MONCTON RECORD BETTER Marked Falling off in Drunkenness, Reports Police Chief Rideout A DECREASE OF 55

Scott Act Convictions, However, Were More Numerous—Fewer Arrests of Juveniles, and Credit is Given to Compulsory School Law

Moncton, Jan. 10.—(Special)—There was a marked falling off in drunkenness in Moncton during the last year, according to the annual report of Chief of Police Rideout. There were 188 arrests for drunkenness, a decrease of fifty-five compared with 1909.

During the year there were eighty-three convictions for violation of the Canada Temperance Act, an increase of twenty-one over 1909. Thirty-five cases were dismissed as against thirty-three in 1909. Ten C. T. A. violators were taken to jail for one month, as against twenty-nine in 1909, and six taken to jail for three months, as against two in the preceding year.

There are 400 shares of Canadian Pacific stock owned here and the holders were naturally pleased to learn that the dividend had been increased from an eight to a ten per cent basis.

Chief Rideout suggests the licensing of restaurants in Moncton. He says: "There are ten restaurants in the city and I would recommend that they be licensed. There would be a revenue from this source for the city, and it would materially help the police in seeing that they were properly conducted."

Among those summoned to the police court during the year were two for violation of the factory act, one for violating the health act and nine for refusing to take out junk licenses.

There were 22 special reports attended to by the police during the year. These are complaints from citizens which were adjusted by investigations by the police, and are kept strictly private.

The present strength of the Moncton police force is: One chief of police, one assistant chief, five patrolmen, five constables and five night watchmen.

The police are getting after youths for throwing snowballs at people in the streets. Four had ranging in ages from 14 to 17, were in court this morning for throwing snowballs at a man in a sled and were fined $2 or seven days in jail. They were allowed to go on a suspended sentence.

AEROPLANE RUNS AWAY WITH THE GOVERNOR Was Being Photographed by Newspaper Men and Accident-ally Started the Works

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 10.—John J. Friable's business airplane with Governor Hiett Colquitt of Texas yesterday and later crashed into a fence when Friable attempted to land after a short flight. The machine is a wreck. Mr. Colquitt had climbed into the machine at the request of newspaper photographers and to add to the realism of the picture, one of the mechanics started the motor. Cameras were all trained and all ready when the governor alighted his position and struck his foot against the accelerator. This released the machinery and for several hundred yards the machine bounding along the track with half a dozen men holding it to the ground.

Finally Friable, who was being dragged along, succeeded in cutting the string which held the throttle open, and the motor stopped.

TO PRISON FOR A YEAR London, Jan. 10.—A. W. Finch, the London Agent of Phelps, Dodge & Company of New York, was today sentenced to one year's imprisonment for defrauding his employers of $125,000.

The court stated that the most extraordinary feature, although the defalcation was no large, the complaining company had recommended mercy for the prisoner.

SAYS VALLEY ROAD PART OF TRUNK LINE A. R. Slipp's Announcement to Fredericton Board of Trade

Fredericton, N. B., Jan. 10.—(Special)—At the board of trade meeting here last evening, A. R. Slipp, M. P., announced that the report on the valley railway survey would soon be made public. He said that the grades between Fredericton and St. John had been found much easier than expected. He was confident that construction work would be commenced within twelve months, and that the proposed road will be part of a trunk line.

Firemen Have Call to U. N. B.—St. Andrew's Society Give up Dinner Idea and Will try to Wipe out Debt on Burns Statue

Fredericton, N. B., Jan. 10.—(Special)—The firemen were called out at 7 o'clock this morning for a blaze in a brick shed at the rear of the University Arts Building. It was caused by hot ashes and the coal shed was destroyed. The flames worked beneath the flooring in the forestry laboratory and partially destroyed the sills.

The St. Andrew's society last evening decided not to hold the dinner they had planned. A strong effort will be made to wipe out the debt on the Burns' monument.

The York County Court opened this morning, Judge Wilson presiding. The docket consisted of five jury and two non-jury cases.

There are 400 shares of Canadian Pacific stock owned here and the holders were naturally pleased to learn that the dividend had been increased from an eight to a ten per cent basis.

More Than 200,000 IN SIX MONTHS Great Increase in Immigration to Canada—A Gain of 34 Per Cent in Numbers From United States and 100 Per Cent via Ocean Ports

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—(Special)—During the first six months—April to September—of the present fiscal year, 204,864 immigrants arrived in Canada as compared with 120,912 for the same period of the previous fiscal year. The immigration from the United States for this period was 15,445 as compared with 35,428 an increase of 34 per cent. The immigration by ocean ports was 128,919 as compared with 60,447 an increase of 100 per cent. The increase in immigration from all sources for this period was sixty-nine per cent.

From January to November 20, 1910, 46,335 homestead entries were granted in Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, as compared with 34,901 for the same period in 1909, an increase of 11.34.

Manitoba increased 288, Saskatchewan 7,640 and Alberta 3,123. There were 2,793 entries in Manitoba, 24,859 in Saskatchewan, 17,282 in Alberta and 210 in British Columbia.

The Cousins is deep in the sand of a shoal south of Barnegat where she grounded at 10:20 last night. Capt. Bosman of the Forked River station, Capt. Cox of Loveladies Island, and Capt. Thompson of Barnegat with their life-saving crews stood by the stranded craft all night. Attempts to pull her off which the sea calmed a little after high tide this morning proved futile. It is feared the Cousins will be in pieces before wrecking tugs reach her.

Boston, Jan. 10.—The Harold B. Cousins was in Boston in early 1892 and sailed from Portland Maine. She was bound from St. John, N. B., for New York, and was last reported from Sanderson, R. I., on Jan. 2.

Her Crew The Cousins was 561 tons registered, 139 feet in length, 34 feet beam, 11 feet deep, 361 tons net, 380 tons gross. Her agent here was Peter Molloy, British; Arthur E. Williams, her skipper, was a former St. John man, and the following were the members of his crew: Fred Wade, mate American; William Lewis, steward, American; four seamen—W. Anderson, Finn; Fred Doucet, British; Arthur McKay, American; Peter Bauer, German. She sailed from here in December with a cargo of hals shipped by J. H. Scammell & Co. for New York. The cargo was insured.

Three Barges Lost Highland Light, Mass., Jan. 10.—Three coal barges, the Corbin, Pine Forest and Trevelton, bound east in tow of the tug Lykens were tossed ashore on the dreaded Peaked Hill last night and before dawn two had gone to pieces, probably on the outer bar 800 yards from shore.

SEVERELY INJURED IN WRESTLING BOUT Bay City, Mich., Jan. 10.—After one hour and fifty minutes of hard wrestling last night, John Billeter of Toledo, lightweight champion of the United States, caught William Bingham of London, England, English lightweight champion, napping, and with a hammerlock put Bingham out of commission for at least two months. Bingham's manager detailed the second fall with the understanding that he is to have a return match, thus leaving the championship still undecided.

Road Tests at Niagara Toronto, Ont., Jan. 10.—Plans have been prepared for the construction of experimental roads along the Niagara river as part of the general system inaugurated by the Niagara Falls Park Commission. Various materials will be used for different sections to demonstrate their suitability for roads.

Duncan Coulson He will be elected president of the Bank of Toronto at the annual meeting tomorrow.

THE TIMES' NEW REPORTER have gone home in peace, convinced that St. John has the best city government north of Patagonia. Mr. Binks holds that the space in the city council chamber is too circumscribed to be the theatre of great events, and that we should have an arena like that of ancient Rome, for the gladiators of the city council. Mr. Binks contends that if provision were made for the entertainment of the people, these would be less of discontent, and no demand at all for government by commission.

A SUGGESTION. Mr. Peter Binks suggests that as there is much public interest in the controversy between Ald. Van Wart and Spool, and that the space in the city council chamber is too circumscribed to be the theatre of great events, and that we should have an arena like that of ancient Rome, for the gladiators of the city council. Mr. Binks contends that if provision were made for the entertainment of the people, these would be less of discontent, and no demand at all for government by commission.

IMPORTANT REFORMS. A special committee will be appointed at the next meeting of the city council to investigate the board of works. If it is found that any official has failed to perform his duty properly, his salary will be raised. It is the intention of the council to provide a pension scheme, under which the officers of the departments will be enabled to retire with a competency in every case where it can be shown that they did only what they were told, and only did that when they wanted to. Any official who presumes to say anything will be dismissed.

THE MARKET COMMITTEE WILL RESIGN "Appears to be the Only Thing to do," Says Mayor Frink

Ald White Says Same Thing—Action to Follow Reinstatement of Deputy Clerk of Market—Sections From Report Which Council Adopted are Recalled

That the market committee will resign in consequence of the action of the common council yesterday in reinstating W. C. Dunham as deputy clerk of the market, was the announcement made this morning by Mayor Frink, chairman of the committee. In answer to a question by a Times reporter as to what the committee would do in view of the decision of the council in removing the suspension of Mr. Dunham, his Worship said: "I expect to receive the resignations of the members of the committee, as that appears to be the only thing to do under the circumstances."

Asked if he would call another meeting of the committee, he replied that he did not expect to do so.

Alderman White, in speaking of the action of the council, said there was nothing for them to do but resign.

It is interesting in view of the council's action yesterday to recall certain sections of the investigating committee's report, which was adopted by the council just one month ago. Following are extracts from the report:

"As a guardian of the city's interests in the market building, Mr. Dunham unquestionably failed to do his duty, and as a result of his neglect a sort of 'go as you please' system was established and has existed for many years.

"The investigation revealed a state of affairs in the market building, which was as general as the general administration of the city market laws. The evidence shows either an execrable ignorance by officials of the rules and regulations outlined by the common council, with regard to the sale of provisions and certain other articles within the city, or a disregard of their intent and meaning, for there seems to have grown up with the system of difference display by the officials in this respect, and, therefore, it will be difficult, we believe, for him to reconcile such acts with other duties and responsibilities which, as chairman of the board of safety, he would naturally be expected to discharge and fulfill.

"Your committee find that the relations of Ald. Potts to market affairs have not been in accord with his duties as a member of the city council; that the relations of Ald. Vanwart with his duties as chairman of the board of public safety, as chairman of the board of public safety, your committee also find that the clerk and deputy clerk failed in the discharge of their respective duties and recommend that they be suspended."

A CHATHAM FIRE Loss of $500 by Blaze in House of Alexander Hays

Chatham, N. B., Jan. 10.—(Special)—The firemen were called out a little after five o'clock this morning to a blaze in the stone house of Alexander Hays. The upper part of the roof was entirely destroyed. The furniture was saved. The damage is estimated at about $500.

CHARGED WITH BEING "WHITE SLAVE" TRAFFICKER New York, Jan. 10.—On the complaint of Edward J. Brennan, a special agent of the department of justice, Samuel Leroy Smith of Baltimore, was arraigned before a United States commissioner yesterday on a charge of violating the federal "white slave" traffic act.

Brennan charges Smith with causing Madeline Casey, seventeen years old, to be transported from Baltimore to this city for immoral purposes. Smith was held in $5,000 bail for examination.

SERIOUS FIRE IN AN ALBERTA TOWN Stoney Plains, Alb., Jan. 10.—Stoney Plains suffered its first serious conflagration yesterday when one section of the town containing 212 street, Ryker, and the new section of the town, was wiped out with the exception of the Bismark Hotel and Miller Bros. grocery store. The fire started in the Royal Hotel and made considerable headway before it was discovered.

WOLVES, DESPERATE WITH HUNGER, DEVOUR MINERS Seattle, Wn., Jan. 10.—Several residents of the West Coast of Prince of Wales Island, Southeastern Alaska, have been killed and eaten by wolves during the last year, according to Chas. A. Sulzer, a brother of Congressman Sulzer of New York, who has just returned from the north. Mr. Sulzer says that the wolves, having killed off the deer, have become desperate with hunger and now come up to the doors of the miners' cabins.

L. G. CROSBY COMPLAINS OF TREATMENT Leads Him to Criticism of Methods at City Hall WAREHOUSE SITE Applied for Place to Build or Rent Quarters and Says he Received no Word Whatever in Response to Request for Hearing

L. G. Crosby, head of the Crosby Molasses Company, Ltd., offers some sharp criticisms of the methods of the city council. He has been trying to get a site for a warehouse or to rent a warehouse from the city, and has asked to be given a hearing, but neither the council nor the safety board has granted his request. In an interview with the Times, Mr. Crosby thus vigorously states the case: "We are doing a very large business, and shipping goods from coast to coast. We lost care for Vancouver. Our business ought to be a good advertisement for St. John, as an importing and distributing centre. We lack facilities for handling goods at the water front. I realize that it is not possible to secure on the water front as large an area as we need at a low enough cost. The city, however, has a suitable site between Broad and Britain streets, at the east end, and we applied for it, offering to lease for a term of years and erect our own building upon it. This was turned down; then we put in another offer that if the city would erect and erect our own building upon it to 10 per cent on the cost. I asked the safety board to notify me when the matter would come up, that I might get a hearing. They paid no attention to my request, nor have they given me any notice, and my only means of knowing what has happened to my application is what I read in the newspapers.

"I complain therefore that the safety board have not treated us with ordinary business courtesy. I am a business man in St. John, paying large taxes, and I am entitled to some recognition, when I make a business proposition. Of course, if the city does not want the business here, we can no doubt establish it elsewhere. But I feel that if an outsider came in he would not only be received with courtesy, but followed up and persuaded that the city had advantages to offer him free of cost. The sugar industry is a fair example, with thousands of dollars' worth of property in the city.

"If I think it goes without saying that the city's affairs can not be run any better than they are. Practical business sense does not seem to be used.

"With regard to suggestions for which we applied, it has been said that they were needed for railway and Courtenay Bay development. According to the plan, however, that work would not extend west of the present railway track, and this property is not only owned by the city, but of the proposed extension of Crown street. In any case, years would pass before there would be any possibility of the railway wanting the property, and when they did want it they would get it, no matter by whom it was occupied. I have tried to secure some property in the vicinity of Gilbert's Lane, but find it practically impossible to buy, as owners in that vicinity do not know what to ask.

"In this connection I may say I think it is time the assessors revised all real estate values in the city, and gave the owners of property who place a very high value on it the opportunity of paying taxes accordingly. I feel that the taxable value of all real estate should be materially increased, and that all vacant lots should be taxed the same as occupied lots. This would raise an amount sufficient to meet all the running expenses of the city without taxing property.

"Of course under the present and past system the man who improves his property has to pay more taxes, and the man who leaves his land unoccupied gets the benefit. The city itself is probably the largest real estate holder, and of course pays no taxes. This is unfair to other owners of real estate. The city should dispose of all its real estate holdings except what is absolutely required, and sell by auction with an upset price. Then if a man wished to secure any of it he would have a fair show.

"I am glad," said Mr. Crosby, "to see a movement in the direction of city government by commission, and I hope it will go through."

REVOLUTIONISTS IN HONDURAS MAKE GAINS New Orleans, La., Jan. 10.—A special report from Port Barrios, Guatemala, this morning states that the revolutionary forces operating on the north coast of Honduras, after capturing all the bay islands attacked the mainland, and seized Cape Trinito, Polon's Point and Mrs. Lagoun, in addition to the town of Tela.

CHAPTER V The Missing Blade

On that same morning of the meeting on the sands at Tormouth, Inspector Clarke, walking southward down St. Martin's Lane toward Scotland Yard, had a shock. Clarke was hardly at the moment in his best mood, for to the natural vivacity of his temperament a drop of lemon, or of gall, had been added within the last few days. That morning at breakfast he had explained matters with a sour mouth to Mrs. Clarke.

It was all a made-up job between Winter and Fureaux, and I was only put on to the Anarchists to make room for Fureaux—that was it. The two anarchists weren't up to any mischief—Anarchists was all a blind, that's the way things are run now in the Yard, and there's no fair play going any more. Fureaux must have been in the Mansions, of course; Fureaux this, and Fureaux that—of course, but wait; he hasn't solved it yet and he isn't going to, no, and I haven't done with it yet, not by a long way. Now, where do you buy these eggs? Just look at this one.

The fact was, now that the two Anarchists, Desvartes and Janco, had been deported by the Court and were gone, Clark suddenly found to find himself disillusioned, dull, excluded from the fun of the chase. But, as he passed down St. Martin's Lane that morning, his underlooking eyes, ever on the prowl for the "confidence man" who haunts the West End, saw a sight that made him doubt if he were awake. There, in a little by-street to the east, under the three bells of a nigger-broker's, he saw, or dreamt that he saw—Emile Janco—Janco, whom he knew to be in Holland, and Janco was so deep, so far, in talk with a girl that he could not see Clarke standing there, looking at him. And Clarke knew the girl, too! It was Bertha Seward, the late cook of the murdered actress, Rose de Bery.

Could he be mistaken as to Janco? he asked himself. Could two men be so striking to the eye, and so alike—the hawk-like gaze, the long wavering legs, the clothes hanging loose on him; the heavy-lidded eyes, the small, thin nose, the hair, black and plentiful as the raven's breast, draping the forehead; the eyes, ever on the prowl for the "confidence man" who haunts the West End, saw a sight that made him doubt if he were awake. There, in a little by-street to the east, under the three bells of a nigger-broker's, he saw, or dreamt that he saw—Emile Janco—Janco, whom he knew to be in Holland, and Janco was so deep, so far, in talk with a girl that he could not see Clarke standing there, looking at him. And Clarke knew the girl, too! It was Bertha Seward, the late cook of the murdered actress, Rose de Bery.

And how earnest was the talk! Clarke saw Janco clasp his two long limbs together, and turn up the eyes to the sky, seeming to beseech the girl, or, through her, the heavens. Then he offered her money, which she refused; but when he ejaculated and insisted, she took it, smiling, fumbling hands, they parted, and Janco looked after Bertha Seward as she hurried, with a sort of stealthy haste, towards the Strand. Then he turned, and found himself face to face with Clarke.

For a full half-minute they looked contemptuously eye to eye, at one another. "Janco," said Clarke. "That is my name for one moment, are?" said Janco politely in a very peculiar though fluent English, "and the years, are?" "Unless you have a very bad memory you know mine! How on earth come you to be here, Emile Janco?" "England is a free country, aren't it?" said Janco with a shrug. "I see not the why I must render you account of movement. Only I tell you this time, because you are so singularly familiarly with my name of family, you deceive yourself as to my little name. I have, it is true, a brother named Emile."

Clarke looked with a hard eye at him. The resemblance, if they were two, was certainly very strong. Since it seemed all but impossible that Emile Janco should be in England, he accepted the statement grudgingly. "Perhaps you wouldn't mind letting me see your papers?" he asked. "Janco bowed." "That I will do with big pleasure, aren't you?" said Janco, and produced a passport recently issued in Holland, by which it appeared that his name was not Emile but Gaston. They parted with a bow on Janco's side and a nod on Clarke's; but Clarke was puzzled.

"Something queer about this, he thought. 'I'll keep my eye on him.' . . . What was he doing talking like that was exacted to the actress's cook? Suppose she was unnumbered by Anarchists? It is certain that she was more or less mixed up with them—more, perhaps, than is known. Why did those two come over the night after her murder?—how it's clear that they had no design against the Fair, I'll look into it on my own. Easy, now, Clarke, no boy, and may be you'll come out ahead of Fureaux, Winter, and all the lot in the end."

When he arrived at his Chief's office in the Yard he mentioned to Winter his curious encounter with the other Janco, but said not a word of Bertha Seward, since the affair of the murder was no longer his business, officially. "Winter said little to Janco, who, after Emile or Gaston, for Fureaux was there with him, and the two were head to head, discussing the matter, and the second sitting of the inquest was soon to come. Indeed, Clarke heard Winter say to Fureaux: "I promised Mr. Osborne to give some sort of excuse to his servants for his flight from home. I was so busy that I forgot it. Perhaps you will see to that, too, for me."

"What you mentioned it, I intended going there at once," Fureaux said in that subdued tone which seemed to have all at once come upon him since Rose de Bery was found lying dead in Fledelin Mansions. "Well, then, from henceforth everything is in your hands," said Winter. "Here I hand you over our dumb witness—" and he held out Fureaux, the blood-second aspect of that had battered Rose de Bery's face. He was not sure—he wondered afterwards whether it was positively a fact—but he fancied that for the tenth part of a second Fureaux shrank from taking, from touching that object of horror—a notion so odd and fantastic that it affected Winter as if he had fancied that the poker had lifted its head for the tenth part of a second. But almost before the concert took form, Fureaux was coolly placing the cell in his breast-pocket, and standing up to go.

Fureaux drove straight, as he had said, to Mayfair, and soon was being whirled into Osborne's library, where he found Miss Prout, the secretary, with her hair, busy opening and sorting the morning's correspondence.

He introduced himself, sat beside her, and while she continued with her work, told her what had happened—how Osborne had been advised to disappear till the popular gale of ill-will got stilled a little. "Ah, that's how it was," the girl said, lifting interested eyes to his. "I was wondering," and she pinned two letters together with the neatness of method and order.

Fureaux sat lingeringly with her, listening to an avary of limnets that rattled to the bright sunlight that flooded the library, and asking himself whether he had ever seen her so glaringly red as the lady secretary—a great mass of it that wrapped her head like a flame.

"And where has Mr. Osborne gone to?" she murmured, making a note in shorthand on the back of one little bundle of correspondence. "Somewhere by the coast—I think," said Fureaux.

"West coast? East coast?" "He didn't write to me; he wrote to my Chief—for, indeed, Fureaux well knew where Osborne was, his retreat was a secret."

The girl went on with her work, plying the paper-knife, now jotting down a memorandum, now placing two or more kindred letters together; for every hospital and institution used to Osborne, everyone who wanted money for a new flying machine, or had a dog or a hatter to sell, or intended to dine and specify, and send round the list.

"It's quite a large batch of correspondence," Fureaux remarked. "Half of these," the girl said, "are letters of abuse from people who never heard Mr. Osborne's name till the day after that poor woman was killed. All England has convicted him before he is tried. It seems unfair."

"Yes, no doubt. But to understand it to pardon; as the proverb says. They have to think something, and when there is only one thing for them to think, they think it—meaning well. It will blow over in time. Don't you worry?" "No. It's—What do I care what forty millions of vermin choose to say or think?"

She pointed her pretty lips saucily. "Forty—millions—of vermin," cried Fureaux. "That's worse than Carlyle." "Hyla Prout's swift hands plied among her papers. She made no answer; and Fureaux suddenly stood up.

"Well, you will mention to the valet and the others how the matter stands as to Mr. Osborne. He is simply avoiding the crowd—that is all, Goodbody!" "Hyla Prout rose, too, and Fureaux saw now how tall she was, well-framed and lithe, with a somewhat small face framed in that nest of red hair. Her complexion was spotted and spangled with freckles, but otherwise she was dainty featured and pretty—mouth, nose, chin, tiny, all except the wide-open eyes. "So," she said to Fureaux as she put out her hand, "you won't let me know where Mr. Osborne is? I may want to write to him on business."

"Why, didn't I tell you that he didn't write to me?" "That was only a blind." "Dear me! A blind. . . . It is the truth, Miss Prout?" "I'll tell that to someone else." "What, don't you like the truth?" "All right, keep the information to yourself, then."

"Good-by—I mustn't allow myself to dilly in this charming room with the linens, the sunlight, and the lady." For a few seconds she seemed to hesitate. Then she said suddenly: "Yes, it's very nice in here. That door there leads into the morning room, and that one over, at the side."

FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

CHRISTIANITY'S APPEARANCE IN EUROPE.
By George B. Ide.

At the port of Troas, a spot rich in memories of the olden time, with the ruins of Hium in the distance and the classic waves of the Aegean breaking at their feet, were now assembled Paul, Silas and Luke—three obscure and unknown voyagers—but bound on a mightier mission than had ever before been vuffed over these far-famed waters. Across the narrow strait on which they gazed, the ships of Greece had come to the siege of Troy, and full in their view lay the renowned Tenedos. Along the very coast where they stood the myriads of Xerxes had proudly marched, while his fleet covered the sea. And, in later days, the same iso-gunned billows had been ploughed by many a Roman galley, exulting in the pomp of victory. But never had they borne a freight so precious, or one charged with such vast results as that which was now to be committed to their keeping.

A lowly bark, whose name no historian has recorded and no poet has sung, puts forth from the haven and vows the favoring breeze. No sound of trumpet announces its departure; no shouting multitude cheer it on its way; no banners floating from its masts proclaim the greatness of its embassy. And yet it bears destined more grand than those of Agamemnon or Alexander. On its deck, in the person of those lowly and unregarded wayfarers, stand the messengers of the living God; and in the simple doctrine of a crucified Christ, which they go to publish, there resides an all-conquering power which shall prostrate the idolatry of Greece, silence its oracles, confound its philosophy and pour upon its population the beams of heavenly truth; and which, spreading that truth to the farthest regions of the west, shall elevate its barbarian hordes to the pinnacle of civilization and render them centers of intellectual and moral light to the again darkened East. Speeded by propitious gales, the little craft reaches its destination. Paul treads the heroic soil of Macedonia and begins, at Philippi, that series of evangelical conflicts and successes, in which, through all the provinces of Greece, from Corinth to Ilyricum, he "fully preached the gospel of Christ."

CABLE MAGNIFIER TO INCREASE EFFICIENCY

Vanover, Jan. 10.—An important step forward in the transmitting of cable messages between Canada and Australia will be made in the near future as the result of tests made during the last few days at Banfield station, on the west coast of Vancouver Island by John Milward, Pacific manager of the Pacific cable. The test is of what is known as a magnifier, an instrument which will increase the efficiency of the cable at least 25 per cent. The magnifier is the invention of Mr. Hentley of London, who accompanied Mr. Milward to Banfield.

Through the recent lease of a telegraph line from the C. P. R. the cable company is now able to transmit a message from Montreal to Fanning Island, a distance of 6700 miles, with one landing.

NOW FOR THE PLEBISCITE

The prompt action of the city council on the request of the board of trade that action be taken to secure authority for a plebiscite on the commission plan of government is not only creditable to the council but makes it possible to have the vote taken at the April civic elections. A large number of business men went to the council chamber yesterday afternoon anticipating a general discussion and considerable opposition to the plan. They desired to learn on what grounds the appeal for a plebiscite would be opposed. They were not only surprised but greatly pleased that the council disposed of the matter with practical unanimity and in the manner desired by the board of trade.

Of course the actual work of securing the adoption of the commission plan in St. John has only begun. An extensive campaign must be carried on vigorously for the next three months, in order that all the citizens may be made familiar with the features of the plan, and in order that all objections to it may be noted and possible answered in a satisfactory way. If the plan is adopted the credit must be given in large measure to the advertising committee of the board of trade, which made a careful study of the subject, summarized the results in a clear report, and presented the case with much ability to the council of the board, whose members were at first disposed to proceed in a more leisurely manner than the committee desired. There was no headlong rush, however, for the advertising committee had spent several months in study before presenting its case. This committee and the board, with the able assistance of Mayor Frank and those members of the council who have studied and are familiar with the commission plan, should now unite their efforts to have the electors of the city fully informed upon the whole question. No doubt public meetings will be held, and a hearing given to all who desire to discuss the subject of city government. The scheme when adopted will be made all the stronger if every possible objection to the plan has been clearly stated and considered.

A CIVIC FARCE

Why did the city council yesterday turn down the market committee and reinstate the market clerk? Was it because the council had become convinced that it was wrong when it adjudged the clerk guilty of improper conduct and ordered his suspension? If so, it must have a very poor opinion of its own ability to interpret evidence and form reasonable conclusions. If, on the other hand, it still believes that it was justified in suspending the clerk, then it has by its action of yesterday established the principle that failure to do his duty is not to be regarded hereafter as sufficient reason to dispense with the services of any official. So long as he has friends to plead in his behalf he must be kept in office. The committee which was charged with the duty of improving conditions in the country market must now feel that it no longer commands the confidence of the council. It was appointed during a span of civic virtue following revelations which were certainly not creditable to those having control of market affairs. The span has subsided and we are to go back to the old conditions. Alderman VanVart joyously states that he is still forestalling, and that he proposes to continue this interesting and profitable pastime. Alderman Sprout says that Alderman VanVart is a prevaricator. Alderman Potts says that Alderman Wignone is an office seeker. What other aldermen say and think might give spirit to the whole story, but the main fact for the citizens to consider is that the famous market enquiry has ended as such civic enquiries usually do.

It is expected the market committee will resign, and there really does not seem to be any other course for them to pursue if they desire to retain their self-respect. They have been doing an excellent work in the market, and the council has seen fit to declare a want of confidence in their ability to continue that work. The public do not forget, if the aldermen do, the evidence that was submitted at the enquiry. A few paragraphs from that evidence are printed in the Times today. If this evidence does not utterly condemn yesterday's action of the city council then we may as well assume that it does not make any difference by whom or in what way the affairs of this city are conducted. Two men who were severely censured in the report of the committee of enquiry voted yesterday to have Mr. Dunham reinstated. Mr. Dunham's superior in office still retains his position. The whole affair has proved a farce.

THE COMMISSION PLAN

The city of Duluth has adopted the commission plan of government after a prolonged enquiry by a strong committee, who studied conditions in many United States and some Canadian cities. This Duluth committee gives as the result of its investigation seven main reasons why the commission idea is superior to the democratic form of government. These seven reasons are summarized as follows: 1. Because it establishes the city on a business basis and under it the city is operated as any large commercial corporation would be, thus eliminating political interests of all kinds. 2. Because it centralizes responsibility so it cannot be evaded. 3. Because it expedites the transaction of business and the making of public improvements. 4. Because it naturally follows that greater economy will result from a purely business administration. 5. Because, it provides, or should provide, that the commissioners shall give all their time to the city's business, and that they shall be paid salaries sufficient to attract the right kind of men. 6. Because the provisions of the referendum, initiative and recall give the citizens greater responsibilities and greater incentive to participate in them. 7. Because it abolishes the ward system by electing city officers from the whole city, makes them responsible to all parts of the city and compels them to take care of the needs of all parts of the city.

THE RUSH TO CITIES

The growth of cities at the expense of rural communities is still a very much discussed topic in the United States. The director of the census has furnished some very interesting facts relating to this question. Writing in the World's Work he says that three important facts have been disclosed by the new census, and he states them thus: "First, the rate of growth of cities during the last ten years has been more rapid than during the preceding ten years. Second, the rate of growth of medium sized cities has been more rapid than that of the larger cities, reversing the conditions during the preceding decade. Third, there has been an absolute decline in the rural population of the great North Central States."

Among these states he mentions Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Eastern Kansas, and parts of Illinois and Nebraska. The ratio of urban to rural population has been constantly increasing for many decades, and the director of the census declares that the time is near when more than half of the population of the United States will live in cities. In fact, he says, the present census will show that in many of the states more than half the population now is urban. This state of affairs presents a problem which is being very seriously considered by thoughtful people throughout the country. It is not regarded as a sufficient explanation of the change that is taking place to say that the introduction of machinery has made it necessary for a great many more people to leave the country for the city. Nevertheless the movement city-ward continues, and there does not appear to be any immediate prospect of checking it.

Believing that there is a growing interest in civic affairs, the Times will publish its columns on Saturdays to short signed communications by citizens on matters relating to the administration of city affairs. Care must be taken, however, to avoid personal attacks. Defects in any part of the system, and suggestions for improvement, provide an excellent subject for a discussion that should be very interesting. Copy should be received not later than noon on Friday.

The Sackville Tribune says:—"The St. Stephen Courier, whose owner is a member of the Hazen party in the Assembly though not a member of the government, declares that the Dominion Railway Commission is of service to the people because it has been absolutely divorced from politics. Since the Courier is so ready to tell what makes commissions successful it might give the public a hint as to how the people can gain some benefit from the Public Utilities Commission created by the Hazen legislation last winter. The cost of the commission has already begun to appear in the public accounts but activity in the people's interest on the part of the commission has yet to become apparent."

The Canadian Club at its last annual meeting had a St. John night, at which interesting addresses were made by Messrs. T. H. Estabrook, Charles Macdonald, W. S. Fisher, and J. H. Frink. Their subject was the forward movement in St. John, and the general effect of the public addresses was to stimulate the spirit of optimism which has since become so pronounced. St. John has made a great forward step during the intervening period, and at its annual meeting this year the Canadian Club will have another St. John night, with a discussion on government by commission. This club of course could not take a partisan view of this or any other question, and therefore both sides will be heard. The proposal is to have two speakers, one of whom will present the case against the commission plan and the other will argue in its favor. In this way the arguments for and against will be fairly placed before the club and the public.

THE SECOND COMING

How will Christ come back again, How will He be seen and when? Where His chosen way? Will He come at dead of night, Or at dawn of day?

Will it be at Christmas-time, When the bells are all a-ching, That He is coming? Or will He return and bring Wide and wondrous warring On some Easter morn?

When will this old world rejoice, Listening to that golden voice, Speaking unto men? Lives there one who yet will cry Loud to startled passers, "Christ has come again?"

List the answer, CHRIST IS HERE! Seek, and you shall find Him near, Dwelling on the earth, By the world's awakened thought This great miracle is wrought! This the second birth.

While you wonder where and how Christ shall come—behold Him NOW Patient, loving, meek, Looking from your neighbor's eye, Or in humble toiler's guise— Lo! the Christ you seek.

Search for Him in human hearts, In the shops and in the mart, And beside your hearth, Search and speak, the words are "Love" And the Christ shall rise and prove He has come to earth.

Sorrowful oftentimes is He That we have not eyes to see— Have hearts to hear, As we call to Him afar, Out beyond some distant star, While He stands so near.

Seek Him, seek Him, where He dwells; Chase the voice of the bells On the Christmas air; "Christ has come to earth again; He is in the hearts of men; Seek and find Him here,"—Puck,—"Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in Delatorator."

THE OLD VILLAGE

(Louisville Courier-Journal) I've been back to the village, Tom; I've been round to see The dear old town and all the folks that once knew you and me. I thought I'd write and tell you, Tom, of some of them you know, They haven't changed since you were here, some twenty years ago.

There's old Aloose Wombat, Tom, you'll think of him I vow, He used to keep a meat shop then; he keeps a meat shop now. And Ahner Hinkle, your old chum, Tom, he's Hedy Poldson's beau, Just as he always used to be some twenty years ago.

I called on my old sweetheart, Tom, the girl I worshipped so; She's still a blonde, just as she was some twenty years ago. But there has been one trifling change since happy days of yore, For she was twenty-seven then and now she's twenty-four.

TOOK RISE OUT OF BOKER T. (From the Milwaukee Free Press.) The negro sense of humor was well illustrated by Boker T. Washington, in his address in Milwaukee. "I was walking along a road near Tukeye institute and met an old colored woman," said Mr. Washington. "Just to make conversation, I remarked: "Where are you going, auntie?" "The old lady looked up at me with a comical twinkle in her eyes. "Ah, she done 'en' what? Ah's grivine," she said. "Then she laughed and went on her way, satisfied that she had taken a rise out of me."

HIS MOTHER'S SON.

(Buffalo Times). Minnesota is to erect a monument to the late Governor John A. Johnson. Suitable inscriptions for the pedestal are being considered. There is a strong sentiment in favor of inscribing Johnson's "proudest day." After he had made his great impression at the meeting of the Gridiron Club in Washington and his name became frequent in mention as the Democratic candidate for President, he was asked on his return if it was not his proudest day. "No, it was not," he replied. Pleased to tell what it was, after much hesitation, he reluctantly said: "The proudest day of my life was when I went home Saturday night with my first week's wages and giving them to my mother, ah! 'Mother, you need never take in washing again.' " Nothing he ever said better marked the character of the man.

SUFFRAGETTES CAUSE STIR IN BROADWAY

Demonstration Equals in Fervor, If Not in Size, The London Battles

New York, Jan. 10.—Broadway yesterday witnessed a suffragette demonstration equalled in fervor if not in size, the battles royal that have revolved about the houses of parliament in London.

Under the auspices of the League for the Civic Education of Women, Richard Barry, of Lauchlin, Wis., addressed a gathering in the Lyceum theatre on "The Rights of the Woman's Vote in Colorado."

While the lecture was not advertised on the billboards, it had received mention by the press and suffragettes were on hand with placards and yellow banners before Mr. Barry appeared.

Posters calling for votes for women were conspicuous on sign boards of the theatre and it required a squad of Broadway policemen to pull them down and keep them down. Led by an earnest young woman wearing a yellow sign, a long line of suffragettes paraded the street and harried at addresses at frequent intervals. Dodgers headed "The truth about Barry," and "The truth about Colorado" were handed around and the streets were full of the yellow sheets. These led to a threat of arrest for the distributors and the clamor about the police grew deafening.

In the theatre itself, the dodgers were scattered through every row of chairs. Mr. Barry's audience was about 200 strong and half of these were women prominent in the suffragette movement.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Miss Irene Millard, the Rev. Anna Shaw and Mrs. Herbert Carpenter occupied conspicuous places. Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer presided over the meeting and Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder and Mrs. Gilbert Jones acted here.

A DAINTY HAT WHICH MAY BE MADE AT HOME

Some patience will be required to accomplish the rows of shirring on this dress along the edge of the brim, both on the upper and under sides. The crown and brim are joined, so that there is no sharp contrast in slope, by pleated velvet set over crimoline. A transverse fold of the velvet goes around the top of the hat. The thin, soft velvet pleating and over all is festooned a wreath of white gardenias and dull green leaves.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"HAT" which we call a rose by another name would smell as sweet." Surely so great a poet as the one who said that must have been perfectly well aware that if you called a rose a penny it couldn't possibly smell one-half so fragrant. Molly, the little stenographer, is decidedly thin, and for such a reasonable person she is rather sensitive about it. And here's a few more questions for him. "Why is this?" we questioned. "Have you lost any of those precious 102 pounds?" "No, 'tisn't that," explained Molly, "but my aunt was out to the house last night and she said, 'Hark! it's a shame, Molly, when the rest of your family are so good sized that you should be so terribly skinny.'" "I don't mind being 'thin' so much, but, oh, it's awful to be skinny."

"I don't believe there is a thin girl in the land who couldn't shake on it with Molly."

Would even Mr. S. dare to say that it doesn't make a vast difference whether you call a state of body— "Slender" and "slim."

Or "Slim," "lean" or "poor."

Would even be dare to assert that it doesn't make a lot of difference whether you describe the lady with the much embellished, as:

"Plump," "Large," "Stout," "corpulent" or "fat."

And here's a few more questions for him. Which would be rather "autoing" or "motoring" or "out in the machine?" For his benefit they may not have motor-cars where he is just now, I will explain that whereas once on a time you were all proud to go "autoing" or "motoring" nowadays only the holi polloi do any of these things. The select folk "go out in the machine."

Daily Hints for the Cook

ROMAN CHICKEN. Cook half a pound of vermicelli and drain thoroughly. Spread upon a platter and cover it with a highly seasoned tomato sauce. Shred the white and dark meat of a small cooked chicken into fibers, no half over on the other half, and let cook for a moment longer. In transferring from the sauce, cut four sticks of celery and put in a little butter. Spread over the chicken pan a little shake, and the omelet will be on the dish in good shape. An omelet can be moisten with a little chicken stock if needed, be equally well cooked by putting in the oven and baking instead of frying.

FIGURES THAT TELL STORIES

CANADA'S ELEVATOR CAPACITY

The Department of the Interior, as shown a map showing the location and capacity of each elevator in the three Western Provinces. The picture shows the relative standing of the three Western wheat Provinces in elevator capacity, and that of Ontario, whose elevators handle Western grain. In the West, the farmer hauls his grain, as soon as it is threshed, to the nearest elevator, while, in the East, the grain-grower stores his grain in his own barns and disposes of it gradually. Canada's elevator capacity is about $97,500,000 bushels, and it will be noticed that Ontario's month-month elevators have a capacity of more than one-third of the total of the whole Dominion. The greatest elevator centre in Canada is Port William, with a capacity of over 12,400,000 bushels, and Port Arthur ranks next with 9,250,000 bushels. If the projected union takes place, the united cities of Port Arthur and Fort William will have a total elevator capacity of over 21,700,000 bushels, or about one-fifth of the elevator capacity of Canada. Timm, on the Georgian Bay, with an elevator capacity of 9,350,000 bushels, is a large elevator centre than Montreal, which has 3,331,000 bushels elevator capacity. The largest elevator centre in the West is Winnipeg, with 1,405,000 bushels capacity, and St. Boniface is next with 705,000 bushels capacity; but Depot Harbor, Kingston, and Owen Sound each has larger elevator capacity than Winnipeg, while Keewatin, Prescott, Port Colborne, and Meaford each exceeds the elevator capacity of St. Boniface.

CLD DIES AS HEALER PRAYS RATS RAN OVER THE PRISONERS' FACES

Michigan State Prison Infested by Rodents and Lizards Says Report

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9.—Attended by only "faith cure" doctor, Hazen McWain, aged 9, daughter of William McWain, a signal engineer on the Pere Marquette railroad here, literally choked to death, while her parents stood helplessly by. The child was suffering from diphtheria.

and the prisoners have gone to the shops there is a sickening odor of decay and stagnation. There is no ventilation whatever. The cells are merely holes eight feet deep, sealed up with rock.

Without the forty cells of the bottom tier, on the sunless side of the block that have been abandoned, there are still 230 cells with their human captives. Every night 230 men sleep in the east wing.

"Sometimes when I come in here in the mornings," said a keeper, the smell is so bad that it makes me sick at my stomach. I have to take my coat off and wash my face, and I have to go back and fill my lungs with fresh air before I can unlock the cell doors."

Yet the state forces 230 men nightly to live and breathe and sleep in that atmosphere, where each man is poisoning his neighbor. Most of the cases in the hospital come from the east wing.

Many of the long-term prisoners own canary birds, which they keep in their cells, but there is some in the east wing. The air there is so foul it kills them in a short time, explained the warden.

The czar owns what is said to be a very remarkable watch made by a Polish mechanic named Jales Curran. The czar had heard some wonderful tales about the inventive ability of this man, and wishing personally to test his skill he sent him a parcel containing a few copper nails, some wood chippings, a piece of broken glass, an old crumpled china cup, some wire and a few crumpled board pegs. Accompanying this was a command to make them into a timepiece. Within a remarkably short time the czar received them back in the shape of a watch. The case was made of china, and the works of other cells and ends. So pleased and astonished was the czar that he sent for the man and conferred several distinctions upon him.

AND THE PRISONERS' FACES

Detroit, Jan. 9.—A rigid inspection of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson, where more than 700 convicts are incarcerated, many of them being "lifers" has just been completed by Recorder William F. Connelley of Detroit, and his new jury panel. While the new cell blocks were found to be in a comparatively sanitary condition, the committee of investigation were shocked at their discovery in which is known as the "old east wing," which is the main building of the prison proper. There are four tiers of cells with eighty cells in each tier. The bottom tier is four feet below the surface of the ground outside and here the sun never enters. The lower tiers is quite uninhabitable, while the three upper ones are dark, oppressive and foul. The assistant warden, who accompanied the investigators, informed them that he had killed lots of lizards in here, some of them "half a foot long." He also declared that east wing cells were "a great place for toads and frogs."

The prisoners confined here complain that rats run over their faces during the night time and keep them from resting. The place also reeks with vermin. Each cell is six feet high, eight feet deep, and three feet wide. The walls are whitewashed, but the moisture and mold creeps through and discolors it, and pools form on the floor. Even when the windows are opened

REPORT FURS
SCARCER THAN THEY EVER WERE
Writing from Dawson, in the Yukon territory, Vice-Consul Woodward tells of the fur trade there and of the great advance in the price paid for pelts in the last few years.
"The highest priced furs are the silver gray fox, says Mr. Woodward, and the values shown in Dawson do not near show the true value of the skins. The invoice price is the actual price paid to the Indian or trapper. While these may be satisfied with a certain amount for the fur, through lack of knowledge of its value, this amount may be doubled, tripled or more when sold on the outside, if the skin happens to be an exceptionally good one."
"For this reason the percentage of difference between the price actually paid and the true value of the fur is greater in the case of the silver gray and black fox."
"While all furs have brought a higher price during the last few years, the difference is shown more with the lynx, mink and muskrat."
"There has been an increased demand for these three furs lately, particularly so in the case of the lynx. While in 1902 the highest price paid for lynx was $3, in the present year the highest price was $30; in both cases the average price was about $10. The amount of the increased value of lynx furs they are not held for any length of time, but are shipped out in small lots in order to realize on them as soon as possible."
"The wolf and wolverine fur is nearly all shipped to the lower Yukon country, in Alaska, and there traded to the natives for more expensive furs. The demand there is created on account of a scarcity of these animals in that region, and from the fact that the natives use the fur in the manufacture of parkies, a kind of gown worn in winter, this fur being especially adapted for that purpose on account of its length."
"No white fox, reindeer or seals are sought in this country. A few white fox are sometimes brought in by the Polaris or Indians from the Mackenzie river country."
"There was only one-oneth, approximately, the amount of furs involved in 1910 as was involved in 1902. This was caused so much by the decrease in the production of furs as from the different methods of shipment, already referred to, other than through this office. In fact I am informed by dealers in furs that the production of the territory has not decreased."
"In a report from Prince Edward Island, Consul Deedmeier says:
"Only a few of the fur-bearing animals once native in Prince Edward Island are now found here. The progress of agriculture and the zeal of the hunter and trapper have exterminated many species, such as the otter, the beaver, the bear and the marten."
"About 25,000 muskrats, 500 minks, 1,000 red foxes and a few weasels are now killed in this province. The black fox is bred by a few parties, who keep the methods employed secret."
"A large, lustreous black fox skin is worth $1,500 in this province. Muskrats, principally killed by the Micmac Indians on their fish, bring 25 cents; red fox, $4 to $5; mink, $4.50 to $5; and weasels, 25 cents. Most of the shipments go to New York, London and Toronto. No furs are dressed here. Prices this year are 50 p. c. higher than five years ago."
"Notwithstanding the gradual disappearance of fur-bearing animals from the more settled portions of the Dominion of Canada to the consumers as well as to the merchants, $15,000 a week salary and expenses or commission. No experience needed. The largest advertised goods in Canada. Write at once for particulars. W. A. Jenkins Mfg. Co., London, Ont.

DOLL'S HOUSE A PERFECT LITTLE HOME

Boston, Jan. 10.—A doll house the size of an upright piano and believed to be the most remarkable ever constructed, was a Christmas gift to Edwin Eberly, of No. 162 Ashmont street, Dorchester.

It required four men to carry the house in miniature to its place among the other gifts that awaited Miss Edwin on Christmas morning.

It stands five feet six inches in height and is six feet in width. It contains eleven rooms divided into living and sleeping rooms, and each is architecturally perfect.

SIR SANFORD FLEMING, MAN OF MANY ACTIVITIES, IS 84

(Ottawa Free Press, Saturday) Today is the 84th birthday of Sir Sanford Fleming, one of Canada's grand old men, and one of the most highly respected and venerated residents of the Canadian capital.

It seems but a short time since Sir Sanford reached the fiftieth mark on the span of life, and his children and children's children gathered about him and presented him with a beautiful scroll bearing testimony to the great achievements of a long and varied life.

MR. TERRY IS GIVEN WARM RECEPTION

Thoroughly Pleasing and Artistic Presentation of Sweet Lavendar in Opera House Before Large Audience Last Evening

If there is any truth in the old expression "Lauch and grow fat," it was certainly true of the audience which witnessed the splendid performance of "Sweet Lavendar," as presented by Edward Terry and his company in the Opera House last evening.

As a scholar, he has for 30 years been chancellor of Queen's university, Kingston. Nothing has ever prevented him from going to the limestone city to preside at a convocation.

Sir Sanford Fleming the author is widely known. In early years his writings were confined to contributions to the "Canadian Journal." In time he branched out into other fields.

NEEDS TWELVE MORE POLICEMEN Report of the Chief of Police to the Common Council

Chief of Police Clark, in his report which he presented to the common council yesterday, paid a tribute to the memory of Sergeant John Hipwell and Sergeant Jacob Rose, who died during the year.

There has been no increase in the strength of the patrol force for years. In fact the force is not as strong numerically as it was in 1907.

During the twelve months, 2,205 persons were summoned to the police court. Of these 227 were for doing business in the city without license.

The chief also reported that there were 57 violations of the liquor license act during the year.

This is an increase of between five and six millions of dollars over the earnings of 1909, when the revenue of the company exceeded that of the Dominion of Canada.

Having admitted that they were smoking in the country market on December 22 or 24 last, Wm. McDonald, Charles Landers, and Wm. P. McDonald were fined $2 this morning by Judge Ritchie in the police court. The information was laid by Deputy Market Clerk Rover. His Honor referred to the fact that there was too little respect shown public buildings about the city in this regard, but more particularly in regard to expectorating. The laws were being violated, but he wished it understood that he would sooner have brought to court before him the one who spits on the sidewalk than the poor unfortunate who staggers about. It is the duty of the police to act the latter, but it is their duty to report the one who spits on the sidewalk.

THE NEXT STEP

Board of Trade to Hold Public Meetings to Explain Commission Plan Previous to Tue Pebecoste

Now that the common council has approved of the proposal to have a plebiscite taken at the next civic elections in April, on the plan of city government by an elected commission, composed of a mayor and four commissioners, the bills and by-laws committee will soon prepare a bill that permission be granted for the people to vote yes or no on this question. Plans are also being formulated by the board of trade for a series of public meetings to be held in various parts of the city at which the commission plan will be explained, so that all citizens will understand just what they are asked to do. The many good points of the system will be brought out clearly and any features which might appear objectionable will be explained.

TO TAKE UP COMMISSION AT ST. JOHN NIGHT

Canadian Club Plans on Annual Meeting—Club Men Members

At a meeting of the executive of the Canadian Club in the Times' building yesterday afternoon, the following new members were elected: Albert Parsley, Dr. James Manning, W. N. Collins, Frank Rankine, Samuel W. Wilkins, Allan B. Wilmut. Five applications for membership were received and ordered posted in the usual way. It was decided to have a St. John night at the annual meeting, with a discussion on government by commission. There will be two speakers, one for and the other against the commission plan, so that both sides of the case will be fairly presented. It will be remembered that the club had a very interesting St. John night last year, with addresses on the forward movement in St. John.

SOME COUNCIL MATTERS

The Harbor Channel—A King Street Improvement—Substitute Call Firemen Ask for More Pay

The following communications have been referred by the common council to the various boards, in addition to those referred to heretofore: E. T. P. Shuenen, district engineer of the public works department, writes to the mayor to say that he is informed that the attention of the department has been called to the practice of certain vessels in dumping ashes and refuse in the channel leading into St. John harbor. He asks if there is a civic ordinance prohibiting this practice, and if not, he is requested to find out what measures could be taken to prevent vessels from depositing ashes or other refuse in the harbor or channel leading thereto. The communication has been referred to the board of public works. T. McAvity & Sons, ask permission to erect an ornamental five light electric lighting post, at the edge of the curb in front of their hardware store on King street, all costs to be borne by the firm. The substitute callmen of the fire department ask for an increase in pay such as would put them on an equal basis with the regular callmen. They claim that their petition was turned aside by a counter proposition that does not come up to their ideas of fair play.

CURLING.
The St. Andrews Club curlers are playing at Fredericton this afternoon at 7 o'clock. Those for the afternoon rink went up this morning, and other members will have this evening. The Hodge Cup match in the Carleton Rink last night was postponed on account of the rain, and it is hoped to have the match this evening.

The risks for the St. Andrews Ladies to go to the Most Moral Bazaar, have not as yet been chosen. On account of the poor ice the ladies have had little opportunity to practice.

Store open till 6 o'clock. St. John, Jan. 10, 1911
