His Mission in Music Explained by Sousa

Popular Music as Means to Educate the People to Demand More

John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster, was recently asked by an interviewer for the Philidelphia Record why he devoted so much time and energy to the writing of popular music and its presentation. Said he in reply:

"Washington, in my boyhood, was a vast military camp, and martial music filled the air day and night. It took hold of me, as it did everybody else. I early perceived that such music was closely allied in nature and effect to folk songs and dance tunes; that the universal heart responded easily and always to the simple in art.

"Home, love, joy, sorrow, patriotism, instantaneous conviction and power were discernible in this species of what might be called cradle song — the music of childhood. It seemed to me, in my early life, that the principles of this type of music might be so far elaborated and utilized as to reach the entire world directly and effectively

Bobbie Kerr Met Defeat. HAMILTON, Ont., May 14 .- (Special.)this afternoon a classy program of field and track events was run off under the this afternoon a classy program of field and track events was run off under the auspices of the Tiger Athletic Association. The big event of the afternoon was the race between Bobbie Kerr and Bobbie Cloughen, I.A.A.C., New York, Among the other star performers were: Jack Talt, the great miler; George Goulding, the walker; T. Schofield and J. Corkery, the Toronto miodle-distance crack.

Officials: D. M. Barton, Hamilton, referee; Aiby Robinson, Woodstock, starter; D. M. Cameron, T. F. Best, R. Isbister and Ben Lyon, Hamilton, timers.

Before the big races it was announced that if Kerr trimmed Cloughen he would be sent to England at the expense of the Tiger Athletic Club to compete in the British championships.

In the half-mile, Knox, C.Y.M.C.A., Toronto, and G. A. Lister, C.Y.M.C.A., Toronto, were on scratch, conceding starts all the way up to sixty yards. They never were contenders, J. R. Humphrey, Tecumseh A.C., Toronto, in receipt of sixty yards, and Ed. Barc.ay, Junior Harriers, Hamilton, sixty yards, making a great finish, the former staggering across the tape only inches ahead. S. Hindle, Dundas, was third. Time 1.55.

Championship Baebali Match.

The Royal Canadians of the Beach's Legue and the St. Mary's of the City Arnateur League have agreed to a championship game for the morning of May 24. Victoria Day, at 10.30 a.m., to settle the controversy now going on between their respective supporters as to which club has the stronger team.

The St. Mary's have gone thru their league thus far without a defeat, while the Royals had the misfortune to lose their first game with Kew Beach. This defeat cannot be taken seriously, as it was the first time the team had worked together, owing to the fact ghat the was the first time the team had worked together, owing to the fact ghat the was the first time the team had worked together, owing to the fact ghat the was the first time the team had worked together, owing to the fact ghat the was the first time the team had worked together, owing to the fact ghat the was the first time the team had worked together, owing to the fact ghat the mistorice purposes until this week. derstood that the St. Mary's are offering odds on the outcome of the game, and if this is the case Manager Phelan had better come well-laden with samolians, and also have his check-book along, as several prominent Riverdale gentlemen have expressed their intention of building new homes at his expense.

The St. Mary's are to understand that the Royals recognize their ability as ball players in the West End League, but they shouldn't get such an expansion of the cranium, as to think that the Beaches' League is composed of corner-lot teams. However, let it be said that the Royals are not sore over the controversy now going on, and are willing to await, and feel certain of, the outcome of the game on Victoria Day.

Sir Wilfrid to Reform the Senate.

MOVE SENATE REFORM

Will Introduce Measure Next Session-May Make Upper Chamber Elective by the Provinces - A Gilt-Edged Insurance.

OTTAWA, May 14 .- (Special.)-The senate has become such a farce that the government has definitely decided to accede to the demands of the opposition and reform that body, Sir Wilfrid Laurier therefore will introduce next session a measure to change the form of appointment to the upper

At present the senate is composed of men who for the most part have arrived there, not because they are entitled because they have been useful party politicians, monetarily and otherwise ply to all, for there are some notable exceptions. Elected by Provinces.

Any reform of the senate which could take place would be on the lines of making it a partly elective body, and upper house could very easily be made an honorable body, to a seat in which the best men in Canada would aspire. To-day is is more or less an insurance policy for $20,000 paid into the party campaign exchepuer would secure a seat and bring a yearly emolument of $2500. This alone makes a giltedge insurance policy. The raising of the standard of the commons, as the result of the last general election, has made the raising of the standard of the senate imperative. Last general election brought a larger percentage of capable men in the commons, than ever before, and, as practically all of the new men were Conservatives, it made the opposition the strongest body that has ever sat on the left of the speaker.

Seeking Cover. Another point which is hastening the government towards reform of the senate, is the conviction that the Liberal party has seen its last term of office, and that a means must be provided for seeing the members of the party safely provided for. The four years more, which Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked for, are drawing to a close, and the old standbys of the party are looking for cover. Taking time by the forelock, this can be accomplished by making he senate open to election by the proinces, thus leaving Quebec, which tains the chief seekers after the office, n'the position of satisfying their de-

H. Swope,

SIR WILFRID TO Tubes Would Serve 200,000 in Suburbs And Pay All Charges

If the majority of the ratepayers of the City of Toronto could be taken on a visit to those American cities where subways are in operation, there would be no difficulty in getting them to vote the money necessary to build a similar system in Toronto. That is, of course, if they can be convinced that this city is going to grow in the next ten years the way it has grown in the past decade.

According to the assessment commissioner's return, the increase in the last five years has been 85,309. Is there any reason to believe that this city will grow less rapidly the next ten years than it has the last five years? Assuming that that will be the case-altho in my judgment the increase will be greater -we have a probable growth of population of 160,-000 within a period of ten years. That number added to our present population will carry us well on toward 600,000.

As the territory of the city as it was 1891 is, roughly speaking, entirely occupied, the new population must reside in the territory which the proposed subway and surface lines are designed to serve. That is to say, with the 40,000 people who are there now, 160,000 added will give us a population of 200,000, which will be served by the proposed system. That is a larger population by 50,-000 than the city had in 1891, and if these figures are conceded as reasonable it is obvious that the most profitable, as it is the most necessary and desirable, undertaking in which the municipality could engage is the construction of the proposed system of rapid transit.

NEW YORK AND TORONTO. We hear a great deal from the opponents of the project about the disparity of population between New York and Toronto. They forget, however, that but a very small portion of the population of the American metropolis use the subways. People who reside in Brooklyn and Jersey City as well as in large areas of Manhattan seldom or never have reason to take a subway car. They are served by ferries and elevated lines, so that it is doubtful whether in proportion to the amount of money involved the actual population served is very much greater in New York than it would be in Toronto.

If we take the experience of the Toronto Railway Company as a basis, 200,000 population should produce 56,000,000 passengers a year. With such a volume of traffic, the receipts would be more than ample to pay interest, sinking fund and a substantial surplus for the reduction of taxation. Having regard to the probable growth of population in the newly annexed territory, any impartial student of the question will be convinced of the profitable nature of the enterprise.

HOME IN THE SUBURBS. But apart from that the social advantages to be secured from an efficient rapid transit service are so many and so obvious that that consideration alone ought to be sufficient to lead every public-spirited ratepayer to a favorable decision. To the wage-earner improved transportation facilities, such as a subway system would provide, would mean a home at lower cost and in better surroundings and under more wholesome conditions than can be obtained in the congested area of the city where they now reside. To the manufacturer, who depends largely upon the efficiency of his employes for the pro sperity of his business, an improvement in their moral tone is of the highest importance. From the standpoint of the women and children, of health, morals and good citizenship, the desirability of spreading our population instead of concentrating it is apparent with-

It has been the experience of every city on the American continent that well-considered plans for civic improvement have conduced in the most remarkable degree to the growth and prosperity of the people individually and collectively. Where the citizens lack confidence in the future of their community, and show unwise timidity in providing the best modern facilities for the convenience and comfort of the people, progress is slow and uncertain. Manufacturers and business men quickly discover the collective temperament and are encouraged or deterred from locating by the attitude of those who have the making of the city in GROWTH HAMPERED. But there is another aspect of the question that should have its weight with the mass of the ratepayers. We have added 5000 acres of territory to our city during the past few years. It is very inadequately served with transportation facilities. Its growth is hampered thereby. It is a duty of the first importance resting upon the city council and the ratepayers to provide this most necessary civic service for our new population. This is all the more urgent from the fact that the cost will be borne by the traffic supplied by the residents of the districts to be served. This has been the experience in every city where subways exist.

New York has spent over $100,000,000 on subways, which have been leased to private companies for terms varying up to fifty years, and at the expiration of these franchises they become the absolute property of the municipality free of debt, an asset capable of earning a revenue sufficient to provide in a large measure for the cost of civic administration. All that is needed by the people of Toronto is a little optimism, a little more confidence in themselves, a clearer grasp of the potential greatness of this city, and they will unhesitatingly consent to the use of the city's credit to finance an undertaking that offers such splendid possibilities.

NOT MUCH GROWTH.

MONTREAL, May 14 .- (Special.)-There will be no general federal election this year, for the reason that an agree has been reached between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Lomer Gouin which decrees that the Quebec end of the Liberal party shall go to the country first. If Sir Lomer comes back all right the federal people will make the plunge. There can be no doubt of the fact that the Ottawa leader is very anxious as to the state of public opinion here on the naval bill. In fact the Quebec people have received in-structions to say nothing whatever in their speeches on the vexed ques-tion at Ottawa, declaring that the matter does not come within the jurisdiction of local politics.

It may be, however, that the ministers at Quebec will have to face a vote of censure, moved by the oppo sition, on the marine measure, lowing the Mercier tactics on the Riel matter. The cars, with the Buick pair in the lead, ran without a serious mis-hap unil after midnight, and, as the track as then in excellent condition, there seemed ground for hope that the race would be devoid of accidents. Eighteen minutes after midnight the looked-for crash came. The Marion car, driven by Hubert Anderson, tore thru the fence on the turn of the home stretch and turned turtle.
Anderson jumped clear of the wreck, but his mechanician, Wm. F. Bradley, was so badly mangled that he died an hour later in the Emergency Hospital at Coney Island, from concussion of the brain and a fracture of the skull.

Crashed Thru Fence. The second happened at 2 o'clock this morning, when the Buick car No. 2. driven by George Dewitt, crashed thru the inner fence on the turn into the back stretch. The driver escaped un-hurt, but the mechanician, Jack Towers, an experienced man, was badly

He sustained a fracture of the log and internal injuries, but early this morning the doctors at the Emergency Hospital in Coney Island said that he was resting easy and would probably recover.

About three hours later the other Buick car was disabled by the breaking of a crankshaft, and it was towed into the paddock by the official car. Louis Strang, after an hour's delay, had the Marion car going again, and he made a good showing. In speeding around the turn into the home stretch Strang had a miraculous escape from a spill, as he tore thru the fence and came out thru the other angle of the barrier without a scratch.

The score was 26 miles behind the Buick's record of last year. At 9.50 the Cole car ran thru the rence on the corner leading into the home stretch. world has ever seen has passed away." These words which are on the lips of London's millions to-day testify to the place which King Edward has filled in the hearts of his subjects in the old land. One can hardly realize without actually witnessing the profound evidences of sorrow that the passing of a severeign could create such a genuine spirit of grief among the people. Following the bulletins on Friday that the condition of the monarch was critical, the peo-ple flocked to the neighborhood of Buckingham Palac and there remained in thousands awaiting news from the sick chamber.

It is significant of the conservative and careful attitude of the British press that altho in the London newspaper offices it was known as early as Friday noon almost to certainty that the end of King Edward's life was only a matter of hours the extras appearing on the street as late as 11 p.m. contained only the inisted as in the candition of the King was critical. No mention was made in any of them of the fact that the medical attendants had practically given up hope, and that the Sovereign had been lying in a comatose state for nearly two hours. News Leaked Out.

The press, however, maintained a small army of reporters in the vicinity of Buckingham Palace and quite inadvertently one of them learned the awful news about 15 minutes after breath had left the body. About midnight a reporter noticed a royal servant rushing from one of the palace doorways and hurried to ask for the atest news. The servant replied that there would be no announcement un til morning, and then continuing on his way he added: "The King is dead." The reporter then turned to rush to the nearest telephone office and a man in evening dress rushed after him to learn the latest. The newspaper man and the other in evening dress were followed by the crowd all apprehen-sive that the worst had happened. The news that King Edward was no more spread like wildfire, and soon the surging mass of humanity were in the throes of great excitement. No bulletin had yet been published and the people hoped against hope that some mistake had been made. Many ranks among the most competent.

crowded around the man in evening dress and enquired half angrily whether he was certain, whether it was really true. A few minutes later a clergyman came from the palace and to the anxious enquiries of the crowd he replied: "Yes, it is really true, the King is dead. He died about half an

In broken sentences and tear's streaming down his face, he praised the late King. Fashionable ladies from the opera sat in their carriages along the street leading to the palace and wept, while people treading slow-ly back and forth sobbed audibly; it was a thrilling and impressive scene. While the street was yet full of people a man, waiving his hat in the air shouted: "Three cheers for the new King George the Fifth." The assembled people commenced to move away about one o'clock and soon after the palace gates were closed.

Those who lingered in the vicinity noticed a carriage issue from the palace yard about 1.30 and drive rapidly away. It contained the new King and Queen.

Park Question Settled. The question of parks and play-grounds has been settled for the year, which is a matter for congratulation In deciding to buy the Arnold Square and Elizabeth-street properties the city council reached the limit of the funds available for the acquisition of public recreation grounds this year. legislature was generous enough to say that the city should employ its money to the extent of nair a mill on last year's assessment of $270,000,000 in adding to its park area, which now runs to about 1600 acres. This meant that $135,000 could be so devoted, and the two play grounds swallow up something more than the entire amount, but, by a little judicious bookkeeping, it is possible to keep within the prescribed limit. The man who has a bit of land which he thinks ideal for a public breathing spot must make up his mind to wait until next year before letting the city in on his glit-edged proposition. The vendor of the park land, which the city is privileged to acquire at a ridiculously low price, has made himself a familiar figure around the city hall for many years, but the off season is now on. Unless his excess of public spirit leads him to hand over his possessions gratis, he need not apply. Not a New Idea. The city cannot be said to have acted hastily about the Arnold Square land. Aldermen have come and gone since the idea of buying it was first mooted. It is located right in midst of a thickly populated district where juveniles abound. For many years also there has been talk of a playground in "the ward." Somehow or other, however, the actual buying was always side-tracked.

Government By Commission. Ald. Heyd is letting his idea of gov ernment by commission stay in the background for the present but he has been steadily gathering material and one of these fine spring days the result will be seen. Controller Ward, by the way, admits to being somewhat piqued because the alderman stole mach on him with a motion to appoint a special committee after the controller had, so to speak, staked out his claim on the commission plan. However, it is likely that the people will be given a chance next January to say Ontario.

King Edward's knowledge of the theatre was singularly intimate. I remember that he seemed to know the whole history of one leading member of the theatre was singularly intimate. melodrama.

I do not think King Edward was great reader. Indeed, I doubt if any day of his life found him holding a book in his hand for a whole hour at once. Nevertheless, he knew books. As once. Nevertheless, he knew books. As far as I was able to judge, it was imthe difference between types." possible for a book to make a great impression upon the world without impression upon the world without its making some impression upon him. Lest this give a sugestion of aloofness, let me hasten to say that nothing appeared to give him greater pleasure than an opportunity of sinking the sovereign in the man. He did not did his as Thackeray describes "Farme George" doing it, but with an ease always allied with personal dignity. FRIENDS OF EMIGRANTS CALLED CHARITY AGENTS

New-Comer to Canada in Ontario Government Jeb Makes Scene at Union Station.

It will be news for the faithful in foronto that the Ontario Government has found such a shortage of applicants for office that it has been necessary to pitchfork newcomers into jobs before they know the difference between Grit and Tory.

One instance of the kind gave rise to a lively scene in the government immigration phom at the Union Station on Saturday morning. A young fellow, whose cockney accent would enhance his value as a member of a London farce company at a music hall, made himself very prominent, shoving the arriving passengers along to the government offices. Some of the arrivals, who were expecting to be met by friends, became bewildered and applied to President Albert Chamberlain and Secretary Chadewick of the British Welcome League for directions how to letve the station platform for the public portions of the depot.

At this the young man evinced annoyance. When Mr. Chamberlain was explaining to some of the immigrants in the government waiting room how to ensure the safety of their baggage, the young fellow again butted in.

Mr. Chamberlain asked him who he represented. "Myself," replied the youth. The league president expressed surprise, on which he interrupted by saying he represented "the government." Then said, Mr. Chamberlain, One instance of the kind gave rise

"So should charity officials," was the unexpected reply. This was followed up by this declaration that if the featherweight speaker was only big enough, h would throw Mr.Chamberlain out of th office. He also informed the astonished Welcome League president that Mr. Chamberlain was "doing it for what there was in it for himself."

As the incident occurred in the Dominion Government's room, The Sunday World asked Mr. Stewart for an explanation of the affair. That gentleman said it was "an Ontario official."

On visiting the Ontario Immigration Bureau, Mr. Jones was found in charge, and his assistant, Mr. Tutt, was present wearing a uniform and cap, and a young man wearing a Christy was sitting in a injury style on the edge of OTTAWA, May 14 .- (Special.) -- More strained relations between the members of the government have become public. The latest is between Hon. Frank Oliver and several other members of the cabinet, including the premier.

The decision of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to stump Mr. Oliver's territory, with Hon. George H. Old Hickory" Furniture for Verandahs and Lawns

In the days of long ago when Andrew Jackson was alive and kicking, no mansion or hotel was complete without a liberal sprinkling of "Old Hickory" Chairs and Rockers on the verandahs, lawn and even indoors. To-day in the best American homes this furniture is "all the rage" for Summer use. Folks nowadays look to the furnishing of the verandah as thoughtfully as they do to the living rooms, and it is a good custom, for nothing is more in harmony out-of-doors than this very "Old Hickory-Notable for its strength, durability and cool comfort.

"Old Hickory" is useful alike for cottages, bungalows, lawns, dens, Summer and rustic houses, roof gardens, golf clubs, etc. We have it in generous variety along with all the other standard makes of outdoor furniture, all priced at the lowest notch. We feature the "Old Hickory" in this announcement, but show only a few of the many designs that are stocked. The special prices are for Monday's selling only :-

Eulogistic Letter from Mark Hambourg

> Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, May 6, 1910.

Dear Sirs:

On the eve of my departure from Canada, I take this opportunity of writing to you a few lines and to express my great admiration of the delightful Concert Grands you supplied for my Canadian tour.

I had ample occasion of testing the piano thoroughly throughout my forty concerts, and I have come to the conclusion that, as regards touch, tone, pure musical qualities and construction, this piano leaves nothing to be desired. and is as perfect a medium for the pianist as he could possibly desire to have.

Once more expressing my highest admiration for the Heintzman & Co. pianos, I remain,

Yours faithfully,

WOMEN'S ART ASSOCIATION.

Art Association of Canada shows that the society is successfully fulfilling its mission of not only planting in this country the seeds of various arts, crafts, and home industries, but of making them germinate and grow and bring forth fruit. Most encouraging are the results of the effort of the association to provide remunerative employment in rural districts for utilizing energy which otherwise would probably be unused and which gives an opportunity for the exercise of taste as well as for skilful handiwork, and consequently also acts as an antidote for ennui or a preventative for that loneliness which often pervades thinly populated communities.

Besides the excellent work that has een done in the various clubs of the association in painting in oils, water colors and on china, design lace making and needle work, enamel jewelry, netal work, bookbinding, pottery basketry, tooled leather and wood carving, the twilight musicales, under supervision of Mrs. A. W. Austin, and the Art Study Club, with Mrs. J. Home Cameron and Mrs. George Gil-lies as conveners, have provided delightful social hours as well as beneficial entertainment. "SKIASCOPY"

Previous to the last few years, the practice of this profound science was confined almost entirely to a few of the leading eye hospitals in the thickly populated portions of Europe, and many instances are on record of persons with defective vision having crossed the broad Atlantic for the purpose of having the science, which could reveal so much, brought to bear upon their case, to search out the defects which had refused to yield to any other method.

It is now possible by means of the Cross Retino Skiameter, aided by the Ophtha!moscope and Dynamic Retinoscopy, to not only explore minutely the whole interior of the human eye, and measure accurately the slightest deviation or error of Refraction, but to also make a complete diagram of all visual ation or error of Refraction, but to also make a complete diagram of all visual defects, making their correction with the proper lenses an absolute certainty.

The Ophthalmic Doctors, 358 Queen Street West

are instructors for this method, and find it of great value in examining per-sons suffering from defective sight.

The wedding took place very quietly in St. Stephen's Church on Wednesday last, the Rev. James S. Broughall offi-ciating, of Mrs. Emily Johnston to Mr. John G. Martin. The bridge was gowned in a tailor-made dress of fawn chifroses and a paradise plume. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Martin left for Buffalo, Cleveland and other American cities, and on their return will reside in Stouffville.

At the entrance to the jail, he halted his guard, and turning to look into the street, said in a husky pleading whisper: "Please let me look at the outside world for the last time."

Inside the cell, McLachlan broke down again. He threw himself on his cot and lay for fully three hours, his whole body shaking with silent sobs. He did not even notice the death watch when he spoke to him. Later, when his minister, Rev. Dr. Abraham, the local Presbyterian parson, called, he was somewhat reconciled to his fate, but all thru the night he sat on the side of his cot, staring moodily into the side of his cot, staring moodily into the darkness. The high-priced issues have come isto some prominence during the last few days and in the case of La Rose and Nipissing higher quotations have been registered. There has been no specific news in connection with the shares which could be held responsible for the advance, and the movement must go down as one of the vagaries of the stock market. Developments at the properties are understood to be showing up well, but this initesif would not be likely to have any influence as a market factor with the exchanges in their present status. That there is a short interest outstanding in both Nipissing and La Rose, as well as many of the other Cobalts, is generally acknowledged and it may be that the appreciation in this regard followed as a natural consequence. There has been nothing new of late in connection with the proposed issue of bonds by Cobalt Central: The suit brought by the minority shareholders to have the books of the company to have the books of the company brought into court, the ostensibly it enjoin the issuance of the bonds, is understood to be in reality for the purpose of ascertaining whether the company is solvent or not. A Remarkable Fish. According to Leuwenhoeck the roe of a single sturgeon contained 150,-000,000 eggs. In all fish the roe is remarkably large in comparison with the rest of the body, and that is the hatcheries are proving such a valuable auxiliary to nature in maintaining the supply of fish in rivers, lakes and even the sea in the face of the constant drain for commercial purposes. Cheap fish food is of importance to everyone, and consequently no one should miss the opportunity offered by the Ontario Forest, Fish and Game Protective Association, of attending the public meeting to be held in Convocation Hall of Toronto University on Wednesday evening next, May 18, to hear what such eminent authorities as Hon. The record of the New York Traction propositions is not agood one. B. R. In the upward movement in C. P. R. In the upward movement in C. P. R. the New York market would not be concerned, except that the stock has served to turn the tide of sentiment. Why C. P. R. should advance ten points in a few days is hard to explain, and while it is admitted that the company has very valuable assets it is also certain that its earning powit is also certain that its earning powe; is liable to be subjected to the scrutiny of government officials. The upward movement in C. P. R. is concurrent with extraordinary earnings, and it is not to be supposed that this can continue indefinitely. Considerable manipulation has occurred in the market for the shares the last few days, and in the New York market, especially on Thursday and Friday last.

ally on Thursday and Friday last.

Fighting against the natural trend of circumstances is the present occupation of the New York financiera. Nobody will buy or think of buying American stocks at present prices, except those who think they can sell them within a very short period at an advance. Occasionally those who enter the market as speculators get tied up and become unwilling investors. Wall-street has destroyed any semblance of confidence owing to the operations of the many millionaires in the market, who are desirous of surpassing the record of Croesus.

These promoters have pretty nearly bled the present following white, and it is only on account of the incoming trustfuls that they can maintain a steady market.

In a survey of market prices there ago many of the New York stocks were selling at half their present prices. The buyers when prices were low are undoubtedly those who want to sell now. Wall-street millionaires do not gauge their profitable operations by the day or the month, and those on the outside who engage in the market must conform to this idea if they expect to make money.

What has happened during the week to put prices up? Nothing. Trade conditions have certainly not improved. Writers who are endeavoring to get a market following have pointed out that some railroads have been able to sell short term notes, but it would be interesting to know the rate of inerest that these notes carry. It is of course satisfactory to learn that corporations are still enabled to sell their obligations to carry out extravagant ideas, but the common share-holder must be hypnotized if he can-not see that his holdings are imperiled by these prior liens, which are now hard of sale.

Wall-street prices may be held against adverse conditions, but an ultimate capitulation has to come. Trust companies, loan companies and banks may retard the inevitable decline, but it can only be for a time. Crops, legislation and business conditions are working against the prices of securi-The money market favors those who are operating stocks, but it should be remembered that cheap money does not always indicate high figures for securities. The smallness of the dealings in the New York market shows that the public has become suspicious of the situation, and this, incidentally, infers that those who are playing stocks for turns have a smaller force from which to extract profits.

No one who has watched the Toronto Stock Exchange of late can infer that there are speculative opportuni-ties in this market. On occasions the Canadian exchanges are available for speculative turns, but under existing conditions it is difficult even for speculative helds. ulative holders to get in and out of the market with a profit. It is a re-cognition of this fact which has caused the market to run into its present stagnant condition. Two or three pools have endeavored to excite some interest in the stocks which they are promoting, but in this they appear to have fallen down owing to the apathy

The Canadian markets have been pretty well saturated with new securi-tles since a few months ago, and it ment securities and temporarily these stocks are under this influence.

The recovery in the price of Cana-The recovery in the price of Canadian General Electric after an unwarranted delcine is one of the satisfactory features of the week. This market was uninfluenced by the rise in price of C. P. R. and some of the stocks of its allies, and it would approach the content of the ordinpear that something out of the ordinary will have to occur to increase the outside following. It is improbable that large financial interests will attempt to do anything in the market until they have a better knowledge of the incoming crop.

Chicago Gossip.

J. P. Bickell & Co. say at the close Wheat-Fluctuations at moment are being influenced almost entirely b professional trading, and altho this ele professional trading, and altho this ele-ment is aggressively bearish, values are stubbornly firm, which indicates to our mind a sound condition. There are no new features in the situation, ex-cept, perhaps, unseasonable weather conditions in spring wheat territory, which is retarding growth and suggests some re-seeding and, in our opinion, if weather conditions do not become nore favorable in the near future, Apply values will score a sharp advance, a short interest in futures is enormous and unwieldly, as it is scattered, while long interest is concentrated. Viewing broadly the situation as regards the futures, our conclusion is a bullish one and we continue to advise long com-all declines. Illinois crop report makes the condition 87. and the acreage 1,049,413, indicating a crop of 18,000,000 bushels. Area lost is 6 per cent. northern, 11 per cent. central, and 10 per cent. in southern division. Condition is 87 per cent. of normal. There is a slight increase in area seeded to sprin wheat and its condition is 87 per cent. of normal.

What Two Great Shaksperian Stars Have Achieved

Julia Marlow and E. H. Sothern Have Experienced Difficulties in the Climb to Success.

Royal Alexandra Sothern and Miss Marlowe will re-appear in Shaksper- "Lord Chumley,"

The exalted position which these co-stars now occupy on the English-speaking stage as the leading exponents of classic drama has been achieved thru long years of labor and study. and when we see "Romeo and Juliet," "Taming of the Shrew," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Hamlet," we may be sure that no detail of stage-craft has been overlooked, that no careless anachronisms as to costumes or stage effects will jar upon the lover of Shakspere. We will know that everything is handled in a reverential spirit and with a keen appreciation of the miceties of dramatic art.

Mr. Sothern was born in New Or-leans and Le inherited his historic ability from his distinguished father, E. A. Sothern, the English actor, who A. Sothern, the English actor, who was bitterly opposed to his adopting the stage as a profession. At the age of 5 he was sent to England to study painting, but the lure of the footlights was too strong for the son of his father, and in September, 1879, he made his unpropitious debut at the Broadway Theatre, New York, as the cabman in "Sam." Unpropitions, because the young thesplan was seized with stagefright and collapsed utterly when the faced the elderly Sothern in front of the footlights. He next played low comedy parts with John McCullough's play, "The Fool Hath Said There is company, and after his father's death, No God," "Lord Dundreary," a revival in 1881, he went to England and toured the provinces with his elder broth-which he had written called "Whose are They," and then re-named "Do-

When, after their most successful mestic Earthquake," Then he became joint season of 1907, E. H. Sothern leading man for Estelle Clayton and and Julia Marlowe decided to star separately there was some genuine reand Julia Marlowe decided to star sep-ette," "A Scrap of Paper," "Mona," arately there was some genuine re-gret among theatregoers that two such "The Love Chase," and "One of Our eminent artists and such earnest students of the classic drama should find the classic drama should find duced "Editha's Burglar," which achieve the control of the classic drama should find the control of the control it to their advantage to divide their leved success. It was in 1888 that the strength. The week of May 30 at the Sothern star came into the ascendant, for in that year he created the title part in the De Mille-Belasco play, Marlowe will re-appear in Shaksper- "Lord Chumley," one of the best ian repertoire, a consummation which characterizations he has ever given. was devoutly wished and confidently It was after this success that he became the head of Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Stock Company, which presented many plays, chief of which were "Captain Lettarblair," "The Maister of Woodbarrow?", "The Dancing Girl," "The Victoria Cross,"
"The Way to Win a Woman," "Sheridan, or The Maid of the Bath," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "An Enemy to the King," "Change Alley," "The Lady of "A Colonial Girl." "The Ursula." King's Muskateer," and "The Song of the Sword." On September 17, 1900, Mr. Sothern made his first appearance in New York in "Hamlet," in which play he achieved a notable success in London, but which Gothamites have received more or less coldly. Fol-lowing this came "If I Were King," and "The Proud Prince," with Cecilia Loftus. Itit was in 1904 that Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe joined forces, offering a repertoire of Shaksperian plays. During the season prior to their engagement in London they produced three important dramas—"Jeanne D'Arc," by Percy Mackaye; "John the Baptist," from Sudermann, and "The Sunken Bell," an adaptation from

It was after the termination of their joint starring engagement that Mr. Sothern produced Lawrence Irving's of his father's greatest success (the first performance by the younger Sothern) being given at the Belasco actor's life was one of bitter struggle against poverty. He produced a farce which he had written called "When the star of the Belasco Theatre, Washington, D. C., and a massive production of "Don Quixote," in which the star of the Belasco Theatre, Washington, D. C., and a massive production of "Don Quixote," in which the star of the Belasco Theatre, Washington, D. C., and a massive production of "Don Quixote," hero of Cervantes' great novel, is thought by many to have done the est work in his painstaking and laud-

Hauptmann's German play.

Miss Marlowe's early struggles would have discouraged a less ambitious, broad-minded woman. Born in Chald-America when Sarah (her real Christian name) was ten years old. She 12 years of age when she made her debut in Cincinnati, in "Pinafore," and soon thereafter played Susanne in "The Chimes of Normandy," a page in "The Little Duke," and finally juvenive roles in "Rip Van Winkle." When she was 16 she attracted the attention of a gifted English woman, Ada Dow, who saw in the young girl, then known as Fannie Brough, much latent talent. For three years the two studied together at Miss Dow's home in Bayonne, N. J., the younger woman reading Shakspere every day form 8 a. m., until noon and then impersonating the various roles in the afterneons. Between times she learned to handle foils and swing Indian clubs. It was at this time that she met Robert G. Ingersoll, and he became her warm friend, giving her the benefit of his knowledge as to the control of the human voice. Miss Marlowe's real theatrical debut was as Parthenia in "Ignomar," New London, Conn., in 1887, just a year before Mr. Sothern won his first big victory as Lord Chumley. Miss Marlowe first appeared as Juliet in 1888 at the Star Theatre, New York.

Miss Marlowe's most successful roles have been in "Colinette," "Bonnie Prince Charlie," "When Knighthood Was In Flower," "Barbara Fritchie," and "The Cavalier," as Parthenia in "Ignomar,' Rosalind in "As You Like It," Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet," Viola in "Twelfth Night," and Portia in "The Merchant of Venice."

Two seasons ago Miss Marlowe produced "Gloria," a play written by a rising young author. James Bernard Fagan, but found it unprofitable, and toward the end of the season she used it as one in a large repertoire. Last season she was seen in a beautiful production, "The Godess of Reason," a blank verse drama by Mary John-

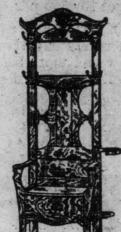

During her recent London engagement Miss Marlowe was hailed by Arthur Symons, a distinguished British critic, as the world's greatest

The Electric Car That Has Survived

SUNDAY MORNING

It must have been a wonderful car to start with because it has lived and the others have disappeared from the pavement. The "Waverley" is an example of "the survival of the fittest" in electric cars. A real good Electric Car should appeal to the city man. There is nothing better than the Electric for use on the city pavements.

Waverley Commercial

New York and London have demonstrated that for a light delivery there is nothing to equal the electric truck or wagon. The "Waverley" is the favorite in New York. It is a case of jump to the seat, turn on the power, and you're away.

Also for commercial houses where electric lighting is used, it is a simple matter to charge the batteries over-night. The "Waverley" is the simplest of electrics, and the electric is the simplest of automobiles. It makes good.

We sell also the "E.M.F." Gasoline Car. It is the car that made the record path-finding for the Glidden Tour, over what is positively the worst road in America.

Write to us for catalogues and price list. We have also a splendid Bridge-Whist Score Book which we will send for the asking.

That Jeff-Johnson Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO. May 14.—That the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight are viewing with much anxiety the crusade launched against the holding of the contest at Emergville, and are taking steps to insure it elsewhere if the bars are put up in California, is shown by an announcement of Tex Rickard that he will secure a permit for the big battle in Nevada.

"It's merely a step to safeguard ourselves," Rickard explained last night. He denied that he expected trouble in this state, but the more pessimistic the smack of satisfaction. Families supplied by the retail dealers.

The Hercules Coaster Brake

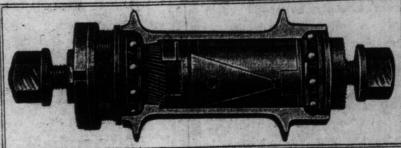

"I use a new wheel with coaster brake between my office and summer cottage. The distance can be covered in 17 minutes; but as a 25-minute ride the experience is rich and restful and upbuilding. Not at such times does on ask, 'Is life worth living?'"

There were more "Hercules" brakes sold in Canada last year than all others combined.

One reason for the "Hercules" popularity is that it is lighter in weight than any other. The "Hercules" is an armless brake, a great feature in any bicycle. Also it is pathetically simple. A child can take it apart and reassemble it.

IMPORTANT SALE OF CARLOADS THOROUGHBRED 2-YEAR-OLD COLTS AND FILLIES

RANCOCAS STOCK FARM OF JOBSTOWN, N.J.

Monday Evening, May 23, at 8 o'clock

The stock to be offered is all the get of such well-known sires as Imp, Giganteum, Pontiac, Armeath II., and Locohatchee, and this sale will provide the best opportunity ever offered for purchasing a horse with bright prospects as a winner. Nearly every colt or filly to be offered has a full-brother, half-brother, or full-sister which has already been first under the wire. Mrs. Livingstone owns the largest stock farm in the world, and at the beginning of the present year had 52 two-year-olds in training, and many have been added since. Every horse is to be sold for just the most it will bring. Catalogues containing extended pedigree of every colt and filly, as well as sires, to be had on application.

Choir, for next season, will be increased from 200 to 250 voices for the production of Schumann's "Faust." This beautiful work requires an auxiliary choir of 50 voices. Mr. Fletcher, who is busy testing voices on Tuesday and Thursday of each week, expects to have the organization complete by June 15. The chorus will be superior in every way to any previous season, as many new and talented singers and choir soloists have already passed the test. Applications for membership may be made by letter to 137 Cottingham-street. The test number will be Ischaikow's "O Praise Ye," which may be procured at Whaley and Royce.

DECLARE AN AMNESTY

When a new king ascended the throne it used to be the custom to declare a general amnesty, when all but the most abandoned and desperate criminals were given their freedom, and the royal jail-delivery gave every erring one a chance for a new start.

Modern clemency is exercised upon different lines, and is extended over the whole time of a monarch's reign, instead of the first day or two. But there is a suggestion for the unroyal in the old custom which might very well be given consideration. The king can be no better than the average of his subjects, and if we have a good king it is an indication that the average character of the population is gaining in tone and quality. The reign of Queen Victoria did much to refine and soften the rugged insular character of Englishmen, and the manly attributes of King Edward have prevented any tendency to efferminacy which the long reign of his mother might have engendered. That King George may preserve the equipoise of a well-balanced and symmetrical nature will be the hope of all who have the welfare of the empire at heart, and already he shows an earnestness and consideration which are truly royal and worthy the traditions of a world-wide dominion

But what are his subjects doing to make the empire great in their

How would it do for all of us to declare a general amnesty on behalf of our own subjects, our inferiors, dependents, opponents and enemies? Have any of us a jail deep down in our hearts where we keep in close confinement prisoners who ought to be free? Are there old friendships beshackled and manacled there, dungeon deep in darkness of pride? Are there any repentant offenders who would gladly look upon our faces again with the pleasure of the sunlight of love, or even of the daylight of kindness? Are there any who wait for our release to go on with their lives on paths which would bring them to fuller life and deeper peace, if we but stood out of the way, or opened a door? Might we not be the sovereigns of God's good nature to some who live with us in fear and ng; who hide their real hearts from us because of our harshness and unreasonableness; who long to live in a world to which we bar the way? Let us think over our lives and see if there are none whom to be reconciled with, to shake hands with, to look in the eyes, as in "dead old days beyond recall," would not make living easier and dying a sweeter

We pray every day, or we ought to pray, "forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us!" Do we always realize that it is a conditional prayer? We pray not to be forgiven unless we forgive. Are we in earnest? Do we desire not to be forgiven, as we refuse to forgive? Do we pray that the Hand shall be withheld from us as we withhold our hand here?

"Reconciliation! Word over all, beautiful as the sky!"

IMPERIAL EXPANSION

Very interesting figures are those contained in an official volume just issued by the home government, entitled "Statistical Abstract of the British Empire from 1894 to 1908." It deals with area, population and trade and illustrates in a vivid way the expansion that is continually going on within the imperial states and dependencies. Between 1881 and 1901 the population of the empire increased from 303,694,000 to 385,-357,000, and by this time must be well over the 400,000,000 mark. Hitherto China has been regarded as the only nation that equalled or possibly exceeded the British empire in the number of its people. Recent investigation, however, tends to show that the population of China has been much exaggerated, and it may now be taken as certain that no emperor, king or elected chief of a state has ever ruled more or so many of the human race as will now own allegiance to George the Fifth.

As the area of the empire extends to 11,334,000 square miles, the average population is 34 to the square mile. This exceeds that of the United States, which, in 1900, was only 25.6. It must, of course, be remembered that the British population is very unequally distributed. Vast areas in Canada and Australia are as yet unpeopled, while in India the pressure is very great and is yearly becoming more pronounced. Calcutta is the second city of the empire, its estimated population in 1909 being upwards of a million, while Scotland takes third place, with the 872,000 people concentrated in Glasgow. If, however, the independent burghs of Goran, Purheer and Kinning Park all really parts of Glasgow, be included, Scotland can boast that a quarter of its whole population are found in its commercial capital.

In 1908 the export and import trade of the united kingdom totalled upwards of $7,000,000,000, of which its foreign trade absorbed 74.8 per cent, and the remainder was distributed among the various parts of the empire. The steam and sailing vessels registered in British ports reached in that year the colossal amount of 13,263,354, nearly a half of the total world tonnage. Evidently Britain's mercantile supremacy on the sea is still unchallenged, and is not likely to be in the near future. In 1908 the values of quantities of staple articles produced within the empire were, in round figures: Coal $650,000,000, gold $265,000,000, wheat, bushels, 541,600,000, barley 117,400,000, oats 469,400,000, raw sugar, cwt., 50,800,000, rubber, lbs., 9,623,000. With the rapid farm settlement in Canada and the new policy pursued in Australia the grain yields are certain to increase largely the grain yield of the empire.

IRISH CONSTABULARY DISSATISFIED WITH THE SERVICE CONDITIONS

Seven Suicides in Past Year, Two Leaving Letters Complaining of Persecution of Martinets

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DUBLIN, May 14.-Fro m time to time we hear complaints about the activities of the Royal Irish Constabulary, but luckily these belong chiefly to the bad old days of the land wars, when the men were used, much against their will, to carry out evictions and in other ways do the dirty work of the landlord class.

Now they are confined almost entirely to legitimate police work and are as popular as any set of public servants in the country. Public sympathy is with them in the complaints which they are making now of their conditions of service, and more ectivities of the Royal Irish Constabu-

Under these circum-stances the authorities seem to think that the officer is made of finer clay and is entitled to all sorts of extra emoluments. One subject of complaint just now is the way in which the money allotted for traveling ex-penses is divided. Many of the of-ficers have their own motor cars, and when they use them on official duty they are allowed about $500 a year for their upkeep, and in addition to that mileage at the rate of 18 cents a mile on every occasion on which they have to go six miles or more from their headquarters. Printing Without Ink Latest Advance in Applied Science

New Process Does Better Printing. Both for Newspapers and Books, Saves Labor and Waste and Solves Problem of Repulping.

Every huge modern printing press requires type and ink, precisely as if it were the tiny device upon which the small boy obtains his results. There has been no radical departure from the process as used by Caxton.

Now, however, an invention has been perfected in England and rendered mercially possible, says Chambers' Journal, which promises to revoludispenses entirely with ink and its anism. The process is entirely electrical. Briefly it works as follows:

the form of type, and the other pole with the platen which carries the paper and presses it against the type or block with the platen which carries the paper and presses it against the type or block to be printed. The result of the impression is that a clear imprint of the characters is obtained. The process is extremely simple, and dispenses, furthermore, with a considerable amount of the essential preliminaries in printing operations described as 'making ready.'

With unannointed brow.'' Greatest Features.

"Normally the imprint thus obtained "Normally the imprint thus obtained is a sharply defined dense black, as is usually required; but, if desired, any requisite tint can be obtained. This latter development is probably the greatest feature of the process, for it renders color-printing extremely simple. Instead of there being a contain delay between the ved blue simple. Instead of there being certain delay between the red, blue and yellow printing, as is now essential to permit the successive coats of appli-ed pigment to dry, the three impressions can be made instantly after one

"For ordinary newspaper-printing the invention possesses great possibilities. It eliminates one-fourth of the complicated mechanism of the press—the ink-rolls and the ducts—so that the dimensions of the machine can be considerably reduced. Moreover, a heavy ink represents a certain outlay, while the ink-rolls require frequent repair.'

and easily, the inventor has devised as easily and as delicately as the flow the Revised Version in poetical form and in sections with brief notes and appropriate headings. The second volume includes Zephaniah, Nahum, can work it.

"Another valuable feature is that the question of repulping waste is solved. Under present conditions the cannot be repulped to render it availas the removal of the ink is a difficult

"In the electrical process there is no difficulty, however, as the 'waste' is merely immersed at the paper-mills in vats containing a certain prepared and cheap solution, which causes the impression produced by the electric current to disappear, and, after repulping, the paper can be used again. In the course of private demonstrations carried out before the writer, the simlicity of the process was strikingly apparent. Even a coin laid upon the paper and slightly pressed leaves a clear impression. It may also be pointed out that the process involves no wear and tear upon the type or metallic surface of the block, and that no action is set up by the passage of the electric

Whether or not it was the New Brunswick bard's poetic harangue, despite its essentially sloppy bombast, that woke Canada to the virile achievedestiny, it is quite true that, as W. D. McBride says in his article, "The Faith of Our Fathers" (University Magazine, April, 1910), "Canada has had to prove her worth to an unbelieving world, justifying the faith of her people by abundant works in order to establish her pretting expressed as a delication." her prestige abroad as a delightsome

It seems, then, that Canada has been suffering, and still suffers, from a peculiar libel, and that this libel has been uttered by prominent Canadians, poets and prosemen. Some months ago I published in The Sunday World a special article on "The Genius and Distinction of Canadian Poetry." Many think that poetry has no intimate connection with life, that it is mere maginative playing with the superficial aspects of human endeavor. Yet in my article I pointed out that the genius of the Canadian people was envisaged in our poetry, and that its peculiar quality was the note of Faith in ourselves and in our powers to work out a splendid destiny, with courage and cheerfulness.

And this note, I pointed out, runs considerable verses, written by the Rev. James MacGregor in Gaelic, in the early part of the 19th century, to those written by the poets who celebrated the glory of the Quebec Tercentenary. In other words, the quality of the Canadian people which we see in them to-day-this century, which is Canada's century-was really in them during the centuries from the conquest of Quebec. Consider for a moment what our cousins across the border say of us. They criticize us as being "slow," meaning by that term a failure to push forward with feverish excitement the conduct of our political, social, industrial and commercial affairs. Only the other day a prominent publisher of New York said to me: "Do you know that you Canadians exhibit an extraordinary business attitude; you seem to be reluctant, over-cautious. "These startling declarations belong to the class of half-truths which are sometimes more misleading than false-hoods. In order to accept such dicta we would have to wipe out the history of the arts in China, ignore the history of Greek sculpture, Japanese pottery, English poetry. But this doctrine that the arts have no relation to race, place, and time, is a part of the professional pose of those artists who would like to believe that their art has no interests except its own perfections, that it is detachable from life, and even superior to it in importance, that the less significance it has the better, because to have a meaning or a moral is to be diterary, and to be literary is to be comprehensible, vulgar, and non-artiscomprehensible, vulgar, and non-artis-tic. It is, reduced to its simplest terms, the cult of 'art-for-art.'

Contrary to Fact. "That there never was an artistic period, nor an art-loving nation, may be in a literary sense true, but the statement nevertheless conveys a false impression. It implies that there never was a place where art was generally regarded as one of the leading interests where the people at large took an in-telligent interest in it, where the artists were held in special honor. It implies that there never was a time when art enjoyed a special rebirth, a notable period of productivity and distinction, a season of particular fruitfulness. Now, nothing is more interesting in the critical works of Taine than his constant references to the influence exerted upon artists by their environment, racial singularities, and time. So important are these influences, in his view, that he never loses sight of them in his analysis of art work, but incessantly seeks to account for the traits which he finds manifested by a study of the national traits."

It was not bel canto, his mode of vocal utterance; neither did his style resemble that of Dr. Wullner. It was just Mark Twain's, as unmistakably own as his writing and his talking, and quite as entertaining. At one time "Killaloo" was his favorite song, and how he sang that Irish ballad for Mrs. Charles Dudley Warner's musi-cal friends, with inimitable drawl and nasal twang, slow movements of his head from side to side, and curiously droll gestures, will not be forgotten those who heard and saw the performance.

An Appreciation of the Art of Sir William Quiller Orchardson, R.A., Recently Deceased, With a List of His Chief Works and a Critical Estimate.

Sentiment, wit, pathos, satire—he was master of them all within his limits; and, with his posterity, the work of William Quiller processed upon us an individuality which pressed upon us an individuality which has scarcely been surpassed in the history of modern art. It is an ex-traordinary catalogue of virtues this, rarely possessed by one man.

Sir William Orchardson was not of these. He was a true and a great artist, who legitimately appealed to painter and public alike. The technician appreciated him for his work, in was hint enough. Nor was he insensible to praise when it came from the right quarter. He was fond of recounting his delight on the occasion when Pellegrini ("Ape" of "Vainity Fair"), whom at that time he did not know, walked agitatedly up to him with threatening mien in the Royal Academy, and exclaimed, with his strong Italian accent and picturesque dramatic gesture, "Mr. Orchardson, if by murdering you." Folk Songs and Dances Pointers for Educators (From Rochester Post Express)

The performance of folk dances in the public schools and the singing of folk tunes is one of the sanest things that has ever been done for the spread of good musical taste.

Folk tunes are the very genius of a people expressed in song. The man who loves "Annie Laurie," "Aileen Aroon," "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Ah! vous dirai je?"
"Ach, wie ist's moglich dann,"
"Schone Minka" and the like may not be learned in the classics, but he has in himself the germ of true classic

For that reason it is greatly to be rejoiced that they are taking up the Scandinavian dances and songs in the schools. Think how it must warm the hearts of Norsemen and Swedes to hear their beloved airs sung in America. It will do more to make them kindly disposed toward the coun-try of their adoption than any amount

America. It will do more to make them kindly disposed toward the country of their adoption than any amount of political platitudinizing.

Besides that the dances are the most admirable form of exercise. Why not the Morris dance of England. The "Virginia Reel" is only "Sir Roger de Coverly" under another name; why not the Irish jig and reel, the Highand filing, the Hungarian czardas? No country has such unrivaled opportunities for a multi-colored civilization as America has, if we will only make use of the opportunities which literally beg of our acceptance. Why should not the Poles dance their mazurkas, the Germans their Landler, the Spaniards their bolero and jota?

zurkas, the Germans their Landler, the Spaniards their bolero and jota?
All over Europe there is a sort of national rejuvenescence in this respect. We may learn a lesson from the Japanese, who, after tending for a time towards a false Occidentalism, have reverted with passionate enthusiasm to the genius of their own Nippon. There are Japanese in our midst. Would they not take it as a compliment if we asked them to dance and sing for us as they dance and sing at home? But there are good souls in the public schools devoted to this ideal, and we have reason to hope much of their work.

THE EFFECT OF CARBON.

When we consider that it is generally accepted in steam engineering that a coating a quarter inch thick on the inside of the boller tubes necessitates an increase of about sixty per cent. in the heat supplied to produce the same amount of steam, the effect of excessive coatings of carbon on the walls of gasoline motor cylinders can Summing up all these items it will be appreciated. I feel toward it as tho I had a train at my front door waiting to serve me at any time the road is in condition.

I will here relate my reasons for buy-ing the car I did. My car weighs 1200 pounds. It is equipped with speedometer, carbide generator, glass front and extension top. It has 31/2 inch tires on 30-inch wheels. A tire of this size is rated to carry 600 pounds weight on each wheel, or, in other words, its normal load is a certain weight for each of its square inches in diameter. There are many cars weighing 2100 pounds or more having no larger tires. When the car is loaded with five passengers, and often more, it does require an expert to say that the tires are overloaded and trouble should be

I prefer to be removed from oil cans a car which I oil at home occasion ally by pouring the lubricating oil into the engine base. This oils all the machinery by splash. My car has thermo-syphon water circulation, which does away with a pump.

Farm automobiles as now made are used for many different purposes, T often find them hauling milk of cream to the creameries, produce to town, returning loaded with various articles. I have seen some farmers haul several barrels of cement at one time, barrels of salt, oil, etc.

Horses are getting used to meeting them, and very few accidents occur. The law also compels automobile drivers to be more careful than they were at first. The cars are of neater design. The exhaust is almost silent on account of improved mufflere, and we can now travel safer in every way than formerly. The auto and gas engine are with us to stay.-Orange Judd Farmer.

Auto Hints

Anyone who has had experience knows that sunlight has a deteriorating effect upon tires. Obviously it is impossible to avoid exposing them to the light when running the machine, but when standing, it is the part of wisdom to favor them in any possible manner. To this end don't leave a car standing for hours where the hot sun will strike it-of you do you may find a flabby tire on your return, as an immediate re-sult, with the ultimate ill effect not so readily overcome. It is far better to stop in the shade and walk a hundred feet to your destination.

And in the case of the car that is run mostly at night, it should be covered thru the bright hours of the day when in the garage. The man with his private garage can obtain this protect tion by providing heavy shades for the windows. Sections of old carpet or rugs are excellent for this purpose

Some short circuits are exasperating ly hard to locate—so much so that many a car has been rewired because of inability to find one. As a last resort (and sometimes before), start up the engine in the dark and look for a spark that shouldn't be.

prolonged overcharge and in so doing ing current cannot go thru them, but has caused an abnormal amount of if only the ordinary amount is present, lead sulphate, the storage battery

The one remaining case in the hundred is caused by usual wear and Lead sulphate is a white insoluble substance absolutely without conductivity. It always forms in lead-sulphuric acid storage cells when on discharge and is reconverted to lead peroxide when on charge. Now, if we permit this sulphate to form in large would:

Charge until the charging current is constant.

The way then to keep out of battery trouble is to avoid discharge beyond 1.75-1.8 voits per ceil. At any rate it is possible to reduce trouble to almost a negligible quantity, if we would:

Charge until the electrolyte looks stallations, provision is made for cutting out individual cells in order to norse them, as it were, but in the case of the average motor boat plant; if once cell goes out, the whole battery is to all intents and purposes, out, since it won't give satisfactory service where the ignition and lighting systems have been designed for six volts; we all know how quickly the lighting system shows adrop in the E. M. F.

A continued overdischarge will also cause severe internal strains in the plates, making them spring or buckle out of shape. This is due to the ract out of shape. This is due to the ract that if too much of the lead peroxide be converted to sulphate, the increase

Now, in 99 cases of of 100, the battery is blameless. Mr. Man has given it a the battery life, i. e., loss of capacity. The lead plates are purposely made in their peculiar forms in order that as much of the active material (lead peroxide or sponge 1-ad) may be exposed to the action of the electrolyte as possible and if the plates be covered with white insoluble, non-conducting that the charge-mains in a battery after having been on discharge, since the meter cannot in volume sets up unequal strains. The result is either a short circuit between measure either the leakage which oc-curs before the current reaches the neter or the local action within the battery.

Contrary to the general impression, no meter will indicate how much reof the grid and falls to the bottom of the tank, where if permitted to accumulate, will cause short circuits by touching the bottom of the plates.

It must not be literally taken that sediment in storage batteries is directly and only caused by buckled plates.

The only way to ascertain the value of the charge remaining is to measure the density of the electrolyte. This is infallible, because the fall in density is directly proportional to the amperenours taken out of the battery.

A TELEGRAPH STATION THAT MAY BE MOVED AT SIXTY OR SEVENTY MILES AN HOUR: A MOTOR CAR FITTED WITH A "WIRELESS." INSTALLATION.

The car illustrated is fitted with a portable wireless telegraphy set, which enables its owner to keep in constant communication with his home while out motoring. . It is said that a number of American motorists are to have their cars similarly equipped. The apparatus can be moved from the car at will, and placed on the road. It is pointed out that such an invention may be of great service in time of war.

of Wheels and Rims

This is essentially the time of year to look after one's wheels and rims, for the wet weather will have left its mark, altho the mark is not always discernible. The coming of spring invariably heralds a season of trouble, so 'tis said among owners of carts and vans, for as the sun begins to exert its influence on the wheels the moisture gathered by the stocks, the spokes and the felloes during the winter months dries out and, the wood contracting, wheels go to pieces under

Rims will, after a winter's use, be found to be rusty in the depths of the afinges and also on the outsides thereof where the tire levers have chipped the paint off. After removal of all rust with emery cloth, the rims may be painted inside and also on the out-Gnome Aeronautical Motor being tested out on a test stand, showing peculiar appearance at high speed. The Chauffeur

Occasionally the remark is made by some one who ought to be competent to give a correct opinion that the demand for chauffeurs is greater than the supply. This is not so. The demand for superior chauffeurs is probably greater than the supply, just as the demand for superiority in every other avenue of business is greater than the supply, but this does not alter the fact that in this city there are about a dozen chauffeurs, such as they are, for every vacancy. We often get letters from young men, usually in the country, who state that they are fully competent to run a car, having had some experience in their own town or being graduates of correspondence or other schools, but they have found it impossible to get a situation, because no one seems to be willing to give them a chance. They say that car owners invariably want experienced men, and they feel it is a little unjust to expect them to have experience when there is no opportunity to get it, d In other words, they can have no chance without experience, and, of course, they can have no experience without a chance. Yet a situation of this kind is by no means unique. Experience is in demand everywhere, and it is especially important where life and valuable property are at stake. Experience, however, is not the only nor the chief thing car owners should demand of a chauffeur. Far more important are the qualities of watchfulness, cautiousness and attention, and these are largely inherent.

But there are other requirements of a chauffeur than those which go to make him careful. Not only must he be able to save unnecessary wear and tear of the car and to operate it at a minimum of expense, but he ought to have the manner of a gentleman. He should keep himself as well as his car tidy in public, and avoid slouchiness in dress or attitude. Where the car owner has previously employed a coachman, he will not be content with a chauffeur who does not possess these qualities. In other words, the chauffeur occupies a rather peculiar relation to the man he works for, and it is not every good mechanic who can fully understand and appreciate a position of this kind. Where the requirements are so exacting, the salary is an attractive one, as it should be, but where nothing is demanded other than the saving of heavy repair bills, knowing how to adjust the carburetor or locate a trouble of some kind, it is not difficult to find a competent chauffeur, nor is the salary so large.

first place, it was feared that a large number of cars running on schedule time thru the country might do a great deal to antagonize the Ontario farmers. Another objection was that as all the entries would be from private owners no great good to the automobile industry in general would result. The dealers who were canvassed in regard to the event were almost unanimous in saying that they were unanimous in saying that they were not ready for a contest of this kind. Therefore, it would be confined entirely to amateur drivers and private own

Only about 25 per cent. of those thus circulated answered these questions, and when the committee of the league net a few days later it was decided of to hold the run. Several reasons were given for this decision. In the the valves are open together, or else that the mixture is too weak. The latter cause is the more common and may be due to the fact that the gasoline feed is obstructed or that, may be a leaky joint in the industion pipes, admitting an excess of air. It is almost certain that in a new car there is no lubricant present be-tween the leaves of the springs. This important point should be looked after once or rust will form upon the unpainted surfaces which bear against each other, and an annoying squeaking will occur whenever the car passes ver even slight road inequalities. Besides the squeaking, the riding quali-ties will be materially affected because of the resistance offered to notion of the leaves relative to each ther. The shackle bolts should also eceive attention. In this latter connection two or three cases have come to our notice in which shackle bolts unprovided with lubricating means, and possibly fitted a bit too tightly in the first place, have become 'frozen" thru the presence of rust so that the springs might almost as well have been solid bars of steel, is a shining example of the policy which has made the Russell reputation.

The abilities of this car are as accurately gauged as those of any fine piece of mechanism can be. Back of the general, all-round dependability is merit in detail-quality of steel, scientific designing, perfect machining of working parts, precise adjustment.

Every part must stand a specific test before it can be passed by the inspector. To the average mind perhaps all the technicalities of tests, resistance to strain, etc., is a complicated subject difficult to follow, but the result is apparent enough.

CHAPTER IV. Half a Discovery in the Woods.

Miss Grayman was the first to awake on the morning following their arrival at Payton's mysterious lodge, and immediately she called Susan. "I am so in hopes that my friends have arrived!" she said. "I want to get downstairs as soon as possible."
Susan hastily dressed herself, her mistress, in her impatience, performing her toilet unaided, and then they de-

"No fear," said Payton, laughing, and secretly rejoicing to see how well everything played into his hands.
"Bears never venture near the lodge. I believe I can fire a gun without the arts of the Indian?" "I should like nothing better."

Then he looked at Miss Grayman with an expression of sympathetic distress on his fine features.

"I am sorry," he said, "to have to announce a slight mishap, which, while it accounts for the delay of our friends, also makes it certain that they cannot reach us this morning."

was more entertaining than ever. And the air, the water, and the forest were equally delightful—so cool, fresh, fragrant and musical. It was a new life for Miss Grayman, and she began to feel the zest of it. Her thought of yesterday came to her again, and once more her face flushed.

If her friends really had intended to throw her into the company of Commodore Brown, and get her interested in him in this unconventional way, be-

is a stock of the latest lovels."

At first, Miss Grayman did not know what to reply; the thing was so un-expected. But the glimpse that she had caught, unknown, as she believed, to Commodore Brown, of the signature to the dispatch, confirmed in a most positive manner her former conjecture. It was really the Mitchells, of Washington, then, who were at the bottom of this affair, and she wondered that she had not thought of them at the very first; for now she recalled how the two Mitchell girls and their brother were always engaged in some practical joke on their friends, with a pleasant Miss Grayman was now filled with agreeable antisapation. In a few hours she was sure that she should see her father. Payton had said that he could reach Pettytown in an hour and a half, and that probably two or three ing ahead a little farther. "Look! There yonder are some beautiful red flowers," she said, "and I must have them. Don't you see these animals are not dangerous, after all? der Payton's tutelage, Miss Grayman felt that she could paddle the canoe well enough, and, accordingly, after they had enjoyed for an hour the scene from the verandah, she and Susan embarked. Mrs. Williams randown to the landing, offering to take the paddle, or to send for Indian John, but Miss Grayman declined all assistance. When they had entered the inlet, and were out of view of the lodge, Miss Grayman turned to the shore,

Miss Grayman turned to the shore, and they disembarked in a delightful little cove, overhung with pendulous branches, beside an enormous, lichencovered rock, which she had noticed and admired during their former trip. Here they sat down on the sweet-scented moss and chatted.

"I'd like to know where Pettytown is," said Miss Grayman. "I never heard of the place before. If it had only been a familiar name I might have guessed whereabouts we are. I suppose it is some little backwoods town. Commodore Brown said he could go there in an hour and a half, and I suppose that means that it is at

I suppose that means that it is at least a hundred and fifty miles away."
"May be it was/the town we saw yesterday," suggested Susan.
"Yes. I thought of that, but that was farther away. And even if that were the place, it wouldn't help any, for I don't know in what part of the world Pettytown is."

"Good lordy, Miss Helen, we can't be in some foreign country, can we?"
"Of course not. We're somewhere in New York State, I think, and I am still inclined to believe that it is the Adirondacks. But what's the use of guessing? We shall know in a few hours. Let's take a stroll; there seems to be a kind of path here; perhaps we shall discover something interesting."
"But it might have been made by

"But it might have been made by the bear," said Susan in alarm.
"Oh, I'm not much afraid of bears. Commodore Brown said that they were not dangerous. Indeed, I'd really like to see one. The bears in the zoological gardens never interested me, but here it's different—here where they live. And thest think we may see a

"Of course; and they ought to arrive at any moment now. Don't you want to take the paddle and acquire one of waiters. So you will have a garrison the forest."

But they would do you no harm it they did. Besides, there are plenty of guns there, and I think you intimated that you know how to use them. She pointed to a spot under a great hemiock where the ground had been turned up. The work was either very fresh, or unfinished, and, as she had said, a plokaxe leaned against the trunk of the tree.

"We must see what it is," said Miss Grayman, her curiosity singularly awakened.

But at this moment a crackling in the bushes sounded behind them. Greatly startled, they stopped in their tracks and looked fearfully around. Nothing was in sight, but the sounds became louder and nearer.

"Oh, good Lord!" cried Susan, nearly sinking to the ground. "That terrible beast has been circling round and is going to run at us again!"

She was very ill for two months, and tells of the cold, damp, airless cell where she was confined when they brought her a jug of hot milk and left it with her. The temptation, the terrible temptation, to sip the soothing, refreshing milk was almost too much for her. She took up the jug in her hands and then she rose all her fine heroism, put it down and was not tempted again. She blamed herself as a coward for even lifting the jug. Miss MacKenzie was given a medal for valor by the Woman's Social and Political Union. This she proudly wears with a prison bar brooch. I said to her: "But you might have killed yourself." Her face lit up as she said, "What matter—could one die in a better cause?" And it is this in a better cause:

spirit that has taken possession of hundreds—yes thousands—of women.
Miss MacKenzie says she will remain for some time in Canada, providing she can work in her beloved cause. She will probably speak at the last meeting of the Toronto Suffrage Association this season—on the fourth Thursday this month—at Zion Institute, corner of Elizabeth and College-streets.

The story of "The Country Boy" revolves around a young fellow who thinks his little home town is not big enough for his activities as a brilliant business man, and he proceeds to go to New York to show the natives there that he knows a thing or two about the short road to wealth. In the end he is content to believe that opportunities are just as good for finan-cial advancement at home as they are abroad, and that behind the stories of financial security are lurking shadows of mental unrest, and that happiness cannot be bought with money. The play is written in a comedy and every character is a distinct type. Mr. Selwyn's Toronto friends will likely see him in the leading part.

"The First Night" Coming to Princess

Usually in the presentation of a star in the theatrical world, other essentials are subordinated to the personality of the stellar figure. Especially is this true in relation to the feminine stars, but Lillian Russell is an exception in more ways than one. This will be seen when the famous beauty comes to the Princess for the week of May 23, in her recent stage surprise and triin her recent stage surprise and triumph, "The First Night."

It is a singular fact that Miss Russell occupies a position of such pro-minence on our stage that her place in the contemporary drama is unique. The finer her play and the more elaborate her production and surroundings in the way of supporting players, the brighter she shines by comparison. It is the surest indication of her wonderful personality and artistic capa-bilities that in "The First Night" the fair Lillian has made the hit of her career. THE DONKEY NAMED "JANUARY."

In "Metz in Ireland," in which Al. H. Wilson, the singing ambassador of German dialect is starring, he makes his appearance on the stage in an Irish jaunting cart to which is hitched a "wee bit" of an Irish donkey that answers to the name of "January." During a recent performance "January" became banky just as he emerged upon the stage, and, despite earnest coaxing by Mr. Wilson, refused to move another inch. To fill in the stage wait Mr. Wilson introduced a little comedy by dismounting and resorting to the well-known methods that are supposed to make a balky animal move. He whispered in "January's" ear, pushed him from behind, and, in a moment of thoughtlessness he twisted "January's" the orchestra concert. Look at me! tail. Leo Slezak, the great tenor, now sings for you in the Edison Phonograph the same famous arias from the Grand Operas that the New York audiences pay $5.00 a seat to hear. Just how great a singer Slezak is, is told in the following remark, quoted from the New York World the morning after a recent appearance of Slezak at the Metropolitan Opera House: "Caruso now has a rival."

Slezak has made ten records for the Edison, comprising the principal tenor songs from the more prominent roles of his repertoire—so that, while the New York opera goer pays $5.00 a seat to hear Slezak in one opera, with the Edison Phonograph and Amberol Records you get Slezak at his best in his ten best roles, including Otello, Lohengrin, Tannhauser, Rhadames in Aida and Rodolfo

Only on Amberol Records can you get a full length rendering of these great arias-and only on the Edison Phonograph do you get Amberol Records. Hear these great Slezak Records at any Edison

"Tickled to death," said Mr. Wilson, and with this he picked up a stage brace and struck the speaker over the head. The stage hands, not knowing who the stranger was, proceeded to take a hand, and when the cyclone had passed the cousin was pulled out of an elevator shaft where a righthanded hook under the left ear had landed him. Aside from a broken nose, two ribs broken, and a dislocated shoulder, he was all right, and able to explain the joke and reveal his iden-tity. At the hospital he later assured Mr. Wilson that it would be a long to look a practical joke in the face.
