DEVELOP THE PROVINCE

It might be profitable for the city council to consider Chief Clark's plea for more policemen.

Mr. Frank has asked some questions about the cost of heating and lighting the city hall, which appears to demand a thorough investigation.

The state of affairs at the St. John post-office should receive the attention of the department at Ottawa.

A Winnipeg paper notes the fact that a block opposite the market in that city, which was sold a year ago for $30,000 has just been re-sold for $50,000.

An Ottawa despatch to the Montreal Star of Wednesday said: "Olovelo Tuccer, M. P., is here, and it is said his chances of securing one of the recent Senatorships in New Brunswick are very bright."

The Supreme Court of Ohio has decided in favor of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland in his fight for three cent fares.

LOOKING FORWARD

The following letter from Ottawa appears in the Winnipeg Telegram:

A Dominion Conservative convention will be held next fall, probably in Winnipeg. It is proposed to have a full representation of the party from each of the provinces, and to take the eastern members of the party to the gateway of the west.

The project next broached was to hold it in Ottawa, but the lateness of the season and other things blocked that proposal.

During the session it was decided to hold the convention in the autumn of 1906, and a committee of members, headed by H. B. Ames, was appointed to make the arrangements.

THE INGLE NOOK PHILosopher OF KENNEBECAS BAY

"It Marvel once remarked that when he married a first he would buy second hand clothes of the Jews."

"He will," said Howard, as he loaded his pipe with my tobacco, "if it is the humor of his wife that he should do so. Your newly married man will also say to the hands of the newly married woman, who is generally a simpleton, and he as little better: 'If at the bedside of his first I'll Marvel takes to second-hand clothes when he marries he will wear second-hand clothes the rest of his days.'"

"Women are masterful," continued Howard, "emitting a great cloud of smoke from the left corner of his mouth, 'and if they get the whip hand in the calow days of their husbands and themselves, which they generally do, they hang on to it to the end of the chapter.'"

"I was surprised, for never had I heard so long a speech from his lips before. Then he turned his eyes towards my boots, and with an air of indifference picked out the 'sublimity' and in a moment had forgotten everything else, and left me to my own reflections."

"Polard's matrimonial voyage has been a disastrous one. They tell that Mrs. Polard assumed command of the ship the moment they embarked, and that Polard was never allowed to have his 'real little dear,' giving her orders with a stamp of her trimly shod foot. They say she was pretty hard on the chest, flouting eyes, a splendid figure, and that Polard worshipped her. But when he concluded that it was time to set sail on his business, for him to take command, she laughed at him and, figuratively, put him in his place. He was then commanded everlastingly: 'Polard! I cannot help, thinking when he drops into my room of an evening, that he comes for a little bit of padding in my mittens I associate his name with that of Christopher Clatterback, who, in my history, is recorded as 'Polard.' But there are many Clatterbacks and many Polards; gentle submission, sensibility, uncomplaining, we most frequently and great them with a hand clasp which means more than we would care to put in words. Some time a Polard mutinies and breaks things, throws them to break things. Then he is hauled into court and after a while a reporter spreads that he has been or ought to be executed. Polard is just as much to blame for the outcome of his voyage as Mrs. Polard. When she has hoisted anchor he should have taken command and never surrendered it."

"Polard lay down the 'Roblyat,' till and lights his pipe again, and prepares to take his departure."

A prolonged sneeze rendered the rest of his confession inaudible. White Head, K. C. Nov. 29.

BROKERS PREACH CONSERVATISM. Wall Street has been impressed by the strength of the interest behind the upward movement, and is consequently less inclined to offer opposition. I. C. R. AND GRAND TRUNK. The Montreal Witness has a somewhat faint-flavored article on the relations between the Intercolonial Railway and the Grand Trunk, to the effect that the government has already paid for half the cost of Grand Trunk's proposed double-trucking the line from St. Hubert to St. Rose, a distance of seven miles. No wonder the Intercolonial Railway does not pay, and never will pay for the Grand Trunk. It would be better to turn over the Intercolonial to the Grand Trunk than to continue this sort of business over very low wages. The benefit the Intercolonial—the popular railway, as the management designs to call it—receives from the improvement at Bonaventure is infinitesimal compared with that received at the Grand Trunk. Montreal will be benefited probably by the agreement to pay half the cost of double-trucking. It is stated that the Minister of Railways and Canals will probably ask for appropriations to strengthen bridges between Levis and St. Rose so as to permit of heavy locomotives being used over that section. If it is done, then the number of trains between St. Rose and Montreal will be increased probably two-thirds. There will consequently be much less reason for the Intercolonial contributing toward the double-trucking of the Grand Trunk. The latter may want it for its winter Atlantic export business in the summer, which is very light outside of passenger trains. It looks like a case of get all you can while your friends are in power."

C. P. R. NET GAIN $707,957. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company's earnings continue to make a remarkably fine showing. The statement of earnings and expenses for the month of October, and for the first four months of the company's fiscal year, issued yesterday, shows that the net profit for the month of October amounted to $1,000,000, or a gain of $1,000,000, while the net profit for the four months, July 1 to October 31, amounted to $4,000,000, or a gain of $4,000,000. NOT WELL CONSIDERED. Sometimes, under the impulse of the moment, and perhaps influenced by the surroundings, a man will make statements which in a calmer mood he would himself be the first to repudiate.

One of the speakers at the recent meeting in Berryman's Hall ventured to assert in the sympathetic atmosphere of an assemblage of working men, who were met to consider the strike question, that outside workmen coming to this city should be compelled to pay $100 or $200 each for the privilege.

To apply such a principle as this and make it general, would mean to put a fence around the city. There could be no growth or development in any direction. Not only that, but there would be, at least the possibility of a continuous series of strikes.

The workman himself would be the first to protest against such a system, for if applied here it might be applied elsewhere. He might not desire to go elsewhere, but possibly his sons would, and he would not care to have them confronted by a prohibitive head-tax of that sort.

St. John work for St. John men is a good principle in a general way, and the rule should be observed, but it is possible in moments of enthusiasm to propose measures which would make a city the laughing stock of the world.

PREPARING FOR BATTLE. If the coal miners inaugurate another strike in the United States, and the coal mines owners meet it, they may propose to do, a gigantic struggle that must entail great hardship on the public as well as the strikers will result. A recent Pittsburg letter says:

A secret meeting was held in Philadelphia a few days ago by the anti-trust operators. They decided to fight the demands which will undoubtedly be made by the United Mine Workers of America. This includes recognition of the union, an eight-hour work day and a minimum wage for day labor. The coal operators decided to call in their sales agents until the trouble is settled, and no more coal is to be offered for sale. They also decided that if their mines are to be closed down the plants of the bituminous operators must also close at the same time.

A Pittsburg operator's representative said he had never seen such a large tonnage of coal stored at this time of the year. The Pittsburg man said that the coalminers operators will clean up at least $20,000,000 on stored coal if the strike is continued for any length of time.

The first winter steamer for the season contributed $170,777 to the city's revenue. One hundred steamers at the same rate would pay $17,077,500. Some, doubtless, will pay more, and the estimate of $20,000 for the season may be within the mark, as there may be more than a hundred sailings. The city corporation, as well as individual citizens, has quite a stake in this winter business.

It is now estimated, says a Montreal paper, that within the next three years Montreal will be connected with the Canadian west by three great lines of railroads. Early next summer the Canadian Northern will begin at several points the construction of that section of the transcontinental line lying between Port Arthur and Montreal.

An interesting address by Premier Roblin of Manitoba appears in today's Times. It shows that the government of that province proposes to make railways contribute to the provincial revenues, and there is a prospect of a telephone system partly owned by the province and partly by the municipalities, to provide a cheap service for all the people.

The League of Manitoba Municipalities last week adopted the following resolution: "That in the opinion of this convention the government should adopt a trust act for the province and embody in the Public Schools act the principle of compulsory education suitable to the conditions of rural districts."

The season of the high-windman has opened early. With the number of rough characters about the town during the winter season, when the local bad men are joined by others who come here as a result of the winter steamship business, MAYOR WHITE AND THE STRIKE. David Russell Declares That His Worship Showed Cowardice and Should Resign.

Montreal, Nov. 30, 1905. To the Editor of The Daily Telegraph, St. John, N. B.

Sir—Now that the unfortunate strike has been brought to a satisfactory conclusion, it may be in order to take up the case of those concerned, past judgment on the negligent and guilty ones, and congratulate the men who used such sound judgment in retaining their work.

In my opinion the chief magistrate of your important city acted most unbecomingly like and cowardly in refusing to deal with the question and take up the case of the unfortunate men who were perhaps led away from exercising judgment in the matter, due perhaps to their lack of knowledge concerning the affairs of institutions of such magnitude as the shipping and railroad enterprises. In my judgment the Mayor acted most stupidly in declining to preside at the public meeting held in your city on the night of the 28th instant, when the future of the port of St. John was in peril.

It would have been in the interests of the citizens as well as the strikers had he gone boldly to the front and used his best efforts to bring the strike to an amicable conclusion, instead of shirking the duty and giving the men through the columns of the press such "pills" to digest as the shipping and railway concerns "being capable of managing their own business" and adjusting their own difficulties, intending to follow that course and no other.

The Mayor was probably unaware of the fact that there were others besides "electors" concerned in endeavoring to save the port from being condemned and them from innocent ruin, and the welfare of their families. To whom should the working man appeal if not to their Mayor to adjust any difficulties they may have been driven into through unfortunate circumstances? What is wanted in any important city is a mayor with backbone and force of character, who can and will deal broadly with and confront such situations, not an ineffective leader who does nothing but leave the people, the city, and their property to their fate—in fact, a magistrate sincerely of the support of the citizens of St. John.

The proper course for the citizens of that city to pursue would be to demand his resignation as he has proven himself to be neither a leader nor a follower; nothing more in fact than a "beller," if you please, and all in the time of trouble. Faithfully yours, DAVID RUSSELL.

A GENEROUS ACT (Fredericton Herald, Nov. 30.) Mr. David Russell, of Montreal, who owns the Telegraph and Times, of St. John, is entitled to credit for his action in connection with the "longshoremen's strike in St. John.

The steamship companies had contracts with the laborers brought from Montreal, some of them extending over two weeks, and this meant that so long as the imported men remained at work in St. John, the laborers of that city would not receive all the work involved in loading and unloading the ships, and it was at this point Mr. Russell came to the aid of the "longshoremen." He arranged a compromise with the steamship companies whereby the imported men were all sent back to Montreal, and the St. John laborers are now getting the work. It cost Mr. Russell the tidy sum of $1,000 to reimburse the companies for the obligations they were under to the Montreal laborers, but he cheerfully put up the money, thereby saved some $8,000 in wages to the St. John longshoremen, and is entitled to all the credit attached to his generous action.

LECTURE ON SHORTHAND

Sydney L. Kerr Delivers Instructive Address On An Interesting Subject.

An interesting and very instructive lecture on the art of shorthand was delivered in the school room of the Carlton Methodist church by Sydney L. Kerr, principal of the shorthand department of the St. John Business College and Shorthand Institute. The address was illustrated with lantern views tracing the symbols from the hieroglyphics of the Egyptians to the simple geometrical symbols invented by Sir Isaac Pitman; and introduced views of the father of shorthand and some of his principal inventions up to Sir Isaac Pitman. Mr. Kerr also gave his hearers a lesson in the art of phonography.

In order that his audience might better understand the present position of the art, he drew attention to the origin and early practice of shorthand.

Of the many little interesting chapters of the history of shorthand which were of more interest to us than those which concern the evolution of shorthand from the art of civilization can only be fully appreciated when we endeavor to form some conception of what would happen were we suddenly deprived of the means of expressing ourselves on paper. Presently the speaker turned to the Egyptian hieroglyphics representing P by the picture of a plover, and the Greek letters representing vowels, for the latter Pitman system, which he founded on the principle recognized by the earliest alphabet makers. We can only tonight give a passing glance at the origin of alphabet symbols, but I should like to show you a very striking illustration of the evolution of shorthand writing from the earliest forms known to us down to the system of simple geometrical symbols invented by Sir Isaac Pitman.

The speaker then drew attention to the characters on the screen by which the four consonants, D, B, T, D, have been represented at different times. First, the Egyptian hieroglyphics representing P by the picture of a plover, T by the portrait of a bird (the crane), B by a hand and D by a hand. Then came the Egyptian running hand, and after these the early Greek forms resembling our present letters; then the familiar English script, derived from the Roman modification of the Greek alphabet; and, lastly, Isaac Pitman's simple geometrical lines, light and heavy respectively, for the pairs of sounds, P and B, T and D. Mr. Kerr then pointed out that the ancient alphabet, and indeed their descendants, were extremely cumbersome and ill-adapted for swift writing.

More Terrible Than War!

More terrible than war, famine or pestilence is that awful destroyer, this headless monster, Consumption, that insidiously spreads away from every habitant than any other single disease known to the human race.

It is only cough, a rattling cough, say the careless, as the irritation upon the delicate mucous membrane of the throat, when the irritation settles on the lungs, back away with irritable sticking of the chest. To prevent Bronchitis or Consumption of the Lungs, do not neglect a cough however slight as the irritation spreading throughout the delicate lining of the sensitive air passages soon leads to fatal results. If on the first appearance of a cough or cold you would take a few doses of you would save yourself a great deal of unnecessary suffering. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the life-giving properties of the pine trees of Norway, for Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all Throat and Lung affections. It is a specific. Be sure when you ask for Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to get it. Don't be misled by cheap imitations.

Miss Lena Johnson, Toledo, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for throat troubles after taking numerous other remedies, and I wish to say that nothing can take the place of it. I would not be without a bottle of it in the house."

A NORTH END COMPLAINT

A north end merchant had a grievance for which he believes that the street railway people are largely to blame, as in his opinion they should have a waiting room at the Main street end of Douglas avenue, instead of compelling passengers to stand in the present conditions, to stand in his doorway and in his store.

The gentleman referred to informed the Times that he had gone to the street railway company and explained to them that these people were of no commercial benefit to him, and offered to throw his store open to patrons of the railway if the company would give him free light, which would amount to about $20 a year. This offer was declined. "Well," said the north end man, "give my wife free passes to and from the store." This proposition was also turned down.

The gentleman referred to says he is up to a great deal of inconvenience for which he receives no remuneration whatever.

VERDICT AGAINST CITY

The case of Galbraith vs. the City of St. John resulted yesterday in a verdict for the plaintiffs for $400.

In the afternoon Recorder Skinner outlined the case, and argued strongly for the defence. G. V. Moloney followed and spoke in an eloquent and argumentative manner for an hour, showing clearly evidence of negligence on the part of the city's employees in the breaking of the gas pipe, and subsequently the filling of the plaintiff's house with gas.

Mr. Justice Hanington charged the jury and submitted nine questions for their consideration, all of which were answered in favor of the plaintiff. The jury were out nearly two hours before they returned with their answers. The judge then caused a writ to be entered for the plaintiffs for $400.

MAY CAUSE MONEY TROUBLE

The Mutual branch of a Wall Street house received the following over the wire from the Montreal branch: "It is not believed that the recent upward movement of the market has brought the approval of the banking interests, and unless they are willing to furnish monetary aid, affairs are more precarious than they appear. It is believed that the large institutions as a purely protective measure."

COULDN'T GO ON RECORDS

Wall Street Journal's Cutting Censure of Modern Business Morality and Methods.

(Wall Street Journal) George W. Perkins was telling the Armstrong committee about the $1,000,000 participation in the United States Steel syndicate which the New York Life Insurance Company took through the New York Security Trust Company which it practically controlled, when Mr. Hughes asked:

"Was it brought before the finance committee of the New York Life?" Mr. Perkins replied: "No, formally, but it was talked over there. It would not be proper to have it on the record, since it was a stock transaction. We did not wish to appear in connection with the Steel syndicate."

One of the most amazing facts which has been developed by the insurance investigation is the apparent secrecy with which some of the life insurance officials entered into extraordinary and indefensible transactions themselves involved only reasonable risk and contained the prospect of profit. These officials and directors were willing to enter into them regardless of the character of the methods employed. The proof was held to justify the measure. In the transaction under review the New York Life provided the money and took 25 per cent of the profit. That was held to be justification for entering into it notwithstanding that this was a deal in stocks and that the public policy of the New York Life was not to engage in stock transactions. What it could do directly and openly, it was willing to do indirectly and secretly. What it could not do under its own name it was willing to do under the name of the Trust Company with which it was affiliated. And Mr. Perkins' member of one of the greatest banking houses in the world, admits that it was not proper to have the transaction go on the records of the New York Life insurance as the company did not wish to appear in connection with the Steel syndicate.

It is impossible to find words adequate to describe the mental and moral condition of business men in high places who are willing to do things like these. The Wall Street Journal can only repeat what it said yesterday.

The borrower who makes a false statement of his condition to the lender, the firm who borrows the money so as to acquire a longer line of credit than that to which it is legally entitled, the railroad company which for speculative effect manipulates its annual report so as to mislead or conceal earnings, the merchant who advertises bargains that do not exist, the bank which makes a fac-simile of a newspaper article to a clipping agency in order to describe the mental and moral condition of business men in high places who are willing to do things like these. The Wall Street Journal can only repeat what it said yesterday.

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1905.

ST. JOHN SCOTS CELEBRATE ST. ANDREW'S ANNIVERSARY

The Sons of the Heather Had the Time of Their Lives in the York Theatre Last Night—Similar Gatherings in Other Places Send Messages of Good Will.

Scotmen generally, and members of St. Andrew's Society in particular, celebrated the anniversary of their patron saint in York Theatre last evening in an especially successful manner.

At 8 o'clock a brilliant throng had filled the auditorium of the theatre and overflowed into the galleries. Shortly after the president, B. R. Macaulay, followed by the guests and orators of the evening, with the three pipers of the society, marched in and took seats on the platform. On either hand of the president sat W. Watson Allen, of St. George's Society, and G. V. McInerney, of the Irish Literary and Benevolent Society. Others on the platform were his worship the mayor, the American consul, Judge Forbes, Dr. Murray McLaren, Dr. Innes, Andrew Malcolm, of Clan McKenna, A. Gordon Lewis, C. K. Cameron, J. J. Gordon, and others.

The president's address was short and to the point. He assured all present of a Scotchman's welcome, which meant a welcome to the best he had. He was glad to see the presidents of the kindred societies on each side of him, and referred to the kindly feeling that had always existed between the various national societies in St. John. He referred to the work they were all doing, and concluded with a brief review of the state of St. Andrew's Society. He said that more new members had joined St. Andrew's Society during the past year than in any two years of its previous history. He referred to the presence of the American consul, and said that he was sure the audience would be glad to hear from him later on.

W. Watson Allen, replying for St. George's Society, expressed his pleasure at being present. He claimed to be partly Scotch himself. His ancestors were Covenanters who had settled in the north of Ireland. He was sure he could say for the society he represented that they reciprocated the kindly feelings that had been expressed, and concluded by complimenting the St. Andrew's Society on its growth.

G. V. McInerney said that the Irish Literary and Benevolent Society sent their greetings and congratulations to St. Andrew's. He spoke of the fame of Scotland and of the men she had given to the world, and continued that if she had only given Wallace and Bruce, Scott and Burns, the debt of the world to her could never be repaid. He did not forget that the best lawyer England ever saw, Lord Mansfield, was a Scotchman, and concluded with a glowing tribute to the worth of the nation.

Andrew Malcolm, chief of the Clan McKenna, spoke of the three cardinal principles which made a loyal citizen and had distinguished Scotchmen in the past and in the present—faith, hope and courage. He conveyed the greetings and congratulations of the clan.

W. Watson Allen, President of St. George's Society.

The American consul was next called on. As he rose to his feet Harrison's orchestra played a few bars of the Star Spangled Banner. His speech was markedly humorous. He said that speaking without irreverence he might say he was somewhat long in the matter of saints. He was born in the city of St. Joseph, and studied his profession in the city of St. Louis, and later moved to Milwaukee to practice law. A few weeks ago when the president thought he could serve his country in the capacity of a consul he had been sent to St. John, and he added, "I am glad he did." He complimented those present on the beauty of the city. He reminded them that yesterday was the American Thanksgiving, and said that although America had great cause to be thankful for an abundant harvest, they ought to be more thankful for one man, their great president, Theodore Roosevelt.

Rev. A. A. Graham, pastor of St. David's church, then delivered the oration of the evening. The subject of Rev. Mr. Graham's address was The Scot Abroad. The address was heartily applauded throughout.

This ended the speech-making. After the secretary had read telegrams of fraternal greetings from Scotch societies from Halifax to Vancouver the mystery of posing round the snuff mull was celebrated to the sound of the bagpipes. The musical program was highly appreciated. S. J. McIvor sang "The Hunder Pipes an' a' an' a' and Scots Wha Hae." Mrs. G. F. Spencer's singing was heartily applauded. She sang for an encore The Land o' the Leal.

During the evening Mrs. F. C. McNeil sang "Loch Lomond" very sweetly, and as an encore delighted her auditors with "The weaver's awa' Jean." D. B. Pidgeon sang the Bonnets of Bonnie Dundee, and as an encore Bonnie Doon.

It was a graceful and beautiful sight to see the dancers on the stage. The programme of dances gave ample opportunity for all to "crook their shanks," and it was fully taken advantage of. The supper was excellent and the attendance all that could be desired.

Harrison's orchestra was present and played during the evening a number of selections.

The dancing was kept up till 2 o'clock, when the grand march took place. The three pipers were at the head, marshalled by Charles Bell. President B. R. Macaulay with Mrs. Hazen were the first couple, followed by Dr. and Mrs. Innes. A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of Will Ye No Come Back Again, by S. J. McIvor, accompanied by D. Arnold Fox, Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King; Harrison's orchestra also played the accompaniments to these songs. Mrs. J. M. Barnes in the early part of the evening played the accompaniment to Mrs. F. G. Spencer.

Rev. A. A. Graham.

George V. McInerney, President of the Irish Literary and Benevolent Society.

In West End

A service was held at St. George's church, Carleton, last evening, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew's of this city in commemoration of St. Andrew's day. There was a large representation of the local chapters. The sermon was preached by the Rev. G. A. Kurling of St. John's church, who took for his subject the calling of the apostle St. Andrew. The following clergymen assisted at the service: Revs. Dr. Raymond, A. D. Dewdney, W. H. Sampson, G. F. Seville and G. R. E. McDonald.

In Fredericton

Fredericton, Nov. 30.—(Special)—The annual dinner of St. Andrew's Society at the Barker House this evening was attended by upwards of 100 leading citizens and was the most enjoyable anniversary celebration of the birth of Scotland's patron saint the city has seen for many years. The spacious dining hall of the Barker was attractively decorated with flags for the occasion and it was a grand company that gathered around the festive board.

D. S. Crockett, M. P., the president, had Rev. G. M. Campbell, of St. John, and W. T. Whitehead, M. P., on his right and Dr. Daniel, M. P. of St. John, and Dean Partridge on his left. Dr. Scott and A. S. Murray occupied the vice chairs, the former being supported by Dr. Bailey and G. N. Babbit and the latter by Mayor McNally and Col. Marsh.

A twelve course dinner was served in Host Coleman's best style and came in for ample justice at the hands of the guests. The menu list included haggis and shortbread, prepared by the society direct from Scotland.

During the evening greetings were received from Scottish societies in Chicago, Quebec, Toronto, Fredericton, Ottawa, Vancouver, Halifax and Campbellton.

Rev. Alfred Chipman and wife, of Wallville, have come to St. John to spend the winter with their son.
