OUR COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE.

SUSSEX.

Sussex, Oct. 23.—Miss Agnes Morton, the trained nurse who has been seriously ill at her home, Penobscia, since the death of Norval Gross last week, is considerably better. At one time fears about her recovery were entertained. Two doctors were in attendance for some days. Her collapse was due to the self-sacrifice of the nurse in attempting to save the life of her patient, the late Mr. Gross. For days and nights together she was at his bedside almost constantly, going without sleep or rest almost entirely. For a time it was feared her devotion to duty in the sick room would cost her life. After three weeks, however, she was able to save the patient, Miss Morton broke down completely and for some days was almost hopelessly ill. Miss Ella Freese, another trained nurse, who like Miss Morton, is a friend of the family, also gave invaluable assistance during the last week of Mr. Gross' illness and has the heartfelt gratitude of his relatives for her great kindness.

It is reported that a young business man of this place will lead the altar one of the three sons of Sussex.

Kilgour Shives, of Campbellton, was in Sussex yesterday. Col. Markham, of St. John, was here yesterday morning. S. Wortman is shipping a large consignment of live turkeys today to Capt. Harcourt, Hamilton, Bermuda. There are nearly 400 in this lot. Sussex, N. B., Oct. 23.—John H. Kinross, a former resident of Kings county, who has been in Manitoba for twenty-three years and settled in Souris, is in Sussex visiting his sister, Mrs. Wm. McLeod. He returns next week to his home in London, Ontario.

Sussex, N. B., Oct. 23.—Harvey Mitchell leaves here today by the C. P. R. for Ottawa to attend the conference of the dairy superintendents of the Dominion, which meets there next week. The officers of the Royal Arcanum paid the widow of their late brother, John Thomson, $3,000 this afternoon.

FREDERICTON.

Fredricton, Oct. 27.—(Special)—The executive committee of the Agriculture Society held a meeting this afternoon to wind up the business in connection with the late exhibition. Some of the committee did not have their reports ready but there was sufficient information to show the fact that the expenses of the exhibition exceeded the receipts by about $300. It was decided to engage J. W. McCready and W. B. Couthard to make a thorough audit of the secretary-treasurer's accounts. At the last meeting, which it was thought there would be a surplus, the executive committee donated $300 to the officers of the society. This action has provoked a great deal of adverse criticism, and it may possibly interfere with the success of future exhibitions. Judge Wilson presided at the October term of the Queen's County court today. There was no business to come before him.

Fredricton, Oct. 28.—(Special)—Letters patent have been issued incorporating E. S. Melrose, of St. John, Harry E. Palmer, of Oak Point, John H. Poole, of Westfield, J. N. Inch, of Greenwood, as the Hamilton Steamship Company, Limited. Total stock is $25,000. Letters of incorporation have also been granted to George McKean and Robert Goding, of St. John; Lethbridge B. Smith, Pelgand Smith, and Robert B. Smith, of Blisville, as Smith Bros., Limited. Object is to carry on lumbering business at Central Blisville. Capital stock is $25,000. James W. Correll, Alfred Green and J. W. McPhail, of Perth, John E. Stewart, of Andover, and George H. Day, of Grand Falls, have been incorporated as Victoria County News Company, Limited. Capital stock is $5,000.

A court martial composed of Lt.-Col. G. B. White, D. O. C. M., M. No. 8; Capt. J. F. Winslow and Capt. Jas. W. Howe, assembled at the barracks this morning for the trial of Pte. John Currie of the R. C. R. Currie was charged with striking a non-commissioned officer, and with resisting an escort while under arrest. He pleaded guilty to both charges and the sentence of the court has been forwarded to Ottawa for approval. The team in today's Telegraph was a triple mauling as far as it related to the appointment of auditors. The latter are not to be engaged to audit the secretary-treasurer's accounts as stated, but will be asked to go over all the accounts in connection with the recent exhibition. The executive are anxious to have a complete statement prepared for presentation to the public. It may be stated here that the offices of secretary and treasurer are not combined.

Considering that an amount larger than both the government and city grants was expended in providing new buildings and an electric light plant, the exhibition managers have made a remarkably good showing in keeping the deficit down to $300. There was considerable excitement at the Normal school this morning, occasioned by the appearance at the opening exercises of a student of the university. He went there to witness the exercises, but his presence seems to have been objectionable to Principal Crockett, and he ordered him to move out. The student refused to budge an inch, and a messenger was dispatched for Policeman Wright. When the student heard the officer coming up the stairs he quietly moved across the hall to the Sloyd school and in the many productions in wood to be seen there. The opening exercises were then proceeded with and the blizzard withdrew. It is said that Justice Valentine will be called on to explain how he came to allow the student to cross the threshold.—Fredricton Herald.

The new received here yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Meade, of this city, of the death of their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Chapman. She had reached the city of Betsavia (Cal.) The deceased lady had been married but three years, and had many relatives and friends in this vicinity and Millville, who will regret very much to hear of her early death, which took place on October 12. Mr. Chapman was formerly in the employ of Dr. Fraser & Sons here and at present is engaged in business in California. Besides the bereaved husband and parents, she leaves two children, one two years old and the other an infant.

The death occurred at Oroonoto last night of Mrs. Ann Carr, widow of the late Frederick Carr. For some time she has been suffering with rheumatism. She was advanced age of eighty-seven years. Ralph Pulitzer, son of the proprietor of the New York World, who has been touring the province with William Giffin, Jr., as guide, in the Taxis River country for the past three weeks, returned by the city this afternoon. He shot a fine moose, the head of which he brought home and left to be set up. Mr. Pulitzer returns home this evening well satisfied with his trip.

GRAND FALLS.

Grand Falls, N. B., Oct. 24.—J. J. Gallagher, a prominent barrister of this town, while alighting from the accommodation going north, last Saturday night, missed his footing in the darkness and fell some five feet into a depression adjoining the track and broke his left leg at the hip near the socket. The fracture was a bad and painful one, and as in a very unusual place. Dr. Puddington reduced the fracture, and Mr. Gallagher is now making progress towards recovery, under the care of Dr. Puddington.

Thomas Estabrooke, the 18-year-old son of Jesse Estabrooke, one of the wealthiest farmers near Grand Falls, fell last week from a heavily loaded wagon, and the wheels passed over his leg, breaking it above the knee. Dr. Puddington was summoned and set the broken limb, and the young man is now rapidly recovering under his skilful attention.

Fernandez, a colored man, charged with indecent assault and tried twice at the recent sittings of the Supreme court, was sentenced by Judge Meagher this morning. In sentencing the accused his honor said the matter was a serious one, the child's life being perhaps ruined, and it was to be regretted that the law did not provide a longer term for the offence than two years. His lordship sentenced Fernandez to Dorchester penitentiary for two years and during his confinement to be whipped twice on the bare back with the cat of tails, each whipping to consist of 15 lashes.

It appears that a recent issue of the Public News contained a reference to Young Corbett, which incensed him. Before the bout between Corbett and Murphy at the Criterion Club on Tuesday night, Pierce and a friend started to leave the clubroom for a moment, when a man said to be a close friend to Corbett, alleged to have struck Pierce a stinging blow from behind, which landed upon Pierce's jaw and almost "put him out of business."

During the general fight, it is said, the man who first attacked Pierce and who was down and being badly beaten, drew a revolver and threatened to shoot. Some of Pierce's friends, it is said, drew knives and one man drew a razor and chased Pierce's assailants into a dressing room, where they locked themselves in to escape further attack. This ended the general fight though there was considerable savage talk during the remainder of the evening. The incident was then generally believed to be closed.

But promptly yesterday morning Young Corbett, accompanied by a Bostonian friend, hurried to the municipal court and presented his charge of libel against Pierce to one of the judges. As a result a warrant charging Pierce with "Maliciously writing and publishing certain false and defamatory libels, intended to injure the character of William H. Rothwell of New York city," was granted.

Special Officer Armstrong of headquarters was given the warrant to serve. He hunted all day for Pierce, but could not find him, because he was late in Middlesex training Joe Walcott, for whom he is a manager. He was found later at his home at 50 Chestnut street, Charlestown, while eating a meal. He was permitted to finish his meal. He came to headquarters with the officer, and John, familiarly known as "Jackie" Keenan, a wealthy liquor dealer of 38 Howard street, immediately joined them. Bail was fixed at $500, and Mr. Keenan promptly deposited $300 with the bail commissioner and walked away with Mr. Pierce. The case will be called in court this morning.

Mr. Rothwell, the complainant, went to New York city on the noon train yesterday, but his Boston friend wired for him immediately after the arrest of Pierce, and he started at midnight for Boston to be present at the hearing this morning. Pierce is 29 years old, and has managed some of the promising fighters and now is manager for Wolcott, Gardner and others. On the first of the month he is going to San Francisco to manage Gardner in a big event in that city.

Pierce, editor and publisher of the Police News, last evening was arrested charged with criminally libelling William H. The league's object is to secure the uniting of the electors of the various municipalities of the province for independent political action along non-partisan lines for the purpose of the enactment of such moral legislation as will tend to promote good citizenship. Its intention is to put candidates in and out of the domain of the party system, and to put in a man of every constituency which will have been organized before that time. While the league is at present only a general idea of national scope, it is intended to make it a work of formation program."

AN UNDERSTANDING NEEDED. The aldermen will find an interview which Mr. McNicoll, general manager of the C. P. R., accorded to the Montreal Witness, very instructive.

The aldermen will find an interview which Mr. McNicoll, general manager of the C. P. R., accorded to the Montreal Witness, very instructive. It will show how different Mr. McNicoll's view of his recent visit to St. John is from his own view of that visit, and it will emphasize the need for an early modification of the position taken by one or the other of the two parties concerned, the city and the railroad company.

Says the Witness in part:— Mr. McNicoll has been down to St. John to see about making accommodations for the boats of the company. The situation is rather nebulous. There is a doubt as to whether the company has been asked to extend the harbor. There was a charge granted to the city in 1893, but the city never acted on it.

The situation is indeed nebulous. The manner in which the railroad company avoids discussion of its agreement of 1893, and the calm with which the city contemplates that avoidance, contribute to the nebulousity.

Neither Mr. McNicoll nor his company need be abused for seeking to have wharves built for them by the city or the government. That is business. The city, however, should not be blamed if it deals firmly with those who attempt to make its necessity their opportunity. St. John needs the C. P. R. The C. P. R. also needs St. John. It is found that St. John is very useful. Apparently it hopes to find the city even more useful and obedient in future.

Mr. McNicoll, for instance, apparently imagines that the agreement between the city and the company signed in 1893, is scarcely so nebulous as all that. Mr. McNicoll is quoted by the Witness as saying he came to St. John...

To see what was the actual plan for harbor extension, could not be agreed upon. There had been a small plan made some time ago, but it was now seen that the carrying out of such a plan would only be a temporary expedient. The port must be regarded as a national port, and if improvements were to be carried out they should be on a scale which would not only meet the needs of the present, but the future.

Such a plan would cost two million dollars. They had a piece of property along the harbor front, but they did not see the use in spending money upon it, for what would be a mere temporary convenience. A large plan was a necessity, (like for the convenience of the business and the benefit of the city). They might have to worry along for a while as they were, but they were in negotiations in regard to the matter, and he was hopeful that the C. P. R. would not be in a position to demand government, there would be aid which would give the needed room at a port in the most notable way. The C. P. R. might as well be asked to put the port of Montreal in shape as to undertake this work of extension at St. John, but the St. John Board of Works and himself, with Mr. Bosworth and Mr. Piers, discussed the matter, and there would probably be action taken in the premises.

At least there is nothing nebulous about Mr. McNicoll's statement that an expenditure of one or two millions will be necessary and that the C. P. R. expects the city to find the money in one way or another.

The aldermen know that St. John has lost some steamers already this season, and is threatened with the loss of more, because the lines may be cramped for room. Good judges say that were the city and all the steamship people in harmony, the present berth might accommodate all the ships booked to land here this winter. But there is, at best, scarcely room enough to be built, the lack of facilities will be a grave injury to the business and prospects of the port. The aldermen know it. They know the C. P. R.'s attitude. They know that the people of St. John can not be taxed further to make the necessary improvements. The alternatives are a limited harbor trust for the West Side property, or the placing of the entire harbor in commission. A comprehensive harbor commission the people should vote on that question.

Meantime the people will expect that the aldermen will take steps to define accurately the city's relations with the railroad company. It is news to the public that Mr. McNicoll came here recently to see if "an adequate plan for harbor extension could not be agreed upon." It is news to them that there is any doubt as to where "authority" lies in regard to that extension. It is news to them that negotiations are in progress. They know, however, that a responsibility rests upon the C. P. R., in respect of the development of the West Side property and that its responsibility has been ignored. Mr. McNicoll speaks of a small plan which was prepared some time ago. Presumably that is the harbor trust plan which the city submitted to the company and the receipt of which the company did not even acknowledge.

The general manager of the C. P. R. appears to wish it understood that the company has been a sort of fairy god-mother to St. John. There is another side to that story. At the present time the city is waiving its right to collect wharfage dues on the West Side and thereby sacrificing an income of some $48,000 a year which might properly be derived from that source. This has been done up to the present to encourage the building up of the port. The C. P. R. might well be asked to buy the city's West Side wharves and build such new ones as become necessary. In case a trust were decided upon, the company might be asked to turn over its property to that trust.

The company might well be asked what it regards as "an adequate plan for harbor extension," and exactly what portion of the cost of that plan it is prepared to assume as one of the principal parties which will profit by its execution.

The railroad company threatens to send some of the ships, now coming here, to Boston if the city does not arrange for the construction of more wharves. That is very interesting. Year after year more and more wharves will be needed. Does the city propose to establish a precedent by accepting what all decried the statement that when the company brings the freight to the port its duty is done?

When the Common Council meets next Tuesday harbor matters should command the board's earnest attention. Time lost now means further complications in the future.

A REMARKABLE CRIMINAL. Sentenced to die for murder, Albert T. Patrick, while fighting the state of New York for his life, carried on at the same time a legal battle for the possession of the millions left by the aged benefactor whom he chloroformed to death. The court of appeals has upheld the lower court which stamped as a forgery the will of William M. Rice, in which Patrick was named as chief legatee. Slowly but surely the state pushes Patrick on toward the electric chair. The decision of the court of appeals places beyond his reach the four millions for which he plotted. Another decision by that court is expected to affirm the judgment of a lower court which sentenced him to death and against which his lawyers are now battling.

Patrick's plot was daring. It failed of success because he chose a weak accomplice and paid him meanly, and because his nerve deserted him in a crisis. Rice was old, ill and eccentric. Patrick was a lawyer, bold and ready to go any length to promote wealth. He won Rice's confidence, became his business manager and learned of his intention to bequeath his wealth to an "institute for the advancement of science, art and literature" in Houston (Tex.). Men interested in that institute had obtained some influence over the old man. His wealth would benefit them and they were anxious that it should, but they could wait until he lived his time out. Not so Patrick. The lawyer decided that Rice had lived long enough. He forged a will which made him the old man's principal heir and set aside a genuine testament bequeathing the money to the Houston institute.

Rice had moved to New York and Patrick followed. He avoided the millionaire but cultivated his valet. The rich man lived meanly, the valet being his only companion and servant. The valet consented to assist the lawyer in killing Rice for a share of the fortune. Patrick intended to kill the valet in time. Rice was in feeble health and under Patrick's direction a slow poison was administered, to weaken him and hasten his death. He lingered and Patrick, pained for money and believing the old man near his end, had forged checks and cashed them at Rice's bank. One check aroused suspicion and the bank people were trying to see Rice about it. They were told that he was too ill to see anyone.

If Rice lived a few days longer discovery of the forgery was certain. If he were poisoned at once an autopsy might reveal the crime. The valet had obtained some chloroform at Patrick's orders and with this one of them studied the old man while the other kept watch outside. Each has sworn that the other was the actual murderer. Patrick aroused suspicion by answering evasively telephone enquiries from the bank and by ordering the immediate cremation of his victim's body. When he and the valet were arrested the servant, a weak fool whom the tragedy had unmoved completely, and who hoped to save his life, confessed everything to the police. Patrick, in turn, swore the valet was the killer.

The lawyer secured skilful counsel, and mapped out his plan of campaign to escape punishment and also to inherit the fortune under the forged will. Condemned to die for the murder he appealed and also kept up the contest for the money to obtain which he killed his benefactor. Every delay possible under the New York law, which means many, has been obtained by himself amazing fertile in resource and gave them valuable aid. But now the forgery stands proved, and only the court of appeals stands between Patrick and the forfeiture of his life. Of his guilt there is no shadow of a doubt. Only a technicality can save him. And, cunning as he is, the criminal sees now how foolish were the mistakes he made in the last stages exposed by the law. He was certain that he could cheat justice, and he has the bitter knowledge that the intelligence upon which he staked his life proved a broken reed when the supreme test came. The meeting out of capital punishment to an admittedly clever and calculating murderer should be of some use in deterring others from plotting to kill and to escape the consequences.

CANADA'S NARROW ESCAPE. Humble ye, my people, and be fearful in your mind. —Kipling's "A Song of the English." We live and learn. It now appears that we not only had no right to any of the disputed Alaska territory but that we are extremely lucky to have emerged from the discussion with our lives and what land is still marked red on the map. It is learned, too, that we owe an apology to the United States for attempting grand larceny and should be humbly thankful because President Roosevelt did not throw an army across the border and dictate terms to a suppliant people after he had established his military headquarters in our Parliament buildings at Ottawa.

Proclamation to this effect is made by the New York Press, a journal which presently will be urging the Canadian and United States governments to sign a reciprocity treaty throwing this market open to the Republic. According to the Press our situation was extremely grave, and only the extraordinary clemency of our American neighbors saved us from fit punishment for our manifold transgressions. Says the Press, after proving to its own satisfaction that Canada had no case and going into court at all.

"And, furthermore, they must have known that, if any other nation than this had been dealing with them, it would have pulled out Canada's own maps and records from their official reading places in the Dominion government library and archives and pointed out to them the boundaries which are now not established, but affirmed, pointing them out with the sword!

"Life is too short, and there is too much work in it for all of us, to waste more time on the discussion of this petty baby act than to remind the sulky Canadians that they were lucky to get off with only a demerit mark when they deserved a sound thrashing."

Unfortunately, the Press is generally regarded in the United States as a respectable newspaper. It is not as "yellow" as some and it tells the truth as often as many. On some questions it is even intelligent and reliable. There will be comparatively few Americans who read it who will not be ready to applaud its view of our situation.

Commissioner in charge of the Joint High regard, for the United States as a respectable newspaper. It is not as "yellow" as some and it tells the truth as often as many. On some questions it is even intelligent and reliable. There will be comparatively few Americans who read it who will not be ready to applaud its view of our situation.

As for the threat implied in the remarks of the Press, it is doubtless well meant, yet for all that it is unkind to the entire Canadian population which ever bolt for the forests and leave Seymour Gourey, M. P., alone in the path of the invader. Most of us have just put in the winter's coal and wood and we hate to leave home.

LORD MINTO AND THE G. T. P. In Lord Minto's speech proposing Parliament be asked to support the Grand Trunk Pacific. Part of it follows:

"My ministers considered it essential to obtain authority from parliament for the construction of a second trans-continental railway, the eastern divisions of which should serve as a common railway high road to the maritime ports of Canada. It will be the duty of my ministers to proceed immediately with the necessary surveys so that the work of construction of that portion of the line which extends from Moncton to Winnipeg may be prosecuted with all possible speed."

After quoting the foregoing the Globe says:— "This will probably set at rest all rumors and reports to the effect that the Moncton end of the line is to be abandoned."

Why should it? Does it alter the expressed belief of Senator King and Thompson that the St. John Valley route will be substituted for that named in the bill? Does it mean that the Hon. Mr. Scott did not know what he was talking about when he said the Moncton line would be abandoned if the route were found impracticable for the purposes of a first class line?

The citation is of no particular value. The governor general of necessity adhered to the route mentioned in the bill. The work of the engineers has yet to be done, and the surveys may give the government an opportunity to yield graciously to the strong influences against the new New Brunswick project. The government must spend $15,000,000 to duplicate the I. C. R., if any new line be built in this direction from Quebec, it should seek the sea by the shortest and most practicable route. Such a route would mean that St. John would be the terminus, and no doubt conditions could be made and links supplied so that other sections of the province would be served as well. There is, of course, many New Brunswick political influences in favor of the Valley road. The newspaper quoted did not formerly regard the Governor General of Canada as a final authority on matters of importance. Its new point of view makes a difference.

FOREST PRESERVATION. The local government's proposal to devote some attention to forest preservation and reforestation finds justification in the large amount of American capital now being invested in Canada, because of the scarcity of standing spruce in many of the States. Americans who at first were content to import spruce logs from this country are now investing in water powers and spruce lands, and constructing pulp and paper mills, the output of which is intended for sale in Canada and Great Britain and in the Republic as well. Near Sherbrooke (Que.) a pulp mill which cost half a million is in operation and a paper mill to cost nearly as much is to be erected soon. The paper and pulp goods which it will produce will be sold largely in Canada. The American consul at Sherbrooke writes to his government:

"American capital is rapidly invading this part of the Dominion and the near future will see the erection and equipping of many large manufacturing plants, that will greatly increase the wealth and business of this section and promote trade with the United States. American companies are now building factories in Canada and manufacturing the same goods which they turn out in the United States. Thereby saving the Canadian duty and freight rates which enable them to sell their goods here at about the same prices as they obtain for them in the United States."

The New York Commercial, referring to the consul's statement, says "it brings forcibly home a lesson that we Americans learned too late: Had we years ago known the value of forest preservation and practical forestry, there would now be in the United States enough standing spruce to quit all apprehensions as to the supply of paper for many years yet to come, and dependence on our northern neighbors and the need of taking our capital west to Canada would not now be disturbing factors in our industrial and commercial affairs."

GENIAL UNCLE SAM. It is announced at Washington that a general arbitration treaty, under which differences arising between the United States and Great Britain would be referred to the tribunal at The Hague, would not be accepted by Congress. It is true that it means that in certain American circles it is thought unnecessary and unnecessary to risk anything by consenting to arbitration which all risk may be avoided by a firm demand that the British should come to terms. One might say that it is extremely likely that there were any ground for this confidence at Washington: The Americans have professed unbounded admiration for and faith in the arbitration medicine, but they refuse to take it when their own interests are involved. They are certain of its efficacy in the case of outward and advise liberal doses. When asked to try their own prescription they reply to: "We have nothing to arbitrate."

President Roosevelt and his "strenuous" tendencies are blamed by the Boston Herald for this American inconsistency. The Herald puts it thus, unpleasantly:

"Congress, we have been told, has not the least desire to depend on arbitration for the purpose of settling differences with England; such a method would be unpopular with a people who would prefer to fight at the dropping of a handkerchief, or, at least, if any provocation should be given. This, we regret to say, is in fact the case. It has been greatly encouraged during the last four or five years by the gentleman whom accident has placed at the head of our national affairs."

Perhaps Uncle Sam is not so truculent as the Herald implies but certainly he displays an annoying tendency to be cocksure he has the right end of the argument. Just now St. Petersburg is sneering at American claims to be considered as of weight in Far Eastern matters. It is a good bet that Washington will not blithely undertake to correct the manners of the Bear.

NEWS FOR THE ALDERMEN. The Montreal newspapers continue to talk about "arrangements" and "negotiations" for the construction of more wharves in St. John, and apparently Mr. McNicoll of the C. P. R. is their source of information. The St. John aldermen, who know that absolutely nothing has yet been done toward providing the increased facilities required, will be surprised to learn that the C. P. R. regards the matter as practically settled. The last two paragraphs of the following article, from the Montreal Witness of Wednesday, are especially interesting:—

Although the matter which took Mr. McNicoll, general manager of the C. P. R., to St. John, has not been entirely settled yet, it is understood that arrangements are fairly under way by which the C. P. R. will get all the berthing room it needs, at least for this season, at the port.

The city sees now that there is almost no chance of the carrying out of the plan, which has been submitted to and approved by Mr. McNicoll, a plan which calls for more than double the berthing space and which would serve the needs of the city, even upon a most generous measurement, for the next half century. It is understood, however, that all the parties concerned will come together, at an early date, for the purpose of seeing if city, province and Dominion cannot combine to make St. John one of the national ports of the Dominion. This is apparently the C. P. R. view of the situation. The aldermen may not be able to set at first stage just how, by becoming a great ocean carrier, the company is absolved from the responsibilities it assumed here in 1893. If the company was willing to make improvements before it owned a fleet, it should be no less willing now that it has one.

"All the parties concerned" are to come together, it appears—the C. P. R., the city, the province and the Dominion—to see if the last three named cannot combine to make St. John one of the national ports of the Dominion. That is to say, the C. P. R. proposes to mention the facilities necessary and persuade the city and the two governments to construct and pay for them. As for the plan which the C. P. R. "does not feel like undertaking" and which would provide berthing space for the next half century, presumably that is the plan outlined by Mr. Osborne. It can scarcely be thought that Mr. McNicoll told the Witness double the present berthing space would be sufficient for the next fifty years. If St. John gets the trade to which its position entitles it and for which it will, in one way or another, it must be equipped, a very few years hence the business will demand twice the present accommodation.

With the aid of the C. P. R. or without it, more wharves must be built. Even if an acceptable plan be agreed upon at once the work of construction cannot begin until the summer of 1904. The aldermen and the railroad company should get together and talk business. Then the city will know exactly where it stands. The company knows what proportion of its freight is now carried to this port for the winter. The aldermen should know that, and should have from the company an estimate as to the extent of the traffic probable next year. Upon what the aldermen do now will depend to a great extent, the future of St. John.

A CHANGE. The shock of Mrs. Booth-Tucker's death will be felt around the world. Colonel Holland, another victim of the lamentable accident, was known here and will be widely mourned. The Army, and the world, can ill spare such workers.

These deaths and the sharp and general regret they cause serve to show how great a change has come over the public temper in regard to the great organization created by General Booth, and expanded by this genius and that of his devoted children. Not very many years ago the Army uniform was scoffed at all over this continent and the Army's speech, though it was one of peace, was met by reviling because it upset tradition and shocked convention. But the work went on. Crime, hostility, coldness, contempt and complacency—none of these nor all of them could discourage the organization or prevent its growth. A host was organized to the extent of active participation in the Army's work. A far greater host accorded in the respect it withheld held during the first years of the crusade, and summed up its attitude toward the fugions of Booth by saying: "I do not agree with all their methods but I respect them for the work they do." There was a countless multitude only the fringe of which the churches appeared able to touch. To those the Army has appeared with peculiar power.

So yesterday when news came that the Army's Domain in America had met a sudden and violent death, a great part of the civilized world was moved deeply by the loss of a good woman, a loving mother and a mighty missionary, who had wrought unceasingly and accomplished much.

OFFENSIVE ART. Perhaps the German idea of humor is not quite as offensive as the Spanish, but it is laid enough. A correspondent writing to a city newspaper, calls attention to the execrable picture in German publications in which the King Edward is caricatured after an outrageous fashion. It is true that these pictures reflect German hostility toward England and that they might be suppressed were the German Emperor anxious to rebuke the feeling which approves of such a wretched and insulting campaign of the cartoonists. Should the German authorities act in this matter—as, apparently, they have no thought of doing—a similar British, and might be expected in Great Britain, there it might not be so easily exercised. Even the British cartoonist's humor is oftentimes none too delicate or timely, and while it is not in the German class, what is considered humorous or proper in England might be regarded as highly insulting in Germany.

At the time of the Fashoda incident, it will be remembered, the reproduction of a London cartoon in Paris increased the London already dangerous tension. The London artist had represented France as an orange grinder. The officer commanding the French expedition was the monkey, John Bull was saying to the intruding musician: "Give you something to go away? If you don't go away I'll give you something, my man." Feeling was intense in both capitals then. The picture made a hit in London. To Paris it was intolerable, as it was meant to be.

Yet it is all work to control these humorous folk, for their taste good, but no doubt the view is very different in Berlin. Were it not, the artists would be the first to know it and to change the tone of their work. State interference in such matters, even when the abuse arises to heaven for statement, does not always result happily.

When General Weyler ruled Cuba for Spain, and while the United States was making interferences, General Blanco Lee was the American consul at Havana. What the Havana papers said about him was a daily transgression of the laws of courtesy and of decency. No newspaper printed in English would dare appear with such comments and pictures as the Havana press resorted to. Lee complained to Weyler. Now Weyler's rule in Havana was of iron. He summarily assured the American that a change would be made at once, and the censor did the rest. The American newspapers meantime called Weyler "butcher," printing it in enormous type and accompanying it with pictures of the Spanish governor which were by no means calculated to enhance his reputation as an officer and a gentleman.

Up to that time no one had credited Weyler with a sense of humor. But Weyler, having muzzled the Havana press to please Lee, calmly asked Lee to call off the newspapers of the United States. Lee smiled painfully. He had as much control over the American papers as he had over the wind on the rainy season, and he said so. Weyler professed surprise and looked mild incredulity. Thereafter the censor let it gradually become known that Lee was no longer sacred and might be referred to or pictured as a "Yankee pig" in the humorous days of old.

But, after all, when war did come no one thought of blaming the cartoonists for it. The men who make war and peace do not recognize a jester's offence as a cause belli; they reckon rather with the causes which make the jester's work pleasant or intolerable. The tone of the newspapers is a thermometer, none too accurate, yet worth consulting when big questions are up and men begin to weigh the chances of war. Pictures and comments are smoke from the fire beneath.

Suppose we get through this winter without losing more ships. What about next year? Wise action now may do much to make St. John the great national port it should be within a few years. Continued delay and a patch-work policy will go far toward rendering useless the sacrifices the citizens have made already.

Ex-Senator George Turner, one of the American Alaska boundary commissioners, is mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency of the United States. Doubtless his part in the "arbitration" proceedings will increase his popularity, and that is counted upon. His work was easy.

"Get to work and build some more terminal facilities for us" is the C. P. R.'s suggestion to St. John. "What will the company do?" asks the city. "Anything but build wharves or warehouses," says the company. The dust on that 1893 agreement grows thicker daily.

The Moncton Transcript says, if the G. T. R. comes down the St. John Valley, "the probabilities are that the Moncton Transcript will be doing business at the same old stand, with the same color." It is by no means certain that an enlightened community will regard this consolation as adequate.

The C. P. R. characterizes as useless the plan for harbor improvements submitted by the aldermen. Will the aldermen try another or will they ask for a conference at which the relations between the city and the company may be defined without any of that "nebulousity" to which reference has been made?

An alderman remarked a short time ago that the corporations were better represented in the Common Council than the people of St. John. Just now when there is a tangle over the steamship berths and the various companies are pressing for preferential treatment it would be well if the council looked only at the interests of the port. No one company should have any more influence in the Council than any other.

The Montreal Witness interview with Mr. McNicoll indicates that the C. P. R. is not quite sure St. John's title to the harbor is good. The Common Council should correct the impression that anything which happened "away back in the time of the Georges" either vitiates the agreement between the city and the railroad company or prevent the city from exercising some measure of control over its own property.

FARMER AS MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT TO REPRESENT ST. JOHN

Agricultural Society Directors Think One M. P. P. Should Be.

This is the opinion at a meeting held Thursday—Pure Bred Cattle and Fowl, Bought by the Directors, to Be Sold at Auction Thursday.

The St. John Agricultural Society directors are of opinion that this constituency should draw one at least of its representatives in the New Brunswick legislature from the farming industry.

This matter was discussed at length at a meeting of the directors held Thursday afternoon. No resolution was passed but the general opinion of the meeting was that St. John should send one farmer to the local parliament. More may be heard of this again.

The stock and seed committee reported having bought several head of pure Jersey and Ayrshire stock and a lot of pure bred fowls. These will be sold at auction to members of the society on Thursday morning next at 10 o'clock in St. John's stable.

The meeting voted a $5 donation towards the winter fair at Amherst. Secretary R. R. Patchell gave the meeting a full report of the recent farmers' institute meetings.

ASYLUM INQUIRY.

Premier Hears Evidence in the Complaint About Mrs. Wilde's Money.

Premier Tweedie, who some weeks ago was appointed a commission to inquire into complaints made in relation to matters at the Provincial Lunatic Asylum, heard the evidence of the late matron, Mrs. Young, Wednesday afternoon in reference to the case of Mrs. Wilde.

Mrs. Wilde, a colored woman, went to the institution some years ago at the home of Mrs. Medley, wife of Bishop Medley, Fredericton. She recovered and then was employed in the asylum. Some time ago she died and there has since arisen the contention on the part of some of her relatives as to her belongings that should have been, and that the matron's bill was too great.

Mr. Young had to call at the last sitting of his court. As Mrs. Young was leaving the city yesterday afternoon, the Premier decided to hear her evidence. All Mrs. Young had to tell was that she did not know of much money in the possession of Mrs. Wilde. The investigation into these asylum matters will be continued next week.

The Winter Port. The commencement of the winter port business is not far away, and preparations for a large business are being now made at Sand Point.

The Canadian Pacific Atlantic Line steamer Lake Manitoa, Captain Taylor, sailed from Liverpool at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with thirty-one passengers and 250 third class passengers for Quebec and Montreal.

She will open the winter service for St. John, sailing from Liverpool November 25. The steamer who has called on the hospital and detained immigrants at West End last winter, arrived in the city yesterday from Quebec, where he is stationed during the summer months. The happy doctor was greeted by his numerous friends yesterday, who wished him welcome back. Dr. Faber left again last evening for Quebec and will return to St. John tomorrow.

Old No. 8 fire station in St. John street is being fitted into a hospital and here Dr. Faber will look after the men and children while the C. P. R. building on Union street, used as a hospital last winter, will be used for the same purpose this year, but only for the women and children.

The C. P. R. passenger boats running from St. John to Liverpool, and the St. John, London and Antwerp service, will be supplied with coal by the company's boats on the St. John-Bristol service has been secured by John McDonald, Jr.

Edmundston, N. B., Oct. 28.—The preliminary inquiry into the charge brought against three parties arrested near Woodstock on the 18th instant for having robbed the C. P. R. station here on the 6th instant, was concluded here today.

No one clearly identified any one of the accused as having been seen near here about the time of the robbery and Mr. Knowles, a farmer from Presque Isle, Maine, stated that the three men accused had worked for him for some time, both before and after the robbery, and that they had not been absent at that time. On this Justice Nadeau held that the prisoners could not be held for trial and discharged them.

A scheme has been prepared for the endorsement of Trinity College, Dublin; Queen's College, Belfast; and the new Catholic College in Dublin, as constituent parts of the new Irish University.

A. J. ARMSTRONG GIVES UP POSITION OF GRAND SCRIBE, SONS OF TEMPERANCE

Resigns After 14 Years in Office—E. A. Everett Succeeds Him—Rev. C. W. Hamilton Re-elected G. W. P.—Condition of the Order and the Work of the Year Told of at Annual Meeting.

After fourteen years in office as grand scribe of the Grand Division of New Brunswick, Sons of Temperance, Col. A. J. Armstrong resigned from office at the annual meeting of the division which opened Wednesday evening.

It was the fifty-sixth annual session of the grand division, and opened at 8 o'clock in the rooms of the division, Market building.

Grand Worthy Patriarch Reviews Work. The report of the grand worthy patriarch, Rev. C. W. Hamilton, is in part as follows:—

The semi-annual session was held at Georgetown, the grand officers being the guests of Division No. 21. The session was successful and on the conclusion of business affairs an entertainment was held in Bro. Dinger's hotel, in which building the late Sir Leonard Tilley, an ardent temperance supporter, was born.

The work performed since the semi-annual session has been all too little, but there has not been total inactivity. Early in the summer a division was established in Fairville, which has been steadily gaining in numbers and influence. The establishment of the division was largely due to the efforts of the grand chaplain, Rev. Mr. Kirby.

Early in August the grand worthy patriarch visited Gloucester division. No. 284, and held under its auspices a public meeting. Later in the evening the division met in regular session when eighteen new members were initiated. On the following Sunday morning a special meeting was held in the Methodist church, when the grand worthy patriarch preached to an overflow congregation. The following Monday evening he addressed a large public meeting at Douglastown. He spoke under the auspices of the division, which had for years been dormant. On Tuesday evening he addressed a large public meeting at Douglastown. He spoke under the auspices of the division, which had for years been dormant.

Five Lines to Portland advertisement. Think They'll Have Big Passenger Business—Grand Trunk Announcement. Portland (Me.) is to have five lines of ocean steamships this winter according to an announcement made by the Grand Trunk. The Dominion will send four passenger ships instead of two as originally planned. The five regular lines will be the Dominion to Liverpool; the Dominion to Bristol; the Leyland to Antwerp and the Allan to Glasgow semi-monthly. In addition the Hamburg-American and some of the so-called tramp lines will run occasional ships to Portland. Under the new plan it is the intention evidently to make Portland a large passenger port, with a weekly service. Different Bibles for Black and White Witnesses. Six new Bibles have been ordered by the judge of the supreme court of New Hanover county, while the old ones are being burned. Back of this simple fact lies a wonderful development of the race question. The judge has decided that hereafter the court must use separate Bibles in the case of white and Negro witnesses. There will be a white Bible and a black Bible, or rather, a Bible for white witnesses and another for black witnesses. No reason can be imagined for this departure, except the fact that the Bible does not seem sound, since white men carry around about as many disease germs as black men—Kansas City Journal. Wedding at St. Stephen. St. Stephen, Oct. 29.—St. Stephen's Presbyterian church was the scene of a wedding this morning, when Miss Annie Moore, daughter of W. Moore, of St. John, was married to Walter Stevens, youngest son of George Stevens, and a representative of Queensway at the town council board. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. S. Morton. There were no bridesmaids and only the necessary formalities. The bride was given away by her father, and J. O. Stevens, Jr., K. C. and Herbert Moore, brothers of the bride and groom respectively, acting as witnesses. Counselor Stevens and his bride left by the early morning train after the ceremony for a trip to Boston and Concord.

Profit in Apples. The Acadia Orchardist says that apple shipments to England to date will average to the shippers from $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel. It is showing for early fruit a wonderful command for the unprecedented shipments from Halifax, Montreal, Boston, and other ports. John I. Murphy, of Wolfville, has in his garden an apple tree of the gravest variety that yielded him this year 18 barrels of fine fruit, besides several barrels that were blown off by the wind. These 18 barrels at $3 per barrel come to $54, or deducting the cost of the package, $30, which is the interest upon $1,000.

The North German Lloyd steamer "Grosser Kurfurst," 13,398 tons, has been specially chartered for conveying the delegates. The itinerary includes 13,381 miles, only 979 miles of which will be by rail, and the steamer is to carry 830 passengers. The Nova Scotia delegates are as follows: Mrs. A. E. Carr, Yarmouth; Miss E. Mabel Carr, Yarmouth; A. B. Higgins, Middlebury; Mr. and Mrs. John Hopkins, Mill Village; Rev. Jacob Layton, Truro; Mrs. N. G. Seymour, Shelburne. It is calculated that during the year ending Aug. 29 there were 41 deaths due to horse in England and Wales; whereas the total number of passengers and railway officials killed by accidents to passenger trains on British railways was eight.

THE TELEGRAPH'S PULPIT.

The Kingdom of God and His Righteousness—Sermon by Rev. B. N. Nobles, of Carleton Baptist Church.

Mat. 6—33: "Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness."

There is then, according to the Scriptures, a Kingdom of God. The Gospels record between seventy-five and one hundred references by Jesus to this Kingdom. To Him the Kingdom of God—or as He sometimes called it, the Kingdom of Heaven—was a very real thing. As there is a mineral kingdom, a vegetable kingdom, an animal kingdom, and a kingdom of men, so there is a Kingdom of God. And just as the animal kingdom overlaps and interpenetrates the vegetable kingdom; just as the kingdom of men overlaps and interpenetrates the animal kingdom; so the Kingdom of God overlaps and interpenetrates the kingdom of men. It reaches far beyond earth, but its confines are here—the heavenly lies adjacent to and overlaps the earthly.

The mineral kingdom includes not all matter, but all inorganic matter. The vegetable kingdom includes not all organic matter, but all living organisms, but all living organisms endowed with the animal nature. The kingdom of men includes not all animals, but all animals endowed with the human life and faculties. The Kingdom of God includes not all men, but all men endowed with spiritual life.

The Kingdom of God is not the visible church of Christ on earth for though the confines lie here, the kingdom reaches far beyond earth. The church is a partial manifestation. Doubtless some belong to the church that do not belong to the kingdom, and some to the kingdom who do not belong to the church. Indeed it is not required by us, that such as would come into the church give evidence of already living in the Kingdom? No, the visible church is not the Kingdom of God. As well say that visible vegetable life constitutes the entire vegetable kingdom on earth; or that visible animal life constitutes the entire animal kingdom on earth; as to say the visible church constitutes the Kingdom of God on earth. It constitutes it in part only. It is a partial manifestation of the Kingdom.

Jesus taught His disciples to pray "Thy Kingdom come." It has not fully come as yet and so we still pray "Thy Kingdom come," but in a distinct and definite manner the Kingdom was set up on earth on the day of Pentecost following our Lord's ascension. Though in former dispensations God had among men occasional subjects of His Kingdom, that is to say, persons in whom had been begotten His own spiritual life nevertheless the Kingdom was not spoken of as set up. Jesus preached that it was to come—that it was at hand. And on that memorable day of Pentecost when upon the one hundred and twenty souls in the upper room at Jerusalem, the Holy Spirit, with sound as of a rushing, mighty wind, came and filled them, bringing them into the experience of a new life and under his sway and dominion—it was then the Kingdom came. And ever since it has been coming more fully as it has been extended among the nations of earth, from all of whom subjects have been drawn.

That this Kingdom of God should draw unto itself from the lower Kingdom of men, subjects for itself, is not without analogy in nature. You saw the grain growing in the field last summer. By the action of air and heat and light and moisture some of that soil was dissolved, and the grain roots reaching forth laid hold upon the little particles and brought them into relation with the plant. So those particles of soil belonging to the mineral Kingdom, yielding to the life power of the grain were converted and brought into the vegetable Kingdom, being stored up in the plant. You see the cattle feeding upon the grass and grain. Touched by the life energies of the animal, that food of the vegetable Kingdom yields to transforming power—is converted, and enters the animal Kingdom. Thus of the Kingdom of God. When the spirit of Jesus Christ finds His way into men's hearts, converts and translates them into a new life and experience, they are brought into the Kingdom of God.

So you see it belongs to God to transfer persons into His Kingdom. It is the divinely granted prerogative of the plants to lay hold of particles of soil and transfer them to the vegetable Kingdom. It is the doubly granted prerogative of the animal to lay hold of plant food and transfer it to itself. It is the divinely granted prerogative of Jesus the Christ to touch, convert and translate persons into the Kingdom of God, so making them to be of the number endowed with His life. And as by grain and straw and roots into conditions where animal life may more easily assimilate the particles, so by means of truth, providential dealing, etc., men may be reduced to conditions where the spirit of Christ may more readily get a hold upon them. But it is the prerogative of our Lord to transfer unto the Kingdom.

The entrance to the Kingdom cannot be forced even though men should wish to do so. No plant ever converted itself and put itself into the animal Kingdom; no animal ever forced its way up into the Kingdom of man; and no man ever worked himself up into the Kingdom of God. The higher has always to stoop to the lower and take it up if it shall be taken up. And so the Son of God who hath authority in the Kingdom of God has to stoop to the lower Kingdom of men and through the spirit take them up, if so be they shall be taken up. Insuperable barriers to human ability surround the Kingdom of God. Of all who have ever found entrance to it, it may be said, as Paul affirmed: "God hath delivered us from the power of darkness and hath translated us into the Kingdom of His dear Son." I see now more clearly than ever the reason and force of the words of Jesus: "Except a man be forgotten and born from above he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

This Kingdom, like the other Kingdoms, has its characteristic. The distinguishing characteristic of the vegetable Kingdom are growth, foliage, flower, fruit; those of the animal Kingdom are organism, locomotion, instinct, senses; those of the Kingdom of men are reasoning faculty, moral consciousness, religious instincts and language; those of the Kingdom of God are, according to Paul, "righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost." Now these are just the things men have not, but need. Hence they should seek the Kingdom of God. Though men outside this Kingdom may wear a cheerful countenance, it does not indicate a joyful, restful soul and righteous life. When they take you seriously into their confidences, you find that guilt and distress and sense of bondage trouble them. Within the Kingdom, however, the conditions are different. Here joy, peace and holiness prevail, so ought distress, captive, sinful men seek it.

And not alone for this, but because life in the Kingdom of God is a higher form of life should men seek the Kingdom. Were it possible for the plant to wish and will, would you not say it was grand aspiration on its part to aspire to the animal Kingdom? For an animal is a higher form of life than a plant. It has intelligence, instinct and feeling which the plant has not. Were it possible for animals to feel dissatisfaction with themselves and aspire to higher life, would you not reckon it a noble aspiration to aspire to the Kingdom of men? For a man is greater than an animal, pure and simple. He has language, reason, moral consciousness, emotional nature, religious aspirations which no animal has, however high in scale of animal life, pure and simple. Even so it is a noble aspiration when men aspire to the Kingdom of God.

It is not indicative of weakness and fear, but contrariwise of strength and nobility of character for one to seek this Kingdom. Life in it is a higher mode of being than life in the Kingdom of men, pure and simple. A member of the Kingdom of God is greater than one of the Kingdom of men alone, for he has the life of God in greater or less measure and he has a knowledge more or less distinct, and spiritual experience which the unsympathetic man, who has not been translated into the higher Kingdom, has not. So because life in the Kingdom of God is a higher form of life, men should seek the Kingdom.

And further they should seek it because all needed good shall ensue to such. Says Jesus, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things (i. e., needful things) shall be added unto you." And the Psalmist says: "Trust in the Lord and do good, so shall thou dwell in the land and verily thou shalt be fed." "No good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly." And Paul speaking unto members of the Kingdom says: "My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." But while the Kingdom of God shall be sought, it is not enough to seek it. Jesus adds: "and His righteousness." A character and life like unto God's should be sought. When atoms of the mineral kingdom are incorporated into the vegetable kingdom, they take unto themselves the character of the vegetable kingdom. So also products of the vegetable kingdom being transferred to the animal kingdom, take unto themselves the character of the animal kingdom. Being without desire or will in the matter they yield themselves at once to the life energy of plant or animal as the case may be and so are transformed at once. In the Kingdom of God, however, it is somewhat different. These translated into His Kingdom are persons, not things—persons with desires, wills, choices of their own—so there is not always the yielding to the life energy of the kingdom that should be but on the contrary sometimes willful disobedience. Hence the character of the Kingdom is not developed in its numbers so speedily or to such an extent as the Lord of the Kingdom would have. But I must close.

A German emperor once visited a country school, so the story goes. In addressing the little ones he held up a coin and upon asking what kingdom it belonged to, was told the mineral. Then holding up an orange he asked to what kingdom it belonged and was told the vegetable. "And now, to what kingdom do I belong?" said the emperor. A moment's pause, then a little hand went up and upon being asked for her answer replied: "God's Kingdom, sire." My brothers, to what kingdom do you belong? Are you members of God's Kingdom? To such of you as answer affirmatively I say: Thank God for the grace and ever seek the Kingdom's interests; put them first in all the relations of life, and do all you need good shall come. But do I hear some one saying: "I am not of the Kingdom, but I aspire thereto. I hunger and thirst for its righteousness. I would enter—show me the way." Brother, list to the word. "Repent." "He that believeth on the Son shall not perish, but have everlasting life." "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." "Whosoever cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." Brothers, up and off. If you were consumptive or had ailments which climatic influences would cure or help, you would seek at once those healthful resorts, providing you had the strength and means. So now, that you know the place of your peace, holiness and life, up and off. Take your course along the way of penitence and faith and confession of Jesus whether God's spirit entreats you. So must you reach the confines of the Kingdom and come into such spiritual conditions as that the Lord of the Kingdom reaching down to you may quicken you with His life and translate you into the Kingdom of God which you seek.

HOT-AFTER-RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA. American Business Men Send an Appeal to Senator Fairbanks to Convene High Jointers.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The following open letter is addressed to Senator Fairbanks, chairman of the representatives of the United States on the Joint High Commission, by Campbell Shew of this city, chairman of the National Committee on Reciprocity with Canada.

Sir:—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has agreed to confer with you at the conclusion of the session of the Canadian Parliament upon your invitation to reconvene the Joint High Commission. The session is now ended. It is understood that Sir Wilfrid will state at the conference that the failure of the negotiations for a treaty in 1898 has made very inadvisable a renewal of negotiations unless reasonable assurance is given that a mutually satisfactory treaty will result.

The workers in this country for reciprocity with Canada have for the past twelve months been preparing for you fearful evidence as to the necessity for a treaty. It is strongly felt by the commercial and industrial interests of the northern tier of States and the States immediately adjoining that closer trade relations with Canada can be had by conceding free trade in natural products, and that unless this concession is made there will follow a most effective check to expansion of trade northward.

We do not assure you a practical success in arranging closer relations with Canada, but we also urge our conviction that the freeing of trade in natural products upon the continent would bring about such expansion of trade northward as would give to this country a long lease of continuous prosperity. Our trade with Canada is now increasing at the rate of a million dollars a month. By introducing free trade in natural products, the increase would be very much greater, and it is well within reason to assert that commercial union will come hand over hand as a most profitable reward for conceding free trade in natural products, provided the concession is agreed to before the end of the next regular session of congress. Delay beyond that time is very likely to establish a high protective policy in Canada.

We submit that expansion of trade northward means a most profitable sharing in the work of development of the natural resources of half a continent—resources that will create extraordinary wealth and that are most conveniently within reach. We also submit that expansion of trade eastward, westward and southward has an uncertainty that would not apply to the northern markets under a reciprocity treaty. Furthermore, we urge the advisability giving the opportunity of interest policy on this continent a decided preference over a policy of wasteful competition between the country and Canada in the markets of the world.

ENGLISH, AS SPOKEN BY A CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR OF NEW YORK.

New York, Oct. 27.—Charles F. Murphy can obtain $500 if he will produce the check for $500, made out in favor of William S. Devery and signed by R. Fulton Cutting, which Murphy says he has in his possession. Murphy, who is a candidate for Mayor of New York, himself makes this generous offer, and declares that the only condition imposed is that the check must be genuine and not one of the fourteen hundred street brands of forgeries and fakes.

"So Murphy claims to have the goods in his possession, does he?" His friends grimly, last night, "Gashouse Charlie" seems disposed to jump up in bed again, notwithstanding the kind efforts of his friends to clothe him off. His friends of Fourteenth street had better apply an anesthetic in a hurry or he'll be giving something which will raise me into spirit.

So that autumn, instead of being a time of universal decay and death as it is so often spoken of, would be better referred to as the time of preparation for the larger life that lies in the future.

BIG CONTEST OVER McALEER'S ESTATE. Former St. John Man's Will Doesn't Please His Daughters.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—(Special)—The contest of the will of Patrick McAleer, formerly of St. John, who was a carpenter and a builder, and left an estate of about $800,000, largely in real estate, was begun before Judge Grant in the Suffolk County Court today.

He left five children, John B. McAleer, an only son and four daughters, Sarah, Annie F., Mary E. and Helena J. McAleer. His four daughters object to the allowance of his will upon the ground that he was not of sound mind and was unduly influenced.

The will in substance provided several bequests amounting to a few thousand dollars for John, his son, and placed the residue of his estate with John and Mary, as trustees to hold during the lives of his (testator's) children and to pay the income to them in equal shares.

Upon the death of the last surviving child the principal is to be distributed among the testator's grandchildren. The will was witnessed by Joseph Comer, John A. Pappas and Mark Kennedy and of these the former is dead.
