A WORTHY MEMORY KEPT GREEN.

(AFTER THE FASHION OF A BALLAD.)

June 23, A. D. 1814.

Never a braver knight has been Than staunch Sir Giles de Argentine, But where he proved it, and where he fought,
You know not mayhap. Yet to know it you ought.

He stood by King Edward, that noble When Edward the king was laid to rest, And before the pike and the claymore's stroke
The English forces scattered like smoke.

The field was lost—beyond repair!
But Edward the king was laid to rest, They prayed for him, but they prayed in vain,
Till Sir Giles de Argentine seized his rein.

"Let a battle be all that we rue!
Sire, would you lose us England too?"
"Twas all that Sir Giles found breath to say As he urged the monarch out of the fray.

Around the king there gathered a few,
Broken and bleeding, but tried and true, And they guarded him well with sword and shield,
Till they bare him safe from the bloody field.

But when they reached the edge of the plain,
And the Earl of Pembroke had Edward's rein,
They slackened speed and, along their track,
They looked on the field of slaughter back.

Then Sir Giles de Argentine drew back,
And with his sword on the horse's mane, He gazed on his king a little while,
Then turned him back with a fearless smile.

"Tis not my own want," said he, "to fly!
And into the battle he rode—to die.
There with his face to the foe he fell—And a soldier might pray to die as well!"
—Tom Hood.

Sketches from the South.

BY ALBERT J. HICKMAN.

Continued.

After leaving this honorable gentlemen we visited the president.
The presidential mansion, since the destruction of the palace, is a plain, wooden building, situate in a central part of the town. In front of the building, and along the street leading to it are stationed, what I suppose they call

LA GARDE NATIONALE.

Their uniforms recommends them to attention, for with the exception of their country's defenders there are without doubt the worst discipline and most inefficient soldiery in the world.

The invariable uniform of the private seems to be blue drill, more or less shabby. This sameness would be wearisome were it not for the infinite variety of hats they wear.

They pass the time most agreeably in drinking, sleeping, smoking and playing cards. Thus they cultivate the arts of peace rather than of war.

They have no record of target practice to give to the world, the bug-bear drill never interferes with their happiness, but they are fond of arms when "piled," and take great pleasure in contemplating them in that position.

peared at intervals women and children, presumably the servants of His Excellency. One or two small black pigs, attenuated, but not pale, with snouts of greyhounds, "long drawn out," gave remarkable promise of either side the stream. A horse was tied in one corner, a small child playing in the refreshing coolness of no clothing, a gorgeous rooster strutted among some bushes, and given terribly irate at the mouth gambols of the pigs, who occasionally amused themselves by giving their tails an extra kink, snorting two or three times successively in an absorbed kind of way, then dashing off at a mad pace, only to be arrested by the president's aide-de-camp, an individual in a most gaudy uniform of loose rose-colored pants, a military coat, epaulettes and glittering with gold lace, a cocked hat, gay with feathers, and boots that were the perfection of "shine." He conducted us upstairs into the presence of

THE PRESIDENT.

We found seated upon a sofa in his reception room a slight old man of medium height, with a benevolent expression of countenance, and the color of a dark mulatto. His head and forehead are well shaped and Caucasian; his mouth and nose more Ethiopian, yet not strongly marked as such. He had gray, curly hair and a gray moustache, and his face was fringed with light gray side-whiskers meeting around his throat.

We had rather a lengthened conversation, from which I derived the most agreeable impressions of his Excellency. He is said to be a rare exception to the chief rulers of Hayti hitherto. The report of him is that he is eminently religious, kind and charitable. That he possesses these exemplary virtues my personal observation of him leads me faithfully to believe. It is true that he lacks the conscious dignity and pride, the real reserve, which are incidental with, becoming to rulers, equally true to think, that his want of mental force makes him to some extent the staff of his ministers, but I remember him as a plain, kind old man, with pleasant, affectionate ways, and a kindly face, over which, in repose, there sometimes came a weary, thoughtful expression that told of a mind ill at ease with his position.

POMP OF POWER.

State pageantry seems to have waned in Hayti since the withdrawal of Jefferson, the President preceding Salnouque, who took upon himself the title of Faustus 1st, it is said to have flourished and grown to most regal proportions. Shenlouque wore a crown and kingly robes and spoke right regally from a throne. These emblems of royalty disappeared at the advent of a revived republic under Jefferson, but this President, an educated and accomplished man, at present resident in Jamaica, maintained with democratic zeal the exterior majesty of the chief ruler's position. He delighted to live in the air and perfume of a royalty created by himself. He rode in a blaze of magnificence, conspicuous among his escort of brilliantly uniformed, well-mounted officers. He was faultless in his etiquette, a marvel of gracious manners, and a most agreeable conversationalist. His receptions of distinguished foreigners are said to have been very grand affairs indeed.

Many of his soldiers were clothed in the brilliant Zouave costume, and all well clothed and better disciplined than at present. Although the obnoxious throne was removed from the salle de reception in the palace, yet its other adornments were increased. Six or seven thoroughly perfected military bands were always in attendance upon state occasions. The palace grounds were artistically laid out by French gardeners, a decorated with fountains, rare trees and flowers. He projected and carried out many public works either of utility or luxury. He endeavored to inspire the people with a proper regard for their nationality, and under his regime for many years, the Republic is said to have enjoyed a remarkable degree of prosperi- and financial credit. But he lost the people's confidence. Were he perfect as a ruler this would probably have been equally the case. A nice little revolution of the kind so common in Hayti taught him the uncertainty of all earthly things, and banished him inexorably from the Island. The revolutionists are said that he was licentious, in a country where almost everybody is so, that in the latter years of his rule he was guilty of gross profligation of the public monies, and that he was cruel.

The present President is said to be none of this. He abhors military executions, and always leans to the side of mercy. He possesses no vices and everybody bears witness to his unassuming charity and scrupulous honesty. Under the present constitution of the country, the chief executive officer is degraded of much power, but a man of strong character and decided opinions can, by a firm stand, generally mould affairs conformable to his will, for the reason that in many cases his party are dependent for their political, yea, physical existence upon a popular ruler who represents them, and herein is said to consist the chief weakness of President Nissage Saget, viz: that he is weak and irresolute, and that he allows himself to be too much swayed by the Cabinet. Although a man of fair intelligence, finding that he cannot exercise it untrammelled, he weakly gives his sanction in matters of administration to what involves a sacrifice of cherished opinions and predilections, which if manfully stood up for would in many cases import more of justice and less of vicious diplomacy into the management of affairs. He is said to be a brave man, although one who has an aversion for bloodshed. A character and disposition like this unfit him for the position he occupies. His vir-tuous qualities are traded upon by designing supporters, and without being made beneficial as examples of policy in the government of the country. Hayti too must be ruled, not reasoned with, until at least the absence of anarchy shall improve the understanding of the people. That the weal of the country so much depends upon the capacity of its chief executive officer is proven by its unparalleled prosperity under President Boyer, when there was an overflowing treasury and a thriving people, and the only encumbrance upon the resources of the country, viz: the tribute to France for the acknowledgment of its independence was rapidly reduced by annual instalments, which were paid in gold almost as soon as the French frigates sent for its collection dropped anchor in the harbor of Port au Prince. At the time of Shenlouque, the Emperor, a negro of but little education, but considerable ability and great force of character, the Island is said to have been very prosperous for a time.

I have already mentioned the status of the country under President Jefferson, and there are other examples to prove the powerful influence that the chief ruler of administrative ability and decided character has been able to exercise in the councils and administration of the government of the republic, and the powerful impulse the properly directed talents of such a person have invariably given to the country's prosperity.

I saw the president several times afterwards. One day in company with my friend our stay at the Executive Mansion was necessarily delayed until his dinner hour. He invited us to dine with him. The day was Friday, and the dinner a very plain one, for the President consistently carries his observance of the rules of his Church into private life.
But there was a bottle of good Bordeaux on the table, from the contents of which the President drank in a silver goblet—we in plain glass.
Then the milk of human kindness was there, and with the wine, and above all the proper regard for conscience, atoned for what might have been a want in the entertainment.

THE GOVERNMENT.

Another day my friend and I were present at a meeting of the President and Council in the matter of my friend's business with the government. The Council consists of four members, viz: the Minister of Justice, Minister of Marine, &c., Minister of the Interior, Minister of Finance. The Minister of Justice is a tall, partly good-looking man of reputed good ability. His complexion is dark, not more so though than if bronzed by the sun, and his features very different to the least, as to whether there is any negro blood in his composition. The difficulty of deciding this question will appear from the fact that there are no very accurate records of pedigree kept in this country, the people are reverently anxious to preserve their genealogy, and the presence or want of exact amount of shade in a man's composition cannot be accurately reckoned by his color or appearance.

The Minister of Marine, &c., I have described already. M. Laporte, the Minister of Finance, is a venerable looking old man, garrulous in a weak voice, and apparently white. Whether from the imbecility of age or want of natural ability or what he is said to be unfit for his position and unpopular. Apparently his son is the jealous guardian of his father's honor, for during my stay at Port au Prince, or just before he fought a bloodless duel with a person, whose name I have forgotten, the cause of which is said to have originated in some attack made by the young man opponent upon the private or political reputation of his father.

GENERAL LORQUET.

The Minister of the Interior, General Lorquet, is perhaps the most popular and influential member of the Government. He is a man I should think, of between forty-five and fifty years of age, with the color of a light mulatto, curly iron grey hair and a bristling, clipped moustache of the same color. He has a thoughtful, very intelligent-looking face, to which the harsh lines about his mouth, and rather cold-looking gray eyes, that impart a severe expression when you look closely at him. But then these men have had harsh experiences, which might naturally enough leave their imprint on their faces. Lorquet was a prominent leader of his party with the last revolution. He fought bravely and well until the war ended with the flight of Salnave. He commanded the escort that brought the unfortunate ex-president a prisoner into the capital. Under the advice and with the concurrence of his colleagues he ordered and presided over the shooting of Salnave's generals and ministers outside of the town, and he was one of the tribunal who tried their leader, and now he is one of the ministry, and a wall of support to the government; and yet I do not believe him to be a cruel man, except from necessity. His manner is reserved, but agreeable, and invites your confidence and respect.— His whole deportment is that of a gentleman, and he entertains hospitably and well in a house whose interior conveniences and luxuries denote the rank and refined tastes of their owner.

AGRICULTURE.

The October number of that excellent monthly, the American Agriculturist, is at hand, and it is full and complete as usual. An article —"What is Science in Farming?" refutes the idea prevalent amongst men who pride themselves on their "practical" farming, that Book Farming or Science in Farming is of no value.
Every man ought to have a complete knowledge of his own business.
What would be thought of a man setting himself up as a lawyer without any knowledge of text books, or decisions of Judges, and the opinions of eminent men at the Bar? He would be denounced as a rogue and an igno-rampus, but how many farmers are there in Westmorland who have committed an equal absurdity? Every farmer has derived some benefit in his operations from his neighbor's experience, and how much more could he derive from a judicious knowledge of "Book Farming," which is nothing more than the experience of thousands of farmers, comprehensively presented.

This experience has been acquired little by little by working farmers, chemists and others, who have made general truths and principles the subject of careful study, have classified and arranged it and made it a science.
The more penetrating and comprehensive a farmer's knowledge is, the more cheaply and effectively is his work well done, and we know of no cheap publication giving the same amount of agricultural knowledge as the Agriculturist.

The benefits of manuring meadows during Autumn, in protecting the roots during the winter frosts and in fertilizing; the benefits of fall plowing in a clay soil as well as a dry loamy soil.

"Boxes—A great waste," shews that a million of tons of bones on the farms and pastures of the United States by means of animals raised for food alone, 550,000 of this is phosphate of lime. How much of this is returned to the soil? Portions of it are used in the arts, in manufacturing the handles of brushes, knives, and hundreds of "notions." 72,000 tons are exported in the form of bone black or raw bone, so that with waste, not above one-half is returned to the soil. This calculation is outside that of the milk of 10,000,000 of cows, averaging 15 lbs of phosphates apiece, and of the grain raised and shipped. This tremendous drain accounts for the diminishing yield of grain, and poor pastures in many districts of the United States. Great Britain imports bones from all parts of the world and exports none; the result is that crops there have reached an average quantity equal to the maximum reached in the most abundant periods of American agriculture.

A PINE DRIVER, portable, to be worked with two horses, and costing only $10, is fully illustrated.

FENCES as a means of monopoliz-ing lands and running away with money is spoken of. Less farming and more Hedges are recommended.
A farmer of Maryland has five miles of handsome hedges, which cost him but $25 to keep in order last year.

"An Egg Farm" to pay well must be ordinarily stocked with pullets only, which must be forced constantly from the time they commence to lay until they stop, and then market them before they eat up the profits in the illness of fall and winter. Pullets grow fast when young and return in flesh what they eat. When they commence laying, their eggs are prompt dividends, besides their bodies increase for a year or more. We should aim to support only such fowls as are all the while giving returns in growth and eggs, and the high pressure mode of feeding and turning off while young is the true policy. Balance accounts promptly with animals that consume their food in six months. The stimulating and unnatural profligence for a few months will not affect the stock, if the birds are allowed sun, air and freedom, and as none of these fowls leave descendants no evil effect is created on the stock. The best breed of layers is the White Leghorn, and the best sitters are the half-blood Light Brahmans.

The Agriculturist contains many other valuable articles not touched upon. Orange Judd & Co. Publishers. Price $1.50 per annum. It may be ordered from this office, with CHIGNECTO POST for $2.10.

VALUE OF SEA-WEED FOR MANURE.
—There are only two ways in which sea-weed can be profitably used.
One is, to spread it and plow it under when fresh; the other, to merely dry it to burn, and when sufficiently dry to burn, to reduce them to ashes. In composting the bulk is very much reduced, and they seem to disappear almost altogether. When burned they yield a very large bulk of ashes—about one-seventh part of their own dry weight. The ash contains, of potash, 12 per cent.; soda, 12 per cent.; salt, 20 per cent.; lime, 10 per cent.; phosphates, 5 per cent.; and sulphuric acid, 24 per cent. Besides these there is some chlorine and iodine. It will thus be seen that this ash is very valuable as a manure, and would pay excellently for the labor of gathering and burning.

TO PREVENT INTERFERING.—To prevent, remove the edge of the crust that strikes the ankle, and have the shoe set well under the foot.
The opposite shoe should be set lower on the outside, and a little higher on the inside, so as to turn the ankle somewhat, that the shoe may clear it in passing. Let the hind calks point inwards, and be rounded off on the outside. If all fails, put a leather shield on the ankle.

STEAMING FOOD.—It is the general opinion that steaming saves one-third of the fuel. Our experience seems to sustain the assertion.
The extra cost of steaming water, I say, 12 1-2 per cent. on the cost of the apparatus (about $200 for a small one), you will have steam-power for thrashing, sawing wood, grinding grain, etc., etc., and the services of the extra help for a portion of the time.
If your own time is not fully occupied in the winter, your extra labor will cost less than our estimate. With the foregoing facts before you, you can decide better than we can whether it will pay.—Am. A.

COPY OF PETITION
For Publication by Sheriff.

In the Supreme Court, for Trial of Election Petition for County of Westmorland.

ROBERT KAY, Petitioner, and
DANIEL L. HANINGTON, Respondent.

To BLAIR BOTSFOORD, Esquire, Sheriff for the County of Westmorland.

The Names, Residences, and additions of Sureties are

WILLIAM B. SMILES, of the Parish of Salsbury, in the County of Westmorland; FARMER.

WARREN TAYLOR, of the Parish of Coveville, in the County of Albin, FARMER.

W. CARMAN,
Tiler of the Pines, 26th Sept. 1871.

IN THE SUPREME COURT.
The Petition and Corrupt and Election Petition Act, 1867.
Election for the County of Westmorland, holden on the eighth day of September, A. D. 1871, when a poll was demanded and holden on the twelfth day of September, A. D. 1871, and an adjourned Court of said Election was holden on the fourth day of September, then next turning the member elected.

The Petition of Robert Kay, of the Parish of Salsbury, in the said County, Esquire, whose name is scribed.

1. The Petitioner, Robert Kay, is a person who was a candidate at the above Election, and who had a right to vote, and who did vote, at the above Election.

2. And the Petitioner states that the Election was holden on the eighth day of September, A. D. 1871, when Daniel L. Hanington, the Petitioner, and Charles Ward were candidates.

3. And the Petitioner states that at and upon the said Daniel L. Hanington being nominated as such candidate the Petitioner delivered to the Sheriff a protest, and the grounds thereof in writing against the Sheriff receiving the said Daniel L. Hanington as a candidate and returning his name as such on the Poll Book.

4. And the Petitioner states that a poll was demanded and holden, and that an adjourned Court of Election was holden as severally above mentioned.

5. And the Petitioner states that at said adjourned Court of Election, and at and upon the Sheriff being ready to declare the member elected, and before such declaration, the Petitioner protested against the return of the said Daniel L. Hanington, and delivered such protest and the grounds thereof in writing to the Sheriff at the time he made such protest.

6. And the Petitioner states that said Sheriff has returned the said Daniel L. Hanington as being duly elected.

7. And the Petitioner says that on the twenty-ninth day of December, last past, and previous to the above election, at an election holden in and for said County, the said Sheriff returned the said Daniel L.
Hanington as a member duly elected for said County to the present General Assembly.

8. And the Petitioner says that afterwards, to wit: On the eleventh day of July last past, and before the holding of the election first above mentioned, at a Court for the trial of an Election Petition for the said County, holden in and for said County, under and by virtue of the above Act, the said election and return of the said Daniel L. Hanington, made on the twenty-ninth day of December as aforesaid, were by the determination and public declaration of the Judge of said Court declared void and at aside, and said Judge did thereupon state the grounds and reasons, for such determination, and certified the same to the Speaker of said Assembly, pursuant to the said Act, and the said seat of the said Daniel L. Hanington in the said Assembly did thereby become vacant.

9. And the Petitioner says that the grounds and reasons given for such determination and judgment by the said Judge, were that the said Daniel L. Hanington, and through his agents at such last mentioned Election; and that the said Daniel L. Hanington had, after the ordering of the poll for the said last mentioned Election given and allowed to Electors at that Election money, meat, drink, entertainment and provisions, in order to be elected at such last mentioned Election.

10. And the Petitioner says that the Election first above mentioned was holden to return a member in the place of the said Daniel L. Hanington, whose seat had been declared vacant as aforesaid, and that the said Daniel L. Hanington, by force of the determination and judgment of the said Judge, and of the grounds and reasons therein contained, as aforesaid, is wholly ineligible, incapable and disqualified to be a candidate, and to be returned as being duly elected by the Sheriff, as aforesaid, at the Election, first above mentioned, and to take a seat as a member in the present House of Assembly, to fill such vacancy, and of which said facts the Petitioner duly notified the Sheriff and the electors by the protest severally above mentioned.

11. And the Petitioner says that the Petitioner had more votes polled for him at the Election first above mentioned than had said Charles Ward, the other candidate.

Wherefore the Petitioner prays that it may be determined that the said Daniel L. Hanington was not duly elected or returned at said Election first above mentioned, and that such Election was void and may be set aside, and that the said return of said Sheriff be annulled, and the Petitioner to be duly elected.

Dated this twenty-third day of September, A. D. 1871.

LOUIS NAPOLEON'S DECESS, sixteen in number, were recently hoisted at Marseilles, and brought prices which Mr. Bonner, or Commodore Van Ler-bit, or Mr. Jerome, or scores of men who air themselves on Harlem Lane, would regard as contemptible for a tolerable roaster. The whole lot brought $7000—an average of $148.
The best animal brought only $810.
The French consider these as excellent prices. With us they would be regarded as the minimum.

PIERRE HUMBERT, heir to the throne of Italy, is travelling in Spain in disguise of the most comical sort.
Recently when the train on which he was travelling reached Villalba the persons who expected him, among them his brother, naturally approached the first-class carriage; but instead of finding him here, the prince, in a striped shirt and sooty face and hands, stepped lightly from the beaming and threw himself upon the bosom of the King of Spain. The monarchs were terrified in the light of the great of 8.

SACKVILLE, N. B., OCT. 12, 1871.

SACKVILLE RAILWAY BRIDGE.

We regret having to call the attention of the Railway Commission to the fact that the bridge across the Sackville River, before the bridge was completed, what stone should be used in the abutments and piers was the subject of much discussion.

Our workmen on Saturday, Oct. 7, were employed in the construction of the bridge. The result was a satisfactory structure, and the bridge was opened to traffic on the 10th inst.

These facts, which are almost apparent to any observer passing the bridge on the train, prove the stone to be wholly unfit for any structure of a permanent character, and we at once notice it so as to prevent the Intercolonial Railway Commission permitting this stone to be used in any of the Railway works.

We do not know whether it is the Railway Commissioners or their Engineers, who are to blame for allowing this stone to be used, but we are sure because it was used for the Sackville Bridge, it was assumed, without proper tests, to be suitable for permanent works, but after this they cannot permit a stone from Wood Point to be used, where it is exposed to frost or other atmospheric influences.

Every man thousands are fleeing by the only railroad running. Buildings are being blown up, the streets are filled with stones and mud, and the water is so high that the streets are under water.

THE CHICAGO FIRE.

On Sunday night a fire broke out in a wooden building, on a main street in Chicago, and the consequence of the high wind prevailing, as well as the combustible nature of the buildings, a disastrous conflagration of modern times, involving an appalling loss of life and property, and throwing tens of thousands of people homeless, helpless and penniless upon the generosity of the world.

On the 10th inst., Oct. 9th, the city was visited by a fire which destroyed $500,000 worth of property. Last Saturday another fire, $200,000 worth, and now, on the 11th, another fire, $1,000,000 worth, has broken out in the city.

At 2 o'clock on the 10th, a fire broke out in a building on the corner of the river in great numbers. Five minutes later we had to evacuate the office from which we were working, and the fire had become a great one.

The fire swept a district three miles in length, to a distance of a mile and a half in width, every lot of land, express office, telegraph office, theatre and newspaper offices, with all wholesale houses in the city, having been totally destroyed.

The St. John Board of Trade has concluded that the North Shore Steamers ought to have no subsidy unless the Government regulates the Freight Tariff.

A TEA MEETING was held at Jolicure on Thursday evening last, to obtain funds for an organ for the 'Rose of the Valley' Lodge, British Templars. $216 were obtained.

CLEANINGS.

Over thousand five hundred saloons furnish Louisville with local items.

Another poor girl has died in Virginia from the use of tobacco, at the age of 100. She was an orphan.

In regard to newspapers, young ladies prefer those which make the most bustle.

A female barber "out West" has retired from business on account of the arrival of a "little shaver."

An artist, celebrated for his forest and water pictures, was probably accounted a laborer, on account of his being a laborer of wood and a drawer of water.

A mad horse died in Ottumwa, Iowa, a few days ago. Previous to his death five pounds of chloroform were administered to him, but without visible effect.

A young woman in New Orleans, handsome and bewitching, lately applied to a lawyer to procure a divorce from her husband on the ground that she could do better.

A rustic girl wanted her lover to swear on the Bible that she was all the world to him, and when he would not she knocked him down with the sacred volume.

There are some newspaper verses beginning: "Last night I drew from off my sleeve a little golden hair." Lucky for you your wife didn't find it before you did.

The crime of jerking the hair out of your wife's head is not so sinful as it formerly was. It is just as ungentlemanly as ever, but it doesn't hurt as it used to.

A person who was sent to prison for marrying two wives, excused himself by the gross libel on the gentle sex, that "he had one she fought him, but when he got two they fought each other."

A well-known London printer, being called on to reply to a toast, said: "Gentlemen, I thank you most heartily; I can't make a speech, but I can print one as long as you like."

An Englishman having paid an Irish shoeblack with rind, "as thus accosted by the 'dirty urchin': 'My honey, all the polish you have is upon your boots, and I give you that.'"

The financial editor of the "Bennington Banner" reports marriages dull, engagements depressed, courtships good and prime, scandal overstocked, belles plenty, beaux scarce, and of poor quality.

An old farmer who was asked by an important attorney if there were any pretty girls in the neighborhood, was very reticent. "Yes, lots of 'em, but they're all married."
