powers and other characteristics are so chosen that the glass surfaces not only serve to focus the fluid but also combine with it to overcome such defects as are apt to be avoided in ordinary lenses.

Output customers will receive prompt attention at CENTRAL BAKERY, Commercial Street.—oct4.23
